Congress Breaks Logjam

Saturday Adjournment Is Cleared By SST Accord

BY CARL P. LEUBSDORF Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - An agreement to resolve the long fight over the supersonic transport plane appears to have cleared the way for adjournment Saturday of the marathon 91st Congress - and may lead to rejection of the SST subsidy by the new Congress.

Senate sources reported Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., had agreed to drop his fight against the appropriations bill for the Department of Transportation, the sole measure standing in the way of adjournment, after being assured of a separate vote on the SST by next March.

Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass.,

leader of the House conferees who have fought for the SST, said the agreement may well mean victory in Proxmire's long fight against the 1,800-mile-an-hour plane.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., an SST opponent who backed the compromise plan, had predicted earlier the new House might well reject the SST next year.

"It's pretty shaky now," he said. "And I think it will tumble by March 30."

Under the agreement hammered out in an hour-long session late Thursday in the office of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, the Senate would approve Saturday a resolution permitting the transportation department to keep spending at least year's level until March 30.

A new appropriations bill for the remainder of the fiscal year would have to be approved then.

Proxmire reportedly was assured Senate conferees would not permit a repetition of the parliamentary situation in which Senate SST foes were faced with the possibility of defeating the entire transportation money bill after earlier winning by 11 votes their fight against the plan.

The $290 million for the SST is a part of the transportation bill. With the House already in adjournment until Saturday, Mansfield then dropped a plan to meet today and the Senate quit work until Saturday morning, just 25 hours before the noon Sunday expiration of the 91st Congress.

Earlier, Proxmire had vowed to keep talking until the last minute unless he was guaranteed a separate vote on the SST in the new Congress.

As the winter's first big snowfall struck Washington Thursday, the two houses disposed of all remaining major legislation except the transportation bill. Passed were:

-A $2.5-billion foreign aid money bill.
-An extension of the foreign military sales program, stalled for months over the now concluded fight over restrictions on U.S. activities in Cambodia.

-A three-year extension of the food stamp program including a controversial new work requirement.

-A two-year extension of automobile and telephone excise taxes and a speedup of estate tax collections, designed to produce $4 billion in additional revenue over a two-year period.

-A bill revising machinery for adjusting the salary of federal workers, taking it out of the hands of Congress and providing in effect for semi-automatic increases each year. It could give federal employes a 6-per cent pay raise, effective today.

Two other measures fell by the wayside.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, pronounced the final death sentence on an increase in Social Security benefits, passed in different forms by the House and Senate.

With the shortage of time preventing a conference to work out the many differences, Mills plans to bring a retroactive Social Security bill together with welfare reform to the House early in the next session.

A $1.5-billion Nixon administration proposal to aid desegregation of schools died in the Senate with all sides blaming one another for its demise.

The new proposal to end the SST snafu originated with the Senate conferees on the transportation money measure, who approved it 7 to 2 with Proxmire and Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., dissenting.

Though Proxmire immediately rejected it as a bad proposal and indicated he would resume his filibuster, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, accepted the plan and brought it before the House.

Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill., lost a procedural fight 145 to 75, and, when the balloting was concluded on the proposal itself, the count was four votes short of a quorum.

While members stalled, three opponents of the SST came in and cast ballots. Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., recognized the presence in the chamber of three unrecorded members, including himself, and declared the bill passed 180 to 37.

The House then cleared the foreign aid bill to the White House and sent the military sales measure to the Senate, where it was quickly accepted.

Earlier, Senate-House conferees agreed on a two-year extension of the military sales program under which the United States ships surplus weapons around the world.

That freed the aid bill, which contains $200 million for military sales, subject to a Senate proviso that it could not be spent until the authorization was approved.

Starting A New Year Together

JANUARY, 1971 - Snow closed out the final days of 1970 and it threatened, but didn't materialize on New Year's Eve. The first day of the year dawned cold and clear but for Connie Pou and her dog "Red" snow forms the background for this first-of-the-year photo. VC Violations In 'Cease-Fire'

By RICHARD PYLE Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) - U.S. forces began their second decade of fighting in Vietnam today by reporting a sudden upsurge in battle casualties blamed on enemy violations of a New Year's truce.

In the worst single incident reported by the U.S. Command, Viet Cong troops ambushed and killed the five-man crew of a U.S. Navy supply boat in the Mekong Delta.

At least six other Americans were reported killed and at least 43 were listed as wounded since the start of the enemy-declared 72-hour New Year's cease-fire.

Although the cease-fires declared by each side remained in effect as another year ended, action continued in the longest war in U.S. history.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands reported one American killed and eight wounded and six South Vietnamese killed and 20 wounded since the allies' 24-hour cease-fire went into effect at 6 p.m. Saigon time on New Year's Eve.

At least 26 battlefield incidents were initiated by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces during the period, they said, 10 of them against U.S. forces. Enemy losses were reported as 18 killed.

The Communist command's three-day truce was 13 hours old and the allied cease-fire four hours away when the five sailors were ambushed, the U.S. Command said.

The sailors were riding in a 20-foot, flat-bottomed aluminum boat loaded with supplies for a Naval outpost on a canal west of Rach Gia in the western Mekong Delta. Spokesmen said Viet Cong troops hidden along the canal bank attacked with small-arms fire and grenades riddling the boat and killing all five men.

The boat did not sink and the bodies were recovered, officials said.

U.S. spokesmen also said five soldiers were killed and 20 wounded Thursday in booby trap explosions and other incidents that occurred during the Viet Cong cease-fire but before the allied truce went into effect.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported a series of enemy attacks, most of them small-scale, in which 14 enemy were killed. Five government soldiers were killed and 13 wounded in the attacks, which included a raid on a railroad station southwest of Hue.

In Cambodia, where the cease-fire was not observed, Cambodian troops reported killing 30 North Vietnamese soldiers in a battle at Kraing Check, near the provincial capital of Kompong Speu 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

In Vientiane, U.S. Embassy sources said a U.S. Air Force captain has been shot down and presumably killed over the Plain of Jars in northern Laos.

Missed Full Effects

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina was in the favored position of just missing the full effects of the winter's first big storm Thursday.

The storm moved up the South Carolina coast during the day with heavy seas and high winds, nudged the Tar Heel state with some snow and freezing rain, then let loose its full fury on the Eastern Seaboard from Virginia northward.

A snowfall of up to four inches - or even more - was predicted for most of the state Thursday, but only Asheville reported that much. Elsewhere, amounts were generally about an inch from the foothills to the edge of the Coastal Plain. Ice collected on trees and utility lines over much of the state as a steady rain averaged about one-quarter of an inch.

The intense low pressure system that spawned the bad weather passed along the North Carolina coast late Thursday, leaving behind a reading of 58 mile-an-hour winds at Holden Beach but no reports of damage. The Coast Guard sent two helicopters into Albemarle and Pamlico Bounds to warn folks.

Travelers' warnings were issued for most of the state during the day and night Thursday as temperatures lingered below freezing, but with a return to warmer conditions today the few icy spots on highways were predicted to disappear.

The national weather service at Raleigh-Durham Airport said snow flurries that fell as far east as Rocky Mount last Thursday night were to end by dawn, except in the mountains.

Lows tonight should be in the upper 30s and highs Sunday are expected to be in the upper 30s or low 40s under sunny skies.

Jenkins Says Matter Of Opposition To Scott Plans Was Not Raised

East Carolina University President Dr. Leo Jenkins disclaims having "gone deeply" into discussion of restructure control of North Carolina's universities in a meeting with Governor Robert Scott in Raleigh yesterday.

"I had a private conversation with the Governor," Dr. Jenkins commented, "and I didn't know it would develop into this." Dr. Jenkins was referring to an Associated Press story that says he has shown the first open opposition to Governor Scott's proposal.

"I merely suggested to the Governor that he consider the advisability of looking into formula budgeting," Dr. Jenkins stated. "It's not a matter of opposition, but simply one of making a suggestion for budgeting."

The AP story noted "Jenkins is believed to have voiced his opposition... and to have told the governor the state's universities should answer to the legislature and not to a statewide board of regents or trustees."

It was stated, "Both Scott and Jenkins refused to discuss their meeting." The story reported that Governor Scott said, after meeting with Jenkins, that he did not see Jenkins' support for reorganization and he was "not sure I will ask him for it."

Jenkins reportedly told Scott in a recent letter there is no evidence the present university system is "chaotic" or creates

Church Criticizes Way Poland Put Down Rioting

By NICHOLAS LILLITOS Associated Press Writer

WARSAW (AP) - The Roman Catholic Church in Poland issued a declaration today criticizing the way former Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz' government put down pre-Christmas rioting in several Polish cities.

The declaration, being read today in all Catholic churches in the country, also called on the new Premier, Piotr Jaroszewicz, to grant a list of freedoms to Poland's citizens.

The government, meanwhile, announced wage and benefit increases affecting 10 million Poles.

The church statement was signed by Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, primate of Poland, and said:

"Application of means of suppression is not conducive to maintaining peace in social life, especially if they do not spare the innocent, and even children and women.

"The life of the nation cannot develop in an atmosphere of intimidation. It should develop in peace, in the spirit of justice and social charity."

The declarations called on the government to grant the citizens of Poland these rights:

-The right of freedom of conscience and freedom of religious life, with full normalization of relations between church and state.

-The right to help form the culture of one's own nation freely, in accordance with the spirit of Christian principles of coexistence.

-The right to social justice, to be expressed in the granting of justified demands.

-The right to truth in social life, to truthful information, and free stating of views and demands.

-The right to material conditions that ensure a decent existence for the family and every citizen.

-The right not to be offended, harmed or persecuted because of the attitude of the state toward them.

Services, Parties Launch New Year

By CAROL TYER Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville people greeted the New Year at worship services, at parties, at smaller get-togethers, on the job, or at home with their families - whether awake or sleeping.

Among the churches which held New Year's services culminating at or shortly after midnight were Cornerstone Baptist Church, Maranatha F.W.B. Church, and Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The service at Maranatha was a joint service for Grace, Emmanuel, Parker's Chapel, Trinity, and Maranatha F.W.B. Churches. The Rev. Neal Hearn of Winterville brought a short message, after which testimonies were given, and the life of Billy Sunday was shown on film.

A watchnight service and love feast brought in the New Year at Jarvis Memorial. According to the pastor, the Rev. Troy Barrett, the love feast consisted of bread and water, the universal and basic elements of life. Testimonies of what Christ has meant to certain individuals from Jarvis and other churches were heard.

Rev. W. B. Moore, pastor of Cornerstone Church, said, "Our members believe a regular worship service is a good way to begin the New Year. It helps us as Christians to focus on our responsibilities for the coming year."

Today - New Year's Day - the Feast of Our Lady is celebrated by the Catholic Church. St. Peter's Church here had services at 8 and 10 a.m. and St. Gabriel's had 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services. A Mass for Peace is held in conjunction with the Feast celebration according to Pope Paul VI's declaration some three years ago of New Year's Day as a World Day of Peace.

The Greenville Golf and Country Club had a dinner-dance for members and house guests. Goodluck black-eyed peas were part of the meal.

Moose members and their guests danced to the music of Jay McCracken and Trio. The festivities ended with breakfast.

A floor show was included in the New Year's Eve party at the Candlewick Inn.

A cocktail party and dancing till midnight and after was the New Year's activity at the Brook Valley Country Club.

Hard rock music and "weird" lights gave a hardly quiet greeting to the New Year for those attending the party at the Fiddlers Three.

Index Reveals N.C. Economy Inched Upward During November

RALEIGH (AP) - The Carolina economy picked up during November.

The Wachovia Bank and Trust Co.'s North Carolina Business Index edged upward by 0.8 per cent to a preliminary figure of 110.8. This figure, however, was 0.7 per cent below the level for November of 1969.

A Wachovia spokesman said these factors contributed to the November upswing:

-Nonfarm employment rose to the highest level since May. Spending by individuals and businesses, as measured by bank debits, showed a healthy 3.7 per cent gain.

-Total manufacturing manhours, which have been declining gradually since mid-1969, gained in October and held their own in November.

Wachovia economists cited as another important factor in the upturn the fact that consumer prices rose only 0.3 per cent during November - the second smallest gain this year.

Manufacturing employment showed the first significant increase since the first of the year on a seasonally adjusted basis. The gain was due mainly to an increase in non-durable manufacturing jobs. Employment in the durable goods division continued to drop on a seasonally adjusted basis.

In the non-durable goods, tobacco employment was up 5.6 per cent, employment in food and kindred products was up 1 per cent, and chemical industry employment was up 1.1 per cent. Jobs in the textile and paper industries remained unchanged.

