Gray And Taylor Join Incumbents On Council

Gene West Returned To His 6th Term

After a two year absence, S. Eugene West was returned by Greenville voters to a sixth term as mayor of Greenville. In the unofficial returns, tabulated by The Daily Reflector shortly before midnight, voters gave West an even 600 lead over incumbent Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr., with a vote of 1904 for West to 1304 for Wooten.

Wooten defeated West in 1969 by a margin of 31 votes.

Donovan Phillips, Jr., the young Negro candidate for mayor, received 958 votes in this, his first political race for this office.

Percy Cox, incumbent City Councilman and mayor pro-tem, led the field of 16 candidates for the six City Council seats, receiving a total of 2,849 votes, 337 more than the second most successful City Council candidate, incumbent Johnnie Edwards, who received 2,512 votes.

The two other incumbent City Councilmen, Dr. Frank Fuller and Jerry Sutherland, retained their seats, running third and fourth places respectively, with 2,340 and 2,317 votes.

Two Negro candidates, John H. Taylor and Clarence Gray, won election on the City Council. Taylor's vote was 1,735 and Gray's, 1,579. Both the new councilmen are local educators. Taylor is Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent of Pitt County Schools, and Gray is Assistant Principal of J. H. Rose High School. Their election marks another first in Greenville's city government history, that of the first Negroes to gain a seat on the City Council since the turn of the century.

Mrs. Mildred McGrath, making her debut as a seeker of political office, made a strong impression on Greenville voters, coming in only 78 votes short of a tie with Gray, the sixth place candidate, and, along with Taylor, winner of one of two additional seats open in the city government for the first time in this election as the result of expanding the Council from four to six members.

Of a total of 9,086 registered voters on the books in Greenville, 4,355 voters went to the polls in yesterday's elections, resulting in approximately 48 percent of the voters making the trip to one of the polling places.

The mayor and the six City Councilmen will be taking office on Wednesday, May 12, at a ceremony in which they will be sworn in at City Hall.

Under the city laws, the incumbent city council is required to meet on their regularly scheduled meeting date, which this month falls on May 6.

Official tabulations on the election were determined today at 3:00 p.m., following a special call meeting of the City Council acting as the Board of Canvassers.

Pleased By Vote Results

By JERRY RAYNOR

"I deeply appreciate the vote and the support of the citizens of Greenville," S. Eugene West, winner of the contest for Mayor of Greenville in Tuesday's election, remarked in acknowledging his victory.

"This is apparently an indication from the voters of Greenville they want to go ahead with the Central Business Development program and with urban renewal, which" West observed "was voted on in the 1961 elections.

"I feel this is an expression from the people that they want progress to continue in areas where progress is needed."

Incumbent Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr. declined to make a comment for the press this morning.

Donovan Phillips, Jr., the young Negro candidate who polled over 900 votes in the mayor's race, expressed his pleasure "with the support given me, especially by the black community.

"I have not forgotten my campaign proposals," he said, "and will still try to push for these things through

Call Meeting

A special call meeting of the Greenville City Council will take place at 3:00 p.m. this afternoon to consider the official report of the municipal elections of yesterday.

City Manager Harry Hagerty announced the City Council will briefly convene at 12 noon, then immediately recess in order to attend the Arthur Tripp ceremonies.

At 3:00 p.m. the Council will reconvene to take up the election report with the Board of Canvassers. Hagerty noted a letter explaining the meeting, recess and reconvening procedure on this occasion had been sent in advance to each candidate on the slate for mayor and city councilmen.

Scott Hails Opening Of 17-Mile Link

GRIFTON — The new N.C. 11 four-lane link between Greenville and Kinston is "indicative of new and vibrant growth in Eastern North Carolina," Gov. Bob Scott said today as the 17 mile link was officially opened in ceremonies at noon.

"The hue and cry for more and better highways in Eastern North Carolina has long reverberated through the halls of the General Assembly, echoing through every highway office from the Raleigh headquarters, and from Ahoskie to Greenville to Wilmington," Scott stated. "So this is a happy occasion."

Scott continued, "It goes without saying that I'm happy to be dedicating something in Eastern North Carolina other than a bridge or a ferry boat."

"I do not say this simply because a beautiful new 17-mile, four-land artery is being opened to complete the traffic lifeline from Greenville to Kinston. I'm

$951,602 Budget For County Schools

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

A tentative budget totaling $951,602.82 in county funds for current expenses was approved yesterday by the Pitt County Board of Education for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

The proposed current expense budget, along with a request for $600,000 for capital outlay items, will be sent to the Board of County Commissioners for final approval and funding. Commissioners over the next two months will be reviewing budget requests from all county agencies and departments in formulating an overall budget for the county for the coming year.

The current expense budget okayed yesterday by the board of education reflects a substantial increase over the $753,422.95 in county funds requested last year.

Major increases in the proposed budget are reflected in the areas of salaries and utilities.

Salaries for clerical assistants in the schools this year total $22,624, while requests for the coming year amount to $58,153 — an increase of $35,529. Salaries for janitors and maids which this year are budgeted at $32,975 are proposed to total $61,983, an increase of some $29,000.

The other major area of increase, utilities, is an increase of $24,500 over the current rate of expenditure. Utilities appropriations for the current year total of $57,500 while the request in the proposed budget is $82,000.

State and federal funds added to the county money last year brought the school budget for current expenses to a total of more than $1,570,000.

Board members approved a motion yesterday that the money for the budget be derived from sales tax, ad valorem taxes and other funds which generally provide money for the budget.

The board, in approving the tentative budget, suggested that the county commissioners levy no special district tax for capital outlay in the county.

Mrs. Katheryn Lewis, guidance director for the county schools, appeared before the board to discuss the possibilities of securing a Migrant Education Program for the system.

The program would involve serving some 250 young men who will be brought basically into the Ayden, Grifton and Swift Creek areas as summer labor.

A total of $27,000 has been allocated for the project. Seventeen teachers will be trained to work with the students.

Instruction will be provided in such areas as small engine repair, auto mechanics, and bricklaying. Recreational activities and arts and crafts will also be included in the program.

The project, including seven weeks of study, will be taught at Chicod School.

Mrs. Lewis explained the migrant workers usually range between the ages of 15 and 21. She discussed the regional research office for migrant workers that is located in Grifton.

The project would give the migrant workers something to do with their time off at night and during the weekends. The program will be provided at no cost to the

Three More Announced Nat'l Merit Scholars

Three more Pitt County students, two girls from Rose High School and a boy from D. H. Conley High School, have been announced today as winner of National Merit Scholarships.

Marcia James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred James of Greenville; Katherine Petrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Petrie of Greenville; and Leo P. Franke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Franke of Winterville, were among 11 North Carolina high school seniors named in the third announcement of national winners in the annual Merit Scholarship winners.

These students have been awarded scholarships to specifically named universities.

Earlier, two Pitt County students, Christopher Indorf of Rose High School and Lenwood Heath, Jr., were named winners of $1,000 National Merit Scholarships.

Marcia, who plans to major in mathematics, is a member of the National Honor Society, editor of the senior yearbook,

Close Race In Farmville; Runoff Seen Possibility

FARMVILLE — A runoff is a possibility here since all three Commissioners' seats that were being contended for were not won by a clear majority in yesterday's municipal election.

Two candidates, J. Irvin Morgan Jr. and Wilton R. Duke, were elected with majority votes with 682 and 649 votes respectively. Both are local businessmen, Morgan, a Farmville native, has an oil and refining business, and Duke, a Franklin County native, is an automobile dealer.

Who will hold the third seat will not be determined until the fourth runner, incumbent W. C. "Lum" Wooten, decides whether to call for a run-off. As of now, the winner of the seat is Leroy Redden. Redden, who will be assistant principal of Farmville Central High School, would be the first black man ever to serve on the Board. Wooten, a local oil dealer, has been on the Board for 14 years. He said this morning that he will probably wait several days to make his decision as to whether to challenge. He has five days to decide, according to the Farmville charter, which allows a run-off election whenever a majority is not won by a candidate for any office. Redden received 542 votes; Wooten, 394.

The other four candidates and the number of votes cast for each were as follows: Durwood Little with 384, L. S. "Skin" Willoughby with 282, Vasser Fields with 268, and Lonnie T. Pierce with 170.

The Mayor's race was clearly won by incumbent Will E. Joyner with 691 votes. His opponent, former mayor, Joe D. Joyner, received 494 votes. Joyner, who won his second term, runs a men's clothing store here.

There were a number of write-in votes for mayor and for commissioner, Town Clerk Carl Beaman said, and there were more than 20 spoiled ballots. "We had great interest in this election as is shown by the great turnout," Beaman said. "1,215 voted, about as many as did in our last primary election."

Because of the election, the Town Board Meeting, usually held the first Tuesday, was postponed until Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Wizard Says Witchcraft Deals With Sending, Calling Vibrations

By MARGO HARAKAS
Pompano Beach
Sun Sentinel Writer

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Chances are if there's a witch living on your block, you won't even know it. Modern witches don't race off to work on broom sticks or wear pointed hats.

As a matter of fact, even your beautician could be a witch. Frank Webb, a tall ethereal-looking man of 23, is an imaginative hairdresser and a bona fide wizard who practices white magic.

Webb arrived at his philosophical stance through what he considers spiritual evolution. His mental wanderings took him from Christianity to atheism to Buddhism and finally to the mysticism and magic of witchcraft.

"I was brought up in a Christian home. Even as a small boy I was extremely religious. I was going to be a priest," he explains brushing back his long blond hair.

But he began questioning the Christian dogma. "I started reading things in the Bible and I couldn't understand it. It just didn't make any sense to me. I went to another thing and decided maybe I should just believe in myself, which is a typical western outlook."

He got into Zen Buddhism and found that for him it had a "truer meaning for life." By applying certain Buddhist translations of Sanskrit terms to the Bible, he found the Bible became more meaningful to him. "It takes on an entirely different perspective," he says.

Moving into the mystical realm is an exploration strictly forbidden by Christian and Judaic religions, notes Webb. And belief in reincarnation, core element of witchcraft, is also anathema.

Witchcraft is concerned primarily with sending out and calling back vibrations. Since, "whatever you send out comes back to you somehow, sometime," he steers clear of black magic.

And because he doesn't want his powers or energies deployed for the selfish gain of others, he is a private practitioner, shunning covens.

The young man feels he can truly affect the course of events. "I can cause things to occur," he says confidently. "I can cause money or love to come to me. I have changed people's lives by sending out good vibrations.

But there is a limit to the powers. What has been specifically pre-determined cannot be changed, he says, even though the spirit of each individual lays out his own master plan for life.

According to Buddhism and Webb's personal beliefs, there is a silver cord that attaches the spiritual self to the physical body. The two become detached only at death. "When you die, the spiritual self rises to the Hall of Memory," he explains. "Here's where you review your last life. You're your own worst judge. You are on a higher plane of existence now, so you're very fair. You then set up your next birth. You choose your parents, your place of birth, your sex and color."

Since the spirit or soul lives on, in one form or another, we never cease to exist, maintains Webb. "The soul holds knowledge and love. It is the only thing that lives after death."

CRYSTAL BALLS and oiuja boards can put one in touch with cosmic spirits, maintains modern-day wizard Frank Webb.

We are reborn or reincarnated to learn specific lessons. According to Webb, it is a process that continues until atonement has been reached. He defines atonement as "basically learning everything that all the religions or philosophies teach. It's reaching Christhood." Then you return, he explains, only to help your fellow man.

Since it's a progressive process, he does not believe people come back as lower forms of life. That would be reversing evolution.

Webb thinks the present surge of interest in witchcraft is just a beginning, that there will be a peak in the coming years when today's younger generation reaches adulthood.

To underscore his contention of a groundswell of interest he points to the increased selling of good luck charms and ouija boards even among older people.

For those who play around with ouija boards, he warns, "You can call up evil spirits. The best thing to do is ask before you begin 'Are you in the light of Christ?'"

Webb knows some people think he's odd. But it doesn't bother him. He feels science already is taking seriously some of the things he believes in, such as ESP.

And while eight years ago he may have been a lone practitioner, today he finds himself among the company of artists, social workers, secretaries, teachers, engineers and others who have turned to the mysteries of witchcraft.

New Officers Named By Service League

Three new officers were elected at the Monday meeting of the Service League of Greenville.

Named were Mrs. A. M. Mumford, recording secretary, Mrs. Carl Pierce, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Thomas Haigwood, treasurer.

Fifteen Service League Provisional members have given a total of 936 hours toward Greenville projects since January.

They were welcomed into full active, voting membership by Mrs. Charles Stevens, membership chairman, at the meeting.

They are: Mrs. Charles Q. Brown; Mrs. Barney Barrett; Mrs. Edward Smith; Mrs. W. C. Taylor; Mrs. Ford McGowan; Mrs. Reginald Akin; Mrs. Donald Bailey;

Mrs. Donald Cherry; Mrs. Virgil Clark; Mrs. Robert Daniel; Mrs. Karl Faser; Mrs. Christopher Hargett; Mrs. Robert Hause; Mrs. Walter Savage, and Mrs. W. I. Wooten Jr. These members averaged 62½ hours each.

Mrs. John Biggs, second vice president, announced the last meeting of the year as being a luncheon on May 26 at 11 a. m. at the Greenville Country Club.

Bloodmobile Chairman, Mrs. Charles Gilbert, reported that 301 pints of blood were collected at East Carolina University during April with 57 active, sustaining and provisional members working 177 hours. The next visit will be for one day at the Moose Lodge on Friday, May 21, from 10 a. m. until 4 p. m.

Emergency Charity Chairman, Mrs. John Shannonhouse, reported four calls answered and one loan repaid. Mrs. Dwight Garrett reported 160 hospital favors were made with arrangements in the lobby and childrens ward.

Laughinghouse Hospital Fund Chairman, Mrs. Mumford, received one memorial during the month. Mrs. Ray Minges, Lending Chest chairman, had loaned two wheel chairs. Mrs. Maye Dail, Placement chairman, filled vacancies in the hospital Coffee Shop.

Sustaining members volunteered to make flower arrangements for the May luncheon in a report given by their representative, Mrs. W. S. Bost.

Mrs. J. Con Lanier, was called upon by President Mrs. Morris Brody, to give the report for the Williamston Area, State Governmental Conference for the Aging.

Shower Given Miss Galloway Saturday Night

Miss Brenda Galloway, bride-elect of Ronnie Foster, was honored Saturday night at a miscellaneous bridal shower at the fellowship hall of the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church.

Mrs. Burney Haddock and Mrs. Robert Hamilton Jr. presided at the bridal register. Mrs. Joe Fornes led the group in party games.

The bride's table was covered with a white linen Damask cloth, centered with an arrangement of red and white pom pons and snapdragons flanked on either side with white candles. Wedding bells and bows of bridal satin were attached at the corners. Magnolia greenery was also used in decorating. Punch was poured by Mrs. Freddie Williams.

The bride-elect was remembered with a red tinted mum corsage tied with red and white streamers which complimented her white polyester sheath.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Gentry Mills, Mrs. Foster Reid, Mrs. Burney Haddock, Mrs. Joe Fornes, Mrs. Worth Hardee, Mrs. Bruce Adams, Mrs. Freddie Williams and Mrs. Robert Hamilton Jr.

Campaign Sent To Very Top

SALERS, France (WNS) — Mme. Charles Maigne, wife of the mayor, has led the successful campaign to stamp out smoking in this medieval city in the Auvergne. First, citizens unanimously gave up tobacco for five days, then they extended the campaign to an entire month. Now Mayor Maigne has written to President Pompidou, another Auvergnat: "We have noticed, Monsieur le President, that you are an inveterate smoker. Hoping to keep you healthy, we respectfully suggest that you try our experiment. It is well worth the trouble and not as difficult as you might imagine." (In France, Pompidou is seldom shown in political cartoons without a cigarette hanging from his lips.)

Bride Cooks Asparagus The Modern Way

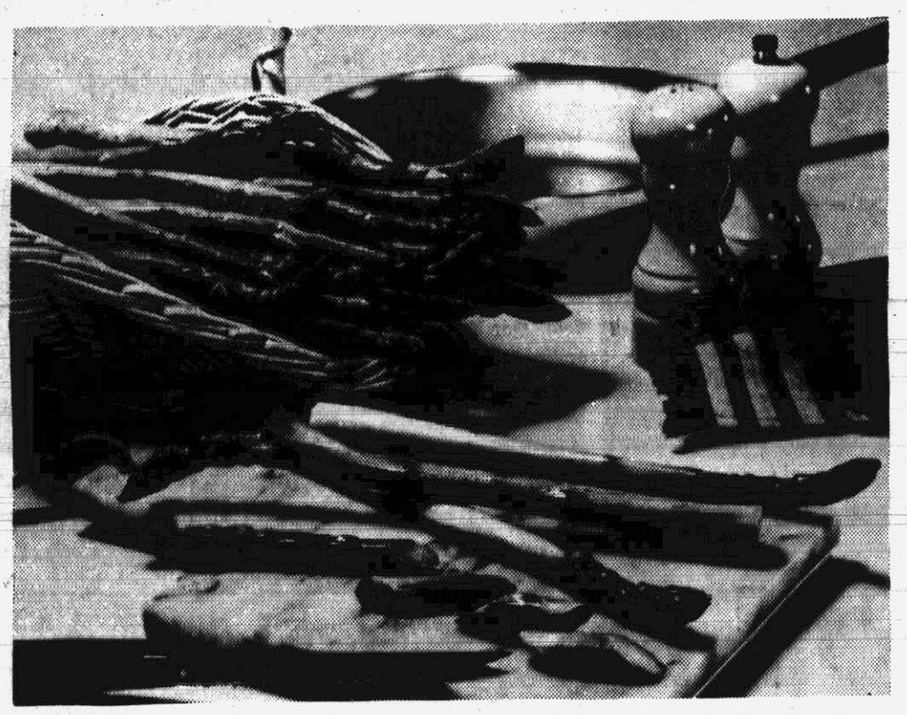
By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Brides, there's an easy modern way to cook asparagus. Pay no attention to recipes that call for a double-boiler. Asparagus spears do beautifully when they are cooked in a deep skillet with a dome-type cover in a small amount of salted water for a short length of time. This way the asparagus stays a fresh, bright green color.

