

Extensive Damage, No Injuries

Senate Wing Of U.S. Capitol Bombed

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — An early morning bomb blast, reportedly linked to a protest against the U.S. - supported invasion of Laos, ripped up an interior section of the Senate wing of the Capitol today causing extensive damage but no injuries.

"This is apparently a political bombing," said Senate Republican Leader

Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania. He said the Senate sergeant at arms, Robert G. Dunphy, told him a letter had been found linked to the bombing and referring to U.S. operations in Laos.

Scott said a male caller who contacted the Capitol switchboard to give advance warning of the blast also referred to the Laotian invasion.

Capitol police and FBI spokesmen, however, would neither confirm nor deny the link to antiwar protesters.

Meanwhile, President Nixon issued a statement through White House spokesman Ronald L. Ziegler calling the bombing "a shocking act of violence that will outrage all Americans."

The blast pulverized a men's room and damaged other rooms, but did not touch the Senate chamber itself.

Perhaps coincidentally, it came 17 years to the day after Puerto Rican nationalists shot and wounded five congressmen from the visitors' gallery of the House of Representatives. It also caused the most extensive damage to the building since the British set it afire in 1814.

Scott said the effect of the bombing will be unfortunate, both in this country and internationally.

"It's likely to be exaggerated," he said. "They won't realize that it's one bomb in one washroom."

Scott also took the occasion to criticize federal judges in the District of Columbia, accusing them of too much leniency.

He said even if the person who placed the bomb is arrested "my guess would be they'll never go to jail, not with the type of appellate court we have in the District of Columbia."

Police, "Army" and FBI investigators were seeking clues to the identity of the male caller who warned the Capitol switchboard: "The Capitol building will blow up in 30 minutes."

Half an hour later, at 1:32

a.m. EST, the bomb exploded. Capitol Police Chief James Powell said one of his officers was within 200 feet of the blast but escaped injury despite windows breaking "right over his head."

The blast gutted a men's room directly across from the Old Senate Chamber, blasted doors off their hinges in several surrounding rooms, and blew out windows all the way out to the Senate's front door—perhaps 125 feet.

Bricks, doors, lighting and other fixtures were piled high in a corridor when newsmen were allowed a brief inspection about six hours after the blast.

The men's room—open to the public but generally only known about by people working in the area—was a grey hulk filled with tiny pieces of plumbing fixtures and grey plaster rubble. It was almost impossible to tell it had been a rest room.

A red brick wall on one side of the men's room was badly cracked and bulging,

$175,000 Bid Approved For Revaluation

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A $175,000 bid by a Greensboro firm for revaluation of property in Pitt County was approved by County Commissioners this morning.

Commissioners approved awarding the contract to Associated Surveys after studying proposals from four companies ranging in price from the $175,000 low to $200,000, for the past two weeks.

The revaluation—required by North Carolina law every eight years—is to begin in about 30 days and is scheduled for completion by October 1, 1972, in time to be listed on tax books January 1, 1973.

In addition to hearing routine reports from various county departments and agencies, commissioners heard Boyd Lee, director of the City of Greenville's Recreation Department say some agreement will have to be reached between the city and county or the city will be forced to limit participation in its recreation program to city residents only.

"We are not asking for money today," Lee explained. "We just wanted you to be aware of this problem."

According to Lee, non-resident use of city recreation facilities is causing crowded conditions in recreation programs, and cited figures that indicate more than 12 per cent of the 216,000 participants in recreation activities sponsored by the commission last year (some 27,800 participants) were county residents living outside the corporate limits of the city of Greenville.

The city, Lee said, spends about $6.30 per resident for recreation, and pointed out that based on their current budget of $179,000, a pro-rata share of the cost to the county for the 27,800 participants last year would total about $23,000 (12.9 per cent of the city budget).

Lee explained that three solutions may be possible.

First, he said, the county could allocate funds to the city for county-resident participation, and said that Kinston receives some $19,000 per year from Lenoir County for county resident participation.

A second method, Lee explained, would be a non-resident users fee, explaining that Washington now charges $15 per family or $7 per individual for participation in city-sponsored recreation programs.

The third alternative, Lee noted, would be a totally restricted program under which no county residents could participate in city-sponsored activities. Tarboro, he said, now follows such a restrictive program.

Commissioners indicated they would talk with city officials about the matter at a later date.

Frank Wooten To Seek Reelection As Mayor

Incumbent Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr. has become the first candidate to file for mayor in the municipal elections to be held on May 4 this year.

Mayor Wooten, elected by a slim margin in the spring of 1969, has cast his hat in the ring in a bid for reelection. The mayor filed last Friday afternoon with City Clerk William N. Moore.

To date, only two persons have filed as candidates for one of the six City Council members.

In making his bid for reelection, Mayor Wooten noted the present administration, during his term of office, has accomplished several objectives. He noted:

- "1. We have substantially increased salaries of the City employees.
- "2. We have completed a major street paving program.
- "3. We have acquired a new playground for the western area of Greenville and substantially increased appropriations for recreation.
- "4. We have endeavored to have each area of the City represented on the various Boards and Commissions.
- "5. We have improved the efficiency of operation and cooperation within and among the various departments of the City and also with the County Government.

"6. We have endeavored to keep the people informed of the various activities of the several departments of the City, both good and bad.

"7. We have purchased a new fire truck.

"8. We have improved the drainage systems in south and west Greenville.

"9. ALL OF THIS HAS BEEN DONE WITHOUT AN INCREASE IN TAXES.

"10. We have for the first time in recent years published an audit of the financial affairs of the City.

"11. We have caused the railroad crossing on Memorial Boulevard, Evans and Fourteenth Streets to be improved."

District Solicitor And His Assistant Are Sworn Today

Eli Bloom of Greenville was sworn in as District Solicitor for the Third Judicial District during ceremonies conducted this morning by Judge J. W. H. Roberts.

Sworn in as assistant solicitor following his appointment by Governor Bob Scott to succeed retiring Solicitor Luther Hamilton Jr. of Morehead City.

The new solicitor, who prosecuted in the Greenville municipal recorder's court from 1941 until 1968, was appointed by Hamilton as his assistant for the district during the final stages of reorganization of the court system.

Mills, an Onslow County native, has been practicing law here since August of 1969. Prior to coming here, he served as a research assistant to Judge Naomi E. Morris on the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

The new assistant is a 1968 graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Law.

Mills is married to the former Jacquelyn McMurrey of Swansboro, and they are the parents of two.

A number of area judges and attorneys attended the ceremonies, held prior to the opening of the morning session of District Court.

Reinforcements Flown To Bolster Laos Drive

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — American transports flew hundreds of South Vietnamese reinforcements to the northern front today and the U.S. Command sent more helicopters to strengthen the allied air and ground drive in Laos.

The drive to cut North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh trail network began its fourth week. The intensity of the fighting eased somewhat, but an American field commander predicted hard fighting ahead.

Some of the reinforcements already are crossing into Laos to bolster the weary men strung along Route 9 and to the north and south of the highway. A spokesman in Saigon, Lt. Col. Tran Van An, said South Vietnamese strength across the border remains at 16,000 troops, but the South Vietnamese have suffered more than 1,000 casualties. Informal sources said up to 16,000 additional troops were being flown to the northern sector.

South Vietnamese forward headquarters issued a revised casualty report which said 390 Saigon troops have been killed, 99 are missing and 981 have been wounded in Laos. Field reports indicate the losses are much higher. The report also claimed that 3,227 North Vietnamese troops have been killed.

Maj. Richard Gardner, a spokesman for the U.S. Command, said 1,400 of the enemy had been killed by American air strikes.

Scores of scheduled military passenger flights were canceled, and the four-engine C130s diverted to the reinforcement missions.

Gardner said additional American helicopters had been moved to Khe Sanh to support the Laotian operation, but he refused to say how many. Other sources said they would replace those shot down and also would increase the fleet.

Egypt Says Israel Closed Door To Settlement

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt says Israel's refusal to give up all occupied Arab territories closes the door to a peaceful settlement in the Middle East. But Egyptian President Anwar Sadat says his government will keep trying.

The Israeli Cabinet met Sunday and was reported studying several proposals for partial withdrawal from the territory seized in the 1967 war, but the cabinet announced last week that Israel would never return to the prewar borders. The Israeli position "closes the doors to all peaceful settlements because the liberation of occupied areas is for Egypt something beyond any discussion or bargaining," said an Egyptian government statement distributed by the Middle East News Agency.

Sadat, speaking in Cairo to the Palestine National Council of guerrilla leaders, said Egypt still intends to seek a negotiated peace with Israel but not at the expense of the Palestinians.

He told the council that Egypt had rejected a separate peace with Israel.

"There is no such thing as an Egyptian solution or a Palestinian, Jordanian or Syrian solution," he said. "There is only an Arab solution."

In effect replying to guerrilla leaders who oppose any negotiations with Israel, Sadat said Egypt's participation in the indirect peace talks with U.N. envoy Gunnar Jarring as go-between has "unmasked the enemy's expansionist inbitions" and put Israel on the diplomatic defensive for the first time in years.

He told the commando chiefs that if this tactic failed, Egypt still would have made the necessary military preparations.

The Soviet Union, meanwhile, urged that a meeting of the Big Four U.N. delegates on the Middle East situation be moved up from Thursday to today. U.N. sources said Britain and France had agreed to the change, but the United States referred the request to Washington.

Common Sense Is Best Solution

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter married a man last spring of whom we violently disapproved. She became pregnant immediately. Her husband asked her to get an abortion. She refused, so he tore her wedding ring from her finger and literally threw her out of their apartment and took her key. She then came home to live with us.

Our problem: She wants to send birth announcements to out-of-town friends and relatives when the baby is born, but she is bitter about her husband and does not want his name to appear on the announcements. I believe that since he is the baby's father and is still her husband until she takes steps to divorce him [which she has not done], his name should be on the announcements. Or may we, as the grandparents, send out birth announcements in order to exclude his name from the card? Please hurry your advice as the baby is due soon.

COMPLICATED MESS

DEAR COMPLICATED: Such "complicated messes" are not covered by my good friend, Amy, the etiquette expert, so your best bet is to use common sense.

To those whom your daughter wants to send the news of her new arrival, a personal note should suffice. ["I've had a baby and am home with mother and dad again," should do it.] An announcement in which the father's name is deliberately omitted would raise questions which would have to be answered later.

DEAR ABBY: What can a fat man do about flabbiness? A woman has it easy. She can just put on a girdle and it helps to firm her up so she doesn't look like she is spreading all over the place. I suppose a man could do the same thing, but in today's society no normal man would be caught dead in a lady's girdle.

I tried one on once and I know it would help my looks but I just couldn't stand the ridicule of being called a fag. So what should I do?

FAT MAN

DEAR FAT MAN: There are girdles for men. Ask around.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when you are 11 years old and your mother still makes you take a bath with your 4-year-old brother? No matter how much I protest, she makes me. I already have told her how I feel about it but she won't listen to me. She respects your opinion so please help me, Abby.

