

Two Railroad Unions Cancel Walkouts In Face Of Legislative, Court Action

Commuters Were First To Feel Strike Impact; Long Strike A Disaster

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thousands of the nation's suburban commuters were among the first to feel the effects of today's nationwide rail strike, but officials predicted far more serious consequences if the walk-out is a long one.

Auto industry officials spoke of a shutdown in as little as 48 hours. Perishable food products could become scarce in days. A Tennessee Valley Authority spokesman talked of a power crisis in a week.

Some layoffs began as the strike started and job furloughing was expected to mushroom if the strike is not quickly settled.

Christmas mails could be seriously delayed under a partial mail embargo.

In the New York metropolitan area alone, more than 145,000 daily commuters from the city's northern suburbs, New Jersey and Connecticut awoke today to face the problem of finding alternate transportation.

Bus rides and car pools were the prospect also for the estimated 140,000 persons who normally ride six major commuter lines into Chicago.

The Chicago Transit Authority planned to have all available buses and trains in operation and suburban bus lines were putting on extra coaches to carry passengers to CTA terminals on the city's outskirts.

In New York, state Public Service Commissioner Joseph C. Swidler signed an order Wednesday authorizing buses to operate off established routes and trucks to set up "through routes" to move vital materials.

The Connecticut State Transportation Department offered to assist local communities in setting up car-pool parking lots along major highways in that state and planned to increase the number of toll collectors to speed motorists on parkways.

Auto industry spokesmen estimated that the walkout could bring their industry to a halt in from 48 hours to "within a week."

The railroads are the primary means of shipping completed cars from factories and the shipment of parts from fabricating plants to assembly plants.

The spokesmen said some major parts such as car frames are only shipped on specifically designed rail cars and could not easily be shifted to trucks even if the latter were available.

In Kentucky, spokesmen for the state's coal industry said that any strike—no matter how brief—would immediately close many of the state's mines.

The coal supply is the major factor in the looming power crisis seen by the TVA spokesman. James E. Watson, TVA power manager, said that unless the strike is settled quickly its potential consequences "are so threatening to the nation's power supply that it could become necessary for power systems across the country, including TVA, to begin curtailing loads."

Congress has passed an emergency law ordering workers back to their jobs with a partial pay raise. Action on the bill was completed after the expiration of the strike deadline set by the four unions.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nationwide rail strike began crumbling today hours after it was called, with two of the unions in the 500,000-man walk-out returning to work.

Still, the effect of the strike, called at one minute after midnight despite a congressional ban backed by President Nixon, could be seen through reports of idle passenger and freight across the country.

From Cleveland the United Transportation Union cancelled and was quickly followed by the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way employees, at Detroit headquarters.

Still unheard from was the 200,000-man strong Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and its president and prime strike figure, C. L. Dennis. Spokesmen at union headquarters had no immediate statement but were telling newsmen there could be developments later in the day.

United's president, Charles Luna, has been acting as spokesman as well for the maintenance workers and the Hotel and Restaurant Employees union.

Whether the restaurant union, which represents dining car employees mostly, would follow Luna's lead again was not known, but this union's headquarters was promising a statement soon.

The workers were returning to work in the face of congressional and court actions taken a few minutes after the 11th hour to stop the strike.

The UTU withdrawal was announced by W.W. Carson, assistant to Luna.

In telegrams to all general chairmen and international officers, Carson advised that because Congress passed—and President Nixon signed—legislation prohibiting a strike and guaranteeing a wage increase that UTU was canceling its part

Reject Proposal

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon government joined the Viet Cong today in rejecting the U.S. talk of an extended cease-fire beginning with Christmas.

Informed sources said the South Vietnamese government had decided after consultations with Washington to announce 24-hour cease-fires for Christmas, New Year's and the Tet festival of the lunar new year during the last week of January. The announcement is expected soon.

The Viet Cong has already announced three-day cease-fires for Christmas and New Year's and four days for Tet.

Powerful Tremor

WASHINGTON (AP) — An earthquake almost as strong as one that killed an estimated 50,000 persons in Peru last May struck a border area of Peru and Ecuador at 11:35 p.m. EST Wednesday.

A spokesman at the National Earthquake Information Center nearby Rockville, Md., said early today the shock was strong enough to cause damage in nearby towns and villages.

He said it registered 7.6 on the Richter Scale. May's earthquake in the Peruvian Andes and coastal areas registered 7.8 on the same scale.

The spokesman said the epicenter of the earthquake was 275 miles southwest of the Ecuadorian capital of Quito and 50 miles southeast of Tumbes, a coastal city at the northern tip of Peru.

The quake that hit on May 31 about 400 miles to the south left an estimated 200,000 homeless in one of the Western Hemisphere's worst disasters on record.

in the strike.

The strike, which began at 12:01 a.m. was the nation's third in the last 50 years.

The emergency law passed by Congress early today ordered the strikers back to work with a partial pay increase.

"They are increasingly angry and bitter," said strike leader C. L. Dennis of the nearly 500,000 workers who walked out at 12:01 a.m. and showed no immediate inclination to return in compliance with the new law, a plea from President Nixon and a federal court order.

"The men and women who work for the railways have had a bum rap for a long time," Dennis said. They will remain off the job until they win their demands for substantial pay boosts above current wages ranging from $3.45 to $3.60 an hour, he said.

Trains bearing passengers and goods, including Christmas mail, ground to a halt and government officials predicted disastrous effects on the nation's already troubled economy if the strike lasts long.

President Nixon stayed up through the night as Congress labored past the minute-after-midnight strike deadline to produce an emergency law.

At 2:10 a.m. EST he signed the special legislation ordering the workers back until March 1, but complained the immediate 13.5 per cent pay hike included in the measure would worsen the nation's steepest inflationary wage-price spiral in more than 20 years.

He said any pay raise should be accompanied by modification in union work rules in order to increase productivity. He then urged the strikers to return to their jobs.

Just over an hour later—at 3:17 a.m.—U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt of Washington, D.C., issued a temporary order restraining a strike until Dec. 20. In issuing the injunction at the industry's request, Judge Pratt set a hearing for the morning of Dec. 18.

But the strike went on.

"We'll stay out until our international officers tell us to go back," said 48-year-old Jim Leach, donning a picket sign at Washington's Union Station a few blocks from the floodlit U.S. Capitol where Congress enacted the law ordering a strike delay until March 1.

"They are prepared to withhold their labor until they achieve equitable conditions of work," said Dennis, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, largest of four AFL-CIO unions in the dispute.

The strikers, who haven't had a pay raise since mid-1969, had exhausted delaying provisions of the Railway Labor Act over more than a year of protracted negotiations before walking off their jobs.

Mike McGee Takes Coaching Job At Duke University

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

Mike McGee, head football coach at East Carolina University for the past year, has been named to replace Tom Harp in the same position at Duke University.

Harp was fired by the Duke Athletic Council yesterday.

McGee, who was interviewed for the job Wednesday, was announced as the new coach in a press conference in Durham this morning at 11 a.m.

"It was the most difficult decision I've ever had to make," McGee said. "I know that sounds trite, but it's the truth." McGee told the Daily Reflector that he had announced his decision to the Pirate team at a special meeting last night at 8 p.m.

"It was very emotional for me and for the players," he said. "This team has meant a lot to me, and I'll never forget them."

McGee will thus be returning to the school where he started his coaching career. Raised in Elizabeth City, McGee and his twin brother, Jerry, an assistant at East Carolina, both attended Duke in their undergraduate days, playing under former Duke great, Bill Murray. A guard for the Blue Devils, he was awarded the Outland Trophy his senior year, and was named to the All-America team.

He played in several post-season games and signed with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

His pro career, however, was cut short by an injury, and McGee returned to Duke as an assistant under Murray, during the 1963-65 years. He went on to the Big Ten, where he assisted in 1966 at Wisconsin, then moved to Minnesota for the next three years.

On December 19, 1969, he was named to replace Clarence Stasavich as the new head coach at East Carolina.

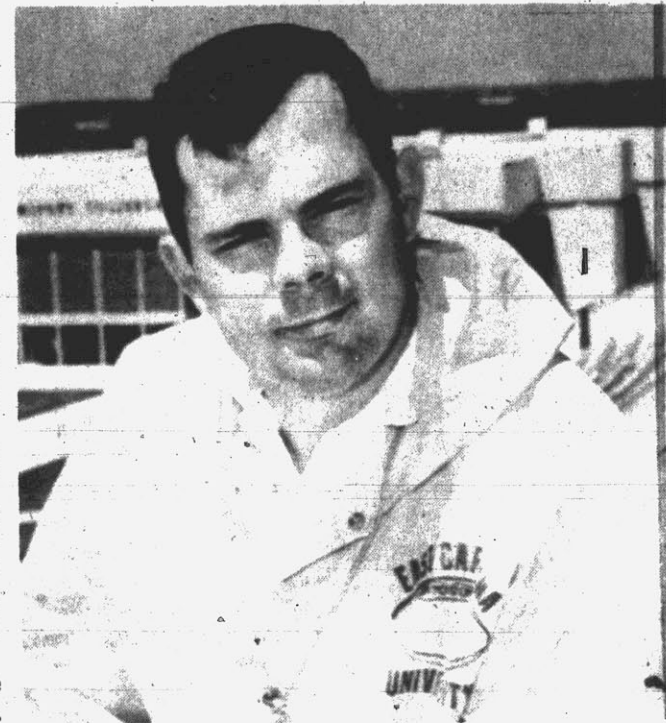

McGee's first year was one of both triumph and disaster. He opened the season against one of the strongest teams in the nation, Toledo, and went down, 35-2. Then followed six more losses, before the Bucs finally pulled off a 7-0 upset over upstart Furman University.

The Bucs lost the next week, 28-14, in a surprisingly strong showing against powerful West Virginia, then won their last two, downing ill-fated Marshall and the Davidson Wildcats.

"I want to express my everlasting appreciation to East Carolina, and especially the football players, the excellent staff and to those who were so close and who meant so much to us this year," he said. McGee singled out ECU President Leo W. Jenkins, athletic council chairman Dr. Doug Jones and business manager Clifton Moore for special thanks.

"It is with a great deal of sadness that we leave East Carolina," McGee continued. "But the opportunity was one that could not be passed up."

McGee was asked whether he (continued on page 14)

Testimony May Wind Up Today In Doss Trial

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

Testimony was expected to be concluded in Pitt County Superior Court today in the trial of Owen Swanson Doss, charged with the June 4 murder of William Raymond Pearce near Winterville.

Henry Edward Manning, co-defendant in the case, testified Tuesday that Doss performed the actual murder, and said Doss held a .22 caliber rifle on both him (Manning) and young Pearce.

Yesterday, officers and other witnesses identified clothing allegedly worn by Doss at the time of the killing.

A Federal Bureau of Investigation analyst, specializing in the identification of body fluids and stains told the court that both Doss and Pearce had type O blood and that there was type O blood on the clothing allegedly worn by Doss at the time of the killing, but he said the blood could not be identified as coming from Pearce. Another witness said there were no apparent cuts or scratches on Doss' body.

An FBI firearms identification expert told that fired .22 caliber shell casings found at the scene of the death could not be identified as coming from a weapon which other witnesses said was in Doss' possession during June 4, although markings on the casings were similar to markings on test bullets fired from the weapon at the FBI lab.

A witness this morning, Ernest Lee Kornegay, testified he overheard a conversation between Manning and Doss while in the Pitt County Jail on November 25.

Kornegay, who said he was a prisoner in the jail at the time, testified that he heard Doss call to Manning in another cell.

"Manning asked Doss what was the motive for killing the boy. Doss said he didn't know. Kornegay said as the conversation continued, Doss told Manning he (Doss) had at one time had a job of killing hogs in Virginia.

Doss said "he didn't like the job of killing hogs, then began liking it." "He (Doss) said he began liking it. He said he would pretend it was someone he didn't like . . . came to like the job," Kornegay testified.

Calley Will Claim 'Following Orders' At My Lai

Latimer told the judge:

"The conditions under which the orders were issued, the stresses and strains, the fact that certain atrocities committed by the Viet Cong were known and given to these boys, is relevant. I think the background of people going into battle, their fears and things, are motivated by what went on before."

Calley, along with Raby and Capt. John Partin, a prosecution lawyer, took the depositions in Vietnam from four Vietnamese and in Montana from a former helicopter door gunner who is in a hospital.

The defense said it will attempt to establish "the bodies lying around My Lai were the result of artillery and gunship action." One defense lawyer was to read the questions and another—sitting in the witness chair—was to read the answers in presenting the depositions to the jury.

Area Impact Is Not Great Yet

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

The third nationwide rail strike that has hit the country in half a century could have some effect on area supply means, especially if the walk-out lasts for more than a few days.

Robert L. Martin, local agent for Seaboard Coastline Railroad Co., said this morning that "if the strike lasts for more than two or three days, it could create some shortage on goods" in our area.

Martin said that any immediate effect of the strike could probably be offset by a "rearrangement of transportation" that would shift the area load to trucking.

A short strike, he predicted, would not cause Pitt County any "undo alarm" although it would be felt to some extent, especially in the areas of grain and coal shipments.

The grain situation, Martin continued, could be serious in the event of an extended strike since the railroads handle most of the grain moving and trucks would not be able to assume the full load.

Another problem lies in the shipping of coal, the agent added, whereby shipping by rail again handles the bulk of the coal supply.

Martin said that he felt the rearrangement of transportation could be utilized in short time and as far as the county was concerned, trucks could handle our needs for the time being.

The Raleigh office of Norfolk Southern Railroad declined to make any "comment at this time" and local officials of the company could not be reached for comment.

