A Springlike February Day

JUST SITTING AROUND — Warm weather this weekend brought a large number of ECU students out from their studies to the mall. Temperatures yesterday and the two preceeding days ranged in the 70's. Although this is in the middle of exams, the day gave the students a little time to just "sit around" and soak up some of the premature springtime sun. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Red Supply Traffic Up

ARVN Drive Stalled By Enemy Attackers

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — More heavy North Vietnamese attacks stalled the South Vietnamese drive into Laos today for the fifth successive day. Lead elements of Saigon's 16,000-man force were still only 17½ miles from the border they crossed two weeks ago.

Military sources said the campaign also had not achieved its objective, to cut the flow of enemy supplies down the Ho Chi Minh trail. Instead, these sources said, the North Vietnamese had doubled the truck traffic, from 1,000 to about 2,000 "movers" per day, and diverted them to the west to routes beyond the South Vietnamese advance.

"The enemy conducted at least 10 indirect fire attacks with rockets and mortar rounds against South Vietnamese fire bases and field positions in the southern panhandle of Laos Sunday, causing light over-all casualties," a South Vietnamese communique said.

A spokesman said they were the heaviest enemy attacks since Saigon's troops moved into Laos Feb. 8. He would not disclose specific casualties, but "light over-all casualties" indicated some units may have suffered moderate or heavy losses.

The enemy attacks drove remnants of one South Vietnamese ranger battalion from a hilltop patrol base six miles inside Laos after 298 of the battalion's 450 men had been killed or wounded in a three-day siege. The survivors carried 108 wounded with them but left behind 130 dead comrades and 60 other wounded to fend for themselves.

Another ranger base a mile away, also under siege since Thursday, was still holding out today under rocket and mortar fire. But a U.S. helicopter got in to lift out an American helicopter crew chief, Dennis Fujii of Hawaii, who was stranded at the other base last Thursday and manned a radio to direct U.S. air strikes against the enemy positions. Fuji was reported wounded slightly.

A South Vietnamese spokesman at Quang Tri, a rear base for the Laotian operation, claimed Saigon forces in Laos killed 63 North Vietnamese in a series of clashes north and south of Highway 9 Sunday and today. He said 11 South Vietnamese were killed in these clashes.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of two more helicopters to enemy antiaircraft fire in Laos, and said four of the American crewmen were missing and two were wounded. South Vietnamese headquarters announced its third helicopter loss but said there were no casualties.

Despite the lack of progress on the ground, the defeat suffered by the ranger battalion and the reports of no serious dent in traffic on the Ho Chi Minh trail, officials of the Nixon Administration in Washington insisted the operation is proceeding according to expectations. They said the North Vietnamese resistance was anticipated, but that South Vietnamese forces are proceeding well, and the operation is disrupting the flow of enemy supsupplies southward.

Scott Blasts In-Fighting Among State Institutions

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott, who singled out the University of North Carolina for criticism last week, today lashed out at the consolidated university and other state institutions for the "in-fighting, the maneuvering, the overlapping, the duplication that is all too prevalent in higher education in our state today."

In comments prepared for a meeting of the university's board of trustees, Scott also took note of his accusation Friday that UNC had attempted to block medical education at East Carolina University and added:

"In case anyone may be contemplating sending in an application for President Friday's job, they can forget it as far as I am concerned. I'm sure that all of you feel as I do—that Bill Friday ranks among the foremost university administrators in America today. We're fortunate to have him and for my part, we want to keep him," Scott said.

The governor's criticism of UNC came at a meeting last Friday where the State Board of Higher Education approved a one-year medical training program at East Carolina. At the time, the governor suggested a legislative mandate to force UNC. To accept transfer students from East Carolina.

Scott and the UNC. president discussed the governor's allegations Saturday but President Friday did not respond publicly.

Today, Friday told the UNC trustees the university "has been engaged in its regular mission of devising new and better means by which the resources provided the institution by the people are employed effectively and efficiently for the benefit of the people."

He said the board of higher education's plan for East Carolina "is in our judgement a sound and positive program for medical education in North Carolina."

Friday said that, in a letter to East Carolina President Leo Jenkins Feb. 11, "I specifically indicated the possibility for a cooperative arrangement for the first year of medical training with institutions outside the university system . . . This morning I've reaffirmed our willingness to undertake the work necessary to get on with these discussions."

Scott told the trustees North Carolina's state supported institutions need a "coordinated harmonious higher education program.

"Let the private institutions like Campbell, Duke, Davidson, Livingstone and others provide the competition for the state-supported institutions," the governor said.

"I am very desirous that the Warren Committee, supported by thoughtful action of the General Assembly, will provide the answer to this complex problem."

The committee headed by Lindsay Warren Jr. has been studying a possible restructuring of the state's system of higher education, including the creation of a regents program.

Scott said he has asked the committee to develop recommendations to be presented to the General Assembly this session.

"Now the reason for this effort is simply that a halt must be called to the in-fighting, the maneuvering, the overlapping, the duplication that is all to prevalent in higher education in our state today," Scott said.

"This university has been a part of this," he told the UNC trustees. "I tried to make that clear last week.

"But so have other institutions of higher learning in our state—some more than others, depending on how aggressive the administrators and trustees have been."

He did not identify the institutions by name.

Scott said it could be expected that administrators would be vigorous in promoting their institutions.

"We want them to advance their respective campuses, but not at the expense of the overall program of higher education in North Carolina nor to the detriment of other campuses," he asserted.

In urging coordinated programs by the state institutions, Scott declared, "It's been kind of like one referee in a ring with 16 fighters, all going at the same time."

OPPOSES CONTROL

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans said today he will oppose now and in the future any overall program of wage and price controls as a method of coping with inflation.

In 70's

A clear sky and warm sun sent temperatures Sunday into the 70's for the third straight day and forecasters predicted another unseasonably warm day today.

Sunday's high temperature of 73 degrees, according to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station, was just two degrees lower than the Friday and Saturday high of 75 degrees.

Dozens Of Tornadoes Hit Mississippi Delta Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dozens of tornadoes tore across the flat lands of the Mississippi River delta Sunday night. Authorities said today that 74 persons were killed, hundreds others were injured and thousands of homes and businesses were destroyed.

Sixty-eight of the deaths were in Mississippi and the other six in Louisiana. Twisters also hit two cities in east Texas, but no deaths were reported.

And another section of the Midwest was hit Sunday with a heavy snowstorm. Five persons were killed in Kansas and Missouri and many travelers were stranded, including two lanes of cars more than four-miles long on the Kansas Turnpike.

The death toll climbed sharply early today when authorities reported additional victims in Mississippi's LeFlore County and in Inverness, Miss.

"It looked like a thousand hells!" exclaimed Willie Young, a railroad employe who survived one of the first tornadoes near Delhi, La.

A National Weather Service spokesman at Jackson, Miss., said there probably were 40 to 50 tornadoes in the 100-mile line of violent weather that raced across Mississippi after spawning two twisters in northeast Louisiana.

Mississippi officials reported 19 killed in rural LeFlore County, 13 at Inverness, eight at Cary, seven at Delta City, five in rural Humphreys County, three at Little Yazoo, two at Rome and two at Bovina.

The LeFlore deaths included 16 at Pugh City where, a deputy sheriff said, only seven of the 50 houses were left standing.

In Louisiana, near Delhi, six persons died when a tornado lifted a frame house from its foundation and splintered it over a wide area. Some of the bodies were found 200 yards from the foundation of the house.

Telephone communications, were knocked out in some of the hardest hit areas in Mississippi. National Guard units were mobilized in several communities and shelters were being set up for the homeless. About 50 emergency Red Cross workers were sent to the storm area.

Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., asked President Nixon to declare the stricken region a federal disaster area.

A spokesman for the University of Mississippi at Oxford said 40 students were hospitalized after a tornado struck a trailer park on the edge of the campus. He said 50 trailers were destroyed and 50 others damaged.

Damage at Inverness, Miss., a community of about 1,100 persons about 90 miles northwest of Jackson, was widespread.

Ray Armstrong, a Civil Defense worker who was helping to look for victims in the debris, said: "We don't know how many are dead, how many are injured or how many may still be under this stuff."

Israel Insists Egypt Discuss New Boundaries

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Golda Meir's Cabinet has renewed its demand that Egypt negotiate new boundaries with Israel, but the demand was greeted by a hostile response from Cairo.

The proposal came from an all-day Cabinet meeting Sunday to discuss Egypt's offer of a peace agreement after Israel withdraws from the Sinai Peninsula, which it has held since the June 1967 war. Egypt also hinged a settlement on a decision on relocating Palestinian refugees.

"The government of Israel reiterates its position ... that it will not withdraw to the armistice line of June 4, 1967," a Cabinet communique declared, referring to its pre-war frontier. But it said Israel is "ready to discuss withdrawal of armed forces toward secure, recognized and agreed boundaries to be established in peace agreements." It proposed that the indirect discussions at the United Nations be continued under Gunnar V. Jarring with "the aim of reaching an agreed peace treaty between the two states."

The cabinet said it looked "favorably" on Cairo's peace offer, made in reply to proposals by Jarring. But it said the Egyptian proposal demonstrated the "concrete differences between Egypt's position and that of Israel."

Cairo Radio said the communique was a "flat rejection" of the Jarring initiative and a "twisted reply" to the Egyptian offer.

REPORTED DEAD — The English lanuage newspaper Bangkok Post said Sunday that it received unconfirmed reports of the death of Truong Chinh, a hawk in North Vietnam's top leadership. The same unconfirmed reports said a power struggle was underway in Hanoi as a result of Chinh's death, the nespaper said. (AP Wirephoto)

Break-In Is Charged Two

Two Kinston men are in Pitt County jail on charges of possession of burglary tools and breaking and entering following their arrest Sunday night in connection with an incident in Grifton.

According to the Sheriff's Department, Arthur Thomas Johnson, 25, and Haywood Franklin Rhodes Jr., 28, are charged with breaking and entering Herring's Department Store in Grifton around 10:45 last night.

An off - duty Grifton policeman reportedly spotted two men in the store and when they fled, the Lenoir County Sheriff's Department was alerted.

Lenoir County officials stopped a car fitting the description issued by Grifton police and Pitt County deputies later arrested the two men on the breaking and entering and possession charges.

Investigators reported that a door of the department store had been forced but apparently nothing was taken.

Monroe Cites Surprise At Recommendations Of State Higher Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"We were pleased that the Board of Higher Education officially recognized the severe doctor shortage in Eastern North Carolina," Dr. Ed Monroe said today; but added, "we were quite surprised at their recommendation..." of a one-year medical program at East Carolina University.

Dr. Monroe, dean of the School of Allied Health at ECU, said the recommendation made Friday by the Board of Higher Education came as a surprise because the proposal from ECU to the board was for a two-year school of medicine. Nothing, he said, had been mentioned about a one-year program either by ECU officials or the team of experts which visited the university in mid-October to evaluate the school's readiness to move ahead with a two-year medical training program.

Gov. Bob Scott, at that Friday session of the Board of Higher Education, charged that the University of North Carolina has been "...doing all it possibly can to block the approval of medical education at East Carolina University."

"I was quite pleased at the governor's comments," Dr. Monroe said, "primarily because he identified a problem that we have been struggling with for some time now."

He noted that the ECU Board of Trustees will meet Wednesday to discuss the proposed one-year medical program.

Pitt County Representative Sam Bundy, commenting on Gov. Scott's charges against the University of North Carolina said "I am in agreement with everything he said. I just wish he had said it six months ago."

Rep. Bundy said, "I think he summed it up pretty well. I just wish he had made that statement six, or three or even two months ago. I don't know how to gauge the effect of it now."

Explaining that since the adoption of the one-year proposal by the Board of Higher Education, "I think the two-year school is out right now." Bundy emphasized, "We need to get the appropriations for the one-year school and use that as a basis for future expansion."

Six Policemen Shot, Killed, In Four Cities During Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six policemen in four cities were shot and killed in incidents over the weekend. The police commissioner of Philadelphia blamed citizens who he said "are promoting anarchy" for the two killings there.

The other deaths included a marshal and state trooper killed during a shootout with two men in St. John, Ind., and an officer shot dead in a gunfight in Greenville, S.C.

A policeman was killed in Silver Springs, Md., when a fellow officer's gun discharged during a struggle with a kidnap suspect.

Philadelphia Police Commissioner Joseph F. O'Neill made his charge at a Sunday night news conference during which he identified two teen-agers who were arrested in one slaying.

He said Anthony Hogan, 15, and Marvin Bullock, 18, both of Philadelphia were charged with murder in the Saturday night killing of patrolman John McEntee who was felled by two shots in the back of the neck.

McEntee, 25, was slain as he sat in his patrol car writing a report. Five hours later patrolman Joseph Kelly, 45, was found dead in his patrol car. He had been shot twice with his own gun.

The McEntee killing occurred in North Philadelphia. Kelly was slain about five miles west in a sparsely populated part of the Roxborough section.

"Surely the sight of people deliberately attempting to polarize opposition to our police force, and especially some people who call themselves community leaders must assume part of the blame for these killings," O'Neill said. "Directly or indirectly these citizens are promoting anarchy and a complete disregard for the law."

He said he was referring to protests by citizen groups that demonstrated in front of City Hall over an incident in which two policemen shot and critically wounded a man neighbors said is mentally retarded.

In St. John, Ind., Marshal James Larimer, 60, and Trooper John Streu, 25, were killed Saturday in a shootout with two men found sleeping in a parked car behind a school building.

Police said Streu was shot in the back with a small caliber pictol and Larimer killed with Streu's service revolver.

Lonnie D. Williams, 23, an escapee from the Indiana State Farm at Putnamville, and John R. Lee, 17, of Greenville, Ky., were charged in an affidavit with murder. Lee was wounded in the shooting.

In Greenville, S.C., officers W.F. Chasteen and B.A. Woodall responded to a disturbance call early Sunday and found a mother and teen-age girl with gunshot wounds.

A short distance away they encountered a man carrying an automatic pistol. When they ordered him to surrender, police said, he opened fire, killing Chasteen. Woodall shot back, wounding the man, Richard Dean Brooks, 26, police said.

Brooks fled but was found in a nearby basement several hours later after police heard a shot. He had a fatal head wound, apparently self-inflicted, authorities reported.

The Silver Springs death came when Washington, D.C., policeman David H. Rose chased a kidnap suspect into Montgomery County, Md., where Robert Freeman of the county force joined the pursuit.

They overtook the suspect but in an ensuing struggle, Freeman's gun fired accidentally and Rose was hit. He was pronounced dead on arrival at a nearby hospital.

Gourmet Banquet Needs Much Planning

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

When 100 gastronomes sit down in New York to a seven-course Portuguese dinner complete with wines of that land, it requires about as much planning as it would to land a regiment of Marines on a foreign beachhead.

Recently, the Wine and Food Society of New York, partook of such a repast with the cooperation of the Portuguese government and New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

To give the cooking an authentic touch, a special chef and his aide were flown in from Lisbon, along with crates of cheese and sausage and boxes of fish and meats packed in ice.

To give a hint of the complex preparations involved, consider a repast that led off with such hors d'oeuvres as crab seasoned with egg yolk and mustard and crayfish flown over from the Portuguese fishing village of Cascais. Then it went on to Riverboat Stew, a formidable dish containing about 15 varietes of seafood ranging from red snapper to squid.

For a breather, the diners were served Portugal's "green soup," a mixture of kale, potatoes and spices, with slices of the piquant chourico sausage to give it zip.

The main dish, for those still able to wield a fork, was Partridge Alcántara, a plump bird marinated for three days in Porto wine and stuffed with pate.

This was only part of the meal which lasted from about 8 to 11 p.m. and wound up with three Portuguese cheeses and a celestial dessert known as "Bacon From Heaven."

Accompanying each dish were some of Portugal's finest wines including a bone dry Madeira, a white Porto, a sparkling white wine to go with the Riverboat Stew, Portugal's famed "Green Wine" (so called because of its springly quality) to go with the green soup, and red Dao Grao Vasco for the partridges and a vintage Porto to accompany dessert and coffee.

In case you think I have been misspelling Port in this piece, let me note that the Portuguese prefer to have their version of that fine fortified wine called Porto, since it comes from Oporto in the Douro region of Portugal. To qualify as true Porto, the wine must be made from grapes grown in Douro.

To get an idea of the Portuguese cuisine, try this recipe for Bacon From Heaven, a dish that is delectable, even if the name is somewhat puzzling.

BACON FROM HEAVEN

1½ cups sugar
1-3rd cup water
2 cups almonds, blanched and pulverized
8 egg yolks
1 teaspoon almond extract
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
Butter to grease pan
½ cup whole roasted almonds

Mix sugar and water and boil til sugar dissolves. Add almonds. Cook, stirring over medium heat, til mixture bubbles and becomes translucent. Cool slightly.