TOO BIG

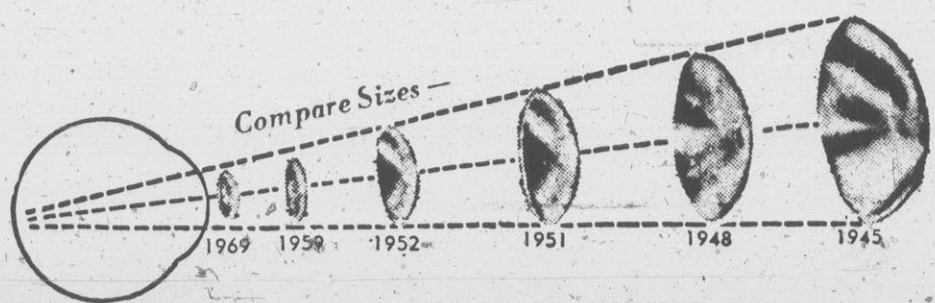

DEAR TOO: You don't say whether you are a boy or a girl. If you are a boy, perhaps your mother is trying to conserve hot water, in which case, I suggest you cool it. [Not the water—the protest.] If you are a girl, tell her that Abby said a girl deserves to have privacy when she feels she needs it. Case dismissed! Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Your "Confidential to M. R. in Memphis: Marry him!" jolted me. I am M. R. and I live in Memphis. Marry whom? Please send me his name and address.

Actress Sings For Supper, Goes On To Stardom

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The first play actress Jill O'Hara appeared in, an Off-Broadway satirical revue, folded after one performance.

The second, a Broadway-bound musical, died in Philadelphia.

"So, in order to eat, I went back to folk singing," the attractive, 23-year-old said. But singing for her supper in the coffee houses of Greenwich Village was nothing new for her. She had come to New York from Warren, Pa., with her guitar when she was 16, and performed in a variety of clubs one "one of which paid me in tuna sandwiches."

But the second time around "I really wasn't happy doing folk singing," she said. "It's terrible to do something if you don't really believe in it."

She worked as a hat check girl, as a waitress, and all the while studied acting. "And I kept auditioning," she said.

"But it seemed I'd always get close to a role and then lose it. It got to be routine. I'd be in the final audition group but I never seemed to get the prize."

Among the plays she auditioned for was the musical "Hair." "I auditioned for that play a lot of times," she recalled. "The last time I had bronchitis and I didn't want to go, but I did. And I got accepted."

Things began to move after she landed the female lead in "Hair." After a couple of months in that play, she said, she got a part in the musical "George M." And while acting the part of George M. Cohan's second wife, she said, playwright Neil Simon "saw me and asked me to audition for his 'Promises, Promises.' " She did and landed the female lead in the Broadway musical which proved a hit.

That job led to a movie offer, her first. "I did the movie 'Pigeons' while I still was working in 'Promises,'" she said. "I was working 18 hours a day and getting, maybe, three hours of sleep a night. I wouldn't want to repeat something like that, but I guess I would do it again if I had to."

"Pigeons," recently released, has been described as a "tragicomic of young adults who fit neither the Establishment nor the hip subculture." Her female lead part casts her as a girl who gets involved with a "college graduate who drops out and becomes a cabbie. I play a typical sweet, little girl whose parents send her to New York for a year, expenses-paid, but she really doesn't know anything about getting along."

The experience of making her first movie was an educational one, she noted.

"There's an enormous difference between plays and movies. In a movie you are much more confined than on stage. For example, in a movie there are tape marks on the floor. You must come in and hit the marks exactly, you must have your feet in a certain position exactly, and at the same time you must try to act and look natural. There you are pretending you're talking to someone and actually you're talking to a camera. The stage is looser."

For the future, she said, there's the possibility of a part in a musical, "a film possibility," and "I hope to do a record of my own soon."

ESA Chapter Holds Meeting

Members of the Alpha Omega Chapter of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority met for their regular meeting in the home of Mrs. Nellie Taylor. The business meeting was conducted by President Lucille Moore.

The program on Home Fire Safety was presented by Mrs. Margaret Roberts. She talked on fire prevention and an awareness of fire safety in the home. More than half of each year's fire victims are killed by fires in their homes. Every home fire represents a failure to take precautions and to correct fire hazards in the home, she said.

Plans are underway for the sorority's annual bridge benefit to be held in April and also plans were made for an Easter party for the clients of the Eastern N. C. Sheltered Workshop.

Some members plan to attend the State Council meeting on March 13.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
French restaurants call them profiteroles, and chefs sometimes stuff them with ice cream and offer them with a chocolate-flavored custard-type sauce.

American cooks call them cream puffs and bake them at home. Then they follow restaurant practice and add the ice cream. For the topping, they're likely to use a sundae sauce. We suggest you make the sauce butterscotch flavor.

Here are worthwhile recipes, tried in our kitchen, for these delicious puffs and the sauce.

ICE-CREAM PUFFS WITH BUTTERSCOTCH SAUCE
1 cup water
½ cup (¼ pound stick) butter or margarine
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sifted flour
4 large eggs
1½ quarts vanilla ice cream
Butterscotch Sauce, see below

In a large saucepan bring water, butter and salt to a full boil. Add flour all at once and over low heat stir rapidly until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a smooth compact ball. Remove from heat.

Add eggs, one at a time, beating well with a wooden spoon after each addition until batter is smoothly blended and glossy and thick enough to be dropped.

Drop batter, in 12 mounds and each 2 inches apart, onto ungreased cookie sheet.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden brown and firm and no beads of moisture show on surface—45 to 50 minutes.

With a wide metal spatula remove to wire racks to cool.

To serve, cut off tops and fill each puff with a scoop of ice cream. Replace tops. Serve with Butterscotch Sauce.

Makes 12 servings.
BUTTERSCOTCH SAUCE
1 cup sugar
1 cup dark corn syrup
½ cup light cream
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

In a 2-quart saucepan mix together the sugar, corn syrup, cream, butter and salt.

Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a full rolling boil. Boil 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla.

Serve hot or cooled to room temperature. If you're letting the sauce stand off heat, stir often while it cools.

To reheat sauce, place in pan of hot (not boiling) water or over very low heat, stirring often, until sauce has thinned to pouring consistency.

Makes about 2 cups. Serve as directed in recipe for Ice-cream Puffs with Butterscotch Sauce.

Scott Opines Muskie Would Defeat Nixon In N.C.

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina's Gov. Bob Scott, who already has endorsed Democrat Edmund Muskie for president in the 1972 election, said Sunday that the U.S. senator from Maine would defeat President Nixon in the Tar Heel state.

Scott said Nixon would fail to carry North Carolina for the Republicans as he did in 1968 partly because of the President's failure to protect the textile industry from Japanese imports and because of the continue busing of pupils to bring about school desegregation.

The governor did predict that Nixon would be the winner in North Carolina if his Democratic opponent were once again Hubert Humphrey.

In 1968, Nixon ran first, George Wallace second and Humphrey third in the state.

While Scott cited the textile question and school integration as reasons for what he called Nixon's loss of popularity in the South, the governor said Muskie's victory would come mostly because of Muskie's "demeanor, his approach."

"I don't think the issues really have become very clear in this campaign," Scott said. He said Muskie's temperament is "considerably different from Mr. Humphrey's."

Political observers have noted that Muskie presents an image of reserve and of being a folksy statesman.

Muskie was Humphrey's vice presidential choice on the Democrats' 1968 ticket.

Scott said he thought it would be a mistake if any candidate in 1972 tried to use antibusing as a lever to carry the South.

He said Nixon campaigned in the South in 1968 and "the implication was ... that he wasn't going to ram school integration down the throats of the people of the South, that certainly he was not going to have anything to do with forced busing of students.

"The citizens simply wouldn't believe it any more," Scott said. Besides, he added, "the whole question of race and integration ... is fast fading out as a viable issue in the South."

Scott said Nixon has lost favor with southerners, too, because of this country's failure to so far clamp restrictions on Japan's textile goods that are pouring into this country.

Cheaper priced Japanese textile products have been proving to be disastrous to the American textile industry, according to textile interests and southern congressmen and senators.

Muskie has not yet announced that he definitely will be a candidate for the presidency in 1972, but his trips abroad and speaking engagements all across the country make it clear that he intends to run. He spoke at Wilson, N.C., just last month.

Scott's comments Sunday came as he was interviewed on the Metromedia Radio News program "Profile." He was in Washington last week to participate in a conference with other governors.

Major Data Bank For N.C. Triangle Pondered

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today that North Carolina is "exploring the possibility of setting up a major data bank" which would connect by computer terminals the operating agencies of state government and research facilities of private enterprise and higher education. In remarks prepared for dedication ceremonies for the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences facility here, Scott said that although such a project could become very expensive it would be worth the investment.

The governor said that the program would enable each state agency to maintain "a close and friendly relationship with all research institutions in the state doing work in the agency's field of endeavor."

Through such an arrangement, he added, it would be possible "to reduce drastically the time between knowledge learned and knowledge applied by operating agencies of state government."

While the state would have to depend on the good will of private institutions, Scott said that "those agencies and research activities utilizing tax dollars could have a built-in requirement to feed the information to the data bank."

The health sciences facility dedicated today is to be used in the institute's research into the effects on man of biological, chemical and physical agents. Two specific problems which concern the institute are mercury pollution and pesticides.

A spokesman for the facility, Elizabeth James, estimated that 165 people will be employed at the 30,000 square foot structure.

Scott also lauded the Research Triangle Park, calling it "one of the best examples I know of the 'New South.'"

He hailed the economic contribution the area makes to the state. And the governor said that he sincerely believes that "the future of mankind rests largely in the minds and the hands of scientists here in the Research Triangle and elsewhere."

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott will take a trip to the Gulf of Mexico off Pensacola, Fla., Wednesday to watch Tar Heel members of the Naval Air Reserve make carrier qualification landings on the USS Lexington.

Scott was to begin his scheduled activities this week with a speech today at dedication ceremonies for the National Institute of Environmental Health Science Building in the Research Triangle.

Tuesday Scott will speak briefly at an 8 a.m. breakfast for members of the House and Senate agriculture committees.

Wednesday at 7 p.m., after returning from the visit to the carrier, Scott will attend a banquet given by the Tarheel Electric Membership Association in honor of members of the General Assembly.

The governor will speak at 11 a.m. Thursday at a dedication ceremony for a Porritts and Spencer plant at Wilson. Friday evening he will be on hand for the 14th annual Women's State Bowling Tournament in Raleigh.

Saturday afternoon, Scott will host a reception at the Executive Mansion for Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La. That evening the governor will attend the Democratic party's Jefferson-Jackson dinner, at which Boggs will speak.

Mona's Merriment

Who hasn't heard of the famous Mona Lisa smile? For centuries people have been trying to figure out why the good lady is in merriment. We think the reason is because she's wearing a pair of HUSH PUPPIES shoes!

After all, what makes a person happier than having their feet cuddled in masterfully soft Breathin' Brushed Pigskin? And if you had to walk around on dusty, rocky Italian streets like Mona did, you'd appreciate steel shank support even more.

Posing for Leonardo was no cinch, either. Paint and oils splashing about would ruin any normal pair of shoes. HUSH PUPPIES fluorocarbon shield, however, resists stains. No spoiled shoes for Mona.

Why is Mona Lisa smiling? Buy some HUSH PUPPIES and find out.

Hopefully, New Era In Roads

The opening of the new Grifton bypass is a reminder that we are hopefully in a new era in this section so far as adequate roads are concerned.

Grifton bypass is another link in the four-lane highway which will tie Greenville, Kinston and the towns in between together. Dual laning had already been completed between Kinston and Grifton and now the bypass portion has been added. The bypass has adequate right of way and includes fencing. It required the construction of new bridges to take traffic across Contentnea Creek.

