ARVN Set For Assault On Key Town

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam massed more than 1,000 troops just outside Sepone today in preparation for a large-scale assault on the town and airstrip two miles to the west in the heart of the Ho Chi Minh trail supply network.

Sources in Saigon said U.S. helicopters flew the fresh South Vietnamese reinforcements to within three miles of Sepone and that an assault on the enemy transshipment point 25 miles inside Laos was planned. Lt. Col. Le Thung Hein, a South Vietnamese spokesman in Quang Tri, said the forward-most South Vietnamese infantrymen were 25 to 28 miles deep into Laos and added: "This is the most significant troop movement in two weeks."

Associated Press Correspondent J.T. Wolkerstorfer reported from Quang Tri that virtually the entire South Vietnamese 2nd Regiment of the 1st Infantry Division had been committed to the Sepone drive, and that the South Vietnamese now have about 20,000 troops in southern Laos.

This new troop movement left South Vietnam's northernmost province of Quang Tri virtually bare of South Vietnamese army forces. Nearly 2,000 more U.S. troops were moved north to guard against a North Vietnamese thrust across the demilitarized zone. This put the entire northern rim of the country in the hands of the American blocking force of 12,000 to 15,000 men.

Sepone, a key point on the Ho Chi Minh trail, has been under heavy U.S. air attack for months, and the town has been reported virtually flattened. But last month a considerable quantity of war supplies was reported waiting there for movement to South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Sources said South Vietnamese reconnaissance teams have been operating in the Sepone area for several weeks, apparently collecting information for the assault.

South Vietnamese troops battled for three hours Thursday with a strong North Vietnamese force near Sepone.

Lt. Col. Tran Van An, South Vietnam's chief military spokesman in Saigon, said the North Vietnamese finally withdrew under an onslaught of U.S. bombers.

With American helicopters leapfrogging the South Vietnamese from point to point across the complex of enemy supply trails, the U.S. Command reported six more 'copters shot down and destroyed. Four Americans were reported missing and two wounded.

This raised the announced toll to 48 American helicopters and two fighter-bombers lost since the Laotian drive started Feb. 8, with 41 Americans killed, 28 missing and 46 wounded. Field reports say twice as many helicopters have been shot down, but the rest have been lifted back to Vietnam for repairs.

South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 408 North Vietnamese troops were killed in two other battles Thursday 8 and 16 1/2 miles west of the border outpost of Lao Bao. Twenty South Vietnamese were reported wounded.

Reliable informants said electric sensors along the Ho Chi Minh trail had detected an increase in the movement of North Vietnamese trucks in the past few days.

"I'm talking about total traffic up and down the trail," said one source. "They could come down the trail full and back up empty. Or one truck might register on four or five sensors. This means just movement of all the traffic on the trail."

The source said that three weeks ago sensors showed more than 2,000 "movers." This dropped last week to below 1,000 but in the last two days has again picked up to more than 1,000.

President Nixon told his news conference Thursday night traffic on the trail network had been cut 50 per cent.

The source here explained: "There had been a 50 per cent decrease from the high point, based on information from the pattern last week."

Minges Named To Commission

Dr. Ray Minges, Greenville physician, was last night appointed for a five year term to the Greenville Utilities Commission, replacing J. E. Waldrop, whose second five year term has expired. Waldrop, chairman of the commission, has served the maximum time permissible.

Dr. Minges, at one time Chief of Staff of Pitt Memorial Hospital, is a member of the Pitt County Medical Society. A native of Greenville, Dr. Minges was educated at Davidson and the Medical College of Virginia, establishing his practice in Greenville in 1954.

A veteran of military service in World War II, Dr. Minges is married to the former Virginia Waring of Richmond, Virginia. The Minges have five children, three girls and two boys. They are members of Greenville's First Presbyterian Church.

This is the second time Dr. Minges has been appointed to serve on the Greenville Utilities Commission.

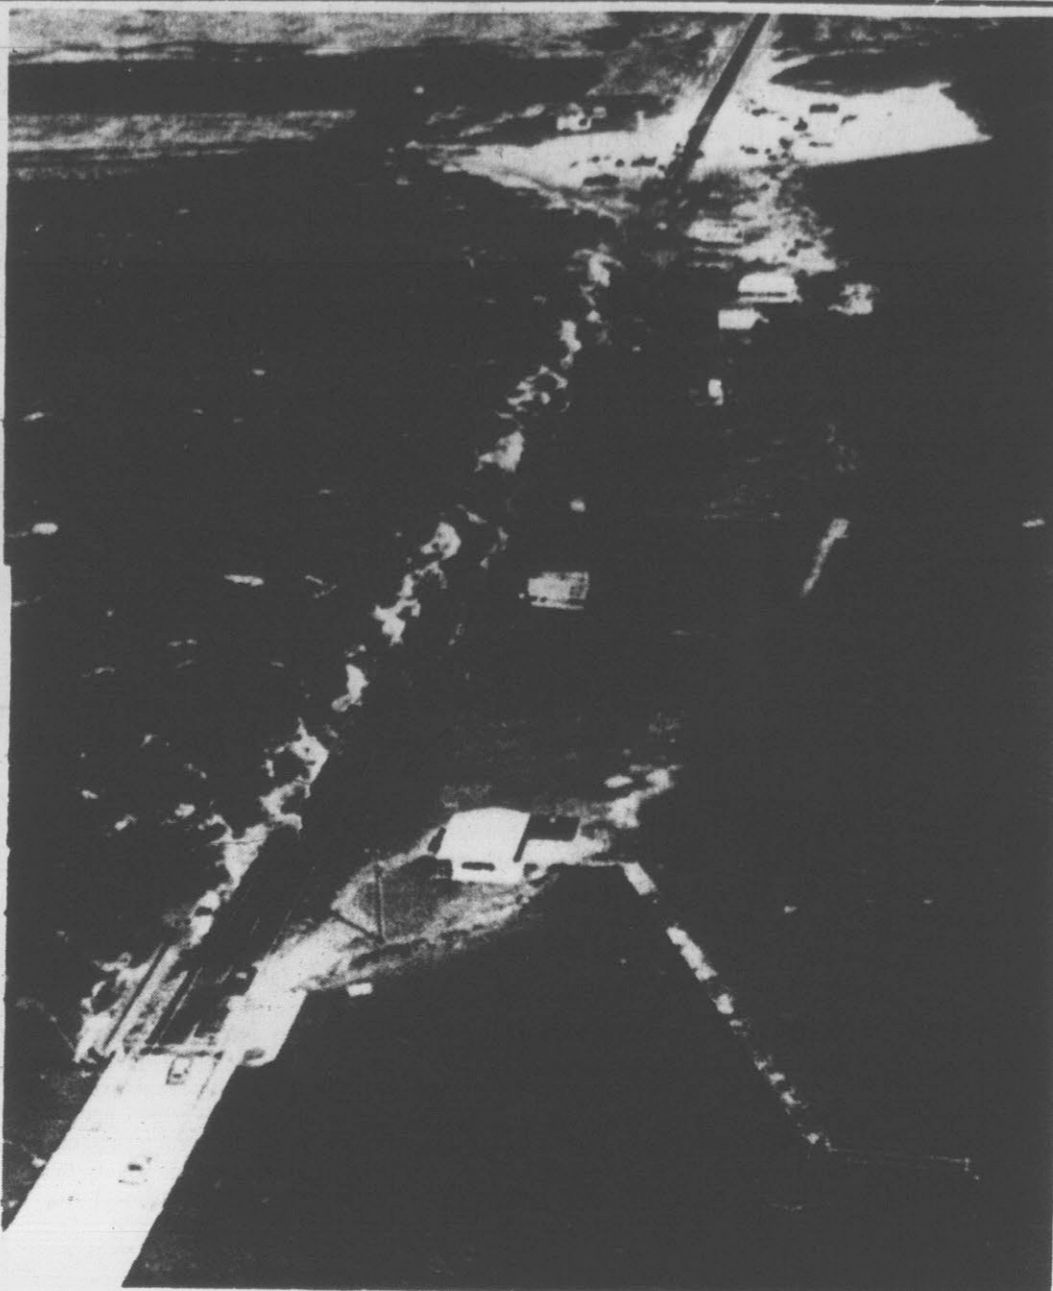

Other appointments confirmed by the City Council last night included reappointment of William N. Moore and Dr. Sam White, II, for additional one year terms on the Firemen's Relief Fund.

Also, Charles T. Clark was named for an interim appointment on the Board of Adjustments to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of J. D. McGlohon, who resigned Feb. 9. The interim term expires in June 1971.

Wind Caused Flooding

WAVES COVER OUTER BANKS ROAD — Waves, impelled by a northwest wind of gale force, swept over U.S. 64 between Manteo on Roanoke Island and Naggs Head on the Outer Banks of North Carolina Thursday. The winds, which at times were as high as 65 miles an hour, pushed water over the main road down the Outer Banks at many places and into a number of low-lying homes on the sound side. (AP Wirephoto)

Hold Office, Too?

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate Construction Committee pondered today whether 18-year-olds should be allowed to hold public office if they are given the right to vote in state and local elections.

After the discussion, the committee voted on motion of Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, to defer action on bills lowering the voting age until the House acts on the issue.

Burney had told the committee that one of the objections he had heard to lowering the voting age was the possibility that 18-year-olds might become eligible for holding public office.

Sen. Lamar Gudger, D-Buncombe, read a provision from the N.C. Constitution which says that a member of the State House of Representatives must be an elector.

Gudger said this meant that if the voting age is lowered to 18, then 18-year-olds would be eligible to serve in the General Assembly.

"It's hard to conceive," he said, "of anyone being qualified to participate in the General Assembly who cannot make a binding contract."

Sen. Frank Pattersons, D-Stanly, said that if the proposal to permit 18-year-olds to vote is passed, then he intends to vote for a bill to lower to 18 the age at which a youth reaches his majority.

Sen. Stewart Warren, D-Sampson, chairman of the committee, said he understood an amendment might be offered to amend the 18-year-old voting bill to prohibit anyone under 21 from holding public office. He said there is question whether that is constitutional.

Whale Washed Up On The Coast

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — The gale-force winds and high tides which lashed the Outer Banks Thursday almost did what the Coast Guard couldn't.

Late Monday night the Coast Guard station on Cape Hatteras received a report that a 53 foot sperm whale had been washed up near the Banks town of Salvo. After the Coast Guard tried to tow the whale off the beach but broke the tow line, plans were made to blast the creature apart.

Before any demolition could take place, however, wind-whipped tides lifted the corpse off the beach and out to sea. But when the wind and water died down temporarily yesterday, the whale was back on the beach—this time several miles down the coast near the town of Rodanthe.

A report issued Thursday night by Lt. Linwood Quidley of the Cape Hatteras station said that the maximum water remaining on the long neck of land was "three to five inches" and that there was "no tidal water remaining between Buxton and Hatteras." Later a Coast Guardsman reported that high winds and tides were expected again late Thursday night.

Winds and water flooded most of the Outer Banks Thursday, stranding motorists, closing schools and flooding stores and buildings. No injuries were reported.

Winds of up to 65 miles and hour pushed water from Roanoke Sound south to Pamlico Sound. Police reported four feet of water along two miles of N.C. 12.

Nixon At A Glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here in brief are major points covered by President Nixon in his news conference on foreign affairs Thursday night:

INDOCHINA—No plan to provide air support for a South Vietnamese invasion of the North; South Vietnamese troops can fight without U.S. help; continued U.S. withdrawal is ensured.

MIDEAST—The United States will not attempt to impose a settlement on the Arabs and Israelis.

SOVIET UNION—Any U.S.-Soviet arms-limitation agreement must cover offensive and defensive weapons.

ROGERS-KISSINGER—Secretary of State William P. Rogers and White House foreign-policy adviser Henry A. Kissinger are trusted aides; Rogers is chief foreign-policy spokesman for the President.

Vote Extending Nixon Authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Banking Committee has voted to extend for two years President Nixon's authority to impose wage, price and rent controls for any six-month period.

The vote was 30 to 2 Thursday to extend the authority to March 31, 1973, after a strict 17-14 party-line vote on a Democratic amendment to cut off the authority six months after used in any manner.

The administration has not opposed the measure as it did last year but says it has no plans to use the authority except in case of a national emergency. House floor action is scheduled Wednesday.

One Rezoning Plea Loses, One OK'd By City Councilmen

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Two requests for rezoning of property before the Greenville City Council last night resulted in no opposition for one which was unanimously approved; and overwhelming opposition for the other, which was denied, also unanimously.

Developer William (Bill) Dansey, seeking approval at the public hearing for a request to rezone the northeast corner of Oak and First Street from its current R-6 residential to neighborhood commercial for the purpose of building a convenience shopping center for Tar River Estates, was denied the request.

A contingent of property owners, approximately 75 to 80, were on hand for the public hearing. Their spokesman, W. H. Watson, presented a four point objection petition, signed by residents owning property on Elm, Third, Second, parts of First, Warren and other streets in the area.

The gist of the four points were — (1) home owners for the past several years had believed this area a residential one; (2) lowering of zoning classification could increase the flow of traffic and create new traffic hazards; (3) the value of homes in the area would be diminished and owners would suffer a financial loss; and (4) property owners are opposed to spot zoning which in effect gives assistance to a person or persons, but not to the community at large.

Watson asked the councilmen to consider the petition, which he submitted to be filed as part of the public hearing.

Several residents spoke individually of their reasons for opposing the requested rezoning — Tom Broadrick, Robert W. Leith, C. B. Hargett, John M. Ewell, Mack Whitehurst, Jack Boone, Thomas Jameison, Willis A. Talton, and others. Their individually stated objections included increased traffic hazards; no need for a shopping facility as adequate ones were within easy reach; encroachment on the peace and quiet of a residential neighborhood; opposition to what is termed the "creeping" spread of spot-zoning of commercial type zones within residential areas of Greenville.

Fred Mattox, representing Dansey and the Tar River Estates, submitted a petition signed by persons he said favored the rezoning. Mattox also pointed out the proposed building would be small; was designed only to serve the residents of Tar River Estates; that it would lessen, not increase traffic as residents would be able to walk to a shopping area; and that there would be no need to expand at a later date the proposed convenience shopping area.

In rebuttal to the opposition's claim that as permanent homeowners they paid substantial taxes as opposed to renters in the apartment complex who were temporary residents. Dansey remarked he was perhaps the second largest tax payer in the city.

Mack Whitehurst was the first to mention a point which led to City Manager Harry Hagerty cautioning Dansey that recreation facilities in apartment complex areas were "supposed to be non-commercial, non-profit." Whitehurst asked Dansey about the status of the club in Tar River Estates, if it was non-profit. "Basically not," Dansey replied. "I sell membership to people to come and swim." Mrs. Myra Pinner later told the councilmen of an occasion on January 16 when she paid a rental for use of the club for a sorority cocktail party.

The other request for rezoning, made by Sidney Skinner for rezoning property north of Spruce Street from R-6 to downtown commercial fringe, had no opposition and was approved by the councilmen. This request too was a public hearing. Skinner presented a petition of approval by all property owners whose property adjoins the Spruce Street property involved in the request.

Skinner was also the proponent for another matter discussed by the council. He presented for the Council's (Continued on page 8)

Two Candidates File For City Council Seats

Two more Greenville residents have filed with City Clerk William N. Moore as candidates for City Council in the forthcoming municipal elections of May 4.

John Tyburski, president of J and J Cafeterias, Inc., and president of Insurance Consultants, Inc., filed at City Hall Thursday afternoon.

A native of Cleveland, Ohio, Tyburski has been a resident of Greenville since 1962. In 1965 he ran for mayor of Greenville. A veteran of military service with the Army in World War II, Tyburski attended Cincinnati Bible Seminary and Xavier University, both in Cincinnati, Ohio.

He is married to the former Jean Jenkins of Hampton, Virginia. They have three sons — John, Stephan, and Robert; and three daughters, Mrs. Claudia Michie, and Debra and Elaine Tyburski.

Tyburski organized a course, Life Underwriters Training Council, which is currently being taught at Pitt Technical Institute. He was president last year of the Pitt County Life Underwriters Association and for two years was president of the local chapter of the National Elks Foundation. He is an active Elk, and is a member of People's Bible Church.

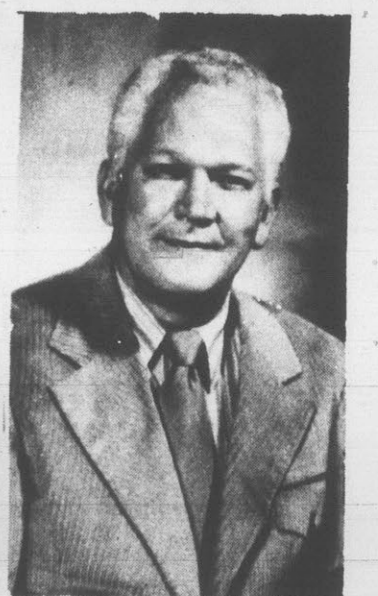

V. W. (Pat) Thomas, a real estate man, proprietor of Thomas Realty Company in Greenville, this morning filed as a candidate.

