SST 'Shot Down' By House Refusal To Pay The Bill

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)— The stunning rejection by the House of continued federal spending for a supersonic transport plane raises the distinct possibility the United States may leave development of the SST to other world powers.

In a reversal of its position last year, the House voted Thursday against spending another $290 million to help the nation's aviation industry build two SST prototypes.

Still to be heard from is the Senate. But that chamber moved last year to cut off government SST money, and a reaffirmation of that position in a vote which probably will come next week, will end federal financing March 30.

Since it is generally agreed the depressed aviation industry could not afford to finance SST development, continued work on a U.S. model would hinge on the Nixon administration's emergency alternative financing plans. These have not been spelled out but are said to include a bond issue approach rejected by the White House two years ago.

Meanwhile, the Senate took up today a bill offered by SST backers in an effort to woo support for the plane. The proposal would ban sonic booms over the United States, answering a major objection to the 1,800-mile-an-hour plane.

And the Senate Appropriations Committee called a closed session to consider the $290-million administration SST request the House voted down Thursday.

Acting on an amendment by Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill., the House eliminated the money in a nonrecord 218-204 vote, then made it final on a 215-204 roll call.

"The House vote is great news for those of us who have been fighting the supersonic transport," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. "It is possible that the House vote will give us just the advantage we need to win."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., in whose state the Boeing Co. would build the 298-passenger plane, called the House defeat "a very unfortunate trend in development against science and technology as a whole."

Gerald L. Warren, Deputy White House press secretary, said President Nixon is disappointed with the House vote but is hopeful the Senate will reverse the decision.

The Nixon administration contends an American SST is necessary to continue U.S. dominance of world aviation since the Soviet Union, Britain and France are building their own versions. SST development would create thousands of jobs and spur the lagging economy, backers say.

Opponents argued economy and ecology. A fleet of noisy, high-flying, faster-than-sound planes could adversely affect the climate, they said, and might cause an increase in skin-cancer cases by disrupting the earth's ozone band which filters ultraviolet rays.

Opponents said spending millions on a plane designed for the jet set seemed ludicrous considering other national needs. And they argued there is no assurance airlines would buy the plane.

Observers of Congress offered three reasons for the turnaround from 205-185 House approval of SST money last year: New members lined up 35 to 18 against the funds; a recent rule change requiring record votes on amendments, such as the one to strike the SST monolith heavy lobbying against the craft by environmental groups.

GAO To Report Overruns Calley Jury 'Re-Hashing'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A General Accounting Office study due for release today shows cost overruns for 61 weapons systems so far total $33.4 billion or an average of $500 million apiece, according to The Washington Post.

About $9.5 billion of the increase took place even before production began, between first Pentagon estimates given to Congress and later estimates after preliminary designs were completed, the Post reported in today's editions.

The largest overruns cited by the GAO were $3 billion for the Navy's Mark 48 torpedo and $2.9 billion for the Air Force's Minuteman III missile, the Post said.

The report blames overruns on "deliberate underestimating" as well as unanticipated development difficulties, faulty planning, poor management, bad estimating and inflation. It suggests the Pentagon's weapons-buying has improved in recent months, the Post said.

The Post said it obtained an advance copy of the 8-page report, "Acquisition of Major Weapons Systems."

ARVN Repaying The North Viets

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Vietnamese forces are leaving many mines buried in their wake in Laos, hidden hazards for North Vietnamese troops and trucks using the Ho Chi Minh trail.

A Pentagon source reporting this said, "in a way the South Vietnamese are paying the enemy back."

Booby traps and other explosives left by Communist forces in South Vietnam have caused many casualties among allied soldiers over the years.

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Lt. William L. Calley's lawyer says there is far too much rehashing of testimony for the My Lai murder trial jury and demands that the judge put a stop to it. The judge has declined to do so "at this particular point."

"They're getting way beyond anything that could be anticipated in this proceeding," attorney George Latimer complained Thursday night as the jury wound up its second day of deliberations with 3½ hours of looking at slides and listening to rereading of testimony delivered four months ago.

More reading aloud was in store for the jury today. A screen and projector replaced the map of My Lai that was almost a permanent fixture in the trial, already the longest court-martial in history.

It was apparent from the multiple requests that came from the jury that their discussions had bogged down on the initial stages of the March 16, 1968 infantry assault on My Lai, and indications were that a verdict may be long in coming.

The jury is weighing whether Calley deliberately set about executing 102 villagers that day. The first of four charges accuses him of at least 30 murders at the intersection of two trails along the south edge of the village.

Calley contends he was never near that crossing, and the few witnesses who testified to the incident disagreed where it occurred in the hamlet, no longer than four football fields. In his instructions to the jury, Judge Reid Kennedy said:

"If you are not satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the killings occurred . . . in the vicinity of the north-south trail intersection, but instead conclude that they occurred elsewhere in the village, Lt. Calley cannot be found guilty of specification one of the charge."

The testimony reread by the court reporters dealt entirely with the trail crossing.

The 20 pictures shown the jury are ground and aerial views made in November 1969 by the Army's Criminal Investigation Division, another sign that in making the request the jurors were trying to orient themselves better.

Latimer protested that showing the slides amounted to introducing new evidence and that there was danger in allowing the jury to ask for a voluminous rereading of the testimony.

"At this point, I would expect these gentlemen to take their time," the judge answered. "They have got an extremely difficult decision to make."

But Latimer persisted. "The way it's going, it's going to be a rehash of everything that's gone before," he said. "They are not investigators, as you pointed out. They're jurors."

The judge ended the discussion with: "At this particular point, I'm satisfied they are well within their rights and ought to be commended for it."

Ninth Local Resident Arrested On Drug-Law Violations By Police

Greenville police last night arrested one more local area resident on drug-law violation charges as a crack-down on illegal narcotics and other drugs continued.

James Samuel Viverette, 26, of 209 East 12th St. was taken into custody about 7:30 p.m. according to officers.

Viverette was arrested on a warrant signed by State Bureau of Investigation agents, charging him with the illegal sale of stimulant drugs. He is the ninth person to be taken into custody in a crackdown on illegal drug traffic which began Tuesday night.

SBI undercover investigators, working on drug cases in the area since October allegedly purchased stimulant drugs from Viverette, one of 16 Greenville area persons the SBI held warrants for when they arrived in Greenville Tuesday night to begin the crackdown.

Before coming to Greenville, SBI agents and local law enforcement officers had arrested a total of 23 persons in Tarboro, Rocky Mount, Wilson and Washington on drug law violation charges.

Five of the 16 local residents the SBI held warrants for were taken into custody Tuesday night and early Wednesday. Three other persons were taken into custody Wednesday night, charged by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department with possessing illegal drugs.

Gasoline Bids

Gasoline for vehicles used by the City of Greenville was the subject of a special call meeting of the City Council last night at 8:00 p.m.

Low bid for the city's gas for a one year period beginning April 1 came in at 16.55 cents per gallon. Councilmen approved the bid, awarding the contract for the gasoline supply to Allied Petroleum for Texaco Sky Chief gasoline.

Bids were opened at noon on Monday, with bids received from six competitors. The highest bid received was at 31.50 cents per gallon.

All bids are without state and federal taxes. The high bid of 31.50 cents per gallon was for 100 plus octane gasoline.

of the SBI undercover investigation were charged with the illegal sale of drugs.

According to SBI director Charles Dunn, the bureau's investigations were aimed at hitting "the pusher and suppliers" who sell drugs to high school and college students.

He said the raids "may have the effect of slowing the drug traffic down some but will not stop it."

Dunn, too, praised the cooperation between the SBI and local law enforcement agencies in conducting the roundup.

Egyptians Fire On Israeli Jets

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian anti-aircraft guns opened fire on Israeli planes this morning for the first time since the Middle East cease-fire began last summer, the official Middle East News Agency reported.

The two Israeli jets—identified as Phantom jets—apparently were not hit. The agency said the two aircraft intruded over Egyptian positions at Port Fuad at the northern end of the Suez Canal.

Urge Orange County Be Kept In Fourth District

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A large delegation from the 4th Congressional District has urged a legislative committee to keep Orange County in the district in any realigning of congressional districts.

Former Gov. Terry Sanford, now president of Duke University, led the group Thursday in urging that the Research Triangle counties of Durham, Wake and Orange be retained in the same congressional district.

Sanford and the other spokesmen appeared at a public hearing before the House Congressional District Committee which has before it a Senatepassed redistricting bill that would shift Orange County to the 2nd district.

The committee also heard Allen H. Gwyn Jr. of Reidsville urge that Rockingham County be kept in the 6th district as the bill proposes. Gwyn said there had been proposals to shift Rockingham to another district.

"We want to remain in the 6th district," said Dwyn. "We have economic and cultural ties with the 6th district, especially Guilford County."

Another spokesman, Rep. James C. Green, D-Bladen, asked that his county be retained in the 7th district instead of being transferred to the 3rd as the bill proposes. Green suggested that Hoke County be moved out of the 7th and Bladen retained. "If you take Hoke out and leave Bladen in you would have a much better looking district," Green said.

Those speaking for keeping Orange County in the 4th district also included Watts Hill Sr. of Chapel Hill, President of the Triangle Institute; Sen. Claude Currie, D-Durham; William Joslin of Raleigh, chairman of the 4th District Democratic Executive Committee; Tom Barringer of Raleigh, president of the Wake Young Democratic Clubs; and Hugh Wilson of Orange County.

The committee was read a letter from Mayor Howard Lee of Chapel Hill urging that Orange County be kept in the 4th district with other Research Triangles. The committee was told former Gov. Luther Hodges had written a similar letter.

Hill said the Research Triangle counties of Wake, Durham and Orange "have a natural affinity."

Joslin urged that instead of moving Orange from the 4th district that Randolph County be shifted out and Caswell County added to the district.

Currie said the Research Triangle counties should be kept together because there is "a kinship there which would be damaged by separation."

Pace Slackened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation continued at a slack pace in February, the government reported today, with a rise in the cost of living of two-tenths of one per cent.

The rise was more than the one-tenth of one per cent increase for the previous month but less than the monthly increases of from three-tenths to five-tenths of one per cent that prevailed from September through December.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, issuing the monthly report, attributed the February increase to higher food prices and increases in cost of apparel and most consumer services. These were moderated by declines in mortgage interest rates and prices of used cars and gasoline.

The February increase means it cost $119.40 to buy what $100 did in 1967.

Attorney Asks Give Juveniles Trial By Jury

GREENSBORO (AP) — Wallace C. Harrelson, chief public defender in Guilford County, has asked county legislators to offer a bill giving North Carolina juveniles the right to trial by jury.

"Juveniles in this state just do not have that right and are not afforded the same protections as adults in court proceedings," Harrelson contended.

Harrelson sent memorandums today to members of the state legislature and to C. E. Hindsdale, assistant director of the Institute of Government emphatically recommending legislation during this session of the general assembly to provide for juveniles' right to trial.

In the letters, the public defender wrote, "I feel that a juvenile, if he is to be given protections provided for in the United States Constitution and in the North Carolina Constitution, must be given the right to trial by jury."

Harrelson also asserted in his memorandum to the Institute of Government, "in juvenile delinquency cases here the judge serves as the judge, solicitor and jury."

"How can a child get a fair shake under these conditions?" Harrelson asked. "This situation greatly hinders a juveniles right to appeal," he said.

"No court reporter is present during juvenile cases and as a result, no transcript of the lower court proceedings against a child is made," he said.

On Track?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional sources briefed by J. Edgar Hoover say the FBI seems to be on the track of persons responsible for the recent Capitol bombing.

"I'm quite encouraged," said one source. "It seemed to me they knew who they were looking for."

"Hoover didn't say specifically they would be making arrests soon, though," the source added. "They're still collecting information."

Hoover, FBI director, appeared before a House appropriations subcommittee Thursday.

Haute Couture Turns To 'Finance'

By CATHARINE BREWSTER
Women's News Service
NEW YORK (WNS) —
 "Conglomerate" is a Wall Street term which would seem to have little to do with the chiffons and feathers of women's fashions. Yet this somewhat forbidding word is today very much a part of the fashion field, even for the most elegant fashion names. Amidst all the surface glamor of fashion, money remains an even bigger problem than it is in other industries. For one thing, fashion is always a gamble, with every season as new and big a risk as if a designer had never worked before. For another, fashion is a business in which the investment is all tion-dollar purchase for Cartier without knowing that he would have an immediate buyer. Otherwise, Mr. Kenmore says he has no interest in fashion, not even for himself. He thinks it's better that way, as he doesn't wish to get into creating.

Traditionally, the people who have money to invest have been leery of the fashion business. They think of designers as egomaniacs who are impossible to deal with. One of the first to go into financing was Ben Shaw, who had himself been a well-known dress manufacturer for a number of years. After retiring in his fifties, he found himself bored, and began to think of becoming the investment element of other firms. Among the firms he quietly entered have been Norman Norell, Donald Brooks, Leo Narducci and Geoffrey Beene. Mr. Shaw isn't a conglomerate, however, but more of what used to be called a "silent partner," who watches over the business side so that the designers can be free of that worry.

Mrs. Joe Bass has returned home from Charlotte after spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Spell and family. She was accompanied home by Mr. Bass and their grandson, Steven Spell, who will spend two weeks here.

Kenmore
 His success led others to eye the fashion field. Next came Robert Kenmore, who set up the first true fashion conglomerate, Kenton Corporation. Unlike Mr. Shaw, who invests in his firms, Kenton buys up a firm. It now owns Cartier (fine jewelry), Mark Cross (fine leather goods), Ben Kahn and Georges Kaplan (furs), Kenneth J. Lane (costume jewelry), Valentino (Italian couture), Republic-Cellini (sportswear imports), and Family Bargain Stores (retail chain).

