

Sales Tax Revenues Eyed Big Stake In Referendum

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

If a referendum next Tuesday is approved by voters, Pitt County governmental units will receive an estimated $1,036,000 in added revenue next year.

The money will come if county residents vote in favor of a one-per cent local option sales tax.

If the sales tax issue passes, the $1.036 million will be divided among the county government and municipalities on a per capita basis, according to County Board of Commissioners, who said yesterday commissioners feel this is the fairest way to distribute the money.

Distributed on a per capita basis, the county government would receive more than $658,000, with the remaining portion of the sales tax revenue being divided among municipal governments.

Amounts to go to municipalities under the per capita distribution include: Ayden — $30,700; Bethel — $13,500; Falkland — $1,550; Farmville — $39,400; Fountain

— $3,850; Greenville — $258,900; Grifton — $13,800; Grimesland — $3,500; and Winterville — $12,800.

Cox, in explaining the breakdown of the money between the county and municipal governments, said that a portion of the more than $658,000 estimated income for the county government would go to help meet the needs of the schools.

Commissioners, who say the tax is needed to help repay a $9 million bond issue for construction of a new hospital, as well as financial needs of the public schools, and other programs, explain the county's share of the revenue would amount to about 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation, based on current property values.

According to Cox the current $1.52 per $100 valuation tax rate would have to be increased by 55-cents to meet the minimum needs of the county if the sales tax is not approved next week.

He explained that for the first year the $9 million in bonds for the new hospital are sold, property taxes would increase 44.31 cents per $100 valuation to pay for the bonds alone. The average cost of repayment of the hospital bonds will average approximately 30 cents per $100 valuation over the 21-year life of the bonds.

In addition to the hospital bond repayment, mandatory expenditures for Social Service programs will add an additional 6.42 cents per $100 valuation to the present rate for the coming fiscal year.

These increases, Cox said, coupled with other pressing requirements such as public schools, law enforcement, fire protection, solid waste disposal and other necessary programs, will combine to boost the present tax rate by more than 33 per cent.

Cox emphasized that there will be no decrease in property taxes if the sales tax proposal passes.

CHAIRMANSHIP

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Jack Lemon yesterday accepted the national chairmanship of the 1971 Christmas Seal campaign.

But, he said, any increase in property taxes will be no where as great if voters approve the sales tax.

Cox noted that if approved, the sales tax would produce enough revenue so school boards in the county should be able to air condition Aycock Junior High in Greenville and the four consolidated high schools in the county. The five schools have inadequate ventilation because they were designed for air conditioning but the lack of funds has made air conditioning the schools impossible up to this point.

If approved May 25, the sales tax will go into effect July 1. The county will receive its first payment of the revenue from the state (which will collect the tax along with its own three per cent levy) in October.

J. Howard Moye, chairman of a citizens committee supporting the local sales tax said a sales tax would be easier to pay because the tax is paid in small amounts as purchases are made rather than in lump sum amounts once a year.

"People who can afford to buy more, pay more," Moye said, "therefore the sales tax is not a regressive tax. You pay only as you spend."

Moye noted too, that a sales tax would apply to all citizens on a uniform basis and would allow all citizens to participate in city and county services and improvements.

The property tax, Moye said, is based on the principal that wealth lies in land. "This is no longer true," he emphasized. "Many people without property escape payment for services they use daily."

Tells Of A Dixie 'Mafia'

By REESE HART

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The "Dixie Mafia," described as "a loosely knit coalition of southern criminals," is organized in North Carolina and poses a big problem, the director of the State Bureau of Investigation said today.

Charles Dunn told Senate Judiciary 2 Committee the Dixie Mafia's "core may number between 125 to 150 persons, many with long criminal records, and may involve hundreds of others from time to time. They operate largely in the South, but have connection in other areas of the country."

Dunn said the Dixie Mafia has specialists in all types of criminal fields and for money "you can get a building burned or a safe cracked. They are highly diversified."

"The degree of actual Mafia involvement in North Carolina is a matter of speculation," Dunn said in a prepared talk. "There are indications and rumors that various La Cosa Nostra 'families' are active in the state. There is concern that activity against family members in other states may bring some into this state. But, at the present, there is no definite proof that any active family members reside within the state."

Dunn said there are within North Carolina gangs of armed robbers, groups of burglars, flimflam artists and others "who plan, train and execute crimes against the people of this state on a regular basis. There also are combinations of other criminals — some exceptionally talented and backed by large sums of money — who regularly acquire and distribute illegal drugs."

The SBI director said there are at least three major syndicates distributing heroin within North Carolina.

"The so-called 'Dixie Mafia' is not so sophisticated or well financed as La Cosa Nostra but it is just as ruthless," Dunn said.

He cited examples of how organized criminals are operating in North Carolina. Shoplifters, he said, are coached in their trade and are paid a commission depending on their success.

He said the new antishoplifting law in North Carolina that goes into effect July 30 will have some effect, "but these cats are pretty sharp."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today a major agreement with Russia to undertake the negotiation of an agreement to limit deployment of anti-ballistic missiles.

SST Is Buried By Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The supersonic transport, burdened by controversy and a billion-dollar price increase, has been killed again by the Senate, this time, it appears, for good.

Fifty eight senators agreed late Wednesday night the American SST bore a price tag in economic and environmental terms the nation could not afford.

Only 37 senators supported federally subsidized production of the pencil-thin, faster-than-sound craft needed, its backers claimed, to maintain American dominance in the world's aviation markets.

Even before its formal defeat the White House conceded the demise of the program promoted by every President since John F. Kennedy initiated it nearly a decade ago at a cost that has reached $800 million.

Having killed the SST, the Senate agreed to pay for the funeral.

It voted 92 to 3 to appropriate $155.3 million in termination money split three ways: $85.3 million to SST contractors, $58.5 million to the airlines which had deposited that much in good-faith cash in 1967, and $12 million to shut down the SST office of the Department of Transportation.

Both the Democratic and Republican leaders of the House said after the Senate vote they saw little chance their chamber would revive the SST.

Thus, the attempt to have the government underwrite the most controversial plane in the annals of aviation appears to have died.

It was an end prefigured by many death rattles.

Last year the Senate voted to end the federal development role only to have the House insist on continuing the project, a view upheld in a conference committee. Then last March both the House and the Senate decided against the plane, leading to the conclusion the SST was doomed.

It was a surprise, therefore, when the House voted last week to restore the supersonic transport by turning $85 million in SST termination money included in a supplemental appropriation into a fund to restart the project.

Nixon Wins Fight Over NATO Cut

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has won his hard-fought battle against Senate proposals to cut U.S. troop strength in Europe. But his authority in foreign relations faces further challenges in Congress.

By a vote of 61 to 36, the Senate Wednesday night rejected a proposal by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield requiring a 50-per-cent cut in the 300,000-man U.S. European force by the end of 1971.

The Senate had rejected earlier a series of less-sweeping proposals on one-sided votes which masked strong feeling that something should be done about the large U.S. force remaining in Europe 20 years after it was sent there.

Mansfield told the Senate his fight had achieved its minimum goal of increasing awareness of the problem.

But he expressed regret "there has been no hint of an understanding from downtown the White House or overseas." He vowed to try again.

Defeat of the Mansfield amendment ended one of the major side issues in Senate debate on House-passed legislation to extend the draft beyond its June 30 expiration date.

After draft-related issues are settled, probably next week, an attempt will be made to use the bill in a new effort to cut off funds for U.S. operations in Indochina beyond Dec. 31.

Waiting in the wings is a far broader challenge to presidential authority: three similar bills to limit a chief executive's power to commit American forces overseas without a congressional declaration of war.

From the time nine days ago when Mansfield announced he would seek an amendment requiring troop reductions in Europe, the administration had taken a strenuous position against any compromise.

The White House recruited a potent coalition of elder statesmen and generals long prominent in Atlantic alliance activities and former Democratic Presidents Harry S. Truman and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Though a majority of senators had backed past Mansfield efforts carrying no legal impact, the administration's argument against tying presidential hands won heavy backing, especially among Republican members. Only five GOP senators voted with Mansfield Wednesday.

In Brussels, a NATO spokesman who declined to be identified expressed gratitude the troop-cut proposals had been defeated. European diplomats had said before hand a heavy vote for cutbacks — even if not a majority — could hurt Western negotiations with the Soviet Union.

No Retreat For Sadat On Suez Canal Terms

BEIRUT (AP) — Egyptian

President Anwar Sadat today restated his conditions for reopening the Suez Canal and made no modifications in them.

In a speech to the National Assembly broadcast by Cairo Radio, Sadat said Egyptian troops must cross to the canal's east bank and Israeli withdrawal from the canal must be the first stage of a complete withdrawal "with a defined timetable" from all territory occupied in the 1967 war.

Sadat added that Egypt refuses any open-ended cease-fire as long as "one single Israeli soldier exists on our land."

Sadat said these conditions were Egypt's reply to negotiations initiated by Secretary of State William P. Rogers for an interim agreement to reopen the canal. He said Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad would present this position to Donald C. Bergus, the U.S. representative in Cairo, after the speech.

Sadat called on the United States to "squeeze" Israel to accept these conditions.

"I told Rogers I won't settle for arguments that the U.S. cannot exert pressure on Israel," he said. "I told him to tell Mr. Nixon that I don't demand American pressure on Israel but I want America to squeeze Israel in the interests of peace in the Middle East," said Sadat.

The president said Egypt's policy is based on two premises: "We shall not abandon one single inch of our land, and we refuse any compromise on the rights of the Palestinian people."

He charged that the Israelis tried to twist Egypt's offer last February on reopening the canal by claiming it was a separate solution. "This is not true," he declared. But he said Egypt still stands by the February offer if "only to get a peaceful solution in the Middle East moving."

It was Sadat's first appearance before the assembly since he emerged victorious from a power struggle last week. He was repeatedly interrupted by applause and shouts of support.

Praising the Soviet Union for its military aid, Sadat said Egypt's military recovery since the 1967 defeat "has made the whole world, including the United States, feel the need for a faster momentum for a peaceful settlement."

Revenue-Sharing Said To Carry Surveillance

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — President Nixon's plan to share $5 billion federal revenues "would be a first mortgage of action of every state and local government," Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said today.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said in a speech prepared for a joint session of the North Carolina legislature the "no strings attached" aspect of the Nixon proposal already has been qualified.

He said the Departments of Justice and Treasury would monitor the local governments to assure against discrimination.

No one can reasonably object to that string, Mills said, but he continued: "in the years to follow when the amount of this shared revenue becomes substantial, who here believes that other 'good ideas' will not become the basis for monitoring state and local government activity by federal agencies?"

"One revenue sharing proposal pending in the Congress already contains provisions for federal standards to achieve efficiency in state and local governments," Mills added, referring to a measure introduced as an alternate to Nixon's proposal.

Terming the administration plan irresponsible, Mills said the sharing formula would result in gross disparities among amounts received by cities in North Carolina and elsewhere. For example, he said, Cambridge, Mass., only slightly larger than Durham, N.C., would receive 2½ times as much.

Mills said the new welfare bill approved by his committee would relieve North Carolina and its counties of most welfare expenditures, estimated at $91 million in 1973.

But he said he does not regard the bill as "a complete answer to the President's revenue sharing proposal or an end to the concern the committee has for the financial burdens now being experienced by most state and local governments."

"The financial problems of state and local governments require ... sound and well-thought-out legislation under which the federal government in partnership with state governments and city governments can determine priorities among programs and purposes, and fund such programs on a rational basis," Mills said.

Ogden Nash Started As A 'Very Serious Poet'

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ogden Nash was very serious when he first tried his hand at poetry. "I wrote sonnets. About beauty and truth, eternity, poignant pain," he once recalled.

He threw the first nonsense lines of poetry he wrote into a wastebasket, but later retrieved them and began the career that long before his death Wednesday had established him as America's master of doggerel.

Nash, 68, died at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he had been under treatment for kidney failure and a May 9 stroke. Asked once why he had changed from heavy to light verse, Nash said, "I thought I'd better laugh at myself before anyone else laughed at me."

When millions laughed with him, Nash deflected praise with the comment that his verses were "just thoughts that must occur to many thousands of men."

Perhaps, but few could express them with Ogden Nash's flippant, meter-gone-crazy style that cut humorously to the heart of the matter.

As a young man, Nash decided he did not have a future as a serious poet and turned to writing advertising copy for Doubleday & Co. His mind wandered one day and he scribbled some nonsense lines of verse.

He threw them away, but later recovered them and sent one to the New Yorker magazine. The editors liked his style and asked for more. Soon he was making more money writing verse than advertising copy, and later he became the managing editor of the New Yorker.

Beginning with the book "Hard Lines" in 1931, he composed more than a dozen volumes of verse. He wrote the lyrics for the 1940s stage and film hit "One Touch of Venus," but other stage ventures he helped compose were not successful.

Nash was born Aug. 19, 1902, in Rye, N.Y., and moved to Baltimore three years after he married a Baltimore girl, Frances Rider Leonard, in 1931. They had two daughters, who were with their mother at Nash's bedside when he died.

Jail Terms Handed Summrell; Notice Of Appeal Is Filed

Julius Stewart Summrell, found guilty by a Superior Court jury last week of disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and assault on an officer in connection with an incident at Pitt Memorial Hospital was handed a six months jail term on each count yesterday.

Judge Robert M. Martin, in pronouncing sentence late yesterday afternoon ordered the active jail terms to run concurrently, then recommended Summrell be assigned to the State Department of Correction's work release program.

Summrell, through his attorney Jerry Paul, gave notice of appeal to the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

Summrell, now 22, assaulted police officer B. F. Phillips after the officer placed him under arrest on disorderly conduct charges. During a scuffle with the officer, Summrell was shot.

Pit. Phillips was injured. Much controversy erupted over the case after the city council, following a late-night meeting with a group of Negro leaders, suspended Pit. Phillips' pay pending an investigation of the incident by the State Bureau of Investigation. His pay was reinstated and he returned to work more than six weeks following the incident.

