

Sees More Hard Choices In Indochina

Nixon Avers Hanoi Broadened Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today charged Hanoi with broadening the Vietnam war into an Indochina conflict and predicted the United States and its allies will have more hard choices in combatting possible new enemy thrusts in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

In a globe-ranging report officially directed to Congress but aimed at the nation and the rest of the world, Nixon keyed his message to a quest for "a full generation of peace" this century. But, he said, "If winding down the war is my greatest satisfaction in foreign policy, the failure to end it is my deepest disappointment."

He pledged to continue the winding down, the U.S. troop withdrawal from South Vietnam. But in stark contrast to his declared global peace goal his projection for Indochina emphasized the broadened war and increased American aid and air support for allied ground forces.

The 65,000 word report, covering 180 pages and accompanied by a nationwide radio speech, was the second Nixon report on the role of the United States in world affairs since he took office. Patterned after the constitutionally mandated State of the Union message, this White House overview of the world situation disclosed no new U.S. policy departures.

But details were outlined and it gave Nixon an opportunity to tell the story of his foreign and strategic policies at midpassage between the 1968 and 1972 elections.

Nixon sent the report, which has been in preparation for several months, to Congress under the title, "United States Foreign Policy for the 1970s—Building for Peace."

In discussing the Indochina crisis at considerable detail Nixon gave a deeply pessimistic report about the prospects for a negotiated settlement.

He had "frankly expected" some kind of action from the North Vietnamese-Viet Cong side last year, Nixon stated, when he expanded political principles for a settlement and appointed ambassador David Bruce as peace negotiator.

In this, he indicated, he was completely disappointed. But "We will not give up on negotiations," he said.

"There is the additional fact that as our forces decline, the role we can play on many aspects of a settlement is also bound to decline," he added.

However, in his radio address summarizing elements of the bulky congressional message, Nixon directed another call to Hanoi for serious peace negotiations and renewed proposals he first advanced last Oct. 7, including an immediate standstill cease-fire and an Indochina peace conference.

The chief executive indicated that regardless of what happens in Paris he is certain of the final outcome in Vietnam. "In Southeast Asia today," he said over the radio, "aggression is failing ... South Vietnam now has an excellent opportunity not only to survive but to build a strong, free society."

And while affirming his intention to announce soon a new schedule of American troops withdrawals, the President said some U.S. forces will remain in South Vietnam "as long as North Vietnam continues to hold a single American prisoner."

Nixon appealed for trust in his leadership as he seeks to develop what he called a new, more restrained world role for the United States.

But the major concern of the message throughout was what he called the "most anguishing problem" of Vietnam.

"Hanoi has made the war an Indochina conflict," Nixon stated, with some 240,000 North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos, including a few Viet Cong in Cambodia.

"Enemy intentions and capabilities in Indochina will pose some hard choices about the deployment of allied troops as we pursue our withdrawals," he continued, and North Vietnamese actions (in Laos and Cambodia) could require high levels of American assistance and air operations in order to further Vietnamization and our withdrawals.

Tank Attack By N. Viets Beaten Back

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Eight North Vietnamese tanks attacked a South Vietnamese base in Laos today but the defenders destroyed five of them and beat off the assault, U.S. officers reported. The drive into Laos still made no forward movement.

It was the first enemy tank attack reported in the South Vietnamese drive into Southern Laos to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail, now in its 18th day.

The base, Hill 31 about 10 miles inside Laos, has withstood three days of heavy shelling and U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese massed the tanks for a knockout blow.

The three remaining tanks took flight and were being pursued by U.S. bombers. It is believed they are Soviet-made PT-76 light amphibious tanks.

The enemy first used tanks in overrunning what was the Lang Vei Special Forces camp in the north in February 1968. The camp is now used as a base for U.S. helicopters supporting the drive into Laos. The only other use of enemy tanks was in the central highlands early in 1969.

As the enemy continued to put up strong resistance in Laos, the U.S. Command reported the highest weekly American death toll in 5½ months.

Bank Applies To Build Facility On E. 10th St.

An application to establish a banking facility on Tenth Street near East Carolina University has been filed with the U. S. Comptroller of the Currency by Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., N. A.

According to R. Wallace Howard, senior vice president and office executive, the bank's application asks for approval to open the new office at 802 E. Tenth Street to serve the area near the university.

Howard said that "Wachovia Bank is applying for this office in order to ... serve our customers in this rapidly developing part of the city."

He added that "we believe that public needs and convenience will be met by the full individual and corporate banking services we can offer through this proposed office."

Killed By Car

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Michael Sutton, 3, of Stantonsburg, was killed Wednesday afternoon when struck by a car driven by Mrs. Geraldine Walston, 38, of Rt. 2, Stantonsburg.

The accident occurred on a county road eight miles south-east of Wilson near Stantonsburg.

Rapid Transit Measure Approved In Committee

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation calling for a study of the possibility of setting up a rapid transit system for North Carolina's Piedmont area received approval of the House Judiciary 1 Committee today.

This came after Rep. Jim Holshouser, R-Watauga, sponsor of the study resolution, told the committee that the area between Charlotte and Raleigh will be solidly urban one day.

He said a rapid transit system probably would not be justified for the area today but in 5 to 8 years it probably would be. John Cameron of the state planning task force told the committee that virtually all the transportation planning in North Carolina for decades had been done by the Highway Commission and that other modes of transportation needed to be studied.

Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, chairman of the committee, said he had made several attempts to get information on rapid transit possibilities out of the Highway Commission, but "there is nobody in the Highway Commission who thinks outside the building and paving of roads."

The study commission would be composed of four members, four named by the Speaker of the House, four appointed by the lieutenant governor and one designated by the state planning officer.

Hospital Site Is Narrowed

The final selection of a site for a new hospital in Pitt County is expected by mid-March according to Jack Richardson, co-administrator of Pitt Memorial Hospital and project director of the new medical facility.

Richardson said yesterday representatives of the North Carolina Medical Care Commission met with members of the local site selection committee last week. "They are writing a report of their recommendations... they list the sites as acceptable or not..." Richardson explained.

Although no firm selection has been made, the choice of sites seems to have narrowed to two locations: a site across from the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Center and close to the present hospital, and a site, including 210 acres, on the Farmville Highway about a half-mile from the city limits.

Sixteen sites had been proposed initially to the site selection committee, composed of members of the hospital's board of trustees and members of the board of county commissioners.

According to Richardson, "We need to confer with officials of the Greenville Utilities Commission and look at the availability and cost of utilities service..." He said soil conditions and access need to be studied before any final decision is made.

He explained that the site committee expects to make a decision on a location by about March 15.

City Planner Maps Annexation Plans For Future Action

By JERRY RAYNOR

Reflector Staff Writer

Long range plans to study annexation of portions of land within the Greenville city limits and land adjacent to the city limits were presented by City Planner Dillon Watson in a progress report to members of the Planning and Zoning Board last night.

Although no action was required on the report, members of the board went on record as being behind the idea.

Watson explained the basic idea is to close some of the gaps existing in the present city limits, notably a large area along Hooker Road; an area bordering what will eventually be an extension of First Street and falling along the Tar River; certain areas of Meadowbrook north of the Tar River; an area along the western and southwestern limits of Greenville; an area in the vicinity of the convalescent home near Pitt Memorial Hospital; and small sections of land around the city limits which if incorporated, would serve to generally round off the present limits.

Before action materializes on this plan, considerable detailed plans and studies must be made. Last night's report was only a presentation of the current situation with general ideas on what is involved in annexation of these areas.

The Planning and Zoning board members approved and recommended that the City Council consider the abandonment of a portion of Halifax Street in the western part of Greenville. The request was made by Reynolds May. City Manager Harry Hagerty noted that May plans to develop a three block area of low cost private (236 type) rentals and that the unopened portion of the street would not be needed under the new plans proposed.

Approval was also granted to Dallas McPherson for the withdrawal of a preliminary plat which had been presented at the last meeting of the board by D. G. Nichols. McPherson has purchased the land, north of U.S. 264 by-pass on the Washington Highway, and has plans different from the ones set forth in Nichol's preliminary plat.

McPherson stated he will meet with the Board of Adjustments Thursday night to seek a special use permit in order to be able to later present the Planning and Zoning Board a preliminary plat which would include a putt-putt golf course and a driving range.

After hearing the city manager present a brief history of developments since 1965 leading to the recent public hearing on February 18 concerning the Corps of Engineer's plan for project work on Green Mill Run between Charles and East Fifth Street, board members went on record to approve a resolution to be sent to Wilmington. This resolution will be a statement of support showing that members of the Planning and Zoning board are in support of the project.

Hagerty pointed out that statements of support or objections to the project will be accepted by the Corps of Engineers as part of the overall official record until March 18, the last day of the 30 day period granted following the public hearing for accepting statements.

Woman Out Front In AFROTC Class

RALEIGH — East Carolina University has asked the Joint Appropriations Committee for $7.1 million above requests recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission.

Dr. Leo Jenkins in an appearance before the committee yesterday gave priority to a $3.7 million School of Art building and $826,305 for academic salary increases above the amount already recommended in the budget.

The Advisory Budget Commission has recommended funds for an average of five percent salary increases, but the additional request would raise this to eight percent. It is in line with what is being requested by other universities and the Board of Higher Education. Jenkins also asked for $788,059 to employ 42 additional instructors and lower the student-teacher ratio to 15.3 to one.

He requested $438,354 to establish a library for the School of Allied Health and Social Professions and $59,224 for an office of Special Projects and Grants.

Other requests were for: a counselor placement office, $17,087; correctional sciences program, $252,354; campus security, $54,061 and computer program, $31,300. A $668,000 heating plant addition was requested, $85,000 to convert East Cafeteria to a conference center and $160,000 for a scenery shop for drama.

The ECU president received permission to return later to discuss the proposed medical school at the institution. The board of trustees is scheduled to meet March 9 to discuss the plan for a one-year medical program proposed by the Board of Higher Education. Under the board's plan the students completing this one year program successfully would then transfer to the Chapel Hill medical school to complete their work. Gov. Scott has said the one year plan should be the base for a full four year school at ECU.

Already recommended in the budget for the 1971-73 biennium are $1,310,000 for renovating Wahl-Coates to be used by the speech and drama departments; $3.2 million for an addition to the library; $250,000 for expanding the Allied Health programs; $201,178 for library improvements and $1,329,854 for academic salary increases, among other items.

The Joint Appropriations Committee will make adjustments in the budget after its series of hearings from governmental agencies seeking additional funds. The committee will report a final budget measure to the full General Assembly. This usually comes late in the session.

WEST COVINA, Calif. (AP) — Moe the Chimp is blushing. He's a cultured chimp with a preference for a plaid outfit with suspenders. But he has been branded a wild animal.

The 3-year-old recently ran afoul of a building inspector who visited the residence of James and La Donna Davis and spotted the slumped-shouldered "youngster" of the house.

Wild animals are taboo, the city says. And despite his fancy ways, Moe couldn't squirm into the tame animal category reserved for the likes of dogs and cats.

So Mrs. Davis, listed as the official owner, was charged with wild-animal harboring.

The Davises hope for acquittal. "Moe isn't wild," asserts Davis. "He can use a fork, knife and spoon and drink out of a glass. He brushes his teeth and uses the toilet. He shakes hands with people."

"That chimp ate French toast with syrup on it with a fork and never spilled a drop," attested friend Bill Gordon of Baldwin Park, a five-monkey owner himself. "I've got an 18-year-old kid who can't do that."

A Municipal Court trial is set for March 25. Moe didn't have to attend a preliminary hearing. The judge sent him two bananas anyway.

"At this point I am asking for a jury trial," says Davis, "although we might find it difficult to find a jury of his peers."

House Committees Are Opened To All Members

RALEIGH (AP) — The House voted Wednesday to prohibit the closing of committee sessions to any House member.

The vote came on an amendment to routine adoption of rules for the new session. Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, a proponent of open meetings in government, proposed the amendment, which passed by a vote of 68 to 42.

Until Wednesday, the House had been operating temporarily under rules adopted in 1969.

Four pieces of legislation dealing with wildlife were introduced into the House Wednesday by Rep. Jimmy Green, D-Bladen. The measures, which are part of the legislative program of the State Wildlife Resources Commission, deal primarily with hunting, fishing and boating.

A fifth bill dealing with fishing was introduced by Rep. Donald Kincaid, R-Caldwell.

The House Banking Committee gave a favorable report to legislation which would plug a loophole left in a 1969 interest rate law

The two bills approved and sent to the floor would cut permissible rates on first mortgage loans from 12 to 8 per cent and permit municipalities and urban redevelopment commissions to pay the going rate of interest for bonds.

In addition, the committee heard Rep. Richard Clark, D-Union, complete testimony on his proposed consumer protection bill.

The Senate Judiciary II Committee heard conflicting reaction to the anti-obscenity bill authored by Sen. Jyles J. Coggins, D-Wake.

A Raleigh rabbi, Leo J. Stillpass, told committee members "I am opposed to the church trying to get the legislature to do the job it failed to do."

Robert L. Emanuel, a representative of North Carolina magazine distributors, suggested that the Coggins bill be amended to include prior adversary hearings. Burley Mitchell, assistant attorney general, told the committee he opposed such a modification.

Duke Scholar Says Historians Overlook Women

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Women came in the second shroud of colonists and have been here ever since but, says Anne Fror Scott, their part in America's development is seldom found in history books. "Poets and novelists rarely overlook women," the Duke University associate professor of history notes. "Historians often do. Frequently they write as if half the human race did not exist ... There are fat textbooks in American history which mention women three or four times, and a good deal more attention is paid to a single political leader or some short-lived political movement than to the accomplishments of women in 300 years."

American women have just been published. Each, Dr. Scott feels, helps to bring perspective into American history. "The Southern Lady," written by Dr. Scott, has been published by the University of Chicago Press. Subtitled "From Pedestal to Politics, 1830-1930," it dismantles the myth that the woman of the Old South was a delicate creature wholly dependent upon and subservient to men, something to be seen and not heard. The book traces the story of the Southern woman's emancipation. "The American Woman. Who was she?," edited by Dr. Scott, has been published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. Centering on women in the century after the Civil War, it contains 50 selections and comprises the latest volume in Prentice-Hall's "Eyewitness Accounts of American History Series."

"Women in American Life," selected readings assembled by Dr. Scott, has been published by Houghton Mifflin as part of its "Life in America Series." Designed for high school use, the book traces the history of American women from the earliest Indian societies to the current feminist revival, describing their struggles for recognition and equality in political, educational, social and economic matters.

