Full House At Forum Of Candidates

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The 20 hopefuls — four running for the office of mayor, and 16 for city council, drew a full house of interested citizens last night at the Fellowship Hall of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The forum, sponsored by the Greenville League of Women Voters, followed the outline of four minutes speaking time and four minutes question and answer period for each candidate.

Mrs. Natalie Clark, president of the league, moderated the forum and introduced the candidates to the audience.

Issues discussed in general followed those emphasized by the candidates in their statements carried by this newspaper last Sunday and statements enumerated in the pamphlet printed by the league which is the result of questionnaire sent the candidates.

The subject of swimming pools received as much or more attention than any one individual issue especially from non-incumbent candidates. It was noted by candidates, in reply to questions from the floor, that money for a swimming pool could be raised with assistance from the federal government, and that the city now has land available that is sufficient for the purpose of building one or two pools.

Several of the candidates also leaned heavily on the issue of an elected, or a combination of elected and appointed members for the city board of education.

Kidnap Wilson Woman

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Two young men abducted a Wilson County woman Thursday and later released her after kidnapping a second woman near Petersburg, Va., early today, police reported.

The two young white men who kidnaped the women were believed to be traveling north somewhere in Virginia early today with their second hostage, authorities said.

They are armed, and one talked of killing the first hostage, 35-year-old Mrs. Lois Musgrave, police said. She was not harmed.

Mrs. Musgrave's husband said his wife was released Thursday night and that she arrived back home about 8:30 p.m. Police said the two men released her after they realized that her car was about out of gas.

She said the two men kidnaped another woman who was alone in her car. The men told Mrs. Musgrave to drive south on what little gas she had left.

She said she drove south on U.S. 301 about 10 miles with the gunman with the hostage in the second woman's car following. Then, Mrs. Musgrave said, she suddenly noticed in her rearview mirror that the car behind her was gone.

Mrs. Musgrave said she stopped at a telephone booth and called a sister, who suggested she drive toward Wilson as far as she could.

Mrs. Musgrave used 75 cents to buy gasoline and ran out of gas near Weldon, which is about 60 miles north of Wilson. Wilson County's chief deputy, W. R. Pridgen, said the two men kidnaped Mrs. Musgrave as she was working in a flowerbed at her home in Kenly, near Wilson in northern North Carolina.

He said she tried to escape before the men forced her into her car, but they grabbed her before she could run far.

Pridgen said the men apparently also broke into a house nearby and ate food from a refrigerator and some leftovers that had been mixed as garbage.

After taking Mrs. Musgrave hostage, the two men gagged her with a piece of nylon hosiery and kept that in place by tying another piece around her head, authorities said.

Basis of qualification deemed necessary by various candidates varied, but most stated, in one way or another, a school board member should be a person qualified as the result of a deep interest, proper qualifications and some involvement in school activities.

Bus transportation figured heavily in the discussions. On this issue, candidates claimed it would not be a service easily provided, but all who mentioned or were asked about it agreed Greenville was in need of some type of bus system. One or two candidates pointed out that a bus system would not be self-supporting but would require some type of city subsidy.

Recreation within the city — programs, facilities and land, was another subject to which much time and attention was devoted in a general way. Aside from swimming pools very little was said of specific programs, but the comments of candidates included mention of need for stepped up recreation as part of the life of Greenville, for youngsters, teen-agers, and adults, and senior citizens.

Several of the candidates plumped for election of councilmen on a ward precinct basis, alluding to the current situation where, it was many times stated, the western and northern sections of Greenville are not represented by a councilman from these areas. Early in the forum, references to "east" and "west" Greenville began to be heard, and soon became a standard identification point when candidates described their background or history.

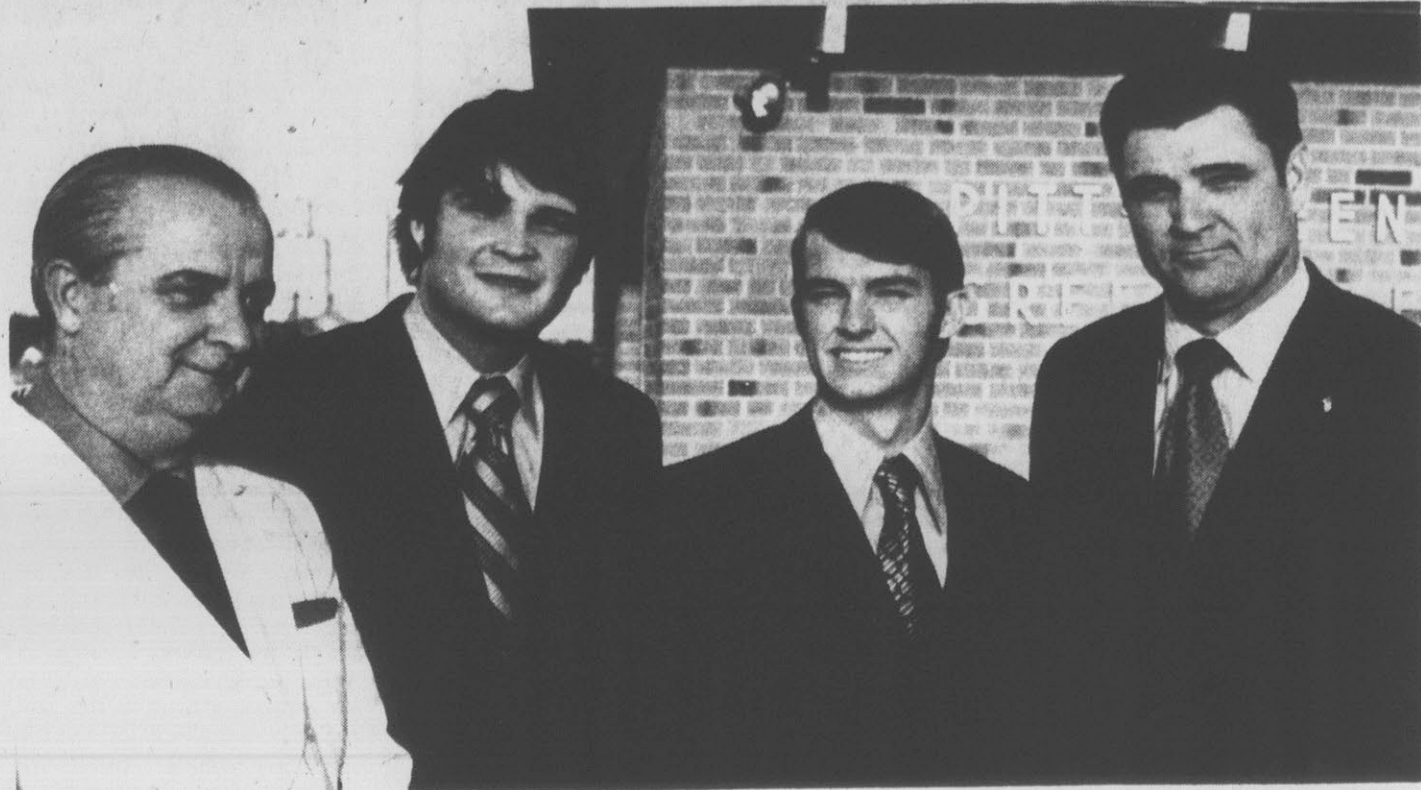

Comments on the status of the Central Business Development Project came mostly from incumbents. In statements and in answers to questions from the floor, explanations were given on the source of local funds and services in kind which would provide for the city's payment of the approximately $1,600,000 share of the project.

Other subjects receiving more than passing reference included better pay for policemen, firemen and other city employees. The police force, in particular, was the focus of attention from four or five candidates who call for higher pay and more rigid qualifications for city police members.

The possibility of establishing some type of human relations program exceeding in scope the various social services now existing came in for attention from some candidates and was the subject of queries from the floor.

Street improvements, better lighting, increased numbers of signal lights were all mentioned several times during the forum. This was one area in which all candidates referring to the need were unanimous in noting that good progress has already been made, and that future work in this area would be a continuation of present work, rather than instigation of new policies or projects.

The May 4 municipal election is the first in Greenville that will take place since the League of Women Voters have received their charter as a regular chapter within the state.

Right Of Dissent Risked By Demonstrators: Mizell

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Congressman Wilmer D. Mizell, R-N.C., said here Thursday night that next week's scheduled antiwar protest in Washington represents a danger to the right to dissent because any violence on the part of the protesters will invite repression.

Mizell, who represents North Carolina's Fifth Congressional District, spoke at a banquet for the Senior class at East Carolina University during which some 34 seniors were honored for outstanding academic accomplishment.

The Representative said that by inconveniencing people, protesters "alienate rather than persuade; they incite blind anger rather than provoking new thought on the issue with which they are concerned."

Prior to the banquet, Mizell told newsmen that he felt war veterans who were involved in the recent demonstrations in Washington "conducted themselves the way men should" in their behavior but added that he did not necessarily agree with their motives.

Asked about his opinion of the proposed medical school at ECU, Mizell said that he would like to see a medical school established in eastern North Carolina, noting that he believed that if medical students were trained in the East, some of them would stay.

Speaking of his support for medical schools, he said that "I came out for what I feel was needed to develop rural America..." and meet the health needs in rural America.

Mizell said that the redistricting plan adopted in the General Assembly this week is "probably the best plan I've seen as far as benefitting North Carolina." He noted that it should offer fair representation. "I hate to lose two counties (Yadkin and Davie) after getting to know the people but at the same time I would welcome any county to my district. Wilkes County was added to the Fifth District under the realignment.

The congressman would not be pinned down to put his hat in the race for the Republican nomination for governor but said "be consistent and optimistic."

Policeman And Rescue Squad Captain Receive Public Servant Awards

Greenville Police Sgt. Douglas "Red" Ross and Capt. D. R. Daniels of the Greenville Rescue Squad were honored last night by the Jaycees as recipients of the second annual Public Servant Awards.

Guest speaker for the awards ceremony, N. C. Rep. Sam J. Bundy commended the two men for their service to the community during the past year.

Bundy urged Jaycees to develop citizenship through service and suggested that in order to obtain this goal, "You must set an example for the young people of the community" and "be consistent and optimistic."

The representative added that members should support their club's activities and work in their local community. He stressed that they should "have a purpose in life" and "always see the good things in people."

Daniels, a graduate of Belvoir High School, has completed various schools and training courses during his service with the Rescue Squad. Among them are standard and advanced first aid courses, a five-year N. C. Rescue College, first aid instructor course, an ambulance school at Baltimore, Md., and a school offering instruction in handling injured persons and administering general first aid.

Other courses completed included a sprinkler system school, pump school, ambulance and rescue school at Pitt Tech, a radiological monitoring course for civil defense, and an advanced heavy duty rescue school at Hammond, N. J.

The captain, a full time member of the Rescue Squad, is currently serving as a Boy Scout first aid counselor. He has participated in state rescue competition for the past eight years and has seen his team win first or second place in each of the eight years.

Daniels is a member of Grace Free Will Baptist Church.

Sgt. Ross also has a lengthy list of schools and training courses to his credit during his 12 year tenure as a member of the Greenville Police Department and was credited with being effective in restoring and helping maintain order during the racial trouble at Rose High School last year.

Among his course credits are a

Liquor Bill Is Enacted By Senate

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate today voted down attempts by opponents to delay the question and enacted by a 21-12 vote a bill calling for a referendum on liquor-by-the-drink in Moore County.

The county will be the first in the state to vote on the controversial question.

The Senate approved the bill Thursday 27-19 despite cries that it would be an invitation to the Mafia and gamblers to move into North Carolina.

Sen. L.P. McLendon, D-Guilford, told the Senate he was not using "scare tactics," but said the Mafia would move into North Carolina within five years and control liquor by the drink if the bill is enacted.

"Before you invite the gamblers to North Carolina," McLendon said, "you ought to consider the political life of the state." He said the bill "could change the political climate."

Moore County includes the resort towns of Pinehurst and Southern Pines. Under the measure, 15 per cent of the registered voters in the county could petition the county board of elections to call a referendum.

Opponents contended that enactment of the bill would open the way for more local drink measures to be introduced.

A statewide liquor by the drink bill was killed by the House earlier this session.

The Senate rejected three amendments, two by Sen. Jyles Coggins, D-Wake, before approving the bill Thursday.

