Loss Of 'Copters In Laos, Cambodia Action Sharply Up

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Twenty U.S. aircraft were reported today to have been shot down or crashed from unknown causes in Indochina, 19 of them supporting South Vietnamese campaigns in Laos and Cambodia.

At least 16 Americans were reported killed and 7 wounded in the crashes. The toll for the past five days was one of the heaviest for U.S. aircraft since the American operation in the A Shau Valley in April 1967.

The U.S. Command gave some idea of the magnitude of American air support in the Laos campaign by announcing that U.S. helicopters flew 500 missions across the border Thursday. These included trooplifts, gunships, medical evacuation and resupply.

The U.S. Command disclosed the loss of 12 aircraft between Monday and today, announcing some of them in delayed reports. The command said all were destroyed and written off as total losses.

Pilots of one unit in Quang Tri in the northern sector told Associated Press correspondent Michael Putzel that eight more helicopters from their unit were shot down over Laos today. These were not reported by the U.S. command.

The pilots said two of the eight helicopters were destroyed, four others were recovered by larger helicopters that lifted them out and the status of the remaining two was unknown.

One pilot said "we are in over our heads, simply outclassed by the enemy's anti-aircraft fire."

They said hundreds of U.S. helicopters drawn from units all over South Vietnam are taking part in the Laotian operation.

The command said 10 helicopters, one F4 fighter-bomber and a C123 transport that had been spraying against malarial mosquitoes had been lost in the past five days.

The South Vietnamese command reported that its troops and their heavy American air support killed 165 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong during the past 24 hours in the parallel drives against enemy supply lines through southern Laos and Cambodia. The Saigon headquarters said 13 of its men were killed and 66 wounded in more than half a dozen clashes.

The offensive into Cambodia began Feb. 3, the Laotian thrust five days later.

South Vietnamese forces sweeping through Laos also reported seizing four of the .51-caliber North Vietnamese machine guns that have been part of the heaviest anti-aircraft fire American planes and helicopters have encountered in months.

South Vietnamese briefing officers listed a considerable variety of enemy vehicles and supplies destroyed and munitions captured in the Laotian drive, including tanks, trucks, motor fuel and 43 tons of ammunition.

Reports that American soldiers had been seen in southern Laos, and that some were wearing South Vietnamese uniforms, brought an admission from official sources that U.S. reconnaissance teams are operating inside the neighboring country but only in an intelligence-gathering role. These sources said such teams, often led by Special Forces soldiers, have operated across the border for years.

The U.S. Command declined to discuss "any operations on intelligence gathering," but a spokesman said again: "There are no U.S. ground combat troops in Laos. There will be no U.S. combat troops or advisers in Laos."

It is known that some Americans in the reconnaissance teams in Laos have been killed and wounded, but these casualties are not reported by the command. Both CBS and ABC correspondents reported Thursday that American soldiers were seen in Laos, some wearing South Vietnamese uniforms.

Legislation Introduced Requiring Distribution Of $4.1 Million In Taxes

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation was introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly today to require State Revenue Commissioner I. L. Clayton to distribute $4.1 million in sales tax funds to 25 counties.

The money, representing collections from the 1 per cent local option sales tax for the last three months of 1970, has been held by Clayton since the State Supreme Court declared the local sales tax unconstitutional.

Sen. John J. Burney, D-New Hanover, and Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, chairmen of the Senate and House finance committees, respectively, introduced the bills.

The legislation says that every retailer who has collected and paid the sales taxes can apply to the revenue commissioner for a refund within 90 days provided he has refunded or given credit to the purchasers. Proof of the sales must be substantiated on their claims, Burney said.

The bill also directs the revenue commissioner to make refunds from the taxes collected after Dec. 31. This should amount to about $2.5 million for an 18-day period, Burney said. It was on Jan. 18 that the court ruled the local option tax unconstitutional because it was not uniform across the state.

"If claims for refunds exceed the amount collected," Burney said, "the state shall claim an equal amount from the intangibles tax which would be distributed back to the various counties and municipalities."

"If there are any funds left over from the 1 per cent local option sales and use tax collections, the commissioner shall make this distribution on each June 30th and Dec. 31st."

Under the legislation, refunds can be made to all persons or firms that have paid the 1 per cent tax directly to the revenue commissioner. If a refund is denied by the commissioner, provisions are made for entering suit for recovery of the taxes.

Comb Wreckage For More Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials today counted 58 deaths from Southern California's earthquake disaster and the search of debris for other victims continued.

Estimates of damage from Tuesday's devastating tremor were upped to $1 billion.

Rescuers picking through the ruins of the Veterans Administration Hospital in Sylmar said they had removed 37 bodies and rescued a man trapped for 58 hours. Three patients and three employees were missing and feared dead.

A 68-year-old chef at the hospital was pulled from the wreckage late Thursday after being buried since the quake hit at 6:01 a.m. Tuesday. Rescue personnel said Frank Carbonara apparently was saved by a large metal tub which kept pieces of concrete and other rubble from falling on him.

Carbonara was rushed by helicopter to a hospital where he was pronounced in good condition, although suffering from chest and hand injuries.

Interviewed by newsmen at the hospital, Carbonara, his face gaunt and drawn, said he didn't think he slept during the whole ordeal.

Asked what kept him alive, he replied, "I thought I was dead."

Meanwhile, some 80,000 persons who were evacuated from a 20-square-mile area of the populous San Fernando Valley below an earthquake-damaged reservoir were expected to be allowed to return to their homes late today. Engineers had drained off much of the water in the 3.6 billion gallon reservoir whose concrete face was cracked by the quake.

The homes of thousands of persons in the valley and in communities such as San Fernando and Sylmar were damaged or destroyed.

Many fled to homes of relatives, went to evacuation centers set up in the Los Angeles area, or camped out in tents.

Thomas S. Kleppe, head of the Small Business Administration, estimated not more than one homeowner in 10,000 had earthquake insurance.

Tornadic Winds Strike

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Tornadic winds roared down a major business street in Lake Charles early today, destroying dozens of buildings and causing an estimated $1 million damages. The walls of one home collapsed, but it was unoccupied.

Early reports indicated few serious injuries and no deaths, although several motels and homes were described as badly damaged by the 65-mile an hour winds.

The storm hit hardest along a 10-block area of U.S. 90, where a furniture store, two motels, a restaurant and an appliance store were described as destroyed.

Some looting was reported and the local National Guard unit was mobilized to patrol the area, which was sealed off. One looter was arrested.

The section is about eight blocks west of the heart of the city of more than 50,000, at the southwestern corner of the state.

Other storms also were reported in Crowley, 40 miles east of Lake Charles, where some power lines were blown down and some minor house fires were set, and in Cutoff, south of New Orleans, where a twister knocked down a trailer. No serious injuries were reported in either place.

manufacturers of dangerous drugs, and registration of distributors and dispensers such as hospitals, pharmacies and doctors.

The Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs will have about 1,300 agents by mid-1971 to police 5,000 manufacturers and distributors, 8,000 hospitals, 50,000 pharmacies and 350,000 physicians.

'Stoned' During Killing Mission

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sharon Tate's confessed killer says the actress "kept begging and pleading and begging and pleading and I got sick of listening to it, so I stabbed her."

Susan Atkins, 22, testifying Thursday in the third day of her chilling witness stand confession, said:

"Everything was weird and far out that night. People didn't look like people. I didn't relate to Sharon Tate like anything except a store mannequin, and she sounded like an IBM machine."

Victim Jay Sebring, she said, "looked to me like a Samurai warrior." She said she and other members of Charles Manson's hippie-style clan who went on the killing mission were "stoned" on LSD.

The tall, slender brunette, clad in a black pants suit and pink crepe blouse, spoke in a Southern drawl and at times lapsed into a dreamy whisper.

She talked eagerly about details of the killings of Miss Tate and six others and an earlier slaying of a Malibu musician.

"Why were these seven murders committed?" she was asked by Deputy Dist. Atty. Vincent Bugliosi.

"It seemed like a good idea at the time. It happened. And it still seems right...It would have worked," she added. "It would have worked if I hadn't talked."

She said she regretted telling her story to two jail cellmates, a slip which led police to the killers.

The prosecutor asked why she didn't tell other members of the communal family about the killings.

"It's no big thing," she said. "Seven bodies are no big thing?"

Are they? Are a million people all over this world dead because you dropped napalm on them a big thing?"

Over-Producing Drugs?

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — New complaints that the American pharmaceutical industry overproduces dangerous drugs and thereby supplies the curbstone pusher as well as the corner drug store are rising in Congress, the administration and the medical profession.

Congressional investigators have concluded that between eight and 10 billion pep pills alone are produced legally each year, and more than half are diverted illicitly into the streets.

"We have found that overproduction of amphetamines by legitimate manufacturers...and promiscuous prescribing practices by some physicians has set the stage for an amphetamine epidemic," said Rep. Claude Pepper, chairman of the House Committee on Crime.

Amphetamines are those tablets, pills or capsules which raise the spirits, depress appetites and ward off fatigue. Melted down and injected into the veins in massive dosages, they produce an instant "high."

Sedatives such as barbiturates, which predate the Civil War, are the other major drug of abuse. They are most frequently prescribed as sleeping pills and to ward off tension. Unlike pep pills, which promote psychological dependence, barbiturates induce a physical dependence.

Federal agents say the legitimate drugs pour into the black market through theft, mail orders and sloppy controls over exports.

They cite these as examples:

—An Illinois drug firm shipped up to 15 million pep pills over a 10-year period to a post office box for a drugstore in Tijuana, Mexico. Federal agents, acting on a tip, discovered the address was the 11th hole of the Tijuana Country Club golf course. They seized 1.2 million tablets in transit.

—A St. Louis firm shipped drugs purported to contain pep pills to New York for export to Formosa. But the drums contained aspirin with only a top layer of amphetamines. The manufacturer then began black marketing 600,000 pills, but had the bad luck to choose a federal agent as one of his customers.

The federal government is building a paper dam to plug these leaks.

The Justice Department has begun drafting regulations to implement the 1970 drug Control Act. On May 1, it will require annual licensing and inspection for the first time of all subjects in the school curriculum.

Johnson said his bill does not contemplate separate courses on the two subjects but felt they could be worked into existing courses.

"I feel this will create a better understanding among the people of the state and help alleviate tension in our schools," Johnson said.