On the durable goods front, jobs increased by 0.4 per cent but remained 3.8 per cent below last year's level. Furniture employment increased 0.8 per cent but remained below the level of a year ago.

Employment in government and in services continued to show gains while a smaller increase was noted in the trade sector.

The General Motors strike resulted in reduced new car and truck sales, but a big gain is expected after the first of the year. The unemployment situation showed some improvement in November and dropped from 4.5 per cent in October to 4.1 per cent in November. This was still substantially higher than the 2.9 per cent figure of a year ago.

Building permits issued in 18 North Carolina cities were down in November and are expected to show a decline of about 15 per cent for 1970. Wachovia said a pickup in building activity is expected early in the new year.

The U.S. Department of Labor reported that as of Dec. 1 North Carolina had four areas where unemployment was considered substantial. These were Elizabethton in Bladen County, Marshall in Madison County, Roxboro in Person County and Whiteville in Columbus County.

Couple Exchanges Vows On Sunday Afternoon

AYDEN — Miss Patricia Gail Stroud became the bride of John Richard Buck on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Ayden United Methodist Church. The Rev. L. Y. Wilson officiated the double ring ceremony. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lee Stroud Sr. of Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. M. R. Buck of Ayden and the late Mr. Buck. The chancel of the church was centered with a fifteen branch arched candelabras. Stands of greenery accented the fifteen branch spiral candelabras used on each side. Two seven branch candelabras were used in front. Two baskets of white gladioli and lavender pom chrysanthemums completed the decorations. The couple knelt for their vows on a white satin pillow. Honor paws were marked with satin ribbons and stephanotis. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. E. Joe Whitaker, organist, and Rob Roy Turnage, soloist, who sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer." Given in marriage by father, the bride wore a formal gown of white peau de soie with chantilly lace applied on the front, the sleeves and around the lower edge of the skirt. The gown featured a high neckline, empire waist and long bishop sleeves. Her full length illusion veil, also applied with chantilly lace, was attached to a triple bow headpiece trimmed with lace and seeded pearls. She carried a traditional cascade of white carnations and white pom pon chrysanthemums centered with a lavender orchid. Miss Karen Stroud served as her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. Arden Stroud, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Their dresses were empire sheath formals. The bodices of lavender chiffon were styled with deep-cuffed long sleeves and a high neckline. Ruffles trimmed the cuffs, the neckline and the front of the dresses, with covered buttons accenting the bodice fronts. The skirts of deep purple velvet featured matching belts at the empire waistline. Their headpieces were single bows of purple velvet. They carried purple baskets of purple and lavender pom pon chrysanthemums with baby's breath and tied with matching ribbons. Bridesmaids were Miss Elaine Stroud, Miss Lou Anne Stroud, both cousins of the bride, Miss Lynn Langston, niece of the bridegroom, Mrs. Jim Booth, all of Ayden, and Miss Lele Sanford of Richmond, Va. Their dresses were styled similar to those of the honor attendants. The bodice of white satin were trimmed with Venice lace ruffles at the neckline, on the cuffs and down the front. The skirts were of purple velvet with matching belts and covered buttons down the bodice fronts. They wore purple velvet bows for headpieces and carried purple baskets of white and purple pom pon chrysanthemums tied with white velvet ribbons. Mickey Buck of Ayden served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Neil Stroud, brother of the bride, Randy Loftin, cousin of the bridegroom, Jim Booth, all of Ayden, Russ Barnette of Greenville and Joel McLawhorn of Clinton. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Stroud chose a turquoise shantung ensemble with a high neckline. She wore matching accessories and a white cymbidium orchid. Mrs. O. C. Stroud Sr., paternal grandmother of the bride, and Miss Minnie Buck, aunt of the bridegroom, also wore white cymbidium orchid corsages. Mrs. Jack Dail directed the wedding. Reception Immediately following the ceremony a reception, given by the parents of the bride, was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Clay Stroud. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Campbell presided over the guest register while Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Merritt headed the receiving line. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stroud said good-byes. Mrs. Joyce Langston and Mrs. Walter Loftin Jr. poured punch while Mrs. Bill Cox served cake squares. For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a powder blue knit pants suit trimmed with antique silver buttons and belt buckle. She used black patent accessories and wore the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet. The bride is a senior at ECU, majoring in home economics. The bridegroom is a graduate of ECU and is now working on his master's degree there in biology. The couple reside in Ayden. Prior to the Buck-Stroud wedding rehearsal Saturday evening, the bridal party was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stroud, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Stroud Jr. and Mrs. O. C. Stroud Sr. at a dinner held at the Ayden Country Club. The meal was served buffet style and a holiday-bridal motif was carried out in the decorations and flowers. Following the rehearsal, a cake cutting was given by the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. Bill Cox, Mrs. Joyce Langston, Mrs. Walter Loftin Jr., Mrs. H. L. Wilson and Mrs. Wayland Wilson.

Chapel Hill Owes Cooperation

No one expects the state's three medical schools to be concerned with quotas of students from ECU's two year medical school at this time. On the other hand if these other schools do not work in every way possible with East Carolina's developing medical school we would have a prime example of higher education haggling that has no place in our state.

The medical school at Chapel Hill is a state supported school and it owes full cooperation in the development of the school at ECU which has been authorized by the General Assembly.

The Bowman Gray and Duke Medical Schools are privately supported. It became obvious two years ago that they needed state support and the General Assembly willingly appropriated subsidies to these schools.

Now it is obvious that all three of these schools are not going to be able to fill the need for physicians in the state in the years ahead and thus there is a great need for the medical course now being planned at ECU.

An Associated Press news story drew the conclusion that the three schools might not be able to handle the 16 to 20 two year graduates from ECU, based on interviews with the officials of the three existing medical schools.

However, the story indicated a spirit of cooperation by Bowman Gray and Duke.

Dr. Manson Meads at Bowman Gray said his school had agreed to consider ECU graduates to fill the three or four spaces available each year.

Dr. Fydam Osterhour at Duke said his school's attitude was one of cooperation. "We'll receive applications from students in any two year medical school and give them proper appraisal. All things being equal, we'd give the benefit to East Carolina.

Dean Isaac Taylor at UNC Medical school was quoted as saying that ECU students "would be considered along with applicants from other schools around the country."

We cannot believe that UNC Medical School, which is heavily supported by state funds, would not give the same consideration to ECU two-year medical students as Duke proposes to do.

We feel there is a willingness to cooperate with East Carolina's efforts among the three existing medical schools located in this state. It would be highly regrettable if it were to be otherwise and ultimately the people of the state would be the losers.

Scott Taking Hopeful View

By GOVERNOR BOB SCOTT

Today we have a New Year's Day message from Governor Scott, prepared exclusively for the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Dailies.

Happy New Year! May 1971 be a happy, healthy and prosperous time for you and your family.

In the past, I have found that each year is usually a little better than the preceding one. It is my hope and full expectation that this will be true in 1971.

North Carolinians have every reason to enter into this new year with optimism.

This is not to gloss over the problems confronting our State, or to minimize the energy and imagination we need to solve them.

My optimism is based upon the demonstrated characteristics of our citizens, and upon the condition of the State itself.

Self-Examination Vital
One Tar Heel trait is that of self-analysis and self-criticism. This process is often painful, because it is rarely pleasant to admit to shortcomings, but it is essential in my opinion.

North Carolinians also take pride in this State, its institutions and its services. We no longer are content to gauge our State's progress by that of our regional neighbors. We aspire to move into the front rank nationally.

My experience as Governor has led me to another conclusion: one of the keys to North Carolina's record of achievement is the willingness of hundreds of our citizens to donate, generously and unselfishly, their time and talents to serving our State.

These citizens may serve on one of the numerous appointive boards or study commissions, or they may serve on a task force of some kind. They leave their offices and homes to undertake often thankless but necessary chores on behalf of their fellow Tar Heels.

Using Tar Heel Talent
This characteristic, I submit, is a true example of patriotism. By tapping the reservoir of our home-grown talent, North Carolina has been able to solve many of its problems with a minimum of difficulty.

My feeling of optimism about the future is supported by another Tar Heel characteristic: the ability to realize that the popular course is not always the right course. Sometimes, the distinction isn't made immediately, but it usually is later on.

For example, North Carolinians do not like taxes any better than anyone else. But, we are wise enough, and realistic enough, to ask what services these taxes are providing before we engage in bombast against them.

To put it another way: North Carolinians cannot be stampeded into hasty, ill-considered action. We are stable citizens, with a keen sense of responsibility and a high respect for duty.

State, National Problems Similar
The problems our State will face in this and future years are generally the same problems faced by the nation: protecting the physical environment, educating the children, insuring social justice, adjusting to rapid change.

Though North Carolina lacks the financial resources of some of its sister states, I am confident that our State will provide its share of the answers to these problems. What we lack in financial assets, we more than make up for in our rich human assets.

Furthermore, our State has a tradition of moving out to meet problems while they are still manageable, before they reach the point of no return. We sometimes fail, but we succeed far more than not.

Our real strength in North Carolina is not represented by any set of statistics, impressive though they may be. Nor is our strength really reflected in the superlatives we claim for our State.

Our real strength is our people, our five million men, women and children, living from the shores of the Atlantic to the peaks of the Smokies and the Blue Ridge.

Because of this strength, I am optimistic that North Carolina will greet the challenges of the future as opportunities to build a better State.

Israel Heeded Perhaps The Only Course Open

Israel has acted wisely, and perhaps in the only manner open it, by agreeing to return to the Middle East peace talks.

Prime Minister Golda Meir announced this week that the United Nations talks could resume. Israel had suspended its participation in the talks of Sept. 6 because of an Egyptian missile build-up of the Suez area.

The problems to be solved in the Middle East are huge and perhaps they will not be solved in our time. The shooting can be brought to a permanent end, however, but this will take patience and careful negotiations by all concerned.

The only hope for peace in the Middle East is through negotiation and peace talks should get underway without delay.

Still Guessing Candidacies

By JOHN KILGO

In the year 1970 you have been treated to what might be described as an unusually large dose of political doubletalk. Some men in the state are running for high office as hard as human legs will carry them, but the plan at this stage is to play cat-and-mouse and keep people guessing.

The big political story in North Carolina in 1971 will center around the Governor's race. Twelve months from now the race will be out in the open.

At this stage you need a program to follow the men who are "interested" in running for Governor in the 1972 Democratic primary. You've heard the names before — Taylor, Bowles, Morgan, Sowers, Jenkins, Faircloth. As the New Year rolls in, it might be a good idea to put this in perspective.

First, examine the case of Lt. Gov. H. Pat Taylor, Jr. of Wadesboro. While you will not be able to get Taylor to talk in definitive terms about 1972, nothing short of an earthquake and tidal wave will keep him out of the Governor's race. Taylor, as a matter of fact, has been running for Governor for months. He has criss-crossed the State in Herculean style to talk, cut ribbons, and line up the financial support. Pat Taylor is a candidate for Governor and the year 1971 will bear that out.

Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles: State Senator from Greensboro, strong vote-getter in his home territory, has an intense interest in vocational education. Talk to him about the Governor's race and he smiles and says softly: "I'm not trying to make any noise." A lot of people thought Bowles was going to run for lieutenant governor in 1968 but he surprised them. Like Taylor, Bowles has made numerous trips across North Carolina in 1970, lining up financial support. He has told some people that he's flat-out in the race. Politicians don't like to peak too early, and as Bowles says now isn't the time to make a lot of noise. But by the time the first frost appears in the fall of '71, Skipper Bowles will be out and running. He, too, is a candidate for Governor.

