

Cleetwood Is Re-Elected By Board

By JERRY RAYNOR

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood last night had what was perhaps his finest hour in Greenville. More than 200 citizens attending the April school board meeting gave the superintendent a standing ovation following the announcement by Board Chairman Dr. E. B. Aycock that the board had reelected Dr. Cleetwood for another two year term.

The decision was made in an executive session of the school board members - a brief one, lasting less than five minutes. "I appreciate the confidence of the board," Dr. Cleetwood said following the announcement. "I call on the public to support the schools, to set as a priority establishing even more trust and confidence in your schools. Let's move forward together."

It was clear from the beginning of the meeting that the packed audience in the District Court Room of the Court House annex (some had to stand) had come because of their interest in the issue of the superintendent's reappointment.

For several weeks in Greenville, considerable speculation on this issue had evolved around a brief earlier announcement that an overture had been made to Dr. Cleetwood about the possibility of his resigning the superintendent's position.

Dr. Aycock, on reaching the item on the agenda relative to the reappointment, announced the board would go into executive session to make its decision and asked if anyone in the audience had any comments.

Father Hugh C. Mulholland was the first to comment. "Personally, I would like to have the board tell us how they arrived at a decision, or the grounds upon which their decision was made. That is my request to the board."

Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst, a teacher at Rose High School, was the first of more than a dozen teachers and principals to make statements supporting Dr. Cleetwood. "I have already expounded my views to the newspaper. I go on record again, saying I have worked with Dr. Cleetwood. It is not for loyalty to him, but concern for the students that I speak. This is a grave decision, and I want to register my concern."

John Conway Jr., commented on his opposition to the reappointment of Dr. Cleetwood. "Personally, I am interested in progress. I have seen things I'm not pleased with. I feel a change would be of great assistance to our schools. I feel it is my duty to speak for people who don't say much. We need more support of the community, and we feel new leadership is needed now."

Conway was asked by one woman for specific reasons for his opposition. Conway mentioned "I feel a principal should be a principal, this has not been

Accelerated High School Graduation Policy Voted

Four policy matters were considered by the members of Greenville City School board last night, with two adopted and one tabled until a later date, and one waived.

Accelerated high school graduation for students in Greenville School was adopted as a policy matter with definite

Opening Date

Monday, August 30, has been set for the first full day of school for the 1971-72 school year, with Friday, August 27, as pupil-orientation day.

This decision was reached by the City School Board at their April meeting last night.

The action taken last night covers only that portion of the school year through the Labor Day holiday, with the rest of the school calendar, including holidays and the end of school dates to be set at a later meeting.

The reason for adopting only a partial calendar is due to the undetermined status of the proposed extended teachers term which is still to be announced by the North Carolina Department of Education.

guidelines. Until this time, individual requests have been taken up by the board. With the adoption of this policy, a student now has the opportunity to declare his intention to accelerate his studies and graduate in less than four full years. A student is required to declare his intent in this matter by the end of the first six weeks in school of his junior year.

A committee composed of staff members at Rose High will consider such requests and determine what a student would need to do and if it was possible for a student to meet requirements for graduation in a shorter than normal time span. This policy provides an element for appeal in unusual circumstances, where a student could still seek a ruling from the board.

The adoption of this policy will now provide the school administrative personnel authority to handle requests for accelerated graduation without recourse to school board action except for unusual cases.

A second policy matter adopted concerns selection of instructional material for the local city schools by a professional screening board drawn from the school staff. Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the City Schools, explained this policy would govern selection of textbooks and library books, establishing criteria and procedures for the selection.

Board member Harding Sugg pointed out the draft policy statement did not sufficiently clarify who would compose the Media Committee to select material, and asked that the motion to adopt the policy include a paragraph to spell out the composition of such a committee.

Dr. Cleetwood noted this policy has two basic aims - with the selection as the basic thrust of intention, and secondarily, a means by which objection to any material chosen could be channelled.

A third policy matter, that of arrangements for interim education in cooperation with Pitt Technical Institute, was tabled for further study and presentation to the board at a later meeting. Board members expressed concern that the draft, as it is now written, would appear to encourage drop-outs, and asked that the policy draft be revised to show more clearly the true intent of the policy.

Policy decision on the subject of guidelines for field trips and overnight excursions, was mentioned but action waived in view of the fact the committee working on a draft policy has not yet completed a firm outline on the matter.

The board also approved continuation of the Alcohol Education Program. This program, which requires the approval of both the city and county school boards, is underwritten by the Pitt County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board and provides for the services of one instructor who covers all the city and county schools in this program. Mrs. Sandra K. Saue conducts the education program.

Dr. Cleetwood reported the

U.S. Court Busing Order Right Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) - A unanimous Supreme Court held today federal courts may order busing of public school children as a means of desegregating schools.

"Desegregation plans cannot be limited to the walk-in school," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger in announcing the most important ruling of the term.

At the same time, the court held fixed racial ratios are not required in all the schools of a community.

As Burger said: "The constitutional command to desegregate schools does not mean that every school in every community must always reflect the racial composition of the school system as a whole."

However, the court ruled valid the use of a white-black ratio system for schools in Charlotte, Mecklenburg County, N.C.

"The very limited use of mathematical ratios was within the equitable remedial discretion of the district court," said the chief justice.

In all respects the court was unanimous as it ruled on school cases from Mobile County, Ala., and Clarke County, Ga., as well as the Charlotte case.

Burger delivered all five opinions, taking command as his predecessor, Earl Warren, did when the court in 1954 first declared segregation of public school students for racial reasons was unconstitutional.

Among the court's findings was that the North Carolina antibusing law is unconstitutional because it prevents implementation of desegregation plans. The law forbade assignment of students on account of race or for the purpose of creating racial balance. Additionally, it prohibited "involuntary" busing as well as the use of public funds for such busing.

Said Burger: "if a state-imposed limitation on a school authority's discretion operates to inhibit or obstruct the operation of a unitary school system or impede the disestablishing of a dual school system, it must fall; state policy must give way when it operates to hinder vindication of federal constitutional guarantees."

The courtroom was packed, as usual. Spectators included springtime tourists who listened impassively to Burger's 15-minute announcement of the rulings. All nine members of the court were on the bench. Five of their clerks stood in a side passageway listening intently to the momentous rulings.

As if to train a special light on the rulings the court announced no others. The justices proceeded immediately to the hearing of a draft case involving a Danish citizen.

Four Convicts Escape Road Gang; Hostages Are Found, Released

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) - A prison official said today that what had first appeared to be the escape of 11 convicts from a road gang with a guard and highway foreman as hostages was really the escape of only four, who also held the other seven prisoners hostage.

Maj. Joseph Brooks, a regional officer of the state Department of Corrections, said this became clear when the guard and foreman, along with seven prisoners, were found locked in the prison van from which the other had fled.

The four who are being sought after Monday's break in Sampson County have a shotgun taken from the guard, Joe Strickland, officially called a corrections officer, and a pistol taken from the highway foreman, Gordon Simmons, officials said.

A lieutenant at the Sampson County prison camp had said 11 prisoners overpowered Strickland and Simmons and escaped with them in a prison van, a yellow Highway Department truck with a wire cage.

Maj. Brooks said the four being sought parked the van in a desolate wooded area of Cumberland County, adjacent to Sampson County in southeastern North Carolina, and left at nightfall in a parked car they had stolen.

The four still at large were identified as: -Chamberland Able of Fayetteville, N.C., serving 8-10 years for robbery.

-Harry Green of Kingsville, Ala., 20-25 years for kidnaping.

-Ernest Jones of Hopkinsville, Ky., 6 years for robbery with a dangerous weapon.

-Terry Sykes of Jackson, Miss., 5 years for escape.

The convicts wore khaki pants and jackets, with a nameplate on the jacket.

Student Leaders To 'Try' Dr. Jenkins For Gross Neglect

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Student leaders at East Carolina University plan to hold a "public trial" of university president Leo W. Jenkins on Thursday. He has dismissed it as a publicity stunt.

Glenn Croshaw, president of the Student Government Association, said Monday that Dr. Jenkins was guilty of "gross neglect of the student body." He also said, in a speech before the Student Legislature, that Jenkins had given a distorted account of campus affairs to the board of trustees.

The campus has been agitated over student demands for more visiting hours in dormitories housing students of the opposite sex. Such visits had been allowed, but only on weekend evenings during specified hours.

Discontent among students swelled into violence recently when university officials asked police to break up a crowd of chanting, rock-throwing students who had gathered in front of Jenkins' home.

Jenkins has maintained that the student demands cannot be met under his mandate from the trustees. At the command of the trustees, he suspended all visiting between men's and women's dormitories after the disruption.

He said Monday, after an announcement that the "trial" would be held on the campus mall, that Croshaw was "just a kid who wants to get his name in the paper."

Jenkins said Croshaw was upset because the board of trustees had not met as quickly as he wanted to consider campus issues. "He thinks the board of trustees should meet every time he wants them to, and of course they won't."

Whale Bit Her

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) - Annette Eckis holds no grudge against Shamu, the 4,000-pound killer whale that bit her while she was trying to ride the mammal at Sea World marine park.

"I want to go up and kiss Shamu when I get out of here," the attractive 22-year-old brunette said Monday night at a hospital where her right leg was treated for bruises and puncture wounds.

"She was just playing, I am sure," Miss Eckis said. "If she had wanted to, she could have bitten my legs off."

Two trainers had to pry open the mouth of the 17-foot whale Monday to free Miss Eckis' leg.

Miss Eckis was learning to ride Shamu for a show scheduled to open late in May. She had gone around the tank on Shamu's back three times before she slipped off.

Kent Burgess, director of training at the marine park, agreed that Shamu was merely being playful.

"We think the whale was just playing and trying to keep Ann in the tank," Burgess said. "The whale just held her in its mouth and didn't make any attempt to pull her under or bit her."

Other trainers who have ridden Shamu during the past five years wore wet suits. Miss Eckis wore only a bikini and Burgess said the different costume might have attracted Shamu's attention.

House Nearing Final Action On New Drinks Bill

RALEIGH (AP) - The House was scheduled to take final action today on a bill to authorize a liquor by the drink referendum in the resort areas around Southern Pines.

The bill was tentatively approved on a 53-44 vote Monday night despite warnings from opponents that it would open the door to statewide sales of mixed beverages.

During the brief debate Monday night, Rep. Clyde Auman, D-Moore, sponsor of the measure, stressed heavily the fact that the bill is a local bill. Local measures traditionally are not questioned or opposed by legislators from other counties.

But the two representatives who spoke against the bill said that it was no local matter at all.

"This is no local little innocent bill," said Rep. Joy Johnson, D-Robinson. "It is statewide in nature. If you pass it, you will immediately see other counties, towns, communities coming in. Do not open the door with Moore, or there will be more to follow."

Rep. Sam Bundy, D-Pitt, told the House that approval of Auman's bill would represent a complete negation of the action the group took last month when it defeated a statewide liquor by the drink bill by a 59-48 vote.

Auman's bill is similar to the statewide measure that was killed. It would allow sale of mixed drinks in licensed Class A restaurants with a seating capacity of at least 50 and in motels, hotels and private clubs.

The bill calls for an election before Sept. 15 in four townships in the county - Mineral Springs, McNeill's, Little River and Sandhills. The townships include all the municipalities in the county except Carthage and Robbins and include 65 per cent of the county's population.

Auman got through several amendments before the bill passed. One amendment provides that if the voters approve the bill, another election could be held in 12 months to see if they still want it. Another amendment would allow the sale of liquor in miniature bottles.

334 New Voters On Books

A total of 250 new voters registered on Saturday, April 17, the final of three Saturdays set aside for voter registration at two points, the main Fire Station and Elm Street Park Gymnasium.

William Moore, City Clerk and Monitor of Elections for the municipal elections, reports that as of Saturday, a total of 334 new registrations had been recorded. This, he notes, brings the total number of registered voters on the books to 9,059.

The registration books are open until midnight Friday at the homes of the registrars. Moore stated their names and addresses were carried in legal notices in The Daily Reflector on April 2 and 9, and also that anyone seeking this information can contact the city hall, telephone 752-4137.

Registration books will close for the May 4 elections at midnight Friday, Saturday, April 24, is challenge date in regard to registration entries on the registration books.

elections. Andrews said the caucus was also told that Gov. Bob Scott was for the bill and had been all along.

Scott's office released a statement from him Monday night denying Republican charges that the governor opposed the primary bill because of his commitment to the presidential bid of Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine. State GOP Chairman Jim Holshouser said Saturday that the bill was "probably going to die" because Muskie followers opposed it. "Muskie apparently favored the bill at first, but now he feels he has the politicians locked up and is afraid to take it to the people," Holshouser told a news conference.