Sen. Bobby Lee Combs, D-Catawba, proposed that the measure become effective next Jan. 1 instead of upon ratification. This was shouted down.

The Senate tabled by 24-23 a motion by Sen. Tom Strickland, D-Wayne, to send the bill back to the Senate Alcoholic Beverage Control Committee.

Coggins sought to: (1) place a 20 per cent tax on each drink, and (2) allow persons to take their own bottle of liquor into places that sell liquor by the drink.

He described his second pro-

Waste Pours In

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A reporter and two fishermen say they found at least 75 dead fish Thursday in a creek that feeds into the Catawba River.

Upstream from the fish kill, the men said, an industrial plant was pouring a black liquid directly into the creek at a rate the plant's manager estimated to be 800 gallons every minute.

The Catawba River and Lake Wylie that it feeds into have been the subject of much discussion lately, with South Carolina saying Lake Wylie on its side is too filthy to swim in, and North Carolina saying the river is safe for swimmers on its side.

The creek where the dead fish were found, Crowder's Creek, is in Gaston County of North Carolina. The creek reaches the Catawba in North Carolina.

The reporter and the fishermen said the creek and the area where the plant's waste was being dumped into the creek smelled like human excrement.

posal as "a poor man's amendment." He said, "They could go in and get drunk without paying an exorbitant price."

If approved by the voters, liquor by the drink could be sold in class A restaurants seating 50 or more persons. The hours of sale would be from noon until midnight.

Sen. Norris Reed, D-Craven, who led the floor fight for the bill, said he lived under conditions where liquor by the drink was sold and "it is a much better way of controlling it."

Sen. Charles B. Deane Jr., D-Richmond, whose county adjoins Moore, said the Senate would be setting a statewide policy on liquor by the drink by approving the bill.

Another senator, Norman Joyner, R-Iredell, a minister, contended the bill would begin a "piecemeal" move to establish liquor by the drink across North Carolina.

An undertaker, Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, said the measure opens the door "for more liquor, for more highway deaths ..."

Rash Of Arson, Blasts

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Several National Guard vehicles in San Jose were burned by arsonists today and in Southern California two more bomb blasts hit the Los Angeles area Thursday night. One of the bombs exploded at a Bank of America and another in a supermarket containing 15 shoppers and employees.

No injuries were reported. The bank bombing was the 17th at branches of the Bank of America, the world's largest, since February 1970 and the third this week.

Police and fire officials at San Jose said arsonists pulled gasoline tank plugs and ignited at least six personnel carriers.

Damage was set at about $5,000. Police issued an alert for a 1951 model car containing several persons seen leaving the area.

In the community of Mill Valley, across the Golden Gate strait from San Francisco, police arrested a high school sophomore Thursday for investigation in the bombings of two Bank of America branches and a high school rest room.

Police held Bruce Paul Lohmann, 16, a student at Tamalpais High School, for investigation of intent to injure with destructive devices.

They said his arrest stemmed from Tuesday's bombing of a boy's restroom at the school, the March 23 bombing of the bank's Sausalito branch and the April 23 bombing of the branch in Mill Valley. Official emphasized that there was no indication that the youth had any connection with any other in the recent series of bombings in California.

Bank of America officials say they have no idea why their bank should be attacked. They have estimated that total damage to their facilities has amounted to more than a half-million dollars since February.

After some of the bombings persons calling themselves youthful radicals have written letters claiming responsibility.

Nine Found Guilty Of Refusing To Disperse

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Nine defendants were found guilty in District Court here yesterday of failing to disperse when ordered following a demonstration March 30 in front of the home of East Carolina University president Dr. Leo W. Jenkins.

The nine convicted were among 31 individuals slated for trial yesterday on charges stemming from the incident. Two defendants were found not guilty, one case was dismissed, and one case was continued. The State, through district prosecutor James C. Mills, chose not to prosecute 18 of the defendants and their cases were not prosessed.

The March 30 arrests were made after a group of 700 to 1,000 persons assembled in front of Dr. Jenkins' Fifth Street home to demonstrate for more relaxed visitation privileges on the ECU campus.

Under an old visitation policy, women students could visit men's dormitory rooms two nights per week. Students were seeking supervised visitation seven nights per week.

As a result of the demonstration and the resulting arrests, the executive committee of ECU's Board of Trustees suspended all visitation privileges. So far the board has not seen fit to reinstate either the old policy or put into effect any new

Update Old Coat Into A Cape

UPDATED COAT With warmer weather here why not put that old winter coat to good use by transforming it into a cape. The fuller the coat is, the easier it is to re-shape it. First cut off sleeves and open side seams. Material from sleeves may be added to give a fuller look. Next slope shoulders, make slits on the sides for arms, and presto — a cape.

If the coat isn't full, repeat the above steps, but remove buttons and button hole panel. Then buy a contrasting piece of material and button both sides of the added panel at the shoulders. A belt can be made from the same fabric. One rule to follow when selecting a contrasting piece of material is to make sure the fabric is the same weight and texture as the coat material. The cape may be treated with a water repellent spray to make it all-weatherized. The finished cape is shown here, with a contrasting panel in front.

Part Time Wife Not Worth Effort

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I suppose you've had dozens of letters like this, but here goes. My wife of over 15 years came to me about two months ago and said, "I've been in love with another man for a year and I want to be with him as much as I can, so I'm leaving you."

It turns out the guy is married with a young child. He doesn't want to leave his family, but he can be away from them legitimately three or four nights a week, so my wife moved into a "love nest."

I am now batching it with my teen-age son. My wife comes home every Saturday and goes back on Sunday. She says she's not sure what she wants, and it's still too soon to know. She claims she still cares for me, and isn't sure she wants a divorce, but she is happiest when she is with this other guy. I have tried to be open-minded about it, but it's tearing me up inside and my ego is down to zero. Any advice?

NUMBER TWO

DEAR NUMBER TWO: Don't be so "open-minded" that your brains fall out. Give "See Saw, Marjorie Daw" a deadline to decide which man she wants. Tell her you don't want a part-time wife. And whether or not there will be a divorce shall not be decided by her alone because you may want to be free to fall in love with someone else and marry again. And be tough! Nice guys finish last.

DEAR ABBY: I am 11 years old and already have a problem for Dear Abby. My mother has always told me that I should finish up the food on my plate. So I have been finishing up my plate.

Then, I read in a book on manners that a person should always leave a little something on his plate. So what should I do?

MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED UP: When you're eating at home, "finish-up" what's on your plate. When you are a guest or dining out, leave a little something.

DEAR ABBY: My parents are very well off. Six years ago I married a "poor" boy. (Poor by my mother's standards.) We love each other. He doesn't drink or run around, and he's a wonderful father to our two sons. He works hard and steady, and I have everything I need, plus we save a little for our future. I am very happy. So what's my problem? My mother. She thinks I could have done better and she never lets me forget it.

Everytime I go to her house, I cry all the way home. To her, money and material things are essential to a happy marriage and she insists I can't be really "happy" because I don't have as much as some of the girls I grew up with.

I try so hard to love my mother, regardless, but sometimes it's difficult. Please tell me what to do?

POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Tell your mother that as far as you are concerned, you couldn't have done better. And if she doesn't quit playing on that one string, she's going to see less of you.

DEAR ABBY: We just buried our beautiful 17-year-old daughter. She died from an overdose of drugs.

Now I realize it was partly her father's and my fault. Drug information classes were held at our church, but we never got around to going. Our PTA also had drug clinics where reading material was distributed, advising parents on how to help their children handle the problem. We didn't go there either. We didn't think it was "our" problem. In fact, we didn't even know our daughter was on anything until it was too late.

I am filled with remorse and shame. Nothing will bring our daughter back, but perhaps if you print this, it will save someone else's child.

TOO LATE

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

BROWNIE FUDGE PIE — It has rich chocolate flavor and is easy to make.

Fudge Pie Appeals To Husbands

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A food editor friend of mine once asked dozens and dozens of husbands to name their favorite kind of pie. When she told me the result we were both surprised. We thought the vote would go to apple pie, but the husbands gave their blessing to chocolate pie.

So here's to husbands: the following recipe for Brownie Fudge Pie is one of the best of chocolate pies. And it's different. We have two dozen recipes in our chocolate-pie file but not another one is just like this. It's rich in flavor, has brownie-like texture, looks pretty and is easy to make. You can serve it plain, but at my house it was enjoyed with a topping of vanilla ice cream.

BROWNIE FUDGE PIE

Unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate
1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar

1/2 cup granulated sugar
3 large eggs
1/2 cup milk
1/4 cup dark corn syrup
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup pecan halves

Bake pastry shell in a preheated 450-degree oven on a shelf below the center of the oven for 5 minutes. Remove from oven. If pastry has puffed, pat down gently. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees.

In a 2-quart saucepan over low heat melt chocolate and butter. Leaving the saucepan over low heat, gradually add brown sugar, beating at low speed of electric beater until smooth. Remove from heat. Beat in granulated sugar. Add eggs, 1 at a time, beating after each addition. Beat in milk, corn syrup and salt. Pour into pie shell. Bake in the 350-degree oven for 25 minutes. Remove from oven. Arrange pecans in a circle 1 inch from edge of pie. Return to 350-degree oven and bake 20 minutes. Cool completely. Filling will be puffed when removed from oven and edges slightly cracked; filling will settle as pie cools.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Rose High Students Lead All N.C. In Math Exams

Another first has been chalked up for students of Rose High School, with the announcement they lead all schools in North Carolina in the scoring on the 21st Annual Mathematics Examination.

The annual math exam, sponsored jointly by the Mathematical Association of America, the Society of Actuaries, Mu Alpha Theta, and the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, is administered to thousands of high school students throughout the U.S.

Mrs. Kemp Baldwin, math teacher at Rose and coordinator of the annual program since its inception at Rost during the 1959 school year, made the announcement Thursday after receiving a letter from Sherrill G. Hall, the North Carolina Contest Chariman.

"Because your top three scores had such high grades on the test," he wrote, "Rose High School has the number one team score for the State."

A list of the top scorers among students in the state included two from Rose High—David Howell in fifth place and Christopher Indorf in seventh. Their scores, combined with the high score of Robert Carraway, Jr., Rose High's third place winner, gave Greenville the big lead in total points.

Of the top ten high schools on the list, Greenville is the only one in the eastern part of the state. Their lead over number two Brevard Senior High School is a very large one, a matter of Greenville's total of 154.25 points compared to Brevard's 134.50. The third through tenth highest scoring schools are much closer

Future Teacher Club Gives Tea

Members of the Junius H. Rose Future Teacher Club last week gave a tea in honor of 80 Rose High faculty members. This was held on the occasion of the weekly staff meeting as part of the week-long observation of Teacher Appreciation Week.

Punch was served at the tea, with Future Teacher Club president Lynn Phelps and Debbie Edward, vice-president, serving the punch.

Secretary of the club, Kathy Kirk, assisted by Lindy McCombs, greeted faculty members. Others assisting in the program were Vicky McDaniel, Debbie James, Cathy Clark, Colene Kelly, Joan Marr and Lois Brown.

Mrs. Kemp Baldwin, advisor to the FTA members, introduced the future teachers to the staff of Rose High.

Completes Work For Doctorate At Indiana Univ.

Wilbert R. Ball, counselor at East Carolina University, has completed the requirements for the EdD degree in counseling at Indiana University.

The degree will be awarded in ceremonies June 14 on the Bloomington campus.

Dr. Ball has been a member of the ECU faculty since 1964, having taught industrial and technical education before becoming affiliated with the Guidance and Counseling Center in 1967.

Dr. Ball received the AB degree from Fairmont State College, Fairmont, W. Va.; the MEd from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio; and did graduate work at NCSU and Arizona University at Tempe.

Senior High School, Pineville, 126; Durham High School, Durham, 125.25; Jesse O. Sanderson High School, Raleigh, 125.00; Terry Sanford Senior High School, Fayetteville, 119.75; North Mecklenburg High School, Huntersville, 117.75; West Stanly High School, Oakboro, 113.25; and West Forsyth High School, Clemmons, 109.25. "I was very elated over the results," Mrs. Baldwin commented, "and of course we are hoping that Rose High will do well in the national level."

She explained that following announcements of results on the state level, the scores from the number one team in each state are to be calibrated to give the national results. "This is where the competition is extremely difficult," she pointed out.