Pierce Fellowship's Annual Gathering Held Wednesday

GRIFTON — First District Congressman Walter Jones and Fifth District Representative Nick Galifianakis headed the list of dignitaries attending the 49th annual John Pierce Fellowship Club gathering on the banks of Contentnea Creek west of here yesterday.

Registration for the annual Fellowship meeting began at Camp Contentment at 10:30 a.m. and lunch was served to the estimated 150 to 200 persons attending.

Billy Phillips of Grifton was elected as president of the Fellowship Club for the coming year, replacing C. W. Everett of Bethel who presided at yesterday's meeting.

Elected vice-president yesterday was Harry Mumford of Ayden, while re-elected for the 35th consecutive term as secretary-treasurer was A. F. Rowe of Ayden.

In addition to Congressmen Jones and Galifianakis, other dignitaries present included: Superior Court Judge Robert Martin; North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham, Pitt Representatives Horton Roundtree and Sam Bundy, District Court judges

J. W. H. Roberts and Hubert O. Phillips, District Solicitor Eli Bloom and prosecutors Bill Barker and Jim Mills, Hugh Winslow, Pitt Democratic Party chairman, district Highway Commissioners Arthur Tripp of Greenville and Bill Clark of Tarboro, Conservation and Development Board member, Carl Rinfrew of Wilson, and others.

The 1972 meeting of the Pierce Fellowship Club was set for April 28.

The club began meeting in 1921 and has been meeting at Camp Contentment since the early 1930s.

Actress Jo Ann Pflug Is Versatile

By NORMAN GOLDSTEIN
Associated Press Newsfeatures
NEW YORK (AP) — The script notes for the movie "M-A-S-H" called for "the sexiest looking nurse in military history."

The planned production of a Western adventure film, "Callow," calls for a strait-laced Spanish noblewoman.

Chosen to play both those roles was an eye-appealing actress with an unappealing name — Jo Ann Pflug. Pronounce it "Floo."

With a name like that you've got to be versatile—and talented.

Jo Ann is more than that, as even a quick glance will attest. Heads turn in her direction when she walks into the room—all 5-feet-9½ inches of her—with her long lovely legs pulchritudinally poking out of a brown maxiskirt slit up, and up, and up, all the way up to the gunpowder in her cartridge belt.

She's an expressive and exuberant young lady, with a flair for comedy which has kept her quite busy since "M-A-S-H." "I've made a career of 'M-A-S-H,'" jokes the Atlanta-born actress who played Lt. Dish in the popular war comedy. That's not altogether true, though "Callow" is the first film she's doing since "M-A-S-H."

The Western—"I'm practicing my side-saddle"—is to be filmed in Spain. She'll have the second female lead—"She's very much like me: she's not married either, and she's strong-willed"—and will play opposite Yul Brynner and Richard Crenna.

In the meantime, she has done a good deal of television work and a TV movie. She's particularly doing comedies.

"People want laughter now," says Miss Pflug, who would like to be a Kay Kendall-type comedienne, "a maintainer of femininity while being funny."

Did "M-A-S-H" help her career?

"It couldn't do anything but. I was unknown before. It made people in the business and the public aware of who I was. It's all very flattering; it was a long time ago that picture came out. I still get a lot of fan mail from fellows in Vietnam. From Japan. I answer them all personally. If someone takes the time to write you a letter, it's only courtesy to write back."

But, it's all been somewhat frustrating too for the tall, talented. "You have to wait to be offered a script. I had offers—not that many, but a number. But for one reason or another, they didn't work out."

"My head is at a level where I'd like to put together my own package. But I'm not 'big' enough; I have that intellect, but not that stature."

Acting is the only thing she's ever really wanted to do. She won her first beauty contest age 6, when a photographer snapped her picture and "he caught that devilment ... I was looking over my shoulder; that's my best view." She was in many other beauty contests, and was runnerup for Miss Miami Beach while attending the University of Miami.

"I tried 20 million professions," she says, "but acting is the only thing I really wanted to do. Acting is the only profession a woman can do and be rewarded just for her talent. And everyone has that desire for recognition."

"Nursing, doctor, lawyer, school teaching, I can't do that. Secretary. I could never be confined. I like freedom; to do what I want to do."

"I'm weird in that I don't worry about making a living. The more I expect, the more I get. I'm a positive thinker. I don't believe in failure."

She's 'Bewildered' About Her Marriage

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a veteran who may be confined to a wheelchair for the rest of his life. I am in love with John (I think) but I have so many doubts. I have always dreamed of a lovely wedding, and I love children, and have always pictured family outings with my children romping about with their mother and father. I have always loved skiing, swimming, tennis. How does a wife enjoy these sports with a husband in a wheelchair?

If I go thru with my plans to marry John, how does a bride walk down the aisle to be met by her groom who is seated in a wheelchair, waiting for her? Even the matter of wedding pictures will be a problem. I realize these sound like little things which should probably never bother me, but they do. Will my children feel cheated because their father won't be able to do things with them that their friends' fathers will be doing?

I am 20 years old, Abby, and should know my own mind, but I am frankly bewildered. Can you, or any of your experienced readers, help me? MISERABLE IN MAINE

DEAR MISERABLE: You have too many doubts, my dear. If you really loved John, you wouldn't be asking for someone to "sell" you on marrying him. You would be determined to marry him—no matter what, and you'd be so sold that no one could talk you out of it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a sticky problem. I share an apartment with a young man from a foreign country. He is here for graduate study. I told him I was going out of town for the weekend and he asked me if he could have a friend stay with him in our apartment. I thought it was another fellow, since he is a married man and speaks so lovingly of his wife and child.

When I returned, he told me that his guest was a lady friend. I do not approve of adultery and was shocked and disappointed in this young man.

I plan to go away again, and my roommate has asked if he may have a guest (I presume it's the same one) in my absence. How should I handle this? He is older than I, and I am not about to give him a moral lecture, but I don't want to be a party to such goings on. ACCOMPLICE

DEAR ACCOMPLICE: Tell your roommate what you have told me. And since your moral codes are not compatible with his, I think you'd both be happier with a change of roommates.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Wrong Way Corrigan," [the lady motorist who always gets lost]: Welcome to the club! Don't be upset about getting places in a 'roundabout' fashion. It's better than most people who don't drive can do. Besides, you're not really "lost." You are just misplaced for the moment.

Did you consider that gas stations are really for giving directions? Selling gas is a sideline. Some of the nicest people in the world are gas station attendants, policemen and dog walkers. I know. I have met thousands of them. I have 34,000 miles on my car, of which 4,000 are "misplaced."

Traveling without adequate directions is a challenge. Besides, you become a source of amusement to your friends who begin to look forward to the story of your "safari." ELIZABETH B. K., President of See America Unintentionally Club.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

SPICY CUPCAKES
They're at their fluffy-best served warm or reheated.
1½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon allspice
¼ cup (½ of a ¼-pound stick) butter or margarine
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup light molasses
½ cup very hot tap water
Sift together flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and spices. Cream butter and sugar; beat in egg. Stir together molasses and water. Into creamed mixture gently beat flour mixture alternately with molasses mixture. Turn into paper baking cups set in medium-size muffin-pan cups filling 2-3rd full. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—about 12 minutes. Makes about 24.

Shower Given Miss Hinnant

Miss Pam Hinnant, bride-elect of Tony Whitehurst, was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Horace Jordan in Wilson, assisted by Mrs. Dan Jordan, Miss Judy Jordan, Mrs. Ben Williams, Miss Virginia Downing and Mrs. Bill Wiggs.

Special guests of the evening were Mrs. Cecil Hinnant, mother of the bride, Mrs. Walter Whitehurst, mother of the bridegroom-elect, and Mrs. Donald LaBar, grandmother of the bride, of Dallas, Pa.

Following the opening of gifts, refreshments were served. A centerpiece of lilac iris, honeysuckle, roses and fern with wedding bells around the base, flanked by silver candleholders with white candles accented the lace covered table.

The hostess presented the bride-elect with a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Offer Refused At Miracle Meeting

LOURDES, France (WNS) — Louis Laffitte, the hotel king of Toulouse, ran into an unexpected miracle when he visited Lourdes: the farmer's daughter for whom he worked as prisoner of war in Germany after being captured by the Nazis. "She was anti-Nazi herself and protected me from punishment and death," recalled the hotelman. Laffitte offered her free room and board at any of his hotels for life. The farmer's daughter refused. "My cows would miss me, and I would miss them," she said.

New Test For Angina
NEW YORK (UPI) — Thermography, the measurement of different skin temperatures for the detection of disease, has found a new application in work by a group of university of Alabama doctors. The application of the decade-old technique is to diagnose angina pectoris, a severe chest-pain syndrome that is caused by a decrease in the oxygen supply to heart muscles.

A report on the technique, in Medical World news, noted that the technique may help doctors differentiate between the chest pain that is typical of angina and other kinds of chest pain often confused with it.

Congress Had No Alternative

Congress has done the only thing it could in passing legislation ending the nationwide rail strike.

Action was taken Tuesday after the trains had been halted by a strike of 13,000 rail signalmen. The walkout idled 500,000 other rail workers and threatened to bring many industries throughout the nation to a standstill.

Hard Decision For Politicians

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH—Occupants for North Carolina's two seats in the U.S. Senate for the rest of this century likely will be elected in 1972 and 1974.

That means politicians with ambition for the office must plan carefully, and prepare to make their move in either of the next two general elections.

Specifically, it explains the dilemma of Attorney General Robert Morgan as he agonizes over whether to run next year for: (1) Governor; (2) U.S. Senate; or (3) another term as attorney general. If he chooses (1) this time, he might foreclose chances for (2) in the foreseeable future.

Possibly, he could go for (3) next year, and opt for (1) in '76.

But in a real sense, for (2) it may be '72 or never.

Here is the reasoning behind the assessment of the U.S. Senatorial picture which has wide acceptance among political observers.

Both Senators 75
The present Tar Heel Senators both will be 75 years old next September. B. Everett Jordan of Saxapahaw is 19 days the senior of Sam J. Ervin, Jr., of Morganton.

Jordan is up for re-election next year; Ervin, in 1974. Jordan maintains his recovery from cancer surgery last year is complete, and he remains an avowed candidate for a third, six-year term. There are persistent rumors that Ervin plans to retire when his term ends.

Age and health would be negative campaign factors should Jordan run. Ervin's departure would leave an open field for that seat.

Election of successors in the 40s age range would mean the offices likely would be settled for the next 25 to 30 years.

"If a man can't build his fences in six years [the Senate term of office], he ought to be beat," said one wise in the ways of politics.

History confirms it. Barring death or special circumstances, North Carolinians have tended to keep their U.S. Senators in office for long periods of time.

GOP Hazard Seen
What bothers nabobs of the North Carolina Democratic Party is the probability of stiff Republican challenges for the Senate seats. In the past, GOP assaults on the fortified positions of incumbents have been turned back. The outcome could be different in an open race, or if Democrats were in disarray after a tearing primary.

Privately, some high level Democrats voice reservations about Senator Jordan's candidacy. They'd like to see him step aside gracefully, and allow the party to bring forward a younger standard-bearer. Efforts to put such a bee in Jordan's ear have been disregarded or politely brushed away.

Should Jordan win the party nomination, the contrast of his age with a 40-ish Republican candidate might be difficult to overcome. If Jordan should be defeated in a primary, bruises could be inflicted on the winner which would seriously handicap the party in the fall general election.

The Republican threat causing greatest unease among Democrats, as far as the U.S. Senate is concerned, is Congressman James T. Broyhill of Lenoir.

Broyhill Star Bright
Personable, 44, business-oriented, Broyhill has been elected to Congress five times. Through a series of redistrictings, he's been exposed to more than one million Tar Heel voters in Piedmont and mountain counties. His statewide image is brightest of the four GOP Congressmen.

There are two views on whether Broyhill will run for the U.S. Senate: yes and no. Proponents of the first say he's keeping a low profile, speaking outside his district a bit more frequently, and waiting the right moment next fall or winter to announce. Those who hold the negative maintain Broyhill is a happy Congressman, certain of re-election and unlikely to risk that for the perhaps of a Senate race.

On the Democratic side, there's a stable of possibilities and Attorney General Morgan is only one of them.

Certainly Governor Bob Scott has thought about following his father's footsteps to Washington. He wouldn't run against Jordan, a distant kinsman, but might wait until Ervin's seat came up.

President Terry Sanford of Duke University, former Governor, talked about running against Senator Ervin last time. Would he return to politics for such a race in '74?

Recent Congressional redistricting by the state legislature may have created a Senate candidate. Congressman Nick Galifianakis might seek the higher office, since Orange County was sliced out of his Fourth District. It gave him his victory margin in past elections.

State Senator Marshall Rauch of Gaston is thinking seriously about running for the U.S. Senate, most likely in '74.

Under the bill passed by Congress the signalmen will receive a 13.5 per cent pay increase retroactive for the 16 months they have worked without a wage agreement. It forbids any resumption of the walkout before Oct. 1.

This latest transportation crisis is proof once again that the nation's economy will suffer drastically if the railroads are shut down. The freight trains haul too much cargo which is essential to keep our heavy industries operating.

The crisis also shows that we must have better ways of dealing with situations which will affect the movement of freight than we now have. In this case, the strike was underway and Congress had to take emergency action to bring it to an end.

Many observers now think that the strike will spur action in Congress on a presidential proposal for permanent legislation giving the president more powers to handle emergency strikes in transportation industries.

Certainly emergency action was called for by Congress this week to get the trains moving. Now laws should be drafted to provide some better way to handle such situations.

Rivals Are A Muskie Asset

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MILWAUKEE — Having entered Wisconsin Friday evening lacking even the semblance of a state organization, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine departed 48 hours as undisputed favorite for the key Wisconsin Presidential primary in April, 1972.

