Some Snow Flurries In Early Hours Today As Heavy Rainfall Ended

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Heavy rains yesterday — which totaled 1.54 inches for the 24-hour period ending this morning at eight o'clock — gave way first to snow flurries early this morning, then to clearing skies by sunrise.

According to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station, 1.54 inches of rain fell during yesterday and last night. Yesterday's rainfall was in addition to the 1.76 inches of precipitation that had fallen in the Greenville area for the three days prior to Wednesday.

As the rain subsided during the night, snow flurries began about 2:30 or 3 a. m. and continued off and on until just before daybreak. However, wet pavement and soggy ground prevented any trace of the light snow from lingering.

The high temperature for the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. was 57 degrees, while the low was 32 degrees. The temperature this morning at 8 a. m. was 34 degrees. The high temperature for the previous 24-hour period was 52 degrees and the low was set at 44 degrees.

The Tar River level, which stood at 5.4 feet yesterday morning, was reported at 8.3 feet and rising today.

Winds this morning at 9:30 were recorded up to 42 miles per hour.

Yesterday's rains caused water several inches deep to cover a low area of 14th Street between the Green Mill Run and the Charles Street intersection; an area of Charles Street at the Green Mill Run bridge; and an area of Deck Street at the Evans Street intersection.

The water covered sections of those streets were marked with "road closed" and "high water" signs early last night as the water began to rise over them.

Sam Weeks, tobacco specialist with the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, said there is a possibility of some water damage to tobacco plant beds.

"The extent of damage to the beds depends on how well they were drained," Weeks explained. "A large number of plant beds are planted in poor drained soils. If these beds are not drained by trenches around all four sides of the beds, there might be some damage."

Weeks said the trenches should be eight to 10 inches deep around the bed to allow the area to dry out.

"I suggest the farmers check their plant beds constantly. If the plants begin to turn yellow, the beds may need additional nitrogen top dressing," Weeks said. "If additional dressing is needed, the best to use is nitrate of soda at the rate of three to five pounds per 100 square yards."

The North Carolina Highway Commission reported high water in several places last night and that some roads had "washed out". The county roads were reported in good condition this morning.

No damage was reported by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Greenville Utilities reported no damage except for some storm water in an area of the sanitary sewer system.

Manteo Business Section Flooded

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Shifting northwesterly winds drove a wall of water off Roanoke Sound into Manteo's downtown business section today, flooding stores and blocking all traffic to nearby Hatteras Head and the North Carolina Outer Banks.

The Dare County sheriff's office said winds in excess of 65 miles an hour also sent three to six feet of water over N.C. 12, the often-washed out highway running down the sandy Outer Banks.

"We can't get to any of it to determine the extent of damage, but the causeway and the highway are blocked," Sheriff's Deputy Donis White said.

Dare County public schools were closed today as authorities waited for the water to recede.

At Cape Hatteras Coast Guard Lt. Lenwood Quidley said aircraft were being dispatched from Elizabeth City to check the Outer Banks for stranded motorists or residents of the sparsely populated area who might be in trouble.

"We have had no reports of casualties or injuries at this point," Lt. Quidley said.

The Coast Guard said preliminary surveys indicated "rather severe flooding from Hatteras all the way up to Maneto. The main highway, route 12, is inundated in most sections, all except a few very high spots."

Quidley said northwesterly winds gusting to about 60 m.-h. were hitting the Hatteras area in late morning, with the afternoon high tide still to come. "We probably will have more of the flooding late today," he said.

Dare County's public school system was closed today.

Mrs. White said downtown Manteo streets were under several feet of water at daybreak as the wind-driven tide swept onto historical Roanoke Island.

"It came up during the night and then went down. Then it came back in again this morning. The streets and sidewalks all were flooded, and the water was in the stores," Mrs. White said.

"When I came to work at 8 a.m.," the deputy said, "I took off my shoes and stocking and waded along the sidewalk. In the courthouse itself, on the first floor, the water was way up past my ankles."

She said at mid-morning the water was "still high, but it looks like it is going down. There is still some water in the stores near the waterfront."

Western N.C. Gets Up To Two Inches Of Snow

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Overnight snow left accumulations of up to two inches in the North Carolina mountains today.

East of the mountains, where some sections had surprise snow flurries during the night, it was windy and cold. And rain left rising rivers. The intense winter storm and cold front which moved through the state Wednesday prompted a tornado watch until the evening over eastern sections.

The National Weather Service said a funnel cloud was sighted aloft by aircraft 30 miles east of Fayetteville before nightfall. Northern Fayetteville suffered an estimated $4 million damage from a tornado 10 days ago.

The weather service also said a possible tornado may have touched down briefly in the Rockingham area Wednesday evening. A trailer home was reported overturned in the Pinehurst-Aberdeen area late that afternoon.

Rainfall of between one and three inches caused significant rises in streams and rivers, and some flooding was expected.

At Lumberton the Lumber River had flooded into some streets.

The highs expected today were from the upper 20s and 30s in the mountains and ranging to the 40s near the coast.

The freezing overnight lows will range from the teens in the west to the 20s in the east. It will be sunny and warmer Friday, with the highs mostly in the 40s.

The snow belt Wednesday night reached as far as Greensboro and Winston-Salem.

Still Talking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union negotiators in a nationwide railroad dispute agreed today to resume talks after a brief breakdown. They said no strike was imminent.

"If I had scheduled a strike I wouldn't tell newsmen," said President Charles Luna of the United Transportation Union.

He said negotiators, who had unexpectedly walked out of the Labor Department after 18 hours of nearly continuous, temper-fraying talks, would be back at the bargaining table at 4 p.m.

Both he and Asst. Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery said they were hopeful of a settlement.

Lighter Agenda Tonight

The agenda for the meeting of the City Council tonight at 8:00 o'clock in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Building contains fewer items of business than has been on the calendar in recent months.

Two public hearings on rezoning are scheduled; one for property on the north side of Spruce Street, and the other for the northeast corner of Oak and First Street.

David Reid, city attorney, is slated to give two reports. The first is on the status of the Greenville Foundation; the second on advantages and disadvantages of a Federal Rent Supplement program.

Others reports will include one on the ECU Student Advisory Board; and a report by City Manager Harry Hagerty on bus service. Hagerty will also present a resolution on services for aging.

The councilmen will consider a request to abandon an unopened portion of Halifax Street; a request for payment by the Greenville Art Center; payment of an adjusted bid on air conditioning at Sheppard Library; and a request for refund of property taxes listed in error.

Boycotted Paris 'Peace' Meeting Gov. Scott Asks For Spacecraft

PARIS (AP) — The chief Communist delegates boycotted the weekly session of the Vietnam peace talks today because of the Nixon administration's "acts of war" against North Vietnam.

Hanoi's Xuan Thuy and the Viet Cong's Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh sent their deputies to the 105th meeting of the deadlocked talks.

The two deputies, Nguyen Minh Vy of North Vietnam and Nguyen Van Tien of the Viet Cong told newsmen their leaders stayed away as a "sign of protest" against the Nixon administration's almost daily air attacks on North Vietnam and its "threat of invasion" north of the demilitarized zone.

South Viets Drive Deeper Into Laos

SAIGON (AP) — Hundreds of U.S. helicopters advanced South Vietnamese troops six miles deeper into Laos Wednesday and today as other Saigon troops fought off strong North Vietnamese counterattacks.

South Vietnamese field commanders said the advance put Saigon's forces 24½ miles west of the border and half a mile from Sepone, a major North Vietnamese transshipment point on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

It was the first South Vietnamese advance since Feb. 17. The American helicopters leap-frogged the South Vietnamese over the Saigon and enemy forces strung along Route 9. A South Vietnamese spokesman, Lt. Col. Le Thung Hien, said the advance opened a new front 10 miles on either side of Highway 9 and 21 to 24½ miles from the borders. But he said no contact had been made with the enemy in the new sector.

Troops of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division "are moving west," Hien told newsmen at Quang Tri.

"We are using as much as possible our air mobility. Our troops at the spearhead are broken up into infantry units of battalion size or more."

Massive airlifts continued all day out of Khe Sanh, the U.S. helicopter base near the Laotian border.

The South Vietnamese command claimed more than 400 North Vietnamese troops killed Wednesday night and today.

The fury of the war in Laos was reflected in the weekly casualty summary issued today by the allied commands. The U.S. Command reported 69 Americans killed in action last week, the highest total in six months, and 281 wounded. The South Vietnamese said their casualties were 898 killed and 2,222 wounded, the highest since the 1968 Tet offensive. And the two allied commands claimed 5,107 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed, the biggest weekly toll since the Cambodian campaign last May.

"More marines, more airborne, more infantry and more rangers are going in," Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of the South Vietnamese troops in Laos, told Associated Press correspondent J. T. Wolkstorfer at the front today.

One American field commander, a colonel, said 31 U.S. helicopters were shot down while carrying South Vietnamese into Laos Wednesday. The U.S. Command reported seven 'copters shot down and destroyed with one American killed, six missing and 10 wounded. The colonel said the other 24 were recovered or managed to fly back to Khe Sanh, on the Vietnamese side of the border.

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, visiting South Vietnamese command posts on the Vietnamese side of the border, asked for more American support for the Laotian campaign. He said there had been "discrepancies" in the U.S. air support but added, "I'm not blaming anyone."

Ky called for more raids by U.S. B52s.

Terrorist Abductors Say U.S. Airmen Face Death

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Four American airmen were kidnaped today and terrorists demanded $400,000 ransom, threatening to "put them before a firing squad" if the money wasn't delivered.

Turkish police said five armed Turks abducted the airmen early today as they patrolled around a U.S. radar base near Ankara. The terrorists forced their military car off the road, tied up the Turkish driver and drove off with the Americans.

The ransom note demanded payment of the money by late Friday afternoon.

The Americans were identified as Sgt. Jimmie J. Sexton of San Angelo, Tex., and Airmen I.C. Larry J. Heavner of Denver, Colo., Richard Caraczi of Stamford, Conn., and James M. Gholson of Alexandria, Va.

American officials said Sexton's wife is in Ankara, Heavner's is in Denver and the other two men are single.

The ransom note was delivered to the semiofficial Anatolian News Agency, which reported that three youths came to the agency office and gave the receptionist Gholson's identity card and a statement.

The statement was from a group calling itself the Turkish People's Liberation Army. The group demanded the message be read on radio and published by the news agency. It called on Turks to revolt against the country's conservative government and its membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Turkish police said they arrested one youth "near the Russian Embassy" in connection with the kidnaping. They gave no other details.

U.S. Ambassador William Handley said he was "deeply concerned" and was in touch with the Foreign Ministry and security officials.

An embassy official said no decision had been made on the ransom. He said the statement did not give instructions on how, where or to whom the money should be delivered.

It was the second kidnaping of American servicemen in Ankara this year.

On Feb. 15 a group of Turks invaded an American base on the outskirts of the city and kidnaped an American airman who was on guard duty. He was released unharmed 17 hours later.

The kidnapers' primary purpose then was either sabotage or theft, informed sources said later, and they only abducted Sgt. Jimmy Ray Finley, 24, of Fort Worth, Tex., because he ran into them.

Officials blame leftist extremists for a wave of terrorist attacks on the U.S. military in Turkey.

Local Home Near Total Loss After Early Blaze

Fire early this morning destroyed the home of Doctors Wayne and Carolina Ayers, both assistant professors of chemistry at East Carolina University.

The alarm according to Pitt County Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner, was received at 6:55 a.m. Eastern Pines and Winterville Fire Departments both responded.

The house, located one and one quarter miles from the city limits on 14th Street extended, was an almost total loss with damage to the frame house estimated at $19,000. Joyner estimated the value of the house at $20,000. It was reported the Ayers were not at home, that they are visiting in Georgia during the university quarter break.

Cause of the early morning fire has not been determined, according to the fire marshal's office.

Introduce Measure To Amend Ayden Charter

AYDEN — Pitt County representatives Horton Rountree and Sam Bundy have introduced a local bill in the North Carolina House of Representatives seeking to amend the charter of the Town of Ayden by eliminating references to limits on the amount of funds that can be appropriated for the municipal library and recreation.

Introduced last week, the bill would delete from the city charter references to limits on annual appropriations for recreation and library funds. At present, the town's Board of Commissioners is limited to $10,000 in its appropriation for recreation and may appropriate only $5,000 for library expenses.

Current appropriations for the 1970-1971 fiscal year total the $10,000 and $5,000 limits for the two services, according to Ayden officials. Appropriations for the 1969-

1970 fiscal year totaled $10,000 for recreation and $4,980 for the library.

Appropriations for recreation and library operations come from non-tax revenue. No tax funds can be used for recreation or library budgets.

Ayden officials say use of recreation and library facilities have grown to such an extent that it is impractical to operate the programs under the current ceilings.

Gov. Scott Asks For Spacecraft

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott has officially requested that the Apollo Spacecraft Kitty Hawk be placed in the Wright Brothers National Memorial Museum near Kitty Hawk.

Scott made the request in a letter to George Low, acting director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"I wish I could claim credit for this idea, Scott said, "but I have to admit that it first came from the school children in Dare County, the birthplace of aviation."

She's Pushing 40, But Could Still Play Ingenue

By REBECCA MOREHOUSE
NEW YORK (WNS) — Betsy von Furstenberg does not see the younger generation as hopelessly lost. To the contrary, "I think this whole hippie thing is going to reverse itself and the kids are going to be very pure," said the actress.

"They're already turning against pot; the novelty has worn off and they've seen too many of their friends have bad experiences."

She draws these conclusions from close attendance on her son and daughter, who are in the early teens.

"I'm a very strict mother," she said, "but we get along well and so far our problems have been minor things. There is very open communication between us, they talk to me about everything. My daughter is just beginning to go out with boys and she talks about it with me and it's fun."

"I wouldn't be really young again for anything in the world, it's too damn painful. I was awfully dumb and too naive and vulnerable. I didn't have the relationship with my mother that I have with my children. Everything is more open nowadays."

Co-Stars

Miss von Furstenberg is costarred in Neil Simon's laugh-sprinkled drama, "The Gingerbread Lady," at the Plymouth Theater. Maureen Stapleton has the title role. Betsy acts, with admirable finesse, a 40-year-old beauty who uses will, discipline and every resource of cosmetology to hold onto her looks. A lot of women are obsessed by the desire to stay young and beautiful. People have become so neurotic about age — why make such a fuss about it?

"I'm not 40 yet but who would believe it, I've been around so long. I played ingenues until I was 35. Now I suppose I'll only be offered older parts. One should have a tremendous range at this age, but people are very unimaginative."

Betsy still could play ingenues if she chose. She appears not to have gained a pound, nor aged a year, since she played the precocious teenager in Enid Bagnold's "The Chalk Garden" in the 1955-56 Broadway season: "I have to work at keeping weight on; it makes me very unpopular." Just two years ago she was a frolicsome teenybopper in "There's a Girl in My Soup."

She has a natural elegance of bone, an impeccable sense of style. "I designed a collection of furs for Ben Kahn in the past year," she said. "It's something I've always wanted to do. I can work at home and I'd like a lucrative alternative to the theater. I want to do sportswear, dresses, everything."

Separated

"Children's clothes would be fun to design, but I don't know if I can think of cuter ones than they have today. Every time I walk into a baby department I want to have another baby."

She and her husband, Guy Vincent, are separated. He is a mining engineer, now lives in Europe.

"I'm in the process of getting a divorce; I've been in the process for five years. We were married for 11 years and I think I did pretty well, compared to my friends. He has a gold mine in Ecuador and we spent a year there. I was willing to settle down and pan gold for the rest of my life, but the mine was deep in the jungle and it didn't work out."

Life in Manhattan is not simple either, particularly for a working mother.

"I've had at least five housekeepers in the past year, but I have a good one now who is pleasant with the children and knows how to cook. The last one I had spent two hours ironing all the dirty clothes. I also had a houseman who would go into a bedroom, close the door, start the vacuum cleaner — and read a book."

ACTRESS... Betsy von Furstenberg also enjoys designing clothes — furs, sportswear and dresses.

She Gets No Support Home Entrance Way Should From Mom On Issue Reflect Proper Lighting

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My daughter and I are in total disagreement over a matter I wish you would settle. Becky (made-up name) is 19, which makes her an authority on everything. She attends college away from home. Becky now goes braless and says most of her girlfriends do, too. When Becky was home for vacation she wore a bra only as a concession to me, but she wasn't happy about it. I should explain that Becky is full-bosomed.

