Field Dedication Honors Native Son

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
One of Pitt County's native sons was honored yesterday in festivities in Minges Coliseum and at the baseball field that was being named for him.
Milton E. Harrington, now president and chairman of the board of Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company, came home yesterday to see East Carolina University's baseball stadium named in his honor.
What he saw however, was not what college officials want to be the finished product.
Presently, new lights have been installed on the field; while a brick wall which will eventually support a roof, stands behind the present seating. ECU officials, however, want new seating, the roof, a new press box, additional lighting and a new scoreboard before they call Harrington Field completed.
"It's about two-thirds complete," Dr. Leo Jenkins, President of the University, told the special guests at a ceremony in the lobby of Minges Coliseum. "We consider this a good addition to our athletic complex. We shortly hope to make it among the tops in college baseball."

While noting that he was unsure when the project could be completed, he said that it would be worthy of bearing the name of Milton Harrington.
Reynolds May, who heads up the East Carolina University Foundation, which guided the raising of money for the stadium, gave the dedicatory address, praising Harrington as one of the finest men he's ever known.
May was associated with Harrington when he was a member of the Duke University baseball team, and then in Greenville, when the two played on the old Coastal Plains League team.
"When the trustees decided to name the field for Milton Harrington," May said. "They could have made no better choice. His life runs parallel with baseball, and he is a home town boy."

May recounted events in Harrington's life, from his birth in Pitt County and his early education in Greenville. In 1927, Harrington entered Duke University, where the teams he played on are remembered as among the best Duke ever fielded.
Following his graduation from Duke, Harrington returned to Greenville, where he was one of the founders of the Coastal Plain League, managing the first Greenville team in the league. "He is definitely the Father of Baseball in Eastern North Carolina and in Greenville," May said.
May praised Harrington as being a born competitor. "The tougher the competition, the better he liked it and the better he played. He asked and gave no quarter. He has a perceptive mind; he can figure out what the other team is going to do. And he's not afraid to take chances, to try new things."
May pointed out that these traits carried over when Harrington left baseball and

Dollar's Value Teeters

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The dollar weakened on some European money markets today in the first test of weekend measures taken by Europe's capitals to check inflation and the influx of dollars. It was firm on others.
At the opening of the foreign currency market in Frankfurt, the dollar nose-dived, then rallied.
West Germany's decision to let the mark find its own level seemed to be having its desired effect on creating uncertainty.
Speculators, who last week spurred the most severe European monetary crisis since 1969, appeared to be hesitant about reaping profits by reconverting their marks, guilders and Swiss francs back into dollars.
The dollar was steady in London and Paris, but was weak in Switzerland, Austria and the Netherlands.
The money markets were opened in Europe for the first time since last Wednesday, when speculative buying of European currencies created a glut of dollars that forced the exchanges to close.
West Germany took new action to drive out the flood of dollars that it says is fueling inflation. The Bundesbank, West Germany's central bank, restricted interest payments on deposits of foreign currency.
The government also barred nonresidents from buying a number of money market instruments, including certain domestic bond issues.

Mariner 9 Preparation Goes On Despite Failure

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Preparations moved ahead today to launch Mariner 9 toward Mars on schedule on May 18 while investigators probe the failure of Mariner 8.
Even with a delay, Mariner 9 could be launched as late as June 17. After that, Mars moves out of favorable position and won't be available as a target again until 1973. The first half of the $153.6 million project to send two satellites in orbit around Mars failed Saturday night less than five minutes after the Atlas-Centaur rocket blasted off. The second stage tumbled out of control 82 miles high and plummeted into the Atlantic Ocean with its payload.

Initial examination of radio data traced the problem to an electronic failure in the Centaur's flight control system. Several days may be required to pinpoint the exact cause, space officials said.
Robert S. Kraemer, director of planetary programs for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said: "It is our intent while doing the detailed investigation to proceed right ahead with our plans to launch the second Mariner on May 18."
"Depending on what is learned, we have additional time in the launch period where we can stop our preparations and make corrections to the Atlas-Centaur rocket if they are necessary."

Mariners 8 and 9 were the first spacecraft built to orbit another planet. Mariner 8 was to have conducted a broad mapping mission of 70 per cent of the Martian surface, while Mariner 9 was to have made repeated surveys of six selected areas to detect atmospheric, surface and seasonal changes. Each was equipped with sensors and two television cameras.
Kraemer said Mariner 9 now will be assigned Mariner 8's mapping assignment.
"We'll meet with the science investigators to see what we can salvage of both missions on a single flight," Kramer said.
"It is clear that mapping carries a very high priority, so any compromise there cannot be substantial. We will salvage what we can of the second mission. It's obvious we can't accomplish all the objectives we had planned."
The maps would help experts select landing sites for two Project Viking craft which are to land on the red planet in 1975 to search for primitive life forms.

Bank Branch Is Bombing Target

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A branch office of the Bank of America was bombed Sunday night, the third time within a month that the bank's branches in Alameda County have been hit by explosions.
Berkeley police said an explosive device placed at a rear entrance blew a hole in the rear wall of the one-story concrete structure on the city's North Side.
No one was injured, and investigators reported no immediate clues. Police said damage had not been estimated, but would run "several thousand dollars."

Over-qualified Have Job-Finding Troubles, Too

By BARBARA FUSSELL
(This is the second in a series on unemployment in Pitt County.)
Finding employment for the "over-qualified" is posing some problems, too, according to William L. Batchelor, Pitt County Employment Security Commission counselor.
Employers feel people with MAs and PHDs are likely to receive better job opportunities and the chances of their leaving are greater, he said.
There are also few jobs available for graduates with BA and BS degrees. The areas where the most jobs are include the social services and school fields.
"Yet, even in the school areas there are too many majors in subjects such as history and philosophy and in a few years all teachers will be a dime a dozen," Batchelor said.

Another problem Batchelor related is wages. Most people will not accept less than $1.60 an hour. Despite how much work he does, an employee feels he should be paid the minimum wage; whereas, the employer is more concerned with production for wages.
Also, service veterans add still another problem to the unemployment situation. Most of these men, Batchelor said, are considered "the cream of the crop." Since the veterans have been doing an unpleasant job and are entitled to work upon returning home, the government is making every effort to find employment for them. It encourages employers to hire veterans as well as providing the veterans supplements while they learn through on-the-job training or apprenticeships.
In November, of around 1,700 applicants seeking employment through the Greenville employment office, 200 were veterans. If the Armed Forces continue to send increasing numbers of men home, the unemployment problem will increase, Batchelor added.
Batchelor cited another problem involving the skilled laborer. Construction work has dropped considerably because of the high cost of materials. Affected are workers such as carpenter helpers and bricklayers.
Despite the construction drop, Batchelor said skilled laborers can generally find a job somewhere. They appear to be the group with the least unemployment problems he said.

Money, Education, Car Insurance Three Items Moving To Center Of Stage

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Money, higher education and auto insurance will hold the center of the stage during the remaining weeks of the 1971 General Assembly.
And of the three issues, the most legislative debate probably will be on the question of the future structure of higher education in North Carolina.
So far, the legislative committees that will handle higher education and auto insurance issues have been marking time, waiting for study committees to complete their work.
And the Senate and House committees on higher education likely will not get down to the issues for a while yet.
They will be waiting for Gov. Bob Scott to announce his position in the recommendations of the Warren Committee which announced Saturday that it would recommend a new state board to coordinate higher education in North Carolina with the 16 institutions to be governed by individual boards of trustees.
This would involve doing away with the consolidated University of North Carolina as it now exists and the present State Board of Higher Education.
This is certain to cause a spirited legislative battle. The Board of Trustees of the consolidated university is one of the most prestigious organizations in the state and there will be strong sentiment to keep the board as it is. In addition, highly respected President William C. Friday of the consolidated university has voiced opposition to the proposal.
Although a number of bills dealing with auto insurance have been introduced in the General Assembly, the bills resulting from the study of the Governor's Commission on Automobile Liability Insurance and Rates have not yet been forthcoming.

There is certain to be plenty of argument over the commission's recommendations which call for elimination of the present compulsory liability insurance law. Instead, motorists would either furnish proof of financial responsibility or they would pay a fee which would be used to reimburse insurance companies for uninsured motorist protection.
The study commission also recommended a major change in fixing auto liability insurance rates. Companies would file their rates with the insurance commissioner on a competitive basis and the commissioner could accept or reject such rates.
During the next few weeks, the subcommittees which have been working for more than two months on details of the $4.3 billion budget for the next biennium will begin making their reports.
The legislators will also find out soon whether there will be any additional money available for them to spend. This will come when revised figures on the amount of money expected to be on hand June 30 and the amount the experts expect the state to collect during the next two fiscal years are available.
Then the lawmakers will know how much will be available for such purposes as pay increases for teachers. Indications are there won't be enough to add much to the five per cent raises the governor and advisory budget commission recommended for each of the next two fiscal years.

Votes Of Eight Senators Could Decide Draft

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration sources say the votes of some eight undecided senators will determine the Senate outcome on extending the draft beyond June 30.
As the Senate moved into debate today an administration source said 10 to 15 of the 100 senators claimed to be undecided, but he indicated the actual number is about eight.
Nongovernment, Army-oriented organizations and National Guard interests have been lobbying for a two-year extension, as sought by the administration.
Sources within these groups reported that as of last week there were 45 senators favoring extension, 45 opposed and 10 undecided.
The prospects for draft extension have been clouded because the issue is intertwined with opposition to the Vietnam war and antiwar senators are preparing a series of amendments, including a move sponsored by Sen. Mark Hatfield, to end the draft on June 30.
John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sunday criticized antiwar senators, for trying to use the draft extension bill as a vehicle for their Vietnam opposition.
Stennis said he is not concerned a threatened filibuster will prevent Senate action on the two-year draft extension legislation already passed by the House.
Calling the all-volunteer idea "a flight from reality," Stennis also opposed a compromise that would limit the draft extension to one year.
Some administration strategists say that a 150,000-man a year ceiling on draft calls, written into the bill by the Stennis committee, will permit some undecided senators to vote for the two-year extension.
That limitation would cause the Pentagon no pain because, with the armed forces growing smaller gradually, present prospects suggest the annual callup will be below the 150,000 mark. It may rise no higher than 140,000 this calendar year.
Administration officials are betting that Congress will try to avoid a one-year extension, because that would bring the issue back to Capitol Hill again next year when many members will be running for re-election.

House Demo Caucus Set

RALEIGH (AP) — Democratic members of the North Carolina House of Representatives plan to caucus tonight to determine what course they should take in meeting the major issues still facing the General Assembly.
Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Charlotte, majority leader in the House, said the closed meeting is aimed at solidifying the position of House members on the major issues.
"We'll just have a general discussion," Andrews said, adding the members will be asked to move a little faster on legislation as the General Assembly heads toward adjournment.
"We're turning the corner now and looking toward adjournment," Andrews said. "We need to determine our positions on matters. The House calendars are going to get longer and tempers a little shorter in the days ahead."
Democratic House members have held one previous caucus this session.
Andrews expressed the hope that legislative leaders can receive estimates this week on the expected state revenues during the next biennium. This is needed before definite decisions can be made on budget matters for the 1971-73 biennium.
Andrews pointed out the revenue estimates are needed before "we can very intelligently consider eliminating about $18 million a year" as proposed in legislation to repeal the one-cent tax on soft drinks.
"We have a lot of very good Democratic freshmen in the House, one of the best groups I have ever served with," Andrews said in an interview. "Some of these freshmen have expressed an interest in holding a meeting such as the one planned for tonight."

Wilbur Mills Predicts No Vote On Nixon Plan

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills predicted today the House will not even vote on President Nixon's proposal to direct $5 billion in federal revenue to the states with no string tied.
The committee headed by the Arkansas Democrat controls the legislation and will conduct hearings on it later this month.
In a speech prepared for a joint session of the Tennessee General Assembly, Mills predicted the plan will not be approved "by the Ways and Means Committee or the Congress. I surely hope it will not.... I predict it will not be voted on in the House."
Mills made one of his strongest attacks to date on the proposal one of Nixon's prime goals, terming it "the blunderbus, general revenue sharing, 'cure-all-ills' proposal currently being ballyhooed across the country."

NO COMMENT
East Carolina University President Dr. Leo Jenkins this morning said he had no comment at this time to make on the Warren Commission Report. The report, made under the chairmanship of Lindsay C. Warren, Jr., of Goldsboro, reveals the committee voted 13 to 8 for a plan calling for a new coordinating board that would replace the current State Board of Higher Education.

Will Kissing Damage Lips? The Pros Tell

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a musician who plays first trumpet with a well-known band. We have a great relationship in every way but one. He is very stingy with his kisses. He says if he engages in too much kissing his lips will become "tender" and it will affect his trumpet playing.

Don't get me wrong, Abby. He is a very romantic and loving guy, and he's great with the follow-thru, but he prefers to skip the kissing.

Is he putting me on. Or do all sweethearts and wives of trumpet players get cheated on kisses because their men have to protect their lips? —WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Take it from the lips of those pros who responded to my telephone inquiry with the following quotes:

HARRY JAMES [world-famous veteran trumpet player, Las Vegas] "That guy must be kidding. I've been doing both for over 35 years and so far I haven't had to give up either one, thank heavens!"

HERB ALPERT [leader of Tijuana Brass] "All I can say is that kissing has improved my tongue. For whatever that's worth."