Scott said the charges were "absolutely false in the context presented by the Republicans." He said he thought the bill would pass and that it would provide a better means for citizens to express themselves on presidential candidates.

Andrews also denied knowledge of any attempts by the Scott administration or Muskie followers to kill the bill. He said he and other House members who voted for the bill Wednesday then voted to delay it Thursday just wanted more time to consider it.

He also said he felt it was "entirely appropriate" for the Democratic members of the House to talk the bill out among themselves, since the bill will affect how the state's delegation to the party convention votes.

The bill would commit party delegates to the national nominating convention to support the top four vote-getters in the primary, based on their percentage of the over-all popular vote. Delegates would be released from the commitment after the first convention ballot.

N.C. Presidential Primary Backers Confident Of House Approval

RALEIGH (AP) - Backers of a presidential primary bill emerged from a Democratic caucus Monday night confident that the measure will win final House approval today.

North Carolina's Democratic House members met for more than an hour behind closed doors after the Monday night legislative session to discuss the fate of a bill to create a presidential preference primary in the state starting in 1972. No votes were taken and Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chatham, House majority leader, said that the meeting left "each individual member as he was before, free to vote as he pleases."

But two backers of the bill - Reps. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, and Gus Speros, D-Roberson - said the majority of the 25 to 30 legislators who spoke in the caucus favored the bill.

"I think the voting will come out essentially as it did before," Speros said.

The bill had made a quick trip through the Senate and passed the House on second reading by a 71-29 vote last Wednesday. But its progress was abruptly halted when some Democrats had second thoughts and voted to delay final action until this week.

Democratic Party Chairman Gene Simmons, said Friday he had supported the bill "with reservations" but had changed his mind after studying it closely. The House delay in the bill came after Simmons made his reservations known.

A proposal by Simmons, that the primary date set in the bill be changed from May 2 to Feb. 15 received some discussion in the caucus, but Andrews said no consensus was reached.

Simmons had said the change would avoid conflict with regular state primaries and would keep presidential politics out of state and local

Infantry Moves In A Shau Valley

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese infantry battalions have finally moved into the A Shau valley but no significant contact with the enemy was reported today.

Associated Press Correspondent J.T. Wolkerstorfer reported from Lavang, the forward command post for the operation, that at least one battalion of about 400 troops from the U.S. 101st Airborne Division and sizable South Vietnamese units had been committed to the A Shau operation.

For the past week, U.S. and South Vietnamese reconnaissance teams have been operating in the 30-mile-long valley trying to find enemy targets to attack. Allied firebases have been set up all around the jungled valley to support the operation, which is named Lam Son 720, the successor to the South Vietnamese invasion of Laos, which was Lam Son 719.

The 101st Airborne is providing both helicopter and ground support for the operation.

Disturbed By Govm't Dossiers

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's Liberal government admitted in the House of Commons Monday that federal police probably maintain files on Cabinet members, and former Conservative Prime Minister John Diefenbaker demanded "the fullest investigation."

The government came under fire following a statement by Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island that the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have dossiers on all Cabinet ministers. Liberal Terrence Murphy asked whether Campbell was correct.

Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer replied that the RCMP treated members of Parliament and other citizens alike. He said there probably are dossiers on Cabinet ministers who have held sensitive government jobs since security checks are made before such appointments. But he said he knew of no policy calling for dossiers on members of Parliament, and he had seen none since becoming solicitor-general December.

Goyer told another questioner, Conservative David MacDonald, he did not know whether it was RCMP practice to photograph and monitor public meetings attended by members of Parliament and civic officials. He added that police action depended on the situation, and there was no systematic policy directed against Canadian citizens.

Suicide Try Is Charged

A charge of attempted suicide has been preferred against a 19 year old youth who was found early this morning in his car at a local motel parking lot.

According to Greenville Police, Gary Winford Garmon of Rt. 3, Connelly Springs was found in his car around 5 a.m. at the Holiday Inn with the engine running, windows up and a garden hose running from the exhaust pipe into the vehicle.

Investigating officers reported that a motel employee discovered the youth in the back seat of his (Garmon's) car and was able to wake him up and get him out of the automobile. The employee told officers that Garmon then cut the motor off.

When police arrived soon after, the youth had left his car and was found around 7 a.m. in his motel room, officers reported.

Garmon, who has been a student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is being held in Pitt County Jail and a hearing has been set for May 5 in District Court here.

Pressed by Diefenbaker for an "unequivocal" reply to the question whether the government "has launched a system of looking into the lives of individuals," Goyer replied that there was no general policy on this.

Drug Abuse In Combat 'Rare'

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate subcommittee staff report said today drug abuse is on the upswing in the armed forces but rarely occurs in combat.

"We did not find the use of drugs had a significant, direct impact upon the military mission of the armed services," said investigators for the subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics who visited bases in the United States, Europe and the Far East.

services and the one with the most draftees, the problem has been increasing in recent years and "a growing proportion of servicemen are entering the service with a history of drug use."

Hughes said the military has not come to grips with the problem of effective treatment for users of hard drugs like heroin, whether they acquired the habit before or after entering the service.

As a result, he said, "thousands of unrehabilitated addicts and abusers are being cast back onto civilian society to be cared for, usually with the added burden of less-than-honorable discharge."

"While we were made aware of rare, isolated instances where marijuana had been used in combat situations in Vietnam, we saw no evidence that any mission or operation had been jeopardized by drug abuse," they said.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said the report shows the military is "confronted with a critical and epidemic problem" of drug abuse.

His conclusion was buttressed by two House members, Reps. Morgan F. Murphy, D-Ill., and Robert H. Steel, R-Conn., who said in Saigon Monday: "The problem has reached epidemic proportions."

Sent by the House Foreign Affairs Committee to Turkey, Iran, Laos, Thailand and South Vietnam to look into the military drug problem, the two congressmen estimated 10 to 15 percent of the U.S. troops in Vietnam—30,000 to 40,000 men—use high-grade heroin.

The Senate subcommittee staff said there is a "paucity of hard data" on drug abuse in the armed forces but concluded that in the Army, the largest of the

2 Collisions Here Monday

Damages totaling over $1,000 resulted from two traffic accidents that were investigated in the city Monday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage occurred in a mishap at the W. Third Street intersection with Ford Street involving cars driven by Jack Jolly Dail of Rt. 1, Winterville and Benjamin Adrian Currence of Box 567, Rowland.

Officers, who charged Currence with driving under the influence and failing to yield right of way, estimated damage at $500 to the Dail car and $200 to the vehicle driven by Currence.

No injuries were reported in the 6:30 p.m. accident.

Cars driven by Phyllis Jane Stancil of Rt. 2, Ayden and George Thomas Woolard of Windsor Drive, Rocky Mount were damaged in a 4:50 p.m. wreck on Evans Street near its intersection with Seventh Street.

According to investigating officers, Phyllis Stancil was charged with failing to see a safe movement could be made. No one was reported injured.

Damage was estimated at $200 to each car involved.

Tied And Robbed Woman Aged 82

RALEIGH (AP) — Officers were searching today for four bandits who hog tied an 82-year-old woman and shoved her under a bed Monday while they ransacked her house in rural Wake County.

Miss Alma Arnold told officers she managed to free herself, slipped out of the house and hid in a corn crib until the robbers left.

Her brothers declined to say how much money the bandits took.

Officers Named By Jay-C-Ettes

The Greenville Jay-C-Ettes met at Parkers' Barbecue Wednesday night for their monthly meeting and annual elections.

Mrs. Tom Reese was elected to serve for the coming year as president of the club. Other officers are: Mrs. Dave Gordon, vice president; Mrs. Allen Adams, recording secretary; Mrs. John Adams, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Glenn Fisher, reporter.

Elected to serve as members of the Board of Directors are Mrs. Rick Miller, Mrs. Bob Turner, Mrs. Roger Collins, Mrs. Donald Parrot, Mrs. Bill Dansey, Mrs. Wallace West and Mrs. Doug Mewborn. Candy Sale co-chairman will be Mrs. Dallas McPherson and Mrs. Ralph Martin.

Honored guests for the dinner meeting were past Jay-C-Ette presidents Mrs. Donald McGlohon, Mrs. Norwood Whitehurst and Mrs. Cecil Heath. The new Miss Greenville, Miss Pam Kilpatrick was also a guest.

Mrs. Mike Peters was named chairman of the Newcomers Party to be held in May. The card party will take the place of the regular meeting and is to honor all the Jay-C-Ettes who have joined the club during the past year.

Outgoing president, Mrs. Gene Prescott, welcomed new members, Mrs. Steve Springer, Mrs. Martin Lassiter and Mrs. William Grantmeyer. Mrs. Harold Broughton was a guest for the meeting.

In endorsing the concept, commission members stipulated their endorsement was contingent on the provision that such a park be constructed and operated in a safe and wholesome manner.

No official action was taken on any issue last night at the meeting due to lack of a quorum. The Recreation Commission meeting held last night was in lieu of their regular meeting on the second Monday night in April, which this month had been postponed as the second Monday was Easter Monday.

Gourmet Finds Delicacies From Groundhog's Lair

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer
Back in 1958, when some self-styled gourmets were making a thing of munching chocolate-covered ants and fried grasshoppers, Elaine Light of Punxsutawney, Pa., set them back on their heels with a cookbook containing recipes for roast groundhog.

"Those groundhog recipes admittedly repelled people," recalled Mrs. Light. "But the other 750 odd international dishes attracted them, and the book now is in its sixth printing."

The book, titled "Cooking With The Groundhog," established Mrs. Light as a gourmet cook to be reckoned with. It also made her something of a celebrity in Punxsutawney whose main distinctions had been its unpronounceable name and its annual groundhog viewing ceremony.

"It was natural to tie the legend in with a money-raising project when I undertook to do a cookbook for the local hospital," said Mrs. Light.

"Cooking was a necessity as well as a hobby when I came to Punxsutawney. To eat well, you had to cook at home. Besides, I did not like bridge and was too lazy to play golf."

Mrs. Light took a number of culinary courses, including the famed Cordon Bleu in Paris.

"One hazard of being billed as a gourmet cook," she said, "is that sooner or later your children outgrow hamburgers and pizza and demand gourmet dishes."

When I spoke with Mrs. Light, she was preparing a farewell dinner for her 18-year-old daughter, Melanie, returning to college after the holidays.

"I am preparing duckling—a combination of Bigarade and Montmorency with Hawaiian overtones," she said. "If it turns out all right, it will make the next edition which will have a complete game chapter."

A decade after her first book appeared, Mrs. Light published another cooking manual titled "Gourmets & Groundhogs" which contains some fascinating recipes ranging from a delectable Hungarian cheese mix called Liptauer Kase to a homespun recipe for frosted brownies. Copies of the book are available for $3.75 postpaid from Gourmets & Groundhogs, Punxsutawney, Pa. 15767.

For a preview, here is Elaine Light's recipe for Crumbed Butterfield Leg of Lamb, one of her favorites.

CRUMBED BUTTERFLIED LEG OF LAMB
5-6 pound leg of lamb
2 cloves garlic mashed
Fresh ground black pepper
1 teaspoon Oregano
Juice 1 lemon
2 shallots minced
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
1 tablespoon parsley
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Split lamb lengthwise and spread flat like a thick steak. Combine garlic, salt, pepper, oregano and lemon juice into a paste. Rub mixture into the boned lamb on both sides. Let stand at room temperature 1 hour. If lamb is lean, drizzle olive oil over the top. Place in uncovered roasting pan. Roast at 450 degrees for 20 minutes or until lamb is well browned.

Reduce heat to 325 degrees. Just before lamb is done, saute shallots in butter and oil until transparent. Stir in crumbs, parsley and cheese. Spread this mixture over lamb 10 minutes before meat is done. Lamb best slightly pink, says Mrs. Light.

Should serve six people and goes well with a Bordeaux St. Emilion.

Wash gelatin stains in cool suds. Avoid hot water which is likely to "set" these stains.

'Sorry I Found Out About Other Woman'

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Two questions. Why does a wife want to know if there is another woman? Isn't the old fashioned way better? [I mean, not knowing.]

I suspected my husband had somebody else, so I investigated and found out I was right. She's a coworker. Not young, but middle-aged like us. When he knew I was wise, he told me it didn't mean anything, and he begged for my forgiveness and understanding, and said it was all over.

I took him back and believed him. I am not fat or ugly, and I always worked hard at being everything a good wife should be. After what happened, I tried even harder. I got on The Pill and turned on the sex appeal. I thought I had him back again when I accidentally found a love letter in his pocket. Now I know it wasn't me who had him so turned on.

He still stays with me, but I know he is seeing her, too. I was happier not knowing. Now I'm sorry I ever tried to find out. It does help to write to you, Abby. There is no one to talk to.