I told Becky that common sense should tell her that a full-bosomed girl needs to wear a bra for support, and if she goes without that support, in time all her muscles and tissues will be stretched and broken down and she will look like an old cow. Becky says I am all wrong and old-fashioned.

Abby, will you please tell her? She won't listen to me, and I don't want to be in a position of telling her, "I told you so," if she winds up wearing a size 42 Quadruple F cup by the time she's 30.

If I am wrong I will shut up. But if I'm right, I'd like her to find out before it is too late.

MIDWEST MOM

DEAR MOM: If Becky's bra size is 34 B or larger, she needs a bra for support. [P. S. More women look like "old cows" because they wore ill-fitting bras rather than none at all.]

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me who is right. I have a teen-age daughter who will soon be ready for dating. I have a sister in law who has a daughter the same age.

We were talking, and I told my sister in law that if a boy ever tried to take my daughter's virtue against her will, I would rather have her submit and come out of it unharmed than to put up a struggle and perhaps get killed. Even if my daughter were to become pregnant we could bear it together, but I would rather have my daughter alive in any shape.

My sister in law thinks I am out of my mind. What's your opinion?

A LOVING MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I don't think you and your sister in law are communicating. I am sure your sister in law would rather have her daughter "alive in any shape," too. But if she actually would rather see her daughter dead than the living victim of a rapist, I think she could be out of her mind.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to make a comment on the My Lai incident: I served in Viet Nam at the same time as Lt. Calley. (Same division, same brigade, but different battalion.) What that man and his men are being tried for was, and probably still is, an everyday occurrence over there. I have seen so many of those peaceful people murdered, raped and beaten I thought I'd go crazy before I got out of that country.

No single similar occurrence in my unit was on so large a scale as My Lai, but if I were to total all the men, women and children we shot because they looked like V. C. in the age group between 15 and 40 or were too scared to stand still when we approached, you could double the number as were killed at My Lai.

I am not defending Lt. Calley, I am only saying that if the Army and the people must judge that man and his men then they had better judge me and the three million other men that pulled time in that hell-hole.

I learned one thing. Life over there is no more worth the time and effort it takes to pull the trigger.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: Thank you, soldier. And to the American people as a whole, I say, "Judge not lest ye be judged!"

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Swimming Aids Some Tiny Tots

MUNICH, West Germany (WNS) — Eva Gaenzinger is only 30 months old but already swims 30 yards in 45 seconds without coming up for air. On the surface she swims 30 minutes without stopping for rest. Heinz Bauermeister, who specializes in teaching swimming to tiny tots, insists that swimming develops minds as well as bodies. Eva's mother agrees. "She is more alert and has a larger vocabulary than non-swimmers her age," said Mrs. Gaenzinger.

CHICAGO (UPI)—First impressions are still important and the entry to your home is no exception. Whether your entry is marble-floored and spacious or in a tiny area in an apartment, it can reflect your personal style of life and add to the overall decor of your home.

You may paper your entry with posters, wall it with mirrors, or go traditional with calico-patterned fabric or wallpaper. Whatever your flair, proper planning should not minimize the importance of lighting.

From the view of decor, major manufacturers of fixture lighting offer a wide selection of styles and sizes — many planned for entries and smaller areas of your home as well as the more conventional rooms. Lighting is being designed to be looked at and to add character and dash, as well as to accent the style of a room.

If you wish to create a mood of traditional graciousness, choose a wall fixture or chandelier in pewter, burnished brass or copper, reminiscent of colonial times. Your entry might be papered with a romantic mural of early Philadelphia, or paneled in walnut or mahogany.

If your tastes are contemporary, paint the walls in a gay selection of colors, each wall a different color. Display a striking piece of "pop art" or sculpture. To highlight the excitement, use dramatic lighting such as "egg-crate" fixtures set in smoked glass, or hanging fixtures with tinted, clear or opal globes. They are as much a decorative accessory as sculpture.

For the warmth of the Mauve Decade, paper the walls with a red velvet flocked paper. Set a gracefully curved chest against the wall facing the door and hang a mirror above. On either side of the mirror, mount matching sconces in burnished brass. Then add hurricane lamps in amber glass, reminiscent of the gaslit era.

Other selections of lighting might include chandeliers made a distressed wood or antique finishes such as old brass or copper.

A small apartment foyer might be extended visually through the use of mirrors. An exquisite shimmering Strass crystal chandelier would produce glitter and gleam. A graceful white and gold "grandmother's clock" might be the only piece of furniture. Then add a fluffy white rug for the ultimate elegance.

Fixtures are now being used extensively, in areas of the home and in apartments that were never fixture-lit before, according to the American Home Lighting Institute, Chicago. The American consumer is displaying an increased appreciation of light as a creator of color and atmosphere as well as recognizing its value in emphasizing the texture of fabrics and walls, the AHLI said.

These qualities of light are particularly important in an entry. Interior design has never been so flexible and the appropriately-designed chandelier can make any decor appear more dramatic.

A Mediterranean entry, for example, will appear even more romantic when it with a wrought-iron chandelier and brightened with crystals. A French Provincial foyer should be illuminated with a charming toile fixture, either wall or ceiling-mounted. And, a cascade of smoked glass pendants will glamorize any setting, from modern to eclectic.

Lighting should be considered an essential part of your entry decor not only for beauty, but for safety. It is always necessary to have a fixture bright enough to illuminate the faces of your visitors to determine who is standing at your door. Then let the hospitable glow reflect the warmth of the home beyond.

Food Stores Are Hiring More Women

NEW YORK (UPI)—It makes sense that the hands which push the cart at the supermarket also should help to pull down some of the jobs connected with the store operation.

Which is one way of saying that food stores are hiring more women, many for jobs once considered man's work.

One of the reasons is woman's natural talent as a housekeeper, which carries over into store operation. Another is the fact that even at a time when unemployment is high, there may not be a man available for the job.

"With the male labor pool tight in many areas... a good man these days may be hard to find," says Progressive Grocer in its current issue. "To fill the gap, many retailers are giving more thought to hiring women on a part-time or full-time basis for jobs usually filled by men."

The publication, in a review of the growing numbers of women in food retailing, cites as one example Bob Young, operator of four IGA supermarkets in Ohio. Young found part-time women workers successful in increasing sales and reducing out-of-stocks in his frozen foods departments. His stores, he added, are in small towns and are not high-volume businesses.

Fireco Sales, Ltd., Canada's largest service merchandiser with some 1,800 food stores spread throughout the dominion, started hiring women part-time three years ago. They worked primarily in rural and small town areas.

Fireco's President Michael Firestone said the project started as a way of having personnel on the scene when store shipments arrived. If shipments were delayed, it would save the company travelling salesman costs if someone in the neighborhood could check arrivals. No

Nutritionists Claim Americans Are Eating Themselves Sick

By GLENN STEPHENS BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—A team of scientists at the University of Alabama Medical Center believes that Americans are suffering from everything from insomnia to cancer largely because they eat the wrong things.

And, according to Dr. Emanuel Cheraskin and Dr. W.M.M. Ringsdorf, the crisis of malnutrition—not to be confused with under-nutrition—is one afflicting the majority, possibly up to 80 per cent, of the nation's population.

Cheraskin, chairman of the Department of Oral Medicine in the university's School of Dentistry, and Ringsdorf are in complete agreement that the body renders itself susceptible to cancer, heart disease, mental retardation, colds and many other afflictions because of diet deficiencies.

"We believe we can show that people who are well and do not have diseases are the people who eat well," said Cheraskin. "and the people who eat badly are the ones who have diseases."

"We tend to think in our culture that disease comes from the outside from 'bugs.' This is a very nice hypothesis because it takes the responsibility away from the person; he can't help it if he caught the bug."

"You Don't 'Catch' Cold" "But you don't 'catch' a cold, because if you did why is it that all people are sitting around breathing the same germs and one comes down with a cold?" Cheraskin asks.

"So it isn't the seed—the germ—it's the soil. And the soil is based largely on diet, along with exercise and other factors."

This theory, held by Cheraskin for many years, is expounded in the book "Diet and Disease" written by Cheraskin, Ringsdorf and Dr. J.W. Clark and published in 1968.

The problem of malnutrition is complicated by the loss of nutrition in foods because of modern harvesting methods, long-distance shipping, storage, processing and cooking, according to Cheraskin.

"There are certain foods to watch out for, such as white sugar and highly refined flour," he said.

"We indict sugar in many diseases because the body is unable to handle it; the body wasn't built for sugar. In nature, every time a carbohydrate is presented, it's always packaged with the vitamins necessary to metabolize it."

"In our culture we strip away the vitamins and make the sugar white. We take the rice and take the brown part off—that's where the vitamins are. We leave the carbohydrate without the vitamins to metabolize it."

Ringsdorf and Cheraskin

claim the majority of practicing medical doctors across the nation are not well acquainted with the demands of a proper diet, and seldom advise patients on nutritional needs.

"We're not indicting doctors, they're indicting themselves," said Cheraskin. "The one thing they seldom do is ask you what you eat. The assumption is that you are eating well because you don't look like a Biafran child."

Four's No Crowd On This Honeymoon

WHAPLODE, England (WNS)—Freda Hutchinson, 50, and her 23-year-old daughter Jennifer just had a double wedding. Mrs. Hutchinson, a widow since 1961, married tugboat captain Jeff Powley. Jennifer wed student Christopher Carr, 21, and paid for a double wedding reception. Then the foursome set off for honeymoon aboard a tugboat. "I refused to be a mother-in-law in my daughter's home, and I didn't want Jenny to have to live with a stepfather," said the new Mrs. Powley. "We've found the perfect solution."

Civil Engineer Sees Similarities In Both Designing, Constructing

By MICHAEL O. WESTER LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Jana Berryhill Loyd is a 5-foot, 2-inch civil engineer who doesn't think the terms "lady" and "engineer" are contradictory.

Mrs. Loyd is the first woman to receive a master's degree in civil engineering from Texas Tech University. She wishes more women would see the advantages of civil engineering as a career.

She is the wife of G. Richard Loyd, who is working toward a master's degree in electrical engineering at Texas Tech. She went into civil engineering despite discouragement from teachers, counselors, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Berryhill of Richardson, Tex.

"I expect to have both a family and a career, with opportunities to give proper attention to both," Mrs. Loyd said.

Father is Engineer Her father is a civil engineer. Her mother reads civil engineering magazines. But both encouraged her to explore other possibilities before she chose civil engineering.

"I did think about teaching mathematics," she said. "There wasn't much point of my taking home economics because I had been making my own clothes since the ninth grade. Cooking isn't a problem, either."

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Loyd sees similarities in designing and constructing clothes and buildings.

"You're just using different materials," she said.

Jana's father is chief of the Dallas Engineering Division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Her own interest in civil engineering began when she was eight years old and first began to understand her father's work.

Maintains "A" Average She maintained an "A" average through her school, taking all mathematics courses offered, mechanical drawing, physics, chemistry and other pre-engineering subjects.

"The profession of civil engineer is respected and the career is challenging," she said. "If ever I have to support a family I believe I'll be able to do it—and do it well."

There are many interesting subjects included in civil engineering, Mrs. Loyd said. There are part time work and package jobs that can be done at home which makes the job easy to combine with a family. Other advantages include good pay, good working conditions and reasonable hours.

Women's Lib? Mrs. Loyd just doesn't dig it.

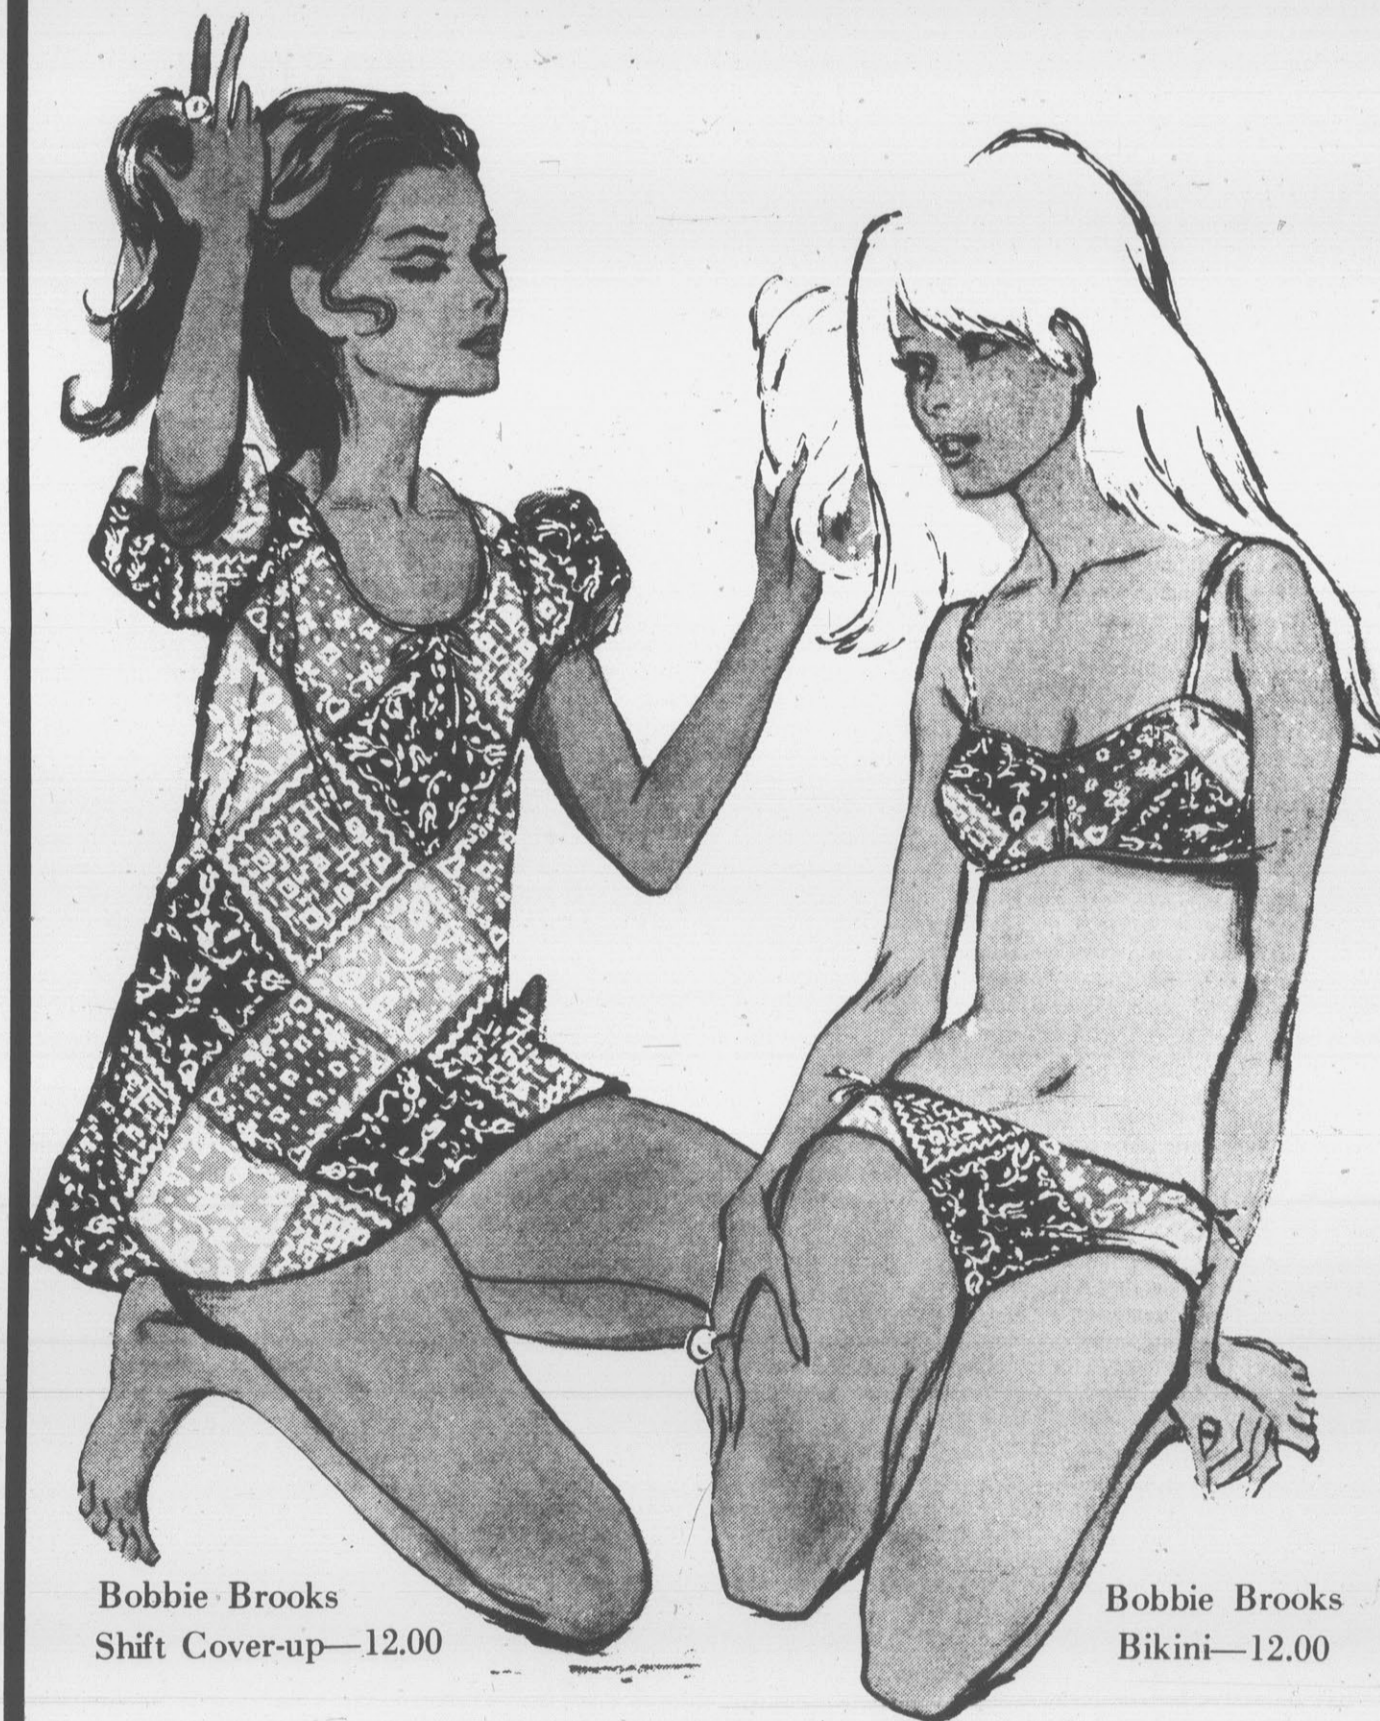

"I believe a woman ought to get paid for a job," she said. "But I really don't understand Women's Lib."

