Searchers Find Lost Child

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

GRIFTON — An 11-year-old boy, missing since Christmas Eve, was found in a wooded area North of here Sunday afternoon about a half-mile from where he was last seen.

Doctors at Pitt Memorial Hospital described young Guy Norville's condition as "outstanding and fantastic" in view of the low temperatures in the area during the 70 hours he was missing.

U. S. Marines from Camp LeJeune who had been participating in the search since Christmas Day, located the boy sitting beside a tree about 4:17 p.m., Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said.

Norville was barefooted, his clothes were wet, and the knees of his pants were torn out, the sheriff said. He added that Norville was wearing a heavy coat, "and I think that is what saved him."

Norville wandered away from his grandparents' home Thursday afternoon. He is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Dwight Norville of Hopewell, Va., and had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Simon Rouse at their Route 1, Ayden home.

Hundreds of men had searched for the mentally retarded youth since Christmas Eve. Marines from Camp LeJeune and the New River Air Station joined sheriff's deputies, members from several rescue squads and other volunteers Christmas Day.

A detachment of about 100 Marines, as well as USMC helicopters participated in the search each day, according to Sheriff Tyson. The sheriff noted that Gen. Michael P. Ryan, commanding general of the Second Marine Division flew to the scene of the search yesterday and planned to send two companies of Marines—including some 400 men—into the area today to replace civilian volunteers, if the lad had not been found.

The two Marines who found Norville were identified as Cpl. Kenneth E. Howard of H and S Company, First Battalion Second Marine Regiment and Pfc. K. D. Williams, H and S Company, Second Battalion, Second Marine Regiment.

Sheriff Tyson said searchers had been through the same area before. "It was thick and he (Norville) was right beside a tree sitting down. He didn't say anything to them. I reckon he was scared."

The sheriff praised the cooperation received from the rescue squads, the Marine Corps, and "all of the volunteers who donated time, equipment, horses, planes, jeeps and food."

"I've never seen people more eager to participate...to do what they could...the Salvation Army...everybody."

The sheriff described the hunt as "the biggest one I've been involved in in the county in the 14 years I've been with the sheriff's department."

"And," he said "no one got hurt other than scratched...one man got wet...no broken bones...no fields set on fire..."

In addition to rescue units and volunteers from Pitt County, rescue units from Greene County, the Salvation Army from Kinston and the Goldsboro citizens band radio club with its mobile command post in service for only six months, participated.

"We give God all the credit for him being found," said Mrs. Norville. "It's a miracle. We hadn't opened our Christmas gifts hoping he would be found."

"Guy is very strong physically," she added. "The dark doesn't frighten him. If it did, he would have been in a state of shock" after spending three nights in the woods.

"I want to thank all the hundreds who helped take part in the search," Mrs. Norville said happily.

Israel Will Return To Peace Talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel has decided to return to the Middle East peace talks at the United Nations with Egypt and Jordan, Prime Minister Golda Meir announced today.

Mrs. Meir reported the decision to newsmen after a special meeting of the Israeli Cabinet.

Israel suspended its participation in the talks on Sept. 6 because, it contended, there had been an Egyptian missile build-up in the Suez Canal area in violation of the Middle East cease-fire.

The decision to go back to the peace table had become virtually certain when the Cabinet was given the assent of the ruling Labor party and its chief coalition ally.

Both coalition partners had key votes on the issue Sunday. Labor's executive and political committees in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, voted unanimously to resume negotiations after the executive committee of the National Religious party approved 31 to 9.

A Religious party resolution said the decision was necessary to avert a Cabinet crisis, but the party regretted the Egyptians had not complied with Israel's demand for withdrawal of Soviet anti-aircraft missiles from the Suez Canal Zone.

The Religious party committee also said the party would not allow the government to return any territory occupied, during the June 1967 war without first taking up the matter in the Knesset.

Israel's withdrawal from the indirect discussions with Egypt and Jordan was accompanied by a demand from Mrs. Meir's government and the United States that Egypt "rectify" the violations, but the Egyptians denied any violation of the truce agreement and said not a missile would be moved back.

The New York Times reported Sunday that Mrs. Meir doubted that resumption of the discussions under U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring would result in a peace agreement. Interviewed Dec. 19 in Tel Aviv by Times Vice President James Reston, she said the outcome "depends entirely on whether the other side is really interested and prepared to come to a peace agreement which will do away with future wars."

Mrs. Meir said the Soviet Union is spurring the Arabs on, but "we will not run even if the Russians attack us."

Reston went on to Cairo to interview President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and reported today that Sadat vowed never to establish diplomatic relations with Israel even if peace is arranged on his terms. "Leave it to the coming generations," Sadat said, "not to me."

Mendel Rivers Dies Today Of Heart Failure

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, the fiery, powerful head of the House Armed Services Committee, died early today at University Hospital here, hospital officials said. He was 65.

The South Carolina Democrat had open heart surgery Dec. 11 to replace a leaking mitral valve with a plastic valve. Sunday, he suffered a series of heart stoppages, but heart action was restored, though the hospital said Rivers remained seriously ill.

Rivers' heart had stopped at least once previously, on Dec. 20, but a doctor revived him.

In a statement Sunday, the hospital said: "The persistent tendency toward this type of irregularity indicates continuation of the long-standing pre-operative heart failure." Rivers died of what a spokesman said was continuing heart failure.

Rivers, in his capacity as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, ranked as one of Congress' most powerful voices for U.S. military superiority.

First in line for Rivers' chairmanship is Rep. Philip J. Philbin, D-Mass., but he was defeated in the November elections so would be chairman only for the few remaining days of the 91st Congress.

Thus, under Congress' seniority system, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., who will be the committee's top Democrat in the next—92nd—Congress, will succeed Rivers as chairman.

Hebert (pronounced A-bear) headed the special My Lai subcommittee which concluded last summer (1970) that field military and State Department officers in Vietnam deliberately tried to cover up the alleged massacre.

Rivers betrayed no sign he was about to undergo heart surgery when he won House approval Dec. 7 of a resolution commending the Army commando raid on a North Vietnam POW camp.

Earlier that day he had been presented an admiral's field cap with "The Big Boss" and six gold stars emblazoned across it by the first planeload of 198 Vietnam GIs who got $376 round-trip flights home that Rivers had helped arrange.

With flowing white hair, the style of a Southern gentleman and an erect 6-foot-3 frame, he was the Hollywood idea of a congressman and he liked to lace his debate with quotations from poetry and the Bible.

His five-year chairmanship of the committee was marked by tough language—"Retaliate Retaliate! Retaliate!" he boomed after Hanoi's Tet offensive on South Vietnam—and determination to maintain military superiority over the Soviet Union.

Some of his critics contended he used the Soviet potential for trouble and the power of his chairmanship to ride roughshod over efforts to reorder priorities for an adequate defense that would leave more money for domestic problems.

SUCCESSOR — Rep. E. Edward Hebert, D-La., under Congress' seniority system will succeed Rep. Mendel Rivers as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee in the next—92nd—Congress. (AP Wirephoto)

POW Interview Termed 'Enemy Propaganda'; Film Closely Censored

NEW YORK (AP) — Two American pilot prisoners of war in North Vietnam say in a censored interview filmed Christmas Day that the war should be ended now. A U.S. Defense Department spokesman called the televised interview program an "enemy propaganda film."

The two prisoners, both of whom appeared physically fit, also talked about their daily routine and mail privileges in the interview conducted under the supervision of the North Vietnamese and televised Sunday night.

Five other POWs were seen at close range in the film but only U.S. Navy pilots Walter E. Wilbur, 40, of Columbia Cross Roads, Pa., and Robert J. Schweitzer, 38, of Lemoore, Calif., both commanders, were allowed to answer presubmitted questions.

Wives of the two men confirmed their identification but declined to comment on the anti-war views they expressed.

The interviews were filmed by Michael MacLear, a newsman for Canadian Broadcasting Corp. following a conversation with North Vietnam's Premier Pham Van Dong whom he quoted as saying, "I swear to you these men are well treated."

MacLear said that when he questioned the premier about U.S. suspicions that the North Vietnamese hold more than the 339 Americans whose names they released in Paris last week, Dong reacted angrily.

"The Nixon people are scoundrels, scoundrels to talk like this," he quoted Dong as saying. "They who have no humanitarian feelings by talking like this."

MacLear said Dong told him the list, which also included 20 POWs the North Vietnamese said had died and nine who were released, was "a full one and complete."

The location of the camp was not disclosed but the New York Times reported a U.S. official in Washington said it was the "Hanoi Hilton"—a showplace camp where other journalists have been allowed controlled visits.

Jerry Friedheim, a deputy assistant defense secretary, said: "We would of course have no comment on a censored edited enemy propaganda film showing only a handful of known prisoners. It is one more example of the refusal of North Vietnam to conduct itself as a civilized signatory of the Geneva Convention."

Tree Disposal

Greenville's public works crews are ready to pick up discarded Christmas trees to take them to the city dump for disposal, according to City Manager Harry Hagerty.

Hagerty noted the method of disposal this year would be the same as in the past, which is to place them in land fill areas and cover them with dirt, but the city manager said it would be nice if the city had a machine to chip the trees up before using them for land fill purposes. However, he said, for the time being burying them without being chipped is the only solution.

Hagerty said it was not necessary for people to call for pick-up of the trees, that the regular crews would be getting them. The only requirement is that persons place their old trees along the curb where the disposal crew can see them.

Arrest 3 Suspects

MONTREAL (AP) — Three prime suspects in the kidnap murder of Pierre Laporte, Quebec labor minister, were arrested today.

A spokesman for Premier Robert Bourassa announced the arrests and identified the suspects as Paul Rose, Jacques Rose and Francis Simard.

Laporte was seized in October and found dead a week later. Paul Rose, 27, had been sought in connection with the kidnappings of both Laporte and James R. Cross, the British trade minister who was released by the abductors Dec. 4 after two months in captivity.

Jacques Rose, 23, and Simard, also 23, were listed in a warrant issued on Oct. 24 charging them with conspiracy in Laporte's abduction.

Marc Carbonneau, 37, also was sought in connection with Laporte's kidnaping but he was allowed to fly to Cuba with three other members of the Quebec Liberation Front on Dec. 4 as a condition for Cross' freedom.

Laporte was kidnaped on Oct. 10—five days after Cross' abduction—and was found slain a week later.

Death Penalty For 6 Basques

By FENTON WHEELER - Associated Press Writer
BURGOS (AP) — A military court today handed down death sentences for six persons in the Burgos trial of 16 Basque extremists.

The sentences will now go to Gen. Francisco Franco to be commuted or confirmed.

Three of the six were sentenced to death by firing squad—twice. The unusual measure indicated the reaction of the court to the last day of trial when the 16 arose in mass and tried to attack court-martial members.

There was no immediate indication when Franco would act on the sentences. The three receiving two death sentences each were Francisco Javier Izco, 29; Eduardo Uriate, 25.

Seven Elected To Serve Board Rescued 21 On Broken Tanker

Seven Greenville businessmen were named to the Board of Directors of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association in an election held recently.

The new members are: Louis E. Clark, Louis Clark Agency; Robert Dominick, Sunnyside Eggs, Inc.; Joe H. Goodson, Goodson and Flanagan Insurance Agency; Robert A. Henley, Planters National Bank and Trust Co.; Max Ray Joyner, Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co.; E. Andy Warren, Wachovia Bank and Trust Company; and John S. Wichard, the Daily Reflector.

According to Harold Creech, manager of the chamber, more than 200 members voted in the election.

and Jaouin Gorostidi, 26, who led the charge against the court.

The prosecution had asked for six death sentences and more than 700 years in prison for all 16.

The sentences, if carried out, were expected to inflame leftist and student groups and labor groups across Spain.

The others sentenced to death were Mario Onandia, 22, a mechanic; Francisco Javier Larena, 25, student, and Jose Maria Dorronsoro, 29, teacher.

Five of the six testified they were Marxist-Leninists.

The sixth, Izco, was silenced by the court before he could reply. All six of those sentenced to death said they were members of ETA, the secret Basque guerrilla organization.

The other 10 received prison terms ranging from 6 to 70 years.

NEW YORK (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard cutter rescued 31 crewmen today from the stern section of a Finnish tanker that had split in two in heavy seas.

The Coast Guard said the cutter Escanaba was searching for the bow section on which six other crewmen, including the master and chief engineer, were stranded when the ship broke apart Sunday.

The 31 crewmen were plucked from the stern section of the 540-foot tanker Ragny at 8 a.m., a spokesman said. Rescue vessels that reached the area last night were forced to ride out a North Atlantic storm before making the rescue attempt.

