

Statewide Extra Sales Tax Sponsors Doubtful

RALEIGH (AP) — The sponsors of a bill to levy an extra one cent sales tax statewide in North Carolina with the extra revenue going to counties and cities are not hopeful of its passage.

The bill was offered Thursday by members of the Buncombe delegation to replace the 1 per cent local option sales tax law which the State Supreme Court outlawed Wednesday.

"I'm not at all sanguine about the chances of getting this bill through," said Rep. Herschel Harkins, D-Buncombe, who sponsored the bill along with Reps. Calude DeBruhl and John Stevens, both D-Buncombe.

Stevens expressed the opinion that a bill proposed by John Morrissey, general counsel for the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, stands a much better chance. Morrissey said the bill he is planning would give county commissioners authority to impose extra one-cent sales taxes.

Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake chairman of the Local Government Study Commission, sponsored a bill to rewrite and codify laws dealing with municipal elections. The measure would provide for uniform times for holding municipal elections and would set fourth uniform registration requirements. The proposed new municipal election law would replace a batch of laws in municipal charters which are not uniform.

Rep. Ernest Paschall, D-Wilson, introduced a bill to establish a policy of open meetings for public agencies.

The bill would require open meetings of public bodies except when (1) dealing with personnel matters, (2) when the purchases of property was being considered, and (3) when a pending court action was being considered. Exempted from the requirement for open meetings would be juries and grand juries, the council of state, the board of paroles, the board of probation and agencies for which the constitution allows closed sessions. A bill to reestablish the office of constable in the state was offered by Reps. Jack Rhyne and Carl Stewart, D-Gaston.

Rep. Joy J. Johnson, D-Robeson, one of two Negro legislators in the General Assembly, sponsored a bill to require state agencies to "give equal opportunity for employment, without regard to race, religion, color, creed, national origin or sex to all persons otherwise qualified."

Another bill by Johnson would prohibit the state Board of Education from using National Teacher Examination scores in the certification of public school teachers.

Phnom Penh Airport Hit

By ROBIN MANNOCK
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — A rocket, mortar and commando attack on Phnom Penh's airport and a nearby military camp and ammunition dumps early today took a heavy toll of lives, wrecked Cambodia's tiny air force and overshadowed the Cambodian army's success in its drive to reopen the highway to the sea.

The casualty count was not available, but the number of Cambodian killed and wounded were estimated at more than 100. Only one or two of the attackers were reported killed.

Newsmen were barred from the airport, eight miles outside the city, and no accurate count of the destruction was available. But Cambodian officers said six of their air force's eight helicopters were destroyed and the other two were extensively damaged.

From a nearby rooftop, it appeared that few if any military planes on the field could fly. The military flight line looked like a junkyard.

The destruction of the air force was likely to have little if any effect on the prosecution of the war since most of the air attacks in Cambodia are flown by the U.S. and South Vietnamese air forces. But it was a severe psychological blow to Premier Lon Nol's government and the U.S. and South Vietnamese air forces.

Eyewitnesses also reported the closest enemy attack yet to the center of Phnom Penh, a rocket that landed in a riverside shipyard on the edge of downtown Phnom Penh. As firemen fought the blaze at the yard, a battle could be seen close to the naval base across another of the capital's rivers, with tracer bullets curving through the night sky and numerous explosions echoing across the waters.

Trucks hauled bodies and scores of blood-spattered women and children into Phnom Penh from the airport and army camp eight miles outside the city. The death toll was not known, but it was feared it would be high.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong commandos, moving under cover of a rocket and mortar bombardment, slipped into the gatehouse at the airport's civilian terminal during the night and killed all the guards. Then they put on the guards' uniforms and ran among the buildings and planes, throwing satchel charges and shooting.

About the same time, other enemy troops attacked an army camp near the airport, and one eyewitness said the destruction was almost total.

A series of unexplained explosions last fall in the same camp killed 50 persons.

The attacks took place about 12 hours after Cambodian infantrymen recaptured the heights commanding part of Pick Nil pass, 60 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on Highway 4, the capital's lifeline to the sea. The seizure of the mountaintop position climaxed a week-long offensive by 15,000 Cambodian and South Vietnamese troops aided by heavy U.S. air strikes and was the Cambodians' biggest success in the war to date.

4-Hour Return

LONDON (AP) — Hundreds of Britain's striking postal workers returned briefly to their jobs today to pay weekly allowances to mothers and old-age pensioners. But union leaders rejected a post office appeal to arbitrate the pay dispute.

The postal workers reopened counters at postoffices to avoid serious hardship for mothers and old people. The government pays pensions and family allowances to mothers with more than two children through the postoffices.

The strikers offered to man this emergency service for four hours each Friday during the walkout.

Postal officials said the strike situation, in its third day, was largely unchanged, with about one-third of the telephone operators on duty and telegraph and mail services halted.

16 Missing After Explosion

CAGLIARI, Sardinia (AP) — The 83,862-ton American tanker Universe Patriot caught fire after an explosion off Sardinia during the night. Sixteen of the 39-man crew are missing.

Two ships picked up the German captain and 16 of his men early this morning. Later, six others were rescued after spending the night in the rough waters in a rubber raft.

The Cagliari Military Marine Headquarters and the Civil Port Authority said their earlier report that 22 men were on the raft was mistaken. Only six men were aboard according to the latest message from the rescue ship, a Panamanian freighter.

Italian officials quoted the rescued captain as saying the tanker had other rubber rafts and the 16 missing men may be on them.

Report Truman's Condition Good

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman remained in good condition at Research Hospital today, the hospital reported.

The 86-year-old Truman, hospitalized Thursday morning with stomach pains, sat up in bed this morning to drink some tea and read a newspaper, a medical bulletin said at 10:30 a.m. EST.

Hospital spokesmen said Truman had a reasonably restful night.

Dr. Wallace Graham, Truman's physician, has given no diagnosis of the ailment. He has said only that he will know more when he has the results of tests within a few days.

State Of The Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, his eye presumably fixed on 1972, delivers his State of the Union message tonight, outlining for Congress and the nation "new approaches and new initiatives" he thinks will ease the country's problems.

Nixon went out of his way to promise in advance the boldest and most far-reaching remedies ever proposed for national ills.

The traditional message will be delivered live to a joint session of Congress and will be televised and broadcast beginning at 9 p.m. EST.

For a brief time, consideration was given to postponing the speech because of the death Thursday afternoon of one of the most powerful senators, Democrat Richard B. Russell of Georgia.

The White House said it checked with aides to Russell, dean and president pro tem of the Senate, and with the congressional leadership and was advised Nixon should deliver his address as scheduled.

The focus of the President's remarks will be domestic problems and his prescriptions for dealing with them. Foreign policy questions will be dealt with in mid-February in a lengthy written document informally labeled the President's "state of the world" report.

Because Nixon's State of the Union remarks are aimed squarely at problems at home, all black members of the House announced in advance they will boycott the session. They wrote Nixon:

"Your consistent refusal to hear the pleas and concerns of black Americans dictates our decision to be absent."

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., only black in the Senate, said he will attend the joint session.

Simple House Routine Of Formally Opening Broke Down Thursday

Rejects Proposal

Premier Golda Meir said today Israel will not accept Egypt's proposal for an international peace force to guard any future border arrangement in the Middle East.

"On no account whatsoever would such a force be a substitute for secure, recognized and defensible borders," Mrs. Meir said in an interview with the Israeli newspaper Maariv.

Egypt called this week for establishment of a U.N. peace-keeping force in which the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France, as permanent members of the U.N. Security Council, would participate. Israel has made plain it opposes any Big Four role in a Middle East settlement.

In Beirut, Premier Saeb Salam told a closed session of parliament that Lebanon plans to set up a missile defense system to ward off Israeli attacks.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Chance of rain Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Cooler Monday, followed by warming subsided, after the television lights faded, after new Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., declared "we must not flounder," the House floundered.

The simple routine of opening a new Congress—electing officers and adopting rules—became an unmanageable problem and was finally abandoned in favor of new try today.

The Thursday breakdown came when Republicans learned belatedly rules they were being asked to adopt would deprive them of $1.5 million in committee funds they had been guaranteed.

The guarantee, contained in the Reorganization Act passed last year, gave the Republicans one-third of the committees' investigative staff funds.

The provision was put in on the floor last year by a bipartisan reform coalition over the opposition of the committee chairmen.

It was removed Wednesday in the secrecy of the Democratic caucus. To guard against having it restored on the floor, the caucus took a step unprecedented in modern times and bound all Democrats to support the caucus position.

That was the situation the Republicans found themselves in when called on to approve the rules as amended by the Democratic caucus.

When they learned what had been done, particularly that all Democrats were bound to support the action, incensed Republicans demanded the presence of a quorum—218 members—and the day that began with the bright promise of a new era degenerated into a dreary round of roll calls. With the receptions, luncheons and other parties that always mark opening day on Capitol Hill, it was impossible to keep a quorum present. And Albert finally called for adjournment, leaving the rules unadopted.

The provision eliminated by the Democrats would have allowed Republicans to control the share they get from committee funds. At present, Democrats control the money and through their committee chairmen negotiate with the ranking GOP committee members to determine what the minority party will get.

Receive Four Press Awards

Four members of The Daily Reflector Staff were honored in Chapel Hill last night as award winners in the annual North Carolina Press Association awards program.

David J. Whichard, III, publisher and editor; Alvin Taylor, managing editor; Woody Peele, sports editor; and Tommy Forrest, staff photographer, are the four given awards for their contributions in journalism in North Carolina during the past year.

Whichard is recipient of third place award in editorial writing in 1970. Judging for editorials is based on the entry of three editorials as a unit. Editorials submitted by

Whichard for the annual award consideration were: "Good Era and Exciting One;" "No Broken Down Politician;" and "Young Deserve Confidence."

This marks the fifth year Whichard has been a recipient of one of the annual awards with other awards received in 1969, 1970, 1971.

and 1965. In 1964 a first place award was given Whichard for editorials published in newspapers of under 20,000 circulation.

In the feature photograph division of the annual awards, staff photographer Tommy Forrest placed third. A previous winner in 1968.

Ullom Honored For His Service To Community

By TOM BAINES

A Greenville man who has dedicated his life to the service of our youth was named the recipient of the 1970 Distinguished Service Award Thursday night at the Jaycee's 25th annual DSA and Bosses Night Banquet.

Dick Ullom, 30-year old executive director of the Boys' Club of Greenville, was honored by his fellow Jaycees as the young man who has contributed the most to his community in terms of leadership and service during 1970.

The personable young director, who has helped make the idea of year round, wholesome activities for many of the local young people a reality, follows another man who is active in the affairs of youth, Boyd Lee, in receiving the award.

Lee, director of the Greenville Recreation Commission, introduced the speaker for the night, Jack D. Vest of Winston-Salem, who later presented Ullom with the annual award.

A native of Steubenville, Ohio, Ullom came to Greenville in 1968 where he became the first executive director of the Boys' Club of Greenville, Inc.

Since his graduation from Atlantic Christian College in 1962, he has directed his energies and leadership ability to the youth, having served as program director and later as executive director of Boys' Club Inc. of Dothan, Ala.

Ullom was also instrumental in the founding of the Boys' Club of Jackson, Tenn.

This past year, two years since the founding of the local Boys' Club, Ullom saw the chartering of a second unit in Greenville with Boys' Clubs of America.

In the introduction of Ullom last night, it was noted that not only has he worked closely with the boys of the club, but he has "spread his enthusiasm and

N.C. Republicans To Submit Own Budgetary Plans

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Republicans who accused Gov. Bob Scott of violating a pledge to bring teachers' salaries up to the national average during his administration are planning budget recommendations of their own.

"We're going to present a far more comprehensive program than what the governor has recommended," said Rep. Charles H. Taylor, House minority leader.

The Transylvania County Republican said GOP legislators would call for bigger teacher pay raises than the governor has recommended, more money for the public kindergarten program, increasing the length of term for which teachers are paid, and reducing the teacher load.

"We're realistic enough to know it's going to take a lot of money," Taylor added in an interview.

The GOP leader indicated the Republicans might call for reductions in the budget for higher education in order to find more public school money. He said the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission recommended more than $375 million for higher education in the coming biennium.

"There's an inequitable relationship between the higher education budget and the public kindergarten budget," Taylor said.

"I think by the time we get an opportunity to go through the budget thoroughly, we'll be able to find a number of items that can be reduced or eliminated."

Taylor pointed to a proposed appropriation to put a heliport on a state building in Raleigh, a proposed $25-million appropriation to operate the governor's office and the Department of Administration, and a proposal to spend $200,000 for a state liaison office in Washington.

In accusing the governor of violating a pledge to school teachers, Taylor said Scott told the General Assembly in his 1969 budget message that reaching the national average "is my goal. But it cannot be accomplished entirely during this biennium. Instead, the goal of a national average for teachers must come in two steps, one in this biennium and one in the next."

Taylor said Scott could have kept his promise if he "had given a higher priority to education in 1969" and then come back this session to recommend substantial increases.

Taylor said he agrees with the governor that it now would be "unrealistic" to seek the national average during the next two years.

"But our goal will be to get as close to the national average in this biennium as we possibly can," he said.

"We think the governor's program will be such a blow to teacher morale that the General Assembly is going to have to take a meaningful step in this area," he added.

"He (Gov. Scott) not only failed to keep his pledge made in last year's budget statement, but his recommended budget will actually widen the gap between our average and the national average by almost 60 per cent."

Taylor asserted that the governor's budget recommendations fall drastically short of meeting the requests of the State Board of Education for teacher pay, kindergartens and reducing the teacher load.

For example, he said the board asked $21 million for kindergartens to bring the program to about 25 per cent of the eligible children while the governor and the Budget Commission recommended only $3.3 million that would provide free kindergartens to only 3 per cent of the eligible children.

"If we keep going at that rate we will be in the next century before we have a meaningful kindergarten program," Taylor said.

Dying Senator's Proxy Vote Made Byrd 'Whip'

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With the deathbed vote of a Senate patriarch, Robert C. Byrd, a West Virginia conservative, has deposed Edward M. Kennedy as Democratic whip of the Senate.

In a day of drama, sorrow and surprise, Senate Democrats gave a more conservative cast to their party's leadership—and dealt a setback to whatever prospect remained that Kennedy might emerge a contender for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

The crucial vote was that of the dying Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, cast by proxy. Without it, Byrd said, he never would have run, never would have known he had more than enough votes to oust Kennedy from the party's No. 2 position in the Senate.

caucus unannounced, awaiting word from Walter Reed Army Medical Center about Russell's condition.

He had word from Russell's staff Monday that the proxy vote of the Georgia senator would be cast for him. And by Byrd's count, that gave him 28 votes, just enough to win.

