Apollo 14 Hurtles On; Lunar Landing Decided

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 14's quiet astronauts hurtled on course today toward a rendezvous with the moon...

following an uneventful night in which they monitored systems, recharged batteries and generally relaxed for the big days ahead.
They were more than 160,000 miles from earth, traveling about 2,400 miles an hour.

day. The crew could be forgiven for not knowing. The Porsche team of Pedro Rodriguez and Jackie Oliver won the race while the spacemen sat on a Cape Kennedy launch pad, waiting for a cloud bank to pass so they could start their lunar voyage.
Apollo 14 shifted to an on-target course Monday night when command module pilot Stuart A. Roosa fired up the big main engine for the first time.

11.5 miles before Shepard and Mitchell separate the lunar lander Antares for a Friday morning descent to the hilly terrain known as Fra Mauro on the eastern fringe of the Dry Ocean of Storms.
That was a mighty good burn there," Roosa exclaimed after the firing, Monday.
The suspense over whether Shepard and Mitchell would be able to land ended Monday when Apollo mission director Chester Lee declared, "We're proceeding with every intention of making lunar landing."

Doubt about the landing was raised shortly after launching Sunday when the astronauts had difficulty linking the command and lunar modules. They separated the command ship Kitty Hawk and turned around to hook up with and extract Antares from a compartment atop the third stage of the Saturn 5 rocket.
Five times they tried and failed. They finally succeeded on the sixth attempt, but experts on the ground huddled to discuss what could have caused the failures.

Green Light For Moon Landing

LUNAR LANDING CLEARED — Astronaut James McDivitt, manager of the Apollo Spacecraft Program, gestures as he explains "some foreign object" apparently got into the Apollo 14 docking system but now was believed gone as he and Chester Lee, right, mission director, said that the astronauts can make a lunar landing. They made the statement at the Space Center, Houston, after a night of problems for the three Apollo 14 astronauts had clouded chances for a moon landing. (AP Wirephoto)

Day Of Shadows

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Punxsutawney Phil, the famed weather forecasting groundhog, inched his way from his burrow on Gobbler's Knob today, saw his shadow and scooted back inside. That meant six more weeks of winter, weather folk say.
But Phil's "wife" almost stole the show.
As flash bulbs popped and about 50 people cheered Phil onward, a dainty female groundhog popped from the hole.
Some observers questioned whether Phil actually saw his shadow or was perturbed by the upstaging.
The Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, however, claimed it was the shadow that made Phil do an about-face. Members of the club, which has held the annual vigil on the hill for 87 years, tried to ignore the other groundhog.

U.S. Warplanes Continue Pound Red Supply Trails

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes today attacked border crossing points scattered along nearly 100 miles of the Ho Chi Minh trail through southern Laos.
In the ground war, South Vietnamese forces reported killing 100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in seven clashes. The South Vietnamese said there were 45 enemy attacks on South Vietnamese military units and civilians in the past 24 hours, the highest number since last September.
Keeping up the most sustained aerial campaign of the war in an attempt to check major North Vietnamese units reported moving south, waves of B52 bombers flew 65 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone to pound supply exits from the Mu Gia Pass.

The eight-jet Stratofortresses also dropped tons of bombs on the Ban Karai Pass leading out of North Vietnam 35 miles to the south. Other B52s and smaller fighter-bombers hit at entry points into South Vietnam 30 miles south of the DMZ.
Informed sources said that since the big U.S. air campaign began last October, the B52s had flown about 3,500 sorties against the Ho Chi Minh trail, dropping a total of more than 100,000 tons of bombs on the network of jungle roads, trails and work dumps.
In addition, Air Force, Navy and Marine fighter-bombers have been flying between 300 and 400 sorties a day against the trail.

The ground clashes reported by the South Vietnamese ranged from the Mekong Delta to the central highlands, and a spokesman said three South Vietnamese troops were killed and 15 wounded.
South Vietnamese headquarters said there were 18 rocket and mortar attacks in the past 24 hours, eight of which caused casualties. But there were no reports of such attacks against U.S. positions following eight early Monday in which six Americans were killed and more than 26 wounded.
American troops uncovered an enemy munitions stockpile 53 miles southwest of Da Nang that included 176 rifles and 19 heavy weapons.

In Cambodia, South Vietnamese infantrymen clashed with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops south of the Saigon-Phnom Penh highway and just across the border about 40 miles west of Saigon. South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 21 of the enemy were killed, along with one South Vietnamese.
Cambodian troops were reported sweeping south along the bank of the Mekong River below the provincial capital of Kompong Cham, northeast of Phnom Penh, and a spokesman said they met no resistance.
Cloudy and warmer Thursday and Friday turning cooler Saturday, with chance of showers each day.

Prison Raid

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein's security forces have raided a secret Palestinian guerrilla prison in an Amman suburb and arrested both prisoners and wardens. Jordan's police headquarters announced today.
Security forces cordoned off the suburb before storming into the prison building Monday night. Eight civilians held prisoner and six guerrilla guards were arrested, police spokesman said.
Reliable sources said the prison was operated by the leftist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Bethel Man Was Severely Burned

BETHEL — Malachi Surlis, a resident of Bethel, yesterday afternoon suffer extensive burns, said by Fire Chief Dalton Perry "to cover about 85 percent of his body." Surlis, whom Perry said is about 40 or 45 years old, was pulled from his burning bed by fireman John Hollis.
The victim was taken by the Bethel Rescue Squad to Pitt Memorial Hospital shortly before 4:00 p.m. He was administered emergency treatment and then taken by ambulance to the Veterans Hospital in Durham. Cause of the fire was not determined, and the condition of the burned man was not available this morning.

Filing Time

"Tomorrow is the first day of filing for candidates seeking election to public office in Greenville," City Manager Harry Hagerty disclosed this morning.
Beginning at the opening of the city clerk's office at 8:30 a.m. on Wednesday, February 3, and continuing through Monday, April 5, the books for filing will be open at city hall.
This year, as a result of changes approved last year, the City Council will be constituted of six city councilmen and a mayor. This opens up two new political positions not hitherto available to those seeking public office.
Filing fee for candidates remain at $1.00. Qualifications as a candidate for office are — that a candidate be a qualified registered voter, 21 years old or older, a resident of North Carolina for a one year period, and a resident within the corporate and precinct limits for not less than 30 days prior to the date of election.
Candidates for office, including any incumbent who may decide to run for reelection, must declare their intention by officially filing with the city clerk prior to closing hour of 5:00 p.m. on April 5.

Dubber To Depart Housing Authority

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The executive director of the Housing Authority, Col. A E Dubber, Monday night tendered, at the advice of his doctors, his advance notice of retirement.
Dubber told Housing Authority commissioners that he would remain with the commission while a successor is being considered and noted that he had suggested that he retire. The director underwent an operation several months ago on his hip and recently had a series of tests run to diagnose what he termed "dizzy spells."

A retired Marine Colonel with 35 years active service, Dubber was born in West Texas and attended Culver Military Academy in Culver, Ind. before entering the University of Wisconsin at Madison.
He enlisted in the Marines in 1927 and at the time of his retirement from active duty, was base supply officer at the Jacksonville Marine facility.
Actually, the colonel joined the Redevelopment Commission and Housing Authority in November of 1962, four months before his retirement from military service, and commuted between Greenville and Jacksonville until coming here to live following retirement.

County Board Okays Selling Of Properties

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon approved the sale of two parcels of property—the old Edwards Building and a wood-frame dwelling on Washington Street—to the Greenville Redevelopment Commission.
Under the sales agreement, the county will receive $50,000 for the two parcels. The Redevelopment Commission will clear the buildings from the property and in turn make available to the county the entire half-block North of the Court House.
The sales agreement is subject to the action of the Greenville City Council at their Thursday night meeting.
Although no action was taken, commissioners discussed bringing the county's leave policy—governing vacations, sick leave and holidays—in line with State policy. Action on a new policy is expected at the next meeting of the board.
The members of the board also discussed briefly the possibilities of employing a county planner, and establishing zoning regulations for the county.
Commissioners are scheduled to meet February 15 to open bids for the county revaluation program.
According to state law, property must be revalued every eight years. The new revaluation should be completed by October 1, 1972 in time to be listed on tax books January 1, 1973.

Drug Cultist Leary And Wife Said 'In Custody'

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A tape recording attributed to Eldridge Cleaver says Black Panthers have placed Dr. Timothy Leary and his wife in protective custody in Algeria because "LSD has destroyed their ability to make judgments."
The tape, broadcast Monday over the Pacifica Foundation's station KPFA-FM, said the Panthers have withdrawn support from the "psychedelic movement," of which Leary once was leader.
"His mind has been blown by acid," the tape said.
Cleaver is the self-exiled Panther minister of information. Leary, who escaped from a California prison where he was serving a drug possession sentence, arrived in Algeria with his wife last September and proclaimed common cause with the black militant group.

The tape recording said Leary and his wife Rosemary were put under "revolutionary" arrest between Jan. 9 and 13, then placed under "Panther protection" at a villa where the couple lived in exile.
The tape said, "If you think that by turning in, turning on and dropping out that you're improving society, you're wrong. You're destroying your own brain and strengthening the enemy. They want robots."
"We want the people Che Guevara asked for: cool, calculating killing machines ... with confirmed ideological foundations ... motivated by revolutionary love," the record said.

Environmental Bills Introduced

RALEIGH (AP) — A package of environmental protection bills has been introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly by a legislator who says he plans many, many more before the 1971 session adjourns.
Rep. Norwood E. Bryan Jr., D-Cumberland, submitted three bills in the House Monday night dealing with detergents, petroleum and new industry.
"I have several more bills," Bryan said, "but I'm not ready yet. We've plenty of time."
Under Bryan's proposals, the use of phosphate, nitrate and other plant nutrients would be regulated to "the end that nutrient content may be totally eliminated from such detergents as soon as is feasible."
For the petroleum industry, Bryan introduced a bill that would activate a 1945 act — passed but not yet effective — authorizing the Department of Conservation and Development to regulate the drilling and operation of oil wells.
Bryan said his measure was precautionary in nature.
"It would be too late if we waited until we needed this," he said. A third act would require the Department of Conservation would probably leave the Authority "around the first of November."

In receiving the advance notice of Dubber's intentions to retire, the board, along with the Redevelopment Commission that also comes under his auspices as executive director, is faced with replacing a man who has served here in an executive post since 1962.
Dubber informed commissioners last night that, following recent test, his doctors

The Soldier General Patton Slapped Dies In Obscurity

MISHAWAKA, Ind. (AP) — Charles H. Kuhl, the soldier Gen. George S. Patton Jr. slapped in a Sicilian hospital during World War II, has died in the obscurity he sought for 27 years.
Kuhl, a sweeper in a Mishawaka factory, died Sunday of an apparent heart attack but his death was made public only today. He was 55.
"I tried to forget it," Kuhl said in an interview last March after the movie, "Patton," had spotlighted him again.

The colorful Patton lost command of the U.S. 7th Army as a result of the slapping incident. He spent six months in England, then became commander of the 3rd Army and again made headlines in an armored dash across Europe that helped crush the German enemy.
Patton was killed in an auto accident in December 1945 after the war had ended.
"I think he was a great general," Kuhl said in the interview. "I think he went a little bit over his needs, personally. I mean he was a glory hunter. I think at the time it happened, I think he was pretty well worn out—pretty well shot himself. I think he was suffering a little battle fatigue himself."

Egypt, Israel Gear Up; Defense Lines Bristling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Israel and Egyptian defenses along the Suez Canal were reported bristling with reinforcements in preparation for the expiration of the six-month-old cease-fire at midnight Friday.
Israeli observers said Egypt has moved up troop reinforcements, thousands of mortars and heavy artillery pieces, hundreds of tanks, anti-aircraft batteries and other advanced equipment.
The Egyptians also have built what appear to be ramps leading into the canal, presumably for use by amphibious forces attempting to cross the canal by boat or pontoon bridge, Israeli newspapers report.
The Israelis are less specific about their own preparations, but they say their fortifications can withstand attack from any weapon in the Egyptian armory.
Egypt has said repeatedly it will not agree to another extension of the cease-fire unless U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring reports progress in the peace talks which he has been holding with representatives of Egypt, Israel and Jordan at U.N. headquarters in New York. Jarring has made no such report, and the talks, while continuing, appear to be in the exploratory stage.
Despite Egypt's insistence that it won't extend the cease-fire under present conditions, observers in Beirut expect the truce to continue on a de facto basis. Israel has already said that it will not fire first.
However, the Egyptian government has undertaken a campaign to convince the world and its people that hostilities may resume along the canal after six months of silent guns.
Egypt's Higher Defense Council met today in Cairo to evaluate the military situation.

white stitching; A long sleeved, zip-front design with two-way belt that can be sashed at the waist and bow-tied under the collar. It features colorful top-stitching detail—white on yellow or black on white; a pantsuit with turtle neck, modified A-line top, in powder blue with touches of white for accent at the neck, sleeves and pockets. All in double knit Enkron polyester.

Modern Nurses Uniforms Offer Color, Style

By AP Newsfeatures
Fashion has finally come to the professional uniform ... and Florence Nightingale, an innovator herself, would probably heartily approve. Now the "woman in white" can have a touch of color, and with the kind of designer detailing that looks equally correct off-duty or on. This was the idea that Elizabeth Woodridge, of Liz'beth Designs, had in mind when she developed the concept of a fashion wardrobe for the professional woman. As a long-time buyer of better dresses and uniforms, she was often asked, "Why can't my uniforms look as attractive as my clothes?"—and decided to do something about it. "Many women going into the nursing profession are young, and with young attitudes, and they want to look attractive", she says. She has found, too, that the discreet use of color can be a morale-builder: it gives a lift to the patient, and projects an attitude of friendliness and hospitality.

