Scott Still Plans To Get Bald Head

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — The administration of Gov. Bob Scott is going ahead with plans to preserve Bald Head Island even though the new owner has not indicated he will sell the island. Director Roy Sowers Jr. of the state Department of Conservation and Development told C&D Board members Friday that Gov. Bob Scott will soon recommend a financial program for the state to acquire Bald Head. The semi-tropical island near Southport is owned by Carolina Cape Fear Corp., which plans to develop the property into a commercial resort. Tar Heel conservationists and the Scott administration strongly oppose the development plan. Sowers told board members at their quarterly meeting that the state intends to pursue its objective to preserve the island "as best we can, and we will need the demonstrated support of many private citizens and organizations." William Henderson, the High Point advertising executive who heads Cape Fear Corp., has not indicated he has any plans to sell, and he recently has discussed plans to develop the island into a plush resort. Sowers told the board that a study has been completed suggesting four possible uses of Bald Head Island. The study was conducted by the Research Triangle Institute at the request of Gov. Scott. It concluded the four possible uses could be: (1) continuation of the present unstructured use, (2) recreation, (3) education and (4) research. The report stated it was apparent that some of the suggested uses "can be combined, and that some of them must be kept separate... They can be programmed at widely varying levels of intensity." In releasing the report, Sowers told the board that Scott is weighing the possibilities suggested and will have a recommendation soon. "There are several possibilities," Sowers said. "We could go to the 1971 General Assembly and ask for the money; we are presently investigating the possibility of federal funds and programs, although we would prefer this to be strictly a North Carolina project; or we could seek private funds for the entire amount necessary to acquire the island; or, we could combine some of these approaches." "The acquisition of funds, after the determination is made of the proper use, will necessarily be our first major objective, and this will not be a simple matter," Sowers added. The board received reports from the various divisions of the C&D department during the meeting Friday. The Commerce and Industry Division reported that investments in new and expanded industry for the three-month period from July to September totaled $137,607,000, down by about $5 million from the third quarter last year. But the figure exceeds the first quarter of this year by some $32-million. The investments for the quarter will provide a payroll of $25,588,000 annually and jobs for 5,137 persons. Investments in new and expanded industry for the first nine months of the year totaled $385,639,000, a drop of about $97.8 million from the same period in 1969. The division report stated, "This downward trend has been taking place throughout all states during the fourth quarter of 1969 and all of this year. "We are just beginning to feel the squeeze," it stated. Later in the day, as Scott arrived to address a C&D Board banquet, he was greeted by about 60 peaceful picketers from Atlantic Christian College and other nearby schools. The group gathered outside the campus dining hall where Scott was to speak. They carried signs criticizing environmental policies of the Scott administration with such slogans as "Save Your State Before It's Too Late, Mr. Scott." Scott walked into the crowd, shaking hands and talking to the student. He addressed them briefly and told them what his administration is doing to combat pollution, then went inside to address the banquet.

Doss Found Guilty In Pearce Murder

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer "May God have mercy on your soul." With those words Friday, Judge Joshua S. James concluded the sentence of death handed 23-year-old Owen Swanson Doss in Pitt County Superior Court after an all-male jury found him guilty of first degree murder in the June 4 death of 15-year-old William Raymond Pearce near Winterville. The jury was given the case when court reopened following the noon recess Friday, and the jurors took just over three hours to reach their decision. At 4:39 p.m. after the panel had been deliberating for two hours and 38 minutes, Judge James recalled the jury to inquire if they had made any progress toward reaching a verdict. The foremen responded, "Yes sir," and indicated they would like to resume deliberation before recessing for the evening meal. At 5:07 p.m., the court was notified by the jury that a decision had been reached. Upon questioning by the clerk, the jury foreman said, "We find the defendant guilty as charged." Doss was standing with his attorneys and showed no emotion when the verdict was returned. After motions by the defense to set aside the verdict and for a new trial were denied, Judge James said, "Let the defendant stand," and asked Doss if he had any statement he would like to make. "No sir, I haven't," was the reply. "Then Owen Swanson Doss, prisoner at the bar, you have been arraigned, tried and convicted of First degree murder without any recommendation of life imprisonment by a jury duly chosen and sworn and empaneled. "The law of North Carolina provides that the punishment for your crime is death. "Therefore in compliance with the law, the judgment of this court is that you be taken hence by Ralph Tyson, High Sheriff of Pitt County, North Carolina, and by him delivered into the custody of the warden of the State Prison of North Carolina in the City of Raleigh, to be by the said warden safely detained until Friday the eighth day of January 1971." Following a pause, Judge James continued, "The said warden of the State Prison of North Carolina should . . . between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. convey you to that place prepared for your execution in said prison. "And there upon . . . in the manner provided by law, cause you to inhale lethal gas in sufficient quantity to cause your death . . . "May God have mercy on your soul." As the jurist delivered the sentence, his voice wavered at times. It was the first time the judge had sentenced a man to die. The last death sentence in Pitt County was handed out in 1949. Two Negroes were sentenced to die in the gas chamber for the murder of a Greenville taxi driver. Their death came 10 years later following a series of appeals. Twelve other persons, including 11 men and one woman are now waiting on Central Prison's death row. No one has been executed in the state since 1961. "The court and the state is indebted to you for your services," Judge James told the jury. And as the members of the panel began to leave the court room, Defense attorney James T. Cheatham told the court, "The defendant gives notice of appeal to Supreme Court." Paul Pearce, the victim's father was present when the jury returned with the verdict. He seen relieved. He wore a coat given him by the defendant. The star witness in the trial of the case was co-defendant Henry Edward Manning of Ayden, who testified Tuesday. Manning and Doss, from Martinsville, Va., escaped June 3 from a federal work release program in Greensboro. Manning told how he and Doss stole a car and truck on their way to Pitt County, and how they went to the Pearce trailer home west of Winterville, and how Pearce gave them a place to sleep. Manning then related how, during the afternoon of June 4, Doss forced both Manning and the Pearce boy into a wooded area; and how at gun point, Doss forced Pearce to strip off his clothes and attempted to force Manning to perform unnatural acts with the youth. Doss then had "put a knife at the boy's throat," Manning testified, and performed unnatural acts with Pearce. He testified that Doss then "stabbed the boy," adding that "the boy was bloody all over."

Narcotics Agents Hit Large Drug Shipment

By STANLEY M. BROWN MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Narcotics agents intercepted one of the largest drug shipments in history Saturday, seizing between $21 and $23 million in heroin smuggled in from South America in Christmas wrappings. Agents would not say how they knew the shipment was enroute, nor would they say how the shipment got from the airport to Miami Beach's Collins Avenue, the famed hotel row, where the suspects were arrested while transferring the packages of heroin into a car. Agents said the heroin was in the country about 10 to 12 hours before it was seized, but that no time was it beyond the reach of agents. The four persons charged with conspiracy to smuggle narcotics into the country were identified as Alberto Jan Van Caester, 38, of Salta, Argentina; Carlos Alberto Rojas Colombo of Rosario, Argentina; Hibalito Navarro, 39, of the Bronx, N.Y., and Argentina, and Irene Gonzalez, 34, of Hialeah, Fla. They were held in the Dade County Jail under temporary bonds of $1 million each and were to appear Monday before U.S. Commissioner Edward Swan for a preliminary hearing. The heroin arrived in what appeared to be four brown leather mail pouches. Inside each were scores of individual Christmas paper and containing a plastic bag with two kilos each of uncut heroin. Thomas Hurney, deputy regional director of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Drugs in Miami, said one kilo of heroin ends up worth about a quarter of a million dollars when cut for street sales.

Greenville police are continuing their investigation into an early Saturday morning incident when a man allegedly forced his way into a sorority house on 11th Street, then fled when girls in the house began to scream. Police said the incident was reported about 5:15 a.m. Chief T. E. Gladson reported that a man allegedly climbed a tree to gain access to a one-story section of Alpha Xi Delta house at 508 East 11th St. The man then removed a screen from a bathroom window and entered the house. One girl awoke and saw the man standing in her bedroom. She spoke and the man ran to the window and left.

Cyclist Is Injured An 18-year old boy, Rodney Ewin Gray of 502 Westchester Drive, was injured here Saturday when the motorcycle he was operating crossed over an automobile at the intersection of US 264 and Kirkland Drive. Charged with failing to see her movement could be made in safety in connection with the 3:34 p.m. mishap was Kathryn Paine McConnell, 220 York Road. Investigators, who said Gray was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries, estimated damages to his vehicle at $500, while setting damages for the McConnell car at $200.

Gambling Raid Made

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Attorney General John N. Mitchell announced Saturday that federal agents had staged the largest coordinated raid on organized gambling to date, striking simultaneously at sports betting operations in 26 cities. A Justice Department spokesman said all kinds of sports were involved, although more than half the raids involved professional football. At least 27 persons were arrested. Single handguns were seized in Albuquerque, N.M.; Buffalo, N.Y., and Oklahoma City, Okla. The spokesman said it was impossible as yet to determine the total bets handled by operations. But Mitchell said "convictions of the people who were targets of today's raid would severely damage the financial apparatus which—bankrolls—organized crime." He said the key to the raid was the serving of 160 search warrants across the nation, including five on executives of Cesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Nev. Two of the Palace's executives were arrested on a charge of using interstate facilities (telephones) in aid of racketeering. Agents also hit three betting houses in Las Vegas and charged their operators with acting as illegal underwriters for the nation's top bookmakers.

Stable Fire

An afternoon fire at Glenhaven Riding Academy two miles south of Greenville caused heavy damages to the upstairs and center portions of the stables Friday. The 2:30 p.m. fire apparently started from a gas-powered chain saw in the upstairs of the stables, according to Michael Worthington, Pitt County Fire Marshal. An employee at the academy had previously been cutting with the saw, Worthington said. The two outside sections of the stables were saved, while the center portion was almost completely destroyed. Worthington said of the few horses in stalls at the time of the fire erupted. A fire at the Glenhaven Academy in late April of this year destroyed a building which housed saddles and other equipment and caused an estimated $4,000 in damages.

Boy Wants Santa Claus To Bring Him A Toy Car

RALEIGH (AP) — The woman, almost shabbily dressed, hugged the little boy, 2-year-old Walter Strickland, and kissed him briefly. Then she walked to the door of Danny Play School. That was the morning of Oct. 7. The woman never came back. Thirty minutes after her departure, a taxi arrived at the play school with a small suitcase of clothes, a shopping bag of toys and a note. Among the clothes was a tee-shirt stenciled, grandma loves you." A scrawled message in the note said, "I have a tumor on the brain; the doctors have gave me a short time to live. Find Walter a good home." For two months Raleigh detectives have quietly run down possible clues and leads. But the woman has not been found. Officials at the play school said the woman told them she was starting to work that day as a nurse at a Raleigh hospital. She said in the note, "I am a widow. I have just taken over Walter Strickland. His mother threw him away, brought him to my house. . . . The dark complexioned with dark hair trailing to her waist. Mrs. Gladys Lanier at Pam's Play School said the woman's "actions were more or less routine. He started to cry but she said 'now Walter, go with the nice lady and be a good boy.' And then she turned away rather abruptly. I had the feeling that she wanted to hold him tight." "We're interested in helping this little boy," said Det. Sgt. R. K. Carroll. "If we can't find parents or relatives who want him, we'd like to have information so a good home can be found for him through adoption." Meantime, the brown-haired youngster spends his days in a semi-rural foster home. He wants Santa Claus to bring him a toy car.

Shrinking Muscles And Malnutrition Hit POW

By CARL C. CRAFT Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The only doctor in the recent U.S. rescue raid on a war-prisoner camp near Hanoi says the typical American POW has severe malnutrition, shrinking arm and leg muscles, and bruise-prone skin. Estimates based on information from "various intelligence sources" and World War II POW-camp experiences, Lt. Col. Joseph R. Cataldo adds, are that 25 of 100 prisoners "might have active tuberculosis, about 50 of that 100 would certainly have intestinal parasites." "All have lost a tremendous amount of weight, from 20 to 30 per cent of it; some are probably extremely ill and are not getting proper medical care," he told reporters Friday after he briefed the Army surgeon general's staff about medical aspects of last month's operation. "I think it was a well-planned mission," he said, and, while it failed to find American prisoners, "tactically, it was a success." He recommended more be conducted, and said he was willing to "go tonight on the same mission knowing there would be" greater risk. He said a typical POW "will be probably somewhat disoriented because some of them had had absolutely no physical contact whatsoever in five years —not even touching another human hand, just sitting around . . . in a cell." Elsewhere Friday there were these developments on the POW matter: —The State Department said a list of 203 U.S. servicemen missing or being held captive contains "significant and new information." The Hanoi government complied it at the request of Sweden's Prime Minister Olaf Palme, U.S. officials said they were told by the Swedish government. —American officials handling the prisoner matter said about one-fourth of those on the list were in North Vietnamese prisoner-of-war camps —and families previously received letters from them. Some three-quarters of those listed were described by Hanoi as "never captured," although the U.S. had these men recorded as missing. —On Capitol Hill, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird and Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., clashed over whether the Son Tay raid might have been conducted for reasons other than to free prisoners. Laird told Fulbright: "That charge is completely without foundation of fact." The secretary added that intelligence information indicated the camp was used for American prisoners. Fulbright insisted he was making no charges, just raising questions stemming from published accounts of the raid. At a news conference, Cataldo said he feels there was no security leak spoiling the surprise raid, despite the fact the Americans were gone from the Son Tay camp. He said it would seem, "if Hanoi knew we were coming, they would have been prepared to either kill us all—which would not have been very hard."

Cambodia Hit Again By North Viet Troops

By KATE WEBB PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Three thousand North Vietnamese troops believed to have already destroyed a 600-man Cambodian "lost battalion" struck anew Saturday with an attack on a key highway town on the northern approaches of Phnom Penh. Hand-to-hand combat raged for 11 hours. Other Communist forces in the same area smashed a Cambodian Navy convoy on the Mekong River, sinking four vessels and killing 11 men in a heavy rocket barrage launched from both sides of the waterway. Seventy-six men were wounded. Casualties on both sides in the Communist offensive in an arc 35-45 miles northeast of Phnom Penh were rising steadily, and there was increasing evidence that the "lost battalion" had been all but annihilated in a battle last Sunday at Peam Chikang. Three survivors of the fighting at Peam Chikang, 40 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, said the North Vietnamese shot and killed many Cambodians, including wounded men, who surrendered. The survivors said officers were executed on the spot. Many simply defected. Five bodies, apparent victims of the slaughter, surface in the Mekong River near Phnom Penh Saturday. The new Communist assault Saturday was aimed at the town of Prey Totong on Highway 7 about 35 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. The town's defenders have been supplied by airdrop since early November when North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units applied a stranglehold on the road. Field reports said the attack began at 1 a.m. and raged until noon Saturday. Cambodian commanders called in air strikes and helicopter gunships to hold off the attackers. Cambodian losses at Prey Totong were placed at four dead and 50 wounded. Reports reaching Phnom Penh said at least 10 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were slain. Saigon communique reported a continuing lull Saturday in Vietnam fighting. Only two Communist shelling attacks were reported overnight, smallest number in six years. Communist gunners killed one American and wounded another in a skirmish with American troops in the northern part of South Vietnam. Seven U.S. soldiers were wounded in an ambush on the Central Highlands.

At My Lai Killing Civilians Was Not A Mandate

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP)—American soldiers in the Viet Cong-infested My Lai area had orders to check out all Vietnamese, but killing unresisting civilians was not among the mandates, says one of Lt. William Calley's fellow officers.

Capt. George C. White, the first unit commander to testify at Calley's court-martial, pictured Pinkville as a no-man's land where death could come at any time from snipers, mines, and from an enemy who burrowed deep into fortified tunnels.

Pinkville was the GI's name for the area—pink shaded on maps—that included My Lai, the village where Calley is accused of murdering 102 civilians. The trial is in recess until Monday, the start of its fifth week.
White, testifying Friday, said he held the same position—platoon leader—in A Company of Task Force Barker as Calley held in C Company. He said his company was cut to 50 men from a normal strength of 172 in the weeks preceding the March 16, 1968, My Lai raid.

A major worry to officers and men, he said, "was that every time we went south of the river we did not stop the people, question them, ask for their identity cards."

"We didn't even check to see if they were military age males, with the result that when contact was made our back door was closed by sniper fire. We didn't say these people did it, but these people had something to do with it."

The orders were changed, and on the day Calley's platoon swept through My Lai, White's troops were south of the village in blocking positions evacuating any civilians they found.

"Was there any provision to evacuate large groups of civilians?"
"No, sir, not at all."
Capt. Aubrey Daniel, the prosecutor, then asked: "No order was given to kill large numbers of civilians, was there?"

"No," White replied.
He testified that at one point an obviously unarmed man and a boy approached A Company's position. White said his men didn't fire.

"Had you fired, would that have been a contradiction of the orders you had?" Daniel asked.
"In my opinion, yes," White retorted. He explained that "if anyone came to our position and he didn't have a weapon, there was no sense in firing."

The last two witnesses Friday were a former helicopter door gunner and his team leader, who flew support for Calley's troops over My Lai.

How Much Should Poor Pay Is A Key Issue

By ROBERT A. HUNT, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is nearing a crucial vote on conflicting versions of a food-stamp bill. A key issue is how much the poor should be required to pay for the cash-substitute stamps.

The bill backed by the Nixon administration would require that each person receiving food stamps pay at least 50 cents a month. The substitute version, sponsored by Reps. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., and Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., would permit free stamps to households of four with monthly income of $30 or less.

"The administration has advised us the substitute is wholly unacceptable," says Reps. W.R. Poage, D-Tex., and Page Belcher, R-Okla., senior members of the Agriculture Committee, which endorsed the administration proposal.

Foley and Quie claim the committee version "would seriously cripple the present program." Their conflicting views are outlined in "Dear Colleague" letters circulated among House members as the leadership scheduled the bill for action Monday or Tuesday.

The Senate, almost 15 months ago, passed its own food-stamp bill, which goes beyond either of the two proposals to be considered in the House.

While the congressional letter-writing campaign goes on, church groups and anti-hunger organizations have been busy buttonholing members, seeking support for the Foley-Quie package, which will be offered as a complete substitute for the bill approved by Poage's committee.

About 8.8 million persons are enrolled in food-stamp programs, more than double a year ago, according to Agriculture Department officials. The program, started in 1964, allows eligible persons to exchange money they normally spend for food on an allotment of higher-value coupons.

Under the committee version, no specific spending ceilings would be set, leaving this up to annual congressional appropriations. The Foley-Quie package would authorize $2 billion this year, $2.5 billion in fiscal 1972 and $3 billion the third year. The Senate bill sets the ceilings at $2 billion this year and $2.5 billion the next year. Opponents contend, however, that the Senate measure could lead to spending of up to $7 billion and Foley-Quie to about $4.5 billion. The current year's appropriation for food stamps is $1.42 billion.

Under the cost-sharing provision, sponsored by Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., participating states would be required to pay 2.5 per cent of the bonus value of the coupons the first year, ranging up to 10 per cent in the fourth year. The federal government now pays the entire bonus value, which represents the difference between the total value and the amount paid by eligible recipients.

Another difference comes in the question of coupon allotments—the amount and value of food stamps.

The Foley-Quie proposal would authorize 35 cents per person per meal in this fiscal year and the equivalent value after that, to reflect changes in the consumer price index. This could be cut, but not below 30 cents, if appropriations or authorizations were too low.

The committee-approved bill would let the secretary of Agriculture determine the value, and there have been indications it would be about 29 cents.

Both pending House versions authorize the secretary to set national eligibility standards. Foley-Quie would cover families of four with $4,000 a year or less income. There is no minimum participation level in the committee version.

The Foley-Quie package would authorize the secretary to establish food-stamp programs in any state that fails to start its own within 300 days. Critics claim this is an infringement on state's rights.

Schaal Named To Head Pitt March of Dimes

Junius H. Rose, Chairman of the Pitt County Chapter of the National Health Foundation, has announced the appointment of Captain Gary Schaal, presently Assistant Professor of Aerospace Studies at East Carolina University and a Captain in the U. S. Air Force, as Pitt County Chairman of the 1971 March of Dimes campaign.

He has had six years experience in the Air Force and has been stationed in South Carolina, Texas, Thailand, and Viet Nam at various times. He and two members of Detachment 600 of the AFROTC recently attended the southern meeting of the National Health Foundation held in Atlanta. At that meeting, they appeared on the program and told of the work of Detachment 600 and told also of the plans for the coming campaign in January, 1971. Last year the ROTC Marchathon raised $3,729.38 for the March of Dimes of a total $6,763.45 collected. They were commended highly at the meeting for their work.

Captain Schaal will soon announce the names of those throughout Pitt County who will work with him in this program.

At the present time, the Pitt County Chapter is spending money for the treatment of a child who was born with a birth defect, and is also sending money to help carry out the work of the two Birth Defect Centers in North Carolina, one at Chapel Hill and the other at Morganton.

UN Nominee Is A Texan

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's nominee to be ambassador to the United Nations is a Texas Republican in love with elective politics but hungry for service in the international arena.

"This is a new frontier," Rep. George Bush said Friday of his assignment. "The enthralling thing about it is the new friends to meet and problems to solve."

Chatting with newsmen in his congressional office over coffee and Christmas cookies, Bush, 46, said, "This is what I wanted to do."

Bush said the President first discussed the appointment with him Wednesday—48 hours before he was appointed to succeed career diplomat Charles W. Yost, highest-ranking Democrat in the Nixon administration.

mer Rep. Lloyd Bentsen in the Texas Senate race Nov. 3 and had been suggested as a likely appointee to other administration posts or as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

But, in talking with newsmen, he left no doubt he is excited about prospects of the U.N. ambassadorship.

"It's a broad thing, and I'm sure a lot of it is administrative, like running a business."

It was while running his own business—as president of the Zapata Off-Shore Co. of Midland, Tex., from 1964 to 1966—that Bush toured much of the globe selling his firm's oil well-drilling services.

Tax Vote Faces 2 Questions

Pitt County voters have been called on a second time by their County Commissioners to express at the ballot box their feeling toward an additional one cent sales tax levy, revenue from which would be used to support local government.

It was just a year ago last month that Pitt voters, along with those of the other counties of the state, went to the polls to express themselves on this question. In the case of Pitt, as with 73 other counties, voters rejected the proposal. The additional one cent sales tax was imposed in 26 counties as a result of favorable votes by local citizens.

These 26 counties now share, under a formula approved by the legislature, revenues produced by the additional one cent sales tax. Some counties get back more than they collect from the tax, others less. Even so, local governments in all the 26 counties are pleased to have the additional revenues, and their citizens seem to share the pleasant feeling of additional revenues from this new source.

There are at least two questions that face Pitt and other counties where referenda will be held again early next year on the question of the additional one-cent sales tax.

First, and most important, is the question of whether a new local tax that was rejected a little more than year ago can be passed now? Has there been that much change in public sentiment toward the additional local sales tax?

In Pitt County, the sales tax proposal was defeated by slightly more than 600 votes as almost 7,000 voters went to the polls. While it was the county-wide total that counted, there may also be some significance in the fact that the proposal was rejected by voters in 20 of the county's 26 precincts. The measure was approved only in three small rural precincts, in the Bethel and Fountain precincts, and in one of Greenville's nine precincts.

Secondly, there is the question of timing of the Pitt County vote now set for late February. The legislature will be in session, and there has been considerable talk about the possibility of making the additional one-cent sales tax state-wide to produce additional revenues for local governments.

It is unlikely that the legislature will have acted on this question by late February. It will mean Pitt voters will go to the polls to decide a local tax question without knowing for sure whether the legislature will enact a state-wide levy. Such a situation could not help but influence the decision of a considerable number of voters one way or the other.

There is no question about the need for additional sources of revenue for local governments here and elsewhere in North Carolina. The real question is whether individual voters across the state are willing to foot the bill for his additional revenue through additional direct taxes on themselves.

Tree-Growing Is Profitable

By MARVIN EURY
(Concord Tribune)

CONCORD—Looking for a profitable and challenging hobby? Why not grow Christmas trees?

Western North Carolina is becoming a new capital for Christmas trees and this year will cut even more deeply into imports of Canadian trees.

This year alone more than a million trees will be used by families in North Carolina. Ninety-nine per cent of these trees will be tossed out on December 26, meaning new business for tree-growers in 1971.

Until recently most of North Carolina's Christmas trees were imported from northern sources, principally Canada.

Now in its infancy, the Christmas tree Growers Association in North Carolina is seeking to broaden markets and improve production methods.

There also is a Christmas tree expert employed by the N.C. State University Extension Service.

County foresters are pushing the growing of white pines as Christmas trees.

N. C. Production Rises

According to the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development, production of Fraser fir, white pine, Scotch pine, red cedar, Arizona cypress, white spruce, Colorado blue spruce, red spruce, Norway spruce and Douglas fir trees for the state's Christmas tree industry has flourished in the past decade.

The state, according to the C&D department, has favorable soil, topography, water and elevation conditions.

Ed Setzer, who was a county forester in the Concord area in the late 60s, was instrumental in getting farmers to plant white pine seedlings on unused land. The white pines pay a higher rate in a short period of time, and grow to maturity in six to eight years.

White pine seedlings cost less than $10 a thousand and the average cost of a mature tree runs around $2.50—with the buyer doing the cutting.

Once the seedlings are in the ground there is hardly any work to the Christmas tree business.

Annual Tree Trimming
The trees must be pruned

once a year. This is a simple matter since the white pines grow a whirl of limbs a year and has a leader in the center shooting toward the sky. Each year the leader must be trimmed to within 12 inches of the last row of limbs so there will be no gaps in the finished tree.

This pruning is usually done between June 15 and July 1.

The white pine is a hardy seedling. There generally is little need for fertilizing unless the soil is coarse, in which case any balanced fertilizer will suffice.

It takes only a minimum amount of land to become a tree farmer.

Here's how one dairy farmer in Midland started:

He set aside eight blocks of land and planted one block each successive year until all were planted. When the trees in the first block were harvested, it was a simple matter to move over a few inches and plant another tree.

Roots of the cut trees soon die and are absorbed into the earth.

Fresher, Safer Trees

There are many advantages to buying a North Carolina tree, in addition to the satisfaction of using a state-grown product.

Canadian trees must be cut in September or October to be prepared for shipping. Carolina-grown trees needn't be cut until several weeks before Christmas and therefore retain their color and needles longer.

By being cut later, the trees retain more of their natural moisture and are less of a fire hazard than the drier limbs of the imports.

Here are tips from the forestry people about buying a tree.

Shop early and get a tree with a uniform triangular taper; check to see that the tree is well filled out and free of weak, broken or unduly long branches and crooks in the stem.

Shake or bounce the tree on the ground lightly to see that the needles are firmly attached; once home, saw off the butt end of the tree about one inch above the original cut so it can absorb water. To prevent the tree from drying out and becoming a fire hazard, stand it in a cool place away from radiators, fire places and other heat sources.

Too Fast With Emergency Aid

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The WASHINGTON — The panicly haste with which the Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) Department began last September to shovel out a $75 million emergency fund to help desegregation of Southern schools has now resulted in the suspension of at least 15 grants—and that may be the start.

Voted by Congress in August as the first emergency installment of President Nixon's $1.5 billion fund to help the South desegregate, the $75 million was disbursed on a "36-hour turn-around" basis: that is, no more than 36 hours between a bona fide application coming in and money going out.

This unseemly haste made it impossible for HEW to obey stringent regulations written into the law to prevent Federal dollars from going to school districts still discriminating against blacks.

Moreover, so naive were HEW officials that they gave Republican candidates for Congress first crack at announcing local grants from the fund on the assumption it would be a political boost. In fact, however, HEW quickly learned the Republicans wanted no part of Federally encouraged desegregation.