Nearing completion is the dual laning of N.C. 11 between Grifton and Ayden and the controlled access four lane bypass of Ayden and Winterville

Public Will Be Sharing Impact

By BRYAN HAISLIP
ALBEMARLE — Others may live because Mrs. John D. Sugg's son died.

That hope keeps her telling again and again the painful story of what it's like to lose someone you love in a traffic accident.

Mark D. Sugg and a friend were riding bikes home from the swimming pool one August afternoon in 1968. A car, whose driver was charged with drunken driving, struck both boys. Mark D. died five days later. His friend lived, spent months in a body cast, and always will carry marks of the injuries.

Was it a senseless tragedy, a cruel and meaningless turn of fate? Marilyn Sugg couldn't let it be. She struggled through trauma and grief to the resolution that everyone

Mrs. Sugg is the wife of an agriculture teacher at South Stanly High School. She has red hair and an indomitable will.

Spring Remembrance
"Mark D. would have been 14 this March," she said one recent warm morning that hinted of coming spring. She had taken sons Allen, 9, and David, 11, to school. Then, as she does daily, she stopped by the cemetery plot where her firstborn sleeps.

"For six weeks after he died I was in shock—trauma, I guess you'd call it. I paced the floor up and down. I said: 'Our forefathers would have been ashamed of us, that such a thing as this could happen here!'"

"I wanted to accost the dear Lord, to cry out: 'Why to me!'"

Slowly, the realization came that if she were swamped by despair, Mark D. would have, indeed, died in vain. She asked God for strength to do something to right what seemed such a terrible wrong.

She wrote letters to newspaper editors. She contacted State Highway Patrol officials. During the dark days following Mark D.'s death, the law's delay as the trial came on and its ordeal, she kept a journal so nothing would be forgotten.

She became secretary-treasurer of the North Carolina Association of Women Highway Safety Leaders, which works through organizations to keep women informed and aware of needs in highway safety.

For 20 years Sergeant Bill Huskins of the State Highway Patrol has seen the horrors of highway death and looked for the means to make it real to a seemingly indifferent public.

Telling It As It Is

He made photographs, still and movies, of road carnage that would churn your stomach. He talked to civic club luncheons in graphic terms that made them push their plates aside. He recited statistics like the toll of a battlefield in news releases.

Nothing really got the message across.

Then he brought a tape recorder to Albemarle, and Mrs. Sugg told him her story. She talked with calm composure, only a tremor betraying the intensity of feeling behind the words.

"It got next to me so bad I had to force myself to concentrate on the controls and not listen to what she was saying," he confessed.

That emotional wallop, captured on film, can be a powerful plea for driver attitudes respectful of human life, and fair laws firmly enforced to keep off the highways those unfit to drive.

which leads into Greenville.

There are a number of other major projects being planned which will ease the traffic problems in Greenville. Work is already under way on dual laning the U.S. 264 bypass from Frog Level to N.C. 11 and from Elm Street to Fifth. Plans have also been announced for the eastern bypass from Fifth Street to the Burroughs-Wellcome plant. There are also plans for dual laning Charles Street from Greenville Boulevard to Tenth. Planning is underway on a dual lane highway from Greenville to Washington.

Our area is far behind in developing adequate streets and highways to handle the growing traffic loads. However, if the plans announced by the Highway Commission are expedited we will make quite a bit of progress toward catching up.

The Grifton bypass is an example of the kind of highways we need if this area is to develop as it should.

Reflect A Bit On Our Appreciating Industry

The Industry Appreciation Week which has been proclaimed for Feb. 28-March 6, gives us a time when we can reflect on the value of industries to our community.

The week has been proclaimed by the mayor and will be climaxed by a dinner Thursday night where our industrial officials will be honored.

Sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce-Merchants Association the week is observed to let the industries know "that we do appreciate them, to recognize that they do a lot for us," Chairman Bill McDonald said.

Our county is not heavily industrialized, but in recent years industry has become a significant contributor to our economy. Generally our industries have been good, responsible rate citizens and it is proper that we honor them this week.

Mills Proffers His Own 'Cure'

By ROWLAND EVANS and
ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON

Irrevocably committed to stimulating the economy back to prosperity, President Nixon is about to confront a Democratic alternative by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas: a revival of the investment tax credit providing vastly greater stimulation than all the Administration's red-ink spending combined.

The Mills alternative hands Mr. Nixon another ex-cruciating political choice. Can he oppose the lustiest blood transfusion possible for the economy when his own prophecy of a rejuvenated economy is going sour? And if so, could he afford not to sign this Democratic-labelled remedy if it passed over his opposition?

Thus, for the second time in a month, Mills has fashioned an ingenious political-economic trap for the President. As the immensely powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Mills has already undercut the Nixon revenue-sharing scheme with his counter-proposal to assume state welfare costs. Now, on the far more important economic front, he is again outflanking the White House.

Mills feels the $2.7 billion in extra deductions for business depreciation announced by the President in December was neither as large nor as rapid as the investment credit's impact. Consequently, he is readying a bill restoring the on-again, off-again 7 percent investment credit repealed by Congress at Mr. Nixon's request in 1969. The restoration would permit businessmen to subtract from their Federal Tax payments 7 percent of new plant and equipment investment (retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971).

The immediate impact would be $3.5 billion heaped on already bloated deficit spending. This is trifling, however, when compared with the immediate boost to the economy from such an incentive for capital expansion.

Indeed, successive starts and stops of the investment credit have distorted wild business fluctuations for nearly a decade. First proposed by President Kennedy as an anti-recession measure, the 1962 investment credit is given major credit by Mills for the business recovery of the 1960s. Suspended in 1966 at President Johnson's request to fight inflation, it was hurriedly restored in 1967 to spur the economy. Then came the supposedly once-and-for-all repeal in 1969, followed by the 1970 recession.

To sign a bill restoring the credit would mean crow-creating for Mr. Nixon. With the notable exception of Dr. Arthur Burns (then Presidential counselor, now chairman of the Federal Reserve Board), his economic policymakers recommended repeal. Moreover, to convince the Senate of his hostility to the concept of investment credit, Mr. Nixon pledged never to ask its restoration.

Against this background is deepening dismay by businessmen over the slow economic recovery. "It's seven weeks into the New Year, and nothing's happened," an Administration economist concedes. Without an investment tax credit, the President's forecast of a gross national product of $1.065 billion is impossible; (Continued on page 6)

Strength For Today

NATURE OF SCRIPTURE

The Bible is not a textbook of history or text, although it contains accounts of nations that have risen and fallen in the past. What the Bible principally does, however, is to establish moral and spiritual principles, and call on men to adhere to these principles if they would avoid destruction and walk humbly and obediently with their Creator.

What turmoil has been stirred up, what wrath has been ignited over the question as to how the Bible should be interpreted. We must all confess that there are many things in the Bible we do not understand, but certainly there are enough things we do understand to help us in the living of a better and happier life. How about using some of it in the living of daily life, in planning for the future, in getting along with the thousand and one people with whom we have to deal?

Let us not think because of our scientific achievements that the age in which we live is the only one that has ever had any sound knowledge of truth. Socrates, Plato and Aristotle were good men in their day and would be good in any age. Let us use the knowledge we have and get neither vain nor belligerent over the way we use it.

The answer to life's problems must in the end be spiritual answers because we are primarily spiritual beings. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him" (1 Corinthians 2:9).

How To Save Your Job

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — The trouble with most business administration schools is that they teach you everything about business except how to keep your job when a company starts to lay off people during an economy drive.

"The reason they don't teach you how to survive during an economy wave," said my friend Wholesworth, who has lived through every pink slip crisis in his company for 20 years, "is that the only way to keep your job during a personnel reduction is to fight dirty. And schools don't want to admit you have to fight dirty to stay in business."

"Give me an example," I said.

"All right, suppose you are working as an executive for the Soft-Serve Tennis Ball Co. The word is out that there is going to be a 15 per cent across-the-board cut in jobs. You don't sit back and wait to

Other Editors Say Our Bob Scott

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

A familiar streak of his daddy surfaced in Governor Bob Scott the other day.

Addressing the Board of Trustees of the Consolidated University, the governor ripped into the state's higher education officials for "in-fighting, maneuvering, overlapping and duplication."

He gave bare-knuckle treatment to some unnamed editorial writers for assuming "infinite wisdom on unlimited subjects with limited understanding."

Look at what else the governor said:

"Some writers who to my knowledge have never attended one meeting of either this board or the Board of Higher Education, but who seem to have all the answers, still bemoan the fact that the General Assembly granted my request that the Governor be made chairman of the Board of Higher Education."

"Ladies and gentlemen, other than the appropriations for higher education, that was the best move the legislature made for higher education in the last session. Had this not occurred and thus enabled me to attend the Board of Higher Education meetings, there would have been no way for me, as Governor, to understand the intricacies of higher education in North Carolina. There would have been no way for me to have a competent overview of the total educational picture. There would have been no way for me to see what a mess we are in."

"It took me two years to begin to see the picture

- two years of listening to arguments
- two years of listening to the quarrelling
- two years of refereeing personalities
- two years of watching institutions apply for more and more programs without dropping any that were outmoded and unproductive.

"And I am tired of it."

"Tired of the wasted effort, the endless jockeying, the constant feuding."

"The time has come — indeed it has long since been with us — to stop all this."

"It is time to bring order into our higher educational system — and I'm talking about the total system not just the University system which is a part of the total whether some people believe it or not."

"It is time for each institution to examine how it can best fit in and contribute to the total system rather than how it can claw its way up one more rung of the prestige ladder."

"It is time for each institution to be more concerned with quality of offerings rather than quantity."

Now that's the Bob Scott we supported for governor!

He chose the right words and the right audience. We're proud of him.

"His drinking, sir. When O'Toole first came here he never touched a drop. Then he fell apart. But it wasn't his fault. You'd have taken to drink too if you had been under the pressure he's faced lately."

"Pressure? What kind of pressure?"

"Well, sir, O'Toole's a friend of mine and that's why I hope I'm not violating a confidence. The pressure came mainly from his gambling. O'Toole started losing heavily to the bookies and they threatened to tell his wife about the woman O'Toole was keeping if he didn't pay his debts."

Steel Squeeze By Auto Boom?

By ELMER ROESSNER
General Motors is sticking to its prediction that the auto industry will produce 9.5 million cars this year. The February figures will give considerable color to this optimistic view since they will probably be at an annual rate of 10.2 million.

However, much of the January rate of 9.7 million passenger cars in January and the probable 10.2 million cars this month are sales delayed by the General Motors strike last year. In addition, the proportion of compact cars, which use less steel and yield less profits, is higher than ever before. While this, as intended, may reduce sales of small foreign imports, it will not restore prosperity as much as sales forecasts suggest.

As Industry Week magazine points out, there will be a real squeeze on the steel supply if more than 9 million passenger cars and 2 million trucks are made this year. There will be more twists to the squeeze by stockpiling in fear of a steel workers strike in August. The mobile homes industry boom may further increase the demand.

Construction Too Slow

This rising demand will be partly offset by a decline in heavy construction. The construction of office buildings is about to top out and much other construction is being postponed until money is more plentiful.