Thomas, native of Rocky Mount, has been living in Greenville for the past three years. He has not before sought public office.

In World War II, Thomas served with the Corps of Engineers in the European Theater of Operations. Prior to coming to Greenville, he was associated for some years with Ford in Detroit and was general manager of Ford branches in Brazil and Australia.

His wife is the former Lula Culpepper, of Rocky Mount. They have one daughter, Mrs. H.

E. Lowry of Greenville, and three grandchildren.

Thomas is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church; the Chamber of Commerce; and the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

He attended the University of North Carolina and Wayne University in Detroit, Michigan.

Sheriff Flays Lenient Courts

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — Surry County Sheriff Jim Taylor criticized "well meaning lenient judges" Friday for making a "sad joke" out of the courts in his area.

The strongly worded complaint was issued about two weeks after a Mount Airy detective was shot and killed when he pulled over a car to check on a report it had been stolen.

"Nine times out of 10 when an officer is killed, he is killed by someone whose past record shows that if the courts had done their job the officer would still be alive," Taylor said.

The sheriff said the man arrested and charged with the Mount Airy policeman's killing had been jailed in 1966 on manslaughter charges but was since released.

"The new court system that we now have in this county is even a joke to the people being tried," Taylor said.

The sheriff said he was given the impression during talks about the recent court reorganization that hometown judges wouldn't be sitting in local courts, a situation he charged produces lenient sentences.

"That hasn't been the case at all," he said.

Taylor complained local judges hand down suspended sentences to criminals who he felt should be jailed to remove the danger of further crime.

"They just repeat, repeat and repeat," he said of the criminals. "There's no way we can possibly reduce the crime rate we have in this country unless we take the hard-core criminals out of society."

Council Declines To Endorse Green Mill Run Plan

City Councilmen last night declined to endorse, as an official body, a resolution supporting the Corps of Engineers project plan for flood control and improvements of Green Mill Run.

City Manager Harry Hagerty, noted that the Planning and Zoning Commission had endorsed a resolution of support as a body, read a recommended resolution which he said, if the Council was interested in adopting, could be dispatched to the Wilmington office as part of the official record. The Corps of Engineers is accepting, until March 18, statements of groups or individuals expressing approval or objection to the proposed project which they presented at a public hearing on February 18.

"I don't know whether the Council would want to endorse a resolution similar to the one the Planning and Zoning Commission endorsed," Hagerty commented before reading the draft resolution.

Councilman Percy Cox expressed doubt about the wisdom of endorsing the project at this time. In this discussions, Mayor Frank M. Wooten said it was his understanding there would be a public hearing in the event the Chief of Engineers approved the project. "If approved, I'm sure the plan will come back to us for a final decision," the mayor commented.

Cox noted that he agreed with the contention of the opposition relative to lack of publicity on the project, and said "I feel there should be a public hearing where all the people can be heard again."

Cox further stated he feels endorsement as a body at this time would commit the City Council to the project, stating it was "getting the cart before the horse."

Councilman Dr. Frank Fuller stated he felt Cox's views were pertinent, and added that he did not think endorsement of a resolution was needed to show interest in the project. "The Corps of Engineers would never have gotten into it if they didn't think we wanted it," he commented.

Councilman Jerry Sutherland commented that he "could not endorse a resolution at this time."

The consensus of the councilmen was that any of them as individuals wishing to express a stand should do so, but that endorsement as a body was not needed.

The city manager stated that information and sample letter forms which individuals could use were available from his office.

New Cookbook Proves Wickedly Entertaining

NEW YORK (UPI)—More recipes in a new and wickedly entertaining cookbook sound good enough to lend weight to that cliché about nobody being all bad.

"The Lucretia Borgia Cookbook" by Dorothy and Martin Blinder (Price-Stern-Sloan) is subtitled "Favorite Recipes of Infamous People."

The least appealing, at least to this writer, is the one attributed to Mata Hari, a World War I spy. Her recipe for curried prawns calls for artery-clogging quantities of butter and heavy cream—a pound of the former, a pint of the latter. The beautiful spy obviously was decades ahead of medical science in recognizing the heart-threatening possibilities of a high-cholesterol diet.

Dr. Sanderson Gives Seira Club Program

Dr. William C. Sanderson, ECU professor and assistant dean of the School of Education, presented the program to the Seira Book Club Tuesday afternoon.

He spoke on the "Disadvantaged Child." The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Douglas R. Jones.

"No race, age or cultural background has a monopoly on being disadvantaged," he said. Dr. Sanderson believes in teaching the child as early in his life as possible. If one had to choose between kindergarten and the 12th grade, he stressed the importance of the kindergarten.

Mrs. J. Howard Moyer, president, conducted the business meeting. The nominating committee presented the slate of officers as follows:

President, Mrs. Al Weimer; Vice President, Mrs. John O. Reynolds; Secretary, Mrs. J. Fred Baumann; Treasurer, Mrs. G. Henry Leslie; Librarians, Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin; Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins; and Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr.

Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Moyer assisted the hostess in serving a dessert course after which the books were exchanged.

Francisco psychiatrist, and his wife, show an equally macabre sense of humor in their other recipe selections and the amusing paragraphs preceding each.

Cheese and honey cake, a kissin' cousin to traditional Jewish honey cake, is attributed to Herod I. Biblical history recalls him as the ruthless ruler who issued a deathbed order to slay all Jews in his kingdom so that he, in the authors' words, "... might be ensured of widespread mourning."

Francisco Pizarro, Spanish conquistador, destroyer of the Inca Indian civilization and short-lived Spanish governor of Peru in the 16th century, is credited with cebiche de camarones, or prawns marinated in a spicy lemon and lime juice mixture. The authors wrote that they chose the recipe because Pizarro was slain during dinner when he had got as far as the fish course.

The recipe might have been subtitled "The Inca's Revenge." It's so lacking in authenticity that it calls not only for cooked instead of raw prawns, but also for ketchup instead of chopped fresh tomatoes.

The Blinders wrote that the

Luncheon Given Miss Pollard

Mrs. J. Roderick Harris, Mrs. James A. Pollard of Farmville and Mrs. Graham Jefferson of Greenville entertained Miss Susan Pollard, bride-elect at a luncheon Saturday at the Holiday Inn.

The tables were decorated with arrangements of yellow snapdragons, daisy pom poms and acacia.

Miss Pollard was presented a white orchid corsage, two silver trays and a silver gravy ladle by the hostesses.

Special guests were Mrs. Katherine Denton and Miss Katherine Malene Denton of Cary, Dr. Isa Costin Grant of Raleigh, Miss Ann Horne, Miss Ann Keller and Miss Jorgann Bullard of Chapel Hill, Mrs. Clarence Moyer of Maury, Mrs. Dawson Jefferson, Farmville and Miss Margaret Harris of Buies Creek.

incestuous Lucretia and her brother, Cesare "... became sufficiently experienced in the deadly garnishing of their unique cuisine to vary the moment of their guest's demise to suit them—from almost immediately, to several days later."

Nota bene: to anyone who's forgotten his Latin studies, Lucretia was infamous for poisoning a lot of men to gain their property. The Borgias' recipe is for steamed, stuffed artichokes. It is, the authors wrote "... reputed to have been better when 'seasoned with arsenic.'"

The Blinders also maintain that a person of talent, intelligence and creativity usually exhibits these qualities "... in everything he does, whether it's robbing a bank or seasoning soup."

Which reminds me of my favorite recipe for key lime pie, a luscious dessert of southern Florida. I found the recipe years ago in one of Rex Stout's Nero Wolfe mystery novels. I've forgotten the title but I'll always remember the reaction of one dinner guest after I answered a question about the source of the recipe.

He said, as he accepted a second helping: "I hope you left out the arsenic."

Bonnie Parker, an American gunman's moll early in this century, probably is best known to the current generation through actress Fay Dunaway's portrayal of her in a movie about Bonnie's life with her lover, bank robber Clyde Barrow. The Blinders wrote that carrot soup was one of her favorites. Here's the recipe.

Saute 2 cups each of onions and carrots, chopped or grated, in 4 tablespoons of butter over medium heat for about 20 minutes. Add ½ cup of white wine, 6 cups of chicken stock, 1 bay leaf, and salt and pepper to taste. Simmer at least one hour. Remove bay leaf. Puree soup in electric blender or put it through a fine sieve. Serve very hot. Makes 4 servings.

Use iced-tea spoons when you are serving a dessert made in tall parfait glasses.

Truth Is Best Defense Against Gossip

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Charles Scribner's Sons, Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me something that has upset me terribly. She wouldn't tell me who had told her, so there is nothing I can do about it. I suppose that is why I am so upset.

She said she had heard that my husband and I were splitting up. My husband has had to travel more lately for his business and I can't go with him, but we certainly have never been happier, and this splitting up "rumor" couldn't have shocked me more.

I know there is nothing you can do about it, Abby. I just had to tell somebody how heartick I am. How does a person go about proving something is a lie? HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: One shouldn't have to. But be aware that a real friend would not bring you gossip or any harmful "sorry-I-can't-tell-you-who-told-me" tales. Since you are desperate to do anything about gossip [real or possibly dreamed up by the one who told you she had "heard" it], disregard it. A word of consolation: Carriers of such tales are usually jealous and miserable and take pleasure in chipping away at the happiness of others.

DEAR ABBY: Once again I've had an argument about this business of children sleeping over at the homes of friends. The ages of mine are 13 and 16.

I always have wanted my children in their own beds at night, and for that reason I seem to be waging a constant battle with my children, and worse yet with the mothers of their friends.

Am I such an oddball to think that I am right? MRS. J. R.

DEAR MRS. J. R.: You're no oddball. Most mothers prefer to have their children in their own beds at night. But the sleeping over experience is a part of growing up. It's an exciting, maturing adventure for all kids, and it's fun. So don't deprive yours of it after you've checked out everything and are satisfied that there is nothing to worry about.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the mother who wanted to know how much to charge her son room and board when he came home from Viet Nam sent cold shivers up my spine.

Tell that mother that she should get down on her hands and knees and thank God for sending her son home to her.

Our son went to Viet Nam, too. We never charged him room and board before he went, and we wouldn't have charged him anything when he came back. Unfortunately, we didn't have to make that decision because he came home in a sealed casket. A MOTHER: KINGSPORT, TENN.

DEAR ABBY: About the husband who complained because his wife looked like a slob in the morning and her sister [who stayed with them] always came to the breakfast well-groomed, sweet-smelling and cheerful. [The sister had to go to an office job.] The husband said he had started to make comparisons and wondered if maybe he didn't marry the wrong sister. He also said his wife didn't have to work. Did he mean he provided his wife with a cook and housekeeper?

I have a suggestion for the wife. Stay in bed all morning. Then your husband won't have to look at you. MARGE IN HOUSTON

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

New York Nursery Schools Have 'Runaround' Program

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI)—No one really understands the meaning of the word rejection until she has begun applying to New York City nursery schools.

Personal rejection is difficult enough to accept, but the thought of schools turning down one's precious, precocious almost-three-year-old is enough to turn a mother's hair gray.

One begins this harrowing merry-go-round a full year before the little one is to attend. You ask around among friends and neighbors, get magazines and books from the library and go through a process that makes college selection look like a lark.

In the past years, some of the more exclusive private schools would refuse even to interview prospective parents and children, but in this inflation-recession period they have become less choosy. This allows the parent the opportunity to send her child to a school the family can't possibly afford, such as one of the less expensive ones that charges $1,050 per year, plus $350 bus service.

Less Expensive
Less expensive are the church-run nursery schools, although one can still figure on spending $1,000, including busing. Why not skip the whole thing? Because all the other mothers in the area are sending their darlings, and there will be no playmates for Junior around the neighborhood playground.

When the applications come in from nursery schools, there's a small hitch—many schools want an application fee, usually $10, that is non-returnable even if Junior is rejected.

Next step is mother's visit to the school, sometimes accompanied by father if he's the type to put up with that sort of thing. You watch one teacher, one assistant teacher and one student teacher cope with some 16 or so little ones as the noise level rises.

At some schools you speak to the headmistress. At others you are asked to observe without disturbing—or even speaking to—teachers and children. And you feel pretty silly sitting on chairs created for three-year-old posteriors.

At the next stage, presuming you haven't already been placed on the discard pile, you return with your child. The teacher, headmistress and crew all are watching your little one. In some cases the parents go home glowing with pride; in others the household angel turns into a schoolhouse demon bent on destruction one minute and clinging to mommy's knees the next.

Go Home and Wait

Then you go home to spend the next weeks waiting. This year for the first time a number of nursery schools have banded together and agreed to a single notification date. In previous years you might be accepted quickly by your second choice school, then be in a dilemma over whether to settle for second or hold out for first—and take a chance on a turnaround.

By what arcane procedure the schools make their judgments, it is difficult to say, particularly since they are seeing a child more than half a year before he or she will attend.

One factor is whether a sibling attends a particular school—in that case his little brothers and sisters receive first consideration. Among the older, more prestigious institutions, whether Mater or Pater attend also makes a difference. At least among some of the church-related facilities, the family church-going, or lack of same, comes into consideration.

Sex also rears its head. If it's a big year for boy applicants, your little girl is in a good position. If it's an all-girl year, boy applicants are in demand.

Personally, I think we'll all be a lot less unnerved about getting our daughter into the college of her choice than in this nursery school runaround.

GOOD DINNER

Broiled Chicken Potato Puffs
Green Peas Salad Bowl
Ray Marks's Butter Sprinkles
Fruit Beverage
RAY MARKS'S BUTTER

SPRINKLES
A variation of a popular and traditional cookie.

1/2 cup (1/4 pound stick) butter, at room temperature
6 tablespoons confectioners' sugar

Pinch of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup unsifted flour
Chocolate sprinkles

In a medium mixing bowl with a wooden spoon, beat together the butter, sugar, salt and vanilla. Gradually stir in flour until blended. (Chill, if necessary, to have firm enough to shape.) Shape into marble-size balls. Place, about 1 inch apart, on lightly buttered cookie sheet. With the tines of a fork dipped in ice water each time, press flat. Sprinkle with chocolate sprinkles. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until browned around the edges—about 8 to 10 minutes. With a metal spatula remove to wire racks to cool. Store in a tightly covered tin box. Makes about 3 dozen.

COMPANY LUNCH

Almond-topped Chicken Pie
Salad Bowl

Oranges Chablis Beverage

ALMOND-TOPPED CHICKEN PIE

A spanking new recipe.
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon Worcestershire
1 container (1/2 pint) commercial sour cream

2 cups diced cooked chicken
1 cup grated American cheese
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento to 2 tablespoons chopped canned green chilies or 2 tablespoons minced green pepper and a few dashes of tabasco sauce

2 tablespoons minced onion
Unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
1/2 cup slivered almonds, toasted

2 teaspoons butter, melted
Into a small bowl turn the cornstarch, salt and Worcestershire; gradually stir in sour cream, keeping smooth. Mix in chicken, cheese, pimiento, chilies and onion; turn into pastry shell. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for about 25 minutes. Toss almonds with butter and sprinkle over pie. Bake 5 to 10 minutes longer or until filling is set in center and almonds are lightly browned. Let cool 10 minutes before cutting. Makes 6 servings.

Higher Minimum Wage Realistic

A measure to increase the state minimum wage in North Carolina from the present $1.25 an hour to $1.60 an hour represents a realistic approach to the matter of a minimum wage.

It is true the new minimum wage, if it is ratified as it should be by the legislature, will not affect every person employed in the state. There will still be those whose pay legally may be below the state's minimum wage.

But the new minimum requirement will reach an estimated 50,000 Tar Heel workers who are now employed at hourly rates below the projected $1.60 an hour rate. For the most part they would be persons employed by small firms with few over the minimum requirement of four employees, and those not covered by the federal wage and hour regulations.

To be sure, the new state minimum wage law could work a hardship on some small businesses. For the most part, however, even the smaller firms have found it necessary to move their minimum salaries closer in line with those prevailing in their respective communities.

By improving the economic status of some 50,000 North Carolinians who are presently employed under the state minimum wage law, the General Assembly would be providing overall economic advantages which would far outweigh any detrimental aspects of the minimum wage increase.

Now that the House Manufacturing and Labor Committee has given its approval to the new minimum wage measure, it should be successfully guided through the remainder of the legislative channels into law.

Newer Rate Terms Are Better Than The First

Virginia Electric and Power Co. has proposed a 9.24 percent rate increase for wholesale power users that still seems to be a huge one to us.

However, it is considerably below the 22.3 percent rate increase which the power firm had originally proposed. Tied to this was a fuel clause adjustment which would have meant still higher increases as fuel prices increased.

