ECU Trustees Shut Door On Dorm Visitation

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University's Board of Trustees yesterday afternoon voted to ban any form of visitation by students in dormitory rooms at the school.

"I just don't know," Glenn Croshaw, president of the ECU Student Government Association said following the trustees' meeting when asked what reaction the decision would bring among the 10,000 students at the university.

Students have for some time been seeking relaxed visitation policies. More than 30 persons were arrested following a demonstration by about 1,000 persons March 30 during which students voiced their desire for an expanded visitation program.

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees met the following day in Raleigh and revoked the visitation policy in effect at that time which allowed visitation by girls in men's dorms two days each week from 12 noon until girls' curfew.

Croshaw yesterday presented the students' case to the trustees. He told trustees "there have been mistakes on both sides," and emphasized, "we are sincerely interested in solving the issue at hand so that a climate more conductive to learning may ... prevail on our campus."

Major schools in North Carolina have visitation privileges "similar to our proposal," the SGA head pointed out.

"Most students in the dormitories have no automobiles. The small cubicle in which they are contained represents their living room, dining room, and bedroom. Current regulations require male freshmen and sophomores to live in the dorms.

"Female students under 21 are likewise required to live in campus housing units. And we must not forget that many students are confined to the dormitories because of the lack funds necessary to support the high cost of off-campus housing," Croshaw continued.

"For the student who can afford this housing, the privilege of entertaining, studying or simply conversing with students of either sex is a reality. Can we afford to deny privileges now held openly in off campus housing to those who may not be as financially well-off as others," he questioned.

Adding that many adults feel relaxed visitation policies will result in sexual promiscuity, Croshaw said, "I hope each of you realizes ... what parents have instilled, or failed to instill will not be changed by the decision of this board, or any more body presently known to man ... morality is an issue that

Embassy, City Jail Targets

'Last Gasp' By Protestors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Already taxed by 12,000 arrests this week, antiwar protestors today turned toward the South Vietnamese Embassy and the city jail in their last effort before leaving the capital's troop-guarded streets in "tactical retreat."

Today's plans, formulated by Mayday and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference called for a rally in front of the South Vietnamese embassy, and then a 30-block symbolic march to the city's main jail. The first event may have made the second unnecessary. It is unlawful to demonstrate near an embassy, and organizers had no permit for the march.

Some 1,160 of the protestors were jailed in a peaceful but militant rally which closed the Capitol Wednesday afternoon and sparked renewed public debate over tactics employed by police. A congressman was among those claiming to have been roughed up by officers.

Other disturbances, resulting in about 50 arrests, were waged late Wednesday by dissident groups which flooded off the campuses of American University and the University of Maryland to block homebound traffic on two key roadways.

For many of the protesters, a trip to jail has been the honor badge of commitment. Most who marched to the doorstep of Congress in Wednesday's demonstration had voted beforehand to accept arrest, and the mood, at that, was frequently festive with songs and dances interspersing the oratory.

But others, including a few sympathetic congressmen who spoke to the group before the order to disperse, were not so satisfied. Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., said the Capitol Chief of Police James Powell's muffled demand to clear the area may as well have been made "in the men's room" since few heard it.

The arrests were at least delayed until Reps. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., and Parren Mitchell, D-Md., had finished their speeches. They later tried to intercede in behalf of the demonstrators, but were ignored.

City Clerk Follows Tradition

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

At 3:33 p. m. Wednesday, City Clerk William Moore stood on the sidewalk in front of the Municipal Building and in conformance with tradition and law, publicly proclaimed the names of 20 candidates for office of mayor and city council, reading the official tabulation of votes received by each.

The preliminary stage of the prescribed proclamation was immediately followed by the final stage wherein Moore declared officially the winners of Tuesday's municipal elections, naming S. Eugene West the newly elected mayor; and Percy Cox, Johnnie Edwards, Dr. Frank G. Fuller, Jerry Sutherland, John H. Taylor and Clarence Gray officially the new City Council members.

A ring of observers including the six councilmen, the incumbent mayor, city engineer, the city attorney, and a couple of city employees from the Public Works Department formed a semi-circle facing Moore to witness the closing act of confirmation of the vote tabulation by the City Council in their role of Board of Canvassers.

There was one walk-through witness who seemed not at all aware of the solemn occasion.

Moore began reading the proclamation facing north, then faced east, followed by a moment facing west and concluded by facing north again. It was later explained the different facings had nothing to do with steps of a symbolic ritual, but was an act necessitated by the changing direction of the wind.

Official tabulation of votes are identical to the unofficial tabulation published in The Daily Reflector on Wednesday. The only addition is that of one write in vote for Percy Cox for mayor, and two write in votes for Charles A. White, Sr. on the City Council ballot.

When Moore finished the public proclamation, and turned south to re-enter the Municipal building, the 1971 city elections became a past event. Moore has two years to wait until he will be called on in May 1973 to repeat the Greenville election ritual.

Question Of Medical School Only Briefly Discussed At Session

The question of a proposed medical school at East Carolina University was discussed only briefly by the school's Board of Trustees at a meeting here yesterday.

The question, according to Dr. Edwin Monroe, head of the university's School of Allied Health Sciences, and ECU president Dr. Leo W. Jenkins indicated the question is whether to press for a one or two year program.

Dr. Monroe, reporting to the board, said a committee of ECU and University of North Carolina officials have agreed that one-year students at ECU can transfer to UNC for the final three years of medical school. "It is indeed possible to mount such a program," Dr. Monroe continued, but he questioned whether a one or two-year program would be more beneficial to the State.

He noted that following the one-year plan recommended by the Board of Higher Education, an "inter-university advisory committee" had been suggested by the joint ECU-UNC study group, to coordinate the two programs, on a continuing basis.

Dr. Monroe added that Governor Bob Scott, the chairman of the House and Senate appropriations committee, and staff members of the Board of Higher Education are trying to decide "which is the better way for the state to go."

According to Dr. Jenkins, "The governor made a comment to us that he is looking down the road toward a four-year school and trying to determine which is the better first step . . ." a two-year school or the one-year program. Jenkins said he hopes to have the answer from the governor within the next few days.

The cost to the state for a one-year program would reportedly be about the same as for a two-year school. Estimates set the cost during the next biennium at $2.6 million.

Dr. Jenkins indicated that a four-year medical school may become a reality at ECU "a lot sooner than some people think."

In other business yesterday, the trustees approved 2,053 students for graduation at the commencement exercises this month.

Of the 2,053 potential graduates, 1,766 will be receiving undergraduate degrees while 287 will be receiving graduate degrees.

Board members discussed briefly the school's student newspaper "Fountainhead."

Promotion For Clifton Moore

Clifton G. Moore, business manager of East Carolina University for the past year, was named vice president for business affairs yesterday by the school's Board of Trustees.

Moore, a native of Raleigh, has been employed in the university's business office since 1962. He became business manager last July after former vice-president and business manager F.D. Duncan retired.

A Univeristy of North Carolina at Chapel Hill accounting graduate, Moore served as assistant to the secretary of the North Carolina Local Government Commission from 1954 to 1962. For eight years prior to that, Moore was senior auditor for the Gasoline Tas Division, North Carolina Department of Revenue.

A member of St. James Methodist Church here Moore served with the U.S. Marines Corps during World War II and currently holds the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve.

He is married to the former Erma Ruth Fowler and they have two children. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Moore currently live in Raleigh.

Moore is a member of the Greenville Golf and Country Club, the Brook Valley Country Club, the Greenville Elks Lodge and is a past master of Hiram Masonic Lodge, Raleigh.

Dollar Given Respite

By LOUIS NEVIN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rebounded on European exchanges today, but the respite seemed temporary as the international monetary crisis continued.

American money was in short supply as speculators rushed to cover the dollars they had been selling for over a week without owning them.

The British pound was caught in the rush. A wave of selling sent the rate for sterling down 41 points, to $2.4155 during the first tour of trading in London.

Major dollar trading remained all but suspended in West Germany, Austria, Belgium, Finland, the Netherlands, Portugal and Switzerland as the national banks of those countries still refused to buy dollars.

Led by West Germany, the central banks stopped buying Wednesday after two days of hectic selling by speculators switching to West German marks in anticipation that the German currency would be revalued upward.

The dollar gained strength on the open market in West Germany today after rumors that

The government would postpone its decision to revalue until after a meeting of Common Market finance and economic ministers Saturday.

The West German Economic Minstry confirmed the rumor shortly before noon. But already on the strength of the rumors the dollar had risen to 3.59-3.61 marks on the open market after opening at 3.56. The official floor price is 3.63.

The West German Cabinet is meeting Friday to discuss the mounting pressure for revaluation of the mark to check inflation in Germany. But a decision was put off after the scheduling of the Common Market meeting in Brussels.

End Over End

LINCOLNTON, N.C. (AP) — Three young men died when their convertible tumbled end over end for 175 feet early today. The top was sheared off and landed in a power line 30 feet off the ground.

They were Donald Lee Carrigan, 27; Ronald Gene Ballard, 22, and Gordon Kevin Abernathy, 16.

The other two young men with them were hospitalized.

All five were from Lincolnton.

The accident occurred at 1:45 a.m. three miles south of Lincolnton.

Pound North Viets In New Cambodia Fighting

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese ground forces and Vietnamese and American aircraft battered North Vietnamese troops today and Wednesday in a new outbreak of fighting in eastern Cambodia.

The allied commands claimed 127 enemy troops killed at three points in the Cambodian fighting, at least half of them by air strikes.

One South Vietnamese was killed and six were wounded, said a spokesman, Lt. Col. Do Viet.

Meanwhile, the allies announced a 24-hour cease-fire in South Vietnam for the anniversary Sunday of Buddha's birth. The stand-down will begin at noon Saturday. There has been no companion announcement from the Viet Cong, which last year ignored the allied cease-fire for Buddha's birthday and made a series of attacks.

The U.S. Command announced 38 American servicemen were killed in action last week, another 21 previously listed as missing were changed to the dead classification, and nine other men died of combat wounds. This gave a total on the weekly casualty summary of 68, the highest toll in five weeks.

The 21 missing included 13 airmen shot down over Laos.

The command also reported 592 wounded last week, the largest weekly total since last October, and said another 20 Americans died of nonhostile causes.

In the fighting in Cambodia, Saigon headquarters said South Vietnamese FS fighters attacked a concentration of North Vietnamese troops for four hours Wednesday afternoon near the town of Kandol Chrum, 100 miles northwest of Saigon.

Fifty miles to the northeast near the Cambodian town of Snuol, South Vietnamese tanks, armored personnel carriers and infantrymen clashed with an estimated 400 North Vietnamese. U.S. and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers and American helicopter gunships joined the action, and Col. Viet said initial reports indicated 72 North Vietnamese killed, while South Vietnamese losses were one killed and six wounded.

In the third action, U.S. helicopter gunships killed five enemy soldiers in the Svay Rieng Province 52 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, the U.S. Command said.

J. Irvin Morgan Jr. Is Farmville Man Of Year

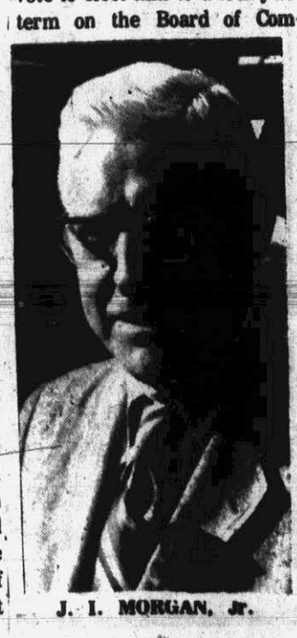

FARMVILLE — Farmville's Man of the Year is J. Irvin Morgan Jr.

The award was presented Wednesday night at the annual Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting held in cooperation with the Farmville Jaycees, Kiwanis Club, Lions Club, and Rotary Club.

The speaker for the meeting was Dr. James L. Knipe of the East Carolina University School of Business, Department of Economics.

Morgan, a lifelong resident of Farmville, is a leader in the business, religious, and civic life of his hometown. President and director of Morgan Oil and Refining Company, he is vice president and director of several other business enterprises in Farmville, Snow Hill, and Wilson. He is a director of the Bank of Farmville and of Branch Banking and Trust Company of Wilson.

In Tuesday's election here, he was given the highest majority vote to elect him to a four-year term on the Board of Commissioners. He has served on the Board in years past.

J. I. MORGAN, Jr.

In the Farmville United Methodist Church, he is a lay reader and speaker, a member of Building Committee for the construction of a new church complex, and chairman of the Pastor-Parrish Relations Committee. Long a member of the Farmville Rotary Club, he has been a director and a president of the local club, a district governor, and has chaired numerous Rotary committees on local, district, and international levels.

A 1931 graduate of Duke University, he is married to the former Margaret Hadley Williams of Wilson. They have two daughters, Mrs. Ann McGaughey of Farmville and Mrs. Hadley Hines of Rocky Mount, a son, J. I. Morgan III of Chapel Hill, and four grandchildren.

Royal Couple Claimed Surprise At The Passage Of 15 Years

By ROBERT MUSEL
UPI Senior Editor

MONACO (UPI)—A husband and wife who say the first 15 years of marriage have passed so swiftly they don't plan anything special to mark the anniversary are practically giving a definition of true love.

Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco won't quarrel with this interpretation. Anyone who has seen them together in their little principality nestled in a curve of the Mediterranean has an idea of the depth of their feelings for each other and their three children.

"Well, it isn't really very long is it?" the Prince said in his office, well aware he was not speaking for all husbands.