Homework Resulted In Bloody Ear

PARIS (WNS)—Brigitte Tardeou, 20, was only trying to do her psychology homework on the crowded subway train, but it got the best of her. "Biting, smelling and touching other people may increase your sensitivity and help you understand them," she read from her notes, then bit the ear of the poor fellow standing in front of her. After consultation with the conductor, he refused to launch legal complaint but asked, "How can I explain a bloody ear to my wife?"

Insult To 200 Million People

The bombing of the United States Capitol is a deplorable terroristic act which is a direct insult to 200 million Americans.

What President Nixon has referred to as the "violent people" have nothing to gloat over in this shameful act; rather they have only taken advantage of the liberties accorded to all citizens in an open society.

It takes no genius to sneak a bomb into a public building which is open for all citizens of our land to visit and tour.

Apparently those who carried out this plot entered the building on Sunday, as visitors do every day in Washington, and had little trouble placing a bomb in a wash room of the building. It was a lunatic bombing of the historic hall where some of America's greatest men have debated the measures which have built this nation into the free land that it is today.

"What the violent people want is to frighten public officials and the American people into the place where we will not have the open buildings, the open society that we do have," President Nixon commented. "Well, it won't work."

Indeed it will not work. The Capitol still stands and even if it did not the functions of government would go on.

No little band of "revolutionaries," bombs and all, is any match for the hundreds of millions of Americans who are loyal to their country. Sure most of us criticize Congress and the president, too. That is a right and privilege in our free society. The great masses in our nation have already shown, however, that they do not want our free government thrown out to be replaced by a totalitarian bunch of bomb throwers. It is because most Americans have rejected these types that they now react so violently. They are desperate.

Coastal Zoning Could Be Marshland Answer

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan has hit on a thought that should be explored in his suggestion that coastal zoning might be the solution to the problem of protecting the state's marshlands.

The marshlands are important, not only from an esthetic standpoint, but also as an integral part of the life cycle of many commercially harvested fish and shellfish.

Developers now are required to get permits to excavate or fill marshlands, but this Morgan called a piecemeal system.

If the coastal areas are to be protected, a complete plan will be required and laws will have to be enacted which rigidly control the use of the areas.

Poverty War In California

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In the newest battle of the poverty cold war between the Nixon administration and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) has quietly decided to close down a Los Angeles legal services program given a clean bill of health over national television by Reagan himself.

What's more, the Federal men have the goods on the Los Angeles Neighborhood Legal Services Agency (LANLSS). Alarmed by the dalliance of one of its offices with causes on the extreme political left, OEO found LANLSS a honeycomb of incompetence replete with wholesale violation of Federal regulations — a common situation throughout the poverty program.

Thus, Director Frank Carlucci and his aides at OEO are by no means the permissive bleeding-hearts that Reagan has implied. They have been busy terminating badly managed Community Action programs across the country quite similar to LANLSS, which were permitted to flourish under the Johnson administration. But whereas Carlucci is committed to make the poverty program work, Reagan leaves little doubt that he wants it plowed under.

At very least, Reagan's handling of legal services in California lacks consistency. He vetoed OEO's funding of California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA), which non-political experts here believed contained far more good than harm. But appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers" Jan. 24, Reagan described the 8,000-a-year legal services cases in Los Angeles County (3,000 of them under LANLSS) as "a tremendously successful program."

Such praise at a time when OEO inspectors were finding a mess under the carpet at LANLSS can be easily explained by Reagan's inability to keep tabs on burgeoning anti-poverty activities all over California. But is also can be traced to the relative ineffectiveness of LANLSS as compared to CRLA, which has stirred up moneyed interests in rural California and their conservative Republican allies in Congress.

Thus, the complaint that triggered OEO's investigation came not from Capitol Hill but in a handwritten note last Dec. 2 to Donald Rumsfeld — then director of OEO, now a Presidential counselor — from a private resident of Santa Monica, Calif. Enclosed was a newspaper clipping linking LANLSS with a Tucson, Ariz., court case in which members of the notorious Weatherman faction of SDS were indicted for purchasing explosives in Arizona for transport to California.

A hurried secret investigation found that Ken Cloke, a lawyer in the Venice office of LANLSS, was representing Terri Ann Volpin, a Venice girl and member of the LANLSS board charged with contempt of court in the Tucson case. Miss Volpin, whose car allegedly carried the explosives, scarcely met Federal requirements that clints of Federally funded legal services must be poor. She earned $790 a month as an architect for the city of Los Angeles before voluntarily resigning last summer, and her parents met the $50,000 bond in Tucson.

OEO inspectors immediately ran into the larger question of what Cloke was doing in the government program in the first place. Convicted of petty theft in Berkeley, Calif., in 1963, Cloke had a long record of far-left associations: attendance

Strength For Today

JUSTICE
"I want justice and I'm going to have it."

Wait a minute, Brother. Perhaps justice would put you behind bars. We want justice to reign everywhere, but if the time ever comes that this is true the problems of the world will not be settled. The far horizon will open up another horizon. The query made in anguish may lead to other queries and perhaps deeper anguish.

But we mustn't let this state of affairs get us down. Human life is made that way, but no matter how much we may complain about things as they are our complaint will probably not change them much — or perhaps not at all. What we need is not only justice but mercy. We need forgiveness both from God and man. We need better understanding of ourselves and only then will we be in a right attitude toward others.

The demand for justice is often an attempt to make things go the way we want them to go whether that suits the other members of the family or the group we work with in an office, or the neighbors who have a higher social position than we have — or think they do.

Justice is an important factor in the lives of every one of us, but it can become nothing more than big talk and argument, with plenty of anger in it.

When the theme of life is "All I want is justice and I'm going to have it," life can become dull for ourselves and plenty offensive for those who have to live with us.

THE PERSISTENT PURSE SNATCHER!

By JAMES KILPATRICK

On The Starboard Tack

Nearly two years ago, on May 22, 1969, President Nixon summoned a small group of correspondents to his oval office. He had just nominated Warren Earl Burger to become Chief Justice of the United States. With astonishing candor, he told us why he had picked the Minnesotan.

It was not merely that Burger had impressed the President as a generally strict constructionist of the Constitution. In the particular area of the criminal law, Burger had written some Circuit Court opinions and law review articles sharply criticizing such landmark decisions of the Warren Court as Miranda vs. Arizona. Mr. Nixon thought Burger was right in defending the minority view in these cases; and he hoped, flat-out, that once Burger got on the high court, his view would become the majority view.

Little by little, Mr. Nixon's hope is being realized. As slowly as some great dreadnought, feeling gently to a new hand at the helm, the court is moving a couple of points to starboard. This is nothing so sudden as a jibe; it is not exactly a new tack; but the change of course is perceptible.

Court watchers have sensed the shift in recent months. It became palpable last week in the case of Viven Harris v. New York. On its merits, the case was nothing much. Harris had been convicted of selling heroin to an undercover narcotics agent. Subsequent to his arrest, he had made statements in effect confessing his guilty. For some reason, not explained, officers failed to give the accused the "Miranda warning" — that is, they failed to advise him formally of his right to stay silent and to have a lawyer. This meant that Harris's statement could not be used in direct evidence against him at the trial.

But what happened was that Harris took the stand in his own defense and denied everything. He said, among other things, that he had sold the agent a packet not of heroin, but of baking soda. The prosecution then put the inadmissible statement to use to impeach the defendant's testimony. Last week the Burger Court, 5-4, approved this procedure and sustained the conviction. In the process, the famous Miranda decision was not really toppled; it was merely pruned down to size.

The Court's action in Harris provided a classic example of the truism that the Constitution is what five judges say it is, and neither more nor less. The Miranda decision of June 13, 1966, also was 5-4. Chief Justice Warren then spoke for the Court, over the impassioned dissent of Clark, Harlan, Stewart and White. The Miranda ruling held, in part, that impermissible statements by a defendant could not constitutionally be used "to impeach his testimony at trial."

Other Editors Say Finding Scapegoat

(The Shelby Star)

GOV. BOB SCOTT, it is said by legislators who will have the sayso, is walking on eggshells by refusing to take himself out of a second term as governor should a constitutional amendment permitting two consecutive terms be approved. Perhaps this is the feeling in the Legislative Building, and the idea has certainly been bounced off the ceiling all over North Carolina. Many favor such an amendment, but they by and large do not want to be placed in the position of building an empire for Gov. Scott. After all, it was the Governor who proposed the amendment.

Nonetheless, legislators would do well to re-read the 22nd Amendment to the Constitution of the United States before letting their emotions run away with them. That amendment, adopted on Feb. 26, 1951, while Harry S. Truman was still President, prohibits more than two terms as president except that if the president succeeded to the office with two years or more left remaining in a term, he could serve only one full term. At the same time, and this is important to the situation in North Carolina, the amendment specifically exempts the presidential office-holder when the amendment was proposed. Neither would it have taken away the presidency in the third term if the amendment were approved then.

There is indeed precedent, in no less document than the Constitution of the United States, for the leader in office to benefit from a constitutional amendment lengthening or shortening the time a man can hold the gubernatorial or presidential office. At the time of the presidential amendment, of course, the U.S. Constitution did not limit the number of terms. The N. C. Constitution does, and one can be as bad as another. There is merit in continuing to consider the state amendment and in leaving it up to voters to decide whether Bob Scott should succeed himself or not. Indeed, such an amendment may not constitutionally exclude the current office-holder from a second successive term.

THE DISTURBING factor in all this is that the legislators seem eager to blame Gov. Scott for the amendment's not being proposed and approved for voter decision. This seems a case of throwing out the baby with the bath water. The Governor may have made himself a likely target, but he is not entirely to blame for the failure to act by the General Assembly. Could it be the legislators have found what they believe to be a scapegoat for their own timidity?

Turtle Farms For The Hungry

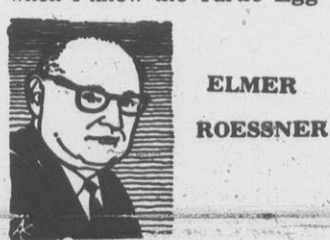

By ELMER ROESSNER
Dr. Harold F. Hirth, one of the world's leading authorities on sea turtles and a professor at the University of Utah — far inland from sea turtles — has recommended the establishment of pilot turtle farms in the South Pacific to help feed the world's expanding population.

After a four-months study, he has reported to the United Nations that the sea turtle holds promise for additional food supplies.

The green sea turtle is the world's most valuable reptile," he reported. "It is one of seven species of sea turtles and has been eaten for centuries." In addition to the flesh and eggs, its fat is used to make soup, its oil for cosmetics and its skin for leather products.

26 places in Hawaii, Tahiti, Fiji, New Caladonia, Tonga and Samoa and found three localities that were ideal for turtle farms.

Turtle Egg King of Gotham
Dr. Hirth reminded me of when I knew the Turtle Egg

King of New York. He was the late Earl Sparling. As a reporter, he wrote a story about an establishment on the lower West Side of the city that imported huge turtles, up to six feet in diameter, from the Caribbean and off the Galapagos Islands, and converted them into canned turtle soup and stews.

In getting his story, Sparling discovered that half of the turtles contained up to 200 eggs, and that no use was being made of them. Sparling, a man of imagination, promptly persuaded the cannery people to sign a contract giving him exclusive rights for two years to all their eggs.

I encountered Earl one day in front of the Greenwich Tavern. He pulled what looked like a ping pong ball from a vest pocket and said, "Roessner, you can't break this!" I threw it to the pavement and it burst.

"It's been handled too much," said Sparling. "It wasn't supposed to."

King For A While
He told me about the contract that made him Turtle Egg King. "I am going to make a fortune," he said. "I am seeking evidence to prove that turtle eggs increase masculine potency." "Then I am going to put them on the market, not in egg boxes, but in jewelers' boxes, six eggs to a box, each

Moreover, the Venice office of LANLSS was found to be more interested in left-wing political activity than providing legal aid to the poor. Several employees there were active in the far left Peace and Freedom party — including Marguerite Buckley, director of the office, who was the party's candidate for state Attorney General. A militant anti-draft organization called SOS (Save Our Soldiers) operated out of the Federally-funded office.