The first recipient of a grant, for $1.3 million, was the public school system in Jackson, Miss. As only one of more than 1,300 districts eligible for a bite out of the $75 million, the disproportionate size of that first grant alienated other school districts.

The Jackson grant was ordered approved in a telegram from HEW in Washington to the Atlanta regional office on Aug. 27, four days before the application had even been received at the Atlanta office. That is just one sign of the panic in Washington to pour out the money.

More important, a Senate education subcommittee now has evidence that Jackson was ineligible because it had approved the transfer of state-owned textbooks to private academies (mushrooming throughout the South and attended largely by middle-class whites).

At issue here is no Nixon administration plot to circumvent the law and reward school districts cooperating with white holdouts against desegregation. Rather, the Administration's purpose was precisely as President Nixon defined it last spring when he proposed the emergency fund: to help hard-pressed Southern school districts meet the traumatic experience of switching from 200 years of the dual, black-and-white school system.

The problem arose from HEW's self-enforcing regulations which permitted recipient school districts to judge their own eligibility for emergency funding in the interest of speed. In a confidential memorandum to HEW Secretary Elliot Richardson Nov. 19, the acting head of the Office of Education, T. H. Bell, wrote that only a handful of applications had been rejected but that "many more would have been" ineligible had the government been doing the judging.

That memorandum admitted that the Office of Education was "particularly concerned" by allegations of "subtle forms of discrimination" in school districts which had given "assurances" to HEW of living wholly within the law.

As a result, both HEW and the Justice Department have now quietly dispatched 100 civil rights agents to the South to investigate HEW's suspicions of violations and far graver charges by six civil rights organizations last month that the program was (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

Yesterday we reminded ourselves that drug addiction is probably the most affliction to have struck our country in the whole of its history. We observed that drug addiction is not something on which we can go easy. We must throw our national life, our church life, our educational life into this contest.

Beginning with drugs said to be of the milder sort and going to heroin, might it not be possible to use certain other and nonaddictive drugs to destroy the tortures of an addict, cure him and save our country from an unspeakable decline?

Only scientists can answer this question. The modern scientist stands unexcelled in his technique and knowledge. Never have men known so much of a scientific nature as have the men today who spend their lives in laboratories. They are not the only ones fighting this awful menace, but they have a contribution (scientific) to make to this situation which no one else can make.

Just as addiction is a national menace, so the cure of addiction would be one of the greatest achievements in the whole of scientific discovery. We all know that some progress has been made in the line of cure. We must have absolute cure. Many of us have seen typhoid fever and polio stricken off the list of plagues. Our forebears witnessed the same as regards smallpox.

We can handle this drug addiction problem as we have handled plagues of all sorts in the past.

This very hour is the time to get busy.

Sunday Morning Notes

The Utilities Commission is still reeling from the freak short which burned down power lines along Greenville Boulevard and Memorial Drive last month.

The high power lines started several brush fires, including one across the highway from Pitt Plaza.

Last weekend another fire started in the same woods area and it turned into quite a conflagration.

Utilities Director Charles Horne said at last week's utilities meeting, "I just want it known, we weren't responsible for the fire last weekend. Somebody else did that!"

Two coeds were discussing their holiday dates as they walked along a downtown sidewalk one day last week.

"I'm just dying for him to ask me to the party," one commented. "But I don't want him to know it."

"You don't?" the second coed asked in wide eyed amazement.

Ah me. Strategy is the name of the game.

Among discussions I-wish-I-had-heard-the-rest-of was this bit of conversation between two coeds: "Well, that's a heck of a way to establish mutual contact." "I don't interpret 'em, I just record 'em."

Other Editors Say Strongest Weapon

(Henderson Dispatch)

It has been said before in this column but the expression is hazarded again: And it will not be pleasing to every one. But the strongest weapon against run-away prices is a check on the merry-go-round of wage and salary increases and the habit in most sectors of hiking prices when wages mount and work hours are reduced, all at the same time.

The working man and woman, which means most of us, feels he is entitled to more income as the cost of foods, clothing, medical bills, interest on borrowed money, and what not, takes a lurch upward. There have been many instances of that the past few years, and there will be more of the same unless heroic efforts are put forth by government to check the trend.

We do not wish to be misunderstood. Along with every one else, we welcome pay increases when and if received. So long as kept within reason these moves contribute to the economy. But once out of hand they can do more harm than good to employer and employe alike. The country is experiencing some of that now, and has been for several years.

President Nixon is said to be preparing a new and all-out drive against inflation. Previous efforts have failed to click. Whether new programs will be successful will depend upon their character and the willingness of both government and individuals, along with industry, to act in good faith. Neither has done much of that thus far and the result is what we are experiencing in the national economy. It isn't pleasant. Nor will the medicine be which the doctor prescribes from here on.

If the nation is to pull out of its current troubles, instead of slipping more deeply into them, near drastic steps will be necessary. They may bite for the time but in the long run could bring the recovery every one is fervently hoping for.

The News: With Jaundiced Eye

By ELMER ROESSNER
Here are commentaries, some nasty, on current news:

A corporation takes over the postal service next spring and is authorized to borrow up to $10 billion to finance improvements. James W. Hargrove, Assistant Postmaster General, told bankers that the service would issue bonds that would pay something between government rates and prime utility rates. Currently this would be above 7 per cent.

When the $10 billion total is borrowed, the annual interest cost might therefore be $700 million a year.

Unless new equipment is more efficient and abolishes a vast number of jobs, postal rates will have to be increased to pay interest plus amortization. Otherwise, postage on a first class letter, expected to go to 10 cents when the corporation takes over, may go to 25 cents by 1981.

Uncle Sam Subsidizes The Scene

It has not been determined whether the new postal corporation will continue to subsidize book publishing and record companies as it does now with its rates of 12 cents for the first pound and 6 cents for each additional pound.

The stated reason was to spread learning and culture. Thus the government has been subsidizing the spread of rock and beat music, including records promoting the use of pot and stronger drugs.

$5 Food Stamps
The Department of Agriculture has announced it will issue $5 food stamp coupons. This is a needed convenience. A reader spotted a woman in a supermarket the other day who had to count out 40 $2 stamps to pay her tape total. She was in a hurry too. She explained she had just got off work and had to hurry home to take care of the children so her husband could get to his job.

Lenders Get Hurt

That $82 million drop in consumer credit in October, due largely to the General Motors strike, was a painful blow to lenders. The interest charge collected on consumer credit averages around 18 per cent a year, some it means lenders are out $14.76 million dollars over the year.

Note that even before the decline was announced, banks had shaved rates on consumer loans.

Exotic Gift Ideas

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — My favorite gourmet cookware shop has issued a new catalogue filled with such exotic Christmas gift possibilities as bird's nest fryers and safety bagel holders.

Mother — who has cooked 35 years without owning a set of measuring cups — just wouldn't understand.

It offers, for example, "the only authentic implement for preparation of couscous," which is said to be "so popular in articulate dining circles recently."

In case you do not know how to make the North African dish, a recipe is included with the utensil.

The bird's nest fryer is really two wire baskets, one smaller than the other, to be used to deep fry a "nest" of such things as potato slices, bread or cake. They can be served filled with meat, vegetables or pudding.

There are these other appealing items to put under the tree:

—Apple and pear divider, which looks like a small spoke wheel and cuts the fruit into 14 equal slices.

—Tea bag and lemon slice squeezers, for the last drop.

—An egg piercer, a little round item that punches a hole to prevent boiling eggs from cracking.

—Cherry pitter, which looks somewhat like a nut and bolt.

—Several types of egg separators. One is a small bowl with a plastic device in the center that catches the yolk and lets the white flow through.

—Folding omelette pan, hinged at the middle to fold in half and said to make the perfect omelette.

Besides the usual collection of French fish poachers and batter chips, there is a ravioli pin, butter curler, tea infuser, double melon baller, egg cutter, bacon crisper, endless types of fruit peelers and corers and plain old-fashioned quart milk bottles at $3 each.

For corn lovers there are two gadgets. One, called a corn slitter and scraper, is indescribable. The other, a "kernel kutter," is round with handles on each side and is supposed to slide down an ear of corn.

There's also a bean stringer and slicer, for both string and sliced beans in one easy action.

And there's a pan drainer to do what other generations thought lids were for.

Finally, for stocking stuffers, the catalogue offers a strawberry huller — a small clamp-like thing which works very much as two fingers and has to be worked by two fingers.

It is said to be ideal, too, for chicken feather pulling.

JOURNALISM IS A PROFESSION

Accuracy in reporting with as little bias as is humanly possible, a presentation of the facts and the strict limiting of editorializing to the editorial page: These are things readers expect of a competent journalist.

This is an age of uncertainty and disillusionment. Should people lose confidence in the press, as Barry Bingham, editor and publisher of the Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times recently said, a dangerous situation may result.

"Some people call it a credibility gap," he said. "I think of it more as an infection that is spreading. It can strike at the very roots of newspaper survival if it continues to advance."

As criticism of the news media increases, people easily could lose faith not only in newspapers but also in radio and television newsmen. Insecure, they would have only rumors to provide "news". In such a state, no citizenry is capable of making responsible decisions on either a local or national level.

Journalism is as much a profession as medicine, the law or the ministry. Of its practitioners it demands a relentless honesty; a submersion of personal opinion. Those who claim to practice the profession must be responsible. On their shoulders may rest not only the stability of an age but the fate of a nation. —Lexington (Ky.) Leader

'MALE MYSTIQUE': THERE IS NO SUCH THING

Four men in Los Angeles are promoting a men's liberation movement to counterbalance Women's Lib, which they think has gone too far, and to preserve and protect such once-sacred masculine rights as men-only bars, pool halls, steam-baths, fraternal organizations and poker games, and the right "to shake cigar ashes on our own rugs which we paid for."

We think Men's Lib, Inc., might be a useful corrective to the extremes of Women's Lib but we caution the men against going too far themselves. The men say, they are thinking of writing a book, patterned after Betty Feidan's popular "The Feminine Mystique." They say they're thinking of the title, "The Male Mystique."

Our advice is to go ahead and write the book if they think they have anything to say but get a better title, for heaven's sake. "The Male Mystique" is unbelievable because it does not exist. The only mystique in the male is why he thinks he can ever hope to understand women. —Anderson (S.C.) Independent

"I ENJOY BEING A..."

If women untie their apron strings and leave their kitchens and nurseries, have they really accomplished anything? What advantages will they have as the "new woman," which the feminists proclaim as the "liberated woman"?

They will receive the same pay as their male co-workers...they will be free of the total responsibility of caring for their homes...they will be free to trade their feminine responsibilities such as caring for children for the every day pressures of the career world...and they will be rid of the term "natural nesters."

But on the other hand women will have to go "Dutch" on dates, light their own cigarettes, open their own doors, seat themselves and not be accorded the feminine respect which men have given to them for generations...And women may never be able to sing the tune "I Enjoy Being A Girl" ever again. —Wilmington (N.C.) Star

HIGH PAY IN JAIL

A university student in Wisconsin arrested for hitchhiking was given the choice of paying a $13 fine or spending an hour in jail. As he had only 15 cents in his pocket, he elected to serve the hour in jail. But even if he had the money to pay the fine, he still probably would have chosen to go to jail at $13 an hour.

That, after all, is pretty good pay for serving time in jail. There was a time in the not too distant past when defendants in minor cases who decided to go to jail in lieu of paying their fines were credited with something like $2 for each day, not hour mind you, that they spent in jail.

That just goes to show you how inflation has hit this aspect of modern life, as it has all others. —Dallas (Tex.) Times Herald

CHEERS!

A British newspaper has disclosed that Clare Toynbee — granddaughter of historian Arnold Toynbee, known far and wide for his outspoken, controversial beliefs — is working as a stripper in a London club.

Miss Toynbee, a graduate of Oxford and niece of author Phillip Toynbee, displayed the family's philosophical bent when the paper found her out. "Oh, well," she chirped, "I suppose I couldn't keep it under cover forever."

That's for sure. —Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution

A Conservative View Senate Vote Marks A Small Step For Mankind

By J. J. KILPATRICK
It is not often, sad to say, that mankind wins a round in the unending struggle to preserve a decent quality of life. Ordinarily, in the holy name of progress, we advance headlong to the rear. But the Senate's action last week in halting further development of a U. S. supersonic transport plane is a victory that warms the heart.

A number of my fellow conservatives, notably James Burnham of National Review, will not agree with that appraisal. Some of the ablest members of the Senate, among Jackson of Washington and Goldwater of Arizona, were bitterly disappointed by the 52-41 vote. Mr. Nixon terms the SST's defeat a "devastating mistake."

With deference, and with regret for the economic hardship the Senate's decision will cause in certain areas, it has to be said that the Senate acted wisely. One further step should be taken, in the form of legislation barring all foreign-built SSTs from the use of American airports. When that is done, this whole unfortunate misadventure will collapse.

The arguments in favor of continuing the project were persuasive, but they were never convincing. It was said that the taxpayers eventually would get their money back in royalties upon the sale of 300 to 500 SSTs over the next 30 years. It was urged that American prestige was at stake. Failure to proceed, we were told, would mean a surrender of aircraft leadership (not to mention the balance of payments) to Russia, France, and Great Britain.

On close examination, none of these arguments held up. There never was solid evidence that the airlines themselves were in any mad rush to buy the SST. It always was a doubtful proposition that Western carriers would invest in Soviet-built aircraft, and thus become dependent for spare parts upon Communist whim. Important elements of public opinion in both France and Great Britain have begun to demand a cessation of the Concorde development.

Yet these were not the issues on which the battle turned. In the end, the dominant consideration—the factor that caused an astonishing 18 senators to reverse their own positions within a year—was the quiet question that so seldom is asked: Would this project improve the quality of our life? The answer, plainly, was no.

What was involved in the prospect of a supersonic transport plane? Noise, for one thing—the ear-shattering noise of this plane on landing and takeoff. And despite the frantic rash of denials, regulations and amendments, senators could look down the road to the economic necessity of permitting flights over land at supersonic speeds; they could see millions of Americans subjected to the annoyance and the property damage caused by recurring sonic booms. All this, so that a relatively few air travelers could gain the convenience of additional speed. It never made sense.

With the Senate's action, it may now be possible for the airline industry to concentrate upon quieting and perfecting the present generation of subsonic aircraft. Perhaps the Congress, as it studies the whole problem of transportation, may now direct its attention to more urgent needs, benefiting far more taxpayers, here on our crowded earth.

But the greater significance of the SST's demise lies in the hope this action has generated: Perhaps the quiet question will now be asked in other fields. Will the construction of a particular freeway in Memphis really improve the quality of life in Memphis?

necessary? Really necessary? Maybe, just maybe, the Senate's vote marks a turning point. For a long time now, we Americans have been running up the escalator, frantically seeking more speed, more power, more noise, more trash, more smog, more gadgets, but in terms of the quality of our life we have damned little to show for it. We don't have to go back to the horse and buggy, but surely we can get along for a while with the jumbo jet.

OLD STORY WITH A NEW TWIST!

May See Happy Ending Yet To Five-Century-Old Story

By J. PAUL WYATT
MEXICO CITY (UPI)—In 1449 poet-king Netzahualcoyotl ordered a dike built between the city-states of Atzacolco and Ixtapalapa after a particularly destructive Lake Texcoco flood.

called Ciudad Netzahualcoyotl—grew to a population of nearly 700,000, making it one of the biggest single slum areas in the world. It also became a sore spot for image-conscious Mexicans.

storms complicating the smog situation in Mexico City, something else had to be done and fast.

A "solution" now has been announced. New Mexico State Gov. Carlos Hank Gonzalez, who already had begun to attack Ciudad Netzahualcoyotl's public facility problems, said the lakebed will be lowered and refilled with fresh water.

And thereby hangs a tale that now, centuries later, may be coming to the final chapter...

The Spaniards tore down the royal dike in 1555 when the lake overflowed its banks again and it was evidence Netzahualcoyotl should have stuck to poetry and not meddled in engineering.

The lake rehabilitation problem calls for a total expenditure of nearly $170 million to be financed by Mexican public works banks.

In 1629 another flood originating with the capricious lake east of present-day Mexico City lasted two years and Mexico City's people learned to get around in gondolas instead of horse-drawn carriages.

In the dry season, the wind whipped through the barren and dried up parts of the lakebed and the treeless streets of the slum city, making it necessary for motorists to turn on their headlights during the day.

The goal: to turn the polluted puddles and marshland into a real lake again and an outstanding recreational center by 1976 and at the same time to make sure it never again poses a flood threat.

As late as 1939 President Lazaro Cardenas poured millions of pesos into the construction of flood-proof walls on the western and southern banks of Lake Texcoco.

In recent years, the lake has not been much of a flood problem. Most of it dried up and the rest was broken up into manageable smaller lakes, most of them filled with stagnant and highly-saline water.

The lakebed continued to rise, however, and the level of its water rose with it. At present, parts of Mexico City are as much as 10 feet lower than the bottom of the present lake.

A new problem presented itself when unscrupulous contractors subdivided land immediately adjacent to the lake, some of it former lakebed, and sold it without basic public services to poor peasants at cheap prices.

The slum that resulted—

Rep. Quinn Appears Out Front In Speakers' Bid; He's Working For Post

By JOHN KILGO
State Rep. Dwight Quinn of Kannapolis wants to be Speaker of the House in 1973 — and he appears to have that important race going in his favor.

Another person who has expressed interest in the job is Rep. James Ramsey of Roxboro. At the present time, however, Quinn is out front. The 53-year-old Cabarrus County legislator, who works for Cannon Mills, says he won't let up.

One veteran State House observer says: "Dwight played his cards smart. He has the votes to win."

Republican Jim Gardner, who said in an interview here two months ago that he was out of politics, is beginning to sound like he's had another change of heart. It's quite likely that Gardner and GOP State Chairman Jim Holshouser will exchange some pretty sharp blows in future months.

Quinn, who has served ten terms in the House and will be going for the 11th time in January, doesn't try to sidestep the issue. He admits that he wants to be Speaker and he likes his chances.

"We've worked real hard so far, and we'll keep working," he said. Many people around the State think that Henry Frye — the black representative from Guilford County — has his eyes on a judgeship, either on the Superior Court or Court of Appeals level. Frye said in a recent interview that "black people would feel better about their chances of getting justice, if every now and then they saw a black face on the bench."

"Back in the closing days of the last General Assembly," Quinn said, "I got very interested in the Speaker's position. I went to work on it for 1973. I've done a lot of

"a fraud upon Congress."

What they are certain to find, in the opinion of responsible HEW officials, are gross violations by school districts now getting a piece of the $75 million: the gift, lease, or sale of public school properties to private academies; discrimination against black teachers; racial isolation of black pupils in supposedly desegregated systems.

Voit Gilmore, former head of the U. S. Travel Information Agency, and a former State Senator, was defeated by 3,000 votes when he ran for Congress from the 8th District against Earl Ruth in 1968. But Gilmore is corresponding with a lot of people these days, and causing speculation that he might be interested in making the race for lieutenant governor in 1972.

Beyond this is the impact of these violations on Mr. Nixon's hopes for the full $1.5 billion emergency school fund now snarled in Congress with no chance of passage this year.

When you ask Attorney

With conservative Southerners opposed, and liberal Northerners suspicious of the way the first $75 million was mishandled, the President's excellent idea may die aborting—along with other Presidential plans, well conceived but badly executed.

Government Is The Biggest Employer Of All, And Still Grows

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.
—Thinking about a job these days? — a first one, or a new and better one, with a promising and secure future? Many people are, now that the national economy is demonstrating that upward and onward is not the only direction.

There is one big segment of the economy which chalked up a tremendous growth during the past 10-years and shows every prospect of continuing to climb into the indefinite future. It pays well, with pretty regular raises. It doesn't work its employees too hard. Fringe benefits—paid vacations, retirement, etc. — are expending. This employer is government. At all levels, federal, state and local, it employs more than 12.6 million of the 78.4-million making up the nation's civilian working force, according to the official Occupational Outlook Handbook. That's a whopping 16.1 percent of the total working force, or a ratio of one out of every six on the government payroll as an employee.

Washington, of course, is taken as the symbol of big government. But the Labor Department's figure book shows that as an employer, it is little more than a long tail on the big and hungry dog.

decade of the sixties. As for the future, the Outlook Handbook foresees government as a major provider of job opportunities. It calculates that by 1980, government at all levels will employ 16.8-million workers. That's a rise of more than 5-million from the present level.

The statistics illustrate the "security" factor in government employment. The unemployment rate for government workers currently is about 2.6 percent. For the overall labor force, it is more than 5.6 percent and rising.

On the pay side, the public worker has been getting a real break. The Wall Street Journal quotes the Tax Foundation to the effect that the average annual pay of government workers in 1969 was 9.3 percent higher than for private workers. In 1955, the two were about equal.

As wages have been going up, so have side benefits — vacations pointing toward four weeks, nationwide, more generous medical benefits and sick leave and liberalized retirement. Also, civil service protection of jobs from the turnover of politics is becoming stronger.

Its a vastly different picture from that of a few decades back. Then, the government worker was neither paid nor treated very well in other respects. At the local government level, the policy was for politicians to load the payroll with relatives and in-laws. There was little or no security in event of a local political upset.

In terms of the national economy, government has become a major competitor in the labor field and its standards have gone up with the pay. But even more important is the extent to which the government now backs the shift from an industrial to a service economy. The estimate is that by 1980, the service side of the economy will employ seven workers for every three-employed in production.

In considering employment conditions in government, the growing role of unions of public employees should not be overlooked. Bans on strikes by public employees are crumbling under labor and court pressure. The "illegal" postal strike this year brought postal workers involved nothing but a lush pay boost.

The "progressive" trend in government leaves no doubt that there will be a tremendous demand for tax collectors. It is becoming more difficult all the time to satisfy the income needs of this growing field of endeavor. It may be nothing but coincidence. But on the other hand it may be worth thinking about. The number of workers today just about equals the number drawing welfare.

Public Forum

(Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words)

To The Editor:

The Pitt County Commissioners pay little heed to the will of the majority of the voters of the County as expressed at the sales tax election only about a year ago.

Apparently they believe they know what is good for the people better than majority of the people themselves, for they have called for another election on the same question on February 23 next.

Last year this proposed thirty-three and one-third percent increase in the general sales tax was submitted in the state's one hundred counties. Seventy-five counties voted it down. Only twenty-five adopted it. Here, too, the Commissioners (as also Governor Scott) wish us to follow the will of the minority — not that of the majority.

The Commissioners — wise in many matters (notably in the hospital bond issue) — seem unable to wise-up on this general sales tax increase proposal. I propose that we, the voters of Pitt County, give them another lesson at the ballot box on February 23 by soundly defeating again the proposed general sales tax increase. Meredith N. Posey Greenville, N.C.

Garbage Disposal Becomes People's Concern

By ROBERT STRAND
BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — At a parking lot of the Berkeley Consumers Cooperative, the cans, glass and newspaper refuse of 15,000 persons—150 tons a month—are collected, processed and sold for re-use by members of a commune called Ecology Action.

Day last April. Volunteers such as young Mrs. Cathy Dinnean and her husband wrote to everybody on their block offering to take their trash to the commune.

Mrs. Dinnean now drives a truck full of refuse 15 miles a week to a recycling center. She is busy enough raising two small children and working part time as a graphic designer, but she says the time she spends on refuse is "worth it because I'm doing something for the cause."

As he stacks boxes of flattened cans in a huge brewery van, Greg Voehm, one of the commune members, expresses amazement at how the collection effort has caught on.

Weekly Worry
"Every week we are worried that this is the week we will be overrun," said Voehm, a bearded, hairy chested youth.

In addition to the 150 monthly tons collected by Ecology Action, a similar total amount is gathered by other groups at four other consumers cooperative locations in the area.

"According to classic psychological theory," said Voehm, 24, whose Antioch College major was psychology, "this can't work, but it is working."

The refuse donors are sufficiently worried about filling the environment with junk they strip metal neck rings at home from bottles, take paper off cans, bundle newspapers and take it all during the weekend to collect points for free.

Seventeen weekly tons of bottles are separated by color and smashed with heavy pounders into barrels by members of the ecology action commune.

"Glass, at $20 a ton, is our big money maker," Voehm said.

Inflation Felt
Flattened tin cans bring $20 a ton and aluminum cans $200, but Voehm said the government's anti-inflation policies have ruined the market for cardboard. "Now the price of cardboard won't even pay our gas."

The sixteen young men and women in Voehm's commune earn as much as $400 a week for their effort, but this figures out to not much more than 50 cents an hour.

On graduation, Voehm decided against going to graduate school because "that seemed a cop-out with things in this country as bad as they are, and education as bad as it is."

"Our whole society is cut off from reality," he said. "Well, you have to break in somewhere, and this is one place we are able to break in."

Working a heavy, rusty can flattener, Mrs. Janet Seim says she brings her family's trash regularly "because mounting piles of garbage are multiplying us right out of the bay area."

"Ever since I was a kid I have wondered why we don't utilize materials we already have, instead of producing new materials," said Mrs. Seim, wife of a civil engineer.

"Makes Sense"
"All this makes a lot of sense you know," said Jim Fizedale, 23, who keeps his long hair tied in a knot. "If you put your stuff in the garbage, they'll use it to fill up San Francisco Bay."

Mrs. Kay Homsey, a housewife who drives a minibus crammed to the ceiling from a small Episcopal church in San Francisco, said her congregation is impressed at how much can be accumulated by just a few families.

Voehm regrets the number of items no business concern is recycling. "People bring us coat hangers, and we say take them home and let them multiply in your closet."

He does not believe projects like his can be made to pay up the difference.

people a living wage, but hopes their success will attract governmental subsidies to make If so, the Ecology Action commune will have accomplished its objective. Said Voehm, "I don't think any of us aspire to spend the rest of our lives as garbage men."

Romania vs. The Soviet In Communique Struggle

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH
VIENNA (UPI)—A "battle of the communiques" this autumn has raised, once again, the tense issue of Romania's independence from the rest of the Soviet bloc.

Russia and her allies say that Romanian troops took full part in maneuvers by the Warsaw Pact—the Communist NATO—in East Germany in October.

Romania says it did no such thing. The Romanians maintain they sent a few officers—and that's all.

Bemused observers here can only conclude that somebody is lying. Yet the issue is important, because it could tell how far a Soviet bloc nation can go in asserting its freedom to act independently of the bloc.

Joined Some Exercises
The last Warsaw Pact maneuvers in Romania itself took place in 1962. In 1964 and 1967, Romanian troops joined Soviet and Bulgarian units in maneuvers in Bulgaria and, in 1969, the same nations held exercises in Russia.

But Warsaw Pact maneuvers are held several times yearly, and Romania has boycotted most of them. Moreover, she resisted holding any more maneuvers on her soil and even went to the extent of passing a law saying parliament had to specifically approve the presence of any foreign troops there.

The law followed the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia—in which Romania did not take part. Soviet troops left Romania in 1958 and no Romanian wants them back.

Romania has campaigned for Warsaw Pact reforms, including a rotating leadership to eliminate the permanent Soviet rule of the alliance. At the same time, she has urged an end to all military blocs and, earlier this year, submitted a resolution to this effect to disarmament conferees in Geneva.

Flood Damaged
All this appeared to be coming to an end in the spring, when disastrous floods swept Romania. The country seemed so badly damaged that only heavy Soviet aid—with strings attached—could repair it.

The aid did not arrive. A Soviet-Romanian "friendship treaty" signed in July called for the two nations to take "Every measure necessary" to strengthen the Warsaw Pact, but Romanians said privately that this was just so much wordage.