National determination is made from the results of the scores achieved on the state level, Mrs. Baldwin said, noting that there was not to be a matter of taking new or different tests.

"This is the first year Rose High has achieved the top position in North Carolina. What is so unusual is that two of our students, David Howell and Robert Carraway, Jr. are juniors, Chris Indorf is the only senior of the three."

This means that when the 1971 annual exams come around, there will be two veteran winners on hand to give Rose High a more than even chance to place high on the list again next year.

Radioactive Cargo Toppled In Mishap

WINGATE, N.C. (AP) — Representatives of the Atomic Energy Commission supervised the reloading onto a freight car today of two metal drums of low-level radioactive material which toppled to the ground in a derailment.

The AEC said the 15½ tons of uranium hexafluoride posed no danger because the drums weren't broken during Thursday's derailment of a Seaboard Coast Line freight.

The 10-foot steel drums were en route to the AEC fuel enrichment facilities at Oak Ridge, Tenn., from a uranium supplier in Liverpool, England, by way of Norfolk, Va.

After the uranium compound is enriched, it becomes fuel for nuclear reactors used to generate electricity.

Radioactivity specialists from the North Carolina Board of Health also examined the fallen containers and said there were no leaks. A Seaboard employee said the derailment was caused by a large piece of steel which fell off a flat car and lodged between the wheels.

A representative of the AEC said shipments of radioactive material move into Oak Ridge and other nuclear centers by rail and truck almost daily.

The derailment occurred on the same track used last year to move without incident a shipment of nerve gas for dumping off the coast.

A helicopter brought soldier specialists from Ft. Bragg to the derailment.

A steady procession of people walked the few hundred yards from U.S. 74 to the vicinity of the wreck, but policemen kept them from getting too close.

The derailment occurred between Wingate and Marshville, about 30 miles east of Charlotte.

Realignment Job Is Well Done

Realignment of North Carolina's Congressional Districts enacted by the General Assembly in recent days offers about as good a solution to the problem as could be hoped for.

So far as the First Congressional District is concerned, the addition of Greene and Carteret Counties were the best possible choices. Their interests, economically and otherwise, are closely tied to those of the other counties already in the district. They already have established political ties with other counties in the district.

Equally important, by moving Greene from the Second District and Carteret from the Third, no great shake-up was caused in those other two districts.

This important legislation hammered out in the House and Senate held the shifting of counties from one district to another to a minimum. It was accomplished without placing two incumbent Congressmen in the same new district. Furthermore, the new alignment appears to be well within the limits set by the courts for equal population representation in each district.

Certainly there will be some people in various parts of the state unhappy with the new arrangement. There are few changes made anywhere which do not bring cries of protest. By and large, however, we believe North Carolinians recognize the excellent job done by the 1971 legislature in handling the difficult problem of realigning Congressional Districts.

At least on the surface that problem was handled more logically, with less difficulty and with less purely politically motivated maneuvering than has been the case in the legislature when other sessions have faced a similar problem.

No Question But That State Should Proceed

The Legislature should listen to Col. Paul Denison, chief of the Army Corps of Engineers' Wilmington District.

Appearing before the House and Senate C & D Committees in Raleigh he warned of problems in connection with navigation, storm damage and public safety if Baldhead Island is developed.

This is still another reason why the state should acquire this island and preserve it in its natural state.

The evidence seems overwhelming to us that the state should proceed with acquiring Baldhead Island.

Arab Friends Show Strain

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A dangerous backlash against Washington is now building up among this country's best friends in the Arab world as a result of President Nixon's apparent inability to change Israel's mind about extensive territorial acquisitions.

If Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who is now on his way to both Egypt and Israel, is unable to budge Israel in face-to-face talks, that backlash will bring a jolting end to the brief era of good feeling between moderate Arab countries and the U.S. which started last summer with the Suez Canal ceasefire.

Already deep strains have developed. For example, the sudden cancellation of the long-scheduled state visit here by Morocco's King Hassan last week resulted only marginally from the reason given: his problems back home in setting up an Arab summit meeting later this spring.

Far more important was his displeasure over the Nixon administration's inability so far to make good on its implied commitment to Egypt. That commitment, never spelled out in writing, was that, if Egypt offered to sign a genuine peace agreement with Israel, the United States would obtain Israel's agreement to withdraw from the Sinai Peninsula and from all but "insubstantial" portions of other Arab lands seized in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The problem for King Hassan and leaders of such other pro-U.S. countries as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait is not just that the dangerous deadlock will soon threaten resumption of war along the Suez Canal. That is, of course, bad enough in itself.

Much worse, however, is the personal equation. These Arab states at the specific request of the U.S. used their own influence to persuade Egypt's President Anwar Sadat to accept the U.S. formula. On assurances from Washington, in other words, they encouraged Sadat to say flatly that he would sign a peace agreement with Israel, a concession filled with immense political danger for him, in return for Israel's withdrawal. They did this with assurances that the U.S. could then deliver Israel.

That was more than two months ago. Since then, Israel's real intentions in the Sinai have come into our perspective. Not only has Israel refused to agree to withdraw from the Sinai, it has also issued a public statement that an Israeli city is to be built at Sharm El Sheikh, the strategic headland at the foot of the Sinai overlooking the entrance into the Gulf of Aqaba. That statement was described by one top Nixon administration Mideast expert as "flagrant flouting" of President Nixon's peace effort.

Thus King Hassan and other moderate Arab statesmen who have cooperated hand-in-glove with the U.S. are fast losing their credibility within their own Arab world. They will look like American patsies unless Israel has a quick change of mood.

But no quick change of mood is likely in Israel. To the contrary, there are strong indications that the Israelis are preparing an unpleasant reception for Secretary Rogers when he arrives there next week.

What Rogers must get out of Israel to make his risky Middle East tour worthwhile — and to prevent total disillusionment with the U.S. among the moderate Arab states — is public agreement that opening the Suez Canal will be only the first step toward Israeli withdrawal with the Sinai.

So far, however, Israel is talking precisely the other

Strength For Today

ONLY IN PART One of the most appalling circumstances of modern life is the complacency with which we assume that we know most of the right answers. One would think to read many books and magazines today that we are in a position to discover ultimate truth. All we need to do is just to apply the formulas of science and "prestige" the right answer comes up.

But this, of course, is folly. The absolutely correct answer never comes up. St. Paul reminded us centuries ago that we know in part. This was true not only in the first Christian century but eminently true today. There will never be a time when we will grasp truth in its entirety. But we need always to be grasping at truth, for without even this little part of truth we should indeed perish.

Thomas Edison once said that we do not know seven billionths of one per cent of the truth. Why he chose seven billionths instead of some other amount we, of course, do not know. But we get the point. This greatest of all scientific discoverers believed that what he and others had found out was nothing compared with truth in all its fullness.

Let us be humble and remain humble. Let us try to discover all the truth we can, but let us always remember that we know in part — only in part.

The Welfare Solution

WASHINGTON — One of the major political issues in the 1972 political campaign is going to be welfare. The American worker is furious at those who collect money for doing nothing. Gov. Ronald Reagan was the first to sense welfare as the nation's No. 1 "gut" issue, and now President Nixon has decided to run with it.

In a speech last week, to Republican governors, the President discussed the welfare picture and mentioned that one of the things wrong with welfare is that people would rather take money from the government than work at what they considered "menial" jobs.

The President told his audience, "Scrubbing floors or emptying bedpans—my mother used to do that—is not enjoyable work, but a lot of people do it, and there is as much dignity in that as there is in any other work to be done in this country—including my own."

My friend Sid Liebes, who works out at Stanford as a physicist, has been giving a lot of thought to the problem of menial work and how we can get people who are on welfare to take it.

He said, "What President Nixon says about menial jobs having as much dignity as his work is just not so. Have you ever seen a band play 'Hail to

Other Editors Say Violence To Us

(The Shelby Star) VIOLENCE in its many forms has become commonplace in our society, but that is no reason to merely shake our heads and wonder and worry. Let us think about the person who would kill, who would rob, who would bomb and who would destroy. Is he really so different from the person who would speed in his automobile, who would sneak into a dance without paying or who would fail to return change he wasn't entitled to? The difference is in degree, not in substance, is it not?

The man who murders is little worse, in the sense of breaking law and order, than the man who picks up a package of gum from a store and walks out. Both have broken the law, and both have meant to do what they did. Both are guilty of violating society's legal standards, even though the taking of life is by degree much worse than the taking of the gum. Yet, there is a parallel that defies all the contortions of excuse than can be voiced. For, if the gum thief considers himself just getting back at the store for a high-priced item, then the murderer can consider he's just getting back at society for some wrong done him.

The person who sets a grass fire in a critical-fire area and time is as much the criminal as the robber who set three robbery-victims afire. He has killed, even though one has murdered nature and the other has murdered a human being. The speeder is ever bit as much the criminal as the person who pulls his gun. The degree of criminality varies, but the criminal action does not. We tend, however, to think of the murderer as a criminal and the speeder as just one of those things. Yet, the more we think this way, the more we encourage the murderer. Each person must realize that what he does to break the law encourages others to break that same law and perhaps others.

THE BOMBER who works under guise of political philosophy and the stop-sign violator who works under guise of maybe-I-won't-get-caught-this-time share the same offense. The violence they both do cannot be separated, except by rationalization which does nothing to explain why they both did break a law. Law-breaking is not reserved for those who make the headlines, because for every murder, there are probably 100 persons who murder the law in lesser fashion. Laws are each made for all to obey; to break one is just like breaking another. We do violence to ourselves.

the Chief' when someone empties a bedpan?"

"Not since I've been in Washington," I admitted.

"To solve the problem of getting people willing to go off welfare to take menial work such as cleaning, scrubbing and washing dirty dishes, you have to understand something about the nature of work. It is a scientific fact that the higher people are in an organization the happier they are in what they're doing."

"The secretary is happier than the cleaning woman, the sales manager is happier than the secretary, the vice president is happier than the sales manager, and the president and chairman of the board are presumably happier at their work than anybody else."

Liebes continued, "There are exceptions, but as a rule this holds true. Most successful people say they wouldn't want to do anything else. The lower down on the ladder the more complaining you hear, until you get to the stockroom, where the turnover is frightening."

"The one thing we all know is that people have to feel they're doing something important or they just won't work."

"What do you propose?" "The Liebes Plan," he said. "I suggest that we reverse

License To Get Things

By JOY STILLEY Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) — If I ever earn to drive it won't be so that I can get PLACES. It will be so that I can get THINGS.

Trying to pay for something by check when you don't have a driver's license for identification is slightly more difficult than boarding an airplane with a rifle slung over one shoulder, a knife stuck through your belt and a button reading "I am a skyjacker" prominently displayed on your lapel.

Although I pay my income tax to the last penny, don't litter and absolutely never cross the street on red, without that driver's license I'm a criminal in the eyes of the cashier.

I have a Social Security number, a Blue Cross number, an employee identification number, a library card number, a checking account number, a savings account number and enough other sets of digits that belong exclusively to me to outfit a computer for life. Still, when it comes to cashing checks, I lack the one number sequence that really counts.

I haven't yet ascertained the correlation between being able to maneuver a car through traffic and living an upright life. But somehow possessing a driver's license puts you in a class with Boy Scouts in the trustworthy, honest and thrifty department. Not being able to drive automatically makes you suspect.

This being the case, I usually endeavor to make my purchases with cash, a transaction that does not require a knowledge of the rules of the road. However, on a recent occasion I found just the clock I'd been looking for in a department store and decided to make it mine via the check-writing routine. Ahead of me in the line, clutching some hi-fi equipment, was a definitely criminal typefrayed pants, dirty

Officers testified yesterday that those convicted were arrested following a warning issued by Joseph Caulder, director of security at the university, to disperse. The order to disperse, Caulder testified, was given after at least one organizer of the demonstration failed in an attempt to quiet the students.

Mike Jacobson, a leader of the demonstration told officers and newsmen the assembly "got out of hand."

the salary scales so that the people who are doing the most menial work get the highest pay.

"For example, the cleaning woman would start at $75,000 a year; her immediate superior, the floor waxer, would get $60,000 a year; a secretary would get $50,000 a year and so on, all the way up the line until you reached the president of the company, who would get $3,500 a year. The worst jobs in this country would pay the most."

