Commissioners Act In Special Meeting

Election On Sales Tax Hike Set In Pitt

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County residents will have the opportunity to vote for or against a one per cent sales tax for the county in May.

County Commissioners, in a special session yesterday afternoon, voted to hold a special election on the sales tax question May 25. The board's action had been expected since the North Carolina General Assembly approved a new local option sales tax measure last month.

In their bid to broaden the tax base in the county, Commissioners last December approved a resolution calling for a referendum of the question of a sales tax in February. That election never took place because the North Carolina Supreme Court ruled the state's local option tax unconstitutional the following month.

At their February 1 meeting, commissioners endorsed a statewide sales tax proposal, saying that appropriations and legislation approved by the State Legislature "makes it mandatory that local governments secure additional revenue to meet mandatory expenses in welfare, health, mental health, education and other areas."

They, too, indicated that Pitt County taxpayers are fast becoming overburdened "as ad-Valorem taxes have reached a dangerous level and inhibit the future development of Pitt County and the cities and towns therein..."

In addition to the county government, municipal administrations within the county would share in the revenue from the local option sales tax.

Earlier, commissioners had indicated that funds from a local option sales tax could be used to help repay the cost of a $9 million bond issue for construction of a new 300 bed hospital and provide county and municipal governments and schools with "much needed funds."

Under the new state law, commissioners could have levied the sales tax after holding a public hearing on the question.

An initial motion for commissioners to levy the tax without a referendum died for lack of a second yesterday.

If the May 25 election vote is favorable, the one percent tax would begin July 1.

Commissioners, in addition to calling an election for the tax, met with the executive committee of the Board of Trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital to discuss selection of a site for the new hospital.

Commissioners were told that they would have a recommendation from the full hospital board in time for their next regular session April 5.

Some 16 sites were initially proposed for the new medical facility but that number had been reduced to four by February 4. They included: a 100 acre tract across from the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Center and an adjoining 68 acre tract; a 210 acre site on the Farmville Highway about a half-mile West of the city limits; and a 100 acre tract off N.C. 43 across from the Carriage House Apartments.

While selection of either of the sites may be made, discussions in recent weeks have centered mainly around two sites: the 100 acre tract which near the present hospital and the 210 acre site on the Farmville Highway.

Commissioners reviewed with hospital trustees yesterday the various sites.

The Farmville Highway site, owned by the W. Z. Morton heirs, includes a 25 acre pond near the center of the site and a quantity of woodland. Some of that property is low and not suitable for use, according to yesterday's discussions.

The 100 acre site near the present hospital is owned by Joseph S. Moye, Novella Moye Williams, Jesse Roundtree Moye and Emily Moye Hadley and includes about 85 clear acres.

In other action commissioners approved making application to the Farmers Home Administration for a $90,000 federal grant and a $152,750 low-interest loan for capital outlay costs in establishing a solid waste disposal program for Pitt.

The federal money would be used to purchase a planned three loaders, construct three buildings to house them, fund site acquisition and preparation; and buy two mother trucks and 150 four-yard trash containers, for a total cost of $242,750.

Projected plans include acquiring three land fill sites—one North of the Tar River; one in the Western section of the county; and one in the southern portion of the county. The plan also calls for continued use of the City of Greenville land fill as a fourth location.

Projected operating costs for the land fill operation is $88,000.

Commissioners, who emphasized that their plans may change, also approved renting an eight-acre site for use as a possible land fill near Littlefield, between Grifton and Ayden.

The eight-acre site would cost $480 per year and if operation of the fill begins and is successful, the site could be expanded to about 20 acres.

The 150 containers, according to present plans, would be located at various sites throughout the county and be available for residents to dump their solid wastes into.

Mother trucks would then dump the containers and compact the waste so the contents of as many as 25 containers could be hauled at one time to the land fill.

For March 26, It Isn't Very Springlike In Pitt County

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The first few days of spring haven't been very spring-like in Pitt County, especially with the two inches of snow coupled with a 29 degree low temperature over the 24 hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

According to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station, about two inches of snow fell from before midnight yesterday until before dawn this morning. Light rain began falling about 6:30 a.m. and continued until late this morning.

The high temperature for the 24 hour period ending at 8 a.m. today was 45 degrees. The temperature at 8 a.m. was reported as 31 degrees.

State Highway Commission crews began working about 4 a.m. this morning to keep the highways in the county clear and the light rains which began a few hours later helped in their job.

Both county and city streets were reported in good condition this morning. Street department spokesmen said the city streets were clearing and there were no hazardous driving conditions.

The Tar River level was reported at 3.2 feet this morning.

Enemy Buildup Reported In DMZ

ARVN Reinforcements Rushed North

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam rushed reinforcements to the northern front today as the allied commands reported a buildup of enemy troops and long-range artillery in the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command announced 20 American fighter-bombers attacked a new North Vietnamese surface-to-air missile site Thursday in the Laotian panhandle, one mile northwest of the DMZ.

Artillery duels were reported across the DMZ, and U.S. military sources said the North Vietnamese had moved long-range artillery into the northern half of the six-mile-wide zone for the first time.

The U.S. Command said enemy activity in the DMZ has increased 50 per cent.

The Saigon government announced that several battalions of fresh troops were flown to the northern front. Lt. Col. Tran Van An, chief spokesman for South Vietnamese military headquarters, said there are now more than 20,000 Saigon troops in Quang Tri, South Vietnam's northernmost province.

An said some other units that were badly cut up in the Laotian campaign had been reinforced and reorganized to make them combat effective once more.

An said the buildup could have three meanings:

—Preparation for a new South Vietnamese offensive.

—Defense against North Vietnamese attacks, including one from across the DMZ.

—A rest period for troops just returned from the campaign in Laos.

Asked if the South Vietnamese might make a limited attack into the DMZ in an attempt to neutralize North Vietnamese forces moving in, An replied:

"I cannot say. I never predict what we're doing. I don't know. Wait a few more days."

Some sources felt it would be impossible for the South Vietnamese to mount a big offensive into the DMZ or into North Vietnam after the heavy losses their forces suffered in Laos.

The U.S. Command said the new SAM site was located by reconnaissance planes in the lower Laotian panhandle one mile west of the North Vietnamese border and one mile northwest of the DMZ.

Bloodmobile In Pitt For 2 Days

Two American Red Cross Pitt County Bloodmobile collection visits are being held in the county this coming week.

Douglas Morgan, chairman of the bloodmobile, reported the first drive will be held at the Greenville Moose Lodge from 10:30 a. m. until 4:30 p. m. Monday. Members of the Greenville Service League will be assisting.

On Tuesday, the Ayden Jaycees are sponsoring the drive being held at the Community Building in Ayden. Hours for the bloodmobile are from 11:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Morgan noted that a recently enacted state bill now permits 18 year olds to donate without parental approval. Previously, any donor under 21 had to have a parent's consent.

"I feel this might make a big difference in our collections," Morgan commented, saying that young people seem interested in helping in programs such as this.

He noted too that at the present time the bloodmobile is only 60 units short of its quota, and he hopes the two drives will result in bringing the quota back to par or even over the top.

Would Increase Powell Bill Aid

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate Public Roads Committee today approved unanimously a bill to increase the amount of money distributed to cities and towns in North Carolina for street maintenance.

The measure, backed by the North Carolina League of Municipalities, now goes to the Senate floor where it is expected to be approved.

The 1951 General Assembly enacted a bill to place a one-half cent tax on each gallon of gasoline, with the proceeds to be returned to the cities and towns for street maintenance. Under the formula, one-fourth cent was based on street mileage and one- fourth on population.

Under the pending bill, the appropriation to the municipal street aid fund would be increased from one -half cent to one cent. There would be no increase in the gas tax. The additional half -cent would come out of the State Highway Commission's fund for maintenance of highways.

It would increase the population formula from one -fourth to three-fourth cent.

Sen. Jyles Coggins, D - Wake, told the committee the bill would correct what he termed "inequities and abuses" in the present formula.

Senate Critics Pleased Over Rogers' Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of President Nixon's Middle East policy say they are pleased with Secretary of State William P. Rogers' assurances the United States won't try to impose settlement terms on Israel.

"He made it clear there were no preconditions on our part requiring the Israelis to leave the occupied areas" before negotiations, said Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Sen. Jacob E. Javits, R-N.Y., who, like Jackson, had criticized administration attempts to get Israel back to the negotiating table, said Rogers told 67 senators at an unusual closed session Thursday no settlement would be imposed.

A number of senators including Jackson said they had misunderstood the U.S. position and Rogers had clarified it.

Javits and Jackson sidestepped questions on whether their better understnading of U.S. policy would enable them to back Rogers' efforts.

Jackson remained sharply critical of Rogers' suggestion of a joint U.S.-Soviet peacekeeping force to police any settlement, although he said the secretary had made clear any such force would have to be approved by both Israel and Egypt.

The Washington Democrat, predicting the Senate would reject any such force, said such a joint effort would carry "the danger of the most serious kind of confrontation between the Russians and the United States."

Jackson said the Israel and Egypt should negotiate without the presence of a third party, such as United Nations special envoy Gunnar Jarring.

Rogers confined comment to a statement that the meeting "helped to clarify" the Nixon administration's position, adding: "I would hope the negotiations could continue . . . in a period of quiet."

Big Business

The food stamp program has become big business in Pitt County.

Daily Reflector Staff Writer Carol Tyer has completed a study of the program and it will be carried as a five part series.

Black Americans

Oscar Johnson Helping Ghetto Kids Join 4-H

Editor's Note: This is the last of three stories on some of the unsung contributions of black people to American society.

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

Oscar Johnson Jr. is a 20-year-old Negro who left the cows, chickens and pigs on the farm but brought the 4-H Club to the ghettos of South Side Chicago.

Johnson is no farm boy himself. He was raised in what he calls Chicago's "inner city," or ghetto district. But in his early teens he began to hear and read about the 4-H Club and what is was doing for boys and girls down on the farms across the nation.

What is all has added up to seven years later is this: some of the gangs which roved the streets of South Side Chicago have disappeared. They have been replaced by 4-H Club chapters. Instead of gathering in alleys they meet in clubrooms or the homes of parents.

Another result of Oscar Johnson's house-to-house campaign for 4-H Club members was a visit to Washington, D.C. — at the personal invitation of President Nixon, and talks with Cabinet members.

That was a thrill for Johnson of course but he says the important thing is that the 4-H Club movement seems to be taking hold in his district of Chicago.

It started back in 1963 when Johnson heard some other kids talking about 4-H. They didn't really know what it was, so Johnson set about finding out.

While there was no way to bring all those cows and chickens and such to the city, the idea of youngsters helping each other with their problems seemed just about as important to Johnson as the annual 4-H livestock shows and auctions.

So Johnson joined the 4-H that same yaar in a pilot program just getting off the ground in Chicago. Nothing much happened for a while, but in 1966, Johnson decided to form his own 4-H chapter.

"I went around from house to

CP&L Again Goes To Court Seeking Another Rate Boost

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. has gone to court looking for higher electricity prices from its 450,000 retail customers in North Carolina.

The utility won an 11. 86 per cent increase last month from the North Carolina Utilities Commission. But that's not enough, the CP&L told the state Court of Appeals Thursday.

CP&L said it should get the entire 14 per cent increase it had originally sought from the utilities commission.

The utility has been collecting bills with a 14 per cent increase since Feb. 1 on a temporary basis. It asked the court Thursday for permission to continue the arrangement.

If the final resolution of the rate dispute leaves CP&L with less than 14 per cent in rate increases, the utility would have to refund the excess with interest to its customers.

The average North Carolina residential customer would pay only 30 cent a month more with the full 14 per cent increase. But CP&L serves 455,000 retail customers in the state, including large factory customers that drain large amounts of power off the grid.

The difference thus would mean about $200,000 a month in revenues from the utility's point of view.

CP&L won the full 14 per cent raise in South Carolina. That increase, in effect since the first of the year, has meant an increase of about $1.50 a month for the average South Carolina

Schools In Robersonville Closed By Disturbances

ROBERSONVILLE — Robersonville schools closed early at 11:30 a.m. yeaterday on the heels of disturbances in the local high school.

Martin County Schools Superintendent Eugene Rogers said that the decision to close was taken after sheriff deputies were called to the school at 9:30 a.m. to control about 250 black students who roamed the halls and refused to return to class.

No students were reported injured in the trouble, and Rogers said that damage, confined to the school science lab, was of a minor nature.

The trouble reportedly started over discussions on the purchase of class rings when students could not reach a decision on which company to award the purchase contract to.

"We are trying to work with the students in efforts to clear up the misunderstanding," Rogers commented, adding that plans were to reopen the schools Monday.

All schools in Martin County are closed today because of about three inches of snow. Many of the bus routes in Martin County are long ones, with some of them made up in part of dirt roads.

Rogers said the closing of schools today had no bearing on the trouble at Robersonville. "We have three or four days we can work with as make up days to take care of unexpected bad weather conditions such as we have today," he commented.

Even Gifted Students Turn Off When School Stifles Initiative

(Editor's Note: Following is the last of two articles on why so many children do not perform up to their potential in school.)

By CONNIE MEYERS
Women's News Service

CHICAGO (WNS) — Jonathan Morgan used to show his dislike of first grade by lighting firecrackers.

"Boy, did I frighten the teacher!" said the freckle-faced redhead, a talkative child whose main interest is dinosaurs.

Jonathan knew how to read when he started first grade, said his mother, Mrs. Donna Morgan.

"He was bored in a classroom where 40 six-year-olds were expected to sit in rows all day," said Mrs. Morgan.

Jonathan, who is now 8, still remembers those days. "The teachers were always bossing you around," he said. "You couldn't work with your friends. You just sat and did math and wrote down stuff."

"The teacher said Johathan was a behavior problem," said Mrs. Morgan.

"By the end of first grade he was so turned off school, he was staying home most of the time — teaching himself."

Eager

Today Jonathan is an eager fourth grader at a cooperative private school in which the children are permitted to progress at their own speed and choose much of their own reading. There is much interchange of ideas among children and between children and teacher, and a low ratio of pupils to teacher.

"There are so many things to do at this school," said Jonathan. "We are studying math, reading, animals, nature, Indians, amphibians. Next week we're going to put some water under a microscope and see an amoeba. Sometimes we get to go to the gym and play basketball or volleyball or soccer."

Jonathan doesn't light firecrackers any more.

Psychiatrists say that some children who underachieve in school are so deeply angry they become self-destructive. Conflict in the home can cause this kind of anger. So can repeated frustration at school.

Sometimes the problem is an unimaginative teacher. Charles E. Silberman in his newest book, "Crisis in the Classroom," tells about a child who brings a turtle to class. The teacher comes in, sees a group of excited children around the turtle, and tells them to put it away. The subject for the day will be crabs!

Individual Attention

Some children need more individual attention than teachers can give them. Class size in most public elementary schools in the big cities ranges from 30 to 40. In some public and parochial schools, classes are even larger. Most educators say a class with more than 20 or 25 is too large.