Used car sales are down and there is little hope of any more than a significant pickup when vacations start. The current rate of unemployment has cut demand, since the used car is the conventional going-to-work auto. Compacts are also a factor. Both working men and youths will be tempted to spend a few hundred dollars more to buy a new compact instead of a used car. Financing a new car is often easier than financing a used one.

Higher phone rates. All over the country Bell and other phone companies are or will be seeking higher rates. Phone company management largely underestimated the booming demand for more service in 1968 and 1969, and were forced to borrow funds for crash programs when interest rates were at a peak. Despite the soundness of their bonds, many were forced to pay 8 per cent and more. Now this fat interest charge will have to be passed on to the public.

Foreign Competition Rising
More import squeezes. The difference between American and foreign wages is tightening its grip on American producers. In

Coastal Zoning Seen Possible Solution

British Soldier Is Killed By Fire Bomb

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A British soldier was burned to death early today when ambushers in the Roman Catholic Bogside district of Londonderry threw 10 fire bombs at his patrolling landrover.

In Belfast, a British army bullet in the stomach sent a 16-year-old to a hospital as troops exchanged shots with snipers of the Irish Republican Army, and explosions reverberated through the Catholic quarter. Isolated explosions were set off elsewhere in the British province.

An army spokesman said about 20 youths ambushed a three-man military police patrol in Londonderry.

The driver was thrown clear as the vehicle spun into a wall. The attackers stoned him, but Bogside residents dashed from their homes to drag the other two men from the back of the burning vehicle. One died before reaching a hospital; the other was not injured seriously.

The driver caught one attacker and handed him over to police, the Army said.

"It seems as though the attack was organized," the spokesman said. "Everything happened together. There were 10 petrol bombs in the air at once." Londonderry was calm before and after the ambush.

Until last month, the British force that came to Northern Ireland in August 1969 to put down Protestant-Catholic rioting had not lost a man. But today's victim was the third in a month and the third peacekeeper killed during a violent weekend. IRA machine-gun fire brought down six unarmed policemen Saturday morning, and two died from their wounds.

Their deaths prompted pressure on Prime Minister James Callaghan to arm the police. He called his police-army security committee into session Sunday, but the committee decided to leave them unarmed.

Since the traditional political and economic rivalry between Northern Ireland's Protestant majority and Catholic minority escalated into street fighting and worse in August 1969, 45 persons have been officially listed as killed, including the three soldiers and five policemen. Unofficial estimates put the dead at more than 50, about evenly divided between Catholics and Protestants.

The violence stemmed originally from a Roman Catholic campaign two years ago for an end to political and economic discrimination by the Protestant majority. But the outlawed IRA has turned the fighting into a crusade to end British rule of the six Protestant counties of Northern Ireland and unite them with the Catholic Irish Republic.

In the Republic, an IRA organizer was kidnapped, beaten and dumped from a car near Dublin. Donal Reynolds, 30, a schoolteacher, said his kidnap was an assassination attempt but he knew of no motive. He discounted early police speculation that it was the result of rivalry between the two factions into which the IRA has split.

Reynolds was hospitalized with head cuts, bruises and a broken ankle. Police arrested a man from Northern Ireland and one from the Irish Republic Sunday night on charges of assaulting him.

Reynolds is a member of Sinn Fein, a recognized political party in the Republic that is an outgrowth of the banned IRA.

Volpe Says SST Is Too Close To Be Killed Off Now By Foes

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Accusing supersonic transport opponents of "at times almost hysterical sloganeering," Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe said today America is too close to proving the plane with actual test flights to kill it now.

The best way to answer charges that SSTs will blot out the sun, cause skin cancer, shatter eardrums, melt icecaps and disturb animal life is the current program to build and test fly two SST prototypes, Volpe told Congress.

Ten years and $1.1 billion have been invested in that program, Volpe said, and the test flights are scheduled for 1973.

Volpe's case before the House appropriations subcommittee for a full $290 million to keep the SST prototype program on schedule launched a full week of SST hearings in the House and Senate.

A House vote on whether to halt funds and possibly kill the U.S. SST program could come in two weeks. Congress is supposed to make a final decision by the end of the month.

Volpe accused SST opponents of the same kind of "get a horse philosophy" that greeted automobiles, and the sewing machine, steamboat and airplane. He said American technology has overcome the SST's noise problem—the government announced last week a breakthrough toward an engine as quiet as present jetliners—and said he is confident it can overcome any environmental problems as well.

But if the test flights and current environmental research show the SST will do "irreparable harm to our environment," Volpe said:

Contributed To A Deputy

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Residents of the Fayetteville area showed over the weekend that somebody care about what happens to policemen.

People contributed more than $10,000 to a fund for a wounded deputy sheriff, Harley M. Canada.

The Cumberland County deputy was shot in the stomach while investigating a robbery several weeks ago. He was put on the intensive care list at a Fayetteville hospital over the weekend. He had been improving until then.

The fund was sponsored by radio station WFLB of Fayetteville through a marathon broadcast. The broadcast, which started at midnight Friday and lasted through midnight Sunday, originated from a trailer parked outside the Cumberland County courthouse.

Participants in the broadcasts included Highway Patrol Chief Col. Edwin Guy, State Bureau of Investigation Director Charles Dunn and Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan.

Morgan drove to Fayetteville from his hometown of Lillington Sunday afternoon with $100 from residents of the Hornett County community.

"I will do everything possible to ensure that a U.S. SST does not fly in commercial service—and this is a commitment I make on behalf of this administration."

Volpe said it is inconceivable America would give up its world aviation lead and said leaving SST production to other countries would cost $50,000 direct American jobs and $22 billion impact on world balance of payments over 12 years.

Opponents get their hearing Tuesday and will emphasize both the alleged hazards to the environment and disputed reports the British-French Concorde is in trouble, giving America no competition to match other than the Soviet Tupolev-144, which is scheduled for its first commercial flight late this year.

The hearings, three days in the House and then two in the Senate, are on the administration's request for full $290 million funding this year to keep the SST alive.

RALEIGH (AP) — The value of building permits issued in North Carolina's 36 largest cities nearly doubled in January, 1971, according to State Labor Commissioner Frank Crane.

Crane said in a release issued today that permits totalling more than $46.6 million were issued by the Tar Heel cities in January, 1971, compared with $24.4 million in Jan. 1970, an increase of 92 per cent.

Eight North Carolina cities reported permits of more than a million dollars for the month. The list was led by Charlotte, followed by Wilmington, Raleigh and Greensboro.

Airfield Rare, African Pilots 'Fly Anywhere'

SHADRACK OLE SAINEPU, chief pilot and operations officer for "Wings Over Africa" points to Kenya on a map of Africa. (UPI Telephoto)

By DONALD E. MULLEN
NEW YORK (UPI)—Shadrack Ole Sainepu is the kind of bush pilot who would make veteran fliers in Alaska's back country doff their helmets.

He and his group of seven other pilots fly supply missions throughout Kenya and into neighboring East African countries in overloaded, single-engine planes that rarely know the luxury of a real airstrip.

They land on roads, on hacked-out stretches of jungle, or on rock-strewn strips of semi-desert, their little Cessna 206s crammed with everything from medicines, radio equipment, doctors, patients, health, educational and agricultural teams, to mail, food and critical bush supplies.

Their outfit is "Wings over Africa," a non-profit organization which utilizes light aircraft as a development tool. It is dedicated to aiding the hundreds of native settlements in the vast jungle and arid regions of East Africa where roads are either nonexistent or passable only part of the year.

Shadrack Ole Sainepu is a tall, proud member of the Masai Tribe. He is also a well-educated, articulate Kenyan who at 31 is the chief pilot and operations officer for "Wings."

On Mercy Mission
He arrived in New York this month on another mercy mission—looking for more pilots and more money to buy planes, spare parts and equipment.

"We're looking for individuals with an interest in Africa," he explained in his clipped English. "Everyone volunteers—we can't pay any wages. "Our volunteer pilots must fly as co-pilots for three months. Our maps are not up to date, and they must learn to adopt various ways of navigation. They've got to learn to hedge-hop looking for familiar landmarks. They must know how to fly around sandstorms, and how to survive—what not to eat and what not to drink."

Sainepu is the first Masai pilot. He still commutes as often as possible to his home in the plains area near Mt. Kilimanjaro where his wife and relatives live in their "boma," or family community village.

He explained that "Wings over Africa" was organized in the United States in 1962. The funds it raises through appeals only make up part of operating expenses. The rest comes from Kenyan government subsidies.

143 Settlements Served
Operating out of Nairobi, "Wings" pilots regularly service 143 settlements. "We don't count the little bush communities," he said. "When the government needs to get something to such and such we look at a map and usually it's not there."

"We locate it by following cattle or camel tracks and then send someone in to get a desert or jungle strip cleared. The chief will tell the people to make a runway, but many of them have never seen a plane. They know nothing about wind direction or air strip length."

"The first time you land everyone in a village, along with camels and goats, is usually standing in the middle of the runway watching.

The issues last week had declined after a news report — subsequently not confirmed — that Libya was going to take over the interest of foreign oil companies. Tires Will Have A Lot Of Glass

NEW YORK (UPI)—There will be a lot of glass on American roads and highways next year—in glass-belted tires, that is. More than half the passenger tires produced in 1970 will be reinforced with Fiberglas belts, according to Alan R. Kerivan, an Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. vice president.

Kerivan says more than 100 million of the glass-belted tires will be produced in 1970. This compares with the 20,000 made in 1966. Tire manufacturers report that the longer life, added strength, and improved performance of the Fiberglas-belted tires are the main reasons for the industry-wide switch.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Sens. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., and Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, have received the Herbert H. Lehman Ethics Award of the Jewish Theological Seminary.

Graduation At Rose High Set For May 28

Graduation exercises for Rose High School seniors will be held Friday, May 28, according to an announcement made jointly by principal Robert J. Alligood and City Schools Superintendent Dr. C. C. Cleetwood.

The announcement followed a meeting this morning with Tim Lieth, senior class president; Alex Allen, graduation committee chairman; and Ernest Adams, Jr., Student Body president.

Dr. Cleetwood emphasizes the change in graduation date does not affect the school calendar for other events. Easter holidays remain unchanged, and the final day of school for students is still Monday, May 31.

The Baccalaureate program will be held on Sunday, May 23. Tuesday, June 1, is the final date of activities for teachers.

The change in graduation date is the result of a request by seniors for a Friday graduation. The proposal was studied by Dr. Cleetwood and Alligood, in coordination with the student leaders, under an authorization granted earlier by the Greenville City School Board.

War Memorial Museum Looted

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Some $50,000 worth of war souvenirs, including many operable machine guns and other weapons, have been taken from the War Memorial Museum of Virginia by what police called professional operators.

The burglary occurred Saturday night or early Sunday, police said, and the haul included machine guns, pistols, rifles, bayonets, banners, uniforms, brass buckles, medals, flags and insignia.

Museum curator J. Carther Watson said one medal, the World War I British Victory Cross, was valued at $5,000 to $6,000. The museum does not carry burglary insurance, Watson said, because of the difficulty in placing a value on the items kept in the building.

"I have placed a $50,000 estimate on our loss," he said, "but what can one say is the value of something that cannot be replaced?"

Watson said he believed one of the burglars was hiding in the museum when it was closed at 5 p.m. Saturday. He said the facility has been aware of the need for a night watchman but "our budget has not permitted us to hire such personnel."