(Friends said later there probably was a small anniversary dinner in the princely palace with Caroline, 14, Albert, 12, and Stephanie, six, and perhaps other members of the Grimaldi family.)

Princess Grace, interviewed separately in her sitting room, also claimed to have been surprised by time —surprised that she was over 40, surprised that it is 15 years since the tumultuous marriage day of April 19, 1956.

"All you reporters who covered the wedding should have been given battle ribbons," she said, recalling the throngs jamming the principality in the wake of the tremendous publicity aroused by the romantic coupling of a beautiful American film star and a handsome European prince.

An Oscar winner and one of the loveliest actresses of her time, Grace Kelly, as she was, came to the Riviera in 1955 to pose for a layout for a French magazine and it was here that the editor introduced her to Prince Rainier. It turned out to be exactly the right moment.

"We were both ready to get married," the Princess said although it was not until months later that they decided to get married to each other.

Princess Grace said she could hardly credit the passage of time. But few have a better right to ignore the years. She wore very little makeup the day this reporter visited, and was dressed in a plain green sweater and skirt with flat walking shoes and an alice-band on her blonde hair, only a little darker than it was in her modelling and acting days. Her skin in the morning light was clear and unlined, the shape of her famous face unblurred. She could easily pass for thirtyish except that it is one of the penalties of public life that her real age is constantly being published and broadcast somewhere.

She has in her son and heir, Albert, who will be the half-American ruler of Monaco some day, an uncommonly attractive young man with her blonde coloring. Caroline and Stephanie have the darker Mediterranean quality of the Grimaldis. Albert was at school but there was a reminder in the room of his love of sports. A large brass telescope set on a stand for decorative purposes is aimed at the playing field of the stadium far below the palace.

"He goes to the football games there with his father," said the Princess.

Prince Rainier wishes the children could remain at home longer than they will since they must be educated abroad eventually. He wasn't happy about the fact Caroline is already being bought adult clothes. "They grow up too soon," he complained.

Princess Grace said it had been decided not to send Albert away this year but to give him a couple more years in Monaco. However, she will take Caroline to England in the autumn for an entrance examination to a Roman Catholic convent school.

"It will be terrible when she leaves," she said. "Our family is close in everything. But she wants to go. And they'll give her just the right dose of discipline."

Wife Wants Her Name On Insurance Policy

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this, doubting that I'll ever mail it. It's been on my mind for 18 years. Before my husband and I were married, he was married briefly to a raving beauty. They had one daughter. There were a lot of hard feelings, and he didn't see his daughter until she was 10 years old. She's a grown woman now.

My complaint: My husband has a large insurance policy. The beneficiary is his daughter. For the first 15 years of our married life, the beneficiary was his first wife, then he changed it.

This just eats me up. We have a family of our own, Abby. What about them? And what about me? When I mention this to my husband, he says, "Don't worry, you'll be taken care of." I know better. We don't own a business, or a house, or even a car.

I have tried to be big about it, but I can't. If I were to make a scene and force him to change the beneficiary, he'd do it only because I forced him to. So what would I gain except the money? SAVANNAH

DEAR SAVANNAH: What do you mean if you forced him to change the beneficiary all you would gain is "money"? That money is the difference between your being left a widow without a dime or one whose husband has left her and her family provided for. If I were you, I would make a scene! You're entitled to it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been happily married for over a year now and we love each other very much. We have a good relationship with our in-laws considering we are both only children and live in the same town with both sets of parents.

My problem is a bad habit my mother in law has. She is always talking about what my husband did when he was a baby, the cute things he said, the toys he had, and even the cute clothes he had. I realize that those childhood memories are precious to her, but she bores me and everyone else to death with that kind of talk.

I don't want to hurt her feelings by asking her to cut it out, so maybe if you print this letter she will see it and it will hit home. CHILDHOOD BLUES

DEAR BLUES: If she doesn't see this, or if she sees it and it doesn't hit home, don't worry. Your problems will solve themselves as soon as YOU have a baby. Then she'll bore everybody with talk of her grandchild!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for five months and the only problem we have is with our landlady. She lives downstairs and says she has to have a key to our apartment in case it rains while we are gone and she has to close our windows. Or if she smells a gas leak or smoke from our apartment.

Well, we have proof that she comes in and snoops around in our drawers and closets. She never rings the bell or knocks. She just lets herself in with her own key. Several times she scared me half to death because I didn't even know she was in my apartment until I turned around and saw her.

Our door key fits our mailbox, so now she brings me my mail, saying she wants to save me the trouble of getting it myself. Abby, I prefer to get my own mail!

Once she let herself in and opened our bedroom door when my husband and I were IN bed. Can you believe it?

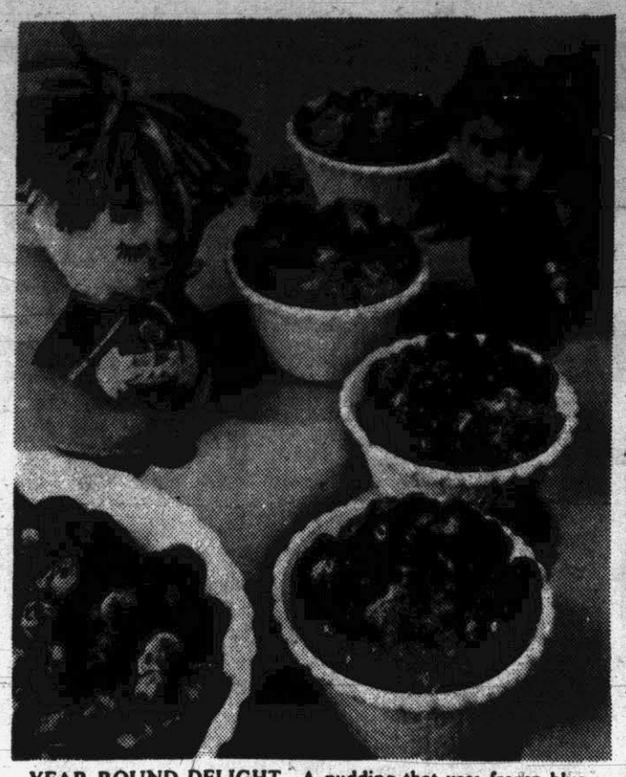

What do you advise us to do? NO PRIVACY

DEAR NO: Have a chain lock put on your door so that she can't enter while you are inside. That will insure privacy. Change the lock on your door and don't give her a key. Tell her you'll close the windows before you leave, and if she smells gas or smoke from your apartment to break the door down with an ax and you'll pay for it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "OVER 21 AND THINKING IT OVER": Silicone implants [not injections] are legal in this country, and there are many fine plastic surgeons who perform this type of operation for women who wish to increase the size of their breasts. It's called mammary surgery. [Many consider it the "booby prize".]

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

YEAR ROUND DELIGHT—A pudding that uses frozen blueberries and has a sweet and rich crumbly topping called streusel.

Frozen Blueberries Excel In Pudding

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Look up the world "streusel" in Webster and you'll find the dictionary defines it as "a crumbly mixture of fat, sugar and flour used on top of coffee cake."

True enough, but the definition needs to be widened. American cooks use streusel a couple of other ways. One is to add nutmeats to the mixture and use as a pat-in-the-pan pie crust. For this recipe you need 1 cup flour, ¼-pound stick butter, ¼ cup confectioners' sugar and ¼ cup finely chopped nutmeats. Next step is to thoroughly mix these ingredients with your hands or a pastry blender and pat into a 9-inch pie plate just to the rim. Into the oven this streusel pie crust goes to bake at 400 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. After cooling, the crust may be filled as you choose. One popular filling is made from packaged pudding.

The other way to use streusel is in a fruit pudding. The fruit is added to a baking dish and then streusel makes the topping. For this simple-to-prepare and delicious pudding we suggest you use frozen unsweetened blueberries as the fruit and serve the dessert topped with vanilla ice cream.

BLUEBERRY STREUSEL PUDDING

4 cups frozen unsweetened blueberries
¾ cut unsifted flour
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 stick (¼ pound) butter

Into a 1½-quart oblong glass baking dish (10 by 6 by 2¾ inches) or similar utensil turn the frozen unsweetened blueberries.

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour and brown sugar; add the butter. With a pastry blender cut in butter until particles are fine and mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle evenly over blueberries.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until topping is lightly browned—about 40 minutes.

Serve warm topped with scoops of vanilla ice cream.

Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: Using the berries frozen helps to keep them whole during the baking.

Priest Performs Double Headers

LOUBILLE, France (WNS) — In France, couples are married first at city hall in civil ceremony and then can go immediately to church for a religious wedding. But what happens when the priest is elected mayor, too? Father Ribot, 53, who just was elected mayor here, hurries from city hall to church as fast as his brides and grooms in order to perform both services. "It's so pleasant to greet the brides and the wedding parties twice," said Father Ribot, and added that there are now more weddings in Loubille than ever.

State Garden Club Officers Are Named

GOLDSBORO — Mrs. W. Marion Odom of Ahoskie was installed as president of The Garden Club of North Carolina, Inc. at the annual convention here last night. Mrs. Odom was named Ahoskie's "Woman of The Year" in 1969.

She is the former Marie Thorne Perry of Raleigh where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Perry, are residing. She attended Meredith College and Raleigh School of Commerce and worked as court reporter for the State until her marriage in 1951.

She became interested in gardening upon building her own home and passed requirements to become a nationally accredited amateur flower show judge, she now holds a life certificate.

She has served on the state level of Garden Club work as secretary and first vice president.

A charter member of the Governor's Beautification Committee in 1966, she still serves as chairman of the Governor's Years of Beauty Community AWARDS program which will culminate in AWARDS DAY at the Executive Mansion on Tuesday, May 11, when Governor and Mrs. Bob Scott will host the committee members and 16 finalists.

Promise In City's Sales Data

Retail sales figures for one month do not guarantee a radical change in the economic climate any more than one robin makes a Spring.

Either one, however, offers the promise that a change is in progress and there will be brighter days ahead.

So it is with the retail figures for Greenville for the month of January. The N. C. Department of Revenue's figures for that month showed that Greenville enjoyed the highest percentage increase in retail sales among 15 Eastern North Carolina cities compared with the same period a year ago.

Greenville's sales in January of this year were 13.3 per cent ahead of those of January a year ago.

Aside from the percentage increase, it is significant that Greenville's retail sales for the month were ahead of those of at least three other cities in this area which traditionally have been ahead of Greenville in retail sales.

On the basis of one month's figures it cannot be assumed that Greenville has climbed three places in comparative retail sales over the long haul. The figures do show, however, that Greenville apparently is gaining favor with shoppers. They suggest also that economic conditions in the Greenville retail area during the month of January were stronger than in some of the neighboring communities.

During the past several years Greenville's position in retail sales has been showing steady gains with respect to other cities of comparable size in the area. This suggests favorable conditions in the immediate Greenville vicinity and likewise stronger drawing power for Greenville stores in various areas where the primary retail areas of more than one city overlap.

They are encourageing signs for the continued growth, economically and otherwise, of Greenville.

They're Asking For Watch Dog

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — The North Carolina General Assembly wants its own "watch dog" to keep an eye on state spending.

Bills to create such an agency have gathered signatures of more than 100 of the 120 Representatives, and 35 of the 50 Senators; thus, favorable action is assured.

The goal is an end to the fiscal frustration felt by many lawmakers when confronted by a $4½ billion budget. Hopefully, they feel, it is a first step to answers for such questions as:

Are these tax dollars requested by state departments really necessary?

How well were the funds spent which were appropriated by the previous legislature?

BRYAN HAISLIP

Where are the places where dollars can be saved, unnecessary expense eliminated, efficiency and economy promoted?

"The legislature has a right to some factual, objective follow-through on its budget actions," said Senator Tom Strickland of Wayne. "As it is now, we often are voting for appropriations in the dark, without knowing how well the money is being used or whether there is a genuine need."

Majority Sign Bills

Strickland in the Senate and Rep. Norwood Bryan Jr., of Cumberland in the House have taken the lead in quietly building support, and collecting co-introducers, for the proposal which would add another arm to the legislative branch.

No conflict with the executive is seen by Strickland and other sponsors. They look for an amenable attitude from Governor Bob Scott and his administration.

Significantly, the move comes at a time when reorganization of state government is a major issue. Just this week, Governor Scott gave the General Assembly his recommendations for implementing the mandate to reorganize expressed by the voters last fall in approving the enabling amendment to the State Constitution.

Senator Ashley Futrell of Beaufort, sending up the reorganization bills, took care to note that the amendment passed by the largest margin of any on the general election ballot. That means, he said, the people are interested and watching to see what will be done.

Serving Similar Ends

Executive reorganization and legislative fiscal watchdog would serve similar ends of efficiency and economy, in the view of many in the General Assembly.

"It would give us an intelligent approach to money matters," said Senator Russell Kirby of Wilson. Legislators now find themselves fumbling around in a maze of budget figures, he explained, without seeing light at the end of the tunnel.

"We're presented requests in amounts totaling up to billions and we have no way to know whether or not they are justified," Kirby continued. "I'm sure most members feel that same kind of frustration that I do."

He's convinced the sort of program analysis which would be carried out by the agency would uncover places to save money for taxpayers. "Take the 'A' budget, for example. This is supposed to cover the cost of operation for agencies at present levels of service," Kirby said.

"It's gotten to the place where the 'A' budget is sacrosanct and untouched; the 'B' budget for new or expanded programs get the attention. We ought to know more about what's in the 'A' budget and why."

Commission Prepares Budget

The Advisory Budget Commission makes up the recommended budget which is presented to the General Assembly. In addition, the Commission exercises an overview of state fiscal matters between sessions.