Mr. Kenmore doesn't interfere in the creative side of his fashion businesses, thus avoiding any conflict with designer egos. He starts with confidence in the talent, supplies the needed money and management to assist their growth and stability. His biggest personal judgment on product so far has been the purchase of the huge diamond which Richard Burton bought for his wife, Elizabeth Taylor. Mr. Kenmore had to make the

Ricciardi
 Franc Ricciardi might be said to have even less personal interest. He was formerly president of Walter Kidde & Company, the kind of conglomerate which owns everything from bank vaults and construction cranes to automobile parts and steamship companies. When he formed the Richton Group to go into consumer product firms, Mr. Ricciardi was amazed to find that designer names which are nationally famous were the smallest of companies. The Richton acquisitions include Oscar de La Renta International (American high fashion), Valerian S. Rybar (interior decor), Coro, Inc. (costume jewelry), Maximilian Furs, Bond Street Ltd. (leather goods), Koret and Ronay, Inc. (handbags), Aspen Skiwear and Chic-Maid Manufacturing Co.

Besides supplying expansion money, both Kenton and Richton help market the name appeal of their designers. Oscar de La Renta, for instance, has designed mattress coverings for the Simmons Company, and plans are under way to get the Valentino name on various products which will become established brands. In that way, the designer name won't die with its creator.

Paris couturiers long ago managed this immortality, particularly Christian Dior, but it is a new thing for American talent. Bill Blass and Oleg Cassini are among the few who have managed to extend their creative talent beyond their own firms, but even they have remained solely within the fashion field. The conglomerates may well bring the "designer name" concept to many consumer products in order to improve the taste level of their designing.

The Watch Runs, Should She Grin And Wear It?

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Last year while my husband was going with another woman he gave her a Swiss watch for Christmas. They had a fight in February and he broke up with her and asked her for the watch. She gave it to him. Now my husband says I can have the watch if I want it. It looks good as new. Should I wear it? NOT PROUD

DEAR NOT: Why not—if it keeps time. [Look inside. Maybe he gave the other woman the "works".]

DEAR ABBY: A high school girl [I'll call Alice] told me that she and another girl ride to school every morning with three guys. Alice always sits in the back seat between two guys. It's a small car and quite crowded. Alice says she doesn't wear a bra, and this one guy [I'll call him Rick] keeps putting his hands underneath her sweater and jacket and tries to feel her up without anyone else knowing it. Alice tries to push his hand away, but she can't push very far. Alice says she doesn't want to embarrass herself and everyone else in the car by making a scene, so she asked a counselor what to do, and this counselor told her to whisper into Rick's ear that if he didn't stop she would yell and cause a scene. This counselor also told Alice to try dressing "defensively,"—like a one-piece jumpsuit so Rick can't get to her.

What do you think of such advice? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Not much. No girl should have to dress "defensively" to keep a guy from "feeling her up."

I would have advised that girl to knock the octopus on the noggin with her algebra book the moment she felt him getting fresh. And at the same time to yell in a very loud voice that he should keep his creepy paws to himself!

DEAR ABBY: I just read that letter from the GI who is overseas. He said, "After living a normal married life for three years, what is a young, healthy man supposed to do for his physical needs? After all, I'm only human."

You turned it around and told him to do exactly what you would tell his wife to do since she had the same problem. "Keep busy, stay sober, avoid temptation, write every day and pray a lot."

That was good advice, Abby. It also applies to me because I am a wife who is without her man now. My husband isn't overseas. He's in prison. And he has another three years to go. I'm also only human but I will remain faithful because I love him with all my heart. I pray a lot, and I know that God hears my prayers and will keep me strong and help me fight this loneliness. HIS WIFE

DEAR ABBY: The secretary who signed herself "No Guts," should have signed herself NO BRAINS. She beamed to you about having to write her boss's thank-you notes and send out his Christmas cards. A really good secretary does all of this, and is in effect a social secretary to her boss. "No Guts" should resign and move into the steno pool. That's her speed. NO BEEFS

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Carol Hardee gave a brief review of the club's activities since March, 1970. Mrs. Hardee highlighted the various guests who had spoken to the club at their regular monthly meetings and other educational functions. She also reported on special social events, money-making projects and the fact that the club had gained several new members during the year.

Perfect attendance awards were presented to those members who had earned them by club president, Mary Roberson. Clara Seago received her 14th year perfect attendance award.

The evening was concluded by all present repeating the CWI club creed.

Mixed Drinks Gain Strength

The defeat of the statewide liquor-by-the-drink bill in the House this week at least may settle one issue which had to be decided before Legislative adjournment can come.

It was also a bitter defeat for Charlotte, Asheville and other areas where the feeling is that mixed drinks are essential to building the tourist and convention trade that is so important there.

In past years, defeat of liquor by the drink may have been accepted as something that was bound to happen in the State Legislature. This year, however, proponents of the measure seemed to feel that they had a real chance of getting a local option

Foresee Drink Victory In '73

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Victory foreshadowed in defeat was seen by many legislators this week after the House rejected by an 11-vote margin liquor-by-the-drink legislation.

"It's a sure thing in '73," said Rep. Horton Rountree of Pitt.

"Look at the bloc vote for it from urban counties," he counseled. "They'll be stronger next time because of redistricting. That will shift more than enough votes to put liquor-by-the-drink through."

Populous counties such as Mecklenburg and Guilford, with the cities of Charlotte

ded. Opposition Rural, Eastern As a rule, the 59 votes which spelled the doom for the bill came from the rural east and sparsely populated counties of the central and western sections of the state. The 48 votes in its favor generally represented cities and resort centers. Of course, conscience and conviction made exceptions across the board.

Rountree, a Greenville attorney, was one easterner voting for the measure. His fellow legislator from the 8th district, Rep. Sam Bundy of Pitt, voted against it and made a persuasive floor speech urging its defeat.

Rep. C. Graham Tart of Sampson, also from the east, voted against the bill but echoed Rountree's prediction that it will be successful in 1973. "Changing only six votes would have made the difference this time," he noted. Looking back, he recalled that the margin of defeat has grown thinner each time the matter has come to a vote.

Tart confirmed what many other House members reported: it was an issue on which the people back home spoke with vehemence and volume. "The overwhelming expression from my district was against it, and I had to vote in accordance with their wishes," he explained.

Setback for Travel Council The outcome was a severe disappointment to the North Carolina Travel Council. Its Right to Vote Committee, headed by Hugh Morton of Wilmington and Linville, mobilized tourist and convention interests on behalf of the bill.

In the final analysis, their efforts ran aground on the shoals of religious conviction and the fears that liquor-by-the-drink would increase consumption of alcoholic beverages with attendant problems from drunken driving, alcoholism, and so forth.

Lilley agreed that his opposition was basically a religious matter, although he did not make that point in floor debate. Rep. Joy Johnson of Robeson, a Baptist minister, was one of those condemning the bill.

Bundy, himself a prominent layman in his church, pointed out other considerations. He said the bill would be a radical departure in state policy by permitting private profit in the sale of alcoholic beverages. Further, he declared, open bars would be the ultimate result as certain as night follows day. "Do we want another New York or Washington, D.C., in North Carolina?" he asked.

Clearly, House members did not.

type measure approved. It is difficult to tell how much behind the scenes maneuvering went on, or who was promised what. Proponents of the bill, however, seemed to be indicating that a number of votes that they planned on, switched at the last moment.

As always the debate in the House chamber was emotional and revolved around the question of whether liquor by the drink encourages more drinking of alcoholic beverages or whether it would mean less drinking.

As usual there were no real answers to this since it depends pretty much on individual drinking habits.

There will be other efforts made this session to obtain local option for individual counties, but it is likely that the 59-48 vote against this measure will set the pattern for 1971.

However, it is certain that mixed drink legislation will be introduced in future Legislatures and proponents seem to be gaining strength at each session. They will be even stronger in two years following the reapportionment of the Legislature which will take place at this session.

First Responsibility Is For The Patients

Curbing visiting hours is not the most popular action the hospital board of trustees could take; however their first responsibility is for the patients' well being and running the hospital in the most efficient manner.

It is for these reasons that the board did away with the morning visiting hour at Pitt Memorial. Visitors in the afternoon and evening will also be required to wear name tags with the name of the patient they are visiting on it.

With the crowded conditions at Pitt Memorial certainly these changes are necessary.

War-Weariness Spurring Doves

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Despite the clear success of his Vietnamization policy, President Nixon now confronts a dramatic increase in dove sentiment which casts political clouds on his systematic program for disengagement from Vietnam.

This rise of the dove is reported confidentially to the White House by Congressional Republicans getting an earful of anti-war sentiment from constituents after the Laos operation. It is supported by unpublished polls taken before the Laos push by pollster Oliver Quayle. War-weariness is so high that the Laos operation (not involving U.S. ground troops) has triggered more widespread public criticism than the Cambodian operation (with heavy U.S. involvement).

Thus, at the very least, Mr. Nixon must adhere to his present timetable of withdrawals to neutralize the war issue for the 1972 campaign, if not step it up. Worse yet, public tolerance of tactics such as the present Laos campaign — vital to U.S. withdrawals — has run terribly thin.

Just how thin is shown by Quayle's soundings. He now finds those who want a speedy withdrawal from the war (doves) increasing to a point where, for the first time since he began asking these questions, they outnumber those who favor President Nixon's present policy (and are twice as numerous as the hawks, who back a win-the-war policy).

Quayle's nationwide interviews during the year ending March 1, 1970, show doves comprising a mere 31 percent, far below the 46 percent favoring Mr. Nixon's Vietnamization policy and only 8 points above the 23

Strength For Today

WAKE UP Four hundred years ago that area which we now call the United States was a wilderness inhabited by a few million people that we would call today aborigines. About a hundred years ago multitudes left Europe, got a foothold somewhere in the United States and spread out until a nation of more than two hundred million people was established. Today there is strife in this fair land — class against class, race against race, rich against poor and poor against rich.

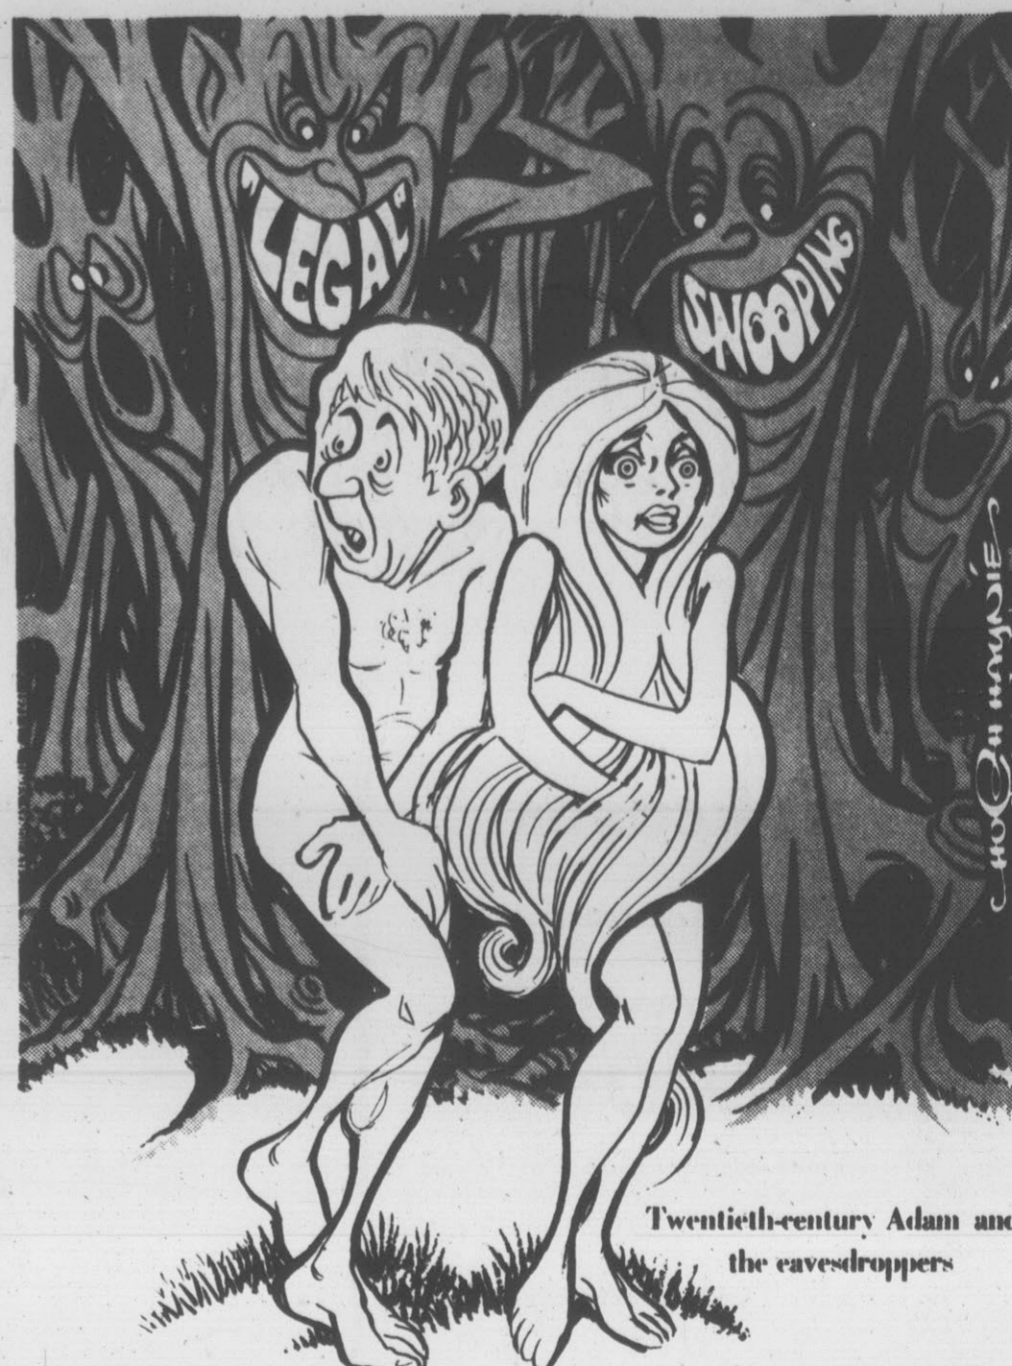

Why can't we see that for practically the first time in human history we have a broad section of the world's area in which to live, educational advantages for all, opportunities to get ahead. There has never been a period in world history more thrilling than the period in which we live. There has never been a time when man could make the most of his opportunities as in this latter part of the twentieth century. Here is a time when we can really live if we want to do so. But selfishness can ruin the whole of these opportunities. We can shake our fists at our neighbors. We can hurl epithets at those who entertain ideas different from ours. We can denounce one another and blame this group or that for the discordant and sometimes riotous life we see around us.