The museum, established in 1923 by a local American Legion post, became the War Memorial Museum of Virginia at the time the first building was constructed in 1941. The facility, doubled in size in 1964, is operated by the city through a board of trustees.

Its entire operating budget comes from the Newport News city budget.

Spiders May Be Required To Top Indians 5th Time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Basketball coaches often talk about the difficulty of beating a team three times in one season, but what about five — which is what William and Mary's Indians could be called on to do if they and Richmond's Spiders survive the opening round of the Southern Conference tournament.

The Indians clinched second place in the regular season standings by trouncing the Spiders 103-82 Saturday night in their fourth meeting — two in the regular season following two scraps in the Virginia Big Five tournament that opened the campaign for both.

"Next time we play, we better bring brass knuckles," said William and Mary coach Warren Mitchell, whose Indians who finished 7-3 in league play behind Davidson at 9-1 — will tackle No. 7 Virginia Military Institute, 1-11, in the tournament's 5 p.m. opener Thursday in Charlotte, N.C.

Richmond, which finished sixth at 3-9, takes on East Carolina's No. 3 Pirates, 7-4, at 9 p.m. The 7 p.m. game of the tripleheader sends No. 4 The Citadel, 6-5, against No. 5 Furman, 5-5. East Carolina gained third by trouncing The Citadel 81-67 in Saturday night's other league scrap.

Friday's semifinals send the W&M-VMI and Richmond-ECU winners against each other at 7 p.m. and Davidson, which earned a first-round bye, against The Citadel-Furman victory at 9. The finals will be at 8 p.m. Saturday with the winner earning the league title and NCAA playoff berth.

Richmond lost twice to East Carolina during the regular season, but Coach Lewis Mills undoubtedly would like another shot at William and Mary. He felt the Indians were trying to run the score up on the Spiders with a pressing defense at the end of Saturday night's meeting.

"They hadn't pressed the whole game," said Mills. "But if they want a million, let them have a million. I'm not mad, but I've never tried to humiliate anyone."

Tom Jasper had 25 points and 13 rebounds, Steve Dodge 24 points and Jim Wams 14 rebounds for the Indians, who shot 47 per cent and hit 27 of 32 free throw tries. Mike Anastasio had 20 points for the Spiders.

East Carolina went ahead of The Citadel after the first 11 minutes and never let the Bulldogs get closer than seven points in the second half. Dave Franklin had 19 points for ECU, Mike Ruddle 15 for the Bulldogs.

A regionally televised game saw Davidson edge Cincinnati 70-67 as the Wildcats made good on 19 of 28 free throws in the second half while taking just 15 shots at the basket and hitting eight. Joe Sutter put Davidson ahead for good with seven minutes left and finished with 22 points.

Furman's Paladins dropped their regular season finale to Georgia Tech 81-66 as Jim Thorne had 25 points and Rich Yunkus 20. Jerry Martin had 16 and Russ Hunt 13 for Furman.

Last Week For ACC Cage Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The last week of the regular basketball season begins Tuesday night for four Atlantic Coast Conference teams, two of which are fighting for first division berths in next week's tournament.

Maryland is at Wake Forest for "Charlie Davis Night," and Clemson visits Duke.

The Deacons will retire the No. 12 Davis has worn at Wake Forest when the senior guard, the ACC's leading scorer, ends his sparkling college career this year. Pregame ceremonies honoring the 6-foot-1 playmaker will precede the Terp-Deacon clash.

Wake Forest is currently fourth in the league with a 6-6 mark and two games to go. It is a half-game ahead of Virginia and a game behind Duke, which is 7-5. In the first game with Maryland, the Terps won, 72-71.

The fourth-place team plays No. 5 in the opening round of the three-day tournament, which begins March 11 at Greensboro, N.C.

Duke, like Wake Forest only two games from the end of its regular season, should have an easy time with Clemson. In their earlier meeting the Blue Devils romped to an 82-56 triumph.

In a six-team schedule, Saturday, the current ACC leaders all won.

North Carolina captured at least a tie for the regular season title with a narrow, 75-74 triumph over Virginia at Charlottesville; second-place South Carolina romped over N.C.

State a Raleigh, 82-69; Duke beat independent Seton Hall in New York City, 82-69.

But seventh-place Maryland lost to independent West Virginia, 83-81.

Crucial games are on tap this week for North Carolina, whose 10-2 mark is its best since the NCAA finalist squad of 1968-69. First comes a clash with N.C. State at Chapel Hill Wednesday night, then the Tar Heels go to Durham for the traditional meeting with Duke Saturday afternoon.

South Carolina can keep pace with the Tar Heels by winning over Wake Forest Saturday night, but only two North Carolina losses and a Gamecock win can give the seventh-ranked squad of Frank McGuire's the regular season crown again.

If North Carolina wins over either opponent, it will play last-place Clemson in the final game of the tournament's first round. Other match-ups will be the second team against No. 7 and the third place finisher against the fifth-ranked squad.

Drawings, if necessary, will be held Sunday to resolve ties.

After Saturday's slam-bang battle with the Cavaliers, North Carolina Coach Dean Smith noted: "We did something no other ACC team has done. We came to Charlottesville and won."

It was the first home loss in 10 games for Virginia, which surprised the league earlier by knocking off South Carolina, among others, at home.

"That was a fun game," the relieved Tar Heel coach continued. "Both teams did what they like to do."

The Cavaliers nearly pulled an upset on the nationally ranked visitors. Dennis Wuycik hit a pair of three-point plays late in the game to give the Tar Heels a three-point lead they clung to, despite frantic efforts by the pesky Virginians.

The South Carolina victory over the Wolfpack came in the second half. N.C. State trailed by only one at halftime but fell behind by 13 early in the second period. Ed Leftwich of the Wolfpack had blitzed the Gamecocks early but was dogged steadily by Tom Owens later on and that was the difference.

However, John Roche was all the offensive punch South Carolina needed as he pumped in 37 points.

Duke's win over Seton Hall was its sixth in a row, while Maryland dropped its 10th of the year at West Virginia.

game, it would be very disappointing if we didn't get an NIT bid," said Memphis State Coach Gene Bartow after the Tigers pounded Wichita State 85-77 Saturday night and threw the Missouri Valley Conference race into turmoil.

Memphis, with an 18-7 record, is 8-5 in the Missouri Valley race and still has a chance to catch front-running Louisville, 8-4. Winner of the conference gets an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament—something Bartow wouldn't turn down, either.

Another club which hopes to join Memphis State in New York this month is UC-Santa Barbara, with a 20-6 record against some pretty tough competition.

"Our problem is one of identity," said UC-Santa Barbara Coach Ralph Barkey. "People don't know who we are. But we have made overtures to the Eastern people and we are hopeful of an NIT bid."

The Gauchos, finishing with their best record in history, wound up second to Long Beach State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. The champions probably will go the NCAA playoffs, leaving the door open for Santa Barbara in the NIT.

But the California club, which has beaten Memphis State and Louisiana Tech, a highly-ranked small college power, will have to beat back Hawaii's bid in its Far West bailiwick. Hawaii is having one of its best years with a 22-4 record.

LIGHT HEAVIES EXAMINED — Dr. Frank C. Colizzo takes a look in the eye of light heavyweight champion Bob

Foster during a pre-fight examination as challenger Hal Carroll looks on. (AP Wirephoto)

Light Heavy Champion Is A Disillusioned Man

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Bob Foster is disillusioned with the light-heavyweight championship.

"I'll fight anybody if they'll put the money up," said Foster after arriving here for his Tuesday night title defense against Hal "TNT" Carroll, of Syracuse, N.Y.

"Nobody wants to put money up," said the 6-foot-3 Foster.

Foster was trying to explain why he had to fight for "peanuts" in Scranton while only six days later Mohammed Ali and Joe Frazier met for the heavyweight title for $2.5 million each.

Then why did he have to guarantee Dick Tiger $100,000 in 1968 to get a shot at the 175 pound championship?

"They knew I'd beat Tiger. That's why it cost me," Foster said. "These guys (today's light-heavyweights) know they can't beat me. They sit around and rely on the WBA to snatch the title for them."

That's exactly what the World Boxing Association did. It decided that Foster hadn't defended his title within a reasonable time against a worthy opponent. The WBA said it would recognize as champion the winner of last Saturday night's bout between Vicente Rondon of Venezuela and Jimmy Dupree of Jersey City, N.J.

Rondon, the second-ranked light-heavy, knocked out Dupree, the top-rated challenger, in the sixth of a scheduled 15-rounder. That made him champion in the eyes of the WBA.

Foster said something that meant rubbish. "The WBA," he added, "means nothing to me. They can't take nothing away. I'm still champ until beaten in the ring."

Nicklaus Wins PGA, Has Big Sweep On His Mind

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Nobody has ever won the PGA, U.S. Open, Masters and British Open in the same year.

Jack Nicklaus has it on his mind.
"I've got one leg and I'm thinking about the Masters," he said. "And, that's a golf course

I know I can play."

The svelte Golden Bear shot 73 Sunday for a seven-under-par 281 total to win the 53rd Professional Golfers Association Championship at the tough PGA National Golf Club.

"Normally, I head for the Masters trying to get a first leg on the Big Four," said the 31-year-old fairways giant. "This time I've got the first leg."

The PGA, normally the last of the Big Four events in August, was moved to February for one time only.

The Masters comes up in April at Augusta, Ga., the U.S. Open is scheduled at Merion Country Club at Ardmore, Pa., in June and the British Open at Royal Birkdale at Southport, England, in July.

"I've only played one series at Merion, but it was a doozy," said Nicklaus. "I'm sure if I go over and work hard, I can play Royal Birkdale."

Merion, one of the nation's classic courses, was the site of Ben Hogan's victory in the 1951 U.S. Open. Bantam Ben shot a four-round total of 287.

Nicklaus played Merion as an amateur. His 72-hole aggregate was an astounding 268, 19 shots better than Hogan.

Hogan won the Masters, U.S. Open and British Open in 1953, then didn't enter the PGA. The latter was a match play event in those days and Hogan preferred medal play, so he stayed home.

Arnold Palmer was the latest threat to score the Grand Slam in one year. The golfing idol from Pennsylvania took the Masters and U.S. Open and then lost in Britain to Australian Kel Nagel during a rain-delayed final round.

"All pro golfers try to set themselves apart from the rest," said Nicklaus. "The major championships do this. I've got 11 now and want to win more than anybody who ever lived."

Bobby Jones is the leader with 13. Nicklaus and Walter Hagen have 11 and Palmer, eight.

Nicklaus' road to Sunday's PGA triumph was a bit rocky. The Ohio Bomber bogeyed three of the opening five holes and by one shot on several occasions.

"I wasn't ever really worried," he said. "I knew if I did my part, I would win."

Nicklaus began the day with a four-stroke lead over Gary Player, five on Gibby Gilbert and seven shots over the other also-rans.

As it turned out, Billy Casper, a two-time U.S. Open king, made a charge at the end to finish two behind Nicklaus and 52-year-old smooth swinger Tommy Bolt shot a closing 69 to take third at 284.

"I never looked at the names, only the numbers on the scoreboard," Nicklaus said. "I knew where I stood."

Nicklaus' putting keyed his 11th major championship and the tip that made it possible came during a friendly bridge game eight days ago.