DEAR SADDER: Don't blame yourself for "finding-out." Your intuition told you. Your investigation merely confirmed it. If ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise. But ignorance is never bliss. A woman wants to know where she stands, even if she's standing outside. The truth hurts, but a lie hurts more.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't use my name, but DO print this because I think it needs an airing:

I recently sent out invitations which read, "Cocktails and Buffet, 7 p. m."

I thought this clearly indicated that we expected our guests to stay for the evening. Everything went fine thru the cocktails, then suddenly there was a couple-by-couple exodus, with the following excuses: [1] We have to play bridge later; [2] We have to go to a company party; [3] We left our children home alone; [4] We promised to stop by at another party; [5] We didn't know you meant for us to stay the whole evening.

Those who remained felt uneasy. We felt deserted. I think people should choose between invitations and not try to double up at the hostess's expense. What do you think?

—LET DOWN

DEAR LET: I agree with you. If one has a conflict, he should telephone the hostess in advance and ask permission to leave early. But to accept an invitation and exit prematurely is rude.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widower who is engaged to marry a woman who has been widowed twice.

She has MY picture sitting on her mantle right between the pictures of her two deceased husbands. She says that after we are married, if I want to put a picture of my deceased wife up there, it will be all right with her.

I don't see the point of having such a gallery, but if you think it's okay, I'll go along with it.

—PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Whose pictures are displayed there is a matter of personal preference. If it gives your lady a feeling of comfort or pleasure to have the likenesses of The Old Guard around, and if it's okay with you, then it's okay with me!

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to tell "HATES PIANO" who is 13 years old something. I'm 15, and I've taken piano for 10 years. My parents forced me to take lessons, too, and I HATED it and begged to quit. I really didn't hate piano. I hated my teacher. She made me sit on a hard bench and kept saying, "Don't watch your hands—watch the music!"

After fighting with my folks and crying a lot for six years I changed teachers. That was the turning point of my musical education. I LOVED my new teacher, and I realized I loved music, too. Now I could kick myself for ever wanting to quit.

I keep hearing older people say, "I'm sorry I didn't stick with my piano lessons." Now I know what they mean because I'm glad I did.—"LOVES PIANO" . . . AND CHOPIN AND BEETHOVEN, AND MRS. HARRIS

To keep knives sharp, cut food on a wooden cutting board, not on a metallic or enameled surface. Avoid leaving knives in hot water. The best place for storage is a wooden wall rack. Knives stored in a drawer can be a safety hazard and such storage also dulls them.

Curls, Frizzles, Waves Add Height To Hairdos

By ALISON LERRICK
PARIS (AP) — What adds more to the height than four-inch heels? Hair.

The Syndicate of the Haute Coiffure Francaise, which recently showed its head for summer, has put so many curls, frizzles and waves on top of it that it adds four inches on top, not to mention another few on each side, for a head that makes a real impression.

The "Angel" made an exit circa 1941 and is now resurrected for the first time since. And everyone knows angels wear permanents, just right for dunking in the ocean and springing back into shape. But the permanent now is personalized, with every lock immobilized for good according to its character.

"Shake your head, girls. Look how the hair is alive!" exclaimed Serge Stern, Syndicate president, beckoning at his bakers dozen of angels — models.

But contrast is the most angelic quality, both in length and color. The head is divided into three concentric circles, with the bangs short and floating up or down, depending on whether you're fond of your forehead and the six-inch "halo" projecting behind them. Inside it is another short patch, just beanie-size, which ideally should be in a different color, like red with gold, to make the head truly "three-dimensional."

"This is the hair that suits the 40s clothes," explains Stern. "Besides, only true professionals can do it," thinking of the business havoc wrought by the craze for "lank" swinging hair.

As for the models, who gained at least 10 years in age each with their mature halos, "I suppose it's attractive," said one, completely without conviction.

Suburban Beauty Hints from Clara Garris

Health Warning

Limp, unmanageable hair may be a health warning. Lack of body in your hair, just like washed-out, pale coloring under the nails, may be an ill health sign.

Check your diet and find out from your doctor if you're in good physical condition. Also, make sure you're getting adequate sleep and exercise. Your daily hair-care program, such as brushing the hair to perk up circulation and distribute the natural oils is also important to take a special look into.

Remedies that may help cure unmanageable hair due to lack of body include a proper hair cut, hair coloring, special permanents, and special lotions. However, if lack of body persists, you may have a real health deficiency, so heed that warning and get straightened out.

Still Higher Rates Are Probable

Liability insurance rates for North Carolina drivers are certain to go up as a result of the Supreme Court ruling upholding the 1969 ruling by Insurance Commissioner Edwin Lanier for an increase of 2.8 per cent.

But from a realistic standpoint, Tar Heel motorists may find their liability insurance rates going up considerably more than the 2.8 per cent in the relatively near future. Since the ruling handed down in 1969 by Commissioner Lanier, insurers have made an additional request for a 14.1 per cent hike in rates and are expected to make a request for a further increase within the next few months.

Hearings on the 14.1 per cent increase made last July were delayed by Commissioner Lanier until the pending court case had been decided. In the wake of the court decision he has announced hearings on that request will commence late this month.

When his ruling on this request will come and whether it will again be challenged in the courts by the Attorney General's office or some other party remains to be seen. In all probability another round of rate hikes will be asked before the 1970 request is resolved.

While North Carolina motorists oppose liability rate increases, it is obvious to most people that the rates have a direct relationship to the loss of life, limb and property caused by traffic accidents. There is little real prospect that liability insurance rates will level off until some effective means can be found to reduce the costly losses resulting from traffic accidents.

Arts Have A Home In East

By BRYAN HAISLIP
GREENVILLE — Seen through unaccustomed eyes eastern North Carolina in spring has a fresh, day-to-day delight taken for granted by the native vision.

When the eyes are those of an artist, the beauty and wonder is all the more intense.

"We can't believe it," said Edward Reep, a New Yorker who went west and now is at East Carolina University as an artist-in-residence. "After watching Los Angeles deteriorate into a smog-filled jungle; this is like living in the country all the time."

His wife smiled agreement. "The azaleas and dogwood are so lovely," she said. "I events. Artists and craftsmen are busily producing pictures, pottery, textiles — a variety of art objects of commendable quality.

Market Gives Promise
Importantly, there's a market for art. Sale of his paintings since settling in Greenville has pleasantly surprised Speight. He's found North Carolinians not only interested in seeing his paintings, but in owning them. "It's been about ten times better than I expected," he remarked.

His wife has kept busy at her easel, too. She is Sara Blakeslee, a portrait painter whose talent earns the supreme recognition of a brisk flow of commissions.

Of course; the ECU impact is not limited to its neighborhood. After all, students come from all over the state and other states. The institution's influence is carried to national art circles by the reputations of Speight and Reep.

Nor is it only creativity in the visual arts which is fostered at ECU; music and literature receive equal attention. Dr. Gregory, winner of international awards for composition, is composer-in-residence. Ovid Pierce, prize-winning novelist and an eastern North Carolinian, is writer-in-residence.

Expanding Campus
The campus has a new $1.7 million music building, and awaits the outcome of legislative action on its request for a $4 million School of Art building.

The creative spark goes right to the top. Dr. Leo Jenkins; ECU president, takes up the brush in spare time. His customary practice is to use his paintings as gifts to friends of the University.

An administrator sympathetic to the arts was a factor in his decision to cross the continent, said Reep. Climate and courtesy made two big impressions as the Reeps adjusted to a new locale.

"When we settled in Los Angeles, you could see snow on the mountains 50 miles away," Reep said sadly. "We can really appreciate the air here, and the atmosphere of freshness."

One impression he brought along had to be discarded early. "I had been led to believe students here would be less than I was accustomed to. Not true. I've seen no poverty of ideas or talent," he asserted.

"The kids are receptive as blotters. They're aware of what's going on, not bothered by their parents' hang-ups. And they're polite, not jaded. That's really something nice to run into."

Another Project Soon To Begin Construction

It appears that another highway project for the Greenville area will soon be under construction.

State Highway officials got permission last week to proceed with the dual lane Eastern bypass at Greenville and it is expected that bids will be taken in June.

Dual laning of Greenville Boulevard from Frog Level to Memorial Drive and from Charles Street to the Washington Highway are already underway. Bids have also been let for dual laning of Tenth Street and planning is moving along for dual laning of Charles Street.

Soon the greatest amount of State Highway work ever for the Greenville area will be underway. All of these projects are badly needed and it is good to see them moving so well.

Top Defender Of Lt. Calley

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — On the evening of March 31, as he prepared to intervene in the Calley case, President Nixon was on the long distance telephone from San Clemente not only checking Congressional sentiment but actually seeking to whip up opposition to the court martial verdict.

That puts Mr. Nixon in an even more compromising position than he previously had seemed to hold. The incredible fact is that three days before his announcement that he personally would review the murder conviction of Lt. William L. Calley, Jr., he was promoting Congressional speeches in Calley's behalf. In effect, the final appeals judge is also the top defense attorney.

On March 31, two days after Calley's conviction, Mr. Nixon began heavy use of the long distance telephone—as he frequently does when away from the White House. We earlier reported his call to House Minority Leader Gerald Ford asking for a check of Congressional sentiment. Even more shocking was a call that same evening to a powerful committee chairman in the House: a conservative Democrat who has been an outspoken Vietnam hawk.

"What do you think about the Calley case?" asked the President. The Congressman replied that Calley was a pathetic case and probably should never have been an officer. Nevertheless, the chairman told the President, he always had been against the court martial proceedings. Now, he favored a sentence much more lenient than life imprisonment.

"Well, then," replied the President, "why don't you get out and talk that up with some of the other members?"

The conclusion drawn by the chairman: the President had decided to grant clemency and wanted in-fluent figures on Capitol Hill to whip up sentiment for that move among their colleagues. Willing to help, the chairman told a meeting of Democratic deputy whips the next day that "high officials" were moving toward clemency for Calley.

Thus, Mr. Nixon did not merely respond to Congressional uproar over the Calley verdict. Having made a decision for intervention which has profoundly shocked the Army officer corps, he then helped build the uproar as a pretext for intervention.

Muskie's Political
John F. (Jack) English, Democratic National Committeeman from New York, quietly slipped into a fulltime niche at Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's Presidential campaign headquarters in Washington last Tuesday—thereby filling a need there for an experienced professional politician and, at the same time, making an organized drive for the nomination by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy seem all the more probable.

English served both of Kennedy's older brothers and is also close to Ted. When Muskie's men first asked him aboard last December, English went to Stephen Smith, Kennedy's brother-in-law and campaign manager. Hold tight for a while, said Smith. More recently, when English decided to join Muskie, Smith asked him to delay still another week. Finally, Smith implied there was no use waiting any longer. English is convinced Kennedy will make no move.

Crewcut, aggressive Jack English, 44, is badly needed by a Muskie campaign heavy on policymakers and short on politicians. His nationwide contacts with Democratic Professionals are excellent. But the Muskie camp may be disappointed in its hopes that English, who supported first Robert F. Kennedy and then Eugene McCarthy in 1968, (Continued On Page 5)

An Instance Of Injustice

MIAMI, Fla. — On the night of July 31 - August 1, 1963, two white attendants at a Mo-Jo service station in Port St. Joe, Fla., were kidnapped, murdered, and robbed. Precisely four weeks later, on August 28, two Negro men were sentenced death for the crime. There is overwhelming evidence to suggest that the defendants are absolutely innocent. A white man, indeed, has confessed to the slaying; this man's mistress has corroborated his voluntary confession in a statement that carries a bell-like ring of truth. Yet Freddie Pitts and Wilbert Lee still are languishing in Raiford Prison. They have been there for more than seven years. In the view of Gene Miller, Pulitzer prize winning reporter for the Miami Herald, the two men are victims of a gross injustice compounded by every bad aspect of criminal law in the bad old days of the rural South. The case cries out for national attention.

Unhappily for the two defendants, their imprisonment carries no trappings of martyrdom or of glamor. They are not identified with a single popular cause. Pitts was a 19-year-old soldier at the time of the crime. Lee, then 28, worked as a wood pulper. Against the bright plumage of an Angela Davis or a Bobby Seale, these are a pair of dun sparrows. And in August of 1963, they were helpless before the law.

There was testimony to indicate that the defendants did in fact visit the Mo-Jo station sometime before midnight on the night in question. They were involved in an argument with the white attendants over use of a restroom. But except for the erratic and contradictory testimony of one woman, Willie Mae Lee, there was no evidence to support the defendants' guilt — no evidence, that is, except a "confession" not worth the paper it was extorted on.

The Pitts - Lee case has everything: everything bad. The two men made no effort whatever to flee from Port St. Joe on the day after the crime. They made themselves freely available to police — as it turned out, (Continued On Page 5)

Other Editors Say After We Leave

(Wilson Times)

What has been talked and anticipated is happening. After the Supreme Court declared unconstitutional the additional one-cent sales tax added to the present three-cent levy, the counties with the tax were in a financial plight. The money was allocated and in many cases spent in the few counties with the additional tax, Mecklenburg and Charlotte, being the best example.