"Since the people on top are happy in what they're doing, they don't need large sums of money to persuade them they're contributing to society."

"But wait a minute, Liebes," I said. "If the people on top only make $3,500 a year, they might quit and go on welfare."

"Never, Liebes said. "Only the people in the upper classes still consider it a disgrace to go eat at the government trough."

"There should be a hole in your plan," I said. "But I can't see one."

"It's foolproof," he replied. "Once you make menial jobs the highest paying ones, you solve your welfare problem overnight. Show me a street cleaner making $50,000 a year and I'll show you someone with as much dignity as the President of the United States."

"Look at those shifty eyes," I said to myself. "If they let him get by with a check I'll have no problem." After all, I thought smugly, I was wearing my best suit and looked affluent enough to have the price of the clock in my checking account.

The potential convict in front of me was processed as quickly as you could say, "May I see your driver's license, please?" and then it was my turn.

Although I produced any number of affidavits attesting to the fact that I was I, none was acceptable. I was sent up to the credit office where I was lengthily interrogated and, after having my picture taken I was allowed to quit the premises with the clock leaving behind what they obviously thought was a worthless check.

Next time I'll take my husband along to write the checks. He hates to go shopping but he'd hate even more to teach me to drive.

Nixon Flies To Greet Marines

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon left today for Camp Pendleton, Calif., to welcome the final contingents of the 1st Marine Division, just returned from five years of combat duty in Vietnam.

After the welcoming ceremonies, the President will fly by helicopter to the Western White House at nearby San Clemente where he plans to stay until Monday.

Nixon was accompanied on the trip west by his older daughter, Tricia.

music will be rendered by the choir of the church. At 12:30 p.m., lunch will be served on the church grounds.

The Winterville Church was organized in 1844 when a group banded themselves together into "The Baptist Church of Christ at Hancock Meeting House, Pitt County." William P. Biddle was named as pastor. In 1846 J. D. Ewell was chosen as pastor and the church had a membership of 30 persons.

The church ceased meeting for about 20 years due to the Civil War and reconstruction. In May, 1881, Dr. W. B. Knight of Snow Hill led a reorganization and the church was named Antioch Baptist Church.

In September, 1897, the Antioch Church was moved into Winterville and a white frame church with a belfry, steeple, baptistry and two Sunday School rooms was erected on the present site. The foundation of the original building is used today. In 1907 the name of the church was changed to Winterville Missionary Baptist Church and in 1937, the original sanctuary was brick veneered and Sunday School rooms were added.

The present educational building was added to the right of the sanctuary in 1956. In April, 1970, a new building program was started. The old sanctuary was rebuilt, enlarged and modernized with stained glass window in the front and a new wing added to the left of the sanctuary. The new wing includes a memorial room, pastor's study, church office and classrooms. A steeple was added with Schulmerich bells and chimes.

Since 1844 the church has had 31 pastors and the present pastor is Horace G. Thompson.

On Sunday evening at eight o'clock, revival services will begin and will continue through Friday evening, May 7.

The visiting evangelist will be the Rev. Eugene E. Johns, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Cramerton. He is a graduate of Furman University and Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

The pastor invites all members, former members and pastors and friends to attend the service.

Dear Friends and Fellow Citizens:

The office of mayor is a highly responsible position in city government. In a city of rapid growth and expanding community needs such as Greenville, we are all deeply concerned for the caliber of leadership we elect to this honorable office.

I've served this city as Mayor for five terms. Together, with the support and involvement of many farsighted and concerned citizens, we have seen Greenville come to grips with the problem of slum housing and hundreds of families live in a more decent environment because of it.

We have concerned ourselves with under employment and unemployment and as President of Greenville Industries and as Mayor countless hours were spent in securing high grade industries with a desirable wage scale for our labor market.

We have been concerned for the manner of growth of our city. In spite of bitter opposition, ordinances for adequate street width, curb and gutter requirements, set-back laws, street paving, and specific land for recreational purposes were provided.

We have problems today that must be met. I pledge my time, energy, and ability in making Greenville the focal point of progress if elected Mayor on May 4th.

Respectfully yours,
S. Eugene West

Survival Politics Have Replaced 'Revolution Now'

CONFRONTATION — Demonstrators heckle police in a radical enclave near the University of Wisconsin. The demonstrators wanted to hold a street party and the police said no. (AP Wirephoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE: Within the Alternative Society, the politics of survival have replaced the politics of Revolution Now. This dispatch, another in a series from the AP Special Assignment Team, details why.

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — For the handful of Yippie agitators working the crowds jamming the sidewalks of Mifflin Street, Palm Sunday was a frustrating day. Nothing was working.

For the most part, the 400 policemen were ignoring the taunts and the teasing snake dances through their lines.

But more importantly, the young people weren't reacting. They showed up 1,200 strong for a forbidden street dance in the radical enclave near the University of Wisconsin. But most had come to see the riot start.

All the ingredients were there for a riot like that of two springs ago when the Miffland community fought police for three nights over a street dance, banned by City Hall.

But this time there was no riot.

Not only in Mifflin Street, but throughout the Alternative Society, the politically minded are rethinking the tactic of wild-in-the-streets violence.

That doesn't mean it is being discarded. The potential remains whenever large numbers of radicals confront large numbers of police. But the tactic is being re-examined.

In the Alternative Society, where substantial numbers of disaffected young people are trying to lay the groundwork for their own tomorrow, violence and those who urge it are becoming increasingly suspect.

Since the widespread outbursts against the Cambodian invasion, demonstrations likely to become violent have drawn fewer participants.

Part of the reason is pure frustration. The war goes on. Part of the reason is awareness of increased police sophistication. Part of the reason is the rise in the importance of the women's liberation movement, which pushed the macho, or male-oriented, revolutionary backstage by stripping him of his glamour.

The vision of revolution around the corner, a dream widely shared just a year ago, has suddenly been succeeded by a less romantic dream that revolution will come only if young men and women work together, building, organizing and learning to survive in co-existence with a society perceived as hostile and doomed.

The politics of survival have replaced the politics of Revolution Now.

The energy that a year ago poured into demonstrations is now being used to organize food cooperatives, free medical clinics, free stores, free schools.

There is still room for demonstrations—and major ones are planned as part of the spring offensive to end the war.

But demonstrations and confrontations are no longer the central point of Alternative Society politics.

A new realism is dawning in the hip districts.

Alderman Paul Soglin of Madison was one of the first of the youth culture radicals to be elected to a straight society office (radicals now share the power in the Berkeley, Calif., city government).

Soglin's success was one of the bits of evidence some radical theoreticians seized on to project the idea of "liberated zones"—Alternative Society districts such as Miffland and Berkeley that could eventually be self-governing, self-supporting and even self-policing.

"That idea was baloney," said Soglin. "No one here ever really had the power in the long run to make Miffland liberated. All you could hope to build was an enlightened zone."

The shattering of dreams is felt most by the dreamers.

Take revolutionary Jeff Dowd of Seattle. He is only 20 but already he knows how it feels to be caught between Women's Lib and the FBI.

Dowd and his colleagues in the Sun Dance Collective of the Seattle Liberation Front were not only indicted on federal conspiracy charges, they were denounced within the New Left as male chauvinist pigs.

A year ago, Dowd and the other Sun Dancers were riding high as leaders of the SLF—a high energy, swaggering hip collective of collectives designed to bring the revolution to the Pacific Northwest in a hurry.

Not only in Seattle—where the liberation front exists only as a bad memory—but throughout the Alternative Society, the out-front "macho" is in trouble.

If he's too far out in front, the authorities will notice him. If he's too macho, the women will cut him down and they'll have the support of a substantial number of sympathetic men.

Women, once relegated to movement drudgery jobs, are now demanding, and as often as not getting, an equal say with men. And with machos out of the way, they can and are sharing leadership roles in communes and collectives and in organizing.

Men who refuse to struggle with their chauvinism are having to struggle with uncompromising women. "The enormous energy of sisters working together has not only transformed the movement internally, but when it moves out, it is a movement that confuses and terrifies America," wrote

Bernardine Dohrn, a Weatherwoman who has eluded the FBI for the past year on charges of flight to avoid prosecution for mob action, violation of federal anti-riot laws and conspiracy.

But women are not the only modifying force operating in the Alternative Society. Countermeasures from law enforcement agencies, such as the federal conspiracy charges against the Seattle Liberation Front, are building a widespread sense of frustration and paranoia.

At the same time, the fallout from incidents such as the bombing that killed a graduate student while damaging an Army research center at the University of Wisconsin, has helped rekindle the flower children legacy with its emphasis on love and non-violence.

Even the fanatical left Weather Underground has rethought its terror campaign. "This tendency to consider only bombings or picking up the gun as revolutionary, with the glorification of the heavier the better, we've called the military error," read a statement—

"New Morning, New Weather"—signed Bernardine Dohrn.

Carol, a former SDS member at the University of Georgia, sat in her apartment off Atlanta's Strip and told of a conversation she had with Mark Rudd before the Weather person went underground.

"We disagreed on something," she said. "I asked him what would happen if we continued to disagree after the revolution. He said we would talk about it. Then I asked him if after we talked about it, we still couldn't reach agreement. He told me, 'I guess then we'd have to pick up the gun.'"

Rudd would get nowhere with such talk in the Alternative Society. Tom Byers is the more representative revolutionary.

Byers, who is helping build the Country Doctor—a free medical clinic in Seattle, studied at Cornell under the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, a Jesuit priest now in prison for destroying draft records.

"He used to talk about patience," Byers said, "and he would say that as far as he could see, the Vietnamese people had greater love and patience for the American people than American radicals did."

"I thought that out and I thought that the kind of impotence and hatred involved in the movement is in reality bitter self-hatred and guilt."

"We were children in that we thought we could end this war. We didn't realize what we were up against. When we began to find out—in Chicago and at Kent State—we began to create a lot of new thinking. Now those who emerge from that have a different kind of hope, hope that recognizes the odds and what it costs."

Capt. Kotouc Acquitted On Charge Of Maiming

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Capt. Eugene M. Kotouc, acquitted by a military jury of maiming a prisoner after the My Lai assault in 1968, says he will remain in the Army.

"It's the best damn army in the world, I'll tell you that," said the former enlisted man after the jury returned its verdict Thursday. "Today is my day to be happy."

"I'm going to get out of this uniform now and put on my beer drinking clothes and head for the pool," he told newsmen. A group of relatives and friends from his hometown of Humboldt, Neb., cheered loudly as Col. James Burkhart of Richland, Ind., president of the court-martial board, read the verdict.

"Thank you, sir," said Kotouc as he snapped a salute to the jury.

The round-faced, baldish Kotouc was the third soldier to be acquitted of criminal charges filed by the Army in connection with the My Lai assault and its aftermath. Acquitted earlier of assault charges were Sgt. Charles Hutto of Tallulah, La., and S. Sgt. David Mitchell of St. Francisville, La.

Kotouc's acquittal, which follows the conviction of Lt. William L. Calley, Jr., on murder charges, leaves only one soldier still facing criminal charges. He is Capt. Ernest Medina, who awaits trial at Ft. McPherson on murder charges.

Another officer, Col. Oran K. Henderson, who commanded the Brigade at the time of the My Lai assault is presently being tried at Ft. Meade, Md., on charges of dereliction of duty in connection with the alleged coverup of the incident. His trial is in temporary recess.

Medina, a close personal friend of Kotouc, commanded Charley Company, the unit which swept My Lai. Kotouc, who spent three years in the Army as an enlisted man before he was commissioned, was the intelligence officer assigned to the operation.

Kotouc testified that he did not take part in the assault but was assigned to interrogate prisoners later at a night bivouac area near My Lai. The Army charged that he maimed one prisoner by cutting off part of a fingertip with a knife and assaulted him by cutting him on the neck.

The defense won a directed verdict of innocent on the assault charge after the military judge, Col. Madison Wright, upheld the defense position that the charge had not been proved.

The captain testified that he accidentally cut off the fingertip while seeking information he felt was vital to the safety of the U.S. troops who took part in the My Lai operation.

His lawyers held that he could not be convicted of maiming, since Kotouc did not intend to inflict the wound. Wright told the jury that Kotouc must be acquitted of the charge if the seven career officers were satisfied it was an accident.

California To Use Stringent Controls

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency announced today California has been exempted from federal standards controlling auto exhaust, becoming the first state eligible to substitute its own, more stringent regulations.