And another up-to-the minute rule—at least it's a rule in our book. Always peel the asparagus spears up to the bud. Although there are opponents of this measure, we are adamant about it. Peeled, the spears cook in a minimum of time and every bit of asparagus may be eaten with pleasure. Peeling improves texture and flavor.

Whole cooked asparagus spears are elegant served with Hollandaise Sauce. They are also delicious teamed with other foods to serve as a main dish for brunch, lunch or supper. One way of doing this is to heat slices of baked ham and arrange them on hot buttered toast with the asparagus on top of the ham. Then spoon a well-flavored hot cheese sauce over the asparagus, add a sprinkle of paprika and serve at once.

Chill the cooked asparagus spears when you want to serve them as a salad with vinaigrette sauce. To make the vinaigrette beat together olive oil and wine vinegar (white or red) in the proportions you like with a dash of salt, white pepper and prepared mustard. Now add a good sprinkling of minced chives and parsley. At serving time arrange the asparagus on salad plates and spoon over the dressing. It is added at the last minute because if the spears are marinated in the vinaigrette for any length of time they will probably lose their bright green color due to the vinegar. Garnish the asparagus, if you like, with bright bands of pimiento.



FRESH ASPARAGUS — The spears are peeled up to the buds, cut in short lengths and skillet-cooked in butter.

A pound of asparagus makes wonderful eating for two. In the following recipe the peeled spears are cut into short lengths and cooked in butter without one drop of added liquid. The result is sweet and succulent.

BUTTERED ASPARAGUS CUTS

1 pound asparagus, thin or medium-thick spears
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of white pepper

Snap off the ends of the asparagus as far down as they break easily, or cut off the ends in one fell swoop.

With a swivel-blade vegetable peeler remove fibrous outer covering up to buds.

On a cutting board with a sharp knife cut the spears into 1-to 2-inch lengths, slanting the ends slightly, up to the buds.

In a 9-or 10-inch skillet over moderately low heat (250 degrees) melt the butter. Add asparagus; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Stir to coat asparagus with butter. Cover tightly and cook, lifting cover and stirring a few times, until tender-crisp—about 5 to 10 minutes. Serve at once.

Makes 2 generous servings.

Two-Week-Long Party Given Fly Girl

PARIS (WNS) — Adrienne Bolland, the first lady to fly the Andes (in 1921), has just been given a two-week-long birthday party by the National Aeronautics Center to celebrate her 75th birthday. "I began flying because I was bored," she recalled. "To get my license, I was ordered to do a loop-the-loop. I had never learned that, but I tried and did two by mistake." She flew the Andes without map or compass, lost her goggles on take-off and wrapped herself in newspapers as protection from the cold. "I was wearing only satin pajamas from Lanvin," Mme. Bolland reported. "To fight air sickness, I ate raw onions. There's nothing better." Maurice Chevalier wrote in his published memoirs, "Adrienne Bolland has been the love of my life." "Nonsense," commented the aviatrix. "I suppose he wrote that just to get me to buy his book, the darling."

Boutique Owner Is Anti-Pants

CHESTER, England (WNS) — Boutique owner Alan Brown has banned hotpants from his store and has announced that he will fire any employee — "male or female" — found wearing them. He has pasted anti-hot-pants slogans on the shop windows. "Hot pants are uniforms, and I hate uniforms," Brown explained. "They are for women who want to conform, and women should not conform." The name of Brown's boutique is Thingummys.

New Talent At Christian Dior

(Layout by Joe Damone)

DIOR FOR THE SUMMER — In New York, Christian Dior lifted the curtain a bit on Hubert Latimer, the new talent who recently was appointed designer for the Dior-New York collections. At left are two versions of white tucked batiste: an ankle length dress with a square neckline, shepherd sleeves and a black velvet laced cinch; and a hot pants jumpsuit with a split panel skirt and a black satin ribbon belt.

At center is a white crepe blouson dress, with shepherd sleeves, a pleated front panel and a self braided belt. And at right is a garden print embroidered organza shirtdress, cinched with a wide black velvet laced belt.

New Outfit Put Zip Into Their Marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you with a problem two years ago. I had a pretty young neighbor who wore short shorts and a halter top to do her housework in. She also went outdoors to hang her laundry in that outfit. I used to feel badly because my husband would always find some excuse to go outside and talk to her.

I asked you what I should do, and you wrote me a personal reply saying, "If that's what your husband likes, buy some short shorts and a halter top and give your neighbor a little competition."

I followed your advice, feeling a bit self-conscious because I have a slightly crippled arm, but I soon got over my shyness when I saw how my husband reacted. He just loved seeing me in that outfit and became so much more demonstrative and affectionate toward me.

Abby, the last two years of our marriage have been the best in all the 10 we've been married. I think you should have put my first letter and your personal reply in the paper. It might have helped other timid wives overcome their shyness and put more happiness into their lives.

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: It's still not too late. Thanks for writing. Your letter made my day.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow and I live alone. Nearly every Sunday a cousin comes to visit me for a few hours, and she always brings a lot of gossip about the rest of the family. I am really not interested in hearing about the marital woes of this niece and that nephew, or the financial struggles of other relatives, or which relative is on the outs with another relative, and that's all she ever talks about.

How can I avoid having the family garbage dumped on me week after week? I try to change the subject, but she gets right back on it again. If I tell her plainly I don't care for family gossip, she will berate me for my "holier than thou" attitude. She is vicious. Can you help me?

ANTI-GOSSIP

DEAR ANTI-GOSSIP: You'll need an accomplice for my solution. Invite a friend or neighbor over. Even the most vicious gossip will refrain from washing the family linen in the presence of a third party.

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a wonderful man, and we have four children. Elmer [not real name] and I are very happy, but my problem is my mother-in-law.

She never comes over unless specifically invited. I can't understand this as we try to let her know that she is welcome to drop in anytime. Elmer feels neglected because he has a sister, whom his mother talks to daily, and to whose house she goes often. This sister doesn't live any closer to his mother than we do.

Elmer stops in to see his mother at least once a week, but he feels hurt that she never comes here. Is it true that "A son is a son until he takes a wife, but a daughter is a daughter all her life"?

NO TOWN PLEASE

DEAR NO TOWN: Not necessarily, but the mother-daughter relationship is usually closer than the mother-son. There are many exceptions, however. Tell Elmer to quit sitting around wondering what's wrong, and to ask his mother straight out if there is some reason she doesn't visit more often. And if she assures him that all is well he should quit pouting, and continue to call on HER to keep in touch.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "JUST PLAIN UNLUCKY": A word about "luck," my friend: The harder one works, the luckier he gets.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

MISS LILLIAN JOYCE DARDEN . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Darden of Ayden, who announce her engagement to James M. King Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James King of Norfolk, Va. The wedding will take place Aug. 15.

Wedding Reception Menus Are Termed 'Elegant Simplicity'

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—If the fathers of 1971's bridges are feeling the tight-money pinch, it's hard to tell from their daughters' reception plans.

Banquet managers of two major hotels here said in separate interviews that prices are up about 10 per cent but bookings for the most popular wedding month are either holding level or increasing.

Both men—F. Bart Moore of the Plaza on Manhattan's fashionable Central Park South and Charles S. Waterman of the Americana near the theater district—used the term, "elegant simplicity," to describe currently popular menus.

Asked about a traditional menu for a seated dinner or dinner-dance reception, Waterman listed six courses, and Moore four.

"There's a tendency toward less abundance," said Moore, who emphasized repeatedly that he spoke only for his own establishment, not for hotels in general.

Avoid Starches

He said there's also "a tendency in many cases to avoid the starch in garnitures. People are weight and cholesterol conscious."

He said the latter attitude is reflected in a growing preference for leaner cuts of beef, such as sirloin, strip, filet or shells, as the traditional main course of beef roast. All are smaller cuts and contain less fat than roast prime ribs.

"Tastes in desserts are a little more sophisticated," Moore said. "They're getting away from ice cream, and choosing frozen souffles, sherbets or mousses instead."

Moore said both cocktail and afternoon buffet receptions remain quite popular, but that buffets are not necessarily less expensive than a seated meal. They could conceivably run much more, depending on the variety of food and the number of guests, he said.

"We give the father of the bride a working figure based on such factors as the type of reception and the menu. For instance, a very modest but elegant afternoon reception in July or August might cost about $15 per person for a menu of cold canapes, tea sandwiches and champagne."

Cost of Menu

He estimated that a traditional dinner menu, including hors d'oeuvre, liquor, gratuities and taxes, might cost $35 to $40 per person but could be less or considerably more.

Waterman, whose hotel has about 25 rooms for parties compared with the Plaza's seven, said dinner-dance receptions are more common now than afternoon receptions prevalent years ago.

The traditional menu he described consisted of an appetizer, a soup, both a fish and a meat course—the latter with potatoes and another vegetable; a salad and a dessert of ice cream and petit fours.

Water said the Americana's minimum now runs between $25 and $30 per person including tips and beverages.

He also said brides cling to the tradition of ordering, cutting and serving a wedding cake—but that few guests eat it. Most servings are returned to the kitchen for discard— people don't even want to carry home a slice in a special box any more.

Stage Star Goes Onward And Upward

PARIS (WNS) — At 91, stage star Gabrielle Dorziat has agreed to try a new medium — radio! She will perform on France Inter, the government-owned network, in Jean Fontaine's series, "Footlights." Mme. Dorziat waited until she was 80 before beginning her last new career by joining the prestigious, government-owned Comedie Francaise. "I am saving television for the future," she said. "You never become an old person if you have something new to look forward to in your career." Not that she believes in dropping the old. "As example, the gown that I am wearing is once again chic," she explained. "It was designed for me a half-century ago by Robert Piguet. I wore it in plays I did for Jean Cocteau and Louis Jouvet."

At-home fashions for the feet feature soft leathers trimmed casually with fringe, hardware or appliques. Leather ballet slippers make great leisure time shoes, too.

Indicative Of Growth, Vitality

Today, Gov. Scott, members of the Highway Commission and other dignataries were on hand to dedicate the dual laned N.C. 11 which has recently been completed from Greenville to Kinston.

The highway includes a new fenced bypass of Winterville and Ayden and a similar bypass of Grifton. A curbed and guttered divided highway has been constructed from Greenville to the Winterville cut-off.

All of the work in Pitt County, which was let in two projects, has recently been completed. It ties in with a dual lane highway north of the Dupont plant and on to Kinston.

Because N.C. 11 is not a major north-south highway, the provision of this splended highway is local in nature. It is indicative of the economic growth and vitality of Greenville, Winterville, Ayden, Grifton, Kinston and other communities along its way, for if it had not been for developments in these communities the dual laned highway would not have been needed.

It is possible now to leave Greenville and travel to Kinston with little reduction in a normal driving speed; or the traveler may drop off at Winterville, Ayden or Grifton at one of the several exits provided at these towns.

It is obvious that there will be considerably more visiting back and forth between residents of Greenville and those of Kinston and for the residents of communities in between.

The provision of this link between two major population centers will not be lost upon industrial developers who might be looking for sites in open areas but with easy access to nearby cities.

Super highways are something new to Greenville and Pitt County, but in this new facility, which may become the Main Street of Pitt County, we have an outstanding thoroughfare.

It is fitting that Gov. Scott, the highway commissioners and other officials were on hand today to dedicate this most important road project.

Law-Enforcing Goals Offered

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — The best thing North Carolina could do in the interest of law and order would be to prescribe standards for those in law enforcement.

Minimum levels of education and training, uniformity in salaires and benefits, would be a long step towards professionalism for those engaged in fighting crime and protecting the public.

The viewpoint comes from within the ranks. It summarizes top legislative goals for the North Carolina Law Enforcement Associations

BRYAN HAISLIP

Council, composed of presiding officers of 12 active law enforcement groups within the state.

No criminal justice system, reminded SBI Director Charles Dunn, is stronger than the personnel to administer and enforce it.

Creation of a North Carolina Criminal Justice Standards Council was a first-priority recommendation of a Law and Order Committee task force on training, selection and recruitment with Dunn served as chairman. Legislation to achieve the objective now is before the General Assembly.

Training Is Goal

A companion bill would give legislative status to the North Carolina Criminal Justice Academy, brought into being through an executive order signed by Governor Bob Scott last January 1, and also recommended by the task force.

The present outlook is that lawmakers will be willing to provide greater training opportunities for law officers, but may balk at empowering a council to set minimum salary levels. Local government resistance already has been communicated through the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners.

Fixing salaries is the sticking point of controversy for the proposal, Dunn agreed. At the same time, he said, "if we require that standards of training and education be met, then we should give assurance that the men will be paid accordingly."

Arounds two-thirds of the states have some kind of standards program, Dunn noted. "We feel North Carolina needs something of this type as impetus for further raising the level of professionalism in law enforcement," he said.

Professionalism in the criminal competition is all too apparent, the SBI chief added.

All Viewpoints Represented

Eighteen months' study went into the drafting of the standards council recommendation. A cross-section of law enforcement leaders, representing rural and small town officers as well as metropolitan and state agencies, contributed their views.

Headquarters of the State Bureau of Investigation is a former residence on North Blount Street in Raleigh. Governor Scott is a neighbor in the Executive Mansion two blocks south. One block north is a rooming house whose one-time occupants included members of a burglary ring broken by Dunn's agents.

His office shows its original Victorian symbolism with law enforcement today, encased in a 19th century structure in combat with 20th century crime.

Frustrations are inevitable. "We're playing checkers when we should be playing chess," Dunn commented glumly.

Training is the avenue for improvement. "The day is gone when you could give a man a badge and a gun and send him out as a law officer," Dunn said.

Justice Academy Plans

The Criminal Justice Academy is projected as a major training resource for the state. Rather than a single institution, the Academy is proposed as a comprehensive system for providing training and education for the officers and employees of the criminal justice system of the state and local governments, Dunn explained. Present programs and efforts, such as the community colleges system and the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill, would be used and strengthened as part of a coordinated plan for the entire state.

Both bills are before the Senate Committee on Correctional Institutions and Law Enforcement, whose chairman is Senator Tom Strickland of Wayne.

Legislators are aware of the need for training programs for law enforcement, and sympathetic to ideas for developing the career potential of the field, Strickland observed. In considering the bills, he added, the inclination might well be to first provide the resources for training and then move on to establishment of standards.

As spelled out in the legislation, the standards council would have flexible authority in fixing minimum training requirements and salary schedules. "It should be emphasized that the minimum standards would be established over a period of time and would in no way be prohibitive of higher standards set by individual departments or agencies," Dunn said.

Jawboning The Major Banks

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The Treasury not only opposed the recent interest rate boost by the nation's banks but last week engaged in face-to-face jawboning unprecedented in the Nixon administration to try preventing more such inflationary moves.

Carefully worked out at the Treasury by Secretary John B. Connally and Under Secretary Charls Walker the use of the jawbone occurred last Tuesday in a secret luncheon with key bankers — including the Chase Manhattan Bank's David Rockefeller, the man most responsible for the latest increase in the prime rate from 5¼ percent to 5½ percent. Walker rapped the bankers' knuckles in language considerably stronger than the Administration used against construction labor for wage increases or big steel for price boosts.

There was no thought of rolling back the rate to 5¼ percent. But the attempt was made to show bankers that the Nixon Treasury will not look lightly at another joyride up the interest rate escalator as money begins to get tighter.

Moreover, the exercise emphasized that Connally at the Treasury is a major policymaker in the Nixon administration, not overawed by the White House. Tuesday's jawboning came in the face of snarls from the President's Council of Economic Advisers, headed by Dr. Paul McCracken, that the 5½ percent prime rate was justified and Connally had no business criticizing it.

When Chase Manhattan announced the rate increase April 22, quickly followed by other major banks, Connally immediately said he was "very disappointed" at the unjustified move. Anonymous spokesmen at McCracken's council quickly derided Connally, and most other banks raised rates the next day, Friday, April 23.

Consequently, Connally and Walker decided to underline the Treasury's opposition. The ideal forum came up Tuesday, April 27, with a luncheon meeting at the Mayflower Hotel of the blue-ribbon bankers' committee advising the Treasury on debt financing. Besides Rockefeller, those present included Robert McClellan Surdam, National Bank of Detroit; Nat S. Rogers, First City National Bank of Houston; and A. W. Clausen, Bank of America, San Francisco. Of them, only Clausen had not raised the rate.

With Connally addressing the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Walker substituted for him. Longtime executive vice president of the American Bankers Assn., Walker was on easy terms with bankers and minced no words. Although committee members are pledged to strictest secrecy at their session, we have been able to piece together what happened.

Walker began by saying he knew the bankers were "wondering what kind of guy" Connally was. Walker's answer: he was so impressed he was staying as Under Secretary through 1972. Then he got to the point: Connally's public reaction to Chase Manhattan's boost April 23 actually was "muted." When Connally learned of the increase from reading the news ticker, said Walker, the Secretary was "very disturbed."