Robert Morgan, 44, North Carolina attorney general: He has caused some of the State's big-name politicians some uneasy moments. Since 1968 he has developed into a Kerr Scott-type who has shown no reluctance to take on the big boys. Morgan is well aware of his popularity with the people, but he also knows that raising money for a political campaign might be a giant problem for him. Morgan isn't about to tip his political hand at this stage, because it puts him in a strong bargaining position. Those who think Taylor and Boles aren't concerned about the possibility of Morgan getting into the Governor's race, probably also believe in the Easter Bunny. But 12 months from now, it's most likely that Morgan will be making his move not for the (Continued on page 6)

Strength For Today

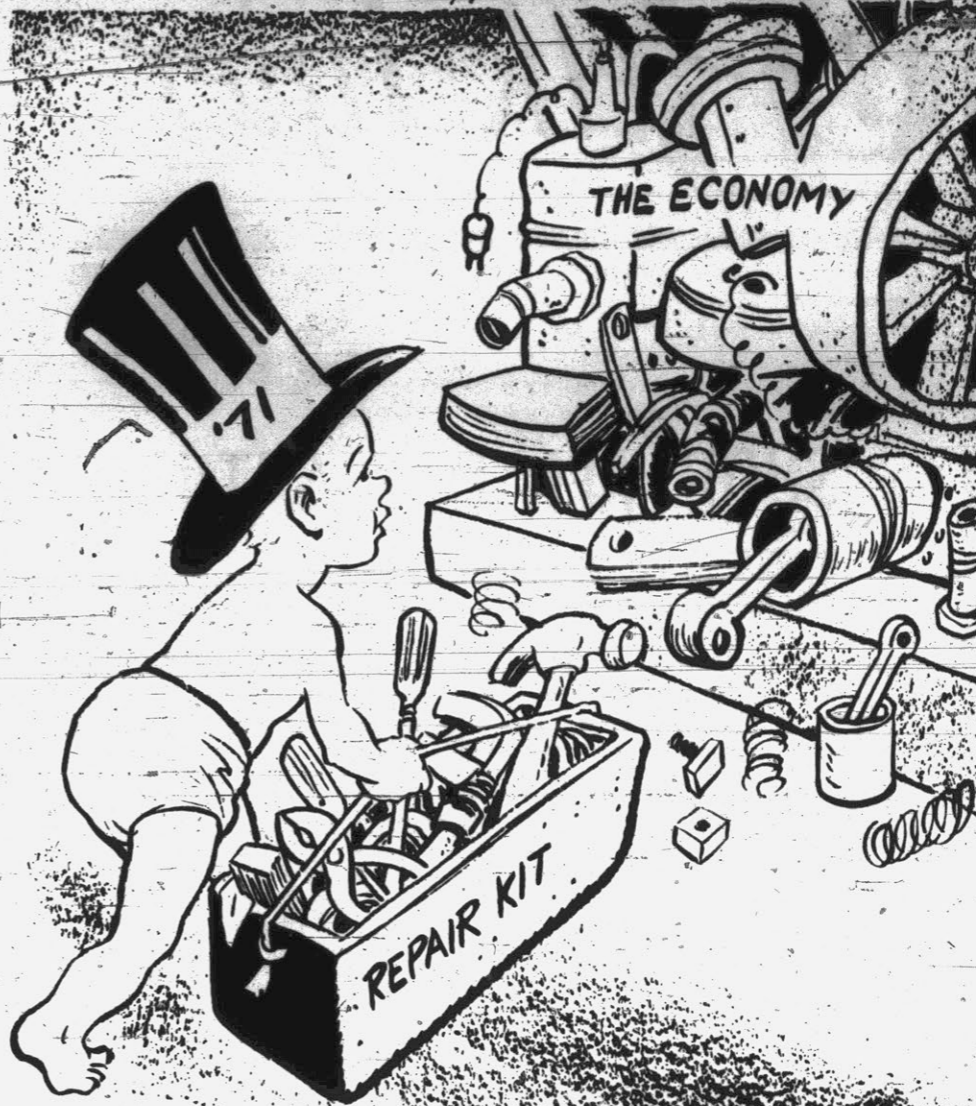

NOT THE ULTIMATE GOOD

Many people believe that money causes more trouble in the world than any other factor of human existence.

But wouldn't you like to have a little more? The trouble with money and all other earthly possessions is that some people let money and earthly possessions dominate their lives. Is it right to want more money? Certainly, if that desire for money is not the first and dominating desire of our lives. Honest, generosity, a desire for social benefit, the elimination of age-old evils, self-respect and respect for others — these are all better than money. The wrong use of money can neutralize and sometimes destroy the better things of life. There are rich saints and poor saints. There are rich criminals and poor criminals. The people who hang their heads and complain are sometimes rich and sometimes poor. A wide variety of reasons makes some people rich and other people poor. Certainly there is nothing that can keep one in continual anxiety more than a constant shortage of funds. But when this happens we need to ask ourselves, How come? Never have there been so many excessively rich people as today, and while most rich people today are honest, they do not find that riches make them happy or keep them happy. The mother of Karl Marx, the reputed father of Socialism, was once said to have remarked that it would be better for Karl if he spent more time trying to accumulate some capital rather than to spend his time trying to destroy Capitalism. Money is a good — but not the ultimate good. By EARL L. DOUGLASS

GOOD LUCK, YOUNG FELLOW!

By ART BUCHWALD

An Army That Listens

WASHINGTON — The Army has been accused of investigating and keeping files on civilians, including senators, congressmen and leading citizens. I couldn't believe this was true until I happened to be passing through a basic training camp the other day and I saw a crusty drill sergeant holding up a tape recorder. He was talking to a platoon of recruits. He barked, "Now this is your M-134 Field Issue Tape Recorder. You will carry this tape recorder at all times. This tape recorder is issued with three F-107-X cassettes, which you will carry on your belt ready for instant loading when you are in a combat situation. Any questions so far?"

Other Editors Say Proliferation

(Durham Herald)
The House Committee on Government Operations has pointed to another facet of big government growing bigger in its report on the burgeoning nature of federal advisory panels. The government spends an estimated $75 million a year supporting 3,200 advisory panels, the House committee has reported.

Proper use of advisory services is helpful and necessary in government operations, the report makes clear. There is no complaint about the clearly helpful panels. What the committee has found disturbing is the proliferation to the point of confusion and waste. There are committees to advise advisory committees, committees without appointees, committees with appointed members which do not meet, committees with staffs which do not meet, and committees which go on forever, the report finds.

Among the other varieties, according to the report, are meaningless committees, obsolete or duplicating committees, and committees existing in name only. Perhaps it is not surprising, after the first glance, to find that the government is spending $75 million a year to support 3,200 advisory panels.

Government grows that way — and the panel proliferation, the report has noted, began during George Washington's administration.

But in light of the committee's conclusions that proliferation has now reached the point where no one really knows the extent of manpower being consumed, and that there is now way to effectively evaluate the finished product, it would seem to be time to remove some of the deadwood or otherwise effect changes for improvement.

It is recognized, as the House committee has pointed out on the favorable side, that proper use of advisory panels is a service to government and a benefit to the people.

The useful panels fill a definite need. On the other hand, there is no need for panels that merely add to the official clutter of federal government.

Housecleaning of unwanted items never has been a strong point of federal government, however.

FDR Did Not End Depression

By ELMER ROESSNER

Several readers have asked, in essence: "If Franklin D. Roosevelt could pull the country out of the Depression with monetary actions, why can't Richard M. Nixon?"

It may be time to debunk an old myth.

Roosevelt did an enormous, an amazing job in relieving the effects of the Depression. With a co-operative Congress, he created millions of jobs, he fed the hungry, provided care for many of the sick, started Social Security, strengthened labor in its dealings with employers.

But he did not cure the Depression.

The Depression was ended by Adolf Hitler.

The figures show that American economy lagged until 1939. Conditions were improving largely because we, in effect, had borrowed billions from generations yet to be born. But there was no boom resulting from the Rooseveltian policies.

How War Did It
The boom started when Hitler attacked France, Belgium, Holland, Italy and Britain.

Britain spent all of the assets she could in the United States to buy weapons. All were sold. Contracts for materiel were offered to almost any U. S. corporation that could fill them.

Employment shot up in America. Contracts and financing for them were widely available.

Bundles for Britain, the gift of 50 destroyers and Lend Lease, came later.

It is probable that, even without World War II, business would have improved. Highs and lows follow each other with mysterious regularity in economic history. But the war sped us on to the next high.

The Prices Paid
Britain, in impoverishing itself for war supplies, probably bought life. It got enough weapons to hold off the Nazi threat and it forged financial bonds with the U.S.

Clocks Set By A Gun

By BARRY JAMES

ROME (UPI) — Every day, rain or shine, five Italian army soldiers ride to the top of the Gianicolo hill overlooking Rome, with 22.25 pounds of explosive wrapped in a plastic bag.

Their mission is to fire the "noonday gun" by which Romans set their clocks and watches.

On station at 11:30 a.m., the soldiers wheel a World War One artillery piece from the stone archway where it is kept. They grease it, prime it and wait for the countdown.

At three minutes to midday, a telephone in the archway-ringing, and warrant officer Mario Brunetti reports, "The time squad is ready."

At two minutes to the hour, a powerful red light is beamed toward the gunners from a tower of the Campidoglio, the city hall.

On the hour exactly, the light goes out, Brunetti's arm falls and the gun goes off with a crash that can be heard over most of central Rome.

In offices, and shops, cafes and houses, Romans stop to put their watches right — but most of them continue to arrive half an hour late for their appointments anyway.

The city provides the time service at an annual cost of 1.4 million lire ($2,260).

Although Rome is saddle with one of the biggest municipal debts in the world, there are no plans to discontinue the service, which has become one of the Eternal City's countless traditions.

The daily cannonade was started in 1846 by Pope Pius IV, then ruler of Rome. It was discontinued at the onset of World War Two, and for 20 years, Romans had to content themselves with the aesthetically less-satisfying sound of a siren to remind them when it was time to go to lunch.

The noonday gun was revived in 1959 and an artillery piece — never fired in anger — was found in army stores for the job. The same gun, carefully greased and gleamingly polished, has been used ever since. It was built by the Skoda works in what is now Czechoslovakia for the Austro-Hungarian army in 1918, and came to Italy as war booty, having never seen use.

The only mishap over the past 11 years happened when the gun was primed with a double charge of powder by mistake. The explosion broke windows of neighboring houses.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL

Jan. 1, 1931
Greenville people greeted the coming of the New Year with joy and gladness last evening. The New Year was ushered in with the blowing or whistles and ringing of bells and two false fire alarms.

Greenville's new fire whistle has arrived and will be ready for operation tonight or early tomorrow morning. The city has been without a whistle for two or three months as a result of the old whistle being declared out of order.

A strange noise emanated from the direction of the Tar River yesterday afternoon and residents, who investigated discovered that the new whistle was being given a testing.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I was approached on the street by a long-haired hippie type who looked to be about 22 or 23. He said, "Mister, will you give me 50 cents. . . I'm hungry." Without thinking, I reached into my pocket and gave him 50 cents. Later I regretted having been such a soft touch. How would you have handled that situation? LA CIENEGA

DEAR LA: I'm glad you asked that question because only last week I was walking along when a long-haired hippie type stopped me and said, "Lady, I need 35 cents to get home."

Altho I didn't buy his story, I became somewhat flustered, but I gave him 35 cents. Now I regret having missed an opportunity to tell that youth what he needed to hear. Giving an able-bodied person money simply because he puts his hand out confirms his philosophy that it's easier to beg than work. Next time I'll say, "Nothing doing, Buddy. Get a job and earn your own bread!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a single, mature young woman who met a middle-aged bachelor. Within a month he proposed marriage. I thought we should know each other better, so I suggested we wait a while before making any commitments. He kept telling me he couldn't live without me and had to have my answer, so I told him I wanted to go away for a week (I went to my sister's, 300 miles away for my vacation) to think things over. I told him there should be no letters or phone calls because I wanted to really think clearly about it. Well, you've heard the old saying, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder?" It must have worked because I really missed him and when I got home, I told him I had decided to marry him.

Then he told me he wanted a week to think it over. He didn't leave town, but suggested we not see each other or talk on the phone. After the week was up he asked for another week! I was hurt, but gave him another week. Now he tells me he is still not sure and wants "a little more time" to make up his mind!

Do you think he is pulling my leg, or trying to get even with me? I want to marry him, but how do I get him to ask me now? PUT OFF

DEAR PUT OFF: I'm afraid you blew it when you left him for a week. You know that old saying, "Out of sight, out of mind?" Well, that's what happened. Your friend doesn't sound like he's ready for marriage yet. At least, not to you.

DEAR ABBY: My sister in law isn't speaking to me anymore and here is why: She used to call me up and invite me to her place for dinner. Then just as I was leaving, she would load me up with boxes and packages to deliver for her. [She'd say, "You have a car and it will take you only a minute to drop this package off at so and so's, and to return these library books, and take this garden to the store."]

At first I used to accommodate her, then I realized that every time she invited me to dinner she had a bunch of errands for me, so I finally got up the nerve to tell her that I would like just once for her to invite me for dinner without asking me to run errands.

Well, that's the last time she called me. Was I wrong to tell her how I feel? "HAD IT" IN JERSEY

DEAR HAD: If that's how you felt, you were right to tell her.

DEAR ABBY: Would you believe that my problem is that my family is too good to me? They are always giving me things and taking me places, even giving me money and doing without themselves, because they are certainly not rich.