Hence, it came as a surprise when the governments and press of Russia, Czechoslovakia and East Germany talked about "Romanian troops and mobile infantry units" taking part in the October East German maneuvers. It was quickly concluded that Romania's isolation from all-bloc maneuvers had ended.

But the Romanians denied this, both officially and through their own press. Scinteia, the official Communist party newspaper, said that "representing our country, the general staff of a division is taking part."

Paper Soldiers
This means officers armed with maps and swagger sticks—not soldiers armed with weapons.

Seven Communist nations took part in the maneuvers and six sent their defense ministers. Only Romania sent its deputy defense minister, Col. Gen. Ion Gheorghe.

On the one hand, Russia and its allies appeared happy that Romania was taking part at all and played it up. On the other, Romania seemed embarrassed at its presence and played it down.

No western observers were allowed near the maneuvers. In the Soviet bloc's most recent war games, the only loser appeared to be the truth.

Chrismons Put The 'X' Into Christmas

By BETTY CASEY
At least two churches in Greenville — St. James Methodist and the Lutheran — will decorate their Christmas trees with some very special ornaments this year.

These shiny-white, symbolic decorations cannot be bought, but must be hand-made. After they are made they cannot be sold. They are called "Chrismons."

The unique objects are shaped of styrofoam after centuries - old symbols depicting the Life of Christ.

Such designs as the shape of a fish which in early days was used secretly to denote a Christian believer; and an "X", the shape of the first letter of Christ in Greek — thereby putting the "X" legitimately into Xmas.

Chrismons are made by the loving hands of dedicated church people who follow specific patterns and instructions ordered from The Lutheran Church of the Ascension in Danville, Va. (295 W. Main Street, 24541). Only pure white material brightened by silver and gold mesh, pearls, sequins, fringe, braids, and beads, is used in making the delicate, significant designs, and only tiny white lights are put on the tree to reflect their beauty. White signifies the purity of Christ.

First Tree
The idea of the Chrismon Christmas tree began in 1957 when the daughter of the Lutheran missionaries, Mrs. Harry Woodsman Spencer was faced with decorating the church tree in Danville. She wanted to play down the crass commercialism theme and give the decorations a more Christian emphasis to honor Christ's birthday.

While doing some research she found sketches of Chrismons which were copies of those symbols designed, carved, or drawn by long ago Christians. Monograms had been found in many places — some on jewelry and utensils, others on doors, on walls or in catacombs. Early Christians used them to identify themselves to one another, to designate meeting places of the church, and sometimes, to show unbelievers where they stood.

Only 12 Chrismon designs, telling the story of the Christ symbolically, were used to decorate the original Chrismon tree that first year. Since then many other designs have been added, and scores of people across the land have copied them.

Instruction booklets, three of them, giving complete detailed directions for making simple and elaborate Chrismons for both home and church use; for using them; and even for storing them, are available from the Danville church.

The kit includes a Christmas pageant designed to explain the meaning of Chrismons. The amazing story of the growing popularity of Chrismons is also told in the booklet by Mrs. Spencer. Excerpts from it follow:

"From a merely artistic viewpoint, the designs were quite beautiful. I saw that they would make lovely Christmas tree decorations. More than that though, it occurred to me that, by using these early symbols of our faith to decorate the tree we would bring out distinctly the real reason we celebrate this day of the year . . .

"While the original idea had been to use only Chrismons for the tree's decorations we decided to add a few other symbols of the early church to tell a more complete story. Because Christmas (Christ + Mass) is a celebration of His festival, we limited designs to those which referred primarily to Him. Because we wanted the tree to speak directly to anyone who happened to come into the church (which is kept open during the Christmas season) we omitted designs which pointed to denominations.

"But we find that the more we grow as Christians, the more we have to say about our Lord and God . . . We affirm these beliefs . . . by adding new designs each year. Some of the new ornaments are developed from symbols of the church in its earliest years. Others were first used by the inspired writers of the Bible . . .

Sharing Patterns
"Since the year after our first Chrismon tree, we've been sharing patterns and instructions with growing numbers of individuals and churches."

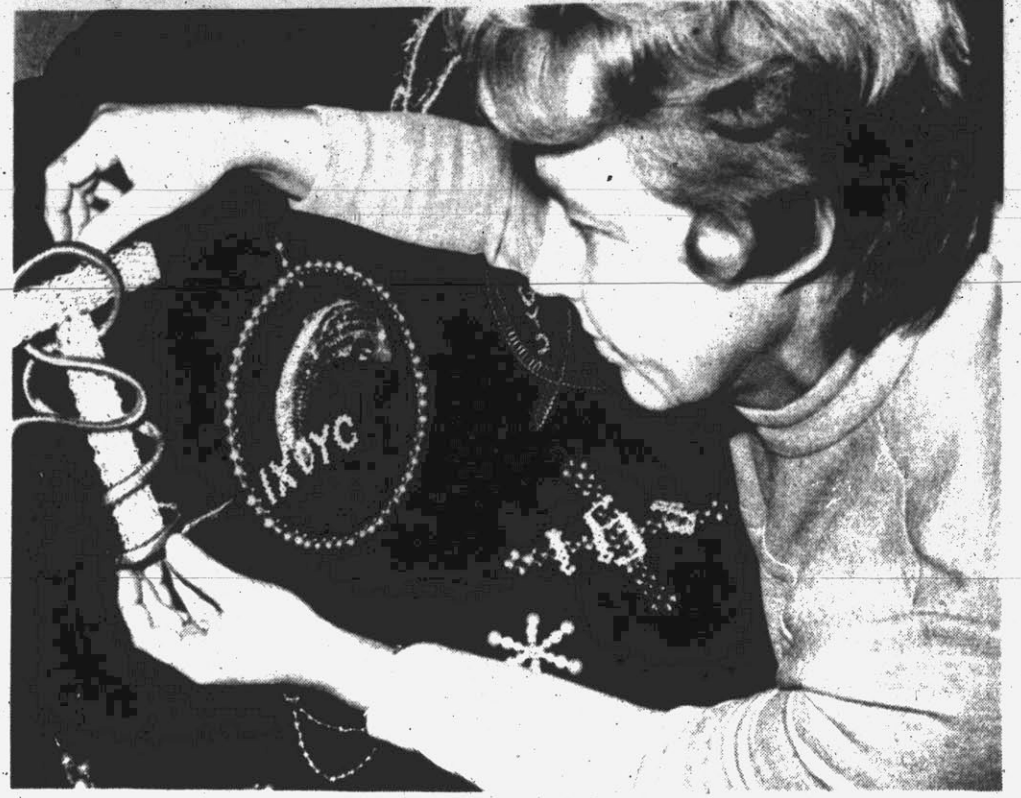

A national magazine carried the story of Chrismons after which the volume of requests for patterns drastically accelerated. This is where Mrs. Herschel Williams learned of them and with encouragement from the minister, the Rev. Christian White, sparked interest in the project which is this year a reality at St. James Methodist church. A group of church women started working on them last September. The Lutheran church has displayed Chrismons on their church tree several years.

The instructions were shared free of charge for five years. There is now a committee at the original church to handle requests and they ask a small fee to cover the cost of printing and handling. The Basic Series booklet carries this message:

If you wish to use Chrismons you make on a church or institutional tree, we'll be glad, on request, to send the church or institution full permission to use any of our material, copyrighted or otherwise, to explain the meaning of the ornaments. NOTE: Purchase of the instructions does not entitle anyone to make Chrismons for sale. We never give this permission.

In fact it is recommended that churches make available an explanatory leaflet for all who view the decorations in order for them to fully understand their significance. Explanations of the symbolic shapes in the leaflet include the following:

"XP", Chi rho, the first two letters of Christ in Greek;

also refers to the Latin, Christus Rex, Christ the King, "Ihs", the first three letters of Jesus in the Greek alphabet. The cornerstone, "Jesus Christ, the chief cornerstone" — early Christians — the initial letters of the Greek words for "Jesus Christ, God's Son, Savior," spells the Greek word for fish, "ichthys." The "lily-of-the-valley" symbolizes the humility of the man, Jesus. There are many others including six forms of crosses pointing to different aspects of Christ's

The first Chrismons explained Christ's life, nature, and the Godhead within the framework of the Liturgical Year. Four sets were made. One was kept at the church, one was sent to the Lutheran Seminary in Columbia, S.C., one was sent to President Dwight Eisenhower to be used on the White House Christmas tree; and one was sent to the Bishop of Hanover in Germany, the original Diocese of the Lutheran Mother Church.
Pastor Graham Nahouse of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in Greenville said, "Our tree will be decorated and on display for any who wish to see it on Sundays beginning Dec. 13."

"Chrismons" will be the subject of the sermon to be given by the Rev. Christian White at St. James United Methodist Church on Dec. 20. "From that time on," said the minister, "St. James will be open daily and visitors are welcome to come anytime to pray, worship, or share our Chrismon tree in their own way."

ST. JAMES METHODIST CHURCH . . . Chrismon decorations are arranged by Mrs. Herschel Williams, chairman of the Chrismon Committee for the church, and the Rev. Christian White, pastor.

Coed Has Eye On 1972 Olympics

RALEIGH — Pike, tuck, layout are second nature now to Peace College freshman Laurie deWitt.

A foreign language? Scientific terms?

Hardly. They're all words familiar to divers like Pennsylvania-native Laurie, a national diving finalist. The 18-year-old Peace business student and future secretary has her eye on the 1972 Olympics in Munich, Germany. Till then she's practicing daily and competing in national contests twice a year.

Petite golden-haired Laurie has participated in 19 nationals since 1965 and made her first finals by being in the top 12 in 1967 when she was 15. In 1969 she placed fourth in the 3-meter division and third in the 1-meter. The August, 1970, meet in Los Angeles placed her fourth in the 3-meter and eleventh in 1-meter. She competes with such well-knowns as Capt. Micky King of the Air Force and Cynthia Potter of Indiana University. And they just happen to be the women Laurie most admires. Micky, 27, broke her arm in a dive but is working out for 1972 Olympics, repeating her display in 1968. Laurie has seen Cynthia "fail a dive" in competition then go on to win the title. It's such dedication that Laurie finds admirable.

Laurie, herself, has had a few spills. Just last summer while attempting a back dive off the 10-meter platform, her knee hit her mouth knocking out a front tooth. She recalled when she was 12 she lost consciousness when her head struck the board.

But nothing can daunt her now. The Olympics is her goal.

"If I make the Olympics or not, I'll stop diving in 1972," Laurie said. "I don't want to be one of those old girls hanging on."

Excitement of winning and receiving a medal keeps her interest up. And so do the people.

Meeting People
"The most important thing is the great people you meet," she pointed out. "I've met a lot of nice boys."

"My best friends are divers," she continued, "from all over the place. I'll never regret diving because of the people I meet."

Laurie's coach since 1969 has been world professional diving champion John Candler. She's attended his diving camp in Winston-Salem for two summers.

For five years she worked out four times a week with Paul Flack of the Philadelphia Aquatic Club. Laurie's interest in diving was spurred by Dr. Ken Runquist, swim coach at Trenton (N. J.) State College under whom she worked for two years. The then 10-year-old Laurie practiced only once a week. Runquist took her to her first meet and the bug bit.

Laurie's father, a production manager for a chemical company in Bristol, Pa., actively follows her activities.

The Peace student agreed she may be her "father's son" in his family of six daughters. Husky deWitt played football for Stanford and almost entered pro baseball. His father, too, played football for Princeton.

Currently Laurie is perfecting several dives including a backward one-and-a-half somersault, two-and-a-half twist. She's done a three-and-a-half somersault in a pike position, difficult and never executed by women. "I have a better pike than tuck," she explained.

"The hardest part in diving is knowing when you've finished your twist," she said. "The main thing in springboard diving is concentration. And on the platform, it's pray . . . all the way down."

Her next competition is set for April when she'll compete in nationals and Pan American trials, perhaps to qualify for the Pan American Games in Columbia, South America, during the summer.

But now, it's practice every spare moment with business education studies and some dating sandwiched in. And when she receives her diploma from the junior college in May, 1972, she may even have a graduation vacation awaiting in Munich.

Author-Actress Says: Second Career Helps You Enjoy The One You Prefer

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Some people must pursue two careers in order to enjoy the one they prefer, says blonde, blue-eyed Joanna Barnes, author and actress, who has made the beauty and brains combination pay off.

That statement may sound like doubletalk, she admits, but it works, if you stick to your own "last." It works for her—she was a Phi Beta Kappa English major at Smith, and she has been acting and writing simultaneously since graduation.

For example, acting and writing feed each other. Writing is essentially a lonely occupation—but it can be balanced with acting which is social—you are out there with the other folks. Acting is interpretative rather than creative, so—I am never bored. When I'm beginning to feel confined at writing, I take time out for acting," she explained.

Before writing her novel, she had been a book reviewer for the Los Angeles Times for five years, a syndicated columnist with the Chicago Tribune and New York Daily News and author of a book on decorating.

The recently published novel, "The Deceivers," has been well received by critics. In addition, she is a glamorous movie star—eight films—and a television actress—17 shows. She also has conducted her own talk show.

"When I begin a writing project, I rent an office without windows or telephones. There are no distractions and I have nothing to do but write. I paw over two full drawers of notes each time I began a chapter. As the heap of paper grows smaller, I feel a sense of relief . . ."

She wrote a 22-page outline and never deviated from plot, chronology, characters, which were "cooking on a back burner" of her mind all the time, she says. Organization was part of her training. She studied story writing at Smith in classes taught by Alfred Kazan and Robert Gorham Davis.

Her work day is long and she needs a lot of rest, so social life is limited to early dinners with good men friends, attending hockey games where she has learned to whistle through her teeth and relaxing with needlepoint, sewing, textile painting, or making little miniature oil paintings for friends. She walks her miniature Yorkshire terrier, Bozo, and he travels with her.

A jolly beautiful girl, she had moments of stark terror, when she finished the book, she says, worrying that no one would buy it. She has been reassured that it is a good book even by strangers.

Her Hollywood break came by accident. Just before her final exams at Smith, she had arrived in New York to apply for a researcher's job with Time Magazine, hoping they would hold it until she returned from a short visit to the Coast. A friend suggested she might have fun saying a line or two in a movie while out there. She looked up some east coast movie representatives to inquire about it, and before the day was over she had offers of three movie contracts.

Though her novel is on a subject that bugs her—"power" people who can succeed in hiding the facts of a big story from the media and others, Joanna has her own little secret; her age.

"I look so much younger than I really am, but people can guess it if they know the age of the liberationist, Gloria Steinem. We were classmates," she says laughing.

But they may be in cahoots. When Joanna met Gloria on a shopping spree recently, she sidled up to her and said, "Tell me—how old are we this year." Joanna is not interested in women's lib. No man is competing with her, she points out, but she thinks it would be sad to be liberated at the cost of womanliness.

"Many liberationists are handing themselves so stridently, it is a big turnoff," she says.

An assistant home economics agent, Janet is in charge of the 4-H Club in Anson County. She is responsible for coordinating the activities and programs of the 15 4-H Clubs there. In addition, she is responsible for any clothing program which are initiated.

Janet was a 1970 graduate of East Carolina University with a B. S. degree in home economics education. She was a member of the university chapter of American Home Economics Association and Phi Upsilon Omicron, a national honorary home economics fraternity.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ennis P. Blanchard, 1812 Sulgrave Rd.

Planning an early spring wedding are Susan Pollard and Ben Irons. They will exchange vows on March 6.

The bride-elect attended Salem College and is now a senior at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Her fiance is also a senior at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Two Greenville girls were among the 270 sophomore scholars honored at a special reception at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro last week.

They were Katherine A. Inman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Clifford Inman, 103 S. Sylvan Dr., and Miss Linda Lee Williams, daughter of Lee G. Williams, 1403 N. Overlook Dr.

Purpose of the reception was to acknowledge outstanding scholarship by the student and to give them an opportunity to talk informally with various faculty members about areas of study in which they have an interest.

Dr. Bert Goldman, dean of academic advising, was coordinator for the reception. UNC-G Chancellor James S. Ferguson and Miss Mereb Mossman, vice chancellor for academic affairs, extended greetings to the group.

The Royal Family's Christmas: A Smaller Gathering This Year

BY MARGARET SAVILLE LONDON (UPI)—The Christmas gathering of the royal family at Windsor Castle will be smaller than usual this year due to the illness of Queen Elizabeth's uncle, the Duke of Gloucester, and official duties for others of the House of Windsor.

The 70-year-old Duke is now a permanent invalid, living at his country house where he will spend the day with his duchess and their two sons, Prince William and Prince Michael. The Queen will telephone her greetings.

The Queen's cousin, Prince Michael of Kent, is an army officer serving with his regiment in the Far East. His brother, the Duke of Kent, an army major, is stationed with the U.N. forces in Cyprus and his duchess is with him.

But the Queen and Prince Philip and their children — Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, Prince Andrew, Prince Edward and Princess Anne — will be joined by the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret and her two children and Princess Alexandra of Kent, her husband, Angus Ogilvy, and their two children.

Princess Alexandra celebrates her 34th birthday on Christmas Day. She was given the extra Christian name of Christabel — to celebrate the coincidence.

The royal family will go to church services in St. George's Chapel at Windsor on Christmas morning followed by a walk around the royal estate. Then they will meet in the oakpaneled dining room for the traditional meal of tomato soup, roast turkey with brussels sprouts and roast potatoes followed by plum pudding carried in alight.

The meal will end with mince pies, candy, nuts and sweetmeats.

The afternoon will be devoted to the younger children and their games with gifts from the tree handed around by the Queen after tea. The royal family will spend the evening watching television, playing cards and helping themselves to food from a cold buffet so their staff may be free for their own Christmas celebrations.

Contemplate 1971 The days after Christmas will give the Queen time for contemplation — 1971 will be a busy year for her and hers. There will be a number of royal tours in the new pattern, brief visits by jet aircraft to various commonwealth and other overseas countries intended to establish personal contact and yet not keep her away from London and the demands of state too long.

For Prince Philip 1971 brings his 50th birthday. He may not look forward to this milestone but Princess Anne definitely is looking forward to her 21st birthday in August when she inherits monies and jewels left her under the wills of her grandfather, King George VI, and her great-grandmother, Queen Mary.

To Prince Charles the year brings his official entry into the Royal Navy. He is due to become an officer-cadet at the Royal Naval College at Dartmouth in September for the normal three year training course — so marriage before 1974 seems out of the question.

Prince William, handsome bachelor son of the Duke of Gloucester, will have his 30th birthday. It is unusual for a royal prince to be unmarried at friends.

New Togs For Santa Claus

PARIS (WNS) — Now that French mothers are called upon to dress in midis and maxis instead of minis, will Santa Claus have to change his raiment, too? The Club IPPA Junior, which keeps statistics on 12.5 million commercial customers under 12 years old, asked a young sampling to draw the Santa Claus of 1970. Nicholas and Fabrice Chapuis won first prize with Pere Noel as a cosmonaut advising the world, "Make love, not war." Eric Bouillot came next with a Martjan St. Nick who had antennae in his hair. "Why should Santa be a man?" asked Fabrien Ubbizo, who designed him as an elephant. Sylvie Cachin agreed with the question but preferred "the giver of goodies" as a woman. "In shorts, not that long stuff," she decreed.

Williams-Taylor Vows Exchanged In Ceremony

Miss Glénda Christine Taylor became the bride of Willie Lee Williams on Friday at 8:00 p.m. in a double ring ceremony. The Rev. W. H. Willis performed the ceremony in the Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Catherine Page.

The church was decorated with three seven branch candelabra with two arrangements of jade palms. The altar was centered with an arrangement of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and pom poms.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rastus Taylor of Bethel, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a street length double knit polyester light blue dress with a high round standup collar, long tapered sleeves and A-line skirt. The waistline and sleeves were trimmed with matching lace. She carried a white lace covered Bible centered with a white orchid and showered with carnations. Her headpiece was of light blue rosettes trimmed with pearls attached to a light blue veil.

Miss Cynthia Taylor of Vanceboro, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She was attired in a street length pale pink double knit polyester dress. The dress was designed with elbow length sleeves, high round neckline and A-line skirt. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations tied with a pink bow and streamers.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luby Williams of Rt. 1, Rocky Mount.

Larry Greenleaf of Wilson was best man. Ushers were Johnnie Ray Taylor of Vanceboro, uncle of the bride, Clifton Dennis Evans of Rt. 1, Grimesland, cousin of the bride. Cyrus Ray Taylor of Rt. 1, Vanceboro, cousin of the bride, junior usher lighted the candles and seated the brides mother.

Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Watson Trailer Park.

The bride is employed by Hamilton Beach Scovill Division. The bridegroom is employed by Wilson Mobil Trailer Sales, Wilson.

Reception

A reception, given by the bride's parents, was held at the church following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of white snapdragons and carnations flanked by two three branch candelabra.

Mrs. Agnes Burroughs served the wedding cake after the bride and bridegroom had cut the traditional first slice. Mrs. Bonnie Adams poured punch.

Mrs. Mozelle Fornes introduced guests to the receiving line.

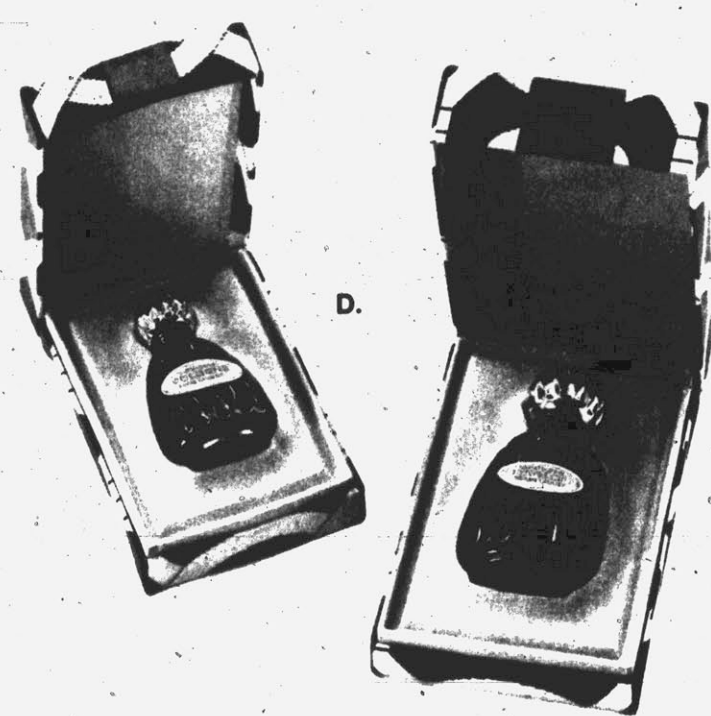

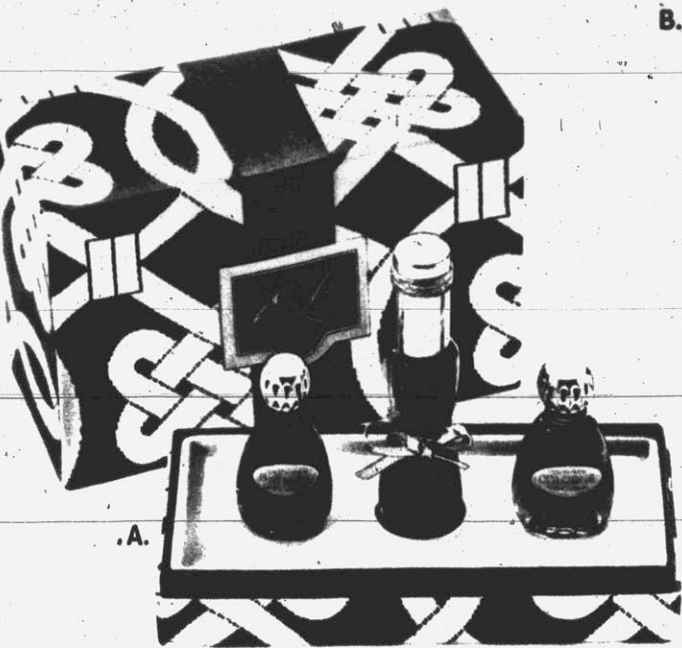

Mrs. Eloise Taylor presided at the guest register and Mrs. Rena Mae Taylor said good-byes.

The Williams-Taylor wedding party was entertained at a rehearsal party given by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Eloise Taylor.

brass setting with fourteen tiered candelabra holding white tapers. White mums, pom poms and gladioli were used against a background of kenia palms. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Sophie Gerard, organist, and Miss Mary Frances Austin, soloist, who sang "The Theme From Romeo and Juliett."

The bride was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a formal green gown designed with a high neckline trimmed in chantilly lace. The gown featured long tapered sleeves and a floor length train trimmed in matching lace.

She wore a matching shoulder length veil and wore a corsage of gold cymbidium orchids.

The mother of the bride selected a white wool dress with long sleeves and wore a corsage of white carnations trimmed in red.

The bridegroom's mother wore a yellow dress with a corsage of matching carnations.

Best man was the father of the bridegroom. William Rowe Edwards of Fayetteville, cousin of the bridegroom, was usher and lighted the candles.

Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Chocowinity.

The bride and bridegroom attended East Carolina University. She is employed by J. F. Bowen Mortgage Loan and Real Estate, Greenville. The bridegroom is a lab technician at Texas Gulf Sulfur, Aurora.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the party room at the International Motor Hotel. Miss Layne Perry and George Pittard served champagne from a table decorated with a holiday motif.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Clifton Edwards honored the bridal couple at a Christmas buffet dinner held in the banquet room of the hotel.

The bride wore a red and white wool dress with a corsage of gold cymbidiums.

Blount-Harvey Patient Circle Officers Installed Tuesday Night

The Rev. Troy Barrett installed officers for 1971 using a candlelight service at the meeting of The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters and Sons Tuesday night.

Officers installed were: President, Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell; First Vice President, Mrs. T. L. Hannaford; Second vice President, Mrs. R. C. Henry; Secretary, Mrs. Polly Dail;

Treasurer, Mrs. C. B. Rowlett; Treasurer, Building Fund, Miss Martha Lee Cowell; and Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Roy Lokken. Each officer was asked to light a candle and read a quotation from the Significance of The King's Daughters.

A presidents pin was presented to Mrs. Shackell and she was thanked for the entire membership for her outstanding work for many years.

Program Chairman, Miss Eunice McGee, introduced Mrs. M. J. Moye Jr., as guest speaker. Mrs. Moye was in Germany six years with her husband and family.

Mrs. Moye related her experiences and slides were shown of East and West Berlin, showing the castles, churches and masses of flowers on the streets.

During the business session, Mrs. Cora S. Powell, president, called for the reports of officers and standing committees.

Welcomed as guests were Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Mary B. Whitehurst.

The hostesses, Mrs. Charles F. Blanchard and Mrs. Carter Baumbach, carried out a Christmas motif in decorations and refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Whitehurst.

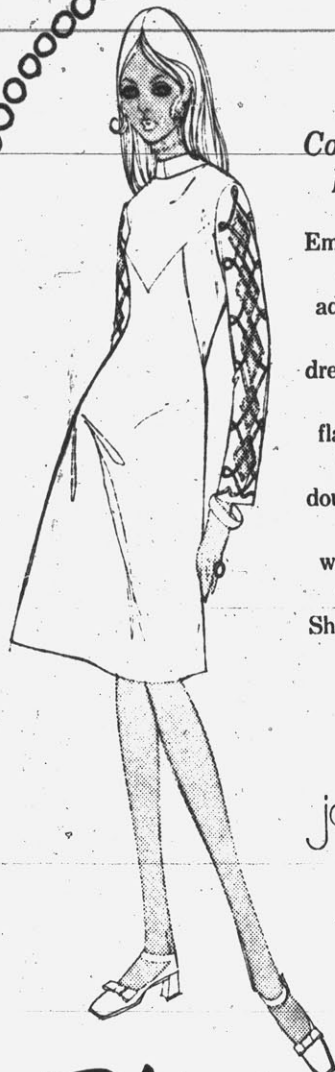

The meeting was held in the Ladies Parlor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Leniency Due To Loving Wife

PARIS (WNS) — Michel Houriez, 24, was so unhappy after his wedding that he got drunk at the wedding banquet, stole his bride's wedding bouquet and ran away to a nearby bar. There he burst into tears, got into a fight with the customers and was arrested for insulting behavior. He spent his wedding night in prison and apologized to his bride next day in court. After consultations with the bride, the judge gave the groom a six-months' suspended sentence and said, "Thank your loving wife for my leniency. You are in her custody for the honeymoon and ever after."