The Treasury rejected the notion, Walker went on, that the prime rate should fluctuate according to the cost of money to the banks. Instead, it should be based on loan demand. And loan demand clearly had not risen sufficiently to warrant an increase.

Then Walker punched home his haymaker: "At a time when the government is calling on labor unions to settle for less," it was "a great disappointment" the banking community could not show self-discipline.

Rockefeller responded that Chase Manhattan's policy was to be first in both raising and lowering rates. But Houston's Nat Rogers grumbled that Chase Manhattan had dropped the rate too low to 5¼ percent in

Strength For Today

FACE THE PROBLEM

There is a money situation which is baffling the whole world today. One set of economists say one thing and another group is saying something quite different. Almost everybody is aware of the fact that he lacks sufficient money to get along without fear or stringency. Several years ago a very wealthy man had to borrow money to pay his income tax. We all remember 1929, and the trouble then was that nobody owned anything. They thought they owned a lot of sound common stock, but they didn't — they only owned them on margin. The brokers owned them. Today many people do not own their homes — the banks own them. They don't own their automobiles and television sets — same reason. Our heads begin to swim when we read what the economists have to say about deficit financing. There are hungry people today even in the rich country of ours. This is really a national disgrace. We can understand how people are hungry in India or in certain portions of the world where tyranny or international strife seems to dominate every situation. But in this beloved country of ours? It is neither right nor reasonable.

Most people do not need to be told that they have to cut down a bit here and there. We do it and still find ourselves being squeezed on all sides.

Yes, there will be a readjustment sometime, but it has to start with every one of us facing our problems with realism and doing our best to solve them.

A Generation Sex Gap?

WASHINGTON — Everyone talks about the problems parents have with their children, but no one is aware that grandparents also have trouble identifying with their grandchildren.

A friend of mine, whom I shall call Zachary Danbury, decided to take his 16-year-old son to see Zach's mother who was in a nursing home. Mrs. Danbury, in her 80s, was happy to see both of them.

Unfortunately, Zach's son had very long hair and this is when the trouble started.

"Mother," said Zach, "this is my son, Bobby."

"She's very beautiful," Mrs. Danbury said.

"No, Mother. Bobby is a boy, not a girl."

Mrs. Danbury nodded. A few minutes later she said, "Bobby said, "Grandma, I boys get fresh with you. They lose all respect for a girl if she's considered easy."

Bobby said, "Grandma, I don't go out on dates with boys. I go out on dates with girls."

"That's nice," said Mrs. Danbury. "You'll never get in trouble if you go out with girls."

"Mother," said Zach. "You don't understand. Bobby is a boy. That's why he goes out with girls."

Mrs. Danbury absorbed this and then nodded, "I see you wear pants, Bobby. You know, when I was a girl we weren't permitted to wear pants. When I was your age, my mother made me wear crinolines when I went out. I don't suppose you know what they are."

"No Grandma, I don't."

Mrs. Danbury smiled. "None of the young girls know what they are any more." She then peered closely at Bobby and said, "You don't wear lipstick, do you?"

ART BUCHWALD

Bobby shook his head, "No, Grandma. I don't."

"You should be very proud of her, Zachary," Mrs. Danbury said to her son. "If you saw some of the young girls who come to visit their grandparents here, you'd be appalled." Then she turned to Bobby again. "Can you cook?"

"A little," Bobby replied.

"Learn to cook. You'll never hold onto a man if you don't know how to cook."

Zachary said, "Mother, Bobby isn't trying to find a man. He is a man, at least he's almost a man."

Mrs. Danbury's eyes gleamed. "Lots of young girls think all they have to do is look sexy. Well let me tell you something, Bobby. You're beautiful now, but you won't always be beautiful. That's when you need to hold onto your husband. I don't imagine you're going steady at 16?"

"No, Grandma," Bobby said. "I'm not going with anybody on a permanent basis."

"That's good," Mrs. Danbury said. "Make all the boys come to you. Never chase them."

"Yes, Grandma."

Public Forum

To The Editor:

I would like to cite an inequity in the State Retirement System.

I began teaching in 1917 with a diploma from ECTTS, now East Carolina University, and a B certificate. My salary was $50 a month, which included a $10 local supplement. In my first ten years of teaching, I attended five summer schools, all on borrowed money. I quit teaching in 1927-28, returned to ECU and got my AB degree and my A certificate. Prior to 1941, when the retirement law went into effect, I had taught 22 years in five North Carolina schools.

I returned to the classroom in 1949 and was retired in 1961. This 12 years is what my retirement is based on.

My first retirement check was $37.14. The three percent cost of living increase brought the amount up to $38.25. There are some who taught less than 12 years, on a lower grade certificate during the same period of time that are getting nearly three times what I am getting.

Many similar situations have been found throughout the state. I do not feel that this is just and fair.

I returned to the classroom in 1963 and taught four more years. This makes a total of 38 years' service in North Carolina.

The Legislature, many years ago, appropriated funds to give financial assistance to those who retired prior to 1941. Over the years the amount was increased until now they receive around $100 per month. This is a small and rapidly diminishing group. This low income retirement group, whose ages range from 75 to 80 years, is asking that the 1971 Legislature appropriate funds to give them $100 a month plus a fair and just amount for service prior to 1941. The estimated number in this category is less than 200. This estimate is based on a detailed survey made in one of the thickly populated districts of the state.

The amount mentioned above, plus the retirement received, along with the Social Security we have earned, will enable the retirees to maintain a living standard (moderate level) commensurate with the service they have rendered the state. This appropriation will not unbalance the budget, but will be a just and fair expenditure of state funds.

If more people knew the plight of some of these aged retirees they would be more than willing, and indeed anxious, to see the inequity corrected by this General Assembly.

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing reconciles people to the price of life more than memory.

Sometimes a too-recent memory can burn like a fire. But as a memory grows older and mellower it usually loses its searing quality, and we become adjusted to the losses and hurtful episodes of living.

It is through the memory of our experiences that we digest and assimilate the meaning of our existence. And your own private world is pretty extensive if you can look back and remember when—

States Turn To Bucket Shops?

By ELMER ROESSNER

States, pressed for money, are turning to vice to raise revenue. Nevada has long skimmed gambling to raise money for state operations, and it has used gambling to attract spenders to its hotels and whore houses. It has also used quickie divorces to attract spenders, but divorce isn't a vice.

New York, New Hampshire and New Jersey have been running state lotteries. New York is now booking bets on horse races. It is a current wisecrack to say that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller is planning the next obvious steps: To take over the numbers game, to establish swank gambling casinos, or to start a chain of state brothels.

But that may not be necessary. There is an event more lucrative possibility. That's the establishment of state networks of bucket shops.

Easy Profits

You are probably too young to remember bucket shops. They flourished in the 1920s. The operators would set up a brokerage office and solicit buy and sell orders on stocks.

They didn't execute the orders. As they said, they would just "put them in the bucket." They would pocket the fees without wasting time to buy or sell the stock, then pay off customers who made gains, and keep the money put up by those who lost.

It always worked for a while because the small trader was usually wrong. Losses by investors usually exceeded their gains, leaving a nice profit in addition to the fees. And if somebody made a hit, if a customer bought 10,000 shares of General Mythical, and it shot up $19 dollars a share, the operators would simply depart with all the cash lying around and lock the doors behind them.

Legitimate brokers were sometimes tempted to do a little bucketing. When a customer placed a large order, a broker might feel certain that it was going to lose and bucket the order. If the deal did lose, the broker kept the money; if it showed a gain, the broker would have to pay it out of his own pocket or go to jail. A few did.

Bucketing orders today, however, is strictly illegal.

State Could Do It

But a state could do it if the laws were changed. A state could set up a shop or chain of shops and announce it was bucketing orders. For the most part, the state's gains would more than offset its losses. And whenever there were especially heavy buy or sell orders on one stock, the state could lay off the play by buying or selling the stock on the exchange, just as bookies lay off some of their bets at the track today.

It would take sharp management to make sure buy and sell orders in each stock were in reasonable balance, and if not, to know how much of an issue to buy or sell. But with computers the facts should be constantly available.

And with the tremendous volume of sales at today's high fees, a state should make billions of dollars a year, enough to make off-track bookmaking and state lotteries seem like Parcheesi.

Cloudy Future After 10 Great U.S. Years In Space

EDITOR' NOTE—It seems long ago. But it was only 10 years ago that Alan B. Shepard Jr. became America's first man in space. The following by AP Aerospace Writer Howard Benedict, who has been in on the space story since its inception, reviews the great 10 years of space—and looks into the future.

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — "Freedom 7 was just the first baby step, aiming for bigger and better things. One day man will land on the moon. He will establish space stations and he will go to Mars."

Alan B. Shepard Jr. made the prophecy shortly after he became America's first spaceman 10 years ago, on May 5, 1961.

Shepard's first flight lasted only 15 minutes and took him and his Freedom 7 capsule just 116 miles high and 302 miles down the Atlantic missile range. The moon, Mars and space stations seemed far away.

But a decade later six Americans, including Shepard, have landed on the moon and the Russians have tested the first elements of a space station with the recent Soyuz 10-Salute mission.

On Saturday, May 8, the United States plans to launch an unmanned Mariner spacecraft in the first attempt to orbit Mars. A second craft is to follow 10 days later on a similar mission.

But, for the U.S. at least, manned flights to Mars are many years away. After overtaking an early Soviet lead to win the race to the moon, America's space program is slowing.

UNLESS Congress votes funds for future programs, the U.S. will end manned space flight for the foreseeable future in 1973.

Russia, meanwhile is accelerating its space effort. Soviet scientists say they'll launch a fleet of space stations as orbiting laboratories for medical, scientific and engineering research. They will be used for earth resources survey and for military purposes.

The Russians also talk of sending men to Mars and of establishing colonies on the moon, neither of which is in present U.S. planning.

Shepard, the U.S. pioneer, regrets the winding down of the American program.

"It's not in the spirit of Freedom 7," he said. "I'm sorry we don't have the same momentum we had back then. We shouldn't run and stop and then run and stop again in response to Soviet achievements."

Shepard—then a Navy lieutenant commander and recently selected for promotion to rear admiral—recalls every minute of his first flight when a breathless nation riveted attention on his cramped capsule atop a slender Redstone rocket. America's prestige rode on what would happen that day.

Only 23 days earlier, Russian cosmonaut Yuri A. Gagarin had become the first human to rocket away from earth, circling the globe once on a 108-minute mission.

Shepard devoted most of the suborbital flight to reporting instrument readings to Mission Control.

On landing he uttered the famous "Everything is A-O.K.!"

Twenty days later President John F. Kennedy committed this nation to a landing on the moon.

The Soviets and their larger rockets had the early edge in a race to the first moon landing. But America's technological, scientific and management capability enabled it to forge ahead as it moved from the Mercury to the Gemini to the Apollo programs.

There was tragedy along the way. The three Apollo 1 astronauts died in a 1967 launch pad fire at Cape Kennedy. Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov was killed during re-entry from orbit the same year. Gagarin, the first man in space, died in a 1968 plane crash while training for another flight.

The problem that caused Komarov's death, plus numerous rocket troubles, delayed the Soviet effort.

The United States won the moon prize July 20, 1969, when Apollo 11 astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin landed their lunar module Eagle on the lunar Sea of Tranquility.

Since then two other astronauts teams have landed on the moon. Shepard, after overcoming an ear disorder that grounded him several years, commanded the Apollo 14 flight earlier this year, landing in the moon's highlands.

The Apollo program is to end after three more moon landings, Apollo 15 in July and Apollos 16 and 17 next year. In 1973, the U.S. plans to launch a small space station named Skylab. During the year it will be visited by three different three-man crews. Each will have a doctor and a scientist and they will conduct experiments for up to 56 days. 7

After Skylab, America has no approved man-in-space project. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration had hoped to have a large space station with a dozen or more men and women in orbit in 1976, to be serviced from earth by a reflyable space shuttle that would operate like an airliner, making 100 or more roundtrips into space. Both projects have been delayed at least three years, and may be canceled if Congress fails to vote funds in the next fiscal year.

What happened to the American space program?

After the first moon landing the attention of both Congress and the public seemed to turn away from space venture to solving such earthly problems as Vietnam, poverty, pollution and the cities.

Congress slashed the NASA budget. Three Apollo flights were canceled and the program was stretched out. Skylab was delayed more than two years.

The number of persons employed on space projects dropped from a peak of 420,000 in 1966 to 125,000 at present, and thousands of skilled scientists, technicians and engineers are out of work. Knowledgeable sources estimate the Soviet Union has more than 600,000 persons now working on its space program.

The Soviets in 1968 realized they had a slim chance of beating the Americans to the moon. So they down-played the idea of a contest and shifted their space emphasis to unmanned lunar exploration and an all-out drive to develop a station-shuttle system.

They announced the Soyuz 10-Salute mission, in which three cosmonauts linked up with the unmanned Salute, was a major step toward a permanent station.

Because of the advanced technology required, their shuttle probably is several years away. However, a rocket plane like this is needed to make an orbiting laboratory economical, because repeated launchings of men and supplies on one-shot rockets would be too expensive. As an observation platform for weathermen, astronomers, and agricultural, geology and forestry experts searching for earth's hidden riches. Medical men, scientists, biologists and engineers could conduct experiments and manufacturing processes in a true vacuum and weightlessness. U.S. experts believe the Soviets would also use orbiting stations to develop a strong space military capability.

A shuttle not only would serve space stations, it also could carry unmanned satellites into orbit and return others to earth for repair. Costly space rockets no longer would be needed.

While developing a station. Russia also has pushed a vigorous unmanned space program. In 1970 it registered 86 successful space launches including a record 18-day endurance flight by two Soyuz 9 cosmonauts. In the same year the U.S. logged only 31 successful launches, its lowest in years and far below its 1966 record of 74.

Most of the Russian spacecraft last year had military assignments such as reconnaissance, monitoring radio signals and communications and navigation for planes, ships and submarines. There were additional tests of a fractional orbital bomb system, in which a dummy nuclear warhead soars into orbit and descends on target before completing one circuit of the globe.

There also were tests of a new satellite intercept system in which four orbiting Soviet spacecraft were blasted to bits by seek-and-destroy satellites nice for you, Bobby, since you came to see me. Here's $20."

"What for?" Bobby asked.

"Buy yourself a pretty dress," Mrs. Danbury said. "I don't have any objections to your wearing pants, but I think you should have one pretty dress in your closet for some special occasion."

Bobby took the 20-dollar bill. "Thank you, Grandma."

"It's all right, Bobby." Mrs. Danbury smiled. "Mrs. Dobkins, who lives across the hall from me, is always bragging about her granddaughter, so I want to see the expression on her face when she sees that I have a beautiful granddaughter, too."

the first place. What followed next was an interest rate colloquy between Walker and Rockefeller.

Walker's jawboning added some backbone to the few giant banks resisting the 5½ percent rate. Besides Bank of America, they include Crocker-Citizens National Bank, San Francisco; Security Pacific National Bank, Los Angeles; and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York. Significantly, the Crocker-Citizens president is Dr. Leslie C. Peacock, Walker's former student at the University of Texas and his former lieutenant at the American Bankers Assn.

Morgan Guaranty, but perhaps not the California banks, probably will have to join the Chase Manhattan parade. Thanks to Treasury jawboning, however, Rockefeller & Co. may think twice next time before climbing another rung on the interest rate ladder to make life more expensive for everybody.

by women while cooling themselves with cardboard fans at a church social. The fans had been given to them "free gratis" as the saying went, by the local grocery store or funeral parlor.

Even if he couldn't hold a steady job, a fellow could avoid the reputation of being shiftless as long as he could convince people he was taking a correspondence school course to prepare himself for something better.

One of the troubles with going on a Sunday drive in the early days of motoring was that you had to stop and put up the isinglass curtains when it rained.

A girl usually made her own high school graduation dress and got a gold-plated wristwatch for a present, and when she took her diploma every member of the family shed a tear.

No one ever thought of shutting the village idiot up in an institution. After all, he was the most-quoted fellow in town and certainly the only one without a single enemy.

Those were the days—remember?

More Care For Mother's Card

NEW YORK (AP) — When it comes to greeting cards, people spend more time searching for Mother's Day cards than they do for Christmas cards, says Irving Cohen, president of Fifth Avenue card shops.

"People will joke about Mother Hubbard, Mother Goose and Whistler's Mother, but each Mother's Day all kidding is set aside," says Cohen. "Mom is like the American flag. You just don't knock either."

Rose High Stage Band's Concert Thursday Night

REHEARSAL . . . of Rose High's Stage Band takes place in the band room. Thomas Smith, Jr., second from left top (with tie) explains a passage to the saxophonists.

The spring concert of the J. H. Rose High School Stage Band takes place this year Thursday evening, in the Rose High School Gymnasium at 8:00 p.m.

The 21 piece band, top stage band in North Carolina, will be conducted by Thomas Smith, Jr., the regular director of the band, The stage band, which features a smooth dance style reminiscent of the big bands of the late 30's and the 40's, is made up of five saxophones, four trombones, three percussion instruments, six trumpets, a guitar, a fender bass, and the piano.

For their big spring program, some of the numbers have been especially arranged for this group by Smith, including "Norwegian Mood," a jazz waltz, "Love for Sale," "Alfie," "Mac Arthur Park," "Keep The Customer Satisfied," and "Up Tight."