Net, Patience Snares Birds

By ARTHUR GOLDE
MEXICO CITY (UPI)

Enrique Roman Juarez is a professional birdcatcher, whose weapons are patience and a net in his struggle to eke out a living from the harsh Mexican countryside.

Roman, 45, and an estimated 20 others in this capital catch and sell birds as household pets. Their merchandise ranges from the equivalent of $1.60 sparrows to $16 song birds.

"Everybody thinks we are getting rich in this business," said Roman, who sat on the curb outside the huge Merced Market. About 30 small wooden cages containing his stock were nearby.

"The reality is quite the contrary," he said. "The food costs a lot of money. Some of the birds die. Others escape. All of this is an irreparable loss."

Most of the bird-catchers sell their wares outside the four main government-run markets, which are jammed from sunrise to dusk. A few others trudge from house to house, carrying the cages on their shoulders.

The chirp of cages birds is heard in elegant neighborhoods of Mexico City and in miserable slums. Although no official statistics are available, many Mexicans believe birds are the nation's most popular pets.

"A cage with a bird in it hardly takes up any room in a house teeming with children," said one housewife. "And for many of us, it is a reminder of the country, where we or our parents were born."

To satisfy this demand, Roman spends about half the year tramping through the woods in the northern states of Queretaro, Michoacan and Nuevo Leon. He works in all weather.

"When you consider the dangers that we have to confront in those places, and the cold, the rain and the sun, the price of these birds is really reasonable," Roman said.

Roman, a short, burly man with a leathery face, said the best method "is to use a trained bird, with a sweet voice, to attract the others to the spot where I will be waiting with my net."

Sometimes the voice is too sweet. "A trained bird costs around $64 and many times they sing so well they attract birds of prey who eat them and then everything is lost," he said.

Governor's mansion, but for the U.S. Senate.

Leo Jenkins: He's the controversial president of East Carolina University. A king in the East, Jenkins is a no-no in some other parts of the State. Bob Morgan is a close friend and he wouldn't contest him, but if Morgan takes a shot at the U.S. Senate, Jenkins is a 50-50 chance at running for Governor. His biggest problems: Money and acceptance out of the East.

Lauch Faircloth: Chairman of the State Highway Commission. He's a man of some wealth and might be able to get his hands on the $1 million that it would take to campaign for Governor. Those close to him say he would like very much to be Governor and has put out his trial balloons. 1971 will tell the tale, but if he had to make a decision now, it's highly doubtful that Faircloth would run.

Roy Sowers: Head of the Department of Conservation and Development. Sowers, much like Faircloth, would like to run, but there remain too many questions to be answered at this stage. He'll press the issue in 1971, but at this stage Sowers should be listed as a doubtful candidate.

Those are the people politicians are talking about at this time as possible candidates for Governor in the Democratic primary. But many knowledgeable politicians say that during 1971, another man, a darkhorse candidate yet unmentioned, will emerge to add spice to the situation.

The New Year will likely be a vintage year for Tar Heel politics.

One of my friends told me I was "selfish" for not taking when these people wanted to give. Let me explain. I quit my job to stay home with an ailing mother for 15 years, but I did it because I wanted to, and nobody in my family owes me anything for it. I am over 50 now and I will never be able to repay my family for what they have done for me. They got together and bought me a car. Imagine! And they are constantly asking if I need anything or want anything or care to go anywhere. I am so tired of saying, "No, thank you." Abby, how can I impress upon my family that I did what I wanted to do? It wasn't a duty or a burden. It was a privilege. Just sign this "Devoted Daughter" or—"THE ONE WHO STAYED HOME"

Aerial Unit Withdrawn

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today the withdrawal of an Army aerial unit, the 54th Utility Airplane Co., resulting in a 170-man reduction of authorized U.S. troop strength in Vietnam.

Based in the Long Thanh, east of Saigon, the company flew single-engine Otters, carrying passengers and supplies mainly in the Saigon region and the Mekong Delta, since 1965. The aircraft will be returned to the United States, spokesmen said.

In Saigon, the U.S. Navy turned over two sea-going Coast Guard cutters to South Vietnam in what an American admiral called "the beginning of a new era in the continuing growth of the Vietnamese navy."

Vice Admiral Jerome H. King Jr. officiated at ceremonies transferring the two 311-foot cutters, which will be the biggest combat craft in the Vietnamese fleet.

Marked 31 Years With The Reflector

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer

Howard Mims is 62 and when he left work yesterday he carried a plaque from his friends at the Daily Reflector.

The mechanical superintendent is going into semi-retirement after 31 years at The Daily Reflector and about 42 years in the newspaper printing business.

"I'm not gone from the Reflector yet," he said in his robust voice, so familiar to all his friends. And leaving after these many years is no big deal he declares. "I came here quietly and want to leave the same way. I want to go quietly."

Mims, from Holly Springs in Wake County, will continue working on a part-time basis. But he will have more time to work in the yard around his home here. And he will have more time to spend at his cottage on Back Creek near Bath, fishing and gardening there.

A 1927 Duke University dropout, Mims says, "The excuse I gave was the depression." He went to work in a Durham hosiery mill and kept seeing classified ads for Linotype operators.

One ad, placed by a Sanford newspaper said "Linotype operator wanted. No booze hound or drugstore cowboys," as Mims recalls and he answered it . . . and filled the bill.

After Sanford came Warsaw, Carthage, five years in Durham and a like stay in New Bern before settling down with the Daily Reflector in October 1939. Things have changed since then.

There were three manually operated typesetters at the Daily Reflector then that could set

New Year Sees First Collision

Janice Lavel McGowan, 17 of 2507 Madison Cr. was charged with failing to stop for a stop signal following investigation of a 2 a.m. collision today at the intersection of U.S. 264 and Evans Street.

Greenville police identified the driver of the second car involved in the mishap as Robert Thomas Skinner, 21 of 412 Kirkland Dr. and listed damage as $430 to the McGowan vehicle and $500 to the Skinner car. No injuries were reported.

straight matter at a maximum of six lines per minute, Mims recalls.

When the newspaper moved into photo-composition and offset printing just over a year ago, seven linotypes were retired. They included three automated machines that could set 10 lines per minute each by scanning pre-punched paper tape. They were replaced by four Compugraphic type-setters which set up to about 25 lines per minute photomechanically.

Mims kept the machines running. And he'll still keep his hand in, working a regular part-time schedule and will chip in in emergency situations. The greatest advancements he has seen in his mechanical department over the years? "The move from the manual machines to TTS (teletypesetter equipment by which stories were set automatically by use of a series of coded holes punched into paper tape) and then to photocomposition."

He was always the first one at the office in the mornings. He'd turn on the machines so they would be warmed up and ready to go by the time the rest of the composing room crew came in.

"I'll have to create an emergency or something," he told a news department staffer with whom he shared his wisdom in early-morning conversation before others arrived. "I'd hate for you to be lonesome all the time in the mornings."

Trace Of Local Precipitation

A total of .4 of an inch of precipitation fell over the Greenville area yesterday, according to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station.

The high temperature for the 24 hour period ending this morning at 8 a.m. was 42 degrees which was reported at midnight. The low for that period, reported at 4 a.m., was 32 degrees. The temperature this morning at eight o'clock was recorded at 34 degrees.

Night-Blindness

Do you know what causes night-blindness?

Rhodopsin, or visual purple, is the key to night sight in humans. It is a chemical found in the retina of the eye.

An accumulation of visual purple in the eye's rod allows us to adapt to darkness. An example would be when we step into a movie theatre from a brightly lit street. We have to wait a moment for our eyes to adjust.

While we are getting used to the dark, our eyes are changing. They become about ten thousand times more sensitive to light than when adapting to brightly lit surroundings!

People who are deficient in Vitamin A produce visual purple more slowly. Consequently, their eyes usually won't adapt completely to darkness. It is then we call them "night-blind."

Pirates Hope To Start Year With Win

Sooners, Tide Play 24-24 Tie

HOUSTON (AP) — Coach Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma wouldn't mind sudden-death playoffs to eliminate tie games in collegiate football—especially in bowl games.

At least that's the way Fairbanks felt Thursday night after a 24-24 tie between his young Oklahoma Sooners and the Alabama Crimson Tide in the 12th Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

"It seems we should have kept playing," Fairbanks said, adding that "right now, I would favor sudden-death."

Both Fairbanks and Coach Bear Bryant of Alabama indicated their own decisions to go for field goals instead of touchdowns in the final minute of play may have cost their teams a victory.

With one second to play, a 34-yard field attempt by Alabama's Richard Cienny was wide. Just 58 seconds earlier, Oklahoma's Bruce Derr had kicked a 42-yarder to nail down the tie.

"I feel I cost them the game by not trying to score at the end," said Bryant, who was seeking his 200 collegiate victory, a mark attained by only five coaches.

"I tried to play safe and it was the wrong thing to do," Bryant said.

Fairbanks went for Derr's successful kick because of a chance the Sooners, by covering an onside kickoff, could still get the ball again.

"We had a fourth down and long yardage situation—fourth and 11—and I felt we might get the ball back," Fairbanks said.

But Bama covered the onside kick and moved on to set up Cienny's kick that was deflected a bit by Johnny Shelley, Sooner safety.

An Astrodome standing-room-only crowd of 53,822 witnessed the dramatic final minutes as Alabama overcame a 21-7 Oklahoma lead.

Greg Pruitt, a sophomore speedster, had given Oklahoma its 14-point lead by taking pitchouts from quarterback Jack Mildren and racing 58 and 25 yards for second-period touchdowns.

With 14 seconds left in the half, however, Bama's Scott Hunter passed five yards to David Bailey to make it 21-14 and Cienny made it 21-17 with a 20-yard field goal five plays after the Tide covered an Oklahoma fumble on the second-half kickoff.

Then, with 7:36 remaining in the final period, Alabama fooled the Oklahoma defense completely when it ended a 75-yard surge by having Johnny Musso, a ground-gaining tailback who netted 138 yards in 27 carries, take a handoff and pass 25 yards to Hunter for a touchdown that gave the Tide a 24-21 lead.

Bryant said the play had been added to the game plan before the team left Tuscaloosa. He did not elaborate—but Clyde Butler, an offensive tackle, said the play had a special name that was unprintable.

A first period 7-7 tie had resulted from a four-yard pass from Hunter to Randy Moore and a two-yard touchdown run by Joe Willie, another of the seven sophomores in Oklahoma's starting offensive unit.

Hunter completed 13 of 26 passes for 174 yards as the Crimson Tide rolled up a total offense of 428 yards. Oklahoma, with sophomore Leon Crosswhite gaining 111 yards in 20 carries and Pruitt adding 97 in eight plays, finished with a 415 total.

Pruitt took the game's outstanding-back award while Jeff Rouzie, a Bama linebacker, was named the top lineman.

Big Orange Machine Of North Pitt Has Experience, Height

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

BETHEL — During the past baseball season, Cincinnati had its Big Red Machine that ran over everything in its path.

This winter, newly consolidated North Pitt High School has its "Big Orange Machine," and it is running over everything in its path.

Coach Cobby Deans, who ruled the roost in the Pitt County Conference last year with his Bethel girls, has a lot to draw from this year, including a number of girls who started on the teams at three different schools last year.

These returning veterans include Susan James, Debbie Purvis, Gail Michaels and Maggie Edwards. Lettermen back include Bernadine Jordan, Minnie Hollis, Phyllis Jenkins and Jean Council.

With all this experience, the Pant-HERS, as they like to be called, have put together a seemingly invincible team.

Currently Misses Hollis and Purvis are holding the forward positions, while James and Edwards are at rover. Miss Michaels is at guard, along with newcomer Sharron Sharpe.

"Overall, we have a good nucleus for experience," Deans said. "We are fairly good in depth, and we have six freshmen who are going to be a big help in the future. They are averaging getting in about a quarter of each game, and this helps. They're coming along fine."

And Deans looks happy when he notes that there are only three seniors on the team, Misses Edwards, Purvis and Sharpe. "We have real good height, too," Deans points out. "We've done a real good job on the boards so far." One reason for this is that three of the girls on the team, Sharpe, Hollis and freshman Joy James stand 6-0 or better. (Miss James is 6-1) "Susan James isn't six feet tall, but she can rebound with the best of them," he added.

Defense, however, has been sporadic. "We look good in one game, then bad in another. We need to get consistent in this. We have the tools, it's just a matter of making ourselves play it," he said.

The Pant-HERS shooting ability is "good," according to the coach. They can go with Purvis and Edwards outside, or get the ball into Hollis and James on the inside. "Anyone can hit, and we get good scoring from them all."

