Too Hard To Get Jury

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The judge who dismissed murder-conspiracy charges against Black Panthers Bobby G. Seale and Ericka Huggins said finding an unbiased jury to retry them would be impossible without superhuman effort which neither side should have to endure.

Mrs. Huggins, a local party leader.

Mrs. Huggins, 23, who had been in custody for two years, was freed after the ruling.

"Oh, look at that beautiful sky," she said softly as she walked out of the courthouse where she had been arriving daily for the trial. She was greeted with cheers as was the judge's decision.

Seale, 34, is held on other charges and is seeking bail. He has been imprisoned for two years including 14 months here.

Undersheriff Frank Cartocelli said all the victims were transient fruit workers, ranging in age from 40 to 60 and that the times of the killings ranged from five or six weeks ago to sometime this week.

Corona was led into the county jail with his head covered by a sweater and coat, his hands manacled behind his back. He was under heavy guard, after his arrest in south Yuba City.

Drug Parties 'Bother'

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The University of North Carolina at Charlotte has ordered five students to find off-campus housing next year because their drug parties in dormitories bothered other students.

The five were not identified. Rash said all of them plan to return to UNCC next semester.

"Their problem is learning to appreciate where some of the individual rights reign supreme," Rash said, "and where you determine the demarcation line where it infringes on the rights of others."

The students were informed of the university's decision in a letter signed by Lon Weston, UNCC's director of housing.

rant, so they radioed for another car and the warrant.

While the two officers waited, Simmons said, they saw Keel enter the house and place something in his hip pocket. They said Officer Lorenzo Moore and trainee policeman Leslie Harrell arrived with the warrant and Moore told Keel he was under arrest.

Simmons said Keel drew a pistol, Moore grabbed for it and it fell. He added the boy picked it up, but that Mrs. Keel took it and pointed it at Harrell. Simmons said he heard a click which sounded like a pistol's hammer hitting an empty chamber. Harrell ducked. Simmons said he heard three more shots and Mrs. Keel fell.

No one else was injured.

Pitt County residents voted better than three to one in favor of a one per cent local option sales tax for the county yesterday.

Unofficial totals from the 26 voting precincts show 4,426 votes cast in favor of the sales tax and 1,751 against.

The 2,675 vote margin was a sound victory for the one per cent local sales tariff.

Voters in the 1969 referendum defeated the proposed tax by a margin of only 439 votes, with 3,661 voting against the proposal and 3,222 casting ballots for the tax.

Some 6,883 persons voted in that 1969 election while 6,177 cast ballots yesterday.

Vernon Cox, Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners in commenting on the vote said "I am real pleased with the turnout, and with the faith the people of the county have in the commissioners."

The added one per cent tax will go into effect July 1, and the first payment of the revenue from the state (which will collect the tax along with its own three per cent levy) will be received in October.

According to county officials, the tax should bring about $1,036 million into Pitt to be divided among the county government and municipal governments the first year.

Commissioners seem to favor distribution of the tax on a per capita basis. So distributed, the county government would receive an estimated $658,000, with the remainder of the money being divided among the municipalities.

Greenville, as an example, should receive an estimated $258,900; Ayden should get about $30,700; Farmville, $39,400; Grifton, $13,800; Winterville, $12,800; Bethel $13,500; Falkland, $1,550; Fountain $3,850 and Grimesland $3,500.

Only one of the 26 precincts in the county went against the increased tax. Voters in Greenville number three—Third Street School—voted 82 to 69 against the tax. All other

Hearing Is Begun

FARMVILLE — More than a half-dozen growers were among witnesses testifying this morning at a hearing on the question of an additional set of graders for Farmville Tobacco Market.

The Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade has petitioned the government to assign an additional set of graders to provide better service to area farmers. Today's hearing is being held by the Department of Agriculture prior to making a decision on the petition.

Farmers this morning said they like to sell tobacco in Farmville because it is the closest market to their homes, it is convenient and they lose money by having to go elsewhere.

Albert Boub, testifying for the Department of Agriculture, said the availability of redrying facilities in the immediate area, the relationship of sales on the Farmville market in comparison with other markets and other economic factors have to be considered in any decision. He indicated the need in Farmville for additional personnel is not sufficient.

The hearing was still underway at noon.

Nixon Pleased By Welcome In 'Wallace-Land'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, making his first campaign-style trip of the year into the Deep South, has castigated some Northerners for a "double hypocritical standard" on race relations.

Nixon counted heavily on Southern support in 1968 and presumably will do so next year, although he has denied pursuing a "Southern strategy."

Appearing Tuesday in Birmingham and Mobile, Ala., the state that calls itself the "Heart of Dixie," Nixon pictured himself as sympathetic toward the South while having "utter contempt" for racial attitudes of some in the North.

Alabama, which sees presidents only infrequently—58 years ago in the case of Mobile and 50 years ago in Birmingham—turned out impressively biracial crowds. Blacks seemed as enthusiastic as whites in their response.

Police estimated at least 160,000 persons turned out to greet Nixon in Alabama's two largest cities. The welcome was as warm as the weather. Hostile chants were insignificantly few. Antiwar placards were far outnumbered by printed ones reading "Win in Vietnam."

Nixon's most pointed language came at a private briefing session in Birmingham for publishers, editors and broadcasters from the 12 states of the Old Confederacy. He said:

Clearly, Nixon and his aides savored what they regarded as a political triumph on the home turf of Gov. George C. Wallace, the President's third-party opponent in 1968 and a potential 1972 foe.

"I know the difficult problems most of you in the Southern states have had on the school desegregation problem. I went to school in the South and so therefore I am more familiar with how Southerners feel about that problem than others

Wallace was on hand in both cities with Nixon—terming the chief executive's presence "a signal honor"—but did not ride with the President in any of the day's motorcades. The White House apparently wanted it

"I have nothing but utter contempt for the double hypocritical standards of Northerners who look at the South and point the finger and say, 'Why don't those Southerners do something about their race problem.'"

More Than 20 Tons Of Letters In Dusty Cellar

PARIS (AP) — A week before Christmas, Merle E. Betterton of Knoxville, Iowa, sent a $15 check to an organization seeking better treatment for American prisoners in North Vietnam.

"I have a son in the Air Force," Betterton wrote, "and he suggested for this Christmas that all of our family donate to your organization instead of spending so much on ourselves."

The organization, the National League of Families of American Prisoners of War and Missing in Action, never opened Betterton's letter. It apparently was among thousands addressed to the league and brought to Paris by one of its delegates. Today the uncashed check lies in a cellar in a Paris suburb, among more than 20 tons of dust-covered letters and petitions from millions of Americans concerned about the prisoners held by Hanoi.

Emile Jean Coustie, director of the moving company which owns the cellar, was astonished to find the check in a letter opened at random. He estimated that more than three million letters and petitions were in his cellar, most of them in unopened envelopes.

"I couldn't possibly afford to have anyone search through all these letters," he said.

Coustie's warehouse in Pantin, a crumbling working-class district north of Paris, has become the main collecting point for the appeals brought or sent to Paris, usually addressed to the North Vietnamese delegation at the peace talks. The delegation systematically refuses to accept the appeals, and they usually end up in the Pantin cellar.

"It's becoming a bigger thing than I bargained for," Coustie said. He first got involved with the appeals last year, when a group of Americans tried to dump several crates filled with petitions at the North Vietnamese delegation.

To Introduce Gov. Scott's Legislation

RALEIGH (AP) — The Scott administration bill to revamp the structure of higher education in North Carolina will be introduced in the General Assembly Thursday or Friday.

Education Committee, plan to begin public hearings next week and to wind them up in about two weeks. He said the committees would hold the hearings jointly.

Rep. Perry Martin, D-Northampton, chairman of the House Higher Education Committee, said this today as he discussed with the committee plans to consider the proposals which the governor presented to a joint session of the General Assembly Tuesday.

The Northampton legislator said he and Kirby plan to call as the first witness former State Sen. Lindsay Warren Jr. of Goldsboro who headed a study committee whose majority recommended the board of regents plan.

The governor's proposals call for elimination of the administrative office of the Consolidated University of North Carolina and abolition of the state Board of Higher Education. A 47-member board of regents would be set up to coordinate all of the 16 state-supported institutions of higher education. The schools would have individual 13-member boards of trustees to govern their internal affairs.

Martin said the committee would give various points of view at each of the institutions opportunity to be heard but that the hearings would not be dragged out unduly.

Martin told the Higher Education Committee that he and Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, chairman of the Senate Higher

Martin said he felt the committee members have four options in dealing with the governor's recommendations. He said these were (1) adopt the board of regents plan recommended by the Warren committee majority (2) strengthen the Board of Higher Education as proposed by the minority, (3) do nothing, or (4) propose a constitutional amendment to restructure higher education.

Many Swinging To Scott View

RALEIGH (AP) — Many legislators apparently are falling in behind Gov. Bob Scott in his plea for the General Assembly to act now on recommendations to restructure higher education in North Carolina.

with authority to review budgets and programs and to coordinate higher education activities.

However, House Speaker Phil Godwin is sticking by his contention that "it's too late in the session" to take up such an emotional issue.

The governor received a standing ovation after he addressed a joint Senate-House session.

"I think it needs calm and deliberate consideration," Godwin said Tuesday, and I feel the members feel it's late in the session and they are rather hesitant to undertake the comprehensive study that this matter will need."