Lawmakers Return To Unsnarl Tangles

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate ended its Christmas recess today, its leaders still looking for a way out of its SST quagmire so the 91st Congress can adjourn for good, perhaps by New Year's Eve.

The House, with most of its business finished, returns Tuesday to wait for the Senate to break the deadlock over the $210 million supersonic transport plane appropriation, the major barrier to a congressional wind-up.

It was considered possible the Senate would act today to overcome another impasse, the $66.6 billion defense appropriation bill.

That measure had been snagged because of a provision, fought by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., authorizing President Nixon to use U. S. troops in Southeast Asia as he deems necessary to insure orderly withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam, or to gain the release of prisoners of war.

In an effort to break the SST deadlock, the Senate's leaders, Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., have proposed a resolution seeking a compromise that would continue SST spending until March 30, with Congress to decide on a permanent settlement next year.

Their plan would pry the SST loose from the $7 billion transportation appropriations bill, which must be passed before adjournment to keep the money coming for the agencies it covers.

But SST promoters, chief among them Democratic Sens. Henry M. Jackson and Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, don't want the subsidy handled as a separate issue.

For without the big transportation money bill as hostage, the odds are the Senate would vote, as it did before, to halt SST funding altogether.

So far, opponents of the SST, led by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., have been waging a polite filibuster—three hours or so each day—against the compromise appropriation bill.

The resolution Mansfield and Scott proposed would, in effect, reverse the situation: advocates of the SST spending would have to do the legislative blocking to prevent their suggested settlement.

If that happens, the result could be a move sanctioned by the leaders to table—and thus kill—the compromise transportation appropriations bill.

That would force a new round of negotiations with the House to draw up new terms for the measure. The House previously voted the $390 million in SST funds sought by President Nixon. A conference committee came up with the $210 million figure.

As for the defense spending bill, Fulbright and his allies considered the presidential option provision, originally a House product, the undoing of Senate restrictions against the use of U.S. ground forces in Southeast Asia outside South Vietnam.

As a result, they sought Senate rejection of that compromise bill, and a new conference with the House on final terms for that bill.

A third appropriations bill, providing $18 billion for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, also is snagged in the Senate. The House has approved that one.

Magnuson, senior member of the appropriations panel that handled that bill, has delayed action on that measure.

New Abbott Plant For Rocky Mount Announced

ROCKY MOUNT — Plans to build a new $6 million ampule and vial manufacturing plant north of here were announced Thursday by officials of the Hospital Products Division of Abbott Laboratories.

According to the announcement, the new Abbott facility, the third to be located here, will be constructed adjacent to the company's intravenous solution manufacturing plant on U.S. 301 north.

The Abbott expansion program for Rocky Mount, when completed in 1973, will include new manufacturing, and packaging equipment and some 100,000 square feet of new facilities.

Products manufactured in the new plant will be produced under sterile conditions. The ampules and vials will contain medications used by hospitals in conjunction with surgical procedures, intravenous therapy and nutritional deficiencies.

With the completion of the planned addition, Abbott's total investment in Rocky Mount will total nearly $16 million with a projected eventual employment of approximately 900 persons. Abbott's annual payroll is expected to reach more than $4.5 million.

In addition to the current facility and location of the new plant, both on U.S. 301, Abbott's operates another facility on Halifax Road west of Rocky Mount where plastic medical containers are produced.

A new $4.8 million plant located in Laurinburg produces intravenous fluid and blood administration equipment. Abbott's began operations there in the fall of 1970 and will eventually employ more than 650 persons.

Couple Speaks Vows In Double Ring Ceremony

Miss Debra Gail Jones and Thomas Lee Barrington were united in a 4:00 o'clock candlelight ceremony, Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church, Greenville. The Rev. Kenneth Moore officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jones of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rhondell Barrington of Grimesland.

The altar of the church was banked with arrangements of white chrysanthemums, and emerald greenery. An arch of brass candelabra was used in the background. At the altar was a prie-dieu, where the couple knelt for the closing prayer and benediction. Family pews were marked with white satin bows.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Ruth Taylor, organist, and Miss Julie Harris of Kinston, soloist, who sang "Because" and "One Hand, One Heart" prior to the taking of the vows, ending with the "Wedding Prayer" as the bride and bridegroom knelt at the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire A-line dulcette satin gown with a high neckline applied with chantilly lace and seed pearls, with long bishop sleeves with wide cuffs covered with lace and seed pearls. The back was enhanced with a detachable lace bordered train which was adorned with lace appliques. The gown was designed by the bride's mother.

Her full length veil of illusion was attached to petals of satin edged with seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of white roses centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Rudy Michael Jones, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Betty Rice of Greenville was maid of honor. They wore formal A-line dresses of crepe, the bodices were white with red satin trim and full length sleeves. The skirts were of red crepe and formed a self-train at the waistline, with a self-fabric rosette with satin streamers at the waistline. They wore headpieces of red crepe rosettes with shoulder length veils. They carried a nosegay of white poinsettias with red satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Carron Dennis, cousin of the bride, Miss Gwyn Coghill, Miss Deborah Vick, and Miss Bedie Hester, all of Greenville. Their dresses were styled identical to the honor attendants, with white bodices of crepe trimmed in green satin, with green skirts and green rosettes for headpieces. They carried nosegays of white poinsettias with green satin streamers.

Miss Jennifer Spain, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl, her dress was of red and white crepe, identical to the honor attendants. She carried a satin covered basket of flower petals.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Billy Barrington of Grimesland and Mrs. Charles Long of Windsor. Each carried a long-stemmed white rose.

Jay Barrington of New Bern, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsman were Rudy Michael Jones, brother of the bride, of Greenville, Billy Barrington, cousin of the bridegroom of Grimesland, James Langston of Winterville, Charles Long and George Heckman of Windsor.

Timmie Barrington, cousin of the bridegroom, served as ringbearer.

The mother of the bride wore a mint green shantung ensemble with high neckline and matching accessories and wore a corsage of red roses.

The bridegroom's mother chose a pink knit ensemble with matching accessories and wore a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Lela S. Jones, grandmother of the bride, wore a rose knit ensemble and wore a corsage of white carnations.

The bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and is a rising sophomore at East Carolina University, where she is majoring in early childhood education.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Grimesland High School and East Carolina University, where he was a member of Epsilon Pi Tau fraternity, and Gamma Beta Phi. He is presently employed with Bertie County Schools as coordinator of Elementary Industrial Arts.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the fellowship hall of the church by the bride's mother.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis May.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney R. Spain Jr. presided over the registry.

The bride's table was covered with an imported cutwork linen cloth. The refreshment table was covered with red net and fastened at the corners with miniature wedding bells and centered with an epergne arrangement of mums and holly.

Mrs. Jay Barrington served the four-tiered wedding cake after the bridal couple cut the first slice. Mrs. James A. Jones, aunt of the bride, poured the punch.

Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Neal Mills.

The bride chose a navy and white knit ensemble for traveling outfit and lifted the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhondell Barrington, parents of the bridegroom, were host at a rehearsal party for the members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests immediately following the rehearsal on Saturday Night.

Women Made News In 1970

Encouraged by women's lib, fed up with the status quo, or just asserting their inclination to do something meaningful, several women made big news in 1970.

Lady Bird Johnson, the strong woman behind a strong man, surprised the political world by publishing a "White House Diary" which began with the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and ended with her husband's five years as president.

In what she called "a sampler" of the 300,000-word-long diary, Mrs. Johnson provided fascinating insight into LBJ's presidency. She wrote that she was in favor of her husband's decision not to run for a second term, and that "it would have been better if Lyndon had appointed more of his own men 'instead of keeping so many of President Kennedy's."

As for her life now, Mrs. Johnson said, "politics is a heck of a long way from our whole life."

Also on the political front an outspoken newcomer grabbed her share of the headlines and made more than a few men sit up and take notice. Martha Mitchell, wife of Attorney General John N. Mitchell, first bobbed into the nation's consciousness after the first Vietnam Moratorium demonstration, and has since seldom been out of the news.

She is allergic to protest marchers, liberal senators, marijuana, and newsmen. After the Vietnam Moratorium she complained in a TV interview about "the very liberal Communists." Later there were reports that she had used the White House switchboard to telephone the wives of senators on behalf of the Supreme Court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr.

Finally, her husband hired her a press secretary after her reported request that an Arkansas newspaper "crucify" Democratic Senator Sen. J. W. Fulbright for voting against another Nixon nominee to the high court, G. Harold Carswell.

Still on the political front a not-so-anonymous woman, Leonore Romney, made an unsuccessful bid for the Senate. While she lost to Democrat Philip Hart, Mrs. Romney's campaign performance was likened to that of an authentic stand-up evangelist who literally casts a spell over his listeners.

The wife of former Michigan Gov. George Romney told the young that the glory is in the struggle as well as in the achievement, and that self-discipline is of utmost importance.

The pretty, chic woman who follows the Mormon dictates against smoking and alcohol, began her campaign by attacking her opponent as "one of the staunchest advocates of big federal government." On the advice of fellow Republicans, however, she switched tactics, and concentrated on wanting to become a senator to help the Nixon Administration. She said she favored military cutbacks but maintained that "we must keep our defenses strong enough so that they can be a deterrent."

In politics on another front three foreign women performed vital business while their countries were at war. In the Middle East Israeli premier Golda Meir led her country through the gravest crisis in three years, in Paris Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh continued as head of the National Liberation Front's delegation to the so-far futile Paris Peace Talks, and in Ireland Bernadette Devlin continued to champion the rights of the Roman Catholic minority.

As the Arab-Israeli conflict exploded into war again Mrs. Meir came to Washington to seek the help of the American government. The 72-year-old grandmother, who became premier in 1968 upon the death of Levi Eshkol and then succeeded to the post in her own right, was greeted here with full military honors including a 19-gun salute. Any promises of military aid, however, were cloaked in secrecy.

Negotiations of a different kind continued in Paris this year, but from all reports they continued to dead end. Mrs. Binh, a 42-year-old Vietnamese who wears plain, pastel-colored flowing robes remained as inscrutable as ever.

What little is known of this woman is that from an early age she resented French and then later American involvement in her country.

From 1961-64 she was imprisoned for anti-French activities, and during the 1960s she was a roving delegate for the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Vietcong. In 1963 she attended international conferences in Peking, Moscow and Cairo, and in 1966 she received a standing ovation at the twenty-third Congress of the Soviet Communist Party in Moscow.

A still younger politician, 23-year-old Bernadette Devlin, continued to champion her people's cause in Northern Ireland. Miss Devlin, the youngest member of the British Parliament, was jailed and served two-thirds of a six month sentence for riotous behavior and incitement to riot. She had been convicted for her direct involvement in violent protests in Londonderry in August 1969.

The young lady, who has been dubbed the firebrand of the barricades, was re-elected this year from her district and upon release from jail took her seat again in Parliament. She urged the Roman Catholic minority to stop fighting their Protestant neighbors in British-ruled Northern Ireland, and to seek equal treatment by peaceful means.

Five firebrands of a different sort made big news in the United States and the Middle East: Angela Davis, Bernadine Dohrn, Susan Saxe, Katherine Ann Power and Lila Kahled.

Angela Davis, 26-year-old educator and black militant first zoomed into the headlines last year when the California Board of Regents vetoed her appointment as associate professor of philosophy at UCLA because she was an avowed communist. Backed by liberal faculty members she sued to get the job, but the Board ruled her incompe-

Wedgies

Did you know that the wedge is not a 20th Century creation? As a matter of fact it first appeared during the Italian Renaissance in the 16th century. It was an ungainly type of shoe fashion. It added several inches to the height of the wearer.

It did however mark the beginning of the heel on women's shoes. Prior to the wedge fashion all shoes were perfectly flat soled.

Today's fashions for the young and the more mature woman feature heels of all heights and styles. There are stacked heels, slim heels, indented block-type heels and just about any type the chic conscious shopper wishes.

Shoe designers know that regardless of the purpose for which the shoe will be worn, it must be smart looking and young in concept. So - variety is yours.

In Paris: Choose A Different Cheese For Every Day Of Year

By ALISON LERRICK
PARIS (AP) — They like Camembert in Paris, Munster in Strasbourg, Reblochon in Lyon and Tomme in Grenoble. But whatever cheese they choose, the French demolish a billion pounds a year.

Green, yellow, red or white, the 400 different varieties come in shapes from balls, cubes, cones and pyramids to ostrich eggs, cartwheels, pears, stars, cucumbers and hearts. The 250-pound discs of emmental, the biggest French version of Swiss cheese, take 1,200 quarts of milk and ten months to ripen. Knicker-Button, weighing in at a half-ounce, is ready to eat in a day.