Then, the General Assembly passed a bill which will stand up in the Supreme Court. This bill gives the county commissioners the right to pass the additional one-cent sales tax. But if the county puts the issue to a vote and it is voted down, then that is final. If a referendum is not held and the county commissioners levy the additional tax, to be shared by the county and municipalities in the county, on a pro rata basis, then it is law.

There is little doubt that an additional one-cent sales tax would not pass if put to a vote of the people. And no taxes of this nature should be levied without the vote of the people. Another side of this argument is that the General Assembly passed the first sales tax of three per cent and without a referendum.

As to the additional one-cent sales tax, already the county commissioners in two counties are considering, or have passed, the tax. Franklin County commissioners have decided to levy this tax without another vote of the people. The people rejected the tax when the vote was taken.

Vance County commissioners are considering a levy of the extra one per cent sales tax, and this county turned down the tax in the first referendum, the only referendum where the people had a say.

Now what is thought would happen is taking place. The county commissioners are not taking a chance of having the issue turned down again for the law says if it is, the county commissioners cannot impose the tax. But if no vote is taken the county commissioners can levy it. The only recourse the people have under such circumstances is to vote out the commissioners at the next election. And this should not have to happen, for the people should have the right to vote on whether the tax will be imposed or property taxes increased.

And if you figure what you spend and the portion of income on which the additional tax of one cent would be levied, you will find it will be higher than an increase in property taxes, in the majority of cases.

Abbe Betting On Act

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — How does it feel to wear a $3,000 dress?

"I feel more comfortable in blue jeans," said Abbe Lane. "But if the dress gives a show glamor and every woman in the audience would like to wear it, then the money is well spent."

The red-haired international singing and dancing star is something of an expert on the cost of things right now. She spent $85,000 to ready a new supper club act, a sum for which an off-Broadway drama could be produced.

"It's an investment or a gamble," she said, during a recent unveiling of the act in the

HAL BOYLE

Persian Room at the Hotel Plaza. "You never know until the returns are in."

"This is the first time I've prepared this kind of a show. The responsibility was all on my shoulders and I had many a sleepless night. The whole thing would have given me gray hair—but red-haired stars don't get gray hair."

How could a night club act with a star and only two male dancers cost $85,000 to produce? Well, it isn't so hard when you consider what goes into it.

"You start with eight weeks of planning and eight weeks of rehearsal," said Abbe. "Then, there are the director, two writers and three arrangers."

"Then there's the three wardrobe designers and five costume changes for the boys and 10 for me, including a $3,000 dress."

Real Crunch Of USW Demands

By ELMER ROESSNER
All management and labor will keep a close watch on negotiations between the big aluminum corporations and the United Steelworkers union which get under way next week. Meetings between Alcoa and Reynolds begin Tuesday, April 27, meetings with Kaiser start May 3 and sessions with other companies have not yet been set. Contracts expire May 31.

Leaks from these negotiations will be clues as to how tough the USW is. They will indicate the size of the union's demand on the steel industry. Present contracts expire July 31.

Aluminum negotiations will be complicated by the fact that aluminum sales have been declining and will decline further if we cut military spending. Aluminum companies have enormous stockpiles at present.

The steel companies are equally harassed. Profits, hit by the General Motors strike, were slashed last year and, while stockpiling has built up orders this year, there is no boom in profits in sight.

Talking Tough
Nevertheless, labor has been talking tough. I.W. Abel, the USW president, has served notice that workers will demand large increases in both steel and aluminum pay. George Meany, AFL-CIO president, has accused President Nixon of trying to establish a "low wage" economy and has demanded wage increases to compensate for the 16 per cent rise in the cost of living over the past three years.

And what was regarded as only a moderately difficult year for labor negotiations has become one of the worst. Ahead this month are negotiations covering 22,500 Western Electric service workers. In May contracts of 125,000 clothing workers run out, as do two Bell telephone contracts covering almost 76,000 employees, and a Western Union contract covering 19,000 more. Meanwhile, postal workers are seeking a 30 per cent increase!

In June there will be negotiations covering 16,000 West Coast longshoremen and in July the big one is on the calendar: The contract of 322,000 steelworkers.

Critical Month
Also in July will be two machinist contracts up with Lockheed, involving 31,500 men; with 24,000 workers in the AT&T long lines division, and 50,000 Southwest Bell workers.

In September contracts for 80,000 bituminous coal miners will be negotiated; for 50,000 Douglas employees and for 21,000 New York longshoremen; machinists will negotiate for 42,000 workers with Boeing.

Meanwhile, despite the fact that unemployment is high, labor is restless. The cost of living is still going up. There is nothing to stop it. There is nothing to stop wage demands from rising, either. Even in the building trades the 6 per cent limit is almost impossible of enforcement.

The White House "inflation alerts" may be significant warnings, but they also whet workers' appetites for more money. New York firemen have rejected the city's offer of salaries of $14,000 over a little over two years. This will influence demands not only of all other New York City employees but, indirectly, all civil employees across the country.

There is no limit to workers' demands, not even Richard Nixon's jawbone. Any union is an essential industry could demand $50,000 a year in wages and get it. Of course, such a demand could lead to changes in labor laws or a wage freeze, but it would be high living while it lasted.

Strength For Today

AGREEABLE AND DEFERENTIAL

It used to be said of certain newspapers that all they dealt with was crime and sex. It can be said today of certain newspapers that the greatest activity in the world is in the field of arbitration. This is good — provided, of course, that the arbitration table is not a place where we play games but a place where we discuss human values. The act of getting a dozen or more men, each protecting some personal or community-wide or industry-wide question is on the whole good, but it goes entirely too far when values are traded and personal interest allowed to come in and preside at the head of the table.

The world would be a pretty dull place if groups were not wrangling with other groups. You may reply that what we want is peace. Not if we know what is good for us. The thing we want is progress in the realm of human values. Are we going to be able to prove that honesty is the best policy? Can we argue ourselves and others into the conviction that what is good for one is good for all? Or at least not detrimental to all?

We talk a great deal today about contaminating the atmosphere. Nothing contaminates the atmosphere more than hot air, and nothing shakes the foundations of the earth more than tables pounded by indignant people who believe they are right.

And of course they are — sometimes. And so are we — sometimes. But let us try straightforward living for a change instead of angry talk and table-pounding. Let's try being agreeable and deferential for a change.

Penn Central Bookkeeper Lauded For 'Imagination'

By H.L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A confidential 1969 memo from the files of the Penn Central railroad sought a pay raise for a bookkeeper, praising his "imaginative" work which a federal agency indicated helped conceal impending financial disaster.

The memo cited C.S. Hill, then manager of Penn Central's accounting division. He has since risen to controller and is one of the few men still working for the railroad who were in high positions during the plunge toward bankruptcy proceedings.

The Penn Central filed for reorganization under the federal bankruptcy laws June 21,

Commended Keel's Role

The president of the North Carolina Jaycees, Bill Hobbs of Forest City has commended a Washington teacher, for his efforts as a Jaycee. Sam A. Keel, chairman of the Social Studies Department at Washington High School and chairman of the Lake Waccamaw Boys Home All Star game, received Hobbs' praise. "Sam Keel is a perfect example of the Jaycee of today, a dedicated educator who takes time out to become involved in the betterment of his community and state," Hobbs said.

Keel has served the Greenville Jaycees as director and is currently a state vice president for the North Carolina Jaycees. "Any young man in Washington between the ages of 21 and 35," Hobbs concluded, "who is interested in the betterment of his community, should talk to Sam Keel. He is involved. He is a Jaycee."

much too freely. Pitts was arrested on August 2. He was then held incommunicado for five days of incessant interrogation and lie detector tests. He has charged that he was beaten in this time; an army sergeant who saw him, on August 8 supports the charge.

At last Pitts "confessed" — but he repudiated his statement the next day. Nevertheless, a court-appointed defense attorney made a deal by which Pitts and Lee would plead guilty and leave the sentencing to a jury. Two weeks later the jury brought in a verdict of death.

The law provides that indigent defendants in capital cases must have counsel; implicitly this means effective counsel. The lawyers now in charge of the Pitts-Lee case charge bitterly that the trial lawyer, W. Fred Turner, botched the case. He made none of the motions for discovery, continuance, or suppression of the confession that one would have expected. He made no effort to obtain evidence favorable to the defendants. In effect, he abandoned them.

The conduct of the State prosecutor's office was equally disgraceful. It is elementary as a matter of ethics, and in Florida it is plain as a matter of law, that a prosecutor has an affirmative duty to disclose evidence favorable to a defendant. Half a dozen such items were known to the prosecutor; he did not disclose them.

Three years after this kangaroo court, a white man named Curtis Adams abruptly confessed to the murders of Aug. 1, 1963. Mary Jean Aikens, with whom he had been living in Port St. Joe, substantiated his statement. In return for immunity from prosecution, he volunteered to testify to that effect. Authorities refused to make such a deal, but Adams' statement created such doubt that in September, 1968, Circuit Judge Charles R. Holley conducted an extraordinary post-conviction hearing. He overturned the convictions and ordered a new trial.

The original prosecutor appealed. Last December, a three-judge State appellate court in turn reversed Judge Holley and reinstated the death penalties. Now the Florida Supreme Court, on May 14, will hear an appeal from that judgment. For Lee and Pitts, the experience has been a seven-year nightmare. For Gene Miller of the Herald, it has been a tale of enormous injustice — and he will not let it go.

Ward Joins In Readings

Vernon Ward, East Carolina University poet and English Department faculty member on Monday joined two other North Carolina poets and writers, Julia Fields and Guy Owens, in the final round of 15 poetry readings in North Carolina.

The three appeared Monday at Elizabeth City State University in Elizabeth City, reading their own writings and discussing them with students and town-

The series of 15 readings, held in colleges, technical institutes and universities throughout North Carolina since January 27, was made possible by grants from the North Carolina Arts Council.

Sam Ragan, newspaper editor from Southern Pines was Council Chairman for the entire series. On April 2, Guy Owen, Campbell Reeves and Sam Ragan were on campus at ECU for the Greenville day of poetry readings. They were joined locally by ECU poet Douglas McReynolds.

This is the second year of organized days of poetry readings on campuses by outstanding North Carolina poets and writers.

The 12-pound report discloses nothing sensational that has not been reported previously. But its wealth of private memos, notes, letters, reports and meeting minutes provides the most comprehensive picture to date of the Penn Central demise, plus a rare glimpse into the executive suite.

In one exchange of letters, a former director wrote in December 1969 that facts were being withheld from the public. But his plea for complete disclosure was spurned by the chairman of the board.

Main points of the report are that the Penn Central continued to pay huge dividends while its troubles increased; that these

DeLozier To Be Guest Speaker

Dr. Robert DeLozier, Assistant Professor in the College of Education, University of Tennessee at Knoxville, is to be the guest speaker in the spring conference of the North Carolina Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development program (NC-ASCD).

The conference, to be held in Greenville on Wednesday, follows similar ASCD conferences held earlier this year in Chapel Hill on April 15 and Asheville on March 23.

Under the local supervision of Bob Sigmon, Director of Secondary Education in the Greenville Schools, the conference will open with registration from 9:30 to 10:00 a.m. This will be followed with a Unlike a series of earlier reports by the House Banking Committee the ICC study makes no charges of wrongdoing. An agency spokesman said the ICC may publish conclusions after completion of a second report later this year.

The memo concerning Hill was written by former controller W.S. Cook to David C. Bevan, then finance chairman. Dated Oct. 5, 1967, the memo sought a raise in Hill's pay from $25,500 to $27,500.

The conference is being held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

In the morning session, Dr. DeLozier will speak on "A Non-Graded, Individualized Program using the Team Approach." In the afternoon session, a panel will discuss Dr. DeLozier's presentation, giving their reactions to his suggestions and comments.

This panel will be composed of Dr. Frank Arwood, School of Education, East Carolina University; Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the Greenville City Schools; Mrs. Madge Van Horn, classroom teacher from the Columbia, N.C. high school; and Mrs. Lillian Bradley, supervisor in the Pitt County Schools.

Dr. DeLozier, a graduate of Maryville College and the University of Tennessee, both in Tennessee, and the University of Utah, where he received his Ed.D. degree, has worked as a special consultant with a large number of schools in Tennessee, as well as in Oklahoma, Ohio, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Alabama and Minnesota.

'Smiling Back' Proves A Strain

BOSTON (AP) — Erich Segal, author of "Love Story," finished 489th in the Boston Marathon and said running the 26-mile, 385-yard race was harder than writing the popular novel. "The muscles that hurt the most are in the mouth from smiling back at the people," the Yale professor said after the race Monday. "The people were very friendly."