The Pant-HERS, however, don't do a lot of running. "Our forwards are fairly slow, but Edwards is real fast and can go with the ball," Deans said.

Main reserve strength lies in Jordan at guard, Wanda Whichard and Deborah Pollard at forward and Joy James at rover.

Currently, North Pitt is posting a 9-0 record. "If we continue to improve," Deans said, "I think we stand a good chance of getting into the district tournament."

"The greatest thing about this team is that they have gotten down to working together right away as a team. They have done well in getting to be a team, and they are already where I hoped they'd be by the end of the year," Deans said.

The Big Orange Machine hasn't got it made by any means, Deans feels. "We have a lot of respect for Robersonville, and we have to play a strong South Lenoir team, too," he said. "They'll both be real tests for us."

But meanwhile, the Big Orange Machine rolls along, grinding up opponents who stumble into its path.

Carr's Tosses Give Irish Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The best things in life are free. Ask the Notre Dame basketball team.

With five seconds left in overtime, Austin Carr cashed in two free throws to lift the Irish to a nerve-wracking 85-83 victory over Santa Clara Thursday night.

The free-wheeling Carr motorized through the Broncos for 43 points, surpassing his 37.5 average this season for 15th-ranked Notre Dame.

The teams were tied 78-78 at the end of regulation time and did little shooting in the overtime stanza.

With Notre Dame leading 82-81, Jackie Meehan was fouled, and made a shot to give the Irish a two-point lead. The Broncos then turned over the ball and Carr made his winning shots after being fouled by the Broncos' Tom Lunceford.

Mike Stewart, Santa Clara's leading scorer with 28 points, then scored the final points of

Santa Clara, which has played all but one of its nine games this year on the road, skidded to a 1-8 record. Notre Dame now is 5-2.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Florida State, with its two top rebounders sitting on the bench much of the second half, held off Arizona 95-85 on a holiday-abbreviated schedule.

The Seminoles, 7-2, lost 6-foot-11 Reggie Royals on fouls with 7:16 left, then Vernell Elzy departed with 4:33 remaining with a leg injury.

But Florida State had enough firepower left behind sophomore whiz Ron King, who scored 26 points. Walt McKinney threw in 28 for Arizona, 6-5.

Memphis State rode 18-point performances by James Douglas and Don Holcomb to an 83-76 victory over host Nevada-Las Vegas. The triumph boosted Memphis' record to a 8-2 while NLV, paced by Robert Riley's 18 points, dropped to 7-3.

Losing In NBA? Play Cleveland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It isn't hard to break a losing streak in the National Basketball Association.

Just play the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The Atlanta Hawks followed the pattern of several other teams Thursday by beating the hapless expansionists 119-85 to snap a five-game spin.

Rookie Pete Maravich, continuing his hot hand, fired in 32 points as the Hawks broke into a 31-16 first-quarter lead and never were threatened.

The San Francisco Warriors beat the Boston Celtics 144-106 in the day's only other NBA game.

In the American Basketball Association, the Virginia Squires pasted the Carolina Cougars 127-117.

With Maravich spearheading the Atlanta offense, the Hawks' starters sprinted to a 97-70 lead with seven minutes left before the subs mopped up.

Maravich scored 15 points in each of the first and third quarters. Lou Hudson and Walt Hazard added 18 points apiece for Atlanta.

Center Walt Wesley scored 23 points for the Cavaliers, who lost their 39th game in 44.

Nate Thurmond and Jeff Mullins scored 34 points apiece for San Francisco, who grabbed an early lead and held off several Boston rallies.

The Celtics made their last comeback try, cutting a 12-point lead to 87-78 midway in the third period. But Thurmond pumped in a pair of outside shots and it was never close again.

Jo Jo White led Boston with 25 points.

Charlie Scott scored 26 points and George Carter added 21 for Virginia, which opened fast and bolted to a 38-27 first-quarter lead. The Squires had the Cougars by as much as 20 points in the second period.

Larry Miller led Carolina with 24.

Air Force To Test Tennessee

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Air Force tries to pass the test of Tennessee's jet-quick secondary in the Sugar Bowl football game today.

It's strength against strength in this 37th annual classic, expected to attract 82,000 fans for the noon, CST, kickoff.

Bob Parker, college football's fourth leading passer, leads the Air Force, 9-2, against interception-happy Volunteers, the No. 4-ranked team in the country.

Parker's chief accomplice is Ernie Jennings, who led the nation with 1,299 yards in receptions and 17 touchdowns. Brian Bream adds the running punch for the Falcons. He smashed out 1,276 yards overland and scored 20 TDs this season, both school records.

Tennessee, 10-1, made a habit of intercepting passes with 36. But the Vols will have to deal with a Falcon air assault that averaged 255 yards a game behind the bomb-throwing Parker.

The Parker arm and Bream feet added up to a total average output of 424 yards a contest while the quick-strike Falcons averaged better than 32 points.

The Vols, meanwhile, yielded less than 10 points and held their opponents to a total 266 yards a game.

Quarterback Bobby Scott steers the offense and gets help from line-crasher Curt Watson, a tough, broad-shouldered fullback.

Tennessee is 7-10 in bowl competition after losing three straight. Air Force has two defeats and a tie to show for its three bowl appearances.

Tim McCarver of the Phillies is the only catcher ever to lead the National League in three-base hits: He had 13, with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1966.

Bones' Night Leads To Loss

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Thursday was Bones McKinney Day at Raleigh, but the coach of the Carolina Cougars couldn't cap his honors with a victory.

The Virginia Squires knocked the Cougars back into the cellar of the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division with a 127-117 win. The victory increased Virginia's lead in the division to 3½ games over Kentucky. Carolina trails Pittsburgh by five percentage points.

McKinney, who coached both pros and collegians before taking the Cougars' helm 1½ years ago, received the North Carolina Distinguished Service award from Gov. Bob Scott at a luncheon. That night, his team dropped its first game in the last four with star guard Bob Verga on the bench with a cold. Larry Miller, former University of North Carolina all-American, topped Carolina scoring with 24 points.

Laver Seeking 3rd Grand Slam

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis champion Rod Laver doesn't mind making money but he likes the recognition more.

"You don't have to be poor to be a hungry player," says the lefthanded wizard. "I like the idea of a third Grand Slam and if the money goes along with it, that's tremendous."

Laver, who won more than $200,000 last year in limited play, gets off on his quest for a third Grand Slam Saturday against Ken Rosewall in the opening match of the $210,000 Tennis Champions Classic.

Laver won the four major tournaments—French, Australian, Wimbledon and U.S. Open—in 1962 and 1968.

His five-set match against Rosewall Saturday at Madison Square Garden is a $10,000 winner-take-all affair that starts the 12-match tour through New York; Rochester, N.Y.; Detroit; Philadelphia and Boston.

A player could capture

$170,000 by winning all 12 matches in the two-loss-and-out tour.

Laver says he never gave a thought to the money he won last year. But he is thinking about the unprecedented third slam.

"In 1970, I didn't enter either the Australian or French championships," he said. "For the new year, I have entered not only all of the major tournaments, but will be playing in the Philadelphia Tennis Festival in February and the Grand Prix."

Joining Laver on the tour are Tony Roche and John Newcombe, who meet in an exhibition match Saturday. Pancho Gonzalez, Arthur Ashe, Roy Emerson, Roger Taylor and Tom Okker.

East Carolina University's basketball Pirates, nursing their injured pride and a 3-4 overall record, hit the road again tomorrow night to meet the Thundering Herd of Marshall University. The game will be played in Huntington, W. Va.

And Coach Tom Quinn will be hoping that the Christmas Holiday break has helped his Bucs to solve some of their problems. They face a tough test, however, in the Herd, which holds a 7-1 record for the season.

The Bucs come into the game on a two-game losing jag, and having lost four straight on the road, where they haven't won this year. Their last two outings were losses to St. Francis and Roanoke, by four and five points respectively.

In both games, however, they turned on fine rallies in the second half after being far down. They never could grab the lead from their opponents, however, who hung on to take the wins.

Two reasons for the losses appears to be the high number of turnovers the Bucs have suffered, and the amount of fouls they have committed. In the last two games, they seemed to solve the fouling problem, but a stiff zone defense gave them even more trouble.

Forced to shoot from the outside the Bucs had troubles. While Mike Henrich leads the team in shooting with a 58.5 per cent mark, only one other man averaging 10 or more is hitting a respectable percentage, Jim Gregory. The senior big man has hit 53.3 per cent of his shots and is the team's leading scorer at 16.3 points per game.

Returning veteran Jim Fairley, who hit a fine percentage last year, is getting only 41.4 per cent this year, while freshman Al Faber is hitting at a 39.5 per cent clip.

Only once, however, have the Bucs been outbounded, as they have averaged picking up 56.1 per cent of the loose balls. Faber is the leading boardman with 10.7 per game, with Fairley, 9.4 and Gregory, 8.9, close behind.

In the Marshall team, the Bucs face a club that has lost only once, and is unbeaten at home in five games. Among their victims are St. Peter's, another Pirate foe, Iowa State and Mississippi. The lone loss was a 76-75 loss to LaSalle, the team that won the Charlotte Invitational earlier this week.

Leading the Herd is Russell Lee, who has a 26.3 points per game average, cracking 41 against Mississippi. He also hit 39 against Morehead and 28 against St. Peters.

Backing him up are Blaine Henry with a 15.4 average, Mike D'Antoni at 13.4, Dave Smith 12.4, Bob DePathy, 10.6, and Tyrone Collins, 10.2, to have six men in double figures.

The leading rebounder is also Lee, with a 14.8 average, while Smith has gotten 14.0 per game. Marshall has averaged outbounding its opponents by 11 per game. Lee is 6-5, while Smith is 6-6½. The Bucs will have the Herd in height, but the battle for the boards appears to be a key contest.

Following the Marshall contest, the Bucs remain on the road for two more games before returning home. They face Richmond on Tuesday and VMI on next Saturday before meeting Old Dominion in Greenville on January 13.

Texas End To Miss Big Game

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — It was an emotional almost gala time, the eve of the Cotton Bowl rematch between Texas and Notre Dame. But Texas' "miracle maker" was distressed.

He would watch from the sidelines today as the defending national champion Longhorns put their No. 1 ranking and 30-game winning streak on the line.

"Two more weeks," said Cotton Speyrer, "and I would be perfectly sound ... The doctor made the decision ... and it was a tremendous let down."

It was here last October, against Oklahoma, that Speyrer, a senior split end from Port Arthur, Tex., suffered a broken left arm that somehow didn't heal in time.

He skipped the Texas Hall of Fame luncheon, a prelude to the game, and was alone in his hotel room Thursday when a writer came by. Admittedly, he was simply "down in the dumps."

"After we won the Arkansas game, I really felt like I was going to play," said the lean, lithe Speyrer. "I built up all my hopes ..."

Now he could do little but talk, and even that somewhat reluctantly.

He could recall how a year ago today he caught a desperation fourth-down pass that took Texas to the Notre Dame goal and ultimately to a 21-17 triumph.

He could reminisce also about how, against UCLA this season, he caught a 45-yard touchdown pass from Eddie Phillips with 12 seconds to play that provided a 20-17 Longhorn victory.

Some feel the touchdown pass against UCLA not only kept intact a winning streak, but instilled self-confidence in Phillips and brought Texas to the threshold of a second national title.

"Everybody had a hand in the play that won it. Everybody talks about my catch and Phillips' pass, but the line blocked and every player did his job."

He attributed Texas' success to its lure as a mecca for premier athletes, to Head Coach Darrell Royal. Royal's coaching staff, "a few miracles once in awhile" and an "attitude that somehow we're going to win."

Speyrer, who is looking forward to a pro career, added that a second national crown for Texas would lift him up from the dumps.

"There's not substitute for winning football games, and no comparison between being an individual star or being associated with a winner," he said.

Football 1970: A Glance Back At The Year Of The Longhorns

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Darrell Royal's unbeaten Texas Longhorns, operating from an exciting pass-run option setup called the Wishbone-T formation, averaged 41.2 points a game to become the nation's No. 1 college football team for the second straight year.

On the way to their third straight Southwest Conference title and the seventh for their coach, the Orange and White from Austin ran their winning streak to 30 straight, highest at the moment.

Unbeaten Ohio State was ranked second in The Associated Press regular season poll. The Buckeyes gave Woody Hayes, the robust coach, who often wears thermal underwear beneath rolled up shirt sleeves, his fifth Big Ten championship in 20 seasons at Columbus. His seniors played in 28 games, winning all but one.