"I made up my mind, if he were living, I'd run," Byrd said. "If Sen. Russell had not been living, I would not have run."

The speeches nominating Kennedy for whip already had been when Byrd slipped from the caucus room off the Senate floor, checked with an aide to Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., on the condition of Russell.

"He told me it was exactly what it had been," Byrd said. He walked back into the room and with a nod of his head, signaled Sen. Jennings Randolph, his West Virginia colleague, that he would challenge Kennedy. Randolph made the speech nominating Byrd.

Within four hours, Russell, who had been re-elected president pro-tem of the Senate at the same caucus, was dead.

Almost unnoticed amid the Democratic drama, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott withstood the challenge of Sen. Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee at the GOP caucus.

Scott won re-election 24 to 20. The defeat could raise political problems for Baker, who will be up for re-election in 1972.

Mansfield was re-elected without opposition as majority leader, a job he already has held for a record 10 years.

Sen. Frank E. Moss of Utah was elected to succeed Byrd as secretary of the Democratic caucus.

Teachers To Press For Money

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — "I'm going to take my placards and go out on the streets," declared a Wake County school teacher.

A Wayne County teacher suggested a march or strike: "I don't want to hurt my kids, but we can't keep going on like this," she said.

A third said he "no longer really hopes for the national average salary... I'd settle for a few fringe benefits."

The three were among nearly 1,500 school teachers from across North Carolina who gathered in a Raleigh theater Thursday to hear a live broadcast of Gov. Bob Scott's budget message and to protest Scott's recommended spending for public education.

As they listened and voiced their reactions, a crowd of several hundred teachers picketed the Legislative Building two blocks away with signs reading "Apples no, Money yes," "Teachers care, do you?" and "I suffer from low pay, three-month lay-off, no hospitalization and no paid holidays."

to voice their disappointment and anger over the governor's address.

"I'm stunned that the governor would allow this assembly to hear the address it just heard," one veteran teacher said.

Others suggested strikes, a march on the Legislative Building or letter-writing campaigns.

Several suggested spending more money on "prevention than cures"—that is, cutting back funds for mental health and juvenile correction facilities and putting more into kindergartens and other educational programs.

Another educator suggested the NCAE put into effect a professional sanction notifying all teachers that teaching conditions in the state are not satisfactory.

The suggestion, made by Glenn Bemisderfer of Davidson County, received a standing ovation from a majority of the teachers in the hall. It is the first step in a series of professional sanctions that stop just short of a strike.

However, the suggestion received a cool reaction from NCAE president Jerry D. Paschal of Goldsboro and other NCAE officials present.

Paschal reminded the group that the meeting was not called to take any action and suggested that the group wait until its April convention in Charlotte to see if "the seeds planted today are beginning to bear fruit" in the legislature.

The earliest time the group could consider such a move would be at the NCAE directors meeting Jan. 29.

The NCAE is seeking a 30 per cent teacher pay hike during the biennium at a cost of $203 million. Scott has recommended a 10 per cent increase at a cost of $63 million.

The teachers also want $20.6 million in fringe benefits. No funds for fringe benefits were included in Scott's proposed budget.

Synthesized The Memory Molecule

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A scientist at Baylor College of Medicine says a molecule capable of transferring memory from one rat to another has been synthesized.

Dr. Georges Ungar said Thursday artificial reproduction of the memory molecule opens the door to unlocking the complex chemical language of learning.

He said that although he has used the memory transfer method only in rats he is "fairly certain" the same principle will work in man.

He said how soon the technique might be applied to humans will depend largely on how rapidly his research team gets "badly needed" funds.

Ungar, 64, a native of Hungary and professor of pharmacology in the anesthesiology department at Baylor, has been working on the memory molecule project almost three years.

He said the artificial substance is identical to a naturally occurring molecule responsible for memory transfer from one animal to another. He said it is less expensive and easier to make than to extract the natural molecule.

In his experiments, Ungar trained rats and mice to fear darkness although they normally seek dark places and are active at night.

This was accomplished by administering an electric shock each time the animals entered a darkened box. After a week of such shocks, Ungar extracted the brains of the animals and isolated the molecule associated with the induced response.

"The substance, injected into the bodies of mice which had never been subjected to such electric shocks, caused them to manifest the same fear of darkness," he said.

The next step was to produce the substance artificially. He was assisted in this phase by Dr. D.M. Lesiderio, assistant professor of chemistry at Baylor, and Dr. Wolfgang Parr, assistant professor of chemistry at the University of Houston. Parr accomplished the first artificial production of an identical substance last week.

In the auditorium, an official of the North Carolina Association of Educators, Claude Farrell, told the teachers education in North Carolina faces a crisis, "one that if allowed to stand will wipe out all the progress we have made."

He advised the teachers to stay close to their legislators and "point out to them that teachers are about fed up."

For an hour and a half after Scott's speech, teachers throughout the auditorium rose

N.C. Obscenity Law Is Voided

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A three-judge federal court has ruled that the North Carolina law "prohibiting display of obscene and immoral" motion pictures is void because it violates the constitutional First Amendment guarantee of free speech.

The judges ruled only on the first part of the two-part statute. They declined to give an opinion on the section prohibiting public advertising of "obscene and immoral" movies, saying the suit did not bring up the question of advertising.

The ruling Wednesday was 2-1 Judge J. Braxton Craven of Asheville, a member of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, wrote in the majority opinion that the language of the statute was "both vague and overbroad." U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan of Charlotte sided with him.

U.S. District Judge Woodrow W. Jones of Rutherfordton wrote in a dissenting opinion that he disagreed with Craven and McMillan that the use of the words "obscene and immoral" in the law was not specific enough.

The ruling was in the case of James Gregory, owner of a theater in Monroe who was charged in April with violating the law by showing an X-rated movie, "Vixen."

Use Fish In Experiments

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI)—The fish tank may partially replace the wire cage in laboratories of the future.

Cornell University researchers are using fish instead of common experimental animals, such as mice, in studying certain diseases.

"More than any other vertebrate, fish represent a tremendous range anatomically, physiologically and biochemically," a Cornell spokesman said.

"Using fish as laboratory animals is especially appropriate now," said Dr. Clyde I. Boyer Jr., professor of laboratory animal medicine, "because the fish live in an environment that is polluted both by water and air."

Boyer is developing a curriculum on fish diseases and some other researchers at the veterinary college are using fire mouths—small, tropical fish — to study nutritional diseases of the horse.

Ellender, 80, Assumes Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allen J. Ellender, tough and hard-working at 80 as he was when he took his Senate seat 34 years ago, assumes command of the all-powerful, prestigious Senate Appropriations Committee with the death of Sen. Richard Russell.

hearings himself and does his own on-the-scene investigating around the world.

Unlike Russell, who supported major presidential decisions in the foreign and defense fields, Ellender has long favored curbs on defense spending and presents a distinctly mixed record on recent national security issues.

He opposed Senate efforts to limit presidential power in Southeast Asia but favors a cut-back in U.S. forces in Europe. He voted against the Safeguard antiballistic missile but supports the supersonic transport—likely the first major issue to come before his committee this year.

The 5-foot-4 Ellender was majority leader and speaker of the Louisiana House of Representatives in the late 1920s and early 1930s, the days of Huey P. Long.

One of the fabled Kingfish's closest advisers, Ellender was elected to Long's Senate seat a year after his 1935 assassination.

As chairman of the Agriculture Committee since 1951, Ellender has left his imprint on much farm legislation over the years. He was author of the original School Lunch Act.

The Agriculture chairmanship now goes to Sen. Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia.

Ellender was elected to the Appropriations Committee in 1949 and had made 14 trips abroad.

A member of several Appropriations subcommittees, Ellender for many years has been chairman of the public works panels.

Move Again To Diversify

NEW YORK (AP) — Reynolds Industries, Inc., which has diversified into foods, shipping, aluminum products and petroleum, has taken another step to reduce its dependence on the domestic cigarette market.

It is negotiating with Rothmans International Group, a big tobacco company based in London, to set up joint ventures for producing and marketing cigarettes in various parts of the world other than North America and Africa.

Informed observers say that in the last 6½ years, since the 1964 surgeon general's report on smoking and health, the U. S. adult population has increased about 10 per cent, while cigarette sales among this group have advanced by 1 per cent.

"The foreign market for cigarettes is still healthy and is still growing from 3 to 4 per cent" a year, said Jane Gilday, an analyst of the tobacco industry for Argus Research Co., a stock market and financial research agency.

Reynolds Industries is the parent company of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and has headquarters in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Union Rejected At Drexel Plants

DREXEL, N. C. (AP) — Workers at 11 Drexel Enterprises furniture plants have rejected the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, AFL-CIO, as their collective bargaining agent.

The union was voted down 2,394-2,027 Thursday, the second year in a row it has lost at Drexel.

The votes were cast at plants in Drexel, Morganton, Hickory, Long View, Hildebran, High Point, Mocksville, Marion, Shelby, Asheville and Whittier.

Couple Named Top Box Office

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Paul Newman and his wife, Joanne Woodward, were the movies' top box office draws last year, according to a poll by Box Office, a film trade publication.

Results of the voting by exhibitors, consumer film groups, newspaper, radio and television reporters were announced Wednesday.

Miss Woodward was named the top actress in the same poll last year. Newman regained the No. 1 position after being replaced the year before by John Wayne, who finished second this time.

Mother Of Five Girls Is Tuned In To Rock Lyrics

Earful Of Trouble On Operating Table

By ROBERTA ROESCH
NEW YORK (WNS) —

Parents who want to bridge the gap that separates generations can learn a great deal about their teens by listening to pop music lyrics.

"This is the case because young people are expressing their feelings about what's happening in the world in lyrics," explains Mrs. Janet Rosenberg, a parent who makes it her business to keep one step ahead of the teens in listening to new lyrics.

In her business Mrs. Rosenberg — the mother of five daughters — predicts popular hits and selects pre-recorded tapes and cassettes for Wellington Eight Industries, a Trenton, N.J., youth-oriented chain of automobile stereo centers, headed by her husband, Irving.

"It's my job to keep ahead of the trends in blues, pop, rock, country, easy-listening and psychedelic music," said the long-haired attractive mother.

"Originally I got into this business by wheeling my first baby to my husband's former record store and, after listening to records, telling him what I thought would be hits," she went on to say.

"Today I share an office with my husband and obtain information on what's new in music from everywhere in the country. As I predict what will be the new hits I stock the tapes and cassettes and send them out to our centers.

IN HER BUSINESS . . . Mrs. Rosenberg predicts popular hits and selects prerecorded tapes and cassettes for stereo centers.

Daughters
"My daughters enjoy my job," she added, "because I'm so up on music."

"And the boys who come to visit the girls want to sit down and talk because they're intrigued with the way I know what the top tunes will be."

Not every parent can talk top tunes the way Janet Rosenberg can. But every parent who is aware of an abyss between generations can keep abreast of what's what with teens by listening to the pop lyrics, says Mrs. Rosenberg. And keeping tuned in and turned on to them is one way to close the gap since teens now look to lyrics and groups to set their standards for living.

"But even though teens are influenced by popular lyrics and music groups I notice that in this changing world they want constant change in their music, just as they want other changes," Janet Rosenberg pointed out.

"This is a new phenomenon because when I first wheeled my baby to the store twenty years ago young people had about 15 hits that were fairly stable and established. Today they have nearly 100, and each lasts about six weeks. Few artists are able to establish themselves for any length of time.

"But the artists who reach the top are good, and they do an excellent job with music."

"Admittedly it's difficult for parents to accept a new idiom as good when they've been raised on a different form," Mrs. Rosenberg declared. "This has always been true.

"For example, while our generation was relating to the bunny hop, our parents thought we were crazy because they grew up with the waltz.

"Music is important to each generation," Janet Rosenberg concluded.

"But youth today, more than ever before, is expressing itself and its feelings in the lyrics it listens to."

With this in mind, if you want to dig teens pay attention to the lyrics they hear. And when the volume makes you climb walls turn it down.

But don't turn it off.

Luncheon For Club Members

Members of the Carpe Diem Book Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Joe Goodson for a luncheon meeting.

Mrs. Cleet Cleetwood, president, called the meeting to order. After a short business meeting, members were served luncheon by the hostess.

The guest speaker was Miss Mickey Jones, a junior at Rose High School. She was selected by her Girl Scout Council to represent 26 counties at a crafts camp.

At the camp, she learned some of the ancient crafts of the Appalachian Mountains. She showed members examples of some of the items she had made and also told of some interesting experiences.

Her Fashion Style Is For Safety

LUCERNE, Switzerland (WNS) — Tourist Heather Manning, 22, was wearing only a baby-doll nightie when she heard a drowning man's cries for help in the lake outside her window. She ran downstairs, dove into the icy water and brought him safely to shore. "The poor fellow, was wearing a maxi-coat that got full of heavy water," she explained. "I got rid of my maxi months ago when the long skirt got dangerously stuck in a moving escalator."

DEAR ABBY: My sister in law had to have a gall-bladder operation, so she told her doctor that while she's on the operating table, and under the anesthetic, she'd like for him to pierce her ears. He said he'd be glad to do it. Well, here's the problem. He's a very good surgeon for gall-bladder operations, but he wasn't too good at piercing ears, and he really loused up her ears. [The "holes" weren't in the same place on both ears, and they also became infected.] He said he was sorry, but he hadn't pierced any ears in 30 years, but after they healed up he would be glad to do them over again.

I told her she would have to be crazy to let that surgeon pierce her ears again and she should go to a doctor who does a lot of that kind of work and have it done right.

She said she paid $600 for the gallbladder operation and she wasn't about to pay another doctor to pierce her ears, and besides she didn't want to hurt her doctor's feelings. I'd like your opinion.

DEAR SIS: Having spoken your mind, say no more. It's hard to believe that a surgeon who is "very good" at gall-bladder surgery would "louse up" something so elementary as ear-piercing. The placement of the "holes" was the doctor's fault, but the "infection" could have been due to her carelessness.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are in total disagreement about my father in law's upcoming marriage. My wife is mad at her father for personal reasons which I will not go into, and she refuses to attend the wedding. She says that I should stay home, too. I have no ill feelings against my father in law, as a matter of fact I am very fond of him.

I want to attend the wedding. My wife says no. Can you settle this right away?

DEAR PUZZLED: Your wife can stay home if she wants to, but she has no right to insist that you stay home. Be honest. If you want to go because you are fond of your father in law, go. But don't go just to bug your wife.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I went on a trip last year we hired a woman to stay in our home and look after our three children. We thought we knew this woman quite well as she was sort of in our social circle and belonged to our club.

After we came home, and several weeks later, I couldn't find a pair of earrings and a pin to match, which had been a birthday gift from another friend of mine. I would know this jewelry anywhere as it was quite unusual.