What makes this two-day triumph so remarkable is that Muskie's performance here was only so-so, thanks to persistently amateurish campaign operations. His speech to Saturday night's party fund-raiser in Milwaukee was hastily written, easily forgettable. Bone-tired because of an insanely arduous schedule, Muskie was more drowsy than dynamic during a televised press conference.

But Muskie has an invaluable asset: a mediocre field of opponents. The three other Democrats most likely to enter the Wisconsin primary — Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana, and Harold Hughes of Iowa — shared the banquet platform with him Saturday night. Of the four, only Muskie was perceived by $100-a-plate Democratic diners as the man who could defeat Richard M. Nixon.

Thus, Wisconsin provides more evidence that Muskie, astonishingly, has survived six months of blundering and may yet tie up the nomination.

Nowhere was the blundering worse than Wisconsin. While Muskie and his staff were preoccupied globe-trotting early this year, his opposition was busy in Wisconsin. Up to last weekend, almost all key Wisconsin Democratic politicians had been approached by McGovern, most by Bayh, some by Hughes — but none, literally none, by Muskie.

Accordingly, a month ago, Dist. Atty. Mike McCann of Milwaukee telephoned Jack English, Muskie's top political operative, in some alarm. McCann, a 34-year-old political comar, had started working for Muskie on his own with precious little help from Washington. Now, he told English, attention to organization in Wisconsin was desperately needed.

The inattention has irritated prominent figures. Businessman-politician David Carley, now a close ally of his former foe, Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, informed Muskie men last weekend that inattention was interpreted here as an arrogant assumption by Muskie that he could wrap up the state without lifting a finger.

Against this background, Muskie's weekend progress is impressive. English personally collected the names of 72 party activists for Muskie. An example: state Assemblyman Tony Earl of Wausau, a bright young liberal, had not heard a word from the Muskie camp. Yet, Earl last weekend indicated enthusiastic support for Muskie.

The answer is found in Muskie's opposition. McGovern has little more to show for his organizational head start than strength isolated in Madison, the state capital and state university city, and support from liberal militants habitually associated with losing causes. What little progress Bayh had made through backroom wooing of politicians (typified by a closed-door luncheon with state legislators Saturday) was nearly erased by melodramatic oratory Saturday night. Shrewd politicians here have felt Hughes ultimately might prove Muskie's foremost challenger, but his weekend behavior can only be described as erratic; when arrangements were not to his liking, Hughes angrily turned down 20 minutes of free television time in Milwaukee.

Democratic leaders are certain neither Sen. Edward M. Kennedy nor Sen. Hubert Humphrey will enter the Wisconsin primary. Not do most take seriously hinted Presidential ambitions by Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin; when Proxmire for President was mentioned to Milwaukee labor leaders, they exploded in raucous laughter.

That leaves Muskie, who wisely discarded a fighting anti-Vietnam speech by his newest speechwriter — Robert Shrum, late of New York Mayor John V. Lindsay's staff and still writing in superheated Lindsay style. The substitute, pasted together from old speeches, was unexciting but also undamaging.

Besides Muskie's chronic speechwriter problem, he was furious over a senseless schedule in Wisconsin. He (Continued on Page 6)

'No Fault' Has Faults

The President proclaimed National Transportation Week, whereupon the railway signalmen went out on strike. It was not an auspicious beginning, but Transportation Week does offer an appropriate opportunity to discuss one of the oldest and toughest legislative battles still kicking around the Hill: Automobile liability insurance.

As far back as 1967, a House Judiciary Committee report criticized the existing system as "unsatisfactory."

Congressional committees took thousands of pages of testimony in 1969. The department of Transportation recently completed a two-year study of auto insurance that wound up in 26 volumes. Commerce committees in both Senate and House are up to their ears in witnesses this spring.

The most controversial proposal, endorsed by the influential American Insurance Association, is embodied in S. 945, sponsored by Senators Hart of Michigan and Magnuson of Washington. In effect, their plan would scrap the existing system of tort liability under State supervision, in favor of a new "no-fault" system administered under Federal controls.

Senator Hart is principal spokesman for "no-fault." I think his approach is wrong, but let me summarize his position as fairly as I can.

The present set-up, he complains, is needlessly expensive, often unfair, and generally inefficient. In 1969, the thousand largest liability insurers took in $5.8 billion in premiums; their expenses, fees and costs were so large that only $2.4 billion, or 42 percent, actually was paid out in net benefits to claimants. The injured motorist with a small claim frequently gets more than he deserves, because there is a tendency to get him over and done with through out-of-court settlement. By contrast, the seriously injured person, who needs help most, waits an average of 16 months for his suit to crawl through crowded courts.

Senator Hart makes other points. The States, he contends, have been notoriously weak in supervising auto liability insurance. Americans travel widely across the land, crossing State lines constantly and thus creating a legitimate area for Federal legislation. And why, he asks, is it any more radical to eliminate the rule of "fault" in auto insurance than it is in fire insurance?

On this line of reasoning, the Hart-Magnuson bill would write into Federal law a "Uniform Motor Vehicle Insurance Act." Every (Continued on Page 6)

Other Editors Say Head In The Door

(Henderson Dispatch)

Governor Scott's request that a one-year training course for medical students be set up and financed immediately at East Carolina University will be exceedingly heartening to friends of the university who have fought long and hard for such a school there. At long last the camel has his head through the door and subsequent Legislatures will act further step by step until East Carolina ultimately gets what it wants and what the eastern part of the State so urgently needs.

Scott proposed that the one-year program be established as a starter for the normal four-year training course. His word and his influence will carry far toward the goal sought. He will not be in office long enough to see the full medical school provided, but he is doing what he can to get the ball rolling.

Many people think obstacles have been thrown across the path by certain elements who are possessed with a degree of jealousy and who have tried to block what ECU and the eastern counties are seeking. The Governor only a short while ago took a jibe at leaders who were demanding consideration beyond what he thought they need. Now he has taken his stand with friends of ECU in favoring a beginning for the proposed new school. It may be assumed, therefore, that a start has been made, as indeed it has.

Such a department at the Greenville school will not become a rival for any other State institution of higher learning. North Carolina has a shortage of doctors, as also of adequate hospital facilities. If such as to be provided by the State, ECU is by all odds the logical place for them.

Now that a start has been made, it will be hoped that there will be no more road blocks along the way. The school would definitely afford a measure of relief and contribute to the overall good health of the people of the eastern section of the State.

Double Talk Lesson

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Now is the time to come to the aid of your conversation with double talk.

This is the art of saying one thing while thinking another. Without the tension-relieving hypocrisy of double talk we'd all bite each other to death instead of trying to talk each other into rigor mortis.

For those who may need a brief brush-up course in double talk, here are a few examples of this vocal art form. The speaker's comment is in quotes, followed by what he actually thinks.

"I will not stoop to disparage or depreciate my worthy opponent." — He has more mud to throw at me than I have to throw at him.

"That certainly was a soul-stirring sermon you preached on the evils of temptation, Dr. Hardrock." — I wish he'd quit kicking the hell out of sin and say something cheerful sometime.

"When we get the signal, we simply break right through the police lines. Who do they think they're scaring with those clubs?" — Me!

"Naturally I'm not so old-fashioned as to be against free (Continued on Page 6)

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYNCOGHILL
May 20, 1931

It was revealed last night at the regular meeting of the American Legion that the Pitt County Post is holding its own from the standpoint of membership, despite the period which has existed through this area the last several months.

The Tidewater Power Company, with headquarters in Wilmington, today took over the gas plant in Greenville. It was stated also, today that the transfer would not affect the general office staff. J. T. Bland will continue as manager and Mrs. J. L. Carper as bookkeeper.

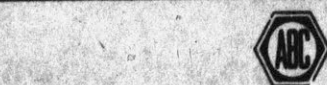

M. V. Horton, county game warden, returned from Weldon today where he obtained approximately 200,000 young rockfish for distribution in the Tar River. The fish were placed at the Pillsboro Bridge several miles west of Greenville and in the river at Greenville.

Greenville lost the annual relay race with Washington yesterday afternoon. It was the first time in five years that Washington High School had been able to win. By winning four consecutive years, Greenville was awarded permanent possession of the cup last year, and the series this year was for the possession of a new cup offered by the Washington Rotary Club.

Strength For Today

CATASTROPHE IN THE OFFERING

Theodore Roosevelt remarked many years ago that to educate a man's mind without educating his conscience is to make him a public menace. William James also remarked that an abundance of accomplishments in an unsatisfied heart only makes one a more accomplished devil.

Something of catastrophic proportions is going to happen in the modern world unless we realize that we cannot educate the mind of man and make him a happy being and a social asset unless we also educate his spirit. And the spirit can be educated precisely the same as the mind. We have the Bible and the ministry of the Church at our disposal. How we could have allowed secularism to creep into modern education to the extent it has is beyond understanding. We are cutting the ground out from under our feet by this pernicious policy. A few branches of the Christian Church have long recognized this and have taken determined steps to meet the menace. The others who falter and dally are opening themselves and their loved ones to the menace of disaster.

Moral conditions today are bad. Let no one tell you that they are not. We cannot correct these evil conditions with secular education. We must have religious education, and we must be earnest in our efforts.

What we face is catastrophe—nothing less. Let's get going.
By Earl L. Douglass

Dollar-Gold Link Still Needed

By ELMER ROESSNER
Senator Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., has proposed that Congress cut the link between the dollar and gold. He also called for an international conference to make the handling of international payments more flexible, thereby preventing raids such as beset the dollar last week.

COMMENT: There is trouble built into the present system. An American citizen cannot get gold for his dollars but a foreign government can. The American government, in an effort to restore prosperity, has been increasing the dollar supply, and the increase in dollars makes it easier to spend or invest them abroad. And those dollars can eventually become demands on our gold holdings, once around $24 billion and now around $11 billion. This creates a constant temptation, as it was to De Gaulle and last week was to European speculators, to raid the dollar. Eventually, it could wipe out our gold reserve.

However, the strength of the dollar rests on the fact that our paper money, when held by a foreign central bank, is as good as gold.

If our gold should flow away, we can rent Fort Knox to Disney.

Shrewd Observation
Last September, the Bulletin of the National Association of Purchasing Management said:

"A serious steel strike in 1971, followed by a recession in 1972, is certainly possible. The steel strike of 1959 was the cause of the 1960 recession which defeated Nixon. Similarly, the steel strike of 1971 can cause a recession in 1972 and again defeat Nixon."

COMMENT: The industrial purchasing agents of America are among the shrewdest economic observers in the country. They have to be to keep their jobs.

FTC To Study TV Advertising
The Federal Trade Commission is planning to start hearings on Sept. 13 to study the effects of advertising, especially TV, on consumers. It will study the impact of TV ads on children and on "consumers' physical, emotional and psychological responses to advertising."

COMMENT: That could include how much spice there is in a spicy meat ball. But it is more likely to result in a donnybrook, with mothers, late, late, late movie fans and other viewers exploding their pent-up feelings about TV advertising, and the television industry vigorously defending their techniques.

QUESTION: Will the networks cover the hearing live?

Volkswagen Profits Fall
Net profits of Volkswagen A. G. fell 42.4 per cent last year, its annual report shows. COMMENT: That's what comes from not having annual model changes.

Tire Registration Expensive
The federal tire registration regulations go into effect Saturday. Under the rules, tire companies will have to maintain a file of the names and addresses of purchasers of each model tire so that they may be readily recalled if a flaw is found in a model. Goodyear, which plans to store the data on microfilm, says it will cost the industry $7 million a year. COMMENT: If it saves a few lives, it will be worth it.

Shriners To Rally Friday

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Imperial Potentate of North American Shriners will be the honored guest here Friday and Saturday when Shriners of Sudan Temple hold their annual spring ceremonial. Imperial Potentate Aubrey G. Graham of Norfolk, Va., will head the list of notables on hand. Some 5,000 Shriners from Eastern North Carolina are expected to attend.

Kilpatrick Col.

motorist would have to carry his own insurance policy. If he were injured in an accident, regardless of whose fault it was, his own company would at once pay his "net economic losses" up to a certain maximum. Some of the alternative bills, offered by others, would permit old-fashioned "pain and suffering" suits beyond the cut-off point.

It is possible to concede most of the senator's points, and still doubt the wisdom of his revolutionary plan. Conservatives will raise two broad objections: (1) The very concept of "no-fault" does violence to the principle of personal responsibility, which holds, in this context, that the innocent ought not to be penalized or the guilty rewarded. And (2), the Hart-Magnuson plan would strike one more blow against the valued structure of American federalism.

Under this bill, the irresponsible drunk driver is promptly made whole. His innocent victim stands to get nothing beyond his "net economic losses," which is a tricky clause in the plan. Only in the most serious injury cases could the victim hope to recover any compensation for the pain, inconvenience, and personal hardship he suffers. Hart's scheme, at bottom, is simply unfair.

One by one, States are beginning to consider reform in auto insurance. Massachusetts instituted a "no-fault" plan in January. The American Bar Association is urging a number of sensible proposals short of scrapping tort liability altogether. The American Mutual Insurance Alliance offers an attractive compromise. Many other avenues are opening—in car safety, driver education, sterner court procedures—that could bring reduction in premium costs. This is one of those baby and the bath water things. We ought not to throw out a whole body of law and tradition unless we know exactly what we are doing. Senator Hart, with deference, can't say that he knows.

In addition to a business session, the Shriners will have dances, a golf tournament and special events for the ladies. And there will be the traditional uniformed parade.

Sudan Temple is one of two Shrine temples in North Carolina. Its headquarters is in New Bern. The other temple—Oasis—has its headquarters in Charlotte.

North American Shriners support 19 hospitals for crippled children and three institutes for the treatment of severe burns. Money is raised for them through fish fries, football

JC Convention Starting Today

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — About 2,500 North Carolina Jaycees and their wives are expected in Winston-Salem today for a three-day convention of the state organization.