Legislative representation dominates the Commission; two members are appointed by the Governor, the remaining four hold office by virtue of legislative positions — chairmen of House and Senate Appropriations and Finance committees. Nevertheless, the Commission is an adjunct of the executive branch, and does not fill the need felt by the General Assembly for closer tabs on spending.

To a degree, the proposed new agency would duplicate on the state level the functions served by the General Services Administration on the federal level.

The beginning would be modest, with a director and only a skeleton staff. An outlay of some $125,000 is anticipated for initial operation.

"Nominal, really, when you think of the total state budget," said Senator Kirby.

No Retirement By Sen. Jordan

By JOHN KILGO
KQ Syndicate

People, especially around North Carolina, say that U.S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan is 75 years old and there's no way he'll run again next year.

They point out that Sen. Jordan will be 76 when it's time to campaign and in February the Senator underwent surgery for a malignant tumor at Duke Hospital.

That's what some of the politicians are saying and speculating — but they obviously haven't been talking to Sen. Jordan.

"I haven't intimated that I will run again," Sen. Jordan corrected me during an interview this week, "I have said very firmly that I will run again and I will."

Sen. Jordan had a malignant tumor removed from his intestines on Feb. 15. He was discharged from Duke Hospital on March 5 and was given a clean bill of health.

I talked with Sen. Jordan on Monday. It was a clear, cool spring day in Washington and demonstrators were there who promised to disrupt the orderly process of government as a protest to the Vietnam War. But they didn't disrupt Sen. Jordan and his staff. They arrived at work early and were prepared to face a busy week.

"I'm feeling fine," Sen. Jordan said. "I've never felt better in my life. I'm doing a full day's work every day, including Saturday. My staff and I work on Saturday to clean up things we don't have time to do when the Senate is in session."

Sen. Jordan is almost anxious to answer questions about his health. He says when he was discharged from the hospital, that was that. He was given a clean bill of health... the doctors said, get going, there's nothing wrong with you. We don't need to see you around here.

"I haven't taken any medication in weeks," he said.

Running a campaign at the age of 76 might not be a barrel of laughs, especially if someone like Robert Morgan is the opposition.

"I try to do a good job every day," Sen. Jordan said. "This is the best way to conduct a campaign. I don't want to wait to the last minute and go out and promise people that I'll do this and that. I want to do it here in the Senate. My actual campaign will start late this year or early next year."

Wonder if some young horse with a bright political future, say someone like Morgan runs against him? Sen. Jordan chuckles at that.

"I wouldn't want opposition," he says. "The best kind of campaign is not to have opposition. But if it comes, I'll just go out and do my best and let the voters decide. That's the only thing any man can do."

There have been reports out of Raleigh that some of the state's Democratic big wheels sent a delegation to Sen. Jordan to see if he really was going to run again. Another chuckle from the Senator.

"Yes, there was that talk," he said, "but the meetings never came off."

The point was clear. Sen. Jordan let it be known that such a visit wasn't necessary. He was running for reelection.

All of this will have a definite bearing on Attorney General Morgan's 1972 plans. Morgan, even though he feels he could defeat Jordan in a primary, believes strongly that taking on the man from Saxapahaw wouldn't be a popular thing to do.

As a matter of fact, one of Morgan's strongest supporters, State Sen. John Burney of Wilmington, said recently in an interview: "Everett Jordan has been a great senator for the people in my part of the state."

It's too early to make a final tally on your scoreboard. But feel safe in putting B. Everett Jordan down as a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Strength For Today

PONDER

A woman of promise carried on for years a running battle with a certain Senator whom she particularly disliked. Bang, bang. Thump, thump. At last the lady brought the quarrel to an end by stating that it was too bad the good Senator had never been the same since a horse kicked him in the head.

Well, you know, don't you, what they say about us when our backs are turned. "He's crazy, you know, and his ideas are crazier." "I wonder how much of that stuff he really believes." "You can let him go easily enough if you just remember that he's his own worst enemy."

All right. Let us stop there and ponder just a moment. We ought to be given a certain amount of respect because of our age, or our position, or (strange as it may seem, because of our true worth). But if we want to be respected, two things have to happen: first, we have to maintain our own self-respect and do so in a spirit of honesty. Then we must really accomplish something that is worthy of praise and respect. When we are truly honest with ourselves we have to admit that we have made a lot of mistakes in life that might call forth the derision of friend and foe alike. If we excuse ourselves too much we never grow. If we spend much of our time excusing ourselves for our mistakes, we not only do not grow but start going back at a terrific pace.

Think on these things.

Mr. Heath At The Helm

LONDON— To borrow a phrase from a gentleman much acclaimed in these parts, this is for Britain's Conservative government the winter of its discontent. Yet Prime Minister Edward Heath is moving as implacably — and as slowly — as the season itself toward the warmth and pleasures of spring.

These are hard times in England. The thermometer plummeted to a miserable 36 one day last week. Snow fell in Cornwall. A contemporary pilgrim to Canterbury saw the unseasonable smoke of cottage chimneys rising above the freezing blossoms. It has rained for days on end — or so it seems. The rule on British rain is that one hour of its equals a fortnight's downpour anywhere else.

So, too, with the world of Mr. Heath. Unemployment stands at an estimated 814,000, but the figure does not really stand there — it is rising at the rate of 1,000 per day and may top 1 million by the end of the year. Unemployment among men only is placed at 4.6 percent, higher than the 4.3 percent among male workers in the United States. In Scotland, the rate of male unemployment is 7.5, in Northern Ireland, a melancholy 10.

This is not all. Mr. Heath cannot pick up the papers without reading bad news. New shipbuilding orders in the first quarter slumped to 10 vessels, against 49 in the same period in the first quarter slumped to 10 vessels, against 49 in the same period of last year. New factory construction is reported at a record low. Industrial output is falling. Cement prices are increasing for the fourth time in 18 months. It is a cold rain that falls on ministerial ears.

Now and then, a pale ray of sunshine intruders: The national railway union last week approved a new contract accepting pay increases of 8.5 to 11 percent, roughly within the government's guidelines. Mr. Heath's radical budget proposals, embracing a package of profound reforms in taxation, appear to be attracting more support than the prime minister really had expected. Mr. Heath himself is convinced — no matter the pessimistic polls — that public confidence is increasing in the spartan measures his government is demanding.

This was the optimistic view earnestly advanced by the prime minister in an interview that ran on to nearly an hour last week. We met in his office at 10 Downing Street, toward the end of a day that had seen his

To the Editor:

In reference to the article concerning students honored by Phi Beta Kappa at East Carolina University which appeared on page 15 of your Thursday, April 29 paper, I would like to know why only two of the honored students were named. Space does not seem to be the problem since five of the chapter members who helped arrange the banquet as well as the president and the featured speaker were all able to be listed by name.

When any group of students is arrested for anything I notice that a complete listing is always given no matter how many are involved or where their home may be; but when ten students are honored, only two are named.

All of the students involved have worked hard for the honor and should receive full recognition for their accomplishments even if they are not from Pitt or Greene Counties. I would much rather read who was honored than who arranged their meal.

Sincerely,
James E. Hix, Jr.

Editor's Note: The Daily Reflector receives many lists of student achievements from schools, universities and colleges and often the lists must be abbreviated to include only those living in the area. However, in this case, Mr. Hix has a point. The students who were honored by Phi Beta Kappa Alumni Association were:

Kenneth Richard Wright, psychology; Larry Calvin Parks, history; Floyd Eugene Woodard, chemistry; Jeanette Carter Johnson, mathematics; Edward Johnston Harper, English; Frances Margeret Gibbs, English; Kristen Eileen Zimmer, chemistry; Barbara Helen Covington, mathematics; Lynn Monica Harris, psychology; Mary Carolyn Faulkner, psychology.

Costlier School Desegregation

By ELMER ROESSNER

Internal Revenue Service has ruled that "a fixed amount, designated as a 'donation,' that is required to be paid in addition to the tuition fee as a condition of enrollment to a private educational organization, is not deductible as a charitable contribution." That's Rev. Rul. 71-112.

COMMENT: The IRS, with that rule, may have done more to integrate Southern schools than the Supreme Court did with its busing ruling.

The one sure way to beat integration is to send children to a private school which, by high fees and other restrictions, can keep out black youngsters. But maintaining private schools is expensive. To ease costs, many charge only a nominal fee for tuition, but require a substantial donation to the school. Up until this time, the donation could be deducted on income tax returns as an educational and hence charitable deduction. Now the IRS has abolished that gimmick.

Ecology Vs. Taxes

Orange County, adjoining Los Angeles, in levying taxes has assessed the local Seven-Up Bottling Co. for all its bottles, both in its possession and in the hands of dealers and customers on the theory that the company still has legal ownership. And it is assessing them at 10 cents each, the cost of replacement, not at 3 cents, the regular deposit charge. The assessment involves about $20,000.

COMMENT: This rationale could spread as towns, counties and states hunger for more taxes. And as it spreads, it will doom the returnable bottle by making nonreturnable bottles tax free, hence cheaper. This will wreck those ecological campaigns to reuse bottles.

However, pop bottles are insignificant as ecological hazards, since they cannot contaminate air or water, poison the soil or kill a tree.

Tobacco Warnings Moot?

Seven of the nine largest cigarette manufacturers have agreed to carry health warnings in their advertisements. Warnings are required by law on packs. Liggett & Myers has refused to carry the warning on its ads for L&M, Chesterfield and Lark brands, and American Brands has declined to carry the warning on ads for Lucky Strike, Pall Mall, Tareyton and Silva Thins brands.

COMMENT: I don't smoke and I won't kiss girls who do, but I think carrying warnings at this late date is silly. Anybody who does not know that cigarettes can cause cancer, emphysema and heart disease by this time is too dumb to know which end of a cigarette to light.

Reverse Lagniappe

The Attorney General of New York State, Louis J. Lefkowitz, has sued the famous Waldorf-Astoria for $133,202.82, charging that amount has bwen charged to guests in unitemized charges for "sundries" on guests' bills. The practice is said to be common in luxury hotels in New York, California, Hawaii and the Caribbean. Hotels say it is legal and covers the cost of handling messages and use of house phones not otherwise charged for.

COMMENT: Guests should demand itemization of such charges on hotel bills and refuse to pay them unless itemized.

The real purpose of the charges is not to pay for messages, etc., but to recover some of hotels' losses of towels, ashtrays and silverware guests carry away as souvenirs. However, it is unfair to assess honest guests for the pilferings of others.

Most Concur: Bureaucracy Is Beyond Logic

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — Most North Carolina citizens who have turned to state government for help probably will agree with their leaders that bureaucracy has grown beyond logic and understanding.

For instance, if you wanted to get answers to some questions about health care in the state, would you know exactly where to go?

Perhaps to the Medical Care Commission, which licenses hospitals. Or the Board of Health, which handles nursing homes. Or the Department of Social Services, for information on rest homes.

Or maybe you're interested in the Asheville Orthopedic Hospital, the Governor Morehead School for the blind or the N.C. Cerebral Palsy Hospital, all of which are independent state agencies.

If you wanted information on coastal and marine resources, there are 18 different state agencies with programs in this area. Vocational education programs are almost as greatly dispersed.

If you wanted to build a commercial building, the Building Code Council in the Insurance Department would have to approve the full plans, then the Bureau of Boiler Inspection and the Bureau of Elevator Inspection in the Labor Department would have to approve your boilers and elevators.

If you wanted to talk to the head man in an agency, he could be the commissioner, director, chairman, secretary or chief.

Former Gov. Luther Hodges told a House committee in 1969 the organization of state government in North Carolina is "among the worst" in the nation and provides "a horrible example" of the need for reorganization.

The 1969 General Assembly, at the urging of Gov. Bob Scott, passed a constitutional amendment to reduce the number of state administrative agencies to 25 or fewer by July 1, 1975. The voters of the state approved the amendment last Nov. 3.

In October of 1969, Scott established the State Government Reorganization Study under the direction of Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, to develop proposals for reorganization. The group first had to list and describe the 295 existing agencies, then lump them into 20 tentative organizational groupings.

In May 1970, the governor appointed a Committee on State Government Reorganization, composed of 50 citizens, to review the study group's work and recommend specific proposals. Henley was chairman of the group.

In December the committee presented to the governor a plan for the most far-reaching reorganization of state government ever considered. It recommended grouping 233 agencies into 19 functional departments, headed by cabinet level executives who would be responsible to the governor.

The commission left for further study the question of what to do about the 31 professional licensing boards and the state's higher education entities. A separate study commission is working on the higher education question.

Eight of the proposed new departments would be under the elected Council of State officers provided for in the constitution—secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, attorney general, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of labor and commissioner of insurance.

The other 11 departments the commission proposed were local affairs; administration; commerce; revenue, military and veteran's affairs; social rehabilitation and control; economic development; transportation and highway safety; natural resources; art, culture and history; and health and social services.

Scott made only one major change in the departmental groupings when he presented the proposals to the legislature Tuesday. He decided to keep the economic development and natural resources agencies together, as they currently are under the Department of Conservation and Development.

The economic development department proposed by the study commission would have been largely ceremonial and promotional, including only two major entities—the division of commerce and industry and the division of travel and promotion from the present C&D Department.

The natural resources department on the other hand would have included all of the rest of the C&D agencies, plus the Department of Water and Air Resources, Wildlife Resources Commission and numerous smaller agencies. Scott has proposed all the C&D divisions be included in a Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

The largest of the proposed departments would be health and social services. It would include the current Departments of Health, Social Services and Mental Health and their governing boards; Medical Care Commission and its advisory committee; state Commission for the Blind and its two advisory committees; 10 independent hospitals, schools and institutions; the office of chief medical examiner; two interstate compacts; and 11 other councils, boards, divisions, commissions and committees related to medicine and health.