The 9.24 percent rate looks favorable compared to this, since the fuel clause adjustment has been eliminated. But the new rate proposal would be retroactive to July 1, 1970 and, unlike some rate cases, this amount has not been collected during that time.

Higher electric rates are inevitable, but Greenville Utilities and its negotiating agencies should make every effort to see that the increases are held to the absolute minimum.

Confused Over Scott's Plans

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH — Seldom has a Governor of North Carolina had politicians so confused as Bob Scott has them now. You can't walk through the halls of the State House without a politician pulling you aside and asking: "What's the Governor up to?"

Even though Gov. Scott in a September interview expressed a yearning to return to his Haw River farm, the feeling now is that the Governor is looking for a political job in 1972 and as he is fond of saying, he's keeping his political options open.

Gov. Scott has asked the legislature to pass a law which would allow the Tar Heel chief executive to succeed himself. But, in asking for that, Gov. Scott adroitly skirted the issue of whether that should be effective for the next Governor or should take effect during his term. Trying to pin down the Governor on that matter is akin to squeezing down on a fistful of mercury.

One veteran Tar Heel politician had this to say: "Bob isn't about to say whether the succession bill should include him. By doing it this way, he can find out who his friends are in the legislature. A lot of folks up here are slow to cross the Governor, even if he's in what is supposed to be his last lap. Politically, Bob is being very smart."

But if the Governor is being smart, his zig-zagging is driving some people up the wall. A couple of men in the legislature — Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor and State Sen. Skipper Bowles — are planning to run for Governor in 1972. Nobody likes to talk about all of this out in the open, but who's

Strength For Today

THE BIG CHOICE
Probably the greatest choice we ever have to make is the choice of life work. What do we want to do with our lives and how do we propose doing it?

A boy declares he wants to be an airplane pilot. A girl wants to go on the stage and make a hit that will cause millions to applaud. A boy wants to be an engineer. A girl wants to be a nurse. "I want to be a lawyer and try cases like Perry Mason." "What could be better than being a cop and bringing criminals to justice?" "I've heard about how doctors have to work day and night and hardly have time to say hello to wife and kids." "But think of the money you will make if you go into business. Maybe kidding whom? Taylor and Bowles would have their gubernatorial hopes at least temporarily frayed if Scott is able to stand for reelection.

And people close to Scott believe the Governor would like to spend another four years as Tar Heel chief executive. In that September interview, Gov. Scott said: "I've been in the job for 20 months and I'm just beginning to get the feel of the position... There's no question that I would be a more effective Governor in a second term."

Whatever Gov. Scott has in mind, his political actions have been anything but clear. Take, for instance, his position before the State Board of Higher Education, in which he said East Carolina University should eventually have a four-year medical school. He didn't stop with the ECU endorsement. He ripped into the University of North Carolina administration, saying: "It (UNC administration) reminds me somewhat of the so-called blue bloods of society who look down in contempt on anyone whose ancestry does not date back to the Pilgrim fathers."

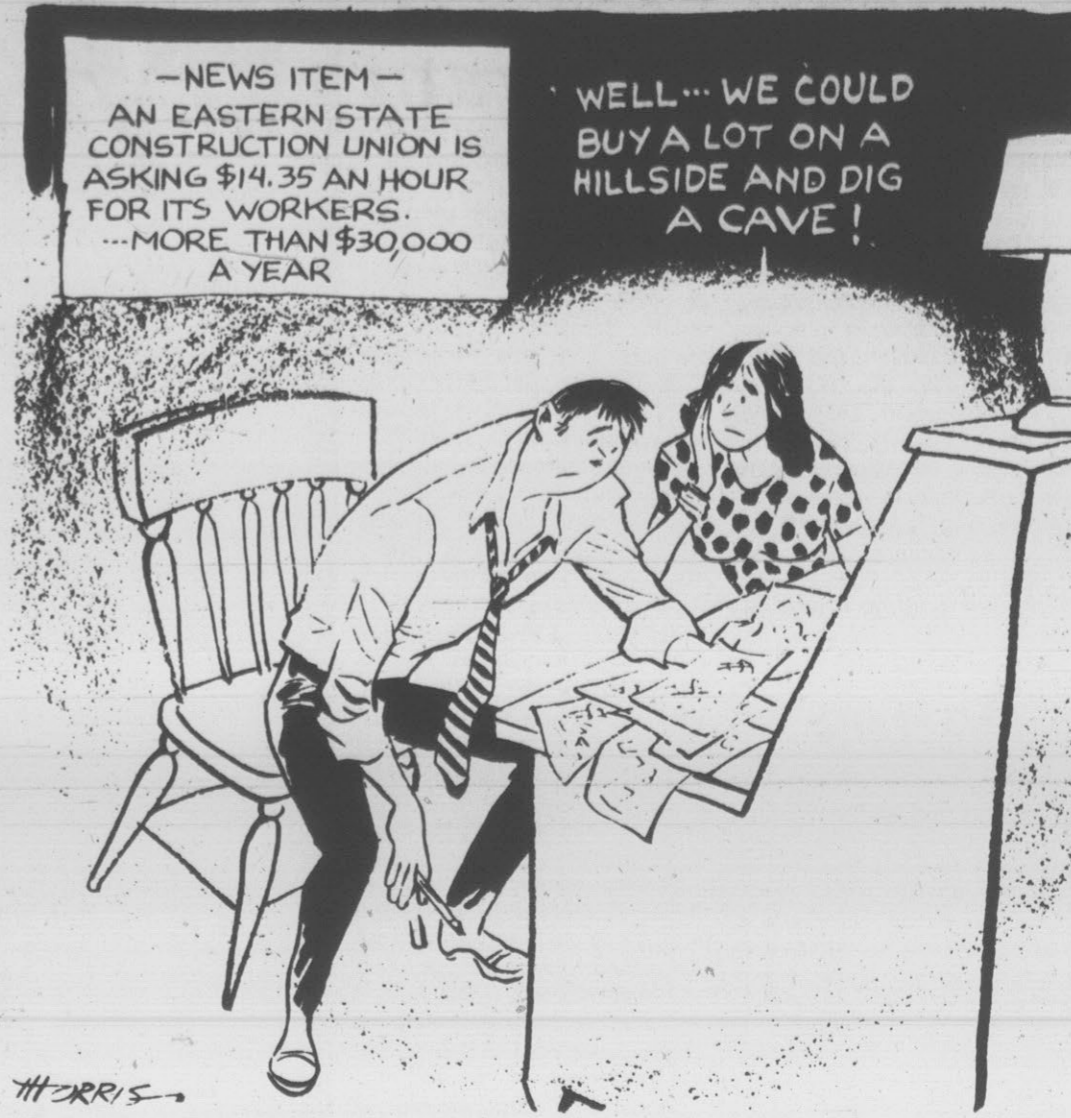

That's pretty strong language and Gov. Scott tried to soften it a bit a few days later by praising UNC President William Friday. In that same appearance before the Higher Board of Education, Gov. Scott also ripped into the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, which had come out saying a medical school should not be considered for Charlotte at this time.

you'll lose on one deal but make it up on the next." "I'm not much of an artist now — but you wait. All the great artists had to start from scratch." "No. I've never composed anything, but some of the music today makes me so sick I think I could do better than that with my left hand." "Money, money. I bet I could make money if I had half a chance. I remember the summer I made more than five dollars selling lemonade?" "A lot of people dumber than I am have made the White House." "Okay. Mix what you know you can do best with what you want to do and then spend some time thinking about it. You may be right after all. You probably are."

The New Demonstrators

WASHINGTON — What happened to all the antiwar protestors of yesteryear? Well, in spite of what you read in the newspapers, they're still around. Only they're a new breed and in many ways much tougher.

I went to an antiwar rally at the Washington Monument the other day with my friend Dumbarton who works on demonstrations for the Secret Service. Dumbarton was dressed in dungarees, had long hair and was carrying a guitar which was really a very sensitive tape recorder.

When we arrived at the Mall we saw five bearded students carrying a Viet Cong flag. "Hey, Dumbarton," I said, "they look like anarchists." "Nah," said Dumbarton in disgust, "they're FBI undercover agents. I saw them last week at Harvard."

We walked around. There were six students, all with peace symbols painted on their navels, sitting in a circle smoking what surely smelt like grass. "Look, Dumbarton," I said excitedly, "Communists." Dumbarton shook his head in disgust. "They're from the Naval Civilian Intelligence unit. The guy waving the photograph of Ho Chi Minh is really a lieutenant commander in the Seabees."

We walked away. Suddenly I said, "Dumbarton, we're being followed by those four girls in dungarees."

Dumbarton looked around. "It's okay. They're from the Air Force Intelligence Squadron at Andrews Field." "But they're girls," I said. "The Air Force always dresses their agents in drag," Dumbarton said. "They don't want their people to be mistaken for Naval Intelligence agents."

A fight broke out among 50 demonstrators standing near the speaker's platform. They were going at it thick and heavy.

"My God," I said. "That looks like real trouble."

"Don't get upset. Half the guys are from the Army Civilian Intelligence unit at Fort Hollihr and the other half are from the Army Civilian Intelligence unit at the Pentagon."

"Each outfit claims they have jurisdiction in Washington. You should have seen the brawl they had at draft headquarters a few weeks ago. After it was over, both sides issued body counts."

"Why don't the police break it up?"

"Most of the cops here are from the Washington, D.C., undercover squad and they don't want to let on to anyone who they are."

The speeches began. One bearded student shouted, "The blankety blank blanks are not going to push us around. We'll put them up

Dreams For A Profit

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — A man is wisely advised to plan ahead for his retirement. Otherwise, when the time comes for him to give up his daily grind and he has nothing to do, he may curl up and die like a rusty leaf.

This, I trust, will not be my fate. I have a theory that life begins on R-Day—retirement day.

It is my theory that in a civilization most men earn their living doing such boring, humdrum, nitty-gritty tasks that it is hard for them to stay awake let alone keep their self-respect. They become inner hermits who feed their souls on the fun of daydreams, and it is chiefly these daydreams that keep them sane.

My goal on retiring is to CHANGE THIS PICTURE A BIT. Instead of remaining a private hermit daydreaming for fun,

I want to become a public hermit who daydreams for profit.

A harmless way, that I expect the Ford Foundation or some other organization equally devoted to harmless revolutions, will advance me the funds to put it into effect.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL
March 5, 1931

The hard weather of the last day or so possibly does not precede the coming of springtime with its accompanying call to the diamond, but spirit is in the air. Everybody is more or less affected by the baseball fever, and even busy men have passed along the streets of Greenville to watch kids play ball. It has been some time since Greenville has experienced the thrill of real league ball. An effort to organize such a club last season failed to accomplish anything, but it is believed that a movement of the kind this season would have good results.

Preliminary work in connection with the construction of the new school building in Belvoir township will get under way Monday morning, according to an announcement made this morning by members of the Department of Education. The building will replace the one destroyed by fire during a Christmas celebration December 18, 1930.

Earl S. Walslagel, noted evangelistic singer, will have charge of the singing in the series of revival services to be conducted by Rev. J. Powell Tucker, of Raleigh, at the Memorial Baptist Church in this city beginning April 6.

Other Editors Say Gulf Vacuum

(Christian Science Monitor)
Reluctantly, Britain's Conservative government has announced it will follow the Labour government's lead in deciding to withdraw its influence from the Persian Gulf by the end of this year.

In the context of waning military might and colonialism's unpopularity, the move appears inevitable. Furthermore, Britain cannot be expected to bear alone the costs of fortifying both a dwindling hegemony and the West's strategic interests. This is Britain's way of least burning its foreign policy fingers.

The power vacuum created will have its inevitable and possibly disruptive consequences as the sheikhs of the Trucial States decide whether to unite or become independent states.

The relatively submerged gulf rivalries between Iran and Saudi Arabia and the Trucial States will no doubt surface.

Actually, there are some states in the region who would prefer to have the British remain, though they could not admit this publicly. The British offer to help train police and small military units should, as Sir Alex Douglas-Home suggested, contribute to the area's "stability."

The Soviet fleet, which has shown its flag in the gulf on several occasions at Iraqi ports, is likely to become more active. In fact, it is the new Soviet imperialism that will bear the most careful watching, as it expands its influence in the Middle East and the rich oil-bearing regions of the gulf.

Britain's Defense Minister of State Lord Balniel solemnly warned in Parliament that the threat posed by a massive expansion of Soviet military might is increasing, not diminishing, in the 1970's.

Addressing himself to the subject of European security, Lord Balniel noted that there are 60 Warsaw Pact divisions facing NATO's 23 divisions; 3,500 Warsaw Pact tactical aircraft facing 1,500 NATO tactical aircraft; and about 22,000 Warsaw Pact tanks to NATO's 6,000.

In time, the same competitive balance of power could occur in the Persian Gulf, if the individual states are themselves not strengthened for self-reliance.

Plan May Lead To U.S. Control

By ELMER ROESSNER
The United States may be on the way to national regulation of insurance.

Each state regulates insurance within its borders today. This results in 50 different sets of regulations and standards, 50 different state insurance commissions, 50 different sets of legal precedents. And a 51st set for the District of Columbia.

There is ample justification for Congress to assume power over all insurance. It is almost completely interstate in operation. Insured autos cross state lines; insured persons travel interstate even fire and other risks have interstate aspects. And a single insurance code would be easier on consumers, individuals and on insurance companies themselves.

Why Change Now
Inflation is generating current pressures for change. It may be one of the few good things that have come from inflation.

Inflation has deeply affected auto insurance. Car repair costs have shot up; so have medical expenses. Juries, getting into the spirit of the time, have been lading out ever larger verdicts in damage suits.

As a consequence, auto insurance companies in almost every state are seeking higher rates. And practically every auto insurer is being more selective in the risks it takes. People who have had accidents or arrests for driving offenses are finding it increasingly difficult to get insurance at regular rates. It is getting close to the point where a scratched fender is reason for rejecting an application.

Most states have set up pools whereby autoists denied regular insurance may or must apply for liability insurance at premium rates. The insurance companies are then required by law to share the risks.

No Fault Plan
This led several years ago to the development of the no-fault plan. Under this plan, auto insurance awards would not consider who was at fault. Each driver in an accident would get compensation for damages to his car and for medical expenses, but nothing for pain, distress and other attitudes that run verdicts up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Massachusetts is the only state so far that has adopted the no-fault plan, although bills adopting it are pending in several states. There has not been enough time to determine the benefits and difficulties with the plan in the Bay State.

And now Congress is considering it as a national policy. Senators Warren D. Magnuson, D-Wash., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., are introducing legislation to establish the no-fault plan nationwide, and the Senate Commerce Committee, of which Magnuson is chairman, is planning an investigation and hearings on the matter.

The insurance companies, which emitted howls of rage when the idea was first brought out, seem to have swung around in favor of it. Some believe it is the only way they can stay in business. In the past few years several insurance companies have failed, their assets wiped out by huge verdicts. The American Insurance Association, the American Mutual Insurance Association and the National Association of Independent Insurers — which include almost all liability insurance companies in the country — have each proposed no-fault plans.

If Congress takes over regulation of auto insurance, it would be only a short step to take over control of other kinds of insurance. And all those thousands of new federal jobs will make the idea tempting.

Keep Your Ear On Back Rooms

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Never mind what Hale Boggs says at the podium. Listen out for what Skipper Bowles, Bobby Morgan and Pat Taylor are saying in the back rooms.

Rank-and-file Tar Heel Democrats are apt to follow that advice this weekend in Raleigh for the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner.

The Louisiana Congressman and House majority leader heads the program as speaker, but he isn't the only attraction for the Democrats who will come from all over the state for the fund-raising dinner.

Uppermost on their minds will be next year's primary and races for Governor and U. S. Senator. What they want to hear is who's going to run for what, and how do chances look for the various prospective candidates?

Boggs can't tell them that, of course, but he can expected to deliver a message of party cheer for the 1972 presidential election which will lift spirits and kindle enthusiasm.

Keeping Momentum Strong

The significance of the choice of Boss, a real headliner, as speaker in a non-election year is the strategy of Governor Bob Scott and Party Chairman Gene Simmons to keep momentum high, rolling towards the '72 campaign. They interpreted the '70 election as a running of the tide for Democrats, and they aim to keep it strong with a continuing program of events and activity.

It also represents the balance theory practiced by Simmons in inviting speakers from out-of-state. Last month, it was Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, of the moderate-to-liberal persuasion; this month it is Boggs, more in the classic Southern conservative mold.

The dinner program has other marks of the Scott-Simmons leadership. Youth, women and blacks are brought into the spotlight, reflecting the reorganization of party structure undertaken with their blessing.

Luther H. Hodges, Jr., of Charlotte, who fits the youthful image, is dinner chairman. Co-charmen with him are Mrs. Gordon Maddrey of Raleigh, president of the Democratic Women's Club of Wake County; and Charles B. Winberry of Rocky Mount, state president of the Young Democratic Clubs.