Mrs. Scott, a Georgia native active in women's affairs in North Carolina, the region and the nation, detects large gaps in the standard history books. Why are women left out? She doesn't have the answer. But she has a notion. "One day perhaps the inquiring psychologist will explain the extreme reluctance of American historians to recognize that women have been here too, and when that time comes the answer will be, in part, that the historians were men. They carry a heavy baggage of assumptions, usually unacknowledged and unexamined about the importance of women in history."

It is time, she said, for the male majority among historians, "to examine these assumptions, to correct the biases built into their work and to revise their accounts of historical events accordingly."

An upsurge of interest in women's history was evident at the recent meeting of the American Historical Association in Boston, Dr. Scott said. The session included five panels related in some way to women's history. Dr. Scott presided over one of them entitled "Feminism: Past, Present and Future."

Friendship Night Held By OES Chapter Tuesday

GRIFTON — Grifton Chapel No. 134, Order of Eastern Star, celebrated friendship night on Tuesday following their regular session. Guests were members of the Kinston and Pleasant Hill Chapter.

The Worth Matron Mrs. Louise J. McCotter welcomed the guests. Associate Patron John Glenn gave the prayer. A poem "Friendship" was read by Mrs. Virginia Daniels.

Mrs. Ruby Eubanks, Mrs. Becky Glenn, Mrs. Ruby Singleton, Mrs. Inez Sumrell and Mrs. Lorene Phillips each read a poem "What I Call A Friend." The singing of "What A Friend I Have In Jesus" followed with the forming of the friendship circle.

A Valentine motif was used in decorations in the dining hall. The tables were covered with red runners and centered with red candles and carnations. Mrs. McCotter poured punch.

On Wednesday night, Masons and their wives were honored at a supper by the Grifton Chapter OES.

Mrs. McCotter gave the welcome and the Worshipful Master of the lodge gave the response. Walter Murphy gave the invocation.

Whitt McLawhorn presented a program of organ music for the event.

Takes A Lot Of Livin' For 'House'

LONDON (WNS) — Elisabeth Sturgess-Jones has written a book entitled "Women In Politics," in which she complains that although the first British lady was elected to Parliament 53 years ago, only 93 other ladies have been elected to the House of Parliament since then. The reaction of one male politician who did not wish to be quoted by name: "Just one more proof that women's place is in the home, not the House."

Taking Collection While Wife Inside

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (WNS) — Nancy Woodmark of Boston left her husband waiting outside of furrier Birger Christensen's boutique while she went in to look at minks. "I was never so embarrassed in my life," reported Mrs. Woodmark later. "When I came out, there was Bill taking a collection with his hat and wearing a sign, 'Wife Inside.'"

Miss Baker—"but she did her thing and met the right guy and married him, and now she lives in Mexico City."

The two women combined their diaries for the books, but Miss Jones, a journalism graduate of the University of Georgia, did all the writing.

—Since last August, she has visited 158 cities.

"That's the only way to sell books these days," she said on a stop at the Beverly Hills Hotel, "but at least my airlines training prepared me for it."

On promotion trips for the first book, she was accompanied by

Artistic Accessories—Scarves

ARTISTIC ACCESSORIES — In today's fashion scene, it's not what you wear, but what you wear with it that counts, and at Sally Gee, a scarf manufacturer, designing accessories has become an art form in itself. Artist Ron Chereskin says he sees his designs for Sally Gee as miniature paintings. His themes are ecology, environment, and romance.

At top is a picture belt—a fantasy forest printed on suede. Chereskin gave it a three-dimensional look by dye cutting parts of the design to reveal a contrasting vinyl backing. In the center are scarves, again printed in a fanciful landscape design with fruits, flowers and love themes. The scarves have specially designed belts in matching patterns.

Wings Clipped Of 'Coffee, Tea Or Me' Girl Authors

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER LOS ANGELES (UPI)—After blonde Rachel Jones wrote a best-seller "Coffee, Tea or Me" about her hijinks as a stewardess, her airline clipped her wings.

"They didn't think the book was very funny," she said.

Although she and her co-author, Trudy Baker, wrote under pen names, the airlines tracked them down and asked for their resignations.

"We won't tell anyone which airlines it was," Miss Jones says, "but I think we just said, look world, we're human and we like to have a good time."

"A lot of women whose daughters are stewardesses have told me they liked the book, and they were happy their daughters were having such a ball. My own mother says at least when I die, they can write on my epitaph, She Lived."

Another Book Undaunted, Miss Jones and Miss Baker signed up with another carrier and began working on international flights. They kept a journal of their experiences and distilled them in a new tome—"The Coffee Tea or Me Girls' Round-the-World Diary."

Producer Robert Aldrich plans to combine the two books in a film version, which Miss Jones hopes will star Goldie Hawn playing her.

Pilot Club Names 'Do Your Own Thing' Queen

The Pilot Club of Greenville members have one annual money-raising project to provide funds for various worthy causes which they support.

This year Mrs. Robert Smith, vice chairman of the Finance Committee, suggested that it be a "Do Your Own Thing" event.

Under the leadership of the committee chairman, Mrs. Preston Fields and committee members, Mrs. John McCarthy and Mrs. Nan Nobles, the project netted $1,114.85 for the club. Each member chose her own way of raising money.

At the monthly dinner meeting held Monday evening, Mrs. Smith, who had brought in the most money, was presented the Pilot Club outstanding service award and was crowned "Do Your Own Thing" queen. Mrs. Fields and Miss Elizabeth Quinerly were runners-up.

Mrs. Doris Marlowe sang in the presentation pageant and also sang a medley of songs accompanied by her daughter, Sheila, pianist.

Some of the individual projects included: one member sold a used comode and donated the proceeds to the money-raising project; another donated

Team Chicken With Peaches

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Any new way to serve the moderate-cost broiler-fryer should appeal to budget-conscious cooks. And these days who doesn't have to watch food costs?

Here's a way of teaming chicken with canned cling peach slices that's interesting enough to serve company.

In this recipe the chicken pieces are rolled in flour seasoned with salt, pepper, cinnamon and onion powder—a flavorful combination. After browning the chicken it's baked in the oven (with some of the peach syrup and a little wine) and during that period you can relax with your guests. The peach slices are added to the chicken about five minutes before the baking time is up.

Rice is a good accompaniment to this dish, but if you want something more unusual choose bulgur or couscous. A green vegetable such as snap beans plus a tossed salad can complete the main course. Or you can omit the cooked vegetable and serve just the salad.

½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Couple Holds Open House

GRIFTON — On Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Gower entertained at open house honoring their guests, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Scholtz Jr. of Charlotte and Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Moody of Mt. Airy.

Miss Betty Lynn Gower, their daughter, and Walter Scholtz were special guests.

Guests were greeted by the host and hostess and introduced to the honorees.

The dining room table was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with a patriotic centerpiece. Mrs. Charlie Hardee poured punch assisted by Mrs. John Glenn.

Others assisting were Mrs. Clayton Gray of Greenville, Mrs. G. L. Tucker, Mrs. L. L. Mewborn and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hines.

Mrs. Cox Is Club Speaker

Mrs. Uran Cox, a member of the Greenville Garden Club, spoke at the meeting of the club held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. B. Spilman.

She gave an illustrated talk on the various categories of arrangements which will be presented at the Standard Flower Show to be held March 30. The Greenville Garden Club is sponsoring the show to be held at the Art Center.

Mrs. J. Paul Davenport, president, presided at the business session. It was announced that a workshop for the show will be held March 19 at the Farm Bureau Building beginning at 10 a.m. Members attending should provide their lunch.

The committee for the Elizabethan Garden Tour will charter a bus to leave Greenville at 8 a.m. April 20.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Spilman, Mrs. Katherine Adams, Mrs. M. L. Wright, Mrs. T. T. Hollingsworth and Mrs. Anne Phillips.

Refreshments were served from a table centered with an arrangement of red and white flowers.

DEAR ABBY: I have been widowed twice and I am not an old lady. Unless you call 49 "old."

After my first husband died, I continued to wear my wedding ring. A friend who had recently lost his wife became interested in me. He said he didn't object to my wearing my wedding ring if it made me feel better. Somehow it did, so I just never took it off. Well, I married this fine man and he put a second wedding ring on my finger right next to my first.

Two years later my second husband died. It's been 14 months since his death and I am again being asked out. Perhaps I should mention that I have never taken either one of my two wedding rings off. Every man who meets me asks me why I wear two wedding rings. Some think I shouldn't even wear one. I tell them the truth. They all think I am strange, but Abby, my hands would feel "naked" without them. What is the correct thing to do? TWO RINGS

DEAR TWO: The correct thing would be to remove both wedding rings if you are interested in marrying a third time. Your second husband was unusually generous. I doubt if you will find a man who will willingly contribute to a "three ring circus."

DEAR ABBY: Since my divorce a year ago, I have gone with several women, but have not been intimate with any of them.

A few months ago, just for sexual outlet, I picked up a young and pretty girl off the street and took her to my apartment. She was a prostitute, so I paid her. Since then I've seen her several times. I have even bought her dinner. [She doesn't drink and I don't either.] I have grown fond of her, and have even thought of asking her to give up being a woman of the streets and go with only me. I would even stop my sex relations with her to prove I want her company only because I like her. [Possibly I am in love with her.]

What she is and has been doesn't matter. That can be changed if she wants to change it. My problem is how to let her know how much I care for her.

I will not hold her past against her. We all make plenty of mistakes.

AWAITING YOUR REPLY

DEAR AWAITING: You express yourself very well. Just tell her what you have told me.

DEAR ABBY: I am a grandmother. As one would

Mrs. Thompson Entertained

GRIFTON — Mrs. Jessie Thompson, who celebrated her 90th birthday Friday, was honored at a coffee hour by her daughter, Mrs. John Glenh.

The Glenn house was decorated throughout with arrangements of flowers, which were gifts to Mrs. Thompson.

Guests were invited into the dining room where the table was covered with a lace over gold cloth and centered with a decorated birthday cake.

Mrs. Frank Davis poured coffee and Mrs. Hames Israel served cake squares. Mrs. George Lehman served iced drinks from a silver bowl arranged in an auxiliary table.

Mrs. Thompson was presented a red carnation corsage.

Mrs. Thompson was honored at a family dinner party given by her daughter, Mrs. Robert T. McCotter at her home.

The dining table was covered with a Maderia cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of white mums and gladioli.

Guests attending were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. James Allen and children Selena Carol and Jay of Virginia Beach, Mrs. L. D. McCotter, Nancy Jordan and Patti Cartwright.

Candida demanded $3,000 to free her permanently. Ernst refused to pay and sent her back to Candida. Hildegarde's comment: "Now I wouldn't go back to my husband for $25,000."

Wife Creates A Price War

HAMBURG, West Germany (WNS) — Ernst Schaab, 35, sold his wife Hildegarde to Giuseppe Candida, 48, for $600 so that he could pay his hospital bills. Hildegarde, 36, returned to her husband when he was cured, but expect, I am placed in competition with the other grandmother. I don't happen to believe in bringing my grandchildren a present every time I go to see them. The other grandmother does, which is her privilege. This gives the grandchildren the impression that they have something coming every time a grandparent visits them. [We live in the same city.]

What should I say when the little ones come running to greet me and ask, "What did you bring me?"

EMPTY HANDS: FULL HEART

DEAR EMPTY: Suggest to your grandchildren's parents that they ask the other grandmother to cool the gift-giving gambit. It's not good for the kids and it's unfair to you. If that doesn't work, you will have to cultivate the youngsters' affection in other ways, until their values mature, as they will.

The East Can Pick And Choose

For many years Eastern North Carolina communities have had to do everything within their power to obtain industry, and at times some communities have wound up with industries that have become problems.

In the future we can expect a change, according to Fourth District Congressman Nick Galifianakis. He told the Bankers Association at a meeting here last weekend that we will have to "put the fences up" to guard against an expected "massive invasion" from northeast American industrialists.

While the activity will be welcomed, Galifianakis said the job will be to provide careful and thoughtful planning for a program of orderly expansion for an industrial ecological balance.

He said industrialists want new sites and see "vast attraction in our spacious and unspoiled lands ... and in our pure unpolluted skies."

The challenge now to Eastern North Carolina is the threat of overdevelopment and this puts us in an "enviable bargaining position."

"No longer are you compelled to promote concerted effort to attract industry. Your job is to plan what kind of development you want, and how much."

He said easterners have carved out and maintained a place where natural beauty abounds.

"Although changes will come, although the footsteps of new vitality will quicken to a new crescendo, I am confident that you will cling to the good life you have created."

"The easterner does not easily forget the things he has been close to. As he looks ahead to even better days, he is also prone to look over his shoulder — pausing to reflect upon and treasure the things that have become familiar ... the qualities which he holds dear."

Eastern cities have already experienced the quickening pace of industrial development and most of our larger cities in recent months have benefitted through the addition of one or more major industries.

We believe, with Congressman Galifianakis, that the east will be able to choose the kind of industries that are desirable for our area in the years ahead. In fact it will become something that we must do if we are to avoid the problems of pollution and overcrowding that now characterize many industrial areas.

Our industrial planners should continue to welcome prospects, but they must also be thinking in terms of what a prospective industry can do for the community. Will it mean water or air pollution and low wages; or will it be a clean industry so far as wastes are concerned and will it provide the wages and long term benefits that its employees need?

We can have economic development and maintain the good qualities of our way of life but it will take careful planning of future development.

The Saturday Primary Dying

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — The Saturday primary may follow the mule into oblivion as part of the North Carolina scene.

Both became fixtures on Tar Heel landscape when the rural mode dominated the state's way of life. Changing times already have led the second to near disappearance, and now the first is threatened.

Legislation to set party primaries on Tuesday, the day of the week now prevailing for general elections, has been prepared for introduction by Representatives Allen Barbee of Nash and W. S. (Sandy) Harris, Jr., of Alamance.

Barbee is from the agricultural East; Harris is from the industry-oriented he explained. "They're out in the country on Saturday and they don't want to get fixed up and come into town to vote."

Harris has been at the switch for some time. All the reaction reaching him has been favorable. He hasn't been a crusader or tried to round up votes among fellow legislators so he doesn't risk a prediction on the outcome.

Scott Indicated Favor

He's picked up one important ally in a fellow Alamance resident, Governor Bob Scott. When he was back home to vote in the 1969 spring Democratic primary, Scott told friends he thought the Saturday-to-Tuesday change would be a good idea.

The State Board of Elections also regards it as a constructive move in the direction of encouraging voter participation. Executive Secretary Alex Brock said Barbee, Harris and several other General Assembly members have discussed the proposal with him.

Piedmont. Together, they give a range of geographic support to the idea.

