

Forty-Two Known Dead In Calif. Tremor

Watch Quake-Damaged Reservoir Dam

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities kept a wary eye on a cracked reservoir dam and probed wreckage of a ruined hospital for bodies today in the wake of an earthquake that dealt death and destruction to Southern California.

Forty-two deaths were reported, nine of them heart attack victims. More than 1,000 persons were reported injured. Officials said 25 persons were missing, some buried in the rubble of two collapsed buildings at a Veterans Administration hospital in the hard-hit west end of the populous San Fernando Valley. Twenty-three bodies had been found in the hospital wreckage; 45 persons were rescued. So heavy and so interlocked were huge chunks of concrete from the virtually leveled three-story structures that rescuers said it might be another day or more before all victims could be reached. Although cries of "Help me! Help me!" could be heard Tuesday night, authorities said there was little likelihood of more survivors being found. The bodies of five persons were extricated in the night and early morning hours. The shock at 6:01 a.m. Tuesday was centered 26 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, crumpled much of the concrete facing on the 150-foot-high dam of Van Norman Lakes, the city's largest reservoir, and cracked its main structure of earth fill. As water experts began draining it, police ordered a forced evacuation Tuesday night of some 80,000 persons in a 20-square-mile area of the San Fernando Valley which would be in the path of flood waters should the dam break. Officials said that barring a strong new aftershock, it should hold. The initial shock and lesser aftershocks caused damage likely to be reckoned ultimately in the hundreds of millions. Hundreds of commercial buildings and factories were damaged, along with uncounted homes, highways, bridges and public buildings. Los Angeles County estimated loss to its buildings alone of $125 million, with 427 damaged structurally and 42 evacuated.

Gov. Ronald Reagan surveyed the damage and said, "It's shocking. When you look at this you feel pretty helpless." Robert E. Noel, a custodian at the threatened reservoir dam, was at his home near the base of the structure when the quake hit. "It was thumpin' and jumpin' and knocked everything out of our kitchen," he said. "It didn't matter where I put my feet, the floor wasn't there."

A big cleanup already was under way. In downtown Los Angeles and in communities in the San Fernando Valley, whose western edge is but 10 miles from the quake's center, the glass and bricks and crumbled mortar that littered streets and yards were being scooped up and carted away. Several major freeways remained closed because of crumpled paving or fallen overpasses. Scientists attributed the tremor to a little-known fault that rates as a pipsqueak. It is the Soledad Canyon fault in the rugged San Gabriel Mountains. A scientist who visited the scene found signs of vertical slippage—one side of the earth fracture higher than the other—but said he could easily step across the crack in the earth.

Plan Rebuild Power Lines

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor
Utilities commissioners last night approved a major program of rebuilding power lines, mostly in rural areas, which have been weakened by ice and wind storms and other stresses.

were costly. Both the city and rural electric departments showed deficits for the month of December.

City electric revenues were $322,711.15, while expenses came to $324,369.09 for a deficit of $1,657.94. Rural electric revenue was $97,414.96 and expenses, $106,295.57 for a deficit of $8,880.61.

Director Charles Horne told the commissioners that it was necessary to carry out the projects, although funds for some of the work has not been budgeted for this fiscal year. Horne said it might be necessary to trim the budget in other areas in order to carry out the required work.

Commissioners approved a plan for adding a right-of-way clearing crew to the Utilities work force and they authorized expenditures of approximately $5,000 for equipping the crew.

Projects outlined and their costs include:
— Stokes Highway from N. C. 11 to Grimes station, $30,000.
— Stokes Highway from Grimes Station to Stokes, $22,000.

In other business the commissioners:

— heard that work is beginning on the addition to the water pollution control plant.
— heard status reports on water lines, water plant and gas lines work.
— accepted a low bid of $13,120 for a sewer cleaning unit to be supplied by O'Brien Manufacturing Co., Inc.

— N. C. 11 from Stokes Highway to end of line, $16,000.
— Tar Road Extension, $3,500.
— Chestnut Street from Grande Avenue to Paris Avenue, $5,500.
— Memorial Drive, replacing line damage in a recent shortage, $7,000.

— agreed to an assessment of $6,230 for Electricities to fight proposed power rate increases.

A project in the Calico area has recently been completed, it was reported. Horne also reported that efforts are continuing to have the area declared a disaster area because of the recent ice storm. The request has been signed by Gov. Scott and forwarded to federal authorities. If the request is approved Greenville will be eligible for federal assistance with the repairs which the storm brought about. The commissioners also learned that the storm repairs — heard that Bule Cross hospitalization premiums would be increased and also agreed to an additional cost for added coverage, for a total annual added cost of $4,288.

— received a study from Director Horne concerning the cost of street lighting to the city.

— purchased a Ford, stake body truck at a cost of $3,357.01.

2-Year-Old Killed

GRIMESLAND — Two-year-old Thomas Earl Moore of Simpson was killed near here yesterday when struck by a car driven by his uncle, Hazekiah Thomas, 20, of Route 1, Grimesland. Coroner E. W. Harvey and members of the Sheriff's Department who investigated, said Thomas was backing his car out of his driveway when the mishap occurred. Thomas told investigators he heard a thump, got out of the car, and found the child under the rear wheel of the car. Young Moore was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital, Coroner Harvey said. He ruled the death as accidental. The mishap occurred about 11:45 a.m.

Will Get Glimpse Of Families Friday
Moon Heroes Safe, Snug In Quarantine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Apollo 14's moon heroes, healthy and snug in a quarantine trailer, steamed aboard this carrier toward Samoa today after safely completing man's third lunar landing mission.

From Samoa they'll be flown to the Manned Spacecraft Center near Houston, arriving early Friday. They'll get a glimpse of their families, then continue their isolation against possible moon germs until Feb. 26.

Alan B. Shepard Jr., Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa parachuted to a precision landing in the South Pacific Tuesday, climaxing a lunar voyage which scientists say will greatly enrich man's knowledge of the moon and space agency officials hail as perfect.

The spacemen hit the gentle tropic waters less than four miles from this helicopter carrier and quickly were hoisted aboard by helicopter. They were just seven-tenths of a mile from the landing target.

Hundreds of white-clad sailors cheered and snapped pictures, "Welcome Apollo 14" banners unfurled and a band played "Stars and Stripes Forever" as the three smiling spacemen walked smartly from the copter to the quarantine trailer. On the remote possibility that they returned harmful germs from the moon, Shepard, Mitchell and Roosa wore protective masks that prevented their exhaling into the surrounding atmosphere.

Dr. William Carpentier, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration flight surgeon who is in the quarantine van with them, reported that a preliminary medical examination showed them all to be in good health.

Also in the trailer is R. H. Culbertson, a NASA engineer who maintains the van systems and helps with cooking and other chores.

After retrieving the astronauts, the New Orleans set sail for Samoa, 880 miles to the north. When the ship is in helicopter range, about noon EST Thursday, the spacemen will be flown to Pago Pago, where they'll transfer into a quarantine van aboard an Air Force transport plane.

The aircraft will ferry them to Houston's Ellington air Force Base, arriving at 1:30 a.m. Friday. They will go to the Lunar Receiving Laboratory at the Manned Spacecraft Center to complete the 21-day quarantine period that began the day Shepard and Mitchell left the moon.

The lunar rocks they gathered in the ancient Fra Mauro highlands will go into another section of the laboratory, where scientists eagerly wait to start examination that will take months or years.

Scientists believe the moon walkers may have gathered primordial rocks dating back 4.6 billion years to the creation of the moon.

Scientists hope study of these rocks will unlock many secrets of the birth pangs of the moon, the earth and solar system. All were believed created at the same time in the convulsive coming together of space dust and rocks in a mammoth gas cloud.

Rocks collected in 1969 by the Apollo 11 and 12 crews came from relatively flat and young mare areas and range in age from 3.2 million to 3.7 million years. They have revealed some things that happened after the moon was a billion or so years old.

Course On 'Adolescent Child' Is Adopted Here

A study course with the encompassing topic of "Studying the Adolescent Child" was formally approved as a forthcoming program at the city-

John Taylor, chairman of the study course plan, concluded discussion on the project after several interested persons had taken a stand for a program that would use an approach pinpointing involvement of parents more closely with the teen-age school child.

Wilmington Has A Few Fires, But Hopes Rise

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A minor outbreak of fires dotted Wilmington's skyline early today as the racially torn city sought a return to normalcy.

City officials lifted an overnight curfew Tuesday. But 550 National Guardsmen and more than 100 law enforcement officers maintained full patrol during the dark hours.

Two stores and a business office were damaged by what authorities tentatively described as firebombs.

There were no confirmed reports of further sniper fire experienced nightly since last Wednesday, and authorities expressed optimism that violence might be ending.

The curfew had been in effect in the port city of 50,000 since Sunday after two men had been killed in sniper and police gunfire during violence blamed on tension coinciding with a black boycott of public schools. They had asked more black studies and an end to alleged harassment of Negroes by school authorities.

School officials said attendance Tuesday was near normal for the first time since Feb. 2. Absenteeism Friday had been reported as much as 55 percent in some schools.

Mayor L. M. Cromartie's decision to lift the curfew brought strong objections from New Hanover County officials, who had extended its restrictions to the unincorporated areas surrounding Wilmington.

Meares Harriss, chairman of the county commission, said today that Cromartie and Wilmington Police Chief H. E. Williamson had ignored his pleas to keep the curfew on at least one more night.

In an interview broadcast on a Wilmington television station early today, Harriss said he had asked the city officials repeatedly to ban the sale of alcoholic beverages and explosives and to restrict travel at night until all firebombings had ended.

The state's top National Guard official said he had no quarrel with the decision to discontinue the curfew.

"You've got to go on living, so you have to lift it sometime," said Maj. Gen. Ferd Davis, the state adjutant general.

Re-Writing Of N.C. Property Tax Laws Offered N.C. Assembly

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's property tax laws would be completely rewritten under legislation introduced in the General Assembly Tuesday.

Rep. David W. Bumgardner, D-Gaston, sponsored the legislation, which was recommended by the N.C. Tax Study Commission.

The bill suggests major changes in the taxing of public utilities and would make several changes that would affect the ordinary taxpayer.

These include shifting the date when property taxes are due from the first Monday in October to the first Monday in September. The interest for late payment of taxes would be boosted from 6 to 12 per cent per year and the criminal penalty for failure to list taxes would be increased from $50 to $500. The procedure for garnishing taxes from property owners' wages would be simplified.

Under present law, public utilities must list a portion of their taxes with local taxing authorities and all of it with the State Board of Assessment. Under the proposed law, the utilities would list only with the state agency, and it would furnish utility valuations to the local taxing authorities.

Another provision would tax the equipment of truck, bus and airplanes on the basis of the equipment's usage in North Carolina. Bills introduced in both houses would limit the obligation of parents to pay for the care of long term patients in state mental facilities.

Sen. Charles Larkins, D-Lenoir, who sponsored the bill along with Rep. Joe B. Raynor, D-Cumberland, said the measure would mean a revenue loss to the state of about $500,000 a year.

At present, non-indigent parents are charged for the care of children based on their ability to pay, ranging up to a maximum of $11.84 per day. Under the proposed legislation, the amount would not exceed the cost of caring for a normal child at home which would be around $3 per day.

Present law also requires parents to pay for the care of children in mental facilities after they reach age 21. The bill would relieve the parents of any responsibility after their children reach 21.

Sen. David Flaherty, R-Caldwell, introduced a bill under which a speeding charge out-of-state would not count against a driver's record in North Carolina.

Arrests for running a red light or stop sign also would be excluded from the driving record in North Carolina. Flaherty said his measure has the backing of the N.C. Truck Drivers Association.

Reps. Peter A. Foley and Craig Lawing, both D-Mecklenburg, sponsored a bill that would deny bail to persons charged with committing a felony while free on bail from a felony charge.

Teenagers Give Views On One-Parent Families

By JO ANN KNOUT
Dayton Daily News Writer
DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Pity bugs them, remarriage confuses them, and a sense of responsibility is their thing.

These are some of the things that make a teen-ager tick in a single-parent household, according to eight teens, aged 13 to 19. The teens, at the request of their parents—all members of Parents Without Partners—a greed to give "teens'eye-views" of single-parent families.

First off they made it clear they are typical teen agers, and they are unanimously opposed to parents staying together solely for the sake of their children.

"They would feel it," said Greg Mercer, 15. "Me and my dad have been living alone for about five years," he continued. "I still see my mother a lot and I've gotten to know her better since the divorce."

"The thing I hate most is, 'Oh you poor thing!,'" said Lenny Eaton, 19, a student at the University of Dayton. "Some people have some really weird ideas about how a single-parent family affects children."

Turning to a common theme voiced by the group, Lenny said that losing a parent, through divorce or death, makes the children more responsible.

"I think the attitude is different," Lenny said. "When there's only one parent you really want to help, whereas in a two parent home you might help because you had to."

"You learn to pull your own load," Greg added. "You learn you have to help keep the house clean. I help Dad vacuum and wash."

The Hastings sisters, Debbie,

16, and Dian, 14, said they feel more responsible because what they do reflects on their mother.

Debbie and Dian help with the household chores and with their younger sisters.

"Mom's a nurse, and by the time she gets home we try to have the place cleaned up," Debbie said. "I feel she should get out once in a while too, so I babysit some evenings and when we both want to go out we hire a sitter."

Talking of going out—dating—the teens are very concerned about whether their parents re-marry.

"If I got along with him I'd be a friend, if not I'd ignore him," said Mark Heiland, 15.