An area grain dealer said that the strike already has caused some confusion as to grain shipping but that it was impossible to measure, at this time, any monetary effects of the strike.

The dealers added that in addition to dealers, the manufacturers who would not be able to receive the grain he expects would be hurt by the strike.

He said that although some of the grain could continue to be stored, the problem would arise when shipments were due to be transported.

By 11:45 this morning, two of the four unions involved in the strike had cancelled their walk-outs and announcements to some effect were expected from the other two later today.

Congress has passed an emergency law ordering workers back to their jobs with a partial pay raise. Action on the bill was completed after the expiration of the strike deadline set by the four unions.

Seven Killed

BRENT Ala. (AP) — Seven persons — six of them members of the same family — were killed late Wednesday when the car in which they were riding slammed into a freight train at a crossing here.

State troopers identified the victims as Willie C. Lockett, 35, of Brent, five of his children, and Louise Wilson, 50, of Chicago, Ill.

Troopers said the car slammed into the train about 10 feet behind the engine, derailing it.

Calley Will Claim 'Following Orders' At My Lai

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

Associated Press Writer

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Lt. William Calley will contend he was following orders that fateful day at My Lai and that his men were reacting to Viet Cong atrocities and loss of American prestige in the 1968 Tet offensive.

"The question of legality of orders is definitely going to be raised," said Maj. Kenneth Raby, a defense lawyer. "The question of atrocities is an offshoot."

Calley will testify on his own behalf before the jury trying him on charges of murdering 102 Vietnamese civilians, his lawyers indicate. The defense was scheduled to open its case today.

The prosecution, which rested its case Tuesday after hearing 35 witnesses, has the right to reopen its case if two witnesses now being sought by the FBI can be located.

The lieutenant's platoon was part of a task force raiding the village of My Lai on March 16, 1968. The village had been the traditional home of the 48th local force battalion, considered one of the Viet Cong's best.

With the all-officer jury absent from the little courtroom, Calley's lawyers presented a broad outline of their case Wednesday as Col. Reid W. Kennedy, the military judge, was ruling on the admission of certain passages from five defense depositions.

During the Vietnamese national holiday of Tet, in January 1968, the Viet Cong mounted a devastating offensive. Raby said atrocities committed in that offensive were still fresh in soldiers' minds when Company C came into My Lai with guns blazing.

"We are going to show that Lt. Calley was affected by Tet," he said. "It's not just what's in the mind of Lt. Calley, but also in the mind of his superiors."

Dr. Gritzner Gives Program

Dr. Charles Gritzner, geography professor at ECU, introduced the study series "This Beleagured Earth—Can Man Survive?" at the Monday night meeting of AAUW.

He reminded the members of the urgency in solving the problems of pollution, over population and misuse of natural resources here in America.

Dr. Gritzner stated that the environmental crisis we are facing could yield a planet that is unable to support human life within the next one or two decades.

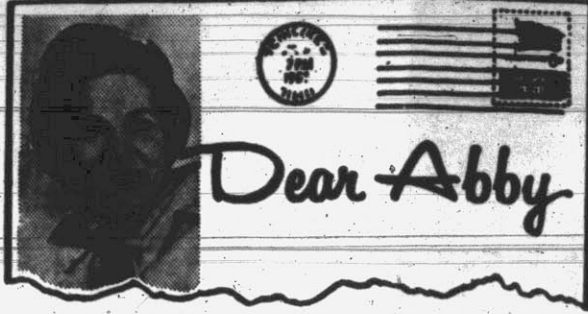

A resolution was sent to Mrs. Robert Lee Humber expressing appreciation for the untiring service that Dr. Humber rendered to the Greenville Branch of AAUW during the past years.

Miss Janet Bigsbee was a guest from the geography department of ECU.

Mrs. Daniel R. Taylor was program chairman for the month.

Boy, Age 13, Can't Stand 'Pushy' Girl

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a boy, 13 years old. There is this one girl in my school who is constantly calling me. One night I counted, and from 5 p. m. to 9 p. m. she called me 18 times. And to top it off, she lives across the street and she keeps running over here to see me. I can't stand her.

My folks can't stand her either. When she rings our bell and they open the door, she walks right in and starts searching thru the house until she finds me.

I have told her about a million times to please leave me alone and my folks have told her twice, but she keeps right on. If you print this, it might help.

SIOK OF HER

DEAR SICK: Don't count on it. Pushy girls who are not discouraged by the spoken word are less likely to be discouraged by newspaper. She is obviously immune to insults, so you might have to get an unlisted telephone number and a watchdog for your front door. Or, maybe your mother will get "sick" enough of her to tell her mother.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a man who was married before and had three children. When Al (not his right name) and his wife divorced, he gave up his children completely. His "ex" married again and her new husband adopted those three children. They now bear his name, he supports them and Al is glad to be rid of the responsibility.

My problem is my new mother in law. She insists that the children Al gave up are still her "grandchildren." She continues to see them and is always buying things for them. This just burns me up.

I would like to know if my mother in law is still a grandmother to Al's children when he himself is no longer their legal father?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: Al's mother is—and always will be—the "biological" (or "natural") grandmother to Al's children. And Al will always be their "natural" father. Don't fight it.

DEAR ABBY: Any mother who has to push a grocery cart with three kids under six years old hanging onto her has my sympathy. And if one of her kids acts up and she gives him a twist, I wouldn't blame her. I would say, "That poor woman has probably reached the end of her patience and I know exactly how she feels."

A mother can't win. If her kids misbehave in public and she punishes them, they yell bloody murder and onlookers are horrified. If they misbehave and she doesn't punish them because she doesn't want a scene, someone is sure to say, "Why doesn't she do something with those brats?"

Also, you can't go by how much screaming a child does. If I give my 3-year-old a little tap on the shoulder in public, he puts up a howl like I'm beating him to death. It's his way of attracting attention and making me look like a mean mother.

Pollution Concern Is No 'Fad'

When the "pollution problem" began to catch the public's attention, some said it was just a fad and would soon go away.

It hasn't.

Instead, concern for the world's ecology has grown and grown, as more people read, hear, see and experience what poisoning their surrounding can mean.

Ecologists and their supporters are preaching the gospel of avoiding pollution in every field of activity. Governments, manufacturers, and bad habits of ordinary citizens are besieged with questions on "what will it do to our air?", "what will it do to our water?", "is this endangering lives and health?", "will it spoil the land?"

Smalltown Is Now Hustling

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Industrial development possibilities are looking up for Smalltown, N.C.

That's because Tar Heel communities of 15,000 and under are doing for themselves — taking stock of assets, sprucing up, getting ready to do business when prospects come along.

What got them off their duff and hustling is the Governor's Award Program of the Commerce and Industry Division in the State Department of Conservation and Development. It recognizes those communities meeting specified standards of readiness for attraction of new industry and for general economic growth.

Nineteen communities received plaques Wednesday at ceremonies in which Governor Bob Scott, C&D Director Roy Sowers and other officials were scheduled to take part.

The Governor's Award recipients are: Andrews, Boone, Creedmoor, Granite Falls, Holly Ridge, Hudson, Lenoir, Middlesex, Murfreesboro, North Wilkesboro, Red Springs, Roanoke Rapids, Sparta, Swansboro, Tabor City, Wallace, West Jefferson, Wilkesboro, and Winterville.

In case you fail to recognize some of the names, that's just the point. Neither would the out-of-state industrialist looking for a plant site, and without the local effort for preparation these smaller communities scattered from coastal plains to mountains would remain out of the competitive picture.

Since the program was initiated last January, nine other communities have received awards. They are: Albemarle, Ayden, Dunn, Franklin, Laurinburg, Marion, Raeford, Roseboro, and Whiteville.

The total of 28 in less than 12 months has elated Commerce and Industry officials, who take it as a sign of awakening interest in economic development at the grassroots level. Although no actual location of an industry in an award community has yet materialized, prospect activity has been brisk. There are high hopes for some location announcements in the immediate future.

The 28 award communities have put themselves in position to share benefits from the state's Industrial Development Mission to Europe which ended last week.

Europeans Are Coming

As a direct result of the mission, said Robert E. Leak, head of the Commerce and Industry division and mission leader, officials of at least 14 European companies will visit North Carolina within the next six months. They will be looking for potential sites for industrial expansion.

One of the aims of Governor Scott and the C&D industrial development efforts is to boost the economy of smaller communities through placement of industry.

Leak said companies which definitely plan to come to North Carolina in the first half of 1970 range from manufacturers of environmental control instruments, electrical equipment, and pharmaceuticals to building materials and metal fabrication. Mission members made calls on more than 200 European companies in the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Austria, Switzerland, and The Netherlands.

Each community which qualified for the Governor's Award has completed a five-step program of self-improvement to strengthen its competitive position as a site for new business or industry.

The five objectives: (1) establishment of a promotional and financial organization to assist in plant location for new industry; (2) completion of a community audit, inventorying assets for prospective industries; (3) development of a specified number of industrial sites (four for those under 3,000 population, five for those up to 7,000, and six for those up to 15,000; (4) publication of a current brochure; and (5) completion of a clean-up, fix-up campaign.

A team of judges from the Commerce and Industry division inspected each community, reviewing projects and passing on the satisfactory meeting of requirements for the Governor's Award.

"By completing each project required to receive the Governor's Award, your community will have greatly strengthened its ability to attract new industry," Governor Scott said in acknowledging each community's entry into the program.

Fingers are being pointed, voices raised and warnings are heard in wholesale lots.

All this is having a tremendous effect on peoples' thinking. Now we SEE litter on roadsides; now we are very conscious of liquid and solid waste disposal; now we are very much aware of pesticides, population growth, erosion, and fumes in the air.

Even in sparsely-settled eastern North Carolina we are becoming increasingly conscious of burgeoning traffic with its resultant congestion we didn't feel before; our communication media have planted the idea that we may be more fortunate than we ever realized in not having a score of industrial plants with spewing smokestacks...once a sign of economic wealth, but now viewed dubiously.

Our skies are blue, and on most days the air fairly sparkles. There are just enough of those days during a year, when smoke or other fumes are tangible, to offer silent warning.

The problems are sinking home.

No burning leaves;

A Senate vote against the SST project;

The enlarging of our utilities waste disposal plant; and,

City Manager Hagerty's account of obstacles to disposing of oil that leaked into the Tar River.

All these things plant the awareness that controlling pollution isn't easy; and future developments are going to underline the fact that it will cost people in terms of money and accustomed conveniences.

There is no guarantee yet that everybody will be willing to pay the price. But we will all be aware of the cost if we don't pay.

Backs His Bid For SBI Plea

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — The crime problem in North Carolina is acute, says SBI Director Charles Dunn, and he is asking the 1971 General Assembly to double his operation, and give him a new building.

"We're asking the Legislature to give us a new building," Dunn says, "and we have 75 men in the field and we need to double that number. As it stands now, we don't even have one agent per county."

The SBI Director has figures to back up his request for more men, better equipment, and increased salaries. The SBI took on 2,121 new cases during the first six months of this year, compared to 1,158 during a comparative period in 1969. Convictions in SBI-related cases went from 262 in the first six months of 1969 to 545 through June of this year.

"The people in this department are amazing," Dunn says. "Our investigators average working 60 hours a week. We had 27,800 overtime hours worked in six months, with no overtime pay. I feel optimistic about the Legislature approving our requests. Crime being what it is, I feel we should get the needed resources. You simply don't fight unless you have the resources to do the job."

The SBI, says Dunn, investigates 75 to 80 percent of the major crime committed in North Carolina. He says he wants to improve the State's crime lab to the point that it compares with the FBI's.

Before hooking on as press secretary with former Gov. Dan K. Moore, Dunn was a newspaperman in Chapel Hill and Durham. After Moore left office and Robert Morgan was elected attorney general, Morgan asked Dunn to take over command of the SBI.

A good many people feel that Morgan's popularity across North Carolina has been enhanced in no small way by the job Dunn has performed with the law enforcement bureau.

"I was surprised when Bob asked me to take this job," Dunn says. "He offered it to me and when I accepted, he told me he put me here to run the SBI, not to politic. I have had his total support. The only admonition he gives us is, do the job. The man has such a grasp of the total law enforcement picture, that it makes our job easier."

Dunn says he has no long-range future plans for himself. He says if Morgan "fires me tomorrow, then I'll know that I did the best that I could."

He says he hasn't gotten over being a newspaperman and in his words: "When something big breaks, I still have the urge to run to the telephone to tell someone about it. Writing is what I like to do, and like everyone else, I have a book in the back of my mind, but not about the SBI. When I came into public service, I always prayed that I would have the wisdom to leave when my usefulness was gone."

Dunn says he finds his work as SBI Director depressing, but he enjoys the association.

"The people in this office are unbelievable," he says. "They think nothing of working nights and weekends. I get discouraged at the lack of resources and having to ask so much of individuals."

Dunn says it's hard to get people to recognize the seriousness of the crime problem in North Carolina, and what needs to be done about it. One thing that bugs him in a big way is the drug abuse problem in the State.

"Drug abuse is just one of the areas that this department works on," Dunn says, "but it's discouraging. Marijuana has been found growing in 67 of the State's counties and heroin traffic is picking up considerably. In many areas of North Carolina you can find just about any drug that you want. This is a social problem and I don't think some people want to accept it as such. I don't think anyone knows just how bad the problem is here."

Dunn says he has no earthly idea what his boss, Attorney General Morgan, will do in 1972.