Beat egg yolks thoroughly and continue beating, pour slowly into almond sugar mix. Add almond extract and cinnamon. Cook over low heat stirring constantly til mixture thickens slightly. Do not boil.

Heat oven to 375 degrees.

Pour mixture into a springform pan, or pie pan with removable bottom that has been buttered and sprinkled with sugar. Sprinkle top with coarse sugar and toasted almonds to decorate. Bake in oven about 15 minutes, or til set. Allow to cool before removing cake from pan. Serve warm, adding a little more sugar before serving.

Bike Academy To Open In France

NANTES, France (WNS) — "Bicycles are the solution for major cities now deluged with automobile traffic," said Mme. Roger Michaud, who is opening France's first bicycle school with her husband. Mrs. Michaud may be prejudiced: her husband's great-great-grandfather invented the velocipede in 1865. The school will teach proper conduct and traffic rules for the new two-wheeling age, and give practical experience by taking students on the road. "Beginners will wear special helmets and sweaters to distinguish them from veterans who already know their way around," said Mrs. Michaud, whose pupils include government officials interested in the new way of life.

Will Queen Elizabeth Shut Down Buckingham?

By GILLIAN FRANKS
Copyright, 1971, Women's News Service

LONDON — Britain's Royal Family may soon be the only crowned heads in the world who have to pay out of their own pockets for the privilege of occupying the throne.

After 18 years of living on the same state allowance, the royal books have finally refused to balance.

Every year since 1962, the Queen has been spending more than Parliament paid her, and the substantial reserve, built up during the previous ten years, has been dwindling slowly but steadily.

Now the coffers are empty. "We are going into the red," the Duke of Edinburgh warned just a year ago, and now all indications are that the Queen is already paying the bills out of her private income.

The British Government is pledged to set up a Select Committee to review the Queen's 475,000 ($1,140,000) a year income from the Civil List. But that promise was made over a year ago, and the committee has not yet started work.

Drastic Cuts

In the meantime, the Queen is meeting the deficit — variously estimated at anything from $24,000 to $96,000 a year — from private sources.

Is it any wonder that drastic economies are going on behind the gates of Buckingham Palace?

Financial experts have probed the profitability of the royal estates (Balmoral makes a thumping loss), advised staff cuts of up to 20 per cent in some royal establishments, and even recommended that the money from the royal racehorse studs be used to subsidize Sandringham.

All these things have now been done — but the Royal Family still finds it impossible to live on the money the nation pays them. Indeed, financial circles estimate that to pay her way comfortably the Queen should be allowed at least another $240,000 a year.

"Pocket Money"

In fact it is only through fairly stringent economies that the royal financial crisis has been delayed so long. As Prince Philip has observed: "We've kept the thing going on a budget which was based on cost of 18 years ago — not bad housekeeping when you come to think of it. Now inevitably, if nothing happens, some drastic action will have to be taken."

It's not hard to say how the Royal Family got into this financial plight. When the Queen's Civil List income was fixed in 1952, the average British worker's wage was about $22 a week. Now it is $58 — an increase of over 150 per cent.

The Civil List originally allocated $444,000 to salaries, so if these have kept pace with wages outside — and they can't be all that far behind — the Queen is now spending about $840,000 a year on her staff.

This doesn't include the hundred pensions she pays to retired servants, or "pocket money" payments she gives to members of her family including, it is rumored, the Duke of Windsor.

Nor does this take into account the fact that, compared with 1952 values, her $1,140,000 a year is worth only $720,000 in terms of what it can buy.

Art Treasures

Since the news of the royal money crisis was first made public in November, 1969, the Queen's advisers have been holding regular discussions with the Treasury about the best ways of putting the Royal Family back into the black.

The Queen's assets are enormous. The royal picture collection has been estimated at $120 million, and her stamp and book collection at about $7 million each.

The fact is, however, she could never sell these without a special Act of Parliament, and since the royal art treasures have cost about $960,000 in the past 18 years merely to maintain, some might regard them more as a personal liability than an asset.

Her jewels are worth perhaps $250 million but, of course, these could never be sold either.

Then there are the Crown Estates which include 150,000 acres in England, 100,000 in Scotland, and large slices of London's West End including Regent Street and parts of Pall Mall.

But the Queen doesn't get anything from these estates — all income goes to the State. Which means that after maintenance has been paid, the Exchequer gets about $8,400,000 a year.

Private Money

Of course there are other "perks": the Royal Yacht is paid for by the Navy, and the Government is responsible for the upkeep of the fabric of the state palaces — Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle.

The Queen has considerable private assets — one estimate is $145 million — but she pays full tax on much of the income they yield, about 86 cents on the dollar.

Now this is just not enough. "There is no denying that the Queen is overspending," a Buckingham Palace spokesman admits. "There has been a large increase in the cost of living and recently there has been the added burden of Selective Employment Tax."

Growing Deficit

A more realistic estimate of the way the royal money goes would include a salary bill of at least $840,000, a bill of $185,000 for the upkeep of the Royal Mews, about $108,000 for S.E.T. and National Insurance, and about $96,000 a year for garden parties and a similar total for other entertaining.

That makes a rough total of $1,350,000 a year — nearly $240,000 over the Civil List allowance, and digging deeply into the Duchy of Lancaster money.

Then there are all manner of extras — heavy expenses incurred for royal tours, travel, and huge repair and maintenance bills for the royal homes.

Unless something is done, the deficit will continue to grow — perhaps at the rate of up to 20 per cent a year. This is serious enough, but it could reach crisis point should the Treasury pursue its reported plan to tax the Duchy of Lancaster income at the rate of over 90 cents on the dollar.

Little Cash

Will the nation resist a large increase in the size of the Queen's Civil List allowance?

While one Labour MP predicts "a hell of a row" if the Queen gets more money, a recent national survey showed that 63 per cent of the population thought the Queen and her family should continue to live in the manner to which they had become accustomed.

The Queen is not unused to being relatively hard up. Her father spent at least $2,500,000 of his own money on household expenses and salaries during the last war, and for the past 50 years there has been little ready cash in the royal kitty.

"Only in Britain," says one noted royal commentator, "could the monarch, who on paper is the world's wealthiest, have to spend an hour a week with her housekeeper worrying over the bills!

"It's also worth remembering that if the Queen's allowance had been kept in line with her subjects' pay envelopes, she would now be earning almost $3 million a year.

Give Unwanted Baby To Adoption Agency

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and I am about to have a baby I do not want. The problem is the guy I am pregnant by is married. I didn't know he was married until it was too late.

At first everything was fine. He gave me money and bought me just about anything I wanted. He even sent me to a private doctor. Then I found out he was still living with his wife and now I can't stand him. I don't want to see him anymore and I don't want him calling me.

His wife found out about me and she wants me to go ahead and have the baby and give it to them, and then go on and be myself again like nothing happened. Do you think that is a good idea, Abby? I don't want this baby. I can't keep it myself, and I don't want to be involved with him anymore. Please tell me what to do. UNWED MOTHER PROBLEM

DEAR UNWED: You say you do not want to be involved with him anymore. A wise decision. He is bad news. Feeling as you do, I suggest you deal directly with a licensed adoption agency. If you give your child to this man and his wife you will be involved with him forever.

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever picked up a women's magazine in the beauty parlor and started to read something very interesting only to find that some stinker has torn a recipe out and left a great big hole in the page? This infuriates me. Why are some people so selfish and inconsiderate? Please put this in your column. Some women need to learn that this little stunt is dishonest and irritating. IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: I have been there, and I agree, it is irritating. Ladies, are you listening?

DEAR ABBY: I am 30 years old and have been married five years. From the time I married I have thought about my husband's death, mostly the insurance and pension I would receive, altho it is not a large sum. I have gone as far as watching the want ads for property I might buy when it happens. My husband is only a few years older than I, and in the best of health, but I think about this daily and wonder if I need help from a doctor. I feel that I love him, and I can't understand why I keep thinking these thoughts. Can you give me your opinion? BEGINNING TO WORRY

DEAR BEGINNING: If your thoughts give you reason to "worry," by all means, consult a doctor. It's possible to "worry" oneself into a state of ill health.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I will be married for 25 years next month and a good friend of mine told me we are going to be given a "surprise" party. I guess he thought he would be doing me a favor by telling me so I would be prepared. So since I already know about it, how should I act when everybody jumps out and yells "surprise"? TIPPED OFF

DEAR TIPPED: Act surprised! How else?

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Nash-Little Vows Exchanged

Miss Barbara Ann Lewis became the bride of Joseph Joyce Nash Sunday afternoon, Feb. 14, at 3:00 p.m. in the First Pentecostal Holiness Church of Greenville. The Rev. M. D. McPherson performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odie Lewis of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nash of Hookerton.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Daneel leRoux, organist, of Greenville and Mrs. Dan Byrum, soloist, of Greenville. Mrs. Byrum sang, "O' Perfect Love" and "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee." "The Wedding Prayer" was sung as the benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of silk peau de soie, feathering a full chapel train and embroidered appliqued lace overskirt. The fitted bodice was appliqued with embroidered lace which formed a scalloped neckline with long lace sleeves ending in calla points.

Her shoulder length veil was of silk illusion attached to a cluster crown of lace petals with jeweled centers. She carried a white lace covered prayerbook centered with white mums, centered with a white hybrid orchid and showered with bridal ribbons and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Joy Pollard of Greenville was maid of honor. Miss Pamela Butts of Snow Hill and Miss Brenda Saulter of Greenville were bridesmaids. Miss Alisa Byrum of Greenville served as flower girl.

Michael Pollard of Greenville served as ring bearer.

The Rev. Norman Butts of Snow Hill attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Dan Byrum and Wayne Pollard, both of Greenville.

The bridal couple received in the vestibule of the church.

Miss Kay Radford presided at the guest register and Mrs. David Wiseman directed the wedding.

The bride attended J. H. Rose High School and is presently employed by Prep Shirt of Greenville. The bridegroom attended Farmville High School and is presently employed with the State Highway Commission, Hookerton.

Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Snow Hill.

After-Rehearsal Party

Following the wedding rehearsal Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Daneel leRoux and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Moore entertained the Nash - Lewis wedding party, family, and out-of-town guests at a cake cutting at the leRoux home, Greenville.

In the dinng room, a green and white color scheme was carried out. The bride's table was covered in a white lace cloth over green linen. The table was centered with an arrangement of white mums in a silver bowl, flanked by white cherubs on silver candleholers containing burning white tapers. After the bridal couple had cut the first traditional slices of the three-tiered wedding cake, Miss Kay Radford poured punch and guests were served cake by Mrs. H. L. Austin Sr.

Good-byes were said to the hosts and hostessess. The bride and bridegroom remembered members of their wedding party with gifts.

Scott's Remarks Should Help

Gov. Scott's statement before the Board of Higher Education on Friday must be causing many influential people around the state to stop and think.

The governor put into words what a lot of people have been thinking and they fell like a bombshell throughout the state.

"I think it is apparent to all of us that the University of North Carolina is doing all it possibly can to block the approval of medical education at East Carolina University," Scott said. "Their activity in the last six months has been almost frantic and sometimes comic.

The governor accepted a board recommendation for a one year medical training program at East Carolina University and stipulated that the UNC medical school should be told to accept the students.

"Otherwise they are not going to do it," he warned. "We ought to make it clear to them in the law that they are going to have to live up to it."

He said it should be recommended to the General Assembly that funds be authorized to East Carolina University "to plan their school and to initiate their school." He said it should eventually be a four-year school.

The governor's words had the ring of a chief executive who is tired of the maneuverings that have characterized this fight.

Surely, in view of the governor's statement there must be a reassessment of the situation among reasonable men who love and support UNC and who want to do what is best for higher education in North Carolina.

The question must be coming up of how much this all-out fight against the East Carolina University Medical School is really worth to the University of North Carolina.

Chapel Hill is rich and powerful because of the generosity of many Legislatures over the years. Since all Tar Heels are proud of the University at Chapel Hill there is no reason to feel that the Legislature will not continue to support the programs there.

On the other hand, if the governor's remarks relfect the feelings of many people — and we believe they do — then Chapel Hill supporters must decide how much of the institution's good will and prestige it is worth to continue this fight.

After all, what East Carolina proposes will without a doubt do much to solve the critical physician shortage in Eastern North Carolina and anyone who is willing to read the various reports on medical education at ECU with an open mind, cannot help but be convinced that great progress has been made here toward laying a sound basis for beginning a medical school.

Certainly what the board recommended is not entirely satisfactory to East Carolina University. However, if it is written into the law that the state's policy is to continue developing a four-year medical school at ECU, and if there is assurance that qualified one year students will be accepted at Chapel Hill, there should be reason for East Carolina and Chapel Hill to find a common ground for cooperation.

Sympathy And 'Speculation'

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Will Governor Bob Scott succeed next year to the seat in the U.S. Senate once filled by his father?

That was an underlying question in Raleigh political talk last week after Senator B. Everett Jordan had major surgery at Duke Hospital in Durham.

The Senator's health and its implications for Tar Heel politics was a prime topic among legislators, state officials, and casual observers on the capital scene.

Such conversations invariably began with sympathy and ended in speculation. First was the expression of concern for the Senator, recuperating from the removal of a malignant tumor on the colon, and good wishes for his speedy recovery. The subject quickly moved on to the likely impact on his avowed candidacy nest year for a new Senate term.

Jordan will be 74 next September. By itself, his age could be a liability in running again. A doubtful medical record added to that would impose severe handicaps on a campaign.

Candidacy Now Doubtful

The near-unanimous conclusion in private discussions here was that Jordan now will not run.

If that turns out to be the case, the preponderance of opinion was that Scott will do so.

In any event, there was agreement that the Senate race is the one to watch in 1972, both in the spring primary and the fall general election. Half a dozen Democrats are sniffing the air, and Congressman Jim Broyhill is intrigues with the idea of running as the GOP candidate for Jordan's seat.

The word from Jordan's staff was that the Senator is coming along nicely after the operation and nothing is in prospect to alter previously announced plans.

However, at this stage now even Jordan's personal declaration that he intends to run would silence the doubters. In fact, it is considered that his course of action probably will be to maintain the posture of a candidate until the eleventh hour.

Then he would announce retirement, and Governor Scott could step into the gap as a candidate for the office.

A Hazardous Possibility

A far-out possibility is that Jordan might resign before the end of his term, and Governor Scott appoint himself to the Senate, with Lieutenant Governor H. P. (Pat) Taylor, Jr., succeeding as governor. Then Scott and Taylor could run as incombents in '72.

Only the Scott penchant for the unexpected makes such a notion worth mentioning at all. The realistic view is that political hazards would attach to so obvious a power play.

What gives the Senate race next year special significance is its relationship to the gubernatorial contest.

The pivotal figure in that regard is Attorney General Robert Morgan, an amiable easterner (Harnett County) whose consumer protection policies have won him a wide following.

Will Morgan run in 1972 for governor or U.S. Senator? He's left both options open. He has expressed to some friends a preference for the Washington assignment. A close friend said that within the past 60 days Morgan's thinking has moved closer to a decision for the governor's race.

The same person said Morgan would not run against Scott for the Senate post.

Crowded Field of Candidates

That means that if Jordan should drop out (Scott has said he would not run against the incumbent) and the Governor should seek promotion to the Senate along the path his father followed, then Morgan would be apt to try for the governorship.

Such a turn of events would bring no joy to friends of Lieutenant Governor Taylor and State Senator Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles, Jr., of Guilford, both of whom are gearing towards the race. Naturally, it would take out of the picture Dr. Leo Jenkins of East Carolina University, a close Morgan ally who has talked about running for governor.

Scott and Morgan aren't the only Democrats who would be available to fill any vacancy Jordan might leave, by choice or otherwise. Patriots deemed willing to serve include Congressman Nick Galifianakis of Durham, State Senator John J. Burney, Jr., of New Hanover, and Alex Brock of Raleigh, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections.

An Ill-Advised Nixon Stance

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The self-inflicted wounds suffered by President Nixon because of his ill-advised effort to end special regional aid to Appalachia result directly from the White House bureaucracy's expansion in size and power.

To politically-attuned Presidential aides, Mr. Nixon's proposal to abolish the six-year-old Appalachian Regional Commission is wholly without political merit. It offends Republican leaders in the 14-state region, puts Mr. Nixon in opposition to the one truly popular Great Society program of Lyndon B. Johnson, and discards a possible alternative to beleaguered revenue-sharing. Moreover, it poses an inevitable confrontation for the President in late summer: to sign or veto an extension of the Appalachian Commission certain to be passed by Congress against Mr. Nixon's wishes.

This is precisely what critics inside the Administration privately forecast when the President started institutionalizing a White House policymaking bureaucracy. In a White House that communicates through written memoranda, a non-political bureaucracy can obliterate political good sense — as with the Appalachian program.