Some cheeses may finish up in fondus, tartes, gratins, souffles or regional dishes like cabbage soup seasoned with grated Roquefort. But the average Frenchman downs 20 pounds a year spread on bread, with or without rind, depending on the solidity of his digestive system.

Now over half of the different Kinos are produced industrially and an annual 100,000 tons travel to Germany, Belgium and Great Britain. Roquefort is the favorite choice of Americans, who dissolve it into salad dressing, a delicacy the French more than from upon.

In return, France absorbs discreet quantities of Stilton, Cheddar, Edam, Mozzarella and Parmesan, but "Italian cheeses are mostly for Italian expatriates living here," says Hubert, maitre fromager and owner of the Ferme Saint-Hubert.

His tiny shop near the Madeleine is one of the last strongholds of the fromage straight from the farm. He can supply adventurous customers with "a different cheese for every day of the year" from a bedazzling array that covers the shop's entire surface space. They include the only Port-Salut in Paris still made by trappist monks and increasingly hard-to-find local cheeses like Wolf's Burn, Poodle, Rolling Stone, Donkey Pepper, Old Stinker and Fin de Siecle.

At $3 a pound, the most expensive is Laruns from the Pyrenees mountains, and the least, a fromage maigre, a fatless and tasteless cousin of cottage cheese that once was a staple of the Brittany peasants and now delights dieters.

"The most important thing in cheese is the rapport of the farmer with his cow," explains Hubert, who spent years combing the French farmlands before finding a select group of 200 suppliers. "City people are taken in by the folklore that a cheese from the country is always good. But I know a farmer who gets rid of his unsaleable cheeses to Parisians in the country on vacation."

October to June is the season for cheese-consumption, but summer is the time to make it. Instead of their winter menu of hay, the cows, sheep and goats gorge on tender shoots and wild rosemary and thyme whose perfume is passed through the milk to the cheese.

"Milk is like wine. The good germs give it the taste," says Hubert. So, in contrast to the methods of modern factories "like laboratories", his cheeses are guaranteed non-pasteurized, just as they tasted a thousand years ago.

Primitive cheese-fanciers used wild donkey and buffalo milk, but monks and women take the credit for the civilized cheese. While Gallic warriors wrestled with Roman centurions, the ascetic monks who had sworn off meat perfected cheese, the only treats permitted their taste buds.

Over 20 contemporary cheeses are named after saints and innumerable others after abbots of the dark ages, such as Pont l'Eveque, Port-Salut and Maroilles. Munster is simply a corruption of monastery.

Later, as industrious farmers plowed the fields, their wives earned pocket-money by selling cheese in fairs and markets. One was Marie Harel, who invented Camembert in spite of the tumult of the French Revolution. In 1928 a statue in her honor was raised in her home town, financed by 400 grateful cheese-makers of Van Wert, Ohio.

FROMAGE FROM THE FARM is what Hubert offers his customers in Paris, in a tiny shop that offers cheeses — endless varieties of them.

Hubert's farmers still run their dairies in the old fashion. The milk is systematically curdled, salted and drained through perforated molds to turn into soft cheeses like Brie or Camembert. Hard cheeses, cooked or not, like Cantal and Comte, undergo the fermentation process, then are pressed into shape over a period up to a year, according to size and the degree of hardness to be reached. The blue cheeses, nicknamed "the romantics", are injected with penicillin and left to molder on purpose.

Extremist retailers may promote novelties soaked in fruit juice or chocolate to excite the jaded palate but Hubert sticks to the classic flavorings of tarragon, parsley, cloves and garlic or white wine and brandy for Burgundian cheeses.

In his odoriferous and humid cellar below the shop, cheeses ripen by the thousand. Afternoons, he climbs down the rickety ladder and diligently brushes the excess mold off the Saint-Nectaires, rubs the Munsters with salt water and washes the Maroilles in beer.

When a well-placed squeeze shows the cheeses are ready, they are whisked upstairs and presented in their traditional wrappings—braided straw or rushes, wine and chestnut leaves, ashes for goats' milk cheeses, salt mixed with charcoal or soot with grape-seed oil.

What happens to the cheese in the hands of the customer is a matter of debate. Ideally, it should relax on wood boards in the shade, never in a draft, and not kept over a week. In the refrigerator, cheese lasts longer and tastes almost as good, providing it's defrosted at least an hour in advance. Too many temperature changes can be fatal to its health, so once the cheese is on the table, you are duty-bound to eat it to the last crumb.

Red wine, of course, is cheese's only possible companion, with the exception of an occasional rose in hot weather. Uncompromising gourmets veto the use of butter with any cheese but Roquefort, and some even exclaim against "the promiscuity of the cheese tray."

More lenient diners munch cheese with endive, onions, radishes, olives, bananas or grapes. One free-thinker swears that the way to bring out the best in Roquefort is a spoonful of raspberry preserves.

Don't Raise 'Fuss' Over Mate's Generosity

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 35 years to a successful businessman. He retired five years ago at the age of 60. Because of his numerous philanthropic involvements and a number of business interests he has kept his office and retained "Laura," who has been his secretary-bookkeeper for 30 years. He told me he is paying her part-time since she seldom works more than 20 hours a week.

Actually, my husband has an excellent accountant and he has no need for a bookkeeper at all, and as a secretary, Laura is no bargain since she has no stenography—only typing.

I recently learned, accidentally, that my husband has been paying Laura a full-time salary. Naturally, I was furious, but calmly told him I knew about it. He said he had kept her on at full-time salary because she had been "loyal" to him, and he lied to me because he knew I would disapprove.

How far does "loyalty" to a secretary with limited abilities go, Abby? Am I an idiot for not raising a fuss?

RESENTFUL

DEAR RESENTFUL: You are foolish to resent your husband's generosity to a loyal employee, especially since it's no bread out of your mouth and he can well afford it. I cannot condone his lying to you, but you would be an idiot to raise a fuss.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a 20-year-old mamma's boy. I'll call him Paul. He is an only child, and by his mother's actions, I think she cares more for Paul than she does for her own husband.

I love Paul, but something bothers me to the point of wondering if maybe I should break the engagement.

Paul and his mother think nothing of occupying the bathroom at the same time. If his mother is in there and Paul has to use the facilities for a few minutes, he does so whether his mother leaves or not. Wouldn't you think she would have the decency to step outside so he could have some privacy? They have only one bathroom, but that's no excuse. I don't know why this should bother me so much because after all she is his mother, but it bothers me a whole lot. How should I handle it?

BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED: You should "handle" it by telling Paul that it bothers you a whole lot. But why are you so quick to blame his mother? If she is using the facilities, Paul should wait until she exits before he enters, no?

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of sending a bride a receipt for a contribution to a charitable organization instead of a wedding present? I have sent contributions in "memory" of a person who has passed away, but I have never heard of sending one for a wedding!

My daughter is a bride-to-be and she has received two of these acknowledgment cards. Some wedding gift! A piece of paper! Newlyweds can use so many household items. Or even money.

I believe in giving to charities, but not at a time like this. I plan on ignoring receipt of these cards until I hear from you. Nothing would have been better than this. I think a contribution instead of a wedding gift is in poor taste. What do you think?

NEW JERSEY MOM

DEAR N. J. MOM: I have heard of making a contribution in lieu of "silver" or "golden" wedding anniversary gifts, but never a wedding gift. Such contributions are inappropriate for a bride, but I can't agree with you that "nothing" would have been better. The donors remembered your daughter, and I'm sure they meant well. Acknowledge them and thank the givers.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TURNED ON BY DONNIE": Kids who park and make out every night are asking for trouble. He says he can't afford to take you out? Well, tell him you can't afford his kind of entertainment.

Then last summer she took up the cause of a group of black convicts, picketed San Quentin and made fund raising speeches. Later an attempt was made to rescue the prisoners on trial in a San Rafael, Calif. courtroom, and four persons were shot to death including the judge. Police said that the guns used in the killings had been bought by Miss Davis, and she was placed on the F.B.I.'s most wanted fugitive list. On Oct. 13 she was discovered and arrested in a New York City motel room, and booked on a charge of unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution in California.

As the F.B.I. took Angela Davis off its list, it added the names of two other women revolutionaries: Susan Saxe and Katherine Power. Both young women, 21-year-old honor graduates of Brandeis University, were sought in connection with a September 23 $26,000 bank robbery in Boston in which one policeman was shot to death.

According to the F.B.I. Miss Saxe carried a rifle into the bank and Miss Power drove the get-away car. Three male parolees were said to have been also involved. The F.B.I., which listed both women as possibly armed and dangerous, said the two are members of a radical revolutionary group dedicated to attacking the U.S. military system and undermining police powers. The two young women are also believed to have taken part in a Sept. 1 bank robbery in Philadelphia and the robbery of a National Guard Army in Newburyport, Mass. on Sept. 20.

Also in October, the F.B.I. substituted one self-described Communist for another on its 10 most wanted list—Bernardine Dohrn for Angela Davis. Miss Dohrn, the reputed underground leader of an avowedly-violent Weathermen faction of the SDS, was charged with violating federal anti-riot laws. The 28-year-old militant, who holds a doctor of law degree, was arrested in Chicago Oct. 9 after a violent demonstration and confrontation with police.

Another revolutionary who made news in an even bigger way was Leila Khaled a pretty, 26-year-old American educated Palestinian. Helped by an American accomplice, Patrick Joseph Arguello, Miss Khaled hijacked El Al flight number 219 from Amsterdam to New York. Overcome by a steward and security guard, she was arrested after the plane made an emergency landing in London. She was held in a London prison until freed as part of an exchange for hostages taken from three other planes hijacked by Palestinian guerrillas.

The final woman newsmaker was one-time sculptor, Kate Millet, who gave the Women's Liberation movement intellectual legitimacy this year when her doctoral dissertation, "Sexual Politics," became a best-seller. "We are each less than we could be," she wrote. "If we did not have these rigid sexual roles, we would all have so much room for spontaneous behavior, for following our own instincts, for being imaginative, for being creative."

Her thesis was that male-female sex differences were evident at birth, but that masculine-feminine (gender differences) were learned, and imposed by a male-dominated society.

Flags Serve As Signal System

ROUEN, France (WNS) — Because telephones are still rationed in France, the ladies of little Val de la Haye complained that they cannot call the doctor quickly in case of family emergency.

Dr. Robert Martin, 34, solved the problem somewhat by instructing wives and mothers to run up a white flag on their housetops when they need him. Volunteers make the rounds and inform the doctor.

Big Strides For Med School

We could detect some surprise around the state following recent reports on the progress which has been made toward establishing East Carolina University's two-year medical school.

It is a fact that considerable progress has been made, as reported by Dr. Leo Jenkins, Dr. Edwin Monroe and Dr. Wallace Woolees.

Already a nucleus of a faculty has been put together here, including Dr. Woolees as dean of the school. Some other outstanding men in medical education have been contacted and it is expected that additional full time faculty will be retained when more funds are available.

The planners also have already made arrangements with at least 28 physicians in the area to serve on a part-time clinical faculty and, as Dr. Monroe said, "None has turned us down so far. Even though they will be given only token payment for their services and could make much more practicing the same number of hours, they seem to want to be able to teach and have a part in this undertaking."

There was some surprise that a program could be started even before a building has been constructed. However, it was pointed out that laboratory space has been arranged in the university's new life sciences building so that the school can begin teaching 16 to 20 students probably in September, 1972.

There is optimism that the school will receive provisional accreditation from the Liaison Committee on Medical Education which has already studied the proposed set up here. The school is recognized as a developing one by the American Medical Association's Council on Medical Education, the Association of American Medical Colleges and by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

The school has a request for an operation budget of $2.6 million for the biennium of 1971-73 and it is seeking state and federal funds to build a permanent building which will allow it to increase its enrollment in the future.

In short, everyone who is connected with the school seems to be enthusiastic about what has, and will be accomplished. Some outstanding medical educators have already come here, we believe, primarily because they want to be a part of an exciting new project. Area physicians — some of them among the best in the state in their fields — are committed to working with the school, despite the fact that it will mean using time when they could be earning more in their practice.

We believe that for the most part leaders in state government are pleased with the progress being made and are willing to offer their support to further development.

East Carolina University's medical school is a fact. It takes nothing away from any other state program; rather it should prove complementary to other programs and provide great medical advantages to all our citizens.

We are pleased with the progress that has been made in planning the school. We feel that all North Carolinians should join in supporting this developing school so that its benefits can be felt in the shortest possible time.

The Wrecking Of A College

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

NEW YORK — Utterly baffled by the profundities of first-year history at City College of New York (CCNY), a newly enrolled freshman this fall told his professor he simply could not make sense out of the textbook "because too many words are just too long."