Initial cost of setting up the new department heads and reshuffling agencies is estimated at $1.27 million, but Henley said that by the time reorganization is completed in 1975, the state should be able to save $50 million a year.

This would come mainly through elimination of overlapping functions and centralization of budget-making, personnel, purchase and public relations staffs.

Reorganization is not an entirely new idea in North Carolina. Some minor revamping was done as early as the 1920's under Gov. Cameron Morrison. More recently, the Department of Administration was created in 1957 to consolidate the state's budget, personnel, purchase and planning functions, and a decade later several agencies were consolidated to form the Department of Water and Air Resources.

But state government seems to grow multiple new branches for each one that is lopped off.

Reorganization that is now required by the constitution is expected to make the executive branch easier for the governor and the citizens to deal with.

Proponents of reorganization hope that, in the future, a citizen will be able to look at the list of major dehartments, named according to function, and figure out which one could help solve his problem.

Then he could go to a public relations office for that department and find out what specific divisions or agencies in that field could help him.

If a man wanted to find out about health came, he would not have to go to a separate agency for information on rest homes, nursing homes or hospitals.

He would not find banks and finance companies regulated by an independent Banking Commission, savings and loans by a division of the Insurance Department and credit unions by the Agriculture Department.

An industry interested in locating in the state could get all the information on North Carolina's antipollution requirements from one agency instead of from the departments of C&D, Water and Air Resources and Health.

Reorganization would also include a standardization of titles. Heads of most major departments would be called secretaries. The top policy-making body would be a commission. The first level below a department would be a service, headed by a director, with a policy-making body called a board.

Below that would be divisions, headed by chiefs, with policy-making bodies known as committees. And below that would be sections headed by supervisors.

Proponents of the plan say this also will make it easier for the governor to manage the executive branch and to control the functions of government for which he is accountable.

ministers fielding questions flawlessly in Commons. The P.M. can be dour, I am told, and he is known to work over the opposition with a tongue like a wood rasp, but to this American visitor he was the soul of guarded affability. He looked for all the world like Peter Ustinov playing Lord North in the recent CBS special.

The conversation was not for direct quotation, except for his answer to an opening question: What did Mr. Heath regard as the most serious problem before Great Britain today? It was the necessity, he replied, "for the people to adopt a change in attitudes." A generation had grown up, he continued, with unthinking and uncritical acceptance of the notion that a man can get something for nothing. This folly was reflected in the attitude of the labor unions toward unwarranted wage increases and in the attitude of middle-income families toward benefits under national health insurance; it was reflected even in popular attitudes against British membership in the European Common Market.

The Heath government has fixed its course accordingly. It is a course that would paralyze the typical American politician. Except in the constituencies of deepest Dixie, for example, it is unthinkable for an American statesman to speak harshly — really harshly — of trade union leadership. Mr. Heath and his ministers castigate British labor leaders almost every day. When "right to work" last was argued in our Congress, most of our politicians fled to the hills. The Heath government, by contrast, has boldly championed a right to work clause in the pending Industrial Relations Bill.

As for unemployment, the government warns bluntly that bad as the situation may bé, it surely will get worse unless wage settlements are brought within reason. To howls of despair that middle-income families henceforth will be charged 48 cents for a drug prescription, the government responds coldly by saying that still further charges are under consideration.

This government, in brief, means to govern. Mr. Heath in his leisure hours is a yachtsman. In the rough waters of England this spring, he is holding a hard hand on the helm.

Children's Art Has Every Color Of Rainbow

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Several hundred school children at the A. G. Cox Grammar School (formerly the Winterville High School) in Winterville are excited about a creative effort that adds every color of the rainbow to the interior of the school's gymnasium.

Although the art show does not open until today, groups of youngsters yesterday were "sneaking for a look", long before the students helping Mrs. Pam Porter could finish installing more than 500 items that make up the biggest show ever held at this school.

"There's no doubt about the excitment," Mrs. Porter, a young teacher from Lumberton, remarked. "The entire school is involved in it. The students find it hard to wait until Thursday when they can see it officially."

Sponsored by the Special Education students of the school, it is nevertheless a project for which children from all five grades have contributed.

This is truly a comprehensive children's show, encompassing works in crayon, watercolors, poster paint, tissue paper flowers and constructions, construction sculpture made of boxes, murals on brown paper life size papier mache figures attended by small paper puppets, string constructions, abstract designs made of inked string, geometric drawings, and even drawings based on biological studies. One large box, a diorama, contains mischievous looking animals. Drift wood, stitchery, decorated bookshelves and cardboard bird houses are in this show, as are boxes covered with elaborate arrangements of dyed macaroni and sphagetti shells.

Today is student day for the show, when each class will be taken through to view their own work along with that of all their fellow students.

"Friday is open house, for the general public. Parents and anyone who would like to come see what the young people can do are most welcome," Mrs. Porter said. "We do hope lots of people will take this opportunity, because we feel it is really a wonderful show. We're proud of it."

The A. G. Cox School is at the intersection of Academy and East Blount Street, one block from East Cooper. It is only a few blocks from the main intersection in downtown Winterville.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has accused newsmen of an invasion of privacy in reporting that he did not pay a state personal income tax this year. And he says whoever gave them the tax information broke the law.

"Aren't you guys ashamed enough?" the Repbulican governor snapped Wednesday when reporters asked whether he paid any federal income tax this past year. He told the newsmen it was none of their business and said:

"Frankly, I think the Capitol press corps yesterday demeaned itself a little bit by engaging in an invasion of privacy. They asked a question they already had the answer to."

Reagan said Tuesday he couldn't remember if he had to pay state income tax. His office later issued a statement saying he had not paid a tax because business losses offset his taxable income.

The source of the confidential tax information remains unknown. The report was first broadcast on the Sacramento State College radio station, KERS. Correspondent Rosemary King said she picked up the unverified report in Capitol hallways.

Reagan accused newsmen of knowing that someone illegally provided the information from the Franchise Tax Board.

The board's George Nelson said a check of the files showed that Reagan's returns had not been taken. "We have no reason to believe it came from here," he said. But he noted that "a lot of people" aid in processing the 5.5 million to 6 million returns received in April.

Reagan has always insisted that his personal wealth and his investments are his own business so long as there is no conflict of interest with his public position.

Jess Unruh, Reagan's Democratic opponent in the 1970 election for governor, insisted that no one could be sure if there was conflict or not unless Reagan made his financial affairs public as Unruh had. Reagan steadfastly maintained that was not necessary.

Neither Reagan nor his friends will comment in any detail on his investments or how he sustained enough losses during 1970 to offset tax obligation from his $44,100 salary as governor, let alone any other income he may have had.

But Capitol tax experts say it would not be unusual, particularly in a year like 1970 with its business slump.

No one has contended that anything was illegal. But Democrats in the legislature say it points out the "loopholes" in the state's tax laws that allow the affluent to pay less taxes than the middle class.

Cite Growth Around And In Farmville

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Economic Council has announced that a recent review and survey of construction in and around the town reveals that this is the greatest period of growth the town has ever experienced.

Over $8,500,000 worth of work is either being done or has been completed recently, Economic Council director, Lloyd Englehardt, said. The largest projects are the new consolidated high school, Farmville Central, which is valued at over $2 million and the public housing project now under construction, valued at more than $1,700,000.

Other building now underway includes a new Farmville United Methodist Church, $750,000; Greenfield Heights, a new subdivision being developed by Dr. W. E. Fulford, $1,950,000; the Robert Hill subdivision, $180,000; and additions and improvements to International Paper Company and Collins and Aikman, Inc., $325,000 and $350,000 respectively. New and improved business places and residences accounted for another $612,000. A nursing home recently completed and opened cost about $180,000, Englehardt said.

Church Women Sponsor Dinner

The Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church Woman's Auxiliary is sponsoring a barbecue dinner at the church on Saturday.

Serving time is 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and plates will be sold for $1.25 each.

The church is located nine miles south of Greenville on the Black Jack Highway.

French, Dutch Share Island

ST. MAARTEN, Netherlands Antilles (AP) — France and Holland share a border in the sunny Caribbean. The tiny island of St. Maarten is split by a border, although no guards keep watch. Half of the island in the eastern Caribbean is part of a French department, the other half is an integral part of the Kingdom of The Netherlands.

HST Will Miss Birthday Lunch

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A traditional birthday lucheon for former President Harry S. Truman will be held Saturday at a downtown Kansas City hotel, but Truman, who will be 87, will not attend.

Since a hospital stay earlier this year, Truman is rarely seen outside his home in Independence, Mo., but guests from Los Angeles, New York and Louisville, Ky., are expected, as well as 15 members of the Battery D. Army Artillery, men Truman commanded in World War I.

The luncheon will follow ceremonies at the Harry S. Truman Library in Independence, for issuance of the nation's first eight-cent commemorative postage stamp. It will honor Missouri's 150 years of statehood.

Singers To Be Heard Sunday

AYDEN — The Moready Family, a group of gospel singers, will appear at the First Baptist Church here Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

This well-known group from Beulahville has performed in numbers of churches throughout the area, on television and on radio programs.

The Ayden church extends an invitation to the other churches in Ayden and the surrounding towns to attend the special program.

Four Attended Blood Center's Annual Meeting

Four local associates of the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross attended the annual meeting of the Tidewater Red Cross Blood Center Wednesday in Elizabeth City.

Attending were Joe Clark, Pitt County chairman; Dr. R. Lee West, pathologist at Pitt Memorial who works with the chapter on their blood program; Douglas Morgan, Pitt Bloodmobile chairman; and Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the local chapter.

During the business session Wednesday, Clark was elected chairman of Tidewater's District Eight, which includes Pitt County.

Representatives from blood programs in both North Carolina and Virginia were on hand to discuss activities of the Tidewater Center during the one-day meeting. The Center is headquartered in Norfolk, Va.

New Zealand has been called The Britain of the South Seas.

Arrest Six With Drugs

Six teenagers, including students at East Carolina University and Lenoir Community College in Kinston, were arrested early today by members of the Pitt County Sherrif's Department on charges of illegal possession of drugs.

The six were arrested at a house in the Littlefield community between Ayden and Grifton, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, after officers searched the dwelling and found marijuana, LSD, hashish and "speed."

Those charged included Michael John Koenig, 18, of Tyler Dorm; Jack Clavin Koonce Jr., 18, of Tyler Dorm; William Howard Carr, 19, Mark Stephen Younghams, 18, Michael Herbert Livingston, 18, and Jan Steven Young, 19, all of Jacksonville.

Carr, Younghams, Livingston and Young were identified as students at Lenoir Community College.

All were placed under $2,500 bond each pending a hearing in District Court in Ayden May 27.

The arrests were made between 12:30 and 1 a. m.

According to Tyson, members of the Ayden Police Department assisted in the search of the dwelling.

Chapter Elects New Officers

The East Carolina University chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron honorary home economics fraternity has elected new officers and initiated 27 new members for the 1971-72 academic year.

New officers are:

Carolyn McColl, president; Linda Sloan, vice president; Sandra McCullen, secretary; Lee Bearden, treasurer; Patricia Haney, reporter; and Rachel Welborne, chaplain.

Review Area Road Bids

RALEIGH — Bids for two of road construction projects for Pttt, Greene and Lenoir Counties were received last week by the State Highway Commission at its regular monthly letting.

The projects included:

— 10.8 miles of sand, asphalt surface for surfacing two sections of secondary roads and resurfacing two sections of secondary roads in Pitt-Green-Lenoir Counties. Barrus Construction Co. of Kinston was the apparent low bidder with a bid of $71,433.50.

— Greene County, .323 miles of grading, coarse aggregate base course, bituminous concrete binder and surface for improvements on N. C. 123 (Fifth Street) in Hookerton from Greene Street, northerly to Main Street. Low bidder was Barrus Construction Co. with a bid of $62,257.85.

All apparent low bids were reviewed by the State Highway Commission at its meeting today in Wrightsville Beach.

Insdorf Speaks At Eta Mu Meet

Eta Mu, the local chapter of the German Honorary Society, Delta Phi Alpha, had its final meeting for this academic year on April 29. After a brief discussion of chapter business, it was decided that the chapter will meet every second Tuesday of each month during the academic year 1971-72. There was a lecture by Dr. Hans Indorf, Associate Professor of Political Science at East Carolina University. Dr. Indorf's lecture topic was "Prospects for a Socialist Germany."

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 6, 1971

Harrington Field Dedication Is Set For Sunday Afternoon

Some of the most prominent names in baseball — both collegiate and professional — will be in Greenville Sunday afternoon for the dedication of East Carolina University's newly rennovated baseball stadium, Harrington Field.

Milton Harrington, former manager of the Greenville entry in the old Coastal Plain League and now the president of Liggit & Myers, Inc., will be on hand to throw out the first ball for the 3 p. m. game between ECU and Harrington's alma mater, Duke.

The dedication ceremonies will begin at 2 p. m. in Minges Coliseum, adjacent to the baseball field. The official party of dignitaries and special guests will then go to the baseball field for more pre-game festivities.

Among those to be honored in the on-field ceremonies will be five former ECU head baseball coaches, who date all the way back to 1930. They are G. L. (Doc) Mathis, Ken Beatty, Bo Farley, Jack Boone and Jim Mallory.

Another big name, who will be on hand, but not for the festivities, is Enos Slaughter, a former professional great and now the head baseball coach at Duke.

