Mixed Drink Bill Dead For Session; 59-48 'No' In House

WATCHING DEFEAT — Two strong backers of liquor by the drink looked glum during Tuesday's roll call vote in the house. The two are Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, (left) and Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe (upper right), sponsor of the bill. (AP Wirephoto)

RALEIGH (AP) — The statewide liquor-by-the-drink issue is dead for the 1971 legislative session.

The House defeated a mixed drink measure Tuesday by the decisive margin of 59 to 48 after more than two and one-half hours of torrid debate and after several amendments were adopted and others defeated.

Observers had figured the bill's foes would win but they thought the division was closer than it turned out to be.

The North Carolina Travel Council strongly supported the bill which would have permitted elections in counties and cities having ABC liquor stores on the question of legalizing sale of mixed alcoholic beverages in Class A restaurants having 36 or more seats.

The opponents of the bill contended it would increase consumption of liquor in North Carolina although its supporters argued that it would impose more controls on drinking.

"The first and only real issue here is liquor," asserted Rep. R. C. Soles, D-Columbus, in opposing the bill. "This bill is an avenue to get more liquor into the state of North Carolina and into the stomachs and bloodstreams of the citizens of North Carolina."

"It imposes further control beyond the system we now have," replied Rep. Howard Twiggs, D-Wake. He pointed out that under present laws, restaurants can permit brown bagging 168 hours a week while the mixed drink bill would have allowed sales only 47 hours a week.

Rep. Perry Martin told the House he had voted for liquor by the drink two years ago but that he was opposing it this time.

"This is a big money bill," he said, "...and it is for the big liquor interests... It is a bill for those who are wealthy and can afford to drink the most."

Martin argued that the people of North Carolina are overwhelmingly against liquor by the drink.

"It is my feeling this bill if passed will open more avenues. We will have more drinking and we will have more alcoholics and it will require more money to take care of them," said Rep. C. W. Phillips.

Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, chairman of the Alcoholic Beverages Control Committee which approved the bill last week, described the bill as a "progressive step in an attempt to solve a problem that has been unsolvable in the past.

Rep. High Campbell, D-Mecklenburg, argued that the bill would cut down on liquor consumption by substituting liquor by the drink for liquor by the bottle.

But Rep. Sam Bundy, D-Pitt, replied that "just as surely as night follows day this (bill) will lead to open bars."

Eight Are Arrested Here In Drug Traffic Roundup

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Eight individuals were taken into custody here last night by a team of state, county and city law enforcement officers as part of a crackdown on the illegal drug traffic in Pitt, Beaufort, Wilson, Nash and Edgecombe Counties.

By the time a special team of State Bureau of Investigation agents arrived in Greenville to begin the series of local raids, 23 persons had already been jailed as the result of arrests made in the Tarboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson and Washington areas.

According to Clyde D. Fentress, supervisor for the SBI in the 22 county Northeastern area, agents held 25 warrants for 16 Greenville area residents when they arrived to begin the local raids.

The warrants, Fentress said, were based on investigations by the bureau's undercover agents since October. During those investigations, Fentress explained, the narcotics investigators paid from $6 to $100 for individual purchases of drugs that included heroin, marijuana, peyote, LSD, mescaline and cocaine.

By dawn today, only five of the individuals the SBI held warrants for had been picked up in Greenville, although three other persons had been charged with narcotics law violations as the result of the raids.

John Clayton Smith Jr., 20, of Raleigh, was chared by members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department with illegal possession of a hypodermic syringe and illegal possession of narcotic drugs following a raid on a house a mile from the City Limits on the Pactolus Highway.

Lucien MacLeod Koonce, 18, of 609 East 11th St. and Susan Athlene Driver, 19 of Rocky Mount, were taken into custody when officers, searching for others they held warrants for, found them in a Jarvis Street house. Koonce and Miss Driver were charged with illegal possession of narcotic drugs.

Others taken into custody last night on warrants stemming from the undercover investigations included: Arthur Michael Driscoll, 21 of 1110B Cotanche St.; David Dowling Baker, 22 of 113 Jarvis St.; Delvin Roy Minton, 18 of Route 7, Greenville; James Grantham Mann, 19 of 330 Aycock Dorm, and Robert Giesler, 207 York Rd.

Driscoll, Baker, Minton and Giesler were charged with the illegal sale of narcotic drugs while Mann was chared with the illegal sale of stimulant drugs.

Bonds for those charged with the illegal sale of narcotics and stimulant drugs has been set at $2,500 each. If convicted, they could receive sentences of from two to five years in prison, $1,000 fines, or both.

Bonds for Miss Driver and Koonce were set at $2,500 each while bond for Smith was placed at $5,000.

Between 15 and 20 officers took part in the roundup in

Board Told Site Choice Due Soon

Hospital Officers Re-Elected

All officers of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board were unanimously re-elected yesterday, with the exception of J. Ed Waldrop, treasurer, who retired from the Board with 12 years' service.

Waldrop, a Greenville businessman, has served a maximum of two six-year terms. Other trustees praised him as a man of rare insight and ability who has worked untiringly to improve medical services for Pitt Countians.

J. H. Moye of Greenville was elected treasurer and Kenneth Dews of Winterville was made his assistant. Officers re-elected were Woodrow W. Wooten of Falkland, chairman; Wilton R. Duke of Farmville, vice chairman; and Delton Perry of Bethel, secretary.

The executive committee remained intact. It is composed of Wooten, Duke, Perry, and Dews, Eugene James of Belvoir, Dr. D. H. Tucker of Greenville, and Ed N. Warren of Greenville.

Finance committee members are Wooten, Moye, Keith Brunson, W. R. Johnson, and W. F. Tyson. The auditing committee is composed of Mack Edwards of Ayden, Brunson, James and Glenn Hardee of Grimesland.

On the building and grounds committee are G. R. Gurganus of Bel Arthur, chairman; Ottis Stokes of Stokestown, Edward Switzer of Pactolus and Roscoe Bell of Fountain.

Retained for second six-year terms were Duke, Perry, Switzer, and W. F. Tyson of Stokes, all of whom had completed first terms.

The trustees were told that a decision on a site for the new hospital should be made within a week. Site committee members are now discussing price and other final arrangements with owners of the two potential sites.

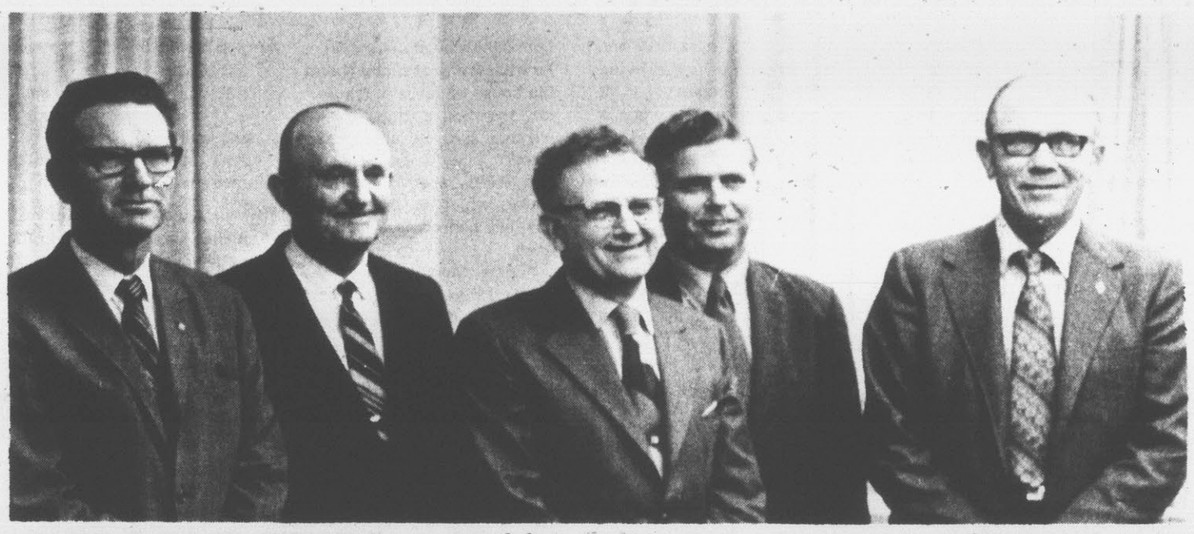

One is located adjacent to the present hospital land and fronts on the state road that runs past the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Home. The other is on the Farmville Highway about a half mile from the Greenville city limits.

"Once this decision is made about the only thing that would change our minds is if deep soil borings were to prove that our choice had been an unwise one. Otherwise we will simply try to spend the taxpayers' money as wisely as we can," Hospital Board chairman W.W. Wooten said.

The trustees asked the Commissioners for a five-cent levy for their budget for July 1, 1971 to June 30, 1972. They said they feel that this large amount is necessary due to rising costs plus the precarious situation the hospital is in regard to Medicaid payments.

They also asked that $20,000 be transferred from county funds to the hospital operating fund.

Dr. Joul Ja Kim Song, physician anesthesiologist who began practicing here about two weeks ago, was approved for minor medical privileges. Also approved were minor privileges for Dr. Philip Coleman, who will be attending in the emergency room every other weekend. He has worked one weekend so far.

Fuller Files For Reelection

Dr. Frank Fuller, Chairman of the Department of Counselor Education in the School of Education, at ECU, today became the first incumbent City Councilman to file for reelection.

Now serving in his second term as a councilman, the professor this morning filed with City Clerk William N. Moore as a candidate for the May 4 municipal elections.

A native of Providence, Rhode Island, Dr. Fuller has spent more years in Greenville than any other one place, having been a resident here since 1949.

A veteran of World War H, Dr. Fuller was in the Army from 1942 to 1945. He received the B.S. degree from Aurora College, Illinois, and the master and doctorate degrees from George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

His teaching experience has included positions in high schools in Washington, D. C., Brandywine, Maryland, and at George Washington University before coming to East Carolina University in 1949.

A member of St. Peter's Catholic Church in Greenville, Dr. Fuller has served on boards of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Raleigh. In his field, education, he has published a number of articles and reports dealing with education, career planning, and career development.

Currently, he is chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the North Carolina Association of Educators; chairman of the Legislative Committee, N. C. Personnel and Guidance Association; a member of the Resolutions Committee, National Education Association; and a member of the Senate, American Personnel and Guidance Association.

Dr. Fuller is a lecturer, and has been guest speaker at many high school graduations in eastern North Carolina. Recently he served as panel

Church Group May Seek New Boys Club Building

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

An unexpected offer from a delegation representing Hooker Memorial Christian Church may result in an additional building for the Greenville Boys' Club.

Billy S. Tedder, Winton Hill and Durward Harris, representing the church, announced yesterday at the monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Boys' Club that initial plans are being formulated to get a Boys' Club building in the eastern part of Greenville.

"We are trying to organize the churches in East Greenville," Tedder commented. "We want to get property, to build a building. At least we're going to give it a try. The church (Hooker Memorial) has already agreed to put something in the budget for the Boys' Club."

Harris asked the board members of the Boys' Club if they would accept the idea of a second unit of the Greenville Boys' Club. "If you accept the idea, we'd like a letter from the board giving in details your goal for a building," Harris remarked, noting the church would need to know the size and composition of such a facility so that they could plan accordingly.

Board members unanimously passed a motion officially accepting the proposal put forward by the Hooker Memorial Church delegation, directing the board president, Dr. M. W. Aldridge, and the Executive Director, J. Richard Ullom, to prepare and forward the necessary document of acceptance. Members also expressed their appreciation of the unexpected offer to plan for a new Boys' Club building.

Further plans for an air show were discussed by Julian Vainwright and R. W. Howard. Vainwright said that groundwork for a show of the scope and quality desired for the people of eastern North Carolina would require extensive planning and coordination.

For this reason, the originally planned date of April has been dropped, and attention is now being focused on holding the show in October.

Judson Blount, chairman of the Air Show Committee, recently visited in South Carolina making contacts with well known performers in this field. He was informed late September was the earliest date performers would be free to take part in a Greenville show.

To handle preparations for the air show, board members volunteered to head committees needed in planning. These are: Gate Committee, Henry Morris; Spectator Control, Dean James Mallory; Publicity, Jerry Raynor; Pre-Sale Tickets, Warren Whitehurst; Tickets at Gate Committee, William Glidewell; Concessions Committee, Gene Ward; Security Committee, Bill Glenn; Public Address System, W. C. Taylor, Jr., and Insurance Committee, Don McGlohon.

Judson Blount, as chairman of the Air Show Committee, is

Hospital Curbs Visiting Hours

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Morning visiting hours at Pitt Memorial Hospital have been eliminated by action of the hospital trustees who met Tuesday afternoon.

Effective immediately, the 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. visiting hour will be done away with. According to Hospital Co-administrator Jack Richardson, this is a time when there is a high level of nursing activity, treatment, discharges and patient transfers, supply deliveries, and the like. The designated close family member of each patient will, as in the past, be provided with a blue card which will entitle him or her to come and go at will during the day, including the morning hours.

Beginning right away the two other visitors for each patient other than the blue card one will be asked to wear a lapel sticker giving his own name and the name of the person he wishes to visit. "We hope these visitor's passes will enable us to keep better track of visitors and will eliminate a person getting past the security men and running all over the hospital as some abusers of visiting privilegs now do," Richardson said. "With the use of these, nurses will have some idea of whether a person is entitled to be on a floor and will feel free to control visiting somewhat.

"We hope these measures will be effective and will eliminate the need for more security coverage to assure that present restrictions are followed more closely," he said.

The Trustees agreed that the public should be encouraged not to visit acquaintances and even

Social Security Benefits Are Increased For 26 Million People

By BILL NEIKIRK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has handed the Nixon administration a powerful catalyst to ignite the nation's economy, boosting Social Security benefits for 26 million Americans who usually spend instead of save.

The 10-per-cent across-the-board increase in benefits, retroactive to Jan. 1, will pump $3.6 billion into the pocketbooks of persons on limited incomes.

The increases were tied to a bill raising the national debt limit a record $35 billion to $430 billion.

As Prsident Nixon prepared to sign the measure today, the nation's economy was in a sluggish state, failing to respond to the fiscal and monetary policies he has put into effect.

The economic thrust of the Social Security bill will be far-reaching. The extra money, as one economic expert put it, "will go to a lot of people who have been forced to scrimp."

It will be June before the Social Security administration includes the new benefits in paychecks.

Nixon had asked Congress to increase Social Security benefits by 6 per cent, a proposal that would have put $2.1 billion into the hands of retired persons this year, the lawmakers opted for the 10-per cent hike.

The president proposed raising the income base on which taxes are paid from $7,800 to $9,000, an effective tax increase of $2.5 billion.

Congress, following advice of Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns and private economists, postponed the tax increase until next Jan. 1.

In 1970, consumer savings exceeded 7 per cent of disposable personal income, extremely high by historical standards. The administration has predicted the savings rate will come down as the economy expands. The Social Security rise could help lead the way.

The administration's economic target of a 9-per-cent increase in output of goods and services this year relies heavily on a sharp expansion in the money supply by the independent Federal Reserve Board.

The board has expressed reluctance to expand the money supply as fast as Nixon wants and has talked instead of new fiscal measure, such as the Social Security rise, to give the economy an additional thrust.

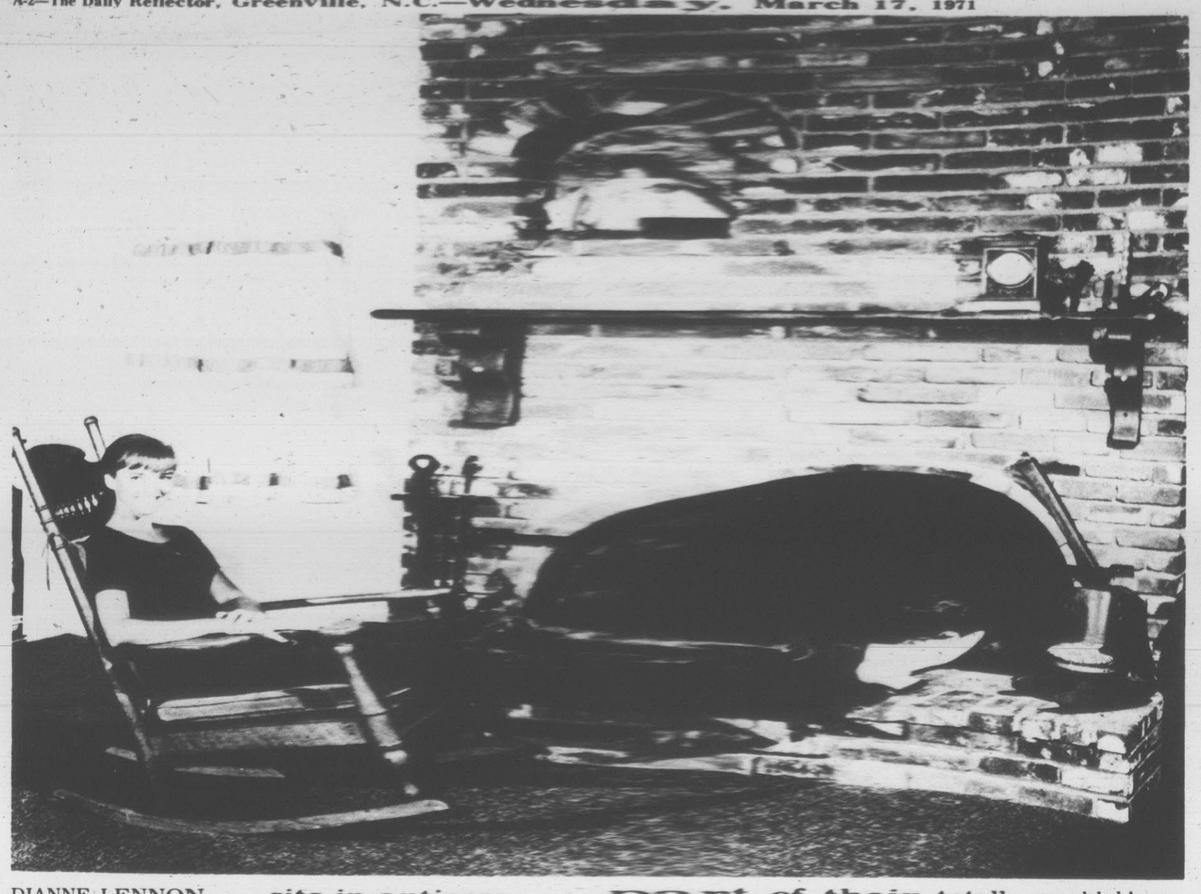

The benefit increase is viewed also as noninflationary because it comes at a time when the economy is not yet operating at its full potential. Unemployment is high and business is poor.