Strength For Today

THE TRASH PROBLEM

We are having a national argument as to what to do with our trash. Burn it? Pay to have it taken away? Try to find some use for it? It seems amazing that in our sophisticated society we find we must give anxious thought as to what to do with trash.

There are trashy books. Burn them or give them to the trashman to dispose of. There is trashy music. Turn off the TV or leave the room, slamming the door behind you. There is trashy conversation. Look at your watch but don't go so far as to hold it to your ear and shake it. There are trashy political schemes advanced by people who want to win an election. Give them the heave-ho on election day.

These statements may seem uncharitable but they are not for we all have the trash problem in our lives and usually are not paying much attention to it. But when life, conversation, forms of entertainment and reading become entirely trashy then it is time to get busy. Every individual knows what the trash problem consists of in his life or hers.

A policeman found a baby in a trash can recently, howling its head off. Poor place to be born. But that was the way it was in the case of that little howler. He wasn't trash. He was and is a child of God and he was hungry.

Think of the trash problem for a few minutes. It's important.

Common Good Ignored

As this is written, early in the week, 11,000 cab drivers are striking in New York. Up in Hartford, a strike of public school teachers lingers on. In the Midwest, Teamsters have halted fuel oil deliveries to homes and factories. Here in Washington, interns and resident doctors are striking at D. C. General Hospital. And by the time this gets in print, the railroads may be paralyzed.

These are random samples. They fairly characterize a trend in American labor that has been gathering force and arrogance over the past five years. These are not old-fashioned strikes — the strikes of employees against employer. They are essentially third party strikes, in which the impact is aimed at victims quite beyond the dispute.

Under the capitalist banner of the late Mr. Vanderbilt, unionism marches on: The public be damned.

Granted, every strike — even of the old-fashioned variety — imposes some measure of inconvenience, hardship or financial loss on innocent bystanders. That is the way the system works. But what we are witnessing these days is a new consequence of militancy, brought on by a new and reckless indifference to the common good.

The threatened strike of 400,000 railway workers offers an especially depressing picture. If ever there was a sick industry in the United States, it is the railway industry. Over the past 15 years, its net income after taxes has declined by 68 percent. In this same period, the number of employees has dropped by almost half. The Penn Central lies bankrupt.

But in this desperate hour, are the railway unions inclined to help? No, indeed. They have rejected the recommendation of a presidential emergency board for a whopping 37 percent increase in wages over a three-year period. They are adamantly insisting upon the preservation of work rules that add to costs without increasing productivity.

To this day, the rule prevails that a crew gets a full day's pay for every hundred miles of travel. In theory, it takes the Metroliner two-and-a-quarter days to go the 226 miles from Washington to New York. Anyhow, that is how the crew is paid for the three-hour run. And though that particular rule is not involved in current negotiations, it is fairly representative of the cobweb nightmare in which the carriers are strangling.

Yet it is apparent that the primary targets of a rail strike are not the railroads' managers or stockholders; they are numb to further loss. The real targets are the shippers, the third-party factories and business

Sales Pitch Chiller

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The door-to-door encyclopedia salesman stood grinning in his gray suit, his left foot already in the door, his right hand swinging forward the bulky briefcase.

I have long been a sucker for door-to-door salesmen; something about the boldness of their approach flusters me, makes me anxious enough to get rid of them that I'll buy most anything.

At various times I've purchased an aluminum umbrella, a watch that tells me the time in Hong Kong as well as Sydney and ripple-soled plastic shoes two sizes too small. No matter, say I as a sop to my cowardice.

After each of these bizarre purchases I've searched for some way to deflect the sales pitch, to send the salesman to find another victim.

As the encyclopedia salesman entered, he was already fumbling with the catch to his briefcase, pulling out a leatherette covered volume from the neatly compartmentalized interior and smirking. As we settled in the living room one could perceive that this was a man with a system—even his compartments in the briefcase had compartments and his pitch was perfectly timed so that the words moved neatly with the display of this item or that.

He tolerated no interruptions. "A house without an encyclopedia is just a house," he said. "Not a home. Definitely not a home. Most definitely not." He had spread out on the floor detailed graphs and charts showing one the benefits which would accrue from diligent reading of his books. I was beginning to get the familiar trapped feeling when my son, who is 3½, strolled casually into the room.

"Howdy, sonny," smiled the salesman extravagantly. "Nice kid—definitely a nice kid." My son, Gavin, looked coolly at the man, not returning the smile. Gavin then walked over to the man's briefcase and began pulling out stacks of paper.

The man blanched. "Such a nice little boy," he said, trying to tug the papers from my son's grip without dropping his composure. Once the papers were rumpled, Gavin relinquished them. Next he produced a crayon and began drawing pictures of boats on the man's charts.

Mild Weather Slowed Sales

By ELMER ROESSNER

Here are some early notes on the Christmas shopping season:

Cold weather in December has always been dreaded by retailers. But this year, except in a few areas, cold has been slow to come. The biggest retail market in the country, the New York megapolis, has had only one mild frost. Curiously, mild weather has slowed sales as much as storms have often done. "People don't realize Christmas is almost here," one retailer complained.

Television commercial for toys are fewer and less exciting this year. Some toymakers have found that TV commercials attract suspicious eyes of the Federal Trade Commission.

Jennings' Rose-Marie, a posh East Side ice cream parlor in New York, is advertising. "Buy some needy kid ice cream-gift certificates." Certificates are available in $25, $50 and $100 values.

More Gift Certificates

Everybody is getting into the gift-certificate act this year. More and more stores are offering them in more lines. One Midwest pet shop sells $100 certificates. They can be part payments on pedigreed pups, or full payments and change on birds.

Some department stores are staging "shot in arm" sales. Because Christmas buying has been slow, they have been putting on one-day sales with a lot of loss leaders, trying to prime the Christmas buying pump.

Other stores are staging clearance sales, figuring it's better to get rid of slow-moving goods now instead of after Christmas, when they may have to take a loss. Promotions are usually disguised as "Christmas bargains" sales.

Evening openings are disappointing in many cities. Shoppers are fearful of being out after dark because of purse-snatchers, muggers and old-fashioned holdup men.

Toy Ranges Chance

While there are the usual number of high-priced luxury toys this year, retailers say many are languishing on the shelves. One merchant says only toys under $10 are moving fast.

Art is big stuff this season. The nation is more art-conscious than ever, besides a recipient might guess the value of a frame but hasn't the slightest idea of the value of what's in it.

Hanukkah falls close to Christmas this year, starting at sundown Dec. 22. This holiday has been promoted stronger in recent years as a gift occasion. Some Jews joke about buying Christmas trees as "Hanukkah bushes." The closeness of the holidays will probably increase the exchange of gifts and might even spread a little ecumenicalism.

This column still predicts that total dollar sales will once again set a new high this holiday season, even though the physical volume of goods may be less than last year.

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Investigators for the Federal Communications Commission monitored Citizens' Band (CB) broadcasts in the Charlotte area last weekend and cited dozens of operators for violations.

Based on tape recordings of broadcast conversations, operators were charged with using improper equipment, unauthorized chit chat, operating without a license, and other alleged violations.

Citizen Band radio is restricted in power to five watts, and operating procedures are carefully spelled out by the FCC. CB clubs serve as communications networks in emergencies and relay distress signals. CB units are used by businesses to keep in touch with

Arrest Fifteen Youths After A School Fight

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Seven white youths and eight Negroes were arrested after a fight Wednesday at Pine Forest High School near Fayetteville.

Eleven of them attend the school. Sheriff W. G. Clark of Cumberland County said most of them were charged with disorderly conduct, but in addition four were charged with carrying concealed weapons.

All 15 were released to their parents.

Deputies made 10 arrests soon after the fighting, which broke out shortly after the beginning of the school day. Five more arrests were made in the afternoon.

The sheriff said no one was injured in the fighting. Classes continued after the disturbance was halted, with deputies patrolling the halls.

The event will be held from 9:00 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Yale Seeks LBJ To Take Chair

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale University is negotiating with former President Lyndon B. Johnson to become a Chubb Fellow, but he is giving priority to completion of a book.

Elton Morison, master of Timothy Dwight College, which is host to the Chubb Fellows, said Johnson had declined the invitation at least temporarily.

The Chubb Fellows chairs were established in 1949 with an endowment from an 1895 Yale alumnus, Hendon Chubb. The purpose is to attract public figures to Yale to talk to students and hold seminars.

houses, and the public as a whole — including the 400,000 rail workers themselves. The net effect of the proposed wage increase will be to add $1.6 billion a year to the costs of rail operation; and this increase must be added to the cost of living, bump, bump, bump, until it backs into the caboose of consumers at the end.

This same blind indifference marks the strike of 5,000 Teamster drivers who haul fuel oil across the Midwest. They are demanding a wage increase of $1.65 an hour, and under the pressure of panicky homeowners, feeling the chill of winter, doubtless the Teamsters will get something close to that figure. So the price of fuel oil goes up, and the value of the purchasing dollar declines by that much more.

Self-interest is engrained in the nature of man; it is among the laws that govern the survival of the species. The railway clerk, the truck driver, the school teachers, the struggling young intern — they have their own desperate personal problems of meeting bills and keeping afloat. Yet there has to be more to the good life than self-interest alone. Without some awareness of the whole structure — without some sense of responsibility for the consequence of anti-social acts in a total society — we are done for.

And it is this aspect of our own uncivilized time that is not merely disturbing but potentially fatal. "Make us ever mindful of the needs of others." That is how the prayer goes. But in this time of Advent, 1970, the simple prayer yields to the cynical question: Brother, what's in it for me?

Campus Faculty Says Strike At Bonn Named 'Next Step'

Six East Carolina University professors have been selected to comprise the core faculty for ECU's European Campus at Bonn, West Germany, next year. According to Dr. Hans Indorf, coordinator of European Area Studies at ECU and director of the Bonn Study Center, the six were chosen on the basis of their background in European studies.

Several have studied and traveled extensively in Europe, and all are fluent in one or more European languages.

Chose were: Dr. Ralph Edwin Birchard, geography; Dr. Loren Keith Campion, history; Professor Metz Tranbarger Gordley, art; Dr. Joseph Alan Hill, business; Dr. Clyde Hiss, music; and Dr. John Kozy, Jr., philosophy.

Dr. Indorf noted that the basic faculty will be supplemented by frequent visiting lecturers to the Bonn campus, such as the president of the European Economic Community, ministers of the West German government, the Director of Bonn University, a director-general of a German industrial empire, Members of Parliament, academic lecturers in various fields and authorities on art and music.

The ECU faculty in Bonn will be encouraged to engage in independent research during their tenure there, Dr. Indorf said.

'Many Thousands' Would Try POW Release Raids

By RICHARD DAW
Associated Press Writer
FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin Laird says "many thousands" of military men are ready to volunteer for prisoner release raids into North Vietnam like last month's at Son Tay.

Speaking at Ft. Bragg Tuesday, Laird did not say whether other such raids are being planned. But he said that if the occasion arises, "I would act just as I did in approving and supporting the effort at Son Tay."

Laird's comments came in two speeches during a day in which he pinned medals — including eight of the nation's second highest awards for valor — on 96 Army and Air Force men who participated in the raid.

The day began at a spit-and-polish parade for the medals presentations and ended with a tour of facilities at Bragg, home of the Army's Green Beret Special Forces.

As the men stood ramrod-stiff, Laird walked through their ranks and pinned on each man's award while the man's citation was read over a public address system.

Four Army men got the Distinguished Service Cross and four Air Force men got the Air Force Cross, both of which rank second only to the nation's highest award, the Medal of Honor.

Laird told the men and about 200 spectators that he, President Nixon and other planners knew there was "a chance of disappointment even of failure" in the raid.

"But the reasonable chance to return to freedom Americans held captives made the mission well worth the risk," he said.

"If a similar chance to save Americans were to arise tomorrow, I would act just as I did in approving and supporting the effort at Son Tay."

Later, at a luncheon with personnel of the 82nd Airborne Division, Laird said a sergeant had told him he was ready to volunteer for another raid.

"I appreciate, and President Nixon appreciates, the spirit of the many thousands who are willing to volunteer today," Laird said.

Looking on at the awards ceremony were the men who led the raid, Air Force Brig. Gen. Leroy Manor and Army Col. Arthur Simons. They were decorated by Nixon at the White House shortly after the raid.

Simons, in response to a newsmen's question, said there was "absolutely no truth" in a charge by Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., that officials knew Son Tay had been abandoned and that the raid was carried out "for other reasons."

"Maybe the congressman knew that, but I didn't and neither did anyone else with me," Simons said.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, made the allegation Tuesday.

In addition to the medals, the raiders got a word of thanks from a representative of the families of men missing or in prison camps in North Vietnam.

"We are deeply grateful for what you have done," said Mrs. Joan Vinson, head of the national League of Families of American Prisoners Missing in Southeast Asia. "Thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Mrs. Vinson, who lives in Alexandria, Va., said her husband, Air Force Col. Bobby Vinson, has been missing in Vietnam for almost three years.

'Rubella Sunday' Program Shapes Up Across Pitt

A major cause of birth defects hopefully can be eliminated through inoculation programs such as the one to be carried out in Pitt County Sunday.

this week's efforts to inoculate every child in Pitt County between the ages of one and 12 against this viral disease. Clinics will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the following schools: Grifton High School, Ayden Elementary School, Sam D. Bundy School in Farmville, Bethel Grammar School, G. R. Whitfield School in Grimesland, Chicod School, Belvoir Grammar School, Sadie Sauter School in Greenville, and E. B. Aycock Junior High School, also in Greenville.

Any pre-school child whose parents are not sure has been inoculated by their family physician or any child who missed being inoculated at his school should be taken to one of these clinics.