Gabby Granny Gives Recipe

FRANKFURT, West Germany (WNS) — On her 100th birthday, Helga Granz announced that her recipe for long, healthy life is to keep talking. "Talking relieves the system of poisons, and listening does not," she said, then turned down the TV set that relatives had offered her as a birthday gift.

Father Image Is Shattered

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 years old, and enrolled in a creative writing course at school. My main purpose in taking this course was to get courage to express my feelings. I have been writing all my life, but have never shown anyone my work. Well, I loved this course as well as the teacher. He was one of the nicest men I have ever known. One day I expressed my feelings in the form of a poem and gave it to him. It went like this:

"I dreamed you were my father
This dream did make me weep.
I dreamed you were my father
My love for you runs deep.

I dreamed you held me in your arms
And told me I was good.
I dreamed that you would punish me
Each time you thought you should.

I dreamed you were my father
This dream did make me weep.
Tho I was not asleep."

Abby. I never had a father, and in this poem I was trying to tell my teacher how much he meant to me. Well, after he read it, he never even looked at me again. He won't call on me in class, and he turns his head when he sees me in the hall. I feel so embarrassed and ashamed. I don't want to go to his class any more, and I don't think I will ever show my work to anyone again. Was it corny of me to have expressed my feelings in poetry? I hate being rejected, and believe me, I've been rejected a lot.

HURT

DEAR HURT: I think your poem was good, and I urge you not to let this unfortunate experience discourage you from writing, and sharing your work with others. Your teacher appears to be strangely insensitive for one who teaches creative writing. He cannot be expected to know the battles you are fighting in your personal life. [And you know nothing of the battles he could be fighting in.] The feelings you expressed obviously turned him off. But I think he was more frightened than displeased.

DEAR ABBY: It is so difficult to know what is morally right and what is morally wrong these days. What used to be considered wrong 25 years ago is suddenly "right." How is a person supposed to know how to behave? BIG DILEMMA

DEAR BIG: Let your conscience be your guide. For some strange reason, we now have about 20 million laws trying to enforce the Ten Commandments.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Actress Advises

Plain Girls Get Real Men

LONDON (WNS)—Janice Hoy, a successful actress and model, has just completed her first book, "Pretty Tough," in which she warns the ladies, playboys, married men out for a fling and "vulgar phone calls."

had only been plain, I surely would have been happily married with a family by now." She reports that beautiful women have a terrible time in this modern world. "Men desire us, but they don't love us," she writes, then adds that feminine beauty attracts insincere playboys, married men out for a fling and "vulgar phone calls."

University President's Wife Plans To Be Active Both On And Off The Campus

By JUDITH ANDERSON
San Francisco Chronicle Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The wife of the new president of Stanford University has no intention of sitting back and luxuriating in her prestigious new role.

"Both of us see an active role for me," Elizabeth Schauflyer Lyman said recently of herself and her husband, Richard. Mrs. Lyman believes she can help her husband by "creating a feeling of rapport" among diverse elements in the university community.

She also expects to keep her hand in activities to which she's long been committed—namely, the Mid-Peninsula Citizens for Fair Housing, the Fair Housing Task Force of the Stanford-Mid-Peninsula Urban Coalition and employment opportunities and continuing education for women.

"A tall order," the 5-foot-10½-inch mother of four said with a hearty laugh in a telephone interview. "It will demand a lot of flexibility, not only on my part but for my children," she said.

The Lyman's two sons, Christopher, 15, and Timothy, 13, share the family home on campus. Their two daughters are away at school. Jennifer, 20, is a junior in history at Yale and Holly, 17, just entered her freshman year at Hampshire College in Amherst, Mass.

Elizabeth Lyman gives her husband a lot of credit for encouraging her to pursue her own interests. "He's been enormously supportive—that's the key to the active participation of women in the world."

She's "profoundly sympathetic" with the movement of women's rights, "in the sense of developing their potential." But, she added, "as often happens in these things, a lot of the women's liberation movement is disastrously overlapped" and thus counterproductive.

"There has been discrimination against women for unnecessary reasons, but women are as responsible for this as men," she said.

In the 12 years since her husband came to Stanford as associate professor of history, Mrs. Lyman has observed in meetings of faculty wives that lack of participation often results from "a lack of confidence... women are not always given encouragement from their menfolk." It all boils down to a "respect for the individual, whatever sex, and the potential in every individual."

Richard and Elizabeth Lyman, both from the East Coast, met and married 23 years ago while both were undergraduates at Swarthmore College. "He was one of those glamorous returning veterans," she said.

Before the birth of their first child, Mrs. Lyman taught crafts in lower school. Today at the "splendid age" of 45, Mrs. Lyman keeps up an interest in arts and crafts and has gained a reputation for her knitting.

Richard Lyman bicycles back and forth to work from their comfortable hill-side home, furnished in a combination of "unobtrusive modern" and early and middle-American pieces inherited from their families.

Mrs. Lyman looks forward to the coming months with mixed emotions. Besides the "enormous pride" and "great confidence" in her husband's abilities "if he's given a chance," she is realistic about the problems.

IN HER NEW ROLE as wife of Stanford University President Richard Lyman, Elizabeth Schauflyer Lyman has no intention of settling into a life of leisure. Here she knits at her husband's press conference.

For First Time, No Church Ties For 3 Lawmakers

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

A survey of religious affiliations of the new U.S. Congress shows that 74.3 per cent of them are Protestants, 18.3 per cent Roman Catholics, 2.3 per cent Jewish and fractional percentages of other faiths or none. The figures showed a slight gain for Roman Catholics, adding five more members to make a total of 115, but their share of seats still is a bit short of their proportion of the population in the country—about 25 per cent.

In the regular check made for the last 12 years by the evangelical fortnightly, Christianity Today, it noted that for the first time, "three congressmen this year said flatly they have no religious affiliation."

Also hinting an incipient tendency toward ambiguity about the matter was the increase from 12 to 16 in the number giving no specific church affiliation, listing themselves only as "Protestant." Altogether, the new Congress convening in January has 535 members, 435 in the House and 100 in the Senate. Of the total, the slightly increased Roman Catholic contingent is the largest among the denominations.

Methodists, in the second place, hold 86 seats, down four from the previous Congress, but they have the largest denominational group in the Senate, with 20 seats in that chamber. Methodists also have the biggest number of state governorships, 10 of them. Eight governors are Roman Catholics, eight Presbyterians, five Episcopalians, four Baptists, three United Church of Christ members, three Jewish and the rest of other Protestant faiths.

In Congress, most Protestant denominations kept about the same representation this time, although some slipped a little, others inching up. The relatively small Jewish contingent of 14 was five less than in the previous congress, but still remained close to the Jewish proportion of the population.

Presbyterians, the third largest contingent, gained an extra seat to a total of 63. Episcopalians, the fourth largest block lost one place to a total of 66, but in doing so, gained three places in the Senate losing four in the House.

Baptists, fifth in line, edged down from a total of 53 to 51. The United Church of Christ slipped from 29 to 27. The Lutherans stayed the same, with 14, as did the Christian Church (Disciples) with 14.

Greek Orthodox members rose by one to four. Also gaining one each were the Quakers, with four; the Unitarian-Universalists, with eight and Churches of Christ, with seven. Although more clergymen than ever sought seats in Congress, most of them fared poorly at the hands of the electorate, the magazine noted, with only two of 14 being elected.

Schedule Of North Pitt Holidays Set

Christmas holidays for students at North Pitt High School will begin with the close of school on Friday, Dec. 18, and will continue through Sunday, Dec. 27.

The normal school schedule will be observed Dec. 28 through Dec. 31. New Year's Day will be observed as a holiday.

The other schools in Pitt County will not operate Dec. 28-Jan. 3 in observance of the holiday. North Pitt students will make up four days they missed at the beginning of the school year.

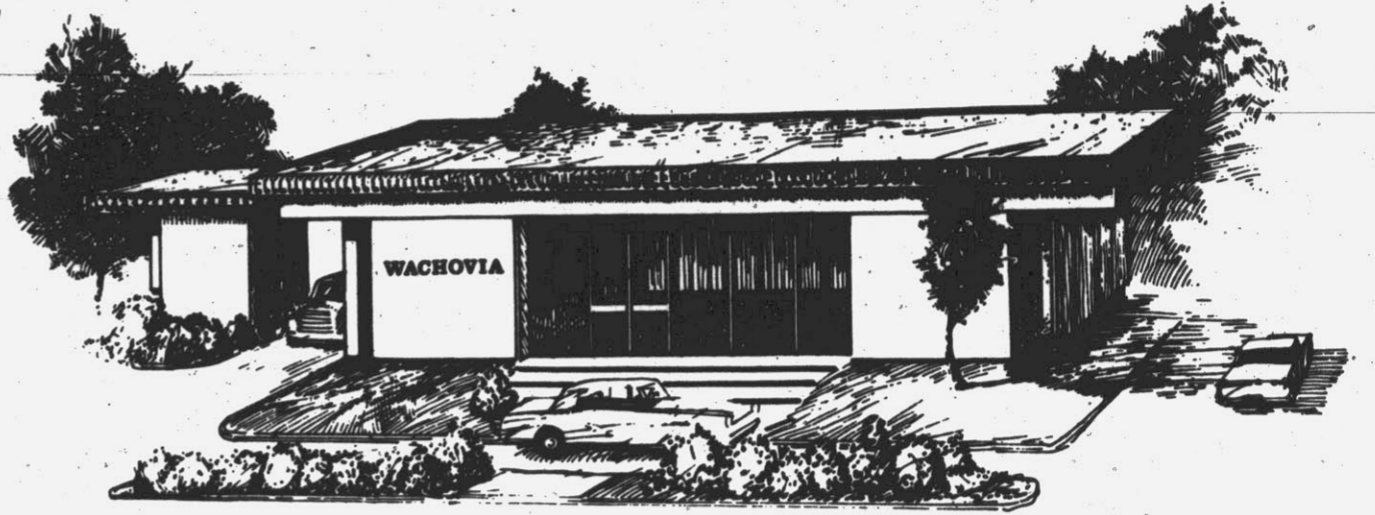

Examinations will be held at North Pitt during the last week in January. Final examinations have been tentatively scheduled for the first week in June.

Parents may visit North Pitt High School during the next two weeks. An open house is planned for the last week in January or the first week in February, after completion of the gymnasium, auditorium, and proper lighting and grading on the school campus.

Parents are invited to eat lunch at the school during the hours of 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. for 40 cents.

Tours of the school will be conducted for adults only. No tours for children, teenagers or recent adults, will be held at this time.

Mistaken As American

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A Zulu who plays a swinging alto saxophone thinks it's like hilarious man when fans mistake him for an American Negro.

"It's quite a gas," says Henry Sithole. "They come up to me backstage and ask what part of the States I am from. I reply in Zulu: 'I am from Umlazi.' That shakes them up and we all have a laugh."

Umlazi is a township near Durban peopled by Zulus.

Sithole, 28, is one of several local musicians backing American soul singer Percy Sledge, who has special dispensation to perform for mixed audiences during his current tour of apartheidland.

Many assume that the entire Sledge case is American. As Henry says, it's a gas.

"I get the usual laughs during the show because I enjoy blowing. But the best of all comes from these kids because they think they're talking to an American."

"Sometimes I keep the laugh to myself and switch on a real American drawl. I just pick a city and drawl out the name. But when it comes to the autograph I can't keep up the joke any longer and confess. I tell you we have a real lot of fun..."

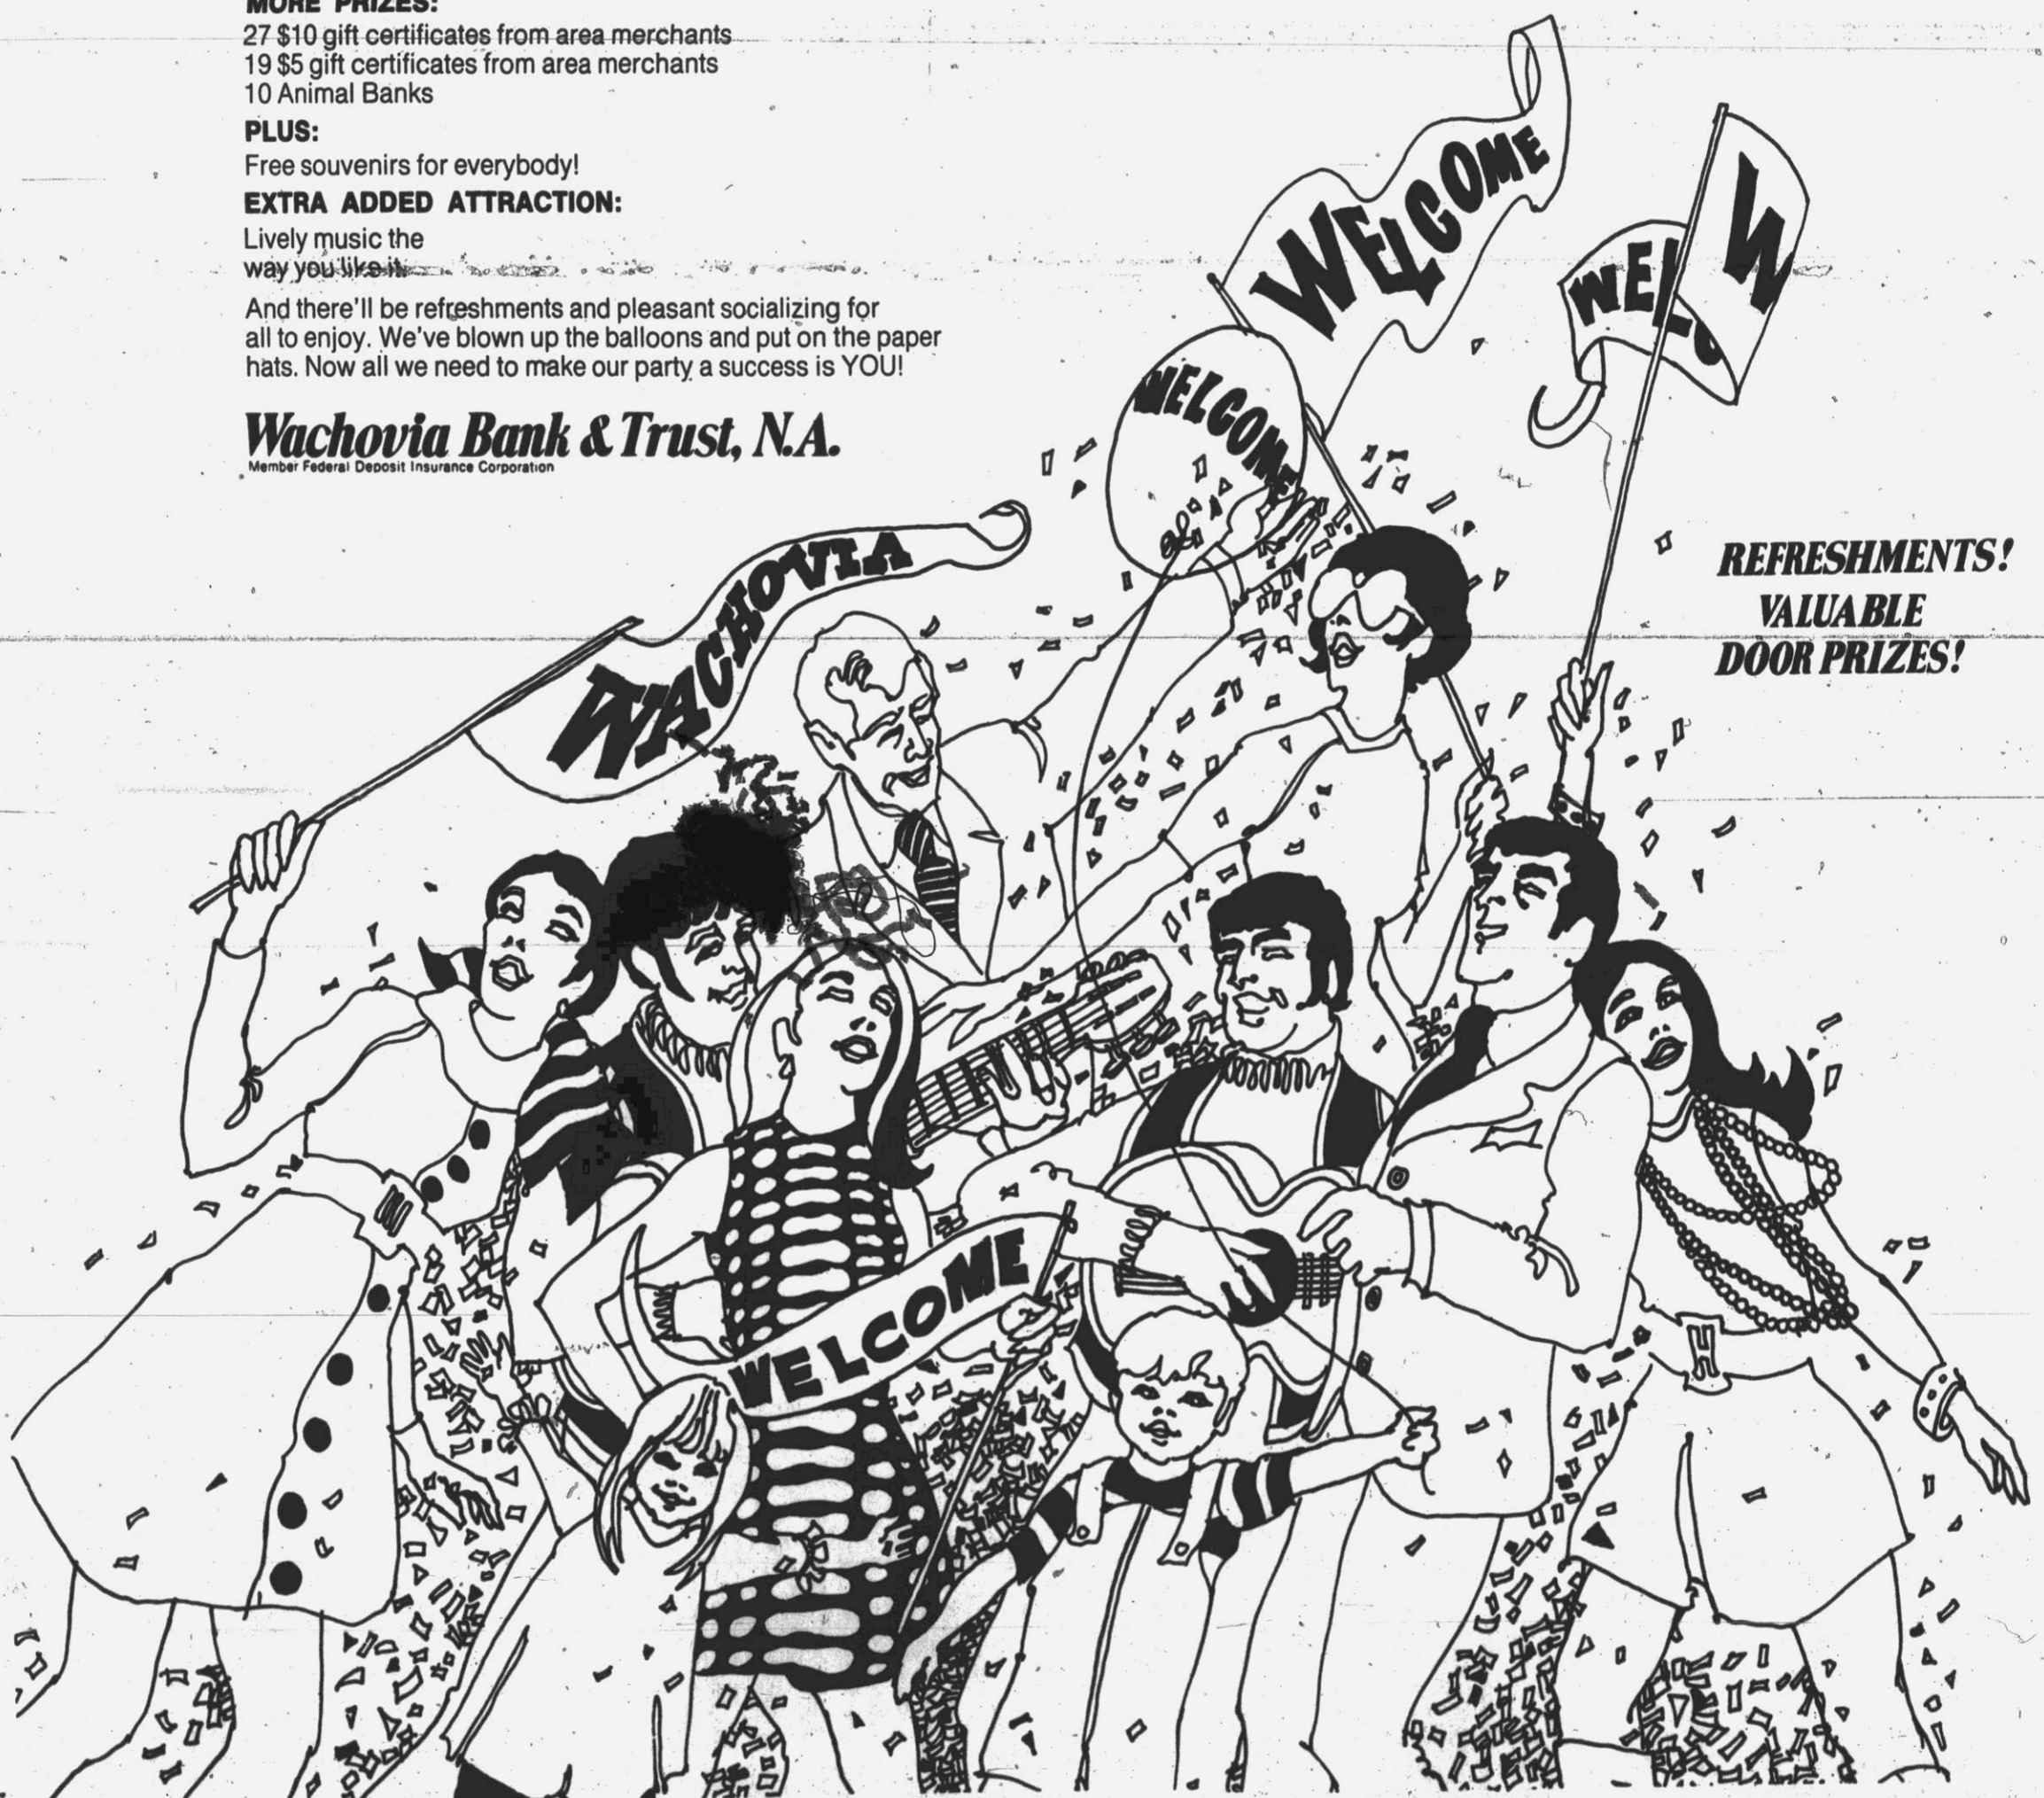

Does Sithole, who has been playing professionally for five years, have any particular ambitions? "Since everyone thinks I'm American, why shouldn't I go to the States and play with some of the jazz greats?"

Pirates Gain Second Win As ETSU Falls

Carolina Rolls Past Creighton

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Dennis Wuycik scored 39 points and grabbed 12 rebounds Saturday night as North Carolina routed Creighton 106-86 with 73 per cent shooting in a 64-point second half.

The last half to win going away and finish the game with 57 per cent shooting to 54 for the Bluejays, beaten for the first time in five starts.

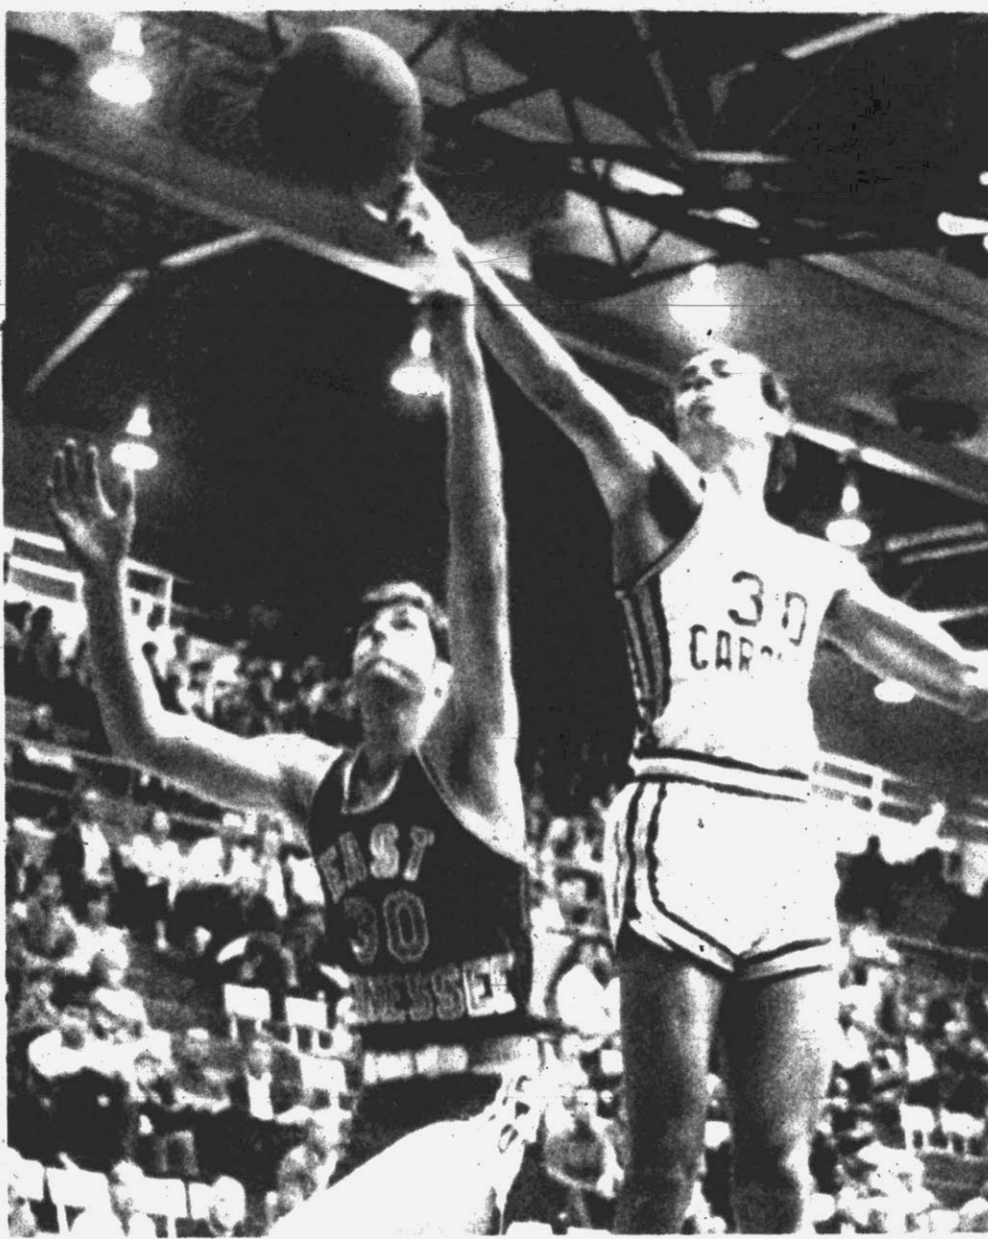

Gamecocks Rip Duke, 98-78

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP) — Second nationally-ranked South Carolina took a quick 9-2 lead and went on to easily trounce Duke, 98-78, Saturday night in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game that featured a 26-point performance by John Roche.

half but had some trouble converting on them. Rick Aydtlett shot over Duke's set defense plans with fast breaking drives to score.