After a dance tonight, the Jaycees will get down to business Friday. That night Milton Harrington, president and chief executive officer of Liggett and Myers, Inc., will speak at a banquet.

Officers will be elected Saturday. Jim Cochran of Albemarle and Avery Nye of Fairmont are running for president to succeed Bill Hobbs of Forest City.

Irrational scheduling, uncoordinated speechwriting, and tardy organization ordinarily add up to defeat. There is, then, a major message in the fact that every Wisconsin population center — except Madison — shows Ed Muskie well ahead with his organization effort just beginning.

Kindergarten Plans Readied

Principal Joseph Smith, Jr. of Agnes Fullilove Kindergarten has announced plans for the forthcoming 1971-1972 kindergarten school term.

Children now five years old or who will be five years old on or before October 15, 1971, and who live with their parents or guardians in the Greenville City School District are eligible to enroll.

Teachers and staff members of Agnes Fullilove are having an orientation-registration meeting for parents of kindergarten age children. This is to be held in the school auditorium at 8:00 p.m. Monday.

Parents coming to the meeting to register their children need not bring children to the meeting.

Principal Smith noted that earlier a form letter with a census sheet had been sent to all parents or guardians known to have a child eligible for the 1971-1972 kindergarten program.

However, parents who may have been missed in the census survey are urged to attend the meeting for the registration-orientation program.

Parents who received the form letter and application are asked to bring the completed form Monday night, along with a copy of the child's birth certificate and a record of immunization.

Before a child can enter kindergarten, he must be vaccinated for smallpox and immunized against tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough, and polio.

Such vaccinations and immunizations must be completed prior to the opening of the school year.

Parents or guardians wanting additional information on the 1971-1972 kindergarten program are asked to telephone 752-2444.

Turks Ignore Death Threat

ISTANBUL (AP) — The Turkish government pressed on today with its hunt for Israeli Consul-General Ephraim Elrom and his kidnapers despite their threat to kill him unless all political prisoners were released by tonight.

The deadline was 5 p.m. or 11 a.m. EDT.

The government made clear it would not comply with the demand from the terrorists of the People's Liberation Army. The nationwide roundup continued, and the total number jailed this week neared 1,000.

The government also approved a new law providing capital punishment for kidnapers and making the penalty retroactive, to apply to terrorists already held for previous kidnappings. The law is to be submitted to Parliament in a few days for ratification.

The army ordered newspapers not to print an appeal from Elrom's wife to the kidnapers, asking them to let him go as an act of "human compassion."

Four youths kidnaped Elrom when he came home to lunch Monday. A letter from him to his wife, mailed Tuesday in an Istanbul district, said: "I am OK. Do not worry."

The police said they had found the car used by the kidnapers in an Istanbul park. On Tuesday the police said they had arrested a student who was one of the kidnapers.

Spellman Award To McCormacks

SPARKILL, N.Y. (AP) — Former House Speaker John W. McCormack and his wife, Harriet, have received the Cardinal Spellman Award granted by St. Thomas Aquinas College at its commencement.

The award cited them as "a couple whose lives demonstrate the type of continually creative fidelity through which two persons have helped each other to grow humanly."

Terence Cardinal Cooke, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, presented the award Wednesday to Robert M. O'Brien, a onetime McCormack aide. The college said the McCormacks had remained in Boston, where Mrs. McCormack had taken ill.

Jury Acquits Sheriff, Deputy In Beating Case

OPELIKA, Ala. (AP) — Negro sheriff Lucius Amerson says the all-white jury which acquitted him in the beating of a black prisoner faced and met a challenge to show the world that it could reach a verdict based on the facts devoid of any racial consideration.

And he told the newsmen following his acquittal Wednesday that the outcome of the trial shows "justice can prevail and did prevail."

The jury of seven men and five deliberated 65 minutes before finding Amerson and his Negro chief deputy, Richard Coleman Jr., innocent in the beating of a prisoner who had exchanged gunshots with officers at the Macon County jail in nearby Tuskegee nine months ago.

A federal grand jury indicted them on a charge of violating the civil rights of Wilbert Deu Harris with intent to inflict "summary punishment" because of the gun battle.

Harris was being booked on a drunk driving charge last August 22 when he pulled a hidden gun from his clothing, disarmed two deputies and, using their weapons and his own, began firing at Amerson and the other officers. The deputies fled the jail and returned the fire from outside.

After he was acquitted Amerson told reporters, "The only thing left for me to do is go back home and do my job, and it's a hard job, and treat the people with courtesy."

He and Coleman had just left the office of U.S. Dist. Judge Robert E. Varner who had presided at the trial. Varner had called the two defendants into his chambers immediately after the trial, but neither the judge nor the officers would say afterwards what went on.

Amerson, 37, if serving his second term as sheriff in predominantly Negro Macon County. When he took office in January, 1967 he was the first black sheriff in Alabama since Reconstruction days following the Civil War.

Since then three other predominantly Negro counties — Bullock, Greene and Lowndes — have elected black sheriffs. One of them, H.O. Williams of Bullock, was a defense witness for Amerson and Coleman.

Williams, who was then the Democratic nominee for sheriff, was visiting Tuskegee and was at the jail when the gun-battle erupted.

'Too Late' For Restructuring Higher Education

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Despite prodding by Gov. Bob Scott, there is increasing sentiment that this session of the General Assembly will not act on the controversial issue of restructuring higher education in North Carolina.

This was indicated in a sampling of opinion among several legislators by the Associated Press.

"If the Warren committee that studied the issue can't agree on it, how do they expect us to agree on it?" said veteran Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover.

"In my opinion," he added, "when the General Assembly passes the big appropriations and budget bills, we're heading home."

"I agree with Burney," said Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Nash.

Former Sen. Lindsay Warren Jr., of Goldsboro, head of the committee which has studied higher education for months, announced recently the group voted 13-8 in favor of placing a coordinating board over the state-supported universities.

Gov. Bob Scott told a news conference Monday he feels the issue of restructuring higher education is so important it should be acted on before the General Assembly adjourns.

House Speaker Phil Godwin said he felt it was "too late in the session" to give adequate consideration to it.

"I don't think the time element will prevent us from considering it," said Sen. W.W. Staton, D-Lee, "but I seriously doubt that it will be acted upon at this session."

Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Hallifax, said, "I definitely don't think any action will be taken on it."

"There was so much division in the committee," said Allsbrook, "that I don't see how the legislature could resolve the issue at this time."

Some legislators have suggested a special legislative session to handle the higher education question. These include Sen. Carl Killian, D-Jackson, and Rep. James Vogler, D-Mecklenburg, dean of the House.

"It will be a holy war," said Killian, "but I predict the Warren Committee report will finally be adopted."

Vogler said he doesn't see how the General Assembly can handle the issue "unless they run us into August. I don't think sentiment has jelled enough to bring about reorganization of higher education. The people are not aroused on this issue. I'm of the opinion it should be handled by a special session of the legislature."

Rep. Clarence Leatherman, D-Lincoln, said the higher education question is so important "I'll stay here in session and eat Christmas dinner if necessary to get the job done."

He added, "I think higher education is one of the areas that should be looked at or we are headed for total dissension at the state-supported universities. This will be the hottest-fought thing the legislature has tackled in many years."

Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, said, "My first preference would be to hold a special session or delay the issue until the 1973 session. But I'm willing to stay here and work on it."

Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, said, "It's a matter that should be handled whatever time it takes."

Rep. Jim Johnson, R-Cabarrus, said he feels "we would be derelict in our duty if we let this ride for two years, but I don't think we are going to tackle it at this session."

Gov. Scott will outline his recommendations in an address to a joint session of the House and Senate Tuesday at 12:30 p.m.

Sen. Norris Reed, D-Craven, said he is interested in what the governor will say, but "I think the final determination of what to do should be made by the General Assembly."

Concerning Gov. Scott's prodding, Sen. Ruffin Bailey, D-Wake, said: "I don't think we should be under the gun to consider an act on it. Two years delay won't make that much difference."

Laotians Abandon Plateau To N. Viets

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The Royal Laotian Army has abandoned its last outpost on the Bolovens plateau in southern Laos, giving North Vietnam more supply routes down to Cambodia and South Vietnam. Military sources in Vientiane said commanders in southern Laos ordered the evacuation Wednesday of Houei Kong, 300 miles southeast of the Laotian capital, because the isolated outpost could not withstand an expected attack.

The sources said the troops withdrawing westward clashed several times with the North Vietnamese, but there were no casualty reports.

North Vietnamese forces captured the other two government posts on the Bolovens plateau, the towns of Pak Song and Ban Houei Sai, on Sunday and inflicted heavy casualties on the defenders.

Informed sources in Saigon said electronic monitors indicate that enemy truck traffic through the panhandle is "relatively light" because of the southwest monsoons. But U.S. B52 bombers, which operate above the rain clouds, kept up their raids on the Ho Chi Minh trail.

In South Vietnam, allied forces battled North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops Wednesday only 25 miles from Saigon, at four points around the A Shau valley and on two sides of the U Minh forest in the Mekong delta. Communiques said 79 of the enemy and 22 South Vietnamese were killed, and 47 South Vietnamese and six Americans were wounded.

On the third Indochina battleground, Cambodia, a new drive was reported under way south of Phnom Penh aimed at opening an alternate government supply route from the sea.

The U.S. Command disclosed a third "protective reaction" air strike inside North Vietnam this week, the 41st this year. It said two Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bombers on Tuesday destroyed a 57mm antiaircraft gun that fired on them while they were attacking the Ho Chi Minh trail. The planes were not hit. The gun was a mile inside North Vietnam near the Ban Karai pass and 35 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. Command also reported that 24 American servicemen were killed in combat last week, 27 died from nonhostile causes and 240 were wounded. It was the lowest toll of battle dead in three months and the first time in five months that nonhostile deaths exceeded those in combat. South Vietnamese headquarters reported 280 government troops killed last week, while the allied commands claimed 1,400 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed.

In the fighting in Vietnam Wednesday—

A U.S. armored column protecting bulldozers ripping through enemy base camps 25 miles northwest of Saigon ran into 100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops. U.S. fighter-bombers, helicopter gunships and artillery pounded the enemy while the American ground forces held back to keep casualties down.

The U.S. Command said six Americans were wounded, one armored personnel carrier was destroyed and two bulldozers were damaged. Enemy losses were not known.

A U.S. bulldozer operation has been under way in the region since April 1 to clear the Boi Loi woods so the enemy cannot use them for hideouts and storage areas. Seven American and more than 60 enemy troops have been reported killed, about 100 Americans have been wounded, and numerous bulldozers, tanks and armored personnel carriers have been knocked out. The area is thick with mines and booby traps.

The South Vietnamese suffered their heaviest losses Wednesday—17 killed and 12 wounded—in a battle east of the U Minh forest, about 125 miles southwest of Saigon. But Saigon reported 40 of the enemy killed with the help of air and artillery strikes.

In the northern part of the U Minh, other South Vietnamese infantrymen killed 11 enemy soldiers while only four of their own men were wounded, field reports said.

Twenty-eight North Vietnamese troops were reported killed in four clashes with South Vietnamese on the mountain slopes around the northern end of the A Shau valley, one of the major enemy supply and base areas in the northern provinces.

Field reports said five South Vietnamese were killed and 31 wounded in the action near the Laotian border about 375 miles north of Saigon.

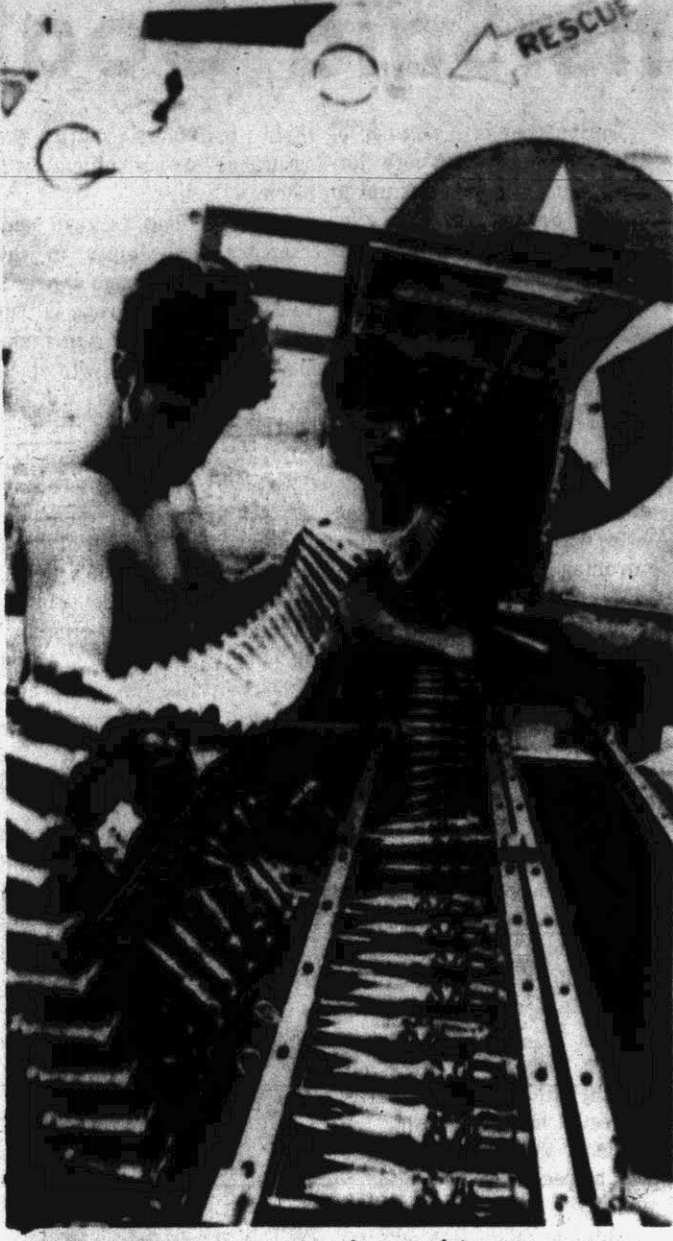

The U.S. Command said a UH1 helicopter was shot down on the eastern edge of the valley Sunday, and the four crewmen are missing.