"Country" Slaughter, as he is still known by most baseball fans, is a native of Roxboro. He spent 22 years in the major leagues and finished his career with a lifetime batting average of .300.

Most of those years he spent with the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League but he later played for the New York Yankees and the Kansas City Athletics. His best year at the plate came while he was in a St. Louis uniform in 1949 when he batted .336.

What old-time baseball fan does not remember the 1946 World Series when St. Louis was playing Boston in the seventh game and Slaughter scored all the way from first base on a single to left-center by Harry Walker for the winning run that gave the Series to the Cardinals.

The Pirates will be out to end a two-game losing streak against the Blue Devils after dropping a doubleheader to Southern Conference opponent William & Mary earlier this week.

The Bucs also need to win all of their last seven games to escape their first losing season since 1934. The Pirates go into the contest standing 9-16 overall and 4-7 in the Southern Conference.

Formal Bid By Appalachian

NATURAL BRIDGE, Va. (AP) —A bid was to be made today to bring the Southern Conference membership roster up to sight by the addition of Appalachian State.

The formal proposal was to be made by The Citadel, Appalachian, a former member of the Carolinas Conference, already has applied for Southern Conference membership.

Appalachian, whose Boone, N. C., campus has some 7,000 students, would replace George Washington University, which dropped from the league last summer.

Jim Brakefield, Appalachian football coach, said he thought his school's bid would get the required five votes for admission.

"We think we would have a lot to bring to the Southern," he said. "Our facilities are as good as any in the league and we have a growing program."

Appalachian would bring to the conference the only artifically covered football field. It also has a new 7,000 seat fieldhouse.

Brakefield said he feels his school's athletic program is about on par with that of Davidson and The Citadel.

"I feel sure we can be competitive within the Southern Conference in all sports," he said.

If its membership bid is approved, Appalachian would be admitted to the conference on a provisional basis in September and become a full member in 1972.

Also on the conference's business calendar today was a decision on the location of next season's league basketball tournament, held in Charlotte, N.C., the past eight years.

Attendance has dwindled at the tournament in recent years and some conference officials feel it could be revitalized by a new location. Richmond, Roanoke, Norfolk and Greenville, S. C., all plan to bid for the tournament site for 1972.

Utah Captures Second Victory

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Zelmo Beaty scored 40 points and snared 15 rebounds, but Utah coach Bill Sharman says Willie Wise was the key to the 138-125 victory Wednesday night that gave the Stars a 2-0 lead over Kentucky in the American Basketball Association championship playoffs.

"Beaty did a great job," Sharman said following the game. "But Wise was outstanding."

The Utah coach described Wise's 26 points and 24 rebounds as "just too much to expect."

Beaty's 40-point performance was matched by Kentucky center Dan Issel. Darel Carrier and Walt Simon added 25 each for the Colonels.

The best-of-seven series now moves to Louisville for games Friday and Saturday, the latter contest to be nationally televised.

Utah breezed to a 37-28 first period lead before Simon and Issel combined to give the Colonels their first lead of the night, 42-40, with four minutes gone in the second quarter.

Things remained pretty even from that point until Beaty scored six points near the end of the third period to open things up a little.

Sharman credited hot shooting and a good team effort for his team's victory. The Stars hit 57 per cent from the field and 75.6 per cent from the foul line.

"We just threw the ball away too much," said Kentucky coach Frank Ramsey of the Colonels' loss.

The official statistics, however, indicated that Kentucky committee only 13 turnovers to 19 for Utah.

"There's no way that's right," Ramsey said. "We threw the ball away a lot more than that."

Ramsey said he plans no major changes for the upcoming games—not even against Beaty, who has scored 66 points in two games against the Colonels.

Tornadoes Take Pitt Title, 11-1

AYDEN — The Ayden Tornadoes insured themselves of another trip into the state Class A playoffs last night with an 11-1 romp over Grifton's Bulldogs.

The two teams, all that remain of the Pitt County Conference, were to play a best-of-three series this year to determine the county's entrant into the playoffs. With the victory, Ayden took a 2-0 lead in the series, and thus wrapped it up.

The Tornadoes started the scoring in the second inning, pushing over four runs. Mike Griffin doubled and Donnie Moore also got a two-bagger. Debro Blount singled in Griffin, and Lavern Loftin got a hit to score Moore. Ken Cleaton singled, and that brought in Blount and Loftin for a 4-0 lead.

Three more runs crossed in the fifth. Griffin reached on an error, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. He scored on a fielder's choice on Donnie Moore's grounder. Moore was thrown out at second on another fielder's choice as Mike Tripp reached. Blount walked and Robbie Pinner also drew a walk. Cleaton then doubled to score Tripp and Blount.

Ayden added its final four in the sixth inning. Griffin reached on a two-base error and Moore cracked out a home run. Tripp doubled and scored when Blount reached on an error. Loftin reached on a fielder's choice that got Blount, and he scored on a double by Pinner.

Cleaton and Moore led the Ayden hitting with three each. The Tornadoes will play host to Vanceboro on Friday.

Greene Central Is Back On Top

SPRING HOPE — Greene Central High School eased back into full possession of first place in the Eastern Plains Conference yesterday with a 7-0 victory over Southern Nash.

The win left the Rams with a 8-2 record, a full game ahead of the second place teams, Northern Nash and C. B. Aycock.

Johnny Earl Johnson hurled a one-hitter at Southern Nash, striking out 12 and walking four during the action.

The Rams started the scoring in the first inning, pushing over two runs. Mike Perry singled and came around to score on a hit by Bob Scott. Scott then scored on Ron Bowen's hit.

In the third, Greene Central added four more runs for a 5-0 advantage. Perry reached on an error and came around when Scott tripled. Bowen was hit by a pitch and Donald Taylor doubled in both Scott and Bowen. Stevie Williamson singled to score Taylor with the final run.

One more run came over in the fourth inning. Scott singled and advanced on a wild pitch. He scored when Bowen singled.

Bowen and Scott led the Ram hitting, both getting three.

The Rams travel to Hobbton on Friday for another league game.

Presbyterian Hands Belvoir First Loss; Immanuel In Win

First Presbyterian began breaking up the logjam atop the American Division of the Church Softball League last night, handing Belvoir Baptist its first loss, 6-3. In other games, Immanuel beat Oakmont, 10-3; Mt. Pleasant downed Piney Grove, 12-5, and Meadowbrook rolled over First Christian, 25-4.

In the American division, Presbyterian holds the lead with a 4-0 record with 3-0 St. James right behind. Belvoir is now 3-1, while Meadowbrook is 2-2. Trinity, Christian and St. Gabriel are all 0-3.

Immanuel leads the National division with a 3-0 record, while Mt. Pleasant is 2-1. They are followed by Black Jack, Oakmont and Piney Grove, all 2-2, Grace, 1-2, and Marantha, 3-0.

Meadowbrook got all it needed in the first inning, scoring five runs. Wayne Nelson singled and John Huber got a hit. Bobby Harris doubled and Carl Powell also got a two-bagger. Gordon Bunting singled and scored the fifth run on Victor Wade's double.

From the 5-0 lead, Meadowbrook went on to add four in the second, including a homer by Huber, 10 in the fourth, with Powell homering, and six in the fifth.

Mr. Pleasant pushed over six runs in the first inning of its game to shut the door on Piney Grove. William Nobles and Travis Doughtry both singled and Poe Worthington reached on an error. Willy Wallace singled and Alton Jones doubled. Howard Bullock singled and scored on a hit by Sidney Scott with the sixth run.

Mt. Pleasant added five in the fourth after scoring one in the second. Piney Grove picked up one in the second, three in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Oakmont pushed over a run in the second to take a temporary lead against Immanuel, but the leaders tied it up with one in the third, then scored five in the fith to wrap it up.

Arnett Harris reached on an error, as did David Hahn. Bill Dickens singled to score Harris and Hahn, but was cut down on Jim Grimsley's grounder. Mack Roebuck homered to score himself and Grimsley. Dick Evans reached on a fielder's choice and scored on Sid Carraway's single.

Belvoir pushed over a run in the top of the first, but Presbyterian came roaring back with five in the bottom of the frame to take the lead for good.

Boyd Lee singled and Bit Johnson got a hit. Brazel Moore brought in Lee with a single and Bill Glidewell got a hit, loading the bases. Don Owen singled in Johnson and Moore, and George Fuller hit a sacrifice to score Glidewell. Robert Johnson singled to score Owen with the final run.

North Pitt In Shutout Victory

GRIFTON — North Pitt High School rolled to a 7-0 victory over Grifton High School yesterday afternoon. It was the first of two games for the Bulldogs during the day as they played Ayden in a night contest.

The Panthers got all they needed in the first inning of play, pushing over six big runs.

Linwood Brown led off the inning with a walk, and Clint Lewis singled. Joey Moore reached on a hit, loading the bases, and Brown came across when John Grimes grounded out. Ronnie Briley singled to score Lewis and Moore, and Ken Tetterton brought in Briley with a hit. Teddy Abeyounis then ended the scoring with a two-run homer.

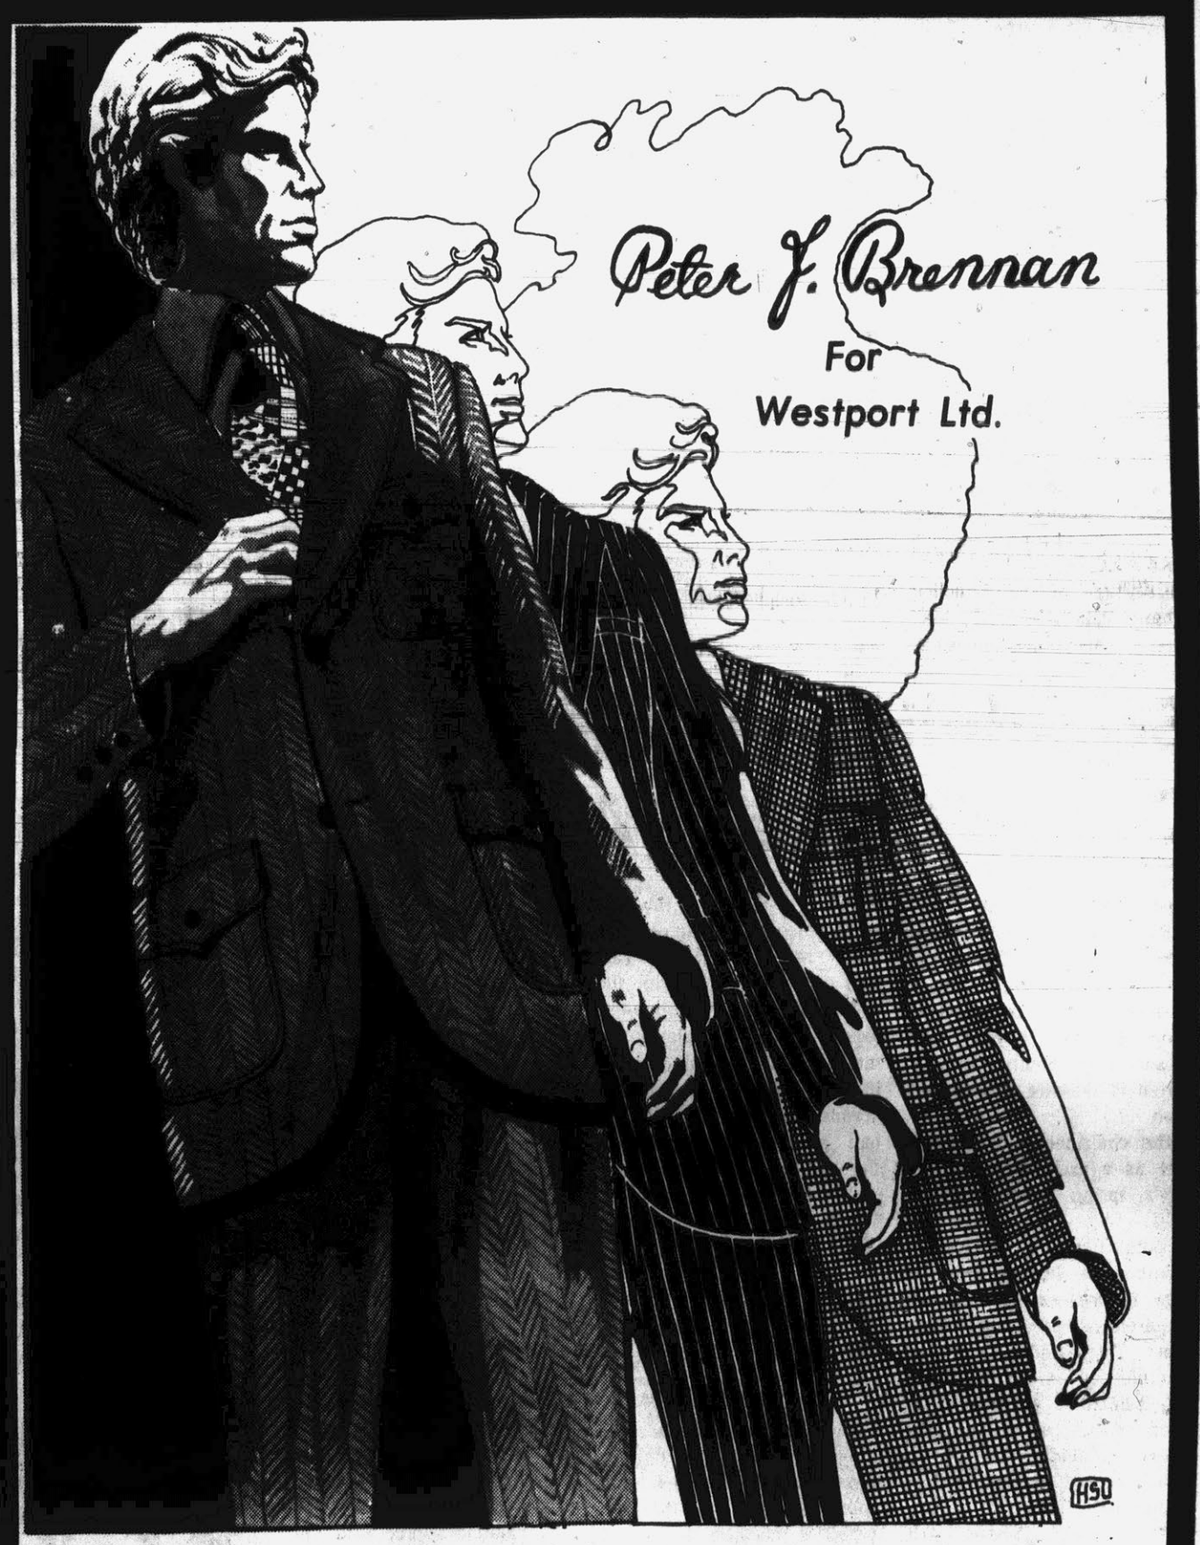

The Panthers picked up one more run in the third inning, as Abeyounis knocked another homer, this one a solo shot.