Under the bill, average payments for an individual were increased from $114 a month to $126. For a couple, the increase is from $199 to $219.

The maximum payment for a retiring worker was raised from $193.70 to $213.10. The minimum payment of $64 a month was increased to $70.40.

The boost, added to a 15-per cent increase made in January, goes to those receiving retirement, disability and family-survivor checks.

The bill removes the 4¼-percent interest ceiling on long-term government bonds for $10 billion of Treasury securities, a limitation the government has long sought to remove.

DIANNE LENNON . . . sits in antique rocking chair. The new fireplace is part of their totally remodeled house.

Rain On Roof Sounds Like A Cannon Firing

By DONALD MADDEN

VENICE, Calif. (WNS) — In an unpretentious little cottage in the old beach section of Venice, California, lives Dianne Lennon, of the singing Lennon sisters, with her husband, Dick Gass (a claims adjustor for the General Telephone Company), and their three children, Mary, seven, Dede, six, and Tom, five.

"Slowly but surely we're working on the house. Everything now is kind of in the process of being remodeled," says Dianne.

"We've just finished putting in forced-air heating. We've completely remodeled the kitchen, which had to have all new cabinets because they were so narrow that none of the plates would fit in them.

"A friend of ours built the brick fireplace in the living room for us, and we use it all the time. The rocking chair in front of the fireplace is an antique, and I rock in it every night. Everyone in the family likes it so much, we all take turns.

"We enclosed a long outdoor yard as an indoor playroom for the kids, so that even when it rains they have a place to run about. The kids planted corn in their sandbox, and it's actually growing.

"The play yard has alsonite wall panels and aluminum textured ceiling. We're going to have to change the ceiling in the play yard because when it rains the whole house sounds like cannons are going off.

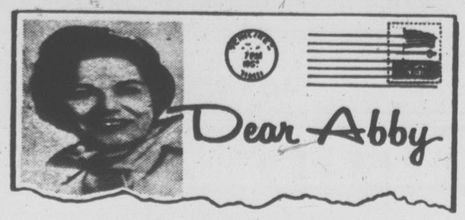

"It's a real 'homey' home, and we've really enjoyed it, but now we need more space. So what we're actually fixing the house up for is to trade it for the house that Dick's parents live in across the street. They'll move here, and we'll move into their house, which is larger and has four bedrooms, which we need.

"Even though we're not finished here yet, I'm going crazy with ideas for the other house.

"We were going to get all Spanish furniture for this house, but the new house will be all English. It's more in keeping with its style.

"My mom lives right down the street with the rest of our family, and my aunt and uncle live right near by, too, with all their kids. So, you might say, we practically own the neighborhood."

Friends Mistake Woman For Her Husband's Mother

By Abigail Van Buren

(c. 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Have you any words of comfort or advice for a woman who is the same age as her husband but is often mistaken for his mother?

That is my problem. My husband always has been extremely young-looking for his age. He has a trim athletic build, a full head of hair and a boyish grin.

I am naturally big boned and have always had a weight problem. [I'm a good cook and I love to eat.] My hair started to turn gray when I was in my late 20s, but friends say it's "becoming."

I have to dress matronly because they don't make smart youthful dresses in my size.

When my husband is with our 18-year-old daughter everyone thinks he is her "date." When he is with me they think he is with his mother. What can I do besides feel sorry for myself? ROCK OF AGES

DEAR ROCK: Enlist the help of TOPS, Weight-Watchers, or your friendly family physician plus the local health club, and get your figure down to where it should be. For every 20 pounds you lose you will look 10 years younger! And quit apologizing for your "matronly" wardrobe. If you can't find smart, youthful styles in your size, make some. Now, about your hair, Lady. Gray hair may be "becoming"—but it's not youthful. Don't wait until Monday to begin the self-improvement program. It's later than you think. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Something has been griping me for several months and I have decided to get it off my chest. My son and daughter in law live out of town, and they have an adorable family. The kiddies call me "Grandma" which I love, but I do not like it at all when my daughter in law calls me "Grandma." This I have told her several times, but she pays no attention.

I visited them over the Christmas holidays and before putting up the stockings on the fireplace my daughter in law asked me what she should put on my stocking. I said, "Put 'Mother' on it; it's my son's house and I am his mother."

So she said, "Well, it's also my house, and you are not my mother!" So I told her to just leave my stocking blank. And that is what she did. I felt very hurt. So how does a mother in law cope with a girl like that? MOTHER IN LAW

DEAR MOTHER IN LAW: It's not easy. But you must dislike your daughter in law for other reasons than what she calls you. Think it over.

DEAR ABBY: A letter signed "Pro and Con" was in your column. It was from a man who was having a mild disagreement with his wife over whether they should continue to bathe their adopted daughter, age 11, and their own son, age 9, together. He said the kids have separate bedrooms, but they undress in front of each other and have always bathed together, and from the standpoint of sex, they seem to ignore the difference.

You said, "As long as the children are not self-conscious about their bodies, do not make an issue of it; if you suggest that they 'hide,' they may become unduly curious, or get the idea that nudity is 'wrong' or dirty. As your daughter matures she will acquire modesty without being told."

Well, I am an 11-year-old girl and I know the facts of life. And if an 11-year-old girl isn't conscious of her body yet, someone should explain a few things to her.

I have a 9-year-old brother, and I sure would not care to bathe with him. Have you ever seen how dirty a 9-year-old boy can get? CONSCIOUS 11-YEAR-OLD

DEAR ABBY: I hope this will help "Heartbroken in New England" to understand:

Our only child, a son [22 years old] was killed five years ago. Since then he has had three babies named after him. We feel very grateful and honored to know that these friends loved our son so much they named their offspring after him. We are, STILL GRIEVING BUT HONORED

Cercle des Gourmettes Has Mostly French Membership

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) —In her own special way, the American wife of a Frenchman did her bit for the Women's Liberation movement back in 1929.

That was the year a Mme. Etlinger founded the Cercle des Gourmettes, a gastronomical society for women only, after hearing the president of a similar and chic dining club for men only say that women are not capable of emulating them.

The story was told this reporter by a current member of the Cercle, Simone Beck, co-author with Julia Child of "Mastering the Art of French Cooking," Vols. I and II.

Club Mainly French

In an interview here, Mme. Beck said Cercle membership remains mainly French, although four Americans, whom she did not identify, do belong.

Mme. Beck was here to promote Vol. II. In Portland, Ore., her cooking demonstrations, presented in cooperation with a local department store, raised several thousand dollars for the American Theater Co., a non-profit organization to establish a professional theater.

She also demonstrated French cookery at James Beard's Cooking Classes here and at Malvina Kinard's classes in Westport, Conn.

Founded School

After World War II, Mme. Beck and Louisette Bertholle, also a co-author on Vol. I & of the now-famous cookbook, founded and ran a cooking school in Paris for 12 years, and with Mrs. Child for an additional three years.

Even so, Mme. Beck remained active in the Cercle which, like its male counterpart, the Club des Cents, limits its membership. She added that meetings take place at 22 different sites and have included meals prepared by a great woman chef, one Aimee Cassiot.

"The food is extraordinary," she said, recalling some of them—including fish au gratin with crayfish, baked ham in a crust and pears with marrons glace, or chestnuts in syrup.

Despite its obvious elevated standards and snob appeal, the club's lunches are not as popular as one might expect.

"Some members never come," said Mme. Beck. "They're always on diets."

She said her first attempt at a French cookbook for U.S. consumers was suggested by Mme. Bertholle and encouraged by Mme. Beck's husband, manufacturer Jean Fischbacher. She produced 2,000 pages of recipes only before she was advised by a member of a famous U.S. publishing family that Americans wanted a story with each recipe. Her search for an American collaborator ended with an introduction to Julia Child by a mutual friend.

Why had it not occurred to her to write a French cookbook for the French? we asked.

"The French are not interested," she said, adding sardonically, "they know everything when they are born. They tell you 'My grandmother or my aunt doesn't make it (the recipe) the way you do.'"

Twice a student at the famous Paris Cordon Bleu school, Mme. Beck's career since then has made her a sort of Cordon Bleu school herself. In addition to her work at the Ecole des 3 Gourmandes, she has conducted cooking classes at her home in a Paris suburb. She said most of her students in France were Americans.

"For many years, wives and daughters of SHAPE came. Many of them now have classes of their own in America teaching French cooking," she added.

Mme. Beck's own recipes are too long and complicated to reproduce here, but one can learn interesting techniques from them. For instance, bake half a clean, empty eggshell in the center of a meringue-topped dessert to be served flaming. Sink the shell about halfway into the uncooked meringue before baking. At serving time, fill shell with about 2 tablespoons of high proof spirits or liqueur warmed only until alcohol vapors begin to rise. Immediately light the vapors. Wait until flames die before serving.

Morehead City Homes Tour Set For April

MOREHEAD CITY — The Sea and Sound Garden Club will sponsor a homes tour on April 21. Money made from the homes tour will be used to help in the landscaping of West Carteret High School.

The following homes will be open to the public between the hours of 2-6 p.m.:

Dr. and Mrs Darden Eure; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lockwood; Mr. and Mrs. Purcell Jones; and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harvell.

Tickets may be purchased from any club member or at any of the homes. Tickets will be $2.50 for the entire tour or $1 per home.

WOTM Meeting Held Thursday

Moose Haven Chairman Violet Saad was in charge of the program for the meeting of the Women of the Moose held Thursday night.

Senior Regent Beaulah Jordan gave a report on her trip to Greensboro to attend a meeting of the state WOTM in conjunction with the Loyal Order of the Moose Mid-Winter Conference.

The following candidates were enrolled: Mary Emma Maquire; Carole S. Tolar; Peggy E. Sawyer; Marie Ramsey; Jean M. Wells; Grace V. Shea; Anna Pellegrini; Victoria Pisani; and Sandy M. Winslow.

Mrs. Jordan announced that the Academy of Friendship meeting would be held in Hickory on May 2. The Greenville Chapter will try to charter a bus for the trip.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

Good Prospects For Tomorrow

Community assets come in varying forms, the most valued of these being people.

Athletic teams, corporations and certain governmental services recruit promising prospects; why not communities?

The thought crossed our mind Sunday on reading of the ECU School of Business student team which won top honors in the Emory University Intercollegiate Business Game, in Atlanta.

Nine top undergraduate ECU business majors took part in the game play which simulates three years of actual operations. Some 40 universities from throughout the United States and Canada were competing.

The game is described as giving the student first-hand exposure to the porblems of operating a business successfully and at a profit, and prepares the studnet to make the transition between the academic and business worlds.

It goes without saying that the outcome added a high degree of lustre to the ECU School of Business; but the nine undergraduates who performed so well in the business game are also stamped as future assets of the communities they choose to make their homes.

They would be prime prospects for any city or town that dreamed of bettering its economic life. In the sports world they bid heavily for Alcindors, McCauleys, Plunkets and Maraviches. The standouts in the collegiate field of business games are no less desireable.

Extra Hustle For No. 2 Job

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Tar Heel politicians who want to be no. 2 will have to try harder in '72.

That sums up the outlook right now for next year's race for lieutenant governor.

Candidates will need extra hustle because prospects are for a crowded field, a keener edge to competition, and higher cash requirements for a campaign.

Second place used to be the red-headed stepchild on the ballot. There were times when the office went looking for the man. Not any more; it has glamour status now. Party primaries are 14 months away, and a host of hopefuls already are busy wiggling antenna to pick up signals encouraging them to run.

State Democratic Chairman Gene Simmons took note of the heightened interest in the race at the recent Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner. He extended a facetious greeting to candidates for lieutenant governor — "all 95 of you."

That number could be an exaggeration. It is easy to start off a list of a dozen or so Democrats considering or being considered for the race with varying degrees of seriousness.

Alphabetically (for obvious reasons) one version of such a list would run like this:

One Dozen Prospects

Rep. Ike F. Andrews of Chatham, a Siler City attorney and five-term legislative veteran.

Rep. Allen Barbee of Nash, a farmer and businessman of Spring Hope, serving his sixth House term.

Sen. John J. Burney, Jr., of New Hanover, Wilmington attorney and former district solicitor, in this third Senate term.

Sen. Ashley Futrell of Beaufort, Washington newspaper editor and publisher.

Rep. Philip Godwin of Gates, an attorney from Gatesville and current House Speaker.

Mrs. Margaret S. Harper of Southport, the party's state vice chairman for women and a candidate for lieutenant governor last time around.

James B. Hunt of Wilson, a Democratic wheelhorse and chief architect of a party reorganization plan.

Rep. Samuel H. Johnson of Wake, Raleigh attorney and fourth-term House leader.

Mayor Howard Lee of Chapel Hill, a leader among blacks and state Democratic vice chairman for minorities.

Sen. Hector McGeachy, Jr., of Cumberland, Fayetteville attorney and five-term member of the Senate.

Sen. Herman Moore of Mecklenburg, a Charlotte businessman now in his fourth Senate term.

Roy G. Sowers, Jr., Sanford business executive and director of the state Conservation and Development department.

And Maybe More

The only thing certain about such a list is that: (1) it doesn't include everybody in speculation about the race; and (2) not everybody on the list will be in the running when the campaign starts.

Futhermore, the possibility is good that the winner is some dark horse still in the shadows who won't come forward for some months.

On a list by himself is Sen. Harry Bagnal of Forsyth, whose name is heard most frequently in talk about Republican candidates for lieutenant governor.

Why run for lieutenant governor, a post of modest proportions and power?

The prospective candidate may well answer about the office as the climber did about the mountain: "Because it's there." A variety of practical reasons make the state's second office attractive.

Capstone or Debut

There was a time when it was an honorarium, sought as the capstone to a career (usually legislative). It also has been a launching pad into public life, an initial landing for those ambitious to move up elsewhere.

Only rarely has it served as a house of passage to the governorship, either by death or subsequent election. Still, nothing attracts like success and the fact that Governor Bob Scott made the promotion inspires others to try the same route. In fact, Lieutenant Governor H. P. (Pat) Taylor, Jr., seems to have just that in mind.

Plans afoot to elevate the lieutenant governor's office to full-time status with salary and prestige to match may explain the uncommon pitch of interest. Governor Scott has recommended the step to the present legislature, but specific legislation has not been introduced.

Hardly Need Judges With Gavel And Gun

A legislative committee has wisely laid to rest the measure which would have permitted North Carolina jurists to pack pistols under their judicial robes.

If there is one thing North Carolina does not need it is judges sitting on the bench, armed with pistols in addition to their gavels.

Even if no judges elected to exercise the privilege contemplated under the proposal, the very fact that such a law was on the books would have been detrimental to public confidence in the courts. There is little more logic in permitting the judge to carry a pistol for his personal protection while in court than it would be to allow the same consideration for lawyers, witnesses or members of the jury.

If the courts of this state ever come to the place where judges are required to carry guns under their robes to protect their lives, the present judicial system will have long since outlived its usefulness.

Israel Offered U.S. Guarantee

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A tough, international commitment guaranteeing Israel's security after total withdrawal of Israeli forces from Egypt's Sinain Peninsula is now being hammered out at top echelons of the Nixon administration.

That commitment would not only place American soldiers on the strategic heights of Sharm El-Sheik but would pledge the use of American military power to prevent any possible Egyptian move across the Israeli-Egyptian border.

With final details subject to minor change, the commitment would take the form of a signed agreement between President Nixon and the government of Israel backed by a Congressional resolution underwriting the Presidential pledge. There is no question in high Administration quarters about Congressional willingness to pass such a resolution.

That would give the guarantee something less than the full force of a treaty — which many experts here think Israel really wants — but enough legal backing to remove all doubt about the U. S. commitments to guarantee Israel's territory.

Israel's main argument against total withdrawal from the Sinai is its claim that international guarantees "by their very substance cannot but be tenuous" (in the language of an Israeli embassy policy paper widely distributed here this week).

The Nixon administration is trying to give the lie to that claim by saying this: while the U. S. will not underwrite Israel's occupation of territories seized by war, it will guarantee its security against possible Arab aggression aimed at Israel proper.

The focal point of Israel's refusal to evacuate the Sinai under the plan originally drafted by Secretary of State William P. Rogers is Sharm El-Sheik, the promontory controlling the strategic Strait of Tiran, the entrance into the Gulf of Aqaba and Israel's port of Eilat.