California is the only state eligible for the waiver because its program is the only one matching or bettering federal standards.

Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus disapproved California's proposal to require assembly-line testing of every vehicle manufactured for sale in the state to make sure it meets the air quality standards.

He said the state presented no evidence to show such a requirement would significantly improve air quality.

Under 1970 amendments to the Clean Air Act, a state may continue its own program to control pollution from new cars by obtaining a waiver from national standards, provided state standards are more stringent.

Ruckelshaus granted the waiver for California's regulations governing emission standards and test procedures for:

—Light-duty vehicles for the 1972 model year, with a special adjustment factor for off-road utility vehicles.

—Heavy-duty gasoline-powered vehicles for the 1973 model year, and more stringent standards for 1975.

—And heavy-duty diesels, also for 1973 with stricter standards scheduled for 1975.

Also approved were California's assembly line standards and test procedures for 1972 model light-duty vehicles, and a ban on sale of vehicles requiring gasoline of more than 91 octane, starting with the 1973 models.

A California law taxing cars according to compression ratios, starting with 1975 models, was considered at public hearings last January, but Ruckelshaus said this may be implemented without a waiver of the Clean Air Act.

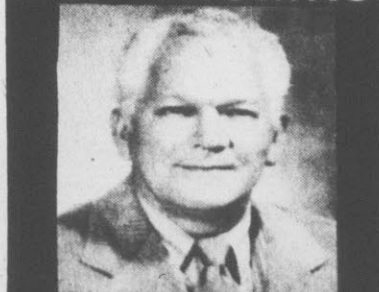

Papa Fonda Is Proud Of Jane

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Henry Fonda says he's proud of his daughter Jane's activist work but doesn't agree with all her methods.

"It's a sincere involvement, and she's totally dedicated," the 65-year-old actor said of his 33-year-old actress-daughter. "I don't think it's necessary to overthrow the government to achieve some of the things she's after."

"For Jane to be such an activist that she clenches her fist and puts it up and says, 'I'm a revolutionary,' she's turning a great many people off," he said Thursday in an interview.

ELECT

FOR COUNCILMAN
MAY 4, 1971

Your Vote and Support Will Be Appreciated

WHO SHOULD DECIDE?

There seems to be a misunderstanding as to my position on urban redevelopment.

The City Council has approved an agreement whereby the City is obligated to the extent of $1,600,000.00 for the "redevelopment" of the "Central Business District", a small area of our City.

It is my opinion that the commitment of our City funds to this extent should be submitted to the vote of the citizens.

Our State law provides a procedure for the property owner to "redevelop" their own property. I own property in the "Central Business District", and I am willing to pay the development cost to my property. I am not asking others to improve my property! Consider who is ??? Consider who is asking you, the tax payer, to improve theirs!

The purpose of our suit against the city is to have the Supreme Court say whether the Council, or the citizens, will decide the commitment of our City resources. You, the citizens, will pay the $1,600,000.00.

I think YOU, the citizen and tax payer - should decide.

Frank M. Wooten, Jr.
Candidate for Mayor

To The Voters of Greenville

For the third time, I am asking the voters of Greenville to place me on the City Council for two years. Citizens have every right to ask what you have done and what are your plans for the future. In looking back, I can say that I have helped in:

1. Development and passage of a more sophisticated zoning ordinance—one that can, if enforced, assist in orderly development of the city.
2. Development of a personnel ordinance which provides salaries, fringe benefits, grievance procedures, etc., for city workers that are designed to develop good morale. It must, however, be reviewed constantly in the light of changing economic conditions.
3. Development of street plans that will result in improved driving conditions in the city. These include the bridging of the Tar River, the four-laning of U.S. 264 By Pass, the widening of Tenth Street, etc.
4. The enlargement and expansion of the Sheppard Memorial Library to the fifth library in the Southeast for a city the size of Greenville.

These are, of course, only a small number of accomplishments of the city over the past few years—but these were things that were of real importance to me.

What of the future? Specific things that I favor and would work for include:

1. Implementation of an economically feasible plan for public transportation.
2. Careful selection of people to serve on boards, committees, and commissions. The city leans heavily on capable, knowledgeable, citizens to serve on its working boards. These people should be selected with due consideration to their qualifications.
3. Continuance of the present system of placing street paving of a schedule according to date of request received. Constant vigilance will be maintained to insure that schedule is adhered to.
4. Assistance to the average citizen to insure that his individual rights are not violated by the bureaucratic structure of city government.
5. Accelerated work toward implementation of the CBD project.
6. Further development and expansion of recreation facilities and programs.

What do I have to offer in implementing these goals?

1. Experience—if experience is the best teacher, then the four years I have completed as an elected member of the City Council should have prepared me to give even better service to our citizens.
2. Independent Vote—I have no vested interest which would conflict in any way with the performance of my duties as a councilman, and I pledge to vote as my conscience and intelligence dictate and in the best interests of all Greenville citizens.

Sincerely yours,
Frank Fuller

Counseling Centers Are Embraced By Churchmen

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Sometimes, the callers are simply lonely. Sometimes they're worried, afraid, angry or desperate and on the verge of suicide. Whatever the difficulty, trained counselors seek to give immediate, initial help by telephone.

It's a "vital ministry to human need," says the Rev. Ross W. Whetstone, executive director of CONTACT Teleministry Inc., of Nashville, Tenn., a national accrediting agency for the work.

Across the country, hundreds of such operations have begun in recent years, making emergency guidance and sympathy available to troubled people on an individual basis—merely by dialing a telephone number.

"We have been given a great instrument for use in Christian service and we must use it with understanding and sensitivity," says the Rev. Mr. Whetstone, of the Methodist Board of Evangelism.

That board set up the new national coordinating council for telephone ministries, which the Rev. Mr. Whetstone now heads, and which this spring was incorporated as a separate, interdenomination agency.

So far, it has accredited telephone-counseling centers in 16 U.S. communities, and centers in at least 17 other communities are in various stages of qualifying.

To do so, they must meet certain standards, such as operating on a 24-hour basis, and volunteer counselors must have undergone at least 50 hours of training. Scores of other centers operation a part-time or specialized basis.

The movement is "one of the greatest ideas embraced by the Christian church in decades," the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, of New York City's Marble College Church told 1,000 delegates to the first national teleministries conference this month in Newport News, Va.

His church operates one of the newest, busiest accredited centers, where about 70,000 callers have received guidance over "Help Line" since it was started a year ago. Summarizing the first year's results, a report says:

"Lives have been saved. Lonely people have found friends. Narcotics addicts have been helped back to normal lives. Haven has been found for unwed mothers. Prostitutes have been started on the road to reform. Marriages have been mended. Runaways have decided to return home."

Close Vote Brings Out The Rebel In Lawmakers

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The current crop of congressmen from marginal districts is showing an early tendency to buck the House establishment.

On two key House votes this year, the bipartisan collection provided the muscle to cut off government funding of the supersonic transport and failed by just two votes to limit the draft extension to one year. On both occasions they disregarded the Nixon administration and House leaders.

If a pattern has been shaped by the mavericks' voting, it is that they are more attentive to their constituents.

"In a close contest you need every vote you can get," said one who asked to be anonymous. "The administration and the party leaders can't vote for you on election day."

More than 50 congressmen won election last November by margins of no more than 5 per cent of total votes cast.

They are about evenly divided between Democrats and Republicans, and about half are first-termers. Others are legislative veterans who until recent years had little opposition in what were once considered safe districts.

Among those veterans is Rep. Fred O. Schwengel, R-Iowa, who was re-elected for a third consecutive term by a margin of only 765 votes over a Democratic challenger. He got 49.8 per cent of the total vote in a three-way race.

Schwengel, who says his district has changed in recent years with increasing industrialization attracting rural workers who switch party affiliation, voted against the SST and for the one-year draft extension.

The Iowa said his constituency is "swinging more against the war and toward a change in priorities for government spending."

Among the newcomers who voted an antiestablishment line is Rep. Richard G. Shoup, R-Mont., who polled 50.4 per cent of the total vote to unseat veteran Democrat Arnold Olson.

Shoup doesn't consider himself either a hawk or a dove but believes his constituents "want to get out of the war in a reasonable time but not to turn tail and run."

This concern for voter attitudes in swing districts has prompted a spirit of independence in roll calls.

Thirty marginal-district members supported the one-year draft extension and 27 opposed it. The amendment was defeated by two votes, 200 to 198.

The SST was grounded by a vote of 215 to 204, with 34 swing-district members on the winning side and 23 voting the administration line.

THEY SHALL BEAT THEIR SWORDS...

Of all the pictures of our senior class trip to New York City, this is everybody's favorite. Not just because the kids like Tom and Donna, but because it says something. Clearer than a thousands words, it shouts our interest in anything that speaks of peace among nations.

And not just nations—we pray that within our country men of every color, age and interest can learn to build and work together to make a brighter future.

Sure, we're young and idealistic and have a lot to learn. That's why it's important for our parents and teachers and leaders to have good, strong values and to live by them. My parents do. To them the Church is the backbone of our country and Christianity the key to the future. That's why they go to church each week and take us with them.

Tried To Help Grandmother

GREENSBORO (AP) — A five-year-old boy telephoned an operator to get help for his dying grandmother, but was told by the operator to stop playing with the telephone. He tried again, and this time was successful in reaching an operator who took down all the information that little Carlton Gray could supply and telephone the boy's mother at work. The grandmother, 75-year-old Mrs. Sallie Gray, was dead on arrival at a hospital. She had suffered a cerebral hemorrhage. Carlton said his grandmother had complained of feeling dizzy

Zoning Completed At Farmville Meet

FARMVILLE — Zoning of a one-mile radius of Farmville was completed last night when Town Commissioners approved a zoning map in a call meeting.

The map was adopted as considered at a recent public hearing with two changes: commercial zone on the southeast corner of the Fields Street Extension-264 Bypass intersection was made 400 feet deep instead of 200 and an airport zone adjacent to the Craft landing strip was changed to residential.

The Commissioners accepted the bid of Walter Burns Inc. of Farmville to renovate the recently purchased Mashburn Building for use as additional town office space. Burns will begin work June 1 at a cost to the town of $17,450.

A request by Cedric, Harry, and Gerald Davis to have three lots on North Pitt Street rezoned from single residential to multi-family residential was denied.

Joseph Glenn Harris, 26, was hired as a policeman. Now a meatcutter for a local grocery store, he is a Belvoir native.

The Commissioners asked the town clerk to begin advertising for a town administrator. They voted to remove from the ordinance on the town administrator the man's authority to hire and dismiss other town employees.

MAYOR'S DUTIES

My understanding is that there is some comment that I have spent very little time at City Hall. The law provides that the City Manager has complete charge of the day to day operation of the City.

I think the Mayor should not interfere with the City Manager in the performance of his duties. I am available for consultations and advice. I spend on an average of two to three hours per day on city affairs and have in no way interfered with the City Manager and his duties.

Rose Athletic Staff Changes Announced

The promotion of three members of the Rose High School Athletic Staff, in the wake of the retirement of Bo Farley, was announced today by C. C. Cleetwood, Superintendent of Greenville City Schools.

Additional staff changes are expected to be announced in the future, with two new members to be named. Several other changes in assignments were also made known in today's announcement.

The major changes involved the promotions.

Heading the list was the naming of Richard "Bud" Phillips as the new athletic Director for Rose High School and E. B. Aycock Junior High. Phillips accepted the new position, giving up the job of head football coach to do so. Administrative policy in the Greenville School system spells out that the athletic director may not be the coach of a major sport, now including football, basketball and baseball.

With Phillips moving out of football, his top assistant, David Bumgarner, has been named as the new head football coach. He currently is also head baseball coach.

James Brewington, presently at Aycock, but working with the varsity football program, will move to Rose High School next fall, and become the top assistant to Bumgarner, in charge of the defense.

Cleetwood noted that two assistant football coaches are still to be named, one to work with the varsity and one with the junior varsity.

Farley, 64, is retiring this year, one year prior to mandatory retirement. "We are quite sad to lose the talents of Coach Farley," Cleetwood said, "but he has chosen to step down a year early, and we shall accept his decision."

Phillips, in taking over the athletic directorship, said that he looks forward to the challenge of reshaping the program at Rose, and is enthusiastic about the future of the program.