Barbee said he was asked to sponsor the bill by constituents who feel changes in farming now make a week-day more convenient for voting. "And not just for farmers, but for everybody," he went on. "Weekend is the time when people are on the move. They're more in place and apt to vote on Tuesday than on Saturday."

Earlier on the Calendar

Another change aimed to catch more citizens at home is included in Barbee's bill. It would move the primary date forward to the third Tuesday in April. Naturally, filing deadlines for candidates running in the primary also would be moved ahead on the calendar.

In the past, a frequent lament has been that the late May primary has caught many folks at the beach for the first Saturday after schools are out. Particularly when a second primary is required, falling in mid-June, there has been the possibility of vacations keeping voters from the polls.

The earlier date would avoid any vacation conflict, Barbee noted.

Harris said the switch from Saturday to Tuesday seemed to him to make good sense. People will go to vote on the way to and from work, he said, but don't take the trouble if it means interrupting their day off.

"Up our way we have a lot of people who work in the mills and farm on the side,"

Agnew Opposed Behind Scenes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's characteristically hardboiled pitch for passage of revenue-sharing continued at a Republican fund-raiser in Richmond last week in the face of backstage requests from several governors and mayors that he be quietly relieved of this duty.

Most outspoken of these pleas came from liberal Republican Gov. Francis Sargent of Massachusetts, assigned by the Administration to round up revenue-sharing votes from Northeast states Congressmen. Sargent bluntly informed a Treasury official that Agnew, because of his hard partisan reputation and style, would lose more votes than he wins for revenue-sharing in Congress. Other governors and mayors have relayed similar sentiments to the White House.

Senior aides at the White House, who originally handed Agnew his revenue-sharing mission, were not moved. They doubt he hurts the program at all and speculate that some Republicans would be criticizing the Vice President if he were not coming on strong for the President's pet project of 1971.

Besides, revenue-sharing is regarded by the White House as the last, best vehicle to carry the Vice President toward a more positive image, which may be essential to keep him from being bumped off the 1972 ticket. Presidential aides feel Agnew, for ideological reasons, has shied away from White House plans for him to also plug Mr. Nixon's health insurance plan, a more distinctly liberal proposal.

Ramsey's Man

The sudden unveiling of former Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark as New York's would-be favorite son for President by Manhattan businessman Eugene Lang was no help at all in attracting the support of left reformist elements in the party upon whom Clark must rely for support.

Lang is one of the old-style liberals devoted to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and is in bad graces with reform elements who backed Robert Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy. For example, Lang was a key backer of Frank O'Connor, despised by the reformers, in his 1966 campaign for Governor of New York.

What makes this so puzzling is that Clark's only fragile hope for substantial Presidential support is beating out Mayor John V. Lindsay as champion of the New York left. Instead, he has let himself be adopted by Land — clear evidence of Clark's political inexperience.

A footnote: Although Lang implied that Clark turned down an invitation to attend a meeting of prospective candidates in Washington, the facts are otherwise. Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien did not view Clark as prospective enough to invite him. This snub led directly to Lang's favorite-son announcement.

Strength For Today

ETERNAL VERITIES

In conversation recently with a young author who has just published his first novel, I remarked that at the present time we seem in this country to be experiencing a moral decline. He was not too sure that the decline really existed, but he was sure that in some fields we have reached new lows. He offered it as his opinion that the most serious delinquency today is the utter ignorance of some people regarding the existence of any standards of right and wrong.

This state of affairs has always existed among criminals, but it is shocking to realize that frequently today people who have been brought up in good homes had no other standard of conduct save what appears to them to be personal advantage. If a thing is pleasant, if it contributes to their comfort, if it makes money, if it causes them to be well thought of by the majority of people, then it is right. William James, who was truly a great philosopher and one of the outstanding moralists of modern times, would turn over in his grave if he realized the extent to which his philosophy of pragmatism is being used to justify any conduct in which anyone cares at any time to indulge. If a thing works — that is, if it appears to the advantage of the person who does it — then some people believe that this is right no matter how much it violates long-accepted moral principles.

But more eternal than the hills are the eternal verities on which human conduct rests.

A Judicial Milestone

The U. S. Supreme Court now has scheduled oral argument in a group of cases of great significance to public and private schools throughout the nation. When opinions come down, late in the spring, another milestone will have been erected along the historic roads known as "Church" and "State."

The cases originate in Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Pennsylvania. Each of them raises in slightly different form the same basic question: Does the expenditure of public funds in connection with church-related educational institutions violate the First Amendment to the Constitution?

In Connecticut, the challenge goes to Title I of the Federal Higher Educational Facilities Act of 1968, which authorizes construction grants for non-public colleges and universities. In Rhode Island, the question involves State subsidies for the salaries of parochial teachers who teach only subjects taught in public schools.

The key case, by general agreement, is Lemon v. Kurtzman, set for argument March 2. Here the challenge is to an act approved by the Pennsylvania legislature in 1968, by which the State "purchases" certain educational services from non-public schools. Under the law, payment if made by the State for instruction in mathematics, modern foreign languages, physical science, and physical education.

Questions of State aid to church-related schools have troubled the high court off and on for many years. Twenty-four years ago, in the landmark Everson case, the Court upheld a New Jersey statute authorizing reimbursement of parents for expenses incurred in busing their children to parochial schools. More recently, on June 10, 1968, a sharply divided Court approved a New York law making textbooks available to public and private school pupils alike.

In between the New Jersey and New York cases, the Court several times nibbled at edges of the constitutional issue. Justices Black and Douglas generally have insisted that the wall of separation between church and state be kept inviolate. Black, for example, saw New York's textbook law as "a flat, flagrant, open violation" of the Constitution. Other members of the Court have groped for safeguards to insure that the challenged acts have "a secular legislative purpose and a primary effect that neither advances nor inhibits religion."

Pennsylvania's position, in

Other Editors Say No Carolinians

(The Raleigh Times)

When the University of North Carolina and the University of South Carolina basketball teams met Saturday in Columbia, there wasn't a Carolinian in the starting lineups. Nine of them were from the basketball training areas in Pennsylvania and New York, and the tenth, one of the USC starters, was from Georgia.

This isn't to say that boys from the north shouldn't be welcomed at the two Carolina universities. It is simply to say that this lack of Carolinians is a good example of the way big-time intercollegiate athletics is conducted as a business nowadays.

The first step in this intercollegiate athletic business is recruiting. This is the process by which coaches beat the bushes finding talented athletes, then trying to induce them to enroll at the campus in question. The chief inducement is a fully paid-for college education, including spending money. Any further inducement is against National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

The recruiting process is a frantic one. Remember the comic-opera hues which the University of North Carolina-University of Maryland race for Tom McMillen's talents finally assumed last summer before the harried boy finally decided on Maryland? It is pathetic to see the lengths to which coaches have to go in their courtship of the high school athletes.

Of course, basketball isn't the only collegiate sport on this big-time treadmill. Football is on an even bigger one, since it involves more players and thus more expenses.

A football squad of 100 players can easily represent an annual scholarship payroll for players of $300,000 to $400,000. This expense doesn't include tutors, equipment, travel, coaches salaries, etc. The expenses are mounting so rapidly that even the really big-time football campuses are losing money.

The really sad part of it is that everyone seems to admit that it is all costing too much — but that no one is really doing anything to try to bring some rule of commonsense into the picture.

No Doubt In Mobile Home Boom

By ELMER ROESSNER

It is still doubtful that the long expected and much needed boom in houses and apartments will get going this year. But there is no doubt that the boom in mobile homes will keep rolling along.

Interest rates have been reduced. The Federal Housing and Veterans Administrations last week cut the maximum interest allowed on mortgages they insure from 7½ to 7 per cent.

President Nixon is trying to control wages in the construction trades, where pay increases have been greater than in any other sector. However, it is doubtful that he will be completely successful since the cost of living keeps on rising. The unions will not accept a voluntary freeze and a freeze by presidential order might be ruled unconstitutional.

But mobile homes, benefiting from lower interest rates and production line techniques, may exceed 400,000 units this year.

Anatomy Of A Boom

That's more than the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association forecast earlier. It expected 375,000 this year, but lower interest (the VA has since extended its loan guarantees to mobile homes) and higher prices for building construction can increase demand.

The Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. has made a study of the mobile home industry and has come up with this comparison of mobile and stationary homes, with the latter built under Section 235 of the Housing Act of 1968, which permits low down payments:

Down payment	200	$1,120
Monthly payments
Principal and interest	66	100
Taxes or land rent	42	35
Insurance	9
Monthly totals	$117	135

A home not purchased on Section 235 would require a much higher down payment, from 20 to 40 per cent, and $20,000 houses are hard to find.

$2.5 Billion A Year Industry

The Morgan study showed that in 1969, mobile homes accounted for 67 per cent of all new home sales under $25,000, and that sales are now running around $2.5 billion a year. The average price per 12-by-60-foot unit was $6,050.

One out of every five housing units this year may be a mobile unit.

Mobile homes are not always mobile. Four out of five are never moved from their original site. Models are available with wood shingles, cathedral ceilings, step-down living rooms, two baths, and two or more bedrooms.

Standard equipment includes central heating, furniture, draperies, basic appliances and carpeting. Optional are electric dishwashers and garbage disposers. And there is a choice of decor: Early American, French Provincial, Mediterranean, Contemporary and even Oriental.

Some families buy two or three units and link them together. With a bit of landscaping they can be made almost indistinguishable from a standard dwelling.

Prices range from $4,000 to $18,000 and even more.

Plans Retrace Peary's Route

By BJOERN F. HOEIJER
STOCKHOLM (UPI)—An Italian and a Norwegian-born Swede plan to repeat the 1909 North Pole expedition of American explorer Adm. Robert E. Peary.

It will probably be the last big expedition tackling the vast polar region in northern Greenland without use of today's modern equipment.

Swedish Leader
The Swedish polar expert and commercial air navigator Einar Sverre Pedersen, 51, will lead the expedition.

Many contemporary polar explorers doubted that Peary actually found the geographical North Pole during his expedition 60 years ago. But no one doubts that Pedersen will lead the expedition to the right place. The chief navigator of the Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS) is recognized by experts as one of the world's leading polar explorers.

Pedersen designed the polar gyro, a navigation instrument that made commercial air traffic over the North Pole possible. Pedersen himself has flown over the pole about 200 times.

Using sleighs drawn by 300 Eskimo dogs, the trek will set out from Qanaq in Greenland sometime in February.

Trek Initiator
The expedition's initiator is Italian explorer Guidi Monzini. He will be accompanied on the journey by Pedersen, seven other Europeans, a Chilean and 25 Eskimos.

Eskimo women in Qanaq are currently making garments from polar bear fur while the men are building the sleighs and training the dogs, Pedersen said.

"All nylon clothes are banned. Monzini has been eager to make the expedition a true copy of Peary's adventure."

The Eskimos taking part in the expedition are descendants of those who took part in Peary's journey, he said.

Two of the Eskimos actually claim to be grandsons of Peary, who spent long periods in Greenland.

Lemon v. Kurtzman, is that its law carefully avoids the constitutional pitfalls. There is nothing peculiarly Catholic, it is urged, in a quadratic equation or the French subjunctive. In the State's view, the purpose of the law is to benefit pupils, and not to promote an establishment of religion.

Defenders of the challenged acts raise a number of practical points also. Private schools in the United States — especially the Catholic schools — are in desperate financial trouble. Over the past two years, the number of Catholic schools has dropped from 12,814 to 11,937; enrollment has declined by 543,000 pupils. One secular effect is to transfer the burden of educating these children to the public schools.

In Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois, New Jersey and New York, more than one of every five school children attends a parochial school. The percentages of non-public enrollment are even higher in Chicago-Gary, Pittsburgh and St. Louis. Without public aid in some form, many of these schools, especially in poor neighborhoods, will go under. In Detroit, Cardinal Dearden publicly has warned that 100,000 pupils may have to be transferred to public schools.

The dilemma is as wide as the passions are deep. Michigan voters in November decreed an overwhelming "no" to support of church-related schools. Nebraska rejected a constitutional amendment that would have authorized limited aid. Elsewhere, in Maryland, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and California, proposals for "tuition grants" or "purchase of educational services" are stirring fierce controversy.

My own strong conviction supports the State experiments, if only because the State laws tend to offset a public school monopoly over the minds of children. But the point is close, and the pending cases demand all the judicial skill the Burger Court can muster.

Leaves Unanswered The Extent Of My Lai Killings

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

Associated Press Writer

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) —

After two days on the witness stand, Lt. William L. Calley Jr. has left unanswered two major questions: How many civilians were killed at My Lai? How many did he kill?

To the question of why—the overshadowing question in Calley's murder trial—the lieutenant had a soldierly answer: "Because that is what I was instructed to do, sir."

At one point in his testimony when he referred to the My Lai shootings he said, "It wasn't any big deal."

The defense rested its case Wednesday with the end of Calley's testimony. The prosecution begins its rebuttal today by calling three Army psychiatrists who examined Calley at Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington.

The stubby lieutenant, testifying in answer to the government's charge of premeditated murder of 102 civilians that March 16, 1968, admitted he took part in a mass shooting at an irrigation ditch.

It was, Calley said, on a radioed order from Capt. Ernest Medina, his company commander, to "finish these people off as fast as possible."

"Now, at any time did you stop and consider the legality or illegality of those orders?" Calley was asked.

"No, sir," was the answer.

While Calley's testimony differed markedly at times from that of many of the 74 witnesses who preceded him to the stand, he agreed that it was Medina who handed down the killing orders.

Medina has been charged with over-all responsibility for the My Lai deaths and is undergoing pretrial investigation.

Court sources say he may be called by the prosecution as a witness in the rebuttal phase of the Calley court-martial.

Conceding "he chewed me out a couple of times," Calley had nothing but praise for his superior.

"I felt that Capt. Medina was a very fine officer and I respected him very much," Calley testified.

The morning before Medina's Charlie Company was airlifted into My Lai, Calley said, the captain told him to set aside a few civilian prisoners in case the troops hit a minefield.

Calley said the captain rescinded the order later in My Lai because some of his troops were too slow in destroying enemy bunkers, and their Vietnamese captives weren't moving fast enough.

"What did Capt. Medina tell you?" Calley was asked.

"Basically," Calley recalled, "The hell with the bunkers, waste the people and get your people out of there when I told you to. And I don't want to hear any more about it." That was it, Calley said he learned at Ft. Benning's Officer Candidate School the way to treat prisoners.

"Treat them with respect, humility. Don't humiliate them. Keep them silent. Keep them separated and keep them closely guarded, sir."

Calley repeated, as he had earlier, that he had shot six to eight bullets at people in the ditch, but didn't say whether any people were hit. He had told in detail the circumstances under which he shot four people inside the village.

