Involves More Than 60 Nations

Treaty Barring Nuclear Arms On Seabeds Signed

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ceremonies today involving more than 60 nations mark the signing of the newest disarmament pact of the Atomic Age: a treaty banning nuclear weapons from the world's seabeds.

President Nixon was scheduled as the main speaker at signing ceremonies at the State Department.

Earlier in the day, in Moscow, the treaty was signed by the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin said he feels a sense of satisfaction that the pact was agreed upon and signed.

The treaty, Kosygin told the Moscow diplomatic corps, "is a first important step toward complete demilitarization of the sea."

He said the Soviet government "in the future, too, will not spare efforts to find solutions to urgent problems connected with stopping the arms race and disarmament."

Ambassador Jacob D. Beam signed for the United States in the Moscow ceremonies, while Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko signed for the Soviet Union and Ambassador Sir Duncan Wilson for Britain.

Representatives of some 40 other countries also signed the document.

A similar ceremony was scheduled in London.

The treaty, approved by the United States and the Soviet Union in two years of negotiating at the Geneva disarmament parley, won United Nations endorsement by a 104-2 vote last Dec. 7. It will take effect when 22 of the signers ratify it.

The pact follows the path of the 10-year-old Antarctic Treaty outlawing military use of the south polar subcontinent.

Since then treaties have been signed banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, keeping atomic weapons out of space and Latin America and limiting the spread of nuclear weapons.

Diplomats have found it's a lot easier to bar weapons from places where they are not already placed than to curb existing arms races.

Proposals to limit the biggest nuclear arms race of all—between the United States and the Soviet Union—have made little progress since talks begun between the two superpowers in Helsinki in 1969.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, slated to sign for Russia at the Washington ceremony, said: "We have signed treaties for the air and for under the sea; some day I hope we will sign something for the earth."

Sponsors say the newest treaty covers underwater areas comprising about 70 per cent of the earth's surfaces, starting 12 miles offshore from national coastlines.

U.S. officials said those apparently not intending to sign at this time include Red China and France, which are developing their own atomic arsenals, and Ecuador and Peru, which claim jurisdiction 200 miles out to sea.

The treaty prohibits placing mass destruction weapons, and structures for such weapons, on the ocean floor or its subsoil. It does not ban moving atomic weapons gear such as missilefiring submarines.

Each party to the treaty may inspect the seabed floor to check against violations, and take complaints to the United Nations.

Earthquake Toll Is Rising; Now At 53

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With the known death toll in the California earthquake at 53, Mayor Sam Yorty has extended for 48 hours the evacuation order for 80,000 persons living below a cracked dam which might crumble if another sharp temblor occurs.

The count of those injured in the quake rose to 1,000.

Workers continued to sift ruins of a Veterans Administration Hospital wing where 35 bodies had been found. Three patients and five nurses were still missing.

Estimates of property damage in the quake area exceeded $300 million.

Yorty said Wednesday residents would not be arrested if they are found in the 20-square-mile area of the sprawling San Fernando Valley menaced by the cracking of the dam in the earthquake Tuesday morning.

"But it would be very prudent for a family not to risk its life before this 48-hour period is up," he said.

Huge pumps sucked water from the Van Norman Lake Dam reservoir, 10 miles from the earthquake's center, to lessen the chance of a flood disaster. City officials said aftershocks from the tremor had caused chunks of earth to slide away from the lip of the fractured earthen dam.

Yorty met with Dr. Charles F. Richter, the seismologist who perfected the scale which measures an earthquake's magnitude, and with police and fire chiefs and other officials.

It was the consensus, Yorty said, that "another earthquake of any magnitude would make it dangerous for people in this area to be in their homes."

Police originally ordered an evacuation until Wednesday afternoon after cracks were detected in the dam and half a 3,000-foot concrete apron slipped into the reservoir.

The mayor recommended that residents stay away until the reservoir's depth was drained to 10 feet, a level expected by Friday afternoon.

Police said permits would be required to enter the evacuated area.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Gov. Ronald Reagan toured the disaster area Wednesday and later met with survivors of the hospital collapse.

Agnew told the injured veterans that President Nixon is "terribly concerned" over the earthquake and wants everything done that can be done to help.

Many of the hospital's patients were getting up for breakfast when the tremor struck at 6:01 a.m. Tuesday.

Los Angeles officials told the vice president that about $100 million in damage to private and public property occurred within the city.

The county said about $125 million in damage had been sustained by the 2,500 buildings it operates. The county's largest single loss was Olive View Hospital in Sylmar, south of the quake's center. The $23.5-million hospital, dedicated last month, was "totally demolished," a spokesman said.

Seaborne Team In War Zone Again

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines of the 3rd Division have returned to the Vietnam war for the first time in more than a year, poised for combat should the North Vietnamese charge across the Demilitarized Zone in retaliation for the South Vietnamese campaign in Laos.

A helicopter carrier and other ships of the U.S. 7th Fleet brought a 1,500-man landing team with tanks and artillery from the division headquarters on Okinawa to the coast below the DMZ.

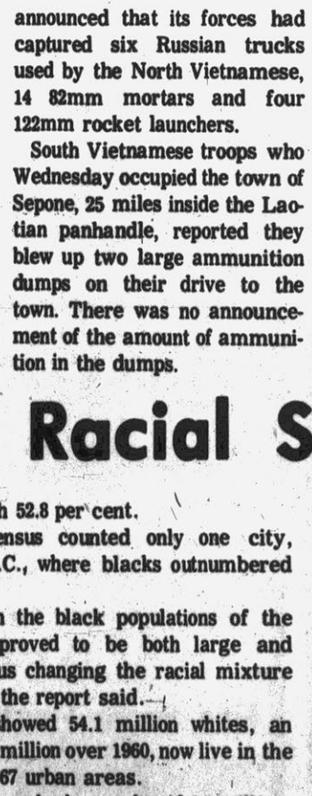

The Marines remained aboard the ships, ready for a landing to reinforce U.S. and South Vietnamese troops should the Communists launch an offensive with elements of three North Vietnamese divisions believed to be within striking distance of the DMZ.

Nine thousand U.S. troops that normally operate along the DMZ were moved west to the Laotian border last week to act as a blocking force for the 10,000 South Vietnamese troops that have crossed into Laos in a campaign to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail. Another 3,000 to 5,000 South Vietnamese troops were shifted to the east this week, to protect the eastern border of the DMZ.

The 3rd Marine Division once patrolled the rugged mountainous jungle below the buffer zone. It was withdrawn from Vietnam in November 1969.

In the Laotian operation, South Vietnamese headquarters announced that its forces had captured six Russian trucks used by the North Vietnamese, 14 82mm mortars and four 122mm rocket launchers.

South Vietnamese troops who Wednesday occupied the town of Sepone, 25 miles inside the Laotian panhandle, reported they blew up two large ammunition dumps on their drive to the town. There was no announcement of the amount of ammunition in the dumps.

Would Curtail Permits

RALEIGH (AP) — A Gaston County legislator says he does not think that just because a town puts in ABC liquor stores, restaurants in dry areas outside the town should be given brown bagging permits.

"That allows the people of a municipality to vote liquor on the people of a dry county," said Rep. Jack Rhyne, D-Gaston. He introduced a bill Wednesday to keep municipal ABC boards from issuing brown bagging permits to restaurants outside the towns.

"This is the way the wets have bit and chewed until there is no consideration given to the drys any longer," said Rhyne.

Rep. Robert O'Dell Payne, R-Guilford, sponsored a bill to exempt from state income taxes the retirement pay of former military personnel.

Payne said he favored the exemption, which would cost the state $2.2 million a year, because it would lure more military personnel to retire in North Carolina.

Another bill introduced in the House would set aside sales tax revenues from sale and rental of aircraft and firm aircraft fuel and replacement parts to assist in airport development in the state.

Rep. Daniel T. Lilley, D-Lenoir, who sponsored the bill, estimated it would divert from $475,000 to $500,000 a year to airport development.

Meanwhile, the state Department of Mental Health asked the Joint Appropriations Committee to approve $40 million more to care for the mentally ill during the next two fiscal years. The money would be in addition to $143 million recommended by Gov. Bob Scott and the Advisory Budget Commission to operate the mental health program during the next two fiscal years.

KY QUOTED

NEW YORK (AP) — South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky was quoted in the New York Times today as saying that South Vietnam's drive into Laos would be repeated during next year's dry season.

Exclusive

RALEIGH (AP) — The Wednesday meeting of the joint Senate-House finance subcommittee might have been titled "I Am Furious (Odom)."

That's exactly what Rep. Mary Odom, D-Scotland, said she was after she was asked to leave the meeting of the committee discussing proposals for a new sales tax.

The goings-on behind the closed doors, according to the subcommittee chairman, was not for adults or legislators only — it was exclusively for subcommittee members and their invited guests.

The invited guests included Ivie Clayton, state revenue commissioner, and Myron Banks, assistant attorney general.

This was the second meeting of the joint finance group and the second meeting to be closed. Mrs. Odom told reporters that she attended the meeting only "to see what it should be closed."

Woman Seeking Council Office

The second candidate and the first woman candidate for City Council has filed for the 1971 municipal elections. Mrs. Velma Nichols Cannon, a Greenville born housewife, has made her bid for one of the six City Council seats.

A petite red-haired housewife, Mrs. Cannon is employed by DuPont in the manufacturing division, where she has been employed for the past 17 years.

MRS. VELMA CANNON

She is the wife of Leo Cannon, and the mother of two sons. The oldest, Leo. Jr., is serving with the Air Force in England. Her younger son, Donald, is a student at Aycock Jr. High School.

Mrs. Cannon's great love is sports. She commented that raising two boys and being involved in their activities naturally gave her a bent for sports, and she now devotes much of her spare time to bowling. Mrs. Cannon is president of the Greenville Women's Bowling Association.

Daughter of Mrs. Nannie Nichols of Greenville, Mrs. Cannon attends Calvary Baptist Church and is a member of the Women of The Moose. She noted this is the first time she has sought a public office.

Accreditation Not Expected In ECU Report

RALEIGH — Gov. Scott told a news conference here yesterday that accreditation of a Medical School at East Carolina University had not been expected in a Liaison Committee report which was released last week.

A reporter asked the governor about Dr. Leo Jenkins' statement that he had reasonable assurance of accreditation for the school once funding for its operation is available.

"Well, he told me the same thing," the governor replied. "The report indicated the list of things that the school was doing and the state was doing showed a willingness and committment on the part of the state to move in this direction.

"They pointed up obvious needs that had not yet been met.

"The mechanics of the way accreditation is achieved is such that we couldn't really expect accreditation at this time. This just isn't done. It wasn't the purpose of the report.

"Accrediation can only come when a team visits the school right before the first students are enrolled. That's the time when you get provisional accreditation.

"This was just a visiting team to look at what was being done, and to say: 'Well, this is good. You have to do more here.'

"Really I view it more as a guidance on what still has to be done."

The governor stated that the report pointed out that the timetable was a little optimistic in terms of enrollment of students for the fall of 1971. "And I would agree."

He continued. "I've never felt — and I told Dr. Jenkins so — I've never felt they could move that fast. I didn't think things could work that fast."

The governor said he had no committment to a medical school at East Carolina University or any other site "and certainly, in respect to the program at ECU will not make any committment until such time as we receive the recommendations of the State Board of Higher Education.

"I said two or more years ago in various speeches the manpower needs and health needs are increasing for more doctors and nurses.

"I felt like down the road there was a need for increased facilities.

"This may very well take the form of another medical school. But you understand that the proposal at ECU will not graduate doctors. It will just give them two years training and then they go on to some other school."

Pre-School Census Will Get Underway February 15

Census taking for pre-school children living in Greenville gets underway Monday, February 15 and continues through February. The purpose of the survey, as stated by school administration officials, is to determine the number of pre-school children who will be enrolled in kindergarten and in first grade in the Greenville City schools next year.

Parents are being asked to provide school officials with necessary preliminary information in order that a letter with dates and places where pre-school child orientation-registration conferences are to be held can be sent to parents.

Children now in school will be given pre-school census forms to take home to their parents, to neighbors and to friends. The object of the wide distribution is to insure that parents of all pre-school children get the information on this requirement.

Any parent with a pre-school child who does not receive a form from a school child is asked to contact one of the elementary schools during the February 15 through February 28 period.

Two separate sheets have been prepared for distribution. A yellow sheet, entitled "Early Childhood Education Census Sheet" is for use of parents who have a child who will be five years old on or before October 15, 1971 or a six-year old for whom a need is indicated for a kindergarten program prior to going into the first grade.

The white sheet is for listing basic information on children who will be six years old on or before October 15, 1971, and who will be entering the first grade.

School officials pointed out these sheets are a census form only and do not constitute registration of the child for the 1971-72 school year. These forms are to be turned back in to any of the elementary schools after being completed or taken or sent to the Greenville City School office at 431 West Fifth Street.

Dates and places for orientation-registration conferences will be announced at a later date.

The cooperation of all parents is being sought in efforts to complete the pre-school surveys at the earliest possible date so that school officials can insure an early registration for all children who will be attending kindergarten or the first grade in the coming school year.

Census Shows Racial Separation Accelerating

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Census profile shows the socially explosive trend toward racial separation accelerated in the nation's largest urban areas during the last decade, with no letup evident for the future.

The dramatic increase toward increasigly white-dominated suburbs ringing black inner cities was noted in figures released Wednesday concerning the nation's 67 largest metropolitan areas.

Four central cities wound up the 1960s with populations more than half black—Washington, D.C., with 71.1 per cent Negro, Atlanta with 51.3 per cent, Newark, N.J., with 54.2 per cent, and Gary, Ind., with 52.8 per cent.

The 1960 Census counted only one city, Washington, D.C., where blacks outnumbered whites.

"Increases in the black populations of the central cities proved to be both large and widespread, thus changing the racial mixture substantially," the report said.

The report showed 54.1 million whites, an increase of 12.4 million over 1960, now live in the suburbs of the 67 urban areas.

Negroes in the suburbs numbered 2.5 million, an increase of only 762,000 over 10 years ago for a gain of three-tenths of one per cent.

At the same time, the number of blacks in the core cities climbed 3.4 million to a total of 12.5 million. The white population of the central cities dropped by 2.5 million to 39.8 million.

The continued growth of the urban areas along racial lines was cited two years ago by the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence as a dangerous social trend.

"The poverty and social isolation of minority groups in central cities is the single most serious problem of the American City today," the report said.

In 1968, the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders said the flight of more affluent whites to the suburbs create a fourfold dilemma for the core cities.