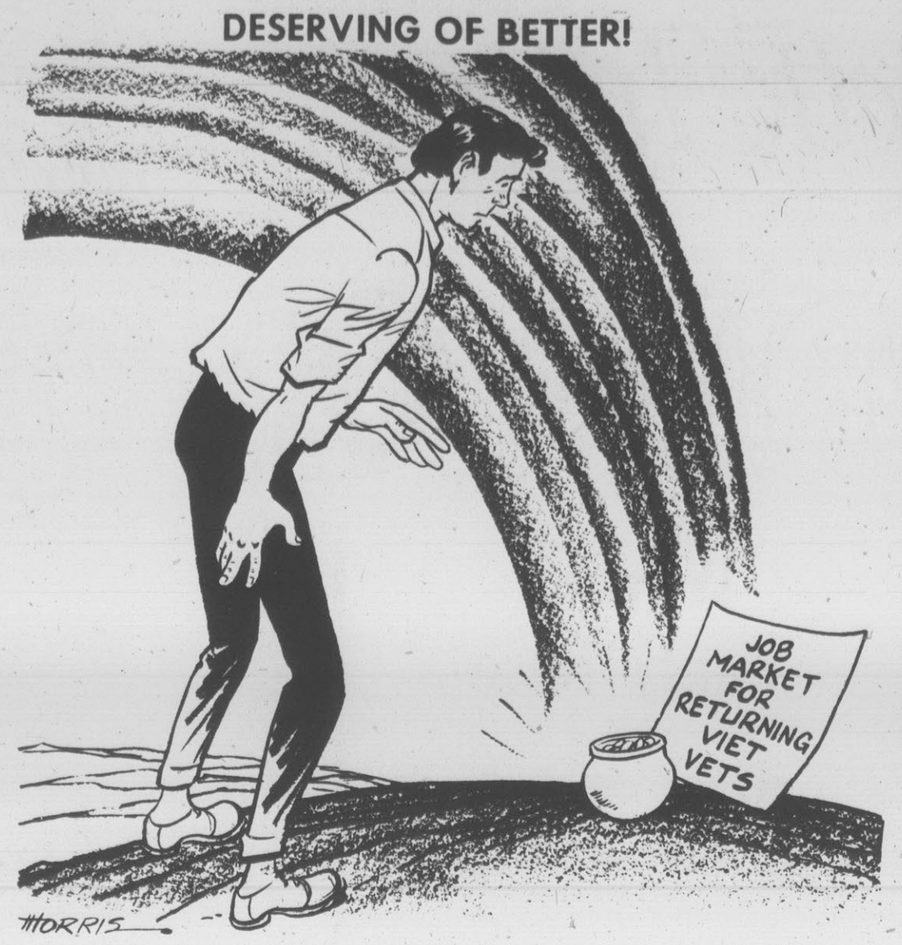

To put teeth into a U. S. guarantee of Israeli passage through the strait, the Nixon administration is prepared to put a small contingent of U. S. troops on Sharm El-Sheik and keep them there as long as needed. Private agreement has been reached with the others in the Big Four — the Russians, British, and French — to do the same, under the umbrella of the United Nations.

These contingents would be housed at Sharm El-Sheik itself, flying national flags and commanded by a non-Big Four military officers responsible to the UN Security Council. They could not be removed without a unanimous vote of the Security Council, where the U. S. has a permanent seat.

Thus, the plan being devised here is not remotely comparable to what Israel rightly calls the "mixed bag of international arrangements . . . which were to collapse upon their first real testing" following Israeli withdrawal from Sharm El-Sheik after its first military takeover of the Sinai in 1956. That plan had no built-in safety features and no U. S. presence. Nor did President Eisenhower offer Israel the assurance of a signed agreement pledging U. S. military intervention to enforce it.

DESERVING OF BETTER!

Acorn Became An Oak

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — In a moment of weakness, I allowed my wife to purchase an aquarium for my son.

The idea was that it would be an educational birthday present and bacause it sounded like something Sesame Street might go for, so I gave her the money.

It was a mistake that is apt to be with me a while. Like the next 50 years.

A couple of days after approving the purchase, I came home to find my wife poring over six large books, which she had bought. The books, highly technical affairs with small print and complicated looking graphs and diagrams, came to quite a few dollars.

"Listen," said my wife, her tone precluding my lectures on economy, "you just can't go out and buy an aquarium. This is a very big deal. You have to know what kind of marine life can live in the aquarium, what kind of fish eat other fish and what sort of ferns to put in there. This, my man, takes research."

A week later, I was sitting in the living room when my wife walked in the front door with a small sack filled with pamphlets telling me how to set up the acquarium which, at that monent, was in the trunk of the car.

"You're going to love this," she said. "The ferns and little things I got for inside the tank just about match the bedspread in Gavin's room. He is going to love this. I just know it."

The aquarium was enormous, maybe four feet long and more than a foot high. It came with its own set of chemical solutions, a complicated heating rod to keep the water at tropical temperature, a gadget that filled the water with air bubbles,

It took me 10 days to set it up. I then suggested that we pour in some tap water and buy a few goldfish and forget it. My wife was horrified. "Listen, pal, you've got to get serious about this. You can't just put any old water in there ... We've got to get some sea water."

Freshman In The Senate

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Neil Jones is 34 years old, the father of two children, and has a law practice in Wadesboro that is just beginning to bloom. He and his wife were going to build that dream house this summer but plans for that have been delayed.

Jones is also a politician now, representing the 24th District in the North Carolina Senate and he says:

"Some people don't realize it, but serving in the legislature is a helluva lot of work."

Jones, who used to practice law with Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, has picked up some of Taylor's colloquialisms. Serving in the Senate this session will cost Jones about $10,000.

"I run a one cow dairy," he says of his law practice, "and when that cow is gone it ain't putting out any milk."

How does a young man, just starting out in business or the practice of law, find time to enter politics and serve in the Tar Heel legislature? It's not easy and in most cases it's a financial sacrifice.

Jones practices law "frantically" on Monday morning. He has to keep some momentum going for his practice. He leaves for Raleigh Monday afternoon, checks into his motel, and heads for the State House for the Monday night session. He's in Raleigh until Friday about noon. He gets back into Wadesboro Friday about 2 p.m., practices law Friday afternoon, Saturday and part of the day Sunday.

Jones also has a wife and two children, ages six and nine, and being away from them at this stage, as he puts it, "Makes you want to die."

"We were going to build a house this summer," Jones said, "but I'm away so much now that we're going to have to postpone that. There's no question about it. Serving in the legislature is a personal and business sacrifice. I'm living off my own capital."

Jones didn't set out to be a State Senator. It just sort of happened to him. You know the bit. Friends came to him, asked him to run. He said no, then maybe...

All of this sounds like Jones is disenchanted with his role as a freshman in the North Carolina legislature. But that's wrong.

"Serving in the legislature is fascinating and I'm certainly not above it," he says. "I honor the opportunity. "Ive made some close friends up here. There are some talented people in this assembly."

Many freshman legislators were frustrated when they arrived in Raleigh. They were driven up the wall by the snail's pace of legislative business. But Jones expected it and respects it.

"The legislature is a lot like the courts," Jones says. "You can't run them like the railroad. The deliberative feature is one of the strengths of the legislature."

Jones says he would have been concerned if the legislature had dealt with substantial matters right off

Public Forum

(Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words)

To the Editor:

The action by the Greenville Utilities Commission approving for its own customers the retail rate schedule which Virginia Electric Power plans to use throughout its system is "interesting," as your editorial noted Sunday, March 12.

Does adoption of Vepco's proposed new and higher schedule mean that our Utilities Commission is merely recovering the higher wholesale price it will be paying for power? If that is all the Vepco rate does, then this is one of those truly rare coincidences — the one-in-a-million sort of thing you read about.

Or, could it be that the Vepco schedule will provide our system with a little something "extra"? It wouldn't be the first time that a retailer has refigured charges to his customers in a way that converts a wholesale cost increase into an extra profit.

Or, will the Vepco rates mean a real break for the Greenville customer? If the full abount of the cost increase is not being passed on, it would be a reason for joy.

One more question: Now that there is "exact equality" of rates between our local system and Vepco, will the quality of service also be made equal — less of the old on-and-off business?

There is comfort, of course, in knowing that the Greenville customer won't be charged one bit more than the highest amount Vepco can charge its customers without violating the laws of North Carolina. But some municipal systems can and do boast of savings to their customers.

Maybe the Greenville Utilities Commission will tell the customers just what is happening. Turn up the light, so to speak.

To the Editor:

I have been asked many times about my reference to "elections" in Raleigh concerning liquor by the drink in North Carolina, why I stated that word.

I don't consider it anything but "elections," although on a smaller scale. Our elected officials, we, the citizens voted in office do have their own elections (call it voting on a bill) or whatever you will. They have the authority to take any bill whether it will benefit our citizens or not and hold their own little "elections" regardless of the majority of our people wanting it or not.

Once again fire struck Greenville. Two fires in the western section of the city, early today, was estimated at a loss of $4,500. Both trucks of the fire department responded to the second alarm at the home of W. E. Tucker on Dickinson Avenue.

Members of the Greenville Rotary Club have a more complete understanding of what St. Patrick's day means to the Irish as a result of their program last night dealing with the celebration of St. Patrick's birthday. President J. R. Waldrop presided and the program was planned by Howard McGinnis, a member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College.

H. H. Duncan, today, announced his bid for alderman. He will oppose T. T. Hollingsworth.

Strength For Today

THEY WON

Give credit where credit is due. You just don't like a certain guy who throws back his head and when he passes you on the street gives you a feeble "hello" out of the side of his mouth. Many of us remember when a humble office employee named Albert Einstein worked out a formula that set the world on its head. Was Christopher Columbus hailed for his discovery of a new world? Not much. He probably died without knowing that he had made the greatest discovery of all times.

George Washington has rightly been called the Father of His Country. Yet when a resolution was introduced into Congress thanking him for his service to his country a considerable number refused to vote for such a resolution. When Lincoln uttered his famous Gettysburg Address the newspapers had nothing more to say than the fact that President Lincoln had made brief remarks.

Something more than seventy years ago many people were disgusted when Theodore Roosevelt, Governor of New York, set up a howl about many things that he liked and others that he did not like. The conclusion reached was: "Make him Vice President of the United States and he'll never be heard of again." He succeeded to the Presidency after the assassination of President McKinley, and in the two terms Theodore Roosevelt served as President he turned his country upside down and left it with principles established that made most people ask: "Why didn't we think of that before?"

Pasteur and his medical discoveries. The Wright Brothers and their achievement with an airplane.

Don't criticize until you've done a lot more thinking.

Washington Route Is Costlier

By ELMER ROESSNER

Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson, in warming up his audience for an address in Los Angeles last week, told a story about a little boy whose father had been laid off by an aerospace company, whose house had been destroyed by an earthquake and whose baby sister was hungry.

The lad wrote a letter to God, saying, "Dear God, will you please send me $100 so my parents can buy milk for my sister?"

For some reason the post office routed the letter to Washington and it wound up in the Labor Department. A secretary opened the letter and, touched, sent $5 to the boy.

He promptly wrote another letter:

"Dear God, thanks for the $5. It was not as much as I expected. Next time please don't route my requests through Washington."

Not Against Nixon Plan

Secretary Hodgson was not criticizing President Nixon's plan to share $5 billion of federal tax revenues with states and subdivisions with no strings attached.

He probably wouldn't dare.

Curiously, I made almost

the same point in discussing the no-strings plan last month. In a series of questions asked of Murray L. Weidenbaum, Assistant Treasury Secretary and reputed architect of the no-strings plan, I asked if "taking tax money from, say, Illinois and sending it to Washington to send back to Illinois would be wasteful, since money is almost always sweated in the process?"

Sweating money refers to any process which clips some of the value from money.

Shortly after the column in question appeared, I received a release addressed to financial and editorial writers containing a series of questions and answers about the no-strings.

That Round-Trip

Curiously, one question bore on that very point:

"Why not leave the money in the states and cities where it originates—why bother to arrange an expensive round trip to Washington for tax dollars?"

The answer: "Actually the Department of the Treasury has lower tax collection costs than any state or local government agency. Current collection costs are about 45 cents per $100 of income. Revenue sharing will not require any new federal agency or bureau. All that will be needed is a check-writing procedure, so the round-trip should be economical."

At that rate, it is obvious that the maximum economy would be for the Treasury to do all the taxing for the states, cities, counties and school districts. And when it comes to that point, the federal bureaucracy and the Congress will tell all states and subdivisions just how tax money is to be spent.

The initial $5 billion may not have any strings (although if it gets through Congress some may be attached), but future grants are very likely to be wrapped in string and red tape. Congress has demonstrated this in previous grants. Federally aided highways must be built in specific ways, with even a puzzling sign system prescribed; federally aided schools must be run in certain ways; welfare rules are dictated in Washington, and so on. There's a crack of the whip with every dollar sent from Washington.

Six Sitting In Judgment Of Lt. Calley

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — In a spartan room, six Army officers sat today in judgment of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., accused of My Lai murders.

"Think back to the events of 15 and 16 March 1968," the jurors were admonished Tuesday by Judge Reid Kennedy, "You and you alone have the independent responsibility of deciding the ultimate issue as to the guilt or innocence of Lt. Calley."

Thus, after four months of testimony, the fate of My Lai's most publicized figure was entrusted to men who have tasted battle and know the agonies of command.

They must weigh whether Calley is guilty of executing all or any of 102 villagers as charged or whether he is in the words of his attorney —the "pigeon" of the tragic assault. The lawyer called him "The lowest officer on the totem pole in this whole business."

Available to the court-martial jury are four possible verdicts on count: premeditated murder carrying a sentence of either life imprisonment or death; unpremeditated murder with life imprisonment the maximum; voluntary manslaughter with a maximum sentence of 10 years; and acquittal.

Four of the six men must concur in any guilty verdict under military law. Then they would retire again to fix a sentence.

The jurors were assigned separate quarters Monday at the start of final arguments, screened from all outside contact. It was the first time they had been sequestered in the trial which began Nov. 12.

Calley was 24 and a fledgling second lieutenant when he led Charlie Company's understrength, under-trained 1st Platoon on its search and destroy mission through My Lai, one of the hamlets believed to be the bastion of the 48th Viet Cong Battalion.

The assault force encountered no enemy troops on that March 16, 1968, only the old men, women and children of the village.

Of the 10 men charged originally as a result of the My Lai raid, Calley is the third to be tried—and the first for a capital offense.

Two sergeants were acquitted after brief courts-martial and charges were dropped in the cases of five remaining enlisted men.

Capt. Ernest Medina, Calley's company commander and the man the lieutenant says gave the order to kill civilians, is to be tried soon, charged with over-all responsibility for My Lai.

School Superintendents Asked To Find Hungry

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina superintendents have been asked to comb their schools to find the 200,000 needy children in the state which the U.S. Department of Agriculture says are going without free or reduced-price lunches.

"We know that the law says all schools must feed all qualified children, but this hasn't been the case," said Ralph Eaton, school food services director for the state Department of Public Instruction.

"Superintendents have come to the point of not having the money to do the job and have had to restrict the program to the neediest," Eaton told a meeting of local superintendents Tuesday. "We simply haven't been doing the job."

The state department released the USDA estimate of hungry children at the meeting.

In January, 1970, local school officials estimated they had as many as 42,000 school children going hungry. As more federal lunch money poured in, the number of Tar Heel children on the free and reduced-price lunch program jumped from 168,272 in January, 1970, to 365,989 in January, 1971.

Eaton said that last spring, USDA estimated that as many as 750,000 children between the ages of three and 17 in the state were inadequately fed.

"We're hitting close to 400,000 children a day in the program now and you can discount roughly 150,000 who are below school age," he said. "That leaves about 200,000 to go."

Eaton said the department has no state figures to back up the USDA estimates.

The announcement of the USDA figures coincided with an announcement that the federal government has loosened restrictions on funds for the lunch program, making it possible for the first time for many schools to feed additional children.

Eaton said approximately half of the state's schools have been made eligible for more federal funds under the change and under a liberalization of the lunchroom program enacted at the state level earlier this month by the state Board of Education.

$1 Billion Plum For U.S. Space Program

PHOENIX, Airz. (AP) — America can pluck a $1 billion plum for its space program if it is willing to provide rockets to launch European communications satellites.

That's the amount 16 European nations are willing to contribute to the United States' post-Apollo manned space effort if the thorny issue of the communications satellites can be solved.

State Department and national Aeronautics and Space Administration officials are working behnd the scenes to obtain approval to launch the payloads from two-thirds of the 77 members of Itelsat—the global commercial communications satellite system

Under Intelsat regulations, no member nation can launch a communications payload that would be harmful to the international consortium.

The issue was raised at a space shuttle conference Tuesday by Jean Bernard LeGarde of France, liaison officer for the European Space Conference.

He told several hundred scientists and engineers that the United States must give a positive answer by late April or early May when the conference nations are to meet at the ministerial level to consider participation in America's post-Apollo programs.

If the answer is no, LeGarde said, Europe probably will have to forget about sharing with the Americans on any major scale and concentrate on developing its own rocket, the Europa 3, for the communications satellites. He said the estimated cost to have the booster operational by 1978 is $600 million.

Despite these obvious differences, the Israeli government shows little interest so far in discussing this proposition seriously with the Nixon administration as part of a total Sinai withdrawal. Clearly, it would rather keep its conquered territory. The vast gulf now separating Washington and Jerusalem on the withdrawal question is, if anything, wider today than before Israel rejected UN Ambassador Gunnar Jarring's Feb. 8 appeal for withdrawal to the old border.

That reply asserted that "Israel will not withdraw to the pre-June 5, 1967, lines," an assertion that U. S. diplomats in Tel Aviv and here begged the Israelis not to include. What the Nixon administration wanted, at the very least, was that Israel tell Jarring what it was for and refrain from blocking the negotiating route by announcing an unequivocal negative.

Siege Enters Fifth Month

GUATEMALA (AP) — This country has entered the fifth month of a state of siege decreed in an attempt to fight subversive groups.

Violence has not subsided but President Carlos Arana Osorio's government shows strong signs of survival.

It is starting a series of development programs aimed at increasing industry, attracting foreign investment and stabilizing the economy.

Arana Osorio was elected in February 1970 with the support of political groups from center and right. He took office last July and promised to pacify the country at any cost.