"We must do it now," Scott said in urging adoption of the report.

He added, "I suppose if this issue is presented we will have no alternative but to consider it."

The speech was termed "superb" by Sen. Hargrove Bowles, D-Guilford, who said, "I think he spoke to the question as well as I've ever heard anybody speak to any question."

Scott called upon the legislators Tuesday to adopt the majority report of a study committee which recommended separate boards of trustees for the 16 state-supported institutions of higher learning and creation of a board of regents.

Bowles said he thinks there is a good chance this legislative session will act on the proposal. He added that he wanted to study the committee report before taking any position on it.

The board would be armed

Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chat-ham, said Scott did "a very good job" in presenting the majority view of the committee. Andrews a trustee of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, signed the minority report calling for retention of the present system with broader powers vested in the State of Higher Education.

Bill To Fund ECU Medical School May Be Offered This Week

A bill to fund a one-year School of Medicine at East Carolina University and a supplemental appropriations bill to provide state money for a regional Vocational Rehabilitation center in Pitt County may be presented to the General Assembly this week.

The School Of Medicine Of East Carolina University... provides for money to plan and initiate a program of first year medical education... authorized by the 1965, 1967 and 1969 General Assemblies, and as "recommended by the North Carolina Board of Higher Education."

whereby the medical school at ECU "would provide training in medical education at the first year level..." and the UNC Medical school "would guarantee admission to all students satisfactorily completing the one-year program."

The cooperative arrangement between the two universities provides for joint planning and mutual agreements regarding admission, enrollment totals, curriculum planning, faculty, automatic progression to the second year at UNC, and other relevant matters. The Board of Higher Education, Rountree noted, has approved the agreement. Rountree explained the one-year school is a course "recognized by the Governor as the best and most feasible action to eventually establish a four-year medical school at ECU and is not to be viewed as a dead end street in medical education."

bill to provide more than $400,000 in state money toward construction of a regional vocational rehabilitation center in Greenville may be forthcoming this week, according to Rountree. Pitt County Commissioners were told two weeks ago that some $1,140,000 in federal funds (61 per cent of the cost of the project) to help finance the rehabilitation center would be lost if the state's share (24 per cent of the money) was not forthcoming by July 1. The center, hopefully, would be a 55-bed wing of the new Pitt Memorial Hospital. Total cost of the project, recommended by the State Board of Education for its Division of Vocational Rehabilitation earlier this year, would amount to approximately $1,875,000, with Pitt County providing 15 per cent of the cost, or about $281,000.

and Charlotte. The Greenville center would be the next step in the regional plan, followed by a regional facility in Fayetteville and a state rehabilitation institute at Chapel Hill.

Pitt Representative Horton Rountree said the medical school bill, tentatively entitled, "An Act To Provide Funds For Planning And Initiating A Curriculum For

Bus Boy On Wrong Route

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am an airline stewardess, 30 years old, and happily married. I am a very friendly person, but I don't think I am overly friendly. I have been eating with my group at a certain airport restaurant which is very conveniently located and has good food at sensible prices.

During the last few months I noticed a bus boy (not young) being very attentive to me. The others in my group noticed it, too, because they mentioned it. I say hello and smile at all the people who work there, the waitresses, cashier, etc., and bus boys, too, but I never gave this one bus boy any reason to get the wrong idea.

Last week, just as I was leaving, this bus boy ran up to me and handed me a letter. I opened it and it was a love letter, declaring he was "in love" with me, and my eyes told him that I loved him, too!

I haven't been back there since. It's the best restaurant in the airport, but I'm scared to go back. I don't want to get him fired, Abby. How should I handle this?

PUZLED STEWARDESS

DEAR STEWARDESS: Go back, and pointedly ignore the bus boy. He will get the message. If he makes any more overtures, report him to the manager.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is violently opposed to drinking. My husband and I keep beer in our refrigerator as we enjoy it occasionally, and so do some of our friends, but we certainly don't overdo it.

My husband agreed not to drink in front of my mother. The problem is that my mother refuses to come to our house if beer is even in the refrigerator. My husband told me that my mother doesn't have the right to dictate the contents of our refrigerator, and his agreeing not to drink in front of her is as far as he will go. My husband has already taken a lot from my mother, and I'm not sure if I have the right to ask him to back down on this point. So who should be told what?

NAMELESS PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Your mother should be told that you keep beer in your refrigerator, so if she chooses not to visit you for that reason, you will miss her visits.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a substitute teacher. She told me that when the principal telephones her to come to work, he always ends his conversation with, "See you later, baby!" [Or "sweetie," or "darling."]

The principal is about 35 years old and my wife is 37 and very attractive. She says she is sure the principal means nothing by it, and she's probably right, but we have a 15-year-old son who has a phone in his room, and if he were to accidentally hear this it would be difficult to explain. How should this matter be handled? HER HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: Your wife should tell the principal that she prefers to be called, "Mrs." And not only because your son might "accidentally" hear it either.

DEAR ABBY: In regard to Football Widow, who wrote, "If I had a heart attack during a game, I would be left lying on the floor until the game was over"; Don't believe her. She was exaggerating. A dedicated football fan wouldn't wait that long. He would pick her up at half time so he could get back to the TV set and watch the rest of the game undisturbed.

STATEN ISLAND

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Cal. 90009. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 6970, Los Angeles, Cal. 90009, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Potatoes Can Drown, Respire And Have A Skin 'Sunburn'

By JEANNE LESEM

UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Agriculturist Robert L. Mercer talks about potatoes as if they were almost human.

He said in an interview here that they respire—taking in oxygen and producing carbon dioxide, as humans do. They stop respiring and consequently, drown, if immersed too long in water. They show bruise marks when dropped. Excess light gives potatoes the equivalent of a human's sunburn, except that spuds turn green instead of red.

Mercer, who is field manager for the R. T. French Co. in Shelley, Idaho, said the greening of potatoes, like sunburn of humans, is destructive. It reduces their nutritional value and makes them so bitter they're inedible.

Per capita potato consumption is on the rise in the United States, he said. It was 118.2 pounds in 1969, compared with 101.3 pounds in 1960 and 114.4 pounds in 1940.

Processing is superior. Mercer attributed the increase to advances in potato processing that have created both a wider variety of product and quality far superior to the dehydrated spuds that were anathema to GI's during World War II.

"The wrong processing techniques were used," he said. "They made a product so starchy it didn't taste good."

Newer processes permit dehydration without breaking the potatoes' cell walls to release the starches.

Despite the proliferation of processed potatoes, fresh ones continue to outsell dehydrated, frozen and canned ones. A breakdown of the 1969 per capita consumption showed 63.4 pounds were fresh, compared with 54.8 for all processed spuds.

Not High In Calories. These statistics contradict the popular assumption that weight-conscious persons avoid potatoes because they're high in calories.

A medium potato, boiled or baked, contains only about 100 calories. It's the butter or gravy you add that makes the figure soar.

Mercer said housewives really don't appreciate the potato's food value.

"It's a very important source of vitamins and is weak only in Vitamin A. If you were going to eat only two foods, from a nutritional standpoint your best choice would be milk and potatoes."

Crunchy potato logs are a festive-looking vegetable that take only minutes to make. Prepare one (5-serving) envelope of instant mashed potato granules as label directs, but reduce water to 1 1/4 cups. Stir in one beaten egg. Spoon onto greased cookie sheet in log shapes, making about 8 or 10. Brush each with melted butter. Crush 1 can of french fried onion rings and sprinkle over potatoes. Bake 10-15 minutes in preheated 425-degree oven. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Book Of Poetry Published By Wooten-Dunn Vows Exchanged

By JULIE FLINT

Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Screwing up her face and hissing slightly, the gentle brunette delivered a stinging parody of the ad-man's housebound housewife, elbow-deep in soap suds and simpers.

Mary Wilson—55-year-old wife of Britain's former labor prime minister, poetess and staunch supporter of the second sex—believes women can do anything men can, and better too.

"We are more peace-minded than men," she says firmly. "I am a terrific feminist."

While reluctant to endorse the tactics of Britain's Women's Liberation Movement, Mrs. Wilson is full of praise for the women's enthusiasm and verve.

"They certainly have got something," she says. "A fresh approach. For example, the standard of TV advertising is sickening."

Her hackles—and her voice—also rise at the suggestion women might not be fitted to hold key positions in government.

"Of course they can," she says.

But she adds, "it wouldn't do for me. I would get into a flap."

For this reason, she explains, life at No. 10 Downing Street—the prime minister's official residence and her home until labor's election defeat last June—was not all roses.

"I'm no good at small talk," she sighs, "and with the best will in the world I don't find it easy to talk to strangers..."

The daughter of a Congregational minister born and bred in the country, she never developed a taste for government-issue furniture and front door police.

"You couldn't think of it as home," she says. "You were always conscious of the history of the place. Portraits of Gladstone, Disraeli, Peel everywhere. You sometimes felt they were breathing down your neck."

Although she has fewer official commitments now, Mrs. Wilson finds her life changed little. In or out of No. 10, when not "pottering" around the home, she is happiest cooking, reading or simply walking by the river.

The wife of the leader of Her Majesty's loyal opposition, has always refused to join the party fight with her husband, preferring poetry to politics.

