Postal Rates Rise Today

Increases in most postage rates will take effect today as the new United States Postal Service begins its task of achieving self sufficiency as required by the Postal Reorganization Act, it was announced today by Greenville Postmaster Lloyd Mills.

Mills explained that the new increases — authorized on a temporary basis until the newly-created Postal Rate Commission can make recommendations to the Governors of the Postal Service on permanent changes — will raise first-class from six to eight cents an ounce, and air mail letter rated from 10 to 11 cents an ounce. Post card will go from five to six cents each and air mail post cards will go from eight to nine cents each.

In addition to increases in first-class rates, second and third class also increase. However, the full increases proposed by the Postal Service will not be put into effect on a temporary basis, in second and third class, since the postal reform legislation contemplates that such increases be phased over five years — or ten years for non-profit organizations — provided Congress appropriates the necessary funds to ease the transition to full rates.

Due to the phasing provision, Mills explained, the increases for second and third class will generally be only one-fifth of the total increase which has been proposed.

No changes will be made in the rates for parcel post, which is the prinicpal component of fourth-class mail. The new rates will make changes in other postage rate categories and special service fees, such as special delivery and registered mail.

"General postage rates have not been increased since 1967 when Congress passed what was to become its final legislative act in this respect," Mills noted. "Requests for rate increases were proposed to Congress in 1969 by both President Johnson and President Nixon. In addition, President Nixon proposed an increase again in 1970. However, none of the proposed increases were acted upon by Congress."

The Postal Service advised the public in February that it intended to make the temporary increases if the Postal Rate Commission did not make the recommended decision within 90 days of the request by the Postal Service.

"Recently the Rate Commission confirmed that it will not be able to make a decision within the 90 days, and Sunday has been selected as the date on which the rates would become effective," Mills stated.

When the domestic changes go into effect, there will be conforming increases in letter rates to Canada and Mexico.

Defense Experts Rally To Oppose NATO Troop Cut

By WILLIAM B. MEAD

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) —President Nixon rallied support from former President Lyndon B. Johnson and 24 former diplomatic and defense officials Saturday in a strong bid to defeat a proposed unilateral reduction of U.S. forces in Europe.

In separate statements issued by the Florida White House, Nixon said the troop cut would be an "error of historic dimensions" and Johnson said it would "endanger what we have achieved in the past and shatter our hopes for the future."

Nixon's blast, signed by 24 elder statesmen from four previous administrations, was aimed at Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield's amendment to cut U.S. troop strength in Europe by half—from 300,000 to 150,000.

Neither Nixon's statement nor Johnson's mentioned Russia's call for negotiations toward mutual cuts in European troops and armaments.

Nixon's statement said:

"At this point in time, it would be an error of historic dimensions for any of the North Atlantic Treaty allies to reduce unilaterally the military forces maintained in Europe for the common defense.

"As the most powerful member of the alliance, the United States bears a responsibility for leadership.

"Let us persevere to carry forward the policy of this nation under five successive presidents representing both political parties, confident that our united strength will promote the enduring peace we seek."

Johnson's statement, which the White House said was drafted by the former president after he was advised of Nixon's, said:

"I have seen the President's statement opposing at this time a unilateral reduction of military forces maintained in Europe for the common defense. I am totally in accord with that statement.

"American steadiness in support of NATO for more than 20 years has not only helped to bring security and progress to the North Atlantic community, it has also encouraged movement toward reconciliation with those toward the east. Unilateral reduction of our military forces in Europe would endanger what we have achieved in the past and shatter our hopes for the future."

Nixon's statement, his first public utterance on the Mansfield amendment, was signed by 24 men who served under Presidents Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy and Johnson.

Those signing included Dean Acheson and Robert Lovett, respectively the secretaries of state and defense under Truman; Dean Rusk, secretary of state under Kennedy and Johnson; George Ball, undersecretary of state under Kennedy and Johnson; Nicholas Katzenbach, Ball's successor under Johnson; Roswell Gilpatric, deputy defense secretary under Kennedy and Johnson, and Gilpatric's successor under Johnson, Cyrus Vance.

Nixon met Thursday with 11 of the group. Acheson circulated the statement for additional signatures.

Former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, who served under Johnson, refused to sign, the White House said, as did James Douglas, a deputy defense secretary in the Truman administration.

The White House said Robert S. McNamara, defense secretary under Kennedy and Johnson, abstained because he now heads the World Bank.

The statement echoed opposition voiced in Nixon's behalf Friday by Secretary of State William P. Rogers and White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. Rogers and Ziegler said Mansfield's move for unilateral U.S. troop cuts was particularly untimely in view of Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's call for negotiations toward mutual reduction in European troop and armament levels.

The Florida White House said Saturday that Brezhnev's proposal was under study and would be discussed when Rogers meets with other NATO officials in Lisbon June 3 and 4.

'Overkill' Seen By Mansfield

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield urged the administration Saturday to seize upon the Russian offer to negoiate a reduction of forces in central Europe. He said the talks could and should start next month.

At the same time, Mansfield accused the White House of "overkill" in its opposition to his proposal to cut the 300,000-troop U.S. garrison in Europe by 50 per cent by the end of 1971.

Mansfield shied away from predicting that he would win in Wednesday's showdown vote on his plan. A UPI poll of senators completed Saturday showed a very close division, with administration supporters holding a slight edge of committed senators and with the outcome resting in the hands of less than two dozen who have not reached or have not announced a position.

The survey indicated that at least 37 senators were prepared to vote for the Mansfield measure, 40 members were against the plan, 38 for it in principle, 18 undecided, three whose views were unknown and one absentee, Sen. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., recovering from a stroke.

The issue is so closely contested that one member, freshman Sen. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Md., who is recovering from an appendectomy, is preparing to get out of his sickbed if necessary to vote against the amendment.

Meeting with reporters in his Capitol office, Mansfield faulted the state department for saying it would "study" Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's proposal Friday to enter into exploratory talks on reducing free world and Communist forces and armaments in central Europe.

"They'd better get away from studying it," Mansfield said. "I would suggest that instead of studying a proposal —the meaning of which is plain on its face —that the response from the state department and the White House should be in the affirmative and that a definite date should be set for the beginning of negotiations."

Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — New food stamp regulations are aimed at increasing benefits for the "poorest of the poor" while cutting off students away from home and hippie communes, an Agriculture Department official says.

Richard Lyng, assistant secretary of agriculture, explained proposed rules implementing the 1970 Food Stamp Reform Act to the Senate Nutrition Committee Friday.

Replying to criticism that the changes would eliminate 340,000 recipients and reduce benefits to another 1.7 million, Lyng said new national uniform income schedules were drawn "to provide the greatest benefit to the poorest of the poor and to feather out the benefits" for those approaching maximum allowable incomes.

Of the 10.6 million now receiving food stamps, he said, 7 million will receive bonus increases of $2 to $6 a month.

In addition, he said, 1.7 million persons will become newly eligible in states which cut off benefits to families earning less than the national income limit.

The proposed regulation to prohibit food stamps in households with "unrelated" individuals was designed, Lyng said, to carry out Congress' intent to bar "students and communes." A student away from home will not qualify unless he's a member of an eligible family, he added.

Cairo Backs Sadat Stand

By NAT GIBSON

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptians thronged Cairo Saturday shouting support for President Anwar Sadat and demanding death for nine officials accused of plotting against him.

Observers said the demonstrations were the largest display of public sentiment since the death of President Gamal Abdel Nasser seven months ago sent millions of mourning Arabs into the streets.

Political sources said Sadat spent the morning at home and would meet with his reorganized cabinet Sunday.

"March on, Sadat, we are your soldiers for liberation," shouted people in the crowd.

The praise of Sadat mingled with calls for the execution of six former ministers and three top leaders of the Arab Socialist Union (ASU), Egypt's only political party. The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said the men were being held under house arrest.

Sadat said in a nationwide radio and television address Friday that he asked Interior Minister Sharawi Gomaa for his resignation Thursday after discovering Gomaa was plotting against him. He said the other five ministers then resigned in an attempt to topple his government.

Gomaa, who ran Egypt's secret police, was singled out for particularly fury by the crowd. Thinking he was at a police station, a cursing group surrounded it and shouted that no mercy should be shown him.

The demonstrations, which appeared to be spontaneous, snaked through the city and milled around the president's official and unofficial residences.

There were demonstrations of support also in Beirut, where hundreds of Lebanese marched through the streets carrying pictures of Nasser and chanting slogans supporting Sadat. Prime Minister Saeb Salem of Lebanon said "we thank God for saving Cairo from the plotting of the conspirators."

Former Israeli intelligence chief Haim Herzog, whose radio commentaries invariably reflect his government's thinking, said in Jerusalem Saturday that a victory for Sadat in the power struggle would enhance chances of further peace negotiations and a prolonged cease-fire.

Political sources in Cairo predicted there would be a thorough purge of all power blocs in the government as Sadat prepared for elections to reorganize the Arab socialist union. They said they expected the elections, promised by Sadat Friday, to be held "very soon."

Ervin Advises Staying Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., says the best way for innocent people to avoid arrest during massive illegal demonstrations is to stay off the streets.

Ervin said the Washington Police did a good job under unique circumstances of keeping the city open and the traffic flowing during the May 3 anti-war demonstration here.

"Necessarily, there may have been arrests of people who were neither participants nor aiders and abettors" in the illegal demonstrations, Ervin said Saturday in an interview. "But they exposed themselves to arrest out of curiosity."

Ervin conceded there is nothing legally wrong with just watching illegal demonstrations from street corners, "but it's unwise, especially if you are dressed like them.

Washington police have been criticized by some members of Congress and various civil liberties groups for dispensing with on-the-scene field-arrest forms and photographing of suspects.

"If officers had done the paperwork on the streets that morning," the 74-year-old Carolinian said, "the police force would have had to forsake the safety of the city and relinquish all areas of the city to the demonstrators."

Strike Is Debated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a Monday morning deadline rapidly approaching, union and industry officials continued wage negotiations Saturday to avert a nationwide rail strike, with no visible evidence of progress.

The strike threat came from the 13,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Signalmen, who said they would walk off their jobs at 6 a.m. Monday unless they win their demands for higher pay.

Union President C. J. Chamberlain and officials of the National Railway Labor Conference, the industry's negotiating arm, met separately with federal mediators in an effort to make some headway in the dispute.

N.C. Med Soc. Meets Launched

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The 117th annual meeting of the N.C. Medical Society got underway Saturday with a meeting of the Executive Council.

About 1,000 doctors are expected to attend the sessions, which will continue through next Wednesday.

The list of speakers includes Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan and Congressmen James T. Broyhill and Nick Galifianakis.

The House of Delegates, the society's policy-making body, will hold its opening session at 2 p.m. Sunday. Some 180 delegates from 78 component societies are expected to attend.

Drowns On Class Outing

The trip is an annual senior event for the Farmville High school, according to Farmville police.

The Carteret County Sheriff department said the local man apparently drowned about 2 p. m. while wading when he was swept off his feet by a wave and carried away from shore by a strong undertow. Assistant principal of Farmville High School and several of his classmates and teachers witnessed the tragedy, investigators said.

Coast Guard units from Fort Macon and Elizabeth City searched for the body until late Friday but it has not yet been recovered, according to officers.

Newton, an outstanding football player at the Farmville High School, is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary B. Wilkes of 808 W. Pine St., Farmville; his wife, Mrs. Laura Davis Newton, and one infant son.

Quits Post

ROBERSONVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Claude L. Green Jr. has quit a $26,000 job with the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Washington to return to his home at Robersonville where he has farming and business interests.

Green, unsuccessful Republican candidate for state commissioner of agriculture in 1968, served as southeast area director for the USDA's crop control and price support agency, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Committee on Law and Order has announced a $14,000 planning grant a $120,000 action grant for the Mid-East Economic Development Commission Law Enforcement Planning Division.

Award Contracts For Church Building

St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church has awarded contracts for the construction of its new sanctuary on its property east of the Greenville city limits on Highway 264.

The new sanctuary, which will front on the Washington highway, will complete the church building program, which has also included the education building and the fellowship hall. The estimated cost will be $112,000.

Named in honor of J. A. Speight, an honorary deacon and long-time member of the church, the facility for worship services will seat 450 persons and will also house the pastor's study, church offices, two choir rooms, and a baptistry.

Contractors for the building are J. Leo Hawkins, construction; Moseley Electrical Company, electrical system; and Coastal Refrigeration Company, heating and air conditioning.

Ground breaking for the new building was held Mother's Day following the morning worship service, with the pastor, the Rev. R. H. Brafford leading the ceremony, and church officials participating. Completion of the sanctuary is expected in ten months.

Ice Cream Said Poison Danger

WARSAW (UPI)—More than 100 persons were poisoned by ice cream at Radomsk near Lodz Friday, the Polish news agency PAP reported Saturday.

Five persons were hospitalized in a serious condition and 115 people were given first aid in the medical centers, the news agency said.

The local authorities think the number of sick persons will increase as many people from nearby towns also bought the ice cream on Friday, market day at Radomsk, PAP said.

Teacher Is Set Ablaze

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three teen-age girls set a 24-year-old teacher's dress on fire as she stood outside a public school gymnasium, police reported Saturday.

The attack on Georgette McNair came after she telephoned the parents of a friend of the girls to tell them their daughter had been doing poorly in class, police said.

Students had tried unsuccessfully last week to push the teacher down a staircase at the school, P. S. 73 in The Bronx, according to police.

On Friday, when Miss McNair stopped near the gym to talk to a student, the three girls came up behind her with a box of matches and set the skirt of her gym dress on fire, police said.

Miss McNair beat out the flames with her hands and was taken to Morrisania Hospital for treatment of second degree burns on both hands.

Police said the girls, one 15 years old and the other two 13, will be arraigned Monday in Bronx Family Court on charges of attempted murder, attempted arson and juvenile deliquency.

Scots Raid Heath Car

ABERDEEN, Scotland (UPI) —About 150 Scots demonstrating against membership in the European Common Market mobbed Prime Minister Edward Heath's car Saturday when he arrived to urge support for British participation.

Police had to clear a path for Heath, who has appealed to the market to admit Britain, thus creating what he said would be unprecedented prosperity in Europe.

The kilted demonstrators, shouting "No Betrayal, No Sell-Out!" staged a funeral procession, with wailing bagpipes, for Scotland's fishing industry, which they said would be killed by British membership in the community.

In a speech clearly designed to set the tone for his Paris meeting Thursday and Friday with French President Georges Pompidou, Heath declared:

"If Europe throws away this chance of unity, then a similar occasion is not going to occur for many years and Europe will have the utmost difficulty in ever playing its rightful role in world affairs.

ARVN General Expects A Shau Valley Fighting

By KENNETH J. BRADDICK

SAIGON (UPI) —The South Vietnamese commander of the A Shau Valley campaign said Saturday his forces had killed 375 Norh Vietnamese soldiers and that U.S. troops "might come in at any time" for an all-out drive into he communist stronghold near the Laotian border.

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai said "heavy fighting" could break out against an estimated 3,000 North Vietnamese holding the 35-mile long valley.

In Cambodia, South Vietnamese troops reported finding the bodies of 46 Communist soldiers killed by air strikes northwest of Kampong Trach, government spokesmen said in Saigon.

With South Vietnam five Americans of the Americal Division were killed when their armored personnel carrier hit a mine 14 miles southwest of Hoi An, in Quang Nam province, spokesmen said.

U.S. 101st Airborne Division reconnaissance teams have patroled the A Shau Valley area from time to time since the start of the 10,000-man allied Operation Lam Son 720 more than a month ago.

About 2,000 American paratroopers have been on standby for a possible thrust into the valley, military sources said. But no final decision had yet been made to commit U.S. ground troops in strength.

"We have killed 375 North Vietnamese army soldiers so far throughout the whole operation," the generl said.

Giai said the operation was a joint campaign of the 1st South Vietnamese Infantry Division and the U.S. 101st Airborne based at Camp Eagle near Hue 24 miles northeast of the A Shau Valley.

"The Americans might come in at any time," he said.

The U.S. command said American helicopter gunships flew nearly 320 sorties Friday in support of South Vietnamese operations in Cambodia's Kratie province and killed six Communists in a bunker complex.

U.S. Air Force sighter-bombers flew more than 20 strikes in Cambodia while B52s bombed areas in Cambodia and Laos, spokesmen said.

Avers N.C. Has 5 'Universities'

RALEIGH (AP) — Graduates of North Carolina State University were told Saturday that calling a school a university won't make it one.

Chancellor John T. Caldwell of NCSU said this is a record graduating class of 2,500 as he noted that in recent years college after college in North Carolina has received the title of university.

"The university," said Caldwell, "is a complex institution of higher education offering academic degrees at the most advanced professional and scholarly levels, accompanied by a significant amount of recognized research."

Under this definition, he said, North Carolina has five universities. He listed them as NCSU, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke University, University of North Carolina at Greensboro and Wake Forest University.

Caldwell noted that since the creation of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, NCSU "attained the recognized configuration and status of a modern university."

In his graduation speech, Caldwell challenged "a current notion in some freak elements of society that feeling is a sufficient guide to human conduct."

Such a notion, Caldwell said is "antagonistic to excellence and could only lead in the direction of quite primitive behavior ... and could spell physical, mental and social disaster."

New Annuals Presented At Rose High Assembly

By MARGARET STEVENS

Presentation of the 1971 "Visa" climaxed a Rose High School assembly that introduced new Student Government and class officers Friday morning.

Bearing the theme of youth's search for identity, the long-awaited annual is dedicated to the senior class of 1971.

Explained co-rodinating editor Nancy Clemens, "Annual dedications for a school the size of Rose are really outdated, as it is impossible to recognize just one person unless he is really outstanding. This is a good way to honor seniors."

Complimentary "Visas" were presented to retiring athletic director Roland Farley, principal Robert Alligood, Dr. C. C. Cleetwood, and the city administrators, and Dr. E. B. Aycock and the city board members.

Nancy Clemens, Sharon Costner, and Geoffrey Mitchell edited the 1971 "Visa." Advised by Mrs. Jane Schwarz, the 1972 staff will be headed by Sally Boyette, Laura Ebbs, and Mickey Jones.

Also taking oaths were new senior class officers president Kathy Williams, vice president J. C. Daniels, secretary Kelly Darden, and treasurer Brenda Murray.

Junior class officers Alfonse Hunter, president, John Allen Tucker, vice president, and Deborah Hall, secretary-treasurer, were presented as well.

Three-Phase Summer School Program Announced

The three phase summer program of the Greenville City Schools has been announced by City School Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood.

One phase covers the Elementary Summer School Program, kindergarten through grade six; the second covers the Secondary Summer School Program for grades seven through 12; and the third is the Driver Training and Safety Education Program.

Elementary Summer School Program

Elmhurst Elementary School is the site for the kindergarten through sixth grade study program. The first day of summer session begins on June 7 and ends on July 16. Class time will be 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. each day.

An extended program of instructions being offered for all children who need this additional service. Class size will be approximately 20 students in order to provide for more individual instruction.

With the exception of a number of tuitions grants made possible from ESEA Title I funds, the program will be self-supporting by the charge of a tuition fee of $40 per child.

Parents interested in having their children enrolled in the summer program should contact their child's teacher or principal for additional information.

In addition to the program at Elmhurst, the School of Education of East Carolina University will also operate a summer school program at Wahl-Coates Elementary School. Students now enrolled in Wahl-Coates will be given first priority in filling the program, which is being limited to a small number of children.

Secondary Summer School Program

The secondary program begins June 7 at Rose High School and continues on a schedule that will enable students to attend class five hours a day Monday through Friday during the six week period.

This will enable students to acquire 150 hours required by the Department of Public Instruction where units of credit are involved.

Classes will begin at 8:00 a.m., continue to 10:30 a.m., with a short break from 10:30 to 10:45 a.m. The classes will then resume at 10:45 and continue until 1:15 p.m. daily.

Again, like the elementary program, with the exception of a limited number of full or partial tuition grants through ESEA Title I funds, a tuition will be charged to make the program self-sustaining. Rates are $40 for the full-course program and $25 for a half-unit course. Only students in grades seven and eight will be permitted to enroll in half-unit courses.

For Junior High School students, the summer program will focus chiefly in a remedial program for strengthening in general academic areas to correct specific weaknesses. A student may pursue a full-day program with a block of time in English-Language Arts-Social Studies and another in Science-Math. In the half-unit program, a student can choose to work in only one of the two areas. Opportunities for special studies will be provided where there is an advance demand for a subject.

Senior High School courses are offered on the high school level and will follow the general scope and sequence of studies held during the regular school year.

All basic courses for which there is sufficient registration will be offered as new work or for the removal of deficiencies. This procedure will enable a student to retire units during the summer, an make possible a greater selection of electives during the regular school year.

Students from outside Greenville are welcome to attend on a tuition-paying basis, providing the student assumes the responsibility of obtaining approval of his administrative unit and confirming arrangements with his school concerning the recognition and acceptance of any units earned.

Driver Training and Safety Education

Although this training is given during the regular school year, most students pursue this training as a part of the summer program. This program which begins on June 7, is open to students regularly enrolled in the secondary schools of the city who are 14½ years of age and older but not older than 18 years.

In driver training, students will receive 36 hours of in-class instruction and 18 hours of in-car training, of which six hours will be behind-the-wheel training.

This course will be taught by local teachers who are certified by the Department of Public Instruction and approved by the N.C. Department of Motor Vehicles.

All students who have previously registered and any who have not registered should report to the gymnasium of J. H. Rose High School on June 7, promptly at 1:00 p.m. for class assignment. An attempt will be made, insofar as possible, to schedule students so that their driver education participation will not interfere with summer schools, jobs, or vacation.

Transportation for students attending the summer program is being planned and will be provided to most areas of the city. Additional information on this will be forthcoming at a later date.

Plainly Marked Labels Proposed

'More Meaningful' Seed Law Is Sought

By MELVIN LANG

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina farmers may find it easier next winter to tell at a glance if the corn seed they're buying is hybrid.

A proposed amendment to the state seed law was introduced in the General Assembly last week making it mandatory that hybrid seed be marked plainly on the label.

The proposal also would ban the use of the letter "F" for any purpose other than designating the size and shape of the seed—and not to show its status as a hybrid.

Its purpose is to eliminate situations such as occurred during this season's corn shortage, when farmers' desperation led them to buy seed that was not always what they wanted. One major distributor, Green Brothers Seed Co. of Fuquay-Varina, lost its license after Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham ruled it had misrepresented its seed.

George Spain, seed test director for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said in an interview the proposed amendment was in the planning stages for several months before the Green Brothers case.

Spain said he worked with representatives of N.C. State University's extensive service and the North Carolina Seedmen's Association "to iron out the rough spots as much as possible" in existing law controlling the sale of seed.

"We're trying to have a seed law that will be meaningful to our farmers," he said. "We thought we were covering any area that would create confusion to the farmer."

The Goldsboro News-Argus, which brought to public attention the sales transactions that led to Green Brothers' loss of license, said editorially Thursday that the amendment could create even more confusion through its use of the letter "F" to designate kernal size and shape and provisions for tags to be stenciled "variety not stated."

"The letter 'F' has become a part of the language of the farmer with reference to hybrids," the News-Argus said.

"There should be no change in the law that might tend to legalize confusion...We should not move toward the day when a farmer must be accompanied by a lawyer when he goes to buy his seed."

This season's shortage of hybrid seed resulted in widespread use of the so-called "second-generation hybrid," which frequently was referred to as an F-2 seed. Hybrid was known as F-1.

Spain said the "F designations have never been used for generations of hybrids in terms of labeling until this year, the reason being that second generation seed from hybrids have never been recommended before. In fact it was recommended they not be planted."

He said "F" was terminology used by plant breeders, designating the filial or family generation of seed, but was not commonly accepted for use on labels of seed sold commercially.

"It seems to be in order to let the 'F' represent only one reference point on the seed label," said Spain.

He said provisions for labeling hybrid seed as such would eliminate confusion over the tag designations. The amendment would require the word "hybrid" on first generation seed.

It also provides that "second generation from hybrid seed, if sold, shall be labeled second generation of the parent, variety not stated."

"It's a technical thing," Spain said, explaining: "The first generation from a cross is hybrid and no other generation is. It's either hybrid or it's not."

Spain said the study committee that produced the amendment followed common usage in other states in permitting "variety not stated" on labels.

"We were trying to prevent any unnecessary barriers in wording or technical detail in the movement of seed from one state to another," he said.

"I'd like to see a varietal statement on everything. We'd never recommend to a farmer that he buy seed on which there was no variety stated."

In its editorial, the News-Argus contended use of the words "variety not stated" or "not specified" could create situations in which an "unscrupulous salesman can orally claim it to be anything he likes and the tag doesn't contradict it."

Spain said the phrase was "an alerting mechanism to the farmer. He's being told on the label that the man who packages the seed is not declaring any variety."

He said most of the seed law violations consist of technical problems or and were not "clear-cut cases of fraud."

Farm Exports Boosted U.S. Balance Of Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thriving sales of farm products overseas boosted the United States to a $1.4-billion foreign trade surplus during the first three quarters of the current fiscal year, the Agriculture Department announced Saturday.

Farm exports between July 1 last year and April 1 exceeded imports of agricultural products by $1.6 billion. That offset a $200 million deficit in nonfarm trade, the department said.

Officials said the figures were announced in anticipation of World Trade Week, which President Nixon has proclaimed for May 16-22.

For the entire fiscal year ending June 30, the Agriculture Department predicts U.S. farm exports will total a record high of $7.5 billion. Last year the value was $6.6 billion. The previous high was $6.8 billion in 1966-67.

The department, adding April estimates to the three-quarter export values, cited the following commodities gainers:

Cotton $400 million, up 45 per cent from the same period in 1969-70; wheat $925 million, up 34 per cent; and soybeans more than $1 billion, up 22 per cent.

There was no listing of bushels or other volumes in the announcement.

Lesser gains were reported for livestock and products, fruits and vegetables, nuts and feed grains.

Total feed grains exports for the 10-month period were valued at $970 million, up 14 per cent from a year earlier despite a $20 million decline in corn shipments, the department said.

Sorghums, taking up the slack in corn shipments, were put at an export value of $210 million, compared with $135 million a year earlier.

Plans Amnesty For Drug-Users

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Navy Secretary John H. Chafee says the Navy plans an amnesty program for drug users in the service who turn themselves in.

Chafee, in San Diego for a speech before the annual convention of the Navy League, told newsmen: "These individuals have got to have a real desire for rehabilitation. The amnesty will cover only those instances of drug use prior to a man's coming forward and asking for help.

Six Were Hurt

SIX INJURED . . . Both drivers and four passengers were injured in a 3:30 p. m. collision Friday at the intersection of NC 11 and 102 one-tenth of a mile west of Ayden. Investigating Highway Patrolman George Russ, who identified drivers of the two cars involved as Henry Bryan, 84, Swan Quarter and Mamie Peaden Daniel of Greenville, said four passengers in the Daniel car (foreground) were injured.

Oil Containment Testing Planned

FT. MACON, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard says a new type of oil containment barrier will be tested later this month in the war on oil spills.

The barrier can be dropped from the air.

The Coast Guard said the tests will be from May 24, to May 31, some 10 to 50 miles off Ft. Macon in the Atlantic. The containment system consists of inflatable barriers that float extending from 27 inches below to 21 inches above the surface.

The barrier may be deployed in several configurations. It can be used to surround the pollutant in a closed circle while its mooring system holds it in place. It can be anchored in a U-shape downcurrent from the spill so the pollutant will drift into its open mouth.

The first test is designed to demonstrate that the barrier will deploy from its package and can later be maneuvered from one configuration to another.

Two Coast Guard cutters from Fort Macon will assist in the tests, which will be conducted by engineers from Johns-Mansville Co.

The second test is designed to demonstrate in rough water that the barrier will hold together in several deployment configurations.

If tests one and two are successful, a full scale test of the oil containment barrier will be held in late June in the Gulf of Mexico.

Soybean oil, which is like crude oil in substance but is nontoxic will be used inthe tests. Up to 600 barrels of refined oil will be carefully poued on the water inside the barrier.

The barrier will be towed while technical observers record its performance in containing the soybean oil.

Sentence Delayed

Superior Court Judge Robert Martin has delayed until this week the sentencing of Julius Stewart Summrell, who was found guilty Friday of disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and assaulting an officer in connection with a July 6, 1970 incident at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

A 12-member jury panel found Summrell guilty following his trial which began last week. Defense attorneys requested and received an individual poll of the jurors following announcement of the verdict.

Judge Martin denied several motions by defense attorney Jerry Paul, including a motion for a mistrial, following the verdict.

Summrell was charged with assaulting Greenville police officer B. F. Phillips after the officer placed him under arrest on a disorderly conduct charge in the hospital's emergency room. Witnesses testified during the trial that Summrell was shot by the policeman during a struggle in the hospital's parking lot as a result of the incident.

'Demonstrators' Are Welcome

MILLVILLE, Utah (AP) — A group of Utah State University students plan a demonstration in this tiny northern Utah community next weekend and the townspeople are looking forward to it. The students say they will apply paint and make minor repairs where needed, plant shrubs and conduct a general cleanup of the small town, located several miles south of the Utah State campus.

"It is really refreshing," says Mayor John Clark, "to have some people really intrested in helping and not asking anything in return."

Sitter Was Out

CHICAGO (UPI)—A 4-month-old baby girl, left alone on a couch while the baby sitter went to the store, was killed when she was bitten and mangled by a 130-pound dog.

The sitter told police she was at the store for milk when the victim's brother, Troy, 7, let the family pet into the apartment.

The dog, Akeko, pushed Shenetta to the floor, picked her up by the head and began shaking her as if she were a doll, police said.

Troy told another neighbor who called the police. The child was pronounced dead on arrival at Evangelical Hospital.

Lang Assuming Duties In June

"My job here will be availing this great University of all the resources the government, foundations and individuals have to offer," Gen. John Albert Lang Jr. said at a news conference Friday afternoon.

Lang will assume his duties as vice president for external affairs for East Carolina University, "hopefully in June," he said. This is a newly created administrative post.

A native of Carthage, N. C., Gen. Lang, 61, is presently administrative assistant to the Secretary of the Air Force, a post he had held since 1964.

"I told Dr. Jenkins not long ago I feel I've been given a license to hunt; to hunt for ways to develop projects and programs for ECU. I've got a lot of people to meet and learning to do here, though."

On national issues, he expressed hope that the SST will yet be developed by the United States. He said he thought Nixon is moving as fast as is feasible in withdrawing troops from Vietnam.

JOHN A. LANG, Jr.

Elected By Ass'n

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — L. F. Amburn of the Chowan Herald in Edenton was elected president Saturday of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association.

Amburn succeeds Eugne Price of the Goldsboro News Argus. Also elected were Loyal Phillips of the Elizabeth City Advance, first vice president, and Tom Boney of the Alamance County News at Graham, second vice president. Ruth Grady of Warsaw was renamed secretary-treasurer.

New directors are: Price, Clyde Simmons Jr. of the Grifton Times, Jack Whichard of the Greenville Daily Reflector. Jim Wilson of the Wilmington Star-News and Claude Sitton of the Raleigh News and Observer.

The association scheduled its 1972 annual meeting for Elizabeth City.

Parading For Their Saints

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI)—Peasants paraded images of patron saints and built barricades with felled trees Saturday as fingers of lava oozed down the slopes of Mt. Etna toward their homes and farms.

Some farmers removed metal gates and fences to keep them from melting as lava approached scattered farms on the outskirts of Mile, Fornazzo and Sant Alfrio, three villages damaged in earlier eruptions at Europe's tallest volcane.

Peasants marched in the streets of the villages, carrying images of Saints Cyrinus, Alphius and Philadelpius, credited with saving the villages when Etna sent lava flowing within a few hundred yards of them in 1928.

Manning Gets 8-To-10 Years On Lesser Counts

An Ayden man charged in connection with a June 4, 1970 murder near Winterville was sentenced to not less than eight or more than ten years in prison Friday in Superior Court after he entered pleas of guilty to accessory after the fact and automobile larceny.

