

Retirement Plan 'Safe' In Assembly

Tiny Union Closing Down The Railroads

By YVONNE BASKIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's General Assembly apparently isn't going to abolish a retirement plan that guarantees veteran legislators at least $100 a month when they reach age 65.

The Senate State Policies committee is scheduled to vote Tuesday on a bill that would keep the program intact but would require legislators to contribute five per cent of their salaries to the fund. They now contribute nothing.

Teachers and state employees contribute five per cent of their pay up to $5,600 and six per cent of their salary above that to their retirement fund.

For legislators the cost would be $10 a month.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Henry Milgrom, D-Nash, was approved by a subcommittee headed by Milgrom last week. The group chose the bill over several other measures, all introduced on the opening day of the session, that would have repealed the program entirely.

Milgrom called his bill the "best best" thing and said he personally would prefer repeal of the plan.

"I don't think a bill to repeal the whole system would have a chance of passage," he said. "But most members I've talked with now go along with a contributory system."

"I think we're state employees and we should be treated as such," he said.

The controversial retirement plan, approved in the waning days of the 1969 General Assembly, provides that persons serving in the 1969 session or subsequent sessions who have served at least four terms are eligible for a pension of $25 a month for each term served when they reach age 65. Judges are the only other state employees who do not contribute to their own retirement fund.

In order to help five House members who had completed only three terms, the 1969 bill gave credit for four terms to any member who had served only three terms by 1969 but was over the age of 70.

Two former legislators are now receiving retirement pay, both under the special provision for three-termers. Former Reps. Basil Barr, D-Ashe, and Guy Elliott, D-Lenoir, are each receiving $75 a month from the state.

A third member of the 1969 session who is eligible is retired Sen. Edward Griffin, D-Franklin. He has applied for benefits.

The two oldest members of the legislature—Sen. Claude Currie, D-Durham, and Rep. James Vogler, D-Mecklenburg—could have retired in 1969 and collected $325 a month for the rest of their lives. Each had 13 terms of service then.

But Currie, 80, and Vogler, 76, were reelected and are serving this session. As active legislators their pay is only $250 a month—$200 in salary and $50 subsistence.

At the time the plan was passed it received much criticism from the press and public and some legislators called it "the worst piece of legislation" to come out of the session. The plan was approved about the same time the lawmakers voted themselves a health pay raise and a retroactive hike in subsistence allowance.

Funds for the retirement plan are taken out of monies appropriated for the support of the General Assembly.

Between sessions the Legislative Research Commission studied the plan, and it voted last November to recommend that it be left as it is. The group said it would cost more to administer a contributory system than the present plan.

On Jan. 13, the day the 1971 session opened, five bills were introduced to abolish the system. The Senate bills were sent to the State Policies committee, headed by Sen. Hargrove Bowles, D-Guilford, who sponsored one of the repeal bills.

On March 3 the bills went to Milgrom's subcommittee. A few weeks later Milgrom introduced his bill to keep the plan but make it contributory like the Teachers and State Employees Retirement System.

His bill would allow the two retired legislators who are now collecting to stay under the system even though they have never contributed to it. It would also add the principal clerk, reading clerk and sergeant-at-arms of each house to the plan.

The only major item left for the committee to decide on is the effective date of the contributory system—whether it should be dated back to 1969 or the first of this session or held off until the state of the 1972 session.

Even with a contributory plan, the legislators will be getting a much better deal than other state employees. A teacher or other employee with an average salary of $7,200 would have to work about 13 years to be eligible for retirement benefits of $100 a month.

Forces Reduced By 4,600 Men

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that American troop strength in Vietnam was reduced by 4,600 men last week to 262,500, the lowest total in more than five years.

Of the men withdrawn last week, 2,500 were Marines, leaving 8,600 in South Vietnam. All but a small number of advisers will be withdrawn by early June.

The total U.S. troop strength is the lowest since March 1966, when there were 231,200 men.

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Like David bringing down Goliath, the comparatively tiny signalmen's union today threw up picket lines that began shutting down the nation's vast rail system.

The administration called the strike a disaster and White House sources said President Nixon would ask Congress to halt it if it continued.

But Congress had made no special plans to handle the strike before it recessed for the weekend, and it was an open question how soon any legislation could be passed. It took a midnight session to put a stop to a one-day nationwide walkout by four other unions last December.

Today's strike by the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen is the fourth nationwide rail walkout in 50 years. Although the 13,000 signalmen represent only two per cent of all rail workers, other large unions appeared to be honoring their picket lines as they spread across the country, starting at 6 a.m. local time in each time zone.

By 9 a.m. EDT a spokesman for the Federal Railroad Administration reported "a pretty well shutdown situation" as far west as Chicago, and predicted the rail industry would be at a virtual halt all across America by noon.

First to feel the strike were morning rail commuters in

New York, Chicago and other large cities. New York's state-owned Log Island Rail Road was still running because it bargains locally, but all other commuter and intercity passenger trains were affected, along with freight service. No exemptions were made for military cargo or perishable goods.

In Key Biscayne, Fla., where President Nixon was winding up a weekend sojourn, White House sources said Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson was preparing legislation to send to Congress, probably by the end of the day.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said Hodgson telephoned to say that the administration would submit emergency legislation sometime this morning.

There were spotty reports of some trains operating despite the strike. Chicago's South Shore and South Bend Rail Road was running because its signalmen belong to a different union. Missouri Pacific supervisory personnel manned skeleton crews in Little Rock, Ark., to continue operations there.

Supervisory personnel were being used to move livestock and perishable items, some railroads reported. The strike came despite government efforts to mediate a settlement between the union and the National Railway Labor Conference.

Administration Claims Victory Over Mansfield

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Administration officials, bolstered by some of the most remembered names in Democratic annals, are claiming victory in a hurried campaign to quash Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield's attempt to legislate a 50 per cent cut of U.S. troops levels in Europe.

Clark McGregor, President Nixon's chief lobbyist, declared Sunday "We have no doubt we'll win" when the Senate votes Wednesday.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers also predicted failure for the Mansfield amendment, which seeks to reduce the U.S. garrison in NATO countries to 150,000. Rogers denounced the proposal as potentially "disastrous to our foreign policy."

Meanwhile, Nixon announced in Florida that former President Harry S. Truman had joined the array of past Democratic government officials, including Lyndon B. Johnson, who have rallied to his position.

Truman was quoted in a statement relayed by his former Secretary of State Dean Acheson that he "agrees entirely" with Nixon's assertion Saturday that such a cutback "would be an error of historic dimension."

Acheson, a prime mover in the early years of the NATO alliance, has headed a drive launched at the White House only last Thursday which so far has enlisted the public support of at least two dozen high officials of the Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Mansfield has refused to yield, although he acknowledged over the weekend "I am beginning to feel like the fellow who only has a sling shot." He added, however, "I was not surprised at the resurrection of the Old Guard,"—a reference to the former NATO commanders, U.S. diplomats and politicians backing the President.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a frequent foreign policy ally of Mansfield's, announced Sunday he was put off an Asian trip to vote against the majority leader.

"It is my judgment that should the Mansfield amendment pass, the outcome of the vote would be exactly contrary to what Sen. Mansfield contemplates—that is, Europe would fall apart and lean toward the Soviet Union, rather than come together and replace the forces withdrawn by the United States," Javits said.

Javits is backing a substitute proposal which would seek greater European contribution to allied defense and a stronger role for Congress.

Rogers also characterized the Mansfield plan as dangerous, adding that NATO forces now are about in balance with those of the Warsaw Pact.

"Why should we, the United States, reduce unilaterally and thereby kiss goodbye any chance we may have to negotiate successfully with the Soviet Union a mutual and balanced reduction?" Rogers asked.

The secretary of state noted that Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev offered last Friday to begin talks with NATO countries over mutual reductions of armed might. But, Rogers said, the proposal is "a little vague" and the United States is seeking clarification. Mansfield urged that Nixon quickly accept Brezhnev's proposal and set a definite date for the talks, preferably in June.

Priority Given By Scott

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott said today the issue of higher education should be considered by the North Carolina General Assembly at this session and he is considering addressing the lawmakers on the subject.

Scott told a news conference the question of higher education is so important that it should be considered by the legislature at this time.

He said the lawmakers "should stay in session until their work is completed" and suggested they take a vacation the week of July 4 if the session is not over by that time.

"I would hope they would keep their shoulders to the wheel until all the major issues have been handled," Scott said.

He added he had not yet received a report of the Warren study committee which has recommended that a coordinating board be set up that would, among other things, have supervision over budget making for the state-supported universities.

Scott said he hoped to get the report this week.

"Until I do see it I don't want to make any comment on it," the governor said.

Analysts See A Negotiation Lull In Middle East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli analysts predict a lull in negotiations with Egypt as a result of the uncertain political situation in Cairo following President Anwar Sadat's purge of his Egyptian rivals.

They said until the situation in Cairo clarifies, Washington would be unable to pursue its campaign for an Egyptian-Israeli agreement to permit reopening of the Suez Canal.

Diplomatic maneuvers also will be hampered for the rest of this month because Premier Golda Meir will be visiting Scandinavia, and Foreign Minister Abba Eban will be touring Africa.

Israeli leaders took a restrained attitude toward Sadat's arrest of rivals he accused of plotting against him. The Israeli cabinet heard reports Sunday on Egypt's political turmoil from Defense Minister Moshe Dayan and the army intelligence chief, Lt. Gen. Haron Yariv.

No details of the cabinet discussion was disclosed. But specialists on Arab affairs agreed that Sadat's purge was prompted by internal political friction and not by his recent attempts to reach agreement with Israel on the canal. However, they would not speculate on how Sadat's shakeup may affect efforts toward a settlement.

The uncertainty felt by policy makers in Jerusalem was reflected in the lack of political declarations for or against Sadat.

In Cairo, Sadat hit back at critics of his efforts to reach a peaceful settlement with Israel. "We are seeking peace based on justice, not peace at any price as some people think," Sadat said in an address to Moslem religious leaders.

"We are following three parallel paths, the military buildup which is the basis, the political struggle and the construction of a modern state based on faith and science.

"We must purge our lands of the Israeli enemy."

The official Middle-East News Agency said Sadat continued his housecleaning by firing Communications Minister Kamal Henei Abadir and replacing him with Abdel Malek Saad, an engineer. The president also appointed Gen. Saad el Shazli chief of staff to replace Gen. Mohammed Sadek, who was elevated to war minister and commander in chief.

Sadat dismissed six officials of the information ministry, and a number of police officials in the ministry of interior were expected to be pensioned off.

Public demonstrations in support of Sadat continued. Thousands of workers marched in Cairo, and peasants came in from the surrounding countryside to express their approval of his actions. Public rallies were held across the country, speakers at them praised Sadat and attacked his opponents.

The Israeli government announced the appointment of an Arab as deputy minister of health, the highest office given to an Arab in the Jewish state. Abdul Aziz Zuabi, a 45-year-old Moslem, is a leading member of the Marxist political party Mapam, which works for closer Arab-Jewish cooperation and is in coalition with the ruling Labor party.

Building Burned

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The New Hanover County school administration building was destroyed by fire early this morning after a mysterious caller tipped firemen that the building was ablaze.

Firemen have not yet determined the cause of the blaze. Wilmington has been the scene this year of much racial unrest in New Hanover County schools with a curfew being enforced at one time after a black pupil was shot to death.

An anonymous telephone caller notified the city's Central Fire Department five blocks from the school administration building that the building was on fire, then hung up. That was 11:55 p.m. Sunday.

Firemen had no chance to save the building, and spent the entire night trying to keep the blaze from reaching other buildings in the densely populated area. A newsman on the scene said the roofs of houses up to a half a block away from the fire were buckling from the intense heat.

The building was a large two-story brick structure. The building and grounds of the administration building covered a city block.

N.C. Is Feeling Railroad Strike

The nationwide strike of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen began shutting down rail operations in North Carolina today.

Pickets were reported at Southern Railway stations in Charlotte, Greensboro and Asheville and at the Norfolk and Western facility in Winston-Salem.

At Charlotte, workers who reported at 11 p.m. Sunday, some seven hours in advance of this morning's strike call, were to be held overtime until 3 p.m. A Southern spokesman said perishable goods would be delivered.

AN ARMY DEBT — Spec. 4 Michael Haley, 23, will be discharged next month, but the U.S. Army claims he owes the government $3,724. (AP Wirephoto)

Soldier Must Pay For Big Financial Mess

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Michael Haley is getting his discharge from the military next month after a second combat tour in Vietnam, but the Army is marking his debt to his country as unpaid.