While fewer tax dollars come in, it said, more tax dollars are required to meet the needs of expanding lower income groups. But, it said, each tax dollar buys less because of increasing costs, causing citizen unrest.

The Census report showed that seven other central cities have Negro populations surpassing 40 per cent.

They are Detroit, with 43.7 per cent black; St. Louis, 40.9 per cent; Baltimore, 46.4 per cent; New Orleans, 45 per cent; Wilmington, Del., 43.6 per cent; Birmingham, Ala., 42 per cent; and Richmond, Va., 42 per cent.

In Chicago, the white population of the inner city dropped by more than 500,000. In Detroit, it fell by about 345,000, in St. Louis 165,000 and Newark, 98,000.

MR. AND MRS. VANCE BRILEY JR.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Vance Briley Jr. of Greenville celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home Sunday afternoon.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Nina R. Helms of Norfolk, Va. Guests were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Willie V. Briley of Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Edwards of Belhaven and Miss Sharon Briley of the home, children of the honored couple.

The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of gladioli and mums with greenery. Similar arrangements were used as decorations throughout the house.

Punch was poured by Mrs. Lillian Gurganus of Williamston. After the first slice of cake was cut by the couple, Mrs. Pauline Newton of Greenville served the cake. Mrs. Helms, Mrs. Gurganus and Mrs. Newton are sisters of Mrs. Briley.

The honored couple said goodbyes to the guests.

Already There, Honeymoon There

TORREMOLINOS, Spain (WNS) — It took only three hours for Margaret Arrowsmith, 24, to win a husband when she came here for vacation. At a discotheque she danced with John Hewitt, 28, who complained that she was argumentative and as bossy as a wife. "Then I dare you to marry me," said Margaret, and John took the dare. Their first post-wedding argument: Maggie wants to go to Switzerland on honeymoon, but her English husband points out that they are already on vacation in Spain.

Fixed Dates Always A Jinx For Her

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: Please say something about married men on the prowl who lie about their marital status.

Speaking for myself and half a dozen of my friends [all widows, divorcees and unmarrieds, fairly attractive and under 40] we don't want to get involved with married men. But what can we do when coworkers, customers, salesmen, etc. introduce us to a "nice, eligible man," only to find out after three or four dates that this rat has a wife and family in the suburbs?

Does an unmarried woman have to turn into a private investigator before accepting a date with a man who poses as a nice, eligible bachelor?

So what should we do about these rats?

HOODWINKED

DEAR HOODWINKED: Which rats? The ones who introduce married men as "nice, eligible bachelors"? Or the married men who try to pull a fast one? The only protection a girl has against being "hoodwinked," is to be a little more fussy about whom she dates.

A good rule to follow: Never accept a fixed up date unless you know you can trust the fixer-upper.

DEAR ABBY: I could love you for your answer to "In Need of Sympathy," the woman who was worn out from having nursed a sick husband for so many months. She resented being asked constantly, "How is your husband?" She wrote to you saying she wished someone would ask her how she was. So you asked her how she was.

That reminds me of the two old friends, Manny and Max, who hadn't seen each other for 20 years. When they met again, the first thing Manny asked Max was, "How's business?"

Max replied, "Is that the way to greet an old friend after 20 years? Why don't you ask me how my health is?"

Manny said, "I'm sorry, Max. How's your health?"

Max answered, "Don't ask." CORDIALLY, SOL

DEAR SOL: You bring back memories. My father used to tell that story 35 years ago.

DEAR ABBY: We were interested in the letter from the waitress in Dover, Del., who complained that customers sometimes undertip. She mentioned that her regular wage was 75 cents per hour. Perhaps she would be interested to know that employes of restaurants with sales of $250,000 or more a year are protected by the federal minimum wage law.

The law requires that restaurant employes, including tipped employes, receive a minimum hourly wage of $1.60.

The $1.60 minimum may be a combination of both wages and tips. However, not less than 50 per cent must be regular wages paid by the employer. If tips don't amount to half the minimum wage, the employer must make up the difference.

The Wage and Hour Division in Dover will be happy to provide her with further information about minimum wage provisions that concern hotel, motel, restaurant and food service employes.

Please tell your readers that there are Wage and Hour Divisions in 350 cities, including Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, to answer questions and provide information on minimum wage, equal pay, overtime pay, child labor, wage garnishment and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act.

FIGURAMA MENU-MAKING

By Mary Sue Miller

(This is the fourth in a series of special articles on reducing by spring fashion time.)

It is possible to reduce by following a set of readymade diet menus. But not probable. You soon become bored with repetitious fare and begin to make substitutions. Then, unless you understand calorie and nutritional values, you obviously could make a shambles of your program. By the same token, how could you hope to fare at meals taken away from home?

Learning to plan your own diet menus is not difficult. There are only two main rules: 1. Your daily intake must not exceed 1,350 calories or fall below 1,200 calories. 2. All menus must contain a correct balance of nutrients for the good of your hair, skin and health. Minimum daily requirements follow:

- Slice of bread, portion of cereal or equivalents.
- Pat of butter or margarine, or equivalent in oils.
- Pint skim milk or substitute like buttermilk, cottage cheese, yogurt.
- Eggs—at least three weekly.
- Serving fresh, stewed or canned fruit.
- Cup fruit or vegetable juice.
- Potato, rice, corn, lima beans—three times weekly.
- Large portion of green leafy or yellow vegetables.
- Raw vegetables—lettuce, carrots, radishes.
- Two servings of meat, fish or fowl.
- Very limited sweets.

Special Tips for Teens. The Figurama diet is safe for you to follow when you add 2 slices whole-grain bread, 1 pint whole milk; 1 serving meat for a daily calorie total of 2200.

Spot Trimmer for Tummy. Sit on floor, legs together and hands braced behind back. Pointing toes, slowly raise legs 6" off floor, fling wide apart, lower 2", bring together and return to floor. Ten repeats.

Tomorrow: Lasting Loveliness.

Viennese Pastries Feature Walnuts

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Some of the most delicious pastries come from Vienna. And one of the most interesting of the pastry recipes uses yeast, but in an easy manner. No rising time is needed. As soon as the yeast dough is mixed, it is rolled out and filled.

What a delicious filling! It's a combination of walnuts, apricot jam and sugar. The walnuts are finely chopped so the filling stays together well. The flavor of the walnuts and the apricot jam is most harmonious.

Whether you buy shelled walnuts in a bag or a vacuum can, after you have opened the container store any nuts left over in a tightly covered jar in the refrigerator to retain their freshness. If you buy walnuts in the shell, crack them and store the meats in the refrigerator the same way.

VIENNESE WALNUT CRESCENTS

Walnut Filling, see recipe
1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
¼ teaspoon granulated sugar
21-3rd cups sifted flour
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
2 1-3rd cups sifted flour
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup (two ¼-pound sticks) butter
3 egg yolks 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Powered confectioners' sugar, if desired

Prepare Walnut Filling.

In a cup dissolve the yeast in the water along with the ¼ teaspoon granulated sugar; set aside.

Blender cut in the butter until particles are small.

In a small mixing bowl beat egg yolks lightly; add the yeast mixture and lemon rind; stir into flour mixture.

Divide dough into thirds. Roll each piece to a 12 by 9 inch rectangle. Cut each rectangle into 3-inch squares. Spread a generous half-tablespoon of the Walnut Filling on each square; roll cornerwise to enclose Filling.

Place on ungreased cookie sheets, a couple of inches apart, shaping ends slightly to resemble crescents.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden-brown—about 12 to 15 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool. If used, sprinkle with powdered confectioners' sugar. Store, between layers of wax paper, in a tightly covered tin box.

Makes about 3 dozen.

WALNUT FILLING

½ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons water
1-3rd cup apricot jam
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups walnuts, finely chopped

Into a small saucepan turn the sugar and water; heat, stirring, until sugar dissolves. Remove from heat. Stir in the apricot jam and salt. Add the walnuts and mix well. Use as directed in Viennese Walnut Crescents recipe.

Never put pins through a heating pad or blanket. Pins can short circuit the heating coils or break them.

Soft Touch For Soccer Players

"All that they usually need is a sponge-down and some feminine sympathy," said the pretty medical student. "They come around faster than ever now that I'm on the job." The players, she adds, never get fresh. After all, her husband Ian is the team's fullback.

Watching, Waiting On Laos

A gathering storm in Congress over the South Vietnamese move into southern Laos seems to have subsided to be replaced by an attitude of watchful waiting.

As the troops massed at the border a chorus of voices was raised among Congressmen expressing concern that U. S. troops might cross the border with the South Vietnamese. So far as can be determined the American ground troops stayed behind as the action got underway and this helped ease the criticism of the mission.

The object of the attack is to cut the Ho Chi Mihn trail, the supply line which has for so long served Communist forces operating in South Vietnam. Constant bombing for years has failed to deter the supplies moving down this network of supply lines, so finally it was decided to cut it with a ground action.

So far the operation appears to have been successful with South Vietnamese armored columns reported driving across the Ho Chi Mihn trail in Southern Laos. There were also reports of sizable ammunition caches being swept up in the big operation.

Every operation of this nature carries with it the risk of spreading the war which has for so long raged on in Southeast Asia. On the other hand it is obvious that if the operation is successful and the supply line is disrupted, then the withdrawal of American ground forces from Vietnam can proceed unhampered.

The most encouraging thing to us about the maneuver so far is the obvious increased effectiveness of South Vietnamese forces in successfully carrying out their own military operation. The South Vietnamese have similarly shown an increased military effectiveness in Cambodia.

Since the successful withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam depends so greatly on the South Veitnam's army's ability to take over the full fighting role, their success in the Laos operation is highly significant to us.

There is increasing evidence that South Vietman is at last in a position to defend itself, with only material aid from the United States. This could mean speeded up withdrawal of American forces from Southeast Asia.

Job Assigned A Formidable

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — "North Carolina can afford what it decides it wants to buy for the education of its children."

The decision for the 1971-73 biennium, added Dr. Craig Phillips, ought to embrace a 10-month term for teachers to improve quality of classroom instruction, prompt extension of public kindergarten, innovative occupational training in the middle grades.

The package has a $200 million-plus price tag, beyond recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission.

It is up to Dr. Phillips, as state superintendent of public instruction, to persuade the General Assembly that it is a package the state can afford and must buy.

That's a formidable assignment, taking into account the additional revenues which would be required and the no-new-taxes mood which seems to prevail in the legislature.

Committed and Confident

Dr. Phillips is committed to the cause, and confident that sentiment can be awakened to shoulder the costs for improved schools.

"If enough people really understand what the needs are today and the urgency to meet them, they will let their support be known to their elected representatives and those who make the decisions will go beyond the budget recommendations," he predicted.

His intention is to help them understand. Already, he has made speeches out in the state explaining the case for strengthened school support, and urging contacts with legislators. The message must be not only the need for the programs, he advised, but the willingness to pay for them.

Dr. Phillips and the State Board of Education put before the Advisory Budget Commission requests for some $295 million in new money for the public schools under the 'B' budget (new and expanded programs). The recommended budget trimmed that to about $80 million.

This does not include increases in the 'A' budget which provides for present programs at present levels of service. Overall, the outlay for public schools in the next two fiscal years is set at $1,095,000,000 (B) in the recommended budget.

Hearing Next Week

An important first round in the effort to restore the 'B' budget cuts comes next week at a hearing before the Joint Appropriations Committee on Thursday, February 18.

Priorities which Dr. Phillips will single out include:

Ten-month employment for teachers at a cost of $61.3 million. This would extend the present 9¼ months of employment by 20 working days. "For the first time, teachers would have time to plan ahead, to work with individual pupils, in-service training, curriculum development and other things which would improve dramatically what happens in the classroom," Dr. Phillips said.

It also would boost teacher income for the period by 8 per cent. Coupled with the 5 per cent raise for each fiscal year of the biennium recommended in the budget, that would give teachers an effective increase in income of 13 per cent the first year and 18 per cent the second.

Extending public kindergartens to one-fourth the total system, costing $21 million. The recommended budget provides only $2 million to expand the pilot kindergarten program launched by the 1969 legislature, Dr. Phillips noted.

Kindergarten Expansion

"The value of kindergarten training has been carefully demonstrated," he said. "It is crucial that we proceed as rapidly as possible to make its benefits available to all five-year-olds." The request, he said, would put a public kindergarten in each county and perhaps in every school unit of the state.

Expand and improve occupational education programs, costing $21 million. Here again, Dr. Phillips said, model programs have shown clearly the potential for an innovative approach. Hands-on experience for young people in middle grades promises to better equip them for jobs after high school, to cure classroom boredom as a cause for dropping out, and to expand the range of skills they can develop, he explained.

The 1969 legislature appropriated $3 million for occupational training programs. The budget commission recommended for the coming biennium $8 million, one-fifth the amount requested.

These and other requests "simply must be reviewed," Phillips insisted. "These are basic and urgent needs which just cannot wait two more years."

Lunar Eclipse Doesn't See Much Excitement

In contrast to the solar eclipse of last spring, the lunar eclipse early Wednesday morning failed to create a stir locally.

Perhaps it is because we had so recently seen one of Nature's greatest spectaculars, or possibly the moon holds less fascination for us now that Man had set foot upon it; nevertheless we heard few reports on people staying up to see the lunar show.

Lunar eclipses are far more common than solar eclipses and this may take the edge off the event. However, it is certain that the moon is a less mysterious place to us now that we have actually seen it close up through pictures furnished by our astronauts.

Burney Packs A Big Wallop

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — State Sen. John Burney Jr. of Wilmington was relaxing on his couch the Sunday night before the North Carolina General Assembly opened on Wednesday, when his telephone rang.

"Senator John," the caller said, "this is Pat Taylor."

Pat Taylor, of course, is the lieutenant governor of North Carolina and he was in the process of handing out committee appointments for the current legislature. Two of those appointments — chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee — are choice political plums.

"Senator," Lt. Gov. Taylor said, "I want you to chair the Senate Finance Committee."

What else, if anything, was said between Taylor and Burney about that appointment isn't known — speculation started immediately around the capitol that Taylor had a commitment from Burney concerning the 1972 gubernatorial race, which Taylor will be in.

Sen. Burney is one of those men who has mighty political value to any man running for Governor of North Carolina. He's a Wilmington native and a lawyer. He's a big man, his dark hair graying around the temples, and he can command rapt attention when he rises to his feet in a crowded Senate chamber to make a talk. No question about it, John Burney Jr. packs political wallop, especially in the East. Down there his friends call him, Big John.

Did Sen. Burney give Taylor a commitment for 1972? Big John didn't especially like the question.