Mark and his sister Lori, 13, have been living without their father for two years. Mark admits when his parents were divorced he "tended to resent my mother because I had been close to Dad." He said, however, he's grown up a lot now and come to understand his parents.

The Woolles children, Lisa, 13, and Kevin, 15, whose father died eight years ago, were unenthusiastic about welcoming a new father into their home. "There's no father room here," laughed Kevin. "Mom can do everything."

Jewelry For Liberated Woman: Pure Colors And Subtle Patterns

Flower Show Set For March

Knits have become a way of life, adaptable to fashion and comfort. Today's world of knits offers the advantages of a broader array of colorings, textures and finishes that has ever been available in the history of knitting. Knits come in every pattern, stitch and weight to suit any climate and activity.

What makes knitted cloth different from woven fabrics? The answer rests in the way knitted fabric is constructed. Knits are manufactured by intermeshing a series of continuous rows of loops in such a way that each loop interlocks with the preceding loop. The result is a textile more highly resilient than woven cloth. It is this inherent elasticity that makes sewing construction of knitted fabrics differ from that of woven fabrics. Handled gently, knits can be successfully executed into a well-tailored garment by even the most inexperienced seamstress.

There are some basic rules which should be remembered when sewing on knits. Select fabric with a definite use in mind. Choose a pattern carefully to suit the fabric and you. Make all necessary alterations before cutting the fabric, so little garment fitting is necessary. Use sharp scissors and pins. A loose, balanced tension with light pressure will allow the fabric to flow through stitching easily, and give seams the same flexibility as the fabric.

None of the knitted fabrics can be straightened by pulling threads. For accurate crosswise grainline, lay the fold or selvage edge straight on a table, then cut a straight crosswise line at right angles to the fold or selvage. In knits, the lengthwise rib indicates the lengthwise grainline. If possible, lay fabric out on a table to lie for 12 to 24 hours. The fabric may have been stretched or distorted in shape from being hung or tightly folded for a long period of time.

Zippers may be put in by hand stitching (known as hand-picking) instead of machine stitched, for a more expensive, professional look.

DIET, LIKE IT AND LOSE

By Mary Sue Miller

(This is the third in a series of special articles on reducing by spring fashion time.)

Fear of hunger, fatigue, lowered resistance and slack muscles keeps many of "them what should" from dieting. But there are no such terrors in the plan unfolding here. Today's menus are an example of the way to diet without discomfort.

Breakfast. Orange juice; dry cereal, skim milk, 2 tsp. sugar; unsweetened coffee or tea.

Lunch. Tomato consomme; tuna fish (water packed) salad with diet-er's mayonnaise, lettuce and cucumber; 2 diet crackers; lemon jello; unsweetened beverage.

Dinner. Vegetable plate—carrots, broccoli, baby onions, broiled mushrooms (garnish onions with parsley, broccoli with heated diet Italian dressing); small hard roll, 1/2 pat butter; raw fruit of choice.

Between. Skim milk, night and morning.

Today's slimmer, for the midriff: Stand with back against wall so that head, shoulders, hips and heels touch it. Relax—flex—knees, pull waist in and up, press spine to wall. Hold for 5 counts, rest and repeat 30 times.

Reducing Tip—How To Diet and Like It:

1. Eat slowly for greater enjoyment.
2. To take the edge off hunger, start meals with plain salads.
3. Quiet any hunger pangs between meals with a glass of cool water or low-cal beverage.
4. When you eat at home alone, prepare a proper meal. Drips and drabs from the refrigerator often contain more calories than planned menus.
5. Shun bedtime snacks. Sleeping, you may not burn up the calories.
6. Make liberal use of foods packaged for dieters.
7. lucky 7. Hold the thought that your diet improves your skin and hair as well as your figure. You have nothing to lose but weight!

People Pass By Stricken Man

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: A very dear man I knew had a stroke in the lobby of his place of business. He lay on the floor in that lobby for about an hour and a half. It was nearly rush hour. I suppose people thought he was drunk so they passed him by. He died the following day.

That fine man had a young people's group in church. I am one of the young people.

The message I want to convey through your widely-read column, Abby, is this: Please, if you see someone in need, drunk, sick, no matter what, tell a guard at the door or a policeman. Don't ignore him. Do what you can to help him. You may save his life.

"Mr. L." had a stroke and a cerebral hemorrhage. He may have died even if he had been taken to a hospital immediately. But at least he wouldn't have died all alone on the cold floor of a lobby. J. C., STATEN ISLAND, N.Y.

DEAR J. C.: If your letter changes the thinking of only one person who would deny help to a stranger because he doesn't want to "get involved," it's well worth the space in any newspaper. Thank you for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I am a grown woman with a good husband, three nice sons and a full busy life. But "Wrong Way Corrigan" has nothing on me. I do a lot of traveling, to and from dog shows, and I always allow myself at least one hour in which to get lost. I don't mean a chance wrong turn, I mean really lost!

Even if I have been there before, I always get hopelessly turned around and have to stop and ask directions. Sometimes I have to stop and ask directions two and three times. I am a careful driver and I am considered fairly intelligent, but I have absolutely no sense of direction.

My husband says I get lost because I have no self-confidence and I set out "expecting" to get lost. Can that be? Are there others like me? Have you any suggestions? "LOST" IN VA.

DEAR LOST: Don't be ashamed. Some of our brainiest people get lost a lot. Recommended solution: Don't start out unless you have written instructions on how to get where you're going. If you should get lost, stop at once and ask for help. [And be sure to listen carefully so that you understand the directions.] Also always take a telephone number of the place you're headed for in case you want to call them and ask how to get there. If that fails, carry a compass, a Bible and a survival kit.

DEAR ABBY: I am tired of hearing about what big slob women are. My friends and neighbors probably consider me a slob because of the way my house looks most of the time, but let me tell you my side of it.

The minute my husband gets in the house he takes off his coat and shirt and drapes them across the back of the chair. Then he takes off his tie and hangs it on the doorknob. He goes to the fridge, gets a couple of cans of beer and a snack, takes them into the living room and settles down to read the paper and watch TV. But first he takes off his shoes and socks. Pretty soon I have crumbs all over the floor and beer cans standing around and half-eaten food left here and there.

After he washes up to go out, there's toothpaste spattered on the mirror, wash rags in the sink, wet towels on the floor, shaving cream on the bathroom wall, deodorant and after shave, razor and hairbrush standing on the sink or tank top.

And I hate to tell you what kind of disaster area is left behind when my man finally gets around to changing a washer on a leaky faucet. SLOB'S WIFE: MILWAUKEE

Former Model Writes Cookbook To Help Give Dieters A Boost

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Every dieter occasionally needs a psychological lift, says Nancy Gould, 23, a former fashion model, who has written a cookbook of calorie-weakened recipes and gourmet foods to supplement diet menus.

The book, "How to Gorge George Without Fattening Fanny" is for times when one must invite George for a homecooked meal or when one reaches the limit of one's endurance on a strict diet and has a yen for something sweet.

Nancy has been through the whole bit, and it is all in the book under chapters of moodchanging poetry—"I wish I may, I wish I might ... lose 10 pounds ... this very night" and under such euphonious titles as Pate Nonfate. Recipes include a Heavy Hearts Hungarian Goulash at 325 calories a serving which might seem high, but when you've got a heavy heart ... There are a 128-calorie fudge cake and a Cinderella custard at 82 calories. The calorie count of recipes is about half that of the traditional recipes.

The book evolved as Nancy fought her own weight problems and lost more than 40 pounds in six months.

"My weight gain had nothing to do with an inactive or overactive appetite," she explains. "It had to do with inactive and overactive heartaches, and this situation is true probably of anny in the 5 to 20 pound overweight bracket. Causes of their overweight are psychological, not physiological. It is frustrations that make us eat more than we should."

Four years ago, Nancy was a curvaceous 114 lbs, 5 ft. 6½ inches, when she arrived in New York from her native Los Angeles to become a fashion model with the Ford Agency.

In six months, she says, Eileen Ford, who has an aversion to avoidupois, called her into her office, and said, "take your body home."

On the scales, Nancy was 148 pounds, but she was heavier in heart and mind she points out. She gained more and went back to California where she tried medically prescribed treatments which she gave up for fear she would become "addicted to pills."

Raiding the refrigerator one midnight, she couldn't find the usual forbidden yummys. She concocted a mousse "out of a lot of stuff that was in the refrigerator—it tasted good!"

She began evolving substitute recipes for high-caloried foods she liked, and soon she had a great collection of recipes. In six months, eating small quantities of the lower-caloried foods and engaging in above-normal activities, which she says "is the real secret of most successful diets anyway" she had lost 44 lbs. She now weighs 116 lbs.

She returned to New York hoping to market her mousses.

She failed to interest a big food company, but a friend stocked it in his diet store. Whipping up 200 mini-mousses a day, for a profit of $10 a week, was "an enterprise that was bound to die of exhaustion," she explains.

The idea of a book made more sense, and in addition, she interested a cruise line in conducting a "gourmets cruise to lose." On that venture, low-caloried gourmet recipes will be supplemented with exercises—"exercise sounds" and "stereo swimming" that are done to music as one dances and swims.

It's all part of her idea of lulling the dieter into a happier frame of mind—a soothing approach to brighten the drudgery of it.

COOKING IS FUN!

FROZEN BLUE CHEESE DRESSING

Easy to make and different!

1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened

¼ cup commercial sour cream

¼ cup (about 1¼ ounces) blue cheese, crumbled

2 teaspoons prepared mustard

1 tablespoon lemon juice

¼ cup minced green pepper

1 tablespoon finely chopped drained canned pimiento

½ cup heavy cream

Into a medium mixing bowl turn the cream cheese, sour cream, blue cheese, mustard and lemon juice; beat thoroughly. Stir in green pepper and pimiento.

Whip cream until thick and fold in. Turn into a 1-quart freezer tray; freeze until firm. Before serving, let stand at room temperature for 5 to 10 minutes; cut in 1-inch cubes.

Tastes good with a combination of home-style canned peaches, banana chunks, canned pineapple rings and whole or halved canned apricots served on mixed crisp greens.

Their Godparents Were Volunteers

NEWARK, England (WNS) — Pamela Rawson, mother of eight children who range in age from six weeks to 14 years, got hubby Thomas Derek's permission to have them christened. Church rules state that three godparents for each child must be present at the ceremony. "I could find only six godparents among our friends, so I offered a banquet for 18 volunteers," smiled Mrs. Rawson. "It took a lot of interviewing, but it worked out so fine that now we have 18 more friends."

New Hair Styles Shown At Clinic

RALEIGH — The annual spring clinic of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association of N.C. was held here Sunday and Monday.

The purpose of the clinic was to introduce the new spring hair fashions to members of the N.H.C.A. of N.C. The new trend is "Fancy Free" and the styles were presented by the Hair Fashion Committee of N.C.

The Pitt County Cosmetologist Association was represented by Patsy Faramore, president, Lois Johnson, Mamie Carraway, Edna Hodges and Debra Hardee.

The Fancy Free hair styles show off the curves of the head with crown hair combed to follow head contours.

'Distortion' Was Anticipated

Last week, East Carolina University officials released a report on the development of the School of Medicine.

The report was given out with complete confidence that it would be distorted beyond recognition by critics here in the state of the development of a medical school at East Carolina University.

Now that the smoke is clearing, however, the fact remains that East Carolina has a report from the Liaison Committee on medical education of the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges which is highly favorable concerning what is being done here.

The critics know this and therefore they must bluster in an effort to avoid facing the hard facts which the report has brought out.

Not only that, but the critics have to face the fact that East Carolina University officials have been completely above board in making the entire report public, something that is almost unprecedented in academic circles.

The report is so good that critics were sent scurrying for a letter of transmittal which said only that the Liaison Committee did not feel that provisional accreditation to accept an entering class for 1971 was justified — and this ECU had announced. No further limitations on the school's continued development were specified.

There are those around the state who pounced on this as a "denial" of accreditation for the university's medical school, although they neglected to mention that the letter also stated, "The purpose of the visit (of the survey team) was to determine the state of development of the program of medical education which the University is desirous of offering in the near future."

Here are some other facts in the full report which critics seem to find it easy to ignore:

— The report places no blocks in the path of development of the medical school other than to say that it should not begin teaching a class this year, something entirely acceptable to East Carolina.

— The physician shortage in Eastern North Carolina is severe and establishment of the ECU medical school may be expected to contribute in some degree to alleviating this shortage.

— Progress made in the last few years toward laying the groundwork for the school by the General Assembly and ECU has been impressive.

— Faculty and budget for the school seem adequate.

— Library plans appear reasonable.

— Interim facilities for the school in the new Science Building "are attractive and seem thoroughly adequate for classes up to about 20."

— Dr. Edwin Monroe, director of Health Affairs; Dr. Wallace R. Woolee, director of medical sciences and faculty members now in residence seem adequately qualified.

— It appears likely that a sufficient number of qualified students can be obtained, even with plans for other state medical schools to increase their enrollment.

These are the findings of the Liaison Committee and in the face of such facts there is no surprise in the nitpicking by opponents of the ECU Medical School.

The criticisms found in the report involve matters that can and will be handled when the budget, which has been declared adequate, is made available by the General Assembly.

There is no university president around who would not give his right arm to have a report such as this on which to proceed with development of a School of Medicine.

The millions of Tar Heels facing a health care crisis can rest assured that the report will be considered in its entirety by government officials, Board of Higher Education and the General Assembly. It is most certainly favorable toward development of the ECU School of Medicine and the state should definitely continue what it has started to alleviate the physician shortage.

