'A Long Tunnel Ahead': Mansfield
A Bickering Congress Again Tackles SST

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — A bickering 91st Congress scheduled another attempt today to resolve the controversy that may yet keep it in session as long as the law allows: the future of the supersonic transport plane.

After that, the Constitution says the Capitol belongs to the 92nd Congress, which actually doesn't plan to meet until Jan. 21.
The Senate Tuesday tabled, thus killing a compromise $7-billion transportation appropriations bill that includes $210 million to subsidize the airplane.

The Senate earlier had voted to spend nothing at all. That action prepared the way for a new conference with the House, which first voted $290 million for the SST and then accepted the conference recommendation of $210 million.
The Senate expanded to nine men its negotiating delegation, adding Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chief SST foe and Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., who favors the plane.

Tuesday, the Senate passed, 81 to 0, a massive increase in Social Security benefits—but that bill appeared to be foundering in between the two houses.
Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said it will be impossible to work out a compromise for passage this Congress.

Egypt's President Expects Raids
Israel Insists On Defensible Frontiers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Israeli Premier Golda Meir says her government will not make peace with the Arabs unless it gets "defensible" frontiers and retains control of united Jerusalem.
But she also said Tuesday that Israel, bolstered by new support from the United States, is re-entering the peace negotiations at the United Nations "ready not only to present our position but also to listen."

until binding peace agreements are reached.
She reiterated Israel's rejection of U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers' call for Israel to agree to only minor changes in the borders it had before the 1967 war. Israel's decision to return to the peace negotiations does not include any commitment to agree to the Rogers proposals or any other plan, she said.
Sadat said Egypt's armed forces are "now stronger than ever before," and "we have reached the stage where we can say, 'No, we shall not extend the talks, but we know this will be a dilatory tactic and they do not intend to implement the November U.N. resolution."

He was referring to the U.N. Security Council resolution of November 1967, which called for a peace settlement including Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories and Arab recognition of Israel's right to exist as a state within secure boundaries.
Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban told a news conference today that "such talk of stopping the cease-fire is irresponsible—these speeches are not elements which generate negotiating atmosphere."

Meanwhile, sources in the Israeli town of Tiberias reported that Lebanese soldiers and Arab guerrillas fought for several hours Tuesday night around the Lebanese village of Benni Jhail, about two miles from the frontier.
The sources said shelling and light arms fire could be heard clearly and that flares occasionally lit the battle scene. Benni Jhail is a few miles from Yattar, which Israeli forces attacked Sunday night in a retaliatory raid against guerrilla strongholds.
The Senate passed Tuesday night a bill to continue automobile and telephone excise taxes for the next two years, and to speed collection of estate taxes.

Bar Soliciting For Arthritis

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Department of Social Services said today it has barred the Arthritis Foundation from soliciting funds in the state because too little of the money collected goes to program services.
Col. Clifton Craig, social services commissioner, said an investigation showed the foundation collected about $400,000 in North Carolina in the past six years and probably only $10,000 went to program services.
"We haven't been able to tell from their reports and book-keeping system exactly what happened to the money," Craig said. "But entirely too much was spent on administration."
The action came after a four-week investigation that found the organization plagued by internal disputes.
The probe discovered that the North Carolina National Bank had frozen the foundation's account because there was confusion over who was legally in charge of it and that the rent on the foundation's main office had not been paid in three months.

John R. Jordan Jr. of Raleigh, who resigned as the foundation's North Carolina president last fall, said the situation "is very embarrassing to me. I don't really understand it."
Jordan is chairman of the Board of Social Services, the advisory body to the Department of Social Services.
He said he quit when he learned the organization was running into difficulties with the Department of Social Services.
Fund-raising organizations such as the Arthritis Foundation can solicit money in North Carolina only if licensed by the Department of Social Services.

Jenkins Cites Agreement On The Part Of 4-Year Schools

"There is a definite agreement on the part of the administrators of the four year schools to accept a number of East Carolina University's medical students, 16 to 20 each year," Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of ECU stated today.
Dr. Jenkins, referring to an Associated Press story distributed earlier this week, remarked: "This agreement can be documented in minutes of the Board of Higher Education report dated August 18, 1970."
The AP story, which ran in North Carolina papers yesterday and Monday, indicated the deans of the three North Carolina medical schools may not have room for the 16 to 20 two year graduates ECU plans to produce each year during its initial phase of medical school operation. The article also noted the deans have stated they have made no firm agreement to accept a certain quota of graduates from the proposed ECU two year medical school.
"I consider it most unfortunate and regrettable that such a distorted story received wide circulation across our State no serious differences between our curriculum and those presently in operation at our sister institutions at Chapel Hill, Bowman Gray and Duke Schools of Medicine."

Observing that the ECU staff would like their medical students to transfer to one of the three institutions for advanced clinical training, Dr. Jenkins remarked: "In this regard we have met with the deans of the Schools of Medicine at Chapel Hill, Duke and Bowman Gray concerning the possibility of our students transferring into the clinical program at these schools.
"These schools have expressed a desire to cooperate in a willingness to accept collectively up to 16 or 20 students per year from ECU. It is most important to understand that this assumes that these schools collectively will have sufficient space in their clinical facilities and that our students are eligible for admission."
Dr. Jenkins touched on other possibilities. "In addition to this agreement — that they will consider our students for

Encourage Scott Revamping Of Higher Education

RALEIGH (AP) — With a major hurdle behind him, Gov. Bob Scott today aimed his plans for revamping North Carolina's university structure at a meeting with the system's presidents and chancellors Monday.
The session will be a followup to a closed-door meeting Tuesday at which Scott won endorsement of the executive committee of the University of North Carolina Board of Trustees.
The powerful 15-member committee didn't say whether it agreed with details of Scott's plan, but it praised his efforts "in bringing (the situation) to the attention of the public and especially to the trustees of all state-supported institutions."

The committee also agreed to meet with trustees of the nine regional universities and members of the Board of Higher Education on the reorganization question.
Coming from representatives of the six-campus UNC system — the dominant sector of North Carolina's 15 state-supported institutions — the action was clearly a giant step forward for Scott.
The governor said he was "very much encouraged" by it.
Scott's plan, never presented publicly, is understood to suggest moving to either a single board of trustees for all state-supported universities or a board of regents type system.
Scott named a seven-member subcommittee to discuss reorganization with similar trustee subcommittees from the regional universities and the Board of Higher Education.

Named to head the subcommittee was Victor Bryant of Durham, an attorney.
Members of the subcommittee are Sen. George Wood, D-Camden; Archie Davis of Winston-Salem, a banker; Mrs. John Burgwyn of Jackson; Walter Smith of High Point, a manufacturer; Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chatham, and Tom White of Kingston, an attorney and chairman of the State Advisory Budget Commission.
Bryant said he expected to call the first meeting of the subcommittee in about a week.

Snow For Much Of N.C.; Contributed To 3 Wreck Deaths

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A two-inch snow which covered parts of North Carolina Tuesday has contributed to three highway deaths. And more snow is on the way to inconvenience New Year's Eve revelers.
The National Weather Service says that snow will move into the mountains tonight and work eastward Thursday.
The snow may be mixed with rain over inland sections on Thursday. This would mean more trouble on the highways for those going to New Year's Eve parties Thursday night.
The Charlotte and Fayetteville areas had about two inches of snow. About one inch fell in the Asheville, Raleigh, Durham and Goldsboro areas.
Two residents of Greenville, S.C., Mrs. Richard Turner, 30, and Sandra Darlene Clayton, 11, were fatally injured when the car in which they were riding collided with a dairy truck Tuesday night on Interstate 26 in southern Henderson County.
Hospitalized were Mrs. Turner's 26-year-old husband; their 4-year-old daughter, Penny Ann Turner, and James Todd, whose age was not learned immediately.
Mrs. Mary Grant Morgan, 34, of Newton, was killed Tuesday when her car skidded on icy U.S. 64-70 near Hickory and collided with a truck.
The indicated highs this afternoon were upper 30s in the mountains and 40s elsewhere. The overnight lows will be mostly in the 20s. The highs Thursday will generally be in the 30s.

FASHION ALA MALAYSIA... From the heart of the Pacific come oriental fashions which seek to gain a slice of the Western Market. First there's a printed mini with long ruffled sleeves; next comes an exotic bermuda shorts and poncho duo; for dressy evenings, try a batak samfoo with typical samfoo blouse but given the modern touch with bell bottom pants.

Malaysia Offers Varied Fashions

By BRIAN GOMEZ
Associated Press Writer
KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malaysia, better known for its rubber, tin and palm oil, is embarking on a new venture aimed at capturing a hunk of the world fashion market. In this country of 10 million, where 45 per cent are Malays, 40 per cent Chinese, 12 per cent Indians and 3 per cent tribals and others, fashion is obviously diversified.

The government, hoping to capitalize on this, recently set up a multi-million dollar company to boost sales of Malaysian batak textiles and other handicrafts. If the project is successful the rural Malay peoples, who specialize in hand printing the many textured batak cloths, will reap the financial benefits.

Thus far batak has been admired and used mostly as shirting material by men in the Malaysia-Indonesia region. It has also traditionally been very popular as the form fitting, two-piece, sarong kebaya worn mostly by Malay womenfolk and adapted by local Chinese.

Malaysia Batek and Handicrafts Ltd., has been given the task of boosting local and foreign sales of batak to supplement work in this field by Mara, a government agency working to wipe out Malay poverty.

To prove that batak should capture the imaginations of the world's fashion centers, Mara recently held a fashion show to exhibit the variety of colors and adaptability of batak. There was something for everyone—from Chinese-style samfoos (pant suits) to sarong kebayas and mini-skirts.

Boy, 13, Afraid To Reach Maturity

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am only 13, and for a while I was looking forward to getting married some day, but since I've been reading your column, all those letters you get from married people who hate each other has made me change my mind.

Also, I really don't think it will be so much fun to be grown up because adults have so many problems, like income tax, employment and politics. I don't like school too much, but I think I would rather spend my life in school than be an adult in a world like this one. People all say they want peace and they kill each other.

What do you think I should do, Dear Abby?

AFRAID TO GROW UP

DEAR AFRAID: Grow up anyway. We need adults who are dissatisfied with a world filled with people who say they want peace and proceed to kill each other. Don't cop out of marriage, either. My column is a "trouble dump." There are plenty of happily married people but they don't write to Dear Abby to tell me how happy they are.

DEAR ABBY: I think I have tried just about all the advice that has ever been recommended for a successful marriage and nothing has helped. I am about ready to give up.

The only time her kitchen is not like a pigpen is when I help her clean it up. If I offer to take her out to dinner, she complains that it will cost too much. I buy her perfume. She doesn't use it. I buy her some sheer nightwear, she refuses to wear it. [She says it is not appropriate for a woman to be so vain.]

I am not demanding, but any affection she gives me is more from a sense of obligation than anything else.

She has more hang-ups than an art gallery. I have been 100 per cent faithful, but now I'm beginning to understand why husbands start looking around.

Any advice for me? If so, please put it in the paper. Everything else has failed. Thanks and God bless you.

TRIED EVERYTHING

DEAR TRIED: A man can help his wife clean up her kitchen, buy her perfume and sheer nightwear, and offer to take her out to dinner, but he hasn't tried everything until he has laid it out on the line in plain [and loving] language! Don't tell me—tell her!

You may need counseling, both of you. If she won't go, go alone. If that fails, then I would say that you have indeed tried everything. And where you go from there must be your own decision.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 36-year-old son who for the last five years has been living common-law with a woman who must be around 50. This woman has had nine children [none by my son], the oldest is in her thirties and the youngest is 16.

Well, my son and this woman are finally going to get married, for which I am happy, but she is sending out wedding invitations! Now, that's all right, too, but a lot of people [especially my friends] thought they were married already.

She is having a big church wedding. Shouldn't this wedding be a quiet wedding with perhaps a nice reception later?

Is there anything that I, as the future mother in law, should do?

STEADY READER

DEAR STEADY: The "bride" is engineering everything, so all the arrangements are up to her. Under the circumstances, a "quieter" wedding might have been more appropriate, but since you weren't consulted, you aren't responsible. Just go and don't "do" anything.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Homemaker's Haven By Mrs. Sue May Pitt Home Agent

Comfort at moderate cost is an outstanding feature of a three-bedroom house plan available to Pitt County citizens through the Agricultural Extension Service.

This particular Extension plan which is No. 90, features 960 square feet of heated space, plus a carport and large storage area.