Judge Robert M. Martin handed down the active sentence following brief refresher testimony in the case of Henry Edward Manning, 27, of Ayden.

Manning has been charged with the murder of 15-year-old William Raymond Pearce near the youth's home west of Winterville but the state accepted pleas to the lesser charges in view of evidence brought out in December of 1970 during the trial of a co-defendant in the case, Owen Swanson Doss. Doss was found guilty and given a death sentence.

Solicitor Eli Bloom said that, in accepting the pleas, the state would nol pros the original charge of murder. Bloom told the court that he felt that "had it not been for the testimony of Manning (during the Doss trial), the conviction of Doss would not be as it is."

Bloom termed the June 4 incident the "most vicious, most cruel" crime he had "ever heard of in all of my life." The solicitor served as assistant to former solicitor Luther Hamilton during the Doss trial here.

Manning and Doss allegedly escaped from Sandy Ridge — a federal-state work release detention unit in Greensboro-High Point area — the day before the killing of young Pearce.

In sentencing, Judge Martin recommended that any sentence that may be handed down by a federal court as a result of Manning's escape from the prison unit run concurrently with the eight-to-ten year sentence given Friday.

No Time For N.C. To Retreat

It would be a great shame if the state did not act to provide the $450,000 needed to develop a vocational rehabilitation center here in Greenville.

Granted that money is tight in Raleigh, as evidenced by the governor's instructions to the Legislature that only $16 million in additional funds are available for distribution. However, it must also be remembered that a federal grant of $1,140,000 is now available and this money could be lost after July 1 if state and local funds are not available.

The Pitt Board of Commissioners have pledged $281,000 as the county's share of the total money needed for the center. This is no small amount for a county the size of Pitt to pledge.

The center is planned as one of five regional facilities in the state. It was recommended by the State Board of Education for its Division of Vocational Rehabilitation after a study authorized by the 1969 General Assembly.

Authorization of the center here is timely now because it could be constructed as a 55-bed wing to the new Pitt Memorial Hospital. This $11 million-or-more structure is now in the planning stages after Pitt voters authorized bonds for the county's share of the cost. Certainly it makes sense to plan the vocational rehabilitation wing right along with the new hospital.

Rehabilitation centers are now under development at Asheville, Winston-Salem and Charlotte. Greenville would be the next one followed by Fayetteville and a state rehabilitation institute at Chapel Hill.

Now is the time for the state to act on its share of the rehabilitation center cost. Lengthy study went into choosing the location in Greenville and with other developments in the medical field it is obvious the choice is entirely logical.

It is now up to the state to furnish its share of the funds needed for the center. We hope that the critical need will soon be recognized.

Perhaps Others Could Follow ECU's Example

On a note of levity, Gov. Scott wrote in his letter to ECU board chairman Robert Morgan that ECU was awaiting his decision on the medical school

"My experiences in higher education since I have been governor had led me to believe that the institutions did not want the governor or anyone else telling them what to do," he said. Perhaps we truly do live in the time of change."

Perhaps we do. Perhaps some other institutions of higher learning can follow East Carolina University's lead in this field, too.

Accident Made A Glassblower

By ANN CHIPLEY
(Rocky Mount Telegram)

As a sophomore in high school, he needed a special piece of glass equipment for a chemistry project and ordered it from a company in Richmond that specializes in laboratory supplies. It arrived broken.

"Well, $25 was about all I could see right then, and my father couldn't see that, so I called the company to see what they could do about it. They told me to come up and see them," Felts recalled.

The company glassblower worked during the day at the Philip Morris laboratory, so they sent Mert over to see him.

"I was fascinated!" he said.

Melons For The Teacher

"I always stopped and gave Johnny B. (the glassblower) a watermelon, along with just about everybody else, and watched him work."

The next summer, Mert approached the company about letting him come to work as an apprentice glassblower. Since they had no such program, they worked out a plan whereby he could work in the plant part-time and with Johnny B. part-time. He had trouble finding a place to stay, so Johnny B. took him home. He was hooked on glassblowing.

Felts worked at the job for two summers and then entered North Carolina Wesleyan. He played with it a little, as he says, for a couple of years at Wesleyan and then went to Salem Technical Institute in New Jersey, at that time the only school outside the Iron Curtain to offer glassblowing as an academic subject.

His apprenticeship enabled him to complete the two-year course in one year and resume his studies at Wesleyan.

Member of the Tribe

There are not many professional glassblowers around, but Mert Felts is one of them, a junior member of the American Scientific Glassblowers Society.

Watching him work is fascinating. He does all the scientific glass work at Wesleyan from salvaging broken instruments to building complex laboratory research equipment.

And in his spare time, he makes bud vases, swans, elephants and other decorative accessories, which he sells at the Wesleyan College Bookstore.

Mert taught a course in glassblowing at Wesleyan recently in which he had ten students. Most of them were chemistry majors, like himself, except for one who planned to be an architect and wanted to learn about the properties of glass for use in designing laboratory buildings.

"There is a slight trend toward using glass sinks and pipes in laboratories because it is resistant to more acids than standard lead pipe," Felts said. But then you would need a Mert Felts in every lab to repair the damage.

What does he do if he really ruins something, does it so badly that he can't heat it and remold it.

Blowing His Cool

"I used to keep a box of mason jars around just for that purpose," said Mert with a grin. "When I really loused up something, I would throw a mason jar against the wall. Very satisfying, and a lot less expensive than a $50 apparatus. Then I would rework the instrument."

Glass does not conduct heat so he can hold the tube or rod only a couple of inches away from the flame and not get burned. It does conduct light, however, and the light from the flame makes a spot like a flashlight wherever he points the glass rod.

Mert and his wife spend weekends travelling to glassblowing areas. They go to Jamestown or Williamsburg and he watches the glassblower while she admires the glassware.

Felts is a senior at North Carolina Wesleyan and will graduate at the end of this month. What will he do? What else . . . blow glass. He will work with Research Glass, a company specializing in special scientific equipment. The boss? Johnny B.

Law Conflicts With Strategy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — One day after the Supreme Court's unanimous decision approving school busing to eliminate the "last vestiges" of Southern school segregation, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell amazed top officials at the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) by showing up at Secretary Elliot Richardson's executive staff meeting.

Mitchell's appearance was the signal that another major battle inside the Nixon administration has broken out over the volatile Southern school issue. In Richardson's office, the battle lines were quickly drawn. It was the old story of civil rights in the Nixon administration, a Supreme Court decision colliding with the Southern strategy, creating deadlock and inaction.

Mitchell listened quietly, puffing his pipe, while Richardson, HEW Under Secretary John G. Veneman, civil rights adviser Martin Gerry, and other HEW officials discussed how to handle the surprising Supreme Court decision written by President Nixon's handpicked Chief Justice, Warren E. Burger.

When he finally spoke, Mitchell strongly counseled a "go slow" approach. Mitchell put his Justice Department on a go-slow course from the moment he took office, in line with the Nixon-Mitchell Southern strategy of avoiding political offense to the South.

Veneman then turned to Gerry, the No. 2 man in HEW's office of civil rights, and asked how his office felt about a go-slow policy. Gerry, adroitly hitting Veneman's fat pitch, said that the Court's decision seemed to leave little room for maneuver. HEW, he said, would have to renegotiate many desegregation plans and bring many Southern school districts into compliance with the high court's new ruling.

But that is exactly what the Southern strategy will not permit. If HEW started renegotiating all the desegregation plans approved prior to the Supreme Court's busing decision, the result could be precisely the anti-Nixon political backlash that Mitchell and the White House have been so careful to avoid.

Perhaps the best case of a Southern city whose schools would be radically transformed under the Supreme Court decision is Columbia, S.C., where only the high schools have been totally desegregated. Primary school desegregation plans were written under non-busing restrictions laid down by HEW long before the latest decision by the high court, and 20 such schools in Columbia are now either all-black or all-white. With limited busing, according to experts in HEW, these schools could be desegregated. As they read the Court's decision, renegotiating the desegregation plans for these schools is inescapable.

South Carolina is the home state of Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond, Mr. Nixon's indispensable Southern ally in 1968. Thurmond nearly broke with the Administration last summer over the loss of tax exemptions for white-only private academies. If HEW moves in hard now to enforce the busing decision, Thurmond will scream, with lots of Southern company. Yet, that is what Richardson's aides are strongly counseling the Secretary to do.

When Richardson's predecessor, Robert H. Finch, was running HEW, and again, Mitchell forced Finch to back down. But Richardson, an icy Yankee aristocrat, does not handle easily. Moreover, his own constituency back in Massachusetts is the most liberal in the nation.

The day after Mitchell's appearance at Richardson's executive staff meeting, Mitchell and Richardson went to the White House for talks with the President's top domestic aides. Result: no decision — although the aides kept repeating Mr. Nixon's own pledge to the South of conciliation, not coercion, on school desegregation. Then, last week, still another White House meeting was held, this one chaired by George Shultz,

Sunday Morning Notes

C. M. Morris, who lives in Hillsdale, said he awoke around 3:30 one morning last week to hear a scratching in his bedroom.

He turned on the light to find a small oppossum on the bureau scratching at his image in the mirror.

Morris said he captured the baby oppossum and plans to keep it awhile.

He said he searched the house over attempting to find where the animal gained entrance but found nothing.

"Let me have two small cups of water with two Alka-Seltzer in each one," she said.

When the clerk hesitated, the customer smiled.

"That's my husband's and my supper," she quipped.

The office staff told me that the kittens were only a few weeks old. They slept peacefully in the window and were taken home to their mother at night.

The kittens made no effort to leave the window since the jump to the floor was too much for them. Instead they seemed to enjoy the warmth of the window — and the attention of pretty girls to stop to smile at them.

Two friends were standing at the counter of a local store. One made a purchase and began to write a check.

"How do you spell three?" he asked.

And someone related a story to me that was supposed to be true.

Other Editors Say CPL Nuclear Plant

(The Durham Herald)

Carolina Power and Light Co.'s plans to build a huge nuclear generating plant in southwestern Wake County envision markedly increased demands for power in the Raleigh area in the future in development which the availability of power will generate.

The plans, too, follow the current pattern of building generating plants with tremendous capacity, using nuclear fuels instead of fossil fuels used in steam plants or water power in hydroelectric plants.

Nuclear generating plants respect the growing concern for protecting the enviornment. They do not pollute the air, as steam generating plants, using immense qualities of coal, do. Barring a nuclear accident — and every precaution is taken to prevent these — the principal pollution from a nuclear plant is thermal, from the use of water for cooling purposes.

In CP&L's plans provision is made in the huge cooling lake to prevent the thermal pollution of streams. Interestingly, there is the possibility of the commerical use of the warmer waters in the new science of aquaculture, in the production of vegetables in greenhouses built near the power plants.

The projected CP&L plant will use uranium-238, this uranium isotope found most abundantly in uranium ores. Uranium-238 is not fissionable, but when bombarded with neutrons it yields plutonium-239 which is a fissionable material, providing fuel for electricity generating reactors and atomic weapons.

By using a breeder type of reactor, now developed only on a small scale all the uranuim can be used for fuel, thus significantly reducing the cost of the fuel. The breeder reactor is in prospect for the not too distant future. Looming on the futures horizon beyond is atomic fusion which is not yet demonstrably feasible, since a way to produce a sustained chain reaction, as had been done with fission, has not yet been found.

Getting back to the CP&L proposed reactor the project in southwestern Wake promises to be, with its four generating units, a nuclear park. Its capacity of 3.6 million kilowatts will be equal to the present production of the entire CP&L system.

Urge Is Always There

By BENJAMIN BYCEL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The urge was always there.

Not a day went by in more than three years when Mike N., a $12,000-a-year salesman, had not gambled.

He bet on anything: horse races, ball games, cards, jaialai, roulette, slot machines, dice sweepstakes, even elections.

It was all the same to him. Action.

Sometimes he won. But not often. Even if he did win, he would never stop until he had lost all his winnings.

Mike N. was a compulsive gambler.

He had been gambling compulsively for 20 years and his life was a mess. He was $38,000 in debt to three banks, five finance companies, two shylocks and to friends and family. He was losing his job.

Mike N. and thousands of others affected by this little known sickness have joined together in an organization called Gamblers Anonymous.

Patterned after Alcoholics Anonymous, GA began in Los Angeles in 1957. Its founders were two men who, like Mike N., had a long history of trouble and misery because of an obsession to gamble.

Today, GA has more than 5,000 members in 160 chapters here and abroad. They meet regularly to discuss their mutual problems.

The only requirement for membership "is an honest desire to stop gambling," says their charter.

THINGS SEEN AND UNSEEN

We have come so to regard Jesus of Nazareth as the Man who taught people who to live practical and sensible lives that we often lose sight of the fact that his own thoughts dwelt a great deal of the time not upon earthly matters but upon heavenly.

Our Lord was always talking about heaven. He was always pointing men toward heaven. When his disciples came back after a preaching mission and reported in triumph that even the demons were subject unto them, his reply was, "Rejoice not that the demons are subject unto you, but rejoice that your names are written in heaven." He was always talking about heaven. We forget this sometimes, but we never should forget it.

For, as someone has said, "Jesus lived in eternity and only visited in time." To him heaven was the most important, and early existence was important only as it prepared men for the heavenly. Many people today feel that they have made great intellectual progress by getting away from what they call mystical ideas (some even call them superstitions) about the unseen world. But the greatest thinkers have been those who were deeply conscious that in the midst of time their acts were characterized by eternal significance.

If we would have the mind of Christ we must have minds who in dwell much on the reality and significance of heaven. "The things that are seen are temporal, but the things that are unseen are eternal." (II Corinthians 4:18)

Oversold On Ecology Warnings

By ELMER ROESSNER

The pendulum may not yet have swung the other way, but Ross J. Wilhelm, University of Michigan business economist, has.

Over the university's broadcasting service he suggested that doomsayers may be dulling the public appreciation of health and safety issues rather than alerting it.

Despite the barrage of warnings by "Ralph Nader and his many imitators," government directives and "political oratory," Prof. Wilhelm said, housewives continue to buy phosphate detergents, no-lead gas is not selling well, consumption of cigarettes rose 2 per cent last year, the first rise in two years. And in recent political campaigns, health, safety and environment did not play a large role.

The White Knights

"We also have been pounded incessantly by the anti-smoking crowd. We have heard that fish are dangerous to eat and we are in some kind of danger of mercury poisoning. We have been told that many of our foods are not nutritious, and that toys and dozens of other products are dangerous....

"We have seen Ralph Nader and his imitators galloping off in a dozen different directions playing to the grandstand as white knights who are going to save us all from our follies and the great hidden dangers in the world....

"The recent scare over mercury poisoning, for instance, leaves one wondering if any of the so-called experts know what they are talking about.

"We have seen fishing in the Great Lakes banned because of the discovery of mercury compounds in the fish. We have seen the government force the withdrawal of thousands of cans of tuna from the market because of the presence of mercury. We have seen industries such as paper making and chemicals damned because they dump mercury into our waters.

"And yet the government and the experts cannot tell us what levels of mercury in food are dangerous to humans over either the short run or the long run."

The Over-Sell

Prof. Wilhelm concluded that it is not yet clear that the environment is dying, but that there are indications that, because it has been oversold, the issue is dying.

That may be true. However, it has never been a political issue for the reason that no one has come out in favor of mercury in fish, or wasting the forests. Housewives and others forced the detergent industry to abandon nonbiodegradable detergents and they may end the sale of phosphated types.

No-lead gasoline is not selling well because the oil companies are heavily promoting regular gasolines. People are still moving out of the cities because of unsatisfactory air and water. Fish sales are down and many fishermen are on relief.

The cigarette companies have created the belief that filters remove dangers from cigarettes, but the big manufacturers have been getting into other lines with desperate speed and more than 40,000 people a year are still dying from lung cancer.

There may still be work for the white knights before their armour is completely blackened by smog and sulfur in the air.

Observations From Editorial Columns

YOU'RE TAKING HIPPIES TO LUNCH

We asked a non-working hippie recently: "How do you eat?" He smiled and responded: "My friends feed me. I've never been hungry."

"Where," we persisted, "do you friends get what they give you?" He smiled again, waved his hand and said: "Maybe they have wealthy parents."

That may be the story in some cases — but it's not the whole story. Bill Fiset wrote recently in the Oakland, Calif., Tribune about how you as a working taxpayer are financing hippies. Mr. Fiset gave the case of a specific hippie:

"He boasts that for 50 cents he buys $28 worth of (food) stamps. . . Each week he uses the stamps to buy exactly $27.51 worth of groceries and gets 49 cents back in cash as change, the maximum amount of cash change he can get on a purchase. The he adds one penny for the 50 cents to get his $28 worth of stamps for the next week. The fourth week of the month he sells his food stamps to friends for $15 cash. Thus in a month he's paid out 53 cents for $112 worth of stamps, for which he gets $83.53 worth of food and $14.47 net profit in cash. From the food stamp saleswoman: 'Can you imagine how this adds up when you have 15 hippie kids living in a commune house, all doing the same thing? No wonder they laugh at the Establishment.' No wonder welfare programs are in trouble."

You may be taking a hippie to lunch — without knowing about it. And the hippies are certainly taking you for a ride. — Chattanooga (Tenn.) News-Free Press

THE FISHING SEASON

This is the time of year blood rises in the veins of the millions of fishing Americans. From now until fall fish will be taken in the streams and lakes of every state—many of which have been frozen over during the winter.

What is it about fishing that attracts so many? One expert claims it's the natural instinct of hunting food — the basic drive to survive. Other factors are the break from the hectic pace of American life and the fellowship and beauty offered.

To help the beginner, and remind the non-expert, here are the basic rules of fishing: Best time is at dawn and dusk. The hour after a changing tide (in salt water) is good. If fish are spawning, fishing is almost invariably good, with any bait. The period just before bad weather is often good. If the bad weather lasts several days the period immediately afterward may be good again. A steady barometer is not as good as a rising or falling glass and falling pressure is generally better than a rising pressure. A slight wind to ripple the water is desirable. Follow these general rules and catch more fish! — Americus (Ga.) Times-Recorder

MEN ONLY

From our It-Was-Bound-To-Happen Department: A women's lib group is suing the Soap Box Derby people seeking to force them to include girls in the competition. Heretofore, they have been exculded.

It may be that the trial court will draw the line on some of this women's lib business. After all, it takes young men considerable time to get over their natural fear of women drivers. If female driving competition is introduced at a tender age, it could well be that young men would never recover from that trauma. — Charlotte (N. C.) News

WIPE-OUT

The state legislature just increased the fine for littering on North Carolina highways to $500 per violation.

That's fine. But it does put penalties for other highway offenses a little out of kilter. For instance, it is now a bigger crime to throw a Kleenex out the car window that it is to pass a stopped school bus. — Charlotte (N. C.) Observer

TARDY ADVICE

About a week after the April 15 deadline for filing federal income tax returns, Alvin Kolak, collection chief for the Internal Revenue Service's district office in Cincinnati, revealed a wrinkle in the tax laws few persons know about.

If a person's return shows that he owes the government money, a year's delay in filing can mean a fine of about 37 per cent on the unpaid balance. Mr. Kolak said, however, that although the law states everyone must file an income tax by April 15, the law does not impose a penalty for late filing on persons who are owed refunds. He said that persons due refunds can wait up to three years to file and still get their full refunds. Since about 50 per cent of the nation's taxpayers apply for refunds, Mr. Kolak said, half of the taxpayers really didn't have to worry about that April 15 deadline. NOW he tells us. — Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier

A 'SESAME STREET' FOR GROWN UPS?

"Oh, Sesame, may your kind increase" was our concluding statement of hope over a year ago when "Sesame Street," the Children's Television Workshop production, was assured a second annual lease on educational life.

Success and popular appeal of the hour-long weekday programs, which are broadcast on many education TV stations across the nation, have now promped the U.S. Office of Education to ask CTW to assist in developing adult instructional programs.

Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland Jr. says efforts will be made to extend the workshop's experience and talents into "areas such as the Right to Read, career education and environmental education."

Just how much adult viewing interest can be generated by such fields as difficult to speculate about, but experimentation should provide some answers. Instructional materials and timing, from one thing, could be correlated with new or existing adult educational courses.

This much seems certain. The $8-million spent in a year by CTW to entertain and trap many young minds into learning—at least five to six million preschoolers was the first-year estimate—is a tremendously efficient investment.

The taxpaying public should have great interest in seeing whether the creators of Sesame Street can meet the challenge of adult educational TV programming as successfully as they have with the tikes. —New Orleans (La.) Times-Picaynue

The Sin Of J. Edgar Hoover: He Did His Job

By J. J. KILPATRICK

The continuing attack on J. Edgar Hoover has a deeper significance, in my own view, than appears on the surface. Underlying the whole assault upon the aging autocrat of the FBI is a serious failure, at high levels, to accept some hard realities of the world we live in.

It is a truism that no man is indispensable, and the truism applies to Mr. Hoover as it applies to everyone else. It is quite possible — even probable — that the Bureau would benefit from the fresh viewpoint and revised procedures that a successor might bring to the director's office. Bureaucracies pick up barnacles like ships; they ought to have their hulls cleaned now and then. .

Yet it is regrettable that this controversy should have focused so intently upon the age, the character, and the personality of Mr. Hoover himself. Granted, in recent months the Director has not helped his own case; and because the Bureau is his own lengthened shadow, he has not helped the FBI greatly either. Half a dozen incidents have contributed to a public impression of a vain and thin-skilled tyrant, petulant and vindictive; and if this impression has been happily overblown by a hostile press and a gaggle of liberal politicians, Mr. Hoover himself has provided the ingredients for his critics to work with.

All this is a pity, for the hostility to J. Edgar Hoover rests upon attitudes that have little to do with the testiness of an old man. The complaint against Mr. Hoover, at bottom, is that he has done those tough and distasteful things that have to be done by an effective FBI in the world we live in. He has not flinched from the dark side of police work. His sin is to make comfortable men uncomfortable.

By way of example: Senator Edmund S. Muskie, in demanding the Director's resignation, was aghast to discover that the FBI had assigned agents to certain Earth Day rallies in April of 1970. In a speech to the Senate on April 14, Mr. Muskie was filled with rhetorical anguish:

"If there was widespread surveillance of Earth Day last year, is there any political activity in the country which the FBI doesn't consider a legitimate subject for watching? If anti-pollution rallies are a subject of intelligence concern, is anything immune? Is there any citizen involved in politics who is not a potential subject for an FBI dossier?"

Well, one sighs; and one contemplates the prospect that Mr. Muskie may sweep into the White House next year, trailing such clouds of gauzy stuff around him; and one gives thanks, unexpectedly, for the leathery sinews of a Lyndon Johnson and the guts of a Richard Nixon.

The gentleman from Maine is a good man. He shrinks from evils. His instinctive assumption is that all those who attend anti-pollution rallies are as pure as the springs of Moosehead Lake. The FBI knows better. Among those attending the Earth Day programs of 1970 were a number of radical activists, entirely capable of inciting riots and triggering violence. At a very minimum, good police work demands that these dangerous men — and women — be kept under close surveillance.

But surveillance is a dirty word. The very thought is abhorrent to the ideals of a free society. And the sin of J. Edgar Hoover, again, is that he is capable of thinking abhorrent thoughts — not merely of thinking them, but of acting on them also. The lamentable truth is that men are indeed less than angels, and some men are a great deal less than angels. Ours is not exclusively a world of kindly senators and earnest ecologists; it is also a world of ruthless terrorists.

Well, it is said, Senator Muskie knows that. Everyone knows that. But knowledge lies in the subconscious in layers of perception. The task of an FBI director — any FBI director — is to know crime, to fight it as a general wages war, and to deploy his own troops and weapons to maximum advantage. This has been the genius of J. Edgar Hoover. When at last he steps down, we ought to pray for a successor equally capable of thinking those abhorrent thoughts that gentle senators abhor.

Much Assembly Support For Increased Salary Of District Court Judges

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — There is a proposal before the North Carolina General Assembly to increase the salary of District Court Judges from $17,000 to $20,000 a year. The bill would also increase solicitors' salaries to $18,000 annually.

There is much support in the Assembly for this legislation and it's expected to pass.

Lawyers serving in the legislature say it's becoming harder and harder to get qualified attorneys to run for judgeships and serve as solicitors.

Most attorneys can make more in private practice and the legislature hopes the proposed salaries will make the court positions more attractive.

One lawyer in the General Assembly told me: "One reason, the state loses so many jury cases is because the defense attorney is often more capable than the prosecutor. Raising the salary of the solicitor should help us get better men to take those jobs."

House Speaker Phil Godwin is doing a lot of testing of the political waters these days. He wants to run for lieutenant governor and he's trying to drum up support for that effort.

There continues to be serious talk here that two political veterans on the Tar Heel scene — State Treasurer Edwin Gill and Secretary of State Thad Eure — will be opposed by serious candidates next year. Eure has told me that he definitely plans to seek reelection.

Guilford Sen. Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles continues to carry a low-key posture in the legislature. As a matter of fact, it's been so low-key that some people are wondering if Bowles is really serious about running for Governor. His two most likely opponents in the Democratic primary, Lt. Gove. Pat Taylor and Attorney General Bob Morgan, command headlines almost daily. But Bowles definitely is going to run and furthermore, he knew before the legislature opened that Taylor and Morgan would beat him in news space while the legislature is in session. Bowles wants his campaign to peak at the right time — and you'll be hearing plenty from him in late summer.

Carl Horn Jr., the new president of Duke Power Co., once sued the utility firm — and his legal opponent in the case was William McGuire, the man Horn succeeded as president of Duke. By the way, Horn won the case in lower court, but Duke Power appealed and McGuire won in the appelate court. The two men became close friends.

To The Editor:

The Pitt County Commissioners seek a 33 1-3 percent increase in the general sales tax, because they say it would give "a broader tax base and ease pressures on the ad valorem tax program."

Consider first the meaning of "broader tax base." This means that everybody must pay this tax. The implication is that some are not now taxed. The truth is that no one now escapes taxation. All pay the 3 percent sales tax. Almost all pay property tax on owned real or personal property or through the payment of rent pay the landlord's property tax. Indeed everybody should be taxed — but fairly. The trouble with increasing the general sales tax is that this tax is the most unfair type of tax we have. It does not burden everyone alike. It is wholly regressive. It affects a disproportionately large part of the income of the little fellow. It falls hardest on the near-poor and poor who must pay tax on all the necessities they purchase. The well-to-do are not hurt by it at all. Indeed the true and totally selfish purpose of this sort of tax is to shift the burden of additional taxes from the haves to the have-nots. There are no loopholes at the check-out counter for the people who barely make ends meet.

Consider second "to ease pressures on the ad valorem tax program." It is well known that ad valorem property taxes are relatively low in Pitt County. Yet the Commissioners' idea is to shift this much of the tax burden from large wealth to the restricted income of most people including the downright poor. The intent is to elevate property over people.

There is only one just answer for the voters to give on May 25. They should vote No!

Today is Sunday, May 16, the 136th day of 1971. There are 229 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1960, a Big Four summit conference in Paris collapsed as the Soviet Union leveled charges against the United States after an American U2 reconnaissance plane was shot down over Russia.

On this date:

In 1770, Marie Antoinette was married to King Louis XVI of France.

In 1775, the first state constitution in the United States was adopted by Massachusetts.

In 1929, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences awarded its first Oscars. The winners were Janet Gaynor and Emil Jannings.

In 1935, a mutual assistance pact was signed by the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

Ten years ago: President John F. Kennedy arrived in Ottawa, Canada, for his first visit outside the United States since taking office.

Five years ago: There was fighting in Da Nang in South Vietnam as army troops seized control of the city from rebel military units allied with Buddhist insurgents.

One year ago: Israel claimed it had shot down seven Egyptian warplanes in three days in fighting along the Suez Canal.

GA program stresses over and over that "gambling is a sickness that can never be cured, only arrested."

The compulsive gambler is expected to follow GA rules and attend meetings regularly for the rest of his life.

"When a member attends his first meeting, he is usually skeptical about GA," said Bernie P. "Gamblers see themselves as big shots and don't want to be associated with losers."

Once admitted to the group, the new member is urged never to make another bet. No friendly card games. Not even a raffle ticket or bingo.

At the meetings, new and old members stand up and give "confessionals" about their gambling exploits. In GA terminology this is called "giving therapy."

All must start by admitting to themselves and the group that they are powerless concerning gambling.

"I am a compulsive gambler," each member states as he begins his therapy.

The stories are mostly all the same. Years of lying, cheating and stealing to support their habits. The 3Ls of gambling, "Lies, Loans and Larceny," are heard again and again.

What causes a man to gamble compulsively?

Dr. Bergler, author of the "Psychology of Gambling," wrote:

"Compulsive gamblers, through being denied something essential in their childhood, come to find perverse pleasure in self-punishment."

"Almost without exception, the compulsive gambler wants to lose—in fact needs to lose," added Dr. Cham Shatan, an NYU psychiatrist. "A pathological gambler can't quit anything a winner."

GA claims to help at least 25-30 per cent of those who join. "We have the most success with married men," said one member of a New York chapter. "It's much harder for single men to stop gambling because they have no one to relate to at home."

All the work of GA, including operating a 24-hour special telephone number for gamblers in trouble, is done by GA members themselves. GA has no national officers and each chapter is autonomous. The national headquarters, which serves as a center for information and assistance to the chapters, is in Los Angeles.

GA also has a group for wives and girl friends of addicted gamblers, called Gamanon. The purpose of the ladies auxiliary is to teach the women how to better understand and assist their husbands in overcoming gambling.

"I learned that the worst thing I could do for my husband was to give him money for gambling," said Ruth N., whose husband had been gambling for 25 years.

In Time, Dollar Crisis Abroad Can Mean Higher Prices At Home

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt once assured the American people they need not worry about the rising national debt because "we owe it to ourselves."

This was back in the depression times of the 1930s. Roosevelt was piling deficit on top of deficit and many were starting to worry that inflation would result and erode the value of the dollar. The remark was intended to combat these fears.

What Roosevelt did was draw a distinction between internal debt — debt held by a country's own nationals—and external debt—debt held by other nations or their nationals. This distinction was valid at that time.

With no significant claims against the U. S. in foreign hands, Roosevelt felt the country was free to pursue its own policies without the risk of sudden and upsetting demands being made from abroad. But the situation today is radically different.

The U.S., over the years has built a huge debt abroad. And what's so unsettling about it is that the debt is in the form of what amounts to a demand note—can be presented for settlement at any time.

This, when you cut through the involvements, is what the most recent dollar crisis is all about. Foreign holders of this debt—dollars, not long term securities—don't like what they think they see ahead for this country. So they have been trying to "invest" their dollars in money they think is more erosion proof, such as the German mark and the Swiss Franc.

Washington has to be more concerned over this problem than has been admitted by official statements. Obviously, what it wants is another prop under the international exchange structure to avoid any meaningful action. The latter would call for some sort of austerity program at a time when political reality is forcing President Nixon to pump up the economy at the risk of even greater future inflation.

It is the prospect of greater inflation here in the U. S. which the foreign dollar holders fear. There are ways they could seek cover. The difficulty is that all options probably would end in a greater disaster than simply depending for a while longer on new props under the dollar and the Internation Monetary Fund, which is supposed to stabilize international exchange.

Dollars owned abroad total somewhere between $50-billion and $60-billion. They have piled up for many reasons—government aid, military spending, foreign travel, imports of goods, and importantt in recent times, investment by U. S. companies taking advantage of lower production costs in their bid for world markets.

The foreign holders of dollars could, of course, spend the money for U. S. goods, at least in theory. High U. S. prices, driven higher by inflation, discourage this. Also, a flood of U. S.-made imports would badly upset foreign economics.

The dollars could, again in theory, be sent to the U. S. Treasury for repayment in gold. The trouble with this is that all the gold the U. S. Treasury has in Fort Knox wouldn't be enought to pay off 25 cent on the dollar. And, besided the loss involved, any such move would destroy whatever stability now exists in internation exchange.

Under the circumstances, the most obvious thing that could be done would be to stablilize the purchasing power of the dollar. This would not be without pain. It would mean that the U.S. would have to pull in its long spending horns both abroad and at home. And neither seems likely.