The specifications against Calley are that he killed 70 at that ditch east of the village. He denies ever having been at a trail intersection where the government says he killed another 30.

He also denies that he killed a man dressed monk-like in white — another specification—although he says he hit him in the mouth with a rifle butt.

Calley said that at a meeting with Medina after the My Lai incident, he told the captain he had shot some people in a ditch and that Medina had asked no questions.

"It wasn't any big deal, sir," Calley told the prosecutor.

It was the practice in Vietnam, Calley said, to compete for body counts and when Medina asked him for the day, he replied: "I don't have any estimate; you pick whatever you want."

Calley said he also offered an estimate of 30 or 40 and that he believed Medina credited his platoon with 50 dead and gave the same arbitrary number to four other units.

Other testimony has been that Medina reported 310 dead to his superiors that same day. The official report of the task force commander, the late Col. Frank Barker, listed 128.

In an interview six weeks ago, Calley said there would come a time when he would have to call some former comrades-in-arms liars for their testimony, but added, "They are really only stating facts. Everybody in combat sees something different."

His eight hours and 24 minutes of testimony contradicted many of their statements.

At one point the trial judge asked whether Calley had an explanation for the differences in testimony.

More Attention For Passengers In 'Railpax' Plan

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A passenger may not become king of the railroad if the Railpax revolution succeeds, but at least he may be treated more like a prince than a commoner with baggage.

Railpax aims to put profit back in intercity train-travel empires which recently have been ruled by loss. And image makers will try to make trains competitive with other modes of transportation.

"It'll succeed," said one of the professionals working on the strategy, "depending quite simply on how well we're able to give the rider a good, clean, safe and happy ride."

But success will cost millions, take years, "and first we've got to counter criticism, doubt and rumor, and win back the lost customer's faith by offering to make him feel we really want him and can prove it by the way we do our job," he added.

Preparing for May Day, the May 1 takeover of virtually all the nation's city-linking rail passenger business that the railroads don't want, the incorporators of the National Railroad Passenger Corp.—Railpax—profess enthusiasm for the project.

"It's a very hot torch that's been passed to us, though," said former Rep. Catherine May Bedell of Washington state, the only woman on the eight-member board of incorporators appointed by President Nixon and confirmed by the Senate last December.

They'll serve also as a board of directors to put the organization in shape by May 1.

Once formed, the corporation will pick up seven additional members—four elected by holders of preferred stock and three elected by railroads that are common-stock holders.

Although a totally new group of directors could be picked by the President and approved by the Senate, it is generally expected the government will go along with most or all of these persons who now are serving as incorporators:

Mrs. Bedell; chairman David W. Kendall, former special counsel to President Eisenhower; retired Gen. Frank S. Besson Jr., former chairman of the Pentagon's Joint Logistics Review Board; John J. Gilhooly, former New York City Transit Authority commissioner; Charles Luna, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Arthur D. Lewis, former president of Eastern Airlines, and Chicago lawyer David E. Bradshaw.

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe, who gave the Railpax panel his basic rail passenger system report listing 21 pairs of major cities between which service must be provided after May 1, is expected to become a director replacing his deputy undersecretary, John P. Olsson.

The law creating Railpax suggests the corporation use "innovative operating and marketing concepts so as to fully develop the potential of modern rail service in meeting the nation's intercity passenger transportation requirements."

Kendall, in briefings to congressmen and their staffs, said Volpe "completed a very difficult task and has handed us a truly national basic system, fashioned in such a way that the corporation will have flexibility in expanding service as rapidly as conditions permit."

Before May, Kendall said, the Railpax panel must organize a $200 million public service corporation, find top management talent, decide on the routes to use, determine what's available in the way of equipment, decide "the best ways to turn around the drastic downturn in rail passengers," and negotiate contracts.

These contracts will be with "up to 22 railroads that are now running passenger trains and losing $200 million a year," he said.

And the Railpax board's task extends to such matters as solving ticket, reservation and passenger terminal matters.

Kendall said the criteria for route selection will largely follow Volpe's guidelines: Demand, cost, population, profitability, corporate flexibility and capital improvement requirements.

The availability of other forms of transit will be taken into consideration, he added, and the system will be expanded "if and when this is possible."

The corporation's funds come from an initial federal grant of $40 million and guaranteed loan capability of up to $300 million, from payments by railroads that join, and from preferred stock sold to the public.

Railpax will manage the network and operate the trains under contracts with the railroads. The corporation must run the basic system trains until July 1, 1973. After that, Railpax may ask for Interstate Commerce Commission permission to drop unneeded or unprofitable service.

The system can be expanded any time Railpax "considers it to be consistent with prudent management," said a board spokesman, "and any state, regional or local agency may request extra service if they are willing to pay at least two-thirds of any deficit that may be incurred."

Railroads which don't participate in Railpax will be required to continue all their passenger trains until July 1, 1975.

Looking at Railpax from a sales standpoint, one official calls it "the greatest marketing challenge of the century ...

"We'll need solid public support. The public is going to have to realize that we can't have all new trains running by May 1... But we will be accepting from the railroads only the best equipment they have available "And we'll put an emphasis on marketing. We've got some top people working on developing a corporate identity—from the symbols we use to the choice of colors to paint the cars.

"We've got to take all the cats and dogs out of the system. The dirty seats and broken windows will go.

"We'll do what has to be done to make the passenger comfortable and make him want to ride with us again, including making our ticket rates competitive."

Another official said a national advertising campaign is being developed, "but public relations work at the grass roots level can do a great deal to sell this to the public. We've got to reverse the ridership decline because if it continues we're going to have a really difficult financial situation."

That trend has been under way for several decades. There were about 20,000 passenger trains in 1929, but 9,000 of them disappeared by 1946. By 1970, the count was below 400 and one out of four of those were involved in discontinuance actions before ICC.

While the primary Railpax purpose is to provide intercity rail passenger service, mail and express may be carried on the trains.

Furthermore, Railpax has power to conduct research and development which, officials said, could contribute extensively to improved service and equipment.

Volpe views Railpax as a development that "is destined to become the all-time comeback in the history of American transportation."

Essay Contest's First Prize Goes To Rose High Student

Lyle Barlow, a tenth grader in J. H. Rose High School, was announced winner of an essay contest sponsored by the Greenville Women's Business and Professional Club.

The contest on the subject "How I Can Help Prevent A Drug Problem In My School," was open to all students in grades 10 through 12 within Pitt County.

Mrs. Naomi Edwards, coordinator of the essay contest, noted that 29 essays were received, "about 75 percent of them from girl students."

"I must not sit quietly... while other people, some of them my friends, take chances... I must concern myself with other people." These are some of the thoughts expressed in Lyle's essay. He mentioned stresses which cause young people sometimes to turn to drugs. "Sometimes an individual is unable to cope with the stresses of our complex and fast-paced society. It is not his fault that high school puts unbearable pressure on his nerves until finally drugs give him a temporary escape." Lyle emphasized in his essay the element of setting a good example, but still being willing to standby to help a friend who may not be able to resist.

For his winning entry, Lyle received a check for $25. "To be put into my education fund," he said.

Commenting on being named winner, Lyle remarked: "I said what I really feel. Drugs are a problem in our schools, a problem to be dealt with. Everyone should know the hazards they face."

Judging of the essays was made by Miss Carolyn Fulghum; Mrs. Frances White; Miss Polly Dail; Miss Margaret Register; Mrs. Jeanette Cox; Mrs. Elvira Allred; Mrs. Lucille Quinn; and Mrs. Naomi Edwards.

Abortion Abhorrent, But Rep. Odum Speaks For

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A woman to whom abortions are abhorrent has made the strongest plea in the North Carolina House of Representatives in support of a bill to make abortions easier to obtain.

"I cannot imagine a woman having an abortion. It's inconceivable to me," said Mrs. Mary H. Odum, D-Scotland, in discussing her moving appeal to the House as it debated the abortion measure Tuesday.

"I have very dear friends in the Catholic Church who have telephoned and sent letters" urging her to oppose the bill, she said. "I also got a letter from the bishop."

But, she said in explaining her support of the bill, "beside my own personal feeling, I have a moral responsibility to try to make the law" apply equally to men and women.

The bill would permit a woman less than 12 weeks pregnant to obtain an abortion upon a written request to her doctor. It was amended Wednesday to require the husband's consent if the couple were living together as man and wife. After being amended it was passed and sent to the Senate.

Supporters of the bill had argued that it would reduce the number of unloved and unwanted children brought into the world.

"All of us wish that every child could be born as an act of love as opposed to a mere biological union," Mrs. Odum said.

"I wish that every child would be welcomed by both a mother and a father, and I wish every child could come into this world with promise of adequate food, clothing and education.

"But neither the passage or defeat of this bill would insure these things," she added.

"The real issue is whether or not a woman after conception has the right to decide whether or not to bear the child.

Both a man and a woman can abstain from relations and both a man and a woman have the right to use methods to prevent conception if they have relations," the woman legislator said.

"But the man has the right after conception, regardless of what the law may say to walk away from the union if he chooses to do so without pain or inconvenience. Paternity is difficult to prove and maternity is undeniable."

Mrs. Odum said a man can thus avoid accepting his parental responsibility, but a woman cannot do this.

"I think the woman should have the right to decide," she declared.

She also said that the present restrictive abortion law "discriminates against the black and the poor. It should not be that way."

"Any woman in North Carolina today can obtain an abortion if she has the money," she concluded.

Later in discussing with a reporter a proposal to make it grounds for divorce for a woman to obtain an abortion without her husband's consent, Mrs. Odum said:

"This idea that men own women I do resent. This almost relegates women to the status of brood mares or sows, or something like that."

SITUATION: NO PICNIC — Lone picnic table is surrounded by flood water from the Rock River (Illinois) Tuesday after rain and moderate temperatures caused the river to swell over its banks. Threatened homes in the background were evacuated. (AP Wirephoto)

Would Protect N.C. Merchants

RALEIGH (AP) — A legislator-merchant feels that North Carolina merchants should not be liable for damages for false arrest of suspected shoplifters.

Sen. William D. Mills, D-Onslow, sponsored a bill Wednesday which would offer this protection to merchants.

Mills said that under the present law merchants are fearful of arresting or detaining persons suspected of shoplifting because of the possibility of a damage suit for false arrest.

His bill specifies that a merchant, his employee or law enforcement officer would not be civilly liable if there was "probable cause to believe" the person who was arrested or detained had stolen merchandise.

"Merchants desperately need this addition to our shoplifting laws," said Mills.

The measure was requested by the North Carolina Merchants Association. Thompson Greenwood, executive vice president of the association, said, "This bill, if enacted, would serve as a deterrent to shoplifting."

Greenwood said many liable suits have been filed against merchants over the years. He added that in his opinion the bill would not increase the arrest of suspected shoplifters.

"Merchants don't want to arrest people unless they have to do so," he said. "Once you embarrass anybody you've lost the trade of his or her family for life."

In other legislative developments Wednesday:

Legislation was introduced in the House to rewrite North Carolina law regarding dangerous drugs and to permit wiretapping under certain circumstances. It was sponsored by Reps. Jim Beatty, D-

Mecklenburg, and Chris Barker Jr., D-Craven. The measure resulted from the work of a study commission.

The Senate passed and sent to the House legislation authorizing county commissioners in North Carolina to levy a 1 per cent sales tax with or without a vote of the people. The Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax. Under his amendment, the 75 counties which voted in 1969 against a sales tax could not have the tax levied on them by their commissioners unless the voters approved it in a referendum.

The State Supreme Court ruled last month that a 1 per cent sales tax in effect in 25 counties was unconstitutional.

Offers SBC Big Budget

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A nine-month 1972 budget of $24.6 million has been proloxed by the executive committee of the Southern Baptist Convention.

SBC officials said the budget represented a 3.3 per cent increase over the current budget.

The new budget, if approved by the full convention in St. Louis in June, would finance Southern Baptist Convention activities Jan. 1 through Sept. 30, 1972, officials said.

The executive committee has been meeting here this week.

In other action, the committee voted to recommend Norfolk, Va., as the site of the 1976 Southern Baptist Convention; approved a study committee report supporting a Negro Baptist seminary in Nashville; and recommended that members of boards of trustees of Baptist agencies be nominated without regard to race, sex, age or national origin.

Early Recognition Childhood Aphasia Found Best

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer
PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — When Johnny hadn't begun to talk by his second birthday, his parents began to worry.

They knew it wasn't uncommon for toddlers to wait until 30 months or even three years before speaking in two- and three-word sentences. But they also knew that an infant quickly learns to understand portions of his parents' speech, even if he isn't talking yet.

And that's what concerned Johnny's parents, because their son, besides not speaking, didn't seem to be listening.

Bethel Native Awarded Degree From Hawaii U.

HONOLULU, Hawaii — Laurel T. Purvis, a native of Bethel, N.C., was recently awarded the master of library sciences degree from the University of Hawaii here.

Her area of interest is college and university libraries.

Mrs. Purvis is the wife of Capt. Stanley L. Purvis, an auditor with the U.S. Air Force. They reside in Pearl City.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Thigpen of Bethel, N.C., Mrs. Purvis is a 1959 graduate of Bethel High School and a 1962 graduate of East Carolina University. She has been employed as a librarian by schools in Winterville, N.C., and Glasgow, Mont.

Capt. and Mrs. Purvis have one son, Jeffrey.

Summer Theatre Plans Five Popular Musicals

Five well-known musical shows will be presented by the East Carolina Summer Theatre during the 1971 summer season, beginning July 5.

They are: "Oliver," "Mame," "Girl Crazy," "The Red Mill," and "Gypsy."

According to Edgar R. Loessin, producer-director, the 1971 bill includes one of the "most recent smash hits" on Broadway, "Mame," as well as one of the oldest musicals still performed, "The Red Mill," by Victor Herbert.

For the first time, he said, the Summer Theatre will produce a show by George Gershwin, "Girls Crazy."

The season opens with "Oliver," the show most requested by Summer Theatre audiences last summer, and closes with "Gypsy," featuring popular Summer Theatre performer Sally-Jane Heit in the leading role of Madame Rose, mother of the late Gypsy Rose Lee.

Miss Heit starred in "Hello, Dolly!" during the 1970 summer season, and has performed a number of leading roles during past seasons.

Season tickets are $18 each, a savings of 25 percent over the regular $4.90 box office price per show. Since reserved seats may be chosen immediately at the purchase of season tickets, the Summer Theatre management advises that tickets be purchased soon.

It wasn't a hearing problem, because he would run to the telephone when it rang, jump at the blare of a horn or sit enraptured by music on the phonograph.