Dr. Earl Trevathan, a Greenville pediatrician, emphasized that parents should be absolutely sure all children between these ages have had the vaccine for German measles. "We have had many calls from parents who were confusing the regular or red measles (Rubella) vaccine their children may have received with the Rubella vaccine. They should be very sure their child has had the Rubella vaccine if they do not see he gets it Sunday. Here in our office, we usually give the Rubella vaccine at one year and the Rubella vaccine sometimes during the second year. This may be a clue as to whether the child in question has received Rubella. If you are not sure and have no shot record, you should check with your physician."

Asked if a child having some minor illness such as a cold should have the vaccine Sunday or during the school inoculation program, Dr. Trevathan said, "Yes, minor sore throat, ear infection, or a cold would not be made worse by taking the vaccine. Most children feel no effects at all from the vaccine and there should be no contraindications when there is some minor illness involved. Of course, I'm not saying to take a child sick in bed out and get him vaccinated. However, if there is good reasons why a child not be vaccinated during this week, arrangements should be made by the parents to get it done as soon as possible."

The "shots" given Sunday and those given in the schools will not hurt at all. A high speed hydraulic gun that is merely held against the skin to shoot the vaccine through the pores will be used.

The three-day program to inoculate children in their respective schools began Tuesday. Consent forms have been sent to each parent or guardian. It is hoped that some 9,000 children will be reached in the school program and another 9,000 will be immunized Sunday. "We are still seeing the results of the pandemic (worldwide epidemic) that occurred in 1964 and '65," Dr. Trevathan said. Babies were born with cataracts, hearing defects, heart impairment, mental retardation, and other serious disabilities. In addition, many miscarriages resulted. Another pandemic is predicted for 1971.

"We hope that this inoculation effort here and elsewhere will mean that fewer expectant mothers will be exposed to the virus."

"The danger period for exposure is during the first three months of pregnancy. Since the disease is so mild in children, it's often difficult to know if a pregnant woman has been exposed or even if she herself has had the disease in her childhood, thus making her immune."

"Hopefully, the next epidemic will account for fewer defects in babies and eventually it is hoped that the Rubella virus can be eliminated for all practical purposes as has been the case with Smallpox, diphtheria, polio and other diseases for which we have had vaccines for some time."

The Rubella vaccine has only recently become available for mass immunization. However, it has been thoroughly tested and proved and is believed to provide long-lasting immunity against the disease.

Preparation for the Rubella inoculation drive has been a cooperative effort on the part of many in the county. Some groups are the Department of Public Health, the Greenville Junior Woman's Club, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Rescue Squads, the Ministerial Association, the Jaycees, Rotary, Civitan, and Lions Club, 4-H Clubs, Future Farmers and PTA groups in all schools involved.

Robert Henley is the project coordinator. Assisting him are Dr. William W. Fore, medical coordinator; Danny S. Jacobson, publicity coordinator; Miss Evelyn Perry, nursing coordinator; Mrs. R. G. Tice, clinic operations manager; Charles Myers, volunteer coordinator; and John Stallings, supply officer.

Driver Heeded 'Right On Red'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A Louisville motorist, W. Paul Dodge, approached an intersection recently and although the light was green, there was a car stopped in his lane.

Dodge, a bit perturbed, gave a slight beep on his horn. The woman driver in front of him turned around and pointed to a sign reading: "Stop—Turn Right On Red."

Sure enough, as soon as the light turned red the lady took a right turn and went merrily on her way.

NEED BUSES

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A state education official says only one of the state's 120 county school systems has enough school buses to seat all pupils.

Ways Of Celebrating Christmas Have Seen Change

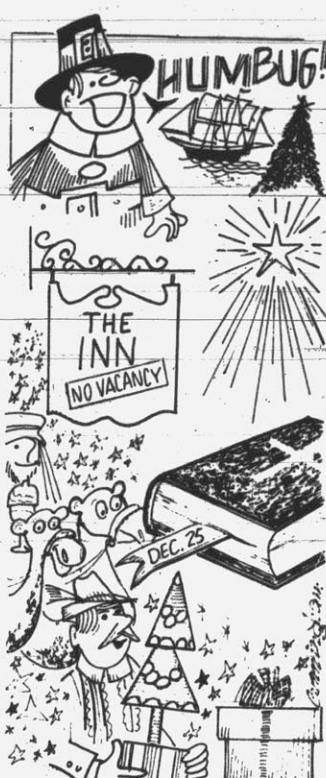

By VELMA WEST SYKES
For The Associated Press
'Tis the season to be jolly. 'Tis the season of peace on earth, good will to men. 'Tis the holiday that began as the "Mass of Christ" in celebration of His birth; the holiday that still holds deep religious meaning for many. But for others, it is simply a time for rejoicing and merriment.

There are those vehemently opposed to celebrating Christmas with frolic and gift-giving. Their attitude is not novel. It's a throwback to that of the Puritans who induced the English Parliament to pass a law, in 1644, that forbade the festive observance of Christmas.

While this law was in effect Christmas Day was officially designated a fast and market day, with shops compelled to keep open. Plum puddings and even mince pies were declared "heathen."

The Pilgrims who settled colonial America also opposed Christmas festivities; and the New England states waited until well into the 19th century before generally observing a festive Christmas.

While Christmas began as a church celebration, it was not observed officially on Dec. 25 until the 4th century. Prior to that, some had observed Jan. 6 (Epiphany). The gospels, in telling the story of Christ's birth, do not specify a date. Mark and John do not chronicle the birth at all. Matthew and Luke both give Bethlehem as His birthplace, but only Matthew tells of the Wise Men from the East.

and only Luke explains the reason for coming to Bethlehem, and how the shepherds were praised of the event. He also details the stable shelter "because there was no room for them in the inn." Matthew alone mentions the flight to Egypt and Herod's slaying of the innocents.

There has been much research and speculation about the authenticity of Dec. 25 as the date of Christ's birth.

Because to some it seemed to matter, Chrysostom, "golden-voiced" bishop of Constantinople in the 4th century, came up with an argument based on the first chapter of Luke. He traced the date of Jesus' birth by way of the instance when the priest Zacharias received his revelation in the temple that he was to have a son (John) in his old age. Chrysostom figured the date on which Zacharias entered the temple was the Day of Atonement, in September. His wife, Elizabeth, Mary's cousin, was visited by Mary six months later—and Mary had just had her own miraculous experience. To Chrysostom, this confirmed December as Mary's time of fulfillment. Whether that satisfies modern critics or not, it did help then to establish Dec. 25 as the date. There have, however, been other suggested reasons for choosing that date.

For instance, the Roman Saturnalia had been celebrated on Dec. 25 and church authorities may have felt it better to introduce a new reason for a celebration—and new rites. The Christian Gauls seem to have used Dec. 25 long before the Eastern churches. And in Britain, Dec. 25 was a holiday long before its people became Christians. Bede wrote: "The ancient people of the Angli began the year on Dec. 25, when we now celebrate the birth of our Lord."

As for the Christmas tree—St. Boniface is credited with introducing it in Germany, as a substitute for the sacred oak where human sacrifices were made to Odin. Cutting down the oak, he placed a small fir there to tribute to the Christ child. Later, Luther added candles to the tree and Queen Victoria's husband, Prince Albert, brought the custom to England. German immigrants carried it to America. America has one Christmas "first" to its credit. It was the first to set up Christmas trees in public places.

Customs change and differ from country to country and even in different parts of the same country. Fireworks are commonly used for Christmas celebration only in our South. Normandy retains the old custom of children going out on Epiphany Eve to meet the Three Kings (Magi) on the highway. In parts of Mexico, preparation begins for the Posada (resting-place) on Dec. 16. Nine families meet one another in different houses each night to re-enact the Biblical search for shelter by pleading in a Latin countries, children are put to sleep on straw or hay on Christmas Eve to impress on them the humble birthplace of Jesus.

Women Are Card-Buyers

NEW YORK (UPI)—When it comes to selecting and sending Christmas cards, it's a woman's holiday.

The National Association of Greeting Card Publishers estimates that the majority of 2.5 billion Christmas cards that will be sent this year will be ordered by women. Women also decide about the signatures on the cards and, sooner or later, the colorful Christmas greetings will be mailed by women.

"Actually," said Steve Shannon, executive director of the association, "women are more particular about selecting Christmas cards than anything except possibly their clothes. They want to convey their holiday greetings in a friendly personal way, just as they would express them in person."

"In most families, it's the lady of the house that will be shopping for anywhere from 50 to 300 Christmas cards. She'll have someone definitely in mind for each one of them. Being a woman, she is more thoughtful and possibly more sentimental than the masculine side of the family."

Shannon cautions male shoppers before they start sputtering protests. He said a man started it all. Louis Prang, publisher of the first American line of Christmas cards in Roxbury, Mass., back in 1875, introduced the yuletide custom to America, at the suggestion of a business associate's wife.

Lack Nutrition In 'Space Food'

TORONTO (AP)—Children who go around chewing freeze-dried "space" food instead of eating their ordinary meals are not getting proper nutrition, a researcher from the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto said. Dr. David Turner told the Ontario Hospital Association that scientists with the United States space program learned that freeze-drying destroys most of the vitamins in food.

To Entertain At Inaugural Gala

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — John Wayne, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Jimmy Stewart and Jack Benny will perform at an inaugural gala Jan. 4 celebrating the start of Gov. Ronald Reagan's second term.

Sinatra, who used to support Democratic candidates, was listed in state campaign spending records as a $20,000 contributor to the Republican governor's re-election drive. Benny gave $1,500.

McGee . . .

would take any members of his staff at East Carolina with him to Duke. The Duke assistants are all on year-to-year contracts. "Until the situation here (at East Carolina) is settled, I couldn't comment on that," McGee said.

He did say that he would pass along to the East Carolina athletic committee his own recommendations for his successor, but declined to say who that would be.

Athletic Director Stasavich, who McGee succeeded at ECU as a committee composed of himself, Jones, Moore and Dr. Robert Holt, vice president of the university, had been named to seek McGee's replacement. "We will seek to have three names to present to the council, as was done when Mike came to us."

McGee admitted that he faces some problems at Duke, one of which is the knotty admissions requirement now being fought over in the ACC meeting in Greensboro. "Duke has had this problem for years," he said. "They have always been able to attract good scholar-athletes and win with them, and I see no reason why this can't continue."

McGee feels that the East Carolina program will not suffer for his leaving. "The continuity will be maintained. East Carolina has an extremely bright future; I felt that when I came here. The players have a sense of pride in their program, and they are not going to be swayed from this. I have more confidence in these men than in anything."

Students Stage Clothing Drive

Gifts of clothing are now being collected on the East Carolina University campus for clients of the East Carolina Sheltered Workshop, and the Greenville community is invited to participate in the drive.

The drive is being co-sponsored by the Student Council for Exceptional Children at ECU and Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority. Boxes have been placed in all dormitories, sorority and fraternity houses, and in the Student Union. Persons wishing to have clothes picked up may call the AOPI House, 758-4290.

Men's and women's clothing are needed for the Sheltered Workshop clients. However, if any children's clothing is given, it will be rechanneled to a worthy recipient.

time for recruiting, McGee also feels that the Bucs won't suffer by the lapse in coaching. "No one coach has worked on any one man, it's been a group effort." McGee said he didn't know at this time when he'd officially be taking over at Duke.

Dr. Jenkins, speaking from Raleigh, said that he wished McGee well at Duke. "Even though he has a contract with us," he said, "our practice has been to encourage our people to do what is best for their career. Our good wishes go with him."

Stasavich said that McGee had a four-year pact with East Carolina, but, of course, would be released from it. "Mike did a wonderful job of organizing and planning our program. He is a very capable young coach. I realized that East Carolina would only be a stopover for him, and we regret losing him."

Stasavich said that the assistants on the staff would continue to recruit at a steady pace for the Pirates.

McGee held the Buc job for less than a year. He was named to the position on December 19, 1969, and officially took over on January 1, 1970.

No Progress In Bus Parleys

RALEIGH (AP) — Talks are expected to be broken off for several days in Raleigh's bus drivers strike, which entered its seventh day today.

Negotiations broke off Wednesday with all parties reporting "no progress" in the dispute.

The state conciliation service released a statement saying that mediators would be in contact with the parties within the next day or so to try to set a date for resumption of the meetings between the Raleigh City coach lines and the Amalgamated Transit Union.

The dispute centers on wages and fringe benefits.

The strike has left some 5,500 adult passengers and 3,000 Raleigh school children without bus service.

Leaf Growers Talk Exports

About 135 local farmers attended a meeting concerning tobacco for foreign trade, especially the European market, last night at Respass Brothers Barbecue.

Robert Holstead of the Gardnerville community, a farmer and farm supply dealer, presided at the meeting. He expressed appreciation to the different leaders in the county for organizing the group to attend the meeting.

Edmond A. Dinnsen, manager of foreign sales for K. R. Edwards Tobacco Company of Smithfield, spoke on the importance of variety selection to produce for the foreign trade.

"Our customers prefer tobacco with high aroma and flavor and based on past experience, they have been able to find this type of tobacco when grown from the following varieties: North Carolina 2326, Virginia 115, McNair 20 and McNair 30," Dinnsen told the farmers.

He emphasized that the majority of their purchases were from the tip and leaf grades.

"We have not been able to secure as much tobacco of this type as we would like to buy," Dinnsen explained. "I hope that more of these varieties will be produced in this area."

Raymond Edmondson of the leaf department of Imperial Tobacco Company in Wilson, also appeared on the program.

