Long Range City School Plans Presented Board

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Long range school plans for the 1970's and possible directions to take to accomplish such plans were introduced to the Greenville School Board at its meeting last night. After hearing the outline of an "immediate future" plan made by Superintendent Dr. Cleet C.

Cleetwood, members unanimously agreed to begin workshop sessions to draw up specific plans, with the first workshop scheduled for January 26, following a special meeting scheduled for that date.

A new junior high school, with the possibility of both the present junior high and a new one to encompass grades six through nine as a "middle school" concept; a new elementary school; and a new administrative complex are facilities listed by Dr. Cleetwood as ones to meet the needs of the 1970's.

"Now is the time to get into details, to spell out our plans and get them before the county commissioners," Dr. Cleetwood told the board.

Within the structure of such a plan, each elementary school would provide classes for kindergarten through grade five. Rose High School would remain the one senior high school for the entire city.

Projected costs given are $1,750,000 for a new junior high; $550,000 for a new elementary school; and $200,000 for a new administrative complex, for a total capital outlay of $2,500,000. It is expected that sale and disposal of surplus school properties would provide approximately $500,000, leaving a total of new expenditures of about $2,000,000 to be raised for the new facilities project.

Touching on methods available to consider for funding new school facilities, Dr. Cleetwood listed several and gave his opinion on the possibility of success of each method. He mentioned federal funds for construction which he says is a remote possibility; state construction funds which he feels is very unlikely; a pay-as-you-go plan in which a cash reserve through annual capital outlay budgeting would accumulate. This, he noted, would delay construction of needed facilities. He mentioned that money accumulated would be subject to inflationary pressures.

A Pitt County bond referendum, with Greenville sharing one third, Dr. Cleetwood noted, would have little chance of being accepted in the near future.

The two methods he outlined as being the most likely of success would be: an optional N. C. sales tax of one cent with funds earmarked for school facilities; or a combination of a bond referendum and an optional sales tax.

The new elementary school mentioned as part of the plan for the 1970's would be a replacement one for the Third Street Elementary School, with the likelihood of locating it north of the Tar River.

In making the report on immediate requirements, Dr.

Cleetwood summarized the accomplishments of the past five years — ones which resulted in the new wing at Rose High; the building of Aycock Junior High; two new elementary schools, Eastern and Sadie Sautter; a new wing at South Greenville; and the beginning of construction of a new Wahl-Coates School. All these, Dr. Cleetwood commented, amounted to some five million in construction outlay.

Air Power Is Aiding Laotian Ground Troops POW Raid

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Official sources revealed a bit more today about the American air war in Indochina, reporting that the United States is using rocket-firing helicopter gunships in Laos in direct support of Laotian ground troops fighting North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces.

The sources said Army, Air Force and Marine helicopter gunships have been supporting the Laotian troops for some time, and are attacking enemy troops and supplies along the Ho Chi Minh trail through south-eastern Laos.

The U.S. Command said 13 helicopters have been lost over Laos since last March 10, when it began reporting aircraft losses in Laos.

Sources said the United States is conducting one of the biggest aerial campaigns of the war in Laos, using B52 strategic bombers, tactical fighter-bombers, gunships and reconnaissance aircraft with special top secret equipment. The aim is to slow the flow of North Vietnamese troops and war materials into Laos, Cambodia, and South Vietnam, and to prevent the Communist forces from establishing sanctuaries in the three countries.

Disclosure of the helicopter activity in Laos came on the heels of an announcement Monday that U.S. helicopter gunship are attacking enemy forces in Cambodia in support of South Vietnamese forces there.

A Defense Department spokesman in Washington also reported that American helicopters are ferrying South Vietnamese troops into the battle to clear Highway 4 in southern Cambodia, but the U.S. Command said today this was not correct. The command said however, that such assistance was "within the guidelines laid down for the use of U.S. air power to prevent the re-establishment of sanctuaries in Cambodia."

Meanwhile, 6,000 South Vietnamese troops launched a major new drive on both sides of the Cambodian border about 75 miles northwest of Saigon. A spokesman said the aim of the operation in Tay Ninh Province is "secure the area where there are enemy battalions present."

U.S. helicopter gunships operating in the region on the Vietnamese side of the border killed 24 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in one action five miles from the border, spokesmen said. South Vietnamese militiamen reported killing 35 more enemy soldiers in ground combat, while suffering three militiamen killed and six wounded.

The stretch of border is the same in which U.S. and South Vietnamese troops made one of their major drives into Cambodia last spring to clean out enemy supply caches and sanctuaries. The area includes the so-called Fishhook and Dog's Face sectors just north of War Zone C.

GOVERNOR SWORN

COLUMBIA (AP) — John C. West took the oath as South Carolina's 78th governor today, pledging himself to an 11-point program that gives high priority to the elimination from state government "any vestige of discrimination."

RAID AREA — Raid by South Vietnamese paratroopers was made near Cambodian town of Mimot, where 20 American prisoners were believed held. Vietnamese sources said today. Suspected prisoner of war camp was found empty, but 30 enemy soldiers were reported captured. Mimot is 75 miles northwest of Saigon and about five miles inside Cambodia. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Russell Weaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors reported today the condition of Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., 73, worsened during the night. His condition is now critical, they said.

Russell, dean and president pro tempore of the Senate, encountered breathing difficulties during the night and doctors were called to his bedside in Walter Reed Army Hospital to administer oxygen.

An aide of the senator said his vital signs were weakening. Russell has been in the hospital since Dec. 8 for treatment of a respiratory ailment. He has suffered for years with emphysema which complicates his respiratory difficulties.

Doctors thought they had cleared the infection in his lower respiratory tract with antibiotics but X-ray pictures two weeks ago showed the infection had returned. Doctors turned to stronger antibiotics and said a few days ago it appeared the infection was clearing.

Russell, who also is chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, has weakened considerably in the last few days, his doctors said.

Russell, first elected to the Senate in 1933, has spent more than half his life as a member of that chamber.

Confrontation On Naval Gunnery Target Beach

CULEBRA, P.R. (AP) — Fourteen U.S. Marines and 50 demonstrators confronted each other today across a Culebra Island beach that the U.S. Navy plans to use as a naval gunnery target beginning Thursday.

The demonstrators, including nine pacifists from the U.S. mainland, climbed over the wooden gate to Flamenco peninsula Monday afternoon and began building a small chapel to protest the Navy's continued use of the tiny island off the east coast of Puerto Rico for target practice.

The Marine squad tried to confiscate the construction materials. But after a 10-minute hassle, the Navy told the Marines to stop interfering and the demonstrators were allowed to occupy their beachhead.

Working with precut boards and concrete blocks, the demonstrators said they expected their chapel to be completed by Wednesday.

They brought tents to sleep in and said they expected to be fed by sympathetic Culebrans.

The Marines were also in tents. Puerto Rican police outside the gate warned the demonstrators they might be prosecuted for trespassing but made no attempt to arrest anyone.

The demonstration was timed to coincide with the opening of Operation Springboard, an annual six-week naval exercise involving some 60,000 sailors and Marines from the United States, Britain, France, Canada, Holland, Brazil and the Dominican Republic.

Flamenco peninsula is scheduled to be used as a target for ship-to-shore bombardment and aerial gunnery practice beginning at 9 a.m. Thursday. It was not known if the Navy would try to remove the demonstrators or would postpone the practice.

Chrysler, UAW In Tentative Accord

By A. F. MAHAN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. have reached tentative agreement on a new three-year contract covering 110,000 production employees in the United States and Canada, UAW President Leonard Woodcock announced today.

The union ordered all its men to stay on the job beyond a 10 a.m. strike deadline while negotiators continue work on the section of the contract covering 10,000 salaried personnel.

While the agreement generally followed the pattern set in negotiations at Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp.—including a 51-cent-an-hour first-year raise—a new twist was added.

The two sides agreed to establish a six-member committee to study the feasibility of changing to a four-day, 40-hour workweek. Woodcock told a news conference the feasibility study could conceivably lead to a pilot project testing the four-day week, which has been used in some small industries and retail outlets but never by a major corporation, at two or three plants.

The union accepted Chrysler's offer of the four-day week study in exchange for a demand that Chrysler deduct the cost of a worker paid union-sponsored dental care plan from workers' wages, Woodcock said.

Negotiators plan to return to the bargaining table Wednesday to hammer out the remaining issues involving salaried workers. UAW Vice President Douglas Fraser said the talks should not take more than two or three days to complete.

Like settlements at Ford and GM, the Chrysler settlement is expected to raise the average production worker's wage to between $12,000 and $13,000 a year by the contract's third year, beginning late in 1972. Wages under the old contract averaged $4.02 an hour.

Of the 51 cents average first-year hourly wage increase, 26 cents are retroactive to Sept. 15 and the remaining 25 cents will be paid back to Nov. 2. The Nov. 2 date was won in negotiations at Ford and the union had said it would strike unless Chrysler matched it.

The basic package was won by the union after a 67-day strike at General Motors.

Who's Boss?

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — A computer at the data processing center here has finally got the message—man is its master, not vice versa.

Throughout a number of successive payroll runs, the computer refused to pay Ann Williams, secretary for eight years to Commonwealth's Atty. Peter W. Axson Jr.

In fact, it wouldn't even acknowledge she was an employee. The programmers changed tactics and fed Mrs. Williams' time into the machine as a "new employe."

The computer wasn't to be fooled. "Duplicate new hire!" it snapped. That's computer talk for someone already on the payroll.

Where on the payroll? The computer clammed up.

It wouldn't tell where Mrs. Williams is employed. It only insisted that she was. It wouldn't pay her, and it wouldn't hire her. And nobody could persuade the machine to explain why.

It was time for the programmers to show who was boss. They "ordered" the computer to search its master list of employees, locate Mrs. Williams and transfer her from wherever she was to the commonwealth attorney's office.

Oh yes, and pay her. The computer mulled this over and decided to yield.

On the next run, it meekly acknowledged Mrs. Williams and paid her.

Brownout? N.C. Banks Are Following Lead

NEW YORK (AP) — With more frigid weather expected, New York State faced the possibility of renewed electric power cutbacks again today as the Consolidated Edison Co. sought to conserve its heavily burdened voltage reserves.

A 3 1/2-hour statewide reduction that reached 5 per cent was enforced Monday in response to an appeal from Con Ed, New York City's power supplier, when sub-freezing temperatures caused exceptional demands on heating equipment.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Several North Carolina banks cut their prime interest rates by one-quarter of 1 per cent Monday, following the lead of New York banks.

Banks in the state announcing that their prime rates would drop from 6 3/4 to 6 per cent were Wachovia, North-western, Planters National, First Citizens, First Union and the Bank of Winston-Salem.

Only Friday the banks had cut the same amount from their prime rates.

N.Y. Police Strikers Spurn Leaders' Back-To-Work Plea

NEW YORK (AP) — Striking city patrolmen spurned their union leader's back-to-work appeal today and Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy said he might have to ask the mayor for National Guard assistance within 48 hours.

"We can't go on like this," Murphy declared Tuesday as wearying supervisory personnel worked 12-hour shifts for the fifth day to provide emergency services. "The city must be protected."

Despite the strike and sympathy walkouts by many transit and housing authority patrolmen, crime figures continued to show little change although the number of arrests has fallen sharply.

Elsewhere on the city's labor scene, 1,000 teamsters continued a day-old strike that halted delivery of produce to four major markets. Several big supermarket chains said they were not affected, easing housewives' fears.

Telephone installers and repairmen maintained their refusal to return to work despite heavy court-imposed fines mounting daily. The eight-day strike is over the presence of out-of-town technicians brought in to clear a backlog of complaints.