The publication last year of her first book of poems brought her headlines, and with sales currently hitting the 65,000 mark, the slim volume has become Britain's best-selling post-war anthology. Its simple title: "Mary Wilson, Selected Poems."

Mrs. Wilson does not hide her pleasure at her astonishing success.

"To hold a book like this in your hand and know they thought it good enough to publish in its own right," she says, "is a great thrill."

She warns against misinterpretation of her poetry. One much-quoted passage speaks of "vapid voices shrilling high in one continuous parrot cry."

This, she stresses, is not a reminder of her Downing Street days.

Mrs. Wilson does not take her poetry lightly. "While I'm walking I'm always thinking poetry," she says. And, pulling out her check book, she indicates a few words scribbled in pencil.

"The best lines come to you out of the blue and you have to stop and write them down. Afterwards," she says, "you can't understand them. It's maddening."

Bride-Elect Entertained

A bridal shower was given for Miss Pam Hinnant, bride-elect of May 30, at the home of Mrs. Joe Downing Saturday night.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Henry Johnston, Mrs. Thomas Harris and Miss Sandra Downing.

The guests were received by Mrs. Cecil Hinnant and Mrs. Walter Whitehurst and served from a pink and white table setting complimented with pink and white candelabra.

Orchid corsages were presented to Miss Hinnant and the mothers of the bride and bridegroom-elect.

Shower Honors Miss Avery

Miss Linda Avery, June bride-elect, was honored at a lingerie shower at the home of Mrs. L. Hunter Meacham Jr. in Chapel Hill Saturday night.

The honoree was remembered with gifts from the guests, who included sorority sisters at UNC-Chapel Hill.

Refreshments were served to the 11 guests attending the event.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. James Preston Edwards of Morehead City announce the engagement of their daughter, Jessica Deen, to Ronald James Small, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Small of Behune, S. C. The wedding will take place July 10.

Hooked Early On Smoking Habit

NEW YORK (UPI)—The smoking withdrawal clinic in York County, Pa., was unusual because of the age of the participants. None was over 18, the American Cancer Society reports. A boy at the clinic was 17 and had been smoking a pack a day since he was eight.

Another 17-year-old was smoking two packs a day. They made him "feel grown up."

A girl, 14, said she started at 11 because "I got bored." The youngsters wanted to break the habit because it was getting expensive and, they said, affected their health. A girl, 13, said she smoked a full pack of filter tips a day and that she was "nervous all the time."

Tender Trap Raised Sales

BRUSSELS, Belgium (WNS) — Boutique owner Gerda Briend has opened a back room where men may lounge and drink while their ladies shop. "I spread gift items around the back room one day for the men to buy, and they bit," said Miss Briend. "Now they are spending almost as much money as their wives. Before, they mostly discouraged sales."

FOUNTAIN — In a candlelight ceremony, Miss Margie Louise Dunn and Jerry Roger Wooten were united in marriage on Friday, May 14, at 8:00 p.m. in Dilda's Grove Free Will Baptist Church near here.

The Rev. R. L. Norville officiated using the doubling ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Dunn of Rt. 1, Fountain. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wooten of Rt. 2, Walstonburg.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Fred Whitley of Crisp, organist, presented a program of wedding music. Mrs. Mary Lloyd of Greenville, soloist, sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight satin peau de soie. The semi-fitted A-line gown featured a scalloped lace yoke front and back with three-quarter length bell shaped sleeves ending in scallops. The dress, designed and created by the bride's sister, was enhanced with a full chapel lace train pleated onto the back yoke and ending in scallops.

Trimmed with seed pearls, her bouffant two tiered short veil of illusion was attached to a cluster of bridal loops centered with peau de soie and matching lace surrounded with leaves and organdy. She carried a cascade bouquet of white mums with bridal greenery and white satin streamers.

Mrs. Merle Overton of Rt. 2, Farmville, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Wendy Kay Dunn, sister of the bride, and Miss Kimberly Leigh Dunn of Durham, niece of the bride.

Raymond Earl Wooten of Rt. 2, Snow Hill, served his brother as best man. Ushers were Kenneth Roy Dunn, brother of the bride, and Stephen L. Williams of Kinston.

Mrs. Ollie Dunn, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest register located at the entrance of the church on a stand complimented with greenery.

Mrs. Rom L. Beamon of Rt. 1, Farmville, directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony, wedding guests were received by the bride and bridegroom, parents, and bridal attendants on the outside of the church.

For a wedding trip, the bride changed into an empire waistline dress of lavender doubleknit with matching accessories.

The couple will make their home on Rt. 1, Fountain.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville High School and is presently employed at Eastern Garment Company, Wilson. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School and is employed at the Farmville Division of U. S. Industries.

About Tacos

If you prefer, make your own taco shells (using corn tortillas) rather than using packaged shells. Here are directions:

Into a deep 8-inch skillet pour 1 1/2 cups salad (not olive) oil; heat oil.

Drop a tortilla in half; holding rounded edges together with tongs, dip the bottom of the tortilla into the hot oil (pressing down gently so bottom will be flat) until the bottom sets and crisps.

Slide the tongs inside the tortilla and quickly press one side under the hot oil, opening tongs to hold the shell open. Fry until crisp and brown; turn and brown the other side, again using the open tongs to hold the sides apart. Drain on absorbent paper.

Repeat process, folding and frying 1 tortilla at a time until all shells are crisp and brown.

As tacos are ready, keep them warm in a low oven before filling as directed in Beef Tacos recipe.

BEEF TACOS

2 pound ground chuck beef
2 teaspoons chili powder
1/2 teaspoon dried crushed oregano

1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Dunn of Rt. 1, Fountain. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wooten of Rt. 2, Walstonburg.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Fred Whitley of Crisp, organist, presented a program of wedding music. Mrs. Mary Lloyd of Greenville, soloist, sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight satin peau de soie. The semi-fitted A-line gown featured a scalloped lace yoke front and back with three-quarter length bell shaped sleeves ending in scallops. The dress, designed and created by the bride's sister, was enhanced with a full chapel lace train pleated onto the back yoke and ending in scallops.

Trimmed with seed pearls, her bouffant two tiered short veil of illusion was attached to a cluster of bridal loops centered with peau de soie and matching lace surrounded with leaves and organdy. She carried a cascade bouquet of white mums with bridal greenery and white satin streamers.

Mrs. Merle Overton of Rt. 2, Farmville, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Wendy Kay Dunn, sister of the bride, and Miss Kimberly Leigh Dunn of Durham, niece of the bride.

Raymond Earl Wooten of Rt. 2, Snow Hill, served his brother as best man. Ushers were Kenneth Roy Dunn, brother of the bride, and Stephen L. Williams of Kinston.

Mrs. Ollie Dunn, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest register located at the entrance of the church on a stand complimented with greenery.

Mrs. Rom L. Beamon of Rt. 1, Farmville, directed the wedding.

Following the ceremony, wedding guests were received by the bride and bridegroom, parents, and bridal attendants on the outside of the church.

For a wedding trip, the bride changed into an empire waistline dress of lavender doubleknit with matching accessories.

The couple will make their home on Rt. 1, Fountain.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville High School and is presently employed at Eastern Garment Company, Wilson. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central High School and is employed at the Farmville Division of U. S. Industries.

About Tacos

If you prefer, make your own taco shells (using corn tortillas) rather than using packaged shells. Here are directions:

Into a deep 8-inch skillet pour 1 1/2 cups salad (not olive) oil; heat oil.

Drop a tortilla in half; holding rounded edges together with tongs, dip the bottom of the tortilla into the hot oil (pressing down gently so bottom will be flat) until the bottom sets and crisps.

Slide the tongs inside the tortilla and quickly press one side under the hot oil, opening tongs to hold the shell open. Fry until crisp and brown; turn and brown the other side, again using the open tongs to hold the sides apart. Drain on absorbent paper.

Repeat process, folding and frying 1 tortilla at a time until all shells are crisp and brown.

As tacos are ready, keep them warm in a low oven before filling as directed in Beef Tacos recipe.

Staying Power For 25 Years

RAMBOUILLET, France (WNS) — Jacqueline Thome-Patenotre just celebrated her "silver wedding anniversary with Rambouillet" by being elected mayor for the fifth time. Her first term of office began 25 years ago, "as soon as possible after Frenchwomen were granted the right to vote." Her political party? "Radical, of course," she said.

May Luncheon, Installation Held By Home Pride Club

The Home Pride Garden Club held their annual May luncheon and installation Thursday at the home of Mrs. Frank Layne.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Austin Britt, Mrs. Robert Browning and Mrs. Fred Wagner. The theme for the luncheon was "A Salute to North Carolina."

Mrs. Britt, Mrs. Arthur Alford, Mrs. Wagner and Mrs. Layne used a white luncheon cloth with red napkins. The centerpiece was made of pine boughs topped by a cardinal and a cut-out foot with a "Tar Heel" coronet.

A coastal table theme was used by Mrs. Phil Moore and Mrs. Robert Dominick. A blue cloth covered with net and cork was used with a centerpiece of a large shell filled with sand, native sea grass and sea shells. Small hand-carved miniature ducks surrounded the shell. The napkins were folded in a fan shape and sea shells were used as napkin holders. White iron stoned china, iridescent goblets and Satineque silver completed the setting.