Equally important, of course, is the lift they give to the woman who wears them. Designed in easy-care Enkron polyester double-knits, they are, first of all, always fresh, wash after wash, with colors that stay true, and with the ease and all-weather comfort that can move through a strenuous day.

Then, with just a switch of accessories—an accent scarf, some jewelry, and the right shoes, the same uniform becomes a fashion dress on its own, for after hours. It works beautifully with Liz'beth's new shirtdress, a youthful design right in the mainstream of today's fashion, with contrasting color for the convertible collar, placket front and tabbed pockets.

There's a new turtle neck style too—a white A-liner, but with that little spice of color, in green, coral or black—used strategically as accent piping for neckline, sleeves and pockets.

A zip front design with two-way belt that can be sashed at the waist or bow-tied under the collar, has colorful top-stitching detail—white on yellow or aqua, or black on white—for a sophisticated look. And there's a double breasted coachman style too—designed in aqua or yellow with stitching, as well as in all white.

Color, fashion, comfort all go hand in hand in this brand new approach to professional dressing. And just to show how in tune with today they are, Liz'beth Designs is offering nursing associations and student nursing groups a fashion show that encompasses all the new looks—including the pantsuit.

'Good Grooming' Is Up To Daughter

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Do you have any suggestions on how to get an 18-year-old daughter to shave her legs? She thinks hair is "natural."

It may be "natural," but it looks awful to me. No doubt in other countries around the world hair on women's legs is taken for granted, but this hasn't been the case in the United States for a generation or two. Is there a new trend developing?

Our otherwise pretty daughter looks like a lady wrestler. I am beginning to believe that you are the only one she will listen to.

SAD DAD

DEAR DAD: Get with it! Your daughter need not conform to my idea of good grooming, esthetics or whatever. She's doing her own thing, and if she chooses to save the hair on her legs or shave it, it's no skin off my shins. Or yours either, dad.

DEAR ABBY: For 11 years I have put up with being married to a man with two faces. Now I have decided to seek an answer. My husband is kind and considerate when we are alone, but as soon as we are with other people he turns into a cruel, arrogant man who belittles me and humiliates me in every way possible. Not wishing to make those present feel more uncomfortable, I just sit back and take it.

When we are alone again, I ask him why he always insults me in public. His standard answer, "Can't you take a joke?"

Well, if this is a "joke," I guess I can't take a joke anymore. I have stopped going out with him, but I can't stop people from dropping in. I know that you can't solve my problem, Abby, but if you can tell me what makes a man act that way maybe it would be easier to live with.

HURT

DEAR HURT: If you want an authoritative answer as to why your husband feels the need to humiliate you only in public, ask him. Possibly he doesn't know, but with professional help, he can find out. But as long as you sit back and take it, why should he? If you were to stand up to him when he insults you, those present might feel less "uncomfortable" than seeing you submit like a whipped animal. Try it. You've nothing to lose but your misery.

DEAR ABBY: Hi! My major problem is that I am only a half-inch taller than my girl friend. She is a pretty girl, and I would never give her up for this reason, but if you know any growing secrets I would sure like to have them.

I tried putting sheetrock in my shoes one night when I took her to the movies, but when we were about halfway home I had to take it out because my feet were killing me.

She doesn't wear heels because she doesn't want to be taller than I am. So what advice have you for me?

SHRIMP

DEAR SHRIMP: You don't say how old you are, but if you have not as yet reached your full growth, you might ask your doctor if there is anything new in "growth control." [I am not recommending—only suggesting.] Other than that, look into elevated shoes if you want a lift.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hungarian Cooking Emerges As One Of Great Joys Of Eating

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH
BUDAPEST (UPI)—Hungarian cooking has survived 20 years of Communist austerity to emerge, fine and fattening, as one of the great joys of European eating.

There are those, including some Hungarians, who feel that traditional standards are slipping, as chefs in major restaurants make concessions to foreign tastes and cholesterol scares by substituting cooking oil for pork fat.

But the old verities remain—goulash soup (boiled meat soup, with onions, paprika and potatoes), poerkoelts (braised meat stews, lots of onion), thick creamy sauces, fogas (a delicious pike-perch from the Danube or Hungary's Lake Balaton, fixed many ways), stuffed cabbage and goose liver.

Hungarian recipes still lean heavily on paprika made from small, aromatic peppers. They still combine delicate flavors with hearty eating. They still are hard on the waistline. They still are washed down with tart Tokaj wines, with milder Balaton rieslings or, perhaps best of all, with a full-bodied Csopaki Olaszrizling.

And they still come surrounded by elegant and excellent service—the only really good service left in Eastern Europe—and by gypsy music as rich and irresistible as the pastries or pancakes that end each meal.

Two Factors
The late restaurateur, Karoly Gundel, in his cookbook, defined freshness of ingredients and culinary skill as the two factors in Hungarian cooking.

His restaurant, Gundel's, remains one of Budapest's best. Others where a tourist can be assured of fine food and careful guidance include the historic Hungaria, the marvelous Matyas Pince, the elegant Kis Royal (try the pancakes wrapped around caviar in cream sauce) and the Fortuna on Castle Hill.

Near the Fortuna, on Fortuna Street, is a museum of old menus, ornate table settings, recipes and a fine old kitchen. But Hungary's culinary tradition is barely 100 years old, according to Gabor Lombosi, the manager of Gundel's.

"We have adopted influences from other nations—Serbia, Slovakia, Romania, France," Lombosi said. "But our golden age began in 1886, with our millenium festival, when there was a great upsurge of national feeling that led to a stress on national cooking."

Fit for Royalty
Gundel's beef stew is made with tenderloin steak. Brown 1½ pounds of boneless tenderloin, cut in strips, in about ¼ cup of lard. Season with 1½ teaspoons of salt and a dash each of pepper and marjoram. Cook gently, covered, until meat is half tender; add 6½ ounces of goose liver (substitute chicken livers, if desired), cut in strips. When meats are done, add ¼ cup of sifted flour mixed to paste with ¼ cup of dry white wine. Cook and stir until thickened, then add 1 cup each of cooked, drained asparagus tips, haricot beans (white kidney beans or baby limas can be substituted) and green peas. Top stew with nest-like arrangement of scrambled eggs, made with 6 eggs and ¼ cup of cream cooked in about 2 tablespoons of butter. Serve with french fries.

Adoption Ceremonies Highlight Her Life

By FRANK ULLARD
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Micronesians adopted Mrs. Susan Fite in 1966. In 1970 Mrs. Fite adopted a Micronesian.

It all started when Mrs. Fite and her husband, Jerry, went to Saipan in August, 1966, when Fite was appointed Peace Corps director there.

Mrs. Fite became close friends with a woman working in her husband's office, Joanie Rekemesek, a native of the island of Pohni. She later visited another island, Palau, to meet Joanie's parents and learn about their culture.

Susan was warmly received. More specifically, she was adopted by the Palauan family. "I didn't know what was happening," Susan recalled. "I don't speak Palauan, and they didn't speak English. It was all very informal."

Part of Ceremony
Exchanging gifts was part of the ceremony. "They gave me 'women's money,'" Mrs. Fite said in an interview, displaying a brown, hand-rubbed tortoise shell.

After her years in Saipan, the Fites returned to Washington.

The two women continued to correspond. Miss Rekemesek became an airline stewardess and then a bride. Then her aunt—the high priestess of Palau—

Clown's Friends Come To His Aid

COLCHESTER, England (WNS)—Susan and Deborah Chung, 8 and 10 years old, burst into tears when they learned that Koffy the Clown had been evicted from his home for failure to pay the rent. Koffy, whose real name is Derek Bissell, had lost his job with Chipperfields Circus for the winter. The two sisters raised almost $35 by carol-singing and bought clothes for Koffy's eight children. Now they have started a campaign to get his house back. "I'm smiling again and would like to put Susan and Deborah in my act when spring work comes," said Koffy.

Suburban Beauty Hints

The Eye Is Fooled

How many gray-headed people have you seen lately? Be careful of your answer, because the eye may be fooled! Your response will probably be "several," but technically it should have been "none."

Actually, the hair that gives the illusion of gray is really white. At some point in life, pigment production in hair starts to diminish, strand by strand. The result is an absence of color, substituted with white hair.

As the white strands appear among the colored ones, the shades are mixed by your eyes and appear "gray."

Lawmakers Go To School

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Ever hear of a previous question, a legislative clincher, or a point of personal privilege?

They are some of the things Tar Heel lawmakers are learning in a school for legislators being conducted by Secretary of State Thad Eure.

Eure has been conducting a school for legislators near the start of every session since 1931. At that time, Eure was serving as principal clerk in the House of Representatives.

Eure said he started the classes because "new members would come asking me questions, frequently the same questions."

Since then, more than 1,000 new legislators have attended Eure's classes. Even some legislative veterans attend. Those on hand one day last week included House Speaker Phil Godwin and D. L. (Libby) Ward, who was speaker in 1939.

Eure said one reason his school is needed is that the rules of the state House and Senate differ considerably from the rules of procedure members may have encountered in civic clubs and organizations back home.

Eure tells the legislators some of the privileges of their position and some of the responsibilities.

For example, he explains that they have freedom of speech and can not be held accountable elsewhere for things they say in legislative halls. The lawmakers also learn that they are not subject to arrest except for commission of crime while attending legislative sessions or on their way to a session.

The legislators also learn they are subject to a fine if they fail to attend legislative sessions without a proper excuse.

They are told that then they want to get something off their chests they can rise and tell the presiding officer they want to "speak on a point of personal privilege."

One way to cut off debate on an issue and get an immediate vote, Eure tells the legislators, is to call for the previous question. However, he cautions that only three people can make that call. They are the bill's introducer, the chairman of the committee that considered the bill, or the person the chairman designated as floor manager for the measure.

The clincher, Eure explains, is a way for a legislator to prevent a bill from being revived once it has been killed. The legislator applying the clincher moves that the vote by which the bill was defeated be reconsidered and for that motion to be tabled. If the motion carries, then it will take a two-thirds vote to even consider that bill again during that particular legislative session.

The legislators also learn how to force a recorded vote on an issue. They tell the presiding officer they are calling for "the ayes and noes." The presiding officer asks, "is the call sustained?" If as many as one-fifth of the members present rise, the call is sustained and a roll call is held to record the vote of every member.

FATAL IGNORANCE
NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. Coast Guard says lifesaving devices were available in the majority of boating fatalities but most victims either did not try to use them or didn't know how they worked.

ROBBERIES END — Winthrop Howard, who spent five years in prison on an armed robbery conviction, works as clerk in a La Mesa, (Calif.) late-nite food store. He and other ex-convicts were hired by the store in an effort to stop losses and the experiment is paying off. There have been no robberies in the five months since the men were hired. Little Objection By Counties

There would probably be little objection from North Carolina's 100 counties if the state followed recommendations of a research firm hired to study the state's welfare program.

Key recommendations of the firm are that the state take over the administration of the welfare programs in the various counties and also that the state eventually pay the entire non-federal share of welfare costs.

There is little room to argue with the report's findings that the present locally administered program is "inadequate and unsatisfactory." This does not mean that the programs are not administered as well as they can be by the counties under the circumstances which exist. But every county faces great difficulty with its welfare program and these difficulties and complexities

Republicans In Hopeful Mood

By BRYAN HANSLIP
RALEIGH — North Carolinians elected more Republicans to office last fall than ever before in modern times.

Counting from the county level to Congress, GOP officeholders now number around 265 for the state as a whole. That's a net gain of approximately 40 over the 1968 election which set the previous record.

Not exactly cause for pessimism, the State Republican Central Committee concluded recently after surveying balloting results in its first meeting since the November general election.

The GOP held its own in Congressional seats: four incumbents were re-elected. In the state legislature, the party had a net loss of ten—five each in House and Senate—making a minority delegation of 31. The remaining 235 Republicans in office are at the local level.

"Naturally, we all were disappointed at our General Assembly losses," conceded Senator Harry S. Bagnal of Forsyth. "On the other hand, gains at the grassroots certainly is encouraging for the party's future."

No Leadership Quibbles
Bagnal made it clear that in his view election results cast no reflection on the leadership of State GOP Chairman James E. Holshouser, Jr. who also is Watauga County Representative.

First James Gardner of Rocky Mount, the 1968 gubernatorial candidate, and more recently Rep. James C. Johnson, Jr., of Cabarrus have lamented the '70 campaign as a disaster and voiced doubts about party leadership. Johnson said the GOP sustained a serious defeat in the general election, and suggested that Holshouser step down as party chairman.

"Frankly, I don't think Jim Johnson really appraised the election results statewide," Senator Bagnal said. "I don't know of anyone else among the Republicans in the General Assembly who agrees with him."

"Everyone I know of feels Jim (Holshouser) has done a good job." Holshouser himself remained unperturbed, disposed to take the clamor as an indication of a lively, growing party.

After all, politicians worth their salt have stirrings of ambition, and party leadership worth fighting about means a party with prospects.

Future Looks Promising
He does see the future bright. Provided President Nixon squares away economic conditions (generally acknowledged the issue which crimped the GOP last fall), Holshouser looks to '72 for historic wins.

Strong candidates will challenge for Governor and U.S. Senate, he assured. There will be Republicans on the ballot for legislative and local offices in the East and throughout the state.