"I gave Pat no commitment," Sen. Burney said. "Pat's too much of a gentleman to ask for anything like that and he's got too much sense to do it. I understand that a lot of people wanted to be Finance Chairman but I wanted Appropriations."

Sen. Burney talks only reluctantly about the Governor's race in '72 and where his support will go. Another man in the Senate is running in the big race, Sen. Skipper Bowles of Greensboro, and as Sen. Burney says: "I've got to work with Pat Taylor and Sen. Bowles. I'd hate to say now who I'd support. It looks to me like someone is going to have to stay out of the Governor's campaign, to make sure the Democratic Party could be united in the general election."

Who Is 'Owed' A Living?

SACRAMENTO — Roughly 25,000 abortions were performed at public expense last year under California's lavish Medi-Cal program. The abortions cost the taxpayers $450 apiece. And at least 6,000 of these "free" operations were performed on women who probably had incomes adequate to pay the cost themselves.

That is a swindle rate of almost 25 percent. The figures have startled California legislators who recently turned up the facts in an investigation of Medi-Cal abuses, but no one ought to be greatly surprised. This is the old something-for-nothing syndrome in action; it is a manifestation of the larcenous tendency in men — and women — to git while the gittin' is good.

The getting has been marvelously good under California's system. In an outburst of generosity five years ago, the State legislature elected to authorize a glittering profusion of benefits for recipients of public assistance and for medically indigent persons. When the 1965 act was passed, it was estimated that one out of every 15 Californians might qualify for medical care.

Today one out of nine Californians carries a Medi-Cal card. One problem is that an unknown, but substantial number of the card-carrying eligibles are "Californians" only by tenous definition. By court decree, a residence requirement no longer can be enforced. Legislators are convinced that many of last year's abortions were obtained by young women from other States who came to California on a two-week vacation, got themselves on the welfare rolls, and proceeded to get tanned and aborted before going back home. The suntans, at least, were free.

In the current fiscal year, some 2.4 million persons will share in Medi-Cal benefits amounting to more than a billion dollars. Their benefits spread across the board. Governor Reagan makes the flat assertion that no private health plan in the nation provides for its paying participants the same goodies that California provides its free-loaders. The Sacramento Union, after a painstaking study last fall, estimated that the ordinary citizen would have to pay $2,000 a year in premiums to obtain the Medi-Cal services

Med School Hopes

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The accreditation study team report on the prospects for East Carolina University's medical school plans contains reasons for both hope and doubts.

On the positive side of the picture, ECU's proposed two-year medical school has received "reasonable assurances" it would receive provisional accreditation if adequate funding is made available.

A lack of guaranteed funding was listed as the reason for turning down immediate accreditation for the proposed medical school. But while this was no reason for dismay, the school's officials must cast about for future funds to have available if and when the accreditation is provided.

East Carolina University had requested funds for an operating budget for its medical school during the biennium starting July 1, but the school was omitted from the proposed state budget presented to the General Assembly by Gov. Scott. Scott, however, promised a review.

Also cited on the negative side, by the report, was the lack of departmental heads for the proposed school. But overall, the report noted the progress made in the last few years toward laying the groundwork for a school of medicine, particularly by the General Assembly and the ECU administration.

Dr. Leo Jenkins is looking to 1972 for the necessary funding to get the school started. The survey team had other favorable comments on the school's prospects. It cited the attractive interim facilities in a new science building, the adequate qualifications of staff members now in residence and the "impressive" preparations for a school.

The survey team feels a sufficient number of qualified student applicants can be obtained for the school of the modest size contemplated, even recognizing plans of the other North Carolina medical schools to increase their enrollments. The accreditation team also found the shortage of physicians in eastern North Carolina severe, and it felt the establishment of a medical school at East Carolina University "may be expected to contribute to alleviating this shortage."

The next move, it would seem, is up to the General Assembly. Sen. John Henley, chairman of the State Senate Appropriations Committee, says his group will welcome any requests from ECU. But his counterpart in the House, Rep. Kenneth Royall Jr., offered no comment on his own committee's views on the funding matter.

At the present time, the situation is pretty much as it was before the accreditation team report, except for the added incentive for the school leaders to seek adequate funding in the hopes that the accreditation necessary for the school's opening will be forthcoming.

Menus Minus 'Posh'

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

LONDON (AP) — Shakespeare's rose by any other name might smell as sweet, but some of the names that British waitresses have for the day's delecacies can put a visiting chap off his feed for weeks.

The menu of any semiposh place may glitter with Continental elegance—words like "entremets" and "farinaceous" and "legumes varies" — but such pretentions vanish once the little lady with the pad and pencil puts in an appearance.

"Are you taking the set, Luv?" she briskly inquires, pencil poised truculently over the bill of fare.

The set is the day's set menu, the table d'hote from which there is no textual deviation without paying the price.

"Luv" is a unisex form of address, more informal than sir or madame and a trifle less intime than "ducks."

Adventures in living language really begin when the customer strikes out for himself into the columns of a la carte, or what the waitress dismisses as "not on the set."

Steaks, for instance, are usually available in two cuts: "rump" or "fillet," the later is invariably pronounced to rhyme with "swill it." They come under the generic heading of grills, as in the accusatory question, "are you having a grill?"

Even so, they sound more appetizing than "bangers and mash," which are sausages and mashed potetoes, or "boiled gammon," which is neither fish nor fowl but ordinary, everyday ham; or steak and kidney pie.

Those not having a grill might be inclined toward "a fry," sometimes called "a fry up": fried bacon, ham or sausage—oops bangers—served with eggs any style, and, in the Midlands, with "drippings," fat left in the refrigerator from yesterday's roast and spread on bread.

"Now what about a veg, Luv?"

Strength For Today

INWARDNESS

The only genuine goodness in the world is goodness of heart. Many people ponder the career of Jesus of Nazareth, whose life ended in the torturing experience of crucifixion, and they conclude that this Man was great, wise, loving — but mistaken. It took the resurrection to convince, first, his disciples, and later, many of his generation, that he was what he claimed to be. His denunciation of the spiritual leaders of his day was that their religion was external. They prayed to be seen of men. The trumpets sounded and congratulations poured in from all sides when one of these religious leaders made a big contribution to the church.

Jesus practiced the religion of his people but insisted that true inwardness of heart was absolutely essential. He commended the publican (tax collectors notorious for their cruelty). One of them beat his breast and cried out "God be merciful to me a sinner." Jesus invited himself to be a guest of Zaccheus, a publican, and the life of the publican was transformed. It is believed that the Apostle Matthew, who wrote the Gospel which bears his name, was a publican. Jesus found Matthew in his office (at the receipt of custom) (Matthew 9:9; Mark 2:14; Matthew 5:27). One of the chief accusations made by the opponents of Jesus was that he went about with the wrong kind of people. The rich and influential would have been glad to have him as a dinner guest, and sometimes they did. But for the most part Jesus went about with what his contemporaries would call the scum of the earth.

Inwardness. It alone has value.

'Recycling' Is A Magic Word

By ELMER ROESSNER

There's a new thrust in the campaign to save the ecology. It's toward making use of waste materials. "Recycling" is the key word.

After all, it's the American way. Under the free enterprise system, the best way to get anything done is to find a profit in it. Would we have landed men on the moon if there weren't billions of dollars in contracts, wages and salaries behind it?

By-products have long been a big factor in American business. Many companies profit more on by-products than they do on their major product. And by-products are usually the utilization of what would otherwise be waste.

During World War II, Britishers were required to separate garbage into five lots: ash, paper, metal, pig food and waste. Most of it was recycled. The results were not profit but victories.

Bricks Without Straw

In recent weeks, more attention has been paid by recycling as a means of preventing the pollution of air, land and water.

Dr. P. E. D. Morgan of the Franklin Institute Research Laboratories told the American Chemical Society a few days ago that incinerator ashes can be made into good quality bricks, cement and concrete fill easily and inexpensively. Last year, $3 billion was spent to dispose of 150 million tons of urban garabage. Much could be saved, he said, if it were recycled instead of used for fill.

M. D. Schlesinger of the U.S. Bureau of Mines told the chemists pyrolosis, the heating of household and organic wastes in the absence of air, can be converted into gases, oils and solids which can be burned without pollution. He said pyrolosis costs about one - sixth as much as incineration and can be applied successfully to municipal waste, wood bark, scrap tires, plastic, hard rubber battery cases and sulfite liquor from paper manufacture.

Protein From Wastes

Other experiments show that proteins can be extracted from vegetable wastes and the remainder ploughed back into the soil for enrichment. The U.S. Department of Agriculture at Albany, Calif., has recovered 18 per cent protein from alfalfa stalks and returned the remaining cellulose to the ground.

A new proposal has been made. William Ruckelhaus, Mr. Nixon's ecological advisor, wants to use sewage to irrigate and fertilize soil. This would involve treating the sewage to sterilize it.

Recycling aluminum cans has been widely publicized. Crushed glass has been mixed with paving materials and can be used like sand in concrete.

Demountable Automobiles Urged By Cornell U.

Speaking of ecology, a group of professors at Cornell University have issued a report asking auto manufacturers to redesign autos so they can be dismantled more readily. If that were done, they opine, there would be far fewer abandoned autos in city streets and country lots, and the materials recycled.

The report suggested the elimination of zinc in door handles. It has no advantage, it said, and takes much time to remove. New fastening devices would also help, it said. It recommended devices that would shear if the car were dropped 20 feet. Some provision would be needed to prevent the car from disintegrating if it were hit from behind with that force, of course.

It also suggested that all dashboard writing be of copper and in a removable copper box to make copper recycling simple.

PTA Will Meet Sadie Saulter

The executive committee of the Sadie Saulter PTA has endorsed a presentation by school principal J. E. Spruill entitled "Agencies That Educate Your Child" tonight at 7:30 at the school.

This will be the regular PTA meeting for this month and parents are urged to attend.

Jenkins' Reception Entertained ECU Scholars

East Carolina University President and Mrs. Leo Jenkins entertained University academic scholars at a reception last night.

Greeting guests with Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins were Miss Ben Mary Bradley, president of League of University Scholars, Dr. and Mrs. John Ebbs, Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Derrick and Dr. Richard Todd.

Dr. Ebbs is advisor to the League of Scholars and Dr. Todd is chairman of the Scholarship and Financial Aid Committee.

Mrs. Gladys White, assistant professor in the School of Music, introduced academic scholars from the School of Music who entertained. They were:

Robert Beard, sophomore voice major from Richmond, Va., and David Faber, sophomore voice major from Charlotte, accompanied by Karen Register of Kinston at the piano, and Jeanette Dameron, senior flute major from Abingdon, Va., accompanied by Chris Ferrall, junior theory and composition major from Alexandria, Va.

Dr. Jenkins and Robert Boudreaux, director of student aid at ECU, awarded scholarships certificates to 40 outstanding students.

Assisting Mrs. Jenkins in serving refreshments were Dr. Hermine Carraway, Dr. Marjorie Harrison and Miss Carolyn Fulghum.

Arrangements of daisy mums and snapdragons accented the dining room table from which refreshments were served. Red carnations and white snapdragons adorned the piano in the living room where the entertainment was heard.

through private insurance.

A typical private plan, modest in scope, provides up to 70 days' hospitalization per year; often the policy holder is required to make some small co-payment himself. In California, Medi-Cal picks up the entire cost of unlimited hospital care.

Few private plans cover nursing home care. Medi-Cal provides such service, to the tune of 211 million this year.

Medi-Cal also picks up the entire cost of out-patient care, laboratory and X-ray bills, physician services, home health care and medical transportation. Recipients pay nothing whatever toward the cost of prescription drugs; the taxpayers put up $80 million a year instead.

The California program covers 100 percent of the cost for dentists, optometrists, chiropractors, podiatrists, special-duty nurses as required, dispensing opticians, prosthetic devices, psychologists, occupational therapists, physical therapists, speech therapists, hearing aids, durable medical equipment, and even Christian Science counselors.

By contrast, a typical Blue Cross contract covers only seven of Medi-Cal's 23 separate services, and requires some co-payment on six of these. The middle-income taxpayer, struggling to provide for his own family at his own expense, may be forgiven some resentment at the way things have worked out.

Reagan has asked the legislature to roll back the Medi-Cal program to what he calls the "Average Citizen Budget." He has yet to spell out the details, but presumably he will ask for tighter controls, benefit limits, and certain co-payment requirements. In one fashion or another, he is determined to cap the Medi-Cal gusher. Meanwhile, other States — and a benevolent Congress — might profitably ponder California's bitter experience with a do-gooding program, gone bad.

tween the braised celery and the sauteed cabbage, and she's apt to suggest "some luv'erly swedes and sprouts," which are turnips and brussels sprouts, a culinary curiosity that is flogged off in the swankiest London clubs as "good, honest British food."

At the end of every meal comes the question that haunts the calorie counters.

"Are you having a pud?" The word rhymes with "hood," rather than "mud," and designates any dessert from a "stodge," a pudding made with suet, to "stamed sultana," a sort of sponge cake, and "trifle," a combination of cake, pudding, custard and fruit drowned in cream.

Faulty Airliner Signal Repaired

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A light indicated the left landing wheel was not down and locked on an Eastern Airlines plane approaching Charlotte's Douglas Municipal Airport with 87 passengers aboard Wednesday.

But observation by the pilot with a periscope-like instrument and by the control tower with binoculars showed that landing gear looked okay.

The pilot was told to land. Emergency vehicles stood by prepared to spread foam in case of a belly landing.

It was a normal landing. The plane was checked before the flight resumed to Columbia, S.C., and Augusta, Ga., and the instrument panel light was found to be faulty.

Attorney General Robert Morgan. He realized that "many of Bob's friends" are encouraging him to run for Governor. Sen. Burney didn't say so in so many words, but it's clear enough that he would support Morgan if the Attorney General chooses to run for Governor.

If the gubernatorial race comes down to a campaign between Taylor and Bowles, it would appear safe to speculate that Sen. Burney would be with Taylor.

Big John Burney has observed politics and been involved with them for all of his life. His father was a district solicitor and a Superior Court judge.

And now, Sen. Burney carries much weight in the Tar Heel General Assembly. People watch him to see which way he's leaning on controversial matters — and Big John likes it that way.

Here's the way he's lining up on other matters of importance that will come before the legislature:

—Liquor-by-the-drink: "I'm going to vote for local option," Sen. Burney says, "so that we can dispose of it and let the people decide. I don't think it'll do all that much for my hometown of Wilmington. People come to Wilmington because we've got clean air, clean water and plenty of sunshine. They don't come to drink liquor."