But if an adult spoke, Johnny would stare blankly, unresponding. It was as if he could hear everything normally, except human speech.

Johnny's symptoms could have been diagnosed as any of several disorders—deafness, mental retardation, even mental illness.

But the child's physician was especially perceptive and Johnny's parents lived in the San Francisco Bay area. So he was referred to the Scottish Rite Institute for Childhood Aphasia at the Stanford University School of Medicine in Palo Alto.

There, institute director Dr. Jon Eisenson and his staff of neurologists, linguists, psychologists and speech therapists correctly diagnosed Johnny's condition. He had developmental aphasia, a subtle, little recognized brain disorder, probably the result of a birth defect, that impaired his ability to discriminate among spoken sounds.

That was three years ago. Now, after careful treatment at the institute, Johnny is listening, speaking and preparing to enroll in the first grade with normal 6-year-olds.

Stanford's facility is the only one of its kind in the country and the institute has become the pioneer in treatment and research of the disorder.

Doctors don't know how many children there are like Johnny or how many are being incorrectly diagnosed and improperly treated. Eisenson thinks the number is substantial.

"It's just been in the last 20 years that we've begun to recognize the aphasic child for what he is," Eisenson said in an interview. "Before that, he often was thought of as deaf, a slow learner, mentally retarded or emotionally disturbed. Unfortunately, many are still diagnosed like that."

When aphasia is part of several brain disorders, such as in mental retardation, its diagnosis isn't difficult. Treatment is part of the over-all scheme to teach the child to cope with life.

But when aphasia is the only disorder, as in Johnny's case, it is often incorrectly diagnosed. This has made Eisenson, at 63, a quiet reformer.

"If an aphasic child is incorrectly diagnosed and receives the wrong treatment, he will begin to reflect the therapy he is given," Eisenson said. "If he is treated as if he were mentally ill, he eventually will exhibit the symptoms of the mentally ill child."

Eisenson is gently critical of the medical profession and fellow psychologists.

"I'm concerned that so many pediatricians and child psychologists have only a marginal awareness of aphasia as a childhood problem. In cases where a physician isn't dealing with hard, obvious signs of a neurological disorder, he is likely to overlook something like aphasia as a possibility."

Aphasia in adults, especially stroke patients, has been recognized for some time, but the disorder wasn't fully understood in children. Then researchers discovered that the left half of the brain controls perception of speech, while the right half controls perception of other sounds—music, traffic noise or ringing bells.

That was why Johnny didn't respond to his parents' talk—something was wrong with the speech center in the left half of his brain.

"Eventually, a child will just tune out adults," Eisenson said. "He stops relating to human beings because he can't make any sense of the noises they are making. The perfect example is an aphasic child who prefers to watch television with the sound off."

Eisenson and his staff have found that an aphasic child, when discovered early enough, can be taught to function almost normally.

First, a child must be taught to appreciate the nature of symbols, particularly symbols used in language.

A therapist might teach a young patient that an object—such as an apple—is represented by the printed word "apple." The child would repeatedly be asked to match the apple with its word.

And each time, the child matched them, the therapist would repeat the word "apple."

Eventually, the child would learn to recognize the spoken sound for apple and repeat it.

In this manner, the vocabulary would be slowly expanded, with emphasis from the therapist on the child's inability to hear as rapidly as normal children or remember the order in which sounds were heard.

Therapists have found that once some form of communication is established with a child—words, pictures, objects—he grows increasingly responsive and eager to learn.

Eisenson said some inability to speak may stem from psychological defenses erected at an early age when a child first encountered difficulty understanding adults.

"The defenses may arise because the child is confronted with tasks which are beyond his coping ability at a given stage in his development," he said. "A child who has developed such defenses needs to be enticed back to exposure to speech and to his involvement with speech and with speakers."

Although the assets of the Plant Fund are owned directly by Pitt County and not by Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Inc., both funds have been included in the above balance sheet in order to present a complete picture of the total operation.

Not shown in the above statement are amounts necessary to properly fund the hospital retirement plan for prior years' service. This amount is estimated to be approximately $150,000.

We have examined the balance sheet of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Inc., of Greenville, North Carolina, as of September 30, 1970. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the accompanying balance sheet presents fairly the financial position of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Inc., of Greenville, North Carolina, at September 30, 1970, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Second Part Set Friday

The second two parts of Sir Kenneth Clark's color film, "Civilization", will be shown Friday night at 8:00 p.m. in the auditorium of the School of Nursing Building at East Carolina University and again at 3:15 Sunday at the same place. Dr. Francis W. Speight, coordinator of the North Carolina State Art Society sponsored project noted that the film, produced by the British Broadcasting Company, covers a showing period of about 13 hours. It will be shown each weekend on campus through the first week-end in April.

This week-end, parts 3 and 4 will be shown. These are entitled "Romance and Reality," which covers the 13th century with the emergency of woman as an ideal; and "Man—The Measure of All Things," centering on art and life in Italy in the early 15th century.

A near capacity crowd appeared for the showing of the first two parts Friday night. In the event the present auditorium proves to be not large enough, a large place for showing will be arranged and announced to the public.

Uncle Sam as part of the family," said Curtis M. Graves. "But now I think of repression and surveillance and miscarriages of justice ..."

In testimony prepared for the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, headed by Sam Ervin, D-N.C., Graves recounted he recently learned from a former agent of the 112th Military Intelligence Group that he was a snooping target.

Graves said Walter Birdwell of Houston advised him "Army Intelligence has had me under surveillance since about 1960," and maintained extensive records on him in a "submersive file."

Birdwell also told him, said Graves, others in the 112th's Houston file included Texas State Sen. Barbara Jordan, boxer Muhammad Ali, attorneys Ben Levy, James Hippard and Will Gray, members of the Ku Klux Klan and a number of anti-war activists.

Birdwell reported seeing "a card file on every member of the Unitarian Church in San Antonio," Graves said, and records on Black Muslims included such personal matters as surgical histories.

As for his own case, Graves said he apparently was marked for surveillance while participating in 1960 sit-ins at Houston, aimed at desegregation of public accommodations.

Even so, he said, it was six years before he was first tipped by a high official in the Catholic church in Houston.

Thereafter, he said, it became obvious his telephone was tapped, and crudely. Sometimes after making a call "I could not get another dial tone ... for several minutes."

After his 1966 election to the state legislature, said Graves, "I noticed several times too many microphones were on platforms where I was speaking."

In one such case in 1969, he said, the unaccountable microphone had a cord running under the wall to an adjoining room, but "we couldn't get to the other side."

Graves said he suspected the monitoring was conducted by political enemies or perhaps the police until he heard from Birdwell.

"I understand the secretary of defense said that civilians will maintain the surveillance of subversives," said Graves. "My gut reaction is that Secretary Laird is trying to snow the American public."

In any case, he said, the FBI and state and local law enforcement agencies "have been passing on their information concerning private and public citizens to armed forces intelligence for years."

"I literally have lost faith in this country as a result of the information that I have found out in the past several weeks. My wife grew seriously ill following the disclosure that the Army had us under surveillance," Graves said.

"If this country does not have faith in its public officials, then just where are we?"

Ayden, Oak City Claim Tourney Wins

Making Their Plans

Ayden Coach Bob Murphrey talks to his players during a time out in last night's quarterfinals game in the District One, Class A Basketball Tournament at Williamston. The Tornados downed Mattamuskeet, 62-52, to advance to the semifinals against Oak City tonight. (Reflector Photo)

Williamston Wins, Conley Is Defeated

AHOSKIE — Williamston High School advanced to the semifinals of the District One, Class 2-A Basketball Tournament last night, but D. H. Conley was eliminated.

Williamston downed Gates County, 59-53, to move up, but Conley was bested by Northampton, 75-71.

Tonight, the semifinals pit Williamston against North Pitt in the first game, while Ahoskie and Northampton collide in the other. The finals will be Friday night at 8 p.m.

In the opener, Northampton pushed out into the lead in the first period, outshooting the Vikings, 20-14. But the Rams couldn't hold on, and Conley came back with a 19-15 edge in the second frame, cutting the lead to 35-33 at the intermission. Northampton held off any further Conley rally, however, outshooting the Vikings, 16-15, in the third period. That upped the score to 51-48. Northampton again outshot Conley by one, 24-23, to wrap up the win.

Louis Stevenson led Northampton with 24 points, while Gary Garris had 14 and Jimmy Wheelless had 13.

Conley was led by Dwight Hawkins with 21, while William Roundtree had 20, David Pugh had 15 and Bryant Hines had 10.

Williamston pulled out into a 14-9 lead in the first period of play, but had to fight to hold onto the lead by the end of the half. Gates came back with a 16-12 edge in the second period, and the Tiger lead fell off to just 26-25 at halftime.

In the third period, the Tigers managed to get a little more breathing room, outscoring Gates, 16-13. That gave Williamston a 42-38 lead as the final period opened. Williamston again outshot Gates, 17-15, to hang on for the win.

Raymond Andrews led Williamston with 20 points, while Dwight Ange had 14 and Henry Jenkins had 13.

Gates was paced by W. C. Jordan with 17, while Donnie Umphlett and Philip Porter each had 15 points.

Farmville Is Handed Defeat

WHEAT SWAMP — Farmville's Red Devils were eliminated from the District Two, Class 3-A Tournament last night, as they fell to Cape Fear, 82-69.

The victory advances Cape Fear into tonight's semi-final battle against North Lenoir. In the other game, Greene Central takes on Northern Nash.

Cape Fear pulled away early and never lost the lead in its game. They outshot Farmville, 16-8, in the first period of play. Farmville tried for a comeback in the second quarter, outshooting Cape Fear, 14-12, but it didn't do much good. The Red Devils found themselves still trailing, 28-22 at the half.

The action speeded up in the second half for both teams. Cape Fear tossed in 27 points, but Farmville could manage but 20. That upped the lead to 55-42 as the last frame got underway. In that, Cape Fear and Farmville matched points, both scoring 27, to set up the final 13-point finish.

Eddie Taylor led Cape Fear with 27 points, while Wayne Stewart had 17, Neill Leslie had 14 and Cleo Darden had 13.

Farmville was led by McCoy Williams with 22, while Robert Tripp had 20 and Connie Tripp had 14.

Bucks Insure Best Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's a long way from the playoffs and Milwaukee hasn't won the title yet—but the Bucks can still claim they're the best in the National Basketball Association.

The Bucks, going from streak to streak all season, captured their 13th straight victory and 58th in 60 games this season with a 139-104 blasting of San Diego Wednesday night. Thus, with 13 games remaining in regular-season play, they assured themselves of the best record in the league.

New York's champion Knicks improved their second-best NBA record to 44-26 with a 125-105 thrashing of Cincinnati. In other games Boston bounced Los Angeles 116-96, Atlanta tripped Portland 118-107, San Francisco nipped Detroit 117-115 and Seattle ripped Cleveland 123-101.

In the American Basketball Association the New York Nets bombed Pittsburgh 134-108, Kentucky whipped Memphis 126-115, Indiana beat Texas 117-113, the Floridians edged Denver 112-110 and Carolina outlasted Virginia 144-137 in overtime.

San Diego stayed within striking distance, trailing only 62-53 at the half, before the Bucks went to work, pulling away by 16 points after three periods, then bombing in 40 points in the final stanza.

Elvin Hayes of the Rockets and Lew Alcindor of Milwaukee played to a virtual standoff with the Big E winning the scoring battle 23-20 and the Big A outrebounding Hayes 13-11. It was Bob Dandridge's 33 points that made the difference.

New York held a slim 80-79 lead late in the third period before Dave DeBusschere and Bill Bradley went to work with deadly outside shooting as the Knicks erupted for 39 fourth-quarter points. Walt Frazier topped the winners with 26 points and Bradley added 24 and DeBusschere 18 while Cincinnati's Flynn Robinson topped everyone with 29.

WILLIAMSTON — The Ayden Tornados dried up the Mattamuskeet Lakers, and the Oak City Trojans bid Knapp knightly-knight, in the first round of play in the District One, Class A Tournament last night.

Ayden polished off Mattamuskeet, 62-52, while the Trojans bopped Knapp, 64-53, to advance to the tourney's semifinals. Those will be played tonight. In the opening game at 7 p. m., Columbia and Robersonville tangle, while Oak City and Ayden meet at 8:30 p. m. The survivors meet Friday at 8 p. m. in the finals.

Oak City's height and board control was the chief factor in its victory over the Knights, who were bothered by cool shooting most of the way. The game was tight throughout most of the first half, but Oak City pulled away in the third period to rack up the win.

The Trojans put in a basket off the tap as Mervin Duggins scored. William Raynor followed with a free throw for a 3-0 lead before Knapp got going. But when they did, the Knights came back for the lead. Hallett Chatman hit two in a row for a 4-3 lead, and a steal by James Lassiter upped the lead to three. It was the last for the Knights, however.

Donnie Duggins cut it to one with a jumper, then hit again to push Oak City back on top, and they never trailed again. Knapp tied it at 9-9 on a shot by Chatman, but Raynor edged out the Trojans again, and they held a 12-11 lead at the end of the period.

In the second frame, Knapp tied it up two more times, at 14-14 and 16-16. But from there, Oak City pulled away to as much as a seven point spread. Howard Peele broke the final tie, and Mervin Duggins added a free throw. Raynor hit on a pair and Edward Briley followed with a basket for a 23-16 edge with 3:51 left.

Knapp came back again, however, and sliced it back to two. They got two goals on goaltending charges against Oak City to get them started, and with 18 seconds left, Chatman hit to cut the lead to 30-28 at intermission.

But in the third period, Oak City began to pull away for good, going out into as much as a 14-point spread. They slowly increased the margin to 10, that coming when Raynor scored with 40 seconds left to make it 45-35. He was fouled on the shot, but missed the free throw. Briley grabbed off the loose ball and put it through for a 12-point edge. Raynor then hit again with one second showing for a 49-35 edge at the end of the quarter.

Knapp managed to nip it back to as little as seven in the final period, but really offered no real threat.

Raynor finished with 25 points for the Trojans, while Mervin Duggins had 11 and Donnie Duggins had 10. For Knapp, Chatman had 24 and James Lassiter had 10.

The Tornados also proved to be too much for Mattamuskeet on the boards, and the Lakers got little consistent shooting. Only one scorer hit double figures for Mattamuskeet, although they stayed within striking distance until early in the final period.

Ayden led all the way. Danny Garris gave them the lead, and Ken Cleaton upped it to 3-0 with a free throw. Slowly, Ayden built up an eight-point spread in the first period, and held that margin, 18-10, as the horn blew.