Segal, running in the annual Patriots Day event for the 16th time, finished in three hours, 23 minutes and 14 seconds. The winning time was 2:18.45. There were 887 starters in the race.

Thomas J. Russo, who wrote this section of the report, said the memo was evidence "that the Penn Central was 'earning profits' in the accounting offices rather than in operations."

Two Rose High School Girls Are Chosen 'Community Ambassadors'

Annie Young Clark and Mickey Jones, both junior girls of Rose High School, have been announced as Greenville's Community Ambassadors to foreign countries this year.

The annual program, sponsored locally by the United Christian Youth Movement, is an experiment in international living designed to give young people an opportunity to see how people in other countries live. This program also affords a chance for boys and girls of other countries to be in contact with representative American boys and girls.

ANNIE YOUNG CLARK

Annie Young, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. B. G. Clark, Jr., will be spending six weeks in Switzerland, living with a Swiss family there. Annie will be traveling with 10 or 12 young people to Switzerland. Her Swiss host family will be a French speaking one. The junior student is vice-president of Health Careers Club, secretary of the Drama Club, a member of the Pep Club, the Greenville Youth Group, a representative of the church to the United Christian Youth Movement (UCYM) and is treasurer of her home room.

Mickey Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gail D. Jones, will be going to one of Europe's coastal plains countries, Holland. She will be living with a Dutch family. She will also be in contact with about a dozen U.S. boys and girls in an informal trip along with their Dutch counterparts — which Mickey spoke of the Youth Group of the First Presbyterian Church. She is also winner of a gold key in the National Scholastic Art Awards and the French I Award in 1969.

Before leaving for their European assignments in Switzerland and Holland, Annie and Mickey will take intensive language training in Putney, Vermont.

BUICK BARGAIN DAYS ARE HERE

Buick Bargain Days are saving days.

A bargain price on a stripped-down car is no bargain. But a Buick or Opel at a bargain is something else again. Because we're not selling some special stripped-down model. We're selling Buicks and Opels, the same great cars we've sold all year.

With one difference. The deals have never been better. Which means that you can move out in a new Buick or Opel at a price that's hard to believe. When Buick talks about a bargain, we give you something to believe in.

Opel 1900 Sport Coupe. With a 1.9 liter engine that operates efficiently on low-lead or no-lead gasolines, hydraulic valve lifters for quiet engine operation, power front disc brakes and more.

Skylark Custom. With Buick's exclusive nickel-plated engine exhaust valves for smoother operation on today's cleaner fuels. Comfort-Flo ventilation system and more.

Your Buick-Opel dealer will give you better reasons to buy a new car now than anybody else.

The business of auto safety.

Auto safety is everyone's concern. But it's our business. And we think the attention that's being paid to auto safety now is a good thing. Because it will result in better driving for everyone. And, frankly, better driving for everyone means better business for us. We say Buick is something to believe in. That's why we're trying to make it easy to be safe by putting in safety features that work by themselves. You don't have to do anything to make them work. Like side guard beams. And the energy absorbing steering column. And the cargo guard between the trunk and back seat. They start "working" even before you get in the car. But two safety features, two of the most vital, are worthless unless you do something first. Seat and shoulder belts. Unfastened they do nothing. And you've seen enough statistics to know what a difference they can make. So use them. But that's not all you can do. Because the most effective safety feature of all can't be added to our cars or anybody else's. That feature is you. And the way you drive. Which should be defensively. And rested. And sober. We're all in this together. And together we can solve the auto safety problem once and for all. And the time is now.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened higher today, continuing Monday's upward momentum.

Advances outnumbered declines on the New York Stock Exchange by a fair margin.

Opening Big Board prices included Greyhound, up ½ to 21½; Monsanto, off ½ to 4; Disney, up 1½ to 110; CTS, unchanged at 31; and Pittston, off ¼ to 58½.

The market advanced sharply in active trading Monday.

The Dow Jones average climbed 8.64 points to 948.85.

Big Board volume totaled 17.73 million shares.

Analysts said the advance was bolstered by a variety of favorable news developments over the last few days. These, they said, indicated a strong economic upturn.

On the Amex, the price change index rose 0.03 to 26.52. Volume totaled 5.33 million shares.

orientation-registration program recently concluded had resulted in a good response and asked that any parents who have not yet registered their child take action to do so at the earliest possible time.

On school facilities matters, Dr. Cleetwood reported that contracts for construction of the Rose High School Home Economics complex had been approved and signed. The former Home Economics house at Eppes, he noted, will be moved as soon as the purchaser completes site preparation to where the house will be moved. He also noted that about 200 people attended the open house Sunday for the "Live Project House" built by members of the occupational education project students of Rose High. The house will be sold at auction at 11:00 a.m. Thursday.

The school board approved use of Eastern Elementary School and Elmhurst Elementary by two church groups as temporary quarters for conducting worship services.

Budget and finance matters were briefly mentioned, with board member Harding Sugg making a motion that a special meeting be held prior to the May meeting.

Saying that he had had disagreements with Dr. Cleetwood "quite often," Donovan Phillips remarked, "Dr. Cleetwood has been a good administrator. We don't need a new administrator, we need to change our attitudes."

Board member Louis Gaylord, Jr., responded to a request by a woman in the audience to hear from a board member before they went into executive session.

"I told Dr. Cleetwood at that time I was voting against him, that his public image left much to be desired," Gaylord did not specify what date he meant by "at that time."

"I have changed my mind since that time," Gaylord remarked. "Many of you people here tonight are the very ones who aided and assisted me in my misjudgment. For the past three or four years all I've heard at Bigg's Drug Store was about the sorry job he was doing."

"Not a one of you came and said he's doing an excellent job. If you believe in what you're saying tonight, you ought to get out and extol his virtues. Without hoping to sound trite, I have tried to do what I thought best for the community. A lot of people have knocked Dr. Cleetwood because of South Greenville and Sadie Sauter. I hope I'm big enough to see my error. There's still much to be desired from Dr. Cleetwood so far as I'm concerned, but I will tell you that I'm going to vote for Dr. Cleetwood... I want to tell you he'll never get the support of the people behind him unless you get out and tell the people what a good job he's doing."

After Gaylord had spoken for the board, George Garrett made a brief comment. "I think it's time to let the board go into their secret meeting and hire the man back."

Manson Attorney Sees Executions Very Likely

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge has formally sentenced Charles Manson and three women followers to die in the gas chamber for the Sharon Tate murders, and the chief defense attorney says the sentences are likely to be carried out.

Paul Fitzgerald, who argued Monday for reduction of the penalty on grounds that jurors were swayed by the current moratorium on executions, said it is invalid to assume that legalities will save the four from death.

There has not been an execution in the United States since 1967. State courts are waiting for a ruling from the U.S. Supreme Court on whether the death penalty is constitutional.

"Many legal observers feel that this Supreme Court will affirm the death penalty," Fitzgerald told newsmen.

"If that happens, he said, Manson and the women could be put to death along with more than 90 persons awaiting execution on San Quentin's Death Row.

Manson and the women, however, face automatic appeals which could delay their deaths as long as five years.

Fitzgerald told the judge a juror confided to him that if he had thought the defendants would actually be executed, he couldn't have voted for death.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older turned down notions for a new trial, a motion to question jurors about their verdicts, and another to reduce the sentence to life imprisonment.

Viet Vets Meet Mixed Reaction To Peace Push

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two thousand battle-dressed Vietnam veterans have temporarily shifted their antiwar protest from the streets of the national capital into the offices of Congress.

Still wearing their jungle camouflage fatigues and other bits and pieces of uniform, the veterans sought meetings with House and Senate members to tell how they turned against the war.

Initial reaction from the legislators was mixed.

"Those who have tended to be liberal on the war talked to us," said one veteran after initial visits Monday. "Those who have been more hawkish were 'out.'"

"Some people didn't like the way we dressed," said another, "but the way we are dressed was largely the way we dressed in 'Nam.'"

The sight of 2,000 uniformed ex-soldiers marching on their government Monday was a new twist for the antiwar demonstrations frequent in Washington over the past few years.

The scene at the west front of the Capitol gave something of the image of a battle zone, with several vets carrying toy copies of the M-16 rifles they lugged in Vietnam.

Traces of Navy blue and Marine olive drab speckled the predominantly Army crowd. There was a flak suit with Air Force wings on the chest, gold officers of a Navy pilot, bars of wings and stripes of sergeants. And berets of varied hue.

The faces were young, but grimmer than those of the usual student demonstrators.

"Unlike the demonstrators of the past, we know from experience what the war is like," proclaimed the Vietnam Veterans Against the War which is sponsoring the week-long protest.

In addition to congressmen, they are visiting the Veterans Administration to ask more aid for returning servicemen, the Labor Department to seek help in finding jobs, the National Institutes of Health for better care for drug-plagued Vietnam veterans.

The veterans are bivouaced on the Mall before the Capitol. A federal appeals court lifted part of an injunction Monday which had allowed them to stay there Sunday night provided they didn't sleep.

They stirred early Monday and marched to Arlington National Cemetery where a memorial service was conducted by a former chaplain. But the mother and widow of two men killed in the war were not allowed to place wreaths in the cemetery.

Then they marched to the Capitol: young men pacing wheelchairs and others who swung on crutches, hobbled on canes or tapped out the way ahead with the long, white sticks of the blind.

They plan to march again Friday and return their war medals to the government. With a memorial service at Washington National Cathedral Friday night they end their phase of the spring campaign and turn over the demonstrating to other groups.

Worker Burned

FARMVILLE — An electrician received third degree burns at the Collins and Aikman textile plant here yesterday afternoon at 3:35 when a short circuit from an electrical panel set his clothes afire as it plunged the plant into darkness.

Marvin Earl "Buster" Nanney of Route 2, Greenville, an employee of Watson Electric Company of Greenville, was helping to install machinery at the plant at the time of the accident. He was transferred Monday evening from Pitt Memorial Hospital to Duke Medical Center, where he is listed in fair condition. Nanney and his wife, the former Lou Tyson of Fountain, have a young daughter.

Also injured in the accident was George Wurtenburg, an employee of B. R. Kennedy and Son, a machinery manufacturing firm. He was treated and released at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The C&A plant was without electrical power until 1:30 a.m., and the 3 to 11 p.m. and the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shifts were asked not to report to work. The "highly unlikely accident" is being investigated, C&A plant engineer William Thompson said.

Young People Finish Week Of Campaign

The Citizens for Total Positive Government have completed their first week of community activities, including conducting voter education workshops throughout the community and holding informal conferences with candidates for the May 4 election.

The Crusaders and the Charmante Elles of Rose High School conducted door-to-door campaigns, encouraging non-registered persons to register. The group provided transportation and baby-sitting services to those who needed either in order to go to a place to register. A large number of persons registered as a result of this effort, a member of the Citizens' group, Johnny Wooten said.

Sunday, the Crusaders and the Charmante-Elles presented a concert to a capacity audience at Cornerstone Baptist Church. During the program, donations were received from individuals and organizations. Rev. W. B. Moore, chairman, urged voter participations and stressed the need for black representation in city governmental agencies and commissions, especially West Side representation.

William M. Myers, treasurer, and Frank Norris, finance expediter, stressed the further need for campaign contributions. Contributions may be sent to Rose Norfleet, Fleetway Cleaners, Greenville.

The four candidates the Citizens' group is supporting are Donovan Phillips, a mayoral candidate, and City Council candidates, Clarence Gray, John Taylor, and George Garrett.

Will Speak At Arrest Man Alumni Meeting For Robbery

Two top East Carolina University officials will address the annual spring meeting of the Harnett County Chapter of the ECU Alumni Association Monday evening.

Dr. Wallace R. Woolees, dean of Medical Sciences at ECU, and Dr. Charles Q. Brown, ECU's Director of Institutional Development, will be featured speakers at the Dutch dinner meeting.

Greenville policy yesterday took Robert Ed Anderson, 27 of 1001 Fleming St. into custody on armed robbery charges about 45 minutes after Mitchell's Grocery on Roosevelt Avenue was robbed.

Acting chief of police, Capt. E. G. Cannon said Anderson was taken into custody at his Fleming Street room, and noted that $30.50 allegedly taken in the theft was recovered.

John Mitchell, 78, who runs the store, told police he was struck on the head with a piece of wood by the robber. He was later taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries he received.

According to Capt. Cannon, the robbery occurred about 4:30 p.m. and Anderson was arrested at 5:15 p.m.

Former Giant Voice Is Dead

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Russ Hodges, for 22 years the voice of the Giants National League baseball club on radio and television, is dead at 60.

Hodges collapsed at his home here Monday night and was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital. An autopsy was scheduled to determine cause of death.