Citizens Must Know 5 W's

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Citizens must know the five "W's" about the workings of their government—what, where, when, who, why—to be fully informed and responsible.

Secret meetings and closed access to information at any level of government freezes out part of the answers, and to that degree thwarts the process of democracy.

That's the premise for bills up for public hearing Thursday (February 11) before the House Judiciary I Committee.

On the other side of the issue is the contention that governing bodies and official boards often have to discuss delicate and volatile matters which can best be considered away from the glare of the news media.

There's a wide and sincere difference of opinion among legislators on the subject, and the path to a decision likely will be marked by controversy and compromise. The issue last was debated in the 1967 session, when a bill passed by the House expired in the Senate.

N. C. Needs Policy

The need for North Carolina is a definite policy on the question, said Representative Carl J. Stewart, Jr., of Gaston, introducer of one of the bills.

"What I really do not like is the almost stamp of approval for secrecy in government given by the absence of a law," he said. His bill would establish as the state's public policy that "all citizens of this State are entitled to full and complete information regarding the affairs of government and the official acts of those who transact the public business and affairs."

Representative J. Ernest Paschall of Wilson has induced legislation on the subject which also is before the House Judiciary I committee.

The North Carolina Press Association has indicated a preference for Stewart's bill because it has fewer exceptions and stronger provisions requiring open meetings. The Paschall bill contains no penalty for violations, nor provision for relief against future violations; the Stewart bill makes a knowing violation a misdemeanor and specifically provides for an injunction or other appropriate relief to citizens denied access to any meetings required to be open to the public.

Since there are two similar bills in the committee's hands, the likelihood is that the public hearing will be followed by the appointment by Chairman Sam Johnson of Wake of a sub-committee to put together a substitute bill for the full committee's consideration.

Newspaper Sparked Bill
Impetus for the bill proposed by Stewart, joined by fellow Gaston Representatives Jack L. Rhyne and David W. Bumgardner, Jr., came from the Gastonia Gazette and its Publisher Bob Segal and Editor Bill Williams.

The public access to public business concept is more than abstract theory for Stewart. He's been on the receiving end of the negative side, as a summer reporter for the Gastonia newspaper.

"Yes, I've had the doors closed in my face," he said. "I know what it's like."

He sponsored the bill for the public, not for the press. While the news media is the means for providing information on governmental activity, he said, it is the public's right to know which is paramount.

When a board meets in executive session to discuss public business, even though it votes in an open meeting, no one really knows the considerations leading to the

Good Bet: A Lindsay Switch

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Even though a calculated snub to Mayor John V. Lindsay by some New York city regular Democrats kept him away from last Thursday's party banquet, the rebuff is not taken seriously enough at City Hall to abort his long-awaited switch from Republican to Democratic enrollment.

The anti-Lindsay attitude of a few regulars emerged over the newly resuscitated city Democratic committee's testimonial dinner honoring City Controller Abe Beame, New York City's highest Democratic official. Jerry Finkelstein, chairman of the city committee, commented to a Lindsay lieutenant that it would really be something to have the Republican mayor at the Democratic banquet. Yes, said the lieutenant, it really would be something. But no promises were made.

Even so, word of the informal invitation seeped out. Beame, defeated for mayor by Lindsay in 1965 and a possible candidate in 1973, hit the ceiling. If Lindsay is there, said Beame, I won't be. That theme was echoed by money man Abe (Bunny) Lindenbaum and other regulars, whose help was essential for the dinner to succeed. Finkelstein, accordingly, did not press the invitation to Lindsay.

However, Beame and his allies seem in a minority among New York City

Democrats. State Democratic chairman John Burns has grown close to the mayor the past year, urging a switch in parties. That conversion remains the best bet today in New York politics.

A footnote: Lindsay men unequivocally deny reports circulating through high Democratic circles that the mayor was about to announce a change of parties last week but was dissuaded, for the time being, by city government crises.

Muskie and Money
On his otherwise highly successful trip to California, Sen. Edmond Muskie of Maine may have needlessly alienated some of the richest campaign money sources in the Democratic party.

Muskie made a conscious decision to please California's McCarthy-Kennedy liberals by avoiding fat cats who financed the 1968 Humphrey-Muskie campaign—particularly those involved in clandestine efforts last fall for Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan against Democrat Jess Uruh.

Consequently, Muskie did not even contact the state's most formidable money-raiser: Los Angeles attorney Eugene Wyman, Uruh's blood enemy and Humphrey intimate whom many suspect of playing a key role in Reagan's clandestine operation.

Strength For Today

DISCIPLES

Jesus chose the Apostle Peter to be head of his church. He is honored throughout the world today. He was, however, something of a ridiculous character at times. Peter declared that he would never forsake his Lord but was willing to lay down his life for him. However, when the officials arrived to arrest Jesus, Peter ran as fast as his legs would carry him. Later he denied that he was a follower of Jesus, and when later he was accused of being such he began to curse and swear, claiming that he did not even know this man Jesus about whom they were speaking. Jesus had declared to Peter that "before the cock crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice," and when it turned out precisely as the Lord had said it would Peter went out and wept bitterly (Mark 14:16-72; Luke 22:54-62). Yet years later Peter, according to tradition, died a noble death.

It is the end of life that really counts, not the beginning. Many people have started out as notorious sinners and ended up as saints. "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved" (John 3:17).

The more we see of life, the more we are amazed by it. It vacillates between extreme goodness and extreme evil. Judas Iscariot started out as a trusted disciple and ended as a betrayer. Thomas was a doubter but ended up declaring that Jesus was the divine and risen Lord.

SUGGESTIONS, ANYONE?

An Error In Priorities

WASHINGTON — Everyone seems to have his own theory as to how we can get out of Vietnam. Many critics are questioning President Nixon's strategy of winding down the war by enlarging it.

Prof. Heinrich Applebaum, who works at the Institute for the Study of Undeclared Wars has been highly skeptical of the President's secret plan to get us out of Vietnam.

"Nixon's big mistake," said Applebaum, "is that he's withdrawing the wrong troops."

"I don't understand," I said.

"He is pulling out an average of 3,000 ground combat troops a week. That sounds good on paper. But the men he is withdrawing are fighting men."

"What's wrong with that?"

The professor went to his blackboard. "We know that for every American fighting man in Vietnam there are nine men to support him behind the lines. These include soldiers who work in the PX, the officers' clubs, the supply depots, special services, and the post offices, plus cooks, chaplains' assistants and public information specialists."

Applebaum wrote on the blackboard. "For each fighting GI the President pulls out, he leaves behind nine soldiers who are not equipped to defend themselves. When the President justifies all the things he's doing to protect American lives, he is really talking about the support troops who are expected to remain in Vietnam after the fighting troops are pulled out."

"What's the solution?"

"Well," said Applebaum, "once again the President has all his priorities fouled up. If he really wanted to pull our American troops out of

Other Editors Say New Service Record

(The Wilson Times)

The 1969-70 year was a record breaker for the Red Cross as far as service to the American people and the U. S. military personnel around the world. Expenditures for service came to $149,360,647, the highest since World War II.

Income during the year totaled $147,087,885 and $112,766,000 of this amount came from the annual membership and fund drive, the greater part of it in partnership campaigns with United Way groups. More than 33,586,500 Americans gave one dollar or more to become Red Cross members.

Assistance to disaster victims in 1969-70 came to $32,625,556 bringing Red Cross expenditures for disaster aid in the decade of the sixties to $145,974,000, highest for any 10-year period on record.

In 688 disaster relief operations during the year, 397,000 persons received emergency mass care and 43,400 families were given long-term recovery help in repairing or rebuilding and refurbishing their damaged homes. Following hurricane Camille, more than 29,000 families were aided at a cost of $21 million.

Serving members of the nation's armed forces and their families again required the largest portion of Red Cross funds — $56,754,145. During the year 121,500 servicemen received Red Cross service each month at military posts and hospitals around the world. Here at home Red Cross chapter workers gave 2,708,500 services to families of armed forces members. Aid was also given to 109,900 veterans and their families. One of the important programs includes the Red Cross blood program. Blood and blood products were distributed by the organization to 4,000 hospitals in 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

These are only highlights of the annual report which gives a comprehensive account of the work of this organization which also includes safety training, first aid, small craft and water safety, nursing activities.

There are few facets of life the Red Cross does not touch and improve. And last year was one of the Red Cross' better years as far as service to mankind is concerned.

Vietnam, he would withdraw the support troops first and the fighting men last."

"But that would mean closing the PXs and the officers' clubs," I protested.

"Right on," he replied. "The sooner we close the PXs, officers' clubs, movie theaters and public relations offices, the sooner all our troops will be forced to leave Vietnam. No American Army can remain anywhere without the amenities of life."

"It's awful risky."

"Look," said Applebaum, "the President says he wants an orderly withdrawal of all troops from Vietnam. What is more orderly than first withdrawing the troops who can't fight? The fighting GIs must stay behind to protect the rear."

"Once the support troops are out, Nixon can start withdrawing the combat troops."

"It makes sense on your blackboard," I said.

"It's the only solution," Applebaum said. "The more combat troops Nixon withdraws, the more danger there is to the noncombat troops, and eventually the President will have to do something very stupid to fulfill his promise of protecting American boys."

"Would the Pentagon go for it?" I asked.

"They have to. All the trouble the Army is having in Vietnam with its own troops is being caused in the bases (Continued on page 5)

Lower Saving Reward

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With interest charges expected to fall even lower during the next few weeks, consumers soon will be learning the other side of the current easy money policy: The interest they earn also may decline.

The purpose and net effect is to make borrowing more attractive and saving less rewarding than during the past year, when millions of Americans showed they hadn't forgotten the wisdom of old-fashioned thrift.

Now that money is more plentiful supply, relative to the lowered demand, institutions will be seeking to put their money to work and a bit less interested in obtaining more funds. Passbook interest, therefore, is likely to decline.

First Pennsylvania Bank & Trust, a large Philadelphia-based bank, already has announced that interest paid on regular savings will fall to 4 per cent from 4.5 per cent beginning next Monday.

Recognizing the tendency, some wise savers are putting their money into bank certificates that guarantee a relatively high rate of return for months and years ahead. In order to earn this interest, however, savers must be willing to commit their funds for a period of time.

Likely to benefit from any reduction in interest paid is the U.S. Savings Bond program, which guarantees interest of 5.5 per cent if held to maturity in 5 years, 10 months, and which offers a minimum of 4 per cent for redemption prior to maturity.

Evidence of the complete change that has taken place in the borrowing-lending market is provided by figures from 4,379 federally insured savings and loan associations, which provide (Continued on page 5)

Originating from an undetermined cause, fire early this morning destroyed two stores on Evans Street in the heart of the Greenville district. Four adjacent buildings were also damaged by smoke. The stores destroyed by fire were Curtis Perkins men's furnishings and B. G. Aboynous at a loss of approximately $75,000.

The New Theatre on Evans Street, formerly owned by R. E. Corbett, has been purchased by E. B. Ferguson and is now under new management. The name has been changed to the Capitol and great changes have been made in equipment. The changes include the moving of the screen, enlargement of the picture and a new type of sound equipment.

Questions Posed On Give-Away

By ELMER ROESSNER
The Treasury has sent me — and I suppose several thousand other reporters — a reprint from the February issue of Banking magazine about President Nixon's proposal to share $5 billion of federal revenue with states and subdivisions with no strings attached.

The article consists of answers to questions on the proposal by Murray L. Weidenbaum, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for Economic Policy and reputed architect of the no-strings-attached scheme.

Weidenbaum answers five questions: Why revenue sharing? What's the general outline of the plan and how does it compare with the sharing plan in the 91st Congress? Why wasn't the previous proposal passed and what are chances for the new one? If, as some Congressmen insist, there is no revenue to be shared, why the plan? And what has given revenue sharing particular urgency now?

Gaps In Questions
Weidenbaum's answers are fairly persuasive, but they don't cover the waterfront. Here are questions I ask:

If there are no strings attached to the give-away money, won't most of it leak away in waste and graft?

Won't states and cities use the federal largesse to hold down local tax levies and then claim credit for "economy"?

ELMER ROESSNER

Won't local politicians, as columnist Jack Anderson has warned, use the money to aggrandize themselves and possibly run for Congress against Congressmen who must vote on the proposal?

Won't the money given to the states come from funds taken from taxpayers of those states?

If so, taking tax money from, say, Illinois and sending it to Washington to send back to Illinois would be wasteful, since money is almost always sweated in the process?

Shrunk By Tontine
When I worked for the government during the war, part of my pay was withheld for retirement benefits, and when the war ended, since I was not staying in government, the withholdings were returned to me less "tontine," a charge for having handled it. Won't tontine be charged against tax money returned to the states?

If money from taxpayers in Illinois is not returned to the state and cities there, where will it be sent? And why should people in Illinois be taxed to help Las Vegas?

Isn't the whole scheme a vast put-and-take game, with money being taken from taxpayers in one city or state being given to politicians in other cities and states to do with as they please?

If these no-strings billions are not taken from taxes, won't they have to come from borrowing and, therefore, won't our children and our grandchildren have to pay for Mr. Nixon's generosity? With interest?

Isn't the whole idea as nutty as a slab of peanut brittle?

Does Historical Survey Of N.C. Literary Figures

By H. G. JONES
Director N. C. Dept. of Archives and History
RALEIGH (AP) — The long-recognized need for a brief historical survey of literary figures and literature in North Carolina has been met with the recent publication of "Literary North Carolina" by Richard Walsler of the Department of English at North Carolina State University.