Last April the West German ambassador, Count Karl von Spretti, was killed by the leftist Rebel Armed Forces when the government rejected its demands for his liberation. Since the state of siege began in November, with suspension of constitutional guarantees, there have been 10 political assassinations, several kidnapings and scores of other terrorist acts carried out by extremist groups from both left and right.

A 400-mile roundtrip to the sea followed. In bad weather, I noticed, the sea is the color of dollar bills. Finally, we were ready for the fish.

My wife, a few days later, called me at the office to tell me that the fish were in the tank and would I mind picking up a few ounces of shrimp eggs on the way home. Shrimp eggs? Yes. She had decided that sea horses would be nice because they are unusual.

Have you any idea how expensive shrimp eggs are, or how many it takes to fill up the belly of two small sea horses? Or how difficult it is to find shrimp eggs?

Finally, we were forced to give the horses to a friend.

But, yesterday, my wife called me at the office and asked "What would you think about having a piranha?"

Sowers Asks Petrochemical Plant Be Given Chance

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — Department of Conservation and Development Director Roy Sowers urged today that the company which is considering building a petrochemical plant on North Carolina's coast be given a chance "to prove its good faith."

"I can say without any equivocation that the governor and we at the Department of Conservation and Development are quite concerned that any plant which locates in any section of North Carolina be a clean and safe operation," Sowers said in a speech prepared for a Southern Pines civic club.

"I would hope that before any single group of private citizens gets itself out on a limb, or worked up into hysterical opposition to the possibility of a petrochemical plant along the Cape Fear, it would be willing to hear the facts in the case," he added.

Reports were made public last week that a multi-million dollar oil refinery was being planned for a site in Brunswick County.

The reports prompted an environmental group—GAASP, or Group Against Air and Stream Pollution—to announce plans for a protest and a publicity campaign against any refinery in the area.

Sowers said that at this point, his staff does not know what company wants to build the plant. He said his staff has been working with a consulting firm which is helping the company locate a refinery site.

"However, we have sent word to the company that North Carolina will insist on a clean operation," Sowers said. "We have made the very strong suggestion of public hearings and a complete review of the plans when finalized, and before any shovel of dirt is turned, by the Governor's advisory Committee on Economics and Environment."

He said these suggestions have been received "very favorably" by the consulting firm and its client.

Sowers said regardless of the amount of tax money the refinery would bring in or the jobs it would provide, the state would not want it "unless it can be demonstrated that every precaution possible will be taken to prevent water and air pollution.

Sowers remarks were similar to ones made by Gov. Bob Scott Monday.

Scott said that the Department of Conservation and Development has been working since November, 1969, "with a major consulting firm that is seeking a site for a substantial petrochemical refinery."

He said the company has optioned more than 7,000 acres of land in Brunswick County and that engineering studies are underway to determine if a refinery can economically be built there.

"It seems the rumor of a large 'oil refinery' has triggered fears of air and water pollution based on the situation found around old, outdated refinery facilities located in other parts of the nation," Scott said.

But he said company engineers have met with officials of the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Department of Water and Air Resources and "have learned of the strict new rules and regulations governing air and water emmissions."

Scott said he will ask the Governor's Committee on Economics and the Environment to review the company's plans and will ask the firm to hold public hearings in Wilmington.

"Meanwhile, let's don't let imaginary fears chase away a project which could very well have substantial benefits for the Wilmington area and the state, not only economically, but as a possible solution to this state's potentially critical long-range fuel shortage."

Dr. Jenkins To Address Group

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, will be featured speaker at a buffet breakfast for ECU alumni and friends during the annual convention of the North Carolina Association of Educators in Charlotte early next month.

The ECU president will address the group on recent developments at East Carolina. Other special guests from ECU will also be present.

Ayden Board Talks Utilities Rate Hike

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners met in a special session Monday night to discuss the electric rate increase proposed by Greenville Utilities but no decision was reached.

The new rates, to take effect about April 1, will be a 9.24 percent increase in wholesale rates to municipalities served by VEPCO.

The rate increase would be retroactive to July 1, 1970, which means the town of Ayden will have to pay about $14,000 in back payments. The payments will be made over a 12 month period.

The board of commissioners agreed to have a study made of Ayden's present rates.

"Since the increase is effective the first of April from Greenville, it seems that Ayden must increase its electrical rates to be effective with utility payments May 1," stated Don Russell, town clerk of Ayden.

Upon completion of the rate study, the board of commissioners will set new rates.

Don't block radiators or registers with furniture, if you want to get the most out of your home's heating system.

Thomas E. Dewey Dies In Florida Of Heart Attack

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Some gentle advice from his singing teacher turned Thomas E. Dewey from pursuit of a career on the concert stage to a life of law and Republican politics that included two bids for the presidency.

Dewey, who served three terms as governor of New York, died of a heart attack in his hotel room Tuesday as he was preparing to fly to Washington for a White House party. He was 68.

President Nixon praised Dewey as "a great patriot, a distinguished statesman and a fine human being" and said of the party, "The occasion is diminished beyond words for both Mrs. Nixon and me by his death."

Funeral arrangements were pending early today but the body was to be flown by private plane this afternoon to New York City.

Dewey was an aspiring young baritone just out of college in 1923 when he went to New York to study with the famous singing coach, Percy Rector Stephens.

Stephens eventually advised Dewey that he sang "too intelligently" to expect outstanding success. Music critic Deems Taylor put it a bit more critically when he observed Dewey's singing lacked feeling.

The lack of flair or flamboyance they found in his singing was seen by some of Dewey's Republican critics in later years as the reason for his failure to win the White House.

But Dewey began his public career as one of the toughest racket-busting prosecutors of his time. His rise started with his appointment as a special prosecutor in 1935 to conduct the Rackets Investigation in New York County.

He was elected district attorney of the county two years later. He obtained convictions against 72 of 73 defendants, shattering a powerful web of racketeers.

Best known among them was Charles "Lucky" Luciano. Another big name was James J. Hines, a Tammany district leader accused of being a protector of gangsters.

He drew national attention when he ran for governor New York in 1938, losing to Herbert H. Lehman by only 64,000 votes. A concerted effort was made to get him the Republican presidential nomination in 1940 but it went instead to Wendell Willkie.

Dewey ran for governor again in 1942 and won by an impressive margin. Under pressure from supporters he ran for and received the GOP presidential nomination in 1944 but it was an almost impossible fight.

When Dewey again received the GOP bid in 1948 his election seemed a sure thing. Truman was at a low ebb of popularity, and Henry Wallace, running as Progressive, and Strom Thurmond, as a States Rights Democrat, were considered sure to take important votes that would have gone to Truman.

Every public opinion poll said Dewey would win and his campaign abandoned an aggressive strategy to avoid giving serious offense to any large group of voters.

When early returns from the East Coast seemed to bear out the predictions, the Chicago Tribune came out in its first edition with the famous headline giving Dewey the victory. Truman took delight later in being photographed with it.

Although he immediately said he would never run for public office again, Dewey changed his mind and ran successfully for a third term as governor in 1950.

There was little in Dewey's background to suggest that he would achieve national stature.

He was born in Owosso, Mich., on March 24, 1902, the son of a weekly newspaper publisher and a distant relative of Adm. George Dewey, the hero of Manila Bay in the Spanish-American War.

He was a Boy Scout, sang in the Owosso Episcopal church choir and delivered papers and set type in his father's shop.

By the time he was 17 he had saved enough money to pay his way through his first year at the University of Michigan.

He led the college glee club for two years, won the Michigan state singing contest and placed third in a national contest. It was that success that led him to study voice in New York.

But even as he did, he enrolled in Columbia Law School to have an alternative occupation and the wisdom of that move was borne out when he received the verdict on his singing.

Dewey's wife, who was also a singer before their marriage, died last July. Surviving are two sons, Thomas E. Dewey Jr., of Chicago, and John Dewey of New York, and two grandchildren.

Medium, whites: 38½-39.

Small, whites: 30-31.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — The North Carolina hog market today is steady to 50 lower. Tops of 16.25-17.00 Whiteville; Kinston, New Bern, Benson, Newton Grove, Albertson, Lumberton; 15.75-16.25 Bethel; 15.50-16.00 Siler City, Denton; 17.00 Salisbury; 16.50 Mount Olive; 16.25 Greensboro.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market tone on heavy types is continued weak and steady on lighter weights. Heavy type ample with demand fair. Light type increasing, but barely adequate for a good demand. Heavy type at farm 12 cents per pound. Few higher based on previous commitment. Five to seven pounds at farm 6½ to 7 cents. Light type at farm 4 to 4½ cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market prices continued falling this morning as investors cashed in on recent profits.

At 11 a.m. the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 5.41 points at 909.23. Declining issues outnumbered advancing ones on the New York Stock Exchange by nearly 2 to 1.

Trading was moderately active, which kept the Big Board tape running 2 minutes late.

Analysts said the slide was an extension of the profit taking begun late Tuesday. It was not unexpected, they explained, since the Dow Jones average had risen sharply over the past two days.

On the New York Stock Exchange, Chrysler was down 1 to 27⅞. Santa Fe Industries was off ⅜ to 26⅜ after a 75,000-share sale, Goodyear, up ¼ to 31½; Standard Oil of New Jersey, down 1⅝ to 76¾; RCA, off ⅜ to 35⅝; and Kennecott, up ⅛ to 38⅞.

On the American Stock Exchange, Craig was up ⅜ to 8⅜; Instrument Systems, down ⅜ to 11; Loew's warrants, off ⅜ to 20⅛; Amrep, off 1½ to 37; and Itel, off ⅛ to 21⅛.

Drug Traffic . .

the Greenville area.

Fentress and Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said the roundup would continue today although they noted that it may be several days before all the warrants are served. Fourteen warrants charging 11 individuals with drug law violations still have to be served in the Greenville area.

Last night's raids netted one speeder.

Officers, while searching the Pactolus Highway dwelling where Smith was charged, observed a car pull into the lane leading to the home, then turn around and drive out as officers challenged the car to stop.

Sheriff Tyson gave chase and said speeds during the pursuit reached more than 100 miles per hour.

The driver of the car, Brenda A. Buck of Washington, was charged with speeding 80 miles per hour.

In the five-county area covered by the raids, the SBI held 75 warrants charging 48 individuals with drug law violations.

Included in the breakdown were 12 warrants charging seven individuals each in Tarboro and in Rocky Mount; eight warrants charging eight persons in Wilson, 15 warrants charging 10 persons in Washington, and 25 warrants charging 16 persons in Greenville.

Those arrested yesterday and last night included persons ranging in age from 17 to 35.

SBI director Charles Dunn, in Greenville this morning to talk with newsmen about the mass roundup, said the raids "has dramatized that we do have drugs and that no area of the state is immune."

He indicated that the arrests "may have the effect of slowing the drug traffic down some but will not stop it."

Dunn praised the cooperation between the SBI and local law enforcement agencies in the series of arrests, and termed the project "unique" in two respect.

First, he said, the raids in the five cities included the largest area involved in similar type roundups in the state, and secondly involved more individual violators.

Heroin accounted for a large portion of drugs purchased during the undercover investigation, Dunn noted. Local departments and the SBI contributed funds toward the purchase of the drugs.

The 5½ month investigation, the SBI director explained, was aimed at hitting "the pusher and suppliers" who sell drugs to high school and college students.

"We've seen here that the criminal is very mobile... very flexible. Law enforcement has to have the resources to compete," Dunn emphasized.

He explained that SBI agents alone last year worked more than 50,000 hours overtime "without overtime pay."

"You don't pay people to do the kind of job we are doing," he emphasized. "They have to be dedicated."

Annual Spring Show By ECU Camera Club Opens

The annual spring print show of the East Carolina University Camera Club is currently on display in the University Union Gallery.

The show, consisting of about 30 photographic prints, will run through March 26.

The works of seven members of the club are in the show: Dr. H. Daniel Stillwell, Dr. Robert Cramer, Dr. Ray L. Jones, Dr. Jack Thornton, Dr. Leland Gustafson, James Rees and Diane Rees.

In a special ceremony Tuesday afternoon, the Cameral Club presented a memorial placque in honor of the late Dr. Richard Spear of the School of Education to his widow, Louise Foster Spear, and Dr. James Batten, professor of education.

The placque will be hung in the Photographic laboratory of the Audio-Visual Department in the education building.

The ECU Camera Club includes faculty members who are interested in photography as an art form. Organized six years ago, the Club is affiliated with the Photographic Society of America.

It meets twice monthly for members' slide shows and evaluations, and frequently hosts guest speakers.

Dr. Stillwell, a member of the ECU geography faculty, is president of the club, and Dr. Jones, of the School of Business, is secretary-treasurer.

Hot Lunch For Elderly

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Social workers say many poor and elderly people suffer from malnutrition because it's too much trouble for them to prepare a hot meal in the silence of a lonely room.

One step toward a solution is being taken in Charlotte: a free hot lunch each weekday for about 50 persons who can come to the fellowship hall of a church. Meals are carried out to 10 other persons who are confined to their homes.

Before the experiment ends—it started in February and will run until the middle of August—participants will be given a complete medical evaluation to determine if their health has been improved by the regular hot lunches.

The $5,123 for the program came from the federal Office of Economic Opportunity.

The program has a side benefit—fellowship. While volunteers are setting the tables the elderly, some in their 80s, find new friends to break their loneliness as they have a glass of fruit juice, listen to hymns played on a piano, and sing along a little.

family in the hospital unless it is absolutely necessary. "Certainly if the person is going home in only a few days, it would be better to wait and visit him there," Richardson said. "It would be more considerate of him and other patients in the hospital to wait. This is especially true when the halls are crowded with extra beds. (There were 15 yesterday.) Those in the halls can have little rest or privacy at best and unlimited visiting only adds to their troubles."

"From now until the new hospital opens, we can't expect to have a better situation. If these limits are not sufficient, we will have to try stiffer deterrents to visiting. Of course, prohibiting all visiting is one possibility that some hospitals have had to resort to. We hope that this will not be necessary here," he said.

Attempted Safe Robbery Charged Boy

A 15-year old Greenville youth has been arested by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department following investigation of an attempted safe robbery Sunday night.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the juvenile is charged with breaking into Glisson Rebuilders on Rt. 5, Greenville and attempting to enter the company safe.

Sheriff Tyson said that the safe was damaged during the attempt but was not opened. He estimated damage to the safe at approximately $25.

A quantity of soft drinks was also reported taken, the sheriff added, and a drink box had been opened. Sheriff Tyson said that apparently nothing else was missing.

A hearing for the youth, who is currently in Pitt County Jail, has been scheduled for Friday in Juvenile Court here.

J.R. Horne Is Ruritan Speaker

WINTERVILLE — James R. Horne, newly appointed executive director of the Pitt County Development Commission, was the guest speaker at the Winterville Ruritan Club meeting Tuesday night.

Horne came to Pitt County from Charlotte where he directed the program of the American Management Association in the Carolinas and Virginia.

The speaker told the Ruritans that many changes are taking place in economic development work all over America. He stated that the environment and ecology of the region must be considered in locating new industries. Industry is not welcome if it pollutes the air and streams.

Horne pointed out that a great future lies ahead for Pitt County which is already one of the leaders in industrial development in eastern North Carolina.

The new director congratulated the town of Winterville upon winning the Governor's Award and pledged his support toward the development of the community.

Horne was introduced by R. E. Boyd.

President Tom Mann appointed a committee to investigate the possibility of organizing a senior citizens club in Winterville. He stated that improvement of recreational facilities will be the main objective of the club for this year.

Club members agreed to give $100 to the athletic program at A. G. Cox Junior High School.

Final Storytime Programs Set

Plans for the final three storytime programs to be held at East Branch Library for the school year have been announced by Mrs. Kay Taylor, East Branch librarian.

On Thursday, March 18, the theme will be St. Patrick's Day.

Two programs are scheduled for April. On April 8, the theme will be the Easter story; followed on April 22 with storytime centered on spring.

All three programs begin at 3:45 p.m. and are open to children from pre-school age to the third grade. Each program will last approximately half an hour and will feature stories, poems, and filmstrips. Mrs. Taylor will be the storyteller for each of the programs.

Trustees Honor Humber Memory

RALEIGH — A resolution honoring the memory of Dr. Robert Lee Humber was adopted unanimously yesterday at a meeting of the trustees of the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Governor Robert Scott and three former governors — Luther Hodges, Terry Sanford and Dan Moore were among the committee drawing up the resolution honoring the Greenville native. Trustee members taking part in drafting the resolution were Mrs. James Semans of Durham and Mrs. L. Y. Ballentine of Raleigh.

In the resolution, Dr. Humber was described as a man who cared about people, as a scholar, an idealist, a Tar Heel and the mastermind of "a dream that became a reality," the North Carolina Museum of Art.

"North Carolina was always the center of Robert Lee Humber's universe," the resolution states. "He brought the world to it and turned it to the world."

Dr. Humber has been recognized as the principal figure in the establishment of the North Carolina Museum of Art, and served the museum as chairman of the board of trustees from the time it was established until his death last November.

Trustee Smith Bagley of Winston-Salem has been elected president of the N. C. Museum of Art Foundation, succeeding the late Dr. Humber.

Pitt Counselors To Conference

WINSTON-SALEM — Three local counselors will attend the North Carolina Personnel and Guidance Association's annual conference here Thursday through Saturday.

Attending from Pitt County are: Mrs. Roberta Brown, counselor at Ayden and South Ayden High Schools; Mrs. Willie Cox Malison, counselor at D. H. Conley High School; and Dr. Frank G. Fuller, chairman of the Department of Counselor Education, School of Education, East Carolina University.

The NCPGA is composed of members from public and private schools, colleges, technical institutes, vocational rehabilitation agencies, Employment Security Commission, and other groups concerned with student personnel services.