Thus, the best to expect is new props which may restore the appearance of dollar stability in foreign exchange. The U. S. may even be forced to offer special investment inducements, such as a high yielding U. S. bond to foreign central banks to keep the foreign dollars out of circulation, so to speak.

The whole issue may seem very remote and, thus, unimportant to the individual, the consumer, here in the U. S. actually, though, it will have an impact on his pocketbook in the form of higher prices he pays for many things.

Imports have a way of serving as a control on many domestic prices, even if it is a limited control. When a foreign country "devalues" the dollar, it means that the products of that country coming onto the U. S. market will come at a higher price.

Thus, the weakness of the dollar abroad will contribute, in time, to inflation here. Roosevelt would need to amend his remarks.

Joan Sutherland Season Mapped

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Sutherland will sing an operatic heroine she has never portrayed before, during the 1971-72 season, and two she has never before sung in the United States.

In October she will sing, for the first time, the title role of Donizetti's "Maria Stuarda" in a new production at the San Francisco Opera.

On Feb. 18 she will sing Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment" at the Metropolitan Opera. The Covent Garden production, where she has sung it previously, will be imported by the Met.

Miss Sutherland also will sing Rossini's "Semiramide" with the Chicago Lyric Opera Sept. 24.

This summer Miss Sutherland will record three operas, all the heroines in Offenbach's "The Tales of Hoffmann," "Lucia di Lammermoor" a second time and "Rigoletto."

Credence Four Becomes A Trio

Music Is The Only Action

Jazz Artists Eager To Play Newport

LIQUEMAN LATEEF of the Sunny Murray Orchestra, wails away on the sax at opening of the 1969 Newport Jazz Festival. Thousands are expected to attend the 1971 event. (UPI Telephoto)

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Newport is a long way from New Orleans but during a brief period each summer it becomes the nation's major jazz attraction.

The beautiful Rhode Island city gained this prominence because George Wein refused to believe reports that jazz was dying.

Eighteen years ago, the rotund pianist staged the first Newport Jazz Festival with a low budget and high expectations. The venture was a success and Wein began a rewarding career as an impresario.

The 1971 festival starts on July 2 and ends on the night of July 5. During that weekend thousands of jazz lovers from all parts of the country will hear the music of Duke Ellington, Buddy Rich, Ray Charles, Dizzy Gillespie, Charles Mingus, Ornette Coleman, Miles Davis, Cannonball Adderley, Dave Brubeck, B.B. King, George Shearing, Aretha Franklin and others.

Little Change

Wein has no problem in obtaining the best jazz musicians for the annual Newport event.

"Most artists are eager to participate in festivals now because they realize the public relations value," Wein said.

He said the profile of the audiences has shown little change over the years.

"The percentage of teenagers to adults remains about the same," Wein said. "The Newport Jazz Festival is a truly integrated event—black and white, young and old. Now parents from earlier festivals bring back their growing children. Younger brothers and sisters come because their older brothers and sisters came in earlier years. Our young people have changed only in costume, not in appreciation."

Wein said the nature of the Newport festival minimizes crowd misconduct.

'Music the Attraction'

"We encourage people to come for the music," Wein said. "We don't advertise a week of love, pot and organic foods. The music is the only attaction. You create your own fun. Any other way really plays the music cheap. Jazz is too great for that. Our crowds are not disorderly. Occasionally, a little trouble from non-festival goers creates a minor nuisance. But the Newport Council has voted unanimously for the festival."

Wein's success at Newport encouraged him to promote jazz elsewhere.

"We do major festivals in the United States in Cincinnati and Hampton, Va.," he said. "We started the Ohio Valley Jazz Festival in Cincinnati in 1962 and this year, on July 31, is our 10th anniversary. It is held in Riverfront Stadium and we will have crowds of 25,000 people. Actually it is bigger for one night than Newport. Among the artists who will appear this year are Dizzy Gillespie, Roberta Flack, Roland Kirk, B.B. King, Lou Rawls, Herbie Mann, Billy Eckstine, and Cannonball Adderley."

Some of the artists participating in the Ohio Valley Festival will have appeared on June 25-26 at Hampton.

Government Citations

"We started four years ago in association with Hampton Institute," Wein said. "Our present ambassador to Sweden, Dr. Jerome Holland, was then president of Hampton Institute. He is an old friend of my wife and mine. Now the city and school are my partners and the festival is a fantastic success."

Wein, who only last march received a citation from the U.S. State Department for helping to create friendly relations abroad through jazz, said his travels all over the world give him the feeling of an intense interest in the music.

"Jazz can never die as long as musicians want to play it," Wein said. "It doesn't die because it can never become too popular. It will never really appeal to more than two per cent of the population at any one time. But in the U.S.A. that gives us four million jazz fans. Jazz is the greatest music a musician can play because it is the most personal and most self-satisfying. This is why it will never die."

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Hope will have six specials on the NBC air in 1971-72. He's been on the tube since 1950; before that on radio beginning in 1938.

---

The first project announced for "The New CBS Friday Movies," due in the fall as a made-for-video film series, is Arthur Hailey's adaptation of his "Runway Zero 8," story, dealing with trying to land an airliner whose pilot and co-pilot have become ill. Hailey is author of the best-selling novel, "Airport."

---

"Make Your Own Kind of Music" is a summer series that NBC will introduce July 6—Tuesdays from 8 to 9 p.m.—with the brother-sister team, the Carpenters, as starring hosts with their singing and instrumental work. Regulars also will be the Doodletown Pipers and singer Mark Lindsay. There will be a major musical guest star and rotating guest comedians weekly.

"The Six Wives of Henry VIII" will be aired by CBS as a series of six 90-minute dramas about the British monarch's marital problems. The first, "Catherine of Aragon," will be broadcast Aug. 1 at 9:30 p.m. The other five will be on consecutive Sundays through Sept. 5. Keith Michell, who just closed on Broadway as co-star of "Abelard and Heloise," plays Henry in this made-in-Britain series.

The "NBC World Premiere Movie" series for the coming season will include "The Hanress," based on a John Steinbeck story and starring Lorne ("Bonanza") Greene and Julie Sommars. Unmarried young woman and her son complicate the life of a farmer with an invalid wife.

HopelessnessMarks Andy Warhol Movie

TRASH, now showing at the Park Theater, is a relentless study in human despair. This penetrating study of a segment of society in our times opens on a note of hopelessness and ends with a conviction there is no solution, no possible answer to the sordid, terrible vacuum in life faced by the protagonist, who has become sexually and spiritually impotent by virtue of drug addiction.

The ultimate tragedy is in the realization the young man around whom this film revolves is totally beyond caring, or hoping, and thus beyond redemption.

Andy Warhol, a well known American artist (painter of realistic over-sized Campbell Soup Cans, Brillo Boxes, and flowers), is also a leading factor in the so-called underground film world. In TRASH, Warhol has almost succeeded in spinning out a compelling story that in its own fragmented way takes a look into the abyss that addiction leads to, in the physical destruction of the body and the loss of moral and human values.

Whether his visual treatment is valid is questionable. The nudity in this handsomely produced film often tends to override rather than complement the story thread. Too great a reliance on the human anatomy palls. A subtle approach would have been more effective than so much direct confrontation. After all, the human face and hands are more expressive vehicles of story telling than the loin.

The basic weakness of TRASH is the degrading limited dialogue. Four letter obscenities in a relentless barrage results in an abrasiveness that destroys instead of builds an atmosphere. The dialogue comes to life only in a few scenes where the monotonous flow of obscenities is minimized, notably in the scenes where the protagonist encounters a non-stop chattering female and another time in an interview with a welfare worker.

There are some fortunate moments when Warhol the artist shines through. In several frames, the profile of a face, a close-up of a forearm, tensed and knotted to receive a needle, or a nude body framed by tender light creates visual statements in film as magnificant as masterful Michaelangelo or Rembrandt drawings.

TRASH falls short of being the minor masterpiece it could have been. In the final analysis, the blatancy of the language and overemphasis on nudity win out. Had Warhol subordinated the more sensational aspects of TRASH to the basic story, this could have been a memorable film.

THE WHITE DAWN: AN ESKIMO SAGA. James Houston, Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, New York, 1971. 275 pp. $6.95.

THE WHITE DAWN has been appropriately described by its author, James Houston, as an "Eskimo saga," for in the true sense it is not a novel but a narrative about the destruction of a strong and powerful Eskimo hunter and his village. The tale, Mr. Houston tells us, is "based on true events" that took place on the coast of remote West Baffin Island, was kept alive in the oral tradition, and was finally related to him during his twelve-year stay in the Canadian eastern Artic after World War II

The theme, the corruption of a primitive society by the arrival of white men, is not new. Neither is his suggestion that the seeds of jealousy and pride within the people themselves brought about their destruction. But it is clear from the beginning that Mr. Houston's purpose was not to develop a thesis but to recapture in an idyllic picture the culture of a remote Eskimo village of seventy-five years ago. This he has done well.

The tale is narrated by a young Eskimo, Avinga, who lives in the igloo of Sarkok, the wise and powerful hunter. Because he is a cripple and an outcast by birth, Avinga is not directly involved in the events and is able to report objectively. Through his eyes the reader sees the arrival of three half-frozen men, lost from a New Bedford whaling vessel, and sees the impact of these men on the gentle, primitive culture living in harmony with nature and with reverence for all life. The weather, Avinga says, "was our only master." All believed this except Sarkok, who occasionally acted "as though he thought himself stronger than the weather, as though he could control everything." It is when he loses control of the three strangers, whom he has befriended and yet regarded as his possessions, that Sarkok is broken and the village dissolved. Only Avinga survives to tell the tale.

The choice of Avinga as narrator is a wise one for the author's purposes. Through Avinga he is able to weave pictures of the Eskimo customs, attitudes, superstitions, and taboos in a natural and sympathetic way. Mr. Houston handles these details skillfully, rarely permitting them to overwhelm the narrative. Avinga also provides an innocence and an aesthetic distance necessary to draw contrasts between the civilized and primitive cultures. Through Avinga's eyes the distinct personalities of the three strangers gradually emerge, and though they are individualized, their common culture stands in contrast with that of the Eskimo. No more clearly is this contrasted than in the two village dances, one marked by grace, child-like innocence and the other by frenzy and lust aroused by the white men's fermented berries. This last episode marks the climax of the story when the Eskimo see the strangers for the first time not as "clumsy overgrown children" but as "strong men, with anger hidden deep inside themselves."

All this Mr. Houston has told in admirable prose, weaving in the suggestion of a love story and at the same time keeping the emphasis where his major interest lies—in the culture of Eskimo people. The author's own drawings of implements and other objects of Eskimo life which illustrate the book are further testimony of his principal purpose. Nevertheless, the story is an interesting one.

The author, a professional artist, knows his subject well. He has long been active in the promotion of Eskimo arts and is credited with discovering the Eskimo culture, he received the American Indian and Eskimo Cultural Foundation Award in 1966.

Regrettably, however, the reader is left with the feeling that, despite the merits of the book and Mr. Houston's obvious knowledge, he has gained few fresh insights or an understanding that he did not have before. In this way THE WHITE DAWN is disappointing. —Dorothy Z. Mills

Music on Campus

As the East Carolina University spring quarter nears an end, Music on Campus reflects a last minute flurry of student recitals, with nine junior and senior recitals on schedule, some joint ones, during the coming week. The week of music opens with a major spring concert today.

—SUNDAY, May 16, 3:15 p.m. — Wright Auditorium, Spring Concert, ECU Symphony Orchestra, Robert Hause, Conducting. Soloists Linda Green and Donna Stephenson. Miss Green will sing Mozart's "Bella mia Fiamma, K. 528," and Miss Stephenson will sing four songs from Mahler's "Lieder eines fahrenden Gesellen." Selections by the orchestra will include "Et Incarnatus Est," from the "Grand Mass in C Minor" by Mozart and the major work of the program, Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 6 in B Minor."

—MONDAY, May 17, 8:15 p.m. — Senior recitals, voice. Rebecca H. Sabiston of Lenoir (Recital Hall) and William Modlin of Carthage (Concert Studios). Miss Sabiston will sing Handel's "So Shall The Lute and Harp Awake;" "Un Moto di Gioja" from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro;" three songs by Mahler; Hahn's "Si Mes Vers Avaient des Ailes;" "Offrande;" and "Fetes Galantes;" Beckwith's "Staircase of Jade," and "On A Rainy Night;" and "Steal Me" from Menotti's "The Old Maid and The Thief." Modlin does not list his selections.

—TUESDAY, May 18, 8:15 p.m. — Bette L. McIntyre of Charlotte, violin, and Marsha Lynn Wade of Virginia Beach, Va., oboe. Miss McIntyre will perform three works — Bach's "Sonata No. 4 in C Minor;" Dancla's "Two Airs Varies;" and "Cavatina" by Badings. Miss Wade does not list selections. She will be accompanied by Gary Wages, piano, Michael Parker, harpsichord, Deborah Reed, flute, and Barbara Smith, cello.

—WEDNESDAY, May 19, 8:15 p.m. — Joint Recital, voice, June Laine, Richmond, Va., and Sheila Marlowe, Greenville. Miss Laine will sing Schubert's "Der Hirt auf dem Felsen;" Charpentier's "Depuis Le Jour" from "Louise;" "Vocalise" by Holoman; "Noel des Enfants de France," Debussy; Douglas Moore's "Willow, Where We Met Together;" and two duets with male vocalist William Mayer, Handel's "Israel in Egypt" and "Barbara, What Have You Done?". For her part of the joint recital, Miss Marlow will sing "Seufzer, Tranen, Kummer, Not" from Bach's "Cantata No. 21;" Mozart's "Misera, Dove Son;" Wolf's "Heut'nacht erob ich mich" and "Was soll der Zorn;" Chausson's "Le Temps des Lilas;" Massanet's "Il Est Doux, II Est Bon," from "Herodiade;" and Stravinsky's "Two Poems and Three Japanese Lyrics." The two singers will be accompanied by Walton Ferrell, piano; Al Valotta, clarinet, Michael Parker, piano, Marsha Wade, oboe, and Nancy Kosteck, cello.

—THURSDAY, May 20, 8:15 p.m. — Joint recital, piano, Roy Anderson Davis, Jr. and Alma Louise Hassell. Davis will perform the "Rondo in C Major, Opus 51, No. 1" by Beethoven; Schumann's "Papillons" and Gershwin's "Preludes." Miss Hassell's selections are: Beethoven's "Cello Sonata, Opus 5, No. 2" with Mrs. Barbara Smith, cello; Scriabine's "Prelude and Nocturne, Opus 9, Nos. 1 and 2;" and Skryabin's "Sonata, Fantasy, Opus 19, No. 2 in G Sharp Minor."

—SATURDAY, May 22, 8:15 p.m. — Jacqueline G. Somers, voice. Miss Somers, a regular performer with the ECU Opera Theater and a member of the Chamber singers, does not list her selections.

All programs, except the voice recital of William Modlin in the Concert Studios on the second floor of the Music Building, will be held in the Recital Hall (Fletcher Building), on East Tenth Streeet.

The public is invited to the free concerts.

Daingerfield Show To Open May 23

Elliott Daingerfield's "Field and Sky"

The retrospective exhibition of paintings and drawings by Elliott Daingerfield, closing today at the Mint Museum in Charlotte, will open at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh on Wednesday, May 26.

To inaugurate the exhibition, a reception honoring members of the General Assembly will be held from 6:00 to 9:00 p.m. on the 26th. An informal one, it will be open to the public.

Daingerfield moved to Fayetteville in 1861 at the age of two. In 1879 he went to New York to study, and settled there following a trip to Europe. His ties with North Carolina continued strong, for he maintained a summer home in Blowing Rock.

A painter primarily of landscapes and religious subjects, he loved painting the mountains of North Carolina. The West was another source he drew from frequently for landscapes of grand vistas.

The State Museum owns three of his finest painting — "The Grand Canyon," "Evening Glow," and "Field and Sky"

Mint Has Busy Month

CHARLOTTE — May has been, and continues to be, a busy month for the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte. One of the major attractions of recent years at the Mint has been the Elliott Daingerfield retrospective exhibition, which ends today at 5:00 p.m.

An announcement was made earlier in the month that another of the late North Carolina artists' painting has been acquired for the museum's permanent collectionl "Figures In Landscape" was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Vinson and Mrs. George Roberts. With the purchase of 12 paintings and 70 drawings from the Retrospective Exhibition added to the museum's Daingerfield collection, this gives the Mint the prominence of being the Elliott Daingerfield Center.

Next Sunday, the 11th Annual Piedmont Painting and Sculpture Exhibition opens at the Mint. It will be on view until July 18. Richard Lippold was the juror. The 11th annual is an event of major importance in North Carolina. At the public opening from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m., a "Happening" is scheduled which is billed as "an idea that must be experienced."

In the BBB (Browse, Borrow and Buy) Gallery at the Mint, the current show is one of drawings and sculptures by Charlotte native Elsie Shaw. Her works appear in permanent collections in Charlotte, the Spring Mills Collection of Lancaster, S.C., and the Mint Museum. She has been featured in American Artist Magazine.

At the 16th Wedgwood International Seminar in San Francisco from May 13 through May 15, at the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum, Charlotte and the Mint Museum was represented by the Marret Wheelers, Daisy Bridges and Mellany Delhom.

North Carolina's Show Place For Young Talent

Exciting Developments At NCSA

WINSTON-SALEM — North Carolina's young show place of the arts, the North Carolina School of the Arts (NCSA) in Winston-Salem, is a place where exciting things happening is an almost daily occurenece.

Three major events within the span of the past few weeks — one of a human interest nature, the other two concerning future plans — are typical of the march of progress being experienced by this state supported center with the accent on talented youth.

The seventh NCSA dance student to be signed with Le Grande Ballet Canadiens de Montreal, of Montreal, Canada, was recently announced. David Graniero, an 18 year old college freshman majoring in dance, was recommended by Dean of Dance Robert Lindgren for this honor.

Graniero has danced in several NCSA productions, including "Flick Flack," "Summer Night," the world premiere of Agnes de Mille's "A Rose for Miss Emily" and the traditional Christmas performance of "The Nutcracker Ballet."

In the Montreal Company, under the direction of Ferdinand Nault, Graniero joins the Canadian ballet corps in a tour of major U.S. and Canadian cities. He will dance in two productions, the first rock ballet "Tommy," and a new ballet, "Hip and Straight."

An announcement has been made by Robert Ward, President of NCSA, that two major American musicians, cellist Janos Starker and violinist Josef Gingold have been signed to present monthly repertory seminars at NCSA next year.

Both Starker and Gingold hold the title of Distinguished Professor of Music at the Indiana University. Ward revealed that the newly appointed Dean of the School of Music at NCSA, Nicholas Harsanyi, laid the groundwork for securing the services of the two noted string soloists. "Their presence as they present their repertory seminars to our students will be a stimulation of immense value," Ward commented.

Starker is a native of Budapest, Hungary and has held the chair of first cellist with the Budapest Opera and Philharmonic Orchstras, the Dallas Symphony, the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra and the Chicago Symphony. He records for Deutsche Grammophon, Mercury, and Angel Records.

Gingold served as concertmaster and soloist with the Detroit Symphony, the Cleveland Orchestra and was a member of the NBC Symphony under Toscanini. During the past year, Gingold has given master classes at the National Conservatoire de Musique in Paris and was guest teacher at the Toho School of Music in Tokyo.

In long range plans, the North Carolina School of the Arts has engaged the architectural firms of Hardy, Holzman, Pfeiffer Associates of New York and Lashmit, Brown and Pollock of Winston-Salem for a threefold development program.

Working as a team, the two firms will survey the campus of NCSA and other facilities in Winston-Salem, and develop a master plan for the campus, including recommended new buildings. The two firms will also design those new buildings recommended.

President Ward commented that the highest priority in campus development is a new library. Funds have been requested from the legislature. The proposed building has already been designed by Colvin, Hammill and Walter of Winston-Salem, and would also include a small recital hall.

Art Notes

Several Greenville artists were among winners at the Rocky Mount Sidewalk Art Show last Sunday in Rocky Mount. A first in sculpture went to Nancy Monroe for "Sleeping Horse;" to Madeleine Brake, needlecraft for "Joy to the World;" and Best of Crafts to Dede Clegg for a sterling silver necklace.

Pitt County Schools Show Opens Today

Twenty-two elementary schools of Pitt County have contributed to the Annual Pitt County School Children's Art Center.

A reception at the center from two to five this afternoon is being held to honor the children, their teachers and parents.

The Chamber Ensemble of Farmville Junior High School, under the direction of Wilson Nichols, Jr. will furnish special music.

The public is invited to attend this final group show of the 1970-71 art season. The show will remain on view for two weeks.

Dr. Stewart Bequest To Art Center

A bequest was revealed by the executors of Dr. Stewart's estate. A loyal supporter of the Art Center from the time he first settled in Greenville, Dr. Stewart was a member of the Board of Directors of the East Carolina Art Society at the time of his death last March.

Since the educator's death, a number of contributions in his memory have been received by the Art Center. To date more than a dozen gifts have been given.

Awards Postponed

RALEIGH — The annual North Carolina Awards Dinner, usually held in May, has this year been postponed until the fall, according to William D. Snyder of Greensboro, chairman of the Awards Commission.

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By BARBARA BOONE

Spring days are here and soon summer will be arriving. Try reading these books on a sunny, lazy day.

In the same refreshingly original style that captivated readers of Georgy Girl, Miss Owen-Owen and Fenella Phizackerley comes Margaret Forster's MR. BONE'S RETREAT — the story of what happens when an old man involuntarily becomes involved with a young couple's complicated affairs. The main character, William Bone, is a solitary, willful gentleman. His privacy and serenity are shattered when a pregnant girl and her husband ask him for temporary shelter and then stay on idenfinitely.

Mr. Bone's Retreat is a very contemporary story, extraordinary realistic in dealing with the loneliness that stems from selfishness and warmly appealing in its resolution. It is sure to win many new admirers for Miss Forster.

The story is about a young girl's love for a much older married man; it is about a marvelous era—the Twenties and the Thirties; it is about one of the most powerful men of his time; it is about the most splendid castle ever built: Sans Souci; and it is about many other things and people. But most of all it is about one lovely woman's secret life. Turn to page one. You are about to meet Maggie.

BORN TO REBEL by Benjamin E. Mays is the life story of an extraordinarily interesting and admirable man. He gives a vivid account of his childhood and his boyhood schooling. In his book he describes two "demon problems" with which he wrestled in his youth: how to get an education and how to become and remain a man of pride, dignity and integrity in a society determined to rob him of these qualities. He conquered both demons.

It is also the sotry of the lifelong quest of a man who desired to be looked upon first as a human being and incidentally as a Negro. During his 27 years as President of Morehouse College he devoted himself to securing these goals for a generation of students who included the late Martin Luther King, Jr.

A best seller and critical success in France and Germany, THE FORGOTTEN SOLDIER by Guy Sajer is an epic chronicle of an individual caught in the vast, faceless horror of total war. Guy Sajer was sixteen years old when he donned the Wehrmacht uniform. He experiences bitter cold and snow. He joined the elite "Gross Deutschland" division and was involved in many and great battles. He and his companions survived the fatigue, shock, and hunger of those battles and straggle through Rumania to Poland, Prussia and Russia. Finally, he is taken prisoner by the English in Hannover.

This book has extraordinary power and vividness. The reader never doubts the truth, always realizes that this is the way it was — that this was the courage, the fear, the misery and the torment of a young man who becomes a very small part of the great world war, and who miracelously survives to go home and tell his story.

THE DRUG OF GREATEST ABUSE

For millions of people, use of a very common, readily available drug can mean going insane or can cause early death unless they completely and forever abstain from its use. The drug is alcohol and the disease is alcoholism. For most people it is a minor problem, but for these others their body cannot cope with it.

Alcohol can also react with many other common prescription drugs to produce very severe side effects. If you are cautioned by your doctor not to drink with a medicine, this could be the reason and you should not disregard this advice.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

Backed Car Into Husband, Woman

WALSALL, England (UPI)—Housewife Geraldine Minto said she was "very angry" when she saw her husband talking to another woman. So she threw her car into reverse and backed into both of them, knocking down the woman.

"I just wanted to scare them," Mrs. Minto told a judge who fined her $84 and suspended her license for a year.

NCSU Degrees Presented Today

RALEIGH — Chancellor John T. Caldwell awarded three masters and 13 bachelors degrees to Pitt County students during commencement at North Carolina State University Saturday morning.

The Pitt students helped to make the largest graduation class in the history of N.C. State. Some 2,500 men and women who earned their degrees since the 1970 commencement received graduate or undergraduate diplomas during the ceremony in Reynolds Coliseum.

Two distinguished NCSU alumni, Governor Robert Scott and UNC President William Friday, congratulated the students on their achievement. Chancellor Caldwell delivered the commencement address.

John A. Worthington, the son of Mrs. G. C. Worthington of Rt. 1, Winterville, earned his degree in agricultural education. He and his wife, the former Thelma Sawyer, are the parents of one child.

Robert W. May, whose degree is in agricultural economics, is married to the former Judy Rattey. He is the son of Mrs. Edward May of Rt. 1, Farmville.

A textiles graduate, Council W. Oliver III is married to the former Dixie R. Harrington. He is the son of Mrs. C. W. Oliver Jr. of Rt. 5, Greenville.

The 13 baccalaureate degree winners earned degrees in all eight schools at the university, in fields as varied as product design and history.

GREENVILLE — Mrs. Margaret B. Bell, product design, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Brickhouse, 1402 N. Overlook Dr.; Anne R. Moore, history, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moore, 100 Fairlane Rd.; Eddie D. Stocks, animal science, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Stocks, Rt. 3; Thomas A. Vann, agronomy, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Vann, 1103 E. Rockspring Rd.;

AYDEN — Samuel T. Reynolds, landscape architecture, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Reynolds, 401 New Circle Dr.; Charles D. Skinner, pulp and paper science and technology, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Skinner, 804 E. Third; Lewis O. Tripp, textile chemistry, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Tripp, 411 Terrace Dr.

GRIFTON — Benjamin C. Burch, mathematics, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Burch; Tony M. Leonard, textile chemistry, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Leonard, 109 St. Joseph St.; Coleman W. Ward Jr., engineering operations, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ward.

OTHERS — Shirley L. Leary, English, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Leary, Rt. 1, Vanceboro; Mary E. Tyson, English, Mrs. Katie Tyson, Rt. 1, Farmville.

Dollar . . .

observers claim has been imported from the United States.

The monetary crisis emerged last week when Germany was forced to absorb more than $2 billion of U.S. currency in two days. Five European nations withdrew their support for the dollar and closed their foreign exchange markets.

Observers said the European countries feel that it is not that their currency is undervalued but that the U.S. currency is overvalued because the United States has had an unfavorable balance of payments for two decades. West Germany and the Netherlands have said they are determined to return their currencies to the former fixed exchange rates.

Analysts noted the Europeans resent the passive action of the United States in refusing to devalue the dollar or stop the outflow of dollars abroad. The American deficit has generated surplus dollars abroad which has aggravated European inflationary problems they say.

The European nations have been converting large sums of U.S. dollars into gold which has dropped American gold reserves to a new low point. Analysts said these nations fear if U.S. gold stocks ever fell too low the United States would stop converting dollars into gold, which would free the dollar from the gold standard. Gold currently sells at $35 an ounce.

They added that if the dollar were freed from gold there is the possibility the world might split into dollar and gold blocs which would present a serious threat to world trade growth.

STEVE ROGERS is the newly-elected president of the Methodist Youth Fellowship of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. Other officers are Susan Moye and Bob Barrett, vice presidents; Carolyn Mills, recording secretary; Janet Cartwright, corresponding secretary; Karen Fraser, treasurer; Ammy Leggett, publicity chairman; Dill Forbes UCYM representative. They will assume their duties in June.

C.T. Barnhill Is Gradute

RALEIGH — Clarence Tracy Barnhill Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Barnhill of Rt. 1, Stokes, graduated Friday from the Agricultural Institute at North Carolina State University here.

The Agricultural Institute is a two-year curriculum which prepares students to manage farm enterprises and to hold other positions in businesses related to agriculture.

Barnhill, who completed his course work in December, received his associate degree in field crops technology. He is currently employed by FCX in Ahoskie.

Four Traffic Accidents Are Reported For City

Damages totaling over $1,000 resulted here this weekend in a series of four traffic accidents.

Heaviest damage resulted when cars driven by William Patrick Hedrick, 29, Rt. 3, Liberty and Nancy Leigh Owens, 19, 115 Stancill Drive collided on Charles St. about 10:31 a.m. Friday, according to investigators.

Officers, who set damage to the Hedrick car at $850 and estimated damage for the owens car as $200, charged Miss Owens with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

No damage resulted, police reported, to a car driven by Edgar Battle Wall, Jr., 19, Winterville, when it collided with a vehicle operated by Adelaide March Kinsey, Beckanna Apts., Raleigh at the corner of Charles and Eighth Streets Friday.

Investigators charged Wall with failing to keep a proper lookout and said the 2:44 p. m. accident caused an estimated $100 to the Kinsey car.

Lucy House Melohon, 315 W. Second St., Ayden, was charged with failing to see her movement could be made in safety following investigation by police of a 12:01 p. m. accident Friday at Memorial Drive.

Officers, who identified driver of the second vehicle involved as Joseph E. Wankon, 44, Somerville, N. J., said the accident resulted in damages estimated at $500 for the Wankon car and $50 for the Melohon car.

A fourth traffic accident investigated by police here Friday caused an estimated $150 damage to a car, officers said, driven by Betty Watson Arcenia, 24, Glendale Apts. and resulted in damages totaling $250 to a car driven by Richard Townsen Bilbro, 17,1708 Forest Hill.

Behavioristic Approach Is Used In Speech Therapy

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"Bruce, if you want to be recommended for student teaching, you will have to do something about your speech," Bruce McDonald's advisor told him.

"Y-y-y-y yes sir," the East Carolina University music major answered. A talented member of the East Carolina University Symphony Orchestra and the ECU Wind Ensemble, McDonald had a stuttering problem so severe that he was virtually unintelligible to anyone to whom he spoke.

He was referred the the Department of Speech and Hearing of the ECU School of Education and consequently became a part of Dr. Hal Daniel's Adult Stutterers' Therapy Progaram that began at the first of this school year. The program, which is partically financed by a Speech Foundation of America grant to Dr. Daniel for research in the field, can accomodate up to 15 adults. Dr. Daniels, his graduate assistant, Mrs. Sandra Sheldon, and other graduate student therapists work with the stutterers individually and as a group.

"The first thing we must impress on each of them," Dr. Daniel said, "is that there is nothing mystical about their stuttering. It is not something that happens to them, but something that they do, and thus, through learning, they can control it. This is a behavioristic approach. So far it has proved to be the most effective method of helping the stutterers overcome their speech problems. We simply identify what each of them does when he blocks (gets stuck on a word or syllable) and condition him not to do it.

"Stutterers, for the most part, are highly intelligent people. It seems that many, like Bruce, have excelled in abstract fields where thinking is more important than conversing. Maybe their choices of their life's work is an indication of how their minds work."

"Every Monday night we have a group therapy session," Bruce said. "Here we talk about our stuttering with those who can truly understand, other stutterers. I've learned that all stutterers have tricks they've developed to try to hide their stuttering, and all of them are futile. All of us have made our stuttering tendencies worse by trying to hide them.

"Our most often used trick is refusing to talk at all. I can't tell you the number of times I've gone into a store and looked around for an item. If I couldn't find it, I'd assume it wasn't in stock and would do without rather than ask a salesperson. I've sat in class when I knew answers and refused to raise my hand. I've passed up parties and lots of group gatherings rather than be put into a position where I'd have to talk.

"Other stutterers, I've learned, have done all these things plus others. One fellow said he ordered the same meal in the school cafeteria for a year because he knew he could say it and he'd stutter trying to say anything else.

"All of us, I've learned, have feared sounds. I have trouble with words that begin with vowels, especially when they begin sentences. Getting stuck on "I" at the first of a sentence was one of my worst problems before I began therapy.