Jackie Corbett will perform a trombone solo, "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You." Other numbers scheduled for performance during the stage band concert are: "Here's The Band," "Black Is The Color Of My True Loves Hair," "More," "Swamp Rock Stomp," "I'm Confessin'," "Doin' Basie's Thing," "Who Can I Turn To?" and several others.

I Turn To?" and several others.

Admission to the concert is $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for students. Tickets will be available at the door prior to concert time.

Elections In A Number Of N.C. Cities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In East Bend, a Yadkin County town 15 miles from Winston-Salem, the only candidate on the ballot was defeated.

In High Point a black was elected to the City Council for the first time.

Those were two of the highlights in Tuesday's municipal elections in North Carolina.

Thomas Johnson, the only candidate on the ballot at East Bend, was defeated for mayor by 91 write-in votes for the present mayor, Benny Neill, who did not seek re-election.

Also elected on write-ins were three incumbents on the town's Board of Commissioners and two newcomers.

Word was out before the election that nobody was interested in running because of the town's indebetedness for its new water system and the feeling that nothing could be accomplished until the debt was paid.

East Bend has a population of 485.

School Principal Samuel E. Burford, Democrat, became the first black elected to the City Council in High Point.

Burford was believed the first Negro to serve as principal of a predominantly white high school in North Carolina when he took over three years ago at the T. Wingate Andrews School in High Point.

Former City Councilman W. S. Bencini, a Republican, was elected mayor of High Point, 4,826-3,577 over Democrat Holt McPherson, who had taken a leave of absence as editor of the High Point Enterprise to make the race. A candidate of the American party, A. G. Whitener, received 205 votes for mayor.

In Raleigh, five incumbents, former Mayor William Enloe, and a political newcomer, Michael Boyd, won seats on the seven member City Council. The council has one black incumbent, and another black missed gaining a spot by 300 votes. The City Council will select a mayor later this spring.

In Greensboro, all seven incumbent members of the City Council, including two Negroes, retained their seats. Mayor pro tem Jim Melvin led with 12,341 votes, and the two black members, Jimmie Barber and Vance Chavis, ran fifth and sixth.

In Wilson, a city councilman, H. P. Benton Jr., was high man with 1,426 votes in the three-way race for mayor. The second high, Littlejohn Faulkner Sr., received 1,157 and has 48 hours from today's canvass to decide whether to ask for a runoff. The third candidate, John D. Wilson, a former mayor, got 938 votes and was eliminated. Mayor E. D. Pittman did not seek re-election.

Five civic improvements projects which call for a bond issue totalling $8½ million carried in Wilson. They are for sewage treatment facilities, improvements to the municipal electrical distribution system, additional water storage facilities, a new police headquarters building and and a fifth fire station.

At Warrenton, Mayor W. A. Miles, who has been in office since 1957, won re-election, and the northeastern North Carolina city got its first woman town commissioner. She is Mrs. Anna G. Butler, who came in fourth among 10 candidates in the race for seven seats. The seats went to the only three incumbents running, and four newcomers.

Given Memento Of Lincoln Era

ROBINSON, Ill. (AP) — Lincoln Trail College, a new institution, has received a piece of history for its collection of objects commemorating the era of Abraham Lincoln.

A 75-year-old set of Conestoga wagon hoops was donated by the Morris Davis family. They were brought to the Davis home in Annapolis in 1896 by the late John Newlin, Mrs. Davis' great-uncle.

Near Killed By Model Airplane

IRVING, Tex. (AP) — A fund has been started for a 25-year-old Irving man, who went into a coma as the result of a January accident when the metal cable of a model airplane he was flying got wrapped around a power line.

Ken Caver's heart stopped while he was being rushed to the hospital, but it started again 10 minutes after he got there. He was later taken to Parkland hospital in Dallas and then to Veterans hospital.

Governing Agencies Just Grew Out Of Reason

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Every two years for more than a century, by ones and twos and dozens, the General Assembly has been creating the hodgepodge of agencies that govern North Carolina.

Some of these agencies were created to perform broad functions, but most were given a single duty to carry out.

In 1899 it was decided that North Carolina needed somebody to supervise the salvaging of ships wrecked along the coast. So the legislature created the office of commissioner of wrecks.

In 1903 the legislature set up a Board of Anatomy to distribute certain dead bodies to medical schools. In 1925 it created the now-powerful Department of Conservation and Development to promote industrial development and preservation of the state's resources.

The official total of independent departments, commissions, boards and councils now stands at 295.

This bureaucratic accretion has been described by those who know it best as one of the most — if not the most — inefficient, unmanageable and unresponsive executive branches in the nation.

Responsibility for this accumulation of agencies goes to the General Assembly, which in North Carolina is the giver of almost all power exercised by the governor and the administrative branch.

The North Carolina Constitution of 1868 created eight elective officers — secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, attorney general, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of labor and commissioner of insurance, in addition to the governor and the lieutenant governor. But the constitution gives the legislature complete responsibility for prescribing the duties and salaries of these eight officials. They have no constitutional powers.

Instead of assigning all the functions and services of state government to these offices, the legislature has over the last 100 years created:

—Forty other major departments and 31 governing boards or commissions related to these major units. These are agencies such as the Department of Water and Air Resources, which is the state's main pollution control agency, and the Board of Water and Air Resources which directs it; the Department of Administration, which handles the budget division, purchase and contracts, property control and planning; the Highway Commission; Department of Health; Department of Revenue; Department of Mental Health; Department of Social Services; and Conservation and Development.

—Twenty-six advisory boards, councils and commissions and another 82 miscellaneous boards, councils, authorities, commissions and committees. The first group includes such things as the Atomic Energy Advisory committee, Blind Advisory Committee, Historic Sites Advisory Committee, Seashore Advisory Board and the Private Employment Agencies Advisory Board.

The second group includes the Burial Association Commission, Daniel Boone Memorial Commission, Edenton Historial Commission, Commission on the Education and Employment of Women, Eugenics Board, Good Neighbor Council, Committee on Law and Order, Rural Electrification Authority and the Zoological Authority.

—Thirteen interstate compacts, agreements or commissions, such as the Southern Interstate Nuclear Compact and the Interstate Compact on Qualifications of Educational Personnel.

—Seven retirement systems or related agencies, including the Teachers' and State Employes' Retirement Fund, the Legislative Retirement System and the Law Enforcement Officers' Benefit and Retirement Fund.

—Ten independent schools, hospitals and institutions such as the Confederate Women's Home, the Orthopedic Hospital at Asheville and the Governor Morehead School for the blind.

—Fifteen assorted associations, societies, panels, corporations, offices, companies, programs, institutes, certification boards and bureaus. These include the Arbitration Panel, Art Society Atlantic and N.C. Railroad Co., the Railroad Co. and the Housing Corp.

—Thirty-one professional licensing boards which certify opticians, veterinarians, cosmetologists, barbers, nursing home administrators, embalmers and funeral directors, nurses, pharmacists, podiatrists, osteopaths, dentists, doctors, waste water treatment plant operators, plumbers, contractors, engineers, architects, watchmakers, hearing aid dealers and others.

—And 31 higher education entities: the Board of Higher Education, Higher Education Facilities, 17 university campuses, 11 boards of trustees and the Consolidated University of North Carolina Office.

In the 1969 session alone the General Assembly created the Department of Local Affairs, the Housing Corporation, the Youth Council, the Water Safety Committee, the Tobacco Museum, the Board of Landscape Architects, the state Hearing Aid Dealers and Fitters Board and other lesser agencies.

All the agencies together employ more than 125,000 fulltime employes and received state appropriations totaling $3 billion during 1969-71.

Why did the legislature create such an unwieldy bureaucracy? Experts say it was part design and part shortsightedness.

Creating a new agency is more impressive to the people back home than adding a new function to an existing agency. Independent status also gives more prestige and visibility to the agency and its function.

Many agencies, especially licensing boards, are created at the request of special interests, and these groups feel it is easier to influence an independent, single-purpose board than a large multi-purpose agency.

Perhaps an even stronger motive was the legislative tradition of keeping the executive branch from gaining too much power.

In North Carolina, the Governor and the administrative branch exercise power at the grace of the legislature. And all that the legislature has given it could take away.

A Tar Heel governor must propose a budget for the legislature, but the lawmakers can change or reject it. He can propose programs and legislation, but he has no veto power. He has wide appointive powers, but these were given to him by the legislature and can be taken away.

The legislature has traditionally taken the governor's budget recommendations and program proposals quite seriously. This is partly out of party loyalty, since a Democratic majority in the legislature has usually followed the proposals of a Democratic chief executive.

But through its structuring of the executive branch, the legislature has effectively prevented the governor from making any radical changes on his own.

The legislature has put much authority and power in the executive branch in the last century, but it has dispersed this power so well through the 300 parts that the total creature is relatively weak.

This decentralized, overlapping bureaucracy through which the governor must administer the state has shown itself to be sluggish and slow to respond even under the guidance of a strong executive.

Named Sugg Homemaker

FARMVILLE — H. B. Sugg High School's 1971 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow is senior Janice Carlton.

Selected for her performance in a written knowledge and aptitude examination administered to senior girls on Dec. 1, Miss Carlton will receive a specially designed award from General Mills, sponsor of the annual education program. Additionally, she is eligible for state and national honors, including one of 102 college scholarships totaling $110,000.

Miss Carlton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Earl Carlton of Farmville. She has been active in school activities and is a member of the National Honor Society, the Future Teachers of America, the Science Club, and the Booster's Club. She has won the U.S. History Award and the World History Award in recent years.

Costly Blaze In Tarboro

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — A fire of undetermined origin destroyed a huge warehouse in Tarboro Tuesday, causing an estimated $800,000 in damages.

The Victory Warehouse was operated as a tobacco auction warehouse during tobacco season, but at the time of the fire was full of plastic toys ready for shipment.

Tarboro Fire Chief Gene Parsons said the front wall of the brick building was collapsing when the first of four city fire units arrived on the scene before dawn. Five rural fire departments were called in to provide protection for nearby areas as wind-driven sparks fell over a wide area.

Carolina Enterprises, a local manufacturer of plastic toys, said the merchandise in the warehouse was valued at $600,000. The tax value of the warehouse is listed at $161,800, and at least four vehicles were destroyed inside the building.

SCOUTING AWARD, Bill Kirk, Jr., became one of the select few in the Pitt Scouting District to receive the Ad Altare Dei Award Sunday evening in a ceremony at St. Peter's Catholic Church. The diocesan award was presented by his pastor Fr. Maurice Spillane. Bill has been a member of Troop 362 for three years, holds the rank of Star, is a member of the Order of the Arrow and is Senior Patrol Leader of his troop. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Kirk, 203 Hardee Circle, Greenville.

GovernorWants More Women In Better Jobs

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott says that the South will need more and more women in professional and technical jobs as the region's economy grows.

Scott told a banquet of the American Business Women's Association in Raleigh Tuesday night that too many women in the South are still concentrated in the "low-skill, low-paid jobs."

"More emphasis will have to be placed on encouraging women to educate themselves, to enter training programs which will prepare them for jobs other than those traditionally thought of as 'women's work'," Scott said.

He said it has been projected that by 1980, some 42 per cent of all women over the age of 16 will be in the labor force.

Seek Larger Truck Rates

RALEIGH (AP) — Tar Heel motor carriers want the North Carolina Utilities Commission to revoke a recent rate increase so that the carriers can ask for an even bigger hike.

The carriers admitted Tuesday that the rate increase order issued by the commission in January had "materially helped," but said it has not brought in enough money to defray rising operating costs.

The truckers want a flat minimum charge of $5, up from $4.50, and rate increases that would range from 15 per cent on shipments up to 999 pounds to 3 per cent for shipments 5,000 pounds and over.

Under state law, the carriers normally would have to wait a year to file for new rates, but they said in their petition for relief that many "will not survive nine additional months under present conditions without further financial assistance."

Deputy Killed In Auto Accident

TABOR CITY, N.C. (AP) — Columbus County Deputy Sheriff Milford Mack Hardwick, 42, was killed Tuesday night when his speeding car ran off the road and struck a utility pole, the State Highway Patrol reported.

The accident occurred on a rural paved road four miles east of Tabor City.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, who once said "taxes should hurt," has disclosed he didn't have to pay any 1970 California income taxes.

The reason was business losses suffered by Reagan during the year, the Republican chief executive's office said.

Reagan's salary as governor was $44,000 in 1970, boosted to $49,100 this year.

The average California family of four with earnings of $7,000 would pay $2. A business executive earning about what the governor does would pay more than $2,700 if he had no business losses to deduct.

Reagan, who sold his Malibu Canyon ranch for $2 million in 1968, was asked at his weekly news conference Tuesday if he had paid any state income taxes this year. Word had spread around the Capitol that he had not.

The governor bit his lip as he strained to recall.

"You know something? I don't actually know," Reagan said, but his top aide told newsmen he would find out and advise them.

Later, Reagan's office issued a statement which, in full, said: "Because of business reverses of Governor Reagan's investments, he owed no state income taxes for 1970."

The governor's press secretary, Paul Beck, refused to describe Reagan's "business reverses."

The governor's office refused to say whether Reagan had to pay any federal income tax. Capitol tax experts said it would be impossible to determine without having details of the governor's finances—which he refuses to make public.

The governor said early in his term that "taxes should hurt" and should be visible. That was his chief argument for opposing pay roll withholding for state personal income taxes, a position he since has reversed.

Democratic state Sen. Alfred Alquist issued a statement saying: "The fact that Gov. Reagan—normally considered a millionaire in most circles—paid no state income taxes last year is sound evidence that our state income taxing structure needs an agonizing reappraisal and a major overhaul."

He added, "It's interesting—or perhaps saddening—that an unskilled laborer with an income of $5,000 a year paid more state income taxes than our governor."

Egypt, Israel Display No Signs Of Retreating

CAIRO (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers talked with Egyptian officials again today, but neither Egypt nor Israel gave any indication of retreating from opposing conditions for reopening the Suez Canal.

At the midway point of his two-day visit to Cairo, Rogers met with Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad and Premier Mahmoud Fawzi and was to get in some sightseeing with visits to the pyramids and the Sphinx.

The secretary hopes his week-long peace mission to four Arab capitals and Israel will help unfreeze the deadlocked Arab-Israeli peace talks and produce some movement toward a Suez Canal agreement as a step toward a peace settlement.

In proposing an agreement last month to reopen the canal, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said Israeli forces must pull back from the east bank, and Egyptian troops would cross over to reoccupy the territory relinquished. Israel said it would agree to withdraw only if the Egyptians stayed on the west bank of the waterway.

Egyptian spokesmen in turn have repeatedly rejected any such prohibition on movement of their forces across the canal. And Israel's position was restated in Jerusalem Tuesday by Information Minister Israeli Galili, who said his government demands "absolute assurance" that no Egyptian or Soviet troops would cross the canal, as well as "effective and agreed means" of supervising the execution of any agreement.

Arriving from Beirut Tuesday, Rogers said he was prepared "to explore with Egypt and Israel in a concrete way the possibility of an interim agreement of opening the Suez Canal, which we hope would contribute to a final settlement."

Aims Bill At Visitations

RALEIGH (AP) — A veteran state senator has sponsored legislation aimed at halting bedroom cohabitation between members of the opposite sex in dormitories at state-institutions in North Carolina.

The bill, introduced Tuesday by Senator Jyles Coggins, D-Wake, would prohibit visits to the bedroom or other sleeping quarters of a member of the opposite sex.

Under the bill, violators would be subject to suspension or expulsion. The measure would not prohibit students from visiting the rooms of their spouses.

Regulations went into effect in February on the six campuses of the Consolidated University of North Carolina permitting women in men's dormitories during certain hours.

Students at East Carolina University staged demonstrations last month in an effort to get trustees to reinstate coed visiting privileges in dormitories on the ECO campus.

Junior Miss To Be Named

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Tonight's the night.

One of the 50 young ladies representing every state will be crowned America's Junior Miss.

The girls took time off from preliminary events Tuesday to rigorously rehearse for tonight's nationally televised finals, when one of them will be named successor to charming Karen Stenwall of Phoenix, Ariz., the 1970 Junior Miss.

In the last of the preliminaries Tuesday, Maryland's Junior Miss — Kathryn Lee Epstein of Bowie — was named winner of a party planning contest.

Miss Epstein was awarded a $2,500 U.S. Savings Bond Scholarship for her ideas on how to entertain teen-agers. She planned a luau dinner for the competition, in which contestants were judged on originality and homemaking skills.

At stake in the finals is a total of $38,000 in cash scholarship awards. A total of $12,000 already has been presented to the 11 winners in preliminary events Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

NASA Official Will Be Commencement Speaker

Dr. Raymond Lewis Bisplinghoff, prominent scientist and educator who has been allied closely with the National Aeronautical Space Administration and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will address more than 2,000 East Carolina University graduates at 1971 ECU Commencement exercises on May 30.

Announcement of Bisplinghoff's acceptance to deliver the Commencement Address was made by Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, president of East Carolina University.

"We are very pleased to have so distinguished a Commencement speaker as Dr. Bisplinghoff," Dr. Jenkins commented.

"He has been widely recognized for a number of accomplishments in the fields of science, education and administration."

Dr. Bisplinghoff, recipient of the NASA Distinguished Service Medal in 1967, has served as Director of the Office of Advanced Research and Technology and Chairman of the Research and Technology Advisory Council.

He has also been on the senior faculty at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he is at present professor and chairman of the Department of Aerospace and Astronautics, as well as Dean of the College of Engineering.

In addition, he has been consultant with several leading aircraft corporations.