The Rev. Joy J. Johnson of Fairmont, a black minister and a Democratic member of the state House of Representatives, will give the invocation. Special entertainment will be presented by Paulette Pearson, the black beauty who was first runner-up in the 1970 Miss North Carolina contest. She is now a student at the School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

Ladies Lead Off

The events on Saturday (March 6) begin with a breakfast sponsored by the women, with Mrs. L. Richardson (Emily) Preyer (wife of the Sixth District Congressman) as speaker. Governor and Mrs. Scott will host an afternoon reception at the Executive Mansion for the loyal Democrats in town for the party function.

The dinner will cap the day. State officials, Democratic members of the Congressional delegation and the North Carolina General Assembly, three former Governors (Luther H. Hodges, Sr., Terry Sanford, and Dan K. Moore), and party loyalists from the county and local level will be in attendance.

Three key figures in the '72 gubernatorial picture will be present, and the center of attention. They are (alphabetically): State Senator Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles, Jr., Attorney General Robert Morgan, and Lieutenant Governor H. P. (Pat) Taylor, Jr.

With a keen sense of timing, Morgan talked this week of his plans for the future. What he said (and left unsaid) will be discussed by those attending the Democratic dinner.

Morgan Considers Possibilities
In essence, the Attorney General simply let it be known that he is considering three alternatives in '72: running for Governor, U. S. Senate, or another term as Attorney General.

His friends say the first is most likely; in fact, some consider it virtually assured that Morgan will run for governor.

Over the next few weeks, Morgan will set down on paper his thoughts about the three possibilities and what would be involved in terms of problems and opportunities. Then, he'll discuss each with friends. From that counsel and exchange will come his firm decision.

The practice is the one the Lillington attorney and former state legislator followed in entering the race for attorney general in 1968.

As for Bowles and Taylor, they both have taken the posture of candidates in all but name. They'll keep that stance until the current General Assembly adjourns, and perhaps a few months beyond. Formal candidacies and gearing up of campaigns will wait until late fall.

Handwriting Evaluation Advised

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The psychological evaluation of handwriting has applications ranging from business to medicine, from compatibility in marriage to locating areas of friction between parent and child, says Dr. Henry O. Teltcher, one of the country's leading grapho-diagnosticians.

"Psychography may even help build a bridge between generations," declares the psychologist and psychotherapist who is author of a new book, "Handwriting—Revelation of Self." Teltcher defines psychography or grapho-diagnostics as "the evaluation of handwriting to determine personality variables, including emotional, mental and at times also physiological aspects."

"All people in high offices should be subject to grapho-diagnosis," he insists, pointing out such a procedure could uncover both physical and emotional problems not otherwise apparent. "The public has the right to be informed not only about the views of a politician but also about his health, including mental and emotional health."

The author sees psychography as a means of aiding family relationships. "By comparing the handwriting of child and parents you can discover sources of alienation, what is it that rubs the child the wrong way, why does the parent not understand the child," he elaborates. "They then can come to some kind of adaptation."

He also considers psychography a potential tool in preventing drug addiction. "Perhaps it would be possible ahead of time to search out the personality of a child whose ego is weak," he suggests. "One or two children in a group turn on and there is a tremendous amount of pressure on the others not to be 'chicken.' The child whose ego is weak might be most likely to succumb to this pressure."

Discovery of such a personality trait would indicate the need for preventive therapy from one of a number of sources, such as psychiatrist, psychologist or clinic, he notes.

Teltcher admits grapho-diagnosis does not predict how a marriage is going to turn out, but he says it does show areas of agreement and disagreement and adds that people with greater similarities have a better chance to be happy.

"If one person has a straightforward approach and the other a tendency to lie, for instance, this would be a stumbling block. Couples may have enough in common to make up for divergencies," he concedes, "but if two people could learn ahead of time where the opposition and difficulties lie perhaps they could work it out better."

Since handwriting offers a number of clues as to the degree of sexuality, the Viennese-born psychologist says it could alert couples to sexual disharmony, such as in the case of someone with strong sexual needs marrying a person with a weak sex drive.

Another field in which handwriting analysis is used extensively and in which Teltcher is particularly active is personnel selection. During the last 10 years he has evaluated from 6,000 to 8,000 specimens of writing for a large transportation carrier, passing on the merits of applicants for jobs ranging from truck drivers to executive personnel.

"Certain graphic patterns correspond to clusters of characteristics that distinguish the safe from the unsafe driver," he explains. "I developed a personality picture of a successful truck driver type who would not be accident prone."

Extroversion and introversion, emotional stability and other indicators that show up in handwriting also can be used in vocational guidance, especially in conjunction with other psychological tests, Teltcher says.

For a writing sample he prefers a page of spontaneous ink writing on unlined paper, including signature, and with the writer's sex and age indicated.

In studying the specimen he looks not at single strokes or letters but at the writing as a whole, particularly the keynote—the one outstanding aspect that attracts immediate attention. Such a keynote might be printed script, stiff and regulated appearance, orderly spaced writing, disorganized appearance or disturbed rhythm.

He lists among the revealing features of handwriting: regularity or irregularity; roundness or angularity; small, medium or large size; and width or narrowness.

"For instance," he says, "very wide writing might show the desire of a person to be generous, effusive emotionally, more open," he says. "On the other hand, the narrower the writing, the more the personality contracts, becomes inhibited. It might also show extreme anxiety."

"I never look at writing in isolated fashion just as I never look at isolated features of a person," adds Teltcher, who sees the primary function of a grapho-diagnostic analysis as an understanding of the dynamics of the writer and his personality as a whole, rather than a determination of isolated characteristics.

hillside overlooking a stream meandering lazily through a lovely green valley fruitful with crops.

I clear enough acres to provide space for a swimming pool, a 1,500-car parking lot, and a 125-room rustic lodge. Atop the lodge in neon letters 10 feet tall a sign says:

"Come to Daydream Hideaway. Home of the World's Most Public Hermit."

Before the lodge will be a huge platform, surrounded by glass walls, through which people can watch me sitting in a big wooden chair, rocking and daydreaming.

Tasteful signs will be conspicuously placed about the premises saying:

"Spend a thrilling hour watching the public hermit for only 25 cents, three hours, 50 cents."

"Private consultations at which the public hermit will answer questions, give free advice or predict the future—$5 per minute."

The way I've got it planned, five years after I retire to become a public hermit, I'll be rich enough to retire again and spend the rest of my days counting my loot.

Or, better yet, I'll probably franchise the idea and spread a network of public hermit hideaways around the world. Anyone over 60 who can prove he has a good character and $10,000 in cash will be able to buy a franchise and set himself up as a public hermit. I might even permit a few lady public hermits. "They have to get in the act all the time."

As we were listening, Dumbarton suddenly froze. "You see those four kids over there with the 'Free Father Berrigan' signs? I've never seen them before. This could be the real thing." He turned on the tape recorder in his guitar and we went over behind them.

One of the students turned around. "Hey, Dumbarton," he said in surprise, "what the hell are you doing here?"

"Collins," Dumbarton said. "What are you doing here?" "I'm with the National Park Service Antisubversive Corps."

"You're the last person I expected to see here," Dumbarton said.

"Well, it's better than fighting forest fires."

Scouts Dig Out Fire Hydrants

WISCONSIN RAPIDS, Wis. (AP)—Boy Scouts seized the initiative after a leader read a newspaper article reporting that more than half of Wisconsin Rapids' fire hydrants were buried under snow.

Six troops of scouts went into action this week and, working nightly, have shoveled out 280 of the city's 644 hydrants. They hope to finish the job Saturday.

Cite High Mercury Level In 28 Whales

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A Navy scienteam says a high level of poisonous mercury—presumably derived from fish in their diet—was found in 28 pilot whales which beached themselves and died on an island off the California coast.

Concentrations of up to 23.9 parts of the poison per million parts of liver tissue turned up in autopsy tests of carcasses from the incident Jan. 7, the Naval Undersea Research and Development Center said Thursday.

A limit of five-tenths of a part per million in fish for human consumption has been set by the Food and Drug Administration.

There was speculation by some ecologists at the time of the mass beaching that it was a mute protest by the mammals against man's pollution of their environment.

William E. Evans, head of the Naval center's marine bioscience division, said the whales died of stranding not from mercury poisoning.

He said it was clear that the poison must have come from their diet.

Scientists say this also is the source of mercury found in contaminated tuna and swordfish, both predators dependent on a diet of smaller fish which concentrate the mercury in their bodies as it moves up the ocean food chain.

Evans said the stranding of the whales, which ranged up to 16 feet in length and 1,800 pounds in weight, might have resulted from their follow-the-leader habit.

He said pilot whales often beach themselves when one or more herd members become confused and head for dangerous shallows.

"A variety of factors contribute to such confusion," he said, "including darkness of the night, absence of surf, tide conditions and misinterpretation of the whales' own sonar signals."

assorted other Queen City politicians, wrote Gov. Scott and expressed their dissatisfaction with his statement. One of them said: "I can't figure out why Bob would want to make Charlotte people mad. They gave him his biggest margin of victory over Jim Gardner in 1968."

Further clouding the Bob Scott mystery at this time is the health condition of U.S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan. Sen. Jordan, who will be 75 in September, had announced intentions to seek reelection. But now a patient at Duke Hospital after surgery for cancer, it's doubtful that Sen. Jordan would be able to run again.

In that September interview with this reporter, Gov. Scott said he would not run against Sen. Jordan. He also said then: "I have no great desire to be in Washington. In fact, I don't think I'd move my family there. My children are at an age when we need to be together as a family. They have no desire to go to Washington and I wouldn't want them to live there. And I'm not so sure I'd want to commute back and forth."

Maybe Gov. Scott has changed his mind about Washington since September. Maybe not.

But he's running for something and in the process, he's got half the State of North Carolina confused.

Speaking For 'Voiceless' Come to Church

RALEIGH (AP) — They came, said Collins Kilburn, "to raise our voices in behalf of a voiceless group of people, the inmates of the prisons."

Kilburn, speaking for North Carolina's Council of Churches, spoke to a day-long gathering of more than 70 clergymen and laymen who came to Raleigh to convince legislators that reforms are needed in the state's prison system.

The clergymen said that prisoners should be able to sleep in private cells and should not be given work quotas while assigned road work.

Other recommendations included:

- Abolition of the death penalty.
- Raising the age for juvenile offenders to 18.
- Providing rehabilitation and diagnostic facilities for inmates.

Each prisoner, said Kilburn, "is a human being, and needs to be treated accordingly."

Callas Divorce Handed Setback

BRESCIA, Italy (AP) — Hearing of a divorce action by opera star Maria Callas against industrialist Battista Meneghini has been suspended for two weeks after he challenged constitutionality of Italy's new divorce law.

Miss Callas and Meneghini were married in 1949 and were granted a civil separation in 1959. At that time Italian law did not permit divorce.

She filed her divorce action in January.

Maddox Gets In Free Publicity

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox got in a little advertising for his line of retail novelty items by wearing one of them—a "Phooey" T-shirt—to work at the Capitol Thursday.

The shirt, white trimmed in red, carries a cartoon of Maddox riding a bicycle backward, topped by the word "Phooey" in block letters.

Backward bicycle riding was one of Maddox's favorite stunts when he was governor. "Phooey" is his favorite expletive.

rived with a bulldozer and refused to allow the residents to move the house trailer.

Then, according to the residents' version, the rangers buried the trailer, barn and a hog pen and planted pine seedlings over them.

State Judge Matheny said Thursday, "I feel that this case could be heard just as well before this court and this judge ... but the order for transfer came from a high court—I say higher, but not better."

The removal order said the ranger was entitled to trial in federal court because at the time of the home-burial Hile was purportedly acting as a U.S. official.

Stresses Profit In Conventions

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Construction of a state-financed convention center on the Gulf Coast would be worth $25 million a year to the economy, according to Bill Waller, a Jackson attorney and former candidate for governor.

"If I were governor, one of the first acts of my administration would be to call for a state bond issue to construct the convention center and civic complex, and I would stomp the state in its behalf," Waller told a civic organization here Thursday.

The coast had lost at least five major conventions with a combined strength of 45,500 persons, Waller said, "solely and specifically because it has no facilities large enough to handle them."

Judge Ired Over Losing A Trial

BREVARD, N.C. (AP) — A case involving a U.S. forest ranger accused of burying a man's house and barn in a bulldozed hole was switched to a federal court and the state judge who lost the trial got angry about it.

North Carolina District Judge Wade B. Matheny apparently had some strong feelings about the case even before hearing evidence in the charges against ranger Dan W. Hile.

Before signing an order that gave up the case to U.S. District Court, Judge Matheny said of the alleged house-burying, "I feel that tactics such as these we expect of Hitler and the Soviet Union, but for our government authorities to act in this manner is contrary to all that the United States stands for in trying to maintain law and order."

The home burial last week followed a dispute over about an acre of mountain land claimed by the Forest Service as part of Pisgah National Forest.

Eighty-nine year old former logger and farmer Cannon McCall of Balsam Grove said he claimed the land legally several years ago.

McCall had received notices ordering him to vacate the land. On Feb. 22, residents of the mountain community say, eight Forest Service men ar-

THE HOPELESS FOUR

They were the best act at the annual amateur night of the Church Youth Group. The audience loved them—not only their parents and their friends' parents, but all the other folks, too.

More important is what it did for the boys themselves. Learning to work together, enjoying every minute of rehearsal, perfecting talents they hardly knew they had . . . and doing it all as part of the youth program of their church.

But don't miss the "dig" they gave the rest of us when they named their group. Too many youngsters today have the impression that we consider theirs a hopeless generation.

The truth of the matter is that most of American youth belongs to the finest generation our country has yet raised. While you and I are reading and hearing about the "wild" minority, our churches are working quietly and effectively to mold the faith and character of tomorrow's citizens.

Near Accord On Middle East Proposals

CHARLIE MANSON — Convicted murderer Charles Manson has a new haircut, but still his familiar beard as he arrived in a Los Angeles courtroom Thursday for another session of his trial. The jury is deciding whether he and his women co-defendants will get the death penalty. (AP Wirephoto)

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Big Four U.N. delegates are reported to have reached considerable agreement on terms of a communique they hope will revive the Arab-Israeli peace talks and prolong the Middle East cease-fire, due to expire Sunday.

But after a 2½-hour meeting at the Soviet Mission Thursday, "a number of points of difference" remained, according to a Western source.

Indicating the urgency of their task, the ambassadors of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union scheduled another meeting this afternoon at the home of the British envoy, Sir Colin Crowe. It is the first time four delegates have met two days in a row in two years of sessions on the Middle East situation.

U.S. sources were hopeful that the four would agree on the communique today.

In between the formal sessions, consultations were taking place on one of the thorniest issues—whether there should be a direct reference to prolongation of the cease-fire or an appeal for "continued exercise of military restraint." The latter wording was used by U.N. Secretary-General U Thant last month in a report on which Egypt based its agreement to a one month's extension of the cease-fire until March 7.

Out Of Reach

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says the North Carolina General Assembly is not going to approve a constitutional amendment to allow a referendum on a two-term governorship whether he rules himself out or not.

Scott told a newsmen in Washington Thursday a poll of the Senate Constitutional Amendments Committee shows there aren't enough votes to get the amendment out.

Scott said he is thinking about asking for a hearing on the issue so that former North Carolina governors Luther Hodges, Terry Sanford and Dan Moore could air their views.

Under the state Constitution, a North Carolina governor cannot succeed himself. There is no bar, however, to a second term at some later time.

Some sources indicated the Egyptian response would be positive only if the communique sharply criticized Israel's refusal to commit itself to a withdrawal from all Arab territory occupied in the 1967 war.

The United States is understood to be against any direct reference to Israeli withdrawal.

President Nixon told his news conference Thursday night that his government will not try to impose a settlement in the Middle East.

He said the United States would join with the Soviet Union to guarantee any settlement, "to see the balance of power is maintained."

Egyptian and Syrian troops were reported on maximum alert as the cease-fire deadline neared.

Unofficial reports from Cairo said an estimated 100,000 troops began a contingency alert along the Suez Canal, and Damascus reports said Syria's 75,000-man army also was on the alert.

No similar alert was reported from Jordan where government sources said they believed the cease-fire would be extended.

The Israeli military command reported a flight by two Egyptian planes over Israeli positions along the canal. Israel said it was the third Egyptian cease-fire violation this week.

The Palestinian National Council announced approval of a plan to unify the various guerrilla organizations under the leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization. But the plan faced strong opposition from the ultramilitant Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which boycotted the unity meeting in Cairo, and the Popular Democratic Front.

The council's statement pledged continuation of the struggle to "liberate our homeland" and rejected proposals for a separate Palestinian state.

The statement also attacked the Jordanian government and called for its replacement by a government that "believes in armed struggle for the liberation of Palestine."