The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association president, Edward J. Kiernan, appealed to the 20,000 striking patrolmen to go back to work after a trial was set for today on the key pay parity issue that touched off the walkout.

But his plea went unheeded as the strikers pressed two new demands: amnesty from the penalty provision of the state's Taylor Law, which bars strikes by public employees, and agreement by the city to abide by the trial decision.

Medical Society Aids Community Office Wear Should Not Be Glamorous Through Annual Service Projects

In keeping with its tradition of community service, the Auxiliary to the Pitt County Medical Society has sponsored several projects this past fall.

In lieu of individual Christmas cards, members of the Society and Auxiliary made donations to the AMA-ERF, American Medical Association Education and Research Foundation, and received a single card from the Auxiliary.

The Foundation's function is to help medical students finance their education and to aid scientists engaging in pure research.

Donations could be earmarked for a specific school by the contributor. Eighty-five percent of the monies donated from Pitt County were specified for the three North Carolina Medical Schools, the others going to schools in Tennessee, Ohio, Mississippi, and Virginia.

The Christmas card sent to donors was made from an original print designed especially for the Auxiliary by Donald Sexauer, local artist and chairman of the East Carolina University Printmaking Department, School of Art, who donated this work to the Auxiliary.

The scene which depicted, "December Travelers," was of the three wise men.

At the beginning of the school year, the Auxiliary volunteered to help personnel in the county schools test eyes and teeth and record height and weight of every seventh and eighth-grade child.

This project was arranged through Mrs. Carrie G. Oakley, director of Social Services, Pitt County Board of Education.

Schools visited were South Ayden, Ayden High, Winterville, Chicod, and Robinson.

The purpose of this screening was to detect early in the year, children with defects so that they might be referred for treatment. Of the 724 children seen, 140 or approximately 20 per cent were referred for medical or dental treatment.

The Candy Striper Program, which includes both boys and girls and is a part of the Health Careers Club, was started in Rose High School last year and is sponsored by the Auxiliary.

Because of the success of the program, it has been extended to the 14-year-old girls at Aycock Junior High School, who have just received their uniforms and will be working exclusively at the Greenville Nursing Home.

Office Wear Should Not Be Glamorous

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I know I must have many sympathizers on this one. I need some up-to-date advice on how to look feminine and glamorous at the office without letting men think I am on the make.

If I dress attractively, in bright colors or in the latest styles, all the old creeps (never the nice eligible men) make passes at me. If I dress to repel the old creeps, I creep further into old-maidhood. I am 30. Can you help me?

DEAR CONFUSED: "Nice, eligible men" never make passes at anyone. A guide to appropriate office attire would include a long list of don'ts:

Don't strive for "glamor" in the office. Femininity, yes. Glamor, no! Don't wear skirts too short. Or low necklines. Don't wear anything skin tight. See-thru blouses are a "no no." Leave the junk jewelry at home. Don't wear cocktail-type attire to work. Pants are fine if your office permits them, but only if they are well-tailored and have a matching jacket. "Lounging pajamas," jump-suits or jeans with any old top are inappropriate.

If you follow the above suggestions, and the old creeps still make passes at you, better check the look in your eye.

DEAR ABBY: I think you were way off base in your attitude about the teen-aged girl who was "hurt" because her creative writing teacher began snubbing her after she wrote a love poem to him.

No one knows how many excellent teachers have had their professional careers ruined because they didn't clamp down some starry-eyed teen-aged girl before her infatuation got out of control.

It's too bad that girls such as your correspondent have to be hurt once in a while, but her teacher probably snubbed her in self-defense.

DEAR MARVIN: You could be right.

DEAR ABBY: I still carry my first wife's picture in my billfold even tho there is absolutely nothing left between us.

This seems to be quite an issue with my second wife to whom I've been married for one year. My second wife gave me a picture of herself, but when I put it in with the "other" picture, she took it back.

I assured her that she has no reason to feel hurt as I couldn't care less for my first wife, but that doesn't seem to satisfy her. She refuses to give me her picture as long as I carry the other one. Now it's become a matter of principle with me. I don't like to be dictated to. Will you settle this matter?

DEAR TIMER: I'm with "Wife Number Two" all the way. Get rid of "Number One's" picture. No wallet is big enough for both of them.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Dover waitress" who was so upset because of the small tips people left her:

I was a clerk in yard goods and ready-to-wear, back in the days when a clerk really waited on the customers. I dragged many a heavy bolt of yard goods down off the shelves, and I'd put them back up again. In those days my salary was $60 a month for a 50-hour week. I was happy, too. I wonder if that waitress ever tips a clerk when she makes a purchase. BESSIE B. (NOW RETIRED)

Faces and Eyeglasses
How do you choose the best eyeglass frames for you? If you are one of the five facial types below, then follow the suggestions mentioned.

The oblong face best wears wide frames, slightly arched with deeper frame area.

The triangular face should avoid the pixie frame. Top-line frames are most attractive.

A square face is accentuated best with frames that sweep up and out toward the temples, giving a more oval appearance.

The diamond face should adopt two-tone frames, tinted above the eyes and colorless below, to achieve the oval illusion.

A round face looks best either with upswept frames or wider frames slightly arched with deeper outlines.

March Of Dimes Campaign Explained To Jay-C-Ettes

Andy Gilman, field representative for the March of Dimes Campaign, spoke to the Greenville Jay-C-Ettes Wednesday night at their monthly meeting.

Gilman told the club of the campaign's beginning in 1938. Franklin Roosevelt was the founder of the organization, which at that time was chiefly concerned with stamping out polio and its crippling effects. Since that time the organization has grown to 3,000 chapters throughout the nation; and through Dr. Jonas Salk, whose research was financed by the March of Dimes, has developed the life saving Salk Vaccine. The March of Dimes research is now broadened to include all types of birth defects, prenatal care, and the study of the effects of drugs on unborn babies.

Gilman also cited statistics which show that North Carolina now has approximately 10,000 babies born each year with birth defects who live. In this state the research is carried on at Duke University Hospital which has just recently made a break through with their bone marrow transfer research. Besides the work in research and physical adjustment, Gilman also told of the center's efforts to aid the patients in their social adjustment.

The club then voted to assist the March of Dimes effort in Greenville by sponsoring a Coffee Day on Feb. 5. All establishments in Greenville which serve coffee will be contacted by the Jay-C-Ettes and asked to donate their profits from their coffee sales for that day to the March of Dimes. Mrs. Charles Carter was named chairman of this project.

The Jay-C-Ettes were reminded of the annual Valentine's dinner-dance to be held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club on Feb. 12. Mrs. Wallace West is chairman of the event.

New members welcomed at the meeting were Mrs. Herbie Britt and Mrs. Nathan Smith. Guests were Mrs. Mark Meltzer, Mrs. Eugene Carson and Mrs. Bill Turcotte.

"It's a clear case of trespassing," declared the new Mrs. Morris. "Our three children can stay on if they like."

Bachelor Said 'I Do', Takes Assembly Seat

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A Southport grocer's son walked down the aisle Monday night and, although he's still a bachelor, said "I do" and took a seat. It's a lonely seat.

Thomas Harrelson, 29, became the 24th Republican in the North Carolina House of Representatives.

As a legislator, he will sit on the front row, second seat to the right — a spot already reserved for a Democrat and surrounded by other Democrats.

It doesn't bother Harrelson. "I got most of my votes from Democrats so I'm certainly not ashamed to sit with them," he quipped while shaking hands with veteran legislators, other newcomers, friends and relatives.

The next few days may be so-

Godwin Has Doubts On Med School

RALEIGH (AP) — House Speaker Phil Godwin, D-Gates, says he is not convinced "The tremendous cost" of establishing a two-year medical school at East Carolina University "Can be justified in the net results."

Godwin said in an interview Monday. "We could take a lot less money and involve it in the existing medical school at the University of North Carolina and educate more North Carolinians."

Earlier he had voiced reservations about the proposed ECU medical school in a panel news show on Durham television station WTVD.

"I don't know if we can afford two medical schools or not," Godwin stated.

He said that every year spokesmen for the medical school at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill "come and say they're not at the place they need to be to do the job they need to."

ECU has asked the General Assembly for $107 million, less available federal funding, to build a medical school, plus $2.5 million for operations and $664,000 for a library during the next biennium.

The legislature cannot take any action on the request until action is first taken by the state Board of Higher Education. The board is awaiting a report on the school from the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges.

Duke Power Co. To Hike Rates On February 1

RALEIGH (AP) — Duke Power Co. rates in North Carolina will increase 14 per cent Feb. 1.

The State Utilities Commission told the company Monday it could put into effect on that date, under bond, the remaining portion of an 18 per cent rate hike requested last May. It is subject to final commission action on the request.

The commission approved a temporary 4 per cent "emergency" increase last July.

If the commission should deny all or part of the Duke request, the company will have to refund to customers what they have collected in extra rates after Feb. 1.

The commission held a hearing on the Duke request last fall. A decision is expected next month.

Noise Level Of Heliport Tested

RALEIGH (AP) — Plans call for a heliport to be built on the roof of a state-owned building in the North Carolina Capitol area.

A National Guard helicopter made a landing on the state Department of Administration building Monday to test the noise level inside the five-story structure.

Robert Bourne, deputy administrator for the property control division of the Department of Administration, said, "We learned what we wanted to know. The noise level would be the same in any building."

No tests on other buildings are scheduled, Bourne added. One office worker on the fifth floor reported he was not able to hear the helicopter.

lity for him, but it wasn't a place for a man seeking solitude Monday night. Harrelson said at least 75 friends and relatives from Brunswick and Columbus counties made the trip to Raleigh to hear him take the oath from Secretary of State Thad Eure.

One side of the House gallery was filled with Harrelson supporters.

Harrelson was late in taking his seat after surviving a disputed election in Columbus County, winning out after the State Board of Elections declared him the victor over incumbent Democrat Arthur Williamson when the two ended the race in an apparent tie.

The freshman Republican's seat pairs him with Democratic Rep. James Green of Bladen County. Green had little to say to Harrelson during the brief 18-minute House session Monday night, but there were signs of congeniality — Green loaned Harrelson a pen.

He's not the first Republican to hold a front-row seat in the Democratic-dominated House.

Eure, who points out he has been seating representatives for 35 years, says Harrelson is the third Republican to sit near the speaker.

"The first one I know anything about came in 1953," Eure said. "Ralph Fisher of Transylvania County had seat No. 9, right beside three Wake County members."

Fisher died before his term had been completed. "His wife took his place and also sat there," Eure said.

Harrelson said he planned to introduce legislation calling for election reforms, especially more education of local election officials and better supervision of polling places.

"My own election proved something has got to be done," he said.

Immediate Aid Sought

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mecklenburg County has decided to tell Gov. Bob Scott and the General Assembly that it needs immediate financial help for busing.

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg County school system is operating a massive busing system to comply with federal District Judge James McMillan's order for complete desegregation. Of the 84,000 pupils in the system, about 23,000 are being bused to schools outside their neighborhoods. The judge's order resulted in the busing of 13,000 in addition to the 10,000 already being bused.

City-county money for busing was about to run out, but the county commissioners appropriated $30,000 Monday to allow continuance until about mid-February. This will give a breathing spell until the commissioners act on a school board request to transfer to the busing fund $109,476 in surplus school funds from last year.

At the same time, the commissioners voted to make a plea to the state government for immediate assistance.

Exiled King's Assets Frozen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The last king of Yugoslavia deposited $2 million in Swiss banks, an attorney says, but a legal dispute may prevent the money from being released.