In Cambodia, government forces launched a large-scale drive to cut enemy supply lines south of Phnom Penh and open a new supply route to Phnom Penh from the sea.

Repeated government attempts have failed to keep open Highway 4, the shortest and best road to the seaport of Kompong Som. Now the army is trying to reopen the longer route via Highway 3, which runs from Phnom Penh south to Kampot and then west along the Gulf of Siam to Kompong Som, Cambodia's deep-water port.

Community Seeks To Become A Town, Avoid Annexation

OAKDALE, N.C. (AP) — If the deadline Oakdale is unfamiliar now, it may not be in a few months.

Residents of Oakdale want to become North Carolina's newest incorporated town.

Oakdale is an area containing about 5,500 residents in northern Mecklenburg County. It touches the city of Charlotte on one end and extends toward Lake Norman along N.C. 16 on another.

A petition with about 1,400 signatures of Oakdale residents has been sent to the General Assembly asking for legislation allowing them to hold an incorporation election. The petitioners maintain they don't want to be annexed to Charlotte because of the higher taxes that will result.

There is precedent for such action. The town of Mint Hill northeast of Charlotte became an incorporated community this spring, joining others such as Davidson, Pineville, Matthews, Huntersville and Cornelius.

The petitioners have outlined an area that may become the second largest municipality in the county.

Officials at Charlotte's City Hall are not in favor of Oakdale's becoming a formal town. Mayor John Belk said Wednesday: "I think it would be detrimental from the city's angle and also from the county's."

One city councilman said creating a ring of small communities around Charlotte would not be in the public interest. He added, "Cities that get hemmed in this way just face fiscal ruin."

No plans for annexing Oakdale are imminent in Charlotte, and the area is not in a list of 11 areas pinpointed two years ago in an annexation study.

Rep. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, is handling the Oakdale petition in the legislature. He told fellow Mecklenburg lawmakers Wednesday persons there "don't want to be gobbled up."

Political promoter and advertising executive David Kelly took the petition to Raleigh Wednesday. His documents include a proposed charter, which would make him interim mayor until a former incorporation election and selection of town officers could be held.

The responsibilities and obligations of an incorporated community haven't been clearly de-

The ninth annual Miss Greenville contest will be held Friday at 8 p.m. in the St. Gabriel school auditorium.

Sponsored by the Les Gaylenettes, eight contestants will be competing in the event. They are: Yvonne Staton, Brenda Coward, Annette Carney, Phyllis Joyner, Angel Bynum, Suzanne Streeter, Denise Anderson and Charetta Reid.

The current Miss Greenville is Yvonne Brucette Jones.

The girls will compete in evening gown, talent and cultural competition.

Dave Hammond will serve as master of ceremonies. Evangeline Grant of the WNCT-TV show "Together With Evangeline" will also participate in the contest activities. Special music will be presented by Johnny Wooten and W. L. Morris Jr.

Tickets for the event, costing $1 each, may be purchased at the door.

Would Bar N.C. Action

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate has before it a bill forbidding the state to acquire Bald Head Island.

Sen. Bunn Frink, D-Brunswick, told newsmen he had enough support to pass the measure which would encourage private development of the island.

"If I did not think I had the votes to pass it, I wouldn't have drafted and introduced it," Frink told newsmen after introducing the bill.

"The majority of the senators I've talked with favor the bill," Frink added. "The biggest opposition is from the governor and the State Department of Conservation and Development."

The governor recently urged the General Assembly to authorize the state to acquire the island by condemnation proceedings and keep it in its natural state.

The Carolina Cape Fear Corp., headed by William R. Henderson of High Point, now owns the island and has announced plans to develop it.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices moved ahead in moderate trading today, continuing the modest upswing begun Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks at 11 a.m. was up 6.53 to 926.57.

Advances outnumbered declines on the New York Stock Exchange by 3 to 2.

Analysts said the upturn was an extension of Wednesday's rally, when bargain hunters began nibbling at what was considered by some a heavily over-sold market.

Commercial Solvent, which recently won approval from the Italian government to market a new heart drug, was ahead 2½ to 39¼. General Electric was up 4½ to 124¼; Lockheed, off ½ to 11¼; Mattel, down 1 to 43¼; TWA, up 1 to 30½; and Teledyn, off ¼ to 27½.

On the American Stock Exchange, General Battery was off ¼ to 27½; Cinerama, up ¼ to 5½; Syntex, up 1½ to 66; Sierra-cin, off ¼ to 17½; and McCulloch Oil N, up ¼ to 11½.

Pharmacist At Drug Symposium

Frank Hemingway, a pharmacist from Bethel, attended a symposium on drug interactions at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington last weekend.

Sponsored by the UNC School of Pharmacy at Chapel Hill, the symposium was held to build an awareness among practicing pharmacists of certain complications which may occur with multiple drug therapy.

Hemingway is a graduate of the Medical College of Virginia School of Pharmacy.

Russian Probe Of Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — An unmanned Soviet space vehicle headed toward Mars today for another attempt to gather information about the only other planet scientists think might harbor some form of life.

Tass announced that the "automatic interplanetary station" Mars 2 was launched Wednesday night and was expected to complete its 300-million-mile journey by November. The news agency did not say whether the five-ton craft would attempt a soft landing.

Mars 2 will carry out research "about the planet Mars and the space surrounding it," the official news agency said, and will study "the characteristics of solar plasma, cosmic rays and the radiation situation."

Tass said all instruments were functioning normally and incoming information was being processed.

The U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration has postponed indefinitely the launching of Mariner 9 toward Mars while it investigates the failure of Mariner 8, which plunged into the Atlantic when it was launched May 8. Mars 2 weighs almost five times as much as Mariner 9.

The United States sent three Mariner spacecraft on successful fly-by missions to Mars in the 1960s. The third, Mariner 7, came within 2,000 miles of the planet's south polar ice cap in August 1969.

LOBSTER TALKS AT SEA — East Coast fishermen and U.S. government officials approach the command vessel of the Soviet fishing fleet in lifeboats from the Cutter Duane, Wednesday morning, for talks to resolve differences on fishing on the Continental shelf. The talks took place aboard the Soviet Bykhee near Nantucket Lightship, 80 miles southeast of Boston. (AP Wirephoto)

U.S. Lobstermen Complain Russians Resume Harassing

By HARRY A. EISENBERG

Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A U.S. lobster boat said a Soviet fishing trawler cut through its lobster gear early today, only hours after American and Russian officials met at sea to discuss alleged harassment of Yankee lobstermen.

Following the five-hour meeting Wednesday aboard a Russian ship, a State Department

Speeds Posted In Kilometers

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Speed limits now are posted in the kilometers as well as miles per hour in the Rocket City.

Some 268 of the metric signs have been erected on major thoroughfares in Huntsville, where the Apollo moon rocket was born.

For instance a 40 miles per hour sign has a 65 kilometers per hour sign below it.

The signs were provided by the metrication committee at Marshall Space Flight Center in an effort to make people aware of the metric system.

negotiator said the behavior of the 120-vessel Russian fleet in the next three weeks would determine whether the meeting was successful.

Today's charge was made by the Westport-based Pat-San-Marie, which last weekend also reported Soviet bloc boats tore loose her lobster gear.

The Pat-San-Marie told the Coast Guard 16 foreign trawlers crisscrossed through her lobster gear through the night about 20 miles south of Nantucket Lightship.

The area is about 30 miles from the site of Wednesday's Russian-American parley.

The Coast Guard ordered the cutter Active to investigate the Pat-San-Marie report. The Active had been on patrol nearby.

Following Wednesday's meeting, State Department negotiator Donald L. McKernan termed the talks "reasonably successful."

McKernan headed an 11-member U.S. group that conferred Wednesday with the commander of the Soviets' Atlantic fishing fleet.

The alleged harassment has involved the Soviets sailing through the Americans' lobster fishing area, their trawls snapping the Americans' lines and damaging their equipment.

McKernan said the commander of the Soviet fleet, Yuri I. Radtseve, agreed to instruct his fleet to be more careful of fixed lobster gear.

Queen Asks For Allowance Hike

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has asked Parliament for the first increase in the allowance for herself and other members of the royal family since she became sovereign 19 years ago.

"Her majesty regrets that developments in the intervening years have made that provision inadequate for the maintenance of that standard of service to her people to which she believes they wish her and her family to adhere," her message said.

Court sources said the queen now receives $1.02 million annually and needs about $1.92 million. She offered to give up $144,000 that Parliament allots her annually for purely personal expenses.

The purpose of a number of their problems, with the assurance that such officials will list. "For too long," Moyer said, "serious complaints in the department have gone unheard. The feeling of the group is that as one, we can and will make known our problems with some expectation that we will be heard."

A number of local policemen met Tuesday night to hear officials of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers—an independent union—explain advantages of a union. The group also heard members of the New Bern IBPO local outline advantages of an organization.

Moyer, who this morning said 34 local officers have joined the union, indicated better working conditions the men are seeking include "more training...definite personnel policies...and promotions based upon merit and qualifications..."

He noted officers also are seeking the establishment of a board, composed of "one councilman, one patrolman, one department officer and one citizen to hear and act on complaints dealing with officers."

Moyer, speaking for the union, said the officers are "primarily interested in providing for the people of the city an effective and respected police department."

"This," he said, "can only be accomplished when the group can make known to officials

Blue Fits Into Oakland Color Scheme Immanuel Beats Presbyterian

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Fort Knox gold, Kelly green and wedding gown white, you'd hardly expect the Oakland A's to fit any more colors into their scheme.

They have, though—Blue. Not just plain Blue. But Vida Blue.

"You have to make up new words to describe him," Oakland Manager Dick Williams says of his super southpaw with the blurring-white fastball.

Blue continues to color blind American League batters and,

Wednesday night, won his ninth straight game with a three-hit, 3-0 whitewashing of Milwaukee. Not incidentally, it was the fifth shutout for the dazzling 22-year-old.

"I'm learning as I go along," says Blue, who must be one of the fastest learners in baseball. The only time he lost was on Opening Day to the Washington Senators.

In the other American League games, Kansas City beat Chicago 2-0; Detroit humbled Cleveland 12-1; Boston whipped New York 7-2; Baltimore topped Washington 4-1 and Minnesota creamed California 12-6.

National League: Chicago 9, San Francisco 5; Los Angeles 6, St. Louis 5; San Diego 2, Houston 1 in 10 innings; Pittsburgh 6, Cincinnati 1; Atlanta 10, Montreal 4 and Philadelphia 4, New York 1.

Blue, who pitched a one-hitter and a no-hitter last season after being called up to the big time from the minors in September, says he still is not completely confident on the mound. He points to catcher Dave Duncan as an ego-builder.

Blue had control problems in the early innings, walking a batter in each of the first three frames, but got better as it got later and wound up pitching one of his strongest games.

After the rocky beginning, Blue at one point retired 10 batters in a row before Danny Walton's single opened the seventh. The only other Milwaukee hits were singles by Roberto Pena in the third and Ron Theobald in the eighth.

What did Williams have to say about his brightest star on a pitching-rich staff: "Well, he's not much of a hitter," Williams quipped.

Mike Hedlund unfurled a six-hitter with last-out relief help from Ted Abernathy as Kansas City shaded Chicago on Paul Schaal's run-scoring triple in the sixth inning and Amos Otis' home run in the seventh.

Chicago's Bart Johnson handcuffed Kansas City on one hit until the sixth when Schaal's triple chased home Ed Kirkpatrick, who had walked. Otis cracked his seventh homer off reliever Joel Hoerner to give Hedlund an insurance run. Abernathy retired pinch-hitter Walt Williams for the final out after singles by Ed Herrmann and Mike Andrews.

Dick McAuliffe knocked in four runs with a home run and double and Al Kaline unloaded his first two homers of the year as Detroit scored in every inning but the seventh and steam-rolled Cleveland.

McAuliffe doubled home two runs in the fourth, then lashed a two-run homer in the eighth during a five-run spurge. Mickey Lolich breezed to his sixth victory, allowing six hits in the seven innings he worked, and built his lifetime mark to 22-8 over the Indians.

Unbeaten Sonny Siebert nailed down his seventh victory as Boston beat New York. Reggie Smith's two-run homer in the seventh snapped a 2-2 tie and the Red Sox scored three more times in the eighth. Siebert struggled most of the way, giving up eight hits, walking four and hitting one batter before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. The Yankees scored in the fourth on a bases-loaded walk to pitcher Steve Kline and in the seventh on Roy White's sacrifice fly which temporarily tied the game.

The Baltimore Orioles scored two runs without a hit in the first inning and spoiled a sparkling pitching debut by 21-year-old Mike Thompson. The Senators' rookie, called up from the minors only last Sunday, allowed just one single to pitcher Jim Palmer in seven innings of work. Palmer checked Washington on five hits to notch his sixth victory.

Tony Oliva socked his 10th homer and drove in three runs and Charmin' Harmon Killebrew delivered three more with a two-run single and bases-loaded walk as Minnesota wiped out an early 5-2 California lead to beat the Angels.

Immanuel Baptist shut out First Presbyterian, 5-0, and Oakland nipped Belvoir, 23-22, in a 14-inning marathon in last night's Church Softball League action. In other games, Piney Grove downed First Christian, 16-3, and Mt. Pleasant nipped Trinity, 10-9.

Immanuel, in winning held its lead in the National Division of the league with a 6-1 record, while Piney Grove is second at 5-2. They are followed by Mt. Pleasant, 4-2; Oakland, 4-4; Black Jack, 3-4; Grace, 3-5; and Marantha, 1-6.

