Chou En-Lai Sees 'New Page In Relations'

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai told a U.S. table tennis delegation today their visit to mainland China had opened "a new page in relations" between the peoples of China and the United States.

Chou paused, then asked the Americans: "Don't you agree with me?"
The Americans applauded.
Chou, who had recognized me earlier despite my absence of 23 years from mainland China, then turned to me and in a reference to visits by more American newsmen said: "Mr. Roderick, you have opened the door."

During the reception in the Great Hall of the Peoples in the heart of the Chinese capital, Chou also engaged in a philosophical discussion of hippies with 19-year-old Glenn Cowan of Santa Monica, Calif., whose long hair and outlandish garb have been the talk of the Chinese.

chills, headache and stomach trouble, his roommate, George Braithwaite of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Jack Howard of Seattle, Wash., remained at the Hsin Chiao Hotel while the rest of the group went to the Summer Palace. But all were on hand for the meeting with Chou.

Henderson Says Bald Head 'Not For Sale'

By REESE HART
RALEIGH (AP) — The president of the corporation planning to develop Bald Head Island said emphatically today the property is not for sale and "the worst thing that could happen" to the island is for it to remain as it is.

Henderson said this was up to Graham Steenhoven, the president of the U.S. Table Tennis Association, and Steenhoven said afterward the Chinese had been invited to the United States.
Chou said China wants to have contacts with all countries, even those which it has no diplomatic relations.

Commission Approves CBD Appraisal Contract

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
A contract with a Rocky Mount firm for appraisal review services in the Central Business District was approved Tuesday night by Redevelopment Commissioners.

Development plans include two golf courses, two country clubs, a beach club, a yacht club, a tennis club and a riding club.
Henderson noted the state could condemn and purchase the property for use as a state park or set it aside as a "wilderness area. He said this is not justified or appropriate.

More Fighting Rages Near Fire Base 6 Today

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. officers speculated today that North Vietnamese troops besieging Fire Base 6 in the central highlands may have pulled back to regroup.

The relief force consists of seven battalions of South Vietnamese troops sweeping toward the base from the north and south, a total of perhaps 3,500 soldiers. Less than two battalions of troops are on the hill itself, but their exact number is not known.

Sewer Line OK—With County And Federal Help

Utilities commissioners last night agreed to extend sewer lines to the Alcoholic Rehabilitation center within three years, with the expectation of receiving county and federal funds to assist with the project.
The action was taken with the understanding that a temporary permit will be issued by the state for operation of the sewage treatment plant which the Utilities has installed at the site.

Chairman Hoover Taft was named as a delegate to the EPIC organization, composed of municipally owned Utilities. The organization's annual meeting will be held in Raleigh April 26.
The commission adopted VEPCO's rate schedule last month subject to the private utilities rate increase being approved. Last night they approved a change in the lowest rate to large users, from 0.4 cents per kw/hr to 0.5 cents per kw/hr.

Former Political Commentator Represents Pakistan At U.N.

FEARLESS COLUMNIST Zeb-un-Nissa Hamidullah may look gentle, but her political commentaries have been so fierce they were banned by two presidents of Pakistan.

By ALEC COLLETT
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The tiny, attractive dark woman in the sari looks more like a poetess than the fearless newspaper columnist who was banned by two presidents of Pakistan.

But Zeb-un-Nissa Hamidullah is both, although she is better known in her native Pakistan as a political commentator.

President Yahya Khan recently introduced her to visiting royalty with the comment: "This lady has already brought down two presidents, so I have to watch my step."

Begum Hamidullah, as she is known by the Islamic honorific, is editor-publisher of the Karachi Mirror. For three months, she is on leave of absence from her monthly magazine to represent Pakistan at the 25th U.N. General Assembly.

The experience is a new one for Zeb-un-Nissa, who looks to be in her 30s, but who actually is a grandmother.

A self-educated writer who left school at 15, she now sits as her country's chief representative in the assembly's Social and Humanitarian Committee. In the large, paneled committee room with its view of New York's East River, the Begum finds herself in what she calls "a miniature world." But she confesses it is different from what she expected when she arrived last September.

"Delegates don't express opinions," said the editor of her unaccustomed role. "They are only spokesmen for their governments. And in a personal capacity, one cannot contribute very much."

The daughter of an English mother and a Muslim judge, who was something of a literary figure, Zeb-un-Nissa was born in Calcutta, and before the age of 15, her poems had been published in various newspapers and magazines. She has since published three volumes of verse, much of which she wrote as a teen-aged bride.

"I was married very young," Begum Hamidullah said, explaining she is the mother of two daughters, Nilofar, 26, and Yasmin, 21.

Zeb-un-Nissa first worked as a journalist before the Indian subcontinent was partitioned in 1947. She wrote two weekly columns: "Feminine Touch" for the Evening Star, and "Between Ourselves" for the Morning News, both Calcutta newspapers.

She moved with her husband to West Pakistan in 1947, and there began a weekly column for Dawn, Pakistan's biggest daily newspaper.

"I wanted to bring in civil affairs and politics, and when I wrote about these things the editor of the magazine section objected," the Begum said.

The column was suspended from the Sunday women's section but Zeb-un-Nissa pursued the matter with the paper's editor until he agreed she could write a general column "on anything, including politics." So the feature was moved from the women's pages to the editorial page.

As a result, she developed an even greater interest in political issues, and her column, "Thru a Woman's Eyes," assumed national significance.

In 1951, Zeb-un-Hamidullah launched her own publication, the monthly, society-oriented, Mirror.

The magazine became one of Pakistan's most popular monthlies, and Zeb-un-Hamidullah's editorials were a talking point from Karachi to Dacca.

So much so that former President Iskander Mirza banned the publication for six months, but the publisher took legal action and the Supreme Court reversed the ruling.

The Mirror was banned a second time by Mirza's successor, President Ayub Khan. A "selective" boycott, the presidential order prevented its sale to diplomats and to army posts.

The Begum's editorial which prompted this action called on Ayub Khan to abdicate. Charging the president with repression and mismanagement, she wrote that Pakistan "will continue to erupt as long as you, Field Marshal Ayub Khan, continue as its president."

The editorial was published in Feb. 1969. Ayub Khan resigned one month later.

It is difficult to believe the mild-mannered writer who weighs only 95 pounds and stands one inch over 5 feet packs such forcefulness and conviction in her small frame. She gave up writing five years ago, however.

"Five or six years ago I found I was wearing myself out, running out of creative ideas," she said. "I was not giving my best so I stopped writing."

But she still broadcasts regularly for Radio Pakistan and has published a book of short stories, "The Young Wife."

There's No Getting Out Of This One

DEAR ABBY: Enclosed is a clipping from your column as it appeared in the New Orleans States Item:

"CONFIDENTIAL TO AT WITS' END: It seems inconceivable to me that a registered nurse would be 'ashamed' to take her child to a doctor with recurring pinworms. Quit treating the boy with over-the-counter drugs and get that child to a doctor!"

Abby, shouldn't it be equally inconceivable to you, as it is to me, that a physician should have recurring pinworms? PHILIP C. SPERIER, EDITOR DIXIE ROTO MAGAZINE

DEAR MR. SPERIER: I goofed and there is no worming my way out of it! Of the hundreds of editors and proofreaders who saw that item, few caught the error before it went to press, and you are the only editor to have called it to my attention afterward. Only two readers, Mrs. J. L. Harris of Portland, Ore., and Art Moyer of Albany, Ore., wrote to remark on it. Mea culpa.

DEAR ABBY: Can you please settle an argument between me and my husband? Our supervisor at the office tells us that it is rude to ask anyone who has been ill what was wrong with him. She says if the person volunteers the information, fine, but it is in poor taste to inquire. I say it's all right to ask because it shows you are really interested, and if they don't want to answer, they don't have to.

I will admit I have seen a couple of people blush when they were asked what was wrong with them. One was a lady who had had a female operation, and the other was man who had had painful rectal surgery.

My husband says the supervisor is right, and she is probably the supervisor and I am working for her because she knows what to say and what not to say. I'd like your opinion. WILLING TO LEARN

DEAR WILLING: I vote with your husband.

DEAR ABBY: You advised "Best Friend" to tell her girl friend that cross eyes can be corrected by surgery. You even suggested that the cross-eyed girl may not be "aware" of how she looks.

Abby, in the first place, if she is over three years old she knows how she looks. She will have heard nice older people say time and again, "Such a pretty child. Too bad about her eyes."

And from kindergarten on she'll have heard cruel remarks from other children to remind her that her eyes are "different." And if her eyes are like mine, and do not focus properly, people will keep asking her, "What are you looking at?"

Surgery doesn't always help. I have had two operations on my eyes. Neither one worked.

I used to be handicapped. But I'm not anymore, simply because I refuse to allow my defect to be the most important thing in my life. I do the best I can with what I have. My husband thinks I'm beautiful. And because he does, I am. Sign me. AWARE

DEAR ABBY: A thousand apologies. Others wrote to tell me that not all crossed eyes can be corrected with surgery. Please forgive me.

DEAR ABBY: Please, keep on telling young girls to never give in to a guy no matter what he says or how hard he begs. A guy who really loves a girl will never leave her, regardless.

I talked a girl out of her virginity. I am ashamed to say that she was only 14. [I was 18.] I caused her a lot of trouble, and now she won't even speak to me. But that's my fault, not hers. "B"

Bridal Shower Takes Place Of Hope Chest

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dowries are pretty much a thing of the past and the bridal shower takes the place of the hope chest for today's bride.

"Which means that things haven't changed as much as you might think, for it was just such a situation that inspired the first wedding shower," says Ginny Hopkins, author of a new book on this modern pre-nuptial party custom.

Miss Hopkins says legend has it that years and years ago a young Dutch girl was in love with the proverbial poor young man... poor because of his generosity to others. Because of his lack of wealth, the girl's father considered him a poor marriage prospect and he refused to give the couple a dowry. Sympathetic villagers decided to help the young couple by making up the dowry themselves.

Each person gave a treasured possession of his own until they had contributed all the household goods a bride was expected to bring to her new home.

Miss Hopkins retells the legend in her "The Bride's Book of Showers" (Grosset & Dunlap) which is devoted to the "how to" of planning all facets of parties for the bride-to-be.

Among tips she gives to the hostess: Be sure invitations go to really good friends only. The shower is to enable friends to share a significant event. Don't use it to repay your own party obligations or to introduce a new friend to the group.

Where Would The New Tag Go?

A county auto license tag, too? Where would we put it? The proposal adopted by the N. C. Association of County Commissioners to seek authority to license both automobiles and mobile homes is sure to raise questions as well as eyebrows. A state auto license tag is required and in addition most incorporated towns require city tags which cost the vehicle owner another $1. This also takes care of the license tag frames on the front and back of most automobiles.

Bills Planned By Sen. McGeachy

By BRYAN HANSLIP
RALEIGH — Reorganization begins with a recurrence to fundamental principles. Whether citizenship or governmental structure, that starting point is recommended by Senator N. Hector McGeachy, Jr., of Cumberland. He has thoughts in both directions: a bill to introduce soon for a study on teaching North Carolina history, and proposals for more efficient functioning of legislative and executive branches of state government. "Pride in our state and country is more important today than ever before. Our young people need a feeling for their heritage, a sense of roots and background," he said. "We can't give them that unless we give them a knowledge and understanding of our history." Spotlight on History His bill directs the State Board of Education, working with the Archives and History department and the North Carolina American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, to study available materials, teacher preparation and curriculum development looking towards "a comprehensive program of superior instruction in North Carolina history and government in the public schools..." While the young learn about the past, present leaders and elected officials must be building for the future. State government reorganization is a must for efficient and effective operation, McGeachy said. Specifically, the Senator has ideas about the office of lieutenant governor. A primary one is the possibility of filling it. Short of formal announcement, he's running hard for the Democratic nomination in the 1972 primary. Thus far, McGeachy admits interest and reports encouraging response from across the state. In this warming up period, most observers place him among the top two or three contenders in the crowded early field. Overhaul No. 2 Job His political future aside, McGeachy said something needs to be done about the "neither fish nor fowl" number two office. Now it overlaps into both executive and legislative, without a clear-cut role in either, he said.

BRYAN HANSLIP

His solution would remove the lieutenant governor from the legislative branch altogether. Duties of presiding over the Senate and appointing committees, McGeachy said, should go to a Senator elected by the Senate just as the House chooses its Speaker. Borrowing a military metaphor, he said the lieutenant governor should be a "chief of staff" for the executive branch. "It should not be solely ceremonial, simply a ribbon-cutting job, but an assistant to the Governor, keeping in touch with state agencies and the operation of government," McGeachy explained. That would demand three-fourths time, and perhaps full time, he said. It might tend to make candidates for governor and lieutenant governor run as a ticket, he agreed, but some political practicalities would work against that. In any event, he said, in his own case he could contemplate serving in such a role with any of those mentioned as prospective gubernatorial candidates in '72. Candid Scotsman McGeachy is a Fayetteville attorney with the red hair and Scotch Presbyterian heritage of the "God Blessed Macs" of southeastern North Carolina. In five terms, he has earned respect as a working Senator. His fellows elected him President Pro Tem at the 1969 session. He yields to none in devotion to the legislative branch, but he was one of the few to see some basis for the recent ranking of the Tar Heel legislature as 47th among the states. "We are 100 years behind the times," he said candidly. What is needed, McGeachy went on, is leadership continuity (the House Speaker and Senate President serving as many as three consecutive terms), fewer committees with standing membership on key ones, between-session research and preparation of bills. Annual sessions would be no cure-all but could compound present inefficiencies, he said. Legislative revision could be accomplished without new laws or rule changes, but simply by a fresh approach and a change in thinking. Does he think it will be? "Unfortunately, no," McGeachy answered. Fear of concentration of power, reluctance to tinker with the system, work against change, he said. Still, that never stopped a Scotsman from trying. Before the session ends, he expects to offer a bill giving the General Assembly the chance to reorganize itself for greater efficiency, keeping in mind fundamental principles of democracy.