It just doesn't make sense. Here we are in a country in which we have more freedom than human beings have ever had before. Opportunity beckons old and young. How can we be so stupid as to lunge at one another's throats?

Wake up. Think. Sing praises.

The Real ARVN Test

WASHINGTON — The big question everyone in Washington is asking is whether the South Vietnamese army is strong enough to take over the American PX system once all the U.S. troops pull out.

The real test of a first-class military force is how capable it is to run its PXs at a profit.

So far, the American officials have been highly pleased at the progress the South Vietnamese have made in PX administration, and the U.S. military will be able to turn over all essential PX activities to the ARVN by 1972.

"These little fellows learned twice as fast as we thought they would," said former Gen. E. H. Hardsell, who, up until a few weeks ago, was in charge of the PX-ification program.

Hardsell told correspondents proudly, "I'd be willing to put them up against any PX officers in the world. When it comes to purchasing, cost accounting, warehousing and distribution, the South Vietnamese have proved they can do the job."

"Are you trying to tell us that the South Vietnamese will be able to handle their own pinball and slot machines by 1972?"

"Definitely," Hardsell said. "The ARVN has had pinball and slot machines in their officers' clubs for over a year and their jackpot count

Other Editors Say To Other Issues

(The Raleigh Times)

Emotions seem to have run about as high on the liquor-by-the-drink issue this year as ever before, if not higher, judging from some of the bitterness which surfaced yesterday after the defeat of the measure. This feeling is understandable, since there had been a great deal of hard work in preparation for the vote, and disappointment could have been expected.

However, the General Assembly cannot permit the aftermath of this battle to get in the way of its handling of the many vastly more important issues still facing it. The Assembly must make hard decisions on higher education, decisions which will have enough emotional aspects without permitting some of the backwash from yesterday to further cloud issues. Undoubtedly, there will be some sort of tax fight because of the liquor-by-the-drink vote, since it seemed plain that the cigarette tax and the drink issues became involved when one of the drink advocates introduced a bill to raise cigarette taxes.

This Assembly has redistricting, both congressional and legislative, still ahead. There are real financial problems involved in finding money for prison reform, higher salaries, for better conditions for the mentally retarded.

There is talk now that Mecklenburg County, the hotbed of liquor-by-the-drink sentiment, may seek its own county local option law on this subject. This would be a mistake. It would simply prolong the fight, intensify the bitterness, and it would seem reasonable to assume that yesterday's House defeat of the statewide bill by an 11-vote margin would indicate the fate of a local county bill on the subject.

Tax Won't Save Great Lakes

By ELMER ROESSNER

From coast to coast, cities are moving to use taxes to save the ecology. At least a tiny bit of it.

In city after city, lawmakers are considering, or have already acted, to lay taxes on nonreturnable soda and beer bottles and cans. In New York City, one proposal is a two cent tax on all such containers, with the seller required to pay 4 cents each for each return. Other cities are considering nickel deposits on such containers.

While these proposals are painted red, white and blue in the name of ecology, the truth is that most of them are simply to increase the tax take.

However, in doing so, they will sharply increase the cost of living. In the days of Depression, many a youngster gathered enough coppers for lunch by returning found or stolen pop bottles at 2 cents each. But today, what kid bothers for pennies? And it will cost an

Double Talk Review

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — We haven't had a drill in double talk lately, have we?

Well, then, let's have one right now. Double talk, you should remember, is the art of saying one thing while thinking something else—usually the direct opposite.

That sounds a bit schizophrenic but really isn't. It enables you to keep mentally healthy in a world in which, if you always spoke the exact truth, everyone would shun you as being either barmy or too quaint to put up with.

To show you typical double talk in action, here are a few examples. What the person said is put in quotes, followed by what he actually was thinking.

"What a pleasant surprise! I didn't expect you'd remember it was my birthday."—And if that's all you could find to give me, I wish you had forgotten it.

"I guess you must have the flu—there's a lot of it going around." There are a lot of hangers going around, too, and it looks like you've got the granddaddy of them all.

"Everybody's got his troubles."—So don't try to lend me yours.

"Well, this one is strictly off the top of my head and I'm only throwing it in for openers, but why don't we?" I wonder if anybody will notice this is the only idea I had at our last conference, too.

"I'll say one thing I admire about you, Jones, you're always on your toes." And I'll say one thing I don't admire about you, Jones—your toes always seem to

Former Chief Justice Sees No Revolution Dangers

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earl Warren, whose leadership of the Supreme Court through 16 turbulent years led the nation into a social revolution, says he is confident the country does not face any real danger of armed revolution.

"Everyone talks of revolution," says the former chief justice, who is 80 today. "The President speaks of one kind. Others talk of another kind. But I don't think we're in danger of an armed revolution to determine whether our institutions will stand.

"I think this largely because I feel our young people will do something about the problems that have brought us so much divisiveness." Warren aired his thoughts in a wide-ranging birthday interview which was interesting for what he said, what he almost seemed to say, and what he didn't say. At 80, erect and imposingly white-haired, he retains his judicial tact along with his judicial mien.

The former chief justice, who retired in June 1969, talked in the office he retains in the white-marbled court building, where he has completed the first draft of a "little book on citizenship" and soon will embark on his memoirs of 52 years in public service. Here, too, he still lunches with Supreme Court justices on a strictly "no-shop talk" basis. Twice in his long career, Warren tried for the Republican presidential nomination and missed. He has no regrets about that. Does he think that as president he might have affected history and society even more than he did as chief justice?

"As chief justice," he said, "one can stay in office a lot longer than a president does and can encompass more issues. But really it's like comparing a good orange to a good apple. I'm not sorry I didn't become president." Warren said it is too early to judge the trends of the current court under Warren's successor. He said he does not scrutinize the court on a day to day basis in an attempt to detect changes in direction. "But I do," he said, "have a lasting concern about the Bill of Rights and will as long as I live."

On grounds of "not indulging in personalities," he declined comment on the furor evoked last year by President Nixon's rejected nominations of Clement Haynsworth and Harrold Carswell to the high court. He said he no longer runs into the personal bitterness thrown at him by groups which called for his impeachment while chief justice. About the worst that happens now, he said, is an occasional sign during a speaking appearance saying, "Warren Outlaws God."

Still, he does not feel his court's decisions have found full public acceptance, although there has been "great progress" in school desegregation and the removal of Jim Crow laws but:

"We can't be content until every American citizen has every freedom every other American has. The progress has been all too slow but not so slow that I despair."

He said problems of race, poverty and environment ultimately will be solved "once there is a national commitment equal to that we gave space and Vietnam."

"And we ought to end the war in Vietnam as soon as it is humanly possible and get on with the rehabilitation and development of our own country."

What was the reaction of the former chief justice to the skepticism voiced by Yale President Kingman Brewster about whether a black revolutionary could get a fair trial in the United States?

"I think it depends on where the trial is held," said Earl Warren. "In our court we held repeatedly that Negroes were not getting fair trials in some parts of the country."

"But the assertion is not true as a general proposition. Still, as a proposition, it is worth thinking about."

Migrant Education Program Attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three years after the start of a federal program to help educate migrant children, much of their schooling is still shoddy and $17 million dollars that could be used is untouched, a private study shows. The national Committee on the Education of Migrant Children said today its study found the federal program so poorly organized no one could even say how many children are enrolled nationally.

The committee blamed poor direction within the Office of Education, disinterest by the states and late congressional action in allocating funds.

Of $97 million available for migrant education some $17 million never was used, the committee said, because the Office of Education failed to redistribute money to states that may have wanted more funds.

In a survey of 183 sample projects in 39 states and on-site visits to 13 other projects in 8 states, the committee concluded some of even the simplest problems involving migrant children and school programs remain unsolved.

For his work in training the South Vietnamese, Hardsell was awarded the distinguished slot machine service medal by the Thieu government. It couldn't have come at a better time, because Gen. ## Vote Tribute To Humber

Members of Pitt County Historical Society last night adopted a resolution of tribute to the late Dr. Robert Lee Humber.

The resolution, presented by chairman James L. Fleming, Secretary Mrs. W. I. Wooten, and president Junius H. Rose, praised Dr. Humber as "a rare individual of intelligence and dedication to good causes."

"He was deeply appreciative of the great heritage of Western civilization and ever mindful of its tremendous cost in human sacrifice and suffering," the resolution noted.

"Robert Lee Humber made use of his vast knowledge and understanding of the past to evaluate the present. . . He was a man of vision far ahead of his day."

A copy of the resolution is being sent to Mrs. Robert Lee Humber and his two sons.

That bolsters Mr. Nixon's own fears about moving so fast out of Vietnam that he will trigger a major revolt from the right — the main source of his bed-rock political support.

This danger has become overt in the first outright attack on him by the Young Americans for Freedom (YAF) last weekend. Randal Teague, executive director of the conservative youth group, blasted Vietnamization as "a fraud upon those who think it will result in the defeat of Communist aggression."

That states Mr. Nixon's growing dilemma: to convince the swelling army of doves that he is moving out of Vietnam at the fastest possible safe pace while convincing the hawks that surrender to Hanoi does not lie at the end of the road. Pressures from both sides are rising to new extremes.

Churches Try 'Interracial' Role

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The sign outside the church says, "Welcome." But when a black person enters and sees that all the rest of the worshippers are white, he can't be sure whether he really is welcome or not.

That silent question mark, an inherited consequence of past practices, is considered a major obstacle to fuller interracial life in American churches.

To try to overcome it, two all-white, mainly middle-class congregations in Houston, Tex. have decided it is necessary to make clear publicly that they not only will accept all kinds of people, but "definitely want them."

"There is a need to state our position clearly and specifically," says the Rev. Gordon A. Roesch, 28, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran church.

Houston's Holy Trinity and the Lord of Life Lutheran Church, led by the Rev. Kurt E. Johnson, 28, plan advertising and visitation campaigns specifically to invite blacks, browns and others of all social-economic categories.

"We want people of all walks of life to come in because they can have a real piece of the power structure," says Pastor Johnson.

Both congregations have formally approved taking the initiative in the matter, with advertising expected to begin about April 1.

The unusual campaign, described by the Houston Chronicle's religion editor Janice Law as possibly the first of its kind in American Protestantism, points up the continuing ferment on the issue, especially in the South.

Gradually, here and there, some formerly all-white Southern congregations have become interracial, to varying degrees. But it's a slow, spotty process.

It also has been retarded by tendencies to black separatism, aimed at consolidating black influences, a strong factor in the North. Some congregations still overtly reject inclusive memberships.

In Birmingham, Ala., after all-white First Baptist church last fall refused to admit a Negro woman and her daughter to membership the then-pastor, the Rev. J. Herbertmore, most of his staff and about 300 members quit.

They formed a new congregation last December, the Baptist Church of the Covenant, including blacks.

Other Southern congregations have become fully integrated in cent years, such as East Lake Methodist church at Atlanta, Ga. It has about 100 white members, 100 blacks and a broad, varied program.

In another Atlanta church, Calvary United Methodist, a black pastor, the Rev. Henry Joyner Jr., was installed at the request of the previously all-white congregation.

Three large Southern Baptist churches in Dallas—First Baptist, Gaston Avenue Baptist and suburban First Baptist at Oak Cliff—last year began taking in Negro members for the first time.

First Baptist in Del Rio, Texas, elected a black man a deacon. Although mainly white, it has about 20 black members.

Southern Roman Catholic congregations are now "open to anyone," says a study by the Southern Regional Council.

Health Seminar, Vegetarian Cooking School Begins Sunday

A Health Seminar and Vegetarian Cooking School, sponsored by the Seventh Day Adventist Church of Greenville and assisted by the Home Economics Education Department of East Carolina University, is being inaugurated Sunday from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. at the Wahl-Coates Elementary School on Fifth Street.

After the preliminary luncheon on Sunday, which is $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for children, with all each person can eat, the program will be conducted each evening at 7:00 p. m., Monday through Friday in Room 205 of the Home Economic Building, ECU. Registration is $2.00 per family and includes demonstrations, samples, recipes and questions answered.

The seminar and cooking school advances the concept of using vegetable protein in place of, or to supplement, animal protein.

The Rev. Robert G. Wilson, pastor of the Seventh Day Adventist Church associated the use of soybeans and vegetarianism with health fanatics or passing fads. He added, however, that many hospitals, nursing homes, cafeterias and other institutions have been serving the meat analogs to thousands of persons. At least one airline has also been serving the non-meat foods.

Several reasons have been set forth for the expected popularity of the non-meat products — lower cost, lower calories, more controlled protein content, and the more efficient use of available land.

One acre of land will produce about 43 pounds of animal protein. The same acre, cultivated in soybeans, will average around 450 pounds of protein... more than ten times the protein yield of animals.

Topics to be discussed will be the adequacy of a vegetable diet, elements of a balanced diet, exercise, principles of diet, and weight control.

The program is designed to introduce the public to possible variations of diet.

Funds Drive Below Goal

With only 14 days remaining in the Eastern Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association campaign, the 22-county Association announced that it is $1,300 below its goal for the year, according to Mrs. Ruth Peterson, executive director.

The Association conducts a year round educational program on the health hazards of respiratory diseases. These are directed at different groups including school children, physicians and nurses, and the general public.