—Medical School for East Carolina University: "The people at ECU have worked hard on this," he says, "and I'd be a fool to say what my feelings are now. I hear a lot of people up here who say they're against it. It doesn't seem to have the support that the school had when it applied for University status. I want to know myself where a man's going to school after he finished two years at ECU. I'm keeping an open mind on that."

—Annual sessions of the legislature: "I'm against it for right now. We can call ourselves into session if we need to be here. And the Governor can call us into session. We pass too many laws as it is. The people are pretty safe when we're not in session."

—About his own political career: "When a man loves politics and government like I do," Sen. Burney says, "you can't tell what he'll run for. It's the American way to want to improve yourself, to get to the top. I'll just watch the condition of the track."

And while Sen. Burney's watching the condition of the track, a lot of people will be watching Big John. Especially Pat Taylor and Skipper Bowles.

Can't Complete New Code For Mental Health

RALEIGH (AP) — There won't be a new state code of mental health for another two years, according to Mental Health Commissioner Eugene Hargrove.

Dr. Hargrove told a meeting of the state mental health board Wednesday that his department will be unable to complete the task of rewriting the code in time for approval by this session of the legislature.

Two proposals needing immediate attention, said Dr. Hargrove, will be complete in time for action by the general assembly. They are a request to broaden the current mental health admissions policy to include treatment facilities and a pilot program to study new funding mechanisms.

Rose High Stage Band Will Show Tri-State Competition Wares

Twenty high school boys are giving a full program of jazz in a concert of old favorites tonight at Rose High School at 8:00 p.m. at the Rose High Gym. Some rock favorites are also on their program.

The young musicians, all members of the J. H. Rose High School Stage Band, will perform under the baton of Tom Smith, Jr., band director.

Two of Duke Ellington's compositions — "Mood Indigo" and "Satin Doll" are on the program, as well as Leonard Bernstein's popular number "Tonight" from "West Side Story." One of the band's most performed numbers, "Light My Fire" also appears on the program.

Other favorites scheduled to be played include "Norwegian Wood," "Hugh," "Penthouse Serenade," "Peanut Vendor," and "Whatever Lola Wants," with the latter featuring a trombone quintet.

Two selections will feature instrumental soloists — "Ballad for Trumpet" with Chuck French, trombone; and "Rainy Sunday" with Harry Moore on the baritone saxaphone.

The concert is being given to raise funds for the Stage Band to compete in the Tri-State Stage Band Contest to be held in Winston-Salem in April.

Tickets are fifty cents for children and $1.00 for adults, and may be purchased at the door prior to beginning of the performance.

Money Gone But Purse Returned

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Mrs. Alice J. Stoller was quite upset when someone stole her purse from behind a counter at the paint store where she works.

The purse contained $29 in cash along with credit cards, driver's license, and other personal papers, she told police.

Later Ora Lawrence reported the theft of her purse at a furniture store where she is employed. She said it was taken from her desk and contained $25 cash, a driver's license, credit cards and other items.

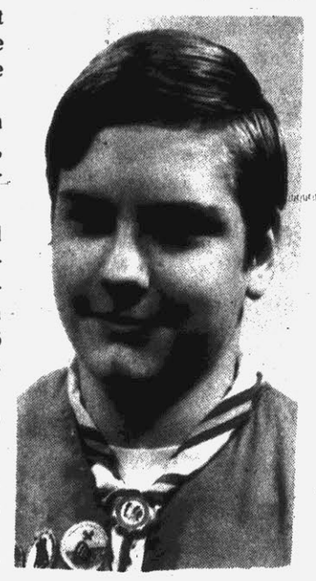

But another purse was left in its place.

Police examined the purse left at the store and surmised it was the one stolen from Mrs. Stoller. It was returned to her with everything intact except the money was gone. The Lawrence purse still is missing.

Give Awards At Scouts' Dinner

Local scout Billy Billica received his Eagle Award Monday night from Pitt District Chariman, Dr. Frank Saunders, at the annual Scout Week Troop 205 family night dinner.

Dr. Saunders told the more than 75 scouts and their families in attendance that less than 1.5 per cent of all boys entering scouting reach Eagle rank. He noted that the Monday night presentation was unusual in that it completed an all Eagle family of three sons and an Eagle Scout father.

BILLY BILLICA
Eagle badge

Billy, an eighth grader at E. B. Aycock Junior High School, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Billica. He has been involved in scouting for the past two and a half years.

The Eagle Scout has earned a total of 22 merit badges during his two and a half years and in addition to attending Camp Bonner for the past two seasons, he also attended the National Jamboree in Idaho last summer.

Billy is a member of the Order of the Arrow, the honor scout camping organization.

Other recent advancements recognized at the dinner included second class for Carl Thurber, John Coffman, Alan Jones and Wright Hooks; first class for Don Tucker; and Star rank for Jim Clement.

Tommy Manning was recognized for earning his "God and Country" award from the Red Oak Church as were Billy and Roger Billica who have received their "Religion in Life" award form the Unitarian Universalist Church.

District executive Robert Mosely presented a national camping award to committee chairman J. T. Manning in recognition of the troop's outdoor activity during the past year.

Mosely also commended on the honor accorded the troop in having two of its scouts, Tommy Manning and Roger Billica, selected to join the total of only eight scouts from the 20-county East Carolina Council going to the World Scout Jamboree in Japan this August.

Committee chairman J. T. Manning presented a certificate of appreciation to J. Marshall Joyner for his special assistance to the troop camping program.

Scouts and families of Troop 205, sponsored by Memorial Baptist Church, also reviewed slides of summer activities at the Herbert C. Bonner Scout Reservation, the Appalachian Trail hike taken by the troop in the Smocky Mountain National Park last summer, and of the Linville Gorge wilderness where the troop plans to go this June.

Scoutmaster Dr. J. E. Clement and assistant scoutmaster Dr. Billy Jones also discussed the troop program and activities with the assembled parents.

Junior assistant scoutmaster Roger Billica served as master of ceremonies for the program.

Taking Part In Workshop

Mrs. Carrie P. Oakley, coordinator of Med-Social Counselors for the Pitt County Schools system, will participate in a one-day workshop on venereal disease in Raleigh Friday.

Through a grant from Charles Pfizer and Co., Inc., the Department of Public Instruction and the State Board of Health are sponsoring the workshop for approximately 75 educators. Representatives from 40 local school units have been invited to participate.

Representatives were selected on the basis of interest in venereal disease education and ability to conduct similar sessions within their own school unit and community.

The workshop will be held from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. in the auditorium of the State Board of Health. Under the direction of the staff of the venereal disease section of the State Board of Health, participants will discuss case findings, symptoms, and teaching techniques involved in dealing with venereal disease in the schools.

In trying to fulfill his contract, the declarer is frequently confronted with a choice of strategies. Should he try to lead the opposition into making an error by means of some psychological maneuver, or should he fall back on a true play for the hand? South, in today's six spade contract, tried to outfox his opponents, but they proved to be too resourceful him.

West opened fire with the five of diamonds and East put up the jack to dislodge declarer's ace. To South, it appeared that in the absence of some highly favorable distribution in clubs, his best hope for success lay in persuading the opponents to open up that suit for him. He led a heart to the ace, therefore, and ruffed the heart return. Trumps were drawn in two rounds ending up in the dummy and the queen of hearts was trumped out. Having completed his stripping operations, he now exited with the ten of diamonds. If the defenders thought that he was out of diamonds, they might be persuaded to make a favorable return.

West carefully followed to declarer's diamond play with the three, permitting his partner to win the trick with the queen. East had been watching the spots closely and observing that his partner had led the five originally, he was quick to note that the four of diamonds was missing. Mentally assigning that card to the declarer, East exited with the deuce of diamonds. South was obliged to play the clubs himself and, eventually, he had to concede a trick in the suit.

The defender's alertness is certainly to be commended, but it is our opinion that declarer's approach was distinctly naive, inasmuch as he had a true endplay for his contract. After winning the diamond lead, he should draw trump immediately and then finesse the queen of hearts. When the finesse works, he can discard a diamond from his hand on the ace of hearts. The last heart is ruffed and, when South exits with ten of diamonds, he will now force the opponents to either open up the club suit or else give him a ruff-and-sluff. By the simple device of playing for split club honors, he can avoid losing a trick in the suit, and his slam will come home.

Ex-Jailbreak Artist Now Promoting Dental Reform

By MORRIS SHELTON
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The ex-jailbreak artist who led two Georgia prison breaks prior to World War II currently is planning to lead a demonstration aimed at sparking a national movement toward dental reform.

Forrest Turner, the one-time desperado who baffled authorities with a total of 11 escapes before he decided to change his ways, is stumping the state trying to get civic groups and other organizations to participate in a dental reform march at the State Capitol before the 1971 legislature ends.

Turner has been waging his own personal battle with dentists almost ever since he gave up trying to fight his way out of prison more than 20 years ago to take rehabilitation training in what would later become his profession—making false teeth.

Today, Turner contends that the price of a set of false teeth is "ridiculous" and beyond the financial means of most Americans—especially the poor.

He frankly admits he has on numerous occasions been guilty of breaking a Georgia law which prohibits making false teeth unless a licensed dentist takes the impressions for the set.

In the years following his release in 1949, the 56-year-old Turner, who is married and has two daughters, became recognized as a classic example of a rehabilitated ex-convict.

But his outspoken criticism of the dental profession has kept him in a running feud with Georgia's state dental organization.

Recently, Turner was fined $500 and given a suspended sentence for making a set of false teeth without having a dentist take the impression.

Turner left the court confrontation even more determined to carry out his crusade after the judge in the hearing challenged Turner to be "like Ralph Nader (and) expose some of the wrongs to the consumer."

Of his court encounter, Turner declares that, "Any man, including the Master Himself, would have violated that state law under the conditions that the man (who wanted him to make the dentures) approached me. He told me, Forrest, I just can't afford those ridiculous prices the dentists charge, and I can't return to my job until I get some teeth."

Turner blames his legal conflicts on dentists who are opposing his outspoken criticism of high prices for false teeth—both of which have been the major issues in Turner's vigorous but unsuccessful campaigns for the state legislature in 1968 and 1970.

"No dentist in this state makes teeth," Turner declared. "He sends them to a denturist who makes them for him for $14 to $25. The dentist, in turn, sells them to the patient for $250 up to $3,000."

Turner additionally charged the dental organization in Georgia attempts to cut off his business as a result of his outspoken criticism of the profession.

He contended that efforts were made to make him appear to be a "dope peddler" when agents confiscated some Novocain during the recent arrest.

The president of the Georgia Board of Dental Examiners, Dr. Harold Walvern, denies that Turner has been harassed and said that authorities keep Turner under surveillance because of "numerous complaints from the people he made dentures for."

Walvern also defended the price of false teeth, saying that "they generally sell for $150."

Turner, in an attempt to counter that estimate, asked a reporter to join him in a quick sidewalk poll on the costs of false teeth.

Of seven persons who were asked, one elderly man said he paid $300 for his uppers and lowers but eventually had to get another set because the original one didn't fit; two estimated the cost was between $300 and $400 for their plates; and another man said he was charged $520 for a partial plate.

Two persons didn't remember what they paid because the work had been performed more than ten years ago, and another man said his dental work cost $85 about 15 years ago.

Turner says that in England "you can get a full set of false teeth for $12, and it shouldn't cost much more than that in the UNited States."

More Effort To Develop Rural Areas Required

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Development of rural areas into industrial-residential communities requires more effort, more imagination and more money than similar developments in metropolitan areas.

Howard Roepke, president of the Illinois Development Council, said, despite this, information now indicates a higher industrial-growth rate in Illinois' non-metropolitan areas.

A professor of economic geography at the University of Illinois, Roepke estimates that about 13 per cent of Illinois workers in manufacturing are now living in non-metropolitan areas.

Roepke said major disadvantages facing rural communities include lack of facilities and lack of skills—or lack of identification of skills.

NSF Grant Will Finance Physics Institute Here

A grant of $57,832 from the National Science Foundation will finance an eight-week institute for secondary school physics teachers this summer at East Carolina University.

Dr. Robert L. Dough of the ECU Department of Science Education will administer the institute grant and an in-service program series throughout the 1971-72 academic year.

He directed a similar program last year, also funded by the NSF.

The purpose of the program is to prepare teachers to present physics within its cultural framework, by means of a multi-media presentation. The instructional program is based on Harvard Project Physics, a new national curriculum improvement project.

Asian History Symposium Set

Aspects of teaching Asian history in secondary schools will be the topic of the sixth annual East Carolina University Symposium on History and Social Studies, scheduled for Friday.

One hundred social studies teachers throughout North Carolina are expected to attend the all-day symposium, according to Dr. Hugh Wease of the ECU Department of History.

DR. BURTON BEERS

The symposium theme, "Perspectives and Problems of Asia," is in keeping with the new social studies curriculum in North Carolina schools, which emphasizes Asia and the Pacific Islands in seventh-and tenth-grade social studies classes.

Featured speaker for the event is Dr. Burton F. Beers, professor of history at NCSU-Raleigh. He will address the group on teaching Asian history in secondary schools and will lead a panel discussion among school officials on the subject.

Dr. Beers has traveled throughout the Orient and is the author of two books concerning East-West relations.

Other speakers include ECU faculty:

Dr. Robert Gowen, "Modern Asian History: The Search for Meaning;" Dr. Martin J. Kilcoyne, "The Chinese-Russian Dispute;" and Dr. Jung-Gun Kim, "Asia and the Nixon Doctrine."

Dr. Gowen and Dr. Kilcoyne are members of the history faculty, and Dr. Kim, political science.

Panel discussants are:

Sam A. Keel, Washington High School; Faye Creegan, Aycock Junior High School, Greenville; and Betty Bullard and John Ellington, state Department of Public Instruction.

Band Clinic

Band students from 40 eastern North Carolina schools will be on the East Carolina University campus this weekend, to participate in the annual ECU Band Clinic.

The young musicians will be organized into two bands: the Symphonic Band, conducted by Donald B. Adcock of NCSU-Raleigh, and the Concert Band, conducted by Robert Gaskins of Jacksonville, N. C.

The event, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Feb. 12-13, is sponsored by the N. C. Music Educators Conference and the ECU School of Music.

Recognition For ECU Soprano

Jacqueline Willis Rausch, soprano, senior voice student in the East Carolina University School of Music, received an honorable mention at the Metropolitan Opera's regional auditions last week.

The competition took place in Atlanta, Ga., on the evening of Feb. 5, before a select audience of approximately 500 guests.