The service says Spec. 4 Haley owes $3,724 because of a financial mess resulting from a five-month wait for orders a year ago.

Until the situation is straightened out, Haley is giving up his salary except for $40 a month for his wife. "He's been told he can have $25 a month for himself but so far he hasn't requested it," the Army said.

Haley's pay, the Army says, is $330.90 a month plus $65 for combat duty. As a Spec. 4 with less than four years service, it is mandatory that his dependents get $40 of that amount. The Army provides them another $130.60 not counted in his basic pay.

Haley, 23, of Champaign, Ill., stirred things up when he told an Associated Press reporter in Vietnam last year the Army was asking him to return the money he was paid during the 128 days it listed him as absent without leave—a period in which he says he waited in vain for duty orders.

As a result of the publicity, the Army began looking into Haley's tale of woe.

He had finished a one-year tour in Vietnam in 1967 and came home with hepatitis. After five months in military hospitals he was told to go home and await orders.

Haley says a personnel officer told him he would be stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo., about Sept. 1 of that year, so—without orders—he moved his family there, rented a house and reported for duty.

He said he was told he couldn't report without orders.

"to go home and wait." After trying for five months to trace the orders while shuffling between Illinois and Ft. Carson, he finally had a blackout at the fort, Haley said, and found himself back home. Meanwhile, his orders arrived.

At that point, he contacted an aide to Rep. William L. Springer, R-Ill., who had been sympathetic to his problems, and was advised to report again to Carson, which he did.

He was finally processed Feb. 2, 1970. The Army charged him with "excess leave" for the period Sept. 3, 1969 to Jan. 7, 1970, and as AWOL during his "blackout" trip from Jan. 13 to Feb. 1. He was told he had to pay back the money he received, meanwhile, for the five months.

Shortly afterward, Haley volunteered for his second tour in Vietnam went there last November and told his story to The AP. Soon thereafter, the Army said it had goofed "due to administrative error."

So the Sept. 3, 1969 to Jan. 6, 1970 absence was changed from "excess leave" to "authorized absence—not chargeable as leave." However, the "blackout" period remained AWOL, and his release date was set back from May 3 to June 3 this year.

But then the Army found that during the months he was wandering, Haley obtained from Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., pay which the Air Force neglected to report to the Army. Also it found that allotments Haley had made through the Army Finance Center in Indianapolis also were not deducted from his unit pay file.

Then it found that on the basis of promotion orders sent from Ft. Carson to Vietnam and later ruled invalid, Haley was paid the rate for a Spec. 5.

Students of Aycok Junior High School Friday afternoon joined in an assembly in the school gymnasium to take part in the final phase of a two day program.

The event was a "Junior High School Bowl" at 2:00 p.m. Moderated by Dr. Andrew Best, the students on different teams answered questions on a time basis, based on the format of the familiar "College Bowl" quiz game.

Prizes for winning teams were furnished by the Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce and by the Greenville Jaycees.

Dudley Flood, scheduled to appear on this occasion, was unable to attend. Two representatives from the Raleigh office of the Department of Public Instruction, Edd McBride and Miss Louise Henry, represented that office. TV personality Evangeline assisted in distributing prizes.

Teachers, parents, members of the City School Board and City Schools Superintendent Dr. Clet C. Cleetwood were on hand for this final event of the two day activity. On Thursday, a display of posters was held at the school.

The Aycok program is part of the campaign projects to be presented in connection with Greenville's bid for All-America city.

The Friday afternoon program is an outgrowth of a civic class participation in the study of the foundations of education.

Prize winners in the Poster Design contest held on Thursday were: Best in all categories, James Davis; best in four separate categories — "basic sources," James Davis; "quality education," Donna Bunch and Barbara Clemens jointly; "correlative education," two first place winners, Frankford Johnson and James Davis; and "now comments," Frankford Johnson.

In the Junior Bowl games on Friday, the top team was the Phillips team with 195 points. Members of this team were Gregory Alexander, Richard Edwards and Earnest Fleming. The Guess prize for the secret word was won by Anna Bass. The word was CAPS (for changed, attitude, preparation, success).

Each participant in the total program was honored with the presentation of an honorable mention prize.

Profs Challenge Newspaper Study

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Two professors have challenged the methodology used in a study that concluded that newspaper advertising was more effective than broadcast advertising in attracting shoppers to downtown areas.

The study was conducted by two instructors from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro at the request of the State Planning Task Force. It was supposed to show what could be done to help faltering downtown areas.

The study consisted of 123 interviews conducted with shoppers in the downtown areas of 23 North Carolina cities. Those interviewed were asked to indicate what advertising, if any, had brought them to the downtown shopping area.

"It would be hazardous to base any conclusions about advertising effectiveness on this study," said Dr. William H. Melson of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The surveys, said Dr. Melson, were not based on any kind of "statistically reliable sampling," and the "failure to disclose the sampling procedure employed prevents any conclusions as to its generality of findings."

Dr. Robert J. Gwyn, who teaches at UNC Chapel Hill and holds a Ph. D. in communications, said, "A great many variables could affect the results of a study like this, and this study fails to name the variables and account for them."

Ervin Asserts Crime Control Bill Is Motivated By Politics

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin says the Nixon administration's latest crime control bill is unconstitutional and motivated by politics rather than practicality.

The North Carolina Democrat and constitutional expert said the Nixon administration wants only to "impress on the American people the idea that the Justice Department is concerned about so-called law and order."

"They just want to make it appear to the American people that the Nixon administration is attempting to lock up all the dangerous criminals," the 74-year-old Ervin said in an interview.

The administration bill, sent to Capitol Hill Friday, would allow pretrial without bail for up to 60 days of persons accused in dangerous or organized federal crimes. That feature is among the most controversial in the recently-enacted law covering the District of Columbia.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell said the measure is designed to "protect the public" and added pretrial detention would not be imposed until "after a hearing with appropriate procedural safeguards." Its use, Mitchell said, would be limited to defendants convicted of a felony within the past 10 years, those charged while free on bail from another charge or on parole or probation from other felonies, and drug addicts.

Ervin charged that in addition to being unconstitutional, preventive detention as Mitchell wants it simply would not be effective in fighting crime.

"I believe the attorney general is of sufficient intelligent to know what trying to fight crime by preventive detention is about as practical as trying to empty the Atlantic Ocean with a quart cup." Ervin said a Bureau of Standards study made in the District of Columbia over a four-week period in 1968 showed that "only 5 per cent of those people charged are re-arrested within an 18-month period.

"And virtually all who committed crimes while on bail from a different charge did so after 60 days"—the administration's proposed limit for detaining suspects prior to trial."

It subjects people to the dangerous possibility and certainty that multitudes of innocent people will be detained," he said.

At Least Nine Die In Tar Heel Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two high school seniors who were on their way to a junior-senior prom ended up having a date with death over the weekend. They were among the nine persons killed in traffic accidents in North Carolina from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

Victims of a wreck near Pinehurst were Joseph Melvin Garner, 18, a Pinehurst High School senior, and a companion, 17-year-old Elaine Vest. The car, driven by Garner's cousin, hurtled off a road.

The nine weekend deaths pushed the state's death toll for wrecks so far this year to 593. That was 30 more than at this time last year.

Other fatalities were: Mrs. Patricia Miller Bradshaw, 20, of Virginia Beach, and her one-year-old daughter, Wanda Marie Bradshaw. They were killed in a two-car collision Sunday near Windsor in Bertie County.

Davis Wayne Benfield, 19, of Rt. R, Mooresville, killed in a head-on collision when one car went out of control on rain-slick U.S. 21 in Iredell County and struck a second vehicle.

City-Born Wife Enjoys Time Spent On 'Family Working Farm'

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Brooklyn-born Bonny Birnbaum discovered long ago what many health-conscious city folk are just now coming to appreciate—the satisfaction to be gained from growing and processing your own fruit and vegetables. Mrs. Birnbaum, whose husband, Leonard, is a liquor importer and wholesaler, spends six months annually working on the farm they've run for 28 years in Columbia County, N.Y.

In an interview here, she said that only about 20 acres of their 150-acre property are under cultivation. But that's enough to sustain their family, including three children, her parents, her sister's family, including three sons, and the farm help.

"We used to raise sheep and turkeys until one member of the family became allergic to feathers and another to the work," she said.

"It's a working farm because all members of our family work. The children spend summers there. One nephew, who is 11 years old, help a lot."

Mrs. Birnbaum learned about the rural life at Bennington College in Vermont during World War II. Students were assigned five hours' work each week on a farm. A sprained ankle released her from that assignment, so she worked in the kitchen instead, freezing and canning produce that other students grew.

It's easier now, she said. "We can take a lot of freezing short-cuts. There is no need to blanch rhubarb, no syrup necessary to pack fruit and berries."

The children share her enthusiasm for growing, picking and cooking, she said.

"Our daughter is perhaps the most practical. The boys are more creative, they like challenging things," she said, adding that the sons, 18 and 23 years old, often try recipes from a popular food magazine.

The older boy's gardening zeal was so great by the time he was in the third grade of a city school that he persuaded classmates to make 150 milk carton pots for his farm-grown flower and vegetable seedlings. He later sold the plants at the school's annual flower sale.

Mrs. Birnbaum's own experimenting includes a variation on brandied fruit that she hit upon one year when their apricot trees produced a bumper crop. She substituted in her-flavored Basque liqueur, which has a honey base, for plain brandy, and found that it accentuated the almond-like flavor of the fruit kernel.

Such work can satisfy the soul and the palate, but it isn't necessarily economical. Mrs. Birnbaum said she'd never stopped to figure the cost.

"If we did, we might feel very foolish," she said. Why, then, do they bother?

"We have to do it for ourselves. This is what makes us go," she said, adding that the same spirit of challenge led her husband, after many years in his family's business, to launch his own wine and spirits firm, Peartree Imports, Inc.

It's challenging because he decided to import only recognized brands in the world market that had not succeeded previously in the United States.

So far, they include two Basque liqueurs, a Swiss chocolate liqueur containing bits of whole chocolate, a blanc de blanc sparkling wine from Beaune that outsells champagne in its native France and bouzy, the still red wine of Champagne province.

Bonny Birnbaum's apricot recipe uses the yellow version of herb-flavored Basque liqueur. Make sugar syrup, using 1½ cups of water to each cup of sugar. Bring to boil in large saucepan. Drop in washed, whole apricots that have been pricked at either end with a fork to keep skin from bursting. Bring to boil again and boil two minutes. Use slotted spoon to transfer fruit immediately to pint jars. Fill each two-thirds full with hot syrup and add the liqueur to within ¼ inch of the top. Seal immediately with screw-top lids. Store at least one month before using.

Miss Bonnie Hahn, bride-elect of June 6, was honored at a miscellaneous shower Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. William T. Cannon.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Cannon, Mrs. Reid Tripp, Mrs. J. P. Jones, Mrs. Roy Rumbley and Mrs. Charles Lewis.

Upon arrival, the honoree was remembered with a corsage of white peonies.

The refreshment table was covered with a white Belgium linen and Brussels lace cloth and centered with a five branch candelabra with an arrangement of shasta daisies. Arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the house.

Such work can satisfy the soul and the palate, but it isn't necessarily economical. Mrs. Birnbaum said she'd never stopped to figure the cost.

"If we did, we might feel very foolish," she said. Why, then, do they bother?

Vari-Colored Shoes

Did you know that today's vari-colored shoes date from 1477?

At the time the Swiss defeated the armies of the Duke of Burgundy, all of their uniforms and shoes were badly ripped and torn. The Swiss mended them by sewing strips, squares, or diamond-shaped pieces of colored materials into the worn places. Tent canvas, banners, and furnishings left behind by the fleeing Burgundians were used. The style swept Europe and reached its peak in 1835. Today's ingenious shoe designers combine colors and varied material in much the same way. The smart, chic result is young and colorful, and readily adaptable to an assortment of costumes. Toe inserts, piping on straps, etc. of vivid color contrast strikingly or are mutations of the same shading. Designs are plentiful for any and ALL occasions. ALL are especially designed for smartly dressed women.

They Want Party For The Poodles

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the only young couple on our block who have no children, but we have two poodle pups we think the world of.

In a way, those poodles are our "children." We have toys for them, and all the neighborhood kids love to play with the pups.