Although this is a minimum house, the rooms are large enough for comfortable living. The carport is convenient to the kitchen, the family living and child play area near the kitchen allows the homemaker to keep an eye on her family, even while working, and the bedrooms will hold the usual pieces of furniture.

An especially convenient feature of this house is the storage and utility room at the rear of the carport. This room is only a step away from the kitchen door and is a good location for the freezer and water heater.

This service is available in an effort to help North Carolina families meet their housing needs. Complete working drawings of this plan and a variety of other plans can be obtained from the county Extension office, 203 West Third Street, Box 1427, Greenville, North Carolina.

Coretta King Talks Of Her Past And Her Future

By NAOMI ROCK
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "It wasn't what I had envisioned for my life, but Martin's work was so important I didn't want to be in conflict."

"For the sake of the cause I was willing to be a supporter, to do whatever was necessary even if it meant sublimating some of my own desires. But there were times ..."

Coretta King stopped abruptly and shut her eyes. She leaned back in an easy chair in her hotel suite and talked of some of the things she had written in her book, "My Life With Martin Luther King Jr."

She was born and raised in rural Alabama, at a time when Negroes were discriminated against as a matter of course, she trudged three miles each way to a shabby one-room schoolhouse while the white children rode buses.

She bought an ice cream cone at the corner drugstore by entering through a side door, waiting until the whites were served and then taking whatever flavor the man was pushing. Her father was burned out of business when he became "too uppity." But at home she was taught tolerance and the need for learning.

"You get an education and try to be somebody," commanded her mother, who hadn't gotten past fourth grade. "Then you won't have to be kicked around by anybody, and you won't have to depend on anybody for your livelihood—not even on a man."

She went North to school, to Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, only to find the token integration there frustrating and hypocritical. She had no trouble making friends but was expected to date only her one black classmate.

She studied music and elementary education, but the local school board refused to let her practice teaching because the faculty had not been integrated. She wanted to fight the board, but Antioch's president refused to back her.

She joined and became active in a fledgling chapter of the NAACP and two other civil right organizations. It was 1951, not long before she left Antioch for Boston's New England Conservatory to study music.

She was determined to develop her talents as a concert pianist and to work for the betterment of the Negro's lot. Less than a year later, however, she met a fervent Baptist minister, and in another 18 months became Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr.

Like so many women, educated and ready to take on the world, she made a choice—one, she believes, that was at least partly dictated by fate. She channeled her energies toward husband and children—but not without regrets. For she, Coretta Scott, who had been active in civil rights before she met her husband, might have done something tangible for the movement.

She voices her misgivings openly, matter-of-factly, not bitterly, but with longing.

"Yes, it was hard on me," she said softly. "I was involved behind the scenes, but naturally the emphasis had to be on Martin. Intellectually I understood this, but there were times I longed for a more active role."

She wrote of this longing in her book, of wanting to be jailed with her husband, but his refusing because their children were too young to be left without either parent. She wrote about the 1963 "March on Washington" when she had not been allowed to walk at her husband's side because the march leaders had so voted.

"I felt," she wrote, "that the involvement in the movement of some of the wives had been so extensive that they should have been granted the privilege of marching with their husbands and of completely sharing this experience together, as they had shared the dangers and the hardships ..."

But the years passed and Coretta Scott King remained virtually anonymous. Ironically it took assassination and the image of the strong, dignified widow in black dress and veil to make an impression on the world's consciousness.

Today on the threshold of her 40s Mrs. King continues her husband's work through lectures, and membership in various civil rights organizations, particularly the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which her husband helped found. She is also working for a national committee dedicated to getting blacks elected to public office.

She doesn't see herself becoming a leader, but says that the time is right for women to assert themselves in leadership positions, to view themselves as a new and powerful creative force for social change.

"Women must begin to believe in themselves," she asserts. "They must begin to take more active roles outside their homes. Some should run for office. Others might start organizing their neighborhoods to get things done."

"There doesn't have to be a conflict between the roles of homemaker and social activist. I say with all humility that I have achieved a balance. It can be done."

Concerning women's liberation, she believes that it has great potential, but is currently bogged down in too many irrelevancies.

"I think women's lib is suffering from a lack of meaningful objectives," Mrs. King continued. "It must be broader in its appeal. The issues must be more basic, ones that all women can relate to."

"It's ridiculous to fight men because they've made us homemakers. We've chosen our roles. If women want to fight they should fight economic inequities, discrimination and poverty. They should struggle for peace."

WOMAN IN TRANSITION — Nearly three years after her husband's death Coretta King — Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. — is slowly becoming the social activist she might have been had she not married the man she did.

Corrective Action is Needed

The 1971 General Assembly should take the necessary steps to extend the voting franchise in state and local elections to 18-year-olds.

A ruling handed down recently by the U.S. Supreme Court confirmed Congressional action extending voting rights to all 18-year-olds in election of federal officials. But it said the Congressional act did not automatically make the younger voters eligible for state and local elections. That is up to the states.

In North Carolina and other states where voting rights have not been lowered to age 18, it means a rather complex and probably confusing situation will exist until corrective action is taken. An 18-year-old will be eligible in a general election to vote for President, vice president, senators and congressmen; but under existing conditions not for state representatives, state officials and local officials.

If the only argument for lowering the voting age to 18 in North Carolina were to avoid confusion in general elections, it would not carry sufficient merit to justify the change. But the time has come when 18-year-olds should be given the right to vote...and not just in federal elections.

The recent Supreme Court ruling merely adds another to the reasons for extending the voting right to 18-year-olds in North Carolina.

Certainly a measure will be introduced in the 1971 General Assembly extending voting rights to 18-year-olds. The legislature should give its blessings to the measure and enact it. As a whole, citizens of North Carolina between the ages of 18 and 21 are just as conscientious and concerned about the welfare of their state and fellow citizens as are older voters.

They should be allowed to join with other citizens in expressing their views at the ballot box.

Changes Ahead In Agriculture

By JIM GRAHAM
N. C. Commissioner of Agriculture

I would like to discuss the general direction North Carolina Agriculture will be taking in the next decade. Specific changes will be rapid, spectacular and somewhat unpredictable. Nevertheless, there is a pattern now discernible.

Stated briefly: Farms will become fewer in number and larger in size, and more highly specialized. Enlargement of farms will come about more through leasing of additional land, rather than by purchase.

Corporate farming (that is, "big money" corporations with larger numbers of absentee shareholders) will be slow in coming to North Carolina. While the larger farms in the State may be incorporated for business purposes, their operation will be by families or, in a very few instances, by partnerships.

North Carolina's variety of soils and climate are not suited to the type of "big money" corporate farming usually meant by the term "corporate farming." The announcement last week of the farm being set up by American Cyanamid and John Hancock Insurance Company is an example, but I think an isolated case.

Farmers Aging Out?

There is much concern about the rising average age of farmers. While there is cause for some concern, the average reported in official statistics may present a more pessimistic picture than actually exists. The statistics are applied to farm owners — the man who owns or leases the land and manages it. These owners or operators may have younger sons working with them who will later be taking over the operation and management. However, keeping these young men on the farm will depend on programs and services provided by the Department of Agriculture and all agricultural agencies to make farming more efficient and profitable.

There will be fewer of the so-called small farms, but they will still be of such number as to be a significant factor in the state's overall farm economy. There will also remain a significant number of part-time farmers who live on farms and devote a portion of their time to one or two farm enterprises, while working at a full-time job off the farm.

Last, but possibly the most important factor for your consideration, is a seeming paradox. There is a downward trend in North Carolina farm land and there will be an even sharper decline in the number of farms in the next decade. Yet at the same time, the volume and variety of demands on the Department's agricultural service is increasing. Every remaining farmer and farm acre will become of more importance in producing for an increasing population and in maintaining agriculture's contribution to the State's economy.

Finding New Markets

The number one key to successful agriculture in the future will be marketing. It is an established fact that there is little need for the production of large amounts of agricultural products unless there is a market for them.

It is the role of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture to search out the markets and assist the producers in taking advantage of them. We must advise the producer on the best variety to select and how best to grade and package the product.

The perennial problem of low prices for farm commodities is one which claims much attention of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. Particularly today, the depressed market for broilers and pork is of great concern.

Help for Pork, Poultry

Much work in the department, including promotion and market specialists, is being directed towards strengthening both these areas. I am confident that the level of broiler prices will soon move up, but pork may be longer in returning to a level which will result in a profit for our producers.

This is doubly hard on these industries at a time when the price of the inputs is up considerably due to corn blight and other inflationary causes.

One factor which will lean heavily on the marketing specialists will be possible changes in the production of tobacco in the State. Should there be a noticeable reduction in tobacco production, it is likely that much of the tobacco land will be used to produce the increasing need for grain as our livestock and poultry numbers continue to increase.

Many Turned Out In A Time Of Trouble

A lot of people deserve credit for the huge search which resulted in finding a 11-year-old boy who was lost near Grifton over the holidays.

Marines from Camp LeJeune and New River Air Station joined sheriff's deputies, rescue squad members and volunteers in the search.

Fortunately the boy was found by Marines in good condition Sunday. He had survived chilling winds and falling temperatures during the time he was lost.

Those who participated in the search took time out from their own holidays. We are sure that for all of them the effort was well worth it when the youngster was found in good condition.

Confrontation Unavoidable?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Gloom over the Middle East is deepening high in the Nixon administration with some officials fearful that a confrontation between the U.S. and the Soviet Union over the Suez Canal may be unavoidable.

That confrontation would pose to both Washington and Moscow the horrible choice of extending active help in the air to their respective clients — Israel and Egypt — after the cease-fire breaks down and air battles resume next spring.

There is, as always, divided opinion among the President's top advisers in the White House, State and Defense Departments, and Central Intelligence Agency. But realists agree that events will go as follows, leading to the peril of big-power confrontation:

Israel will make a gesture toward negotiations by agreeing to talk to UN representative Gunnar Jarring before Jan. 5, but not a single high Administration official really believes Israel will be forthcoming in those talks. To the contrary, there is growing evidence that Israel wants to consolidate its present hold on the Sinai peninsula and would not agree to even a long-term staged withdrawal except with security guarantees the Arabs will never offer.

That means the Arabs, led by Egypt, will refuse to extend the cease-fire when it expires Feb. 5. The new post-Nasser Egyptian government, still uncertain about its hold on the people and worried about rising competition for Arab-world supremacy from Algeria and Libya, will then start moving troops and war supplies close to the canal, including Soviet-supplied bridging and amphibious equipment.

As experts here judge the Israelis, this reinforcement process will not be countenanced beyond the point at which Israel feels an Egyptian cross-canal invasion might be feasible. When that point is reached, according to this credible scenario, Israel will make another pre-emptive air strike against the Egyptian build-up.

If that air action is successful, despite the huge increase of Soviet anti-aircraft missile defenses along the west bank of the canal, the Russians are judged certain to intervene with their own pilots. There was a brief period of direct air combat between Israel and the Soviet Union last summer, but nothing like what may ensue next spring. Massive Soviet air intervention would immediately confront Mr. Nixon with this hideous choice: help Israel with U. S. carrier aircraft now in the Eastern Mediterranean or risk destruction of Israel's pilot-short air force.

Private, high-level forecasts of the inevitability of just such a crisis next spring are reinforced by suspicions now poisoning the atmosphere between Washington and Moscow.

But these forebodings are also reinforced, in the view of experts outside the State Department, by the success of Israel's three-year campaign to turn the Arab-Israeli conflict into a U.S.—U.S.S.R. confrontation, making the Middle East the central cockpit of the East-West struggle.

Playing right into this effort are the Russians, who know that their growing influence and power in the Middle East is directly proportional to the ties between the U.S. and Israel.

Thus, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a darkhorse Democratic Presidential prospect, is now pressing President Nixon to drop the evenhanded American settlement formula proposed by Secretary of State William P. Rogers

WHERE GIANT STEPS ARE NEEDED!

By ART BUCHWALD

Count On No New Year

WASHINGTON — It is with regret that I must inform everyone that there will not be a New Year, at least not on the first of January as originally planned.

The reason for this is that the bill to authorize 1971 is now bottled up in the Senate and is finding tough sledding. In other years the passing of a New Year's resolution was nothing more than a formality. The House and Senate approved it on voice votes, and the President automatically signed the bill declaring the New Year would start on the first day of the month of January.

But this year because of bitter feelings, vested interests and some very tricky parliamentary procedures, the New Year's bill has been in trouble from the start.