Although he retired from full-time broadcasting after the 1970 season, Hodges continued on the Giants' public relations staff and occasionally did broadcasts.

He was best remembered for his broadcast of the Giants' playoff game with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1951, prior to the club's move from New York to San Francisco in 1958.

When Bobby Thompson hit a home run to win the playoff, Hodges shouted into the microphone over and over again: "Giants win the pennant! Giants win the pennant!"

His "Bye-bye baby" when a player connected for a home run was well known to thousands of fans.

National League President Charles Feeney said Hodges' death was "a tremendous loss to me personally, to the city of San Francisco and to all of baseball. He was one of the finest men I knew."

President Horace C. Stoneham of the Giants called Hodges' death "a great shock to all of us."

Born in Dayton, Ky., a Cincinnati suburb, Hodges attended the University of Kentucky where he was a halfback on the football team. He earned a law degree in 1929 but began broadcasting sports in college and never practiced law.

After sports broadcasting in Cincinnati and Chicago, Hodges went to New York to cover the New York Yankees with Mel Allen, then switched to the Giants in 1949. During the 1950s he announced the "Fight of the Week" on CBS television.

He is survived by his widow, Gay, whom he married in 1962, and a son and daughter by a previous marriage. Funeral arrangements were pending.

Trevino Picks Beman In Open

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Notes from pro golf tournament trail:

Lee Trevino, who has correctly predicted the winner in two of the last three United States Open championships (himself in 1968 and Orville Moody in 1969) has made his annual pick:

"I'm picking Deane Beman this year," he said. "I haven't played the course (Merion, in Philadelphia) but I hear it's not too long."

"Beman's playing good and he's my pick."

Trevino, incidentally, is playing in the satellite Tallahassee Open this week, failing in his goal to make it into the Tournament of Champions.

Billy Casper, John Miller and Larry Hinson, among others, will make a promotion trip to Japan next week. They aren't supposed to play unless they get the permission of the sponsors of the Greater New Orleans Open.

Ladies Golf Day

A Captain's Choice tournament was held during Ladies Day activities Friday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club. Some 40 women participated in the golfing events of the day.

Winners in the nine-hole tournament were Mary Ellen Huff, Ann Whitehurst, Lois Freeman, and Mary Lib Faser. Lib Proctor and Ann Whitehurst won the putting contest.

This Friday's activities include a pitching contest at 9:30 a.m., with golfing getting underway at 10 a.m.

Baltimore Gains Finals

Bullets Edge Past Knicks For Eastern

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee? said Gene Shue, a weary grin spreading across his face. "I'm not even thinking about the Bucks. I'm too happy!"

The often volatile coach looked as exhausted and elated as his Baltimore Bullets Monday night after they finally gained two seasons worth of revenge against the New York Knicks.

The Bullets, withstanding a four-quarter rally on the court—and game-long pandemonium by the 19,500 fans surrounding it in Madison Square Garden—beat the Knicks 93-91 for the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference crown.

That sends the Bullets into the best-of-seven championships against the Bucks, who cruised to the Western title by conquering the San Francisco Warriors and Los Angeles Lakers in five games apiece.

The confrontation begins Wednesday night in Milwaukee, nationally televised by ABC—as all the championship games will be—starting at 9 p.m., EST.

In Monday night's only other playoff action, Ray and Charlie Scott tossed in 30 points apiece as the Virginia Squires defeated Kentucky 150-137 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven American Basketball Association Eastern Division finals. Utah, leading the Western series 2-1, hosts Indiana tonight.

Baltimore was shooting not only for the chance to face Milwaukee—the winningest team in the NBA this season—but for a chance to end frustration that began with the 1968-69 season.

They won the regular-season Eastern title that time only to be knocked out by the third-place Knicks in four straight games in the first round of playoffs.

Then, last year, after losing five of six regular-season games to the Knicks, Baltimore again faced them in the first round—and again the Bullets lost, this time in seven games.

This season the Knicks again dominated, beating the Bullets in four of six games, then taking the first two playoff games in New York.

Baltimore finally woke up at home however, and smothered the Knicks twice to even the series. Each team then won its next home game to set up the finale.

The Knicks had held leads of 21-19 after one period and 47-43 after two. But a foul shot and two field goals put the Bullets in front in the opening minutes of the third quarter and they pulled away to a seven-point lead—the biggest by either team—in its closing seconds.

New York slowly battled back and finally went in front 88-87 with 2:44 to go on a lay-in by Dick Barnett. New York's top scorer with 26 points.

But Monroe, who topped Baltimore with 26, got the Bullets back on top with a 15-foot jumper just 10 seconds later and they stayed there the rest of the way.

Fred Carter's 19-footer, with about a minute to play was the deciding, giving them a 93-89 lead. Walt Frazier got the Knicks back within a basket moments later and the flashy guard, using center Willis Reed as a shield, was supposed to shoot for the equalizer when they got the ball with 11 seconds to play.

But the Baltimore defense stiffened and Frazier was forced to pass to Bill Bradley, whose 15-footer was tipped by Wes Unseld and fell short.

"I'm realizing it slowly, but it'll be a few days before I really feel it," Frazier said. "But the hard part comes when I have to watch the championship series on television."

And Reed, who hit 24 despite being hobbled by bad knees and a painful right shoulder, added: "Everything being equal, they outplayed us in the series. If they play as well as they did against us, they could give Milwaukee a real battle."

Lacrosse, Tennis Set

Two home events highlight the East Carolina University spring sports schedule for Wednesday.

ECU's lacrosse team hosts a strong North Carolina outfit while the Pirate tennis team entertains Atlantic Christian.

Coach John Lovstedt's lacrosse team goes into Wednesday match with Tar Heels with a 3-4 overall record. Senior Eric Schandelmeyer is the team's leading scorer and Lovstedt thinks a win Wednesday would really turn things around for the Pirates.

Both ECU and North Carolina have played Maryland, the nation's fourth-ranked team, and both have lost by big margins. ECU suffered a 22-2 defeat at the hands of the Terps while North Carolina fell, 14-2.

In tennis action, Coach Bill Dickens' club carries a 4-6 record against a strong Atlantic Christian team that has lost only one this season.

The Bulldogs were defeated by N.C. State, a team that beat ECU last week 8-1.

The Pirates have been led all season by senior Graham Felton, who will be out after the Southern Conference singles championship in two weeks, and junior Bill Van Middlesworth, the team's No. 2 singles player.

Randle Hasn't Had Too Much To Worry About

Spring football drills usually give coaching staffs some idea of what to expect the coming fall and what problems need to be corrected. And, with the problems come headaches.

But, for East Carolina University Head Coach Sonny Randle and his staff, the headaches have not been present the way one would expect them. Usually when a new coach takes over there's a new offense and a new defense to install and the migraines begin.

5-11, 180-pound senior, who was the Pirates No. 1 quarterback a year ago. With a year's experience, he holds the edge over the two other men battling him for the job.

The two others are junior college transfer Gary Wann and sophomore Carl Summerell. Wann, at 6-2, 195, is the better passer of the three while Summerell, a 6-3, 190-pounder, is the better runner. And, Casazza has experience on his side.

In the offensive backfield there have been three performers that have impressed Randle. Billy Wallace and Les Strayhorn, the two starters from last season, have looked good at running back along with Rusty Scales, a senior, who saw limited action there a year ago.

As far as Randle and the coaching staff are concerned any two of the three can play and the Pirates would not lose any effectiveness.

Grover, Truslow has been the most pleasant surprise in the offensive line having made the conversion from defensive tackle and linebacker to offensive tackle.

"He's done an outstanding job at offensive tackle," said Randle. "He looks like he's played his whole career there."

Still, another surprise in the offensive line has been senior guard Ron Peed. After an injury at the beginning of spring drills, the 6-3, 215-pounder has come back strong to claim a starting position.

Junior Jimmy Creech has taken over a starting position at center and has impressed Randle. The 6-1, 210-pounder was the No. 2 center last season behind Mark Pohren, who has been moved to defensive tackle.

Tight end Bill Croiseterre is still another Pirate who has been outstanding in spring drills.

"Croiseterre was a good tight end last fall," said Randle, a former All-Pro wide receiver for the St. Louis Cardinals. "This season, he's an exceptional tight end."

And, there have been defensive stars.

Take tackle Greg Burke, for instance. Only a sophomore, the 6-4, 240-pounder, has claimed one of the starting tackle slots during the spring and really impressed the coaches with his outstanding play.

Two junior college transfers have also been impressive. Kirk Doll, a 6-2, 215-pound defensive end has moved up to a starter along with Terry Stoughton, a 5-11, 175-pound linebacker.

Senior Monty Kiernan, a 6-2, 200-pounder, has looked outstanding at linebacker — he's been a starter there for the last two seasons.

Then there's Jack Patterson — the quarterback who should have been a defensive back all his life. The 6-1, 180-pounder made the switch with so much ease that Randle is still trying to figure out why he wasn't back there in the first place. He's starting at safety.

Probably the biggest surprise of all has been the play of Bob Millie, a 6-5, 200-pound senior, at split end. Last season, Millie, a native of Toronto, Canada, was the team's No. 4 split end, but this year he has moved in to take the starting job. Randle is still staying up late at night trying to figure how he did that.

And, with the 1971 ECU spring drills there's been a lot of happiness and few headaches.

Randle's biggest headache is trying to determine who will be the starting quarterback, but to hear him talk about that it's just the type of headaches a football coach loves to have.

Those headaches are pleasing and Randle is very pleased. He wouldn't want it any other way.

Yet, with spring drills coming to an end this Saturday with the annual Purple-Gold football game, Randle could not be more pleased.

"We installed everything we wanted," said the Pirate head coach, "and if we had it to do all over again we wouldn't want to do anything else different. Things have been great. The coaching staff and I are very pleased with the way everything has progressed."

One of the many bright spots for the Pirates during spring drills has been the quarterback position. Last year at this time ECU did not have a quarterback. This season there are three and one can tell there is little concern about the position because of the smile that appears on Randle's face when he talks about it.

First, there is John Casazza, a

Connie Day Hopes This Will Be Her Big Year

By KEN ALTYA
Associated Press Sports Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Connie Day, a long-hitting blonde charmer from Cleveland, Tenn., never has won the North and South Amateur Golf Tournament, although she usually gives a good account of herself.

She reached the semifinals of the 69-year-old classic the last two years, and for two years before that she was a finalist, losing one-up each time.

But that record was in danger today as she met five-time champion Barbara McIntire of Colorado Springs, Colo., in one of 16 first-round matches.

Connie, the secretary of a Tennessee legislator, qualified Monday with a creditable 77 on the 900-yard shortened No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club.

She was six shots behind medalist Carol Semple of Seewickley, Pa., but her score was the best turned in by any of the so-called "establishment", seasoned players who have more or less dominated the tournament for a decade.

"Funny thing," Connie reflected, "I didn't feel right hitting the ball, but still I managed to play well enough. My putting was good, and I hit some good trap shots. Maybe this is the year."

Her 37-34-71 was three under par and included the two best nine-hole scores of the day.

Her effort was remarkable inasmuch as she had shot a double bogey six on the first hole. But she settled down to make only one bogey after that and had six birdies, four on par-five holes where her power paid off.

She was four shots ahead of Dianne Dailey of Frankford, Ky., and Salem Colgate.

The most talked-about single shot of the qualifying round came on the 139-yard 17th hole, where Salley Tomlinson holed out with a four-iron for her first ace. The sixth-grade schoolteacher from Oakland, Calif., who is on a year's leave of absence, finished with a 76 for a third-place tie with Janet Aulisi of West Caldwell, N.J.

The cutoff score was 84, the lowest in several years.

Grissom Will Try Sale Again

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — T.A. Grissom, president of Lantonia Race Course in Florence, Ky., will have to try again if he really wants to get out of the thoroughbred racing business.

Grissom put his entire stock of 33 head up for sale Monday night at the spring sale conducted by Fasig-Tipton the Kentucky Training Center, but when the bidding was over, he still had eight horses left.

The 25 horses that did sell brought in $182,600 to Grissom and his son, J.A. Grissom. To make sure he got his money's worth, Grissom reserved bids on several of his best horses—and that's where he ran into trouble.

He reserved a bid of $150,000 on Tribal Line, a 3-year-old colt who won the Hurstland Purse recently at Kenneland and is nominated to the Triple Crown events this year.

The bay son of Roman Line-Tribal Slippers didn't raise a bid when brought into the ring.

"He was worth what we were asking," Grissom said. "Two days ago I was offered $150,000 for him, but couldn't sell because I had promised to bring him to the auction."

Grissom said he now plans to run Tribal Line in the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland Thursday, and if he fares well, to take him to the Kentucky Derby May 1.

Grissom did sell one Derby nominee, a filly named Mitch's Line, for $20,000 to Don Lasater of Dayton, Ohio.