The will of King Peter II was admitted for probate Monday in Superior Court. He died Nov. 3 in Denver, Colo., at 47.

Mitzi Lowe, friend of the ex-monarch, is executor of the will. Mrs. Lowe's attorney, Sam Silverstein, said Swiss bankers would not let the ex-king withdraw the money because they did not recognize him as head of state.

King Peter deposited the money after he fled Yugoslavia from invading Nazi armies in 1941, Silverstein said.

About 75 per cent of the exiled king's assets, valued at more than $2 million, were willed to his widow, Queen Alexandra, who lives in Venice, Italy.

New Focus On Waste Disposal

Not the least of the advantages already being derived from the new ecology-conscience society in which we live is the interest being displayed by local governments of Pitt County in making their garbage dumps both more accessible and more useful to the people of the area.

Of course, they aren't called garbage dumps anymore by officials; but rather in keeping with new ecological vocabulary, they are referred to as Solid Waste Disposal Plants.

Be that as it may, Greenville's City Council and the Pitt County Commissioners have in recent months given greater consideration and recognition to the need for adequate methods of disposing of refuse than we can ever remember. The two bodies have reached an agreement whereby all of Greenville Township residents will have access to the Greenville Solid Waste Disposal Plant at least for the next six months. There is a possibility that Grimesland area may also be permitted to use the site for waste disposal.

Further and equally important is that other disposal areas are being provided on other sections of the county for rural as well as municipal residents. A facility is being established to serve the Winterville-Ayden-Grifton area, and others reportedly are being established in the Bethel, Farmville and Fountain areas. These should prove a great convenience to county citizens as well as being a big step in eliminating the growing number of small and unsightly piles of rubbish that appear in wooded areas along the highways and byways in the county.

It is reasonable that governmental authorities will have to establish regulations controlling the use of these disposal areas by individual citizens. Consideration must be given to the acceptance of refuse that can reasonably be handled by the areas, the times they will be open and many other factors. As these regulations are developed, however, officials should keep in mind that two primary factors are involved in providing these facilities.

First, they are being established as collection points for refuse generated by the households and business firms in this country. The hope is that they will be used instead of other make-shift dumping sites by individual citizens.

Secondly, if the first goal is to be accomplished, the regulations must be sufficiently broad to permit the acceptance of almost every kind of refuse. Furthermore, the sites should be open for public use as many hours a day as possible to encourage individuals to use them.

Without careful drafting and implementation of regulations governing use of the disposal areas, the promise they hold for improving Pitt County's ecology and appearance could be severely minimized.

No Repeal For N.C. Gas Tax

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — There's not a chance for repeal, in whole or in part, of the two-cent per gallon gasoline tax enacted in 1969.

There remains the possibility that the soft drink tax may be taken off, but it will require a tortuous search for ways to make up the revenue.

Nobody ever thought it likely that the cigarette tax once enacted, could be removed or reduced.

These are conclusions based on conversations with influential legislators over the first few days of the 1971 General Assembly.

What it means is that tax repeal efforts, which at one time promised to be a package was enacted. As for the soft drink tax, Scott said, he'd be willing to repeal it and make up the revenue by raising the tax on cigarettes.

The original proposal submitted by the Governor, he recalled, was to tax tobacco and not soft drinks. "I'm ready to go back to that," he said.

No Change Forecast
The prediction that there will be no change in the tax picture was made by Representative Perry Martin of Northampton. Martin was a leader in the maneuvering which shifted a share of the tax load from tobacco to soft drinks two years ago.

Martin maintained that agitation for repeal comes from the companies rather than the consumers. The issue was thoroughly tested, in his case, by stiff battles in both primary and general election with the emphasis on his vote for taxes, he said. "The public has accepted these taxes. The people know that services cost money and are willing to pay," he asserted.

"I predict that we will retain the tax on cigarettes and on soft drinks. In time, both probably will be increased although I don't think it will happen at this session."

A study of the budget and exposure to pressure for more funds for various purposes will cool enthusiasm for tax repeal, Martin added.

Too Divisive To Handle
He has heard, he acknowledged, the sentiment of Piedmont legislators for repeal of the soft drink tax with the difference to be made up by raising the cigarette tax.

"That is too divisive an issue for us to get into this session," he said. Eastern opposition to a tax on tobacco tied up the 1969 legislature until the soft drink tax was raised as a way out.

The tax repeal issue has aspects of partisan politics.

Republicans took tax repeal as a theme for the general election campaign. Governor Scott responded to the challenge and vigorously defended the tax package and the legislators who voted for it. In doing so, the Governor attempted to give a partisan color to repeal efforts.

General election results reduced GOP legislative seats by roughly one-fourth, and strengthened the administration's position in holding the revenue line.

BRYAN HAISLIP

dominant issue, may in reality take up less time and energy for the lawmakers than had been anticipated. Back at the spring primaries and on into mid-summer, it looked as though the oil industry had rolling with good chances for success a massive campaign to cut by one cent the tax on gasoline. A series of ads ran in state newspapers, a crop of bumper stickers sprouted, all getting across the message that North Carolina has the highest per gallon gasoline tax in the nation.

A Fading Cause
From that blossoming start, the cause faded fast in recent months. Most observers time the onset of the blight with Governor Scott's address to the North Carolina League of Municipalities in Winston-Salem last fall, and his promise to seek an additional one-half cent per gallon of gasoline tax revenues for city streets.

By the time the General Assembly convened, even some of those committed to vote for the reduction were saying privately it was a lost cause. Oil lobbyists agreed the outlook was rough, but kept a determined optimism.

The forthright opinion that the gasoline tax won't be reduced was voiced by Senator Ralph Scott of Alamance, uncle of the Governor and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee when the 1969 tax

Big Blooper At Bethlehem

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The steel industry's astonishingly ill-timed grab for a huge price increase has handed President Nixon a golden opportunity to salvage his disintegrating new wage-price policy.

At the time Bethlehem Steel Co. surprised almost everybody with a 12.5 percent price increase in steel used for construction and shipbuilding, the over-ballyhooed program to hold down wages and prices unveiled by Mr. Nixon in his Dec. 4 speech to the National Assn. of Manufacturers (NAM) was a shambles. His vague concept of harnessing market forces to bring down oil prices and construction labor wage increases was stalled near dead-center.

Implications of this failure were casting a pall over Mr. Nixon's radically revised game plan. If some control over wages and prices is not achieved, inflation will be on a new sharp upswing within a year. That calamity would inhibit the Federal Reserve Board and its chairman, Dr. Arthur Burns, from continuing to expand the money supply — the basic tool counted on by Mr. Nixon to revive the economy.

Along comes Bethlehem's blooper and a chance to avert such a catastrophe. Although the matter is not settled at this writing, the President's prompt threat to increase steel imports if other companies follow Bethlehem's lead should now force at least a partial rollback of the Bethlehem increase, provided big steel believes Mr. Nixon means business this time.

According to the White House scenario, that would lead to restraint by business and labor in this year's steel industry negotiations. Hopefully, successful use of Presidential muscle on steel prices and wages would restrict increases throughout the economy.

Such was the intent of the Dec. 4 NAM speech. Attacking politically ruinous unemployment with a new, expansionist economic policy, Mr. Nixon was seeking to simultaneously contain inflation short of mandatory wage-price controls. His answer was labelled by some aides "jawboning with muscle" — using indirect government action.

Accordingly, the NAM speech hinted at the suspension of the Davis-Bacon Act (requiring construction workers on Federal projects to get locally prevailing wages) — a hint famed into a threat by White House leaks. But that threat is now pronounced dead by Secretary of Labor James Hodgson, who has let it be known that suspending Davis-Bacon wouldn't help fight inflation much.

The broader anti-wage inflation proposal in the Dec. 4 speech — regional collective bargaining in the construction industry — has fared no better. Labor and management leaders will meet at the White House Monday to consider it, but nobody expects progress. So, the Administration now plans to seek a legislation with equally bleak prospects.

On the price side, Mr. Nixon's attempt to rollback the 25-cent-a-barrel crude oil increase through increased imports and higher production of Federally-owned oil lacks credibility — partly because extortionate tanker fees restrict Middle East imports, partly because production from state-controlled wells will be correspondingly reduced. A far greater threat, subjecting oil companies to anti-trust prosecution by suspending the Connally Hot-Oil Act, was snipped out of the NAM speech at the last minute.

With both construction labor and oil price proposals non-starters, the Bethlehem

MONEY
Several years ago a minister received a letter from someone he had never heard of before. Among other things the letter contained this question: "Do you think I can live a Christian life in New York City on a dollar and a quarter a day?" The reply which was in the hands of the questioner a few days later was brief and to the point: "Can you live a Christian life in New York City on a dollar and a quarter a day? Brother, you couldn't live any other kind of life." Strange, isn't it, that when we acquire a little cash we are at least tempted (and frequently give in to the temptation) to buy some kind of indulgence. Behind drug addiction is money, money, money. Behind the problem of alcoholism is the same. Many people, if they had the money and the free time to do so, would travel over the earth and probably try to get to the moon. Others would stretch out in an easy chair and reminisce. Some would gamble. Others would step up their drinking schedule. Others would be on hand at every luncheon period with their cronies and hammer the table and set everybody right on every word and local problem. Some of the finest people in the world are rich and some are very poor. Many people believe they are quoting from the Bible when they say that money is the root of all evil. What the Bible says is the love of money is the root of all evil (1 Timothy 6:10).

Run From The Reformer

By JAMES KILPATRICK

Henry L. Mencken once laid down some wise advice to be followed whenever reformers get on the move. His exact passage eludes me, but it was something to this effect: Take to the hills! And stay out of town until the movement blows away.

The Sage of Baltimore detested reformers as a breed, and with sound reason — for the benefits that reformers would impose are almost always worse than the evils they would cure. This is the season for reform in Washington, and Mencken's

Rule applies. Most of the talk is of congressional reform, and most of the talk is just that: talk. A handful of liberal zealots, hungry for power, are howling for outright abolition of the seniority system. Over in the Senate, the talkers are puffing up a small wind about the filibuster rule.

Little will come of all this. House Democrats may vote to limit the number of terms a member may serve as committee chairman, but unless the House takes leave of its senses the reforms will stop there or thereabouts. The House is not prepared to invite the political bloodletting, logrolling and free wheeling that would follow upon popular election of its chairman.

Under the seniority rule (it actually is not a rule, but a custom only), the majority party member with longest service on a committee automatically becomes committee chairman. The practice dates from 1846 in the Senate, from 1911 in the House. Now and then the system provokes convulsions of criticism. We are in the midst of such a spasm now. All the ritual charges are being raised anew.

By and large, the charges have no substance. They are myths. In a book soon to be published by the Indiana University Press, political scientist Barbara Hinckley demolishes the indictment count by count. Her scholarly study shows that committee chairmen, over the years, are in fact fairly representative of regions, party policies and public opinion. If some chairmen hold strong powers, it is because their committee members want it that way. And contrary to the folklore, committee leaders do not hold their chairs forever; the median tenure ranges between five and ten years.

Professor Hinckley's solid evidence doubtless will be lost on the House reformers: They are out to topple the "senile Southerners" — William Colmer of Mississippi, Bob Poage of Texas, Wright Patman of Texas, John McMillan of South Carolina — and such is their fury that they tend to lose sight of the future. They are blind to the value of the seniority system as a prudent

Other Editors Say Still Short-Changed

(Charlotte Observer)

A review of the record of the 91st Congress shows that consumers, who are supposed to be king in our consumer-oriented society, has been getting short-changed on the legislative front. Nothing much came out of the long-awaited report of the National Commission on Product Safety, which pointed out that 20 million Americans are injured each year as a result of unsafe products. Like so many commission reports, it seems to be gathering dust.