Dr. Bisplinghoff is the author of numerous professional papers and co-author of books in the field of aeroeplasticity. Currently he is an editor with two scientific journals.

He has been recognized by Carnegie-Mellon University and by the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences for merit in the field of aerospace science.

His activities in national scientific and technological organizations include past presidency of the American Institute of Aerospace and Astronautics.

A native of Hamilton, Ohio, Dr. Bisplinghoff holds degrees from the University of Cincinnati and the Case Institute of Technology, Cleveland.

Scott Hails . . .

happy, too, that Eastern North Carolina itself is on the move," emphasized Scott.

"From the giant Dupont facility in Kinston to the new Burroughs-Wellcome plant in Greenville, from the rapidly expanding East Carolina University, to the Lenoir Community College, this section is more than ready to put to full use a faeility such as this new section of N.C. 11," Scott noted.

According to the governor, out-migration has been commonplace in many parts of this area for the past 30 years, and many Eastern North Carolina counties have noted population decreases.

"The Machine Age has depleted the need for increased farm labor," Scott emphasized.

"In other words, there's been quite a bit of 'crying-the-blues' in this area. But, could it just possibly be that all this has been a blessing in disguise? Could it be that Eastern North Carolina is at the right place at the right time?"

Scott continued, "What I'm saying is this: The Age of Ecology is here. Protection of our environment has been given high priority. Pollution of air and water is a national problem. In the age of environment, when the northeastern United States is choking from industrial 'overkill' when our major rivers and streams in the Midwest and Great Lakes are becoming hopelessly polluted, when even some sections of heavily industrialized North Carolina are years behind in coping with their environment — when all this is going on around us, here in Eastern North Carolina you can turn a deficit into an asset."

"You can realize a controlled, orderly and healthy growth, industrially, culturally and agriculturally," Scott stated. "You can make sure that there is no industrial 'over-kill', yet with proper land-use locate the right type plants, such as the ones you now have, that will 'clean-up as they go' ".

"This new and improved four-land facility from Greenville to Kinston is indicative of new and vibrant growth in Eastern North Carolina. And it is coming at a time when proper checks and balances are being applied to keep this section of our great State on an even environmental keel," Scott said.

The governor concluded, "This road project is a credit to your highway commissioners during my administration, and Arthur Tripp, and Jim Smith, Graham Elliott, Cameron Langston and ..Wick Exum before them. They brought about this vital link between Kinston and Greenville, with the towns of Ayden, Grifton and Winterville in between. They saw a need and they fulfilled it. Our thanks go to them."

Gov. Scott was introduced by Duncan M. Faircloth, chairman of the State Highway Commission. Faircloth also introduced Mr. and Mrs. Wick Exum of Snow Hill, Mrs. Cameron Langston of Kinston and Mrs. Graham Elliott of Washington.

Participating in the ribbon cutting ceremony was Angela Patrick, Arthur Tripp's granddaughter, the Exums, Mrs. Langston, Mrs. Elliott, Faircloth Tripp and Smith.

W. Arthur Tripp of Greenville, area highway commissioner, was master of ceremonies.

Also participating in the program were Jim Smith, area highway commissioner of Kinston, introduction of visiting highway commissioners; Arch Laney of Raleigh, head of public relations for State Highway Commission, introduced visiting highway personnel from other areas; Charles Snell of Greenville, division engineer, introduced employees and highway personnel who participated in the construction of the road and the project contractors; Rev. W. M. Ellis, Methodist Minister of Grifton, invocation; Savannah High School band, provided special music.

A barbecue dinner, sponsored by the chambers of commerce of Greenville, Winterville, Ayden, Grifton, and Kinston, was provided for those attending the dedication.

county schools.

The project was accepted subject to approval of the Chicod School's local advisory council.

Board members approved a recommendation from the Ayden Advisory Council that the South Ayden School be closed and that Gaston Monk, presently serving as principal of South Ayden, be named principal of the Ayden Grammar School.

The board renewed Superintendent Arthur Alford's contract for a term of four years.

Alford recommended that the associate superintendent and assistant supertendents' terms of office be for four years.

Board member Richard Worsley made a motion that the contracts of the two superintendents paid by the county board be extended for four years and that the other two superintendents' terms of office be extended to four years on a funds available basis. The proposal was approved.

A report on a recent meeting of the subcommittee of the Pitt County Board of Education on Operations and Annexation was presented by Worsley.

Worsley said the committee studied the advantages and disadvantages of centralization of the lunchroom operations.

The committee proposed central buying for all the county lunchrooms which would mean submitting bids for food items and milk products.

The committee felt centralized buying should be tried for the next school year and that Mrs. Moena Jolly, director of food services for the county schools, should be in charge of the purchasing.

Mrs. Jolly and a half-time assistant were employed for another year.

No action was taken on the proposed centralized lunchroom buying.

The committee also reviewed the board's policies on out-of-district students.

A summary of existing board policies concerning student transfers adopted Tuesday include:

—Students may transfer out of the county upon the acceptance of the receiving administrative unit;

—Students from Greenville City and other administrative units outside Pitt County will be accepted by the county with a release by the respective unit prior to the school year. During the school year, students will be accepted by the county upon release by respective units and as determined by the county.

a. all such transfers must be approved by both the superintendent's office and principals of the school which transfers are to be signed;

b. all transfers are made subject to the transferee's children abiding by the rules of the school. If a student fails to follow such rules, he forfeits his acceptance into the county schools.

—County students will be released to attend Greenville City Schools with acceptance by the city unit to the school year and during the school year.

—Transfers within the county unit will be on the basis of hardships to be determined by the county board of education.

John C. Proctor and Company will be employed by the school board to audit the county-wide and special district accounts and the maintenance department's books at the end of the fiscal year.

Assistant Superintendent Lec Keeter explained the summer school program planned for the coming summer. Classes will be held for students in kindergarten through the third grade. About 1,500 children will receive instruction in the summer program.

A summer school program for high school students will not be held this year due to the lack of participation and because of the remedial classes that are offered at Pitt Technical Institute for a small charge.

A few teachers from the county schools requested that the board adopt a county rule on the wearing of pant suits by teachers. At the present time, each principal determines whether or not his teachers will wear pant suits.

Board members agreed to continue to leave the decision to the individual principals.

Board To Meet

The full board special meeting to consider the Greenville City School 1971-72 Local Budget has been scheduled for Thursday at 8:00 p.m.

In accordance with an announcement made at the April school board meeting, the public is invited to attend and to express themselves on any item of the operating budget or the capital budget at the start of the meeting.

The full board will later consider the budget in a workshop session with decisions leading to adoption of the budget at the regular May meeting.

The special budget meeting Thursday night will be held in the boardroom of the City School Office, 431 West Fifth Street.

the City Council. I hope this had made the incoming administration and the past administration realize that the type of political structure and the direction that we have had in Greenville in the past can no longer survive.

"We are especially proud of John Taylor and Clarence Gray."

Incumbent councilman and Mayor Pro-tem Percy Cox, again the leading candidate in total votes received, said, "I am really very pleased with the way the voting turned out for the candidates and I want to express my deep feeling of appreciation for the confidence the voters have again placed in me."

Greenville's two new councilmen, the first Negro candidates to win seats in the city government for several decades, expressed their gratitude to the voters who elected them to the expanded City Council.

"First", Clarence Gray commented, "I am very delighted to become a member of the City Council. I am grateful to each person who performed their civic duty, particulary those who cast their votes for me.

"Every resident of Greenville can be assured I will certainly do everything within my power to keep the faith they have shown in me."

The second new Councilman, John Taylor, commented, "This has been a tremendous milestone for the City of Greenville. It comes at a time when it is needed by the entire community to have not only Black representation on the City Council, but to have the confidence in those who are truly concerned about the total community.

"I feel we won, not from a show of force, but out of a vote of confidence for the problems and concerns that face the majority of the community. I feel that we can all get together and really move forward.

"I pledge all the effort I can muster to this end," Taylor concluded.

Mrs. Mildred McGarth, who came very near to achieving a seat on the council, spoke of her impression of the Tuesday elections.

"I think its a very good council we have, more representative of the city. I thank all the people who put in long hours of work for me and for voters who showed their confidence in me with their votes.

"It was a wonderful experience for me, I met a lot of people I had not known before. In my opinion, this was a very positive election."

Final Meet Of Current Council

The final meeting of the current City Council takes place Thursday night, May 6, at 8:00 o'clock in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Building, with 12 items of old business and eight of new business scheduled on the agenda.

Under old business, appointments to boards and commissions; an ordinance to adopt the recodification of the city code; the city attorney's report on status of cases pending in Federal Court; a report on the East Carolina University Student Advisory Council; and a public hearing on street assessment rolls lead the list of items.

Also being considered under old business are the city engineer's estimate of the cost to correct an erosion problem in Eastwood Subdivision; a request for renewal of a mobile home permit; public hearings on three separate requests for mobile home trailers; a report by the city manager on a bus transportation survey; and request for payment of legal fees by the city in the case of Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr. versus the City of Greenville, amounting to $3,312.98.

Under new business, the city attorney wil present an ordinance authorizing police to two away vehicles parked in no parking areas where such parking prohibits normal functioning of traffic; an ordinance prohibiting the consumption of alcoholic beverage on public property; a request for rezoning property located on U. S. 264 bypass; and a request by Planters National Bank for temporary permit for a mobile branch bank at the corner of Cedar Lane and East Tenth Street.

Elected In Ayden

AYDEN — Two incumbent members of the town's Board of Commissioners — one of them unopposed — were reelected to seats on the board in yesterday's municipal election while one incumbent hopeful was defeated at the polls.

Rex Smith, unopposed in his bid for re-election received 523 votes in yesterday's balloting for his First Ward position.

Third Ward incumbent Leslie Short was defeated in his try for re-election by Paul Gipson. Gipson polled 412 votes while Short received 337.

In the fifth ward race, incumbent Harry Mumford, who received 513 votes, won over hopeful Mrs. Annie M. Brown, the first Negro woman to try for office in Ayden, who polled 438 votes.

Smith, Gipson and Mumford will begin their two-year posts in June.

LOST PRIVILEGES

PETROS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray will be stripped of all privileges and confined to a single cellblock in Tennessee's maximum security prison for 3 days for his unsuccessful escape attempt.

Grifton Results

GRIFTON — David E. Bosley, trying unopposed for his second two-year-term as Mayor of Grifton was re-elected here yesterday when he received 93 votes.

One incumbent member of the town's Board of Commissioners, Alton B. Clements and a newcomer, Gene Coley, were elected to seats on the town board.

Clements took 93 votes while Coley received 51 votes in the election.

Incumbent John Cox, seeking to retain his seat on the board took 42 votes, while Edward H. Owens, another contender for one of the two seats available on the town's governing board, received 29 votes.

Bob Collier's gray hair vanished so gradually no one noticed!

Unretouched Photographs Demonstrate Amazing Action of Grecian Formula-16
The first picture shows how gray Bob Collier was before he decided to do something about it.
The next picture was taken after 3 daily applications of GRECIAN FORMULA-16. You can hardly see the difference.
As Mr. Collier continued using it daily, GRECIAN FORMULA-16 gradually built up the natural looking color he wanted. So gradually not even his closest associates noticed the day-to-day change.
Now look at the last picture! See how much younger Mr. Collier looks after 18 days! From now on occasional use will hold his youthful looking hair color.
Remember: the photographs above are absolutely unretouched. The amazing gradual change in hair color was brought about entirely by GRECIAN FORMULA-16.
No other type product works quite like it.
Colorless—Easy to Use
GRECIAN FORMULA-16 is not a harsh coal tar dye but a colorless liquid you apply just like hair tonic. As it grooms your hair, day by day GRECIAN FORMULA-16 builds up color in gradual stages until in two or three weeks you see hair color so natural you hardly remember how you looked when you were gray. Occasional use keeps it that way.
So why look like an "older" man now that there is a masculine way to banish gray hair? Get GRECIAN FORMULA-16 today. $3.50. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Bucs Drop Two Close Ones To Indians

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's fading Southern Conference hopes were handed two crushing blows yesterday as the Bucs dropped a pair of games to William & Mary's Indians, 1-0 and 2-1.

The Pirates now post a 4-7 Southern record, and are only three games away from elimination. First place Furman is the next Pirate foe, and a sweep by the Paladins would finish off the Pirates. And as far as Furman is concerned, they need win only one of the two to knock off the Bucs, since that would give them a two-games-to-one margin for the year and automatically give them the title in case of a tie.

The losses were the fifth and sixth one-run losses the Bucs have suffered in the conference. Only Richmond's 11-2 win last Saturday was by more than one run. They lost to The Citadel three times, 2-1, 2-1 and 1-0, and to Furman, 3-2.

Both of the losses yesterday were hard ones, and both came in fine pitching duels between the four hurlers involved. Richie Richardson got the best of Hal Baird in the first game, 1-0. Baird allowed five hits, while Richardson gave up only three. Both recorded good strikout records, Baird fanning 11 and Richardson seven.

In the second game, Ron Hastings hurles a two-hitter for the Bucs, who got four hits off Sanford Boisseau, but again, it was all in vain.

William & Mary got all it needed in the opener in the first inning. Dave Cripe reached on a fielder's choice that left two away. He moved on to second on a passed ball. Greg Bosiak then singled into center, driving in Cripe with the only run of the game.

Only one other time, in the fifth, did the Indians move a man past first base. Nick Luccketti walked and stole second in the fifth, but died there.

The Pirates didn't get a man on until the fourth, when Dick Corrada cracked out a one-out double. But he never got beyond there.

Then, in the fifth, the Bucs had their best chance. With one out, Baird singled to deep short. He moved up to third when Troy Eason's long fly ball was dropped in deep right center. The Bucs then tried to work the suicide squeeze, but Ralph Lamm's bunt attempt was popped up to the third baseman, who caught it, then stepped on third for an unassisted double play.

In the sixth, the Bucs again got two on, as Skip Horton singled and Mike Aldridge was intentionally walked with two away. But again, the Bucs couldn't push a run in.

The Indians also opened the second game with a run in the first. With two outs, Cripe drew a walk off Hastings. Bosiak again followed with a single, this time to left center. Matt Walker, in chasing up the ball, overran it, and Cripe came all the way from first to score the first Indian run.

But the Bucs came back in the bottom of the inning to pull back even. Walker led off with a single into left center and stole second. Aldridge singled to center, and that brought Walker home, tieing it at 1-1. Aldridge went on to third, when the relay to home was overthrown at home. But the next two batters popped up, ending that rally.

The Bucs got off a threat in the fourth. Troy Eason singled and Stan Sneeden walked, but Horton grounded to third, getting Eason there, and the next batter struck out.

William & Mary then got to Hastings in the sixth for their winning run. Paul Scolaro led off with a single to third. He bunted, and Sneeden and third-sacker Tommy Durham allowed the ball ro run, but it crept down the line without going out. Richardson sacrificed the runner to second, and he went to third when the base was left unattended on the play. A wild pitch brought Scolaro over, and that was it.

The Bucs got no one on during the final three innings as their last hopes died.

The Pirates now have their backs to the wall, and must win the rest of their games to avoid their first losing season in 37 years. They have a 9-16 record with seven games left to play and can at best have only a .500 season.

Following the doubleheader with Furman on Saturday, the Bucs will play host to Duke on Sunday in the dedication game for Harrington Field.

Wilson, Without Hits, Tops Rampants

Robersonville Martin Champ

ROBERSONVILLE — The Robersonville Golden Eagles wrapped up another Martin County Baseball championship yesterday with a 7-0 victory over Jamesville.

The Golden Eagles are now 3-0 in the conference with only one game with Oak City left. Everyone else in the league has lost at least two games, so the Robersonville team has the crown bottled up.

Robersonville scored once in the first inning. Hal Knox singled and stole second. Phil James walked and Lang Hardison's grounder was errored, scoring Knox.

In the third, three Eagles scored. James singled and Hardison reached on a fielder's choice. Loyal Corey singled in James and an error let Hardison come in. Summy Mobley singled to Corey.

In the fifth, Robersonville added two more. Hardison singed and Corey walked. Mobley also walked, loading the bases. Everett Jackson reached on an error, allowing Hardison and Corey to score.

The final Robersonville run came in the sixth. Glenn Forbes reached on an error, and was sacrified up. Knox reached on an error and an attempted pickoff of Forbes at third was errored, allowing him to score.

Forbes, who hurled a one-hitter in getting the win, struck out 17 and walked three.

Edenton is at Robersonville Thursday.

Rose High School suffered its first shutout in three years yesterday by losing to Wilson Fike 4-0. Losing pitcher Jimmy Paige recorded a no-hit game in going the distance, but the game was far from being perfect. The Rampants were plagued by errors throughout the game which led to the four Cougar tallies.

Greenville got two men on in the first. With two outs Bill Lee singled to left and moved to second when Paige's grounder was errored by the first baseman. The next batter popped up, however, to end the inning.

Rose threatened again in the third as Robbie Cox opened the frame with a double that went to the fence in center field. Bill Lee walked but again both runners were left on base as the next batter hit into a force play.

In the fifth, Cox beat out a hit to deep short but was caught in a double play when Larry Dixon tried to sacrifice.

The Rampants got a man to third base in the sixth inning as Kim Harbin lined a double to the fence in left field. After Lee walked Harbin moved to third when Paige hit into a force play getting Lee. But the Rampants could not capitalize and bring a run across.

Rose threatened again in the last inning as Jimmy Sugg reached base on an error. He was caught at second when Cox hit into a fielder's choice. Cox moved to second on Stanley Cobb's single but it was all over for the Rampants as the next batter grounded out to end the game.