Last evening my husband and I went to our club, and there was this friend who stayed at our home last year, wearing my jewelry! Up until that time I wanted to believe that I had just misplaced it. Needless to say, I was shocked. Shall I confront her with the facts as I know them, or should I just wait and hope she reads your column?

PORT ANGELES, WASH.

DEAR PORT: Confront her with the facts. But don't expect her to hand them over. Anyone who would steal, would probably lie.

DEAR ABBY: A Washington lady with brains Hoards worn-outs, antiques and remains. Old beaux who bemoan it Had better condone it Lest changing, she opts for new swains. [signed] . . . SOUR GRAPES IN CUCAMONGA

Girls Sell More Kisses Than Boys

COLOGNE, West Germany (WNS) — Young men and women who set up a kissing booth at a local ball to raise money for the Christmas poor discovered that it's still the man who pays. The girls collected $384 by selling kisses, and the boys got only an unlucky $13. "Women's liberation will not get very far until women liberate themselves," complained Rolf Strauss, 22.

POTATO CHEESE CASSEROLE — Serve it with meat, poultry or fish.

This Potato Casserole Features Two Cheeses

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There are over 100 ways to prepare potatoes, but a way we've met up with lately gets our medal for being both fool-proof and delicious.

For this dish, potatoes are peeled and sliced and placed in a baking dish. You can do the placing with a turn of the wrist or you can arrange the potato slices in neat rows—depending on how much time you have and your mood.

Melted butter and seasonings go over the spuds and they're baked in a very hot oven—this takes only 20 to 30 minutes. Then grated Swiss and Parmesan cheese are sprinkled over the surface and the dish is put back into the oven so the cheese will melt and make a tempting topping.

We've served this dish with both meat and fish and it's a perfect accompaniment. Every time we've offered it, it's been gobbled up—not one speck leftover.

POTATO CHEESE CASSEROLE

6 medium or 3 very large potatoes—1½ to 2 pounds
¼ cup butter, melted
½ teaspoon regular or seasoned salt
¼th teaspoon white pepper
1 cup grated (medium fine) Swiss cheese
3 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Butter a square glass 2-quart baking dish—about 8 by 8 by 2 inches—or similar utensil. Peel potatoes and cut crosswise in thin slices. Arrange overlapping slices, in rows, in prepared baking dish. Make sure top is flat—if edges of potato slices protrude they may get too brown.

Pour butter over potatoes and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake in a preheated 500-degree oven until potatoes are tender when tested with a fork and top and bottom layers are slightly crisp—about 20 to 30 minutes.

Remove from oven. Sprinkle with Swiss and Parmesan cheese. Return to 500-degree oven until cheese is melted—about 5 minutes.

Cut into squares and lift out with a pancake turner or wide server, loosening bottom crust. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings.

Program Given By Mrs. May

Mrs. Sue May presented the program at the meeting of the Simpson Extension Homemakers on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Lyman Mills.

"Save Your Sight With Light" was the program topic. She demonstrated her talk using different light bulbs, lamp shades and a portable table lamp.

She told of plans for club members to participate in a bus tour in May for an overnight stay near Reidsville with side tours included. The club also plans a visit to EEI's arts and crafts in Belhaven.

Mrs. Harold Mills conducted the business session and Mrs. R. H. Heath gave the devotional. Members voted to have a regular meeting February instead of a covered-dish supper. Mrs. Mills assisted by Mrs. S. D. Tucker served refreshments.

Mrs. Ella Pate of Simpson is being transferred from Pitt Memorial Hospital to the Guardian Home, New Bern, to recuperate.

Retired Colonel Is Delphian Club Speaker

Karl Faser, assistant professor of speech and assistant to the provost and director of instructional media at East Carolina University, spoke to the Delphian Book Club at their Tuesday luncheon meeting.

Faser told 19 members of the club and one guest that misinterpreting the news brings about a misunderstanding as to the true conditions which exist in Viet Nam, and he felt there should be some criteria established for the accreditation of war correspondents.

Faser is a retired colonel with 30 years service in the United States Marine Corps. He has degrees from Louisiana State University, Southern Methodist University and the University of Oklahoma.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, hostess, who introduced Faser. Mrs. James W. Lee was co-hostess and Mrs. Roger Mann was a guest.

Mrs. Eric Fearrington, club president, conducted a business meeting. Mrs. Don White gave the secretary's report. Mrs. Charles Stevens announced an upcoming joint social with the Fidelis Book Club on Feb. 3 and Mrs. Badger Clark exchanged books among members.

Lt. Governor Needs Real Job

The proposal to make North Carolina's Lieutenant Governor a full-time employee of the state is sound and should be implemented by the General Assembly.

In recent years it has become increasingly evident that the number two executive office needs to be more than a part-time position. The official duties of the office should include far more than presiding over the Senate every two years when the legislature is in session.

Gov. Robert Scott has given further impetus to making the office of Lieutenant Governor full time. More than any other governor in recent years, he has assigned duties — primarily ceremonial — to the Lieutenant Governor and thereby provided for himself more time for the executive management of state affairs. His proposal to the legislature that the position be considered a full-time post with a commensurate full-time salary shows clearly his feeling on the matter.

Even if a full-time Lieutenant Governor's primary duties consists of pinch-hitting for the governor in ceremonial affairs, it would be worth it to the state. Increasingly in recent years the demands made upon the office have pushed it toward full-time status. The men who have held the office have found themselves in the position of carrying heavier responsibilities throughout their four-year terms.

It is time for the General Assembly to give recognition to the situation which exists with respect to the office of Lieutenant Governor. The state needs the office filled on a full-time basis; the governor needs the office filled on a full-time basis; and certainly the person who holds that office should be compensated on a full-time basis for carrying out the duties of the office.

In addition to making the office a full-time position with a full-time salary, the legislature should likewise make the tenure of that office coincide with that of the governor. If a governor is to be allowed a second term in North Carolina, it should also be specified that the Lieutenant Governor is also eligible to be elected to two terms.

Such a move would change not only the executive branch of the state government, but it would have a strong political influence on the governor's office as well. It would prove, in our judgment, a wise move for the state and one which would contribute to more effective and more efficient state government.

Little Excitement In McGovern's Candidacy

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota made a very early bid for the Democratic party's presidential nomination last week.

The convention is a year and a half away, but it is apparent that Sen. McGovern will need all the time he can get if he is to convince the voters that he is presidential material.

The senator was hardly taken seriously when he sought the nomination in 1968 as a stand-in for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. He received only a handful of votes at the convention.

He has still not done much to convince the American public that he is a serious candidate and polls put him far behind unannounced candidates such as Sen. Edmund S. Muskie.

Sen. McGovern's early announcement may stir interest in the 1972 conventions and presidential election. At this point, though, it does little more than that.

Rebuffed By Greek 'Allies'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — At the climax of Jordan's civil war last September, the United States appealed to the Greek military dictatorship for stand-by permission to use Greek air bases for airlifting military equipment to King Hussein's beleaguered army.

The Greek junta, which owes its very life to the U. S. could use Greek bases, it privately informed Washington, only within the narrow framework of protecting or evacuating American citizens in Jordan, not for intervention in the war. With more than 50,000 ethnic Greeks in Arab countries, the Greek government was unwilling to risk a clash with Arab nationalism.

One month earlier, the Greek Colonels rebuffed Washington on another urgent Middle East request, this one to use Greek air bases for reconnaissance overflights of the Suez Canal area by the high-flying U-2 to monitor the stand-still cease-fire between Israel and Egypt.

As it turned out, King Hussein managed a military victory without U. S. aid and the U. S. found acceptable bases on the island of Cyprus for U-2 overflights along the Suez Canal.

But those two highly revealing confrontations between Washington and the unyieldingly dictatorial military regime in Athens pointed up a brutal political fact: despite U.S. toleration of the Colonels (without which the regime could not have survived), the junta is proving a very weak reed in the dangerous Middle East.

Accordingly, some high U.S. officials are beginning an agonizing reappraisal of Greek policy. Briefly stated, the policy set by President Johnson and enhanced by President Nixon has been to trade off acceptance of the junta for this: first, democratic reform within Greece repeatedly pledged by the junta and just as repeatedly postponed, second, the continuing influence of Greece as an anti-Communist bastion in the eastern Mediterranean, linked by diplomacy to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and by geography to the tumultuous Middle East.

By far Greece's more important aspect to the U.S. today is not membership in NATO but presence in the eastern Mediterranean where the "dry land problem" (as it's wryly called at the Pentagon) has become dangerously acute. But President Nixon cannot absolutely count on a single inch of dry land in the entire eastern Mediterranean — other than Israel — in any military action involving the Arab-Israeli struggle. In the two recent crises, Greece joined the undependables.

While acknowledging this, the President's military advisers do not rule out the possibility that in a U.S.-Soviet military confrontation,

WITNESSING

Almost the last words Christ said to his disciples were: "Buy ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8).

Witnessing, therefore, is the chief duty of the Christian Church and its adherents. We may witness in a variety of ways. Some people "stand up in meeting" and tell what Christ has done for them. For the most part, however, witnessing takes place in a quite different fashion. Our best witness is the witness of a life lived after the teachings of Christ and filled with faith in his power to save us and save the world.

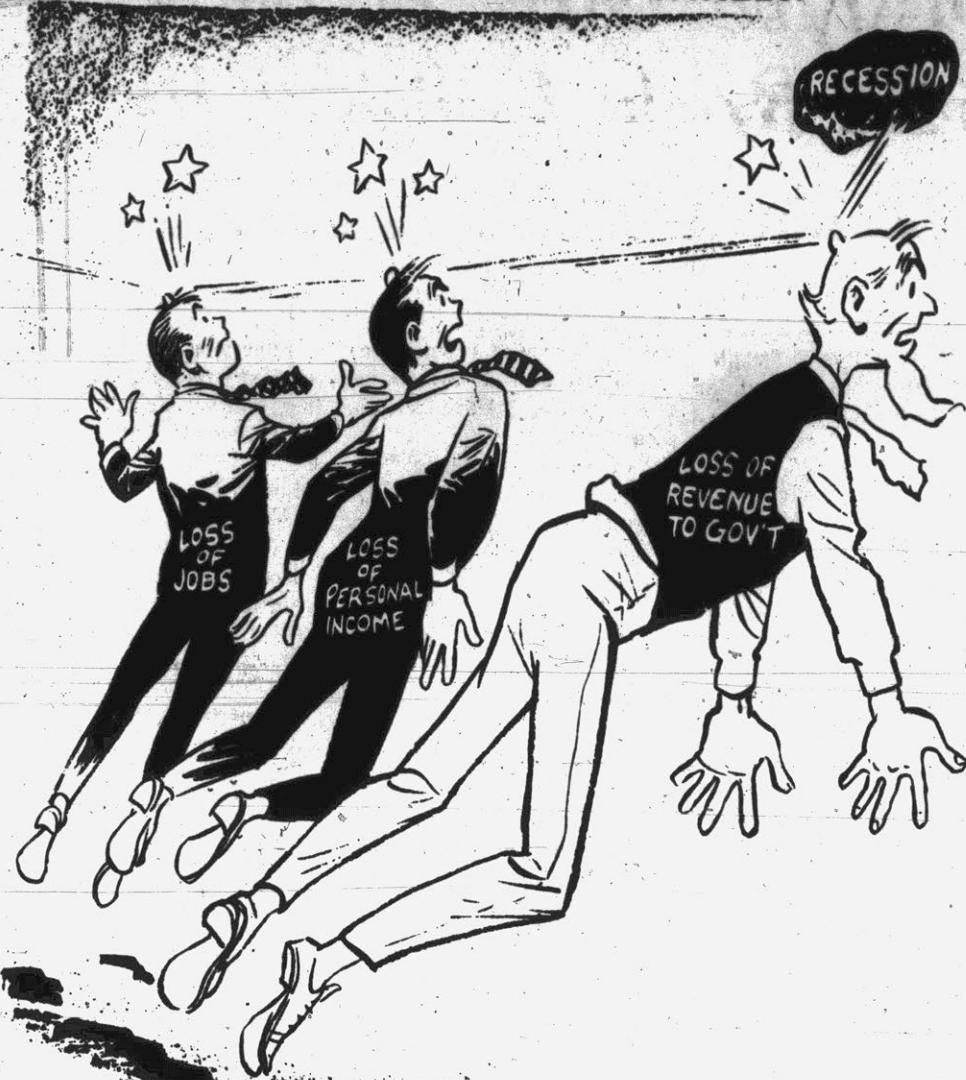

We bear witness when we join the Church. Occasionally there are people who witness to Christ without being enrolled members of the Church. But this is rare. We can witness to Christ wherever we happen to be. But the best place to witness is in the Church and in the relationships we have with the Church.

We do not need to be queer or fanatical in our witness. All we need is to be sincere and to stick to what we believe about Christ and his gospel no matter how much we may be tempted to be unfaithful.

Witnessing is, and always has been, the great duty of the Christian Church and the duty of every Christian believer.

BAD NEWS COMES IN THREES!

By ART BUCHWALD

Where Is Dr. Kildare?

WASHINGTON — The federal budget was rolled into the operating room where the Administration surgeons were waiting to go to work on it.

"It looks awfully fat," one of the doctors said. "Someone give me a knife."

"Wait a minute," said another doctor. "What are you going to cut out?"

"I thought I'd start on the arm."

"That's the military arm, you idiot," another doctor said. "You can't cut anything off the military. As a matter of fact, we have to graft on to it, as it's too weak as it is."

"Why don't we begin with the fat under here?" a surgeon said.

"That's part of the pork barrel," a doctor cried. "If we cut anything out of there, every senator and congressman will bleed to death."

"Well," said another surgeon, "we can at least cut something off this Vietnam leg."

"Leave that leg alone. If we cut it now, we may have to sew it back on later."

The doctors stared at the groaning body on the table.

"We're surgeons," cried one of the doctors. "We should be able to cut something."

"What about cutting out the SST?"

"Don't you dare touch the SST," another surgeon said. "It stays in."

"Say, this ABM looks swollen. We better get to work on that," a doctor said.

"You fool," his colleague said. "You cut anything off the ABM and we'll be sued by the Defense Department for malpractice. A little swelling in an ABM never hurt anybody."

"How about cutting around the low-cost housing tract?"

"That's a good idea. How much should we take off?"

"Let's cut it in half and see what happens."

A surgeon started cutting away and suddenly there was a loud scream.

"Good God, didn't anyone give it an anesthetic?" the surgeon asked.

Someone slapped a mask

on the budget as the doctor continued cutting.

"Hey look, I can get at the education arteries from here. What do you say I scrape them while I'm at it?"

"Go ahead," his colleague replied. "We'll stand over you so no one in the galleries can see what you're doing."