"DOC" SEVERINSEN [leader of Johnny Carson show orchestra] "If that guy isn't putting his girl on, tell him to live with the pain. My wife says if I ever started to ration my kisses to save my lips, it would be the end of our marriage."

RAY ANTHONY [world famous orchestra leader, top notch trumpet player] "If kissing actually harms his lips, then there must be something wrong with his arrangements."

ROBERT DI VALL [first trumpet player with Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra] "Any musician who must curtail his kissing because of his trumpet playing will never do either one very well."

PETE CANDOLI [first trumpet, Merv Griffin show] "From hot pants to hot lips! If he has to be that careful of his precious lips, he should get them insured with Lloyds of London, or give up the trumpet."

"DIZZY" GILLESPIE [veteran trumpet soloist] "It's not good to kiss on the days you play. It's all right on your days off. The kissing keeps your chops flexible."

"CAT" ANDERSON [played with Duke Ellington for 25 years] "What? Say, that's the best laugh I've had in years! No, it isn't true. Kissing and playing the trumpet require two entirely different techniques, so there must be something wrong with the way he kisses."

JACK FEIERMAN [conductor and first trumpet player with Andy Williams, also with Jack Benny] "Kissing is all right. Just don't bite!"

MANNIE KLEIN [played trumpet with nearly all the top bands] "That guy is putting her on. Kissing won't hurt him, unless she has buck teeth!"

HARRY "SWEETS" EDISON [first trumpet with Count Basie and Frank Sinatra] "The more he kisses, the sweeter he'll play. There's nothin' like sweet and tender lovin' lips."

LOUIS PRIMA [veteran trumpet player for over 30 years] "The more kissing, the better the embouchure. Kissing strengthens the lip muscles, so he's got to be putting her on."

MRS. LOUIE "SATCHMO" ARMSTRONG: "I'm Lucille, Louie's wife, and right now he's recovering from surgery and isn't able to talk himself, but I've been married to him for 31 years and I know I can speak for Louie. He'd say a man could never keep a woman if he didn't kiss her. Pressing the lips up against the mouthpiece of a trumpet strengthens the lip muscles, and no amount of kissing can harm the lips. Besides, when you kiss, you just pucker up."

MIKE NATALE [first trumpet on the Mike Douglas show] "The boy friend must be kidding. Kissing is good therapy for sore lips."

AL HIRT [one of the greatest trumpet players who's ever drawn a breath] "The greatest joy of my life is kissing my wife on the lips, and it's never adversely affected my trumpet playing."

DEAR AL: I'll take your word for it, but I'd like to ask your wife if your trumpet playing has affected your KISSING adversely? Or doesn't one "HIRT" the other. [Forgive me. I couldn't resist that one.]

Hush Puppies Tales
By Larry Averette

The Knights of the Flat Foot

Did you know that King Arthur and his knights were 300 years too early?

The days of chivalry were glorious but not exactly comfortable. Knights had to wear heavy armor all the time. That's a lot of weight to carry around on only two feet. The Knights of the Round Table were probably also called the Knights of the Flat Foot.

King Arthur and the boys sure could have used Hush Puppies casuals. Soft Breathin Brushed Pigskin and steel shank support would have made them a lot more comfortable.

And Hush Puppies non-slip crepe soles give you good stability for slaying dragons.

There's also no more stylish way to woo a fair maiden than in Hush Puppies.

King Arthur was too early, but you're not. Be prepared for dragons and fair maidens with Hush Puppies shoes.

Laugh-In's Lily Tomlin Creates Material

By PEACE STERLING
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Lily Tomlin has short, shaggy brown hair, big dark blue eyes, a tall slender figure and, in person, doesn't look a bit like Ernestine, the comic phone operator she portrays on the TV show, "Laugh-In."

But Miss Tomlin can wrinkle her face, squeeze her hands tightly together and even without costume and makeup do a pretty good imitation of the character she created. And she talks easily about how Ernestine, representative of the "omnipotent phone company," came into being.

St. Mary's Regional Meet Held In Washington

WASHINGTON — Friday at noon at the Washington Yacht and Country Club, five Greenville women were elected officers of the St. Mary's Alumnae Association for the Eastern North Carolina Chapter.

Mrs. Edwin E. Rawl Jr. was named president; Mrs. J. Edwin Clement, vice president; Mrs. Donald R. Patrick, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Charles E. Kavanaugh, chairman of Special Projects; and Mrs. Frank H. Longino, representative.

Other representatives elected from Eastern North Carolina towns were Mrs. Suzanne O'Bannon, Ayden; Mrs. Milton C. Williamson, Farmville; Mrs. T. H. Stubbs Jr., New Bern; Mrs. Henry Pope, Robertsonville; Mrs. William Ashford Gravelly, Washington; and Mrs. William F. Coppage, Williamston. Mrs. E. A. Warren of Greenville, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the slate of new officers.

Mrs. Sandy Spilman Rankin of Gastonia, president of the St. Mary's Alumnae Association, now serving her sixth year as a member of the Board of Trustees, highlighted the annual luncheon meeting. Her talk centered around the "intangibles" as being the greatest asset of St. Mary's graduates.

Butt Passer Told Her Story

ANTWERP, Belgium (WNS) — Eight-year-old Brigitte Vissers, who lived with her parents behind her father's tobacco shop, ran away from home. When she was found trying to hitch a ride to Brussels, she explained, "I was ashamed to have a nicotine pusher for a parent." Father Armand Vissers has closed his tobacco shop and is reconverting to candy, toys and stationery.

Disappearing Act Wasn't Necessary

BRUSSELS, Belgium (WNS) — Cecile Bouloux, 36, who left her home and husband in 1968 after five years of marriage, has just learned that she could have stayed. "He told me that our marriage license had expired and that I would have to get out," said Mrs. Bouloux. "Now I can't find him anywhere."

company and Ernestine just evolved from that. I don't know what it is about her," she continues. "Everybody thinks they've talked to her. And I know she's fairly real because I can ad lib with her for hours."

Miss Tomlin was creating characters though, even before "Laugh-In" made Ernestine famous. A native of Detroit, she went to Wayne State University and acted in plays there. Then she started doing bits in coffee houses. It wasn't long after she decided to try her luck in New York that she realized what she could do with the characters she'd been making up.

"When I first came to New York, I thought I was an actress, but I made up this other material too," she reminisces. "I didn't consciously say, 'I'll make this up,' but I realized I could make my own show. I was working in little places, did a little TV, made a lot of money, but I was totally anonymous. But still I always made up these new characters."

"But it must have been more than that," she adds. "The world is so crazy that if you make up these people, you're in control for a few minutes. I'm not hiding in my characters, though. They're a way to make contact with other people."

Before she made contact with the "Laugh-In" people, Miss Tomlin worked at the Cafe Au Go Go, improvisation and upstairs at the Downstairs in New York City. She also went to California to do "The Music Scene," and then was signed for "Laugh-In."

Now, with her career in full swing, Miss Tomlin has mixed feelings about having a face that's familiar to so many people. "It's really great to have so many people involved with Ernestine," she says. "I get drawings of her from kids, and I got a big letter from an old people's home. I try to answer all my own mail, but I get about eight months behind."

"I didn't really know what I was getting into, though. My whole life is wrapped up in this. Like, you don't realize the publicity is going to be a part of it. It seems trite, but sometimes I just want to go home, lie down and relax. And then there are two more people I have to see."

"You don't just change your standard of living though. If I got all hooked up with the money aspect I'd get in a lot of trouble."

In spite of those aggravations, Miss Tomlin says she's happy. "I feel so lucky that I work at something that's effortless and that makes me happy. Most of my characters all think they're pretty hot stuff. And even my most pathetic characters interpret things positively. I love those characters no matter what they stand for."

Buddhist Nun And Monk More Quakes Await California Burn Selves For Peace

SAIGON (AP) — A Buddhist nun and a monk burned themselves to death in appeals for peace on Buddha's birthday. The nun immolated herself Sunday on a Buddhist pagoda in Cam Lo, just south of the demilitarized zone, the headquarters of the 1st Military Region announced. The communiqué said she left a letter saying she died "for the cause of peace." Her name and age were not announced. Venerable Chon The, a 27-year-old monk, doused himself with gasoline and set himself afire during the birthday celebration in Hue. He left letters to President Nixon and President Nguyen Van Thieu calling for peace and the immediate withdrawal of all U.S. troops. Both the nun and the monk were members of the military An Quang Buddhist sect. In his letter to President Nixon, Chon The said: "After more than 20 years of war, our country has been ruined and too many of our people have died. Give us the chance to solve our own problems, to live in peace, to reunify our country. I burn myself to pray for real peace for the Vietnamese people and beg American families to demand that their sons be returned home."

After Chon The burned himself, another young monk handed out leaflets and called for the people to reaffirm the "sacred fire" of Chon The. The chief monk of the An Quang sect in Hue, Mat Huyen, said in a broadcast that Buddhist leaders had "no advance knowledge of Chon The's plan for self-immolation," and that an investigation was under way.

Suicide by public burning has long been a political tactic used by Vietnam's Buddhists, and Hue is the traditional power base of the militant An Quang faction. Hue's students, many of whom are An Quang Buddhists, are also the best organized and most political students in the country.

But there was no evidence yet to indicate whether the two suicides Sunday were isolated incidents or the beginning of an attempt to influence national politics in this presidential election year.

By WILEY MALONEY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—"A bad earthquake," wrote Charles Darwin in 1835 after he had experienced one in Chile, "at once destroys our oldest associations: the earth, the very emblem of solidity, has moved beneath our feet like a thin crust over a liquid—one second of time has created in the mind a strange idea of insecurity, which hours of reflection would not have produced."

Said Primarily Urban Problem

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A research study by the Highway Users Federation for Safety and Mobility has found that motor vehicle-pedestrian accidents are "primarily an urban problem" and that the majority of victims are school children and old people.

In a publication entitled "Pedestrians," the federation reports traffic control measures such as one-way streets, improved lighting and playground development have helped to reduce pedestrian accidents. But the value of some measures generally regarded as good—such as marked crosswalks, "Walk-Don't-Walk" signals and enforcement of jaywalking laws—have not been proved.

Fish that are part of the food chain for other fish are called forage fish.

In few places is the "thin crust" stretched so precariously over the earth's seething interior forces as it is in California. But 20 million people live here anyway.

"There simply is no locality in California which is exempt from earthquake risk," said Dr. Charles F. Richter of the California Institute of Technology who devised the famous Richter Scale for measuring the magnitude of tremors.

California is part of the circum-Pacific seismic belt, responsible for about 80 per cent of the world's earthquakes. It extends up the West Coast of South and North America through the Aleutian Islands, down through Japan, New Zealand and far into the South Pacific.

California is hit by thousands of shocks annually. An estimated 500 of these are large

Two Boys Drown On Outing

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Two Wilson County boys drowned during their junior-senior prom weekend excursion.

The bodies of Danny Joe Kent, 18, of Rt. 1, Lucama, and Anthony Harrison, 18, of Wilson were recovered in the Nuese River shortly after they went under while swimming at the Cliffs of the Nuese State Park.

The pair had been on a trip to Atlantic Beach with three companions after their high school prom.

enough to be felt. Quakes of destructive magnitude have occurred in California on an average of once a year for the past 50 years, but the state has had only three "monster" quakes of 8-plus Richter Scale magnitude in recorded history. These were in 1857 in southern California and the 1906 San Francisco quake and fire which received such publicity that it resulted in studies of a state's web of faults and gave impetus to the world study of earth tremors.

During the past 50 years strong quakes occurred in Kern County, in 1952, in Borrego Mountain, in 1968, the most recent in the San Fernando Valley this year, where 64 lives were lost. Quakes in 1925 and 1933 in Santa Barbara and Long Beach were relatively small but caused great property damage because they occurred in densely populated areas. Only one in 10,000 quakes in the state does any great damage.

California's quakes are responsible for building the Sierra Nevada and Coast mountain ranges. The earth under the whole state has been compared to a series of blocks like an old brick street, lifted, tilted, folded and cracked. Every time the blocks shift along a fault, California has an earthquake.

The most closely watched and studied fault is the San Andreas, cause of the 1906 San Francisco quake. It is a giant sheer zone running 650 miles along the coast range from Baja California to above Eureka in the far northern part of the state where it angles into the Pacific Ocean.

In some places the west side of the San Andreas fault is drifting northwesterly past the east side at a rate of about two inches a year, or 15 to 20 feet in a century. However, no slippage has been noted northwesterly in the San Francisco area in recent years. This means tremendous pressures are building up which could cause a severe quake. The phenomenon is called "locked" slippage.

Eventually, the strain becomes so great it overcomes the strength of the rocks massed on both sides and they slip past each other. The pressure released is like uncoiling a gigantic spring. The quakes of 1857, 1872 and 1906 were of this nature.

Where the two-inch-per-year slippage has occurred, scientists believe, the energy has been released in minor quakes and no "monster" shake may occur.

Scientists are willing to make some estimates about earthquake probability—but they cannot predict the exact time or place a shake may occur.

Dr. Richter said it is his personal "guess" that there is a probability of a repetition of the 1857 earthquake in southern California, taking into account the estimated 100-year cycle.

Repetition of the 1906 earthquake in northern California is also possible, basing the "guess" on the fact that there have been no earthquakes of great magnitude along the northern part of the San Andreas fault since 1906. A 1957 earthquake in Daly City south of San Francisco was not considered seismologically significant, but the long quiet period could be.