459 Enrolled

Military personnel, their dependents and civilians from the Cherry Point, New Bern and Morehead City areas, plus dependents and military students from Italy, Japan, Ireland, Puerto Rico and Canada, have swelled the enrollment of East Carolina University's Cherry Point Center to a record number for the Third Term.

The Term enrollment of 459 surpasses by over 50 the previous high enrollment for the Center.

Rose Drops Farmville In Opener, 2-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants rode the 10-hit slugging of its players to a 2-0 victory over Farmville's Red Devils yesterday. It was the opening game of the year for the Rampants.

Jimmy Paige hurled a two-hitter at the Red Devils, who were dropping their first game in two starts. Paige struck out 10 Farmville batters, walked just two, and virtually kept them handcuffed most of the way.

Farmville never really offered a threat. Opposing pitcher Bobby Daniels got both of the walks off Paige. The first time came in the third, when he walked with one out, then moved to second on a passed ball.

The second time came in the fifth. With one out, Glenn Dwyer got a fluke double to right. His fly ball fell in just at the shoetops of the inracing Robbie Cox, and then bounced by the fielder. Cox had to backtrack to scoop it up, while Dwyer raced on to second. Then, after another out, Daniels drew his other way.

The only other runner to reach was Ronald Carraway. He opened with a single to right in the final inning, and went on to second when the fielder failed to throw to second.

Rose got plenty of hitting, but just couldn't put any of it together except in the fourth, when both of the runs scored. Prior to that inning, they had banged out six hits, but couldn't push a run across.

Bill Lee opened the hitting with a single in the first. In the second, it seemed almost certain Rose would score. John Conway opened with a single to left and Larry Dixon got a single just inside the right field line. Then, with one away, Cox dropped in a bunt single down the third base line, leaving the bases loaded. But the next batter popped out to the infield, and then next grounded out to end the threat.

The third saw the Rampants also open with a pair of singles as Kim Harbin and Lee got shots to left. But the next three went down in order to stop Rose again.

Finally, in the fourth, they cracked the Farmville defense. J. C. Daniels opened with a triple to deep center field. Cox followed with a ball almost in the same place, getting a run-scoring double out of it, as Daniels came in.

With two outs, Harbin laced a triple, scoring Cox, with the ball finding almost the same spot for the third time. Lee followed with a walk and stole second, but the Rampants could score no more.

Two errors allowed them to post another threat in the fifth, but to no avail. Dixon and Daniels both reached on errors, and Cox reached on a fielder's choice, moving Dixon to third, but nailing Daniels. Cox stole his way to second, but again, the Rampant offense crumbled before runs could be scored.

The sixth saw one more attempt, as Lee cracked a double to left. But he was picked off second by Daniels to end that threat.

Lee led the Rose hitting, getting three in as many trips. Harbin and Cox each added a pair.

The Rampants take on their second cross-county rival Friday, playing host to D. H. Conley.

Improve Program Jenkins Urges

RALEIGH — Dr. Leo Jenkins took aim at problems within collegiate athletics today in a noon speech before the Raleigh Sportsman's Club.

Jenkins hit at colleges that put too much pressure on its student-athletes; schools which put too much pressure on promising high schoolers; the use of drugs by athletes, and conduct of coaches in the public eye.

The East Carolina University president, long an advocate of first class athletics, said that there is no substitute for victory, but that it must be tempered by other things.

"Institutions should strive to be as successful in the same spirit and with the same assurance that we have traditionally given to students majoring in academic disciplines who achieve high levels of competence and excellence," he said. Athletic programs are, however, "administered and conducted by human beings. They are therefore not perfect," he added.

"They need . . . to be studied continuously and changed when it is clear that certain sound principles of athletic administration are being violated either in the letter or spirit or both."

Jenkins said schools must focus upon student athletes as individuals. "They are students with student concerns. They are not hired athletic competitors whose sole value lies simply in the public display of their athletic skill."

Jenkins pointed out that they should be given the opportunity to get a quality education to make their college years meaningful. He noted that athletes must give up much time to devote to their sports, and it is to be expected that they might need additional instruction and assistance to offset this. "We should seek athletes who are capable students, but institutions have a responsibility to provide them with help and improve their opportunities to compete academically with non-athletes."

The ECU president also said that some way must be found to reduce the great pressures put on high school athletes by colleges. Jenkins described some athletes senior year as "chaotic," because of the pressures put on him by recruiting schools. "It is a situation which deserves much more attention from national associations, member institutions, administrative officials, alumni groups and coaching staffs. Above all, the lives of the young people involved must be the first consideration."

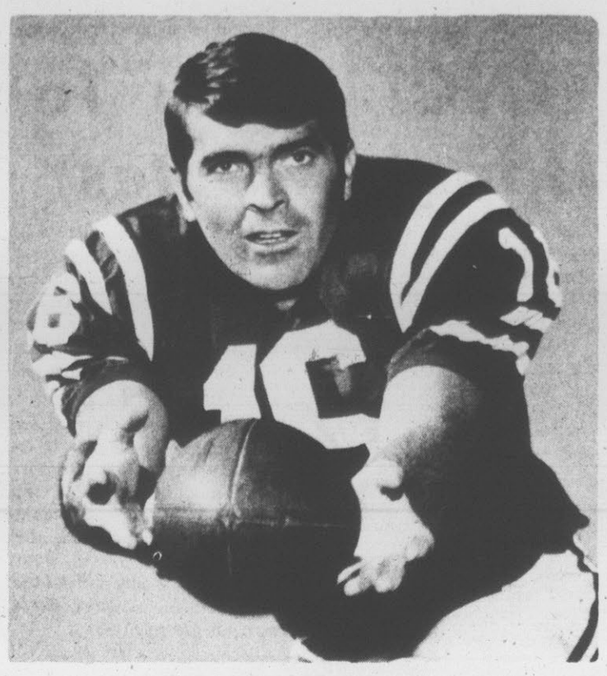

Jenkins said more attention must be placed on the use of drugs by athletes. "Athletics and athletic contests can and should serve as models (to others)," he said.

He added that drugs of various types "serve useful and legitimate roles in the healing of the body and in the restoration of good health," and that their use should be limited to this area. "Everyone should condemn the administration of drugs to mask the pain of injuries which by continued risk of athletic competition could lead to permanent injury."

He then said coaches must lead lives that are an example to others. "Coaches must be ever mindful that they are dealing with human beings, with the shaping of lives that go well beyond the three or four years of direct contact."

"Coaches, like players, must show spirit, but such things as child-like temper tantrums, the public dressing down of players, use of profane language, and heated and protracted agruments with officials do little to convey a respectable image of varsity athletics, or show appropriate acknowledgement of the authority possessed by officials."

Jenkins added that "the varsity athletic house must be kept in order and concerned about its public image. Athletes must be students and given an acceptable chance to acquire legitimate educations."

To Aid Pirates

Norman Snead, traded this spring from the Philadelphia Eagles to the Minnesota Vikings, will be in the East Carolina University spring football camp for the next few weeks, working with the quarterbacks. He will start work during today's workouts. Snead, long regarded as one of the better NFL quarterbacks, is also rated as an excellent teacher, and has worked for a number of years in ECU Coach Sonny Randle's Fork Union, Va. Football Camp during the summer.

Grifton Eases Past Jasper, 7-4

GRIFTON — The Grifton Bulldogs opened their baseball season with a 7-4 victory over Jasper High School yesterday.

Grifton led all the way, despite a 2-2 tie midway through the game. The Bulldogs also had to choke off a final inning rally by their visitors.

The Bulldogs took the lead the first chance they got, pushing over two runs in the first inning. Richie Thorne walked and stole second. Billy Edwards reached on an error, and when the ball was miscued on the throw, Thorne came in to score with Edwards going to second. Jimmy Herring then cracked a triple, scoring Edwards for a 2-0 lead.

Jasper came up with a run in the third and another in the fourth, tieing it up.

Grifton pushed back ahead with two runs in the bottom of the fourth. Linn Thomas reached on an error and scored when Mike Coles slapped a triple. Johnny Willis lifted a fly ball to the outfield, but the play was muffed and Coles came in to score the second run of the frame. That gave the Bulldogs a 4-2 lead.

Two more runs scored on Jasper mistakes in the fifth. Thorne reached on an error, and Herring was safe on another miscue. That one however, allowed both runners to race around to score, making it 6-2.

Grifton picked up its final run in the sixth. Willis doubled and when the ball got away from the fielder, he, too, came around to score.

Jasper tried to rally in the final frame, scoring twice, but Grifton cut it off there.

Herring led the Grifton hitting by two, while Jimmy Nobles had two hits for Jasper.

Grifton's pitcher, freshman Eddie McCullen struck out eight and walked just one, while giving up seven hits. The Jasper hurler, Wade Wilson, also fanned eight, while walking two. He allowed just four hits.

Vikings Spear Panthers, 16-0

By BILLY EVANS
Reflector Sports Writer

WINTERVILLE — The Conley Vikings bounced back from a loss at the hands of Farmville last week to blast the North Pitt Panther's yesterday for a 16-0 baseball victory.

The Vikings scored runs in every inning accept the fourth while the Conley pitchers held North Pitt in check. Conley came within one hit of a no-hitter when in the third inning Earl Worsely smacked a triple into center field. Bobby Bryan started for the Vikings and allowed the only hit. Bryant Hines relieved Bryan in the fourth and finished the game without giving up a hit.

In the first inning of the game North Pitt was unable to get anything started. The Vikings wasted little time however in getting to the Panther hurler. Lawrence got things going in the bottom half of the inning when he drew a walk and then advanced to second on a wild pitch. Glisson moved on to third when Averett grounded out to second. Worthington got a free pass to first and then on four successive singles by Bryan, Evans, Corey and Jones the Vikings swept into a 4-0 lead.

The Vikings added three more runs to their lead in the second inning. Steve Worthington singled and was followed by Bryan who drew a walk, Vic Corey promptly slashed a double into left field scoring both of the runners. Billy Jones singled scoring Corey to give the Vikings a 7-0 lead going into the third inning.

North Pitt threatened to score only once in the game and this was in the third frame. The first batter in the third inning struck out bringing up Worsely who connected for a triple into center field, the next two batters up walked loading the bases but the Conley pitcher settled down and forced the following two batters to ground out ending the inning with the only damage being the hit at the beginning of the frame.

Conley had their biggest inning in the bottom of the third when they hit North Pitt with six runs. The first three batters walked loading the bases, Jimmy Bryan sacrificed in a run on a bunt. Evans loaded the bases again when he was hit by a pitch. Corey, Jones and Hines all hit one sackers scoring four runs. Jones advanced to third on the single by Hines and scored when Bobby Bryan ground out. The Vikings finished up their scoring by getting two in the fifth and one in the sixth. The lone run in the sixth came on a home run by Steve Worthington.

Pirates Have Busy Schedule

Tomorrow will be a busy day in East Carolina University's sport schedule.

The Pirate baseball team will close a two-day stand with Ithaca College, the tennis team hosts Campbell College and the golf team is at home with UNC-Wilmington.

ECU's defending Southern Conference baseball champions began the series with Ithaca this afternoon with Ron Hastings getting the nod as the starting pitcher.

Coach Earl Smith plans to comeback Thursday afternoon with the lefthander Hal Baird, who already owns one win over N.C. State. In his first appearance the fireballing southpaw whiffed 13 and allowed only three hits while working seven innings.

The starting lineup for the 3 p.m. affair at University Field will probably see Gus Roberson at first, Bryan McNeely at second, Dick Corrada at short, Ralph Lamm at third, Stan Sneeden catching, Larry Walters in leftfield, Matt Walker in center and Mike Aldridge in right.

Coach Bill Dickens' tennis team will open its home season at the Minges Coliseum courts at 2 p.m.

The Pirates finished second in their first outing, the Campbell Invitational, behind strong Atlantic Christian.

Graham Felton, a senior from Rocky Mount, was the Pirates' only individual champion, winning the number one singles in three sets over Campbell's Jeb Harrell.

ECU's Bill Van Middlesworth was second in the number two singles while Grier Ferguson was second in the number three singles. Bruce Linton was second in the number five singles.

ECU's golf team gets it first test tomorrow afternoon at Greenville Country Club against an always strong UNC-Wilmington team.

Only three lettermen return from last season is senior Ray Sharpe, junior Phil Wallace and junior Ron Pinner.

Williamston Drops Bertie

WILLIAMSTON — The Williamston Tigers opened their 1971 baseball season yesterday with an 8-6 win over Bertie High School.

Bertie captured the opening lead in the game, pushing out into a 1-0 lead in the top of the first. Capehart led off with a triple, and Castellow walked. The two runners then pulled a double steal, scoring Capehart for the edge.

In the bottom of the second, Williamston broke loose for four runs, charging into a 4-1 lead. Jimmy Rayford and Billy Ritter each reached on errors. Shelton Peele banged out a single, scoring Rayford to tie it up. Mike Weaver then sent Ritter home with another hit to put the Tigers on top. Bruce Lewis and Dwight Ange each followed with singles, scoring Peele and Weaver with the third and fourth runs.

Bertie came back in the third to score two runs, cutting it to 4-3. They added three more in the top of the fourth, to charge into a 6-4 lead.

But Williamston bounced right back in the bottom of the inning, getting two to tie it up. Peele opened with a triple and eased home on Mike Bundy's single. Lewis reached on an error and Ange singled, loading the bases. Raymond Andrews then got a hit, driving in Bundy with the tieing run.

The fifth inning saw Williamston come up with two more runs, and that won it for the Tigers. Peele opened with a single and scored on a three-bagger by Lewis. Ange walked, and he and Lewis pulled the double steal for the final Williamston run.

Castellow, Capehart and Davis each had two hits to pace the Bertie attack. Peele and Ange each cracked out three hits, while Andrews and Lewis had two each for Williamston.

Southern Loop Honors Holland

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Terry Holland, who coached Davidson's Wildcats to 15 victories despite many a discouraging adversity, was named Southern Conference Basketball Coach of the Year for 1971 today.

Holland also won Coach of the Year honors in 1970, when the Wildcats sped to a 19-4 record in his first season as head coach and claimed the conference championship a third straight time.

But many felt he did his finest coaching during the season that just ended, although the Cats' final record was 15-11 and they failed to retain the SC crown, falling to Furman in a semifinals upset at the title tournament in Charlotte. Furman went on to become the champion.

Obviously discounting the Wildcats' fall from grace in the tournament while giving heavy weight to the 9-1 conference record during the regular season, members of the Southern Conference Sportswriters Association made Holland a runaway winner in the Coach of the Year voting.

The Davidson coach received 21 votes in all to 10 for William and Mary Coach Warren Mitchell and six for Furman's Joe Williams, whose Paladins won the SC championship in his first year as coach.

The Citadel's Dick Campbell, who resigned his job this week, and East Carolina's Tom Quinn each received one vote for coach of the year.

Holland appeared to make the utmost of what he had to work with at Davidson in what was scarcely a vintage year for the perennially powerful Wildcats.

To begin with, he had to replace three of the stars who helped carry the Wildcats to national prominence in 1969-70—Mike Maloy, Doug Cook and Jerry Kroll.

And as if that weren't trial enough, Davidson's conference-leading scorer of a year ago—Brian Adrian—had to undergo knee surgery and played in only six games.

With what was left, Holland managed to bring the Wildcats home first in the regular-season standings for a fourth consecutive year and to another in a long series of winning overall seasons.

Trotters Here On Saturday

"Developing new players and getting them to jell in game and comedy routines with veterans are the most interesting phases of my association with the club," commented Leon Hillard, coach of the world famous Harlem Globetrotters.

Hillard experienced this himself as a rookie in 1951, when he joined the "Magicians of Basketball" fresh out of Chicago's McKinley High School.

As a prepster, Leon tailored his style of play with the thought of winning a berth on the Globetrotter squad. He especially worked on his dribbling and ball handling.

Experts agree he has no peer as a show dribbler and no Globetrotter game is complete without a show-stopping exhibition by the master himself, displaying the magic that has made Hillard a world-renowned player and comedian.

Hillard works closely with Inman Jackson, the team's original clown, who is still with the organization as a consulting coach, in training the rookies.

"We don't look for comics," Hillard says. "Our prime prospect is the boy who has the knack for handling the ball. We do the rest. Timing is the important thing with us; all our routines, comedy or straight play, are based on split-second timing. Our fans expect us to be faster, sharper, better and we work hard to attain that goal."

"The spectators are entitled to the best we can give them."

Area fans can see the Globetrotters battling the New Jersey Reds Saturday, at 8 p. m. in Minges Coliseum on the campus of East Carolina University in Greenville.

Agony Of October, Headaches Of Spring Plaguing Minnesota Twins

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The agony of past October lingers on for the Minnesota Twins—and they've had a couple of headaches this spring, too.

Minnesota, blasted out of the first two American League pennant playoffs in successive three-game Baltimore sweeps, is getting ready to make another run for the money. But the Twins' spring training getaway has been slowed by a series of ailments, holdouts and defections.

"It has to hurt when it happens to you twice in a row," says Manager Bill Rigney, who took it on the chin from the Orioles last fall, as had his predecessor, Billy Martin, the previous year. "But we're still facing the same thing, regardless of what happened."

The Twins appear to have the personnel for another successful title defense in the AL West—if they don't run into more of the obstructions that have marked their spring maneuvers.

Rod Carew, the swift, hot-hitting second baseman who was out for most of last season with a mangled knee, showed up early in camp but missed the first week of exhibition play because of 10 abcessed teeth.

Luis Tiant and Dave Boswell, former 20-game winners who won just 10 between them in 1970 because of shoulder and back ailments, were slow working their way into competitive shape. Camilo Pascual, another one-time pitching ace, came to camp on a trial basis, impressed Rigney in his first outing — and then disappeared without a goodbye.