While they were doing that, a foot surgeon was neatly cutting off each toe of the poverty program. "You don't need toes to walk," he explained to a nurse.

The next things they cut off were the legs of the science and medical research programs.

But every time one doctor cut one thing out of the budget, another doctor grabbed it and grafted it on to another part. By the time the operation was finished the budget was bandaged from head to toe, but it was fatter than it had ever been before.

"I guess we better order a money transfusion," one of the surgeons said.

Richard Nixon, the father of the budget, was in the

Art Of Double Talk

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — If everyone said only what he really meant, and meant everything he said, this world would be a bear pit.

The friction generated by our clashing egos would rub us all raw. If each man or woman told the other what he really thought of him, human society as we know it would be impossible.

That is why we have double talk, which is as essential to society as the wheel is to progress. Double talk is the art of saying something pleasant while thinking, perhaps, just the opposite. This enables us to save the other fellow while salvaging our own desire to be honest, too.

For the uninitiated, here are a few examples of double talk in quotes, followed in each case by what the person who said them was actually thinking:

"My dear, quit worrying about it. It fits you like a glove." — That's why it makes you look like a baseball catcher's mitt.

"What we can't change we have to put up with. After all, neither of us is getting any younger." — But if I thought I looked as old as you do, I'd put on a mask.

"Professor, taking your course in Plato makes me feel like I'm strolling in Athens on a sultry day." — But anyway you slice it, it's still Greek to me.

Death has ended the valiant fight of Alma Reubens to conquer narcotic addiction and make a comeback in motion pictures. She died last night of pneumonia. Two weeks ago she was arrested in San Diego on federal charges of smuggling and possession of narcotics and was released under $5,000 bond to await hearing and trial. In the motion picture business she starred in Douglas Fairbank's "The Half Breed" nearly twelve years ago and "The Valley of the Silent Men," "Gilded Butterfly" and "Unseeing Eyes." In 1929 Miss Reubens starred in her first talking picture "Show Boat."

The largest tire in the world is on its way to Greenville and will be on exhibition in our city on Saturday, according to E. G. Flanagan, manager of Flanagan Buggy Company located on the corner of Fourth and Cotanche Street. The tire measures twelve feet in height, four feet in width and the total weight of the tire and yoke is 3,900 pounds. The tire was built by Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio.

Costs May Block Housing Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER

For the thirty - sixth time in three years, private and government economists are predicting a resumption of the home - building boom.

Don't hold your breath.

Previous predictions have been based on need: the growing number of family formations in the United States, Researcher Roy Wenzlick told the Conference Board last September that the population in the 21 - to - 45 - year age group would increase by 1,153,000 in 1971, and that in addition, 110,000 families would move from farms into the cities.

Predictions for a boom this year have been further strengthened by the cut in interest rates. The FHA and VA have lowered their rates and banks have so much money to lend that they have begun to lower mortgage rates.

These two factors may increase the demand for new housing and thereby make some increase in the number of housing units started in 1971.

But At Higher Prices

But a third factor may largely offset the demand for new housing stimulated by the rising family formations and the lowering of mortgage rates. That is the rising costs of housing.

Almost everything going into the construction of a house has gone up. And the biggest increase is in the cost of labor.

The Bureau of National Affairs calculates that construction workers gained the largest increase of any group last year. The median settlement was a raise of a whopping 90.5 cents an hour. That's 20.3 cents an hour over the record-breaking increase of 1968.

The rest of the organized industries won increases of 24.3

cents an hour, or less than a third of what construction workers won. Workers in printing and publishing were second to the construction workers with a median gain of a mere 23.3 cents an hour.

An Old, Old Argument

It has been argued that construction workers are entitled to more money because they are laid off so many days of cold, wet or other weather conditions. It is true that construction workers may be laid off quite often because of the weather. It is also true that many are without work between jobs. Some construction workers sit home or tend bar the whole winter long.

But that argument has been used for 50 years. The Bureau of National Affairs' figures that median construction wages went up almost twice as much as wages of workers in all other industries from 1961 through 1966, and from those years on they have gone up more than twice as much as other workers. In 1969, they rose 70.2 cents an hour compared with 22.1 cents an hour for all other workers.

Wages have also risen in industries manufacturing components for new housing.

These wage scales are adding thousands of dollars to the cost of almost every house, and the increase will more than offset the savings in interest payments. In fact, if higher wages add $5,000 to the cost of a house, the interest on that $5,000 will make the mortgage more expensive than ever before, even at the new lower rates.

Food Stamps No Good For Playing Poker

The Department of Agriculture has issued new warnings that neither $2 nor $5 food stamps may not be detached from books of coupons except at the time of purchase. Thus the stamps cannot be used as chits in poker, craps, or darts games. However, the USDA has made two new rules to facilitate the use of stamps in stores: stores can now give up to 49 cents in cash in change for stamp purchases; deposits on bottles and containers can now be made with stamps.

Textile Industry's Role Defended By Chairman Of Chain

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C. (AP) — Charles F. Myers Jr., chairman of Burlington Industries, the nation's largest textile chain, says, "The textile industry isn't the villain to whom all economic ills in the state can be attributed."

He came to Rocky Mount Thursday night to reply to a recent speech in the city by Dr. James Bearden, dean of the school of business at East Carolina University in Greenville.

Bearden had tried to show that textiles was a low-paying industry, and that it is only part of the North Carolina economy. He said the industry's desired legislation for quotas on imports could result in retaliation against North Carolina's agriculture products. And he said there was need of upgrading workers' skills, and attracting higher-paying industry.

After the speech, a Burlington Industries personnel man wrote to the placement director of the university, "I seriously question whether we should keep our recruiting dates which were scheduled for January 18th and 19th."

Myers sought in his speech to the Rocky Mount Junior Chamber of Commerce to put to rest any fears that his company would retaliate against ECU for Bearden's remarks.

the junta might offer bases to Washington. But there is no hard assurance.

In short, despite President Nixon's decision in September to resume full military aid to Greece—thereby removing the last evidence of U.S. disapproval of the dictatorship—the Colonels remain a question mark in big-power Middle East politics.

Simultaneously, the Greek army is softening under special privileges the junta carefully distributes to keep it loyal. Favored Greek officers down to the lower levels are immune from police arrest for traffic and other minor offenses and can buy imported automobiles without paying import taxes, now up to 100 percent of cost.

Not only do these preferential goodies infuriate the junta's widening opposition, they also create a privileged class that, says one U.S. expert, is making "a lot of fat, comfortable majors and colonels"—hardly the Greek military support the U. S. bargained for from the junta.

If the junta were carrying through on repeated pledges to go democratic, the Nixon administration would at least have retrieved part of its bargain. Instead, two top members of the junta have flatly predicted there will never be elections. Specifically, two promises to lift martial law have been broken.

Accordingly, the U.S. is now stuck with the junta without having obtained anything in return except alarming anti-Americanism among anti-junta Greeks. No wonder some top U.S. officials want a policy reappraisal.

Four Persons Hurt In Collisions Here

Four persons were reported injured in two collisions here last night.

Police said three persons were hurt when cars driven by Linda Sue Elks, 24 of 2803 Jefferson Dr. and Usha Tulli Gulati, 29, of 1900 South Charles St. collided about 7:45 p.m. on U. S. 284, 300 feet East of the Kirkland Drive intersection.

Damage was placed at $1,800 to each of the two cars involved in the mishap by police who charged Mrs. Gulati with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Both drivers and a passenger in the Gulati car were reported injured.

Forrest submitted two photo-features for the 1970 awards — "Ocean Harvest" and "Fun for Toddler." The youngest of the regular staff members of the paper, Forrest first worked in photography as a high school junior. He was photographer for the Rose High newspaper and year book, and for the Pitt Technical Institute Year Book.

Woody Peele, for several years sports editor of The Daily Reflector, was also a 1968 awards winner and had previously won one of the annual awards while writing for the Goldsboro "News-Argus." Peele is the winner of two honorable mentions in the 1970 contest — one for sports reporting and one for a feature photo story.

His entries were a spot story on the Rams and a feature photograph story on the homecoming in Williamston of the Perry brothers.

In the 1970 contest, managing editor Alvin Taylor is another recipient of an honorable mention award. His award is in the editorial division. Entries submitted by Taylor in 1970 were "Still Considerable Way to Go," "Councilmen Heeded Majority," and "Some Common Sense Needed." The 1970 award marks the fourth time Taylor has been a winner in the North Carolina Press Association contest. Previous years in which he won awards, in the division of feature and editorial writing, were 1959, 1961 and 1965.

Announcements of the annual awards was made by Mrs. Margaret Harper of Southport, secretary of the North Carolina Press Association.

Cookie Sale Is Starting Today

The annual cookie sale of the Girl Scout Council of Coastal Carolina began today with more than 7,000 Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts taking orders. Deliveries and collections will be made Feb. 16-28.

Council cookie sale chairman is Mrs. James E. Hiteshew of Goldsboro and the cookie chairman in Greenville is Mrs. Thomas Carpenter.

Five varieties of cookies are available—assorted sandwich, chocolate mint, butter flavored shorties, peanut butter sandwich and pecanettes. They are baked by South Biscuit Company, makers of FFV cookies, and price is 60 cents a package this year. The order taking sale enables customers to get the kinds of cookies they prefer and provides a more accurate supply of cookies for the sale.

The cookie sale is held each year to provide funds for major renovation and replacements, new buildings, new equipment and sites for camping. Five sites are now provided and additional property for troop camping is being sought. In addition, troops receive a portion of the profit to use as needed for troop projects.

In 1970, the cookie sale provided a new tent unit at Pretty Pond, including new cots and mattresses, additional tables, benches and shelves, additions to the dock at the waterfront, mattresses at Camp Hardee, tools, kitchen equipment, the council station wagon used at camp and for council events and housing for a caretaker at Camp Pretty Pond.

The 1971 sale will provide two additional tent floors, tents and flys at Pretty Pond, additional cots and mattresses and canoes and development of a winterized troop camping building at Camp Hardee.

Anyone who wishes to buy cookies and is not contacted by Scouts, is asked to call the local cookie chairman at 756-2070.

Someone to thank

"God is a product of man's imagination," announced the dignified intellectual who occupied our TV screen. "God isn't dead," he argued as our children watched. "He was never alive!"

Mary and I felt that Christian children such as ours should realize that not everyone believes in God. Perhaps, knowing this, they could better understand the state of the world. We would encourage and answer their questions as best we could, confident that God would not allow their faith to be destroyed.

Later, before I tucked Kristen into bed, she clasped her hands and closed her eyes. "Dear Lord," she prayed, "Thank you for Mommy and Daddy. Thank you for Zoomie (her goldfish) and Toddy and my new dress . . ." She stopped suddenly, and I raised questioning eyes to her. "Daddy," she said anxiously, "that man on TV doesn't have anyone to thank!"

Do you have Someone to thank? Come to church this Sunday.

Visual Problems

Eye problems vary according to the individual.

Most people think that eye problems are caused from the eyeball being out of shape. Astigmatism for example, is caused when the eyeball is irregularly curved. Near-sightedness is often the result of the eyeball being too long, and farsightedness is often the result of the eyeball being too short.

Other eye problems are caused by lack of muscle control and "tone" of the eye. Crossed eyes, wall eyes, or one eye that tends to rove require either simple surgical techniques to tighten up the muscle, or corrective lenses to force the eye to exercise the muscle. Simple eye exercises are also beneficial to correct these conditions.

If you notice that you grow tired easily, your eyes hurt or refuse to focus at times, or that you have to squint to see an object, have your eyes checked at once by an eye doctor.

To Wed Despite Differences

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — Patsy Thomas of Lenoir is the register of deeds in Caldwell County. Boger McGimsey is the register of deeds in Burke County and lives 15 miles away in Morganton.

They have their differences. He's a Democrat, a sports buff and a Methodist and she's a Republican, likes poetry and painting and is Baptist. But they have decided since meeting at a register of deeds convention in Durham last summer that they have enough in common to get married.

It will be the second try at marriage for each of them. Patsy, 40, and Boger, 51, haven't set the date yet.

One may have to give up his job. To serve as an elected official in any county, a person has to live in the county.

'Book Store' Operators Seek Punitive Damages

A complaint, seeking $50,000 in punitive damages from Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson, deputy sheriff J. R. Briley and Greenville Police Chief T. E.

belief in the youth" through speaking to church, civic and social groups in Greenville and surrounding area.

During 1970, Ullom has spoken to more than 75 organizations on the subjects of youth and Christ. Furthering his belief that to serve best, he must continue to learn, Ullom has also been pursuing graduate study in counseling education at East Carolina University.

Himself an active member of the Jaycees, he has served as chairman of the outstanding young laymen project here and is chaplain of the local chapter.

A winner of the local and district award for "Jaycee Speak Up," Ullom also received the Jaycee's "spoke award" in 1970.

He is a member of the Boys' Club Professional Association, the national convention committee of Boys' Club of America, North Carolina Chapter of Boys' Club (professional association - membership committee), and is a member of the Citizen Advisory Committee of Greenville.

Married to the former Kay Kress of Beacon, Pa., Ullom and his wife are the parents of two children, Lisa and Todd. The Ulloms are members of the First Christian Church here where he serves as a teacher for ninth and tenth graders and as a member of the official board.

Several past winners of the DSA attended the annual banquet last night and were recognized by DSA chairman Andy Warren who presided.

Vest, a five-year veteran of officiating in the National Football League, offered a look into the activities of an NFL referee, a position that has taken him to duties in the 1968 Super Bowl, 1970 American Football League Championship and 1963 Gator Bowl.

The official, who is also vice president of Wachovia Insurance Agency Inc. in Winston-Salem, noted that as a referee, he is a member of a six-man crew that is assigned to various NFL games. His crew is one of 14 that handles the weekly tasks of calling professional football contests.

Vest admitted that officials make errors but added that "we really try to do a conscientious job." He said that, as a referee, one of his responsibilities is to protect the pro quarterback from unnecessary rough play.

In addition, Vest discussed lightly several of the plays in football that are difficult to call and offered a humorous note to the serious business of professional football officiating.

In addition to the presentation of the DSA and remarks by Vest, the Jaycees also inducted 11 new members into the local chapter. David W. Mosier, charter president of the Greenville Jaycees, conducted the ceremony.

Inducted were Hal Thompson, William Mills, Herb Brett, Jack Respass, Burney Warren, Robert Norman, Bill Grantmyre, Larry Bell, Melvin Hoot, Martin Lassiter and Lester Brown.

Mosier commended the Jaycees for their efforts in the community and noted that the Greenville chapter had come a long way since the original 35 members that started the club.

Assisting Mosier with the ceremony were Jack Wall, Jaycee president, and Tom Reese, orientation and induction chairman. Wall also recognized the bosses who attended with their Jaycee employees.