Richter also says there is the possibility of a monster quake along the state's central coast range, connecting sectors which moved in 1857 and 1906; a high earthquake in the Owens Valley equal to the 1872 shock, or a major quake along some other large fault.

Dr. Robert W. Wallace, geologist with the U.S. Geological Survey, has constructed "recurrence curves" based on past performance of the San Andreas fault which suggests that the length of time interval between two successive Richter Scale magnitude-6 quakes somewhere along the fault could be 5 years; the interval for magnitude-8 quakes, 15 years, and earthquakes of magnitude-8, 100 years.

Crisis Told To Black Seniors

RALEIGH (AP)—Graduating seniors at Raleigh's two black institutions of higher education were told Sunday that their alma maters are facing a financial crisis.

"We are experiencing severe financial difficulty," President-elect Dr. J. Archie Hargraves told 225 degree recipients at Shaw University.

"In this time when American philanthropy is raising the question of why the black college, you her graduates must come to her rescue," Dr. Vernon E. Jordan told 207 graduating seniors at St. Augustine's College.

Shaw plans cutbacks in faculty and staff, and most of those remaining on the payroll have pledged to give to the university five per cent of their incomes during the coming year, Dr. Hargraves said.

Both institutions called upon their new graduates and their alumni to come to their rescue with monetary gifts, even if it means making sacrifices.

"The need is for emergency money now, a half million dollars is the amount to be sought immediately," said Dr. Hargraves.

Dr. Jordan urged St. Augustine's graduates to send their alma mater a gift of $100 a year apiece.

"I say to you that your college degree does not mean that you now go for yourself, your family, your security and your success to the exclusion of your brothers and sisters," said Dr. Jordan.

Dr. Hargraves said a possible solution to the cutbacks in programs and departments may be coordination of programs between Shaw University and St. Augustine's College.

Five Motives For Drug Use

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dr. Dale C. Cameron, chief medical officer of the Drug Dependence Unit of the World Health Association (WHO), reports that five important motives probably figure in drug use. As he lists them in WHO's journal, "World Health," they are:

—To escape from something; to have a new, pleasurable or thrilling experience; to achieve improved understanding or insight; to achieve a sense of belonging; to express independence and sometimes hostility.

One Careful Step At A Time

The ECU board of trustees last week took no formal action on the future path to be followed in the development of a medical school here.

We consider this a very proper stance at this crucial point in the efforts of ECU to do something about the critical shortage of physicians in the state, and particularly in the east.

ECU officials want the advice of the governor and other high state officials on how to best proceed in what it is expected will be the development of a full four year School of Medicine.

This is in line with the careful planning that has brought the efforts to begin training of physicians on the ECU campus to this point.

From the beginning, it has been the contention of the ECU planners that a two year School of Medicine would be the best approach to medical training here. An accrediting committee report said that present facilities existing on campus are adequate for beginning such a program. It also found the personnel already retained for carrying on the program to be qualified.

All this came after two North Carolina Legislatures had approved the planning for a two year medical program at ECU.

It was disappointing to ECU officials, when the Higher Board of Education recommended that negotiations get underway for a one year program in cooperation with Chapel Hill; however this was done and it was determined that while a one year program would be costly, it is feasible.

The ECU officials still feel that the two year program is the best approach and the most economical way to achieve the full four year School of Medicine that many responsible observers feel is necessary if medical care is not to collapse in the east. The ECU officials would be remiss in their duties if they did not point this out.

Nevertheless, ECU wants to get on with the program in whatever way is best for North Carolina and certainly the board of trustees should have the thinking of the governor and others before a commitment is made on how to proceed.

The decision on a one-year or a two-year program will be made soon enough. Whichever way it goes it will be attacked by those who have opposed any program at East Carolina to meet the physician crisis. Nevertheless we feel that the final decision will be a sound one because the board of trustees is approaching this step with careful thought.

Legislature Is Near Top: Gill

By EDWIN M. GILL
State Treasurer

(Note: The Citizens Conference on State Legislatures recently ranked North Carolina's legislature 47th among the 50 states. State Treasurer Edwin M. Gill, long-time observer of the legislative process and a former State Representative, comments in the following guest column.)

Judged by any reasonable standards, our General Assembly should be rated at or near the top.

Because there is no Executive Veto, the North Carolina General Assembly is the most independent of all legislative bodies in the United States. History will show that our General Assembly has exercised its powers with moderation and restraint. Its handling of fiscal affairs has been superb. For instance, in this year of recession, our budget is in balance and we actually have a surplus—while some of the States that are ranked high by this study are today in deep financial trouble, their deficits running into many millions of dollars.

I am afraid that those who made this study graded the States by the amount they spent, without reference to fiscal responsibility.

Responsive To People

It would seem that the General Assembly is responsive to and on good terms with the people when a majority of its members are usually reelected. In the 1971 session, there are only 11 (out of 50) Senators and 40 (out of 120) Representatives who are serving for the first time. All the rest, since they ran on their records, were given a vote of confidence at the polls.

The implied suggestions that members of the legislature cannot rely on the material furnished by the Executive Department is certainly without foundation. Actually, the Advisory Budget Commission acts as a sort of "bridge" between the Executive and the Legislative branches. The Governor furnishes a staff to serve the Commission, and two of its members are appointed by the Chief Executive; but four of its members, a majority, are members of the General Assembly.

I also believe that in the matter of integrity of the members of the General Assembly (which is an ingredient of independence), the North Carolina legislature should be rated at the top. Certainly the character of the members of our General Assembly compares most favorably with the three States listed at the top of the study—California, New York, Illinois!

Attorney General Aids
I understand the study downgraded the North Carolina legislature because its legislative services officer had no staff on his payroll for the drafting of bills. The truth is that the Attorney General has two lawyers in residence at the General Assembly to aid in the drafting of bills, and that he has a total staff of 30 members (specialists in various functions of government) who are at the service of the General Assembly.

Our General Assembly also has the help of a very unique institution known as the Institute of Government which is part of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The Institute provides a daily bulletin of legislative activity, and also does research for legislative study commissions, upon request.

Even advocates of the study admit that it does not attempt to appraise the wisdom with which the General Assembly has legislated. In other words, the study is not concerned with the end product, which is the quality of government which has resulted from the work of the legislature. So it would seem that the study is concerned not with fundamentals but with statistics of a trivial nature.

Legislative Innovation
I happen to have been a member of the General Assemblies of 1929 and 1931, and if we view these two sessions together, the result was an incredible amount of innovation. The Industrial Commission was created and the Secret Ballot was sanctioned. We led the country in the enactment of the Local Government Commission, the consolidation of our University, and in the State's assumption of the maintenance of both schools and roads. But you may say this was quite a while ago, and I reply: What about the reorganization of our judicial system, which recently took place, and the establishment and gradual expansion of the technical institute-community college system, consisting of 54 schools, which is now expecting an all-time enrollment of 370,000 students?

Could it be that the Citizens Conference on State Legislatures was unwittingly influenced in placing California first by the fact that one or more of those who made the study had served on the legislative staff in California? California stands at the top in the amount it spends, but it does not necessarily follow that such expenditures would be wise, prudent or reasonable in less wealthy states.

It is my deliberate opinion that this study is of a superficial nature, based upon doubtful criteria. Its standards are oriented towards the metropolitan areas of the nation...and is obviously unfair and misleading in its conclusions insofar as a state like North Carolina is concerned.

For The Poor Or The Violent?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Just what the fierce struggle over the antipoverty legal services program is really about was dramatized last week during the civil disobedience attempt to bring the nation's capital to its knees.

As part of its herculean effort to keep the government functioning, the Washington Metropolitan Police Department arrested thousands of the young foot soldiers used by the New Left extremists in the "Mayday" disturbances. Before many hours had passed, young lawyers from the Federally-financed ($1,125,844 this year) Neighborhood Legal Services of Washington, D. C., were turning up to offer free legal counsel to protesters who had attempted to bring the Federal government to a standstill.

Present law permits such anomalous activity for Neighborhood Legal Services and other local agencies operating under the Office of Economic Opportunity's (OEO) legal services program. But the real question goes to basic policy: should a program intended to help poor people be turned into a legal relief program for political dissenters, mainly middle class, accused of breaking the law?

Here is the nub of the new showdown in Congress between a bipartisan coalition of liberals and the Nixon administration. The Administration bill introduced Wednesday would not only prevent Federal funds from being used in criminal cases (such as the Mayday protest here) but would even bar legal services attorneys from getting involved in their spare time.

The rival liberal bill, sponsored by Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale and Republican Rep. William Steiger of Wisconsin, would even remove the present prohibition against helping defendants in criminal suits after the indictment stage. What's more, it does not clearly retain the present requirement that only the poor qualify for aid. Thus, the way would be open to provide Federal aid to middle-class warriors of the New Left revolution.

Indeed, the legal services fight mirrors the broader battle over poverty fought out since President Nixon took office. The Nixon administration has been bitterly attacked for trying to make OEO an instrument of bread-and-butter help for poor people instead of a generator of revolution, peaceful or otherwise.

Nowhere has this conflict been clearer than in legal services, perhaps the single most successful of OEO programs. Actually, in its non-political aspects, there's very little difference between what the Mondale-Steiger bill and the Administration bill attempt — contrary to scare stories spread around Washington by the radical young lawyers who either dropped out of the legal services program under Mr. Nixon or were fired.

Both bills would end OEO's jurisdiction over legal services and put it in the hands of a quasi-public corporation. Both would permit the filing of class-action suits, designed not merely to help an individual but to reform the law. The vast difference between the two approaches, however, becomes clear in two Colorado legal services incidents.

In 1970, legal services lawyers were found defending Fountain, Colo., high school students charged by school authorities with wearing long hair, though none remotely qualified as being poor. Terry Lenzer, then head of OEO's legal services division but fired last November, sent out a letter reminding the Colorado (Continued on page 5)

No More 'Mr. Good Guy'

WASHINGTON — No matter how hard we try, the press can't do anything right as far as the Nixon Administration is concerned. I am happy to report that the attacks of President Nixon, Spiro Agnew and John Mitchell have not fallen on deaf ears. A sincere group of journalists and TV commentators have formed an Ad Hoc Committee to Make the News More Palatable to the Administration. The first meeting was held last week in the Georgetown basement of a famous cartoonist. "Gentlemen," a syndicated columnist said, "the Administration is fed up with the way the nation's media are reporting the news. It is our duty as Americans to change our ways." "Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone shouted. "Are there any suggestions?" "How about coming out for

Other Editors Say Support Necessary

(Durham Morning Herald)

The 1971 General Assembly has not distinguished itself thus far as a legislature pressing hard to strengthen traffic safety laws, particularly in respect to the leading killers on the highways, drunken driving and speeding.

The Primary reason may well be that the people themselves are not properly aroused, and are not demanding that stiffer legislation be enacted. Col. Edwin Guy, commander of the State Highway Patrol, in effect, said that the other day when he was interviewed.

Noting that the one thing highway safety programs need is to get the message to the people and get them interested and concerned, Col. Guy explained:

"For instance in this General Assembly these people are honorable people and they represent five million people, but I don't see any contingents or delegations of citizens across the state coming down and discussing highway safety matters with their representatives and senators. We need to somehow arouse the people."

Col. Guy and Joseph Garrett, motor vehicles commissioner, would like very much to see traffic safety improvements made, particularly in the areas of drunken driving and speeding. They deserve the active support of the public at large, the people who travel the highways and whose lives are endangered by some drivers who should not be on the highways.

The high percentage of drinking drivers and drunken drivers is well known. Surely it would be in the public interest to legally expand the use of the breathalyzer weapons, including such a step as making refusal to take a test after being charged with drunken driving a separate offense, punishable regardless of court action on the drunken driving charge.

It is not to be overlooked, either, that the breathalyzer is a protective device for the innocent. Also, as Col. Guy has noted, in instances of extremely high readings it alerts troopers to take special precautions for the health of persons arrested. Over-intoxication can be fatal.

This General Assembly has approached the drunken driving problem rather timidly. It should approach it boldly, striking at it as the killer that it is. It should also take a comprehensive look at the speeding problem, the drug problem as it relates to driving, and other problems inimical to traffic safety.

Judge Carswell?" someone said.

"It's too late unless there is a new opening on the Supreme Court," an editorial writer replied.

"What about refusing to report the unemployment figures in the United States?"

"That would please the Administration," a White House correspondent said.

"How about pulling all our correspondents out of Indochina and accepting only the word of the Pentagon briefers?"

"It's a step in the right direction," a TV correspondent agreed.

"It isn't enough," a columnist said. "This Administration deserves more than a few bones."

"I've got it," suggested a reporter. "Suppose we agree every week to turn over all our notebooks and films and radio tapes to the Justice Department?"

An editor said, "John Mitchell would like that."

"And suppose we make an agreement not to report any news from Red China without clearing it with Spiro Agnew?" (Continued on page 5)

Travel Reduces Women

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — She may head a corporation, drive a truck and drink at McSorley's. But when a liberated woman travels with her husband, she might as well be back in bloomers.

From the time the planning begins until the day the trip is just a memory, the little woman is treated as a mere appendage of her husband—kind of like an extra piece of luggage.

Try buying airline tickets, for example.

Husband and wife walk into the airline office. "We'd like to go to London," he says.

The clerk obediently finds out the details of what day and which flight, checks the space available, then asks the husband his name. The second ticket is automatically made out to "Mrs." and then handed to the man.

Checking in at the airport is another ego-shattering experience.