Other new legislation included bills in both House and Senate to provide tax relief for home owners over 60 years old whose annual income is not over $3,500. The first $5,000 of appraised value of such taxpayers' homes would be exempt from property taxes.

"We need to help people in this age and income bracket," said Sen. Ralph Scott, who introduced the bill in the Senate. It bore the signatures of 35 of the 50 senators.

Rep. W.S. Harris, D-Alabama, sponsored an identical measure in the House.

Bills also were introduced in both houses to exempt from income taxes the first $3,000 of the retirement pay of former military personnel. Sen. Zebulon Alley, D-Haywood, sponsored the bill in the Senate and Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, sponsored it in the House.

Sen. Thomas Strickland, D-Wayne, sponsored another bill to provide for licensing of child day care centers in North Carolina.

Under the bill, described as a compromise, an 11-member independent board would be set up to license day care centers. Five day care operators would be on the board.

Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, sponsored a bill to appropriate $4.9 million to set up a Central North Carolina School for the Deaf. The school would be designed for 240 pupils and probably would be located in the central portion of the state.

The House Committee of Legislative Redistricting divided itself into two subcommittees to work out realigning of House legislative membership districts. One group would work out redistricting in the eastern part of the state and the other would draft a plan for the western part of the state.

The joint Senate-House subcommittee, which met behind closed doors Tuesday and Wednesday, reunited and admitted newsmen to its session Thursday. The committee is considering a local option sales tax legislation.

Required Teaching Of Negro And Indian History Is Proposed

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to require the teaching of Negro and American Indian history in the public schools is now before the North Carolina General Assembly.

Rep. Joy J. Johnson, D-Robeson, one of two Negro legislators, introduced in the House the bill that would require the state Board of Education to include these

Valentines: Ridiculous To Serious

By CAROLYN A. BOWERS
NEW YORK (UPI)—Whether you have a heart mending job to do or are just "in the mood for love" when Valentine's Day comes around, you can run the gamut from the sublime to the ridiculous when it comes to selecting greeting cards.

wishes, Valentine's Day will be celebrated this year by the exchange of more than 500 million cards.

Steve Shannon, executive director of the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers, reported that a large percentage of these cards will feature humorous designs and messages with many incorporating pop-up mechanical actions and other surprises.

Shannon said these fun-type Valentines lean heavily on greetings that are short and incisive. There's one, for example, that states simply: "I don't care much about who's who — I just want to know who's whose! Be My Valentine, okay?"

Mrs. Phillips Is Club Hostess

Mrs. Anne Phillips presented the program at the meeting of the Inglis Fletcher Book Club held Tuesday morning at her home.

She told of her recent trip to Hong Kong, Maeao and to the World's Fair in Japan. She illustrated her talk with color slides.

Mrs. W. A. Pollard, president, led the business session. Mrs. H. R. Phillips will be hostess for the meeting on Feb. 23.

Guests were invited into the dining room where refreshments were served by the hostess.

Among the new creations are modern day versions of the old "slam" Valentines, like one which reads: "Valentine, I think one reason we get along so well is because we both like such Weird Offbeat Things ... like each other for instance!"

Over on the strictly nostalgic side, love and affection are making a strong bid to hold their traditional place. There still is an extremely wide range of warm-hearted Valentines notable for their beauty and romantic appeal. These have verses that speak of love in the good old fashioned way.

St. Valentine's Day, hasn't always been a whimsical holiday for exchanging light-hearted greetings with friends and sweethearts. The greeting card association reported that for 14 centuries, the church fought against the "pagan practices" which marked the lover's festival on Feb. 14. Then, for 200 years more, Valentine's Day was a very serious occasion calling for weeks of painstaking preparations.

As church opposition gradually declined, new problems arose to plague love-smitten swains. Composing new verses, year after year, became a problem. The Greeting Card Publishers Association reported the familiar "roses-are-red, violets-are-blue" theme was not only in use in the 1700s but popular young ladies already were beginning to complain that it was getting hackneyed.

Mrs. Hulsey Is Club Speaker

"Growing Lilies" was the subject of the meeting of the Brookgreen Garden Club which was held at the home of Mrs. Rland Davenport Wednesday morning.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Gilmer Hulsey, was introduced by Mrs. A. M. Mumford.

Mrs. Hulsey stated that the lily was first found in Asia. It was used in Greece for medical purposes, in art and in religious ceremonies.

The Europeans favored the flower for a vegetable and in the making of cosmetics. The lily became known during the Middle Ages as a religious symbol.

Mrs. Plato Evans, president, welcomed Mrs. Charles White Sr. as a new member. Mrs. Evans also gave hints for February for the home gardener.

Rev. Earnhardt Gives Program

The Rev. Daniel T. Earnhardt gave the first of a series of Bible studies to The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters on Tuesday night at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

He selected Revelations for the Bible study. The Rev. Earnhardt will continue the study at the March meeting of the group.

President Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell presided and opened the meeting. Standing committee reports were given. Mrs. Ray Lakken, corresponding secretary, read letters of thanks from the Greenville Nursing Home and Social Service Department for assistance given.

Yearbooks for 1971 were distributed. A new member, Miss Edith Mason of Rocky Mount, was announced. Members brought a sizeable amount of old eye glasses and jewelry to be sent to the "New Eyes For The Needy."

During the fellowship hour refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Mabel Turnage, Mrs. Shackell and Mrs. Cora S. Powell.

Is 20-Year-Old Playboy A Marriage Risk?

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Charles Scribner's Sons, Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a man who has been promiscuous for 20 years can ever reform? My 23-year-old niece has just become engaged to a 37-year-old man who, by his own admission, has been with so many women, he lost count long ago. This isn't just talk because this is a small town and his reputation is well-known.

He now says he is tired of running around and wants to settle down with a nice girl and become a respectable family man. My niece is fully aware of his past, but is willing to accept his word that he will change. My question is, can he change even if he wants to?

He is a very successful professional man and could give her all the material advantages, but I wonder if it's worth the risk. My niece says she will give serious consideration to your opinion or that of any readers who may have had experience along this line.

DUBIOUS

DEAR DUBIOUS: If you're asking whether it's possible for a man who has been swinging for 20 years to "settle down," the answer is yes. Is it worth the risk? That's for your niece to decide. [There is always a "risk." He could be a poorer risk if he just came out of a monastery.] My opinion, and the experience of others, won't help your niece. Men are like snowflakes. Each one is different.

DEAR ABBY: Tell me if I am out of line. My mother in law thinks I am too "overprotective" of my 3-year-old child, who happens to be her only grandchild. Here is a typical visit:

When the grandparents come, the child is virtually attacked at the front door, smothered with kisses and tossed around like a sack of potatoes. I wouldn't mind if it were only a greeting, but the wild kissing and tossing continues until the child cries. Then Grandma reprimands him for crying.

If I rescue him occasionally I am accused of being overprotective, and "spoilng her fun." Since when is it "fun" to tease a crying child?

The child gets along fine with his grandfather who approaches him slowly or waits for the boy to come to him. What's wrong with Grandma? Or am I out of line?

NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO TOWN: No, Grandma is. Someone should tell her to control her enthusiasm. Appeal to Grandpa since he shows better sense. If that fails, you tell Grandma as respectfully as you can.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "AT WITS END": It seems inconceivable to me that a registered nurse would be "ashamed" to take her child to the doctor with recurring pinworms. Quit treating the boy with over-the-counter drugs and get the child to the doctor! [Pinworms are not the "sign" of a dirty house.]

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

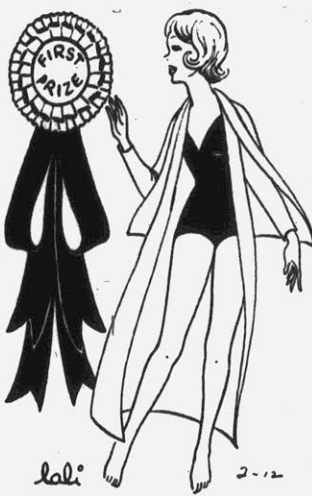

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

(This is the fifth and concluding article on reducing by spring fashion time.)

When it comes to reducing, most women are sisters under the skin. They diet and lose, only to gain again. Let's not have it happen to you. You can keep those pounds from creeping back by these measures:

Once reduced, continue to pattern your fare on your diet menus, but add 50 calories daily until you reach the normal intake of 2,200 to 2,500. Meantime weigh weekly. Should your weight rise as much as two pounds, make no further increase for several weeks. Then try again. Your weight will soon stop fluctuating. To keep it steady, just be steady in your eating.

Sample of 1,500 calorie daily menus. Breakfast. Sliced banana, half cup skim milk and 1 tsp. sugar; bran muffin, 1/2 pat butter; poached egg; coffee or tea, no sugar. Lunch. Tomato juice; frankfurter on roll, crisped sauerkraut; cup custard; no-cal beverage of choice. Dinner. Broiled lamb chop or 2 slices meat roast; 1/2 baked squash, stringbeans, crisped watercress, pickled beets; slice angel cake; demitasse. Plus, 1 pt. skim milk.

In addition to a sensible way of eating, a sensible exercise program contributes to the all-time loveliness of a trim, lithe, young figure. Daily walks, sports and your good old spot routines will see you through ... hold on to the prize figure you are now working to win.

Here's to you!

Local Firm Trying 4-Day Week

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A local business has become one of the first in this area to change operations from a five-day to four-day work week.

According to Bill Hudson, president of Hudson Business Machines here, his firm switched this week for the first time to the four-day work timetable and so far, he says, things are moving smoothly.

Hudson explained that after much discussion and planning within the company, the decision was made to implement the new work schedule. Employees, the president noted, were in favor of the change.

Essentially, the new schedule involves an additional two hours per day for four days for each employee although the number of hours the business remains open will be the same.

Hudson said that he had divided his six-man work force into two groups; one working on a Monday through Thursday ten-hour per day schedule, the second group on a Tuesday through Friday timetable.

"We are coming in an hour earlier and leaving an hour later each day," Hudson pointed out, "but our business hours are the same."

The company president said that several factors favored the change to the four-day work schedule.

One of the most important, he said, was the fact that most of his employees travel to other cities in their work and by leaving Greenville an hour earlier and having an extra hour in another city, the firm is getting two hours per day more working time in each territory.

Another plus, Hudson noted, is the fact that he only has to pay expenses for four days for an employee, rather than five formerly when a man was on the road each day of the week.