In sum, Holshouser's posture is that of a chairman in command who intends to keep the party moving. He's already put five years into the job (average tenure nationwide: 17 months), and although he's fourth youngest among state GOP chairmen in the nation, he ranks fifth in seniority.

Should he relinquish the post, it would not be before the State Republican Convention in the fall. Time and place have not yet been fixed, but the convention would be the juncture for a leadership change.

Even then, the decision most likely would depend upon whether Holshouser decided to make a bid for the party's gubernatorial nomination.

Primary Might Help
For the time being, his response to questions about the governor's race is a grin and the observation that the GOP has a lot of good men available. A primary to settle the nomination would not necessarily be a bad thing, he added, and if the right spirit prevailed could be helpful and strengthening.

Other than Holshouser, a name that crops up frequently is that of Congressman Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell of the Fifth District. A former major league baseball player, Mizell has a folksy style that some Republican strategists figure would have statewide appeal.

Bagnal, whose home city of Winston-Salem is in Mizell's district, said he didn't know what the Congressman's inclination would be at this increase each year.

Most people likewise recognize that there exists, as the research firm asserts, "lack of uniformity . . . in programs and procedures, and there is wide variability in practices among the counties."

As long as the welfare program is administered separately in individual counties, and the counties are required to participate in financing the programs, there will be variances in what is done in each county. The only practical way to achieve uniformity is through state administration of the program along with state funds to pay the full non-federal cost of the program.

There is also the further consideration that this is an immediate and tangible way for the state to grant much-needed financial relief for the hard-pressed county governments. With constantly increasing demands for local services, and with limited revenue sources, there are few county governments in the state which are not facing financial crises in seeking to meet their needs.

By assuming the portion of welfare costs now coming from county funds, the state would ease somewhat the financial plight of its county governments.

Fewer Holidays Will Be Observed In 1971

It is interesting to note that we will not be observing all holidays this year as we have in the past. Many of them were changed by Congress to provide for the long weekends that so many people wanted.

So you will know, here are the legal holidays as provided by Congressional action:

Washington's Birthday, third Monday in February; Memorial Day, last Monday in May; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, first Monday in September; Columbus Day, second Monday in October; Veteran's Day, fourth Monday in October; Thanksgiving Day, fourth Thursday in November; Christmas Day, Dec. 25.

Calif. Demos' Step To Sanity

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
SACRAMENTO, Cal. —

The election last Sunday of a new Democratic state chairman, a post long downgraded by California Democrats to a figurehead status, is immensely important in the volatile politics of this state with implications that not even the delegates who did the voting fully grasped.

At the very least, the upset victory for state chairman of Charles Manatt, a 34-year-old political technician, over former Rep. George Brown, a 50-year-old leftist ideologue, offers hope that the rusty, inoperable machinery of the state Democratic party might yet be put into professional working order.

On the personal level, Manatt's win suddenly propels forward another 34-year-old pragmatist, Assembly Speaker Robert Moretti, as the state's most powerful Democrat. Simultaneously, it severely erodes the prestige and party power of Sen. John V. Tunney, who botched the Manatt-Brown race at every stage.

Transcending this is the possibility that Manatt's win foretells the end of California as madhouse of the national Democratic party. In thrall to its extreme left wing for a decade, the California party sent divided, ineffective delegations to the last three Democratic conventions. Now, the party may be controlled by men more interested in winning elections than scoring ideological points.

It scarcely seemed that way when delegates arrived in Sacramento for the state Democratic central committee's convention. Brown felt he had the chairmanship locked up, and so it seemed. Yet, for this pipe-smoking veteran of a hundred left-wing causes even to be considered as chairman of a major state party is astonishing. On the extreme edge of the party's ideological spectrum, he is inexperienced in political organization and anathema to vital sources of Democratic money in this state.

So, why George Brown? Mainly to appease the left, continuing an old California pattern. Considering the state party a non-functioning nonentity anyway, Democrats reckoned Brown as chairman would buy peace from the left. "That's not much to pay," explained one very unradical money man backing Brown, "if it keeps blacks and kids from starting a fourth party."

Similar reasoning may well be behind Sen. Tunney's otherwise inexplicable behavior. Shortly after his landslide victory for the Senate, Tunney seemed clearly for Manatt. As southern California campaign director, Manatt was one of many impressive young pragmatists in the Tunney campaign. Brown had been denounced by Tunney as an extremist in their race for the Democratic Senate nomination. Nor did Tunney's views seem changed after the election when, conferring with national labor politicians, he stressed the urgency of beating Brown for state chairman.

All this changed Thanksgiving eve. While Tunney aides braved torrential southern California rainfall to attend a Manatt

Strength For Today

EVERLASTING ARMS
Ponder these figures for a moment:

The sun is a part of the solar system. The solar system is a part of a galaxy. Twenty to thirty thousand million stars make a galaxy. One hundred million galaxies may make a universe. Every star in the Milky Way has a cubic parsec to itself. A parsec is ninety million miles multiplied by two hundred thousand.

Of course when we get to thinking in terms as huge as this our heads swim. Even if we could write these figures on the board we wouldn't know what to call them after they were written out. "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handiwork." Some people would say that we are but little specks in this immensity and therefore God has no interest in us. Still others would say that a great universe like this did not just happen—somebody made it and still sustains it. We read in the Bible concerning Christ: "All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made." This same Christ said, "Come unto me . . . and I will give you rest."

We are in the hands of an immense Power, but a benevolent Power. We are on the side of the stars, and the stars are on our side, and the God who make them is our God.

"The eternal God is our refuge, and underneath are the Everlasting Arms." By Earl L. Douglass

Ervin Sees New Crisis

North Carolina's Senator Sam Ervin is performing another great service just now in his effort to get prompt action on a bill fixing the ground rules for a constitutional convention. The Senator is a wise old owl, possessed of perfect vision. In a tangled underbrush of law, he sees a crisis creeping up. Few others have paid much attention. After all, the country hasn't seen a constitutional convention since 1787; it is widely supposed that such a political animal is extinct. But unless Ervin is sorely mistaken — and he isn't mistaken often — the next few months are likely to see the Congress eyeball to eyeball with Article V of the Constitution.

That widely forgotten provision says flatly, in words that would seem to defy misunderstanding, that on the applications of the legislatures of two-thirds of the States, the Congress "shall call" a convention for proposing amendments to the Constitution. Such amendments, if subsequently ratified by three-fourths of the States, would become valid additions to our fundamental law.

During the first hundred years of our Republic's history, according to a study by Fred Graham in 1963, only ten such "applications" were filed by the States with the Congress. Between 1893 and 1911, however, petitions came on with a rush; 31 State legislatures sought a convention to propose an amendment for the direct election of U.S. Senators, and though they didn't get the convention, they did get the Seventeenth Amendment.

Over the past 60 years, the tide has ebbed and flowed: world government, the prohibition of polygamy, wages and hours, the Townsend plan of old-age assistance. It wasn't until 1967, four years ago this spring, that members of Congress gave such applications a second glance. At that time, it appeared that 32 State legislatures overturning the Supreme Court's rule of "one man, one vote" for apportioning legislative seats.

We heard a good deal of discussion then of the legal complexities. The late Senator Everett Dirksen fulminated gloriously for a while; law professors came and went; newspaper editors, all of whom are thwarted

Other Editors Say On The Record

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

A means by which some members of Congress are able to hide their votes on amendments will be used in the future to shed more public light on such secret voting. This ought to discourage some politicians from manipulating their votes for political gain, rather for the best interests of their constituents.

Now, however, representatives no longer are certain of the luxury of an off-the-record vote for amendments slashing up original bills, and who then vote for the measure in its final form.

Efforts at reform in Congress are, at best, moving slowly. But these efforts have made headway in prying away the secrecy curtain on some House procedures. In the House, the closest to a public vote on amendments was the teller system. Members were counted but no record was made on how each voted.

Under the new rule, any 20 members may demand a record teller vote, with the names recorded. Constituents ought to have the right to know how their representatives voted on anything in the House that requires a vote, and these votes ought to be a matter of public record.

Committees, under the new rulings, may still hold their session for shaping legislation behind closed doors, but they must now make public roll calls that show how each member voted.

Public pressure at all levels of government is dictating new regulations against secrecy in government. Only recently a bill was introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly forbidding secret meetings. The so-called "executive session," while it certainly does have its legitimate uses, has too often been abused by legislators, committees, etc.

It is difficult to make out a case for secret sessions which are for the purpose of taking up public business. If the results of such meetings affect the general public, then certainly the citizens are entitled to know how these results were arrived at, and at whose instigation. Politicians who resort to secrecy to arrive at decisions hardly deserve the trust of their constituents.

Every Day Will Be Party-Day

Your reporter continues to be a dummkopf in his nasty failure to understand the Great Nixon Give-away of billions of dollars to states and localities, despite the fact that George Shultz, Murray Weidenbaum, Paul W. McCracken, Herbert Stein, John Ehrlichmann and many others smarter than he say it will save the nation.

Although he knows that he must err in the glare of brilliance of those brains, in his stupidity he believes that a big fault of the give-away is the "no strings attached" feature. The billions are to be whacked up among states and subdivisions thereof without any control.

Pie in the sky, mother! As noted, revenue sharing is not new. Congress has long shared federal revenues with states, voting about $15 billion for 90 per cent of the interstate highway system, aid for schools in federally impacted areas, the Head Start program, the federal renewal and housing programs and many others. Strings Attached

There have been strings attached to these programs. The federal government has decreed just how the money was to be spent, the colors for the signs on the highways, and the hoops of red tape state and local officials had to jump through to get shares of this manna from Washington. Despite federal strings attached and a lot of supervision by federal district attorneys and Washington bureaucrats, millions of dollars of this money have disappeared. In New York City alone, an estimated $4 billion of federal welfare money vanished. Some was written in checks for nonexistent people, some in lush contracts and some melted away as if it had been popcicles instead of dollars.

There was only a little stir over this. While a few people went to jail, there was no great public outrage. Most people took the attitude that: "It wasn't our money, it was Washington's money; why should we worry?" The joke is on them. It was their money. For every $900,000 Washington gives to the people of New York state, it collects $1 million in federal taxes.

The Big Leak
It has been demonstrated that state, city and other local governments are touched with corruption. If the voters do not act more vigorously than they do to misuse of money that is taxed from them directly, if controls are not adequate for the money that comes from Washington

'Old-Timey Kind Of Courting' Won Mrs. Wallace

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Mrs. George Wallace, the vivacious, dark-eyed brunette who is Alabama's new first lady, says the governor wooed her with "that old-timey kind of courting."

"It was last spring when he first started courting," said Cornelia Wallace, 32, who married the 51-year-old Wallace, widower and the father of four, two weeks before his inauguration Jan. 18.

"He came to the house with his children but we didn't go out much. Frankly, neither of us wanted to be exposed to all the publicity.

"His children were promoting us. He was very depressed after Lurleen's death and they were worried about him," she said. "They had a lot to do with us getting married."

Mrs. Wallace, smartly clad in a grey woolen dress and high black boots, spoke warmly in an interview, of the governor's first wife, Lurleen, who died May 8, 1968, after a two year bout with cancer. Lurleen succeeded Wallace as governor when his term expired in January 1967 and became the first woman in Alabama and the third in the nation to occupy the office as head of a state government.

"George felt comfortable with me," said the first lady, in a straightforward manner. "We've always known each other.

"In politics, you develop this kind of mistrust about people you don't know. You ask, 'Are they using you?'"

Mrs. Wallace said she and the governor talked about marriage, "but he never came right out and asked me to marry him."

Last spring, Mrs. Wallace, then Cornelia Ellis Snively, a divorcee with classical dark good looks, was among the well-wishers at a political rally for Wallace.

With her two small sons at her side, she made her way to the platform to speak to Lee, Wallace's youngest child.

"She was just sitting up there looking lonely, so I wanted my boys to speak to her," she said. "Daddy," said the 9-year-old Lee a short time later, "I want you to marry the dark-haired girl with the two children."

Mrs. Wallace said her husband proposed by saying, "You remember what Lee said? Well, you were the one she wanted me to marry."

A woman of considerable charm and hospitality, Mrs. Wallace is no novice to politics or to the stately old white-columned mansion. As a child, she lived in the governor's mansion for several years.

Her mother, Mrs. Ruby Austin, is the sister of former Gov. James Folsom, and was official hostess at the mansion until her widowed brother remarried.

A native of Eutaw, Ala., Mrs. Wallace is a pianist, a former water skiing star and a composer of ballads. Her background of politics as well as a brief singing and theatrical career will equip her for the duties of a first lady.

"I love being active and I thrive on being involved," said Mrs. Wallace, her long dark hair falling to her shoulders.

The interview took place in five different rooms in the elegant old mansion as the vibrant first lady, a soft drink in one hand, moved about posing for photographs or speaking to household help.

"As for politics, I've always been involved in somebody's campaign," she said, in her fast-talking Southern drawl.

"When I was 6 and Uncle Jim (Folsom) was running for governor, I remember helping to fold political literature on our dining room table. I campaigned for George, too," she said. "I even wrote a ditty which was used for his campaign song."

Asked to describe the ditty, she burst into song, with a resonant voice: "Wallace in the evening, Wallace at suppertime," then broke off, laughing, "I can't remember the rest."

When her uncle was governor, "George Wallace was a household word," she said, of her husband, who is 19 years her senior. He was then a legislator.

"He tells me now of an incident when I was a child living in the mansion — not this one — it was in the other governor's mansion, a dog-eared one.

"My cousins and I (Gov. Folsom's daughters) were sitting on the stairway in our nightclothes during some sort of reception when several couples came up to us.