It is not clear whether the counties proposed to sell $1 license tags to vehicle owners who already purchase city tags. It is difficult to see how Pitt County, for instance, could require a citizen who lives in a rural area to purchase an auto tag and not make the same requirement for a county citizen who happens to live within the corporate limits of a municipality. A similar situation may arise in connection with the licensing of mobile homes. In this instance, the Commissioners Association asserted the primary purpose would not be the small license fee for the mobile home, but rather a means of checking to be sure that all mobile homes are listed for advalorem taxes. Whatever the technicalities involved between the local governments within a county, both proposals constitute another effort by Commissioners to deal with the difficult problem of finding new tax revenue sources to help meet the increasing costs of local government operations. Under the tax structure in North Carolina, local governments have found themselves boxed in so far as revenue sources are concerned. They have sought in recent years to broaden their tax revenue base in order that a constantly increasing burden on property — their primary source of revenue now — might be avoided. The first major breakthrough is the provision whereby the counties may levy an additional one cent sales tax. But this being a local option matter does not assure all counties of this additional source of revenue. The approach to possible additional county taxing of automobiles and mobile homes is another in the series of efforts to broaden the local government tax base. Whether these latest tax proposals are adopted or rejected, it is becoming increasingly evident that many local governments must soon break out of their restricted revenue sources or face the fact they cannot provide the services now expected of local governments throughout the state.

Environmental Plan Is Fought

By DILLON GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ship owners and port officials are fighting legislation which would give federal environmental experts the final say on where and when to dump muck dredged from waterways. Such groups as the American Institute of Merchant Shipping recommend keeping things the way they are with the Army Corps of Engineers in charge of dumping permits. Legislation under consideration would switch this control to the Environmental Protection Agency. The shippers said in congressional testimony, the EPA might want muck dumped farther from the dredging project, adding to over-all costs. Increased costs may outweigh benefits of the project, says institute president James J. Reynolds. There could also be excessive delay while the EPA mulls ecology matters, he added. The engineers give enough consideration to ecological factors and this, with their construction expertise, makes the best combination for the job, Reynolds says. The engineers have been attacked before by environmentalists, but not in memory on this particular point. "It is logical to conclude that from the standpoint of EPA, environmental considerations will outweigh all others by far and influence the EPA administrator to require that dredged material be transported for disposal far at sea or to inland locations..." Reynolds said. "I believe that the delay, the waiting for permits, the valuation of the permits by individuals who are not attuned to the engineering methods, or the waterway needs, or the broad concepts of the need of the merchant marine and need of commerce, but only ecology, would add to the cost and delay..."

Edward Langlois of the American Association of Port Authorities told the same House subcommittee: "We are concerned that another agency participating in the lengthy debates on the granting of permits would tie us up to the extent that the cost-benefit ratio could well be jeopardized and the project could then die." The EPA, for example, could require dredgers to load the muck on a barge and carry it far out to sea instead of, perhaps, dumping it nearby at a landfill project, which environmentalists don't like. The cost of disposal doubles, Reynolds says, for each 30 miles the material is barged. And there would be added costs, for instance, in building ocean-going barges. A specific case mentioned by Reynolds was the Baltimore Harbor and Channels Improvements project. If the EPA acted the way the maritime men expect, he says, the $100-million project could be delayed or canceled. Presently, the engineers have approved a plan to dump this muck by an island in the Chesapeake Bay, not out at sea. This project is still under review by the White House Office of Management and Budget.

Strength For Today

CAUSE FOR ENCOURAGEMENT Is the Church going to pieces? Recently a newspaper carried a picture of the enrollment of one Sunday School — 11,300 (yes, you got it right. There's nothing the matter with your glasses). Some of us occasionally attend a church near our home. This church is packed to the doors every Sunday with young people. Nobody brought them to church, except in the case of one or two large Sunday School classes. These young people are up early every Sunday morning. They get to Sunday School and to church. They attend an evening service. The Church today is in plenty of trouble. Few churches are crowded, yet to claim that this is unprecedented is incorrect. About the year 1800 it looked as if the Church and its influence had come to an end. This did not turn out to be true. Churches were organized in that day and continue strong and healthy to this very moment. The good old days never existed. Life is a matter of ups and downs. Just about the time we are ready to throw up our hands and say that organized religion is through, something happens. The Church may appear to be on its last legs, but this sinister and widespread condition is more in appearance than in reality. The late Harry Emerson Fosdick used to have an attendance of eight hundred in his Wednesday evening prayer meeting. If you think the Church is on the way out, ask Billy Graham. Or ask those of us who are older than the success of the flamboyant Billy Sunday. The modern church has problems — but they will solve these problems just as they have in the past. By Earl L. Douglass

Anyone For Ping-Pong?

WASHINGTON — It's very rare that the CIA gets caught flat-footed, but the other day when Red China invited the United States to send a table tennis team to Peking, the Central Intelligence Agency discovered it had no champion Ping-Pong players in the organization whom it could send along on the trip. CIA officials were going crazy trying to find someone before the U.S. team left for Peking last Saturday. In panic, the CIA officials decided to hold a crash program in Ping-Pong. Neighbors who live around Langley, Va., where the top-secret agency is located, reported seeing truckloads of Ping-Pong tables going through the gates. They have reported that they can't sleep at night because of the noise of thousands of balls being hit back and forth across the tables set up in the CIA gymnasium. Any agent who ever played Ping-Pong in boys' camp or at the beach had been given leave from his regular duties and brought to Langley in hopes he might be developed into a champion Ping-Pong player before the U.S. team took off for Peking. The CIA also held an employees Ping-Pong tournament during lunch hour with cash prizes of up to $100,000 of unaccountable funds to encourage more people to take up the sport. Yet, despite these desperate measures, officials of the agency are pessimistic that they'll be able to develop anybody worthy of playing Red China at table tennis. (The Raleigh Times) Senator Sam Ervin, who has already done great service for all citizens of this country by his probe into Army snooping on civilians, plans to take an additional step. He will move quickly to outlaw Army spying on civilians, and will try later to put on stiff controls on government and private monitoring of Americans' personal lives. Senator Ervin is chairman of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee probing all forms of surveillance. He said his group will look further into the Army's practices, but he has decided to offer now a bill that would prohibit Army surveillance of civilians who have no kind of affiliation with the Army. "That is essential," he said, adding that he thought a fairly simple bill would get the Army out of the field of watching over non-military life. The need for such a law became apparent during recent hearings conducted by Senator Ervin. It was disclosed that the Army had had agents spying on church groups, politicians, candidates for office, peace groups, etc. What is more, the Army had built up a vast store of records on such people and groups. Next year, Senator Ervin plans to offer other specific proposals to insure that public and private agencies don't watch over matters that are "none of their business," and do not abuse the data they do gather about personal affairs. "Government and private data-gathering," he says, "pose the same kind of threat to the right of privacy, the right to be left alone." Among other areas he is considering would be permission for citizens to secure court bans against data gathering unless legitimate interests were involved; guaranteed access by citizens to data gathered about them, with opportunity to refute it or show mitigating circumstances; barring of access to data on file except to those who have a legitimate reason to be concerned; some guarantee that possible damaging information be complete and accurate a requirement that a government agency circulating a questionnaire spell out whether the citizen has a legal duty to answer or the option of refusing; some form of government regulation of private firms carrying on credit investigations, or gathering data for employers' use in hiring. The development of the computer has made it so easy for the government, and private agencies, to build up vast data files, even on persons who have no idea that they have been investigated at all. All citizens should welcome Senator Ervin's steps to protect them in such matters.

Haircut Is Not Needed

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — If Rip Van Winkle were to awake today he wouldn't need a haircut, but he would need a dictionary. While his flowing locks and beard would be right in style, his vocabulary would be completely out of date. Not only would Rip find it hard to rap, but he'd discover that many of the words he knew in his renap days have taken on a different meaning. And he'd be confronted by new ones that have achieved instant popularity. Here's a little quiz that will show Rip whether he's with it: Relevant: (a) father of the bridge; (b) showing religious fervor; (c) "the leg bone's connected to the ankle bone." Women's lib: (a) a new female religion; (b) and article of ladies' clothing; (c) boycotting the boys. Midi: (a) youth with sea legs; (b) no legs to see; (c) a bone of contention. Generation gap: (a) electricity flowing between two ends of a wire; (b) vive le difference!; (c) "but you just don't understand." Polarization: (a) having opposing vibes; (b) flying over the Arctic Circle; (c) learning to speak Polish. Crunch: (a) lunch on a credit card; (b) a new kind of candy bar; (c) an irresistible force meeting an immovable object. Hassle: (a) a king-size problem; (b) a man's home is his...v (c) a small stool for the feet. Stoned: (a) hit by rocks; (b) the state of having pebble-filled shoes; (c) pleasantly unaware. Charisma: (a) his own thing; (b) illness caused by vitamin deficiency; (c) an Oriental religion. Groovy: (a) long-playing phonograph record; (b) word of teen-age praise; (c) a flavoring for a meat dish. Upright: (a) the morning after a binge; (b) a state of non-relaxation; (c) a brand of pantyhose. Copout: (a) policemen's strike; (b) easy way out; (c) art form employing scissors and paper. If Rip gets all the definitions right, he has cheated; if he answers 10 correctly he's ready to make the rounds of nighttime TV talk shows; if he's up on five he can declare his candidacy for the 1972 presidential election; if his score is worse than that he'd better take a couple of sleeping pills and split the scene for another 20 years.

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL
April 15, 1931 It was announced today that the "Live-at-Home" demonstration farm on the highway between Greenville and Bethel, will be open to the public for inspection on Friday afternoon. The farm was established by the state last year at the suggestion of Gov. Gardner, with a view of interesting growers in producing more of the things which they consume at home. The annual musical contest for the schools of this district will be held in the Greenville High School auditorium next Saturday morning.

Social Responsibility Is Issue

By ELMER ROESSNER The social responsibility of business is becoming a major issue in business and with the public. Almost everyone agrees that business does have a responsibility; the area of debate is just how much. The question is so important that the Conference Board has called an all-day meeting tomorrow in New York at which some of the most distinguished business leaders and educators will exchange views on "understanding the social crisis" and business relations with education and government. Business has undergone considerable criticism by a whole garden of activists, by ethnic groups, by Women's Lib, by the New Left and rabble-rousers. It has also suffered violence. Banks, retail establishments, airline offices and other institutions have been bombed. And supermarkets, stores and other places of business have been picketed. Stockholders Protest Many a recent stockholders' meeting has been interrupted or picketed by activists that have demanded "more social consciousness" by management. The ecologists have lately got into the act, demanding that business do more to clean up the earth. Two shareholders of the Fidelity Trend Fund, Inc., are planning to demand at a stockholders' meeting on June 10 that the managers investigate the social policies of corporations before investing in them. The big auto companies have been frequent objects of attack because of car defects and lack of speed in producing nonpolluting engines. James M. Roche, General Motors chairman, has hit back vigorously. He declared critics of business "thrive on sensational accusations and the publicity it gains. They jump from cause to cause, going wherever popularity or expediency leads, using whatever means are at hand, inflaming any issue that promises attention." Ralph Nader was quick to reply, saying, "The fuel for the consumer movement comes directly from corporate behavior." More Moderate Tone However, a GM vice president, Anthony de Lorenzo, took a more moderate tone. He told the Nassau Club at Princeton that "many businessmen may well be considered activists," and pointed out the many things GM and other auto companies have done to improve safety and ecologic factors. Dr. Clare E. Griffin, professor emeritus of business administration of the University of Michigan, wrote in the Michigan Business Review that the "main business of business is business." While many decisions do have alternatives, such as to train previously unemployed from inner cities, management's first duty is to stockholders. "A million stockholders," he said, "cannot run anything, not even a popcorn stand." He added that if reformers want "to induce action for a broadly conceived social program, they would be better advised, a) to leave the control with the managers, b) exercise their power of persuasion on these managers, c) indicate to them that the desired policy will improve the 'image' of the corporation and perhaps d) that it will attract the favorable attention of consumers, and e) that it will reduce prospects of unwelcome governmental controls." If investors do not like the social policies of a corporation, he said, "The sensible action is to sell the stock."

make if he isn't a champion?" I asked a CIA official. "We have a serious problem," he said. "This is the first time we're playing Red China at any sport. Table tennis is the most important game in China."

"The USIA and the State Department want the United States to field the best team it can find because they believe that if we can defeat the Chinese at Ping-Pong it would be the greatest propaganda victory of the cold war."

"On the other hand, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the CIA feel it would be better to send a mediocre team and risk defeat in exchange for finding out what Mao Tse-tung is really thinking."

"The ideal, of course, would be to send a champion Ping-Pong player who also can figure out what is going on in Peking. But so far we can't find anybody."

"Why is that?" I asked. "Surely in this vast organization you must have some excellent table tennis players."

"Unfortunately, most of our agents are golfers," he said sadly. "We also have some tennis players and a few people who play croquet. But no one here ever thought to recruit Ping-Pong players."

"Couldn't you borrow a champion player from another agency of the government?"

"The only one who would have qualified was a man who worked for the FBI and had won the intercollegiate Ping-Pong championship in 1956. But unfortunately, he was fired a month ago for telling a friend that he didn't like J. Edgar Hoover's barber."

"Then it looks like the United States table tennis team may have to go to Peking without CIA representation?" I said.

"Unless we can come up with a sleeper," the official said. "Our recruiters are out on the college campuses right now and their orders are to find someone, anyone. It doesn't make any difference if he can pass a security clearance as long as he has a vicious backhand."

"Will anyone be punished because the CIA was un-

Local Works In Fair

Greenville artists, craftsmen and photographers are again this year represented in the Second Annual Carolina Designer Craftsman's Fair being held Friday and Saturday at the Education Building in the N. C. State Fairgrounds in Raleigh.

At least 18 local artists and craftsmen are taking part in the fair, which was organized and formally incorporated in April 1970. This week's exhibition is the second one held.