One of the Commission's recommendations was that an independent consumer agency be set up. A bill doing just that received overwhelming public support. It was passed with dispatch by the Senate and approved by the House Government Operations Committee, but it was then pigeonholed by the House Rules Committee.

Another important consumer bill that failed to get any action was one permitting class action suits in cases of fraud. Estimates are that consumers are bilked of $200 million a year by deceptive practices, mostly in small claims.

The few gains that came out of the legislative session prohibited mailing of unsolicited credit cards, regulated private credit reporting agencies, required safer containers for poisonous household aids and provided protection for children against unsafe toys.

The Nixon Administration promises a new approach to consumer legislation. Both the President and the Congress bear the responsibility for doing better by the buyers and users of goods and services.

By assuring consumers of reliable, safe products, meaningful warranties and honest services, representative government does a service for our free enterprise economy. All the good companies, products and services will be in a stronger position on the day when the fraudulent and uncaring brought to heel.

A Compulsory Auto Tune-Up?

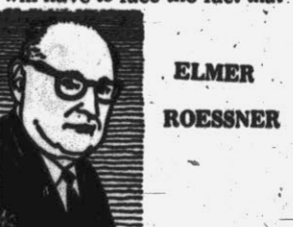

By ELMER ROESSNER
Coming in the battle to clean up the ecology is mandatory auto tune-ups.

A check by University of Michigan engineering students showed that 85 percent of the cars examined needed tuning and, more importantly, that once the engines of the cars were tuned up, their emission levels were reduced 55 percent.

Another study by Ethyl Corp. showed that even a one per cent spark plug misfire increased an auto's hydrocarbon emissions by 99 per cent and carbon monoxide emissions by 20 per cent.

When other common faults of untuned engines are added, including plugged PCV valves, dirty air cleaner, slow-and-rich idle, hydrocarbons can rise as much as 169 per cent and carbon monoxide by 172 per cent. Foresees Mandatory In-

One oilman, T. W. Sigler, marketing vice president of Continental Oil, declared, "Eventually, the pollution issue will have to focus on the maintenance of automobiles. Consumers and government will have to face the fact that modifying fuel composition can't clean up the air unless cars on the road are kept in good operating condition. Then regulations on emissions will undoubtedly be promulgated." He predicted that vehicle inspections, now mandatory in many states, will be compulsory in all and extended to include emissions with dirty cars ordered off the road until engines are tuned.

A Major Problem
This will pose a passel of problems.

There is a shortage of competent auto mechanics. Motorist now complain that it is difficult to get any work done on cars. The dealer who sold me my car requires an appointment about 10 days in the future for any work.

Motorists complain about the competence of mechanics. Many say it is often necessary to bring back cars for further adjustment. Many motorists are suspicious of the annual inspection in some states. Some stations are suspected of finding imaginary faults if they can't find real ones.

And the loudest wail of all is about high and rising prices for any kind of work on cars. If we can't train more and better mechanics or license them as some states do import some from Germany and Japan. Footnotes On Some Un-

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

One of the general criticisms of our times is that nobody listens anymore. This is true. You would think that people who talk to themselves would at least always have an interested audience of one. Postal Union Leaders Challenge New Directive

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal unions have opened fire on Postmaster General Winton M. Blount on the eve of the first labor-management negotiations in the 200-year history of the U.S. mails.

Labor leaders, who sit down with postal management Wednesday to hammer out a contract for 600,000 postal workers, have challenged Blount to take back a directive he says is merely to further remove politics from the new U.S. Postal Service.

The directive, sent to all postal managers, stipulates "It is mandatory that postal employees immediately cease any direct or indirect contact with congressional offices on matters involving the Postal Service."

The unions, which dealt directly with Congress on wages and other matters until reform legislation allowing collective bargaining was passed last year, immediately labeled the directive a "gag rule." Postal officials insist the thought behind it is innocent and one hinting the fuss is viewed as pre-negotiations bluster.

In the Jan. 12 directive, Blount declared the Postal Service henceforth will "speak to the Congress with only one voice"—that of postal management.

But he added the new procedures "do not affect the right of any employee to petition, as a private citizen, his U.S. representative or senators on his own behalf."

postal employees the right to go individually or collectively to Congress on any matter.

In addition, according to James Radamacher, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, Blount said in 1969 postal reform would do "nothing ... to prevent the employees from coming to the members of Congress in the same manner they have always had."

Under the postal reform legislation signed by President Nixon last year, the old Post Office is removed from the direct control of Congress and becomes an independent agency. The transition is to be completed by July 1.

Heat Wave

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California's summer-in-January, with 95-degree temperatures and a smog alert, should come to an end by Thursday, the Weather Bureau says.

The 95 Monday made downtown Los Angeles the nation's warmest spot and continued a three-day string of summer temperatures.

The National Weather Service said winds have brought warm inland air to the area while a storm condition off the coast has kept cold air from moving down from the Pacific Northwest.

The seven recognized postal unions, acting together as the Council of American Postal Employees—CAPE—are seeking a face-to-face meeting with Blount and threaten court action if the directive is enforced.

CAPE contends the directive may violate the 1912 Lloyd-Lafollette Act, which guarantees

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Two spokesmen for Charlotte Memorial Hospital say it would be a mistake to build a new medical school at East Carolina University in Greenville.

They said the state should not construct any new medical school until it has brought the three existing ones—at Chapel Hill, Durham and Winston-Salem, up to maximum productivity.

The views were expressed in interviews Monday by John W. Rankin, administrator of Memorial, and Dr. Bryant Galusha, its director of medical education.

They also said the three existing schools could educate more doctors for less money by expanding their use of the clinical teaching potential of the state's good community hospitals, such as Memorial.

East Carolina University has proposed a two-year medical school.

The school serves 450 pupils in eastern Cherokee County. There was no school today while arrangements were made for temporary classrooms, probably in churches. Classes were expected to resume Wednesday.

Dead Astronaut's Widow Sues

ASTRONAUT'S WIDOW — Mrs. Betty Grissom, widow of Virgil Grissom, killed in the Apollo capsule fire, has filed suit against the spacecraft's builder.

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The widow of Virgil I. Grissom, one of three astronauts killed in the 1967 Apollo 1 fire, has filed suit for $10 million against the prime contractor on the spacecraft, North American Rockwell Corp., and three subsidiaries.

Betty Grissom, who lives in Houston, brought the action Monday in Brevard County Circuit Court, charging negligence in the flash blaze that killed her husband and his colleagues Roger B. Chaffee and Edward H. White II.

The astronauts were in the capsule perched at the top of the 300-foot-high Saturn rocket the evening of Jan. 27, 1967, running through a countdown rehearsal when ground controllers heard Chaffee's voice cry, "We've got a fire in the spacecraft."

The fire flashed through the oxygen-rich cabin, killing the three men in seconds.

A blue ribbon board of review later reported it found "many deficiencies in design and engineering, manufacture and quality control" by both the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and industrial contractors.

The board said the most likely source of the fire was an electrical arc or short circuit in wiring under the seat of the command pilot, Grissom.

The day following the fatal fire, it was announced that each of the three widows would receive $100,000 from life insurance policies.

The free policies were part of a contract under which two publishing firms held exclusive rights to stories on the personal lives of the astronauts and their families.

The suit filed Monday in this city near the Kennedy Space Center where Grissom died asked $5 million for Mrs. Grissom as the widow and $5 million for her late husband's estate, of which she is executrix. She has two sons, Gary Mark Grissom, 20, and Allen Scott Grissom, 16.

The suit asserted the capsule "did not have a proper fire extinguisher system," "had no emergency egress," and was "defective in that the electrical wires were so manufactured or installed as to allow an electrical arc" to flash in the cabin.

Named along with North American were its subsidiaries North American Aviation, Inc.; Rockwell Standard Corp. and Rockwell Standard Company.

Reached by telephone in Houston, Mrs. Grissom said she could not comment on the case.

Mrs. White, who also lives in Houston, said, "No, indeed," when asked whether she planned to file suit. She said Mrs. Grissom's action was a complete surprise and added, "I'd really prefer to make no comment on that."

Chaffee's widow, now Mrs. W.C. Canfield, could not be reached for comment.

William Whitaker of Orlando, one of Mrs. Grissom's three attorneys, said his client waited four years to file suit because "it's the personal consideration of the widow. It does take awhile to put it all together."

Beatle Music For Los Angeles Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The rock music of the Beatles comes to the jury room at the Sharon Tate murder trial today in the third full day of deliberations.

The panel asked to hear the untitled album which the state says Charles Manson played obsessively in the summer of the slayings.

Songs on the 1968 album figured heavily in testimony at the seven-month-old trial. Witnesses said Manson thought he heard the Beatles predicting a black-white conflict in songs such as "Helter Skelter," "Piggies," "Blackbird" and "Revolution 9." The state says Manson ordered followers to kill in order to trigger such a race war.

The judge ordered a record player sent in for today's session.

When they recessed Monday, jurors had deliberated 13 hours and 45 minutes.

Manson and three women members of his hippie-style clan are charged with murder-conspiracy in seven slayings.

Superior Court Judge Charles Older refused another jury request, for a night visit to the scenes of the August 1969 killings, Miss Tate's plush Benedict Canyon mansion and the home of wealthy market owners Leno and Rosemary La Bianca.

The prosecution opposed allowing the visits, saying it would reopen the trial to new evidence. The defense, favoring the visits, moved to reopen the trial. The judge denied the motion.

A separation agreement made public Monday provides that the mother will have custody of the couple's children, Alessandra, 8, and Elisabetta, 3, and will receive $240 a month for their support.

Under Italy's new divorce law, Mr. and Mrs. Mussolini will be eligible for divorce five years from now if they remain separated.

restraint upon popular impulse. They want "reform."

It is the same in other fields. We have recently survived a frenzy of electoral reform. The idea was to abandon the present system of choosing Presidents through the States, in favor of direct national election. The crusaders hoisted a gonfalon that bore a strange device: Democracy! It looked great. But on examination, the reform was exposed as revolution; and the move collapsed.

Mr. Nixon is down with the fevers of welfare reform. He has taken to bed with a wild-eyed gaggle of ultra-liberals, beautiful dreamers and greedy bums. He is asking for a licking in the Senate, and the Senate probably will oblige him. Mencken's Rule applies: These dubious welfare benefits are worse than the welfare ills.

We have been through tax reform, but the new tax laws seem no better, clearer, or fairer than the ones they replaced. We are going through postal reform; the mails are slower than ever. A Federal Commission just brought in a massive report on reform of the Criminal Code, but one of its chief recommendations, dealing with handguns, is pure folly. And so it goes.

The only useful reformers I can think of, just off hand, are those involved with the Reading Reform Foundation. And in seeking the restoration of phonics in the teaching of reading, they are reformers only in a sense: They are seeking to undo the harm done by earlier reformers who got to the classrooms before them.

DOUBLE BULLSEYE — The Pentagon today released this picture of the Jan. 11 launches of the Spartan missiles, seconds apart, from an island in the mid-Pacific. The missiles, controlled by a radar site testing the Safeguard ABM system, successfully found high-altitude targets. One intercepted an ICBM nosecone launched at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. The other was aimed at a point in space. (Defense Dept. Photo via AP Wirephoto)

Black Beauty To War Zone

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Miss Black America, Stephanie Clark, off on an overseas trip to entertain troops in Vietnam and Thailand, says she doesn't believe in war.

But the 19-year-old Ithaca College student from Washington, D.C., said she wanted to go to the war zone anyway "to bring a little inspiration to the lives of some soldiers who may not want to be over there but are there anyway—to show them someone does care."