The book contains a lively account of the men and women who have produced literature in and about the Tar Heel state — beginning with those who recorded their impressions of the land during the earliest European explorations and proceeding to the present time. Rich with basic information and many colorful asides, the book is suitable as a source of reference and as enjoyable reading.

The scope of literature discussed is narrowed to "those productions which outlived the occasions and times for which they were written," and begins with mention of a letter written in 1524 by Captain Giovanni da Verazano to his employer, King Francis I of France. Described as the beginning of the history of literature in North Carolina, it depicts the coast as having "good and wholesome air, temperature, between hot and cold."

Other literature from the exploration period was penned by such notables as Hernando de Soto, Sir Walter Raleigh, Captain Arthur Barlowe, who wrote to Elizabeth I that "The soile is the most plentiful, sweete, fruitful, and wholesome of all the world," and Governor Ralph Lane, whose task it was the following year to explain why the colony failed and the people returned to England.

The only knowledge of the "Lost Colony" of 1587 comes from the writings of Governor John White, telling among other matters of the christening of the friendly Indian, Manteo, and the birth of Virginia Dare. Credit for the first North Carolina book goes to Thomas Harriot for "A brief and true report of the new found land," published in 1588.

Poetry is said to have made a humble start in 1737 when an anonymous "rhymster" from North Carolina sent some untitled couplets to the South Carolina Gazette in Charleston. "As blustering winds disturb the calmest sea," he began, so do "Tyrants drive the people to extremes."

The first known drama to be partially composed in North Carolina was "Prince of Parthia," written in 1759 by Thomas Godfrey. It was "sent north" and unsuccessfully staged in 1767. To Lemuel Sawyer of Camden County goes the honor of having written the first play by a native North Carolinian with a North Carolina subject, "Blackbear," in 1824.

As elsewhere, fiction trailed poetry and drama in North Carolina. "Matilda Berkly" or "Family Anecdotes," a story of the upper class in England and Russia, was published in 1804 by Mrs. Winifred Marshall Gales.

The first novel with a North most of the mortgage money.

In December 1969 they reported that withdrawals exceeded deposits by $387 million. One year later they showed a net inflow of $1.15 billion. In just one year they increased their assets nearly $14 billion to $170.6 billion.

The improved condition of the S&Ls is reflected, understandably, in higher mortgage commitments, with a record total of $2.38 billion loaned out in December alone.

Such loans, incidentally, remain among the safest made by any institution.

Despite last year's recession and rising unemployment, mortgage delinquencies rose hardly at all.

After polling more than 900 members, the U.S. Savings and Loan League reported a delinquency ratio of only .79 per cent — well under one per cent, that is, compared with .73 in December 1969 and .74 in December 1968.

Carolina setting, however, was not produced until 1839 when Senator Robert Strange of Fayetteville published "Eonagusk" or "The Cherokee Chief."

Senator Strange was a native of Virginia so the title of first native-born novelist was left for Calvin Henderson Wiley who in 1847 wrote "Alamance," the story of Revolutionary events southeast of Greensboro.

From these beginnings, Walsler progresses through the last century-and-a-half of literary development in North Carolina, taking note of historians, humorists, novelists, poets, folklorists, dramatists, and others.

"Literary North Carolina" is available in both soft and hardback, and its editor points to the author's failure to give full credit to his own contributions in the field of North Carolina literature as the book's only obvious failure.

well behind the lines. That's where all the fights, pot smoking and fraggings of officers is taking place. If you close the rear bases and send those GIs home, morale will pick up 100 percent."

"Does this mean you wouldn't send Bob Hope over to Vietnam any more?" I asked.

"I'm afraid so. If the President knew he couldn't send Bob Hope to Vietnam, he'd have all of our troops out of there by Christmas."

Hotel, traditional resting spot for Democratic politicians, but instead went across the street to the Mark Hopkins. The reason: Fairmont owner Ben Swig is another Humphreyite who has cozied up to Reagan lately.

Muskie did make contact in San Francisco with a third Humphrey money-raiser, realtor Walter Shortenstein (who, unlike Wyman and Swig, actively supported Unruh). However, Shortenstein did not have a really intimate chat with Muskie. He later told friends he was unimpressed with the Senator.

The question: Can the new California money men whom Muskie has recruited tap the absolutely necessary millions of dollars for a Presidential race that Wyman & Co. could guarantee? Some old political hands, including enemies of Wyman, doubt it.

Seniority Limits

Conservative pillars of the Senate Democratic establishment, nominally the staunchest supporters of the seniority system, showed behind closed doors just how many limits they put on seniority when questions of dollars and cents are at stake.

At issue was a Democratic vacancy on the Senate Finance Committee, whose decisions vitally affect American business — particularly oil and gas. Sen. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, a liberal with eight years Senate seniority, seemed assured of the seat.

In fact, he barely made it. Conservatives on the steering committee backed newly elected freshman Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, considerably more conservative than Nelson and vastly more congenial to oil and gas interests. Although Nelson is popular personally, he squeaked onto the Finance Committee vacancy by a mere 8 to 7 vote.

A footnote: Despite his near miss, Bentsen had no cause for tears. As a consolation prize, he was named to the prestigious Armed Services Committee and then won a seat on the Joint Economic Committee by a one-vote margin over a freshman liberal, Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois.

Campus Policeman Often 'Different'

By DICK BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer

On some police forces, 64-year-old Jim Eisenberg would be called an anachronism. He doesn't like wearing a gun and would rather walk than ride a patrol car.

On some police forces, 25-year-old Jim Davis would be called a radical. He enjoys talking with young rebels on his beat, and he keeps saying policemen should explain to people why they do what they do.

In fact, both Sgt. James P. Eisenberg and Officer James W. Davis combined something of the anachronistic and something of the radical. They are campus cops—Eisenberg a 35-year veteran at Cornell and Davis a two-year man at Berkeley. They have learned to wear their ambiguities as easily as their uniforms.

Like their colleagues at colleges and universities across the country, Davis and Eisenberg are both campus guides and professional crime fighters, both friends to the students and symbols of authority where authority is often heated.

It was not always so.

"It was like heaven to start out with," says Eisenberg, recalling when as Cornell's only campus cop he patrolled on foot or horseback.

"They were just a good bunch of mischievous kids, but they were never trouble. It was fun.

"Oh, you might meet a guy peeking in a window, or some of them would throw toilet paper out of the dorm windows ... a little bit of thievery and some noise calls. Sometimes one of them would have one too many and I'd take him home or call some of his fraternity brothers.

"I was issued a weapon, but I never carried it. I still won't unless it's absolutely necessary."

In the old days when things got out of hand, Eisenberg drew on his experience as a civilian Conservation Corps boxing coach. When the dust had settled, "the next minute you were back buddies again and having a few beers together."

Davis never knew such days. He carries a pistol and a can of chemical Mace on his daytime patrol of Berkeley's Sproul Plaza, which has witnessed its share of tear gas and flying rocks.

The weapons come up often in the conversations with young people that are a major part of Davis' job. Where Eisenberg once could employ that are a major part of Davis' job. Where Eisenberg once could employ a brotherly right hook, Davis has to exercise diplomacy.

"They've got to understand that why I'm there is not to harass them but to do a job," Davis explains.

The Berkeley campus recorded one rape, 12 robberies, 112 burglaries and 1,424 thefts in 1970—despite a 10 per cent drop in crimes. Its 87 sworn officers are about double the force of three years ago.

Eisenberg's Cornell, too, is different from the days when everyone knew him as Jungle Jim, or Big Jim. He does most of his work at a desk, and laments: "The thing has grown so big now ..."

The university population has multiplied; the campus force has 43 sworn officers, having tripled in a decade. "Major" crimes totaled nearly 1,000 in 1969.

The biggest change in the campus atmosphere came about three years ago, Eisenberg says. Violence overshadowed pranks and mischievousness gave way to hostility.

"A while back it bothered me," Eisenberg says. "Not any more. Maybe I'm getting hard-

Join To Hunt Greenland Oil

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Twelve American, Canadian and Danish mining companies have formed a consortium to investigate oil and mineral prospects in Greenland, Denmark's most northerly province.

Joe E. Milner, Canadian-born president of Greenarctic Consortium, said the firm expected to spend more than $2 million exploring a vast territory in north Greenland in the vicinity of the U.S. military base at Thule.

15th SEASON SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The Santa Fe Opera will begin its 15th season July 9, 1971. Twenty-five performances of six operas will be performed before the season ends Aug. 28.

COP ON CAMPUS — Officer James Davis, armed and carrying a can of chemical Mace on his belt, patrols Sproul Plaza at the University of Calif. at Berkeley. Davis, 25, says he enjoys talking with young rebels on his beat and he keeps saying policemen should explain to people why they do what they do. (AP Wirephoto)

Ptl. Jim Davis hears that epithet almost every day. "I've learned not to let that bother me," he says. "Some people you just can't reach no matter how hard you try."

Besides, as a kid growing up in Birmingham, Ala., Davis had another view of cops.

"I had some bad experiences with the police, and I really didn't understand the police, which is one of the reasons I figured that if I became a cop I could make it a little bit different."

So, after a college course in police science, Davis and a partner took on the Sproul Plaza beat.

"When we first started we really took a lot of heat. Nobody liked the uniform." Being black, Davis took an extra measure of resentment from black students who looked on him at first as a traitor.

"But I was able to communicate, and it's worked out pretty well. You find that a lot of times they want to talk but they don't know how to approach you. I found out that the majority of them are really nice people. It's just that nobody took the time to talk with them."

vote," Stewart said.

"It is my belief that the taxpayer is entitled to know not only the decision reached, but the reasons for the decision."

Advocates Among Legislators

Two NCPA members serving in the legislature are inclined to support Stewart's bill. They are Representative Jay Huskins of Irredell, editor-publisher of the Statesville Record & Landmark, and Senator Ashley Futrell of Beaufort, editor-publisher of the Washington Daily News.

In his own area, Huskins said, no problems have arisen and there is a good working relationship between new media and public officials. Futrell said there have been instances of closed meetings by public boards in his community. Interests of the public would be served, he said, by a requirement for open meetings of public bodies.

Senator J. Phil Kirk of Rowan, a vacation-relief news reporter for the Salisbury Post, said his present thinking is to support the bill.

The NCPA Legislative Committee and its chairman, Editor Howard White of the Burlington Times-News, has initiated contacts with members of the House Judiciary I Committee to promote support for the legislation. A delegation from the press association will be present at the public hearing to demonstrate their support.

Round Airports Proposed For Safety Measure

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Round airports with circular runways are the airport safety improvement proposal of a physics professor at the State University at Buffalo.

Dr. J. Gibson Winans says a round airport circled by banked runways would prevent crashes by providing infinite emergency space.

Winans' proposed airport would have two sets of two runways each. An outer pair, one for landings and one for take-offs, would be for large planes; and an inner pair would be for smaller craft.

The airport would have its control tower and passenger terminal in the center, linked to the outside by tunnels.

He said test flights on round runways made by the U.S. Navy several years ago encountered no difficulty in landing a plane banked to match the runway.

On Witness Stand, Confesses Slaying Sharon Tate

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Susan Atkins, in a dramatic witness stand confession, has declared it was she who stabbed actress Sharon Tate and used the victim's blood to scrawl the word "pig" on a door during a nightmarish mass slaughter.

"I killed her, I stabbed her and she fell," Miss Atkins said. "And I stabbed her again. I don't know how many times I stabbed her and I don't know why I stabbed her."

Dark-haired Miss Atkins, 22, her voice husky and sometimes tearful, told jurors Tuesday that members of Charles Manson's hippie-style clan—two of them "stoned" on drugs—stabbed and shot the pregnant Miss Tate and four visitors.

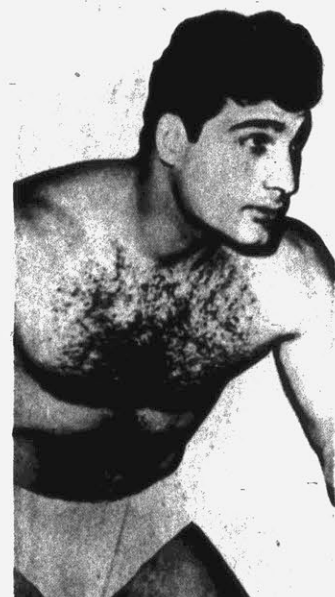

She also said she was the killer of a Malibu musician the previous month.

"I didn't even know these people," she sighed incredulously as she vividly recounted the killings at the Tate mansion.

"She kept pleading with me, 'Please don't kill me.' And I said, 'Shut up. I don't want to hear it.'"

Wrestling On Thursday

This month's Jaycee sponsored wrestling match, scheduled for Thursday night at 8:15 in Memorial Gymnasium, East Carolina University, highlights Atlantic Coast Tag Team Champions Rip Hawk and Swede Hanson against the team of Argentina Apollo and Abe Jacobs.

ARGENTINA, APOLLO

Argentina Apollo is a specialist in his acrobatic approach to wrestling, combining speed and agility in feats which confuse his opponents. One of Apollo's opponents, Rip Hawk, is noted for his exceptional "Piledriver" hold.

Another tag team bout in Thursday's match will pit Art Nelson and Kurt Stroheim in a clash with Al Torres and Tommy Seigler. This is being touted as a match with chances pretty even.

In singles action, Bob Brunell, a young wrestler, meets a rugged veteran, Joe Soto.

The opening event in February's wrestling match will see Pancho Valdez take on Alex Medina.