Local people scheduled to have creations on display this year in Raleigh and their area of interest are: Mrs. Norma Gray, textiles; Charles Chamberlain, pottery; Sara Edmiston, enameling and print-making; John Satterfield, jewelry; Ron Calhoun, leather; Mrs. Gwendolyn Jones, macrame; Mrs. Myra Sexauer, weaving; Paul Minnis, pottery; Jerry Johnson, printmaking; James Whalen, pottery; John Behr, pottery; Mrs. Ann Riggs, pottery; Leonard Veillette, photography; George and Elsie Bryant, wood-carving; and Ross Bryant, photography.

The exhibit is at the Education Building on the fairgrounds. Hours of viewing are from 10:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. on Friday; and from 10:00 a. m. to 6:00 p. m. on Saturday. Admission is $1.00 for adults, senior citizens with ID card, 75 cents, students 75 cents, and children under 12 free. School classes are invited to attend.

WILMINGTON. The firm's plans have drawn fierce opposition from the New Hanover Fishing Club, which says it represents about 2,500 persons.

Protests by club members to the Army Corps of Engineers resulted in an order to CP&L last month to suspend work on the lake. The Corps took the action when it was learned that CP&L did not have a federal permit.

As a navigable stream, Catfish Creek—about three miles long and eight feet deep—is under the paramount jurisdiction of the Corps.

CP&L asked for a permit to close the creek shortly after the work stoppage order. The fishing club has asked for a public hearing on the request, but the Corps has not yet decided whether to hold one.

Store Safe Carried Off

GREENVILLE. Police are investigating the theft of a safe from a grocery store at the intersection of 12th and Pitt Streets here sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

The theft was reported yesterday when Sylvester Wilson opened his Twelfth Street Grocery for business and found the small safe missing from the office of the store.

The thieves after gaining entrance to the building took the safe out the rear door and to a vacant house at 1203 South Pitt St. where it had been left. Apparently no attempt had been made to force the safe open, investigators noted.

CP&L Senior Vice President J. A. Jones said, "We are studying the attorney general's opinion and seeking to determine what can be done."

Reconsideration Asked Of Chief

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Police Chief M. E. Williamson has been asked by more than 400 citizens of this resort to reconsider his resignation.

All signed a letter which was given to him Tuesday.

He resigned last Friday, saying he was disillusioned with recent court decisions, particularly in narcotics cases in which he had been active. He has been in law enforcement work about 20 years, most of the time as police chief of Wrightsville Beach.

He gave no intention of his plans. His brother, H. E. Williamson, is police chief at Wilmington, 10 miles from Wrightsville Beach.

Federal Jungle

Economic Affairs Department Replaces Agencies

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's proposed Department of Economic Affairs would swallow up a maze of special-interest agencies, old inhabitants of the federal bureaucratic jungle.

Parts of the departments of Agriculture, Commerce, Labor and Transportation would be swept into a single unit, along with a group of smaller, single-purpose agencies.

The attempt to bring these agencies together may explain some of the opposition to Nixon's sweeping plan to reorganize the federal government.

For one thing, Congress is organized that way. Many committee chairmen are said to fear they would lose their niche if their special agency were eliminated or combined with another department.

For another thing, the agencies have developed their own constituencies—almost a customer-salesman relationship.

A small businessman looking for a loan to help out his faltering business naturally comes to the Small Business Administration, a big businessman to the Department of Commerce. A union leader would go to the Labor Department, and a farmer to Agriculture.

The problem, Nixon administration officials say, is that these departments have many overlapping programs and sometimes work at cross-purposes.

For example, they say, the Commerce Department recently loaned a group of Eskimos $650,000 to outfit a barge that could freeze and store salmon. At the same time, the Small Business Administration financed a land-based storage-freezer plant in direct competition with the barge. The SBA loan went into liquidation.

Along with pulling some of the programs together, the department's creation would make it more effective in establishing economic policy, officials say.

Because Labor and Commerce are so fragmented, the job of making and carrying out economic policy has largely gone to the White House or the Treasury. An Economic Affairs Department would be a more powerful spokesman for the agencies it represents.

From the standpoint of employees, the Economic Affairs Department would be the biggest Nixon proposal, with 161,200 workers, including 39,000 in the Coast Guard.

Almost all the present Commerce Department would be included in the new agency. From the Labor Department would come the Bureau of International Labor Affairs, Labor-Management Services Administration, Workplace Standard Administration, Bureau of Labor Statistics and Occupational Health and Safety.

Agriculture would contribute services relating to farm productivity, economy stabilization and marketing, such as the Farmers Home Administration, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, crop insurance, economic research, statistics, and the Cooperative Extension Service.

The Federal Highway Administration, Federal Aviation Administration, Highway Safety Administration, Coast Guard and Federal Railroad Administration would be key transportation agencies brought into the department.

The Small Business Administration, now a separate agency, would be swallowed up as would the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. The National Institute for Occupational Health and Safety would be taken from Health, Education and Welfare.

The new department would be organized along functional lines, much the same as in the old agencies.

The first gas street-lighting system was introduced in Baltimore in 1817.

'Knows Job Better'

Editors Have Varied Opinions On A Nixon Victory

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "Well, 1972 is too far away to feel safe in any prediction now," says an editor assessing Republican chances of keeping the White House, "but as things look now, President Nixon knows the job better than anyone else."
"The economic issue might well be the most powerful factor in 1972 unless he can pass a good deal of the buck to Congress—where it should be passed," adds Talbot Patrick, board chairman and publisher of the Rock Hill (S.C.) Evening Herald.

Patrick was among 40 members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors questioned at random Tuesday as they signed in for the organization's three-day convention.
The responses yielded a wide split decision—with one-quarter looking for him to lose and the rest generally leaning toward a Nixon victory or contending it is too soon to estimate how he would do, especially since it is difficult to figure which Democrat will be his rival.

They listed Nixon's handling of the economy and the war as key issues—although not always in that order. Generally, they said they expect the 18-year-old vote will be an important element in the outcome of the 1972 presidential race.
Among the replies:
"If the economy is on the upturn and we're pulling more men out of Vietnam," said Glen Boissonneault, editor of the Flint (Mich.) Journal, "he'll win re-election. But if either one is in the negative, I've got some real doubts."

"I'm not even sure he'll be a candidate," said Forrest Kilmer, executive editor of the Davenport (Iowa) Times-Democrat.
Charles L. Bennett, managing editor of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times, said Nixon will win next year unless there is "some major disruption of withdrawal from Vietnam or a serious economic crisis."

Wallace Carroll, editor and publisher of the Winston-Salem (N.C.) Journal and Twin City Sentinel, said Nixon could be beaten "by any good Democrat, provided they don't spill too much blood on each other."
Any Democrat can win "if the war is not over, but if Nixon ends the war he probably can't be beaten," said Waldo Proffitt Jr., editorial director of the Sarasota (Fla.) Herald-Tribune and Journal.
Charles A. Guy, editor and publisher of the Lubbock (Tex.) Avalanche-Journal, said he thinks Nixon can win again. As for what issue might defeat Nixon, Guy said: "The economy is more important politically than the war—everybody is sick of the war, but they're not made at Nixon about it."

Cannon Chairman Named
KANNAPOLIS, N.C. (AP) — Don S. Holt, president of Cannon Mills Co., has been named to the additional post of chairman of the board of the company whose towels, sheets and other textile products are sold worldwide.
As chairman he succeeds Charles A. Cannon, who died April 2 at the age of 78 after 50 years as leader of the company, which has a dozen plants in the Carolinas and Georgia.
The directors and stockholders held their first meeting Tuesday since Cannon's death. Directors elected Holt as chairman and stockholders elected Albert M. Allran, president of the Maiden Knitting Co., Maiden, N.C., to fill the position on the board vacated by the death.
Holt reported that net sales and operating income in 1970 was $306.4 million, up 2.35 percent from 1969. He said net income after taxes was $15.57 million, an increase of $87,500.

Intelligence Officer Charged

Jury Selection Is Expected In New My Lai Trial

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer
FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Lawyers for the Army and an intelligence officer accused of maiming and assaulting a suspected enemy near My Lai planned today to wind up pre-trial matters and begin selecting a jury. Testimony in the trial of Capt. Eugene M. Kotouc, 37, of Humboldt, Neb., is scheduled to begin April 26 but may begin sooner if a jury is quickly chosen. Ten prospective jurors were to be flown to Ft. McPherson from Ft. Gordon, near Augusta, for questioning by the lawyers. At least five jurors must be seated before the trial can move forward. Kotouc, the father of three teen-aged children and a veteran of 13 years in the Army, is the fourth soldier to be court-martialed on criminal charges arising from an infantry assault on the village of My Lai and its aftermath.

The defense sought unsuccessfully to have the charges dropped Tuesday at the opening session of his pretrial hearing. Three motions to dismiss were denied by the military judge in the case, Col. Madison Wright, a silver-haired jurist who served in World War II as an Air Force fighter pilot in Europe.

Kotouc's military lawyers, Capt. James Lane of Fort Worth, Texas, and Capt. Norman Cooper of Southern Pines, N.C., based one of the motions on a grant of immunity Kotouc received when he testified in the court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley, Jr., at Ft. Benning. Calley was later convicted of premeditatedly murdering 22 My Lai villagers.

Lane, a short, blond-haired lawyer, held that the government elicited from Kotouc during his testimony certain information that might be used against him in violation of the immunity grant. The grant promised Kotouc that nothing he said at Calley's trial could be used against him.

Kotouc, who was attached to the My Lai assault force as an intelligence officer, spent three and one-half hours testifying about intelligence aspects of the operation. Lane said that under questioning, Kotouc, called as a government rebuttal witness, affirmed that he was charged with assault and maiming and placed himself near the My Lai area March 16. The government alleges that he committed his offenses there on that day.

Full Professional Staff Said Needed For Party

RALEIGH (AP) — Director Roy Sowers Jr. of the Department of Conservation and Development says the Democratic Party needs to depart from tradition and hire a full professional staff to man its Raleigh headquarters in the 1972 fall campaign.

He said in a speech Tuesday that "the plan I propose costs money and also represents a departure from the usual way of conducting our fall campaigns.

"But I submit that the 'usual' ways will no longer suffice, and if we are not willing to pay the cost of hired professional people, we may pay it in the loss of power," he said. Sowers' remarks came in a talk to a workshop for Democratic women from the Fourth Congressional District. Sowers said, "It is impossible for a Democratic Party chairman to keep up with the state's political pulse with a one-man or a two-man operation in Raleigh."

He said his remarks were not intended as criticism of Party Chairman Gene Simmons, who "is doing an outstanding job with the limitations placed on him."

But he said Simmons needs: —At least five "regional men—men who are so attuned to what is going on in their respective regions that he can report the doings of the opposition almost instantaneously."

—An administrative assistant —A full-time professional communications expert or a firm on retainer.

—And, a research section "that would contain all the information needed by Democratic candidates in explaining the performance of Democratic administrations."

Teams Visit Is Mystery Table Tennis Is Deadly Serious In Red China

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
Table tennis is "a deadly serious affair in Red China. A U.S. table tennis team is in Peking now, and the how and why of it is the sort of oriental mystery only a Chinese could unravel. Whatever the motives, the Americans never had a chance in competition against any first-rate Chinese team. The Chinese are experts at table tennis, and being experts, they are in a position to say what is the most important factor in winning. This was made abundantly clear five years ago when the "Cultural Revolution" was just about to begin. Peking was host then to an international tournament under the slogan "Table tennis for unity against imperialism." But there seemed to have been some bourgeois reactionary dirty work at the crossroads. The People's Daily reported that it had unmasked a plot.

It seems Chinese teams had done well the year before in the 28th world table tennis championships. But some nefarious official permitted publication of an article saying the main factors in the success were experience and training.

"Chinese table tennis teams refute bourgeois 'authorities,'" cried a headline in People's Daily. It reported the team members "filled with anger" because the writer of the article failed to credit Mao Tse-tung's thinking for the wins.

The culprit was a deputy propaganda minister who, said the paper, "arbitrarily changed the headline to one which had nothing to do with Mao Tse-tung's thinking." As an outraged team member put it, according to the paper, anyone could see the team won it because it "placed emphasis on the decisive role of Mao Tse-tung's thinking in winning victories at table tennis."

But some people never learn. Take Han Yu-chen, for example. She was one of the younger players and one of the best females in the game.

"However," said People's Daily, "she advocated individualism. Not only did she fail to improve her skill, but she botched collective victories in major tournaments."

At the 1966 meet in Peking, the Chinese team won six of the seven championships.

Before going on to victory, China's star player, Chuang Tse-tung "reviewed Chairman Mao's teaching of unyielding determination to win against all odds." He won.

Probably through no accident

Chuang Tse-tung bears the same given name as Chairman Mao. Also probably through no accident it was Chuang Tse-tung who was largely responsible, during the table tennis matches in Japan, for striking up the acquaintanceship with the Americans which led to the invitation to China.

Kenneth Clark Returns With Fascinating Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Kenneth Clark, the British art historian who earlier this season made the series "Civilisation" a lively cram course on art and architecture, returned to the public television stations Monday night with a fascinating memoir of Bernard Berenson.

dealers and collectors of Old Masters by attesting to the authenticity of paintings. His expertise was established in 1895 by an article in which he claimed that few works in an exhibition of Venetian painters were what they claimed to be.

Berenson also wrote extensively and authoritatively. In 1952, a new edition of an old work on Italian painters sold 60,000 copies. Lord Clark, a protege of Berenson, spoke intimately of the man, his idiosyncracies, weakness—his severe judgments were tempered in later years by "an almost exaggerated magnanimity."

Clark noted in gentle disapproval—and his appreciation of both art and nature. The hour-long program, "A Renaissance Life: A Personal View of Bernard Berenson," was primarily filmed at his villa near Florence, now owned by Harvard University.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices drifted today in slow trading. Analysts said profit taking seemed limited.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 1.68 to 928.96.