Jonathan Kozol in the 1967 National Book Award winner "Death at an Early Age" wrote a searing account of the damage to black children when they are put in overcrowded, decrepit classrooms with racist teachers. His book was written about the Boston Public School System.

Failure to provide remedial reading at early grade levels is a shortcoming in many public schools. In Chicago, remedial reading teachers say they have met children who have gotten as far as the seventh grade with a reading vocabulary of less than 50 words.

In general, the best city and suburban classrooms are run on the same principles: Young children do not sit in desks bolted to the floor. Books are geared to the children's interests and level of development. There is an abundance of supplies and equipment for constructive self-teaching experiences. There is a relatively low ratio of pupils to teachers. Teachers are well-trained and imaginative, and more concerned with teaching children than with keeping order in the classroom.

The Bright Child

Ironically, it is the bright child, the apple of his parents' eye, who often gets low priority from school administrators.

Public sympathy is easily gained for retarded and handicapped children. But few people pity the gifted child — even when he is being shortchanged in school.

Members of Mensa, a society for people in the top 2 per cent on intelligence tests, were asked about their experiences in school.

Their responses followed a pattern. At first they were bored. Then they became lazy, scornful of what to them was busywork. Many said they never learned how to work at school. Some formed lifetime patterns of underachievement.

Researchers have found high I. Q. people doing ordinary jobs: a go-go girl with a 150 IQ, a cab driver who tests at 165.

"You sit there, and you're ahead of the whole class, and you start making mischief," said Helen Kupper, a program analyst in the federal government's General Services Administration.

"Not me, though. I was a good little girl. But I was bored to tears."

Mrs. Kupper graduated high school at age 16. She skipped two grades, a practice that has mostly been abandoned. "It hurts to always be alone," she said.

Jim Williams, a junior at the Circle Campus at the University of Illinois, said: "I never learned to study. It was too easy to get along without working."

Like A Cork

Some school administrators think a bright child is like a cork, said Richard Ronvick, head of an Illinois program for gifted Chicago public school children.

"They think he will rise to a high level of achievement by natural law," said Ronvick.

"This false notion is contrary to all research on giftedness. If the gifted child is placed in a school situation where he is not challenged, if he does not have an opportunity to develop his particular talent, he will not achieve."

Roughly one out of 20 American children have a high level of intelligence or creativity and are considered gifted. About two per cent are classed as "highly gifted."

The child with a high IQ has a better-than-average power to reason, generalize, verbalize, remember.

The creative child sees a problem from many points of view.

Research on creative children by Professors Philip Jackson and Jacob Getzels of the University of Chicago, revealed they tend to be stubborn, rebellious, nonconforming.

The creative child dislikes taking orders, rote memorizing, parroting the teacher.

He has unusual persistence when working on his own project. And may come up with answers that are strictly his own — unique.

Educators disagree about what should be done with gifted children in the classroom. The individualists favor grouping children according to ability. They say the special needs of the gifted child are best served by putting him with other talented children. The egalitarians say grouping is unfair to the slower children.

There is also disagreement about what constitutes a gifted child.

A child used to be considered gifted if he scored better than 133 on the Stanford-Binet Intelligence Test; 130 on the Weschler Adult Test; or 140 on the Army General Classification Test.

Today IQ tests are losing some of their importance.

Research has shown that a child with a high IQ may or may not have judgement, creativity, social skills, motivation. Outstanding achievement demands most of the qualities — plus a certain amount of luck.

Dr. Lee West Gives Program Monday Night

Dr. Lee West spoke at the meeting of the Dilettante Book Club on Monday night.

Although people are constantly exposed to facts about drug abuse through news and television media, they still are not cognizant of the perils of drugs, stated Dr. West.

In answering questions of the group, one of the facts presented was the estimate that the number of drug users in this country may be about twelve million, which is close to 10 per cent of the young people and adults.

Dr. West traced a pattern of introduction of drugs into a city, with usage of marijuana as the first step, LSD the second step, and then heroin usuage.

In summarizing his remarks, Dr. West pointed out that arrests for drug abuse are increasing in Greenville and that the greatest number of abusers are less than 30 years of age.

A business meeting was conducted by the president and special reports were delivered by committee chairmen. Mrs. Donald Bailey announced a May Day luncheon to be held May 1 at the Fiddlers III Restaurant. The group will attend to the Sidewalk Art Show afterwards.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. Fred Parham, Mrs. Jack Thorton, Mrs. John Jones, Mrs. James Baxter, Mrs. Wilkins Winn and Mrs. John Lauteres.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Charles Cullop, and the co-hostess, Mrs. Henry Ferrell, during a social hour, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Campus Visitors Entertained At Reception

East Carolina University President and Mrs. Leo Jenkins entertained at a reception Wednesday night honoring members of the Latin American Symposium.

The Symposium, directed by Dr. Edward Leahy and conducted on the ECU campus Thursday and Friday, had noted authorities from several universities and the Organization of American States, Washington, D.C.

Among the honored guests at the reception were Dr. Raymond Crist from the University of Florida, Dr. Eulalia Lobo from the University of South Carolina and Dr. Werner Stenzel of ECU. Other speakers for the Symposium were Dr. Henry A. Landsberger from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Rafael Sarda from OAS.

An arrangement of lavender and white iris, accented by burning tapers provided the focal point on the dining room table from which refreshments were served to more than 100 guests.

Assisting Mrs. Jenkins in serving the guests were Mrs. Ed Leahy, Mrs. W. W. Smiley, Mrs. Robert Holt, Mrs. Herbert Paschal and Mrs. Joseph A. Hill.

Mrs. Melvin Hoot Speaks To Pilot Members Monday

Mrs. Melvin Hoot Jr. spoke to the Pilot Club of Greenville, Inc. on Monday night and gave the early history of the project "Operation Sunshine", which began in November, 1965.

"Enriching the life of each individual, building self-respect and developing good health habits" are just three of the many goals that the project hopes to achieve concerning each girl in the program," she said.

A resolution was read by Mrs. W. W. Howell honoring the late Mrs. Robert Fennell, who was president of the Pilot Club of Greenville in 1961-63. A copy of the resolution is to be forwarded to her sister, Mrs. Verna Dare Avery. Flags were placed at the empty chair in honor of Mrs. Fennell's work in Pilot.

Mrs. Clifton Warren informed members of the progress of "Safety Town" which will be held at the Agnes Fullilove School playground on May 3 through May 14. Mrs. Robert Smith discussed the layout of the buildings and streets. This will be one of the club's major projects this year.

Mrs. Robert Starling, president, presided at the meeting and welcomed the guests which were Miss Mary Ruth Devine, Mrs. William McDonald and Miss Evelyn McGowan. The pledge of allegiance was led by Mrs. James Vick.

Letters of appreciation were read from "Meals For Millions" and the Young Trainable Group One thanking the Pilot Club for its gifts.

Mrs. Starling was voted by members as an outstanding leader and her name will be included in a book "Community Leaders of America."

Too Early For An Assessment

As the South Vietnamese excursion into Laos comes to a conclusion, no one can truly describe it as a resounding success, despite the fact that it seemed to be going well at the outset.

It appears likely that North Vietnam had far more troops and armored equipment to throw into the battle than the South Vietnamese ever expected and once the superior forces were committed the South Viets were forced to leave hurriedly.

It was announced early in the excursion that the object of the drive into Laos was to disrupt enemy supply lines rather than to occupy territory. Yet it would be difficult to believe that the South Vietnem forces did not intend to remain in control of strategic supply trails until the rainy season was nearer. This is still a month away.

On the other hand North Vietnam has had to commit its best troops and heavy equipment at a time when it did not wish to do so and it is safe to assume that it, too, is taking heavy losses in men and equipment in its drive to reopen southern supply trails. What were these men and supplies being held in reserve for? Perhaps to deliver a blow to American troops as their numbers dwindled; or perhaps to attempt to knock out South Vietnam after the Americans were gone.

It is impossible now to assess the effects of the Laotian battle on the overall course of this interminable war.

One fact still stands, however, The United States has been in Southeast Asia long enough. Our troop withdrawals must continue at least as rapidly as they have been going and the South Vietnamese must take over their own defense. If South Vietnam is not ready to defend itself now it will never be. Our main mission now must be to arrange for an orderly withdrawal so that our own men are not caught in a military trap, while at the same time giving the South Vietnamese forces all the assistance we can as they take over their own defense.

Positive View Of Regionalism

By BRYAN HAISLIP

DURHAM — Who was Lucius Quintus Cincinnatus Lamar?

Biographical detail is less important than philosophical outlook to the 500 or so Southerners who belong to the Society which bears his name.

They join in commitment to positive regionalism, to the concerted purpose of finding solutions to problems of economics, education and human relations delaying the South's potential. Cultural separatism is not the goal; rather, utilization of the area's distinctive character in the mainstream of national life.

Society directors came to Durham on Friday, a return to the place of origin little more than 16 months ago, for the organizational meeting of a North Carolina chapter. The 80 to 100 participants at Quail Roost conference center represented intellectual, business and political leadership, cutting broadly across partisan and ideological lines.

Conversations between a Duke University economist and a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill historian gave birth to the idea for the organization. They were Dr. Thomas H. Naylor, now the Society's executive director, and Jim Leutze who serves on the Board of Directors.

Who He Was

The suggestion for the name came from Frank E. Smith, director of the Tennessee Valley Authority and a former Mississippi Congressman.

Lamar was a 19th century Mississippi statesman, a U.S. Senator, Secretary of the Interior, and justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

He rose above an early reputation as a Southern firebrand. His 1874 Senate eulogy of Massachusetts abolitionist Charles Sumner was acclaimed as an unprecedented plea for justice and amity between the North and South.

"The Society believes that the type of behavior exemplified by his struggle for reconciliation between the races and regions of this country in the divisive 1870's," the organization says in its brochure.

As Naylor and Leutze drew other friends into discussion on the prospective society, they found a strong positive response. Eighty-five leaders from 12 states attended the founding meeting in November, 1969.

Second Symposium Set

The first major event was a symposium on "The Emerging South" held in Memphis, Tenn., last fall. The focus on the region's multiplicity of problems drew together 250 persons. A second annual symposium is scheduled for Atlanta, April 30-May 1.

It will ask the question: "The Urban South — Northern Mistakes in A Southern Setting?" Headliners will be Senator Edmund Muskie of Main; H. Ross Perot, chairman of Electronic Data Systems, Dallas, Tex.; and President Terry Sanford of Duke, former Tar Heel governor.

Michael Cody, a Memphis attorney and early organizer of the Society, serves as its president. State Representative Curtis Graves of Houston, one of the first black members of the Texas legislature, is vice president.

Board of Directors membership is a roll call of Southerners of influence and leadership. Numbered among them are: Watts Hill, Jr., chairman of the Home Security Life Insurance Company, Durham; Joel Fleishman, newly appointed vice chancellor of Duke University; Brandt Ayers, publisher of the Anniston, Ala., Star (whose newspapering career includes a time in North Carolina); Hodding Carter, III, editor of the Delta Democrat-Times of Greenville, Miss.; Congressman Bob Eckardt of Houston, Tex.; Alan Steelman, director of President Nixon's Advisory Council on Minority Business Enterprises; Moses Burt of the National Urban Coalition, and former Durham attorney.

Positive Regional Pride

"Southerners have a legitimate basis for regional pride — racism is not one of them," said Dr. Naylor, who is director of the Center for Southern Studies at Duke.

The Society aims to promote those values, not from a defensive position, but as an incentive to overhaul institutions and solve problems, he explained.

Guides to that goal are contained in "You Can't Eat Magnolias," a collection of 25 papers by Society members scheduled for publication later this year.

The 20th Century Fund has awarded the Society a $55,000 grant to draft a strategy for change in the South, a project which will involve ten student interns in gathering data and information in the fields of economics, politics, education, and social relations.

"The Society is dedicated to supplanting empty rhetoric, long the solace of our region, with pragmatic dialogue ... Solving (our) problems will require the talents of... Southerners who are long on imagination, innovation and professional competence, short on political dogma."

That's the call to membership, in the name of L.Q.C. Lamar.

Big Backlash From Mexico

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Quite apart from the vast effrontery of the Soviet Union's aborted attempt to plant highly-trained Mexican agents and provocateurs inside Mexico, the sudden exposure of the eight-year old plot may have a profound anti-Soviet reaction throughout Latin America.

Moscow's diplomatic probing with traditionally anti-Communist governments in the hemisphere, just on the verge of success, is now endangered by the Soviet cloak-and-dagger maneuver. The facts of that maneuver, breathtaking in its audacity, are just now coming into focus.

In 1963, under auspices of the Mexican-Soviet cultural exchange agreement, the Soviet-Mexican Cultural Institute in Mexico City chose the first batch of promising left-wing Mexican students for a four-year scholarship at Moscow's Patrice Lumumba Institute. The central figure selecting these first 10 students was the Second Secretary of the Soviet embassy in Mexico City (one of the five Soviet "diplomats" now expelled by the Mexican government).

After the four-year university course, during which they underwent indoctrination in Communist party and revolutionary tactics, the 10 students asked for field training in anti-government subversion. They formed themselves into the Revolutionary Action Movement.

But Moscow would not provide this revolutionary training in the Soviet Union itself. If discovered, the Mexican government would instantly retaliate.

To keep Soviet hands clean, the students were sent by rail to East Germany, where they acquired North Korean passports. They returned to Moscow and then flew, via Soviet Aeroflot airline to Pyongyang, capital of North Korea.

In Korea, they were given six months' training in guerrilla tactics, at a location far from the prying eyes of diplomats.

Their training completed, they threw away their passports, flew back to Moscow, and returned to Mexico on their Mexican passports. It is unthinkable that all this could have been accomplished without Soviet complicity.

Two more groups, totalling 19 Mexican students, followed the precise course of the first 10. Back in Mexico, they set up eight clandestine training centers, most in remote provincial towns, and started recruiting. Mexican counterintelligence agents uncovered the plot and arrested approximately one-third of the revolutionary students 10 days ago.

The official reaction of the Mexican government, probably the most sophisticated in Latin America, was highly unusual public indignation. Five Soviet diplomats were declared persona non grata and sent home. Beyond that, the affair raises serious questions about Soviet standing throughout the hemisphere — as in Venezuela.

Venezuela has been a key Soviet target for subversion financed partly through Eastern European Soviet satellites. Attempting to warm relations with Caracas by exchanging diplomatic delegations, Moscow finally reached agreement last December after tortuous negotiations conducted intermittently for almost 20 years.

That agreement limits Soviet personnel in the new embassy to 15, including cooks and chauffeurs. So far, only three Soviet diplomats have actually taken up residence. With the explosive Soviet subversion against Mexico now surfaced, Venezuela will undoubtedly clamp additional restrictions on the new Russian embassy.