Wilson scored three runs in the first on five Rampant errors. Dennis Wilkerson led off by reaching base on the first Rampant miscue. He advanced to second when Greg Fulghum walked and both moved up as Tommy Davis also received a free ticket to load the bases. Wilkerson and Fulghum scored when Lindsay Ethridge's ground ball was errored. Davis and Ethridge advanced as Wally Howard reached on the third Rampant miscue. Ethridge was caught off third but the throw to third was dropped allowing him to remain alive. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Wilson's pitcher Jerry Hobgood.

Wilson put men on again in the third frame on a walk and another error but a strikeout ended the threat.

The Cyclones rallied for another insurance run in the fifth. Wilkerson reached first on a sharp hit that the third baseman found too hot to handle. He advanced when Fulghum's attempt to sacrifice was errored. Davis hit into a fielder's choice getting Wilkerson at third. Fulghum scored the last Wilson run on a wild pitch after moving to third on Ethridge's fly.

Cox led both teams in hitting with two.

Rose plays host to the Titans of Goldsboro Friday afternoon in Guy Smith Stadium at 4:00. The Rampants will be seeking their fifth conference win against three losses.

Twins Fortune Takes A Turn

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The wheel of fortune has taken two heartening turns for the Minnesota Twins—and a sickening twist for the Cleveland Indians.

Minnesota tied the New York Yankees on Rod Carew's home run with two out in the ninth inning Tuesday night and then beat them 6-5 on Jim Holt's two-out homer in the 10th.

The Indians bowed to Kansas City 2-0 and also lost pitcher luckless Steve Hargan for at least six weeks with a broken right ankle.

In another American League action, Baltimore trimmed California 4-1, Boston edged the Chicago White Sox 4-3, Detroit nipped Oakland 6-5 and Milwaukee blanked Washington 2-0.

Lindy McDaniel came out of the New York bullpen after the Yankees had struck for two runs in the top on the ninth to take a 5-4 lead. The veteran reliever got two quick outs before grooving a 1-2 pitch to Carew, who belted it into left center field seats for his first homer of the season.

McDaniel retired the first two Minnesota batters in the 10th but Hot, who had entered the game as a late-inning defensive replacement, slammed a 1-0 delivery over the right field fence for his first 1971 homer.

Hargan's injury, suffered when he twisted for an errant throw from first baseman Ken Harrelson in the fifth inning, jolted Cleveland Manager Alvin Dark far more than the Indians' 15th setback in 20 games.

Bruce Dal Canton scattered nine hits and received last-out relief help from Ted Abernathy as the Royals handed Hargan, 11-3 last season, his fifth loss in as many decisions.

At Baltimore, Jim Palmer ran his pitching record to 5-0 with a seven-hitter as the Orioles breezed past California. Boog Powell doubled home two runs to pace the winners' attack.

The victory kept the second place Orioles one game behind Boston's East Division leaders, who broke a 3-3 tie with the White Sox on Phil Gagliano's bases-loaded pinch single in the seventh.

Colbert Celebrates Birth With Homer

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Alphonse—Gaston? No, Colbert—Gaston.

San Diego's superific swatters, Nate Colbert and Clarence Gaston, are falling over each other in an attempt to play the hero's role.

Gaston delivered the game-tying home run, his second of the night, and Colbert followed with a solo shot in an eight-inning rally that carried the Padres past Atlanta 3-2 Tuesday night.

Gaston, whose 29 home runs last year was second to Colbert's 38 on the club, had only delivered two circuit clouts this season until Tuesday's output.

While the recuperation appeared to do some good for Gaston, Colbert continued his assault on the fences with hardly any rest at all. He slept little since Monday because of his new-born daughter.

Colbert, after driving his wife, Carol, to the hospital to deliver Dana Michelle, got back home Tuesday morning to find their 17-month-old son, Derone, running through the house looking for his mother.

"I played with him all morning to keep him from crying," said Colbert. "We finally lay down for a nap after noon. I slept 20 minutes and that was all. I was too keyed up."

The New York Mets nipped the Chicago Cubs 2-1; St. Louis routed Philadelphia 7-3; Los Angeles stopped Cincinnati 2-0 and Pittsburgh blasted San Francisco 10-2 in the other National League games. Rain postponed Houston at Milwaukee.

American League scores: Kansas City 2, Cleveland 0; Baltimore 4, California 1; Milwaukee 2, Washington 0; Minnesota 6, New York 5 in 10 innings; Boston 4, Chicago 3, and Detroit 6, Oakland 5.

Gaston, who credited last year's fine season to a blazing getaway, is nowhere near the form that delivered a .318 average, 93 RBI and a bunch of team-leading statistics.

Devils Paste North Lenoir

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Red Devils bombed North Lenoir, 14-3, yesterday in an Eastern Plains Conference baseball game.

The Red Devils started things off in the first inning with a pair of runs. Ben Joyner walked and stole second, scoring on Chuck Finklea's single. Ronald Carraway then singled to score Finklea.

North Lenoir came back with two runs in the top of the second. Williams walked, advanced on an out and stole third. Killette walked and Tripp got a hit to score Williams. Connor then brought in Killette with a single.

North Lenior took the lead at 3-2 with another run in the third. B. Phillips reached on an error. He was sacrificed to second and scored on Cashwell's double.

But that was to be all North Lenoir was to get. Farmville shut them out after that, and collected on their own.

The Red Devils came up with two in the bottom of the third to take the lead again, 4-3. Finklea singled and Carraway brought in home with a triple. David Dwyer singled in Carraway with the go-ahead run.

Then, in the fourth, Farmville added another run. Phil Lewis singled, and Joyner got a hit. Bobby Daniels got a single to score Lewis and make it 5-3.

Farmville then exploded for nine big runs in the sixth, putting if far out of reach.

Dickinson and Carraway led the Farmville hitting with four each, while Finklea had three and Daniels had two.

Farmville hosts Northern Nash on Friday.

Sectional Meet Here Thursday

East Carolina University will play host to the Northeastern High School Track Sectional Meet here Thursday afternoon.

Some 40 high schools from the northeastern section of the state will compete in the meet, seeking berths in next week's regionals. The top four finishers in each event will receive invitations to the regionals, which are the last preliminary to state competition.

Bill Carson, East Carolina University track coach, said that competition in the field events will begin at 11 a. m., with most trials in the running events beginning then. Finals in the running events are expected to get underway around 2:30 p. m.

The field will be divided into two classes of competition. One class will be for schools who play football in A or 2-A ranks, or who do not play football and have less than 500 students. The other class is for 3-A and 4-A football schools, or non-football schools with over 500 students.

The same class setups will remain throughout regional and state competition.

Conley Nips Vanceboro Nine

VANCEBORO — D. H. Conley edged past Vanceboro yesterday, 6-5, in a non-league baseball game.

Vanceboro took the lead in the second inning scoring a run. Dawson walked and stole second. He scored from there on Whitford's single.

In the third, the Red Raiders came up with another run. Lilly singled and stole second. He scored when Spruill's grounder was errored.

Trailing 2-0, the Vikings came up with two in the top of the sixth to tie it up. Steve Evans reached on an error and scored when Clevie Averette tripled. A passed ball then allowed Averette to come in with the tieing run.

Vanceboro came roaring back in the bottom of the sixth and pounded over three runs to go back in front, 5-2.

But it was not to be for the Raiders. Bobby Bryan reached on a fielder's choice to start the seventh for Conley. He stole second and went to third on Lindsay Moore's fielder's choice. Vic Corey reached on an error that would have ended the game, and that brought in Bryan. Lawrence Glisson then cracked a three-run homer, powering Conley into the lead, 6-5, and they held on to win it.

Conley is scheduled to play Oak City at Robersonville on Friday.

Southern Nash Stops Greene

SNOW HILL — Southern Nash handed Greene Central its second Eastern Plains Conference defeat yesterday, taking a 6-5 win over the Rams.

The loss still left the Rams with at least a share of first place depending on the outcome of the Northern Nash-Charles B. Aycock game.

Greene Central charged into the lead in the first inning, scoring all five of its runs. Robert Ivey singled and Danny Whitley reached on an error. Robert Scott singled and that drove in Ivey. Ron Bowen reached on an error, scoring Whitley. Donald Taylor then singled to score Scott. A wild pitch let Bowen score and Taylor came across on Elwood Grant's single.

But that was it for the Rams, and Southern Nash began its long comeback.

They started in the second, scoring two runs. Patterson reached on an error and scored when Winstead tripled. A sacrifice fly by Elmore brought in Winstead.

The Firebirds picked up two more in the fourth. McIntyre walked as did Woods. Perkinson doubled in McIntyre, and Lamm reached on an error, scoring Woods.

The final two came in the fifth. Winstead walked and Elmore did too. Both stole up a base and McIntyre attempted a squeeze bunt, and an error at the plate let Winstead in safely. Woods then singled in Elmore with the winning run.

Greene Central had one last gasp chance, loading the bases with two away in the seventh, but the last batter's apparent single through the middle was just batted down by the pitcher and turned into an out.

The Rams will travel to Southern Nash for a rematch today, then go to Hobbton on Friday.

Williamston Rips N. Pitt

BETHEL — The Williamston Tigers rolled to an 11-0 victory over North Pitt yesterday.

Williamston pushed over a run each in the first three innings. In the first, Dwight Ange reached on an error and stole second. He scored on Raymond Andrews single.

Billy Ritter singled to open the second and Rock Cherry walked. Mike Weaver then singled in Ritter for a 2-0 lead.

In the third, Sammy Roberson doubled and took third on a passed ball. He scored on Jimmy Raiford's sacrifice fly.

Four more Tigers crossed the plate in the fourth inning. Weaver walked and Ange singled him to third, then stole second. Andrews singled, scoring Weaver. Raiford hit another sacrifice to bring in Ange. Roberson singled and Eddie Roberson grounded out, scoring Andrews. Roberson, who went to third on the play, then stole home.

Williamston, tied for first place in the Albemarle Conference, plays host to Perquimans on Friday. North Pitt travels to Grifton on Friday.

Aycock Takes 10th In Row

SPRING HOPE — E. B. Aycock Junior High School rolled along yesterday, winning its 10th straight game as Southern Nash fell to them, 10-2.

Aycock came up with four runs in the first inning to take the lead for good. Dickie Johnson singled and stole second. William Carraway also got a hit and moved up on a fielder's choice. Johnny Causey singled to score both Johnson and Carraway. Phil Ragazzo singled and both he and Causey scored on Anthony Phelps' single.

In the third, Aycock came up with another run. Ragazzo and Phelps both reached on errors. Jeffrey Daniels then singled to score Ragazzo.

Aycock added two more in the fourth. Johnson singled and stole second. Robert Brinkley tripled, driving in Johnson. Carraway then hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Brinkley for the 7-1 lead.

Aycock went on to add three more in the fifth. Southern Nash had scored once in the second and once in the fourth.

Johnson and Brinkley led the Aycock hitting with two each.

Aycock will play host to Wilson's Coon Junior High on Friday.

Turbines May Make Comeback

By DALE BURGESS
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Andy Granatelli may win that turbine race car argument after all.

Frank Del Roy, technical supervisor for the United States Auto Club, said today he will recommend that the size limit on turbines be increased "to where they will be competitive."

Parnelli Jones was making a joke of the 1967 Indianapolis 500-mile race, passing anybody whenever he pleased, when a bearing in his Granatelli-owned turbine engine failed with 10 miles to go.

The USAC rules committee promptly cut the maximum annulus area for a turbine from 22 to 14.999 square inches. This is the entrance to the first-stage compressor in a system that squeezes air, heats it and produces a rocket effect against turbine wheels geared to the drive wheels.

Granatelli complained, but put the choked-down Pratt & Whitney engine into his STP car and Joe Leonard took the wheel. He set an Indianapolis Motor Speedway qualifying record of 171.953 m.p.h., which still stands, and apparently had the 1968 race won when a fuel pump shaft broke.

The USAC committee got out its tin snips again and cut the turbine air port to 11.999 inches. Granatelli gave up and returned to conventional piston engines for his fleet of race cars. There was no turbine engine of that size in production.

If the committee goes along with Del Roy, the change won't go into effect until 1973.

Piney Grove, St. James Win

Piney Grove handed Black Jack its second straight loss last night, 8-5, in the Church Softball League. St. James Methodist downed Meadow brook, 13-4, in the other game.

Piney Grove pushed over two runs in the first inning, but Black Jack came back with two in the third to tie it up. Both teams pushed over two in the fifth, leaving it at 4-4, and then in the seventh, Black Jack took the lead with a run for a 5-4 edge.

But Piney Grove came up with four runs to wrap it up. Wayne Avery singled and Tommy Meeks walked. William Nichols singled in Avery with the tieing run, and Jimmy Mills followed with a homer to finish off the scoring.

Bill Carson had four hits for Black Jack, while Jimmy Evans and Nichols each had four for Piney Grove.

In the second game, St. James got all it nedded in the first as it scored seven runs. Roy Carawan singled and Dave Wilcox got a hit. Charles Vincent doubled both runners across, and Jimmy Smith got a single. Ricky Chambers tripled to score two runs, and he crossed on Joe Brown's double. Bill Poter reached on an error, but Brown was cut down at home on Rusty Jacobs' fielder's choice. Ed Smith then doubled in Poter and Jacobs scored the final run on Carawan's hit.

St. James went on to pick up one in the third, five in the fifth, while Meadowbrook scored one in the second on a homer by Carson Heath, two in the fourth, and one in the sixth as Bobby Harris homered.

Favorably Receive Scott's Proposals

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott's proposals for reorganization of state government drew favorable reaction from legislators Tuesday. Bills were introduced to put the recommendations into effect.

Scott presented the proposals to regroup 295 state agencies into 18 cabinet-level departments in a speech to a joint legislative session Tuesday. He told the lawmakers he intended to eliminate "overlapping, waste motion and ineficiency."

"It was a good speech and well thought out," said Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, presiding officer of the Senate. "It will require a lot of implementation."

The chairmen of the Senate and House State Government Committees, Sen. Ashley Futrell, D-Beaufort, and Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Nash, introduced bills to put the governor's recommendations into effect.

"I feel the governor gave the assembly a clear challenge to accept now the mandate of the people," said Futrell. "It was to the point and a good presentation."

"It was an excellent presentation of what we are going to have to do," said Barbee. "The people want economy and streamlining in government. This is an opportunity to achieve it.

The Senate minority leader, Sen. Harry Bagnall, R-Forsyth, and Scott "expressed very well the plans to reorganize state government. It is needed legislation and will require much cooperation between the legislative and executive branches to implement this step."

Rep. Charles Taylor, R-Transylvania, the House minority leader, said, "There are some areas that need reorganization that were not touched on. The problems I find are specifically in the agencies themselves."

Sen. John Burney, D-New Haover, said Scott's speech was "shot and to the point" and "it's going to take a lot of work on our part to implement it."

In other legislative action Tuesday, the House passed and returned to the Senate for approval of amendments, a bill that will require that public water systems constructed in North Carolina after next Jan. 1 must meet State Health Department standards, including chlorination. Systems already in existence will not require chlorination unless inspections show it is needed.

Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Haywood, sponsored a bill to create a State Board of Registration for foresters. The board would be composed of five foresters appointed by the governor.

To register with the board, foresters would be required to prove they had graduated from school of forestry and have two or more years of experience, or else how they had practiced forestry for five years prior to June 30, 1972. Thereafter registration would be on the basis of individual qualification.

Rep. Robert Falls, D-Cleveland, sponsored a bill to appropriate $750,000 for operation of a criminal justice academy.

NamedJudge In Auditions

Mrs. E. Leonidas Smith, piano instructor at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem, has been named judge for the 1971 piano auditions being held at the School of Music, East Carolina University on Friday and Saturday, May 7 and 8.

MRS. E. LEONIDAS SMITH

Mrs. Robert Hause is district chairman of the two day local auditions which are an annual event sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers and the National Fraternity of Student Musicians.

A graduate of Columbia University where she received her masters in music, Mrs. Smith has studied with Raymond Burrows and Guy Maier. She is well known for her work with children, and has written a number of piano compositions which have been published especially for children.

Pakistan Used American Arms

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says American tanks and jets sent to West Pakistan to protect against attack from China have been used to help crush insurgents in East Pakistan.

The action by Pakistan's central government was taken despite secret diplomatic pressure from the United States, according to the department.

The statements were made in a letter from David M. Abshire, assistant secretary of state for congressional relations, to four senators who had asked for information on the status of U.S. military and economic aid to Pakistan.

In a related move, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is expected to take up a proposal Thursday by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., to suspend U.S. military aid and sales to Pakistan until the conflict between the central government and secessionists in the Bengali region is resolved.

Abshire's letter said the United States has supplied Pakistan only with nonlethal equipment, spare parts and ammunition since the 1965 India-Pakistan war.

He said nothing has been delivered on last October's announced sale of "a limited quantity of lethal end-items including 300 armored personnel carriers, a few replacement bomber and interceptor aircraft and several maritime patrol aircraft." Talks of their delivery have been in suspension since the March 25 outbreak of fighting in East Pakistan.

Abshire said: "Department spokesmen have expressed our concern over the reported use of American weapons and we have done so privately to the Pakistanis as well.

"The reports which we have received indicate that M-24 tanks and F-86 aircraft have been observed in use in East Pakistan in recent weeks.

"Military equipment supplied to Pakistan by a number of other countries, including China, the Soviet Union and Western European countries has probably also been used," Abshire said.