He'll Have To Wait For Another Chance To Start For San Francisco After Win

Ali's Appeal Before Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief lawyer for Muhammad Ali has told the Supreme Court the government's case against the former heavyweight champ is wrapped in prejudice.

According to Chauncey Eskridge, Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold's arguments against the fighter's appeal of a draft evasion conviction was filled with bias against both Ali and his black Muslim religion.

Griswold denied the claim as both sides stated their arguments Monday before the Supreme Court.

Eskridge told the high court Ali was opposed to fighting all but holy wars—those declared by Allah.

Ali was not present for the 60-minute session before eight justices. The ninth justice, Thurgood Marshall, disqualified himself apparently because he was U.S. solicitor general when

The 23-year-old left-hander took over for ailing Frank Reberger with none out in the first inning Monday and went the rest of the way in a 4-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. It was the Giants' ninth consecutive victory.

Ali's case was brought before the government.

Eskridge said the key issue was whether the Justice Department misled the Kentucky Selective Service Board of Appeals in a letter saying Ali was not sincere in his Muslim beliefs.

Griswold maintained Ali's objections to serving were based on "political and philosophical" views that don't fall under conscientious objector status.

Ali was heavyweight champion when he was drafted. Refusing induction at a Houston draft center in April 1967, he was convicted and sentenced to five years in jail.

He has been free on $5,000 bond as the case moved through lengthy appeals.

Monday's court activities were the last available to Ali.

A decision is expected in June.

With Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry slated to pitch tonight and Wednesday and off-days scheduled Thursday and next Monday, it will be late next week before Bryant gets his shot.

Bryant relieved Reberger with two runners on base and Jose Cardenal's double put the Cardinals in front 1-0. But the Giants quickly tied it up against Jerry Reuss on Willie Mays' double and a single by Dick Dietz and took the lead in the third on Chris Speier's single, a walk to Mays and another single by Dietz.

Bryant singled in the fifth and scored on a bases-loaded walk and Bobby Bonds crashed his fifth home run of the season for the final tally. Bryant yielded eight hits and fanned eight. He finally gave up a run in the ninth on two singles rapped around a wild pitch.

Elsewhere on a slim major league schedule, Los Angeles defeated San Diego 3-2, Minnesota outlasted Kansas City 9-8 and Cleveland nipped Boston 5-4 in 13 innings.

The Padres took a 2-0 lead off Don Sutton in the first inning on four singles and a walk, but the Dodgers bounced back with a run in the third on doubles by Willie Davis and Wes Parker.

They won it in the eighth when Davis and Parker singled and, after a sacrifice and an intentional walk, Billy Grabarkewitz lashed a two-run double.

Harmon Killebrew drove in six runs as Minnesota built a 9-0 lead and then survived a Kansas City counter-attack, including Bob Oliver's grand slam homer.

Killebrew delivered a two-run single in the first, a run-scoring grounder in the second and his second homer of the season, a three-run shot, in the third. The Royals nicked Jim Kaat for a run in the fourth and chased him with a seven-run outburst in the fifth.

Cowens, Petrie Shaing Honor

NEW YORK (AP) — Rugged Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics and sharp-shooting Geoff Petrie of the Portland Trail Blazers shared Rookie of the Year honors today, the first such deadlock in the history of the National Basketball Association.

Cowens, a 6-foot-9 center who scored 17 points and grabbed 15 rebounds a game, and Petrie, a 6-4 guard with a 24.8 point a game average, each drew 36 votes in the balloting by sportswriters and sportscasters in the 17 league cities.

Third in the voting was the pre-season favorite, Pete Mar-

Roy Foster's 2-run homer in the 13th inning lifted Cleveland past Boston in the Red Sox' annual Patriots Day game. The homer, off Bill Lee, followed a lead off walk to Graig Nettles. The Sox scored a run in their half of the inning before Ray Lamb picked up the final out with two runners aboard.

Former Red Sox slugger Ken Harrelson put the Indians in front with a three-run homer in the fourth but Boston tied it with two in the sixth and an unearned tally in the eighth.

vich of Atlanta, who drew 21 votes, while Calvin Murphy of San Diego had four and Bob Lanier of Detroit one.

Last year's winner was Lew Alcindor.

Boston, choosing fourth in the 1970 college draft, selected Cowens of Florida State on the first round.

Colombian Is Marathon King

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Alvaro Mejia, an unemployed metal worker from Colombia via Redwood City, Calif., was the proud owner of a diamond studded solid gold sunburst medal and a laurel wreath today after a dramatic victory in the 75th Boston A.A. Marathon.

The 30-year-old Mejia, who finished 10th in the 10,000-meter run in the 1968 Olympics, registered his greatest triumph by out-kicking favored Irish Pat McMahon Monday in a stirring race to the wire at the end of the 26-mile, 385-yard grind from Hopkinton to Boston.

Mejia, who edged McMahon in the Colombian's first marathon in California earlier this year, and the former Irish Olympian, now a school teacher in nearby Lowell, engaged in one of the hottest duels in BAA history.

They ran abreast virtually all the way, often accidentally bumping elbows and even sharing water-soaked sponges handed one or the other by spectators. Then, with the finish line just around the corner, Mejia, turned sprinter and hit the wire about 20 yards ahead of his weary rival.

Mejia was timed in 2 hours, 18 minutes, 45 seconds, just five seconds faster than McMahon.

Mejia said he was laid off from his job five weeks ago, just two weeks after his wife gave birth to a son. His wife is the former Terry Stickell, a U.S. Olympic team diver. They met while she was in the Peace Corps and they plan to return to Colombia. McMahon said he was bothered by blisters and a headwind the field of 887 starters had to buck. The sunny weather was also a little too warm for him.

South Africa's John Halvestadt closed strongly to take third place in 2:22:23. John Vitale of New Haven, Conn., was fourth in 2:22:45, and Byron Lowry of San Francisco fifth in 2:23:20.

The sentimental favorite, Johnny "The Elder" Kelley, 63, of Watertown, appeared in his 40th BAA Marathon, finishing 725th in 3:35:47.

Kinston Atop Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kinston, with four straight victories, is alone at the top of Carolina League standings.

The Eagles defeated Peninsula, 5-2, behind the pitching of Robin Hippi. Hippi was the fourth Kinston pitcher to go the distance. Charlie Spiks' home run and Wayne Nordhagen's three hits powered the Eagles' scoring.

Lynchburg defeated Salem, 9-8, and climbed into a tie with the Rebels for second place.

A single by Mike Brooks in the bottom of the ninth scored Joe Bowen and gave Lynchburg the victory.

Rocky Mount parlayed four unearned runs into a 6-2 victory over Winston-Salem. Single tallies in the fifth and seventh innings put the icing on the cake for the Leafs.

In the late night finisher, Burlington slipped past Raleigh-Durham 1-0 when a double-play scored second baseman Pete McKanin in the 15th inning.

McKanin opened the inning with a double and then moved to third on Jim Kobi's single. He scored when pitcher Steve Foucault grounded into a double play.

Four Attended 3-Day Session

Four Greenville police department sergeants attended a three-day conference on drugs and detention held here last week by the North Carolina Department of Social Services in cooperation with the Department of Community Colleges and the Institute of Government.

According to acting Chief of Police E. G. Cannon, sergeants L. A. Darden, J. H. Tripp, M. H. Craft and David Bullock, were among the approximately 40 law enforcement representatives attending the meeting.

The conference covered ways of combating the drug problem and dealing with detainees.

Worry Clinic Red Herring Of Over-40 Males

Norma's husband is diverting her attention from his secret sexual terror. For he has employed a very common "red herring" strategy that millions of men subconsciously discover when they pass the age of 40. But young males in the teens also resort to beer as a male sex symbol, as outlined below!

Symbolic Liquor To young fellows of teenage vintage, the use of liquor is often symbolic of rugged, outdoor heroes, such as cowboys.

Even today, the television movies usually show both hero and villain walking up to the bar of a frontier saloon and ordering whiskey by the glass.

Case Q-532: Norma L., aged 38, had a problem mate.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "my husband is a college graduate and usually a very wonderful man.

"But the past few months he has begun to drink liquor, though he was a teetotaler during the first 15 years of our marriage.

"At first, he merely took a highball or two at cocktail parties which were held at the office.

"Then he began to rely on a glass of whiskey after he got home from the office and before dinner.

"Now he is often half drunk throughout the weekend and is disgracing our children by even staggering on the street.

"For we live in a respectable neighborhood where it is uncommon to see an intoxicated man.

"Dr. Crane, what makes a person drink liquor, anyway?"

Then the cowboy may even take the entire bottle over to a table, where he sits down, for repeated swigs.

Even at the kindergarten level, little boys also play "Cowboys and Indians" where the youngsters like to flaunt their cap pistols.

So guns and whiskey are the two symbols to young males of the virile frontier fighters of our romantic historical West.

High school boys, feeling insecure and socially inept, they try to "swagger" (cowboy style) by taking a carton of beer along on a date.

They park in a lover's lane and think they will impress their girl friends by guzzling beer!

Arts And Crafts Classes Starting

The Elm Street Recreation Center will begin Arts & Crafts classes in Resin craft, Chair Webbing Handbags, and Mod Podge beginning Tuesday and Wednesday. Resin is a clear polyester product in liquid form. A catalyst is added, and the liquid becomes a solid. Instruction will be given in the creation of large and small decorative grape cluster, glass-like fruit compotes, napkin holders, desk sets, and mushroom groupings.

The handbag session will feature step-by-step construction of bags made from jute chair webbing. Persons interested in making handbags are reminded to bring their own skein of wool for decoration and embroidery

Mod Podge pictures give the impression of being expensive oil paintings. Some 16x20 inch prints will be available, and persons bringing their own prints should call the Recreation Department at 752-2355 no later than noon on Monday to give the size of masonite needed.

Agnew Privately Concerned Over Table Tennis Trip

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has expressed concern privately over the American table tennis team's visit to China—and about possible adverse effects U.S. overtures toward Peking might have on the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

Agnew Monday told Republican governors here for a conference he was concerned by overemphasis on the Chinese tour by the 15 American athletes, and about the way their journey was reported in the United States.

"Basically, he was saying some of the things that were praised in China were things that would be criticized here," one GOP governor said.

Agnew also was quoted as expressing doubts about some aspects of current U.S. efforts at improved relations with China during a Sunday night conversation with a small group of Republicans. One man who was there said the vice president emphasized then that the United States still has commitments to the Nationalist government.

At a Monday luncheon, Agnew questioned the emphasis put on the table tennis tour and at the reactions of the U.S. travelers. He noted one of the Americans had described a 15-square-foot room as the apartment of a Chinese family, implying approval when the same quarters in the United States would have been criticized as evidence of poverty.

The China question also came up, said a Republican source, in an off-the-record session the vice president had early Monday morning with nine reporters.

The 2½-hour meeting with reporters began at 12:30 a.m. when the vice president called the newsmen into his hotel room.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, not represented at the session, said it learned the vice president had expressed concern that the table team's visit and reception had trapped the United States into a disadvantageous position in world opinion.

Agnew was quoted by the newspaper as having objected to some press accounts of the trip, particularly the use of the word "exquisite" in one story to describe Chinese courtesy in matching less-skilled players against the Americans.

Nixon himself came to Williamsburg for a stern speech on welfare, saying that under the present system a person "can be rewarded for doing nothing." The President asked support for his welfare reform program, one he said would deny assistance to people who are able to work but refuse. That drew general applause from governors beset by soaring state welfare costs. California Gov. Ronald Reagan said the Nixon speech drew a one-word response from the man beside him Gov. John A. Love of Colorado: "Hallelujah."

"I just hope to hell the Congress helps him," said Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie of Illinois. Ogilvie said he has been campaigning among Illinois officials at the county and local levels for welfare reform and revenue sharing. "We're trying to set a little grassroots fire," he said.

Gov. William C. Milliken of Michigan said the Nixon welfare speech was "obviously designed to build the kind of public and official support that we're going to need to get it through."

"It's obvious, I think, the President is really starting out to hit this one hard and make it successful if he can," Milliken said.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan recommended to the governors the revival of the Republican Coordinating Committee, a panel set up to draft party policy when the Democrats were in the White House but dropped after Nixon's election.

Hopes Raised For Jumbo Jet

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects of government guaranteed loans and progress reports by interested airlines and bankers have boosted chances of rescuing Lockheed Aircraft's version of the jumbo jet passenger plane.

Financiers and airlines say they have made significant progress into secret talks aimed at continuing development of the aircraft whose fate seemed in doubt after the financial collapse of the company making the engine.

The Treasury Department said Monday it is prepared to propose, subject to President Nixon's approval, a bill in Congress underwriting a multimillion-dollar loan.