A Beirut newspaper reported that Israel is stepping up military activity along its 30-mile border with Lebanon in anticipation of the cease-fire expiration.

Al Hayat reported that two Israeli jets flew 20 miles over Lebanon Thursday, creating sonic booms that shattered glass in two towns. The paper said Israeli artillery at the same time bombarded a Lebanese village a few miles from the border and damaged several houses.

Both actions were intended to panic Lebanese in the south and deter guerrilla raids into Israel, Al Hayat said.

113,000 Died In Accidents

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council reports that an estimated 113,000 persons died in accidents in the United States last year.

The council also estimated Thursday that 1970 accidents cost some $26 billion and that there were approximately 10.8 million disabling injuries.

The total of fatal accidents decreased 2 per cent from 1969. Motor vehicle fatalities amounted to 55,300, a decrease of 2 per cent, and public nonmotor vehicle deaths were 20,000, down 5 per cent. There was no substantial change either in fatal accidents in the home, 27,000, or at work, 14,000.

Some accidents qualify for more than one category.

The Safety Council said there was a 7 per cent increase in accidental deaths among persons 14 to 24 years of age, but that all other age groups had fewer fatalities.

Parleys By 2 Germans

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany today accepted a West Berlin proposal to begin talks Saturday on various matters including the first Easter passes through the Berlin Wall in five years.

Mayor Klaus Schuetz of West Berlin named his assistant, Ulrich Mueller, to negotiate. East German State Secretary Guenter Kohrt was named by the other side.

The meeting will take place in East Berlin.

East Germany meanwhile resumed harassment of traffic leaving West Berlin because of West German political activity in the city. Asked if this could affect the meeting Saturday, a City Hall source replied: "At the moment this is not under consideration."

Parliamentary leaders of West Germany's Christian Democratic party are ending a three-day meeting in West Berlin today, and Chancellor Willy Brandt arrived by plane for a day of election campaigning for the local wing of his Social Democratic party.

The island of Java ranks as one of the world's most densely peopled lands, averaging 1,500 persons per square mile.

Report On SST Not By 'Expert'

By MICHAEL J. REILLY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Super-sonic-transport chief William M. Magruder says there is no point in releasing a 1969 memorandum against the SST because its author is no "expert either on aviation or the SST."

Magruder told a House subcommittee Thursday he assessed Dr. Richard L. Garwin's expertise during a nearly five-hour conversation. He said he hopes to be released from a secrecy pledge to report that conversation to the subcommittee if it obtains a copy of Garwin's report.

But Rep. Sidney R. Yates, D-Ill., praised Garwin's expertise and said one of SST opponents' problems is finding someone to turn to for the other side of the issue.

The running controversy over the Garwin report and President Nixon's refusal to release it broke out once again at the House transportation appropriations subcommittee's final hearing on continued funding for two SST prototypes.

Chairman John McFall, D-Calif., questioned whether the paper contains useful information and denied Yates' request that the subcommittee ask its release. But McFall said he will ask the White House to tell what is in the memorandum.

Refusal to release the paper, McFall said, "raises a cloud—an unnecessary cloud. I can't imagine it says anything that is not outdated."

Magruder, chief Nixon administration SST spokesman, called Garwin an eminent nuclear physicist but said that during a recent conversation, "I did not hear anything to indicate that Dr. Garwin is an expert either on aviation or the SST."

Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe testified Monday only President Nixon could renege the memorandum that Garwin submitted in 1969 as head of a panel of the President's Council of Science Advisers.

The SST's top environment adviser told the subcommittee future SST flights might be grounded by cosmic radiation—but only about once every 11 years, during solar peaks.

Dr. S. Fred Singer, chairman of the SST Environmental Advisory Council, indicated cosmic radiation and sonic boom are the only potential SST environment hazards he gives credence.

Piano Recital Slated March 14

Miss Ellen Reithmaier, faculty member of the School of Music at East Carolina University, will give a piano recital on Sunday, March 14 at 8:15 p.m. in the recital hall.

The public is invited to attend the program which will include works by Bach, Beethoven and Brahms.

Miss Reithmaier received the master of music degree from the University of Michigan where she also taught before joining the ECU faculty in the fall of 1970.

consideration a proposal to widen Chestnut Street from Grande to Line Avenue. Chestnut Street runs parallel with Dickinson Avenue one block north of Dickinson.

In his presentation, Skinner noted the existing right of ways would permit widening of the street — which now varies from 26 feet in some portions to 35 feet in others — to a 40 foot street, saying this might be one solution to relieving the congestion on Dickinson.

City Engineer C. A. Holliday explained that the estimated total cost of the project involving a distance of 4,275 feet, which would include removal of 65 trees; removal of present sidewalks; and building of new catch basins; would be approximately $110,933.50. This estimated figure is based on construction of the type that would meet approval of thoroughfare road requirements.

The city manager noted that the thoroughfare study plan, due to be received soon, would make consideration of Skinner's plan more appropriate after the plan had been received and studied.

No action was necessary on this matter, as it was presented by Skinner for consideration purposes only. He asked the councilmen to think about the feasibility of the plan.

April 8 is the date scheduled for a public hearing on closing an unopened portion of Halifax Street from Paris Street to the back of some warehouses. The street, dedicated on a 1924 city map, has never been opened. Attorney Louis Gaylord, presented the request.

An emergency request by Walter King to place a trailer for family use at 1817 South Pitt Street was approved. King stated his daughter and grandchildren were living with him, and that due to his age and his wife's illness it was necessary that he and his wife have peace and quiet. The permission was granted with the stipulation that King must return in one year to have a renewal considered, and that the trailer home not be used for rental purposes.

Approval was given for payment of money appropriated in the budget for support of the Greenville Art Center.

The council also approved payment to Coastal Refrigeration Company for an amount of $307.53 to close an outstanding debt on an air conditioning contract for Sheppard Memorial Library. Money for this payment is to come from the general contingency fund as the library fund does not have this amount available in its maintenance budget.

A scheduled report on progress of ECU's Student Advisory Council was deferred. None of the student representatives were on hand due to the current quarter break.

Police Grads Congratulated

CONGRATULATIONS . . . are expressed to policemen Charles Van Sickle (left) and John M. Taylor by Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr., who presented the two their diplomas in a ceremony last night at City Hall.

Two young Greenville policemen placed first and second in a graduating class of 20 policemen who have just completed training in the Police Officer Training Course at Wilson Technical Institute.

Charles Van Sickle and John M. Taylor, the two top men in their class, were honored for their accomplishment last night by the City Council.

Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr. presented the two their certificates of graduation in the presence of their wives and about 100 other people who were in the City Council Chambers for public hearings.

Two other Greenville policemen, Wade Knottingham and L. E. Outland Jr., were also among the 20 policemen of Eastern North Carolina who completed the training course at Wilson Tech. City Manager said the two finished high on the list, although he did not have the exact places in which they finished available.

Greenville police force also came in for a note of appreciation. A letter from the E. F. Craven Company, praising the efficiency and courtesy of policeman E. T. Love in handling a robbery case, was read to the Council.

Most of the major industries of Greenville were represented last night an Industry Appreciation Dinner sponsored by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association.

The dinner, held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, highlighted the observance of "Industry Appreciation Week," sponsored as a salute to the various local industries.

As dinner guests, members of the Pitt County Development Commission were recognized and the commission's new executive director, James Horne, who succeeds Dr. Sylvester Green, was introduced to the gathering.

In addition to a number of special guests, the industrial committee of the Chamber, under the chairmanship of William E. McDonald, was recognized.

Guest speaker for the occasion, Dr. James Bearden, Dean of the School of Business at East Carolina University, told the group that "American industry is a powerful force . . ." the chief "engine" of American economy.

"The vital activity of industry has great social, political, and economic significance," Bearden said. "You in industry and you who are shaping industry have an inescapable moral responsibility. Future generations will regard you as molders of the society which they have inherited."

"Industry evokes an image of plants, machinery and equipment, production lines, high finance, and board rooms," the dean noted. "But when you strip it down to what really counts, industry is people."

Bearden said that "unless a business remains strong in its basic economic role, it has no jobs to offer, no payroll to put into the community, no ability to pay taxes to support public services, and no way of serving."

He pointed out that without profits, provisions for hospitals, institutions of research and education, among other public needs, would not be available.

"Perhaps we are lulled into thinking that all of this could come from government," Bearden said. "But coming back into reality you know that the government has no income except what it collects in the form of taxes from you and me."

Industry, the speaker continued, is concerned about the well being of Greenville. "You support better schools, support civic improvements, support the institutions and agencies which make the community what it is. Financially, of course, but it is not simply a matter of taxes and contributions."

Bearden added that businessmen must now act "bravely with convictions and courage and because of your actions, we the citizens of Greenville are beneficiaries."

Chamber president, Dr. H. E. Lowry, offered concluding remarks following Bearden's address. Some 45 business leaders, chamber officials, and guests attended the dinner.

Spiders Creep Past Pirates, 69-67

Lady Luck Gives Bucs Hard Time

CHARLOTTE — East Carolina University fans must be beginning to wonder what sort of magic Richmond coach Lewis Mills has in the Southern Conference Basketball Tournament. Or maybe it was all wrapped up in a hat-check girl.

Last night, Richmond's Spiders upset the Pirates for the second straight year in the tournament with a two-point victory, 69-67. They did the same thing last year. And in their only other tournament meeting, the first year the Bucs were in the conference, they did it too.

The superstitious will say things come in threes. The superstitious might also lay the blame on the hat-check girl at a local restaurant who handed ECU Coach Tom Quinn his stub when he checked his wife's coat Wednesday night. The stub was numbered "13."

"We weren't loose tonight. Someone said we had inexperience written all over our faces out there," Quinn told newsmen. "I guess we did."

But Quinn thought the Bucs should have won it. "We had a terrible call on Terry Davis late in the game," he pointed out. Davis and a Richmond player went after a loose ball. The Spider was behind Davis, who got the ball, but Davis was called for the foul. Richmond made the throws for two points.

"We didn't do a good job on (Jim) Hewitt (who made the killing basket), and we were killed on the boards," the coach said. Richmond outrebounded the Bucs, 46-28.

Mills said winning was like a repeat performance. "I think our team has had a lot of undue criticism. We're better than our record but we played a tough road schedule (19 games away)."

"We just stayed after it, and it finally paid off."

VMI's Mike Schuler was quite disappointed in his teams close loss to the Indians. "We played awfully well, he said. "Our kids leave a lot to be desired in talent, but they have fight."

Schuler laid the key to the loss to VMI's missing six free throws in the first half, and having three big turnovers when they held the lead. "(Tom) Jasper shot exceedingly well. Fouls hurt us; we're not that deep."

The coach did have one promise. "We won't always be last," he said. His freshman may give him reason to look to the future. They were 15-4 this year.

Meanwhile, William and Mary's Warren Mitchell praised the Keydets valiant fight. "They fought hard; we were lucky to win," he said. "They got into foul trouble, but still came back. I wondered could it really be happening."

Mitchell said the Indians could never seem to break it open. "We opened up several leads, but they just kept coming back on us. We were just jucky."

Joe Williams of Furman thought his team showed great poise in downing The Citadel. "We were definitely ready for the tournament," he said. The kids were relaxed."

He added that he didn't think the team played well defensively, but the offense was on.

The Citadel's Dick Campbell praised the play of captain Ben Ledbetter, who played with a bad knee and did a fine job in the game.

"Furman's defense was great," Campbell added in opposition to Williams. "We played well, but they played better." — Woody Peele

Bucs Host State In Opener

The 1971 college baseball season opens here Saturday when defending Southern Conference champion East Carolina entertains North Carolina State in the first game of a two-game weekend series.

Game time is 2 p.m. at University Field, located on Charles Street, near Minges Coliseum.

The same two clubs will meet again Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, also at University Field.

Coach Earl Smith, who feels he may have one of his finest teams ever at ECU, will probably start righthander Ron Hastings against the Wolfpack. Hastings was the nation's No. 1 pitcher last season with a fantastic 0.56 earned run average.

On Sunday it should be either southpaw Hal Baird or righthander Sonny Robinson on the mound for the Pirates.

N.C. State Coach Sam Esposito is expected to use lefty Mike Caldwell in the season opener against Hastings, then come back with his ace righthander John Lewis on Sunday.

However, righthander Mike Charron, who hurled a two-hitter against ECU last spring could get the call either day.

The Pirates racked up a 20-13 record in winning third Southern Conference championship in the past five seasons in 1970. However, the Bucs, who have enjoyed 36 straight winning seasons, were beaten twice by the Wolfpack, 5-4 and 5-0.

State led the Atlantic Coast Conference most of the season, before stumbling near the end and losing a playoff game for the league title to Maryland. The Wolfpack's record was an impressive 21-10.

Pitchers Caldwell, Lewis and Charron had a lot to do with State's success in 1970, just as hurlers Hastings, Baird and Robinson were the key men in the Pirate picture last season.

Both clubs feel their hitting may be improved this spring. Smith has two of his top three hitters back in outfielders Mike Aldridge (.370) and Larry Walters (.317). They both hit the long ball as do junior college transfers Gus Roberson and Ralph Lamm, who take over

Frosh Reserve Stewart Leads Ayden Victory

RALEIGH — Reserve guard Melvin Stewart came off the Ayden bench with needed explosives to propel the Tornadoes to a 60-57 North Carolina High School Athletic Association 1-A quarterfinal upset over Robbinsville here last night.

Stewart, a 5-8 freshman, ripped off seven key field goals after the Tornadoes had blown an early lead in the contest to trail five points in the mid-second quarter.

The pesky backline rover converted his first bucket of the contest with 1:41 remaining in the first half and Ayden trailing the Black Knights, 25-20. Stewart's 18-foot jump shot with nine seconds left before intermission allowed coach Bob Murphrey's troops only one point deficit at the half, 28-27. He then hit three more important field goals in the see-saw third frame, which ended in a 42-41 tie.

Stewart's layup off the fourth quarter tipoff put the Tornadoes ahead to stay as he combined with frontline standouts Pat Finnigan and Willie Stewart to battle back several threats by Robbinsville.

The Black Knights entered the game with a handsome 24-1 overall season and having romped to a regular season win over NCHSAA State 3-A semifinalist Pisgah but had trouble with the outside shooting of Stewart. The Knights' 2-3 zone defense held up well until Stewart's second and third quarter bombardment.

The Tornadoes maintained a four-point advantage throughout most of the final stanza despite a one-man desperation show by Robbinsville forward Mark Manuel, whose 28 points capped individual scoring honors in the contest.

Manuel, a 6-3 senior who has signed a football grant with Duke after sparking the Knights to a successive 1-A State Championship in 1969 and '70, scored 11 points in the final frame but could muster little support from his teammates.

Manuel sliced the Ayden margin to 55-53 with 1:21 left in the game on a jumper from the corner. The Knights then received a golden opportunity to tie the game when Manuel stole the ball from Ayden's Milton Brown at midcourt on the ensuing possession. Before Manuel could gain full possession, however, the lightning-like Melvin Stewart darted by and stole the ball in turn, streaking for an uncontested snowbird.

The Tornadoes had easy sailing from then with three free throws in the final minute by Finnigan and Willie Stewart. Willie Stewart canned the final two points with the first end conversions of one-and-ones with 19 and seven seconds showing.

Willie Stewart's 15 points paced the Ayden scoring while Melvin finished with 14 and Finnigan 14. Brown added 12 with six field goals.

Murphrey was quick to praise his cool-under-fire frosh hero. "Melvin did a fine job in reserve for us," he stated the Ayden coach.

"He hit several key goals and did a good job defensively. I think we have played better games this season but in the State Tournament, any win is a big one."

The Tornadoes now advance to tonight's 8:30 game in Broughton High School gymnasium against Sampson County Union. Union defeated Cardinal Gibbons of Raleigh in last night's other quarterfinal game, 54-51.

Last night's win was a hectic one for Ayden. The score was tied six times in the contest while command of the game exchanged hands 13 times before Ayden pulled in front to stay.

The win bolsters Ayden's hopes to become the first team in the event's 12-year history to successfully corral three State Championships in basketball. The Tornadoes have State titles in 1966 and '67. Two other schools have also won two State Championships. Beaufort accomplished the feat in 1960 and '61 while Youngsville claimed small school supremacy in 1968 and last year.

Immanuel Topples Oakmont By 59-43

Immanuel and Presbyterian advanced to the Church League finals last night, Immanuel with a convincing 59-43 victory over Oakmont and Presbyterian with a 65-60 edge over Blackjack.

Pushing out to a nine-point margin at halftime, Immanuel steadily increased its lead in the second stanza.

Dick Evans fired in 20 points to lead the winners. Jim Grimsley got 16, and George Williams added 11.

Don Parrot paced Oakmont with 24. Carlton Hardy chipped in 12.

Presbyterian overcame a second half rally to dump Blackjack. After moving out to a 28-22 first half advantage, the winners were outscored in the second half. But the six points at half-time proved to be enough.