The spokesman said military equipment was given to Army units in West Pakistan but none was delivered to East Pakistan. He added, however, there was "no obligation on the part of the government of Pakistan to consult with us if it wished to transfer equipment from one wing of the country to the other."

Never Knew She Lost Her Wallet

CANTON, Ill. (AP) — Nine-year-old James G. Brown found a billfold while walking to school.

At Walter Wilke's grocery store he said, "I found this outside. I want to leave it here."

The Wilkes traced the owner through a bill in the purse.

"The billfold contained a $20 bill. I was surprised I got it back. In fact, I never even knew I lost it," said Mrs. Don Kumer.

Runs Contrary To Psychology

Thelma is correct. The "Pornography Commission" was stupid! Its inane suggestion that exposure to obscenity does not increase sexuality, violates the basic laws of advertising, education and psychology. So heed Homer Rodeheaver's prophecy. And follow the advice of Abraham Lincoln!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Case Q-545: Thelma G., aged 24, is a kindergarten teacher.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "when former President Lyndon Johnson set up an 'Obscenity and Pornography Commission' I thought it was a good idea.

"Even though I understand $2 million was spent to finance this investigation of vulgarity and salacious material.

"But I was shocked to hear the majority report of that investigating group.

"For it said pronography doesn't increase sexuality and crimes of assault.

"Isn't that contrary to what psychology teaches?"

Rodeheaver's Warning

About 25 years ago I occupied a large Baptist pulpit with Homer Rodeheaver, who had been Billy Sunday's associate.

"The signs are turned around," was Rodeheaver's theme.

He began his address by telling of the Halloween pranks in his home town where boys would reverse the street markers.

"South was changed to North," he added, "and East became West."

Then he warned that purveyors of smut, pornography and verbal filth were seeking to hoodwink America.

"They are trying to make our youth believe that good is bad and that sin is saintly."

Remember, this was 25 years ago! Prophetic?

The Bible thus cautions us that if we sow the wind, we'll reap the whirlwind, meaning havoc.

Ancient Sodom was ruined because of pornography.

Its ugly heritage is the legal term "sodmy."

Rome likewise had its pristine virtues eroded by the vile sexual orgies of Nero.

So Roman women resorted to abortions routinely.

For the social pace-setters cause the mass of mankind to stampede, just like sheep, whether for "X" movies or miniskirts.

And this is the psychological fallacy underlying the report of that $2 million Commission on Pornography.

For it is an axiom of education that habits develop from repetition.

In fact, I always taught my "Advertising Psychology" students at Northwestern University that:

"Reputation is but repetition."

That Commission should recite this pertinent poem:

"Sin is a monster of such frightful mien,

"That to be hated needs but be seen;

"But seen too oft, familiar with its face,

"We first endure; then pity; then embrace."

The smut peddlers rely on that poetical axiom, knowing that if they can repeatedly hold up before youth their obscenity and pornography, then the adage that "familiarity breeds contempt" will help them win.

Where did that Commission select people for its interviews?

From patrons of "X" movies?

Or wife swappers?

Or occupants of hippie pads?

For educators, advertising experts and psychologists realize that the idea is father to the deed.

Suggest flagrant immorality to people long enough and they will soon imitate it!

"When you see a wrong," wisely stated Abraham Lincoln, "hit it!"

Visibility of 250 miles is possible in an atmosphere containing only permanent gases and uncondensed vapors, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♡

Sloppy bidding by South landed him in a precarious three no trump contract which an astute defense dispatched in very short order. Four spades on the other hand would have been far safer—in fact 11 tricks are there for the taking.

It is with South's two no trump response that we take issue. It is a cardinal rule that the responder should never bypass the opportunity to show a biddable major suit at the level of one—even with 4-3-3-3 distribution. Had South bid one spade, North would have raised immediately and the major suit game now becomes routine to bid.

West opened the seven of hearts against three no trump. The king was put up from dummy and East made a thoughtful play when he unblocked with the queen. Declarer had only eight top tricks—one heart, four spades and three clubs. In an attempt to sneak thru a ninth, he led the queen of diamonds from dummy.

East was not to be caught napping and he played the ace and returned the five of hearts thru declarer's ten. West proceeded to mop up four tricks in hearts, thereby sending South down to defeat.

Observe that if East does not unblock the queen of hearts at trick one the defense cannot run the suit, for if West overtakes the queen when East plays that card after getting in with the ace of diamonds, he will establish South's ten as a second stopper in the suit.

Declarer could have prevented the run of the hearts by playing low from dummy at trick one. East is in with the queen and on the return, West can cash the ace and jack, but South retains the ten as a stopper and West can never get in to cash his long card in the suit.

It should be noted that playing low from dummy could cost if West has only a four card suit headed by the ace. It would have been much simpler for South had he shown his spade suit during the auction.

HATTIESBURG, Miss. — Patricia Ellen Neergaard Daniel of Greenville, N.C., will be one of 752 students who have completed their academic requirements during the fall and winter quarters at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The Greenville native will receive her Ed.D. degree during the commencement exercises on May 22.

Well-Behaved, But Over-Stayed

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Police officials were "pleasantly surprised" by the good behavior of some 15,000 people who attended Rhodesia's first pop music festival. Police turned off electric power when the Glamis Stadium gathering ran one hour later than permitted by laws controlling public meetings.

FTC Chairman's Actions Belie Mild Statements

MAN WITH A PROBLEM—A window caulker, Frank Cryzenhouse, 46, clings to a rope outside the 10th floor of a Los Angeles office building Monday after a scaffolding gave way. He and a partner, who slipped to the eighth floor, were rescued after 15 minutes. Firemen broke windows and pulled them inside. Both were wearing safety belts. (AP Wirephoto)

By WILLIAM MEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Attorney General John N. Mitchell authored the Nixon administration's plea to "judge us by what we do, not what we say." Chairman Miles W. Kirkpatrick of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has honed the motto to its finest edge.

Consumer advocates consider that Kirkpatrick has transformed the FTC the way a change of clothing transformed Clark "Superman" Kent.

The commission has been acclaimed a new government superman, the scourge of unscrupulous salesmen and deceptive advertisers.

In his public utterances, Kirkpatrick speaks with the propiety and caution of a wellbred Philadelphia lawyer, which he is. His remarks hit the news pages, if at all, with the impact of a wet pea on a damp sponge.

Kirkpatrick's reticence is not that of a shy or surly man. Despite his sudden elevation last Sept. 15 from a quiet law practice to the public spotlight, the chairman remains friendly even jolly. His shirt is decidedly unstuffed.

Favors Judicial Mien

But with his four fellow commissioners, Kirkpatrick must not only initiate cases but, in most instances, eventually judge them. He considers a judicial mien, complete with buttoned lip, essential to avoid suspicion on prejudgment.

Former FTC Chairman Paul Rand Dixon talked more freely, and courts twice ordered him not to participate in cases on grounds his public comments indicated prejudice. Even Kirkpatrick once said something, quoted in print, which prompted a complaint from a firm before the FTC. The chairman responded by further tightening the gag on his own mouth.

Kirkpatrick does his blunt talking in the commission's meetings which are closed to the press and public, and in equally private instructions to the FTC staff.

The resulting actions speak loudly, and his critics are far from silent. A recent issue of Advertising Age, a trade publication, bannered this headline:

Has Soft Style

"U.S. intensifies barrage against ad field."

The publication said FTC actions raised the disquieting possibility that advertising "puffery" may no longer be sanctioned. Another story, also on page 1, quoted industry representative Gilbert H. Weil's opposition to a bill which would increase FTC powers. Its headline was equally alarming:

"Bill would let FTC tell business to commit hara-kiri, Weil charges."

The man behind these actions hardly fits the mold of a rabid reformer. Kirkpatrick's style is a soft voiced reflection of his heritage as the son of a prominent federal judge and grandson of a Pennsylvania attorney general.

At 52, Kirkpatrick likes a good joke, a good cigar and a Scotch highball. His favorite diversions are tennis, which he plays well, and classical piano, which he plays exceedingly well.

His roots are blue blood Pennsylvania, and Kirkpatrick still makes his home in Philadelphia where he lives with his wife, Anne, and their youngest child, Mary, 18. During the week he stays at a modestly fashionable Washington apartment house.

The Kirkpatricks' son, William, 22, is in the Army. Their elder daughter, Nancy, 21, attends the University of Colorado.

Kirkpatrick drives an old Corvair, rarely using the chauffered government limousine at his dispoal. His sense of propiety may contribute to the modesty of his public statements.

Consider this account of his own stewardship, recently delivered in a widely unpublicized speech:

"I do not think that the cases that we have initiated, the rules that we have proposed and adopted, and the antitrust problems and consumer problems that we are considering, bespeak timidity on our part."

FTC Proposals

Under Kirkpatrick, the FTC has proposed:

—That future advertisements for some products, including Chevron gasoline, Wonder Break and Ocean Spray cranberry juice cocktail, be required to admit that past ads were false.

—That the trademarks "Hi-C," a beverage, and "Profile," a bread, be banned as inherently deceptive because, said the agency, Hi-C isn't high in vitamin C and Profile is no food for weight watchers.

—That commercials aimed at children, including those for hot wheels and Johnny Lightning toy cars, be judged by a higher standard of honesty so kiddies won't be duped.

—That "sweepstakes" contests award all the prizes advertised, not just the small number for which winning coupons are mailed in.

—That ads and labels for Zerex antifreeze advise that the product may damage auto cooling systems, and if that fails to educate the public, that the product be banned.

Court Cases Impend

—That a water pollution warning be included in all labeling and advertising of phosphate detergents.

The respective companies are contesting all these cases, and it may be years and several Supreme Court decisions before they are decided.

The one that has raised business hackles highest involves Wonder Bread, Hostess Snack Cakes and Profile Bread, all made by Continental Baking Co.

FTC said Wonder Break is really no more nutritious than other enriched breads, and proposed that future ads disclose not only what's different about the brand but also what's not. Hostess Snack Cake ads, the agency said, should tell how much sugar the product contains as well as how many vitamins.

In his usual succinct style, Kirkpatrick summarized the FTC's advertising plans this way in a Jan. 8 speech to a meeting of the International Newspaper Advertising Executives:

"Where there is reason to believe that advertising goes beyond questions of taste and involves material distortions, exaggerations and misrepresentations—matters which are within the jurisdiction of the Federal Trade Commission—we will give our attention and will be a force increasingly to be reckoned with."

Arab And Jew In Partnership

By DAVID J. OESTREICHER

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Jew and an Arab looking beyond Middle East tensions and hatreds have opened a new restaurant in New York which offers the Moorish splendor of old Morocco just a few steps off busy Madison Avenue.

Entering Al Mounia is not unlike walking into an exquisite harem of some Arab potentate and, while the pleasures of such a place are not to be had there, pretty girls in revealing costumes are plentiful as waitresses in the cozy cocktail lounge.

Food and drink is the mainstay of Al Mounia, which incidentally means The Little Dream." It is the million dollar brainchild of an Arab—Hassan Berrada and a Jew, Arthur J. Kettler, and completes the third of an international chain of Al Mounias. Berrada, 42, owns similar dining places in his hometown of Casablanca and Madrid.

Berrada, a millionaire industrialist, was associated with the Moroccan Pavillion at the New York World's Fair in 1965 and has a long record of pleasing people looking for good things to eat in exotic surroundings.

At New York's Al Mounia, Berrada has installed Moroccan trappings flown in from Casablanca and a chef—Zacharia—who presided over the culinary preparations at the Casablanca restaurant. Diners sit on plush velvet divans and eat from hand-painted plates arrayed on huge bronze trays. Tapestries, brass chandeliers and a bubbling fountain make up the atmosphere.

The food is "native"—from the appetizing "cigars," made of rolled pastry filled with chicken, to the North African couscous—a form of semolina combined with lamb or chicken into a stew bathed in a succulent sauce.

There is also something called m'chermel, a stew of lamb with onions and pickled lemon quarters, a soup called harira, and kefta brochettes, which is ground meat on a skewer.

The desserts consist of rich pastry usually served with green tea, and Al Mounia's cellar serves a variety of wine.

Berrada and Kettler circulate among patrons and converse. Berrada talks about his homeland, one of the moderate nations of the Arab world, and Kettler about his career as an agent for the Internal Revenue Service. He is now retired.

In 1876 Horace H. Lee of the University of Pennsylvania became the first U.S. athlete to run 100 yards in 10 seconds, says Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Fraternity Initiates 27

Those Thousand-Year Sentences Work, Claims DA

By JOHN RUTHERFORD

CHICAGO (UPI) — A year ago, a man walked into the First National Bank of Chicago, said he had a bomb in his suitcase and demanded $1 million in cash.

A battery of television cameras recorded his every move on video tape.

The bank's 115-man police force evacuated the floors above and below the man. FBI agents pounced on him as he tried to leave with $350,000 in marked bills. As it turned out, there was no bomb in his suitcase.

Investigators were able to play back the video tape on the would-be robbery and the arrest —just like the television replay of a sporting event.

Public Areas Covered

"Our surveillance system covers all public areas and other particularly sensitive areas of the bank," Paul J. Hayes, director of security at the First National, said.

Few banks can afford as sophisticated a security system as the First National's. Most rely on guards, alarm systems and manually operated cameras to combat an alarming rise in bank robberies, which jumped from 895 in 1961 to 2,784 in 1970.

Banks began using video systems in the early 1950s. The Bank Protection Act of 1968, which outlines minimum standards for bank security devices and procedures, was responsible for recent increased use of such equipment.

The Jefferson State Bank, a smaller Chicago bank, installed two live video cameras, one dummy camera —for psychological effect —and a video tape recorder last summer, after the would-be robber made his appearance at the First National.

Jefferson State's losses to forgers and short-change artists, which ran as high as $1,000 a month, have been cut by more than half, according to Erwin C. Mikesell, security officer at Jefferson State.

Pictures for FBI

In one case, Jefferson State was able to provide the FBI with pictures of a forger who took cashier's checks issued by the bank in small denominations and reproduced the checks in large denominations. The forger would then cash the phony checks in out-of-town banks.

Jefferson State identified the customers who had bought cashier's checks just before and after the forger, by checking the numbers of raised checks against bank records. Once these people were located on a backlog of 20 video tapes, the forger was spotted standing in line between them —a stop-action show now being distributed by the FBI.

Jefferson State's video security system is not expected to prevent professional bank robberies. Most pros will avoid large banks with elaborate security systems, like the First National, and concentrate on smaller banks, like Jefferson State.

"With professionals, no matter what you do, if they're going to rob you, they're going to rob you," Mikesell said. "My main concern is getting them apprehended afterward, while protecting my employes."

District Attorney Wade, however, said the only thing he has to judge by is a chart that shows a declining crime rate.

"We had 10 robbery-murders in December, 1969, and January, 1970," Wade said. "Five of them were women. They were mostly operators of small stores ... they were shot to destroy witnesses.

"After meeting with the police chief, I agreed to recommend no bond for a robbery committed with a gun, whether there was a killing or not.

"Then the juries started giving heavier sentences. During the rest of the year and so far this year, we have had only two robbery-murders.

"Starting last November, we had our first decrease in crime of the more serious type. And since then it has decreased every month."

Under Texas law, a convict is eligible for parole in a maximum of 20 years, no matter if his sentence is 10,000 years. In practice, this can turn out to be a lot less than 20 years.

If a man in prison behaves he gets 50 days credit for each months he serves. If he makes trusty—and 60 or 70 per cent of Texas convicts eventually do—he gets 60 days credit, for every 30 days served.

"This is the law," said Pat Bullock, a member of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles. "But a long sentence does have this effect: a parole board member will take a long, hard look at a man with a 1,000-year sentence before paroling him the day he is eligible for parole."

District Attorney John Green of Odessa, who obtained the 1,800-year sentence for Bentura Flores, has a short speech he makes to juries before they retire to decide a sentence. It goes like this:

"You get up in the morning. You go to work and you try to make an honest living. And you pick up your paper and read about dope selling and murder. You ask, 'Why don't they do something about it?' Well, today, you are the 'they people' and this is the only time you can do something about it."

The men who get the 1,000-year and more sentences feel they have been victimized, "singled out."

"I feel it wouldn't have happened to me if my trial hadn't come when there was such a race for publicity in the DA's office," said Antonio Rodriguez, convicted heroin peddler. He now has only 1,498 years of his 1,500-year term left. He gets credit for two years he spent in county jail waiting for trial.

Bank Drops Its Political Loans

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Franklin National Bank has discontinued the practice of lending money to political organizations.

No more loans will be made until the Justice Dept. clarifies the Federal Corrupt Practices Act, said a bank official.

"We would not have made the (1970) loans (totaling $165,000) if we did not think that we would get the money back," said bank president Harold Gleason. "The loans were unrelated to politics."

Many Banks Now Being Guarded By TV Camera

By PRESTON McGRAW

DALLAS (UPI)—Some think they're plain ridiculous, others think they violate the U.S. Constitution by inflicting cruel and inhuman punishment, but Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade says they work—by reducing crime.

The controversy concerns prison terms ranging from hundreds to thousands of years being meted out by juries to persons convicted of murder, rape, armed robbery, and drug peddling.

It began a year ago when Wade and his assistants started asking juries to return 1,000-year prison sentences for such criminals. They did, and later juries have gotten even tougher.

This April 8, two of Wade's assistants asked a jury to give murderer Robert Floyd Angle 2,000 years to "keep him off the streets." The jury in fact raised the two prosecutors 500 and handed Angle, 28, a 2,500-year sentence for murdering Jack Katz, 64, while robbing his liquor store, and wounding Mrs. Katz.