This is what happened: On Sept. 15, President Nixon sent up to Congress a message asking it to give him authorization to declare a New Year, which would be designated 1971. (By law, the number of the New Year is always raised one digit from the previous year.)

The Senate Subcommittee on Calendar Affairs held lengthy hearings on the bill and heard testimony from Administration officials, labor leaders and 1970 lobbyists, as well as conservatives who were opposed to going in to 1971 without a constitutional amendment.

The bill was finally cleared in committee on Nov. 20 by a vote of 8 to 7.

It then went to the floor, where it ran into some very serious difficulties. Proponents of the SST tacked an amendment on to the New Year's resolution, which provided $210 million to start building the first supersonic airliner in Seattle. Several senators, who were having trouble with a trade bill, added an amendment providing that no New Year's bill could be passed unless all imports on shoes and flashlights were halted from abroad.

Doves in the Senate tacked on another amendment saying that the President could not officially declare 1971 until all our troops were out of Vietnam.

Opponents of new welfare legislation added an amendment saying that there could not be a New Year unless all welfare mothers took birth control instruction.

Another amendment, added by Southern senators, said there could not be a 1971 until all school busing was eliminated in the South.

A liberal Senate bloc then added an amendment saying no funds could be provided for 1971 unless the President gave a complete plan for curbing Spiro Agnew.

A group of senators added their own amendment which called for $200 million to bail out the Penn Central Railroad.

By the time the New Year's bill was ready for a vote, there were 234 amendments attached to it.

Twenty filibusters were started at the same time.

A few days ago the President warned Congress that the United States had to have a New Year and that he would keep them in session until he got one.

While everyone seemed to

Other Editors Say Should Be Public

(Raleigh Times)

There should be an announcement to the public as to what action, if any, the Atlantic Coast Conference has taken in the matter of the big fight at Columbia which brought an abrupt and early end to the basketball game between South Carolina and Maryland. There has been a Conference investigation, and a report has been sent by the Conference to the two institutions involved — but the public doesn't know what the report said.

This is very much a public matter. The game was played before thousands of spectators. It featured the very unusual charge that a player on one team hit the coach of the other team. The fight was serious enough for the officials to end the game with almost five minutes left to play. It was serious enough for the two coaches to have commented at length and bitterly about it. It was serious enough for the Maryland coach to warn against South Carolina coming up to Maryland to play return game.

There fore, why hasn't the conference announced the contents of its report?

Dick Herbert, sports editor of The News and Observer and a long-time observer of the sports scene in the conference, feels that "it is necessary to make full disclosure of the results" of the Conference probe. "Anything less than that creates a veil of suspicion about what happened," Herbert wrote, "and a great credibility gap, and less confidence that the Conference's program is being conducted as it should. Schools cannot escape the fact that they are in the entertainment business with their football and basketball programs when the public is asked to pay as much as seven dollars for a ticket. The stand that anything bad that happens can be kept from the public because of university policy is not valid."

Big-time basketball can get too big, and any Conference officials or campus official who takes the trouble to remember some fairly recent basketball history in this area should realize that it is best to keep a close eye and a close check on anything out of the ordinary about basketball. Full publicity of all aspects of big-time basketball is one of the best ways to help keep it both healthy and big.

U.S. Farmer Has To Moonlight

By ELMER ROESSNER

The year ahead doesn't promise much for the farmer. Income will rise very little if at all. Costs of equipment will go up. So will other production expenses. Government payments will be shaved.

Farmers will just have to work harder at their off-farm jobs.

It is not generally realized that a large part of farm families' income does not come from farming, but from other activities. "Income generated from off-farm sources has become the dominant source of income from farm families operating farms with annual gross sales of less than $10,000," according to Richard D. Carter, economist of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland.

It is also important among the over-$10,000 farm families.

Little Farm Profit

Last year, the average gross receipts from farm marketings was $15,897, and the average production expenses per farm was $12,940.

This left average net cash receipts of $2,956 per family. In addition, there were government payments per farm of $1,277. That would average less than $43 a week on which to raise a farm family, which would be a neat trick even if the family did raise its own spinach.

When the King Ranch in Texas, some of the great spreads in California, and some of the huge no-cotton plantations in the South are eliminated from calculations, the income per farm family from farming is considerably less.

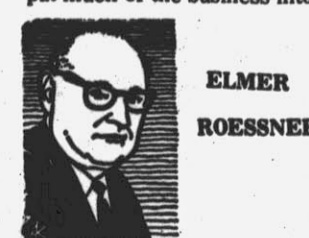

It is obvious that the typical farm family has to moonlight to survive.

In Many Lines

There are no accurate statistics that I know of that show what average farmers do to survive. Many members of farm families, of course, freed from heavy chores by modern machinery, take jobs in town. Many others work in mills and factories in off seasons.

Still others operate gas pumps, motels and produce stands along the roads. However, the trend in produce stand operations has put much of the business into the hands of professionals, who truck fruits and vegetables from Florida, Texas and California and sell it as "home grown."

Other farm families sell plowing, harrowing and other services to other farmers or to counties and other subdivisions. Some establish routes in town for the sale of eggs, chickens, butter, etc. A few operate mail order

Relax, You're Normal

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — As the old year wanes and the new year looms, now is as good a time as any to take mental stock of yourself.

Well, here's an easy way to find out how normal you are. Simply ask yourself the following questions:

Do you sometimes have an impulse to put your head under water and keep it there just to drown out the noises of this world?

Would you conscientiously return to dime to someone who overpaid you that amount in making change? Would you do the same thing if the sum was a million dollars?

Naturally, your own merit has gone largely unrecognized, but if you had the chance would you like to change places with your boss—that is, you would have his income but would also have to go home to his wife?

Do you feel criminals should be punished because they are guilty of a wrongdoing, or because the only reason they let themselves be caught at all is because they have an inner compulsion to pay a penalty?

If asked how many faucets there are on a milk cow, would you make an udder error?

When a man next to you in church falls asleep, do you brusquely kick his ankle to wake him up, or do you surreptitiously waylay him later and kindly give him a synopsis of the sermon he missed?

Is there anything you'd rather do than inherit money? Give three reasons why.

If money isn't everything to you, is sex everything to you that money isn't? Give four reasons why.

When you meet a liberated woman, do you wish to rush up and praise her for gaining her freedom, or do you have to suppress a desire to chain her to a fire hydrant and throw spitballs at her?

If you saw Lady Godiva riding by on a white horse, would the first thing you started conjecturing about was how long it had been since you saw a white horse?

Can you tell what time it is by rubbing two sticks together furiously in a driving rain? Well, well, well—really?

How far does snow have to be driven before it becomes as white as driven snow?

If you had it all to do over again, what is the first thing you'd shirk doing all over again?

Those are the questions what about your box score?

Well, if you took the questions as seriously as the man who composed them, you're about as normal as he is.

Strength For Today

Background. It's wonderful if you have it and unfortunate if you don't. And as a matter of fact there isn't much we can do about it if we lack background. Were our ancestors a decent and honest lot of people? Are we the descendants of well-educated forebears, of people who held position and had social standing in their day?

Well, the people who have background are fortunate, and if we don't have background we just don't have it. But this does not mean life failure. In fact, it should have little to do with our happiness or our achievement.

The worthless parasites who have good background are a multitude in number and what they usually get from their contemporaries is a spirit of hostility. Throughout human history multitudes have risen to high position from nothing at all.

The solution for those who are lacking in background would seem to be that they must find something as a substitute for background. Let them be decent, honest and cheerful and they will be more widely admired than most of the people who have background and boast about it. Many people feel that if they can throw enough big cocktail parties they will have social standing and the admiration of their fellows. But it can be said with almost complete certainty that they won't. We cannot create background, but we can create qualities of character that will cause people to admire us, seek our friendship and give us a boost every time they have an opportunity to do so.

Environmentalists Say 1971 Is Critical Year To Just Survive

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI)—Man will neither turn his earth into an environmental Eden in the years to come, nor will he exterminate himself in an ecological catastrophe—he'll just muddle through.

But even muddling through will take immediate action, lots of money and even more self-discipline. And what's done in 1971 could be significant.

That's the realistic view of the environment propounded by Gordon Harrison, the Ford Foundation's program officer in charge of resources and environment.

Postal Holiday

"I hesitate to name any top priorities for 1971," he said in an interview, "because that suggests that the environmental problem is separable into ingredients—that water is more important than air or vice versa."

Overall Dimension
"Instead we must consider the environment as a dimension of everything we do. People must begin ordering all their affairs in part on the basis of the impact on the environment."

"Perhaps education is the single most important factor. In the next year we must develop more international awareness that this is one world, in physical terms, and work toward agreements on the oceans, which are as badly in need as anything I can think of, and on air."

Harrison is a believer in local action rather than an over-all national program; in people involved more than in money allocated.

"There has been a lot of talk about money kicked around and we need to get a fix on the amount of money we're really talking about," he said. "There have been estimates in the tens of billions of dollars—but that is only for one small part of the problem—cleaning up the mess we have produced so far."

"More important is how to stop making the mess and that is not a matter of money. It's a matter of different values, of doing things differently."

It gets down to individual people in individual communities knowing what needs to be done and seeing that it is done.

"This is essentially a job for citizens," Harrison said.

Pace Pessimism
"I'm pessimistic because I'm not sure we have time," Harrison said. "Our rate of technological development is so much faster than people can change. New technological problems are overtaking us before we can come to grips with the last generation's technology. People are just catching up with the problems of the jets and now there's the SST. The pace makes me pessimistic."

"It's possible we might go down the drain, but I don't think so. I'm not a doom-sayer, predicting the apocalypse, in that sense I'm optimistic."

"But we may lose a very considerable part of our natural environment and that would impoverish the human experience. Man is adaptable, probably the most adaptable creature there is. I imagine we will adapt to dirty air and we will keep the air clean enough so it doesn't actually kill us."

"Physiologically we'll adapt to the environment—city people already don't like the taste of pure water. As a long range prediction, I see—not chaos, not destruction, but adjustment to a less desirable human existence than we might have."

Post Office holiday service schedules (for Thursday and Friday) have been announced by Officer-in-Charge H. Lloyd Mills.

Mills said the main office will provide normal service on Thursday while the East Carolina University station will be closed at noon on that day.

On Friday, there will be no window service at either facility, however mail will be delivered to post office boxes. There will be no rural or city delivery, but Special Delivery mail will be delivered within the city.

Mail will be collected from street letter boxes for the regular dispatch. A self-service unit in lobby of the main post office will supply customers with almost all postal supplies.

Cape Kennedy Name-Changes Handed Rebuff

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill changing the name Cape Kennedy back to Cape Canaveral is dead for the moment, with Congress favoring the memory of the late president over what is said to be local sentiment at the Florida landmark.

The joint resolution authorizing the change died in the Senate Interior Committee and is finished, at least for the present session of Congress. Florida Republican Sen. Edward J. Gurney is expected to try again next year.

The cape's name was changed by the Board of Geographic Names a month after the 1963 assassination of Kennedy. Cape Canaveral appears on maps dating back 400 years.

last year. Jackson wants Mr. Nixon to harden U.S. security guarantees not only by selling but by giving Israel more military equipment, and he wants to prevent Egypt from reoccupying the Sinai peninsula, roughly one-tenth of Egypt's territory.

The Jackson view is widely shared by members of both parties in Congress. Considering the potency of the Israeli lobby and the approaching 1972 Presidential election, this rising demand for a more pro-Israel policy unquestionably limits the President's freedom of action in the crunch coming next spring.

Some U.S. specialists, in fact, doubt that Mr. Nixon still has much leverage on Israel, quite apart from domestic pressures. With Israeli air strikes against the Egyptian invasion force beyond U.S. control, Mr. Nixon is in danger of becoming a captive, not a manipulator, of the desperate scenario now unfolding.

'Love Story' May Mark Romantic Movie Trend

SETTING A TREND? — Ali McGraw and Ryan O'Neal star in "Love Story", a film that could mark the start of the pendulum's swing back to romanticism from blatant sex on the screen. (AP Wirephoto)

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer

One snowflake may not be a winter make, nor one film a trend ... unless, perhaps, its "Love Story."

Its critics' reviews and early box-office returns suggest a start of the pendulum's swing back to romanticism from blatant sex on the screen.

Or as Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, put it recently in a speech to a Sacramento, Calif., business group:

"My judgment is the exploitation film, mostly imported from abroad or made cheaply and quickly in this country is fading ... What I think will become the majority of seriously made films in this country is the kind of movie I would call romantic or entertaining."