In the second frame, Ayden found itself held off the scoreboard from the floor about all the way. They got only one field goal, that coming on a turnaround jumper by Pat Finnigan with 1:18 left in the half. But the Tornados still held to the lead, despite this. They got seven free throws in the period, five of them by Finnigan, to stay ahead. Mattamuskeet did manage to cut the lead back to two, however, while Ayden was struggling to score from the floor.

Freddie O'Neal hit a pair of free throws and Dick Tunnell hit to cut the gap to four. Later O'Neal got another free throw that cut it to three, and a free throw by Tunnell with 1:58 left cut the lead to two, 22-20.

But Finnigan hit from the line twice, then got his jumper and added another free throw with 22 seconds left for a 27-20 halftime lead.

In the third period, Ayden built its lead to as much as 11 points as Finnigan continued to dominate the game. Knapp, who got fine scoring from Tunnell, however, came back to cut the lead to six at the end of the period, 41-35.

Sam O'Neal hit two free throws to cut the lead to four at 41-37 in the first seven seconds of play, but after that, Ayden streaked away to a 13-point lead, scoring nine straight points. Cleaton hit first, and Finnigan got a free throw. Willie Stuart and Finnigan both got baskets and Stuart added a pair of free throws for a 50-37 lead that broke the Lakers' back. They managed to come back to within eight after that, but Ayden held the game in check and moved on to the semi-finals.

Finnigan finished with 25,

East Carolina Matmen Chase Southern Title

East Carolina University's wrestlers head for Williamsburg, Va. this weekend for the Southern Conference wrestling championships, with hopes of pulling off an upset over defending champ William & Mary.

The Pirates went to Williamsburg last weekend and were beaten by the Indians in a dual meet. But Coach John Welborn doesn't feel that this means the Indians will win the title.

"Last year, we beat them in a dual meet, and they still won the championship. I'm hoping that things will reverse themselves this time," he said. "I believe we still have a good chance to take the title, but it's going to take a good effort."

Welborn said he was not real down because of the loss. "We'll readjust some of our weights to a better advantage, and I think it's really a tossup. Of course, they'll have a little advantage because of home court and crowd, but I don't think it'll be that great."

Of the ten events in the meet, Welborn feels that William & Mary and East Carolina will carry eight to 10 each into the finals. "It'll probably be about like another dual meet," he said.

Welborn ran down each of his potential candidates for each class.

while Stuart had 15. For Mattamuskeet, Tunnell had 25.

Loud Finish Set For Bucs

There will be a loud ending to the basketball season at East Carolina University this Saturday night.

You see it will be "Noise Night" at Minges Coliseum when the Pirates close out their regular season against The Citadel. Tipoff time is 8 p.m. with a freshman preliminary between the Baby Bucs and Evans Business School of Durham set for 5:45 p.m.

"Noise Night" will feature competition between two large groups — the Greeks and the Body — to determine which can sustain the loudest cheering throughout the contest. The Greeks include all fraternity and sorority members and their dates, while the Body will be made up from all other segments of the campus population.

"We are going to present the first annual Vocal Chords Award to the winning group," said Noise Night Chairman Sonny Lea. "It will be the most ridiculous looking plaque you've ever seen."

"Also, all students who attend the game will receive free passes to a big combo dance at the Music Factory in Greenville following the game," said Lea, who anticipates one of the biggest student turnouts ever for the contest.

The game itself should produce some fireworks since both ECU and The Citadel are in a battle with William & Mary for second place in the Southern Conference. If Richmond should upset William & Mary (presently 6-3 in SC play) Saturday night, it will mean that the ECU-Citadel winner would finish second and thus would meet VMI, the league's last place team, in the first round of the SC Tournament which begins March 4 in the Charlotte Coliseum.

Coach Tom Quinn's Pirates presently own a 6-4 conference mark, the same at The Citadel. The Bulldogs, coached by Dick Campbell, walloped ECU two weeks ago down in Charleston, S.C., by a 81-57 score. So the Quinn Men have revenge as a motive Saturday night in addition to the second place goal.

Except for the scramble between William & Mary, The Citadel and East Carolina for second, third and fourth, the SC final standings are set. Davidson (9-1) is the repeat champion, while Furman (5-5) is fifth, Richmond (3-8 with one game left) is sixth and VMI (1-11) seventh.

In the tourney, Davidson will receive a first-round bye. The No. 2 team will meet VMI, No. 3 will face Richmond and No. 4 will play Furman. East Carolina has finished second the last two seasons.

At 118, is Greenville's Ron Williams, who has posted a 10-3-1 record this year. He is the North Carolina Collegiate champion in the class. "His only conference loss was to the fellow from William & Mary who won the title three straight years, but Ronnie still has a good chance to beat him," Welborn said.

Dan Monroe will be in the 126-pound class. He holds a 15-4 record for the year. "He should be favored to win this event," the coach said.

At 134 is Steve Morgan, who is 16-2. "He was runner-up, last year, and he and the William & Mary wrestler have beaten each other in two meetings this year, so it's a real toss-up."

There is a little uncertainty in the 152, 150 and 158-pound classes. Any one of several wrestlers could fit into these classes.

Mike Spohn could go at any one of the three. He has 18-3 this year and is the defending 158-pound champ, and the state champ at 150. "He's a definite threat in any one of these classes," Welborn said.

Also there are Robert Corbo, 8-

2, who was second last year, and could go at 142 or 150. John Carroll, 3-5, is another who could fit into these two classes, and Welborn feels his record is not indicative of his ability.

Roger Ingalls, 10-3, and Bruce Hall, 9-2, are possibilities at the 150 or 158 class, and Welborn feels that each of them could pull off an upset victory.

At 167 will be Bill Hill, 10-5-1, who is the state champ, and will be a definite threat for the Southern title.

Tim Gay, 16-1-1, can go either at 177 or 190, while Joe Daversa, 9-6, will fill in at the other. Welborn feels Gay is a definite title contender.

Mark Pohren will handle the heavyweight class. His 11-2 record will probably make him the conference favorite.

Competition in the meet gets underway Friday, and concludes Saturday night.

Duquesne, Louisville Fall To Unranked Fives

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Maybe it was the altitude that upset Duquesne and Louisville. But South Carolina and LaSalle didn't seem to mind it.

The Dukes, with a height advantage on the floor as well as in The Associated Press college basketball rankings—eighth against unrated Boston College—couldn't keep the Eagles from flying away to a 67-52 victory Wednesday night.

And Louisville, holding down the 15th spot in the poll, was unable to hold down Cincinnati's unlisted Bearcats, who squeezed out a 79-78 triumph.

But seventh-ranked South Carolina had little trouble shattering Wake Forest's zone defense to destroy the Deacons 84-64 and No. 14 LaSalle clamped the lid on American University to win 62-54.

In other major action, Miami of Ohio overpowered Xavier of Ohio 86-72. Duke held off North Carolina State 82-78. St. Bonaventure crushed St. Francis, N.Y., 105-65 and Toledo upset Western Michigan 81-66.

Boston College, countering Duquesne's height advantage by keeping the middle clear, rode backcourt ace Jimmy O'Brien's 18 first-half points to a 30-19 intermission lead, then kept the Dukes from getting closer than eight points to snap their 15-game victory skein. O'Brien finished with 22 points for scoring honors.

Sophomore Greg Jursisin scored Cincinnati's decisive point on a free throw with 17 seconds to play while Steve Wenderfer supplied the punch with 29 points and 19 rebounds to cut the Cards.

South Carolina retired John Roche's No. 11 uniform and Wake Forest responded by overplaying the Gamecocks' star, who turned playmaker to help his teammates roll up a 46-37 halftime lead on the outside shooting of Rick Aydtlett and Bob Carver.

The SC triumph, led by Tom Owens' 25 points and 18 rebounds, enabled the Gamecocks to finish their season at home undefeated with an 11-0 mark. They're 18-4 over-all.

LaSalle was without scoring leader Ken Durrett, sidelined with a knee injury, so Bobby Fields took over and hit a game-high 22 points.

The Explorers held the ball and rolled up 11 free throws and a pair of field goals in the final 12 minutes of play to clip the Eagles' wings.

Miami's Jerry Sears hit 17 of his 26 points and Larry Garloch scored 20 as the Redskins broke a 59-59 tie midway in the second half to roll to their 10th straight triumph and the Mid-America Conference title. Jerry Helmers had 26 for Xavier.

Duke's Blue Devils stormed to a 41-28 halftime lead and held a comfortable margin until the Wolfpack clawed back within three points before time ran out.

Rick Katherman topped the winners with 21.

St. Francis was no match for the Bonnies, who raced to a 52-27 lead in the opening 20 minutes and kept up their unrelenting attack the rest of the way. Mike McDermott's 26 points topped the Terriers but St. Bonaventure countered with 23 points by Jack Jackson and 22 by Greg Gary.

Western Michigan's setback gave Miami the Mid-America title and it was the 24 points by Toledo's Tom Kozelko and 18 by Bill Chapman that busted the Broncos. Jim Patterson had 23 for the losers.

In other games, Air Force rode Ron Weiler's 20 points to a 74-70 come-from-behind victory over Regis. Will Robinson scored a career-high 45 points to lift West Virginia from a 48-41 deficit to a 101-89 romp over Penn State. Stan Grayson's career-high 35 points and 22 rebounds enabled Holy Cross to pummel Georgetown 109-72. Davidson bombarded VMI early to cruise past the Keydets 109-64 and Missouri, whose Big Eight game was delayed twice by the snowstorm in the Midwest, used Greg Flaker's eight free throws to eke out a 69-67 overtime victory against Oklahoma State.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
New York is running up the score in American Basketball Association play, but there's no Net gain in the Eastern Division standings today.

The Nets, led by Rick Barry, got an early jump on Pittsburgh Wednesday night, surged ahead by 42 points in the late stages and drubbed the Condors 134-108 for their sixth victory in seven games.

But the surging New York club remained wedged between second place Kentucky and fourth place Carolina in the East as the Colonels and Cougars each came from behind to win.

Carolina outlasted Virginia 144-137 in overtime behind the clutch shooting of Bob Verga and the Colonels put on a third quarter spur to overtake Memphis 126-115.

The Nets are 3½ games behind Kentucky and 2½ games ahead of Carolina in the scramble for playoff spots.

Elsewhere, the Floridians ripped Denver 112-110 on Mack Calvin's buzzer shot and Indiana shaded Texas 117-113.

In the National Basketball Association, Boston topped Los Angeles 116-96, New York trimmed Cincinnati 125-105, Milwaukee crushed San Diego 139-104, Atlanta downed Portland 118-107, San Francisco edged Detroit 117-115 and Seattle whipped Cleveland 123-101.

Barry scored 35 points in 37 minutes, hitting for 23 in the first half as the Nets drew away. John Brisker topped the Condors with 21.

Verga tallied seven of his 29 points in overtime for the Cougars, who rallied in the fourth quarter to knot it 124-124 at the end of regulation play. Charlie Scott of Virginia was high man with 31 points.

Lou Dampier put in 14 points in the third quarter as Kentucky outscored the Pros 37-11 in one stretch to overcome a six-point halftime deficit. Dampier finished with 32 points. Steve Jones had 23 for Memphis.

Calvin's 18-foot jump shot beat the clock and the Rockets at Jacksonville, Fla. He wound up with 23 points, two more than teammate Larry Jones. Larry Cannon paced Denver with 25.

Four free throws by little Bill Keller in the final nine seconds sealed Indiana's victory over the Chaparrals. Mel Daniels led the Pacers' attack with 27 points. Gene Moore and Joe Hamilton had 29 and 28, respectively, for Texas.

Adrian Out For Southern Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Bryan Adrian won't be available to the Davidson Wildcats when they open defense of their Southern Conference basketball title next week, and if the Wildcats shoot like they did Wednesday night against VMI, the floppy-haired sharpshooter may not be needed.

Davidson, which has won the regular season conference championship, shot 67 per cent from the floor against the Keydets, who fell to 1-24 over-all, the worst record among major college basketball teams.

Eric Minkin sparked the winners with 24 points while Lee Seibert and Jerry Renfro had 15 apiece for VMI.

The injury-plagued Adrian and Coach Terry Holland decided earlier this week that there was not enough time for Adrian to play himself back into effective physical condition for the tournament.

A preseason knee injury required surgery and shelved Adrian for most of the season. He played in only six of the Wildcats' first 24 games and only briefly in two of those.

A year ago he averaged 20 points and was the leading scorer on a team that included the big three of Mike Maloy, Doug Cook and Jerry Kroll.

In tonight's only conference activity, Richmond plays at George Washington.

Industrial In Tourney Openers

Wachovia Bank and State Highway advanced in play in the Industrial Basketball League Tournament last night. Wachovia sat down WNCT, 81-47, while State Highway beat Vermont American, 91-39.

Wachovia now meets regular season champ Fieldcrest Monday at 7 p.m., while State Highway takes on National Cash Register at 8:15. The finals will be played next Wednesday.

In the opening game, Wachovia pushed out into a 41-21 lead in the first half and was never in any trouble. They outthit WNCT again in the second half, 40-26, to win it handily.

Walter Jones led Wachovia with 23 points, while Bill Baggett had 19 and Terry Sparrow and Jerry Smith each had 10. Glynn Collins led WNCT with 16, while Dave Chadwick had 13 and Gene Hudson had 12.

In the other game, State Highway also wasted no time in pulling away with the lead. They shot out to a 43-21 lead in the first half. They again put down Vermont American, 48-18, in the second half, for the easy victory.

Smith Worthington led State Highway with 23 points, while Lindsay Hardee had 18, Phil Page and Clyde Elks had 15 each and John Crewford had 11. For Vermont American, McGowan had 14 and James had 12.

McCauley, DuPont Teague Winners

HIGH POINT, N. C. (AP) — University of North Carolina football star Don McCauley and tennis star Laura DuPont, also a student at UNC-Chapel Hill, have been chosen for the Teague Awards designating them as the state's outstanding male and female athletes of 1970.

McCauley, Tar Heel fullback who led the nation in rushing last season, is from Garden City, Long Island. Miss DuPont, of Charlotte, won the national collegiate tennis championship and is nationally ranked.

Their selection was announced Wednesday by Edward N. Post, AAU-Teague Award chairman, and Jack Lynch, North Carolina AAU president. Voting was by members of the state's sports news media.

They will be honored at the AAU Teague Awards banquet March 6 in High Point. High Point Mayor Robert Davis and Charlotte Mayor John Belk will make the presentations.

The only winner selected last year was University of North Carolina basketball star Charlie Scott, who now plays for the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association.

The award is named for the late Judge Lewis E. Teague of High Point, a cofounder of the AAU section in 1935. The awards began in 1938.