At a table covered with off white linen were Mrs. Gilmer Husley and Mrs. Lyman Daughtrey. Informal china, Calico Leaves, was used with sea green goblets and Rondo silver completed the table setting. A centerpiece of assorted sea shells from the North Carolina coast carried out the theme.

Mrs. Joe Clark, Mrs. Roger Hesdorffer, Mrs. Jack Weeden and Mrs. Bobby Boseman used an ecru linen cloth with matching napkins which were held by wooden napkin rings. Gold color Cannonsberg pottery carried out the rustic theme. Stemmed water glasses and wooden handled silver completed the setting. The centerpiece was made of native North Carolina dried flowers arranged in an earthenware container.

Mrs. Larry Vacek and Mrs. Frank Thompson used a cream colored cloth with matching napkins. Tara, silver, Jamestown crystal and Woodlawn Gold china completed the setting. The centerpiece theme was from the mountains to the sea.

Officers were installed by outgoing president, Mrs. Thompson. President for the new year is Mrs. Hesdorffer, who will be assisted by: Mrs. Dominick, vice president; Mrs. Wagner, recording secretary; Mrs. Alford, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Moore, treasurer; Mrs. Ledyard Ross, historian; and Mrs. Britt, chaplain.

Guests for the luncheon were Mrs. Paul Erchman, Mrs. William Fore, Mrs. Gene Lanier, Mrs. Baxter Richardson, Mrs. Julian Hamilton and Mrs. Bill Dawson.

Life's Little Quirks

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:
Women take more pride in themselves than men do. You can talk the average man into feeling he is pretty run of the mill or even downright worthless, but every woman believes herself exceptional in some way, whether by beauty, talent, character, charm—or a combination of all four. She never gives up on herself.
Three-minute eggs usually turn out better if the cook gives them an extra minute just for luck.

A woman will go for years without being able to read her wristwatch before she'll buy bifocals.

June is the month in which the office cheapskate always takes his vacation—so he won't have to chip in for goodbye presents for the girls who are leaving their jobs to get married.

One of the wry things about age is that you still can't do some of the things you couldn't do when young—but for different reasons. Take chocolate eclairs, for example. You never could get your fill of them when you were a kid because they were too rich for your pocketbook; now you can't even take a bite of one because the doctor says it is too rich for your blood.

Lilacs smell sweeter each spring, because no one can

A "practical" method of "beginning to reduce" cancer deaths in this country was made public today in a report by the directors of the American Society. This may be done, they state, by the establishment of special cancer institutes, hospitals and clinics.

Following the annual custom, members of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion, will visit the graves of veterans of the county and place upon them a wreath of flowers, on May 30.

Mrs. Hugh Williams, of Kinston was here yesterday. Mrs. A. W. Ange, Misses Louise and Frannie Ange, of Winterville, were Greenville visitors today.

Miss Alice Lee Hooker left today for New York. Mrs. J. Knott Proctor spent yesterday in Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hall spent the week end in Raleigh.

Miss Christine Windley, of Washington, was here yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl James, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie James and daughter spent Sunday in Norfolk, Virginia.

In The Best Interest Of N.C.

Governor Scott has taken the position that is in the best interest of all North Carolina by strongly urging the General Assembly to restructure higher education as outlined by the Warren Commission recommendations.

If higher education in North Carolina is to serve the growing needs of this state and its people, restructure is essential. And it is essential now.

The majority report of the Warren Commission points concisely at the problems that higher education faces with its present structure. It makes positive and constructive recommendations for

Life's Light Is Still Bright

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — A good man's life is never lost; where its light shone keeps some brightness after he is gone.

You have to believe it, having known Lawrence Whitfield.

His warm and winning personality drew people to him, both his peers and those older. Gifts of intellect were matched with religious insight, and a commitment to worthy purposes.

Last year he graduated with highest honors in English from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He won a George C. Marshall Fellowship for graduate study at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland, another fellowship to Yale Divinity School.

Life stretched ahead, creative and productive. He planned to marry, to teach at a college or university, to express through writing his sense of God at work in the world.

Then the sharp edge of fate ruptured those rosy prospects.

Descending from a mountain climb last February 27, somehow Lawrence fell. One terrible accident wiped out the promise of his future.

Receiving the News Across the Atlantic Ocean that Sunday evening, Jim Whitfield went to the door of his suburban Raleigh home. The caller was a friend from The News and Observer, where Whitfield is business editor. He declined to come in, but there on the front porch gave Whitfield the news from the wire service dispatches.

"I remember saying a prayer before going in to tell Annie Laurie: 'Lord, help us all,'" Whitfield said. Through the heart-rending tasks of the week that followed, leading to a memorial service the next Saturday, he felt strangely calm and unafraid.

How keenly Lawrence's spirit had touched those who knew him became apparent that week. Friends came to Raleigh to grieve together and console each other; from Chapel Hill, New Haven and Cambridge, Chicago and New York.

"They came and stayed," his mother recalled with a trace of wonder. "I don't know how they managed to take time off from classes or jobs. It was as though they, had lost a member of the family."

One evening in the living room they talked with Whitfield about a memorial.

A Growing Memorial "It won't be a lot at first," they said, "but as we graduate, get jobs and earn money you can be sure it will grow. Lawrence won't be forgotten."

Keeping his memory green will be the Lawrence Whitfield Traveling Fellowship, established through a Wesley Foundation at Chapel Hill, which he served as president as a senior. One or more awards will be made each year to undergraduate students at the University there, for use in a travel experience as enrichment for their education.

Just such a trip, to Canada the summer after his junior year, meant a lot to Lawrence in his intellectual growth.

Appropriately, a first contribution was the $22.50 refund on his fare to Paris, a trip he had looked forward to at spring semester break, plus $7.28 in his pockets at the time of the fatal fall.

Faculty members of the English department established the Lawrence Whitfield Honors Prize, to be awarded with an appropriate book to the student whose honors essay and work best meets standards of excellence set by him.

Honoring The Ideal

The impulse to create the award was explained by Chairman C. Carroll Hollis in a letter to the parents. Lawrence, he wrote, was near the ideal as a student. "In bringing us to the highest demands of our calling, he made us better teachers, and we will always be profoundly grateful for that experience," he said.

The letter is one of nearly a thousand received by the family. One prized, from a young friend who felt Lawrence had helped at a critical time, said: "We shall remember him best by what we demand of ourselves."

Few families sustain such tragedy. The Whitfields absorbed it with the faith they instilled in their son.

"None of us questioned why," the father said. "We accepted it because death is as much a part of life as birth. That's basic."

Lawrence Whitfield had a keen awareness of spiritual reality, heightened for him by mountain climbing. Last fall, he wrote:

"I haven't figured out yet what is so compelling about climbing a mountain. The long wet walks, the wind, the cold, the rain, or the thought of doing it?"

"Perhaps because one discovers that the spiritual world is more real, more enduring than the physical—which may explain why climbers seldom talk about what they see."

forward-looking changes. Gov. Scott, in his address to the General Assembly, has underscored the recommendations which call for a board of regents that would have budgetary and program controls, and individual boards of trustees for each of the 16 state-supported institutions.

It is interesting to note that the minority report which protested what it calls "deconsolidation of the Consolidated University" was signed by only six of the 23 members of the Warren Commission. Five of the six who signed the minority report are members of the board of trustees of the Consolidated University.

Having begun its work in January, the Warren Commission has made a thorough study of the structure of higher education. There is nothing to be gained by postponing for another two years legislative consideration and action on what is certain to be a controversial issue. The legislature should take time in its current session to resolve the issue. Certainly it would be serving the best interest of all higher education in North Carolina to resolve it in the manner recommended by the study commission and by the governor.

The program recommended by Gov. Scott and the Warren Commission offers a sound and reasonable approach to the organization of higher education. It would eliminate many of the most difficult structural problems which now exist in higher education. It would pave the way for better coordination, better planning and budgeting in higher education, and go a long way toward eliminating much of the in-fighting which now goes on in public and behind the scenes in higher education in this state.

Most of all it would strengthen higher education in North Carolina and enable the state's system to do a better job of meeting the needs of its people. It would do so without damage to any institution. Indeed, it would lead to a further strengthening of each of the state's 16 institutions through better planning and coordination and ultimately through wiser use of funds which are available for higher education.

Gov. Scott put it pointedly and correctly when he told legislators, "We must do it now. Tomorrow will be too late."

Talks Test Of Daley's Power

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

CHICAGO — The privately stated intention of Lt. Gov. Paul Simon to run for the Democratic nomination for governor next year even if it means bucking mighty Mayor Richard J. Daley in an open primary puts the power realities here in a new, highly complicated perspective.

Daley organization politicians here dismiss Simon's talk as a bluff, but Democrats who know him best believe he is deadly serious. Indeed, Simon now plans a statement early this autumn announcing he will enter the primary for governor, with or without the organization's blessing. That would signal the possibility of the first independent Democrat nominated for governor since Dick Daley's reign began in 1955.

Yet, nothing is so simple in the labyrinth of Illinois Democratic politics. Ironically, a declaration of independence by Simon could have precisely the effect opposite to what he intends: the preservation of the Chicago organization's dominance over the state's Democratic party and its national role as supreme arbiter in President-picking. In fact, looking at events eight months away, that seems the most probable outcome.