Critic Kathleen Carroll wrote in The New York Daily News that "'Love Story' should bring joy to millions of moviegoers sickened by the overdose of sex and drugs in the movies."

"Unless we are all mad," Charles Champlin wrote in The Los Angeles Times, it "will be an enormous success and almost certainly the most influential movie of the year, heralding more to come."

Early viewers seemed to approve. Paramount Studio says the film broke house box-office records in the first four days of its world premiere booking at two New York theaters.

"Love Story" has Ryan O'Neal, for five years in TV's "Peyton Place," as a hockey-playing Harvard law student in rollicking love with Ali McGraw, a poor but spirited Radcliffe music student.

Their marriage survives his stern father's disapproval and disinheritance but is doomed by her illness. Audience sniffles are like those at tearjerkers of the '30s.

In a handsome production of Erich Segal's script, from which he later wrote his best-selling novel, skin exposure is minimal and lovemaking is hardly more than hinted at.

BAPTIST LAYMAN . . . William Gibbs Moore has been named Pitt County chairman of an effort to raise some $5½ million to expand Baptist child care and family services in Eastern North Carolina. He has served as chairman of the Board of Deacons at Immanuel Baptist Church here. The public appeal by Baptist Children's Homes of North Carolina, Inc. seeks $2½ million for capital improvements and $3 million for endowment purposes during the next ten years.

City Counts 2 Accidents

An estimated $700 property damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated by police late yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted when a truck driven by William Powell Fleming, 44, of 303 Clairmont Cir. skidded on snow on Memorial Drive, a half-mile North of the Third Street intersection and struck a bridge rail.

No charges were placed by officers in the 5:30 p.m. mishap. Damage was set at $450 to the truck.

Again no charges were made when a car driven by Linda Strickland Hardee, 21, of Route 2, Greenville collided with a utility pole on Memorial Drive, 500 feet South of the Fairlane Road intersection about 7:05 p.m.

Police reported an estimated $200 damage resulted to the car and about $50 damage was done to the pole.

No injuries were reported in the series of mishaps.

'Prevention' Alarm Sounded

Greenville firemen last night responded to a fire "prevention" alarm from Box 74 at the intersection of Fleming Street and Pamlico Avenue.

Fire officers said when they arrived at the scene, a man told them two other persons had poured kerosene out in a wood frame dwelling at 711 Fleming St. and had threatened to set the house on fire.

Police, who also responded to the alarm, arrested Elwood John Harvey, 44, and Louise Freeman, 31, on charges of keeping a disorderly house, in connection with the incident. Officers listed both of their addresses as 711 Fleming St. Firemen said no fire resulted.

Says 'No' To Big Welfare Budget Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Proclaiming the city in danger of drowning under a tide of welfare spending, Mayor John V. Lindsay has rejected a record $2.4 billion budget proposal of his welfare administering agency.

The taxpayers of the city, Lindsay said Tuesday, "can no longer meet the rising cost of welfare in our city. Nor should they."

The city was being driven toward bankruptcy in support of its 1.1 million persons who get some form of relief, he said in turning back the budget of the Human Resources Administration.

With one of every seven New Yorkers on relief rolls now, the bill for their welfare constitutes more than 25 per cent of the city's current budget of $7.7 billion.

The city's portion of the HRA request would be $715 million, a rise of $327 million in what New York contributes to the current welfare budget. The rest of the money for the current $1.9 billion program, including such items as Medicaid payments, comes from the state and federal governments.

Lindsay ordered a review with federal and state officials of programs now mandated for the city and directed the corporation counsel to assess the city's legal power to refuse to pay for increased welfare costs.

"The city cannot live with an existing situation where federal and state law rams down the throats of the taxpayers of our city a system that does not leave us any discretionary room to control the program," Lindsay said.

Lindsay has long advocated that the federal and state governments take over the welfare program. He noted, however, that Congress on Monday had rejected the proposed family assistance program.

Supplies generally adequate for fair demand. Too few sources reporting to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — In the midst of some mild profit taking the stock market continued to move ahead Wednesday on a broad front in active trading.

At 11 a.m. the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed fractionally 0.69 point to 842.69.

First-hour volume was a heavy total of 6.17 million shares, with the New York Stock Exchange tape running late at various intervals.

Analysts said the profit taking was normal after Tuesday's 11-point advance. They also noted that it was occurring mainly in the area of the bluechip industrials.

Other brokers observed that the main force behind the market's continued advance for the sixth straight session was aggressive institutional buying.

They added that the report of a 13 per cent gain in construction contracts during November could add some fuel to the rally, which has so far taken the Dow up some 20 points in the six days.

Among the blue chips affected by profit taking was American Telephone & Telegraph, off ¾ to 50½ on a volume of more than 60,000 shares.

Other Big Board prices included General Port Cement, up ¼ at 30; Williams Bros., up ¾ at 33½; R. H. Macy, up 1¼ at 34; Sperry Rand, up ¾ at 26¾; CNA Financial, up ¼ at 18½; and American Brands, up ½ at 45½.

American Stock Exchange prices included Royal Inns of America, off ¾ at 12¼; Nytronics, off ¼ at 2¾; Castleton Industries, up ½ at 3¾; United Brands warrants, unchanged at 4½; and Beverly Enterprises, up ¼ at 10¾.

Discount Sabotage

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — An industrial accident, not sabotage, is believed by Humble Oil & Refinery Co. officials to have caused an explosion at their plant here Dec. 5, sources close to the refinery say.

The sources said Tuesday that the evidence points strongly to an explosion from within a processing unit of the plant rather than one caused by a bomb planted by an outsider.

The sources said officials tend to regard a threatening phone call shortly before the blast as a coincidence. They noted that Linden police frequently receive similar warnings from anonymous callers.

However, the public relations department, to which all inquiries about the blast are referred, denied that the investigators had reached a conclusion about the causes of the explosion and fire. "I don't know that they are leaning either way," said a spokesman.

State police officials, who are participating in the probe, say there is no evidence of sabotage. They said they have dismissed as unfounded reports that a bomb was dropped from a helicopter touching off the blast.

Stetson Hats At End Of The Line

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The makers of Stetson hats, hallmark of the Western male for a century have decided to give up manufacture of the famous headgear.

"We have reached this conclusion with great reluctance," Norman Karpf, executive vice president of the John B. Stetson Co., said Tuesday.

Karpf cited "the severe decline in the use of hats," which he said had made it economically unfeasible to continue production at the Philadelphia plant.

The Stetson was originated by John B. Stetson, a Philadelphia hatmaker who popularized it during a trip to the West in the 1860s to cure a case of tuberculosis.

At one time 5,000 people turned out Stetsons at the plant here. Only 300 are on the payroll now.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A rider on a bank regulatory bill could spur a silver dollar rush by collectors for at least $90 million in uncirculated cartwheels.

About 2.8 million of these rare-date coins left in U.S. vaults since they emerged from the Carson City, Nev., mint in the 19th Century—would be sold under a plan approved by the Coinage Commission in May 1969.

Now, as part of one-bank holding company legislation on President Nixon's desk, Congress has authorized transfer of the silver dollars—some of them still in original mint bags—from the Treasury to the General Services Administration for auction. Proceeds from the public sale will go to the Treasury.

Officials at GSA, who never have handled this big a coin sale, are reluctant to say how much they expect to make on the deal—but they note these silver dollars, minted from 1878 to 1891, are conservatively valued by coin experts at more than $90 million.

Three Items On Calendar

Three items are listed on the Planning and Zoning Commission calendar for their monthly meeting being held tonight at 8:00 o'clock in the City Council Chambers of City Hall.

The items are:
—General Building and Masonry Contractors, Raleigh, request for annexation of their property located on East Tenth Street extended (J. A. Williams property).
—First Federal Savings and Loan Association requests that their property bounded on the south by the U.S. 264 By-Pass and on the west by the proposed Red Banks Road be rezoned from R-15 to "Shopping Center."

Thomas I. Ramsey of the Division of Community Planning, N. C. Department of Local Affairs, will report on the development of the Community Facilities Plan.

Eartha Kitt In 'Straight Role'

LONDON (AP) — Eartha Kitt has made her London debut as a straight actress. Her performances, said the critics, was entertaining but didn't have much to do with the play.

The sultry-voiced American singer starred in "The High Bid" by Henry James, playing a rich American who helps the aristocracy regain a mortgaged baronial hall.

"She perverts the whole course of the piece by turning it into a joke about materialism and sex rather than about the American hunger for the European past," wrote Irving Wardle of the Times after Tuesday night's opening.

Bob Hope Home From His Tour

Hollywood (AP) — Bob Hope has returned from a 15-day round-the-world tour to entertain American servicemen, saying he hopes his seventh trip to Vietnam was his last to that country.

The 67-year-old comedian told newsmen on arriving at Van Nuys Airport Tuesday that he believes President Nixon's plan of withdrawing U.S. troops and placing the burden of the war on the South Vietnamese is working.

Snowfall . . .

City Manager Harry Hagerty said no streets were barricaded for sledding.

"I was out early this morning checking streets for sledding but the snow melted too fast," Hagerty reported. "If weather forecasters predict correct and we get some more snow tomorrow, there will be some streets in town barricaded for sledding."

Hagerty reported the city streets were in good condition. By mid-morning much of the snow and ice had melted.

The Tar River level was reported at 1.7 feet and at a standstill.

GSA official Louis Brooks said the agency will set up a task force to settle on arrangements for the sale and seek $2 million to $3 million from Congress to pay for processing the anticipated flood of orders.

There will be a listing of the 10 years represented in the Carson City group—from 1878 to 1885 inclusive, plus 1890 and 1891—and a designated price for each. Buyers would be permitted to have just one coin from each year—with no one getting more than 10 coins.

To Pay More On Medicare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The aged must pay 6 per cent more for supplemental medicare benefits next July 1 largely because of rising doctor charges, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced today.

The current $5.30 a month premium will increase to $5.60 a month for the 19.5 million medicare subscribers. This is far less than the $1.30, or 32 per cent, increase announced last December for the current fiscal year.

Most of the latest increase was attributed to the expected 6.7 per cent jump in the amount of doctors' fees covered by medicare and to an estimated 2 per cent rise in the use of physicians' services.

HEW said an estimated 15 per cent increase in the cost and utilization of such institutional services as hospital outpatient clinics will account for the remainder of the premium rise.

Supplemental medicare meets parts of the elderly's nonhospital medical expenses. The government, which matches individual contributions, will pay out an additional $70 million from general revenues next year because of the premium increase.

"This year, whether claimed or not, all prizes have been awarded—more than $400,000," a spokesman said. "This figure represents actual cost to the Digest, not estimated retail sales value."

The magazine said it has sought for a year the issuance of sweepstakes rules by the FTC to insure uniform industry standards. The FTC has not issued such rules, choosing to deal case by case with various instances of sweepstakes allegedly not being what they seemed.

who order could, in effect, bid a higher price." The measure also authorizes a new dollar coin bearing a likeness of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower on one side—with the other side having a design emblematic of the symbolic eagle of Apollo 11 landing on the moon.

There would be 150 million dollars of 40 per cent silver—to be sold at a premium—with general circulation versions made of composition metal like the present quarter and dime.

No silver dollars have been minted since 1935. Circulation was stopped in 1964 because the remaining ones were worth much more than $1 as collectors items.

Sweepstake Is Changed

NEW YORK (AP) — The Reader's Digest, challenged by the Federal Trade Commission on the practices it has used in sweepstakes contests, says it recently changed those practices.

The magazine's response came Tuesday after the FTC announced a proposed complaint charging that in 11 such promotions between 1966 and 1969, the Digest supposedly offered 699,293 prizes worth $5,645,000 but handed out only 274,282 prizes worth $2,530,700.

According to the magazine, headquartered in Pleasantville, N.Y., the problem developed because in those years many persons who had been preselected as winners did not claim their prizes.

"The magazine said it has sought for a year the issuance of sweepstakes rules by the FTC to insure uniform industry standards. The FTC has not issued such rules, choosing to deal case by case with various instances of sweepstakes allegedly not being what they seemed.

Sees Religious Quest By Young

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The popularity of rock music festivals shows that young people are on a religious quest, says Billy Graham.

"We don't realize how serious our young people are," the evangelist said, describing much rock music as "basically religious" because it deals with life's most serious ideas.

Young people flock to rock festivals, Dr. Graham told a news conference Tuesday.