Airline and customs officials alike talk only to the man, ignoring the woman who stands there staggering under a load of hand baggage she's been given to carry while her husband copes with the important things.

Amid a chorus of "Yes sir," "no sir" and "Of course sir," the couple's tickets are collected and they're herded through customs.

Husband submits both passports for inspection. No one looks at the wife's. If she has her own passport at all, that is. The Customs Bureau allows wives to be listed on husband's passports, along with minor children.

The wife's only moment of glory comes during the anti-jack search. It's the man, of course, who is asked what the luggage contains—aerosol cans, large knives and the like—but the woman is recognized long enough for a personal search by the matron.

Arriving in Europe, there are further snubs ahead.

"How long are you planning to stay, sir? And what is your occupation, sir. Have a nice visit, sir."

Most customs officials apparently care not at all how long the woman plans to stay, what she does for a living and whether she enjoys herself on vacation.

The husband's passport is carefully inspected, his name and picture checked and the proper page stamped. The inspection of the wife's passport consists of a cursory search for an empty page. Does she look like her passport picture? Is it, in fact, even her passport? No matter.

The story is the same at the hotel. The man registers, giving his name, passport number and signature. The wife who foolishly asks, "Would you like me to sign too?" is given a frosty stare and told, "That won't be necessary Madam."

The wife briefly resumes her identity again on the journey home. Checking in for the return flight, an airline official asserts: "Your baggage is overweight Madam."

Strength For Today

SONG

Grand Opera still keeps going. Grand Opera "fans" go back year after year to listen with rapture to music they have heard for many decades. Some of us remember the great Caruso who would hit high "C", hold it for a full minute and then increase volume until he shook the rafters of the theatre.

Some people like the new (non-melodic) type of music. Others like the old favorites. It is said that when Wagner's operas were first performed, people rushed from the theatre holding their ears. The Bible tells us that when Jesus and his Disciples had sung a hymn they went out into the Mount Olives (Matthew 26:30). What would that hymn song like to us today? We should like to know but we probably never will.

But with all the evil, nonsense and tragedy we have to confront, the world keeps singing. And it should. A few birds are said to sing, but of course they do not sing in the way humans sing. Armies have been moved to action and victory through the inspiration of song. Youngsters learn to sing early in life, and they should be taught and encouraged to do so. The Star-Spangled Banner in our own country and God Save the Queen in England still stir the hearts of millions and make the world a better place in which to live.

There are some people who would like to stop our mouths to singing. Should we send them to jail or to the insane asylum?

Economic Outlook Still Unsure

By ELMER ROESSNER

Answers to the question as to whether the United States is pulling out of the recession are still confused. While the stock market, housing and some samplings of consumer attitudes on spending are suggesting business is recovering, there are other less encouraging factors.

As the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank said in its Business Conditions report, "The business slowdown that began in the third quarter of 1969 is responding stubbornly to corrective action. Although recovery is undoubtedly under way, the current revival is the most sluggish since World War II."

It pointed out that the strongest sectors of the economy earlier this year were housing, automobiles and steel. The housing boom is a forward thrust and can carry sales of furniture, furnishings and appliances along with it. It is a catch-up from 1969 and 1970; when high interest rates, intended to dampen inflation, dampened home building. And the sales of automobiles is a catch-up of sales not made because of the General Motors strike.

ELMER ROESSNER

And the steel boom is a catch-up in advance of the probable steel strike in August.

Disquieting Signs
Meanwhile, machine tool orders, usually a solid advance indicator of the industrial future, were at the lowest level in the first quarter of this year than any quarter since the third quarter of 1960.
There have been a number of plant closings and a few more layoffs in recent weeks. Unemployment appears to be letting up, as it does this season every year, but it will dip again in June when thousands of graduates are poured into the labor market and thousands of other undergrads seek summer jobs.

Sidney Homer, partner in the Salmon Brothers investment firm, told the Metropolitan Economic Association in New York that, "As long as international tensions are unrelaxed and as long as our social and political dissonances are unresolved and our inflation-unemployment dilemma is unresolved, we cannot comfortably finance a revival of fast growth and business optimism."

Optimistic View
Bache & Co., the big brokerage house, in its May letter, says, "At long last the economic recovery is clearly under way. Not surprisingly, the stock market recovery began long before the general business conditions began to improve. Thus we have once again seen the stock market behave in its normal manner: anticipating rather than merely reflecting economic events."

Meanwhile, it appears that chemists and chemical engineers, once the prize of personnel recruiters, will be a drug on the market this summer and the drug isn't aspirin. The American Chemical Society reports that with June graduates there will be 22,000 looking for employment, about twice the number of new positions open.

And the demonstration in Washington this week must have cost the demonstrators many millions of dollars in costs of travel to Washington, food and pot, fines and other expenses. There must be a lot of money in the economy for optional spending after all.

Bundy Saw Busy, Pleasant Week

By SAM D. BUNDY
The House passed several bills last week notably among which was the passage of a bill ratifying a constitutional amendment to provide for the 18 year old vote.
This resolution is now in the Senate and if passed there, will make North Carolina approximately the 24th state to ratify this constitutional amendment. It needs the ratification of 38 state legislatures to become effective. It is the hope that such number will be attained so that a special election in North Carolina will not have to be held in 1971.
It is interesting to note that both the House and Senate committees have killed in committee the idea of annual sessions of the General Assembly, therefore, this idea is laid to rest until 1973.

On Monday night I remained in Farmville to attend the annual banquet meeting of the Farmville Economic Council

Busy Week For Governor

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott faces a full schedule this week, with appearances in his home county of Alamance on two different days for events marking the 200th anniversary of the pre-Revolutionary War Battle of Alamance.

Scott was to attend a meeting of the Coastal Plains Regional Commission in Raleigh today. On Tuesday he is scheduled to speak to the Sir Walter Cabinet in Raleigh (composed of wives of legislators and state officials) and will speak at the Alexander Wilson School near Graham at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

He goes to Burlington Wednesday to ride in a Battle of Alamance parade and will speak the following Sunday at the battle site.

On Thursday he goes to Charlotte to speak at an annual statewide safety conference at 10 a.m. At 3 p.m. he will be in Shelby to speak at the dedication of the Cleveland County Public Library, and at 7 p.m. he will speak at a Victory Dinner at Gardner Webb College of Boiling Springs.

On Friday and Saturday, Scott will be in Boca Raton, Fla., attending the annual meeting of the Southern Regional Education Board.

Canary Is Gift For First Lady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Nixon has a new canary named "Sunny," a Mother's Day gift to the First Lady from the President and their two daughters, Tricia and Julie.

"So far we've heard it sing four different numbers," Tricia said of the golden bird after it was given to Mrs. Nixon. The President and his family observed Mother's Day with worship services in the East Room also attended by some 300 invited guests, including members of the Supreme Court, the Cabinet, administration officials and diplomats.

Heath's Yacht Wins Opener

SOUTHSEA, England (AP) — The yacht Morning Cloud, owned and skippered by Prime Minister Edward Heath, has won the first major event of England's ocean racing season, the Seine Bay race.

With a crew of seven, Heath took the Morning Cloud over the cross-Channel course to the Le Havre lightship and back in slightly more than 33 hours.

The PM's yacht won over-all first prize on handicap and took first prize for yachts under 33 feet in length in the race completed Sunday.

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone shouted.

A woman reporter said, "What about putting an embargo on all news about anti-Vietnam demonstrations?"

"Or demonstrations of any kind?" someone else said.

"We could do it if we put our hearts in it," the cartoonist said.

"These are all good suggestions," the editorial writer said. "But we owe this Administration more than just suppressing bad news. We have to print the good news about what President Nixon is doing."

"Huzzah! Huzzah" everyone cried.

"Let's hear a few suggestions."

There was dead silence in the room.

The woman reporter finally said, "Nixon's marrying off his daughter to a very nice young man."

"He kept Henry Kissinger from being kidnaped," someone else added.

"He got Congress to vote on the SST"

"He made Spiro Agnew into a household word."

"He brought Martha Mitchell to Washington."

"He made everything perfectly clear."

"That's enough to start with," the syndicated columnist said. "We're all agreed then that we're going to lay off the Nixon Administration until after the election."

"Huzzah! Huzzah!" everyone cried.

Unfortunately, at that moment 100 federal marshals, who had been tipped off by an FBI informer, crashed into the basement and arrested everyone for conspiring to overthrow the United States government.

"That does it," said an editor as he was put into a paddy wagon. "No more Mister Good Guy."

office that such work must be done on the lawyers' own time but encouraging them to seek out just such civil libertarian causes.

With Lenzer gone, a different approach was taken a few weeks ago when a lawyer from a different legal services office was found defending a Grand Junction, Colo., student on school suspension charges and, using official stationery, asking the youth to help distribute draft-evasion literature. This time, OEO sent out a stiff letter of reprimand.

Indeed, the Nixon OEO has been waging a cold war against such practices: a Florida office defending a high school student criminally charged with wearing the American flag on the seat of his pants; the New Orleans office representing Black Panthers; lawyers from a Los Angeles County office helping a defendant in a Weatherman bombing case.

Whatever the merits of such cases, the position of OEO Director Frank Cariucci (and before him, Donald Rumsfeld) has been that a program designed to help the poor has no business in New Left politics. That, in essence, is what Congress is being asked to approve or disapprove in the legislative battle over legal services now beginning.

his good "Soul Food" supper. It was a most enjoyable event and Arthur Tripp and his wife are what I would term as "perfect hosts."

On Tuesday a group of 60 pupils from the Sam D. Bundy School and the Farmville Junior High School sang on the Capitol Square from 12:00 to 1:00 P. M. Before the program I gave them a 30 minute tour of the Legislative Building and after the program, I had lunch with the group at the K & W Cafeteria in North Hills. It was good to have this fine group of young people to represent our town in such a splendid manner. It was especially nice to eat and talk with my former teachers, Mrs. Hazel Bass, Mrs. Joyce Hillard, and Mrs. Margaret Morgan. The groups' director, Mr. Junior Nichols, also had his mother with the group.

On Wednesday sixty members of the fourth grade of the Bethel Elementary School visited Raleigh and it was my privilege to conduct this fine group on a tour of the Legislative Building and to get them seats in the galleries for the opening of the House session and to have them recognized by Speaker Philip Godwin. They were in the charge of their teachers, Mrs. Staley and Mrs. Weeks.

This week Chip Venters and Norman Pittman from Farmville High School served as page and pagette in the House, and on Wednesday evening Mrs. Bundy and I had then as our guests for dinner.

There were two joint sessions of the House and Senate during the week. On Tuesday, Governor Scott outlined his plans for reorganization of our state agencies and on Thursday, Vice President Spiro Agnew addressed the joint session and talked on revenue sharing. All in all it has been a busy and enjoyable week.

George C. Scott Adds Emmy To Movie's Oscar

EMMY AWARDS — Actor Jack Cassidy holds the Emmy Award he accepted for actor George C. Scott; actress Lee Grant holds the Emmy she won for best single performance of an actress in a leading role. (AP Wirephoto)

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) —

George C. Scott, who rejected a movie Oscar for "Patton," has won a television Emmy for "The Price." A friend says

His Beetle Can Now Fly

SANTO ANGELO, Brazil (AP) — Custom car enthusiasts always are making far-out modifications on Volkswagens. But they'll really have to come up with something to top the feat of Ludwig Michel, a German-Brazilian mechanic.

Michel, 54, built and flew an airplane powered by a 29-horsepower "Beetle" engine.

"I got tired of waiting in line every weekend just to take a short spin," said Michel, who until recently had to do all his flying at the local air club.

Receiving a 1,200-cc. VW engine as a gift, Michel spent an additional $300 on pine boards, sheet steel, steel tubing and cloth and built the "Michel 1." It took him 2½ years.

His flight record is 31 minutes, and the highest he has flown is about 650 feet.

A native of Wetzlar, Germany, Michel came to Brazil in 1941. He settled in Rio Grande do Sul state, where many German immigrants live.

He got his Brazilian amateur pilot's license in 1958.

Scott accepts the honor for best single performance by an actor.

"Oh, my God, it's George C. Scott!" Suzanne Pleshette cried as she opened the envelope at Sunday night's 23rd Television Academy Emmy Awards, echoing Goldie Hawn's announcement of best-actor honors at the recent movie Academy Awards.

Scott's actor friend Jack Cassidy came to the stage and said: "If he were here he'd say a simple single 'thank you.'"

Backstage, Cassidy said of Scott, who is making a film in New York: "The mere fact that he asked me to accept—that in itself is an acceptance."

Scott had criticized the Oscar presentations as "a two-hour meat parade" and the voting as encouraging undesirable competition among actors. Backers of Oscar nominees often ballyhoo their candidate in trade paper advertising.

Cassidy told newsmen Scott apparently approves of the Emmy because "there's a different structure to the voting."

Instead of Academy-wide voting for Oscar, the Television Academy awards are decided by an anonymous "blue-ribbon" panel of actors, film editors and other professionals.

In "The Price," from Arthur Miller's stage play, Scott played a New York policeman clashing in a taut drama with his brother, played by Barry Sullivan, over their past treatment of their father.

Scott was nominated for Emmys three times before but never won.

"The Price," shown Feb. 3 on NBC, also won Emmys for a supporting performance, David Burns, and direction, Fielder Cook.

Chosen the outstanding single program of the year ended March 16 was "The Andersonville Trial" on the Public Broadcasting Service. The Hollywood Television Theater drama was about the heartless commander of the Confederate prison camp where many Union soldiers died.