Just a month ago, Simon was heavily favored to be endorsed by the "slatemakers" (regular party elders headed by Daley) early next year for governor even though he is far from the organization's specifications. A downstate weekly newspaper publisher, Simon, 42, compiled a distinguished record as a crusading liberal legislator and once barely missed censure for a magazine expose about the notorious Illinois legislature.

But Simon's hand was strengthened by the announcement for governor last November of Daniel Walker, resigning as $100,000-a-year general counsel of Montgomery Ward, to fight the Daley machine. Completely disdaining the entire slatemakers procedure, Walker promised to go straight into the Democratic primary against overwhelming odds. Walker's credibility as a machine-busting reformer would suffer, however, if the ogre he was exercising turned out to be Paul Simon.

Besides, since being slated for lieutenant governor in 1968, Simon has grown ever closer to Daley and the organization — to the dismay of fellow liberals. Ten days ago, three anti-machine Democrats — Congressman Abner Mikva and state Reps. Anthony Scariano and Robert Mann — met secretly with Simon to warn him that young activists distrusted him and were backing Walker.

But Simon's deeper problems have sprouted within the organization becoming evident after Mayor Daley's massive reelection to a fifth term. With that extra confidence, key organization lieutenants hinted they did not need Simon to beat down Walker's quixotic primary bid but could win with one of their own. And picking one of their own is decidedly safer politics for machine lieutenants who agree with whispered comments of the late Paul Powell, downstate weekly newspaper publisher, about Simon as he took the oath of office as lieutenant governor in 1969: "Them leopards never change their spots."

Strength For Today

THAT LESSON Do you lie awake at night worrying? Do you get up in the morning full of discouragement? Are you oppressed by the feeling that nothing in your life will come out right unless you make it do so?

This is not a commercial for a pain-killing tablet or a digestive preparation. It is just a little observation on the dismal fact that most of our misery arises from a deep-seated conviction that we can manage the world, or at least that part of it which impinges upon us.

And, of course, we are dead wrong. God has never yet handed his world over to any individual or group of individuals, and there is no likelihood that He ever will.

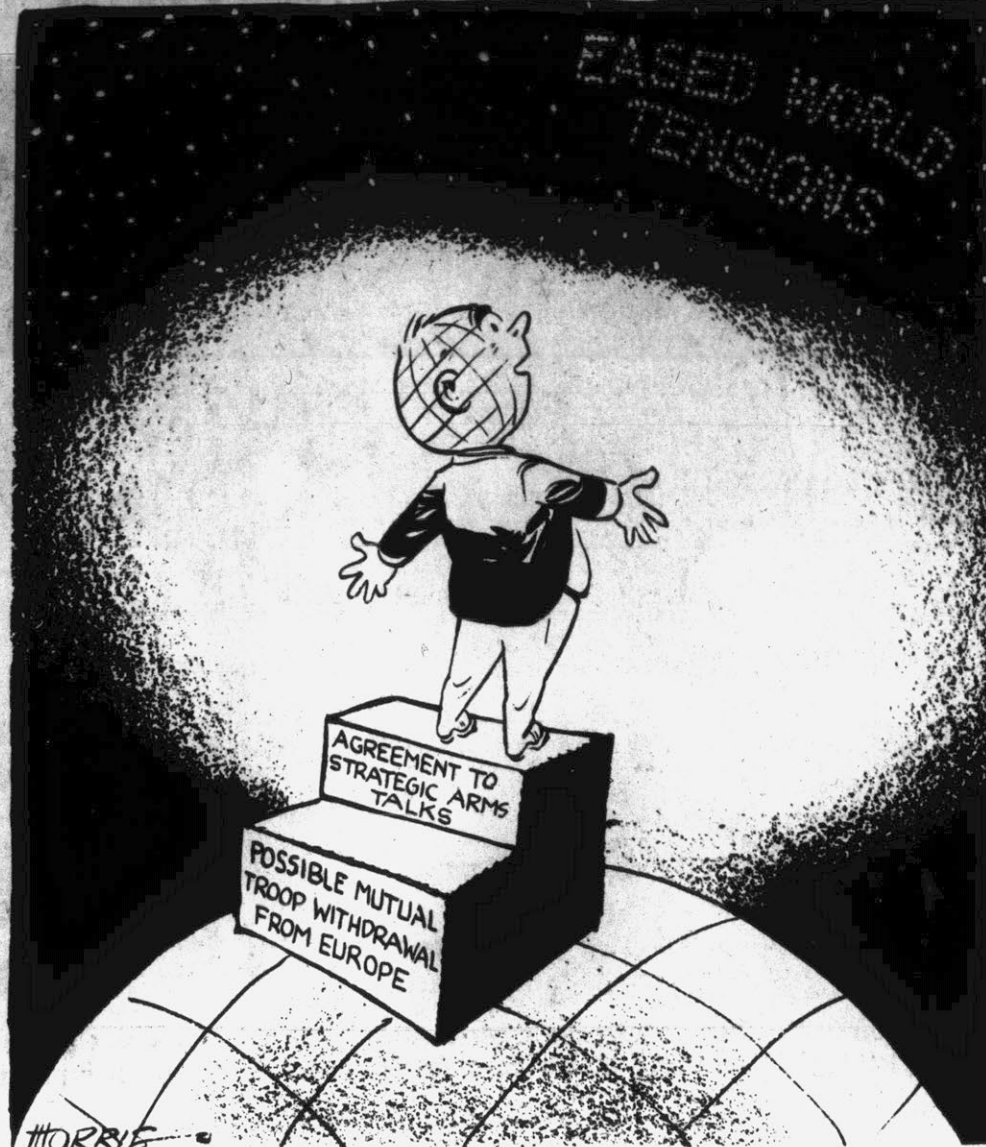

This running-the-world complex is one of the most agonizing realities humanity has to deal with.

Leave something to the Lord. Jesus said, "Behold the lilies of the field." Yes, the lilies, the trees, the green grass, the eternal stars. Impudent little man appears to be the only thing in the universe trying to control his environment. The conceited little creature puts himself in God's place and thinks he can run the world. He worries. He fumes. He tears his hair.

God smiles, and Jesus utters the memorable words, "Behold the lilies of the field."

Yes, behold them! Peer at them! They have a lesson for all of us.

Get Them Out Of Texas

WASHINGTON — A U.S. Army lieutenant friend, a native of New York, has just written from Fort Hood, Tex., informing me that a movement has been organized on the base to get all American troops out of Texas by the first of the year.

"There are still 200,000 American GIs stationed here in Texas," he wrote, "and most of them would go home tomorrow if they could."

The lieutenant said that American soldiers have no idea what they are doing in Texas and refuse to accept the Pentagon's word that they are there to protect the Alamo.

"The natives don't want us," he writes, "and our presence causes all sorts of difficulties."

"First there is the language problem. The American troops refuse to learn Texan, and Texans refuse to speak American. This leads to serious misunderstandings."

"Secondly, there is the question of size. Most American GIs are at least a head taller than Texans, and this gives the Texans a terrible inferiority complex. The American GI speaks of his Texas counterpart with contempt and derision, and the Texan thinks of the American GI as a big brute who has no feeling for ancient Texas traditions. This clash of cultures has led to fist fights and bottle throwing in bars.

"Finally there is the question of Texas women. Texas women are attracted to American GIs, not only because they consider them better-looking than Texas men, but invariably they have more money and harm. Texas men have become bitter about this and most Texas women who marry a GI are socially ostracized if they remain in the country."

"But the real problem, as far as the American GIs are concerned, is that they don't understand what they are doing in Texas in the first place. Every President has given a different reason why U.S. soldiers should be there. Some have said that the Americans are there to protect the Texans from being overrun by the Mexicans."

"Other Presidents have said the troops are there to assure that Texas has honest elections, something that has been denied Texans since they joined the Union."

"Some Presidents have defended sending troops to Texas on the grounds that we made a commitment to Sam Houston, and the United States would lose its credibility if it backed down at this late date."

"President Johnson insisted we needed American troops in Texas to prevent supplies from coming up the Pedernales River. President Nixon said Saturday we had to be there to interdict the L. B. J. Trail."

"But the truth of the matter is, everyone in Texas is getting rich on the American GI, and all we're doing is perpetuating a government that at the least is suspected of monkeying with the state banking laws."

My lieutenant friend (Cont'd on Page A-9)

Other Editors Say A Better Way

(Durham Herald) Fortunately for the nation and its people, Congress acted to end the railroad signalmen's strike before disruption of rail service seriously upset the economy. Several firms announced plans to stop production of goods, and more anticipated work stoppage if the strike had continued. Production stoppage means layoff of workers as well as deprivation of consumers.

The affair raises the question of whether strikes can continue to be permitted in this country. The short rail strike shows how easily a strike can paralyze the nation's economy, throw workers out of work in a broad spectrum of industry, and cut off the supplies of goods to consumers. The American economy has reached such a stage that strikes must be outlawed in the public interest.

Elimination of strikes immediately raises the question of how workers can secure needed increases in pay. The answer would be wage regulation boards, a national board to settle wage disputes (when management and labor do not come to agreement) in industries and businesses engaged in interstate commerce, stage boards to settle wage disputes in industries and businesses engaged in interstate commerce.

The authority of these boards should not be limited to wage issues, but should extend to working conditions generally. Provisions should be made for court review, if either party wishes to appeal, of a board's decision.