"I never have been too bad about ducking or jerking my head or blinking my eyes, common avoidances among some stutterers, but I had others. I tend to look away from the person I'm addressing, usually at the floor. My eye contact was virtually non-existent before I began this course. It's still not good, but if I remember to use it, I find it helps rather than frightens me when I'm speaking to someone. I still have to work on not wringing my hands when I talk and I'm getting better at not freezing with my mouth open in the middle of a sentence or even a word.

A BASS VIOLINIST . . . with the ECU Symphony Orchestra, Bruce McDonald practices for an upcoming performance. He would like to be a member of a professional orchestra and teach on the side after he graduates.

Bruce has studied Jacobsen's Progressive Relaxation to help him with tenseness. Knowing how to relax each part of his body helps him when he has to enter a situation that is stressful. For him, any talking is stressful, although the degree of stress depends on who and how many persons he is talking to.

"Our therapy program has three phases and we've run it according to the University's quarter system," Dr. Daniel said. "The first we devoted to confronting the stutterers with all their methods of avoidance and helping them to overcome them.

"The second quarter, by using films and recordings of them and other stutterers, we tried to make them aware of all the things in their speech and actions that give them away as stutterers. Bruce and most of the others really had to work on getting the 'uhs' and 'ahs' out, among other things.

"This past quarter has been perhaps the most challenging. Besides countinuing to work on all the things they have learned, their student therapists pose trying situations for them. Bruce has had to shop at Pitt

Canonero II Speeds To Preakness Win

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Canonero II, the surprise Kentucky Derby winner from Venezuela, outdueled Eastern Fleet in a sizzling two-horse battle Saturday and won the 96th Preakness at Pimlico in track record time.

Shortly after the finish an inquiry was flashed but was taken down in a matter of minutes and the order of finish stood with Canonero II first Eastern Fleet second and Jim French third.

Finishing fourth in the field of 11 3-year-olds was Sound Off.

In winning the 1 3-16 mile Preakness in 1:54 flat—3-5ths of a second faster than the old track mark—Canonero II kept alive his chances of becoming thoroughbred horse racing's ninth Triple Crown winner and first since Citation won the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes in 1948.

Canonero II paid $8.80, $6.20 and $4.40 after scoring by 1½ lengths over Calumet Farm's Eastern Fleet, who returned $8.20 and $5.20.

Jim French, owned by Frank J. Caldwell, paid $3.20 after gaining the show by a nose over Sound Off. Eastern Fleet was 4½ lengths ahead of Jim French.

Eddie Maple sent Eastern Fleet to the front shortly after the break but surprisingly Gustavo Avila brought Canonero II up to the leader as they entered the backstretch instead of keeping him off the pace as he had in the Derby two weeks ago.

Canonero II, a real Cinderella horse, just two weeks ago but now a prince of the American turf, duelled Eastern Fleet step for step down the stretch, through the turn and until the eighth pole when he established his superiority and became the winner.

There was never any doubt with the Maryland racing record crowd that the surprising Venezuelan, whom owner Edgar Caibett received 18 months ago as a wedding present, would win the $189,900 Preakness and grab the first prize of $137,400.

The fact that he broke the stakes and track record of 1:54 3-5 by Nashua in 1955 was anticlimatic.

"The strategy developed as the race was run," Avila said to an interpreter. "I decided my horse could keep pace with the leaders so I went right to the lead. Arias (trainer Juan Arias) had planned it that way if it was possible."

The order of finish after Sound Off was Bold Reason, who was third in the Derby; Executioner, Royal J D, the only gelding in the race; Vegas Vic, sixth in the Derby; Impetuosity, 13th in the Derby; Spouting Horn and Limit To Reason.

Pimlico spokesmen said the reason the stewards flashed the inquiry sign was that Eastern Fleet bore out at the start. However, upon reviewing the film, the stewards decided that Eastern Fleet's action did not affect the outcome of the race.

Canonero II, now has won six of 10 starts this year and eight of 14 lifetime starts, most of them in Venezuela, where he was shipped after being purchased for $1,200 by a blood stock dealer.

Caibett's father-in-law, Pedro Baptista of Caracas, bought the Kentucky-bred and two other horses for $60,000 and then gave them to Caibett and his wife for a wedding present. Baptista, however, still helps make the decisions concerning Canonero II's career.

The victory boosted Canonero II's earning to $312,589, most of it in the last two weeks.

The son of Pretendre-Dixieland II broke the No. 9 post and was fifth as Eastern Fleet came out of the fifth gate and was fourth with Sound Off taking the lead through his position on the rail.

Before the pack hit the turn after passing the stands for the first time, Eastern Fleet sailed into the lead and Canonero II moved to challenge.

After the first quarter of a mile Eastern Fleet held a 1½ length lead over Canonero II. The margin decreased to a noise after a half-mile and stayed at a nose after three-quarters.

The winner then moved into the lead on the final turn and had a nose advantage entering the stretch. Then at the eighth pole he drew away with authority and now only the June 5 Belmont Stakes stands between him and racing immortality. Two years ago Majestic Prince won the Derby and Preakness but couldn't win the Belmont.

Maple said of his successful bid to make Eastern Fleet Calumet's eighth Preakness winner: "My horse ran just the way I wanted and I was surprised to see the horse Canonero alongside me. I guess everybody in America felt the same way, but you can't take anything away from my colt. He is a real nice colt."

But on this day Canonero II was a great colt as he answered the challenge of a speed horse and beat him at his own game.

The fractions en route to the record performance were :23 2-5, :47; 1:10 2-5, 1:35, 1:54. The run by Canonero II came on the heels of his extremely slow 2:03 1-5 win in the Derby in which he ran a slow final quarter of 27 seconds.

Winning Form

Canonero II, left, has all four feet off the track as he roars on to win in yesterday's Preakness at Baltimore's Pimlico track. At right is Eastern Fleet which finished second more than a length behind after a head-to-head duel between the two most of the way around the track. Canonero II now has won two of the three jewels in the Triple Crown. (AP Wirephoto)

Rained Out

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — The showdown between The Citadel and Furman University for the Southern Conference baseball championship was rained out Saturday.

The scheduled doubleheader will be played Sunday at Greenville, starting at 1:45 p.m.

Furman and Greenville are tied for the Southern Conference lead going into the two games. Should either team sweep the doubleheaders, that team will be the conference champion.

Kentucky Nips Stars To Send ABA Playoffs To Final Contest

By BILL WINTER
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky, inspired by the 31-point performance of Cincy Powell scored a 105-102 victory over Utah Saturday in the American Basketball Association championship playoff.

Kentucky's victory achieved before an enthusiastic home crowd of 11,793 plus a national television audience, tied the best-of-seven series at three triumphs each with the deciding game set for Tuesday night in Salt Lake City.

Utah appeared to have the championship clinched, holding a 100-95 lead with less than four minutes remaining. But Powell, playing head-to-head with Willie Wise, Utah's leading scorer with 34 points, hit a jumper and Louie Dampier hit a three-point play to tie the score at 100-all.

Utah, playing its first sason in Salt Lake after a move from Los Angeles, forged ahead on a free throw by Zelmo Beaty, but once again Powell tied the score with his own free throw.

Forward Wal Simon gave Kentucky the lead for good with only 33 seconds remaining, sinking two free throws after a foul by Wise.

Dampier sealed the verdict by hitting two free throws, the last of his 22 points, with only 18 seconds showing.

Forward Red Robbins hit a single free throw for Utah in the closing moments and the Stars grabbed the rebound but missed on a long three-point shot attempt.

The contest was the most rugged of what Utah Coach Bill Sharman has called the "roughest playoffs I've ever seen."

Utah had 28 fouls, with Wise fouling out in the closing seconds, while the Colonels committed 30 violations.

Kentucky held a rebounding edge of 59-52 with Powell collecting 17 rebounds to augment his scoring. Wise had 15 for Utah and Beaty, a veteran of seven years with the St. Louis and Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association, had 16 to go with his 27 points.

A cordon of security officers surrounded the court in the second half as fans flung debris on the court.

The series' fifth game, played at Salt Lake Wednesday night, was marred by a fist fight, and Kentucky officials took care to avoid a recurrence.

Frank Robinson Drives In Four Runs To Spark Baltimore To Win

BOSTON (AP) — Frank Robinson, battling his way out of a slump knocked in four runs with a home run and a single as the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Boston Red Sox 7-4 Saturday.

Robinson cracked a drive over the left field wall after Boston starter Mike Nagy walked Don Buford and Mark Belanger to start the third inning of the nationally-televised contest. It was Robinson's second homer of the year and 477th of his career.

The Orioles, trimming Boston's American League East lead to 1½ games, picked up an unearned run in the fifth, then added tally on Buford's single in the seventh.

Dave McNally allowed eight hits and two runs in five innings, but picked up his sixth victory in eight decisions with relief help from Tom Dukes, who surrended a two-run homer to Rico Petrocelli in the eighth.

Dukes was summoned from the bullpen after McNally, nursing a 4-2 lead, walked the first two batters in the sixth. Dukes ended the threat in easy fashion.

The Red Sox picked up a run in the fourth on Reggie Smith's double, the second of three singles by Carl Yastrzemski and Petrocelli's sacrifice fly. Doubles by Duane Josephson and Phil Gagliano accounted for another run in the fifth.

Indians Down Yanks By 4-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Leon's two-run double capped a three-run sixth inning, lifting the Cleveland Indians to a 4-2 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

All the runs in the Indian uprising were unearned as Yankee loser Stan Bahsen, 1-5, muffed Ken Harrelson's two-out tap to the mound that allowed Vada Pinson to score with the first run.

Roy White reached first on an infield error, stole second and raced home with the Yankees' first run on Bobby Murcer's two-out single in the first.

Cleveland tied it in the third on John Lowenstein's second home run of the season, a blast into the right field bleachers.

Murcer again delivered a run-scoring single for New York in the third, driving in Thurman Munson, who had singled, stolen second and taken third on a wild throw by Fosse, the Cleveland catcher.

Giants Slip Past Dodgers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays broke up Bill Singer's no-hit bid with a double leading off the seventh inning and scored on Dick Dietz' single as San Francisco topped Los Angeles 1-0 behind Juan Marichal's six-hitter Saturday.

The seventh-inning hits were the only ones off Singer, who left in the seventh for a pinch-hitter, and gave Marichal his sixth victory in eight decisions this year. It boosted his lifetime record over the Dodgers to 35-13 and gave him 49 career shutouts, tops among active pitchers.

Singer, 2-7, had little trouble through the first six innings. Mays opened the seventh by bouncing a line drive double over the left field screen and Ken Henderson walked on four pitches with one out.

Dietz then grounded a single to left for his third game-winning hit of the year.

Marichal, in recording his third shutout this year and lowering his earned run average to 1.60, shut off a Dodger uprising in the ninth by getting the last out after a single and two-out walk put two men on.

Cubs Capture Fifth Straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins slammed a two-run home run and notched his seventh victory as the Chicago Cubs nailed down their fifth straight with a 6-4 triumph over the San Diego Padres Saturday.

Jenkins, 7-2, survived a two-run San Diego first, capped by Clarence Gaston's sixth home run of the year.

The Cubs kayoed San Diego starter Tom Phoebus with three runs in their first. A triple by Don Kessinger and Billy Williams' ninth homer of the season and 300th of his career were key blows.

Successive doubles by San Diego's Ivan Murrell and Ed Spiezio tied the score 3-3 in the second, but the Cubs went ahead for good on Jenkins' first homer of the season with Jose Ortiz on base in the fourth.

Buc Finale Rained Out

DAVIDSON — East Carolina's final two games, against Davidson were rained out Saturday afternoon. The games will not be made up.

The Pirates finished the year with a 12-18 record, their first losing season in 37 years.

The Bucs will open North Carolina Collegiate Summer League play on June 17 against Louisburg at Harrington Field.

Summer League Schedule Given

East Carolina University has announced a 36-game summer schedule for the inaugural season of the North Carolina Collegiate Baseball League.

The Pirates, who will be coached by George Williams and Earl Smith, will open summer play with a June 17 night game in Harrington Field, Greenville.

In all, 18 games will be played on ECU's home diamond and 17 of these will be under the lights. The lone exception is a 4 p. m. start for a July 25 doubleheader against UNC-Wilmington.

The new league, the first of its kind anywhere in the nation, consists of ECU, UNC-Chapel Hill, UNC-Wilmington, Campbell and Louisburg. Each team will be made up entirely of players currently enrolled at that school or who were members of that school's regular spring baseball team.

East Carolina plans to launch a season ticket drive for its 18 home games later this month.

There will be a best-of-three playoff between the top two teams in the league at the end of regular season play. These games are set for August 13-14-15.

During the regular season each team will play each of the other four teams nine times. Games will be played at 7:30 p. m. at Harrington Field, except for the 4 p. m. twinbill against UNC-Wilmington on July 25 and a 6 p. m. twi-night doubleheader against Campbell on July 16.

Williams, who will direct the Pirates' summer league team, is a fulltime assistant under Head Coach Smith during the year. Smith will be involved in an Ohio baseball camp the first part of the summer, but will join Williams for the last half of the season.

Teinz Takes Winston Prelim

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Dave Teinz of Tampa, Fla., beat down an early challenge from cars his own size, then romped to an easy victory over four small Porsches Saturday in the Carter Hall 200 race for sports cars.

Heinz, in a Corvette' came home more than four miles ahead of a six-cylinder Porsche car driven by Peter Gregg and Turley Haywood of Jacksonville, Fla.

Third place went to a similar Porsche handled by Mike Keyser of Towson, Md. The fourth and fifth place finishers, also in Porsches, were Ash Tisdelle of Jacksonville, Fla., and Harry Bytzek of Toronto who had his brother, Klaus Bytzek as co-driver.

Heinz's speed for the 50 laps around the 4 mile Alabama Inter- national Speedway track-road course was 105.140 miles per hour.

Gordon Smiley of Shawnee Mission, Kans., built up a big early lead and drove to a wire to-wire triumph in a 52-mile race for formula 100 cars.

His Merlin finished almost 15 seconds ahead of Bert Hawthorne of Upper Saddle River, N.J., in a Titan. Jack Miller of Chattanooga, Tenn., came in third in a Caldwell.

Drivers Assault Indy Track

By KURT FREUDENTHAL
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —Peter Revson and Mark Donohue led the assault on the records Saturday for the 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway auto race, sure to be the fastest in history.

By mid-afternoon, 15 cars had made successful 10-mile trial runs and Revson, the sports car veteran from New York, was the fastest at an average speed of 178.696 miles per hour and a best lap of 179.354.

Revson thus became the apparent pole position winner in the 33-car starting field for the May 29 race. The field will be completed next weekend with two days of qualifying.

Donohue, of Media, Pa., had to settle for a speed of 177.087 m.p.h.—also well above the previous record but not enough for the No. 1 starting position.

The only four former race winners entered in this year's million-dollar chase also were among the early qualifiers—defending champion Al Unser and his brother Bobby, Albuquerque, N.M., three-time winner A.J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., and Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa.

Among the other qualifiers on the first of two weekend days of time trials were Bill Vukotich, Fresno, Calif.; Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill.; Gordon Johncock, Mount Pleasant, Mich.; Jim Melloy, Denver; former track record holder Joe Leonard, San Jose, Calif.; Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex.; Dick Simon, Salt Lake City, and rookies David Hobbs of London and Bill Simpsonof Torrance, Calif.

As expected, Leonard's three-year-old qualifying records for one and four laps fell repeatedly. His one-lap mark of just under 172 m.p.h. and his four-lap mark of 171.5 were beaten by 10 of the first 15 qualifiers.

First to break the record was Foyt. Then came Donohue and Vukovich, son of the late two-time "500" winner.

Mike Mosley, Brownsburg, Ind., who was among the fastest in practice, became the first casualty of the qualifications when he cracked up twice but walked away unhurt. The first time out, Mosley's car hit the wall in the northeast turn on his first qualifying lap. A short time later, driving his team's backup car, he hit the wall in the northwest turn on a warmup lap before a second attempt at qualifying.

Other unsuccessful attempts to qualify were made by Jim McElreath, Arlington, Tex.; Carl Williams, Grandview, Mo.; Art Pollard, Medford, Ore.; Johnny Rutherford, Fort Worth, Tex.; Donnie Allison, Hueytown, Ala., and New Zealander Denis Hulme.

Kinston Tops Rose; Takes The Title

By CHIP LAMBETH
Special To The Reflector

KINSTON — Rose High School's Rampants dropped a close game to the Kinston Vikings Friday 2-0. The loss eliminated the Rampants from the Division II race and gave Kinston the championship, as Goldsboro, the only other team with a chance lost to Rocky Mount.

Greenville could manage only one hit all afternoon and that came from the bat of John Conway. Rose did get men on base, however,

In the third, Jimmy Sugg walked but was caught at second as the next batter grounded into a double-play.

Two frames later, Conway singled to left and moved up as Larry Hatton hit into a fielder's choice that was errored. That was as far as either batter could go.

In the sixth, Robbie Cox led off with a walk and advanced to second on Larry Dixon's sacrifice bunt. But he could not move up as the Rampants could not get things going.

Although Kinston did not score until the fourth inning, they began knocking on the door in the second. Donnie Hatcher led off with a single and took second on a bunt by Leon Bell. John Hamlet and Don Mills walked but that next batter struck out to end the threat.

The Vikings put two men on in the third on consecutive singles by Mike Edwards and Hatcher but second baseman Johnny Barwick made a great stab of a sharp line drive by Bell robbing him of a base hit and again Kinston was cooled off.

With one out in the fourth, Hamlet walked and went to second on a bunt by Mills. Marion Harrington also walked. Hamlet scored as Dave Mills reached on an error. Harrington, in attempting to go all the way to third, was caught for the last out of the inning.

Mike Hatcher led off the fifth by getting a free ticket and advanced on a sacrifice by Edwards. Donnie Hatcher drove him in with his third hit of the day.

Edwards, in hurling the one-hitter, struck out seven and walked two.

Kinston now advances into the state playoffs for the second straight year. Their first opponent will be Wilmington New Hanover.

Home Builders, Dairymen Win

Carolina Dairy and Home Builders captured victories Friday night as the Babe Ruth League opened the 1971 season.

Carolina Dairy downed Pepsi-Cola, 4-1 while Home Builders nipped North Carolina National Bank, 14-13.

In the opener, Carolina Dairy took the lead in the first inning. David Clifton hit a two-out triple, and scored on an error on the relay.

In the third, Pepsi came back to tie it up with its only run. Bill Ellington singled and stole second. He took third on an error and scored on Bobby Dough's hit.

Carolina Dairy pushed back out into the lead with a run in the fourth. Mike Parker singled and advanced on an error. He scored on Bobby Jones double.

In the sixth, Carolina Dairy added two more. Clifton singled and moved up on a passed ball. He took third on an out and scored when Jones reached on an error. Ronnie Garris then doubled to score Jones with the final run.

Clifton hurled the victory for Carolina Dairy, allowing jus five hits. Loser Donald Cannon was also tagged for five.

Home Builders took the lead with five runs in the first inning of its game. Skip Fowler singled and moved up when Jeff Daniels reached on an error. Kenor Powell was hit by a pitch and Jeff Beamon reached on an error, scoring Fowler and Daniels. Jon West walked and stole second. An error scored Powell and a wild pitch brought Beamon home. West scored on a passed ball.

In the second, NCNB came back with four runs. Donnie Haddock doubled and scored on Pat Clark's single. Gil Whitford singled in Clark, and Kelly Heath walked. Steve Fuchs tripled to score Whitford and Heath and make it 5-4.

Home Builders pulled away again in the second with for more runs. Fowler reached on an error as did Daniels. Beaman was also safe on an error, scoring Rowler. Another error let Daniels score as Beamon stole second. West singled and stole second, with aother error letting Beamon in. West then scored on a passed ball, for a 9-4 lead.

In the fourth, NCNB added four more to close the gap to one again. Wesley Puryear singled and took second on an error. A passed ball moved him to third. Heath and Fuchs both walked, loading the bases and another walk to Al Heath brought in Puryear. Kelly Heath and Fuchs scored when Phil Dash reached on an error and Donnie Haddock sacrificed in Al Heath.

In the sixth, NCNB charged ahead with two runs, taking a 10-9 lead. Jack Jenkins reached on an error and Fuchs walked. Al Heath singled in Jenkins and after Dash walked, Clark was hit by a pitch, forcing in Fuchs.

Three more NCNB runs came in the seventh. Puryear singled and moved to third on wild pitches. Kelly Heath walked and took second on an error as Puryear scored. Jenkins tripled driving in Heath, and Fuchs got a hit to score Jenkins.

Trailing 13-9, Home Builders rallied for five in the bottom of the seventh to win it. Chris Manning walked, as did Fowler. Daniels brought in Manning with a double. Powell walked, loading the bases, and a walk to Beamon brought in Fowler. West reached on an error, scoring Beamon, after Daniels has come home on a passed ball, but Powell had been caught. Jim Wilkerson then singled in West with the winning run.

Reichardt, who collected three hits in the 15-hit Chicago attack, unloaded his home run in the fourth and Herrmann delivered his, a 430-foot blast, in the second.

Both homers came off loser Jim Perry, 5-3, who left for a pinch-hitter after giving up three runs and seven hits in six innings.

Harmon Killebrew had put Minnesota ahead 2-1 with a two-run homer in the second to give him 28 RBI.

Ayden To Open Play

Ayden and Robersonville will collide Tuesday night at 8 p. m. in Robersonville in the first round of the State Class A Baseball Playoffs.

Ayden won the right to enter the playoffs by winning the Pitt County Conference title, while Robersonville was the Martin County champ.

In 2-A competition, Williamston of the Albemarle Conference is to face either Camp Lejeune or Swansboro in a game to be scheduled this weekend.

Greene Central, tied with Charles B. Aycock for the Eastern Plains title, will meet the Falcons on Monday at 4:30 p. m. at Eastern Wayne High School near Goldsboro, for the right to advance in the 3-A playoffs. The winner will meet Northeastern champ Havelock.

Edenton, Hillside Top Regional Track Field

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Durham Hillside and Edenton carried off top honors in the Regional High School Track meet held at East Carolina University on Friday.

The top four finishers in each event qualified for the State Meet to be held at N.C. State University next Friday.

Three individuals and two relay teams from this area qualified to participate in the event, which will match the four top Eastern entrants with the four best from the west.

Rose High School had two individual entries, along with its 880-yard relay team. Calvin Moore qualified for the state long jump, leaping 22 feet, 5 inches, good enough for fourth place in the regionals.

Alex Allen finished in second place in the 880-yard run, placing in 1:56.9, just a tenth of a second behind the winner. Allen was just nipped in the final stride to the tape.

The Rose relay team, consisting of Reggie Perkins, Al Hunter, Mitchell Williams and Mike Harris also qualified, finishing in a tie for third with Raleigh's Enloe High School. Both were timed at 1:31.2, but ran in different heats so no placing could be established.

All of the Rose entries will compete in Class II, for the larger schools.

The other individual and the relay team are in Class I, for 2-A and 1-A schools. Cleo Moore of North Pitt qualified in the 880-yard run, finishing second. His time of 1:58.7 was also just a tenth of a second behind the winner.

The relay team is the 880-yard relay team from Williamston. It finished fourth in the meet in 1:32.6, just beating out the team from North Pitt, which was a tenth of a second behind.

Edenton took the first place honors in the Class I honors with 30½ points. Jordan Matthews of Siler City finished second with 19, while Jones, Burgaw and Elizabethtown tied for third with 16 each.

Other area finishers in Class I included North Pitt, fifteenth with five points, Williamston, tied for 26th with 2½, and Vanceboro, tied for 33rd with one.

In Class II, Hillside put together 26 points, nosing out Pinecrest and Raleigh's Broughton, each with 23. Scotland County had 17 to finish fourth.

Optimist Nip R.C. Cola, 3-2

The win left the Optimists in sole possession of first place in the league with a 2-0 record. The Kiwanis are 1-0, while R. C. and the Lions are 1-1, followed by the Jaycees, 0-1, and Coca-Cola, 0-2.

The other Little League games scheduled for Saturday were rained out.

The Optimists pushed into the lead in the second inning scoring a pair of runs. James Shoe was hit by a pitch and Bob Peoples was walked. Greg Lee walked to load the bases. Gary Porter then doubled, driving in both Shoe and Peoples for the 2-0 lead.

What proved to be the winning run came in the fourth inning when the Optimists scored again. Lee walked and moved to third when Porter reached on an error. Gary Allen walked, loading them up, and Ricky Robinson hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Lee.

R. C. Cola tried to put on a rally in the bottom of the fourth, coming up with a pair of runs. Mike Brown reached on an error and moved to second on a passed ball. Ricky Bolonde singled him to third, and Charley Hayek reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Brown. Bolonde moved to third on the play and scored when Bryant Morton grounded out.

The Optimists came up with three runs in the top of the fifth and were still going when rain washed away those three and forced a halt in the game.

Porter hurled the victory, giving up three hits. Brown, who was given the loss, gave up just two hits and struck out nine.

Royals Rally To Beat Oakland

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Gail Hopkins' single to center scored two runs, climaxing a four-run seventh inning that gave the Kansas City Royals a 5-4 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Jerry May led off the Royals' seventh inning with a single Fred Patek walked with one out and Dennis Paepke beat out an infield bouncer to fill the bases.

The A's had taken a 3-1 lead in the fifth when Mike Epstein, with the bases loaded, scored pitcher Roland Fingers on a forceout and when shortstop Freddie Patek threw wild to first, Bert Campaneris scored.

Fingers also scored Oakland's first run, leading off with a single in the third and scoring on Reggie Jackson's triple. The A's got a run in the eighth off reliever Tom Burgmeir on a walk to Jackson, Epstein's infield hit, an error and Sal Bando's grounder.

Games Are Rained Out

Three Little League and three Babe Ruth League games were rained out Saturday evening.

In Little League, the Jaycee-Kiwanis and Integon-Graniteer games will be made up next Saturday at Guy Smith Stadium. They will start at 2 and 4 p. m. respectively.

The Elks-Pepsi-Cola game will be made up at a later date to be scheduled.

In the Babe Ruth League, the three scheduled games, Pepsi-Cola vs. College View; Home Builders vs. Planters Bank and Carolina Dairy vs. North Carolina National Bank, have not been rescheduled as yet, but will be made up later in the season.

Weaver Takes Champs Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Husky DeWitt Weaver shrugged off a triple bogey seven, shot a 69 and moved into the third-round lead in the $125,000 Houston Champions Invitational Golf Tournament Saturday.

Weaver, still winless but enjoying his best year in seven seasons on the pro tour, had a 54-hole total of 208, five-under-par on the treacherous 7,166-yard Champions Golf Club course.

Coody, who hasn't finished worse than seventh in his last five starts, had a sparkling 67. The rookie Green had to rally from a bad start to score a 72, one over for the day. They were tied at 209.

Bob Murphy, with a 68.

Amateur Ben Crenshaw and Dave Hill, tied for third just two strokes off the lead going into the hot, sunny day, both had their troubles. Crenshaw had to birdie the final hole for a 73 and 212. Hill took a seven on the par-three 12th hole and finished well back after a 77 for 216.

Paunchy veteran Bob Rosburg made the biggest move, however, scoring a course record 64, seven-under-par on one of the toughest courses the pros play all year. He had seven birdies, no bogeys and didn't miss a green as he posted a 215 total.

Lee Trevino barged into a contention with a 66 for 214. Arnold Palmer couldn't get going, however, and was far off the pace with a 73 for 219.

Weaver, one of the longest hitters on the tour who has cut down on his swing in favor of more accuracy, had a fantastic round with his irons, hitting it inside of six nine times.

"It's something I've always dreamed of, hitting the ball like that," the graying former college football player said. "Coming down the stretch I just felt like I was going to hit it at the flag every time I drew the irons back.

"But I hit those two bad drives. That's the difference between a 64 and a 69," he said.

Weaver has won almost $26,000 this season with his best finish third in the Hawaiian Open. At one time during the day he was back to even par, but burdied five of the last eight holes.

MOOSE HUNTING THREATENED

KENTVILLE, N.S. (UPI)—Illegal moose slaughter has reached such proportions it could adversely affect the future of moose hunting in Nova Scotia, says Arthur Patton of the provincial Department of Lands and Forests. Patton said the legal kill last season was 308, compared with 318 the previous season but the illegal kill was much higher.

Bo Farley Closes Out 30-Year Career

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

At the end of this month, when the Greenville City Schools close for summer vacation, a career that spans over 30 years will come to an end.

Boley (Bo) Farley will be stepping down as athletic director at Rose High School. And an era that rivals that of former superintendent J. H. Rose, for whom the high school is named, will come to an end.

Farely first started coaching at Rose High School back in 1935, 36 years ago, and except for a short while at East Carolina College, and for military service, has been there ever since. Only in the past two years has Farley not been actively involved in coaching duties at the high school, and for a number of years, he coached all three of the major sports.

A native of Danville, Va., Farley attended Duke University and Springfield College. He received his degree, however, from East Carolina.

While at Duke, in 1926-30, he played all three sports. He was a halfback in football, a guard in basketball and was the third baseman on the baseball team. He served one year as captain of the basketball team, and was All-Southern in baseball.

His team won the baseball title the three years he played, and his basketball team went to the finals of the tournament one year, and that was when 16 teams went to the tournament.

Farley didn't finish his senior year at Duke, however, electing to sign a professional baseball contract in the spring of 1930. His pact was with the St. Louis Cardinals, and he joined them immediately after signing.

A short time later, however, he was sent to the Cards' farm team at St. Joseph, Mo., in the Western League, playing shortstop with them. In 1931, he went to spring training with the Rochester club in the International League, but was injured and had to go in the inactive list.

To pass the time, he returned to Danville, where he coached for two years. He then got an offer to come to Greenville and manage the semi-pro baseball team here, the old Greenville Greenies of the Coastal Plains League. He replaced Milton Harrington, another former Duke ballplayer, after whom Harrington Filed at East Carolina Universtiy was recently named.

"I came here in 1935, and stayed through 1937," Farley recalls. "I had planned to return to Danville at the end of the summer, but June Rose offered me a job as coach, while I could finish school at East Carolina."

Farley took the job, and worked with all three sports at Greenville High School, while gaining his degree. In 1937, however, he moved over to East Carolina, coaching the baseball team. The following year, he took on all three sports at the college, but decided to return to Greenville in 1939.

"I got out in October of 1945, and immediately came back to Greenville and went back to work," he said.

For the next 10 years, Farley handled all three of the sports at Rose. In 1955, however, he passed football on to another, and in 1962, he dropped his baseball coaching duties, working strictly with basketball.

"I gave that up a couple of years later," he said, "and became athletic director." Farley still continued to coach the golf team, until that sport was dropped two years ago.

"We won right many championships over the years," he says, "but I really don't remember how many. Most of them were in basketball. We lost in the state finals in 1946 in basketball, and we've been the area representative several times. We never won the state title."

Farley notes that for a number of years, Greenville teams were not a member of the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, and were therefore not eligible to play in the state playoffs.

Farley is married to the former Elsie Gobson of Laurinburg, and they have two sons, John of Greenville and Edward of the U.S. Navy, stationed in Albany, Ga. They have presented the Farleys with four grandchildren. He is a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

He also was president of the North Carolina High School Coaches' Association a couple of years ago, and served two terms on the organization's Board of Directors.

"I've had a lot of good times and some low ones," he said. "But I really can't recall any one instant that stands out. It was all enjoyable."

Now 64, Farley doesn't plan to just sit idle. "I'm going to keep working at something. I'm going to play golf and do some hunting, but I'll keep my hand in on something. Something I want to do," he said.

Long Career Ending

Bo Farley, coach and athletic director at Rose High School for over 30 years, will give up the reigns at the end of this school term, retiring. He first came to Greenville in 1935 with the old Coastal Plains League, and became a coach at Greenville High School that fall. (Reflector Photo)

Williamston Takes Title

Weaver, who went the first six innings, allowed three walks and struck out 11. Bundy, in the final inning, struck out two and walked one.

Williamston pushed ahead with a pair of runs in the first inning. Raymond Andrews singled and Sammy Roberson walked. Jimmy Raiford also walked, loading the bases. Billy Ritter then singled to score Andrews and Roberson.