The employees seem to have a better attitude toward the new schedule, Hudson noted. He added that he also feels his employees will be more productive because of their attitudes.

The company head pointed out that the day off during the week would afford his employees time to handle personal business when other firms are open.

Hudson said that as far as he knew, his firm was one of the first, if not the first in Greenville to make the change to the four-day work week.

Several plant officials in Greenville said that the possibilities of going to the four-day week have been discussed but none said that any immediate plans were being made to change their schedules.

Generally, they said that they felt their operations would not fit into a four-day schedule at this time and pointed out that the use of several working shifts in their plants would make such a change complicated.

Lloyd Nooe, manager of the Greenville office of the State Employment Security Commission, said that he knew of no other firms in town that have gone to the four-day week and added that he understood it was mostly in the talking stages here.

A plant manager at one of the industries in Farmville noted that he has discussed the possibility of making the change with many of his employees and indicated that most of them were in favor of the change.

The manager said that he planned to discuss the system around the plant and give the employees time to express their opinions on the matter before making a decision on whether to change.

Another manager in Farmville said that he did not have any plans at this time to go to the four-day week and doubted that the system would be effective at his plant.

Most officials point out that there are some situations where the four-day week would not be feasible and the efficiency of their employees on a ten-hour a day system could be a major factor.

United Methodist Mission To Begin In City On Sunday

Dr. Harry Denman will conduct a three-day "Greater Greenville United Methodist Preaching Mission" beginning Sunday.

The mission is being held through the cooperation of Greenville's three United Methodist Churches. In making the announcement, the pastors said the three congregations are working together for the success of the mission.

Though a layman, Dr. Denman was executive director of the National Board of Evangelism of the United Methodist Church for 25 years. Dr. Billy Graham calls Dr. Denman "the greatest lay evangelist of our time."

He will initiate the services at Jarvis Memorial at 7:45 p.m. Sunday Feb. 14, and follow that with a service at 10 a.m. Morning at Jarvis Memorial for the members of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the three congregations.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings at 7:30 he will preach at St. James. Supplementing his preaching at the two churches, Dr. Denman will be the speaker Tuesday and Wednesday mornings from 8:25 to 8:30 for the "Morning Meditations" over Channel 9, WNCT-TV.

On Tuesday morning he will be interviewed on the "Carolina Today" program on Channel 9.

Dr. Denman will remain in Greenville to be the featured speaker for the Greenville District of the N.C. United Methodist Church "Laymen's Rally" to be held at Jarvis Memorial Wednesday night.

The meeting will begin with supper at 5 p.m. and the rally will start at 7 p.m. with Judge J. W. H. Roberts, district lay leader, presiding.

The Rev. Howard McLamb, Greenville District superintendent, will represent the North Carolina Conference at the district rally.

The three Methodist churches cooperating in bringing Dr. Denman to Greenville are: Jarvis Memorial, Rev. Troy J. Barrett and Rev. A. E. Brown, pastors; St. James, Rev. Christian White and Rev. Gerald Peterson, pastors; and Holy Trinity, Rev. Roy Turnage, pastor.

Plan Week Of Revival

Revival services begin Monday evening at the First Wesleyan Church with the Rev. E. C. Swanson as evangelist.

Services will start each evening at 7:30 and will continue through Sunday. The Rev. Swanson has served the Wesleyan Church in various capacities, including the pastorate and district superintendent. He makes his home in Kernersville.

The pastor of the local church, H. A. Lewis, extends an invitation to the public to attend. The church is located on Highway 43 south.

N.C. Jobless Rate Grows

RALEIGH (AP) — Unemployment is up again in North Carolina.

The jobless rate in every major Tar Heel industry increased during January, with the state paying more than $6.5 million in unemployment benefits, according to the state Employment Security Commission.

In a report issued Thursday, the commission said that insured unemployment averaged 52,449 workers each week in January — a rise of over one third over the figure for December.

Major jobless gains were registered in construction with 7.9 per cent insured unemployment; textiles with 4.2 per cent; tobacco with 16.7 per cent; and hosiery with 13.8 per cent insured unemployment.

In overall unemployment in the state, construction jobless figures more than doubled in January.

The statewide average for all industries was 3.9 unemployment for January, one per cent higher than the figure for January, 1970.

The bidding:

Pass Pass 1 Pass

Opening lead: King of ♦

Today we lay to rest another of those hoary precepts of play which bridge has inherited from its predecessor, whist, namely "Never Trump Your Partner's Ace." East committed this seeming indiscretion with telling effect against his opponent's game contract.

When the bidding proceeded to South in third seat, he decided to open with four hearts. Inasmuch as his partner was a passed hand there appeared to be little prospect of a slam. On the other hand, game would depend merely on finding one or two slight values in the North hand, and if it should turn out that North had very little to contribute then surely the opposition could make a score their way. West showed admirable restraint in passing. Had he bid five diamonds, his loss would have been recorded in four figures.

West opened the king of diamonds against four hearts, and observing the fall of his partner's six, he continued with the ace. East in the meantime had been doing some thinking. If he took a routine discard on West's high diamond, the latter would undoubtedly continue the suit in the hope that East could overruff the dummy. However, either the dummy's six or seven of hearts could top East's trump and, after the adverse hearts are drawn by South, the latter would be able to discard whatever losers he had on North's high clubs.

East saw that the only chance to defeat the contract was to find his partner with the ace of spades in which case a lead through declarer's king might net two more tricks. However, if East were ever going to gain the lead, it was now or never, so he detached the three of trumps from his hand and placed it squarely on his partner's ace of diamonds. His astuteness was duly rewarded when the queen of spades return did in fact produce the tricks required to set the bid.

Replacing Power Lines Needed

The Utilities Commission has proceeded properly in authorizing the rebuilding of a number of weakened power lines around the county.

Most of these lines have been weakened by storms and other disruptions, which makes continued repair of them nearly impossible. Since many of the trouble spots showed up in a recent ice storm, funds had not been budgeted for the current year to do much of the work.

However, the commissioners first responsibility is to keep adequate power flowing to its customers as long as it is possible. Thus these projects should take precedence over other work.

Projects outlined for immediate rebuilding are:

- Stokes Highway from N.C. 11 to Stokes.

- Stokes to Pactolus.
- Mumford Road from N.C. 11 to Pactolus Highway.
- Highway 30 from N. Greene to east of Shady Knoll.
- N.C. 11 from Stokes Highway to end of line.
- Tar/Road Extension.
- Chestnut Street from Grande to Paris.
- Memorial Drive.

A similar project in the Calico area has been completed.

Director Charles Horne told the commission that these were the most immediately needed projects. There may be other areas around the county which are nearly as bad and the commission should watch the system closely to make certain that weakened lines are not left to be toppled over by an ice or strong wind storm.

Replacing power lines can be expensive; however electricity is a necessity in the rural areas, as well as in the municipalities these days and no effort should be spared to keep the power flowing.

Most Cussed And Discussed

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — The venerable ad valorem property tax is the most cussed and discussed levy in North Carolina.

Now is the time for both. Grouchy taxpayers beating the listing deadline are doing the first, and members of the General Assembly considering a rewrite of laws basic to the tax are doing the second.

That's not all. The courts will have a say, too. A case on appeal, sure to go to the State Supreme Court, challenges the way Wilson County commissioners arrived at valuations for tax purposes on urban and rural real property.

While the discussion and debate goes on, one conclusion already is clear. The property tax is the staple revenue source for local property tax be such a target for abuse when it's so important for financing local government services?

Criticism Is Easy "Because it's so exposed," said Lewis. "The property tax is administered by people you know right down the street, not somebody remote in Raleigh or Washington."

There also is no painless method of extraction, like income tax withholding, nor easy pay-as-you-go collection as with the sales tax, but one sock-it-to-you bill to make the property-owner keenly aware of the total take. Methods of assessment and valuation leave many taxpayers with the feeling they're getting a raw deal.

Complaining to local officials is a privilege taxpayers can easily exercise, and they do so in a crescendo that prompts many counties and cities to search for other sources (such as state and federal sharing) rather than use the property tax as fully as they might.

The case can be made, statistically, that the property tax is under-utilized in North Carolina. For example, only seven states levy less property tax per capita; only eight levy less per $1,000 of personal income; and only seven rank lower on the basis of a percentage of total tax revenue.

Comparing on the basis of the property tax alone, Lewis admitted, one could reach the conclusion that local governments could extract a great deal more revenue with the property tax if they had to do so.

Still, he went on, the total tax bite is what counts. For example, while the property tax in North Carolina is low compared to other states, its state income tax rate is high.

Revision Updates Law Representative David W. Bumgardner, Jr., of Gaston was chairman of the study commission which produced the revision of the property tax law.

A principal objective is bringing its provisions up to date. The last general overhaul was in 1939, and some provisions date well before that time. Clarity is important since the law must be administered by local officials who are not always professionals in the field.

Recent years have brought growing unhappiness among urban property owners with what they feel is favoritism shown by rural-dominated boards of county commissioners in the valuation of farm property.

Dissatisfaction has been keen enough to initiate legal challenges from Wilson, Wayne and Martin.

governments and likely to remain so. Unpopular it may be, both with taxpayers and tax collectors, but it's been around a long time and nothing is in sight to replace it.

"I see absolutely no possibility of anywhere else to go," said Henry W. Lewis. An assistant director of the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill, Lewis had expertise based on 25 years' study, research and observation. He served as consultant to the study commission which brought in the revision, first in 30 years, of property tax laws.

Local Government Mainstay Dependence of counties and cities on the property tax was underscored by the recent State Supreme Court decision wiping out the local option sales tax. In the 25 counties which had adopted it, and others considering a vote on it, the persuasive argument in favor of the sales tax was that it would take pressure off the property tax.

Legislators are looking for the way out of the dilemma posed by the court's decision. By some means and to some extent the sales tax probably will again be used as a local revenue source.

The mainstay still will be the property tax. It produces more than 91 per cent of all tax revenue for the 100 counties, and around 96 per cent for 425 municipalities.

Granted that no tax enjoys popularity, why should the

Bad Feelings Linger After Racial Strife

Wilmington is the latest of North Carolina cities to be hit with racial strife, but hopefully the worst of the trouble is over there.

However, justified or not, there will be bad feeling remaining between the two races for sometime. Thus it is important that every effort be made to open up lines of communications between people there to help clear up misunderstandings.