"We started to run away but they said, 'Don't go,' and held our hands and spoke to us. I remember the incident but not the people — George says he and Lurleen were one of the couples."

In those days, she said, "Wallace worked for my uncle, tooth and toenail." That is why, she added, her family helped campaign later for Wallace.

An aide brought in a beige toy poodle someone had sent as a gift. Mrs. Wallace took the puppy and sat down on the red-carpeted, wide curving staircase, beneath a huge crystal chandelier and cuddled the puppy.

"Bonnie," she called to a Negro maid. "Hold this puppy until it quits shivering. The children will be home soon to play with it."

Living with the Wallaces are her two sons, Jim, 8, Josh, 7, and two of Wallace's daughters, Lee 9, and Peggy, 20. George Jr. is a student at the University of Alabama and Wallace's other child, Mrs. James Parsons, lives in Birmingham.

Mrs. Wallace plans to collect one antique from the families of every former Alabama governor to enhance the mansion. "I want to make it more historical," she said.

Pointing to two large oil paintings of Confederate generals Robert E. Lee and Joseph Wheeler, she exclaimed,

"They're wonderful, but they're on loan."

She declined to discuss her political philosophy, saying with a disarming smile, "I've been told not to."

"But," she added, "I don't consider myself a political activist."

Mrs. Wallace, who has the slim figure of an athletic woman, is a former water skiing star at Cypress Gardens, Fla. She still skis and loves to play tennis.

She has studied classical piano since she was a child. When she was 19 and a student at Rollins College in Florida, she made a globe-trotting tour with the Roy Acuff group as a country music star.

She has written two folk ballads, plays the guitar and has made a record.

Of the Women's Lib movement, she says:

"My husband ought to be the hero of that philosophy. After all, he elevated his wife to the position of governor ...

"As for me, personally, I prefer creating a background for the man and letting him achieve."

constitutional lawyers, delivered themselves of advisory opinions. Eventually the uproar subsided.

Now it's back again. This time the target is Federal revenue sharing — an idea with enormous appeal to State legislatures across the land. Five States (New Hampshire, Florida, Louisiana, California and New Jersey) already have filed formal applications with Congress to call a constitutional convention for such an amendment. At least fourteen other legislatures, now in session, are known to be considering such resolutions.

Ideas are contagious. This idea could get epidemic. Unlike other convention movements of recent years, revenue sharing arouses few objections of philosophy or principle. The purpose is far removed from reapportionment, State control of obscenity, prayer in the schools, or a new "Supreme Court of the Union." State legislatures are hungry for money with no strings attached. If they can't get it any other way, how about amending the Constitution?

Ervin is asking his colleagues to suppose that 34 States file Article V applications. What then? One belligerent response is to say that now power can compel the Congress to carry out the constitutional commandment that Congress "shall call" a convention. But members are sworn to uphold the Constitution; we have to assume they would perform their duty.

How? Ervin's bill would establish a permanent, orderly plan. If 34 States, within a seven-year period, should ask for a convention on a given issue, Congress would schedule a convention that would be strictly limited to consideration of that issue alone. Each State would elect one delegate from each congressional district, plus two at large. When the convention had finished its business, Congress would transit the proposed amendment back to the States for ratification.

This is a wise and prudent bill. It ought to be taken up now, in tranquility, before the predictable spring day when crisis arrives on the Hill with the postman. He may be bearing Application 34.

strategy meeting, Tunney conferred with Brown. During that meeting, Tunney pledged himself to Brown (later explaining he owed it to Brown for his backing in the Senate race after the bitter primary).

Most big names followed Tunney's course — with the exception of the new Speaker, Moretti. Regarding Brown as typical of California's leftist party-wreckers, Moretti was the only major public official to endorse Manatt. Waiting until the last hours before the balloting, Moretti roamed the convention floor switching votes — over 40 delegates by one reliable count. The result was Manatt's second-ballot victory by ten votes.

While Moretti displayed his muscles, Tunney was absent — having left Sacramento quickly after a Saturday night convention speech. By endorsing Brown, Tunney had aggrieved his friends, including Manatt himself (who lately has referred to Tunney privately as "Prince Lochinvar"). But the Brown men were resentful that Tunney twisted no arms for Brown and did not even prevent his followers from supporting Manatt.

That leaves Moretti first among the new faces in the California party, and his aim is a more orderly party. Characteristically, he was furious that Sen. Alan Cranston names as one of his appointments to the state central committee Abe Tapia, a Mexican-American firebrand who plays footsie with the Republicans and opposes Democratic nominees. Moretti insists such lunacy must cease.

What Moretti and Manatt want is an end to ideological hair-pulling and factionalism which fueled the Democratic decline in California the past six years. The surprising outcome here last Sunday is a stip in that movement toward political sanity.

Extending Of Draft Law Is On Its Way

By JAMES PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The first stage of President Nixon's plan to junk the draft for an all-volunteer Army started its uncertain way through Congress with Senate Armed Service Committee hearings on extending the Selective Service law.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird was scheduled to defend President Nixon's request to keep the law alive another two years, instead of the usual four. The draft expires June 30.

The two-year extension was outlined last week by Nixon as part of his proposal to achieve an all-volunteer military by mid-1973.

"I anticipate that one of the hardest fought battles in this new session will be the extension of the Selective Service induction authority," said John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Nixon coupled his plea with a request for a $1.5 billion pay hike for servicemen in lower grades and changes making the draft law more equitable.

Stennis has stated that he is not against zero draft calls and an all-volunteer Army, in principle, but he calls proposals for an immediate death to the draft "a flight from reality ... impossible to achieve."

In a special message to Congress, Nixon said, "No one knows precisely when we can end conscription."

But, he said, "considerations of national security make it imperative that we continue induction authority at this time."

Nixon also called for draft law reforms to eliminate divinity-student exemptions and undergraduate-student deferments.

In addition, he said a uniform draft call should be established to ensure that men with the same draft number across the country have a relatively equal chance of being inducted.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Rock singer Jerry Lee Lewis, after spending a night in jail, has settled out of court a damage claim against him for failing to perform as scheduled last year at a drive-in theater in Burnet, Tex.

Lewis was arrested by Dallas County sheriff's officers Sunday for failing to answer subpoenas issued in the damage action.

He was released Monday and it was announced that the claim had been satisfied. The amount involved was not disclosed.

point. "He'd make an excellent governor, and he's a tremendous campaigner," Bagnal added.

There is considerable opinion that Congressional redistricting will settle the issue: boundaries for the Fifth to his liking might well find Mizell perfectly content to run for another term in Washington rather than seeking a ship to Raleigh.

Signs that Tar Heel Democrats are edging into a cozier relationship with the national party gladden the Republican chairman. He believes such a movement will open the doors for moderate and conservative Democrats to switch over.

Wants $80,000 Prize In Bank

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, winner of the $80,000 Nobel Prize for literature for 1970, has asked that the money be placed in a bank account, Dr. Karl Ragnar Gierow, secretary of the Nobel Academy, says.

Solzhenitsyn, in official disfavor with Moscow because of his criticisms of the Soviet government, canceled a trip to Sweden to pick up the prize last December. He said he feared he would not be permitted to return to his homeland.

Dr. Gierow said Monday he had received "an indirect message" from the writer about the disposition of the prize money, but declined to say what banking arrangements had been made.

Reagan Trims Welfare Funds In Holding Move

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan proposed today a spartan $6.74 billion state budget which avoids a tax increase mainly by slashing the rate of welfare spending by $700 million annually.

Reagan told the California Legislature that "something must be done, and done immediately" about soaring welfare and health care costs.

The Republican governor's proposed 1971-72 budget, 2 per cent larger than the current one, cuts spending in many areas, holds the University of California to the current $337 million of state support and denies state workers the annual cost-of-living salary increases they have enjoyed for the past decade.

Reagan told the state's college and university faculty members they would have to spend more time teaching to handle a heavier classroom load.

Reagan predicted in an address to the Republican state convention Sunday the budget would bring "resistance and cries of anguish."

Referring to welfare, he said: "When many snouts are threatened with forcible withdrawal from the public trough, it makes waves."

Reagan shunned both the deficit financing of President Nixon's new federal budget and new taxes such as those proposed by New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to balance his state's $8.45 billion budget.

California had a bigger state budget than New York when Reagan first took office four years ago.

The Republican governor faces major problems in getting the budget, and its companion reform legislation, through a legislature controlled by Democrats: 43 to 37 in the Assembly and 20 to 19 in the Senate.

Reagan will propose administrative and legislative changes that will cut welfare spending by a projected $606 million of state, county and federal funds in the budget year beginning July 1. This will be done by tightening up on eligibility and doing away with a number of allowances considered by the Reagan administration to be frills. Details will be revealed in a welfare message to go to the legislature soon.

To save another $100 million, Reagan will ask the legislature to cut back the free health care given by the state to 2.5 million welfare recipients and medically needy.

LINCOLN CENTER

A dream has become a reality—construction of the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, in New York City, is now complete. Eleven years after the groundbreaking by President Eisenhower, a community of performing and educational institutions in the fields of music, dance and drama has been brought together in a common setting: a handsome complex of buildings grouped around large, open plazas and parks.

The Center's activities extend beyond its own home ground, in many ways, however. There are, for example, free concerts in New York city parks, and the Student Program which reaches out to vast numbers of young people in secondary schools in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

The buildings are completed, paid for and effectively in use. As for the future, in the words of the chairman of the board, John D. Rockefeller 3rd, "For Lincoln Center to attain its full potential is now a challenge at least equal in importance to the task of its creation."

Atlanta Test Shows Newspaper Ads More Effective Than Radio-TV Combined!

The following article is reprinted from the January 16, 1971, issue of Editor & Publisher Magazine.

E&P January 16, 1971

RICH'S IN ATLANTA MAKES THE TEST

Newspaper ads sell better than radio-tv, and cost less

Newspapers, radio and television in Atlanta met head-on in a test of their relative advertising effectiveness, and newspapers influenced more sales at less cost than both broadcast media combined, according to the Bureau of Advertising.

The test showed newspapers deliver more than three times the efficiency per advertising dollar.

Participants in the test were Atlanta Newspapers Inc., publishers of the Atlanta Journal and the Atlanta Constitution, and Cox Broadcasting Corp., owners of WSB-TV and WSB-Radio.

The test involved a measurement of advertising response for 10 items advertised by Rich's, Atlanta's largest department store.

ANI and Cox each participated with Rich's in the design of the project. Rich's employed the interviewing service and tabulated the findings from the study.

Items included in the test were mattresses, carpeting, draperies, vacuum sweeper, color television, handbags, girdles, women's shoes, men's shirts and pant suits.

Advertising influences measured by the study were customer statements that they had gotten the idea to purchase the item, or that they had learned the item purchased was on special, as a result of newspaper ads or broadcast commercials.

Based on the findings from 2,176 interviews with Rich's customers in the departments which sold the advertised items, the Journal and Constitution claims:

Far ahead

The $16,910 spent by Rich's to advertise the test items in the Atlanta Journal, the Atlanta Constitution and the Sunday Journal and Constitution produced 71% of the advertising influences reported by shoppers who attributed their purchase decisions to advertising.

The $27,158 spent by Rich's in broadcast media produced 33% of these influences. Another 9% of the advertising influences were attributed to Rich's mail circulars.

When overlapping answers were eliminated, the score stood: 61% newspapers versus 23% broadcast.

A comparison between newspapers and television which together accounted for 90% of all advertising influences, showed 62% attributed exclusively to newspapers; 19% exclusively to tv, and 9% to both.

Newspapers and radio together accounted for 77% of all advertising influences. Of these, 68% were attributed exclusively to newspapers; 6% exclusively to radio and 3% to both.

The test newspaper ads totaled 1,989 inches, the equivalent of 11.6 full pages. They ran Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, September 20-22, just prior to Rich's annual Harvest Sale. On the same three days, the store ran 438 30 second spot commercials—177 on five television stations and 261 on five radio stations. This worked out to more than eight commercials for every hour of broadcast time (6 a.m. to 11 p.m.).

The ANI analysis further showed that newspapers outperformed broadcast media in influencing the purchase decisions of all types of customers. Overall, 55% of the shoppers (some of whom named more than one medium) reported that their purchase decisions were influenced by advertising.

Among women, newspapers were credited with 72% of the influences as compared to 27% for tv and 8% for radio; for men the figures were: newspapers, 65% tv, 27%, and radio, 8%.

Every Saturday Since 1884

Newspapers also showed their ability to influence young people. Among respondents under 35 years old, newspapers were credited with 64% of the advertising influences as compared to 30% for tv and 11% for radio.

As a result, ANI reported: Newspapers which received 38% of the total budget for the test campaign developed 71% of the advertising influence. By comparison, tv received 49% of the budget but produced 28% of the advertising influence and radio accounted for 12% of the budget and 9% of the advertising influence.

The budgetary costs measured were for newspaper space and broadcast time; they did not include production of either the newspaper ads or the broadcast commercials.

Three out of four shoppers interviewed (74%) recalled having seen or heard advertising messages for the test items. Of these, about eight out of ten (79%) recalled newspaper ads; 53% recalled broadcast commercials and 24%, mail circulars.

Recall scorer

Together, 96% of all who reported having recalled the test newspapers, broadcast or both. Of these, 43% recalled only the newspaper ads; 17%, only the advertising, mentioned either broadcast and 36% mentioned both.

Newspaper ads, television commercials or both were recalled by 93% of all those who said they had been exposed to advertising. Of these, 47% mentioned only newspapers, 14% only television and 32% recalled both.