In Costa Rica, a 30-year ban on Soviet diplomatic activity was lifted several months ago, but no Russians have yet arrived. Against the Mexican backdrop,

WHAT A GUY

Persuasion. Try it, not as the ultimate end of discussion but as the body and life of discussion. If there is one type of person universally disliked it is the person who holds forth in arrogance and is never willing to try persuasion in the attempt to settle an argument. The guy that's always right and is intent on convincing his contemporaries that he is right usually ends up with few freinds and with everyone looking forward to the day when they can read his obituary. "I am Sir Gallahad and when I open my mouth let no dog bark."

Of course you've met him. He believes he is the only person in the world that knows everything and is willing not to prove it but to declare it.

But why get worked up over people of this variety? Everybody in the club, or the sewing circle, or the office knows this person who claims omniscience. We wonder how God ever got the world created without the advice of Mr. Omniscience.

But think of the burden the guy bears. He knows everything, and the rest of the world is ignorant. Why can't they listen to him and learn something? Did anyone ever see or listen to such nonsense as ninety-nine per cent of one's contemporaries is presumed to manifest?

What a pleasure it is to listen to a person who really knows something and has a convincing way of setting forth his knowledge! Life packed with achievement — what a pleasure to know such a person and what a trial to listen to the chap who is sure he knows everything and is committed to the project of convincing his contemporaries of this truth.

Service Contract Vital

WASHINGTON — In the world of planned obsolescence, the service contract plays a most vital role. There is hardly anything you can buy now that doesn't have a service contract to go with it.

The other day I went into my favorite department store to purchase a paper cup dispenser. It cost $1.50.

As the man was writing up the sales slip he said, "Would you like to have a service contract with this?"

"What for?" I asked.

"Well, it could break down and you would have to call someone to fix it. If you take out a service contract, which will only cost you $40 for the year, we would send someone to your house free of charge."

"But why would you sell a paper cup dispenser that would break down in less than a year?"

"Please don't get me wrong. I'm not saying that this paper cup dispenser will break down. We've sold several of them that need no servicing at all. But our experience has been that the majority of the dispensers do cause trouble after frequent usage. Where did you intend to use this paper cup dispenser?"

"In the children's bathroom. They don't seem to ever rinse their glasses after they brush their teeth."

"Then you'll certainly need a service contract. These paper cup dispensers were not built to stand the punishment of children using them every day."

"But there is a guarantee with the paper cup dispenser."

"That's only if it's used by a senior citizen three times a week. Of course, you don't have to take the service contract — it's strictly optional.

"But we know a dentist who installed one of our paper cup dispensers in his office and it broke down. It kept dispensing three paper cups at one time. He didn't have a service contract, so it took three months before we could get to him. By the time our man repaired the dispenser, the dentist had used $645 worth of paper cups, not to mention the $25 we had to charge him for the house call."

"But," I said naively, "it seems so unfair to sell someone a new product and then inform his it's liable to break down."

"On the contrary. We would be dishonest if we sold you the product and didn't inform you it would break down. These service contracts are for the protection of the customer. Two weeks ago a lady bought one of these paper cup dispensers and after two days, it wouldn't dispense any paper cups at all. She had to keep leaning over and trying to drink directly from the faucet. Fortunately, she had a service contract with us and we sent over a man right away. It runed out a sprocket spring behind the reject lever had slipped out of the three-way hook. He replaced it in an hour and all the lady had to pay for was the new parts.

ART BUCHWALD

"Except for a bad back she developed trying to lean over the faucet, it only cost her $12."

"I still don't understand why a reliable store like this would carry a paper cup dispenser that won't hold up."

"Well, frankly sir, we're not too fond of these paper cup dispensers ourselves. We don't even make any money on them."

"Then why do you sell them?" I asked angrily.

"Because," he said primly, "we make all our profit on the service contract, stupid."

Other Editors Say
Good Man For ECU

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

While one newspaper in the state seems to feel Dr. Leo Jenkins has chosen himself a gubernatorial campaign manager for an assistant at E. C. U., the News-Argus can have nothing but praise for the selection of John L. Lang.

Despite one paper's declaration that Lang is a professional politician, the fact of the matter is that he has served in a career job in the Department of Defense for almost 15 years.

Mr. Lang has served as top administrative assistant to a succession of Secretaries of the Air Force under both Democratic and Republican President.

He holds the reserve rank of major general.

Lang loves his native North Carolina and some of his close friends in Wayne County have known for the past few years that he longed to return.

There has been speculation that he might be interested in a teaching position at East Carolina.

Because of his administrative background, he would be hard to beat as administrative assistant to anyone.

If Dr. Jenkins needs an administrative assistant, and we're certain such a decision would have to be supported by his trustees, then he could not have found a better man.

The fact that John Lang might have contacts among influential people throughout the state and that he might have great political savvy does not detract one bit from his potential value to East Carolina or from Dr. Jenkin's decision to hire him.

Watch These Clues

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Just how sane are you?

Are you that one out of every 10 who will spend some part of his life in a mental institution, or are you among those three out of four who on some days think it would be restful to be in one?

Before you start paying $50 an hour to have a mental massage by an expert, you might make a preliminary estimate of your normalcy quotient. Simply answer the following questions, compiled by the poor man's psychiatrist:

When you try to overhear what people are saying about you, do you feel let down when you discover that they usually are talking about something else?

Does it embarrass you if someone at the office asks you, "Isn't that the same shirt you wore to work yesterday?"

If you can stick to a diet, do you like to brag about it? If you can't stick to a diet, do you still like to brag about it?

If you drop a piece of breakfast toast to the floor, do you have a conviction that nine out of 10 times it will land with the buttered side down?

Admittedly, your boss isn't the most talented guy in the office, but if you had a choice, wouldn't you rather simply have his salary than his title or his duties?

As you get older, are you oppressed by the feeling that each U.S. Congress does less than the one before?

If you were browzing alone in a bookstore and no clerk was looking, wouldn't you sneak a peak at an illustrated sex book rather than an illustrated copy of "Alice in Wonderland"?

Salvo At Mail-Order Insurance

By ELMER ROESSNER

The Federal Trade Commission has fired a salvo at mail-order insurance companies in the March edition of its new newsletter, Consumer Alert. It doesn't say that all mail-order insurance policies are a gyp but it says that if you don't understand a mail-order policy, to ask a neighborhood legal service, a businessman you know or an insurance agent to explain it. That last is like asking Sears if you can do better at Montgomery Wards.

The FTC says that if you buy insurance by mail, you should know:

. What it insures you against.

. How much it will pay.

. What the premium is.

"Beware of a premium that starts low, gets higher later."

It adds: "Even though a mail-order offer looks good, SHOP AROUND FOR THE BEST POLICY." (Capital letters are the FTC's.)

Warns Of Come-Ons

The FTC warns against these "come-ons":

"Veteran policies. Genuine U.S. government life insurance for members of the Armed Forces is not sold by mail. It is purchased by servicemen through their military units.

ELMER ROESSNER

"Medicare policies. Only the U.S. government offers Medicare. Anyone else using the term is probably selling commercial accident and health insurance, insurance that in no way affects your benefits under Social Security.

"Accident and health policies that say:

" 'Lowest regular premium of any company.' Low rates may mean that the company doesn't pay its claims.

" 'No medical examination necessary.' When you make a claim, the company might not pay. Because you didn't have an examination, they can say you had the illness or injury when you bought the policy and didn't tell them about it.

" 'Guaranteed continuable' or 'Only you can cancel' This is not really true. Under certain circumstances, a company can cancel a policy or raise the premium you pay."

The FTC adds that it is concerned about misleading insurance offers that come in the mail and "needs your help" in stopping illegal practices. It urges people to report any mail-order insurance problems they have to FTC field offices.

The FTC leaves one question unanswered. To use its own attention-getting device, capital letters, IF MAIL-ORDER INSURANCE IS AS BAD AS IT SUGGESTS, WHY IN HECK HASN'T THE FTC CLEANED IT UP YEARS AGO?

Far East Adopting Far Western Styles

Blue Bell, Inc., of Greensboro, N.C., has licensed Toyobo Co., Ltd. of Japan to manufacture and sell its Western style jeans and slacks and other apparel. Toyobo, which was established in 1882, has agreed to maintain Blue Bell standards and not export the licensed apparel into the U.S.

house in the neighborhood," he recalls. "A lot of kids didn't know anything about 4-H yet. Some had never even seen a live chicken or cow, or pig. But a lot of them were interested anyhow."

Johnson called his chapter the Green Buccaneers and after a lot of both negative and positive results, the positive won out.

Today the 4-H Club has moved into the Chicago ghettos and black and white boys are joining chapters instead of street gangs.

Word of Johnson's success and that of others finally reached the White House. There came to his home an invitation to visit Washington.

He reached 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue at a time of crisis and President Nixon was involved in a series of conferences. But Johnson sat down and talked with men like George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, whose chief concern is to bring peace and order to the ghettos through improved housing and social conditions.

The visit to Washington was reward enough for Johnson. But the growing number of Chicago 4-H Clubs and their mounting membership are an even greater one, he says.

To an earlier generation, the name of Mahalia Jackson summons up the vision of a wide smile and the sound of a booming voice belting out the gospel songs of the Old South.

Today, more than 30 years after she began to break up audiences in Chicago's Salem Baptist Church, Miss Jackson at age 59 is slowing down — to about 150 concerts a year, that is — and devoting more time to what she calls "giving out instead of taking in."

Many of her concerts today are aimed at raising money for a 10-year campaign to endow scholarships for students of all races. The Mahalia Jackson Foundation which she organized goes beyond helping to finance careers in education. Its funds are available, too, to build playgrounds for disadvantaged children and "generally to help people having trouble helping themselves."

The "queen of the gospel singers" suffered a heart attack in 1964. It slowed her pace but not her determination. Born in New Orleans, the third of six children, Mahalia left school after the eighth grade to work in the Louisiana cotton fields and then in Chicago factories.

Her first musical break came at the Salem Baptist Church there when the choir director listened to her powerful voice and built a quartet around it.

After that, gospel singing became the axis on which her life revolved. Her deep-throated blues singing came to endear the daughter of a black Baptist minister to Carnegia Hall audiences. With it all came fame and financial security many times over. Now she is channeling the latter to ease the misfortune of others.

"I got my education from God and my diploma from soceity," Mahalia says. "A lot of people want to send their children to college but can't manage it. I'm just trying to help."

Her foundation draws no racial barriers, for, reminds Mahalia, "We are all God's people, all one blood."

New Rules OnTelevision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has announced a new rule affecting VHF and UHF television stations.

Regularly affiliated VHF stations serving markets which have three or more stations will be restricted from carrying programs from a second network when UHF stations in the market do not have a regular affiliation.

The FCC said the rule, announced Thursday, primarily will affect UHF station WRDU-TV in Durham, N.C., which has authority to identify with the Raleigh-Durham market.

This market, the FCC said, is one of two markets which have two VHF stations and one UHF station in which the UHF station does not have regular affiliation with one of the three networks.

The new rule is needed, the FCC said, because of the critical situation of UHF in some areas as illustrated by WATU, Augusta, Ga., which went off the air last November.

The new rule also will affect situations — described as few, if any — in which there are three VHF stations and one has not obtained an affiliation.

As it applies to UHF stations, they will be given first call on up to 15 hours a week of evening programming from the "unaffiliated" network, plus weekend and holiday afternoon sports broadcasts.

Costa Rica — a traditional democratic bastion in Central America — may have second thoughts (despite January ratification of a surplus-coffee-purchase agreement with Moscow).

Likewise, the Russians have been making strenuous efforts to sign a cultural agreement with Colombia, which renewed diplomatic relations with the Soviets in 1968. The agreement was signed last summer, but it has not yet been ratified by the Colombian parliament.

All these careful diplomatic probes by Moscow are now endangered by Moscow's patronage of the aborted Mexican affair. Just how much they are endangered is evident in the formal Soviet response to Mexico's expulsion of the five Soviet diplomats. Unable to deny the facts, the Russians blamed the embarrassing affair on "powers" — that is foreign countries — "that are opposed to Soviet-Mexican relations."

What powers? What motivation? The Russians can't answer that question.

Two Kidnaped Boys Are Free, Unharmed Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two young victims of separate kidnap incidents were free and unharmed today after the parents of one paid a $5,000 ransom and the father of the second met a demand for removal of four nude photographs from an art gallery.

The victims were Michael J. Register, 11, of Macon, Ga., who was held in handcuffs for nearly 20 hours while his parents arranged the ransom, and Richard E. Batey, 13, son of an official of the gallery in Memphis, Tenn.

Macon police said most of the $5,000 paid by Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Register was recovered because Michael managed to "appropriate" an identification card from one of his abductors and later led police to the house where he was held.

They arrested John Thomas Plummer, 20, who lives next door to the house, and charged him with kidnaping. Police said other arrests were expected.

In Memphis, the Batey boy was abducted from his home by a bearded gunman at about 8:30 p.m. Thursday and released 2½ hours later after his father went on local television and radio to report that the photos would be taken down.

The gunman had told him the boy would be released if he broadcast such a statement.

There was no immediate arrest in the case.

The photos, part of a show of more than 100 works that went on display at the Memphis Academy of Arts March 1, had been the subject of local controversy for the past week after one resident complained they were obscene.

Police said the gunman entered the home of Dr. Richard C. Batey, a parttime instructor in humanities at the academy and director of the exhibition and ordered the father and two sisters to lie down on the den floor.

In the Macon case, police said young Michael was abducted when he went out to a neighborhood grocery store at 6 p.m. Wednesday. Four hours later his parents received a call demanding the $5,000 ransom.

They obtained a bank loan early Thursday and, according to their instructions, delivered the money to an isolated area along Interstate 75 highway east of the city.

The boy was released in a wooded area where, upon being freed from the handcuffs, he managed to "appropriate" the identification card that had a name and photograph.

He made his way home two hours later.

District Rotary Sessions Begun

Rotarians of District 773 opened the 1971 annual conference in New Bern Thursday evening with a meeting of the Council of Governors, E. Frank Ruble of Washington, N.C., presiding.

The conference held its first plenary session on Friday afternoon and was to hear O. Ted Kirby, of West Allis, Wisconsin, representing President William E. Walk, Jr. of Rotary International, at the Fellowship Dinner Friday evening.

Sessions of the conference continue through Saturday evening when Attorney General Robert B. Morgan, a Lillington Rotary Club past president, will address the Governor's Banquet. The Saturday luncheon speaker will be Miss Gertrude Carraway, director of Tryon Palace and a past president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Several Pitt County Rotarians are members of the district organization, of which Robert L. Stallings, Jr. district governor, New Bern, is chief administrator, announced James W. Butler, chairman of the District Public Relations Committee, Greenville. David J. Whichard, II, Greenville, and Clyde G. Simmons, Sr., Ayden, are also members of the District Public Relations Committee.

Other Pitt Countians on the district committee organization are:

Robert L. Smith, Farmville and Jack C. Wynne, III, Bethel, Executive Committee; John B. Lewis, Sr., Farmville, and C. Placed First In Chess Tourney

Leroy Taylor Jr., of Greenville won first prize in the Dogwood Open chess tournament sponsored by the Shelby Chess Club recently.

The nationally ranked chess tournament is the first such tournament to be held in Cleveland County.