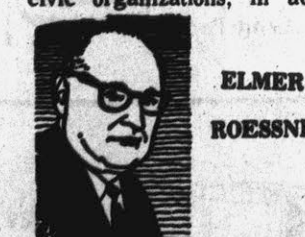

The congressional settlement of the signalmen's strike suggests the pattern. The bill passed by both Senate and House, and signed by President Nixon, who had requested congressional action to stop the strike, not only orders the signalmen back to work, but gives them an increase in pay of 13.5 per cent.

Three of the four unions have signed agreements with the railroads, and their members have received an additional four per cent pay raise, effective April 4. The signalmen would have received a raise of 17.5 per cent if they had accepted the proposal of the emergency board.

A special wage board seems the fairest way to resolve labor-management disagreement. It would eliminate strikes as a feature of labor policy. At the same time it would give workers the opportunity to get pay increases as conditions justify them.

Corporations Are For Profits

By ELMER ROESSNER There is an amorphous, disjointed campaign afoot to make big corporations socially conscious. It has been going on for some time but it has not been effective. It has never been coherently organized and consequently charges off in all directions.

ELMER ROESSNER

Nevertheless, it involves hundreds of thousands of people who if ever marshaled into a single organization, could be a powerful force. The objectives are diverse. They include:

Compelling large corporations to refuse military contracts. To force corporations to cease polluting the air, water and soil.

To compel them to hire members of minority groups, usually in ratio to their percentage of the whole population.

To compel them to give better jobs to members of the majority, that is, women. Save the World!

To make them socially conscious in other ways: to use their power both inside the corporation and outside in government, in politics, in civic organizations, in adporate meetings, they have brought a number of suits against corporations, they have picketed a number of establishments and they have blown up a few banks. They have got some results. Some corporations have announced projects to reduce pollution, others have joined in ventures to recycle wastes, many have hired minority members, some have cheered on social reforms.

Dreyfus Corp. announced the formation of a new mutual fund that will invest only in socially conscious corporate stocks and bonds. This is not exactly a new idea, since there are already funds that refuse to invest in companies that deal in tobacco, alcohol, medical preparations and other products disapproved of by religious faiths.

Doomed to Failure But the entire idea of bringing America by bringing pressure on the dominant corporations is sure to fail. First, the campaigners are so diverse in objectives that they can never be organized under one banner.

Second, corporations have little pressure on lawmakers, where effective action must be concentrated, and what little sock companies and industry have there they need for their own interests.

Third and most important of all, the profit motive rules all corporations. Let a corporation refuse a war contract, let a management overspend money on do-gooder projects, let a company advertise that a competitor makes a safer product, and a new management will be quickly voted in.

You could start a company to manufacture napalm, sell baby seal skins and round up draft evaders, and if the company makes profits, investors will pelt you with money and the stock will soar in price.

Profits rule Wall Street. Never forget that.

(Continued From Page 1) precincts voted in favor, although some, including Greenville number one, with a 64-54 tally, Greenville number four with a 94 to 90 vote and Belvoir with 51 for and 43 against, failed to show a wide margin in favor.

Commissioners say the county's portion of the revenue will go to help meet increased financial needs of the county such as to repay a $9 million bond issue for construction of a new hospital and help meet the needs of the schools in the county. Prior to yesterday's balloting, J. Howard Moye, chairman of a citizen's committee supporting the tax said the question facing voters was not whether they were for or against a sales tax, but how they had rather pay.

Voters, he said, would decide whether to pay the required increase in taxes by a one-third increase in ad valorem (property) tax, or partly through a sales tax. "It is not a matter of whether taxes are going to be increased," he said, but instead, how it will be paid. Moye noted that a sales tax is easier to pay because the tax is paid in small amounts as purchases are made rather than in lump sum amounts once a year.

Opponents of the tax took the position that, although the county and municipal governments need more money, reform in the present tax structure would give the necessary revenue. Charles Cain of Greenville headed a

Approve Booster Club For Boys' Club Wood Sculpture First Choice For Foundation

Peggy Burke's untitled wood sculpture has become the first work of art to be purchased from the Purchase Award established from the Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation Fund.

Miss Burke, a native of Pittsboro, N.C., is a graduate student at the School of Art at East Carolina University. The walnut carving, made from a solid block of wood, has already become a favorite at the Greenville Art Center, where it has been on display since the termination of the Sidewalk Art Show.

Announcement of the decision to purchase this work was made by Dr. Alfred H. Yongue, chairman of the Acquisitions Committee of the East Carolina Art Society. Also announced is the purchase of a photograph by Roy Hardee with the Ross Bryant Purchase Award. Hardee's photograph, in black and white, shows two very young football players ready to go into action, with one of the youngest interrupted by a small dog licking the boy's face.

Both items will be on display as part of the permanent collection of the Greenville Art Center. committee of citizens opposed to the sales tax. "The present method of assessing the value of property," Cain said, "results in some inequity. We feel that a fair reappraisal of property would relieve the burden from the home owner and place it on the large land owner' holding land for speculative purposes."

Emphasizing the committee's commitment for tax reform, Cain said "we will keep pushing for reform..." but termed the passage of the sales tax "a real serious obstacle."

According to Cain, "citizens should be aware of what they are paying. Taxes should not be hidden. A sales tax is a hidden tax." Cox, in commenting on the question emphasized there will be no decrease in property taxes. But, he said, any increase in property taxes will be no where as great as would have been required if the sales tax had not passed.

The schedule of payment of the local sales levy will be: less than 10 cents purchase, no tax; 10 cents to 29 cents, one penny tax; 20 to 59 cents, two cents; 60 to 84 cents, three cents; 85 to $1.12, four cents; and all over $1.12, four per cent.

This schedule compares with the present three per cent schedule of less than 10 cents purchase, no tax; 10 to 35 cents, one penny; 36 to 70 cents, two cents; 71 to $1.16, three cents, and three per cent over $1.16. The 6,177 persons voting in yesterday's balloting amounted to less than one-fourth the 26,200 registered voters in the county.

Bill Would Permit Student Fee Choice

In an effort to crack down on vulgarity in student newspapers, Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, has introduced a bill that would give college students a choice of whether or not to pay student fees for campus publications.

Appearing Tuesday before a hearing of the Senate subcommittee on higher education, Allsbrook produced copies of the University of North Carolina student paper which contained a feature on homosexuality in Chapel Hill, an article that prompted him to introduce the bill, he said.

Allsbrook also cited a recent issue of the East Carolina University publication, Fountainhead, which published a cartoon containing an abusive remark aimed at ECU president Dr. Leo Jenkins.

Robert Thonen, Fountainhead editor, was later suspended from the school following a hearing before the ECU disciplinary board on charges of the use of abusive language. UNC president William Friday appeared before the sub-

Airline Pays Ransom Money

By IAN McCausland Associated Press Writer SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — An Australian airline paid a ransom of $560,000 today to a gang that claimed to have put a barometric bomb on a Boeing 707 jetliner with more than 200 persons aboard.

Qantas, Australia's international airline, made the payoff in the center of the city just as the plane landed safely at Sydney's international airport. It had circled for six and a half hours while all defense forces and police personnel went on a red alert to deal with the emergency.

Eight ships of the Royal Australian Navy, including two submarines and three destroyers, were rushed to the Botany Bay area on the edge of the airport. An anonymous caller had telephoned the airport and said a bomb had been put in an airport locker. Police raced to the locker area and found the bomb.

With it were three notes. One said a similar bomb had been put aboard Qantas flight 755, which had left two and a half hours earlier for Hong Kong. Examination of the bomb showed it was fitted with an unconnected barometric device. If connected, it would explode below 20,000 feet.

Also in the locker was a demand for $500,000 ransom, or $560,000 U.S.

The notes said the location of the bomb on the plane and instructions how to defuse it would be given when the ransom was paid. The aircraft, then en route to a stop at Darwin, on the north coast, was ordered to return to Sydney immediately. The passengers were not told of the bomb threat, and the crew searched the plane but found nothing suspicious.

While a blackout was put on news of the threat, Qantas officials conferred feverishly with military and police authorities. They decided that the money must be paid.

Instructions for the payoff came in a telephone call to Qantas from a "Mr. Brown." He said Capt. Robert J. Ritchie, general manager of Qantas, should hand over the money in front of the airline's office in the center of the city.

Qantas officials raced around the banks, collecting the money. At 5:45 p.m. Ritchie walked into the street.

A yellow hire van drew up beside him and a man identified himself as "Mr. Brown." Ritchie handed over the suitcases of money, and the van sped away into the rush-hour traffic.

"Brown" was believed to have worn a false beard.

A Booster Club for the Boys' Club of Greenville was approved by board members of the club at their regular monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Under the plan envisioned, each of the 40 members of the current Board of Directors will be asked to enlist 10 members as Boys' Club Booster members. Each booster member will contribute an annual membership fee of $10.

In making a unanimous decision to initiate the Booster Club, several board directors stressed the importance of using this method to get the active interest of more local citizens in the work of the Boys' Club.

All board members will soon receive a letter outlining full details of the Booster Club plan and will be asked to begin work on enlisting membership at an early date.