Our poodles will be a year old soon, and I would like to give a birthday party for them. I would invite the neighborhood kids over for birthday cake and ice cream; and I'd have crazy hats and balloons just like a regular birthday party. I'd even take pictures of it. My question: Do you think people will think we are completely nuts? CHULA VISTA

DEAR CHULA: No. Just "arf" nuts.

DEAR ABBY: I am going to be married in six weeks. A month ago I telephoned a girl who had been a good friend of mine at college and asked her to be one of my bridesmaids. She accepted. I hadn't seen her for about six months, so I invited her to visit me for a weekend. When she arrived, I was shocked. She is obviously pregnant, and says she'll be starting her eighth month in six weeks from now!

She is not married and has no plans to be. She told me honestly that she had had a "meaningful relationship" with a fellow at college and they broke up. She isn't exactly proud of her condition, but she's not ashamed of it, either.

Abby, I still love her and believe me, I am not judging her, but this is a small town and my family and friends would never understand an unmarried but pregnant bridesmaid in my wedding party. I hate to hurt her feelings, but what can I tell her? BRIDE TO BE

DEAR BRIDE: Tell her you hate to hurt her feelings, that you still love her and are not judging her, but yours is a small town and your family and friends would never understand an unmarried but pregnant bridesmaid. If she loves you, she'll not judge you either.

DEAR ABBY: I invited a friend over, and she wanted to make prank phone calls, but I told her my parents don't like me to use the phone unless it's for a good reason. My parents weren't home at the time, but my mother called and asked me to go to the bus station and meet my uncle. My friend said she'd rather wait in my room so I went alone. When I was gone she made a prank long distance call.

We got the bill a month later and there was a $6.28 charge on it for a call to Florida! My parents were furious and made me pay for it. When I asked my friend if she made the call she laughed and said she did. How can I get her to pay me back? MAD

DEAR MAD: You probably can't. I don't know how friendly you are with this girl, but you gained a very valuable insight into her character [or lack of it] for $6.28. A bargain—at today's prices.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HELP ME TO HELP MY MOTHER" IN HOUSTON: Only your mother can help herself. Poor soul. She, like many other vain women, would rather NOT wear a hearing aid and pretend she's hearing everything, than to wear one and hear everything. Please tell her that at least half the women her age have a hearing loss, and the new hearing aids are so cleverly designed now that they are practically invisible.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal.

It's Different If You Listen

By BRYAN HAISLIP
LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C.

—Are you listening? If you are, do you hear me?

Probably not; words swim in and out of consciousness, but hardly anyone really listens. Most people do not hear what others around them are saying, and never find someone to listen to them.

"What a revelation when a man is able to hear!" said Dr. Carlyle Marney. "Then he understands what it is his wife, the boss, others in the community, are really saying to him."

It happens at Interpreter's house, an ecumenical study and work center which he founded and serves as director.

The name is from the 17th century, out of John Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." The techniques are contemporary, drawing on insights of psychology, sociology and other disciplines. The concerns are timeless, involving man's relationship with his fellows, the world, and God.

More than 4,000 persons from 30 states and representing 28 denominations have been students since the center opened three-and-one-half years ago. Clergy and laymen, whites and blacks, have been among the number.

Hearing New Things

One was a lonely Methodist preacher from the northwest corner of Wyoming. Six months later he wrote: "My folks are talking to me in a new way. They are saying things, in the saloon and the supermarket, I never heard before."

"He was listening. And hearing," Dr. Marney explained.

Dr. Marney is where he is today — which may be deep in a seminar at the center, writing articles or books, preaching and lecturing anywhere in this country or abroad — because he listened to promptings to leave the pulpit and seek more personal level of creative involvement.

"My wife and I made a contract, actually shook hands on it, that when our youngest was through the University we would pull back and do our own thing," he recalled.

Then he held one of the prize pastorates among Southern Baptists at Myers Park Baptist Church in Charlotte. It had 2,000 members, a half-million dollar annual budget, prestige and status. In his tenure, a $2 million building program had been successfully completed.

A heart attack, a long operation (benign), and surgery of the colon came in 1966. Feeling rather like a burned out hulk, Marney resigned at Myers Park and pursued plans for Interpreter's House.

Others Helped Start When he tells the story, he begins with thanks for those who helped.

"Without the good will of nine or ten Methodist bishops...without Bishop Earle Hunt...without the American Baptist (Northern)...without the Duke Endowment...we wouldn't have made it. And there were others, of course," he said.

Foundation support, personal fund-raising, some tuition income makes up the $100,000 to $150,000 annual budget. The center operates from September through May, with a program of seven three-week seminars for the clergy, ten three-day sessions for laymen, and seminars for the wives of ministerial participants.

To tell what Interpreter's House is, Dr. Marney first said what it is not.

"We are not a hospital. We are not a prison. We are not a tea group a sensitivity session, an encounter exercise.

"We are a theological enterprise, although we stand with that in hand before competent psychology, psychiatry, literature, science and history saying, 'correct our doctrine of man for us.'"

Way Station On Journey "We are a way station, a house on the road where, hopefully, folks can lay hold of something to help them on their journey."

Except that they must first say where their need is, he added. "Our distinctiveness is that we do not provide a curriculum. The real curriculum is in your gut. If we assumed we knew what it was, we'd probably miss," he explained. Discussions develop areas to be explored by each group, often turning up soul-shaking confrontations between liberals and conservatives, blacks and whites.

Dr. Marney is a craggy man whose blue eyes, ice or fire but never tepid, indicate the intensity of his personality. Power of expression is a particular gift, he thinks in poetry and talks in metaphor.

He left the pulpit and his old denomination (he's now an American Baptist), but he's no refugee. He looks back, sometimes in sadness but not in anger.

The church as an institution today presents a bleak prospect to him. "Most churches don't want a man as we try to free him at Interpreter's House. They want a preacher they can push around," he said. Still, he hopes for the future. "If you understand I do not mean what we have today. Christians always will need a place to meet," he said.

That should be, too, a place where they can both hear and be heard.

now definitely underway.

As most citizens know by now, the CBD is a project to improve the downtown area through urban renewal. It will not involve mass acquisition of property since it is an upgrading project. However some land purchase will be necessary to make way for new streets, parks and other public areas.

The development program will involve the efforts of merchants and property owners in upgrading their own establishments and it will stretch over a number of years.

Included in the plans are a park area at the present Five Points location, a pedestrian mall on Evans Street, a loop thoroughfare street around the central business district, adequate parking and other improvements.

The CBD program is part of a total development program now going on locally, which has included the Shore Drive and Newtown projects, low rent housing and the development of a major thoroughfare system by the State High Way Commission on state maintained streets.

All the projects are going to mean great improvements for Greenville. Certainly the CBD project is a key one and it is encouraging to see it moving along.

There Are Still Some Who Remain Opposed

East Carolina University forces have followed the governor's advice and they are doing what he feels is best for the state in agreeing to a one year medical program, rather than the two year school of medicine.

The board of trustees acting after receiving a thoughtful letter from the governor expressing his wishes.

Little difficulty is anticipated in guiding the bill through the Legislature with the governor's blessings.

There is one bit of advice in the letter that should be remembered, however. There are some who are not convinced that any program of medical education should be placed at East Carolina, Gov. Scott warned.

These forces might very well attempt to add unduly restricting amendments to the medical bill. This should be watched very carefully and every amendment offered should be scrutinized for any possible crippling effect.

Muskie Clears California Air

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The fact that Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, after six months of playing political country boy from Down East, is finally unpublicized visit to California of his chief missionary: John F. (Jack) English.

English, the skilled Democratic national committeeman from New York who had signed on fulltime for Muskie, brought home no Western scalps. Indeed, his experience there reiterated how treacherous it is for an outsider to deal with the factional vendettas of California's madcap Democratic party. But English's mission did measurably improve Muskie's position with politicians, very low until then, in the nation's most important primary election state.

That was another measure of the incalculable change Jack English had made since coming on board April 13. Until then, the Muskie campaign seemed more interested in Vietnam and the environment than wooing key party leaders. Muskie is no party politician and neither are his chief aides. The cool New England shoulder given state party leaders was hurting Muskie badly.

Remarkably enough, Muskie's high rating in the polls weathered those six months of non-stop blundering. Now, with English providing professional guidance, Muskie may be on the upswing.

Muskie's changed operation in California was directed toward 34-year-old Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti. Fiercely ambitious and the coming force in California Democratic politics, his endorsement will be most valuable in the 1972 primary. Until recently, he has been cool toward Muskie, partly because he felt Muskie's California campaign had been preempted by Congressman Thomas Rees and National Committeeman Stephen Reinhardt (a Yale Law School class mate of Berl Bernhard, Muskie's campaign chief-of-staff).

Moretti brought this out when English came to California two weeks ago. The Speaker made clear he would take absolutely no part in a Muskie campaign if either Tom Rees or Steve Reinhardt were in charge. English replied just as clearly that if Bob Moretti endorsed Muskie, "Bob Moretti would run the California campaign. That brought no instant endorsement but did produce a warmer climate.

Similarly, English thawed the icy relationship between Muskie and California's most prodigious fund-raiser: millionaire Los Angeles lawyer Eugene Wyman. Bernhard, an exceptional Washington lawyer but an amateur politician, had made sure all year that Muskie studiously snubbed Wyman. Bernhard was following advice from Jess Unruh. Strength For Today

A BETTER WORLD?

Three men in the past one hundred years have, by their philosophies, changed the life of the world to an almost unbelievable degree.

The first of these men was Darwin. He changed human thinking with reference to creation, the development of the human species and the development also of the world in which man lives. Some of Darwin's theories are pretty widely accepted. Others are widely rejected. There are a lot of missing links. Evolution is still a theory. We should remember that it is a theory and not insist that it is a proved fact.

The second man who has turned the world upside down is Karl Marx. He has given us a whole new theory of the relation of man to the processes of production. He is the father of communism and socialism. He is the enemy of free enterprise. If Marx finally wins out, we will have a new world, but few of us believe that we will have a better world.

The third person who has changed human thinking is Freud. He has justified sex obsession and with theories which generally make the head swim has found what he considers adequate answers to why people behave as they do. As the result of all this he has given us new moral standards—and many do not think very highly of these standards.

Thus we live in a new world so far as thought is concerned. But do we live in a better world?

Mass Arrest Guidelines

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell has urged all police in the country to copy the Capital's tactics in handling May Day demonstrators last week. The decisive opposition to mob force used by Washington police, Mr. Mitchell told police chiefs in California, is an example for the rest of the nation.

No one can argue with that. But Mr. Mitchell did not spell out the guidelines that police would have to abide by in following the successful tactics used in Washington. Perhaps we can be of help: Q—How do you put down a mass demonstration of people who threaten to close down a town?

A—Arrest everyone with long hair and peace symbols in a congested area.

Q—Do you write out an arrest slip?

A—No, this slows down the arresting process and permits too many people to get away.

Q—What about people's constitutional rights?

A—The constitutional rights of a citizen may be abrogated if they interfere with another citizen's right to get to work.

Q—Suppose, during a police sweep, innocent people are arrested as well as guilty people?

A—There are no innocent people when the police made a sweep through a congested area. If they were innocent they wouldn't be there.

Q—When making a sweep arrest, how do you choose between two people if you can only grab one?

A—Always arrest the person with a beard first. You can assume during a mass demonstration that people with beards are more guilty than people without beards.

Q—What about women?

A—Women who don't wear bras are more guilty than women who wear bras.

ART BUCHWALD

Another guideline is pants. Girls who wear pants are troublemakers.

Q—Suppose a policeman does not actually see a crime committed during a demonstration?

A—He is still obligated to arrest a certain number of people. Although citizens are not committing a crime at the moment, they could commit one later, and it's safer for society to have them locked up.

Q—Since they all seem to dress alike, how do you distinguish between young people who are not committing a crime and those who are?

A—You don't. All young people are guilty of doing something, and besides, most of them are against the war.

Q—Once you make an arrest, what do you do with the prisoners?

A—You take them to the nearest ball park or coliseum and keep them there.

Q—How long?

A—As long as you can. The (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Don't Extend It

(The Raleigh Times)

This legislature should think a long, long time before it does anything about authorizing the use of absentee ballots in the primaries. Instead of taking that backward step, the Assembly would do well to tighten up on use of the absentee in the general elections and, if possible, abolish its use then.

Some legislators have announced a bipartisan move toward permitting use of absentees in primaries because of the new law moving primary voting day from Saturday to Tuesday. The theory is that so many more people are away from home on Tuesdays than on Saturdays, and that those people will lose their franchise if they can't vote absentee in the primaries.