In patient services, the Association promotes detection programs to discover tuberculosis, emphysema, and other respiratory diseases. Research grants from the associations have contributed to the medical advances in the treatment of TB patients. The disease ranks third in communicable diseases in North Carolina. In 1970, there was an increase in the number of cases reported in the state—1,258—with Pitt County reporting 29.

The Association requests that those people who have not mailed their 1970 Christmas Seal contributions do so immediately. The address is P.O. Box 1407, Greenville.

Voting Bill In Senate's Hands

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to lower the voting age in North Carolina to 18 now heads for the State Senate.

The House Thursday approved the bill unanimously for the second successive day.

It provides for an election next Nov. 4 at which the people would decide whether to amend the state constitution to lower the voting age from 21 to 18 in state and local elections.

Congress recently lowered the voting age to 18 in national elections.

Rep. Jim Beatty, D-Mecklenburg, told the House he doubted if a constitutional amendment had ever received unanimous approval before.

"It's a compliment to the young people of our state," Beatty said.

In other action Thursday, the House passed and returned to the Senate for approval of amendments to a bill that would permit farmers to haul corn, soy beans, hay and tobacco to market in unlicensed trailers if the trailers are pulled by licensed vehicles.

Church Planning 4-Star Program Here Sunday

War—Peace by Lt. Updegrone, chaplain at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base; and Personal Evangelism—Meeting Needs Today by the Rev. Dana Hunt of the First Christian Church.

A nursery will be provided for children.

Revival Will Begin Sunday

Mattox is a native of this area, his parents are now residing in Rocky Mount. He received his formal education at Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem, and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky. He has served the following pastorates: Hertford Baptist Church, Hertford; First Baptist Church, Red Springs; and has been in his present pastorate nearly three years.

The congregational song leader for the week-nights services and special soloist will be Steve McKibben, minister of music of First Baptist Church, Tarboro.

The public is invited to attend the services.

There are days when Jim feels "all geared up." Like many men today, he has the sense of being just a cog in a wheel—no real identity. This is wrong!
It takes a great many Jims, all kinds, to keep the wheels turning. But each is important, and each is an individual. God intended men to have not only a sense of identity, but a basic self-esteem.
Maybe you've been underestimating yourself! Maybe you've been feeling that you are just one of the crowd! If so, during this Lenten season you'd better take a new look at both the world and yourself.
For a new perspective, maybe you'd better start going to church.

Investigating Disappearance Of Freight Cars

RAILROAD TALK — Joseph Cinotto, 75, retired traffic manager of the LaSalle and Bureau County Railroad talks on phone as secretary Mrs. Barbara Carriere, stands by. (AP Wirephoto)

By PAUL A. DRISCOLL
Associated Press Writer
LA SALLE, Ill. (AP) — Government investigators sifted the records of a tiny Illinois railroad and an even smaller mystery company today in an attempt to find out how more than $1 million worth of Penn Central freight cars disappeared. A U.S. attorney said the cars apparently were stolen.

Joseph Cinotto Jr., general manager of the LaSalle & Bureau County Railroad—a freight-only line with a mere 15 miles of trackage—termed the disappearance “a terrible mistake.”

U.S. Atty. Louis C. Bechtle of Philadelphia reported Thursday that 27 Penn Central Railroad cars vanished since early 1970 after being diverted onto the LaSalle tracks. He said the cars

Two Tar Heels Killed In Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two North Carolina soldiers have been killed in action in the Southeast Asian war.

The Defense Department identified them as Sgt. I.C. Merle E. Loobey, husband of Rose R. I. Loobey, 7521 Crown Ave., Fayetteville, and Spec. 4 Donald R. Hamrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hamrick, Rt. 4, Shelby.

$42 Million For N.C. Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $2.5 billion revenue sharing plan proposed by President Nixon to help states solve their transportation problems includes $41 million for North Carolina.

The state would get $38.1 million for general transportation and almost $3.3 million for urban mass transportation.

apparently were stolen in switching operations.

“I really don’t know what happened,” said Cinotto. “I really can’t say any more.”

Office employees at the little rail line in north-central Illinois said the cars supposedly were the property of a mystery company which painted on new identifying marks and leased them to other railroads.

FBI agents seized the records of the LaSalle line and of Magna Earth Enterprises, Inc., which rented a one-room office and some shop space from the railroad.

An FBI spokesman said agents were checking for possible violations of the federal interstate transportation of stolen property law and the fraud by wire law. He said 27 cars with Penn Central markings painted over had been found in LaSalle’s yards.

The Federal Task Force on Organized Crime has joined the investigation and a railroad source said, “There is more there than meets the eye.”

Richard Spriggs of the task force refused to speculate on the possible implication of organized crime, but said “work will have to be done in other areas of the country” to determine whether similar situations exist elsewhere.

Bechtle said a federal grand jury in Philadelphia, where the Penn Central has headquarters, would begin looking into the case Wednesday and would call in records from other firms. He did not identify the other companies.

He said no arrests had been made, adding that he did not know whether criminal prosecutions would result.

“Everything is sketchy and incomplete,” he said.

One of the sketchy elements is a firm known as Diversified Properties, mentioned in court documents filed when the FBI obtained search warrants to inspect the LaSalle railroad premises.

A Joseph C. Bonnano, not otherwise identified, was named as a director of Diversified in the court papers.

An informant said mail from Magna Earth frequently was sent to a Joseph C. Bonnano in an unnamed city in New Jersey.

The general manager of Magna Earth, Anthony Crisafi, recently moved to the LaSalle area from Paramus, N.J. His wife said he was in New Jersey “conferring with someone.”

“We have nothing to do with them,” said Cinotto. “We rent them office and shop space. We don’t even know who Magna Earth is.”

Lindsey Twon, secretary in the Magna Earth office, said the firm employs about 10 persons in LaSalle. She said she did not know who owned the firm or anything about its origin.

The discovery of the missing cars was made by auditors of the financially distressed Penn Central, the nation’s largest railroad.

Rorber Ozer, a task force attorney at Philadelphia, said a preliminary study of LaSalle’s records showed that 215 of the stolen cars were put on the tracks of other railroads after repainting “so as to purport to be owned by LS&PC.”

Ozer said that on 182 of the cars the serial numbers had been obliterated.

There was no official explanation of how a freight car can disappear or be stolen.

However, an industry source said, “The problem is that the cars of all railroads operate on the lines of all railroads.”

Sometimes it is months before a line gets its own cars back.

A Penn Central railroad spokesman said it was difficult to fix the value of the 277 missing cars since no complete list of the types involved was immediately available.

He said the current market value of a standard 40-foot box car 5 to 10 years old was at least $4,000. A new box car that size costs $10,000 to $15,000.

Arms-Search In Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) —The British Army cordoned off the city of Belfast today as it searched for terrorist weapons.

Officials said it was the biggest operation of its kind so far. All vehicles entering or leaving the capital of Northern Ireland were checked and many were searched.

Results of the operation were not immediately known.

Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark told the provincial parliament that 1,300 more British troops will be sent to the province in the coming week to reinforce the 8,250 soldiers already here.

He said his government is “determined to restore permanent peace and stability in the country.”

Twenty persons have died this year in bombings and gun battles resulting mostly from the outlawed Irish Republican Army’s campaign to separate Northern Ireland from the United Kingdom and unite it with the Irish Republic to the south.

Indicated, Given Investigator Job

NEWARK N.J. (AP) —Former Councilman Frank Addonizio, under indictment on 66 counts of extortion and conspiracy, has a new job beginning Monday—investigator for the fraud squad of the Essex County Welfare Board.

Addonizio, who will receive $8,340 annually in his new position, was indicted in 1969 with then-Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio and some other Newark officials on charges of shaking down contractors.

John J. Gleason, head of the welfare fraud squad, said Frank Addonizio met all requirements for the investigator’s job.

When asked about Addonizio’s indictment, Gleason replied: “That doesn’t disturb me. He hasn’t been convicted yet.”

No Ceremonies Forgot Event

CALDWELL, N.J. (AP) —Thursday was the 134th anniversary of President Grover Cleveland’s birth in Caldwell.

“No official ceremonies were planned because, to tell you the truth, nobody thought of it,” said a Caldwell official.

pecially when it’s been re-routed, repainted and given a fake serial number.

The Penn Central, America’s largest railroad, reorganizing under the federal bankruptcy laws because it lost money while hauling people and goods, now reports it also lost freight cars.

At least 277, worth more than $1 million.

The FBI and the Federal Task Force on Organized Crime are investigating the mysterious disappearance—and how the cars, bearing new colors and new identities, turned up as the alleged property of the LaSalle & Bureau County Railroad, a 15-mile-long line in Northern Illinois. No charges have been filed.

Here’s how freight cars can go astray:

There are more than two million freight cars in the United States and they all move in a common pool, carrying raw materials and finished goods around the nation over some 220,000 miles of track operated by nearly 800 companies. Penn Central has 180,000 cars and 20 per cent of the trackage.

The problem is that the cars of all railroads operate on the lines of all railroads. It is the duty of the line whose tracks are being used to keep track of all cars that it is hauling, whether they are its own or others.

Stage Roundup Of Bootleggers

DURHAM (AP) — Authorities armed with warrants against 153 persons cracked down on bootleggers in Durham County Thursday.

The raids resulted from three months of undercover work by an agent of the state ABC board.

Most of those named in the warrants were arrested. The charges included selling beer, moonshine or tax-paid whisky illegally.

One defendant claimed to be 102 years old. He was entered on the arrest record as 93.

Thus Penn Central, for instance, is responsible for a car of another railroad that travels its tracks, and collects rent for that car’s ride.

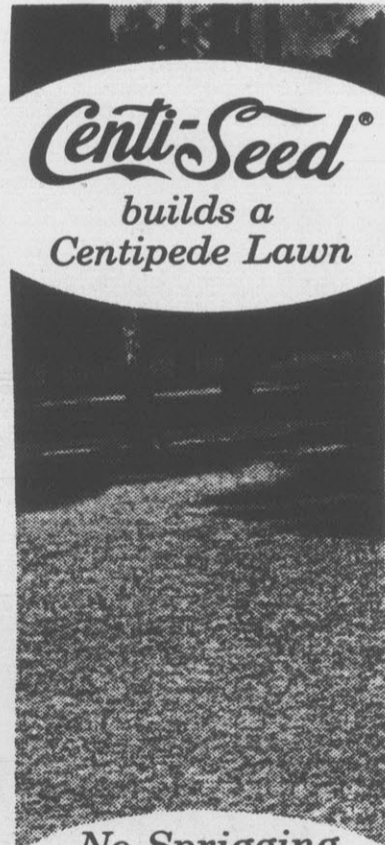

The return trip sometimes takes days. More often it is weeks or months. A car might not come back to the owner railroad until it has been loaded and unloaded a dozen times or more.

The rules of the Association of American Railroads require that a freight car be started back toward its home base as soon as possible after it has unloaded its original cargo. It must travel empty if no goods are available, but usually cars are held on sidings until a payload can be obtained.

There are occasions when cars are pulled off for repairs. And the other instances where cars are switched illegally and secretly to unreported tracks or shops and given new identities.

Freight yard workers say it’s easy to change a car’s registration, by counterfeiting new serial plates or obliterating old ones. A coat of paint wipes out one railroad’s name and new insignia attempt to establish instant new ownership.

Ithaca Rally Edges Past Pirates, 7-5

Slide To Safety

East Carolina's Matt Walker slides safely into third base following his scamper from first on a single to left by Dick Corrada in the second inning. Ithaca third baseman John Timmins (5) took the relay from left toward home and fired to shortstop Skip Borowicz at third, but Walker beat the ball there. Ithaca put on a seventh-inning rally to beat the Bucs, 7-5. (Reflector Photo by Forrest)

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Writer

The Ithaca Bombers came up with three runs in the seventh inning yesterday to even their series with East Carolina University, 7-5.

East Carolina had beaten the Bombers in their first meeting, 3-0, but they couldn't come up with a sweep.

Pitcher Hal Baird, who was charged with the loss, couldn't keep control on the ball, issuing four walks, and going to a full count on a number of batters. One of the runs came in on a wild pitch, as five of the sixth scored against him were earned by Ithaca.

The Bombers had taken an early lead on the Bucs, 4-1, but the Pirates came back to take a 5-4 lead that held up until the late stages of the game. Both teams banged out eight hits, but Ithaca put four of them together in its rally in the seventh. East Carolina never got more than two in any one inning.

It all started in the first. Dennis Leyden led off for the Bombers, reaching on a walk. Skip Borowicz singled to short and Dick Goodwin drew another walk off Baird, loading them up.

Bob Borowicz grounded into the infield short of the mound and Baird fell in trying to make the play. The throw was still in time, however, but was kicked loose by the sliding Leyden. While catcher Stan Sneedened chased up the ball, Skip Borowicz also came home for a 2-0 lead. Goodwin moved on to third on the play. He then came over on a wild pitch, putting the Bucs into a 3-0 hole.

They came back with a run in the bottom of the frame. Matt Walker led off with an infield single to short. Dick Corrada also grounded back to short, and the play was made to second, but too late. Larry Walters also grounded into the infield, catching Corrada at second, while Walker reached third. Mike Aldridge lifted a long fly to center that allowed Walker to tag up and score with the lone run of the frame.

Ithaca came back and cancelled that run with one of their own in the top on the second. John Timmins led off with a walk and pitcher Mike Mazzei sacrificed him to second. Skip Borowicz slapped a single into center that brought Timmins around with the fourth Ithaca run.

East Carolina came storming back in the bottom of the fourth, scoring four runs to charge into a 5-4 lead.

Sneedened opened with a walk, but was nailed at second when Ralph Lamm hit back to the mound. Mike Bradshaw drew a walk and Baird advanced both runners when he grounded out. Walker then walked to load the bases.

Corrada followed with a single to left, scoring Lamm and Bradshaw, cutting the lead to 4-3. Walters followed with a triple up the alley in left-center, scoring both Walker and Corrada to put the Bucs ahead.