The Panthers are now 9-10 overall, and play again Tuesday in Ayden.

Phillies Ace Fireman Given Shower By Brock; Giants Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Lanky Joe Hoerner sat in the corner waiting for the phone to ring.

Manager Frank Lucchesi dialed the hot line, fetching in Philadelphia's ace reliever ... but it turned out to be the wrong number.

Hoerner hooked up with a former teammate, Lou Brock, who promptly broke a 1-1 tie with a home run and St. Louis scored three more times in the eighth inning for a 5-1 triumph Wednesday night.

The Brock sendoff must have unsteadied Hoerner's composure. The star fireman, who had carried a 1.50 earned run average into the game, served up another gopher pitch to Matty Alou, then walked Louis Melendez before taking a shower.

In the other National League games, San Francisco turned back Pittsburgh 2-1; Chicago stopped New York 5-4; Montreal ripped Houston 5-1; Cincinnati banged Los Angeles 8-4, and San Diego and Atlanta split a doubleheader—the Padres winning the opener, 5-1 and the Braves the second game, 3-1.

The Phillies blew an opportunity to score the lead run in the seventh inning. Don Money doubled home Deron Johnson for the tying run, but Tim McCarver tripped while rounding third base and had to scramble back to the bag.

After McCarver's pratfall, Cardinal pitcher Reggie Cleveland walked Larry Hisle intentionally to load the bases, then worked out of the jam by getting two outs.

Lucchesi also was dismayed about the team's 235 batting average, one of the reasons for its last-place posture in the East.

Juan Marichal tossed a three-hitter and Ken Henderson knocked in both runs for San Francisco. After Bob Robertson gave the Pirates a 1-0 lead in the first with his fifth homer of the year, Henderson tied it with a fifth-inning single and drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning roller.

Ron Santo and Danny Breedan ripped two-run singles in the fifth inning and Chicago ace Ferguson Jenkins settled down after a rocky start to tame New York.

Jenkins struck out 12 and posted his fifth victory after New York reached him for three runs in the first inning. A leadoff single by Don Kessinger started Chicago's winning rally in the fifth. Santo's single tied the score at 3-3, then Breedan's hit knocked in the decisive runs.

Bill Stoneman pitched a six-hitter and Montreal raked three Houston pitchers for five runs in the first three innings. Ron Hunt sent Stoneman on the way to his third victory with a leadoff homer off Astros starter Wade Blasingame in the first inning.

Tony Perez drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a double as Cincinnati topped Los Angeles. Perez' homer snapped a 3-3 tie in the seventh and sent Dodger ace Bill Singer down to his sixth loss in eight decisions.

Ollie Brown and Nate Colbert delivered home runs and reliever Al Severinsen choked off a bases-loaded rally by Atlanta in the eighth to preserve San Diego's opening-game victory.

The Braves bounced back in the nightcap as Gil Garrido and pitcher Jim Nash broke a tie with run-scoring singles in the sixth inning.

His Boss Didn't Want Him To Bat, But His Hit Won The Game

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Andy Kosco has embarrassed his boss, but there's a smile luking behind the egg on Dave Bristol's face.

The Milwaukee manager argued loud and long in a vain attempt to keep Kosco from pinch-hitting for the Brewers in Wednesday night's game against Washington—and got himself thrown out of the game instead.

Then, Kosco, an orphan of the seventh-inning storm, poked a two-run single that gave the Brewers a 4-3 victory over Denny McLain and the reeling Senators.

Elsewhere in the American League, Vida Blue fired a four-hitter for his seventh victory of the young season as Oakland trimmed Detroit 5-0; Leo Cardenas drove in all the Minnesota runs in a 5-3 verdict over the New York Yankees and Amos Otis' two-run homer helped Kansas City top Cleveland 4-2.

Rain washed out the Boston-Chicago and California-Baltimore games.

In the National League, San Francisco nipped Pittsburgh 2-1; Cincinnati downed Los Angeles 8-4; the Chicago Cubs shaded the New York Mets 5-4; Montreal clipped Houston 5-1; St. Louis beat Philadelphia 5-1 and San Diego divided a doubleheader with Atlanta, winning 5-1 and then losing 3-1.

At Milwaukee, Johnny Briggs was due to bat for the Brewers with two out in the seventh, the bases loaded and Washington clinging to a 3-2 lead. When Kosco stepped into the on-deck circle instead, the Senators made a pitching change, replacing southpaw Joe Grzenda with right-hander Jerry Janeski.

Bristol then sent Briggs, a left-handed hitter, to the plate, but was stopped short by the umpires. Kosco, they said, had been officially announced as the hitter and Briggs was out of the picture.

After a heated, 15-minute debate, during which Bristol announced he was completing the game under protest, Umpire Larry Napp gave him the thumb.

Moments later, Kosco grounded a single to left for the runs that handed the Senators their sixth straight setback.

Koscow's hit made the dispute academic while pinning the loss on McLain, 3-4, who was lifted in the seventh after he walked pinch-hitter Floyd Wicker and gave up a pinch single by Ted Savage. An intentional walk to pinch-hitter Roberto Pena filled the bases, setting the stage for Kosco's delayed heroics.

Blue, Oakland's 21-year-old southpaw flash, tamed the Tigers for his seventh successive complete game victory after a season-opening setback at Washington. He struck out 11, boosting his early-season total to 69—tops in the majors.

The A's nicked Dean Chance, 0-5, for the only run they needed in the fourth and then pulled away in the fifth with four runs—the last two on a single by Joe Rudi.

Cardenas smacked his first homer of the season—a three-run shot off Stan Bahnsen in the second inning—and later punched a pair of run-scoring singles while upping his batting average from .227 to .250.

Jim Perry held off the Yankees until the eighth, when he got relief help from rookie Ray Corbin, and picked up his fifth victory in seven decisions.

Otis' fourth homer of the year keyed a four-run Kansas City salvo in the sixth. Reliever Tom Burgmeier sealed the victory for Dick Drago as Cleveland went down to its 16th defeat in the last 21 games.

Court Ponders Coach's Case

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court has taken under advisement the case of a college basketball coach who contends he was libeled by an article in Sports Illustrated magazine.

The case is on appeal before the 4th U. S. Circuit Court from a North Carolina federal district court which denied summary judgment to the plaintiff, Neil Johnston, assistant coach at Wake Forest University.

Johnston contends the libel was contained in the December 1968 issue of Sports Illustrated in which writer George Plimpton quoted Boston Celtic coach Arnold "Red" Auerbach on the subject of Celtic star Bill Russell being chosen the magazine's Sportsman of the Year.

Auerbach was quoted as saying Russell's play destroyed opponents and in a game about 10 years earlier he had destroyed Johnston—"destroyed him psychologically as well, so that he practically ran him out of organized basketball."

Johnston ended his playing career in the National Basketball Association in 1959 and subsequently coached the Philadelphia Warriors in the NBA, Pittsburgh in the old American Basketball League, and Delaware in the Eastern Basketball League.

In arguments before the appellate court Wednesday, the main issue appeared to be whether the defendant, Time, Inc., which owns Sports Illustrated, was protected by a U. S. Supreme Court ruling in the case of the New York Times vs. Sullivan.

In this decision, the Supreme Court held that a publication is constitutionally protected in its statements about a public figure, or that the information is within the public interest, if there is no proof of actual malice.

Scheduling Problems On ACC Meet Agenda

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — Faculty athletic chairmen and athletic directors of Atlantic Coast Conference schools today discussed scheduling problems beyond next season with South Carolina, which is leaving the conference.

The chairmen and directors met as a preliminary to Friday's spring meeting of the ACC.

South Carolina, a charter member, is leaving Aug. 15 over differences on academic requirements for athletic eligibility. The Gamecocks are recruiting only under the NCAA requirement of a projected 1.6 grade point average, and not under the additional ACC requirement of an 800 college board score.

The remaining seven ACC members agreed at a meeting in Greensboro last month to honor 1971 football contracts with South Carolina, with the understanding the Gamecocks would not use any player not meeting ACC academic requirements.

What will be done in basketball scheduleing with South Carolina has been left to the individual schools.

With only seven teams, and no applications for membership pending, a new format must be worked up for the basketball championship tournament in Greensboro. The regular-season leader likely will be given a first-round bye, leaving three first-round games instead of the usual four.

He Couldn't Cash This One

By F.T. MACFEELY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Otis Gilmore of Chipley, Fla., is driving the truck he always wanted. It's all the more welcome because it was a present from his son, Artis.

Artis is one of the new millionaires, a product of the war between the National Basketball Association and American Basketball Association.

Strictly speaking he doesn't have a million dollars. But the contract the All America giant signed with the Kentucky Colonels of the ABA calls for what is variously reported as between $2.2 and $2.7 million over a period of 10 years.

Gilmore is willing to talk about the pleasures of having real money for the first time in his life but not about the size of the package deal neogotiated for him by attorney Herb Rudoy of Chicago.

A reliable source said Gilmore collects $100,000 each of the next 10 years plus $80,000 a year put into an annuity which would make a realistic $1.8 million total.

He came back from the signing ceremony at Louisville with a check. He strolled into the office of Jacksonville University Coach Tom Wasdin on a day the players got $15 laundry checks.

Wasdin often cashes them for the players, so when Gilmore asked if he would cash a check, the coach said "sure" and reached for his wallet.

This check was for $50,000.

Paint Job Grounds Al

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Al Unser, hottest driver in the United States Auto Club the last two seasons, has been sitting on the pit wall of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for five days, grounded by a mishap that shouldn't happen at your corner garage.

The defending USAC champion and 1970 Speedway 500-mile race winner hasn't been able to drive his new Colt Ford because of a bad paint job.

Parnelli Jones, co-owner of the car and himself a former 500 winner, explained that the undercoating wasn't dry when the painter started brushing on layers of the team's distinctive blue and gold. They came right off.

The car was expected to reach the track today.

Al was asked Wednesday if the delay wasn't getting on his nerves, especially while Mark Donohue was making fantastically fast practice runs in a new Mark 16 McLaren-Offenhauser.

The Albuquerque, N.M., driver answered with one of his longer speeches. He said, "Naw."

Mecklenburg Debates Bid For Local Drink Measure

RALEIGH (AP) — Although Moore County waded into the legislative waters and found them to be wet, Mecklenburg County is still debating over whether to jump in after Moore with a local liquor by the drink bill.

The Mecklenburg delegation to the General Assembly voted 3-2 in a caucus Wednesday to have a bill drafted similar to one enacted last week permitting the people of Moore County to vote on whether Class A. restaurants will be allowed to sell liquor by the drink.

But the delegation delayed until next week its decision on whether it would introduce the bill it ordered drafted.

In other legislative action Wednesday, the House passed without debate a bill that would take away a person's driver's license for a year upon conviction of speeding over 90 miles an hour.

In addition to losing their driving privileges for a year, those convicted would face fines of up to $200 and imprisonment up to 60 days or both.

The Senate passed legislation permitting the Juvenile Correction Commission to provide an incentive pay program for juveniles detained in state correctional institutions.

The bill, introduced by Sens. Lamar Gudger, D-Buncombe, and Charles B. Deane, Jr., D-Richmond, would allow as much as 10 cents per hour incentive pay.

Sens. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, and Hargrove Bowles, D-Guilford, introduced a bill to provide "cost reduction incentive bonuses" for state employees.

This is designed to encourage state employes to cut down on waste by giving them part of any money which they could save their agency through increased efficiency or lower costs, Rauch said.

Legislation designed to implement the constitutionally-mandated reorganization of state government will likely reach the House or Senate floor by June 1. That's the word from Sen. Ashley B. Futrell, D-Beaufort, and Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Nash, who chair the legislative committees considering reorganization.

Both appointed subcommittees Wednesday and said they expected to be able to return some of the legislation to the floor by the first of June.

The Senate Banking Committee killed a bill that would have permitted counties and cities to tax personal property owned by banks. The vote was 5-4 with several members not voting.

And a Senate committee on Conservation and Development approved a modified version of the so-called "environmental bill of rights" which has been proposed as an amendment to the state Constitution.