St. James regained sole possession of first in the American Division as Presbyterian lost. St. James is 5-1, while Presbyterian and Meadowbrook are both 5-2. They are followed by Belvoir, 4-3; Christian, 3-5; St. Gabriel, 1-6; and Trinity, 1-7.

Immanuel got all it needed in the first inning of its game with Presbyterian, scoring twice. Jim Grimsley singled and Mack Roebuck scored him with a triple. Sid Carraway singled to score Roebuck for a 2-0 lead.

Immanuel added a run in the second and got two more in the fourth for their five run total.

Belvoir and Oakland wrapped up in a real marathon, going 14 innings before finally deciding it. Belvoir scored five runs in the first, but Oakland came back with eight in the second. Belvoir got two more in the third, but Oakland came back with eight in the second. Belvoir got two more in the third, but Oakland got eight in the fourth for a 16-7 lead.

Playoff Games Set

Two Martin County baseball teams, advancing in the State 1-A and 2-A baseball playoffs, will meet second round opponents on Friday.

Robersonville, which beat Ayden, 4-3, Tuesday, takes on Manteo in the second round of the 1-A playoffs. That game will be played at Mattamuskeet High School Friday at 4 p.m.

Williamston, a 6-3 winner over Swansboro in the first game, will take on Wake Forest in the second round. That game will be played in Rocky Mount at 8 p.m. Friday.

Belvoir added two more in the fifth, but Oakland countered that with two on a homer by Archie Moseley. Belvoir then exploded for 10 in the sixth, including a homer by Bob Pollard, taking a 19-18 lead. But in the seventh, Oakland got a run to tie it up. Both scored a run in the ninth, making it 20-20, and both got two in the 12th. Earl Tripp hit a two-run homer for Belvoir, and Danny Singleton got a homer for Oakland.

Finally, in the 14th, Don Leggett slapped a two-out homer for Oakland, ending the game.

Piney Grove scored five runs in the first inning to take the lead for good in its game with Christian. Jimmy Evans tripled and Wayne Avery walked. William Nichols doubled and George Darden tripled. Jimmy Mills got a hit, and scored on Graham Crawford's single with the final run of the inning.

Piney Grove added two in the second as Avery homered, then picked up seven in the third, one in the fourth and one in the fifth. Christian scored one in the second on Sheron Bennett's homer, then got two more in the sixth.

Trinity took the early lead in its game, scoring three runs in the first. Mt. Pleasant came up with one in the second, and then tied it up with two in the fourth. Three more in the fifth put Mt. Pleasant ahead, but Trinity rallied for three in the top of the sixth. Mt. Pleasant got two more in the sixth, but Trinity regained the lead at 9-8 with three runs in the seventh.

But Mt. Pleasant came back with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to win it. With two outs Harold Barnes singled and scored the tying run on a triple by Sidney Scott. Bobby Bullock singled him over with the winning run.

Unser Says McLarens Have Big Advantage In Indianapolis 500

By DALE BURGESS

Associated Press Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — "The McLarens have a bigger advantage than Parnelli Jones' STP turbine had in 1967," said Bobby Unser, who will start beside the Mark 16 McLarens of Peter Revson and Mark Donohue in the front row of the 55th 500-mile race May 29 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Vince Granatelli, who was Jones' chief mechanic in the 1967 race, nodded agreement.

"Look at the qualifying figures," said Unser, the 1968

Indy winner. Revson took the pole last Saturday at 178.696 miles an hour beating the 177.087 of Donohue, who had done over 180 in practice.

Bobby Unser did 175.816 in a Gurney Eagle with a turbo-charged Offenhauser engine similar to that used by the McLarens.

In 1967, Jones and his Pratt & Whitney turbine engine were only the sixth-fastest qualifier at 166.075. Mario Andretti won the pole at 168.962 with a conventional engine but lost a wheel in the race.

Jones ran away from the field in the first lap and led A. J. Foyt Jr. by two miles when a bearing failed with 10 miles to go.

Vince Granatelli, whose brother Andy heads the STP gasoline and oil additive company, is still doing a slow burn over complaints that Jones was "sandbagging" in practice and qualifications for the 1967 race.

Sandbagging is deliberately turning one corner at relatively slow speed on each lap, varying the corner, in order to give deceptively low average speeds to observers. An easier, more obvious way is to hold down straightaway speeds.

"No driver is going to sandbag," Granatelli insisted, "getting ready for this race." Bobby Unser, chatting with the STP master mechanic during a Thursday shower, agreed.

The USAC committee since then has reduced the air intake area allowed turbine engines on two occasions, virtually taking them out of competition.

Jaycees Down Coke By 7-3

The Jaycees picked up their first win of the year yesterday, downing winless Coca-Cola, 7-3, in the North State Little League.

The Jaycees put together all they needed in the first three innings of the game, then coasted home for the win.

The Optimists continue to lead the league with a 3-0 record just ahead of the Kiwanis, 2-0. They are followed by the Jaycees, 1-1, the Lions and R. C. Cola, both 1-2, and Coke, 0-3.

Three Jaycee runs crossed in the first inning. Jay Holt walked and Bill Myers advanced him with a single. Charles MacLawnhorn walked, loading the bases. Danny Boyd singled, scoring both Holt and Myers. Charles Phillips added another single, scoring MacLawnhorn with the third run.

Coke tried to rally in the bottom of the inning and came up with two runs. Mark Berbert and Gary Chapman both walked. Jerome Ross and Greg Lassiter followed them the same way, scoring Berbert. A balk then scored Chapman with the other run.

The Jaycees came back with three more runs in the second. Bill Collier singled and moved up on an error, stealing third. Holt singled, and Myers reached on an error, scoring Collier. MacLawnhorn singled and a hit by Billy Williams brought in Holt and Myers for a 6-2 lead.

The final Jaycee run came in the third. Scott Creech walked, took second on a passed ball and scored when Collier reached on an error.

The last Coke run came in the fifth. Ronnie Chapman singled and moved up on Will Sanderson's fielder's choice. Berbert and Gary Chapman both walked, forcing in Ronnie Chapman.

Collier, who came on in relief early in the game, allowed only two hits by the Coke.

Noc-A-Homa Getting Workout This Week

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Mike Lum's new bats and Clete Boyer's old legs have had a brisk workout, but it's nothing compared to the exercise Chief Noc-A-Homa's been getting this week.

Lum and Boyer each drove in three runs with a pair of homers Wednesday night, sending Atlanta mascot Noc-A-Homa into orbit four times as the fence-busting Braves shelled the Montreal Expos 10-4.

Lum, filling in for sore-legged slugger Hank Aaron, belted his second and third homers of the season while breaking in a new set of bats delivered just before the game.

Boyer crashed his second homer of the night—and sixth in his last eight starts—after chugging around the bases earlier in the game for an apparent inside-the-park shot which, in reality, had cleared the fence and caromed off Noc-A-Homa's teepee back onto the field.

The Chief, who celebrates each Atlanta homer with a war dance, has been gyrating at a marathon pace in the Braves' last three games. They have walloped 11 homers—to seven for the opposition—while winning all three to move within 7½ games of pace-setting San Francisco in the National League West.

There have been 59 homers hit in 21 games at Atlanta this season—30 by the home team.

The Chicago Cubs thumped the Giants 9-5 in an afternoon game behind the two-homer, six-RBI slugging of Billy Williams.

In other NL night games, Pittsburgh whipped Cincinnati 6-1; Philadelphia trimmed the New York Mets 4-1; Los Angeles nipped St. Louis 6-5 and San Diego edged Houston 2-1 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Boston thrashed the New York Yankees 7-2; Baltimore topped Washington 4-1; Detroit bombed Cleveland 12-1; Oakland beat Milwaukee 3-0; Kansas City took the Chicago White Sox 2-0 and Minnesota rocked California 12-6.

Boyer, who has homered in each of the last three games, capped a five-run Atlanta flurry in the third inning with his two-run inside-the-park wallop that wasn't.

The ball ticked off the glove of left fielder Jim Gosger and ricocheted off Noc-A-Homa's wigwag beyond the fence. Neither Boyer nor the umpires were aware it had gone out.

Confirmation that the ball had cleared the barrier came from Noc-A-Homa between innings, and what would have been the first inside-the-park homer of Boyer's 16-year major league career went by the boards.

Boyer led off the sixth with a drive far over the left field fence and Lum followed with another homer to right. Lum completed the long-ball barrage with a two-run blast in the eighth.

At Chicago, Williams smacked a three-run homer in the first inning a bases-empty homer in the third and a two-run triple in the sixth, powering the Cubs to their seventh victory in eight games.

J.C. Martin added a two-run homer for the Cubs and Ferguson Jenkins survived three San Francisco homers on the way to his seventh consecutive victory and eighth in 10 decisions.

Roberto Clemente drilled four hits, including the first inside-the-park homer ever hit in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium, as the Pirates shot into first place in the East Division.

In addition to his third homer of the season, Clemente singled and scored in the first inning, tripled home one run and scored another in the fifth and laced a run-scoring single in the ninth.

Philadelphia's Terry Harmon cracked a tie-breaking three-run double in the seventh inning, handing the Mets their fourth straight setback and dropping them one game behind the Pirates in the division.

Rookie Bobby Valentine started a tying two-run rally with a seventh-inning single and broke the deadlock with a run-scoring single off Bob Gibson in the eighth, carrying the Dodgers past St. Louis.

Nate Colbert doubled in the 10th and raced home on Ollie Brown's single off the glove of Houston second baseman Denis Menke, giving the Padres their first victory in six games.

Colonial Golf Tourney Gets Underway Today

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Now that rookie Hubert Green has broken through with his first pro golf victory, the 24-year-old has new ambition—to play in the Masters.

"It would mean a lot to my folks," said the son of a Birmingham, Ala., general practitioner, Dr. A. A. Green.

"It'd make my mother so happy she wouldn't know what to do. I can just see her there, sippin' tea in high society and talking about her son playing in the Masters." The blythe spirit, a happy-go-lucky bachelor, winner of more than $44,000 in his last four starts, was one of the favorites in the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament that got underway today.

He scored his first professional victory last week in the $125,000 Houston Champions International Invitational, beating veteran Don January in a sudden death playoff when he birdied the first extra hole.

He's made almost $60,000 in winnings this year and is making a strong bid for Rookie of the Year honors.

Another strong candidate for rookie of the year is Buddy Allyn, a close friend of Green's, a Vietnam veteran and winner of the Greensboro Open.

He's also in the field of 101 that teed off today in the first round of this $125,000 event on the 7,142-yard, par 70 Colonial Country Club course.

NFL Players See No Strike

By LARRY PALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Another National Football League players strike?

Despite an unfair labor practices suit filed against the owners there won't be a strike this July, according to Ed Flanagan, player-representative of the Detroit Lions.

"We don't anticipate a strike at all. It's the furthest thing from our minds," the All-Pro center said from his suburban Detroit home. "None of the player reps has even mentioned a strike."

Our differences are minimal. They're very small, and I think we'll be able to work them out.

"The players have decided to report to camp and feel this will all be settled by July. All the money matters are settled. There are only small matters involved ... Certain matters are unclear and need a little discussion, but dental, pension and other problems are settled."

Among the missing are Ben Hogan, who had to withdraw Wednesday because of a knee injury, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, who are taking time off. Top choices for the $25,000 first prize are Billy Casper and South African Gary Player, each making his first start in several weeks. Also among the leading contenders are Lee Trevino, defending champion Romero Blancas and Masters king Charles Coody, who hasn't finished lower than 10th in his last five starts.

Cowboys Trade Away Rentzel

Although the contract dispute last summer between the NFL Players Association and the Owners Negotiating Committee was settled in time for the exhibition season, it seems it was not really settled at all.

The 1,200-member NFLPA reached a handshake agreement last Aug. 2 with the owners and it was eight meetings later, on Feb. 27, 1971, that an agreement was signed.

But the Players Association has since accused the owners of changing much of the wording of the agreement and subsequently filed the unfair labor practices charges in Minneapolis last month.

"We're waiting for the NLRB to come up with a decision," Flanagan said. "I don't see any possibility of a strike at all."

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have traded off a public relations problem, grabbed a needed clutch-receiving tight end and bagged two flashy wide receivers to add leverage to their Bob Hayes negotiations in a lightning series of National Football League swaps involving seven players.

Wide receiver Lance Rentzel, on probation for five years for indecent exposure, was traded Wednesday to the Los Angeles Rams for tight end Billy Truax and wide receiver Wendell Tucker.

Lance Alworth of San Diego, the seventh-ranking receiver in professional football, was sent to the Cowboys in exchange for tight end Pettis Norman, offensive tackle Tony Liscio and defensive tackle Ron East.

rate Alworth the top receiver for that period. We feel he has several outstanding years still in him. We were very reluctant to trade men the caliber of Norman, Liscio and East, but when the chance for Alworth came we couldn't pass it up."

Rentzel's trade came because Cowboys' officials felt it would be best for him and the team. Rentzel pleaded guilty to a charge of exposing himself to a 10-year-old girl last November and didn't play in the Cowboy's stretch drive to the Super Bowl.

Rentzel, 27, husband of motion picture and television personality Joey Heatherton, said: "When you think about it, I think this is the best thing for all parties, I'm grateful they traded me to an area where I have so many friends and to such a good team and a fine organization."

Rentzel caught 185 passes for 3,531 yards and 31 touchdowns in his six NFL seasons.

Alworth's statistics are awesome. In nine seasons, he has caught 493 passes for 9,584 yards and 81 touchdowns.

Peninsula Takes Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Peninsula scrambled to the top of the Carolina League standings last night, unleashing a 14-hit attack against four Winston-Salem pitchers and defeating the Red Sox 8-4.

The Pilots iced the game with three runs against Don Newhauser in the seventh.