Both teams offered a threat in the fifth inning. Skip Borowicz walked and moved to third when Bob Borowicz singled to left, and moved up on the throw-in. But the rally died there. East Carolina came back with a two-out single by Troy Eason, and Sneedened followed with a walk, but like Ithaca, they couldn't score.

But in the seventh, Ithaca got to Baird again and chased him. Mazzei led off with a bloop single into right, just inside the line. Skip Borowicz singled to left, putting two on. Goodwin followed with a single to left, scoring Mazzei with the tying run.

With runners on first and second, Bob Borowicz singled to right, but the ball was mishandled there and Skip Borowicz continued in to score to go-ahead run. Dom Gaudioso followed with a grounder to short that let Goodwin in with the insurance run, making it 7-5.

Ithaca again threatened in the eighth. Geoffrey Wright walked and moved to third on two ground-outs, but died there.

The Bucs got threats off in the eighth and ninth, but to no avail. In the eighth, Lamm reached on a fielder's choice, moved up on a single by Bradshaw and took third on Mitchell Hughes' infield grounder. Walker appeared to have a single through the hole between first and second, but Wright made a fine play on the ball, just getting Walker at first to kill the rally.

Walker walked and moved to second on Mike Aldridge's single in the ninth, but a double play killed the Pirates' final hopes on the next play.

The Bucs, now 2-2 for the year, open a four-game home stand next Thursday by entertaining Dartmouth. The Indians will be in for games that day and Friday, while the University of Virginia will visit the Bucs Saturday and Sunday.

Pennsylvania Runs Past South Carolina; Villanova In Upset

By REESE HART Associated Press Sports Writer RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — "They're the best team we faced all year," South Carolina coach Frank McGuire said after unbeaten Pennsylvania defeated his team 79-64 in the NCAA Eastern Regional basketball semifinals Thursday night.

Villanova controlled the boards behind the shooting of Howard Porter to sweep past Fordham, 85-75, in the opening game.

Third-ranked Penn and Villanova will play at 2:10 p. m. Saturday for the right to represent the East in the NCAA national finals at Houston next week.

Fordham and South Carolina will play at noon Saturday for third place honors.

Rangy Bob Morse scored 28 points to lead Penn to its 28th consecutive victory. The Quakers broke open a tight battle in the last seven and one-half minutes with a brilliant shooting exhibition from the free-throw line, hitting 20 of 21 during that period.

"It's no wonder they're undefeated," McGuire said. "They outplayed us and deserved to win. They made no mistakes and if they play that well, they can go all the way. The Penn-Villanova game should be a real good one."

Penn defeated Villanova earlier in the regular season. Penn coach Dick Harter said of the upcoming game: "I think Villanova will have a psychological edge going in. Villanova gave us perhaps the toughest game we had this year."

Villanova's height and ability to beat Fordham's full court press were key factors in the victory over the Rams. Porter scored 20 points in the first half as Villanova took an 11-point lead, 47-36. He scored five more the second half for a total of 25 before fouling out with 1:38 left. Charles Yelberton paced Fordham with 32 points. Fordham coach Dick Phelps said Villanova handled his team's press perhaps better than expected. He added, "They handled the press well. They didn't fold. They scored when they had to."

Villanova coach Jack Kraft said his team "did a more than excellent job the first half on the defensive boards, which was very important because it allowed us to run...I'm just tickled to death that we are playing for the Eastern Regional championship instead of for third place."

Al McGuire Is Coach Of Year

By TED MEIER Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Al McGuire, whose Marquette warriors won 39 straight games before losing to Ohio State, was named today as College Basketball Coach of the Year for 1971 by The Associated Press.

The native of New York City was an easy winner in the voting by 474 sports writers and sportscasters. McGuire was far in front with 227 votes to 76 for runnerup Bob Boyd of Southern California.

Johnny Wooden of UCLA, coach of the year for 1970 and 1969, finished third with 57 followed by Dick Phelps of Fordham with 16.

Johnny Dee of Notre Dame and the veteran Adolph Rupp of Kentucky tied for fifth at 13. Dean Smith of North Carolina and Ted Owens of Kansas tied for seventh at 12. Rounding out the Top Ten were Johnny Oldham of Western Kentucky with six and Ray Means of Tennessee with four.

The rest of the balloting was widely scattered. Dick Harter of Pennsylvania, John Orr of Michigan, Paul Westhead of LaSalle and Gene Bartow of Memphis State were bracketed at three each.

Tied at two were Norm Stewart of Missouri, Whack Hyder of Georgia Tech, Lou Henson of New Mexico State, Darrell Hedrick of Miami, Ohio, and Frank McGuire of South Carolina, no relation to Al. Fifteen others received one vote each.

Al McGuire, who played for the St. John's Redmen of New York 20 years ago and later for the pro New York Knicks, started his coaching career as an assistant at Dartmouth in 1954. He became head coach at Belmont Abbey in North Carolina in 1957 and took over at Marquette in 1965. He had a losing 8-18 season that first year at Marquette, but since has reeled off winning campaigns of 14-12, 21-9, 23-6, 24-5, 26-3 and 27-1 this season. The winning streak, which reached 39 last Saturday, was snapped by Ohio State 60-59 Thursday night in the second round of the NCAA tournament.

It started last season. The Warriors won their last 12 games of the 1970 campaign, including the NIT championship in New York. They swept their first 27 games this season before losing to Ohio State on two free throws by Alan Hornyak in the last six seconds.

Buc Trackmen Host Big Meet

East Carolina University's much-improved track team will be in pretty high company Saturday.

The Pirates host West Virginia, N. C. State and West Chester State at the ECU track. Starting time for the event is set for noon.

Coach Bill Carson's Bucs won their first outing of the season last Saturday rather convincingly over Southern Conference opponents The Citadel and Furman.

ECU collected 92 points, while Furman was a distant second with 65, and The Citadel a far third with 27.

The Pirates collected seven first places in the meet as did Furman while The Citadel managed three. ECU's depth proved to be the winning factor as the Bucs scored 11 seconds, eight thirds, and eight fourths.

Freshmen Larry Wilkerson and Phil Phillips were the only double winners for the Pirates. Wilkerson won both the long and triple jumps while Phillips took the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

Wilkerson, a Virgilina, Va. native, won the long jump with a leap of 22'3/4". Phillips, a native of Goldsboro, won the 100 with a 9.8 clocking and came back with a timing of 22.4 in the 220 also good for first position.

Other ECU winners included Jim Kidd in the mile with a time of 4:16.5, Rusty Carraway in the half mile in 1:54.8, and both the Pirate relay teams.

In other action, ECU's crew team travels to Richmond Saturday for the Virginia Commonwealth Regatta. It will be the Pirate rowers' first action.

Teams in the event are Notre Dame, Brown, Virginia, George Washington and host VCU.

Saratoga Drops Greene Central

SNOW HILL — Saratoga Central High School took its second straight victory over Greene Central yesterday, downing the Rams, 5-1.

Jimmy DeRatt tossed a two-hitter at Greene Central, and allowed only a first-inning run to mar his afternoon. He struck out 10 and walked one along the way.

Greene Central got the lead in the first inning with what proved to be its only run. Robert Ivey reached on an error, advanced to third on a sacrifice and an out, and scored on a passed ball.

But it didn't hold up. Saratoga came up with a run in the third to tie it up at 1-1.

Then, in the fifth, they scored three runs, pushing out to a 4-1 lead. Terry Little led off with a walk and Gary Pipkin singled. Larry Speight drew a walk and that loaded the bases. DeRatt then helped his own cause with an apparent triple, scoring all three runners. DeRatt was later called out on an appeal play at first, nullifying his hit, but the runs stood.

Saratoga added another run in the seventh to close out the scoring. Pipkin led the hitting with four for Saratoga, half their total.

Greene Central now stands 0-2 for the year.

The good taste of Old Crow begins with men who love to work with their hands.

Before we'll mill a kernel of grain to make Old Crow, experts like Jerry Simpson test samples by hand for appearance and color. It's the only way we know to make a good-tasting Bourbon.

Making Bourbon which tastes good, bottle after bottle, made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that took Bourbon-making out of the hit-or-miss category. Later, they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon. We still use our hands in making Old Crow.

After work, most of our men keep on using their hands. Jerry Simpson calls on the same craftsmanship maintaining the quality of our country Bourbon as he does upholstering this chair. Over the years, craftsmanship like this has made Old Crow America's best-tasting Bourbon.

UCLA's Win Only Normal Thing

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
UCLA wins again. The top-ranked Bruins, seeking their fifth straight national title, whacked Brigham Young 91-73. That was the only normal happening in the NCAA college basketball championship tournament Thursday night.

Elsewhere the carnage was terrific as Marquette, Kentucky, Notre Dame, South Carolina and Fordham went down in defeat and Kansas and Long Beach State barely averted disaster.

Coming to the fore were Ohio State, which snapped Marquette's 39-game winning streak 60-59; Western Kentucky, which routed Kentucky 107-83; Drake, which tripped Notre Dame 79-72 in overtime; Pennsylvania, which drubbed South Carolina 79-64, and Villanova which toppled Fordham 85-75.

Kansas just shaded Houston 77-77 and Long Beach State had to wipe out a 15-point deficit to beat U. of Pacific 78-65.

The results set up these quarter-final pairings Saturday:
At Raleigh, N.C.—Penn. 28-0, vs. Villanova, 25-6.
At Athens, Ga.—Western Kentucky, 22-5, vs. Ohio State, 20-5.
At Wichita, Kan.—Drake, 21-7, vs. Kansas, 26-1.
At Salt Lake City, Utah—UCLA, 26-1, vs. Long Beach State, 24-4.

Marquette seemed on the way to its 40th straight victory by taking a 13-point lead over Ohio State, but the Buckeyes kept battling back and came on to win after Dean Meminger, Marquette's star, fouled out with five minutes left.

A lay-up by sophomore Luther Witte put Ohio State ahead at 58-57 with about one minute left and two free throws by Alan Hornyak, another soph with six seconds left sewed it up for the Buckeyes.

"They just beat us," commented Al McGuire, Marquette coach, after the game in the Midwest Regional at Athens, Ga. "They tightened up underneath and locked us out so we couldn't get lay-ups."

"Clemons did a good job on Meminger who didn't play his normal game," McGuire said. He referred to Jim Clemons, who led the Buckeyes with 21 points. Meminger scored only 11.

"Our kids were scared to death when the game started," said Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor. "They really hung in there when it seemed impossible."

Big Mac, the 7-foot Jim McDaniels, threw in 35 points to lead Western Kentucky in its rout of Kentucky to Athens in the first game ever played between the two schools.

"I never said anything to the boys, but I didn't have to," commented Johnny Oldham, coach of the Hilltoppers. "We don't play much better than we did. If we do, we'd better play in the pro NBA."

Adolph Rupp, veteran Kentucky coach, said, "We couldn't hold the ball and had trouble even getting in the right direction, but Johnny's team had a lot to do with that."

Austin Carr, who scored 26 points, sank layup to put Notre Dame ahead of Drake with 90 seconds. But Al Sakys hit a jumper for the Bulldogs with four seconds left to tie the regulation game at 62-62.

Sakys put Drake ahead in the overtime at Wichita, Kan., and the Bulldogs stayed on top.

Mauri John, Drake coach, paid tribute to Bobby Jones, who had asked to guard Carr. "I hesitated at first," John said, "but when a kid wants to guard someone that bad, I didn't hesitate long."

"It probably was the worst game we've had," commented Coach Johnny Dee in the gloomy Notre Dame dressing room. "Nobody played well. I thought we had won on Carr's five straight points near the end of regulation, but ..."

Dave Robish scored 29 points, including seven straight free throws in the last two minutes, as Kansas made it 20 in a row by shading Houston at Wichita.

Penn, playing what Coach Dick Harter said "might be our best win ever," made it 28 straight and became the country's only major unbeaten team by defeating South Carolina at Raleigh. Bob Morse led the Quakers with 28 points.

Villanova, led by Howard Porter's 20 points, took an 11-point halftime lead and stayed in front the rest of the way in ending the Cinderella dreams of surprising Fordham. Charlie Yelverton paced the Rams with 32 points.

Long Beach, behind late in the first half at 44-29, rallied to down Pacific for its 17th straight victory in the West Regional at Salt Lake City, led by George Trapp's 23 points.

Brigham Young stayed close to UCLA at 36-31, but once the Bruins put on their famed zone press it was no contest. Six UCLA players scored in double figures led by Henry Bibby's 15 and Sidney Wicks' 14.

"It was our worst game in some time," said Pete Witbeck, BYU assistant coach. "But UCLA makes teams play badly."

The NIT, the other major postseason tourney, gets under way in New York with five games on Saturday.

In an afternoon tripleheader North Carolina meets Massachusetts, Louisville takes on Providence and Duke is pitted against Dayton. In a night doubleheader, Tennessee faces St. John's, N.Y., and Georgia Tech opposes LaSalle.

Old Dominion and Evansville advanced to tonight's final of the NCAA college division championship tourney at Evansville, Ind.

Old Dominion beat Kentucky Wesleyan 97-83 and Evansville overcame Southwestern Louisiana 93-74 in Thursday's semifinals.

Dark's Problem Is The Pitching

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Alvin Dark calls his problems with the Cleveland Indians this spring "picking out the pitchers."

Left-hander Sam McDowell, the 20-game winner of 1970, and right-hander Steve Hargan, who posted a 10-1 record last year after being recalled from the minors, head the hurling staff.

After that pair, however, a wide open race exists for the starting jobs.

"I'm not even going to worry about the bullpen until after I get the starting pitcher situation straightened out," says the skipper.

Dark's young club of 1970 finished fifth in the American League's East with a 76-86 record but he points out the team was just two games off a .500 pace the latter part of August. A series of injuries then took their toll.

"Experience will take care of a lot of improvement this season," Dark asserts. "The only thing uncertain about this club is the pitching staff."

He doesn't mean that each and every position is set, but most of them are. In center field, young Buddy Bradford battles the veteran Ted Uhlaender for the starting job.