Duke closed to within two points twice soon after the second half opened, but Tom Owens, Tom Riker and Roche soon widened the margin.

It was South Carolina's first ACC game of the season. Overall, it is 3-0. Duke is 2-2 overall and 0-2 in the conference.

Leap For The Ball

East Carolina University's Jim Gregory leaps high, along with East Tennessee's Tommy Martin after a rebound in last night's game between the two schools. The Pirates, paced by touchdowns in the second half on runs of two and four yards and hammered out 124 yards rushing against the bigger Buffaloes.

32 points by Gregory, ripped the Buccaneers, 85-63, to even their record at 2-2 for the year. East Carolina hosts Roanoke on Monday. (Reflector Photo)

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Dave Abercrombie dashed 66 yards with the second-half kick-off to set up the go-ahead touchdown Saturday at Tulane, participating in a bowl game for the first time in 30 years, stunned favored Colorado 17-3 in the Liberty Bowl game.

Terriers Fall To Texas A&I

foul shots in a row, Willie Griffin came off the Deacons' bench to hit two 19-foot jump shots tying the score, 71-71.

Terriers Fall To Texas A&I

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Texas A&I shattered Wofford's 20-game winning streak 48-7 Saturday to win its second straight NAIA Champion Bowl football game and third ever, both records.

In winning by the largest margin and highest point total in the playoff's history, Texas A&I dominated the game from start to finish.

Terriers Fall To Texas A&I

Quarterback Karl Douglas, a 6-foot-2, 210-pound senior from Houston, for the second year in a row was picked by newsmen as the game's top back. He hit 6 of 14 passes for 171 yards and two touchdowns and added 33 yards on six rushes.

Meanwhile, the Texans were running almost at will. Clarence Alberts carried 11 times for 123 yards, including a 71-yard touchdown spring in the second period. Guile Vela gained 106 yards on 12 rushes.

Randle—ECU Or Virginia?

Sonny Randle, assistant coach at East Carolina University under Mike McGee, may be named as the new East Carolina head football coach early next week, observers in Greenville say.

McGee resigned Thursday to accept the head coaching position at Duke University, one day after the Durham school, McGee's alma mater, fired Tom Harp.

State Defeats Virginia Tech

RALEIGH (AP) — N.C. State high six straight free throws late in an overtime and took a 94-87 victory over Virginia Tech Saturday night.

Tulane, which lost its most recent bowl appearance to Texas A&M 14-13 in the 1940 Sugar Bowl, drove 57 yards for the clinching score midway through the final period.

A 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on the Colorado bench helped the drive before Marshall and Abercrombie alternated running it to the four.

Colorado then put together its only drive of the day that produced more than three first downs. The Buffaloes held the ball for 8 1/2 minutes on an 18-play drive that ended with Dave Haney's 32-yard field goal with 7:56 remaining in the half.

Colorado then put together its only drive of the day that produced more than three first downs. The Buffaloes held the ball for 8 1/2 minutes on an 18-play drive that ended with Dave Haney's 32-yard field goal with 7:56 remaining in the half.

Tulane missed a pair of scoring opportunities in the final four minutes of the half, once after David Hebert grabbed a fumble in the air at the Colorado 24, and later when Mike Walker completed a 22-yard pass to Steve Barrios at the Colorado 29 in the final 30 seconds.

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Editor East Carolina shot a blistering 57.6 per cent from the floor in the second half last night and rolled to an 85-63 victory over East Tennessee State University.

It was the second victory for the Pirates in four starts and evened their record. For East Tennessee, it was the third loss in four starts. Their lone win was in the sole home game, against Richmond in overtime.

The Pirates completely dominated the boards in the game, 51-43, with Jim Gregory, Jim Fairley and Al Faber doing the work.

Gregory also had a field day, canning 32 points, 30 of them from the floor. It was his own personal high for his career, topping the 31 he got against Jacksonville last year.

Fairley followed him with 14 points, as did Faber. Mike Henrich added 11 points for the Bucs.

Gregory finished up with 18 rebounds, while Fairley and Faber each had 12 to dominate the boards.

East Carolina led all the way, getting the lead at the start, and suffering only a 2-2 tie before moving away for good. Gregory put the Bucs ahead with a rebound after a half-minute, but Jerry McNab tied it with a shot from underneath.

Julius Prince hit on a free throw and Henrich followed with a jumper. Gregory stole the ball and drove in for another bucket to give the Pirates a 7-2 lead after two minutes.

East Tennessee cut the lead back to one at 10-9 a few minutes later, as McNab added a bucket and a free throw and Phill Williford and Lynn Ring each scored from the floor.

The Bucs pulled away again, however. Gregory drove in for two, and Faber followed with a pair of free throws. Fairley hit a three-point play, running the margin to seven, and then added another on a fast break for a nine-point edge. He hit again with 12:10 left to run the lead out to 11, at 21-10.

East Tennessee battled back and finally cut the lead to six, as Tommy Martin came off the bench to hit two field goals and a free throw. Another basket by Ring cut it to 25-19 to go, but that was as close as they could come.

The Pirates moved away again, slowing building up to 12 points. That came with 1:29 to go when Gregory drove in for a layup.

East Tennessee came back again, hitting two straight in the final 20 seconds to slice it back to seven at the half. Fields goals by Gordon Gifford and Martin made it 38-31 at intermission.

Gregory started the Bucs off with a basket at the start of the second half, but the Buccaneers of East Tennessee fought back, this time cutting the lead to five. John Rice got a basket by goaltending, then hit two free throws to make it 40-35. It fell back to that margin again at 42-37, but the Pirates pulled away after that.

Gregory got two free throws, then hit from the floor. Henrich got a free throw to up the lead to 10, and after East Tennessee got a basket, the Bucs spurred again.

Henrich hit from the floor and Prince got one at the line. Gregory and Fairley each came buckets and the lead was 15, 56-41 with 11:48 to go.

After that, it was a matter of determining the margin.

The Bucs built their lead up to as much as 28 points with 2:17 left to go, at 81-53, but East Tennessee managed to cut it down to 22 in the final minutes.

The Pirates connected on 19 of 33 shots from the floor in the half for the win, and had an ever 50 per cent accuracy for the entire evening.

They made only 76.6 per cent of their free throws, however, 19 of 33. They did manage to hold their opponent down at the line for the first time this year. East Tennessee got only 16 chances, making good on nine.

For East Tennessee, Martin was the only scorer to hit double figures, getting 14.

The Pirates stay on the more friendly grounds of Minges Coliseum, playing host to Roanoke on Monday. There will be no freshman preliminary.

Baby Bucs Drop Lenoir, 76-65

East Carolina University freshman picked up their third victory in four games last night, downing high-jumping Lenoir Community College, 76-65.

Vicqueira and Peszko contributing three foul shots, and Vicqueira and Nike White each getting field goals. Lenoir struggled back with 12, but the Bucs moved away again, this time moving out by as much as 17, at 65-48.

The Bucs had to struggle throughout most of the first half, before finally pulling away in the early minutes of the second half.

17, at 65-48.

The lead changed hands five times through the first half, before East Carolina finally got the lead at 17-16 on a shot by Ray Peszko with 9:41 to go.

17, at 65-48.

Fred Laphis scored on a fast break and two free throws by Nicky White and another by Steve Close ran the lead out to six. A three-point play by Peszko a minute later ran the margin to seven, and the Bucs built up as much as a nine-point advantage in the remaining minutes.

17, at 65-48.

Lenoir cut it back to seven in the closing seconds of the half.

17, at 65-48.

They did it again early in the second half, at 40-33, but after that, the Bucs took firm control and pushed out into a 16-point spread. They ran off nine straight points, with White hitting on a jumper, John

Oakland Rips Chiefs By 20-6

By ERIC PREWITT Associated Press Sports Writer OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders displayed a strong running attack, led by seldom-used Marv Hubbard, and held the Kansas City Chiefs without a touchdown Saturday in a 20-6 victory that gave them the Western Division title in the American Football Conference.

for 40 yards. The second-year back from Colgate gained 93 yards on 16 rushes in the game.

The loss left the defending world champion Chiefs at 7-4-1 and in danger of failing to make the National Football League playoffs. They still have a chance as the team with the best second place record.

Two freshman records were set both by Jack Morrow in the 1-meter diving and 3-meter diving.

The Raiders drove 78 yards for a third-period touchdown, with fullback Hubbard scoring from six yards out through a big hole in the left side of his line.

This was ECU's only home meet in December with their next home meet coming up January 9 with Virginia. East Carolina travels to Maryland December 17 and to Pennsylvania to meet Lehigh on the 19 of December.

The first three ended when Tulane faked a field goal only to fail on an attempted pass. The second was stopped when Pat Murphy intercepted a Walker pass at the 10 and returned it 28 yards where he slipped attempting to cut back into an open field.

Army Defeats Pirate Tankers

The Army Swimming Team defeated the ECU tankers Saturday afternoon at Minges Coliseum, 62-51. East Carolina's record now stands at 0-2 in dual competition, but both of their defeats came from nationally ranked opponents. In the 13 different events 11 had new records set. The only two events in which a record wasn't set was the 200 yard freestyle and the 200 yard breast stroke.

- Summary: 400 yard medley relay: Army (Ross, Harrison, Frink, Bradford), 3:46.29. 1,000 yard freestyle: Bill Deatherage (Army), Gary Frederick (EC) Steve Howard (EC), 10:33.6. 200 freestyle: Jim Griffin (EC), Craig Harrison (Army), Hud Berry (Army), 1:49.41. 50 yard freestyle: Paul Trevisan (EC), Don Smith (Army), Pat Fligg (Army), 22.51. 200 individual medley: Jack Frink (Army), Wayne Norris (EC), Grig Hinchman (EC), 2:04.1. 1-meter diving: Jack Morrow (EC), Doug Emerson (EC), Pat Cron (Army), 230.30 points. 200 butterfly: Tom Slear (Army), Wayne Norris (EC), Greg Hanes (EC), 2:01.59. 100 freestyle: Don Smith (Army), Tom Rehn (EC), Paul Trevisan (EC), 49.01. 200 back stroke: Ben Ross (Army), Greg Hinchman (EC), Tom Slear (Army), 2:06.29. 500 freestyle: Jim Griffin (EC), Bill Deatherage (Army), John Ferguson (Army), 5:00.02. 200 breast stroke: Bill Orton (Army), Steve Harrison (Army), Bill Crell (EC), 2:21.07. 3-meter diving: Doug Emerson (EC), Jack Morrow (EC), John Donovan (Army), 237.25 points. 400 freestyle relay: Army (Fligg, Ferguson, Smith, Frink), 3:17.57.

Southern Limits Football Grants

Bear Grass Victory Is Fourth Straight For

In 58-52 Victory Unheralded Rose Cage Team

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The seven-member Southern Conference has taken the first step toward expanding beyond its existing boundaries and for the first time has put a limit on the number of football and basketball scholarships its schools can hand out.

An amendment to conference bylaws approved Friday at the annual meeting would allow the league to take in schools outside the District of Columbia and the states of Virginia, West Virginia and North and South Carolina—although no prospective members are in that category at the moment.

Two North Carolina schools, Appalachian State University and Western Carolina University, had representatives on hand for the meeting, and Appalachian State expressed interest in membership.

A committee will be selected in the near future to study the setup at Appalachian State and report back on its qualifications for membership, said the league president, Col. John G. Barrett of Virginia Military Institute, who briefed newsmen following the closed-door session.

By what was reported to be a 6-1 margin, the conference voted to put a limit—effective with the start of the 1973-74 academic year—on each school of 100 full football scholarships and 20 full basketball scholarships. It rejected a proposal to place limits on scholarships in all other sports.

The Citadel had proposed limitations for each sport, but the only one of its limits approved was that in basketball. Its proposal had been for 75 in football, but Richmond and East Carolina had opposed this in advance of the session, which upped the figure by 25.

Heretofore, there has been no limit in any sport.

A proposal that the number of players each school could dress for a league football game be limited to 40 was turned down, as was a move that would have required any new member to participate in track.

The conference put off action on two matters dealing with the distribution of money with committees to be named to study them.

One involves the split of funds the conference receives from having its champion play in the Tangerine Bowl football game, the other with receipts from "wild card" television games involving league members.

BEAR GRASS — The Bear Grass Bears snapped their losing streak Friday night with a 58-52 victory over Creswell High School. The Bear Grass girls also came away with a win, 43-40.

In the girls game, Creswell moved out into a 10-7 lead in the first period of play. Bear Grass rallied in the second period, outscoring Creswell, 13-8. That put Bear Grass into a 20-18 lead at the half.

Creswell came back to out score the Lady Bears in the third period, 12-10, and that tied it up at 30-30. But Bear Grass grabbed the lead midway through the final period and held on, 13-10, to take the victory.

Beverly Bailey led Bear Grass with 22 points, while Darlene McDowell had 26 for Creswell.

In the boys game, Bear Grass slipped out into a 15-13 lead in the first period, but Bear Grass came back and turned that around for a 15-13 advantage of its own in the second frame. That left the two teams tied at 28-28 at the half.

In the third period, however, Bear Grass outdid Creswell, 14-9, and moved into a 42-37 lead. They outdid Creswell, 16-15, going to the wire to hold on for the win, their second of the year.

Charles Mobley led the Bears with 16 points, while Vann Rogerson had 15. Creswell was paced by Lewis with 16, while Simmons had 11.

Bath Defeats Panther 'Bs'

BETHEL — North Pitt High School's "B" team lost to Bath Thursday night, 64-56; but the North Pitt girls rolled along, winning again, 42-17.

In the girls contest, the Panthers rolled out to a 10-2 leading the first period, and were never really in trouble after that. They outdid Bath; 5-3, in the second frame and held a 15-5 lead at halftime.

In the third period, Bath cut away one point from the lead, 7-6, but still trailed, 21-12. Then, in the final period, North Pitt turned on the gas and tossed in 21 points while holding Bath to five, for the final easy romp.

Susan James led North Pitt with 12 points, while Jane Leggett had 11 for Bath.

In the boys game, Bath slipped out into a 15-11 lead in the first period, but the Panthers put on a rally in the second quarter and outscored their guests, 17-12. That put Pitt into an 28-27 lead at the half.

UCLA 'Lax' In Dumping Pacific

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
The UCLA Bruins, the country's top-ranked college basketball team, may be getting overconfident from their success.

Johnny Wooden, coach of the national collegiate champs who have compiled an amazing 123-4 won-lost record in their last 127 games, thought his players were "too lax" in whipping U. of Pacific 100-88 Friday night.

"There was too much one on one stuff," commented the Wizard of Westwood after the Bruins had upped their current winning streak to eight, including 3-0 this season.

"The defense was effective in spots, but over-all they were too lax," Wooden said.

Dick Edwards, the UOP coach, saw the game at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion in a different light.

"What can I say but that UCLA is a marvelous team," Edwards said. "I thought we played very well. We made some mistakes and we paid the price."

Pacific led 20-19 early in the game, but with Curtis Rowe leading a balanced attack, the Uclans were ahead 57-42 at the half. Rowe finished with 28 points. John Gianelli led UOP with 22.

Southern California and Villanova, No. 9 and No. 10, respectively, in this week's Associated Press poll, also won. So did No. 18, Oregon. Army, No. 14, was the only team in the AP Top Twenty, to lose.

Led by Paul Westphal's 32 points, Southern Cal crushed Brigham Young 101-65. Villanova routed Murray State 97-63 behind Tom Ingelsby's 24 points. Stan Love, 6-foot-9 star of the Ducks, scored 24 points and led

Disinterest Hurts Rose Swims

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Swimming at Rose High School has fallen on hard times. A few years back, the Rampants could claim to have one of the top teams in the state with a large number of candidates out for the team.

But now, however, there has been a lapse in interest on the team, and things are slowed to a near standstill.

The Rampant coach, Bob Moynihan, a former East

Carolina star, isn't giving up by any means, however.

"We're not going to let swimming die at Rose High School," he said. "Things are at a low ebb right now, but we intend to get the spark going again. Hopefully, it won't take too long."

There are only 11 swimmers and two divers out for the team this year. This compares with more than 30 five years ago when the Rampants were among the top three teams in the state.

Last year, however, with interest down, the Rampants failed to win a single meet, and the prospects of a victory this year are about as slim.

"We are going to do real well, though," Moynihan said. "We are already doing our best times this year, as compared to last season. We were seventh in the state last year, and we should improve on that."

Moynihan feels that the Rampants do not have anyone, however, who is championship caliber at this time. "One or two might come around by the end of the season," he said.

Johnny Wooten and Monty Wooten are the top men in the 200-yard freestyle event, the coach said. He lists Ed King and Art Fahrner as the best in the 200-yard individual medley.

In the 50-freestyle, Mike Van Dyke is the top man. "He could be championship caliber by the end of the season," Moynihan said. Also swimming the sprint is Al Winn, who the coach calls the most improved, and David Bowman.

In the 100-yard butterfly, Steve Worsley and Tom Adams are leading the way. "They both are looking real good," Moynihan said. "It's a bright spot for us."

Van Dyke, Winn and Steve

Dunn handle the 100-yard freestyle, while Fahrner, Monty Wooten and King are the backstrokers for 100-yards.

Roger Billica handles the 100-yard breaststroke, and Johnny Wooten and Worsley swim in the 400-yard freestyle event.

Divers for the team are Herb Wilkerson and Harding Sugg.

"Our biggest problem, as I said, is the lack of interest," Moynihan said. "We lost only two off the team, but there doesn't seem to be much interest coming up from the junior high school level."

Moynihan said that this is one thing that must be changed. "We have to get the junior high school involved. We also want to work with the Raynez and Country Club swimmers and the East Carolina Swimming Association.

"It's not that difficult to swim, but it is hard work. We know, for instance, that there are capable swimmers who could help us right now in the school, but other things are occupying them. Wrestling has come along and this too has hurt us. We don't want to hurt wrestling, but we would like more interest in the swimming program."

Economy In Handsome Georgian A Heap Of Living And Money, And Time To Make A House A Home

THE GEORGIAN 12/15/70

STYLE WITH ECONOMY—The Georgian, designed by the Associated Architects, is a well designed house that offers a lot of stylish living for the money. It is a three-bedroom ranch with two baths, a family room, living room-dining room combination, modern kitchen and single garage with large storage room.

THE GEORGIAN 12/13/70

By GERRY BISHOP
To get the most shelter for the money, it's the planning that counts.
In designing the Georgian, the Associated Architects turned the trick.
They combined a lot of economical features with handsome styling to make this model a good buy for a young family or a retired couple. Either way, the Georgian is a lot of house for what it would cost to build.

The architects worked with a simple rectangle. This simplifies construction and cuts costs. They provided the luxury of two full baths by placing them back to back. That realizes some plumbing economies which keep the price down.
Also, the garage is attached, another building economy.

Still another economy is provided by the fact that the Georgian plans do not call for a basement. The entire structure is based on a concrete slab. This not only saves the cost of excavation and foundation walls, but also permits the use of electric heating throughout. Hot water facilities can be located in one of the two storage areas.

However, if a basement is preferred and an oil or gas heating system desired, a builder can supply a basement and stairs leading down from family or living - dining room.

Redwood Deck Adds Charm
The redwood deck across the rear is another extra that takes the Georgian out of the class of an ordinary ranch house. Both the family room and the living room connect to it, enhancing the deck's use for entertaining.

The Georgian facade gives this one-story an element of southern charm. Pillars supporting the front porch add dignity reminiscent of the old southern colonial mansions.

Altogether there are three bedrooms, two baths, a family room, modern kitchen, living-dining combination, single garage and large storage area.
The main entrance opens into a small foyer which has a large storage closet.

Large Living Area
The living room - dining room has fine dimensions of approximately 13 feet by 24 feet. In mild weather the redwood deck expands the use of this area.

The kitchen, which separates the dining section from the family room, is an efficient workshop. The range, refrigerator, oven and sink are just a step or two apart and there's space for a washer and dryer.

The family room measures 12 feet by 16 feet and would be a cheerful setting for informal activities. Its accessibility to the outside deck is another advantage that could be utilized in good weather.

Two of the three bedrooms are clustered around the main bath. One has dimensions of approximately 14 feet by 11 feet while the other bedroom measures nearly 11 feet square. Each has a large closet.

The master bedroom is a nice size, approximately 16 feet by 12 feet and enjoys a private bath. It also has a large closet.
The outside dimensions of the Georgian are approximately 29 feet by 61 feet and it has 1,424 square feet of living area.

A Heap Of Living And Money, And Time To Make A House A Home

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS
NEW YORK (UPI) — "It takes a heap of living to make a house a home," the saying goes. And it takes a heap of time and money, too.

Care of the home—whether it's a newlyweds' small city apartment or the big family's rambling country place—is a topic that has occupied the attention of the professional fact finders recently.

Aid, it would seem, home still is the domain chiefly of the distaff partner.
The National Consumer Finance Association says the American husband contributes, on the average, about 1.6 hours a day in helping around the house, whether or not his wife works outside the home. For most part, the association said, "wives do most in-the-home work and husbands do yard work, home maintenance, help with marketing, record-keeping, and socializing types of activities with children."

Statistics Quoted
Quoting statistics given before the National Agricultural Outlook Conference in Washington, D.C. based on 1967-68 tests, the association said time put in by wives in household work varied from an average 8.1 hours daily for those not in paid employment to 4.8 hours for those employed outside the home for 30 or more hours per week. A woman's total work week varied from 70 hours, on average, if she had young children or if she worked outside the home 15 or more hours a week, to 40-50 hours a week if she was employed less than 15 hours outside the home and had no children.

The Eureka Williams Co., Bloomington, Ill., a division of National Union Electric Corp. that manufactures vacuum cleaners, asked homemakers some interesting questions in its 1970 Home Care Survey, conducted by telephone in Boston, Atlanta, Chicago and San Diego.
The women, married, selected at random, and divided just about evenly above and below the 35-year age mark and the $12,000 family income mark, were asked a series of questions about their home care and decor, plans for the future, factors influencing decisions.

It found, incidentally, that 95.5 per cent of the women interviewed considered a vacuum cleaner essential for housekeeping, followed by the automatic clothes washer, 86.5 per cent, the automatic clothes dryer, 75 per cent, and the automatic self-defrosting refrigerator, 52 per cent—the only appliances considered a necessity rather than a luxury by more than 50 per cent of the women.

A random sampling of the questions turns up these interesting tidbits about women and their homes:
Decor Pleases Them
Sixty per cent of the women selected their present home decor because it pleased them—as compared with 41.5 per cent who said they chose to please their husbands and 25.5 per cent because it suited the needs of their families.

Of six factors which influence the selection and purchase of home furnishings, the women listed in order of importance: Style, price, color, type of fiber, brand name and practicality. The age and income breakdown here revealed that, although everyone seemed concerned first with styling, those in the lower age and income groups ranked practicality last. Young people ranked brand name second only to style; those over 35 were more concerned with price and type of construction, material or fiber, rating brand names last.

Queried about their house-keeping habits, 67 per cent of the women said they tried to keep their homes "top clean" always, but only half felt they succeeded. Fifty-seven per cent of the women do chores as they are needed, 42 per cent organize jobs on a schedule. Just about half the women said their housekeeping methods and routines were pretty much the same as their mothers'; 45.5 per cent rated themselves about the same type of housekeeper as their mothers.

Given notice that unexpected guests would be arriving in one hour, 43 per cent of the women said they would pick up the kitchen, 38 per cent prepare a snack for the guests, 33 per cent dust the furniture, 23 per cent vacuum.

And—woman before house-keeper—54 per cent said they would freshen up and change their clothes!

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures
Q.—We have a two-car garage with an overhead garage door that opens and closes electronically. The concrete entrance to the garage is slightly higher than the sides, so that when the garage door goes down, it stops the second it hits the high portion of the concrete.
The result is that there are wide spaces between the door and the concrete at the two ends. How can this be corrected?

A.—One way is to build up the two ends slightly with a concrete mix, so that all parts of the door hit the concrete at the same time.

But there's another and perhaps simpler solution. Buy some heavy rubber weatherstripping made for use at the bottom of garage doors to keep out drafts. Place it along the bottom of the door except at the center.

Don't drive the nails in all the way until you are certain that the rubber is positioned perfectly. You then can make adjustments if necessary. Once certain that everything is all right, finish driving in the nails.

Q.—The metal pipe going from our oil furnace to the chimney has come loose slightly at the point where it enters the chimney. I'd like to fix it with some patching plaster, but I'm afraid the heat from the pipe will dislodge it again quickly. What can I use?

A.—Get and use an asbestos cement of the type used to insulate boilers. It is carried by most hardware stores, some lumber yards and all building supply dealers.

Q.—I have to do a wood finishing job that requires about a quart of clear finish. I have a pint of lacquer and a pint of shellac. Can I mix them and, if so, must any thinner be used?

A.—Don't try it. Buy an additional pint of one product or the other. While, under some circumstances, lacquer can be used over a thoroughly dry, hardened coat of shellac, mixing the two may give you an unworkable solution.

Fannie Mae Plans Expand Home Loans

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Federal National Mortgage Association plans to expand into the conventional mortgage field early next year in a move calculated to increase the supply of money available for that kind of home loan.

The association—known as Fannie Mae because of the appearance of its initials FNMA—has been restricted to buying FHA or VA backed mortgages during its 32-year history.

However, the housing act passed by Congress earlier this month authorized FNMA, a government-sponsored private corporation, to broaden its activities into the conventional mortgage field.

The association buys mortgages from original lenders at a discount. The transaction permits mortgage bankers to cash in long term mortgages for money needed to make new loans.

Rates May be Reduced
FNMA's activities are expected to provide substantial increases in money available for conventional mortgages. A slight reduction in interest rates might result some housing officials believe.

The move by Fannie Mae is expected to accelerate a general loosening in the once very tight mortgage market. Since last spring, the supply of mortgage loans has been gradually increasing, thus making it easier for potential home buyers to obtain financing.

A recent survey conducted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards predicted "continuous improvement in the supply of funds for home mortgage financing ... with modest declines in average interest rates."
But the report by the

AP Newsfeatures
Wood shingles and shakes have been enjoying a resurgence of popularity in recent years. There are even some communities which, in an effort to preserve their rural character, have enacted regulations preventing builders from erecting houses that do not use shingles or shakes as siding.
Although there are some physical differences between shingles and shakes (the latter has a rougher surface made up of vertical grooves), they are maintained similarly. Some persons permit them to weather naturally, since they usually are made of one of the weather-resistant woods, such as cedar. But there isn't much doubt that the application of a finishing material lengthens their life and enhances their appearance.
For a long time, using a stain or a preservative was considered the "in" method of treating shingles and shakes. Today, paint is being widely used, principally because modern formulations assure good results. Latex, alkyl flats or oil paints can be used, but never without the prior application of a primer. Also, it is wise to stay away from paint unless you have made up your mind that you won't change it in the future and decide to go back to a stain or preservative, both of which must be applied to wood that has not been painted.