Kinston fell from top notch in the standings after losing to Burlington, 9-1. The Senators scored four runs in the eighth inning on four singles, three walks, a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Key hits in the Burlington surge were run-scoring singles by Larry Davis and Sonny Bowers. The Senators added three ninth-inning runs on three hits, two walks and a sacrifice fly.

In other Carolina League action, Raleigh-Durham defeated Salem 6-2 and Lynchburg beat Rocky Mount 3-2.

Jerry Ball scattered six hits and his teammates supported him with two three-run innings in the Triangles' triumph. Ball struck out seven and walked four as he recorded his fifth victory in six games.

Craig Kusick's two out ninth-inning triple drove in the two runs needed to give Lynchburg its victory over Rocky Mount.

Kusick's blast, which hit the warning track near the 386-foot mark in right centerfield, scored Jack Miller and Slidell Harvey with the winning run.

Tonight's games: Kinston at Rocky Mount, Lynchburg at Burlington, Raleigh-Durham at Peninsula and Winston-Salem at Salem.

Huge LBJ Library's Dedication Set For Saturday

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Lyndon Baines Johnson Library, which dwarfs in concept and size all other presidential libraries, will cost the federal government four times more to operate than the figure given to the Congress that authorized the project.

Budget records and interviews with federal officials disclosed the quadrupled annual costs as President Nixon, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and hundreds of veterans from Johnson's Great Society prepared to head for Saturday's dedication of the library on the University of Texas campus. At that time, the General Services Administration will formally take over the library's operation, maintenance and protection, adding these expenses to the National Archives' budget for collating the 31 million documents and other materials—including 500,000 still photographs—left from Johnson's six years as president.

The government's total annual operating cost for the library will exceed $850,000, records and interviews disclosed, compared with an estimate of $190,000 given to Congress in 1965 when it passed authorizing legislation.

The eight-story library is part of a campus complex constructed by the University of Texas under a single contract for a total cost of $18.6 million.

Archives officials said no federal funds were used in the library's construction. However, university officials said the school's share was $15.8 million with the rest coming from the federal treasury; a $2.6 million grant plus $270,000 in GSA funds.

Records show the Office of Education awarded the $2.6 million grant a year before Johnson left office to help the university construct what was then described as the "East Campus Library and Research Building."

Office of Education officials say the grant was for a three-story building adjacent to the presidential library. This building, known formally as Sid Richardson Hall, houses the Lyndon Baines Johnson School of Public Affairs.

Because a single construction contract was let for both the library and Richardson Hall, university officials said there is no way of separating costs for each building. However, an Office of Education spokesman said the $2.6 million grant "was not made for the archives. It was to be used for academic purposes only."

"No politics were involved," the official insisted. "Just because he was in the White House didn't make a bit of difference."

Records show the National Archives fiscal 1971 allocation of $670,000 for the Johnson Library was more than double what it spent on any of the other libraries, and far outstripped original estimates.

Asked what caused the increase, Asst. Archivist Daniel

J. Reed, who heads the Office of Presidential Libraries, replied, "I don't know. Inflation, federal salary increases, I guess."

But Archivist James B. Rhoads said in an interview the early estimate did not take into account the scope of the Johnsonian papers.

"Back in 1965 no one had a realistic view of just how massive the collection would be," he said. "They knew it would be large, but they didn't know how large."

"The best bench mark we had in 1965 was what the Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Truman libraries were costing us, and $190,000 would have been somewhat more than liberal at that time."

So extensive are the Johnson papers that the Archives spent more than $1.5 million in fiscal years 1969 through 1971 just sorting them for placement in the Library.

This work is continuing under a $550,000 appropriation for fiscal 1972 and the Archives plans to spend the same amount in fiscal 1973 to support a staff of 38, Reed said.

The $550,000 does not include costs of maintaining, protecting and operating the library building itself, all functions to be performed by the GSA's Public Buildings Service at a cost of $3.02 a square foot, or $302,000 annually, a GSA spokesman said.

Preliminary planning for the library began in 1964, and construction started while Johnson was still in the White House.

Completed this year, the block-like structure of Italian travertine marble is 20 per cent larger than any other presidential library.

Its first and second floors are devoted to public exhibits of the Johnson era, ranging from his daughters' wedding dresses to political cartoons dating to the 1930s.

The third through seventh floors, to be restricted to scholars and researchers, contain papers and memorabilia collected by the Johnsons since he entered federal service in 1935 as director of the National Youth Administration's operations in Texas.

The eighth floor contains a duplicate of Johnson's White House office. Library Director Harry Middleton said Johnson plans to work there part of the time, particularly when going over papers in the library.

Both the former president and Mrs. Johnson were active in planning and gathering materials for the library. One Johnson aide recalled that during the early stages, "The President simply said to me, 'I want to have the best presidential library in the world.'"

Ethics Bill Given House

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill to establish ethical guidelines for North Carolina lawmakers passed the House but was defeated by the Senate in 1969, so Rep. Howard Twigg introduced a similar bill Wednesday that would apply only to House members.

The Wake County Democrat's bill, which was co-signed by more than 70 House members, would set up a board composed of 3 Democratic members of the House and 3 Republicans to recommend standards of conduct and requirements for disclosure of conflicts of interest that members may have.

Twigg said he hoped the House-only bill would get through the Senate as well as the House.

The bill, said Twigg, "would help primarily in telling a representative when he has an interest in a bill that should require him not to vote on it." And it would provide guidelines for what disclosures should be made and how, he added.

LIMA (UPI)—Peru has three distinctive geographic regions—a coastal desert, central mountains and eastern jungles. Ironically, most of the people live on the coastal desert, where in some places it rains only once in every 100 years.

Powell's Image Fades In Bimini Diamond Mining Calls For Courage, Capital

EDITOR'S NOTE—For years Adam Clayton Powell held sway over the tiny Bimini coral islands. He was probably the most important man there, loved and cheered by the natives. A news conference was a momentous event. Now six months after his 22-year career in Congress came to an end, things are different.

By STRATTON DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

BIMINI, Bahamas (AP) — Sipping a vodka and ginger ale aboard "Adam's Fancy Too," the nattily attired skipper of the 40-foot yacht still looked every inch the uncrowned prince of these tiny coral islands.

But the appearance was deceiving. Adam Clayton Powell's charisma apparently has faded badly among many of Bimini's 1,800 residents.

Two years ago when he called a news conference, natives and newsmen alike would flock to Brown's Hotel to hear Powell. This time—on a Thursday very recently—there were no natives and just two newsmen.

"Why is he calling a news conference?" asked Neville Brown before the Adam's Fancy Too pulled up to the dock in front of Brown's Hotel. "Nobody cares what he says any more. He's done, mon."

Brown's father owns the hotel. He runs the Bamboo Lounge, one of South Bimini's more popular water spots.

Powell, lost his seat in Congress last November.

In the spring and summer of 1967 when the Harlem leader was fighting Congressional censure and a criminal contempt citation in New York, Powell's Bimini followers were legion. They crowded around for a good seat during his news conferences and rooted Powell on as he parried questions with the flippant answers that were his trademark.

This time, Powell was the perfect host. His son, Adam III, invited the two newsmen aboard and Powell held the conference in the yacht's cabin in the presence of his son, his daughter-in-law, former New England socialite Beryl Slocum; his grandson, 4-month-old Adam Clayton Powell IV; and his fiancée-secretary, Darlene Expose, whom he introduced as "Mrs. Powell."

"After you read my announcement I'm open to all questions," he said.

Although slightly heavy in the jowls, Powell looked fit at 61.

The conference was to announce that Powell had authored three books, that he was building a new home on North Bimini, that he would spend part of his time in Washington, and that he was stepping down as pastor of Harlem's giant Abyssinian Baptist Church—the political base upon which he had built his long career in Congress.

In 1967, Powell had to speak over the noise of laughing natives and chatty tourists. This time it was the wailing of Adam IV. Later, walking down South Bimini's only street for a bowl of conch chowder, Powell hailed several natives.

THE NATTY DRESSER — Wearing a white turtle neck shirt and a medallion, former Congressman Adam Clayton Powell answers questions while sitting in the cabin of his 40-foot boat. (AP Wirephoto)

They returned the greeting but kept on walking. In the past, he would have stopped a dozen times while exchanging "keep the faith, baby."

Powell has been relaxing on Bimini for 10 years. His popularity peaked in the late 60s when he was in the spotlight.

When he was censured by a House select committee for gross misconduct and required to pay $40,000 in funds the committee said he wrongfully appropriated, they were sympathetic and nodded approvingly when he told a news conference he was being penalized for having "the audacity to act like a white man."

But his image was already showing tarnish when traveling companion Corrine Huff announced she was marrying Powell's boat pilot. Then came the election defeat last year when his Harlem constituency finally turned its back on him after 22 years.

Now, some of the islanders seem almost hostile to Powell. "Did you get what you came for?" Neville Brown asked after Powell and his entourage chugged away for an afternoon of fishing. "Not much, I'll bet."

What could he say anybody would care about?

Another man, whose muscular chest was covered with a tee-shirt bearing the legend "Bonefish Sam," said:

"Everybody used to appreciate Mr. Powell highly when he first came here. 'We would leave our church services to hear him speak. But we've found out he doesn't stand for what we believe in.'"

German Unions In Postwar Peak

BONN (UPI)—Labor union membership in West Germany rose 3 per cent during 1970 to reach a postwar peak of 6,712,547, the German Federation of Labor Unions reported. Biggest growth was reported by the Metal Workers' Union, which gained 163,487 members. West German employed total about 25.8 million persons.

The earth's circumference is about 25,000 miles.

By ERIC VAN EES
ZWARTRAND, Western Transvaal, South Africa (UPI) — The muted whistle of a chill wind cutting through a knee-high grass is almost all the remains of what, six months ago, was a booming tent camp.

The men who came racing by the hundreds to the Zwartrand diamond diggings last November, dreaming of fast riches, have gone, all but four tough professionals who are still at it, convinced that riches remain to be found if they work hard enough.

One of the stayers is Stoffel de Beer, a solid, strong man of 71, and he did not welcome an inquiring newsmen come to see what had happened to the diamond rush.

"Are you a Russian?" he growled from the sorting table where he sat, fingering possible treasure.

He ignored the denial. "You damned Russians," he said. "Spoiled the diamond market for us when you stopped buying our stones. But"—and his rough old face broke into a grin—"never mind. Sit down. Maybe you'll bring me luck."

De Beer said he had been digging for diamonds since he was 14. It hasn't made him fabulously wealthy but it has bought him several farms near Potgietersrus about 200 miles northeast of these diggings. "My sons do the farming," he said, "and I go diamond digging on my holidays."

This "holiday" has lasted six months. He said he has found "rand 8,000 worth ($11,200) of high quality diamonds."

"But," he went on, "it has cost me rand 10,000 ($14,000) so far for men and equipment. Not a very economic proposition, is it? I'll keep going. You need capital for this. And courage. I've got both."

De Beer has little respect for those who came in the rush last November but then gave up when they didn't find diamonds littering the landscape for easy pickings.

"The others left," he said, "because diamond digging is hard work, too hard for them. Only the real professionals stay on. I know the diamonds are here, neef (cousin). I've found them. But it breaks your back and your spirit. You need determination and guts. Nobody just picks up diamonds and makes a fortune. Not here. Not any more."

Behind him as he spoke a dozen hired men labored in a pit some 20 feet deep, all of them sweating despite the chill. Nearby stood a battered bulldozer. "Bought it when I came here," De Beer said. "But look at it now. It's almost had it."

Midnight At Piccadilly Circus Brings Out Addicts

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI)—It is midnight in Piccadilly Circus, a cold spring night with a faint mist barely blurring the neon enticements for rum and beer and vermouth and coca-cola. The great tide of humanity that daily washes over the center of the city has now finally receded to the residential districts, driven back by the early shutdown of public transportation.

Like all tides, it has left beached behind it flotsam and jetsam—in this case shipwrecks of the human race, drug addicts. They began drifting into the area, forming small groups, some 30 minutes ago, turning again and again with terrible fascination to a giant clock advertising the dark brew called Guinness.

About this hour every night they feel they are dying—some of them may be—and they pray for midnight and the promise of life for another day.

At midnight the slips they are clutching, prescriptions from the doctors with whom they have registered, can at last be exchanged over the counter of a chemist shop for a daily dose of heroin or cocaine or methadone or whatever is the craving that has them enslaved.

It is one of the "sights" of London no one is proud of; you will not find it listed along with the Tower of London, Westminster Abbey or Big Ben.

The addicts can turn in their prescriptions any hour of the day, but many cannot wait beyond the stroke of midnight, when the new drug period begins. So midnight is more than the witching hour of the poet in Britain. And the nameless terrors of the dark are all too real in the sick minds of the score or so young people huddled nightly at the entrance of a deserted arcade or nervously pacing the 30 yards of pavement to one of the few all night drug stores in the city.

The "maintenance dose" which the doctor is supposed to prescribe before his patient takes the cure—or after he has tried and failed to kick the habit—is calculated to last only one day to prevent the sale of any surplus. Within minutes after midnight some of the victims hurry from the shop to the toilets of the subway stations nearby to take their fix. They tell of one boy who jabbed the needle through his sweater into his arm, too frantic to wait.

"I've had them take it in the back of my cab," said a driver parked nearby. "You see the match flicker and look back and they're heating the stuff in a spoon."

What happens in Piccadilly Circus (and at other all-night drug stores) every midnight is part of the British plan for handling narcotic addiction. Imperfect as it admittedly is, the British believe their system of making drugs legally and cheaply available to genuinely untreatable addicts is working better than any other method does and, if nothing else, at least makes it unprofitable for criminal organizations such as exist in the United States to send out pushers to create more addicts.

For each item on his daily prescription the addict pays 20 pence (48 cents). If he wants more he will have to buy it illegally—there is a small but significant traffic in illegal drugs, which is why some authorities believe the official figure of 1,466 registered addicts for all of Britain in 1969 is too low. There have been estimates of 2,500 or more—still small by American standards but up 700 per cent from only a decade or so ago.