Such a heart-rending incident could not have occurred in years past. Such a student would have been academically ineligible for CCNY, the tuition-free college ranking among the nation's best liberal arts schools. Under the new open-admissions policy, however, anybody in the city with a high school diploma can enter City University of New York (CUNY), a sprawling educational complex of junior and senior colleges (including CCNY) and graduate schools.

Although CUNY's administrators deny it, faculty members complain the incident of the bewildered freshman is commonplace. Thus, is the preliminary estimate of critical faculty members is that the quality of instruction is declining and will continue to decline. "To be perfectly frank," history Prof. Howard Adelson told us, "there are indications that this college is finished as a learned institution."

The avowed reason for open admissions is that a tax-supported institution must provide service for all the city's residents, regardless of qualification. The harshly practical reality, however, is that student radicals at CUNY would have blown the lid off the school if the policy had not been adopted. Moreover, some administrators privately praise the policy for an entirely different reason: taking slum youth off the street.

Thus, two grave questions of public policy are raised at CUNY with applications across the country: Is the enormous expense of higher education the best way to care for semi-literate-high school graduates who otherwise drift into crime? And is the high price of drastically lowered academic standards really necessary to achieve this goal?

The financial cost is staggering. The burden of CUNY's 15,000 extra students under open admissions adds another $20 million to the $320 million annual budget without even providing space for the enlarged enrollment. Soon, the annual cost of CUNY will be $1 billion, to be borne by a society reaching the upper limits of its tax burdens.

But the academic cost is even more disturbing. CUNY administrators stress that unqualified freshmen are given remedial courses in reading and arithmetic. The flaw in the program is that the student receiving remedial reading can also take regular courses in history, science, or economics, drastically impairing the level of instruction.

Certainly, the end is near for CUNY as an "elitist" institution where sons and daughters of the poor could obtain a free education of Ivy League caliber. "I think the conception of academic standards is going to change," CUNY deputy chancellor Seymour Hyman told us.

Indeed, the concept is changing radically right now. The Negro or Puerto Rican youth, given a diploma in New York City high schools without regard to ability to read or write, will not be flunked out automatically at CUNY. An informal arrangement proposes that new students not be flunked out until after 1-1/2 years, giving everybody a two-year free ride.

But worried faculty members fear that the two years may stretch to four, and the CUNY degree will become as meaningless as a New York City high school diploma. Hence, the formulation of classics Prof. Louis Heller: "Open enrollments — A political device for conferring a college degree without giving a college education."

Just how many faculty members agree with Heller is impossible to determine. Critical professors described for us a climate of fear, based on actual death threats to faculty members, professors beaten up in their classrooms in the violent spring of 1969, and a rising tide of student power giving students influence over the professional futures of the faculty. Thus, silence is understandable.

But such absence of criticism cannot deflect national academic attention from what is happening at CUNY and particularly at CCNY. In the months and years ahead the cost to higher education of egalitarianism run wild may be incalculable.

Strength For Today

ONE AT A TIME
Decisions. We have to make scores of decisions every day. Usually these decisions reflect our character. Always they do something to our character either for good or evil.

The drinker who thinks that "just one more" will set everything right is a person for whom decision is likely to become a disaster. The person who decides to embezzle a little or to steal a fortune has made a profound decision. It may send him to jail. It may mean that he is discharged from his present employment. Certainly his dishonesty will not make him happier.

There are people for whom decision regarding marriage is a matter of lifelong significance. They may marry for money, and if they do the chances are that they have bought for themselves a lot of trouble. They may decide on one type of life work or another, on this profession or that. Decision, Decision, Decision.

There is nothing more important than decision for, as a matter of fact, the decisions we make usually make us (or unmake us).

Some people just can't come to a decision about anything, and most people in this category are extremely unhappy. There are some whose experience is exactly the opposite. They make quick decisions, a large percentage of which may be wrong. A man who had patented a device went about trying to get financial support. One family decided the thing was worthless and asked to be counted out. Another family went in on the deal and made millions.

Life is largely a matter of continual decisions.

Christmas Card Credit

WASHINGTON — Our friends the Carbunkles really take their Christmas cards seriously. Perhaps it is because Mr. Carbunkle works in the credit office of a department store.

On Dec. 1 we received a card from the Carbunkles with a photograph of the family, and inside "Warmest wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from all the Carbunkles."

I remembered the card, because I had commented to my wife how well everyone in the Carbunkle family looked, though Carbunkle himself seemed to be putting on weight.

We thought nothing of it until two weeks later when we received another card from the Carbunkles which had stamped on the envelope "Second Notice."

I opened it and inside there was a printed note which read: "Two weeks ago you were sent a Christmas card from the Carbunkles wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Probably due to the rush of the holiday season you were unable to acknowledge it. While we are very understanding of your situation, we would like to remind you that your Christmas card is one week past due, and we are hoping you will attend to this matter at your earliest convenience. Sincerely yours, the Carbunkles."

I meant to do something about it, but it slipped my mind. My wife, who is supposed to look after Christmas cards, also let it slip her mind, and three days later in a yellow envelope arrived a third card. This time all the holly and mistletoe decorations had been removed and in red letters stamped on the front was: "Third Notice." I opened it up and a note said, "Sir, it has been called to our attention that you are now two weeks in arrears on sending our family a return Christmas card."

Nothing would please us more than to carry you right through the holiday season. But this would be impossible because if we carried you, then we would have to carry our other friends, and then we would soon be out of the holiday greeting business.

"Then we sent you our Christmas card on Dec. 1, we assumed that you would send us one back by return mail. To put it bluntly, you owe us one season's greetings plus a 'Joy to the World' as interest. We are enclosing a self-addressed envelope for your convenience and would appreciate your remittance immediately."

My wife became very upset about the notice. I accused her of letting the first two slip by in her typical sloppy bookkeeping fashion. She said the Carbunkles were originally my friends, and I should have handled their return greetings through my office.

"Look," I said, "we don't have any cards left. They've waited this long, they can wait until New Year's. Besides, we owe our holiday respects to the Geyelins and the Krafts before we pay our greetings back to the Carbunkles."

Just two days ago we received a registered special delivery letter from the Miserecordia Collection Agency.

The letter read, "The Carbunkles have turned over your bad debt Christmas greetings to this office and have asked us to collect it for them immediately. (We are hoping you give us (Continued on page 5))

Other Editors Say Best Advertising

(Raleigh Times)

The best possible advertisement police forces of North Carolina can have comes in the person of the uniformed officer himself.

If the officer is alert, well-trained, responsive to the needs of his community and able to meet those needs, there will be community respect for police officers, and community support for them as they do their difficult and dangerous jobs. The experience Raleigh has had with its police department during the past decade or so is all the evidence needed to prove that good policemen and good police work are the only real advertisements a police force needs.

Raleigh, in recent years, pays its police officers on a better basis than it did formerly, though the pay still isn't as high as it should be. Raleigh has been able, therefore, to attract high-type young men into police work, men with enough education to do the work efficiently. Raleigh has trained those men with a great deal of care before it has permitted them to wear the badge that is the symbol of police authority.

All these factors have brought to Raleigh a very good police force. As individuals and as a department, they have handled the difficult job of law enforcement well. And, in doing so, they have won the public respect and support they must have.

The same story can be repeated so far as the State Highway Patrol is concerned. These men are paid enough to enable the patrol to attract high-type young men into this work. They are trained in detail at the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill before they go on duty. And, they do a good job. They, too, are fine advertisements for police forces.

It is true that some people call some police officers "pigs" and other more offensive names. There have always been such people, and there always will be, and there is no point much in worrying about the relatively few of them. If there were many such people in Raleigh and the rest of North Carolina, they haven't come to much public attention.

As long as police officers conduct themselves as professionals doing hard jobs very well, they needn't worry about public support. They'll get it.

All Will Want More Next Year

By ELMER ROESSNER
Santa Claus is a piker compared with Uncle Sam. Both characters are imaginary, of course, invented by some common, psychological urge to create a father figure, a benign old gentleman who bestows gifts on those who behave. There have always been such figures through history. Sometimes they were gods; at other times they were men bestowed with a magic power of giving, such as the kings whose rule was accepted because they were believed to have powers of giving boons to the people. Only a couple of years ago a South Pacific tribe wanted Lyndon Johnson to be their ruler because they believed he would go to them with a cargo of gifts. At least, Johnson was not imaginary, although there are some Republicans who say he was. We all want presents from Santa Claus. But we all want even greater presents from Uncle Sam.

The Gimme Campaign
The new year will see great increases in the demands for presents.

Almost every state will seek larger amounts of funds from Uncle Sam. So will almost every county, city and township.

In New York State, heads of large cities are demanding more and more financial aid from the state. Governor Nelson Rockefeller's reply, in essence, has been, "The state has no more to give. Get together and demand that Uncle Sam come through." He knows that Santa Claus can't afford the demands. And in every state and community, people are turning not to themselves but to Washington.

In some instances, the pleas for money take on the elements of a con game. If a new road is needed the people who will use it say, "Let's make it a federal road and then those suckers in Alaska, Oklahoma, Florida and so on will have to pay the bill." How slick!

Everybody Into The Act
It is not only states and cities who want aid from Uncle Sam. Individuals want a slice of that big pie in the sky. They clamor for more social security, government aid for little theaters, government help in building schools and hospitals. Many

Sales Ardor Cooled

By WILLIAM L. CHASE, Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — I'm always on the lookout for a way to fight the rising cost of living so, naturally, I was overjoyed when I found in my mailbox the other day a note which seemed to hold out hope in that area.

At the top of the mimeographed note signed by the manager of my apartment complex were several dollar signs separated by the word "Bonus." After addressing me familiarly as "Dear Resident," the note suggested I could make a few dollars by finding new residents — sort of a bounty.

"For each new lease signed through an introduction by a current resident we will pay the current resident a bonus of $20 per month per lease every month up through May 31, 1971. The bonus dollars will start to flow as soon as the new lease becomes effective. THE SKY IS THE LIMIT!"

Tantalizingly, the note added: "Just think—if you should introduce 10 new leases you will be $200 per month richer through May 31, 1971."

Encouraged by that flawless arithmetic, I decided on the spot to jump for it. An accountant friend was my first quarry.

I dropped by his apartment one afternoon and swiftly observed that his place lacked the pizzazz that one might expect from a man of his station. On my way out, I offered the observation that his front door did not fit properly, the result being that his living room was drafty.

Also, I said condescendingly, an ill-closing front door was a tipoff to shoddy construction, certainly something my friend would not long tolerate, being used to the precision of cost accounting. And so on.

I invited him over to see my collection of Johnnie Ray records the following day. I was barely able to stifle a gleeful chuckle when he showed up. As I shut the door, I loudly noted its snug fit. As I walked to the kitchen, I stomped the floor, commenting that old world craftsmanship made it all possible.

All the while I kept my eye out the window for the manager. When I saw her I said that we were all buddies here at Shangri La South and that the manager was a person well worth meeting, a fine person.

True to her word the manager then swung into action. With sweating palms I crouched beside the front window, watching her lead him to the model apartment. I had visions of living rent free. But he soon walked out, shaking his head. No deal.

Over the next three weeks I brought a dozen other persons to the complex, laying friendship, dignity, and honor on the line each time. Nothing developed. Finally the management rescinded the offer. My thoughts of living rent free, a victor over the cost of living, evaporated.

Then, wonder of wonders, three of the people I had brought around moved in. Management, however, was adamant: The sign-up period had elapsed. I had overlooked the fine print.

Now when I visit my new neighbors I tell them their apartments are just kind of blah — and the doors don't fit any too well, either.

communication effort. Much interest at the Fair was directed toward a demonstration of the State's pilot kindergarten program initiated by the 1969 General Assembly. An evaluation of each child originally enrolled in the program last December has been conducted. On one test — the average for how much the children understand basic concepts in different subjects — the children tested before entering kindergarten scored in the bottom one-third of five-year-olds tested across the nation. Those same children, when tested the following May, placed in the top one-third of the national norms.

LONDON (AP) — At 20 Princes Gate, in a gloomy, cavernous Victorian house overlooking Hyde Park, they lovingly preserve the old battle flags, shine the regimental insignia and wait.

Here—25 years after the Communist takeover in Warsaw—sits the Polish government in exile.

The "Prime Minister" is Kazimierz Sabbat, director of a British firm which makes sleeping bags and quilts for sportsmen.

"We don't expect that the people who sit around this table will take over in Poland," said Sabbat, pointing to the place where eight committee members meet.