It was the year of the quarterback and fitting that two of the top passers, Jim Plunkett of Stanford and Joe Theismann of Notre Dame, should finish 1-2 for the Heisman Award, a trophy recognizing the nation's outstanding senior gridman.

Though Coach John Ralston's Indians dropped three of 11 games, the number permitted in 1970 because of economic conditions, Plunkett led the Cardinal and White to the Pacific Eight championship and its first Rose Bowl appearance since 1952.

Plunkett, the kind of a drop back passer in demand by pro teams, set a total offense record of 7,887 yards for three years. In 1970 he racked up 2,898 yards. He accounted for 21 touchdowns, all but three of them via the airways.

Other outstanding quarterbacks were Bob Parker of Air Force, Rex Kern of Ohio State, Archie Manning of Mississippi, Pat Sullivan of Auburn, Brian Spe of San Diego State, Dan Fouts of Oregon, John Reeves of Florida, Dennis Dummitt of UCLA, Leo Hart of Duke, Indian Sonny Sikkler of Washington and a few others.

Sikkler, a sophomore, will bear watching the next two seasons for he led the nation in averaging 18.6 completions a game for a team with a 6-4 record.

Ed Marinaro, a Cornell junior, paced the rushers, averaging 158.3 yards a game while rushing for 12 of 14 TDs. Halfback Brian Bream of Air Force paced the scorers with 120 points, getting 19 of his 20 TDs via the rush. North Carolina's Don McCauley also scored 19 TDs rushing and two more on pass catches. He had the nation's top rushing figure, 1720 yards.

Led by passer-runner Eddie Phillips, fullback Steve (Woo Woo) Worster and halfback Jim (Beetle) Bertelson, a Wisconsin junior, Texas had trouble only with UCLA (20-17), a Pacific Eight team with a 6-4 record. Royal's Longhorns were the best drilled team in the nation, many coaches felt.

Their No. 1 ranking will be put on the line in the Cotton Bowl against No. 6 rated Notre Dame, beaten only by Southern Cal (38-28) in the final for the Irish.

The bowls this time take on added significance because The AP again will take a post-bowl poll. Eight of the top 12 rated teams are in major bowls.

No. 3 rated Tennessee, turned back only by Auburn (36-23) early in the fall, plays Ben Martin's Air Force (9-2 and rated 11th) in the Sugar Bowl; No. 2 Ohio State visits Stanford (8-3) in the Rose Bowl and No. 4 LSU plays unbeaten but tied Nebraska, No. 3, in the Orange Bowl.

Besides Texas, Ohio State and Nebraska other major unbeaten were Dartmouth, the Ivy League champions, Arizona State and Toledo with 22 straight and two unbeaten campaigns in succession under Coach Frank Lauterbur.

In pro football the Kansas City Chiefs of the AFL upset the NFL Minnesota Vikings 23-7 in the January Super Bowl game in New Orleans. As December rolled around 18 of the 26 teams, all under the NFL, were still possibilities for the Jan. 17 Super Bowl to be played in Miami.

The NFL finally merged with the AFL and the Pros had six divisions. With two games left, only the Vikings, with a 10-2 record, had clinched a division title.

While Joe Namath and O. J. Simpson missed a good part of the season with injuries it remained for a 43-year-old quarterback, George Blanda, to be the big man in a number of games for the Oakland Raiders. His passing and field goal kicking gave Oakland the American Conference Western Division honors.

Rosewell, Court Top Tennis Year

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The revolutionary sudden-death scoring system, a million-dollar war of check books and a pair of Australians, Ken Rosewell and Margaret Smith Court, made 1970 the most historic of tennis seasons.

Rosewell, 35, a Sydney stylist believed well beyond his peak, became the oldest player in 41 years to win the American men's championship at Forest Hills, N.Y., and he went on to be named "Player of the Year."

Mrs. Court, the strapping wife of a Perth yachtman, dominated the women's scene when she became the first player since the late Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly in 1953 to complete the Grand Slam. She won the Australian, French, Wimbledon and U.S. titles in the second such sweep in history.

The United States retained the Davis Cup—a competition watered down by the wholesale departure of top players to pro ranks—amid predictions that the Cup probably would go open before another year.

The individual hero of the Davis Cup Challenge Round in Cleveland was a scrappy, bandy-legged Texan named Cliff Richey, who had been shunted aside in previous years. Richey won both of his singles matches and was voted the outstanding player as the Americans swept past West Germany 5-0.

Playing on the U.S. team for the last time—granting the Davis Cup remained amateur—were Arthur Ashe, Jr., Stan Smith and Bobby Lutz, who shortly afterward signed professional contracts with Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis.

Tour, headquartered in Dallas. Hunt plans a series of 20 tournaments with a gross purse of $1 million. Picking up the challenge, the various national associations, fearing their control of the game was endangered, announced their own tournament list, many of them on conflicting dates; with a $1.5 million bag of gold.

Wimbledon sent a delegation to Dallas to make peace with Hunt. Wimbledon wanted assurance that it would continue to get the world's top players.

The other national tennis associations—the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association included—threatened to be more obstinate. They gave hints they would refuse the pros' demands for appearance money and partial control of the tournaments.

A tennis war faced players, promoters and fans going into the new season. Hunt's pros, including all the top players, were threatening to go their own way. The International Lawn Tennis Federation was being pressured to relax its stringent rules against the pros, give them a greater voice in tennis operations and make the Davis Cup available to the pros.

The men pros boycotted the first two of the four major events—the Australian and French Championships—but agreed to play at Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

Ashe swept through the weakened Australian field and became the first American since Alex Olmedo in 1959—and the fourth ever—to take the Australian men's crown. Jan Kodes won the French.

Nebraska Ranks As Slim Favorite To Down LSU In Orange Bowl

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Nebraska is the pick by four to reestablish Big Eight muscle in the Orange Bowl tonight after cornhusker conference cousins from Kansas and Missouri scored back-to-back failures.

Coach Bob Devaney's third-ranked troops meet Southeastern Conference king Louisiana State at 8 o'clock with a record crowd of 80,000 anticipated.

"Sure, we'd like to do good things for the Big Eight Conference," said Devaney, "but we're even more interested with doing something nice for Nebraska."

Nebraska, 10-0-1, boasts a high-rolling offense that averaged 37 points a game. LSU's slow-to-give defense was dented for only nine points a game.

The Big Eight has dominated the Orange Bowl picture since 1954. For 11 years, the conference champ was obligated by contract to appear in the post-season event and — even after the pact ended in 1965 — the midwesterners kept coming.

Big Eight outfits have been in 16 of the last 18 Orange Bowl games. They had a combined 8-5 record before Kansas dropped a 15-14 sizzler to Penn State in 1969 and Missouri was bumped off 10-7 by the same Nittany Lions last Jan. 1.

"I think our conference speaks for itself with football talent," said Devaney. "We're not saying we're better than anybody else, but I feel we're pretty equal to the Southeastern, Big Ten, Pacific Eight, Southwest, etc."

LSU, 9-2, had to win its final two regular season games under the contractual gun to earn the Orange Bowl bid. The Tigers agreed that if they whipped both Tulane and Mississippi that the Miami bid was theirs.

LSU produced admirably, belting Liberty Bowl winner Tulane 26-14 and smothering Gator Bowl entry Ole Miss 61-17. Both coaches feel — depending what happens in daytime football dramas — they could have a shot at the No. 1 ranking in the final Associated Press poll.

Before any serious No. 1 talk began, Ohio State would have had to fall to Jim Plunkett's Stanford in the Rose Bowl and Notre Dame must have upset top-ranked Texas.

Notre Dame May Give OSU Spark Scores

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Notre Dame could have provided that extra emotional lift Woody Hayes was looking for today before he sent second-ranked Ohio State against Stanford in the Rose Bowl.

"It's tougher getting seniors up for a game, but once you get them there they stay there," Hayes said before taking his Buckeyes to a monastery in the nearby mountains Thursday night.

Notre Dame might have offered that spark if the Irish upset top-ranked Texas in the Cotton Bowl.

Ohio State likely knew the Texas-Notre Dame outcome before it took on 11-point underdog Stanford before 102,000 and a national television NBC audience of millions.

A Texas loss, coupled with an Ohio State victory, could vault the Buckeyes to the top in the final Associated Press ratings to be conducted after the bowl results this weekend.

Such happenings could bring the Big Ten champions their second national championship in the last three seasons and the fourth under Woody Hayes in 20 years.

Britain Ignored German General 1940 Peace Plan

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The British government ignored a peace offer made by top German generals who wanted to oust Hitler in 1940, hitherto secret government papers revealed today.

Britain's war cabinet spurned the offer because it thought it was a trick, according to documents made public after 30 years of secrecy imposed by British law.

As part of the deal, the papers said, the generals offered Britain peace if it would join Germany in "dealing with Russia."

The generals enlisted Pope Pius XII as a secret go-between to let the British know of the proposals. A message was passed through the Pope to Britain's minister at the Vatican and then to the British government January 1940.

But the war cabinet, suspecting a trick, decided not to pursue the overture.

The generals also offered to restore freedom to Poland and Czechoslovakia if Britain would join with them against the Soviet Union. They insisted on holding on to Austria, however.

They warned if their offer was rejected, a "very bitter and quite unscrupulous" offensive would be launched, the records said.

The British government insisted that if the generals were serious they should first oust Hitler and then send out new peace feelers, tactics with which the Pope agreed. But there was no further communication from the German side.

The records also revealed several other early peace initiatives, one of which led to Winston Churchill's writing a furious memo about "the ignominious king of Sweden."

In August 1940, King Gustav of Sweden wrote to King George VI of Britain to mediate with Hitler in secret. King George rejected the offer, and Churchill wrote to the British ambassador in Stockholm:

"I might add that the intrusion of the ignominious king of Sweden as a peacemaker after his desertion of Finland and Norway is singularly distasteful."

The records show that in December 1939, Britain and France agreed to send regular troops in the guise of volunteers to help Finland in its war against Russia. But the real purpose of the force was to seize Swedish iron ore deposits, denying vital supplies to the Germans, the documents say.

Records released Thursday also showed that British diplomats feared President Franklin D. Roosevelt sought peace with the Axis in 1940 to get a Democrat re-elected to the White House. The controversy arose over a tour of Axis capitals by then U.S. Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles. Roosevelt dispatched Welles to sound out the possibilities of halting World War II, which the United States had not yet entered.

Sir Robert Vansittart, the chief diplomatic adviser to the British government at the time, said in a memorandum to the Foreign Office: "It is now pretty clear . . . that President Roosevelt is ready to play a dirty trick on the world and risk the ultimate destruction of the Western democracies in order to secure the re-election of a Democratic candidate in the United States."

Vansittart said Welles—because of his peace probe—"emerges more and more clearly as an international danger." "His chief crime towards common sense and humanity is that he has now gone so far as Hitler," the memorandum said. "That surely is lunacy for which both he and his chief, President Roosevelt, deserve the highest condemnation . . ." The documents show that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told his Cabinet he believed Roosevelt "would make some attempt to bring the war to an end, even if that attempt should be embarrassing to us," and that his remarks and a toned-down version of Vansittart's memorandum were sent to the president.

Other papers showed the British government was incensed by U.S. Ambassador Joseph P.

Kennedy's predictions that Britain could not win the war against Germany, and that he favored appeasing Hitler even after the war broke out in September 1939.

The records also show the British considered the appointment of Kennedy a Roosevelt bid to court the vote of Irish-Americans, and that they wanted him replaced. Kennedy took up his post in 1938 and was replaced in 1940 by John G. Winant.

Excise Taxes Are Extended

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill continuing telephone and new car excise taxes was signed by President Nixon a few hours before the now venerable emergency measures were set to expire.

Nixon's signature on other legislation Thursday allows $9.7 billion for further work on the interstate highway system, $2.5 billion for foreign aid, and sets Jan. 1, 1975, as a target date for reducing new car exhaust emissions by 90 per cent.

Though the expiration time for the taxes was midnight, there was no real chance Americans would be relieved of the levies originally passed during World War II.

However, the taxes will be reduced by 1 per cent each year after running two years at their present rates: 10 per cent on telephone calls, 7 per cent on new cars.

The excise tax extensions are worth $4 billion to the Treasury. The same bill also speeds up collection of estate taxes, making them due within nine months of death instead of 15 months. This represents a one-time revenue pickup of another $1.5 billion.

Besides its auto exhaust feature, the clean air bill gives government the right to inspect private property for violation of pollution laws, subpoena power for records of suspected polluters, and allows requiring factories to install and pay for pollution monitors.