Because of fears the numbers may soon appear attractive to American and other foreign crime syndicates, there is before Parliament a bill that raises the penalties for pushers and traffickers from 10 years and a 1,000 sterling ($2,400) fine to 14 years and an unlimited fine. And to close a domestic loophole the bill makes doctors convicted of prescribing excessive amounts of drugs subject to the same penalties.

Some experts, such as Rev. Kenneth Leech, curate of St. Anne's in the high risk district of Soho, believe indiscriminate prescriptions of methedrine and amphetamine by a small group of unscrupulous doctors is really responsible for the spread of addiction here. Before their advent in the early 1960s, Britain had 200 to 300 stabilized addicts, mostly able to conduct fairly normal lives on maintenance doses of heroin and morphine.

Now the addicts are younger, some of them pathetically young. Dr. N.H. Rathod, a consulting psychiatrist, says 25 per cent of all British addicts are under 35; 50 per cent of them under 50. The batch on Piccadilly one recent night all looked to be in their 20s. At 20 minutes to midnight two of them began to quarrel and a girl who intervened was punched in the face for her pains.

Such sudden flares of violence are not uncommon. One of a number of doctors struck off the Medical Register for oversubscribing said once the word got around he could consider dispensing drugs he lived in fear. Junkies forced their way into his office, into his home, waylaid him on the streets, in restaurants and taverns and beat and kicked him until he gave them prescriptions.

The night of my midnight watch at Piccadilly Circus, the brief fist fight ended and at the stroke of the hour the addicts started drifting toward the chemist shop in small groups, handed in their prescriptions and came out with little white bags. A boy and a girl, both very shabby, came out arm in arm each with a bag in the free hand.

Then, walking alone, a blond boy of about 20, moving spasmodically like a puppet jerked along by unseen strings. As he twitched by me on his doomed journey I saw on a chain around his neck a replica of the "Ankh." Ironic. The Ankh is the ancient Egyptian symbol for something he would never have. Long life.

Dance Company Forms In N.C.

NEW YORK — North Carolina now has a major new dance group, the North Carolina Dance Theater. The announcement of the formation of the new professional dance company was made in New York Wednesday by Robert Lindgren, Dean of the School of Dance of the North Carolina School of the Arts (NCSA) located in Winston-Salem.

The establishment of North Carolina's Dance Theater was made a reality through the receipt of a $250,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. Announcement of the grant and the formation of the dance theater took place at a press reception hosted by Agnes de Mille, Madame Eugenie Ouroussoff and Jose Limon, all of whom are members of the Advisory Board of the North Carolina School of the Arts.

Pauline Koner and Duncan Noble, faculty members of NCSA's School of Dance have been named co-artistic directors and choreographers in residence for the new company. At present, there are nine faculty dancers participating in the pilot project.

Initially, the North Carolina Dance Theater will tour North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia with a repertoire of classical ballet and modern dance.

The Rockefeller Grant was secured by Lindgren in conjunction with Roger G. Hall, president of the North Carolina School of the Arts Foundation. The foundation will assume responsibility for raising a matching $250,000 over the next three years.

Young students completing their training over the past few years with the NCSA School of Dance have had remarkable successes. Graduates of the school have joined major ballet companies such as the New York City Ballet, the American Ballet Theater, Dance Repertory Company, Les Grands Ballets Canadiens, Alvin Ailey, Pearl Lang, and the American Dance Company.

Greenville native Gwen Spear, daughter of Mrs. Louise Spear and the late Dr. Richard S. Spear of East Carolina University, is one of the members who will be dancing with the newly formed company. Miss Spear is a graduate of the NCSA School of Dance and joined the dance company there last year.

Sets Senior Citizen Week

Mayor S. Eugene West has issued his first proclamation since his recent election as the head of the city government.

In the proclamation, senior citizens of Greenville and Pitt County are being honored by the observance of Senior Citizens Week beginning May 24 and through May 30.

Stating that Pitt County has more than 5,000 citizens over 65 years of age, West commented "they have made significant contributions to our progress during this century and are a valuable resource to our county."

"These older citizens are widely diverse in their capabilities, their present measure of health and economic resources, their educational preparation, their civic and family responsibilities, their current contributions to society, and in the appropriate opportunities afforded them to use their abilities to benefit the County and the City to maintain themselves and their households," the mayor noted in his proclamation.

Talk Show Host Hugh Downs Is Not Retiring

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh Downs, host of NBC's "Today Show," estimates that if all the hours during which he has been working in front of television cameras were added together he has spent a year and a half day and night — of his life facing a lens surmounted by a red light.

That he has not suffered from the constant performer's occupational disease, overexposure, is due to Downs' consistent functioning, if not unobtrusively at least quietly, more as catalyst than as star-type personality.

After nine years on "Today,"

Bank Matching Education Gifts

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Citizens Fidelity Bank & Trust Co. here has started a "matching gifts program," matching the contributions of any employee that is made to an educational institution.

The maximum gift eligible for matching is $500 a year and the minimum $10. The bank has 1,200 employees. Bank board chairman A. M. Brinkley Jr. said the program was started "in hopes our employees will contribute to education and to make known our faith in education."

TORONTO (UPI)—Toronto's burglars are becoming so brazen that they take time out to play while they work.

John A. Watt awoke to find his car, his color television set and $141 in cash missing. Then he went down to check his basement.

An electric train belonging to his children was plugged in and had obviously been run during the night.

South's desire to score his 100 honors in spades led him to insist on playing a suit contract when nine tricks were routinely available in no trump. Then, when he became the declarer at four spades, he failed to capitalize on the distributional advantages available to him—and the final result was an unnecessary setback.

West opened the nine of hearts and East covered North's queen with the ace and returned the jack to dummy's king. South cashed two high trumps and then led a diamond from his hand—ducking the trick around to East's seven. The latter returned the ten of hearts which declarer ruffed.

"I'm not fed up with NBC. But there are some aspects of 'Today' that become abrasive by attrition: soldiers and farmers know about getting up early..."

Downs conceals a restless, questing mind behind that low-key exterior and is, surprisingly, an extremely venturesome man. His exploits include sailing across the Pacific, scuba diving, piloting a plane, motorcycling, globe-trotting—and every now and again, writing a book.

Demote General In My Lai Case

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army broke Samuel W. Koster to brigadier general "to mollify those segments of society who feel you can't convict lieutenants and let the generals go free," his attorney charges.

"Apparently they were willing to sacrifice one general," Brendan V. Sullivan said in accusing the Army of "acting on the political exigencies of the moment."

Part of the public outcry following the conviction last month of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., involved charges the Army was making him the scapegoat for the My Lai massacre while letting higher-ranking officers escape punishment.

Calley, so far the only man convicted in the case, is appealing a life sentence for the murder of 22 Vietnamese civilians.

Twenty-five officers and enlisted men originally were charged either with crimes at My Lai or with covering up the incident.

Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor Wednesday ordered the 51-year-old Koster demoted from major general, censured and stripped of his Distinguished Service Medal for not thoroughly investigating the

My Lai incident while Americal Division commander in March 1968.

Koster's assistant at the time, Brig. Gen. George H. Young Jr., 50, also was censured and his DSM revoked. But Resor allowed him to retain his rank against the recommendation of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff.

In an interview, Sullivan said Koster, currently assigned to Ft. Meade, Md., "is not going to retire at this time" and may fight Resor's action in the federal courts. There is no avenue of appeal in the military for this form of nonjudicial punishment.

The Army previously had dismissed criminal charges accusing the two generals of covering up the My Lai incident.

"It is our opinion the Army has acted wrongly in this situation in that it acquitted Koster on one hand, then turned around and convicted him on the other," said Sullivan who represents the former West Point superintendent along with Washington lawyer Edward Bennett Williams.

Resor said "an officer's performance of duty not only must be lawful but also must conform to the established standards of his profession."

Made-Made Ice-Jam Possible Answer To Flooding River

By JACK K. GRAEME
CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—Man-made ice jams on Wyoming's North Platte River may provide an answer to winter flooding which plagues many rivers and their nearby communities.

The Bureau of Reclamation is experimenting with placing log booms across the North Platte in isolated areas to cause ice jams before they can occur naturally near residential areas. Ice jams can raise river levels four to six feet.

"We think this log boom will work as good as nature's obstructions," said Robert Sensintaffer, Bureau of Reclamation project manager.

He said in addition to stretching log booms across the river, the project was now also under study at the bureau engineering and research center in Denver, using a scale hydraulic model.

"We wanted to go into a little further research because once log booms ice up we can't make any changes," Sensintaffer said. "We have to wait until spring, so I thought if we could go into a research project we could do this in the laboratory also."

The river channel was duplicated in the operation model, and plastic chips one-eighth of an inch in diameter and with almost precisely the same specific gravity as ice, are used to simulate the ice flow.

The test project in Denver is expected to take about six months and it is hoped it will provide answers to such questions as proper size and arrangement of the logs, best distance between cables and other items.

Sensintaffer, who conceived the idea of building the booms about seven miles above Casper, Wyo., said ice jams are caused naturally by sandbars and other obstructions in river flow.

"At present we have two booms stretching across the river, about 80 feet apart, and whatever ice breaks loose from the first jam floats downstream and gets stopped at the second boom," he said.

"As you go further north the problem gets worse because of the melting ice. We get most of our information on the problem from the Canadians, Russians and Poles. They have done quite a little work on this in comparison to us."

The booms consist of 30 floating timbers 12 feet long, attached to cables spanning the river.

"We investigated three types of possible structures," Sensintaffer said. "One was a control gate structure, a rock fill structure and then the log boom, which has worked out satisfactorily on the St. Lawrence Seaway." He added in his opinion: "We will have perfected this in one or more years so we can put more booms on the North Platte." He said this was necessary because the booms only clear ice for some 10 to 12 miles below the boom site.

PTA Officers Are Announced

PTA officers for the 1971-1972 school year have been announced for the South Greenville Elementary School PTA unit.

In recent elections at the final meeting of the South Greenville PTA for the current school year, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Paul Erickman; vice-president, Guy McClanahan; secretary, Mrs. Alice Brewington; and treasurer, Dr. J. Fred Hamblen.

Wide Hatred Of Dandelion

CHICAGO (UPI) — Don't spare that dandelion — it has the potential to take over the world.

The dandelion plant, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, ranges widely over the earth. In some parts of the United States it blooms 10 months a year.

No other plant has been hated so much by so many Americans. Each year they fight it with knives and chemicals. The dandelion is particularly tough because of its long taproot and it is especially worrisome because of its reproductive ability.

Each dandelion seed has its own balloon for sailing through the air on the slightest breeze. Further, each has a grappling hook for latching onto a growing place, where it soon covers 50 square inches of ground.

Each plant produces hundreds of seeds. If each seed took root, grew, and multiplied, the offspring of just one plant would cover 100 square miles within four years.

In six years the dandelions from this one plant would cover 9 million square miles and a few months later they would spread over the entire planet.

Not only are dandelions prolific, they are reasonable safe from attack by higher forms of life, except for man. An unpleasant taste and sticky juices restrict them from the diets of animals and insects. Man, as a matter of record, doesn't pose much of a threat to them either.

Dandelions through the centuries have had only a few friends and supporters. In about 1931 dandelions became a commercial source for rubber in the Soviet Union. American scientists experimented with them for the same purpose during World War II. The results were inconclusive.

Under the name taraxacum, the dandelion has medical recognition as tonic and hepatic stimulant. Wine has been made from dandelions and sometimes the leaves find their way into salads. Also, it is said, the root when ground and roasted may be used as a substitute for coffee.

And, as anyone under 10 years old can attest, dandelions are good to give to mothers.

NOTICE
In the Superior Court
Before The Clerk
North Carolina
Pitt County
IN THE MATTER OF PITT COUNTY DRAINAGE DISTRICT NO. 1, EX PARTE THE LANDOWNERS OF PITT COUNTY DRAINAGE DISTRICT NO. 1 AND LITTLE CONTENTNEA CREEK WATERSHED

TAKE NOTICE that a hearing will be held in Greenville, North Carolina, at the Pitt County Courthouse before the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County in the District Courtroom on Thursday, June 10, 1971, at 10:00 o'clock, A.M., for the purpose of reviewing the report of the Board of Viewers and hearing and determining any objections filed thereto.

A Petition has been filed under and pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 156-2.2 and G.S. 156-2.3 wherein the petitioners propose that the boundaries of Pitt County Drainage District No. 1 be extended to include all of the watershed of Little Contentnea Creek in Pitt, Greene, Edgecombe and Wilson counties. The lands included in the watershed surround and drain into, through tributaries or otherwise, Little Contentnea Creek from its source near Saratoga in Wilson County to where it empties into Contentnea Creek in Pitt County.

The petitioners further propose that works for improvement shall be made for the entire watershed of Little Contentnea Creek both within the boundaries of Pitt County Drainage District No. 1 and in the area proposed to be included in the enlarged or extended district. The proposed works for improvement include the clearing, widening and deepening of the main channel of Little Contentnea Creek and its principal tributaries; clearing, widening and deepening of its necessary, adding to its canal and drainage system; the impounding of waters in certain areas; and measures to conserve the fish and the award of contracts. Subcontractors, materialsmen, etc., may obtain applicable plans and specifications for the cost of printing and mailing.

Qualified bidders who wish to submit a proposal on a Prime Contract as listed above, may obtain a complete set of documents from the office of the Architects by making a deposit of $25.00. The full deposit will be returned to those who make a bona fide bid, providing complete documents are returned in good condition within ten (10) days after the award of contracts. Subcontractors, materialsmen, etc., may obtain applicable plans and specifications for the cost of printing and mailing.

Complete plans, specifications, and contract documents will be open for inspection at the following locations: A.G.C. Plan Rooms in Raleigh, Greensboro, and Charlotte, North Carolina.