Forty players from three states competed for trophies and prize money, each participant playing a total of five games.

Taylor is a senior at UNC. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Taylor Sr., 2005 E. Fifth St.

Hospitals Paid Near $15 Billion

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American public paid nearly $15 billion for hospital services in 1969 —217 per cent more than in 1959, reports the new edition of the Source Book of Health Insurance data.

At the same time payments for physicians' services reached $12 billion in 1969, up 130 per cent since 1959. Expenditures for medicines and appliances amounted to almost $8 billion, an 88 per cent increase.

SimmonsNot Resigning

RALEIGH (AP) — Gene Simmons says he doesn't plan to resign his post as chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party to work fulltime in the Democratic gubernatorial campaign of Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor.

Television station WTVD in Durham said it had learned from highly reliable sources that Simmons would resign as soon as the General Assembly adjourns. The station said Simmons was asked about the report earlier this week and he indicated he may have something to say in several weeks.

"This is absolutely not correct," Simmons said Thursday. "I'm in the tobacco business and plan to go to Georgia when the session ends."

He is reading clerk of the Senate and is a tobacco auctioneer in the summer and fall months.

The Associated Press learned Tuesday that Taylor plans to announce about mid-summer that he will seek the Democratic nomination for governor next year. Taylor would neither confirm nor deny this but said he would have an announcement on the matter this summer.

Says Freedom Is Mostly Talk

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Young persons are engaging in sexual activities of all sorts—including group sex — and coeds are encouraged to engage in sex to prove they have no psychological hangups. Right?

"Wrong," says Prof. Wallace Denton of Purdue University's Department of Child Development and Family Life. "What is said and what is done are actually worlds apart."

Guest Preacher For Services

The Rev. Christian White, senior minister of the St. James United Methodist Church, will be the guest preacher Sunday morning at the Holy Trinity United Methodist Church at eleven o'clock.

White will be speaking on the sermon topic "The Purpose of the Christian Life." The services will be held in the Aycock Junior High School located on Red Banks Road. The public is invited to attend.

The Holy Trinity Church was organized in November, 1956, under the sponsorship of the St. James Church and the N.C. Conference Board of Missions. Construction of the first building unit is expected to begin sometime this summer.

Recalls How Warren Blocked Approval

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The time one legislator locked another in the men's room to keep him from voting on a crucial issue was recalled this week when bills were introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly to ratify the 19th amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

When the amendment, which permits women to vote was up for ratification a half century ago, North Carolina was among a handful of states which refused.

Bills were introduced this week to correct that the North Carolina League of Women Voters regards as a mistake and a slur on womanhood.

Sen. Hargrove Bowles, D-Guilford, a sponsor along with Rep. Willis Whichard, D-Durham of the ratification legislation, told what happended in August of 1920.

A bill to ratify the 19th amendment was before the North Carolina Senate during a special session of the General Assembly. A head count had shown the Senate stood 25 for and 25 against the bill, Bowles related.

At that time O. Max Gardner, who later became governor and still later ambassador to Great Britain, was lieutenant governor. Lindsay Warren Sr., who later became a congressman and then comptroller of the United States, was a prominent senator and a good friend of Gardner's.

Warren was a staunch foe of the Women's Suffrage amendment while "Lt. Gov. Gardner had publicly stated he was going to break the tie in favor of the ladies," Bowles added.

"Not to be outdone, Sen. Warren found a senator favoring the passage of the bill in the men's room. He locked the door and hurried back to the Senate. The vote was held and the count was 25 to 24 against the amendment.

"The lieutenant governor did not get to break the tie, and North Carolina did not ratify the 19th amendment," Bowles said.

"What we are doing 51 years later is making another attempt to ratify this constitutional amendment which gave the ladies the right to vote.

"Since this Legislative Building has no locks on the men's room doors, we are hopeful the General Assembly will ratify the amendment this time," Bowles concluded.

Pigeons Killed In Big Shootout

PARIS, Ky. (AP) — Some 700 to 800 pigeons died in the Paris shootout.

Police Chief Johnny Mynear said he hoped he would not be bothered for a while with complaints about the town's pigeon problem.

About 35 area law enforcement officials and sportsmen using mostly 12-gauge shotguns and low-power shells roamed the city's central business districts for $3\frac{1}{2}$ hours Thursday stalking the birds' roosts.

"If you shoot a roost, they don't come back," Mynear said.

Soliciting Cost Careers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The commander and nine ranking officers of the Alabama Air National Guard, accused of illegally soliciting campaign funds in the 1970 gubernatorial election, have been fired from full-time career posts.

Alabama Adj. Gen. Charles A. Rollo, who announced the shakeup Thursday, also relieved Maj. Gen. G. Reid Doster of his command of the guard.

Rollo said Doster and the other nine had engaged in political activities forbidden to government employes under the Hatch Act.

The action came after an investigation by the Alabama State Military Department.

Rollo said the termination would become effective at the end of a required 30-day notification period. The men then will become regular guardsmen instead of career personnel.

Early settlers imported seaweed from England to treat stomach disorders.

Would Utilize Hospital Space

RALEIGH — Identical bills to utilize 160 idle beds at Eastern North Carolina Sanatorium in Wilson as a general medical facility of the University of North Carolina School of Medicine have been introduced in the N.C. House and Senate by Wilson County legislators.

The proposed use of the sanatorium space would be for specialized diagnostic treatment services, including radiotherapy, neurology, hemodialysis, and otolaryngology, according to the bills introduced by Sen. J. Russell Kirby and Rep. J. Ernest Paschall.

Cost of the new facility for the first two years is estimated at $1,780,127, but since collection of $305,499 in medical fees is anticipated, a general fund appropriation of $1,474,628 is being sought. Included in the appropriation request is $600,000 for renovation and $874,628 for operation and maintenance.

The Kirby-Paschall bill would implement a multi-unit idea advanced by the university's School of Medicine. Such a multiple facility, according to testimony at a February hearing by Dr. W. R. Berryhill, former dean of the UNC School of Medicine, would aid in the expansion of medical personnel through the community hospital and aid in improving the health care of eastern North Carolina's citizens.

Five-County Session Set

WILLIAMSTON — A five-county regional conference on aging to determine policy recommendations for the Governor's State Conference on Aging will be held at Memorial Baptist Church in Williamston on April 20.

The conference will consist of group discussions of issues affecting the aging population in areas of income, physical and mental health, housing, environment, nutrition, education, employment and retirement, transportation, spiritual well-being, research, programs and services.

Counties included in this region are Beaufort, Bertie, Hertford, Martin, and Pitt. Representatives from each county will submit a list of persons from various age groups, professions, services, organizations, and institutions, and from these lists approximately 100 persons will be asked to participate. W. W. Howell of Greenville has been appointed chairman of the Conference Committee.

The policy recommendations determined at this conference will be taken to the Governor's State Conference to be held in Raleigh on May 21 and 22. The State Conference will determine policy recommendations to be passed on to the White House Conference to be held in Washington in November.

Hospital Adopts Weekend Plan

WILSON — Wilson Memorial Hospital trustees gave the hospital administration the go-ahead Wednesday night to begin hiring contract physicians to staff the hospital's emergency room on weekends.

Weekend coverage may begin within a few weeks if further details like the number of physicians to be hired and scheduling can be arranged quickly, according to Hospital administrator, Duncan McGoogan. He said it is possible that the hospital will have to sustain a loss, but he stressed the benefit the community would derive from the service.

Louis Armstrong Said Improving

NEW YORK (AP) — Louis Armstrong is reported in satisfactory condition after a tracheotomy to combat a pulmonary condition which developed while he was under hospital treatment for heart trouble.

A tracheotomy is the opening of a passage in the outside of the throat for drainage and to ease breathing.

A Review
Remodeled Film At Remodeled Theater

The old State Theatre reopened last night with a new name, the Park Theatre, and a new movie, also a remodel on an original, named "Wuthering Heights."

Of the two efforts, that of the theater renovation came off far more effectively. With the elimination of the old steep steps, a better lobby, acres of tall pink drapery hanging from the walls, and seats almost too comfortable, the renovators of the building can take pride in their accomplishment.

This is not the case with those who reworked Emily Bronte's masterful "Wuthering Heights" into a screenplay. It's still basically recongnizable as "Wuthering Heights", even to the extent there are several authentic points of reference to the book.

The total effect, however, is strongly suggestive of what the late Walt Disney might have done, with the ghosts of the two ill-fated star lovers in the fade away scene bouncing lightly down the moors into a happy, misty, forever after.

Miss Bronte fashioned a dark brooding canvas of real life, with its theme of human suffering altering the lives of several generations. The movie is an altogether different story.

Heathcliff as an elderly man living his lonely days out, outwardly comfortable in the wealth of two ill-gotten inheritances, inwardly warped by years of dedication to the pursuit of revenge, has been discarded. Missing altogether are young Catherine Linton; the awkward young Hareton Earnshaw; and Heathcliff's own son, Linton. Gone too is the sustaining current of physical passion ever present but never fulfilled in the turbulent relations between Heathcliff and Cathy.

Instead, the viewer has been served a curious pastiche of Bronte and "Dark Shadows" with touches of soap opera, and Playboy frolics to spice the proceedings.

The final tearing asunder of the powerful fabric of Miss Bronte's story at the end of the film, when Hindley shoots the young Heathcliff so that his ghost can be conveniently released to join that of Cathy is the ultimate stroke of infidelity to the original story.

All this is not to say that a script writer for movies must slavishly follow every detail of a literary work being adapted. Nevertheless, to go so far afield and still call the production an adaptation is, quite simply, dishonest. There are legions of competent writers who could have furnished a first rate script, complete with happy ghosts vanishing hand in hand, without disturbing the ghost of Miss Bronte.

The miracle of this version of "Wuthering Heights" is that it has been salvaged, with great credit, by the fine cast. Timothy Dalton as the moody Heathcliff overcomes every obstacle to turn in a fine performance. In the role of Cathy, Ann Calder-Marshall struggles successfully to bring credibility and feeling to her scenes. Harry Andrews as the older Mr. Earnshaw in the early part of the film; Julian Glover's portrayal of Hindley; and Judy Cornwell as Nell Dean, the maid; are all outstanding.

Visually, the movie is superb.

J.T. Little, Jr., Elected—

J. T. Little Jr. has been elected president and general manager of Carolina Sales Corp., succeeding his father who retired as president of the Greenville firm.

The election of the new president came during the company's annual stockholders and directors meeting held recently. For the past three years, Little had served as executive vice president and general manager.

J. T. LITTLE, Jr.

James T. Little, the retiring company head, was elected chairman of the board of directors and the firm's chief executive officer during the annual session.

In a report to Carolina Sales employees following the meeting, the chief executive said that he had "every confidence" in his son's ability "to direct and operate this company to the mutual benefit of its stockholders and employees."

Little noted that he would continue to be active in a consulting capacity and in assisting the present officers and division managers.

Shepard Would Like To Repeat

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Alan B. Shepard Jr., who made a moon landing on the Apollo 14 mission less than two months ago, says he'd like to do it again but will never get the chance.

"I'd jump at the chance to go to the moon if I could take off next month," he said at a supermarket opening ceremony Thursday.

"I want to fly again, but I've had it. It would be three or four years before I could hope to fly again. There are too many other astronauts awaiting their turn at the moon."

Icy Road Claims Woman Driver

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — A 23-year-old New Bern woman was killed today when her car skidded from an icy road and crashed into a culvert.

State Highway Patrolman J. W. Brown identified the victim as Dolly Lilly Watson. He said the accident occurred about 1:40 a.m. on a rural road about three miles south of New Bern.

Brown said the victim, who was driving, was alone at the time of the one-car crash.

The first passage through the Panama Canal was made on Aug. 15, 1941.

Firebombings Linked To Case

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Fires which damaged two buildings late Thursday night were caused by firebombs, according to police, who said the destruction seemed to be connected with the acquittal earlier in the day of three whites in the fatal stabbing of a Negro.

One fire did minor damage to an office of the State Board of Pharmacy. The other did more extensive damage to the old North Side Elementary School, now used as offices for the superintendent of schools and other administrative personnel.

Police said no arrests had been made.

An all-white Superior Court jury of nine men and three women acquitted three members of a motorcycle club from nearby Durham of second-degree murder in the death of a 22-year-old black youth who had been attending a dance in Chapel Hill. He was James Lewis Cates, 22, of nearby Carrboro. Police said he was slain during a fight between members of the motorcycle club and youths attending a dance sponsored by the Afro-American Activities Committee of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The dance was held in the University Student Union Building last Nov. 21.

Cates was not a student at the university.

The trial was at Hillsborough, the Orange County seat, 13 miles from Chapel Hill. The defendants were Ronnie Broadwell, William D. Johnson and Rufus Paul Nelson, all of Durham County.

After the jury foreman announced the verdict, the solicitor, or prosecutor for the state, Herbert Pierce, asked that the jury be polled individually on each defendant. The jurors responded that they agreed with the verdict of acquittal in each case.

The jury heard three days of testimony and deliberated an hour and 25 minutes.

DMZ HEATS UP — South Vietnam rushed reinforcements to the northern front Friday, reporting more than 20,000 Saigon troops in Quang Tri, as the allied commands reported a buildup of enemy troops and long-range artillery in the demilitarized zone dividing North and South Vietnam. (AP Wirephoto)

Physician Sues Howard Hughes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A physician who contends he had a commitment to be Howard Hughes' personal doctor until 1988 at $50,000 a year is suing the billionaire for $1.8 million.

Dr. Robert Buckley filed the Superior Court suit Thursday saying he was fired without cause last Dec. 31. Buckley said he was hired in 1968 and moved to Las Vegas, Nev.

Hughes left Las Vegas last Thanksgiving and reportedly is in the Bahamas.

TWO REASONS WHY THE SPECIAL SOFT DRINK TAX IS UNFAIR AND SHOULD BE REPEALED.

1.

Those who can afford it least have to pay the most: Housewives who buy soft drinks for their families, children, working men and women — those who consume the most soft drinks — are singled out to pay more than their fair share of the tax burden every week, every day.

2.

The special soft drink tax is really a special food tax. In addition to the regular three or four per cent sales tax, housewives now pay a special tax on more than 100 different food items under provisions of the so-called special soft drink tax. This special tax is costing consumers throughout North Carolina about $18 million per year.

ONE WAY YOU CAN DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT.

If you resent having to pay more than your fair share of taxes just because you and your family enjoy soft drinks, please write to your legislator and urge him to repeal this unfair tax. The soft drink industry has pledged to remove the exact amount of the tax when the tax is repealed. That means you'll pay less for many food items for your family. So write to your legislator. Send your letter to your senator or representative, N.C. State Legislative Building, Raleigh, North Carolina 27602.

Students Opine Nixon Concerned, But Unsure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three college students say 25 minutes in private with President Nixon convinced them he is genuinely concerned about communicating with the young but isn't sure how to do it.