Edmondson spoke on the insecticide residue problem on cured tobacco. He mentioned the fact that there was a German law regulating the amount of pesticide residue that would be tolerated on future tobacco for use in German, especially DDT and TDE.

A question and answer period concluded the program.

Tree-Lighting

East Carolina University's second annual outdoor Christmas tree lighting ceremony will be held tonight at 6 p.m. on the mall.

Students, faculty, staff, and friends of the University are invited, according to Student Union president, Steve Apple. Dr. Leo Jenkins will pull the switch that lights up the large magnolia tree located in Wright Circle.

Other participants in the program will be Conwell Worthington, a Student Union member, and two School of Music groups, the Chamber Ensemble, directed by Dr. Paul Allapoulos, and the Brass Ensemble. Caroling by the assemblage will follow the light.

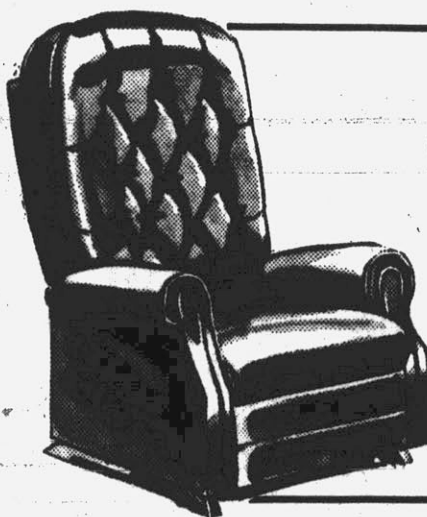

The event has been coordinated by Juli Surgi, chairman of the Student Union Permanent Projects Committee, with Miss Susan Jordan, program director of the Union, as advisor.

Baby Bucs Clip Davidson Frosh

CHARLOTTE — East Carolina University's freshmen nipped the Davidson Wildcat Cubs, 89-87, last night in a preliminary to the two schools' varsity game. It was the first win over Davidson for a Buc freshman team, and it came at a time when Davidson was reported to have the strongest team in recent years. The Baby Bucs jumped off to a fast start and built up an 11-point lead in the early minutes of the game, 19-8. Davidson rallied in the late stages of the half, however, and came back to make it a close contest. By halftime, the lead had been chopped down to two points, 46-44. The action slowed down somewhat in the second half, and stayed quite close with neither team able to break it open. The lead changed a number of times, as it went right to the wire. Finally, with about 25 seconds left, Ray Peszko hit a jumper to put the Baby Bucs into the lead at the basket, but it missed, and the Bucs got the rebound. A walking violation, however, returned it to Davidson with eight seconds left. Another shot failed, and again the Bucs

Southern Conference champion, or at least this year's favorite. And the Bucs were billed as the team most likely to unseat the 'Cats. But long before the final horn, the Wildcats had shown that they were going to chalk up their 34th straight conference win and their ninth without a loss to the Pirates. The Bucs outshot Davidson from the floor by 10 points, but it wasn't enough to offset the number of free throws the Wildcats collected at the line. Davidson players walked up for free throws on 41 occasions, hitting 35 of them. In the second half, they hit their first 20 attempts and that first miss came with only about a minute left to play. Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

The Mike McGee era is dead! And it almost seems like it had only begun. For one year, less nine days, Mike McGee served as the head football coach at East Carolina University. Now he returns to the place where he made a name for himself, first as a collegiate player, and then as an assistant coach. During that one year, McGee generated much enthusiasm for East Carolina University. He gave its football program a forward look, one which fired the minds of people throughout the state and the south-east. Now, the flames from that fire are diminished. And the future only will tell what lies in store for the Pirate football program. McGee's leadership as a coach was proved during the 11-game season that many people might have believed a disaster. It started off with seven straight losses, but the Bucs finished strong, beating Furman, Marshall and Davidson and scoring West Virginia in the final four contests. This was probably one of the factors that led to McGee's being chosen as the successor to Top Harp. He also has proved that he is an excellent recruiter, and his loss to the Pirates will be greatly felt here. His position with the players was also one which many coaches would like to be able to have. The players believed in McGee. They believed he could lead them, and that he could make them win. He showed them he could. And now, almost a year from the date he was hired by East Carolina, McGee goes to Duke. And the Pirate football program must begin again. Hopefully, the new director of Purple Pride will be continued. The groundwork has been laid. McGee will probably take some of all of his staff with him, so it would seem unlikely that the new ECU Coach will come from the present staff, but it is still possible. And one day, maybe not too far in the future, the Pirates and McGee will be together again on the football field. This time, it will be as rivals, but the Bucs feel they are ready to play ACC teams, and would like to get Duke on the schedule. We wish him well.

Ayden Has Six All-Conference

Six members of the Ayden High School football team were named to the East Tidewater All-conference team. Those chosen include end Jackie Eason, guard Wayne Byrd, center Johnny Hoover, and back Ken Cleaton on the offensive unit, and end Demetrius Edwards and tackle Derander Holton on the defensive squad. Eason was named by the school as its Most Outstanding Player, while Hoover won the Most Improved Player award. Cleaton was honored as the Most Valuable Player, while Edwards was chosen as the Best Defensive member of the squad. Holton was named the Best Lineman. Mike Tripp, Ricky Adams, Kent Loftin, Harry Kinlaw, Debro Blount, and Mike Griffin were given honorable mention on the All-Conference team.

later two free throws by Ron Stelzer pushed the lead out to seven at 14-7, and another by Duncan Postma made it eight at 15-7. The Bucs cut it back to four, but Davidson pushed back again. Joe Sutter's layup pushed it back to eight, and Pecorak got a three-point play to run the lead out to 10 at 25-15 with 7:40 to go in the half. Sutter followed with a jumper, and after an East Carolina free throw, Kirley got one off a rebound and Billy Pierce hit two free throws to run the lead out to 15, the greatest margin of the first half, at 31-16. It stayed right around that for the rest of the half, with neither team able to make much headway in increasing or decreasing the lead. The Bucs finally put together a free throw by Jim Fairley, two by Julius Prince, and another by Fairley to cut the lead to 11 at 37-26, and that margin held at the half, 41-20. In the early minutes of the second half, the Bucs struck twice, with Fairley hitting on a

Magicians Play Here

The Fabulous Magicians tangle with the New York Rens here tonight in a basketball game which will be a showcase for the dribbling of Marques Haynes and the antics of Eugene (Sugarfoot) Johnson. Tip-off time for the seldom serious, mostly comical match is 8 p.m. at Minges Coliseum. Haynes, whose career has spanned four decades (from the late 1940s to 1970), is the Magicians' founder, coach and star performer. Despite his age, which he will not reveal, Haynes is physically fit to the extent that many loyalists say he could help many an NBA or ABA club. Sugarfoot Johnson is the team's chief comic, with a repertoire which included behind-the-back shots from midcourt as well as impromptu dropkicks. An eight-year veteran from Wiley College in Texas, the 6-6 center is noted for his speed, agility and a variety of moves and shots. Another top showman with the Magicians is Dwight Durante, the former small college All American from Catawba who averaged 29 points per game during a four-year college career which ended in 1969. Halftime entertainment will be provided by the acrobatic team of Flip and Tip James.

Oak City added two more

In the boys game, Aurora ran away with the lead in the first period and used this to help build up a big lead. By the end of the period, Aurora held a 17-5 lead. They increased this by two in the second period, outshooting Oak City, 9-7. That it 26-12 at the half.

In the third frame, Aurora added three more by outshooting Oak City, 18-15, for a 44-27 lead as the final period got underway. Oak City put on a strong rally in the final period, outscoring Aurora, 29-14, but it fell just

McCauley Named To All-America

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Being named to the Associated Press All-America collegiate football team is a dream come true for North Carolina's Don McCauley.

"This is the greatest thing that's ever happened to me," said the rugged 210-pound tailback from Garden City, N.Y. McCauley, who gained 1,720 yards rushing this season to break O. J. Simpson's record of 1,709, said that as a grammar school youngster he dreamed about being an All-America player.

"But I figured it was something almost impossible to achieve, like being president," he said. "I'm still in a daze by it all."

The modest 23-year-old senior wants to play pro football and has been contacted by numerous scouts.

"He can't miss," said North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley. "He's the finest football player I've ever been associated with and the greatest runner I've seen. He's a natural for pro football. He's a tremendous runner and has great hands."

McCauley is certain to be a top choice in the pro football draft next month.

"Some of the big ones are beginning to come around," he said of the pro scouts.

McCauley, known for his toughness and durability, said, "I've been working hard the last two years with bar bells to build the upper part of my body. The running takes care of the bottom part. When you toughen up it helps avoid injuries." His neck size has increased from 16 to 17½.

McCauley and his North Carolina teammates resume practice Monday for their game against unbeaten Arizona State in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta Dec. 30.

The Tar Heels would up the regular season with an 8-3 record, smashing rival Duke 59-34 in the finale. McCauley put on a one-man show against Duke, scoring five touchdowns and gaining 279 yards in 47 carries.

"It was definitely my best game," he said.

McCauley likes some of the attire of the hippie generation, but doesn't go for the long hair. He sports sideburns and has a medium growth of hair.

He said one of the big thrills in his four years at UNC "has been taking a loser and putting it into a winner."

Pantego Nips Bears By Five

BEAR GRASS — Pantego High School edged past Bear Grass Tuesday night, taking an 8-6 victory. The Bear Grass girls picked up a 35-33 victory in their game.

Bear Grass slipped out into a 10-9 lead in the first period of the boys game, and it looked like this might be the night for the Bears to snap their losing string. But Pantego came back to hit 23 points in the second period, while the Bears managed 20. That put the Warriors into a 32-30 lead at the half.

Bear Grass outhit Pantego, 15-13, in the third period, and that resulted in a 45-45 deadlock as the final period got underway. But Bear Grass couldn't outhit Pantego in the final period, as the Warriors held a 23-18 edge to take the victory.

O'Neal led Pantego with 21 points, while Gibbs had 13 and Harvey had 10.

For Bear Grass, Charles Mobley had 20, Edward Cratt had 12, Vann Rogerson had 11 and Mike Roberson had 10.

In the girls contest, Pantego inched away to a 7-6 lead in the first period. But a 15-14 advantage for Bear Grass in the second period resulted in a 21-21 tie at the half.

Bear Grass picked up what proved to be the winning margin in the third period, outscoring Pantego, 8-4. That left the Lady Bears in a 29-25 lead. Pantego managed to outhit the Bears, 8-6, in the final period, but never could pull back even with Bear Grass.

Eva Knox led Bear Grass with 14 points, while Carol Cutler had 11 and Peartree had 12 for Pantego.

Belhaven Stops Jamesville Five

BELHAVEN — Jamesville and Belhaven High Schools split a pair of basketball games Tuesday night. Jamesville captured the girls contest, 32-22, while the Belhaven boys won the boys game, 77-57.

In the girls event, Jamesville moved out into a 7-4 lead in the first period. Both teams played a duplicate second period, 7-4, and that left the Devilettes in a 14-8 lead at halftime.

In the third period, Jamesville again outscored Belhaven, 10-8, and upped its lead to 24-16. They did it again in the final quarter, 8-6, to wrap up the win, their eighth in nine outings.

Myra Modlin led Jamesville with 14 points, while Ava Perry had 10.

In the boys game, Belhaven put the game on ice in the first period of play. They burned the nets for 21 points while Jamesville struggled in with eight points. In the second quarter, Jamesville warmed up some, but Belhaven was still hot, outshooting the Red Devils, 26-18. That left Belhaven in command, 47-26 at the half.

In the third period, Belhaven again outpointed Jamesville, 18-17, and led by 65-43 as the final period got underway. Jamesville managed to outscore Belhaven, 14-12, in the last frame, but to no avail.

Cleve Arthur led Belhaven with 17 points, while Roger Tilman and Greg Palmer each had 14 and Charles Windley had 11.

Jamesville was paced by Larry Modlin with 17, while Tommy Mizelle had 13, Robert James had 11 and Phil Blount had 10.

Jamesville travels to Chocowinity on Friday.

Foster Dumped As Light Champ

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The manager of Bobby Foster says he doesn't understand the World Boxing Association's announcement it has withdrawn recognition of his fighter as world light heavyweight champion.

The action was taken, WBA President Bill Brennan said Wednesday, because the manager failed "to post a forfeit" guaranteeing Foster would defend his crown against the No. 1 contender within 90 days after a proposed heavyweight title bout between Foster and Joe Frazier.

Brennan said the manager, Lou Viscusi, and the association agreed to this arrangement during the WBA convention last August in Montreal.

At that time, Brennan said, the WBA advised Viscusi his agreement "must be fulfilled, otherwise it would become necessary for the WBA to withdraw recognition" of the Washington, D. C., fighter as champion.

Bear Grass Cagers Shots Aren't Falling

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

BEAR GRASS — The luck hasn't been so good this year to date at Bear Grass High School, but Coach Herbert Ward is hoping that soon the Bears will break out of their slump and go to work.

Bear Grass thus far has won only one of seven games, and it hasn't been because of the team's defense, but its offense.

Three starters return to the team from last year's squad, so there is no lack of experience. Returning are 6-3 center, Mike Roberson, 6-0 forward Billy Mizelle, and 5-11 guard Charles Mobley. There is also one other letterman around, providing depth, Edward Cratt.

Joining the veterans are two newcomers, 6-2 forward Vann Rogerson, and 5-11 guard Roger Gurganus.

"Our overall height is good," Ward said, "But we seem to be getting beaten on the boards. We just don't have the jumpers other schools have, and that's

"As of this date," Brennan added, "Viscusi and Foster have not lived up to their commitment and pledge."