To understand how Mr. Nixon is making political bad sense here, it is necessary to go back to last July when he conferred with Appalachian Governors in Louisville. As scheduled, Mr. Nixon argued for his revenue-sharing scheme. As unscheduled, the Governors delivered an unsolicited testimonial for the Appalachian program — first and most successful of the regional commissions set up during the Johnson administration.

Given your choice, Mr. Nixon next asked the Governors, would you prefer aid through revenue-sharing or Appalachian-style regional commissions. To the President's astonishment, the answer was unanimous: regional commissions. Gov. John Bell Williams of Mississippi, who as a Congressman voted against the Appalachian program, testified for the commission with the fervor of a convert.

The Governors followed the Louisville meeting with a detailed program for regional commissions covering the entire country. Immediately dubbed "wall-to-wall Appalachias" inside the White House, it was delivered to the President last Sept. 14 by four Republican Governors from Appalachia. Mr. Nixon, in turn, responded with several statements, privately and publicly, describing the Appalachian program as regionalism at its best and a cornerstone of his New Federalism.

Thus, it was with disbelief that politicians from both parties read this year's Federal budget. Far from being a new model for decentralized government, the Appalachian Commission would be guillotined. Appalachian aid money would be folded into a bloc grant for rural development — part of Mr. Nixon's "special revenue-sharing."

"ME COOKIE"

A little toddler who is within hailing distance of his second year has a vocabulary of about ten words—mostly nouns—and he uses them in a way that greatly amuses his parents. He attaches the word "me" to anything he desires—"Me cookie," "Me milk," "Me Up," "Me down." His whole conception of reality up to this present moment consists in himself and what he wants. His life oscillates between these two points.

This is cute in a toddler, and of course quite natural. But it is neither cute nor natural in an adult. Yet there are many adults whose whole lives consist in nothing beyond establishing a relationship between themselves and certain things they want—"me pleasure," "me liquor," "me money," "me sex," "me power." These are the people who bedevil their homes, their employees, their frinds, and anybody who is unfortunate enough to set himself up in opposition to their diesires.

The basis of moral and intellectual growth, as we have often observed before, is the capacity to criticize ourselves. But there are millions of people whose thoughts run along only one line—themselves and the things they want. How to get these things becomes the end of their existence, the only project in which they have any interest.

They are little "Me cookie" people who have never grown up.

The Computer Knows All

WASHINGTON — Somewhere in this great land of ours there is a computer stashed full of information on you. Whenever you want a bank loan, a credit card or a job, this computer will, in a matter of seconds, give some total stranger almost every detail of your life.

Unfortunately for most of us, the computer is unable to discriminate between fact and malicious gossip, and once the information is fed into it, it stays there forever.

The other day, I was considering going into a car pool with three other men, Hicks, Kroll and Anderson. I have known these men casually for years, but when you join a car pool, you really want to know what they're like.

So I asked a friend of mine in the retail credit business if I could use his computer for a few hours.

He agreed and I went down there and typed out: WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT HICKS, AL, WHO LIVES AT 43 LOVER'S LEAP TERRACE?

The computer started chattering: HICKS, AL, BORN ACT. 23, 1925, BOTTLE-FED, BED-WETTER UNTIL 7 YEARS OLD.

I typed back: FORGET ABOUT CHILDHOOD AND GIVE ME SOME OTHER FACTS.

The computer replied: HICKS HAS A DOMINEERING WIFE WHOM THE WHOLE WORLD THINKS IS AS SWEET AS MAPLE SYRUP. WHENEVER SHE GETS MAD AT HIM, HE STARTS BITING HIS NAILS.

I typed back: I'M NOT INTERESTED IN THAT. WHAT'S THE CONDITION OF HIS CAR?

The computer paused for a few seconds and then tapped out: HICKS OWNS 1957

It added: HICKS NEVER CHEATS ON HIS WIFE, THOUGH HE THINKS ABOUT IT A LOT.

THAT'S ENOUGH: I told the computer. NOW GIVE ME A RUNDOWN ON KROLL, H. G., WHO LIVES AT 1 LION'S DEN CIRCLE.

The tapes in the computer started turning furiously and finally stopped. The teletype began to chatter: KROLL, H. G., HAD STRONG MOTHER WHO DRESSED HIM IN SILK SAILOR SUITS UNTIL HE WAS 13 YEARS

A Tobacco Tax?

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Those who had hoped that the two-cent tax on cigarettes might be repealed are wasting their time. The tendency in government is, once a tax has been imposed, not to repeal but to increase.

Already one bill has been introduced in the General Assembly to raise the levy to a nickel per pack. While this proposal may not succeed, there is a good chance that during the next few years the two-cent levy will gradually be raised. Gradualism is a favorite tactic of politicians, because it's easier to swallow creeping tax increases than one big increase at once.

Even state legislators from tobacco producing counties see little chance of lifting the present levy on cigarettes, even though repeal measures already have been introduced this session. These legislators also promise to fight any scheme to increase the levy.

Rep. Kenneth C. Royall Jr. of Durham, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee doesn't think any of the bills introduced this session will pass, thus leaving the tobacco tax just as it is.

Sen. John Church of Vance County notes that his people are finding it more and more difficult to make money on tobacco, and they are concerned about the tax matter. Of course, people in the industrial Piedmont couldn't care less how much tax is put on cigarettes, but tobacco is an economic way of life in eastern North Carolina and any tampering with it brings repercussions that are felt in the pocketbook.

Tobacco is a strong link in the economy of North Carolina, but it does have more effect in some areas than in others. A commodity tax could be just as dangerous to any other area of the state. It is just as conceivable that a tax could be levied on apples or soybeans.

Once the trend is set in selective taxing of commodities, who know what product the politicians will tax next once set in the trend of product taxation?

Clue To Steel Union's Demands

By ELMER ROESSNER

Demands of the United Steel workers of America on the large can-making companies, underscored by a strike, give more than a clue to what the USW will demand from the big steel companies before present contracts expire July 31.

The union is seeking an increase of around $1.30 cents an hour over a three-year period. The present average for straight time is about $3.55 an hour. The union wants 60 cents an hour more immediately. In addition, the union wants a package of benefits and an unlimited cost of living increase.

It is certain that demands on Big Steel will be close to these.

The raise for can makers will be passed along to consumers. With a similar raise from steel companies, it will guarantee three more years of inflation.

No Boon For Aluminum Cans

The rise in the can-making industry will not boom glass and aluminum containers, since the big can companies also make them. And the

ELMER ROESSNER

Glass Bottle Blowers recently gained increases of $1.75 to $1.80 an hour. Some advantage may come to plastic container makers. Plastic containers are now being tested for beer and soft drink.

The USW is showing some concern about the consequences of their wages.

Joseph P. Molony, a USW vice president, has joined Roger S. Ahlbrandt, president of Allegheny Ludlum Industries, in demanding that foreign exporters comply with voluntary quota agreements. Ahlbrandt declared that one fifth of the specialty steel market has been lost to foreign exporters.

This looks like a warm-up for demands on Congress for mandatory quotas or tariff restriction.

Other Look-Aheads

Retail sales for this week will show a big jump over the corresponding week in 1970 as a result of holiday juggling. Last year Washington's birthday was celebrated on a Sunday, Feb. 22, and was observed in stores on Monday, Feb. 23. Thus holiday sales came a week earlier this year.

Even if the holiday had fallen in the same week both years, this year's sales would have topped year-ago totals because many stores made desperate efforts to reduce inventories this week.

There will be rumblings of discontent over the new holiday schedule, which resulted in a four-day holiday in many places. Retailers loved it, but many workers are asking, "What can you do with a holiday in February?" Expect proposals for a President's Day on an August or early September weekend.

Coffee prices will be inflated again. Sixty-six members of the International Coffee Agreement have voted to sharply cut coffee earmarked for the world market if prices continue to drop. In addition, the coffee rust in Brazil is spreading.

California Chicanos Building Own Political Party

By JOHN A. GONZALES

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mexican-American leaders in California, despite a disappointing effort in last November's elections, have not given up their campaign to build what they hope will be the state's first purely ethnic political party.

Chicano political leaders supported Ricardo Romo, a gubernatorial candidate running on the leftist Peace and Freedom party ticket.

Their objective was to try to help Romo get at least 2 per cent of the total California vote.

Romo polled 64,547, a little more than 1 per cent. Most of the state's 1.5 million Chicanos adhered to their traditional loyalty to the Democratic party.

"Chicano power" may be a long way off. But the leaders say it will eventually be a reality.

Just a Start

"The candidacy of Ricardo Romo was not a failure, but a beginning for our people," said Abe Tapia, state president of the Mexican American Political Association.

"We're just going to have to register more of our people," said Tony Salamanca, executive director of El Dorado distributors, a San Francisco outlet for Chicano literature.

"The sad conclusion is that we don't believe in ourselves yet. We don't believe we can command our own destiny, so we're still relying on the establishment. The Democratic party doesn't have to do a damn thing and they still will get 75 per cent of our votes."

Jose Razo, head of La Raza in East Los Angeles, believes Chicanos must be "politicized," shown "thera is a direct relation between their political education and how it can help at the polls regarding the barrio poverty conditions."

Romo said the vote shows that most Chicanos are still very conservative.

"The first thing we need to develop is political consciousness among our people—an understanding of what are the issues," he said. "But any concerted effort to develop a strong political party on ethnic lines will be mainly affected by what position the Democratic party takes on the upcoming reapportionment."

There are two movements currently aimed at building Chicano party in California. The Texas-based Las Raza Unida party has already set up headquarters in cities throughout the state. The other is called the "Chicano revolutionary party."

Other Chicano leaders, however, are not ready to dump the two-party system.

Two-Party System

Pete Chacon, newly elected San Diego assemblyman, said he is "convinced Chicanos can win politically in the two-party system."

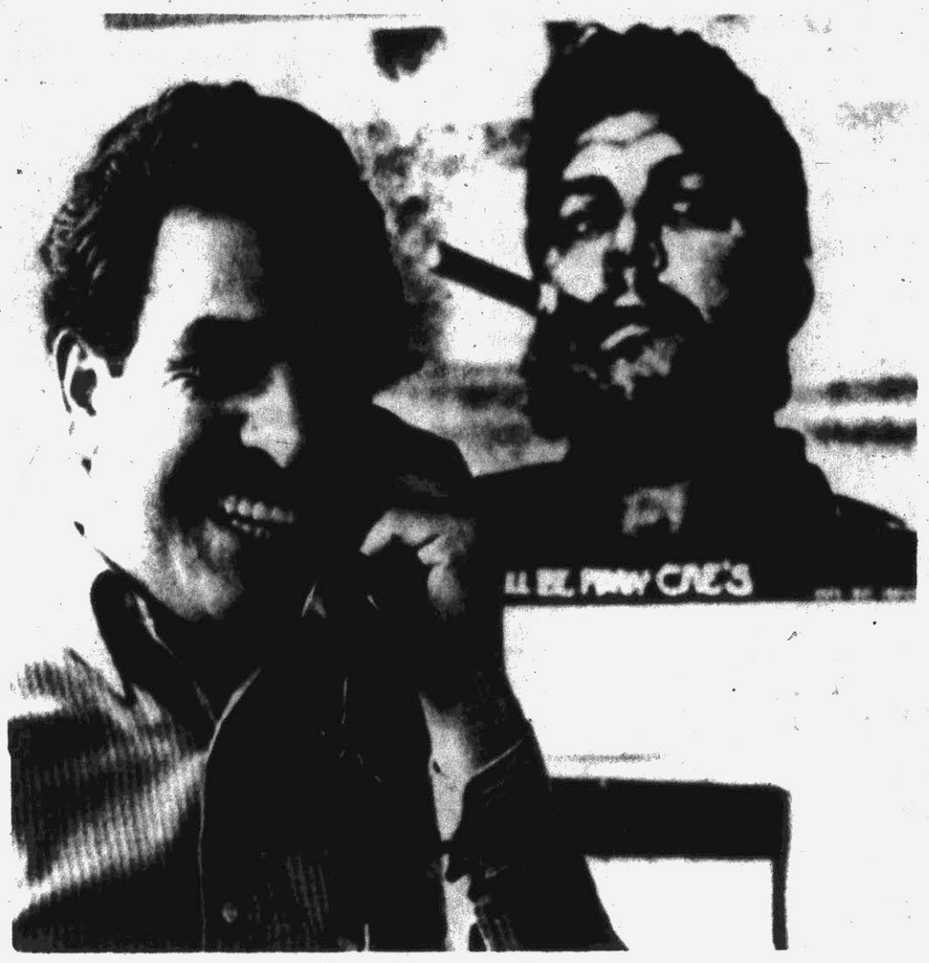

"I ran in a district that was 64 per cent white, 27 per cent black and 8 per cent Chicano. I went after the huge Anglo vote and got it," he said. "If a Chicano can make a 'nice guy' impression on the Anglo community, he may have a chance."

San Francisco supervisor Robert Gonzales said a Chicano party "may be a functional party in Texas where there is a high percentage of Chicanos, but in California our brand of Chicano is more sophisticated and his oppression is less obvious."

Gonzales believes poor people will continue to identify with the Democratic party.

Roger Boas, Democratic state chairman, considers the political movement by Chicanos "an extremely healthy situation."

"We won't get the Chicano vote in the future unless we support Chicano needs," Boas said. "We want to see Chicanos get a fair shake. It's about time they got a piece of the pie and we'll make every effort to see that they get it. But if they want to go strictly third party there's not much we can do about it. It's their concern at that point."

CHICANO LEADER Ricardo Romo says "The first thing we need to develop is political consciousness among our people — an understanding of what are the issues." (UPI Telephoto) politicians heard of this came in telephone calls from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew after the budget went to the press. Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, a Nixon loyalist certain of the President's support for the program, was dumbfounded. Republican Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia, who heard Mr. Nixon laud the program in a private chat last year, first got the bad news from a West Virginia Democrat — Sen. Jennings Randolph, chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee.

These surprised Republicans were not alone. Presidential assistants concerned with political affairs did not learn of the decision until Mr. Nixon made it. Now, they must live with it.

What happened derives from bureaucratization of the White House. The Appalachian question was handled by John Ehrlichman's White House Policy Council with Dr. Edwin L. Harper, a young Ph.D. straight from the Arthur D. Little management firm doing the basic staff work. The Appalachian Commission, successful though it was, did not fit the New Federalism as prescribed by the Ash report on government reorganization. Therefore, off with its head.

This is precisely the result that sagacious Administration officials prophesied would emerge from the new staff structure. Mr. Nixon, a President long known to work mainly from staff memoranda, concentrates hard on a few transcendent issues and, therefore, is at the mercy of the Policy Council staff. Political advisers simply do not get a hearing on such matters.

Side Benefits In Air Freight

NEW YORK (UPI)—The growth of the air freight forwarding industry may pay unexpected dividends in the future, according to a freight company official.

"Small towns, distant from major airports, have not had the full benefits of air transportation, says Sidney B. Lifschultz, chairman of Trans-Air Freight System, Inc. "As air freight forwarders coordinate their truck, rail and air facilities to reach these outlying areas, a realignment of plant and office sites becomes more feasible. This, in turn, could lead to a decentralization of industry and a change in population patterns, which will reduce the pressure on our great cities."

Test For Willy Brandt In West Berlin's Elections

By JOSEPH FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI)—West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's face darkened and he appeared shocked as boos rang out when he was introduced over the loudspeaker at a recent football game in West Berlin's Olympic stadium.

There were more cheers and applause than boos, but never before had Brandt—who gained an international reputation as the western outpost's fighting Social Democratic mayor when Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev tried to force the western powers out—been booed here, not even by the most violent of his Christian democratic opponents.

Men of all parties here always paid homage to Brandt for his courage and leadership as West Berlin's mayor, including times when even Washington appeared to waver under Soviet pressures.

The face of West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz, Brandt's protegee who accompanied him to the game during Brandt's Jan. 30-31 visit to the city, darkened, too, at the Boos.

It was not a good omen for the Social Democratic party's chances in the March 14 municipal elections which will be considered a referendum on Brandt's new eastern policy of reconciliation with the Soviet bloc.

As West Berlin is not a state of the federal republic of Germany, the election will have no effect on Brandt's slim majority in the West German Bundestag, the lower house of parliament. But since the chancellor's eastern policy would have immediate repercussions on exposed West Berlin, the election will be watched closely.

West Berliners feel their future could be at stake, and even more than in West German elections the vote here will be considered a referendum on Brandt's "ost politik"—policy of seeking accommodation with Moscow

The opposition Christian Democrats are determined to make it just such a referendum.

Heinrich Lummer, head of the party in West Berlin, said "Berlin would be the first victim of an unsuccessful East policy. Brandt's unrealistic and dilettanist policy has not improved the situation in Barlic."

The Social Democrats have accepted the challenge. Brandt told an election rally here he wants a mandate to go ahead, but the boos in the Olympic stadium showed the city has been made uneasy by opposition charges that Brandt is moving too fast in dealing with the Kremlin and is not sure where he is going.