"You get a feeling of genuine concern, but that he's isolated in his office," said Stanley Grimm, 21, of Fargo, N.D. "I think he understands the depth of the problem, but is befuddled as to how to handle it."

"He's not isolated as to what young people do, but as to why they do it," said Walter Byrd, 21, of Kerrville, Tex. "No one seems to be able to tell him why."

And Steve Baker, 21, of Montreal, a senior at Hamilton College in New York, said he told Nixon: "The two questions on students' minds are: 'What country are we invading today and what can we do to beat you in '72?' The President seemed to know that. He looked resigned to it."

Grimm, a senior at George Washington University; Eileen Friars, 21, a senior at Simmons College in Boston; Jay Sternoff, 20, of Bellevue, Wash., a Bellevue Community College sophomore; Byrd and Baker met privately with Nixon at the White House Thursday.

Presidential aide Robert Finch arranged the appointment for the five, members of the National Student Congress of Student Body Presidents. Finch had met with the students Wednesday and Thursday before suggesting the meeting with Nixon.

In an interview after the meeting, Baker, Byrd and Grimm said Nixon expressed disappointment more young people are not inviting his advisers and administration officials to speak on college campuses.

"I found him much warmer than he appears on TV, though he seems older, like the job's really tiring him. Even his eyebrows are graying," said Byrd, a senior at the University of Mississippi.

Did the meeting change their over-all impression of the President?

"I really think he's interested in keeping up the dialogue," Baker said.

Partisan Baby

RALEIGH (AP) — Sen. Phil Kirk, R-Rowan, passed out some partisan punches along with the cigars Thursday with the announcement that he was the father of a nine-pound, six-ounce girl.

Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor announced the birth in the Senate. The announcement prompted Sen. Ruffin Bailey, D-Wake, to suggest that a Democratic Party handbook be given to Kirk so the baby could be brought up properly.

Kirk replied: "I know she's a Republican. As soon as I saw her she had her eyes open."

Eastern Towns On Critical List

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department has added Williamston-Plymouth in eastern North Carolina to its list of areas with substantial unemployment.

The list includes labor markets with a jobless rate of 6 per cent or more.

Calley Verdict Wanted Monday

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The jury in Lt. William L. Calley's marathon My Lai murder trial must have a verdict by Monday or the judge will ask the reason why. The deliberations are in their 10th day today.

"It's a touchy matter," Judge Reid Kennedy said Thursday as another day passed without indication a decision is close. "I'm not sure just what I'll say to them. There really isn't any precedent for this. I don't know of any military jury that's ever taken so long."

The trial, too, is the longest court-martial in history, beginning on Nov. 12.

The six combat officers of the jury are considering four specifications against Calley: that on March 16, 1968, when he led his infantry platoon through My Lai, he murdered at least 30 civilians at a trail crossing, at least 70 more at a ditch, plus a man and a child.

On each count the jury can return one of four findings: acquittal, or guilty of premeditated murder, unpremeditated murder of manslaughter.

Premeditated murder is punishable by life imprisonment or death. For unpremeditated murder life in prison is the maximum. Each count of voluntary manslaughter could bring up to 10 years.

The six officers on the jury deliberated through a rainy day Thursday without asking, as they have been doing, for a readback of testimony.

It was only the third day since they got the case March 16 that the jurors have not been back in the courtroom for some legal action.

Tire Tracks Guided Pilot

landing gear wouldn't lock.

The pilot, Russell Holliday of North Wilksboro, flying two passengers in a twin-engine Beech, had to do something quickly at the Asheville Airport because he was low on fuel.

The manager of the airport, Gary Taylor, drove his car into turf near the runway and left tire tracks in the grass for more than half a mile as a guide. Taylor said, "You get better control on the grass and you slow down faster."

The plane made a safe landing Wednesday evening. It settled on its main wheels and rolled for about 300 feet. The nose wheel collapsed and the prop cut a furrow for another 300 feet.

One of the passengers, Manly E. Wright, executive vice president of the Asheville office of the Northwestern Bank, said it was "a good tight landing." The Certified Check and Title Co. of Wilksboro owns the plane.

Long, Tense Vigil For Young Army Lieutenant

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — When the telephone rings between the hours of 8:30 a. m. and 5 p. m., William L. Calley Jr. flinches.

The 27-year-old lieutenant never knows when it will bring word that he must don his uniform, go to the one-story courtroom of World War I vintage, and hear his verdict.

For 10 days now, Calley has spent a tense vigil waiting while six officers decide whether he will live or die. He is accused of murdering 102 Vietnamese villagers during an infantry assault on My Lai in March 1968.

To the world, Calley has displayed bravado, but essentially he is very alone.

No member of his family has been with him throughout the four-month ordeal of his trial, longest in U. S. military history. He has three sisters and a father, all in Florida. His mother is dead.

It was at Calley's request that they not come—he didn't want them subjected to publicity.

The slight, rusty-haired lieutenant has few close friends at this big infantry post, where he was brought for his court-martial. Yearning for companionship, he has turned to inviting a few newsmen to his bachelor apartment.

An impassive person, Calley was at first taciturn.

His apartment is on a block of nonedescript, red brick row units, on a sloping, pine-filled hill. The residential section is called Battle Park Homes and his neighbors are all Army families.

At home, he replaces his too-snug uniform with tight, flair-bottomed slacks and turtle neck sweaters.

Calley, who has wide, slightly slanted eyes, looks straight at the person with whom he is talking. He is full of quips, often turning his most barbed wit on himself.

Standing at his small portable bar next to the kitchen door, he likes to swap war stories. And he is reluctant to see any guest leave.

Lately, even the convivial beer-drinking in the evenings is gone. His afternoons and evenings have been taken up with a writer for a national magazine, who is writing Calley's story of My Lai.

For the past few nights, his lawyer said, he has been unable to sleep.

Asked if the strain was getting to him, Calley replied, "It sure is."

Challenges Teacher Certificate Rules

RALEIGH (AP) — A Burlington educator is challenging a requirement by the North Carolina Board of Education that all teachers and principals renew their certificates every five years.

The suit in Alamance Superior Court is aimed at overturning regulations that require hundreds of teachers to return to college each summer at their own expense for course work to count toward certificate renewal.

L. G. Guthrie, an assistant superintendent at Burlington's Walter Williams High School, contended in the suit filed last month that he stands to lose a $2,000 job this summer if he has to return to college to renew his certificate, which is due to expire.

Guthrie asked the court either to knock down the regulations as "arbitrary and unreasonable"; declare any state laws supporting the regulations unconstitutional; prohibit the state from requiring certificate renewed without reimbursing teachers for the time and expense involved; or limit certificate renewal to specific cases, such as teachers who have been out of the profession for a long time.

The suit — apparently the first court test of the requirements — claims that state law does not require certificate renewal of all teachers.

A response to the suit prepared by Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan said state law provides that "the state Board of Education shall have power to ... regulate the grades, salary and qualification of teachers...

Dartmouth Rips East Carolina By 11-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The East Carolina University baseball Pirates couldn't get wound up yesterday against Dartmouth, and the Indians danced their way to an 11-0 romp over the Bucs in the meantime.

Six Pirate errors combined with 10 Dartmouth hits to chalk up the runs, nine of which were unearned. Nine of the runs also came in the final three innings when the temperatures were reaching the bone-chilling point in the cold afternoon.

The loss dropped the Pirates to 2-3 record for the year, and handed starter Ron Hastings his first loss of the year. He is now 1-1 on the season. He was charged with eight of the runs, including both of the two earned runs, while giving up seven hits, striking out five and walking five more.

He was also charged with two balks, and ECU Coach Earl Smith argued bitterly, but vainly, that the calls were in error. "I didn't see him do anything that wasn't perfectly legal," he said afterwards.

Hastings set Dartmouth down in order in the first inning, fanning the first two batters. But in the second inning, things started downward for him and the Pirates.

Frank Mannerino opened the inning with a double up the alley in left center. Craig Conklin followed up with a walk, and with one out, Tim Hanningan grounded back to second, but the ball was booted and Mannerino came around to score for a 1-0 Indian lead.

Dartmouth added another run in the third. Tom Hanna walked and took second when a pickoff atempt was errored at first. The first balk against Hastings moved him on the third and he scored from there on Russ Adams' sacrifice fly to left.

Dartmouth didn't offer another threat until the seventh inning, when they got their only two earned runs. With one out, Charlie Janes singled into center. Hanna was hit by a pitch and Jim Bell got a single to left, loading the bases.

Hastings was then charged with his second walk, bringing in Janes with the third Dartmouth run. Adams followed with his second sacrifice fly, scoring Hanna after the catch for a 4-0 lead.

In the eighth, Dartmouth finally drove Hastings from the mound. With one out, Wayne Young walked. Hannigan grounded back to third, and Young was cut down at second. The relay to first was in time, but as the umpire signaled Hannigan out, the ball was dropped, and the runner got a second chance. Dave Dietz and Janes both walked, loading the bases, and a single to the infield scored Hannigan. Bell singled into right center, scoring Dietz and Janes. Adams then slapped one into left, scoring Hanna with the eighth Indian run.

The ninth saw three more Indians cross the plate. With one down, Hannigan reached on an error. Dietz singled, but another error let Janes reach, scoring Hannigan. Hanna singled in Dietz, and a sacrifice fly by Bell brought Janes over with the final run.

The Bucs, meanwhile, just couldn't get to Janes, who allowed just five hits, walked four and struck out eight. The Bucs had a chance in the first but failed to collect.

With one out, Dick Corrada singled and Larry Walters got a hit. Corarada reached third on Stan Sneeden's infield grounder, but the rally died there.

In the second, Hastings reached second on a walk and a single by Matt Walker, but could go no further. In the fourth, Squeeley McNeeley reached second on a walk and a balk. Then, in the eighth, Mike Aldridge got that far when he and Sneeden singled back to back, but that was it for the Pirates.

Today's scheduled game with Dartmouth was cancelled because of bad weather. The Pirates are slated to open a two-game set with Virginia Saturday at 2 p.m. The second game is planned for Sunday at 2.

Carolina Bops Duke; Will Face Georgia Tech In NIT's Finals

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Hoffman stood in the runway under the stands at Madison Square Garden and sighed.

"Well, listen," the St. Bonaventure junior said, "there's always another game, another season. And it was just another foul shot."

Only minutes before, the 6-foot-1 guard from Hazelton, Pa., had stood at the foul line, preparing to eliminate Georgia Tech from the National Invitational Tournament and propel the Bonnies into Saturday's championship against rugged North Carolina.

But it never happened. His first shot whipped around the rim and out. The second one barely touched the iron and, though Hoffman didn't know it at the moment, the Bonnies were on their way to losing the double-overtime game 76-71 before 18,812 frenzied fans Thursday night.

North Carolina had a much easier time of it against Atlantic Coast Conference rival Duke, belting the Blue Devils 73-67 in the first of the two semifinals.

Duke will face St. Bonaventure in the consolation game preceding the nationally televised 1 p.m., EST, championship contest.

Georgia Tech, a team which gave the Bonnies a shock by forging a 20-9 lead. But by the half it was 29-29 and, thanks to jumpers by Hoffman and Greg Gary of the Brown Indians, it was still deadlocked 59-59 going into overtime.

Each time St. Bonaventure went ahead Tech came back. With nine seconds to go, Jim Thorne had a chance to put the Engineers on top — but he missed the first of the one-and-one foul situation.

Eight seconds later Hoffman launched a desperation shot.

"I thought it was going in," he said later.

It didn't miss by much — but as it was soaring toward the rim, referee Rich Arricale was whistling furiously and pointing the accusing finger at Tech's Frank Samoylo.

"I thought it was an offensive foul," the junior guard said. "Everybody was coming up to me and saying, 'great play, great play.' Then when I saw the foul was called on me I just started praying."

Just a few steps away, the Bonnies' bench was in an uproar while several strides down-court the Georgia Tech players huddled silently along the court's edge.

Then Hoffman stepped to the free throw line and seconds later, while the Bonnies surrounded their disconsolate teammate with shouts of "forget it" and "we'll still get 'em," towels were flying and players dancing around the Tech bench. It still was 67-67.

The rest was anticlimax. Thorne's basket on a goaltending call and two foul shots apiece by Tommy Wilson and Bob Murphy put the engineers on top 73-67 and they coasted home. Thorne finished with a game-high 27 points. Carl Jackson had 18 to top the Bonnies.

Tech Coach John "Whack" Hyder said he was surprised his Engineers were able to keep up with the usually hard-running Bonnies. And he acknowledged that, for a while, it seemed neither team really wanted to win.

He recalled losing to St. Bonaventure by a slim 70-68 last Dec. 29 in the Gator Bowl tournament and, after the game, kidding with Bonnies' Coach Larry Weise about having a rematch.

"I guess neither of us really believed we'd get it but, boy we sure did," Hyder grinned.

Then someone asked whether he'd joked similarly with North Carolina Coach Dean Smith after the Tar Heels walloped Tech 87-58 earlier this year.

"Well . . ." Hyder stalled, "you see, some coaches are I guess you could say more intense about the game than others—even when they win by 29 points. There are some you can kid with and some you can't. I guess I won't have much to say to Dean."

Smith didn't have much to say about the Tar Heels' opening-game victory against the Blue Devils.

"It just wasn't a very good first half for either of us," he said, "but fortunately we were able to regain our momentum."

North Carolina held Duke without a field goal for the first five minutes to amass a 13-2 lead. They retained their 11-point margin until Duke got the final six points of the half to move within 31-26. But that was as close as they got.

"We played smarter offensively in the second half," Smith said.

The Tar Heels, leading 56-45 with nearly eight minutes to go, failed to score a field goal the rest of the way.

"But we didn't have to," Smith said. "Duke had to get the ball, so they had to foul us. And if we score that way, I'm happy. We never get tired of defeating Duke."

Rocky Mount In Track Victory

Rose High School's track team opened its 1971 season yesterday in a three-way meet against Rocky Mount and Goldsboro, and wound up on the short end of the score.

The Gryphons took first place in the meet, running away with 76 points. Goldsboro took second with 44½, while the Rampants were five back at 39½.

Rocky Mount won eight of the events, while Goldsboro took five. The two shared first in another event. Rose's lone victory came in the long jump as Calvin Moore claimed the event with a leap of 21 feet, one inch.

The Rampants travel to Wilson next Thursday, with New Bern joining in the three-way event.

Grifton Downs Rosewood Nine

GRIFTON — The Grifton Bulldogs pushed over five runs in the fifth inning yesterday to take an 8-3 victory over Rosewood in a non-loop baseball game.

The Bulldogs started the action off right with three runs in the bottom of the first. Ricky Thorne led off with a walk, and Johnny Willis sacrificed him up. Billy Edwards doubled to score Thorne, and Jimmy Herring's hit brought in Edwards.

On the relay to the plate, Herring moved on to second, and when the attempt was made to get him, the ball was overthrown, and he scampered the rest of the way for a 3-0 lead.

Rosewood came up with three in the fourth inning, however, to tie it up.