Scott directed the TV play, and Cassidy had a leading role, for which he received an Emmy nomination, losing to Scott.

Lee Grant was honored among actresses in leading roles for her performance in the "The Neon Ceiling" on NBC's "World Premiere" last Feb. 6.

Miss Grant was nominated also for "Ransom for a Dead Man" on "World Premier." Colleen Dewhurst—Scott's wife—was nominated for her performance in "The Price."

The canceled "The Senator" segments of NBC's "The Bold Ones" series won five Emmys, including that for outstanding dramatic series. Hal Holbrook won for portraying the senator.

Other awards included: Four to the Mary Tyler Moore show, including Edward Asner and Valerie Harper for their supporting performances and two for writing.

Three to "All in the Family," CBS' comedy about bigotry, as outstanding new series, outstanding comedy series and to Jean Stapleton as its leading actress.

Margaret Leighton as supporting actress in "Hamlet."

Jack Klugman as costar of Tony Randall in "The Odd Couple."

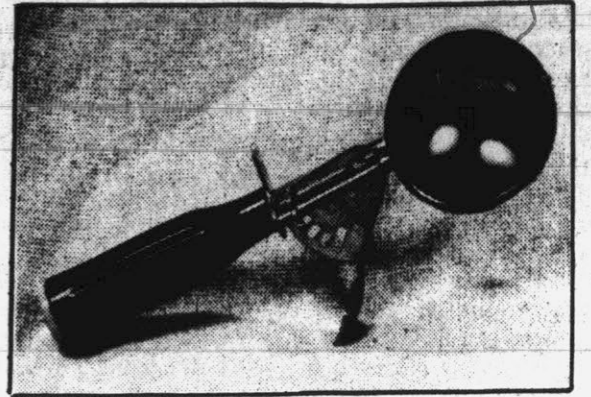

The "Flip Wilson Show" as outstanding variety series. The Burt Bacharach Special shown last March 14 as outstanding variety or musical single program.

"The David Frost Show" as outstanding talk series—a new category. He won last year in a variety show category.

An award from trustees of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences went to Ed Sullivan, an academy founder, for "showmanship, taste and personal commitment to entertaining the nation for 23 years." followed by CBS 25, ABC 10, and Public Broadcasting 9. One syndicated program, David Frost, was a winner.

Of the 80 Emmys awarded, NBC led the networks with 35.

Too Many Categories Mar The Emmy Awards

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It took two solid hours to hand out a total of 30 Emmys Sunday night. The producers of the annual viewers' marathon, this year on NBC, cut the extraneous entertainment to a minimum, but nobody could do much about twin problems: Too many categories and thank-you speeches that went on and on.

None could quibble about the way the awards went.

Public Broadcasting's "Andersonville Trial," voted best dramatic program, was indeed a fine production. The stimulating "Senator" segment—cancelled after one season—of NBC's "The Bold Ones" led the drama sector with four Emmys, including one as the outstanding dramatic series.

CBS's amusing "Mary Tyler Moore" show romped off with the most honors—four—in the comedy area. "The Price," an adaptation of Arthur Miller's play, gave George C. Scott another acting award among the three voted the NBC drama special.

Johnny Carson worked smoothly and with hard, sharp wit as host. Most of the time, the production of the live show was smooth. Even so, among the three Big TV awards shows—Broadway's Tony, movie's Oscar and TV's Emmy, the broadcasting industry's annual big moment still runs a poor third as a television entertainment.

Although each episode of a television series has a name, most viewers think of a series as a sort of continued story. This year, in an effort to nail down the identity of certain programs up for honors, short clips from each were shown as names of nominations were read off. All this did was confuse both viewers and, often, performers on stage reading the nominations.

There were a few stabs at between-the-awards diversion. Best received was a medley of program theme songs and music from commercials sung by the Goldiggers. They ranged from "Howdy Doody's" entrance music to the staccato theme of "Mission: Impossible."

There was also a capsule film history of TV, at its most interesting showing such pioneers as Arthur Godfrey, Ed Sullivan, and Edward R. Murrow.

Sullivan, incidentally, received a special Emmy from the trustees of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences

Convicted Killer Is Free On Bail

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A gambling house helper has posted bail and is free a day after his conviction of second-degree murder in the death of a Mecklenburg County policeman.

Howard Mack Miller was sentenced to 27 years in prison by Superior Court Judge William K. McLean. The sentence will be appealed to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

He testified during the week-long trial he had shot Patrolman Ronnie McGraw during a raid on a gambling establishment because he thought police barging in were robbers after a poker pot.

Stock And Market Reports

By CAROLE MARTIN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The international currency crisis continued to press stock market prices downward today. Trading was moderate.

The 11 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 5.76 at 931.21.

Declines outnumbered advances by more than 2 to 1 among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said investors were exercising caution because of the international monetary situation.

Some analysts said they believed the principal impact of the monetary crisis on Wall Street would be on interest rates. They noted that the market had been fed on lower interest rates and increased money supply and said a reversal of that situation could weigh heavily on the market.

Among stocks with sizable price fluctuations were Southern Railways, off 2 at 73; General Motors, down 1 1/2 to 86; World Airways, off 1 1/2 at 13; Northwest Industries, up 1 1/2 to 26 1/2; Bausch & Lomb, down 1 1/2 at 133 1/2.

went into the business world, and helped to bring him to his present position. "This has all showed through in business," he said. "Harrington was one of the first to add diversification to his company, and has been recognized by the State of California as one of the outstanding men in the field of tobacco."

May also added that Harrington had not lost his humility. "He's the same man he was years ago. He is the same talking to a farmer in the field as he is talking to the president of the United States."

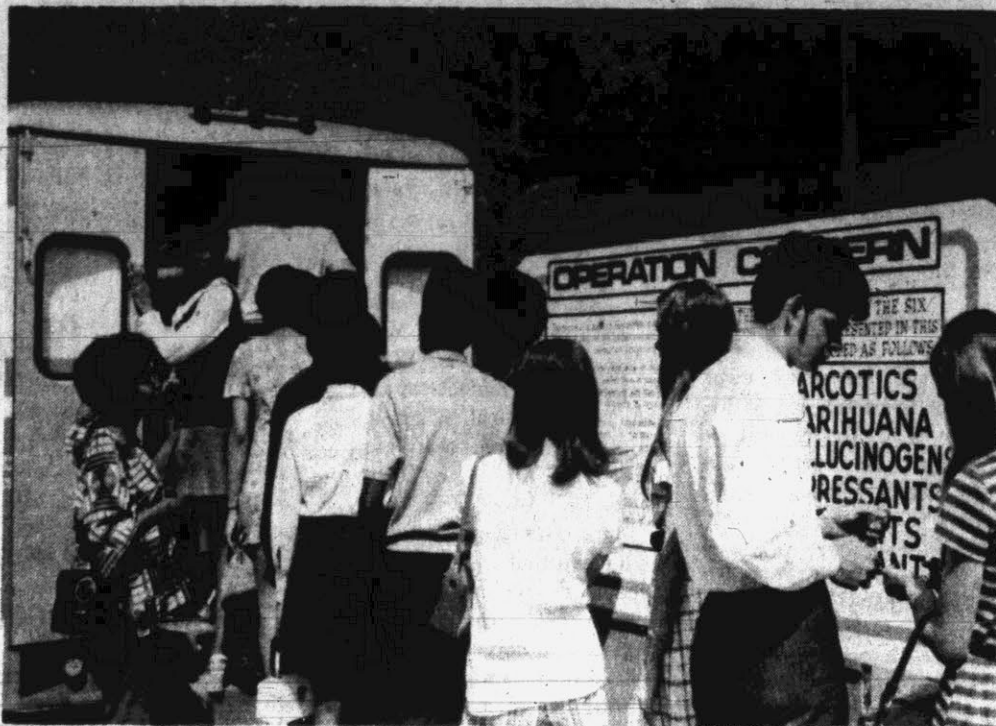

At the conclusion of the indoor ceremonies, a portrait of Harrington was unveiled by one of his granddaughters, Barbara Jean Harrington.

Brief ceremonies were then held on the field, with Harrington tossing out the first ball of the day.

"I am humbly proud and deeply grateful for this honor," he told the crowd attending the game. "And I want to thank every one of my dear friends who made an effort to come here for this."

And Harrington couldn't have been too disappointed in the outcome of the game that followed. East Carolina beat his alma mater, 10-4, but it was on "his" field.

SBI Exhibit Shown Students

Students of Rose High School Friday had an opportunity to see at first hand an exhibit on drugs and drug abuses. Between 9:00 a. m. and noon, the State Bureau of Investigation (SBI) mobile van with an exhibit entitled "Operation Concern" was visited by the senior high students on the school grounds. Classroom teachers conducted their individual classes to the van at scheduled times, where Special Agent Roy Brown was on hand to explain the exhibits.

Principal Robert Allgood commented, "This exhibit is one of many things in drug abuse education that we found worthwhile to bring to the attention of students." Allgood stated it is one of several means that have been taken to furnish students an insight into the dangers of drugs and drug abuses. "We try to bring anything of this nature to their attention," Allgood said.

Final Event For Series

The final program for the school year in the "Music in the Library" series will be held Tuesday, at 4:00 p. m. in the Children's Room of the library.

Mrs. Margaret Reid, Children's Librarian, revealed that tomorrow the performance will be by members of the East Carolina University Jazz Ensemble, under the direction of Joe Hambrick.

"We are very grateful for the fine cooperation and interest shown by the ECU School of Music and to Eugene Isabelle," Mrs. Reid said. "We have also been quite pleased with our patrons' enthusiastic response."

The monthly series, which under Isabelle's planning, has included a variety of music representing a broad spectrum of styles and periods, has proven popular with the children. One of the things about the programs which have fascinated the children have been the demonstration of individual instruments by the participants prior to playing the music chosen for each program.

Workshop On Drugs Slated

A jointly sponsored workshop program for teachers and interested parents on drugs and drug abuses, and ways in which parents can deal more effectively with the problem, is being conducted Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the E. B. Aycock Junior High School.

The panel for the workshop will feature four spokesmen — Dr. Bill Bethune, staff psychiatrist at the Cherry Hospital in Kinston; Dr. Dick Douglas, representing the Pitt County Medical Association; Dr. Paul Erickman; and Dallas McPherson, representing the Young Lawyers Section of the N. C. Bar Association.

Sponsors include the Greenville P.T.A. Council, represented by John H. Taylor; the Greenville Jaycees, Kelly Barhill, Jr., and the Young Lawyers Section of the N. C. Bar Association, James Cheatham, III.

Members of the panel will concentrate on the legal and medical facts connected with drugs and drug abuses. McPherson noted this particular type program, is based on a similar program initiated by the Orlando, Florida Young Lawyers Section of the Florida Bar Association. He commented that this particular approach had been effect in many areas.

The Tuesday night workshop meeting is to be held in the Library of Aycock Junior High.

The University of North Carolina is the oldest state-supported university in the nation.

Three Items

Only three agenda items are on schedule for the May meeting of the Greenville Recreation Commission tonight at 8:00 p. m. at the Elm Street Recreation Center.

The first to be considered is approval of attorney's fees for the Hardee property, the land recently acquired by the city adjacent to Eastern Elementary School. Also to be discussed are plans for a Summer Childrens Theater and the appointment of a nominating committee.

Bucs Power To 10-4 Win Over Duke

No 21-Gun Salute, But 14 Cracks By ECU Bats

FOUR OF THE PRINCIPALS in yesterday's dedication of Harrington Field grab a bat prior to the game between East Carolina and Duke. By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The dedication of Harrington Field was held yesterday on the campus of East Carolina University, and instead of a 21-gun salute, the Pirates came up with 14 cracks of the bat. The last of these was a grand slam home run by Mike Aldridge that helped to power the Pirates to a 10-4 victory over the Duke Blue Devils, a team that had earlier beaten them this year. And, Coach Earl Smith is hoping that the dedication will be the signal that will start the Pirates on a new era of baseball at the university.