It will take time for results to show but if public officials proceed carefully at Wilmington reasonable leadership will emerge and some progress can be made in solving the community's problems.

$ Mills Ponders 'New Package'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the cover of public sparring over revenue sharing between Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas and President Nixon, the wizard of the Ways and Means Committee is pondering a legislative package that could demolish White House grand strategy.

Mills is now working in the backstage manner of Capitol Hill's great legislative craftsmen: seeking expert counsel, making no commitments, considering all ideas. If the pieces don't fit together, Mills' presently vague outlines will never surface. If they do, Mr. Nixon may well be preempted on the national welfare crisis and financial insolvency of the states — vital components in his reform program and his 1972 campaign.

For two weeks, Mills has been hinting that his House Ways and Means Committee might, as a substitute for Mr. Nixon's revenue sharing, have the Federal government take over most or all of the grotesquely expanding welfare programs. What is not well-known is that Mills now contemplates combining this takeover with a top-to-bottom overhaul of welfare programs going far beyond the President's proposals — an audacious initiative whose full political significance is only dimly realized in the White House today.

Thus, the Nixon White House has misread Wilbur Mills twice in rapid succession. First, it incorrectly assumed Mills could be pressured into support of revenue sharing. Second, when Mills proclaimed his unequivocal opposition to revenue sharing, the White House incorrectly assumed that he and Democrats would be sitting targets as obstructionists blocking reform.

Instead, Mills is seeking an alternative, seizing the initiative from the White House. The vehicle is none other than the first bill in Mr. Nixon's reform program: his welfare reform, including family assistance payments, which passed the House last year under Mills' sponsorship but died in the Senate.

In the new Congress the White House has been counting on Mills' rushing this welfare reform, tied to a universally popular Social Security increase, through the House before spring. In this, Mr. Nixon may be bitterly preempted. With Mills now considering the use of welfare reform as this vehicle for a revenue sharing substitute, there will be pressure — perhaps irresistible pressure — to disconnect the Social Security increase and pass it immediately. Without the Social Security sweetener, welfare reform would have hard going in the House.

The alternative sweetener contemplated by Mills is a gradual Federal takeover of increasingly burdensome welfare programs (where the state-local share of $7.5 billion in the current fiscal year climbs to $9.7 billion next year and ever upward in future years).

But Mills would not countenance a Federal takeover, in whole or part, of the sloppy congeries of state welfare programs that have so outraged middle-class America. Rather, taking over the financing and administering of welfare would require a top-to-bottom overhaul with stringent tightening up of eligibility requirements.

Strength For Today

NO ESCAPE

Is the Church becoming more powerful in the world today or less powerful? Church leaders everywhere are alarmed at the way membership is going down. When ministers are outstanding and their congregations eager to hear the Word preached and to take part in fellowship with other believers — these churches are suffering but little. One of the great factors of encouragement is first, that the clergymen in all branches of the Church are men of outstanding education and tremendous commitment. Some people believe that they are too much committed to matters of public interest. But these matters of public interest are usually humanitarian. People need to be lifted up, fed, given that sense of fellowship which comes when Christian brethren everywhere are touched by the plight of so much pathetic suffering in the world.

When the events of the New Testament were occurring there was not a single hospital in the entire world. Medical science was so primitive that the word "science," in the sense that we understand it today, could not be applied to most situations of need and to the treatment accorded it.

Let us not lose hope in the Church. There is less bigotry today than there has ever been and more tolerance and brotherly feeling between believers in the different branches of the Church.

Although the Church cannot assume responsibility for making over a troubled world, nevertheless a troubled world cannot be set right without strong and meaningful churches. Clergymen and laity alike have a responsibility resting upon them. There is no escape — and no decent person wants escape.

Be Patriots, Consume!

WASHINGTON — In order for President Nixon's new economic game plan to work, the United States must increase its gross national product by 9 percent to $1,065 billion. That is to say, this country must produce that amount of goods and services in 1971 whether it needs to or not.

Now it isn't enough to just produce that amount of goods and services. Someone has to buy them.

Unless Mr. John Q. Consumer becomes a big spender, all Mr. Nixon's economic hopes for the country will go down the drain.

It is for this reason that the President has set up a Commission on Wild Spending to see that every American does his share to meet the $1,065 billion GNP goal.

The plan is to swear in several hundred thousand federal marshals to go around the country and persuade people to spend more money than they've ever spent before.

This is how it would work: "Mr. and Mrs. Moore, my name is Coleman and I'm from the UGNP." "UNGP?" "Yes, it stands for 'up the gross national product.' Our U.S. Army civilian files on you indicate that you haven't

Other Editors Say Costs Of Waste

(Christian Science Monitor)

Widespread negativism, rather than technological unreadiness, was the biggest challenge faced by those attending the recent Recycling Day meeting in New York.

The negativism about America's willingness to meet its mammoth waste-disposal problem was put this way by one environment writer: "There is at present no real economic rationale for recycling. With some infrequent exceptions, it is simply cheaper in today's economy to produce new cars, bottles, paper, cloth, and metal products than to mess around with used stuff."

The rationale that the cheapest way is the best way to run an economy can no longer be left unchallenged. Even to say this has already a hauntingly too-familiar ring. But evidently the argument for recycling and more efficient handling of wastes, even at the cost of production and life-style changes, must be made again.

The volume of wastes in America is put at over a million tons a day. The yearly price tag for disposal amounts to over $4 billion. Disposal of wastes is at the heart of the environment's decay. It is wastes from industrial plants and municipalities that befoul rivers. The burning and hilling up of solid wastes contributes to air pollution and landscape unsightliness. Landfill sites are dwindling. Dumping in lake and coastal waters is now recognized as an ecological threat. Cans and bottles, without deposit bounties, stud streambeds and backcountry paths. Urban lots and alleys accumulate trash. Abandoned cars clog city arteries. Aggregating refuse, in a sense, is a symbol of modern industrial man's failure to match his ingenuity with rudimentary tidiness.

The waste problem is more than an environmental or even a disposal issue; it is also a matter of waste in the most fundamental sense. As productive woodlands are overcut, the recycling of paper would help conserve pulp. Within a century other basic resource materials like oil, tin, zinc, aluminum are expected to run out unless a reuse system is adopted.

No doubt, substitutes of many kinds will be discovered to replace dwindling resources. But it seems only prudent for society to begin mastering the skills and disciplines of recycling—to husband as far as possible present resources, and to help restore its earth setting to its rightful freshness.

bought a new car this year." "Oh, that's easy to explain. We have a car already and it's in good condition."

"We are?" "Yes, you are. Do you consider yourselves loyal patriotic Americans?"

"Of course."

"Then why haven't you bought any furniture lately? Or jewelry or luggage or color television sets or snowmobiles or dishwashers or hot pants?"

Inflation May Slow, Not Stop

By ELMER ROESSNER

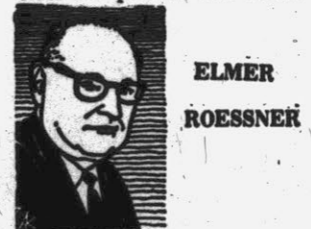

An increasing number of government and private economists, and a scattering of politicians, are saying that the rate of inflation is slowing or will soon be slowing. They are influenced, perhaps, by the buoyancy of the stock market and the decline in interest rates, shoved down by the Federal Reserve Board.

But nobody has predicted that inflation will be halted. The reason: it won't be. Recent experience underscores this point.

Negotiations between oil companies and the Persian Gulf oil-producing nations will lead to higher gas and oil prices in the United States. Huge losses suffered by most domestic and transatlantic airlines mean that they will have to be allowed to increase fares or cut services even more. Postage rates are about to go up, placing heavy burdens on businesses as well as families.

More To Come Most of the wage agreements negotiated in 1970 have been in wage increases for 1971 and many for 1972; these will be met by rises in prices. The mean wage and benefit package agreed to last year provides an increase of 9.1 per cent a year over the life of the contract.

Construction workers appear to have obtained the juiciest apples. The mean increase for the life of the contract was 15.3 per cent. No worker got less than 7 per cent; 6 per cent got from 9 to 11 per cent; 19 per cent got 11 to 13 per cent; 27 per cent 13 to 15 per cent; 17 per cent got from 15 to 17 per cent; 13 per cent got between 17 and 25 per cent, and 9 per cent got 25 per cent and over.

This year's wage negotiations have started ominously. Teachers, policemen and firemen in many cities across the country have been reinforcing demands for substantial pay increase by strikes and job actions. Higher wages for civil servants mean higher taxes and a greater demand for tenders, all of which are inflationary.

And More In New York City, striking garage attendants rejected an offer of $40-a-week increases to end a strike. These, of course, are highly skilled men; they have to know how to drive a car.

And the inflationary push of all may be the Steelworkers' demands for a new agreement succeeding the one that expires on July 31. The steel companies have already made some increases in prices because profits last year were low. This will cause the men to figure that, if the steel companies can get price increases despite grows from the White House, the steel companies can meet any demand and simply raise prices.

Some farm products and some nonferrous metals have recently receded in price, and there are more coming. But, in the main, prices of most things will continue upward.

It should be noted that five million unemployed, or even twice that, will not frighten the average union away from demanding higher wages. In fact, it may cause them to stiffen demands on the theory that if they get more money, their spending will create jobs for the unemployed.

Student Critics To Get Hearing

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Trustees have told students demanding the ouster of Dr. Charles Lyons as president of Fayetteville State University that they will be given a full hearing when they can substantiate their charges.

The Student Government Association has charged that Dr. Lyons has been reactionary in his rule.

Trustees met Thursday and then told the students to substantiate their claim.

A boycott of most of the students of the predominantly Negro school began Monday and ended temporarily Thursday pending the meeting of the trustees. During the week some students held a rally in front of Lyons's home and burned him in effigy.

Dr. Lyons issued—and then retracted—a statement Thursday warning boycotters that their academic credits and financial aid were in jeopardy if they continued their absence from classes.

No reason was given for the retraction.

However, Superior Court Judge Thomas Cooper has issued a restraining order preventing Lyons from issuing news releases or making statements which might damage a professor whose firing helped touch off the boycott.

Begin Planning For A New High School

WILLIAMSTON — Members of the Martin County Commissioners and the Board of Education met recently with representatives of the Department of Public Instruction and the State Highway Commission from Raleigh to shape up final preliminary plans for a new Williamston High School.