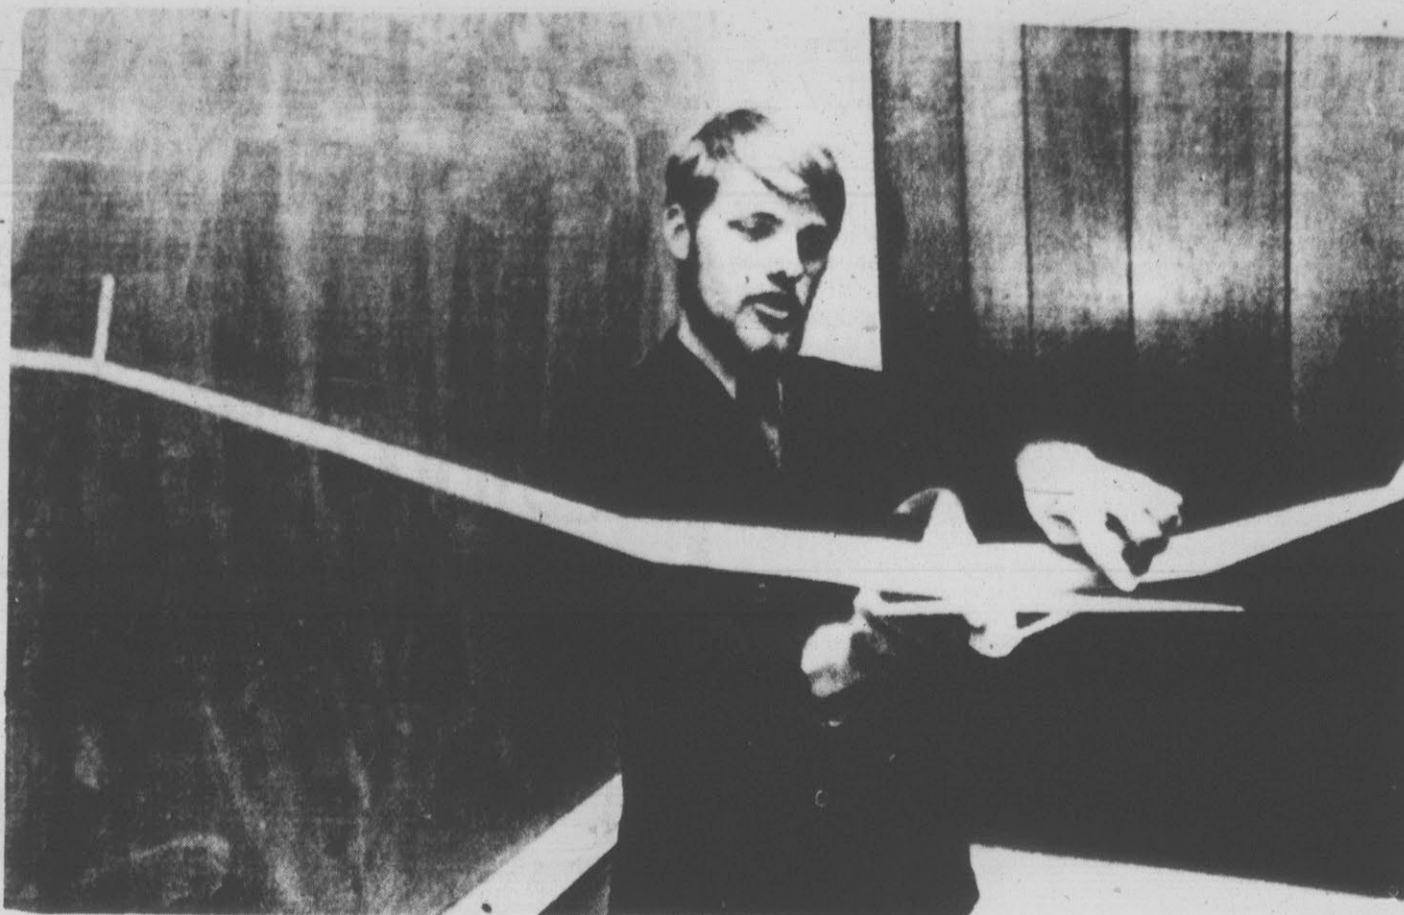

From this starting point, OEO inspectors uncovered less sensational violations by LANLSS employees fired without grievance procedure, unauthorized expenditure of funds, overpayment of salaries. In sum, they discovered an utter lack of interest by LANLSS in watchdogging public funds.

None of this information was passed on to Reagan's men in Sacramento, which comprises fair turnout. The Governor's recent veto of the Oakland Community Action program came without the slightest warning to Carlucci, who thought state officials were going to continue Oakland's program.

And behind: What Earl Warren had said in Miranda of the impeachment issue "wat not at all necessary to the Court's holding and cannot be regarded as controlling." The shield provided by Miranda, said Burger, "cannot be perverted into a license to use perjury by way of a defense." In a number of other cases, less pointed but no less significant, Burger and Blackmun regularly have been providing precisely the conservative ballast that Mr. Nixon hoped they would bring to the Court. In the nature of things, they doubtless will disappoint him now and then. They do not always prevail: Last week saw Burger and Blackmun on the losing side of two cases involving the admission of lawyers to the bars of Arizona and Ohio.

But the trend is there. The Burger Court is sailing along steadily by the great stars of judicial navigation — self-restraint, principled construction. It is good news for those who put a high value on justice, stability and tradition. It is bad news for the innovators, and the trend must be especially galling to Justice William O. Douglas. Last week saw 16 cases decided by a divided court. Douglas dissented in eleven.

Miss Carraway To Speak At Art Society Dinner

Miss Gertrude Carraway of New Bern, author, lecturer, and crusader for cultural and historic activities, is to be the guest speaker Friday, March 12, at the East Carolina Art Society Annual dinner to be held at the Greenville Country Club.

Currently the Director of Tryon Palace, the restored royal palace in New Bern, Miss Carraway will speak to the art society about the palace.

A native and life long resident of New Bern, Miss Carraway is a journalist by profession. She is the author of hundreds of feature stories, more than 50 booklets, and four historical books. She is also a past president-general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, and is now an Honorary president-general for life. Since 1942 she has been on the Executive Board of the State Department of Archives and History, and for eight years was a member of the Board of Trustees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

In 1958 Miss Carraway was New Bern's Woman of the Year. The State Magazine in 1962 selected her as the North Carolinian of the Year. Active in patriotic organizations during World War II, she is the recipient of 12 awards for her efforts in this field.

A second speaker is also scheduled for the annual dinner. North Carolina Representative from Pitt County Sam Bundy will speak to the group, and will introduce the principal speaker, Representative Bundy, a native of Farmville, for many years was an educator in that town before being elected as the Pitt County Representative to the N.C. legislature.

Art Society members will elect officers for the coming year at this meeting. Tickets are available at $4.50 per person, and may be obtained at the Art Center, 802 Evans Street, telephone 758-1946 or from the co-chairwomen, Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts or Mrs. Alton Barrett.

Reservations must be placed by Monday, March 8. The dinner begins at 7:30 p.m. A social hour is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Another Horse Rebuilds World

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI)—Last fall Lisa Nichols' world fell apart when her horse was killed by a stray bullet from a deer hunter's rifle.

Now the 9-year-old's world has been rebuilt. The Rapid City chapter of the Izaak Walton League conducted a fund drive and bought Lisa another horse.

More than 300 ethnic and cultural groups live on the island of Java.

Operation Sunshine Board Talks Funding

Fund raising plans were made at a meeting of the Operation Sunshine Board of Directors Monday and an expanded summer program was discussed.

Mrs. H. F. Steinbeck, finance committee chairman, presented a tentative budget for the coming year. Rudolph Alexander told of plans for a fund solicitation on March 20, which will be carried out by the East Carolina University Pan Hellenic.

Mrs. H. H. Bryant, treasurer, informed the group that Operation Sunshine has no immediate funds to remain open. She explained that no funds have been solicited since last spring and that operation has continued almost a full year on funds raised for last year's summer program. There have been a few special gifts which have made remaining open through this month possible, she said.

Operation Sunshine director, Mrs. Richard Ulom reported that approximately 35 girls are participating in the program after school and Saturdays. Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr. has been teaching knitting each Monday for the past three months to interested girls. John Casey has built a new carpet ball game for them. Group sewing is being taught on Thursdays and some Girl Scouts are directing the girls in dramatics. Many persons from throughout the community have become involved with the program, but more are needed due to a recent increase in attendance, she said. Mrs. Melvin Hoot Jr. was named chairman of a program planning committee for the summer. Also named to this committee were Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr., Miss Addie Gore, David Barnhill, Mrs. Leo Jenkins, and Miss Rosalind Rouffon.

Taped Lessons For Engineers

MELBOURNE, Fla. (UPI)—The first college graduate program that enables engineers to complete all classroom requirements for a master's degree by attending taped television class has been created by the Florida Institute of Technology here.

Under the arrangement, engineers attend the taped lectures and participate in problem-solving and discussion sessions for review and examinations to earn credits toward a degree of "master of science in electrical engineering."

U.S. Reducing Defenses For Bombing Raids

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is sharply cutting back its air defenses against bomber attack in a move reflecting a Soviet threat that never reached its expectations.

An Army announcement Wednesday that it will deactivate half its remaining Nike-Hercules missile batteries was followed by Air Force disclosures of plans to cut back and spread even thinner its fighter-interceptor squadrons.

Life-Saving Class Slated

A senior life saving course, sponsored by the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross, will begin March 15 at Memorial Gym on the campus of East Carolina University.

According to Miss Nell Stallings, Red Cross water safety chairman, the course will be taught by Dr. Edwin Roberts, beginning with an organizational meeting on the 15th.

Miss Stallings said that the hours for the course are from 7 p. m. until 9 p. m. each night. She added that this will probably be the only class in senior life saving taught here this spring.

The only requirement for taking the course, she said, is an age minimum of 15 years. Persons completing the course requirements will be certified senior life savers.

The chairman said that anyone desiring more information concerning the course should call the Red Cross office in Greenville.

Stox Files For Winterville Post

WINTERVILLE — Tyree Stox has filed as a candidate for a seat on the Board of Aldermen in the municipal election set for May 3.

The 62-year-old retired farmer has been a resident of Winterville for five years. He is a member of the Winterville FWB Church and is past Sachem in the Improved Order of Redmen.

This is his first try for a political office.

were building long-range bombers, the United States set up an elaborate shield of Nike missiles around its major cities. Backing up these ground-to-air missiles, equipped with either nuclear or conventional warheads, were more than 1,500 Air Force fighter-interceptors.

But the Russians never built more than the 150 bombers they have today. By comparison the United States has more than 500 B52 bombers capable of reaching targets anywhere in the Soviet Union.

With the years, America's air defense system grew obsolete and more expensive to maintain.

Over the past three years the number of Nike-Hercules batteries was gradually reduced while the jet interceptor fleet was cut to 420 planes.

By June 30 the Army will have closed out 38 more Nike-Hercules batteries in 15 states, leaving about 40 still operational.

The changes have nothing to do with the Minuteman offensive ICBM force or the new, sophisticated Safeguard system being developed to protect them from enemy missiles.

Meanwhile, development is proceeding with an advanced surface-to-air missile and a new Airborne Warning and Control System—AWACS—for the Air Force. AWACS involves airborne command posts with down-looking radar to detect enemy aircraft and development of a new interceptor.

The Air Force contends AWACS would meet any foreseeable bomber threat.

Pledge Center For Telerama To Be Set Up

A telephone pledge center for the Greenville area during the Jaycees March of Dimes Telerama on Saturday and Sunday will be set up at Planters National Bank's Pitt Plaza branch, local Jaycees announced.

According to the Jaycees, all persons in this area who wish to make a pledge by telephone are urged to call the Pitt Plaza branch at 756-2166. Jaycees will staff the pledge center during the Telerama hours.

The second annual March of Dimes event, to be held at the WCTI-TV station in New Bern, will begin at 10 p. m. on Saturday and run until 5 p. m. on Sunday.

Senators Doubtful Over Abortion Bill

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — If a vote were taken today, the liberalized abortions bill that passed the House last week likely would die, according to an Associated Press poll. The survey of the 11 members of a committee studying it shows only three inclined to favor the bill, five against it or leaning that way, and two undecided.

The committee chairman, Sen. Claude Currie, D-Durham professed neutrality.

"If the vote were taken now, I'd be against it," said Sen. J. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, the committee vice chairman. "My letters are 90 per cent against it."

Harris said he and Sen. Marshall A. Rauch, D-Gaston, were taking a poll, and that he would abide by the results of the poll.

"I haven't fully decided," said Rauch.

"I haven't completely made up my mind, but I lean toward favoring the bill," said Sen.

Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles, D-Guilford.

The bill which passed the House by a narrow margin last week would permit a woman not more than 12 weeks pregnant to obtain an abortion upon written request to a doctor. If she were married and living with her husband, he would have to consent.

"My feeling right now is that I'm going to vote for it," said Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance. "I'm getting a lot of mail on it. Most of it is against it ... I'm choosing the lesser of two evils ... To me, it's a sin to bring a child into the world when it would be unloved and unwanted."

"I don't feel that I can vote for the bill we have in the committee now," said Sen. William Mills, D-Onslow.

"At this moment I'm planning to vote against it," said Sen. Ashley Futrell, D-Beaufort. "That's not a firm commitment."

"I haven't made up my mind," said Sen. Carl D. Killian, D-Jackson.

"As of now, I favor the bill," said Sen. John T. Henley, D-

Cumberland.

Henley said he felt if a woman wanted an abortion she was going to get it "and it ought to be under the most professional and clinical conditions possible."

He said he was receiving many communications against the bill.

Egypt Acquires Big Helicopters

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union recently gave Egypt more helicopters capable of carrying troops on dashes into Israeli territory, U.S. intelligence sources say.

The new deliveries, reportedly within the last month, were disclosed with Sunday's expiration of the Egyptian-Israeli cease-fire drawing closer.

Three Soviet ships unloaded modern MI-8 transport helicopters in Egypt, the sources said, enhancing the Egyptians' ability to land raiding parties behind Israel's front lines.

The Egyptians now own an estimated 133 Russian-made helicopters of various types, nearly double the number they had last fall, the sources said.

Each of the turbine-powered MI-8s can carry 28 soldiers and can be stripped of seats and used to carry military equipment as an air ambulance.

It flies at a 140 mile-an-hour maximum cruising speed, with a range of more than 220 miles.

Since the first of the year, the Russians also have shipped to Egypt additional MIG and SU-7 jetfighters.

According to recent estimates, the Egyptians now have 128 MIG-21s, including the latest models, as well as about 150 other MIG jets, about 50 bombers and 97 SU-7s. The latter are used chiefly for close support of ground troops.

The Egyptian air force has about a 4-3 advantage in combat planes over the Israelis, U.S. sources estimate.

The seven-month cease-fire has given the Egyptian air force an opportunity to regain its confidence after losing 110 planes to the Israelis.

American sources who provided this Egyptian loss estimate say the Israelis lost 27 jets in combat before the truce began in early August.

The United States has pledged to maintain an arms balance between the Arabs and Israelis, while prodding the Middle East opponents toward a negotiated stalemate.

Thus, the U.S. Navy in the Mediterranean and American reconnaissance elements monitor Soviet military aid coming through the Dardanelles from the Black Sea aboard Russian ships which often carry deckloads of crated aircraft.

At the urging of the Nixon administration, Congress late last year voted $500 million to finance military credit sales to Israel. The list includes F-4 Phantom jets and modern tanks.

War Correspondents Still Encounter Obstructions

By HOLGER JENSEN
 QUANG TRI, Vietnam (AP) — Official obstruction is still preventing U.S. newsmen from doing a thorough job of covering the war in southern Laos despite some easing of restrictions.

Journalistic veterans of the war say they have never encountered a more concerted effort by U.S. and South Vietnamese military authorities to restrict the flow of information.

Military information officers, however, claim they are doing all they can to help newsmen. They admit some facts are not released, but contend this is only because they would be useful to the enemy or just are not available.

Maj. Lee Jones, the chief U.S. briefing officer in Quang Tri, says he can give no information about South Vietnamese forces in Laos. Lt. Col. Do Dang Bo, the Vietnamese information officer, says he can give no information about U.S. operations.

When they speak for their own forces, their announcements are uncoordinated, and often misleading.

Bo, for example, reported this week that 3,227 enemy troops had been killed in Laos. Jones reported that U.S. aircraft, had killed more than 1,400 enemy in Laos.

"Is that included in the total released by Bo?" a correspondent asked.

"I have no way of knowing," said Jones.

Field reports on casualties and battles differ widely from the official versions. The official accounts given in Quang Tri differ from the official accounts given in Saigon.

Although at least one South Vietnamese fire base in Laos has been overrun and two others have been evacuated under enemy siege, Bo has yet to admit a defeat at the hands of North Vietnamese forces.

Newsman felt they had accomplished a major coup when they got Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the 1st Corps commander, to admit that "things were going badly" at one ranger base. But the general hastily added that his men were "effectively accomplishing their mission" even as they retreated.

One major complaint is that the U.S. Command is not being candid about its aircraft losses in Laos. Officially, 22 helicopters have been lost across the border since the operation began Feb. 8. This is an average of one a day, but helicopter pilots say four or five a day are being shot down by the intense enemy antiaircraft fire.

Jones' explanation: "The only helicopters we consider lost are those still in Laos, the ones we have not been able to recover."

The bullet-riddled hulks of helicopters not listed as losses can be seen every day, airlifted back to Khe Sanh and other bases in South Vietnam by recovery helicopters.

Their crews might be dead or wounded, their structure so badly damaged they would have to be sent back to the United States to be made operative again, but "they're not lost. The pilots simply chose not to fly any further," one waggish information officer commented.

Asked for a total of all helicopters shot down in Laos, including those recovered, Jones replied: "We don't have that figure and I can't get it. My system can't handle it."

U.S. helicopter pilots are a major source of information since they fly more than 1,000 sorties a day over Laos. But many report being ordered to "keep our mouths shut" by their commanding officers.

Jones says no such order has been issued, but he concedes, "From time to time individuals are reminded of Directive 360-1. This directive says:

"Any individual subject to this directive may accede to media requests for interviews in an unofficial capacity. He is to limit his discussions to matters about which he has personal knowledge provided that the information is not classified or otherwise nonreleasable."