Two new members for the Board of Directors were approved at the regular May meeting. Dr. William Monroe, a Greenville ophthalmologist, and Tommy Payne, a public relations man, were elected

Arrest Pair In Connection With Break-In

Pitt Counties deputies have arrested two Rt. 2, Washington men on charges of receiving stolen property following investigation of a recent break-in at Gaskins Supply Co. in Grimesland.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that William L. Whitley, 38, and Armstead Brown Woolard, 58, were arrested Tuesday afternoon in Washington and charged with receiving two outdoor motors that were stolen May 9 from the Grimesland firm.

The sheriff noted that four new motors were stolen from the store during the incident and have been recovered.

Whitley and Woolard were released on $1,000 bond each, Sheriff Tyson said, and a hearing in District Court here has been scheduled for June 9 at 9:30 a.m.

Investigation of the break-in is continuing, he added.

Graduation For Kindergarteners

Two graduation ceremonies were held at the end of last week for young graduates of the Trinity Free Will Baptist Kindergarten Class of 1971.

The kindergarten, directed by Mrs. Al Davis, wife of the pastor of the church, had 25 children graduating on Friday night and an additional 26 graduating Saturday night.

Pianists for the exercises were Dela Dixon on Friday night and Marsha Moran on Saturday night. Mrs. Viola Stancill and Mrs. Edna Teel assisted in the arrangements and exercises. "Pomp and Circumstance" was used for the processional march. Michael Gurkins was commencement speaker, and Rhessa Davis presented the children graduating.

In the graduation exercises, the children recited poems, short verses of scripture, and sang children's songs. A toy band performed, accompanying the children in their singing.

unanimously. Both these men have expressed an interest in the work being done by the Boys' Club, and have offered their services to the club.

A motion to amend the charter of the Boys' Club of Greenville to rename it the Boys' Club of Pitt County was passed. This action will require official amendment as the Boys' Club is an incorporated organization.

Director Richard Ullom announced that plans are shaping up to open a summer unit of the Boys' Club in Farmville with a limited program as a beginning. The complete summer program for all units of the Boys' Club will be announced next week.

Errors Lift Bunn Past Robersonville

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Writer ROBERSONVILLE — The Robersonville Golden Eagles got fine pitching from Glenn Forbes, but they didn't back him up well.

The result was eight errors to go along with the eight hits that Forbes allowed, and that was enough for Bunn High School to take a 7-5 victory over the Eagles in a 10-inning contest that the Eagles almost pulled out. Bunn now advances in the state playoffs meeting Saturday.

Bunn had jumped away to a 5-0 lead with runs in the second and third innings. Robersonville, however, came back to tie it up and had the winning run on third base, but a missed signal aborted the chance, and Bunn went on to win in the 10th.

The game was a fine hurling duel between Bunn's John Wheelless and Forbes. Forbes fanned 17 over the 10 innings and walked just two. Of the seven runs scored off him, only one was earned. Wheelless, who has yet to lose a game this season, struck out 20, but walked eight. He allowed nine hits and four of the five Eagle runs scored off him were earned.

In fact, the only innings in which Bunn scored saw Robersonville errors. Both teams went down in order in the first inning, but Bunn came up with three runs in the second.

Robert Wheelless led off with a single to center, and Stan Rogers drew a walk off Forbes. Clyde Neal doubled into deep center, scoring Wheelless with the only earned run for the Bulldogs. Jerry Strickland reached on an error, scoring both Rogers and Neal. The threat continued as Tim Dunn reached on another error, but Forbes got the final runner on a ground out to end that threat.

But Bunn came right back to continue their attack on the Eagle gloves in the third inning, one which saw Robersonville coach Noland Respass argue fruitlessly that rules were violated twice during the frame.

Truby Oakley led off, reaching on an error. Forbes then caught Oakley off first, and it appeared that he would be tagged, but one of the Robersonville players, with the ball, stumbled and fell, with Oakley twisting around him and reaching second. It was claimed that Oakley ran outside the baseline to get around the fallen player, but he was allowed to stay at second.

A wild pitch then moved him on to third. Robert Wheelless grounded back to third, and when the ball was bobbled, Oakley streaked for home. The Bunn coach, coaching at third, ran along with him, and after Oakley had slid in under the throw, Respass again challenged that this was an illegal move by the Bulldog mentor. The plate umpire, however, allowed the rule, but issued a warning to the Bulldog coach.

Rogers followed with a single to left, and Neal got another hit, also to left, scoring Wheelless to make it 5-0.

The Eagles, after threatening in the second and third, finally punched a run over in the fifth. Ricky Brown reached second on an overthrow at first and gained third on a wild pitch. Hal Knox walked and Forbes reached on an error, scoring Brown.

Then, in the sixth, two more crossed. Loyall Corey hit a sharp hit that was knocked down at third but not relayed in time. Brown then singled to center, and Ed Warren walked to load the bases. Forbes cracked a ground-ruled double to center, scoring Corey and Brown.

The seventh saw the Eagles come up with two runs to tie it, but the missed signal cost them the chance to win it.

Phil James and Summey Mobley both drew walks to open the inning. Corey hit a slow grounder back to the mound, and the throw to third was too late, loading the bases. Matt Wilson drew a walk, forcing in James with fourth run.

Ed Warren then laid down a perfect squeeze bunt toward first base, that left everyone safe and scored Mobley to tie it up. When, with one out, Corey started towards home on the suited squeeze, but the batter missed the signal and swung away, fouling it off. He eventually fanned, as did the next batter, ending the threat.

Bunn finally got another man on base in the tenth, and when it did, it scored. Oakley reached on an error to open the 10th. Robert Wheelless singled to center, putting men on first and third. Wheelless broke for second, and Forbes tried for the pickoff, Oakley streaked home with both runners arriving safely. Wheelless tried to steal third and was safe when the ball was dropped there after a seemingly successful tag. Neal then singled to left, scoring Wheelless with the insurance run.

Robersonville came back and got two via walks, but a popup and two strike outs ended their hopes of another comeback.

Rose Players, Coach Honored

Three members of the Rose High School baseball team were named to All-Division honors, and Coach Dave Bumgarner was named Divisional Coach of the Year by the Durham Morning Herald earlier this week.

The Herald annually names the All teams in the Eastern 4-A since the conference itself does not.

Bumgarner, in his third season as Rampant coach, just missed winning his third crown in as many years. His first team won the Northeastern Conference 3-A title. The next year, the Rampants, a 4-A team for the first time, ended up in a three-way tie for the title.

This year, the Rampants finished one game out of first place, bowing the last day of the season to Kinston, the eventual winner.

The three players making the team were Bill Lee, J.C. Daniels and Jimmy Paige. Lee and Daniels are juniors, while Paige is a senior. Lee, who played shortstop for the Rampants, was named the second baseman on the All-Division team. Daniels, the second baseman, was listed as the utility infielder. He also played third base at times.

Paige, who both pitched and played the outfield, was listed on the team as a hurler. Honorable mention was also accorded four other players. Kim Harbin, Steve Arnaud, John Conway and Jimmy Sugg.

Optimists Run Past Jaycees

The league-leading Optimists rolled to a 23-6 victory over the Jaycees yesterday in the North State Little League.

The romp boosted the Optimist record to 5-0 on the year. They are followed by the Kiwanis, 3-1, the Jaycees and R. C. Cola, both 2-3; Coca-Cola, 1-3, and the Lions, 1-4.

The Jaycees pushed over three runs in the top of the first inning. Bill Collier singled and moved around to third on a passed ball and a wild pitch. Jay Holt singled to score him, and he, too, moved around to third on passed balls. Bill Myers doubled to score hole, and he moved to third on Charles MacLawhorn's single. Danny Boyd grounded out, but Myers came in with the third run.

The Optimists didn't like being behind, however, and stormed back with eight runs, all they really needed. Eric McCormick doubled and took third on a wild pitch. Gary Porter walked and Gary Allen singled in McCormick.

Bob Peoples doubled to score Porter and Ricky Robinson walked. Tim Casper singled to score Allen and Peoples, and David French walked. Greg Lee then doubled to score Robinson and Casper and French. Lee came in on McCormick's second hit of the inning.

In the second, the Optimists added one more run. Porter doubled and scored when Robinson reached on an error. The third saw one more run cross. Porter singled and Allen walked. Peoples then doubled to score Porter, making it 10-3.

The Jaycees came back with a run in the fourth. Billy Williams doubled and scored on a hit by David Phillips.

From there, the Optimists went on to pick up five in the fourth and eight more in the fifth. Two more Jaycee runs crossed in the fifth.

Washington Gets 2nd In Row Over Boston

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Joe Foy used to have his problems with a manager named Williams in Boston. Now it's the Red Sox who are having trouble in Boston with Foy and a manager named Williams.

Foy lashed out four hits Tuesday night and singled home the winning run in the 11th inning to give the Washington Senators a 6-5 triumph over his former team. His error in the eighth had set up Boston's tying run.

It was Washington's second victory in a row over the Red Sox, with Foy collecting seven hits in nine at-bats and raising his average from .204 to .246. He's batting .571 against the Red Sox this season.

In other American League action, Oakland beat California 7-5 in 13 innings, Detroit whipped the New York Yankees 7-4, Minnesota downed Milwaukee

8-5 and Kansas City trounced the Chicago White Sox 8-3. Cleveland was rained out at Baltimore with the Orioles leading 2-1 in the second inning.

National League scores: New York Mets 5, Philadelphia 4 in 12 innings; St. Louis 4, Chicago Cubs 2; Cincinnati 7, Pittsburgh 4; Montreal 3, Atlanta 2; San Francisco 9, Los Angeles 1 and Houston 3, San Diego 2.