Brennan, who said the WBA shortly will announce a series of bouts involving the leading contenders to install a new champion, said Foster has not defended his crown against the top challenger since winning it May 24, 1968. This, he said, "has added strangulation" to the division and "deprived leading contenders of the opportunity to compete for the world title."

where we get hurt."

Ward also admits that the Bears don't have a great deal of speed and quickness.

"We have to go to more of a control type game and play for the good shot. So far, we've been able to do this, but we haven't been able to make them drop for us," he said.

The Bears are a better inside shooting team than they are from outside, and have had luck in getting the ball to the inside for these shots. "But they just don't seem to be hitting. I don't know what the problem is," the coach admitted.

The Bears also have another problem which could have a great effect on the way the team plays. There is very little depth.

"We've got only three reserve men," Ward said. "Besides Cratt, there are Phillip Gardner and Gary Shaw. Both of these last two are new to the team, but they are coming along good, and we haven't been hurt when we have to go to the bench.

And the Bear Grass defense, despite the fact that the team must avoid picking up too many fouls, has been good. "We've held most of our opponents to less than 50 points," Ward said.

"That should be enough to win, but we just aren't hitting ourselves."

The shooting problem extend into the foul line situations. "We missed 32 free throws at Aurora," Ward lamented. "It's just a real problem we just can't seem to find the answer to."

Ward said that if his team had hit only 30 per cent of their field goal attempts in each game, they would have had enough to win three more games, and be 4-2 instead of 1-5. "But when you can't do this, you can't do much."

Ward feels that Robersonville and Oak City should be the strongest teams in the Martin County Conference this year.

"We're hurt by being one of the smallest schools in the state," the coach said. "We just don't have the manpower, and we need some badly. We really don't get much in the way of practice with just eight men on the team. We practice when we play."

But despite the record, the Bears aren't giving up. "The boys have a real good attitude. They are going to stick in there, and we are looking forward to improvement in our record."

Harp: 'Probably Only Winning Coach Fired'

DURHAM (AP) — "I am probably the only coach in the country with a winning record last season that was fired," says Duke University's Tom Harp.

Duke announced Wednesday that it was terminating its agreement with Harp, who has been head football coach for the Blue Devils since 1966.

The firing came less than a month after Harp finished his first winning season at Duke.

The Blue Devils went into their final game of the season with a chance at the Atlantic Coast conference title, but lost 58-34 to arch-rival University of North Carolina. The loss gave Wake Forest the title and left Duke tied with UNC for second place.

Over-all the team totaled a 6-5 record for the season.

The Duke Athletic Council met Wednesday afternoon and made the decision to let Harp go. The recommendation was accepted by Duke President Terry Sanford.

Harp told a reporter, "I dimly can say that our staff is very disappointed in the action. This year's team represents the first one that was totally recruited by us and it was a winner."

"The council told Sanford that it had abiding respect for Harp as an individual but that its decision was 'in the best interest of Duke University,'" Giannini said.

Athletic Director Eddie Cameron said that Duke will continue its "great tradition of inter-collegiate football." He said that a search for a new coach will be launched immediately.

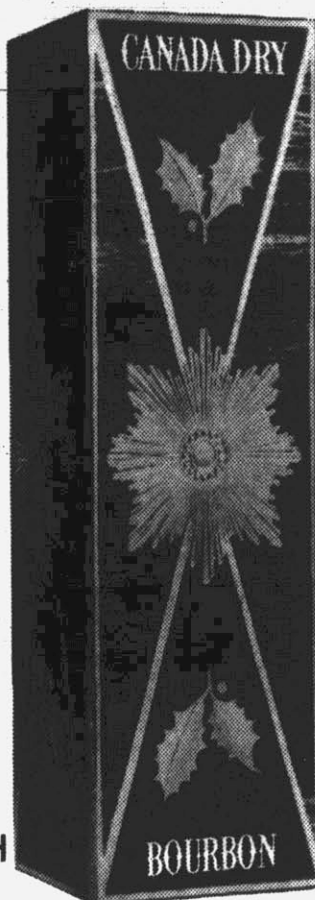

Harp said he has no plans for the future right now.

"I'm just trying to figure out what to do," he said.

Huge Youth Center For Asian Youth

By VINCENTE MALIWANAG
MANILA (UPI)—A 500-acre recreational-educational complex dedicated to the youth of Asia is taking shape on the slopes of legendary Mount Makiling, 40 miles south of Manila.

The complex, when completed within three years, will include an Asian Youth Executive Institute, a hotel, three swimming pools, Boy Scout training centers, a man-made lake, an ecumenical house of worship and a vast camping ground.

Its construction is the main project of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines in celebration of its 50th anniversary Golden Jubilee in 1973. It will be made available not only to young Filipinos but to all of Asia's youth.

By December 1973, organizers hope all the facilities will have been completed to accommodate an expected gathering of 50,000 boys and girls from around the world for an international joint scouting jamboree.

Mount Makiling was the site of a world Boy Scout Jamboree in 1959. Some of the facilities from that gathering remain intact and will be included in the new complex to be constructed.

Ground-breaking ceremonies were held in September. Among the foreign visitors was King Kwang-Ho, a 15-year-old Boy Scout from Kangwon, South Korea, who was named this year's outstanding Asian boy hero for saving a friend from drowning at the risk of his own life. His presence symbolized that the complex will be dedicated to all the youth of Asia.

Scouting representatives from Japan, Nationalist China, Iran and the United States also attended the ceremonies. The Philippine scouting movement was started by the Americans in 1923.

The main feature of the Makiling complex is the Asia-Pacific Youth Executive Institute, which organizers said will be the first to be established in this region.

"It's intended to give young men and young women with leadership qualities a new career opportunity in the field of civic and youth organization management," said Antonio C. Delgado, industrialist and executive vice chairman of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines' Golden Jubilee Board.

The institute will offer specialized studies and training to university students who intend to pursue professional careers with such organizations as the Boy or Girl Scouts, the Young Men's or Women's Christian Association centers, or other youth welfare institutes.

Participants first will pursue two years of basic university studies in cooperating colleges before moving into the Makiling Institute for the final two years of specialized schooling. An academic degree of bachelor of science in humanities will be conferred on graduates.

Interest Turns To Building Of Custom Cars

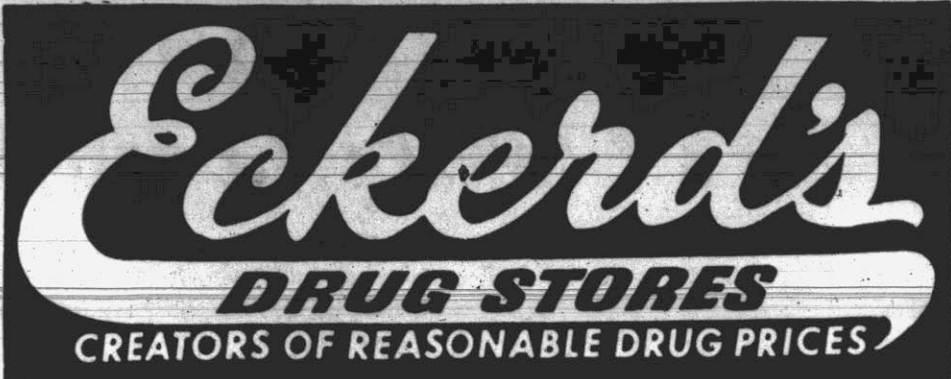

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Frank Osgood Butler, II, a member of the wealthy Butler family, has pursued a life-long interest in sports — swimming, skydiving, bicycling, surfing, trampolining — and now is joining the custom-car building ranks. He plans shops in Oak Brook and Knoxville, Tenn.

Butler said he owned his first gasoline-powered vehicle when he was five. It was a gift received in 1933. Butler operated the miniature car on the polo grounds on the family's 3,000-acre farm west of Chicago.

"At one time, I had a stable of eight cars," Butler said. "But I had more fun installing gimmicks and was more concerned with how a car looked than in racing."

"The Chicago area provides a ready source for equipment," he said. "But the milder winter in Tennessee will enable us to test cars during months when it will be impossible in the north."

OLD INDIAN DIES

Love Potion Needs Horn Of Reindeer

By ROBERT H. MOTTAM
Associated Press Writer
NOME, Alaska (AP) — A group of Christian missionaries brought a few Siberian reindeer into Alaska about 1912 with the aim of aiding hungry natives. It worked so well that the natives now supply thousands of pounds of reindeer horns annually for Oriental aphrodisiacs.

The agriculture division of the State Department of Natural Resources says about 1,500 pounds of reindeer horns have been shipped out of Nome this year for Hong Kong, where they are highly valued as an ingredient for love potions.

However, Ed Kern, agricultural marketing specialists for the division, points out that the horns are only a byproduct of Alaska's growing reindeer industry. The major item produced is meat, and it is so popular the industry can't keep up with demand.

During 1969, Alaska produced 570,000 pounds of reindeer meat through a state-operated slaughterhouse at Nome and a privately owned facility at Nunivak on the Alaska Peninsula.

"But there hasn't been a real push to move it outside the northwest and southwest Alaska area," Kern says. "The local demand is this large or larger."

Outside demand is widespread, however. Last year, more than 25,000 pounds of reindeer meat was shipped to Germany, Kern says, and there have been requests for as much as 100 tons for export.

There is also some movement of the meat to other states, he says, with about 50,000 pounds shipped this year. Most of it moves into the gourmet trade through wholesale and restaurant purchasers from New York to Los Angeles.

There are 25,000 to 30,000 head of reindeer in Alaska now, existing in about 15 herds, all owned by native villages or native individuals.

The advantage of reindeer over cows is their ability to live off the land in their rugged, subarctic environment.

"They get no supplemental feed," Kern points out. "They survive off of arctic grasses and sedges and off of reindeer moss, which they live on in the winter."

Kern says commercial reindeer production began in Alaska in the mid 1920s and now contributes to the incomes of 400 to 500 persons.

There is some selective breeding carried out, he says, but "there's room for improvement."

"The major problem is setting up a good distribution system, plus improving herding practices," Kern says. "But there's definitely room for expansion."

Toy-Makers Go All Out

NEW YORK (UPI) — Boys and girls scribbling their list of toys to Santa probably will get writer's cramp between now and Christmas.

The toy makers of America, who help in Santa's workshop, are blowing their horns in thick catalogs and trumpeting their wares on television commercials as never before.

It's enough to give parents, grandparents, uncles, aunts and friends of deserving youngsters a pain in the pocketbook. But the pain apparently is accepted with a slight smile. Despite the recession shipments of toys, at manufacturers' prices, are 17.3 per cent ahead of last year's, reports the Toy Manufacturers of America (TMA), a trade association.

Toy shipments, at the current rate, will exceed last year's level of $2.04 billion. One half of all the toy buying takes place in the last two months of the year.

Though most grandparents and many parents will dispute it, a study by Toys Magazine shows that the annual expenditure for toys figures out to just $55 for every boy and girl 15 years of age and under.

But what about the recession? It's apparently good for the toy business.

The TMA reports that it's apparently a psychological thing. No matter how bad things seem, you don't disappoint the kids at Christmas. It was true during the great depression of the 30s and the toy makers see no signs that the situation will change in the depressed economic climate of Christmas, 1970.

Combined ECU Choirs, Orchestras Plan Oratorio

"SACRED SERVICE" . . . the oratorio by Ernest Bloch, is being presented as the annual East Carolina University School of Music Christmas program Sunday afternoon at 3:15 at Wright

Vitality Added To Bach's Work

Johann Sebastian Bach composed many pages of superb music in his lifetime. Last night, in the concert given by the Bach Aria Group at East Carolina University, the four singers and four instrumentalists were, to use the overworked word without qualification, magnificent.

These mature musicians, obviously very much in love with their music, sang and played with body, heart and soul. It was one of those rapturous experiences in which one feels the next song could not possibly be as rewarding as the one just finished, but these musicians maintained the same matchless level of performance from beginning to end.

With so many riches to choose from, it is difficult to cite individual performances as being particularly rewarding. Lois Marshall, soprano and Maureen Forrester, alto, in the duet from Cantata 78 were sublime. Their voices soared in a breathtaking interplay of wondrous sounds, full of joy and hope.

Bass-baritone Norman Farrow and Robert Bloom, oboist, in the lilting, almost rollicking aria from Cantata 56 had beautiful material for voice and instrument. There is not a large repertoire of showpieces for bass voices. After hearing this selection, one wishes for more.

In the 11 individual arias and the six arias from Cantata 186a, "Argue dich, o Seele, nicht", each of the singers and instrumentalists had their chance to display their talents individually and collectively. The flute passages in Cantata 99 with Samuel Baron, flutist, were played to perfection. Violinist Oscar Shumsky had his finest moments in Cantata 13 for bass, violin and cello, and in the aria for soprano in Cantata 186a.

Tenor Richard Lewis and cellist Bernard Greenhouse, in the aria from Cantata 41, made this lovely melody a work both rich and clear in the fine phrasing of voice and instrument.

Many of the people in the audience were young people, at least a generation removed from the performers in age. The youngsters, in the rousing ovation they gave the veteran performers at the end of the all too brief hour and a half, left no doubt that Bach's music, presented in a truly moving, flawless performance, remains young and fresh in its universal appeal. — JERRY RAYNOR Greenville police estimated damage to the William car at $175 and set damage to the Roebuck car at $200. No injuries were reported.

Extend Deadline For Gift-Givers

The Pitt County Mental Health Association will be open Saturday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. for the convenience of those who wish to deliver gifts for Operation Santa Claus.