Brazel Moore poured in 25 points to spark Presbyterian.

Bill Glidewell added 12. Steve Peel and Tal Adams got 14 each to lead Blackjack.

The winners meet in the Church League tournament finals Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

S.C.'s Joyce May Play

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Frank McGuire of South Carolina says sophomore guard Kevin Joyce, who has been out three weeks with a leg injury, will be used sparingly if at all in Saturday night's game at Wake Forest which ends the regular season.

However, McGuire said that Joyce would play in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship tournament which starts Thursday in the Greensboro, N.C., Coliseum.

The ECU defense up the middle could be very strong if highly touted newcomers Norman Horton at second and Mike Bradshaw at shortstop come through. However, both must beat our veteran Dick Corrada, a three-year starter and team co-captain, who must play somewhere.

Matt Walker, a soph, will be in the center field and All-SC catcher Stan Sneeden behind the plate. Senior Len Dowd is the team's top utility man.

ECU Leads

WILLAMSBURG, Va. — East Carolina's tankmen grabbed an early lead in yesterday's first round of the Southern Conference swim tournament.

The Pirate swimmers tallied 167½, while William & Mary totaled 128 in the first day of competition. VMI and Davidson were far behind with 52½ and 35, respectively.

Jim Griffin of ECU captured the first event, the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 5:02. ECU's Gary Frederick followed with 5:04, while Pirate John Manning got third place.

East Carolina's Wayne Norris set pool and conference records in the 200-yard individual medley. Norris covered the distance in 2:04.

William & Mary claimed the 50-yard freestyle on the strength of Chuck Alley's time of 22 seconds.

And ECU came back to win the 400-yard medley relay in 3:46.6. Hinchman, Allman, Morrow, and Trevisan were the winning team.

The championship meet continues through Saturday.

CHARLOTTE — It was like watching a rerun of last year's horror movie. As it began to unfold you realized that maybe you and more sure of it.

And as it went along, you grew more and more sure of it.

Then, as the last bit of horror appeared before you, you knew it was the same thing you had seen before.

Last year in the first round of the Southern Conference Basketball Tournament, the Richmond Spiders seeded seventh, upset the second-ranked Bucs of East Carolina by two points. Last night, Richmond upset the third-rated Bucs in the same fashion, hitting a bucket as the horn went off for a 69-67 win over the stunned Pirates.

Big Jim Hewitt of the Spiders was the one who put the bite on the Bucs — poisoning their hopes to drive for the title many people said at the start of the year they might take.

It was the last step in a year of frustration for the Bucs and Coach Tom Quinn. They had to watch as three highly valued players fell by the wayside, one to a technicality, another to injury and one to illness.

In the other games Thursday, second-seeded William & Mary beat VMI, 69-65, in a thriller as Tom Jasper almost solely did the job, and Furman's amazing shooting drilled The Citadel, 95-82 in a mild upset.

The game between the Bucs and Spiders was close all the way, although Richmond had to overcome a four point lead with 2:15 left in the game. They scored the final six points of the evening to do it.

The spiders let the Bucs know right away they were in for a battle, hitting for six points before the Bucs could get started. But East Carolina came back to tie it at 6-6 and then go ahead at 8-6 on a shot by Jim Gregory. It remained close, however, and the Bucs were never able to shake off the stubborn Spiders.

They continued to lead the rest of the way. Richmond did tie it at 8-8, but Dave Franklin hit on a free throw for a 9-8 lead, and the Bucs hit another on a rebound by Gregory to take a three-point lead.

Slowly they pushed out to a six point edge, 20-14, but Ray Amann and Stan Ryfinski each hit to cut it back to two. The Bucs pulled away again, and again went out by six, only to see it dwindle back to two at 25-23.

Dave McNeill hit a three-point play with 4:38 left to put the Bucs back out by five, and they used four straight free throws to run it to nine, 32-23 with 3:52 left. It looked there like they might break it open.

But Richmond didn't give them another point in the half, and came back to score six points and cut the lead to three before the half ended. Mike Anastasio, Ryfinski and Hewitt each hit and it was 32-29 at the half.

Ryfinski hit off the second half tipoff, but Al Faber, Gregory and McNeill each hit to run it back to seven. Still, Richmond fought back, and this time, took the lead at 46-45 on a shot Ryfinski, who canned 12 in the half.

The lead bounced back and forth most of the rest of the way. East Carolina finally pushed out again, however, as Gregory, Faber and Terry Davis each hit for a five-point lead, 59-54. Richmond did it again, however, pushing back ahead on a pair of free throws by Amann at 62-20.

The Bucs came back to go back ahead on a shot by Henrich, and Franklin followed with a bucket with 3:50 left. McNeill made a free throw to up it to five, 66-61 with 2:53 left, but it wasn't to be.

Hewitt made two free throws and East Carolina countered with one by Henrich, making it 67-63 with 2:15 left. Richmond came back with a layup by Anastasio and a drive by Rydinski to tie it up with 42 seconds left.

The Bucs decided to go for the first good shot. That came with 17 seconds left when Franklin shot from close under on the baseline. His shot hit the near edge of the rim, and bounced back into the arms of a Richmond player.

They got it down court, and with one second left, Hewitt got it turned, and shot. It was all over after that.

Ryfinski finished with 21 points, while Hewitt had 15 and Anastasio and Roger Hatcher each had 10.

Gregory had 17, while Franklin had 16 and Faber had 15 for the Bucs. Gregory's points raised his total for his career to 1,192, the most for a Pirate in a three-year career, and fourth among all-time scorers.

Both William & Mary and VMI were cold in the first half of their game. The Indians went six minutes early in the half, without a goal. VMI did the same thing minutes later, but for seven.

The Indians jumped off to a four-point lead, 8-4, as Jasper hit two baskets and a free throw to lead the way. But the Keydets fought back and charged into a lead of its own. They tied it at 9-9 on a free throw by Jan Essenburg, and moved ahead by another by him. Rod Brewer added two baskets for a 14-9 lead with 12:13 to go.

But the Indians came back and regained the lead at 15-14 as the Indians ran off nine straight points for an 18-14 lead before the keydets could score again.

They opened by as much as six at 26-20 but the Keydets fought back to cut it at 26-24 at the horn.

William and Mary gradually pulled away early in the second half, building up an 11-0 point edge 38-27. But the stubborn Keydets refused to quit. They fought back, and finally cut the lead to four at 42-38 as Essenburg hit.

But fouls began to mount up then, and when the third VMI starter left the game with 9:28 still to go, the Indians began to move away again.

They went back out by nine, 56-47, but the Keydets fought back gallantly, and finally, on two jumpers by Essenburg, cut the lead to one, 64-63 with 1:47 to go.

That was to be it. The Indians got Jim Warns open underneath for a three-point lead, and a turnover gave it back to them with only a minute left. Fouls then ran the Indians out to their final 69-65 margin.

Jasper finished with 27 points while Warns had 17 for the Indians. Essenburg had 20. Brewer had 18 and Jerry Renfro had 15 for VMI.

The second game started out as a shooting match between Furman and The Citadel. The lead changed hands 14 times until Jerry Martin put Furman into a 23-22 lead with 9:48 to go. From there, the Paladins slowly began to pull away. They used superior shooting and rebounding power to cut down the Bulldogs. At the same time, both teams were piling up fouls. A total of 20 were called, 11 against The Citadel and nine against Furman.

This helped the Furman cause, and by 2:37 they had worked up an 11-point edge, 44-33, but settled for a 46-37 edge at intermission.

In the second half, Furman pulled out into a 12-point lead, hitting the first four points of the period, 49-37. But The Citadel slowly inched back, and finally cut the lead to four at 67-63 on a jumper by Ben Ledbetter. Furman, however, pulled away again and The Citadel began to lose players on fouls. Bernard Collier hit a basket and two free throws late in the game to push the lead out to 16, 84-68, and The Citadel could not recover after that.

Furman finished hitting 37 of 61 shots for an amazing 607 percent in the game.

Martin led the Paladins with 22. While Russ Hunt and Lisco Thomas had 18 each, and Don Jackson and Bernard Collier had 15 each.

Dickinson Leads Doral Open

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Arnold Palmer is disgusted, Jack Nicklaus is still playing last week's tournament and Gardner Dickinson holds the lead today going into the second round of the $150,000 Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament.

"I got so disgusted with my putting I let it effect the rest of my game," Palmer said after taking a three-over-par 75 in Thursday's first round, putting him well back in the pack.

"I played pretty well," said Nicklaus, winner of last week's PGA national championship. "But I had a couple mental lapses. I guess I was still playing the PGA."
He had a 74.
And Dickinson, a hardened veteran of almost 20 years on the pro tour who is attempting to battle his way out of a year-long slump, fought wind and cold for a four-under-par 68 and a one-stroke lead.

"It's one of my worst driving rounds ever," said the leatherfaceted little 130-pounder. "I just hope I keep putting like this. I know I can start hitting the ball again."

Dickinson, the 1968 winner of this event, held a one-stroke lead over five players tied at 69. They included Ted Hayes, Canadian George Knudson, Gibby Gilbert, Homero Blancas and Bobby Nichols, a former PGA champion now a club pro at Akron, Ohio.

Young Brien Allin and J.C. Snead, winner of the Tucson Open two weeks ago, had 70s. South African Gary Player was still in contention with a 72, but U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin of England shot himself out of it with a 77 and may have trouble making the cut today. Defending champion Mike Hill had a 74.

Masters champion Billy Casper and 1970 leading money winner Lee Trevino are not competing.

Dickinson, a one-time protege of Ben Hogan and generally considered one of the better teachers in the game, had a poor season last year. He didn't finish higher than eighth and won only $28,000, well below his usual pace. He lost his spot as an exempt player. He made money in only 13 of 22 starts and wasn't eligible for the PGA.

"I'm going to play more this year," he said. "I want to get into next year's PGA."
He said he wasn't overly concerned about his erratic driving, usually one of the strongest parts of his game.

"I'm using a lighter shaft on my driver, and it's pretty whippy in the wind. I've used it for several weeks, but this is the first time I've used it in the wind. It'll come around."
Palmer, accompanied by a gallery of only 22 when he started in the biting cold, dumped in a nine iron shot in the lake on the 18th, missed a six-foot putt and took a double bogey six.

"I think I'll take two weeks off and then quit altogether," he joked.

Frazier Says He's All Set For Muhammad

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Frazier is ready for Muhammad Ali, he says, and so do the heavyweight champion's sparring partners.

"I'm all set to go," Frazier said Thursday as he neared the end of the hard training for his scheduled 15-round title defense against Ali Monday night at Madison Square Garden in a fight that has practically been overshadowed by figures—actual $2.5-million guarantees for the fighters and a hoped for $30 million gross.

"I was shook up. I didn't know down but he hurt me," said Paul Cardoza, a 175-pound sparring partner used to sharpen Frazier's speed after he was caught and almost knocked out of the ring with a left hook.

"He has a way of cutting the ring off; he's always there," said Cardoza. "Who's Ali got in training to put that kind of pressure on him."
"There are no light workouts, not with Joe Frazier," said Billy "Moleman" Williams.

version of "Bye Blackbird."
Then, quickly, Williams added, "I'm talking about out of the ring. You need a favor, he'll do it."
After Williams, Cardoza went two rounds—actually less because the first round stopped when he got tagged with the hook.

"I've been shook by him a couple of other times too, said Cardoza, who up to Thursday had been in for 10 rounds with Frazier because he said he wanted the experience and knew he would get a little publicity.

For Frazier, the publicity was wearing thin, the money was assured and the only thing left was Ali.

Smilingly relaxed and obliging to the fans who turned out in the North Philadelphia gym, Frazier was courteous but brief with sports writers.
"All right, speak your piece and let's get out of here," said Frazier before the usual, but brief, question and answer session.

Pirate Tracksters Seek To Elude 'Bridesmaid' Role

Since joining the Southern Conference five years ago, East Carolina University's track and cross country teams have finished in second place seven times. Always ahead of the Pirates had been William & Mary, which boasts one of the strongest track programs in the East.

It looks like the "bridesmaid role" again this year for the Pirates.
Coach Bill Carson will take his ECU indoor team to Lexington, Va., this Saturday for the Southern Conference Indoor Championships—and once again the overwhelming favorite in the meet will be William & Mary. However, the Pirates will have some very strong individual entries, particularly in the long and triple jumps, in the sprints and relays and in the half-mile.

Sophomore Walter Davenport set an SC Indoor record in the long jump last year with a leap of 23'5½"—and he's already bettered that this season to 24'4". He's also a threat in the triple jump, in which he finished second a year ago. However, an ankle injury shelved Davenport in the Big 7 Meet two weeks ago and is still of concern to Carson.

Other Pirate jumpers, all of whom will challenge for the top prize, are freshmen Karry Malone and Lawrence Wilkerson and sophomore David Frye.
East Carolina has its best group of sprinters ever in Phil Phillips, Les Strayhorn, Charlie Lovelace, Will Mitchell, Ron Hunt, Barry Johnson and Larry Nuckols. Just how Carson will use them in the 60, 440 and mile relay remains to be seen. However, ECU does figure to challenge in these three events.

Carrying the Pirate colors in the half-mile will be the brilliant Jim Kidd a junior from Manassas, Va., who probably will be favored in the event. Carson can also look for strong showings from his mile and two-mile relay teams, which have been clocked in 3:29.3 and 7:54.8 respectively this season. ECU won the latter event last year with an SC record time of 7:53.8.

The third event the Pirates won last year was the two-mile run. However, Ken Voss and Neil Ross, who placed 1-2 in the event, are both gone, leaving Ed Hereford, Joe Day and Dennis Smith as the top ECU contenders.

In the 60-yard high and low hurdles the Pirates will have Bill McRee, Ronnie Smith (who placed third in the highs last year) and Mickey Furcron.
William & Mary is expected to dominate the shot put, pole vault, and mile run, as the Indians have in the past.

Finally, in the middle-distance 600-yard run, junior Lanny Davis may be a contender. Davis also figures in Carson's half-mile and relay plans, however, and could very easily not be entered in the 600.

Carty's Still On Crutches

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Manager Luman Harris of the Atlanta Braves has some major problems as the exhibition season opens but one of them he can't even control. A doctor won't let him have Rico Carty, the National League's top hitter with a .366 average last year.

Neither the doctor, Harry Rogers, nor the vice president, Paul Richards, is being particularly capricious—Carty's fractured knee still requires the big outfielder to use crutches.

So Carty's return is completely up in the air, leaving Harris with the major task of locating a replacement while the big problem of restoring his pitching staff is another major headache.

Harris has Hank Aaron and Orlando Cepeda' two-thirds of the heart of his batting order in camp. Cepeda, who hit .305 and hammered 34 homers and drove in 111 runs last season, came to terms recently joining Aaron, a .298 hitter with 38 home runs and 118 RBIs last year.

While Aaron, Carty and Cepeda tore apart, National League pitching last year, the Braves' pitching staff fell apart and the defending West champions' title fell with them to a fifth-place finish. Now the pitchers are back—and Carty's gone.

But, Harris speculates, the fall may have been as much due to complacency as injuries that cost the Braves the services of No. 1 reliever Cecil Upshaw for the entire season and left Ron Reed ineffective after his return.

11. Nash was 13-9. McQueen, just 20, was 1-5 after being summoned from the Richmond farm. And Upshaw didn't even pitch after severing a finger.

Nevertheless, Harris, finding Upshaw and Reed, "perfectly sound," insists "this is the best pitching staff since I got here." That covers three previous years.

Assuming the spots in the rotation are filled, that still leaves three holes to fill—two in the outfield, where Aaron will be the lone holdover, and at shortstop, where Sonny Jackson and Gil Garrido have been found wanting.

The Braves feel they have the shortstop in Marty Perez, acquired from California in the trade for outfielder Tony Gonzalez, and the outfield candidates in Ralph Garr, International League batting king with a .386 average at Richmond; Oscar Brown, .351 at Shreveport; Dusty Baker, .325 at Richmond, or holdover Mike Lum, a .254 hitter.

Perez would fit into an infield that is otherwise sound with Cepeda at first, outstanding Felix Millan at second and veteran Cleve Boyer at third.

"It's a tough division," said Harris. "There's five teams capable of winning it—and I think we're one of the five."
The other four he's thinking of are Cincinnati, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Houston. With so many things required to fall into place, it's likely that the Braves will have difficulty rising higher than third.

Rose Promises He'll Hold Out

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Baseball's spring exhibition season got under way today without Pete Rose and, if you believe the Cincinnati superstar, the regular season is liable to start without him too.

Rose is at home in Cincinnati, holding out for a two-year, $250,000 contract while the Reds insist on offering the same $105,000 for one year that he earned last season.

"I guarantee I won't play for $105,000," said Rose. "I'll sit here and I'm serious about it. I want to play but I just can't do it for $105,000. I realize $105,000 is a lot of money but this thing has gone farther than money."