Wearing her hair in Afro style and clad in yellow flared knickers, a matching jacket and black boots, Miss Clark spoke Monday to newsmen at San Francisco International Airport en route to Saigon for a 35-day tour.

Speaking of foods, one of my biggest problems with my cat is trying to get her to eat leftover stubs of dried salami. My refrigerator is full of them, and if the cat doesn't develop an appetite for them soon, I may have to sew them together and make a quilt.

Isn't it odd that in an emergency, it's always the old maid in the office—not the pretty young things in the stenographic pool—who always have a safety pin in her desk?

boost came along just at the right time for Mr. Nixon. Completely discarding his two-year policy of ignoring individual price and wage decisions, Mr. Nixon's intervention Tuesday, was a victory for advocates of a strong policy—specifically Dr. Burns and Dr. Charles Walker, Under Secretary of the Treasury.

There are those inside the Administration who insist Mr. Nixon's new muscular jawboning simply cannot work. To contend a rollback of Bethlehem's steel boost will stem primordial forces of inflation is lunacy in the opinion of these critics. Equally mad, they say, is to believe that Dr. Burns's Fed will pump out greenbacks through 1971 and 1972, if inflation is rampant.

Believe Rabbit Acts Like Dog

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Fritz is a rabbit—a giant New Zealand white rabbit—but he doesn't act much like one.

Fritz was an Easter present two years ago from Arne Koch to his wife Cathy.

The Kochs say that Fritz insists on being tied in front of their trailer home so he can watch passing people and autos. When tied in the back of the mobile home, Fritz kicks the side of the trailer. When he's inside and wants outside, Fritz kicks the door.

And, although he gets along well with the Koch's German shepherd, Tramp, and a part beagle named Bambi, he favors cat food.

Teachers Plan To Attend Rally
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Classroom teachers of Charlotte agreed Monday to join a statewide rally of teachers who will ask for greater pay increases.

A mass meeting will be held in Raleigh Thursday, the day Gov. Bob Scott delivers his budget message. The governor has proposed a 10 per cent pay raise for teachers in the next two fiscal years. The teachers are asking 22 per cent, which they say will bring their pay to the national average.

The teachers will take a personal leave day off from school Thursday. They are allowed two such leaves during a school year, but the $15 a day or so for a substitute is deducted from their salary.

Countdown Test For Apollo 14
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 14 launch team has completed a major countdown test for the Jan. 31 launching of three astronauts to the moon.

The six-day test, almost identical to the actual countdown, ended Monday night, with the simulated liftoff nearly five hours late because of a fuel loading problem.

The trouble cropped up Monday morning in an automatic, computer-run system which loads the 20,228 gallons of liquid oxygen into the third stage of the Saturn Srocket. The launch crew had to switch to a slower manual method.

The Apollo 14 crew, Alan B. Shepard Jr., Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell, planned to spend several hours rehearsing in their spaceship atop the Saturn 5.

Sees Opportunity For Stressing Best Crops

The set-aside feature of 1971 farm programs for feed grain, wheat, and cotton should help producers concentrate on the crops they can produce best, according to Stacy J. Evans, Pitt County executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Under the new program, a producer agrees to set aside a pre-determined number of acres of cropland from production and devote it to approved soil-conserving uses. He then can plant his remaining cropland to any crop he wishes except for sugar cane and for quota crops such as peanuts, tobacco, rice, and extra long staple cotton.

"In this way," Evans explained, "a farmer can plant the crops that he prefers to grow and which give him his best net returns."

Agricultural specialists who helped develop the new programs point out that this greater freedom to plant will eventually lead to the concentration of certain crops in areas of the country where they can be grown most efficiently.

"They expect more corn production concentrated in the Corn Belt, more small grains in the Great Plains, more soybean production in the Southeast, and an expansion of cotton production in the most efficient areas," Evans pointed out.

One of the basic ideas behind the set-aside feature, according to Evans, is that producers in all of these areas can be better off because they will be producing the crop they grow best at a lower cost. He added that some farmers for years have been locked into certain patterns of producing their crops because of the acreage control features of past programs.

Evans said the set-aside idea seems to fit with trends that have been building in farming over the years. These include the trend in which American farms have grown fewer in number and larger in size, and the trend for producers to become more efficient and more productive.

The efficient, competitive producer will be in the best position to take advantage of growing world demands for farm products.

Will Regulate Apartments
CHARLOTTE (AP) — Apartment complexes built in the future in Charlotte and Mecklenburg County are going to be regulated.

The planning commission of the city and county must okay the site plan before a builder can get a construction permit. Until now, no such approval had been required.

The new ordinances, adopted unanimously by the city and county governing bodies Monday, go into effect 45 days from now, in early March.

Pitt Tech In 105-72 Romp

BELVOIR — Pitt Technical Institute cracked the century mark for the third straight time last night in rolling to a 105-72 victory over Wilson Tech.

The victory was the sixth conference win for the Techmen, as compared to only one loss, and left them in first place in the loop. It was also the third straight victory for the team which is 7-3 overall, and is their longest streak of the year.

Pitt and Wilson battled on even terms throughout the first 10 minutes of the first half. Then, with substitute James Maye sparking the way, Pitt began to pull away, and eventually built up a 52-40 lead at the half.

In the second half, Pitt Tech continued to pull away from Wilson, building up as much as a 25 point lead before the bench was cleared during the final 10 minutes of the game.

Leslie Saunders paced Pitt Tech with 25 points, while Eddie Stokes had 19, Angelo Hooker had 18, and Maye poured in 17.

Wilson Tech was led by Winstead with 34, while Lucust had 14.

Industrial Loop Led By Two Now

The logjam atop the Industrial Basketball League began to ease a little last night as State Highway knocked off Wachovia, 51-45, to cut the three way tie to two. In the other games, Fieldcrest ripped Vermont American, 125-19, and NCR edged WNCT, 50-44.

State Highway and Fieldcrest now rest atop the league with 4-1 records, while National Cash Register and Wachovia are tied for third with 3-2 marks. WNCT follows at 1-4, followed by Vermont American, 0-5.

In the opener, NCR edged out into the lead in the first half, gaining a 25-22 lead in the first half. Both teams reproduced their production of the first half in the second, as NCR again outshot WNCT, 25-22, to take the win.

A Witherington led NCR with 19 points while Frank Corbit had 11. For WNCT, Jim Sermons had 21 and Ikey Arnold had 10.

The second game was over almost before it got going good. Fieldcrest outthit hapless Vermont American, 48-14 in the first half to wrap it up. Then, in the second half, Fieldcrest bombed their foe, 77-5, for the amazing 106-point victory margin.

Louis Williams fired through an amazing 49 points to lead Fieldcrest, while Walter Claybrook and Bill Stokes each had 25 and Tetterton had 14.

In the final contest, Wachovia inched out into a slim one-point lead in the first half, 25-24. But State Highway would not be denied and came back to outthit Wachovia, 27-20, in the second half for the victory.

Smith Worthington led State Highway with 18 points, while Walter Jones had 16 for Wachovia.

Coke Surprised In City League

Big Value Discount of Farmville surprised Coca-Cola last night, 75-58, and knocked them off the unbeaten list. Book Exchange downed Coffman's, 69-59, and pulled into a tie for first. In the other game, Hallow's downed College View, 66-55.

Book Exchange and Coke are now tied with 4-1 records, while Coffman's is now 3-2. Hallow's and Farmville are 2-3, with College View at 0-5.

Book Exchange inched out into a 26-24 lead in the first half of play. But in the second half, they slowly pulled away, outthitting Coffman's, 43-35, to take the victory and tie for first.

Greg Holmes led the Exchange with 20, while John Hardison and Greg Cross each had 14 and Dickie Allen had 11. For Coffman's Bruce Tucker had 13, Charles Swanner had 12 and Bill Taylor had 11.

In the second contest, Big Value surged away and built up a 40-38 lead in the first half. They then outthit Coke by 35-30 in the second half to wrap up the upset.

Everett Cameron led Farmville with 25 points while Charles Purvis had 16. For Coke, Jim Modlin had 15, John Lynn had 11 and Wayne Hardee and Doyle Dougherty each had 10.

College View looked like it might pull out its first victory as it pushed out into a 33-28 lead at the end of the half. But Hallow's came back in the second half, dumping in 38 points to 22 for College View to take the game.

Branch led Hallow's with 14, while David Hahn had 13 and Ted Whitley had 11. For College View, Roger Moore had 22.

Costly To Play With Palmer

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Notes from the pro golf tournament trail:

Many pros, particularly the younger ones, figure that it costs them two to four strokes a round to play in the same group with Arnold Palmer.

They're often accustomed to playing in relative obscurity and the vast, shouting, stampeding army of fans that still follows Arnold puts some added pressure on them.

But playing before that army has its benefits, too.

Veteran Lionel Hebert, playing in the same group with Arnold in a recent tournament, pushed his approach shot to the right, and it kicked still further right into the gallery. But seconds later the ball came squirting out of the crowd, propelled by a friendly kick.

Hebert got the biggest laugh of the day when he walked to the green, near his ball, and began repairing an imaginary ball mark.

Tony Jacklin, the handsome young Englishman who started the golfing world last year when he won the United States Open, is just a bit more serious about things this season.

"Well," said Tony, still a joking, quick-smiling character. "I've got more problems now."

"Besides, the folks at home are reading the scores when I'm over here, you know. We can't have them reading that the U.S. Open champion shot a 79, now can we? We can't have the Open champion playing badly."