"He is not to indulge in speculation and is to avoid remarks that may be misinterpreted. By limiting himself to matters about which he has personal knowledge, he is to automatically avoid the pitfalls of making ill-formed and incorrect statements about U.S. national policy, U.S.-ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) free world military armed forces relations and ARVN domestic affairs."

"Those few individuals who have valid personal knowledge of these sensitive areas are to make no comment unless officially authorized by COMUSMACV," the commander, U.S. Military Assistance, Vietnam.

There are wide differences of opinion as to what is "not classified or otherwise nonreleasable." Many just play it safe and don't talk to newsmen, while others are careful to extremes.

The result is that most correspondents feel they have to go to the battlefield to get anything like a true picture.

For three weeks, the U.S. Command refused to let newsmen fly into Laos aboard American aircraft, forcing them to trust themselves to inexperienced South Vietnamese helicopter pilots. Four photographers were killed when their South Vietnamese pilot lost his way and strayed over an antiaircraft site near the demilitarized zone.

After representations to Washington, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird personally guaranteed a U.S. press helicopter for flights into Laos. But its flights are still subject to veto by Gen. Lam.

As a result, the helicopter has been operating for five days, but it has only been inside Laos for two of those days. Lam twice decided it would be "too dangerous," and a third day the helicopter turned back to Khe Sanh after one of its gunship escorts came under fire near the border.

"I don't blame him," said Denis Cameron of Newsweek.

"Why should a pilot's life be endangered just to ferry the press around? Naturally the chopper crews are resentful. Before we always rode on helicopters that had to go on a mission anyway. We took our chances with the rest and everyone understood that. That's the way it should be."

Phil Brady of NBC commented: "There is obviously a concerted effort on the part of the military to limit the flow of information. We've had to fight for transportation, telephone service and the most basic facts. What we do get is distorted."

"A man can be shot down in flames but his aircraft isn't lost if its recovered. And if they can't recover the body, he's not dead, he's missing."

Covering an army which prides itself on its logistic superiority and its communications network, correspondents feel frustrated when it takes them from several hours to an entire day to telephone their offices in Saigon. Some have flown from Khe Sanh to Da Nang to get a call through.

An Associated Press newsman and photographer once waited 7½ hours to get a flight from Da Nang to Khe Sanh. Air Force planes were leaving for Khe Sanh every 15 minutes, but the office in charge of the supply airlift refused to allow the newsmen to board.

When they complained, Air Force officers claimed the planes were carrying "hot cargo," too dangerous for civilian passengers. When the newsmen pointed out they had seen some not-so-hot cargo, a lieutenant colonel told them:

ill-formed and incorrect statements about U.S. national policy, U.S.-ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) free world military armed forces relations and ARVN domestic affairs."

The longer-than-GI hair, unconventional attire and generally unmilitary manner of many newsmen rub spit-and-polish officers the wrong way. But personal prejudice is not the major reason for lack of military cooperation. Most officers are so afraid that publicity might get them in trouble with their superiors that they won't even cooperate on stories favorable to the armed forces.

"Hero stories are just as hard to get as pot smoking," complained one reporter who waited more than a day to interview a helicopter crew chief who had been shot down in Laos.

In Saigon, the South Vietnamese command took steps to improve its press relations by sending an experienced information officer to Quang Tri to help brief correspondents and answer questions. He was Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, who usually conducts daily briefings in Saigon. The Saigon headquarters said such senior information officers would be rotated every 10 days or two weeks in the Quang Tri headquarters and would be in addition to the information officers permanently assigned there.

What Can One Do With Gift Of 6,000 Golf Balls?

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

What would you do with a gift of 6,000 golf balls? It is naturally a question most people would never think of having to answer. But this is exactly the unexpected bonus the Boys' Club of Greenville fell heir to recently when an East Carolina University professor decided the Boys' Club was a deserving recipient for this unusual collection.

In an informal ceremony at his house a few days ago, Dr. George C. Martin, Jr., a veteran faculty member at ECU, now a professor of Geology in the Geography Department of the university, turned approximately 6,000 of the little white balls over to Boys' Club Executive Director J. Richard Ullom.

Appropriately, the presentation took place on the smooth winter brown grass of Dr. Martin's home on Windsor Road in Brook Valley, just a golf ball's throw from that part of the golf course which sweeps uphill to border his back yard. Dr. Martin says he became interested in making his collection of golf balls available to the Boys' Club through his son, George C. Martin, III, a 14 year old student at Aycock Junior High School. "My son played on the Little League team," the professor said. "It was at an all-star game that I became aware of the Boys' Club and first realized the good work they are doing."

This gift to the Boys' Club is not the first time the educator has used his found treasures to serve a good cause. Once before, a couple of years ago, Dr. Martin made a gift of a large collection of golf balls. They were given to ECU's Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. On that occasion, the gift was made in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Martin's daughter, Karen Martin, who had tragically died at the age of 22 in an airplane crash in 1967. Dr. Martin said "funds from sale of the golf balls were used as an assistance fund to help needy girls studying at ECU." The large number of golf balls collected by Dr. Martin is the result of his practice of picking up and saving golf balls which have been lost by golfers on the Brook Valley course. "None of these are 'hot' balls," he commented, explaining he always makes an attempt to return balls to owners. "Occasionally, not often," he related, "players insist the ball I try to return is not theirs."

Most of the balls Dr. Martin finds while playing or practicing golf. "There's no end to the locations for finding lost balls," he remarked. "I've found them in the woods, along the fairway and all around the area." He related that finds are sometimes made in odd places. "Two of the most unusual instances was one ball laying on top of a log, and another one resting on a tee." The Martins have been living in Brook Valley for four years. Dr. Martin, a native of the Knoxville, Tennessee area, admits his greatest joy is teaching young students at ECU. With the continuing build up of the area, he says, "It's getting a little harder all the time to find lost balls. As more houses are built, hunting spaces are not as plentiful." He mentioned there are several regular searchers other than himself. "Most are young boys or retired men," he observed. Pointing to the large mound of white balls on his lawn, where they had been poured out for sorting and taking to the Boys' Club, Dr. Martin said, "There are more than 200 different types of balls in this group, including a few special types. Almost every variety imaginable is represented there." "This should be a good opportunity for the boys to work together. It's going to take some training and team work for them to sort and package the balls. I believe it will be quite an achievement for them when they get the job done."

Space Shuttle Base Is Big Bone Of Contention

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Quietly and outside the limelight, a big battle is shaping up among various states for a huge economic prize: location of the launching base for the space shuttle of the future.

Cape Kennedy, from where man first went to the moon, is the leading contender in the treasure hunt.

But its premier position is being threatened by California and New Mexico. Oklahoma and Utah also are in the running, but are given only the slightest chance to pick the plum.

At stake are billions of dollars, thousands of jobs and a possible economic boom for the area that winds the launching site off the shuttle, the reusable spaceship, scheduled for operation later this decade.

Politicians and lobbyists, backed by hundreds of thousands of dollars, are hard at work in Washington, trying to convince President Nixon and Congress that the space shuttle should be launched from their respective states.

A decision may come later this year.

Cape Kennedy is the leading candidate because the National Aeronautics and Space Administration already has invested $1.5 billion here for land for launch and support facilities for the Apollo moon program and other projects.

But the shuttle will be a unique craft, and some advantages that favored Cape Kennedy on earlier programs might now work to its disadvantage.

The complex vehicle is being developed to ferry men and supplies between the earth and orbiting space stations. It will be a fully reusable two-stage craft which will take off vertically.

The booster stage, the size of a Boeing 747 jumbo jet and manned by two pilots, will kick the orbital section into space and then turn around and fly back to the launch site, landing on a runway like a conventional aircraft.

The Boeing 707-sized orbital section, with two pilots and 12 or more passengers and 50,000 pounds of cargo, will continue to the space station. It later will return to earth with equipment and passengers from the space lab. It also will land like a plane.

Both segments of the shuttle will be designed to fly 100 or more times, greatly reducing the cost of operating in space.

One Cape Kennedy disadvantage for the shuttle is that the launch area is nearly surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean.

If either the booster or orbital section of a space shuttle should stray on takeoff or landing, it might land in the ocean's salt water. Recovery would be difficult and the resulting corrosion could render it no longer useable.

The other candidate states, noting this and other Cape weaknesses, began touting their areas many months ago.

California is backing either Edwards Air Force Base or Vandenberg Air Force Base.

New Mexico favors its White Sands Missile Range, and Utah is pushing Wendover Air Force Base on the Utah-Nevada line.

Oklahoma has suggested Clinton-Sherman Air Force Base.

Most observers feel Utah and Oklahoma are out of the running and their campaigns have been lukewarm compared with the others.

A 12-man NASA facilities group headed by Robert H. Curtin will make the choice, probably late this year.

See Modular Housing Basis For Next Boom

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The factory construction of modular living units is predicted as the next boom in the mobile housing.

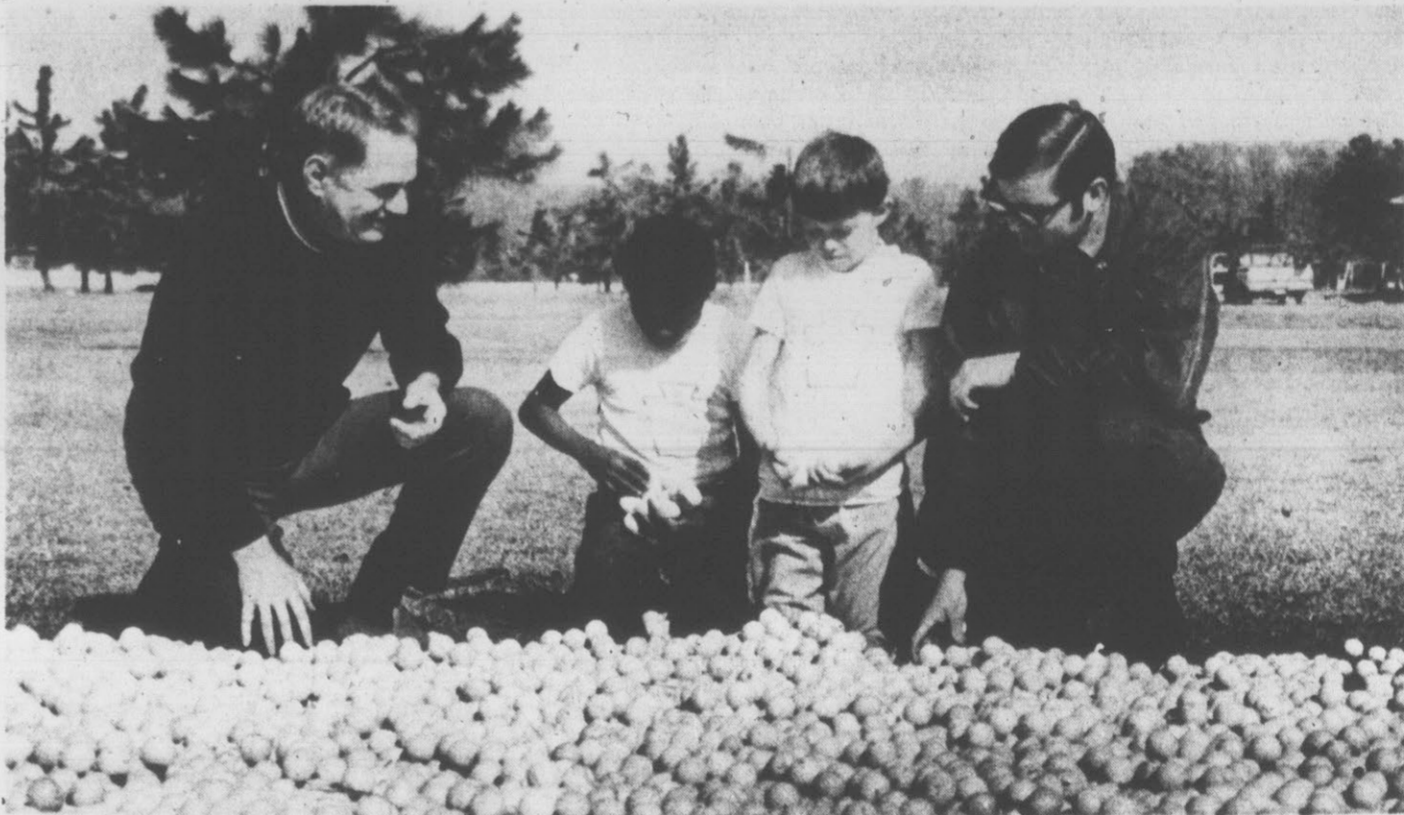

About 40 housing companies — most of them large corporations — are getting into factory housing construction, according to a Bank of America report.

Consumer demand has boosted production of both mobile homes and recreational vehicles by about 20 per cent annually in the past ten years, the bank said, adding:

"The production of mobile homes and recreational vehicles during the next decade has been predicted to increase between 9 and 15 per cent annually."

Tax Repeal And Increase Fight Faces Assembly

By H. HORTON ROUNTREE Representative

The tax people and the anti-tax people are at it again! It sounds like a re-run of the 1969 session of the General Assembly.

Tax repeal bills and tax increase bills started as early as January 13, when bills to repeal the cigarette tax were introduced in both the Senate and House on the first day of this session. Since then the following tax-related bills have been introduced: gasoline tax reduction, local government 1 cent sales tax, property tax relief for the aged, tax exempt retired, military pay, county sales and use tax, taxation on banks, widowers' tax exemption, and intangibles tax exemption for people over 65.

All of these were introduced prior to February 19. Last Friday, February 26, there were three more tax bills introduced. Representative Sneed "High" introduced a bill to repeal the soft drink tax, followed by Representative Perry Martin's bill to increase the soft drink tax to 2 cents, and followed by Representative Hershel Harkins' bill to increase the cigarette tax by 2 cents. Representative High is from Cumberland County, Representative Martin is from Northampton, and Representative Harkins is from Buncombe County.

All of these bills were obviously interrelated. High's bill cut the revenue, and Harkins' bill was planned to pass the cut on to tobacco products. The tobacco folks, expecting this maneuver, beat them to the draw with their bill to shift the burden back to soft drinks.

The strange thing about these maneuvers is that for many sessions of the General Assembly the tobacco and soft drink industries have combined forces in keeping taxes off their products. Now they are fighting each other to protect their own interests.

We people in Pitt County are interested in both of these items. Our county is the largest tobacco producing county in the world. Also, we in Pitt County consume the most soft drinks in the state, primarily during the tobacco harvesting season.

Everyone knows that if a tax is repealed, the 4.3 billion dollar budget will be thrown out of balance; therefore, some other source of revenue must be found to pick up the tab.

There are two main sources of revenue for our state government—the income tax and the sales tax. The counties and municipalities are screaming for the one-cent sales tax to meet their increasing demands for funds. This, of course, cuts the state out of this source of revenue. Since there is tremendous opposition to an increase in the income tax, the state is forced to go to taxing specific items—cigarettes and soft drinks. If one is repealed, the other must be increased. It is as simple as that. The general consensus in the General Assembly at this time is that there will be no change in the tax structure. However, there is a long way to go before the end of this session!

East Carolina University has requested appropriations of more than seven million dollars above that recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission.

Dr. Leo Jenkins appeared before the Joint Appropriations Subcommittee last week to present ECU's case for additional items of capital improvements and new programs included in this request. For the first time he personally presented a request for funds for the construction of a much-needed Arts Building, and members of the committee were impressed.

Road On Ice In Greenland

THULE AFB, Greenland (UPI)—With the North American continent again in the grip of winter, a mild one in many areas, Thule Air Force Base in Greenland has an unusual concern.

For officials at the base, home of the Aerospace Defense Command's 12th Missile Warning Squadron, the concern is more for how much road is on the ice than how much ice is on the road.

It seems that Dundas Village, a Danish government facility also housing many civilians who work at Thule, lies 1 1/2 miles across the North Star Bay.

The bay freezes so solidly during the winter months, reports the Air Force, that it is used as direct road across the water, bypassing the regular road around the bay which is impassable during winter.

This year the path, known locally as "the ice road," opened on Dec. 18, 1970, and is expected to stay open until mid May, depending on temperatures and ice pressure.

Thule officials say that as of the first of the year, the "ice road" was nearly four feet thick and could support a load of 75,000 lbs.

Strangers From Half-Continent Away Contribute

MANY FARMS, Ariz. (AP)—A thousand strangers a half continent away collected $5,846 for the Navajo Community College.

The Allentown, Pa., Area Council of Churches and the Call-Chronicle Newspapers, headed a fund-raising drive to help the fledgling Indian college.