Saturday afternoon, the Pirates dropped the first game of a double-header to Furman University. The loss insured the Pirates of their first losing season in 37 years. Now, Smith and Pirate fans are looking forward to breaking that record, say about 2008 A.D. And the dedication may be the start of that new skein. Duke, however, drew first blood in the match, scoring a run in the second inning. Both teams went down in the first inning without a threat, but Steve Setteducato led off the second with a triple to the fence in right field. Jim Thompson grounded out to second, but it was enough to bring in Setteducato with the go-ahead run. Ralph Palaia walked after that and took second on a wild pitch, but advanced no further. The Pirates charged back and took the lead in the bottom of the third, although it looked like Duke might get out of the jam before it was over. Ron Hastings walked and Mike Bradshaw singled to left. Hastings, however, was cut down trying to steal third and the next batter popped up. Aldridge singled, putting two on. Larry Walters hit a roller between first and second, and Duke's first sacker, Dan Phelan made a fine play on the ball to stop it, but threw off balance and wildly toward first. Walters had already beaten it out for a hit, but the error allowed Bradshaw to come around and score, tying it up. Gus Roberson followed with a single to right, scoring Aldridge. Stan Sneed followed with a walk, loading the bases, but the Bucs could score no more and settled for a 2-1 lead. The Bucs threatened again in the fourth, putting two on, but without avail. Then, in the fifth, Duke came up with another run, tying it again, 2-2. Palaia led off with a single and was sacrificed to second. Bo Bochow singled to center, driving him across and knotting it up. Both teams put up threats in the sixth, with Duke advancing men as far as third, and the Pirates, as far as second. But in the bottom of the seventh, the Pirates exploded and when the dust had settled, it was all over except for one last Duke gasp. Aldridge led off with a walk, and Walters cracked his first homer of the year, a 350-foot blast to right, pushing the Pirates back into a 4-2 lead. Then, with two outs, the Bucs really went to work. Dick Corrada got his third hit of the day, a blast into right. Ralph Lamm followed with a single to left, and Hastings compromised with a blow through the middle, scoring Corrada. Bradshaw followed with his third hit, scoring Lamm, and Matt Walker walked, loading the bases. That brought up Aldridge, and he cleared the sacks with his sixth homer, and first grand slam, of the year. The blast traveled over the left field wall some 350 feet from the plate and rushed the Pirate lead out to 10-2. Duke made one last effort, picking up two in the eighth. Doug Stoehr walked and with one out, Phelan cracked a 370-footer over the wall in right for a two-run count. Duke put two more on via

Three Doubleheaders Will Close Baseball Race In Southern Conf.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
As unreal as it may seem, the Southern Conference baseball race will wind up Saturday with three doubleheaders with at least four—and possibly five—of the seven teams still in the running for the title. Whether the number will be four or five depends on the outcome of a Tuesday twin bill in which Davidson's Wildcats play host to Furman's Paladins. Davidson must win both games to remain in contention. Only East Carolina's defending champion Pirates, 5-8, and Virginia Military's Keydets, 1-15 have been eliminated from any title chance. A 2-0, 4-0 sweep of Davidson pushed The Citadel's Bulldogs into the No. 1 spot Saturday at 10-4, followed by Richmond's Spiders at 9-4, Furman at 8-4, William and Mary's Indians at 8-6 and Davidson at 6-6. A 9-7 defeat in the 10-inning second game at East Carolina prevented Furman, which had won the opener 3-2, from retaining first place. A scheduled Richmond - at - William and Mary doubleheader was rained out. Richmond has a Tuesday date at East Carolina that will, along with the Furman-Davidson twin bill, set the stage for Saturday's three doubleheaders in which the Spiders will be at William and Mary, East Carolina at Davidson and The Citadel at Furman. A six-hitter in the opener by Doug Pounder and a one-hitter in the nightcap by Steve Arrington gave The Citadel its shutout sweep Saturday night over Davidson. The games had been scheduled for the afternoon but were postponed by rain. Joe Davis' sacrifice fly drove in the Bulldogs' first run in the opener. Three walks set up two first-inning runs for The Citadel in the second game, and Arrington had a no-hitter until Harold Wilkerson singled with one out in the seventh. A four-hitter by John Katona gave Furman its opening game triumph at East Carolina, but the Pirates overcame a four-run deficit in the nightcap and eventually won it on Matt Walker's two-run homer in the 10th. The Pirates upped their overall record to 11-17 Sunday with a 10-4 romp over Duke of the Atlantic Coast Conference, scoring eight runs in the eighth inning. Larry Walters hit a two-run homer and Mike Aldridge a grand slam for East Carolina in the big frame.

Deacs Lead ACC Golf Tournament

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — Wake Forest holds a 16-stroke lead, and Deacon senior Mike Kallam a two-stroke margin, as the final two rounds of the 73-hole Atlantic Coast Conference Golf Tournament opened today. Kallam shot a 140 in the opening two rounds at Midland Valley Country Club in Aiken, S.C. Bill Mallon of Duke was runnerup at 141, while Wake Forest's Larry Wadkins was third at 142. The five-man Wake Forest squad recorded a 716 in the opening 36 holes. Maryland is second at 732, North Carolina third at 736 and Duke is another stroke back. Wake Forest's Jim Simons and Eddie Pearce, Maryland's Bill Calfee and Virginia's Britt Stenson are in a four-way fourth place tie for individual honors at 143. The third 18 holes will be played today at the Woodmont Country Club, with the final 18 set for Tuesday.

Looks Like End For Benvenuti

ROME (AP) — Nino Benvenuti, who once vowed to quit boxing at the age of 30, now apparently will hand up his gloves at 33 after 10 years as a pro. "After so many years, this looks like the end for me," Benvenuti said late Sunday night on his return from Monte Carlo, where he failed to regain the world middleweight championship from Carlos Monzon of Argentina Saturday night. This fell short of a formal retirement statement, but few believe the Italian from Trieste who gained fame and fortune in the ring, will fight again. He has lost four of his last five bouts. Nino, showing almost nothing.

of his one-time agility and power, was stopped in the third round by Monzon after being floored for the second time. The referee, Victor Avendano of Argentina, stopped it at 1:05 of the third when Benvenuti's manager, Bruno Amaduzzi, threw a towel into the ring. Monzon reportedly has been offered $100,000 to defend his title in New York against another former middleweight champion, Emile Griffith. It was from Griffith that Benvenuti won the title in 1966, lost it in a rematch in 1967 and regained it once more in a third match in 1968. Nino held the crown until last November when he was knocked out in the 12th round by Monzon.

WILLIAMSTON — Robersonville High School waited until the top of the 11th inning to score, but when they did, the Golden Eagles put down Albemarle Conference leader Williamston, 5-0. The game was a scoreless deadlock until the 11th inning when the Eagles got all their runs. And they came after two men were out.

Ed Warren led off with a walk and Glenn Forbes sacrificed him to second. Lang Hardison singled and that scored Warren with the first run of the game. Loyal Corey then singled to score Hardison.

An error advanced Corey, and Summey Mobley walked. Everett Jackson reached on an error, and that scored Corey. A wild pitch let Mobley in, and Brown reached on another miscue, scoring Jackson with the fifth run.

Williamston hosts Gates on Tuesday.

Welcome Appalachian State U. To Southern Conf. Competition

The entrance of Appalachian State University into the Southern Conference over the weekend met with varied, but generally favorable comment from East Carolina officials and coaches.

But as yet, the Mountaineers have not yet been scheduled for any activities with the Pirates in the three major sports.

"We've been competing with them in the so-called 'minor' sports for some time," Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich said. "We've met them in golf, tennis, wrestling, track and the like, and we will continue to do so now."

Stasavich welcomed the school into the conference as a "sister institution."

"I'm pleased that the report made on their application for admission justified the conference approving them for admission," he said. "They have a full sports program, and they have good financial support for it. They also have good facilities, too. They are particularly strong in the 'minors' having fielded outstanding teams in wrestling and other sports.

"I feel sure they will work to

The Flag Is For Parsons

SOUTH BOSTON, Va. (AP) — It took 60 races before Benny Parsons finally won one on the NASCAR Grand National stock car circuit.

The veteran Ellerbe, N.C., driver took the checkered flag for the first time Sunday, finishing a lap ahead of Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., in the Halifax County 100 at South Boston Speedway.

Parsons, driving a 1970 Ford, averaged 72.043 miles per hour for the 100-mile event, for which he had started in the outside pole position. The victory earned him $1,500 of the $8,000 purse.

Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., started on the inside pole after setting a track qualifying record of 81.548 m.p.h. and was in front by almost a lap when his engine blew on the 247th lap. Parsons went in front and led the rest of the way.

Spring Hope Tops Locals

Greenville's semi-pro baseball team dropped its fourth straight game without a victory yesterday, falling to Spring Hope, 4-1.

The game was a scoreless deadlock until the sixth inning when Spring Hope finally pushed over two runs. Rose singled to left and moved up on Proctor's single. Proctor stole second, and Rose came home with the first run of the day on an error on the catcher.

A sacrifice then brought in Proctor with what proved to be the winning run.

In the eighth, Spring Hope added its final two runs. Proctor reached on an error and stole second. He scored on Pace's double. Bunn then doubled to drive in Pace for a 4-0 lead.

The lone Greenville run scored in the ninth inning. Ken Beaman reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on Grant Jarman's single. Charles Meeks then singled in Beaman with the only run.

Greenville got only four hits off the Spring Hope pitcher, Proctor.

Greenville travels to Speed for a double-header this Sunday.

 The Cincinnati Reds are turning out to be sitting ducks for the rest of the National League, but they've always been clay pigeons ... for San Diego's Clay Kirby.

The Padres' right-hander, in this third major league season, has won only 18 games while losing 39. But he continued his success story against the Reds Sunday with a 7-2 victory, including a club record-tying 12 strikeouts.

That gave the 22-year-old hurler a 7-4 lifetime log against the defending NL champs, making them the only team over which he holds a career edge.

In other action, the New York Mets mastered St. Louis 9-5, Pittsburgh exploded for eight runs in the eighth inning and ripped Los Angeles 11-5, San Francisco downed Atlanta 5-2 before losing the doubleheader nightcap 6-5 in 10 innings, Montreal trimmed the Chicago Cubs 7-3 and Philadelphia edged Houston 2-1.

American League scores: Oakland swept Baltimore 6-2 and 2-1, Milwaukee checked Boston 6-1, Kansas City took Detroit 6-2, Minnesota nipped Washington 6-5 in 10 innings, Cleveland turned back California 4-1 and the New York Yankees trounced the Chicago White Sox 6-1.

Despite their lack of success against the rest of the league, the Padres generally make things tough for the Reds. They trail the Big Red Machine by a mere 19-23, by far the best they've done against any of the established clubs. The Padres rocked Jim McGlothlin for six runs in the first inning, featuring solo homers by Dave Campbell and Bob Barton and a three-run triple by Ed Spiezo. Campbell homered again in the seventh.

It wasn't all smooth sailing for Kirby. He allowed nine hits, walked four and had to pitch out of trouble several times. But he had it when it counted, as he usually does against the Reds.

The Mets continued their domination of the Cardinals as

Terrell Will Fight Tonight

CHICAGO (AP) — Former World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Ernie Terrell will square off tonight against Luis Faustino Pires in a ten-rounder at Chicago's International Amphitheater.

The bout is part of a closed-circuit heavyweight tripleheader which will have George Chuvalo facing former WBA champion Jimmy Ellis in Montreal and George Foreman, ranked No. 1 in the list of contenders for Joe Frazier's title, meeting Gregorio Feralta of Argentina in Oakland, Calif.

Terrell, 32, goes into tonight's slugfest with a record of 41 wins and seven defeats. In his last fight, Terrell knocked out Johnny Hudgins in the first round at the Lake Geneva, Wis., Playboy Club in April.

Pires, also 32, has posted 16 victories in his professional career, against six losses, five by knockouts.

However, Pires' manager, Abraham Katzenelson, says all five were technical knockouts and the result of cuts. He insists the Brazilian bruiser has not yet been knocked off his feet.

Appalachian this fall in basketball.

Tom Quinn, head basketball coach said that he was familiar with the Appalachian program, having played them for a number of years while coaching in the Carolina Conference.

"I'm happy to see an eighth team in the conference, basically for the tournament. They will, as their program grows, definitely add to the conference. They have outstanding basketball facilities, and it will mean two more games for us without a long trip in the future," he said.

Quinn added that he did not know if ECU would schedule Appalachian this coming fall.

Earl Smith, head baseball coach, said that he thought the new school would help the conference. He noted that probably the conference would return to split division after next season, with four in each division as in the past.

Sonny Randle, head football coach, said he had no comment on Appalachian's entry into the conference.

Just Anybody?

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dr. Otis Stephens Jr. scored a hole-in-one during the weekend on the 130-yard sixth hole of the Colonial Golf Club course.

"It's fantastic, I mean it's just unreal," said club professional Bill Faddis. "It just goes to show anybody can get a hole-in-one," said Stephens, not nearly as excited. But then, he didn't see it.

He's totally blind.

Seeking Potential Adoptive Families

Couples who are interested in considering adoption of a child or children with a special need are invited to a meeting sponsored by The Children's Home Society of North Carolina, Inc., Wednesday at 7 p. m. at Wachovia Bank.

The meeting will be held in the third floor board room of Wachovia Bank, West Fifth and Washington Streets, here.

David F. Herbert, the Society's executive director, will lead the discussion of the children who are waiting for adoption and of the kinds of homes and families being sought. Parents who have adopted a child with a special need will also participate in the discussion to share their experiences.

Adoptive families are being sought for the North Carolina children who are waiting for a permanent home and who have a special need. The children are of black and mixed racial heritage, school-age youngsters, sibling groups and children with

Trustees Of Center Meet

FARMVILLE — The Board of Trustees of the Farmville Child Development Center met Thursday night to hear a report of progress to date at the Center.

Giving the report of work since November was Miss Elaine Murphy, teacher-director of this day care center for moderately to severely retarded children.

Welcomed as new Board members were Mrs. Katherine Connell, Durwood Little, and Bob Hunt. Board chairman Jack Lewis recognized Little as the new treasurer of the group.

Lewis pointed out that this is National Mental Health Month and that the emphasis is on education. He praised the Farmville Jaycees who have donated their time and services to improving the house and grounds of the Center. He also requested that a letter of appreciation be sent to the Woodmen of the World for the outside climber and the autoharp given the Center.

He appointed an executive committee composed of all the officers — Lewis, chairman; Frederick Graham, vice chairman; Gray Cheason, secretary; and Little, treasurer; and two members at large — Lloyd Englehardt, and Mrs. Connell.

Job-Finding . .

Emotions Involved
Besides the problems causing unemployment, unemployment causes problems. As in Clarke's case employment affected him mentally.