Sugg Rolls By Grifton, 92-54

GRIFTON — The unbeaten Sugg High School Lions rolled to another victory last night, crushing the Grifton Bulldogs, 92-54.

Sugg inched out into a 13-11 lead in the first period, and got hotter from there on out. In the second frame, the Lions upped their lead by four, 18-14, and held a 31-25 lead over the stubborn Bulldogs at halftime.

But the Grifton five ran out of gas after that and the Lions began to really pull away. In the third period, Sugg outthrew Grifton, 29-15, and rolled out into a 60-40 lead. They capped that by burning the nets for 32 points in the final period, while holding Grifton to just 14, to wrap up the win and hold onto first place in the Pitt County Conference standings.

Willie Horne led Sugg with 23 points, while Earl Moore had 18, Steve Joyner and Rodrick Forbes each had 15 and Bobby Forbes had 11.

For Grifton, Gary Kelly had 21 and Billy Edwards had 13.

Ayden Rallies To Beats Rams

AYDEN — The Ayden Tornadoes rallied in the final period of play and took a 49-23 victory over Greene Central High School last night.

Ayden had slipped out into an 11-8 lead in the first period, but the Rams came back to grab the lead at the end of the half. Greene Central outthrew the Tornadoes in the second quarter, 12-8, and led, 20-19 at intermission.

In the third period, it remained nip and tuck, as both teams tossed through 13 points. That upped the score to 33-32 as the final period got underway.

But in that period, the Tornadoes finally collected themselves, outshooting Greene Central, 17-10, to wrap up the win.

Danny Garris and Pat Finnegan led Ayden with 12 each, while Willie Stewart contributed 11 points.

For Greene Central, Lacy Ward was high with 15.

In the junior varsity contest, Greene Central took a 27-22 win.

Southern Teams Lose In Tourneys

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five Southern Conference basketball teams set out this week in a bid for holiday tournament championships — and all drew back a nub.

What was even more embarrassing was the fact that three were host teams, and all three lost in the opening round of their own tourneys. Two others went on the road and suffered a similar fate.

The only Tuesday night winner was Furman, but it was a hollow victory for the Paladins. They knocked off Texas A&M 103-83 — but it was far third place in their own Pointsettia Classic, which was won by Arizona with a 77-57 squeaker past Mississippi State.

Davidson's Wildcats, who had won three straight times in the Charlotte Invitational and five of the previous eight affairs, were beaten in Tuesday night's opening round by Boston College. LaSalle defeated Georgia 50-42 in the other game.

The Citadel's Bulldogs were 72-69 victims of Navy in the first round of their first Palmetto Classic, in which Baylor outran Mississippi in an amazing 132-113 affair in the other game, despite a 60-point performance by the losers' Johnny Neumann.

William and Mary's Indians put up a surprisingly good scrap before dropping a 90-71 decision in the Steel Bowl in Pittsburgh to four-time NCAA champion UCLA, the nation's top-ranked team. Pitt upset Duquesne 70-58 in the other opener.

Two Virginia teams met defeat in the Presidential Classic.

Richmond was handed a 96-79 licking by former conference member George Washington, while another former league school Virginia Tech, went down before East Tennessee 83-74.

Davidson, The Citadel, William and Mary and Richmond all have a shot tonight at the same thing Furman won — third place.

Lisico Thomas hit 13 of 24 shots from the floor for 33 points and Charles Selvy added 21 as Furman outscored Texas A&M, which was guilty of 22 turnovers. Bernard Collier had 15 rebounds for the Paladins.

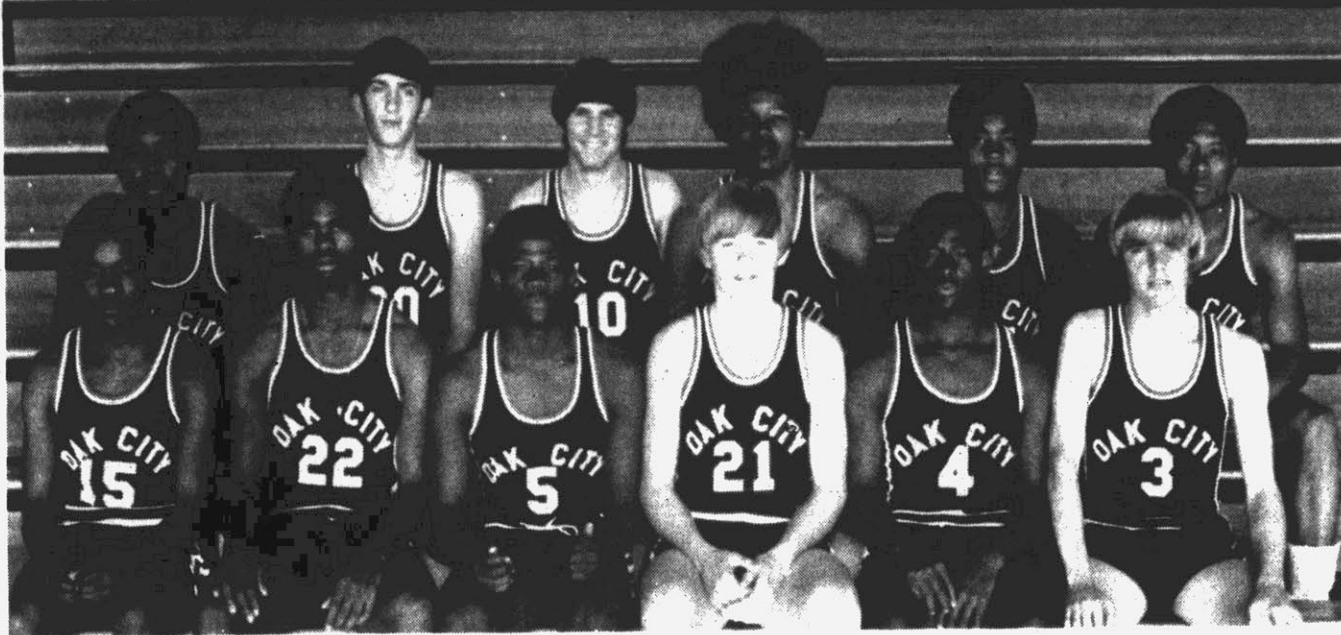

Davidson fell behind early and turned the ball over 24 times in its defeat by Boston College, which remained in front at the foul line in the second half. Eric Minkin had 16 points for the Wildcats.

A 13-point lead early in the second half enabled Navy to withstand a press by The Citadel and snap the Bulldogs' three-game winning streak.

UCLA zoomed to a 24-14 lead over William and Mary, but the Indians had no difficulty with the Bruins' soft press and hit consistently from outside to keep the score respectable. W&M's Steve Dodge had 19 points.

A poor first half in which they shot just 29 per cent to decision in the Steel Bowl in Pittsburgh to four-time NCAA champion UCLA, the nation's top-ranked team. Pitt upset Duquesne 70-58 in the other opener.

Farmville Defeats North Pitt; Big Orange Machine Rolls Along

FARMVILLE — Farmville's Red Devils held off a last period rally and took a 66-58 victory over North Pitt High School last night. The Big Orange Machine of the North Pitt girls, however, rumbled along, rolling to a 51-29 victory.

In the girls contest, the unbeaten Pant-HERS rushed away to a 16-5 lead in the first period of play. In the second period, the two teams played on almost equal terms, with North Pitt just outthrusting Farmville, 13-12. That gave the Pant-HERS a 29-17 lead at the half.

The Big Orange wrapped it up in the third period, outthrusting Farmville, 15-8, to run the lead out to 44-25. North Pitt again outthrew Farmville, 7-4, in the final period.

Minnie Hollis led North Pitt with 18 points, while Debbie Purvis had 12 and Susan James had 10. Jean Johnson had 10 to pace Farmville.

In the boys contest, it was a different tale. The Red Devils came back even stronger in the second period and buried North Pitt, 22-13, to run the lead out to 42-27.

Farmville again outthrew the Panthers in the third frame, 14-12, and held a 56-39 lead. North Pitt managed to outscore

In the opener, Robersonville moved out into a 10-4 lead over Edenton in the first period. The Eaglettes warmed up in the second frame, upping their output to 14 points, while keeping Edenton at four. That gave Libbie Warren had 14 to pace Williamston, while Helen Copeland got 10 for Oak City.

Wake Tangles With Dolphins

By HUBERT MIZELL

Associated Press Sports Writer WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jacksonville's college basketball empire is cracking but not crumbling.

"Beating Wake Forest can mean everything," said Dolphin Coach Tom Wasdin. "We're trying to bounce back after losing to Western Kentucky. It's no time to get bounced ourselves."

Ninth-ranked Jacksonville was sluggish in outgunning Creighton 94-85 and Wake Forest fought off Georgetown 90-88 in Tuesday night's semifinals of the Gold Coast Basketball Classic.

The Dolphins and Deacons meet tonight for the championship after a Georgetown-Creighton consolation game at West Palm Beach Auditorium.

"The Associated Press dropped us from fourth to ninth in the rankings after Western Kentucky," said Wasdin. "I guess that's fair. But we aren't looking to go anywhere but back up."

Jacksonville, NCAA runnerup last season, showed severe rustiness after an extended lay off for exams. Especially, 7-foot-2 Dolphin superstar Artis Gilmore.

Gilmore grabbed 23 rebounds to continue as the national leader with an average of 25.4. But, the bearded giant scored only 15 after being blanked for the first 11 minutes and 30 seconds and had a night filled with fumbling.

"Creighton sagged its defense on Gilmore," said Wasdin. "It worked to a great extent. Joe Gergman did a good job of defending Artis despite spotting him five inches in size."

Creighton appeared doomed when 6-foot-9 Cyril Baptiste fouled out with 17 minutes to play. The Miami native had 19 points and 12 rebounds in an imposing performance against Gilmore.

The loss of Baptiste seemed to ignite the Bluejays, however, and 5-foot-10 Mike Caruso led a charge that cut a 10-point Jacksonville lead to two before the Dolphins clicked on their fast break to pull away for good.

Jacksonville is 6-1 for the season and Wake Forest owns a 5-3 record, marred by two one-point defeats and another loss by three points.

The Deacons shot a hot 55 per cent against Georgetown, but the Hoyas got within two points three times in the final minute before running out of time.

Husky 6-foot-7 senior Gil McGregor had the finest game of his Wake Forest career hitting 15 of 17 shots for 31 points. Charlie Davis continued his blazing scoring pace for the Deacons with 30, giving the skinny 6-foot-1 senior a 26.9 average.

Oak City Needs To Play As Team

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

OAK CITY — Oak City High School is another of the many schools in the area going through the processes of fusing two basketball teams into one this year. At the first of the fall term, Oak City and West Martin High Schools were merged to form one school.

Three members of this year's Trojan team were starters for West Martin last year, but all five of the Oak City starters from last year have graduated. Still, it gives coach Henry Land something to work with and he might bring out a championship team with it.

Last year, Land's West Martin team rolled up a 25-4 record and was one of the top teams in the state. Oak City was 10-13, and took first place in the Martin County Conference during the regular season, but lost out in the tournament.

The starters back for the Trojans include 6-3 center Ed Briley, 6-1 forward William Raynor and 5-10 guard Donnie Duggins. "It gives us pretty good experience," Land said. "These boys were on the state runner-up last year, so they have plenty of tournament experience where the going is tough."

Letterman back on the team include Danny Reason, Mervin Duggins, Ronnie Peele and Howard Peele.

Joining the three starters back on the court are newcomer Whit Whitfield, a 6-0 guard, and 6-0 Ronnie Peele at the other forward slot.

"We have good height, but our rebounding hasn't been that outstanding," Land said. "Our problem is playing together. We tend to be five individuals out there instead of one team. We also need to think defense."

Not that the rebounding hasn't been strong. The Trojans have been clearing 30 to 40 per game, but they tend to get more off the offensive boards than the defense, going to the score rather than playing defense.

"The two Duggins boys are as fast as anyone around," Land said, "so we have plenty of speed." Land, however, would like for the team to run more pattern ball and work for the shot. "We take too many shots when there is no one under the boards for a rebound if we miss. So we would be stronger if we did more pattern play instead of strictly running all the time."

Land feels that the defense has the potential to be good, but that it simply isn't being played. "We've been giving up 55 to 60 points per game, and this is too many. We are waiting around for them to miss so we can get the ball."

Land feels his bench strength is pretty good. Besides the lettermen back, he also can call on Wayne Jones and Jerry Spruill, both of whom have helped out already this year.