In the third, the Tigers scored two more. Dwight Ange singled and advanced to third on a walk and a fielder's choice. Raiford reached on an error, but Ange held to third. Ritter then doubled, driving in both for a 4-0 lead.

Williamston exploded in the fifth inning for eight big runs, then picked up the final two in the sixth.

The Tigers, going into last night's game with Robersonville, had a 13-5 overall record and were 9-3 against Albemarle Conference competition.

They are scheduled to open the state 2-A playoffs Tuesday, against either Camp Lejeune or Swansboro. The exact time and site of the game is to be set this weekend.

Ayden Edges By Grifton, 6-5

GRIFTON — Ayden withstood a late challenge by Grifton Friday for a 6-5 victory and a sweep of their three-game series.

The Tornadoes, again Pitt County Champions, will open up the state playoffs Tuesday night against Robersonville. The site of the game was to be decided Saturday afternoon.

Ayden took the lead in the first inning, with a run. Ken Cleaton doubled and moved to third on an out. Dale Manning grounded out, scoring him.

In the second, two more Tornadoes crossed the plate. Mike Tripp singled and Debro Blount got a hit. They advanced on a fielder's choice and Cleaton doubled in both runners.

In the fourth, Blount brought the score to 4-0 with a home run.

In the fifth, Grifton came up with its first run. Tony Koonce and Lin Thomas both walked. Eddie Thorne reached on a fielder's choice and Johnny Willis walked, forcing in Koonce.

Ayden came up with another run in the sixth. Lavern Loftin was hit by a pitch and Doug Phillips reached on an error. Walks to Manning and Mike Griffin forced in Loftin.

Grifton then rallied for four runs to tie it up, but Ayden got a run in the seventh to win it. Blount walked and Loftin reached on a fielder's choice. Ronnie Eason singled in Blount with the winning run.

St. Gabriel In First Victory

St. Gabriel picked up its first Church Softball League victory Friday night, while Immanuel Baptist was widening its divisional lead. St. Gabriel downed Trinity, 14-6, while Immanuel beat Black Jack, 11-7

In the National Division, Immanuel leads with a 5-1 record, while Piney Grove is 4-2, followed by Mt. Pleasant, 3-2, Black Jack and Oakmont, both 3-3, Grace, 2-4; and Marantha 0-5.

In the American, St. James leads with a 5-0 record, followed by Presbyterian, 4-1; Meadowbrook and Belvoir, 4-2; Christian, 2-4, St. Gabriel, 1-5, and Trinity, 0-6.

In the opener, Immanuel pushed into the lead with a pair of runs in the first, but Black Jack came back to take the lead with four in the second. Immanuel tied it up with two in the third, and then charged ahead in the fourth for good.

Charley Camp led off the fourth with a single and Jim Smith reached on an error. Armatt Harris singled and David Hahn doubled. Mack Roebuck and Dick Evans both got hits, and Evans scored the sixth run as Sid Carraway and Butch Ricks both singled. That made it 10-4, and wrapped it up.

Immanuel added one in the sixth, while Black Jack picked up one in the fifth and two in the seventh.

In the other game, St. Gabriel scored three in the first, but Trinity came back with six in the second. St. Gabriel pulled closer with two in the bottom of the inning, then gained the lead in the third.

Lee Moore led off the inning with a single and Curtis Ward doubled. John Dilday singled and scored on a hit by Don Lawler, making it 8-6.

St. Gabriel picked up one more in the fifth and scored four more in the sixth to finish off the scoring.

Conley Captures Win In Finale

WINTERVILLE — D.H. Conley closed out its first baseball season Friday night with a 3-2 victory over Vanceboro.

The victory enabled the Vikings to finish the year with a 6-10 record.

Conley pushed into the lead in the fourth inning scoring two runs. Steve Worthington singled and moved up on an out. Steve Evans was hit by a pitch and both runners advanced on a balk. Bobby Bryan reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Worthington. Willie Streeter also reached on a fielder's choice, bringing in Evans.

Vanceboro came back with a run in the sixth. Clay Jordan singled and Joe Midgette reached on a fielder's choice. Danny Hoell walked and Butch White reached on an error, scoring Jordan.

The Red Raiders tied it up with a run in the seventh. Cornelius Dawson singled and moved up when Midgette walked. An error on a stolen base let Dawson come in with the tieing run.

But Conley came right back to score in the bottom of the seventh and take the win. Lawrence Glisson doubled and moved to third on Prince Bunting's single. Clevie Averette then hit a sacrifice fly to bring in Glisson and end the game.

Farmville Wins Final Contest

DUDLEY — The Farmville Red Devils closed out their 1971 season Friday with a 6-2 victory over Southern Wayne High School.

The win left Farmville with a 12-8 record for the year, and a 9-5 Eastern Plains mark, just one game off the pace set by Greene Central and Charles B. Aycock.

Farmville pushed over a run in the first inning. Phil Lewis singled and Ben Joyner was hit by a pitch. Chuck Finklea tripled, scoring Lewis, but Joyner was thrown out at the plate.

In the fourth, Farmville picked up two more, taking a 3-0 lead. Glenn Dwyer walked and was sacrificed to second. Tony Cobb reached on an error and a passed ball scored Dwyer. Ed Wells then singled in Cobb with the winning run.

The Red Devils added three more in the seventh. Joyner and Finklea both singled to open up the inning, and Dwyer singled scoring both runners. A wild pitch moved him to third and he scored from there on an error.

Cloyce Wilson, Lewis, Joyner and Finklea each had two hits to pace the Farmville attack.

Aycock Stops Greene Central

PIKEVILLE — Charles B. Aycock downed Greene Central, 5-1, Friday and pulled into a tie for the Eastern Plains Baseball title.

The Rams and Falcons, deadlocked for the crown, will meet on Monday at 4:30 p.m. at Eastern Wayne High School, to decide the title. The winner will meet Havelock on Tuesday at a time and site to be determined in the first round of the state 3-A playoffs.

Greene Central got its only run in the second. Johnny Earl Johnson singled and moved to third on a fielder's choice. He scored on Stevie Williamson's squeeze bunt.

In the third, Aycock came up with a run to tie it. Thompson singled and Robert Pittman got a hit bringing him in.

The Falcons pushed over two more in the fourth. Holland singled and Davis walked. A wild pitch advanced them, and Holland scored on Kirby's grounder that was errored. Crumpler then reached on another error scoring Davis.

Two more crossed in the fifth. B. Davis singled and Pittman reached on a fielder's choice. Both advanced on an out, and Holland reached on an error, scoring Davis. G. Davis then reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Pittman.

Lions Roll By Coca-Cola, 10-3

The Lions rolled to a 10-3 victory over Coca-Cola Friday in the North State Little League.

The Lions, in winning, picking up their first win of the year, making them 1-1 for the season. Coke is now 0-2.

One Lion run came over in the first. Dale Steele singled and stole second. He went to third on an error, and scored on another.

Coke took a brief lead in the second, with a run. Joe Downing singled and moved to second on an error. He advanced when Lindsey Henry reached on an error. Mark Berbert was hit by a pitch, loading the bases, and Gary Chapman walked, forcing in Downing.

In the third, the Lions scored two to take a 3-2 lead. Guy Bradbury walked Wright Hooks reached on a fielder's choice. A passed ball let both advance and a walk to Ray Kilpatrick loaded the bases. Freager Sanders walked, forcing in Bradbury, and Hooks scored on Jesse Baker's fielder's choice.

In the bottom of the inning, Coke tied it again. Lassiter doubled and took third on Mike Sutton's fielder's choice. Tony Worthington singled in Lassiter.

The Lions came back with two in the fourth, however, to take the lead for good. Steele singled and stole second. Bradbury walked and both moved up on a passed ball. Another let Steele score, and Bradbury scored on a fielder's choice.

Exchange Rips Moose, 17-4

The Exchange ripped the Moose, 17-4, Friday in the Tar Heel Little League. The Moose made 11 errors in losing the contest, the first of the year.

Both teams now carry 1-1 records.

The Exchange pushed over two in the second inning to take the lead. Alston Daniel walked and moved up on a passed ball. Joel Hargett also walked and a wild pitch moved both up. Jay Cox was hit by a pitch, and an error let Daniel score. A passed ball brought in Hargett.

The Moose came right back with a pair to tie it up. Larry Boyette walked and Robin Little reached on a hit. An error moved up both runners, and a wild pitch brought Boyette home. John Lawler reached on an error, scoring Little.

The Exchange went back ahead in the third, scoring four runs, for a 6-2 lead, one which the Moose never overcame. Darrell Roebuck walked and Tom Bunch singled. An error on the play let Roebuck score. A wild pitch moved Bunch to third and he scored when Daniel reached on an error. Another error moved him to second and he took third on a passed ball. Hargett walked and Jerry Avery sacrificed Daniel in. Hargett then scored on a wild pitch.

In the fourth, two more crossed. Bunch was hit by a pitch and Daniel reached on an error, scoring Bunch. Another error let Daniel in.

The Exchange went on to add six in the fifth and three in the sixth. The Moose added two in the fifth.

GUARANTEED
You will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from the beginning to the end.

Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP
Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick Bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION
Just take a few minutes of your time on Tuesday, May 18, and go to the Quality Motel in Greenville, N.C. between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for R. W. Yarbrough, room number.

Boat Review Is Next Weekend

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI)—From the ditty bag:

--One of the big spring events in the South is the All Boat Clubs Review, to be held May 22-23 on TVA's Lake Chickamauga. All boaters and boat clubs have been invited to join the Review. Events will include National Outboard Association sanctioned ski racing embracing all classes--sailboat races, tub racing, bass boat drag racing and such non-nautical events as beauty contests and square dancing. Sponsors include the All Tri-State area boat clubs, the Coast Guard Auxiliary, the Chattanooga Water Ski Clubs and the Chattanooga Convention and Visitors Bureau.

—National Drag Boat Association world records announced recently list Mr. Ed, owned by sportsman industrialist Ed Wills of Fresno, Calif., as fastest hydro in the "blown fuel" class with a mark of 190.26 miles per hour for a quarter-mile run. The 20-foot craft is powered by a 1500-horsepower supercharged Chrysler engine and has unofficially exceeded 200 mph on a number of runs.

--Tulane University sailors have added another bit of silverware to their crowded trophy case by winning the recent John Kennedy Regatta championship at Annapolis, Md. It was their second title in the annual event, which this year drew 11 eight-man college crews, all of whom sailed 44-foot yawls. Other finishers, in order, included Rhode Island, Stanford, Yale, Southern California, Cornell, New York State Maritime College, Western Washington University, Notre Dame and The Citadel.

--No water pollution problems are foreseen with the latest creation of Eskay Plastics Ltd., of Fabreville, Que., Canada—but a lot of legwork is involved. It's a two-passenger propel-it-yourself boat that is said to be virtually unsinkable, weighs less than 110 pounds and can be navigated in only three inches of water. Formed of Cycolac plastic, it glides through the water at five to six miles per hour, pedaled by either one or both or its two passengers.

--New York State is not going to wait for an expected federal law governing discharge of waste into the water by pleasure boats. The state says that regardless of federal action it is going ahead and enforce its law—approved a year ago--which requires approved holding tanks or recirculating toilets. The strict law, which provides fines up to $100 and imprisonment up to 60 days, or both, for noncompliance, has drawn considerable criticism from boaters and boating organizations. The new federal law is not expected to be so demanding and may permit a low degree of treatment discharge.

--At least one or more of the new 12 meter yachts that will be seeking a defending or challenging role in the 1973 America's Cup series is expected to have an aluminum hull. Previously, only wood has been permitted for hull construction of the 12s, in accordance with regulations by Lloyd's of London, whose building standards are accepted for boat classifications. Lloyd's recently approved aluminum.

Publication On N.C. Outdoors

KNTTS ISLAND — A new, quarterly publication, HUNTERS-ANGLERS WORLD is being published by Marksman Publishers at Knotts Island, N.C. in Currituck County. The publication is edited by (Mrs.) Leona C. Lilley and Edward Fentress, both natives of the Back Bay, Va., Currituck County, N.C. area, and formerly affiliated with Bay Point Shooting Preserve at Knotts Island.

The purpose of the publication, the publishers tell us, is to inform sportsmen of what goes on in the world of hunting and fishing in North Carolina and Virginia. Its contents will included articles, stories, questions and answers, and illustrations, spiced with a bit of humor here and there.

"We are very optimistic about this magazine." Mrs. Lilley said. "We have worked with sportsmen and have seen how enthusiastic they are about their sports. We have great faith that it will be accepted by the sportsmen of the two states, which unite right here in our area. (Knotts Island is part in Virginia.) — The Back Bay, Va.-Currituck County, N.C. section being well-known for its hunting and fishing."

Mr. Fentress, who is very well known in Eastern North Carolina and Virginia for his ability and experience in hunting, fishing, trapping and guiding, as well as dog training, said, "We feel that the residents of these two states will be proud to support our project. We have great optimism that HUNTERS-ANGLERS WORLD will eventually become a monthly publication and a leading hunting and fishing guide in North Carolina and Virginia. We feel, too," he said, "That this "that this magazine will be a great asset in promoting hunting and fishing in the two states."

The introductory issue, for April-May-June, the editors explained, is a bit late, but will be out by the middle of May. It contains only 12 pages and is only a sample of what to expect in future issues. The following issues will include more pages. The regular columns, "Galley Ho!", "Let's Ask Eddie", and "Newsline", will be longer and include much more information. More stories, pictures and articles are scheduled. A circulation of 100,000 is expected for the July-August-September issue. Sample copies of the introductory issue may be had by sending 25 cents in coin to the publishers.

The editors express the need for free lance material from outdoor writers. Address: Box 144-A, Dept. 10, Knotts Island, N.C. 27950.

SPORTS EDITOR UNRETIRES

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — After covering 10 baseball training camps in Florida and the Flamingo race at Hialeah, Raymond Johnson thought he could play more golf in retirement.

But Bob Gorham of Churchill Downs nabbed Johnson, former sports editor of the Nashville Tennessean, before he got settled. Johnson said "yes" when Gorham asked him to become Churchill Downs publicity director.

MARSH WILL-O-THE-WISP

Secrative but inquisitive, the long-billed marsh wren inhabits dense stands of a marshes cattail reeds. There, it is an elusive will-o-the-wisp, scolding the intruder, while darting among the sheltering reeds, now in front now behind. This wren builds a globe shaped nest, woven into reed stalks, with the entrance in the side. The male will build several dummy nests in the vicinity of the one occupied. No satisfactory explanation as to why has yet been discovered.

Dock Fisherman Wins The Prize

KIMBERLING CITY, Mo. — We've all heard the one about the fellow at the dock, who caught the big fish, while the other fishermen motored around the lake looking for the happy fishing grounds.

It does happen. However, a most unlikely spot was the Table Rock National BASS Tournament, where 82 top anglers from 17 states competed April 29, 30 and May 1 with $8,500 in rewards at stake. John Powell of Montgomery, Ala., won the big fish-off, and didn't burn "three gallons of gas in the three days."

Powell, a retired Air Force Master Sergeant, tallied 29 bass almost under the weight-master's nose at the lake headquarters at the Wilderness Point Resort. Most of the contenders with up to 135 h. p. bass boats fished up to 20 miles away.

Powell's total catch weighed 59 pounds 13 ounces. He boated what proved to be the winning fish, a 4½-pound largemouth, 15 minutes before the final gun. Runnerup with 55 pounds 10 ounces was Marvin Miller of Bettendorf, Iowa, who was fishing only his second national Ball Anglers Sportsman Tournament.

Powell gave credit to his first-day partner, Glen Wells of Greenbriar, Tenn., for locating the hand fishing spot. Both anglers boated their ten-bass limits by 9 a. m. the first round. "We must have had 90 strikes and caught 45 bass between us," recalled Powell. "I was sure lucky to draw him for a partner. The fish I'd found in practice were about 16 miles away."

A good memory helped Wells. He'd been fishing the timbered coves and brush in practice, but not "finding enough fish to suit me," he said. Wells recalled a similar situation at Center Hill Lake in Tennessee when the bass for a two-week period moved on clean, gravel banks. He tested the first cove near the marina, and found the fish. It remained a well-kept secret.

Wells placed fourth with 51 pounds 2 ounces (25 fish), and trailed Powell by only 11 ounces going into the final round.

There was a special knack that payed-off in shallow, clear water. "We used lighter than normal ten-pound test monofilament, a short six-inch purple plastic worm and made long casts," said Powell. "You could see the lure on the bottom."

Powell, who won the 1968 National BASS championship held on Lake Eufaula, Ala., is only the second repeat winner in 22 of these highly competitive fish-offs. Bill Dance of Memphis, Tenn., is a seven-time winner. Dance, winner of over $22,000, was unable to compete at Table Rock.

Runnerup Miller fished a different style. He chunked singlespins, Bombers, jig and eels and plastic worms in 2-to-3 foot "dirty water with heavy brush," where the carp had been spawning and roiled the water. In the heavy cover, Miller used 20-pound test, and "jerked the fish in the boat."

Bill Fletcher of Gassville, Ark., was the only angler to fish "par" three days. He placed third with 30 bass weighing 51 pounds 11 ounces.

Fletcher's technique also dictated light line and small ¼th ounce yellow jigs with black eels. He fished flat banks with underwater rocks 10-to-15 feet deep, and concentrated on trying to catch a limit of two-pound bass. "The last day I needed some bigger fish to win and moved into the timber, and ran out of jigs," he related.

Biggest bass of the tournament was an 8 pound 5 ounce largemouth taken by Gerald Maxwell of Tulsa, Oklahoma, that earned him a bonus of $10 per pound and an electric fishing motor presented by the Herschede Hall Clock Company of Starkville, Miss., to the "lunker leader." However, it was no contest between the fish and fisherman. Maxwell is a hefty 325 pounder.

Ducks Unlimited Allocates Big Amount For Nesting Projects

Ducks Unlimited has taken another decisive step toward the future, with the allocation of $2,500,000 for the 1971 construction of waterfowl nesting projects in Canada (where 4 out of 5 ducks begin life). Approval of this highest-in-history amount, plus the election of new officers, headlined the 34th Annual Convention of Ducks Unlimited, Inc., which adjourned last weekend (May 1st) following four days of productive meetings in Scottsdale, Arizona.

145 delegates from across the U. S., Canada and Mexico participated in the convention, along with the staffs of Ducks Unlimited, Inc. and its construction affiliate, Ducks Unlimited (Canada).

The 2-million, 500-thousand budget is the largest in the 34-year history of UD—in fact, 500-thousand dollard above the previous record, set last year. During 1971, Ducks Unlimited (Canada) will utilize these funds for the construction of some 100 high quality waterfowl nesting areas, as well as maintenance of existing projects. DU (Canada) officials reported to the convention that 84 of these programs will be built in the important prairie provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, with an additional 8 in British Columbia and 9 in eastern Canada's Maritime Provinces.

Marking another major highlight of the annual convention was the election of new officers of Ducks Unlimited, Inc., for the coming year.

Chosen as new president, by unanimous vote, was Lee C. Howley, of Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Howley, 60, serves as Vice President and General Counsel of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company. Widely known for his progressive leadership in conservation and civic circles, he had previously held the DU positions of Central Mississippi Vice President, member of the Executive Committee, and Ohio Chairman. A native of Cleveland, Mr. Howley attended Wittenburg University and the Western Reserve Law School.

The Ducks Unlimited Board also elected retiring President William P. Elser, of La Jolla, California, as Chairman of the Board of Trustees, succeeding Charles B. Allen, of Baltimore, Maryland, who was elected to the position of Executive Committee Chairman.

Other DU officers unanimously re-elected to new one-year terms included Treasurer Wyndham Hasler, of Chicago and Secretary Henry E. Coe, III, of New York City. Eleven Regional Vice Presidents were elected, including — South Pacific Region, Chester F. Dolley, of Los Angeles; North Pacific Region, Randolph F. Cunningham, Yakima, Wash.; South Central Region, David Wintermann, Eagle Lake, Tex.; Mid Central Region, R. Withers Cool, Colorado Springs, Colo.; North Central Region, Robert D. Marcotte, of Omaha, Neb.; South Mississippi Region, Herman Taylor, Jr., of Natchitoches, Las; Central Mississippi Region, Jay Neubauer, of Long Grove, Ill.; North Mississippi Region, Norman H. Hedge, Jr., Tyler, Tex.; J. R. Jamison, Dayton, Tex.; John D. Parker, Lufkin, Tex.; Kenneth W. Reinhardt, Jr., Beaumont, Tex.; Anson Brooks, Seattle, Wash.; Dedric W. Bergstrom, Neenah, Wis.; Ralph H. Knode, Jr., Sheridan, Wyo., and Robert White, President of Ducks Unlimited (Canada), Vancouver, British Columbia.

27 members of the Ducks Unlimited Board were re-elected to new terms and 24 distinguished conservationists were approved as Honorary Trustees.

In his acceptance message, President Lee C. Howley, noted that Ducks Unlimited has made much progress over recent years, but that the challenge facing waterfowl conservation in the future remains a critical one. He looked forward, in these words: "Because of the great record achieved by those conservation pioneers in whose footsteps I follow I am confident for the future. I will do everything within my power to assure that Ducks Unlimited will continue its dynamic progress in our single purpose — the development, preservation, restoration and maintenance of Canada's waterfowl nesting grounds — the unique environmental protection which we've pioneered for 34 years."

Another Quail Bill Proposed

By JIM DEAN

Another quail bill has been thrown into the legislative hopper, drawing opposition from those who want to save the bird for sport and protect it from commerce.

Senate Bill 537 — thinly disguised as a local bill — would ostensibly permit the sale of dressed, pen-raised quail for food purposes in Pender County only, but it would actually allow quail to be commercialized statewide.

"Although this new quail bill purports to be a local bill, our attorney has studied it and it is his opinion that the bill would provide for the sale of dressed, pen-raised quail for food purposes statewide," said Clyde P. Patton, Executive Director of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission.

"All this bill does is set up Pender County as the location for processing of pen-raised quail from all over the state," said Patton. "Under existing laws, any licensed quail propagator in any part of North Carolina can lawfully sell any number of live, pen-raised quail to any other licensed propagator. The bill would authorize any licensed propagator in Pender County to sell dressed quail to any wholesale or retail outlet in the state for the purpose of resale.

"Except for restricting the location of the processing plant, this bill would do practically the same thing as the statewide quail bill (House Bill 360) which the Wildlife Commission has voted to unanimously oppose," added Patton.

The Wildlife Commission is concerned that the commercialization of quail will encourage widespread illegal trapping and sale of wild quail.

"There is no way to accurately tell the difference between pen-raised quail and wild quail after they have been dressed," said Patton. "Weight is not an accurate measure. Also, there is no practical way to enforce the law to insure that wild quail are not being illegally trapped, black-marketed and sold as food. Either of these bills would place this state's wild quail in serious jeopardy."

Tourney Planned

Billed as the largest of its kind on the Eastern Seaboard, the First Annual Northeastern North Carolina Rock and Bass Fishing Tournament gets underway May 22 and 23 in the Gaston Reservoir section.

The Roanoke Rapids-Weldon area is known far and wide as the Rockfish Capital of the World, and some lunker stripers as well as plenty of bragging-size black bass are expected. Fishing will be permitted on Gaston Reservoir, Roanoke Rapids, Reservoir, and the Roanoke River down to Halifax.

Open House Today

REAL, Where People Care

It's the REAL thing and since early this year has been an established service in Greenville at 570 Cotanche Street.

Today, between two and six o'clock, REAL will have an open house for the public. Students on duty will explain to interested visitors their hopes, their aims and what they have been able to accomplish to date.

REAL is the answer to young people's concern for other people, a practical, down-to-earth way to do their share in directing those needing professional help on the right road to getting the best assistance available when it's needed.

The young people, East Carolina University students, volunteering their time to make REAL work, refer to the program as a "crisis intervention service." They emphasize their role is one of contact, a central place where anyone with problems can call or visit to seek reassurance and guidance in getting in early contact with someone qualified to furnish them real help in their problems.

Although their focus is on students and young people, the service embraces persons of any age or walk of life who would like to use REAL's referral service. The word "referral" is another key word used by participating students and advisors. In this respect, emphasis is placed on the role, as one student termed it "that of opening the door that will lead a person in need to help."

Originally, the program was begun by ECU students concerned about the growing problem of drug abuse. The services offered by this center now includes a much wider scope of social assistance — among them are suicide prevention efforts; legal draft counselling in cooperation with the U.S. Selective Service Bureau; problem pregnancy cases; a talk-down service for persons experiencing a bad trip on LSD or other drugs; and any other of the contemporary human ills that may confront any citizen.

REAL — the initials have no real significance, is operated by an Executive Committee and Board of students. Sue Johnson is interim chairman; Marvin Daughterty is House and Schedule Committee chairman; the secretary-treasurer is Holly Brenner; Ginger Joynes heads the Resources Committee; Ruth Anema is a board member; and Cinda Poole, Public Relations.

"A group of students for some time sensed the need to try to help others," Father Hugh C. Mulholland, a staunch supporter of the program explained. "It had been realized that people suffering from drug abuses are not always at ease in dealing with regular referral channels. Because of this, it was felt an organization where students could turn to their peers, such as REAL, might be very helpful."

Father Mulholland is one of several university and community adults who have given liberally of their time and talent to assist the students. Others are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Jacobson (Jacobson is owner-operator of Radio Station WOOW); Rev. William J. Hadden, the Episcopal Chaplain at ECU; George R. J. Wiegand, professor and Director of the Counselling Center at ECU; Dr. Thomas Long of the ECU Psychology Department; and John Childers of the Coastal Plain Mental Health Center.

Other persons active in REAL include Jeff Walder, Jay Steinberg, Chase Barnes, Gilmer Deagan, and James Mitchener, students at ECU. E. G. Willis is a special assistant in draft counselling.

One of the keynotes of REAL's program is that anyone coming to the center or telephoning in is afforded the strictest confidential treatment. People using this service will not be in danger of any legal action. Names are not used, since records are classified by a tally system.

Candidates to work as volunteers at REAL house are screened and trained by a group of psychologists before being permitted to take an active part.

Part of the training given the young men and women working at REAL house centers on their becoming familiar with the referral services that are the most appropriate for referral purposes.

Social service organizations and agencies at the university and in the area are participating agencies. These include the ECU Infirmary, Pitt County Health Center, ECU Counselling Department, the emergency squad, local doctors, ministers and psychologists, university chaplains and other established services and qualified individuals in and around Greenville who have offered to give their services to the program.

The students provide the heart of REAL's service. Currently, REAL is open daily Monday through Thursday from five o'clock in the afternoon until midnight; and from five o'clock Friday through midnight on Sunday. This applies to hours for visiting the REAL house on Cotanche and for the telephone service there.

The telephone, listed under 758-4357 can be remembered by the fact that 4357 equates to HELP — therefore, a person can dial 758-HELP for assistance.

To assist the students, an Advisory Board has been set up to offer guidance and supervision of the program. When the organizational arrangements for REAL were first drafted, responsibilities and assignment of specific tasks and objectives were formulated.

These initial plans outlined a breakdown of the REAL program to include:

—REAL will be a student-operated program, with the Executive Committee and Board to be staffed entirely by students.

—A volunteer Advisory Board of specialists in medicine, psychology, and other related fields will work with the REAL Executive Board.

—Officers of REAL will elect from their constituency a chairman, assistant chairman, secretary and treasury.

—The Executive Board will include the officers plus the functional committee chairmen.

—Committees will be for: (1) House; for the physical operation of the REAL house, to approve rent, utilities, upkeep, etc.; (2) Operations; responsible for programming and operation of REAL house, to include discipline and good order; and (3) Resources; with the responsibility of utilizing campus and community professional people in the REAL program.

Referring to the background of the current organization, Jacobson said "The workers in this program, the students, have gradually built a basis for a helpful, meaningful operation, expanding their services as the number of workers and advisors grows."

The program first took root in August 1970 on a limited basis on campus, with its prime objective at that time the assistance of students in need of help because of drug abuses.

The renting of the house for REAL on Cotanche Street early this year represented a big step forward. This location, somewhat a central one, is convenient to students as well as others who may want to come in to talk to one of the student workers. At any time during operation hours, at least two students are on hand to take care of requests for help.

Interested persons, for example, Rev. Hadden, feel the program now underway offers much in the way of giving good basic guidance. He also expressed faith in the expansion of the program as time passes.

"The plans are flexible and can be changed as personnel available and the scope of services are enlarged," he commented. "It's the type of thing that has great future possibilities, for the student and for the community."

"It has worked well in towns like Jacksonville, Chapel Hill and Fayetteville," Jacobson pointed out. "We feel REAL will prove itself a valuable asset to Greenville."

Funds to carry on REAL's work have primarily been furnished by the ECU Student Government Association.

"This has been seed money to get the project going," Father Mulholland said. Assistance has also been furnished by interested groups, such as the Greenville Jaycees, who recently made a donation to help the work being done at REAL.

Citizens this afternoon will have an opportunity to get a first-hand look at REAL house and to meet some of the young people who are giving their time to man the center, and to do all they can to help anyone in need.

ECU Specialized Math Program

Advanced Math For Young Students

Photographs by Tommy Forrest

Teen-aged boys and girls attending school voluntarily on Saturday. It's hard to believe this could be true, but it is.

For the second consecutive year a group of high school students have been meeting on Saturday mornings with Mrs. Nannie Lee Manning, of the East Carolina University Mathematics Department, to explore areas of mathematics not covered in their traditional high school curriculum or to give deeper consideration to standard topics.

This is part of a program initiated in 1969 by Dr. Tullio J. Pignani, chairman of the ECU Mathematics Department, in cooperation with Provost Robert W. Williams.

Students in high schools within commuting distance of Greenville who have demonstrated a high potential in mathematics are invited to participate. The purpose of the program is to enrich the mathematical background of the students and to encourage them to use this experience and training to better fulfill their aims in life.

The first year students meet with Mrs. Manning for 26 sessions and with Dr. F. Milam Johnson, Director of the ECU Computing Center, for four sessions. During the sessions with Mrs. Manning, the students explore a variety of topics to foster a more thorough understanding, appreciation, and enthusiasm for mathematics. The sessions with Dr. Johnson are used for learning FORTRAN programming. The students design their own programs and execute them on the IBM 360-30 computer.

The second year the students meet with Dr. Robert J. Hursey, Jr. and continue exploration in areas begun in the first year program with emphasis placed upon development of various algebraic structures (groups, rings, ordered rings, fields), an axiomatic development of the real number system, and number theoretic results. They also have four sessions in computer programming with Dr. Johnson.

To give attendance figures, Mrs. Manning resorted to the use of rational numbers, rather than the integers customarily used in counting people. She reports an average attendance of 11.6 students.

During the first two years the program has been financed by East Carolina University, but it will be partially financed by a National Science Foundation grant during the third year. Students desiring to participate in this program for 1971-72 should contact the Mathematics Department at ECU or the gudance counselors in their local schools.

Modern Living In Dutch Design

By GERRY BISHOP

Charm and grace are the mood of the Gaylord, a Dutch-style tri-level with four bedrooms and a host of appealing features for modern living.

The Associated Architects have designed this large home with exterior and interior equally impressive. The shingled upper level blends well with the Dutch lines. So do the shuttered windows and the gently sloping roof.

On the inside the foyer overlooks a sunken dining room with a 12-foot ceiling. It's an inviting entryway that matches the warmth and cheerfulness of the Gaylord.

Both the family room and dining room are separated by a railing connected to the rear patio by sliding-glass doors. This presents an exciting challenge to gardeners, an incentive to create an attractive back yard.

There are lots of windows in this model, a feature that assures plenty of natural light to make the rooms bright and cheerful.

Altogether there are four bedrooms, two and a half baths, a living room, dining room, modern kitchen, family room and double garage. The plans do not provide for a basement so utilities are housed in the lower level. There's space for a washer, dryer, furnace and water heater.

Traffic Center

Traffic moves freely from the foyer to all sections of the Gaylord. The living room is to the right, steps at the left lead to the three bedrooms on the top level and another small flight of stairs connect with the kitchen-dining room area. There's also a coat closet in the foyer.