Those recalling newspaper or radio came to 85% of all who reported awareness of advertising. Of these, 67% recalled only newspapers; 6% only radio, and 12% both.

The Television Bureau of Advertising also found the results of the test favorable to retail store promotion on tv. It called attention to the sales results achieved with a mix of media and not noted that many customers buying certain items gave credit to newspaper ads that don't mention these items.

One of the most significant findings, said the TvB, was the fact that shoppers were so conditioned to both newspaper and direct mail that it was impossible to make direct comparisons between media in regard to recall results.

Rich's has used radio-tv advertising both for image-building and item promotion over the last decade while continuing a heavy schedule—up to 10 pages a day—of ads in newspapers.

During 1970 a study conducted at the University of North Carolina also concluded that Newspaper advertising is more effective than either radio or television in attracting shoppers. This study included Greenville along with 24 other North Carolina cities.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned downward today, apparently under pressure from profit taking in very heavy trading.
Advances took a very narrow lead over declines among the issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

During the first hour of trading, 6.1 million shares changed hands on the New York Stock Exchange. This was well ahead of the pace Monday when the first hour's volume totaled 4.7 million shares.

Early prices on the Big Board also included: General Tire, up ¼ to 23½; Sperry Rand, ahead ¼ to 30½; Sterling Drugs, up ¼ at 42½; Continental Oil, ahead 1¼ at 30½; Transamerican, up ¼ at 18½; Pitney Bowes, off ¼ at 29½.

Legislature Organized, Ready To Work

By H. HORTON ROUNTREE
Representative
All appointments to Senate and House Committees have been made, and the 1971 General Assembly is organized and ready for business.

It is interesting to note that the two senators and two representatives of Pitt County are on the Appropriations Committee of their respective houses. Senator Julian Allsbrook and Representative Sam Bundy were named to the Appropriations Subcommittee dealing with general government and transportation. Senator Vernon White and I are on the subcommittee dealing with education. Representative Bundy sits on both House education committees, public schools and higher education. Senator White will serve as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Senator Allsbrook chairs Senate Judiciary Committee Number 1. I am chairman of Congressional Redistricting in the House. All of these committees are important for Pitt County.

There are two redistricting problems facing the General Assembly this year, Congressional and Legislative, with a Supreme Court mandate to carry out the one-man-one-vote concept. Our First Congressional District is 49,032 people short of the average for each of the districts. To arrive at the average figure of 462,005 per district, you take the State's population of 5,082,069 and divide it by eleven. According to the 1970 census, there are 412,973 people in the 19-county First District.

Senator White is a member of the Legislative Redistricting Committee in the Senate. There are 50 senators in the N.C. State Legislature, calling for an average population of 101,641 per senator. Our present two-senator district is comprised of four counties with a population of 195,935.

Representative Bundy is on the House Legislative Redistricting Committee. With 120 members in the House of Representatives, each member should represent 42,350 people. Pitt County has a population of 73,900. We could end up in a multi-county representative district.

A bill was introduced last week to enable the commissioners of each county in the state to call for a one-cent sales tax referendum. This bill is similar to one passed specifically for Mecklenburg County in the 1967 Legislature, and is in effect there at the present time. It should be considered constitutional. The tax would still be left up to the voters of each county.

The liquor by the drink bill that has caused a great deal of talk and speculation was introduced last week. The proponents call it the mixed drink bill and the opponents call it the open saloon bill!

The bill is based on one now in operation in Virginia. It has the following provisions: calls for a local option vote; only those counties and municipalities that are wet can vote; permits are to be issued only to Class "A" restaurants; 60 per cent of the restaurant's business must be from the sale of food; the restaurant must have a seating capacity of at least 50 or more people; and the restaurant must give up its brown-bagging permit. All alcoholic beverages sold in these restaurants must be purchased from the county or municipal ABC store.

The Chambers of Commerce of Charlotte, Asheville, and Wilmington, the N. C. Restaurant Association and the State Travel Council are pushing for passage. Various religious organizations are working very hard against the bill.

A presidential preferential primary election bill has been introduced in the Senate. This would mean that during the state primaries when gubernatorial candidates are nominated, the ballot would also carry the names of those presidential candidates who have chosen to enter the primary. The choice of the voters in the primary would bind the delegates at the national convention on the first ballot.

If this bill passes, we would be the only state in the southeast providing for this selection of presidential nominees. This same bill was defeated in the 1969 General Assembly.

In states that have a preferential primary there has been a great deal of out-of-state participation in local politics, and gubernatorial candidates have found themselves staked out for one candidate or another. Our state has been pretty independent in the past, and I'm wondering if we shouldn't keep it that way.

Methodists Of District Confer

WILLIAMSTON — United Methodists of the Greenville District held their annual conference here on Sunday. The Rev. H. M. McLamb, district superintendent, presided. The conference licensed four young men into the Methodist ministry: Arthur Gayle Fisher Jr. of Kinston; Walter William Gaskins Jr. of Kinston and Methodist College.

Phillip Wayne Keel of Robersonville and Duke Divinity School; and James Carroll Lee of Greenville and Duke Divinity School.

Elected as trustees of the district to succeed themselves were: E. Hoover Taft Jr., Greenville, chairman of the board; Harry H. Cummings, Kinston; and O.P. Miller Jr.,

Dubber . . .

American Institute of Planners and is a Fellow of the American Society of Civil Engineers, among other memberships.

He is married to the former Patricia Trappe of Pennsylvania. Colonel and Mrs. Dubber are the parents of two sons.

The chairman of the Authority, James Sutton, last night advised commissioners to begin thinking about a possible replacement for Dubber.

There has been much discussion, it was noted, concerning the question whether to continue to have an executive director serve over both the Housing Authority and Redevelopment Commission or separate the two boards and have different directors.

It was also pointed out last night that Dubber's successor would probably come from local ranks in lieu of bringing in someone from out of town to assume duties.

Dubber said that the policy of the two boards has been to hire local people and advance them from the bottom of the Snow Hill. Reports indicated that 372 new members had been received by the 70 churches since the beginning of the church year last June. Churches receiving the most members were Jarvis Memorial and St. James of Greenville, each receiving 47 members.

The Rev. McLamb reported that the Christmas offering had amounted to $7,600, which went to the new Holy Trinity Church, Greenville, and older small churches of the district for building programs.

The Rev. Charles S. Hubbard of Wilson, chairman of the Conference Commission on World Service and Finance, explained the requests for 10 per cent increase for next year in World Services and Conference Benevolences.

He discussed the Children's Home, and the Retirement Home, the Retired Ministers' Pension Fund and the National World Service Fund.

A resolution was presented by the Rev. J. C. P. Brown of Williamston, district chairman of Social Concerns, stating the Methodist position on alcoholic beverages and opposing the proposed legislation which would permit liquor by the drink. The resolution was approved by the conference.

organization on up the ladder. Architect Cameron Dudley told commissioners last night that the completion date for the social services center in Moyewood has been tentatively set for March 14.

Dudley said that to date, approximately 70-75 per cent of the work on the building has been completed and pointed out that much of the work being done now involves sub-contract completions.

The tenant occupancy report submitted by the director of tenant affairs, Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, showed that all 65 units in the N. C. 22-1 Meadowbrook section were leased with tenants paying an average of $35.89 in monthly rent.

All 160 units in N. C. 22-2 (Kearney Park) were occupied. Mrs. Streeter said and residents paid an average of $43.61 in rent.

The N. C. 22-3 Moyewood section had 185 units occupied and residents paid $54.07 in monthly rent while all 40 units in N. C. 22-4, also Moyewood, were rented. Tenants in 22-4 paid an average of 44.53 in rent.

The family will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Whaley, 407 Edgewood Street in Ayden.

Howard FARMVILLE — Mr. Willie F. Howard of Farmville died in Wilson Memorial Hospital Saturday night. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Deadline Is February 15

February 15 is the deadline in Greenville for licensing of cars for city tags, for registered dogs and for bicycles. City Manager Harry Hagerty today provided information on these three requirements.

City tags, required for all vehicles registered on the tax books for the city of Greenville, are available either at the city clerk's office in city hall or from Home Auto and Supply Company on Dickinson Avenue, where state license plates are sold. At either place, the state registration card for the vehicle is required. The cost of the tags is $1.00.

Licensing of dogs is also set at a $1.00 fee, Hagerty said. He noted too that dogs must be registered, and ones which are not registered and licensed are subject to being picked up.

Tags for bicycles, now costing 50 cents, are available from the Chief of Police at the Police Station.

Safety Council Meets Thursday

The Pitt County Safety Council will meet Thursday at 12:30 p.m. at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Speaker for the lunch luncheon will be Capt. George H. Brannon of the Greenville Fire Department's Rescue Squad. He will speak on home safety and general first aid.

The Greenville Rescue Squad, for a number of years has consistently placed high in statewide and international first aid and rescue competitions. Brannon has headed a number of the squad's teams during competition.

Anyone interested in safety in any form is urged to attend the meetings of the Safety Council and invited to join the organization.

Winterville Board Sets Hearing Date

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board of Aldermen Monday night set March 1 as the date for a public hearing to consider the adoption of the proposed subdivision regulations prepared by the Winterville Planning Board.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the Winterville Town Hall in conjunction with the regular monthly meeting of the board of aldermen.

If adopted, all new subdivisions of land within the one-mile radius of Winterville will be regulated. Copies of the proposed regulations are available at the Winterville town office.

Included in the new regulations will be requirements for water and sewer, street lights, width of the streets, curb and gutter and paving.

In other business Monday night, board members discussed the drainage problem in Winterville, one of the town's major problems. Board members discussed ways in which the problem could be solved but no action was taken.

It was agreed, however, that all main drain ditches will be cleaned out as soon as weather permits.

Can't Give Marijuana A Clean Bill Of Health

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New federal research indicates most young people will not experience dangerous effects from short-term experimenting with marijuana, but lack of evidence makes it impossible to give the drug a clean bill of health.

"The health picture with respect to marijuana must at present be regarded as fragmentary and clearly incomplete," the National Institute of Mental Health said Monday in its first detailed report to Congress on results of a $3-million-a-year study of pot.

"Many of the most important questions regarding the implications of long-term, chronic use will require significant periods of time to answer," the report stated.

The 176-page report, drew these conclusions: —Consequences of marijuana use "can range from no effects to a psychotic experience, and cannot be predicted for any individual."

—There is no evidence linking marijuana with cancer or birth defects.

—Additional research is needed "before we can ascertain how much of a threat marijuana would pose to the general populace if it were commonly used."

The report reached virtually the same conclusions as preliminary findings issued last September.

Dr. Bertram S. Brown, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, told a news conference:

"The bulk of healthy young people, with short-term use of the drug, will have no deleterious effects—although a few of them will have such effects ... (and) ... in high enough doses, a psychotic episode can occur in everybody

"And, even if it is eventually established that moderate use is not injurious to physical health, a nagging question would remain:

"Do we want to encourage the use of a mind-altering drug which, for so many, is an escape from reality and a retreat into passive enjoyment?"

Brown defined a high dose as "daily smoking or ingesting" of the drug, but he offered no figures. He defined moderate use as two or three times a week.

Pressed by newsmen to estimate the incidence of "psychotic episodes," Brown guessed that one out of every 100 first-time users among college freshmen experiences a "serious panic episode ... a 'bad trip' ... lasting a day or so."

And, he said, he estimates that one out of every 1,000 moderate users experiences such episodes.

"In relatively rare instances, he said, marijuana users may experience psychotic episodes bad enough to keep them hospitalized for a couple of weeks.

Free Throws Lift Bucs Past Peacocks

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Julius Prince tossed in four free throws in the final 34 seconds of play last night to give East Carolina University a 77-74 victory over St. Peter's of New Jersey.

Prince's last two shots gave the Bucs the padding they needed after his first two had returned them to the lead in the game, 75-74. St. Peter's had stormed back from as much as 10 points back in the second half to take the lead at 70-69, and the two teams had exchanged baskets until Prince put the Bucs back up with 34 seconds left. The last two came nine seconds later and wrapped it up for the Pirates.

The win was the second in a row for the Bucs, and the second in a row on their home court, where they've had more troubles this year than in the past.

For St. Peter's, it was an unhappy loss that continued a trend they seem to have fallen into this year. Now 6-10 on the season, most of the losses have come when rallies fell just short. They have been getting off to a slow start all year, as they did last night.

The win boosted the Pirate record to 8-9 for the year, and gives them a chance to even their record at 9-9 on Wednesday, when they play host to Belmont Abbey. That game is scheduled to get underway at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum. There will be no freshman preliminary.

Jim Gregory, who missed the Saturday game against VMI, came back strong with 27 points. He hit on 11 of 16 shots from the field and hit five of seven from the line. He also pulled down 15 rebounds before fouling out with about two minutes left.

The Bucs were hampered by fouls badly in the first half. Al Faber quickly picked up four fouls, while Gregory and Franklin each had three during the half. Faber returned midway through the second half, but lasted only seconds. Franklin eventually finished with four fouls on him.

St. Peter's began to pile up the fouls in the second half, and had two of their players to foul out, Mel Davis, and high-scoring Rich Rinaldi. Rinaldi had 27 points, also, tying with Gregory for high-scoring honors.

The fouls eventually made the difference. Both teams hit 54 points from the floor. The Bucs hit on 23 of 39 free throws, however, while St. Peter's made 20 of 23.

East Carolina took the opening lead on a basket by Gregory, but St. Peter's tied it up several times before taking the lead on a pair of free throws by Rinaldi with 15:28 to go, 10-8. But it was as much a lead as they could manage.