Eugene Rogers, Superintendent of Martin County Schools, said the joint meeting was designed to coordinate all the final details about the location of the projected Williamston High School. Among details he mentioned were the assurance that the site in mind did not conflict with planned highway construction around Williamston; and the availability of the site.

"We need to get the site nailed down," Rogers commented, stating that this phase of planning has blocked getting into final action on getting started on the new school.

Rogers commented that he feels now chances are good to move on with the Williamston High School project. Another school in the Gold Point area, part of the total school plan for Martin County, was also discussed at the meeting.

Evans, Novak

Such a program would emancipate New York, California, and other big states doomed to perpetual fiscal calamity because of rising welfare burdens. But, contrary to White House contentions, its appeal is not limited to big Northern states. Rather, many Southern Democrats view it as a politically palatable alternative to Nixon revenue sharing.

Actually, a Federal takeover of welfare does not answer an original Mills objection to revenue sharing: the Federal government still would be siphoning money to the states when it is deeply in the red. But the Mills alternative would have great appeal for Congressmen by not also siphoning off power and prestige to the states as Mr. Nixon contemplates under revenue sharing.

Apart from New York City, Los Angeles, and other large cities with heavy welfare costs local government would not be pleased with this arrangement and would keep pressing for revenue sharing. But, almost surely pressure from the states for general revenue sharing would subside. Revenue sharing hearings promised by Mills for early spring would become a charade.

The choices faced by Mr. Nixon would be excruciating. Could he oppose a Democratic bill containing his cherished family assistance payments and substantial financial relief to the states? And, if the bill passed, could Mr. Nixon really veto it? Thus does the political significance of all this become clear.

Rep. Jones Will Speak

Congressman Walter B. Jones is to be guest speaker Monday night at the general monthly meeting of the Greenville-Pitt County Chapter of the Provisional League of Women Voters.

The meeting, to be held at 8:00 p. m. in the City Council Chambers on the third floor of City Hall, will be open to the general public. Jones is scheduled to speak on the topic "The Congressman — How he Sees His Job."

After his speech, he will accept questions for discussion from the audience.

At the 1970 League of Women Voters Convention, the interest of League delegates in a study of the U. S. Congress was brought about by the crisis at home and abroad. The main objective adopted by the league is "to help make our representative system work better by promoting community knowledge and interest concerning the U. S. Congress."

best representation possible and I don't think we would do it under a unicameral system of one body," Quinn said.

Another veteran, Rep. Allen Barbee D-Nash, said the present two-house plan "is a vital part of our check and balance system. I wouldn't be in favor of changing it."

Barbee said that under a unicameral system, the governor would almost have to have veto power as a safeguard against possible bad legislation.

The dean of the House, Rep. James B. Vogler, D-Mecklenburg, said, "I don't like the proposal. The people have the best protection when there are two bodies to scrutinize bills."

Rep. Clarence Leatherman, D-Lincoln, said he feels the one-body system "should be looked at closely from a standpoint of economy, efficiency and representation. I'm one that believes there is room in any area for improvement. I don't know whether this would be an improvement, but we should take a look at it."

Sens. Lamar Gudger and I. C. Crawford, both Democrats from Buncombe, agreed with Barbee that the present system offers the "best check and balance" in scrutinizing legislation.

Rep. Carl Venters, D-Onslow, said that by going to a one-house body, "You'd be taking away representation from the people."

"I have known instances where one body would approve a bill knowing that it probably would be killed in the other body," Venters said.

Rep. Ed McKnight, R-Forsyth, said he is not for or against a unicameral system, but he added, "I'm not totally sold that two bodies are necessary."

McKnight said he lived for two years in Nebraska, the only state with a unicameral system, and found the people there generally liked it.

Sen. David Flaherty, R-Caldwell, said, "I don't agree with Pat (Taylor). I feel we need the check and balance system of two houses. We have more representation of the people under our present legislative setup." Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, also frowned on the proposal. He said that while he was a student at the University of North Carolina in 1948 he did a political paper on the unicameral system. "I think our present system is best. You have more representation under it," he said. "I think the present system is good," said Rep. J. F. Mohn, D-Onslow.

Took $15,029 In Bank Holdup

STANLEYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The amount which two gunmen got away with from a bank in Stanleyville near Winston-Salem Thursday has been reported as $15,029.21.

The pair, in their late 20s, got the cash from the Stanleyville branch of the Commercial and Farmers' Bank.

It was the fourth bank holdup in North Carolina this year. The others were at Fayetteville, Raleigh, and in Nelson in Durham County.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 14's moon explorers returned home today, held a reunion with their families through a glass panel, then began two more weeks of isolation in the Lunar Receiving Laboratory.

An Air Force C141 jet transport flew them to nearby Ellington Air Force Base, landing at 4:34 a.m. EST after a flight of more than 14 hours from American Samoa.

Alan B. Shepard Jr., Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa were confined in a quarantine trailer, which was taken to the Manned Spacecraft Center, where the spacemen transferred to the lab.

Flying Lon Nol To U.S. Care

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Plans are being made to fly Gen. Lon Nol, Cambodia's ailing premier, to the United States for treatment, informed sources reported today.

The sources said Lon Nol probably would leave Phnom Penh in the next few days. Presumably a U.S. military plane will take him to Washington and he will enter Walter Reed Hospital.

The Cambodian military command's spokesman, Lt. Col. Am Rong, reported today that he saw the premier Thursday night and he had recovered sufficiently to receive visitors and sign documents.

Lon Nol was stricken earlier this week, either by a heart attack or a stroke that left him partly paralyzed.

"He is not entirely paralyzed and yesterday he was able to begin to move again," Am Rong said.

Deputy Premier Sisowath Sirik Matak has taken over the duties of premier and defense minister. Am Rong said Lon Nol had been able to advise Sirik Matak on affairs of state and had talked to a large number of civilians and army officers who visited him.

The spokesman said the premier's doctors are predicting complete recovery "in one or two months."

Pirates Seek Win Against The Citadel

Buc Backers To Go On Jax Trip

Fly the friendly skies to see the Pirates play unfriendly Artis Gilmore & Company.

That's the sales pitch the East Carolina University basketball team is using as it invites its fans to fly with the team aboard a chartered jet to Jacksonville, Fla., later this month for a big game against nationally ranked Jacksonville U.

Captain Tom Quinn and his team plan to charter a jet to fly to the Florida city on Sunday, Feb. 21, returning immediately after the game on Monday night, Feb. 22.

For $90 a fan or ECU booster will get a seat aboard the plane, a room for two days and one night at the beautiful Thunderbird Motel in Jacksonville, and a ticket to the 8 p.m. game between the Pirates and the fifth-ranked Dolphins in the Jacksonville Coliseum.

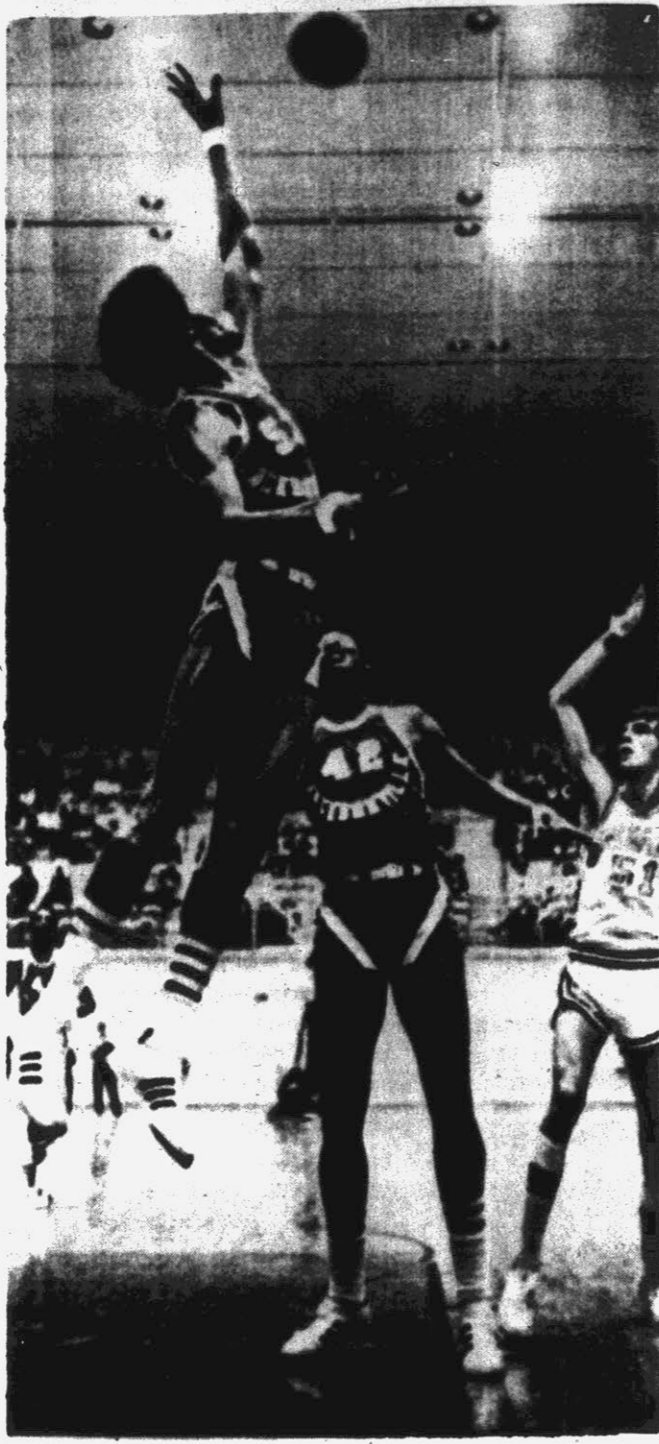

"We think it will be a fun trip for our fans and a good boost for our basketball team," said ECU Athletic Business Manager Bill Cain, who is organizing the charter trip. "A businessman, for example, can enjoy a two-day trip to Florida, see a good college basketball game and still be back at his office first thing Tuesday morning."

Last year the Pirates and Dolphins, the latter led by 7-foot-2 All-American center Artis Gilmore — played one of the most exciting games of the basketball season. Jacksonville prevailed, 111-94, in the contest which was played before a packed-house in Minges Coliseum.