But in the bottom of the fifth, Grifton broke it open with five big runs. Willis singled and stole second, scoring when Edwards got a hit. Herring singled and Lin Thomas walked to load the bases. Successive walks to Tony Koonce and Eddie McCullen brought in two more runs. Thorne then got a hit, scoring Thomas and Koonce to close the scoring.

Herring and Edwards led Grifton with two hits each. Woody Carter had two for Rosewood.

Pirates Have Busy Weekend

Coach Earl Smith's East Carolina baseball team will open a two-day homestand against the University of Virginia Saturday afternoon, highlighting a very busy weekend in ECU spring sports.

The Pirates, the defending Southern Conference baseball champions, have had their troubles in the first six games. The cold weather seems to have had some effect on the Pirates' hitting and Smith hopes the Virginia series sees the Buc bats warm up.

In other spring sports action at home, ECU's tennis team plays Old Dominion on Saturday and East Stroudsbury Sunday. Starting time for both matches at Minges Courts is 1 p. m.

ECU's undefeated crew hosts The Citadel on the Tar River Saturday at 2 p. m. The Pirates placed first last weekend in the Virginia Commonwealth Regatta in Richmond, Va. Teams in that event included Notre Dame, Virginia, Brown and George Washington.

Other Saturday action sees ECU's lacrosse team travelling to Lexington, Va., to battle Washington and Lee and the Pirate track team travels to Raleigh for a meet with N. C. State and Richmond.

Norris Named SC's Top Tanker

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Wayne Norris, East Carolina University's record-breaking sophomore was named today Southern Conference swimmer of the year for 1970-71.

Norris, from Fayetteville, N.C., set records in the 200-yard individual medley, 2:04; 200-yard butterfly, 2:02.5, and 400-yard individual medley, 4:28.6, in leading the Pirates to a smashing victory in the conference meet earlier in the year.

He received three of the four votes cast by conference coaches in balloting conducted by the Southern Conference Sports Writers Association.

The other vote went to William and Mary's Tom Gruver, one of only three non-ECU swimmers to win the meet as the Pirates took their sixth consecutive team title. Gruver won two events for the Indians.

Lonnie Parker of William and Mary, who won the 118-pound championship for the fourth year in a row, was named Thursday as the conference wrestler of the year. He received four votes to two for Dan Monroe of East Carolina, the 126-pound champion.

Ohio Wesleyan Tops Stickmen

Ohio Wesleyan handed East Carolina's lacrosse team a 10-6 loss in the opening match yesterday for the Bucs.

The game was close until the final period, when Ohio Wesleyan tossed the ball into the nets six times for scores.

East Carolina took the initial lead when Eric Schandelmeier scored after 10:25 for a 1-0 first period score.

Ohio Wesleyan came back with two straight, however, early in the second frame. Tom Hughes scored on an assist from Dave Kivney and then Andy Stringer scored with John Lips giving an assist. The first goal came at the 2:33 mark and the second was at 3:43.

The Pirates came back to tie it up at 10:10 with Mike Denniston scoring, but Lips put Ohio Wesleyan back on top just 25 seconds later. Denniston tied it up again with an assist from Steve Barrow with 14:25 gone. That made it 3-3 at the half.

Both teams scored once in the third period. Schandelmeier scored at the 9:59 mark on an assist from Tom Christensen, and Bob Eadie hit for Ohio at 14:25.

From the 4-4 tie, however, Ohio Wesleyan exploded with three straight goals early in the final period to take the lead for good. Stringer hit on a Lips assist with 4:15 gone, and Kivney scored 25 seconds later. Fourty-five seconds later, Rich Seiler scored with an assist from Ed Close to give Ohio a 7-4 lead.

Ohio went on to add goals by Stringer, assisted by Close, Hughes, assisted by Stringer, and an unassisted goal by Bryan Smith. East Carolina added goals by Don McCorkel and Dave Doldefer, the last with an assist from Schandelmeier.

The Bucs travel to Lexington, Va., Saturday to meet Washington and Lee.

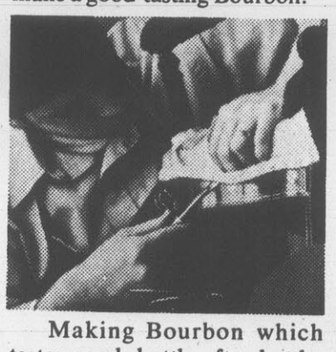
The good taste of Old Crow begins with men who love to work with their hands.

Before we'll mill a kernel of grain to make Old Crow, experts like Jerry Simpson test samples by hand for appearance and color. It's the only way we know to make a good-tasting Bourbon.



Making Bourbon which tastes good, bottle after bottle, made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that took Bourbon-making out of the hit-or-miss category. Later, they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon. We still use our hands in making Old Crow.

After work, most of our men keep on using their hands. Jerry Simpson calls on the same craftsmanship maintaining the quality of our country Bourbon as he does upholstering this chair.

Over the years, craftsmanship like this has made Old Crow America's best-tasting Bourbon.

UCLA, Villanova To Meet In Finals

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

HOUSTON (AP) — Jack Kraft believes his scrappy Villanova Wildcats are ready for the game of their lives against defending NCAA national basketball champion UCLA Saturday, but he isn't so sure about himself.

Drained but smiling after Thursday night's nerve-jangling 92-89 double overtime victory over Western Kentucky in the semifinals, the Wildcat coach said "I know my players will make it ... I'm just worried about myself."

UCLA's poised Bruins placed themselves in position for an unprecedented fifth consecutive NCAA title with a 68-60 victory over Kansas in the second semifinal as a record 31,428 fans looked on in the Astrodome.

The gray-haired Kraft, who suits up only nine players and seldom plays more than six, said his Pennsylvania "Iron Men" are "a bunch of fine physical specimens. They are durable and they'll be ready for Saturday."

Forward Howard Porter and center Hank Siemiontkowski shared heroics for the slightly favored Wildcats.

Siemiontkowski, a 6-foot-7, 230-pound junior scored 31 points before he fouled out with four seconds remaining in regulation play. The foul could have given him the goat's role, but Western Kentucky's Jerry Dunn blew the shot on a one-and-one situation to send the game into overtime 74-all.

Porter hit a baseline jumper with 11 seconds remaining to send the game into double overtime 87-all. The 6-foot-8 senior blocked two shots in the double overtime and his bucket gave Villanova the lead to stay at 89-87.

UCLA coach John Wooden, who has 27 consecutive NCAA playoff victories to his credit, unleashed All-America 6-foot-8 forward Sidney Wicks one-on-one against Kansas' 6-foot-10 Dave Robisch in the battle of full court presses.

Wicks brought the ball up court and set up the Bruin offense.

Wicks scored 21 points and guard Henry Bibby added 18 from the outside.

Robisch has held to 17 points by the swaming UCLA press.

Wooden said "we will play against Villanova about the same as we did against Kansas. The things that get us there will be the tings we'll generally go with."

Asked to compare this team with his championship squads of the past, Wooden said "you have to be good to get this far, but I'll assess them by comparison late Saturday afternoon. However, when shooting well, they can compare with any of them."

The championship game will start about 3:15 CST after Western Kentucky and Kansas tangle in the consolation match. Both games will be nationally televised (NBC-TV)

Youngsters Could Be Answer To Giant Hopes

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A youngster of 20 with just one year's professional baseball experience could be the answer to the San Francisco Giants' perennial infield dilemma.

And another young aspirant could bolster the pitching staff.

Except for these two, shortstop Chris Speier and right-handed pitcher Steve Stone, the Giants lineup with much the same array that finished third in the National League West a year ago.

They have power with first baseman Willie McCovey, outfielders Willie Mays, Bobby Bonds and Ken Henderson and catcher Dick Dietz.

However, never have the San Franciscans been satisfied with the shortstop-second base combination of Hal Lanier and Tito Fuentes.

So Speier, a 175-pound, 6-foot-1 product of Alameda, Calif., has been given full opportunity to win the shortstop job. Lanier and Fuentes have alternated at second base.

Although inexperienced, Speier has fielded his position well and in the early spring training games hit well over .300.

Signed out of the University of California at Santa Barbara, Chris was tabbed to play in the low minors last year, but his spring work a year ago won him a ticket to Amarillo where he hit .283 and made the AllStar team in the Texas League.

Even with right-handers Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry on the staff, the Giants are hurting for pitchers. The pain may be eased by Stone, a graduate of Kent State University, who pitched for Fresno in 1969 and Amarillo and Phoenix last year. With the latter in the Pacific Coast League, he posted a 5-3 record with a 1.71 earned run average.

With a good fast ball, slider, curve and two change-ups, Stone impressed Manager Charlie Fox during the spring games.

Marichal, who won 20 or more games in five of the six seasons preceding 1970, slid to 12-10 last year after an allergic reaction struck him during spring training.

Perry enjoyed his best season with a 23-13 season and veteran reliever Don McMahon had his best of 14 seasons in the majors with a 9-5 record and 19 saves.

Now the Giants look for more pitching aid, so Fox closely watches such as left-handers Ron Bryant, John Cumberland, Mike Davison and Lee Pitlock and right-handers Frank Reberger, Rich Robertson, Jim Willoughby and Jerry Johnson.

Veteran reliever Steve Hamilton, a southpaw, also was obtained from the Chicago White Sox a few days ago.

Reberger could be the best bet to make the starting rotation.

With his 40th birthday coming up on May 6, Mays remains entrenched in center field. He hit .291 with 28 homers a year ago. McCovey, the first baseman, hit 39 homers and drove in 126 while hitting .289.

After serving a long apprenticeship, Dietz came into his own last year, hitting .300 with 22 home runs.

At least until Jim Hart recovers from his shoulder operation, Alan Gallagher will be the third baseman.

Frank Johnson is the most versatile of the Giants. He can play the outfield, third or first. He'll probably stick around for his utility value.

Fox goes into his first full season as the Giants' manager taking a long look at the shortstop-second base combination, his pitching and the bench strength. The Giants must show improvement to stay with Cincinnati and the Los Angeles Dodgers in the divisional race.

Knicks Win In Opening Game

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In any vote on the player least likely to outflash both Pete Maravich and Walt Frazier, high up on the balloting would be Dick Barnett.

A stoic individual who methodically goes about his job without the slightest change of expression, Barnett normally leaves the heroics to his teammates on the New York Knicks.

But Thursday afternoon was different. Barnett upstaged everyone on the court, including Maravich and Frazier, and while he still didn't crack a smile, he did lead the Knicks to a 112-101 victory over the Atlanta Hawks in their opening playoff game.

While Maravich hit only 9 of 25 shots from the field for Atlanta and Frazier only 7 of 24 for the Knicks from the backcourt, Barnett exploded in the final quarter for 17 of his 20 points and almost single-handedly carried the Knicks from a 90-83 deficit to victory.

The teams play again in Madison Square Garden Saturday night in the best-of-7 game National Basketball Association quarter-final series.

Baltimore plays at Philadelphia and Chicago at Los Angeles tonight in two other playoff series. Philadelphia and Los Angeles each lead 1-0. The fourth series, between San Francisco and Milwaukee, opens Saturday night at Oakland.

Barnett, who usually leaves the scoring to Frazier and Willis Reed, came alive with 13 of 14 New York points for a 97-95 lead, and then added another basket in a run of seven points in a row for a decisive 104-97 spread.

So hot was the 33-year-old guard that he even called his own play. "I asked for the ball a few times and I called my play a few times," he admitted almost sheepishly. "I guess the basket just looked bigger."

Guarding Barnett at first was Walt Hazzard and then Lou Hudson, who had 22 points, one less than Maravich.

Pole Run Is Today

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Qualifying roars to a start today for the 11th Southeastern 500 Stock Car Race with Richard Petty favored to win the pole position.

Petty, the all-time leading winner on the NASCAR circuit, will be shooting for his first pole position start this year when he streaks a 1971 Plymouth around Bristol International Speedway. The Randleman, N.C., star is aiming for career victory No. 124.

The top 10 starting slots will be settled today with 30 remaining positions decided Saturday. A field of 46 cars is entered for Sunday's 267-mile grind on the .533-mile oval.

Drivers will be vying for more than $32,000, with the winner expected to pocket about $6,000. The race starts at 1:30 p.m.

David Pearson, of Spartanburg, S.C., a four-time winner at this track, is picked as Petty's toughest competitor for the pole position. He will be driving a 1969 Ford.

Other entrants include Lee Roy Yarbrough in a Ford, Dave Marcis in a Dodge, Bobby Allison in a Dodge and Benny Parsons in a Ford.

MAPLE IS AT GARDEN

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Jockey Eddie Maple, who led the riders at Garden State last fall, is back at the New Jersey racing plant for the spring meeting which runs until May 31. Maple is a native of Carrollton, Ohio and has been riding regularly since 1967.

Close Games As Opening Nears

By TOM EMORY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The major league teams must be getting in shape for the opening of the regular baseball season April 5. Or, at least, they're working at not scoring more runs than necessary.

There were six preseason games Thursday decided by one run with three ending in 2-1 scores.

Of course, some teams aren't in shape like Cincinnati and Cleveland. The Reds belted Los Angeles 10-5 with 18 hits; the Indians got 20 hits in dispatching the Milwaukee Brewers 13-8.

In other games San Diego edged San Francisco 2-1; the Chicago White Sox nipped Minnesota 2-1; Philadelphia clipped Houston 2-1; Pittsburgh defeated Detroit 3-2; Atlanta downed Washington 8-7; California took Oakland 7-6; Boston beat St. Louis 6-2; and the New York Yankees topped the New York Mets 4-2.

Tommy Helms and Woody Woodward slammed home runs for Cincinnati as the Reds got 13 and seven runs hits off Los Angeles' Bill Singer. Helms, Lee May and Bernie Carbo each got three hits.

Richie Allen of the Dodgers also got a hit—on the head. He was injured before the game when he ran into a palm tree while chasing fly balls. The team doctor reported Allen had a mild concussion and some severe contusions. He is expected to be out a week.

Eddie Leon got four hits, including a home run and a double, Ray Fosse homered and Ted Ford and Buddy Bradford got three hits with two doubles each in the Cleveland victory over Milwaukee.

Ed Spiezio, playing for the first time since ending his holdout six days ago, blasted a home run in the 10th inning for San Diego's victory.

Walt Williams, Rick Reichardt and Bill Melton strung singles together in the 10th inning for Chicago's slim victory over Washington.

Wood Fryman pitched eight innings for Philadelphia. He got the victory when Terry Harmon doubled and Willie Montanez tripled in the eighth off Houston's George Culver.

Gene Clines' triple drove in two runs in the sixth for the Pittsburgh margin of victory. Al Oliver homered for the Pirates' other run.

Pinch-hitter Hal King hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning for Atlanta's triumph over Washington. Earl Williams also homered for the Braves and Joe Foy and Ed Stroud each hit their third of the spring for the Senators.

Alex Johnson, fined recently for lack of hustle, showed a lot of it as he bolted home with the winning score for California when Oakland second baseman John Donaldson dropped a relay from the outfield.