As in the past, proceeds from this wrestling match will be donated by the Jaycees for the benefit of the Greenville Boys' Club. The Jaycee sponsored series of professional wrestling matches has resulted in sizeable monthly contribution to the Boys' Club fund since its inception last autumn.

PTI Courses Begin Monday

Pitt Technical Institute will begin 90-hour courses in Tobacco Auctioneering and Tobacco Ticket Marking. The courses will begin Monday and end on Friday, March 12.

The classes will meet four hours daily, from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday for four weeks.

Anyone interested in either course should contact the extension division of Pitt Technical Institute.

Physical Ed Program At PTA

More than 180 children will be participating in a physical education activities program at the PTA meeting Thursday night at Elmhurst Elementary School.

On that night at 8:00 p.m., Charles Crumpler, Physical Education instructor, will have the school children demonstrating various activities applicable to each age level.

Parents of school children at Elmhurst and other interested citizens are invited to attend the Thursday night PTA meeting at Elmhurst.

"I threw her down on the couch. She said, 'All I want to do is have my baby.'"

"Tex came in and looked down at her and said, 'Kill her, and I killed her.'"

Charles "Tex" Watson, a member of Manson's clan, was described by another witness at the murder trial as Manson's chief lieutenant in two murder missions—to Miss Tate's hilltop mansion the night of Aug. 9, 1969 and to the home of market owner

Leno LaBianca and his wife the next night.

Watson is to stand trial separately.

Miss Atkins, the first defendant to take the stand in the nearly eight-month trial, told her story at the penalty phase in which the jury must decide on life imprisonment or death for the convicted clan leader and three women codefendants, of whom she is one.

She told the jury:

"She was under the influence of LSD and Watson was on the drug STP at the time of the slayings."

—The state's star witness, Linda Kasabian, was the true planner of the killings, choosing the Tate home because she had tried to buy drugs there once and was "burned" by people who took her money.

—Miss Atkins—not convicted Robert Beausoleil, 22—killed musician Gary Hinman a few weeks before the Tate slayings. She said "I did it for love" because Hinman had threatened Manson.

marked by bloody wall scrawlings.

"I want to remember it all," Miss Atkins whispered staring ahead wide-eyed as if reliving the night of horror.

She told of a car trip into the hills, with Mrs. Kasabian at the wheel, then a climb over a fence into the rambling Tate estate.

In the driveway, she said, Watson spotted a car coming and shot the driver, Stephen Parent, 18, who had been visiting the caretaker.

At the height of the frenzy later inside the house, she related, "Tex said 'turn out the lights,' and I turned out the lights ... The people were crying and one said, 'Please don't hurt me.'"

Suddenly, one victim, Wojciech Frykowski, who had been tied up, got loose, she said, and began fighting with her.

"He kept pulling at my hair and I was fighting like I was fighting for my life ... I kept swinging my knife, and my knife kept going into something."

Miss Atkins said she later picked up a towel and walked over to Miss Tate's bloody body. "I looked at her stomach and then I touched her stomach with the towel and I walked to the door and I wrote 'pig' on the door," she said.

On the second night, she said, Mrs. Kasabian directed the group on a trip to the LaBianca home.

Revival Begins Tonight

The Countrymen Trio

The Countrymen Trio will be featured Thursday and Sunday nights in revival services which begin tonight at the Black Jack Pentecostal F.W.B. Church on Route 3, Greenville.

The revival services will be held each night through Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Bobby Howard, a member of the trio, will be guest speaker each night. Special emphasis will be given to youth each night. The Youth and Adult Choirs will sing. The pastor, the Rev. R. M. Stewart, invites attendance.

Policeman Shot During Eviction

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Gunfire seriously wounded a police officer as deputies and city police staged an eviction raid at dawn today on a house they said was used as a Black Panther headquarters.

Police said one occupant of the house suffered superficial wounds.

The policeman, Lt. Shaw Cooke of the High Point Police Department, was undergoing surgery at a city hospital.

Four occupants of the house were held for questioning. No charges were filed immediately and police withheld the names of the occupants.

The two-story, eight-room house is owned by District Judge

Byron Haworth and police said he requested the eviction.

Don Horn, Haworth's real estate agent, said the judge wanted the house emptied because it was rented from the agency under false pretenses.

Horn said he thought he was renting the house to a young Negro man with a wife and three children. He said he later learned the man was not married and the house was being used as a Black Panther headquarters.

The Panthers were given a 30-day notice to move, Horn said, and when they did not a magistrate turned the eviction proceedings over to the sheriff's department.

Ayden Board Backs Local Option Tax

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners Monday night passed a resolution endorsing the local option sales tax bill that has been introduced in the General Assembly.

If approved the bill will allow: (a) county commissioners to enact a tax by resolution; (b) county commissioners to call for a referendum; and (c) 15 percent of the registered voters can call for an election to either approve or disapprove the sales tax.

The commissioners voted to request the General Assembly to remove the limit imposed by the town charter on the amount of the utilities fund that can be spent for library and recreation programs in Ayden.

The limit now on recreation is $10,000 and the library programs are limited to $5,000.

Board members voted to participate in the Mideast

Regional Records System and the Mideast Regional Police Club.

The final plat for the Strawberry Banks Subdivision was approved.

A resolution urging the Pitt County representatives in the General Assembly to seek the adoption of an adequate obscenity law for North Carolina was approved by the board.

Board members approved a special assessment by Electric-Cities in the amount of $782 to provide financing for legal opposition before the Federal Power Commission of the proposed rate increase requested by Duke Power Company and Carolina and Power Light Co. and shortly by Virginia Electric Power Co.

Spaghetti-Leap Case Postponed

GREENSBORO (AP) — Pat O'Shea, a coed, was to have been tried Tuesday on a charge of unreasonably disturbing the public by leaping nude into 80 pounds of cooked spaghetti.

However, the case has been continued until March 9 in Guilford County District Court.

The giant platter of spaghetti was prepared by two other students as their modern art exhibit at the Weatherspoon Art Gallery Jan. 11. The leap apparently was the idea of Miss O'Shea, a student at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

James Nesby Jr., president of the student group, has asked Lyons to step down, accusing him of "reactionary rule."

Lyons has declined comment, saying he may have a statement at the end of the week. A meeting of the board of trustees reportedly is set for Thursday.

Meanwhile, a boycott of classes went through its second day Tuesday and the student leader said the boycott will continue until Lyons resigns.

Tuesday night's demonstration went off peacefully. After the effigy hanging and burning, students went to the president's house and chanted slogans such as "Lyons gotta go." Then they dispersed.

Larry R. Stox is junior director and his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Stox, is assistant director.

To Relate Program Of 'Outward Bound'

Greenville area residents interested in learning more about the Outward Bound Schools are urged to attend a program Thursday at 8 p.m. at St. James Methodist Church, 2000 East Sixth St. Karl Rhonke, head instructor of the North Carolina Outward Bound (NCOB) School, and instructor Bill Goble, will show a film and describe the purposes and program of the school. Students of East Carolina University's curriculum in Parks, Recreation and Conservation who attended the NCOB program in 1970 will be present to answer questions.

Firm Seeking Site In South

CHICAGO (AP) — Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. is looking for a site in the South to build a mechanized plant for the manufacture of fiberglass plastic bathtubs and showers, the president of the company announced here Tuesday.

John H. Thomas made the announcement after the company received the Gold Medal Award of the Sports Foundation, Inc., for its water pollution control program.

Thomas said his company is "very happy" with its plant at Jackson, Tenn., which has been in operation two years. He listed good labor and community relations in Jackson as one of its major attractions.

Thomas declined to say which southern locations his company is considering. "We are doing some work in the tub and shower field now," he said. "But we intend to mechanize the process and lead the industry when we get a new plant going."

The plant in Jackson manufactures tire cord, textile materials and reinforcements for plastics. Thomas said it has no pollution problems because the current 150,000 gallons of discharge per day is adequately handled by the city's sewage system.

Thomas said his company plans to install complete recycling systems in all of its plants to eliminate the discharge of any water. Two such plants have already been completed and a third is under construction.

Hang Prexy 'In Effigy'

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Several hundred Fayetteville State University students gathered on the campus Tuesday night, and hanged and burned the school's president, Dr. Charles Lyons, in effigy.

The demonstration was the latest development in efforts by the Student Government Association to get the president to resign.

James Nesby Jr., president of the student group, has asked Lyons to step down, accusing him of "reactionary rule."

Lyons has declined comment, saying he may have a statement at the end of the week. A meeting of the board of trustees reportedly is set for Thursday.

Meanwhile, a boycott of classes went through its second day Tuesday and the student leader said the boycott will continue until Lyons resigns.

Tuesday night's demonstration went off peacefully. After the effigy hanging and burning, students went to the president's house and chanted slogans such as "Lyons gotta go." Then they dispersed.

Dr. Ralph Steel of the ECU Department of Health and Physical Education said the program should be particular interest to young people, educators, parents of young people and those in the social and serving professions.

Public Invited Hear Speaker

The public is invited to East Carolina University tonight, to hear Dr. Mary S. Calderone discuss "Human Sexuality" in McGinnis Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Dr. Calderone, director of the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States (SIECUS), is a leading authority on sex education in the U.S.

Plan Survey Scott Averts Of Retarded Anti-Secrecy Bill Support

A survey to seek out all retarded children and their families in Pitt County will be planned at a meeting of the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children at the Development Evaluation Clinic here tonight at 7:45.

According to ARC president, W. N. "Skeet" Crenkmore, the group wants to ascertain, among other things, how many retarded persons are represented in the Association by parents or other relatives. They will also try to learn what specific programs for improving their situations these persons have participated in and what constructive criticism they can offer.

The hope, he said, is to get more persons involved in improving services for the retarded, whether they have retarded persons in their immediate families or not. One immediate need for a strong local organization is to lobby during this General Assembly session for more effective programs for the retarded.

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today the idea of public meetings being open is valid, but did not endorse it.

The exceptions to public meetings, Scott told a news conference, are transactions of land that could "inflate property costs," and when public personalities are involved.

Scott said that even in open meetings the press sometimes fails to report "fully and completely" all that transpires.

"I would say throw all the meetings open" if everything that transpires in them were reported, Scott declared.

"So much happens in meetings," he added, "that the public gets a distorted view of what happens."

Scott made his comments in reply to a question of whether he favored an anti-secrecy bill pending in the legislature to ban closed meetings in local and state government.

"I have no objections to the bill," Scott said when asked if he favored it. "It's a legislative matter."

In saying that facts aren't always reported accurately, Scott was critical of a "major newspaper editorial" that said he used the No. 1 limousine to ride two blocks from the Executive Mansion to the State House to address the General Assembly.

"My wife and three guests rode in it," Scott said. "I wasn't involved in it at all."

In reply to another question, Scott said, "I have no commitment to a medical school at East Carolina University or any other site."

He reminded newsmen he had previously said that more health personnel is needed in North Carolina.

Kinston Demolishes Rampants, 104-56

North Pitt In Win Over Conley

HOLLYWOOD — North Pitt High School swept a pair of games from D. H. Conley last night. The Big Orange Machine rolled to a 44-14 victory in the girls contest, while the Panthers took a 94-37 victory with a big final period.

The boys game was marked for the number of fouls committed. There were 34 called against the Vikings, while North Pitt committed 26, for a total of 60. Only one person fouled out however, although seven players finished with four.

In the game, North Pitt doubled the score on Conley in the first period, outscoring them, 18-9. They continued to pull away in the second quarter, doing it again, plus three, 19-8. That gave the Panthers a 37-17 lead at the half.

Conley improved its play in the third quarter and matched the Panthers, 15-15. That pushed the score out to 52-32 as the final period got underway. The fouls mounted up during the final period, as North Pitt blazed the nets for 42 points during the frame, while Conley scored 25, a total of 67 between the two.

William Shiver led North Pitt with 20, while Frank Brown had 12, Wayne Brown had 11, and Russ Andrews and Danny Highsmith each had 14. For Conley, Dwight Hawkins had 13.

In the girls contest, North Pitt roared away to gain a 17-4 advantage at the end of the first period. They continued to build their lead, outthitting the Valkuries, 10-6, in the second frame. That gave the Panthers a 27-10 lead at the half.

In the third frame, the Big Orange again outthit Conley, 7-4, and upped the lead to 34-14. They outthit Conley, 10-0, in the final period for the easy victory.

Minnie Hollis had 10 to pace North Pitt and was the only scorer in double figures.

Gates Edges By Tigers, 55-54

GATESVILLE — Gates County and Williamston High Schools battled all the way before Gates pulled out a 55-54 victory in overtime last night. In the girls game, Williamston took a 33-23 victory.

The boys contest was close all the way with neither team able to build up any advantage. But it was last second shots by Gates both in regulation and in the overtime that pulled it out.

The two were knotted at 12-12 at the end of the first period and both threw in 15 points in the second quarter. That left them tied at 27-27 at the half.

In the third period, Gates outthit Williamston, 13-11, and opened up a 40-38 lead as the final frame got underway. But in the period, Williamston came back and held a 51-49 lead with just seconds left, but Gates managed to score before the buzzer to force the overtime.

Then, in the extra period, Williamston again built up a lead, this time, 54-53. But a bucket by Larry Key with seven seconds left shattered Williamston's hopes and gave Gates the victory.

W. C. Jordan led Gates with 15 points, while Donnie Umphlet had 12 and Phil Porter had 10. Henry Jenkins had 18 and Albert Bonds had 10 for the Tigers.