Undoubtedly some will. But, you'd be surprised how easily a man who really wants to vote can arrange to be home on voting day.

Senator Hargrove Bowles of Guilford, who is an unannounced candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial, is one of those seeking to extend absentees to the primaries because they were so dreadfully misused in so many Democratic primaries. But, he added "today I am convinced that we can control our election machinery so as to prevent misuses."

Senator Bowles is optimistic, unduly so. He has only to look at the sorry record which crops up after each general election in charges of misuse of absentee ballots in a number of counties. It is a custom for Republicans to charge that Democratic election officials have used absentees to steal elections from Republicans.

Until North Carolina has indeed built up years of scandal-free handling of absentees in general elections, there should be no thought of bringing them back into the primaries. In fact, the thought should be about abolishing them in the general elections, too.

Pointing To Devaluated Dollar

By ELMER ROESSNER While the United States appears to be weathering the attack on the dollar, sooner or later the dollar will be devaluated.

Effect on Inflation Those are the causes of inflation. The current effects

That's because inflation is continuing.

It is continuing because the government is continually increasing the money supply. It has been increased at a rate of more than 10 per cent a year in the first quarter. This is reminiscent, though at a slower rate, of the German inflation after World War I when the presses ran day and night printing paper marks until it cost thousands of marks to mail a letter and millions to buy a loaf of pumpernickel.

In addition, the government is adding to inflation in other ways. This weekend it is increasing postal rates. Legislation pending in Congress and sure to pass will increase the minimum wage from $1.60 to $2 an hour, and boost Social Security payments.

Effect on Inflation Those are the causes of inflation. The current effects of inflation, sometimes confused with causes, include these: Steel prices are rising and will rise again when the new contract with the United Steelworkers is signed, with or without a strike. This week's nudge upward was 6.25 per cent rise in stainless steel.

The wholesale price index rose 0.5 per cent in April, the largest rise since October. The rise in copper prices was the largest factor. Gasoline prices have been rising and will probably escalate again when summer touring starts.

Although aluminum production is in excess of demand, prices are likely to rise because of higher wages and because profits fell in the first quarter.

Potatoes Aren't Cheaper While the rate of rise in the cost of living had moderated a bit, the consumer price index has gone up every month this year and is likely to keep on rising.

A number of chemicals have risen in price and more will follow. Labor wage demands are becoming larger and larger. Dr. Rudolph Oswald economist for the AFL-CIO, had declared that labor needs a rise of 9 per cent, 6 per cent for the rise in the cost of living and 3 per cent for

Finest Friend Around

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the best companion of all. Unlike a cat, it does not have to be fed and pampered. Unlike a dog, it does not bark or have to be taken for a walk at the end of a leash.

Unlike another human being, it does not go away from you or lie down and die just when you need it most.

No, memory is the finest possible companion. It rarely intrudes, asks nothing for itself, and willingly extends its solace at any hour and silently holds out a helpful arm to tide one through any trouble.

You've got a good mixture of memories yourself if you can look back and remember when—

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, May 17, the 137th day of 1971. There are 228 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1964, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled racial segregation in public schools is unconstitutional.

On this date: In 1666, Congregationalists from Connecticut founded Newark, N.J.

In 1792, the New York Stock Exchange was founded.

In 1803, the first patent for a reaper was granted to Richard French and John Hawkins of New Jersey.

In 1875, the first Kentucky Derby was run at Louisville, Ky.

In 1940, in World War II, the Nazis occupied Brussels, Belgium's capital.

In 1957, Egypt barred Israeli ships from the Suez Canal.

Ten years ago: South Korea's Premier John M. Chang resigned after a revolt by the armed forces.

Five years ago: Rumania was reported pressing the Soviets for veto power over Russian nuclear weapons based on Rumanian soil.

One year ago: The U.S. commander in Cambodia reported part of the field headquarters of the Communist command had been captured.

There have been recent increases far in excess of that figure. This week a union struck a New York restaurant closing it down and demanding a 100 per cent increase over the next three years.

Consumer buying which had been showing signs of picking up, slowed its rate of gain in April, according to preliminary estimates by the Department of Commerce. The increase was about one-half of one per cent, about the rate of price increases.

The dollar, in terms of its 1938 purchasing power, is now worth only 35 cents and less than 72 cents in 1957-59 terms. If it sinks considerably more, the U.S. can declare it worth less in terms of foreign currencies. However, that may not be necessary. Foreign governments can do it for us.

Dinner Meet For Society

The final meeting of the spring season of the Pitt County Historical Society will be held Thursday in the Red Room of the Greenville Moose Lodge at 6:30 p.m.

Following the dinner, a talk on manuscripts in Pitt County History will be delivered by Professor Don Lennon, an assistant professor of history at East Carolina University and director of the manuscript collection at the University. His talk will include a discussion of some of the recent manuscript acquisitions to the University's collection.

Officers for the new year will be elected at this meeting, according to J. H. Rose, president. Dinner reservations by members should be made immediately to Mrs. Pattie Wooten, secretary.

Social Security Increase Mapped

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An additional increase in general Social Security benefits, effective next year, will be vigorously pushed in Congress, despite the close failure of the first effort in a House committee vote.

The basic benefit for retired persons, their widows and dependents and the disabled was raised 15 per cent in 1970 and an additional 10 per cent this year. But proponents of an increase say the benefits still are not keeping pace with the inflationary increase in the cost of living.

The House Ways and Means Committee, putting together its big welfare-Social Security measure, included provisions meaning larger benefits for widows and a number of special categories of recipients. But it turned down three proposals for raising the basic benefit.

A move by Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., for a 50 per cent increase, went down without a recorded vote. A proposed 7 per cent increase was defeated 13-to-11 and a 5 per cent increase 13-to-12.

In each case several Southern Democrats joined the Republican minority to defeat the increase. Significantly, however, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., voted for both the smaller raises.

If past practice is followed, the House will consider the bill under a rule permitting no amendments. So the next opportunity will come in the Senate, which may not consider the measure until late this year, or even in 1972.

But a proposal for an increase is certain to be made in the Senate, sources said, and is likely to carry sending the final decision to a conference committee.

The later the vote on a Social Security increase comes, supporters said, the better are the chances for enactment, especially in an election year.

The bill now automatically ingress decides otherwise, it also prevents such an increase from taking effect in a year following another legislative increase comes into effect.

unsuccessful Democratic candidate for governor and Wyma's blood enemy.

On his trip to California, however, English visited Wyman and asked his support. Wyman replied it was much too late, that he was irrevocably committed to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. But the congenial visit warmed up Wyman. So did a telephone call to Wyman from Muskie when he went to California a week later.

This won't get Wyman or his moneybag friends to help Muskie as long as Humphrey has any chance. But it does cut down the threat that vital Southern California money would be denied Muskie as nominee—a very real threat while Muskie was snubbing anybody fingered by Unruh.

Muskie still has mechanical problems in California, as elsewhere. Assembly Majority Leader Walter Karabian, a potential Muskie man, was contacted too late to see the Senator last week. A Muskie cocktail party for money men was held in the home of fund-raiser Manning Post, a key Unruh lieutenant; therefore, the Wyman clique boycotted the party.

But such mistakes should not obscure that fact that Muskie is finally playing politics, a result directly traceable to English. For example, when Richard J. Daley was reelected mayor of Chicago, he received a congratulatory telephone call from Muskie. Predictably, before English, so routine a political gesture would have gone undone.

Added to this new attention to politics and Muskie's continuing allure as the nation's most confidence-inspiring candidate toward the left, which will never support him anyway. That advice is being give by top aides. If Muskie accepts, the widespread Washington burials of candidate Muskie may be proved grossly premature.

bleeding hearts and civil libertarians will want you to charge them with a crime as soon as possible. But the Justice Department will back you in keeping them locked up.

Q—Isn't the Justice Department supposed to protect people's constitutional rights?

A—No. The only function of the Justice Department is to see that traffic keeps moving.

Q—Suppose a judge demands that the arrest of an individual be made according to the law?

A—That is not the problem of the police. That is between the judge and the person arrested.

Q—If innocent people can be arrested during a mass demonstration when they were doing nothing, why can't they be arrested for doing nothing when there isn't a mass demonstration?

A—That's a good question, and we hope, with the backing of the attorney general, we will be able to make such arrests in the future. We know now that it's impossible to have law and order if the police are going to have to abide by the law.

of a lot of whining about how he had wrecked her diet.

Unless an unusually interesting dogfight got started outside in the street, most people in America began yawning about 9:30 p.m.

In many small towns the local furniture dealer also sold coffins, discreetly kept in a separate small room at the back of the store.

A pedestrian had to look both ways before crossing any street—a habit the smart one still keep.

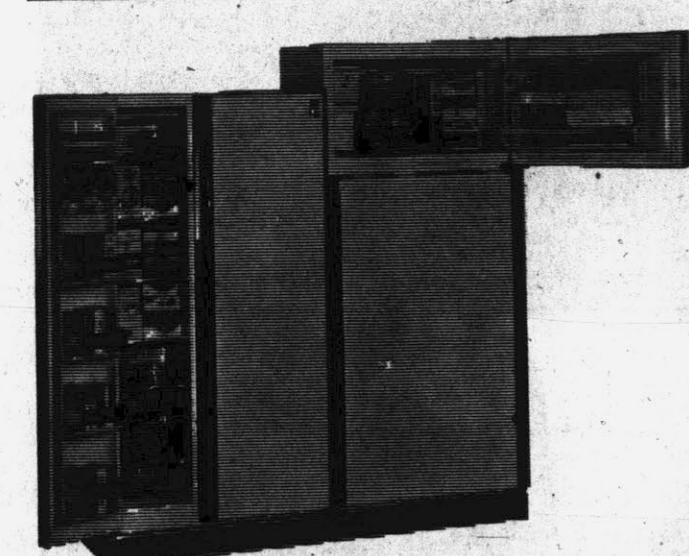

Even some doctors felt that if you ate fish and drank milk at the same meal you ran a grave risk of being poisoned.

Folks going out for an evening hated to lock their doors for fear a neighbor would feel hurt if he ran over to borrow something and found himself unable to get in.

Practically everybody was optimistic about the future and felt sure the world was bound to get better.

Those were the days—remember?

Six hundred and fifty tornadoes struck the United States in 1970, killing 73 persons. The totals show a slight increase over the previous year when 604 of the storms claimed 66 lives.