The Christian Democrats and others opposed to Brandt's policy are warning that Brandt's negotiations with the Soviets and East Germans could somehow weaken the Western Allied position here on which the security of the city depends.

They assert Brandt has made concessions to the East and received nothing in return. As proof, they point to East German harassment of Berlin traffic.

It would take almost a miracle to oust the Social Democrats because the city is traditionally socialist. All political observers say the socialists and their coalition partner, the tiny Free Democrats, are sure to get 50 per cent of the vote.

In the last city election in 1967 the Social Democrats got 56.9 per cent of the vote, the Christian Democrats 32.9 per cent, the Free Democrats 7.1 per cent. The Communists got 2 per cent.

Any significant drop in the Social Democrats vote would be considered a defeat for Brandt. If it happens it might give brandt pause in pushing on with his "ost politik."

Revenue-Sharing Doubts Raised

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) —An urban expert says President Nixon's plans to decentralize government power through revenue-sharing won't do much good unless it makes the nation's cities partners instead of "creatures" of the states.

The proposal for "city equality" in the federal systems comes from John Feild, director of the center of policy analysis of the National League of Cities and U.S. Conference of mayors. It is sure to encounter objections from some federal and state officials.

At present, Feild contends, "local governments are not accorded a full-fledged role" in the allocation of $30 billion a year in federal aid funds.

"Unless and until they are, both policy and administrative conflict will continue to bog the system down," Feild says.

Case for Equality

He made the case for "city equality" in the urban coalition magazine "City."

He charged that the Nixon administration's expressed concern for the states' role in the intergovernmental system is "more and exercise in high school civics than it is effective governmental action."

"It is a form of self-deception born of the agricultural age," he said. "The simple truth is that local bureaucracies and local resources are larger, more effective and more relevant to the average American citizen today than those of state government."

Feild said the states do have a "vital" role in education, natural resource management, criminal justice and regulation of utilities and commerce. But they are not "capable of doing the same kind of administrative job being done by local government to service the needs of their citizens and involve them in deciding on priorities and goals."

Main Problem

The main problem, according to Feild, is that states in the past have engaged in policies that have widened racial and class lines in the distribution of federal and state funds.

In a lengthy review of federal policies affecting cities, Feild said automatic allocation of funds to states based on their population or some other formula has failed, in the case of school aid, to equalize inequalities between cities and suburbs. In fact, he said, it actually has tended to widen the gaps.

He said the same is now proving true in the distribution of crime-fighting funds under the "safe streets" law.

"Although the ostensible intent of federal effort is to improve the urban environment by improved law enforcement in areas with high concentrations of crime, the dollars are not being matched to these areas."

De Facto Partners

The cities, Feild concluded, "have in a very real sense become for better or worse, de facto partners in the federal system along with the states and must be dealt with as such if the intergovernmental system is to work."

"They are no longer simply 'creatures' of the state whose charters can be theoretically revoked or arbitrarily changed. They are as permanent a component in the federal system as the statesiacdiare essential to it."

That means local officials "must be consulted by state and federal officers before policies affecting cities are formulated; their taxing powers respected and strengthend; their claim on national priorities honestly balanced against other needs."

Venice is a city of small islands.

WILLY BRANDT rubbed his hands in apparent glee when he opened a meeting of the Social Democratic Party's executive board in 1969. Since then, Brandt's reception has been cooling. (UPI Telephoto)

Grew To Hate Concrete Jungle

KIDDERMINSTER, England (AP) — Six years ago, at the age of 56, Bill Moore suddenly was stricken with a hatred for concrete.

"I walked into the town center one day and there was this horrible office block and all that concrete jungle," he said. "I thought that's it, if that's what they're doing to Kidderminster I don't want to see it."

He has gone so far as to pay a barber to come out to his edge-of-town home for his regular haircuts.

More Highway Work Shapes Up In Year Ahead

CHICAGO (AP) — Federal highway funds for 1971. total $21.2 billion for improvements to federal, state and local highway systems.

Total receipts for 1971 are expected to be $1.6 billion more than the $21.6 billion total receipts in 1970, according to a report compiled by the Commerce Clearing House, a tax authority.

Highway disbursements will amount to $20.4 billion, plus $1.2 billion for retirement of bonds in 1971.

Capital outlays, including expenditures for right-of-way, engineering and construction, will amount to $12.2 billion or 60 per cent of total current disbursements. The 1971 outlays will be more than 9 per cent higher than in 1970.

Maintenance is expected to cost $4.8 billion or 24 per cent of the total. This is 6 per cent higher than in 1970.

Europe Offered Larger Role In Space Flights

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has offered West Europeans a significant role in future space flights, State Department officials say, but not the blank check the Europeans sought in helping launch their own satellites.

U.S. officials commented after Theo Lefevre, president of the 11-nation European Space Conference, was quoted as saying the Americans refused to sell rockets for launching Europe's proposed communfcations satellites.

Lefevre recently ended a high level meeting in Washington on possible European participation in the space program after the Apollo man-to-the-moon trips.

The Europeans are seeking to expand their fledgling space industry at the same time the United States is looking for a two-way benefit from cutting others in on more of the space action.

One U.S. authority estimated the Europeans might be willing to put a billion dollars into a cooperative post-Apollo project to orbit a space laboratory with a space shuttle link to earth, with resulting savings to U.S. taxpayers.

Lefevre's comments in Brussels on American reluctance to sell rockets for launching satellites could mean the Europeans would have to spend large sums on developing their own rocket for big communications satellites instead of on a joint post-Apollo venture with the United

But Lefevre's version was disputed by State Department officials.

They said the Europeans have been offered responsibility for developing part of the projected space station and shuttle system, sharing in knowhow and use, and the possibility of gaining an advanced launch capability of their own from the joint effort.

Turned down, the officials said, was a European call for "unlimited and unconditional" U.S. assurances that the United States will supply launchings for European satellites.

The United States can make no such open-ended promise, they said, because of the commitments by this country and other members of Intlsat—the global commercial communications satellite system—not to put up communications satellites economically harmful to Intlsat.

At least one of the proposed European communications satellites, France's Symphonie, would probably hurt Intlsat by competing for telecommunications business from Africa, U.S. officials say.

But they say other parts of the offer still stand and it's up to the Europeans to agree to the U.S. offer of a share in the post-Apollo space shuttle.

Tobacco TIPS

By SAM J. WEEKS

In recent years, foliar sprays have been used as a part of the tobacco fertilization program on some farms. When used, the application of foliar sprays has been used as a supplemental application of nutrients—mainly for the nitrogen content of the solution.

Urea is the form of nitrogen in foliar sprays. Experimental work has shown that supplying nitrogen to tobacco plants through foliar sprays of urea solutions is neither efficient, practical, or economical.

In tests made by the North Carolina Experiment Station, it has been determined that supplying nitrogen through urea foliar spray to the leaf interferred with plant absorption of calcium and magnesium, and the growth and development of the root system. When this takes place, both yield and quality of the leaf are lowered in proportion to the amount of urea sprays used.

The use of foliar sprays and solid nitrate nitrogen was compared by the Experiment Station personnel by applying each of these materials one to two weeks prior to the beginning of harvest. All plots received 1000 pounds of 4-8-12 preplant fertilizer per acre. In each case, the foliar applied nitrogen gave a lower yield than the solid nitrate form applied to the soil. In two of the three cases, the yield was actually lower where nitrogen was applied as foliar spray than when no additonal nitrogen was supplied. The leaf from plants which received the spray was dull in color while the leaf from the other treatments was clear in color.

In short, all of our results suggest that if a tobacco plant could speak it would say to the farmer "feed my feet."

WEBBED FEET

MIDWAY (UPI)—This tiny two-island atoll —a famous World War II landmark —has a U.S. Navy and Air Force population of 2,250 plus an estimated 600,000 web-footed Laysan albatross, also known as "gooney birds." Midway is 1,300 miles northwest of Hawaii.

Farm Scene

By HENRY C. RIDDICK

With the break in the weather and spring just about here, the home gardner will soon be out in the yard to examine the toll taken by the cold weather.

Most ornamental shrubs should be pruned the last of February or the first of March. And that is pruned, not sheared. Probably if all the hedge shears were thrown in the Tar River, our plantings would soon look much better. You can't prune with hedge shears, you can only shear. Shearing is fine for a formal, clipped hedge but it is terrible for other type plants.

You must remember that like people, plants have character. Some plants are low growing, spreading, some are tall, some are round, and pruning should bring out the character of the plant. Prune to bring out the natural characteristics and to keep it looking natural. After pruning except for size, the plant should look as if it has not been pruned.

When pruning plants like Chinese holly and ligustrum, make your cuts inside the plant. Don't cut the small twigs because this will make your shrub too thick. New growth will be put out just below cuts, so stagger your cuts throughout the plant. If you need growth near the ground, cut the stems near the ground. But always keep plants open enough for light to enter. If a plant gets too thick on the outside, the foliage on the inside will die.

In every case, there are exceptions and here boxwoods are the exception, but even boxwoods should not be sheared. Use a knife or clippers to remove the longer branches. Make the cuts slightly inside the plant and leave the shorter branches unpruned.

There is always a question of when to prune. You may do light pruning any time. But if heavy cutting is necessary do this in early spring just before growth starts. If blossoms are important do heavy pruning just after plants finish blooming.

If your shrubs were coldhurt, cut them back just below where the green wood starts. This should be done when you figure we have had the last hard freeze. If you are planning on transplanting shrubs or trees, remove enough branches to balance the loss of roots. If the plant has a central leader leave the top. Magnolia and dogwood are plants of this type.

The first athletic club in the United States is believed to be the Olympic Club of San Francisco, organized in 1860.

Local Musician Is 'All-State' Choice

Violist John Daugman, a junior at Rose High School, has been selected a member of the All State Orchestra of North Carolina for 1971.

Daugman, a private pupil of violist Paul Topper of the East Carolina University School of Music faculty, received this honor following competitive auditions in Raleigh.

Outstanding school orchestra musicians from all parts of North Carolina try out for membership in the All State Orchestra and the workshop orchestra which meets at the same time under the direction of guest conductors.

Being chosen as a member of this orchestra places a young musician within the top echelon of players within each field of instrumental music.

This year, the orchestra, sponsored by the North Carolina Music Educators Association will be meeting at East Carolina University beginning March 12, for a three day session of practice, workshop and discussions. The meeting will conclude with a public concert on Sunday, March 14.

The son of Professor and Mrs. Joseph Daugman, John performs regularly as a member of the East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra.

Senators Are Told Of General's Payoff

GOD AND COUNTRY AWARDS . . . were received by two Billy Pate (left) son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Pate, and Tommy Manning (right), son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Manning, Sr. The awards were made recently during morning services at Red Oak Christian Church.

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) An Army general received $1,000 monthly from Vietnam's most notorious sales promoter, shielded him from military investigators and permitted him to store smuggled goods in Army warehouses, a U.S. Senate panel was told today.

Senators probing alleged corruption in the armed services' $6 billion post exchange, clubs and recreation activities were told former Brig. Gen. Earl F. Cole, 51, used his influence as a well-placed staff officer in Vietnam to protect free-wheeling entrepeneur William J. Crum.

The Army gave no explanation last July when it removed Cole from command of the European Post Exchange system, reduced him to colonel, and ordered him to retire.

In his testimony, Jack Bybee, former general manager for two of Crum's most lucrative Vietnam business enterprises, said Crum sent his military contacts, including Cole, to Hong Kong to pick up kickback money from a local financial institution.

Testifying under oath, Bybee said Crum illegally used official and counterfeit military purchase orders to smuggle merchandise into Vietnam duty free and used shredding machines to destroy documents.

Bybee said Crum made good use of Cole, a long-time friend, in his booming business enterprises. He said Crum employed Cole once to drive a slot-machine competitor from business through a raid Crum boasted he paid for.

When a gift-shop concession held by Crum was doing poorly, Cole arranged for a local Army noncommissioned officers club to buy its assets at retail prices, a $120,000 deal that included a $12,000 kickback to the sergeant in charge of the clubs, Bybee said.

Warned the Army's Criminal Investigations Division was about to raid his Saigon headquarters searching for fraudulent military purchase forms and other evidence of wrongdoing, Crum turned for help to Gen. Cole, then deputy chief of staff for personnel and administration at Long Binh, Bybee said.

"Mr. Crum said Gen. Cole was costing him $1,000 a month and this was the sort of favor he could expect to ask of the general," Bybee testified.

"Mr. Crum went on to say that he would have Gen. Cole instruct the Long Binh Provost Marshal to direct the Army investigators not to participate in the raid," Bybee said.

Wildcats Need Victory Tonight To Cinch '1'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is the year many observers said Davidson finally would lose the Southern Conference basketball title, but the Wildcats can make sure tonight they won't be dethroned as early as the championship tournament's first round March 4 at the Charlotte, N. C., Coliseum.

With the conference reduced this year to seven teams, the regular season leader draws an automatic bye in the opening round and the three-time champion Whildcats, 7-2, need only a victory tonight over The Citadel to clinch the No. 1 spot.

The Bulldogs are tied with William and Mary's Indians at 6-3 for second place, but Davidson has just one league game left after tonight — and, like the tussle with The Citadel — it's on the Wildcats' home court where they haven't lost now in 57 starts.

Davidson ran its home-floor string to 57 Satruday night with a 71-61 victory over Furman's Paladins that avenged an 84-75 defeat at Furman earlier, a setback that snapped the Wildcats' 35-game win streak against conference opponents.

Tonight's only other action has East Carolina's Pirates, who climbed to fourth place at 6-4 with a 65-56 victory Saturday night over William and Mary, at Jacksonville to meet the nationally sixth-ranked Dolphins. Jacksonville already has beaten three other league teams this season.

Richmond's Spiders, like East Carolina and Davidson, avenged an earlier defeat with a 93-77 romp Saturday night over Virginia Military Institute's Keydets. VMI's only victory in 24 starts was over Richmond.

In the only nonconference scrap Saturday night, Coach Dick Campbell of The Citadel tried some strategy after West Virginia Tech had tied the Bulldogs 45-45 in regulation time.

Campbell sent four guards and center John Sutor on the floor, the Bulldogs got the ball and played for one shot in the extra period — and Ben Ledbetter made it good with four seconds left for a 47-45 victory.

Duncan Postma hit a career-high 20 points in Davidson's victory, primarily achieved by a 47-28 rebound advantage with neither team shooting well from the floor. Two baskets by Postma cut short an attempted Furman rally in which the Paladins sliced a 19-point edficit to eight.

East Carolina built a 10-point lead in the first half against William and Mary, saw it narrowed to one point with 11:21 left in the game and then pulled away again. Davd Franklin had 20 points and 10 rebounds for the Pirates, Tom Jasper 15 points for the Indians.

Senior Phil Bushkar hit a career-high 27 points and sophomore Joe Dauses added 21 as Richmond shot 54 per cent against VMI. The Spiders ran up an 18-point lead early in the second half and never were threatened. Lee Seibert had 24 points and 14 rebounds and Jan Essenberg 23 points for the Keydets.

Uncertainties Plaguing The ACC

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In less than two weeks the eight Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams begin the annual madeness of tournament play and about the only thing positive is that Clemson will be the eighth-seeded team.

But the Tigers' opponent, the regular season conference champion, isn't any closer to being settled now than it was Dec. 1 when play began. North Carolina, eighth-ranked nationally, is currently in the top spot with a 9-2 record.

But South Carolina has climbed back into second place at 7-4, and the seventh-ranked Gamecocks downed the Tar Heels Saturday, 72-66, to earn a measure of revenge for a loss at Chapel Hill earlier in the year.

The rest of the rankings are equally uncertain. Virginia and Duke are tied for third, Wake Forest is fourth, and N. C. State and Maryland bring up the rear just ahead of Clemson.

Every team except Wake Forest and N. C. State has three league games remaining. Those two have four to go before the tournament.

Two schools clash tonight and two others play nonconference foes. Virginia is at N. C. State, and Florida State visits North Carolina while Houston is at South Carolina.

In other action Saturday, interleague battles kept the winning percentage high as Duke mauled Virginia 101-59 and Wake Forest beat N. C. State 89-85; while Clemson was edging Virginia Tech, 56-53 and Maryland was nipping Seton Hall, 56-55.

The issue of whether the tournament winner should represent the ACC in postseason NCAA play, even if that team didn't win the regular season title, cropped up again Saturday at Columbia.

South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire said after his squad downed the Tar Heels: "If North Carolina can go through the regular season with the best record, then they should represent the conference. I don't believe in the tournament and never will.

"It's excruciating for the team which wins the regular season to have to go through this," he added. McGuire, of course, was speaking from bitter experience, and he was undoubtedly thinking that if his Gamecocks should overtake North Carolina before the tournament, they should go on to the NCAA.

Last year McGuire's team roared through the league unbeaten in regulation play, only to be upset in triple overtime by N. C. State in the tournament finals.