In the girls contest, Williamston pushed out into an 8-4 lead in the first quarter. They stretched this in the second period, outshooting Gates, 10-5. That gave the Tigresses an 18-9 lead at the half.

Gates clipped one point off the margin in the third quarter, with an 8-7 advantage, but still trailed, 25-17. Williamston came back with an 8-6 final period to wrap it up.

Claudia Hardison led Williamston to the win with 10 points.

Williamston closes out the regular season Friday, hosting Northampton.

Jamesville In Pair Of Wins

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School took a pair of games from Bear Grass High School last night in the Martin County Conference. The Jamesville girls won, 31-22, while the Red Devils took a 50-43 decision.

In the girls contest, Jamesville pushed out into a 7-4 lead in the first period. Bear Grass came back to outthit the Devilettes, 5-4, in the second quarter and cut the lead back to 11-9 at halftime.

The third period told the tale, however, as Jamesville pushed through 12 points and held Bear Grass to six. That upped the lead to 23-15. Jamesville held off Bear Grass, 8-7, in the final period to wrap it up.

Myra Modlin led Jamesville with 17, while Eva Knox had 12 for Bear Grass.

In the boys contest, it was more of the same. Jamesville pushed out into a 12-9 lead in the first period. They added to this in the second quarter, outthitting the Bears, 10-7. That gave the Red Devils a 22-16 advantage at the half.

Bear Grass put on a rally in the third period, outthitting the Devils, 14-8. That cut the lead away and tied it up at 30-30 as the final frame got going. But the upset was not to be. Jamesville came back with a 29-13 advantage in the final quarter to take the win.

Phil Blount and Tommy Mizelle each had 14 to pace Jamesville, while Larry Modlin added 11. Billy Mizelle had 16 to pace Bear Grass.

Jamesville plays host to Oak City on Friday, while Bear Grass had finished the regular season. The Bears play next on Wednesday in the conference tournament.

Tornadoes Sprint In Last Period To Win

By BILLY EVANS
Reflector Sports Writer

AYDEN — The Ayden Tornadoes remained in a tie for first place in the Pitt County Conference by rolling past the South Ayden Eagles last night, 48-32. The South Ayden junior varsity made the night a partial success however by downing Ayden's J.V., 50-40.

South Ayden pulled out into an early lead in the first quarter by outscoring Ayden 8-5. The Ayden junior varsity cut two points off the South Ayden lead in the second period by outscoring South Ayden 13 to 11. South Ayden was leading at the end of the first half of play, 19-18.

South Ayden increased its lead to six in the opening minutes of the third period by scoring five points while holding Ayden scoreless. Ayden came back to score two field goals to only one South Ayden charity shot to draw within three of South Ayden at 25-22. South Ayden surged ahead of Ayden again by scoring six points before Ayden could add to its total. Ayden cut two points off the lead before the quarter ended by scoring six points to South Ayden's four. The score at the end of the third period stood at 35-28.

South Ayden scored seven quick points in the beginning of the last quarter to make the lead 44 at 42-28. Ayden scored four points to cut the lead down to

In days of olde, when men were bolde, and knighthood was in flower....

Well, in those days, there sailed across the North Sea, fierce Norsemen in their dragon ships, and these Vikings laid waste to the English countryside.

Last night, a horde of Vikings sailed in from the South, across Contentnea Creek, and laid waste to the Rampants, who bloodied the nets of the Rose High School gym with their accurate arrows, and then marched off home with a 104-56 devastation of their victim.

The Kinston Vikings could do no wrong. They hit just about everything that appeared in front of them, and that was usually the basketball goal. They must have shot over 50 per cent in the first half of play, when they did the most damage to the Rose egos, running up a 60-15 advantage by the horn.

And from the line, they were even better. They hit every thing they put up, nine shots, although one was disallowed because of lane violation. In the second half, they hit on four of seven line shots, and most of those were by second and third stringers.

It was obvious from the start that it was the night for the Vikings. They ran up a 15-point lead in the first quarter, stretched that to 45 by the half, and went out by 46 in the second quarter. They finally moved out by as much as 52 points later in the game.

Rose tied it once, at 2-2. After that, the Vikings ran up a quick 9-2 lead, as William Murrell and Doug Petteer led the way. Rose matched a couple of baskets, but the Vikings pulled away again, this time to run the lead out to 22-7 before Rose could score again, cutting it to 22-9 at the end of the period.

The devastation got even worse in the second period. Kinston pushed through the first 24 points of the period against the Rampants, who had trouble even getting the ball down court against the tough Kinston zone press. By the time the Rampants finally put one through the basket, Kinston had run their lead out to 46-9.

The Rampants broke the ice with a bucket by Al Hunter with 2:32 left in the period, but they got only one more field goal, also by Hunter along with two free throws by Tommy Williams. Kinston continued to pull away and built the lead out to 60-15 by the end of the half.

Rose came back in the second half, and played Kinston almost point for point, despite the fact that the second unit worked for Kinston most of the way. Rose, in fact, held the first unit more or less in check and fell further behind when the reserves came in.

Both teams pushed through 24 points in the third quarter, as they matched nearly basket for basket the entire period.

In the final period, however, Rose slipped back again, as Kinston moved out by as much as 52 at 94-42 with 4:54 to play. They crossed the century mark with 1:09 left when Al Sutton hit. Murrell led the Vikings with 24 points, while Potter had 19, Reggie Bryant had 14 and Sutton had 13.

For the Rampants, Lonnie Payton had 12 and Allen Whichard had 10.

Rose, at least, salvaged the junior varsity game, leading almost all the way for a 68-42 win.

Kinston jumped off to a 4-0 lead, but Rose came back to take a 6-4 lead and never trailed after that. They went on to build up a 20-10 lead by the end of the period. They outshot Kinston again in the second frame, 15-13, and built the lead to 35-23 at the half.

Rose continued to pull away in the third period, outthitting Kinston, 15-4. That left Rose with a 50-27 lead as the final period opened. They again outshot the Baby Vikings, 18-15, in the last period to wrap it up.

James Wooten led Rose with 22 points, while J. C. Daniels had 18 and Mike Harris had 10. Richard Moore led Kinston with 10.

The Rampants are at home again Friday night, playing host to Raleigh's Enloe High School.

Franklin Comes On As Starter

In a week when much praise was being heaped upon East Carolina senior Jim Gregory as the "Southern Conference Player of the Week," the exploits of another Pirate basketball player went largely unnoticed.

However, ECU Head Coach Tom Quinn is very much aware of the job sophomore Dave Franklin is doing.

"Dave Franklin has as much to do with our improved play as anybody," said Quinn. "Since he took over for the injured Jim Fairly (out for season with torn ligaments in knee) he has been a consistent double-figure scorer and rebounder."

The 6-5 Franklin, a Richmond, Va., native, spent all except one of the Pirates' first 14 games in strictly a reserve role. The only start he got in this stretch was on Jan. 13, against Old Dominion.

That night, against the Monarchs, Franklin pumped in 15 points. This was considerably better than his 5.7 scoring average as a reserve.

Then, in a practice session on Jan. 26, 6-7 junior Jim Fairley came down hard on his right knee and the Bucs' second leading scorer was through for the season. And Franklin got the starting call the next night against St. Francis.

"Dave is two inches shorter than Fairley, but he has great strength in both his arms and legs," said Quinn. "This makes him a good offensive threat under the boards, where so much of the action is."

Franklin responded with 18 points against the Frankies. Then came 11 against VMI, 15 against St. Peter's, 14 against Belmont Abbey, 16 against Richmond and finally—in his most brilliant performance yet—31 against Southern Mississippi last Monday night.

All of a sudden Franklin has 188 points—the same number Fairly had when injury struck him down. And, more important, Franklin has scored at a 17-point clip in the seven contests he's started.

He'll start for the eighth time this Saturday night when the Quinn Men invade Charleston, S.C., for an important Southern Conference battle with the Citadel. The Bulldogs are much improved over a year ago and the Pirates, 5-3 in SC play, must win their last three league games in order to finish runner-up to Davidson for the third year in a row.

After The Citadel, the Pirates return home for a Feb. 20 game against William & Mary and a Feb. 27 season finale against The Citadel.

Reds Sign Three More, But Bench Still Out Long, Hard Way To Hall Of Fame Is Over Leaders Win In Church Loop

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Cincinnati Reds have three more contracts in their vault today which is good news for them. None of them bears the signature of Johnny Bench, which isn't such good news for them.

The National League champions added utilitymen Darrel Chaney and Willie Smith and pitcher Ed Sprague Tuesday while carrying on some public negotiating with Bench, 1970's Player of the Year.

Bench, who was the National League's Most Valuable Player with 45 home runs and 145 runs batted in last season, casually suggested that he'd be satisfied with a three-year contract worth $500,000.

with," said Bench of the Cincinnati front office. "They don't want to pay me too much too soon because of what they'll have to pay me in the future," continued the 23-year-old catcher.

"But I've had as much responsibility as anybody on the club. My talent and ability are the same no matter if I'm 23 or 35. A lot of people are making a lot of money in sports. I want them to pay me what I'm worth."

What Bench thinks he's worth and what the Reds are about to offer may be vastly different, though.

"We'll do our talking with Johnny Bench," said Bob Howsam, the Reds' general manager, saying he felt contract negotiations were a matter between the club and player. He added that he was "not too interested" in three year contracts.

While the Reds and Bench were warming up for their contract talks, other clubs and players were reaching agreement Tuesday.

Houston signed six men including pitchers Larry Dierker, Wade Blasingame and Fred Gladding. St. Louis added five signatures including outfielder Matty Alou and pitcher George Brunet, acquired recently from Pittsburgh.

Third baseman Ron Santo and pitcher Ron Tompkins signed with the Chicago Cubs and Montreal satisfied second baseman Ron Hunt and pitcher Claude Raymond. Minnesota signed five players including pitcher Tom Hall.

One player who won't be signing a baseball contract is pro football's running back Mike Garrett of the San Diego Chargers.

Garrett had indicated that he would try baseball this season with the Los Angeles Dodgers. But "I decided after much deliberation that my best long-range interests were to continue to play football."

Elsewhere in baseball, Washington traded outfielder Rick Reichardt to the Chicago White Sox for pitcher Jerry Janeski. Reichardt batted .251 with 47 RBIs for the California Angels and the Senators last year. Janeski was 10-17 for the Sox.

NEW YORK (AP) — Satchel Paige took the long, hard way into Baseball's Hall of Fame, but with his rubber arm and unhurried gait, he finally made it.

The legendary pitcher, who was somewhere in his 40s when he made his major league debut and somewhere in his 50s when he finally retired, walked Tuesday through a door marked "special category" and took his place among the other greats in baseball history.

"Technically, he's not in the Hall of Fame," acknowledged Commissioner Bowie Kuhn because old Satch never played the required 10 years in the majors, "but realistically the Hall of Fame is a state of mind—and I think the fans feel that way."

Paige was the first Negro elected in a special category honoring Negro League stars who missed their chance of major league glory because they came along before the color barrier was broken.

Paige took the former recognition graciously, without a trace of bitterness at being kept out of the majors for 22 years although he was considered one of the finest pitchers in history. "I'm proud wherever they put me in the Hall of Fame. Quite a few people told me if I was white I would be playing in the big leagues, but I never did feel any bitterness," he said.

Instead, Satch labored between 1926 and 1948 for some 250 Negro teams, most of them for one day on barnstorming tours. He was advertised as "Satchel Paige, World's Greatest Pitcher, guaranteed to strike out the first nine men." He commanded from $500 to $2,000 to pitch those three innings, and as often as not, he probably did strike out the nine.

In fact, Paige probably struck out more hitters, pitched more innings and won more games than any other pitcher in history—before he even made the majors in 1948 when Bill Veech signed him with the Cleveland Indians.

Although the oldest rookie in history—he said he was 42—he rang up a 6-1 record in relief as the Indians won the American League pennant.

Staying in great shape and claiming he had never had a sore arm, the 6-foot-3, 180-pound-right-hander added to his legendary exploits by pitching on and off in the majors until 1965 when he was somewhere in his 50s. He is now about 65.

Presbyterian and Immanuel, one-two in the Church Basketball League rolled along last night, picking up wins. Immanuel downed Black Jack, 65-56, Presbyterian beat St. James, 66-49, and Oakmont edged Piney Grove, 65-57.

Presbyterian posts a 9-1 record for first place, while Immanuel is two games back at 7-3. They are followed by Black Jack and Oakmont, both 5-5, while Piney Grove is 4-6, and St. James is 0-10.

In the opener, Immanuel nipped Black Jack at the horn in the first half for a 28-27 lead. But in the second half, Immanuel pulled away and outthit Black Jack, 37-29 to win it.

Mack Roebuck led Immanuel with 15, while Dick Evans had 14, and Jim Grimley and Bill Dickens each had 12. Tal Adams had 20 for Black Jack, while Randy Dixon had 12 and Ephraim Smith had 11.

Presbyterian pulled away early and built up a 38-18 lead over St. James at the half. They coasted through the final period, and even though outthit, 31-28, had enough edge to take the win.

Brazel Moore led Presbyterian with 24, while Frank Freular had 13. For St. James, Dave Wilcox and Ray Carawan each had 16.

Rounding out the evening, Oakmont pushed out into a 34-25 lead in the first half of play. Piney Grove tried a comeback in the second half, but couldn't quite make it, outthitting Oakmont, 32-31.

Don Parrott led Oakmont with 20, while Carlton Hardy had 17 and Archie Moseley and Sonny Randle each had 12. For Piney Grove, Jimmy Mills had 19 and Buddy Allen had 12.