The original bill directed the General Assembly to acquire and preserve naturalistic areas of the state. The modified version softened the wording by saying the state and its political subdivisions "may acquire by purchase or gift" such natural areas.

Joins Local Law Firm

E. B. Aycock Jr., a 1968 graduate of the University of North Carolina law school has begun the practice of law in Greenville with the law firm of Gaylord and Singleton.

Aycock, a Greenville native, is a 1960 graduate of Rose High School here and received his undergraduate degree from UNC-Chapel Hill in 1964.

Since his graduation from the UNC law school Aycock has been engaged in the practice of law with the firm of Bridgers and Horton in Tarboro. He began his association with the firm of Gaylord and Singleton here May 1.

Aycock is married to the former Ann Branch of Chapel Hill and they have two children, E. B. Aycock III, 2½, and Susan Hodges Aycock, 1½. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Aycock of Greenville.

The Aycocks plan to make their home at 907 Charles Street in about one month.

A member of the Immanuel Baptist Church here, Aycock was a member of the Young Democrat Club of Edgecombe County.

Young Republicans Of County Gathered

About 50 young Republicans from the Greenville area attended a meeting of the Pitt County Young Republican Club Tuesday night at the Three Steers Restaurant. "An unexpectedly large turn-out, considering the fact it was election night in Greenville," Ballard Everett, Executive Chairman of the First District of the Republican Party, commented.

Everett said "State Representative Thomas Harrelson, the 30 year old Republican member from Brunswick County, told his audience that the Republican Party is looking for young candidates who are and have been successful in business and know the problems of a community."

Everett also commented that Harrelson mentioned "a report of election results in Southport showed that a Negro was elected to the Board of Alderman, the first Negro office holder since reconstruction days, as a result of the efforts of young Republicans in that coastal town."

P. C. Barwick, State Chairman of the Young Republicans, also spoke on the need for youthful persons, according to Everett. "Barwick said young people to fill responsible positions within the party, people with new ideas, are needed."

Another meeting of the young Republicans will be held on the second Tuesday in June. Persons interested in additional information are asked to contact Dallas McPherson, Greenville attorney, for complete details.

Soft Drink Industry Bids For Repeal Of Cent Tax

Enemy Shelling Viet Civilians

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy rockets killed 11 South Vietnamese civilians and wounded 17 other Vietnamese in Da Nang Wednesday night. The attack was the fourth shelling of South Vietnam's second city in two weeks and came seven hours after the Saigon government accused Hanoi of "barbarous shelling tactics aimed at massacering the civilian populaton."

Five rockets landed in Da Nang an hour before midnight. One of the 100-pounders killed a woman and her five children. Four houses were destroyed and two trucks heavily damaged. The wounded included 14 civilians and three soldiers.

The Saigon government charged earlier Wednesday that enemy forces had made 151 shelling attacks between April 26 and May 2. The protest note to the International Control Commission said the enemy directed many of these attacks at "various populated areas ... where there are no military installations in order to reduce their heavy losses in human life. Thus, their indiscriminate mortar and rocket shellings have caused every day a large number of civilian victims including women and children."

Da Nang, however, contains several military installations, including a big air base, and is the headquarters of South Vietnam's 1st Military Region. The Russian 122mm rockets used in the attack Wednesday night are "area type" weapons which cannot be aimed with precision.

The U.S. Command reported that a small Army OH6 observation helicopter was shot down during the battle, but the crewmen escaped unhurt.

TAX REPEAL URGED — Sam Whitehurst, executive secretary of the N.C. Soft Drink Association (at podium) appeared before a joint House and Senate Finance committee hearing Wednesday to urge repeal of the state's penny per bottle soft drink tax. (AP Wirephoto)

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The soft drink industry found the head of the state AFL-CIO standing in its way Wednesday when it made its pitch for repeal of the state's one-cent soft drink tax.

Wilbur Hobby told the General Assembly's House and Senate Finance committees at a public hearing on a repeal bill that while he opposes such taxes, the state badly needs the $38 million the levy is expected to produce during the next biennium.

"Our teachers and state employes need a raise to combat the inflation spiral," Hobby told the legislators.

"If we eliminate the soft drink tax then where will the money come from?" Hobby asked. "We want the answer before any repeal ... Our members have no guarantees or much probability that if the tax is repealed that prices will be cut to the consumer.

"It would be a dirty trick on the consumers of our state to tax them an additional $18 million dollars and still pay the same 5 or 10 cents added to the price of solf drinks," he said.

Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, who sponsored the bill to repeal the soft drink levy along with more than 40 other House members, told the legislators that the soft drink tax was enacted two years ago "in a rather hastily way and as a compormise."

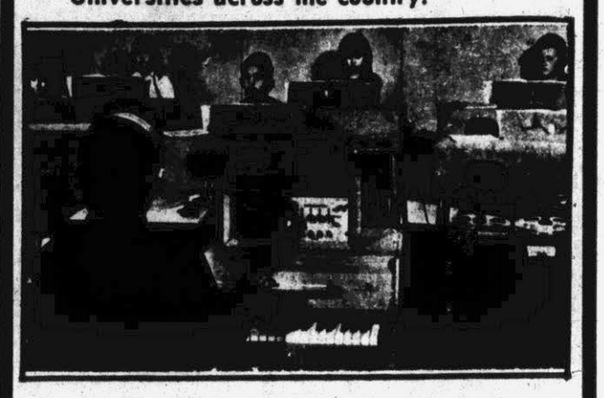

"It's the wrong tax on the wrong people," High said. He told the committees that bills are before the General Assembly that would replace the revenue that repeal of the soft drink would cost the state. He cited a bill by Rep. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, to boost the income tax.

Spokesmen for the soft drink industry and supermarkets joined in assuring the legislators that if the soft drink tax is repealed, they would immediately cut prices by the amount of the tax.

"If the tax is repealed, the ultimate beneficiary will be the consumers of North Carolina because the soft drink industry has pledged to remove the exact amount of the tax when the tax is repealed," said Sam Whitehurst, executive secretary of the North Carolina Soft Drink Association.

Royal Spence of the Canada Dry Bottling Co. of Greensboro said that repeal of the soft drink tax "will prevent the bankruptcy of many small bottlers."

Begins Sixty Hours Of Rocking

Rock-A-Thon, the traditional East Carolina University method of highlighting participation in the annual drive for the Cancer Crusade, got underway today.

Once more, the big rocking chair is in place at Five Points. This year's rocker, out to break all previous records, is a freshman, Michael (Mike) O'Brien of Springfield, Virginia. His goal is 60 hours of rocking.

At 8:00 a. m. this morning Mike, brought to the scene of his endurance trial by the Greenville Rescue Squad, was placed into the rocker on the platform where he will attempt to remain in a non-stop round of rocking until 8:00 p. m. Saturday.

The Rock-A-Thon, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, the National Service Fraternity, will give all contributions received to the coffers of the Cancer Society.

Bruce Evans, publicity chairman for Rock-A-Thon, says O'Brien "will have a court of attendants drawn from O'Brien's fellow fraternity members. They will be on hand at all times, from 8 to 12 in number, to give him encouragement and food."

Evans also revealed that O'Brien has prepared for the protracted rocking trial by going on a liquid diet prior to mounting the platform. "This is a necessary part of the preparation," Evans explained, answering a question put to him about the candidate's solution to bath room problems during a sustained in place feat.

Dr. James Butler, retired ECU faculty member, is again this year's advisor to the Rock-A-Thon participants. Daniel Rappucci is president of Alpha Phi Omega, and Jackie Speight is Social Services chairman. All three have coordinated plans for the big annual drive.

Evans noted that already "merchants in Greenville have donated merchandise, gifts and chash to help boost the program."

Merchants are also taking on the responsibility of feeding the court of attendants who will be stationed with O'Brien in his 60 hour effort.

Alpha Phi Omega has been active in the past year in numerous activities affording assistance to the local community. Last December the group sponsored the White Ball for the benefit of the Pitt County Crippled Children Association. The fraternity also featured the UMOC (Ugliest Man On Campus) Award, with proceeds going ot the benefit of the Odd Fellows Home in Goldsboro. During the 1970 Christmas season, the fraternity sponsored two needy families in Greenville, furnishing food and gifts to bring a note of cheer to them.

BEST WISHES — Dr. James Butler and Dr. James Tucker start the rocking chair for Mike O'Brien on his 60-hour stint.

No Summer School Seen

Pitt County School Superintendent Arthur S. Alford said today there will be no summer school program within the county school system this summer.

A story published in yesterdays' Daily Reflector indicated the county board of education would hold a summer school session for students in kindergarten through the third grade.

According to Alford, no summer program will be held.

Alford said the board of education has voted to carry over some $115,000 in Elementary and Secondary Education Act funds to the budget for the coming school year, as a result of the decision to eliminate the summer school program.

The school official noted that through an arrangement with the board of education and Pitt Technical Institute, high school remedial courses will be taught at Pitt Tech during the summer for a small fee.

Discover Body Of Investigator

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The Army said today the decomposed body of a missing military police investigator has been found in a remote area of the Ft. Bragg military reservation.

The investigator was identified as Spec. 4 Dexter Krulin, 21, of Middletown, Conn. He had been missing since April 22 when he disappeared during a routine military investigation.

The Army said the body was found Wednesday by six officers in a firing range area. The investigator was dressed in civilian clothing.

Most signs within United Nations headquarters are both in English and French.

is impossible to legislate."

Although a moot question now, Croshaw pointed to several aspects of the open house proposal backed by the SBA and the Men's Residence Council.

Hours under the seven-day visitation plan would be from 12 noon until midnight on weekdays and from 12 noon until 2 a.m. on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

"Doors to individual rooms must remain open while a student is engaging in open house activities," Croshaw said, and students having female guests in their rooms must register the male students name, room number and name of his female guest. "Failure to register or tampering with the registration book will be an Honor Council violation," he emphasized.

According to Croshaw, "I think we have one of the better student bodies... friendly people. We don't want to destroy something. We desire a greater institution. I pray violence will never strike our campus."

Questioned following his presentation, Croshaw said in his opinion, there had been a breakdown in communication between the students and the school's administration. "I felt like I got taken and I feel like he (Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of the school) feels like he got taken."

Board chairman Robert Morgan, pointing out it is the "responsibility of the Board of Trustees to determine policy ... not the president's," called for any further comments.

W. W. Taylor of Raleigh said, "I am impressed with the sincerity of this young man, and the sincerity of the student body.

"I have been very perturbed about the question of visitation since it started in other schools. I have felt it unwise. I have not had any reason to change my mind."

He noted, too, that he has had many comments from the general public, "indicating our policy is a wise one."

"I move that the board go on record as retaining our present policy as set fourth by the executive committee."

Of the eight members of the board present, only David J. Whichard, co-publisher of the Daily Reflector, votes against the open house ban.

In addition to the question of visitation, the trustees yesterday approved self-limiting hours for women upper-classmen living in the university's dorms, and added new muscle to the school's anti-disruption policy.

Dean of Women Carolyn Fulghum, who recommended the self-limiting hours policy said "I am extremely proud of women students ... and think they are ready to accept an additional responsibility."

She explained that under the self-limiting hours policy, upper classmen could remain out after dorm doors are locked and would be admitted to their dorms by a security guard.

Violations of the regulations, Dean Fulghum said, would result in revocation of the self-limiting privileges for individual girls.

Reginald McCoy who said, "I'm the father of four girls" made the motion to adopt the new policy.

Morgan, Attorney General of North Carolina, said the addition to the campus anti-disruption code merely makes the code conform to the state's anti-riot act.

The policy addition states: "Students participating in unauthorized mass demonstrations or whose presence and-or actions constitute or abet a general disturbance, or who fail promptly to obey an order to disperse given to a group by any university authority or by any duly constituted law enforcement official, shall be subject to suspension or expulsion from the university, pending a hearing before the university hearing committee."

Suggestions had been made to add that regulation to the anti-disruption policy since the demonstration in March.

Trustee Belk Collapsed At Board Meeting

Henry Belk, 73, a long-time member of the aboard of Trustees of East Carolina University collapsed at a meeting of the board here yesterday afternnon.

Belk, editor emeritus of the Goldsboro News Argus was treated at the meeting by Dr. Edwin Monroe, head of the School of Allied Health Sciences at ECU, and by Dr. Dan Jordan, assistant director of student health at the school.

He was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the Greenville Rescue Squad for observation and returned to Goldsboro this morning.

According to Dr. Monroe, Belk appeared to have had a blackout spell. There was no indication of a heart attack, he said.

Oil Spill

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Coast Guard reported today 70,000 gallons of bunker oil spilled into the York River Wednesday night at the American Oil Co. refinery.

A night watchman at the refinery said the oil flowed into the river when a fuel transfer line on a pier broke.

Two Coast Guard airplanes from Elizabeth Cith, N.C., reported today the oil made a slick 6½ miles long and 150 to 200 feet wide three miles east of the York River Bridge.

The airplanes reported the oil had not reached the shoreline, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Med School . .

of North Carolina, expressed concern over the publication in the paper of "four letter words."

"I value very highly the First Amendment rights of freedom of the press," Morgan said, but indicated those rights "do not include such vulgarity."

He noted "The president of the Berkeley (University of California at Berkeley) student body was removed from office after using "the same words." His removal was upheld by the Federal Courts, Morgan emphasized.

Morgan indicated it is difficult to go before the General Assembly for money for a new art building and other programs when legislators see vulgarity printed in the school's newspaper.

"I hope the issue will be resolved," he noted.

Dr. James H. Tucker, Dean of Student Affairs told trustees that content of the paper has been left to the judgment of the newspaper's editor. He said new editors will be in charge of the summer school and fall quarter editions of the Fountainhead.