The Gamecock coach praised his players for their defensive performance and John Roche for his 32-point show. He said, "To hold a team such as North Carolina like that is unbelievable. I thought we played the best collapsing defense I've ever seen."

The Tar Heels brought a 54.1 per cent shooting average to Columbia and sank just 15 of 41 attempts there. After falling behind by 12 points early in the second half, the Tar Heels pulled back to within three with less than two minutes to go. But the crucial shots wouldn't drop from then on and the Gamecocks hit vital free throws.

A total of 57 personal fouls was called, and six technicals.

Roche said afterward he thought the final margin should have been greater. "It was a 12 to 15-point game, I think," he said, adding: "I think we had more respect for them this time than at Chapel Hill."

In the Deacon-Wolfpack clash, Wake Forest star Charlie Davis got high praise from his coach for pouring in 35 points, including four critical free throws in the final seconds. Jack McCloskey went on: "We had to play awfully tough basketball to win" over N. C. State, which came within two points late in the game after trailing six most of the way.

The Duke victory pleased Coach Bucky Waters so much he said he hopes the Blue Devils will have a national ranking this week. "We are gradually coming back, one by one, against teams which were playing better than us in December," he said.

Opposing Coach Bill Gibson of Virginia countered: "We are not playing the type of ball we should be playing. We must find ourselves on the road."

The road to the championship at the Greensboro tournament March 11-13 is still a long one for Gibson and the other coaches.

Still Await One Entry

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Six Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball teams—and a seventh to be named Tuesday—start prsuit of unbeaten Norfolk State in the annual league tournament Thursday.

The eight game tournament begins at 1:30 p.m. with Howard playing Shaw. Next will be the winner of a game Tuesday between Virginia Union and Virginia State against Elizabeth City.

In the 7 p.m. game opening day, North Carolina A&T plays Maryland-Eastern Shore, and Norfolk State tackles N.C. Central in the nightcap.

Two semifinals games are to be played in the Greensboro Coliseum Friday with the championship clash and a consolation to be Saturday night.

The Norfolk State Spartans won the regular season title in the CIAA's Northern Division by winning all 16 league games. The Southern Division champs, Elizabeth City by virtue of a coin toss, won 12 and lost four. A & T—17th in the AP college division poll—had the same record but lost the flip.

A Bloomin' Good Year For Track

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Flowers are in full bloom at Hialeah's race course.

Track superintendent Angelo Testa has worked since last March to make certain the track's 100,000 bougainvillea, begonias and chrysanthemums would be ready for the 40-day meeting which ends March 3.

State Job For Ace Quarterback

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Tommy Warren, the 22-year-old quarterback who led the Seminoles to a 7-4 season, has joined the team of Gov. Reubin Askew.

Warren started work last Monday as a $9,600-a-year administrative assistant to Askew, a 1951 Florida State University graduate and the first ever to be elected governor.

"Right now I'm doing a little of everything, but I probably will be involved in highway safety and law enforcement," Warren said in an interview. "So far it's been really great, very intriguing, very interesting."

Trevino Has Tucson Hope

TUSCON, Ariz. (AP) — Lee Trevino was four strokes off the pace, not playing particularly well — and talking about winning.

"I figure I've got to go eight under par to win it," he said. And he's got 36 holes to do it today in the weather-plagued $110,000 Tucson Open golf tournament

"Putting will do it," said Trevino, winner of the last two Tucson Open titles and the 1970 leading money-winner. I'm going to be playing with some of those guys up on top. Some of them. And if I can make some putts, put some pressure on them, anything can happen.

"But if those guys on top start good, get some putts in the hole, well, nobody is going to catch them. It doesn't matter much where you hit it on this golf course — it's the putting."

Those guys on top going into today's 36-hole windup are J. C. Snead and Dale Douglass, along with DeWitt Weaver.

Judge Makes A Big Hit With Sports Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — District of Columbia Superior Court Judge Stanley S. Harris made a big hit at the Washington Baseball Writers' annual dinner. The judge is the son of Bucky Harris, who managed the 1924 Washington Senators to their World Series victory over John McGraw's Giants.

"I can't say anything against Bob Short," (Senators president) said Judge Harris, "because he employs my father.

"There is nothing I can say about Martha Mitchell because her husband (Attorney General John Mitchell) is my boss.

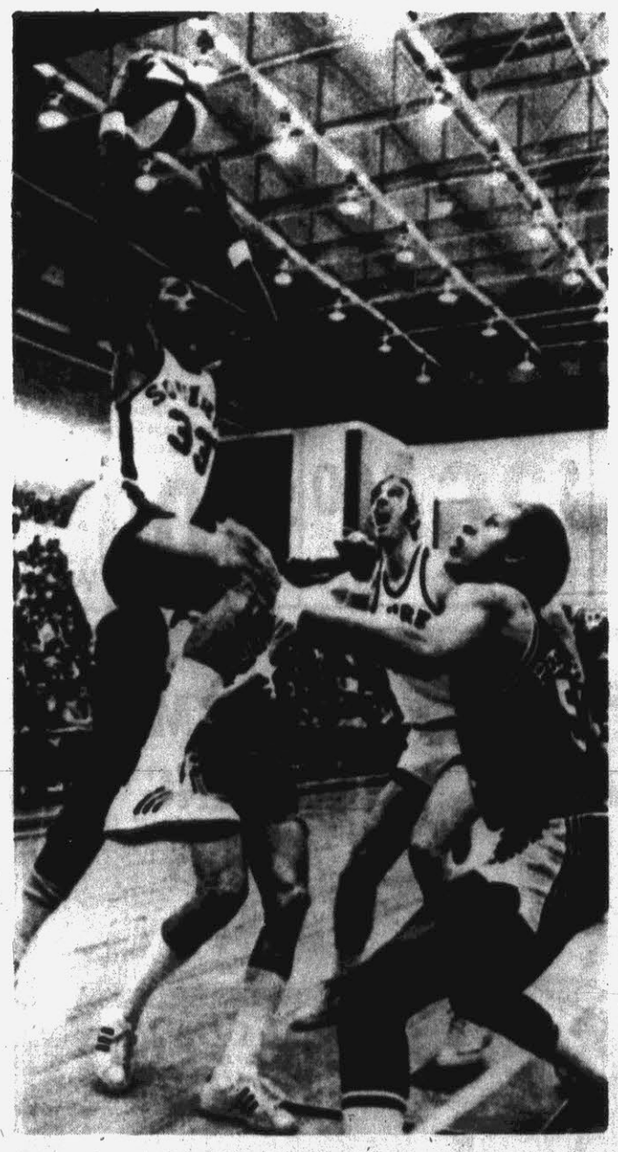

"And there is nothing I can say about James H. Lemon (who owns 20 per cent of the Senators) because my brother, Dick, works for Mr. Lemon's investment firm."

Judge Harris put in a good word for his father who played 12 years as a major league second baseman and managed 23 years in the majors. The judge was wondering why the Hall of Fame veterans committee had failed to name his father for the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine.

His Letters From Michigan State

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — John Ralston, football coach of Stanford's Rose Bowl upset winners over unbeaten Ohio State, is the son of Milo Ralston who earned his letter at Michigan State as 1923 baseball team manager.

John, a graduate of Norway, Mich., high, also had an uncle, Merle, who played on Michigan State's 1924 basketball team.

GREAT SCOTT — Rookie sensation Charlie Scott of the Virginia Squires drives baseline for basket in American Basketball Association game Sunday against Carolina Cougars. Scott, who got into foul trouble early, played less than half the game but still managed 27 points in Virginia's 123-119 victory. (AP Wirephoto)

Trio Star In Record-Shattering

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kerry O'Brien was stunned, Tom Von Ruden was bored and Jim Ryun confided it built his confidence.

These were some of the comments the three stars of the indoor track and field season uttered in shattering world marks over the weekend in two separate meets.

O'Brien completely obliterated the previous two-mile mark with an astounding 8:19.2 clocking, bettering the former record indoors by eight seconds and beating the outdoor best of fellow Australian Ron Clarke by .4 seconds at the San Diego Indoor meet.

About 15 minutes earlier Friday night, on the same 11-lap, high-banked board track at the International Sports Arena, Ryun raced to a blistering 3:56.4 run in the mile, equaling the 7-year-old world standard set by Tom O'Hara as all four men in the field went under the 4-mintue mark.

While on the same night in New York, Von Ruden snapped the 1,000-meter record with a 2:20.4 clocking, bettering Great Britain's John Davies' record set earlier this month by .5 seconds.

"Unbelievable! I'm stunned," said O'Brien, the world outdoor 3,000-meter steeplechase record-holder. "This is a fantastic track and the way things were going halfway through, I knew I had a chance."

O'Brien led two others to fantastic times. Former corecord-holders, Kerry Pearce of Australia and George Young of Arizona ran 2-4 with former Yale ace Frank Shorter third in 8:26.2, as American record. Pearce was timed in 8:20.6, Young in 8:34.6.

Ryun, running only for the second time in nearly two years, once again proved that he is one, if not the best, of America's middle distance runners as he was at Kansas.

"If I had run four minutes and was beaten, I wouldn't have been disappointed, but this was a confidence builder," he said.

Ryun, who quit running in June 1969, didn't enter competition again until Jan. 22, when he won the mile in 4:04.4 in San Francisco.

"I came to San Diego to see where I was in my training," Ryun said. "My biggest season is outdoors. If I do well indoors, fine. I'm just aiming for the outdoor season."

At New York's Madison Square Garden, Von Ruden reacquired his world record over the 11-lap banked, elastroturf surface in the U. S. Olympic Invitational meet. He held the previous mark of 2:21.0 set last year until Davies snapped it in England.

Another world record fell in New York when Dave Romansky of the Delaware Track Club smashed the 1,500-meter walk mark with a 5:49.8 clocking, bettering his own mark of last year by .4 seconds.

Leon Coleman, a Mattapan, Mass., schoolteacher and Olympian, tied the world standard in the 55-meter hurdles with a 7.1 clocking while Villanova's Marty Liquori won in New York for the 13th successive time.

Liquori, a senior, captured the 1,500 meters in 3:44.2 in his farewell indoor appearance in New York. After graduation, the 21-year-old plans to move to Florida and run outdoors to prepare for the 1972 Olympics.

The New York meet also was highlighted by the appearance of a contingent of nine Russians, making the last stop on their three-meet United States tour.

The Russians gained three victories, a pair of seconds and five third places. The winners were Olympic champion and world record holder Viktor Sanayev in the triple jump, Yevgeny Arzhanov, 800 meters, and Pashid Sharafetdinov, 3,000 meters.

British See Track Meet Fans And Talent Fading

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LONDON (AP) — Britain's worried track and field officials are trying to find ways to win back the fans to the big meets.

Fans don't go any more. They sit at home and watch the running and jumping on television.

Eric Kennell, who recently resigned as chairman of the general committee of the British Amateur Athletics Association (AAA), said:

"We must not rely on 90 per cent of our income coming from television fees. That is not a healthy position for any sport to be in."

Last year crowds of 2,000 and 3,000 were dotted about the vast White City Stadium in West London to watch the British championships and international meets.

What a change from the period following World War II! Track and field was then one of Britain's biggest crowd-pullers. In 1946 a crowd of 55,000 saw Sydney Wooderson, former holder of the world mile record, race against the Swedish stars Arne Andersson and Gunder Haag.

No more track and field will be seen at White City. The AAA is moving the big events to Crystal Palace in the south of the capital. It costs less to hire but accommodates only 15,000 people

Wooderson, now 57, still keeps in touch with the sport by acting as judge or timekeeper for his club, Blackheath Harriers. He thought crowds had dwindled because the sport lacks star personalities.

"People want to see top class athletes," Wooderson said. "They don't often get a star-studded meet these days, and I think it is because there is too much track and field going on. Athletes cannot cope with it all."

Chris Chataway, once the world 5,000 meters record holder and now Britain's Minister of Post and Telecommunications, said: "There's no atmosphere at these meets any more. The emptiness of the stadium is so depressing I can feel it even when I watch television."

Kennell thinks the AAA should follow the example of the British Lawn Tennis Association (LTA) and appoint a promotions manager to make meets attractive.

He also wants to see international matches against other countries staged in provincial centers and now always concentrated in London.

ANGELS PLAY AT .477

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels have a 10-year 771-846 record for a .477 percentage, best of the eight baseball expansion teams. Houston is runnerup with a .435 mark.

Going Downhill At 32, So Skier Trains Harder

By ERIC WAHA
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA (AP) — Karl Schranz, Austria's "white hope," passed up a drink on his birthday. He has to train harder than his teammates because at 32 he is "the old man."

Schranz has won alpine skiing's prestigious World Cup for two consecutive years, and he is a triple world champion.

He celebrated his 32nd birthday recently at his hotel at St. Anton in the Austrian Arlberg winter sport area gazing into a soft drink with three other skiers.

"Don't let this (hotel) mislead you," Schranz said. "Most of the year I live like a monk. I train harder than almost every other skier. I want to stay on top as long as I can, I want to win another World Cup."

Schranz trains especially hard for the slalom, his weak point last season. He won the World Cup on the strength of his downhill victories, and because he also did well in the giant slalom.

Schranz started race skiing on the Austrian national team in 1958. He won two world titles in 1962, another one in 1969. His long top form has resulted in the label "evergreen Schranz."

But age may not be Schranz' strongest enemy. This seems to be Avery Brundage, American president of the International Olympic Committee. At least that is what some skiing officials say.

Brundage has repeatedly denounced "commercialism" in alpine skiing. Schranz is connected with an Austrian ski manufacturer. And the fact that Schranz owns a hotel seems to confirm that top skiers enjoy substantial financial benefits.

The skiers and leading officials of the International Skiing Federation—FIS—usually counter this by saying that alpine skiing is an unusual sport, and thus some special allowances must be made.

They say that skiing—especially the downhill part—is more dangerous than most of the other sports, that skiers therefore have to train harder, and longer and they must receive some financial compensation for it.

The question is—how much? That is where the conflict with the IOC comes in. No satisfactory solution has so far been found. This may result in the fact that some of the top skiers, including Schranz if he is still around, may be barred from the 1972 Olympic Winter Games in Sapporo, Japan.

Brundage has already named nine skiers—this time exempting Schranz—who may be threatened with expulsion from the 1972 games because of their activities in an American ski camp last summer.

They allegedly received payments and joined in publicity and commercial promotions at Mammouth Mountain, Calif. Those taking part were France's slalom world champion Jean-Noel Augert, Georges Mauduit and Jean-Luc Pinel, Switzerland's Jean Deatwyler and Dumeng Giovanoli, West Germany's Franz Vogler, Norway's Terje Overland and Canada's Rod Hebron and Peter Duncan.

However, Schranz was on another list which Brundage recently submitted to FIS, asking for clarification about payments made to them. The list includes almost all top world skiers in both the men's and women's division.

The Brundage actions resulted in angry reaction from top skiing officials.

Maurice Martel, President of the French Ski Federation, said FIS should withdraw from the Olympic movement, and Sigge Bergman of Sweden, FIS secretary general said "Avery Brundage is persecuting the ski sport in general and alpine skiing in particular."

FIS, however, will have to come to terms with the IOC—and Avery Brundage in particular—if alpine skiing in its present form and if all top ski aces are to remain on the Olympic Program in 1972, and thereafter.

French Star Gains Upset

LIGHTHOUSE POINT, Fla. (AP) — France's top-ranked Woman professional tennis player, Francoise Durr, earned $2,000 Sunday with an upset victory over Billie Jean King of the U.S., the second-ranked female player in the world.

Miss Durr, seeded ninth in world competition, toppled Mrs. King 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Last week, Miss Durr beat the lady from Long Beach, Calif., in a semi-finals match in Philadelphia.

Miss Durr marked her first victory of the season in the contest and brought her winnings for the year to $6,600.

Mrs. King's $1,200 second-place prize brought her season's earnings to $16,000.

In competition for the $1,000 third-place prize, Rosemary Casals of San Francisco defeated Kerry Melville of Australia, 6-3, 6-1.

Gurney Hooked By March 28 Ontario Event

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP — Dan Gurney has Formula A fever.

"This is the sort of race that strikes my fancy," says Gurney of the 200-mile Questor Grand Prix at Ontario, Calif., Motor Speedway March 28.

"It'd be a wonderful opportunity to invite all the European drivers—then smoke them off the road."

Gurney in his 15 years of driving has beaten the best of the Grand Prix drivers, winning the French Grand Prix twice and the Mexican and Belgian events once each.

But when 10 of America's top road race drivers pit their Formula A cars against 20 of Europe's finest, driving Formula 1 machines, in the richest Grand Prix ever, Gurney will be on the sidelines.

The 39-year-old veteran, who announced his retirement late last year, said, "If only I hadn't promised everyone I wouldn't race again ... this is a dream race."