"But, as long as there is a government in exile, the government in Poland is of a temporary nature. The people in Poland will have to choose their leaders from among the people living there when freedom comes."

now reigning in Warsaw is never doubted at 20 Princes Gate. The building houses a small museum guarding the archives of the government in exile and all the available memorabilia of Poland's Free Forces fighting during the war in the Western Desert, Italy and Europe. A long red and white banner displayed was raised over the monastery of Monte Cassino in Italy by the 12th Polish Lancers under the late Gen. Wladyslaw Anders. The 150,000 Poles in Britain received little encouragement from the revolt against the Communist leadership, this month in Poland. "It was a worrying time for us," said Prince Eugene Lubomirski, arrested as a landowner when the Russians invaded eastern Poland in 1939. He served three years in 10 different Russian prisons before being released to serve with Gen. Anders.

"We are worried about what might happen to our people. There are three Russian armored divisions in the country. Everything is ordered from Moscow."

The head of state of the exile "government" is a collective body of three men known as the Supreme Council. Its members are Gen. Stanislaw Kapanski, commander of the Polish Brigade at the battle for Tobruk in 1942; Alfred Urbanski, a lawyer from Wilna; and Edouard Raczyński, Polish ambassador here until the British government recognized the Communist regime in 1945. The exiles maintain diplomatic representation in Washington and other capitals although the only such diplomat recognized is Kazimierz Papee, 75, Polish envoy at the Vatican since 1938. "We think there is a need to bring to the notice of governments the true Polish point of view," Sabbat said. "What Warsaw says cannot be considered the true Polish view since it comes from the Moscow regime. They have to follow their master."

The former refugees and their children are fitting into the British social scene.

More than 200 Polish professors and lecturers teach in British universities. Some 3,000 children attend Saturday schools where Polish songs are sung and Polish culture discussed. There are strong Polish Boy and Girl Scout organizations.

The Polish football championships in Britain bring together some 700 young men, and many play for British clubs. John Toshack of Polish parentage recently was bought by Liverpool from Cardiff for $240,000. Prince Lubomirski, whose family goes back to the 15th Century in Poland, is in his 70s. Standing amid the battle flags said: "We will reserve them here until they can be returned to Poland. I hope all our people can go back to Poland one day. But I may never go back — too old."

Tax Forms Go In Mail

RALEIGH (AP) — The first batch—some 1,500 bags—of state income tax forms went into the mail today to North Carolinians.

In all, 3,325 bags will be delivered to the post office today, Tuesday and Wednesday as the state Revenue Department unloads 2.2 million income tax forms. In addition, 144,000 intangibles tax forms will be mailed.

State Revenue Commissioner I. L. Clayton said the department began processing the forms in October and completed the job the week before Christmas.

He said the number of income tax forms represents an increase of 147,000 over last year's total.

The intangibles tax forms are sent to persons who own stocks, bonds, savings accounts, or other forms of investment income subject to this special form of property tax. The money is divided up among local governments but the state does the collecting.

Cheap Labor For Georgia Roads If Law Invoked

ATLANTA (UPI)—There's a source of cheap labor available to work on Georgia's roads if county commissioners dare to employ it.

An 1818 law still on the books states all males between the ages of 16 and 50—with certain exceptions such as ministers and those who have lost an arm or a leg—are subject "to work on the public roads."

Two other old laws still in effect modify that by providing a man could supply roadworking tools as a substitute for his labor or agree to maintain a certain section of the road.

The 1971 Georgia Legislature will be asked to eliminate most of the old laws and recodify them in the first revision of highway laws in the 20th century.

Everything Against Her, But Elected To Congress

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD HONOLULU (UPI)—Diana Hansen had everything against her when she decided to run for office.

The tall, blue-eyed blonde was young, female and a conservative Republican in a state that has traditionally been a Democratic stronghold. But Miss Hansen, 23, a college student, was elected to the state House of Representatives by proving that there is still such a rarity as an old-fashioned girl.

'Through The System'
"There is a sense of urgency about me," Miss Hansen said. "I want to see changes made but only by working through the system."

The University of Hawaii junior majoring in political science goes from the classroom to a $12,000 a year job, a posh new office filled with her own paintings, two assistants to help her and the distinction of being one of only four women elected to the state legislature in November and the second youngest legislator ever.

Miss Hansen's winning campaign contrasts with 23-year-old Dorothy Bradley of Bozeman, Mont., who, as a Democrat in a predominantly Republican county, captured a seat in the Montana House of Representatives this fall campaigning on a save-the-environment platform.

Tireless Campaigner
"If you pound on those doors, meet the people, look them straight in the eye, tell them what you stand for, ask them about their problems and get them to say they'll at least think about voting for you, then you're going to get elected," Miss Hansen said confidently.

Throat hoarse and feet sore, she personally stood on every one of the 12,000 doorsteps in her middle- and low-income district, not once, but three times during her year and a half-long campaign.

"I was already out campaigning when other candidates were still making up their minds whether to run," she said. Miss Hansen attributed a lot of her success to the efforts of her parents, who helped her organize the campaign "down to the minute," and to her five younger brothers and sisters, who did the tedious paper work.

Careful Of Appearance
Spending only $1,200, much of which she earned, Miss Hansen not only won but led the ticket over veteran campaigners.

She kept her waist-long naturally blonde hair neatly tied in a bun, "so no one would associate me with hippies," used little make-up, always wore white and a hat on her head.

Miss Hansen plans to continue wearing hats, which have become her trademark, even during legislative sessions, but has expanded her wardrobe to include a lot of red, white and blue minis, midis and maxis.

"I admit I'm very patriotic," she said proudly. Miss Hansen deplores the violence on campuses and opposes the legalization of marijuana. She plans to introduce legislation to combat the drug traffic in the schools, curb the rising crime rate and improve public education.

Working for 'Little Man'
But she's also going to cut her legislative teeth fighting tax inequities, backing a no-fault auto insurance system and "keeping government from infringing on the rights of the little man."

With all her political ambition and confidence, Miss Hansen is still a girl; worrying about her appearance, hoping she'll have time for some dates and perhaps marriage and a family along with her career.

After one year at Brigham Young University, Miss Hansen and her family moved from Bellingham, Wash., to Honolulu. She paved the way to her present position when, at 20, she was elected the youngest delegate to the 1968 constitutional convention and introduced the proposal which lowered the required age from 25 to 20 in the state House of Representatives and 30 to 25 in the state Senate.

"I think a vote for me was a vote of confidence for young people," she said.

Liz Drops Film Role Price Tag

LONDON (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor, who in the past has commanded a million-plus dollars for a single movie, is making "Zee and Co."—her first in nearly two years—for a percentage and expenses.

Miss Taylor, 38, said that in view of the difficult time the film industry has been having lately "you have to be realistic."

Her last previous movie was "The Only Game in Town," which she completed in March 1969. She had to shed 10 pounds to get in trim for the current production, being made at Shepperton Studios just outside London.

"I'm so bloody lazy, I think I should retire," Miss Taylor told an interviewer. "The unfortunate thing is I enjoy acting."

Plans For The Tops

Two Wrecks Here Sunday

One person was injured and an estimated $1,600 property damage caused in two Sunday wrecks here.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 10:45 p.m. collision at the intersection of Third Street and Memorial Drive and involved cars driven by Richard Edward Waldrop, 18, of 102 South Warren St. and Charles Glenn Barrett, 19, of 1202 Church St.

Police, who placed damage to the Waldrop car at $400 and damage to the Barrett vehicle at $500, reported Waldrop was injured in the crash.

Barrett was charged by police with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety and no operators license.

Noami Heath, 18, of 110 Martin St. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6:45 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive 100 feet south of the Millbrook Street intersection.

Officers reported the Heath car collided with a vehicle driven by Clarence Junior Demuth, 25, of Pinetops, causing an estimated $400 damage to the Demuth car and about $300 damage to the Heath vehicle.

Brandt Is Time 'Man-Of-Year'

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine has chosen Willy Brandt, chancellor of West Germany, as its "Man of the Year" for 1970.

"While most political leaders in 1970 were reacting to events rather than shaping them, Brandt stood out as an innovator," magazine said.

"He has projected the most exciting and hopeful vision for Europe since the Iron Curtain crashed down."

"My son Stevie has diabetes. That makes him a pretty bad risk in anybody's book."

Diabetes. That means being careful about food, drink, and taking the proper medicine. It also means regular visits to the doctor. And if complications occur, a hospital stay—and more bills. To an insurance company, it means a bad risk. But to Blue Cross and Blue Shield, diabetes means someone to protect.

When Stevie's dad took out a Blue Cross and Blue Shield family certificate, he knew Stevie would be covered from the minute he was born. With a Blue Cross and Blue Shield family certificate, you, your wife and newborn children are covered—whether they become bad risks or not. We won't cancel your coverage no matter how often you use it, even if you have a serious disease.

At nineteen, Stevie will have to convert to his own Blue Cross and Blue Shield certificate. And we won't cancel then, either. And at age sixty-five he'll be eligible for Medicare, and the Blue Cross and Blue Shield supplemental 65 plan. So, he'll be covered for life. No, we don't mind taking the risks. Cigarette Commercials Leave The Air January 1

By WILLIAM B. MEAD
WASHINGTON (UPI) —Cigarette commercials go off the air in a lavish midnight farwell Jan. 1 but the tobacco industry is using all of its marketing ingenuity to fill the void.

Among other new promotions next year, cigarette makers will sponsor auto races, a Canadian golf tournament, a bowling tourney called the Winston-Salem Classic and a series of women's tennis matches dubbed the "Virginia Slims Invitational."

Sales, not sporting blood, is the motive. The August issue of Tobacco Reporter, a trade journal, explained it this way: "The advertising has been banned, but not the appearance of the product during the feature programming."

Booster Card Sections?
"For instance at a stock car race one or more of the participating vehicles will have a cigarette promotion blurb on its side. Following the race the television cameras will pass fence advertisements while the pit crews and winners will be smoking with the cigarette pack prominently displayed."

The new law bans all radio and television cigarette commercials effective at midnight Jan. 1. But the networks will get a last draught of money from an industry which has provided about 10 per cent of television advertising revenues.

Last-Minute Blitz
The leathery Marlboro cowboy will ride into the lash sunset over and over again that night. Philip Morris, Inc., Marlboro's maker, has bought 25 minute of network television commercial time Jan. 1, including the last three pre-midnight commercials on the Johnny Carson "Tonight" show (NBC), the Merv Griffin show (CBS) and the Dick Cavett show (ABC).

Network officials said cigarette commercials also will fill many time outs during the Jan. 1 college football bowl games. One minute on the Rose Bowl costs an advertiser $135,000; on the Orange Bowl, $75,000. Big advertisers like cigarette companies pay somewhat less, however.

According to the Federal Trade Commission, cigarette makers spent $226 million on television and radio commercials in 1968, the most recent year for which the FTC has figures. They spent $35 million in magazines, $15 million in newspapers and $741,000 for billboards.

Against An 'Epidemic'
Antismoking crusaders believe the demise of television cigarette advertising will sharply reduce the number of youths who take up smoking, and make it easier for smokers to quit.

They note that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's National Advisory Cancer Council reported Dec. 1 that cigarette smoking was the primary cause of an "epidemic" of 60,000 lung cancer deaths a year in the United States.

The industry, still contending its product has not been proved harmful, hopes smokers will puff on. It cites increased cigarette consumption in England, Italy and other countries where cigarette commercials also are banned.

Legal Challenges
The law also means U.S. stations no longer will have to carry antismoking commercials, which were required to counter the cigarette blurbs. All three networks have said they plan to continue antismoking announcements, but fewer are expected.

Two court actions could change the situation. In one, owners of six radio stations have asked a federal court to declare the law banning cigarette commercials unconstitutional. A hearing is expected in late January.

The other, filed by the cigarette industry, claims that the same "fairness doctrine" which prompted antismoking messages should—in the absence of cigarette commercials — require prosmoking messages to counter grim televised health warnings. The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) disagreed, but the industry has appealed to a federal court.

With broadcasting turned off, where will that $226 million go? Cigarette men say they will spend more on billboards, newspapers and magazines, but estimate privately that industry outlays for advertising will be cut 50 per cent or more.

"We couldn't spend all that money in print if we wanted to," John T. Landry, Philip Morris group vice president and director of tobacco product marketing, said in a Tobacco Reporter interview.

"If tobacco companies put their total budgets into print, magazine would look like Sears, Roebuck catalogs."

Another restraint is the government. Congressional sponsors of the broadcast ban have warned they will crack down on other types of cigarette advertising, too, if it gets out of hand. And the FTC has served notice it will require a stern health warning in printed cigarette ads unless their volume is held down.

Promotion vs. Hucksterism
Cigarette profits have been healthy despite the health scare, and tobacco companies are expected to switch some of their advertising money into diversification. Cigarette makers already sell products ranging from Miller High Life beer and Jim Beam whisky to My-T-Fine pudding and Hawaiian Punch.