Hallow's Gets City Upset Win

Coffman's and Hallow's Distributors advanced to the semifinals of the City Basketball League tournament last night with victories in the first round.

Coffman's sat down College View, 121-47, while Hallow's upset Big Value of Farmville, 66-52. Coffman's now meets Book Exchange Monday at 8:15 p.m., while Hallow's takes on Coca-Cola at 7 p.m.

In the opener, Hallow's pushed out into a 31-27 lead in the first half of play. They slowly drew away from Big Value in the second half, outthitting them, 35-26, to take the victory and advance in the tourney.

Bill Clark led Hallow's with 19 points, while George Rhems had 18, Charles Rogers and Ted Whitely had 10 each. Big Value was led by Charles Purvis with 15, while John Briley had 12 and Eddie Evans had 10.

Coffman's effectively polished off College View in the first half of play, outscoring them, 57-16. They did it again, outthitting the losers, 62-21, to wrap it up.

Gene Rackley led Coffman's with 32 points, while Larry Graham had 26, Bill Taylor had 23, Joe Gaddis had 15, and Gary Hess had 11. For College View, Roger Moore had 25 and Rudy Peeden had 10.

Gamecocks Whip Deacons, 84-64

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The seventh-ranked South Carolina Gamecocks have finished their home basketball season by winning all 11 games, the latest 84-64 over an improving Wake Forest team.

The No. 11 jersey of South Carolina's All-America John Roche was retired in a ceremony before the game Wednesday in Columbia. Wake Forest overplayed Roach and he turned playmaker with seven assists and only 12 points. His teammate, Tom Owens, had 25 points and 19 rebounds.

Charlie Davis, star of the Wake Forest Deacons, whose No. 12 jersey will be retired this season, scored 16 points in the first half despite a sticky man-to-man defense by Bob Carver. Davis added only four points in the second half as South Carolina went to a zone defense.

South Carolina is now 8-4 in the Atlantic Coast Conference and 18-4 in all games. Wake Forest is 5-6 and 14-8. Wake Forest had won its last three previous games in the league.

There was one other game for ACC teams Wednesday, in which Duke held off rallying home team North Carolina State to win 82-78.

The Blue Devils were ahead by 13 points at the half and maintained a comfortable lead until the Wolfpack, led by Ed Leftwich and Dan Walls, rallied to within three points twice in the final minute.

Rick Katherman made 13 of Duke's first 17 points and was the game's high scorer with 21. Paul Coder had 17 points for N.C. State.

Duke is 7-5 in the conference and N.C. State is 5-7.

Conference teams are idle tonight and there is only one game Friday, Wake Forest at Clemson.

Hunt Denies Illegal Pacts

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A United States Lawn Tennis Association official says Lamar Hunt's Dallas-based World Championship Tennis, Inc. is signing illegal contracts with tennis promoters using "cloak-and-dagger tactics."

Lamar Hunt says hogwash. Bill Riordan, player coordinator for the USLTA, earlier this week attacked Hunt and the WCT saying, "Emissaries of Lamar Hunt are going around holding clandestine meetings, signing cloak-and-dagger contracts that are in absolute conflict with rules of the International Lawn Tennis Federation."

"I thought what he said was way out of line," Hunt said Wednesday at a news conference promoting one of WCT's 20 World Championship of Tennis tournaments. "In the first place, World Championship Tennis is not under the jurisdiction of the ILTF."

Hunt, also owner of the Kansas City Chiefs football team, has 32 of the world's top tennis players. WCT guarantees certain players will compete in their tournaments.

WCT public relations director Ron Bookman said, "We very definitely are signing contracts with promoters, but there's nothing illegal about it. The tournaments want the best players, the promoters come to us to provide the players and we do so on a guarantee basis. We have no reason to be secret or have cloak-and-dagger methods."

Hunt said Riordan could be upset because WCT did not provide the players he wanted for a tournament Riordan was promoting in Salisbury, Md.

"He completely misrepresented our negotiations with him," Hunt said. "We're not interested in hurting the tournament at Salisbury. We want it to succeed. If we hurt tennis, we hurt World Championship Tennis, Inc."

"He (Riordan) wanted all of our top players and it just wasn't possible to give him all of them at that time."

Riordan said that WCT could not sustain itself by playing each other every week. "They need an international flavor."

"If we played in the same city each tournament, that might be so," Hunt said. "But we're playing in different places. And as for the international flavor, we play 20 tournaments in 10 countries and we have 12 or 13 countries represented among our players."

Blacks Coming On In Golfing

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Pete Brown, the lone black man in the field of 146 pros who began play today in the PGA golf championship, doesn't feel that his cause is completely hopeless.

"Some day a black man will crash through and win a major championship," said the 36-year-old son of a Mississippi sharecropper. "Then things will be different."

"Most of the black kids who are good athletes are going into football, baseball and basketball—even tennis. They've got heroes they can relate to."

"But not golf. There are no stars, so kids are looking elsewhere."

Brown, a strapping 6-foot-1 and 180 pounds with a thick mustache and a row of ivory-white teeth, is not so brash as to say he's the man who will do the trick.

"I'm not sure it will come from the present negroes most active on the tour," he said. "Charlie Sifford, who has worked so hard to break the barriers, is 48. Lee Elder is 36."

"But Jim Dent, from Los Angeles, just came out of the PGA school. He is only 26, a big man about 6-3 and 225 pounds. I think he hits the ball farther than anybody on the tour. He might do it."

"Then there's Curtis Sifford, Charlie's nephew, who is 26. Charles Owens and George Johnson are fine golfers."

Brown's own credentials are impressive.

Born in Mississippi, the son of a sharecropper and carpenter, he caddied on a municipal course at 13. His family moved to Detroit and later to Los Angeles.

In 1956, he was stricken with polio. He lost control of his senses and was unable to move or speak for a year. Then he fought back and regained much of his muscular control, although he still must take special exercises.

He started on the pro tour in 1962. In 1963, he won only $920. He won $56,069 in 1970, including first prize in the Andy Williams event at San Diego where he beat Tony Jacklin in a playoff.

"I get along great with all the guys on the tour," Brown said. "Arnold Palmer even asked me to practice with him this week. So did Gary Player. We're one big happy family."

Pentagon Sees More ARVN Troops Sent To Laos

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Additional thousands of South Vietnamese troops may be sent into Laos in the coming weeks before the U.S.-backed drive against enemy supply routes is ended, say Pentagon sources.

In the days before the Laotian offensive began Feb. 8, 22,000 South Vietnamese troops were reported moved into position for the assault. But only 10,200 have been used so far in Laos, U.S. officials indicate, with the remainder in reserve in South Vietnam.

During a news conference Wednesday, in which secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird denied Saigon's drive was bogged down, a top general said only "the first portion" of the plan to disrupt enemy supply lines had been accomplished. Asked if this was a hint of more extensive or deeper South Vietnamese operations in Laos, Pentagon sources said it could be expected that additional large numbers of troops would be quickly brought into position by helicopters once the North Vietnamese response was determined.

According to Lt. Gen. John Vogt, director of the joint military staff, the North Vietnamese have moved six new regiments into the Laotian panhandle area to join 15,000 combat troops already there. Each regiment at full strength numbers about 1,500 men.

Although the enemy has yet to strike in force, Vogt said, "he has given every indication of his intent to fight."

Neither Vogt nor Laird spelled out how the allied forces would respond. She added: "There seems to be an impatience on the part of a great many people to have an operation achieve total success in two weeks ..."

"Nobody in his fondest dreams ever hoped we would achieve all the objectives in the first two weeks."

The general insisted the North Vietnamese had not stopped the South Vietnamese advance along highway 9, the key east-west highway into Laos where lead elements of Saigon's forces have been sitting for seven days about 17 miles from the border. "The decision to pause at this particular point was made because of a desire to assess the enemy reaction at this time, where he did intend to attack," Vogt said.

Might Recall Road Projects

RALEIGH (AP) — Four interstate highway projects in North Carolina put under contract this week may have to be called back and readvertised because of President Nixon's order suspending a requirement that union wages be paid on federally funded construction projects.

State Highway Administrator George Willoughby received Wednesday a letter from T. J. Morawski, local administrator of the Federal Highway Administration, outlining the new policy.

Morawski wrote, "We have been advised that bids are not to be opened on projects which are advertised, that all contracts which have not been awarded are not to be awarded, and that all contracts which have not been executed are not to be executed."

A spokesman for the Highway Commission, Gibson Prather, said Morawski's letter apparently means the state must readvertise four projects let to contract Tuesday.

Three of the projects are for stretches of Interstate 77 in Iredell and Yadkin Counties and one is for 4.7 miles of Interstate 40, the new Research Triangle Expressway from Nelson northwest to Durham.

Nixon Tuesday suspended the Davis-Bacon Act, which required the federal government — or state and local government paying for construction projects with federal aid — to pay the highest union scale on contracts.

Under the order, the government will now advertise the projects to pay the lowest wages they can under competitive bidding.

Prather said Gov. Bob Scott, who is in Washington at the National Governor's Conference, has been informed of the situation.

"We're hoping to be able to convince officials in the Federal Highway Administration that since our projects were awarded in the morning Tuesday and the president's order was made in the afternoon, that we should be exempted this time," Prather said.

Superintendents At Greenville Seminar

About 35 public school superintendents from 17 eastern North Carolina counties were in Greenville last week for a seminar, co-sponsored by the East Carolina University School of Education and the ECU Division of Continuing Education.

The seminar, held Feb. 18 at the Greenville Golf and Country Club featured panel discussions on the topic "Accountability." Superintendents who participated in panel discussions included:

Charles Davis, Kinston City Schools; Marjorie Moore, Lenoir County Schools; Richard Collins, Rocky Mount City Schools; Thomas Davis, Carteret County Schools; and Samuel Carson, Martin County School.

Dr. Edward Carter and Dr. Ralph Brimley, professors in the ECU School of Education, moderated the discussion and presented a report on an evaluation project.

Names and school systems of superintendents who attended the seminar include:

GREENE COUNTY — George S. Taylor, supt., Greene Co. MARTIN COUNTY — Samuel Carson, coord. projects-eval., Martin Co. and R. Eugene Rogers, Martin Co.

PITT COUNTY — C. C. Cleetwood, Greenville City, Charles M. Dickens Director Title I, Greenville City, and Dr. W. C. Sanderson, Dr. Keith C. Hudson, Dr. Edward Carter, Dr. Douglas R. Jones, Dr. Ralph Brimley and Dr. Robert Brown, East Carolina University.

Joint Financing Plans Aired At Area Meeting

Plans for the Farmers Home Administration and Federal Land Bank to supply jointly long term real estate financing for farm families were outlined for a 28 county area of the state at a meeting on Monday.

State, district and county staff members of the administration met with a group of Land Bank officials from Columbia, S.C., and their Land Bank and Production Credit Association representatives in Goldsboro.

The two groups, headed by the administration's state director James T. Johnson, and Federal Land Bank of Columbia and Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Columbia president Robert A. Darr, discussed procedures for processing loan applications from the same borrower.

Their working arrangement will carry out an agreement signed recently in Washington, D.C. by national FHA administrator James V. Smith, and Governor E. A. Janke of the Farm Credit Administration on cooperation in lending between the two agencies.

Under the plan, the agencies are allowed to make simultaneous FHA farm ownership loans and long term real estate loans to the same borrower with each loan secured by the same property.

The Land Bank will hold their first mortgage on the farm, FHA subordinating its mortgage to the Land Bank lien.

In a joint statement, Johnson and Darr said, "By simultaneously serving different elements of the farmers' financing requirements, our agencies can help assure more capable, diligent small farm families an opportunity to work their way to success on their own farms."

They noted that "we will be able to serve many families, particularly young farmers, who otherwise might not qualify for credit from either agency."

Federal Land Bank, Federal Land Bank Association and other units of the cooperative farm credit system are all farmer owned. They are supervised by the Farm Credit Administration, an independent Federal agency. The Bank is represented locally by Hackney High.

The FHA, a rural credit agency of the United States Department of Agriculture, makes or participates in real estate lending up to a debt limit of $100,000 to farmers who cannot fulfill their needs through other sources of credit.

Experiencing New Baby Boom

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States is experiencing its "second postwar baby boom—an echo of the first," says a University of Chicago sociologist who is a population expert.

"Beginning with about October, 1968, the number of births each month has been greater than the same month in the preceding year," Dr. Philip M. Hauser said in a speech Wednesday.

He said women born in the baby boom after World War II are now entering reproductive age and the number of fertile women in the 20-to-29 age group will increase by 35 per cent by 1975.

Scott Aide Sentenced

RALEIGH (AP) — For Ben Roney, an administrative assistant to Gov. Bob Scott, the third time was not the charm.

Roney went into Wake County District Court Wednesday for the third time, prepared to face a charge of misdemeanor hit-and-run driving.

Twice before since the Nov. 30 parking lot incident, the state had failed to produce its key witness and was forced to ask for continuances.

Wednesday the witness, L. E. Holton, showed up to testify and Roney was convicted of backing into Holton's parked car and leaving the scene.

Judge George Bason sentenced Roney to 30 days in jail, suspended on condition that he pay a $100 fine plus costs.

Roney's attorney contended that his client had slipped a note regarding the accident under Holton's door, giving full details. Holton testified that he had called police from his service station to report the accident, but that he was later informed by his maid that she found the note earlier in the day Roney and Holton said they believed the damage to Holton's car to be less than $100, the amount set by law for reporting an accident to police.

Claims Reagan Curbing College

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — President S. I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State College says the school will have to padlock a nearly completed $7.5 million biology science building under economy measures proposed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

"It is another example of people with no real concern for education making educational policy decisions," Hayakawa said Wednesday at a news conference.

The 1971-72 budget drafted by Reagan's Department of Finance eliminates money for equipment and supplies for the building.

Hayakawa said he had sent letters to 100 junior colleges recruiting biology students just two days before Reagan announced his budget trimming state college funds.

Comment was not available from the office of Reagan, who is attending a governors conference in Washington.

Sculptor Describes Art As A Lifelong Compulsion

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — Steffen Thomas, renowned Southern sculptor and artist, says he has been hamstrung most of his life "by tea drinkers who would do well to leave art to the professionals."

"Art is not therapy, as many people think," says Thomas, his piercing blue eyes holding his listener in almost hypnotic fashion. "It's a compulsion that says all one's energies."

Speaks At PTA Meet

FARMVILLE — Joe Burney, president of the Washington, D.C., Sugg Alumni Chapter, spoke at the PTA meeting of H. B. Sugg School here recently.