The drive, called "The Least We Can Do," was conducted for the second time. Funds the first time went to Montagnard orphans in Vietnam.

Some of the gifts to the college were accompanied by letters. One from a third grade student at a Hellertown, Pa., school said, "We just finished a unit on the American Indian and decided we want to help. Our class of 23 hopes this will help."

NCC President Ned A. Hatathli said the money will be used for materials for the Navajo studies program at the new college campus to be built at Tsale Lake, about 30 miles east of Many Farms.

Open Sex Clinic For Copenhagen

COPEHNAGEN (UPI)—Jette Bach, 27, and Bent Petersen, 32, have opened the first sex advice clinic in Denmark in a downtown Copenhagen apartment.

"Most people see their doctors, but sex is not an illness and this is where we come in," said Petersen. "We hope a lot of youngsters will come in for advice." Both are qualified psychologists and they charge $1.25 for a 45-minute consultation.

Tried To Deter A Dog-Catcher

LA PUENTE, Calif. (UPI)—Charges of conduct unbecoming a postal officer who took a liking to a toy poodle along his route and put him in his mail bag when the dog catcher tried to grab him have been dropped.

Mailman Lawson Heacock said he hoped the poodle's owner would keep him at home in the future and keep him from tailing him on his route.

First Practical Male Nurse At Pitt Hospital

Pitt County Memorial Hospital's first practical male nurse goes on duty tomorrow. George F. Lambert, formerly an orderly at the hospital, is returning to duty there tomorrow after completing the Practical Nurse Education Program at Craven Technical Institute in New Bern.

"This is surely going to help us out a lot," Mrs. Helen Abbott, Assistant Director of Nursing, commented. "I'd like to encourage young men to go into nursing training, we really need them."

Mrs. Abbott mentioned the hospital has another male nurse, Bill Highsmith, a nurse-anesthetist. Lambert is the first practical nurse.

A native of Clearwater, Florida, Lambert is married to the former Callie Scott of Honolulu, Hawaii. They have two children, a boy and a girl.

Lambert served in the Air Force for a five year period, from 1946 to 1951. He is a graduate of Hawkinsville Industrial High School in Hawkinsville, Georgia, and attended Georgia State College, Savannah, Georgia.

He attended Crave Technical Institute on a scholarship awarded by the National Association for Practical Nurse Education and services. At the institute, he was an honor roll student.

Lambert admits it will take some adjusting on the part of some people to accept male nurses. "I'm sure there will be more men becoming male nurses," he stated. "A lot of things have to be changed, and it will be a matter of gradually phasing in. Some people will accept the idea of male nurses easily, other may not."

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill that would permit county commissioners throughout North Carolina to impose one cent local sales taxes was expected to win House approval again today.

The bill's rapid trip through the General Assembly was slowed Wednesday when the House reconsidered and then voted 60-57 to adopt an amendment by Rep. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus. It had rejected the amendment the day before.

The bill would allow county commissioners to levy one-cent county sales taxes with or without a vote of the people. Johnson's amendment says if the commissioners submit the issue to the people and the people reject it, the commissioners cannot levy the tax until the people change their mind.

The bill must pass the House today and Friday and then go to the Senate for approval of the House amendments.

The sales tax bill was rushed to passage after the State Supreme Court last January ruled a local option sales tax law unconstitutional. The ruling unbalanced the budgets of 25 counties which had counted on the revenue.

Some of the county commissioners were reported ready to reimpose the tax as soon as the new law is passed.

The House, meanwhile, amended and then passed a bill to permit judges to give limited driving rights to persons convicted of drunken driving for the first time.

The amendment, offered by Rep. Henry Frye, D-Guilford, would extend the law's expiration date to June 3, 1973.

The law is intended to help save the jobs of persons convicted of first time of drunken driving. It allows judges to give them limited driving licenses that lets them drive to and from their jobs.

Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, sponsored a bill that would give the same privileges to persons convicted of a first offense of speeding over 55 and exceeding the stated speed limit by more than 15 miles per hour. The offense now calls for an automatic license suspension of 30 days.

Messer said his bill would "take the inequity out of the law" by giving speeders the same privilege that drunk drivers enjoy.

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill that would permit county commissioners throughout North Carolina to impose one cent local sales taxes was expected to win House approval again today.

The bill's rapid trip through the General Assembly was slowed Wednesday when the House reconsidered and then voted 60-57 to adopt an amendment by Rep. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus. It had rejected the amendment the day before.

The bill would allow county commissioners to levy one-cent county sales taxes with or without a vote of the people. Johnson's amendment says if the commissioners submit the issue to the people and the people reject it, the commissioners cannot levy the tax until the people change their mind.

The bill must pass the House today and Friday and then go to the Senate for approval of the House amendments.

The sales tax bill was rushed to passage after the State Supreme Court last January ruled a local option sales tax law unconstitutional. The ruling unbalanced the budgets of 25 counties which had counted on the revenue.

Some of the county commissioners were reported ready to reimpose the tax as soon as the new law is passed.

Wildcats Favored To Cop SC Tourney

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) —
The 51st Southern Conference Basketball Tournament opens late this afternoon at the Charlotte Coliseum with the first of three first round games, but the team that won't be playing today, defending champion Davidson, is the one commanding the most attention.

The Wildcats, top-seeded after posting a 9-1 regular season league record and a modest 15-10 for all games, gained a first round bye because the departure of George Washington last year left the league with only seven members.

Thus, a tripleheader was arranged for the opening round with the top-seeded team given a bye into Friday night's semifinals.

William and Mary, seeded
No. 2 on a 7-3 conference record, and Virginia Military, 1-11 in the league and 1-24 overall, were paired in the 5 p. m. opener.

Night action starts with The Citadel playing Furman at 7 p.
m. and East Carolina facing Richmond at 9 o'clock. Semifinals Friday send the Furman-Citadel winner against Davidson at 9 o'clock, with the other winners today meeting in the 7
p. m. game. The championship game is set for 8 o'clock Saturday night, with an NCAA tournamant first-round spot to the winner.

The Southern champion will play Fordham at New York City March 13.

Davidson Coach Terry Holland regards the first round bye as a plus for his team. He reasons:

"We're not a team that can dominate a game with our offense as in past years. We just can't take control of a game that way. We're an inexperienced tournament team and we're not deep.

"A hot-shooting team can beat us, so if we play only two tournament games rather than three there is less chance of us running into a real hot-shooting team.

"We have to play strong defense and take good shots and the boys have surprised me with the way they have done that in most games this year."

There has been no national ranking for Davidson this year and the Wildcats have averaged only 71 points a game, sixth among the seven conference teams. But they lead in shooting percentage, 46, and defense, allowing an average of 65.6 points.

Their top scorer is long-haired sophomore Joe Sutter, whose 15.5 average is only No.
6 in the league.

Holland points out, "Players who gave us 83 per cent of our offense last season graduated or were lost through injury."

Over-all, this has not been a good year for the conference.
The six teams in action today have a composite record of 54-92 and in league play their record is 29-37.

Thus, it would appear that Davidson's bid for a fourth straight title—the record is six—should not be challenged seriously.

However, the six other teams believe they can work up momentum and make things interesting and one of them, Furman, knows it can beat Davidson.

Furman handed Davidson its only loss in 43 games in the league, 84-75 two months ago on the Furman court. Davidson won the return game by 10 points on its court two weeks ago.

Coach Joe Williams, who shot Jacksonville into national prominence and the NCAA runner-up spot last season, has returned to Furman, where he was an assistant coach, and put together the top-scoring team in the conference. His Paladins averaged 81 points in a 12-11 season and were 5-5 in the league for fifth place.

William and Mary, coached by Warren Mitchell, has the
No. 1 scorer in Tom Jasper at 18.9 points a game and the No.
3 man, Steve Dodge, averaging 16.8.

East Carolina finished third in the league at 7-4 behind the top rebounder in the league, 6-foot-10 sophomore Al Faber, and the runner-up, Jim Gregory, who also averaged 18.3 points.

The conference is not likely to have a 20-game winner this season, unless Davidson can win the tournament and three in NCAA Eastern play.

But two members already have lost 20 or more. Richmond stands 5-20 and Virginia Military is 1-24, including 19 at the start of the season for a two-season streak of 24 before the Keydets snapped the string by beating Richmond.

Marquette's Warriors Get 37th Straight Win

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Marquette is closing in on the third longest winning streak in major college basketball history.

The nationally second-ranked Warriors from Milwaukee made it 37 in a row by routing Bowling Green 96-74 Wednesday night. They now are only four shy of UCLA's streak of 41 that was snapped by Southern California 46-44 on March 8, 1969.

The all-time collegiate winning streak in San Francisco's 60 straight that was ended by Illinois in December, 1956. The second longest winning streak is 47 by UCLA, stopped by Houston 71-69 on Jan. 20, 1968.

Marquette started its streak by winning its last 12 games of the 1970 season. The warriors are unbeaten in 25 starts this year. They end their regular season against Xavier of Ohio on Saturday. They then face Miami of Ohio in the first round of the NCAA championship tourney on March 13.

A 24-1 burst, during which they ran off 22 straight points at the start of the second half, made it easy for Marquette behind Dean Meminger's 20 points.

Miami, on a winning streak of its own, made it 12 in a row by whipping the NIT-bound Dayton Flyers 83-53. The champions of the Mid-American Conference, now 19-4, were led by sophomore Larry Garloh with 25 points.

North Carolina, 12th-ranked in the Associated Press poll, erased a 10-point deficit in the first half and routed N.C. State 97-81. Dennis Wyucik threw in 25 points for the Tar Heels who drew out by 21 points in the second half to win easily.

Villanova, NCAA-bound, downed Boston College 90-77 behind 23 points from Howard Porter. Providence kept its NIT hopes alive by drubbing St. Bonaventure, already in the NIT, 88-56. Nehru Kino led the Friars with 27 points.

Larry Harris' basket in the last 15 seconds helped West Virginia edge Pitt 66-64. Oklahoma tripped Iowa State 95-88, Syracuse shaded Niagara 60-59, NYU overcame Boston U. 86-79 and DePaul dunned Xavier of Ohio 84-76 behind Ed Goode's 31 points.

North Pitt Advances; Faces Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM — North Pitt advanced to Friday night's semifinals of the state 2A basketball tournament with a convincing 78-65 victory over Fred T. Foard of Newton last night — and Pitt coach Cobby Deans is chomping at the bit to face Wake Forest.

Paced by hulking center
William Shiver's 18 points and 21 rebounds, Pitt stormed back from a six - point halftime advantage and roared into a 19 - point lead by the opening minutes of the fourth quarter.
Foard was able to trim the margin to 11 with about two minutes remaining, but never got any closer. It left Deans' newly - consolidated Panthers with a 15-9 worksheet.

In Wednesday night's second game at the Reynolds Gym, do-everything forward Mike Justice led a 23 - point Wake Forest explosion in the final 4:18 which doused a West Stanly rally and left Wake Forest with a 78-1 verdict.

Ayden Plays

Ayden's Tornados begin their quest for the State Class A Basketball title tonight at 8:30 p. m. in Raleigh's Broughton High School Gym.

The Tornados will play Robbinsville, winner of District 8.

The tournament semifinals will be Friday night, with the finals on Saturday. The top four teams who survive the first round of play will play to championship and consolation titles.

And it is because of Justice that Deans has the cockles of his competitive spirit raised. Pitt will meet Wake Forest at 7 p. m. in Friday's first semifinals match.

"You bet our boys want to play them," said Deans after watching Justice and company wreck Stanly. "I think we can get them, but we'll have to have a superb defensive game — particularly against Justice."

Justice led all scorers, pumping in 39 points — 18 of them in the first half. The six-foot senior entered the game with impressive credentials: He scored a total of 575 points in leading Wake Forst to a 22-4 mark in the capital area league.

As for Shiver — who Deans will count upon to shut out the lethal inside play of Justice — Deans said, "William did his usual good job on offense, and helped us a lot on the boards as well. He has been the centerpin of our attack all season (averaging 17 points per game), and hardly ever lets us down."

Shiver is a 6-foot-5 senior whose agility is surprising. He teamed with forward Wayne Brown (at 6-foot-3 and with an 18
- point per game average) to lead Pitt to a 14-9 regular yield mark.

Last night, Brown tossed in 16 points and snared 14 rebounds.
It was his and Shiver's rebounding which in part compensated for 19 Pitt turnovers and an unimpressive 50 per cent average from the floor.

As an omen of what was in store for Foard, Pitt took the opening tag and missed four consecutive shots before Shiver tossed in an eight - foot jumper for the first score.

With 3:44 remaining in the first quarter, Shiver's 15-foot jump shot from the right - hand corner gave Pitt a 9-7 lead, and the Panthers never gave it up.

Pitt's six - point halftime advantage (36-30) was due in part to Shiver's 12 first-half points, and seven-point performances from forward Frank Brown and reserve guard Daniel Highsmith.

After the break, Pitt outscored Foard 20-11 in the third period, then beated it up in the first three minutes of the final stenza.

Deans concluded his after-game chat by saying, "We did throw the ball away too much tonight — but I guess it was a fair game for our first in a state tournament. Sure, Shiver's job on (Foard center Mike) Hilton was the difference in the game (Hilton was held to 12 points, about 12 below his average), but we also got good support from our reserves. Highsmith and Joey Moore did good jobs for us."

From the opposing corner came the voice of Wake Forest coach Larry Lindsey, who said,
"I have a lot of respect for Pitt after seeing them tonight. They are a well - balanced and well - coached team. We will have to play one of our better games to beat them — and I feel sure we will."

Friday night at 7 p. m. will decide.

NBA Files
Haywood Appeal

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Basketball Association has filed an appeal in the Spencer Haywood case.

This was disclosed Wednesday in a NBA meeting here. The league said it was appealing the ruling Monday by United States Supreme Court Justice William C. Douglas enabling the controversial Haywood to resume play for the Seattle Supersonics.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy said the NBA's legal counsel, George G. Gallantz, reported Supreme Court action on the appeal might be expected Friday or no later than next mid-week.

Denver of the rival American Basketball Association has filed a suit in a Los Angeles U.S. district court, claiming Haywood breached a six-year contract by jumping to the NBA's Seattle entry.

The NBA board of governors also awarded Buffalo compensation in the March 29 draft at New York for loss of Ray Scott, who jumped to the Virginia club of the ABA. Earlier, Buffalo had failed in legal action against the Virginia club to reclaim Scott who was drafted from the Baltimore Bullets in the expansion draft. Buffalo is to be given a 28th pick in the collegiate draft.

Kidd Leads Bucs
In Track Meet

Jimmy Kidd will lead the East Carolina University indoor track team into the Southern Conference championships in Lexington, Va., Saturday.

Kidd qualified last weekend in the Delaware Invitational for the NCAA nationals, to be held later this spring. His time of 1:53.0 in that meet, was good enough for him to earn a berth in the half-mile.

The Bucs also had several other good times in the Delaware event. Barry Johnson set a new school record in the 440, running in :50.2. Ron Hunt finished the same race in :50.6.

Rusty Carraway was third in the half-mile in 1:54.9, and Bill Beam tied the school pole vault record with a leap of 14 feet.
Jerry Class was sixth in the finals of the 1,000-yard run.

setting for a 10-point advantage at halftime.

first half lead last night in toppling State Highway, 77-50, to claim the Industrial League championship.

It was the tournament finale,
and Fieldcrest was in true form.

Louis Williams to spearhead Fieldcrest's assault on the nets.
Claybrook poured in 26, and Williams added 25.

After a slow-moving first half,
the winners began to speed it up.
They outscored the High-waymen by 51-40 in rolling up their final big win.

Billy Stokes fired in 12 points for the winners.

Phil Page paced State High-

Jimmy the Greek Proclaims Even Odds

in magnificent shape. They will face each other next Monday in a heavyweight bout at the Garden. Frazier said he would stop Ali inside of 10 rounds. Ali declined to pick the round, but gave a hint: "No contest." (AP Wirephoto)

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, the nation's unofficial odds-maker, insists the Joe Frazier-Muhammad Ali heavyweight title fight Monday night is a "pick 'em" bet although book makers have made Frazier a 7-5 favorite.

"I called it an even fight from the beginning, and still think it is," the dapper public relations man from Las Vegas said today. "It's the people who have turned the odds in Frazier's favor."

"Frankly, the fight to me appears so close that I would be afraid to bet a plugged dime on it."