"It is becoming increasingly clear that many of the participants in the Lockheed negotiations will not be satisfied with less than a government guarantee," Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally said through a spokesman.

sion of their party, young Americans and the 18-year-old vote.

Connally is known to have discussed Lockheed's TriStar project first with Lockheed executives and later with Nixon.

"When the time comes, we will go to Congress and ask for some kind of backing to enable us to give the project a longer-term guarantee," Connally was quoted as saying in a London newspaper story the Treasury Department said was generally accurate.

Lockheed's Airbus project floundered when Rolls Royce, the British automobile-aviation firm, collapsed under the weight of rising production costs and failure to meet contract terms for supplying its RB211 engine.

The British government later reached a tentative agreement with Lockheed to continue supplying the engines, at a higher cost and on an altered delivery schedule.

Gentlemen's calling cards first became popular in 18th century Europe, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Resignation Of Lon Nol Suspected A Maneuver

By ROBIN MANNOCK
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH (AP) — Some observers in Phnom Penh viewed the resignation today of Premier Lon Nol as a maneuver to permit him a thorough housecleaning of his cabinet.

The announcement that he and his Cabinet were resigning came as a surprise since he said before leaving Hawaii that he planned to resume direction of the government and would govern with "help from friends."

One U.S. official in Washington commented: "There doesn't seem to be any great change in the situation since Lon Nol has not been actively directing the Cambodian government for several months."

Lon Nol has been premier for some months when in March 1970 he led the group who ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk while the neutralist chief Cheng Heng. The 57-year-old premier was felled by a stroke Feb. 8 that paralyzed his left side. He returned last Monday after treatment by the U.S. Army in Honolulu but walked with difficulty and was assisted by male nurses.

A career soldier who rose through the ranks to command of the army and was defense minister and as premier in 1966-67, Lon Nol has strong support in the armed forces. Both army officers and intellectuals begged him to reconsider his resignation.

Sirik Matak has headed the government since Lon Nol's illness, and diplomatic sources consider him Washington's first choice to succeed Lon Nol. U.S. Embassy officials say he is easy to work with and praise his "no-nonsense" approach to government.

Lon Nol aligned his government with the United States and South Vietnam against the Communists, and in April American and South Vietnamese troops invaded Cambodia in a campaign against Viet Cong and North Vietnamese bases along the border.

Accident Killed Noted Sportsman

SYDNEY (AP) — Frank Carberry, Australian sportsman, was killed when his auto hit a tree at Dead Man's Creek in the outer suburb of Heathcote.

Carberry, 72, was chairman of Tattersalls Club and president of the New South Wales Swimming Association. He was a former Australian champion backstroke swimmer.

Owner Forbids Any Hot Pants

STANTON, Mo. (UPI)—Girls selling souvenirs at Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here aren't allowed to wear hot pants. Lester B. Dill, cave owner, doesn't want anything to upstage the souvenirs in the shop.

Most of the souvenirs have a Jesse James motif because the outlaw used the cave as a hideout. "It's illegal to upstage Jesse James," Dill said.

Lead Content Is Big Issue

BONN (UPI)—The West German government believes a law limiting the amount of lead in gasoline is the best way to reduce air pollution by automobiles.

But the opposition Christian Democratic party argues more can be achieved by a change in the system for taxing automobiles.

In a bill now in committee stage, the government led by Social Democrat Willy Brandt proposed parliament reduce the amount of lead in gasoline from 0.44 gram to 0.40 gram a liter (1.057 quarts) by Jan. 1, 1972, and to 0.15 gram by Jan. 1, 1976.

Interior Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher told deputies the two stages would give the refining industry time to adjust their production facilities. The second stage would mean West German gasoline would have the lowest lead content in Europe, and would encourage other Europeans to follow suit.

Matthias Engelsberger, speaking for the opposition party, proposed instead a change in the auto taxation system. He said that instead of taxing according to piston displacement, which encouraged manufacturers to make small engines, the government should tax according to total vehicle weight, which would cause industry to make larger engines that burn their fuel more efficiently.

Vote To Retain Welfare System

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Mecklenburg County Commission voted 3-2 Monday in favor of retaining the present system of giving government-surplus food to welfare recipients instead of food stamps.

A spokesman for the state Department of Social Services said there are 50 counties in the surplus commodity program and 50 which give food stamps.

In Foreigners' Eyes . . . America Is Still Beautiful

EDITOR'S NOTE — When you live in a place for a long time, you tend to overlook, or maybe take for granted, whatever beauty it has. Peter Arnett and Horst Faas, AP correspondent and photographer respectively, are not Americans. They have made a three-month tour of the nation to look at us through the eyes of foreigners who have never lived here. In the following dispatch, one of a series, they described some of the nation's impressive physical beauty.

By PETER ARNETT
With HORST FAAS
Associated Press Writer
America is still beautiful. If you look for it.

We were two foreign newsmen gathering impressions on a three-month tour of the nation and its people. Whatever we found, there was always America herself—the land, the lakes, the mountains.

Some of it is blighted. But some of it is awesome as any landscape in the world.

Much of America is still so young. When pioneers were pushing westward through northern Utah along the Oregon Trail more than a century ago, their wagon wheels bit deeply into the surface of the empty land. North of Salt Lake City you can still see those wagon ruts on the hard desert floor, and the land itself must be the way the pioneers first saw it: stark, majestic—and still.

We found many Americans agonizing over contamination and the disappearing wilderness. We heard talk of an environmental Armageddon. Air pollution is seriously blighting the country. In the Los Angeles basin it is overflowing east into the next state, Nevada.

Garbage litters the land. Discarded cardboard containers and candy wrappings led us up the slopes of Mt. Rainier in Washington State like signposts. Beer cans and soda pop bottles similarly guided us through the bayous of Louisiana.

But it was America's emptiness and beauty rather its congestion and pollution that most impressed us.

California sprawls in a jerrybuilt suburb from San Francisco to Los Angeles by way of the San Joaquin Valley. Housing developments surge along

Will Honor Secretary

MISENHEIMER, N.C. (AP) — Miss Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's private secretary, recently named one of the nation's 75 most important women, will receive an honorary degree from Pfeiffer College.

Miss Woods, who will receive a Doctor of Humane Letters degree, will be one of four persons to receive honorary degrees at graduation exercises May 16.

The others are Mrs. C. C. Weaver of Winston-Salem, widow of the Atlantic Coast Conference commissioner and a leader in North Carolina Methodism; William Stephen Farrow, administrator of the Methodist Home in Charlotte; and the Rev. Robert H. Stamey, former president of Brevard College and now pastor of Grace United Methodist Church.

Diplomas will be presented to 184 graduates.

Blood Tests In Paternity Suit

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Blood tests of Frank Sinatra Jr., a woman who claims he fathered her child and the year-old infant have been ordered by a Clark County District Court judge.

Carol Sue Edmondston, 28, charged in a paternity suit that the entertainer is the natural father of her son, Victor Randolph, who was born in Chicago last April 20. She requested payment of birth expenses and support for the child until he becomes of age.

The blood tests, ordered Monday, were sought by Sinatra's attorney in an attempt to determine paternity.

the shallow valley; at night the sparkling lights outline what looks like a 400-mile-long city. But take Route 1, the coastal highway. It navigates the Big Sur country where bulging promontories cut man down to mortal size as he hugs the winding, narrow ribbon of highway.

From there, we flew north to the Olympic Peninsula. It thrusts into the Pacific past busy Puget Sound, its loins shielded by roadless rain forests and skirted by rocky, windswept beaches.

We watched Indian tribesmen digging clams on the beaches and hunting in the forests. They are still the masters of this Northwest paradise of salmon-filled rivers and glaciated mountains, sharing their traditional hunting grounds only with the graceful elk that slip down from the high mountains in the winter to graze near the beaches and the lakes.

Conservationists told us in Seattle that projected nuclear power plants and oil refineries threaten the peninsula. "If it were not for technology, this region might never have to enter the 20th century," one of them said.

We drove along Route 2 across Washington State, and saw where man had worked his will on the Coulee country of central Washington, erecting there the largest concrete dam in the world. But we saw that man's engineering pales beside that of nature herself who carved vast, rock-walled valley mazes with her rivers. The Grand Coulee Dam in that environment looks like a peanut caught between the knuckles of the earth.

We continued driving along Route 2, beyond the Coulee and across the Great Divide into Montana. The scenery changed bewilderingly, telescoped by the Interstate. We drove through the sandy scrublands of what could have been the Sahara; then it was as though we entered the rocky, purple plains of Algeria and roared through the snow-tipped Swiss Alps, our

Gunman Robbed Smithfield Bank

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — A gunman escaped with about $8,000 from a branch of the Smithfield National Bank Monday. It was North Carolina's ninth bank robbery of the year.

The branch is on a truck lane street which keeps traffic out of downtown Smithfield. It was not known in which direction the robber fled.

wheels sliding on the Great Divide snow. Finally it was into the steppes of Russia in Montana. All this in just one day's driving.

Americans have conquered and almost buried much of the natural landscape on the Eastern Seaboard, but they are still dwarfed by the vast, open distances of Montana. Yet the blight seeps in.

Montanans have seen how fumes from a smelter can foul up a chain of remote valleys.

Court Reverses Draft Conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court has reversed the draft conviction of Christian Winslow Hayden, 23-year-old son of actor Sterling Hayden.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals' decision Monday said young Hayden properly had claimed conscientious objector status from the first time he registered in 1966 with his Los Angeles draft board.

The board had rejected his claim and ordered him to report for induction. He later was convicted of failure to report for induction and of failure to report for a preinduction physical.

"And look at those cheap, ugly colored cracker box homes down the valley," declared an aide from the governor's office at Helena. "We would prefer the tourist, garbage trails and all, to more industry and more settlers," he added.

We flew to Las Vegas, hired a station wagon with cans of drinking water sloshing in the back, and drove across into Death Valley, and found that no industrial encroachment need be feared there. Men have long ceased searching for the mythical silver and gold lodes thought buried beneath the valley's burning sands or hidden in the red clay cliffs.

In summer the long, dramatic sweep of Death Valley is the hottest and driest place in

'Wrong' Stolen Car Recovered

BOSTON (AP) — Herbert J. Richman called police recently to report that his 1970 model car, purchased with money his insurance company had paid him after his 1969 model was stolen 18 months earlier, had been stolen.

Shortly afterward, police called to say they had recovered his car. It turned out to be the 1969 model.

America, as the place names attest: Furnace Creek, Bad Water.

But later in the year, when we drove across from Las Vegas, the valley was cool and still, and the sky seemed bluer. Jet streams from aircraft flying out of Los Angeles streaked the distant sky, but there was no noise. You could stand at Zabriskie Point and ponder the geometrically split mudhills in peace.

Death Valley spills into Ne-Singer Grateful 'To Be Alive'

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Singer Tommy Leonetti, recovering from surgery in which his malignant right kidney was removed, says, "I'm grateful to be alive."

Leonetti, 38, said Monday he hopes to leave Glendale Adventist Hospital in a week and resume his career at hotels in Reno, Nev., and Lake Tahoe.

The singer was host of a television talk show in Australia and returned to the United States last December for a series of night club and television appearances. He underwent surgery April 11 when doctors found a malignant tumor in a kidney.

vada, and as we climbed out of those purple depths, our station wagon bumping and skidding on the gravel road, the terrain gained even greater drama. Bold, jagged escarpments tumbled like waterfalls into the naked valleys, sculptured fantasies by a whimsical God.

As an early moon hovered over that painted landscape, Horst laid down his camera. "Europeans would go absolutely wild over this," he declared. "What an advantage any American with an automobile has over the rest of the world. That such gorgeous beauty is so accessible . . ."

Grand Canyon was merely a level horizon as we approached the south rim through northern Arizona. We peeped over and it unfolded below, a fantastic landscape that took the Colorado 10 million years to carve, a river that glistened like a wet silk handkerchief below.

We descended by helicopter into that vast opening, bouncing in air currents much more violently than we ever did under fire in Vietnam, goggle-eyed at the gigantic rock temples and buttes that passed by.

But we discovered that beautiful America was not all spectacle. It was sunset silhouetting fishnets draping a rotting jetty on a north Maine beach in late autumn, or a sunrise bathing the South Carolina swamps in a golden hue that glazes the mud and sets the old oaks afire.

It was the solitude of the Old Euphrata Cloisters in the rolling Pennsylvania hills; and the joy of bright flowers framing a religious statue in the garden of the Carmel Mission on El Camino Real.

It was also the pristine loveliness of the snow flowers flirting on snow-clad Mt. Rainier; and the old print reflection on a Cajun plantation house in the still water of the Bayou Teche in Louisiana.

But only two hour drive away from the bayous is Baton Rouge, dirty and unkempt, a noxious haze drifting over it like a devil's halo.

That, too, is America.