The living room is large, approximately 12 feet by 19 feet, and it's nicely isolated from the main flow of traffic. This assures privacy and is an excellent feature for formal entertaining.

Appliances and cabinets are built in to provide a modern workshop in the kitchen. The double sink is under a window overlooking the back yard.

High-Ceilinged Dining Room

The dining room, about 10 feet square, is on the other side of the kitchen. The high ceiling is a charming feature which adds spaciousness and atmosphere.

The bedroom on the lower level is approximately 12 feet by 10 feet and is just a few feet from the powder room.

As with all split-levels, the Gaylord features "zoned living." This can be seen in the sleeping quarters on the upper level. The three main bedrooms are well out of the main traffic pattern, whch affords privacy and quiet. The master bedroom has a large closet and private bath with a shower. The other two bedrooms also have big closets and are near the main bath which has a tub and vanity.

The double garage includes a storage area.

The lower and intermediate levels have 1,254 square feet of living space, the upper level has 700 square feet and there are 558 square feet in the garage. The dimensions are approximately 71 feet by 28 feet.

A DUTCH TREAT — The Gaylord, designed by the Associated Architects, features a Dutch design on three levels. There are four bedrooms, two and a half baths, a living room, family room, kitchen with built-in cabinets and appliances, a dining room and double garage. There's no basement so utilities are housed on the lower level.

A Few Power Tools Can Broaden Useful Range Of Do-It-Yourselfer

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Every home has —or should have — such basic handtools as hammer and saw, pliers, wrenches, screwdrivers.

These are essential to even the most minor maintenance chores around the house and many an eager do-it-yourselfer has accomplished substantial projects with little more. It's something like photography: it's not so much the camera as the photographer. The simplest camera is capable of great pictures in the hands of an artist. So it is with tools.

Still, just as a fine camera can extend the range and enhance the abilities of a capable photographer; so can power tools broaden the field of the do-it-yourselfer.

The wide variety of power tools now available, many designed especially with the amateur in mind, has made it possible for a homeowner to tackle repairs and home improvement work that formerly were the province of professionals.

Assuming a certain basic aptitude and interest, the do-it-yourselfer can employ power tools to save hours of drudgery and substantial cash.

It is wise to start small. Buy a few basic power tools, then add equipment as your jobs and talents require. Unless you're a real hobbyist, often it is wise to rent more specialized equipment or have certain jobs done for you rather than invest heavily in equipment that will be used seldom.

A good start on power tools for the home workshop would be a drill, jig saw (saber saw) and a finishing sander, according to E. Lawrence Tabat, vice president of the Power Tool Division of Rockwell Manufacturing Co., Pittsburgh.

These will enable the home craftsman to handle a variety of commonplace household jobs

A variable speed reversing drill, for example, Tabat said, can drill wood, steel, glass, plastics, composition and masonry. It can be adapted for special screwdriver bits which eliminate tedious hand-stirring of paints. Auxiliary handles are available to assist in steady operation where heavy work is undertaken.

Jig saws prove useful for contour cutting of all shapes — even the most intricate designs, Tabat said. While slower cutting than circular saws, they rip and cross-cut to produce a straight edge with the aid of cutting guides. By using special blades, jig saws can cut plywood, metals, plastic laminates, compositions and leather. They are handy, requiring no setting up as with stationary table saws and little experience is needed to obtain satisfactory results.

Jig saw blades can be bought individually or in packages of five for economy. As a general rule, Tabat suggests, always select the narrowest blade recommended for intricate cutting and the widest blade for straight and large curve cutting jobs. So-called bargain blades are no bargain, Tabat said. But top quality blades of finest steel, hardened and tempered, precision filed to razor sharpness and set. They last far longer and produce best results.

Finishing sanders are a boon when preparing wood before and between stain or paint coats since they eliminate the drudgery of hand sanding and produce uniform results.

The total cost of a high quality drill, jig saw and finishing sander is approximately $80, Tabat said. These power tools provide years of reliable performance while cutting home repair and improvement bills as much as two-thirds the outside cost, he noted.

But, many people ask, do you really save money when you consider the time you put in — usually much more than it would take a professional for the job?

Take, for an example, Tabat said, an actual house painting job which a professional would do at $1,200. The homeowner elected to do it himself, paid $92 for materials and took about 40 hours for the job. With an income in the 30 per cent tax bracket he would have had to earn $1,583 above the painter's bid after paying for all materials—or almost $40 an hour —to retain after taxes the $1,108 he saved by doing the job himself.

The Garden Clinic

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. How can I fumigate my Japanese holly plants that appear to be damaged by nematodes? (Mrs. H. B., Rocky Mount)

A. Buy liquid Nemagon and mix two teaspoonsful per gallon of water. This will treat a nine-square-foot area (usually 1 plant). Prepare the plant for treating by building an earthen dam three feet out and around the plant to be treated. Punch holes with a spading fork in the soil around the plant inside the prepared dam. Pour the one gallon of mixture around the plant. Follow this with a gallon of clear water to help push the chemical down into the root system. (J. C. Wells, Extension plant pathologist.

Q. When do you fertilize azaleas and what do you use? (Mrs. O. C., Apex)

A. A neutral garden fertilizer such a 8-8-8 can be used at the rate of two-three pints per 100 square feet. Special mixes of azalea and camellia fertilizers have the advantage of lasting slightly longer and they contain acidifying agents that are desired in soils for azaleas. Make the first fertilizer application as new growth appears; another application in June or early July is needed. (Henry J. Smith, extension horticulturist)

Q. Dallis grass or quackgrass has taken over my fescue lawn. What can I do? (Mrs. R. N., Winston-Salem)

A. If Dallis grass has taken over your fescue lawn, I would suggest that you start over with a new lawn. That is, kill the Dallis grass (and other weedy grasses such as Bermuda grass) with dalapon in July, then after three or four weeks, work the soil to four to six inches deep, apply lime and fertilizer as per soil test, disk or rototill the lime and fertilizer into the top four inches of soil, smooth the soil and allow it to settle for a week (or until after a good rain). Seed tall fescue at four pounds per 1,000 square feet during the first week of September. I'm sure this sounds drastic. It is, but you have some basic reason that the weedy grasses overpowered the desirable grasses. This has to be corrected before you can have a good lawn. Also cut at the proper height (two or two and one-half inches mower setting). Never lower. Then, fertilize only during the cool season (spring and fall. Never in the summer. (Carl Blake, extension turf grass specialist)

Q. We have a flowering quince that has never bloomed, although it is seven years old. What can be done to force it into bloom? (W. D., Salisbury)

A. Summer pruning will help. Cut back shoots of the current season one-half when they are about two-thirds grown. This will induce side shoots to form. If growth is rank, prune to shorten these side shoots. Spading superphosphate into the soil at the rate of six ounces per square yard may be helpful. (Henry J. Smith, extension horticulturist)

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—Dust and insects come in under the bottom of a door leading from our dining room to a rear patio. I tried installing a strip of rubber at the bottom of the door, but it hasn't worked too well. If it is placed down far on the door, it hits the threshold and makes the door hard to open and close. If it is moved up a little, it leaves a space under the door. How can I solve this problem?

A.—There are several products on the market which can be attached to the bottom of a door so that, when the door it closed, the attachment strip makes a tight seal and, when the door is opened, the strip moves up a little out of the way. Be sure you follow the directions to the letter about the installation of the strip, as even a fraction of an inch difference will prevent the item from working properly.

Q.—We're doing over our kitching cabinets and plan to use an enamel. Is it better to use a paint brush or a spray gun? The cabinets are metal.

A.—With a paint brush, it is more difficult to get a smooth finish on metal, although it can be done if the brush is used correctly. With a spray gun, there is more mess, since you have to cover all adjacent objects that the spray might settle on. By the way, if the cabinets already have a glossy finish on them, better sand them down or use a gloss-cutting liquid as an undercoat for the enamel. And even if they are not glossy, wash off any grease or dirt that might have accumulated over the years.

Rate Changes Inspire Flurry Of New Stamps

The change in postal rates, which was scheduled to take effect this morning, brought about a flurry of new postal issues by the Post Office Department.

Some have already been issued, and others will be coming out during the next few weeks.

The parade of new stamps began May 6, when two new envelopes were placed on sale. The new letter rate, 8 cents, shows an embossed eagle in a blue background. The air mail envelope, 11 cents, shows three circles, red with "U. S.," a very light blue with a porfile of an airplane, and a blue with "11c" going across the top corner of the envelope with "Air Mail" under it.

The next day, May 7, two other issues were made, both of regular stamps. One, a 16 cent stamp, pictures Ernie Pyle, well-known World War II war correspondent. The stamp features a photograph made in 1944 of the journalist. It is printed in brown.

The other stamp is the new air mail, an 11 cent stamp. It shows an airplain in silhouette, with the words "U. S. Air Mail 11c" flanking the plane. The stamp is printed in red. It was issued in sheet form, coils and in booklets containing two panes of four airmail stamps, and one pane of six two-cent stamps.

On May 8, the first commemorative using the 8 cent rate was issued, honoring the 150th anniversary of Missouri's admission as a state. The stamp, in horizontal format, shows a portion of Thomas Hart Benton's mural from the Truman Library, showing settlers approaching an Indian. The stamp is printed in multicolor on photographic presses.

May 10 saw four new issues. One, the new 60 cent special delivery, is in the same design as the present issue. The colors, however, are reversed.

The regular letter stamp, the 8 cent, actually forms several different varities. The stamp reproduces the current 6 cent Eisenhower. The sheet form of the 8 cent is printed in multicolor, with the portrait in black and the lettering in red and blue. The coil and booklet designs will be printed in reddish brown. Booklets include one of three panes of eight, and another with two panes of six, plus one of four 1 cent Jefferson stamps.

The American Flag stamp, showing the flag over the White House, will also be changed to an 8 cent variety. The colors on both the sheet and coil varieties will be the same as on the 6 cent except the denomination will be in red.

The fourth stamp issued on May 10, is the new 1.7 cent envelope for use by non-profit organizations. It reporduces the current 1.4 cent design, showing the Liberty Bell. It is printed in purple.

Yesterday, four new stamps were issued, three of which were postal cards. Two show Paul Revere. This is the new 6 cent card, and the reply-paid cards. The design is based on a statue near Boston's Old North Church. The other card, the new air mail rate of 9 cents, shows the current design, an eagle, with colors reversed.

The only adhesive stamp among the four, to pay air mail rates on picture post card, 9 cents, shows a delta wing in profile, and is printed in red. Both the 9 cent stamps had their first day sales in Kitty Hawk.

On May 21, the new 21 cent overseas airmail stamp will be issued in Washington. It shows the current 20 cent design, the initials "USA" and an airplane. The colors on the new stamp are reversed from the old one.

On May 28, a 15 cent aerogramme or air letter will be issued in Chicago. Then, on June 10, a 10 cent surface rate international post card and a 15 cent air mail international card will be issued. A 17 cent air mail stamp has also been planned, completing the change-over of rates.

Therapy . . .

Plaza, to converse with a female friend of his therapist, and give a report in front of a class. Now he is conducting a survey asking people house-to-house their ideas about the causes of stuttering."

What are some of the tricks besides those previously mentioned that McDonald has used to quit stuttering. Once he begins to stutter, he makes himself stop, relax, and think before he goes on.

"One thing I'm working on," McDonald said, "is concentrating only on what I'm saying. Therapy has made me realize how much I either let my mind race ahead of what I'm saying, or worry about how I just said something and thus get fouled up on what I'm saying at the time."

Asked what a person listening to a stutterer should do, McDonald answered, "I appreciate people who just look at me and listen. Therapy has taught me that most people really do not react very much at all. They aren't laughing as I used to think and most aren't too impatient. I used to like it when someone would guess what I was saying and help me out. That was just another of my escape mechanisms, though. Now I'd prefer they just wait for me to finish. Usually if they don't show some unusual reaction, I don't get flustered and stutter much anyway."

"Bruce has come a long way toward eliminating his stuttering," his student therapist, Dave Blalock, said. "I've heard tapes of his voice made before he began therapy when you could not even understand what he was attempting to say. Even this past fall, when I began to work with him, it was difficult. This week in a 20-minute session of therapy, he had only four blocks and he pulled himself out of these very quickly. His goal is to be terminated from therapy by next winter quarter when he hopes to practice teach. If he continues to work as hard as he has, I believe he's going to make it."

This summer Dr. Daniel will begin a therapy program for elementary school-aged stutterers and their parents. Persons interested in this or the adult program should call Dr. Daniel's office—758-6048—or the Department office—758-6814 by May 29. Dr. Daniel will be here only until this Thursday, May 20, when he leaves for a break before the first summer session which begin in early June.

VIOLENCE RISES

LONDON (AP) — Crimes of violence in London rose to a record level in 1970, with 25 people a day shot, knifed or beaten.

Cayton-Teel Vows Said In Saturday Ceremony

In a double ring ceremony in Mount Pleasant Christian Church on Saturday at four o'clock in the afternoon, Miss Patricia Joan Teel became the bride of Richard Barr Cayton.

Hugh E. Jarrett, pastor of the bride, officiated at the ceremony. A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. E. Randolph Fleming, aunt of the bride. Mrs. A. J. Wilde, cousin of the bride, sang "Whither Thou Goest."

The church was decorated with a fifteen branch candelabra with baskets of gladioli and mums, interspersed with fern and other greenery, on each side. The vows were spoken while kneeling on a priedieu of white satin centered midway to the altar. The family pews were marked with sprays of stephanotis over white satin and tulle ribbions.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ophir Teel Sr. of Greenville, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal length gown of silk organza and lace. The princess design gown featured appliques of re-embroidered lace. A chantilly lace panel over organza stemmed from the bodice to the hemline. Seed pearls and sequins trimmed the patterns of lace on the gown. An organza chapel length train was attached from the shoulders. Appliques of chantilly lace graced the tubar chapel train.

She wore a matching headpiece of sheer flower petals accented with seed pearls and sequins attached to a bouffant elbow length illusion veil. She carried a white lace-covered Bible centered with a white orchid and showered with bridal ribbons and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bridegroom's parents are Command Sergeant Major and Mrs. Vernon B. Cayton of Fairbanks, Alaska.

Mrs. Julius Douglas Parker, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a full length gown of light blue dotted swiss embroidered with dark blue roses and designed with an empire waist and square neckline. Her headpiece was matching blue illusion attached to a blue bow. She carried a nosegay of mixed spring flowers which accented her gown.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Glenn Carter, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Parker Overton. Their gowns were identical to that of the honor attendant and they carried nosegays of matching flowers.

Miss Kathy Parker of Greenville was flower girl. She was dressed identical to the other attendants and carried a white wicker basket filled with rose petals.

Alvin Anderson of Fayetteville, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Joseph Teel Jr., brother of the bride, and Sidney Scott, cousin of the bride.

The bride's mother selected a pale yellow silk knit dress with lace applique and matching accessories. Mrs. Alvin Anderson of Fayetteville, aunt of the bridegroom, wore a blue silk dress with matching accessories. Both wore orchid corsages.

Mrs. Raymond Page, grandmother of the bridegroom, wore a rose dress with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Following the wedding trip to Florida, the couple will be at home at Rt. 6, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University, Greenville. The bridegroom, formerly of Augusta, Ga., is a graduate of Richmond Academy. He now holds the rank of Staff Sergeant in the U.S. Army and will return to Saigon, Vietnam, to finish a tour of duty there, returning to the states in September.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception given by the bride's parents was held in the church community building.

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Teel and introduced to the bride and bridegroom and members of the wedding party.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Bullock directed guests to the reception table.

The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of snapdragons, pom pons and gypsophelia in shades of pink and flanked by three branched candelabra.

The wedding cake was served by Mrs. Wilbur Murphy, Mrs. Leon Tyson and Mrs. Howard Stocks. Punch was poured by Mrs. Alvin Anderson, Mrs. Raymond Page and Mrs. William Clifton.

On the register table was the bride's book where guests registered and were acknowledged by Mr. and Mrs. Ruel Stancill.

Others assisting were Mrs. Charlie Harris, Mrs. Ben Thomas, Mrs. Linwood Harris and Mrs. Carl Scott. Teresa Harrell, Jimmie Sue Spain, Ann Spain and Judy Clark also assisted.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh E. Jarrett.

Pre-Rehearsal Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Douglas Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stocks entertained the Cayton-Teel wedding party and out-of-town-guests at a two-course dinner in the Mount Pleasand Community Building.

The table was laid with a white cut-work cloth and centered with pastel spring flowers flenaked by pink candles.

After-Rehearsal Pary

Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Pollard and directed to the refreshment table by Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Pollard.

Mrs. Joseph Teel served the cake and Mrs. Alvin Anderson poured punch.

Hosts and hostesses for this occasion were Mrs. Leon Tyson, Mrs. James Allen, Mrs. E. Randolph Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Pollard and Mr. and Mrs. Pollard Sr.

Assisting in serving were Mrs. Frank Brown and Mrs. Emma P. Ballance.

Albuquerque Woman Runs Only Public Nuclear Weapons Museum In The World

By GRACE MARIE PRATHER
Albuquerque Journal Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Albuquerque's Carol Canfield runs the only public nuclear weapons museum in the world, the Sandia Atomic Museum.

In her six months as curator, she has acquired 11 major displays for the museum, bringing the total in the collection to 39. Among them are a full-scale replica of the first atomic bomb ever tested, "Fat Man," and a model of "Little Boy," the first nuclear weapon actually dropped.

She said many of the visitors, some of whom have top secret security clearances, are amazed at the vast amount of once classified information revealed there. "We are amazed at some of it ourselves," Mrs. Canfield said.

She had 16 years of experience as inventory specialist for the Nuclear Material Control Division at Sandia before taking over the museum. During that time she started making plans to acquire displays for the museum before it opened Oct. 6, 1969.

One of the museum prizes is a film, "Ten Seconds That Shook the World," a historical documentary of the discovery of nuclear energy leading up to the dropping of the bomb over Hiroshima.

A compilation of government film strips, the major characters in this presentation are J. Robert Oppenheimer, who headed the bomb project; and Enrico Fermi who built the first reactor that demonstrated the feasibility of developing a nuclear weapon.

Ten years ago, a person would have been sent to Leavenworth Prison for divulging a fraction of the information now available to anyone who walks through the museum. Even the shape of a nuclear weapon was once considered top secret.

"I feel we have a responsibility to the public to show them what the military is doing with its time and money," Mrs. Canfield said. "We still have to clear every word of the written description, everything the tour guide says, and every display we put on the floor through the Sandia classification committee," she said.

None of the displays are actually live weapons, but some are shells of the real thing and others are full scale models filled with concrete. "Every time we get a new display, it's a major operation to move it in. We have to use a 50-ton crane to do it—this isn't just an ordinary museum," she said.

Mrs. Canfield has three men working for her. "Some of my friends told me that the men would resent my being in charge. They haven't at all. I have all the responsibility and they have all the fun."

Artichokes Star In A First Course

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Health-conscious diners are reviving a vogue that flourished a dozen years ago. They are again often using vegetables as a first course, but they've made a change. Once the vegetables used to be served raw, now they are combining cooked artichokes with tomatoes, radishes, celery, carrot and cucumber in their natural state.

And cooks are vying with one another to produce interesting dips to accompany such vegetable platters. Of these creations we give the prize to one a friend of ours recently concocted. Here it is:

ARTICHOKE PLATTER WITH FOUR-INGREDIENT DIP

1 container (8 ounces) commercial sour cream

1 roasted and peeled green chili, minced (from a 4-ounce can)

½ cup grated (medium-fine) extra sharp cheddar cheese

Seasoning salt to taste

3 whole cooked artichokes

Cherry tomatoes, radishes, celery, carrot and cucumber sticks.

Stir together the sour cream, chili, cheese and seasoning salt; cover and chill. At serving time arrange the cooked artichokes and raw vegetables on a platter; serve with the sour-cream mixture as a dip. Makes 6 servings.

To prepare the 3 artichokes, cut off stems and remove small bottom leaves; cut off tops about ¾-inch down; with kitchen scissors clip off end of each leaf. Half-cover with boiling water and add ¾ teaspoon salt. Boil, covered, until base is tender—35 to 45 minutes; drain and chill.

Barbara received her engagement ring from Ronnie at a family dinner on Christmas Eve at her house. Barbara had to open several small boxes inside a larger box before she finally opened the box containing the ring.

They both graduated from J. H. Rose High School — Ronnie is now a senior at East Carolina University and Barbara is an inhalation therapist technician at Pitt Memorial Hospital, where she received her training.

Miss Betty Young Taylor of Greenville is Scholar Reception on the campus at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro this week.

The junior scholars were invited to the reception on the basis of academic achievement. The 160 students were selected out of a junior class which numbers 1,054.

A biology major, Betty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy S. Taylor, 2005 E. 5th St., Greenville. She is a graduate of Rose High School.

In addition to honoring outstanding academic achievements, the reception also had as its purpose informing these rising seniors of graduate study opportunities.

Over $25,000 worth of scholarships were handed out to enrolled and in-coming students at Mars Hill College during a recent honors day program.

Among the honored students was Miss Beverly Stephenson, a rising sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max C. Stephenson, 118 N. Harding St., Greenville.

She received a $200 dean's scholarship.

Painter Says Work Is 'A Correspondence'

Inspiration From Works Of Joyce, Kierkegaard

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For about six months of the year, Elsa de Brun stations herself before her easel each morning and paints until five or six in the evening with "a sandwich in between and a cup of tea."

A rather stern schedule for a small, fragile-appearing woman, who, although she looks much younger, is 75-years-old.

Miss De Brun paints under the name "Nuala." "It's Gaelic. It means 'Beauty of the White Shoulders.' It was given to me by a friend," the pretty, blond artist explained as she sat in her apartment on New York City's upper east side.

Nuala, a mother of three children and now a great-grandmother, does the bulk of her painting in the summer, although "I work every day for about half the year. The rest of the time I think. You have to fill up so that you can give. One reads and sees and thinks to fill up."

She describes her paintings as "abstractions with unity. To abstract you give suggestions rather than a definite figure or object. Then the feelings I put into the work unite with the technique to create the painting."

Unlike many painters who start at an early age, Nuala, who came to this country in 1918 from her native Sweden, did not begin painting until she was 50.

"I always was very interested in art," she said. "I lived in museums practically, but I never did anything until I was 50. Then I got this urge to draw. I was throwing my things into the wastebasket, but a friend pulled some out, said they were good and encouraged me to keep on working. I did and it developed very well.

"One summer I really settled down and painted seriously. A New York art gallery owner saw some of my work, liked them and gave me an exhibition. It was my first and was in 1947. I didn't expect to sell anything, but I sold quite a few.

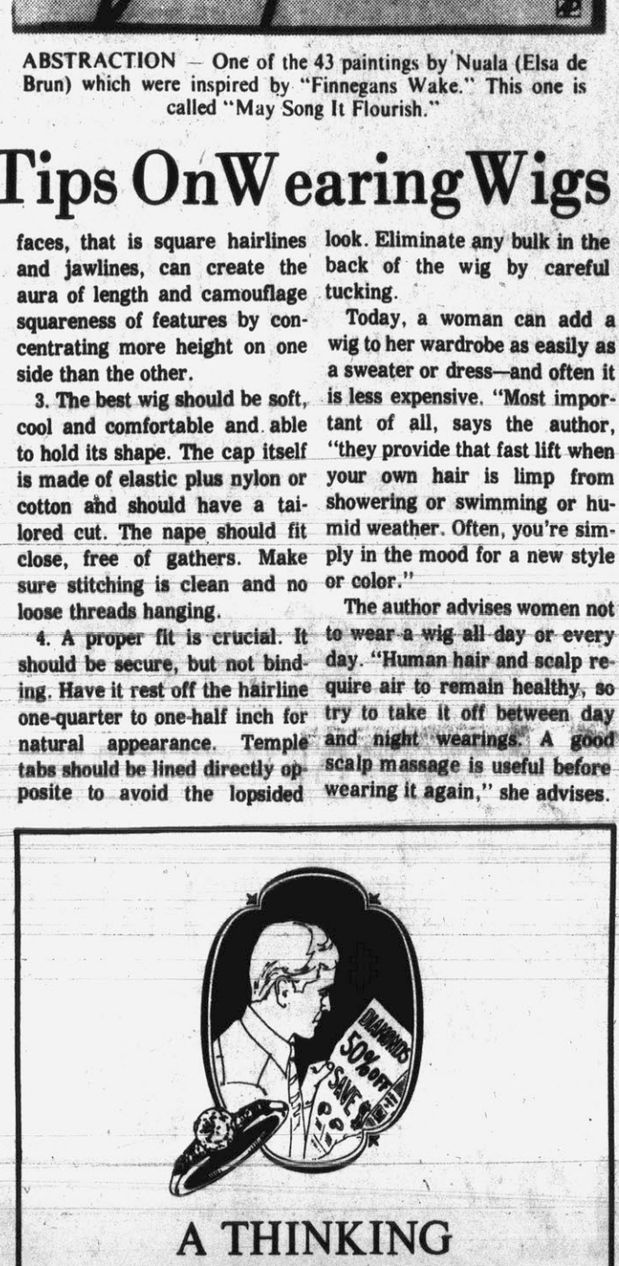
"From then on I really was very serious about my work."

Nuala has had 12 solo shows since her first and her work has appeared in 35 group shows at museums across the country. Among her most ambitious undertakings were the creation of 40 paintings inspired by the existential philosophy of Soren Kierkegaard, and another 43 paintings inspired by James Joyce's monumental "Finnegans Wake." All 43 of the Joyce-inspired paintings were purchased by the University of Texas.

The Joyce project took a couple of years, she recalls. "I was reading Joyce and I would do a picture when I was moved to by the text." As for the Kierkegaard, she points out that "I like him because he is a subjective philosopher. Be subjective—and then you can develop and evolve into a higher state. Because of him my work has become more intense."

Nuala refers to her Joyce and Kierkegaard work as "a correspondence," explaining that "through my work I am trying to show my appreciation of their work."

She had another reason for doing the Joyce work. "I don't think Joyce ever has been really appreciated in Sweden. So, as a Swede, I wanted to show that Joyce was important."



ABSTRACTION — One of the 43 paintings by Nuala (Elsa de Brun) which were inspired by "Finnegans Wake." This one is called "May Song It Flourish."

"NUALA"

Nuala does much of her work in such places as Maine and Cape Cod, but adds with a smile that "if I have the inspiration I can work almost anywhere, although it's nice if it's as comfortable as possible."

Her most recent work was the design for a stained glass window—constructed by Frederick L. Leuchs—for New York's Carnegie Hall. The design is drawn from her painting "Pleasure in Eternal Tumult," inspired by an allusion to music by Kierkegaard.

Incompatible Pair: Education-Marriage

SOUTHWELL, England (WNS) — Delene Atkin, 14, has been banned from school for wearing her engagement ring to classes. "Our rules say that students may not wear jewelry," explained headmaster Fredrick Wilson. Roy Thompson, 19 and the groom-to-be, says that the engagement is off if Delene dares to remove the ring before the wedding. "I'm superstitious," he explained. Mary Atkin, mother of the bride-to-be, has arranged a meeting with the school governors to discuss the situation. And 14-year-old Delene cries, "I never dreamed that education and marriage are incompatible."

Pretty Women Headed List

PARIS (WNS) — Berthe Dessachy, the French marriage broker, has just published a "Guide For Meeting Possible Marriage Partners." Her report: more women than men sign up with matrimonial agencies. Half are under 30 years old and so attractive that the men who chase them are "not serious." Teachers lead the list, followed by shopkeepers, secretaries, air hostesses and models.

BeautyAuthorGives Tips OnWearingWigs

Written For
AP Newsfeatures

While girls always enjoyed beautifying their dolls—today's dolls have actually done their bit to beautify girls, according to Rebecca Hyman, a one-time airline hostess who is today a beauty writer.

"Some smart innovator came along and decided if dolls could have permanently-curled hairdos, why couldn't real live dolls?" says Mrs. Hyman, in her recently-published "Complete Guide to Synthetic Hairpieces & Wigs."

And, the current wig boom stems from these same man-made fibers and modacrylics, providing the wash-and-wear, go-anywhere wigs, wiglets and chignons that have multiplied the looks available to women everywhere, adds the author, who also operates a chain of beauty salons in the south.

Back in the early 60s, Mrs. Hyman was far removed from the world of hairstyles, fashion and book publishing, serving as a stewardess with Riddle Airlines, which ran flights to Europe under military contract.

"I remember my first flight, which was 18 hours via DC-7 to Paris. I was so dazzled with the city after landing, that I decided to be a sport and join the other stewardesses that night at the Moulin Rouge, though I'd been sleepless over 24 hours. Imagine my shock when the MC beckoned me on-stage for a can-can sequence."

That was the end of show business for Rebecca Hyman. She became interested in a fashion career after her marriage to Rick Hyman, and soon thereafter, they both began launching beauty salons and a wig business in Atlanta and the Carolinas.

Her book offers many tips on the care of wigs as well as their selection:

1. Do your own thing—whether its blonde, redhead, brunette or frost. And, don't be afraid to switch from dark to light. Whatever your skin tones are there is a shade of blonde or platinum to go with every complexion.

2. Analyze your facial features. If your face is oval-shaped, wear any hairstyle. If it is round, a wig will correct it if it gives the illusion of length by sweeping the hair high on top, either covering the ears with a flat symmetrical style or exposing them. Women with square faces, that is square hairlines and jawlines, can create the aura of length and camouflage squareness of features by concentrating more height on one side than the other.

3. The best wig should be soft, cool and comfortable and able to hold its shape. The cap itself is made of elastic plus nylon or cotton and should have a tailored cut. The nape should fit close, free of gathers. Make sure stitching is clean and no loose threads hanging.

4. A proper fit is crucial. It should be secure, but not binding. Have it rest off the hairline one-quarter to one-half inch for natural appearance. Temple tabs should be lined directly opposite to avoid the lopsided look. Eliminate any bulk in the back of the wig by careful tucking.

Today, a woman can add a wig to her wardrobe as easily as a sweater or dress—and often it is less expensive. "Most important of all, says the author, "they provide that fast lift when your own hair is limp from showering or swimming or humid weather. Often, you're simply in the mood for a new style or color."

The author advises women not to wear a wig all day or every day. "Human hair and scalp require air to remain healthy, so try to take it off between day and night wearings. A good scalp massage is useful before wearing it again," she advises.

EVENING REFRESHER
Peach Kuchen Beverage

PEACH KUCHEN

Frozen peaches star here.

2 packages (each 10 ounces) frozen sliced peaches with syrup, thawed and drained
¾ cup unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 quarter-pound stick butter
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 eggs
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup finely chopped pecans

Dry peaches well on paper towels. Stir together flour, salt and baking powder. Cream butter, ½ cup sugar and lemon rind; beat in eggs, one at a time. Add flour mixture, 1-3rd at a time, beating well after each addition. Spread half the batter in a buttered 9-inch pie plate. Arrange peaches over batter; carefully spread remaining batter over peaches. Stir together remaining ¼ cup sugar, cinnamon and pecans; sprinkle over batter. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—35 minutes. Cut in wedges and serve warm.

Makes 6 servings.

Baking pans should be used for oven cooking only. They are not designed for the top of the stove. Most baking pans are of lightweight metal and will warp when used on a hot burner.

Couple Doesn't Need Approval To Celebrate

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been separated [not divorced] for 11 years. Each year on the anniversary of our marriage we celebrate together. We have grown children and two lovely grandchildren. We have been celebrating the whole 21 years that we've been married, but I have had friends tell me that this is wrong. They say since we are not living together, we should not celebrate our wedding anniversaries. I say as long as we are still married and not divorced, we can celebrate if we want to.

My husband and I have a friendly relationship, so please tell me if you think we are right—or are our friends who criticize us? —STILL CELEBRATING

DEAR STILL: You don't need permission or approval from your friends to celebrate your wedding anniversary, even tho you're separated. So if it pleases you, go ahead and celebrate, and more power to you.

DEAR ABBY: My parents were happily married for 32 years. Then my mother died. It wasn't sudden. She had a terminal illness, and it was a blessing when she finally went.