The Bucs retired it on a shot by Gregory, and a three-point play by Prince pushed them back out, 13-10 with 13:18 left. The Bucs then pushed out by as much as 13 points in the remaining minutes of the half. They hit the next three baskets as Gregory, Franklin and Mike Henrich each hit, running the lead to nine at 19-10. It reached 11 on a jumper by Henrich at 23-14, and then moved to 13 at 27-14 as Gregory hit from the corner.

The Peacocks then turned on a rally and cut the lead back to as little as four before the Bucs pulled out again. Harry Anderson hit to cut it to 11, and Rinaldi made two free throws. Anderson hit on two free tosses to cut it to seven, and after a Buc free throw and a basket, a jumper by Rich Fuller and a steal by Ted Martiniuk cut the lead to four, 30-26 with 5:13 left.

But East Carolina slowly pulled away again, and went out by eight before settling to a 38-32 lead at the half.

The Bucs upped the lead to 10 after two minutes, but then St. Peter's began to chip away at the lead again, and eventually cut it to one and then took the lead.

The Bucs retained command, however, until the final two minutes. With Gregory fouled out, the Peacocks seemed to take heart and pulled it back. They had cut the margin to one at 64-63 on a shot by Anton Guitano, but Franklin hit on the fast break and Henrich earned a jumper to run back out by five. Guitano hit again to cut it to three, but a free throw by Prince with 3:01 left raised it to four.

Rinaldi hit on a shot from underneath, and Fuller was fouled at the same time, giving them a three-point play with 2:50 left, cutting the lead to 69-68.

Fuller then hit on a turnaround jumper with 1:36 remaining to give the Peacocks their first lead of the half, 70-69. Franklin returned the lead to the Bucs, but Rinaldi got a bucket to put St. Peter's back up. Henrich hit a jumper to turn it around again, and then with 40 seconds left, Fuller hit again to give St. Peter's its final lead, 74-73.

Prince was fouled after that, and made both shots to put the Bucs back on top. Nine seconds later, with 25 showing on the clock, he went to the line again to sew it up.

Besides Gregory's 27, Franklin added 15 points, while Prince had 14, 10 of those at the line, and Henrich had 11. Anderson had 12 and Fuller had 11 to add to Rinaldi's 27.

Being Number Two Is A Temporary Thing

By BRUCE LOWITT

Associated Press Sports Writer
Being No. 2 in The Associated Press collegiate basketball poll seems to be like life itself—temporary at best.

At the start of the season it was South Carolina. But the Gamecocks quickly slipped down the ladder, falling as far as 10th before moving up to seventh in Monday's poll.

They may not be there long. Duke belted South Carolina 82-71 Monday night.

Another former runner-up was Marquette, but the Warriors went in a different direction—up to No. 1 when front-runner UCLA was upset by Notre Dame.

Marquette retained its No. 1 ranking in the newest poll—but the second-best Uclans didn't. The Bruins, despite a 74-61 romp over UC Santa Barbara in their only game last week, fell to third, trading places with crosstown rival Southern California.

And the Trojans may not be No. 2 very long. A loss to UCLA next Saturday night in the first of the two annual neighborhood brawls could drop USC down a notch or two. And a victory—well...

Only four of the top 20 teams were in action. Another upset along with the South Carolina setback was Vanderbilt's 65-60 victory over 11th ranked Tennessee. In more conventional results, fifth-rated Kansas topped Kansas State 79-75 and No. 8 Kentucky walloped Auburn 114-76.

Idle among the top 10 teams were Marquette, which garnered 18 of the 33 first-place votes and 610 points; Southern Cal, with eight first-place votes and 584 points, and UCLA, with the remaining seven first-place votes and 558 points, 100 more than No. 4 Penn. Sixth-ranked Jacksonville, No. 9 Western Kentucky and No. 10 LaSalle also had Monday off.

Duke took the lead against the Gamecocks midway in the first half and, thanks to a stream of SC fouls and Blue Devil brilliance at the free throw line, never trailed again although South Carolina did manage to tie the game momentarily at 37-37 early in the second half.

John Roche of SC was the runaway top scorer with 28 points but Duke won with a balanced attack headed by Richie O'Connor with 19 and Rick Katherman with 16.

Tennessee, dropping its first home game of the season, traded the lead with Vanderbilt through most of the first half before the Commodores went ahead to stay with 2:24 left in the opening session. Van Oliver led with winners with 17 but game honors went to Don Johnson of the Volunteers with 19.

Kansas couldn't break away from Kansas State until the final minutes when Dave Robisch hit several of his game-high 25 points to turn a 67-64 margin into a 72-64 lead. Steve Mitchell hit 22 for the losers.

Kentucky's perfect performance from the charity line and a 72 per cent shooting percentage enabled the Wildcats to build up a 25-point halftime margin against outclassed Auburn. The lead widened to as many as 39 in the second half. Tom Parker led the runaway with 27 points and Tom Payne added 23.

In other highlighted action, sophomore George McGinnis poured in 45 points as Indiana nipped Northern Illinois 113-112, New Orleans-Loyola rallied to tie down Oklahoma City 107-103, New Mexico State romped past Hardin-Simmons 75-57, Missouri rode Henry Smith's 30 points to a 63-55 victory over Oklahoma State and Alabama outlasted Mississippi 101-91.

Here are the Top Twenty college basketball teams with first-place votes in parentheses and total points on a 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8 etc. basis:

1. Marquette (18) 610
2. Southern Cal (8) 584
3. UCLA (7) 558
4. Penn 458
5. Kansas 393
6. Jacksonville 321
7. South Carolina 210
8. Kentucky 189

10. LaSalle 132
11. Tennessee 122
12. Notre Dame 117
13. Utah State 105
14. Duquesne 81
15. Illinois 75
16. North Carolina 68
17. Villanova 56

Pair Remains In City Tie

The leaders in the City Basketball League began ticking off the opposition last night, as the first team fell by the wayside in the championship race. Coca-Cola bopped Coffman's 74-58, and Book Exchange beat Hallow's Distributing, 65-50, to leave the two winners tied for first. In the other game, Big Value Discount of Farmville downed College View, 80-53, and College View was thus eliminated from the race.

Coke and the Exchange post 7-2 records, while Coffman's is now 6-3. Farmville is 5-4, followed by Hallow's, 2-7, and College View, 0-9.

Fieldcrest Ups Industrial Lead

Fieldcrest Mills knocked off State Highway, 52-46, last night in the Industrial Basketball League to open up a two-game lead in the league. In other games, WNCT downed Vermont American, 60-47, thus eliminating Vermont American from any title hopes, while National Cash Register beat Wachovia, 54-51.

Fieldcrest now posts an 8-1 record, while State Highway and NCR are tied for second with 6-3 marks. They are followed by Wachovia, 5-4, WNCT, 2-7, and Vermont American, 0-9.

Farmville Nips N. Pitt Matmen

BETHEL — Farmville High School's wrestlers nipped North Pitt in the first meeting between the two teams last night, 26-24. It was a close match most of the way, with Farmville working up the points it needed in the middle of the match. North Pitt captured the final three matches, two of them by pins to pull back with two points.

Southern Cal, UCLA To Meet

By DAN BERGER Associated Press Sports Writer LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California basketball Coach Bob Boyd and rival Coach John Wooden of UCLA are trying to play down the importance of Saturday's Pacific-8 game between their schools, even though it's the biggest game of the current collegiate season.

Both coaches used almost identical words, saying, "It's only the fifth game in a 14-game conference season." Both teams are 4-0 in the Pac-8.

Coffman's, Larry Graham and Bob Cargile each had 12, while Bill Taylor and Gene Rackley each had 10.

The Book Exchange built up a slim 30-24 lead in the first half of its game, then ran away with it in the second half. They outit Hollow's, 35-26 in the second half to remain in a tie for first.

Charles Whitehurst had 22 points, while Greg Holmes had 20 and Dickie Allen had 12 for the Exchange. Charles Vincent had 16, and Ted Whitley and George Rhems each had 10 for Hallow's.

Farmville wasted little time in running up a big lead in the first half. By intermission, they had built up a 45-24 lead. In the second half, Big Value again outit College View, 35-29, to wrap up the win.

Charles Purvis led Farmville with 23 points, while Ronald Parker had 13, Rod Tugwell had 12 and Dixon Sauls had 10. Roger Moore had 23, and Leamond Earp had 18 for College View.

and Roy Smith had 10. For Vermont American, Foster had 18.

In the second contest, Fieldcrest inched in front of State Highway at the end of the first half by a slim 26-25 margin. They came back however, to outit their foe, 26-21 and gain the win to extend the lead.

Tony Dail and Louis Williams each had 17, while Bill Stokes had 16 for Fieldcrest. Smith Worthington had 17 to pace State Highway.

Rounding out the evening, Wachovia moved out into a 26-21 lead over NCR in the first half. But in the second frame, NCR came back to outit the Bankers, 33-25, and it was enough for the win.

Bill Hall led NCR with 20, while Kelly Witherington had 19. For Wachovia, Walter Jones had 19 and Jerry Smith had 14.

USC. We have to play them again March 13 in our last game and I feel that game may be more important than this one."

Boyd said his team was "very emotionally ready to play" but he seemed unconcerned about the ranking of his team as No. 2. "If we win and some other teams lose, the ranking is inevitable."

Both coaches finally agreed, though, the winner of this one game doesn't automatically win the tough Pac-8 conference.

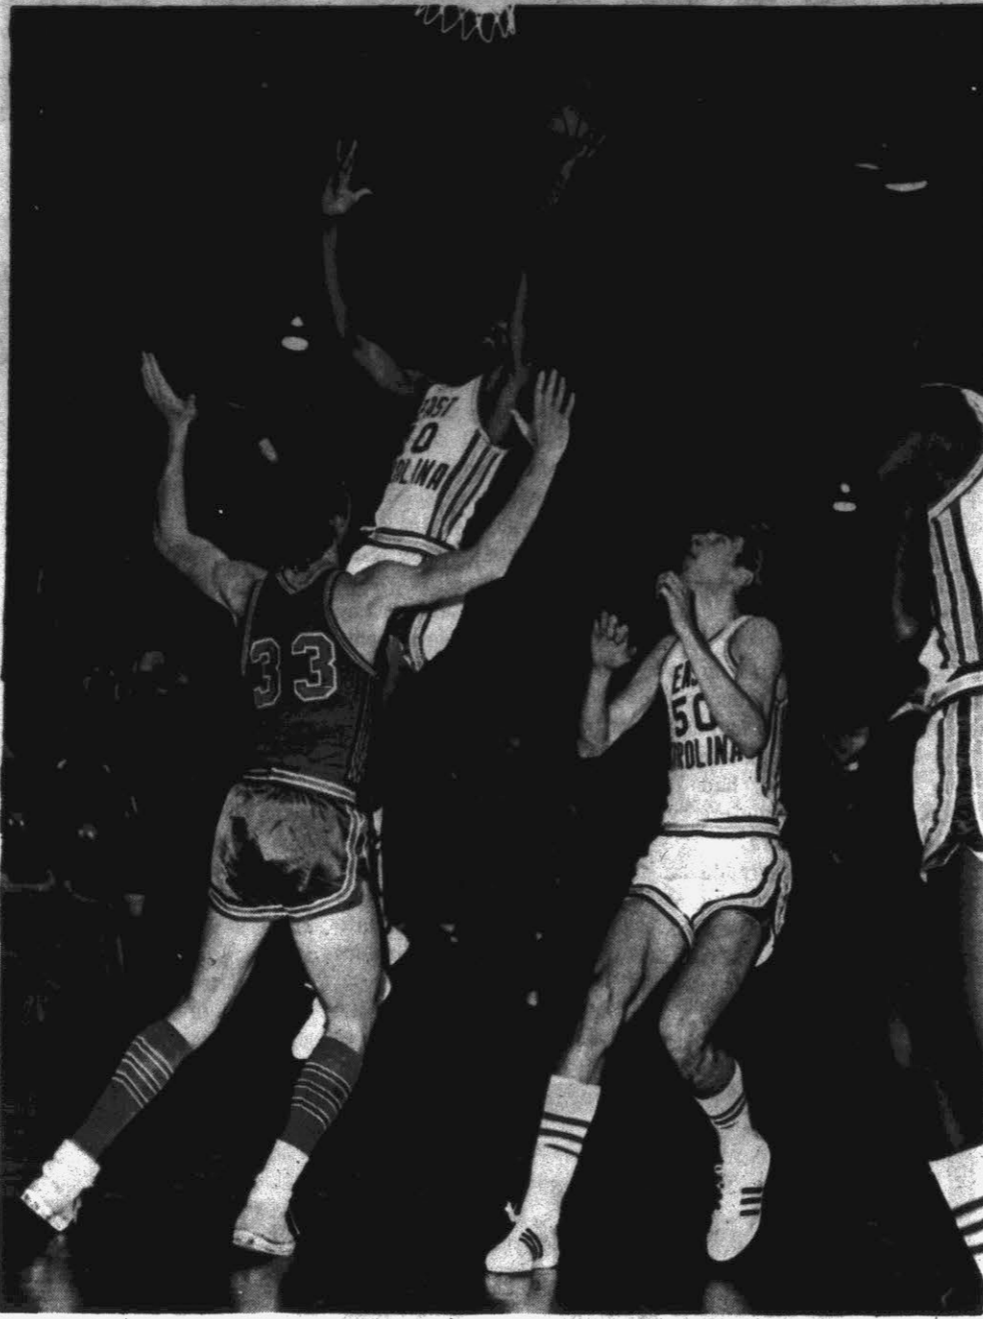

"We're both going into Oregon country next week. Perhaps the winner of our game will get a lift and the loser will be down a little," Wooden said, "but if either team has what it takes, a loss shouldn't have that much effect."