Preservatives go deep into the wood and are especially effective in areas where conditions generally are rough on building materials.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Anthony Quayle, British star currently in the Broadway smash hit, "Sleuth," heads up a one-hour suspense series called "Strange Report" that NBC will install in its 10-11 p.m. Friday spot as of Jan. 8. He plays a scientific solver of crimes. The new series was filmed in England.

ABC has signed Val Doonican, popular British recording and video performer, to do at least 10 musical-variety shows next summer. The series will originate in London.

CBS will return the "Animal World" skein to the air beginning Jan. 3, showing the half-hour program at 5:30 p.m. Sundays. Bill Burrud in charge as usual.

"Movie of the Week" has been renewed by ABC for a third season, 1971-72. There will be 25 films especially made for first showing on television.

The second "GE Monogram Series" special of the season will be "Wildlife" booked on NBC at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 5. It deals with the work of the men who fight forest fires.

"New Year's Eve with Guy Lombardo" is a 90-minute show that will be aired Dec. 31 beginning at 11:30 p.m. ABC Films will produce the program for the sixth successive year, feeding it across the country from New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel. The band leader and his group have been broadcasting annual salutes to a New Year since 1929, beginning on radio.

Myers

CHERRY, HARRY AND RAQUEL—Russ Meyer's production about a deputy sheriff who works for Arizona kingpin Franklin H. Bolger, who orders him to kill Apache John Milo, an Indian who's upsetting his narcotics trade. (X) Sunday through Wednesday.

THE UNDEFEATED—After the Civil War, a Union colonel and his men, taking thousands of horses to Mexico to sell to Emperor Maximilian, meet a Confederate colonel taking people from a defeated area to make a new life in the same place. A tenuous friendship is formed until supporters of Benito Juarez hold the immigrants hostage in exchange for the horses. (G) Thursday through Saturday.

Tice

A BULLET FOR PRETTY BOY—In Oklahoma of the late 1920's, farm boy Fabian Forte weds his pregnant sweetheart Astrid Warner. At the reception, a neighbor insults the bride and is murdered. Fabian causes another man's death in self defense and gets six years for manslaughter. After serving for four years on a road gang, he escapes and begins robbing banks to earn his keep. (GP) Sunday through Wednesday.

CHANGE OF HABIT—THE MERCENARY—"Change of Habit" is the story of three nuns (Mary Tyler Moore, Barbara McNair and Jane Elliott), on assignment to the outside world, who doff their habits and come to a ghetto clinic to assist a young doctor (Elvis Presley) in his work with the poor. (G)

"The Mercenary"—During a comic bull fight in a small border town in 1910, a professional soldier of fortune eyes the head clown and thinks back. The soldier first meets the clown when the later has broken bondage to form a band of revolutionaries and rob the silver which is being taken out of Mexico. (GP) Thursday through Saturday double feature.

thing the teen-agers want is honesty." Tony's a hard worker 52 weeks of the year. "I do it because I love to do it and it keeps me active—my mind stays active. I don't get bored, I don't depreciate myself, I stay in tune with things," he said. "I used to get weary when I was young, but now that I'm older, I don't get weary ..."

"I have a driving philosophy. That is to just search to the end of the earth in my particular lifetime for more and more profound music, for better and better music, without making any concessions. "Junk is going to sound junkie, and people are going to say, 'What happened to Tony Bennett? What is he singing that junk for?' It's much better to hang around good music; you've got to reach the peoples' ears."

38th Album Released

Tony's 38th album, released in early October, is testimonial to Beatlemania: Entitled "Something" from the moptops' prolific repertoire, it includes both the title song and "The Long and Winding Road," probably the best recording the stylist has performed since "Shadow of Your Smile" hit the scene several years ago.

Bennett's career, though, has never been a winding road. His rise began with "Boulevard of Broken Dreams," the song Columbia and its then director of artists and repertoire Mitch Miller liked enough to sign the 25-year-old Astoria, N.Y., youth to record. It won him his first gold record for over $1 million in sales. He now is widely acclaimed as a singer's singer and a musicians' singer, attested to be such artists as jazz pianists Art Tatum, Duke Ellington, and Bill Evans, and saxophonist Gerry Mulligan.

Vadim's First Picture In U.S.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By MARGARET REID

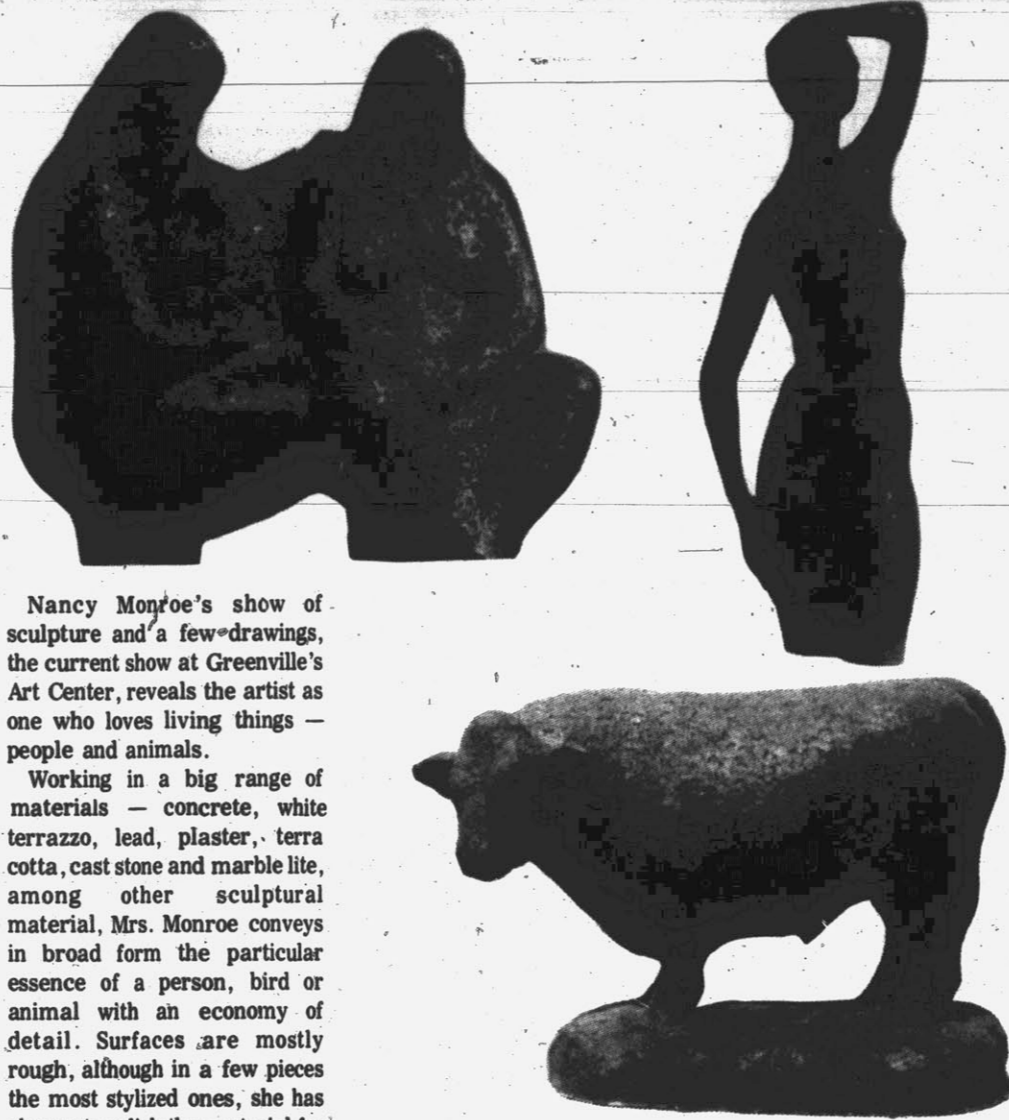

The holiday season is a time for memories. For most people these memories will include special stories from childhood days. Here are some books that are new in the library this season and should prove memorable for many seasons to come.

THE HOLY NIGHT, designed by Celestino Piatti, is a simple and graceful retelling of the first Christmas story: the journey to Bethlehem; the birth of the Child Jesus; and the visit of the shepherds. The pictures that accompany the text are rich with glorious color and a deep warmth and joy. Together, text and illustrations make a book that can be used with the very youngest children to make the age-old story meaningful, and yet that can be appreciated by those of all ages who want to feel again the wonder of Christmas.

The Jewish festival of Hanukkah, which begins on December 23 this year, commemorates the rededication of the Temple in Jerusalem over two thousand years ago. The story behind the celebration is beautifully retold for modern readers in a GREAT MIRACLE by Betty Morrow. In a style rich with Biblical overtones, Miss Morrow relates the epic tale of a band of courageous Jews, led by Judah the Maccabee, who vanquished the Syrian conquerors of Israel, thus restoring to their people the freedom to worship. Information in the back of the book explains the meaning of the Hanukkah celebration.

For over twenty years the 'Betsy' books by Carolyn Haywood have entertained young readers. This year the author offers a MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM BETSY by collecting into one volume those chapters from her many books that take place during the Christmas season. In addition, she has included two new episodes and all new illustrations that have never before been published. A happy combination of a favorite season and a favorite author, MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM BETSY will be enjoyed by all Carolyn Haywood readers.

In the early 1640's, Father Jean de Brebeuf wrote an Indian version of the Christmas story for the Hurons of Canada among whom he lived and worked. Set to the tune of an old French folk song, it is said to be the first Christmas carol produced in the New World. An illustrated edition of this early carol is entitled TWAN IN THE MOON OF WINTERTIME, adapted and arranged by Roz Abisch and Boche Kaplan.

Nancy Monroe's show of sculpture and a few drawings, the current show at Greenville's Art Center, reveals the artist as one who loves living things — people and animals.

Working in a big range of materials — concrete, white terrazzo, lead, plaster, terra cotta, cast stone and marble like, among other sculptural material, Mrs. Monroe conveys in broad form the particular essence of a person, bird or animal with an economy of detail. Surfaces are mostly rough, although in a few pieces the most stylized ones, she has chosen to polish the material for a glossy sheen effect.

It is interesting to note the gamut of types of people she uses as subjects. One sculpture, the largest in the exhibit, of a young girl, depicts an adolescent who is almost painfully thin. Others are ideally proportioned people, and there is one sculpture of a couple of young maidens who seem perfectly pleased with their bountiful flesh.

Mrs. Monroe's colors are generally those of the basic materials with which she works... flecked gray-white, blacks, rusty browns, dull blacks and grays.

A native of New York City, Mrs. Monroe was reared in Virginia, where she attended Mary Washington College. After marrying Dr. Edwin Monroe, they moved to Chapel Hill and then to Greenville. At East Carolina University, Mrs. Monroe has continued art studies.

Except for sketching ideas for sculpture, she says she is sticking basically to sculpture for the time being. Some of her sketches are on view, most of them brief working studies which convey the mood of solidity she captures in the finished work.

Her work has been shown at the N. C. Museum of Art in Raleigh; the Mint Museum in Charlotte, in a one man show in Kinston; at group shows in Greenville, Fredericksburg, Virginia and in other towns. She has won several awards in the years since she first exhibited.

Mrs. Monroe has a flair for projecting her admiration for people and living creatures in her work. In her sculpture—a reflection of the joys of quiet moments, peaceful attitudes, a sense of restfulness, are captured without pretense. Her people and animals should appeal to many people. This exhibit will be on view until the center closes for Christmas and for a few days in early January. — JERRY RAYNOR

Greenville's Miss Crisp Receives Dual Honors

Greenville's Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp, an early crusader for art in North Carolina, has been honored on two separate occasions within the past few days by the State of North Carolina.

At the annual convention of the North Carolina State Art Society held on December 2 during Culture Week in Greensboro, a citation signed by Governor Robert W. Scott and Mrs. Katharine Bahson, president of the society, was accepted on Miss Crisp's behalf by Dr. Francis Speight of Greenville.

The citation reads: "For distinguished service to the cause of the visual arts in the State of North Carolina." At the presentation in Greensboro, Mrs. John M. Foushee of Chapel Hill read a resume of Miss Crisp's accomplishments on which the citation was based.

"In 1947, Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp, a person of quiet charm but great ability, came to your Art Society as...manager of the Society's Art Gallery — until then a one-woman operation. In August of that year Miss Crisp became gallery director and secretary of the Art Society.

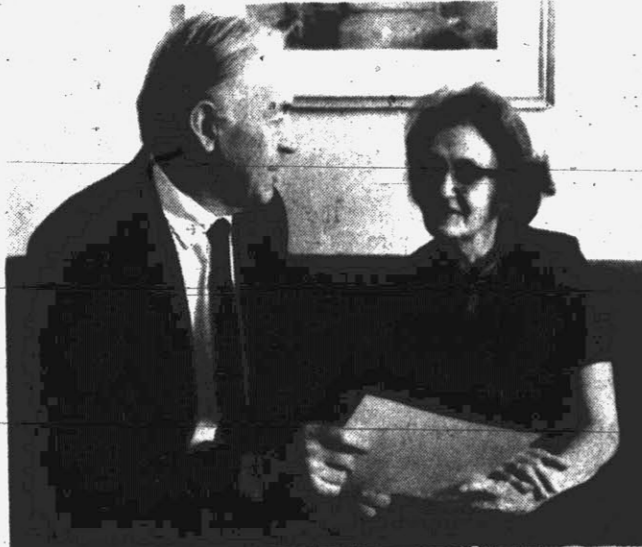

"Outwardly shy, Miss Crisp could get her dander if necessary, but such an event usually benefited the gallery...Miss Crisp had and still has a sense of humor too."

Citing one example of this, Mrs. Foushee noted an incident following news that the Governor of Virginia had asked his Budget Committee for a million dollars to build new wings to the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. This was at the time North Carolina provided $5,000 annually for the N. C. Gallery. Miss Crisp wrote the Virginia Governor: "New wings — how wonderful! From our two rooms we send sincere congratulations, neighbor!"

"In 1949 Miss Crisp invited Ben F. Williams to come to the gallery as her assistant. With these two creative people at its helm, the gallery began to take on museum qualities...many of you will remember the fine exhibitions and the gala openings that brought a new cultural dimension to the State.

"Miss Crisp from the beginning did much to encourage young North Carolina artists. She exhibited their works whenever she could...Aware of the magnitude of the forthcoming museum and the great responsibility millions of dollars worth of art would involve, Miss Crisp asked the Art Society Board to look for a new director as early as 1953. When the museum was well established with Dr. Valentiner as its director, she resigned in 1956...Many professional paths have beckoned her, but to the joy and benefit of North Carolina, she chose art as her way of life.

"The North Carolina State Art Society honors Lucy Cherry Crisp for her many cultural contributions to mankind in general, but particularly for her unselfish service to art in North Carolina."

MISS LUCY CHERRY CRISP... accepts a citation from the North Carolina State Art Society from Dr. Francis Speight, who earlier accepted it on her behalf at the society's annual convention in Greensboro.

Crisp for her many cultural contributions to mankind in general, but particularly for her unselfish service to art in North Carolina."

Last Sunday night in a quiet ceremony in her Greenville apartment, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Speight and Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr. were on hand as Dr. Speight presented the citation to Miss Crisp. Dr. Speight said presenting the citation to Miss Crisp was one of the finest things he had ever been asked to do, saying it was a long overdue recognition of her diligent, creative work for art and artists.

Miss Crisp admitted it was a fine moment for her personally, and that she was deeply grateful, but added she had only done what she felt was her duty in the years she directed the growing young State Gallery which eventually became the museum.

Concurrent with recognition by the North Carolina State Art Society, the North Carolina Museum of Art has dedicated the catalog for the 33rd Annual

Belhaven Gallery

BELHAVEN — Four young artists are having a joint opening in sculpture and paintings at EEI's Little Korners of the World today, with a reception beginning at 1:00 and continuing until 6:00 p.m.

Dennis Rust and John Behr, both of East Carolina University, are showing ceramics. Behr's are hanging lanterns. Rust's works are fountains and ceramic sculpture. The two artists have assisted in planning and preparing the outdoor garden and pool at EEI's. Their work will be shown both inside the gallery and in the garden.

The two painters are Patricia R. Turlington of Goldsboro and Betty Truelove. Both were students at Meredith College.

Music On Campus

The annual combined choruses and the ECU Symphony Orchestra appear this afternoon in the East Carolina University annual holiday season presentation of a major work in oratorio form. This year, 250 singers and 80 instrumentalists, under the direction of Robert Hause, ECU Symphony Orchestra conductor, presents Ernest Bloch's "Sacred Service," with Dr. Paul Aliapoulos as featured soloist.

The performance, at Wright Auditorium, being at 3:15 p.m. It is free and open to the public.

Two other performances are scheduled for the week at East Carolina University, both at the Recital Hall at 8:15 p.m. There is no admission charge. The public is invited to both performances.

—Wednesday: Music of Dr. Gregory Kosteck, composer-in-residence, ECU: The program consists of eight compositions, ranging from pieces for two instrumentalists to one requiring 19 players.

—Thursday: Mrs. Josephine Simons will give a piano recital for the Master of Music Degree. A member of the Music Faculty at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, Mrs. Simons will play one of her own compositions, "Passacaglia." Her program will also include — "Sonata opus 110 in A flat," Beethoven; "Sonata No. 3," Prokofiev; and "Symphonic Etudes," by Schumann.

THE GOOD THAT MEN DO LIVES BEYOND THEM

The donation of an organ, such as a kidney or an eye is a prime example of man doing continuing good. Actually it is the last chance for someone to do something for his fellow man. Organ donation knows no economic barriers. It is the great common denominator. Whether a man be prince or pauper he can make the same wonderful gift, and in doing so a part of him endures.

At this time of year when the spirit of giving is so much in our minds, consider making out a donor card or adding it to your will. The more donors the greater the opportunity for matching ideal donors and thus more chance for success.

Microscope On Eighty Students

By TOM MILLER
 SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Eighty junior high school students from a black ghetto area go under an educational microscope in a pilot project designed to help change rising patterns of juvenile delinquency.

The students, 60 boys and 20 girls from Benjamin Franklin Junior High, are the subjects of a program called Behavioral Evolution Through Achievement Management (BEAM).

The project will be conducted by the San Francisco Unified School District and the YMC and YWCA units in the Fillmore District where the school is located.

Statistics and information gained during the nine-month project also will be made available to the San Francisco County Juvenile Court Division, said the director, Ray Williams.

Main Thrust
 The main thrust of the project is "keep these kids out of jail," said Al Silverstein, of the San Francisco United School District. He said the students chosen for the project will be classified as juvenile delinquents because of their past histories or showing signs of becoming delinquent.

BEAM will have a two-pronged approach: Behavioral modification techniques to improve reading skills, and group dynamic sessions to strengthen individual ego structures and social skills.

"Statistics show that there is a strong correlation between kids who cannot read and juvenile delinquents," Williams said.

Working to improve students' reading capabilities is not new. The use of a "reward system" in the BEAM project is unique, however. The "reward system" simply means officials will use money to motivate the students to reach certain reading achievements.

Silverstein said about $2 per week for each student will be earmarked for the reading program. He said money will be used because the "reward system" in behavioral modification is based on a "reward" that the student is willing to work to attain.

Use Their Standards
 "You must use something on their standard of values," Silverstein said, "and these kids think in terms of money." Project Director Williams said the "reward system" is a new approach for teaching reading, and he was not sure of what the results would be.

"What we may wind up with is delinquents who can read," Williams said.

The second major component of BEAM will involve the human relations group meetings, or "encounter type" sessions. Silverstein said trained group leaders will guide the twice-weekly sessions, where the student will "confront himself and his peers with many of his social and personal problems."

Silverstein said the sessions are based on the hypothesis that the selected students are experiencing conflict with family, teachers, and other authority figures, and the conflict would provide motivation for change.

Collect Awards In Agriculture

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — University of California experts in agricultural economics have won three of the seven top awards presented for writing and research this year by the American Agricultural Economics Association.

Two of the awards went to agricultural economists on the Berkeley campus and the third to an expert on the Davis campus.

The awards bolstered the university's dominant position in agricultural economics in the United States.

Irish Fared Well Without Banks

By DONAL O'HIGGINS
DUBLIN (UPI) — Irishmen managed so well without banks for six months, they have now set up an inquiry to find out how they did it.

From the result may flow proposals for a radical overhaul of Ireland's whole commercial banking system.

Professor Michael P. Fogarty, director of the Economic and Social Research Institute is heading the inquiry into the basic causes of the dispute that closed the banks, and will make recommendations to the government as to how such closures may be avoided in the future.

He also will attempt to unravel how a modern, sophisticated economy managed to operate more or less smoothly for so long outside a banking system.

Long and Bitter Shutdown
As Fogarty and his team of experts got down to work, Ireland's banks were still a far cry from normal operations after the longest and bitterest shutdown the nation has ever suffered or, as some would say, enjoyed.

On Nov. 17 the banks reopened to the public for the first time since labor trouble closed them on April 30, but only for two and a-half hours a day in order to take in the $8.4 billion worth of checks that had piled up outside the system during the marathon shutdown.

Previously, bank clerks had worked for several weeks behind closed doors tackling a similar pile-up inside the system, the legacy of a two-month so-slow by clerks prior to April 30.

For Irishmen the sight of closed bank doors was no novelty. It had happened twice before, once in 1951 when commercial banks closed for seven weeks, and again in 1966 when they shut for 12 weeks. In between, in 1954, they worked restricted hours for 14 weeks.

History of Discontent
Behind the latest closure stretched a history of bitterness and discontent within the banking service reaching back to the days of British rule.

In 1917 when the bank officials association was formed to represent the staffs, strike action had to be threatened before it was recognized as a negotiating body.

Ever since it has been engaged in a running fight with the management—represented by the banks standing committee—in its efforts to better salary and work conditions of its 7,000 members.

Banking in Ireland has traditionally been a somewhat genteel profession, high in prestige and low in money benefits. It has also been something of a closed shop, operating in a club-like atmosphere with employment preference given to the sons and daughters of staff members.

Country Club Approach
Throughout the years its method of conducting business or drumming it up changed but little. Emphasis was on the country-club, make-friends-in-town approach. The local bank manager and his staff were the pillars of town society, even though their take-home pay averaged around $36 a week.

If the banks could be persuaded to give a little more money, make promotion a little more rapid, and shorten the working hours to a five-day week, most of the workers would have been quite happy with the staid old way of things.

The management gave a little. It introduced the five-day week, it upped salaries and gave longer holidays.

But it also decided to change other things, too. It introduced American-style banking methods based on a study by a U.S. firm of consultants. Veteran employees were pushed aside for aggressive young men using "results-by-any-method" approach.

American-Style Banking
Stress was placed on degrees, examinations and courses and the courtly ways of other years were out. American banking interests had moved into Ireland and they had to be met by American-style go-getting for business.

Young and sometimes brash executives with fat expense accounts living in bank-financed houses, with cars and other "perks," set the pace for the old-timers. Discontent spread rapidly. The battle-lines were drawn.

It was only a matter of pretext before the showdown came. This was found in a demand—backed by the state's labor conciliation court—for payment of revised salary scales before the old agreement ran out.

Management dug its heels in and a war of attrition began. Bank staffs worked restricted hours, they refused overtime. Management cut their salaries in a ratio of unworked hours. Paper work piled up, clogging the bank system.

Announce Closing
At precisely 12:20 p.m. on April 30, the clearing banks which between them employ 7,000 workers in 900 branches across the republic announced they had no option but to close because of the backlog that had been built up.

Since the banks had taken the initiative it was, strictly speaking, a closure. The staff called it a lockout. For the public it meant another whirl on the financial merry-go-round with every man becoming his own banker overnight.

They reacted with an ingenuity garnered from past experience. They turned to the local pub keeper, the garage owner, the supermarket, the local cinema and scores of other businesses they knew must have their custom to keep going. The price of their custom was a piece of paper, taken in trust and kept in hope.

It was a return to basic economics, if not quite to the barter stage. It put to the test the bank's own maxim: "Cash is only a small part of banking, trust is the greater part."

At first, both customer and publican reacted with caution. As the weeks turned into months, this was abandoned in favor of a take-a-chance-on-anyone system. It worked well, even if the odd nervous twich crossed the pub keeper's face every now and again.

The suddenness of the closure had brought the near certainty of disaster for many. Routine bank order payments, insurance premiums, mortgages and a score of other items normally paid monthly by the banks went unpaid. Few put aside the money against the day the banks would re-open and settle the lot in one go.

Instead, wages and salaries were spent over the counter for goods. When that ran out checks were cashed. When they ran out special check books were bought.

Despite the willingness of the business community to cooperate, the economy took a nasty blow from the closure. Property sales slumped by 60 per cent; the stock market virtually ceased operation; lawyers, slow at the best of times, were denied many legal documents and deeds locked away in bank vaults; auto sales and other enterprises requiring big outlays suffered severe cutbacks.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR GEORGE P. SCHULZ,

Ex Secretary of Labor

How do the Federal minimum wage laws affect salaried employees? Can the employer expect them to work an indefinite number of hours without extra pay?—Mrs. R. L. Pyatt, Ravenswood, W. Va.

● Most salaried employees are covered by the Federal minimum wage law. Unless a salaried worker qualifies for exemption as an executive, professional employee, or outside salesman, he is eligible for overtime pay. The law requires that a person who works more than 40 hours per week be paid not less than time and a half his regular rate for overtime hours worked.

FOR WILSON D. MCKERROW,

Executive Director, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children

Which society was founded first, the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals or the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children?—C. F., Brooklyn, N.Y.

● The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA) was founded in New York City in 1866 through the efforts of Henry Bergh, who was concerned over cruelties inflicted upon animals, especially horses—the chief means of providing transportation and trucking at the time. The New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children (SPCC) was founded in 1875 through the efforts of Eldredge T. Gerry, an associate of Henry Bergh, and resulted from public concern aroused by cruelty inflicted upon an eight-year-old girl who was rescued from her tormentor through the intervention of the ASPCA on the grounds that the child was an animal.

FOR HARRY REASONER, newscaster

A friend of someone who was interviewed by you on "60 Minutes" told me that he was actually interviewed by someone else, and then the video tapes were edited to make it look as though you had asked him the questions. How often is this done?—Wilda W. Morris, Urbana, Ill.

● It's never done intentionally. When more than one interviewer works on a project—often because the reporter who is narrating the story can't be in two places at once—I think it's usually clear that the reporter is simply introducing the interview in question. There's certainly no intent to give the impression that one man does all the work.

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD, actress

Of all your movies, which did you enjoy making the most, and have you made any recent movies? I'm a great fan of yours and would like to know.—Angela Bell, San Antonio, Texas

● "Mildred Pierce" is my favorite film because I was lucky enough to win the Academy Award for my performance in it. But I have two other favorites—"Possessed," with Raymond Massey and Van Heflin and also "Humoresque," with John Garfield. My newest, "Trog," was made in England and is a science-fiction film.

FOR GEORGE M. ELSEY,

What person now holds the record for giving the most blood?—John R. England, Green Bay, Wis.

● The American Red Cross does not maintain a national compilation of individual or group donations. There is no "national record" of the most blood given.

FOR ART BUCHWALD, columnist

In your column you slaughter sacred cows of both the Democratic and Republican parties. Are you a registered voter of either party? If so, which one?—Stewart G. Real, Charleston, S.C.

● I don't belong to any political party. I'm against whomever is in power.

FOR TOM JONES, singer

Is it true that your attire for your TV show is personally selected by you and purchased at your expense?—A. Hoover, Huron, S.D.

● I design my clothing for my show, but it isn't bought at my expense.