Gladson has been filed by owners of J and J Enterprises in U.S. Eastern District Court.

In addition to the punitive damages, the plaintiff, Jimmie Joe Floyd is asking for a restraining order and injunction to prevent local police and sheriff's offices from interfering with the plaintiff's business and seizing the plaintiff's property without a prior hearing, and ordering the return of "plaintiff's film machines, money, books and magazines, and novelty items . . ."

J and J Enterprises operates the Adult Book Store at 123 West Fourth St. raided by officers last week.

Rudy Martinez of Raleigh, identified by Sheriff Tyson as the manager of the store was charged with posting and selling obscene literature.

A quantity of literature and six coin-operated movie machines were confiscated.

The complaint, which said most of the items in the plaintiff's business "are designed for adult entertainment," charged that the movie machines and books and other items were carried away "without the issuance of any warrant or other authority" and were valued at $9,100.

The complaint also charges that the statute under which Martinez was arrested "is void and unconstitutional . . ." and that it is "excessively vague and overly broad" and "fails to set out the controlling tests for distinguishing obscene from non-obscene materials . . ."

Saying that the plaintiff probably will not be able to reopen his business "until his property can be returned . . ." the paper asks to recover "such damages as he may suffer until the wrongful acts of defendants can be enjoined" as well as "$5,000 punitive damages from the defendants . . ."

Also asked for in the complaint, is a restraining order "enjoining defendants . . . from interfering with plaintiff's business, arresting plaintiff and his employees, and seizing plaintiff's property . . ." without a prior hearing, and "ordering the return . . . of film machines, money, books and magazines, and novelty items to plaintiff."

A preliminary hearing was originally set for Monday before U.S. Judge John Larkins in Trenton. However that hearing has been continued following a motion by the plaintiff for a three-judge court can be convened to rule upon the constitutionality of the statutes in question.

Sheriff Tyson said this morning he would not return the confiscated material to the Adult Book Store "unless ordered by the court."

Poll Views On Pastors

NEW YORK (UPI)—Women are more liberal than men when it comes to demanding their clergymen should get involved in controversial issues of the day, but not as liberal as men in the matter of pastors' salaries, according to a nationwide survey of Episcopal laymen.

The findings were disclosed by the Episcopal Church Foundation, which sent questionnaires to Episcopal men and women throughout the country to learn what kind of clergymen they believe will best serve their parishes in the future.

The issues on which both sexes endorsed clergy participation the most was urban problems. Working with minorities and joining the war on poverty were other areas of participation in which the women favored more direct action than the men.

On the two-part question of what a rector's annual salary will be and should be in 1975, women replied "will be $12,582, should be $15,171" while the men estimated $13,581 and $16,331. These totals varied with the size of the parish. The foundation is an organization of laymen that supports the work of the church.

By LEE BYRD Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Russell never married, said an acquaintance, because he was "too damn busy" bestowing his attentions 14 and 16 hours a day on half a century's duty in high public office.

When the Georgia Democrat died Thursday, the Senate lost its president pro tem and most experienced member. And the Old South lost in his gentle drawl the mightiest voice it had in Washington.

Richard Brevard Russell, at 73, had been hospitalized since Dec. 8 at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center, fighting the last of many struggles over the past dozen years with a respiratory ailment.

But almost to the end the slender, six-foot-one Russell had refused to ease his work pace. When doctors thought a year ago he might have cancer, he was almost apologetic about having to leave the Senate 25 minutes daily for cobalt treatment.

After learning of Russell's death, less than 2½ hours after the 92nd Congress convened, political friends and enemies eulogized him in the warmest of terms.

Calling the Georgian one of the nation's greatest sons, President Nixon said "when the security of the United States was the issue, six American presidents leaned upon this great patriot; he never failed them."

Russell joined the Senate as its youngest member in 1933, brimming with enthusiasm for Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal, and returned six times over for another term—a record matched by only two other men.

Through a masterful application of seniority and friendships built with a quietly courteous manner, he rose first to become chairman of the Armed Services Committee and then the Appropriations Committee, positions which afforded him enormous influence in both foreign and domestic policy.

When the French left Southeast Asia in 1954 and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles recommended the United States send military advisers to South Vietnam, Russell protested bitterly to President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"You send 200 advisers now, you'll send 20,000 before it's over," he told Eisenhower. But Dulles prevailed, and despite Russell's early objections, the senator eventually became a staunch supporter of the war effort.

"I started out as what they call a dove," he said a few years ago, "But when the commander in chief committed our flag and our forces to that unhappy land, he committed me. History has turned me into a screaming hawk."

For all his power, Russell did little in his last 18 years to encourage public attention for himself outside of Georgia.

It was different, however, in 1948 and 1952 when, disenchanted with President Harry S. Truman's economic policies, Russell sought his party's White House nomination, arguing that government should lighten its rein now that the nation was back on its feet.

But each time he captured only the votes of Southern delegates, though Truman himself observed that "If Russell had been from Indiana or Missouri or Kentucky, he may very well have been president of the United States."

Schools In New Bern Still Idle

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — All public schools in New Bern were closed again today as school officials prepared for a meeting this afternoon with disgruntled white pupils and their parents.

Supt. H. J. McDonald said

plans are for the schools to open Monday morning, but that the opening might be delayed by the school board.

The superintendent said today's meeting was called by the school board when the whites asked for an opportunity to express their complaints.

Eight elementary schools, a junior high and a high school were shut down early Monday when a rock-throwing fight broke out among pupils at the high school. Ten pupils were injured slightly and several were arrested.

Black students have asked the school board for the development of a biracial student committee, reactivation of a biracial parents organization and assurance that pupils whose civil cases are not prosecuted will not be punished by the school administration.

Reinstatement Demanded

NEW YORK (AP) — The head of the 15,000-member welfare workers union warns of a possible citywide strike unless officials reinstate three employees suspended for putting a welfare family in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

About 200 of the workers walked off the job Thursday in the protest, and acting Welfare Commissioner Jule Sugarman announced that legal action would be initiated against them.

The uproar came after Mayor John V. Lindsay ordered the three employees suspended for placing Mrs. Cleola Hainsworth and her four children in a $76-a-day suite at the internationally known hotel.

Pirates Face Indians In TV Contest

North Lenoir Edges Panthers

BETHEL — North Lenoir rallied in the final period to take a 69-63 victory over North Pitt and snap the Panthers' four-game winning streak. The Panthers, however, continued to roll along, chopping up North Lenoir, 59-27, to remain unbeaten.

In the girls game the Big Orange Machine ground out a 12-5 lead in the first period, but sputtered slightly in the second frame. North Lenoir came back, outitting the Panthers, 12-9, to cut the lead to 21-17 at the half.

But in the third period, North Pitt shifted into high gear and left North Lenoir standing still. The Panthers dumped in 22 points while North Lenoir could manage only two. That ran the score out to 43-17. North Pitt then outit its guest, 16-8, in the final period to complete the rout.

Susan James led North Pitt with 25 points, while Minnie Hollis pushed through 13. S. Jones had 20 to lead North Lenoir.

In the boys game, North Pitt edged out into a 17-12 lead at the end of the first period. They were unable to extend their lead during the second period as the two teams matched productions. Both scored 17 as the margin climbed to 34-29 at halftime.

In the third frame, North Lenoir began to hint of its comeback, outitting the Panthers, 16-15. That left North Pitt with a 49-45 lead as the final period got underway. In that, North Lenoir broke loose and outit the Panthers, 24-14, to charge into the lead and take the victory.

Linwood Doughtie led North Lenoir with 15 points, while Willie King and Sam Sheppard each had 13 and Cliff Cashwell had 12.

Wayne Brown led North Pitt with 24, while William Shiver had 18.

ABA Holding Secret Draft

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — A secret draft was the main order of business today as American Basketball Association owners, trustees and general managers wound up two days of meetings in advance of the league's All-Star game.

The Eastern and Western division all-stars meet Saturday afternoon at Greensboro Coliseum. Game time for the nationally televised contest is 2 p.m.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph met with newsmen after Thursday's all-day session behind closed doors and discussed the breakdown of merger negotiations with the National Basketball Association.

He said one development of the session was a decision to press an antitrust suit against the NBA. "Our attorneys," Dolph said, "will be instructed to take measures toward the immediate prosecution of the antitrust suit."

"In that suit, we will attempt to prove that the NBA has used illegal and oppressive actions to keep us from performing our rightful business function."

The 18-month-old suit, pending before Judge Lewis Zirpoli of San Francisco, was suspended by the ABA several months ago in an effort to speed merger negotiations with the NBA.

Dolph also announced progress in the league's move to sell the Memphis franchise formerly held by P.L. Blake. He said the league's first choice for a prospective owner is a group of Memphis citizens.

Jasper Extends Southern Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Without taking an official shot for the past 10 days while his team was idle because of examinations, Tom Jasper of William and Mary has extended his lead in the Southern Conference basketball scoring race.

Jasper scored 282 points in the 15 games the Indians played before the exam break for an 18.8-point average that's now more than 1½ points better than that of runner-up Russ Hunt of Furman.

While Jasper was idle, Hunt played in three games, scored 43 points that boosted the sophomore's total of 223 in 13 games, but dropped his average slightly to 17.2.

Jim Gregory of East Carolina moved up a notch to third place with 51 points in his last three games that upped his total to 219 in 13 encounters for a 16.8-point average.

Also gaining one spot in the scoring derby was sophomore Joe Sutter of Davidson, who had 213 points in 13 games, for a 16.4 average. Last week's No. 3 man, Lisco Thomas of Furman, got just 24 points in two games as his average fell to 16.2 on 194 points in 12 encounters.

Steve Dodge of William and Mary is still sixth at 15.8, Jan Essenburg of Virginia Military is seventh at 14.7, Ben Ledbetter of The Citadel is No. 8 at 13.8.

Trio May Have Tougher Job

By DICK JOYCE

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Thrown a curve by the baseball writers, Yogi Berra, Early Wynn and Ralph Kiner face an even tougher task of gaining admittance to baseball's Hall of Fame next year when left-handed pitching ace Sandy Koufax becomes eligible.

Koufax, who hurled four no-hitters and established numerous major league strikeout marks during his illustrious career with the Los Angeles Dodgers, will pass his five-year waiting period next year.

The Baseball Writers Association of America slammed the door—at least for this year—on top vote-getters Berra, Wynn and Kiner Thursday when they failed to draw the necessary 270 votes, or 75 per cent mention, on the 360 ballots.

Berra, the former New York

Oilers Have New Coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Ed Hughes says he believes the Houston Oilers can provide fans with an exciting and winning ball club.

Hughes, 43, offensive assistant for the San Francisco 49ers, was selected Thursday as the Oilers new head coach.

He signed a five-year contract at an undisclosed salary and in so doing accepted his first head coaching job after 12 years as an assistant.

Hughes succeeds Wally Lemm who resigned at the end of last season.

Hughes announced he was retaining Walt Schlunkman, defensive backs, and Fran Polsfoot, receivers, the only assistants still remaining on Lemm's staff. He said he will select four more assistants.

DINE OUT THIS WEEKEND AT THE CANDLEWICK INN

Yankee catcher, who came closest with 240 votes in his first year of eligibility, was philosophical, saying: "Maybe next year." But he added: "It gets tougher every year with new men becoming eligible."

Kiner, the former Pittsburgh slugger who finished third in the balloting with 212 votes, echoed Berra's feelings:

"You can always say there will be another. But there is no surety. You have new men coming in. Next year there will be Sandy Koufax among others."

While Berra and Kiner were disappointed, yet hopeful, Wynn, who won 300 games during his career that spanned three decades (1939-1963) with Cleveland, Washington and the Chicago White Sox, said:

"It's a damn shame they don't put somebody in. I'd rather see someone, anyone, get in. It's a letdown. I can't tell you how I really feel. The language would be embarrassing."

Wynn finished second in the balloting with 238 votes, two less than Berra.

Berra got some consolation from the fact that his old teammate Joe DiMaggio also failed to gain the Hall of Fame on his first try.

Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Bob Feller and Jackie Robinson previously were elected the first time they were eligible. Baseball writers with at least 10 years experience took part in the voting.

The Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., may land new inductees this year when the Hall's Veterans Committee votes Jan. 31 on executives and players who have been inactive for more than 20 years.

East Carolina University's Pirates return to the hardwood action Saturday afternoon for their only television appearance of the season.

They'll be in action at 1:40 p.m. in Williamsburg, Va., against the Indians of William & Mary in a Southern Conference contest. The game will be carried over regional television. Locally, it can be seen over WITN-TV, Channel 7, with air time at 1:30 p.m.

Following the varsity contest, the two freshman teams of the schools will meet.

The Pirates go into the game in a four-way deadlock for second place, as the Bucs, William & Mary, The Citadel and Furman are all 3-2 in the league. The winner of the contest will move into sole possession of second with a 4-2 mark, while the loser will drop all the way to fifth at 3-3. Everyone else in the conference is either idle or going against outside opposition.

The game will pit the conference leading scorer, Tom Jasper, of the Indians, against the number three-man, Jim Gregory of the Pirates.

Jasper currently has an 18.8 mark, while Gregory, at 17.0 is close behind. The Indians' Steve Dodge with a 15.8 mark, is the number six man in the conference, while Al Faber (13.5) and Jim Fairley (13.2) are in the top 10 for East Carolina.

William & Mary also has one other scorer in double figures, Jeff Trammell, at 10.4. Their other starters, Jim Warns and Neil Gewirtzman are both hitting at about nine per game.

Overall, the Indians have a 70.9 average, as compared to 77.5 for the Bucs. William & Mary has allowed 78.9 in losing 10 of the 15 they have played. East Carolina has given up 74.1 in losing seven of their 13.

The Indians won't have the height of the Pirates. Their biggest man in 6-8 junior Dave Stovall, but he isn't playing much, hitting only a point a game in nine contests. The tallest starter is 6-7 Trammell, while Jasper is 6-4, Dodge, 6-4, Warns 6-6, and Gewirtzman is 5-11.

The Indians haven't rebounded like the Bucs, getting only 46.3 per cent of the loose balls, as compared to 55.5 per cent for the Bucs. Jasper is the leading rebounder with eight per game.

"William & Mary is close to us in shooting," ECU Coach Tom Quinn pointed out. "They are a little better at the line."

One factor may enter into the contest, however, as Faber is listed as only a possible starter. "He's been sick since the Furman game, and really shouldn't have played against Davidson," Quinn said. "He's in bed now, and I don't know whether he's going to be ready to play Saturday or not."

If Faber isn't ready, Fairley will probably move into the post, with Dave Franklin filling in the vacancy in the lineup. Franklin, averaging 6.8 per game, has been the number one reserve for the Bucs, and Quinn has been impressed with his play. He also started in one other game.