Bill Zepp, who picked up some of the pitching slack last season with nine victories as a rookie, refused to report and asked the Twins to trade him to Detroit. Outfielder Tony Oliva and Cesar Tovar held out for pay hikes and shortstop Leo Cardenas was missing for a week.

If Rigney gets them all together, the Twins should again produce plenty of runs. Led by Harmon Killebrew, Oliva and Tovar, they batted .262, tops in the league, and finished nine lengths ahead of second-place Oakland in the West Division race.

The A's and California Angels figure to put up a stronger fight this year, however, and Rigney feels he will need more pitching depth than last year to stay on top.

The 1970 yeomen were Jim Perry, the AL Cy Young Award winner; Dutch-born teen-ager Bert Blyleven, left-handers Tom "The Blade" Hall and Jim Kaat, relief artists Ron Perranoski and Stan Williams, and Zepp.

Perry, 24-12, Blyleven, 10-9, and Kaat, 14-10, are likely starters. Hall, a 150-pounder who was 11-6 with 184 strikeouts, could go as a starter or reliever. Tiant, 7-3, and Boswell, 3-7 are the question marks.

Perranoski, who set a league mark of 34 saves, and Williams, 10-1 with 15 saves, are solid stoppers. Sal Campisi, picked up from St. Louis in the Twins' lone off-season deal, might make it in the bullpen, too.

Rigney is heartened by the imminent return to form of Carew, who was batting .376 last June when he injured his knee in a sliking mishap. "When you lose Carew for 110 games, you're losing a run a game," he says.

Third baseman Killebrew batted .271 swatted 41 homers and knocked in 113 runs last year. Right fielder Oliva had his best season with 23 homers and 107 RBI.

Softball Meet

There will be a Church Softball meeting Thursday at 7:30 P. M. in the Elm Street Gymnasium. Plans for the 1971 season will be discussed. Each team planning to enter the league should have a representative attend this organizational meeting.

WNCT Radio To Handle Pirates

The East Carolina Sports Radio Network has announced plans to expand to 15 or more stations for the 1971-72 sports year.

Originating the broadcasts for the eighth consecutive year will be WNCT-AM and FM in Greenville. ECU Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich and WNCT General Manager Buck Timberlake announced the renewal of the broadcast agreement between the school and the station this week.

WNCT is one of the more powerful stations in Eastern North Carolina, serving 33 counties with its 10,000 watt voice. It will "feed" the broadcasts to stations in cities and towns all over Eastern North Carolina.

Jim Woods will be the Pirates' play-by-play man for the fifth straight year. Woods, who is sports director of WNCT, will be joined on the broadcasts by color man Tom McKimmey of WOBR in Manteo.

The Woods-McKimmey team will air all 10 East Carolina football games this fall and the entire 25-game Pirate basketball schedule next winter.

"We are very happy to have WNCT originating our games again this season and look forward to our largest radio network ever," said Stasavich. "We believe we have an obligation to bring our games to all the people in Eastern North Carolina because ECU is the regional university for this part of the state.

"East Carolina University has more alumni in this part of the state than any other university," continued Stasavich. "Our football and basketball teams also include many young men from this part of the state. Therefore, it is only natural that the people in this area get to hear our games."

Timberlake echoed these sentiments.

"WNCT has enjoyed a very happy relationship over the years with East Carolina University and we look forward to the greatest year ever for the East Carolina Sports Network."

Ladies Golf

The East Carolina Ladies Golf League held its first meet of the spring recently.

Winners from the Greenville Golf and Country Club included Dot Aldridge, low gross in E flight, and Joan Hooper, second low gross in E flight.

Gregory Gets Southern Honor

Jim Gregory, East Carolina University's all-time three-year scorer, was named Co-Player of the Year in the Southern Conference for the just-concluded basketball season.

Gregory and William & Mary's Tom Jasper tied for the honor, each receiving 18 votes in the annual voting by the Southern Conference Sportswriters Association.

Gregory averaged 18.2 points per game and 12 rebounds in leading the Pirates to a 13-12 overall record and a 7-4 conference mark. The 6-foot-7 Elbert, W. Va., sharpshooter was one of the conference's top rebounders throughout his varsity career.

In his final game in the Southern Conference tournament, Gregory became the all-time leading scorer at East Carolina during a three-year varsity career. He scored a total of 1,193 points during his varsity years.

"After a slow start this year due to a pre-season injury, Jim came along to be a very steady rebounder and scorer for us," Coach Tom Quinn said.

"His achievements both this year and in his two previous seasons as a starter have been truely outstanding. They have been instrumental in the successful winning seasons we have had during this period.

"The members of the coaching staff and the players congratulate him on this very high honor," the coach added.

Jasper averaged 19.2 points and about nine rebounds per game. The 6-4 Baltimore star led the Indians to an 11-16 overall mark and a 7-3 conference record that was good enough for second place behind Davidson in the regular-season standings.

Coaches Say Draft Will Hurt

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How do you tell a 19-year-old college basketball player to turn down a million dollars? You can't, agree a number of the top coaches in the country.

"If I had a poor kid who could grab himself $1½ million it would be hard to tell him not to. I wouldn't want to take anything away from the kids," said Frank McGuire of South Carolina, whose 6-foot-11 junior Tom Riker was drafted Monday by the American Basketball Association.

"I can't blame them for dropping out of school. It's a great temptation. But the colleges really can't do a thing. We're at their (pros) mercy."

Al McGuire of No. 2 ranked Marquette assures that he, too, would advise a player to accept the money now and worry about a college degree later.

"I've looked in Chones' refrigerator and I don't see much," McGuire said of his 6-11 sophomore ace Jim Chones, who also was selected in the ABA draft. "There's no way I can stop a boy if somebody comes along and offers him $250,000."

The financial hardship reason was used by Denver of the ABA to sign first Spencer Haywood and then Ralph Simpson after their sophomore year.

But at the same time, the coaches felt that open recruiting, drafting and signing of undergraduates by the pros would hurt everyone—the colleges, the boy and particularly the pros, and they also talked about moral commitments.

At present, both pro leagues, the ABA and the National Basketball Association, have rules that no team can draft or sign a player whose college class has not graduated. But Denver and Virginia, which drafted Riker, Chones and Barry Parkhill of Virginia University, and Seattle of the NBA have chosen to ignore the rules.

Gilmore Signs With ABA Team

By BILL WINTER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Firing the coals for a certain dollar war with the National Basketball Association, the American Basketball Association Kentucky Colonels signed Jacksonville All-American Artis Gilmore to a pact called "the biggest ever given to an ABA player."

The 7-foot-2 center, flanked by Colonels' President Mike Storen and ABA President Wendell Cherry, signed the pact before 11,000 spectators in Louisville's massive Freedom Hall Tuesday night.

The signing ceremony, carried live on television, came between games of an ABA doubleheader, with Gilmore slowly walking the length of the court to the accompaniment of a standing ovation before inking the contract.

Storen said the contract was the richest ever given an ABA player, but refused to reveal its dollar value.

A report by The Louisville Times Tuesday set the amount of the contract at "in excess of $2 million," and Gilmore's college coach, Tom Wasdin, said in Florida that he had heard similar figures.

Gilmore's signing gave the ABA a running start in its recruiting battle with the NBA, and is expected to inspire other college seniors to hike their salary demands.

Oregon star Stan Love, the Pacific-8's top scorer this season but seldom mentioned often among the nation's leading pro prospects, said Tuesday he wants a $500,000 contract to play professional ball.

Other top seniors are expected to demand higher figures.

Gilmore carries impressive credentials into his pro career. He averaged 26.5 points and 22.2 rebounds per game in leading the Dolphins to the finals of the NCAA championships during his junior year.

This season he led the nation in rebounding with 23.2 per game while scoring at a 22.3-point clip.

His greatest contributions came on defense, where he averaged 10.3 blocked shots per game. In one game against East Carolina, he blocked 17 shots.

Brigham Young Gets First Shot

By TOM EMORY
Associated Press Sports Writer

In the National Collegiate Athletic Association Basketball Tournament, UCLA is THE show. But the Bruins might be in for a surprise Thursday night when they play Brigham Young with its 6-foot-11 Yugoslavian center, Kresimir Cosic.

BYU, 19-9, has the distinction of being the first team to get a crack at beating No. 1 UCLA, 25-1, in the tournament in the Western Regional semifinals.

Cosic acts more like a guard than a center with his 30-foot set shots, leading on fast breaks, and behind-the-back and between-the-legs passes.

There is an emotional side of Cosic which springs to the surface on the basketball court. He smiles, grimaces, hugs his teammates, suffers and gloats.

Cosic was on the 1968 Yugoslavian Olympic team and the 1969 World Games championship team. This season he carried a 15-point average and a 12.2 rebound average for the No. 20 Cougars.

In the other west playoff in Salt Lake City, Long Beach State, 23-4, plays University of Pacific, 21-5.

The Midwest Regional features Kansas, 25-1, playing Houston, 21-6, and Notre Dame, 20-7, taking on Drake, 20-7. The games will be played in Wichita, Kan.

Big Ten champion No. 10 Ohio State, 19-5, plays undefeated No. 2 Marquette, 27-0, in one game of the Mideast Regional in Athens, Ga. The other contest also has two Top Ten teams, Western Kentucky, 21-5, and Kentucky, 22-4.

Pennsylvania, 27-0, plays South Carolina, 23-4; and Fordham, 25-2, plays Villanova, 24-6, in the East Regional in Raleigh, N.C.

The survivors of the regionals Thursday and Saturday move on to the Astrodome in Houston March 25 and 27 for the national semifinals and finals.

Four games are scheduled today in the NCAA College Division Tournament in Evansville, Ind.

Old Dominion, Norfolk, Va. 19-8, was scheduled against Puget Sound, Tacoma, Wash. 21-4; and Assumption, Worcester, 25-1, against Southwestern Louisiana, 23-3.

Kentucky Wesleyan, 21-6, plays Cheyney Pa. State, 23-5; and Evansville, 19-8, plays Hartwick, Oneonta, N.Y., 21-5, tonight.

The winners move into the semifinals Thursday with the championship game Friday.

The National Invitational Tournament begins Saturday at Madison Square Garden in New York. Five first-round games are scheduled:

North Carolina vs. Massachusetts; Louisville vs. Providence; Dayton vs. Duke; Tennessee vs. St. John's N.Y.; and Georgia Tech vs. LaSalle.

Pitchers Get Ready For Year

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The big-name pitchers are rapidly getting in shape for the start of the baseball season. Phil Niekro hurled five good innings Tuesday, Mike Cuellar went seven .. and Choji Murata went nine.

Choji Murata pitches for Japan's Lotte Orions and he stifled the California Angels 7-2 on seven hits, including Tony Conigliaro's first home run. Murata walked four and fanned eight.

Niekro, whose knuckleball didn't knuckle down to business last year, yielded only one hit during his stint as the Atlanta Braves whipped the Minnesota Twins 5-2.

Baltimore's, Cuellar, off a lackadaisical winter campaign, was in world championship form, blanking the Los Angeles Dodgers for seven innings in a 3-0 Oriole victory. Tom Dukes finished up and Frank Robinson belted a mammoth home run.

Japan's other touring team, the Tokyo Giants, lost to Pittsburgh 6-2 when the Pirates scored four times in the eighth inning. Gene Clines had four hits for the Bucs.

Rookie Bill Bonham and veteran Bill Hands combined for a one-hitter—a single by Rafael Robles in the fifth—and the Chicago Cubs edged the San Diego Padres 2-1 on Jose Ortiz' ninth-inning RBI triple.

The Chicago White Sox and Houston Astros also got strong pitching. Tom Bradley and two rookies stopped the New York Yankees 8-0 on four hits as the clubs began a two-game visit to Venezuela. It was New York's eighth consecutive setback.

Sore-armed Don Wilson worked five scoreless innings and Houston downed Philadelphia 4-1.

Cleveland outlasted Oakland 10-7 in another game featuring the experimental three-ball walk. There was a total of 23 walks.

Scant Time For N.C. Drug Cases

"The State Bureau of Investigation has the right of initial jurisdiction in drug cases and the size and scope of the drug problem in this state is shockingly large, yet our people are so overworked with immediate crimes that they have little time to work and develop drug cases," SBI director Charles Dunn told the Greenville Rotary Club Monday night.

The chemical section of the SBI Crime Lab, already pressed to handle evidence, has been flooded in recent months with drug examinations," he said.

No community is immune although areas having military installations and colleges and universities are the most plagued. "The illegal drug business in North Carolina is not a 'good time' venture," he emphasized. "It is a money - making operation."

"Without greater public concern and action, there is little hope of substantially curbing the illegal drug flow in the near future.

As to why people — particularly young people — get involved with dangerous drugs, Dunn offered the following suggestions: Some are sold by older people out to make a dollar or by other youngsters who need the money to buy more narcotics for their own use. Some feel it's the "In" thing to do. Some are seeking an out from their present state of life — "But what may start as a trip to paradise may well end up in a trip to the cemetery in a mental institution," he commented.

Another cause, he said, appears to be the recent emphasis placed on pills by society — a pill for everything, a resorting to a tranquilizer pill for even the slightest predicament or trifling discomfort. He quoted Aldous Huxley, calling this practice "dubious morality and poor sense."

"The SBI, in cooperation with local law enforcement, intends to curb the use of dangerous drugs all it can, but the solution is going to take far more than law enforcement," he said. "It is going to take concern and action at home, church, school, and community levels. Parents must make every effort to insure that homes are stable, that they offer security, that they help instill confidence. Parents must be willing to give of themselves, to live as a family, to encourage and guide.

"The church and the school must be willing and able to step in where the family unit fails or is non - existent to give purpose, strength, and direction to searching young people.

"Finally," he said, "any indication of illegal drug use or possession should be reported. The child you save may be your own or that of your fellow man, whom I believe you are responsible for."

Argue Legal, Moral Issue

By H. HORTON ROUNTREE
State Representative

A real debate is shaping up for this week.

The mixed drink bill was given a favorable report by the House Committee on Alcoholic Beverage Control. The bill was voted out of the Committee by eleven to ten, showing how close the matter is.

Representative Claude DeBruhl of Buncombe County, who introduced the bill in the House, claims to have enough votes for its passage. However, Representative Dan Lilley of Lenoir County, who is leading the fight against the proposition, says otherwise.

The key to this important issue lies with the urban legislators. Mecklenburg County with seven votes, Buncombe County with four votes, Guilford County with six votes, etc. are all supporting the bill. The rural areas of the state are against its passage.

The debate will center around the moral issue versus the legal issue. Is it legally right to allow the people in those counties or municipalities which sell alcoholic beverages in controlled stores to vote whether they want to allow Grade A restaurants to sell alcoholic beverages by the drink? Is it morally right to allow such a community to provide another outlet for the sale of alcoholic beverages? It must be understood, however, that this bill only gives the people the right to vote on the issue; it does not establish the sale of mixed drinks.

Statistics from other states where mixed drinks are allowed to be sold, including how many alcoholics there are in the state, how many drunk drivers have been convicted, how much alcohol has been bought and sold (on a per capita basis), will be introduced as evidence. The Bible will be quoted (pro and con); the U.S. Constitution will get into the act. And the poor legislators will all be confused over the entire issue.

The bill itself is patterned after the law in the State of Virginia, and sales will be limited to Grade A restaurants. These restaurants, which are graded by the State Department of Public Health, must have a seating capacity of at least 36 and derive more than half their income from the sale of food. The restaurants must obtain permits from the State ABC Board and buy all their alcoholic beverages for resale from the county or municipally controlled store. If this bill passes, restaurants which choose to obtain a permit for the sale of mixed drinks will lose their "Brown-bagging" permit. Both will not be permitted in the same facility.

The first mixed drink bill was introduced in the 1969 session of the General Assembly and was defeated by a vote of 60 to 44. The situation in 1971 is similar to that in 1969, except there seems to be a greater effort this time by the opponents of the bill to defeat it.

Congressional redistricting again comes to the forefront on Thursday of this week. Several leading citizens of Orange County, including the mayor of Chapel Hill and the editor of the Chapel Hill Weekly, requested a public hearing, which will be held on that day. The purpose of the hearing is to allow those people affected by the Senate-passed redistricting bill to express their objections to that bill, as it removes Orange County from the Fourth to the Second Congressional District. The people of Orange and Durham Counties think that the Research Triangle should remain in Congressman Nick Galifianakis' Fourth District. Whether or not the public hearing will influence the members of the House Redistricting Committee remains to be seen.

Boom During Next Decade

NEW YORK (UPI)—The capacitor industry, which makes a component for computers, will more than double in the '70s, according to an industry spokesman. By 1980, says Howard Rothenstein, president of Miconics Industries, Inc., sales of capacitors should pass the billion dollar mark, compared with approximately $500 million in 1970.

"Extensive use of capacitors in fourth generation computers, as well as earlier models, virtually assures this growth," Rothenstein said. "With mini-computers designed increasingly for use in homes, retail stores, automobile transportation, and as yet unseen functions, the capacitor, one of the computer's most economical electronic components, may well enjoy an inprecedented boom."

Questions Claim Of Black Colleges

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A dean at a predominantly black college says she is not sure such schools can make good their claims that they know best how to "close the gaps" for Negroes.

And on such claims the schools base their reason for existence, added Dr. Helen Edmonds, dean of the graduate school of North Carolina Central University.

She spoke Tuesday at the 45th annual meeting of the National Association of College Deans, Registrars and Admissions Officers, composed primarily of administrators of predominantly black institutions.

Dr. Edmonds has been appointed by President Nixon to replace Shirley Temple Black as a United States delegate to the United Nations.

She asked, "When will the predominantly Negro institutions begin to do what they say they know how to do best?

"We have said historically that we should exist because we know how, better than anyone else, to close the gaps for Negroes.

"Historically, we have said, 'Give us the money and let us do it.' But I'm not sure we know how.