According to Phil Clark, social work supervisor of the Coastal Plain Mental Health Center, the most prevalent problem the Center faces in Greenville is the incapability of people to cope with their life situations. One of the major life situations they cannot cope with is unemployment. In Cherry Hospital, a state mental institution in Goldsboro, a large number of the patients' cases are related to being "jobless" Clark added. He said cases at the Center appear to lessen in the "tobacco" months when more people are employed.

Efforts are being made to alleviate unemployment problems.

Mrs. Smith cited one recent effort to help employ Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) recipients called the Work Incentive Program. Through state, federal and local funds the recipients receive AFDC benefits while in school for employment purposes. Since the program is expensive, though, many counties have refused to initiate it, she said.

Commenting on future endeavors concerning unemployment, Mrs. Smith said, "I believe it will take a greater development of community resources to meet educational, psychological, legal, training and medical needs as well as other special needs for most people to become employed. It must be a total economic approach. Unemployment is a symptom of the problems — not the only problem."

Greenville Mayor Frank M. Wooten Jr. has donated several collections of historical papers to the East Carolina University Manuscript Collection.

According to Manuscript Collection Director Donald R. Lennon, the gift consists of more than 10,000 items of correspondence, legislative files, reports, organizational records, political campaign files, diaries, business records and miscellaneous papers which make up six distinct groups or collections of papers.

Included are correspondence files (1918-1940) of the donor's father, Frank M. Wooten Sr., who died in 1941. The senior Wooten was a prominent Greenville attorney, mayor (1906-1913) and judge of Pitt County Court. His papers apply primarily to World War I Draft Board activities and North Carolina political campaigns of the 1920's and 30's.

Correspondents include most of the major North Carolina political leaders of the period, such as J. Melville Broughton, F. M. Simmons, Josiah Bailey Jr., Cameron Morrison, Lee S. Overman and J. C. B. Ehringhaus.

A second collection donated by Wooten consists of his own political and legislative files, created while representing Pitt County in the N.C. General Assembly from 1956 through 1961.

They deal with every major area acted upon by the Legislature during his years of service, including education, East Carolina College, revenue measures, etc. Non-legislative files are relevant to gubernatorial and U.S. Senate election campaigns (1948-1954) and Young Democratic Club activities.

Correspondents for this group include John F. Kennedy, B. Everett Jordan, Sam J. Ervin Jr., Horace R. Kornegay, Luther H. Hodges, Terry Sanford, William B. Umstead, Alton A. Lennon, David Henderson, Herbert C. Bonner and Thomas

J. White.

The other collections given by Wooten concern the Tobacco Association of the United States (1943), the Pitt County Bar Association (1945-1955), St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Greenville (1904-1957), and correspondence and diary descriptions written between 1911 and 1941 by Alice Green Hoffman as she lived or traveled in France, China, Egypt, Italy, Puerto Rico and other parts of the world.

description of these collections will begin immediately, said Lennon. Upon completion of processing activities, the Wooten papers will be available at the Manuscript Collection to persons doing research on related topics.

The cost of agricultural losses in the United States stemming from air pollution was recently estimated to be in the neighborhood of 500 million dollars annually, according to the National Air Pollution Control Administration. The information is in a publication titled Air Pollution Injury to Vegetation AP-Series 71. No estimates were reported for the real economic loss caused by suppression of growth, delayed maturity, reduction in yield, and the attendant increase in the cost of crop production. Since air pollution is growing in intensity in many areas it is speculated that losses from vegetative damage also are undoubtedly increasing.

Tobacco farmers have become familiar with "weather flecking" on their crop in recent years. "Weather fleck" is caused by ozone injury. Ozone is the principal oxidant produced when sunlight reacts with certain air pollutants. Other crops show symptoms resulting from pollution that are similar to those found in nutrient deficiencies and certain diseases. It is presently difficult to distinguish the differences except under laboratory conditions.

The above information demonstrates the importance of the Environmental Quality issue to the agricultural industry. Of equal importance to agriculture are the rules and regulations that are being written to control the environment. They often have a direct effect on the tools of agricultural production, agricultural wastes, and pesticides are in effect. New regulations are being proposed or enacted that will result in significant changes in plant and animal production practices.

Farmers and agri-business people are finding it important to keep abreast of the Environmental Quality situation. The Agricultural Extension Service can supply information related to the subject. The Pitt County Office is located at 203 West Third Street in Greenville. Telephone 758-1196.

Tobacco TIPS

By S. J. WEEKS

Some farmers will soon be through transplanting their tobacco crop and will begin cultivating. Most farmers usually apply their fertilizer topdressing at the first cultivation.

In recent years the use of nitrate of soda as a topdressing has been on the increase. The use of nitrate of soda as topdressing for tobacco is a good practice provided the amount used does not build up the total amount of nitrogen too high. The total amount of nitrogen used should not exceed the amount required for the proper growth and development of the tobacco plant.

The information obtained from soil tests can be very helpful in determining the rate and analysis of fertilizer to use on a specific field for tobacco production. Observations that you have made when different rates of plant nutrients were used on a specific field are also important.

Before applying topdressing either in the form of nitrate of soda, 15-0-14, 15-0-15, 13-0-44, or 8-0-24, first determine the amount of nitrogen that has been applied in the form of preplant fertilizer such as 4-8-12, 5-10-15, or 3-9-9. For example, if you want to apply a total of 64 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre where 1200 pounds of 4-8-12 fertilizer has already been applied per acre, you would need only to apply 100 pounds of nitrate of soda, or 200 pounds of 8-0-24 as a topdressing. In some fields it might also be advisable to topdress with sulfate of potash-magnesia, especially where tobacco is being grown following peanuts.

The amount and form of organic matter, texture of the soil, and depth of soil to the subsoil are important characteristics influencing the quantity of nitrogen required for best tobacco production. For sandy loam soils of average fertility, the following quantities of nitrogen have generally been found adequate. In fields with topsoil 12 inches or less in depth (depth of soil to clay) 40 to 50 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre; when top soil is 12 to 18 inches in depth, 50 to 60 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre; when top soil is 18 to 24 inches in depth, 60 to 70 pounds of actual nitrogen may be necessary.

When tobacco is grown on sandy soil with less water-holding capacity, more total nitrogen will be required. The rates suggested above only include the amount of nitrogen needed to mature the crop. These rates will not take care of nitrogen that is often leached by excess rainfall. If nitrogen is lost by leaching, additional nitrogen should be applied to replace this loss. Soils differ in their productive capacity and in their fertility level. When determining the amount of nitrogen to use, careful attention should be given to the physical and chemical characteristics of the soil.

Bigger yields, higher profits, and lower costs are only part of the No-Til* soybean story

You save time and make better use of labor. Your crop gets planted sooner and gets off to a faster start. You get all the good out of available moisture. Your beans can immediately follow the small grains in your rotation to give you two crops in the same year.

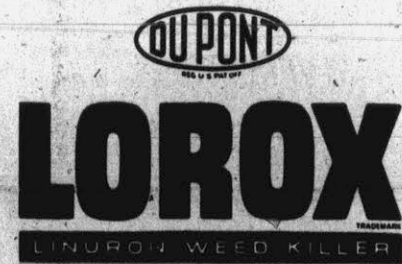

To save time and conserve labor, prepare the seedbed and do your planting with a once-over-the-field Allis-Chalmers 600 planting rig. The big, fluted No-Til coulters prepare a perfect environment for fast germination and rapid growth. Big, husky, completely flexible, this rig can be tailored precisely to your cropping practices.

To get the most out of No-Til soybeans, take this crucial extra step: Control weeds with Du Pont Lorox. Lorox assures fast, weed-free early growth. It gives complete control over foxtail, fall panicum, crabgrass, barnyardgrass, pigweed, smartweed, ragweed, lambsquarters, and others. Applied with Surfactant WK, Lorox gives both contact and residual action.

See how much more you can make by doing less and spending less. See your Allis-Chalmers dealer for equipment. See your agricultural chemicals dealer for LOROX. It's the right combination to make more beans make more money.

With any chemical, follow labeling instructions and warnings carefully.

Good Strategy In Advertising

Rev. Wilson is a delight to the Lord! For he uses advertising strategy, as Jesus also did when he sent out the 70 Disciples as advance press agents. Rev. Wilson employed balloons at Sunday School. Which zoomed attendance almost 50 per cent. And provoked wholesome competition with many other churches that same Sunday!

By GEORGE W. Crane
Ph. D., M.D.

Case Q 548: Rev. O. W. Wilson is the dynamic pastor of the Nazarene Church where DePauw University is located. Mary Cooper and I delivered addresses there at a recent Sunday service.

She had spent 40 years as a missionary in Africa and is such a dedicated person that she should be called a Saint, if Protestants were to imitate their Catholic brethren.

I started my talk with the story of a little boy who was hired to deliver a white rabbit to a certain house.

The rabbit was inside a big cardboard box.

But the boy tripped on the curb at the first street crossing and fell, with a crash.

The box split wide open and out leaped the rabbit.

It started bounding down the street.

But the boy merely stood there, laughing in great glee.

"Sonny," asked a passerby "why are you laughing? For your rabbit got away." "Just look at that dumb rabbit," retorted the boy. "Did you ever see anything so stupid?" "For he doesn't even know where he is going 'cause I've got the address right here in my pocket!"

Then I mentioned that millions of people are running around in circles, not knowing where they are going.

But the correct address is clearly stated in the Bible!

With that introduction, I went onward to show why the Bible is also the best psychology textbook in print!

So I showed that mankind's greatest psychological creation was produced by Adam, who got out of trouble by inventing buck-passing.

And when Eve saw how well it worked, she even adopted it, too, by passing the buck to the serpent.

Then I explained how Gideon was afraid to head a revolt against the foreign invaders of his land till he asked God to take a test; then a second test.

And God apparently admired Gideon's scientific attitude, for God then suggested a third test, to help remove Gideon's fear of the vastly larger enemy army.

Gideon also launched the first "cowardice test" when he advised his 32,000 men that all who were afraid, could go home. And 22,000 did!

But God told Gideon his 10,000 remaining troops were still too many, so Gideon started the first testing of Army recruits.

He "screened" them by the drinking test (Judges, Chapter 7).

After his tremendous victory of his 300 over 135,000, Gideon was challenged by the tribe of Ephraim. His life was at stake!

But Gideon extricated himself deftly by starting the first "Compliment Club" (Judges, Chapter 8).

After my address, Rev. Wilson mentioned that Rally Day was scheduled for the following Sunday.

To add zest, competition was to be held with other churches.

And balloons were to be given to all who attended, including visiting children, too.

After Sunday School, they were all to go outdoors and release their balloons, which had the church address thereon.

So anybody capturing such a balloon could contact the church. Reports came back even from Ohio!

So send for my booklet "How to Stimulate Bible Reading," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, and perk up your Sunday School attendance.

SUBGUM NEVER TOOK HIS EYES OFF HIS PATOOTIE -- HE'D GAZE AT HER SOULFULLY FOR HOURS --

Only 125 Showed Up; Undismayed

RALEIGH (AP) — "This is just the beginning," bubbled self-appointed King Nyle I as some 125 persons turned out Sunday at Umstead State Park for a State Picnic.

"I want to have a picnic dedicated to the whole nation, and eventually one dedicated to the whole world."

King Nyle, University instructor Lyle Frank of Chapel Hill, has predicted that a million persons would attend the Umstead Park gathering. He was undismayed that all of them didn't come, however.

He read letters of regret from the assistant to Vice President Spiro Agnew, from Gov. Bob Scott, from Raleigh television commentator Jesse Helms, from Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., and from Charlotte author Harry Golden.

A musical group called the "Rock E. Faith and the Superboppers" entertained in front of the crowd until they were confronted by Meyers Braxton, park superintendent, who told them they were in violation of a park regulation prohibiting "meetings, exhibitions, ceremonies and speeches" except by permit.

The group merely moved from in front into the midst of the gathering and said since they were no longer in front they could not be considered to be conducting a meeting, exhibition or ceremony.

With that the superintendent scratched his head and walked away.

Alleged Agrees With Hungary

PARIS (AP) — The weekly newspaper L'Express says Pope Paul VI has agreed "in principle" with the Communist government of Hungary to relieve Jozsef Cardinal Mindzenty as Roman Catholic primate of Hungary.

The mass circulation newspaper said the pontiff's agreement with Hungarian Foreign Minister Janos Peter provides for Cardinal Mindzenty to leave the U.S. Embassy where he sought refuge in 1956 and go quietly into retirement.

The cardinal, now 79, was sentenced to life in prison for treason by a Communist court in 1949. He sought refuge in the

First Experience In 'Group Encounter'

By RONALD E. COHEN
NEW YORK (UPI)—The baroque ceiling of the grand ballroom of New York's Hotel Diplomat was a whirling mish-mash of ornate gold leaf, horribly jutting cornices and glaring floodlights.

I tried to focus on that ceiling and forget how ridiculous I felt. Four suddenly intimate strangers held me (I am 5-feet 11, 200 pounds and between diets) at arms' length above their heads. I was parallel with the seascik-green rug on the ballroom floor, not at all sure I wouldn't be dropped unceremoniously.

The huge room was bedlam. More than 1,000 persons were screaming their emotions, at the behest of the group leader, Dr. William C. Schutz.

I looked down at the four who held my fate and screamed, too—"Hang on, hang on!"

My fear was well founded. At my feet was the only muscle of the four, a tall, solid 30-year-old nordic-looking man named John. I was sure he wouldn't let go and wished he had my head instead of my feet.