In looking back at the Davidson game, Quinn said he felt that Bucs had every opportunity to win, but that they made some mistakes which hurt them. He also took a slap at the officiating in the game. "There were several calls which I felt definitely hurt us. I think we should have had a goaltending call on one play which would have given us a shot at a three-point play. Instead we ended up with only one point."

Quinn also singled out a play in which Franklin came down with a rebound but fell on the floor and had two Davidson players on top of him struggling to get the ball without a whistle being blown. "I was very disappointed over the officiating," he said. Ralph Stout and Herb Young were the game's officials.

"It's the best we've played Davidson," Quinn said. "And they played one of their better games to beat us. I was surprised we had so many easy shots, and apparently so were the players. Maybe that's why we missed so many of them."

Quinn also was pleased with the crowd and its reaction to the game. "The response was the best of the year, and it rivaled that of the South Carolina game."

We appreciate the fans coming out, and hope that they will continue to show up. It means a lot to us."

Following the encounter with the Indians, the Bucs return home next Wednesday against tough St. Francis.

Presbyterian Grabs The Lead

Presbyterian stood alone at the top of the Church Basketball League last night as it was the lone winner among the top three. Presbyterian took a 60-46 win over hapless St. James, while Immanuel was setting down Black Jack, 56-44, and Piney Grove was upsetting Oakmont, 54-37.

Presbyterian leads the loop with a 4-1 record, while Black Jack, Immanuel and Oakmont are deadlocked for second with 3-2 marks. Piney Grove is fifth at 2-3, followed by St. James, 0-5.

In the opening game, Black Jack slipped out into a 19-17 lead in the first half. But in the second, Immanuel poured on the coals and outshot Black Jack, 39-25, to roll to its victory.

Jim Grimsley led Immanuel with 17 points, while Mack Roebuck had 12, Dick Evans had 12 and Bill Dickens had 10. Philip Smith had 12 to pace Black Jack.

In the second game, Presbyterian built up a 31-24 lead in the first half, and doubled that margin in the second. They outit St. James, 29-22, to take the victory and move into first all alone. Brazel Moore led Presbyterian with 26, while Bit Johnson had 17. For St. James, Mike Mayberry had 14.

Rounding out the evening, Piney Grove edged out into a 19-15 lead in the first half. They then outshot Oakmont, 35-22, to roll to the upset victory.

Buddy Allen led Piney Grove with 14, while Gene Gray and Jimmy Mills each had 11. Don Parrot led Oakmont with 17.

All-Stars Switching Teams This Season

By MIKE RECHT
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The American Basketball Association stages its fourth annual All-Star game Saturday with the outcome likely to hinge on a sweeping East-West change in direction and two controversial switches in leagues.

Because of trades and the realignment of divisions this season, four stars who played for the East last year will be on the West squad this time around, and three others moved from West to East.

Gone to the West is the great front line of Bob Netolicky, Mel Daniels and Roger Brown, who led the Indiana Pacers to the Eastern Division and ABA titles last season before the club was moved to the West Division.

Moving with them was Donnie Freeman, traded from the Floridians to Utah and then Texas.

Traveling in the opposite direction were Larry Jones, traded from Denver to the Floridians; Cincy Powell, traded from Texas to Kentucky; and Rick Barry. Barry was sent from Virginia to the New York Nets after the Squires were switched from West to East.

Just as important is the switches by Joe Caldwell, who wasn't even in the league last year, and Spencer Haywood, who at least temporarily, no longer is around.

Caldwell, an all-star on the West squad in the rival National Basketball Association last year, jumped leagues and made it with the ABA East this season. He just got the okay early this week from a federal court judge to remain in the ABA.

Missing, however, will be Haywood, the ABA's Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player last season who also was MVP in this All-Star game in 1970. The superstar center, who jumped Denver for Seattle of the NBA, left after a contract dispute and also was granted approval this week by the court to stay in the NBA until a trial on the matter is held March 2.

Despite, or because of, all those changes, the West is favored to win this game for the third straight time before an expected sellout crowd in the newly-expanded 15,000-seat Greensboro Coliseum and a national television audience on CBS. Game time is 2 p.m. EST.

The game promises to match the West's height, strength and experience against the East's youth and quickness as two former NBA players, Bill Sharman of Utah and Al Bianchi of Virginia, match wits as the coaches.

The starting lineup for the West includes Netolicky, 6-foot-9 with 20.9 points and 10 rebounds per game; Brown, 6-5, 20.4 points; Zelmo Beaty, Utah, 6-9, another former NBA All Star who jumped leagues and is averaging 23.9 and 15.9; Larry Cannon, Denver, 6-5, 25.8 points, and Freeman, 6-3, 23.9 points. Freeman was picked as a representative from Utah before his trade to Texas.

For the East, it will be Caldwell of Carolina, 6-5, 22.9 points; John Brisker, Pittsburgh, 6-5, 28.4; Mack Calvin, Floridians, 6-0, 28.6; Dan Issel, Kentucky, 6-7, 28.8 points and 13.6 rebounds, and Charlie Scott, Virginia, 6-6, 27.1.

Issel, who leads the league in scoring, and Scott are the only rookies in either starting lineup. Caldwell is the only player on the East squad with more than two years experience—he played seven seasons in the NBA.

Completing the West team are Daniels of Indiana, rookie Wendell Ladner, Steve Jones and Jimmy Jones, all of Memphis, and Red Robbins, Ron Boone and Glen Combs, all of Utah. Boone and Combs came to Utah in the Freeman trade and represent Texas in this game.

Daniels, 6-9, in his fourth All-Star game, leads the league in rebounding with 18.3 retrieves a game and a 21.2 point average.

On the East bench will be Barry and Bill Melchionni of the Nets, George Carter and Neil Johnson of Virginia, Cincy Powell of Kentucky, Mike Lewis of Pittsburgh and Larry Jones of the Floridians.

Barry, a former scoring leader in both leagues, still holds several NBA All-Star records and is averaging 25.8 points a game this season despite being slowed by injuries. Melchionni is the ABA assist leader with 8.5 per contest.

Brodie, Lamonica To Start At Quarterback In Pro Bowl

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Brodie of the San Francisco 49ers and Daryle Lamonica of the Oakland Raiders will be the starting quarterbacks Sunday when the greatest collection of talent in pro football history tangles in the first Pro Bowl matching stars of the American and National conference.

Unlike past all-star clashes, this game, which will be nationally televised by CBS starting at 1 p.m., PST, is expected to be played to its fullest — with no prohibitions on blitzing or any other arrangements made between the coaches.

With NFC Coach Dick Nolan naming Brodie and AFC Coach John Madden naming Lamonica a passing show is expected for the clash of 81 of the National Football League's top stars in a contest heightened by elements of the old AFL-NFL rivalry.

For as much as anything this is a test of prestige for the combatants on each side following a season in which the NFC won 27 games and the AFC 12 in head-on meetings. The AFC's Baltimore Colts grabbed the Super Bowl over the NFC's Dallas Cowboys.

That pride in conference may be the major reason no gentlemen's agreements have been reached between the coaches to guard against an all-out battle.

That not only offers the prospect of a major offensive battle with all the major statistical leaders on hand, but a hard-hitting, defensive struggle revolving around savage front fours.

Aiming at Brodie will be an AFC front four that totals over 1,100 pounds—6-foot-7, 295-pound Bubba Smith of Baltimore, 6-7, 287-pound Buck Buchanan of Kansas City, 6-4, 270-pound Joe Greene of Pittsburgh and 6-3, 256-pound Rich Jackson of Denver.

Lamonica, meanwhile, will have to contend with a lighter, but quicker NFC quartet of 6-5, 250-pound Deacon Jones of Los Angeles, 6-5, 260-pound Bob Lilly of Dallas, 6-4, 260-pound Alan Page of Minnesota and 6-6, 255-pound Carl Eller of the Vikings.

That creates several interesting match-ups. Jones will be going against 6-6, 270 tackle Jim Tyrer of Kansas City and Lilly against the Chiefs' 6-5, 260-pound guard Ed Budde. On the other side, two Rams — tackle Charlie Cowan and guard Tom Mack — will have to handle Smith and Buchanan, respectively.

With the battle along the lines ensued, the most explosive performers in the NFL will begin parading their talents.

The NFC offensive unit named by Nolan to start includes 1,000-yard receiver Gene Washington of the 49ers and 1,000-yard ground gainer Larry Brown of Washington. Two other 1,000-yard producers, — receiver Dick Gordon of Chicago and running back Ron Johnson of the Giants, wait their turn.

Brodie's other weapons at the start will be another receiver named Gene Washington, of the Vikings, tight end Charlie Sanders of Detroit and running back MacArthur Lane of St. Louis.

Besides Lilly, the starting defensive unit includes one other member of the NFC champion Cowboys, —cornerback Mel Renfro, and middle linebacker Dick Butkus of Chicago, reputedly the most feared player in pro football.

The AFC starting offensive and defensive units are dominated by the Raiders and the Chiefs. Oakland will have six players on the offensive side and one on defense while Kansas City has two on offense and five on defense.

Lamonica will have two of his own receivers in Warren Wells and tight end Raymond Chester plus a familiar running back in Hewitt Dixon and two line mates—center Jim Otto and tackle Harry Schuh. Receiver Gary Garrison of San Diego and running back Leroy Kelly fill out his complement of starting offensive weapons.

In reserve on the bench will be the conference's leading rusher, Floyd Little of Denver, and top receiver, Marlin Briscoe of Buffalo.

Defensively, the Raiders starter is cornerback Willie Brown while the Chiefs are Buchanan, linebackers Willie Lanier and Bobby Bell, cornerback Jim Marsalis and safety Johnny Robinson.

In addition to prestige, the players will be battling for winner's shares of $2,000 each, with $1,500 going to each member of the losing team. If the teams are tied at the end of regulation time, they will play sudden death to determine the outcome.

Par Becomes Joke In First Phoenix Round

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Par became a joke in the first round of the $125,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

Asked his score Thursday, Frank Beard replied: "Par, 66."

It wasn't entirely true but: Arnold Palmer shot a 68 and was not happy. Billy Casper had a 67 and was three strokes off the pace. And Dave Hill was wondering why they were using the lady's tees.

Bob Lunn, Fred Marti and Don Massengale matched 64s, seven under the listed par of 71, and led the most massive assault on par in over two years on the pro golf tour.

A combination of near perfect playing conditions, warm sunny weather without a hint of wind, greens that held and a short (6,477-yard) flat course led to some almost incredible scoring.

In all, 98 players in the field of 150 broke par on the Arizona Country Club course with 48 locked within three strokes of the leaders.

"It's playing so short you'd think they're using the lady's tees," said Hill, one of 13 tied at 65, just one stroke off the pace.

"I feel like I'm about one over par," Palmer said after his 68 that left him well back in the pack. "It's not a good start."

Jack Tuthill, veteran tournament director for the PGA's tournament players division agreed. "They're all hitting irons into the par fives," he noted. "Play those as par fours and you get par at 67."

The three leaders played those fours a total of 11 under par in the first round. Among them they account for an eagle and three two-putt birdies.

"The longest club I hit on a par four was a six-iron," added Marti, a 30-year-old Texan who lost his exempt players status last year. He birdied all four of the par fives, two with two putts, and didn't have a bogie.

Massengale, a 33-year-old veteran, made his round with an outgoing nine of 30, five under par, and claimed a share of the top spot with a two-putt bird on the final hole.

Lunn, 25-year-old winner of the Los Angeles Open two weeks ago, spiced his day with an 18-foot putt for an eagle three on the eighth.

In addition to Hill the others at 65 were George Archer, Miller Barber, Bruce Crampton, Tom Weiskopf, Howie Johnson, Homero Blancas, Paul Harney, Joe Carr, Dick Crawford, Jerry McGee, Rod Curl and Bill Garrett.

There were 14 more at 66 and 18 at 67. U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin had a 68.

Beltoise Faces Legal Action

By R. GREGORY NOKES
BUENOS AIRES, (AP) — A year ago, Jean-Pierre Beltoise left Argentina as a local hero, winner of the 1970 Argentine sports auto race.

He leaves today, charged with negligent homicide, under bond of $15,000 and object of local abuse, from press and fans alike. His career as a leading auto race driver may be ended and at the very least, seriously jeopardized.

The difference was a fatal accident in the 1971 race that killed Italian driver Ignazio Giunti. Beltoise was the key factor in the accident.

A local judge Thursday ruled that evidence to date showed that Beltoise was guilty of negligent homicide. He ordered the 33-year-old Frenchman arrested, and then released him on bond.

Beltoise will be allowed to leave for 60 days but will have to return at the end of that period to again face the courts for a final determination in the case. He still could be found innocent.

Beltoise declined to comment on the judge's action, but did confirm he would leave for France today.

Beltoise, driving for the Matra team, ran out of fuel on the 38th lap of the Argentine 1,000-kilometer sports auto race Jan. 10. He got out and began pushing his Matra toward the pits, a considerable distance away.

A number of cars went safely around the Matra which Beltoise was pushing at some considerable strain in a criss-cross path in the center of the track. But when Giunti rounded a hairpin curve he was unable to avoid the stalled car and smashed into it from behind.

The Ferrari exploded in flames, and the popular young Italian driver was trapped inside the burning car in front of the thousands of fans in the main grandstand.

Judge Esteban Vergara ruled Thursday that Beltoise had done "a highly imprudent act... (that) can be considered as the determining cause of the tragedy that occurred..."

He said this was irrespective of such other matters as whether warning flags were properly displayed and whether other drivers might be ignoring the flags.

Charging an athlete with a criminal act as a result of a mishap in a sporting event is not common and questions have been raised why it was done here.

Juan Manuel Fangio of Argentina, five-time world driving champion and chief organizer of the race, is one of the few to come to Beltoise's defense in the matter.

Fangio says the matter was "magnified out of proportion with out any reason." He said Beltoise was doing what any good driver would do, "trying to stay in the race."

"Beltoise made a mistake," Fangio said. "But... it should not be forgotten that when a man is driving he isn't aware of anything else, not even his own name."

Couple Of Other Winning Streaks

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
UCLA, Marquette, Southern Cal and Pennsylvania have imposing winning streaks in college basketball. Don't overlook Utah State and Massachusetts.

Utah State, tied for 12th with Kentucky in this week's Associated Press poll, made it nine in a row by beating Utah 102-92 Thursday night. Unbeaten Massachusetts made it 11 straight by whipping Boston University 77-63.

Utah State, unbeaten since the Brigham Young game on Dec. 19, made it 14-2 for the season in beating the Redskins before 14,689 at Salt Lake City.

Marv Roberts and Nate Williams combined for 60 points to lead the Aggies. Each scored 30 points in the nip-and-tuck game until the Aggies went ahead for good at 90-88.