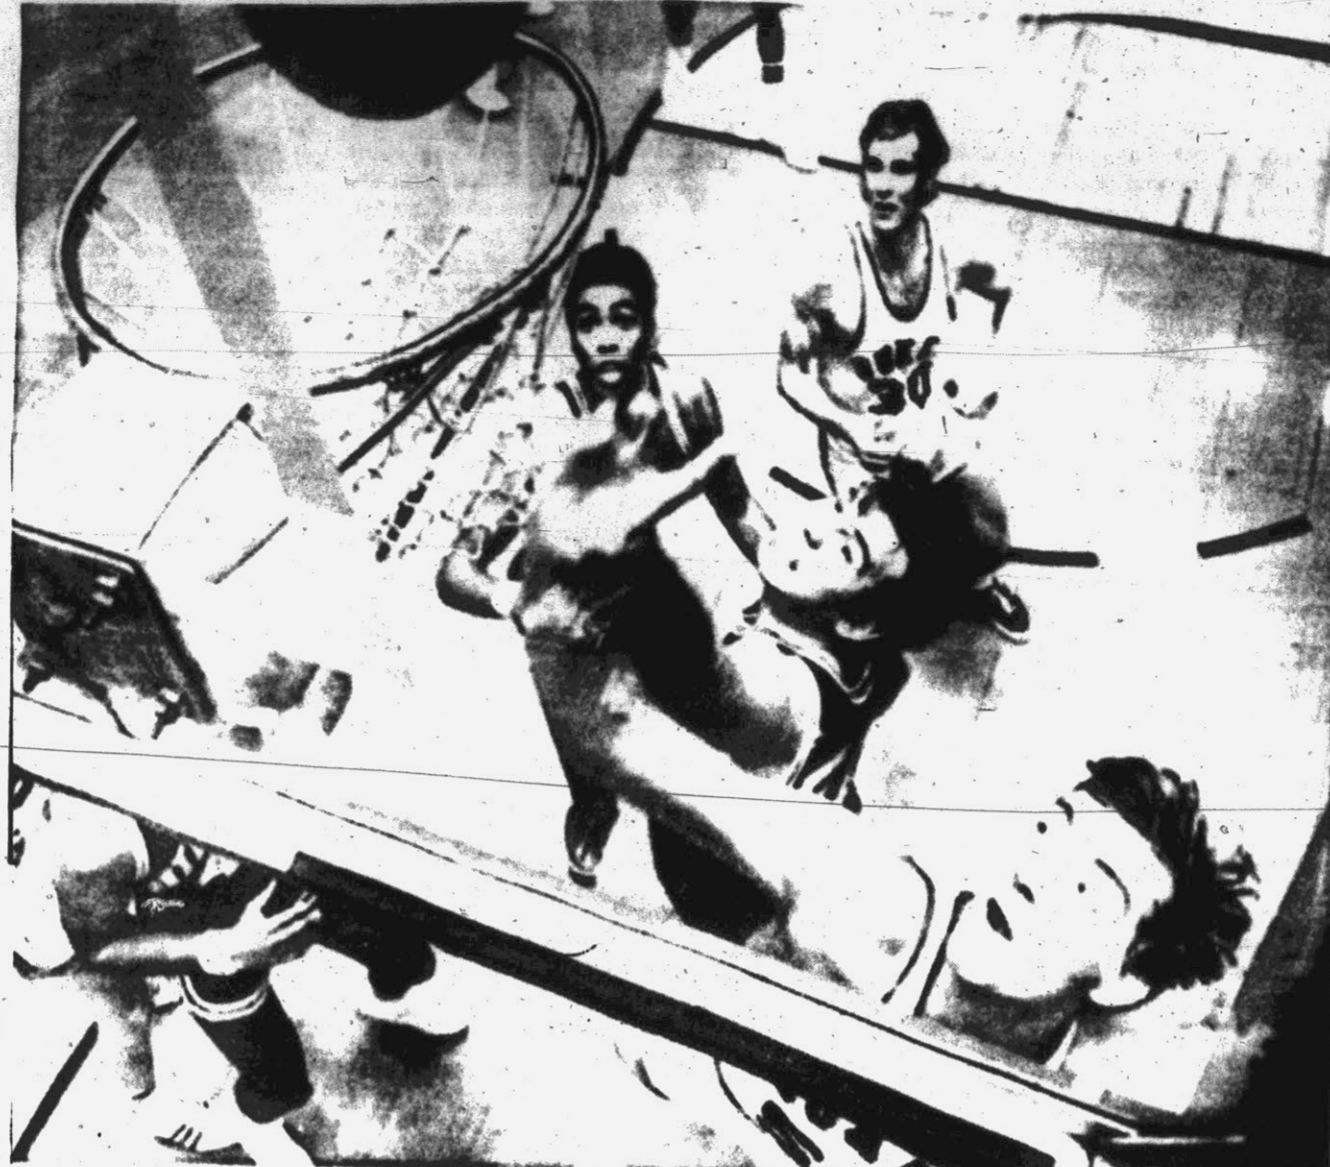

Lee Trevino was holding forth about his unique feat of having swept the titles in money winnings, exemption points and the Vardon Trophy in 1970.

"That's really quite an accomplishment," PGA champ Dave Stockton said in a gentle jibe, then draped his arm around Trevino's shoulders.

"But tell me, Lee, did you win the American version—or the Mexican version?"

Trevino, a Mexican-American, broke up.

Nine players, including Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, will not have to qualify for the U.S. Open this year because they finished in the top 15 in a special point system devised by the U.S. Golf Association.

On Way To Upset

Notre Dame, St. Bonaventure Are Top Ranked Losers Monday

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The ninth-ranked Fighting Irish of Notre Dame ran into a full-Nelson Monday night—two of them, in fact—and were pinned with their fourth defeat of the college basketball season.

Unranked Duquesne's 6-foot-10 Nelson twins went to work on the Irish and wrestled away an 81-78 overtime victory. Garry Nelson led the Dukes with 22 points, including four in the overtime period after brother Barry tied the score at 69-all with one minute left in regulation time.

Notre Dame battled back from a 12-point deficit midway through the second half and surged in front by three points with two minutes remaining before the Nelsons put the Irish down for the count.

Jarrett Durham added 20 points for Duquesne while Austin Carr had 31 and Collis Jones 27 for Notre Dame, which held onto ninth place in this week's Associated Press poll despite a loss last week.

The only other teams in the Top Ten to see action Monday night were fifth-ranked Kansas, which opened its Big Eight campaign with an 83-57 rout of Iowa State, and 10th-rated St. Bonaventure, an 80-67 loser to No. 14 Villanova.

The Jayhawks, up from eighth place a week ago, ran their record to 12-1 behind the hot shooting of Bud Stallworth and Dave Robisch. Stallworth connected on seven of eight shots in the first half as Kansas rolled to a 43-27 lead and Robisch took over in the second half to tie Iowa State's Gene Mack for scoring honors with 21 points.

Villanova, which dropped one spot to 14th despite two victories last week, raced to a 20-9 spread over St. Bonaventure and the Bonnies never got closer than six points thereafter.

A tenacious zone defense limited the losers to seven baskets in 38 first-half shots and knocked them out of contention. Villanova's Howard Porter and St. Bona's Dale Tepas shared scoring honors at 22 points.

The Bonnies, idle last week, had climbed from 12th to 10th in the poll.

In other key games, deliberate Clemson gave Tates Locke his 100th coaching triumph by upsetting North Carolina State 59-50 in the Atlantic Coast Conference and Barry Cohen's timely free throw shooting in the final two minutes preserved Georgia's 77-76 South-Eastern Conference win over Auburn. John Mengelt of the losers was held to 11 points, his lowest total since his sophomore year.

Colorado fought off a late Oklahoma State rally and edged the Cowboys 62-59 in Big Eight play. Florida State turned back tough little Stetson 78-71 and Murray State downed Bradley 79-71 in overtime.

The top four teams in the poll were unchanged. UCLA received 26 of the 28 first-place votes and 552 points and was trailed again by Marquette, Southern California and Pennsylvania. Marquette received the other two first-place ballots and cut UCLA's lead from 85 points last week to 58.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Kansas, Jacksonville, Western Kentucky, Tennessee, Notre Dame and St. Bonaventure.

Here are the top 20 major college basketball teams with total points on a 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8 etc. basis and first place votes in parentheses:

Grifton Rips South Ayden

AYDEN — Grifton High School broke a 12-game losing streak last night as they defeated the South Ayden Eagles, 94-74.

It was the first victory for the Bulldogs this year.

The contest was close throughout the first period, with Grifton inching out into a 20-19 lead. But in the second period, the Bulldogs began to pull away, building up an 18-11 edge in the period. That put Grifton into a 38-30 lead at the half.

The Bulldogs continued to pull away in the third period of play, outscoring South Ayden, 24-17, in the quarter. That left Grifton with a 62-47 lead with eight minutes to play. In the final frame, both teams caught fire, with Grifton again outscoring South Ayden, 32-27, to gain the big victory.

Gary Kelly led the victory romp with 35 points, hitting 14 field goals and seven free throws. Jim Herring added 18, Mike Tyndall had 15 and Mike Jackson put in 11.

For South Ayden, Robert Gaskins led the way with 17, while John Ormond had 15 and Samuel Holton had 12.

ECU-Cats Play Tonite

East Carolina University and Davidson College collide tonight at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum. The winter will take over sole possession of first place in the Southern Conference.

Prior to the varsity contest, the freshman teams of the two schools will meet. That game is set to get underway at 5:45 p.m.

Haywood Gets Temporary OK

By JACK STEVENSON
LOS ANGELES (AP)—Controversial Spencer Haywood, fighting a court battle against the National Basketball Association, has won approval to continue playing with the NBA Seattle SuperSonics pending further legal action.

That might come today, or it might not come until March, affecting all of professional basketball and perhaps other sports.

U. S. District Court Judge Warren Ferguson, commenting that professional athletes "cannot be used and cannot be treated as merchandise," issued a preliminary injunction Monday permitting Haywood to stay with the SuperSonics.

The judge set a trial date of March 2 for the case which includes Haywood's contention the NBA violates antitrust laws and the argument of the Denver Rockets that the player is under contract to them.

In an appellate court at San Francisco today, the NBA will argue that Judge Ferguson did not have jurisdiction in the fight between the league and the player.

That basic argument is whether Seattle could officially sign a player whose university class has not graduated. The NBA constitution and by-laws hold a collegian cannot be signed to a pro contract until that time.

Haywood, 21, an Olympic star in 1968, was signed as a financial hardship case by Denver of the American Basketball Association after his first year at the University of Detroit.

Given a reported $1.9-million pact covering six years after his first season at Denver, Haywood wasn't happy and last Dec. 28 signed with Seattle although a majority of NBA clubs objected.

Attorney William Shea, opposing the issuance of the injunction, said it could tear down what had taken the league 25 years to build and it was evident the NBA felt its draft and other rules would be in jeopardy.

Although baseball has a separate antitrust law in its behalf, basketball and football do not.

Larry Bowe's 24 steals last season were the most by a Phillies player since Tony Taylor's 26 in 1960.

Rose-New Bern Is Postponed

Rose High School's game with New Bern, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed.

The contest between the two Division II schools was set back because of the closing of the New Bern schools because of racial troubles there.

Robert Alligood, principal of Rose High School, said he did not know when the game would be rescheduled.

Rose travels to Goldsboro on Friday to meet the Cougars.

Colts Turn Attention To Annual Draft

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Quarterback insurance is high on the priority list of Baltimore's pro football champions today as they turn their attention from the Super Bowl to the upcoming National Football League draft.

But, with geriatric wonders Johnny Unitas and Earl Morrall apparently set for another whirl in 1971, Colts Coach Don McCafferty isn't anxious to make a premium payment by breaking up his old gang. "We'd like to get a good, young quarterback, but not at a high price that would break up this team," McCafferty said Monday as the Colts, savoring their 16-13 Super Bowl conquest of Dallas, prepared to make the most of the $15,000 winners' share and their new-found place in the sun.

A contingent of players and their wives headed for a Bahamas vacation. Three standouts — Bubba Smith, Mike Curtis and Jerry Logan — have playing dates in Sunday's Pro Bowl All-Star game at Los Angeles. And Unitas, a second-quarter casualty in the Super Bowl, was due to undergo further tests on his damaged ribs.

It will be back to business for the tall, soft-spoken McCafferty, a Baltimore assistant coach for 11 years before directing the Colts' redemption crusade in his first year as head man.

"The players are on their own," he said, "but we have to start working on the draft for next week."

On the agenda for the Colts' brain trust are further discussions with the Boston Patriots, who have the top pick in the draft — and the first crack at Jim Plunkett, Stanford's Heisman Trophy winner, or another of 1970's blue chip college quarterbacks.

"We have talked several times with Boston, but only in general," said Colts General Manager Don Klosterman. "No specific players were discussed. We asked the Patriots not to do anything until after the Super Bowl so we would have a fair shot. They agreed."

The Colts, whose fourth-quarter comeback against the Cowboys gave them a measure of revenge for a 16-7 loss to the New York Jets in Super Bowl III two years ago, will draft 26th. But Commissioner Pete Rozelle also has awarded them the No. 22 pick, from Miami, as a "tampering" penalty against the Dolphins for luring coach Don Shula away from Baltimore.

"That extra pick could be utilized as part of a trade package for Boston's No. 1, but the Patriots likely would demand several quality players as well. They reportedly are interested in tight end John Mackey, for one."

in trade talks. "All of them," he replied.

That would include Unitas, 37, and Morrall, 36, who have played 15 pro seasons each and don't plan to call it quits.