Persons interested in the charter trip with the Pirates should contact Bill Cain at the Athletic Ticket Office in Minges Coliseum (phone 758-6470).

"There are only 20 seats available," said Cain, "so we are urging fans to make their reservations with us right now."

Doubleheader Set On Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — The North-South Doubleheader used to match two basketball teams from the state of North Carolina against two from South Carolina. Last year, they let in Georgia Tech, which replaced South Carolina, and the other teams had too light a regard for the Yellow Jackets, who went on to win the round-robin tournament.

It won't be so this year in the 13th annual tournament which starts tonight in the Charlotte, N. C., Coliseum. Tech, 15-5, plays North Carolina, 14-3 in the first game. Then North Carolina State, 10-7, meets Clemson, 7-11.

The teams switch Saturday night, Clemson playing North Carolina and Tech meeting N. C. State.

Independent Tech used its victory in the tournament last year as a springboard to the National Invitational Tournament, and will be trying to do the same. The other three teams are members of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Doubleheader games tonight are the only ones involving ACC teams. But on Saturday, besides the Doubleheader games, Duke will be at Maryland in a televised afternoon game and Virginia will be at Wake Forest.

Center Rich Yunkus of Georgia Tech, who dominated last year's tournament in Charlotte, is back, along with guard Jim Thorne, who also played well. Yunkus has a 27.8 scoring average this year. He scored 47 points against North Carolina last year.

North Carolina, ranked 11th in the nation this week, has won nine of its last 10 games, blending teamwork and fine defense. Dennis Wuycik is averaging 19.4 points to lead the Tar Heels in scoring. In their last game, a 65-63 victory over North Carolina State on State's home court Monday night, it was Bill Chamberlain who led the way for the Tar Heels with 18 points. And center Lee Dedmon, who will face Yunkus, had 14.

North Carolina state has dropped its last two games, to Virginia and North Carolina. They also lost 59-50 in mid-January to Clemson, which broke a six-game losing streak. Shortly before that game, Clemson had stayed close to North Carolina until the last five minutes, when the Tar Heels broke the game open to win 92-72.

Milwaukee Rips Lakers, 122-88

By BOB GREENE — MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lew Alcindor won his "battle of the giants," but it was the "little" superstars that decided the game.

Milwaukee's 7-foot-2 sophomore center scored 31 points and grabbed 21 rebounds as the Bucks demolished the Los Angeles Lakers, 122-88, in a National Basketball Association game Thursday night.

In other games, San Diego beat San Francisco 119-111 and Seattle defeated Cincinnati 119-101.

In the American Basketball Association, Virginia trimmed the Floridians 125-119 and Pittsburgh upended New York 114-110.

The Lakers' 7-foot-1 Wilt Chamberlain, the greatest scoring machine the NBA has ever seen, tallied just 25 points and picked off 11 cars.

Still, it was the other two superstars on the court that made the big difference.

Milwaukee's Oscar Robertson pumped in 19 points, grabbed nine rebounds and was credited with nine assists.

The Lakers' Jerry West was held to just six points, hitting only one of seven shots from the field, and watched the game dejectedly from the bench as time ran out.

Tight-lipped and talking even softer than usual, West intimated afterwards that the Laker defeat could be pinned on Chamberlain getting the ball too much.

"You've got to move the ball to win," West said. "We had been moving the ball well and not going in to Wilt. I think we went to him too much tonight."

Chamberlain, not surprisingly, disagreed. "We just weren't hitting out shots," the former Kansas star said.

It was in the first half that Alcindor, a sophomore in the NBA, handed Chamberlain in his 12th year in the league, his worst beating of their two-year-old rivalry.

In the first two periods, Alcindor popped in 22 points and grabbed 17 rebounds, while Chamberlain was limited to 12 and seven.

"You're not going to contain guys like Lew or Oscar all of the time," Chamberlain said. "You've got to score on your end of the floor in order to stick with the Bucks."

West, however, never mentioned the Lakers' anemic 32 per cent shooting from the floor.

Calvin Murphy came off the bench to key San Diego's conquest of San Francisco. Murphy collected 10 points in the fourth quarter after the Rockets' 23-point lead in the second period had been wiped out by the Warriors.

San Francisco had cut the deficit to 84-79 when Murphy took over. He wound up with 26 points while teammate Stu Lantz topped San Diego with 31.

Nate Thurmond led the Warriors with 29 points and he also held the Rockets' high-scoring Elvin Hayes to 16. Jeff Mullins added 27 for San Francisco.

Spiders Shock Furman, 106-87

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Richmond's Spiders, owning the indistinction of being the only team this season to lose to VMI, has surprised Furman and probably Spider Coach Lew Mills with a 106-87 Southern Conference basketball victory over the Paladins.

Thursday night's victory was almost a reversal of the last Richmond-Furman get together Jan. 14 when the Paladins won 101-77.

Sophomores Mike Anastasio and Roger Hatcher led the way with 29 and 18 points respectively as Richmond rang up its largest point total of the season.

Reserve Ray Amann was next with 14 points and a like number of rebounds.

Russ Hunt paced Furman with 31 points and grabbed 14 rebounds.

Nicklaus Likes PGA's Course

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Former champion Jack Nicklaus tested the site of the 1971 PGA Championship and liked what he saw.

"It's a great course ... a fine golfing test,"

Nicklaus played several balls Thursday around the PGA National East Course, where the Professional Golfers Association plays its showdown Feb. 25-28.

"Stronger players have an advantage," he said. "Water comes into play on several holes, but the wind is the real demon you have to contend with."

Nicklaus, one of golf's longest hitters, was forced to use a three-wood on one par-three hole. "It was 232 yards into the wind," he said.

Nicklaus lives within minutes of PGA National Club, but had not played the course since 1966 when he teamed with Arnold Palmer to win the National Four-Ball Tourney.

Towering Artis Gilmore scored only two points, but it didn't make any difference as sixth-ranked Jacksonville, befuddled by William & Mary's slowdown tactics in the early going, got untracked midway through the first half and romped to a 100-69 victory over the Indians.

Gilmore's mere presence was enough to convince the Indians they were in over their heads. The nation's top rebounder had 14 and blocked numerous shots.

Ernie Fleming dropped in 30 points for the winning Dolphins while Harold Fox knothed 15 as Jacksonville moved to a 17-2 overall.

Tom Jasper packed the punchless William & Mary attack with 18 points.

There is no scheduled conference activity tonight.

East Carolina University's Pirates make their last Southern Conference road trip Saturday, going to Charleston, S. C., to meet the Bulldogs of The Citadel.

The game ranks as a key one for the Pirates in their quest for a third-straight second place finish in the league. But the Bulldogs may have other ideas. They have been surprising this year, and have their best team in a number of seasons under the guidance of Coach Dick Campbell.

"They've been helped by several junior college transfers," ECU Coach Tom Quinn said. One of these has been prominent in The Citadel's rise this year, John Sutor.

The 6-8, 225-pounder led the Southern Conference for a number of weeks in rebounding, before ECU's Al Faber and Jim Gregory passed him just a few weeks ago. He's still pulling down a healthy 11.4 per game. Sutor is also the leading Bulldog scorer, averaging 13.3 points per game. Guard Ben Ledbetter is the second leading scorer with a 12.6 average.

Sutor also ranks as one of the better field goal shooters, hitting 50.7, while teammate Mike Ruddle is getting 53.5 per cent of his shots. Ledbetter is the top free throw shooter in the league, sinking 82.8 per cent of his charity throws.

The Bulldogs are currently 10-9 overall and 4-3 in the league, just a half-game behind the Pirates. They have been averaging just one point less than the Bucs, but have allowed a point and a half less. They lead the league in field goal percentage, 46.5, while the Bucs are at 43.6. And they are second in free throw percentage, 71.0, while the Bucs are sixth at 65.4.

And while East Carolina is the strongest rebounding team in the league, getting 56.5 per cent of the loose balls, the Bulldogs rank high too, capturing 51 per cent.

Quinn notes that this may be a key phase of the game, and that the two teams are about equal in height. "I think the choice of shots, and the defense will be the keys," he added. "The best defense could bring about the win."

While Quinn admitted that it was a key game if the Pirates are to regain second place, he noted that this was not the Pirate objective. "We just want to continue to improve our play, keep playing our game, finish strong and get as much experience for our younger players as we can. We want to arrive at the tournament in good spirits with momentum and depth."

Quinn said that he was pleased with the way the team has been playing. "We've improved," he said, "and we're getting good team effort. Our young players are making mistakes, but they are positive mistakes."

Mike Henrich, who missed the Southern Mississippi game with a charliehorse, is expected to be ready to go against The Citadel and probably will return to the starting lineup. "We expect to be 100 per cent healthy," the coach said.

It will be the job of The Citadel to stop the scoring of the Pirate front line. Jim Gregory, who has come on strong in the past two weeks, has moved into the Conference lead in scoring, and is nearing the school's three-year scoring record. Al Faber, besides his league-leading rebounding, is also scoring well, and Dave Franklin, who replaced Jim Fairley in the lineup, is hitting at a good clip, getting his season high of 31 against Southern Mississippi in the last outing.

After the game, the Pirates take a week off before returning to Minges Coliseum to play host to William & Mary next Saturday.

Prep Tankers Meeting Here

Forty-one high school swimming teams, representing four different states, will participate in the 16th Annual Atlantic Seaboard Interscholastic Swimming & Diving Competition this Saturday at East Carolina University.

States represented are North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware.

Included among the Maryland entrants is Calvert Hall College High School of Towson, Md., last year's team champion in this meet, held in Minges Natatorium on the ECU campus.

Nine of last year's top 10 teams are returning this year. Besides Calvert Hall, they are: Grimsley of Greensboro; Walt Whitman of Bethesda, Md.; Walter Johnson of Bethesda, Md.; Myers Park of Charlotte; Yorktown of Arlington, Va.; South Mecklenburg of Charlotte; Chapel Hill; and McLean, Va.

Some of the top individual swimmers in last year's meet also return, including four High School All-Americans. They are: freestylers James Schliestett of South Mecklenburg and Bruce Dickson of Myers Park; breaststroker Steve Sommer of Walter Johnson; and backstroker David Marlin of McLean.

The meet will consist of 11 events — eight individual sprints and distance races, two relays and one diving category.