"I wouldn't call the deadlock hopeless," said Bender. "What I would like is a chance to talk for a long time to Pete along. Maybe then we could get things straightened out."
The Cleveland Indians got things straightened out with Sam McDowell Thursday, although not completely to the satisfaction of their ace left-hander. McDowell signed a $72,000 contract that provides a boost to $80,000 if he matches last season's 20 victories and to $100,000—the salary he was after—if he wins 30 games.

"By no means offer congratulations," said a solemn Sudden Sam. "They should be condolences. I have given in on everything. My hands were tied. I've been told all along to take it or leave it. I had to take it."
Houston's Joe Morgan, Orlando Cepeda of the Atlanta Braves and Mike Andrews of the Chicago White Sox all okayed their contracts Thursday as did Cincinnati outfielder Bernie Carbo and Bert Campaneris of the Oakland A's.

Rookies anxious to win big league berths began getting their first chances to impress managers under fire today with the start of the exhibition season.

New faces dotted lineup so most teams as managers gave veterans a few more days to get ready.
The schedule included Pittsburgh against the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota, Fla., Washington against the New York Yankees at Pompano Beach, Fla., Montreal against Atlanta at West Palm Beach, Fla., San Francisco against the Chicago Cubs at Scottsdale, Ariz., the Tokyo Lotte Giants against Milwaukee at Tempe, Ariz., San Diego against Oakland at Yuma, Ariz., and Boston against Houston at Cocoa, Fla.

There is principle behind it."
Rose batted .316 last season after winning two straight National League batting titles with average of .335 and .348. Chief Bender Cincinnati's player personnel director, said he didn't feel Rose deserved a raise.

"I wouldn't call the deadlock hopeless," said Bender. "What I would like is a chance to talk for a long time to Pete along. Maybe then we could get things straightened out."

Nixon Avers Laos Operation Assures Withdrawals

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says the Laotian operation ensures continuation of U.S. troop withdrawals from Indochina, but adds there are no plans for American support of an invasion of North Vietnam.

In a televised news conference Thursday night, Nixon said U.S. force must remain in the South as long as the North holds American prisoners. And he vigorously defended

Secretary of State William P. Rogers—"my oldest and closest friend in the Cabinet"—against a charge by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., that Rogers had lost his role to Henry Kissinger, the President's national-security-affairs adviser.

"I think Sen. Symington's attack upon the secretary frankly was a cheap shot," Nixon said.

Agnew Can Joke Over His Golf

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, poking fun at his golf playing at a joint session of the Washington Legislature Thursday, said, "The worst part is to walk up to the tee and see everyone else assigned a caddy while you get a stretcher bearer."

adding that he wasn't condemning Symington for his statement in the Senate Tuesday.

"As to whether either Secretary Rogers or Dr. Kissinger is the top adviser, as to who is on first," Nixon said, "the answer to that of course is very simply that the secretary of state is always the chief foreign-policy adviser and the chief foreign-policy spokesman of the administration."

The Indochina war dominated the half-hour news session devoted to foreign affairs. The President went to some length in pronouncing the Laos operation a success.

U.S. troop withdrawals have been averaging roughly 12,000 a month since Nixon began reducing the 543,500-man U.S. force in mid-1969. By May 1 the U.S. force remaining in South Vietnam is slated to be down to 284,000, and the President plans to announce further withdrawals next month.

"Our troop-withdrawal schedule will go forward at least at the present rate," Nixon said.

He said the U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, "tells me that in both Laos and in Cambodia his evaluation after three weeks of fighting is that—to use his terms—the South Vietnamese by themselves can hack it...."

"This means that our withdrawal program, our Vietnamization program is a success, and can continue on schedule, and we trust even ahead of schedule assuming there is more progress in Laos."

Nixon said Abrams reported the South Vietnamese units in Laos already have cut North Vietnamese southbound-truck traffic by 55 per cent, "which means that those trucks that do not go South will not carry the arms and the men that will be killing Americans."

While some television commentators have kept up a drumbeat of criticism, Nixon said without naming anyone, the aim of the Cambodian and Laotian operations has been to reduce U.S. forces and casualties and "that is exactly what this administration has done."

"We are going to continue to reduce our forces, and we are getting out of Vietnam in a way that Vietnam will be able to defend itself," he said.

Nixon portrayed talk by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu of possibly invading North Vietnam as natural for the leader of a country under invasion. But he drew limits on what the United States might do.

"We will have no ground forces in North Vietnam, in Cambodia or in Laos" outside of rescuers for fliers or prisoners, Nixon said. He said U.S. airpower will be used against the North, against threatening missile sites and against military targets where increased infiltration endangers remaining U.S. forces.

But no plan for U.S. air support of a South Vietnamese invasion of the North "is under consideration in this government" or has been proposed to Washington by Thieu, he said.

Without disclosing what the action will be, Nixon said the United States is "prepared to take the protective-reaction measures which will deal very effectively with" missile sites recently firing at U.S. planes in Laos.

Nixon again steered clear of a deadline when all U.S. troops will be out of Vietnam. Nor did he say how big a force might remain in the South as long as the North holds U.S. prisoners of war.

His goal, he said, remains withdrawal of all U.S. forces through negotiation or through South Vietnam taking over their role. Keeping some troops in the South until the prisoners are freed "is the least we can negotiate for."

On other issues, Nixon said: —The United States hopes the Mideast cease fire, now due to end Sunday, will be extended "either by agreement or de facto." Washington will not impose a settlement on the Mideast, but will continue to keep a balance of power there and will be prepared to join other major powers including Russia in guaranteeing Israel's border security.

—He still thinks the United States and the Soviet Union eventually will agree to an arms curb at the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT), which reconvene in Vienna March 15, because it is in the interest of both superpowers.

But "we reject that proposal" by the Soviets for a limit only on antiballistic missiles. "We will negotiate an agreement that is not comprehensive but it must include offensive as well as defensive weapons, some mix," he said.

See Surplus Of Teachers

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina colleges and universities turned out 2,433 more teachers than there were teaching jobs in 1970, according to Director of Teacher Education and Certification J. P. Freeman.

Dr. Freeman told the State Board of Education Thursday that 6,768 new teachers graduated in the state last year, but only 4,335 found teaching jobs in the state.

Major areas of teacher surplus were in secondary education, especially in areas of instruction such as English, social studies and physical education. In science and math, Freeman said, "a real shortage" exists.

Prospects for continuing expansion of elementary programs, as well as development of a statewide system of kindergarten, he said, indicates that the areas of surplus will continue in the area of secondary education.

Dr. A. Craig Phillips, state school superintendent, said that institutions of higher education were "being slow to respond" to the state's changing needs.

Plan Church Directory

The Sycamore Hill Baptist Church is sponsoring a pictorial church directory for its members.

All church families will be listed. Those who wish may pose for a family portrait. No one is obligated to buy a picture or to permit his picture to be included in the directory if he does not wish to. Service men, shut-ins, and college students may be included as part of a family. A deceased member page may also be included, if desired.

Beginning March 15-18, a photographer will be at the church from 4 to 9 p.m. to take family portraits in natural color. It is suggested that everyone be dressed in bright colors. Committee chairmen will schedule appointments. Even if all family members do not belong to Sycamore Hill, all church members are encouraged to include their whole families in the portraits. Every family that participates receives a copy of the directory, the church pastor, the Rev. B. B. Felder said.

Grifton Slates Fix-Up Sessions

GRIFTON — A community fix-up session has been planned for Saturday and Sunday afternoons at the Grifton town park, according to recreation officials.

The odd jobs that need repairing include: mending the wire around the tennis courts; patching the building roof; repair of the park benches and picnic tables.

Participants are asked to bring tools such as hammers, shovels or small cutting pliers if possible.

To Be Lecturer For Symposium

"Flower Arranging in Antique Containers" will be the subject of a lecture to be delivered by Mrs. Christina Heineman at the Third Tryon Palace Symposium in New Bern, March 7-9.

The Symposium, being sponsored by the Tryon Palace Commission and the Division of Continuing Education of East Carolina University in cooperation with the Tryon Palace Restoration and the N. C. Department of Archives and History, is featuring a program of knowledgeable speakers on the 18th century decorative arts.

To send plants or plant cuttings through the mail, invert cut ends or roots in a damp sponge. Insert in a plastic bag, tying the top so water cannot escape.

Don't Delay On Eye Cataracts

Don't be like Tom! Yet all of us are likely to develop cataracts in our eyes if we live to a ripe old age. So get the straight facts about eye surgery and quit losing more and more vision by delaying. Cataract surgery is painless and bloodless! And after a few days, you may even regain 20-20 vision!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
 Ph. D., M. D.
 Case P-588: Tom W., aged 56, has a wife in a sanitarium. "Tom faithfully calls on her every day," a mutual friend informed me.

their sight could easily have been saved. To be specific, a cataract is merely a cloudiness of the lens of your eye.

In certain ailments, like diabetes, cataracts may occur early, so beware! But in most instances, cataracts don't appear till middle age or later. And the sooner you let the eye surgeon operate on your eye, the more vision you will have afterwards!

Three years ago, if Tom had let the surgeon remove the milky lens of either eye, he might have been restored to normal (20-20) vision, so he could now drive a car and hold on to his job. This operation is bloodless, for you don't lose even ONE DROP of blood, so will you cataract victims please quit worrying on

Ground Broken For Building
 The Shelmerdine Missionary Baptist Church held groundbreaking ceremonies Sunday for a new building. The new structure will have a seating capacity of 300 persons with a baptistry and classroom space. The building will be constructed of concrete blocks with a brick finish. The church membership increased by 50 people in 1970 with an average Sunday School attendance of 110. Pastor of the church is Travis Smith.

 A declarer's best friend is a long suit that he can run in the fulfillment of a no trump contract. Discarding can turn into agony for a defender, as West learned to his despair in today's hand.
 West opened the nine of hearts in the hope that his lead would be least apt to confer any advantage on declarer. South won in his hand with the king and a survey of the combined assets revealed that 11 top tricks were available with two chances for a 12th. The diamonds might divide three-three and, if they didn't, then he could fall back on the club finesse as a last resort.
 Rather than commit himself too early in the play, declarer decided to run his long suit first and observe his opponents' discards. At trick two, he cashed North's king the score?

 Besides, it can be done by local injection, just as the dental surgeon "freezes" the nerves in your jaw.

Within a few days, your eyeball again looks normal, except that milky lens is now gone.

As a result, you can't bring the light rays to a focus on the retina without wearing eyeglasses.

But with properly fitted spectacles, you can often read the fine print of a newspaper or even thread a needle and sew.

The amount of vision you regain depends on how much the retina has atrophied from disuse during the months (or years) you have procrastinated about your eye surgery.

Remember, an idle muscle shrinks and an unused organ tends to shrivel or atrophy.

The delicate film part of the eye (retina) likewise the eyeball to stimulate the retina!

Thus, the longer you delay getting that cloudy lens removed, the less vision you will have even after your eye surgery!

Never stall around about a cataract operation!
 It is wise to have both cataracts taken out, usually at different times.

But many patients who are 70 or 80, are so delighted to have good vision after the first eye is operated upon, that they may not come back to have the other cataract removed.

Pres. Thieu's Invasion Threat Believed Psychological Warfare

BY ROBERT TUCKMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — There is growing belief in Saigon that President Nguyen Van Thieu is waging a psychological war against North Vietnam—and that he himself doesn't believe all that he is saying.

Many observers feel that Thieu did not mean it when he threatened in the past few days to invade North Vietnam. They think he hopes with the threats and veiled threats to throw Hanoi into some panic and undoubtedly into anger.

More importantly, by talking about invading North Vietnam, Thieu is forcing Hanoi's generals to commit sizable numbers of troops to defending their coastline and the "invasion route" just above the demilitarized zone. These are troops which Hanoi could well use in Laos, Cambodia or South Vietnam.

Hanoi is undoubtedly any Thieu's threats. Broadcast after broadcast by Hanoi Radio berates the "traitor Thieu" and charges that Thieu "is only a puppet obeying the voice of his U.S. masters."

American officials publicly dissociate themselves from Thieu's talk of a "march on the north." But they watch the president's ploy with private pleasure.

Thieu knows well that he could not send South Vietnamese troops marching into North Vietnam without U.S. support. President Nixon told his news conference Thursday night no plan for such support is under consideration in Washington or has been proposed to him by Thieu.

At the same time, Nixon presumably would like Thieu to keep on talking—but only talking—about invading North Vietnam for the panic effect it might have on Hanoi.

Thieu is also moving against the Communists on another front. Somewhat suddenly, he is now claiming that his government controls 99.8 per cent of the people of South Vietnam. He said Wednesday that all but 36,000 of the 17,910,000 people in the country are under government control.

Thieu does not really believe this himself. No government, however popular, would be able to get that sort of unanimity among the Vietnamese, who can form a political party as soon as they get a dozen people together.

But Thieu's object here is to stake out Saigon's claims ahead of the Viet Cong in case there is a negotiated settlement of the war.

Thieu fears that under such a settlement, or if there is a "standstill cease-fire" as President Nixon proposed last year, the Viet Cong would claim they control more people or territory than is actually their's.

Thieu also is not forgetting this is the presidential election year. He has not yet announced his candidacy for re-election in the balloting Oct. 3, but there is no doubt that he is running hard.

One Injured In Truck-Car Crash

One person was reported injured and an estimated $1,800 property damage resulted from an 11:05 a.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Evans Streets yesterday.

Drivers of the vehicles involved in the mishap were identified as James Arthur Battle, of Route 2, Bailey and Wesley Roland Murphy of Kinston.

Officers, who set damage to the truck operated by Battle at $300, said an estimated $1,500 damage resulted to the Murphy car.

Murphy, who was reported injured, was chared with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety while Battle was charged with failing to yield the right of way.

Black Panther Party Is Split

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — In a barrage of recrimination, the Black Panther party is splitting into two factions, one headed by Huey P. Newton and David Hilliard, the other by exile Eldridge Cleaver.

The extent of the rift in the militant organization became clear Thursday when Cleaver said in a telephone interview from Algiers that he is expelling Hilliard, party chief of staff, and Newton, defense minister.

Cleaver, in Algiers to avoid returning to a California prison for parole violation, is Panther information minister. Newton co-founded the organization with Bobby Seale in October 1966.

Cleaver said his party faction would have headquarters in New York. The party's regular national headquarters is in Oakland.

Hilliard heard a tape of Cleaver's interview with two newsmen from KSN Radio in San Francisco and said he had no immediate comment.

The Cleaver interview followed publication in the weekly official party newspaper, The Black Panther, of an article describing him as a "male chauvinist" who was holding his wife, Kathleen, in Algeria against her will.

Mrs. Cleaver joined her husband in the radio telephone interview and said the article, signed by Elaine Brown, deputy minister of information for the Southern California chapter, "is patently absurd."

Mrs. Cleaver said there had been a split in the Black Panther party into a left and right wing. She said Hilliard and Newton represented the right wing and "they distort the issues and have abandoned Black Panther party principles."

Cleaver reiterated in the interview accusations he made Thursday in a videotape shown at the New York Panthers' Bronx headquarters. He said Newton had made himself "a tool in the hands of David Hilliard" last month by expelling the "New York 21" Panthers, 13 of whom are on trial for bomb conspiracy, and Elmer "Geronimo" Pratt of the Los Angeles Panthers.

The rift between Cleaver and Newton over the purges surfaced last Friday in a San Francisco television show with Cleaver speaking by phone from Algiers and Newton appearing in person.

At that time Newton said the dispute would be brought before the party's central committee. No further action has been announced.

Tighter Rein For Charter Flight Role

By VERN HAUGLAND
AP Aviation Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe has ordered tighter control over small charter-flight operations, placing them under the same type federal scrutiny faced by commercial airlines.

Acting in the wake of a study of the Wichita State football charter crash in Colorado which killed 31 persons last October, Volpe ordered the Federal Aviation Administration Thursday to begin a closer watch of all air-taxi charter operations.

As a first step, FAA field offices will begin continuous surveillance of all jetliners and larger prop planes operated by small chartering outfits.

The need, FAA officials said, is closer regulation of the small independent operators as distinguished from supplemental and regularly scheduled airlines.

Comprehensive guidelines are being developed and will be issued to all FAA field offices in April, officials said.

In the past, the FAA said, many charter operators have used various dodges to evade federal regulation. By claiming their operations were not for compensation or hire in private carriage, they avoided the FAA's broad rules for that category.

As a result the FAA has had to determine in each case whether an operation is for compensation or hire.

"We feel the time has come for the FAA to no longer concern itself with making economic determinations so that we can concentrate on our primary concern—safety," the FAA said.

The FAA is preparing a truth-in-leasing clause that would alert potential charter customers like colleges to the federal guidelines for flights in large planes and prevent charter groups from unwittingly taking on liability as the legal operator of a flight.