Mike Newlin's 27 points paced the Redskins, who lost for the fifth straight time to their arch rival.

It may have been a costly victory for the Aggies. Junior Jeff Tebbes, a star in the backcourt, suffered a poke in the eye early in the game and may be out for the season.

Mike Pagliara and Julius Erv-ing, with 24 and 22, combined for 46 points to lead Massachusetts over BU.

A burst of 11 straight points early in the second half sewed it up for Massachusetts. James Gardin paced the losing terrors with 23.

Duquesne, upset winner over Notre Dame earlier in the week, made it five in a row by routing Cleveland State 106-60 led by Garry Nelson with 19 points. Vermont, led by Ray Ortiz's 28 points, upset Fairfield 86-74.

Centenary humbled Hardin Simmons 74-71, Seattle downed Weber State 74-70, Northern Illinois defeated Ball State 90-83, Texas-Arlington beat Pan American 101-82 and Southern Mississippi overcame Lamar Tech 82-77 in other games.

Only an accounting firm that tabulated ballots of a 54-member selection committee knew the name of the winner of the 45-pound granite trophy until Agnew made the announcement.

"My goals are to play pro football and be successful in whatever I do," Stillwagon, 21, said after receiving the award.

"I'm not leery about doing anything, but some day I want to be a coach."

Stillwagon, also winner of the Outland award for outstanding lineman, said he was really surprised by this one. He would not compare the two awards.

Three other finalists — Larry Di Nardo, Notre Dame offensive guard; Chip Kell, Tennessee defensive guard, and Rock Perdoni, Georgia Tech defensive tackle — witnessed the presentation. They were given plaques as runners up.

The award, sponsored by the cancer society and the Houston Rotary Club, is symbolic of the Fordham University line—called "seven blocks of granite"—that made the former Green Bay and Washington Redskins coach famous.

Agnew addressed the dinner group prior to disclosing the award winner. He said the molding of championship teams was only part of a larger mission for Lombardi.

"Vince Lombardi was a teacher of the abiding values of our society — love of God, family and country; faith, pride, discipline, loyalty, perseverance, dedication to a cause larger than oneself," Agnew said.

Worry Clinic An Old Fallacy Laid To Rest

Clark worries lest sex produce a coronary heart attack, if he should marry this young widow. And some middle-aged wives even try to scare their mates into an ascetic state by this idea that coronary attacks follow marital affairs. Read the facts below, and order that sex booklet.

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Case P-553: Clark K., aged 44, is a widower. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I was happily married for 21 years to a lovely woman. "But she died a year ago from cancer. "I thought I'd never get over the shock, but I have gradually adjusted and now have met a widow, aged 34, who seems quite wonderful. "We belong to the same church and are much alike in our family background, so I want to propose. "But do you think a resumption of marital relations would shorten my lifespan, for I have a mild coronary condition? "And I have heard that sex often kills men with heart trouble. Is that so?"

SEX FALLACIES
It isn't the marital relations that put a strain on men with heart trouble. No; it's the dancing and chasing around prior to the wedding. Actually, the sex act itself is medically not as severe a strain on the human heart as smoking just one cigarette! And I'm not joking! For the pulse rate is not increased very much via coitus. But one cigarette can zoom your pulse by 20 beats per minute.

Moreover, this faster rate may continue for 20 minutes after you have finished that single cigarette! So your cigarettes, dancing and night-clubbing are what put the strain on your body's faithful "motor."

A number of my Chicago patients have been wealthy men past the age of 40 who had paramours. "Dr. Crane," they usually protest, "I'd much rather have an affair with my wife than with an outside-siren. "But my wife is too fat, stodgy and disinterested in reviving our courtship behavior. "So I have cultivated a cute blonde, aged 25, who is crazy about night clubs and dancing. "As a result, I am forced to expend my energy till the wee hours before I ever get her back to her apartment. "And it is this round of night clubs that wears me out. So I am thinking of stopping my affair just so I can relax comfortably at home and get a good night's sleep. "Wives, if your husbands are past the age of 40, they are usually in a dangerous mood. For men regard sex not just as a symbol of love, but also as a barometer of their youthful vigor. Perk up, therefore, in your boudoir charms and seductive aggressiveness. Then you will keep your husbands at home nights. For most husbands love their wives and would rather relax at home if you would free them from their fear of becoming platonic mates. You can do this easily if you'll just wake up to the dual role of sex in the eyes of your mates, namely, (1) love and (2) an index of youth. For men who chase around after females half their age, are seldom interested in love of the wedding-ring variety. They are seeking reassurance about their erotic vigor, so they resort to paramours as expensive tonics for their libido. Send for the medical booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. Then you'll rate the mink coats now going to the paramours!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.) Copyright 1971.

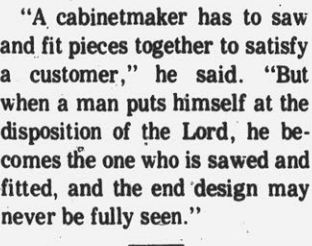

Minister Is A 'Moonlighter'
WARREN, ILL. (AP) — The Rev. George E. Ford, a Baptist minister, works full time as a carpenter and preaches on Sunday.

He said his ministerial work only pays him $50 a week and the carpentry enables him to supplement his income. But he sees other advantages in the combination. "A cabinetmaker has to saw and fit pieces together to satisfy a customer," he said. "But when a man puts himself at the disposition of the Lord, he becomes the one who is sawed and fitted, and the end design may never be fully seen."

In order to land his fourth heart contract, South found it necessary at one stage to ruff his partner's good trick. West opened the three of spades and South won with the king in his hand. A club was led to the queen which was taken by East's ace. The shift was to the queen of hearts in order to impede the dummy's ability to ruff clubs. South took the heart return with the ace and played the king and a small club. West discarded the seven of diamonds and North ruffed with the eight of hearts. The ace that is now in its 18th year, the AFROTC drill team will go through their paces from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. in downtown Greenville and Farmville and in several of the shopping centers. While the drill team marches, the entire cadet corps, aided by the Arnold Air Society and the Angel Flight will collect contributions from passing motorists and pedestrians. Last year the cadets collected over $3,700 in its Marchathon.

Hardy Named Chairman Of Heart Fund In Pitt

Dr. Ira M. Hardy II, a neurosurgeon at Pitt Memorial Hospital, has been named chairman of the 1971 Heart Fund Campaign in Pitt County.

The announcement came today from Dr. Raymond T. Doyle, head of the Coastal Plains Heart Association. The annual campaign will be conducted in Greenville and throughout the nation between February 1 and February 28.

The high point in the campaign will as usual be a Heart Sunday during the month. On that day, volunteers in residential areas will call on people in their neighborhood to give them educational information on the warning signs of heart attack and to receive Heart Fund contributions.

"There can be no doubt that diseases of the heart and circulation, accounting for about 53 percent of all deaths, constitute our country's foremost health problem," Dr. Hardy said. "Latest statistics show that more than 27 million Americans suffer from some form of cardiovascular illness."

A native of Kinston, Dr. Hardy received both the AB and the MD degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is a member of the Kiwanis, the Pitt County Medical and Dental Society, the Congress of Neurological Surgeons and other civic and professional organizations.

Dr. Hardy served two years in the U.S. Army in the mid 1950's. He is married to the former Mary Ruth Mitchell. They are the parents of three children, two boys and a girl.

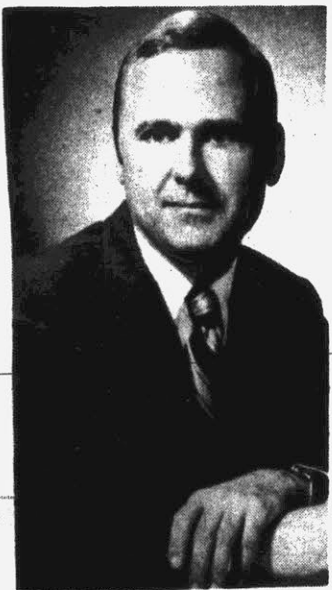

Rev. Morton Will Speak For Revival

The Rev. C. Manly Morton, who preached his first sermon in the very early part of the 20th century, is slated to be the guest conductor of a three day missionary revival at Greenville's First Christian Church.

Rev. Morton's first sermon was delivered back in 1903. In the intervening 67 years, he has preached literally thousands of sermons and is still a very active senior citizen. He is currently an associate minister of the Parkway Christian Church in Fort Lauderdale, Florida and accepts speaking engagements frequently.

In the missionary revival at the First Christian Church here, Rev. Morton will deliver messages on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. At 7:30 p.m. Friday his subject will be "Thermometers or Thermostats." He will lead a Saturday morning prayer breakfast at 8:00 a.m., which will be an informal discussion. This will be followed by a sermon at 7:30 p.m. Saturday with "Let Your Religion Be A Joy To You" as his subject. On Sunday, he will conduct both the 9:00 and the 11:00 a.m. services, speaking on "The Power To Become." His final message in the missionary revival series will be "Ancestors or Descendants" to be delivered at 6:00 p.m. Sunday.

Doctor-Minister Deplores Neglect Of U.S. Young

Third of four articles

By PAUL CORCORAN
Copley News Service

Dr. Buford Nichols of the Texas Children's Hospital and Baylor College of Medicine is a skilled pediatrician, an authority on nutrition and malnutrition, and is an ordained minister.

He is also an aroused man when he talks about millions of Americans going hungry in a nation of wealth where crops are permitted to wither and rot to maintain price stability.

"Ecology is the thing now," he said in an interview. "Everyone wants to stop wasting our national resources. 'What about our children? Don't they figure in the ecology as our most precious resource?'"

He conceded the failure to care for the poor and hungry was nothing new, quoting Socrates who admonished the Greeks: "You citizens of Athens develop the wealth of your city, but you do nothing for your children."

So far as nutrition is concerned in America, Nichols noted that as long ago as the turn of the century New York City was providing free milk for the indigent poor.

Yet he cited a recent survey in a section of Texas' Rio Grande Valley farm country — where Mexican migrants are not eligible for any of the assistance that filters down to poor American citizens — showing children who had not had milk for six months. One infant was drinking a formula of rice and water.

There were 300 persons living in one of the labor camps.

There were four toilets, two of which worked. A survey team found but two working showers. There was no hot water, just tepid water which the women somehow used to wash their clothes.

For years, said Nichols, people have been holding hearings, conducting surveys and citing statistics to show that hunger and nutrition are problems.

"It just hasn't gotten the message across," he said. If it takes blunt facts, and pictures, to tell the story, he is all for it — and he brushes off as only a semantic difference the distinction between hunger and nutrition. "It is like counting the number of angels dancing on the head of a pin."

The Texas Children's Hospital has cataloged hundreds of photographs of children afflicted with diseases associated with malnutrition — rickets, deformed infants, growth retardation, mental retardation and other ailments. Most have been used to illustrate medical journals in limited circulation.

But Nichols believes that if the photos in general circulation shock citizens into demanding that local, state and federal agencies cooperate in a program to fight hunger, it is a worthwhile effort.

Dr. Willard P. VanderLaan, head of the division of endocrinology at the Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation in La Jolla, Calif., agrees that something has to be done to make the majority of Americans realize what is going on.

"They must realize the eventual cost they will have to pay for children who suffer malnutrition now," VanderLaan said in an interview.

What everyone interviewed agreed on was that a child retarded either because he or his mother in pregnancy lacked proper food — and there is a conjecture the latter is a factor in retardation — will be a burden on the community.

Nichols stressed the economic burden of treating children suffering from malnutrition which results from hunger. "The end is the same," he said of hunger and malnutrition. "The doctor has to treat the end product."

"Prevention should be a priority," he said. "Now the priorities are set by political forces. It is political."

Reynaldo de la Cruz, fighting the battle for more food for the indigent and migratory laborers at McAllen, Tex., in the Rio Grande Valley, agreed with those who say local officials manipulate food distribution to the poor more according to social conduct and politics than to human need.

Williamston JCs Accord DSA Honor

WILLIAMSTON — Ernest Godard, an active member in the Williamston Jaycees for a number of years, was presented the Distinguished Service Award for 1970 at the annual Jaycee banquet in Williamston held Tuesday night at the Holiday Inn.

Presentation of the award was made by Wade Roach of Plymouth, vice-president of the area Jaycees. He cited the long years of community activity undertaken by Godard; his service within the Jaycees, including a term as president; and Godard's involvement in church work.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University. Dr. Jenkins spoke on the three types of citizens — the minimum citizen, whom he described as one avoiding doing anything; the average citizen, who would do things when asked to participate; and the maximum citizen, one who not only wanted to contribute, but was always ready to seek and meet challenges.

appreciation to the Williamston Jaycees and to all Jaycees of Eastern North Carolina for their continuing support of East Carolina University.

"I can't get a job, I've been blackballed because of what I am trying to do," he said in an interview. "It is politics."

An attorney for the United Farm Workers Organizing

Committee testified recently before a congressional subcommittee exploring migratory labor problems that powerful families in Texas had built a political structure that held migrant workers in their grip.

But hunger and poverty are not, of course, confined to Texas.

In testimony before Sen.

George McGovern's Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, witness after witness — from Florida to the District of Columbia — told stories of despair and frustration.

Mrs. Marty Green testified about school lunches in Washington, D. C.

"In some schools, they are giving different colored meal tickets, in some different lunches, and in some they must get into different lines," she said. "Is it any wonder that children would rather not eat lunch than let their schoolmates know their parents can't afford to pay for lunch for them?"

"Our children don't want to be laughed at any more than yours," she said.

In their appearance before the McGovern committee, two special White House aides, Capt. Terrence P. Goggin and Clifford Hendrix of the U. S. Military Academy, described an interview with the head of the welfare department in Natchez, Miss.

"She emphasized her benevolent attitude toward the 'poor colored,'" the two officers stated, "but indicated her belief that 'they generally want everything given to them,' that they lead morally disgusting lives and that her primary concern is to 'educate' them to proper forms of behavior. The local food stamp recipients and members of the local Community Action Agency told us that she attempted to enforce her 'morality education' by removing newly pregnant women from the welfare rolls for a month or so."

They said that in other areas, including Mendocino and Fresno counties in California, there were "flagrant violations of welfare and food distribution laws and guidelines." This is in a state where officials say there are generally far better working conditions and housing than in Texas, Florida or any other agricultural state.

No Alternative But Welfare?

By PAUL CORCORAN
Copley News Service

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — The heaviest woman sat on the hand-me-down couch in the living room of the year-old apartment, part of a Spanish-style housing development across the street from a citrus grove.

It is not as crowded as the ghetto of Watts in Los Angeles, nor the slums of Houston, Detroit, Chicago or New York. The buildings are attractive and rent for the 150 units is cheap.