"This is one of the biggest high school meets on the East Coast and we are extremely pleased with the large number of top teams returning this year," said Meet Director Ray Scharf, head swimming coach at East Carolina.

"We think we have the best scholastic swimming teams in these four states — Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and North Carolina — competing this year."

Here is a complete list of the teams entered, by states:

MARYLAND: Walt Whitman and Walter Johnson of Bethesda; Calvert Hall of Towson.

Farmville Girls Defeat Kinston

FARMVILLE — The Farmville girls closed out their regular season play last night with a 34-20 victory over Kinston last night.

Farmville jumped off to a 12-4 lead in the first period and was never in trouble after that. Kinston managed to nip one point off that lead in the second frame, outscoring the Devilettes, 5-4. But Farmville still held a comfortable 16-9 lead at the half.

In the third period, Farmville pulled away again, outscoring Kinston, 11-4. That built the lead out to 27-13. Farmville and Kinston matched points in the final period, both getting seven.

Jean Johnson led Farmville with 18 points, while Lea Anna Henderson had 10 for Kinston. Farmville's next outing will be Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the semifinals of the Eastern Plains Conference Tournament at Greene Central High School. Farmville will meet the winner of the North Lenoir-Charles B. Aycock game, to be played Monday night.

Kinston — Henderson 10, Horton, Shell 4, Fowler, Latschar 1, Parker 3, DelPapa, Hardy, McDaniels, Gentry, McLawhorn, Griffin.

Farmville — Allen 2, Joyner 1, Johnson 18, Flake 4, Anderson, Gorham 3, Davis 4, Ellis, Mewborn, Fields, Webb, O'Brien, Griffin 2, Monk.

Presbyterian Handed Upset

Black Jack upset Presbyterian last night, 50-49 but Presbyterian held onto the Church Basketball League lead by one game. In the other contests, Piney Grove downed St. James, 50-43, and Immanuel nipped Oakmont, 52-50.

Presbyterian is now 9-2, while Immanuel is just a game back at 8-3. They are followed by Black Jack, 6-5, and Oakmont and Piney Grove, both 5-6, and St. James, 0-11.

In the opener, St. James threatened again to pull off its first win, moving out to a 22-19 lead. But they couldn't hold it as Piney Grove rallied to outscore the Methodists, 31-21, and take the win.

Jimmy Mills led Piney Grove with 17, while William Nichols had 14. For St. James, Rusty Jacobs had 13.

In the second game, Presbyterian eased out into a 25-22 lead in the first half. Black Jack came back in the second half, however, and outhit the leaders, 28-24, and it was just enough to pull off the upset.

Tal Adams led Black Jack with 12, while Ephraim Smith had 11. Frank Freular had 17 and Boyd Lee had 14 for Presbyterian.

In the final game of the night, Oakmont pushed into a 29-22 lead

Carr Runs Smoothly, But Irish Lose; Ford Has A Better Idea

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Notre Dame Carr continues to run like a Berserk time bomb.

But Villanova, it seems, has a better idea with Ford.

Irrepressible Austin Carr drove home 37 points in his usual high octane performance, although it didn't help the Fighting Irish.

Chris Ford clicked with 11 assists, most of them to hot-handed Howard Porter, as 18th ranked Villanova cruised by No. 9 Notre Dame 99-81 in college basketball Thursday night.

Ford, also scoring 14 points, manipulated the Villanova players like marionettes with Porter on the receiving end of his bullet handouts. Porter, a 6-foot-8 jack-in-the-box, slammed in 35 points and collected 15 rebounds as the Wildcats accelerated to their 18th victory in 23 contests.

Villanova, strengthening its bid for an at-large NCAA post season tournament invitation, had the contest sewn up early as Porter scored 20 points and Hank Siemionkowski, 17 of his 29 in the first half. Their high scoring, sparked by Ford's throws, gave the Wildcats an unsurmountable 54-33 halftime margin.

It was all down hill after that for Villanova, despite Carr's runaway performance. The Fighting Irish, only team to knock off No. 1 UCLA this year, fell behind by as many as 24 points and dropped their record to 12-6.

Sixth-ranked Jacksonville smashed William & Mary 100-69; No. 20 Fordham streaked to its 17th victory in 18 games by disposing of Rhode Island 109-87; St. John's of New York tipped Niagara 82-71; Drake ambushed Bradley 113-78; Dayton stopped Cincinnati 70-69; Louisville struck down Wichita 94-85 and Georgetown beat New York University 91-80 and Rutgers clubbed West Virginia in a doubleheader at New York's Madison Square Garden in other top games.

Ernie Fleming scored 30 points and sky-reaching Artis Gilmore garnered 14 rebounds as Jacksonville won its 11th in a row and 17th of 19 games.

Charlie Yelverton scored 27 points as Fordham's red-hot Rams clicked on 65 per cent of their field goal tries. The winners, leading 52-45 at the half, broke it open with a 10-2 jag after intermission.

Sophomore whiz Mel Davis gunned in 31 points and Greg Cless added 21 in the St. John's success; Tom Bush collected 21 points as Drake hit 58 per cent from the field against Bradley; Al Berke, who hadn't made a shot all night, hit a 10-footer with one second to go for Dayton; Al Vilcheck led Louisville with 31 points; Mike Laughna flipped in a career-high 35 points to fire the Georgetown victory and John McFadden set a Madison Square Garden regular season record with 14 assists as Rutgers crushed West Virginia with an unmanageable fast break.

Elsewhere, Richmond beat Furman 106-87; Tulsa whipped North Texas State, 89-84; Boston University turned back Brandeis 85-75 and George Washington spilled Miami 83-81.

Palmer, Tied For Bob Hope Lead, Still Seeking His Putting Touch

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Arnold Palmer's new putter failed to provide the confidence he seeks so he plans to change right at the point of sharing the lead in the $140,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament.

Struggling for his first victory in 14 months, Palmer carded a 71 in the second round of the 90-hole tourney to deadlock with Bob Murphy, George Hixon, and Bert Yancey going into today's third 18-hole round.

After a first round 67 when he thought his new putter was behaving, Palmer battled the Tamarisk course to a one-under-par 71 and 138 for the 36 holes. Yet on the first six, he missed putts of six, three and eight feet as his miseries of the greens continued.

"I'm still searching for that putting stroke or the satisfaction of having a little more confidence in it," said the man who has won more money at the game than anyone. "Until I find it, it still is a little guessing game on the greens. Still haven't total confidence, but its getting better and I don't expect miracles."

Palmer birdied the 10th and 12th holes after going out in even par 36 and at that point he had the tournament lead to himself. But on the 14th, the 41-year-old missed the green on a 253-yard par three, blasted up to 12 feet and missed the putt.

"Generally my tee shots were better than on the first round," he commented. "I hit a couple I didn't like but I think I know the problem."

We'll find out at Indian Wells.

Asked if he planned to change putters, Arnie answered quickly, "Yes, I think I will."

He was slated to play the Indian Wells course today with his final two rounds at Bermuda Dunes.

With only two of the five scheduled rounds completed, the battle for the $28,000 top prize appeared wide open. Murphy, who won $120,639 last year, fired a second round 68 at Bermuda Dunes while Yancey had a 69 and Hixon, a relative unknown from Tulsa, Okla., a 70 over the same course.

Masters champion Billy Casper, a former Hope winner, carded a 68 at Tamarisk in 91 degree heat. Ray Floyd, former PGA champ, had a 71 at the same course. Roberto Bernardini, a rookie PGA pro from Rome, Italy, was in the 139 group with Casper, Floyd and three others after shooting a 72.

Yancey twice had sharp words with photographers, his ire first aroused when he reached the green at the ninth hole he played in two, already three strokes under par. He three-putted.

"When you're looking for something to upset you and it comes along you make excuses," a calmed-down Yancey commented. "I probably would have missed the putt anyway."

Yancey, winner of six tournaments on the PGA tour, added, "The scores aren't as low as I thought they would be," and on the photographer hassle, he said, "I have to apologize to one guy."

Hixon, whose best finish in a tournament has been a tie for 20th, reeled off four straight birdies on his final nine holes

Buck, Tiny Are Busiest Drivers

By F. T. MACFEELY

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — For the number of times they have gone to the races, it would be hard to beat the pair of Buck Baker of Charlotte and Tiny Lund of Cross, S.C.

Just to keep his hand in meanwhile, he has 14th starting position in Saturday's Permatex in a 1968 Dodge and was entered in a new event of speed weeks—a formula 100 event for open wheel cars with 100-cubic inch or less engines. It was to follow the Citrus 250 this afternoon.

Sports Brief

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — University of Connecticut basketball player Doug Melody might have a claim to the long distance dribbling record.

The junior guard dribbled from west of Springfield, Mass., to the Storrs campus Thursday and capped his performance with a 20-foot jump shot from the top of the key in the UConn field house.

Melody's 65-mile effort over 1 hour, 15 minutes and 3 seconds was not as arduous as it sounds, however. He did it on the team bus in the 2½-foot aisle.

Pearson, Pete Among Choices

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Old pro David Pearson and newlywed Pete Hamilton joined front-row starters A. J. Foyt and Bobby Isaac today as solid favorites in Sunday's Daytona 500.

The first 14 finishers behind the winner of Thursday's heats were guaranteed starting spots in the 40-car field behind the front row of Foyt and Isaac. The other 10 spots were reserved for drivers who turned top qualifying speeds but finished low in the heat events.

Veterans though they are, they are among the busiest drivers in the various divisions of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing and among the most successful.

Winners of formula 100 qualifying races Thursday were Charles Lucas of Upper Saddle River, N.J., Bill Scott of McLean, Va., and Chuck Sarich of Rockville, Md.

In fact, several drivers emerged from a pair of 125-mile qualifying heats Thursday to make up a growing list of contenders for the $43,500 first prize in America's richest stock car race.

Foyt, Hamilton and all-time stock car great Richard Petty treated the sun-splashed crowd to a three-car duel in the first race.

The 50-year-old Baker started his 1971 Pontiac Firebird on the pole in the Florida Citrus 250-mile course combining the high banked oval and winding infield road at Daytona International Speedway, at 107.603 m.p.h.

Lucas had the fastest five-lap time of 110.2 m.p.h. around the 3.81-mile road course.

Hamilton, triumphant in the 1970 Daytona 500 in only his second try, broke around the venerable Foyt with 300 yards to go and beat the Texan to the wire by inches in the first race.