But it's a big game: A local television station and three radio stations will broadcast it. It's already a 15,500 sellout at the Los Angeles Sports Arena—USC's "home" court.

Boyd and Wooden ducked newsmen's questions deftly.

Finally, Wooden confided, "USC has had a tendency to foul on the front line and that's where we're the strongest."

"However, I'm not approaching this game as I would if it were the only one against

Are Keydets Lying In Wait For 'Cats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Davidson's three-time Southern Conference champions pay their third basketball visit to Virginia Military Institute tonight in five years, and only an idiot would think the Keydets could end their 22-game losing streak against the Wildcats.

This is an off-year for the Wildcats, who are only 9-7 overall, but they lead the conference with a 4-1 mark. VMI, on the other hand, has lost 17 times this season, five of them inside the league.

Consider, however: The last time the two teams met in Lexington in 1968-69, when Davidson finished with a 27-3 over-all record, the Wildcats won by 66-64.

Two years earlier, when the Wildcats were 15-12 over-all in what for them was a mediocre season, their victory margin at Lexington was 82-80.

The year before that, when Davidson was 21-7, the Wildcats won in Lexington by 67-64. The victory margin in 1964-65, when Davidson was 24-2, was only six points—84-78.

The game is one of two tonight for league teams. Richmond's Spiders, 3-13 over-all, go to Cincinnati for a nonconference encounter.

In a surprising turn of events Monday night, two conference teams defeated nonleague foes. Furman's Paladins knocked off Clemson of the Atlantic Coast Conference 77-61 and East Carolina's Pirates edged St. Peter's of New Jersey 77-74.

Jerry Martin hit a season-high 23 points as Furman beat Clemson for the first time since the 1967-68 season to build its record to 8-7. Although outshot from the floor in accuracy, Furman had just 13 turnovers to 27 for the Tigers, who were led by Dave Angel with 26 points.

Two free throws by Julius Prince with 37 seconds left put East Carolina ahead for good in a game in which the lead changed four times in the final 1:40. Jim Gregory had 27 points and 14 rebounds for the Pirates, now 8-9. St. Peter's was led by Rich Rinaldi with 27 points.

Granatelli Tries Stock Car Races

By BLOYS BRITT AP Auto Racing Writer DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Andy Granatelli, the portly oil additive king who has been a fixture in Indianapolis-type racing for 30 years, has decided to try his hand in stock car competition.

The head of the STP Corp. announced Monday he will enter a 1971 Plymouth on NASCAR's Grand National circuit with former stock car racing great Fred Lorenzen as the driver.

The team will race in the Feb. 14 Daytona 500 and some 20 other events on the South's big ovals—racing plants that Lorenzen knows like the back of his hand.

The car and Lorenzen and the crew were due in Daytona Beach today for first practice sessions leading up to qualifying Saturday for the Daytona 500 pole position. Because of Lorenzen's experience in driving the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway, he will be a strong favorite to gain the No. 1 starting spot.

Granatelli, whose book, "They Call Me Mr. 500," has sold almost a million copies, previously had limited his racing activities to the USAC championship trail for Indianapolis-type cars.

Last year, however, he put Mario Andretti into a car for several international Grande Prix events and sent a team of drivers headed by Chris Amon to New Zealand for the Tasman series early this year.

Lorenzen retired from Ford's successful racing team in 1968 to have a stomach ulcer repaired, but returned for a few races last year at the wheel of a Ray Fox Dodge.

Now 35, the Elmhurst, Ill., resident has won more than $400,000 in prize money in Grand National racing.

Meantime, the speedway garage area was cleared Monday of cars that raced in the Daytona 24-hour event that ended Sunday. The facility was made ready to receive almost 150 stock cars that will participate in a series of races the next two weeks.

Pow! Gamecocks Are Ambushed For 4th Time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS South Carolina will have to hurry up to get its "second season" off on the right foot.

It looked like the Gamecocks had started to do so after they ended an examination layoff by beating Virginia 92-70 in a home game last Saturday. But Monday night they traveled to Duke and were upset 82-71.

Rick Katherman of Duke hit on all six field goal attempts early in the game. Then, the Duke Blue Devils' success at the free throw line and coolness against South Carolina's pressure defense gained the victory.

With Duke ahead by six points, Gary Melchioni hit six free throws in a row and his Blue Devil mates also were successful, making 30 of 40 in the game. South Carolina made 28 field goals, two more than Duke, but had only 24 chances from the free throw line, making good on 15.

South Carolina now is 4-4 in the ACC and Duke is 3-4.

In the other game of the night involving an ACC team, Clemson lost 77-61 to Furman of the Southern Conference despite a 26-point performance by sophomore Dave Angel.

Virginia is the only ACC team in action, playing at home against Washington and Lee. There is also only one game Wednesday, Maryland at North Carolina State in a conference game.

Coach Frank McGuire of South Carolina said, "This was the best crowd at Duke that I have seen since coming here. (He started coaching at South Carolina in 1964, but before that his North Carolina teams played at Duke during the nine years he was the Tar Heel coach.)

"The home crowd helps any team," McGuire continued. "We didn't shoot well enough to win. We didn't play well enough to win."

Of Katherman's six early shots, all of which went in, McGuire said "The ball was fired so high it looked as if it was going to the moon. Katherman doesn't ordinarily shoot that well. No one could stop him at first."

McGuire, whose team was in a fight with Maryland in a home game in December, said that in the game at Duke he enjoyed the best personal protection he has ever received. Also, two Catholic priests sat behind the South Carolina bench.

Bucky Waters, Duke coach, said, "This is the biggest win as far as we are concerned that we have had in a good while. I tried to loosen our players up. We have been tight. We have been trying too hard."

"We have made a couple of changes in our offense, putting Richie O'Connor at the point and at the high post. We are going with a smaller team. It was a great game and we played well. The plays worked because the players made them work."

O'Connor was the high scorer for Duke with 19 points. John Roche had 28 for South Carolina.

Papa Bear Has 76th

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Associated Press Sports Writer CHICAGO (AP) — George Halas, owner of the Chicago Bears, celebrated his 76th birthday Tuesday-hale and hearty, and as tigerish as ever in not yielding an inch in the game with Father Time.

In the last several years, Papa Bear has had delicate hip operations and gall bladder surgery. It was all successful, leaving him smiling into the future.

Halas, who retired as Bear Coach in 1968, has coached more winners—327—than any other coach, pro or college. Next to him on the list is Amos Alonzo Stagg with 314, followed by Glenn "Pop" Warner with 313 and Curley Lambeau with 230.

Dummit Wonders Why Not Picked

By DAN BERGER Associated Press Sports Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dennis Dummit, UCLA's all-time leading passer, is still recovering from the shock of not being drafted by a pro football team, but he is aware of free agents who have made it—like Johnny Unitas and Joe Kapp.

"I was stunned that no one drafted me," said the 6-foot, 175-pound passer, "but I guess it's the same old story. People have always thought I was too small. Now I've got to prove they're wrong again."

nothing else but playing pro football. Now, I'm not so sure of what to do. I guess I could go the free agent route but free agents aren't usually given too good a look.

"And yet, each day I think more and more about it. I'm hoping some pro team will contact me but if that doesn't happen, I guess I'll sit down with team rosters and see which team needs a good quarterback. And then maybe try out as a free agent. Others have made it that way..."

In two seasons at UCLA, after two at Long Beach City College, Dummit surpassed Bob Waterfield and others by completing 289 passes in 552 attempts for 4,356 yards and 29 touchdowns. Last season, he passed for 2,393 yards, connected on 51 percent of his passes and even ripped apart the Texas defense for 340 yards through the air. Texas had been rated No. 1 at the time and the Bruins, who led until there were 12 seconds left, finally lost the game 20-17.

"I know I can throw the ball," said Dummit, who recently turned down a Rhodes scholarship in anticipation of playing pro ball. "When I graduated high school they said I was too small and when I got out of junior college they said I was too small."

"But I have never been hurt in my life and I've taken some good shots...."

"Football has been my entire life for the last seven years. I've looked forward to doing

Despite a rash of injuries this past season to almost every Bruin pass receiver, Dummit adjusted to new people week after week and passed the Bruins to triumphs. Almost every time, UCLA rallied from behind with an aerial assault.

Dummit's coach at UCLA, Tommy Prothro, is now head man of the Los Angeles Rams. Will Dennis go to the Ram camp next season.

"I'm not sure how to look at the Ram situation. One way is that their coaches were my coaches at UCLA and I know I'd get a fair look. But if I do go and try out, it wouldn't be fair to Prothro. He might feel that if he keeps me it might be taken as if it were only because I played for him in college. I wouldn't want to put him in that situation."

A truly virtuoso performance comes thru in today's hand taken from a recent tournament where one South fulfilled a four spade contract which eluded the grasp of most other declarers. While it is true that the initial attack of the ace and another club would have been very productive for the defense, one can hardly view such a maneuver as the normal procedure, and I for one can find no fault with West's opening lead of the jack of diamonds. The four was played from dummy, East signaled encouragement with the seven and South won the trick with the king.

The ace and king of trumps were cashed and, when West's jack dropped on the second round, North's ten of spades became established as an entry. South decided to work on dummy's heart suit and, after playing the top two honors, he ruffed a third round with the five of spades, as West discarded a club.

The North hand was reentered by leading the seven of spades over to the ten; and a fourth heart was played. When East followed with the jack, declarer permitted him to hold the trick, discarding a diamond from the South hand.

The shrewdness of South's play may be noted when we consider East's plight at this point. He was looking at a dummy that contained an established long card in hearts with secondary controls in both minor suits as potential entry cards. East tried to put off the evil moment by leading the ace of diamonds, but South allowed his adversary to win this trick also, as he threw a club. East switched to a club and West took the third trick for the defenders with the ace of that suit, but the North hand was now established to claim the balance.

Declarer's discard on the fourth round of hearts is the key play. If he ruffs, it will be with his last trump and now, when a club is led toward the king in dummy, West will come up with the ace and play the ten of diamonds thru dummy's queen—permitting his partner to take four tricks in that suit.

Rusk Cites Unity Need

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk says Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev backed away from the 1962 Cuban missile crisis because he was convinced President John F. Kennedy had a unified America behind him.

In a speech to a civic group Monday, Rusk, now a professor of international law at the University of Georgia, said speaking "with an uncertain voice in times of crises" is a luxury presidents cannot afford.

If Khrushchev had not believed in general U.S. backing for Kennedy, Rusk said, the Soviet premier might have told him: "Don't kid me. I know some of your key people and senators will collapse under pressure."

And, Rusk commented, "That's a very good way to have a nuclear war."

WINCHESTER, England (AP)—Teen-agers leading hectic lives should be provided with "bolt-holes," monk-like retreats to sort themselves out, Ronald Gibson, a Hampshire school doctor, suggests.

"People think that because teen-agers are in the joy of life they don't suffer stresses and strains," he said. "In fact, they suffer more than any adult."

Poetry Readings To Be At ECU Campus

RALEIGH — East Carolina University is one of the 15 campuses and community centers being visited for a day of poetry readings in the early months of 1971.

On April 2, Guy Owen, Campbell Reeves and Sam Ragan will be the three guest readers coming to Greenville to read poetry by North Carolina poets.

This series is made possible by a grant from the North Carolina Arts Council, recently announced by Sam Ragan, Council Chamber of the Council.

Edgar Marston, Executive Director of the N.C. Arts Council, has published a schedule of the 15 campuses and centers where the poetry readings will take place, the dates scheduled, and the names of poets who have agreed to take part in the readings.

The series began January 27 at Queens College in Charlotte and will end on April 19 at Elizabeth City State University in Elizabeth City.

Among poets who will be reading are Vernon Ward, a poet and faculty member at ECU; Thad Stem, Ronald Bayes, Betty Adcock, Tom Walters, Charleen Whisnant, James Applewhite

Knits Sweater For A Pet Snake

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Fred looked cold and even a cold-blooded snake could use a warm sweater.

That's what 8-year-old Coleen Olson thought.

She crocheted Fred a sweater. Fred lives in a glass-fronted cage in Coleen's third-grade classroom at Walter Douglas School. Ringed in banana hues of yellow and black, Fred is 40 inches long. The sweater is somewhat shorter.

The two-toned pullover is hot pink on top and baby pink on the bottom.

"That's all the yarn I had," said Coleen, who has one year's knitting and crocheting experience.

The style? "It's a snake-neck sweater," Coleen giggled. "He'd NEVER wear a turtle-neck one."

Household laundry and dishwasher detergent, including all of the leading brands, soon will be labeled as to their phosphate content.

Worry Clinic Most Careers Decided Later

Arnold is in a dilemma. He is drifting and feels guilty because he hasn't picked a specific career in life. But over 50 percent of my senior students at Northwestern University still didn't know what they wanted to do, though they were graduating in a month! So increase your "Horse Sense" and follow Benjamin Franklin's advice below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Case P-561: Arnold B., aged 18, is due to enter college. "But, Dr. Crane," he protested. "I don't know what I want to do in later life. Some of my classmates already say they are going to be lawyers or doctors or advertising men. But I have no special interest in any career. So should I waste the money my parents are paying for my college education, since tuition alone now runs $2,000 per year?"

Head Ben Franklin

"An investment in knowledge," said Benjamin Franklin, "always pays the best dividends."