The announced deadline which is tomorrow is being extended through Saturday. Personnel at the hospital and the center will select appropriate gifts for patients and wrap them, she said.

Area Clergy Are Campus Guests

Seven campus chaplains at East Carolina University hosted regional clergymen and guests at a multi-media conference last weekend at ECU's Baptist Student Center.

The one-day event featured panel and group discussions and presentation of an actual multi-media worship service, following dinner.

Sen. Russell Is In Walter Reed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., is under treatment at Walter Reed Army Hospital for a respiratory infection.

Russell, 73, has suffered from emphysema for years. An aide said Wednesday doctors were being cautious about the senator's ailment because respiratory infections may be serious for emphysema sufferers.

"Sacred Service", an oratorio by Ernest Bloch, is the work selected this year for the Christmas presentation by the joint choir and orchestra of East Carolina University Sunday afternoon at Wright Auditorium. Approximately 260 musicians are in the program which begins at 3:15 p.m. and is open to the public without admission charge.

Robert Hause, conductor of the ECU Symphony Orchestra, is overall director of the annual Christmas event. Assisting Hause are Dr. Paul Aliapoulos, director of the University Chorale; Dr. Charles W. Moore, chairman of the Vocal Department of the School of Music; Miss Beatrice Chauncey, director of the Women's Glee Club; and Brett Watson, director of the Men's Glee Club.

About 200 singers and an orchestra of 60 instrumentalists, faculty and student members, will be involved in this major production. Soloists are Dr. Paul Aliapoulos as the cantor, a baritone role; Miss June Laine, soprano; and Miss Donna Stephenson, alto.

Bloch's "Sacred Service" written in the 1930's is not a modern composition in the conventional sense. It is based on the Jewish morning service music. Hause related Bloch, Swiss born of Jewish parents, became an American citizen before his death. "Sacred Service" was composed in Switzerland and Italy. "It is the only known composition using the Jewish liturgy in oratorio form," Hause commented. "The Jewish liturgy has been used in masses, requiems and other settings, but not in the oratorio form."

Plans are to have this Christmas program, the only time each year all the combined resources of the School of Music are used together, taped on stereo tape. "This will be used for rebroadcast over radio in North Carolina and Virginia,"

Hause commented. To help listeners follow the text, which is being sung in Hebrew, the printed program Sunday afternoon will feature a Hebrew text with an English text running parallel. "Listeners will be happy to discover familiar quotations from the Old Testament in the text of the oratorio," Hause remarked.

Doors to Wright Auditorium will be opened before three o'clock to permit those attending sufficient time to be seated prior to 3:15. As is customary with all School of Music free presentations, seating is on a first-come, first-seated basis.

Toll Dropping

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The N.C. State Motor Club says the state's highway death toll for 1970 shows promise of a sizeable drop for the second consecutive year.

Tuesday, Dec. 8, the toll for 1970 was 1,595, 88 less than on Dec. 8, 1969 for that year.

The 1970 toll was 103 less than the 1969 toll on the first day of December. The margin decreased to 84 after 16 deaths during the weekend, but had spread again by Tuesday.

A spokesman for the motor club noted, however, that the final weeks of December are among the year's most dangerous because of holiday traffic.

During 1969, 1,810 were killed in the state, 59 fewer than in 1968.

Unruh To Teach Political Course

NORTHIDGE, Calif. (AP) — Jess Unruh, onetime undisputed ruler of the California Legislature and unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial candidate, will teach politics next spring at a state college.

A spokesman for San Fernando Valley State College said Wednesday Unruh, 47, will conduct a seminar for junior and senior students. His salary was not disclosed.

Unruh was defeated by Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan in the general election Nov. 3.

Blind Spots

How much do you know about blind spots?

First of all, one in each eye is perfectly normal. We all have blind spots.

The eye itself is not capable of perceiving anything. Vision is formed in the brain and controlled by the intellect.

A blind spot occurs at the entrance point at the rear of the eyeball. This entrance point contains no visual cells, rods or cones. Consequently, it doesn't react to stimuli like the surrounding retina does.

The actual size of the blind spot is 1.5 millimeters. At ten inches from the eye, though, it becomes as big as a postage stamp. At twenty yards, it's mushrooms to the size of a horse!

Of course, we are usually unaware of our blind spot. This is because our two eyes overlap in vision ranges, erasing the blank area.

No Clues, No Motives Uncovered In Old Slaying

By JIM SCHLOSSER
Greensboro Record Writer
SILER CITY, N.C. (AP) — Early on the morning of April 2, 1969, Robert Van Auker, wealthy construction executive from far away Caldwell, Idaho, was found murdered in front of his motel room at Siler City.

The killer has never been found.

During the last 20 months, the Chatham County Sheriff's Department, the Siler City Police Department, the state bureau of investigation, and even the FBI have spent hundreds of hours on the case, but they have yet to uncover even a motive.

The intriguing question is: Why was a man — 2,700 miles from home — gunned down in this central North Carolina community of 4,500?

That may never be known.

The killing has become one of the state's most fascinating unsolved murder cases. Here are the facts known about it:

Van Auker, 51, was a well-known figure in the construction industry even though he resided in a small town in sparsely-populated Idaho. He was president of Van Auker Construction Co., which built business and industrial plants throughout the country.

Business was what brought him to Siler City. He came to negotiate a contract with Kelwood Corp., a hosiery company with a large division plant in Siler City, to build a plant in Twin Falls, Idaho.

Van Auker — a solidly built, 5-foot-11, 175-pound individual who wore a toupee — was described by close friends as a "genius" in the construction business. Some said he was a ruthless businessman, who would do anything within limits to win a contract.

He also was characterized as aggressive, extremely confident, a natural leader, a man who was always in charge at a conference or a business meeting.

Van Auker arrived at Regional Airport near Greensboro via commercial aircraft on the afternoon of March 31, 1969. He was accompanied by four business associates — Ray Howell, owner of Howell Construction Co., Fruitland Idaho; Albert Stoddard, sales and office manager for Ready Mix Concrete Co., Boise, Idaho; John W. Corvill, engineer for Boise Power & Light Co.; and Dave Rau of Napa, Idaho, general superintendent of Van Auker Construction Co.

At the airport the men rented a car and drove to Albert Pick Motor Inn on I-40, where they checked in, had dinner and went to bed. They arose early the next morning, drove to Siler City and registered, each in a separate room, at the Siler City Motor Inn, situated on a grassy knoll just off U.S. 421.

After unpacking, the men went to Bill's Good Food Restaurant near the motel, had breakfast, then drove to the Kelwood plant and spent the remainder of the day in conference with John White, a Kelwood vice president and manager of the Siler City plant.

About 4:30 p.m., White telephoned the Pines Restaurant on N.C. 54 near Chapel Hill and made dinner reservations for himself and the other visiting businessmen.

Van Auker and his associates then returned to their motel rooms, showered and dressed for dinner. White picked them up about 6:30 for the 25-mile trip to the Pines Restaurant. After dinner they returned to Siler City and went to Van Auker's room — No. 5 — for a nightcap and more discussion regarding the new Idaho plant.

During the conversation, Van Auker reportedly removed his tie, unbuttoned his shirt and took off his shoes and socks. Around 11 p.m., White left and shortly thereafter the four associates went to their adjoining rooms and went to bed.

From that point on Van Auker's movements become sketchy. It is known he started making telephone calls, first from his room. The motel switchboard closed about 12:30 a.m. and the motel manager cut Van Auker off in the middle of one call.

Later, however, Van Auker is believed to have resumed his telephoning from a pay booth outside the motel office. The manager and his wife, who have a room behind the office, told investigators they heard a voice which sounded like Van Auker's coming from the booth.

According to telephone company records, Van Auker made 13 long distance telephone calls that night, charging them to his telephone credit card. Only three of the calls were actually completed. The other 10 resulted in busy signals or the desired party was not at home. All the calls were made to Idaho. The last was the longest, 14 minutes and five seconds.

Authorities refuse to name the recipients of the calls.

"We had to get a court order to obtain that information," explained Chatham County Sheriff

C. A. Simmons during an interview in his tiny office in the county courthouse at Pittsboro, 16 miles from the scene of the crime. "I don't think it would be proper to divulge their names. I will say this, however: The calls have not provided us with any clues or pertinent information relating to this crime."

Around 6:30 a.m. April 2, William Collar, a traveling salesman from Columbia, S.C., who was staying at the motel, stumbled across Van Auker's body in front of Room No. 5.

The dead man was lying face up on the walkway that runs the length of the motel. The left side of Van Auker's unbuttoned white shirt was drenched in blood. His right arm was extended high above his head. In his right hand was a Hertz Rent-A-car brochure.

Collar notified the motel manager, who telephoned the Siler City Police Department and Chatham County Sheriff's Department.

Van Auker was shot once through the heart with a .32-calibre bullet, fired at close range. There was a gash on the back of his head, which probably resulted when his head hit the concrete walk after the shooting.

None of the motel guests heard a shot fired during the night. Van Auker's business associates were lodged in Rooms 4, 6, 7 and 8 — a few feet from where the body was found — but all signed statements saying they heard nothing.

"That's really not too unusual," said Sheriff Simmons. "A 32 doesn't make a lot of noise. Actually, the men may have heard a shot in their subconscious sleep, but they don't remember it. If there had been a second shot it probably would have awakened them."

Simmons and other investigators believe Auker was shot while returning to his room from the telephone booth.

The Hertz brochure found in his hand had a telephone number scribbled on it. The number was the last he dialed that evening.

Under a porch chair a few feet from Van Auker's body, lawmen found a floppy style rain hat and two buttons — one leather and one plastic. The items were sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington for examination, but they revealed no clues. Authorities are reasonably certain the hat and buttons did not belong to Van Auker.

Why was Van Auker murdered? Did some stranger see him in the lighted phone booth late that night, trail him to his room and rob and kill him?

At first authorities thought this may have been what happened. But they no longer think so.

An expensive gold watch was left on Van Auker's wrist.

There was a $1 bill and 63 cents in change in a trouser pocket. The door to his room was found open. Inside, his wallet was clearly visible on top of a dresser. Left untouched in the wallet were several hundred dollars in negotiable checks.

Van Auker's close friends said he often carried a considerable amount of cash attached to a money clip. No clip was found on the body or in the room. Investigators feel certain, however, that he did not bring a money clip to Siler City. Prior to leaving the Kelwood plant that afternoon, Van Auker reportedly told plant officials he didn't have any loose cash and asked them to cash a check for $300.

"The officials told him there was no need to cash a check," said Sheriff Simmons, "because as long as he was in Siler City he didn't need any money. In other words, they were going to pick up all his expenses. So the check was never cashed and we don't believe he had any cash on him save for the dollar and 63 cents found on him."

On the night of the murder, three men, one of them wearing a floppy style hat, held up a service station outside Sanford, 30 miles south of Siler City. The next day Simmons showed the floppy hat found at the motel to the robbed station attendant.

He said he "didn't think" it was the same hat worn by one of the bandits, according to the sheriff.

On April 10, after spending nine days talking with nearly everyone within close proximity of the motel, Simmons took a young man into custody for questioning about the murder. The youth was taken to Raleigh the next day and given a lie detector test. He was released the following day.

Simmons said the youth is no longer suspected.

The sheriff and other lawmen aren't anxious to speculate about other possible motives or suspects. They hint they believe the crime was committed with premeditation however. But by whom? Officers indicate it could have been any one of a number of persons.

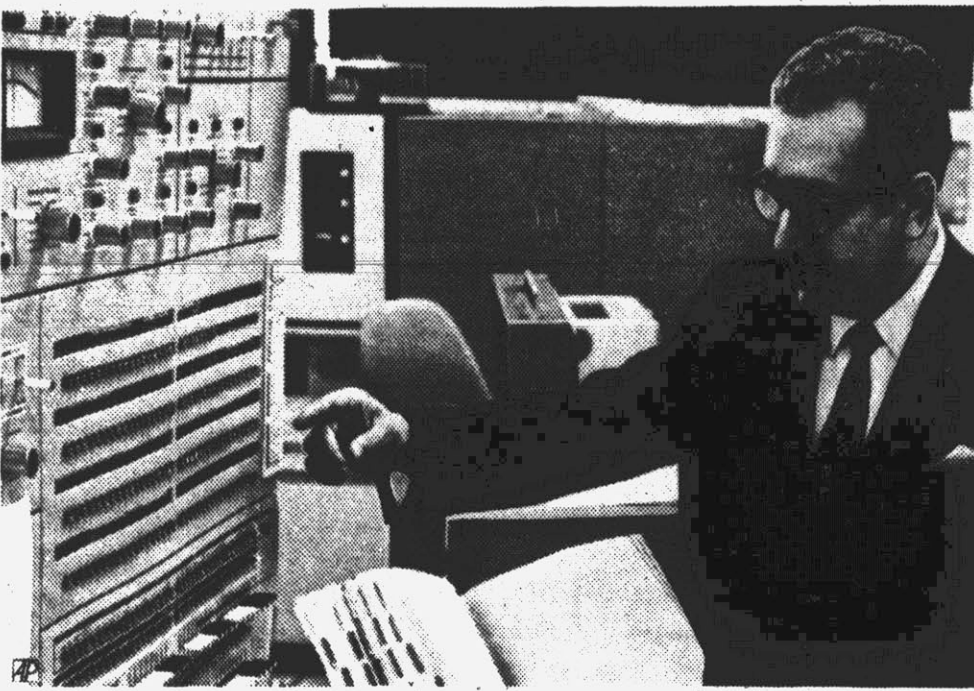

Friends said Van Auker had spent a fortune keeping various labor unions from making inroads into his business. One associate said Van Auker was fanatical in his opposition to unions, and had made many enemies in the unions.