"I'll be back," said Unitas, who recently signed a long-term contract. "Thank God I've got six months to rest. The ribs have got to mend by then."

"I plan to keep going," said Morrall, the goat of the 1969 Super Bowl loss to the Jets but a winning relief pitcher for Unitas against the Cowboys. "I enjoy it too much to quit now."

Morrall, however, has hinted he would welcome a trade that would enable him to play regularly.

Two other long-time Baltimore fixtures — defensive tackle Billy Ray Smith and receiver Jimmy Orr — won't be back next season. They are retiring after 12 NFL seasons apiece.

console them except the $7,500 losers' share, next season won't begin soon enough.

"If our season had ended at mid-year when we were 5-4, it would have been awful tough to start over again next year," said middle linebacker Lee Roy Jordan. "But not now. We know we have a tremendous running game, a great defense and, with a little work on our passing game, we can be one of the great teams in pro football.

"I certainly don't have a complex about losing this game. And I won't take any lip from anybody about it either."

Maravich Shines In Atlanta Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pete Maravich was everywhere but Atlanta didn't go anywhere in particular, Phoenix took one step up in the standings and Kentucky moved closer to Virginia, figuratively speaking.

In the only three games on Monday night's abbreviated schedule, Atlanta outlasted Buffalo 123-113 and Phoenix dumped Cincinnati 118-99 in National Basketball Association play while Kentucky toppled Virginia 124-114 in the lone American Basketball Association game.

Maravich, Atlanta's million-dollar rookie, scored a pro career-high 41 points but the Hawks needed some clutch fourth-quarter shooting by Lou Hudson to dispose of the Braves.

"Pistol Pete" netted 23 of his points in the first half as Atlanta moved in front 68-59 — but Buffalo cut the gap to 103-102 midway in the final period before running out of gas.

Hudson hit 11 of his 22 points in that quarter and Walt Hazard, with six key points in the late drive, finished with 31. But the talent-laden Hawks remain a distant third in the NBA's Central Division, 13 games back of first-place Baltimore and 5½ back of runner-up Cincinnati.

The Royals were never seriously in their game after Phoenix exploded to a quick 10-1 lead and a 64-40 halftime advantage. The victory enabled the Suns to take sole possession of third place in the Midwest Division, dropping idle Chicago into the cellar.

Board work was the deciding factor and Paul Silas was the key. The Suns' 6-foot-7 veteran grabbed 18 rebounds in the first half and finished with 27, breaking the club record of 24. Clem Haskins led Phoenix scorers with 29 points and Tom Van Arsdale led Cincinnati with 18.

Kentucky, behind Dan Issel and Darel Carrier, held off a late Virginia rally and cut the Squires' lead in the ABA East to 5½ games. The Colonels, leading virtually all the way, got 33 points from Issel and 26 from Carrier while Charlie Scott's 23 topped Virginia.

Clemson Upsets State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just when the other seven Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams were figuring they could go to Clemson and win, the Tigers made them think twice.

Especially N.C. State.

The Wolfpack barged into Clemson Monday night in search of their third ACC triumph against four losses and a solid hold on third place in the league. Instead, the Tigers pulled off a 59-50 upset and sent State reeling into sixth place.

It was Clemson's first conference victory and couldn't have come at a better time, the start of a rough stretch. Coach Tate Locke's squad has already finished the exams that are idling many ACC teams, and plays 20 more games to the next two months. The Tigers had won only three of 10 games before the victory over the Wolfpack.

Locke won his 100th collegiate victory and said it came "as a matter of execution." His players took only 30 field goal attempts and hit half of them.

"We carried out our game plan. We stayed away from the early fouls and errors that had hurt us in previous games. Our defense was superb, as it has been in several games; but the big thing was the fact that when we got the ball we did something with it," Locke said.

The Tigers, paced by Dave Thomas' 15 points, led by as much as 12 points in the first half, eight at halftime, and 11 in the second half. They didn't get a field goal in the last 8½ minutes but held State off while sinking 13 free throws.

Paul Coder and Dan Wells had 14 points apiece for State. Wolfpack coach Norman Sloan said, "We are outthusted, outscrapped, just beat. They smelled the upset and got it. It was an ignominious defeat."

No other games were played by ACC teams Monday, and none are scheduled today. Wednesday's only game pits Georgia Tech against Clemson in the latest conference snakepit, Littlejohn Coliseum at Clemson.

Cowboys Get Heroes' Welcome

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Dallas Cowboys, defeated but unbowed heroes to home town fans, returned home to a heroes' welcome Monday — the city's first ticker tape parade in two decades.

The last time the city turned on such a parade was in 1951 to honor Gen. Douglas MacArthur, after he was relieved of command by President Harry Truman.

"You can't imagine what it means to get such a welcome back," Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said, acknowledging that team spirits sank low after Sunday's 16-13 Super Bowl loss to Baltimore.

The big celebration for a defeated team led one city official to exclaim: "If they win next year, someone will have to rebuild this town!"

The chamber of commerce arranged the parade last week, promising it would go on win or lose in Sunday's Super Bowl at Miami.

The Cowboys' plane was almost two hours late in reaching Dallas and the outpouring of fans was swelled by homeward bound workers in the downtown district. Rush hour traffic became snarled in one of the worst jams of recent history.

A big red fire truck with siren blaring led the parade, moving slowly through thousands jamming Main Street.

The players were headed by the Hella Temple Shrine band. Then came multimillionaire oilman Clint Murchison Jr., principal owner of the Cowboys, standing in a car and waving. Coach Landry and the players followed in a long line of convertibles.

Fans darted to the cars to greet the solemn-faced Cowboy players. Small boys in Cowboy uniforms screamed their welcome.

After the procession reached the steps of City Hall, there were presentations, speeches and more cheers from the crowd.

Posters waved from the sidelines. One said, "We love you, Cowboys — welcome home to Cowboy country."

And best of all, no one booed.

Holland Upset Over Wildcats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Before Davidson met St. Joseph's in an inter-sectional basketball encounter last Saturday night, Coach Terry Holland admitted he was concerned about the slump into which his Wildcats had fallen.

"We've been sluggish," said Holland, whose team to that point was 7-4 over-all. "It's like a midyear slump. We're not getting consistency for 40 minutes. Our concern is to really get back cracking now and new faces may help."

The new faces may have helped, but the Wildcats still saw their record fall to 7-5 in an 85-84 defeat in which they came from 19 points down and had two shots at the basket blocked in the last 17 seconds.

"We're standing around," Holland said of the Wildcats going into the game with St. Joseph's. "I really think we're complacent. We're not playing terrible basketball, but we're not playing well enough to win."

If the Wildcats are to carry top seeding into the conference's championship tournament, which they've won the last three years, they'd better start playing well enough to win — beginning tonight. The Wildcats have a date at East Carolina, whose Pirates were a preseason choice to give Davidson a run for the title. At the moment, the two teams are tied for the lead with 3-1 league records.

Tonight's winner takes over undisputed possession of first place and the loser falls back into what then will be a four-way tie for second with The Citadel, Furman and William and Mary, all 3-2.

Davidson was the last conference team to open its season and the opponent was East Carolina. The result of that Dec. 9 meeting at the Charlotte Coliseum was a 77-61 victory for the Wildcats, who since then have had their 35-game victory streak ended inside the league by Furman. The Davidson-East Carolina game is the only one tonight for conference teams. All were idle Monday night.

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — The City of Shreveport lost its Texas League franchise at the end of the 1970 season, but gained another Monday when the owner of the El Paso Sun Kings announced he would move the franchise here for the 1971 season.

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Prize money for this year's Malaysian Open Golf Tourney will total $25,000, the same as last year but so far still the highest in the Far East circuit, promoters reported Monday.

The Malaysian Open, third leg of the Asian golf circuit, will be held March 11-14.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Football Conference has an extra halfback to choose from today as it plots the defeat of the American Football Conference team in Sunday's Pro Bowl game at the Coliseum.

The 41st player on the NFC squad will be Mel Farr, the Detroit Lion halfback with the long stride. The 6-foot-2, 210-pounder rejoined the team Monday and passed his physical.

Farr received enough votes to qualify for the team but it was feared an injury he suffered late in the regular season would prohibit his participation. Late last week he asked Commissioner Pete Rozelle if he could play; he said he wanted to very much.

With the approval, Farr worked out with the NFC team Monday at UCLA, his alma mater. The man named in Farr's stead, Minnesota's Dave Osborne, remains on the team.

The AFC team worked out at the University of Southern California.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There was so much difference in ages that it could have been a Father-Son awards night. But both men were star quarterbacks honored as outstanding players of the year.

George Blanda, at 43 still a pressure kicker and a solid backup quarterback for the Oakland Raiders, and Jim Plunkett, still a Stanford College student, received Maxwell Club awards here Monday.

Plunkett, Stanford's hotshot passer who earlier received the Heisman Trophy, was given the Maxwell Award for the college player of the year.

Blanda, who got the Bert Bell award as pro player of the year, said he would continue playing pro football "as long as I can contribute to the Raiders' success and meet with the approval of coaches."

Carolinas Teams Have Good Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Carolinas Conference basketball teams scored a perfect three-for-three record Monday night against outside opponents.

Pfeiffer beat Belmont Abbey, 78-77; Presbyterian downed Mars Hill, 74-64; and Lenoir Rhyne beat Wofford, 75-61. No other games were scheduled for league teams.

The Pfeiffer Falcons had won only three times and lost 10 games before narrowly whipping the Abbey. Ray Dancey paced the winners with 23 points, although Bob Breen of Belmont Abbey was the game's high scorer with 27 points.

Pfeiffer led by three points with 10 seconds to play and an Abbey field goal with one second to go didn't threaten the outcome.

Presbyterian won its 11th game in 15 starts with the triumph over Mars Hill, which led by two points midway the second half but fell to a seven-point outburst from the Blue Hose.

Fred Nelson scored 28 points to top Presbyterian scoring. Rodney Johnson scored 22 for Mars Hill.

Lenoir Rhyne went seven minutes with only two points to show for it but survived to beat Wofford. The Terriers led Lenoir Rhyne at halftime but soon fell behind in the second half and never caught up.

Dan Williams topped Bear scoring with 15 points. Tom Nagle had 14 for Wofford.

In games involving two former conference members, Winston-Salem beat Appalachian, 84-81; and Western Carolina beat South Carolina State, 97-89.

Only one game is scheduled tonight for a conference team: College of Charleston is at Newberry.

Parkhill Is Soph Of Week

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Barry Parkhill, who hit the dramatic jumper to give Virginia a 50-49 win over South Carolina, a week ago, has been picked by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association as the Atlantic Coast Conference Sophomore of the Week.

The selection of Parkhill, who was chosen for the second time this season, gave Virginia a clean sweep of the weekly honors. Earlier, teammate Bill Gerry was chosen the ACC Player of the Week.

In addition to providing the winning basket in the South Carolina victory, Parkhill also contributed the clinching points in the 89-84 win over Georgia Tech Saturday night. With the Cavaliers leading 85-84, he made two free throws and then stole a Georgia Tech inbound pass and scored at the buzzer.

The 6-3 performer from State College, Pa., had 43 points for three games last week and contributed 19 assists. He tied a Virginia schools record with 13 assists in a win over Wake Forest.

"He's one of the top three guards in the ACC beyond any doubt," said Coach Bill Gibbon. "He makes things happen."

Parkhill is the No. 17 scorer in the ACC with a 13.5 average. He's the seventh best free throw shooter.

Worry Clinic Experience In A Paper Route

Mr. Stone acquired his superb "Horse Sense" by his versatile experience as a newspaper boy. No other work so ably teaches children our superb "free enterprise" system, with its 3-part formula of production, merchandising and credit. Newspaper boys thus get "vaccinated" against vandalism, divorce and the hippie craze.