"We have really too few black colleges and universities which are performing at acceptable levels.

"There's going to be some dwindling of funds. Black colleges cannot exist any more on sentiment because we've got to do what we say we can do, or else we've got our problems."

The three-day meeting concluded today. The theme of the discussions was: "The Emerging Role of the Black College."

Attach Status To Gold Band

Don asks why girls seem obsessed with a yen to win a diamond engagement ring and especially a gold wedding band. He thinks they want to flaunt their erotic success, as the Indians flaunted the scalps of their enemies! Note the sex differences regarding rings! And contrast the current veto of wedding bands in Red China!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M.D.

Case Q-502: Don P., aged 20, is a psychology student.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "why are girls so intent upon getting a wedding ring?

"Is it merely their desire to flaunt their success in winning a man?

"Do they flash their wedding band, much as the Indians carried scalps on their belt, as a mark of social distinction?"

Wedding Customs

"Adults Only" has long been a sign at movie theaters.

It generally intimates unduly frank sexual plots that are not supposed to be for the teenagers.

A wedding ring likewise intimates much this same "Adults Only" prestige.

All throughout childhood, youngsters have craved to reach that "Promised Land" where they are not subject to an early curfew and where they can be independent of parental "bossing."

A wedding band thus indirectly symbolizes a girl's freedom from her parents.

Since it also involves social prestige among those that have not yet entered marriage, girls often grow neurotic over their lack of a wedding ring.

In high school romances, the girls who are repressed or unloved at home by their feuding parents, then repose an abnormal belief in the magic world for which that gold band is the "Open Sesame."

Some teen-age coeds thus seem almost more interested in getting a wedding ring than in the husband who furnishes it!

The same is true of the diamond engagement ring or even the class ring they wrangle from their "steady" high school escort.

"Going steady" is likewise in the same category of prestige symbols that girls often flaunt before their female classmates.

The girl with a "social climber" urge, will thus indulge in various forms of show-off behavior when she gets a ring.

She will lift her left hand repeatedly to stroke back an errant lock of hair, just to let people see she has a diamond on her third finger.

But do you ever notice men flaunting a wedding ring in similar fashion?

"In Red China at present, wedding rings do not exist," states a Copley news reporter from Peking.

For China frowns upon early weddings, calling them "selfish."

Young people over there are to serve the state till they are about 30 years old, and not get married meanwhile.

Even then, they are being urged to limit their families and have only two children.

That later marriage age is also intended to help reduce the size of families.

A wedding ring has some value, too, in warding off Don Juans, for the ring shows ownership of the woman by some other male.

In this manner, a wedding band serves much like the brand mark on western cattle and means "Keep Off."

Unfaithful mates, however, remove their rings when they go to a social event where they wish to do some flirting or have a sexual interlude.

But some people, with deep sexual inferiority complexes, actually try to develop an "affair" with a person wearing a wedding ring, for this seems to bolster their deflated erotic libido. Remember Roberto?

A rather unusual entry destroying play by West in today's hand forced declarer to pay a toll for the touch of greed which he exhibited during the bidding.

The first two rounds of bidding were normal. When South made a game forcing jump rebid of three spades, North proceeded naturally to three no trump. At this point, the proper procedure by South is to pass inasmuch as his hand is quite suitable for no trump. His decision to continue in spades was influenced by an undue desire to cash the 100 honors.

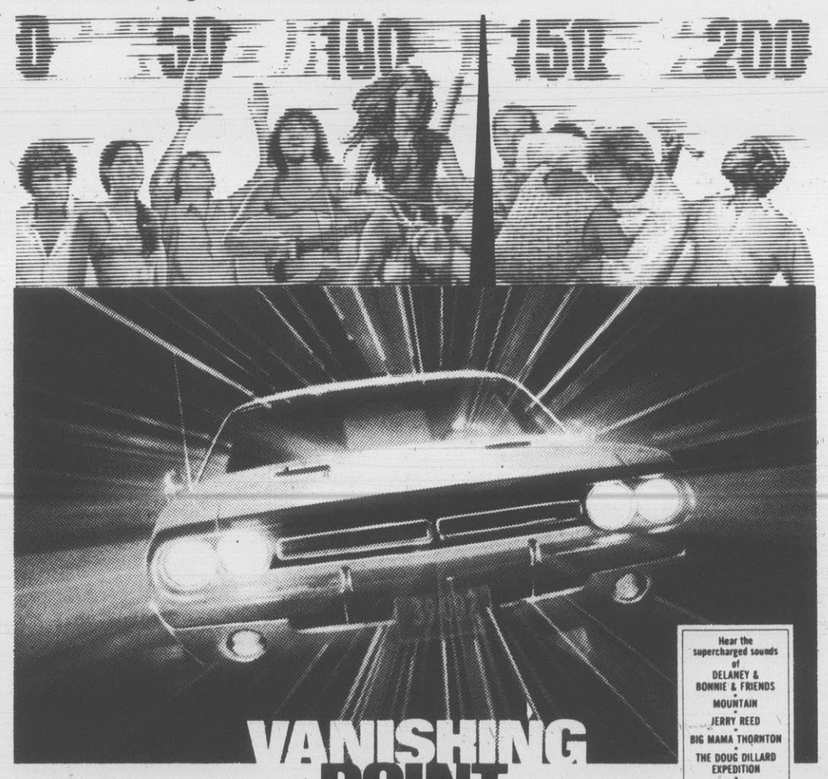

West opened the ten of diamonds. The queen was played from dummy, and East began an echo with the seven to show a doubleton. Declarer proceeded to draw trumps at once by leading a small spade to the king in his hand. West now made the very astute play of permitting South to hold the trick. Unless East had the king of hearts which was an eventuality that would take care of itself, the only hope West had to defeat the contract was to give his partner a diamond ruff. In order to produce this effect, the trump drawing process must be interrupted.

Declarer continued with a second spade and West was in. He returned the deuce of diamonds, duly noting his partner's four. South was in the dummy at this point with no quick reentry to his hand to draw the last trump. He led a heart to the king which lost to West's ace. The latter led another diamond which East trumped with the eight of spades and then cashed the ace of clubs for the setting trick.

Declarer could have nullified the effect of West's defense by going after the hearts in order to establish a diamond discard—once West let him hold the lead to the king of spades. However, there would have been no problem at all had North been permitted to remain in three no trump.

Sweep For Simon, Garfunkel

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Simon and Garfunkel's "Bridge Over Troubled Water," has won six Grammy awards—the recording industry's counterpart of the movies' Oscars and television's Emmys

The awards, gold-plated miniatures of an old-style horn phonograph, went to the song Tuesday night as the best record, album and song of the year and as the best contemporary song, the best engineered recording and the best-arranged vocal recording.

The Carpenters, brother and sister ballad singers, were honored in two categories—as best new artists of the year and for best contemporary vocal performance by a duo, group or chorus. The second Grammy was for their recording of "Close to You."

Flip Wilson's "The Devil Made Me Buy This Dress" was judged the best comedy recording.

The 13th annual Grammy awards of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences honor creative achievement in recording during 1970.

The presentation ceremony was televised live nationally for the first time.

Andy Williams was master of ceremonies at the Palladium ballroom.

For Beatles fans, Paul McCartney attended and was pursued by shrieking camera flashers as he ran to his car in the parking lot with his wife Linda after the awards. He told newsmen he had been here three weeks to work on an album.

McCartney had collected the Grammy for himself and Beatles John Lennon and George Harrison as composers of "Let It Be." The song was honored as best original score written for a motion picture or TV special.

GRAMMY HONORS — Arthur Garfunkel, left, and Paul Simon, better known as Simon and Garfunkel, hold five of the six Grammy Awards they received from the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences at ceremony in Hollywood last night. Among other awards their song "Bridge Over Troubled Water" was chosen as Record of the Year and Song of the Year. They also received award for Album of the Year. (AP Wirephoto)

Beatles Fighting For Supremacy

By DON McNICOLI
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Three of the squabbling Beatles are fighting for supremacy in the British pop records charts.

George Harrison, youngest and quietest of the Beatles, topped the charts for seven weeks with his pop hymn, "My Sweet Lord." World sales now exceed three million.

This week Harrison was ousted from top spot by fellow Beatle Paul McCartney, whose "Another Day" was written with his American wife Linda Eastman, Paul says. Meanwhile, John Lennon and the Plastic Ono Band have clocked into the charts in 195th place with "Power to the People."

Harrison was always in the shadow of the gifted Lennon and McCartney, the song-writing team that set a new style. Now he has become an international star in his own right.

He still tops the lucrative long-play records charts with his triple-record albumn, "All Things Must Pass." It has sold more than two million copies throughout the world.

For the past two months alone, Harrison's earnings as a solo artist total $2.4 million

Under his contract the money is divided five ways, so that Harrison gets only a fifth, but meanwhile of course he gets a similar rakeoff from the other Beatles' individual earnings.

The Beatles' musical links were broken a long time ago in arguments involving jealousy and pride. Their financial links still hold, but that could change. McCartney, trying to dissolve their financial partnership, won the first round of the battle in court a few days ago, but a final ruling will take some time.

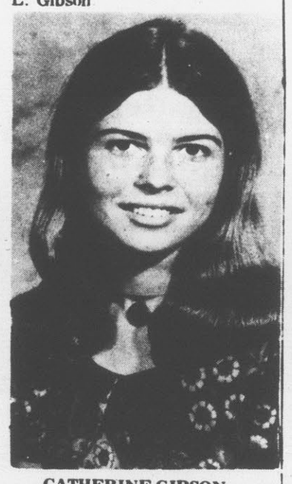

When the Beatles' musical breakup came, all four went their separate ways. Lennon and his Japanese wife Yoko Ono made recordings. So did McCartney. Ringo Starr developed his interest in making films, and also made a country and Western Album in Nashville, Tenn.

Essay Won In District

Lyle Barlow, Rose High student who was winner of the recent Pitt County wide essay contest on the theme "How I Can Help Prevent A Drug Problem", has been announced district winner with his essay.

Mrs. Naomi Edwards, of the Greenville City School office, said she received word on Tuesday from the district reading held in Goldsboro Sunday that Barlow's paper was judged the best in District Nine.

District Nine includes several counties in eastern North Carolina, and the cities of Morehead City, Jacksonville, New Bern, Kinston, Goldsboro and Greenville.

Barlow's essay will now go to the state level, where it will be entered for judging in Wilmington in June. At that time the best essay state-wide on the subject will be selected.

The essay contest at all levels is being sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of North Carolina.

An Operation For 'Doc Adams'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Milburn Stone, the 66-year-old Hollywood actor who plays Doc Adams in the television show "Gunsmoke," has undergone an operation to correct coronary artery disease.

The surgery, in which grafts were implanted to replace sections of blocked artery, was performed Tuesday. The actor was placed in the hospital's intensive care unit after the operation. Doctors described his condition as "stable."

BLANCHE STRICKLEND TAYLOR; LEROY S. TAYLOR; MAUDE STRICKLAND SMITH; HARRY M. SMITH
VS.
WILLIAM HEBER STRICKLAND AND WIFE, JANIE M. STRICKLAND

The undersigned were appointed as Commissioners to sell the hereinafter described land, by Order entered by the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County on the 2nd day of March, 1971 in this proceeding. The Commissioners will sell the hereinafter described land at 12:00 o'clock noon on the 5th day of April, 1971 at the County Court House door in Greenville, N.C.

The real property to be sold is described as follows:

Located in Arthur Township, Pitt County and consists of five (5) different and separate tracts of land with said tracts being described with particularity as follows:

Tract No. 1: Adjoining the lands now or formerly owned by J. R. Strickland, Betty Strickland, and others and described by metes and bounds as follows: "BEGINNING at a stake on a ditch, J.R. Strickland's corner and running south 34-30 east 21.84 chains to a stake on a road; running down the road 7.6 chains to a stake; running thence north 34½ west 13.56 chains to a stake on a ditch; running thence with the windings of said ditch to the beginning and containing thirteen (13) acres more or less."

Tract No. 2: Adjoining the lands now or formerly owned by Betty Strickland, Fannie Nichols, et als, and described by metes and bounds as follows: "BEGINNING at a stake, Betty Strickland's corner, and running south 39½ east 8.30 chains to a stake near Hurley's Branch; running thence south 27 west 26.27 chains to another stake; running thence north 3½ west 8.90 chains to a stake; running thence north 31 east 4.60 chains; running thence north 42 east 0.2 chains to the beginning, and containing five (5) acres more or less."

Tract No. 3: Lying and being in the Village of Arthur and a portion of Arthur Mumford Subdivision, particularly described as follows: BEGINNING at a point in R. T. Strickland's and Mumford and Arthur's line 100 feet from the center line of Norfolk Southern Railroad right of way; running thence in an easterly direction parallel to said right of way about 100 feet to the western boundary of Strickland Street; running thence in a northerly direction with the western boundary of Strickland Street to Smith Street; running thence in a westerly direction with the southern boundary of Smith Street to a ditch; running thence down said ditch to the road, Strickland's line; running thence in a southerly direction with the said Strickland's line to the corner at the beginning and containing four (4) acres more or less.

Tract No. 4: Situate in Arthur (formerly Beaver Dam) Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, bounded on the north by C. H. Rasberry land, on the east by John Leggett land, on the south by C. H. Rasberry land, and on the west by Nichols Road, in that part of the Old Hyman Hooker tract, and more particularly discribed as follows: "BEGINNING at a stake on the Nichols road at C. H. Rasberry's corner, running thence with Rasberry's lot south 70 degrees 55' east a distance of 1,493 feet to a stake in said line at John Leggett's northwest corner; running thence with the said John Leggett's line south 13 west 346 feet to said John Leggett's southwest corner, a stake in said Rasberry line, running thence with the Rasberry line north 74 degrees 7' west a distance of 1,600 feet to a stake on the Nichols road; thence with the said Nichols Road, north 33 degrees 10' east a distance of 430 feet to the beginning containing 13.59 acres of land, more or less."

Tract No. 5: Located in the Town of Bell Arthur and particularly described as follows: Lots 6,7,8 and 9 in Block B of subdivision as shown by survey in map by D. C. James, Civil Engineer, as recorded in Map Book 1 at page 2 in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County.

Tract No. 1 and No. 2 above conveyed to R. T. Strickland by deed dated May 29, 1906, and recorded in Book Z-8 at page 546; tract No. 3 above conveyed to R.T. Strickland by deed dated October 22, 1913 and recorded in Book U-10 at page 95; tract No. 4 above conveyed to R. T. Strickland by deed dated January 18, 1919, and of record in Book S-12 at page 74; tract No. 5 above conveyed to R. T. Strickland by deed dated November 14, 1949, which is duly of record in Book N-25 at page 581, all reference being to the Office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina.

The terms of the sale are a diposit of ten per cent by the highest bidder with the remainder of the purchase price to be paid in cash upon the delivery of instrument conveying title.

The sale is subject to (1) farm lease which expires December 1, 1971 and (2) 1971 advalorem taxes.

The said Commissioners will offer the several parcels of land for sale as described, in separate parcels and then together, and shall accept the highest bid, that is, whichever is the higher, the sum total of each of the parcels sold separately or the total bid for all the parcels sold collectively.

This the 2nd day of March, 1971.

Great-Great-Great-Great-Granddaughter On Visit To U.S.

By WAKA TSUNODA

NEW YORK (AP) — "Who's that lady over there?" a Briton asked an airline official, pointing to a fair haired, matronly woman being interviewed by reporters in the Kennedy Airport lobby.

"She is the great-great-great-granddaughter of Sir Walter Scott," the official replied.

"Oh," the man said, "I'm the great-great-grandson of Charles Dickens."

He disappeared in the crowd before any attempts to verify his claim could be made, but Mrs. Patricia Maxwell-Scott, the great - great - great - granddaughter of the famous 19th Century novelist and poet, was intrigued when she was told of the incident.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful if the descendants of the two men actually had flown together?" she asked excitedly.

Last year belonged to Dickens. It was the 100th anniversary of his death and numerous articles and books appeared commemorating the occasion. This year, however, it's Sir Walter's turn: his 200th birthday.

Sir Walter wrote "Ivanhoe," "The Lady of the Lake," "Kenilworth" and "Quentin Durward" among others, and they once were required reading in every school. He hasn't been as popular in recent years, but some feel this man who helped found 19th century romanticism in literature may be due for a revival, now that romantic novels and movies seem to be in again.

Mrs. Maxwell-Scott, who admits she has read her ancestor's major works but hasn't bothered about all the minor ones, says, "I believe there's a revival among students in England. Two of his novels have been televised, Kenilworth and Redgauntlet. Also a documentary has been shot by the BBC. It's about the last six years of great-great-great grandfather, so Lady Scott was dying, Sir Walter was dying in the dining room, everybody was dying, and it was very depressing."

Mrs. Maxwell-Scott, 49, was on a North American tour marking the 200th birthday and was carrying such relics as a lock of the author's white hair enclosed in a pendant, and a purse made of moleskin which once belonged to Rob Roy, a colorful Scottish folk hero who was the subject of Sir Walter's novel of the same title.

She is, so to speak, "the full-time descendant," although there are several of her first cousins living in England. She is the owner of Abbotsford, the mansion Sir Walter built and where he spent his last years. The 150-acre property on the banks of the River Tweed has been the home of the Scott family ever since and has been open to the public as a historical monument since 1833.

Mrs. Maxwell-Scott was born in Ireland and educated in a French convent in southern England, but Abbotsford was always a "home" to go back to. After three years in the women's army during World War II and a few years of living abroad when married (she is separated now), she went back to Abbotsford permanently when she was 28. A couple of years later her father died and she took the whole thing over. Now she runs the mansion, which includes a tea shop and a gift shop, with her younger sister, Jean, two gardeners and their wives, a curator and several temporary helpers during the summer months.