ECU Cadets Enrich March Of Dimes

The March of Dimes is richer by almost $4,000 as a result of the successful Marchathon sponsored by the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) of East Carolina University.

In this 18th annual colorful Marchathon, about 100 cadets; their counterparts from the Angel Flight; and members of the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity of ECU, took part in the three-pronged collection drive to raise funds for the 1971 March of Dimes campaign, for a total of $3,900.

MARCHATHON . . . contributions amounting to $3,900 is presented to Pitt County March of Dimes Chairman J. H. Rose (center) by Marchathon Chairman AFROTC Cadet Hugh Cameron (right). Standing at left is AF Captain Gary Schaal, the 1971 campaign chairman of the March of Dimes drive.

One group took up their position in Kinston on Friday night; with two other groups covering Greenville and Farmville on Saturday. Delta Sigma Phi members were assigned the Farmville coverage this year.

"This group worked harder and more effectively that any group of young people I've ever known," J. H. Rose, Chairman of Pitt County March of Dimes commented. "I've never known any one who could equal their effort and concentration on the job. It's a joy to work with someone like these young people."

Cadet Hugh Cameron of the AFROTC was Marchathon Chairman for 1971. Cameron was in charge of details assigning collecting posts, for placement of drill teams, and for the multiple details involved in a project of this scope.

Campaign Chairman Air Force Captain Gary L. Schaal, a professor in the Aerospace Studies at ECU, expressed his gratitude for the hard work and dedication of all involved in the successful Marchathon drive completed last week-end. He noted the $3,900 topped by a large margin their goal of $2,800, and is about $300 above last year's $3,600 raised in the 17th annual Marchathon.

Captain Schaal mentioned too that additional funds have been raised and will be reported soon. This includes monies raised from the Jaycette sponsored "Coffee Day" in Greenville last Friday; a mother's march conducted by the Farmville Junior Women's League; and mail in contributions which will be coming in from solicitation through the public mail.

Money collected through the various activities of the current March of Dimes campaign will be used for prevention, research and for treatment of children with birth defects. It is estimated that 250,000 children are born in the U.S. each year with birth defects; in many instances serious ones.

Captain Schaal and Rose both expressed appreciation for the fine cooperation which has been given by merchants, civic groups, and above all, by individuals who through their contributions have made the drive to date a successful one.

NEW YORK (AP) — Now every night on Mondays and Wednesdays and Fridays, too, the classrooms and hallways in the Hunter College-Bellevue School of Nursing rumble with the deep resonant voices of student nurses who sport a sprinkling of mustaches and goatees and bald heads and who, in tot, could be a husky and muscular if overage football squad.

For these students are grown men, almost 100 of them, engaged in an innovative experiment with two main goals:

—To help overcome a critical, nationwide shortage of nurses.

—To train policemen and firemen to qualify as registered nurses—R.N.s—so they can have second careers after they retire as early as age 40, or later. Their new careers will pay well, be psychologically rewarding, and combat potential retirement boredom.

The project is proceeding with high enthusiasm of the student nurses despite some razzing still in firehouses and police stations, ranging from "when you gonna get your cap?", to ribaldry.

But since the program began last September that kind of derisive reaction is diminishing.

Fellow firemen and policemen are willingly trading duty hours to assist the 95 men and four women to attend 13 hours of evening classes each week. The program takes 2½ years, with Augusts off for vacation. Graduates can take state examinations to permit them to practice nursing.

The experiment began as an idea of Dr. Joseph A. Cimino, a young (37) physician, five years ago when he was serving on the medical retirement boards for the New York City Police and Fire departments. Cimino among other jobs now is an assistant administrator of the city's Environmental Protection Administration.

Long interested in public health and the increasing shortage of nurses and other medical personnel, he became impressed that men planning early retirement rarely considered jobs in the medical field.

When he proposed to individual firemen and policemen that they become nurses, "their first reaction was, 'Ah, that's just for women.'"

"But I argued that nursing is a profession offering very interesting challenges. Nurses are taking on more responsibility in coronary care and intensive care units, for example. They are actually practicing more medicine now. There is more electronics in medicine, and lots of opportunities for interesting jobs in hospitals, and in community health projects" such as TB programs, rehabilitation, drug clinics."

Nurses' salaries "are starting to catch up to where they should be," Cimino adds, and the men will have retired with half-pay as well. Further, they can pick their own field of interest in nursing, their own hours, and own locations

Girls who become nurses may marry within three to five years — "that's about the time from diploma to pregnancy"—and many do not return to nursing after their children are grown. If young men could be induced to become nurses—as Cimino and others hope—"one man could be the equal of 10 to 15 female nurses in terms of actual working years during his career."

With individual firemen and policemen becoming interested, and with authorities becoming interested, the program was developed jointly by the Hunter College-Bellevue School of Nursing and the Fire and Police departments. The Public Health Service's Division of Nursing is funding the experiment with more than $400,000 for two classes of 100 persons each. The second class will begin studies next September.

"It's really very good," says Joseph Machtel, 51, a policeman for more than 19 years and—like some of the others—a medic during World War II. "You get a different outlook on life, a chance to become a professional man. You learn a lot of things about the human body that surprise you, new things to learn since you last studied any medicine."

Machtel lives in Westbury, Long Island, about 20 miles from the school, and the commuting plus working full time and attending classes from 6 to 10 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays and from 5 to 10 on Fridays involves sacrifice, he says. A number of other men commute fair distance also.

Enthusiastic over the project, are Marguarite C. Holmes of the nursing school, and Miss Mary Tatten, R.N., who is project director. Both are impressed with the motivation of the men, who range in age from 28 to 57, with more than half in their 40's. They range in rank from patrolmen and firemen to police captain and fire marshal.

The men are launched into lectures and-or laboratory studies in sciences—including anatomy, physiology, chemistry, physics, and microbiology—psychology, sociology, fundamentals of nursing, and later in medical-surgical nursing, pediatric, obstetrical and psychiatric nursing, pharmacology, nutrition, epidemiology and other subjects.

Heavy though the schedule be, only one man has dropped out so far. And some 65 policemen and firemen have already signed up for the second course next fall.

Vigil Group Carrying On

For several months, the peaceful demonstrators gathering each Wednesday at noon in front of the Main Post Office numbered on the average from five to eight persons.

Yesterday, with the blessing of a bright day and prompted by new developments in the international scene, the number of those standing silent "vigilance for peace" increased fourfold, with approximately 30 people on hand during the traditional lunch hour gathering period.

Within the group, several of whom were holding signs lettered "peace", were elderly housewives, middle-aged matrons, and students, both male and female.

Two regulars, Mrs. Jerry Paul, a housewife and student representative George Holmes, are considered unofficial representatives of the two primary factions which habitually furnish the mainstay of regular attendees.

"The Laos situation is the reason for the larger number of persons on hand today," Mrs. Paul commented. "We are concerned about recent developments in that area."

Favor No New Schools

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Charlotte Chamber of Commerce decided Wednesday to drop support it had previously voiced for a new, state-supported medical school in the city.

The chamber directors said instead that the state should expand its support of the three existing medical schools before beginning a new one. The action meant it recommends no new medical school, such as the two-year one proposed for East Carolina University, should be built now.

The three medical schools now in the state are at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke University at Durham and Bowman Gray school at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem.

The Charlotte chamber directors said their decision was based on a study by some doctor members who found that a new medical school is expensive, takes at least 12 years to graduate its first class and would have difficulty getting a faculty. It added the best way to get more doctors in the state would be to give more money to the existing schools.

It said the number of graduates from the three could be 600 a year instead of the present 280.

In other action, the Charlotte chamber voted support for the charter which would consolidate the city and Mecklenburg County governments. Residents will vote on the charter in late March.

U.S. Urges All-Asia Peace Conference

PARIS (AP) — The United States renewed today its proposal for a new Indochina conference to settle the conflict there and rejected Communist charges that American forces have crossed into Laos.

U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce told the session of the Paris peace talks that Washington "continues to favor the neutrality of Laos" and the 1962 Geneva accords, which called for the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Laotian territory.

"A new Indochina conference as proposed by President Nixon could accomplish this objective," Bruce said.

Bruce told North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates: "I reject your false allegations and your gross distortion about our activities and intentions in regard to Laos ...

"I find it incomprehensible that you could dwell today at such length on Laos without once mentioning the root cause of the conflict there. I refer of course to the long standing and illegal presence of large numbers of North Vietnamese troops in Laos and to your continued use of Laotian territory to support your aggression throughout Indochina."

Bruce said that the United States is assisting South Vietnamese forces in Laos "by providing whatever air power is required to supplement capabilities. American artillery support from positions in South Vietnam will also be available to these forces."

"No American ground combat forces or advisers will cross into Laos," he added.

The Viet Cong claimed that 10 battalions of U.S. infantry, artillery and armor were fighting inside Laos and more American forces were massed to enter the country.

Bucs Ink Star Quarterback

East Carolina University has added another outstanding football player to its fold, it was announced today.

The latest signing of Coach Sonny Randle is that of junior college quarterback Gary Wann of Orange, Calif.

Selected as a junior college All-American, Wann will be a candidate for the starting quarterback job this spring when drills open. "This will give us three outstanding quarterbacks to choose from," Randle said. He was referring, besides Wann, to last year's starter John Casazza, who practically rewrote the ECU record book, and to rising sophomore Carl Summrell.

At 6-3, 210-pounds, Wann brings in impressive credentials. He threw for 15 touchdowns and for 2,200 yards last year for Fullerton Junior College in Fullerton, Calif.

"He's as fine a thrower as there is on the West Coast," Randle said. "Casazza is still our number one quarterback, but the position will be up for grabs during the spring drills between the three. I feel like the one who gets the starting job will be made better because of the fine competition for the job."

Randle said he and East Carolina got a plug in California from University of California Coach Ray Willsey, who recommended the Bucs to Wann. (Wann, while in high school, signed a grant-in-aid with the University of Washington, then later decided to attend junior college. His signing with one Pacific Eight school, however, remains binding with the others, so California could not recruit him.)

"Gary is as fine a young man and gentleman as you would want to meet," Randle said. "He is very mature and is certain to be an asset to us both on and off the field."

Sign With The Pirates

East Carolina University announced today the signing of junior college All-American Gary Wann of California. He'll join the Bucs this spring as a quarterback. Two new incoming freshmen from the Tidewater area were signed last week, and are shown here. Joe Pulley (left) and Mike Jones, both outstanding players at Princess Anne High School, inked with the Bucs. Watching are ECU Coach Sonny Randle, standing right, and Princess Anne coach John Grady.

Fieldcrest Is Near To Title

Fieldcrest Mills can wrap up the Industrial Basketball League title Monday with a win over National Cash Register. Fieldcrest beat WNCT, 74-54, and National Cash Register downed State Highway, 51-46, in the key games last night. Wachovia ripped Vermont American, 102-16, in the other game.

Fieldcrest, now 11-1, holds a two game lead over NCR, 9-3, and a three-game lead over State Highway, 8-4. Out of the race are Wachovia, 6-6, WNCT, 2-10, and Vermont American, 0-12.

In the opener, State Highway edged out into a 23-21 lead at the end of the first half. But NCR came back in the second half and outscored the Highwaymen, 30-23, to take the victory.

Kelly Witherington led NCR with 26 points, while Smith Worthington had 21 for State Highway.

In the second game, Fieldcrest built up a 37-20 lead at the half and coasted home. They outscored WNCT, 37-34, in the final half.

Walter Claybrook tossed in 40 points to lead Fieldcrest, while Bill Stocks had 18 and Jimmy Carmon had 11. Ikey Arnold led WNCT with 14, with Dave Chadwich getting 11 and Gene Hudson scoring 10.

Finally, Wachovia rolled up a 57-8 advantage in the first half over hapless Vermont American. They did it again, outhitting them, 45-8.

Jim Smith had 29, Baggette had 28, Mryon Staton had 18 and Jerry Smith had 12 for Wachovia. Bunting had 12 for Vermont American.

Dukes, Rockets Claim Victories

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The way the Debonair Dukes and the Raiders of the Rockies are going they likely will be given serious consideration for college basketball's major post-season tournaments, the NCAA and the NIT.

The Debonair Dukes from Duquesne University in Pittsburgh won their 12th straight by defeating Providence 85-80 Wednesday night.

The Raiders of the Rockies, alias Denver University, beat the Air Force 58-52 for their ninth in a row, their longest winning streak in 21 years.

Gary Nelson, with 25 points, and Jarrett Durham, with 20, combined for 45 points to pace the nationally 12th-ranked Dukes over the Friars. Nelson made nine of nine free throws and Davis seven of eight from the charity line.

Unranked Denver, now victorious in 12 of 14 games after losing six of seven in December, was led by Dave Bustion with 17 points.

South Carolina and LaSalle, the only teams in The Associated Press Top Twenty to play, besides Duquesne, rolled over Davidson 70-62 and Canisius 92-55, respectively.

John Roche led the 10th ranked Gamecocks with 22 points. Bobby Fields tossed in 27 points for the 13th-ranked Explorers. He took up the slack when Ken Durrett, LaSalle's leading scorer, suffered a knee injury in the first half after getting 12 points.

Johnny Neumann, the nation's leading collegiate socrer, led Mississippi over Vanderbilt 94-88. Randy Denton of Duke tallied 33 points in pacing the Blue Devils over Wake Forest 83-78.

Key baskets by Greg Gary helped St. Bonaventure beat Long Island 64-60 and Greg Kohls threw in 23 to pace Syracuse over Army 57-46, the sixth straight defeat for the West Point Cadets.

In other games Louisiana State beat Florida 86-74, Virginia whipped Maryland 78-63, Auburn tripped Mississippi State 92-68, Navy humbled Virginia Military 65-47, Marshall trounced Toledo 88-66 and St. Peter's shaded Manhattan 87-85 on Ed Cierski's two free throws with 13 seconds left to play.

Utah Sets Club Scoring Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The sky's the limit for Marv Jackson and Utah's out of sight. Out of Kentucky's sight, that is.

With Jackson hitting a career-high 40 points, Utah set a club scoring record Wednesday night by whipping Kentucky 149-127 in the American Basketball Association.

The Stars, playing without injured Zelmo Beaty, surpassed their old record of 146 points set against Texas last November.

In other ABA games, it was Indiana 115, Texas 104; Floridians 115, Pittsburgh 104, and Memphis 123, Denver 106.

In the National Basketball Association, Buffalo beat New York 106-99; Atlanta turned back Boston 114-102 and San Francisco whacked Seattled 133-122.

Utah connected on 59 per cent of its shots from the floor and at one time, held a 26-point lead—120-94 in the fourth period.