Declines held a narrow lead over advances among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said it was possible that an attempt to resume the market's recent advance could develop shortly, given the limited amount of profit taking evident.

In trading today, glimmers were mixed. Xerox was down 1/4 at 107½; Polaroid was down 1/4 to 89¼; IBM was up 1/2 at 358½; Control Data was ahead 1/2 at 67½; Burroughs was off 3/4 at 127½; and Disney was up 3/4 to 103½.

Large-block trades included 138,000 shares of Rollins Inc. at 38, off 1/8, and 150,000 shares of Pacific Petroleum at 30, unchanged.

Prices among the most-active Big Board issues included: UAL Inc., up 1/4 at 36½; Pan American, up 1/4 to 18½; Westinghouse Electric, ahead 2 1/4 at 86½; Cooper Industries, down 3/4 at 35¼; Computer Sciences, off 1/2 to 14¼; and Fairchild Camera, down 1/2 at 38½.

Approval Expected On Shoplifting Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate was expected to give final approval today to legislation which would allow North Carolina merchants to detain suspected shoplifters without being liable for damages for false arrest.

The bill, tentatively approved by the Senate Tuesday must be returned to the House for concurrence in a Senate amendment.

The Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. Russell

N.C. Highway Officials Expect To Get U.S. Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina highway officials don't plan to lose any of the state's federal road funds by failing to adopt a suitable billboard control policy.

State Highway Administrator George S. Willoughby Jr. said Tuesday the Highway Commission is conferring with the Federal Highway Administration over the state's beautification policies.

He said the state and federal agencies differ on "one or two points," but added that he foresees no unresolvable conflicts. "Certainly, we will comply with the federal regulations so that there will be no loss of funds," Willoughby said.

The Highway Beautification Act of 1965 calls for a reduction of 10 per cent in the road funds allocated to a state if no agreement is reached on billboard

Appearance Is Slated On Campus

Festival '71, East Carolina University's School of Music annual spring festival, goes into the third round of major scheduled events with the appearance of the Deane-Drinkall-Corbett Trio on campus during April.

The highlight of their appearance for a two day period, Sunday and Monday, April 18 and 19, is a public performance in the School of Music Recital Hall at 3:15 p.m. Sunday.

The Deane-Drinkall Duo, an ensemble of players of the violin and cello, have joined forces with a distinguished pianist, Richard Corbett. The Deane-Drinkall Duo is actually a husband-wife team. She goes under the professional name of Derry Deane, and her husband is Roger Drinkall. Miss Deane is the violinist, and Drinkall the cellist.

Following their Sunday afternoon concert, the trio will remain in Greenville to appear in various sessions at the School of Music on Monday, April 19.

The final of the four series for Festival '71 is slated for May 2 and 3, when Miss Beverly Wolf, opera star, will be on campus for the two day period, including a Sunday evening solo recital.

Barry Shank, ECU faculty member and one of the coordinators of the Festival '71 program, expressed pleasure in the fact the School of Music has been able this spring to bring the talents of these musicians to people of the university and the community.

Les Short Is Candidate

AYDEN — Les Short is seeking re-election as commissioner of the third ward in the May 4 election here.

Paul Gipson of Ayden has filed as a candidate in the third ward and will oppose in the election. In the fifth ward, Harry Mumford, incumbent commissioner, has already filed and Miss Annie M. Brown has filed as his challenger.

No one has filed for the first ward seat. Incumbent Burt Tripp has announced he will not seek re-election.

Kirby, D-Wilson, that a person may be arrested and detained for a reasonable length of time. Kirby said his amendment simply added the word arrest.

Store clerks would have the power to make a citizen's arrest. The measure was introduced by Reps. Clarence Leather, D-Lincoln, and Kenneth Royall, D-Durham.

Sen. William D. Mills, D-Onslow, a merchant, said the bill is designed to discourage shoplifters.

Mills said North Carolina merchants had gross sales last year of more than $11 billion. He added that even if shoplifters took 1 per cent of this amount, it would be $110 million. Some variety stores estimate their loss at 3 per cent annually.

Mills said merchants are hesitant about detaining suspected shoplifters for fear of being sued for false arrest.

Meanwhile, the Senate enacted a bill which repeals, effective July 1, 1973, a state law requiring that a certain number of prisoners be employed by the State Highway Commission for road work.

Sen. Luther Britt, D-Robeson, said a joint Senate-House subcommittee had reached agreement that a 15-member board be set up for proposed mandatory licensing of child day care centers in North Carolina.

Britt, chairman of the 10-member subcommittee, said there was no dissenting vote. Five bills are pending dealing with mandatory licensing of day care centers.

Britt said it was agreed the board would be composed of five department heads of state government, five representatives of profit-making day care centers, two representatives from non-profit centers and three private citizens.

The centers, he added, would be graded either A or double A.

The subcommittee is yet to decide the minimum standards for licensing, such as space requirements and the child-staff ratio, Britt said.

Sen. L. P. McLendon, D-Guilford, appeared before the Senate Higher Education committee to urge passage of his bill to put student body presidents of each of the state's 15 public universities on the institutions' boards of trustees.

The committee took no action on the measure.

"It would serve a useful purpose," he said. "For example, the matter that has sprung up at East Carolina University on visitation—the trustees there had to face that sooner or later, and if a student had served on the board the problems experienced might not have occurred."

Guy E. Noyes To Speak Here

A lecture on the financial outlook for the remainder of 1971 will be given by Guy E. Noyes on Thursday at 1:30 p. m., in the auditorium of the Biology Building on the East Carolina campus.

Noyes' visit and lecture at ECU is sponsored by the School of Business as the principal event in the School's "Second Annual Federal Reserve Day."

One of the most-quoted financial executives in this country, excerpts from Noyes speeches are frequently carried by national news media. Noyes is currently associated with Morgan-Garanty Trust Co., New York.

According to Dr. James Knipe of the ECU faculty, long time friend and associate of Noyes:

"In view of Morgan-Garanty's acknowledged position among the great international banks, Mr. Noyes' comments on the United States' situation vis-a-vis the international balance of payments are expected to be especially significant. He will undoubtedly throw some light on the present confusion regarding the outlook for the dollar in the markets of the world."

Farm Bureau Meeting Thurs.

A meeting for members of the Pitt County Farm Bureau will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Pitt County Court House.

Plans will be made to expand the programs of work of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation. The thinking of each member at the county level is needed to make decisions concerning these important plans.

Delegates to the meeting of the N. C. Farm Bureau to be held May 25 in Raleigh will be elected Thursday night. The delegates will be instructed on how to vote on such issues as: an increase in membership dues; the hiring of an ecology specialist; greater marketing programs; more participation by Farm Bureau women.

Community Sale Planned

A "Community Bake Sale" will be held at Pitt Plaza Shopping Center here Friday, April 23 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Any non-profit group may participate in this event to be held on the mall. A spokesman for the Pitt Plaza merchants expressed hope that this can be made a semi-annual event, eliminating all bake sales at other times.

Organizations should make reservations by calling 756-2166. Goods and display tables will be provided by the groups.

Services Set At Hollywood

Evangelistic services will be held at Hollywood Presbyterian Church tonight through Sunday, April 18, beginning at 7:30. The guest evangelist is the Rev. Richard K. Knowles, associate minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Greenville.

REV. RICHARD K. KNOWLES
A native of Norfolk, Va., Knowles received his B.A. from St. Andrews College, Laurinburg, in 1964. In 1968 he received his M. Div. (Master of Divinity) from Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. In 1969 he was awarded the M.A. by the Presbyterian School of Christian Education, Richmond, Va.

Knowles is a chaplain in the Air Force Reserve, holding the rank of captain. In June of this year, he will be on active duty with the Air Force as a chaplain. He is married to the former Doreen Carter of Wilmington and they have two children, Karen Lee, age two, and Richard Carter, eight months. The Rev. R. F. Sharrett, minister of Hollywood Church, invites the public to attend the services. A nursery will be provided each night.

Virginia Tech Hands 6-3 Loss To Bucs

BLACKSBURG, Va. — East Carolina's Pirates wound up a five-game road trip yesterday on a sour note, falling to Virginia Tech, 6-3. The Bucs finished their trip with a 2-3 mark, and fall off to 6-9 overall on the year.

They now take a week off before meeting Duke University in Durham next Thursday.

The Pirates were unable to generate much against Tech's John Tatem, who limited them to five scattered hits. Only Mike Aldridge was able to get to Tatem for a solid blow, as he accounted for all three runs for East Carolina. Two came on a homer, his third of the year, and the other on a sacrifice fly.

Meanwhile, Tech's hard hitting Gobblers, pounded Ron Hastings, getting eight hits off him in the first five-plus innings before chasing him after scoring five runs. The Gobblers are hitting over .300 as a team for the year.

The first Gobbler to reach base came around to score the first run. That came in the second inning when power hitter John Van Arnhem slapped a single to center. With an out, he moved around to third on Dave Wisebauer's single to right center, and then scored on Ken Weatherman's sacrifice fly.

Tech really jumped on the Pirates in the third inning, pushing over three more runs to up their lead to 4-0. With two outs, Vince Carbaugh singled to left and moved to third on Jay Fleisher's hit to right. Van Arnhem, who is hitting at a .500 clip, connected for a 355-foot homer to center, driving in all three runs as the Bucs fell out of reach.

The Pirates finally picked up a run in the top of the fourth as Matt Walker singled to left to get the first hit off Tatem. He moved up on Dick Corrada's single and Larry Walters got a hit to load the bases. Aldridge then provided a long fly to center, scoring Walker with the first Pirate run.

The Bucs failed to move up anyone the rest of the inning, however. They put two on in the fifth on walks, but again to no avail.

Tech struck again in the sixth, chasing Hastings from the mound. Wayne Javins singled to right and Wise Bauer followed with a double to right center, scoring Javins with the fifth Tech run. That brought the end for the Pirate hurler and brought on Tommy Toms in relief.

But Toms was also touched for a run, this one in the seventh. With two outs, Carbaugh walked and stole second. Fleisher singled to left, driving in Carbaugh with the final Gobbler run.

East Carolina tried to rally, but could pick up only two more. Those came in the eighth. With two outs, Walters singled to right center. Aldridge then followed with his third homer of the year, and the Bucs had closed the gap to 6-3. But that was to be it. They went down in the final frame without putting the tying run on base, despite an error and a walk.

The game was the first during the trip that the Bucs have not scored at least five runs or gotten nine or more hits. During the five game swing, they scored 31 runs and collected 47 hits. They gave up 34 runs and 45 hits.

Following the Duke game next Thursday, the Bucs swing down into South Carolina, meeting Furman on Saturday, April 24, and The Citadel on Sunday, April

Pirates Golfers Finish Second

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — East Carolina University's golfers took second place in the first annual Maryland Spring Classic Golf Tournament held the past two days over the University of Maryland course in College Park.

The hosting Terrapins took first place in the event walking away with it. The Terps finished the two-day tourney with a total score of 735. East Carolina was 22 strokes back with a team total of 757.

A total of 10 teams participated in the tournament.

Maryland's Ken Peyre-Ferry took top honors in the tournament, firing a 69-67-136 total.

East Carolina's Jim Brown finished fourth in the field with a 74-74-148. Ron Pinner was seventh with a 77-73-150.

Other Pirate scorers included Ed Pinnix and Phil Wallace, both of whom had 75-77-152 totals, tying for 13th place; and Ray Sharpe, whose 76-79-155 gave his 22nd place in the individual standings.

The Pirates, unbeaten in dual match play, play host to VMI on Friday.

Casper, Trevino In Monsanto Spotlight

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The absence of pro golfer's Big Three focuses the spotlight even more strongly on Billy Casper and Lee Trevino going into this week's $150,000 Monsanto Open golf tournament.

Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player, the storied, feared Big Three of a half dozen years ago, reasserted themselves this season to dominate the game again.

But none are playing this week, for a variety of reasons. Player had planned a breather in his current American tour at this time and is at home resting in South Africa. Palmer, playing his busiest schedule in many years, simply is taking some time off.

He had announced the championship of that event as a personal goal for the year and must win this week to be eligible. His credentials are in order. He hasn't won, but has played about as well as possible without doing so.

Casper, at the urging of the State Department, is skipping the Tournament of Champions to serve as a member of the official party accompanying King Hassan II of Morocco on his state visit to this country.

This is Casper's last chance to win one for some time. He'll be off for a few weeks and the $1 million winner would like nothing better than to notch his 45th tour victory before taking off.

And Nicklaus, who had

O'Brien is another beneficiary of the drafting war between the National and American basketball associations.

O'Brien signed a three-year contract with the ABA's Pittsburgh Condors Tuesday for $150,000, a $10,000 bonus and a leased car for three years.

"I think a merger would have cost me quite a bit," said the 21-year-old guard from Boston College.

Condors Operations Director Mark Binstein was more direct. "It's safe to assume," he said, "that between the contract signings of Jimmy to Howard Porter including Levi Wyatt we would have saved anywhere from $100,000 to $250,000 on each signing."

Since Villanova's Porter was the Condors' first draft pick, Wyatt of Alcorn A & M the second and O'Brien the third, it is safe to assume that O'Brien may have gained close to $100,000 because of the lack of merger.

"Next year," Binstein said, "I'll bet a 6-foot-3 player won't command more than a salary of $35,000 to $40,000."

Rose Bows To Gryphons

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
ROCKY MOUNT — Rose High School opened up its Division II play yesterday and just managed to choke off Rocky Mount in time.

The Rampants built up a 6-0 lead in the first six innings of play, but they ran out of gas in the final frame, and the Gryphons staged an outburst that nearly carried the day. The ninth man up in the inning finally struck out to end the game with the tying run waiting on first base, 6-4.

The win moved Rose into first place in the early conference standings with a 1-0 loop record. They are 6-0 overall.

The game was a pitching duel for the first four innings, with neither Rose nor Rocky Mount able to do much. Rose could only tap Gryphon hurler Larry Daughtridge for a fourth-inning double by Kim Harbin during the period.