"Deane Beman told me I wasn't finishing my backswing on putts," Nicklaus said. "He helped me before. I stopped playing bridge and went outside at 11 p.m. to hit some balls on the AstroTurf around my pool."

That moonlight episode spurred Nicklaus to his "best putting tournament ever" in a week where his key shots on the green kept the long hitter from Columbus a step ahead of the field.

Casper, who leaves today for a golfing trip to Morocco where he'll play as guest of King Hassan II, sat in the press tent as Nicklaus birdied the 17th hole and parred No. 18 to win by two.

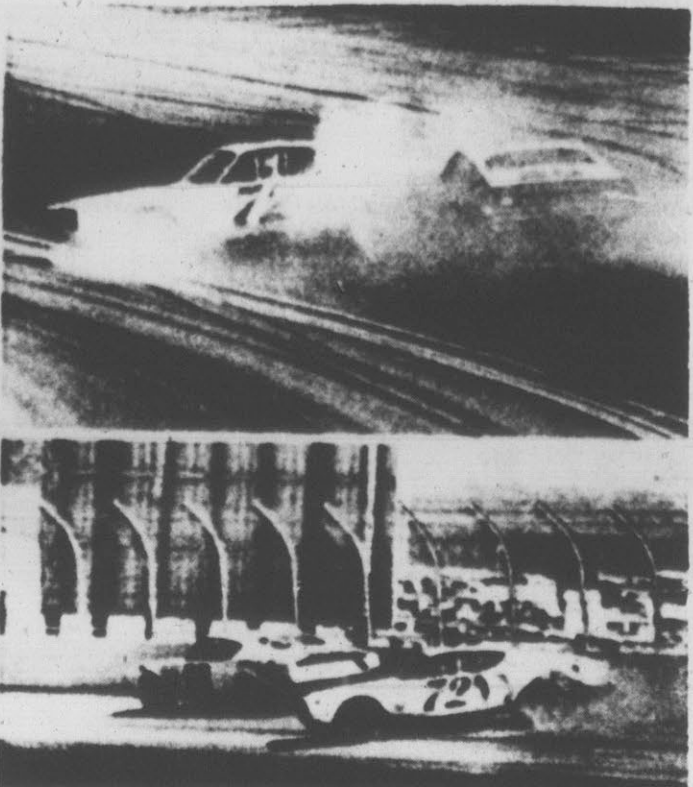

"I figured I'd be a couple short," said Casper. "I began the day with the idea that a good round might enable me to finish second. It did."

Bolt, owner of the Tommy Bolt Golden Tee Golf course in Sarasota, Fla., was a hot putter himself Sunday. The craggy-faced one time temper king of the tour used only 28 strokes on the greens.

Behind the front three were Miller Barber and Player at 285 and Gibby Gilbert, Dave Hill and Jim Jamieson at 286. Defending champion Dave Stockton tied for 40th place at six-over-par 294.

OFF COURSE IN MILLER 500 — A 1969 Mercury driven by Benny Persons of Detroit is smacked in the rear as it goes into a spin during Sunday's inaugural running of the Miller 500 for stock cars in Ontario, Calif., but survived and continued in the race to finish ninth. It was struck by Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico before spinning around the apron and going up to hit the outside wall. (AP Wirephoto)

Foyt And Brothers Put It All Together For First Miller 500

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Texan A. J. Foyt and the Wood Brothers put it all together in fine style for a hard-fought lucrative victory in the first Miller-500 Grand National race for stockcars.

The face, in bright sunshine and balmy weather, on the new Ontario Motor Speedway high-oval course, earned the veteran driver prize and lap money totaling $51,800. It drew 78,000 spectators.

Foyt piloted a thoroughly prepared 1969 Mercury that seemed never to falter during the grueling 3-hour 43-minute race Sunday. The machine was prepared and serviced by the expert Wood Brothers—one of the world's best pit crews.

The reputation was tested just before the race's half way point, when Foyt's crew scurried to put on two tires and add 20 gallons of fuel in just 18.2 seconds.

Second, and winning $15,150 for the effort, was Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., followed by Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., who earned $11,950.

The veteran winner had bested the best of NASCAR's drivers on the new $25.5 million course. His average speed—134.168 m.p.h.

Foyt, one of the winningest drivers the sport has ever known, beat Baker across the finish line by only 8.5 seconds, with Petty trailing by another 11 seconds. One of the day's biggest chunks of bad luck hit Petty with less than 50 miles to go. He was leading with Foyt a half lap behind when he dived behind the wall to make a pit stop.

He missed his own pit by several feet and was forced to drive around the track and try again. During this second attempt he was passed by Foyt, who never gave back the lead.

Placing in order behind Petty were 1970 Grand National Champion Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., Dick Brooks of Porterville, Calif., LeeRoy Yarbrough of Columbia, S.C.

"Race driving is getting to be hard work, but I get the same kick out of winning as I did 15 years ago," Foyt said.

"And it always helps the adrenalin when you win a big one like this," said the 37-year-old three-time national driving champion from Houston.

As for the prize money, Foyt declared: "Money is good, I don't deny that. But racing is hard, and it gets harder as the years go by. New drivers come along and they get better with less experience than they did when I came into the sport."

Discussing the condition and layout of the new track, Foyt said: "They say this speedway wasn't built for stock car racing but let me tell you, it's a wild race track for any type of machinery. It was one of the best races I have ever driven."

Petty never held worst than fifth place all day. The engine of the Blue Plymouth blew apart at the finish line. Another spectacular moment came when Fred Lorenzen's Plymouth lost its engine, spewing fire down the track as he smashed the car into the wall. He commented later: "The fire blinded me momentarily as I headed for the wall. That's all I could do. It was getting hot in there."

Lorenzen, of Elmhurst, Ill., escaped without injuring anything but his feelings. He had been one of the toughest competitors pursuing Foyt and held the lead for 42 laps before being zapped from contention.

Hawaii U. Upset By Centenary

HONOLULU (AP) — Centenary handed the University of Hawaii its first-home court defeat in 21 games Saturday, beating the Rainbows 67-66.

Centenary led most of the way, making only 48 field goals attempts, but hitting more than half of them. Hawaii shooting was erratic as the Rainbows hit on only 36 per cent of their attempts from the floor.

The loss was Hawaii's fourth this season against 22 wins. The victory upped Centenary's season record to 13-12.

Centenary held a 34-31 advantage at the end of the first half. Hawaii stayed in the game for the first four minutes of the second half, but fell behind after Centenary's Fred Zitar dropped in a pair of free throws.

Centenary's Larry Davis was the top scorer with 20 points. Bob Nash led Hawaii with 18.

Conducting with inimitable style and conviction makes Mrs. McElwee a winner.

Mrs. McElwee in action with her young players.

Leader of the Band

Mrs. Ileane McElwee is not just an instrumental music instructor—she's the topmost woman school band leader in the nation. The honor is awarded by the National Band Masters Association, Chicago, of which she's a founder member.

For 10 years, Mrs. McElwee has been happily and wholeheartedly promoting the cause of music and instrument playing at Rio Vista and Sierra Vista elementary schools in Phoenix, Ariz.

As a student herself she learned to play all 16 band instruments, all percussion and all strings. With her own students she's a firm taskmaster, but she teaches with love. "I claim all the youngsters as my own," she says. And so she buys them reeds, gets them home after parades, rouses them for 7 a.m. practices, gives them soup and sympathy.

Her marching band of 167 children from both schools is her pride and joy. Wherever they march, Mrs. McElwee marches too, in spirit and in fact.

Eight Injured In City Mishaps

Eight persons were reported injured in three traffic mishaps investigated here yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported six of the injuries resulted from a four-car collision about 3 p.m. at the intersection of Dickinson and Line Avenues.

Drivers involved in the collision were identified as Eloise East of Farmville, Oscar Grimes Jr., 24, of Route 2, Greenville, Brenda Smith Jackson, 22, of 119 North Elm St., and Jessie Daniels Jr., 51, of 1208B Davenport St.

Officers, who charged Daniels with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, said Daniels, Miss Jackson, Grimes and three passengers in the Grimes car were injured in the chain reaction mishap.

Damage was estimated at $400 to the East car, $700 each to the Grimes and Jackson vehicles and $600 to the Daniels car.

Matthew Donovan Phillips Jr., 29, of 204 Contentnea St. was reported injured when his car collided with a vehicle driven by Cornelius Mitchell, 45, of 1218 Clark St. about 1 p.m. on Pitt Street, 50 feet South of the Arthur Street intersection. Officers estimated damage to the Phillips car at $1,000 and set damage to the Mitchell auto at $600.

Mitchell was charged by investigators with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety and with driving while his license was revoked.

June Holton Owens of Grifton was reported injured in a 9:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Evans Street and U.S. 264.

The Owens car, officers reported, collided with a car driven by Richard F. Glisson, 37, of Route 5, Greenville.

Damage to the Owens car was set at $900 while damage to the Glisson car was placed at $350. Mrs. Owens was reported injured in the collision.

Need And Use Freezer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Freezers in Alaska? Sure.

Last summer, 19 remote Alaska villages were equipped with electric power, reports Alis-Chalmers, diesel generator maker. And some of that power is going to coastal fisheries to operate flash freezers to preserve fish for shipment to market.

The villages, inhabited by Eskimos, Aleuts, and Indians, and many near the Arctic Circle, use generators housed in small prefabricated buildings that rest on timber foundations.

Worry Clinic Challenges Are An Opportunity

Rev. Jerome is in a dilemma. Like many other successful men, he is tempted to "coast" along comfortably on the "status quo." But that is not God's will for us. Earth is just one of possibly many classrooms in God's Cosmic School System. So we should accept legitimate challenges and keep in gear!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case P-584: Rev. Jerome, aged 28, uses Christ's superb Applied Psychology.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I studied your textbook, 'Psychology Applied,' while in college.

"So when I came to this city of 20,000 and took over a small congregation, I had a splendid chance to test many of your newspaper recommendations. "Thus, I immediately began using Christ's parable formula for sermons.

"At Board Meetings of our deacons, I also circumvented many hot debates by your 'Sandwich Methods.'

"But your stress on naming a minimum of 3 parishioners in each sermon, really capped the climax!

"Although I have been here only 6 years, our membership has risen from 250 to 1,200.

"So I now have been invited to take another church with 2,800 members.

"It is in a college town where our denomination maintains a small church college.

"Things are running so smoothly here that I wonder if the Lord would want me to change. What do you advise?"

Accept Challenges

The Lord wants us to accept legitimate challenges, for that's how we stay in gear and continue growing in ability.

Coasting along on the successful "status quo" is not the way to produce our maximum contributions to the world nor to our own personality development.

So I urged Rev. Jerome to take over the new parish, with its greater challenges.

"Besides," I added, "we need more evangelistic preachers like you in our college towns.

"Too many clergymen in campus areas try to impress the Ph.D. professors in the pews but fail to keep young people interested and enthusiastic."

Then I told him about a famous newspaper editor named Walter Morrow, who launched this column in the Scripps-Howard chain of newspapers while he was at Akron.

Later, he was editor at Columbus, Ohio, and from there he took over the reins at Denver. "Dr. Crane," he confessed, "you may wonder why I pulled up stakes at Columbus to come out here.

"For you knew I was surrounded by many friends back in Ohio and had everything running along smoothly.

"But I have evolved my own personal code of conduct. And it forbids me to coast on the status quo."