The overall shooting of the Trojans has been pretty good. "We've been hitting about 40 percent," the coach said. "We just need to shoot more when we're in rebounding position."

Land expects the Trojans to do all right in the Martin County Conference this year. "Robersonville is string, but they are a freelance team also. A disciplined team could hurt them, as well as Jamesville is coming along, and Bear Grass is a smart team that might surprise a lot of people. Actually any one of the four could win it."

Oak City, currently 4-7, just "needs to adjust to working together. Once we do, and we start playing like a team, we'll be okay," Land said.

ACC Teams All Come Up Winning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Northin' could be finer than to be in Carolina in the morning... on a Wednesday morning that is... the night after five Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams whipped opponents from outside the league.

Duke and North Carolina took on a couple of Yankee teams in a doubleheader at Greensboro. The Tar Heels manhandled Penn State, 73-57, and the Blue Devils whipped Northwestern, 93-87.

North Carolina State played host to Santa Clara, but wasn't a very hospitable host. The Wolfpack trimmed the Californians, 82-79.

Maryland did major surgery on the University of Miami, cutting up the Florida squad, 111-77.

And in the final game involving an ACC team, Wake Forest slipped past Georgetown, 90-88, to gain the finals in the Gold Coast Classic at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Tonight's action finds Duke and North Carolina swapping opponents in another doubleheader at Greensboro. Duke takes on Northwestern and North Carolina plays Penn State.

Wake Forest will try to knock off ninth-ranked Jacksonville in the Gold Coast tournament in Florida. Jacksonville overcame a cold spell Tuesday night to whip Creighton, 94-85.

The only other game involving an ACC team will be South Carolina playing Western Kentucky for the championship of the Holiday tournament in New York City. South Carolina, ranked No. 2 nationally, is 6-0, and Western Kentucky, 7-0, is No. 5.

In the doubleheader Tuesday night, Duke's Randy Denton broke the record for rebounds at the Greensboro Coliseum by grabbing 25. The old record was 22 by former Davidson great Fred Hetzel against Wake Forest in 1965. The Blue Devils weren't out of trouble until the final seconds when 6-9 sophomore Elon Shaw sank a pair of free throws to put Duke ahead, 91-85.

In the second game, North Carolina had an easier time against Penn State. Coach Dean Smith emptied his bench with 10 minutes left in the game.

Perhaps more important than the margin of victory for the Tar Heels, however, was the bad news that three of the North Carolina squad were sidelined with injuries or illness.

George Karl suffered a recurrence of a back injury, Steve Previs became ill and Bill Chamberlain suffered a minor hand injury.

Maryland's Barry Yates set a school record in the rout over Miami. Yates' record was in the consecutive-shots-made department. He hit his first 10 shots. The old record was nine.

Yates also was high man for the game with 32 points.

All Terrapin starters were in the double figures.

North Carolina State had to struggle to get past Santa Clara. State was behind 68-67 when the Wolfpack's Paul Coder sank two free throws to put his team ahead.

Free throws continued to make the difference in the final seconds, with North Carolina State's Ed Leftwich sinking five of them in the last 50 seconds.

Wake Forest traded the lead with Georgetown in the Gold Coast Classic, but it was the Deacons' Charlie Davis who pulled it out late in the second half. Davis split the cors with five straight field goals to give the Deacons a 69-64 lead with 7:10 to go.

Georgetown stormed back to within two points three times in the final minutes, but couldn't catch the Deacons.

Indians Lead In Standings

ORLANDO, Fla. — Picking up where it left off last year, The College of William & Mary is again leading the Southern Conference schools for the Commissioner's Cup. The trophy is awarded annually to the school which leads in all conference varsity athletics.

Last year the Indians tied for the cup with East Carolina. Citadel was third.

William & Mary won the conference championship in football and represented the Southern in the 25th Annual Tangerine Bowl Classic in Orlando, Florida on Monday. They also finished first in cross country and second in soccer for a total of 20 points.

In second place, 5½ points behind the leader, is East Carolina which had a fall sports record of second in cross country, third in soccer, and a tie for fourth in football for 14½ points. Furman, in third place, finished fourth in soccer and in the number three spot in cross country and football for 14 points.

Close behind in the fourth position is The Citadel, with 13 points as a result of a second position finish in football, fourth in cross country and fifth in soccer. Davidson, winner of the Conference Crown in Soccer, is in fifth place with 10 points. Richmond has 5½ points and VMI 4 points.

The winter sports program is underway in which the championship will be declared in 4 sports — Indoor Track, Swimming, Wrestling and Rifle.

Many Shots In Tourney Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
They got rid of the basketball like it was a hot potato in the University of North Carolina at Asheville and Emory and Henry game.

UNC-Asheville shot 104 times from the field and Emory and Henry Wasps from Emory, Va., shot 78 times Tuesday night. It was a first-round game in the Cosmic Club Christmas Tournament, and UNC-Asheville's Bulldogs won 110-80. In the other game, Campbell College's Camels defeated the High Point Panthers 74-69 in overtime.

The tournament is being played in the UNC-A gym, and the host team will meet Campbell for the championship tonight. Emory and Henry and High Point will play a consolation game.

UNC-A used 15 players and 14 of them scored, topped by Rod Healy with 20 points. Kenny Woods had 18 for Emory and Henry.

Willie Maul hit six free throws in the overtime to propel Campbell College to victory.

Among the other holiday tournaments Tuesday night were the Civitan Classic at Salisbury, N.C., and in the Gardner-Webb College Tournament at Boiling Springs, N.C.

Both hometown colleges won in the opening round of the Civitan Classic. Livingstone defeated Pfeiffer 97-86, and Catawba whipped UNC-Wilmington 95-76.

Bill Bailey had 36 points for Catawba, which was ahead throughout and led by as much as 26 points.

Livingstone and Catawba play for the title tonight after a consolation game between UNC-Wilmington and Pfeiffer.

At Boiling Springs, Western Carolina won the championship, edging host Gardner-Webb 60-59 on Wilson Scott's 15-foot jumper with 14 seconds left.

It was the sixth victory against two defeats for the Catamounts.

Austin Carr's 50 Points Leads Irish In 99-92 Upset Of Kentucky

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Here comes Austin Carr... oops, there goes Austin Carr.

Notre Dame's point-dealing wizard is the same model as last year, running and gunning as good as new.

The runaway Carr hit eighth-ranked Kentucky with a 50-point performance and led the 15th-ranked Irish to a 99-92 victory in college basketball Tuesday night.

Carr helped Notre Dame accelerate to a 15-4 spree late in the first half that gave the Irish a never-topped 53-39 lead at intermission.

The Wildcats climbed to within five points three times in the second stanza but Notre Dame's freeze-ball tactics killed the comeback try.

Top-ranked UCLA walloped William & Mary 90-71 in the Steel Bowl Tournament at Pittsburgh; third-ranked Marquette brushed off Dartmouth 98-55 in the Milwaukee Classic and No. 4 Southern Cal bombed Michigan State 88-63 and Houston stunned No. 10 Tennessee 68-65 in the Trojan Classic at Los Angeles.

Sixth-rated Penn downed cross-town rival Temple 76-55 to win the Quaker City Classic at Philadelphia and No. 9 Jacksonville turned back Creighton 94-85 in the Gold Coast Classic at West Palm Beach, Fla., in the night's other top games.

Notre Dame, which lost to two other ranked clubs—South Carolina and Indiana—by a total of eight points—didn't take any chances with Kentucky. The Irish ran its lead to 18 points at one time and the Wildcats were too far behind to catch them.

UCLA forged its victory over stubborn William & Mary behind Sidney Wicks' 23 points and 20 by Steve Patterson.

Dean "The Dream" Meminger put Dartmouth to sleep with 22 points as Marquette ran its record to 7-0. The Warriors were never headed, scoring the first nine points and building first-half leads of 22-7 and 43-17.

Dave Wohl, one of the little guys on Penn's rangy Quakers, scored 25 points in their Quaker City success. Temple got to within six points in the second half, but Penn scored 15 of the next 20 points to pull away.

Guards Dennis Layton and Paul Westphal led Southern California's second-half surge as the Trojans, leading only 49-46 shortly after the intermission, opened a 21-point margin late in the game.

Poo Welch stole the ball and passed to Larry Brown, who hit the field goal and a succeeding free throw for Houston.

Harold Fox scored 19 points to lead Jacksonville to its sixth victory in seven games.

Twelfth-rated Kansas subdued Iowa State 59-56 and advanced to the finals of the Big Eight Conference Tournament and 13th-ranked St. Bonaventure beat Georgia Tech 70-68 on Paul Hoffman's field goal for the Gator Bowl championship at Jacksonville, Fla.

Oregon, the nation's 16th-ranked power, held Washington State to five points in the final 11 minutes for a 64-48 victory and a berth in the finals of the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore. Utah State, No. 19, turned back Wichita State 84-78 in the first game of the semifinals of the All-College Tournament at Oklahoma City and No. 18 Louisiana State took the nightcap from Montana State 89-77.

Elsewhere, Baylor crushed Mississippi 132-113 in the Palmetto Classic despite a 60-point performance by Johnny Neumann, the nation's leading scorer. The point total was an Ole Miss record.

Hot-handed Barry Yates broke a Maryland mark by hitting his first 10 field goal attempts as the Terps lashed Miami, Fla., 111-77.

Arizona came from behind for a 77-75 victory over Mississippi State to win the Poinsetta Classic at Greenville, S.C.; Old Dominion routed Tulane 91-76, East Tennessee slammed Virginia Tech 83-74; North Carolina swept by Penn State 73-57; Duke toppled Northwestern 93-87; Fordham knocked off California 84-63; Kansas State beat Oklahoma State 67-64; Oklahoma defeated Missouri 70-63; Illinois whipped Army, Hawaii, 124-70; Boston edged Davidson 72-67 and LaSalle of Philadelphia whipped Georgia 50-42 in some of the night's other games.

Devils, Heels Collide Tonight

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Undeclared Arizona State, the nation's No. 8 power, and ball control-minded North Carolina collide tonight in the third annual Peach Bowl football game, a postseason event that has been played by rain the last two years.

A day-long rain Tuesday soaked Georgia Tech's Grant Field, site of the 8 p.m. EST kickoff, but the weather bureau forecast fair and cool weather for the game. Each of the two previous Peach Bowls has been played in rain.

Bill Dooley, the Tar Heel coach who counts on a punishing ground assault led by All-American running back Don McCauley, would welcome more rain to slow down the speedy Sun Devils, who have six offensive performers who sprint 100 yards in 9.8 seconds or better.

"After thinking about their speed, I'm a more firm believer in tradition now than ever before," said Dooley, whose Tar Heels are a six-point underdog.

While Dooley frets about speed, ASU Coach Frank Kush, possessor of the second winningest record by percentage in college football, says that speed won't mean much if the Sun Devils can't get the ball.

Dooley's game plan is simple, he says.

"We have to control the ball, grind it out and keep the ball out of their hands," Dooley says.

Arizona State trimmed 10 straight foes, averaging 37.5 points per game. Led by Joe Spagnola, the Sun Devils led the nation in total offense, averaging 514 yards per game.

The Tar Heels, meanwhile, averaged a 411, with 285 of that coming on the ground.

Spagnola passed for 1,991 yards and added 173 on the ground.

McCauley, a 208-pounder, broke the NCAA season rushing mark by running for 1,720 yards for the Atlantic Coast Conference team, which won eight and lost three.

J. D. Hill, a 9.3 sprinter, heads the ASU receiver corps while fullback Bob Thomas and halfback Monroe Eley accounted for more than 1,600 yards on the ground for the Western Athletic Conference champions.

Expect To Ink Big Bout Pact

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The most talked about, sought after fight in many years—Joe Frazier-Muhammad Ali was expected to be announced today for March 8 by Madison Square Garden Boxing.

A press luncheon was scheduled for noon, EST, at a midtown restaurant.

Harry Markson, the Garden's Boxing director, said Tuesday no contract had been signed, but he also said:

"We have assurances (of a signed contract).

"We expect to do better than a million dollars at the gate.

"The fighters will get $2.5 million apiece."

The total of $5 million for Frazier, the world heavyweight champion, and Ali, the deposed heavyweight king, will come from gross revenue that could be in the area of $10 million.

The fight which will be the richest in history also will be one of the most appealing.

For the world's fight fans it has two unbeaten fighters—Frazier, a two-fisted slugger with a killer's instinct, and Ali, a stylist who can dazzle but who also can knock out an opponent.