"Experience will take care of a lot of improvement this season," Dark asserts. "The only thing uncertain about this club is the pitching staff."

nia League, gets Dark's attention this spring.

"He can throw the ball hard and he's coming fast," Dark continued. "His 9-8 record wasn't too impressive, but look at his strikeout record."

Ballinger, who stands 6-foot-6, fanned 180 batters in 147 innings.

Mike Paul, a left-hander, and Jim Rittwage also are battling for jobs on the staff. Of the latter, Dark recalls, "He pitched for me last September and he looked good then."

Paul pitched last winter in the Mexican League which could be to his advantage this spring.

So far, Dark has only definitely designated Steve Ingorini and Dennis Higgins for bullpen duty. McDowell, the American League's strikeout king the past three seasons, was 20-12 last season, the first in his career when he's hit the 20 mark.

That performance wasn't as surprising as that of Hargan, who was off to such a bad start in 1970 that on June 9 he was optioned to Wichita. He came back on July 16. Of his 10 victories from then on, eight were complete games.

Ram Thinclads Defeat Aycock

SNOW HILL — Greene Central High School captured its second straight track victory Wednesday, rolling to an 83 1-3 to 43 2-3 victory over Charles B. Aycock in an Eastern Plains Conference match.

The Rams overpowered Aycock, winning 13 of the 15 events to take the victory. Aycock's lone wins came in the low hurdles and the 100-yard dash.

Greene Central travels to Saratoga Monday for its next meet.

Summary:
High jump: Carman (GC), Sherrell (GC), Cox (A), 5-1.
Pole vault: Caraway (GC), Forbes (GC) and Howell (A), and Williams (A), tie for second, 7-0.
Shot put: Bynum (GC), Moore (A), Best (A), 38-2½.
Discus: Bynum (GC), Massey (A), Moore (A), 98-2.

Buc Netters In Opening Victory

The East Carolina tennis team captured a 6-3 victory over Campbell College yesterday. It was the first dual meet of the year for the Buc, who finished second in the Campbell Invitational Tournament last weekend.

The Bucs won four of the singles events, then added two more wins in the doubles to wrap up the victory.

They are scheduled to take on Ohio University on the Buc home court Sunday.

Summary:
Graham Felton (EC) defeated Jeff Harrell, 6-3, 6-3.
Ron Staples (C) defeated Bill Van Middlesworth, 9-7, 6-4.
Andy Landes (C) defeated Grier Ferguson, 10-8, 4-6, 6-3.

It was the opening game for the Rams, who held Saratoga to only three hits, none until the sixth inning.

Greene Central took the lead in the first inning with a run, and appeared to have it wrapped up when they scored four more in the third.

In the third, Johnny Johnson opened with a single and Mike Perry followed with a hit. Danny Whitley got a single scoring Johnson. Bob Scott then banged out a single, driving in both Perry and Whitley. Billy Williamson drew a walk and Steve Williamson got a hit to score Scott for 5-0 lead.

Greene Central then added its sixth run in the fifth inning.

But Saratoga took advantage of the Ram mistakes in the bottom of the fifth to push over two runs. Then, in the sixth, they scored eight runs to take the victory.

Tony Langston walked and Gary Pipkin reached on a fielder's choice. John Wells singled in Langston, and Jimmy Bryant walked, loading the bases. Walks to Mike Bryand and Terry Little brought in Pipkin and Wells and Larry Speight got a hit to score both of the Bryants. Jimmy DeRatt walked and Langston reached on

Monarchs In Finals

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Two unranked teams given little chance to go all the way have surprised the experts and will meet for the NCAA College Division basketball championship tonight.

The windup in Roberts Stadium, which could break the final night attendance record of 13,062, sends the hometown Evansville Aces against Old Dominion.

Each team has a 21-8 record. The champion will get the dubious honor of having lost more games during the season than any other title winner since the tourney started here in 1957.

Five players scored in double figures Thursday night when Old Dominion ousted Kentucky Wesleyan, 97-83.

Randy Culling collected 24 points. Dave Twardzik added 17, Rick Nau 15, Skip Noble 14 and Steve Cox 11.

Wesleyan outrebounded the Monarchs 56-39, but made only 40 per cent of its floor shots as John Duncan and Jim Smith headed the attack with 23 and 22 points.

Evansville caught Southwestern's highly favored Bulldogs in a deep freeze as they hit only 32.5 per cent from the floor. After trailing 47-33 at the half, the sixth-ranked Bulldogs closed in 69-65 when they switched from a zone to a man to man defense. But the Aces opened up again and padded out the final victory margin.

Evansville hit at a .39 rate of field goals and surprisingly matched the Cajuns' big musclemen under the boards. John Wellemeyer produced 24 points for the Aces, while Bob Clayton added 21 and Rick Coffey 20.

Greene Central Loses Opener

SARATOGA — Saratoga Central High School took advantage of 10 walks in the final two innings to rally for a 10-6 victory over Greene Central Wednesday.

It was the opening game for the Rams, who held Saratoga to only three hits, none until the sixth inning.

Greene Central took the lead in the first inning with a run, and appeared to have it wrapped up when they scored four more in the third.

In the third, Johnny Johnson opened with a single and Mike Perry followed with a hit. Danny Whitley got a single scoring Johnson. Bob Scott then banged out a single, driving in both Perry and Whitley. Billy Williamson drew a walk and Steve Williamson got a hit to score Scott for 5-0 lead.

Greene Central then added its sixth run in the fifth inning.

But Saratoga took advantage of the Ram mistakes in the bottom of the fifth to push over two runs. Then, in the sixth, they scored eight runs to take the victory.

Tony Langston walked and Gary Pipkin reached on a fielder's choice. John Wells singled in Langston, and Jimmy Bryant walked, loading the bases. Walks to Mike Bryand and Terry Little brought in Pipkin and Wells and Larry Speight got a hit to score both of the Bryants. Jimmy DeRatt walked and Langston reached on

Dark's Problem Is The Pitching

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Manager Alvin Dark calls his problems with the Cleveland Indians this spring "picking out the pitchers."

Left-hander Sam McDowell, the 20-game winner of 1970, and right-hander Steve Hargan, who posted a 10-1 record last year after being recalled from the minors, head the hurling staff.

After that pair, however, a wide open race exists for the starting jobs.

"I'm not even going to worry about the bullpen until after I get the starting pitcher situation straightened out," says the skipper.

Dark's young club of 1970 finished fifth in the American League's East with a 76-86 record but he points out the team was just two games off a .500 pace the latter part of August. A series of injuries then took their toll.

"Experience will take care of a lot of improvement this season," Dark asserts. "The only thing uncertain about this club is the pitching staff."

He doesn't mean that each and every position is set, but most of them are. In center field, young Buddy Bradford battles the veteran Ted Uhlaender for the starting job.

Monarchs In Finals

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Two unranked teams given little chance to go all the way have surprised the experts and will meet for the NCAA College Division basketball championship tonight.

The windup in Roberts Stadium, which could break the final night attendance record of 13,062, sends the hometown Evansville Aces against Old Dominion.

Each team has a 21-8 record. The champion will get the dubious honor of having lost more games during the season than any other title winner since the tourney started here in 1957.

Five players scored in double figures Thursday night when Old Dominion ousted Kentucky Wesleyan, 97-83.

Randy Culling collected 24 points. Dave Twardzik added 17, Rick Nau 15, Skip Noble 14 and Steve Cox 11.

Wesleyan outrebounded the Monarchs 56-39, but made only 40 per cent of its floor shots as John Duncan and Jim Smith headed the attack with 23 and 22 points.

Evansville caught Southwestern's highly favored Bulldogs in a deep freeze as they hit only 32.5 per cent from the floor. After trailing 47-33 at the half, the sixth-ranked Bulldogs closed in 69-65 when they switched from a zone to a man to man defense. But the Aces opened up again and padded out the final victory margin.

Evansville hit at a .39 rate of field goals and surprisingly matched the Cajuns' big musclemen under the boards. John Wellemeyer produced 24 points for the Aces, while Bob Clayton added 21 and Rick Coffey 20.

Saigon Seen Closing Laos Push

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese Command announced today that it has withdrawn between 2,000 and 3,000 of its troops from Laos in the past two days, leaving about 18,000 over the border.

Evidence mounted that the Saigon government is beginning to close out its campaign in Laos after nearly six weeks.

"Some South Vietnamese units which were heavily engaged by the enemy were pulled back to South Vietnam. There have been no replacements, Lt. Col. Tran Van An told newsmen at the Saigon command's daily briefing.

Some of Saigon's troops at the Ham Nghi forward headquarters were reported packing to return to rear headquarters. More than 100 empty trucks were assembled at Ham Nghi, and the troops were loading them with desks, beds and other supplies and furnishings.

Brig. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, said his entire 1st Regiment—about 1,500 men—had been pulled out of Laos after being cut up and demoralized by weeks of heavy North Vietnamese attacks.

Phu acknowledged to newsmen at Ham Nghi that nearly 300 men of the regiment had been killed or wounded in five days of fighting this week around Fire Base Lolo and Landing Zone Brown. Vietnamese sources in Saigon said another 200 troops are unaccounted for.

The general said his troops had completed three phases of the campaign, including a 2,000-man sweep of Highway 914, one of the key arteries of the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Vietnamese field officers said last week that the major portion of the drive into Laos, which began Feb. 8, would be concluded by the end of the month and the forces would be pulled back to the border.

Gen. Phu also confirmed that his forces had pulled out of Landing Zone Brown under heavy attack but there are still some troops "in the vicinity of Brown," 14 miles east of the Vietnamese border. He said this is now the most advanced South Vietnamese position in Laos.

The South Vietnamese had advanced by March 6 to Sepon, their main objective 25 miles from the border. But they began retreating a week later when two North Vietnamese regiments launched heavy counterattacks.

Sources at Ham Nghi said North Vietnamese gunners are pounding South Vietnamese bases still held between Brown and the border.

Phu said his division had been up against about 25,000 North Vietnamese and that about half of the enemy were killed, most of them by U.S. air strikes.

"More important than that," he said, "we have found their logistics system and destroyed

Strict Rules On Rock Festivals

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — One senator said it would have been easier if the legislature simply passed a law saying, "There ain't gonna be any rock festivals in Mississippi."

"This bill does the same thing," replied state Sen. W.B. Alexander of Cleveland, whose bill setting strict requirements for staging a rock festival was approved Thursday.

Among other things, the bill requires that promoters of a rock festival obtain a permit from the sheriff, post $10,000 bond, erect facilities that pass inspection by the county Board of Health, and get approval of sanitary and health standards by the state Health Department.

It set a $20,000 fine for violations.

MGM Plans Quit Ass'n

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, James T. Aubrey, says the firm is resigning from the Motion Picture Association in a dispute over various policies, including application of the movie-rating system.

Aubrey said Thursday the resignation is effective in one year, but that it might be withdrawn.

At a meeting of the Institutional Investor Conference & Exposition, Aubrey said allowing each small town to impose its restrictions for movies of various ratings would lead to disaster.

He said there is a need for a self-governing body like the MPA to regulate films, but said only one member of the MPA board is under 30.

Aubrey also took issue with what he said were "exorbitant dues charges, computed upon a percentage of the gross of films produced." He said the dues should be figured on net profits.

'Buyer Protection Bill' Opposition Sounds Off

RALEIGH (AP) — Spokesmen for merchants, mobile home salesmen and auto dealers say a proposed consumer protection bill now before the North Carolina legislature would put some of them out of business and cut off some lines of credit to consumers.

Representatives of four business associations appeared at the second day of hearings by the House Banking committee Thursday to oppose a bill sponsored by Rep. Richard Clark, D-Union.

Clark's "buyer protection bill" is designed to provide stiffer rules on installment sales, finance charges and home solicitation practices. Wednesday the committee heard witnesses tell how consumers have been victimized under existing laws.

The spokesmen Thursday objected primarily to portions of Clark's bill that would make finance companies responsible, along with the sellers of goods, for defects in products or services; sections that would limit the length of repayment periods; sections setting maximum finance charges; and a provision that would allow a purchaser who signed a contract with a door-to-door salesman to cancel it within three days.

W. C. Harris of Raleigh, representing the N.C. Merchants Association, said the bill would raise the cost and restrict the availability of credit, would cause a drop in sales and would increase retail prices.

James Lavasque of Greensboro, president of the state association of mobile home dealers, manufacturers and park owners, predicted the measure would cause monthly installments to increase so much that mobile home sales in the state would be reduced by as much as 75 per cent.

Armistead Maupin of Raleigh, representing the N.C. Auto Dealers Association, said the bill would bring a "great decline in the sale of automobiles in North Carolina, especially the sale of used automobiles to people unable to afford" new ones.

The chairman of the N.C. Independent Automobile Dealers Association, R. L. Deaton of Charlotte, said the bill "would come close to eliminating my business...It would cut our lifelines to credit, sales and profit."

The banking committee will hold hearings again next Wednesday and Thursday mornings, "and that will be all," said the chairman, Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston. "We just don't have the time to go on with this."

After next week's hearing the bill is expected to be sent to a subcommittee.

Hearings On Lt. Calley Tense While Schools Will Begin Today Awaiting Jury Verdict

RALEIGH (AP) — Parents and teachers will get a chance to express their opinions about the needs of North Carolina's public schools in a series of hearings scheduled across the state today and Saturday.

The directors of the North Carolina Association of Educators planned the five hearings to sample public reaction before considering the possibility of invoking sanctions against the schools.

Dr. A. C. Dawson, executive secretary of the 46,000-member organization, said the hearings "should set the record straight on what teachers and parents actually feel about their schools and should outline the shortcomings in the educational opportunities for boys and girls.

"One thing we expect to find is that there are major differences in the spending levels for schools in various parts of the state," Dawson said. "The parents are going to be, in many cases, surprised to find that the so-called equal educational opportunities for children may be no more than a myth in North Carolina."