The Colonels' Dan Issel, the league's leading scorer, had 32 points, but was Kentucky's only scoring threat. Issel fouled out midway through the final period.

George Stone had 29 points and Ron Boone added 23 to the Utah cause.

Palmer, As Usual, Is Right Behind Leader

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Battling to regain the winning touch which has evaded him 14 months, Arnold Palmer armed himself with a new putter.

With it he sank some long ones, up to 40 feet, and missed a trio of three feet or less in the opening round of the $140,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament.

His 67 going into today's second round at this desert locale left Arnie just one stroke off the pace of 26-year-old Texas Marty Fleckman who fired a six-under-par 66.

Also at 67 were Roberto Bernardini, the rookie PGA pro from Rome, Italy, and little known Bill Brask, Joe Carr and Larry Wood.

Attention centered on Palmer, three times the Hope tournament champion and golf's leading money earner who hasn't won a title since December, 1969.

"This putter is a different type than I've ever used." explained Palmer who has been having miseries on the greens. "It's a blade type with a flange on the back and center-shafted. The center shaft makes it different. The big thing was that the ball rolled so much better without too much effort. If it's rolling well, you'll get to the hole."

Surprisingly, Palmer's tee shots had a tendency to stray.

"It was not good, less impressive that it's been in quite some time," the powerful 41-year-old comented. "But on the par fives, I hit good tee shots when I needed them. But I pushed a couple and pulled a couple on the other holes.

"If it means driving poorly and scoring well, to hell with the driving."

Palmer played the quartet of par fives a total of six-under-par with two eagles and two birdies.

Fleckman and Palmer both played La Quinta Country Club, perhaps the toughest of the courses to be played by the 136 pros and 408 amateurs. They drew Tamarisk for today's second round of this 90-hole, five-day marathon.

Fleckman fired seven birdies and only one bogey on his round which he termed the best he's had since coming on the tour three years ago.

Fleckman, in a prolonged slump, said, "I'm a perfectionist and a perfectionist is never satisfied. But I'm convincing myself to let things happen — don't press for birdies because you can't force them. Now I seem to be driving the ball better and my rounds are more consistent."

Bernardini, Brask, Carr and Wood all shot their first rounds at Indian Wells. Masters' champion Billy Casper shot a 71 at La Quinta and defending champion Bruce Devlin or Australia had a 73 there.

Under the Hope format, each pro plays one round over each of the four courses and each day has a different trio of amateur partners.

After Saturday, the field is cut to 70 pros for the final 18 holes at Bermuda Dunes.

This could be to Palmer's advantage. He commented, "It's nice to have La Quinta out of the way with a good score on it. You can pick up shots at Indian Well but you have to maneuver yourself to get in position. Tamarisk is a real good golf course to play and at Bermuda Dunes, nothing drastic will happen to you and if you play well, you'll score well."

Gamecocks Get Revenge On Cats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Davidson's Wildcats, for the past three years a pesky nemesis to Frank McGuire's powerful South Carolina Gamecocks, have finally fallen to the Atlantic Coast Conference team despite the return to action of Bryan Adrian.

The 10th-ranked Gamecocks used 21 points by John Roche and 14 each by Tom Owens and sophomore Kevin Joyce to subdue Davidson 70-62 Wednesday night for the first time in three seasons.

Roche hit on only six of 17 field goal attempts, but was successful on 10 of 15 free throws.

Adrian made his first start for the Wildcats after being out three weeks with a knee injury and was high for the losers with 19 points.

VMI, saw its single-game winning streak go down the drain at Annapolis, Md., as Navy rang up a 65-47 victory over the once victorious Keydets.

Rod Brewer paced the losers with 15 points as VMI's over-all record fell to 1-21, the worst in the state.

Sugg Defeats Grifton; Claims Top Seeding

BETHEL — H. B. Sugg High School wrapped up a tie for first place in the Pitt County Conference yesterday with a 47-40 victory over the Grifton Bulldogs. The game was played at North Pitt High School.

The Lions, who ended up in a deadlock with Ayden for first place, still will get the top seeding in the conference tournament, to be held next week. They lost only once, to Ayden by a point, but beat Ayden handily in the other meeting between the two, thus taking the top berth in the tournament.

In yesterday's game, the Lions shot away to a 15-7 lead in the first period and were never in any real trouble until late in the game. In the second period, Sugg again outhit Grifton, 11-7, and held a 26-14 lead at the half.

In the third period, Grifton began to come to life, but was still outhit by the Lions, 15-14. That left Sugg in command, 41-28, as the final quarter started. Grifton put on a rally in the period, outscoring Sugg, 12-6, but the lead was too much to overcome.

Willie Horne led the Lions to the victory with 17 points. Gary Kelly paced Grifton, scoring 15 points.

Grifton and Sugg close out the regular season on Friday, both with home games. Grifton will host Vanceboro, while Sugg entertains tough Phillips of Battleboro.

Red Devils In 72-49 Victory

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Red Devils rolled to a 72-49 victory over Hobbton High School last night.

The Red Devils shot away in the first period to build up a lead they held them the rest of the night. By the end of the frame, they had a 21-9 advantage. Hobbton came alive during the second period, but could only match the Farmville production as both teams tossed through 16 points. That left Farmville in a 37-25 lead at the half.

In the third period, the Red Devils managed to tack two more points to their lead as they outhit Hobbton, 16-14. That upped the lead to 53-39. The Red Devils then sewed things up in the final period by outscoring Hobbton, 19-10, in the final quarter of play.

McCoy Williams paced Farmville to the win with 21 points, while Connie Tripp had 17 and Lonnie Daniels had 16.

Hobbton was led by Dwight Darden with 12 and Lloyd Davis with 11.

Farmville closes out its pre-tournament schedule Friday, traveling to meet arch-rival Greene Central.

Grifton Girls Are Beaten

ROCKY MOUNT — Northern Nash High School's girls upset Grifton last night, 37-32.

Northern Nash edged out into an 8-5 lead in the first period of the game, but Grifton came back in the second half. They outhit the Lady Knights, 8-6, and trailed only 14-13 at the half.

In the third period, however, Northern Nash did the damage that counted. The Knights threw in 13 points while Grifton could get only seven. That raised the Nash lead out to 27-20. Grifton outscored Northern Nash, 12-10, in the final period, but it wasn't enough.

Barbara Taylor led Northern Nash with 11 point, while Joanne Dawson had 13 for Grifton.

Knicks Hurting Without Reed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Knicks are hurting because Willis Reed is in pain and Donny May isn't helping any by rubbing it in.

With Reed continuing to suffer on a pain-wracked left knee, and a former New Yorker May pouring in 29 points, the Buffalo Braves belted the Knicks 106-99 in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night.

It was the fifth straight defeat for the defending champions, who announced after the game that Reed would spend five days in a New York hospital for examinations of his inflamed knee.

The officials didn't help the New York cause Wednesday night, either, by throwing the big center out of the hot-tempered contest when Reed disputed an offensive foul call.

After Reed left with 29 seconds left in the first half, the Braves steadily pulled away in the third quarter-building their lead to as much as 23 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Atlanta thumped Boston 114-102 and San Francisco whipped Seattle 133-122.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Utah 149, Kentucky 127; Indiana 115, Texas 104; Floridians 115, Pittsburgh 104 and Memphis 123, Denver 106.

May, obtained from New York in the off-season expansion draft, hammered his former mates with a 16-point first period and the Braves coasted to a 58-41 halftime lead. May and Dick Garrett then paced a Brave runaway in the second half before the Knicks tried to scramble back.

Dick Barnett, who had 21 points, helped New York battle to within seven points, 104-97, with 48 seconds to go. But the expansion Braves held off the Knicks to break a six-game slide.

Pete Maravich scored 28 points and made three key steals as Atlanta came up with a 13-0 spurt that helped bury Boston. The Hawks' scoring binge opened an 89-73 lead and they coasted to their sixth triumph in eight games.

Bill Bridges had 27 rebounds to spearhead the Hawks' 61-47 advantage on the boards. John Havlicek led the losers with 23 points.

Nick Jones scored 18 of his 28 points in the second period as San Francisco opened a 68-54 halftime lead over Seattle and coasted the rest of the way. Spencer Haywood topped the SuperSonics with 26 points, 13 in the final quarter.

Over-The-Hill Teacher Claims Slalom Victory

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON JR.
Associated Press Sports Editor

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — A French girl physical education teacher who thought she was over the hill at 26 raced down the mountain Thursday to first place in the Giant Slalom and her second gold medal of the Pre-Olympic Winter Games.

Meanwhile, the three top-ranked entrants—two Russians and a Norwegian—took a wrong turn in the biathlon, a combination of rifle marksmanship and skiing. So the first three places went to two slower Russians and an East German.

A Russian world champion won the women's five-kilometer cross country race, but a 32-year-old Finn beat out another Russian world title holder for second place.

The results gave Russia five gold medals so far in International Winter Sports Week, a test of courses for next winter's Olympic Games. France and West Germany are now tied with two. Japan, Italy and East Germany have one each.

Annie Famose of France, who won the women's downhill on Sunday, sped down the grand slalom course on Mt. Teine in 1:29.56.

The biathlon medals went to Viktor Mamatov of the Soviet Union, who scored at 1:16:11.97; Rinnat Safin of the Soviet Union, 1:16.28.36, and Heinz-Dieter Speer of East Germany 1:18:57.58.

Those weren't the best marks. Russia's Aleksandr Tikhonov, defending world champion, finished the course, he thought, in 1:13:17.60, followed by Tor Svendsberget of Norway, last year's silver medalist, in 1:14:54.22, and Aleksandr Uschakov of Russia in 1:15:38.91.

The trouble was, the judges said, that each of the three took a wrong turn that gave them a shortcut on one course.

Tikhonov first said a Japanese guide misdirected him, but the officials said there were no guides at that point. Then Tikhonov complained about the use of letters rather than numbers to mark the courses. Finally, the Russians said there weren't enough arrows to point the way.

The judges—two Swedes, two Japanese and a Russian—said the contestants had a week of training on the courses and should have known the way.

Alevtina Olunina of the Soviet Union, defending world champion in the 10-kilometer cross country won Thursday's five-kilometer event in 17:25.41. Marjatta Kajosmaa of Finland placed second in 17:28.34, beating out Russia's Galina Kulakova, last year's world champion in the event, who finished third with a clocking of 17:37.39.

Virginia Beats Terps; Duke Eases By Deacons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 10th-ranked South Carolina Gamecocks weren't going to let the Davidson basketball team beat them for the third year in a row.

Even with Davidson star Bryan Adrian playing for the first time after being out three weeks with an injured knee, South Carolina led all the way and won 70-62 Wednesday night.

John Roche, the Gamecocks' All-America, hit only six of 17 field goal attempts but made good on 10 of 15 free throws for a 22-point total. For Davidson of the Southern Conference Adrian was high with 19 points in the game in the Charlotte, N.C., Coliseum.

South Carolina of the Atlantic Coast Conference brought its record to 14-4.

ACC teams also were involved in two league games.

Randy Denton had 33 points and 18 rebounds in leading home-team Duke to an 83-78 victory over Wake Forest.

And Virginia, aided by a 17-3 scoring spurt in the closing minutes of the first half, took a 78-63 home victory over Maryland.

Duke ran its record to 4-5 in the league and 11-7 in all games. Wake Forest is 2-5 and 11-7.

Virginia is second in the conference on a 6-3 record to leading North Carolina's 7-1. Maryland is 4-5 in the league.

ACC teams are idle tonight. Games Friday night are Clemson vs. North Carolina State and North Carolina vs. Georgia Tech in the opening of the North-South Doubleheaders in Charlotte. The teams will reverse opponents Saturday night, with Clemson playing North Carolina and N.C. State meeting Georgia Tech. Duke will be at Maryland in a televised game Saturday afternoon, and Virginia will be at Wake Forest that night.

Wake Forest stayed close to Duke in the second half and even took the lead with 12:30 left to play. But Dick DeVenzio hit a one-hander to put the Blue Devils ahead again for good. Bob Rhoads was high man for Wake Forest with 31 points.

Virginia was able to handle multiple defenses used by Maryland. But the Maryland Terps were stymied by the Cavaliers' zone defense. Sophomore Barry Parkhill led Virginia with 21 points. Scott McCandlish added 17 and Frank DeWitt 16 to the winning cause.

For Maryland, Howard White and Charlie Blank were high with 12 points apiece.

Davidson Sets Down Rosewall

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The first major upset was scored Wednesday night in the Philadelphia International Tennis Championship when power hitting Owen Davidson unseated second-seeded Ken Rosewall, a fellow Australian, 6-3, 6-4.

Davidson, who coached the British Davis Cup team last year, scored the important breakthrough of service in the fifth game of the second set.

Another upset of lesser importance saw No 12 seeded Fred Stolle, former Wimbledon and United States Champion from Australia, beaten 7-5, 6-2, by California's Bob Lutz. Lutz took the first set by rifling a service return to Stolle's feet.

Sixth-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia was challenged all the way by the noteworthy hitting of Ismail L. Shafei, UAR lefty, but beat him 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

Bob Carmichael executed clever passing shots in beating follow Austrailian Dick Crealy. 6-4, 6-4.

In the women's championship, where the first prize is $3,000 as against $10,000 for the men, top favorite Mrs. Billy Jean King of California was under heavy pressure in standing off Mrs. Mary Ann Curtis, American wife of English player Peter Curtis, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

The fourth-seeded Francoise Durr of France scored a 6-1, 4-6, 6-2 victory over Valerie Ziegenfuss of California.

Two other seeded players advanced to the second round. The two, John Newcombe, the current Wimbledon champion from Australia, and Tom Okker of Holland, both profited from double faults on game points by their opponents.

Newcombe put out Roy Barth, a new American contract professional 6-2, 6-3. Okker scored by 6-1, 6-3 over Fred McMillan, a two-handed hitter from South Africa.

Roger Taylor, English left-hander and seeded No. 9 defeated Bill Bowrey of Australia 7-5, 6-2. Cliff Drysdale, another two-handed hitter from South Africa beat Allan Stone of Australia 6-2, 6-1.

In the women's first round of singles, Denise Carter defeated fellow California Kristy Pigeon 5-7, 6-2, 7-5, and Tory Fretz won a deep-court driving contest with Julie Heldman, a New Yorker, 6-1, 3-6, 6-0.

Fleckman Has New Philosophy

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Marty Fleckman, a young man who turned a once-bright future into years of frustration and troubles, has a new golfing philosophy.