But health agencies and their congressional allies fear the firms will find new ways to promote cigarettes. Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, warned this month of "unconscionable hicksterism running amok within the cigarette industry."

Moss cited mass mailings of sample cigarettes address to "occupant," and American Tobacco Co.'s plan to name its pipe tobaccos "Pall Mall," "Silva Thin" and "Tareyton," in packages similar to their cigarette namesakes. The law does not affect broadcast advertising of pipe tobacco and cigars.

The Sporting Touch
The sporting events, Moss said, could put cigarette promotion back on TV despite the law.

Auto racing seems to be the leading entry. Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. backed one auto race last year. It plans to sponsor 14 in 1971, and to enter its own car—the "L&M Lola"—in races around the country.

Philip Morris is sponsoring a race in Bridgehampton, N.Y., in June. R.J. Reynolds, producer of Winston, Salem and Camels has announced the $100,000 Winston Cup award for the top grand national circuit auto racers.

Reynolds also is sponsoring the $80,000 Winston Salem Classic bowling tourney Feb. 20, with ABC television coverage, and is reportedly considering sponsorship of a golf tournament.

Philip Morris, convinced that female tennis stars have "come a long way, baby," is sponsoring a whole tour of tennis tournaments for top women players. Dubbed the "Virginia Slims Invitational," the series will include at least seven tournaments in 1971.

"The ladies have wanted this for a long time and they're very grateful," a Philip Morris spokesman said. "But we're not counting on TV coverage, and if we get it they may not even mention Virginia Slims."

In Cananada, Benson & Hedges sponsored a horse race in October, and Imperial Tobacco Co., has signed a five-year contract to sponsor the annual Canadian Open golf championship. An industry agreement limits cigarette commercials on Canadian TV to the hours after 9 p.m., and the government-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corp. (CBC) network refuses all cigarette advertising.

Look To New Holiday Toll

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The North Carolina State Motor Club warned today the New Year's weekend could take up to 17 lives and injure more than 500 persons in North Carolina.

The club urged motorists to start the new year out with special attention to safety in an effort to prove the grim prediction wrong.

The state will count traffic deaths from 6 p.m. Thursday through midnight Sunday, a 78-hour period.

Thomas B. Watkins, president of the motor club and of the National Automobile Association, said:

"North Carolina goes into this holiday behind the 1969 highway fatality pace. Make a resolution to be a better driver so we can end 1970 with fewer traffic deaths and start out the New Year on the right foot."

Traffic Had 484 Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Automobile accidents on the nation's streets and highways claimed 484 lives over the three-day Christmas holiday weekend, but the total was lower than predicted.

Although icy rain and snow hampered driving over much of the nation during the first hours of the weekend, dry, cold weather in the last two days improved road conditions.

The National Safety Council had estimated that from 550 to 650 persons would die in traffic crashes during the 78 hours. The traffic count began at 6 p.m. local time Thursday and ended at midnight Sunday.

The record high toll since World War II for the three-day celebration of Christmas was 720 in 1965, also a record three-day holiday. The record low for the three-day observance of Christmas since World War II was 413 in 1949.

Dogs At Large Still A Problem

BETHEL — Dogs at large still constitute a major problem for the townspeople of Bethel as the year ends.

Chief of Police Walter Gray has again reminded dog owners that they must take positive action to not let dogs run at large.

He said that any found running astray would be picked up, and that if necessary, warrants would be served against the owners.

Convicted TR Of Conservation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first Christmas tree was erected in the White House during the administration of President Franklin Pierce in 1856. However, Theodore Roosevelt, during his term in office, stopped the practice. He felt it was contrary to his policy of conserving natural resources.

Roosevelt's sons, however, smuggled a tree into the White House. When they were confronted, one of the nation's foremost foresters came to their defense and convinced the president that, in fact, the cutting of young fir trees aided forest conservation.

Outer Ring Of Phnom Penh Defenses Raided

By ROBIN MANNOCKS Associated Press Writer

PHNOM, PENH, Cambodia (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops, some reportedly attacking from boats in the Mekong River, assaulted a Cambodian garrison in Phnom Penh's outer defense ring during the night and fighting continued today.

Unofficial reports reaching Phnom Penh said the garrison at Rokakong, 22 miles to the north, was surrounded.

Allied aircraft bombed and strafed the attackers' positions during the night but the situation was described by a Cambodian military spokesman today as "confused." No casualty figures were available for either side.

North Vietnamese troops occupy positions a half-mile north of Rokakong, a district town on the Mekong's west bank. The market, on Rokakong's northern outskirts, has been the scene of frequent shooting incidents involving foraging Cambodian and enemy troops.

South Vietnamese paratroopers clearing a road 25 miles northwest of Rokakong were reported to have killed 25 of the enemy. Their Saigon headquarters said two South Vietnamese were killed and four wounded.

Many enemy losses, the command said, were inflicted by air strikes.

The South Vietnamese command reported in Saigon that 34 enemy soldiers were killed in South Vietnam, half of them by local militia near Gio Linh just south of the demilitarized zone. Enemy mortar shells caused light allied casualties at a handful of government military posts, spokesmen said, but two more serious attacks hit U.S. bases.

At Camp Eagle, headquarters of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division southeast of Hue, nine 122mm rockets fell, inflicting light casualties including some deaths, the U.S. Command reported.

Nine Americans were wounded in a 40-minute mortar attack on the U.S. Air Base at Phan Thiet, 100 miles northeast of Saigon and a ground assault against an artillery position on the base's southwestern side. Enemy casualties were not known, the command said.

U.S. helicopter crews reported seeing an enemy base camp in the central highlands province Kontum. Fighter-bombers were called, and then bombs killed 14 enemy, a headquarters communiqué said.

A minibus detonated a Viet Cong mine in Highway 22 near the capital of Tay Ninh Province, the South Vietnamese command said. A Vietnamese soldier and 11 civilians were killed and five Vietnamese wounded.

The incident occurred Sunday morning 62 miles northwest of Saigon.

Discipline Is Appreciated By Norm Sloan

By BOB QUINCY

RALEIGH, N.C. — Psychologists maintain that most youngsters react favorably to strict discipline. Norman Sloan, North Carolina State's fiery coach, agrees it's not half bad for men in his profession.

"I'm actually enjoying my job more since the restrictions were put into effect in the Atlantic Coast Conference," vows Sloan, whose Wolfpack is the defending champion of the eight-team league.

Coaches have been notified they can stray from the bench only: (1) for a time out, (2) to make a substitution, and (3) to check at the scorer's table. A violation is subject to an automatic technical foul.

"It has eased the pressure, believe it or not," submits Sloan. "Now I can confine my thoughts to coaching. In past years I was too concerned about the role of the official. If my opponent got up to make a complaint, I felt I was obligated to demand equal time in the interest of my team."

They've all but taken coaches out of violent demonstrations in the ACC as a result and some of the better actors will suffer. Sloan, however, thinks it will result in better basketball.

SLOAN'S TEAMS HAVE NEVER BEEN soft touches. You win from State and you take a few bruises. You lose to the Wolfpack and you still come out scarred. Norm grew up under the prickly magic wand of Everett Case. Case never contended that basketball is not a contact sport.

"But it has its limits," admits Norman, who is in his fifth year as head man at his alma mater, "and there is no place in the game for fighting. Fist fighting, I mean. Every point in this league is a battle."

"You really have to be a player or a coach to realize the pressure involved in any ACC game. It's tremendous. It saps your strength and it has every individual at an emotional peak. So I think the approach should be basic for all concerned. I don't think the commissioner will feel I'm invading his domain with the suggestion I'm about to make."

NORM SLOAN FEELS STRONGLY THAT the pre-game confrontation between game officials and captains should contain the following warning from men-in-stripes to the players:

"Gentlemen, we're all quite edgy and we'll soon be playing an important game. Tempers no doubt will explode on occasion. But the first man who tosses anything resembling a punch is out of the game immediately. And if there is a fight, all involved are going to suffer"

Sloan faults the coaches and officials of the Atlantic Coast Conference for failure to take a more drastic approach to fist fights involving teams in the league. The South Carolina-Maryland tussle of mid-December is nothing new. It just happens to be the most recent incident.

Mighty Effort

THE CLINCHER — Red Sherman of the Oakland Raiders grabs a pass from Quarterback Daryle Lamonica and it looks like Curtis Johnson of the Miami Dolphins is going to stop him. He didn't, and Sherman raced 82 yards in the fourth quarter to a touchdown and the margin of victory in Oakland Sunday. (AP Wirephoto)

Hilltoppers' Coach Is 'Most Surprised'

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer
One of the four teams in tonight's semifinals of the Holiday Festival Basketball Tournament is 10th-ranked Western Kentucky—and no one's more surprised than Hilltopper Coach John Oldham.

Oldham says the Hilltoppers don't belong on the same court with 19th-rated St. John's, N.Y., if they play anything like Saturday night's first-round game at Madison Square Garden.

"St. John's will run us out of here if we don't play any better than this," Oldham said after the Hilltoppers topped smaller St. Peter's N.J., 108-97 to nail a semifinal berth in the 19th annual classic.

South Carolina's second-ranked Gamecocks, an easy 83-60 winner over Cornell in Saturday's opening round, opens tonight's doubleheader against Providence, an 89-69 conquerer of Manhattan.

St. John's the backyard favorite seeking its third Festival title, won't be an easy mark for the Jim McDaniels-led Hilltoppers, according to Oldham. Despite a 27-point performance by the 7-foot McDaniels

Saturday night, "he never played a worse game," said Oldham.

Coach Frank McGuire of South Carolina wasn't too pleased either, with his team's early efforts against outgunned Cornell. Despite the Gamecocks' 13-point advantage, McGuire felt they looked like they were rocking to sleep.

What did he do? He had them spring into a man-to-man press from a deliberate zone.

"I tried to get them out of their lethargy," said McGuire, who admitted South Carolina wasn't too excited about the opening-round game.

"It's hard to play against a hungry ball club like Cornell," he said, referring to the Big Red's 2-7 record.

Other teams in the Top Ten No. 5 Pennsylvania, No. 8 Kansas and No. 9 Kansas—also chalked up success in tournament play over the weekend.

Penn beat Syracuse 85-77 in overtime in the Quaker City Classic in Philadelphia; Kansas slugged Missouri 96-63 in the Big Eight Tournament at Kansas City and Drake whipped Canisius in the Queen City Classic at Buffalo, N.Y.

Washington State stunned No. 11 Indiana 83-80 in the Far West Classic at Portland Ore., No. 13 Villanova turned back Illinois 89-76 in the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu and Louisiana State stopped DePaul 91-72 in the All-College Tourney at Oklahoma City in other major tourneys.

The results set up these other pairings tonight:

Penn vs. Utah and St. Joseph's Pa., vs Temple in the Quaker City semifinals; Drake vs. Niagara in the Queen City finals; Oklahoma vs. Nebraska and Colorado vs. Kansas State in the first round of the Big Eight and Wichita State vs. San Francisco and Utah State vs. Bowling Green in the All-Colleges' first round.

Also, Stanford vs. Ohio State and Harvard vs. Oregon State in the Far West Classic semifinals and Michigan vs. St. Louis and Brigham Young vs. the Army service team in the Rainbow Classic first round.

Top-rated UCLA, third-ranked Marquette, sixth-rated Southern California, No. 12 Tennessee and No. 15 St. Bonaventure get into the tournament swim this week as college basketball unleashes more than 50 Christmas classics. UCLA meets William & Mary in the first round of the Steel Bowl at Pittsburgh Tuesday; Marquette matches forces with Dartmouth in the Milwaukee Classic Tuesday; Southern Cal takes on Michigan State and Tennessee faces Houston Tuesday night in the Trojan Classic at Los Angeles and St. Bonaventure meets Bradley in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., tonight.

Other holiday tourneys include the Evansville Invitational; Las Vegas Classic; Motor City Classic at Detroit; Pointetia Classic at Greenville, S.C.; Hall of Fame at Springfield, Mass.; Palmetto Classic at Charleston, S.C.; Midwinter Classic at Santa Barbara, Calif.; and the Roadrunner Invitational at Las Cruces, N.M.

Early Practice For Sun Devils

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Coach Frank Kush, whose Arizona State football team will meet North Carolina Wednesday night in the Peach Bowl, is a firm believer that a man who wastes no time will know the sweetness of success.

He put that philosophy to work Sunday when, minutes after the team arrived in Atlanta, he had the Sun Devils on the practice field for a workout.

"We've been working mostly on a running game defense against North Carolina," he said. "We've played previous games against teams with strong running and I feel our

Garden Bout Almost Sure

NEW YORK (AP) — A Philadelphia lawyer says a Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier heavyweight championship fight is set for Madison Square Garden, although a spokesman for the arena calls the statement "premature."