Harbin took third on a wild pitch in that frame, but a suicide squeeze play failed and Harbin was cut down at the plate.

Meanwhile Rose hurler Jimmy Paige had allowed only one hit in the same amount of time. He had, however, allowed several walks. Earl Warren led off the game with a walk and moved up on Randy Warrick's single. Both advanced on a passed ball, but the next three batters went down in order ending the threat.

Rocky Mount didn't get another man in scoring position until the sixth when they put men at first and third on two walks and an error.

Rose, during the fifth and sixth, however, had gone to work and run up a six-run lead.

They broke the ice in the fifth when Paige helped his own cause with a triple into left center. John Conway walked and stole second, and Larry Dixon dumped a bunt and reached first while the pitcher was trying to figure out what to do with the ball.

With the bases loaded, J. C. Daniels cracked out a single through the middle, scoring both Paige and Conway for a 2-0 lead.

Then, in the sixth, Rose exploded for four more runs. With one out, Bill Lee doubled down the left field line. Paige walked and Conway was hit by a pitch, loading the bases again. Dixon grounded to second, but the play was made to the plate, too late to get the sliding Lee.

Daniels then came up with another single through the middle, scoring Conway. Paige had come across just seconds earlier on a wild pitch. Jim McDermott ended the scoring with a single to left, driving in Dixon with the sixth Rampant run.

But it wasn't over by any means as Rocky Mount finally got to the tiring Paige in the bottom of the seventh. Pinchhitter Mike Jacobs hit a sharp liner to third that bounced off Harbin. Howard McCullough singled to right and was replaced on the sacks by Ricky Bulluck. A passed ball let both

Hernandez Warms Up, Helps Cool Off Philadelphia By 9-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Gene Alley is no Easy Rider on the Pittsburgh bench with Jackie Hernandez in the main role.

"I guess I'll just have to sit here, though, until he cools off," says the Pirate shortstop. Jackie Hernandez? Yes, Jackie Hernandez. You remember the good-field, no-hit utility infielder, 163 pounds with spikes and glove.

Thing is, he's playing out of character—like clouting .444 with 6 RBI, including a three-run home run Tuesday night that helped Pittsburgh level Philadelphia 9-3.

"I could be playing," says Alley, the Pirates' regular shortstop for years, "but he's doing such a good job, they can't afford to take him out." Hernandez, an American League castoff with a .209 lifetime batting average in five major league seasons, got his chance with the Pirates when Alley suffered a broken hand in spring training. Now Alley's batter, but so is Hernandez' batting average.

Pittsburgh batting coach Bill Virdon worked with Hernandez in Florida, but says the diminutive Cuban isn't doing anything differently this season.

Cincinnati nudged Atlanta 5-4; Chicago shaded Los Angeles 3-2; Houston outscored St. Louis 8-4 and Montreal mauled the New York Mets 4-1 in Tuesday's other National League games. The San Diego-San Francisco contest was wiped out by rain.

In the American League, it was Kansas City 5, Minnesota 3; Oakland 2, Milwaukee; California 3, Chicago 1; Boston 5, Washington 3, and New York Yankees 5, Detroit 2. Rain washed out Baltimore's game at Cleveland.

With Danny Murtaugh shelved by the flu, Virgon was pinch-managing when Hernandez came up in the eighth with two outs and two on. He said he had a hunch Hernandez would come through.

Johnny Bench uncorked his third home run in two nights and keyed a seventh-inning rally with a single in the Cincinnati success.

"I'm happy, I can't be swinging much better than I did tonight," said the Reds' most valuable catcher.

In addition to his hits, Bench hit a screamer that was caught at the warning track in left field. He had two homers Monday night and a couple of other long-range blasts that turned into outs at the fence.

Bench jumped on a Pat Jarvis offering and sailed it into the left field seats in the third inning. A walk to Tony Perez, single by Bench and an RBI single by Willie Smith gave the Reds a 5-1 lead and what proved to be their winning run. The Braves scored three times in the eighth before reliever Joe Gibbon nipped the uprising with a double-play pitch.

Don Kessinger's eighth-inning single scored Jose Ortiz with the winning run for Chicago. Ortiz walked to start the rally, was sacrificed to second and roared home on Kessinger's bullet between shortstop and third base.

The loss was the third straight for Dodger ace Bill Singer, who only gave the Cubs two hits in the first six innings.

Joe Morgan's bases-filled single and Norm Miller's three-run homer with two out in the ninth carried Houston over St. Louis. The Astros, who took an early 3-0 lead, fell behind 4-3 when the Cards broke a tie in the eighth, and struck back against Mike Torrez in the last frame.

Montreal's Steve Renko beat New York for the second time this season, scattering eight Met hits. John Bateman's first homer of the season gave Montreal a 2-0 lead in the second for all the runs the Expos needed.

Top Players Join Action

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Top-seeded Tony Roche and second-seeded Cliff Richey, who drew first round byes, joined two other ranked players for their first action today in Charlotte's $25,000 open tennis tournament.

Other seeded players, led by No. 3 Stan Smith and fourth-ranked Arthur Ashe, breezed through Tuesday's first round of the North Carolina National Bank Open at the Olde Providence Racquet and Swim Club.

Roche, of Australia, drew Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., as his opponent while Richey, of San Angelo, Tex., faced Barry MacKay of San Francisco.

Ashe, of Richmond, Va., first round victor over Dick Dell of Washington, 6-3, 6-1, met Denmark's Torben Ulrich, who defeated Jim Osborne of Honolulu, 6-4, 7-5.

Smith, 6-2, 6-2 winner over

Greensboro amateur Allen Morris, faced Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla. Froehling's first round victim was Marty Mulligan of Rome, 6-3, 7-5.

Today's schedule called for eight singles matches and four doubles events, all in men's competition. Women begin play Thursday.

Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia, seeded sixth, defeated Keith Stoneman of Charlotte 6-3, 6-3 in the first round. His second-round opponent was Tom Gorman of Seattle, a 6-4, 7-5 winner over Vic Seixas of Philadelphia.

Eric Van Dillon of San Mateo, Calif., a U.S. Davis Cup alternate last year, won a first-round match from Nicola Spear of Yugoslavia, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Mary Riessen of Tucson, Ariz., seeded fifth, opened with a 6-1, 6-4 victory over host club pro Bob Joyner, who filled in for injured British entry Peter Curtis.

NHL Prexy Hits With Stiff Fines

MONTREAL (AP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, warned today he will continue to crack down hard on what he termed "the deplorable spectacle" of brawling in NHL games.

He slapped fines aggregating $16,550 on the New York Rangers and the Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday for their brawls during the third period of their Stanley Cup playoff game in New York last Thursday.

The players of both teams tangled with each other in fights that delayed the game won by the Leafs 4-1. During the melee Vic Hadfield of the Rangers threw the mask of Bernie Parent, the Toronto goalie, into the crowd. It was not recovered.

"As the measure of club responsibility in this instance," Campbell said, "the New York Rangers and the Toronto Maple Leafs are assessed fines of $5,000 each, payable to the players' emergency fund."

The $5,000 fine handed each club is the highest in league history. William Jennings, president of the Rangers, said he would appeal to the NHL Board of Governors.

"This is not the first such incident for either team in the current season," Campbell said in his statement. "And in view of the deplorable spectacle they produced, the automatic fines provided in the playing rules are not adequate for their offenses."

Brad Park of the Rangers and Darryl Sittler of the Leafs each were fined $450, the highest among the 28 players involved. Goalie Ed Giacomin of the Rangers was assessed $400 for twice leaving his crease. Mike Pelyk of Toronto also was fined $400 and Hadfield $250.

The other players involved each were fined $200.

Duke, Wake Are Still After Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Duke and Wake Forest are the only teams that haven't scratched yet in Atlantic Coast Conference baseball.

Each has lost its five league games.

The Duke Blue Devils were defeated 2-1 by North Carolina Tuesday. Two singles and an infield out in the fifth inning accounted for the winning margin as the Tar Heels pushed their league record to 3-1.

The Wake Forest Deacons lost a doubleheader to North Carolina State, 5-4 and 8-0.

In the first game, the Wolfpack built up a 5-1 lead behind the pitching of Reid Carter, but the Deacons got three runs off him in the eighth inning. Dewey Brown came in to preserve the victory. Bob Anderson's three-hitter in the second game gave the Wolfpack the sweep.

N.C. State is 5-1 in the league, and 14-7-1 in all games. Wake Forest is 3-9 overall.

Clemson lost to Georgia Tech 8-4, the 11th victory in a row for the Yellow Jackets. They have lost only once in 18 games this year. Tech's sophomore second baseman Dick Steed hit the cycle — a homer, triple, double and single in five at bats.

North Carolina is at North Carolina State today.

The standings, league games only: Maryland and Virginia 2-0, N.C. State 5-1, North Carolina 3-1, Clemson 3-3, South Carolina 1-1, Wake Forest and Duke 0-5.

Motta Named Coach Of Year

CHICAGO (AP) — "That's fine," said Dick Motta of the Chicago Bulls when informed he had been selected Coach of the Year in the National Basketball Association.

"But you can't eat it," Motta added, "and I'd rather be in the playoffs than win this thing."

The Bulls were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs by the Los Angeles Lakers in seven games but Motta received the award for lifting the Bulls to a 51-31 record when the team did not figure to make the playoffs.

The Bulls record was third best in the entire league behind Milwaukee and New York.

Motta received 30 votes from a panel of three sportswriters in each of the 17 league cities. Larry Costello of Milwaukee finished a distant second with 11. The results were announced Tuesday.

Al Attles of San Francisco landed three votes and New York's Red Holtzman, last year's winner, collected two.

Receiving one vote each were Bob Cousy of Cincinnati, Jack Ramsey of Philadelphia, Lenny Wilkins of Seattle, Joe Mullane of Los Angeles and Roland Todd of Portland.

Motta, 39, came to the Bulls three years ago after a successful coaching tenure at Weber State in Utah where his teams won 237 games, lost 34 and captured six Big Sky Conference titles in 12 years.

His first Chicago team had a 33-49 record and his second team was 39-43 and made the playoffs in 1970 before hitting the jackpot this season.

"I have no desire to leave the pro ranks," said Motta. "I miss some things about the college atmosphere but there are a lot of games in pro ball and I have a one track mind anyway—it's on basketball."

"Anyway, I didn't win 51 games," he continued, "the players did it. And the situation was just right for me. I had a bunch of very coachable guys—Walker, Love, Sloan, Boerwinkle, all of 'em."

"In that first training camp three years ago, I told them 'the day will come when you'll be very proud to be a Chicago Bull.' It was hard to believe at first, but it isn't now."

McLain Chased In Second Fling; Senators Fall To Boston Nine

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Denny McLain's fast ball came and went—followed closely by McLain himself after a faulty second fling for the Washington Senators.

"The harder I threw it, the harder they hit it," the controversial right-hander lamented Tuesday night following his early departure in the Senators' 5-3 loss to the Boston Red Sox. McLain, a winner last Friday night in his 1971 debut, was tagged for all five Boston runs before leaving for a pinch hitter in the fifth inning. He gave up seven hits, including homers by Carl Yastrzemski and Duane Josephson.

McCovey Is Hurt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — First baseman Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants will miss games here with Houston Wednesday and Thursday because of a knee injury, the club doctor said Tuesday.

McCovey twisted his left knee Sunday batting against Bob Gibson in the opener of a doubleheader at St. Louis.

He will have to rest the damaged cartilage for at least two days and won't be in uniform, the team physician said.

McCovey left Sunday's first game in the third inning and sat out the second one. But he played most of Monday's home opener and got a single in four times up before being relieved by Frank Johnson.

Minnesota 5-3 in a game marked by seven hit batsmen. Oakland blanked Milwaukee 2-0 behind Vida Blue's two-hitter. California topped the Chicago White Sox 3-1 in 10 innings and the New York Yankees beat Detroit 5-2. The Baltimore-Cleveland game was rained out.

In the National League, the Chicago Cubs shaded Los Angeles 3-2, Pittsburgh stomped Philadelphia 9-3, Cincinnati trimmed Atlanta 5-4, Houston bounced St. Louis 8-4 and Montreal turned back the New York Mets 4-1. Rain washed out the San Diego-San Francisco game.

Josephson's home run, after a second inning single by George Scott, started McLain's undoing at Washington. Yastrzemski, who visited President Nixon in the afternoon, unloaded in the third and the Red Sox added runs in the fourth and fifth, offsetting three unearned Washington tallies.

Lou Piniella's two-run single in the seventh was the deciding blow in the Royals' victory over Minnesota. The winners scored three times in the fifth on just one hit—a double by Paul Schaal—plus four walks and a ground out.

Four Twins and three Royals were plunked by stray pitches, tying the American League single-game mark of seven hit batsmen by Washington and Detroit in 1914.

Blue, Oakland's 21-year-old southpaw prodigy, held the Brewers to a pair of singles on the way to his second straight shutout victory after an opening day setback at Washington. Don Mincher delivered both runs with a single and double.

Run-scoring singles by pinch hitter Billy Cowan and Alex Johnson in the 10th carried the Angels past Chicago, pinning the White Sox with their fourth consecutive loss.

Stan Bahnsen weathered 11 Detroit hits and contributed a run-scoring triple to the New York attack as the Yankees took their home opener before a crowd of 34,745—largest for a Yankee Stadium inaugural in five years.

Robersonville Snaps Streak

VANCEBORO — Robersonville's Golden Eagles, after dropping four in a row, got back on the winning track yesterday with an 8-1 romp over Vanceboro's Red Raiders.

Robersonville broke into the scoring column in the third inning, pushing over two runs. Loyal Corey doubled after the first man went down. Ed Warren walked and Hal Knox singled, loading the bases. Phil James then cracked a double, scoring both Corey and Warren for the 2-0 lead.