But the Casa Pueblo section of the Casa Blanca housing development is a melting pot, 1970 style, and it has the problems that were part of the slums of the 1890s and early 1900s in New York.

"We had to call the police in," said Mrs. Trinidad Garcia, as she expounded on the problems that have led to fear among residents of the housing development on the fringe of this city of 140,000, 60 miles east of Los Angeles.

"There always were some incidents of trouble, but some of us simply moved out temporarily when there was real violence," she continued. One person was killed and others injured in one fracas.

A condition of living in Casa Pueblo is that anyone of any racial or religious origin is eligible. These include blacks, poor whites and Mexican-Americans.

Mrs. Garcia, who is vocal and articulate — she has the benefit of two years of junior college although she can't get work because she is too heavy ("How can I afford food that will enable me to enjoy a normal diet?"), complained to the city council that promises of social services and other community benefits had not been kept.

Police Sgt. Vic Jones conceded that the city, an attractive community with well-kept houses and many citrus groves, had problems of both hunger and unrest.

What about hunger and poverty?

"We know hunger problems exist," said Jones, part of a five-member police community relations department. The staff had one man in 1967, has been expanded because of increased racial tensions, particularly between the Mexican-Americans and the blacks.

He said that many police helped the poor with money out of their own pockets, and that the local newspapers had been cooperative in exposing the problems of education, hunger and addiction to marijuana and other dangerous drugs. Also, there is a community settlement house that provides free breakfasts — just as there is a somewhat controversial Black Panther kitchen for the same purpose. Some citizens believe the two services should be coordinated to avoid polarization.

Then there are people like Jess Carlos, who operates a market on 14th Street where food is immediately available for the migrant farm laborer or some other poor person. He is reimbursed later by public agencies.

Carlos, who works behind the meat counter in busy periods, said, "No one goes hungry if he knows where to go. It is not like the 1930s. But some people have their pride and they don't like welfare."

Mrs. Garcia echoed that view, and described how difficult it was for her to get work. "You have to know someone. They say you are too fat — with the kind of food you buy with our budget, how can you be slim? — and then you find someone just as fat, who knows a politician, getting a job."

No one wants welfare, she said. "But what else is there?"

Horse Thieves Still In Business

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Horse thieves stole two horses from Lloyd Pulsen, including one mare due to foal.

Pulsen reported to county police that a dark gray Palamino mare and dark gray Appaloosa mare were taken from his property.

Pulsen said a neighbor told him he saw a pickup truck pulling a horse trailer in the vicinity of Pulsen's stable.

Malta Aims AtSmuggling

VALLETTA, Malta (UPI)—Malta now has hopes of controlling smuggling from Sicily with two fast, heavily armed patrol boats promised by the U.S. government.

Prime Minister G. Borg Olivier explained the smuggling situation to President Nixon when he was in the United States for the 25th anniversary session of the U.N. General Assembly.

The Malta police and Malta Customs have been handicapped in dealing with smugglers whose boats are fast and well armed. And cigarettes, clothes and jewelry have consequently been finding their way into the island.

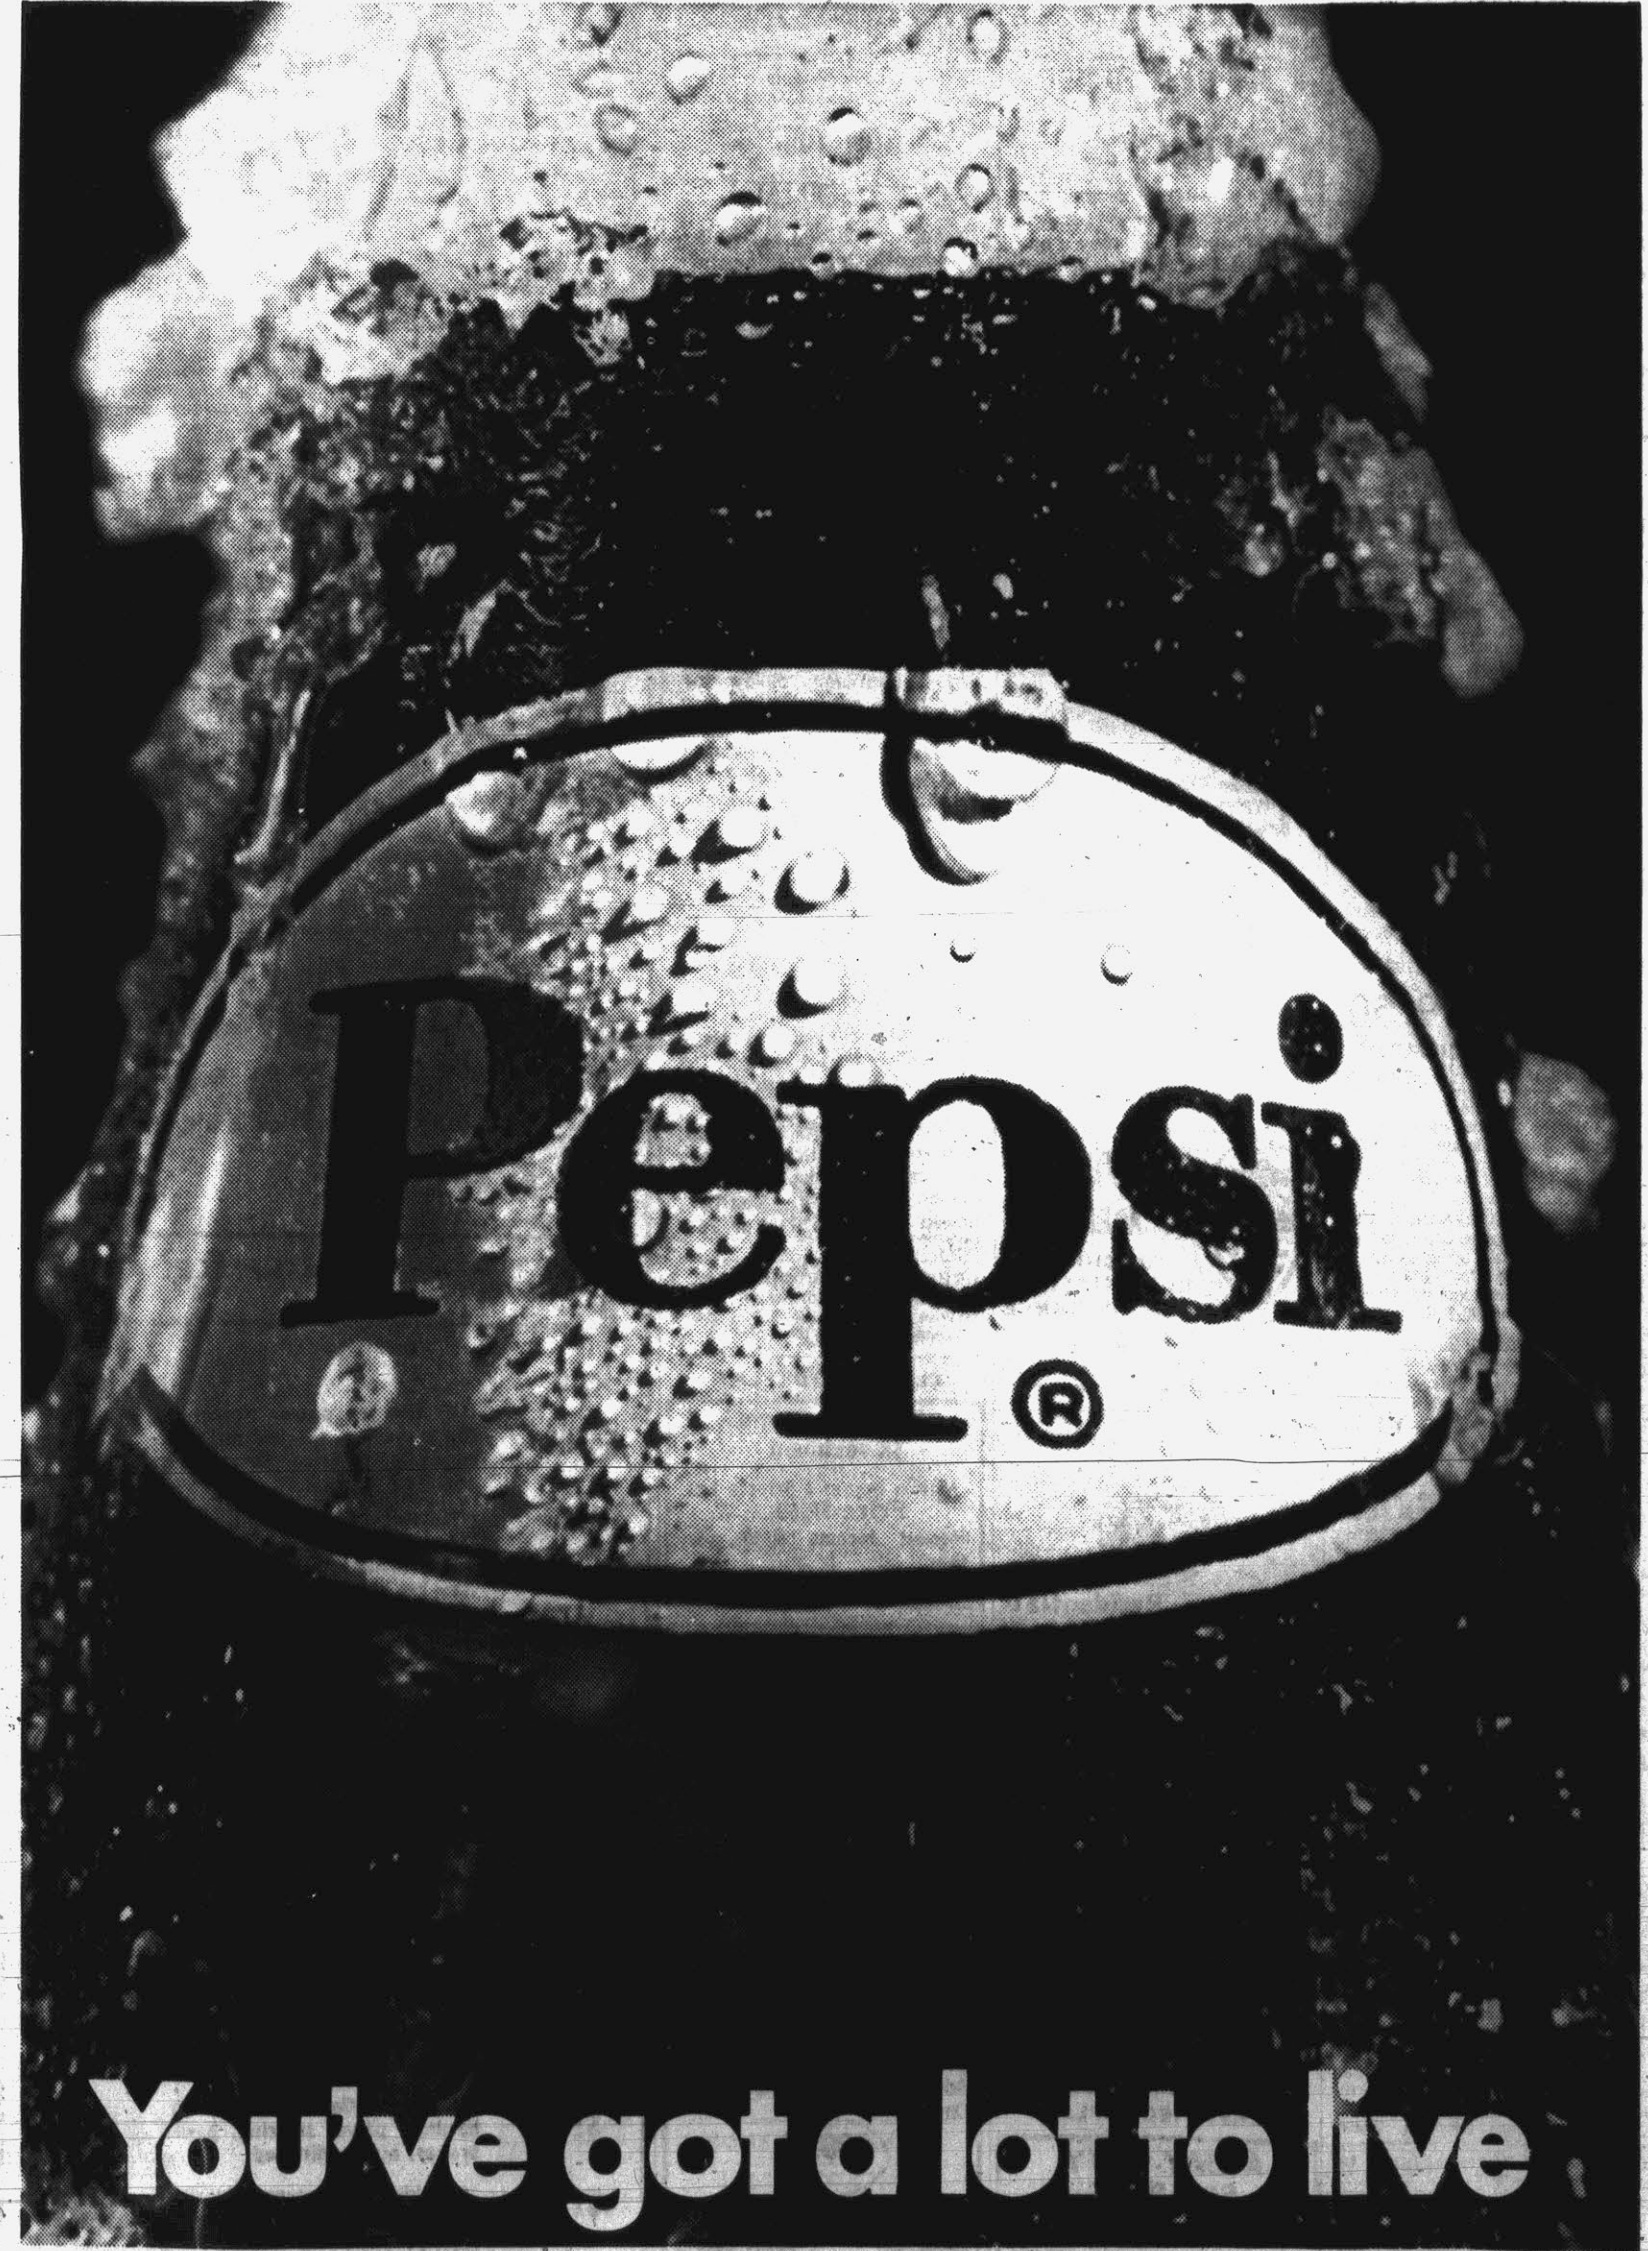

But with the American gift local authorities believe they can stop or greatly diminish the traffic.