"We are open between March and October. Some 40,000 people visited us last year," she said. They come from all over the world. One-third are American.

"I have funny encounters with visitors. A lady stepped off a sightseeing bus and asked me 'I understand ancestors will be on view here. May I see them?' Some ask my sister when I am right there, 'What's the owner like?' And there was a blind girl from Salt Lake City who tape-recorded my reading of passages from The Lady of the Lake. It was her way of taking photographs."

Authors Court On Her Help

By H. G JONES
N.C. Dept. Archives and History
Written for The AP

RALEIGH (AP) — Mrs. Mary Jeffreys Rogers has never written an article or a book. Her name is not among the list of leading North Carolina historians. But for 35 years she has been a fountainhead of information and assistance authors whose publications have brought them fame.

As search room supervisor in the State Archives in Raleigh, Mrs. Rogers has become a legend. Hers is the first face that a researcher sees upon entering the splendid new Search Room in the Archives and History - State Library Building. Invariably she displays a quick smile, followed by an inquisitive look which expresses the question, "May I help you?"

After furnishing the researcher with the desired records, she returns to the pile of letters on her marble-top charging desk, all the while keeping an eye on the large, comfortable room that seats about 50 readers.

Mrs. Rogers has assisted tens of thousands of researchers in the use of the archives holdings, which now are estimated at 40 million pages of original records and 30,000 rolls of microfilm.

Few books have been written on North Carolina history that were not based in part on these records. And for more than a third of a century the patient, quiet Mrs. Rogers has been on the job, suggesting sources, bringing out manuscripts, putting on microfilm reels, and cautioning readers to handle these materials with great care.

The bright, carpeted Search Room in which Mrs. Rogers now works is a far cry from the crowded, makeshift quarters she occupied March 1, 1926, when she went to work for the National Youth Administration for less than $60 a month. The location of the Archives was then the old State Library Building — now the Ruffin Building.

Later she was transferred to the payroll of the Works Progress Administration, and when funds for that program were not available, she was paid by the Genealogical Society of Utah. She recalls that for two weeks nobody paid her, but she kept working and her faith paid off. In 1942 the late Dr. Christopher Crittenden appointed her to the position she has held ever since.

Mrs. Rogers is the former Mary Jeffreys, daughter of Mrs. Mary Wiggins Jeffreys and the late William E. Jeffreys of Wake County. Her husband, Raymond Rogers, was killed in a farm accident last year.

In looking back over a third of a century, Mary Rogers has the satisfaction of knowing that she has furnished information that has enabled writers to publish hundreds of books and articles. She has been content to see the finished products of her contributions credited to others.

Thursday the Executive Board of the Department of Archives and History will recognize her at its spring luncheon.

Old Ruins May Be Of Major Temple

By JAVIER IBARROLA

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Part of what experts think may have been the largest Aztec temple built in the 14th century, has been discovered near the main square of Mexico City—a site where the Aztecs founded "La Gran Tenochtitlan"—Mexico City's predecessor—in 1312.

Workers who were building a parking lot near the National Palace told History and Anthropology Institute experts that they had discovered "some painted stones and a skull."

The archeologists went immediately to take a look and declared, after digging about 12 feet, that this was possibly the "Grān Teocalli Azteca," the largest Aztec temple.

"It is a great discovery," said Alfredo Melo, a member of the Institute in charge of restoring works.

"Even if it is not the major Aztec temple, the discovery means a great deal because it is the first time we have a sample of Aztec painting."

Melo worked carefully at a rectangular stone about three feet long and wide and two feet tall. It was painted on the sides, showing skulls and bones with a stone skull raised on the middle of the front side.

The exact shape or location of the Gran Teocalli has not yet been determined.

"It is not impossible to say if it is the great Aztec temple," Melo said. "It also may be the grave of an Aztec personality or a Tzompantli, the place where the Aztecs kept the skulls of their sacrificed victims."

The paintings on the stone apparently refer to funeral ceremonies and a series of painted skulls seems to indicate a specific direction.

"These paintings could be our best clue to further investigations, so we will aim our work to where the skulls lead," Melo added.

Anniversary To See Renovation

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Zoological Society which operates Brookfield Zoo will celebrate its 50th anniversary in 1971. It will renovate the zoo.

The Cook County Forest Preserve Commissioners have obtained authority to issue more than $15.6 million in bonds to revamp the facilities. Modernization will be carefully phased during the next several years.

Several experts have been called in to make plans.

Fritz Walther, a noted authority on antelopes, has been called to advise on a proposed African water hole exhibit. Cat expert Dr. Paul Leyhausen of Germany's Max Planck Institute has been consulted to develop a new nocturnal exhibit for the lion house.

Interior Space Planning Needed

NEW YORK (UPI)—In housing or places of work, unplanned interior space is as detrimental to mental and social behavior as water and air pollution are to health. Since more than 200 million Americans spend 80 per cent of their time in enclosed spaces, these spaces must be considered an integral part of total environmental rehabilitation. This word comes from Magdalene Pfister, University of Nebraska Extension home furnishings specialist.

Environmental Factors Cited

NEW YORK (UPI)—Product development should be planned with the environment in mind, says the head of a specialty chemical products and environmental services firm.

"As an example," said Dr. Vsevolod Blinoff, president of Alcolac Inc., Baltimore, "for the paper industry we have developed a product that coats paper by flocculating (forming small lumps or loose clusters into a mass) the pigments onto the paper. The unique properties of this item, as planned, give it a dual capability for the paper mill in that it can also be used in clarifying the effluent from the mill."

Pharmaceutical Boom In Africa

NEW YORK (UPI)—South Africa's $490 million-a-year miscellaneous chemical industry got a big boost last year from a 17 per cent increase in the pure pharmaceuticals market, says the Information Service of South Africa.

Pharmaceuticals, fastest-growing sector of the chemical industry, had a turnover of $189 million in 1970.

They Dig 'Sega' On Faraway Mauritius

By KENNETH L. WHITING

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (AP) — The Caribbean has calypso and Spain the flamenco. West Africans favor high life rhythm and "with it" young America swings to the funky chicken. On faraway Mauritius they dig the sega.

The dance is as exclusive to this remote Indian Ocean island as its now defunct dodo bird.

The sega—pronounced "say-gah"—was created by Creoles. Creoles are mulattos, a mixed breed which evolved through mixing by French, Dutch and British settlers and slaves brought from Africa two centuries ago to labor in the sugar cane fields.

The modern sega is what was left from the high jinks of these former slaves who were strongly influenced by ancestor worship and the power of evil spirits.

One authority says the sega originated in sacred ritual, a week-long funeral dirge to exorcise evil spirits and ease the dead person's entry into the hereafter.

The slaves rattled metal dishes and made loud noises around the coffin. Before burial the din would gradually change into a throbbing rhythm and improvised songs would take the form of a conversation with the soul of the deceased.

The sega was stripped of religious significance as time passed. Education and church pressure altered the primitive society into today's Creole civilization.

Islanders say the best sega is found at Black River, a hamlet about 15 miles southwest of the capital. Few outsiders are privileged to see the unvarnished version, however.

The dance displayed at tourist hotels is regarded with scorn by most Mauritians. It gives onlookers the idea sega rhythm, they say, but is far too inhibited and calculated to reflect the dance as performed by and for Creoles.

In its purest form the sega is sensual and erotic. Tradition demands that male dancers do not touch, obstruct or collide with their partners. The women wiggle their hips rapidly and rock from side to side. The men, reports one observer, "hurl themselves about with wild gusto and abandon."

The purified version often has four male dancers and three women in colorful costumes accompanied by drums, an electric guitar and a marimba.

FBI Chief Has Personal Faith

SPRINFGIELD, Mo. (UPI)—The Assemblies of God denomination has published a booklet in which J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, professes his personal faith in God.

In the booklet, titled "J. Edgar Hoover Testifies," Hoover says; "Throughout my career in law enforcement, I have been strengthened and comforted by personal faith in Christ. This faith has supported me whether I am awaiting word about a desperate criminal fighting it out with FBI agents, hoping for the safe return of a kidnapped child, or making a decision involving the security of our country."

JAWBREAKER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mjolkursukkaladi is a mouthful in more ways than one. It's the Icelandic way of saying "milk chocolate." And the approximate pronounciation, says the Chocolate Manufacturers Association of the U.S.A., goes like this —"myilka-tsook-a-la-dee." See?

Susannah York, Eliz. Taylor Plan 'Surprise'

By DONALD FORBES
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Susannah York isn't really the kind of girl you would expect to find in another woman's bed.

Miss York is no sultry, high sex octane screen siren. She is an actress who radiates a cool, typically English beauty that looks a thousand light years removed from conventional bedroom hi-jinks, not to mention the unconventional.

But there she was in "The Killing of Sister George," performing, for all the world to gasp, intimate aberrations with a co-member of the fair sex.

And it seems, though no one will come right out and say it, that the blonde and leggy Miss York may be at it again in her latest film, "Zee"—and with Elizabeth Taylor at that.

The studio is being coy over what actually happens (they don't want to spoil it all in advance). But the original script called for Miss Taylor and Miss York to bed together, with Michael Caine—who plays Miss Taylor's husband—as well.

Instead, they've settled for a "surprise." However, since Miss York's known "Zee" confessions include kissing another girl on the mouth at school and falling in love with a nun, it can't be any average old surprise.

Unlike "The Killing of Sister George," "Zee" isn't basically about lesbianism. It is an "eternal triangle" story with Miss Taylor—making her first film in over a year—at the apex, trying to hold down an errant husband while Miss York does her best to woo him into adulterous misdemeanor.

Miss York—in reality a demure 29 and happily married to an actor-turned-director—is proud of her role in "Sister George."

In an interview at Shepperton Studios outside London she said: "I sympathize with the problems which women homosexuals must encounter. It's one of the movies I'm glad to have made."

She added:

"Naturally, I had qualms about making it, but not because of any uneasiness over the lesbian aspect. I had to be naked on screen, which meant filming intimate scenes in which I made love with another woman in front of about 80 people, technicians, cameramen and the rest.

"To tell the truth, I was just embarrassed. I'm a shy kind of person. But I liked the script, and it was a film I wanted to do, so I just went ahead anyway."

She has enjoyed working with Elizabeth Taylor, who appears on the set complete with the famed million-dollar Cartier-Burton diamond blinking like an enormous pale blue eye from one finger.

"I wondered what Liz would be like," she said. "In fact, she's wonderful, very friendly and helpful."

She seemed touched by the closeness of the Burton menage. When Richard Burton—who prowled the "Zee" set most lunchtimes—went off to Wales for a few days, Miss York and the rest of the unit half wondered whether the star would just pack up and go off to join him.

"She complained she'd never been separated from Richard for so long in 10 years," Miss York explained.

Miss York herself does an appealing line in English school girl expressions like "golly" and "oh crumbs"—but with 18 movies behind her, the film industry knows better than to construe that as evidence she is nothing more than melting femininity.

Miss York is the actress who as a 20-year-old slip of a starlet had a fist fight with John Huston. Gentleman Huston—who was directing her in a film biography of Freud—let her throw all the punches. As she beat a drum roll on his chest, Miss York explained exactly what she thought of the director's techniques in general and his treatment of costar Montgomery Clift in particular. Huston, she said, was giving nice Mr. Clift an unnecessarily hard time.

She still knows how not to be a lady when artistic intentions on set don't jell. But her alter ego on "Zee", American director Brian Hutton, discovered the impulsive and independent-minded Miss York has mellowed since her tussle with Huston. At least, nowadays, she keeps her fists unclenched and just argues.

"When Brian tells me how to play a scene, I might disagree heatedly. But now I go off and mull it over for a bit. If I see he's right, I go back and play it his way. If I don't, we argue it out until we find the right answer," she said.

Successful films she has made include "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" for which she received a Hollywood Oscar nomination. She also is remembered for her role in the bawdy film version of the Henry Fielding classic, "Tom Jones."

"Zee" will join a queue of recent movies she has completed which are waiting for release. They include "Jane Eyre," with George C. Scott, which will be shown on American television.

Off screen, she likes to travel, lazing around the Dordogne in France, Scotland or Ireland or flipping across to Mexico "where I've been three times now, so perhaps I ought to change to somewhere new."

Between films, she's been writing a children's book which is currently languishing on a shelf at her country home after reaching a fourth draft.

"I never seem to be satisfied with it," she said. "Only a few friends have seen it and they have had some pretty frank criticisms of the way its worked out."

She smiled:

"Now I'm waiting to get into the mood to tackle a fifth draft."

Her other passion is a diary—not shown to friends—in which she writes religiously every day "because it's fun to read years later. It serves another purpose as well. If there's something bothering me, I write it all down. Seeing it on paper I can sort my problems out in my mind."

Ford-Built Car Sales Boomed

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI)—Retail sales of Ford-built cars and trucks in the Free World outside the United States and Canada set a record in 1970 for the second consecutive year.

Ford dealers in overseas markets sold 1,552,000 cars and trucks last year, up nearly 6 per cent from the previous record of 1,468,600 vehicles sold in 1969.

Carpentry For Executives, Too

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new office desk line will make it necessary for a business executive to add a screwdriver to the list of modern office "tools" he uses.

"Interchangeable desk parts will be a boon to the economy-minded businessman," says Robert J. Runge, president of a Dictaphone furniture division. "With it he can modify his needs by simply switching desk panels or adding parts —all it takes is a screwdriver."

Big Savings In Snow-Removal

NEW YORK (UPI)—The economic toll that one winter could take from the business community of a snow-belt city if it didn't have effective ice-and-snow-removal procedures would run to tens of millions of dollars, according to studies conducted in Detroit.

The Public Affairs Committee of the Engineering Society of Detroit estimated that if the Motor City's road-salting and snow-removal programs were abandoned the resulting immobilization would raise the economic cost of bad weather by some $90 million a year.

DON'T BLAME PAINT

NEW YORK (UPI)—Poor results on a paint job are not always the fault of the paint. Inadequate preparation of the surface to be painted, moisture, or the wrong paint for the job can all give equally disappointing results.

Girls Invited Join Explorers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Teenaged girls are being invited to join the Explorers, the previously males—only extension of the Boy Scouts of America.

A one-year trial is under way and 94 of the 181 Explorer posts in the Portland area have admitted girls to membership.

Son Adopted By Bachelor

BACHELOR BILL JONES gets a bear hug from his adopted son, Aaron. Jones is the first single man in California to adopt a son. (UPI Telephoto)

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Three years ago Bill Jones shattered one of the strongest bastions of female chauvinism —motherhood.

Jones, 43, a handsome bachelor actor and real estate man, became mother and father to a two-year-old boy named Aaron. He was the first single man in California to adopt a child.

His bachelor father status gained him a great deal of fame and a sense of responsibility he still feels, not only for Aaron, but for other single men who want to adopt.

Receives Proposals

"Single parents who adopt almost always have been women," said Jones, who received several proposals of marriage after adopting the blue-eyed boy.

"Men want to have children, too," he said. "A lot of women I know shouldn't be parents."

Jones feels society has made it "unthinkable for a man to be a single parent" by associating child rearing only with women.

"If a wife could get a good job and support the family, why shouldn't the husband take care of the children?" he asked.

Aaron doesn't lack female influence, Jones is quick to point out.

"I have a girl friend who has three children, one a three-year-old daughter. I also rent a small studio to an ex-schoolteacher and she does baby sitting."

Aaron also has six honorary grandmothers and countless aunts.

Jones, who had a part in "Bullitt" and has made several television commercials, takes Aaron on the many trips resulting from the publicity surrounding the adoption.

The father and son have appeared on magazine covers, network television shows and been the subject of newspaper stories.

"At first I was afraid of all the publicity but we have received almost 3,000 letters from around the world," Jones said. "Not one of them was bad. Hundreds were filled with love for us."

Jones hopes that he and Aaron can influence a liberalization of adoption laws —and not just so far as single men are concerned.

"In some places a white child must go to a white family, a Catholic child to a Catholic family," he said. "In 1969 San Francisco placed 380 children. All of New York State placed around 400. You can see how outmoded their adoption laws were."

Dorothy Murphy of San Francisco's Department of Social Services says since Jones adopted Aaron other men are now in the process of adopting children.

"But as far as I know," she said, "Bill Jones is the only man in the state, maybe the nation, whose adoption of a child has become final."

Professor First

More than 20 children have been placed with single parents in the San Francisco area since the practice started five years ago following a change in state law.

Dr. Mary Lane, a professor of education at San Francisco State College, was the first single person permitted to adopt children in San Francisco.

"I got Jay, who is 5½, and Kelley, 3, when they were babies," she said.

Another single parent is Doris Thomas, aide to Rep. Phillip Burton.

In 1967 she saw a picture of a little girl in a newspaper with the headline: "This Little Girl Needs A Home."

"I kept thinking about that. I was single, busy with politics and friends but that idea stayed with me," the former New York social worker said.

"I called the San Francisco Department of Social Services one day and they told me to come in."

Toddler Delights

Miss Thomas went through "what seemed like a long time" undergoing talks and checks and references. Finally she was approved and the department showed her a curly-haired toddler.

"She looked up and said, 'Hi' and I said 'That's for me.'"

The little girl was named Tandi after a friend, the daughter of an African chief.

For the past year Miss Thomas' life has revolved around Tandi, now 3.

"The most wonderful, amazing thing has happened to my life," Miss Thomas said.

"She brought so much joy to me."

Reflective Tape For Children

NEW YORK (UPI)—Safety authorities suggest putting sew-on reflective tape on clothing children wear outdoors after dark. Create decorative designs or racing stripes on jackets, sweaters, sweatshirts and caps so that car headlights pick up the reflection. More than half of all fatal car-pedestrian accidents since 1961 have occurred after dark. The reflective tape may be one way of keeping your child from being involved in such an accident.