Another bill signed by Nixon requires the breakup of some corporate combinations of banks with subsidiaries doing nonbanking business.

Affected are holding companies with only a single bank. Until now, only companies with more than one bank were not allowed to enter into nonbanking business. Under the new measure, the Federal Reserve Board decides whether a bank should be separated from other subsidiaries.

The highway bill carries construction of the interstate system through 1976. It includes $1.1 billion for primary and secondary roads and some funding for exclusive express bus lanes on freeways.

The foreign aid money bill includes $250 million for surplus arms sales abroad. Dropped or diluted were severe Senate restrictions on the sales measure, plus the now obsolete Cooper-Church amendment on U.S. actions in Cambodia that had delayed the bill since July.

Club Provided Yuletide Cheer

WINTERVILLE — The Sherrells Social Club provided Christmas cheer for the 31 patients at the East Side Rest Home here.

Individual gifts were presented to each patient by Club members, Mrs. Robertha Brown and Miss Shirley Daniels. The Sherrells is a social organization of young ladies dedicated to improving the community.

LONGER LIFE
LONDON (AP) — Life expectancy in Britain has increased to about 69 and 75 years for men and women respectively compared to 48 and 52 years at the beginning of the century, a government report said.

LESS AT HOME
LONDON (AP) — Only about one in seven births now take place at home in Britain, less than half the proportion in 1961, a government survey showed.

Worry Clinics Intimidated By 'Code Of Herd'

Debby was greatly embarrassed by what she termed "smooching" in public. Her behavior reveals the usual child's desire to adopt the social etiquette of the herd. Children even try to coerce us parents by "Everybody is doing it." And college boys often intimidate coeds into illicit behavior by the same social club! Girls, beware! Eagles don't flock!

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Case P-532: Debby Ross, aged nine, is one of my granddaughters. Her daddy is president of the Home Owners Association at Woodridge, Illinois, which is a suburb of Chicago. Debby accompanied him as he was calling on some of the members of the association.

AS THEY WERE leaving one of the homes, her daddy admired Debby's newly bobbed hair and curls; so she stooped down and kissed her.

She was offended! And when they got into their car, Debby turned to her daddy and said:

"You embarrassed me!"

"DON'T YOU know this is a new generation?"

"And people don't smooch in public like that!"

Debby apparently is not as familiar with the modern generation as she would have her daddy believe!

For a lot of "smooching" does go on in public, not just by the hippies but also by some of their elders.

SO I CITE this case to show you how readily children become socially conscious and thus try to adopt the fads and fashions of their own age bracket.

"Everybody rides a bike," is thus the positive statement of kiddies whose parents protest the danger of owning a bicycle.

"Everybody gets to stay up to watch television until 10 o'clock, even on school nights," they will firmly exclaim, as they hope to browbeat their parents by social pressure.

Tourists Moving In On Island Of Bali

By JOSEPH GALLOWAY
DENPASAR, Bali (UPI)—Bali, the Island of the Gods, is becoming Bali, the Island of the Tourists.

For more than half a century a small stream of discerning visitors, students, artists and refugees from modern life have made their way to this small island east of Java in Indonesia.

They stayed a month, a year or, in some cases, 20 years. Most left with a deep-seated nostalgia for this lush land that Indian Prime Minister Nehru called "the Morning of the World."

Late last year the Indonesian government completed a new jet-capable landing strip seven miles outside this provincial capital, and the boom was on. Experts estimated that 30,000 tourists visited Bali during 1969. They say the 1970 figure will probably exceed 6,000. And they project 500,000 visitors annually in five years.

Drams of Bali Hai
Most of the visitors are drawn to Bali by dreams of Bali Hai, the imaginary island of the musical South Pacific. They come for South Sea breezes, coconut rum drinks, rope hammocks, deserted white beaches and topless beauties.

Few of these dreams exist for those who pause long enough to venture away from the side of their hotel swimming pool Bali offers attractions whose real splendor overwhelms the daydreams.

There is the ringing, rippling music of a land where every small neighborhood maintains a full 35-man gamelan orchestra which practices almost nightly to meet the exacting standards of local audiences.

There are the endless festivals decreed by Hindu-Balinese religion. Every neighborhood boasts a temple, and every temple must be consecrated twice each year with a three-day festival and carnival.

The festivals feature prayers, gambling, cock fights, dancing, music, roast pigs and plenty of rice wine and fiery palm booze.

For those who come for sand and sea-and sunshine there are beaches where blue Indian

South continued with the king of diamonds and then gave East his trick in that suit. A spade return at this point would still have defeated the contract, for it breaks a vital communications link between the declarer's hand and the dummy. East continued his partner's futile attack, however, by returning the eight of hearts.

South ruffed in his hand, cashed three clubs ending up in his hand and then proceeded to lead out his remaining trumps. As the last diamond was led, West was down to the king-queen of spades and the ace of hearts, while the dummy retained the ace-jack of spades and the jack of hearts. If West gave up a spade, North would take the last two tricks in that suit. The discard of the ace of hearts is equally fatal, for it establishes the dummy's jack as the fulfilling trick.

South opened the bidding with one club and West over-called modestly with one spade though he had ample values to make a takeout double. North made a free bid of one-no trump. South's jump to three diamonds is forcing, after partner's free bid. West now showed his second suit which temporarily relieved North of the obligation to bid.

Conservationist Moved Fast To Use Basic Weapon—Ready Cash

By DUSTON HARVEY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Like the hero in a Victorian melodrama, the man from Nature Conservancy arrived just in time to stop the foreclosure of the elderly artist's studio home.

The fast action with a checkbook kept portrait painter Loren Holmwood in his Southern California beach house—and preserved 700 acres of lush timberland overlooking Lake Tahoe for the federal government.

Huey D. Johnson, who wrote the $25,000 check, describes the complicated transaction as an unusual example of the nature Conservancy's purpose—land conservation—and its chief weapon—ready cash.

200,000 Acres Saved
Johnson is western regional director of the privately supported conservation organization, which devotes its entire resources to preserving lands of outstanding scenic or ecological Ocean rollers offer excellent body and board surfing.

Beach Near Airstrip
One such beach is Kuta, located less than a mile from the new jet airstrip. Ignored by the casual tourist because it lacks first class hotel accommodation, Kuta now is the home of a shifting small tribe of long-haired young travelers who live well on 50 cents a day in paradise.

Beachfront land on Kuta has quadrupled in cost in less than two years. Stakes and fences already mark off sites for a 400-room luxury hotel which is scheduled to begin construction in January.

value.
In the past two decades, it has saved nearly 200,000 acres in 515 separate areas of 42 states.

Among its more spectacular efforts were addition of 10,000 acres of beach and tropical forest to Haleakala National Park in Hawaii, acquisition of 10,700-acre Wssaw Island off the Georgia coast for a federal wildlife sanctuary and creation of a 32,900-acre state wildlife and recreation area at Bear Tooth Ranch in Montana.

The Conservancy's hallmarks are a quiet, businesslike approach to land acquisition and a $1.1 million revolving fund which allows it to provide cash in a hurry.

Business-Like Tactics
The organization, which has 21,500 dues-paying members and 45 employees at offices in Washington, Minneapolis and San Francisco, also has a $1 million endowment fund and a $6 million line of credit from the Ford Foundation. Both are used to guarantee bank loans for land purchases.

"These don't total too much," Johnson said during an interview. "But our freedom to move quickly often allows us to put down a little money—and hold land on option; sometimes $100 or $500 will tie up land worth $1 million."

"We use the same tools as speculators," he added. "I hope we've proven the importance of management and professionalism in conservation. Emotion isn't enough when you're dealing with tough environmental problems. Too often conservationists just have no muscle."

The regional official said the nonprofit Conservancy had one advantage over land developers—it could offer tax advantages on donations.

VEPCO Denies 'Discrimination'
RICHMOND — Virginia Electric and Power Company denied today that it has discriminated against any of its employees or job applicants because of race, creed or color.

Veeco made the denial in a formal reply in U.S. District Court at Richmond in answer to a discrimination suit filed by the U.S. Department of Justice earlier this month. Veeco's reply denied all charges of discrimination alleged in the suit.

T. Justin Moore Jr., Veeco president, said, "The suit failed to establish any claim against the company upon which relief should be granted."

EARNINGS DOCTORATE AT OHIO STATE
COLUMBUS, O. — Ernest C. Marshall, of Greenville, N.C., received the doctor of philosophy degree at Ohio State University at its autumn commencement.

Max M. Fisher, Detroit industrialist and philanthropist, spoke to the graduates.

By MIKE BATTENFELD
NEW YORK (UPI)—Can a pipe smoking 56-year-old Maine-bred schoolmaster succeed in running a big city school system with more pupils than Maine has people?

If Dr. Harvey B. (for Bertram) Scribner, chancellor of New York City schools since Sept. 1, has anything to say about it, he can—and not only run it, but maybe even change it a bit.

"I think I've had a reputation of encouraging others to innovate and to do things which bring about change in the pattern of education," Scribner said in a recent interview. "And I feel that I'm going to help some of those people who want to do something and need some encouragement to do it."

Reputation As Innovator
Scribner, a genial, natty grandfather of six, came to New York as the first boss of the newly decentralized New York City system after two years as Vermont state commissioner of education. Previously he had served as superintendent of schools in Teaneck, N.J. In both positions he acquired a reputation as an outspoken innovator, a supporter of integration and, sometimes, a blunt critic of American education.

In New York, he faces the largest public school system in the world, serving more than 1.1 million pupils, taught by about 900 principals in a like number of schools.

Last year the operating budget for the system totaled $1.5 billion; the capital (construction) budget exceeded half a billion.

The student body is about 50 per cent black and Puerto Rican, bringing to school all the problems of slum living, language difficulties and learning handicaps. Parents and community leaders have been critical of the system for years, both for its bureaucratic ways and alleged educational failures. Schools are overcrowded, a few still in use were built when U.S. Grant was president, and money is scarce.

He Stresses 'Involvement'
Scribner's view of urban education is that it "is in serious crisis—if only because a large percentage of parents are maintaining that education has not been serving the needs of their youngsters."

His prescription for this is "involvement." In fact, involvement seems to have become one of the watchwords of his administration. And with the system now split into 31 local districts, Scribner feels the parent, whom he terms "the consumer," will have more of a role to play in education.

"He must be involved," Scribner said, "not only in the planning, but he must be involved in the choice of alternative systems that may be available. And the sooner we involve him, and involve him in a meaningful way, the better off our system is going to be."

"That means if you have poor youngsters being educated, poor parents must be involved in the process. We've got to take all segments of the population who are using the schools and have them involved in the process of making the decisions."

"If you're going to involve people you must involve them in a meaningful way," he repeated, adding, "and to involve them on a meaningful basis you must have centers of decisions as close to the people as possible."

Delicate Union Situation
This is where decentralization comes in—and where another problem crops up. Scribner must contend with two powerful unions—the United Federation of Teachers (UFT) and the Council of Supervisory Associations (CSA). Both firmly oppose any step to alter Civil Service rights, security or structure.

Despite the differences between Scribner and the UFT, the chancellor took his case directly to the union in December by an unprecedented address to a delegates' meeting of the UFT. In the speech, which was interrupted by applause seven times, Scribner called the classroom teacher "the most influential person" in education and he appealed to the delegates to work together with him toward needed reforms in education. It was the first time in the UFT's history that the chief administrator of the school system had spoken to a delegates' meeting.

The union antagonized a large segment of the city's minorities in the bitterly divisive 1968 citywide teachers' strike over job security in an experimental Brooklyn ghetto school district.

The aftermath of the strike was ill will between minority groups and the unions, further mistrust of the sometimes ramshackle school system—and a new decentralization of the system into 31 semiautonomous local school boards.

Dispute Over Rankings
Making this system work is one of Scribner's main tasks. Already in dispute is Scribner's designation of minority group teachers not on the Civil Service principals list as "acting principals." Scribner's purpose was to assuage community demands for black principals in schools with an almost all black and Puerto Rican enrollment. There are few black principals in the system and none now on the Civil Service list.

The CSA has taken Scribner to court on the appointments, contending they were illegal. Union officials have charged the chancellor with "destroying the merit system" and UFT

President Albert Shanker, after Scribner's third "acting appointment," threatened to take his 60,000 union members out on strike if Scribner did it again.

"I don't think there's any great difference of opinion between any union and me," Scribner said. "I think these are common ordinary differences of opinion that we have to have every day and I don't call them insurmountable or anything which present any great worry to me."

'Must Be Representation'
On Civil Service he said: "I've only spoken to that aspect of the Civil Service system which addresses itself to the selection of staff for the schools. I have some serious questions about a system which was implemented 72 years ago—that's already live a life of 72 years."