Wilson McDowell, who has handled the coaching duties at Aycock since its opening two years ago, will continue to head the athletic program there, coaching football, basketball and baseball.

Other staff changes are not settled. Cleetwood said that Osborn Meteyer would continue as basketball and tennis coach, but a new junior varsity assistant would be named. Bob Jones, who has handled both JV basketball and track, will assume the duties of director of intra-murals.

Phillips will take over the junior varsity football program, and coaching assignments in wrestling, swimming, track and baseball will not be set until after the two new assistants have been hired.

Phillips, a native of Burlington, is a graduate of Wake Forest College, playing football there, and finishing in 1949, following a tour of duty in the Army Air Corps in North Africa during World War II.

Following his graduation from Wake Forest, he received his masters from George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn.

Phillips began his coaching career in 1949 at Haw River High School in Alamance County, moving across the county to E. M. Holt High School in 1953. In 1955, he became football coach at Burlington High School.

At Haw River, his basketball team was a state runner-up, and his football team at Holt was also a runner-up in state competition. Haw River teams won all three sports under him for two years.

Phillips came to Greenville in 1958 as head football, j. v. basketball and later took on the baseball duties. He won conference football titles in 1961 and 1965. The 1961 team won the Eastern Regionals, while the 1965 team lost to Tarboro in the finals. His 1960 team went 9-1, but missed out on the conference title by one game.

He also captured two divisional baseball titles, winning one conference title.

Phillips coached in the Shrine Bowl in 1962, as an assistant, and in 1968, as head coach for North Carolina. He coached the East-West game in 1963.

He is married to the former Amelia Flowers of Burlington, and they have one daughter.

"We hope to strengthen the athletic program," Phillips said, "and we want a well-rounded program. There are no particular plans at this time that are definite. We do plan to work toward the meshing of athletic programs at Rose and Aycock."

Bumgarner, a native of Valdese, graduated from East Carolina College in 1964. He was a four-sport athlete at Valdese, participating in football, basketball, baseball and track, winning letters for three years.

At East Carolina, he played varsity football three years, setting a number of school records as an Honorable Mention All-American end. He also was named to the All-State team, and played in two bowl games.

Following his graduation, he played one season with the Toronto Rifles of the Canadian Football League.

The next year, he went to Edenton as assistant football and head baseball coach, coming to Rose to take over the same jobs in 1968.

His baseball teams at Rose have won one conference title, going to the semi-finals of the state playoffs; and shared another. Last year's team finished in a three-way tie for the title.

Bumgarner is married to the former Gigi Guice of Greenville.

"I see this as a great opportunity," Bumgarner said. "I accept the job as a challenge, and I look forward to it with enthusiasm. I'd like to see Greenville have a good athletic program, and I'll do all I can to insure a winning attitude on our football team. With the personnel we have, I think we can have a great program."

Brewington, a native of Greenville, graduated from North Carolina College, playing football both there and while a student at Epps High School here. He won high school letters in football, basketball and baseball at Epps.

While at NCC, he played offensive and defensive tackle, and was named to the All-Conference team in the ICAA. His junior and senior years, he was named to the Pittsburgh Courier All-American team, a list of all-Black players.

Following his graduation in 1961, he played professional football with the Green Bay Packers and the Oakland Raiders, retiring in 1964. He served a year as assistant football coach at Epps, then went to Union High School in Bowling Green, Va., in 1965, coaching football and basketball. He coached for two years at Brentwood High School on Long Island, then returned to Greenville to become an assistant at Rose, and basketball coach at Epps Junior High. The following year, he moved to Aycock when the two schools were merged, and coached there.

At Rose, He will serve as line coach, and defensive coordinator.

Brewington is married to the former Nan Chance of Greenville, and is the father of four children.

"I feel we'll come up with a good team this fall," he said. "We've got some great potential."

Additional staff appointments will be made later this spring and summer.

East Carolina Captures Golf Crown

SANFORD — East Carolina University's Pirates captured their second Southern Conference Golf Championship yesterday, holding off a Furman University charge.

The Pirates, who went into the second day of the tournament with a 13-stroke lead, had to scramble to come home with the title, winning by a single stroke. The Pirates have now won golf titles in 1969 and 1971. Furman was the 1970 champion.

The Bucs finished with a team total of 754 strokes, while Furman had 755. The Citadel took third place with 783, while Davidson was one behind them at 784. William & Mary finished fifth with 800, while Virginia Military Institute and Richmond tied for sixth at 828.

Lynwood Edwards of The Citadel captured the individual championship, edging out Furman's Tommy Gaul in a sudden death playoff. Both had carded 72-72—144's at the end of regulation play. Edwards rolled in an eight-foot putt for a par on the fourth extra hole to win the match, as Gaul missed a six-footer to take a bogey.

East Carolina's Ed Pinnix finished third, scoring 72-77—149. Carl Bell, the first day's leader in the tournament with a 71, had a 79 for the second day to finish fourth with a 150 total.

Phil Wallace had a 74-77—151, while Ron Pinner had a 76-75, also for a 151 total. The other East Carolina golfer with a counted score was Harry Helmer who had a 72-81—153, tying for 11th place.

Two other Bucs competed in the match, but only the low five scorers figured in the team total. The others were Jim Brown, 75-79—154, and Ray Sharpe, 79-78—157.

The Pirates are coached by John Welborn, who also coached the 1969 championship team. This is his fourth year as Golf coach at ECU.

The good taste of Old Crow begins with men who love to work with their hands.

Before we'll mill a kernel of grain to make Old Crow, experts like Jerry Simpson test samples by hand for appearance and color. It's the only way we know to make a good-tasting Bourbon.

Making Bourbon which tastes good, bottle after bottle, made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that took Bourbon-making out of the hit-or-miss category. Later, they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon. We still use our hands in making Old Crow.

After work, most of our men keep on using their hands. Jerry Simpson calls on the same craftsmanship maintaining the quality of our country Bourbon as he does upholstering this chair.

Over the years, craftsmanship like this has made Old Crow America's best-tasting Bourbon.

Speier Leads Giant Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Chris Speier was in diapers when Willie Mays wore baseball flannels and Juan Marichal and Willie McCovey were being measured for big league suits.

Now he's the thread holding the San Francisco Giants together.

"The kid's playing some kind of baseball for us," says San Francisco Manager Charlie Fox. "he's been the difference in our club."

What kind of baseball has the 20-year-old Speier been playing? Unerring shortstop and 30 hits in 89 at-bats for a .337 average that included three safeties in Thursday night's 5-2, 13-inning victory over Atlanta.

It's also the kind of baseball that has the Giants on top in the National League West with a 4½-game bulge over Los Angeles, which beat Pittsburgh 2-1 Thursday night.

Cincinnati beat San Diego 4-2, New York clouted St. Louis 7-0 and Montreal tipped Chicago 7-6 in the other National League games.

American League scores included, Baltimore 3, Oakland 2; Chicago 5, Washington 4 and California 8, Cleveland 4. Rain washed out Minnesota at Boston.

Speier, only a baby when Mays launched his career in the Giants outfield, and while Marichal and McCovey were being eyed by Giant scouts, played for the University of Santa Barbara in California before being nabbed in the 1970 free agent draft.

His only professional season was with Amarillo in the Class AA Texas League, where he made the All-Star team and hit .283 at age 19.

Speier was an early arrival at the Giants' Casa Grande, Ariz., spring training camp this year and won the job at shortstop, a longtime San Francisco problem spot.

"It's great to be young—and a Giant," said the personable youngster after joining Mays, Marichal and McCovey in the starting lineup.

Among Speier's three singles Thursday night was a hit that ignited the Giants' tying rally in the sixth. Speier singled to left, went to second after a walk to McCovey, then scooted home on Dick Dietz' single to make it 2-2.

San Francisco then scored three runs in the top of the 13th at Atlanta Stadium, the go-ahead tally coming on Ken Henderson's two-out single to center. Henderson had been hitless in 11 previous appearances in the three-game series.

Duke Sims drove home the winning run in the ninth inning with a bases-full single to give Los Angeles the victory over Pittsburgh, which had an unusually silent offense.

"Nobody should worry about our hitting," said Pirate first baseman Bob Robertson. "We aren't hitting with consistency now, but we will down the stretch."

Pete Mikkelsen, a former Pittsburgh reliever, bailed out Dodger starter Al Downing in an eighth inning tough spot and picked up his third victory.

Ty Cline collected three hits and sparked two-run Cincinnati rallies in the first and third innings as the revitalized Reds seized their fourth straight victory. Wayne Simpson, with relief help from Wayne Granger, was credited with his first victory since the middle of last season.

Donn Clendenon's second homer of the season, a three-run shot, highlighted a six-run seventh for New York. Clendenon's blast, a line drive into the left field pavilion, was the clinching blow in a 12-hit assault off three pitchers as the Mets completed a sweep of their four-game series in St. Louis.

Ron Swoboda tripled in the tying run with two out in the ninth inning, then scored the winner on John Bateman's single as Montreal beat Chicago. The Cubs had scored five runs in the sixth inning to take a 6-1 lead, but the Expos came back to win it with a run in the seventh, two in the eighth and three in the ninth.

Grab Bag Group Set To Run For The Derby

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Eastern Fleet, Jim French and Unconscious, all winners of $100,000 stakes, and Fouralla, a winner of nothing, represent the extremes of a grab-bag group of 20 three-year-olds who will contest Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

The 20 hopefuls, the third largest field in the Derby history and the biggest since 1951 when 20 ran, were entered Thursday for the classic at Churchill Downs.

Sole Mio, owned by Mrs. Taylor Hardin and trained by Woody Stephens, was entered for the race, but withdrawn later in the day after the horse kicked himself and suffered a filled hock—a swollen ankle.

Starting from the inside post under Jorge Velasquez will be on Bold and Able, the Calumet Farm entrant of Eastern Fleet, the Florida Derby winner who will leave the No. 17 gate under Eddie Maple.

Going from the outside slot under 46-year-old Eric Guerin will be Wendell P. Rosso's Impetuosity, the Blue Grass Stakes winner. He will be coupled in the betting as part of a George Poole-trained entry with Pastoral Stable's Twist the Axe who will be ridden by Garth Patterson from post 11.

Unconscious, Arthur A. Seeligion Jr.'s California Derby winner, will be ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr. from the eighth slot; Frank Caldwell's Jim French, the Santa Anita Derby king, will go from No. 10 under Angel Cordero Jr. and A. H. Sullivan's Fouralla, winless in his only four career starts, will leave from No. 19 under Donald MacBeth.

A third entry was the George J. Getz-trained combination of Philip Teinowitz' Royal Leverage and Teinowitz' and Schmidt's On the Money. Martin Fromin will send Royal Leverage from the No. 5 post while Mickey Solomon will ride On the Money from the 9th slot.

Others entered, their jockeys and post positions, were:

Don Ball's Going Straight, Oswaldo Torres, No. 2; Charles M. Day's Saigon Warrior, Robert Parrott, No. 3; Walnut Hill Farm's Jr's Arrowhead, Tony Rini No. 4; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Udou's Barbizon Streak, Don Brumfield, No. 6.

Charles Fritz and Betty Sechrest's Vegas Vic, Howard Grant, No. 7; Edgar Caibett's Canonero II, Gustavo Avila, No. 12; Robert L. Huffman's Knight Counter, Mike Manganello, No. 13; William A. Levin's Bold Reason, Jean Crugnet, No. 14; T. A. and J. E. Grissom's Tribal Line, David Whited, No. 15; Roget W. Wilson's Helio Rise, Kenney Knapp, No. 16, and Mrs. Joe W. Brown's List, Jimmy Nichols, No. 18.

Post time for the 97th running of the 1¼-mile Derby, which will have a record gross purse of $188,000 if all 20 start, is 5:30 p.m. EDT. Television coverage will be from 5-6 p.m. and radio coverage from 5:15-5:45 p.m., both by CBS.

The forecast is for partly cloudy and cool weather with the temperature at race time in the upper 60s.

The early 3-2 favorite was the entry of Bold and Able, the Stepping Stone Purse winner, and Eastern Fleet. The Impetuosity and Twist the Axe entry was made the early second choice at 7-2. Twist the Axe won the Arkansas Derby and finished second to Impetuosity in the Blue Grass.