For people who do not usually follow fights it has Ali, always colorful, who turned into the most controversial sports figure in the world when he was convicted of refusing induction into the military service. An appeal of the conviction still is before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The 26-year-old Frazier, who rose to the championship after Ali was stripped of the title because of his conviction, has won all 26 of his pro fights, 23 by knockout.

Ali, who became champion under the name of Cassius Clay, has a 31-0 record with 25 knockouts.

Cougars Whip Utah Cagers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It pays to steal. Ask Wendell Ladner, the star forward of the Memphis Pros.

Ladner latched onto an errant pass and knifed in for a quick field goal that kicked off a 10-point splurge Tuesday night and the Pros went on to a 109-101 American Basketball Association victory over Pittsburgh.

Memphis was trailing 99-90 when Ladner started the charge. Before the Condors scored again, Memphis had a 100-99 lead.

Elsewhere in the ABA, Carolina whipped Utah 113-110; Denver rocketed over Indiana 116-106; The Floridians downed New York 91-90, and Virginia slammed Texas 143-120.

In the National Basketball Association, it was Milwaukee 119, Cleveland 97; Detroit 99, Atlanta 97; Philadelphia 124, Buffalo 113; Boston 110, San Diego 108 and Los Angeles 126, Chicago 117.

Pittsburgh led Memphis 54-52 at the half and held leads up to 11 points before the Pros' scoring spurt.

John Brisker of Pittsburgh led all scorers with 36 points while Steve Jones had 25 to pace the Pros, who won their fifth straight.

Randy Mahaffey's five points in the final 2½ minutes sparked a fourth-quarter charge that lifted Carolina over Utah. George Lehmann led the winners with 28 points.

Denver scored 13 points in a row within three minutes late in the last period and coasted over Indiana. Larry Cannon and Wayne Chapman combined for 11 points in the binge.

Mack Calvin sank two free throws with seven seconds left to lift the Floridians over New York and snap their losing streak at five.

George Carter and Jim Eakins both hit 22 points for Virginia in the Squires' rout over Texas. Ron Boone paced the losers with a game-high 28.

Hawks Protest Coach's Cheers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bob Lanier's late heroics were bad enough but the Detroit Pistons' cheer leader was just too much for the Atlanta Hawks.

The Hawks had to take Lanier's five points in the closing two minutes that led to a 99-97 Detroit victory Tuesday night but they weren't keeping quiet about the cheerleader. The Hawks played the last 43 seconds under protest, contending Detroit Coach Bill Brada Kolff left the bench area to encourage his players.

In other National Basketball Association action, Philadelphia whipped Buffalo 124-113, Milwaukee ripped Cleveland 119-97, Los Angeles upended Chicago 126-117 and Boston tripped San Diego 110-108.

In the American Basketball Association, Virginia drubbed Texas 143-120, the Floridians edged the New York Nets 91-90, Memphis topped Pittsburgh 109-101, Carolina nipped Utah 113-110 and Denver took Indiana 116-106.

With the score tied 88-88, Lanier hit a three-point play, Howie Komives made two foul shots and Lanier put in a jumper to give Detroit its victory.

Jim Walker scored 21 points and Lanier 17 for the Pistons. Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 19. Philadelphia got by Buffalo when Billy Cunningham gunned in 21 of his 29 points in the last 15 minutes. Archie Clark topped the winners with 36 points. Bob Kauffman led Buffalo with 22.

Milwaukee ran its winning streak to five games and snapped Cleveland's victory string at two. Lew Alcindor and Bob Dandridge each scored 23 points for Milwaukee, which has lost only six times in 35 games. John Johnson notched 22 for Cleveland which has won only five of 43 starts.

Wilt Chamberlain's 34 points plus 27 by Jerry West and 24 by Gail Goodrich smothered the Bulls as Los Angeles zoomed to a 69-52 halftime lead. Bob Love's 31 topped Chicago.

Don Nelson's two late-gate buckets and a clinching free throw in the final three seconds turned back the Rockets, who were led by Elvin Hayes with 37 points. John Havlicek's 22 points and 20 by Jo Jo White paced Boston.

The father of Phillies relief pitcher Joe Hoerner is the sheriff of Dubuque, Iowa.

Japan's Big '71 Problem Is The U.S.

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's big problem for 1971 is the United States.

President Nixon in 1970 shattered two assumptions on which Japan has leaned ever since regaining her independence in 1952:

—One is that American fighting men supported by the U.S. taxpayer always would be around to keep the Soviet Union and Red China at a respectful distance from Japan.

—The other was that Americans would buy ever more Japanese cars, towels, cameras, baby suits, radios—the whole menu of Japanese consumer goods.

Firm Announcement
Although the United States renewed its security treaty with Japan for an indefinite period in June, 1970, the Japanese were told firmly that they would have to be ready to do their own fighting in anything short of a nuclear war.

In the trade world, they had to come to grips with American demands that Japan stem the flow of textiles that was threatening the politically powerful American clothing industry. Japanese firms found themselves in court on charges of dumping television sets, tiles, fish nets, electrical parts and other goods at unfair low prices in the United States.

It was not a question of American pique at the obviously prosperous Japanese, but a sign of deep American financial distress.

The Vietnam war is not winding down as quickly as Nixon hoped.

Also he has shifted towards deficit financing the hope of curing the unemployment problem. Hence the United States faces big budget deficits in the 1971 and 1972 fiscal years.

Little Luck
In addition, the Nixon administration has had little better luck than former President Lyndon Johnson at stemming the gush of dollars out of the United States into foreign countries.

Hence the growing American resistance to Japan's cheap consumer goods. Inflation made them all too attractive to the hard pressed American wage earner.

Japan will feel most of the effects of these American actions in the future.

In addition, the United States has told Japan it is ready to hand back military bases it has used ever since World War II—such as the fleet repair base at Yokosuka and the Atsugi Naval Air Station.
Thoughtful Japanese noted that the same time United States Defense Secretary Melvin Laird was announcing that the American presence in Europe would be maintained. Many of them wondered aloud about the firmness of the American commitment to Asia.

Picasso Looking To Freer Spain

PARIS (AP) — Pablo Picasso's lawyer says the artist wants his famous painting "Guernica" to go eventually to the government of his native Spain—when "public liberties" have been restored there.

The painting commemorated the bombing of the Basque town of Guernica in 1937 by Nazi German fliers fighting on the side of Gen. Francisco Franco against the Spanish loyalists whom Picasso supported.

Roland Dumas, the artist's lawyer, said an agreement for return of the painting recently was reached by Picasso and the Museum of Modern Art in New York, where "Guernica" was placed for safekeeping in 1939. Dumas said Picasso would decide when conditions in Spain met his requirements.

OWNER OCCUPIED
LONDON (AP) — Forty-nine per cent of houses in England and Wales were owner-occupied in 1969 compared to only 29 per cent in 1950, a government report showed.

Odd Addresses But The Mail Keeps Coming

By H. G. Jones, Director N.C. Dept. of Archives and History

Written for the AP RALEIGH (AP) — The State Department of Archives and History has been getting mail with funny addresses for a long time, and it keeps coming.

The late Dr. Christopher Crittenden, who was director from 1935 until 1968, compiled a scrapbook of envelopes bearing farfetched versions of the name and address which somehow reached the department in spite of the strange addresses.

The correct address is the State Department of Archives and History, though it was called the North Carolina Historical Commission prior to 1943. Furthermore, the North Carolina Museum of History was once known as the Hall of History.

Most of the letters and cards, which range from being just amusingly vague to being really funny, come from children requesting information for their class projects.

Sometimes their innocent requests can be overwhelming, such as the scribbled note on the back of a post card from a little boy who asked that we send him "all the information you have on North Carolina."

Another little fellow trying to get in touch with the publication Tar Heel Tales, wrote to "Tar Hell Taales."

The pages of Crittenden's scrapbook have envelopes and cards addressed to "Wherever the records of the revolutionary soldiers are kept, Raleigh, N.C.," "The Department of Achievements and History," "The Archeries of N.C. History," "The Department of Archives and Industry," and "N.C. Court of Archives."

The department also has been addressed as "The North Carolina Historical Mission,"

"The Hytarical Commission," "The Hysterical Commission," "The State Hall of Department," "The Hall of Fame," and "The State War Department."

Crittenden's favorite was the letter addressed to "The Director, State Historical Ass."

Much of the choice material did not come from children. A company in Greensboro once addressed the department as "The Haul of History."

That one might be suspected of having come from a trucking company, but it didn't.

A transport company did, however, write "The North Carolina Department of Archieves and Hickory."

Two business houses in Raleigh sent invoices directed to "State Oxygen History" and "The N.C. Dept. of Anchors and History."

Crittenden once even received a letter addressed to "The Department of Anchovies and History."

These last three probably arose from certainty in the minds of the senders that there was indeed a separate government department to deal with every aspect of life.

All of the funny mail is not old. Recently a letter came to the Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, but it was addressed to "The Society for the Prevention of Old Landmarks, etc."

But there's one encouraging thought about it all: The post office people know that Box 1881 is the place for all letters relating to history—and to archives, no matter how it is spelled.

And now, since the department has moved into our new building between the Executive Mansion and the State Legislative Building, even taxi drivers know the name—no matter how it is pronounced.

$70 Million In Faulty Building

By MICHAEL D. MOSETTING BRUSSELS (UPI) —Breathing is only one problem for the 4,000 Europeans who work in the new headquarters building of the Common Market Executive Commission.

In the summer, they swelter in the winter, they freeze. And recently the Eurocrats were sent home when power failed throughout the four-winged, 13-story, gray glass building.

Built for $70 million by the Belgian government to help stake Brussels' claim as the capital of Europe, the "Berlaymont" headquarters has provoked criticism and protests from employees of the executive body of the six-nation Common Market.

To dramatize their complaints about the air conditioning system, the Eurocrats marched out of their offices earlier this summer and held an "oxygen picnic." They draped signs from their windows saying: "SOS, oxygen please."

Government Agrees
They complained, and the Belgian government belatedly agreed, that too much carbon dioxide was filtering through the system, creating a sewer-like odor on the lower floors and breathing problems upstairs.

The architects also forgot to put permanent venetian blinds on the north side of the building and the summer sun sends temperatures in those offices up to 85 degrees.

They also forgot to insulate the lower floor of the building, which is raised on stilts, and cold air rushes upwards in the winter.

There are 26 elevators but some lead to sealed doors and others are badly placed, overworking the few convenient ones. Several fire escapes lead to water tanks.

Most of the conference rooms, which resemble padded cells, were put in the basement where windows and sunlight are inaccessible.

Officials Complain
"Even in a nice room, it's pretty rough to spend eight hours in a conference on something like standardizing brasserie sizes in the Common Market," an official said. "Without windows, it becomes pure agony."

Commission officials complain they were not consulted during construction and that the Belgian government has been slow to respond to their requests for repairs.

The Belgian press has joined in the criticism. The newspaper La Libre Belgique said the country's reputation was at stake.

Belgian officials say they are trying to sort out the problems and blame some on the Eurocrats. They said for example, commission executives insisted on windows on the top two floors that could be open and shut at will, complicating the air conditioning system.

Computers Aid Eye Test

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A University of California research team has devised a computer-assisted eye examination that may greatly increase the number of people able to receive eye care at moderate cost.

Key to the project was development of a computer program adaptable to diverse patients with a wide variety of vision problems.

The computer first asks the patients various questions about his vision by means of a tape recorded sound track.

The computer next gives the patient an eye test involving reading alphabet charts. Finally, the patient's vision error is determined by the standard method of placing a series of lenses in front of his eyes, except that the lenses are placed by a computer-activated machine.

The accuracy of the method has been proven through the use of volunteer patients, say the researchers, Dr. Elwin Marg, optometry professor, and E. R. F. W. Crossman, industrial engineering professor.

The Worry Clinic Alternative To Formal Class

Newspapers are the prime educators of America, followed by TV, Radio and Magazines. They even exceed the influence of the public school system! In fact, Jefferson once said that if we had to give up either the newspapers or the schools, he'd prefer to keep the newspapers! - This newspaper itself has probably stopped divorces, school dropouts and other family dilemmas!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.
CASE P-524: Squire Rushnell directs a very popular early morning TV show in Chicago. Recently, the girl who was co-host of the program was to be married.

So Squire invited me to join the show and offer her some sound medico-psychological advice.