It also plans to require operators of such aircraft to file flight plans to help in tracking down illegal charter operations.

In directing the FAA to take a closer look at charter operations, Volpe adopted many of the recommendations in the study.

On The March

RALEIGH (AP) — A subcommittee of the long-suffering Joint Appropriations Committee is on the march.

In the next few weeks they are going to be paying surprise visits to various state offices and agencies.

Rep. Roberts Jernigan, D-Hertford, co-chairman of the subcommittee, said, "It'll be a good thing for the General Assembly to get out and find out first hand what's going on."

The other co-chairman, Sen. John J. Church, D-Vance, came more to the point. "We'd like to find out what they're doing," he said, "what their standards are, whether they keep a sloppy desk, whether everyone's out for coffee, whether they all get to work on time," he said.

Legislature Seems More Cognizant Of N.C. Needs

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — On the eve of the 1971 legislative session, House Speaker Phil Godwin predicted that the current General Assembly would be more cognizant than ever of the needs of North Carolinians.

Seven weeks later, the legislature is faced with those needs — abortion reform, taxation, wages, voting age, reapportionment, plus the normal bills dealing with local governments across the state.

Decisions on these issues made in legislative floor debates and committee meetings could be all-important to you, the individual man — and woman — on the street.

The State Supreme Court's ruling that a local option one per cent sales tax in 25 counties was unconstitutional threw an unexpected burden on the legislators in the first month of the session, and diverted attention from other taxes, including levies on tobacco products and soft drinks.

Legislation already approved by the Senate would re-enact an updated version of the local option sales tax, amended to allow county commissioners to impose a tax with or without a vote of the people. The bill applies statewide, not just for those counties that approved the now-outlawed sales tax in 1969.

Cigarette and soft-drink taxes have not been ignored, and both are expected to come into focus later in the session. Bills repealing, lowering or increasing the specialty taxes have been introduced in both houses.

In another surprising move, the House reached quick accord on abortion reform and passed on to the Senate a bill that would permit a woman less than 12 weeks pregnant to obtain abortions through a written request to her physician.

The bill also provides for legal abortion in pregnancies more than 12 weeks old where the doctor certifies that the mother's health is in danger or that there is substantial risks the child will be born "with grave physical or mental defects."

And for the state's young adults, the early days of the session produced a rash of bills that would lower the voting age and the age of majority.

Some proposals, mostly by Democrats, would reduce to 18 the age for federal elections — in line with U.S. Supreme Court rulings — while holding at 21 the minimum age for state elections. One Republican plan would set the voting age at 18 in both state and federal elections, thus effectively lowering to 18 the age for holding public state office.

Consideration of the minimum voting age bills so far has been mostly behind the scenes. Floor debates are expected in the coming weeks.

One bill that would affect an estimated 50,000 persons this summer sailed through a House committee without a dissenting vote but still faces discussion and a vote on the floor. The bill would raise the state minimum wage from $1.25 an hour to $1.45 on July 1 and then to $1.60 an hour one year later.

An individual's right to drink mixed alcoholic beverages in public is before the legislature now, with the first major test of this year's liquor by the drink legislation scheduled to come next week in House committee action.

The current proposal would replace the brown bagging law with legal provisions for Class A restaurants capable of seating 50 persons to serve mixed drinks — so long as the restaurant's income from food exceeds its revenue from alcoholic beverages.

Also in the public realm are numerous bills, as yet undecided, designed to give North Carolina a legal footing in combating pornography and obscenity. The bills were drafted with the help of the attorney general's office in an effort to avoid complications that might bring on court reversal.

The bills would apply strict regulations or outright prohibitions to night clubs movies or theatrical productions, but none would prohibit display of the female breast before consenting adults.

Haitians Feel Visitors Are All Fabulously Rich

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — I am hungry. Give me money."

The little boy speaks what may be the only English words he knows. If his target finds the pleading brown eyes irresistible, the visitor may regret it.

A carelessly bestowed dime or quarter can bring swarms of other youngsters with outstretched hands.

Many in Haiti are, in fact, hungry.

Many of the subjects of President for Life Francois Duvalier are undernourished, underclothed, underemployed and illiterate.

To them, all visiting foreigners are fabulously rich Americans.

To the casual tourist, Haiti is a land of dancing, rhythm-loving, laughing people. But a care-acteristics, too.

Outsiders often marvel at what seems the stoic patience of the Haitians. The little nation of five million, of whom only about 75,000 can read and write, has seen many bloody upheavals, mostly at the top of the political and social ladder.

Things always have been bad. It has always been the population's lot to be poor.

Theoretically schooling is compulsory.

Government statements say the nation must have education so it can have a better life.

Eager questions to a visitor, often in laboriously pronounced English, indicate an almost painful thirst for information.

In the world's first black republic, it is wholly possible, say outside observers, that one day Haiti will erupt from below in a boiling over of long-pentup grievances.

In urban areas the per capita income is about $250 a year. In rural areas most of the population is on a no-money economy. The people are severely short of protein.

In a filling station there is a ramshackle "publique," a taxi jammed with humanity, it had stopped for gasoline selling at 65 cents a gallon. The driver asks for exactly 60 cents' worth. He can't afford more until he collects fares at 12 cents a head.

You read a government brochure describing Duvalierville. The government really doesn't want you to see it, but just to take its word that Duvalierville exists.

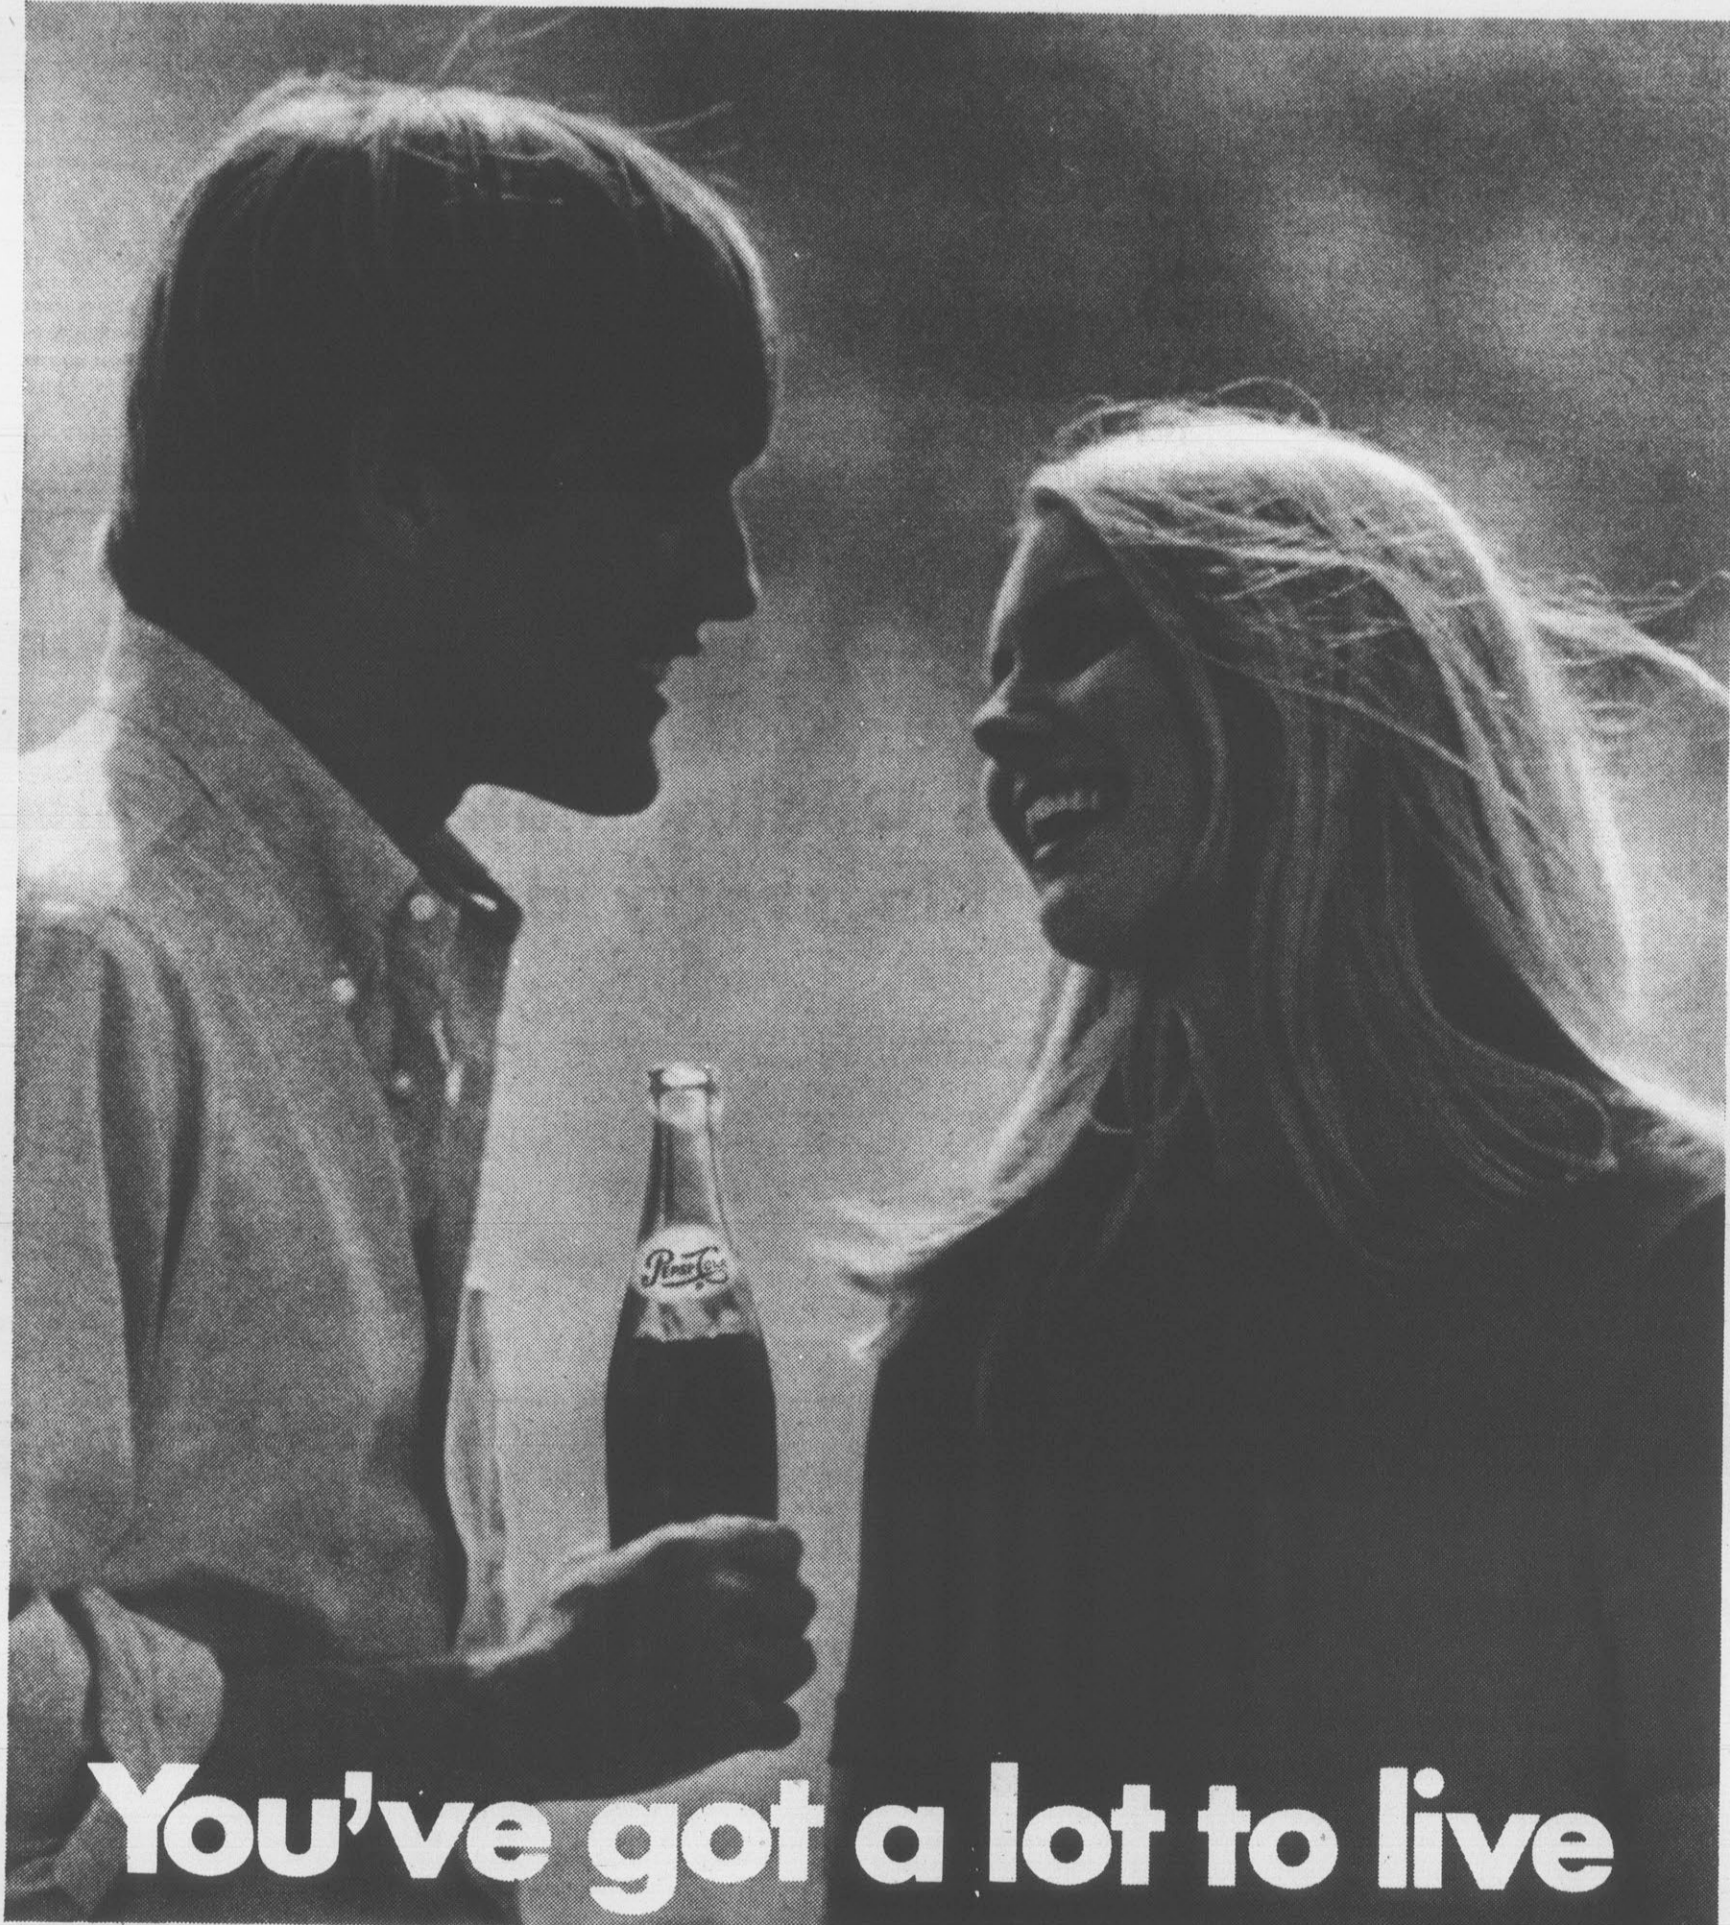

The brochure calls it a "model workers' and resort city." It speaks glowingly of shopping center, sanitary low-cost housing, theaters, the works. U.S. money helped build it.

President Duvalier has built many monuments to himself and even to his wife. "Simone Duvalier City", north of Port au Prince, is named for her.

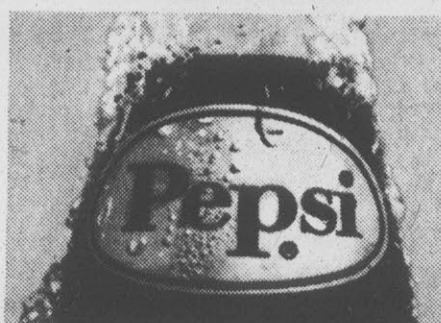

JUPITER SPACECRAFT — J. V. Foster, right, director of the development of the Pioneer program, points out details of a pioneer spacecraft on a model in Los Angeles. Pioneers F and G are scheduled to be launched in 1972 and 1973 on missions to Jupiter which will last about two years each. After a trip of more than half a billion miles to Jupiter, each craft will spend about a week swinging around the planet. Left is R. S. Kramer, director of the planetary program for TRW Systems which is building the craft. (AP Wirephoto)