And while you are young is an excellent time to win good diplomas, since they are good leverage for topnotch positions all through later life.

But "Horse Sense" is the proper seasoning that should also go along, hand in hand, with college degrees.

Alas, too many professors of the past have been rank theorists and so impractical that they were brainstrusters.

That's why so many college students likewise have little gumption and even riot against the best economic system the world has ever known.

In fact, they literally try to bite the educational hand that feeds them!

Not only does America's "free enterprise" system furnish the high wages by which "papa" can finance Arnold's education.

But it also pays the taxes to support our lush multimillion dollar science halls and swanky college dormitories at our state universities.

In addition, American business then generously hands out $500 million more (half a billion) annually to private colleges! When you high school graduates haven't obtained "Horse Sense" from working as a newspaper carrier or having rated First Class rank in the Scouts, then follow this pattern:

(1) Enlist in our Military Services so you can travel worldwide and pick up some gumption. Or:

(2) Take the one-year Business College diploma courses wherein you will become adept at Business Law, Applied Psychology, Public Speaking, Advertising and selling, Bookkeeping and Accounting, Business English and also be skilled operators of computer office equipment.

No Liberal Arts college remotely compares with the merchandisable skills and business gumption offered by Business Colleges.

Regardless of whether you later wish to enter Law, Medicine, Teaching or the Ministry, your Business College diploma will pay rich dividends all your life!

After having taught for many years at 3 Liberal Arts universities and colleges, I have belatedly realized the tremendous superiority of that one-year Business College diploma over any single year's matriculation at a Liberal Arts school.

With your one-year's Business College diploma you can then hold down a high salaried job by day and still pick up a 4-year Liberal Arts degree in night classes at the extension center of your state university.

(3) If your parents can afford to subsidize you at a Liberal Arts school, at least get jobs during the summer which will add to your "Horse Sense."

And don't feel guilty because you haven't yet selected a life's career, for 51 percent of my college seniors still didn't know what they were going to do after they graduated!

So send for my "Vocational Guidance Booklet," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Report N.C. Economy Edged Up

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's economy edged upward in December for a second consecutive month.

This was reported today by Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. which said its North Carolina Business index advanced 0.4 per cent to 111.2. This is down 0.3 per cent from December of 1969.

The December business gain was based on increased employment and a boost in total hours worked in manufacturing and increased spending by individuals and businesses.

The total nonfarm employment rose by 0.3 per cent to 1,748,200. This was roughly the level reached a year ago.

The total of manufacturing manhours had a healthy 0.5 per cent increase for the month, and Wachovia economists said the rise plus a gain in November "is a good indication that the manufacturing situation in North Carolina is improving." The level reached was still

Banker To Aid ECU Symposium

Dr. Jimmie R. Monhollon of Charlotte will be a featured participant at the Symposium on Fiscal and Monetary Policy, sponsored by the Department of Economics, School of Business at East Carolina University, on Wednesday, February 3.

Dr. Monhollon, senior vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond and office in charge of the Charlotte branch, will discuss "The Last Five Years — An Insiders View" in the Symposium.

Dr. L. H. Zincone, chairman, Department of Economics, and Dr. James L. Knipe, ECU professor of economics and Bank of North Carolina Professor in Banking, will also participate.

slightly below December of 1969.

Spending by businesses and individuals, as measured by bank debits, rose by 3.3 per cent during December to $6.8 billion and was 10 per cent higher than a year ago.

In manufacturing jobs, tobacco, food and kindred products, paper, furniture and construction showed gains while chemicals showed a drop. Employment in services and trade industries remained strong.

New car sales rose 1 per cent from November but remained 28 per cent below the year ago figure while new truck sales were down 10 per cent from November and were off 43 per cent from a year ago.

"The failure of new car and truck sales to rebound more during December was largely due to the effects of the strike against General Motors Corp.," Wachovia said.

Building permits issued by 18 North Carolina cities gained 2.1 per cent and reached $46.2 million or 5.9 per cent higher than a year ago.

Despite the increase in non-farm employment, North Carolina's unemployment rate increased from 4.1 per cent in November to 4.3 in December. This compared with 3.2 per cent a year ago.

The Wachovia economists said that with "interest rates down sharply, stock prices up, personal savings soaring, and personal debts down, the foundation is forming for a considerable upswing in economic activity."

Youth Revival Begins Feb. 5

YOUTH Revival begins at Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church, located nine miles south of Greenville on Black-Jack Hwy, February 5-7.

Miss Pearl Whichard, from Lumberton, who has been working in New York and Chicago with the Teen Challenge Team on drugs, will be the evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 7:45 p.m.

There will be special music each night and the pastor Rev. Lotis Joyner invites the public to attend.

Open House For Pork Producers

Robert Lewis Lane Jr., Pitt County farmer and pork producer, attended open house at Farmstead Industries, Emporia, Va., recently.

Approximately 250 pork producers attended the open house which consisted of pre-assembled and portable swine confinement units. A farrowing-nursery combination house was on display showing the materials and workmanship which made up the unit.

A barbecue dinner was served to pork producers from North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Iowa, Michigan, Georgia and Florida.

Many Items Taken Up By Williamston Board

WILLIAMSTON — Controversy over the proposed location of a ZIP Mart marked the opening part of Williamston's Town Board meeting last night. Town Clerk J. B. Godwin stated that a large delegation was on hand to oppose zoning of the H. B. (Cap) York property adjacent to the Williamston Freezer Locker. The locker plant property is currently zoned neighborhood commercial, while the York property is R-6 residential. Town commissioners referred the matter to the Town Board of Adjustments.

Thomas Harwell, a consultant for Rivers and Associates of Greenville, met with the board and discussed the progress of the preliminary survey of a proposed sewage disposal plant. Harwell asked the board to consider signing a contract for $140 retainer fee. The board is taking the contract under advisement.

A request by the Williamston Planning Board was introduced which calls for consideration of rezoning property facing McGaskey Road on the east, the by-pass on the south, and U.S. 64 on the north. The rezoning request would change one property from the present residential-office zoning to highway commercial in order to place a mobile home sales office there. The board called for a public hearing on this request.

Mrs. Dan Boykin, Administrative Assistant for the town of Williamston, asked the board to arrange for another public hearing on the proposed thoroughfare plan. The board tabled action on this, failing to set a date for a hearing. The thoroughfare plan has been twice before the board, with strong opposition being registered each time.

Approval was given to a proposed application for funds from the Mid East Regional Office in Washington, N.C. for the purpose of setting up a Police Club. Such a club would be for the use of young people, primarily ones between the ages of 10 and 16, to provide a place where they could meet after school for supervised recreational activity.

On the recommendation of Town Clerk Godwin, the board approved changing to a full time position that of the tax collector, which has been a part time position. The board accepted Godwin's recommendation that King Leggett, the part-time collector, be appointed to the full time job.

Jamesville Application Is Approved

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners yesterday approved an application by the town of Jamesville for water system funds. C. M. Cobb, county clerk, said that Jamesville is seeking funds through an FHA grant which would furnish 49 percent of funds needed. The action by the county commissioners in effect constitutes an approval for holding a referendum on the application.

In an agreement action, the commissioners agreed to hold a joint meeting with the Martin County Board of Education and representatives from the State Board of Education to make some final decisions on the Williamston schools. No date was set for such a joint meeting, but is expected to be within the next month or two.

The Mid-East Economic Development Commission was authorized by the commissioners as the designated clearing house for Martin County. Martin County comes under Region Q in the State Regional Planning zones.

Action was taken to reapply for funds for two separate activities on which earlier action had not been completed. One application, through the Mid East Economic Development Commission to the Atlanta office, is for a neighborhood facility building. The Atlanta office has returned the previous application due to lack of funds for this and similar projects. The second reapplication was one for Martin Technical Institute's water and sewer lines. This application is being resubmitted to include some required revisions.

Counted 4 Traffic Accidents For City

One person was reported injured and an estimated $2,175 property damage reported caused in a series of four traffic mishaps investigated in Greenville yesterday.

Police reported Joseph H. Hammie, 70, of 417 Hudson St. was injured when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Moses James Bess, 39, of Route 2, Greenville about 1:15 p.m. on Fifth Street, 25 feet East of the Ford Street intersection.

No charges were placed in the mishap and no damage was reported to the car or bicycle.

Eddie Elijah Baker, 18, of Route 1, Greenville was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 3:30 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive at the Stantonsburg Road intersection.

Police, who reported an estimated $1,200 damage resulted to the Baker car, identified the driver of the second auto involved as George Allen Powell, 29, of Kinston. Damage to the Powell auto was placed at $125. Vehicles driven by Dorothy Alligood Tice of 1705 Rosewood Dr. and Leon M. Morris, 54, of Greenville were involved in a 3:25 p.m. collision at the intersection of Second and Cotanche Streets.

Officers, who set damage to the Tice car at $400 and damage to the Morris vehicle at $150, charged Mrs. Tice with failing to yield the right of way.

No charges were reported in a 7:20 a.m. collision on Southview Drive 170 feet West of the Brook Drive intersection.

Police reported a car driven by William Bradford Bond, 41, of 2109 Southview collided with a parked car owned by Jimmie E. James, 2103 Southview.

Damage estimates were set at $200 to the Bond car and $100 to the James vehicle.

Slay Grocer In Hold-Up

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Two local men were charged with murder Monday in the shotgun slaying of a popular ghetto grocery store owner, police said.

Benjamin Franklin Pye, 23, and Douglas Dwight Coon, 26, were arrested and put in the Leon County jail.

John V. McCartney, 56, was gunned down during an armed robbery Friday.

His wife, Mary, said two holdup men tried to shoot her, too, but were kept from doing so by an apparent weapon failure.

McCartney, who died on the way to the hospital from multiple gunshot wound, had run his grocery store for 25 years. Patrons said he was well-liked because he gave free food and credit to needy families. Police Chief Robert Maige attributed the early arrests to "complete cooperation of the citizens in the neighborhood and an all-out effort of the entire police department."

FALLING BASTION LONDON (AP) — Another male bastion may fall to the fair sex. Scotland Yard hopes to recruit two women police constables to handle dogs sniffing out drugs.

"There is no reason why they shouldn't do the job as well as men," says Douglas Randall, head of the police dog section.

LIFE GOES ON — While the prosecution in the Sharon Tate murder case argued that defendants convicted of murdering the actress should receive the death penalty, the victim's husband director Roman Polanski was working in England. He is shown during a thoughtful moment while directing the film "Macbeth". (AP Wirephoto)

If you don't save now, he'll pay later.

Maybe he'll have to forget about college, or at least have a financial struggle making it.

Maybe he'll want to study law or medicine, but won't have the money to stay in school as long as it takes.

Maybe. Maybe. Maybe.

Take some of the maybes out of his future by joining the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Have a few dollars from each paycheck set aside for U.S. Savings Bonds. It's one of the easiest ways to make sure his college money is there when he needs it.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U. S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

College dollars need time to grow. Start saving now.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

members to consider statewide sanctions was premature and will not help its cause. Rep. Kenneth Royall Jr., D-Durham, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said Monday, "I think they jumped the gun, frankly. This type of thing doesn't help them in any way." Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he agreed with Royall. The NCAE directors voted unanimously to urge teachers and administrators to consider state sanctions to back up demands for more money than was recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission for the next biennium. Dr. A. C. Dawson, executive director of NCAE, said the directors did not recommend a specific type of action. It could range from public notification of intolerable conditions to a work stoppage. House Speaker Phil Godwin said the action of the NCAE directors "will have an adverse effect on the General Assembly. If they are going to sanction anyone, let them sanction the taxpayers who foot the bill."

part of the budget. I think they will continue to do so, but this certainly doesn't encourage them." "We are here to listen and do the best we can," said Sen. Henley. "I feel the General Assembly represents all the people of the state and that any individual or group has the right to express their opinion. This is what we had rather have than a decision made by an organization that would affect our public schools." Gov. Bob Scott, who declined comment on the NCAE action, has proposed a 10 per cent pay raise that would increase a starting teacher's salary to $6,555 for the 1972-73 school year. The NCAE is seeking a 30 per cent pay raise with a minimum of $7,500 in 1972.

E. B. Palmer, associate director of NCAE, said Gov. Scott's proposal would "place us back where we were 10 years ago. You can see how this frustrates teachers." Palmer said the 30 per cent raise is needed to keep North Carolina's 55,000 teachers, counselors and administrators on a comparative footing with national pay averages.

Arrested 4 Men In Holdup Of Wachovia Bank

DURHAM (AP) — Four young men from Durham were arrested Monday 40 minutes after a bank was robbed in the nearby Research Triangle. Police said about $6,000 was found in a pillowcase in their car after the vehicle was stopped on U.S. 70 a mile east of Durham. An audit will disclose the exact amount which three men wearing ski masks stole from a branch of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. in Nelson south of Durham. Police identified the men arrested as Lennie Mack Trice, 28; Leroy Long, 27; Mack L. Howie, 20, and Richard Atkins, 18. Authorities said a pistol and an automatic rifle also were found in their car.

Bank Resources Up $300 Million

RALEIGH (AP) — The resources of North Carolina state banks totaled more than $3.1 billion on Dec. 31, an increase of nearly $300 million over the previous year. State Commissioner of Banks Frank Harrelson also reported Monday there were 86 state banks and 519 branches on Dec. 31, 1969, compared with 76 banks and 568 branches on Dec. 31, 1970. Harrelson said the decrease in the number of banks resulted from five state banks merging into other state banks and six state banks merging into national banks.