Jim French was listed at 4-1, Unconscious at 8-1, Bold Reason at 10-1, Vegas Vic at 12-1, List at 15-1, Tribal Line at 20-1 and the Royal Leverage—On the Money entry and Going Straight at 30-1. Saigon Warrior, Jr's Arrowhead, Barbizon Streak, Canonero II, Knight Counter and Fouralla were grouped as the field, a single betting interest, at 20-1.

The 20 colts entered came from a record 220 nominees. It costs $100 to nominate, $1,000 to enter and $1,000 to start.

A gross purse of $168,000 means $145,500 to the winner. The runner-up will receive $25,000, third $12,500 and fourth $5,000.

The old purse record was $170,300 last year when Dust Commander won with Manganello the rider.

Two other jockeys scheduled to ride this year have ridden previous Derby winners. Guerin, on Impetuosity, won with Jet Pilot in 1947, and Brumfield, on Barbizon Streak, won with Kauai King in 1966.

Each Derby starter carries 126 pounds.

Leading hitters for Chicod were Randy Adams with four, including a homer; Eugene Forrest and Ronnie Shivers with three each.

Pinch-Hitters Give Win To White Sox

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Chuck Tanner's shock troops aren't exactly setting the American League on fire. But they'll do in a pinch.

Pinch-hitters delivered the big blows for Manager Tanner Thursday night in a four-run seventh inning rally that carried the struggling Chicago White Sox to a 5-4 victory over Washington.

Rich McKinney's two-run single keyed the sub swingers' assault as the Sox erased a 2-1 deficit in the seventh and then held off the Senators to snap a four-game losing string.

Eddie Fisher hurled 4 1-3 innings of hitless relief as California thumped Cleveland 8-4 and Don Buford's eighth inning homer sent Baltimore past Oakland 3-2 in the only other AL games. The Minnesota-Brown game was rained out and the other clubs weren't scheduled.

In the National League, the New York Mets whipped St. Louis 7-0, Montreal edged the Chicago Cubs 7-6, Los Angeles nipped Pittsburgh 2-1, San Francisco downed Atlanta 5-2 in 13 innings and Cincinnati beat San Diego 4-2. Philadelphia and Houston were idle.

Mike Andrews opened the White Sox seventh with a single, knocking out Senators' starter Dick Bosman. Walt Williams and Rich Morales then stroked pinch singles off relief ace Darold Knowles to send home the tying run. Horacio Pina replaced Knowles and walked pinch-hitter Lee Maye intentionally, filling the bases. After Lee Richard tapped into a force at the plate, Pina gave way to Denny Riddleberger and McKinney, batting for Ed Stroud, looped a single to right for two more runs. Carlos May, who had driven in Chicago's first run with a sixth inning single, capped the rally with a sacrifice fly, giving the Sox a 5-2 lead.

Reliever Steve Kealey survived Bernie Allen's two-run homer in the ninth to save the victory for Tom Bradley, 3-0, who had left for a hitter in the big seventh.

Fisher replaced California starter Tom Murphy in the fifth after Graig Nettles' two-run homer trimmed the Angels' lead to 5-4 and stymied the Indians the rest of the way to earn his third victory against one loss. Roger Repoz drove in three early California runs with a double and bases-loaded walk. Tony Gonzalez doubled home two more in the sixth and Syd O'Brien climaxed the Angels' scoring with a seventh inning homer.

The loss was the eighth for the Indians in their last nine games.

Buford opened the Orioles' eighth against Roland Fingers with his third homer of the season, snapping a 2-2 tie and giving the defending AL champs a split of their four-game series at Oakland.

Jim Palmer tagged for a two-run homer by Dave Duncan in the second inning, went the distance for Baltimore, bringing his pitching record to 4-0. Boog Powell accounted for the Orioles' first two runs in the first inning with his fifth homer.

Darlington Is Still A Threat

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Richard Petty, who guards his personal life and his driving talents with rigid discipline, agrees that auto racing is the one sport where mistakes can be the most costly.

He made his second big mistake at Darlington International Raceway Thursday but, as was the case after the first one he came out of it with sound mind and body.

The 33-year-old king of stock car racing, who is only $50,000 shy of becoming the sport's second $1 million purse winner, had a near disastrous brush with one of Darlington's impregnable walls during first day time trials for Sunday's $86,000 Rebel 400.

His sleek blue Plymouth, roaring along at close to 150 miles per hour, crunched against the barrier in the speedway's north turn, shuddered sickeningly under the impact and then straightened up under Petty's muscular handling with only slight damage to the machine and none to the driver.

"I can now tell you with authority that they put that wall there for a purpose," the 6-foot-3, 210-pounder said. "Without it, I'd have wound up over there in the woods someplace."

It was on this same track and in this same race last year that Petty had his first big mistake and his closest brush with death.

Coming off the tricky fourth turn, where a driver heads his machine directly into the cement wall before peeling off into the front straight, Petty lost control and rammed the barrier a glancing blow.

The impact shattered the racer, and on the rebound the car flipped four times end over end down the straight as 60,000 and a nationwide television audience watched.

Petty's first qualifying lap around the mile and three-eighths oval — his accident occurred on his second circuit — gave him fourth place in Sunday's 36-car starting order. His average speed was 150.832 miles per hour.

Nixon Not Intimidated By Viet Withdrawal Drives

PRESIDENTIAL WORDS — President Nixon answers questions at a White House news conference last night. (AP Wirephoto)

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — While hinting that release of American prisoners might hasten complete U.S. pullout from Vietnam, President Nixon says he and others in government will not be intimidated by demonstrators' cries of "withdraw now."

Holding his first television-radio news conference in eight weeks, Nixon argued anew Thursday night that his gradual withdrawal policy will prove wisest in the long run.

But he did not dismiss the multiple antiwar protests that have become a daily fact of life here. He said:

"It doesn't mean that we are not going to listen to those who come peacefully, but those who come and break the law will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

Discussing tentative and mutual moves toward improved relations between the United States and mainland China, Nixon struck a cautionary note:

"I think that some of the speculation that has occurred in recent weeks since the visit of the table-tennis team to Peking has not been useful. Progress is not helped in this very sensitive area by speculation that goes beyond what the progress might achieve."

Nixon said he has yet to decide whether to embrace a two-China policy—one that would envision diplomatic recognition of Communist China and Taiwan and, presumably, seats for both in the United Nations.

In a more optimistic vein, he remarked, "I hope, and as a matter of fact, I expect to visit mainland China sometime in some capacity." He said more normal relations with Peking are much to be desired and added another thought:

"The interest of world peace requires good relations between the Soviet Union and Communist China."

Nixon, using a rostrum for the first time at a broadcast news conference, was questioned closely about earlier statements that the United States will keep some troops in South Vietnam, until American prisoners are released and the Saigon government has a reasonable chance to survive as a political entity.

Pointing out that former President Lyndon B. Johnson had hoped for serious negotiations in Paris after halting the bombing of North Vietnam, Nixon said:

"Consequently, as far as a total withdrawal is concerned, that will have to be delayed until we get not just the promise to discuss the release of our prisoners, but a commitment to release our prisoners because a discussion promise means nothing where the North Vietnamese are concerned."

The chief executive said he has instructed U.S. negotiators at Paris to give the POW question "the highest priority" and to discuss it separately, with other issues or as part of an over-all settlement.

As long as the prisoners are held, he reiterated, American troops will remain in South Vietnam "no matter how long it takes."

But he said, in response to a question that the prisoner issue and Saigon's survival chances "are separable"—perhaps a suggestion a prisoner release could speed total American withdrawal.

Asked if he could foresee any circumstances in which the United States again would get involved in ground-air support operations such as those in Cambodia and Laos, he said such a prospect now is "remote" and by Dec. 1, when U.S. troop levels are scheduled to drop to 184,000, will be "completely remote."

While declining to lay blame on anyone for American involvement in Vietnam, Nixon ticked off a number of events that occurred during the administrations of his two Democratic predecessors, John F. Kennedy and Johnson.

He cited U.S. casualty figures as evidence he is ending the war as he promised in the 1968 campaign.

In discussing antiwar demonstrations, he said television viewers might get the impression "Washington is somewhat in a state of siege."

"Well, let me make one thing very clear: The Congress is not intimidated; the President is not intimidated. This government is going to go forward."

Nixon repeated a defense of his decisions to release Army Lt. William Calley from prison pending appeal of his court-martial conviction of mass murder at May Lai, and his promise to make the final review of the Calley verdict.

"I think that reassured the country and that is one of the reasons that the country has cooled down on this case," he said.

One of the few domestic policy questions put to Nixon involved a Supreme Court decision last week that seemed at variance with his stand against busing as a means of promoting racial integration of schools. On that, he said:

"Now that the Supreme Court has spoken on that issue, whatever I have said that is inconsistent with the Supreme Court's decision is now moot and irrelevant."

The program this year was held at the Goldsboro High School.

Hanoi Sees Continuation

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam said today President Nixon's news conference proved that he is determined to continue the Vietnam war, "thus further prolonging the list of American servicemen killed, wounded or captured and delaying indefinitely the return to their families of American captive servicemen."

The North Vietnamese delegation at the Paris peace talks issued a communique denouncing U.S. Vietnam policy as outlined by the President at his televised news conference Thursday night.

The communique asserted that American and world public opinion "are demanding that Mr. Nixon put an immediate end to the war that besmirches the honor of the United States."

"Yet Mr. Nixon still stubbornly rejects this legitimate demand."

The statement reiterated the communist position that the only way for the United States to put an end to the war was to set a date for the unconditional withdrawal of all American forces.

Car-Washing Pair Drown

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A young couple drowned Thursday in Kerr Lake when the car they were washing on a boat ramp slipped into the lake and sank.

The Vance County sheriff's department identified the victims as 20-year-old Richard Miles Jr. and Byrle Sneed, 16, both of the Townsville community.

Deputy Bobby Hamm said the young man and girl were in the process of cleaning out the front seat of the car when it rolled into the lake and began to float away from the shore. He said they climbed on top of the car before it sank but then went under.

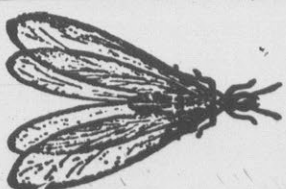

The bodies were found clutched together.

The incident occurred on the boat ramp at Hibernia Park, about 18 miles north of Henderson.

JAMES ALSTON ELKS FOR CITY COUNCIL

I've lived in Greenville for the past 39 years. As a builder, I have worked in all parts of our town, and I think I know what should be done to help Greenville.

If elected to serve as your city councilman, I will not vote for a tax increase, I will not vote for any bond issue. I WILL work for all the people—not part of the people. I would like to see more work accomplished for the tax money which is spent. We are to receive $158,000 from our gas tax, and I feel this would help us accomplish a great number of things we need to do.

I do feel we should increase our police and firemen's salaries. Also, our parks need to be cleaned up and more equipment set up in them. I still think Hillsdale should have a post office... they tried, but never succeeded. I shall make no promises as to what will be spent until we receive our budget.

Ron Moody as English newspaperwoman,

"Hawk" Dove himself,

— prim lawyer.

Ron Moody, right, being prepared for filming during making of "Flight of the Doves."

The makeup man brings to life yet another "Hawk" Dove impersonation!