POPULATION PROGRAMS

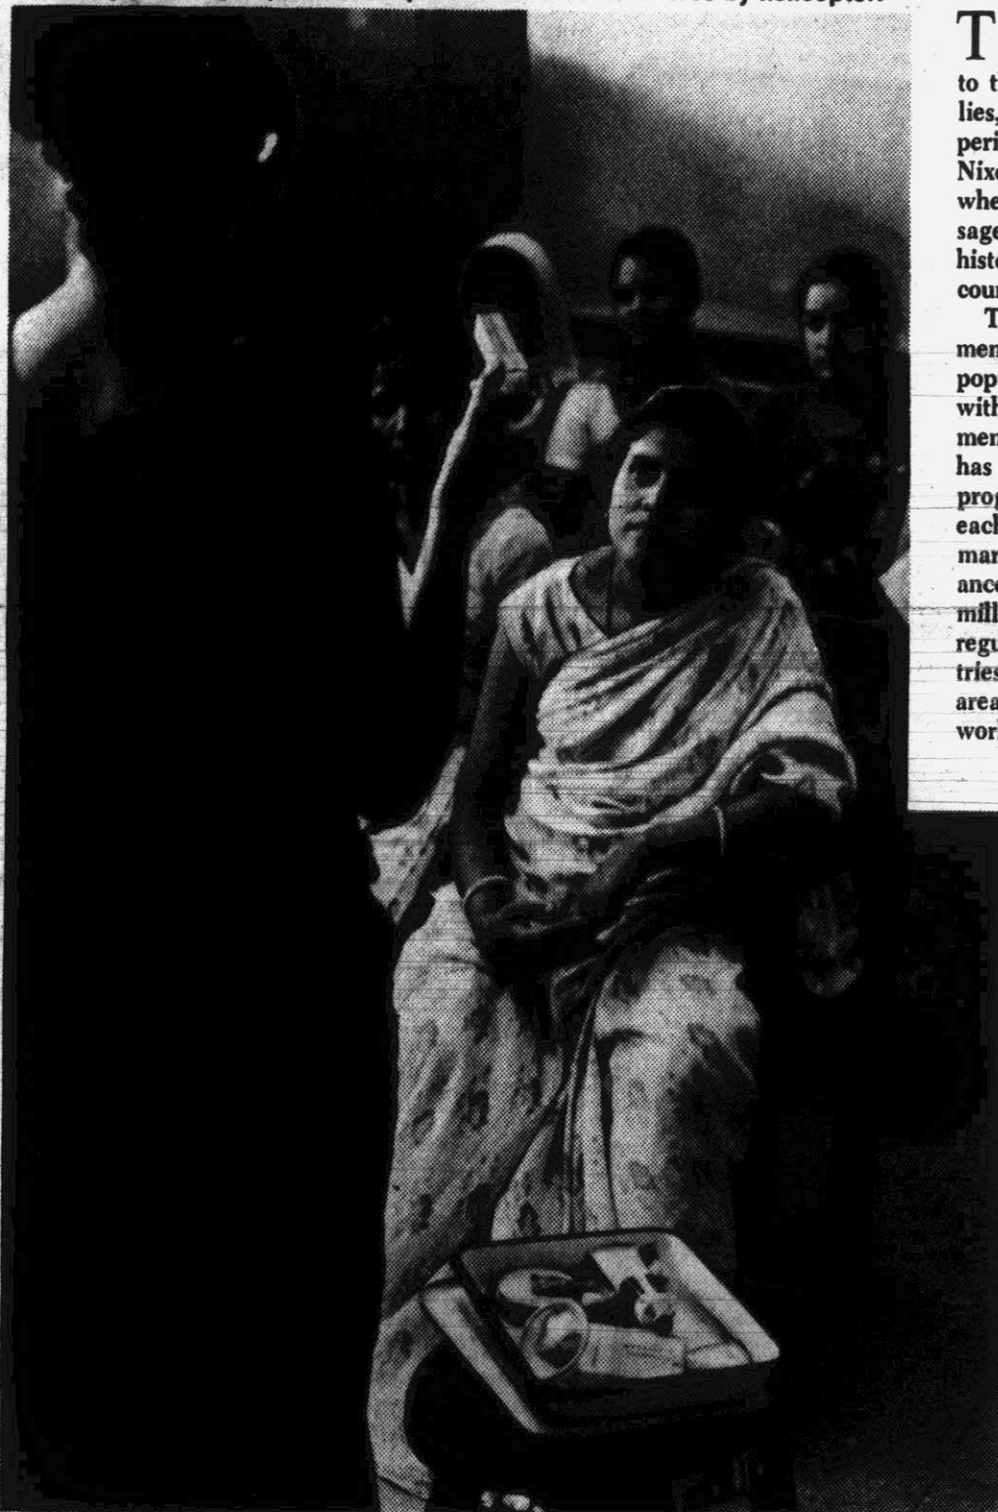

Excited children in mountain village in Nepal welcome A.I.D. advisor and family planning expert Dr. Ralph Ten Have as he arrives by helicopter.

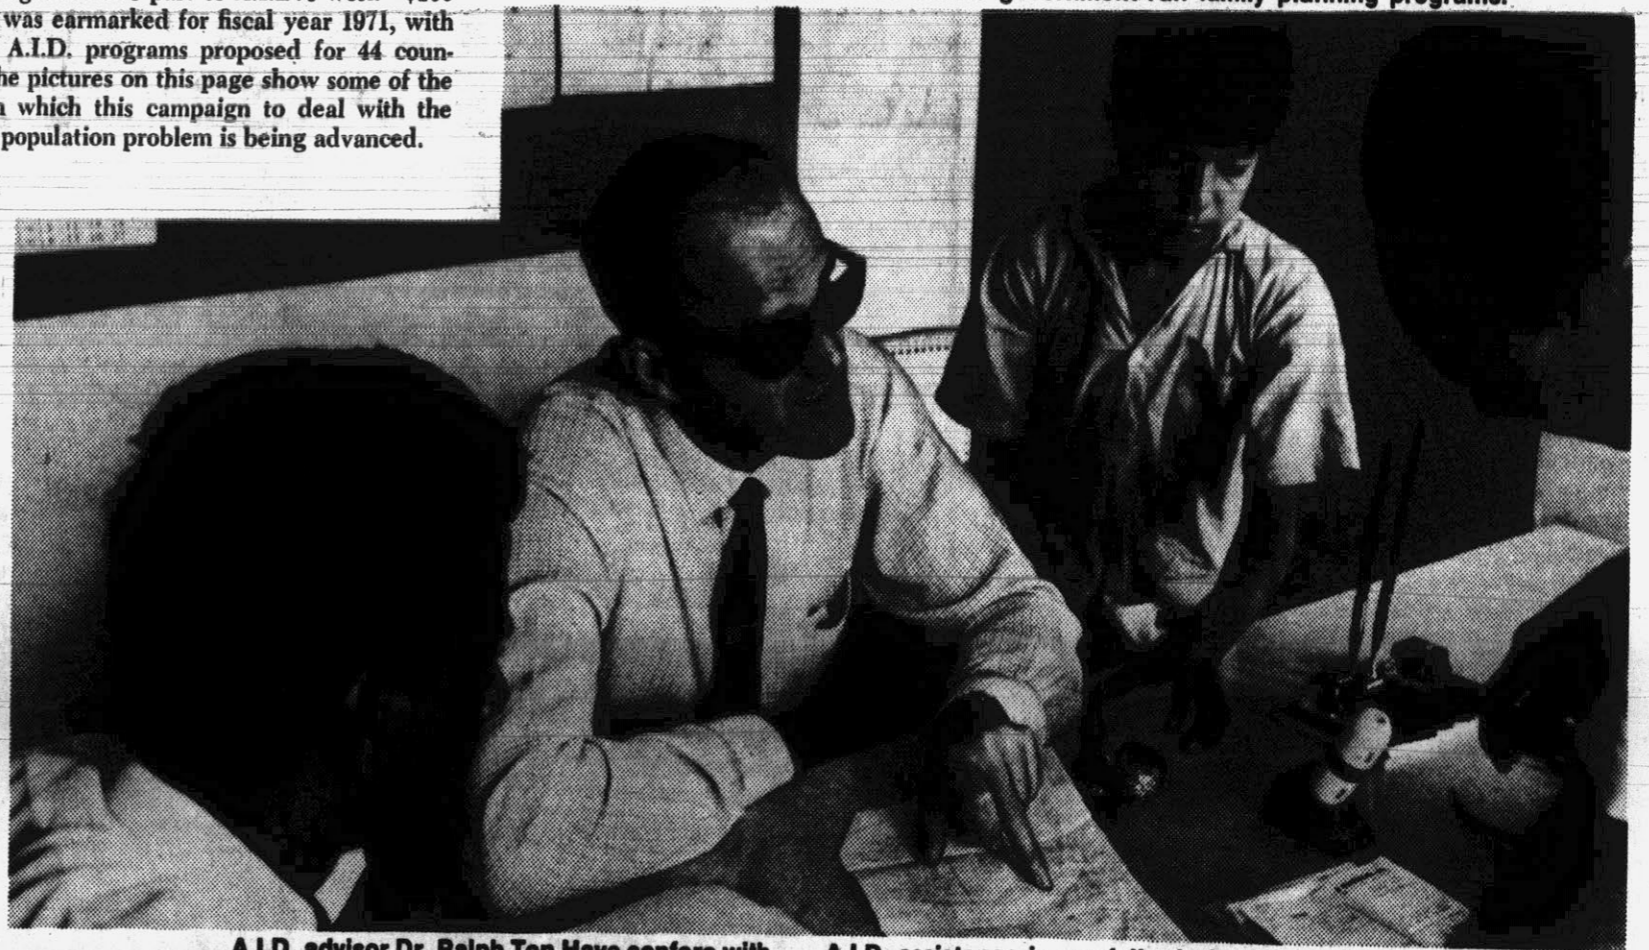

Population pressures threaten the health and welfare of millions of individuals. In Pakistan A.I.D. assists government-run family planning programs.

There's a growing world awareness that the present "population explosion" is destructive to the well-being of millions of individual families, as well as threatening to the peace and prosperity of the whole world community. President Nixon gave the issue special attention in 1969 when he sent to the Congress a Presidential Message on the population problem—the first in U.S. history. He called it "a world problem which no country can ignore."

The U.S. Agency for International Development (A.I.D.) gives first priority to assistance to population and family planning programs—along with aid to food production—as essential elements in economic and social development. And it has primary responsibility for U.S. aid to such programs in the developing countries. During each of the past four years, Congress has earmarked increased funds within the Foreign Assistance budget for this part of A.I.D.'s work—$100 million was earmarked for fiscal year 1971, with regular A.I.D. programs proposed for 44 countries. The pictures on this page show some of the areas in which this campaign to deal with the world's population problem is being advanced.

Small Businessman Has Host Of Woes

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Talton Sanders Jr. is a small businessman with big debts and a lot of other problems.

The 34-year-old furniture and appliance store owner would like to be in Washington this week to attend various meetings connected with National Small Business Week.

But, like a lot of others of his kind across the country, he'll have to stay home and tend the store.

You might find him somewhere between the baby bed and the used refrigerator in his cramped store in west Charlotte, working on account books that are expected to reflect a profit of about $1,800 for 1970.

Or he might be trying to outfox the burglars who have hit his place nine times in the last eight years, or figuring out how he'll come up with $2,000 to pay for the furniture he has in his store.

He doesn't have cash for purchases, so he buys on a consignment basis, which costs him more. Consignment means a store owner pays the distributor when the customer buys the furniture.

Then, there's the $4,000 he still owes the Small Business Administration on an $8,000 loan that was to be paid off in 1968, and the $300 he still owes on an $800 bank loan.

Sanders can't afford much hired help, he says, at the North Carolina minimum wage of $1.25 per hour. Some small-business men pay the federal minimum wage of $1.65.

Most small-businessmen labor, too, under what they term skyrocketing costs of business insurance, but Sanders can for-

Wants More Med Schools

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Gov. Jimmy Carter called for the expansion of medical school facilities throughout the Southeast during an interview following his election as chairman of the Southern Regional Education Board.

Carter said, however, that he favors a "trend toward students paying the full cost of their education through long term loans," especially in programs, such as medical training, which are costly to the public.

Carter, who succeeded Gov. Bob Scott of North Carolina as SREB chairman, said he hopes the SREB will promote expansion of medical school facilities throughout the region during his term as chairman.

He added he hopes the board will encourage research to determine which functions medically-trained personnel without doctoral degrees can serve to meet the demands for improved medical care.

Carter also expressed preference for designing graduate courses of study to more directly combat social ills.

The SREB is composed of the governors of 14 Southern states, plus two legislators and two educators from each of the states. Carter officially begins his duties as chairman in September.

get about that. An insurance company cut him off after the first two break-ins shortly after he went into business in 1962.

He has found that once insurance has been canceled, many small-businessmen might as well forget about finding some elsewhere. The word gets around if a store is popular with the night people.

The $8,000 SBA loan came after his insurance had been cut off and burglars had emptied his store, leaving only a single television set in the middle of the floor.

To help make ends meet, Sanders since 1962 has on two occasions gone to work on local trucking docks at night for several months, running his store in the daytime.

He would try to get some sleep in a big chair in the store the next day. Then, after locking up, and before heading for the trucking docks, Sanders said he would "knock on doors" for several hours each evening, recruiting customers for his store.

The Charlotte office of the SBA says Sanders' failure to succeed in business comes "from things beyond his control."

Sanders was thinking about that one steamy, summer night in 1966, he said, when he seriously contemplated suicide.

Sanders discusses that reluctantly. His voice almost becomes a whisper when he's asked to recall details of that night.

He was sitting in the den of his home all through night, "just sitting there thinking how the bills kept piling up and there was no money to pay them.

"I thinking about suicide, about just jumping out of all of it, maybe off the Catawba River Bridge. Maybe shoot myself."

At 4 a.m. the telephone rang. It was his mother, calling from home in Chester, S.C., 50 miles away. To this day he doesn't know why his mother picked that particular night to telephone him at such an odd hour.

"She asked me how things were going," Sanders said. "I tried to cover it all up and say everything was fine, just fine, but somehow she knew something was wrong."

"She said, 'Now, Junior' she always called me junior — 'you know something's bothering you.' I finally broke up and told her what I had been thinking of doing."

His parents helped with a $500 loan, which was enough to give him hope, he said.