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Case P-550: W. Clement Stone, at the age of 6, was selling newspapers on the streets of Chicago.

At 13, he bought a corner news stand and at 20, he launched into the insurance field.

He is now one of the most successful insurance tycoons in all the world!

It is thus noted for "Horse Sense," which is that fund of practical experience you seldom can glean from textbooks.

It develops from meeting the workaday problems of real life.

Newspaper boys gain a wide variety of assets that equip them for sterling success in adulthood, such as:

- Practical understanding of psychology.

every day to get on the job and forego play, is a superb prelude to the adult husband's behavior when he also shoulders the responsibility for a wife and family.

Newspaper boys thus are not as likely to have their marriages end in divorce.

Nor do they congregate on street corners to hatch up devilment, due to lack of chores and too much idle time!

And they abhor vandalism, for newspaper boys gain a sense of values and thus don't care to destroy property "just for kicks."

(5) Newspaper boys likewise gain the ONLY true picture of our "free enterprise" economic system.

For this system involves 3 parts, namely, production, merchandising (including sales and delivery of goods), plus credit (bookkeeping and the determination of "net" vs. "gross" profit).

Other children, even if you parents make them work for their own spending money (as you should do) still are merely employed in just one phase of that 3-part system.

In fact, most of us wage earners miss out on the broad economic perspective that newspaper boys acquire early.

For we may earn our wages in "production," as by making shoes or bricks or writing newspaper copy, or raising corn and mining coal.

But we then are not asked to "merchandise" our wares, for others are employed in the advertising, sales and merchandising or packaging branches of that 2nd aspect of the 3-part process.

Finally, the bank tellers, store cashiers, bookkeepers and accountants work in the "credit" phase of our "free enterprise" system.

But newspaper boys buy at wholesale, then merchandise and on the "Small Merchant" plan, they also collect, after which they balance their books to determine their "net."

Alas, a lot of our "liberal" professors and Congressmen never have had proper training in "net" vs. "gross."

So you parents should urge your children to carry a newspaper route for at least a year. It is topnotch preparation for successful adulthood!

Macaroni And Spaghetti Up

NEW YORK (AP) — The American public really did a lot of twirling in 1970—spaghetti twirling that is.

A record total of 1,542,991,660 pounds of macaroni products—spaghetti, elbow macaroni, egg noodles and other shapes and sizes—was consumed. This is a 10 per cent increase over 1969 according to Robert M. Green, executive director of the National Macaroni Institute.

Unlikely Story, But It's True

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A Charlotte woman had an unlikely-sounding story to tell her husband about damages to her car but police say it is true.

The woman-parked her expensive, 1970 model auto at the curb outside a beauty shop and went inside a beauty shop, workmen trimming a tree cut the top from the tree which fell on some power lines.

The lines broke and fell on the car, causing $200 exterior damage from burns.

The use of this hand in my daily script is perhaps of doubtful wisdom for actually it proves nothing, but since some of my readers may find in this anecdote something of entertainment value it is submitted for what little it may be worth, and the reader is at liberty to provide his own moral.

As for the bidding perhaps the less said the better. From the diagram it is obvious that South was of the "cowboy" school and, once in the saddle, he was not to be denied.

Justice would have been better served had West come off to the king of spades lead.

Statistics Confirm National Economy Is Sagging

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has released statistics confirming the ailing health of the nation's economy in 1970, a year in which the Gross National Product dropped for the first time in 12 years and prices vaulted 5 per cent.

Release of the figures Monday coincided with the latest decision by the Federal Reserve Board to ease credit in line with President Nixon's expanding economy program.

The Fed trimmed the interest rate it charges member banks from 5 1/2 to 5 per cent Monday, the second cut in two weeks and the fourth since mid-November. These cuts are supposed to be passed on to business and consumers.

The Commerce Department announcement that prices in 1970 rose at an annual rate of 5 per cent marked the steepest one-year advance since 1951. The Gross National Product drop of nearly one-half of 1 per cent was the first decline in that key indicator since 1958.

The economic picture was gloomier during the last quarter as inflation jumped 5.75 per cent and the real GNP, the output of goods and services valued in uninfated dollars, skidded 3.3 per cent. The Commerce Department said real GNP, measured by 1958 dollars, dropped to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $721.3 billion in the last three months of 1970, down from the $727.4 billion in the previous quarter.

Measured in terms of current, inflated dollars, the GNP increased to $991 billion, up $5.5 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate.

"Trillion Dollar Day" for the GNP was rung up Dec. 15 on a device similar to a big cash register in the Commerce Department's lobby.

However, the national output actually is measured by quarter years: the first quarter of 1971 is expected to be the first three months to show the trillion-dollar rate.

President Nixon, who has been trying to battle inflation and at the same time step up the economy to reduce a 6 per cent unemployment rate, called on the construction industry's labor and management leaders Monday to take "early action to attack the wage and price spiral."

He said inflation in the industry had reached crisis proportions and asked industry leaders to make recommendations to him within 30 days.

In a recent New York speech, Nixon said in effect that, if bargaining procedures in the construction industry failed to shape up, the government might be forced to intervene. He suggested a system of regional bargaining.

The White House subsequently attacked oil and steel price increases.

Bethlehem Steel, after raising prices by 13 per cent last week, rolled back the increase to 6.8 per cent, the same as posted by U.S. Steel as a followup.

Nixon's advisers weren't entirely happy with the 6.8 per cent rise, which apparently will be a pattern for the industry. Nixon had called the original Bethlehem increase enormous and threatened to relax steel import quotas to increase the supply at home.

The Commerce Department tried to temper the effect of the GNP drop by blaming much of the depressed output on the 2 1/2-month General Motors strike late in the year.

But there was a lot of slack, too, marked by a decline of private investment after an increase a year earlier, and more dollar-hoarding by consumers.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., slated to be chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee, said the GNP decline is a "tragic failure of the Nixon game plan."

"This is the first time the economy has run backwards in 12 years," Proxmire said.

Walter J. Hickel, fired by Nixon last year as secretary of interior, told newsmen the administration's economic policies have been disastrous. He blamed Nixon's advisers.

Commerce Department economist Harold C. Passer, mirroring previous Nixon statements, predicted the economy would snap back strongly in the first part of 1971 from the hamstringing effects of the auto strike.

Nixon plans also to give it a big boost, setting federal spending in his new budget in the red — possibly by as much as $15 billion — to increase demand.

The Federal Reserve said it lowered the discount rate merely to reflect the already declining short-term interest rates in the economy.

The Treasury bill weekly rate dropped Monday to the lowest level in more than three years. And the prime interest rate, the amount large banks charge their biggest customers, slid to 6 per cent Monday.

The drop in interest rates is helping contribute to what the government calls a housing boom.

In December, the Commerce Department said, privately-owned housing starts reached an annual rate of 1,987,000 units, highest level in about 20 years. The November pace was 1,688,000 units.

Nat'l Forest Is Given Reprieve

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP)— Joyce Kilmer Memorial Forest got a reprieve Monday from a federally financed highway that had been routed through a portion of the preserve.

The forest, near Robbinsville in far western North Carolina, lies near the route of a road being built from Robbinsville to Tellico Plains, Tenn. Federal officials said revised plans will put the highway just outside the northern boundary of the forest.

Earlier, as many as 200 acres of the forest were planned for the highway.

The road was begun in 1965. About six miles are finished in North Carolina and 12 in Tennessee.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As cleanup crews worked around the clock, officials said today that with good weather the giant oil slick spread over San Francisco Bay after two tankers collided may be disposed of in two or three days.

There was no immediate estimate of damage to property and wildlife. But there were isolated reports of oil-covered waterfowl, especially long-necked coots. And a family of seals clambered up on a navigation buoy to escape the surging goo.

The Coast Guard said it was the biggest oil slick in the bay's history, spreading at least a dozen miles. A hole in one of the tankers spilled between 500,000 and 1.9 million gallons of the thick bunker oil used to fuel ships, the Coast Guard said.

By comparison, the leakage from an oil well blowout two years ago in the Santa Barbara Channel has been estimated variously at between 750,000 and 2.2 million gallons. The Torrey Canyon tanker disaster in 1967 spread an estimated 31 million gallons off French and British beaches.

Champion Skier In Acting Debut

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jean Claude Killy is preparing for his debut as an actor. It's due to happen next month when the champion skier stars in a Hollywood-financed romantic adventure drama.

John Calley, production chief of Warner Brothers, announced Monday the French athlete will play the lead in "Schuss," produced by Edward Rissien and directed by George Englund.

Production is expected to begin in late February at Cervinia in the Italian Alps.

Killy has performed in television commercials and documentaries but never in a dramatic role. He won three Gold Medals in the 1968 Olympic Winter Games.

The oil began spreading over the bay at 1:45 a.m. Monday when the outbound Oregon Standard and the inbound Arizona Standard collided in dense fog almost under the Golden Gate Bridge.

No one was injured, but the Arizona's prow knifed into the Oregon and damaged six compartments, said a spokesman for Standard Oil of California. The firm owns both of the 523-foot 17,000-ton vessels.

Barges and pumps first attacked the center of the slick around the Oregon, where she dropped anchor three miles inside the gate. Booms of floating plastic were laid to contain the oil. Hay was spread to absorb it.

Reptile-Herders In Show-Off Contest

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — For once at the huge sports stadium here the performers did more hissing than the spectators. It was a national snake handling contest.

The idea was to raise money for local charities. It also gave Malaysia's reptile herders a bit of glory for their daily drudgery of going under the fang.

The actual competition was the low point. All handlers had to do was transfer 30 coiling, hissing snakes capable of an instant death sentence from one box to another.

In fact, it was so easy that the winner managed to pick up the snakes—tangled together like biting spaghetti—and plop them into the in-basket in 34 seconds without a fang mark on him.

The part that brought the 15,000 spectators to the edge of their seats at the recent one-day show was the demonstration by old pros who didn't even bother with the competition.

Daslagir bin Husini, for example, gave a few friendly kisses to a king cobra which he off-handedly mentions can kill a man in five minutes. Then Ong Yeok Fei, called and it was gathered up by skimming it from the surface.

Pumper trucks went to work on the shore, where the oil was held by booms and men shoveled the oil-covered hay into dump trucks. Where they could reach it, the pumper trucks sucked up the oil directly from the shore.

Standard said it had 34 boats outfitted with vacuum devices to suck oil from the water's surface, along with 20 dump trucks to carry away oil soaked hay and other materials. The firm said it used 375 laborers and 15 tank trucks to carry away oil drawn from the water. Workers were using 8,500 bales of straw, another 1,000 bales of excelsior and 6,800 feet of floating plastic.

"Iron Hand" by his intimates, wrapped a 168-pound python around him for flavor while he bent six iron bars with his muscle-clad throat. A squeezing python exerts about three pounds of pressure per pound of its weight.

Yeoh Keng Seng stuffed the heads of two deadly kraits in his mouth while 30 of their teammates crawled around him. Then he scooped them up and fashioned them into a squirming turban.

Not to be outdone, 66-year-old Wong Chong, clad in jungle brush tied around his waist and shoeless, grabbed an armful of bigger kraits than Yeoh's and coiled the brightly banded snakes around him.

He gave the biggest a hearty kiss on the nose.

There were other exhibitions, like how to turn a highly venomous green snake into a household pet or how to make a cobra dance.

The night raised something near $10,000 for retarded children and other causes from a crowd that was bigger than the one attending the Thomas Cup World Badminton Championships here recently.