"It is strength against strength. Ali normally eats up smaller, bore-in fighters like Frazier. On the other hand, Frazier prefers a dancing, jabbing, back-peddling target like Ali.

"Also, there are so many hidden factors that make the fight a hazardous bet."

Snyder, who will quote odds on the drop of a leaf or flight of a sparrow, said he doubted that the multi-million-dollar spectacle, which has aroused worldwide interest, will be a big betting show.

"I know, back hom in Las Vegas, where you get a feel for such things, the action has been very slow," he said. "There is considerable man-to-man wagering on a small scale. I know of no heavy bets."

The Greek said, the betting has been subdued by two factors—the economic cut-back and considerable doubts.

"There are no big gamblers any more—the big bettors such as they had in the 1920s," he added. "I suppose the biggest betting fights were those between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, because passions ran so high.

"The second Max Schmeling-Joe Louis bout was another. That's where I made my debut. I bet $900 on Louis and won $500. People are afraid of this one."

Snyder said a bettor would have to assume that the fight is strictly on the square.

"There is too much money involved for it not to be honest," he said. "Besides, you can't think of larceny and still bet."

Jimmy, nattily attired in a black and white checkered jacket, attended Wednesday's physical examination of both fighters at Madison Square Garden.

Frazier, wearing a heavy beard, predicted he would stop Ali inside 10 rounds. Ali promised it would be "no contest." Then both returned to their camps—Frazier to Philadelphia and Ali to Miami—to continue workouts until they come back Saturday.

Cougars Drop Into Cellar

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kentucky's hopes are slim and Indiana's are much brighter—and they both stayed alive.

Kentucky's Colonels, with only the slightest chance of catching front-running Virginia in the American Basketball Association's East Division, managed to crawl within eight games of the idle Squires Wednesday night with a 131-128 triumph over Carolina that dropped the Cougars into the cellar.

Indiana, meanwhile, only 3½ games back of first-place Utah in the West, kept pace with the leader by beating Memphis 122-98 while the Stars were shooting down Denver 139-106 in the only other ABA game.

In the National Basketball Association, Philadelphia whipped Portland 120-104, Boston ripped San Diego 128-113, Milwaukee flipped Los Angeles 112-97, Phoenix zipped Chicago 115-90,

Gary Player Delays To Play In Doral Open

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
MIAMI (AP) — If it weren't for one bad shot last week, Gary Player might not be playing in the first round of the $15,000 Doral-Eastern Open Golf Tournament today.

"If I'd won the PGA, I'd planned on going home for at least a few weeks," the muscular little South African said. "Now, I plan to play through the Masters before returning."

That would be a seven-week stretch, about as much as Player now cares to be away from his family, home and ranch near Johannesburg.

Should he win between now and then—there's an excellent chance he will; in fact, he's one of the leading favorites for the $30,000 first prize here—he may stay over for an extra two weeks to play in the Tournament of Champions at Rancho La Costa, Calif.

He's played there the last two years and won in 1969.

But Player, 34, now works only a limited number of tournaments in this country, usually on two trips. And, he says, it has nothing to do with racial tensions over his country's apartheid policy.

"I just get homesick," said Player, who last week became only the sixth player in history to win over $700,000 on the American tour.

"That was my thinking last week. If I'd won the PGA, a major title, in my first start I would be justified in going home for a time."

He doesn't usually come to this country this early, but changed his schedule when the dates of the PGA were shifted.

"That's what people will remember you for," he said. "How many major championships you win. I'd rather win one of the four major titles than 25 other tournaments," said Player, one of four men ever to sweep the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and PGA crowns.

He finished fourth in the PGA. But it was close. Player closed to within a stroke of eventual winner Jack Nicklaus at one point of the final round at Palm Beach Gardens. But he shot himself out of it when he knocked one out of bounds and took a double bogey six on the 15th hole.

It was a remarkably good start for Player, who often has his difficulties immediately after coming to this country, and stamped him one of the top choices in the tough field here.

"You always like to think you can win, laddie," he said. "I'm playing well, very well. Possibly as good as I'm capable of playing."

Bucks Gain 17th Win; Jerry West Injured

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
and the beat goes on. And this time it was Los Angeles' time to get beaten. And now only a pair of also-rans can keep the Bucks out of the books.

Low Alcindor, who has been leading Milwaukee through streak after streak this season as the National Basketball Association's scoring leader, got only 15 points—half his average—against Los Angeles Wednesday night.

But the Lakers had to play without their scoring leader, Jerry West—and probably won't get him back until next season—and that enabled the Bucks to mark up their 17th consecutive triumph, 112-97.

It put them one shy of the league record set a year ago by the champion New York Knicks—and the Bucks should have no trouble surpassing it.

They play Buffalo's first-year Braves Thursday night and the Detroit Pistons on Friday. Milwaukee has lost only once in eight games against the two teams, last in their respective divisions.

In other NBA games Philadelphia flattened Portland 120-104, Boston bombed San Diego 128-113, Cincinnati squeezed by Baltimore 133-132 in overtime, Phoenix flipped Chicago 115-90 and Atlanta turned back San Francisco 109-105.

In the American Basketball Association Kentucky outlasted Carolina 131-108, Indiana mauling Memphis 122-98 and Utah slammed Denver 139-106.

Veteran Wilt Chamberlain easily outplayed Alcindor, holding his young foe to his lowest output of the season. Chamberlain also hit 24 points. Los Angeles teammate Gail Goodrich had 25. Oscar Robertson of Milwaukee also had 24.

But the Lakers couldn't keep up with the Bucks without West, last year's NBA scoring champ and the club's second superstar to be sidelined.

Elgin Baylor has been out most of the season with a torn Achilles tendon and West was knocked out of action or at least six weeks—the NBA playoffs begin within a month—with torn right knee cartilage during Tuesday night's game at Buffalo.

Philadelphia led just 54-52 at the half before the defense tightened, enabling the 76ers to pull away from the Trail Blazers and stay 2½ games ahead of Boston in the race for the second playoff spot in the Atlantic Division. Archie Clark of Philly topped all scorers with 28 points.

JoJo White's 34 points enabled the Celtics to pull away from San Diego in the third period after the Rockets, paced by Elvin Hayes' game-high 35 points—31 of them in the first half—trailed only 66-62 at the intermission.

Cincinnati led by as many as 19 points in the second half before the Bulls rallied to tie it at 120-120 after regulation time. Then the Royals went ahead to stay as Sam Lacey and Tom Van Arsdale scored 23 apiece and Norm Van Lier added 22. Fred Carter scored 33 for Baltimore, which failed to clinch the Central Division crown.

Phoenix scored the first nine points of the third period en route to closing within half a game of the Bulls in the scramble for the runner-up spot behind Milwaukee in the Midwest Division. Clem Haskins led the Suns' surge and wound up with 28 points.

He's played there the last two years and won in 1969.

Heels Clinch Top Seeding

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The North Carolina basketball team has clinched the regular season title in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

This means that in the league championship tournament opening next Thursday in the Greensboro, N. C., Coliseum the Tar Heels will draw a weaker first-round opponent, Clemson, which has finished its season eighth and last in the league.

North Carolina assured itself of regular season honors with a 98-81 home victory over North Carolina State Wednesday night in the only game involving league members.

Dennis Wuycik of the Tar Heels was the leading scorer with 25 points as North Carolina, 12th-ranked nationally, won its 11th league game against two losses and brought its over-all record to 20-4.

Other high scorers were Bill Chamberlain of North Carolina with 20, Rick Holdt of N. C.

State also with 20, and Paul Coder of State with 19.

N. C. State is 5-9 in the league and 12-13 in all games. Clemson is 3-11 and 9-16.

The only ACC team in action tonight is Virginia, which will play Seton Hall in the second game of a doubleheader in New York's Madison Square Garden. Iona and Manhattan will play in the first game.

League teams will be idle Friday night and the regular season will wind up Saturday with three games, all conference tests. North Carolina will be at Duke in a televised afternoon game, and Virginia will be at Maryland and South Carolina at Wake Forest in night games.

Virginia, 607 in the league, will be seeking to end a four-game conference losing streak and a jinx in which it has lost all six conference games on the road this season.

South Carolina, 9-4 in the conference, is assured of second place in the regular season.

Carlton Opens For St. Louis

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Steve Carlton was a 19-game loser for the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League last year. He won't be this season if his work in spring training is any criterion.

The 26-year-old southpaw pitched two strong innings in an intrasquad game Wednesday, sharpening his curve and changeup.

Carlton is scheduled to start against the New York Mets Saturday in the Cardinals' first exhibition game. The opening exhibition games are scheduled Friday and, in one of them, the New York Yankees play Washington at Pompano Beach.

Denny McLain, who may start for the Senators against the Yankees, impressed with a three-inning string in an intrasquad game Wednesday. He fanned the side in the first inning, but yielded a run in the third on a walk and a triple by Ed Stroud.

Donn Clendenon came up with three hits in three at bats in a Mets squad game in which Tom Seaver pitched two innings allowing two hits and striking out two.

A Cincinnati rookie, Kurt Bevacqua, was the star of the Reds' first squad game. He drove in five runs, two on a home run.

Veteran Tommy Davis also belted a home run and added a two-bagger in the Oakland A's squad game. Joe Pepitone and rookie Garry Jestadt hit for the circuit in the Chicago Cubs squad game. So did Rich Chiles, Larry Howard, Cesar Cordero and Cliff Johnson in the Houston squad game.

In off the field activity, Boog Powell, star slugger for the Baltimore Orioles, signed for an estimated $90,000, outfielder Vada Pinson signed with Cleveland for an estimated $61,500 and reliever Pete Mikkelsen signed with Los Angeles for $32,500.

In addition to the Yankees-Washington game, other opening exhibition games Friday include Pittsburgh vs. Chicago White Sox, Montreal vs. Atlanta, San Francisco vs. Chicago Cubs, San Diego vs. Oakland and Boston vs. Houston.

Arrest 18 In Wilmington School Fight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Eighteen young people were arrested Wednesday after fighting and shoving between black pupils and white pupils at John T. Hoggard High School in Wilmington.

A school spokesman said the trouble began when students began to violate a new regulation against congregating which had been imposed on Wilmington high schools after racial fighting last week.

Two detectives and three students were injured slightly at Hoggard last week.

After the new fighting at Hoggard the regulation was extended to junior high schools.

At Statesville, 75 black pupils were suspended temporarily from Statesville Senior High School Wednesday after they gathered outside and refused to attend classes. Principal Albert Hiatt told them they may return Monday if accompanied by parents.

The assistant principal, David Abernathy, said the 75 refused to enter their 11 a.m. classes in protest of a Student Assembly vote of a day before. The vote was against a committee's proposal to guarantee blacks the office of secretary of next year's Student Council.

Offer Reward In Double Slaying

SANFORD (AP) — The town of Sanford is offering a $500 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the murder of Patricia Ann Mann, who was murdered with her boyfriend Jesse Allen McBane, sometime after leaving a Durham dance Feb. 12. Miss Mann was from Sanford.

C. D. Knight, Orange County sheriff, said yesterday that there are no new leads in the abduction and murder of the two young students.

The Exchange Club of Sanford has raised $1,500 as part of a Patricia Ann Mann memorial funds.

Speaker Named South Seeing Exodus Of Blacks For Boys Club

A man who is a song writer, wood whittler, an author, a retired chaplain of a federal penitentiary, a former coal miner, and is a C.A.A. licensed pilot, despite having only one arm, is the guest speaker scheduled to be on hand for the third annual meeting of Boys' Club of Greenville at the Candlewick Inn on March 30.

The Rev. H. Park Tucker, formerly Chaplain of Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, has appeared as guest speaker on the platforms of many civic, college, high school and religious organizations, and has been on radio and television shows.

In 1932, at 21, a mine accident deep underground in the Ewin Colliery of the Pittston Coal Company resulted in the loss of an arm. With only a sixth grade education, Rev. Tucker decided then he would "translate the stubbornness of fortune into good."

At Wheaton Academy in Illinois, he completed the seventh and eighth grades and four years of high school in three and one half years. He then earned an A.B. Degree at Houghton College in New York and later was awarded an B.D.

Dr. LeConte Is Commended By Chemical Soc.

Dr. Joseph Nisbet LeConte, professor of chemistry at East Carolina University, has been commended by the American Chemical Society (ACS) for his activities and efforts as a member of one of its examination committees.

Dr. Theo A. Ashford, chairman of the ACS Examination Committee, lauded the efforts of Dr. LeConte in the past several years in the development of a standardized chemistry test for paramedical programs.

The test, now completed, is designed to be used for nursing and medical technology programs and in preparatory programs for other paramedical fields.

A member of the ECU chemistry faculty since 1957, Dr. LeConte specializes in organic chemistry and biochemistry courses for nursing majors.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The South showed a migratory population gain in the 1960s for the first time in a century, the Census Bureau says, but the exodus of blacks was not slowed significantly.

Although picking up a net gain of 500,000 persons through migration, the 16 Southern states lost blacks at the rate of 140,000 a year, a bureau report showed Wednesday. This contrasted with earlier Census estimates that heavy migration of blacks from the South during the 1940s and 1950s had been cut to about 88,000 a year.

Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans, in releasing the report, said continued high migration of blacks indicated Negroes were searching for better jobs or higher welfare benefits than offered in the South. The half-million gain through migration was first since Civil War times for the South, the nation's most heavily populated region.

Most of those moving into the South in the '60s were whites, and most went to Florida, Maryland, Virginia, Texas and Georgia. Most of the blacks leaving the region during the decade were from the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Blacks still make up 19 per cent of Southern population, about the same as in 1960. The nation's Negro population rose 20 per cent between the 1960 and 1970 Census, to 22,672,570, and the white population rose 12 per cent, to 177,612,309.

California and Florida led the other 48 states in net gains through migration during the 1960s, as well as in the number of new white residents. New York lost 500,000 whites to other states but gained 480,000 blacks through migration. Ohio lost 190,000 whites and picked up 45,000 blacks; Illinois lost 200,000 whites and gained 125,000 blacks.

California and New York continued to be favorite destinations of blacks moving from other states. In another finding, the quality of American housing improved during the decade, Stans said. The number of homes without basic plumbing facilities dropped from 17 per cent in 1960 to 7 per cent last year. The figure was 35 per cent 20 years ago.

City Counts Three Traffic Accidents

More than $800 property damage was reported in a series of three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Investigators reported heaviest damage resulted from a 6:30 p.m. collision on 10th Street, 75 feet East of the Monroe Avenue intersection and involved cars driven by Daniel Webster Byrum, 37, of 2619 South Wright Rd. and James Howard Moore, 30, of Grimesland.

Officers, who reported a passenger in the Moore car was injured, charged Moore with improper lighting.

Damage was estimated at $250 to the Moore auto and $100 to the Byrum car.

No charges were reported in a 12 noon collision at the intersection of Ninth and Washington Streets.

Police reported vehicles driven by Walter Samuel Pollard, 20, of 2502B East Third St. and Herman Lee Garris, 67, of Route 2, Greenville collided, causing an estimated $200 damage to the Pollard vehicle and about $100 damage to the auto.

The unit, on display throughout the tobacco growing area during February, March and April, is a half size model of the full size curing system and is used to demonstrate Gastobac's new "down-flow" drying system.

According to Gastobac personnel, the EconoBulk barn will accommodate either standard four-foot tobacco sticks or Gastobac four-foot bulk racks, without modification.

In addition, the barn reportedly cures up to five pounds of dry tobacco per stick and up to 4,000 pounds of total dry tobacco per cure.

Five Tar Heels Served As Secretary Of Navy; Anniversaries For Two

By H.G. JONES
 RALEIGH (AP) — Five North Carolinians have served as U.S. Secretary of the Navy, and March marks the anniversaries of the dates on which two of them took office.

And John Branch, the first secretary of the Navy from North Carolina, only missed the date by four days. President Jackson appointed him March 9, 1829.

Branch was born in Halifax County, the son of a county sheriff and four-time state legislator. He was one of the early graduates of the University of North Carolina and held several high offices before being appointed secretary of the Navy.

Following two years in this post, Branch was again elected to Congress from North Carolina and in 1843 was appointed the last territorial governor of Florida.

George Edmund Badger, the second North Carolinian to hold the office of the secretary of the Navy, was one of those who took office on March 5.

Badger's father died when the boy was four years old. A relative's help enabled him to attend Yale College for two years, after which Badger returned to his home in New Bern to study law. He began practicing at the age of 19.

Except for five years as judge of the Superior Court beginning in 1820, Badger held no political office until appointed to the cabinet in 1841 by President William Henry Harrison.