The NCAE's representative assembly is scheduled to meet in Charlotte April 1 and 2, when local chapters are expected to present requests for sanctions to back up teacher demands for higher salaries and more money for public education.

Sanctions are a warning to teachers and others that unsatisfactory conditions exist in the state's schools.

The organization has called for teacher pay increases totaling about 30 per cent during the next two years, plus expansion of the experimental kindergarten program and other improvements in the public schools.

Gov. Bob Scott and the Advisory Budget Commission recommended pay increases totaling 10 per cent and less than $3 million of the requested $21 million for kindergartens.

The hearings today were to be held at the Vinson-Bynum School in Wilson and at Western Guilford High School in Greensboro. Saturday's hearings will be at Enka High School in Enka at 9:15 a.m.; at Charlotte Education Center in Charlotte at 12:45 p.m.; and the Seventh-First School, near Fayetteville at 3:45 p.m.

Union Demand Four-Day Week In Aerospace

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, said Thursday his union would demand a four-day work week for the sagging aerospace industry with the federal government paying full wages for a fifth workless day.

Woodcock said the government can "take up the cost overrun" for a shorter work week in the industry and "put people back to work and increase purchasing power."

He made his remarks at a news conference before attending the 13th triennial UAW Aerospace Conference. The union's demands, he said, would go to the aerospace industry starting in July.

Woodcock termed the short work week proposal "an emergency measure" caused by aerospace layoffs in the last two years.

Soviet Troops In Germany

BERLIN (AP) — Sizable Soviet army troop movements were reported in East Germany early today.

Truck drivers told police they saw 800 to 1,000 Russian trucks with troops heading from Berlin northeast toward Hamburg.

Increased troop movements have been reported recently, apparently in connection with annual spring maneuvers.

Hit Fire Alarm, Brings A Fleet

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Pedestrians didn't have long to wait to learn why Dave Sessions, 20, was sitting at the wheel of his school bus, holding his head in his hands and muttering, "Oh, no!"

Six fire trucks with sirens blaring and red lights flashing provided the answer. An embarrassed Sessions pointed to the smashed outside mirror on his bus, saying it had slapped a fire alarm box as he parked the bus.

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — An Army chaplain visited Lt. William Calley Jr. Thursday at his red brick bachelor apartment on the post and told him, "Take it easy, Rusty."

The 27-year-old, reddish-blond Calley, whose nickname is Rusty, enters his third day today of waiting for a jury's life or death decision. He is accused of the premeditated murder of 102 old men, women and children at My Lai on March 16, 1968.

Calley, clad in a blue sweater and blue-striped, bell-bottomed pants, welcomed the chaplain. A few friends and newsmen daily visit him at his apartment to help him pass the time.

He is jovial and a good host, providing beer, soft drinks and other refreshments for his guests.

But newsmen have found him somewhat changed from the tight lipped Calley of the past. On the surface, he is as ready as ever with a quip.

But, as the pressure has grown with the nearing of the verdict, Calley is more tense.

Under court order not to discuss details of My Lai or the court-martial, Calley is, as always, guarded in conversation. But now he jokes about the possibility of going to jail.

Last week the boyish-looking lieutenant said he thought he'd be acquitted. Thursday, he went shopping, said his lawyer,

George Latimer, for things "he might need if he's locked up."

During a picture-taking session in his apartment, Calley teased a local photographer about posing him in serious fashion, looking out his window.

Said Calley, jabbing a finger in the air as if to draw bars, "Here's Lt. Calley looking out of jail bars."

Calley, who is drawn looking, occasionally tosses darts at a board in his living room to relax. On the opposite wall is a large, weathered American flag which a veteran sent to him and wrote that it was carried by U.S. troops during the Battle of the Bulge in World War II.

"What books are you reading?" a newsman asked Calley.

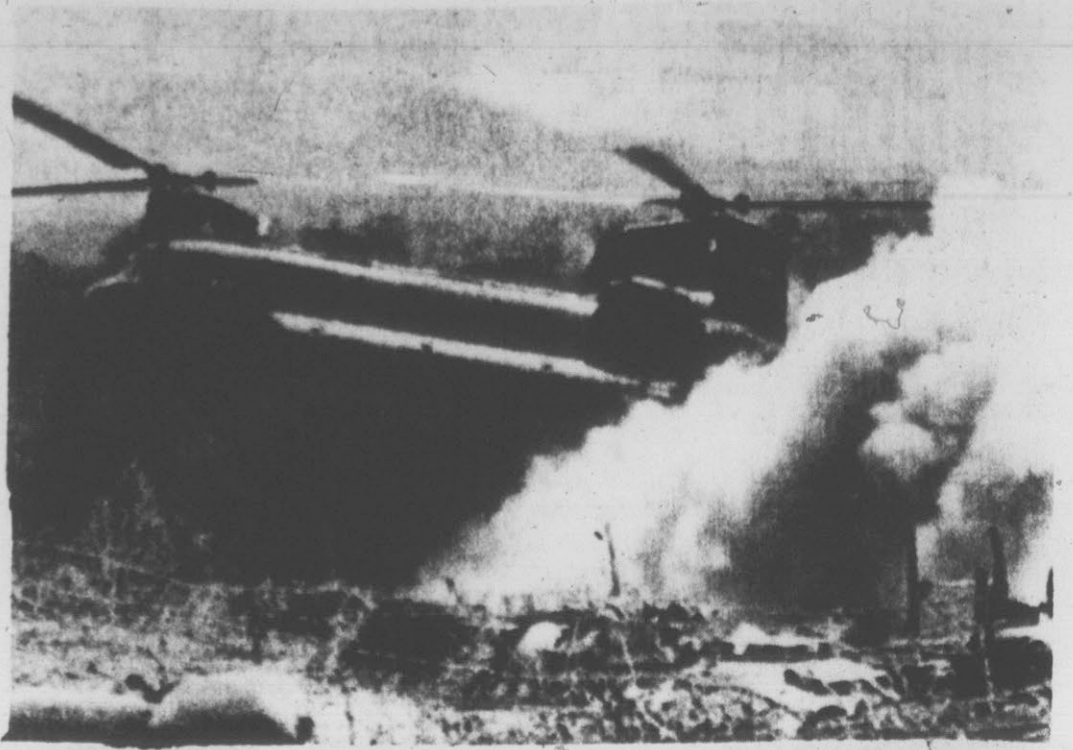

"Lately, mostly the Bible," he quipped. A new testament lies on his bookcase.

He spoke jokingly about taking a body count of cockroaches in his kitchen—a reference to his testimony that even water buffalo, chickens and pigs were included in body counts in the Vietnam war.

Calley was 24 and a fledgling second lieutenant when he led Charlie Company's understrengthed, undertrained first platoon on its search and destroy mission that day at My Lai.

Opening lead: King of ♠
The declarer in today's hand got away with his enterprising contract of four spades when East and West missed their signals and failed to take advantage of their resources.

West, with only five and one-half winners, was somewhat aggressive in his opening bid of three diamonds but, with his lack of fortification in the major suits, the situation seemed desperate enough to warrant drastic action. As for North's overcall of three spades, it was a somewhat hazardous action at the three level on such an open suit with only 11 high card points. South's jump to four spades may be regarded as routine.

West opened the king of diamonds on which East signaled encouragingly with the eight. A diamond continuation was ruffed by declarer who proceeded to draw trump in four rounds. The heart finesse was taken, losing to East's king, and the diamond return was trumped with South's last spade. With the hearts now established, declarer had a place to put his losing clubs and he scored an overtrick.

East was quick to place the finger of blame on his partner for not shifting to a club at trick two, contending that, unless the defense was able to establish tricks in that suit, there could be no reasonable hope of defeating the contract. His reasoning was of course faultless, but it was his own shoddy technique that laid the basis for the defensive lapse.

East, having sized up matters at trick one, should have directed the defense. He could, if he so desired, follow to the king of diamonds with the five requesting his partner to shift to another suit. The appearance of the dummy makes it clear that clubs is the area in which to attack. However, the more direct procedure would be to overtake West's lead with the ace of diamonds, in order to assure a club shift at the second trick, for unless West has the king of clubs—the defense might just as well fold camp.

Will Present 2 Biblical Plays

Two Biblical plays will be presented Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Grace Church here by a company of students from Free Will Baptist Bible College of Nashville, Tenn.

The cast of 13 students will enact "Daniel and the Tempter" to open the program. This play deals with the problems of today's young people, especially those involved in the work of the Church and it points up the relevance of Bible standards to current conflicts, Grace Church pastor, the Rev. Chester Phillips, said.

The second play, "Release," is about Barabbas, the criminal released as Jesus Christ took his place on the Cross. A spiritual release is, however, the subject of this drama, according to the Rev. Phillips, who invites the public to attend the plays.

To Be Tried Polish Playwright's For Murder Comedy Next Week

DOBSON, N. C. (AP) — Bobby McCreary, 27, has been ordered held for Superior Court trial on the capital charge of first-degree murder in the gunshot slaying of a Mount Airy detective.

Judge Foy Clark of state District Court found probable cause at a hearing Thursday. He ordered that McCreary be held without privilege of bond. The defendant was returned to jail in Winston-Salem.

The detective, Monroe Boggs, 37, was slain three weeks ago after stopping a car he suspected was stolen.

David J. Beal, an agent of the State Bureau of Investigation, testified that McCreary told him "he would not have shot Boggs if the detective had not had his gun out."

McCreary was handcuffed throughout the hearing. He did not enter a plea and did not testify.

Farmers Try To Block Marines

FUJI YOSHIDA, Japan (AP) — Riot police today hauled away dozens of farmers blocking the road to a U.S. Marine firing range at the foot of Mt. Fuji, Japan's sacred mountain.

The Marines then fired about 150 howitzer shells to complete three days of artillery practice. The farmers, shouting insults at the Leathernecks, attempted to prevent U.S. trucks and Jeeps from reaching the range.

The next production of the East Carolina University Playhouse might well be described as a wacky, hair-brained view of the "generation gap."

"Tango," a comedy by Slawomir Mrozek, Poland's finest modern playwright, opens March 24 for a four-night run in McGinnis Auditorium.

According to Playhouse spokesmen, "Tango" is a picture of the generation gap in reverse — reminiscent of the madcap Sycamore family in "You Can't Take It With You," by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman. In both plays, it's the oldest who are doing their thing.

Mrozek's family includes Stomil, the father, a relic of Bohemianism who lounges about in sweatshirt and unbuttoned pajama bottoms, playing inane card games with his elegantly decayed wife, Eleanora, cackling baseball-capped Grandma and insantly decorous Uncle Eugene.

There is also Eddie, the caveman stud who is having an affair with Eleanora, bird-brained Cousin Ala, and the play's protagonist, Arthur, the heir to this tattered dynasty.

Arthur is a rebel, but he has nothing to rebel against. He takes up the cause of "form and order" and at gunpoint, forces his family to conform. Both Director Albert Pertalion has assembled a cast which includes Jim Fleming as Stomil, Linda Taylor as Eleanora, Mitzi Hyman as Eugenia (the Grandma), George Merrell as Uncle Eugene, Robin McDaniel as Cousin Ala, Richard Brown as the anthropoid Eddie and Jim Leedom as Arthur.

Tickets for "Tango" became available March 17 at McGinnis Auditorium, Box 2712 in Greenville, or by phone at 758-6390.

Issue Stamps On Robot Moon Car

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has issued a series of four stamps on the mission of Lunokhod 1, the pioneer robot moon car.

A 10-kopek stamp shows Lunokhod's mothership, Luna 17, at the moment it landed on the moon.

A 12-kopek stamp shows an engineer at a control panel and an antenna for a radio telescope. An inscription on the left says: "Lunokhod 1 is controlled from the earth."

On a 16-kopek stamp is a picture of Lunokhod. Inset in the upper left corner is a bas relief of Lenin, carried to the moon by Luna 17.

The stamps were designed by artist Rima Strelnikova.

Dr. Marc Hollender told the Dallas Southern Clinical Society, "Some women will barter sex interest for the purpose of being held."

Men, he said, don't feel the cuddling urge quite as strongly and usually interpret such advances as a desire for sex.

Misinterpreting a woman's desire to be held—and held only—often creates friction in a relationship, he said, which can cause serious marital discord.

Issue Stamps On Robot Moon Car

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has issued a series of four stamps on the mission of Lunokhod 1, the pioneer robot moon car.

A 10-kopek stamp shows Lunokhod's mothership, Luna 17, at the moment it landed on the moon.

A 12-kopek stamp shows an engineer at a control panel and an antenna for a radio telescope. An inscription on the left says: "Lunokhod 1 is controlled from the earth."

On a 16-kopek stamp is a picture of Lunokhod. Inset in the upper left corner is a bas relief of Lenin, carried to the moon by Luna 17.

The stamps were designed by artist Rima Strelnikova.

Dr. Marc Hollender told the Dallas Southern Clinical Society, "Some women will barter sex interest for the purpose of being held."

Men, he said, don't feel the cuddling urge quite as strongly and usually interpret such advances as a desire for sex.

Air Quality Standards Are Argued At Hearing

RALEIGH (AP) — More than a dozen witnesses appeared at a public hearing Thursday to attack or endorse proposed amendments to North Carolina's air quality standards.

The amendments would loosen open burning regulations and tighten controls over emissions from industrial smokestacks.

The hearing was conducted by the state's Water and Air Quality Control Committee, which will make recommendations to the full Board of Water and Air Resources.

One proposal would allow leaves and vegetable matter from private residences to be burned openly, but only in areas where public pick-up facilities are unavailable. Current regulations, which went into effect July 1, 1970, do not allow residential burning.

Rep. Howard Jemison, R-For-syth, was one of several witnesses who spoke for the open burning amendment.

"I don't think people burning leaves make as much smoke all year as these factories do in a couple of days," he told the committee. Jemison said he had a bill ready to introduce in the legislature to allow residential burning if the amendment is not adopted.