It stayed that way until the fifth, when Robersonville added three more runs to its lead. Warren reached when his outfield fly was dropped and he went to second before the ball could be relayed. Knox singled and James bunted his way on board, scoring Warren from third. Knox stole third, and an error on the play let him score. Sammy Mobley then singled to drive in James for a 5-0 lead.

Three more Eagles crossed the plate in the sixth inning. Matt Wilson singled and Corey reached on an error. Warren singled in Wilson and an error minutes later let Corey come in. James walked and a wild pitch moved Warren to third. The two runners then worked the double steal, with Warren scoring to give the Eagles an 8-0 lead.

Vanceboro picked up its lone run in the bottom of the seventh.

James, Knox and Wilson led the Robersonville hitting with two each. Robersonville plays host to North Pitt on Thursday.

Canadian Ambassador Believes China Is Opening

Peaceful Use For War Complex

By JOHN BEST
Canadian Press Writer
OTTAWA (AP) — Ralph Edgar Collins, Canada's first ambassador to Communist China, believes the country is opening up to the outside world, and he expects a lot of Canadian visitors in Peking.

The son of an American YMCA worker and a Canadian mother, Collins was born in Kuning and spent the first 12 of his 56 years there and in Peking.

He told newsmen after announcement of his appointment Tuesday he is looking forward to returning to the country of his birth. "I think everyone brought up in China suffers from a sense of nostalgia when he is away from there for a long time," he added.

He was returned to China only once, in 1943-45 as third and second secretary at the Canadian legation-embassy in the wartime capital, Chungking.

A smallish, wiry man with an intense manner and a wry sense of humor, Collins said his main job will be helping to get relations between China and Canada launched on the right course.

Specific objectives, he said, will be for the government to set. However, he predicted that more Canadian tourists will be going to Cuba, and student exchanges are "in the cards."

Several visas have been granted Canadian newsmen since the two governments established diplomatic relations last October, and Chinese newsmen are welcome to come to Canada, the new ambassador said.

"I expect to have a great many visitors to Peking," he added.

Collins said he has learned Chinese several times in his life, and is "trying a bit of a review," of the language. But he doesn't expect to get down to serious relearning until he gets to Peking around the end of May.

He was asked whether he was practicing table tennis, an allusion to the current visits of some Western table tennis teams to Peking.

"I'm going to be sharpening my game," he replied with a brief grin. "I used to play ... I just haven't got around to it for some time, except for the odd occasion."

Lake Erie is 9,940-square miles of water.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government today began the first major conversion of its chemical and biological war complex to peaceful uses.

A Defense Department plant at Pine Bluff, Ark., that once developed killer germs will become a center for research into the effects on man of everyday chemicals.

In line with President Nixon's announcement last November ending production of chemicals and germ warfare agents, the Defense Department is presenting to the Food and Drug Administration a "right of entry" letter that begins the new role for a portion of the Pine Bluff arsenal.

Within one year, the FDA and other federal units are scheduled to occupy all 33 buildings at Pine Bluff.

They will constitute the new National Center for Toxicological Research investigating long-term health effects of food additives, industrial and household chemicals, pesticides, cosmetics and drugs.

The purpose, said FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards in remarks prepared for a ceremony at Pine Bluff, is "to extend our knowledge of the chronic, persistent and often insidious effects of an increasing array of chemical substances found in man's environment."

"Through past research we already know many of the short-term effects of high rates of exposure to chemicals. This is the easy part.

"But this center hopefully will enable us to develop a vital new knowledge about cumulative effects and possible connection to mutations, birth defects, cancer, or other diseases and debilities."

Edwards emphasized the center is intended to be not a national testing laboratory but a research complex that will develop test methods for others to employ.

Consumer Adviser Says

Multi-Agency Administration Raises Suspicions

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's consumer adviser, who is preparing to measure the effectiveness of government consumer programs, says she's already suspicious of any program run by more than one agency.

"I get worried when I see a program administered by as many as eight or nine agencies," Virginia Knauer said in an interview. "When you have this diffused responsibility you cut down on the accountability."

She mentioned specifically the Truth in Lending law, which is administered by the Federal Trade Commission, the Scholarship Fund Planned

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Publishers of the Police Recorder have agreed to establish a $1,000 scholarship fund for policemen's children.

In agreeing to the offer a Superior Court judge also exacted a civil penalty of $2,500 and ordered the publishers to halt deceiving the public into believing the publication was an official organ of California law enforcement agencies.

Federal Reserve Board, the Agriculture Department, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions, the Controller of the Currency, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

"I just couldn't believe so many people had their fingers in it," she said. "It creates a bureaucratic mare's nest. I'm not saying this one is. But the potential is there."

Mrs. Knauer bumped into the Truth in Lending maze set up by passage of the 1968 law after her office conducted a two-year survey to find all the consumer programs in the federal government. Overlapping and duplication make it impossible to determine the exact number of programs around, but the total has been estimated to be at least 300.

Now Mrs. Knauer is in the process of hiring program analysts who will compare what the programs can do with what the programs actually deliver.

Although Mrs. Knauer mentioned only the Truth in Lending laws as an example of a program where it would be hard to assign blame if something goes wrong, consumer advocates have blamed the same principle for the withering of other promising programs.

The 1965 Fair Packaging and Labeling Act, for example, has been written off as a virtual dead letter by even the legislators who sponsored the law. Its enforcement is divided between the Federal Trade Commission, the Food and Drug Administration and the Commerce Department.

news conference when it would be possible to send only volunteers to Vietnam. Laird replied this could seriously affect the administration's efforts to raise an army without the draft, a mid-1973 goal.

"There are certain problems if we split the all-volunteer force up and apply it just to South Vietnam and not as a worldwide sort of proposition," he explained.

Viet Volunteers Plan Seems Out

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration appears to have backed off the idea of sending only volunteers to Vietnam.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Tuesday the possibility is still under study, but spoke of enlistment problems and reservation about asking soldiers to volunteer for war duty.

Within a few months, the number of U.S. troops in Vietnam will have reached a level at which Laird had said previously it might be possible to assign only volunteers, as was done before the big American buildup began in 1965.

"The study we have," Laird said in January 1970, "would indicate that you would have to have a force of between 200,000 and 240,000 before you could entertain a new program that would limit your forces in Vietnam to volunteers."

President Nixon announced last week he would withdraw another 100,000 troops by Dec. 1, bringing the U.S. force down to 184,000 men.

But when asked at a Tuesday

news conference when it would be possible to send only volunteers to Vietnam, Laird replied this could seriously affect the administration's efforts to raise an army without the draft, a mid-1973 goal.

"There are certain problems if we split the all-volunteer force up and apply it just to South Vietnam and not as a worldwide sort of proposition," he explained.

Worry Clinic His Attitude To Divert Wife

Steve shows that sex hormones cannot offset a negative mental attitude. Many husbands have considered suicide when all they needed was the simple facts about boudoir behavior. The sex booklet below has caused thousands of platonic husbands to regain their romantic vigor, even without shots of testosterone!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.
CASE Q-527: Steve F., aged 45.

is the doctor who addressed his wife as "Hey, you" and omitted sweet talk.
"Dr. Crane," he admitted, "I have been scared least I become totally impotent."
"For I have noticed a great reduction in my erotic ardor."
"So I have taken hormone shots from one of our G-U colleagues in the hope those glandular extracts would bolster my sexual ability."
"However, I never told my wife I was getting those injections, for I didn't want her to think I was unable to function properly in the boudoir.

"By being gruff and hypercritical, too I figured to divert her attention from my real problem, which was lack of libido."
"For when I omitted terms of endearment and yelled, 'Hey, you,' she would probably start analyzing herself, to see why I no longer was affectionate with her."
"And this ruse would keep her attention focussed on herself so she would be less analytical of my secret problem."
"Alas, the hormone shots are not helping me, so I have even considered making my will and checking out by suicide!"

Libido Suicides
More suicides (and hypochondriacs) are produced by fear of waning sexual ardor than you lay readers ever dream of!
Chronic drunkenness also is likely to start because the victim is so deflated in erotic confidence that he (or she) flees from such terror via the whiskey flask or even drug injection).
Young women often experience the '29 panic when they pass their 29th birthday and face the dreaded 30th, which they imagine will put them "on the shelf."
And that phrase "on the shelf" is interpreted by both men and women as meaning "no longer sexually attractive."
Women formerly went berserk, even literally, after the age of 40 because they had absorbed the age-old delusion that the uterus (womb) is the barometer of a woman's physical appeal to function in the middle 40s, does not prevent a woman from being thrilling and thrilling in the boudoir!

However, many smart men, even with advanced college degrees, still are slaves to false notions regarding sex.
They fail to realize, therefore, that the gonads are organs of "production," as well as "reproduction," so a busy executive can burn up much erotic energy in his tasks at the office.
By the time he passes 40, his former excess of erotic fervor beyond that of his wife, is not as great, so he drops to a 2 to 1 or the opposite sex.

This column exploded that dread a generation ago, so American women are now much less disturbed after the age of 40.
For they have learned the medical fact that the womb is relatively excess baggage, (much like the vermiform appendix on the intestine).
Removal of the womb by hysterectomy or its stoppage of even a 1 to 1 ratio.

But this often sends him into a sex panic, for he remembers the ratio as probably 4 to 1 on their honeymoon.
So he fears he is "slipping" into total impotence. And this very terror then makes him platonic!
For you cannot long emote and also celebrate simultaneously. Worry or dread thus dissipates erotic ardor!
So send for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents. It's much cheaper than sex hormones!
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

China performed effectively in the first part of the World's Championship Match against the United States in Stockholm last summer and pulled away to a small lead—before the Americans unleashed their bombs. In the hand presented today, the Chinese declarer at two diamonds gave a nimble performance to land eight tricks and gain a swing for his team.
North's penalty double of West's one spade overall appears premature—particularly since he holds good support for partner's suit. When East bailed out to one no trump, North finally raised diamonds and the auction subsided.
Robert Hamman, seated West for the United States, opened the queen of spades and declarer put up the ace

Attack Marked In Oregon

SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—A historical marker has been placed at Ft. Stevens Warrenton on the northwest Oregon coast, where a shell fired from a Japanese submarine struck on June 21, 1942. Ft. Stevens was the only U.S. military installation on U.S. soil to come under fire in World War II, and the first post attack since 1812.

Life Has Changed

Ft. Bragg Lunch Time Includes Go-Go Girls

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer
FT. BRAGG, N. C. (AP) — Red-lighted shadows contoured the dancing girl's bare abdomen as it jerked to screaming juke box rhythms. It was lunchtime at Ft. Bragg.

Full-haired, mustachioed junior officers mingled with their balding superiors. Their lunch tables ringed the spotlighted platform where go-go girls perform daily as the soldiers buy sandwiches and beer.

Life on this 135,000-acre Army camp in the sandhills of eastern North Carolina has changed from the days half a century ago when approaching pilots were warned to buzz the landing strip to frighten away the deer before touching down.

As in civilian life, the change has accelerated recently. And behind much of the change in the last three years was the former base commander, Lt. Gen. John J. Tolson.

The 55-year-old West Point graduate signaled his ilk soon after his arrival in 1968. He ordered the enlisted men's club to serve hard drinks to privates. Previously restricted to beer, the GIs now drink scotch and water like their officers. "If they are man enough to go over to Vietnam and get shot at, then why can't they?" Tolson said in an interview in his spacious base office a few days before leaving the post. The gravel-voiced New Bern,

N. C., native relinquished his command last month after promotion to deputy commanding general of the Continental Army headquartered at Ft. Monroe, Va. He was succeeded by Lt. Gen. John H. Hay Jr. Many of the 37,000 soldiers stationed at Ft. Bragg have begun to wonder whether Hay will continue the changes started during Tolson's term as commander. So far, it's too early to tell. Tolson's tour was marked by radical departures in treatment of drug-addicted servicemen, relaxations in Army rules to relieve GIs of "harassment," two appearances by antiwar actress Jane Fonda, a drastic change in the role of the Ft. Bragg-based Green Berets and a grisly, still unsolved triple murder.

In the eyes of many GIs and junior officers, the deepest trace was left by changes in base rules as part of the Modern Volunteer Army, a Nixon administration end-the-draft project which has run into trouble in Congress.

It has run into little trouble at Ft. Bragg. Privates drink beer with their meals if they can afford it. They wear sideburns to the middle of the ear and let their hair grow up to three inches if they like it that way. Perhaps sweetest of all, reveille no longer jars them from sleep—they're on a 40-hour-week.

"Just because you did something in the Army 200 years ago," said Tolson, "that doesn't mean you should do it now."

Tolson had moved to rid Ft. Bragg life of its "unnecessary irritants" even before the Army chief of staff, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, announced Armywide rules changes recently. "Looking out for your men" is an old, partially lost Army tradition that should be revived, Tolson said, draft or no draft.

"Whether it's volunteer, draft or whatever, you want to make the Army so a man wants to be in it."

Even the traditional GI bane—K-P—is partly on its way out. Base authorities plan to hire civilian kitchen help with some of $3 million granted Ft. Bragg to test the volunteer-Army idea.

But the changes were greeted skeptically by many draftees and their sergeants—the draftees because they believe the Army will never attract any volunteers and the sergeants because they fear only incapable men will enlist unless others are forced by the draft.

"When they cut out morning formations, they started P. T. (physical training) at 7:15," said Spec. 4 Ray Bishop, a 25-year-old draftee. "You can't beat it. If it isn't one thing, it will always be another."

"Are they going to go into a college and find a guy with a degree in, say, animal husbandry?" wondered Sgt. David Ehisaroon, "and say, 'Come on, I'm going to pay you $250 a month. Come in the Army?'"

Most outside attention has focused on Ft. Bragg's drug addiction treatment. Addicts are weaned, using drug substitutes, and receive continuing help in an out-patient counseling system.

"Numberswise, it hasn't been fantastic," said Tolson. Six GIs were living in the drug ward during a recent visit and another 140 were getting out-patient help, some regularly, some sporadically.