A news conference, however, is reportedly planned for Tuesday at the Garden to announce the big fight.

Bruce Wright, a lawyer for Cloverly, Inc., which handles Frazier, said the bout was set for March 8 in New York.

"No papers have been signed yet," said Wright, "but I can't see it not coming off, with all the work we have done in the last three weeks. It's not critical for me to be in New York Tuesday, but Frazier will be there. I am very satisfied with everything."

The New York Daily News reported the fight arrangements Sunday night.

But a Garden spokesman said he did not know of any contract signing thus far and said negotiations are continuing. Houston's Astrodome also has been bidding for the bout.

Warm Welcome For '49ers

Southern Conf. Cagers Seeing Return To Courts This Week

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — After a Christmas week in which just two teams, first-place Davidson and last-place Virginia Military, saw action—and got beaten—Southern Conference basketball teams return to the court with a vengeance this week with two playing host in tournaments opening tonight.

The Citadel's Bulldogs will inaugurate the Palmetto Classic on their home court, while Furman's Paladins will stage their 11th annual Poinsettia Classic—in which The Citadel has participated many times until this year.

The Bulldogs, 5-2 over-all, will take on Navy in the second game tonight following a clash between Mississippi and Baylor. The Paladins, 3-2 in their first season under Joe Williams, tackle Mississippi State in the nightcap of a twin bill which also matches Texas A&M and Arizona.

Consolation and championship games are scheduled Tuesday night in the two tournaments—and three more conference teams will get their baptism in the orgy of holiday extravaganzas.

Davidson will be the host team for the eighth annual Charlotte Invitational, which the Wildcats have won five times, including the last three. The Wildcats will take on Boston College following an opening encounter between Georgia and LaSalle.

BATTING CHAMP

BOSTON (UPI) — Ted Williams' .328 in 1958 won an American League batting title for the Red Sox slugger, then 40 years old. It was the sixth time that Williams won the championship in a career that stretched from 1939 to 1960

The first Presidential Classic at Ft. Myer, Va., will find Richmond meeting former league member George Washington and another former member of the conference, Virginia Tech, facing East Tennessee.

William and Mary might well be thinking of the consolation game right now in the Steel Bowl at Pittsburgh, since the Indians face four-time NCAA champion UCLA—the nation's No. 1 team—on opening night. The other game matches Pittsburgh rivals Pitt and Duquesne.

Consolation and championship games in those three tournaments will be played Wednesday night, after which all teams take a break until Saturday.

Two league encounters are on the Saturday night schedule as Davidson goes to William and Mary and VMI to Furman. Non-conference scraps have East Carolina at Marshall and Richmond at Maryland.

From then on, it's back to the regular season grind for all but VMI's winless Keydets, who will take part in the Senior Bowl tournament at Mobile, Ala. Jan. 4-5.

A Little Psychology May Have Kept '49ers Going

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers are headed for a National Football Conference championship game against the Dallas Cowboys—and it's just possible the road was cleared by a little psychology that kept them from blowing their cool in the cold.

Whether Coach Dick Nolan's pregame training plan and quarterback John Brodie's short-sleeved game jersey were all part of a planned ploy to divert attention from the frigid cold that has become an ally of the Minnesota Vikings probably will never be known.

What is known is that Nolan did not subject the 49ers to the cold of pro football's most northern outpost until absolutely necessary, that the short-sleeved Brodie passed for one touchdown and scored another, and that the 49ers defeated the Vikings 17-14 Sunday in an NFC playoff.

But, in the deliriously happy San Francisco dressing room Sunday, the suspicion grew that psychology had become part of strategy.

"Cold will affect you if you think about it," Nolan acknowledged. "There was a lot written about it."

So, unlike the Los Angeles Rams who came in here last year early in the week and lost a playoff game, Nolan didn't expose the 49ers to the cold or the writing remaining on the West Coast for workouts.

Brodie kept his troops from losing their cool over five fumbles attributed to the chilling cold and directed them to with in one victory of their first championship in the 49ers 25-year history.

Despite completing 16 of 32 passes for 231 yards, combining with Dick Witcher on a 24-yard pass that made it 7-7 and scoring on a quarterback sneak to make it 17-7, Brodie disdained the hero's role that the statistics pointed his way.

"Our defense outplayed their's that's all it was," said the 14-year veteran.

Following a fumble that enabled Paul Krause to scoot 22 yards for a 7-0 Minnesota lead after 6:23 of the first quarter, the San Francisco defense shut out the Minnesota offense until the Vikings scored with one second showing on the clock.

Brodie's pass to Witcher tied it, a 40-yard field goal by Bruce Gossett late in the second period put the 49ers ahead to stay and Brodie slammed in from a yard out to build the bulge to 17-7 with 1:20 to go.

The victory set up a pupil-teacher clash between Nolan and the man under whom he learned his defensive theories, Coach Tom Landry of the Dallas Cowboys.

Raiders Foresee Rugged Game Against Baltimore

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
OAKLAND (AP) — Don Shula, a fellow who should know, foresees a rugged battle all the way when the Oakland Raiders collide with Baltimore's Colts next Sunday in the American Football Conference championship game.

Shula left the head coaching job at Baltimore this year to take over the Miami Dolphins, and it was that team which fell 21-14 Sunday to Oakland in a National Football League opener.

The young Dolphins, who reached the playoffs in 1970 after a last-place finish in 1969,

British Tennis Team Gains

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Great Britain emerged favorites to win their first Federation Cup women's tennis series with a victory over the United States in a semifinal match at Royal Kings Park Monday.

The experience of England's Ann Jones, 32, and Virginia Wade, 26, proved too much for the young American team of Patti Hogan, 22, and Sharon Walsh, 18.

The British girls won both singles to put them into Tuesday's final against the winner of today's second semifinal between Australia and France.

scored first before the 54,401 in Oakland's Coliseum.

Paul Warfield took a 16-yard touchdown pass from Bob Griese on the second play after Charlie Smith fumbled and Bill Stanfill recovered at the Oakland 19 in the second period.

The Raiders tied it up shortly before halftime on a 22-yard pass from Daryle Lamonica to Fred Biletnikoff.

Defensive back Willie Brown sent the Raiders ahead to stay in the third period with a 50-yard touchdown runback of Griese's only intercepted pass.

Lamonica unloaded an 82-yard bomb to Rod Sherman in the final quarter, and even though the Dolphins did collect another touchdown, on a seven-yard pass from Griese to Willie Richardson, it came too late.

After that touchdown, Miami almost got away with an onside kick, but the ball slithered out of bounds and officials awarded it to Oakland.

Lamonica and Brown each were presented game balls by their teammates, who now look ahead to their fourth title game in as many years. The past three were for the old American Football League or divisional championship.

Cougars Break A Losing Streak

GREENSBORO (AP) — The Carolina Cougars outscored Florida by 11 points in the third period to beat them 122-114 Sunday night and break a four-game losing streak.

The Cougars came from three points behind to an eight-point lead, the margin with which they finished, on the strength of the 34-23 score in the third period.

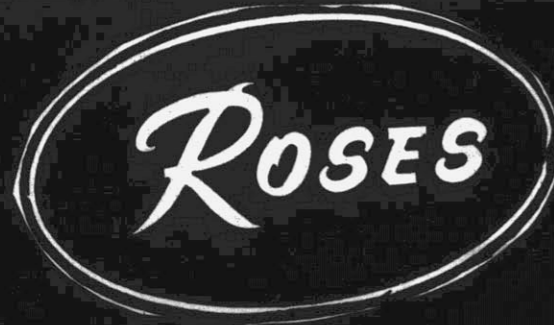

They were propelled on the strong shooting of George Lehmann, who scored 22 points in the game, and Joe Caldwell, who finished with 17. Bob Verga had 18 points for the Cougars.

Mack Calvin, the top scorer in the American Basketball Association, had 35 points for the Floridians, and his teammate, Larry Jones, scored 28. Ira Harge, who was traded by the Cougars to the Floridians last week, scored 16.

Words & Music

The library opens up the world for a child . . .

“A good book is the best of friends, the same today and forever.” Perhaps, in these days of noise and haste, more than ever. Books are friends who talk quietly to our inner ear, who cannot force themselves upon us if we do not choose to seek them out.

Libraries are places where the lover of books lingers, as one does on a visit to a friend's house. Today libraries offer phonograph records and films, as well as books, to borrow for use outside the library. But there is nothing quite like actually being in the library itself, with endless pleasures of browsing open to the susceptible who are lured into undreamed of fields of discovery and enchantment. The library is also a serious workshop for students, researchers and the specialist who comes to look at a unique edition of some revered masterpiece.

In New York, a city of noise and crowds and material wealth, the public libraries offer another kind of reality which has a very special value. For many, the libraries are not just good friends, they are the indispensable companions of daily life in the city. The photographs on this page show some quiet moments of companionship with the libraries' words and music.

This Week's PICTURE SHOW by Andy Kerekes.

. . . concentrates the world for the specialist, the scholar.

Libraries have their quiet halls of learning . . .

. . . and private places where music echoes.

Worry Clinics A Family Unit Bridges 'Gap'

Lita shows how to bridge the "generation gap." Avoid Dr. Spool's "permissive" folly and never encourage the "dole" psychology by giving your children an "allowance." Pay for tasks on the piecemeal plan. Employ the "Surprise" strategy below and use the dinner table hour as a chance for a "talk clinic."

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M.D.
CASE P-520: Lita B., aged 37, is the wife of a Dental Surgeon. "Dr. Crane," she began "we have 5 children. "The oldest is a senior in High School. "But they don't show any signs of the so-called 'generation gap' that is talked about so widely nowadays. "Is it because Daddy made the kiddies all work for their spending money? "And we always had a strong feeling of camaraderie. "For we engaged in family picnics, attended ball games and the circus as an all-family unit, and were all active in the church."

Generation Gap
A "gap" means no connecting bond between the two sides. Lita is wife, therefore, in showing that when parents and children pray and play together, there will be no "generation gap." Alas, many of our supposedly "best families" don't maintain personal control of their youngsters. Instead, they farm them out to maids, school teachers, YMCA secretaries and Scout leaders, all of whom are generally excellent. But the parents themselves should always retain top position

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q 1—Neither side vulnerable, and as South you hold: ♠J9643 ♥A6 ♦952 ♣KQ7
The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1 ♦ Dble. Pass ?
What do you bid?
A.—You have an average hand in high cards (10 points) and a five card suit, which make game prospects very bright opposite take-out double. The method of conveying this bit of information is to bid one more than necessary. The proper call is two spades.

Q 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold: ♠Q73 ♥J64 ♦AJ1073 ♣A8
The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—A raise to four hearts is clearly indicated. Holding three trumps to an honor and a short suit, there can be no doubt as to this choice. A bid of three no trump, merely because you have touchy stoppers in all the suits, would be highly improper.

Q 3—Both vulnerable, and as dealer you hold: ♠AQ ♥AQ642 ♦AK4 ♣A65
What is your opening bid?
A.—Despite the wealth of high cards, an opening bid of two hearts is not recommended. It is fractionally short of the prescribed requirements. Our choice is for a bid of two no trump. If partner has nothing he is permitted to pass. But, if he has a bare smattering of high card strength he will raise to three.

Q 4—You are South, East-West vulnerable, and you hold: ♠1073 ♥AK65 ♦K943 ♣KQ
The bidding has proceeded: North East South 1 ♣ 1 ♦ ?
What do you bid?
A.—There cannot be much doubt that you will have a very fine play for game, but there may be richer stakes available. Against the adverse diamond contract, it is reasonable to estimate that you will win five tricks, three in high cards and two in trumps. If partner can

Brown Named To Dimes Drive Post

Lester Brown, local insurance agent, has been named to head the Business and Industry Committee of the 1971 March of Dimes campaign against birth defects. USAF Captain Gary Schaal, campaign director for the annual January fund-raising appeal, made the announcement today.

"Man can help nature prevent mistakes," Brown remarked about the campaign to find new ways against the occurrence of birth defects. "The Rh serum and rubella vaccine are cutting down the number of infants born every year with significant birth defects in the U.S." Brown noted that there is, however, "still a massive challenge ahead of us, because an estimated quarter of a million babies still are denied a healthy start in life. Research, patient care and education are weapons that ultimately can help overcome these tragic figures." Brown has plans underway to recruit business colleagues in

Cotton Insurance In 1971 Will Cost Less

"Both the guaranteed income and cost per acre generally will be slightly lower for cotton in 1971 than this year," according to Julian Mann, State Director of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

"Reductions are necessary due to the excess of claims paid compared with premium income in recent years. The good cotton crop of this year, according to Cotton guarantees are available in 31 North Carolina counties. "Those cotton growers who were in the program in 1970 will have until Thursday, December 31, to discontinue their protection for 1971 by giving written and signed notice to their FCIC County Office. It is expected that most growers will continue their protection."