By slip-streaming each other, they never were more than four car lengths apart except when stopping for fuel. And it was this slip-streaming, or drafting, technique that cost Foyt the victory.

Lund, who at age 41 dominated that division with 34 victories last year, had the fourth fastest qualifying speed of 104.885 but starts 11th because his Camaro wasn't ready for opening qualifying day.

Lund is one of the busiest men at the speedway in this busy week of races.

Pearson, by contrast, had to hold off a charging Buddy Baker to take a car-length victory in the second race, giving a crowd of 30,000 two of the closest finishes yet at Daytona International Speedway.

Hamilton was running in third behind Foyt and Petty with two circuits of the 2.5 mile trioval to go. But the bridegroom of two weeks broke Petty's draft going into the long back stretch and moved in behind Foyt.

He also has 23rd starting place in the $200,000 Daytona 500 for late model stockers Sunday.

Farmer qualified his 1968 Ford at 174.162 m.p.h.

The two races not only provided 38 starters for Sunday's classic but indicated that at least 20 cars will be able to run with the leaders.

Then as the three cars roared into the fourth turn to complete the final lap, Hamilton whipped out from behind the three-time Indianapolis winner and beat him to the wire in almost a dead heat.

He had multiple tire troubles in Thursday's qualifying races for the Daytona 500, he got 31st starting spot for Sunday.

Speaking of busy drivers this week, there's Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala.

Hamilton's average speed for the first heat was 175.029 m.p.h. Pearson averaged 168.727 m.p.h. despite a yellow light that slowed the pace for three laps.

Seven other cars, including those of Petty, Lee Roy Yarborough, Fred Lorenzen and Donnie Allison came home in a group several seconds back.

Farmer qualified his 1968 Ford at 174.162 m.p.h.

He had multiple tire troubles in Thursday's qualifying races for the Daytona 500, he got 31st starting spot for Sunday.

Neither speed was close to the 125-mile record of 183.295 set by Cale Yarborough last year. The 1971 cars, however, have been hobbled by carburetor restrictor plates that cut their speed drastically.

Baker made his bid at about the same spot on the trioval where Hamilton took Foyt, but the same "slight-shot" maneuver didn't work for Baker, son of driving great Buck Baker. Brooks trailed the two front runners across by about 50 feet.

He had multiple tire troubles in Thursday's qualifying races for the Daytona 500, he got 31st starting spot for Sunday.

He had multiple tire troubles in Thursday's qualifying races for the Daytona 500, he got 31st starting spot for Sunday.

Foyt and Isaac won Sunday's front row starting positions by turning the fastest laps in time trials last Saturday. Foyt, driving a Mercury, got the pole with a speed of 182.744 m.p.h. Isaac's Dodge posted 180.050.

Worry Clinic Influenced By Subconscious

Marvin may have been "brainwashed" indirectly by the paintings his mother had hung on the walls. So parents must be careful about the subconscious influences that surround their kiddies. Shakespeare warned: "The man that hath no music in himself, nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils."

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D.
Case P-570: Marvin G., aged 22, graduated from our U.S. Naval Academy. "Dr. Crane," his proud mother began, "there were never any sailors on either side of his family." "Thus, I often wondered why he developed such a great liking for ships and the sea. "Besides, he had never met any Navy Officers, so what do you suppose turned his mind toward that branch of Military Service?"

Early Brainwashing Mrs. Crane and I had been dinner guests at the home of Marvin's parents. Their beautiful home was adorned with many framed pictures.

Among the latter were several remarkable ocean scenes. "How long have you had these paintings of ships?" I inquired. To which Marvin's mother replied: "Oh, they were given to us as wedding presents." Since the pictures were so outstanding, I suggested: "Don't you think Marvin may have become influenced even in his childhood by these marvelous ocean scenes?"

"Maybe you indirectly 'conditioned' him favorably to a navy career, even though you weren't aware of that fact?"

"For a child's early impressions often color his adult decisions. "So these ocean paintings may indirectly have 'brainwashed' him into an early desire for a career in the U.S. Navy."

And that is entirely possible, so all parents should be doubly careful about the early "eye" and "ear" surroundings of their youngsters!

Indeed, the very pictures on the walls thus reveal many intimations about the nature of every home. When you are entertained by friends, do their pictures indicate an interest in religion? If you observe Hoffman's painting of "Christ in the Garden" or Sallman's new "Head of Christ" or "Christ Knocking at the Door," and similar lovely church themes, you instantly can make some very shrewd guesses about that family.

For you can thus feel sure it is not a "liberal" or communistic environment nor one that is anti-establishment. You realize it probably contributes heavily to humanitarian causes, such as churches, YMCA, Boy Scouts and the United Fund.

On the contrary, if the walls are adorned with nudes or semi-nudes, or with a series of "modernistic" pictures containing nothing but blotches of streaked colors having no rime or reason behind them, you can surmise that the children reared in such surroundings will be more inclined to rioting and college sit-ins.

Similarly, observe the musical environment of the homes you visit. Is there a piano therein? Or a violin?

A generation ago, even a guitar was also a symbol of culture and good music. Now the guitar is more apt to indicate a lazy way to strike a few chords (after merely a couple of hours of music practice) to accompany juvenile lyrics that neither rime nor inspire lofty sentiments.

"Music," said John Erskine, "is the only language in which you cannot say a mean or sarcastic thing." Alas, much of what is nowadays misnamed "music" is but the cacophony of lazy barbarians who want kindergarten "jungle" rhythm so they can indulge in calisthenic gyrations. Sale Of Heart Balloons Scheduled On Saturday

Pitt County's Heart Fund February, tomorrow features drive, active all the month of the sale of heart balloon in efforts to collect contributions for the fund.

HAPPY JOB . . . for Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity members is that of filling heart fund balloons. Shown here with balloons in various stages of being filled are Tim Hitchcock, Eddie Blair and Dan Tew. Other fraternity members watch.

Assisting citizens of Greenville and Pitt County in this year's fund raising activities, members of East Carolina University's Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity have been busily puffing air into balloons so that a supply will be in readiness for the Saturday sale.

The college boys will also be out full force in downtown Greenville and at Pitt Plaza to help in the big one-day drive. Following the balloon sale, the next event scheduled to promote the Heart Fund drive in Heart Fund Sunday, tentatively slated for February 21.

Louis Clark, publicity chairman for the Heart Fund, explained that contributions given to this cause go to the Heart Association for its continuing research programs to determine causes and ways of fighting diseases of the heart. Heart diseases still account for more deaths than any other single disease, and is commonly referred to as the "number one killer of our time."

Massive heart research programs have been conducted since 1950, when the first Heart Fund Campaign of 1949 made possible the beginning of large scale research with funds given by millions of Americans.

Underscores Ignorance As To Human Sexuality

The current director and co-founder of Sex Information and Education Council of the U. S. (SIECUS) is a vivacious woman who give direct, precise answers to questions about the subject which is of abiding concern to her, that of human sexuality and the proper understanding of the factor in human life.

Dr. Mary S. Calderone, mother of three daughters and several grandchildren, travels, lectures, teaches and writes in order to, in her works, "meet a compelling social need."

On Wednesday and Thursday she conducted a two day seminar at East Carolina University, one of her many appearances at universities and centers throughout the country.

"There is a great need to confront, to understand man's sexuality," she replied to a query about the mission of SIECUS. "People need to understand this need in relation to themselves as total persons."

"All elements of society can profit from sound information on man's sexuality."

Dr. Calderone notes that SIECUS has no formal program, but instead offers assistance whenever it is asked for by schools or groups. "Our major demands for assistance is from schools," she noted. "There is much anxiety and ignorance among teenagers and there is the problem of venereal diseases."

SIECUS, Dr. Calderone said, works closely with the American Medical Association and religious groups of all faiths. "We serve in a consultant capacity only, and do not attempt to design curricula for schools," she commented.

Writing about her field has resulted in three books: "Abortion in the United States," "Release from Sexual Tensions," and "Manual of Family Planning and Contraceptive Practice," in addition to numerous articles for professional and popular magazines, textbooks and encyclopaedias.

DR. MARY CALDERONE

Daughter of the renowned photographer, Edward Steichen, who created the notable exhibition "Family of Man," Mrs. Calderone is the wife of a doctor - Dr. Frank A. Calderone, who was formerly Director of Health Services for the United Nations Secretariat.

Robbers Shot Postmaster

SEDALIA, N.C. (AP) - Robbers shot the postmaster of Sedalia near Greensboro twice in the leg Thursday afternoon and escaped with a small amount of cash.

Guilford County Sheriff Paul Gibson quoted the postmaster, Jerry Hedrick, as saying he had $185 on hand at the close of business Wednesday, so the robbers couldn't have got much more; probably around $200.

N.C. Prison Criticisms Said Largely Justified

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Most criticisms of the North Carolina prison system are justified, according to Frank Hall, area administrator for the State Department of Corrections. But there has been marked success in the last year, he told UNC students at a penal reform symposium Thursday. "We can't solve the problems of behavior in an institution locked off in the mountains somewhere. It has to be done in a community related concept," Hall said. "Somehow, the state must develop a program for prisoners to regain their self-respect."

The number of inmates receiving correctional treatment is too small, he said however, he added, too much time is being lost in accelerating the need to return inmates to society. Hall referred to several community advancement centers in the state where prisoners have moved from maximum security to honor grade and are learning occupations before they are put back on the street. "We're releasing people all over the state who don't have this opportunity," he said.

"Every man should have a chance to go through some gradual release procedure," Hall said. He pointed out that 70 per cent of those released from prison will be returned to confinement within five years. Hall, who is northeast Piedmont area administrator for the Department was formerly an administrative aide to Commissioner Lee Bounds.

Putting Things In Order

In this age of medicare, social security and homes for the aged, sometimes people forget an important part of growing old—tranquility!

Yes, tranquility and peace are just as important in growing old gracefully as is sufficient insurance or all the other means with which we show our concern for the elderly.

Have you ever noticed that old people have a knack of putting things in order? In fact, they need everything tidy, neat and sure. Certainly their greatest need is for peace and security—but this can come only when they are at peace with God!

If we want to reap the harvest of friendship with God in our old age, then we must cultivate our relation with Him—when we are young and able. Regular church attendance and worship is your assurance of peace and tranquility during your own gentle lengthening years. It will be a heaven-sent reward and one which you cannot, will not, want to miss.