"So I knew I'd be forced to get into gear and work much harder at this Colorado paper.

"And I realized that only in this manner would I reach new goals in my own personal development.

"Though I would selfishly preferred to stay at Columbus, I realized that I must come out here if I wished to continue growing in experience and the ability required of a topnotch editor."

Well, I have always admired Walter Morrow's attitude, so I passed it along to Rev. Jerome. Life down here in this classroom in God's Cosmic School System demands that we keep struggling upward!

So grit your teeth and be grateful for new challenges! Don't coast!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

WILMINGTON (UPI) — The Brunswick River Bridge, damaged nearly two weeks ago by an oil barge, has been reopened for two-way traffic.

The State Highway Department had limited traffic to one-lane, and because the bridge is the only direct route west out of Wilmington motorists had encountered delays of as much as 30 minutes.

Farm Scene

By S. J. WEEKS

Agricultural pesticides play an important role in our present day agricultural economy. These pesticides (insecticides, fungicides, nematocides, and herbicides) are often considered as a production tool. In addition to helping produce good quality agricultural commodities, they quite often help save on labor costs. When misused, they can cause harmful effects to humans, animals, and plants.

It is imperative that safety precautions be used when handling and applying pesticides. The label on the pesticide container should be read thoroughly before the container is opened. This should be done everytime the pesticide is applied. All application equipment should be checked for leaks, clogged lines, nozzles and strainers.

Different pesticides have different chemical formulations which means that some are more toxic to humans than others. The label will suggest precautions to follow which will help prevent chemical injury to the person handling a specific pesticide. The label also indicates which crop or crops that can be safely treated with a given pesticide. Keep the pesticide in the original labeled container at all times.

Pesticides should be kept out of the reach of children, preferably in a locked room or shed. It should also be kept away from feed and other farm supplies.

Empty containers usually contain small amounts of pesticides which could be harmful to humans and animals. All empty containers should be disposed of by burying at least 18 inches in isolated areas provided for this purpose away from water supplies.

If a person becomes poisoned by a pesticide, a physician should be contacted immediately. Inform the physician of the active material in the pesticide so that he can administer the correct antidote. If the physician is not familiar with a specific pesticide antidote, this information can be obtained from one of the Official Poison Control centers. The nearest poison control center is at the Onslow Memorial Hospital in Jacksonville, N.C. 24-hour service is available for consultant work at the Poison Control Center at Duke University Hospital in Durham.

Remember to always STOP and read the label before using any pesticide.

Tobacco TIPS

By SAM WEEKS

Adequate amounts of the proper fertilizer is an important factor in producing a good yield of quality tobacco. Over-fertilization, however, will produce unsatisfactory quality and a reduction in the value of the crop.

Soils differ in their productive capacity and in their fertility level. Therefore, careful attention should be given to the physical and chemical characteristics of the soil when determining the rate and grade of fertilizer to be used. Soil tests, crop performance history and rainfall patterns are helpful in estimating the fertilizer and lime requirements of a specific field.

Nitrogen is one of the key elements in the production of quality tobacco. A low level of total nitrogen will result in a low yield and quality. On the other hand, when an excess of nitrogen is used, the tobacco produced will be low in sugar, high in nicotine, undesirable in color, and generally poor in quality. The amount and form of organic matter, the texture of the surface soil and depth to the subsoil are important characteristics which influence the total amount of nitrogen required to grow a crop of good quality tobacco. As a general practice, tobacco should not be grown directly after a legume because it is difficult to predict the amount of nitrogen needed from fertilizer.

Results from experimental tests and farm demonstrations have shown that the source of nitrogen, in both preplant and side dressing fertilizers, is very important. These results show that the best quality tobacco can be grown when 60 percent or more of the total nitrogen used is in the nitrate form. This is especially true when tobacco is grown in fields that have been fumigated for nematode control.

Tobacco preplant fertilizer is available containing 50 percent nitrate nitrogen. There are several tobacco top dressing materials available that give good results. Some of these materials are 15-0-14, 15-0-15, 13-0-44. If the potash level is medium or high, nitrate of soda can be used successfully as a top-dressing material.

If you have not already had a soil test made on your tobacco fields, plan to do it soon so that you can use this important information in determining the correct fertilization program for your tobacco fields.

Stolen S.C. Mace Returned To State

COLUMBIA (AP) — The odyssey of the mace is almost over.

The solid silver instrument of authority in the South Carolina House for the past 200 or more years was returned to Columbia Sunday by Chief J. P. Strom of the State Law Enforcement Division (SLED).

The SLED officer flew the mace home "in style" from Gainesville, Fla., where FBI agents recovered it last Wednesday.

The mace disappeared from its locked case in the state House of Representatives the night of Feb. 3. FBI agents charged a former chief security guard at the Capitol, Charles Clayton Norton, with its theft.

Strom is not taking any chances of losing it before state legislators can see it again.

He said Sunday it would remain locked in SLED headquarters in Columbia until Tuesday when the legislature is back in session. Then, the odyssey of the mace will be completed, when Strom officially presents it to the House and it is put back in its glass case.

The mace was made in London in 1756 and has been used by the General Assembly since colonial days. It is carried by the House sergeant-at-arms on all official occasions.

The mace was insured for $20,000, but was considered priceless because of its historical standing.

Cigarette Profits Up Begin Strike At Lorillard

DURHAM (AP) — Cigarette companies are having unfiltered success in the face of a barrage of antismoking campaigns.

Company representatives replied to inquiries that there were profits and increased production.

Cigarette sales increased by as much as 3 per cent last year, according to surveys by Marketing Communications, Forbes and Barron's.

A Liggett & Myers spokesman said that company's $3.2 million loss through closing of a plant at Richmond, Va., late last year was not because of a decline in cigarette sales.

R. J. Reynolds Industries recorded a 2.4 per cent increase in cigarette sales last year.

Increased profits by some companies, according to Marketing Communications, was a result of price increases.

The federal government and the American Cancer Society have been waging vigorous antismoking campaigns for years. The Cancer Society says the percentage of Americans who smoke has dropped from 50 per cent in 1960 to about 35 per cent.

Tobacco sales apparently have kept up because of the increased population and better overseas sales.

GREENSBORO (AP) — Many of the production workers in the P. Lorillard Co. plant at Greensboro left their jobs at midnight Sunday.

Workers at the company's plant at Louisville, Ky., were also scheduled to strike at the same hour.

The strikers are members of Local 17 of the United Tobacco Workers Union, which makes up the bulk of the work force at the cigarette-manufacturing facility.

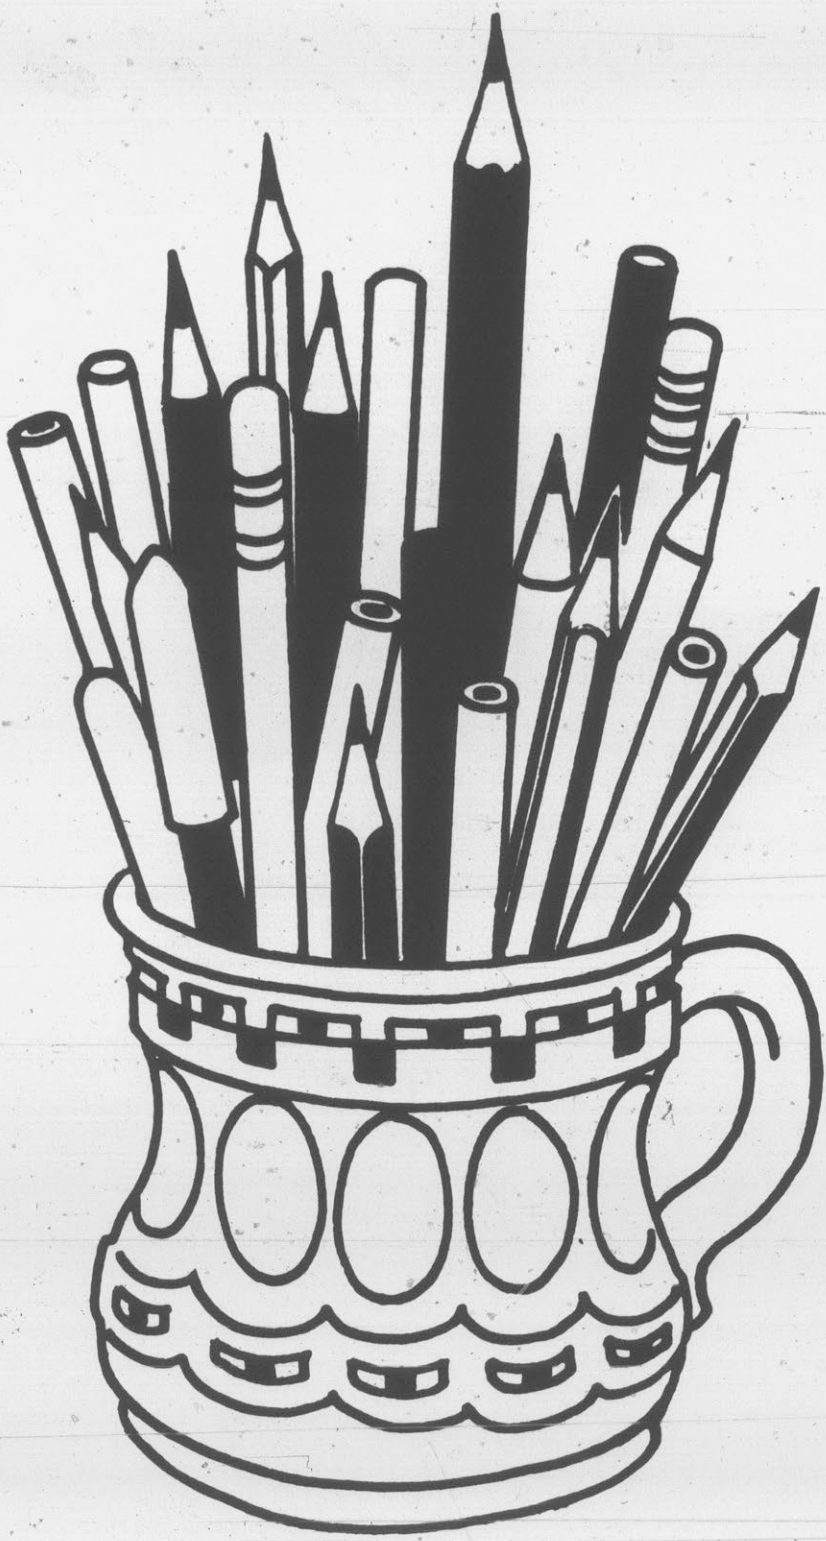

P. Lorillard makes Old Gold, Kent, Newport and True cigarettes at Greensboro.

Union president Jerry Lanford said 2,400 of the 2,500 workers voted unanimously Saturday to strike. He said the union in effect rejected a company proposal to write compulsory, binding arbitration on grievances and job classifications into a new contract.

Negotiations had been under way since January on a new pact to replace the one which expired at midnight.

Lorillard personnel director Robert G. Boliek said, "we will continue to operate with anyone who comes to work."

Three pickets began walking at the plant entrance at the midnight hour the strike began.

Seek A More Beautiful World With Rapid Transit

By JOHN LEIGHTY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Can a rapid transit subway system help make the world more beautiful? BART thinks so.