Angle's 2,500-year sentence is the longest in Texas legal history and may be the longest in U.S. history. He has now joined an exclusive group in Dallas County Jail waiting for appeals to be heard.

The group includes Antonio Rodriguez, 1,500 years for heroin peddling; Joseph Franklin Sills, 1,000 years for robbery by assault; Harry Eugene Hill, 1,000 years for rape, and Larry Joe Knox, 1,001 years for rape.

The long sentence fad has spread far from Dallas. In early March, a jury in Odessa, Tex., sentenced Bentura Flores, 31, to 1,800 years in prison for selling heroin. Late last year, a jury in Oklahoma City sentenced a Negro to 1,500 years for raping a white telephone operator. Sentences of 300 years or more also have been assessed by juries in Wichita Falls, Tex., and Fort Worth.

Such sentences anger defense attorneys.

"They are indicative of an illness on the part of society, a knee jerk reaction out of fear, ignorance and lack of leadership," said Warren Burnett of Odessa. "There is absolutely no evidence they do any good at all."

"I don't think punishment at any level is a deterrent," said lawyer Percy Foreman of Houston. "I think the (big) penalties hold the courts up to ridicule, an expression which also has been made by more than one federal judge. The Constitution forbids 'cruel and unusual punishment' and certainly such sentences—beyond a Methuselah or Noah—are unusual. The worst damage is done to courts, the administration of justice."

Gas Output In Britain Rises

LONDON (AP) — Gas output soared by 16 per cent to a record level in Britain in 1970 with natural gas accounting for 70 per cent of all supplies.

Use of coal in gas manufacture fell from six million tons in 1969 to under three million tons.

'Best Bargin' In American Car

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina automobile dealers have been told the American car is the best consumer bargain in the country today.

The state dealers' association heard the president of the National Automobile Dealers Association, Warren McEleney of Clinton, Iowa, say new cars cost 19.4 per cent more now than they did 10 years ago. But he added Monday, food, clothes, housing and health care have increased more in cost during the decade.

South African Censors Hold Out Despite Attacks

By ERIK VAN EES

JOHANNESBURG (UPI)—In few nations of the world are censors under such heavy attack as in South Africa, but so far the censors are winning.

Censorship of movies, books, magazines, newspapers —anything destined for public eyes —can be extreme.

Books such as "Portnoy's Complaint" are simply banned, or burned if they get into the country. Among authors who have seen some of their works banned are John Steinbeck, H.E. Bates, Truman Capote, Vladimir Nabokov, Robert Graves, John Updike, Edmund Wilson and Stuart Cloete.

Cloete, a South African, suffered the banning of his latest book, "How Young They Died," and protested vigorously. "This situation," he said, "must be having a terribly detrimental effect on the literary progress in this country."

When a publisher tried to bring out a local version of "Playboy" —calling his magazine "Adam" —he didn't get far. The first issue was banned. The second reached the newsstands much mutiliated, with words, photographs, joke punchlines and sections of text painted out. An appeal against the censorship board's actions against the magazine is before the supreme court.

The censorship board consists of 15 members headed by Jannie Kruger who says his favorite screen hero in Tom Mix, cowboy star of the silents. The other members are women ranging in age from 40 to 68. Since its inception in 1963, the board has banned 5,785 publications, and banned or cut 1,882 films.

Opposition United Party member of Parliament Lionel Murray described the board and its activities as being "the imposition of the bigotry of the prude on the whole nation." Another opposition M.P., the Progressive Party's outspoken Mrs. Helen Suzman, said "Mr. Kruger alone represents a system which is steeped in medieval superstition and bigotry."

On occasion laughter rather than anger has defeated the board. This year the board banned a pantyhose package that showed a girl on its cover, wearing the garment. When laughter echoed across the country, the board withdrew its decision while not actually changing its mind. It decided, it said, that the transparent plastic cover on the package did obscure the picture somewhat.

A satirical review, "Oh, What a Colourful World," fell to a rather odd ruling. The show could go on, the board said, but its script was forbidden. When Kruger was told there couldn't very well be a show without a script, he replied that that was the producer's problem.

News magazines —Germany's "Der Spiegel" and America's "Time" and "Newsweek" among them —have been banned on occasion. Technical magazines are regularly banned from bookshops when they include nude figure studies. Paradoxically the frequently racy British satirical magazine "Private Eye" is openly on sale. Devotees say it is because the censors don't understand it.

Movies, when not banned, often are so mutiliated the story line is lost.

The law gives the board much leeway. Under the Publications and Entertainment Act of 1963 it may censor or ban any publication, film or stage show if it decides it deals in an "improper manner" with 48 named acts including "murder, death, horror, tippling, brawling, trafficking in or addiction to drugs, sexual intercourse, homosexuality, nightlife, nudity, scant or inadequate dress (and) blasphemy."

'Show Me State' Draws Visitors

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Missouri state parks and historic sites showed an increase of 141 per cent in visitors during the last decade, says parks director Joseph Jaeger, Jr. Total attendance recorded in 1970 was 14.5 million, compared with 6 million in 1960.

THREE'S A CROWD

TAURANGA, New Zealand (AP) — An average of three children a family is too high for population control, says Dr. E. W. Hutcheson, chairman of the Tauranga hospital board.

He said this size family would double world population in a few decades.

Suggestions For Emergency Kit

NEW YORK (UPI)—Going campting or touring this summer? Here are suggestions for a compact kit of emergency equipment:

Bring a flashlight, collapsible reflective device, a 10-to-12-foot welded steel tow chain equipped with suitable hooks, screwdriver, pliers, adjustable wrench, electrical tape, battery jumpers, fuses, a funnel, spare fan belt, and a dollar in small change in case you find a pay phone if you're stuck far from a garage.

May 16 Marks Anniversary Of Battle Of Alamance

By H. G. JONES, Director
N.C. Dept. of Archives and History
Written for the AP

RALEIGH (AP) — This month marks the 200th anniversary of the Battle of Alamance, which ended the "Regulator Movement" on May 16, 1771.

The "War of Regulation" was a series of protest events between 1768 and 1771.

The "Regulation" was organized in 1768 primarily to protest what was felt to be corruption in the Eastern-dominated government, abuses of governmental powers—especially in regard to taxes and fines, and the almost total absence of hard money in circulation in the western part of the state.

One of the first of many instances of violence broke out April 8, 1768, when a group of Regulators stormed into Hillsborough and reclaimed a horse, saddle, and bridle that had been confiscated for back taxes.

Two leaders of the group later were arrested on charges of inciting to rebellion.

The Regulators dropped plans for conferring with officials and marched on Hillsborough to free their leaders.

Gov. William Tryon's secretary promised that if the group would peacefully disperse and petition the governor in a proper manner he would accede to their demands.

Tryon, however, repudiated this promise, saying his secretary had no authority to make it.

In the months that followed, the government did take some steps to satisfy the Regulators' complaints. The governor issues a proclamation against the charging of exorbitant fees and said if illegal practices existed, they were to be discontinued.

It seemed to the Regulators, however, that the governor's efforts on their behalf fell far short.

They were further infuriated by the taxes they paid to build an elaborate new governor's house which came to be called Tryon's Palace.

Continued misunderstandings and instances of violence led to the passage of the Johnston Act by the 1771 legislature.

It authorized the governor to mobilize a militia force to quell the disturbances and gave all participating Regulators 60 days to honor a summons of the Superior Court.

Those failing to heed the summons were to be considered outlaws and hunted down.

Tryon set out with 1,068 men and camped on the night of May 14 at "Great Alamance Camp." He was met there by about 2,000 Regulators who on the 15th presented him a "final petition" accusing him of being "determined not to lend a kind ear to the just complaints of the people."

Tryon was asked to stop his troops march and to receive regulator grievances. The governor's reply the next day was that the Regulators had one hour in which to surrender and thereby prevent an "effusion of blood."

The Regulators' counter reply was, "Fire and be damned."

A two-hour battle followed on May 16, and the Regulators were soundly defeated by Tryon's well-trained force, though only nine soldiers were killed on each side.

In pointing out fundamental differences between the Regulation and the Revolution, historian R. W. D. Connor said the Regulators did not dispute the constitutional right of the assembly to enact laws, but objected to what they considered improper execution of the laws.

He saw no continuity between the Regulation and the Revolution.

The movement of the Regulators, he said, died with the removal of the causes and persons that gave rise to it.

In connection with the bicentennial of the battle, a collection of documents pertaining to the Regulator movement has been edited by William S. Powell and two associates and is being published by the Department of Archives and History.

Alamance Battleground near Burlington is one of 15 official state historic sites administered by the Department of Archives and History.

It is free to the public every day except Monday.

The visitor center is being enlarged and a new interpretative program installed in anticipation of a special 200th anniversary program May 16. Gov. Bob Scott will speak at 3:30 p.m.

Belgium To Have 2 New Hotels

LIEGE, Belgium (UPI)—Two new hotels are to be built overlooking the Meuse River, one by Holiday Inns, an American firm, and the other, Travelodge Europe, by the Anglo-British-Australian combine, Travelodge Europe. Holiday Inns plans a 12-story, 306-bedroom hotel with swimming pool. Travelodge will build an eight-story, 175-bedroom hotel.

A PASSERBY stops to view some of the photos displayed in front of a theater in Manila. The trend to erotic films appears to have given new life to the Filipino Movie industry. (UPI Telephoto)

Philippine Movie Industry Saved By Emergence Of 'Bomba' Craze

By VICENTE MALIWANAG

MANILA (UPI)—First it was the cowboy fad. Next it was the secret agent craze. Now the big thing in Philippine movies is "bomba"—literally bombshell—the word given to sex films.

For the past seven months, Filipino movies have become bolder and bolder, rivaling the erotica of Scandinavian and American films.

The most persistent theme in films shown in hundreds of Philippine moviehouses today is sex, sex and more sex.

The current trend toward erotic films appears to have given new life to the Filipino movie industry which was being slowly squeezed into extinction by foreign movie imports.

Now, Filipino film fans who tended to stay away from domestically made movies as being second rate are joining the queues at theaters showing the latest sex movies. Moviehouses which previously restricted their showings to foreign films are gladly and profitably exhibiting the "bomba" films.

On Feb. 7, the Philippine Board of Censors for Motion Pictures announced that all sex movies would be banned. The move was generally applauded by civic organizations and Roman Catholic groups, but enforcement provisions proved weak and movie houses kept right on showing "bomba" films. There have been some crackdowns, partially effective in Manila but not felt in provincial moviehouses.

Once, Manila Mayor Antonio J. Villegas ordered the arrest of a teenaged movie actress who paraded in a see-through dress in the lobby of a moviehouse to advertise her latest movie. This served only to bring bigger crowds to the theater.

Movie censors charge that to avoid censorship codes, many movie exhibitors splice approved movies with censored scenes—usually during late evening screenings. Sometimes, the exhibitors show the censored scenes during the intermission between showings of the "approved film."

Some "bomba" hits have had such names as "Nympho," "Motel Lovers Hideaway," "Island of Love," "Erotica."

The scripts and scenes of the movies follow a regular pattern—girls meets boy, boy and girl make love. The scenes are spiced with shots of nude couples making love, indoors and out.

Poland Enters Age Of Auto And Risks

By EDWIN SMITH

WARSAW (UPI)—Driving in Poland can be a hazardous business, largely because the auto still is something of a novelty to much of the population.

With just under 500,000 private automobiles for a population of 32 million, Poland is only slowly entering the motoring age.

The cheapest new car a Pole can buy, a Spartan four-seater sedan made in East Germany, costs 65,000 zloties ($2,710) — almost three years' salary for the average workers.

So few Poles have cars or can drive them. And that means very few people appreciate how dangerous a thing an automobile can be.

The country's flat, straight roads and gently rolling countryside invite fast driving. But there are unexpected hazards—like coming over a hill to find a horse and cart plodding along ahead at a walk, or a disabled car blocking half the road.

Poles never seem to park on the shoulder or in a laneway, always on the road itself.

At night a few of the horse carts have a kerosene lantern hung at the back. Most have no light at all.

Even more frequent and more dangerous are the pedestrians. In the countryside and in small villages, pedestrians always walk on the road, often three and four abreast, and at night they often wear dark clothing.

The result, as one officer of the police traffic division put it: "Pedestrians take first place in (road accident) statistics, both in causes and results."

Of a total of 3,445 persons killed in road accidents last year, 23 per cent were pedestrians or were persons killed in accidents caused by pedestrians, he said. Drunk driving came third as a cause of accidents after failure to give way at intersections.

CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

HONG KONG (UPI)—Eighteen Catholic schools are being built by Catholic organizations in this British Crown Colony, says the Hong Kong Catholic Conference of Social Services.

Hickory Rejects Recreation Levy

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Voters in Hickory defeated a proposed increase of six cents per $100 property valuation to provide additional funds for operation and improvement of the city's recreation department.

In a light turnout Monday, the vote was 1,113 against and 967 for the increase.

The department has been operating with a 10-cent levy approved in a 1956 referendum.

The defeated increase would have meant about $50,000 in additional funds to continue present programs of the department. Cutbacks will be made in July to continue operations without benefit of added funds, as a result of the vote.

"Getting a Route is One of the Best Things Bill Ever Did"

● WHEN a mother watches her son become an alert, reliable and resourceful young businessman—as he serves and builds a newspaper route—no wonder she is glad and proud. And Dad is too!

BOTH are delighted to see him make spare time pay off in so many beneficial and profitable ways. In extra money for personal use and regular savings! In practical business training added to his schooling! In solid habits of thrift, punctuality, self-reliance and other character-building traits! In eagerness to make his first business venture prosper! And in thrills from winning special rewards as a carrier-salesman who really strives to excel!

THE BOY who serves your home with this newspaper each day, is another promising young businessman. The better you know him, the more you'll want to encourage him to use his route as a head start toward space-age success, whatever career he may choose!

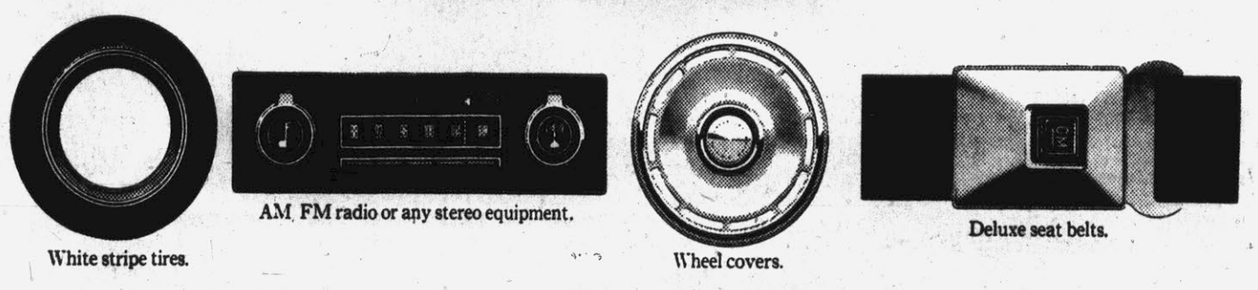
Chevrolet's Summer Sale is on.



White stripe tires. AM/FM radio or any stereo equipment. Wheel covers. Deluxe seat belts.

Order any Chevelle or Camaro with these four features and we'll help save you some money.

Our Summer Sale. It's a simple sale.

And it works like this. You simply order America's most popular mid-size car, Chevelle. Or America's best-looking, best-handling sportster, Camaro.

You equip either car with white stripe tires, wheel covers, deluxe seat belts and AM/FM radio (or any stereo equipment).

Do this—and we'll help save you some money.

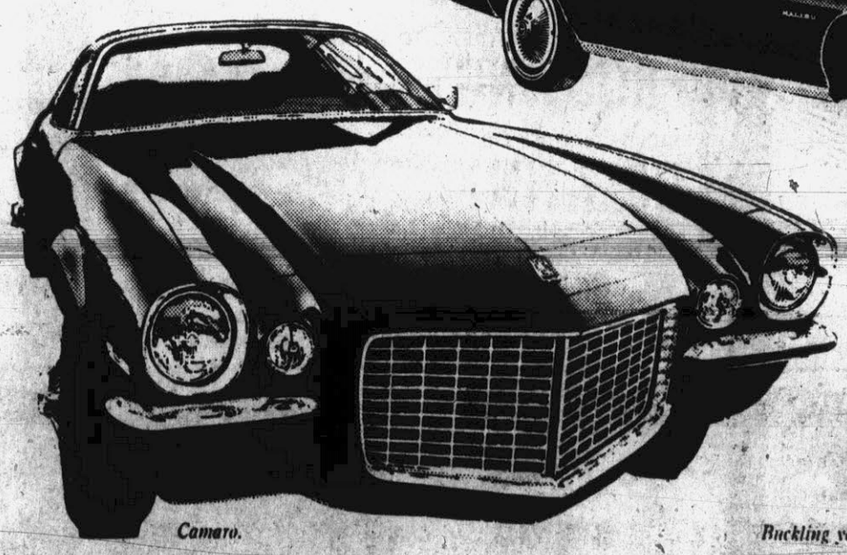
And what's just as nice, we'll be helping you save money on two of America's more popular cars. You get great deals on cars that give you more for less even when they're not on sale.

Except now they are on sale, and during May and June—the two months more people buy cars anyway. Which isn't the most likely way of doing business.

But then, "Putting you first" doesn't mean doing things from our point of view.

It means doing them from yours.

Chevelle.



Camaro.