Sanders, father of six, didn't want to go back to the days of living in the cotton producing area of South Carolina or to the door-to-door sales job he nailed down after coming to Charlotte.

Neither does he want to see another night of desperation such as the one when he sat up alone in the darkness. The pressures are still there, but he thinks he can make a go of it, even though he is still in debt and has little chance of borrowing from a bank.

"I'm living on hope that business will get better, just trying to survive," Sanders said.

Sure, the federal government helped him through the SBA loan, he said, but doesn't the government help big businesses more?

"I can't help but think that the federal government with all its money, could do something more to help us small-business men survive."

ECU Med School Debated By Doctors

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Physicians from eastern North Carolina crossed scapels with physicians from the Piedmont Sunday over the question of a proposed two-year medical school for East Carolina University.

Doctors from eastern counties introduced a resolution in the House of Delegates of the North Carolina Medical Society, holding its 117th annual session here, backing the proposed two-year school.

Doctors from the Piedmont introduced a resolution stating that funds should be given first to the state's three other medical schools, UNC at Chapel Hill, Duke, and Bowman Gray.

The outgoing president of the society suggested that the physicians cut around that particular problem and concentrate on other ills that are facing them.

"This Society is already on record as favoring the liberal use of state money to educate doctors within the state, both in public and private institutions," said Dr. Louis Shaffner of Winston-Salem.

"Furthermore, we have encouraged the existing schools to increase their enrollment of North Carolina students and to expose them to training for the rendering of medical care in community settings," he said.

Therefore, he said, "We can serve no useful purpose by making any new public statement of policy..."

The cross-resolutions concerning the East Carolina University medical school will be taken up by a reference committee this afternoon and will be reported back to the House of Delegates for action Tuesday.

One Injured In Traffic Mishap

One person was reported injured in a Saturday night mishap at the intersection of Second and Cotanche Streets.

Police reported cars driven by Cleveland O. Hardison, 19 of Plymouth and Robert Floyd Thompson, 63, of Harding St. collided about 9 p.m., causing an estimated $1,600 damage to the Hardison car and about $700 damage to the Thompson auto.

A passenger in the Hardison car, according to officers, was reported injured.

Hardison was charged with failing to stop for a stop sign.

Honored By Parishioners

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Payne and their children were honored by members of Oakmont Baptist Church at a fellowship dinner Wednesday night.

Payne, helpful in the organization of the relatively new church, has served for the past seven years as its first minister.

Following the fellowship meal, Joe DeLoach presided over a program of appreciation. Citations for Payne's contributions as pastor, civic leader, neighbor, friend, and family man were given. Thanks were expressed also to his family for their supportive role.

A stereo music center and a certificate for a bedroom suit to be selected by the Paynes were presented to them.

Participating in the program were Don Parrott, Tom Reece, Dr. Milam Johnson, Baxter Powell and Glenn Fisher. Mrs. E. R. Carraway was overall chairman of the dinner.

The Oakmont congregation moved from their original meeting place in the Rawl Building on the ECU campus to the larger Old Austin Auditorium and then into the first units of their new building on Red Banks Road under the ministry of Payne. The colonial structure stands on the more than seven-acre lot.

Institute Prepares Small Business Aid

The East Carolina University Regional Development Institute is initiating a unique prototype program of aiding the potential small businessman in establishing a business. Two pilot projects will be undertaken, one in Greenville and the other in Fayetteville.

When implemented, the program will aid the small businessman in developing ideas for new business, securing financing, offering follow-up advisory counseling, and an opportunity for a small business educational program.

Thomas W. Willis, director of the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute said that Fayetteville and Greenville were chosen because of the great interest shown by the respective municipal governments and the fact that both cities had educational facilities which could offer the desired educational programs.

Funds for the projects will come from a grant to the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute by the Economic Development Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The program will be developed over a six weeks period—May 17 to June 30. Two consultants will be employed by the Regional Development Institute. Thomas B. Bacote will work in Fayetteville and Thomas J. Payne will develop the program in Greenville. R. T. Brinn of the Institute staff will coordinate both programs.

The project consists of each consultant establishing two local committees. One committee of local volunteer people with financial expertise will screen business ideas, aid in preparing loan papers and in locating sources of funds needed by the businessman. The other committee of successful businessmen will be available to the new businessman in an "on the spot" advisory capacity in order to avoid the managerial pitfalls which usually cause the small businesses to fail.

In addition, the project will develop an educational program through the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education and Fayetteville State University. This educational program will offer the new businessman the opportunity of attending seminar type classes in which problems and techniques can be discussed.

The consultants will also develop manuals for the committee members to use.

Willis and municipal officials are highly enthusiastic that the program will work and will result not only in many new businesses being opened, but also will aid existing small businesses in enlarging.

rather than a Spec. 4. So he was charged for another $545.

The Army said Tuesday that Haley's debt at that point amounted to $5,813.27. The amount he had paid back under the original mixup, was credited on his debt, leaving him owing $3,724.99.

This he began paying back in February. At about $365 a month it would take him at least 10 months to clear the books, and he can only make four payments before his discharge. People in his hometown are helping out with a collection in his behalf and there is a chance the military may forgive some of the money.

The Army can't keep him beyond his June 3 discharge since he's accused of no wrongdoing. But though he comes home soon from Vietnam, his woes with the military apparently are far from over.

Double Win Sunday For Greenville

—SPEED — Greenville's semi-pro baseball team captured its first victories yesterday sweeping a doubleheader from Speed. Former N.C. State hurler Mike Caldwell was the losing pitcher in Greenville's 3-1 opening win. The locals took the second game, 7-3.

Greenville tagged Caldwell for six hits in the opener to claim the win. They pushed over two runs in the first inning. Ronald Vincent singled and Kent Leggett got a hit. Both advanced on an error on the play and scored on Grant Jarman's single.

Speed came up with a run in the third. J. Jackson singled to left and scored on a hit by J. House.

Greenville picked up its other run in the seventh. Frank Ferree singled to center and was sacrificed to second. He scored on Leggett's double.

In the second game, Greenville moved ahead in the second. Jarman tripled and scored on a fielder's choice by Dell Godwin.

In the third, Greenville got all it needed scoring four more runs. Leggett led off with a single to center and Charles Meeks advanced him with a sacrifice. Jarman walked and Ken Beaman reached on an infield hit. Lee Galt singled to center to score Leggett and Jarman, and Beaman and Galt both scored on errors, making it 5-0.

Speed came back with two in the third, but Greenville added one in the fourth, then got another in the fifth. Speed scored its final run in the sixth.

CHAMPION
SALEM, Va. (AP) — Towson State, led by Charles Fowlkes and Frank Parry, has succeeded Mount St. Mary's as track and field champion of the Mason-Dixon Conference.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Marty Liquori beat Jim Ryun in their super mile Sunday by challenging the world record holder in his specialty—an unbeatable finishing kick.

The one thing Liquori feared in preparing for the race was that Ryun would outkick him in the stretch in the feature event of the Martin Luther King Games. He thought Ryun was stronger and that if the race was close, nobody could beat the former Kansas star in the final 200 yards.

Well, Ryun was close in the stretch. He was a step behind Liquori with 200 yards to go. Surprise! Liquori never let him gain an inch and won by a step in 3:54.6, the fastest mile ever recorded in the eastern United States.

"We were both dead tired at the end," Liquori said after his greatest victory. "But I was lucky to hang on. I expected to have him flying by," he observed.

Terps Win 16 In A Row

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The University of Maryland used its strength in field events to edge past South Carolina and win its 16th consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference outdoor track and field championship here over the weekend.

Pouring rain slowed times and shortened distances well below any records, but the Terps passed the host Gamecocks in the last hours, 71-66.

Maryland took 16 points in the pole vault, 11 in javelin, eight in high jump and eight in shot put to outclass the opposition in the field events.

It was a miserable night for track Saturday as drizzle fell slowly at first but by the night's end the rain was falling in a steady downpour.

Duke Freshman Bob Wheeler, who won both the mile and the 880-yard run was the unanimous choice for the conference's outstanding athlete.

End rerun

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Denny McLain and Joe Coleman have taken turns putting one over on their old friends with a lot of help from their new friends.

Coleman, traded from Washington to Detroit last fall in the celebrated McLain deal, pitched against the Senators for the first time Sunday—and beat them 5-4 on Mickey Stanley's second home run of the game after squandering a four-run lead.

Last Friday night, McLain made his first start against the Tigers—and blew a 2-0 advantage in the ninth inning before winning 3-2 on Paul Casanova's sacrifice fly.

In other American League games, Minnesota defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-2; Milwaukee topped California 6-2 and Oakland divided a doubleheader with Kansas City, bowing 10-4 after a 4-2 first-game victory. Rain washed out the Baltimore-Boston game and the Cleveland-New York Yankees doubleheader.

In National League play, Pittsburgh downed the New York Mets, 4-2; Los Angeles throttled San Francisco 9-6; Montreal drubbed Cincinnati 9-3; Houston pounded St. Louis 12-4; Philadelphia nipped Atlanta 4-3 and the Chicago Cubs outscored San Diego 9-8 in a 10-inning doubleheader opener.

The second game at Chicago was suspended because of darkness after six innings with the Cubs leading 6-3.

Second-inning homers by Stanley and Norm Cash helped stake Coleman to a 4-0 lead, but big Frank Howard lashed a homer and run-scoring single as the Senators fought back to tie.

Coleman, who suffered a fractured skull when he was hit by a line drive in a March 27 exhibition game, was on the ropes after Howard's fifth inning single knotted it.

But Tigers Manager Billy Martin stuck with the 24-year-old right-hander and he responded by tossing one-hit ball the rest of the way—while Stanley broke the deadlock with a leadoff homer off reliever Denny Riddleberger in the eighth.

Cesar Tovar scored the deciding run on a sixth inning balk by Chicago reliever Vincente Romo as the Twins came from behind to trim the White Sox.

Minnesota tied the game 2-2 in the sixth on doubles by George Mitterwald and pinch hitter Charlie Manuel, an error by pitcher Tom Badley on Tovar's sacrifice bunt and a single by Rich Reese.

Romo then came out of the Chicago bullpen, walked Harmon Killebrew on four pitches and was charged with a balk when he slipped off the mound on a 2-0 pitch to Jim Holt, enabling Tovar to score.

The Twins drew away on Leo Cardenas' seventh inning homer and a two-run double by Mitterwald in the eighth.

Ellie Rodriguez and Ted Kubiak smacked their first home runs of the season and Tommy Harper broke out of a prolonged slump with a triple, double and two singles, leading Milwaukee past the Angels. Skip Lockwood squared his pitching record at 3-3 with eight-inning relief help from Ken Sanders.

In the first game at Kansas City, the A's capitalized on an error by shortstop Fred Patek, who failed to touch second base on a one-out force play, to snap a seventh-inning tie on run-scoring singles by Bert Campaneris and Reggie Jackson.

John "Blue Moon" Odom, making his first start of the season after recovering from winter elbow surgery, pitched six strong innings for Oakland in the nightcap before going out for a pinchhitter.

But the Royals overcame a 4-2 deficit in the seventh with a four-run uprising keyed by Bobby Knopp's two-run pinch single and then punched over four more runs in the eighth to wrap it up.

Paul Schaaf led the Kansas City attack with a single, a run-producing double and a two-run homer.

Marty Robbins Eyes 600-Miler

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Marty Robbins, who has delighted country and western music fans with his singing, will try to capture a new set of fans by entering the World 600 stock car race.

Robbins, 45, will drive a Dodge owned and prepared by veteran driver Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., for a share in the $199,000 prize money offered in the NASCAR-sanctioned race.

The singer will be making his third run at Charlotte in the May 30 race. But this will be his first try at a 600-miler.

Southern Conf. Plans Showdown

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Southern Conference officials are expected to meet sometime early this week to decide a time and place for the showdown on the league's baseball championship.

Furman and The Citadel split a doubleheader Sunday, leaving the two teams tied for the conference lead at the end of regular season play.

Furman defeated the Cadets in the first game, 14-2, but The Citadel won the second game, 5-2.

The conference title must now be settled with a best two-of-three playoff series.

The roster of the Washington Senators this spring listed 16 pitchers who had achieved a total of 56 major league victories last season.

Catchers Potential Managers?