Two years later Dad married a lovely widow who had been my mother's dearest friend. My sisters and I [all married] were very happy to see Dad marry again. Now, the problem:

Dad and his new wife are living in the lovely home Dad and Mother built and furnished some years ago. They are using the same furniture, even the king-sized bed Mother and Dad shared for so many years. Just the thought of it upsets me, so I told Dad he ought to get another bed. He thought I was joking, and he laughed about it. I wasn't joking, Abby, I was serious. I am still terribly upset knowing that Dad is sleeping in that bed with another woman.

Don't get me wrong, I really like Dad's new wife, but not in my mother's bed. Am I wrong to feel this way, or shouldn't Dad get another bed? —UPSET DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: If it doesn't bother your father, or his new wife, it shouldn't bother you. Don't mention it again. It's mind over mattress.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22 and just had my sixth baby. My husband is 23. I had him talked into getting one of those operations men have so they can't father any more children. It's called a "vasectomy." Then the day before he was supposed to have it done, some guys at work told him he was a fool to risk losing his manhood.

The way my doctor explained the operation to me, it could be done right in the doctor's office and it wouldn't hurt my husband's manhood at all. How can I get this thru his head, Abby? We can't afford any more kids and I am worn out from those I have. Thank you. —COLORADO READER

DEAR READER: Tell your husband to quit listening to the guys at work and to listen to a doctor who will tell him that a vasectomy in no way reduces a man's manhood. And it takes more of a man to protect his wife against unwanted children than to take his chances.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NEEDS HELP IN SYRACUSE": He who eats until he is sick, must fast until he is well.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Restaurant Has A Hot Pants Hassle

ACOMB, England (WNS) — Michael Stockhill's order to waitresses at his town restaurant: "Hot pants? Never on Sunday. Respectable customers who have just come from church might be offended." His wife Phyllis, who serves at table, sees nothing wrong with Sunday hot pants and says that lady customers wearing them will be welcome on the sabbath. As for Reverend Edward Flowerday, the local vicar, he declared, "I don't think it makes any difference."

Now Everybody Seems To Want A Gozo Shepherd's Coat

By IRIS HARTMAN

MALTA (WNS) — Neither Ronald Pepler nor Peter Simon had ever been in the fashion business. But they knew a good thing when they saw it.

Four months ago Pepler went to Malta to buy a house. He saw the shaggy coats the shepherds of the nearby island of Gozo wear to work in the fields, coats of lumpy, home-loomed wool, hand crocheted by the shepherds' wives. Now the two former London advertising men are in the garment business and their chief problem is how to fill the demand.

Their narrowed down version of the shaggy shepherds' coat is in Dorothee Biss in Paris, in Harrod's Way Out Shop and at Escalade in London, at Hudson's in Detroit—and other places are on the lengthening waiting list.

A succession of other garments, never worn by Gozo's shepherds, has followed in natural order. Skinny Knickers, hand crocheted of the same undyed, uneven wool, were added to the line as well as a sleeveless jacket, a cap, a lacy spider-web shawl or cape, and, of course, shorts. A men's beret and three types of jackets for men have been added, all in the yellowish wool, and now Eli Jacobson of Dorothee Bis has requested pastel colors.

Everyone Crochets

The back-to-the-fields appearance of the home-spun wool and the simplicity of the styles are naturals for today's desired uncommercial look. Buyers who have seen the clothes are clamoring for more of the woolly garments.

Shepherds' wives are busily plying their crochet hooks, and more shepherds' wives are ready with still more crochet hooks. Of the 26,000 inhabitants of the little island of Gozo, three out of four are females, and all of the women and most of the little girls can crochet. A little girl can crochet a pair of short shorts over a weekend and still have her home-work ready for Monday's classes. But Peter Simon and Ronald Pelper, known as Pep, have a problem. They'll have to find an additional source for wool.

The wool they have been using comes from an animal they believe to be unique to Gozo. The long-haired animal, outcome of the crossing, either by man or by nature, of a sheep with a goat, is known as a shoat.

The shoat population of Gozo is not great. Shearing is done only twice a year, somewhat lazily. The wool is half-washed, then thrown onto the roofs of the houses to dry in the sun.

"When it is dry, George Agius, owner of the G. M. A. S. Company, our Gozo supplier, drives around in his wagon and piles great lumps of wool on the women. He explains what is wanted and says he'll be back in 5 days," explained Peter Simon, the younger of the two Britons.

Lumpy

As he explains it, the women first spin the wool in their primitive way so that it comes out uneven and lumpy. Then they crochet it into the garments. Malta is known for its lace. The women, there, and on Gozo as well, have been lace makers for centuries. They are very adroit at crochet work of any kind.

But in five days, George Agius finds there has been a feast day, a religious holiday, or a major event like a birth or a wedding to delay the work, according to Peter.

"We kept saying, 'We've got these orders; you've got to get more wool,'" Peter told me.

Mr. Agius, though not at all commercially minded, handled the matter in an ingenious way.

"He went to the bishop and told him the problem. Could the Bishop ask the various priests of the numerous churches on the island to make an announcement on Sunday morning, a plea for wool?" Peter related.

The bishop did, and the priests did. On the following sabbath, in

City-County Mergers—An Advance In Federalism?

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Richard G. Lugar, 39, is a handsome, articulate Rhodes scholar imbued with a desire to improve the cumbersome apparatus of local government in the United States.

Four years ago, he was elected mayor of Indianapolis. Two years ago, he won approval of legislation consolidating the city of Indianapolis and surrounding Marion County under a single, unified government.

Such city-county mergers, aimed at eliminating costly overlapping, duplication and confusion of authority, are regarded by many political scientists as the most promising advance in American federalism since the Constitution. But for a variety of reasons they also have encountered opposition during the past 15 years. Merger proposals have been defeated in local elections about twice as often as they have been approved.

Among the consolidations achieved since World War II were those of Miami-Dade County, Fla.; Nashville-Davidson County, Tenn.; Virginia Beach-Princess Anne County, Va.; South Norfolk-Norfolk County, Va.; Jacksonville-Duval County, Fla.; Indianapolis-Marion County; Carson City-Ormsby County, Nev.; Juneau-Bureau of Juneau, Alaska.

Among the communities that turned down mergers in the same time were Tampa-Hillsborough, Fla.; Chattanooga-Hamilton County, Tenn.; St. Louis-St. Louis County, Mo.; Memphis-Shelby County, Tenn.; Richmond-Henrico County, Va.; Durham City and County, N.C.; Knoxville-Knox County, Tenn.; Albuquerque-Bernalillo County, N.M.

Some mergers have been more complete than others. The so-called "metro government" of Tennessee's Nashville-Davidson County area operates the schools, the parks, and the police. But Indianapolis' "Unigov" setup has no control over the three largest cities in Marion County outside Indianapolis—Beech Grove, Lawrence and Speedway. Police and fire protection, though brought together under a new Department of Public Safety, pretty much follow the old boundaries.

Often a large central city merges with the county, as in the case of Nashville and Davidson County, or Jacksonville with Duval County. In the case of Dade County, Fla., several cities joined—Miami, Miami Beach, Coral Gables, Hialeah, Homestead.

A chief complaint against consolidation often is that the merger has not gone far enough. There are, as well, racial implications in some mergers. As whites have fled to the suburbs and blacks have made up a larger part of the core city, the blacks have begun to find new political power. A merger, by throwing an entire metropolitan area under one umbrella, may lessen this black power.

In Indianapolis, Negroes constituted 25 per cent of the vote before merger. After merger they make up only 15 per cent. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference unsuccessfully brought suit to block the merger on grounds it would reduce the possibility of black leadership at the mayoral level.

Former Indiana State Sen. Patrick Chavis, who opposed the merger, said it "gives control of the governmental machinery to those who are not concerned with inner city problems."

In Nashville, however, Negro voters favored consolidation. They make up 19 per cent of the population in the county and have six of the 40 Council seats.

New Orleans and the County of Orleans in Louisiana were consolidated in 1805. Boston and Suffolk County in Massachusetts merged in 1822. The city and county of Philadelphia coalesced in 1854, the city and county of New York in 1874, the city and county of Honolulu in 1907. These mergers all were accomplished by action of state or territorial legislatures.

Later, consolidations were attempted by voter referendum. Many were defeated—Oakland and Alameda County, Calif.; St. Louis City and County, Mo.; Portland and Multnomah County, Ore.; Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, Pa., and Macon-Bobb County, Ga.

Dr. S. J. Makielski Jr., professor of government at the University of Virginia, concludes it is easier to achieve consolidation through the state legislature than through the direct action of the electorate. But, he says, there are signs that grass roots support is developing for consolidations. He noted that suburbs are beginning to feel the same financial stress as cities. And taxpayers are therefore more amenable to any idea that may reduce the burden of maintaining two overlapping structures of local government.

Miami-Dade County—Survival perhaps has been "Metro's" biggest accomplishment. It was created in 1958 to bring some order out of the chaos and confusion of 27 municipalities that make up Dade County. It has been challenged several times at the polls, and Miami Beach and Hialeah threatened to secede.

Metro has nine commissioners elected countywide, one of whom is mayor. The commissioners appoint the county manager, who appoints the heads of nine major departments. The accomplishments include county administrative reorganization, aniform traffic laws and building codes, a centralizing of tax assessing and collections, a county seaport, purchase and merger of the bus services, establishment of a housing agency. There are problems, too. A resident of Miami, for instance, pays for some services twice. He pays the city for police and fire protection, and also for police and fire protection available only in Dade' County's unincorporated areas.

Nashville-Davidson County—Metro government was created in 1963 after having been turned down in 1958. Six existing satellite cities were permitted to stay in existence, but no new ones may be incorporated. There is a strong mayor-council form of government, and the mayor, elected for a four-year term, appoints all department heads, prepares the budget and legislative program, and has a budget item veto. There is a consolidated school system and a metropolitan court. But observers say the ballot is too long and the 40-member council is too large. There are still two sets of zoning codes, one for Nashville and the other for the county, and two taxing districts.

Indianapolis-Marion County, Ind.—Unigov does not include the school system or the three largest communities in the county outside Indianapolis. There is a council of 29 members, including four elected at large, and a mayor. Before merger there were 31 city departments and 11 county departments. The six consolidated departments are administration, metropolitan development, public works, transportation, public safety and parks and recreation. The mayor appoints each department head, subject to council approval. But public welfare, airport, library, hospital and health and capital improvements were not included in the merger, and several county officials including the prosecutor, sheriff, coroner and surveyor, continued to be elected.

Jacksonville-Duval County, Fla.—Before merger, Jacksonville's population had dropped about 16 per cent to 185,000 persons and there had been no new major industry in several years. The county has tripled in size to 400,000 persons, there was a mushroom of shopping centers and all of its high schools had been disaccredited. A blue ribbon panel of businessmen pressed for consolidation and the result, in 1968, was the world's largest city in land area—826.5 square miles—under a mayor-council government. The countil has 19 members, including five elected at large. The mayor appoints the department directors and the division chiefs within the departments, and has a veto power over appropriations. Blacks may soon outnumber whites within Jacksonville's city limits, but are about 23 per cent of the consolidated area. They have a near-proportionate four members on the council. Thew new government has concentrated its public works projects in the black community.

In almost every consolidation, even where there has been political or racial dispute, observers say there are better police, fire, health, hospital, welfare, sanitary, sewer and transportation services. "Caring for roads and streets and providing the other public services," one Baton Rouge official said, "requires the same type of skills and equipment inside and outside the central city limits."

Fellowship For Erckman

EVANSTON, Ill. — A Greenville, N.C., pediatrician is one of 408 pediatricians elected to Fellowship in the American Academy of Pediatrics at its recent spring session in St. Louis, Mo.

The academy is the Pan-American association of physicians certified in the care of infants, children and adolescents. The academy now has more than 12,300 members.

To qualify as a Fellow of the Academy, a pediatrician must be a citizen of one of the countries of the Americas, and must have been certified by the American Board of Pediatrics as a fully-qualified specialist in the field of child health. Certification requires a minimum of five years post-medical school experience.

Vague Concepts Of Peace Found In Survey Of Youth

By SOLVEIG TORVIK

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Where do young people get their ideas of what constitutes war and peace? Dr. Magnus Haavelsrud of the University of Washington says it is mostly from the mass media.

He draws his conclusions from tests he has given to adolescents in Seattle, West Berlin and Vancouver, B.C. and says the results are disturbing.

Haavelsrud says youth has little difficulty in defining war and its causes but has negative or vague concepts of peace.

Haavelsrud, 30, an educational psychologist associated with the Oslo Peace Research Institute in Norway, has been doing research on ways to proven war. But he says nearly half of the students he has questioned think the goal of war prevention is doomed to failure.

In the Seattle study of nearly 200 students in the 15-17 age group, Haavelsrud found their concepts of war and peace came from the mass media, friends, school, family and religion—in that order.

Despite the lack of positive definitions of peace, the Norwegian researcher believes people can be taught to resolve conflicts peacefully, and he feels schools should take an active role in doing so. People have never been taught how to avoid wars, he says.

"I should think there have been many times in history when war did not occur," he says. "Why didn't it?" He believes those instances should be studied in schools as well as the times when "destructive resolutions" to conflict occurred.

Haavelsrud contends that instances when war did not happen are ignored by both history and the media, and people are robbed of the chance to learn how the conflict was resolved.

Rather than leave the development of beliefs about war and peace to chance or the media—which he says "systematically" presents "negative events"—he thinks conflict curriculum must be introduced in the schools.

Starting in the elementary grades with personal conflict solution, it would advance through the grades to group and finally international conflict-solving instruction.

The lack of positive assertions about peace is unsettling for Haavelsrud, who is working with the Seattle World Without War Council to assess results of the Vancouver study, involving 611 respondents.

"I think peace could have definitions of pluralism—diversity of opinion, cooperation, negotiation, compromise, and communication," he says. None of these aspects show up in the students' responses. Instead, he found passivity most often associated with peace.

In the Seattle study, students were asked: "What do you think leads to war?" The most frequent answer was human qualities such as greed. To the question "Do you think it is right for a country to take part in a war?" 85 per cent said "Yes".

Asked if there is "anything inside of people which causes war" 95 per cent said there was and 79 per cent of that group said tendencies leading to war are behavior that is learned. Thirty-four per cent said man's war-like tendencies can be channeled into constructive action, but 40 per cent said they were unsure this could be done.

Haavelsrud says television, newspapers and magazines are more influential than books, radio, or movies in shaping ideas about war and peace.

He says students rate teachers as having the most impact on their definitions of war and peace. Textbooks rate second and television and movies in school rate very low as concept-forming sources.

In the family, mother and father rate equally important as sources of beliefs about war and peace, but mother tends to be associated with peace concepts and father with war orientation.

Haavelsrud cites the impact of education in shaping student attitudes by reference to the Berlin study, where 76 per cent of the 565 students tested said the Allies had been right in World War II.

In calling for more direct attention in the schools to the problems of the future, Haavelsrud says such instruction does not have to be "in the political activist sense." He says that what is needed is an opportunity for students to choose among alternatives when faced with conflicts.

Haavelsrud fears that if mankind fails to teach peace methods to the next generation, William James' comment will remain true: "So far, war has been the only force that can discipline a whole community, and until an equivalent discipline is organized, I believe war must have its way."

Bedouins Proud Of First Doctor

By MARCUS ELIASON

JERUSALEM (AP) — The 25,000 Bedouin nomads in Israel's desolate Negev desert are bursting with pride over Yunis Abu Rabiah, their son the Bedouin doctor.

He plans to use his skill, obtained from six years of study, among his own people, where disease and illiteracy are rampant.

Top-ranking Israeli army officers and police officials were present, as were heads of the Hebrew University, to which Hadassah School is affiliated.

They had good reason to be pleased. For a case of a Bedouin making the transition from traditional nomadic existence to a modern professional sphere is rare.

Yunis began his climb toward the medical world seven years ago, when he approached the government's Arab Affairs Department and told its education chief that "I want to be a doctor."

He had graduated from an Arab high school and had patched up his broken Hebrew with private lessons.

Once a month he would go home. He would ride a bus into the heart of the desert and get off at a pre-arranged landmark, where his brother would be waiting with a horse for him.

For 24 hours he would live a Bedouin existence with his parents, seven brothers and three sisters. Then he would travel back to the 20th century.

He won scholarships for three consecutive years of his medical studies, financed the rest with part-time work as a campus security guard, public relations officer and laboratory assistant.

He now begins his internship at the Negev central Hospital in Beersheba, and intends to travel around the desert lecturing to Bedouins on hygiene and first aid.

Scouts Map Nat'l Effort

By DONALD E. MULLEN

NEW YORK (UPI)—On June 5 about six million Boy Scouts, aided by other youth clubs and business and labor organizations, will turn out for a massive coast-to-coast cleanup of garbage littering the nation.

The Scouts' own brand of Earth Day, three years in planning, is designed to show Americans the volume of trash carelessly tossed onto highways, streets, alleys, parks and vacant lots.

A second phase of Scouting Keep America Beautiful Day, will be two additional cleanup, on July 5 and Aug. 5, when Scouts will check the same spots again for a national analysis of what areas get littered the quickest, and what the trash consists of.

"This is the first year we've had a national project," said Ted Pettit, conservation director of the Boy Scouts, in an interview. "We started planning back in 1968, long before Earth Day. We worked with Earth Day, too, but we picked June 5, the Saturday after the Memorial Day weekend, because we figured there would be a maximum amount of trash to clean up."

The Scouts have divided up cities, towns and rural areas around the country, with each Cub Pack, Scout Troop and Explorer Group assigned a specific area.

Pettit said the campaign, co-sponsored by Keep America Beautiful, Inc., has been promised help from industry, unions, police, the military, business groups and environmental organizations. In addition, Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubbers and other youth clubs will turn out to help.

Dr. Love Named New Chairman

The East Carolina University Family Life Committee has elected Dr. Nash W. Love Jr. as chairman for 1971-72, and Mrs. Karen W. James has been elected to serve as secretary.

Dr. Love is chirman of the Department of Child Development and Family Relations in the School of Home Economics. Mrs. James is an instructor in the same department.

Artist To Show Paintings On TV

Reep will be featured guest on the "Tempo '71" program, which will be aired at 4 p.m. on WITN-TV (Channel 7), Washington. Host for the 30-minute program is Dick Jones.

Among the paintings to be included in the interview are four from Reep's "Greenville Series," which depict scenes in the Greenville area.

FOR MELVIN R. LAIRD,

Secretary of Defense

Is it true that you have said that unemployment will be a benefit to the people of the U.S.?—Mrs. Iris Rudd, Scranton, Pa.

● I believe you refer to the remark I made in Warrenton, Va., on Sept. 15, 1970. In discussing the United States' shift from a war-time economy to a peace-time economy, I said: "I think it's most important for those who have a sincere interest in health, welfare and education, to realize that this kind of temporary problem in our economy is a good problem for America because it means that we can face up to other major challenges that face our society in the decade of the 1970's in a much more realistic fashion." I, of course, did not mean that unemployment would be a benefit to the individuals suffering it, but meant that the hardship must be weighed against the benefit to all Americans accruing from the shift to a peace-time economy.

FOR LOU BROCK,

outfielder, St. Louis Cardinals

Do major league outfielders wear the same type baseball shoes on Astro-turf as on regular outfield grass?—Greg Smith, West Frankfort, Ill.

● No, most players wear a soccer-type shoe on the artificial turf.

FOR MARY BROOKS,

Director of the Mint

● Aside from allegorical depictions, the last time a woman's portrait appeared on United States currency was on the one-dollar silver certificate. Martha Custis, the young widow who married George Washington in 1759, is pictured on the face of the series of 1886-1891 dollar silver certificate. Martha Washington is also pictured on the back of the 1896 series dollar silver certificate, along side of George Washington.

FOR RAYMOND BURR,

TV's "Ironside"

Where is your "South Sea Island," and do you ever intend to live there?—J. L. Madden, Dayton, Ohio

● My island is Naitaula in the Fiji Islands. Yes, I hope to live there at least half the year when "Ironside" has run its course.

FOR EILEEN FORD,

In your opinion, who is the top fashion model in the business? How much do models earn?—Cynthia Wyatt, Hartford, Conn.

Hutton

Adams

Kuhn

● It would be difficult—inappropriate—for me to single out any one girl as the "top model," but I could certainly mention several whom I consider to be among the top. These would include Lauren Hutton and Maude Adams, both of whom have been in feature-length movies recently, and Evelyn Kuhn, famous for her work with cosmetics.

The hourly rate for these girls is usually $75. But rates can vary, and some models will get as much as $500 per hour if the modeling involves lingerie or nudity. It is not unusual for models in this bracket to make in the neighborhood of $100,000 a year.

FOR ANDY WILLIAMS

I have noticed that your audience consists mostly of young people. Where do they come from?—Roy Fox, Grover City, Calif.

● People who attend the show often request large amounts of tickets for groups such as church, social and school associations. Though a given number are younger, not all are, by any means. The audiences most often reflect a cross section from every age group.

FOR STANLEY RESOR,

Secretary of the Army

Have any women received the Medal of Honor?—Mrs. Harie Haugen, Lakota, N.D.

● There have been no women recipients of the Medal of Honor with the exception of Mary Walker, a Civil War surgeon, whose medal was withdrawn because it was not properly awarded for distinguished services. Forty-six other individuals also lost their medals for the same reason.

FOR IDA LUPINO, actress-director

When you turned to directing, did you find there was a resistance from the men in the industry?—Mary Lorraine, Waco, Texas

● I have a strong feeling that men have kept a sort of celluloid curtain around the directing and producing professions to keep us women out. When I was making one picture, I outran 90 percent of our all-male crew.

FOR MONTE HALL of tv's "Let's Make a Deal"

It was my understanding that, in the past, money (paper or coin) could not be photographed. If this is so, could you explain the law and whether you are permitted to use actual money on your show? If this is not the case, can contestants receive checks so that they will not be carrying around $1,000 bills?—Mrs. Lynda Woodward, Springville, Utah

● There was a law that said money could not be photographed, but it was repealed. The show does use actual money, and sometimes the money is given to the winner right after the show. But on many occasions, it isn't until later that a check is sent to the winner. A winner of $1,000 would not be carrying it around with him afterward.

FOR SEN. ROBERT BYRD,

West Virginia, Senatorial Whip

Could you tell me what the term "whip" means and how it originated?—Mrs. Ralph D. Foster, Tuscumbia, Ala.

● The office of Whip is a British institution. The term "whip" is said to have derived from the "whipper-in," a huntsman assigned the task of keeping the hounds from straying during a fox hunt, whipping them back into the line if necessary. Its initial use in a legislative context, so far as we know, was by Edmund Burke.

FOR LEONARD SCHECTER,

author of "The Jocks"

Before he lost his title in the ring recently, was Cassius Clay (Muhammad Ali) stripped of his heavyweight championship unfairly by the authorities?—R. L. Scott, Atlantic City, N.J.

● As long as his draft-evasion case was in the courts, he should have been allowed to earn a living. It was a vendetta. They wouldn't even let him go abroad to fight.

FOR EDITH HEAD, fashion designer

You create such exquisite fashions for the stars. Why are you only pictured wearing basic suits? Do you ever wear any of the lovely fashions you design?—Mrs. Helen Marlin, Riverside, Calif.

● The pictures you see of me—in my basic suits—are when I am at work. Then I feel I am a businesswoman, and I prefer to dress simply. However, I assure you that I wear gowns just as beautiful and as elaborate as those I create for the stars after working hours.

Must We Make Our Real World Intrude On a Child's "Lollipop Logic"?

To get a good look at a child's logic, you have to slip up on it, enter the child's world ever so carefully, talk very little and listen much

By Bob McGrath, host of TV's "Sesame Street," as told to Robert Wacker, Jr.

Recently, I invited a friend's two small sons to come watch us tape our show.

They could come on the set, I said, and meet my partner Susan and Mr. Hooper, Gordon, Big Bird, Sherlock Hemlock—everybody. Would they like that?

Wow-wee, would they! Then one little boy added, "I guess we'll go over to Grandma's."

"Grandma's?" asked his mother. "What for?"

"Well, if we're going to see a real TV show on the set, we'd better go to Grandma's. She's got a nice big one. We couldn't climb into that teeny-weeny little set of ours."

Many of the three- to six-year-olds who make up the Sesame Street generation have similar weird ideas about television. They'll stop me on the street and chat like old friends, quite certain I know their names. How could I talk to them on the tube every day without knowing them? Once at the Miami airport, I made the mistake of asking one of these talkative tots where he lived. He was enraged: "You know where I live. You come to my house all the time!"

These are prime examples of what I call Lollipop Logic, a tilted thinking process that gives many small children a delightful, if unreal, view of their surroundings. These kids reason as logically as any grownup, but they start with a premise that isn't quite right, so sometimes their conclusions are pretty wild.

Here are a few specimens collected by the Swiss psychologist Jean Piaget, who was as fascinated by youthful reasoning as I am:

- Trees make the wind blow by waving their branches.
- Dreams hang around somewhere outside your head until bedtime, and then they sneak into your brain and take over.
- When you're walking in the moonlight, the moon moves along with you.

Each of these conclusions, you see, is based on something the child has observed or experienced: he has just drawn the wrong inferences.

The happy child lives by the evidence of his senses—the colors, sounds, flavors and smells delivered fresh and exciting every minute. Those are all the realities there are, and if they sometimes point in the wrong direction, who cares? We adults have painted over that riotous pattern with the dull gray of acquired knowledge. We know there's only one moon and billions of people walking the earth, so obviously the moon can't follow anyone around like a friendly dog. The child sees the moon following him—so it must.

Piaget used this illusion to measure the growth of sophistication in a group of children under 10, all of whom initially believed that the moon did follow them. He took them into a large schoolyard on a moonlit evening and divided them into groups of three. Each trio was spaced out evenly in a straight line. Then he told the two end children to walk toward each other and the one in the middle to stand still.

moon move. Of course, there was much disagreement. Then he asked each child for an explanation as to how they could disagree on something as obvious as how the moon had moved.

The oldest children, aged eight and nine, thought about it and decided they must have been wrong: the moon didn't really move. The six-year-old said no, the moon moved all right because he'd seen it. But they couldn't explain the disagreement. Several got quite angry about the whole thing. The youngest group, the four-and-five-year-olds, just smiled and shrugged. They'd seen the moon move, and, therefore, it did move. There was no need to argue.

The first time I took my six-year-old daughter Alison to the set, I introduced her to Frank Oz, who operates the Muppet dog Rufus (a Muppet is part marionette and part puppet), and, of course, Frank made Rufus talk and do tricks for the child. Then he hung the Muppet away on its rack and talked to Alison for a while. She saw him put the Muppet away.

At work a few days later, Frank asked about Alison and sent his regards. When I got home, I told her, "Rufus said he enjoyed meeting you the other day."

"Oh." Alison said. "Did Rufus say that or the man who was with him?"

She wasn't kidding. Rufus can't be just a dog-doll, hung up when nobody's using it. Alison won't have things that way just yet.

Some day, of course, she will become aware that Rufus is and always was a device. And all those children in the Piaget group will acknowledge that the moon never did follow them. But this becoming aware of the true nature of things won't be a sudden discovery. It won't even be a disillusionment. When the right time comes, the kids will feel they always have known the truth, and one shred of Lollipip Logic will quietly be replaced by ordinary reality.

But Rufus and that friendly moon will have served a purpose: they will have nourished young imaginations. They will have helped to shape those children into more sensitive, yet self-confident, adults.

Many parents misinterpret their children's Lollipop Logic. They try to "set the child straight" by gently teaching him to view the world as they do. Maybe that's necessary sometimes (I'll show in a moment how I think you should do it when you really must), but too often the intrusive parent is just forcing the pace of the growing-up process. The result may be a child who is too wise for his years, a small adult who knows there is no Easter Bunny or Tooth Fairy and also that there's no use leaping at a ball high over his head because he'll probably miss it, and "people will laugh."

There are times when you have to straighten a kid out, and it's not easy. Half-a-dozen years ago, when our second-oldest son Robbie was four, his mother called my attention to the fact that he'd quietly stopped wearing what had been his favorite shoes. It puzzled us. The shoes still looked pretty good, and he never complained when his mother or I put them on him; but when he dressed himself, he always made it a point to wear another pair of shoes. We tried to question him about it, but he evaded the question.

Wisely, my wife didn't press the point right then; she's not a "see here, young man," type, anyhow. Instead, she waited four or five days before bringing it up again—this time as she and I were tucking Robbie and his six-year-old brother Liam into their beds.

She picked up one of the unpopular shoes. "These certainly are good shoes," she said. "Are they as comfortable as they look?" she asked Robbie.

"I guess so."

"Mmmmmm-hmmm."

"The heels look sturdy, too."

"Yup."

And so on. She went over that little shoe stitch by stitch, exclaiming over its excellence, while Bobby lay there yessing her, and Liam was silent.

". . . And look at this pretty little label, inside here. That's a boy and his dog, isn't it?"

This time there was silence. Then a little voice, almost a whisper:

"Liam says the dog's going to bite me."

That ended the mystery. We made Liam confess to Robbie that he'd been putting him on. And we all joined in pointing out that pictures don't bite anyone, that the dog in the picture was obviously smiling, and that, anyhow, he wasn't the kind of dog that would ever, ever bite people under any circumstances whatsoever.

Robbie's relief was so great that he couldn't even be mad at Liam. "I thought a picture couldn't bite me," he said. "But I wasn't sure, so I just thought I'd better not take a chance."

"You never minded wearing those shoes when you were going somewhere with us," I pointed out.

"Oh, no. Nothing can happen when you or Mom is around. I'm never afraid of anything when I'm with you."

That's a touching answer, but more important, it points out the miragelike quality of some of these myths. They often dissolve when you try to reach out and touch them. To get a good look at one, you have to slip up on it, enter the child's world ever so carefully, talk very little and listen well.

If you try to destroy these myths by simple contradiction, on your authority as a grownup, it probably won't work. "You're wrong about that. . ." and, "It doesn't work that way," are the language of the grownup world, and as Robbie said, things are different when grownups are around. If you get the child talking and listen respectfully, he'll probably listen to and accept your comments, made in a similar tone.

If you have the curiosity to peep sympathetically into the world of Lollipop Logic, I think you'll find it a warm, sometimes funny, place. The child's attitude was best expressed recently by a little girl who visited our studio and was somewhat overpowered by the wires and lights, busy people and confusion. "You know," she concluded, "I think there are two Sesame Streets; this one and the one I see at home on TV. I think the TV one is the real one. It's the one I like better."

That's the way I think it should be for every child: the world he likes better should always be his real world. ◆

May Is Salad Month

■ Salads, composed of fresh or cooked foods, bring a touch of freshness to the table. They are brought to their desired degree of piquancy by the salad dressing. And to help you achieve this there is an endless variety of excellent bottled, pourable dressings, mixes, mayonnaise, and mayonnaise-style dressings. Use these convenient products often in creating your salad specialties.

NOODLE GARDEN SALAD

- 8 oz. medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)
- 2 cups diced sharp Cheddar cheese
- ½ cup sliced radishes
- ½ cup diced celery
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1½ cups cooked peas
- ½ cup drained and chopped sweet mixed pickles
- 1 cup bottled clear French salad dressing
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon seasoned pepper or lemon pepper marinade
- 1 cup mayonnaise

1. Cook noodles in a large saucepan, following package directions, using 1 tablespoon salt for 3 quarts of boiling water. Drain and rinse with cold water; drain again.

2. Combine noodles with remaining ingredients except the mayonnaise. Toss lightly, cover, and chill thoroughly. Before serving, gently blend in mayonnaise. 6 servings

CREAMY CARROT-NUT SALAD MOLD

- 2 pkgs. (3 oz. each) orange-flavored gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water
- ¾ cup dairy sour cream
- ¼ cup mayonnaise-style salad dressing
- 1 can (about 13 oz. or 1⅔ cups) crushed pineapple, undrained
- ½ cup golden raisins, plumped
- 2 cups finely shredded carrots
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

1. Empty gelatin into a bowl. Pour boiling water over gelatin and stir until completely dissolved.

3. Stir in pineapple and remaining ingredients. Turn mixture into a 2-qt. fancy mold and chill until firm, about 4 hrs.

4. To unmold, run a knife around edge of mold. Dip mold into a pan of warm, not hot, water for only about 10 seconds. Remove and briskly tap bottom of mold to loosen. Cover a chilled platter and turn mold upside down.