Gamecocks Seek Sweet Revenge

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Davidson College basketball team should not be such a pest to the South Carolina Gamecocks when they meet in the Charlotte, N. C., Coliseum tonight.

Davidson of the Southern Conference has beaten South Carolina the last two years, but this season stands at only 10-8. This is partly because of the loss of star guard Bryan Adrian to a knee injury.

Davidson is 6-1 in conference play but has won only four of 11 outside games.

On the other hand, the Gamecocks, 10th ranked nationally, are unbeaten in their eight outside games, but have only a 5-4 record in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

ACC teams are in two other games tonight, both league tests. Maryland, 4-4 in the league and 12-5 in all games, is at Virginia. And Wake Forest, 2-4 and 11-6, is at Duke, 3-5 and 10-8.

ACC teams were idle Tuesday night.

South Carolina is led by All-America John Roche, who is averaging 21.8 points and scored an ACC record 56 against Furman of the Southern Conference last week. The Gamecocks also have Tom Ricker, 15.8 average; Tom Owens, 14.8, and Kevin Jones, 13.0.

For Davidson, Joe Sutter is averaging 14.6, Steve Kirley 12.7 and Eric Minkin 10.

Duke and Wake Forest have split in two games this season. Wake Forest won 83-77 during the North Carolina Big Four Tournament in Greensboro in December. Duke won 68-67 at Wake Forest's home in Winston-Salem on Jan. 6.

Decision Will Avert A Suit

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mike Garrett's decision to stay in professional football and forget a plan to switch to baseball averts an almost certain suit over ballpark jumping.

After insisting for months that he would forego football for a tryout with the Los Angeles Dodgers, the 26-year-old running back announced his surprise decision Tuesday.

"I still lean to baseball, but football is the practical thing for me to do," Garrett said in agreeing to a contract with the San Diego Chargers of the National Football League.

Garrett, a one-time Heisman Trophy winner at Southern California, played four years of a five-year contract with the Kansas City Chiefs. In a mid-season trade, he shifted to the Chargers for a No. 2 draft choice after the fourth game of the 1970 season. To date, his main contribution to the Chargers has been a two-touchdown performance in the final game of 1970, a 31-13 victory over Kansas City. After that game, Garrett said football was "dehumanizing."

Garrett said then that his next game would be played in a baseball uniform, but a Chargers' spokesman said he was their property until May 1, 1972.

The terms of his new contract weren't made public, but Garrett said, "They were very attractive." He was reportedly paid $35,000 last year.

The decision was announced at a news conference called by Sid Gillman, executive vice president and coach of the Chargers. John H. Karns of Los Angeles, Garrett's attorney, was present and a letter from Garrett was read.

Big O Still Is Big Factor

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Oscar Robertson might be overshadowed in Milwaukee by Lew Alcindor, but he still can do it all.

The Big O proved it Tuesday night against Detroit as he led the Bucks to a 107-106 victory over the Pistons for Milwaukee's 48th triumph in 59 National Basketball Association games.

Oscar had 25 points to keep the Bucks within 105-103 of Detroit and then passed to Alcindor for the tying basket. Seconds later, he hit Greg Smith with a long pass with 22 seconds to go for the go-ahead basket.

Then, after Terry Dischinger of Detroit connected on only one of two free throws with eight seconds left, it was Robertson who grabbed the vital rebound and dribbled out the remaining seconds.

In other games, Los Angeles held off Cleveland 116-111, Atlanta beat the New York Knicks 114-109, Phoenix stopped Baltimore 120-115, Boston nipped Chicago 90-88 and San Diego defeated Seattle 132-115.

There were no games scheduled in the American Basketball Association.

The largest crowd ever to see a game in Cobo Arena saw the Pistons rally from an eight-point deficit early in the fourth quarter to take two-point leads on three occasions before Robertson's final act.

Alcindor added 38 points while Jimmy Walker and Dave Bing each had 28 for Detroit.

Gail Goodrich hit a season-high 42 points for Los Angeles, but the Lakers barely hung on after blowing a 23-2 lead. The surprising Cavaliers still trailed by 13 points entering the final period before cutting the deficit to 107-106. But Jerry West hit a basket, Wilt Chamberlain blocked several shots and the Lakers were out of danger.

Happy Hairston had 30 points for the Lakers and Dave Sorenson 30 for Cleveland.

Atlanta pulled ahead to stay 74-67 with seven straight points, built the lead to 109-99 and then held off a final New York flurry as the Knicks lost their fourth straight game.

Pete Maravich had 27 points for the Hawks and Willis Reed 24 for New York.

Phoenix overcame 38 points by Baltimore's Earl Monroe and a 94-91 deficit after three periods with ball-hawking defense and Dick Van Arsdale's 29 points.

Dave Cowens hit a basket and a free throw in the final 17 seconds to put Boston over Chicago as the Celtics came from 15 points behind.

Ali Says Press Is Misleading

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Boxing's master propagandist, Muhammad Ali, now accuses the press of "misleading the world into thinking Joe Frazier's got a chance to whup me."

Wide-eyed fans edged closer as Ali began chanting like a tent evangelist.

"Those writers must have amnesia," he raved. "I'm just gonna do a little reminding on March 8."

"Onliest way Joe Frazier gonna beat me," said the defrocked heavyweight champion, "is to knock me out. And he ain't gonna hit the fastest and the bestest heavyweight in the world."

The crowds, paying $1 a head, are getting larger at the second floor fistic palace as the date nears for the showdown between the two unbeaten heavies. Ali's middle is a tad softer than when he came back from three years of inactivity against Jerry Quarry in October. His weight is 221, six pounds heavier than the man has ever carried into the ring.

"I ain't worrin' about it," he claimed. "I'm fast and I'm strong. And, I'm in good condition ... those are the things that count."

Ali's assistant trainer, Drew "Bundini" Brown, refused to answer questions about his man's poundage. "Heavyweights don't need no special weight," he said. "They just have to be in shape."

Trainer Angelo Dundee, the Fifth Street Gym's proprietor, has prepared Ali throughout his career. He predicts, "He just may be heavier than for any previous fight."

Robersonville Pulls Off Upset

VANCEBORO — The Vanceboro girls surprised Robersonville, 28-20, last night, and then the Robersonville boys turned right around and pulled off a surprise of their own, 47-32.

In the girls game, Robersonville inched out into a 5-4 lead in the first period. Then, in the second frame, the Golden Eaglettes continued to pull away, outscoring Vanceboro, 9-5, for a 14-9 halftime lead.

In the third period, Vanceboro began to get going. They outscored Robersonville, 6-5, and cut the lead down to 19-15. But it was the final period that did the trick. The Raiderettes held Robersonville, to just one point, while pouring in 13 to catch up and take the win.

Vickie Mercer led the Vanceboro scoring with 15 points.

In the boys contest, Vanceboro eased out into a 15-12 lead in the first frame. The Eagles came back with a 7-6 advantage in the second period to trail by 21-19 at the half.

Then, in the third quarter, Robersonville outgunned Vanceboro, 13-4, and charged into the lead. They held a 32-25 lead as the final period opened. The Eagles again outscored the Red Raiders, 15-7, to wrap it up.

Jimmy Daniels led Robersonville with 17 points, while James Crandall had 11. For Vanceboro, Ritchie Lilly and Cornelius Dawson each had 13.

Vanceboro travels to Gritton, and Robersonville entertains North Pitt on Friday.

Greene Central Edges By Aycock

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School eased past Charles B. Aycock High School last night, 69-57. Greene Central also captured the junior varsity game, 81-40.

In the varsity contest, Greene Central pushed out into a 14-9 lead in the first period and held onto the lead after that. The Rams tacked another point onto the total in the second quarter, outthitting the Falcons, 15-14. That gave Greene Central a 29-23 edge at intermission.

Both teams warmed up in the second half, and during the third quarter both threw in 17 points. That upped the score to 46-40 as the final frame got underway.

Greene Central sewed up the victory by outscoring Aycock, 23-17, during the final quarter. Ron Bowen and Mike Giles led the Rams to victory scoring 24 points apiece. Lucy Ward added 11. Aycock was paced by Buddy Davis with 17, while Billy McLean had 12.

The Rams close out the regular season Friday, playing host to Farmville.

Gregory Takes Scoring Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Jasper of William and Mary has been knocked out of the Southern Conference basketball scoring lead for the first time this season.

The new leader is Jim Gregory of East Carolina, who scored a career-high 36 points in the Pirates' 103-81 romp Monday night over Southern Mississippi while Jasper was getting just 17 in the Indians' 91-63 defeat at the hands of Virginia Tech.

Gregory's splurge boosted his total for the season to 366 points in 19 games for a 19.3-point average to 402 points in 21 games and a 19.1 average for Jasper. The East Carolina ace has scored 116 points in his last four starts — all East Carolina victories.

The scoring race appears to be strictly between Gregory and Jasper, for sophomore Russ

Hunt of Furman — the NO. 3 man — has 291 points in 18 games for a 16.2-point average. Steve Dodge of William and Mary, with 337 points in 21 games for a 16-point mark, is the only other player over 15.

Jan Essenberg of Virginia Military is fifth at 14.9, followed by Joe Sutter of Davidson at 13.7, Mie Anastasio of Richmond at 13.6 and Bernard Collier of Furman at 13.2.

All conference teams were idle Tuesday night and just two will be in action tonight, both against nonleague foes.

VMI, which finally won a game by beating Richmond 73-63 Monday night to end its 24-game losing streak, will expose its one-game win streak at Navy. Davidson's league-leading Wilcats, 10-8 over-all, have a date at Charlotte against South Carolina's 10th-ranked Gamecocks.

drugs would be one of the basic subjects on which considerable attention would be focused. In this connection, two Greenville attorneys, Dallas McPherson and James Cheatham III, explained a proposal which they and others have devised. Their proposal would tie in with Jaycee support, support of young lawyers of North Carolina, and medical doctors. Cheatham noted that our current society is a "drug culture," involving as it does the use of aspirins, carbonated drinks, cigarettes, tea, coffee and above all, alcohol. He mentioned that children cannot be expected to reach an understanding about the true nature of drugs, and the extent of harmfulness of various types of drugs, unless parents also become aware of the need to take part in programs leading to an understanding of drugs in total.

"The real point," he remarked, "is everyone's learning and knowing the facts about drugs."

While agreeing to the concept of such a program, there were expressions from the floor that a program could perhaps be more effective as one centered around the junior and senior high levels as an entity, rather than from the standpoint of individual schools.

Warren Whitehurst expressed a belief that the program would draw more attention and participation as one "coordinated into one big program. I feel the way it is presented and where it is present is important."

Dr. W. C. Sanderson, president of the city-wide P.T.A. Council, emphasized that any P.T.A. Council Study Course would be "a system wide program." He called for a motion to formalize thinking on determination for a study course, which resulted in the motion for "Studying the Adolescent Child."

Taylor was asked to proceed in formulating final plays for the city-wide program which, once completed and adopted, will be given the widest publicity possible in an effort to translate the study course into an active program.

Two school board members — Mrs. Lucille Gorham and Dr. Badger Clark, made special reports. Harding Sugg and Leroy James, two other board members scheduled to give reports, were unable to attend. Their reports, in brief form, were presented to the PTA group by Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, Superintendent of the Greenville

City Schools.

Speaking on the subject "The Challenge of School Boardmanship," Mrs. Gorham said a member must "act on what they learn. That is all that matters."

Indicating that time brings complex changes, she said "I emphasize the challenge as it exists today...the challenges have multiplied many fold over those of five or ten years ago, we must take a fresh look at the challenge we face today... recognize and accept them."

Other factors she listed as paramount are "an open mind, consideration of all factors, an attitude for fairness," and that decisions "must not be on the basis of what appears to be popular at the moment."

"A school board member's final decision cannot be on what is popular, but simply what is right," she commented, and concluded by remarking

"finally, school board members must have the guts to stand up and be counted, to accept or reject the truth."

Dr. Clark outlined basic general needs for the future in his report "School Facilities for the Future." He reviewed the general trend of thinking for the coming years, saying, "When we speak of present plans we must apply the term to the period from now until 1980."

One of the big issues in school facilities, according to Dr. Clark's report will—revolve around a decision for a new junior high — or an alternate decision to enlarge the present facility. Other thinking at this stage involves the possibility of phasing out Agnes Fullilove and Third Street School, with a replacement school, possibly located north of the Tar River.

"These are just possibilities," he commented, and stressed that so much will depend on finances available for facilities. "It boils down," he concluded, "to what we must anticipate, working toward those ends, and finding funds for new facilities. We can't project any new advancements with our current budget."

In his brief remarks in lieu of the reports scheduled by Sugg and James, Dr. Cleetwood told the group that awareness of the total needs and problems of education on the part of interested persons is a critical factor. He called on them to "study, to make up your minds, and to urge legislators" in adopting legislation for improving education. "Education stands in need of public confidence and trust."

Dr. Sanderson said "people are always willing to support education — at last year's level."

Green Mill Run And Parker Creek Hearings Feb. 18

The Army will meet the citizens of Greenville on February 18, the date set for two public hearings on plans being made for Green Mill Run and Parker Creek basins by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

At 10:30 on that date, a study of Green Mill Run Basin will be the subject of a public meeting in the City Council Chambers of the Municipal Building (City Hall). At 2:00 p.m. on the same date, at the same place, a public meeting will be held on plans for Parker Creek Basin.