Trustees also increased student activity fees by $5 per quarter. The additional revenue will be used to fund intramural sports at the school.

The current budget for intramurals at ECU is only $7,500 per year.

Vatican Denies Visit To Poland

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has denied a published report that Pope Paul VI would fly to Poland in August and visit the Nazi gas chambers at Auschwitz.

Frederico Alessandrini, head of the Vatican press service, said the reports "are completely baseless."

The report appeared in the conservative Rome newspaper Il Tempo.

Mark Entry In Data Bank

GRIFTON — A brief ceremony at the Grifton Migrant Center Friday morning will highlight the first transmittal from North Carolina to the National Data Bank in Little Rock, Ark.

Dr. Max Abbott, assistant superintendent of the Department of Public Instruction, and Robert Youngblood, director of the Department's Migrant Education Program, will open the ceremony at 10 a.m. at the center here.

The occasion will mark the State's entry into the automative record transfer system. The data bank in Little Rock will contain all available information about migrant children concerning health education records and other data. Youngblood stated that this information is essential to conducting the education program as the migrant workers move from state to state.

North Carolina expects to transmit 3,000 such records of migrant students within the next few months through the teletype terminals in Grifton.

The summer education program for children of migrant workers is expected to include more than 2,600 in 23 counties. Youngblood said that 1,323 children are now enrolled in school programs in 14 counties.

Central City, Colo., near the state's original gold strikes, was once known as "The richest square mile on earth."

Goals Set For Year At Annual District Meet

Hugh C. Winslow was presented a plaque for outstanding service to the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District at the group's annual meeting Wednesday night.

Winslow was presented the award for his services to the Soil and Water Conservation District as supervisor from 1962 to 1970.

The eight goals set by the group for the coming year were:

— Get the Resource Conservation and Development Project for North Carolina's Planning Area Q approved in Washington, D. C.;

— Get Chicod Creek Watershed Project under construction;

— Get Little Contentnea Creek Watershed Project ready for construction;

— Get the design survey completed for Swift Creek Watershed Project, and get Pitt County drainage project no. three expanded to cover the entire watershed;

— Strengthen the woodland conservation program on privately owned land in Pitt County;

— Assist the county board of education in establishing outdoor conservation classrooms at the new consolidated high schools;

— Assist the several Planning Commissions in Pitt County to use the Pitt County Soil Survey information now available;

— Make a new outdoor recreation opportunity inventory of Pitt County.

Supper was served by the Home Demonstration Club in the Simpson Community Building.

RECEIVES AWARD . . . Hugh Winslow is presented an award by W. C. Eagles for his outstanding work as supervisor of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District.

Forgotten Grave Sites Restored

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — For decades they lay pretty much forgotten, the graves of hundreds of Jews who joined the flocks of wealth-seekers who poured into the Sierra east of here in the Gold Rush of the 1850s.

The Jewish communities buried their own in small separate cemeteries in six towns along the route of what is now California Highway 49.

When the groups owning the cemeteries disbanded by the turn of the century, five of the burial sites generally fell into neglect, filling with weeds, leaves and other litter over the years.

The sixth cemetery has been cared for by Julius E. Baer in his native town of Sonora for 70 of his 94 years. He took over the task from his father, Mayer, who died in 1907.

But one by one, the other cemeteries are being restored and documented in a continuing project to preserve that part of California's Jewish heritage.

The nonprofit Commission for the Preservation of Pioneer Jewish Cemeteries has restored and rededicated graveyards so far in Sonora, Placerville, Grass Valley and Nevada City. Still to be restored are the ones in Jackson and Mokelumne Hill, as well as one in Virginia City, Nev.

The commission is a public trust of the Judah L. Magnes Memorial Museum in Berkeley.

Dr. Robert Levinson, commission executive vice chairman, arranges for synagogue youth groups from as far away as the San Francisco Bay Area to tackle the restoration chores.

"First we take an inventory of the graves and make a copy of the Hebrew and English on the gravestones," Levinson says. "Then we draw a map of the cemetery."

Levinson, a U.S. history professor at San Jose State College, says his research of Gold Rush Jews has only revealed three who were miners. Most were shopkeepers and other businessmen.

Between 1848—the year gold was discovered at Sutter's Mill —until 1880, the Jewish community in the gold country numbered about 1,000.

After the gold fever died down, Levinson says, "a few stayed on and ran businesses, but most moved on to San Francisco and other parts of the West."

"The cemeteries were the focal point of the Jewish community," he adds. They also paint a picture of the tough times the pioneers faced: most of the tombstones are of persons in their 20s and 30s.

The earliest known grave in the six cemeteries is at Sonora where Hartwig Carol was buried in 1853 at the age of 17.

Modern Pork Is Said Less Fat

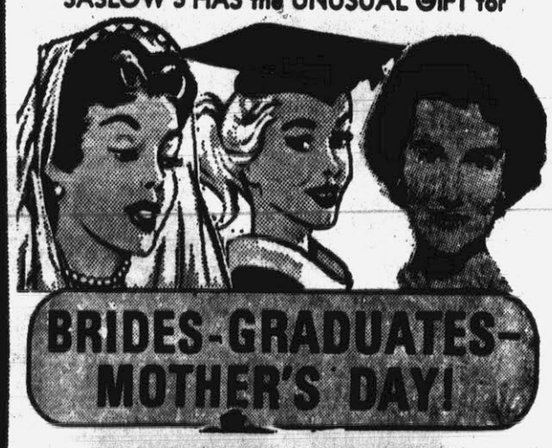

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—The nation's economic pinch apparently has hit the swine-raising industry.

A Penn State University nutrition expert says pork today isn't the same product it was five years ago. It isn't as fat.

Mrs. Ruth Buck says research indicates the meat is leaner and more digestible. According to Mrs. Buck, pork is 98 per cent digestible and is a top source of vitamin B.

Eighty per cent of the world's jute, used in twine and packing material, comes from East Pakistan, says National Geographic.

Advise Marking On Belongings

DALLAS (UPI)—One of the best ways to aid law enforcement officials in their search for stolen property is to have your initials or a serial number engraved on such personal belongings as television sets, stereos, athletic equipment, guns and other valuables.

The Texas Insurance Advisory Association (TIAA) notes victims who can provide a record of such numbers or initials stand a much better chance of recovering property and will find it simpler to fill out insurance claims.

Plastics Assume A Growing Role

NEW YORK (UPI)—Plastics are clambering to share the driver's seat from metals in the fabrication of American automobiles, and by 1975 probably will make up half the parts of the average American car, predicts an auto color expert.

The plastic finish will be just as fine as the metal one, although it will require more color, says Chemetron Corporation's Rene Willis. Color pigments used today by automobile paint manufacturers can be adapted for finishes on plastic autos.

Too Many Used The Boone Name

LEASBURG, Mo. (AP) — The management of Onondaga Cave on U.S. 66, discovered by American pioneer Daniel Boone in 1798, for a long time admitted free anyone with that name.

The practice has been discontinued because "there was just too many people claiming to be born with that name," says director Bob Hudson. "It's bad business to say a tourist is a liar, when we know that many of them were, so we stopped the practice."

Aliens Getting Govm't Benefits

By JOHN BECKLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of aliens illegally in the United States are holding jobs or receiving unemployment compensation and other federal benefits, the chairman of the House immigration subcommittee said today.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N. J., said the flood of illegal aliens is aggravating the unemployment situation and helping to depress wages.

In many instances, he said, aliens are being aided by Americans who hire them at substandard wages.

In remarks prepared for the opening of hearings on admission of aliens into the United States, Rodino presented several examples of foreigners working illegally.

In one case, he said a man who entered the country illegally is receiving a $69.50 weekly training payment from the federal government to attend a welding school.

He said another, who saved $6,000 during illegal employment as a meatcutter, is being paid $69 a week in unemployment compensation. Still another, he said, after working illegally for more than a year as a machine operator, is receiving $55 a week from the government while attending an electronics training course.

"It is no wonder," said Rodino, "that aliens surreptitiously cross our borders without inspection and misrepresent their true purpose when applying for visitors' visas."

Rodino said a major cause of the problem is inability of the Immigration and Naturalization Service to keep track of aliens, due mainly to a personnel shortage.

"Another factor, he said, is the connivance of American employers in hiring illegal aliens either as domestic servants or for jobs at low wages. The feat of discovery and deportation keeps the aliens from complaining about being exploited," he said.

Singer Marty Robbins Loves Riding An Asphalt Speedway

By NANCY SHIPLEY
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Marty Robbins' favorite pastime —other than singing—is racing cars. He has long been a lover of the asphalt speedways.

And Thursday night will mark his return to racing on a somewhat regular basis.

Robbins will be driving a 1970 Camaro owned by Jimmy Vaughn of Greenville, S.C., in the Grand American Hi-Speed 100 Miles at Fairgrounds Speedway in Nashville.

The 45-year-old singer of such cowboy epics as "El Paso," "Big Iron" and "Running Gun," will return to Late Model Sportsman racing once his car, a Dodge Charger, is finished by Bobby Allison, a top-name race driver.

"I get a kick out of watching races, but I get a bigger kick out of driving myself," Robbins says.

The dynamic balladeer underwent delicate heart surgery in January 1970, an operation that at the time threatened his future participation on race tracks.

But the heart is mended now and Robbins is ready to go. He says, "I just do it for the fun of it."

Robbins, who began racing as frequently as possible at Fairgrounds Speedways in 1965, is even postponing his Grand Ole Opry appearances until the 11:30 p.m. Saturday shows. He has been an Opry mainstay since 1953.

The Grand American event, which has drawn a number of top Grand American and Grand National drivers, will be Robbins' second race since his heart surgery and his first since the Charlotte Memorial 600 last year.

The singer's best Grand National finish came at the National 500 in Charlotte in 1968. He finished 12th in that race. His best Grand American finish came at Montgomery, Ala., in 1968, a fourth place showing.

Robbins thrilled Fairground Speedways fans in 1967 with a victory over Coo Coo Marlin. After the triumph, Robbins took the checkered flag and went out the back gate with the flag waving out the window of his car. Speedways publicist Joe Carver said "the fans went wild."

Robbins' fans "go wild" every time the personable singer goes near a microphone to sing one of his numerous hits, of which the latest two were "My Woman, My Woman, My Wife" and "Padre."

The Glendale, Ariz., native became interested in racing in 1946 when he got out of the Navy. "I was like most kids, I liked fast cars, but didn't have any money."

"I understood a little about working on cars and even put my own engines together," he remembers. "I built a little street job back then ... putting together the complete body from part of a 1928 Chevrolet I got out of the (Arizona) desert."

"The pack part was what they call a bucket, a Model-T truck," he says. "I drove it on the street and it was a real pretty car."

Robbins started in show business in 1947 and lost out on auto racing until about 1954 because of the pressure of trying to make good in singing and writing songs.

Altho the defensive campaign differed at both tables when today's hand was dealt in a recent team-of-four match, the final result was the same when both declarer's managed to come thru unscathed.

The final contract was four spades with South as the declarer. Altho East's three club overcall temporarily relieved him of the obligation of responding to his partner's demand opening bid—when North rebid three diamonds, it became incumbent on South to take some action. He showed his anemic five card spade suit and North carried on to game.

The five of clubs was opened at both tables and East cashed two tricks in the suit—West discarding a small diamond on the second round.

At the first table, East continued with a third round of clubs and declarer ruffed in dummy with the jack of spades. East's play served to establish West's ten as the master trump once the ace and king of spades were cashed. It now became necessary for South to avoid losing a heart trick to avert defeat on the deal.

Declarer led a diamond to the jack in his hand and then cashed dummy's top spades and proceeded to play four more rounds of diamonds on which he disposed of every one of his hearts, as West helplessly followed suit. A trick was conceded to the ten of spades and declarer claimed his contract.

At the other table, East abandoned clubs after the second trick and switched to a heart. He hoped that West held the ace of hearts, and if South subsequently took the trump finesse, East could score the queen of spades to defeat the contract.

West won the heart shift and continued the suit, placing declarer in dummy. The latter paused to reflect on his opponent's strategy. The fact that East was bent on cashing a heart trick to complete book tended to suggest that he held a card which might take the setting trick. The only card having that potential was the queen of trumps.

So reasoning, South abandoned the spade finesse and cashed the ace and king. When East's queen fell, the remaining trump was drawn by the jack, a club and a heart were discarded on North's diamonds and one more trick was conceded to the ace of hearts.

The result on the deal was a washout.

The Colorado Territory entered the Union in 1876.

Nuclear Unit Is Ahead Of Plans

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power and Light Co. said today a second nuclear generating unit at its Brunswick plant will become operational in 1975, one year ahead of schedule.

The plant is under construction near Southport.

A CP&L spokesman said the two-unit plant was about 18 per cent completed.

Irving Stone A Researcher

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Novelist Irving Stone contends he has "no capacity whatever to write imaginative fiction or creative fiction."

His attempts—two novels, 20 short stories and nearly as many plays—were all "bombs," the 67-year-old author says with a laugh.

Stone can afford to laugh. He's sold somewhere between 30 and 35 million copies of his other works, with his popular "biographical novels" accounting for most of the sales.

The biographical novels are heavily-researched biographies written in novelistic style and point-of-view and with fictional thoughts and scenes fleshing out the historical record.

Stone's first—and his greatest—best-seller was "Lust For Life," the novelization of painter Vincent Van Gogh's life which the author sent to 17 publishers over a three-year period before it was printed in 1934. It has since sold 14 million copies in 40 languages.