Since all Chicagoland would be able to view the program, this made a very helpful type of "Marriage Clinic" for prospective brides and grooms. In this daily print "clinic" and on occasional TV shows, it is thus possible to do far more good than by formal lectures on a college campus.

Millions of you readers thus attest to this fact by saying: "Dr. Crane, I learned far more from your column and some of the booklets offered therein, than in two semesters of a Marriage Course at the University."

And you readers can guess the reason why!

For our educational institutions are usually operated by older, grayheads who are much more prudish than the modern generation.

They are thus hesitant about stressing the "cheese cake" in the bouidoir, though most newlyweds soon realize their need for specific medical and psychological counsel concerning the bedroom.

College courses thus put heavy stress on cooking and recipe books.

Mrs. Crane and I were recently invited by a young bride to have dinner with her and her husband.

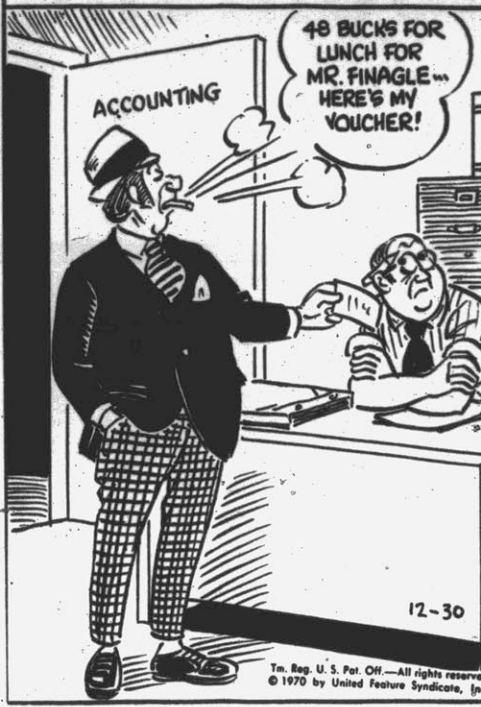

She then showed us many of their wedding gifts, including 3 cook books!

But it isn't in the dining room where divorces start.

"But, Dr. Crane," she confessed, "this 20c booklet of yours that we got from our newspaper, has been a lifesaver for us."

And that booklet is the one titled "Sex Problems in

Concerned Over Decreasing Bats

LONDON (AP) — British naturalists are worried about the apparent decrease in the number of bats in the country.

The Council for Nature is sponsoring a survey with natural history societies invited to submit ideas on how the bat can best be protected.

"The results of such a survey will help in the formulation of a conservation policy for bats," said the council's journal, Habitat.

Marriage.

By way of the booklet service attached to this clinical educational column, millions of readers obtain help in solving marriage problems, as well as those dealing with child problems, stage fright, neuroses, etc.

Many readers fail to realize that this educational mail service is strictly a charitable aid for the American Mental Health Associations.

For you are asked to send 20c, but the printing and handling charges run 28c per booklet.

So I not only don't receive a cent of royalty on any booklet, nor does your local newspaper, but then I must divert all my speaking fees to make up the 8c deficit per booklet!

But I continue to do so because I see tens of thousands of specific cases where divorce has been checked, or delinquency has been stopped and even unduly shy folks with beginning delusions of persecution have been steered back into the normal social life of their teenage classmates.

Remember, divorce, delinquency, school dropouts and even insanity are usually not inexorable and inevitable.

You can stop all of them if you resolutely wish to do so and get the scientific advice by which to remedy your dilemmas.

So don't wait for New Year's Resolutions!

Start on a diet NOW.

Break your slavery to liquor or tobacco habits, plus drugs and even the lazy procrastination about doing your homework and other chores.

You can be master of your destiny if you try hard!

So send for the medical booklet "How to Break the Tobacco and Liquor Habits," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20c.

Enlist some friends, too, for it is easier to work as a group! (Always write to Dr. Drane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20c to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Instant Report
On The Record

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard has a new computer that gives an instant rundown on a suspect's criminal record with personal details—right down to the cigarettes he smokes.

A policeman on the beat can ask questions about a suspect by using his pocket radio and give within seconds full details.

"Apart from a man's criminal record we have details about the kind of clothes he wears, the cigarettes he smokes, the type of car he uses, the women in his life, the pubs he frequents, and what he drinks," a yard spokesman explained.

Ex-Ski Bum Is Developer

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard E. Georgi, 31, says he once was considered a mere "ski bum" but now is a successful ski resort developer.

He heads Ski and Shore Properties, Inc., in Bellaire, Antrim County, in Michigan's lower peninsula, near Traverse City. Born in Knoxville, Tenn., in 1939, he attended schools in New Mexico, Texas and Idaho as the family moved with his father, an employee of the Atomic Energy Commission.

He developed into an expert skier and began giving ski lessons at age 12 at a junior high school at Pine Basin, Idaho.

At 19 he became a wholesale food salesman in Washington, D.C., skiing only on his winter vacations. After two years he was sales manager of the firm.

Contracting for slam in today's hand involved nothing more than simple arithmetic on the part of North and South. South with 17 high card points opened the bidding with one no trump. North, holding 17 points himself, knows that the partnership has at the very least 33 points, enough to undertake a slam and he proceeded directly to six no trump.

West didn't have much to work with but on the alert—he put that little to good use in casting a spell on declarer.

West opened fire with the nine of spades. Declarer saw when the dummy was spread that 12 tricks were there for the taking provided that hearts were not badly stacked. He put up the ace of spades from dummy and as a preliminary measure, took the club finesse by leading low toward the queen in his hand. West took in the trick

Alabama Highways Over Mountain, Under A River

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two giant Alabama projects — one over a mountain and the other under a tunnel — are causing a lot of interest among highway traffic officials, geologists, officeholders and the general public. Associated Press Writers Phil Oramous and Stan Atkins examined both projects. The following article deals with the huge Mobile River Tunnel, which will carry Interstate 10 traffic under the river.

Under the River

By STAN ATKINS
Associated Press Writer
MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Huge pile-drivers chugging and thumping. The more-than-100-year-old City Hall quivering and shaking. Traffic blocked in vital areas for months on end. A general state of inconvenience.

It's been going on since Oct. 9, 1969, and some of it will continue until July 1972.

This is the Mobile River Tunnel, a vast engineering project which will carry Interstate 10 beneath the stream.

"My office shakes so bad at time, you can hardly recognize your own signature," said City Commissioner Lambert C. Mims of the work in progress in back of City Hall. Mims points to cracks in the walls and notes that an old marble wall in the lobby of City Hall had to be braced and rebraced to keep it from falling. In fact, a good bit of City Hall and an annex were braced with shoring and special beams in an effort to prevent damage.

The Alabama Highway Department describes the project as a vital link in the interstate system spanning the southern breadth of the nation from the Atlantic Ocean at Jacksonville, Fla., to the Pacific Ocean at Los Angeles.

At a contract price of $47.46 million, it is one of the biggest highway projects ever let by the federal government. When it was awarded, it was described as the largest single highway contract ever let in one piece.

Actually, says project engineer Jim Wilson, when you figure in the cost of utility relocation, acquisition of rights of way, preliminary engineering, design work and field engineering, you have roughly an expenditure of $60 million.

Naturally, the engineers say, there is going to be considerable inconvenience when a project of that magnitude is built just off the downtown business district of a city of about 200,000.

But, oddly, there have been relatively few complaints, say Wilson and William Glass, district engineer for the Alabama Highway Department.

"Oh, there have been a few," Wilson said. "Some were about plaster falling from cracked ceilings in some houses. And a wall was cracked in the foyer at City Hall. There are always complaints about traffic detours and utility disruptions. But that's about it."

He considers the comparatively few complaints as rather unusual for a major project.

City Commissioner Mims agrees on the unusual lack of complaints.

"There has been a lot of inconvenience for the people," the city official said. "Despite it, we haven't had too much complaining. I think it is because of the fact that this tunnel will mean to the city when it is completed."

What it will mean — in addition to the interstate implications — is that Mobilians and visitors one day won't have to put up with clogged traffic in their efforts to cross to the heavily traveled Mobile Bay

A SUPER HIGHWAY has sliced a great wedge from Red Mountain at Birmingham, laying bare some 400 million years of the area's geological history. (AP Wirephoto)

Causeway through the two-lane Bankhead Toll Tunnel, built in 1940.

The new toll-free tunnel will provide four lanes, two east and two west, separated from each other.

Operation generally will be automatic with traffic directed by lane control signal lights as needed. But in the control room on the east end of the tunnel, operators will be on continuous duty at a panel recording all phases of the operation.

The control operator will have 14 television screens monitoring every foot of roadway in the tubes. He also will have a selective public address system with which he can speak to motorists in a specific area. He can take immediate command.

The tunnel, measuring 3,000 feet from portal to portal, is being fabricated in seven sections at the Alabama Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Co. yard across Mobile River from the city.

Each steel section is 346 feet long, 80 feet wide, 40 feet tall and weighs 20,000 tons. Three sections so far have been launched and are being prepared for lowering into a trench which will extend beneath the 40-foot-deep ship channel in Mobile River.

But about that vibration from the pile-drivers:

"I have sat here at my desk at times and heard those pile-drivers pounding away all day long," Mims said. "And I'd go home and I could still hear them."

Over the Mountain
By PHIL ORAMOUS
Associated Press Writer
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) —

Twin ribbons of superhighway have sliced a magnificent wedge from Red Mountain, laying bare the reasons for Birmingham's existence and causing international excitement among geologists and amateur rockhounds.

Some 440 million years of the area's geological history have been exposed by the Red Mountain Cut, which links several expressway systems.

The heart of the cut through the mountain, which borders Birmingham on the South, is the "Big Seam"—the formation of iron ore around with the city's major industry was built nearly 100 years ago.

The excavation, the deepest through the mountain to date, exposes stratigraphic sections ranging from the Chickamauga Limestone of Middle Ordovician age at the base through the Floyd Shale of Mississippian age at the top.

In between are formations of various sandstones, shales and cherts.

Geologists say the Red Mountain Cut is of more value to them than the Grand Canyon is of Arizona, since its formations and fossils are represented in about one-fourth of a mile. To gain the same information from the Grand Canyon would require studying a distance of nearly 10 miles.

The cut is a preserved geological record of the formation of the Appalachian Mountains, which begin to peter out as they move through north Alabama.

The structures are revealed in full detail, instead of mere outcroppings as found in other places.

The resulting excitement has led to formation of a committee seeking to have the cut designated a National Geologic Monument.

The Linn-Henley Trust has pledged $250,000 to be used in construction of the Red Mountain Museum of Natural History at the top of the mountain.

Other plans include metal walkways up the sides of the cut, with appropriate markers and rest areas so interested persons can take their time and study the formations and fossils.

Geologists from several countries have asked the Geological Survey of Alabama, headquartered at Tuscaloosa, for information and pictures of the cut. Geology professors at a number of schools have asked for the same things to use in classroom instruction.

Birmingham, Ala., Red Mountain Cut, add: Instruction. The cut took seven years to complete at a cost of some $19 million. It was opened to traffic last April 9.

The site is near several other tourist attractions, including the Jimmy Morgan Zoo and Vulcan Park, home of the iron statue of Vulcan, god of metals and fire, which is the symbol of the city.

City officials have proposed an overhead monorail connecting the attractions with the highway cut.

Others, meanwhile, are proposing legislation to keep billboards from marring the colorful panorama of the city that greets travelers across Red Mountain.

Wine Taste Is Growing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—American adults downed an average of 88 three-ounce glasses of wine last year.

They have a long way to go to catch up with the French, but the total is growing—117 glasses by 1980 is the predicted.

Annual American wine consumption will approach 400 million gallons in a decade, a 60 per cent increase over 1970, say economists for the Bank of America.

And there's a trend toward more expensive wines, those priced above $1.25 a fifth.

"A rapid and persistent shift from the stronger or sweeter types, such as dessert wine, vermouth and special flavored wines fortified with more than 14 per cent alcohol, has occurred," the bank said in a report.

"Wines with less than 14 per cent alcohol have posted a four-fold increase in consumption in the past 15 years."

California wine producers have found their home state is their best market.

"With almost 10 per cent of the nation's adults, California consumes more than 22 per cent of the wines entering distribution channels in the United States," the bank said.

Help Shopping By Handicapped

LONDON (AP) — "Shopping for the Handicapped" parties are sponsored by a Rotary club in London's Hammersmith district.

Aged and disabled people are transported by ambulances, buses and cars to stores in King Street staffed by volunteers who keep the stores open after regular hours on certain evenings.