FOR MARK DUNCAN,

Director of Officials, National Football League

Do football referees have to attend a special school like the baseball umpires school?—Leo Smith, Detroit, Mich.

● No specific school is established such as the Baseball Umpires School. Applicants, who have had many years of officiating experience on high-school and collegiate levels, are selected to join the professional football officiating staffs after having been observed under actual game conditions. All men must take yearly rules examinations, attend a lengthy preseason clinic, and conduct weekly crew conferences prior to every game. The previous week's film is observed, and League reports based upon over-all performances are discussed in detail.

FOR FRANCES KNIGHT,

Director, U.S. Passport Agency

Is it true that the three-year passport has been extended to five years?—Mary Krauss, Trumansburg, N.Y.

● Under Public Law No. 90-428, all passports issued on or after August 26, 1968, are valid for a period of five years from the date of issue, unless specifically limited. In addition, the validity of all outstanding passports valid on that date was automatically extended to five years from the original date of issue without the need of renewal.

FOR ROBERT YOUNG,

of tv's "Marcus Welby, M.D."

I have heard that you carry the real-life title of "Doctor." What formal education do you actually have?—J. T. Blackburn, Key West, Fla.

● I have absolutely no medical education. As an actor, I rely completely on the expert advice provided by the series' medical advisers.

FOR DR. ARTHUR E. HARRISON,

Professor of Electrical Engineering, University of Washington

How fast is the "gallop" speed of a glacier?—Mrs. Laura Hill, Humboldt, Saskatchewan, Can.

● Not all glaciers "gallop." Different glaciers gallop at different but comparable rates, moving as far in a day as ordinary glaciers move in a year. They quickly attain this maximum speed, maintain it for several months, then gradually come to a complete halt. In 1956 the ice in the Muldrow Glacier on Mt. McKinley suddenly moved more than a mile per month for four months, after being virtually stationary during the preceding 50 years. A huge "wave" moved 35 miles through the glacier five-times faster than the motion of the ice itself.

FOR DR. L. TED FRIGARD,

How did the "whiplash injury" get its name?—Betty Reinhart, Suisun, Calif.

● The whiplash injury derives its name from the similarity to the lash of a whip. The body serves as the handle and the head is similar to the knot at the tip of the whip which increases the lashing effect to the neck. Whiplash injury is the term used to designate the recoil injury to the soft tissue structures of the neck, usually as a result of a rear-end automobile collision. The term "whiplash injury" was first used by the medical profession in 1928 and recognized as a traumatic injury in 1953.

FOR MARTHA MITCHELL,

wife of Attorney General John Mitchell

I have heard several explanations about your early-morning phone call asking the Arkansas Gazette to "crucify" Senator Fulbright. What's the real story?—Mrs. D. L., Austin, Texas

● That was the night the nomination of Judge Carswell had been rejected. I couldn't sleep, so I called the Arkansas Gazette in my home state. My intention was to dictate a letter to the Letters-to-the-Editor column. My thoughts ended up on the front page.

Want to ask a famous person a question? You can through this column, and we'll get the answer from the prominent person you designate. # How Your Job

The work you do—and the way you do it—

When Bill Tompkins, an aggressive young salesman, was offered a promotion to be field representative with a boost in salary, he eagerly accepted. But his wife kicked up a storm.

She was used to seeing her husband every morning at breakfast and having him come home every evening—and a field-representative's job would keep him out of town for weeks at a time. Rather than fight a civil war in the family, Bill reversed his decision and turned down the promotion. But later, feeling that his career had been stymied, he began to brood and to turn away from his wife. A little more than a year later the couple separated.

Conflicts like this between the demands of a man's—or woman's—job and those of his home life have always existed. But nowadays they occur more frequently and are often more serious. Large corporations require their up-and-coming young executives to travel more. They also require them to relocate. In certain industries today a man may have to move his home every three or four years as he assumes new titles and duties, and the number of moves he makes is often a reflection of his success. But relocating means uprooting one's family from a familiar community and settling, often with some trepidation, in a new one. A man's wife and children may be violently opposed to

The breadwinner, therefore, finds himself in a dilemma. Does his career come before domestic harmony?

Dr. Joan Aldous, Associate Professor of Family Studies at the University of Minnesota, feels that it does. For the "overwhelming majority of men," she says, their work ranks first as a "life interest."

Professor Robert R. Bell of Philadelphia's Temple University, who has studied the effect a person's job has on his family life, agrees. "Given a choice between filling his occupational role or his family role, the ambitious man will choose his occupation," Bell says. "Often this will be socially applauded—for he may be defined as performing above and beyond the call of duty as family breadwinner."

When the requirements of a job become extra heavy, most wives try to cooperate, at least at first. Some corporate wives resign themselves to the "rules" and accept the premise that the company has the right to make certain personal demands on a man seeking advancement. But other wives begin to feel ignored, bitter, and unloved because they are literally deprived of their husband's companionship.

The wife of a much-traveled engineer put it this way: "In the past few months I've had to handle alone the premature birth of our new baby, a fire in our house one night, and the children's misery when our dog was run over. I'm fed up with being alone so much."

Similarly, a suburban housewife on Long Island, N.Y., felt she couldn't put up any longer with the long night hours her husband worked as a radio broadcaster. She began to wonder whether he was staying away from home so much because he didn't like being with her or whether he might be having an affair. Questioning her desirability as a woman, she became depressed, and her health deteriorated.

Near divorce, the couple met with a caseworker of their community Family Service Bureau. The husband was made to understand his wife's emotional vulnerability and her feelings of insecurity. As a result, he applied for a change in his hours, and the marriage was saved.

When a wife complains to her husband, "Why don't you pay more attention to the kids?" her question is often symbolic of her own sense of rejection. But children, too, are affected by the nature of Father's job. Harvard sociologists found that middle-class fathers commonly expect their sons to go into the same general occupational sphere. Men in highly competitive fields, such as advertising, like to see their youngsters acting in a competitive and aggressive way. Self-employed businessmen tend to encourage individualistic behavior in their children.

Children are also affected by the tensions of a father's job. Take the case of Allan, a Miami man, who supervised plane loading for an airline. With planes leaving every 15 minutes, the work pressure kept his nerves drawn tight all day long. By the end of the day, Allan felt completely drained. For an hour after he came home from work, he just wanted to sit by himself with a drink. When his two sons—too young to understand their father's need to unwind—tried to tell him what had happened in school, he would lash out at them. This pattern was repeated night after night until the youngsters developed emotional problems.

Allan's wife, torn between loyalty to her husband and concern for her children, tried valiantly but unsuccessfully to act as mediator. Finally, she implored her husband to switch to a desk job with the airline, even though it paid less. In this case, the husband decided

A man's domestic life is often influenced by the kind of work he does. Marital unhappiness, for instance, is rated high among traveling salesmen and musicians, because of their irregular hours and frequent absences from home. Professional work imposes strong commitment, potentially competing with the demands of family. Doctors, lawyers, and engineers often expect "professionalism"—high competence—from their wives and children. Executives, pampered at work by secretaries and assistants, frequently assume members of their family will also obey orders, and that their homes will be just as neat as the office.

In contrast, factory workers in boring mechanized jobs—as well as blue-collar craftsmen and men in low-level office jobs develop a greater interest in home life. They look to the family as a haven from the monotony of their jobs and as a source of satisfaction that is missing in their work.

Men doing dangerous work (coal miners, astronauts, racing drivers) tend to expect their wives to be subservient. Laborers and service workers, more irregularly employed, are least involved in family tasks and decisions.

Odd working hours also have a significant bearing on the meshing of job and family. A University of Michigan survey revealed that afternoon-shift workers have special difficulty acting as fathers, while night-shift workers experience most discord with their wives.

Whatever a man's type of work, friction or harmony at home may be determined by what sociologists call the life cycle. A family is affected one way during the period when a junior executive is climbing the career ladder, or a young blue-collar worker is trying out different jobs. It's in these peak pressure years, Doctor Aldous observes, that men are likely to find it hard to cope with both job and family life. The squeeze eases in the 45-to-54-year stage, when job worries and financial pressures often lessen. Marital satisfaction usually increases, and career aspirations are apt to subside.

In subtle ways, too, life on the job makes its impact felt at home. If a man is treated with dignity at work, this is reflected in his own attitudes toward his family. If he is pushed around by his boss, he may take it out on his wife and children.

By THEODORE IRWIN

As for the impact on children, much depends on whether a mother likes her outside job. If she does, the influence is positive; for instance, she uses only mild discipline at home. According to sociologist J. Richard Udry of the University of North Carolina, children of mothers who hate their jobs are hostile to her. These women resent the pressures of doing housework in the evenings and on weekends, and they show it in short tempers, fatigue, and family arguments.

What can you and your spouse do to avoid having work endanger family harmony? Clark Blackburn, the General Director of the Family Service Association of America, offers this advice:

- When a husband is so involved in his job that he cannot or will not cut down his efforts or his hours, a wife should concentrate on the positive aspects of the situation. She can be proud of his accomplishments. Beyond the bigger paycheck, she can appreciate her husband's ability to handle responsibilities or do important work.

- A wife can build her own satisfactions. She can work part time, as a volunteer or a paid employee. If her husband takes pride in her accomplishments, she will find them even more rewarding.

- Even when a man is under severe job pressure, a couple must keep their long-range common goals in mind.

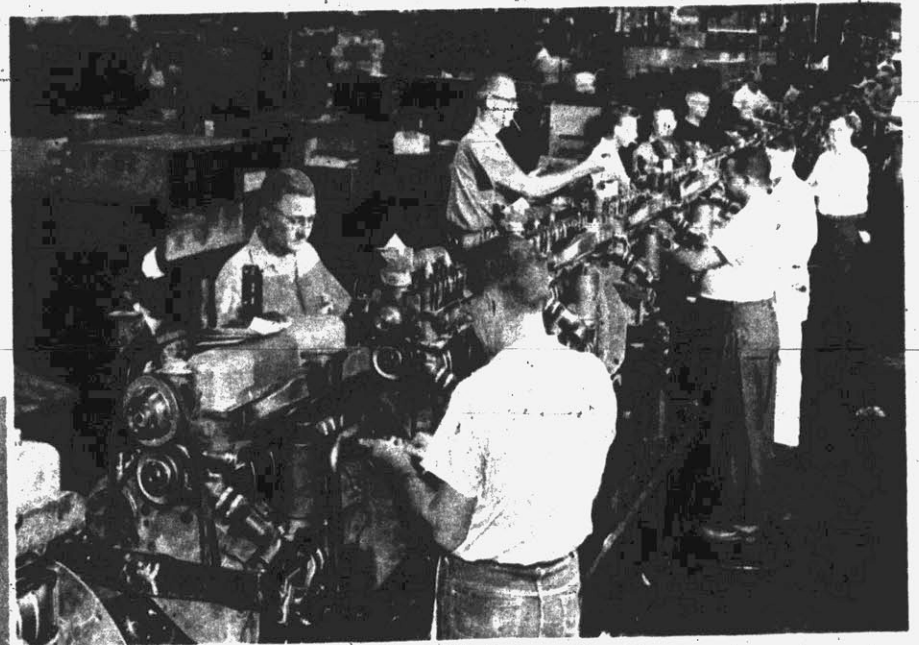

- For both the father and working mother, it's the quality of the relationship with children, rather than the hours spent, that count most. Despite limited spare time, busy parents can let a child know they share his interests and hobbies. His problems can be aired and discussed at mealtimes. "No job is so inhuman," says Blackburn, "that you can't find time to be involved with your child. Make a point of demonstrating in indirect ways that you really care about him."

- The husband who constantly takes work home can't expect his wife to be delighted at being left to her own devices every evening. He should ask himself: "Is all this overtime work really necessary? Am I doing it to avoid her? If not, shouldn't I have more fun with the family?"

- To prevent blotting out his wife from his world of work, a busy husband should try to share his satisfactions and problems with her. If she is willing to listen, she can give him emotional and moral support. Whenever possible, he should take her along on a business trip or out-of-town convention.

- When family friction erupts and persists, talk it out. Try to appreciate one another's feelings and needs, and those of the children. In the process, view your long-term aspirations as a total family. Work out a family plan for the allocation of responsibilities and for projects to enjoy as a unit.

- If help is necessary to cope with a family crisis, seek professional counseling as a positive step. Consult your phone book for a family-service agency in your community.

"Every marriage has its testing points," says Clark Blackburn, "and pressures in a man's work can be critical. With re-evaluation and compromises, obstacles can be overcome and adjustments made. Such tests can usually be met effectively when there is a sound marital relationship with good communication between partners." ♦

. . . executives, such as one above, may be spoiled by office staff, then want same treatment at home. Workers with high-risk jobs (r.) often expect wives to be subservient.

TURKEY MENU

Sherried Bouillon                      Nibblers

Parmesan Potatoes

Brussels Sprouts                      Candied Yams

Cranberry Mold                      Ginger Relish

Hot Dinner Rolls                      Butter Curls

Celery and Olives

Mince Pie                      Pumpkin Ice Cream

Mint Patties

Sherried Bouillon

- 2 cans (10½ oz. each) condensed beef broth
- 1 cup chilled ginger ale
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¼ cup sherry

Chill ingredients. Combine in a pitcher; stir gently. Pour over crushed ice in 6-oz. glasses. Serve with nibblers.

6 to 8 servings

Roast Turkey with Cran-Prune Stuffing

- A 12- to 15-lb. turkey
- Salt
- Cran-Prune Stuffing (see recipe)
- Glaze (see recipe)

1. Prepare turkey for stuffing. Rub body and neck cavities with salt. Lightly fill cavities with stuffing. (Extra stuffing may be put into a greased, covered baking dish or wrapped in aluminum foil and baked with turkey the last hour of roasting time.) Fasten neck skin to back with skewer and bring wing tips onto back. Push drumsticks under band of skin at tail, or tie with cord.

2. Place turkey, breast up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Generously brush turkey with glaze. Insert a meat thermometer so that the tip is in the center of the inside thigh muscle or the thickest part of breast meat. Roast in a 325°F. oven, brushing frequently with remaining glaze.

3. When turkey has roasted for two-thirds the required time (3 to 3½ hrs.), remove from oven. Crease a large piece of aluminum foil lengthwise to make a tent, and arrange it loosely over bird. Return to oven and continue roasting. The tent keeps turkey moist and prevents overbrowning.

4. The turkey is done when thermometer registers 180°F.-185°F., and drumstick twists out of joint easily. (Total roasting time will be 4½ to 5½ hrs.)

5. Transfer turkey to heated serving platter. Let bird stand covered with the foil tent for about 30 min. This allows the meat to absorb juices and makes the bird easier to carve.

6. Garnish platter with lettuce leaves and pear halves filled with Cranberry-Ginger Relish (see recipe).

About 12 servings

Note: For roast capon, prepare and stuff a 6- to 7-lb. capon as for turkey. Roast in a 325°F. oven about 2½ hrs.

Cran-Prune Stuffing

- 2 pkgs. (8 oz. each) herb-seasoned stuffing croutons
- 1½ cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
- 1 cup diced pitted prunes
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 large onion, chopped
- ½ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 1½ cups orange juice

SPAM 'N EGGS BENEDICT

- SPAM English muffin
- Eggs Hollandaise sauce

Pan fry thin slices of SPAM, place on split toasted English muffin. Nestle a poached egg on top and drizzle all over with rich Hollandaise sauce. Use your own Hollandaise recipe or quick packaged mix.

SPAM SPREAD CUT-UPS

For canapes with a gay party flair, simply cut several different kinds of bread with small cookie cutters. Lavish on all-meat SPAM Spread and decorate with a variety of colorful garnishes like cream cheese, pimiento, olive slices, green pepper or even classy caviar. FINE FOOD PRODUCTS

Combine stuffing mix, cranberries, prunes, celery, and onion in a large bowl. Gradually add a blend of butter or margarine and orange juice, tossing lightly until mixed.

Stuffing for one 12- to 15-lb. turkey

Glaze

Blend  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup butter or margarine, melted,  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup cranberry juice cocktail, and  $\frac{1}{2}$  cup orange juice. Brush poultry frequently with the mixture.

Giblet Gravy: Follow directions for Orange Gravy (for duckling), using a mixture of giblet broth (prepared from neck, heart, liver, and gizzard of turkey) and pan drippings, for the 2 cups of liquid. Finely chop the cooked giblets and add to thickened gravy the last few minutes of cooking.

Parmesan Potatoes

Instant-style mashed potatoes (using amounts as indicated for 12 servings)

1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

1. Heavily grease a 2-qt. casserole. Set aside.

2. Add eggs, one at a time, to mashed potatoes, beating thoroughly after each addition. Continue to beat until potatoes are fluffy. Adding gradually, beat in cheese just until blended.

3. Remove  $\frac{1}{2}$  cups potatoes and lightly spoon remainder into casserole. Filling bag no more than two-thirds full, spoon reserved potatoes into a pastry bag having a large star decorating tube. Force onto top of potatoes in casserole, forming a decorative design. If desired, refrigerate until ready to use.

4. Bake at 375°F. 35 to 40 min., or until thoroughly heated and top is lightly browned. If not refrigerated, heat only until top is lightly browned.

10 to 12 servings

Brussels Sprouts and Walnuts

2 lbs. Brussels sprouts, or 3 pkgs. (10 oz. each) frozen Brussels sprouts, cooked, following pkg. directions

$\frac{1}{2}$  cup butter or margarine

1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

1. Cook the fresh Brussels sprouts, covered, in boiling salted water 10 to 15 min., or until tender. Drain.

2. Heat butter or margarine in a large skillet. Add nuts and stir occasionally until lightly toasted. Add Brussels sprouts and toss until well coated.

3. Turn into a heated serving bowl and serve immediately. 10 to 12 servings

Cranberry Christmas Mold

berry-flavored gelatin

2 cups boiling water

cranberry sauce

$\frac{3}{4}$  cup lemon juice

1. Pour boiling water over gelatin in a large bowl and stir occasionally until dissolved.

2. Empty the jellied cranberry sauce into a bowl, and beat until smooth using a rotary beater. Mix in lemon juice. Stir into dissolved gelatin.

3. Pour mixture into a 2-qt. ring mold or a fancy mold. Chill until firm, 8 hrs. or overnight.

4. To unmold, quickly rinse a chilled platter with cold water (so mold may be centered). Carefully run a knife or small spatula around edge and tube of mold. Dip mold into a pan of warm, not hot, water for only about 10 seconds. Remove and briskly tap bottom of mold to loosen. Cover with the rinsed, chilled platter and turn mold upside down. Lift off mold. Repeat dipping procedure if necessary.

5. If desired, fill a small bowl with Cranberry-Ginger Relish (see recipe) and place in center of gelatin mold.

16 to 20 servings

Cranberry-Ginger Relish

2 navel oranges, rinsed and cut in

4 cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained

$1\frac{1}{2}$  to 2 cups sugar

$\frac{1}{2}$  cup finely chopped crystallized ginger

1. Grind oranges and cranberries, using coarse blade of grinder.

2. Combine with sugar and ginger; mix well. Chill relish until ready to use.

About 4 cups relish

Christmas Tree Mince Pie

Pastry for a 2-crust 9-in. pie
(prepared from a pie crust mix)

1 jar (28 oz.) prepared mincemeat

1 tablespoon brandy

1 cup chopped walnuts

1. Thinly roll two-thirds of the pastry into a round 1 in. larger than over-all size of pie plate. Fit pastry into a 9-in. pie plate. (Use overhang for decorative edge.) Set aside remaining one-third of the pastry.

2. Combine prepared mincemeat, brandy, and nuts and turn into the pastry-lined pie plate.

3. Roll out remaining pastry into a round large enough to cover the top of pie. With a Christmas tree cutter, cut out small trees.

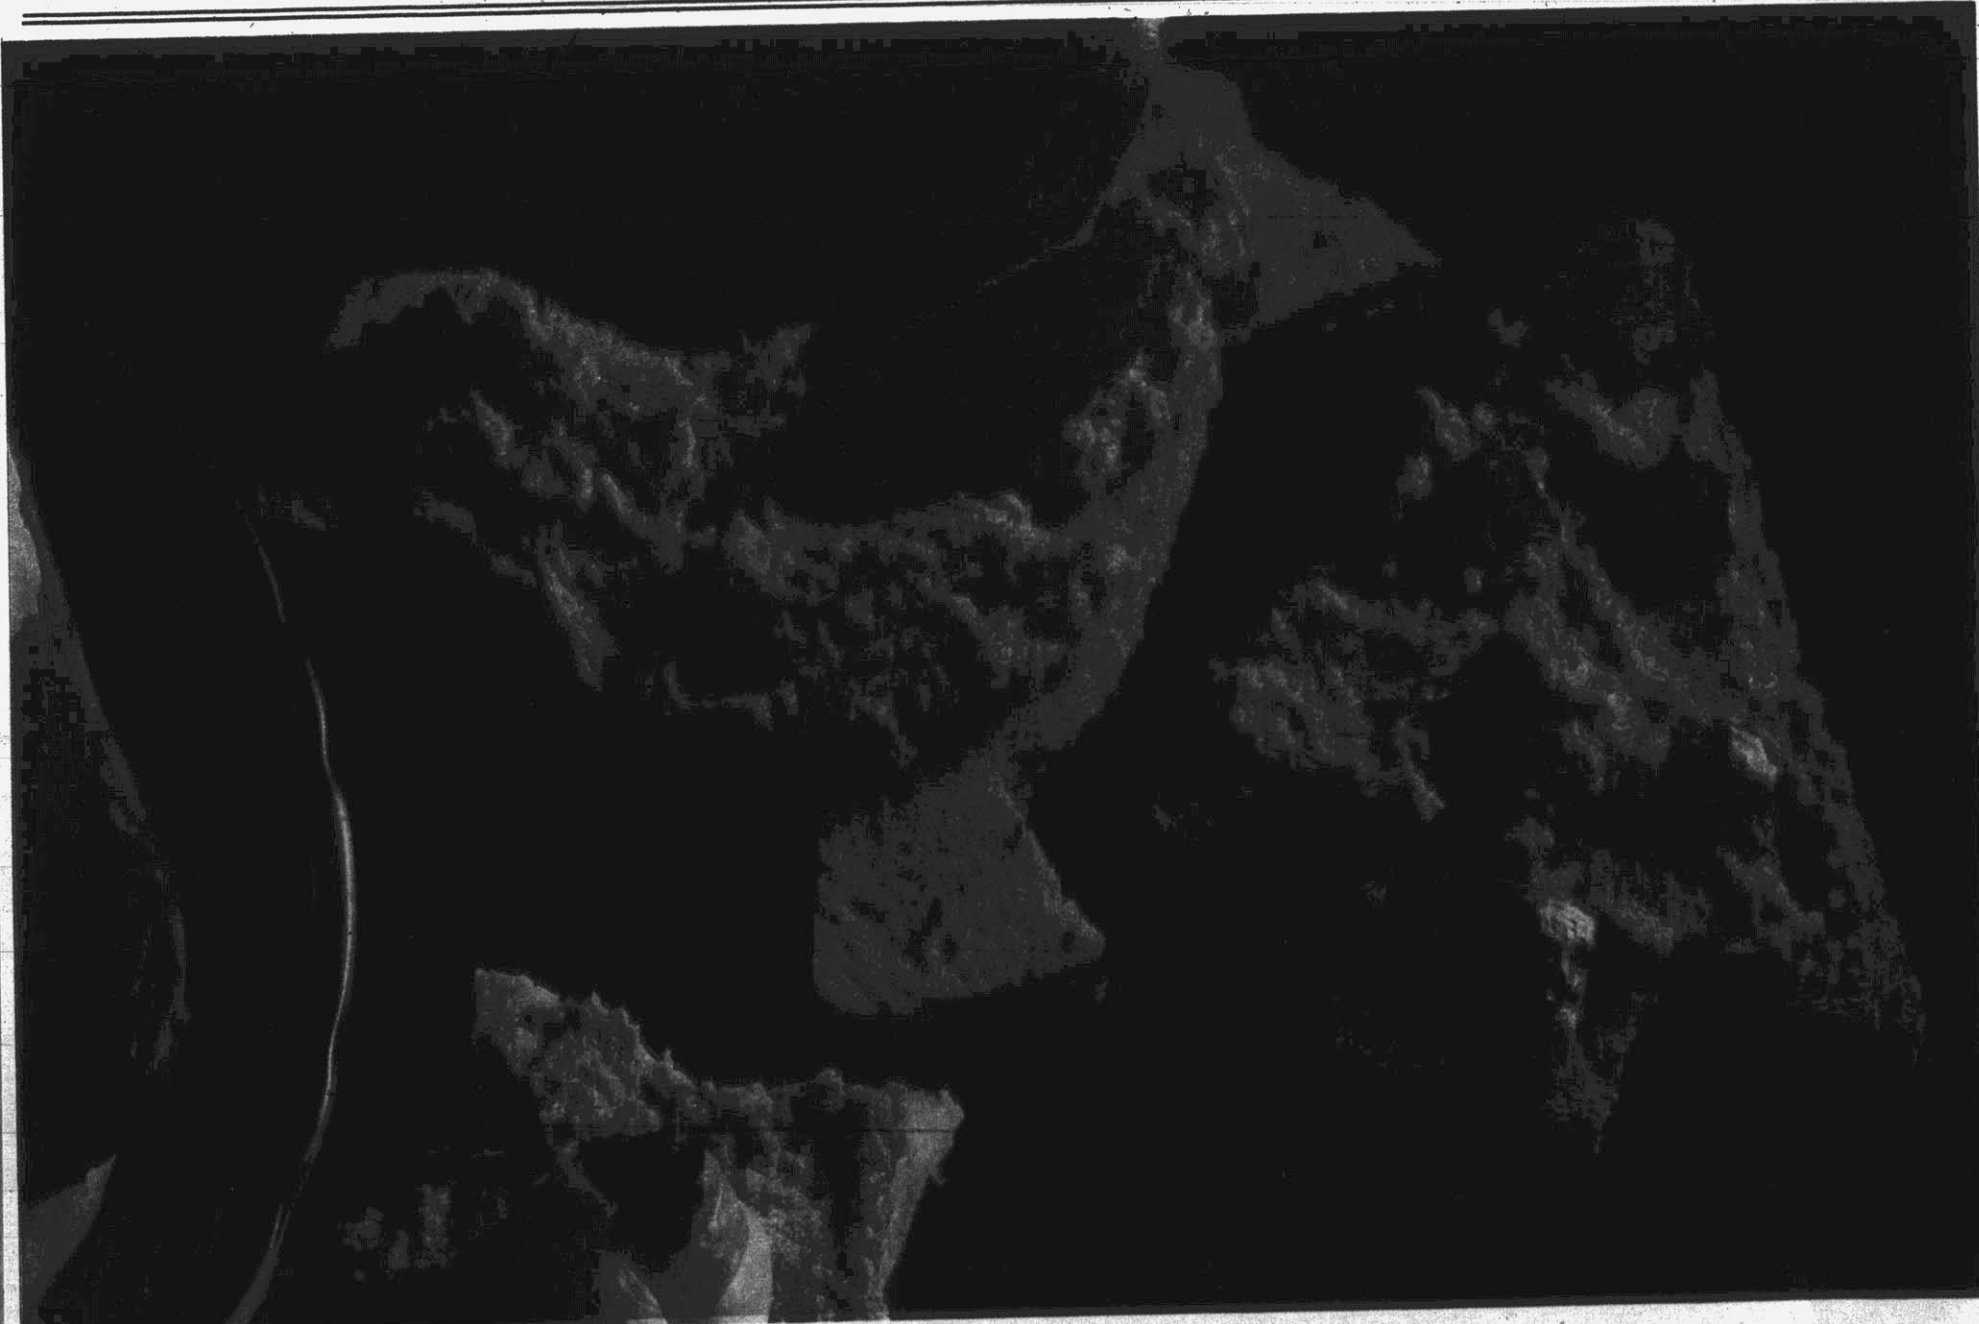

4. Place top crust on filling. Complete decorative edge around pastry crust. Set cutouts on top of pastry in an attractive design (see photo).