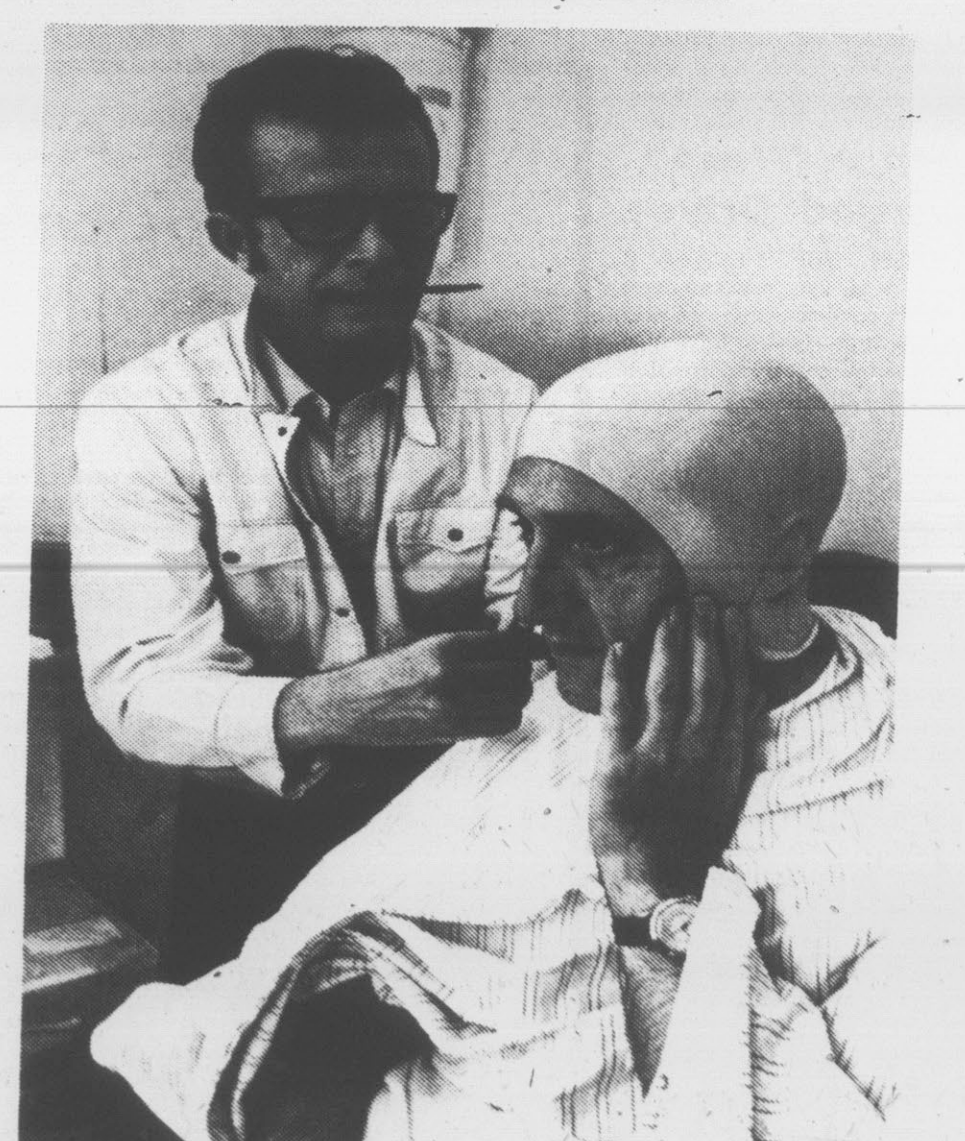

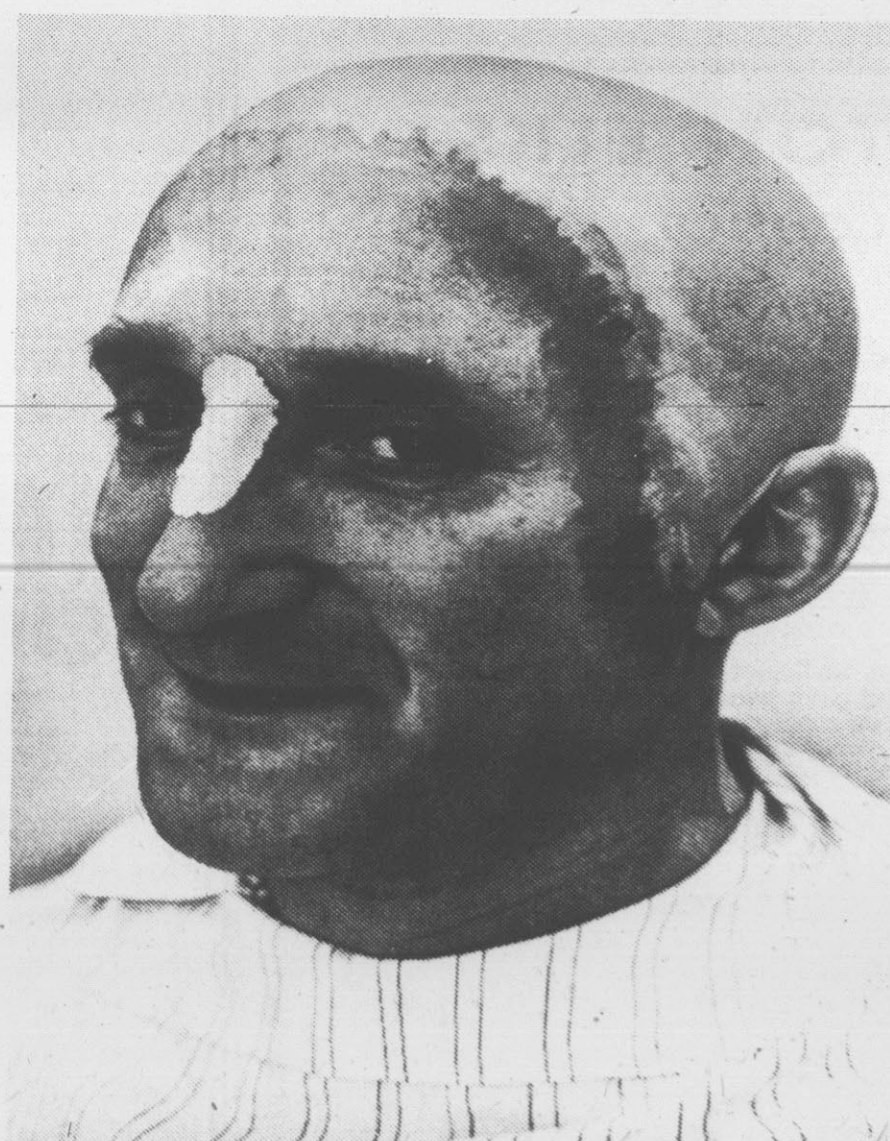

The faces are only the beginning . . . The variety of the other details—clothes, voice, bearing and behavior—of the disguises adopted by actor Ron Moody in the film, "Flight of the Doves," is equally astonishing and entertainingly mystifying! Moody plays "Hawk" Dove, a sinister uncle who chases two runaway children from England across Ireland, and who is a professional quick-change artist, a master of disguises, playing in sleazy shows in the English provinces.

So, his adoption of an eye-popping series of disguises during the chase is something he undertakes with very plausible relish and flair. But the one thing "Hawk" cannot disguise is a tender streak behind the villainous appearance—and after many a tense and thrilling episode the children's adventure has a happy ending and "Hawk" escapes to face another day . . .

The four disguises illustrated above are not all: there are still more to be spotted lurking through the movie. The glimpses of makeup procedures shown at the right and below give clues as to how the final effects were achieved.

Worry Clinic

Actions Speak The Loudest

Crystal, aged 5, sat through my speech at her Christian Church recently. Notice her comment about my talk after she had reached home! Then you will realize why we psychologists say that 65 percent of our knowledge comes in through our eyes, with the remaining 35 percent via ears, touch, smell, etc.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case Q-541: Crystal, aged 5, is the older daughter of Judge and Mrs. Allen Sharp.

Judge Sharp had invited me to fill the pulpit of his Christian Church on a recent Sunday.

As usual, I delivered my address on the topic—"Jesus, the World's Greatest Psychologist."

Therein I show by Bible quotations that Christ was a dynamic preacher who did not employ the negative method so evidently used in the Ten Commandments.

For they were full of "Thou shalt not" injunctions.

Instead, Jesus went about doing good, feeding the hungry, healing the sick and showing his fondness for all races and colors of mankind.

And to illustrate the POSITIVE example that Christ set, I employ that famous "hand experiment" which several million of you readers have seen me demonstrate when I have spoken in your areas.

I'll ask the audience to hold their hands high over head till I say "Go."

On that signal, they are to bring them down with a bang.

But I drop my own uplifted hand without saying "Go," and about 98 percent on the average, stampered likewise.

The larger the crowd, the better this psychological experiment works.

In the Army at Akron, 2,500 women brought down their hands so sharply, it sounded like a thunder clap.

And when the Ridder family invited me to St. Paul for their Women's Institute, conducted by their famous newspapers there, over 12,000 women did likewise. It is a perfect example of the old adage that actions speak louder than words.

And in Judge Sharp's church, the reaction of the audience was typical.

Afterwards, Judge Sharp sent me a little "Thank you" note wherein he wrote:

"When I got home, my five-year-old, Crystal, said she thought your hand raising routine 'was a pretty funny thing for a preacher to do.'"

Although Crystal was only 5 years old, she will doubtless remember this visible demonstration all her life.

For about 65 percent of all we learn about this world comes in via our eyes, with the remaining 35 percent derived from our sense of hearing, touch, etc.

We parents can warn our kiddies against bad medical habits, such as smoking, but if we meanwhile puff on cigarettes or a cigar, they tend to follow what they see instead of what they hear.

We can also urge them to attend Sunday School faithfully, but if we meanwhile stay home to mow the lawn or read the Sunday newspaper, or play golf or go fishing, they tend to follow what we do instead of what we tell them!

Jesus advocated a POSITIVE visual example, for even in his Golden Rule, he urged us to "do unto others what we'd have others do unto us."

Wise Confucius, 500 years earlier had said "do not unto others what you'd not have others do unto you," but this was negative.

So send for my 200-point "Tests for Parents," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, and play the Parent-Child game correctly. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Quality Of Bank Robber Said Falling

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — While the rate of bank robberies grows only slightly and in certain areas, the type of stickup man seems to be changing greatly, no matter where in the country he operates.

"Bank robbers used to be ingenious and creative way back in the old days," said the bank security man, his emotions a mixture of nostalgia and chagrin. "They used to be fairly high on the criminal social scale."

Now, he said, "They're generally a crowd of rude and ignorant slob perfectly willing to try for a few hundred or a few thousand dollars instead of artfully planning for the big haul."

The disdain in his voice was genuine, for he had just researched the latest examples of amateur ineptness, and it did tend to show that the current crowd is dumpy, classless, lacking in character.

Like the man, for instance, who handed a note to Carmela Mastropiero, a teller at a New York bank. It said: "Give over to me all your cash," the teller handed it back. "You'll have to have an officer okay this," she said.

The man nodded and, with quickened pace, departed the bank.

Perhaps, it was suggested to a researcher for the Foundation for Full Service Banks, the crooks had good reason for being timid. You can't tell the good from the bad guys in today's crazy, mixed-up society, he was told.

A 17-year-old youngster handed a teller a note, the usual one that told of a hidden weapon and the need for all the cash. He managed to escape with $17,000.

Shortly thereafter the youngster's cousin watched a "man wanted" poster being pasted to a subway wall. He grabbed the poster, hopped on the train, arrived at his cousin's house and marched him off to the police and his reward.

It isn't only relatives that make today's robber leary. What about all the devices that can humiliate him?

In many banks, cameras are aimed at the lines of traffic all day long, at a rate of two frames a minute, and can be stepped up to shoot two frames a second if the teller hits an alarm.

And some banks allegedly have a device that is camouflaged to look like a wad of bills. Inside the bills, however, is a chemical that two minutes later bursts into a pungent, acrid red smoke, both distasteful to the robber and visually attractive to the pursuers.

There is an endless list of devices to scale down risks and thwart the holdup men: drawers that when opened activate silent signals marked money, packets of real money but all in singles.

An Upsurge Of Measles

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The failure to immunize susceptible children has caused the greatest jump in the incidence of measles since an eradication program began in 1966, the Center for Disease Control reports.

In the four weeks since the last measles surveillance survey, said the center in its weekly report, there have been 13,916 cases of the disease. That brought to 43,916 the number of cases in the current epidemiologic year, said the center.

No state-by-state breakdown was included in the report.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced only Tuesday the licensing of a new triple vaccine against mumps, measles and rubella and a double vaccine against measles and rubella.

A HEW spokesman said the agency will buy $6 million of combined vaccines for distribution by state and local authorities.

The incidences of regular measles has returned to its 1967 level, quite obviously indicating the need to continue the vigorous immunization effort begun in 1966," he said.

He said that only half the child population had been vaccinated against rubella.

An estimated 500 million tons of silver are scattered through the earth's 300 million miles of seawater.

You've got a lot to live
Pepsi's got a lot to give

What we mean is this: living isn't always easy, but it never has to be dull. There's too much to see, to do, to enjoy. Put yourself behind a Pepsi-Cola and get started.
You've got a lot to live.