5. Surround the salad with crisp salad greens, carrot curls, ripe olives, and walnut halves.

6. Serve with a blend of mayonnaise-style salad dressing, pineapple juice, and thawed frozen whipped dessert topping. 8 to 10 servings

SAFFRON RICE AND HAM SALAD

- 1 pkg. (6 oz.) saffron-seasoned rice, cooked, following pkg. directions and cooled
- ¾ cup garlic salad dressing (bottled or prepared from a mix)
- ½ cup finely chopped chutney
- Cooked ham, cut in strips and chilled (about 2 cups)

1. Blend the salad dressing and chutney. Toss the cooled rice and ⅔ cup of the dressing (shake well before adding) in a large bowl. Chill.

2. Before serving, mound rice onto a serving plate, top with a watercress bouquet and surround with lettuce cups filled with ham and cooked asparagus. Top with pimiento strips and chopped walnuts; drizzle with remaining salad dressing. 6 servings

STAR PROFILE/By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Henry Fonda at 66: What Keeps Him at the Top?

Henry and Shirlee—the fifth Mrs. Fonda—seem to be making marriage work.

It's no secret that his family life has been fraught with difficulty. But there's something about the shy actor's style that tragedy can never tarnish

Sixty-six years ago today, Henry Fonda was born in Grand Island, Neb., and, after 71 films and innumerable plays, he has remained one of the most active actors in the business. At an age when most leading men are thinking of retiring or trying to make a living in any number of ways, Fonda is still going strong.

He recently finished the soon-to-be released "Sometimes a Great Notion," in which he costars with Paul Newman. He has also recently starred in and directed the play "Our Town" at the Huntington Hartford Theatre in Los Angeles, is the star of ABC-TV's "The Smith Family" and still finds time to tour the country in a one-man show titled "Fathers Against Sons Against Fathers."

There is a combination of reasons, not the least of which are his tremendous talent and unique style. There are also determination, total enthusiasm for whatever he does, an ability to get along with almost everyone (for a while his son Peter was an exception; his daughter Jane, to some extent, still is), a solid training in his profession and a large amount of luck, without which, he says, "I may never have made it in the first place."

Strangely enough, it was Marlon Brando's mother who had the most profound influence on Fonda. "I was going to be a writer until I was talked into acting by Marlon's mother," he recalled. "We were living in Omaha, where she was connected with a little theatre group. My biggest problem was —and still is—my extreme shyness. They literally had to push me out on the stage the first time!

"I can still recall the hum of the people before the curtain went up and then more and more lights hitting me as the murmur of the audience died down to nothing. I don't remember the play we did, but I liked the feeling of being up there after I realized that all eyes were not on me all of the time. I lost most of my self-consciousness and began to relax. It took me three years to decide that maybe this was what I really wanted to do. I was 23 when I made the move to New York, still not fully committing myself to theatre but wanting to try it."

Yet, in spite of his continuing success, he has never overcome the two traits that have pursued him in both his private and professional life: shyness and insecurity. "I'm never totally comfortable with strangers," he says. "I avoid dinner parties where I have to sit next to people I don't know very well and make conversation. It's not just shyness, it's a deep inferiority complex. In college, I once went with a girl for two years and never kissed her."

Fonda doesn't know how to explain this insecurity. But he does feel that it is not unusual for show-business people to be this way. "I remember sitting next to Jimmy Stewart on a plane about five or six years ago. I had just finished a year's successful run of a play, but I was worried because I didn't have anything else lined up. 'I don't know if I'll ever be offered another job,' I told Jimmy. He turned to me and said, 'You, too?' "

Fonda doesn't like to talk about his own children, Peter and Jane. In a way, one can't blame him. For years, reporters started interviews by asking, "How do you feel about Jane's nudity in films?" He always avoided even seeing her films for that reason, let alone discussing them. Or they'd ask about Peter's involvement with drugs.

Fonda has never made a secret of the fact that there have been difficulties, tensions and arguments among the three of them. But the situation is not irreparable, and currently the family trio is getting along better than it has in years.

About Jane's civil-rights causes, Fonda observes, "She's fighting for all the right causes for all the wrong reasons. I was fighting for civil rights before she even knew how to spell it." As far as Peter is concerned, his father maintains he is really "Establishment" at heart. A few months ago, Peter bought a boat which, according to Henry, cost Peter more money than Henry has in cash, bank accounts, stocks and bonds put together. "So who's Establishment now?" asks papa Fonda.

Henry's married life has been one of tragedy. His first wife was actress Margaret Sullavan, who had an incurable disease. His second wife (and Peter's and Jane's mother) was Frances Seymour Brokaw, who died in a mental institution. Number three was Susan Blanchard, stepdaughter of the late Oscar Hammerstein II. This marriage ended unhappily, as did his next marriage to Baroness Afdera Franchetti.

Finally, six years ago, Fonda married Shirlee Mae Adams, an airline stewardess 28 years his junior. According to friends, this marriage is working out well. They live in a beautifully furnished Spanish-style house in Bel Air, Calif., and enjoy a townhouse on New York's East side.

Fonda feels the principles with which he was raised are responsible for his attitude toward life and his success in his career. "My grandmother was second reader in the Christian Science Church. My father's brother and wife are practitioners, and my mother was a practitioner. If we caught cold, we didn't go to a doctor—we called grandmother. I didn't remain in Science, but being brought up that way was a good experience because it taught us to think good thoughts and to try to do the right things."

Fonda is as busy now as he has ever been. When he isn't working, he's painting or he's reading or he's involved in some political activity. "It may sound smug," he says, "but on the whole, I'm rather happy and maybe a little self-satisfied. It's true things haven't always gone smoothly—but, looking back, there's not much I could ask for."

A typical Fonda understatement. ◆

Lose 10 pounds in 10 days!

AND WATCH UNWANTED INCHES DISAPPEAR FROM

HIPS, THIGHS & WAISTLINE!

"I lost 10 pounds in 10 days with the Body Shapers 3-Way Plan. I started losing a pound a day right away. After 10 days, I had lost 7½ inches from my hips, waist and thighs." —Carol Louise Cardin

"I started losing right away. After 10 days, I had lost 9 pounds. And the Body Shaper Plan helped firm me up while I trimmed 5 inches from my hips, thighs, and waist." —Lynne Perry

Lose unwanted weight and inches safely, easily! Here's a laboratory-tested, weight loss and figure-trimming method you can trust...tests conducted by the Performance Physiology Laboratory of a major West Coast University proved that it is possible for some persons to lose as much as 10 pounds in 10 days following the Body Shaper 3-Way Plan. The average weight loss of all persons tested was one-half pound per day, every day during the ten day test. Now you can enjoy this amazing discovery—guaranteed to work for you, or your money back.

"The secret to losing weight is not a dramatic change in your eating habits..." Contrary to what you may believe, you need not starve yourself to lose weight. According to the world's leading Medical Associations and Governmental Agencies as well as The Body Shaper Plan, what you need is to eat smaller moderated amounts. With the complete Body Shaper Plan you can eat the foods your family eats, never "starve" or exhaust yourself by over-exercise, and yet still accelerate weight loss and direct inches removal!

HOW THE BODY SHAPER PLAN WORKS ITS WONDERS. There are three simple requirements to The Body Shaper Plan. The Body Shaper is a modern, carefully designed and engineered product. The Body Shaper Plan helps to tone and trim your hips, thighs, and waist to the measurement you desire. The combination of the Body Shapers food plan and body movement program work together to accelerate weight loss and inches removal. The Body Shapers themselves are not designed to affect weight loss; they do their part by creating a Sauna-like warmth and gentle massaging action to soothe and relax the hip, thigh, and waistline area. It's not magic. It's not trickery. The Body Shaper Plan wil help you to lose weight quickly, easily and more surely than ever before —it's actually guaranteed.

THE "SECRET" IS THE COMBINATION. The Body Shaper Plan is a combination which is designed to work, if honored together. The Body Shaper "combination" is made up of three items: your Body Shaper, the copyrighted Body Shaper Food Plan (which details for you in plain, down-to-earth language all the real facts about diet and weight loss) and the Body Shaper Movement Program—"exercises" which do not overtax you in any way. As is true of all successful weight loss programs, The Body Shaper Plan should be undertaken with the knowledge and guidance of your family doctor. The Body Shaper Plan will help you tone and shape your body . . . it will help you reduce your weight—all quicker and faster than you may believe possible. The actual number of pounds that you will lose depends upon your body structure, present weight, metabolism, and other factors.

ABSOLUTE SATISFACTION OR YOUR MONEY REFUNDED!
It's guaranteed—you have nothing to lose but weight and inches. Fill-out the coupon below and enclose your check or money order for just $12.95. Use your Body Shaper Three-Way-Plan for 10 days, if you're not satisfied, your money will be promptly refunded.

What Kids Go Through In the "Roommate Game" Today

Roommating, by its very nature, brings out the worst in a person—his idiosyncrasies, drives, weaknesses, fears, frustrations and venturesome spirit. Here's at least part of what every parent—and young person—should know about the modern singles' life

"The average roommate arrangement lasts only eight to 10 months, so often the attitude of the participants is, why bother to adjudicate our differences?"

By Gwen Gibson Schwartz

Recently, while working on a book, I interviewed a substantial number of young roommates, and I came away with one overriding impression: nothing makes so many incompatible partners as the roommate game.

The communal movement may bring together young people with a common commitment to a life-style, an ideal or an economic arrangement. But roommating or apartment-sharing, which is a still far-larger phenomenon—brings together young people with strong individualistic bents.

And once these headstrong individualists get together in a shared apartment, loft, house, riverboat or what have you, they tend to go off on their own special—sometimes diametrically opposite—tangents. Sometimes they do so out of a genuine yen to broaden and diversify their knowledge. At other times, they take their opposite tacks out of sheer devilishness or the urge for self-preservation.

Thus, a girl from Mississippi who was an unrelenting culture buff provoked her new roommate in a Los Angeles singles building to a half-serious, half-comic study of grade-B country music, grade-B magazines and underground newspapers just to get her goat. A girl from Minnesota who was trying to create a fashionably elegant feeling in her San Francisco flat found her roommates acquiring a taste for junk-heap décor which they achieved with packing crates, floor mattresses, pop art posters and cast-off or second-hand furnishings. The girl who was a clinging vine found her roommates taking more and more weekend trips—without her.

Time and again, I encountered such ironic or ludicrous case histories while interviewing males and females, 18 to 30 years old, who were living in shared quarters in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Berkeley, Chicago, Washington, D.C., and New York, the big "singles" cities.

The fact that roommates are not always ideally typecast soulmates was usually made clear at the outset. I would ask, "What do you think of your roommate?" And the answer would often be a sharp, sarcastic, "Oh, brother! She (or he) is impossible!" The complaints that roommates lodged against each other made me feel that my notebooks could feed a new TV series that would put Divorce Court in the shade. To wit:

"My roommate pickets as a pastime, and I never know who she is going to bring home."

"One of my roommates is a self-styled sex kitten. She has people traipsing through our apartment at all hours of the day and night."

"My roommate is such a nut about keeping our groceries divided that she runs red tape down the refrigerator and puts notes on the cereal, saying, 'Don't eat this. It's Nancy's.' "

Roommates have their personality clashes for a variety of reasons. To begin with, roommating, by its very nature, brings out the worst in a person. It brings out his idiosyncrasies, drives, weaknesses, fears, frustrations and venturesome spirit. This is particularly true of those young single individuals who are making their first complete financial, emotional and psychological break with home and school.

Further complicating the picture is the fact that everything about roommating is provisional. The average roommate arrangement lasts only eight to 10 months, so often the attitude of the participants is, why bother to adjudicate our differences?

Two cases—which illustrate how even roommates who seem ideally matched can suddenly grow apart—stand out in my mind.

The first concerns Ben and Roland, two completely normal young law students who lived in Washington, D.C., attended Georgetown University and worked part time on Capitol Hill as staff aides to a couple of Congressmen. They had common interests—women, law and politics—and a common tendency to run out of money between pay days. It seemed only logical for them to rent a bachelor apartment together—a big one-room efficiency with pullman kitchen, several blocks south of the Capitol.

Everything went smoothly until Ben decided to try gourmet-cooking. As his interest developed into a fetish, Ben started shopping for exotic spices, wines and cheeses. He liked to whip up succulent fondues and pungent Indian dishes; he liked to make hors d'oeuvres for large parties and six-course dinners for special girl friends. He had such a passion for cooking that occasionally he would splatter rich, creamy sauces over the ceiling. And he always left behind a stack of dirty pots, pans and dishes that didn't get washed for days.

Roland could take all of this. But now Ben began cooking dinners for the two of them a couple of times a week. Sometimes, if Roland worked late, Ben would call the office to complain, like some typical frustrated suburban housewife. Roland lost his cool. "Don't ever cook my supper!" he finally bellowed at Ben. "I'm sick of your dirty dishes."

The young men couldn't afford separate apartments at this point, but they agreed that, no matter what, they'd never eat together again. Roland packed in his own supply of sardines, tuna fish and Vienna sausages next to Ben's smoked oysters and marinated grasshoppers. Ben, meanwhile, made arrangements to practice his culinary art elsewhere—in apartments provided by various women who appreciated it.

The second case involves four young women who shared a three-bedroom house, only a few blocks from the ocean, in the Pacific Palisades section of Los Angeles. Before setting up housekeeping, they all agreed to pursue an active social life. But one member of the quartet, Lisa, wasn't prepared for what followed. Lisa was a young modern-dance instructor who was still working on her Ph.D. in psychology at UCLA. She didn't know that her roommates would soon have loud, happy, singing, dancing, guitar-strumming parties going every night of the week and all day Sunday. She was mortified. There was never any place in that house where she could find peace and quiet. Lisa finally bought some earmuffs. She would put these on and plunk herself and her books down in the living room, amid all the revelry.

Since roommating is such a frustrating, complicated, slapstick business, why does anyone bother with it in the first place? One big reason, obviously, is that roommating provides a distinct financial advantage. Very few young people (and not many old ones) can afford to live in a city apartment today without someone to share the rent, lights, gas, food and sundry other expenses. Further, no matter how much roommates fight, they lean on each other for companionship, safety, comfort, advice and consolation—all those personal touches a person needs when starting a new life and career in a new, challenging environment.

Finally, almost all roommates manage to have some great, as well as trying, times together. As one veteran said: "I wouldn't want to have a roommate again, but I wouldn't want to miss this experience, either. Having a roommate has made me more tolerant and open-minded. It's like having a crash course in human relations." ◆

I went away to college and lost 63 pounds.

By Marisa Silvestri—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

Here I am at 152 pounds! Naturally I still want to lose more weight, but you can see the big difference in my waistline alone.

WHEN girls first go away to school, most of them turn into fat noodles. Me? I gave up my mother's delicious homemade pasta and have gone from 215 pounds to 152. And for someone who always felt defeated before she even started to reduce, it's been quite a victory!

I was born in Italy and came to Welland, Canada with my family when I was only two. No baby food for me! I was eating spaghetti as soon as I could chew. But it was not until I had my tonsils out at the age of six that I really began to pile on the pounds.

By the time I got to elementary school, the kids teased me all the time. It was just terrible. I remember one of the things they would yell at me was this:

Fatty, fatty
Two by four
Can't fit through
The kitchen door.

I used to get so upset, I'd go home and eat everything in sight. Pizza, homemade bread, potato chips, chocolate bars. When I got to high school, I needed a size 22 skirt. And since we wore uniforms, I had to have mine made. For ten dollars extra.

Gym classes were the worst. I hated them. We had to jog around the room and I could only do it three times. Once, the exertion was so much for me, I fainted. At first, the instructor thought I was faking to avoid exercise, but I wasn't. When the doctor saw me, he said I'd wind up with a heart attack if I didn't do something about my weight. So I tried starving myself. When that didn't work, I went back to eating. I just never believed anything could help me. Not until I wound up at State University College in Buffalo, New York, where I'm majoring in elementary education.

Here's what happened. My roommate had talked me into going to a dance where girls and fellows meet. In my mind, I kept thinking I'll wear my green dress. But that night, when I tried to put it on, it wouldn't even zip. So I had to wear an old black sack and I sat in the corner, miserable the whole evening.

Next day I went to the drugstore and asked the pharmacist for a box of those reducing-plan candies —Ayds®. I'd been reading about them for the longest time, but I was always a little afraid to take anything. The woman there, however, had used them and she pointed out that they contained vitamins and minerals, so that encouraged me more. Later, when I read the directions, I saw that Ayds didn't have any drugs, so I started on the Ayds Plan.

For breakfast, I'd have two Ayds with hot tea, orange juice and a boiled egg. At noon, two more Ayds, tea, a sandwich and an apple. And for supper, Ayds, hot tea again, meat or cheese, and lots of vegetables. (I passed up the late, late supper entirely.) I had no desire for dessert, because I had my sweets with Ayds. Chocolate fudge is my favorite, though I tried the other flavors — even the butterscotch fudge.

After I started on the Ayds Plan, I didn't get weighed for two weeks. I even made my roommate hide the scale. That's how afraid I was that I wouldn't lose. But I did! Five whole pounds. I got so excited, I started thinking of all the styles I would be able to wear.

By the time I'd lost 35 pounds, everybody was noticing the difference in me. Even in my personality. Before, I would do anything to avoid even talking to people. Not that I didn't want to, but I always thought people would be looking at me.

Why, I didn't even want to answer any questions in class for fear of drawing attention to myself. Fact is, I always took the back seat so I could get out fast.

But that's all changing now. I want to get down even lower than 152 pounds. And I will. After all, there are a lot of boys sitting up front and I'm working my way there, thanks to the Ayds Plan.

What in the World!

THE NEW MILITARY MAN

German GI and hairnet

German enlisted men are now permitted to wear their hair as long as they want. The only stipulation the Defense Ministry in Bonn made was that all long locks be neatly caught up in a hair net. This hirsute soldier is struggling to figure out how to use the unaccustomed accessory. It's something to think about, as the American military embarks on its program to allow lengths somewhat longer than crew cut.

By 1981, foreign travel will become "nearly as commonplace for Americans as taking the family car out for a weekend spin is now." Washington attorney Clayton Burwell, a former Travel Advisory Committee member of the U.S. Travel Service, forecasts some of the expected developments: 1.) Union contracts with foreign-travel clauses written in as pension benefits are now. 2.) Secondary schools offering trips abroad as field trips—with the fringe benefit of fewer dropouts. 3.) Big, low-cost vacation complexes in presently undeveloped areas, designed for the working-class family and featuring facilities for such everyday sports as bowling and baseball. In the next decade, Burwell predicts, these new groups of travelers will number 50 million.

One out of every 10 Americans will be injured in a home accident before the year is out, according to Blue Cross. About 50,000 will have some permanent impairment due to falls. There is, however, a way to fall properly: try not to topple like a tree, but instead, crumble like an empty sack, rolling onto the fleshy parts of the body. If the fall is from one level to another, touch ground on the balls of the feet, bend knees and ankles and curl the body. If the fall is headlong, reach out slightly, arms folded in toward the body, and spread fingers to distribute the area of contact. Then try to land sideways on shoulder or thigh. Of course, the trick is to remember all this at the moment of truth.

San Luis Obispo, Calif., is a quiet old mission city by the sea, between San Francisco and Los Angeles. Much of the town looks just as it did in the 1800's. In contrast to bigger metropolises, the populace is celebrating its unhectic way of life by organizing a SLOW campaign (acronymn for San Luis Obispo Weekends). A summer-long chess game (one move per week), a glider fly-in, a course in sun-dial reading and a snail vs. turtle race are some SLOW events ahead. The town is now awaiting a telephone number which spells out SLOW.

SLOWDOWN HOEDOWN

They're practicing sun-dial reading.

THIS WEEK'S DATES: Miss U.S.A. Pageant finals are held in Miami Beach, next Saturday. The Grand Prix automobile race will be held in Monaco next Saturday and Sunday.

ANNIVERSARIES: The United Nations moved from Lake Success, N.Y., to its present permanent headquarters in New York City 20 years ago Tuesday. Congress established national quotas for immigration into the U.S. 50 years ago Wednesday. The U.S. test-exploded its first airplane-borne hydrogen bomb, over Bikini Island in the Pacific, 15 years ago Friday.

BIRTHDAYS: Henry Fonda is 66, Sunday, May 16. Margot Fonteyn 52 and Perry Como and Meredith Wilson both 58 on Tuesday. James Stewart is 63 and Moshe Dayan 56 Thursday. Raymond Burr 54, and Peggy Cass 45, Friday. Sir Laurence Olivier 64, next Saturday.

FEATURING HIS PAL ROSCO SWEENEY

By ROY CRANE

YOU MAY NOT BE A NUT AFTER ALL, MR. SWEENEY. TELL YOU WHAT, IF YOU'LL KEEP MUM ABOUT THIS FLYING SAUCER BUSINESS, I'LL PUT YOU UP IN THE FINEST HOTEL IN TOWN.

HOT DINGIES!

NOW YOU'RE TALKING.

DAYS PASS

MR. SWEENEY—YOU HAVE DUMBFOUNDED OUR SPACE EXPERTS AND HAVE CREATED GRAVE CONCERN AMONG OUR HEADS OF STATE.

HOW'S THAT, SIR?

YOUR PHOTOGRAPHS AND MOON ROCKS APPEAR GENUINE. THOUGH IT SEEMS INCREDIBLE, WE BELIEVE YOU ARE THE 5th PERSON TO WALK ON THE MOON, AND YOU GOT THERE IN A FLYING SAUCER!

BUT WE QUESTION THE PURPOSE OF THIS MARTIAN. WHY DID HE TAKE YOU THERE?

YOU SEE, HE'S WITH MISS—THAT'S MARS INTERSTELLAR SPACE SAUCERS. HE WANTS TO SET UP TOURIST EXCURSIONS TO THE MOON. I'M TO BE THE SUPREME EARTH CAPTAIN AND TICKET AGENT.

UH... I SEE.

YOU SAY THAT MARTIAN WANTS TO BUILD A SPACEPORT? ONCE THESE MARTIANS GET A FOOT IN THE DOOR THEY MIGHT SWARM OVER US LIKE A PLAGUE OF LOCUSTS!

OH, NO, SIR!

MR. GREEN IS FRIENDLY AND KIND.

THAT'S WHAT THE INDIANS SAID OF THE PILGRIMS WHEN THEY FIRST LANDED.

HATLO'S HISTORY

ABE LINCOLN PLAYS BASEBALL AND ALIENATES THE FANS WITH HIS HONESTY.. NEW SALEM, ILL., 1831

SAFE! YOU NEVER TOUCHED HIM!

I DID SO! I TAGGED HIM BEFORE HE SLID!! ASK HIM!!

YES, HE DID, MR. UMPIRE! HE DID TAG ME! I'M OUT!!

ARE YOU CRAZY, ABE? SHUT UP! YER NOT THE UMPIRE!!

YEAH! HE WANTS TO PLAY AND UMP TOO!

HE'S BEEN TETCHED FOR YEARS!!

HE MUSTA BET ON THE OTHER TEAM!!

LOOK WHO'S TALKING DEPT. Thanks to W. J. RYAN, BUFFALO, N.Y.

OPEN A WINDA!

IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT... MOVE!

BUT HOW IS HE ON THE HOME FRONT? Thanks to HUGH MERCER, P.O. BOX 7, ROME, GA.

PHEW!! CABBAGE! I COULD SMELL IT A BLOCK AWAY! UGH!

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

JILL, GIRL, I JUST DON'T UNDERSTAND HOW PEOPLE WHO ACT DECENTLY ALL THE TIME EVER SURVIVE. FATHER IS IN A FRENZY AND SINCE I GAVE TERRY BACK TO DOLORES, I CAN'T EVEN ESCAPE THE HOOD LECTURE ON THE PITFALLS OF HONESTY.

WITH THE COLLAPSE OF HOOD'S MINING SCHEME, DOLORES AND TERRY LEAVE HIS CASINO-HOTEL.

WHILE, AT THE TWELVE OAR BAY AIRPORT...

THE MATTER DID COME UP SUDDENLY. IT CONCERNED THE PEOPLE IN MY DISTRICT.

HOWEVER, INVESTIGATION SHOWED THAT INDUSTRIAL POLLUTION WAS INVOLVED. IN THE INTERESTS OF MY CONSTITUENTS, I WILL NOT PURSUE THE MATTER FURTHER.

YES, SIR, COLONEL LEE. YOU ARE TO CALL WASHINGTON OPERATOR NINETY. PLEASE USE THE OFFICE PHONE.

WHILE...

LEE, WHERE THE DEVIL HAVE YOU BEEN? NEVER MIND. YOU'RE ON THAT BLINKING ISLAND AND THERE IS NO TIME TO SEND A CAPABLE MAN DOWN, SO JUST DO YOUR BEST.

YES, SIR, GENERAL BRASSARD, MY BEST "WHAT," SIR?

THEN...

IF THERE ARE NO FURTHER QUESTIONS, GENTLEMEN, EXCUSE ME. I MUST CHECK WITH COLONEL LEE ABOUT OUR TICKETS.

SORRY ABOUT THAT, TERRY. SHOULD HAVE EXPECTED THAT THE PRESS WOULD HUNT ME DOWN... ARE OUR PLANE RESERVATIONS OKAY?

YOURS ARE, DOLORES.

TERRY! YOU'RE NOT COMING BACK TO WASHINGTON WITH ME? HEY! I'M SUPPOSED TO BE THE ONE WHOSE JOB KEEPS INTERRUPTING OUR LOVE AFFAIR!

MINE'S CAUGHT UP WITH ME, TOO, THANKS TO SNAPPER BRASSARD!

BLAST THE LUCK! WHY DID I HAVE TO BE THE ONLY MAN AVAILABLE ON THE ISLAND WHERE DOCTOR DUDGEON'S BEEN VACATIONING?

"UH, HUH... STATE DEPARTMENT HAS RECEIVED A REQUEST FROM THE NEW GOVERNMENT OF SERENDIP. THEIR PRESIDENT-LIBERATOR IS IN BAD SHAPE. DUDGEON'S THE ONLY MAN WITH THE RIGHT SKILLS. I'M TO COURIER HIM THERE BY FASTEST AVAILABLE MEANS."

HE'S PACKING NOW AT THE PRIVATE HOME WHERE HE'S BEEN STAYING. I HAVE THE TICKET CLERK WORKING ON SPACE FOR US ABOARD AN EAST-BOUND FLIGHT TONIGHT.

OH, MY, TERRY, SERENDIP IS THAT EX-COLONY IN THE INDIAN OCEAN. EVEN WITH THE BEST OF CONNECTIONS, IT WILL TAKE A DAY OR MORE.

TERRY! THEY'RE CALLING MY FLIGHT!

MMMMMM!

HEY! THAT SEEMED TO BE DELIVERED WITH EVEN MORE ENTHUSIASM THAN THE OCCASION CALLED FOR!

INSURANCE! I JUST REMEMBERED THAT THE PRIME MINISTER OF SERENDIP IS A LOVELY WOMAN!

THAT'S ALL RIGHT, FOLKS... DON'T MIND OL' DOC HI DUDGEON. WHO AM I TO EXPECT A LITTLE ATTENTION? WHO ELSE WOULD THEY HAVE WET-NURSED BY A SOLDIER BOY—AND A LOOSE-LIVING LOTHARIO AT THAT?!

THAT CHUCK.. HE'S SOMETHING ELSE...

I DON'T KNOW WHY I EVEN THINK ABOUT HIM..

CHUCK JUST DOESN'T SEEM TO UNDERSTAND A GIRL'S EMOTIONS...

IN FACT, CHUCK DOESN'T SEEM TO UNDERSTAND GIRLS AT ALL..

CHUCK IS HARD TO TALK TO BECAUSE HE DOESN'T UNDERSTAND LIFE..

HE DOESN'T UNDERSTAND LAUGHING AND CRYING

HE DOESN'T UNDERSTAND LOVE, AND SILLY TALK, AND TOUCHING HANDS, AND THINGS LIKE THAT..

HE PLAYS A LOT OF BASEBALL, BUT I DOUBT IF HE EVEN UNDERSTANDS BASEBALL...

KNOCK KNOCK KNOCK KNOCK

I DON'T THINK YOU UNDERSTAND ANYTHING, CHUCK!

Prince Valiant®

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: AS THEY TRAVEL SOUTHWARD THE DANGERS MULTIPLY AND ALL PRINCE VALIANT'S ENERGIES ARE TURNED TO JUST PLAIN SURVIVAL. BUT IN THE LONG NIGHT WATCHES HE BROODS OVER HIS TRAGEDY: A SERIES OF PETTY INCIDENTS, MISTAKEN PRIDE AND, PERHAPS, VANITY. THE WHOLE THING COULD HAVE BEEN AVOIDED WITH JUST ONE KISS!

①

NO MORE DO THEY ALLOW THEIR HASTE TO LEAD THEM INTO NEEDLESS BATTLES WITH ROVING BANDS OF GOTHS. THE WOUNDS RECEIVED IN THEIR LAST ENCOUNTER HAVE SHOWN THEM THE HARDINESS OF THEIR FOES.

AFTER DAYS OF RAIN THE SUN CLEARS AWAY THE MIST AND THERE, STANDING LIKE A WALL AGAINST THE SOUTHERN SKY, LOOM THE PYRENEES MOUNTAINS. BEYOND IS HISPANIA, THE GOAL OF THE MIGRATING GOTHS. NOW THEY MUST RIDE EASTWARD, FOR THIS IS THE NARROWEST PART OF GAUL BETWEEN THE BAY OF BISCAY AND THE MEDITERRANEAN, AND PERIL LURKS AT EVERY LEAGUE OF THE WAY.

A GEM IS NOT POLISHED WITHOUT RUBBING, NOR A MAN MADE PERFECT WITHOUT TRIALS"
-CHINESE PROVERB

OLIVER WARBUCKS HAS ASSURED US THAT THE GIRL IS SAFE! AND JUDGING BY PAST PERFORMANCES, HIS WORD IS HIS BOND!

World Rights Reserved

SAHIB WARBUCKS STATED THAT THIS DR. NO-NO IS A FRIEND OF TAMARA'S! WHAT IS THE MEANING OF THE BLACK BAG HE CARRIES IN HIS CAR?

DON'T LOOK SO ALARMED, GIRLS! IT'S NOTHING ··· RIGHT, DOCTOR?

A MILD UPSET! I WILL LEAVE YOU SOME MEDICINE, SIR!

IF THE DISCOMFORT HAS NOT ABATED, I SHALL RETURN IN THE MORNING!

IT ALWAYS MAKES ME FEEL KINDA NERVOUS T'SEE YOU SICK, "DADDY"! SO BE SURE T' FEEL O.K. IN THE MORNIN', HUH?

I HAVE TO ADMIT, ANNIE, THAT ONCE IN A WHILE I GET A KICK OUT OF JUST LYING BACK AND BEING WAITED ON···

···SO I INTEND TO SQUEEZE EVERY LAST OUNCE OF SYMPATHY OUT OF THIS LITTLE STOMACHACHE OF MINE! NOW YOU PLAY HOSTESS TO OUR GUESTS!

HOW WILL HE BE IN THE MORNING?

REFRESHED! BUT BY EVENING, HE WILL FEEL A WEAKNESS THAT WILL MAKE IT ESSENTIAL FOR ME TO RETURN TO THIS HOUSE!

"DADDY" SAID FOR ME T' GET YOU ANYTHING YOU NEEDED···

AH, MY DEAR CHILD, IT IS NOT NECESSARY! I WAS ABOUT TO LEAVE THIS VERY MOMENT!

PUNJAB, IT IS TRUE THAT WE CAN SENSE THE PRESENCE OF DANGER, IS IT NOT?

THAT HAS ALWAYS BEEN MY BELIEF··· AND OFTEN MY SALVATION, ASP!