Green Mill Run Basin is located entirely within the city limits, extending easterly from Evans Street to a point near the intersection of East Fifth and East Tenth Streets.

The Parker Creek Basin is north of the Tar River, and in-

Pactolus

School Menu

Lunchroom menus for the remainder of the week at Pactolus Elementary School have been announced as follows:

Thursday — fried chicken, candied yams, mixed greens, hot biscuit, strawberry shortcake and milk;

Friday — soup, sandwiches, cheese and carrot strips, crackers, milk.

cludes Johnsons Mill Run and another minor stream.

Purpose of both public meetings is to determine flood and related water problems. The studies, directed by the Chief of Engineers of the Wilmington District of the Corps of Engineers, will also include a plan for flood control for the flood plain lands of the Green Mill Run; and for Parker Creek, information is additionally being sought on ecological and environmental conditions and problems in the study area.

Also, the Parker Creek Basin study will deal with flooding of crops, roads, and undeveloped land under consideration for use as industrial and residential areas.

For both studies, the Chief of Engineers is urging all parties interested in these projects to be present or to be represented at the hearings.

Information and expressions of opinions are being sought from concerned citizens and property owners; as well as from representatives of Federal and non-Federal public agencies — i.e., agricultural, commercial, industrial, business, transportation and utilities; and from boating, recreational, fish and wildlife organizations and clubs, and educational institutions.

Oral statements will be heard, but for accuracy of records, the Chief of Engineers is asking that all important facts and statements be submitted in writing.

The request for statements is being requested, in duplicate copies. It is noted the statements may be handed to the presiding officer at the meeting or mailed beforehand to: Colonel Paul S. Denison, District Engineer, Wilmington District, Corps of Engineers, P.O. Box 1890, Wilmington, N.C.

Statements mailed to Colonel Denison should indicate they are in response to the invitation to submit statements either on the Green Mill Run project or the Parker Creek project. All statements, oral or written, will become a part of the official written record and will be made available for public examination.

Final selection of plans to recommend to higher authority according to Colonel Denison will be made only after full consideration is given to the views of responsible agencies, groups, and citizens.

Eventual accomplishment of one or both projects will depend on higher approval with subsequent funding by the U.S. Congress for work to be carried out.

Executive Lunches Set By Local Lions

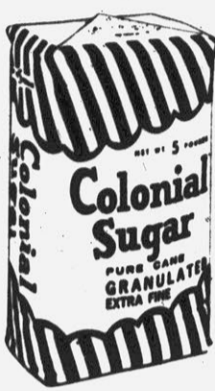

Dr. Jay M. Collie, president of the Lions Club, has announced that his club will hold Executive Luncheons at the Greenville Golf & Country Club on Thursday, and Friday in connection with the Lion's Club sponsorship of the Dale Carnegie Course in the Greenville area.

Invitations have been mailed and attendance will be by reservation only. Business owners, executives or management personnel inadvertently left off the invitation list may make reservations by calling 758-4096.

During the luncheons, Charles Kavanaugh, area manager for the Dale Carnegie Courses, will present a 30-minute clinic on leadership development.

The Dale Carnegie Course, founded in 1912 in New York City, has since grown to embrace 50 states and 23 foreign countries, with several hundred of the nations leading business and industrial firms participating to increase communication and leadership skills in their employees.

Health Team A Nat'l Priority

MOLINE, Ill. (AP) — The nation's first health priority is creating a national team to treat the nation's ills, says Dr. Roger Egeberg, assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs in the Department of Health Education and Welfare.

Egeberg addressed a meeting of the Rock Island and Scott County (Iowa) Medical Societies to bolster the nation's health care.

Egeberg estimates that 50,000 doctors, supplemented by paramedical assistants, are needed now is the time," he said.

BURGLARIZED GOVERNOR SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A police walkie-talkie radio was stolen from a car belonging to Bruce King Jan. 1, the day he became New Mexico governor. The walkie-talkie was valued at about $700 and was taken from the automobile's dashboard.

Worry Clinic One Sex More Self-Centered

Peter wonders if girls are more self-centered and thus more egotistical than boys? Beware of making a snap judgment till you have answered all the pertinent questions below. Which sex wants to splurge with elaborate wedding finery and get its engagement picture in the newspaper?

Sex Differences

Which sex is more likely to carry a mirror and use it to primp and powder its face in public?

Which sex spends more time manicuring and staining its fingernails?

Which takes off an overcoat at the entrance of the theater or church?

Which leaves it on till seated down front and then makes a lot of commotion trying to get the coat removed with the aid of a companion?

Why does that one sex thus leave its coat on? To attract all eyes and thus divert the congregation's attention from the clergyman to this coat-removal act?

Which sex spends more time in the bathroom and at the dressing table, applying attention-attracting cosmetic aids like mascara, false eye lashes, face powder, perfume and deodorants?

Which spends more money on beauty parlors, facials, and cosmetics?

Which bleaches its hair to attract attention?

"But, Dr. Crane," you may protest, "I am sure you realize that girls are the answer to all those questions."

"Yet don't they employ such beauty aids primarily to please a boy?"

"So isn't it her unselfish interest in making a boy happy?"

Well, readers, is that the girl's goal or isn't it her own selfish desire to get an engagement or wedding ring on her left hand?

"Now wait a minute, Dr. Crane," you may protest, "what about the unselfishness of a mother for her baby?"

"Aren't women usually better parents than men?"

"Doesn't a child tend to run to its mother and also tell her its secrets more often than it does its father?"

That sounds plausible, but why does a woman show much greater attention to a baby?

Isn't it because of the ego-inflation that comes from feeling so important in the life of that defenseless infant?

If so, then isn't the usual maternal inclination a left-handed way a woman pats herself on the back by thus feeling omniscient and omnipotent to that toddler?

And may a teen-age coed while on a date, will exclaim over a baby, not just due to her instinctive fondness for the strange infant.

But to suggest to her escort this subtle sales idea: "I am fond of children so I'd make a good wife! Therefore, how about proposing marriage?"

Which sex is also more likely to flash a wedding ring in public to suggest its superiority to others of its sex who lack such a ring?

And which sex waves its new diamond engagement ring, excessively, even to the extent of lifting that left hand repeatedly to tuck in an imaginary lock of hair above its left ear?

Women are more likely to focus attention on what they are and how they look.

Men prefer to boast about what they have done or accomplished in business and sports.

Women are thus more likely to cry and be hurt by even unintentional affronts, for their point of reference is themselves.

Men are more interested in things like factories, farms or finance, and thus are less disturbed by gossip.

Opening lead: Eight of ♠
A great many declarers are afflicted with a form of anxiety neurosis when it comes to the handling of the trump suit. In their haste to draw trumps as soon as the lead is obtained, they are apt to overlook considerations of timing that may be necessary to success of the operation. South found that in order to make his four heart contract today, he was obliged to leave some trumps outstanding until the end position had been reached.

When North heard his partner open the bidding with one no trump, he decided to probe for a suit contract first. His two club response is conventional and requests the no trump bidder to show a four card major if he has one. South obliged by bidding two hearts and North promptly raised to game in the suit.

West opened his singleton eight of diamonds in the hope of obtaining a ruff. Declarer put up the jack from dummy but East refused to be so obliging as to cover. A heart was led to the king and another heart returned to the ace as West discarded a small club. This exposed East's jack of trumps to a finesse but, before declarer continued this process, he paused to reflect on the overall position.

If he drew the remaining trump immediately, dummy would have only one entry left—the king of clubs—with which to make a diamond play. If it developed that diamonds broke as badly as trumps, South would be left with a loser in that suit along with the three spades that must be conceded.

Declarer decided therefore to test the diamond suit first. The three was led from dummy and, when East followed with the five, South put in the nine. This held the trick as West showed out for the second time. The jack of clubs was overtaken by the king in order to repeat the diamond finesse. South cashed the ace of diamonds next and the club ace and simply got out with a spade.

The defenders were able to take three spade tricks but, regardless of what they led at trick twelve, declarer sat over East's jack-nine of hearts with the queen-ten and claimed the last two tricks.

"So isn't it her unselfish interest in making a boy happy?"

Well, readers, is that the girl's goal or isn't it her own selfish desire to get an engagement or wedding ring on her left hand?

"Now wait a minute, Dr. Crane," you may protest, "what about the unselfishness of a mother for her baby?"

"Aren't women usually better parents than men?"

"Doesn't a child tend to run to its mother and also tell her its secrets more often than it does its father?"

That sounds plausible, but why does a woman show much greater attention to a baby?

Isn't it because of the ego-inflation that comes from feeling so important in the life of that defenseless infant?

If so, then isn't the usual maternal inclination a left-handed way a woman pats herself on the back by thus feeling omniscient and omnipotent to that toddler?

And may a teen-age coed while on a date, will exclaim over a baby, not just due to her instinctive fondness for the strange infant.

But to suggest to her escort this subtle sales idea: "I am fond of children so I'd make a good wife! Therefore, how about proposing marriage?"

Which sex is also more likely to flash a wedding ring in public to suggest its superiority to others of its sex who lack such a ring?

And which sex waves its new diamond engagement ring, excessively, even to the extent of lifting that left hand repeatedly to tuck in an imaginary lock of hair above its left ear?

Women are more likely to focus attention on what they are and how they look.

Men prefer to boast about what they have done or accomplished in business and sports.

Women are thus more likely to cry and be hurt by even unintentional affronts, for their point of reference is themselves.

Men are more interested in things like factories, farms or finance, and thus are less disturbed by gossip.

'Eternal Rome' Slowly Sinking

By CHARLES W. BELL
ROME (UPI)—French astrologer Michel de Notredame, whose rhyming predictions in the mid-16th century excited world attention, said London, Paris and "new" cities would disappear in the year 2000 in a great world war. But Rome, he said, would survive—to drown.

Some nervous Romans are beginning to think De Notredame, or "Nostradamus" to use the name he adopted, was right. But most of this city's 2.8 million inhabitants either do not know or do not care that parts of Rome are sinking at a rate of three-fourths of an inch a year. The rate, in fact, is four times faster than Venice, the city which stirs so much concern when annual submersion figures are announced. Venice is sinking at a rate of less than one sixtieth of an inch a year.

At the current rate, Romans could be using gondolas to cross the city by the year 2611. Nobody Knows Whether the Eternal City is endangered by subterranean water is a question vexing scientists, engineers and archeologists. Nobody seems to know.

Archeologist Guglielmo Gatti said tests in 1915 and 1955 in the central part of Rome now occupied by the Colonna Gallery show Rome has sunk three feet ten inches since the earliest tests. "But the phenomenon," he said, "is certainly no cause for worry. It is more like a shifting of subterranean water from one part of Rome to another." Some experts think two or three underground rivers criss-cross Rome, but nobody knows for sure. The government hydraulic agency has no authority to investigate water underground so it does not bother.

But there was a stream running under parts of Central Rome when engineers drew up a map of the city in 1879. It was called the Petronia River, which was fed by several other ancient underground streams, and flowed into the River Tiber. It still exists, but its extent is not known.

Water is Trapped The reason Rome is sinking, archeologists say, is because water is trapped beneath the heart of the ancient city. There is nowhere for it to flow so it rises.

The Tiber flows through the middle of Rome, but it does not absorb any of the water because its banks and walls are concrete.

The whole issue about sinking Rome first came up last year when work on a new subway line was suspended following damage to some buildings on the new Appian Way. Engineers blamed the damage on the vibration of equipment, but found water a few feet below street level.

It reminded historians of the 34th verse in Book V of the "Centuries," the rhymed quatrains Nostradamus published in 1555: "Rome ... will soak then sink beneath the waves."

Welsh Hope Prince Sees Opera 'Lulu'

By MARGARET SAVILLE
LONDON (UPI)—Alban Berg's erotic opera, "Lulu," will be presented for the first time in Britain soon. In the meantime the stage version is doing record business at the boxoffice.

A play based on Frank Wedekind's most famous creation—Lulu, the girl who believes it's every man for herself—opened in the provinces and refused to close. It moved to an "off-Broadway" London theater for what was billed as a limited run. Now it has settled down in the West End big time, and business is brisk.

Berg's operatic version tells that same sex-ridden story in the same circus style as the play. It was first produced in Zurich in 1937. It caused such a scandal it was never produced in Britain.

Now the Welsh National Opera Company plans to stage it this spring in Cardiff, the Welsh capital. The company hopes its patron will attend one performance. Its patron is the Prince Charles, heir to the British throne.

In Cardiff as in London, the prince would see some fairly strong stuff. Wedekind, who died in Munich in 1918, was permissive before his time.

His heroine is a girl who loves love, who is completely amoral, who is never troubled with guilt feelings because she doesn't regard anything she does—from murdering her husband to sleeping with her father—as wrong.

Her degradation begins as a flower girl of 12, when she is seduced by the newspaper tycoon she eventually marries, then murders. She engages in every variety of sex—the opera, like the play, includes a lesbian scene which has been the subject of scandal for 30 years—and she ends as a London prostitute murdered by Jack the Ripper.

As an opera, "Lulu" was as advanced musically for its day as was its subject matter.

Berg's music is all dodeca-phonic, nearly all derived from a single tone row. Each character has its individual timber. The parts sometimes are sung straight, but often semi-sung in

Said Introduced A Decade Ago

NEW YORK (AP)—Today's popular sport of snowmobiling actually originated from the sport of tobogganing, says Steve Moorehead, product manager for Verlich Toboggans. "Snowmobiles were first introduced about a decade ago," says Moorehead. "A creative engineer simply took a toboggan and added an engine. Later came an enclosed seat for the riders."