He stayed in office only six months before he and the president came to a parting of ways. He later served seven years as a U.S. senator.

The third native son to hold the office of secretary of the Navy was born near Vesuvius Furnace in Lincoln County.

William Alexander Graham was one of eleven children. His mother died when he was three years old. He graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1824, served in the General Assembly, went to the U.S. Senate in 1840, and was elected governor on the Whig ticket in 1845.

President Millard Fillmore named Graham secretary of the Navy July 9, 1850. He resigned two years later to accept the Whig party's nomination for vice president as the running mate of Gen. Winfield Scott. The ticket was defeated.

Graham later served in the Confederate Senate and after the war was again elected to the U.S. Senate, but he was not allowed to take his seat.

James Cochran Dobbin of Fayetteville was appointed secretary of the Navy in 1852 by President Franklin Pierce, whose name Dobbin had placed in nomination for the presidency. Dobbin had served in both Congress and the General Assembly.

He is best remembered for his vigorous support of Do-orothea L. Dix in sponsoring legislation to establish a hospital for the mentally ill.

The most recent secretary of the Navy from North Carolina, and the second one to take office on March 5, was Josephus Daniels, who was born in Washington, N.C., and grew up in Wilson.

At the age of 18, he published his first newspaper, the "Cornucopia," and later headed the News and Observer at Raleigh.

Having served as "director of publicity" in the presidential campaigns of William Jennings Bryan in 1908 and Woodrow Wilson in 1912, he was named secretary of the Navy in 1913.

After serving for eight years he joined Wilson in working for establishment of the League of Nations.

He later was named ambassador to Mexico before returning in 1941 to the editorship of the News and Observer.

His ambassadorial appointment was given him by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who had been Daniels' assistant as secretary of the Navy.

Thus North Carolina, a state without a great seaport, has played a significant role in the growth of the U.S. Navy. In fact, Joseph Hewes of Edenton, though he never held the title of secretary, is often referred to as the "father" of the Navy because of his chairmanship of the Committee of Marine in the Continental Congress.

Young Voters Can Swell Rolls

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico Secretary of State Mrs. Betty Fiorina said an analysis indicates there are 99,395 New Mexico citizens in the 16-20 year age group.

She said these people could become qualified to vote for national officials for the first time in the 1972 elections.

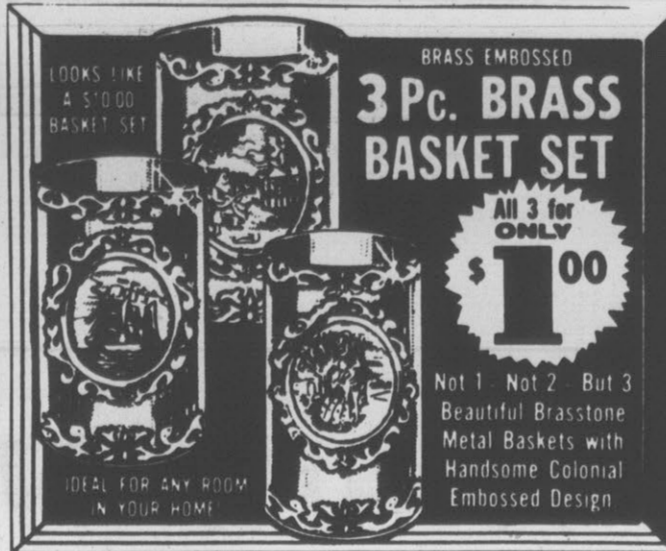

The present New Mexico voter registration of nearly 406,000 could be increased by nearly 25 per cent if most of the 16-20 age group registers.

Mrs. Fiorina said the analysis was prepared by the University of New Mexico Bureau of Business Research.

SIMPLICITY . . . is exemplified in this unpainted church on Greenville's West Third Street.

Buildings Of Eastern North Carolina

Eastern North Carolina, the location of the historic towns of Bath, New Bern, Edenton, Wilmington, Washington and other old towns of lesser vintage, offer local folks and tourists alike many buildings of beauty and history.

Historic buildings, or ones of significance because of some other association, are not however, the only buildings with an element of appeal.

Within each community among the thousands of homes, churches, barns, business buildings, storage sheds, and commercial buildings which have been erected over the years, certain buildings will stand out.

It may be that the building is a surviving example of an architectural type once common but now out of vogue; a chance happy marriage of site and structure that gives the building added interest; or the result of being planned to be strikingly different.

On this page six buildings that appeal to one individual are shown. Each reader of this page can very likely list a dozen buildings within less than a hundred miles from Greenville which would be his favorites, among buildings with nothing more than their own particular charm to recommend them.

AN OLD MULE STABLE . . . with an overhang front was a common type of construction in the 19th century. This one, with its original split shingles, is on the Rogers Farm on the Wild Cat Road near Williamston.

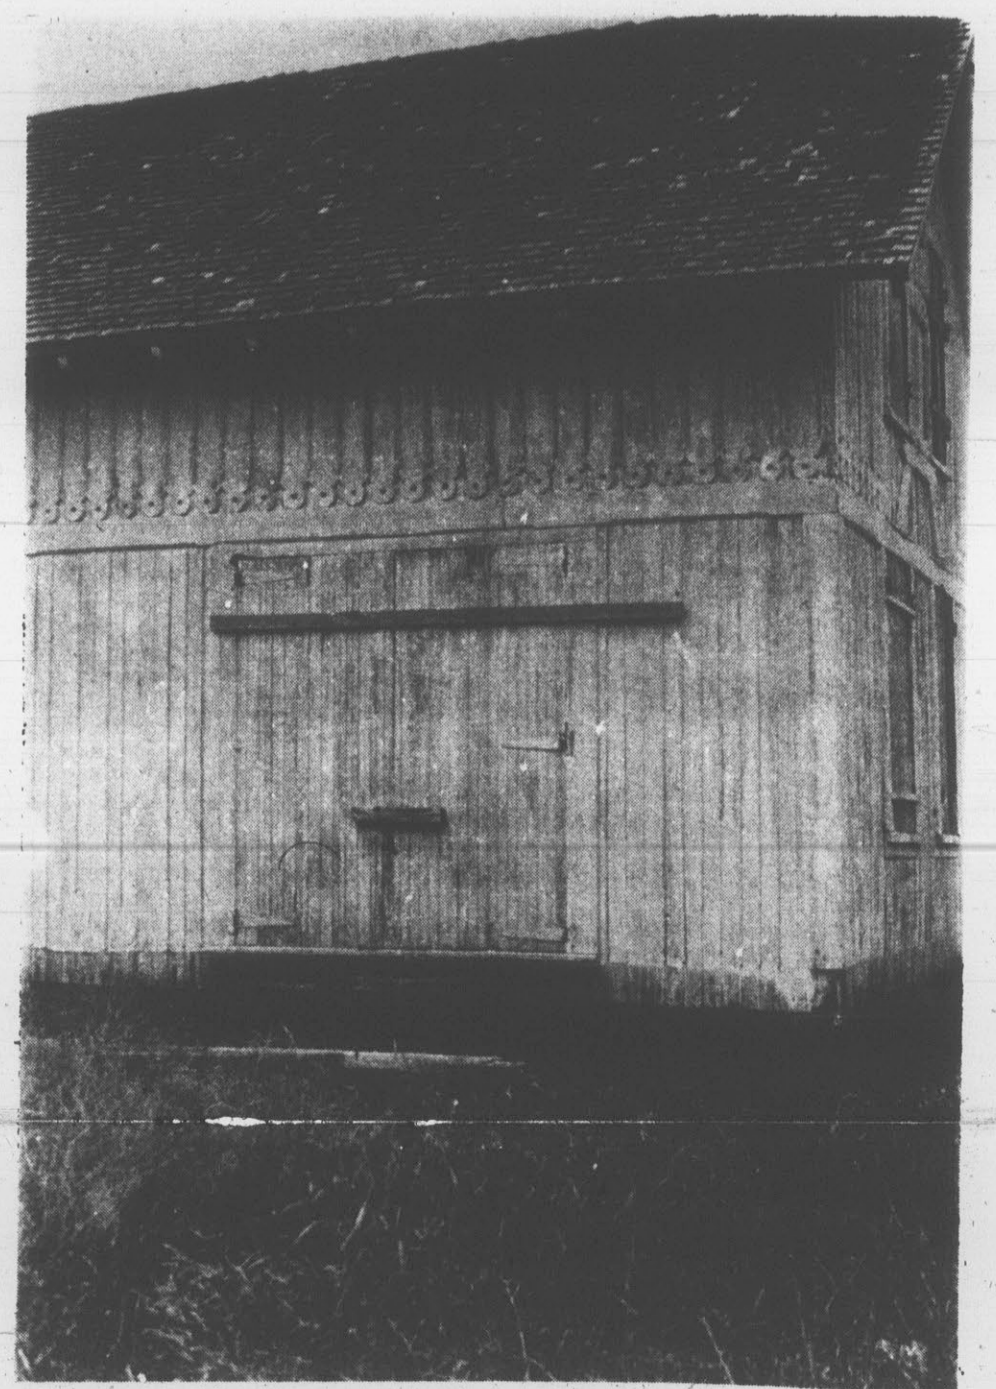

DECORATIVE ELEMENTS . . . are plentiful and varied on the Lee home on Evans Street in Greenville.

Text and Photographs By Jerry Raynor

CORN CRIB . . . more than 75 years old is still in use at Little's Nursery near Greenville on the Farmville Highway. Little says some of the logs are even older, having been taken from a former log house on the site in which a Blount family lived.

COAST GUARD STORAGE HOUSE . . . at Rodanthe on the Outer Banks has interesting details and is faced with vertical siding.

Worry Clinic Some Ailments Have An Aroma

Note how this physician diagnosed "milk sick" by the peculiar odor in the sick room. Abraham Lincoln's mother died of this ailment. My uncle and I would probably have perished likewise, except we didn't drink much milk due to lack of ice or refrigerators on farms in those days. If humans can detect disease by smell, how about bloodhounds?

bundles, which were unusually heavy that year. And he had to work steadily.
So I gladly swapped jobs.
But at lunch I also got sick when I bit into a ham sandwich.
And by mid-afternoon, I thought I'd never be able to finish the day, for I was nauseated.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

Case P-587: At the age of 16, I was working as a harvest hand on my grandmother's Indiana farm.

It was threshing time, and we carried our lunches, which that day consisted of thick ham sandwiches, cake, etc.

This was before the modern farm combine, so wheat and oats were cut and bound in sheaves, after which they were shocked.

Later in the summer, the threshing machine pulled a big separator into the fields.

Farmers then loaded the sheaves on hay rigging and then pitched the sheaves into the separator, which blew the straw into a towering straw pile.

"George," my Uncle Vick said at noon, "I'm sick at my stomach, so could you change jobs with me?"

I had been hired by a neighbor to drive a team and run a grain wagon, so I got frequent rest periods till it was my turn to drive under the grain chute.

But Uncle Vick was pitching

Luckily, the separator broke down at 3 P.M., so we called off work for the day.

Uncle Vick and I were both nauseated but when we got home, we found a couple of big fresh apple pies on the kitchen table and split one of them between us.

Two hours later we lapsed into unconsciousness, after having vomited profusely and repeatedly.

A specialist was called from Kokomo, Indiana, who had treated some of my cousins a year before, one of whom had died under similar circumstances.

"This is milk sick," the doctor exclaimed as soon as he sniffed the air in the bedroom.

Milk sick caused the death of Abraham Lincoln's mother and many other pioneers.

For in dry summers, cows go into the woods and eat white snake root, the poison of which comes out in their milk.

Uncle Vick and I never drank much milk, for we didn't have the modern refrigerators then. But we used some cream and butter.

Although we were bedfast for several weeks, we finally were able to get back to work.

But I mention this case to show that certain ailments cause distinctive aromas.

Indeed, one of our military men in Germany trained his dog to detect contraband narcotics.

Thus, he'd let the dog wander around the luggage of soldiers till the dog would stop before any package that contained narcotics.

Suppose we were thus to take dogs (such as hounds that are noted for their keen scent) and then "condition" them, as we call it in psychology, to the specific bodily odor of cancer vs. diabetes vs. tuberculosis, etc.

Maybe we could let such hounds wander around a large crowd of people where they could then sniff out such preliminary disease victims long before other symptoms became apparent.

For our blood chemistry varies in different ailments! A keen-scented canine should, theoretically at least, save many dollars now spent trying to make a medical diagnosis.

This isn't as far-fetched as you might think, for dogs can follow the faintest spoor of one person vs. another, several days after they have walked over a given pathway.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

A full-grown white tiger can measure 8½ feet from nose to tail and can weigh 400 to 500 pounds.

When a defender possesses knowledge which may not be available to his partner, it is distinctly remiss on his part if he fails to lead a helping hand. West stood passively by in today's hand and allowed East to make a play which presented the declarer with an unmakeable game.

South had eight winners in his own hand and, when North was able to keep the bidding open, it appeared not unreasonable to expect him somehow to produce a couple of tricks and South accordingly contracted for a game in hearts.

West opened the king of clubs and East signaled vigorously with the jack. The queen was overtaken on the next round in order to continue a third round with the ten. West was called on to make a discard, and he selected the deuce of spades as his play.

It was not clear to East at this point whether he should shift to a diamond in order to make a play for his partner in that suit, else continue with another club in an effort to promote West's trump holding. After much mental turmoil, East finally chose to play a fourth club. South was able to discard the six of diamonds from his hand as he trumped the trick with North's seven of hearts.

West took his partner to task for not having shifted to a diamond, and perhaps he was right. However, West could have eliminated all problems for East by taking charge himself. When the third club is cashed, West should have seized the initiative by ruffing in with the deuce of hearts. It then becomes routine for him to get out with a spade and wait for the setting trick with the king of diamonds.

2-Year Senior Colleges Seen As An Offshoot

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH AP Education Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The phenomenal growth of the nation's two-year junior or community colleges is spawning a new breed of higher education institution: the two-year senior college.

Florida is a pioneer in the field but interviews with educators at a convention here disclosed that both private and public institutions in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Texas, Michigan and California are experimenting with the concept.

Open only to college students with junior or senior standing, Florida has Florida-Atlantic at Boca Raton, with 6,000 students, and University of Florida West at Pensacola with 3,500 students. Similar schools, named Florida International at Miami and University of Florida North in Jacksonville, are scheduled to open in the fall of 1972.

Jack G. Guistwhite, director of inter-institutional relations at Florida-Atlantic, said in an interview at the American Association of Junior College convention that 65 to 70 per cent of the senior college students are junior college graduates.

Growth of the junior colleges has been dramatic. In 1930, according to the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education, there were less than 200,000 students enrolled in two-year schools. By 1970 enrollment had grown to 2 million. Educators estimate that in this decade junior college enrollment will double.

Most junior colleges offer comprehensive programs covering academic, occupational and general education programs. The Carnegie Commission in its study endorsed this type of school and said they "should remain two-year institutions and not expect to become four-year or graduate institutions."

Dr. Peter Masiko, president of Miami-Dade Junior College, one of the nation's largest two-year schools with 34,000 fulltime students, said the junior college can give "better quality teaching, better quality counseling and guidance to the beginning student" than the traditional four-year undergraduate college.

Dr. John G. Berrier, president of Lehigh Community College near Allentown, Pa., agreed. He said too many four-year schools concentrate on research and writing and "don't think of the individual" who needs guidance on entering college.

Florida's two-year senior colleges, Berrier said "are setting the pace for all of us."

Miami-Dade's Masiko said his state's two-year schools have been a stimulant to education. Before junior colleges were set up, he said, less than 50 per cent of Florida's high school graduates went on to college. Today nearly 75 per cent seek post-secondary school training.

In Florida, as in many other states, students in the junior colleges are assured that credits earned will be recognized by the two-year senior colleges when they continue their education.

Christianity A Part Of Samoa
PAGO, PAGO, American Samoa (UPI)—Christianity has been an important part of Samoan culture since the landing in 1830 of John Williams of the London Missionary Society.

The clanging of empty oxygen tanks, used to summon worshippers to churches in virtually every village, can be heard every morning and evening—and several times on Sunday.

About 63 per cent of the U.S. territory's residents are members of the Christian Congregational Church, which succeeded the London Missionary Society.

About 19 per cent are Roman Catholic, nearly 9 per cent are Mormon, 5 per cent are Methodist and the remainder are members of small Protestant sects which arrived in recent years.