Struggling with my upper torso and head were:

A chunky, fiftyish woman with a jolly grin and smiling eyes whose short arms had me in a precarious tilt. She reminded me of an Iowa state fair bakeoff winner. A woman, about 27, with reddish hair. She wore a demure pants suit with two buttons that kept opening revealing a wispy black bra-siere. She had spent the past hour rebutting self-consciously. The buttons were open now from holding me aloft.

I prayed she wouldn't notice and begin buttoning. Right then it wasn't voyeurism. She had my shoulders and head seven feet off the ground, and she was dreadfully timid and frightened.

As they marched unsteadily in a small circle I tried again to focus on that architectural monstrosity of a ceiling. I couldn't. All I could manage was the thought, "What am I doing here?"

"Here" was the East Coast weekend of Esalen Institute, a nonprofit organization based in San Francisco and Big Surf, Calif., which helped pioneer group encounter sessions in the United States in 1962.

Its stated purpose is "to explore those trends in the behavioral sciences, religion and philosophy which emphasize the potentialities and values of human existence." It is dedicated to "devising ways to extend the human potential."

Esalen believes that through seminars and group sensitivity and encounter sessions, one can be conditioned to use not only his sight but his senses of taste, smell, touch and hearing to probe deeply into himself and develop a new consciousness.

Freeing the spirit, the mind, the body—a kind of joy and sensual pleasure in living and understanding the role—is at the base of Esalen philosophy. A lofty and worthwhile goal, it worked only partly for me.

First, there were too many people, about 5,000 at the three-day session, second, the Diplomat is not the Big Surf, a picturesque sentinel overlooking the Pacific. It is a faded relic of a hotel overlooking Times Square and hard by a hotdog emporium.

Third, too many people came without some skepticism. Instead of letting themselves be led into a mood, or condition, that might unlock their deep consciousness—the stated purpose of the whole exercise—their emotions bubbled just below the surface, to be elicited by a casual word, a casual touch.

There could be nothing deeply meaningful for these, troubled by a sort of perverse hedonism. I left the East Coast weekend late Sunday wanting to try again at a better time, a better place, under better conditions—a week at Big Surf perhaps.

For me, this encounter weekend begins in the ballroom on Friday evening, with 1,000 bodies, every age and shape and size, sprawled on the green rug.

One in 10 had been here last year, at a similar weekend. The rest wait apprehensively.

"Rise and bounce lightly on your toes, eyes closed," says Schutz, a balding, smiling man wearing orange pants. We are packed so close we cannot help jostling.

"Hands up over your heads. Growl."

The growls are superbly loud. We are getting into it.

"Now laugh—loud and long. Get inside yourself. Vibrate slowly, first your legs, then your arms, then everything. Breathe deep."

We follow every instruction like automatons. We walk very slowly around the room, looking intently at each face passing by.

I fleetingly touch fingertips with everyone I pass, regardless of sex. Then I shake hands while walking. Then, still following instructions I smack, lightly, every rear-end I pass. The pace slows and I grasp both hands of the person next to me. I caress her hands, then touch fingers lightly to her face and hair. Then I embrace her—and move on to someone else.

It is incredible the magic I feel reaching out and touching the fingers of a total stranger. It is infinitely more sensual to me than the deep embrace. Can it be because I know the pretty, dark-haired girl I have just touched will disappear from my life in one second?

"How do you feel? Make a sound like you feel," Schutz directs.

I shout like Tarzan and beat my chest. I doubt that the girl whose fingertips had been so cool hears me, and I wonder for a second what sound she is making. The noise is deafening.

We line up in groups of 20, oblivious to the mirrored decadence of the ornate, Louis XIV ballroom.

"Now, if you feel like a leader, get to the front of the line. If you are a follower, get to the back. You middle-people fight it out for the center. If the guy in front of you doesn't belong there, get him out of your spot, any way you can."

I shove. The woman in front of me doesn't take kindly to it and pushes me back. We shove and shove and she finally surrenders to superior bulk and goes to work on someone more her size closer to the front.

Soon all 20 in our line are heaving and pushing and yelling. I look around. The scene is the same all over the ballroom, some of the battling for position even more violent than in my group.

"Stop!" Schutz commands. "Stop. Look into the eyes of the person in front of you. What do you see? What does he feel?"

"He" is a 250-pounder who had outmuscled me. His eyes are full of victory.

Schutz breaks us into groups of five for the last 90 minutes. We sit in a circle and size each other up. Save for the last five minutes, we will not speak. But there will be plenty of nonverbal communication—touching, suspecting, emoting, hating, loving.

For 10 minutes we shake hands, hold fingers or grasp shoulders. Once I lean over to touch timid redhead's face. She recoils.

We huddle tightly in a tiny circle, listening for each other's breathing. We breathe in unison and feel the power in that.

Then we hold hands in our circle, and Schutz tells us to feel a gigantic energy in our stomachs, and try to transmit that energy through our bodies to those whose hands we hold. I don't feel anything.

Class editors are as follows: senior, Brenda Murray; Melinda Deyton; and Debbie Hartsell; junior, Pat Cherier; Marilyn Corbett; and Valerie McKinney; sophomore, Betty Moseley; Ann Paschal; and Barbara Kearns.

To occupy positions as advertising managers are Delores Harris, Sheryl Buck, Cindy Allen, and Darrell Davis.

Advised by Mrs. Jane Schwartz, annual staff members will receive credit and grades for the first time next year.

Marshals Named

Based on high scholastic averages through the first semester junior year, 25 juniors achieved marshal status, April 22. To assist at such school events as baccalaureate, graduation, spring concerts, and Awards Day, the students will serve the 1971-72 term.

This year's marshals include Roger Billica, Sally Boyette, Lois Brown, Robert Carraway, Marilyn Corbett, Robbie Cox, John Daugman, Laura Ebbs, Evon Ebron, Delores Harris, David Howell, Mickey Jones, and Sheila Latham.

Mamie Maye, Mark Miller, Chris O'Connell, Eugenia Parker, Anne Petrie, William Shields, Jo Ann Smith, Margaret Stevens, Joe Swain, Peggy Weimer, Anna White, and Kathy Williams complete the list.

Cheerleaders

To promote school spirit, 26 girls were chosen as junior varsity and varsity cheerleaders, April 29-30.

Leading cheers on the varsity squad will be Nancy Cleetwood, Val Hooper, Amy Leggett, Mary Margaret Morton, Josie Rawl, Patti Sanders, Denise Speight, Fawn Staton, Charlene Vines, Kate Welch, and Kathy Williams. Monica Jenkins and Brenda Murray will serve as alternates.

Junior varsity cheerleaders are Carolyn Battle, Lynn Cargile, Phyllis Conway, Ronita Jones, Jan Kleinert, Lynn Laughinghouse, Betty Moseley, Kathy Savage, Karen Savage, Karen Smith, Lon White, and Patricia Williams. Alternates are Renee Jones and Kim Taylor.

Observing Twirp Week, April 20-26, 14 students nabbed stuffed Snoops and RHS Bippys for their most appropriate dress.

Chaired by junior Brenda Bond, a Pep Club committee promotes sports events by placing banners and posters throughout the school.

together, timid/redhead would prove to be the most interesting in the group.

Later, after the next session, I bump into fawn-eyes in the lobby. She hugs me like a long-lost brother, the euphoria and the magic of the first encounter still strong.

Next morning we meet again. I say hello. She looks blank, trying to place me.

Relationships at Esalen East are fleeting and illusory. Esalen depends for its success on the creation of a mood. Much of the group sensitivity activity is done alone, with eyes closed. This time for meditation, a feeling of introspection and solitude in a large group, creates a sort of self-hypnosis.

Esalen believes this facilitates honest interaction. Shams and facades are eroded and the individual can better scrutinize himself and those strangers who are about to become his intimates.

Announcements of marshals, cheerleaders and annual staff members have highlighted activities at Rose High in the past two weeks.

Sally Boyette, Laura Ebbs, and Mickey Jones will edit next year's "Visa," Rose annual. Lois Brown and Bob Hudson will serve as business managers.

Claiming photographers' positions are Dean James and Aaron Spain. Josie Rawl, Patti Sanders, and Kathy Williams will head up the feature section.

New activities editors are Jan Durham, Jamie Jacobson, and Joe Swain. Linda Brown, Alfonse Hunter and Steven Mitchell will handle the sports section.

Service Club Operator's Trial Begins

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer
REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (AP) — The Army planned to open its case today in the court-martial of M. Sgt. William Higdon, who is charged with larceny, bribery and graft in the operation of service clubs in Vietnam.

The 41-year-old Higdon, of East Point, Ga., an Atlanta suburb, faces a maximum sentence of 19 years imprisonment, if convicted by a jury of five Redstone Arsenal officers. The jury was empaneled last week.

Capt. George Little of Winston Salem, N.C., the prosecutor, said the trial could take two weeks. He has 14 witnesses standing by and the defense may call as many.

The government's witnesses, some of whom will come from Thailand, Vietnam and the Philippines, will include Edward Kowatch. The government alleges that Kowatch, one of its key witnesses, paid Higdon more than $25,000 in bribes while the sergeant ran 30 clubs for enlisted men at Long Binh, the largest military installation in Vietnam, in 1967-68.

The Army charges that Higdon was bribed to influence the award of air conditioning and refrigeration maintenance contracts between the clubs and Kowatch's firm, Universal Consultants Inc.

Higdon is additionally charged with the theft of $7,200 in club funds. His lawyers say the money allegedly stolen was paid the clubs for promotional considerations by Envoy International-Asia.

The Bangkok-based firm served as a broker for the millions of dollars worth of cigarettes, liquor and other items bought by clubs from U.S. concerns.

Glenn Faulk, general manager of Envoy's Asian operation and a retired Army major, is scheduled to be the first government witness. His testimony will follow an opening statement from Little.

Higdon, whose job as custo-lian-secretary made him responsible for the day-to-day operation of the service clubs, is not scheduled to testify.

Civilian charges of conspiring to defraud the clubs are pending against him and seven others in Los Angeles. Also indicted in that case is Sgt. Maj. William O. Woodridge, the first sergeant major of the Army.

Both Higdon and Woodridge testified last year before a Senate committee investigating charges of widespread corruption and fraud in the clubs. Higdon is the only soldier yet charged by the Army on charges of wrongdoing in the operation of the clubs.

Taxpayer Today Is Working For Self

NEW YORK (AP) — Today is Tax Freedom Day.

According to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, May 10 is the first day in 1971 that the average American is working for himself rather than the government.

Until today, the chamber said, every cent the average American earned was needed to pay federal, state and local taxes of all types this year.

Last year, the chamber figured that May 9 was "tax freedom day."

The chamber calculated that the average taxpayer now works 2 hours and 51 minutes of every 8-hour day just to pay his tax bills.

These conclusions were based on estimates of total taxes paid in the United States, both directly and indirectly, and estimates of total personal income for 1971.

The chamber's tax experts provided some other eye-opening statistics on how the per capita tax bill has increased during this century. In 1902, for example, total taxes averaged $17 per American. By 1940 the figure had reached $96 and in 1960 it had jumped to $638. The chamber estimated the per capita figure would be $1,200 this year.

Federal income tax receipts, on both individual and corporate income, totaled $123 billion for fiscal 1970, compared with $62 billion in 1960 and only $1 billion in 1943, the chamber said.

The nation's 50 states collected $48 billion for their fiscal years ending in 1970, up 14 per cent from the previous year's $42 billion total. The chamber estimated that state taxes would total $56 billion this year.

Two Scientists Ask Hanoi Grant

CHICAGO (AP) — Two University of Chicago scientists have asked Hanoi for a grant to study ways of rehabilitating North Vietnamese land destroyed by the Indochina war.

Biologists Richard Levens and Richard C. Lewontin made the request for $700 to North Vietnam's State Committee on Sciences, a government department in Hanoi.

The request currently is being processed through the university's office for programs and special projects.

Levens said Sunday they will research journals and books in an effort to find methods for reforesting areas defoliated by herbicides and using land marked by bomb craters.

The results of the search would be presented to the North Vietnamese government, Levens said.

Arrest Two On 'Pot' Possession

Two young men were charged with possessing marijuana following an early Saturday morning raid on Clay Root area residence by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Officers reported James Richard Walls, 23, of Mooresville, and John Blake Beson, 22, of High Point, were charged when about seven ounces of marijuana were found in a car outside their house.

The two were released under $2,500 bond each pending a hearing in District Court May 28.

Ellington Picks Down Dead

BALTIMORE (AP) — Duke Ellington picked an old standard, "Take the A Train," as his first number in a surprise performance at an annual dinner of a prisoner self-help organization.

In Baltimore for a one-night stand, Ellington then teamed with vocalist Janet Lawson for several other numbers at the dinner Sunday of the Seventh Step Foundation.

Bystanders 'Fall Down Dead'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Visitors to Point State Park Sunday got a view of what warfare was like 200 years ago when a group of history buffs authentically recreated Revolutionary War fighting—with an unscheduled addition.

As the full-dressed "soldiers" loaded their muskets with blank charges and fired them in unison, some long-haired youths sitting nearby clutched their chests as if shot and fell to the ground "dead."

RUSSIAN VETERAN — A boy admires the decorations of this old soldier. The man, 83 years old, was one of hundreds of veterans who gathered in Moscow to reminisce about World War II, which ended 26 years ago today. (AP Wirephoto)