Jim Fregosi homered for the Angels while Reggie Jackson, Rick Monday and Gene Tenace hit circuit shots for the Athletics.

Boston jumped on St. Louis pitcher Jerry Reuss for five runs in the eighth inning. The big belt for Boston was a bases-loaded single by Rico Petrocelli. George Scott homered for the Red Sox.

Mel Stottlemyre and Stan Bahnsen of the Yankees held the Mets to four hits. The Yanks scored twice in the first and in the fifth off Jerry Kosman, who became the first Met to work seven innings in an exhibition game.

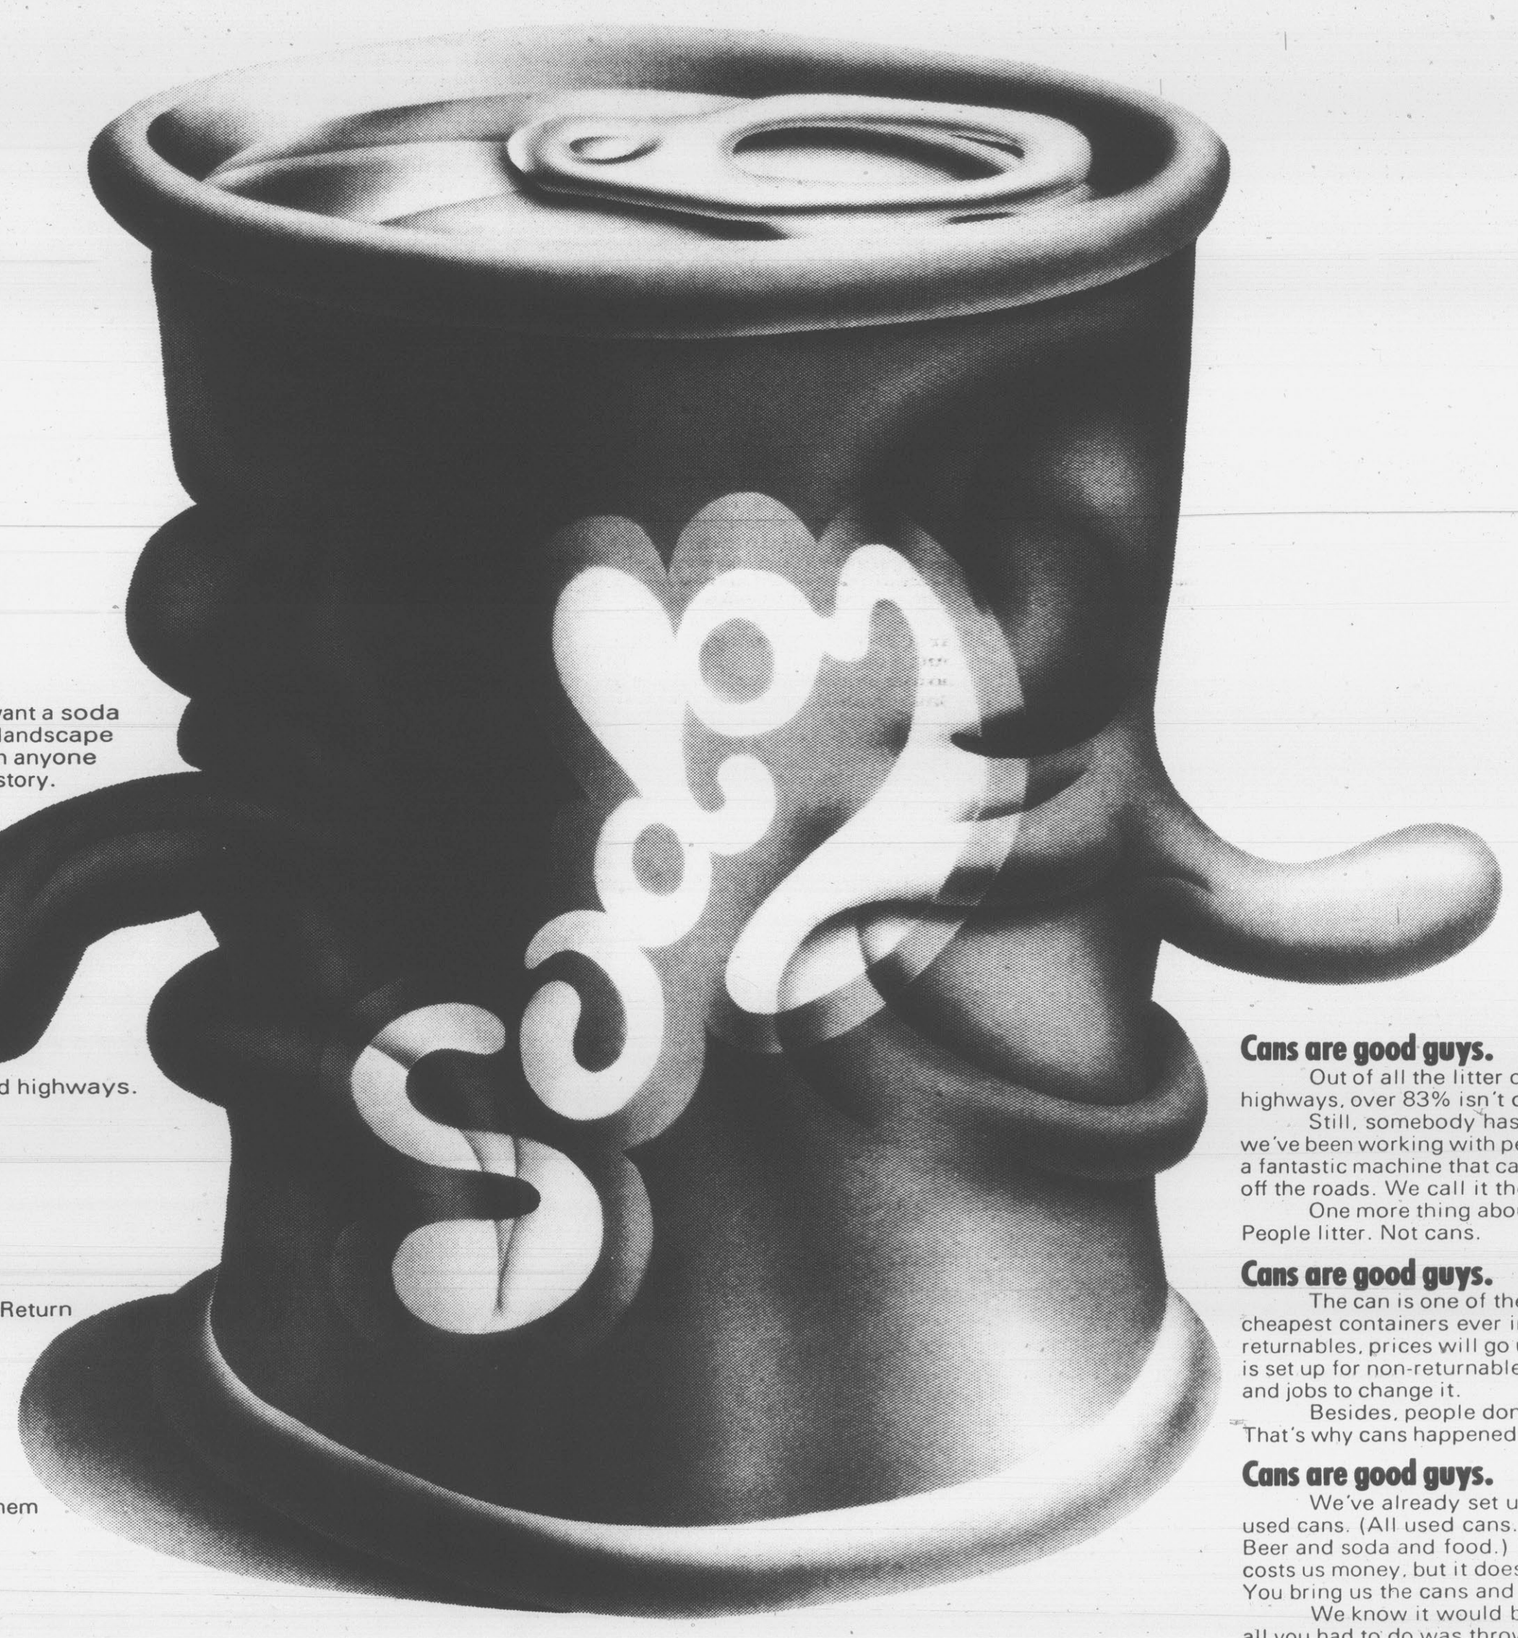
Cans.
Bad Guys or Good Guys?



A can is a nice thing when you want a soda or a beer. But it doesn't do much for a landscape or a highway. We know that better than anyone because we make cans. So here's the story. Both sides.

Cans are bad guys.
Cans are all over the streets and highways. Cans cause litter.

Cans are bad guys.
Returnable bottles were better. Return to returnables.

Cans are bad guys.
You use them once and throw them away. They can't be recycled.

Cans are good guys.
Out of all the litter on the streets and highways, over 83% isn't cans.

Still, somebody has to do something. So we've been working with people who are developing a fantastic machine that can actually pick the litter off the roads. We call it the octopus.

One more thing about litter: Please don't. People litter. Not cans.

Cans are good guys.
The can is one of the safest, cleanest, cheapest containers ever invented. If we return to returnables, prices will go up. Because everything is set up for non-returnables, and it will cost money and jobs to change it.

Besides, people don't return returnables. That's why cans happened in the first place.

Cans are good guys.
We've already set up recycling centers for used cans. (All used cans. Steel and aluminum. Beer and soda and food.) More are coming. This costs us money, but it doesn't cost you anything. You bring us the cans and we'll recycle them.

We know it would be easier and better if all you had to do was throw your cans in a garbage pail. So we're supporting the development of automated machines that can pick cans out of the rest of the garbage. And we hope that eventually every can in every city will be recycled and used to make new cans. You won't see it tomorrow. But you will see it. We promise you that.

We have more to lose than you do.

The Can People
We care more than you do. We have to.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

Where a slam contract is involved, more than a merely casual analysis is indicated when the campaign of play is being set up. South, the declarer, started out to employ reasonable caution in today's hand, but then, when success was well within his grasp, he made one tiny slip that led to disaster.

The bidding was sound and, when the dummy was spread, declarer could see that his six heart bid was an eminently reasonable commitment. West's opening lead of the jack of clubs was taken by dummy's ace. South cautiously tested the trump suit first by cashing the queen of hearts and leading a small one back to the king, East discarding a diamond on the second round.

Trumps were temporarily abandoned and attention was shifted to the side suits. Rather than risk everything on a successful spade finesse, declarer decided to cash out his high clubs in order to determine how many sluffs could be obtained. When both the king and queen of clubs went thru, he was able to throw two spades from dummy.

A spade was led to the ace next, and dummy's remaining spades—the jack—was returned to the king in the closed hand. The stage was now set for declarer to rid himself of his losing spade, and he quickly led that card in order to ruff with the dummy's jack of hearts. Unfortunately for him, West chose this moment to discard his singleton jack of diamonds and, when declarer tried to return to his hand by leading a diamond to the ace, West ruffed in. Another diamond had to be conceded, and the contract was set down by one trick.

Declarer's haste in ruffing out his losing spade is an understandable error, but it seems unfortunate in light of his cautious play up to that point. All he had to do was put down the ace of diamonds first, and then trump the seven of spades. A diamond is now conceded to the opponents and South has nothing but high trumps left.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am 44 years old and have been going with a very nice school teacher for seven years. Myra is 42. We are very much in love and enjoy the same things. I'm sure Myra would make the perfect wife, but here is the problem. She has put it to me cold, either we get married this June or it's good-by.

Well, I just started a new business and I am in debt. I am the sole support of my invalid mother, a responsibility I will have for as long as she lives. I still owe on my car, and I owe the insurance company because I had to borrow against my policy for the car. I've explained this to Myra and she says it doesn't make any difference to her. She has a good job and is willing to work after we are married.

I still think it would be unfair for me to marry her right now. You're a sensible woman, Abby. Can you help me convince Myra? FRANK

DEAR FRANK: Sorry, I'm with Myra. If you wait until you are clear and free of debt, you'll be wheeled down the aisle to say your marriage vows. I say, marry the woman. At 44 and 42, time is more important than money.

DEAR ABBY: I have tried for years to convince my husband that if he would give me a compliment once in a while it would mean more to me than material things. His answer, "If I don't like something, you will hear about it." He means it, too. This goes from the way I do my hair to the way I season the soup. Many times I have deliberately done something contrary to the way I know he likes it, just to get some kind of reaction out of him. Even a complaint is better than dead silence.

Most people will work better if they get a little praise. Even dogs perform better with an encouraging pat on the head. He hasn't been a "bad" husband. In fact, he's been very good, but a few loving words would have meant the world to me so many times.

Please don't use my name or town. No sense in rocking the boat after 40 years. NOT APPRECIATED

DEAR NOT: I suppose it's small comfort to be told that actions speak louder than words, but it's true. A man who is stingy with his compliments is usually the product of inhibited parents who weren't able to verbalize their appreciation and approval, so don't blame him too much.

After 40 years, you're wise not to rock the boat. But if you mention it to him, he may change his course.

DEAR ABBY: I am an unmarried professional woman. I have been going with a widower for several months now and we have a wonderful time together. He lost his wife two years ago but he still wears a wedding ring. I have no objections to that and respect him for his attitude toward his former marriage.

We often dine at fine restaurants and frequently run into people I know; when they stop, I introduce him. If they see his wedding ring, they may conclude that I am out with a married man and am being brassy about it.

Should I ask my friend to remove his ring when we go out? Or should I disregard the thoughts of others?

WEDDING RING

DEAR WEDDING RING: He may have reasons of his own for wearing the ring. Don't mention it.

DEAR ABBY: I have some advice for Lisa, whose husband refused to shave off his beard. My husband also had a beard and I hated it! If it looked good on him I wouldn't have minded, but it looked terrible. I begged him to shave it off. He refused.

Well, I just let the hair grow underneath my arms and on my legs. And as fast as it took my hair to grow, that's how long it took him to shave his off! REVENGEFUL

'Civilisation' Film Series Nearing End

The spectacular "Civilisation" series in full BBC color is nearing the end of it's seven part run, with parts 11 and 12 scheduled for showing this weekend.

On Friday at 8:00 p.m. and again on Sunday at 3:00 p.m., at the auditorium of the School of Nursing on East Carolina University, the long film directed by Sir Kenneth Clark moves into the 19th century.

Part 11 "The Worship of Nature" deals with some of the great Romantics—Rousseau, Goethe and Wordsworth, men who were known for the courage of their convictions.

"The Fallacies of Hope," the theme of part 12, delves into ways in which hopes of the 18th century were blasted by events of the 19th century. In this part, giants such as Beethoven, Monet, Cezanne, Van Gogh and Gauguin are men whose work is studied.

The film, made possible by the State Art Society, is being shown with ECU cooperation under the directorship of Dr. Francis Speight.

Admission is free, and the public is encouraged to attend this next to final series of the 13 part film.