The closest the tall, blond Californian says he will come to being part of the $250,000 invitational event on the 3.2-mile road course is as honorary chief steward—and maybe as a car owner.

Gurney was named honorary chief steward because of his rapport with Grand Prix drivers and his knowledge of the machines.

Not only did he drive Formula 1 and Formula A machines—as well as USAC championship cars—he builds them. And if he could dig up one of 1968 or 1969 vintage he'd put Bobby Unser or Swede Savage behind the wheel. "But we'd have to make some modifications to include some things we've discovered since we built them," he said.

Both Savage and Unser are under contract to drive for Gurney.

Gurney concedes the Europeans have a 2-1 advantage, on a numerical basis, at the start of the race. "But I'd have to pick a Formula A car to win."

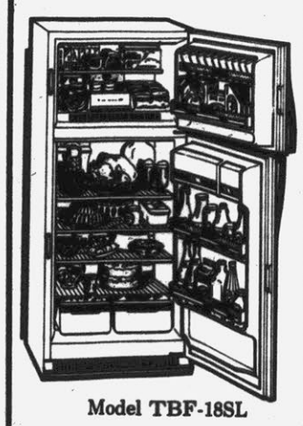

The Formula A cars, powered by Detroit engines, are at a disadvantage because they're 100 to 200 pounds heavier than the custom built Formula 1 machines but they are at an advantage because they have bigger engines and the tires aren't limited in width and size.

He also says that Formula A's probably perform better on straightaways while the Formula 1's take to the turns better.

Worry Clinic

Lose Fat For More 'Sizzle'

Esther is worried because her husband's kisses no longer sizzle! That's because she, like millions of other wives, have tried to put the sizzle in the steak instead of the boudoir cheesecake! Wives, outside sirens don't steal your mates away from you. No; you DRIVE them away by your "motherly" figure and walrus waddle!

Case P-579: Esther V., aged 36, is growing alarmed.

"Dr. Crane," she bagan, "I agree with you that wives are not as erotic as huabands.

"But our marriage seems to be growing entirely sexless!

"For my husband shows no more romantic interest in me than he would in his mother, who is 68.

"Why, Dr. Crane, he rarely kisses me! And when he does, it is just a perfunctory little peck on the cheek.

"As you can see, I am considerably too heavy.

"If I were to slenderize, do you think that would make him perk up in his romantic interest?

"For I'd like to have him give me sizzling movie-type kisses!"

SIZZLING KISSES

Wives, you can put far more sizzle in your kisses.

But that may require frying out a lot of the blubber from around your equator!

For men seldom associate romance with fat women!

Plump wives subconsicously suggest that they are good old motherly souls.

This may be very pleasing to boys and girls who aren't old enough to feel the romantic urge.

By adulthood, however, men are sensitized to seductive female figures, which usually mean a streamlined female chassis!

When Esther was a new bride, her weight was only 114.

Now she tips the scales at 157.

So she unwittingly curbs her husband's ardor in two ways.

First, her waddling walrus gait and hippopotamus figure do not incite erotic notions.

And her motherly appearance subconsciously arouses the universal incest taboo that makes a man reject any sexual passion toward his female parent.

Physically, as well as psychologically, therefore, you fat wives are predisposing your mates for an affair with some slender siren at the office.

Those outside paramours don't win your husbands away from you!

Not at all!

You stodgy wives DRIVE your mates into seeking outside romance!

For when a man grows older, his natural erotic ardor is somewhat reduced.

So he craves the maximum amount of seductive stimulation from his female partner.

Yet you obese wives rebuff him and furnish maybe no more than 25 per cent or 50 per cent of the boudoir appeal that you offered on your wedding night.

Oh, you can still offer him better roast beef in the dining room than does the outside siren.

But she beats you easily regarding boudoir cheesecake!

And it is the cheesecake that makes men stray!

Few paramours steal your husbands by their roast beef!

Wives, even your own pep declines when you are heavy.

For you can't feel like a sports roadster with the chassis of a truck!

Therefore, get so angry at your waistline that you sit down right now and order the "Diet Booklet," by which you can loose 10 pounds in 10 days.

Send a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, and regain your slender figure, after which your husband's kisses will begin to sizzle!

On Friday, I'll furnish you a follow-up report on Esther.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Broader Demo Convention Base

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Next year's Democratic National Convention will have more blacks, women and young people than ever before. The ability of political bosses to control delegations will be substantially reduced.

But the practical effects of the far-reaching reforms voted last week by the Democratic National Committee on the fight for the presidential nomination won't be known until next year.

One thing is certain: The increase in the number of presidential primaries, one outgrowth of the movement to reform party procedures that grew out of the tumultuous 1968 convention, will make them even more important than in the past.

Nineteen states and the District of Columbia, casting nearly 60 per cent of the convention votes under a formula approved by the committee, have primaries of one form or another. Only 40 per cent of the delegates were sent to the 1968 convention by primaries.

Thus, a string of success by one candidate could render the convention balloting nearly academic.

In large part, the Democratic reform movement is an outgrowth of 1968 convention challenges by supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy in his bid for the presidential nomination. In addition, the Voting Rights Act of 1965 is beginning to bear fruit in the form of heightened black voting power in the South.

The principal lasting success of the McCarthy forces in 1968 was to push through the convention a minority Rules Committee report requiring a "full and timely opportunity" for all Democrats to participate on the delegate selection process.

In early 1969, two special commissions were named, principally to recommend how to make the convention a more open political arena. One, on party structure and delegate selection, was headed by South Dakota Sen. George S. McGovern. The other, on party and convention rules, was headed by Rep. James G. O'Hara of Michigan.

What emerged last week, when the DNC set forth to state parties terms for the convention, was a compendium of the reforms proposed by both commissions.

The McGovern Commission reforms would substantially open up the delegate selection process in several ways:

—All delegates must be selected in calendar year 1972; in 1968, more than one-third of the delegates had been selected before the year's issues, indeed the candidates, had become known.

—Blacks, women and young people (under 30) must be represented in reasonable proportion to their presence in a state's population.

—All 18-year-olds should be allowed to participate.

—Procedural changes are required, including an end to the unit rule, proxy voting and state committee selection of whole delegations. Also ended are mandatory assessments and participation fees that precluded poor people from becoming delegates.

To limit the convention power of areas both within the states and among them which failed to deliver the vote, there were moves on both commissions to apportion delegate strength on the basis of both population and Democratic Party vote over past years.

But the executive committee, and the full DNC—a malapportioned body on which each state and territory has two votes—decided doing this on a national scale took too many votes away from smaller states.

It adopted the formula that will be used, provided it survives a federal court challenge vowed by New York Committeeman John F. English. It gives each state three times its electoral vote total, then divides the remaining 47 per cent of the delegates according to the Democratic vote in the last three conventions.

The swing to big state control of the convention is accelerated, but only because population and Democratic voting strength is increasingly concentrated there. Nine states will pick a majority of delegates compared with 13 in 1968; California and New York will each name about 9 per cent of the delegates. Twenty-three smaller states and the District of Columbia lose strength. The South stays about the same—just under 20 per cent.

The mood for compromise was evident at the National Committee meeting. And, except for English, most of the big state liberals said they could live with the new delegate strength plan.

Even some of those who have fought the reforms and whose states are still out of compliance—only about 20 states are virtually in accord so far—seemed happy about the outcome.

In the end, however, the convention itself will be the final test of the reforms: both in whether they prevent another 1968 uproar and, in case of states failing to meet the requirements, whether the reforms will be enforced.

It was Army Day and Mexico's President Luis Echeverria accompanied the troops to a folklore festival in Mexico City. Jenkins Speaks To Underwriters

Some 43 members and guests of the Pitt County Association of Life Underwriters heard Dr. Leo W. Jenkins speak at their meeting Friday at the Greenville Golf and Country club.

Dr. Jenkins told the underwriters that, at the suggestion of Gov. Robert Scott, East Carolina University is making plans to begin offering training for correctional professions.

The ECU president said that law enforcement personnel such as prison guards and penal institution supervisors would be trained in the program.

Currently there is no college or university between Maryland and Florida that is offering this type of instruction and training, Dr. Jenkins said.

Speaking on the growth of education, he pointed out that at the turn of the century there were approximately 250,000 in college. Today there are over 8,000,000.

He noted that every North Carolina student studying in the state receives a tax payers "scholarship" at the rate of just over $1,000 per year.

Bob Lawhead, chairman of the defensive driving committee, reported that a defensive driving course is being planned in the near future and noted that the time and place for the event would be announced later.

PCALU president W. C. Smith presided at the luncheon meeting.

Evaluation Of System Finished

BETHEL — The evaluation system for Bethel's newly installed radar speed system was completed yesterday. Conducted over a period of 11 separate time tests, Police Chief Walter Gray said "the results of the evaluations shows that drives are averaging between 40 and 41 miles per hour in the 35 mile per hour zone where the evaluations were made.

"We do want drivers to know," Gray commented, "that we are issuing citations to speeders in this zone based on the radar system."

Largest Private Game Preserve Is Kept In Mexico

By ELOY O. AGUILAR

RANCHERIAS, Mexico (AP) — The pickup truck bounced through the thicket as its driver pointed at the zebras, buffaloes, giraffes, black bucks, Norwegian elk and llamas running over the chaparral thorn bushes and cacti.

Chaparral and thorn bushes?

Right place and right animals, for this is the site of the largest privately owned game preserve in the world. Unlike other preserves this is not run for profit or as a public service, but strictly as one man's hobby and contribution to conservation.

It is located south of Nuevo Laredo on Mexico's rugged border land, a short distance from Laredo, Texas. Hot in the summer and cold with whistling winds in the winter, but immensely beautiful.

The preserve—15,000 fenced acres—is part of an 80,000 acre cattle ranch owned by Octaviano (Chito) Longoria, 65, a Mexican industrialist from Nuevo Laredo.

There are approximately 90 species and more than 12,000 animals on the preserve, not counting coyotes, bobcats, raccoons and a few pumas, plus other local varieties.

The Longoria family owns a large corporation which includes cotton gins, wheat mills, edible oil plants, animal feed plants and a bank, among other enterprises.

Because of his businesses, Longoria has been living in Mexico City for the past seven years, but escapes to the ranch for weekends whenever possible.

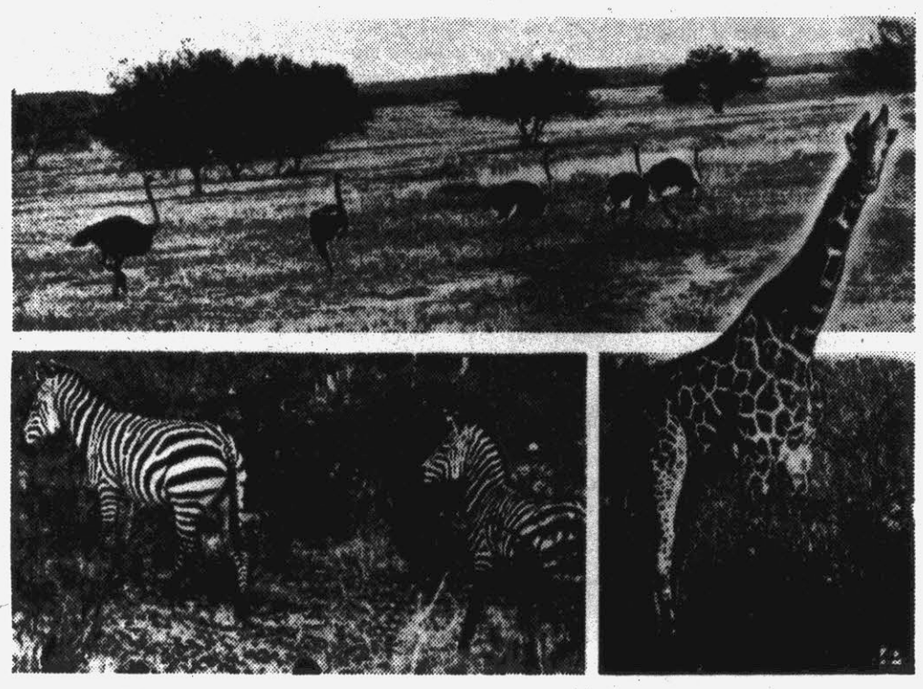

"It sure beats watching television in Mexico City," he said with obvious pleasure as he drove his pick-up chasing a herd of black bucks.

Forgetting business worries for a while the millionaire often takes friends on a night excursion to hunt jackrabbits. But Longoria does not hunt his own imported animals because "it would be like destroying things in your own home."

Longoria has hunted throughout the world, but now he is basically a conservationist.

"I started the preserve in 1957," he said, "when I brought a few animals from Africa. They were animals that could adapt easily to his type of climate."

The animals roam free on the ranch. The ranch hands protect them from the coyotes and pumas. Visitors are impressed by the sight of healthy animals from five continents roaming together. Wild beasts and zebras are seen side by side with some Santa Gerthrudis cattle kept in the preserve. Buffaloes and ostriches appear a minute later, followed by white Norwegian elk, greater kudus and Pakistani goats. Elsewhere, the visitor finds llamas, ibex, white fallow deer, impalas, Argentina horses smaller than ponies, and Australian kangaroos. There are Russian boars, Thompson gazelles, axis deer, Indian sheep, Royal Crown cranes, oryx and many other species.

Heart Provides Warning Signs

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Heart Association reports the usual warning signs of heart attack include prolonged, appressive pain or unusual discomfort in the center of chest, behind breastbone; pain radiating somtimes to shoulder, arm, neck or jaw; pain sometimes accompanied by sweating. Nausea, vomiting and shortness of breath also may occur.

The warnings call for action as follows: Call the physician and describe the symptoms. If the doctor is not available at once, get the patient to a hospital emergency room quickly.

Cost-Cutting Trimmed Some Corporate Fat; It Will Return

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Cost-cutting has already trimmed some of the fat that accreted on corporate bodies during the rich diet days of the 1960s, but if the past is a criterion, obesity and slovenly methods will slowly return.

This is almost in the nature of humn behavior, of course, so it certainly is no surprise to individual executives, whose own personal battles with the waistline are gradullay lost until they are shaken by the doctor.

A shock in the form of a recession is usually needed to force business to consider the state of its health—whether manpower, material, methods, markets and goals are properly coordinated to produce the greatest profit. But then the deterioration begins again, although it needn't.

"The greater part of cost-cutting is just common sense," says Phil Pomerantz, a partner with the accounting firm of Lybrand, Ross Bros. & Montgomery, who has compiled scores of profit improvement opportunities observed by the firm's accountant in recent months.

Pomerantz believes one of the clues to alerting executives to these opportunity areas is to hang a dollar sign on them. Human nature being what it is, he believes, it isn't sufficient merely to call attention to the problem. It must also be "dollarized."

He cites the somewhat extreme case of the throwaway gloves. In the absence of proper control from above, the maintenance department in a certain factory decided upon a premium price work glove. They also decided that the glove was to be thrown away when it became dirty.

Because economic expansion made profits look easy, nobody closely examined the practice until an accountant sat down and figured that $25,000 a year was being tossed in the trash, first by overbuying and then by not drycleaning the gloves.

Considerable savings often can be made in purchasing procedures, Pomerantz concludes. Too often the company purchasing agent is insufficiently informed to shop the market. He is outclassed by the superior knowledge of the vendor.

Obvious errors are commonly made in freight and traffic departments

"Many companies," Pomerantz found," leave the method of shipping up to the vendor. They do not specify how their goods are to be shipped. They permit the seller to choose whatever suits him."

A broad area of needlessly rising costs involves maintenance. The ratio of service people to production workers has risen in many businesses, and much of the increase results from poor planning, Pomerantz believes.

Fear plays a large roll in this problem. With companies becoming more dependent on complex and costly machines, there is a horror of costly downtime, and so personnel capable of restarting the machinery are stockpiled.

However, Pomerantz and his men have observed that many of these service people are busy only 35 per cent of the time, meaning that proper scheduling could result in tremendous savings.

Electronic data processing has, of course, become an area of staggering costs for many companies that had hoped to realize savings. One reason, Pomerantz says, is that top management often doesn't know what is going on in the computer room. "It's a new area, they don't feel up to understanding it."

The problem is compounded by the narrow vision of some EDP supervisors who often are technicians lacking an understanding of the company's broad goals or do not have access to the information.

Ideally, the controller is the executive to watch over such operations, but only if he too is a broad gauge person involved in over-all planning. "You don't need a scorekeeper," Pomerantz says. The man must also keep learning, because EDP is an ever developing field.

Marketing administration appears also to be an area where many companies can cut costs with relatively little effort, mainly because this is where small errors grow into enormous waste.

It begins with proper record keeping. An incorrectly entered order multiplies in expense as it moves along through the system. A simple clerical error, for example, might cost $10 to change.

However, the error may not be caught within the company. Consider a situation that often takes place: The busy salesman scribbles the order for a product with highly technical specifications. The clerk cannot read it, so guesses—incorrectly. The wrong product is fabricated. Then it is shipped. Then returned. Then written off.