Two other witnesses — Mrs. Gerry Kilburn, representing ECOS of Durham, and Mrs. Jane Sharp of Chapel Hill, representing the League of Women Voters, argued in favor of compost heaps rather than residential burning.

Mrs. Kilburn urged the board to be even more strict by adopting a system of permits for any residential burning.

She also told the committee that the suggested compliance deadline of five years for the proposed tighter emission standards was too long.

However, Carolina Power and Light Co. environmental engineer Aaron Padgett told the committee that its methods of measuring emissions from industrial smoke stacks was "inappropriate" and "unreasonable."

The amendment would prohibit emissions of a density exceeding No. 1 on the Ringelmann Chart for more than five minutes in an hour, or more than 20 minutes in a 24-hour period.

Johnson said his organization opposes the project because it would harm fishing in the creek.

Callahan said that he inspected the project site Tuesday and saw that channels had been constructed and parts of the creek bottom excavated.

CP&L issued a statement from its Raleigh office Thursday saying that "it was only after extensive investigation of the alternatives that we decided to build this cooling lake for the Sutton plant. This plan was chosen because, in our judgment, it will result in the minimum impact on the environment."

The firm said it has applied for the permits necessary for construction of the lake and has received "all except one."

CP&L also said it had stopped work at the site Wednesday at the direction of the Corps, but expects to meet with the Corps soon "to resolve the questions that have arisen."

Asheville Water Needs Outlays

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Consulting engineers have recommended improvements costing an estimated $4.7 million to correct bacteriological and other deficiencies in Asheville's water supply.

The report said, "There is a bacterial deficiency, but this is not to say the deficiency constitutes a public health hazard."

The council took the recommendations under study. The biggest item was $3.9 million for filtration facilities at the North Fork Reservoir.

CP&L 'Cooling' Lake Is Halted

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Power and Light Co.'s construction of a 1,100-acre cooling lake near Wilmington has been halted by a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers order to stop dredging in Catfish Creek.

CP&L is in the process of expanding the operation of its L. V. Sutton Steam Electric Plant north of Wilmington. Catfish Creek, a three-mile-long fishing stream, is a tributary of the Cape Fear River near the Sutton plant.

Opposition to dredging in the creek started earlier this week after the president of the New Hanover Fishing Club, J. W. Johnson, told the Corps of Engineers that plans to dam the creek had not been properly publicized.

Assistant District Army Engineer Maj. Joel T. Callahan said Thursday that no permit for the dredging or damming of the creek had been issued by the Corps. He said the creek is considered a navigable stream and is under federal jurisdiction.

Callahan confirmed Johnson's

Cheaper in the long run.

Gas will never cost you much. (You'll get up to 27 miles to the gallon.)

And the amount of oil you use is like a drop in the bucket. (It only takes 2.7 quarts and almost never needs more between changes.)

And the engine is air-cooled, so you don't have to spend a red cent for antifreeze or rust inhibitors.

And you get more than your money's worth out of a set of tires.

But don't think buying a new Volkswagen is just another get-rich-quick scheme.

You have to wait until the second set of tires wear out.

A Review Spectacle And Grandeur By Jose Greco's Dance Troupe

Jose Greco's dancers last night brought on stage at Wright Auditorium the elements of spectacle and grandeur that in the twentieth century remains a very compelling facet of the Spanish people.

For nearly two hours Greco, his partner, the strikingly beautiful Nana Lorca, and ten young dancers enthralled a full house with a show case of Spanish dances performed with the vitality and precision that has become a trademark of this famed troupe.

The language of the soul of the Spanish people seems subject to total expression in the use of the fingers, hands and feet. Playfulness, tenderness, love, hatred, jealousy, flirtation — a whisper, or the stampede of a field of wild horses; tempos from the slowest to the wildest imaginable — were all projected with conviction by the dancers.

Greco wisely — he has been around a number of years — refrained from dancing the most demanding numbers. These were danced brilliantly by a dark, small male dancer. This young man and Miss Lorca are unquestionably the stars of the troupe. (Unfortunately, programs were not available, and the audience could not identify the dancers or the numbers.)

The Greco dancers' program last night encompassed Spain in all its fascinating variations of dance styles. Folk dances, gypsy dances, formal stately dances, story dances — were all there. But it is brist of colorful dances that people do not associate with Spanish dancing, and last night's audience was served a splendid fare.

As usual with Spanish dancers, it was the use of castanets by the dancers that added the extra dimension of delight to the dancing. In one dance, three male dancers used tambourines in a number that was all vigor and sparkle. A singer, a guitarist and a pianist provided first rate accompaniment for many of the numbers and each had an opportunity to solo during the program.

The costumes for the Greco dancers are marvelous creations, and undoubtedly represent the folk costume of every province in Spain, as well as a full parade of occupational dress.

The Greco dancers last night more than lived up to their reputation as one of the most talented and fabulous group of dancers performing today. The disciplined sensuousness of their dancing is an art of perfection, and is entertainment in the best sense of an over-used word, spectacular. — Jerry Raynor

THE WONDER OF SOUND — Six-year-old Carla Pope's eyes light up with amazement as she hears sound for the first time. Therapist Janel Heller, right, of the Crippled Children's Society, fitted Carla with a special headset to amplify sound and Carla responded to the sounds as she escaped the world of silence she has known all her life. Carla was born deaf and crippled, but with therapy there is hope she may eventually walk with braces and speak and understand others. (AP Wirephoto)

Charge Baby 'Murdered'

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — A 22-year-old woman identified as a Capitol Hill worker was charged today with murder in the death of a day-old baby found last Friday in a bale of trash at an apartment building.

Fairfax County police arrested Deborah Ellen Sampson at about 1 a.m. and placed her in jail on the murder charge in lieu of $20,000 bond.

Police said the baby was found by trash men at the Riverside Park Apartments in Alexandria where Miss Sampson used to live. She now lives in Springfield.

Pathologist Dr. William Enes said the baby, apparently born Thursday night, had a plastic bag tied over its head and died of suffocation.

Police said the baby was believed to be Miss Sampson's.

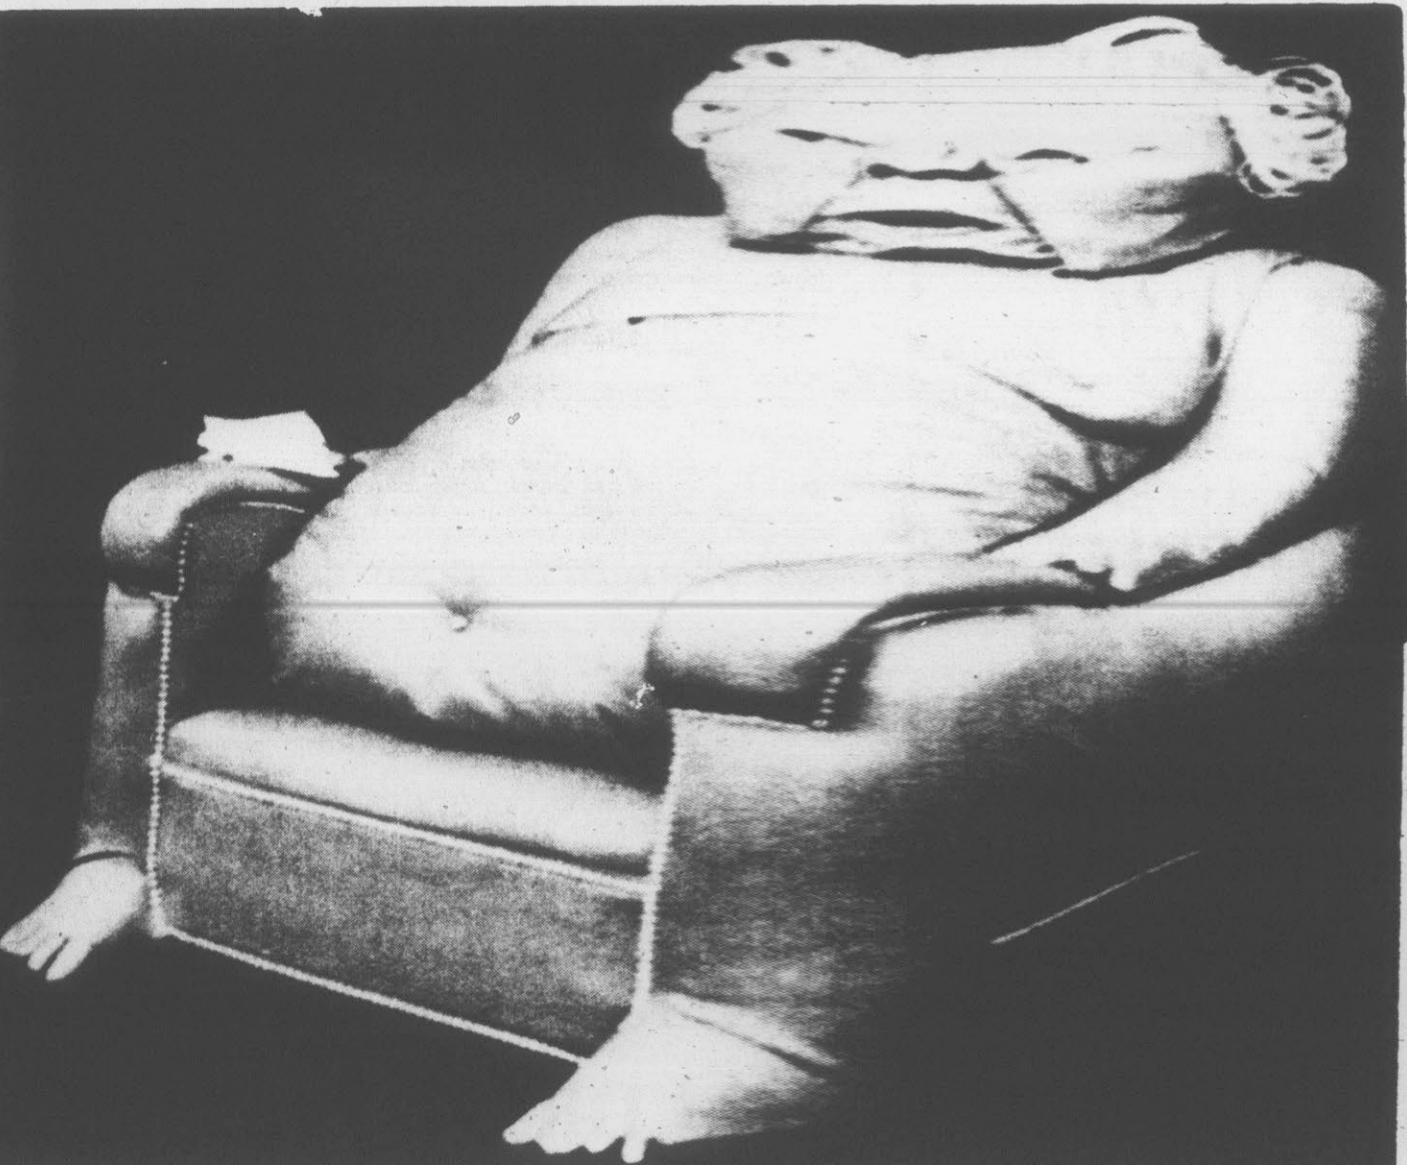

An employee of the office of Rep. Tom S. Gettys, D-S.C., confirmed that Miss Sampson worked in the congressman's office.

Police said she came from Sumter, S.C., 18 months ago and lived at the apartment house where the body was found in October and November of 1969 and for two weeks last July. She was arrested at her present apartment.

Threaten Invoke 'Escape Clause'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has informed Japan that it may invoke the national security clause of the Reciprocal Trade Act to curb man-made fiber textile imports.

Three other alternatives, officials said Thursday, include resumption of White House talks; direct negotiations with Hong Kong, Taiwan and South Korea on voluntary restraints; and recourse to the general escape clause provisions of the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade.

Reject Resolution 'Satchmo' Is On Revenue Sharing Recovering

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's Senate rejected a resolution today that would have placed the General Assembly on record as endorsing federal-state revenue sharing.

Sen. N. Hector McGeachy Jr., D-Cumberland, said his resolution was intended to convey "general endorsement" of revenue sharing but would have restricted the sharing to funds received from the federal income tax.

His resolution brought a sharp outcry from two veteran legislators, Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, and Sen. George M. Wood, D-Camden. Both called for lowering the federal tax rate rather than dispersing funds to the states.

The Senate, on a motion by Sen. Herman A. Moore, D-Mecklenburg, voted 25-17 to postpone indefinitely any action on McGeachy's resolution.

"In my long tenure as a legislator I cannot remember ever voting against a resolution," Wood said before the vote to postpone action. "I intend to vote emphatically against this one. If we need more money, we should tax ourselves locally."

Burney said the revenue sharing proposal was "pure tomfoolery to me."

"It just doesn't make sense," Burney said. "If the federal government wants to do something for the people, for the state of North Carolina, let them lower the tax rate."

In other matters, the Senate passed unanimously a House bill authorizing 25 counties to adjust their 1970-71 budgets to handle revenue losses resulting from court action throwing out local sales taxes. The bill was sent back to the House for concurrence on a technical amendment made by the Senate.

A local bill authorizing a referendum on alcoholic beverage control stores in Newton Grove also was passed and sent to the House.

The first battle of the American Revolution was fought in North Carolina was at Moores Creek.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jazz great Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong has "responded to treatment and is resting comfortably" in the intensive care unit of Beth Israel Hospital, a spokesman for the hospital said today.

The 70-year-old trumpeter "was admitted Monday evening because of an aggravation of his previous heart condition," the spokesman said.

Armstrong's manager, Ira Mangel, said the musician-singer was feeling well last weekend but entered the hospital on order of physicians concerned over an edema condition.

Edema is an abnormal accumulation of fluid causing swelling of body tissues or body cavities.

Armstrong suffered a kidney ailment that hospitalized him in 1969 and which, he has said, also weakened his heart.

Recently he had returned to entertaining and ended a playing engagement at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel last Saturday.