With the tunneling finished, the track two-thirds laid and the start of service getting closer, the Bay Area Rapid Transit district (BART) is appealing for a reorientation in suburban living.

Imagine traveling 30 miles in 20 minutes, relaxing in a soft lounge chair, reading a newspaper during the smooth ride and then arriving at an office or factory surrounded by grassy, quiet malls instead of jammed parking lots.

The train system linking San Francisco and the Oakland-East Bay area is scheduled to begin operation near the end of 1972. According to BART's Assistant General Manager A. L. Kimball it offers an "alternative style of mobility," with hopes it will convince commuters "to orient themselves somewhat differently."

In simpler terms, leave the family Monolithic-8 in the garage.

Acceptance Means Change

Massive acceptance of the $1.35 billion system could turn busy streets into peaceful walking areas, relieve air pollution from auto exhausts and make travel to work, schools and parks a pleasant experience.

"We've tried to approach the whole design of the system with this in mind," Kimball said. "We have to offer basically an alternative that is attractive and desirable."

Customer appeal is therefore a big item in BART's budget, with its trains and terminals plush by transit standards. The cars have carpeted floors, tinted glass windows, air conditioning and the widest seats in the transportation industry.

"We just hope that the pleasant surroundings and the first experience will make customers want to come back again," Kimball said. "We're confident this will be the case."

Visiting schools, giving lectures and taking school groups on tours of the stations is how BART is attempting to appeal to the generation most capable of accepting change.

"Young people readily adapt and are not the least bit reluctant to undergo a new experience," Kimball said.

BART officials expect trains to begin running by the middle of 1972 for a six-month testing period to remove any kinks. BART prototype electric cars already are under intensive running tests along the Southern Alameda line in the East Bay vicinity of Hayward.

Dirty Work is Done

Most of the dirty work is already done—the tube has been laid on the bottom of San Francisco Bay and the tunneling was recently completed with a final "hole-through" at the downtown San Francisco station. About 50 miles of track has been laid.

The underground "muckers," specialized in working in a compressed air environment, came through the dangerous tunnelling operation without a single fatality.

Now the job mainly goes to electrical and maintenance local authorities, and voluntary organizations will combine to produce a healthier, pleasanter Britain."

The Conservative platform promised "clearly defined aims and target-dates for the achievement of cleaner air and rivers, and for the clearance of derelict land."

Between 30,000 and 40,000 Britons die yearly because of bronchitis. At least 25 million work days are lost annually as a result of illnesses caused by air pollution. One quarter of Britain's 20,000 miles of rivers are badly polluted.

The British government has not yet taken any real action to stop water pollution. A White Paper (official report) issued by Crosland's office predicted the amount of liquid waste and sewage being dumped into Britain's rivers will double in the next 30 years.

British local authorities have increased their spending on improving sewage disposal 40 per cent since 1965, but economic conditions forced a cutback on such expenditures for a time.

Air pollution is another story. The fight is almost seven centuries old. It began in 1273 when the use of sea coals was prohibited as being "prejudicial to health." In 1306 a man was hanged for violating the ban.

Today domestic coal fires still are the major cause of air pollution here.

The white paper says coal smoke "has been proved to aggravate respiratory disease; and when it comes out of the chimneys of ordinary houses it hangs about at a low level and so people breathe more of it."

In 1952, a "pea soup" fog in London killed 4,000 people and resulted in Britain's Clean Air Act of 1956. This legislation gave local authorities the power to declare "smoke control areas" in which it is illegal to create smoke in heating a house, or any other building. London was one of the first of these "smokeless zones."

London's pea soups did not immediately disappear and in 1962 750 people died in a fog. That was the last fog crisis in the British capital, with the air getting cleaner ever since.

Not all areas of Britain have been as fortunate as London, though. Despite the Clean Air Act of 1956, and another in 1968, 23 local authorities still have no plan for pollution control. Many other authorities have plans which are not scheduled for completion until the mid-1980s.

Representatives of the 23 "black authorities" which have refused to switch from coal to smokeless fuel say the reason is economic. They say the cost of $120 to convert a home is too high. The Government absorbs 70 per cent of the transition costs.

There is another reason for not switching. Many of the people living in Britain's mining towns have sentimental attachments to coal. One official of a "black authority" said, "There's just nothing like a smoky coal fire."

In addition to this refusal to convert on the part of certain citizens and authorities, Britain's fight against domestic coal fires suffered a severe setback last winter when a shortage of smokeless fuel supplies forced 14 cities to curb their anti-pollution efforts.

Unlike the United States, Britain is not beset by serious industrial and automobile pollution. The white paper says industry has been persuaded to reduce industrial smoke. However, the paper recommends stiffer penalties for polluting the air. The report also says pollution from automobiles is not as acute here because climatic conditions differ from the United States.

Robert Boote, chairman of Europe's European Conservation Year committee said that it will take 15 years and $2.16 billion to save Britain from the dangers of what he called the "pollution age," if work starts now.

One official feels the pollution threat will "inevitably grow with the growth of population, industrialization, and the amount of waste product. So to deal with the threat as we must, we have got to run faster than ever."

But is the government running fast enough?

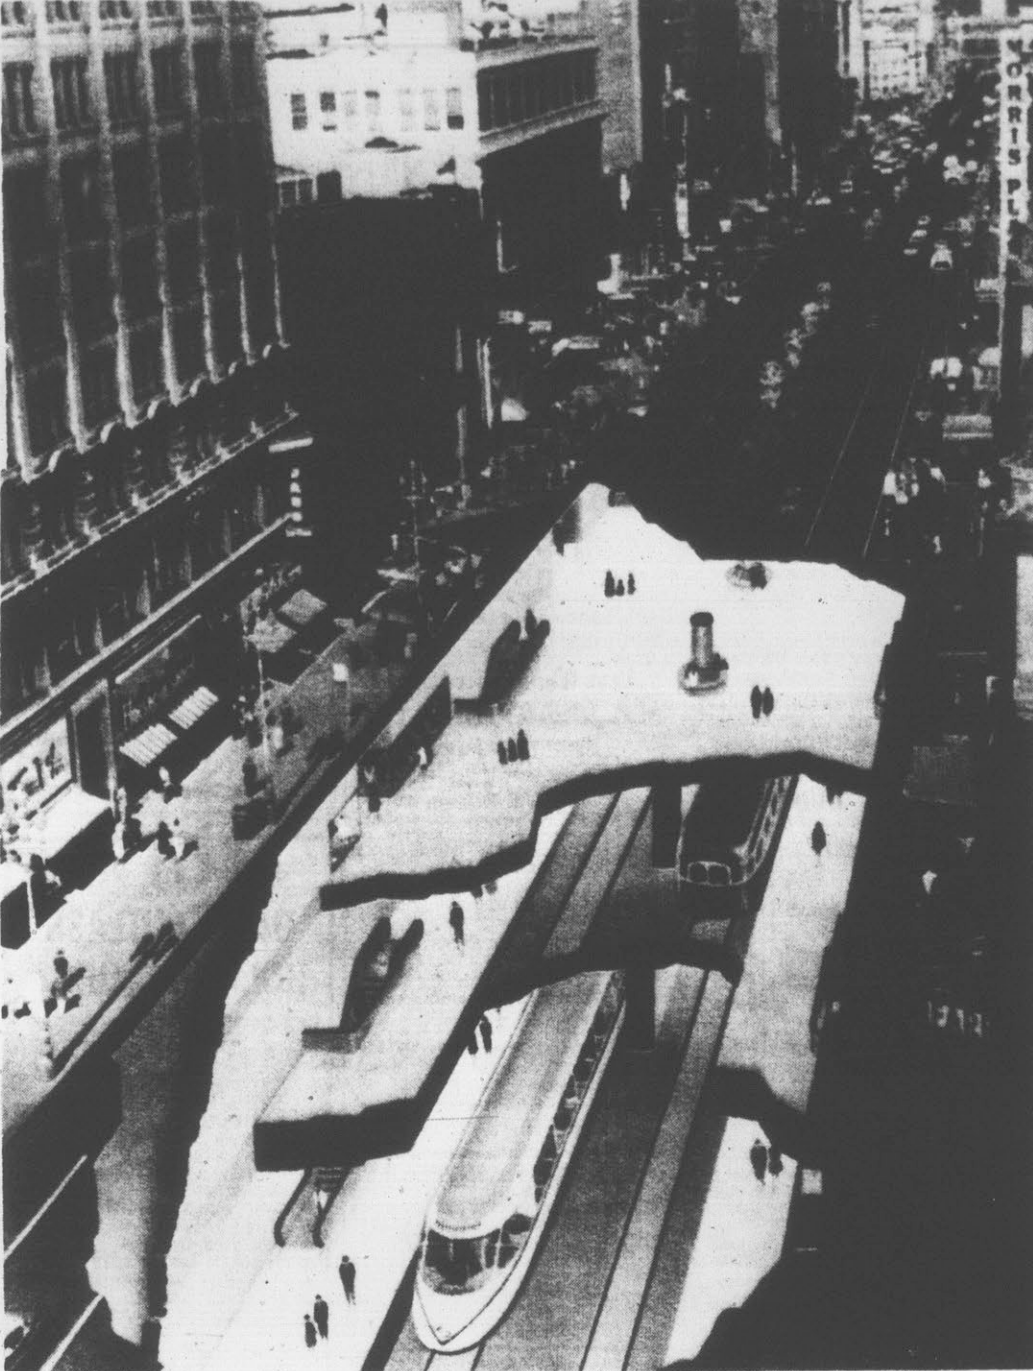

"I don't think the government really knows what it's doing," says Graham Searle, chairman of Britain's National Union of Students Committee on the Environment. "Everyone's paying lip service to the environment because right now it's a popular issue, but the government isn't confident enough to know what action it should take."

Searle's group has been organizing students into workshops, seminars, and teach-ins to inform the public about pollution.

He feels British public concern is not as great as it should be. "It is, however, on the rise," and he foresees some militant action "where a local issue is of prime importance."

Students aren't the only ones in Britain who are beginning to recognize the threat of pollution. Societies and action groups are sprouting up here and there. The Committee for Environmental Conservation, for example, was formed to provide the "proper machinery" for a united lobby against pollution, according to its chairman Lord Molson.

would be utilized by pedestrians and shops (upper level), street cars (center), and highspeed transit trains (lower). (UPI Telephoto)

"There hasn't been a bad fog in London for seven years. The removal of the smoke blanket over the city, with a much greater amount of sunshine, has been achieved at the price of a mere 36 cents a head per year. The most important, and unfortunately the most expensive part of the problem is to clean up our rivers."

The local government ministry was created to deal specifically with problems of environment as part of a mounting government attack on pollution.

But after the Conservative victory last June, the pollution ministry was merged with the housing ministry, and environmental problems are now handled by Peter Walker, secretary for the environment.

This, however, does not mean government efforts are slackening. The government has promised to "intensify the drive to remedy past damage to the environment." During the campaign, the Conservatives pledged "to launch a major campaign in which government,

19-Year-Old Is 'Church Elder'

LO JOLLA, Calif. (UPI)—At the age of 19, Ann Muilenburg has been elected an elder in the La Jolla Presbyterian Church, the youngest person so honored.

Miss Muilenburg said her idea of an elder has always been a man in his 80s with a long gray beard. The Rev. Louis Evans said an elder is a person "primarily mature in mind rather than advanced in years."