Burney presented a check in the amount of $250 to the PTA as a contribution from the chapters located in New York City, N.Y.; Stamford, Conn.; Baltimore, Md.; and Washington, D. C. The money will be used toward payment of a piano which was purchased by the school recently.

Club President Mrs. Emma Spruill accepted the check on behalf of the PTA and expressed her appreciation for the money.

Napoleon Tyson presented the group a gift in the amount of $31.25, to be used toward payment of the piano. The contribution was the proceeds from a basketball game played by the Farmville Tigers for the project. Other games have been scheduled with proceeds planned for the PTA project.

Will Speak Here Sunday

Bishop James W. Gardner, pastor of St. Mary's Church of Christ, Brooklyn, N.Y., and general bishop of the Disciples of Christ, Inc., will be the guest speaker at Mt. Calvary FWB Church Sunday at 3 p.m.

A native of Greenville, Bishop Gardner attended public schools here and later received the doctor of divinity degree. His wife is the former Viola Hilliard of Pitt County.

BISHOP GARDNER

Nearly Blind, But No Problem; Attitude Helps

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP) — Miss Judy Krecke, a Kankakee elementary school teacher is nearly blind, but she says it isn't a major problem.

Miss Krecke's eye condition is called coloboma, resulting in partial absence of two layers of the eye—retina and choroid. Six minor operations were performed between the ages of one and six to remove the cataracts.

"It is not a major problem," she said, "until I put a book in front of my face."

The answer to her problems was in her attitude, a practical point of view which has seen her through school and into a career as an educator. Also, a special service for the partially sighted has helped.

The service—Recording For the Blind—uses volunteers who make recordings of the reading matter in books. Using the recordings, Miss Krecke can function so well that few persons notice her problem.

Wants Parents Share Comment

LONDON (AP) — School reports should be written by parents as well as by teachers, two headmasters here suggest.

Michael Harland and Lawrence Green say parents should be able to add their own views to teachers' comments. Teachers should also feel free to criticize children's home life, the principals add.

His outspoken manner and devastating honesty have kept him embroiled with the establishment, wherever his concept of art was involved.

Somebody Lost Crown, Sword

LONDON (AP) — The lost property department at Waterloo railway station handles 130,000 items a year and employs detectives at times to help trace owners.

But officials have yet to find the proud possessor of a crown and matching sword recently discovered on a commuter train.

the model chosen several years ago for the memorial carving on Stone Mountain, the giant granite which looms behind his home. Thomas was once told by a politician, "We're going to punish you for the rest of your life."

Although his work is known in art circles throughout the nation, Thomas has had only one showing at the Atlanta Art Museum. "That was in 1936 and I demanded and got it myself," he said spiritedly.

A nonconformist and rugged individualist, Thomas withdrew early from an art environment which he felt one would have to cater to a monied class to obtain showings. Instead, he has lived more than 30 years in isolation in his self-built stone house, producing prolific works of art.

His home, his art studio which he also built, and the surrounding acres of land filled with his massive works of sculpture bear mute testimony to the diversity of his work.

There are magnificent cast bronzes, welded metals, oil paintings, prints, acrylics, carvings and sculptures ranging from delicately wrought to massive works of steel.

"In all my work I am complimenting man, telling what you call a symphony of life. I am exerting and I'm having a hell of a big time," said Thomas in his booming voice which has a slight brogue, a reminder of his native Bavaria.

Virtually every phase of the artist's craft, executed in styles ranging from Picasso to pure Steffen Thomas, abound in his high-ceiling, massive stone home.

Thomas is, in fact, almost undated with his own superb works of art.

Now, at 65, still a tremendously vital man, Thomas is about to leave it all.

The handsome house, which he built himself stone upon stone for 30 years as a place to rear his four children and to work, will likely be torn down soon by the encroachment of civilization and taxes.

"It evidently is not going to fulfill what we thought," said

Thomas, nodding to his soft-mannered, petite brunette wife.

"We had thought to live out our life here, and then pass it on, as a haven of art, to the youth of Georgia."

"Instead, it's come to the point where we just want to pay taxes," he said of the land on which he sought refuge many years ago and which, far too near his piney woods, are industrial plants which have made the land valuable tax wise.

A conversation with Thomas is mercurial, darting like quicksilver in various directions.

Standing in his favorite spot before his huge, hand-laid stone fireplace, the sides of which are stained glass — which he also made — Thomas expounds on his favorite subject: art.

"Art is so important. The only art we have is advertising — and it stinks to high heaven."

"I tell the young people if they want to work with art, they've got to work and study."

Thomas, who has moved tons and tons of stone, easily shoved a 6-foot-6 statue aside. Entitled "Mammy," and wrought of steel and bronze, it mirrors the sufferings of generations of black people.

Through a studio door and outside, Thomas walks to his Garden for Brotherhood.

"See, here she is, Mother Earth the woman, and mankind, the child," he said, pointing to a massive nude which reclines in a stone crypt, surrounding by high stone walls, all of which he laid in place.

Mother Earth is lifting her metal sculpted child up and out of a symbolic grave.

Thomas' background is revealed in his work, with much of it taking on the character of history and mythology of artists with European background.

His bookcases sag with volumes on philosophy and music and these themes, too, turn up in his work.

At 14, Thomas was apprenticed to a stonemason in Bavaria. Later, he studied at the Academy of Fine Arts in Munich. He came to America in 1928, visited Atlanta and stayed.

No more natural subject is likely to catch the amateur photographer's eye than children. Natural because they haven't had time to grow protective disguises. And natural because there they are, within range of all of us, sooner or later, when there's film in our camera and the urge to take pictures. Children playing, children dreaming, merry, sad, active, tired, all shapes and sizes and always changing. That's one of the strongest reasons for taking pictures of children—to catch those brief, changing moments before it's too late, ever, to record them.

If you're an amateur photographer chances are more than even that you'll take more photos of people than of any other subject. And if you have the stamina, you'll probably have found that it's well worth while keeping up with the kids, camera in hand. How worth while is proved by the photos on this page, all taken by prize winners in the 1970 Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards. They were selected from over 235,000 snapshots submitted for local contests sponsored by 77 newspapers in the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

Worry Clinic Giggles Are A Girl's Strategy

Nita irritates her daddy. But that's because he is not the recipient of her giggles! Her boy friends enjoy them, for Nita thus makes them think they are rivals of Bob Hope. And that is an excellent feminine strategy. Make a boy feel more important and he'll want another date!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case P-582: Nita G., aged 16, reveals an interesting sex symptom.

"Dr. Crane," her irritated father began, "Nita is always giggling."

"In fact, when she is at the telephone, I can instantly tell if she is talking to a boy or to her grandmother."

"For she giggles constantly while speaking to boys.

"But with her grandmother she seldom will giggle. Why?"

Giggle Test

You experienced readers know that giggles are much more typical of teen-agers than happily married couples.

In fact, you can often have a lot of fun conducting the "giggle test" by noting how many times a girl giggles during a 5-minute telephone conversation.

For if she is talking to a boy or even an older man, she will punctuate the dialogue with many giggles.

If, however, she is speaking to a woman, her giggle score will be much lower.

And even you older wives will also turn on more giggles and laughter when you are speaking to a man on the phone, even though you are happily married and not primarily interested in flirting!

We public speakers thus prefer to have a two-sex audience, for each sex thus exerts a subtle reciprocal stimulation of the other sex when both are assembled together in the same crowd.

A speaker can thus tell the very same joke to a men's group or also to strictly a women's gathering and get a certain amount of laughter.

But when you have a mixed audience, where both sexes are in the same auditorium, then that same joke will produce much greater laughter or applause.

When a crowd is composed entirely of teen-agers, however, they will literally shriek with laughter and almost roll in the aisles with mirth, though married couples respond less violently to your humor.

For giggles and laughter are often an indirect symptom of unexpended erotic energy.

Besides, girls subconsciously giggle as a subtle compliment for their boy friend.

For when they giggle, even at his inane remarks, it makes the boy feel more important.

And when you girls thus increase the elation of your male companion, he will be more inclined to like you and request a second date.

Watch the average teen-age couple, therefore, and you will see how women may giggle and laugh till it would seem their boy friend were a Bob Hope, yet he may have said very little that is really humorous.

So the girl's giggles are a "come-on" by which she bolsters his ego and thus makes him want a continuation of her company.

Giggles are thus a splendid form of insurance for future dates, so we psychiatrists don't veto them!

But some girls overdo it, so they irritate everybody except the boy friend who is speaking. Giggles, however, are usually sweet music to the ears of the boy whose girl friend is thus making him feel that he is Bob Hope's rival!

Workshop Is Set Tuesday

Educators in Beaufort, Washington and Greenville school systems will attend a workshop at Washington Senior High School Tuesday for home economics teachers.

More than 800 Tar Heel home economics teachers are expected to attend one of a series of 33 workshops being sponsored this month and next month by the Consumer and Homemaking Education Sections of the State Education agency.

Chief Homemaking Consultant Ernestine Frazier noted that the workshops are designed to help teachers understand how to provide and manage a learning environment in which students may reach individual objectives through diversified learning experiences. Experiences will be provided in the area of foods and nutrition.

The workshops will feature laboratory experiences in preparing and serving foods and evaluation of these experiences and the laboratory projects used. In addition, participants will develop learning activity packages for students to use in exercises with foods, table settings, and consumer activities.

Teachers will also conduct experiments dealing with food nutrients and consider menu planning, bulletin board and other types of exhibits, and working with students who are poor readers.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Four of ♠. Early in his career, the aspiring bridge player learns to lead toward the hand containing the high cards rather than away from it. The object is to force an opponent to play first in the hope that he has the missing high honors in the suit. However, considerations of timing can on occasion alter the rule. Today, we have an exception which, paradoxically enough, also happens to offer proof of the principle. North's jump rebid of three diamonds does not draw our vote. Altho he does have a good hand, his suit is too broken to invite a game. South, of course was well within himself in carrying on to three no trump.

The opening lead of the four of spades was taken in dummy, and declarer entered his hand with the king of hearts in order to lead a diamond toward the king. West played the ace of diamonds and, realizing that the defense had no future unless tricks could be developed quickly, he shifted to the queen of hearts in the hope of finding partner with some support in that area. Declarer held up, but his cause was now hopeless. East was able to get in with the queen of diamonds and after cashing the long heart, he shifted to a club to produce the setting trick for the defenders.

Altho it was essential for declarer to make one diamond play from his hand in order to establish the suit, the lead can be postponed until he has full control of the proceedings. After winning the spade opening, South should play a low diamond from the dummy immediately. This costs nothing since two diamonds must be conceded in any event, in order to establish the suit. No matter which opponent wins the diamond, declarer has time to come to his hand with the king of hearts in order to make his one lead toward dummy's suit. When West's ace of diamonds appears, the suit is now established and declarer has nine tricks.

Nixon . . .

The theme of frustration in peacemaking and danger in world conditions pervaded other sections of the massive report. Noting the Soviet Union's power position in the Middle East, the President said any great nation effort to dominate the area would "increase the danger to world peace."

In the nuclear arms race, he told Congress and the nation that what he termed greatly increased Soviet power could tempt Moscow into bolder and more dangerous probing of the West.

He also said the United States would like to begin improving relations with mainland China, but that nation continues "to cast us in the devil's role."

Nixon told the American people that he was trying to shape a new, less burdensome policy line for the United States in world affairs. He appealed for understanding and perhaps argued against any new swing into American isolationism.

"We have learned in recent years the dangers of our over-involvement," the President told his broadcast audience. "The other danger—a grave risk we are equally determined to avoid—is underinvolvement."

"After a long and unpopular war, there is temptation to turn inward—to withdraw from the world, to back away from our commitments. That deceptively smooth road of the new isolationism is surely the road to war."

To point up his approach to world affairs Nixon also covered these areas in his message:

Mideast

Nixon gave Moscow a barely concealed warning not to try to dominate the Middle East which he called militarily and economically vital to the Western alliance.

The United States recognizes

"the Soviet Union has important interests" in the region, Nixon said. But he added the U.S. does not seek a dominant position and "we cannot allow others to establish one."

Soviet-U.S. Relations

The growth of Soviet nuclear power to parity with the United States "could tempt Soviet leaders to bolder challenges," Nixon said. Errors of judgment by Moscow may have contributed to the Middle East crisis last summer and to Soviet naval actions in the Caribbean last fall.

Apparently Nixon meant that in its support for Egypt in moving anti-aircraft missiles close to the Suez Canal, and in the Caribbean cruises of nuclear submarines, the Soviet leadership was probing U.S. intentions and firmness.

"In our relations with the USSR," Nixon said, "there should be no misconceptions of the role we play in international affairs . . . we prefer negotiation and restraint as the methods to adjust differences. But when challenged the United States will defend its interests and those of its allies."

Arms Limitation

Nixon virtually rejected a pending Soviet proposal to limit antiballistic missile systems apart from all other nuclear weapons systems.

The United States is expected to turn down the Russian proposal when the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks resume in Vienna March 15.

Nixon said meanwhile he would continue building the U.S. ABM system. "The strategic balance would be in danger if we limited defensive forces alone," Nixon said, "and left the offensive threat to our strategic forces unconstrained."

China

In what appeared to be an advance in presidential language, Nixon described mainland China as "one of the major powers" and said the United States is ready to see it "play a constructive role in the family of nations."

But, he went on, the United States would not agree to the Peking government entering the United Nations at the cost of Nationalist regime on Formosa being ousted.

Nixon also said there is no U.S. advantage from Soviet-Chinese hostility. "We will do nothing to sharpen that conflict."

Eastern Europe

Nixon said he will ask Congress soon to authorize government guarantees for U.S. investments going into Romania and Yugoslavia. Guarantees against foreign investment risks are standard U.S. practice for many other countries.

Nixon implicitly recognized Russia's primary security interest in Eastern Europe and offered the Soviets assurance on that point. Eastern European countries have historical ties to the West, he said, but "We will not exploit those ties to undermine the security of the Soviet Union."

Western Europe

Implying that Russia could try to split NATO by negotiating with separate members on improving relations, Nixon called on the allies to harmonize their policies on all East-West negotiating issues. He also said progress on issues arising out of the division of Germany is basic to easing tensions in Europe.

Economic Policy

Nixon said "a continued liberal trade policy is indispensable to our domestic economic health and to a successful U.S. foreign policy."

He called on the European allies and Japan to reduce their own trade restrictions, saying that they cannot afford to take liberal trade practices in the United States for granted.

In his discussion of Indochina, the President touched on the military situation. He declared that in spite of heavy losses the North Vietnamese still pose a "considerable threat" to the first and second (the Northern) military regions of South Vietnam.