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
Catchers should make the best managers, but do they?
On this subject you will hear arguments, pro and con, that can stretch into the night.
It is a known fact that the catcher is the baseball team's quarterback, that he calls each pitch thrown by the pitcher (provided the manager permits)

Fletcher Adds Another Victory

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C. (AP) — Arman Fletcher, who won the Elks amateur golf tournament in 1967, 1968 and 1970, has added 1971 to his crown of victories.
Fletcher, from Roanoke, Va., shot a one over par 72 Saturday to come up the winner in the 10th annual national invitational tournament. His final score gave him a 54-hole total of 220.
Closest to Fletcher among the runners-up was C. Lowery of Charleston, W. Va. He shot a par 71 over the 6,426-yard Southern Pines Country Club course to enter a tourney total of 226 and get second place.
Third was Kenneth Boward of South Charleston, W. Va., with 227, followed by Bill Gray, High Point, N.C., with 232.
The tournament, which finished in a drizzle turning to steady rain, drew 512 players from 26 states.

and that he's in the best position to see that his infielders and outfielders are playing in the most logical position for the man at bat.
Yogi Berra was a pretty good quarterback while catching. We can't recall a New York Yankee outfielder ever making a spectacular catch in a World Series game while Yogi was the catcher. And Yogi caught a record 63 games in a record 12 Series. Not only did Yogi wave fielders into position but he also shook his mitt when he thought a Yankee pitcher was losing his stuff. It was his private signal to Casey Stengel.
And Berra knew how to get to the umpire without putting on a Leo Durocher act. And after all, Berra was perfect as a manager, despite being dropped by the Yankees. He won an American League pennant in 1964, his only managing year. And the Yankees haven't won since.
In the last six years no full-fledged ex-catcher has led his team to a pennant. Gil Hodges managed the Mets to the 1969 National League flag, plus a stunning upset victory over Baltimore in the World Series, but Gil was a Brooklyn Dodger catcher only as a 1947 rookie. He made his mark as a first baseman.
Ralph Houk won three Yankee pennants in a row but in those years (1961-63) he had such most valuable players as Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Elie Howard to drive in runs. Houk caught only 91 games in the bigs but he learned much in the bullpen and on the bench under Casey Stengel.
No ex-catcher in the NL has won a pennant since 1938, the year Gabby Hartnett led the Chicago Cubs.

time in the American Association; and Clyde McCullough (Winnipeg), Darrell Johnson (Louisville) and Mike Roarke (Toledo) in the International League.
In lower classifications Gus Niarhos is managing Quebec City in the Eastern League, Les Moss has the Shreveport Sports in the Texas League, Len Okrie has Batavia, N.Y., in the New York-Penn League, Harry Bright handles Burlington, Iowa in the Midwest League and Jim Schaffer has Bluefield, W.Va., a Baltimore farm club, in the Appalachian Rookie League.

Charlie Fox, who is doing a good job with the San Francisco Giants, is the only former catching managing in the bigs today. He was a minor league catcher and got in three games as a 1942 New York Giant catcher.
There may be more ex-catchers on the way up as major league pilots. Eight in the high minor leagues have the talent. They are Andy Seminick (with the Eugene, Ore., Emeralds) and Del Rice (Salt Lake City Angels) in the Pacific Coast League; Del Crandall (Evansville), Sherm Lollar (Des Moines) and Del Wilber (Den-

No Big Pressure In Sudden-Death

HOUSTON (AP) — Rookie Hubert Green said he felt no particular pressure when he went to the first extra hole in a sudden-death playoff with veteran Don January for the $25,000 first prize in the Houston Champions Invitational Golf Tournament.
"Well, hell," shrugged the laconic, unflappable young man. "I'm walking down No. 1 fairway and I sure can't finish worse than second. Everyone else has finished."
He nailed down the top prize on that first extra hole Sunday, lashing a nine iron shot 13 feet from the flag and running in the putt from his unorthodox stance deeply crouched, feet widely spread, and elbows out.
The birdie won it over the 41-year-old January, a 16-year tour veteran and former PGA champion. January missed the green and chipped to about three feet before the 24-year-old rookie settled it. Green, who failed to make it when he first tried the PGA players school, joined the tour only late last year. The victory pushed his earnings for the year to $59,300, $44,100 in the last four weeks.
Green, a native of Birmingham, Ala., and a Florida State graduate, and January finished the regulation 72 holes with scores of 280, just four under par on the rugged, 7,166-yard, par-71 Champions Golf Club course.
Green had a steady par 71 on the final round while January closed quickly with a 68.
At one time or another during the hot, sultry day, seven players either led or were within one shot. One by one they faded back as the lean, dark-haired Green held on.

Tar Heels In Big Sweep

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—North Carolina, which lost the regular season Atlantic Coast Conference tennis championship, bounced back over the weekend and swept eight of nine final matches to decisively win the 18th annual ACC Tennis Tournament.
The Tar Heels piled up the largest single point total in the tournament's history as they captured the finals in five of the final six doubles matches and all three final singles matches.
North Carolina piled up 71 of 72 possible points to easily outdistance regular season champion Clemson which got 58. Virginia was a distant third with 45 points followed by Maryland 39, Wake Forest 36, Duke 33, and South Carolina and North Carolina State each with 21.
Clemson's Sarfraz Rahim prevented a North Carolina cleanup by beating the Tar Heels' Rich Hardaway 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 for the championship in the fifth flight.
Freddie McNair, North Carolina's sophomore ace from Chevy Chase, Md., beat Clemson senior Nick Kelaidis of Athens, Greece, in straight sets of 6-2, 6-4 for the fifth flight championship.

TALLEADEGA, Ala. (AP) — It was the richest "one lap" race in the history of stock car racing, and that final trip to the Alabama International Speedway Sunday paid Donnie Allison $30,000.

most thrilling races ever run anywhere. Bobby, in turn, beat strongman Buddy Baker to the line by about three feet to capture second place.
A blanket could have covered three cars anywhere on the steeply-banked course during that final lap.
The stretch duel was set up when Dave Marcis, subbing for ailing Bobby Isaac, broke the engine in his Dodge while leading the two Allison and Baker into the first turn to begin the 182nd of 188 laps around the 2.66-mile speedway.
Marcis' car caught fire momentarily and crashed into the outer rail of the turn, bringing out the seventh yellow light of the day. The green racing flag — meaning full speed ahead — came out five laps later, with only the 188th and final circuit left.

"I knew all of the marbles would be on that lap," Donnie said, "and it had to be a drag race to the finish. I was lucky to get the jump on brother Bobby and Baker when we came off the fourth turn and I saw the green flag waving down the track. I just happened to be in the right place at the right time."
But while the leaders were running full bore, the speed ranged well above the 185 m.p.h. mark, aided by drafting techniques that allow one car to run in the trailing vacuum of another car.
Only four drivers handled the race prior to the dramatic finish and the two Allison, Baker and Marcis shared the honors. Bobby Allison, who replaced three-time Grand National champion David Pearson in the Holman and Moody Mercury only a week ago, led the most laps, 70. Donnie was in front 64 circuits, Marcis for 38 and Baker for 16.

Marcis, an independent driver who owns and maintains his own Dodge racer, was assigned to Isaac's car Saturday after Isaac was stricken by a kidney ailment. He made the most of his opportunity, driving a brilliant, well-planned race.
Bobby Allison picked up $19,850 for second place, while Baker was paid $9,925 for third. Fourth place went to Pete Hamilton, winner of both 500 mile races here last year and fifth to Fred Lorenzen. Hamilton and Lorenzen drove Plymouths.

Sand Trap Shot Won For Sandra

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sandra Palmer's sudden victory in the $50,000 Sealy Ladies Professional Golf Association Classic has jumped her from 10th place to fourth in the women's circuit standings.
Miss Palmer's winning shot came from a sand trap on the par five, 18th hole Sunday. It was good for an eagle and final round of two-under-par 71 on the Desert Inn Country Club course. Hampering the final day of play were 25-to-35 mile-an-hour winds with occasional gusts to 80 m.p.h.

Her four-round total of 289 paid $10,000.
The closest contender, Donna Caponi, carded a 74 with a birdie on the 18th. She held a one-stroke lead going into Sunday's action. She took $6,000 prize money with her 291 strokes.
It was the first time for the women to play the Sealy tournament.

Volkswagen with air conditioning.

The truth is the inside of the bug gets just as hot and clammy on a 90-degree day as the inside of any other car if you don't have something to cool it off.
Hence the VW air conditioner. It's a quiet, trim, 3-speed unit that won't cut down on your leg room or luggage space.
And it won't cost you a bundle. The minute you turn the knob to colder it starts saving on wrinkled collars and crumpled suits (not to mention antiperspirants).
But the thing that really saves you money is the package it comes in. The Volkswagen still delivers better mileage than any domestic air-conditioned car.

It still consumes oil by the pint, not by the quart.
And since the engine is cooled by air instead of a radiator, there's no need for antifreeze at 10 below or cool water at 110 above.
The result:
It can't boil over on the hottest day of the year.
Which is more than you can say for the driver if he's not air-cooled.

Graduations At Several Institutions

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Several institutions of higher learning in North Carolina dispatched their successful charges into the world over the weekend with the skin of a sheep and some words of wisdom.

Dr. John T. Caldwell, chancellor of North Carolina State University in Raleigh, told 2,500 graduates that calling a school a university doesn't make it one.

"The university," said Caldwell, "is a complex institution of higher education offering academic degrees at the most advanced professional and scholarly levels, accompanied by a significant amount of recognized research."

Using this as the standard, he said, North Carolina has five universities: N.C. State, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, Duke University, and Wake Forest University.

The president emeritus of the University of Bridgeport told 220 graduates at Meredith College in Raleigh that a small minority of students have given all students a bad image.

"A small minority is guilty of a grave injustice," said Dr. Henry W. Littlefield, "because of their laxity and excessiveness in drinking, drugs, sex and rowdiness, they encourage others to condemn a whole generation."

Caldwell Didn't Mean To Offend

RALEIGH (AP) — Chancellor John T. Caldwell of North Carolina State University said Sunday he was sorry if he stepped on anybody's toes in stating in his Saturday commencement address that there were only five universities in North Carolina.

"Nothing could be further from the intent of my commencement address Saturday that for any part of it to be taken as a lack of respect for any university, in North Carolina or elsewhere.

"I provided a simple but restricted definition of the university concept, which included North Carolina State University. The definition did not reflect on the recognized excellence of any institution in North Carolina in the slightest, whether university or college."

"I was addressing myself directly to our graduates and not to educational or political questions in North Carolina."

"My objective was to help our graduates comprehend with some pride the status of their alma mater and its commitment to the principle of excellence."

"Any other reading of the spirit or the intent of my words is simply erroneous," Dr. Caldwell said in a statement released to newsmen.

St. Mary's Junior College at Raleigh conferred associate of art degree on 110 graduates Saturday.

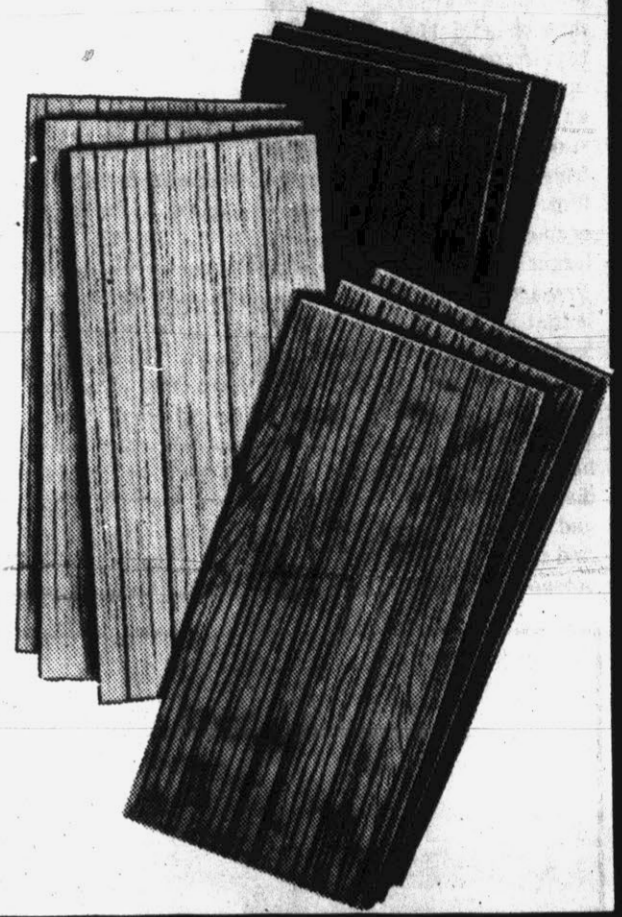

Peace College at Raleigh, a junior college for women, graduated 163 seniors Sunday and heard Dr. Andrew D. Holt, president-emeritus of the University of Tennessee, delivered the commencement address.