"I have some questions about this system and I think we ought to sit down and discuss it."

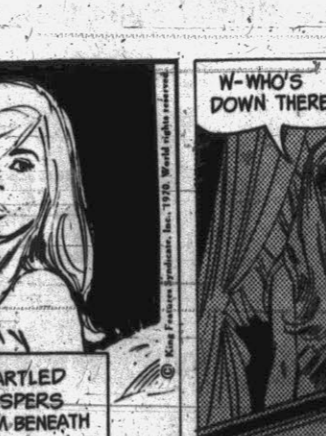

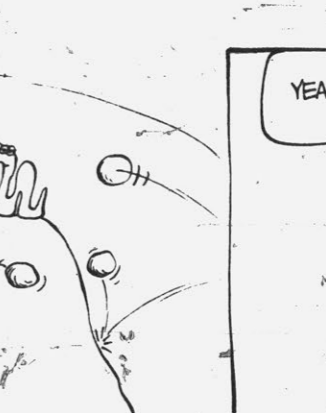

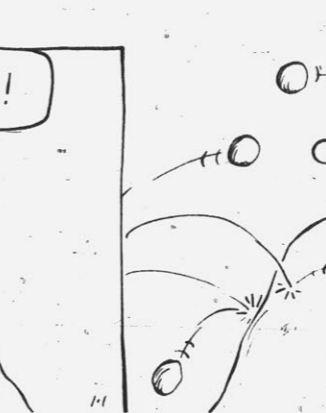

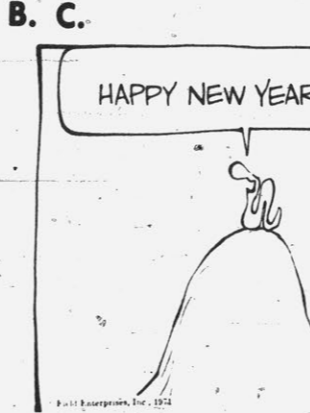

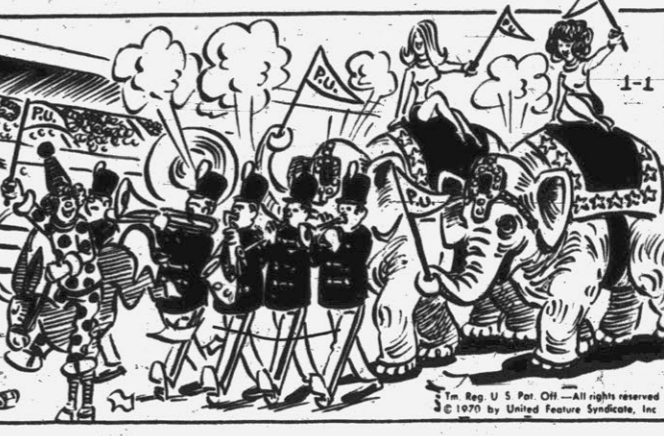

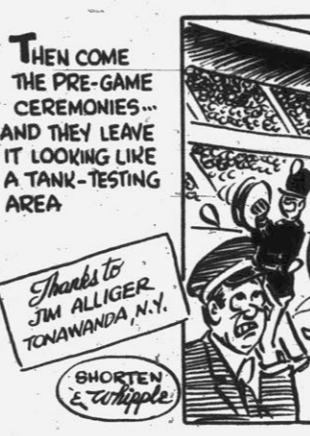

"There must be representation of the people whose children are involved in education or education will not survive."

How does the professional teaching staff fit into this involvement?

"There's no use having a discussion of the parents and the professionals as to what the parents are going to do unless you leave the options open," he replied. "This would have to be decided at that time."

Along with involvement and candor, Scribner has hope.

"I have great hope and I have a feeling that this is only the beginning of a different philosophy coming into the midst of this total situation," he said. "I think we are going to be getting together, finding some compromises and moving to follow them."

Do you believe in the tremendous capabilities of man? Christians do...

Do you, on the other hand, believe that man is quite helpless to overcome many of the forces that threaten his progress? Christians do...

How can the same religion support such contradictory views?

Well, we take for granted that a tank-load of gasoline will propel an automobile many miles. But there are cold mornings when we can't even get the engine started. What is missing?

A spark! A continuing series of sparks!

Never over-simplify the functioning of the human soul. Like the internal-combustion engine it can be powerless when denied the fire that unlocks its energy.

To be himself — to be all that God intended him to be — a man needs God.

Bring your hopes and frustrations to church next Sunday.

Pork Producers Conference Set January 7-8

The Fifteenth Annual Pork Producers Conference will be held January 7-8, at the Hilton Inn at Raleigh! The two-day program will cover topics of swine health, nutrition, breeding, economics, and planning.

Dr. J. L. Krider, Head of the Department of Animal Sciences at Purdue University, Dr. Ralph Kitchell, Dean of the Veterinary College at Iowa State University, and Dr. Charles Deyoe, Professor of Grain Science, Ohio State University will join Dr. James D. Green of the Moorman Company, and Roy Poage of Lubbock Swine Breeders as out-of-state experts participating in the program. Additional sessions will be conducted by specialists from North Carolina State University and other North Carolina leaders in the swine industry.

All pork producers are encouraged to attend this program. For more information and for registration forms, contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office.

Social Security Benefits Hike Given New Chance In 2 Months

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Key members have promised the House will have a chance within two months to raise Social Security benefits for 26 million persons and revise the welfare system.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of Ways and Means Committee gave the assurance Thursday night as the last chance for action by the expiring Congress went down the drain. Mills' assurance was seconded by the senior Republican member of the committee, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin.

Mills also hinted the Social Security increase may be larger than the 5 per cent voted by the House this year. The Senate voted a 10 per cent increase. But the Senate bill, containing 400 pages of changes in the law, reached the House only Thursday and leaders ruled out any chance of reconciling differences during the last three days of session.

The assurances of quick action by the next Congress came in an exchange between Mills and a committee member, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, who said he obtained signatures of 100 House members on a petition urging Mills to accept key provisions of the Senate bill immediately.

These were the 10 per cent increase, a minimum Social Security payment of $100 a month, increases in the amount a recipient may earn without pension reduction, and in the minimum amounts paid aged, disabled and blind welfare recipients.

But Mills said it would be impossible in the time available to get Senate agreement on a few provisions of the voluminous bill and equally impossible to tackle compromises on the whole bulky measure.

He told Vanik the bill contains many provisions Vanik himself had opposed in committee, and that over-all it is so far out of balance as to drain $1 billion a year from the Social Security trust fund.

Vanik argued that any bill passed by the House next year also would be subject to numerous Senate amendments.

Mills promised he will let "absolutely nothing at all" get in the way of prompt committee action on the measure in 1971. Only two or three days of committee study will be needed, he said, and the House could pass the bill "by Lincoln's Birthday, or very close to it." Mills has said any Social Security increase voted in 1971 would be made retroactive to Jan. 1—effective date of the legislation that failed in the present Congress.

The Nashville Brass Is Realized Dream

By NANCY SHIPLEY
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Danny Davis, a man who has done a lot in a short time, took a long time getting ready.

Davis and his men with the horns, better known as the Nashville Brass, are among Nashville's busiest and most exciting groups.

The Brass, established just over two years ago, is a leading record-seller for RCA and is growing in importance as a national performing group.

The Brass has won numerous citations, most notably Country Music Association awards as "Best Instrumental Group of the Year," two straight years.

Davis' payoff formula of mixing horns with a Nashville rhythm section was a dream of his eight years before becoming a reality. That was back in 1960.

At that time, Davis was a producer for MGM, handling such artists as Connie Francis. He approached MGM officials with his idea of country music with horns. They termed it absurd.

In the mid-1960s, he moved to RCA's New York office as a producer. He again brought out his idea. And once more, he was told flatly, "No."

Davis put the dream under his nightcap until 1968 when he moved to Nashville as executive producer for famed guitarist Chet Atkins, who heads RCA's operations in Nashville. Atkins, country music's resident genius, gave the green light and "Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass" came to life.

"The Brass has a simple sound," the smiling Bostonian says. "But it's not simple to do. The simplicity of the arrangements requires a lot of restraint."

Nashville country music added restraint.

Davis, an ace trumpet player who began life as George Nowland, moved along in good company during his formative years. He played in bands led by a number of greats — Gene Krupa, Sammy Kaye, Blue Baron.

"I was a singer for six years," he says, "but not many people remember that now."

As a matter of fact, Davis had a national hit with a single record entitled, "The Object of My Affection."

Ex-Boss Of Hughes' Nevada Empire Sues

By MORT SALTZMAN
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The ousted chief of Howard Hughes' $300 million casino and land empire in Nevada has filed a $50 million law suit against his former boss and demanded that Hughes appear personally for testimony. Robert A. Maheu said Thursday his pact for life employment was breached. The suit called for the billionaire, who has not been seen in public since the mid-1950s, to appear in the office of Maheu's attorney, Morton Galane, here Jan. 11 to give testimony.

Whether Maheu can force Hughes to appear without having him subpoenaed probably will have to be resolved by a court.

The suit also called for a jury trial but Maheu made no mention of trying to regain his job. Executives of Hughes Tool Co. fired Maheu Dec. 5 and on Dec. 19 a court upheld their contention that they had Hughes' consent to do so.

Maheu said he and Hughes agreed in 1967 that as long as Maheu lived he would receive $520,000 a year and have full control of Hughes' Nevada operations.

Maheu had said previously the agreement was oral.

Maheu's suit was described as a counterclaim to a court action by the tool company which sought a permanent injunction against Maheu acting for Hughes interests and asked unspecified damages.

The Maheu suit, asking $25 million compensatory and $25 million punitive damages, bore no relation to a possible appeal of the Dec. 19 court action, Galane said.

Ward Sutton Installed As Lodge Master

ROCKY MOUNT — Ward Sutton, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Sutton of Winterville, was installed as master of the Twin-County Masonic Lodge, Number 729 in services Monday night.

Installing Sutton as head of the lodge was James W. Brewer of Greenville, Grand Treasurer of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina.

Sutton is the first Master of the Twin-County Lodge formed seven years ago, who was not a charter member of the 135-member lodge.

A former member of Lodge 284 in Greenville, Sutton was employed at S. G. Wilkerson Funeral Home for five years. He has been with the Gay-Yost Funeral Home in Rocky Mount for six years.

Burlington Loan Firm Held Up

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A gunman and two companions took about $700 in a holdup at a Burlington loan company office Thursday.

Police said the man who actually entered the office was a snappy dresser and he and his accomplices had an expensive car.

A few minutes after the robbery, an employe of the firm returned to the office from a bank with $1,000 for the day's business.

FROSTY THE SNOW MAN

Sure enjoyed standing in the front yard of this three bedroom-brick home Wednesday, with all the large trees to protect him. And the folks had a ball Tuesday night sitting inside in the cozy den looking out the sliding glass doors while the kids played in the back yard in the snow! And the thing about it is, this is a real nice home whether its snowing, raining, sleeting or sun shining! It's located in Belvedere, priced at $24,000 and the loan may be assumed. The Louis Clark Agency, Realtor, 752-4173, Louis Clark, 756-2912, Jeanette Cox, 756-2521.

IS A HAPPY JOLLY SOUL

ready to enjoy living in this lovely, well decorated, nicely landscaped ready-to-move-in home? Living room and dining room both are carpeted, and with three bedrooms, den with fireplace, and built of brick, centrally located, and a loan to be assumed at 7 percent. We believe this is a truly happy home. Price—$26,500. The Louis Clark Agency, Realtor, 752-4173, Louis Clark, 756-2912, Jeanette Cox, 756-2521.

WITH HIS CORN COB PIPE AND BUTTON NOSE

Grandpa can hold hands with grandma by the fireplace in the living room, while daughter and husband entertain in the family room and all the kids have the big den (with fireplace) in the basement all to themselves! The space is here in this brick, four bedroom home and it's priced below $30,000. The Louis Clark Agency, Realtor, 752-4173, Louis Clark, 756-2912, Jeanette Cox, 756-2521.

AND TWO EYES MADE OUT OF COAL

is all that's left of Frosty! But this lovely brick home overlooking a lake would sure bring permanent happiness for Mom. Everything you ask for is here, with 3 bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, family room with fireplace, living room, dining room, large kitchen, double garage plus loan assumption. And available immediately! Price in the low 30's. The Louis Clark Agency, Realtor, 752-4173, Louis Clark, 756-2912, Jeanette Cox, 756-2521.