5. Bake pie at 400°F. 35 to 40 min., or until it is lightly browned.

6. Decorate exposed filling with lines of white frosting and dot with red cinnamon candies (see photo).

Pumpkin-Pecan Ice Cream

- 1 cup canned pumpkin
- ½ to ½ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 cup chilled heavy cream, whipped
- Candied Pecans (see recipe)

1. Mix pumpkin with a blend of the sugar and spices in a large bowl. Stir in orange juice and extract. Fold in whipped cream.
2. Turn mixture into a refrigerator tray and freeze until firm.
3. Serve in stemmed sherbet glasses, and immediately spoon Candied Pecans over ice cream.

Note: Pastry tart shells baked with a sprinkle of pumpkin pie spice may be cooled, filled with Pumpkin Ice Cream, and topped with Candied Pecans.

Candied Pecans

- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 cup pecan halves

1. Combine butter or margarine and brown sugar in a small heavy skillet. Cook and stir over medium heat until bubbly. Add nuts and stir until they are evenly coated.
2. Spread out nuts in a shallow baking pan; place under broiler about 5 in. from heat. Broil about 1 min., or until nuts are lightly toasted; sprinkle lightly with salt.
3. Use as a topping for ice cream or pumpkin pie.

Beet Soup

- 1 can (16 oz.) whole beets
- ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 5 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 egg, well beaten

3. Heat beet-water mixture, sugar, salt, and lemon juice to boiling in a saucepan, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and gradually add ¾ cup of the hot mixture to beaten egg, stirring constantly; stir into beet mixture in sauce-

Mini Cocktail Biscuits

- 1½ cups all-purpose buttermilk biscuit mix
- 3 tablespoons shredded Cheddar cheese
- ¼ teaspoon ground thyme
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup milk

1. Combine biscuit mix, cheese, and thyme in a mixing bowl. Stir with a fork to mix. Cut in the butter or margarine; add milk and stir with a fork until blended.
2. Gently gather dough, forming it into a ball, and turn it out onto a lightly floured pastry canvas. Knead gently with fingertips.
3. Roll to ½-in. thickness. Using a 1- to 1¼-in. biscuit cutter, cut dough and place on baking sheets.
4. Bake at 450°F. 8 to 10 min., until biscuits are delicately browned.
5. Just before serving, split warm biscuits and fill with slivers of thinly sliced ham; arrange on serving trays.

Roast Duckling a l'Orange

- 2 (4 lbs. each) ducklings
- 1 to 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- Orange Gravy (see recipe)

1. Prepare stuffing if desired (see recipe for Cran-Prune Stuffing, preparing one-half recipe). Set aside.
2. Rinse ducklings and pat dry with absorbent paper. Rub cavities with salt.
3. Heat orange juice and butter or margarine together over low heat until melted. Set aside.
4. If stuffing is used, lightly fill body and neck cavities with it. To close body cavities, sew or skewer and lace with cord; fasten neck skin to backs and wings to bodies with skewers.
5. Place ducklings, breast up, on rack in roasting pan. Brush with juice mixture and frequently during roasting.

6. Roast, uncovered, at 325°F. 2½ to 3 hrs. Remove drippings to a bowl as they accumulate. Place ducklings on a platter; remove skewers and cord. Garnish with broiled orange slices, maraschino cherries, parsley; serve with Orange Gravy. About 6 servings

Thumbprint Cookies

1/2 cup Mazola® margarine
 1/4 cup sugar
 1/4 cup KARO Dark Corn Syrup
 1 egg, separated
 1 1/4 cups unsifted flour
 1 cup finely chopped nuts
 Tart jelly

Mix margarine and sugar. Stir in Karo, egg yolk and flour. Chill. Roll into 1-inch balls. Dip into slightly beaten egg white. Roll in nuts. Place on greased baking sheet. Press thumb in center of each cookie. Bake in 325°F. oven about 20 mins. While warm, fill with jelly. Makes 24. Tie ornament on top of apothecary jar.

Look at the delicious, tempting holiday treats you can make so easily with Karo® Corn Syrup! Karo is the silky smooth sweetener that brings a special, spirited taste to all sorts of seasonal goodies — for presents, for parties or just for the family.

Stained Glass Window Fruit Cake

1 1/2 pounds pitted dates
 1 pound candied pineapple chunks
 1 pound candied cherries
 2 pounds walnut or pecan halves
 2 cups sifted flour
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt

4 eggs, beaten
 1/2 cup KARO Dark Corn Syrup
 1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 1/4 cup Mazola corn oil

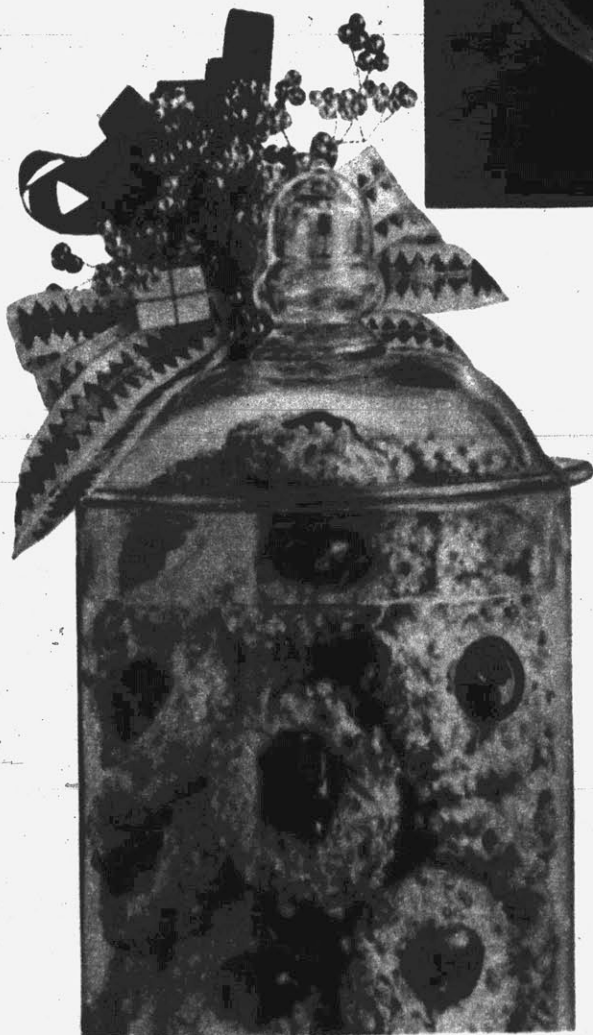

Grease 10x4-inch tube cake pan; line with greased paper. Mix fruits and nuts. Sift dry ingredients. Mix eggs, Karo, sugar and oil. Gradually beat in dry ingredients; pour over fruit mixture and mix. Firmly pack into pan. Bake in 275°F. oven about 2 hours 15 minutes or until top appears dry. Cool in pan. May be baked in 2 (9x5x3-inch) loaf pans. Top with Holiday corsage and green velvet ribbon.

Lollipop Candy Tree

1 cup sugar
 1/2 cup KARO Light Corn Syrup
 1/4 cup water
 3/4 teaspoon favorite extract
 4 to 5 drops food coloring

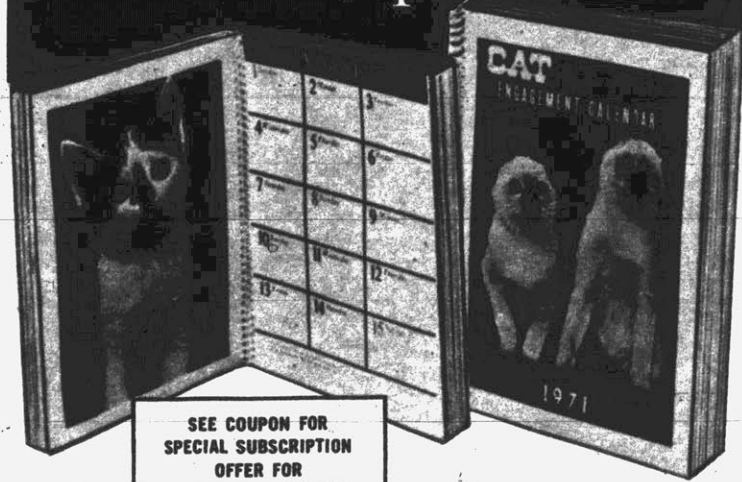

Grease small cookie cutters with oil; place over end of thin sticks on greased baking sheet. Mix first 3 ingredients. Cook and stir over medium heat until sugar is dissolved. Boil, without stirring, until temperature reaches 295°F. or until drops of syrup separate into hard threads in cold water. Remove from heat. Stir in extract and coloring. Immediately pour into cutters to depth of 1/8 inch. Makes about 20 lollipops. Insert sticks into Styrofoam cone.

Jules Jürgensen. Not just another pretty face.

There are 7,258,204,800 reasons why the next watch you buy should be a Jules Jürgensen.

That's the number of seconds in 230 years.

And Jules Jürgensen has been a great name in watches all that time. Most any brand you can think of is a johnny-come-lately compared to us. You have to make a very fine product to have people buy it year after year.

You've got to have beautiful faces, of course.

But the face is there for everybody to see. It's easy to choose a watch by its looks.

You've got to be beautiful on the inside, too. Beautifully running. Beautifully lasting. Beautifully accurate.

We think there is an inner beauty in a precision-made watch. That's why we're such fanatics about the tolerances of our jeweled movements—about the way they're checked and inspected—about the way they perform under brutal testing conditions.

Centuries ago, the other Swiss watchmakers said that Jules Jürgensen had a compulsive urge for perfection. We'd like to think we inherited it.

Here: the Count for him, the Contessa for her. 17 jewel movements in classic 14K gold cases, with Florentine yellow gold dials and graceful Roman numerals on the outer rim. The Count, about $155. The Contessa, about $135. Other Jules Jürgensen watches from $80 to $10,000 at fine stores everywhere. Write for an illustrated brochure and name of your nearest authorized dealer.

JACKIE STEWART:

Go-Go Champ of Auto

By A. F. GONZALEZ, JR.

Sports-car racing champion Jackie Stewart would drive at twice the speed of sound if he thought he could stay on the track.

"The funny thing is," says Jackie, "I get no real impression of speed at all when I'm driving. The only time it frightens me is when something goes wrong. Then things start happening in a bit of a hurry."

Nothing went wrong in last year's multi-race Grand Prix season. Stewart out-drove everyone in sight to pile up six first places and speed home with the world crown atop his tartan-emblazoned white racing helmet.

But this year was something else. Jackie decided to switch cars—from a blue Matra to a March model, an English car with a Ford engine. Later in the race series he switched again to a Tyrrell. Outcome for the 1970 Grand Prix races found Stewart with only one first place, two second places, and one third place for an over-all fifth in the standings. Aficionados agree that it wasn't the fault of the driver, but the change of cars. According to the experts, Jackie Stewart is the best driver in the world today—and all eyes are on him for the 1971 races.

Jackie is racy in more ways than one. He wears his hair in early Beatle style, likes bright yellow trousers worn with orange see-through shirts, and could be taken for a pop-rock hero. He's small—five-foot, six-and-a-half inches and 148 pounds of Scotsman. He's also very rich; he earned a quarter of a million dollars in 1969 alone. If he lives, he is likely to become the fourth superstar of postwar auto racing, rivalling greats such as Juan Manuel Fangio, Stirling Moss, and the late Jimmy Clark for the affection of racing fans.

He and Helen, his bride of seven years, now live in a $240,000 villa on the hills overlooking Switzerland's Lake Geneva. The nine-room mansion is packed with silver trophies and awash in fan mail and advertising contracts.

A keen competitor, Jackie is also a sharp businessman. "Naturally I live in Switzerland for tax reasons," he explains. "What else would you expect of a Scot?" He's signed up with the same business manager who guides the fortunes of top golfers. His money goes into mutual funds, franchises, and blue chip shares. Just five years after he started big-time racing, Jackie stands to take more money out of the sport than anyone else ever has.

"I am a true Scot. I have this ever-present feeling of financial insecurity," he grins. "I reckon I have another 10 years of championship racing. I don't want to win the title just once. That could be pure good luck. Fangio won it five times. That's the main thing—keep on winning and stay alive.

"Helen goes with me to the races," he reveals, "though she doesn't hang on my coat-tails. We have a full-time nanny to look after the boys." Jack is the proud father of two tow-heads, Paul, four, and Mark, three. Helen shuts her eyes to the dangers of the sport. "When you are close to someone it is unthinkable to think of anything happening to him," she explains. "There's no sense to that kind of logic, but it is an instinctive reaction with me. All the times I watched Jackie race, I always had the feeling he'd be all right. The car might go, but not him."

The racing world began hearing Jackie's name in the early 1960's. The speed bug hit him after his brother Jimmy, eight years older, went into the racing game. Jim gave it up after two serious crashes, vowing to give his parents a little peace of mind. Younger brother Jackie picked up the torch, however. To avoid worrying his mother, "I started out to race under the name of A. N. Other. I thought that terribly clever." By 15, he was thoroughly launched on a career of international competition.

Stewart dissipates hardly at all. "It's very important. You have to be alert. I drink very little, and I eat lightly. I have wine with meals but don't even drink that two days before a race. I keep in good shape, run, play squash, take sauna baths, and have massages."

Wee Jackie is the perfect size for the car—small enough to squeeze into its tiny, two-foot-wide cockpit, yet big enough to see over the hood. Like a jockey, his hands and arms are strong, and his eyesight is phenomenal.

Jackie analyzes his style of racing: "A racing driver synchronizes his mind and body to the elements he is competing against. He reduces the blur in front of him to slow motion, approaching a corner, braking, changing gear, lining up the car, hitting the apex, and leaving the corner with a calculated and unhurried action. You've got the track, the car, the speed, and you've got to merge them all into one, so that all of you are on the same wave length. To do it exactly right is a wonderful sensation. I get a tremendous thrill from driving a car fast and properly and proving that I can do it. Proving that I can go faster than anyone else."

His constructive reaction to death on the track has been to lobby vociferously for increased safety protection for drivers. He recently got one Grand Prix canceled because he felt the race was too dangerous on wet grounds. He's among the first Grand Prix drivers to use the six-point, contact seat belt, and he pioneered the idea of remote-control fire extinguishers in the engine compartments and cockpits of racing cars. He goes into races himself wearing a flameproof shirt and hood as well as fireproof socks. On his racing shirt are stamped details of his blood group and his R.H. factor.

"My critics say I am frightened," he admits, "and that's why I am going on so much about this safety business. I only say that if I were frightened, I wouldn't be racing." And he proves this by continuing to race, win or lose. In fact, Jackie Stewart can hardly wait to get behind the wheel, start the car, and hear that sweet varoom—varoom—varoom! ♦

Helps Rid Lungs of Excess Mucus

Helps clear air passages, restore free breathing, relieve distress... coughing and wheezing.

This clinic-tested preparation is called BRONKAID®. In one tablet, Bronkaid combines an expectorant and bronchodilators to attack the two major causes of congestion and wheezing. Bronkaid Tablets quickly start acting to soften and loosen excess phlegm. This direct action helps rid your air passages of sticky, stringy phlegm. At the same time, Bronkaid helps relax tightened bronchial muscles and eases the distress that results from stagnant air trapped in the lungs.

With Bronkaid Tablets, you enjoy amazing two-way help in one combination tablet. Bronkaid helps you cough up phlegm, clear clogged air passages, restores free breathing. You cough less; you breathe more freely, easily. For rapid relief of coughing and wheezing of bronchial congestion and bronchial asthma, for relief that lasts for hours, get BRONKAID® TABLETS today. No prescription required. Available at your local drugstore. Drew Laboratories; Div. of Sterling Drug, Inc., N.Y., N.Y. 10016.

PARTY LOOKS for Every Life Style

We're at a point in fashion time when a girl wouldn't hesitate to wear her Pucci nightgown out to an evening party—properly accessorized, of course.

That's an extreme example—but one actually seen—indicating the exceptional freedom a woman now enjoys in choosing what to wear when, especially after dark.

The fashions for holiday partying shown here tell the story. Unlike other years, when an evening dress was identified by its décolletage, the way to tell this season's holiday evening clothes may be by a jewel-buckled belt, or several bands of velvet.

Current styles can range from an understated plaid dinner skirt and satin top to a ruffle-hemmed dress, awash in glitter, that sparkles in the cover photograph. Simply cut, all these clothes blend their gala good looks with softly draped fabrics that move comfortably with the body.

FAMILY WEEKLY cheers those designers who are literally creating a contemporary evening look for every life style. Today's woman is not about to go back, for too long, to the tightly cinched waist, or put up with wearing layers of clothing and masses of accessories—not if she has a freedom of choice!

NOW THERE'S A TABLET FOR SINUS CONGESTION HEADACHES THAT CAN MEAN THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SUFFERING AND FEELING BETTER AGAIN.

Sinarest is a new tablet made specifically for people who get sinus headaches and congestion.

It was created by a research scientist who's suffered from sinus headaches nearly all his life.

So, he knew just what he was looking for. It wasn't a cold tablet or an allergy tablet. It was a tablet for sinus congestion headaches.

And he found it.

He called it Sinarest. And he made it strong so it would be effective.

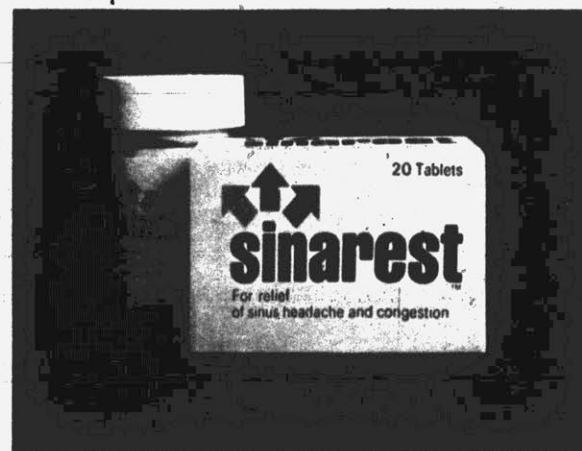

The idea behind Sinarest is to relieve your headache pain first and fast. Then to go to work on what's causing the headache. Your poor congested sinus cavities.

To do this he used a pain reliever that's easy on your stomach, a decongestant that helps drain your sinus cavities and an anti-histamine.

He even added a mild energizer to help keep you from getting drowsy.

Sinarest for sinus headaches and the congestion that causes them.

It can mean the difference between suffering and feeling better again.

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS 1 OUT OF 3 DOES

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults.

Denture Invention

For People With "Uppers" and "Lowers"

For the first time, science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds dentures—both "uppers" and "lowers"—as they've never been held before. It forms an elastic membrane that helps hold your dentures to the natural tissues of your mouth.

It's FIXODENT®—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U. S. Patent #3,003,988.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

The special pencil-point dispenser lets you put FIXODENT exactly where it's needed. Resists oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last for hours. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at all drug counters.

Vital Issues, Watch Out!

Here Comes Woody Allen

Mark Twain and Will Rogers were masters of the art of the "spoof," and comedian Woody Allen is their modern heir—a man who handles his worries over troublesome issues by making fun of them.

The owl-faced Woody is a versatile humorist who acted as coauthor, director and star of a recent film success, "Take the Money and Run." He is doing the same triple duty for his new film, "Bananas," while at the same time keeping a perceptive eye on the world around him. FAMILY WEEKLY decided to put some questions to Mr. Allen on various burning issues of the day.

Q. What has television done for your mind?

A. Over the years, it has improved the level of my taste to the point where I no longer watch it.

Q. If you were appointed as mediator of the Arab-Israeli conflict, what would you do?

A. Duck.

Q. Why are you against meat?

A. I never said I was against meat. I am against eating meat. Actually, I like meat—as meat. I've been known to stare at a veal cutlet for hours. You can

Q. What's your new movie, "Bananas," all about?

A. It's about man's search for truth and beauty in a world corrupted by material desires.

Q. Interesting. What prompted you to make "Bananas"?

A. I needed the money to buy a penthouse.

Q. How has Women's Lib changed your life?

A. I no longer regard women as sexual objects. And no matter how much they beg me, I won't change my mind.

Q. You once were a love-starved child. How did you overcome this deficiency?

A. It's hard not to attract love when one combines virility, dash, and an animal magnetism that outrivals even Art Linkletter's. Actually, from being love-starved, I'm now so stuffed with love it's done dangerous things to my cholesterol count.

A. Not the Americans I go out with.

Q. If you were stranded on a desert island with one man and one woman, whom would you choose and why?

A. My uncle Blender and Jane Fonda. My uncle Blender because he likes to swim a lot. Jane Fonda because she doesn't.

Q. Do you consider yourself antisocial?

A. You might say that. Once my father and mother taught me to wave goodbye, they couldn't stop me.

Q. If you were to leave the world with one message, what would it be?

A. Don't call me, I'll call you. ♦

What in the World!

Snowmobiles to the Rescue Although most snowmobiles have been bought as recreational vehicles, some businesses

are finding them invaluable for more serious pursuits. Cattle and sheep ranchers, for instance, have rescued snowed-in herds with the vehicle when they couldn't get through a blizzard any other way. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police are replacing their dog teams with a snowmobile fleet. One was pressed into service as an emergency ambulance for an expectant mother. And finally, more and more utility companies employ them to reach downed lines in snowbound areas.

One Man's Achievement In 1954 a public-spirited Texas citizen, who'd done well in oil, left a portion of his fortune as the Jim Collins Scholarship Fund for needy and worthy graduates of the Corsicana (pop. 20,000) Public Schools. The result is a school unique in Texas, and perhaps the country. Other local benefactors were encouraged; almost 80 students have received four-year college grants worth $1,200 a year. The school is also nongraded, placing students in class levels based on their past achievement; chronological age is secondary. The students know the responsibility to learn rests on them, not teachers. Less than two percent of the students have ever broken the code of dress and conduct (no drugs, weapons, disrespect, truancy). Asst. Superintendent Joe Seale speaks of Corsicana's achievements proudly: "All along we have known that boys and girls are more important than oil."

Hard Old Days? Ten years ago the average factory-production worker had to work 98 hours and 42 minutes to make enough money to buy a small refrigerator, according to the U. S. Dept. of Labor. Today it takes only 86 hours and 46 minutes working time to buy a refrigerator with two doors and a separate freezer. A 21" table tv required 90 hours and 29 minutes work in 1959; now 43 hours and 33 minutes will buy a 19" portable. And the beer to watch it with requires less labor, too—23 minutes for today's six-pack as opposed to 34 minutes 10 years ago.

Fumeproof "Flowers" For years, the busy town square of Luton-Bedfordshire, England, was noted for huge ornamental floral decorations. But with progress, traffic increased, and soon gasoline fumes did lethal damage to every variety of flower the Parks Dept. tried to plant. Then Director Robert English hit upon a splendid idea: why not cabbages? These showy plants keep their vivid greens, reds, and yellows the year round and are immune to the heavy exhaust. The man-on-the-street approves of the vegetable decorations, but worries: if car fumes killed most plants, what must they be doing to us?

NEEDLEWORK

You don't have to be a Scotsman to like thistles. Here are some extra special ones to embroider. The lovely seed-puffs have a dimensional quality like the real thing. The wool embroidery has been sheared so it looks and even feels like thistledown—only this won't blow away and the "thorns" won't prick! The size is a magnificent 16 by 36 inches.

The rock garden has a serene quality all its own. Prim little blossoms rear straight up behind the striated gray rocks. Overall size is 18 by 22 inches. Both embroideries designed by Barbara Sparre.

The handsome fruitwood finished frames have an inner edge of gold to highlight the embroideries.

Prince Valiant

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY HAROLD R. FOSTER

Our Story: HOW OFTEN HAD PRINCE VALIANT HEARD THE ROMANTIC TALE OF THE FAIR MAID WITH GOLDEN HAIR, LOCKED IN A GRIM TOWER AND PLEADING FOR A GALLANT KNIGHT ERRANT TO RESCUE HER? WITH A WRY SMILE HE TUCKS HER NOTE IN HIS TUNIC.

"I WOULD WAGER THAT SIR ASTARIC AND HIS FRIENDS ARE WAITING FOR ME TO SALLY FORTH TO THE RESCUE WHILE THEY HAVE A GOOD LAUGH." THEN HE REMEMBERS THE NOTE.

"TO THE EARL OF BURNFORD: FATHER, I HAVE FALLEN INTO THE HANDS OF SIR ASTARIC, TO BE FORCED TO WED HIS HORRIBLE SON. TELL GUIVERIC I LOVE HIM, BUT IN HEAVEN'S NAME COME QUICKLY."

THE MESSAGE HAS A GENUINE APPEAL, SO WHEN VAL ENTERS THE DINING HALL HE IS ALERT. THE ENTRANCE IS SMALL AND LOW, ONE MAN COULD DEFEND IT AGAINST MANY. THE HOUSE CARLS ARE FULLY ARMED BUT THE SOLDIERS LEAVE ALL WEAPONS OUTSIDE. WHY?

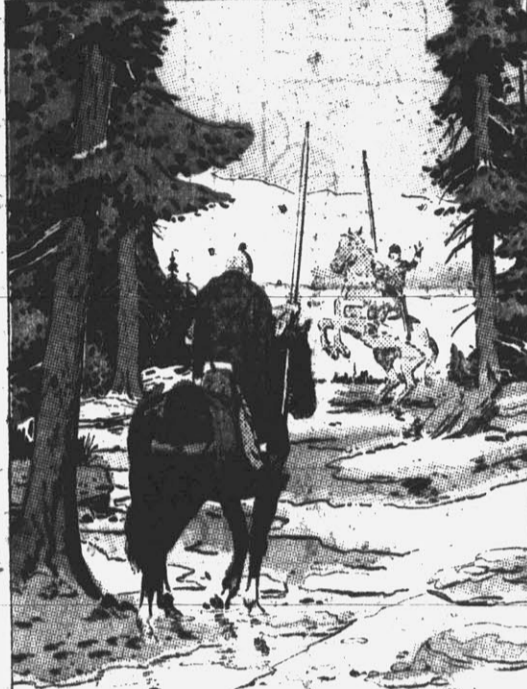

SIR ASTARIC COMES OUT TO THE COURTYARD TO BID VAL A GOOD-BYE. A HEAVY WATER PITCHER MISSES HIM BY INCHES AND SHATTERS AT HIS FEET. ALL EYES TURN UPWARD WHERE THE FAIR MAID WITH GOLDEN HAIR IS TAKING AIM WITH THE BASIN.

"YOU EVIL TOAD!" SHE SCREAMS, "SET ME FREE OR MY FATHER WILL DESTROY YOU AND YOUR STINKING NEST!" "PAY NO ATTENTION," ADVISES ASTARIC. "SHE IS JUST BEING LOCKED IN HER ROOM UNTIL SHE LEARNS POLITENESS."

PRINCE VALIANT CAN SEE NO WAY IN WHICH HE, SINGLE-HANDED, CAN RESCUE THE MAID IN THE TOWER, SO HE CALMLY RIDES AWAY. HOWEVER, HIS EYES TAKE IN EVERY DETAIL OF THE DEFENSES, FOR HE WILL RETURN.

THE BURNED HOMESTEADS AND WEED-GROWN FIELDS INDICATE THAT CONSTANT WARS TROUBLE THIS LAND. TOWARD SUNSET HE IS CHALLENGED BY A LONE KNIGHT.