Explained.

It costs a lot to live these days. In or out of the hospital. This advertisement is about the hospital part.

The average cost of a day of care in a North Carolina general hospital this year will run about $70. A lot of people have a funny attitude about it. They say, "I could stay in the best hotel in town for that kind of dough."

Well, you probably could. But a hotel can't make you well or keep you alive. Because in a hotel, all you're paying for is the cost of living. In a hospital, you're paying for the cost of life.

24-hour room service is just the beginning. Then come doctors, nurses, specialists. You're also paying for expensive machines, and technicians to run them, machines that may keep your heart beating, or allow you to breathe in case of an emergency. You're paying for the therapists who may teach you to walk again. You're paying for skilled people to watch over you, to prepare your meals, including special diets. People who give you medicine, check your temperature and blood pressure, bathe you, run to your room at the touch of a button, change your bandage, help you to the bathroom, or save your life. And the better all this health care becomes, the more it's going to cost.

But can we do anything to keep hospital costs down? We can. And at Blue Cross and Blue Shield, we are.

We're working to reduce hospital bills in many ways. Our preventive medicine advertising talks about pap tests, glaucoma tests, heart disease and T.B. Because we want to tell you what you can do to prevent illness. If all of us would only practice the simple principles of preventive medicine, we could eliminate one half of all our hospital admissions.

We're also trying to reduce hospital stays by paying for out-of-the-hospital care. Now with our pre-admission testing program you can have tests done in your doctor's office. And with our home care plan, you can recuperate in your own home and have a nurse visit you. You spend less time in the hospital, and hospital beds are available for the people who need them the most.

At Blue Cross and Blue Shield, we believe in working with hospitals. That's why we give financial assistance to area-wide health planning programs which review community health needs to make certain that we have hospitals and equipment where they're needed the most.

That's why we have our own representatives, backed up by medical committees, to study medical records to see that costly hospital beds are used only by patients who couldn't be treated adequately elsewhere.

And now we have a plan that will save hospitals money, directly. It's called the current-payment program and it works like a drawing account, so hospitals can collect their bills as soon as services are furnished to our subscribers. This way bills are paid promptly; and hospitals don't have to borrow money and pay interest on it.

We're very careful with our money. Because our money is your money. We operate on less than 9% of our income, and pay back over 91% in benefits for you. Benefits that provide you with the most comprehensive health care protection anywhere. And even what we spend to operate, we really spend on you. To make sure your bills are processed quickly and paid on time.

These are just a few of the things we're doing at Blue Cross and Blue Shield to keep your hospital costs down, without sacrificing the quality and quantity of the care you need. We'll be reviewing our other cost-control programs with you over the next several weeks. Your comments are invited.

Armed Forces Relaxing Rules Affecting Women

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The armed services, facing charges of sex discrimination, are easing long-standing rules barring women from motherhood while in uniform.

Each of the services is reviewing separately personnel policies maintaining a double standard for the sexes. Some changes have been made already while others are expected in the coming weeks.

The Army, for example, will make exceptions now and induct women who are married or have custody of a child under 18.

"It's like haircuts for the men," said an Army official, referring to new rules permitting men to wear longer hair. "It's just keeping in trim with the times."

The Navy recently suspended its policy requiring the discharge of women who become pregnant while on active duty. Until a new policy is drawn up, each case will be considered individually.

In reversing its policies, the Air Force will allow WAF officers and enlisted women to adopt children, be stepmothers or have custody of a child under 18. But pregnancy still brings automatic dismissal.

This regulation is being challenged by an Air Force nurse, Capt. Susan Struck, who had a baby while on active duty and is appealing an attempt to discharge her.

In her federal court suit, Capt. Struck contends her constitutional rights are being violated.

A San Diego woman who was discharged from the Marine Corps when she married and became a stepmother to two teenagers has filed suit asking she be restored to active duty.

Gail Waugh Downen contends a Marine Corps regulation revoking the commission of any woman officer who becomes a stepmother of a child under 18 discriminates against her solely on the basis of sex. No such regulation exists against male officers, Mrs. Downen's suit said.

The review of Army personnel policy was prompted by John G. Kester, deputy assistant Army secretary, who called for changes in the "objectionable discriminatory standards for service between male and female personnel."

But even with the new regulations, the Army still is not opening the door to wholesale enlistment of all previously unacceptable women. These include those who were once married or had a pregnancy while unmarried. The changes permit waivers in individual cases.

Man Bitten By 'Friendly Seal'

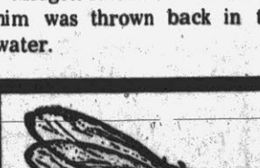

RODANTHE, N.C. (AP) — A 67-year-old commercial fisherman on the North Carolina Outer Banks spotted a friendly looking harbor seal on the beach near Cape Hatteras Friday.

"I was playing with him," Jethrow Midgett said. But the seal didn't want to play. He bit Midgett instead.

The animal, which Midgett said was four to five feet long, took chunks from his lip and upper arm. Midgett got an anti-rabies shot as a precaution.

Harbor seals are not normally seen on the Banks, but unusually cold weather this winter has resulted in several being spotted on beaches in the area.

Midgett said the seal that bit him was thrown back in the water.

From Hero To Heroin, But He Made It Back

By BILL FISHER
Lancaster New Era

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — "Expectia miracle" proclaimed the small sign on the front door of the big brick house.

Two and a half months ago Brent Hawkins walked through that door at Teen Challenge, his life wrecked.

"There was nothing left," he said later. "I had blown it all. Nobody could help. Now it was up to me."

Brent Hawkins was a heroin addict.

A lot of people could not believe it.

When they found out, when they saw the forged check charges, when they saw the broken body, their comments went something like: "He's the last kid you would have thought ..."

"I let a lot of people down," says Hawkins. "I had always loved my parents. I loved football. I was a high school hero. I had a lot going for me; and I blew it."

In 1966 at McCaskey High School in nearby Lancaster, Hawkins, now 22, had indeed become somewhat of a local schoolboy legend. He was president of the student council and an all-star football player.

At 6 foot 2 and 210 pounds, he had speed and strength. College coaches were eager over the prospect of recruiting this handsome, soft-spoken young man and the scholarship offers rolled in.

But when he walked through the doorway of the drug rehabilitation home here he was 30 pounds lighter and as a police detective put it later, he "looked like a dirty stinking dog, filthy, an animal."

For more than a year he had brought only trouble and grief to himself and others. He lied. He stole. His marriage failed. He despaired "lying around doing nothing, trying to think where the next bag was coming from."

When the police picked him up the last time, he was existing in a foul rooming house.

"I didn't care," he said. "I was depressed. Nothing mattered. My clothes hung on me, but it didn't make any difference because I never wore anything but wranglers and a dirty old T-shirt anyway."

It started with marijuana, his sophomore year at Virginia Union University in Richmond, Va. where he was on a football scholarship.

He got into dope, he said, "because I WAS TOO PROUD TO SAY NO. I was in an apartment with some friends, and they said they had something for me to experience, so we rolled a joint. I wanted them to think of me as a man. We passed the joints around, and I fell into the clique."

"I had read a lot about marijuana, where the doctors say it has no physiological dependence, only psychological dependence. I thought, if it's not physiological dependence, I don't see why people should be oposed to it then."

"Marijuana. The highs were good. I hate to say that now, but they were. Put me in a pacifist state. I'd listen to music for hours and I was in paradise.

"I stayed with marijuana because I liked it, not because I was physically addicted. I started with nickel ($5) bags, then dime bags then one ounce bags ($15 to $25).

At the end of his sophomore year, Hawkins transferred to Millersville (Pa.) State College.

He had no intention of getting into heroin.

"In August, just before entering Millersville, I went to New York with two guys to get some smoke. We went up to an apartment and they asked me if I wanted to shoot some heroin.

"I told them no. They kept talking to me in a persuasive manner, but I told them I hated needles, I wasn't going to shoot. 'Okay' they said 'just snort.'

"I snorted half a bag and got high and got scared. I thought if I get this high on snorting what will happen if I shoot.

"So I started to shoot, and got unbelieveable highs. It's so quick, not like marijuana, maybe 30 seconds is all it takes.

"For a while I was just dipping and dabbling. But I glorified the highs. I rationalized a person has to die anyway, so why not enjoy it as you are dying."

He played football for Millersville and was taking dope "and had a pretty good year."

"So I couldn't relate drugs when they say they demoralize you. I'm on heroin some, I thought, and still I'm breaking records."

He set two school pass-catching records that season.

But then, Hawkins said, "I woke up one morning and my eyes wouldn't focus right. That bothered me. It was the morning of our scrimmage against Lebanon Valley. But I think I went out and did okay.

"One Saturday, I think it was the East Stroudsburg game, one of the players had to come wake me up. I had forgotten the game."

Eventually a week before the game with Shippensburg, "I noticed when I went to catch passes that the ball looked kind of fuzzy. I didn't feel too good. I was losing some of my speed. I think I sat out the first quarter of the game, but I remember catching a touchdown pass."

When the football season ended, Hawkins plunged deeper into drugs. But he hung on for his final year of football and showed up in April for spring practice.

"We had a new coach, and he was tough," Hawkins said. "After that first workout I knew I was really addicted.

"It was a cold day, there was snow on the ground and we were in shorts. When I came in it was the worst I had ever felt. I was like dead. I stayed away for a week, telling the coach I had pulled a muscle.

"But he knew otherwise."

Coach Gene Carpenter said that when the boy missed practice, "I called him in and he told me he had some problems. I believed we could work things out."

Then he missed more practice sessions, giving the coach false reasons for doing so.

"I lied to him all the time," Hawkins said. "But I think he knew; I think some of the guys told him I was involved in drugs. But he didn't know how deeply."

Carpenter recalls now that "one of the funny things is when I first came here I had lunch one evening with Brent. And I thought after that lunch, 'What a gentleman! There is a real gentleman'".

In April, finished with spring football, Hawkins quit college.

"I got to thinking, is football really worth it?" Hawkins said. "I rationalized everything. I felt I didn't get the offers I wanted when I got out of high school. My grades weren't bad but I didn't get in a major college. I thought that was the school's fault."

"I thought I'd pull out for one semester then enroll in summer school," he said.

Instead, he got even deeper into heroin.

"My money started to run out," he said. "That's when you really realize you are dependent.

"I started passing worthless checks.

"I had to because I was up to two bags a day" a habit that was costing him $140 a week."

In June, Hawkins, a Negro, married a white girl. Within a few months they had broken up.

"I stole from home and friends," he said. "I remember the day I stole the radio from my mother's bedroom. It was a good radio, and I took it and pawned it.

"I knew I was killing my parents, but I did it. I thought 'Oh well, if something is missing they would blame me anyway so I may as well take it.' That's how a junkie thinks.

"When the checks started coming back, the police were after me. I promised I would straighten out, but every time, I went right back to drugs."

His parents watched him change but as his father, Joseph, said, "We couldn't believe what was happening. We didn't want to admit it.

"I sensed something last spring. More and more he would come to see me at work and want to use the car or borrow money. And I gave it to him. Then he would go to his mother and ask her for money.

"Always it was the same. A check was overdue, could I lend him to cover it. Or a friend needs some money. I guess I knew. I just didn't want to believe it could happen to my son."

Brent Hawkins recalled one night his father asked him to sit down at the table.

"He didn't ask me if I was on drugs," Hawkins said, "he told me. He said, 'Brent, I hear you are on the stuff!' And he cried.

I actually saw my father sit there and cry.

"It really hurt me. But at this point I was where I felt there was nothing I could do about it. I had lost all the compassion I ever had.

"When Joe told me, I cried all day," said Mrs. Hawkins. "I guess I knew too, but I didn't want to believe it."

"A big part of it is admitting it," said the father. "People would ask, 'How's Brent doing?' They thought he was still in college. We would say fine. Reacting like that helped keep us from admitting it.

"We finally had to say, 'Brent's not doing fine, he's on drugs.'

"He got worse and worse," said his mother. "I'd come home from work and the first think I would do was to look around to see what was missing. He took radios, tape recorders, checks, anything."

The father took Brent to counselling at their church "but Brent wouldn't listen. I guess he had to hit rock bottom before he could help himself."

Hawkins tried, a little.

Occasionally, he dropped in at a drug abuse center in Lancaster. To talk, he says.

"An addict has to do something, he has a lot of time on his hands," Hawkins said.

Hawkins felt so bad that at last he walked into the rain and down to the General Hospital and asked if they would admit him for withdrawal.

"They put me on cold turkey and then they put me on methadone. I was there a couple of days and I started to feel better."

He called police detective Luther Henry from the hospital and told him he had forged checks and was "ready to take the consequences."

Henry came out to talk to him and placed charges against him.

"I was surprised," said Hawkins, "that he was so concerned about the drug problem and what it was doing to people. He told me what the charges were against me. He also told me they would try to help me kick the habit. I told him I would help them get the pushers."

"He helped some," said Henry, "but each time he promised to get off dope he would fall back again and we would have to go out and pick him up. It got pretty bad but he had so much potential you hate to see a guy like that go down the drain."

Finally Henry got Hawkins into Teen Challenge, the drug rehabilitation center, where he joined 12 other addicts, a superintendent who runs it and a young minister.

"I was at rock bottom," said Hawkins, continuing:

"I came in the door and those boys ran up and shook my hand and said 'Jesus loves you.' I thought they were really freaked out.

"They sang and read the Bible and prayed. At first I thought it was a farce. I had never believed in a Pentecostal religion. I thought these people were fanatics."

He ran away. For one day. Lancaster police were notified to pick him up but he returned on his own before the police found him.

Hawkins has been there since before Christmas. He is off all drugs including methadone and has returned to Lancaster twice to testify at trials of pushers. He still faces forgery charges but he wants now to return to college, major in political science and play football again.

"My biggest problem after I had confessed my sins was what I should do to help others," he said. "I had promised the police I would give testimony against two pushers. I knew I would be condemned by others for informing, or maybe I would get shot.

"I finally made up my mind; and when I did then I knew that I was man enough to do anything.

"I have a younger brother. Suppose somebody gave him a bag like I got, and it would wreck his life, and I had done nothing."

Has Hawkins succeeded in kicking drugs?

The people at Teen Challenge think so.

Supt. Jack Schell said: "In our minds he's among those who we feel will make it. He is well over the hill."

But Schell added, "Now it is important for him to progress in the next few months.

CRANBERRY BOOM

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—New Jersey's 1970 cranberry crop of 177,000 barrels, almost 18 million pounds, was the highest since 1926, when 215,000 barrels were produced, says the state Agriculture Department.

Cultivation of the cranberry, which is native to New Jersey, began in 1835 and annual production is valued at more than $2.5 million. New Jersey ranks third in the nation in cranberry production, behind Massachusetts and Wisconsin.

A science cruise on a Rhine steamer past the Lorelei Rock and medieval castles, a sightseeing trip to the famous cathedral at Chartres, a day of leisure in Paris — these may be a part of your summer.

Or, would you prefer to travel by canoe into the jungle of Brazil where a green umbrella of giant trees and vines cover you and you may view colorful birds, wild monkeys and native huts?

How about a trip around the world, including a visit to Tokyo, Mt. Fujiyama, a day of sightseeing in Hong Kong and a day and a half in Bangkok to be followed by a visit to Istanbul and three days in Athens, Greece?

Exciting travel plus nine hours academic credit may be in your summer plans if you choose one of three travel study tours being sponsored for the summer of 1971 by the Department of Geography and the Division of Continuing Education at East Carolina University in cooperation with the National Education Association.

Teachers, students and those not associated with an academic institution are invited to participate. One may audit the tour if he desires.

The three tours being conducted in the summer of 1971 are: Around the World, South America and Europe.

Each tour price includes transportation, lodging, many meals and guided tours. Tuition for credit is $108 above the basic tour price.

Dr. H. Daniel Stillwell, associate professor of geography at ECU, will lead the "Around the World" tour, which lasts 29 days, from July 11 to August 8. Cost of this tour is $1895.00. The tour orginates in San Francisco and ends in New York City with visits to Tokyo, Kyoto, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Agra and Delhi (India), Teheran and Shiraz (Iran), Istanbul and Athens.

"Around South America" will be directed by Dr. Charles Gritzner, associate professor of geography at ECU. Departure and terminating points for the South America tour are Miami. The itinerary includes Manaus, Brazilia, Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo in Brazil, Buesnos Aires, Santiago (Chile), Lima (Peru) and Panama City. The 31 day tour begins July 1 and ends July 31. Price is $1598.00.

"Europe for the Young at Heart" begins at New York City July 6 and ends there August 12 (38 days) for the tour price of $960.00. The first stop is London with others in Amsterdam, Brussels, Cologne, Wiesbaden, Lucerne, Innsbruck, Venice, Florence, Rome, Marseilles and Paris. The tour includes some free time in most cities and an excursion trip on the Rhine River.