"Byron Nelson sat me down just after Christmas and gave me a talking to," Fleckman said Wednesday after taking the first round lead in the Bob Hope Desert Classic with a six-under-par 66 at La Quinta.

"He told me, 'You've got to quit trying to copy me.

"You got to take this knowledge that I'm trying to give you and apply it to yourself."

"I admitted to him that I was trying to copy him," Fleckman said. "I was trying to copy his swing and you can't do that. Each persons is built differently Their muscles function differently in relation to each other and you just can't copy another person. That's what I was trying to do."

And he had a long series of difficulties in making that attempt.

Fleckman is a 26-year-old from Port Arthur, Tex., a University of Houston product who had a brilliant amateur career that included leading the 1967 U.S. Open for three rounds.

He won his first start as an approved tournament player, the 1967 Cajun Classic.

And when he finished fourth in the PGA national championship the following year he was hailed as potentially the brightest young star on the pro tour.

But he has had nothing but troubles since.

He dropped out of an exempt status when he won only $4,995 in 1969 and made but $12,053 last year, less than covering expenses.

Fleckman, a darkly handsome, long-time admirer of Nelson, spoke candidly of his problems.

"A lot of people say that Byron fouled me up," he said. "That's not so.

"I've never been a really consistent player, but even in college. I'd go along pretty good, then hit a wild shot. And when I hit one it's out of bounds or in the water," he said.

"To make a living out here you've got to be consistent. That's why I went to Nelson for help."

"Right now I'm encouraged. I think I'm on the right track.

Foyt, Isaac Are Favored

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) —A. J. Foyt and Bobby Isaac were favored today in a pair of 125-mile races at Daytona International Speedway that will determine 38 starters for Sunday's Daytona 500.

Foyt, who already is assured of the pole position for the $200,000 classic, was to be at the head of 32 cars in the first race, scheduled to begin at 1 p.m.

Isaac, second fastest qualifier in 10 days of time trials and assured of Sunday's other front row spot, had the pole in the second race, to begin at 2 p.m. Twenty-nine other drivers were to line up behind him.

Foyt, three-time Indianapolis winner, and Isaac, the 1970 NASCAR grand national driving champion, elected to run in the two races because of the money. Each race pays $5,000 to the winner.

Foyt's competition was expected to come from Pete Hamilton, the 1969 winner, who posted a qualifying lap of 179.472 m.p.h. in a Plymouth against Foyt's pole speed of 182.744 in a Mercury.

Other top runners in the Texan's group were two-time grand national champ Richard Petty, NASCAR's only $500,000 winner, in a Plymouth; Fred Lorenzen in the STP Plymouth; 1969 winner Leeroy Yarbrough in a Mercury; and Donnie Allison in a Mercury.

Isaac, whose 180.050 m.p.h. gave him Sunday's other front row starting spot, lined up in front of top NASCAR regulars Buddy Baker and Bobby Allison in Dodges; three-time grand national champion David Pearson, and Richard Brooks who is driving a Dodge with the smallest engine in the field.

One international driver made the two-race field, another didn't. Vic Elford of England will drive a Ford in the first race. It was qualified for him last Saturday by ARCA driver Iggy Katona.

Mexico's Pedro Rodriguez, who had been assigned a 1971 Chevrolet, couldn't get the machine up to speed and didn't qualify for either race. However, he could start at the rear of the field in one of the heats, becoming eligible because he has had practice in the car.

Elon Captures Carolina Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Elon has clinched the Carolinas Conference regular season basketball championship on a 13-2 league record.

The Christians did so by pulling away from Pfeiffer in the second half for an 85-62 victory Wednesday night.

Larry Paschall had 26 points and Robbie Hicklin 19 for Elon in the game at Pfeiffer. Elon was ahead only 29-26 at the half. Pfeiffer has won only one of 11 conference games.

Guilford and Atlantic Christian also won conference tests.

Guilford, never ahead until the closing seconds, defeated Catawba 79-76. Guilford, one point behind, won on a basket by David Smith with 14 seconds to go and two free throws by Tom Ennis with two seconds remaining.

Ennis and Smith had 25 points each. James Brown led Catawba with 21 points. Catawba's Bill Bailey, leading scorer in the conference, was held to 15 points.

Atlantic Christian also won by three points in the closing seconds, 84-81 over High Point, on free throws by Billy Sauls.

Bryan Chalk led the home-team winners with 22 points and Pete Collins was best point maker for High Point with 20.

There is one game tonight, Presbyterian at Newberry in a conference test. The teams will be idle Friday. On Saturday UNC-Wilmington will be at Atlantic Christian, Lenoir Rhyne at Guilford and Pfeiffer at High Point. Then there will be one more week of action before the conference tournament begins Wednesday, Feb. 24, at the Winston-Salem Coliseum.

Jax Coaches Think Alike

NEW YORK (AP) — Coach Tom Wasdin of Jacksonville and Joe Williams, who coached the Dolphins last season, think alike ... and it shows in the college basketball statistics.

According to national Collegiate Sports Services, the Dolphins are close to their final 1969-70 figures, which saw them finish higher in more team categories than any major team in history.

Last season, they averaged 100.3 points a game, first team ever to pass the century mark. This time around, the average is 101.1.

In field goal percentage, Jacksonville is only No. 2 at .542, but surpassing their runner-up .523 of last season. With 54.1 rebounds per game, they're just a shade behind last year's 55.8. Average margin of victory is 21.4 compared to 21.8 and the record is 16-2 compared to 27-2.

"Joe Williams and I are very similar in our philosophy of basketball," says Wasdin. "We're trying to run a more organized fast break this season because we don't have Rex Morgan and we're trying to do a better job with our pressure defense. Our shooting percentage is better simply because we're getting more layups."

In the weekly statistics, three new leaders emerged—Marquette in scoring margin at 22.4, Indiana in rebounds with 59.9 per game and Fairleigh Dickinson in scoring defense with an average yield of 56.5. Holdover leaders are North Carolina in field goal percentage and Duke in free throw percentage.

Jacksonville's 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, who has never been out of the top spot in rebounding in his two-year career, remained there with a 22.5 average. The other individual leaders also remained unchanged—Mississippi's Johnny Neumann in scoring, 31.1; North Carolina's Dennis Wuycik in field goal percentage, .635, and Southern Illinois' Greg Starrick in free throw percentage, .908.

GETTING THEIR SKI LEGS — Green Berets stationed at Ft. Devens, Mass., struggle with skies at Sunday River ski slope as they learn the fundamentals of winter warfare. The outing included a bivouac in sub-zero temperatures. (AP Wirephoto)

Green Beret Jungle Fighters Try Skiing; 'Never Had So Much Fun'

By WILLIS JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

BETHEL, Maine (AP) — "I've never seen so many 'Green Berets' bite the dust at one time," the bearded young man in flannel said.

There they were, 164 jungle fighters, some stuck in snow deep as any Vietnam rice paddy; others trying to keep their unmanageable skis from snowplowing them into the treeline. Their uniforms were dusted with white, chiefly from the falling they did as they progressed from the buckling-up to the walking to the slow-skiing stages.

"How the hell do you stop?" yelled a soldier as he whizzed by an Army ski instructor on one slope.

"You learn that in the next class," the instructor called after him.

"I never had so much fun in my life," said Sgt. Ralph Donehoo, 21, of Atlanta, his nose runny and red from the subzero cold. "This is the best thing I've done in the Army."

The soldiers on the Sunday River ski slope of this tiny Maine community were the third wave of 500 Green Berets from the 10th Special Forces Group at Ft. Devens, Mass., trying to condition themselves for winter warfare surroundings.

The last time many of them were in the field was in the jungles of Southeast Asia.

The Green Berets had two weeks to learn to ski downhill and cross country. They'd also use snowshoes to hike into the frozen forests for weekend bivouacs.

"They'll be proficient in the cross country by the time we leave Feb. 13, said D Company's commander, Maj. Charles W. Buttermore, 39, of Fayetteville, N.C. "The downhill is something else."

Extra $1.45 Billion In Proposed Postal Rates

H. Lloyd Mills, officer-in-charge of the Greenville Post Office, said today that recent Postal Service Proposals, submitted Feb. 1, to the Postal Rate Commission would yield additional revenues of $1.45 billion during fiscal year 1972, beginning July 1.

"The proposals call for increases in virtually all mail categories except parcel post," Mills explained.

If the Rate Commission does not present to the Governors of the Postal Service a recommended decision on rate changes within 90 days, it is anticipated that a temporary rate increase will be put into effect by the Postal Service, according to Mills.

In addition to the proposed two-cent boost for letters from six to eight cents, advertising mail would be increased to a minimum of five cents per piece, plus additional increases for heavier weights.

Substantial increases have been proposed for magazines, newspapers and other categories of second class mail. The increases will be phased in over a period of five years.

Other highlights of the proposal include:

—Airmail rates will increase from 10 to 11 cents and airmail cards from eight to nine cents each;

—Packages weighing more than 12 ounces and receiving first-class treatment will not be increased; packages weighing less than five ounces will be higher;

—Regular second class publications, those mailed for delivery outside the publisher's county, excluding certain categories, will be raised 1.9 cents per piece plus higher advertising rates ranging from 9.1 to 20.9 cents per pound; Non-advertising will be at a new rate of 7.2 cents per pound;

—Controlled circulation publications, usually periodicals without subscription fees mailed to specific audiences or markets, face an increase in only their minimum per piece rate of five cents from the existing 3.8 cents postage fee.

—Third class rates for single pieces would rise to eight cents for the first two ounces and the fee for each additional ounce would be raised from two to four cents under the permanent rate proposal;

—Mailers holding bulk third-class permits would find their rates per pound raised from 16 and 22, to 22 and 28 cents per pound;

—Special delivery and registered mail fees would both be increased. The minimum fee for a special delivery letter would rise from 45 to 60 cents, while the rate for registered mail valued up to $100 would be increased from 80 to 95 cents under the proposal.

N.C. Lawmakers Undecided About Baldhead Island

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's lawmakers are very much undecided on what the state should do about Bald Head Island.

Opinions range from those who want the state to acquire the semi-tropical island in the Cape Fear River to preserve it as a wilderness area to those who want it to be developed by its private owners.

Some lawmakers object that the state doesn't have the money to buy the property. Another said that if the state can't find the money it should organize a fund raising drive to buy the island and preserve it in its natural state.

"I honestly don't know what we should do about it," said Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor.

"I haven't heard it discussed enough to have an opinion one way or another," said House Speaker Phil Godwin.

But Taylor said he feels a decision on the island's future should be made by the present General Assembly "because it is not fair to the owners of the property to be left with this uncertain situation...."

The lieutenant governor said he felt some of the state's experts should immediately develop a plan on what the state would do with the property if it acquired it.

Rep. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the state should acquire the island by condemnation if necessary and "If we can't find the money, I see no alternative to a fund raising campaign."

"The money is not in sight now," said Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

"I don't believe the people will be willing to spend that much money unless it is used for a state park or something in that category," Henley added.

"The majority of the pople of Brunswick County (where the island is located) want to see the island developed," said Rep. James Green, D-Bladen. Green said he is puzzled that the state made no effort to purchase the island years ago when it could have been bought for a fraction of its present price.

"I think it should be developed and remain on the taxbooks of Brunswick County," said Sen. S. Bunn Frink, D-Brunswick. Frink expressed the opinion the island "is not worth $1 million" and "$5.5 million is the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of."

Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, said that the marshlands that surround Bald Head must be protected and that if developing the island is going to destroy the marshlands, "you have no alternative but to condemn the island."

Rep. Julian Fenner, D-Nash, said he had read development plans of the Cape Fear Corporation and that if it could "be held to follow that plan, I think the ecology of the island would be protected better than if the state acquired it and let the creeks and marshes fill in."

Rep. Marcus Short, D-Guilford, said he would like to hear more discussion, "but I think I favor the state taking it and preserving it as it is."

May Have Found Ancient Capital

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Belgian archeologists headed by Prof. Leon DeMeyer believe they have unearthed what may be the ancient capital of the Accadians who ruled in Mesopotamia in the middle of the third millenium B.C.

The city of Agade was discovered 12 miles south of Baghdad during three months of excavation. The Belgians hope to return to Iraq to complete their work later this year.

Eliptical House Found In Iraq

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — An American archeological team has discovered an eliptical worship house dating back to 2,600 B.C. at Tel Hiba 180 miles south of Baghdad.

The archeologists, headed by Profs. Crowford and Heinsen from the Metropolitan Museum of New York, also uncovered 11 small statues of the king who built the worship house, only the second eliptical building ever to be found in Iraq.

Familiar Cop On The Beat Comes Back

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) —You may have read, or heard or even said something like this: "When I was a kid, there was a cop on the beat. He knew everyone; everyone knew him. He kept law and order in the neighborhood. How come we don't have police protection like that anymore?"

The glib answer is to suggest that the question is another of those "good old days" sentimentalities that doesn't stand up under examination—that foot patrolmen, like gas lights and ice boxes, never could do the job that their counterparts perform today.

A policeman in a radio-equipped automobile obviously can patrol more territory and get to the scene of a crime faster than an officer on foot. But the question requires more than an answer based solely on efficiency and productivity. It wants to know why so many people don't know, by sight or name, a policeman who is in their neighborhood to protect them and their property.

Thoughtful police professionals worry about that situation. They know a policeman needs citizen support to do his job right, and that a cop who is regarded as a stranger or an enemy in the neighborhood he is supposed to protect isn't going to get much help.

Citizen Boards Common

Citizen review boards are the most commonly offered solution to poor police-community relations. But most policemen object to citizen review, arguing that a cop cannot work with a committee of civilians looking over his shoulder.

Now, the police themselves are offering another way to improve community relations as well as provide better protection against crime and raise police morale. The idea is to create a modern version of the old-fashioned beat cop—a policeman who will be regularly assigned to work in the same neighborhood.

The proposal is being tested in Detroit, where it is called the "beat commander" system and in New York, where it is "neighborhood team policing." It was started in Detroit and carried with him to New York by Patrick V. Murphy, a mild-appearing former foot patrolman who has become one of the country's best-known and most innovative police executives.

The big difference between the neighborhood police team plan and the system now used in most communities is the permanent assignment of a sergeant (the beat commander) and a contingent of patrolmen to around-the-clock responsibility for a relatively small area of the city.

Most police departments operate out of districts or precincts, often containing several hundred thousand residents. Under this system officers may be shifted from one area to another depending on manpower needs. Thus, the residents of a neighborhood might not see the same policeman on the street for days or weeks at a time. Add the widespread use of patrol cars, and law-abiding citizens may never get to know any policeman as their cop on the beat.