"But the fact that we were trying to help and were interested, I think, has been a big factor moralewise," he said. "I don't have any statistics to prove it, but there seems to be a definite decrease, from all I can tell, in the use of drugs among the young soldiers here."

Tolson, who pioneered the use of helicopters to build airborne fighting units, also pioneered the antidrug efforts, sometimes bending Army regulations to get the project started. Now the Army plans to extend it.

"If you can develop new ways of doing things in the Army, such as we did with helicopters, why can't you apply it to improving other things, such as making the Army more attractive?" he said.

The general's pleasant, wrinkled face tightened, when asked about the murder on the base of Green Beret Capt. Jeffrey R. MacDonald's wife and two little girls. The young doctor was charged with the killings last year and then released after a sensational preliminary hearing.

MacDonald, now discharged, has accused the Army of bungling the case and failing to follow up.

"It has never been dropped as you might have been led to believe," Tolson said, declining to elaborate.

The recent shift in Green Beret emphasis from cloak-and-dagger to "nation-building," though not directly affecting his command, was another development foreshadowed by Tolson's efforts. As far back as a year ago, he was organizing his unit commanders to "nation-build" in the impoverished rural areas surrounding Ft. Bragg. "Why couldn't we do just as well here in our own country while we were training?" he said. "There were certainly, in my opinion, people who needed the help."

Green Beret commandos have aided rural doctors in nearby Anson County. As part of their training, they also have refurbished an emergency electric power generator and moved a fire whistle for a volunteer company.

When a tornado swept through neighboring Fayetteville, more than 200 Ft. Bragg soldiers were dispatched to aid in the cleanup.

Tolson said the Army has to step softly in these efforts to help civilians, for fear of bruising the feelings of elected authorities or competing against private enterprise that might offer the same services.

But if officers use care and tact, he said, the help for civilians goes a long way to polish the "image of the Army" which Tolson fears has become tarnished in recent years.

"This to us is a great way to break the barriers," he said.

Cuts in the Defense Department budget cramped some of the reforms Tolson planned. The project to hire civilian kitchen help will be limited, for example, because of budgetary restrictions.

Lack of money also resulted in reports from the Pentagon that only two of the 82nd Airborne Division's three brigades were ready to move during the recent crisis in Amman, Jordan.

As officers at Ft. Bragg explained it, the dip in strength resulted from assigning troops to support roles unfilled because of a tight budget. Soldiers repairing trucks could not also carry a rifle, they said.

Census Survey Planned For Area

The Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment and unemployment in this area during the week of April 19.

Mrs. Jean C. Wilson of Rt. 1, Grimesland, will interview households in this area.

The survey is conducted monthly by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor. A scientifically selected sample of households throughout the entire United States is interviewed. The employment and unemployment statistics that are based on the results of this survey provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the Nation.

Facts supplied by individuals participating in the survey are kept strictly confidential by law, and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Southeast Asia Airpower Expected To Be In Thailand

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon sources say U.S. airpower in Southeast Asia probably will be concentrated mainly in Thailand by the summer of next year.

That will be about the time the United States is scheduled to end direct military support of South Vietnamese forces inside their borders.

By maintaining significant elements of airpower in Thailand and afloat in the South China Sea, the United States will be in position to continue hitting enemy supply trails in Laos and Cambodia even after U.S. troops in South Vietnam have been cut to a relatively small advisory force.

Also, American airpower based in Thailand and elsewhere in Asia will be available as a shield for American allies in that area.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Tuesday he expects the United States to maintain an air and naval presence in Asia under the long-range Nixon doctrine after American ground troops are gone from South Vietnam.

That doctrine contemplates that allies will use their ground forces to defend their security while the United States backs them up with air and seapower plus increased aid in money and arms.

Withdrawal of U.S. airpower from Vietnam has been slower than the cutback of American ground troops. This is because the administration's Vietnamization program calls first for replacing U.S. infantrymen with South Vietnamese soldiers in combat while development of the Vietnamese air force moves ahead at a slower pace.

But seven U.S. Air Force fighter bomber squadrons are due to leave starting this summer. By the following summer the United States will have only a few squadrons of strike planes and gunships in South Vietnam.

According to current plans, the United States will retain about a dozen squadrons of attack planes and gunships in Thailand into the summer of 1972 and probably beyond.

In addition, the Air Force will continue to base B52s in Thailand, although the force of giant bombers will be cut from the present 50 to about 28 by next spring.

The two Navy aircraft carriers stationed off Vietnam probably will be reduced to a single vessel carrying about 50 attack aircraft.

The other two carriers in the 7th Fleet will then be available for duty elsewhere in Far Eastern waters.

The United States also has fighter bombers based at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines and is in the process of moving two fighter wings from Japan to Okinawa.

Cans. Bad Guys or Good Guys?

A can is a nice thing when you want a soda or a beer. But it doesn't do much for a landscape or a highway. We know that better than anyone because we make cans. So here's the story. Both sides.

Cans are bad guys.

Cans are all over the streets and highways. Cans cause litter.

Cans are bad guys.

Returnable bottles were better. Return to returnables.

Cans are bad guys.

You use them once and throw them away. They can't be recycled.

Cans are good guys.

Out of all the litter on the streets and highways, over 83% isn't cans.

Still, somebody has to do something. So we've been working with people who are developing a fantastic machine that can actually pick the litter off the roads. We call it the octopus.

One more thing about litter: Please don't. People litter. Not cans.

Cans are good guys.

The can is one of the safest, cleanest, cheapest containers ever invented. If we return to returnables, prices will go up. Because everything is set up for non-returnables, and it will cost money and jobs to change it.

Besides, people don't return returnables. That's why cans happened in the first place.

Cans are good guys.

We've already set up recycling centers for used cans. (All used cans. Steel and aluminum. Beer and soda and food.) More are coming. This costs us money, but it doesn't cost you anything. You bring us the cans and we'll recycle them.

We know it would be easier and better if all you had to do was throw your cans in a garbage pail. So we're supporting the development of automated machines that can pick cans out of the rest of the garbage. And we hope that eventually every can in every city will be recycled and used to make new cans. You won't see it tomorrow. But you will see it. We promise you that.

We have more to lose than you do.

The Can People

We care more than you do. We have to.

No Bands Playing For Returning Vets Of Vietnam War

By JOHN WHEELER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

They trickle home every day, unheralded. They are the Vietnam veterans, the nation's young returned from yet another war.

No bands play, no crowds cheer. At best, the ex-GIs find apathy, except within the close circle of family and friends. And even here the debate sometimes rages across living rooms over whether the conflict and the sacrifices were worth it, or even moral.

As the veterans tell it among themselves, few in the United States care that they braved and passed through a hell where the dying and pain and terror and disgust were as real as in any war anytime.

But the apathy is best, they say. Because at the other extreme are the charges by those who stayed home—and some who went—that the vets were bloody accomplices of the nation in what they call its most shameful hour.

Many of the new veterans—too many, the experts say—are bringing home terrible burdens of guilt, anxiety and frustration, drug addiction and a hatred or denial of American society and its institutions which they say used them so harshly during their service careers.

Most simply want to forget the war. Many want to drop out of society, often with harder drugs, in hippie communes or that ultimate dropout, suicide. The suicide rate for veterans apparently is soaring along with that of other youth in the same age bracket.

Vietnam has been a most untypical war. The veterans who are returning also do not fit easily into stereotypes from the past, even though outwardly the overwhelming majority are slipping back with comparative ease into civilian life. Moreover, their problems are not typical—drugs, joblessness, the feeling that all the death and destruction have accomplished so little.

Donald Johnson, a decorated World War II combat sergeant who now heads the Veterans Administration, said: "The veterans are not only a tremendous natural resource, they are an important and significant force in America if for no other reason than because of their numbers."

More than 2.5 million men were sent to Vietnam, where 45,000 died and 296,000 were wounded. Some 200,000 will be partially or wholly disabled for the rest of their lives.

"About 99 per cent of these guys are going to adapt back into the mainstream of life and become useful citizens," a Veterans Administration source said.

An Associated Press nationwide survey of veterans found its sampling generally supported the VA's optimism. The survey also indicated that fears voiced by Johnson and other experts were well founded—that from a small minority there may come serious problems and even dangers for society.

He new vets when he said, "Vietnam and the Army were unfortunate things that happened on the way to my 25th birthday."

As pleased as they are with the over-all record of veterans so far, psychiatrists, social workers and VA officials say the seeds of danger have been implanted in a minority which is made up largely of blacks.

Johnson said: "The draft calls brought in significant proportions of less educated men and men from the less advantaged families. Unless they now are properly motivated when they come back into the mainstream (of U.S. society), they will be problems for society, real problems."

Johnson and other VA officials emphasize one of their major concerns is for the fate of Negro GIs pouring back into civilian life.

Dr. Charles A. Stenger, head of the VA's Vietnam Era Committee and chief of psychology of the medical, surgical and neurologic hospitals, says: "I am very surprised there is so little acting out (violence) by blacks. They are very bitter in the sense they feel the need to strike back. Black veterans ask themselves if they really count as a person in our society. They served and sacrificed and were more likely to see combat (proportionately) than whites. And then they came back to the ghetto just when they believe things will be different because they have done their bit for their country."

VA officials say jobs are the single biggest issue with today's veterans. Labor Department statistics show unemployment among young veterans is nearly double the national figure. For Negroes, the rate is 16.2 per cent, about triple the national figure.

The job crisis has led to a multifront attack headed by the White House and involving the Pentagon, private business and the Labor Department. Although officials claim some successes with the programs, they have yet to blunt, let alone reverse, soaring unemployment trends.

Under the GI Bill, veterans are entitled to maximum unemployment benefits. Officials say many not only have used this benefit but have exhausted it and have had to resort to welfare. They often live with families, friends or in crash pads and abandoned buildings. Large numbers of vets are so little interested in dealing with the establishment they have not even filed for jobless benefits.

"The problem," one Washington official said, "is that Negroes are too often poorly educated and still run into job discrimination." But another factor enters the picture, too, according to the Concerned Veterans from Vietnam, a national vet self-help organization funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity and headquartered in Chicago. It claims 28,000 members from 29 states. A spokesman said the organization had been told by the Defense Department that 80 per cent of "bad paper," or less than honorable discharges, now are being handed out to Negroes who make up only about 12 per cent of the military.

"Look at it this way," an official said. "A guy goes looking for a job and he's black, not too well educated and carrying bad paper. Now what kind of chance does he have?" The answer appears to be not too much.

Willie, a 21-year-old with an undesirable discharge after going AWOL in the Army, says things just can't go on the way they are for him, his wife and three children. "I got no job, can't get no benefits or into no school. If it goes on like this, I'll have to start ripping off people. Now ain't that a hell of a life goal? But what can I do?" Ripping off is a catch-all street term for holdups, muggings and the like.

Willie spoke in a rap session with four other young men all with "bad paper." They all were bitterly angry with society and their voices rose with their indignation. Alan said, "Eventually they're going to push me into a corner. I know they will. How much can they tack on a guy? I'm not inclined to rip off people, but I'll . . . I haven't made up my mind yet. Not yet."

Concerned Veterans, a predominantly Negro organization, the national VA and others want somehow to channel Willie, Alan and thousands of others in the same situation into productive and socially useful lives. The competition, says Browning, includes the Black Battery, the Black Army in Readiness and other "ghetto guerrilla" organizations which need and seek the ex-GI's military expertise. Browning said many jobless veterans with less than honorable discharges including those with combat experience are joining extremist groups "because they feel there isn't much else."

There were more than 2,400 battles in the Civil War.

BRIGHT Future
in Business

• IF BOYHOOD business enterprise is any indication of a successful adult career, there's a top-flight future in store for your hustling young newspaper carrier. Already he is acquiring and showing so many of the qualities which make for leadership and good citizenship.

As a young fellow in business for himself, your carrier is making spare time pay four-way dividends. He's earning a steady income, saving money, learning business methods, and serving the community at the same time.

ALL OF which, added to his regular schooling, is making him a popular and responsible young businessman today—and giving him a head start toward success in whatever life work he may undertake tomorrow! Does YOUR son have a newspaper route?

Another Day For Husbandless Working Mother

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "Shannon? Shannon! Come on, now, honey. It's time to get up." Linda Stancil cooed softly to her 7-year-old daughter and there was the soft pat-pat-pat sound of a mother's hand on a little girl's pajamas.

It was 6:30 a.m., the start of another day for a husbandless, working mother, one of hundreds of thousands of such women in America.

Mrs. Stancil tries to make the best of things for her daughter and her 6-year-old son, Bryan. She looks a little older than her 28 years and her face sometime displays the effects of the daily pressure of working all day and being a mother and a father to the children at night.

She doesn't smile often and sometimes there are dark circles under her eyes.

Her weekdays start at 6 a.m. Sometimes, she says, she lies still after silencing the harsh buzzer of the alarm clock and longs to remain in the security of sleep where things are quiet and problems are forgotten.

But she gets up, gets herself ready for work and then rides herd on her two children to make certain that they get ready for school on time.

By the time she went to awaken the children on a typical morning, Bryan already was out of bed, standing sleepy-eyed in the doorway of his bedroom with his blond hair awry.

Mrs. Stancil walked into her daughter's bedroom, softly, as mothers do unconsciously, and flicked on the light.

Things move quickly around the Stancil house on weekday mornings.

The radio in Mrs. Stancil's bedroom could be heard clearly through the house. A disc jockey was warming up with practiced cheeriness. The Tijuana Brass came on strong.

"Bryan? How are you doing in there?" asked Mrs. Stancil as she passed by her son's room on the way to the kitchen. "Get dressed, now. Put your pajamas in your drawer and make your bed."

Was it yesterday that Mrs. Stancil was a child herself? Running, laughing, playing on her parents' farm in North Carolina.

"Momma, where's my belt?" Bryan asked from his bedroom. His voice had the same irritation as that of a grownup who has misplaced an item.

"I think it's hanging on the bathroom door," his mother replied from the kitchen as she poured hot water from a pan into a glass coffee pot.