Dr. Ralph E. Birchard, associate professor of geography at ECU, will direct the European tour.

Brochures and additional information on the tours may be obtained from the Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A 6 ♡8 7 4 3 ◇Q J 10 6 5 ♣K 4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	1 ♠
3 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades. The cue bid will serve a double purpose. It will enable partner to stop at three no trump if that is the limit of his ambitions, or it may induce him to try for slam if his hand is so suited. You will be pleased to cooperate inasmuch as you have the equivalent of an opening bid now that the king of clubs has been promoted.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J 6 4 ◇Q 10 9 6 4 ♣A K 9 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	Pass

What is your response?

A.—Three clubs. This hand offers distinct slam possibilities dependent on partner's holding in spades. The jump shift, therefore, is clearly indicated. This is the strongest possible passed hand partner could expect and surely you will settle for no less than game in diamonds.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A J ♡Q 4 ◇Q J 8 6 3 ♣Q 9 7 5
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	2 ♡
2 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four clubs. A mere return to three clubs would be grossly inadequate. Partner has shown a hand of reasonably good proportions and your hand has the strength of an opening bid.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J 10 7 3 ♡6 2 ◇Q 8 3 ♣K 10 9 2
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	1 NT
Pass	Pass	Dble.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. This is a rather light holding with which to leave the double in, but we can't be sure which suit to bid and even if East should make his contract it wouldn't be game.

Q. 5—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 5 ♡K Q J 6 3 ◇A 9 8 2 ♣A Q
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
Dble	Pass	2 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. Your hand is slightly unbalanced and you should make some effort to play at a suit contract. If partner takes you back to three hearts, bid four. If his call is three no trump, pass.

Q. 6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9 ♡10 4 ◇K Q 10 8 6 2 ♣K 6 4 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. No thought should be given to bidding three diamonds. Partner has indicated a probable six-card suit since he didn't like no trump and failed to show another suit on his rebid. Furthermore, he might easily have a singleton diamond.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q 9 7 3 ♡K 10 5 ♣A K J 10 8 2
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	5 ◇	Dble.

What do you bid now?

A.—Seven spades. This should be a pretty safe investment. East's double of five diamonds indicates that little of partner's values are in that suit. The spades are solid and either your heart holding solidifies partner's or your clubs can be set up for discards.

Q. 8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K 9 6 5 ♡Q J 10 9 3 ◇Q 4 2 ♣3
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
2 ♣	Dble.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. If partner had wanted to hear from you he would have doubled one club. This is strictly a business double and you have no reason to run.

From National Home: This offer brings you

$500.00-A-MONTH TAX-FREE CASH WHENEVER YOU GO TO THE HOSPITAL

Examine policy in your own home at no risk—money refunded if not 100% satisfied!

★ Pays you cash at the rate of $500.00 a month for each hospital stay... even for life, if necessary.

★ Pays in addition to any other companies' coverage you have—including Medicare.

★ Pays all cash direct to you (not to doctor or hospital).

★ Guaranteed Renewable for Life. National Home guarantees never to cancel your protection no matter how old you become or how many claims you have. In addition, your rates can never be changed unless there is a general rate adjustment on all policies of this type in your entire state.

No salesman will call—No medical examination required—No age limit

ACT NOW—YOUR APPLICATION FORM MUST BE MAILED BY MIDNIGHT, THURSDAY, FEB. 25, OR IT CANNOT BE ACCEPTED

ONE out of two families will have someone in the hospital this year! It could be you—or some beloved member of your family—tomorrow...next week...next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have doubled in just a few short years. They are expected to double again in the few years ahead.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, doctor bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have the answer in our National Home plan that...

Pays you $500.00-a-month tax-free cash whenever you are hospitalized.

What a blessing it is when you know you have $500.00 cash coming in every month when you go to the hospital. You get your $500.00-a-month cash – tax-free – as long as you are confined in the hospital. You are covered from the very first day for accidents and from the fourth day for sickness—even for life, if necessary! Most everyone has some insurance or savings to take care of a one to three-day hospital stay. Since we provide lifetime benefits, this "deductible" feature enables us to give you broad coverage at a lower cost than would otherwise be possible.

Now, this low-cost plan from National Home enables you to enjoy this protection at once. Your special low rate is shown below; it is the same low premium you will continue to pay no matter how old you become or how many claims you have, unless there is a general rate adjustment, up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state.

The added protection you NEED!

All benefits of this $500.00-a-month plan are paid directly to you, in tax-free cash, in addition to whatever you may receive from your insurance with any other company! Use the money as you see fit—for hospital or doctor bills, mortgage or rent payments, to replace savings—or any necessary, but costly, expenses not covered by other hospital policies.

Everything costs more these days (need we tell you?) and hospital care is certainly no exception! While 7 out of 8 Americans have some hospital insurance, most have found it does not cover all bills that pile up when sickness or accident strikes. That's why National Home developed this low-cost plan that helps you pay hospital costs or other expenses.

PAYS $500.00-A-MONTH CASH for each accident or illness. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins the fourth day in the hospital.

PAYS $250.00-A-MONTH CASH FOR THE FIRST THREE MONTHS, AFTER YOU HAVE REACHED AGE 65. And a full $500.00-A-MONTH CASH thereafter — even for life. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins the fourth day in the hospital.

PAYS $300.00-A-MONTH CASH if a covered child is hospitalized for injury or illness. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins the fourth day in the hospital. And the benefits continue for as long as necessary.

PAYS $2,000.00-A-MONTH CASH when both husband and wife (under age 65) are hospitalized at the same time for accidental injury for as long as both remain in the hospital—even for life, if necessary.

PAYS $400.00-A-MONTH CASH for a registered nurse at home if your doctor has you hire one within five days following a covered hospital confinement of five days or more. And your benefits continue for the same number of days that you were hospitalized — up to 12 full months.

65 OR OVER?

Write for information on our special plan. Just drop us a card, and we will send complete details as soon as we receive your inquiry

We can never cancel your policy!

You can count on this wonderful protection no matter how old you become or how many times you collect from us. Your policy guarantees that we can never cancel your protection for any reason whatsoever. It is Guaranteed Renewable for Life!

And that's not all. Suppose you have a growing family – this policy (NH10-669)...

Pays you $300.00-a-month cash whenever any dependent child is hospitalized.

When you choose Coverage for Children, all your dependent, unmarried children from age one month through 18 years are covered, too! What's more, any newborn children you have in the future are covered automatically at the age of one month —at no additional cost to you. And whenever any of your children go to the hospital, this National Home plan pays you at the rate of $300.00-a-month cash, for as long as necessary. Children are covered for accidents from the first day and for sickness from the fourth day.

Pays you tax-free cash Maternity Benefits, too.

With this plan, you can also collect cash at the rate of $500.00 a month for every day you are confined to the hospital for pregnancy, childbirth, or even miscarriage. You get this cash, which is yours to use as you see fit, when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits have been added to the basic plan. Of course, both parents must be enrolled in this plan for the entire period of pregnancy.

Pays you up to $4,800.00 cash for a Registered Nurse at Home.

Here's a wonderful "get well" benefit of this National Home plan: You collect cash benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month when your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse within five days after you come home, following a stay in the hospital of five days or more for which benefits were payable. You are paid for the same number of covered days that you were in the hospital—even up to 12 full months!

Double Cash Accident Benefit.

When you and your insured spouse are hospitalized at the same time for an accidental injury, this National Home plan pays you an extraordinary double cash benefit. You receive not $500.00 but $1,000.00 a month. Your spouse receives not $500.00 but $1,000.00 a month. That's $2,000.00 in all, in cash payments to you every month (when under age 65) starting the day you enter the hospital for as long as you both remain there.

Pays you up to $2,000.00 cash for these accidental losses...

The accidental loss of limbs or eyesight can be terrible. But if such loss occurs any time within 90 days of the accident, you collect $1,000.00 for the complete loss of a hand or a foot or the sight of an eye—and $2,000.00 for loss of two limbs or the sight of both eyes.

Waiver of premium benefit.

Should you—the policyowner—be hospitalized for 8 consecutive weeks or more, this National Home plan will PAY ALL PREMIUMS that come due for you and all Covered Members of your family while you are confined to the hospital beyond the initial 8-week period. And your protection continues just the same as if you were paying the premiums yourself. Then, if you leave the hospital and must return for the same condition before you have resumed full normal activities for 90 days, we will again pay any premiums while you are in the hospital—for the total confinement! This means you pay no premiums, yet your full protection remains in force.

THESE ARE THE ONLY EXCLUSIONS!

Your National Home policy covers every kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of your policy... during the first 2 years only.

This last item is a real help if you already have a health problem. If you are sick before you take out this policy, you will even be covered for that condition after the policy has been in effect for 2 years. Meanwhile, of course, every new condition is covered.

Nationally known and respected.

This is the kind of outstanding protection you have read about in Reader's Digest, Parents', National Geographic and other leading publications. The special plans offered by the National Liberty Corporation group of companies are today helping policyowners in all 50 states—and many foreign countries—paying benefits at the rate of more than $1,500,000.00 a month. In addition, our Company has a RECOMMENDED rating from Best's Insurance Reports, one of the foremost insurance authorities in the nation.

Fast, reliable claim service when needed most.

You never really know how good a policy is until you have to make a claim. That's why we think you'll be interested in what some of our National Home members have to say. Their comments—quoted below—are typical of the hundreds of expressions of appreciation we receive from policyowners every week...

"Received your checks totaling $585.68 for injury. I appreciated your kindness and promptness in the claim. It certainly came in handy and I had less worries knowing I had this protection. You certainly paid all the benefits stated in the policy without question."

MRS. ANGELA B. HARDY, Abbeville, Louisiana

"You folks were very prompt in sending the money when my wife went to the hospital for surgery. Thank you so much."

HAROLD DOVENBORG, Zanesville, Ohio

"I was more than satisfied with the way my claim was handled. One couldn't ask for better service and the 'get well soon' message was one of the nicest thoughts on your part. I thank you sincerely."

MARGUERITE LINDAU, Duluth, Minnesota

Outstanding Americans like these Recommend this Coverage.

DR. E. STANLEY JONES, internationally known evangelist, author, missionary statesman: "In offering low-cost health insurance by mail, you are rendering a valuable service to thousands of people who have no other opportunity to avail themselves of such protection. It's reassuring to know that policyowners insured by the National Liberty group are receiving more than $1,500,000.00 a month in benefits."

JEROME HINES, leading bass with the Metropolitan Opera Company: "It seems to me that the concept of health insurance by mail is a very sensible one. It's quick, easy and economical. Nobody makes surprise visits to your home to ask personal questions. There's no medical examination. And costly processing charges are eliminated. This means more protection at less cost. I congratulate National Home Life Assurance Company for meeting a real need."

National Home commended in the Congressional Record of the United States Congress

National Home, a division of National Liberty Corporation, has been commended in the United States Congressional Record for bringing low-cost insurance to the general public: "National Liberty deserves recognition for providing service beyond the expected, service willingly offered to those who are not being cared for in other ways. This is the secret of success for its low-cost insurance plans. With the highest public interest at heart, the National Liberty Corporation group of companies combines reliability and quality of service with noteworthy price advantages. It is to be commended on its leadership and vision in this field of human welfare."

Why you must act before the date shown on your Application Form—just a few days from today.

Why do we give you so little time to enroll in this plan—only a few days? Because this is a mass Enrollment Plan, enrolling thousands of policyowners at one time. ALTHOUGH EVERY POLICY IS ISSUED THROUGH A LICENSED AGENT, ALL BUSINESS IS CONDUCTED DIRECTLY BETWEEN YOU AND THE COMPANY. No salesman will call. This highly efficient "mass enrollment" method enables us to give you the broadest coverage at the lowest cost.

As soon as we receive your Application Form we will rush your policy to you by First Class Mail. When your policy arrives, examine it in the privacy of your own home. It is a very short document and you'll be pleasantly surprised to see there is no fine print. Show it, if you wish, to your doctor, lawyer, insurance agent, or some other trusted advisor.

Here are your low rates.

The following rate chart shows how little it costs to cover yourself, your spouse and any adult dependent. Naturally, at these low rates, we can issue you only one policy of this type. Each adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown for his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Self	Each Additional Adult
16-44	$3.30	$3.30
45-49	$3.60	$3.60
50-54	$4.15	$4.15
55-64	$4.75	$4.75

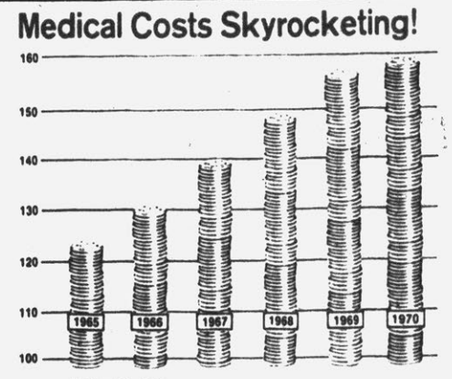

All dependent children ages 0-18: $1.75
Maternity Benefit: $1.15

NOTE: The regular monthly premium shown here (for age at time of enrollment) will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next! Once you have enrolled in this National Home plan, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age—but only if there is a general rate adjustment, up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state!

Act NOW—"Later" May Be Too Late!

TIME IS PRECIOUS! Act quickly. (No salesman will call.) Get your Application Form into the mail today—because once you suffer an accident or sickness, it's TOO LATE to buy protection at any cost. That's why we urge you to act today —before anything unexpected happens.

Medical Costs Skyrocketing!

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED ABOUT THIS NATIONAL HOME PLAN

1. How much will I be paid when I go to the hospital?
You will receive cash at the rate of $500.00 a month ($16.67 a day). Once you have reached 65 years of age, you collect (in addition to any Medicare benefits) $250.00 a month for the first 3 months, and $500.00 monthly while you remain continuously hospitalized thereafter. And you collect cash for an accident even if you're in the hospital for only one day. Coverage for illness begins the fourth day — and benefits are paid in full for as long as you're hospitalized . . . even for life, if necessary.

2. Do you pay me cash when my children go to the hospital?
You collect cash at the rate of $300.00 a month whenever any of your children (age 1 month through 18 years) go to the hospital—if Coverage for Children is added to the basic plan. Coverage for accidents begins on the first day—sickness on the fourth day. And if you have a growing family—as soon as any newborn child is one month old, he, too, is covered—automatically . . . at no additional cost.

3. When do I start to collect hospital benefits?
This new plan (NH10-669) covers you from the very first day for accidents and from the fourth day for sickness—even for life, if necessary! Most everyone has some insurance or savings to take care of one to three-day hospital stay. Since we provide lifetime benefits, this "deductible" feature enables us to give you broad coverage at a lower cost than would otherwise be possible.

4. Will you pay me cash benefits for pregnancy?
Yes, when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits have been added to the basic plan. You collect cash at the rate of $500.00 a month for pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage that results in a hospital stay. (Both parents have to be enrolled in this plan for entire pregnancy period.)

5. Suppose I'm hospitalized for a long time and can't meet my premium payments?
If you—the policyowner—are hospitalized for 8 consecutive weeks or more, this National Home plan will PAY ALL PREMIUMS that come due for you and all Covered Members of your family while you are confined to the hospital beyond the initial 8-week period. You aren't expected to pay us back, either.

6. Now tell me what's the "catch"—what doesn't my policy cover?
Get ready for a welcome surprise. Your policy covers everything except conditions caused by: act of war; any mental disease or disorder; pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; confinements within a U.S. Government hospital or a nursing or convalescent facility; and any sickness or injury you had before the Effective Date of your policy—but even this last "exclusion" is done away with after you've been a policyowner for only two years. Everything else is definitely covered.

7. What are the requirements to enroll in this National Home plan?
You must not have been refused or had cancelled any health, hospital or life insurance due to reasons of health; and to qualify during this Enrollment Period—you must enroll before midnight of the date shown on the Application Form.

8. Besides saving money—are there any other advantages to joining this plan during this Enrollment Period?
Yes. A very important one is that you don't need to complete a lengthy, detailed questionnaire—just the brief Application Form in the corner of this page. Also, during this Enrollment Period there are no extra requirements for eligibility, and no "waivers" or restrictive endorsements can be put on your policy!

9. How do I join?
Fill out the brief Application Form and mail it with your first month's protection for your entire family. Mail to our licensed North Carolina resident agent: Mr. Ernest E. Tucker, Jr., National Home, 1301 East Morehead St., Charlotte, North Carolina 28200.

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

We will send your National Home policy by mail. Examine it carefully in the privacy of your own home. Show it, if you wish, to your own insurance agent, doctor, lawyer or other trusted advisor. If you decide, for any reason, that you don't want to continue as a member of this plan, return the policy within 15 days of the date you receive it, and we will promptly refund your money. Meanwhile, you will be fully protected while making your decision!