Several Reasons

There are several reasons, regarded as correct at the time, that police departments largely have done away with the regular assignment of foot patrolmen to the same area of a city.

The first was corruption. The old-time beat cop might have been a scourge to street hoodlums and a powerful deterrent to small-time crime, but he also might have been a grafter, a "bag man" picking up payoffs from gamblers, pimps and after-hours saloon keepers.

The police reform movement earlier in the century frequently adopted the practice of random rotation of officers to prevent the growth of cozy arrangements between cops and crooks. It didn't stop graft, but it made it harder to set up.

The second change was the development of the police car with two-way radio communication. A policeman could look for crime over a far wider area of his beat and respond far more quickly to a report of criminal activity. In addition, auto patrolling was easier and safer for the policemen.

Started in May, 1970, the Detroit experiment covered only one-eighth of the city's 10th Precinct (about 15,000 of the precinct's 130,000 population) and was manned by a beat commander, a deputy and about 22 patrolmen. The patrolmen, all volunteers, covering each of three shifts met with the beat commander or deputy each day to exchange information and discuss problems. The commander kept his superiors at the precinct headquarters in touch with what was happening.

The beat commander and the patrolmen were told to make an effort to meet and talk to people — merchants, householders and civic, church and school leaders. They were encouraged to take the initiative in helping young persons get into job training programs or in finding medical and rehabilitation aid for alcoholics and drug addicts.

Crime Increases

After five months, a report on the project showed that the crime reported in the neighborhood had increased from 18 per cent of the precinct's total to 20 per cent.

This did not discourage the advocates of the test—they said it was established that a third or more of all crimes in the country now are never reported, and the increase of reports in the project neighborhood could simply mean residents were placing more confidence in the police.

That might sound like completely wishful thinking, except for other evidence collected in the report.

One officer said several successful stakeouts were conducted and suspects arrested on the basis of information given directly to the policemen by local residents. He was convinced the information never would have been passed on to precinct headquarters under a regular police setup.

Neighborhood leaders, who might be expected to be critical if they believed the project was increasing crime, praised it highly. Mrs. Tessie Bing, a block club president, wrote, "This patrol is doing a wonderful job, so please don't take these officers away." William E. Booker, a church men's club president, wrote, "We see the peace-of-mind smiles when our patrolmen pass through. We know our people are grateful."

Finally, there was some evidence that the policemen themselves were getting more satisfaction out of the arrangement: They took one-third as much sick leave on the average as other officers in the precinct.

Reception At Art Center

FARMVILLE — A reception for Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Voorhees of Morehead City will be held at the Farmville Art Center Sunday from 3 to 5 p.m.

A one-man show of Voorhees' watercolors and oil is now on display here. Hours that the show may be seen, according to Mrs. Sue Holmes, are as follows: Wednesday from 9 a.m. to noon; Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m.; Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m.; and Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

This show was recently seen at the Greenville Art Center.

Voorhees had his first one-man show in this area a little more than five years ago. The Mississippi native, who grew up in California and served in the South Pacific during World War II, turned to full-time painting and teaching six years ago, locating in Morehead City at that time.

His work centers on coastal North Carolina, with his watercolors of landscapes, quiet little villages, stretches of sandy shore, birds, and fishing boats.

Some Have To Blame Critic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Mary is a practical psychiatrist though only 15 years old. For teen-agers often can diagnose their mother or father with great exactness. Her mother accuses me of being a sex maniac, but Mary disagrees. For her mother is sexually guilty but prefers to blame the critic instead of facing up to her own failure.

Case P-569: Mary X., aged 15, is the only child of an Eastern newspaper publisher.

"Dr. Crane," she confessed, "my mother hates you!

"In fact, she has tried to make Daddy cancel your column from our newspaper.

"For Mother accuses you of being a sex maniac!

"She also claims you always pick on wives and encourage husbands to have affairs with other women.

"But I don't feel that way at all, nor do the girls in my class at high school.

"I think Mother is jealous of Daddy and has a guilty conscience, for many of the faults you mention about wives also apply to herself.

"Our English class in high school analyzed your columns for 3 entire months and you talked about sex in only 25 per cent of them.

"So why does Mother exagerate so much about your sex cases?"

Shoe Pinches

Many oldsters are familiar with the adage that if the shoe fits, wear it.

And if a person sees his faults mirrored in this daily educational "print clinic," he can either correct them.

Or (which is the lazy solution), he can damn this column and try to stampede an editor to cancel it.

Some of my editor friends have even sent me a whole sheaf of letters that were insisting that this column be cancelled at once.

But the letters were originated by one person who then had all her friends copy the same hostile paragraphs, like the propagandized mail many of our Congressmen receive.

Actually, Mary has made a shrewd diagnosis of her mother.

For the latter was a spoiled wife who refused to bear any more children than Mary.

Like many a selfish woman, the mother hadn't even wanted to get pregnant at all.

So she scolded and browbeat her husband all throughout that first pregnancy.

After it was over, she twisted the obstetrician's remarks till she made it seem that her husband was a brute and a monster if he thus jeopardized her life with a second pregnancy.

This is a common trick of self-centered wives.

What the doctor said was that she shouldn't enter upon a second pregnancy too soon.

But selfish wives conveniently omit that "too soon" and then begin to quote the doctor as saying they shouldn't experience another pregnancy!

They may then feign all sorts of psychosomatic ailments in order to hold their irritated husband and yet avoid bearing more children.

Indeed, the more a self-centered wife may dread losing her mate, the greater may be her malingering (feigning illness) as a club to hold him in wedlock.

Other wives rage because they say I urge husbands to stray!

I never have made such a statement!

What I have told you readers is that men are more erotic than women and in ancient Biblical times they had small harems, like Jacob's.

So I warn wives to function as a one-woman harem if they wish to keep their mates devoted and safe from the wiles of paramours.

Many wives, merely crave a pay check and social standing but want little sex and no children, so they attack me and misquote this column. You can thus see why!

So send for my booklet "Tests for Husbands and Wives," enclosing a long stanped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Urge Reform In Regulatory Agencies

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Presidential Advisoy Council on Executive Organization said today powerful federal regulatory agencies "are not sufficiently accountable for their actions" and proposed stripping some of their autonomy.

The council recommended single administrators run agencies that now use multimember commissions to regulate among other things, transportation, power, stocks and bonds and consumer protection.

President Nixon released his council's report without comment, but said he wanted the council to study reaction to it.

Following evaluation of the reaction, Nixon said, "I will recommend to the Congress ... those reforms that appear desirable and in the public interest."

The council headed by Roy L. Ash, president of Litton Industries, excluded communications regulation and antitrust enforcement from single-administrator rule. Watchdogs in these areas would be multimember bodies, but changed from their present system.

The reorganization plan would put the regulatory agencies on a level similar to Cabinet posts. The president would appoint, and the Senate confirm, the administrators.

To ease the decision-making burden of proposed single administrators, the council recommended that in many cases initial decisions of agency examiners become final with the administrator reviewing only on appeal. Appeals from final agency decisions would be heard by a proposed administrative court.

The council recommended also that much of the case-by-case adjudication now conducted by the multimember commissions be eliminated.

The report said the various agencies, set up on a largely autonomous basis over the past century, are often out of step with the times and "... not sufficiently accountable for their actions to either the Congress or the President because of the degree of their independence and remoteness in practice from those constitutional branches of government."

"Regulatory activities, therefore, are not adequately supported," the council added, "and are not effectively coordinated with national policy goals."

The agencies, beginning with the Interstate Commerce Commission in 187, were set up on a deliberately independent basis in order to make them free from political control.

Labor Group Asks Curbs On Credit Agency Spying

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — A labor group urged today stronger federal laws to protect Americans against the prying and spying of credit bureaus that list everything from salary to sex habits.

The credit industry has developed into a nationwide private intelligence network with files on 110 million Americans that threaten massive invasion of privacy, said a report by the AFL-CIO Maritime Department.

"Invasion of privacy involves 'credit checks,' with the indiscriminate gathering of information about a person—his personal habits, his family affairs, his sexual conduct, his drinking habits, his working relationships, his income, his debts," the report said.

It said credit is crucial to the nation's economy and credit checks are a necessary evil, but should be closely controlled to prevent abuse.

It urged strengthening of the 1970 Fair Credit Reporting Act by forbidding gathering of political, religious and other information that has nothing to do with credit.

The law should also forbid credit firms from selling or giving information to other firms, government agents or individuals who have no business looking at credit information, it added.

Even a nosy friend can buy information about you in some cases, the report said.

The report, compiled after an 18-month study, said credit investigators check your neighbor, your boss and anybody else who will talk about you, and include gossip and rumor along with fact in their reports.

The result has created a lifelong "prison" of records that could endanger the job, reputation or credit standing of most Americans, the report said.

"Investigative agencies have a vested interest in coming up with some dirt," it said of credit investigators.

School Fire Charged Boy

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy was arrested at his home Wednesday and charged with setting a fire Jan. 19 at the John R. Hawkins Junior High School, which he attends.

The fire did an estimated $500 damage to the gymnasium. A $500 reward has been offered by the Warren County School Board for information leading to arrest and conviction.

The name of the youth was withheld because he is a minor. He was held in the county jail under $5,000 bond for trial Feb. 19 in State District Court.

The fire was one of several at schools in the county. Most of them have been at the John Graham High School in Warren, which has had an estimated 25 or 30 small fires in trashbaskets and elsewhere since November.

The high school was closed for 11 days last month at the request of teachers, and has been open since Feb. 1. The teachers said conditions for education had become unsuitable because of racial tension.

Auditioning Dates Set

The East Carolina Playhouse will hold auditions Monday and Tuesday, February 15 and 16, for "Tango," a modern serio-comedy, by Polish playwright Slawomir Mrozek. Auditions will be held both evenings at 7:30 in McGinnis Auditorium.

Mrozek's first full-length play, "Tango" is a Shavianesque drama of ideas. It examines our nostalgia for the morality and formality that the Bohemian revolution in this century has destroyed.

It features wit, action, suspense, and some interesting characters — four men and three women.

To be directed by E.C.U. drama professor Albert Pertalion, the play is scheduled for production March 24-27.

Pertalion noted that all roles are open, and that students, faculty and staff of the University, and anyone within a commuting distance of Greenville is welcome to try out for a role.

Scripts are available for study in the reserve reading room of the E.C.U. library.

In 1947 the War and Defense departments and the Air Force were combined in the Department of Defense.

COOLED OFF PRODUCTION — Mrs. Kim Moon, wearing the hot pants and see - through blouse which almost stopped production at British Layland's car plant. Workers in other parts of the factory popped along for a peep at Kim, who is a driver in the trim shop. Factory officials wanted her to go home and change, but she was allowed to stay on after appealing to her shop steward. (APWirephoto)

Park Poachers Out Of Business

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—The giraffe poachers of Garamba National Park in the Congo have just put themselves out of business.

They have killed all the giraffes.

The rhino horn poachers of Garamba who send their booty through various middlemen to the Orient where it is believed to have aphrodisiacal powers, are also about to shut up shop.

In the same two years that saw the end of the giraffe some 900 white rhino were slaughtered.

There are only about 20 left.

With these grim examples of criminal waste of a natural and tourist resource on their minds the Kenya government has banned the import and export of leopard skins. Trade in cheetah pelts is already forbidden and conservationists are urging the same protection for the zebra.

Leopard Embargo

The leopard embargo was clamped down on January 1.

But despite government attempts to protect dwindling numbers of these exotic fur animals, hundreds are butchered each year by poachers who stalk the grasslands of East Africa—consisting of the neighboring states of Uganda, Kenya and Tanzania.

Growing concern over poaching activities which threaten to drive certain animal species into extinction have led East African nations into new alliances. At a recent East African wildlife conference, for example, Ethiopia, and Somali pledged support for an international anti-poaching agency. Zambia, Botswana, and Malawi are expected to be drawn into the international anti-poaching agreement to combat illegal hunting.

In Kenya, the government has set aside more than 10,000 square miles of land for eight national parks, but fears are still high that animals will be hunted in these sanctuaries.

One of the more serious poaching problems in East Africa exists in Queen Elizabeth Park in Western Uganda. In the first half of 1970 more than 60 poachers were caught here. "Most of these poachers were local tribesmen, not outsiders," said Raphael Bwami, a Queen Elizabeth ranger.

Problem is Unique

The problem of poaching is unique in Queen Elizabeth Park. When the park boundaries were drawn up, 10 tribal settlements were allowed to remain within the borders. Today, tribesmen hunt animals within the park for their meat —not their skins.

Fines for poaching reach $1,350 and-or two years imprisonment. But most poachers are released on small—$10 or two weeks—fines.

Despite efforts to save animals by creating national parks, occasionally certain species must be selectively killed in order to prevent overpopulation.

The concept of cropping—or killing big game—originated in 1956 when an American wildlife expert proposed cropping half the 14,000 hippos in Queen Elizabeth Park. The "harvesting," began in 1957 and lasted 12 years. The project created a furor in preservationist circles around the world, but today, cropping is an accepted procedure.

A similar project is now being considered for Tsavo National Park, Kenya, where 40,000 elephants eat vast amounts of park vegetation. Selective cropping might rectify the drain on park vegetation and insure food for a specified number of elephants.

Church World Service Depot Pick-Up

Church World Service trucks will pick up clothing, layettes and blankets at the CWS depot at St. James United Methodist Church on Monday, Feb. 22.

This year's depot is located at St. James and last year the depot was located at the First Christian Church.

The CWS Clothing Appeal and CROP, the community Hunger Appeal of Church World Service, make swift response to disasters around the world.

After the earthquake in Peru the following shipments were made: 111,000 pounds of clothing; 18,000 blankets; 50,000 antibiotics; 21,000 tetanus shots; 6,000 needles; 160,000 water purification tablets; 100,000 pounds of soybean food; 209 tents; plus tools and other equipment.

Pitt NAACP To Meet Sunday

The United Pitt County Branch of the National Association of Colored People will hold its regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Arthur Chapel Free Will Baptist Church in Bell Arthur.

In addition to the regular business and workshop sessions, the meeting will be highlighted by the presentation of a certificate of life membership to the North Carolina Funeral Directors and Morticians Association, Inc., according to Pitt NAACP president D. D. Garrett.

Postal Holiday

The Greenville Post Office and East Carolina University Station will close Monday in observance of George Washington's Birthday.

Officer-in-charge H. Lloyd Mills said, however, that mail will be delivered to post office boxes and Special Delivery mail will be delivered within the city.

A city-wide collection will be made from all street letter boxes beginning at 5:00 p.m. All out-going mail, said Mills, will receive normal dispatch.