"We will take cotton applications in counties in which cotton insurance is offered up until about the time for planting. Oregon's 2,400 filbert growers produce 95 per cent of the nation's output.

Tricia, Escort To Ski Resort

WESTHAMPTON BEACH, N.Y. (AP)—Tricia Nixon and her most frequent escort, Edward Finch Cox, have left for an undisclosed New England skiing resort after a weekend house party at the country home of his parents.

They were accompanied on their departure Sunday by his sister, Maizie.

Rumors so far unconfirmed by either family say Cox and the President's elder daughter are engaged.

Indochina War Outlook Disappointing As 1970 Ends

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — This week the United States starts its second decade of direct involvement in Indochina. Reflecting a course of disengagement, American forces are at their lowest numerical level in more than four years. So are battlefield casualties.

The direct American effort is generally dated from Jan. 1, 1961. That year 11 Americans were killed in action. In 1968, the toll was near 15,000. That was the peak year; this year's deaths have been less than a third of the 1968 total.

In all, more than 44,000 Americans have been killed in action in 10 years. The total of American lives lost, counting accidents and disease, has reached 53,000 in tabulations of the U.S. Command.

The focal point of U.S. involvement in the war has subtly shifted for the time being to a 6,000-mile network of mountain passes, dirt roads and river crossings in the southern panhandle of Laos called the Ho Chi Minh trail. It is North Vietnam's highway into the South.

Action in South Vietnam has been scaled down to almost entirely small-unit clashes during the past year, but the United States is still uncertain of the Communist side's intentions.

Hopes have been abandoned for a military victory. U.S. officials are pessimistic about a political settlement.

"We will come to a situation where we have neither war nor peace," says President Nguyen Van Thieu, whose Saigon regime has U.S. backing.

One of the allies' main adversaries, Tran Nam Trung, commander of the Viet Cong armed forces says: "The South Vietnam National Front for Liberation has laid down the people's war line which consists in carrying out a nationwide, all-around and protracted war."

American troop strength, at a peak of 543,000 in April 1969, has been pared to slightly under 340,000. By May 1, 60,000 more troops are scheduled to be gone.

U.S. troop strength in Vietnam is now at its lowest level since October, 1966, and battlefield deaths in 1970 were the lowest in five years. They dropped by more than 50 per cent compared to 1969, when U.S. troops fought their last major battle in South Vietnam at Hamburger Hill.

Many a field commander has been known to say, "We don't want another Hamburger Hill." U.S. forces launched a major offensive against the hill and suffered heavy casualties, triggering a storm of controversy in Congress.

Some U.S. officers see the next two months as critical.

"A couple of months will tell the story," says one American, "how much supplies and how many men the North Vietnamese can get down the Ho Chi Minh trail, what assets they can count on to do anything with."

The dry season now dominates Laos, the time when the North Vietnamese historically move supplies and reinforcements southward into Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Military sources say the trail network has dried out after a longer than usual rainy season spawned by the southwest monsoons and extended by typhoons.

Tons of supplies are beginning to flow southward from mountain passes in North Vietnam. The North Vietnamese have beefed up their air defenses to protect the supply route.

Laotian government forces hold a string of small bases and camps on the eastern edge of the Bolovens Plateau overlooking the trail network. From these bases and camps, irregular forces, including mercenaries hired by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, conduct surveillance and harassment operations along the trail.

In the past two months, the North Vietnamese have overrun four bases edging the plateau but have failed to take the biggest base, called Site 22 on military maps. That is a likely focus of a North Vietnamese offensive aimed at extending control over southern Laos to insure a steady flow of troops and supplies into South Vietnam.

With heavy North Vietnamese backing, the Communist Pathet Lao now control about two-thirds of Laos, a land-locked country bordered by China, Vietnam, Cambodia, Thailand and Burma.

Royal Laotian sources say that although the Pathet Lao hold at least two-thirds of the territory they control less than half the population of about two million.

There are varying estimates of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong strength in Indochina.

U.S. sources in Saigon estimate 240,000 to 310,000 North Vietnamese troops are in South Vietnam and Cambodia, and in sanctuaries just inside Laos and just above the demilitarized zone between the two Vietnams.

Of this number, 40,000 are said to be in Cambodia, including four North Vietnamese and Viet Cong divisions that had fought against the allies in South Vietnam.

These sources estimate that 50,000 North Vietnamese troops and 50,000 Pathet Lao are operating throughout Laos.

The allies have under 340,000 American troops, more than one million South Vietnamese, about 160,000 Cambodians, 50,000 Royal Laotian regular army troops and 20,000 Laotian irregulars.

There are also 50,000 South Koreans, 12,000 Thais, and about 5,000 Australians and New Zealanders. Some of these allied forces also are slated for pullout as the U.S. withdrawal proceeds.

In Cambodia, the North Vietnamese have made gains and hold large chunks of the north-eastern sector.

Some military experts in Saigon and Phnom Penh feel that the North Vietnamese could put even more pressure on Cambodia if they wanted to.

"They haven't been as tough as one would expect in Cambodia," said one analyst. "It could be that they don't want to be as tough as they have been in the past in Vietnam. The situation is different."

"Here in South Vietnam, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have an infrastructure of their own. They really aren't prepared for a shadow government in Cambodia. The area they are interested in is South Vietnam, not Cambodia."

"Cambodia is just another jumping off point," said another analyst. "They are fighting the Cambodians there to keep their supply lines open, to re-establish their supply system into South Vietnam."

Most experts see a continuation of small-scale fighting in South Vietnam for several months, with enemy forces emphasizing guerrilla warfare and terror attacks.

Captured documents indicate that the main objective in their 1971 spring campaign is to wreck the Saigon government's pacification program, which seeks to secure the more than 10,000 villages in South Vietnam. The Saigon government claims that more than 90 per cent of approximately 18 million residents live in relative security in areas under government control.

Another indicator of intentions is intelligence data that the Communist command has deactivated four North Vietnamese and Viet Cong regiments and 17 battalions in the 3rd Military Region. This includes Saigon and 11 surrounding provinces.

"The troops in these deactivated units have been sent down to work with guerrillas and local-force units in the villages for squad-type operations," said one intelligence expert.

"The enemy's goal is to discredit and defeat the pacification program."

Several sources report none of the usual intelligence indicators that the Communist command is planning a large-scale offensive in South Vietnam during the Tet lunar new year festival in the last week of January. This is not entirely ruled out, however.

The Viet Cong have declared a four-day cease-fire for Tet 1971. They also called a truce for the holiday in 1968, then launched their biggest offensive of the war. Although mostly guerrilla warfare is anticipated in 1971, sources expect occasional attacks on towns and sieges of isolated border camps.

For the most part, says one Saigon official, "I see no large force confrontation in the cards. Hanoi is presumably under some pressure."

While Communist-led forces have made wide gains in Cambodia and Laos, the South Vietnamese have taken the initiative in their own country and have swept across the border on several occasions to help Cambodia.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon forces have taken over virtually all of the tough battle zones from the Americans, who have been pulled back into the interior as local security and backup forces.

South Vietnamese battlefield deaths in 1970 were fivefold those of the Americans. The Saigon forces suffered nearly 20,000 men killed in action, including close to 1,500 in Cambodia.

The Saigon government's strategy is to keep its regular army forces along the border areas of Cambodia and Laos to block any advance into South Vietnam, while more than 500,000 militia troops secure towns and villages and seek to destroy the Viet Cong underground.

Thieu, anticipating a possible political settlement or a standstill cease-fire, has made destruction of the underground his top priority. Thieu acknowledges it still is troublesome.

The United States' No. 1 priority in the next few months if the bombing of the Ho Chi Minh trail and the arming of 30,000 more Cambodian troops.

U.S. officials say that the allied raids into Cambodia last spring against North Vietnamese base camps and sanctuaries set the enemy back several months and upset supply lines. The rainy season followed the raids, thus hampering North Vietnamese efforts to rebuild.

During the next few weeks, at the height of the dry season, the North Vietnamese will try to build up their stockpiles once again, U.S. officers say. Laos is the only open to them and that is why it is so important, these officers explain.

Young People Push Pure Food Fight

LONDON (UPI)—Youth is not only protesting the pollution of the environment—it is leading the fight for pure food.

Dr. Max Warmbrand made this point in an address to the 16th annual convention of the International Society for Research in Nutrition and the Diseases of Civilization at Trier in Germany.

Then he came to London and gave a practical demonstration of his claim by showing that the majority of diners in many of the restaurants claiming food grown "organically" (free of pesticides) were indeed young.

"These youngsters will not accept the values of the older generation without proof," said Dr. Warmbrand, a gentle 74-year-old who lives in Stamford, Conn., and Orlando, Fla. "They want to know why there is so much disease in countries such as ours despite the high standard of living."

"They want to know what we are doing wrong, why Americans do not live as long as some other people? This has led them to question among other things the diet of the older generation freely accepts. This change in the thinking of the new generation presents a challenge to the individual doctor and educator."

As Dr. Warmbrand spoke he was surrounded, in a restaurant called "Raw Deal" by groups of strikingly dressed members of the swinging London set. He was greeted by the manager with respect as the author of "The Encyclopedia of Health" and other books on health and diet.

Dr. Warmbrand said he impressed on the delegates at Trier the need to lead the young into sensible eating and living habits rather than have them experiment with useless or harmful fads. His own four-point plan for keeping healthy is:

Enough sleep and rest; some physical exercise; emotional control and the right nutrition. In his terms the latter basically means fresh fruit and vegetables and whole wheat products and moderate amounts of meat, fish or poultry if desired.

PNB HAS IT ALL... FOR SAVERS AND INVESTORS.

Confused about savings rates? Take heart . . . so are the Philadelphia lawyers. But remember this. Planters National Bank pays the highest rate permitted under Federal Reserve regulations. No insured full-service bank pays a higher rate. However, Planters does pay more than many banks . . . more, in fact, than most banks. And here's how.

5% GOLDEN PASSBOOK

PNB's popular Golden Passbook pays 5% compounded daily.

This isn't quarterly or even monthly compounding. It's daily compounding to yield a liberal 5.127% annually.

Open a PNB Golden Passbook with $500 or more. Add to it anytime and in any amount you wish. Withdrawals may be made with 90 days prior written notice, or during the first 10 days of each calendar quarter if your money has been on deposit 90 days. Interest is paid quarterly.

And your remaining funds still earn 5% True Daily Interest, just as long as your balance doesn't fall below $500.

Many financial institutions do not pay interest compounded daily on this type account. PNB Golden Passbook savers, however, do enjoy this extra earning power.

Golden Passbook accounts are fully assignable. And you can use them as loan collateral.

If you'd like more details, talk to a PNB banker. He'll be glad to fill you in.

CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT

If Certificates of Deposit better suit your needs, we have these, too, at top rates.

Two-year certificates for less than $100,000 pay 5 3/4%; one-year certificates, 5 1/2%. Purchase one for as little as $1,000.

Shorter term certificates are available at 4 1/2% and 5%, depending on length and type of maturity.

Certificates of $100,000 or more are offered at competitive and negotiated rates, depending upon maturity.

Your interest is payable by check on each anniversary date, or deposited if you wish, to a PNB savings or checking account. Or, on automatically renewable certificates, the interest may be left with the certificate and compounded every 3 months.

PNB has it all, and we'd like to help you tailor a plan to best suit your own particular needs and objectives.

REGULAR PASSBOOK SAVINGS

Still the most popular and most flexible of our savings plans. With Regular Passbook Savings, you can withdraw funds anytime. Or add any amount you wish.

PNB Regular Passbook Savings pay the highest interest allowed by law on regular bank savings. With 4 1/2% guaranteed bank interest, compounded and paid monthly.

Many financial institutions still compound regular passbook savings quarterly or semi-annually, but PNB savers do earn extra interest from monthly compounding.

And our regular passbook savings also are computed on a Daily Interest basis, which assures you of earning interest every day from deposit to withdrawal, so long as your balance is at least $10, and not lose one penny of interest.

AUTOMATIC SAVING

Just tell us how much you want to save. And when. We'll simply transfer funds automatically ($10 and up) from your Planters checking account to your Planters savings account. It's that simple. Month after month after month after month. Like clockwork.

There they are. Great ways to make money at Planters National. Maybe you'll want to use several of them. Maybe just one. It all depends on what you want to do with your money.

But, if you're not quite sure which ones to use, it may be helpful to come in and talk with us. Tell us what your goals are. What kind of money you'd like to save in five, ten, twenty years. Then we'll sit down together and work up a program that'll get you to where you want to be. And you can count on that.