"No, it isn't. That's my skinny one. I mean my black one."

Some of the hot water splashed onto one of Mrs. Stancil's hands and she grimaced.

"Mom-ma," Shannon sang out from her bedroom in a barely audible voice. Then came some mumbles.

"What, Shannon? What did you say?" Mrs. Stancil rubbed ointment onto the injured hand.

"I said why didn't you hem this dress up so I can wear it?" Shannon asked.

"I told you before that's a summer dress," her mother said.

It wasn't too many years ago that this 28-year-old mother was waiting in wild anticipation at her parents' home for her very first school day. Life was like a spring day then.

"Bryan, did you get that bed made yet? If you have, come on in here and get your breakfast."

On her way to check on Bryan's progress, she glanced into her daughter's room and found her sitting listlessly on the edge of the bed, still undressed.

"What's going on here, Shannon?" Patting time was over. "Sit up here and get dressed. You're asking for it, young lady, and I mean it."

A momentary lull in the banter. The radio's song drifted into the bedroom. "I'll taste the wine in Kingston harbor, I'll sing a song in old San Juan, I'll..."

Life is no picnic for Mrs. Stancil now. Dreams, perhaps of gaily papered walls in a new house and of love and warmth, had faded since her marriage at 17.

Her take-home pay of $70 a week and $120 a month for child support comes to about $400 income each month. Her Christmas present from her father was four new tires, and she was ecstatic. It was just what she needed.

"Momma! Shannon won't let me in the bathroom!"

"Well, you'll just have to wait until she's through."

"But she's not doing anything!"

"Yes I am!" came Shannon's angry retort from behind the closed bathroom door.

"Nyah, nyah-nyah, nyah-nyah," came a taunt from Shannon, now in the kitchen with her brother. Wham-bam giggle-suffle ha-ha-ha, came the sounds of a good natured battle.

Earlier, Mrs. Stancil had been asked about her budget.

"What budget?" she asked. It all goes for bills, so there's no need to make out a budget.

When bread and milk runs out a week before payday, she just has to "wait until the paycheck comes in to buy some more."

WHITE IS JOYOUS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The use of white for wedding gowns is a custom with roots in antiquity when white denoted joy. Early Romans wore white at births, feasts and other celebrations. Among the Greeks, the white rose was an emblem of joy. And the Patagonians painted white decorations on their bodies on joyous occasions. On the eve of the wedding ceremony they covered their entire bodies with white.

Church Groups Are At Odds With Business

By DAVID E. ANDERSON WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's religious bodies, partly in response to liberal pressure and partly from a changing idea of stewardship, are finding themselves increasingly at odds with big business.

The confrontation is a result of renewed scrutiny of the tangled web of church investments and their relationship to actions by large corporations within the churches also have begun a campaign aimed at seeking the divestment of stocks now held by church bodies in 17 companies which the dissidents say "have created much death and destruction in Vietnam."

G-M Main Target
General Motors is the target of the most highly organized campaign.

Early in February the Episcopal Church announced it was beginning a drive to gather proxy votes to force the huge automobile company to close its manufacturing plant and other facilities in South Africa.

The church, however, owns only about 12,500 of the more than 285 million outstanding shares of General Motors stock.

Episcopal Presiding Bishop John E. Hines wrote to GM Board Chairman John Roche citing South Africa's policy of apartheid—racial isolation—as the chief reason behind the church's move.

Most denominations have already exercised some discretion about where they invest their money, but until recently their principal scruples were concerned with the liquor and tobacco industries.

Seeks Consistency
The new trend toward a broad social concern is explained by Horace Gale, treasurer of the American Baptist home Mission Societies, in these words:

"If we are concerned with improved housing, then our investment portfolio should include securities related to the improvement of housing. Conversely, we have no business or right to hold defense stocks if we oppose the war."

Church finances are complicated and no one knows for sure the extent of church wealth or where all the investments are. Stock portfolios may be held by the national body, by various agencies and by local congregations.

The current review of church investment policies has focused on four main areas: racial and minority concerns, ecology and environmental matters, defense and war-related companies and the overseas investment policies of large corporations.

Aid Minority Groups
Many denominations have begun large-scale programs to aid minority economic development either through special fund raising projects or the shifting of investments to minority-controlled banks.

Last year, for example, the United Church of Christ announced a new set of guidelines which recommended "high risk, low return" investment policy designed to achieve "maximum social impact."

Dr. Robert V. Moss, president of the two million member church, said the new guidelines meant that instead of looking for the best return "we shall be willing to accept less where a bank is investing in black real estate or black companies or combatting pollution or is accomplishing similar social improvements."

The best organized campaigns, however, tend to be those aimed at influencing big business in its overseas investment policies.

Southern Africa — including South Africa, Rhodesia and the Portuguese colonies of Angola and Mozambique—has been the primary area of concern to churchmen but in recent months campaigns against American business activity in Puerto Rico have also been announced.

Oldest of these campaigns is one by a conference and agency of the United Church of Christ against the Gulf Oil Corp., which is seeking an end to Gulf investments in Angola and Mozambique.

The Ohio Conference of the UCC has called for a boycott of Gulf products and began a national drive for the return of Gulf credit cards because Gulf's investment "provides support for the suppression of the African national liberation movements."

Wide Support Given
The conference has been supported in its actions by the church's Council of Christian Social Action, the Southern Africa Task Force of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. and the African Department of the National Council of Churches.

In the Puerto Rican case, a coalition of six denominations has announced opposition to a copper mining project in the Commonwealth and one—the Episcopal Church—filed proxy resolutions in an attempt to delay the project.

The panel represented agencies of the American Baptist Convention, Episcopal Church, United Church of Christ, United Methodist Church, Lutheran Church in America and the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

After holding hearings in San Juan, Puerto Rico, the panel recommended that American Metal Climax Inc., and Kennecott Copper Corporation postpone mining operations in Puerto Rico.

Minister Knew He Would Get Millions Some Day

PRATTSVILLE, Ark. (UPI)—Jack Buras, minister of music at the Harmony Baptist Church, knew he might inherit millions some day, but it didn't seem real when he lived with his wife and baby daughter at the top of the hill in a small white house.

The shade of the Prattsville water tower cooled the house in the summer. He could look down from the hill in the evening and see the lights from the church across the highway. Behind him, to the south, rich furrows of farm land stretched back for a mile or so until they met the green pine forest.

Life was good and life was simple. Life was teaching the kids to sing, and reading the Bible, popping corn on Saturday night and cooking hamburgers out on the little charcoal grill. Life was close to the land and in the black loam that fed the tomato vines, the corn and peas as well as the tall pines, there was a sense of the eternal.

In Prattsville, population 336 according to the black and white highway sign that marks the city limits on U.S. 270 to the east, everyone is friends and neighbors to everyone else. Everyone stays married to the same person they married in their teens. The strongest thing you can get at the only nightspot in town, Lavoie's Drive-In, is ice cream. Work is done mostly from daylight to dusk and by 10 p.m. most lights are out.

Everyone goes to church on Sunday, coming from through-out Grant County to attend services. It is not hard, living here, to believe absolutely in the Bible or be surprised to find there are others who do not and who would question your sincerity, or mentality for so believing.

So it came as something of a shock to Jack Buras to read some of the things they wrote about him after he inherited $8 million.

He was making $110 a week, good wages by Prattsville standards, when, "I woke up one day and I had all that money."

The money had been there since Jack, now 24, was a child. But it was scarcely a reality, little more than a dream actually. It was a pleasant thought you might carry with you a few minutes as you walked across the highway and up the hill at night to the house after choir practice, stars shining richly through the piney woods like Christmas Tree ornaments. But it was nothing to dwell on long because, "well, it just didn't seem real."

And all that time down in Louisiana the oil wells were pumping it out of the ground, millions and millions of barrels, millions and millions of dollars, every day.

They struck oil in 1955 on an island in the Mississippi River south of New Orleans between the town of Buras and the Gulf Mexico. The town is named after Jack's family, who claimed the island as part of their land. Louisiana said it was the state's and the federal government also got involved.

The case became part of the complicated tidelands dispute and its court history droned on over the years. The oil money was held in escrow. In August, 1970, the U.S. Supreme Court awarded the Buras family $88 million. Jack's father, a totally disabled World War II veteran, got a quarter share, and when he died last November, Jack's share came to $8 million.

It was a natural—the small town preacher who became a millionaire.

First came the newspapermen and after they left the curiosity seekers, and those who wanted money. "When we got 10,000 letters we quit counting," said Buras, who still receives on the average of 1,500 pieces of mail each week. He has seen postmarks from most of the states, Australia, Europe, Kenya, New Zealand and Pakistan.

He moved when people found out where he lives and had to get an unlisted number when his phone started ringing incessantly. Ask someone in Prattsville where Jack Buras lives now and they won't tell you.

"They (some reporters) made me look like a hayseed or a religious fanatic," Buras said in an interview as he drove the '71 Thunderbird that a "friendly" car agency had given him. "One made me look like an absolute fool, like 'here he is boys, come and get him.' And I enjoyed talking to him too. He was a nice fellow."

Buras is a big, gangling man. He hunches down over the wheel of the T-bird. Cattle graze in wet, green pastures inside Prattsville city limits and grey barns stand just off the highway. "I don't know how to say this without sounding like a religious nut or explain to people who are not church oriented, but I see this as a test of my stewardship, of my witness for Jesus."

Dark, thick clouds sent raindrops splattering down on the hood and windshield. "Oh, there are many things I would like to do, people I would like to help, but I am not the answer to the world's financial problems."

He was smoking a cigarette, unusual for a Baptist minister of music. Did he drink too? "Not since I've been married," said Buras, who married Barbara, a Baptist minister's daughter.

But Prattsville is home and the Baptist Church is vocation and he plans to stay here. "There are 43 kids in the choir and usually there are some of them over to our house every Saturday night. We've always got some popcorn and cokes in the refrigerator and we have a color TV. When you minister to youth, you have to minister to them full time."

Jack Buras dropped out of high school and went to Nashville with his guitar. At 14 he was playing backup guitar for stars such as Ernest Tubbs and Little Jimmy Dickens and making more money than he was 10 years later as minister of music at Harmony Baptist.

buying a jet and hiring a pilot to fly him around.

"Some of my friends are looking into this other project for me so I may be president of a third corporation before this day's over." This one is a scheme for drying beans and rice. He would like to buy a pony for his daughter "and a cart for him to pull and take her riding every day."

But his future father-in-law told Buras if he was serious about his daughter he would have to get out of that business of playing guitar in nightclubs. Buras did and married the parson's daughter, got his high school diploma by correspondence while holding down half a dozen odd jobs, and worked his way through Missionary Baptist Seminary in Little Rock, graduating in 1968.

He is also working now on an advanced degree in music at Ouachita Baptist University in Arkadelphia and recently joined the university staff part time as a "development officer" for the School of Music. He wants to raise some money for the school, admits some of it may be his own, but says now that he's rich he can talk with other rich men—possible donors—"on their own level."

The rain stops and Buras has to go give a voice lesson, one of the 23 he gives each week. "There's a lot of things I want to do, but it's bad sometimes," he said slowly. "It gets on your nerves something fierce."

Persian Gulf Trouble Is Brewing That Could Cause Power Struggle

By GERARD LOUGHRAN BEIRUT (UPI)—Trouble is brewing in the Persian Gulf which before the year is up could involve more than a dozen nations in a free-for-all struggle for power and influence.

Only fast coordination of interests by the squabbling, black-bearded sheikhs whose vest-pocket kingdoms border the gulf can avert the threat of a power grab, local political experts believe.

But since this must be achieved before Britain pulls out its 6,000 troops this year, the experts are not optimistic.

A Kuwaiti newspaper noted the reaction of some of the sheikhs when a recent Arab delegation toured the gulf imploring them to form a federation before the Dec. 31 deadline.

Discouraging Replies
One did not bother to come back from a hunting trip to see the delegation. Another sent a series of messages saying "We are studying the matter," and a third said, "Go to Emirate X. When they agree, we will agree."

The emirates have been fighting each other for hundreds of years. Even when they united their pirate forces at the beginning of the 19th Century to attack European trading ships, they continued to fight each other on land.

The Pax Britannica ended piracy, crushed a prosperous slave trade, and forged truces with the sheikhs which changed the name of the area from the Pirate Coast to the Trucial Coast. But the British never managed to stamp out the internecine warfare which ravaged the emirates until a few years ago.

And a union of these long-time enemies has proved impossible.

When Britain's labor government announced more than two years ago it was pulling its troops out of the rich and strategically important gulf area, the sheikhdoms, under British and Kuwaiti pressure, reluctantly began moves to form a federation for their defense and economic well-being.

Involved were Bahrain and Qatar and the seven Trucial States — Abu Dhabi, Dubai, Sharja, Ras al Khaimah, Fujairah, Ajman, and Um el Quwain.

But meeting after meeting proved inconclusive. A Saudi Arabian Kuwaiti initiative to rescue the federal idea has collapsed and with the military withdrawal approaching, the idea seems finally stillborn.

Political analysts believe that the next move will be for Bahrain to proclaim its independence, join the Arab League and seek entry to the United Nations. They expect this to happen by the end of May.

If Bahrain goes it alone, Qatar is expected to follow suit, with Saudi backing, by July. Britain will likely sign a friendship treaty with each of them.

Remote Possibilities
As for the seven, there are two remote possibilities:

—A federation under Sheikh Zaid of Abu Dhabi, one of the world's richest men.

—A "greater oman" in which the Trucial States or some of them link up with the sultanate of Muscat and Oman, newly emerging from a cocoon of medieval isolationism.

Neither of these alternatives is likely, however. Though the departure of Bahrain will lessen problems bedeviling the "nine," there are sufficient enmities left among the "seven" to make union impossible. And Oman is still too backward to take a senior partner's role in a new grouping.

Said a gulf diplomat passing through Beirut: "It's quite on the cards that the year end will come. The British will be out and there will be no federation."

That's when the scramble begins.