At Elizabeth City, Elizabeth City State University graduated 225 seniors. The commencement speaker was Dr. Leonard Spearman, director of College at Misenheimer, Queens College and Johnson C. Smith University at Charlotte and Belmont Abbey at Belmont.

More To Feel Pinch Of Tax

AN AP NEWS SPECIAL
By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
More North Carolinians than ever before will feel the sting of a local sales tax this summer.

Records kept by the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners show that 33 of the state's 100 counties have already ordered a local levy of one per cent.

Referendums are scheduled in seven other counties, and the tax at least is being considered by an untold number of local officials.

Described as a Godsend by some financially hardpressed counties and as an unwanted gimmick by the wealthier local governments, the tax was authorized by a law rushed through the General Assembly early this session.

It can be imposed by local commissioners, with or without a vote of the people. The law requires county boards, however, to follow the voting of the people if a referendum is held.

"It's the second time around for 25 counties.

A 1969 law authorized a statewide referendum on the local sales tax, which was implemented last year in those counties where the levy was approved. Three-fourths of the counties rejected the tax proposition.

North Carolina's Supreme Court struck down that law in January, ruling it was discriminatory as it forced a vote in all counties. Fears of chaos followed the ruling in counties dependent upon the tax revenue, and the legislature set up emergency machinery to help the counties recover. The new law ensued, establishing procedures for counties to decide individually if they wanted a local tax.

In addition to the 25 counties imposing the tax last year, one per cent levies have been ordered by resolution of commissions in Franklin, Yancey, Avery, Henderson and Cherokee counties, all effective June 1; and in Warren, effective July 1; and in Washington and McDowell counties later in the year.

Referendums are scheduled in Craven, on May 22; Pitt, May 26; Haywood, May 27; Guilford, June 8; Carteret, June 22, and Orange sometime this fall.

Bladen County commissioners have scheduled a public hearing on the tax Monday night. Anticipating a referendum, the commissioners have taken steps to hold an election in Bladen on June 15.

Charge Driver In Sunday Wreck

Bobby Willett Pittman, 39, of Route 1, Winterville was charged with driving under the influence and failing to keep a proper lookout following investigation of an 11:07 a.m. Sunday collision on Dickinson Avenue, 45 feet East of the Wilson Street intersection.

Officers reported the Pittman truck collided with a car driven by Robert Earl Baker, 25 of Ayden, causing an estimated $500 damage to the car and no damage to the truck.

Arrest Man For Local Break-In

Benjamin Joseph Price, 18, of New Haven, Conn. was charged with breaking and entering following a 9 p.m. Sunday incident at the Perco Service Station on 14th Street.

Police reported Price, who gave his address as Fleming Street, allegedly broke into the station through a window. Officers said he was taken into custody as he allegedly ran away from the station when police arrived at the scene after receiving a telephone call reporting a break-in at the station.

Farm Scene

By HENRY C. RIDDICK

There is no doubt that the number one vegetable grown by the home gardener is the tomato. We see them growing in small garden plots with other vegetables, in flower beds, among shrubbery, and even in window boxes. People go to a great deal of trouble just to have a home grown tomato.

There are some gardeners who plant their tomatoes and just hope for the best, while others are very painstaking in the manner in which they care for their plants. It is a lot of trouble to prune and stake tomatoes, but in the end it really pays. Some advantages in pruning and staking are less rotting of the fruit during wet weather; the fruit ripens about a week earlier, and usually the fruit is larger and more evenly ripened. Perhaps the greatest advantage is that the fruit is easier to pick and insects and diseases may be more easily controlled through dusting or spraying. But just as with everything else, when you have advantages, you also have disadvantages. When you stake and prune tomatoes, you will find that a lot more time is involved in tending the plant. Also, there will be slightly fewer tomatoes per plant that if they were not pruned. However, closer spacing is possible when staked and pruned, making the total yield about the same.

If tomatoes are to be staked, the staking should be done before the plant begins to fall over. About four inches from the plant, drive a five or six foot stake into the ground. As the plant grows loosely tie it to the stake in three or four places. Prune the plant about twice a week by pinching out the suckers in the axil of the leaves when the suckers are only a few inches long.

For unstaked tomatoes, mulching materials should be applied before the plants begin to fall over. Use such materials as pine straw, leaves, sawdust, shavings, treated paper, corn stalks or cobs, or even black plastic. These materials help keep down grass and also keep the soil cooler in the summer and help retain moisture needed by the plant. In addition, it also helps maintain organic matter and helps to prevent the soil from packing and crushing. Mulching is more important for

Tobacco TIPS

TOBACCO TIPS
By S. J. WEEKS

As we complete the transplanting of the tobacco crop, it is not too early to begin planning the plant bed program for 1972. A well-planned program, based on sound, proved practices, will greatly reduce the risk involved in producing a good supply of healthy tobacco plants.

If you are not satisfied with your present plant bed site, now is the time to choose one that is more suitable for good plant production. When selecting a plant bed site, there are several factors that should be considered. It is best to select a deep, fertile, loamy soil that warms up quickly. The bed should be located near a convenient water supply, such as a home water supply, pond or stream, so that it can be watered easily during dry periods. Cold the late planting than early, and is also desirable for those staked tomatoes.

and drying winds can cause serious damage to stands and earliness of plants; therefore, it is a good idea for all beds to have some type of windbreak on the north, northwest, and northeast sides. Plant beds that had good windbreaks this year generally produced a good supply of fairly early plants.

Once the plant bed site is selected, the soil should be managed properly through the summer months for best results. Whether or not an old or new plant bed site is used, good physical condition and high organic matter in the soil seems to be very helpful in getting a good stand and promoting growth. A summer cover crop of soybeans or cowpeas will not only help maintain good physical condition of the soil but will help keep weeds from growing and producing seed on the plant bed site. The cover crop should be disced in early in the fall so it will be decayed before time to treat the soil for weed and nematode control. Plant production is a very important part of growing a tobacco crop. Let's begin now to in producing our plants for the carry out these proven practices 1972 crop.

Case Q-544: Rev. Joel, aged 34, has a problem. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I am sometimes embarrassed at the christening of babies. "For the parents often foist inappropriate names on their infants. "Some doting mothers will thus give a boy baby a very girlish name, which I know will fetter him all throughout his school days. What do you bid now?
A.—Four spades. Your raise is a good one valuing 10 points in support counting high cards and distribution. If you merely return to three spades, partner may feel obliged to pass.
Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠7 ♠Q1097 ♠AJ54 ♣AQ94
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dble. 2 ♠ ?
What do you bid?
A.—A white lie is in order in the form of a three spade bid. There is no other adequate call. Holding 15 points, opposite a partner who is strong enough to double, you should seriously contemplate the possibilities of a slam in one of your three suits. The best procedure is to force partner to select the suit by making a cue bid, even though it involves a little petty license about your spade holding.

What do you bid now?
A.—You have already indicated possession of a good hand by bidding two clubs and following up with a bid of two spades. Yet partner was unable to take any drastic action, indicating that he has a minimum hand with length in hearts. It appears, therefore, that there cannot be a sound play for game. Discretion calls for a pass, for without a heart in your hand it would be highly unsound to try three no trump, especially without a diamond stopper.

Test Donor For Kidney

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — A young woman is scheduled to undergo tests this week to determine if she will be able to donate one of her kidneys to her ailing brother.

Mrs. Sharon Parsons, 25, wants to donate the kidney to her brother, Jack Young, 22. Young has been kept alive with expensive medical treatment. His family is in debt because of those treatments and the kidney transplant is expected to cost about $25,000. It appears now that the cost of the operation may be paid.

Fund raising campaigns have now raised about $24,000 for the operation. The latest drive came over the weekend when 17 Appalachian State University students trekked 95 miles from Boone to Winston-Salem. They were paid by businessmen and other sponsors for each mile they walked. The students raised at least $2,000.

That will be added to the $22,000 raised by churches, civic organizations and individuals in Ashe County, Young's home. Young says he is looking forward to having the transplant. "It'll be like getting out of jail," he said. "It'll be great to get back to normal life."

He hopes to return to Appalachian State where he had to drop out because of the kidney disorder.

Four Demo Senators Audition For Wisconsin Primary Fight

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Auditioning in a state that could become a crucial political theater next year, four senators have given Wisconsin party leaders a preview performance as prospective contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Wisconsin's share of the casting for that role comes in an April 4 presidential primary.

Although the state's top Democrat, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, said it is simply too early to forecast who will emerge as the front runner, that billing now belongs to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine.

But Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota already has a campaign organization at work in Wisconsin. Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana is making his contacts and party contributors who heard from the potential candidates seemed interested in seeing more of Sen. Harold F. Hughes of Iowa.

And there will almost certainly be other names on the Wisconsin ballot.

The four senators were the featured attraction at a $100 a plate steak and strawberry shortcake dinner Saturday night. No one emerged as a star: They shared about equally in the applause of an audience Lucey said included party workers crucial to any candidate.

The speeches were standard Democratic fare. Indeed, it seemed at times, the performers could have traded texts without difficulty.

"The men in the Democratic party's repertoire of potential national leaders differ in style and approach and to some degree on the issues," said Hughes. "But on the big moral stands they are united."

Muskie's speech too, was a standard piece, perhaps most notable for his statements that Democrats must strive to forfeit the war issue by ending the conflict before the 1972 campaign even if that means losing the election.

Bayh came on like an evangelist, gesturing, pointing, dramatically repeating his phrases and at one point smacking the microphone accidentally. "We can ignite a spark of hope in the heart of even the most insignificant soul in the darkest corner of our society," he said at the end. "This I believe and so must we all."

Finally, McGovern stressed the war issue, and his proposed legislation to force U.S. withdrawal by the end of the year.

The withdrawal theme was popular. Each man mentioned it and each was applauded for it. Present but silent was Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin who is doing some presidential exploration and could wind up a primary contestant.

Lucey said Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington almost certainly will be on the ballot too unless they sign disclaimers of candidacy. Without such a disavowal, anyone designated a presidential prospect by a state commission automatically goes on the ballot.

Medal For His Heroism

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — A lineman from Whiteville, N.C., has been awarded a Carnegie Medal for heroism in his futile efforts to rescue a fellow workman who touched a high voltage line.

The recipient was Dennis F. Nobles, who died in the attempt to save James T. Bolton from death by electric shock near Raleigh on July 17 of last year.

Bolton, 37, was operating a drilling rig near overhead power lines. The rig's tower drifted slightly and came into contact with the power line. When Bolton grasped the rig's door-handle and put a foot on the runningboard, he received the high-voltage shock.

Nobles made a flying tackle to knock Bolton free from the charged contact. Both men fell to the ground. Nobles' elbow touched the metal wheel rim of the drilling rig and both men died of the electric charge that coursed through their bodies.

Nobles' award was one of 16 bronze medals awarded to persons in four states and four Canadian provinces by the commission.

Vote Pastor Salary Hike

SALISBURY, N. C. (AP) — Lutherans engaged in spirited debate Sunday and then went on to approve a higher figure than that recommended as a minimum salary for pastors.

Delegates to the North Carolina Synod of the Lutheran Church in America voted to pay pastors at least $6,800 year. A synod committee had recommended $6,500, about $300 more than the pastors had been receiving.

Congregations that are unable to pay the increased amount will get financial help from the synod.

The 205-congregation synod's delegates also approved a 1972 operating budget of $1.6 million.

In other action, the delegates re-elected Dr. J. Wilford Lysterly of Salisbury as secretary. He has held that post for 18 years. He was elected by a two-tone margin over the Rev. Frank Perry of Chapel Hill.

Charge Toddler Murdered By Step-Grandpa

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — A 62-year-old Cleveland County man has been charged with killing his 17-month-old step-grandson with a shotgun as the toddler lay in his step-grandmother's arms.

Police said the baby, Jerry Goode, the son of Mrs. Hannah Goode, was shot with a 12-gauge shotgun Saturday at a house in the Bellwood community about 12 miles north of Shelby.

Police charged Marion Reed with first-degree murder. Sheriff's Detective Paul Barbee said Reed's wife, Ida Mae Reed, was holding the baby when it was shot, but she was uninjured.

Reed was arrested about 45 minutes after the shooting, armed with a loaded shotgun but unresisting. A hearing has been set for May 20.