Farmville To Buy Building

FARMVILLE — The Board of Commissioners has voted to purchase a building across the street from the present town office for additional working space.

Although the transaction has not actually been made, the Board has promised to buy the Mashburn Building owned by the Farmville Realty Company. Renovation plans call for four offices plus a lobby area. The building reportedly cost about $9,000 and the renovation will cost some $20,000, according to Town Clerk Carl Beaman.

In other action at a Monday afternoon call meeting, the Commissioners agreed to go to a looseleaf system of voter registration. The cost of supplies for the changeover will be approximately $500.

A two-year contract with the Dixie Uniform Rental Service was signed. The Rocky Mount business will provide uniforms for town employees.

The attendance of J. A. "Bud" Wooten and Johnny Matthews of the Water and Light Department at a two-day electric superintendents' school in Raleigh was approved.

Student Wins Distinction

Linda May Ahlborg, graduate student in the East Carolina University Department of Political Science, is the first ECU student ever to complete the graduate comprehensive examinations in political science "with distinction."

The examinations were recently administered over a two-day period. Successful completion of the examinations is a prerequisite for the master's degree at ECU.

Miss Ahlborg is a graduate fellow in the political science department, assigned to an ECU professor as teaching and research assistant.

She is the daughter of Mrs. R. A. Ahlborg, 146 West St., Brockton, Mass.

Worry Clinic

Old Rules For Social Values

Jesus did not approve of letting people violate the heritages that civilization has laboriously won for later generations. Christ thus used force; not verbal persuasion! But he was the world's foremost Psychologist, so he could have "talked" the money-changers out of the sacred Temple. But he didn't!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph. D., M.D.

Case Q-511: During his vacation trip to the Holy Land, Dr. Kenneth Hildebrand invited me to fill his pulpit in Chicago.

As I walked across the Chicago Loop, I saw this slogan on the marquee of a moving picture theater:

The Family That Slays
Together—Stays Together

It was probably intended as a take-off of the slogan:

The Family That Prays
(or Plays)
Together—Stays Together

But it was in very poor taste to try to parody religious and moral ideas.

This is part of the "permissive" doctrines of Dr. Spoof and others who have advocated letting children evolve their own code of conduct.

Such permissive policies violate the tested rules that have proved effective ever since antiquity.

For decorum, plus respect for moral virtues, were formerly drilled into children until this riotous modern era of street riots, window smashing, campus sit-ins and bombing of college science halls.

In previous generations, children were taught to respect their elders.

Army personnel were likewise trained to salute their superior officers.

And this was not based on a dictatorial attitude but on the sound psychological rule that ignorance (including youth) must not be permitted to affront superior experience!

Even animals have diligently used corporal punishment on their young to instill the proper deference to their parents.

A mother lion slaps her youngsters soundly when they violate the standard leonine rules of etiquette.

Likewise, a domestic housecat will bat her kittens with her paw when they step out of line.

Dogs and cows and horses, plus the wild species, routinely make their young tow the line.

Even in the Bible, when the street "hippies" sneered at Elisha and ridiculed his bald head, the Bible (II Kings, Chapter 2) says he cursed them in the name of the Lord. Then two she bears came out and mauled 42 of the rioters!

Sentimental modern educators of the "permissive" ilk have thus tried to abhor corporal pushishment.

But corporal punishment, when wisely administered, is the essence of good pedagogy.

The Bible tells us that the wicked shall be punished.

For it is stupid to let ignorant morons disrupt the orderly behavior of civilized peoples.

Law and order are a product of high intelligence, as are morality, mathematics and religion!

When morons get intoxicated with the idea that they are free to loot and riot and despoil the property of intelligent folks, then chaos will follow.

The inexorable law of mankind is that offenders against civilization's lofty ideals should be punished, not by a mere slap on the wrist but by corporal punishment.

That's why Jesus drove out the violators of the sacred Jewish Temple with a cat-o-nine-tails whip and physically turned over the tables of the money-changers!

Jesus could easily have used verbal persuasion. He didn't!

Pacifists, please note that Jesus employed force!

Draw Bridge Schedule Is Announced

The Department of Transportation of the U. S. Coast Guard has announced a schedule concerning the opening of the draw bridge across Bogue Sound between Morehead City and Atlantic Beach for the passage of vessels.

According to the announcement, the draw of the bridge will not be required to open for vessel passage except between the hours of 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. local time on April 24 and 25, May 1, 2, 8, 9, 15, 16, 22, 23, 29, 30, and 31; and June 5, 6, 12, and 13. On these dates, the drawspan will be opened at 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. to allow accumulated vessels to pass through.

The Coast Guard said that an exception to the policy provides for the drawspan to be opened upon the prescribed signal being given for the passage of towboats with tows, freight boats, and vessels owned or operated by the United States.

Also, the drawspan will be opened for the passage of any boat in an emergency involving danger to life or property. Such an emergency, the announcemnent added, shall be indicated by four blasts of a whistle, horn, or similar device.

Rear Adm. E. C. Allen Jr., commander of the Fifth Coast Guard District, said that the regulations are being placed in effect at the request of the North Carolina State Highway Commission in order to alleviate highway traffic congestion in the vicinity of the bridge.

Speaking At Service Here

The Reverend George W. Alford, missions representative for the Church of God World Missions Department will be guest speaker for the annual missions service at the Greenville Church of God, tonight, 7:30 p. m., the Rev. R. W. Tedder, local pastor announced today.

The Rev. Mr. Alford states that the "Church of God is a product of an evangelistic zeal and a yearning for deeper spirituality. This revivalism expresses itself in strong home and foreign missions programs. The Church has maintained a steady growth since 1886 and a world-wide perspective since 1910. The Church of God presently operates in 90 countries and has 5,020 appointed missionaries and foreign ministers. Because of the doctrinal distinctive of speaking in tongues, the Church of God has become an authentic voice for the Pentecostal movement among Evangelicals."

The Rev. Mr. Alford is widely known as a student of the Scriptures and will draw upon his extensive knowledge and experience in the delivery of his mission sermon. Born and reared in Tennessee, he entered the ministry in 1946 and was ordained in 1953. He is now serving as a member of the Executive Council of the Church of God to which he was elected in 1970.

Motorcycle registrations in Oregon increased 300 per cent from 1960 to 1968.

of cars and dates

Let's talk a moment, parent to parent....

It's quite an adjustment, isn't it? Your daughter, Jill, is on cloud nine because Jack asked her for a date. Jack's driving his dad's car. That is, you hope he drives it. Maybe he just aims it and takes off.

Yes, it's quite an adjustment. And all the books say there's nothing you can do about it. Kids date. So, watch television, read a book, listen for the muffled "Good nights" and the click of the doorlatch, then stop worrying and go to sleep. Until her next date....

The churches of our community have no simple solution for this problem. They have a complex solution: Through moral and religious training, develop in every boy and girl a mature sense of responsibility, a respect for life and Christian character.

The young people we'll have the greatest confidence in tomorrow are going to church today.

X-Ray Equipment For Geology Dept. At ECU Is Now Installed

Installation of X-ray equipment with a value of $50,000 has been completed within the Department of Geology at East Carolina University.

The equipment was obtained through a $21,000 Educational Grant from the General Electric Corporation, a $10,500 grant from the National Science Foundation, and geology department funds.

The equipment will be utilized in the student instructional and research programs and consists of the latest models of General Electric diffractometer and vacuum-path emission spectrograph.

The diffractometer permits analysis of crystalline minerals and organic materials through the process of diffracting an X-ray beam by the internal structure of the material. A primary use is in mineral identification and in determination of the mineralogical composition of rocks. Very small samples may be utilized in the analysis.

Elemental analysis can be done with the spectrograph, which operates on the principle of atomic excitation by X-rays and the measurement of energy form the excited atom. Larger samples can be used and semi-quantitative analysis done for the amount of element present.

In both the diffraction and spectrographic analysis the sample is not destroyed and may be utilized in other methods of analysis.

The X-ray laboratory will be under the direction of Pei-lin Tien, assistant professor of geology, who has several years' experience in the field of X-ray mineralogy with the Kansas Geological Survey. Tien joined the faculty at ECU in 1971, and will receive the PhD degree in geology from the University of Kansas this year.

With the installation of this equipment, the ECU Department of Geology has one of the better equipped X-ray laboratories in the state, according to Dr. A. Ray Jennings, department chairman.

Carson Attends Conference

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sammy Carson of Bethel, N. C., attended a national conference on "Educational Accountability" here recently.

Carson represented the Martin County schools at the conference which was sponsored by the U. S. Office of Education in conjunction with the Educational Testing Service of New Jersey.

Carson was one of three North Carolinians attending the event.

Topics discussed include: the means and ends of accountability; effects on instructional program; the role of evaluation; and the future of accountability.

Travel Film To Involve Russia

"Russia in the 70's", the final in the travel-adventure film series sponsored by the Student Government Association for the 1970-71 season, will be on view Monday, at 8:00 p. m. in Wright Auditorium.

Clay Francisco, filming the giant country on a 10,000 mile auto trip and air journey, covers highlight cities as well as little known villages and towns where Western journalists are seldom allowed to venture.

PROMOTED

Dr. Frances Daniels, of the East Carolina School of Business, Department of Office Administration and Business Education, has been promoted from assistant professor to associate professor.

Burlington Man Will Speak To Men's Group

A dentist from Burlington will speak to the Greenville chapter meeting of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International Saturday night at 7:30.

Dr. John U. Newman III, a graduate of Emory University School of Denistry where he received the DDS degree, will give his testimony to Jesus Christ. The meeting will be held in the Masonic Temple located at 1119 S. Charles St. Free parking will be made available behind the building.

Dr. Newman was born in Burlington. He attended the public schools there and completed his pre-dental work at Elon College. He has been active in the Jaycees there and served for five years as director of the Burlington Jaycee Club and one term as first vice president.

Professionally, he is affiliated with several dental associations and is immediate past president of the Alamance-Caswell Dental Society.

Diverse Attitudes Are Seen In Vote On SST

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The cessation of government funding of the supersonic transport plane is being called a victory for antitechnology elements of society, a conclusion that seems too simple for such a complex issue.

If such a conclusion is accepted, we would have to believe that the following unlikely companions belong to the same brotherly commune, when we know in fact that some are hardly on speaking terms:

—The ecologist who fears that the interrelationships of the physical and biological worlds is being distorted, with many known consequences and more to be feared.

—The city dweller who cannot understand how so many millions can be spent on making a faster airplane when the nation cannot afford to provide proper housing for its citizens.

—The commuter, who ponders why he should want to go to Europe or the Orient at supersonic speed when his cold and dirty train lays idle between stops, affording him a view of the nearby jammed superhighway.

—The economist, who fears that the big plane would be a financial disaster and asks why, if it is such a good business proposition, a consortium of business interest didn't attempt to fund it.

—The public official, who suspects that some sort of a tide is sweeping over the nation and, though he doesn't understand it, realizes he must ride it or be swamped.

There are many other opinions and attitudes lumped together in the catchall antitechnology argument, but it should be clear that they hardly constitute one group.

There may, in fact, be no one substantial and powerful antitechnology group in the country—at least one capable of swaying public opinion to its own ends on such a major issue.

What is often called antitechnological is simply the desire to see technology used more clearly for the benefit of mankind rather than simply to prove that something is possible or financially profitable.

Much of the background for the defeat in Congress of the SST funding grew spontaneously during the debate of the 1960s, in which Americans both benefitted and were penalized by their devotion to technology.

Technology has been worshiped in America. For years, men in the street seldom questioned or failed to take pride in the boast that technology built America.

There was an erosion of that belief in the 1960s, a period in which the Gross National Product doubled in terms of current dollars, transforming the lives of millions: two cars, two homes, three television sets, European vacations, art, good food. For the first time in man's life it was said seriously that nothing in the physical world was impossible to him.

At the same time: war, deteriorating cities, polluted water and air, rising noise levels, civil discord amazing contrasts between wealth and poverty, lost ideals, generation gaps, confused goals—all of which contributed to the feeling that the attempt to do everything might accomplish little in human terms.

And so, in recent years the need for national priorities has symbolized technology or provided the opportunity to exert those priorities than to shelve the SST?

But the SST issue may not be resolved. America might feel it has harnessed rampant technology but has it properly resolved the issue of the supersonic transport?

Will we need this plane some day? Will American prestige be hurt? If someday it is to be built, who will finance it? And build it: America, or Japan, which still is enamored of technology?

Tour Brings Group Here

The Master's Twelve of Roanoke Bible College, under the direction of professor Beth Bon Durant, will present "A Story of the Christ" in song and scripture at the Mount Pleasant Christian Church, Greenville.

The program will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Consisting of 17 selections new and old from several lands, the hour-long program will be sung entirely from memory.

Virtually all of the six young men and six young women who compose the Master's Twelve are preparing for fulltime Christian service at Roanoke, a ministerial training school of the Churches of Christ.

The local appearance is part of an 11-day tour taking the group through Virginia, South Carolina and North Carolina.

The public is invited to the program. There will be no admission charge.

Earn Honors At WingateCollege

WINGATE — Two local students were among the 218 Wingate College students who won places on the academic honor roll for the spring quarter.

Students from this area winning places on the honor roll include: Louis Woodson Gaylord III, 203 Longmeadow Rd.; and William Cecil Bilbro, 1708 Forest Hills Dr.

Instead of punching holes all around the top of a cleanser can, punch a few holes in one side only. This saves powder. You can direct the cleanser to the exact spot you want to clean.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT — This raccoon is not ordinary by any means. He steels ketchup and apple butter from a nearby warehouse. Allentown (Pa.) Morning Call photographer Dick Mantz set up a camera and caught him in the act. And, it is said, he even puts the cap back on the bottle when he is done. (AP Wirephoto)

PUT HIGH RENT PAYMENTS IN YOUR POCKET

If you are one of the many people forced to pay high rent payments, because you cannot buy a house, call 752-2106 or ride out to Greenbrier Subdivision and see the many brand new homes which have 3 or 4 bedrooms, 1 & 2 baths, built-in ranges and other desirable features for less than comparable rent. Now is the time to move from that crowded high rental and into a home that will put money back into your pockets. Greenville Realty Company can arrange the type of financing that is right for you.

Vernam® Selective Herbicide lets your soybeans grow free

Your soybeans grow free from many grasses and weeds. Free from the growth stress that weeds cause. Free to develop strong, vigorous roots that reach down and make maximum use of soil nutrients and moisture. Free from extra cultivations, possible root damage and free of weed growth...makes your soybean combining operation easier at harvest time.

This season, use dependable, economical Vernam to get your crop off to a good start. Vernam is the only soybean herbicide recommended for nutgrass or nutsedge. It stops the tough weeds, including crabgrass, foxtails, coffeeweed, pigweeds, lambsquarters and others. Vernam liquid or granules are easy to handle and apply as you make your seedbed. Used at recommended rates, Vernam controls weeds without leaving harmful residues in the soil. Free yourself from work and worry...come by now for your supply of Vernam.