Also, associates said, high-powered business tactics had earned him quite a few enemies in the highly competitive construction industry.

But there is no evidence to link unions or business competitors to the crime.

Simmons said, "We're no closer to solving it now than when we started investigating nearly 20 months ago. It's one of the most baffling, fascinating crimes I have ever worked on."

Exile Sees An America Leaning To Communism

J. M. Fernandez — A leader in the formation of the Midwest Cuban Federation, Mr. Fernandez is in the University of Kentucky's payroll office, which he manages.

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Jesus Manuel Fernandez has helped some 5,000 ex-Cubans band together into a three-state federation and now is dreaming of a World Cuban Exile Federation.

He and others like him have two basic aims: to free Cuba from the clutches of communism and to do everything possible to keep the United States from following the same path as his native country did under Castro.

"You don't think it can happen here, but it can," Fernandez said. "All the signs are there now and it takes only a small minority who are well trained to take over a country."

"Look at the things that are happening: the riots, the bombings, the kidnappings," he added. "They are the same things I saw in Cuba 10 years ago. The hand of communism is behind it all and it is all an effort to destroy the security of the nation."

The Midwest Cuban Federation aims at stopping this trend. It provides free speakers to give their views on communism in general and Cuban communism specifically, and its members are in the audience every time possible when pro-Castro speakers visit campuses and communities in the area. "We dispute the things they say and, if they want violence, they have it,"

Fernandez said.

The father of four repeated over and over that Americans can not understand the horror of living under communism and the value of this nation's freedom.

"When I left Cuba 10 years ago, I came without anything," he said. "They took my clothing, my home, my money. I had nothing and it is the same with all the others."

At 50 now, Fernandez is manager of the payroll at the University of Kentucky. He dresses conservatively, owns his own home, his wife teaches at a private school, and his children are happy. He has learned the English language well.

Fernandez is fairly sure he will never return to Cuba, even if it were to become free. "I am 10 years older and my children have grown up in this country. I have too many ties here," he said.

Besides, he added, the economy of Cuba has been so crippled by communism that it would be years before it could sustain any large number of immigrants.

But that doesn't mean he has forgotten Cuba and the communism that drove him from its shores after the Bay of Pigs invasion broke down and he was rounded up along with other members of the underground.

"We do not attach too much importance to Castro for what has happened there," he said. "The Russians are the ones who are using both Cuba and Castro."

"Here, in America, they take advantage of our freedom to do the same kind of work. Here, we sometimes have to make a difference between freedom and an excess of freedom."

"Many churchmen even have said we can go along with communism, but I don't see how we can exist with it because it is designed to destroy us and our ideals," he continued.

"It is time we stood up and complimented our country and our way of life. There are good things and it's time we talked about them."

"It is time the silent majority started speaking," Fernandez concluded.

His Cuban Federation isn't a majority and it certainly isn't silent.

"We have no money given to us. We pay our own way to meetings and for speaking engagements. It is not even deductible."

"But we do this because we believe," he said.

New Abortion Law Criticized

LONDON, Canada (AP) — Canada's new abortion law is too restrictive and abortion procedures are worse than before the law came into effect, the president of the Ontario Medical Association said. Dr. Bette Stephenson said before the law was passed sensible procedures were being developed. She said Women's College Hospital in Toronto had performed therapeutic abortions for 12 years prior to the law being changed.

Worry Clinic

Real Value In Your Own Land

Heed the sage advice of Silas! You can add extra years to your lifespan by following the psychological prescription below! It applies to you young couples, too, for the average cigarette smoker burns up the price of a 5-acre farm every 5 years! Add zest, as well as more independence, to your old age by this plan!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE P-509: Silas Jr., aged 68, is an Iowa Farmer.
Recently he came to the local bank to borrow $80,000.
"Why do you want the money?" inquired the banker.
"Wal," replied Silas, "the next farm of 160 acres is for sale so I figger I better buy it."

"But, Silas," remonstrated the banker, "you already own over 1,000 acres of this rich Iowa prairie land."
"So why try to increase your holdings?"
Silas shook his head.
"Banker," he sagely answered, "they ain't making any more of the stuff, so I figger I better get all I can."
This anecdote has a very serious moral, namely, you better cushion your old age with a little plot of ground, even if it be no more than 3 to 5 acres.
"But, Dr. Crane," somebody may protest, "isn't land very expensive?"
Yes; productive flat Iowa soil now ranges between $700 and $1,000 per acre.
But you can still purchase suitable land for your retirement, and in the populous states, for $150 per acre or even less.
The soil may be second-rate, from the viewpoint of big time farmers who want to grow 125 bushels of corn per acre.

However, it will support a lush garden, plus a dozen hens, a milk cow and sow, plus berry plants galore!
And anybody on a normal Social Security check can thus live like a prince on such a small farm.
Your one cow will furnish you an average of 16 quarts of milk daily!
That will give you all the cream and butter, cottage cheese and buttermilk, an elderly couple can use.
Plus enough surplus to help feed the 12 hens, plus the sow! One calf per year is the usual output of a cow, and a sow will give you at least 8 or 10 pigs!
The hens will furnish your table all the fresh eggs you need.
The outdoor sunshine and exercise will also stave off heart attacks as well as the jitters that cost you money for tranquilizers!
Moreover, your zest for living will increase, for many hobbies are tied-in with such a plot of ground.
These can include rock hunting, grafting of new fruit twigs on other tree trunks, rose gardening, rabbit raising, bird watching, insect collecting, etc.

For a mere 3-acre plot of cheap land will furnish your table with all the meat, vegetables, milk, fruit and berries a couple can gorge.
Your cow will give you a calf to sell. And you can turn 6 or 7 of the pigs into cash, assuming you butcher one or two for the table.
Remember, medical statistics show that people who work outdoors in the soil of a farm or garden, actually live longer and resist coronary attacks much better!

So look around for small acreage of second-rate farm land!
If a large plot of 40 acres is for sale cheap, get a few cronies to help you buy it and then parcel it out into 5 or 10 smaller pieces.
"For they aren't making any more of the stuff," as Silas warned.
And in time of severe city depressions or a war holocaust, you will still be able to eat well on the farm, even as the French rural folks did, despite the Hitler regimentation of France in World War II.

Story To Tell Grandchildren

SOCORRO, N.M. (AP) — Jen-eane Ryan is only 18, but she wanted to do something while a New Mexico Tech coed to tell her grandchildren some day.
So, she and a classmate rode horseback 80 miles from college to her home in Albuquerque.
The couple followed the Rio Grande. They left after Friday classes and reached Albuquerque Sunday afternoon.
The couple drove back to Socorro and left their horses in Albuquerque.

South—despite the fact that he did not have a single face card in his hand became the declarer at a slam contract after the opponents had opened the bidding.
North held the equivalent of a demand bid and when West opened ahead of him with one spade in third position, the only way that North could announce his strength was by overcalling in his opponent's suit. The cue bid of two spades forces partner to keep the bidding open until game is reached.
East had nothing in the way of defensive values and since he was loaded in West's suit, he decided to make it difficult for the opposition to get together by jumping to four spades. Our objection to his strategy was that vulnerability conditions were not favorable for a sacrifice should the opponents stop to double. Had North, in fact, doubled four spades—he could have administered an 1,100 point sting—taking two hearts, two clubs, two diamonds and a diamond ruff.

South was gratified at being relieved of the obligation to bid, however, his partner was unwilling to abandon the contest and he repeated his cue bid—this time at the five level. Despite his powerful holding, North's action was not warranted since he was forcing his partner to respond at the six level without knowing a thing about South's hand. When South dutifully responded with six hearts, the auction subsided.
West opened the king of spades, ruffed in dummy and cashed the ace and king of trumps. When both opponents followed, the queen was permitted to remain at large.
The ace and king of diamonds were played followed by a small diamond which declarer ruffed with the nine of hearts, and when the suit divided evenly, North's long diamonds were established. A club was led and the jack was finessed. When this play succeeded and the clubs responded favorably, declarer claimed his contract—announcing that he would lead high diamonds and clubs until the defense ruffed with the queen of hearts. The trump trick was his only loser.

Myrna Loy, Now 68, Pursues Stage Acting Career

DUSTON HARVEY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Myrna Loy is one leading lady of Hollywood's past who doesn't intend to play "cannibalistic mothers and the other monsters."

"Why should I?" asked the red-haired actress. "I did all those when I was young. I've had a very checkered career, but I know those roles aren't right for me."

Instead she's pursuing a stage career which she started on a learn-on-the-job basis after four decades in the movies.

Miss Loy, who started her screen career in 1922 playing exotic oriental sirens in Rudolph Valentino films and became one of the top box office draws of the 1930s playing witty sophisticates, made her first stage appearance in 1961. Two-Person Play She is currently on a national tour in "Dear Love," a play based on the Elizabeth Barrett Robert Browning letters and co-starring its author, Jerome Kilty. Miss Loy hopes to make her New York stage debut in the two-person play next April 5 after performances in 16 cities. The gracious 68-year-old actress lounged in a violet midi dress, sipping a soft drink and gesturing with a cigarette, while she discussed her long career in an interview in her hotel suite. She was born Myrna Williams at Helena, Mont., into a musical family and as a child studied dance. At the age of 15, she was giving dance lessons in the Los Angeles suburb of Culver City. Her screen name was changed to Loy for the Valentino epics. Miss Loy's most famous role was as Nora Charles in the "Thin Man" series with William Powell in the '30s. She made more than 100 films, appearing last two years ago in "April Fools."

Movie Opportunities Slim She made her stage debut nine years ago because opportunities in movies were getting slim. "Cannibalistic mothers and the other monsters offered women of my age these days aren't for me," she said. "I did all those when I was young. In '13 Women,' I killed 12 of them, but Irene Dunne got away. I used to tell my friends, 'I wish I'd gotten her too,' when she got parts I wanted."

"Bette (Davis) is fantastic in them, but they're really camp. All older women in films today are mad. It gets to the point where you wonder just what the writers have against women." She made her stage debut in "The Marriage-Go-Round" against the advice of friends, who thought it was a bad role for a beginner. High School Understudy "I'd never performed in the theater, except as a dancer in my youth. I did study drama in school, but I never had an opportunity to perform. The closest I got was as an understudy for Ophelia in high school. But I was a sophomore and the senior who was playing the role didn't break her leg. "I decided I would just go out and learn to do. How else do you learn to do theater? You have to learn with an audience."

During the past decade, she's performed in five other plays, including two years in "Barefoot in the Park."

"That was a great exercise in learning to play comedy on stage. In theater, you have to stop for the laugh... freeze until the laugh begins to break and then move in on it. In films, you never stop. The editor cuts the film to take care of it."

Scene Sense She enjoys playing to a live audience, but said experienced performers in movies reach the point where they sense whether a scene is working—"the men up on the light let you know."

One area where Miss Loy did get a little coaching before performing on stage was her voice. "I always had a low, soft sort of voice in films," she said. "The sound men had to open it up all the way. But it was very effective and worked for me." A laugh. "My voice coach had me doing Greek drama, then he told me: 'You have a big voice, but you don't like noise. So you don't like the sound of loud voices.' I've had no trouble since."

Witty Sophisticate Asked if she liked being remembered chiefly for her roles as a witty sophisticate in the "Thin Man" mysteries, Miss Loy doubted it was true—noting that she'd also starred in such classics as "The Best Years of Our Lives."

She lamented the decline of sophisticated film comedy. "I think the thing that is gone is the way of life of that period—the Noel Coward type of rich characters with butlers and maids. That kind of life did exist then; it doesn't now; so it's not being written about."

"Life is somewhat more grim now. It's extremely difficult to be witty. I knew people who talked that way—George Kaufmann, Harry Kurnitz, Dorothy Parker. In fact, it used to get pretty rough. I'd be exhausted after a conversation. I'd sit there and think: 'When will I think of something witty to say?'" Fortunately, a lot of them were good friends of mine and put up with me."

TV Booming In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (UPI)—When television was first introduced in Hong Kong in 1957—Hong Kong was the first British overseas dependency to have a television station—there were only 1,500 television sets, an audience of 8,000, and 28 hours weekly broadcasting time.

Today there are two television stations broadcasting 310 hours weekly over four channels—two in English and two in Chinese. Rediffusion television, the first video station in Hong Kong, provides a wired service; Hong Kong Television Broadcasts Ltd. which was established in 1967, provides wireless television.

The two channels on KHTVB also provide part-time colored services. Nigel Watt, director of government information service and television authority, said there are some 464,000 television sets in Hong Kong today and an audience of 2 million—half the Colony's population. "I estimate that there is still room for a further 200,000-300,000 sets in Hong Kong before saturation is reached," Watt said.

A modular home being assembled on site by USCO, Inc., Richmond, Virginia.

SOME PEOPLE THINK ELECTRIC HEAT IS ONLY FOR THE RICH.

Except those who have it.

Modular housing may be one answer to America's housing needs. It certainly answers the needs of the homebuyer who is looking for economy, speed of installation and comfort.

Electric heat plays a major role in today's modular housing.

"Over ninety percent of our units are electrically heated," says Bill Utry, Vice President of USCO. "When you are building for the lower cost housing market, you want a heating system that is inexpensive to install, has minimum maintenance and service problems, and is economical to operate."

If you're looking for all the comforts of home for less money—whether modular or conventionally built—ask your dealer or builder about flameless electric heat.

Who says you have to be rich to enjoy the best?