Three years ago, after a series of run-ins with manager Dick Williams of the Red Sox, Foy was dealt off to Kansas City. He subsequently wound up with the New York Mets and Washington drafted him off the Mets' minor league roster last winter.

Now Foy can't say enough about his current manager, former Boston great Ted Williams.

Foy's game-winning hit followed walks to Toby Harrah, Tim Cullen and Del Unser. Earlier, the Senators took a 3-0 lead in the first inning, with Frank Howard drilling a bases-loaded single. Reggie Smith hit a solo homer for Boston in the third as the Red Sox battled back.

Foy's old boss, Dick Williams, also had a happy evening. Dave Duncan's second home run of the game tied the score with two out in the ninth inning and Williams' Oakland A's went on to beat the Angels on Reggie Jackson's two-run blast in the 13th.

Dick Green hit a three-run homer for the A's while Ken McMullen and Roger Repoz connected for the Angels.

The red-hot Tigers blew a 3-0 lead but ripped into relievers Lynch McDaniell and Jack Aker for four runs in the seventh and whipped the stumbling Yankees, who have dropped nine of their last 11 games. The Tigers have won seven straight.

Singles by Al Kaline, Jim Northrup and Norm Cash tied the score, the go-ahead run scored on a fielder's choice and Aurelio Rodriguez and Ed Brinkman added run-scoring singles.

Harmon Killebrew drove in four runs with a homer and double to pace the Twins over the Brewers. Killebrew's two-run double and a three-run homer by George Mitterwald accounted for five runs in the sixth inning as the Twins snapped a 3-all tie.

Mike Hegan, Johnny Briggs and Tommy Harper homered for Milwaukee.

Home runs by Gail Hopkins and Paul Schaal helped the Royals trim the White Sox. Schaal also drove in a run with a double, Ed Kirkpatrick had two run-scoring singles and Cookie Rojas cracked a two-run double. Jay Johnstone walloped a pinch homer for the Sox.

Juan Makes Celebration Better

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers helped Willie Mays celebrate his 20 years in the big leagues with a barrage of birthday cakes ... but couldn't cut it against Juan Marichal as usual.

Mays was rewarded with 20 cakes prior to the San Francisco-Los Angeles contest Tuesday night at Dodger Stadium, then Marichal went out and starved the Dodgers on seven hits in a 9-1 Giants romp.

The triumph continued Marichal's spellbinding successes against his Los Angeles cousins. The Dodger-killing dandy has now mastered them 36 times in 49 career decisions.

His mastery is so complete, in fact, that he must endure the scorn of the usually-placid Dodger audience.

Marichal, who pitched a 1-0 beauty against Los Angeles at Candlestick Park on May 15, said he received letters from Dodger fans saying the wind was the only reason he won there.

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 in 12 innings; the Houston Astros stopped the San Diego Padres 3-2; the Montreal Expos edged the Atlanta Braves 3-2; the St. Louis Cardinals bounced the Chicago Cubs 4-2 and the Cincinnati Reds turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4.

In the American League, it was Washington 6, Boston 5 in 11 innings; Minnesota 8, Milwaukee 5; Detroit 7, New York 4; Kansas City 8, Chicago 3 and Oakland 7, California 5 in 13 innings. Rain washed out Cleveland at Baltimore.

Marichal, who has a history of pitching his best against the Dodger aces, beat Bill Singer for the second time in two weeks.

Bullet Bill, blasted out by a six-run sixth inning that included a three-run homer by Marichal, is off to the worst start of his career with a 2-9 record.

Los Angeles Manager Walt Alton said he still has no intention of taking him out of the starting rotation despite the statistics.

Bob Aspromonte drilled a Jim Bunning offering into the right field corner to score the winning run for New York in the bottom of the 12th. Donn Clendenon roared home from second base on the two-out single.

Tim Foli reached first on an infield error to open the inning. Tommie Agee walked and was forced at second by Clendenon, as Foli took third. Foli was caught at home on Cleon Jones' grounder to shortstop Larry Bowa, but then Aspromonte delivered the game-winner.

Johnny Edwards brought Houston from behind with a three-run homer in the seventh inning. Clay Kirby had a 2-0 cushion and was working on a one-hitter when John Mayberry singled and rode to third on Norm Miller's double. Edwards then ripped a two-out homer, his first of the year.

Fred Gladding pitched a scoreless ninth inning for Houston, although rapped for a double and infield single, to preserve starter Jack Billingham's first victory since April 18.

Ron Swoboda's bases-loaded walk in the seventh inning scored the winning run for Montreal. Swoboda's walk off Phil Niekro followed passes to Rusty Staub and Bob Bailey and an error by second baseman Felix Millan on Ron Fairly's sharp grounder.

The Expos had tied the game 2-2 on Fairly's run-scoring single in the fifth.

Ted Simmons' run-scoring single in the third inning broke a 2-2 tie and St. Louis iced the victory over Chicago with a run in the fourth on a single by Joe Hague, walk to Julian Javier and single by Ted Sizemore.

St. Louis southpaw Steve Carlton survived Chicago's two-run third. Jim Hickman singled home the second run of the four-hit inning, but afterward Carlton worked six straight innings without allowing a safety.

Cincinnati, helped by three Pittsburgh errors, poured seven runs across in the first two innings to beat the Pirates as Ross Grimsley nailed down his first major league victory.

Pittsburgh's Bob Moose walked Pete Rose to start the game and Woody Woodward and Lee May both were safe on infield errors. Tony Perez drove in one run with an infield out and Bernie Carbo delivered two more with a single.

Buddy Bradford singled to start the second and Grimsley sacrificed. But Moose fired widely into center field, the ball skittering to the wall as Bradford scored and Grimsley raced to third. Rose doubled for the second run and May cashed in another with a sacrifice fly before Johnny Bench belted his 14th home run.

Morgan Defines Role In Behalf Of Consumers

The role of the attorney general on behalf of the using and consuming public in utility rate cases was sharply defined by North Carolina Attorney General Robert B. Morgan in address to the Greenville Rotary Club Monday evening.

Pointing to the high level of economic prosperity and material abundance through the free enterprise system, the open and competitive business operation is not practical or economically feasible in the field of public service industries, the "conduct of which business enterprises is regulated by state regulatory bodies because of the vital interest of the consuming public in these enterprises," Morgan declared.

In public utility rate cases, as a public advocate, it is the attorney general's role to participate not as the enemy of the utility, but solely as the representative of the public which has no other representative in the matter, the speaker said.

"We simply try to make sure that all points of view have been fairly represented before the regulatory body, and are not seeking to prevent any company from receiving a fair return on its money," Morgan went on to emphasize.

The suspicions of the general public in looking at larger industries, especially those which enjoy state-granted privileges, give rise to a socialization or nationalization of many larger industries such as the railroads, the airlines, gas and electric generating and distributing industries, telephone, and broadcasting industries, the speaker pointed out.

The bill offered by Senator Metcalf, now pending before Congress, proposes that a federal agency be established to represent the consuming public before any federal or state regulatory agency which is considering any matter or matters which may affect the consuming public.

Morgan declared that state attorneys general, who are directly responsible to the voters of their respective states, are in a much better position to represent the interest of the public in their respective states than are bureaucrats from Washington who are completely removed from the will of the people.

This position, said Morgan, will better enable state regulatory agencies to reach balanced conclusions for all parties with regard to both rates and services rendered.

Remove any aura of suspicion held by the general public that its interests are not being adequately protected by the regulatory agency and-or the regulated industries;

Place stringent requirements of proof under evidentiary rules of law upon the regulated industries through active and competent representation of the public's interest by the attorney general's office as an advocate at administrative hearings.

Morgan appealed for an alert and active response for all citizens to "fulfill their responsibility to the general public in this area," adding that "if the states will do what they are entitled to do, and should do, then we will have little to fear from federal legislation."

"Unless these responsibilities are undertaken throughout the states, I predict we are going to find more and more creeping federal bureaucracy imposed upon us in lieu of our own state governments," Morgan concluded.

Morgan is chairman of the board of trustees of East Carolina University, an alumnus of ECU and Wake Forest University Law School, and has had a distinguished career in public service. He had high praise for the loyalty of Eastern North Carolina citizens to causes fostering the growth of this geographic area as well as to the entire state.

President J.W. Pou conducted the Rotary Club meeting. Morgan was presented by Program Chairman Howard G. Dawkins.

An aggressive overcall by East paid a handsome dividend in today's hand when it induced South, the declarer at three no trump, to paint a false picture of the distribution and the latter wound up digging his own grave. A vulnerable overcall, even at the level of one, on a broken suit with no outside strength is a risky way to make a living, but who are we to carp at success.

West opened the queen of hearts and South won with the ace. There were eight top tricks available—five clubs and the three outside aces. The diamond finesse apparently offered the best hope for a ninth trick.

The problem confronting South was that if East had the king of diamonds, he could cash enough heart tricks to set the contract, when he got in. Inasmuch as West had already shown up with the queen of hearts, it appeared that East must have either the king of diamonds or the king of spades—or perhaps even both—to warrant his vulnerable overcall. If this were the case, then an alternative line of play presented itself: Declarer could run his clubs and oblige East to make some discards. In order to protect whichever side king he held the latter would have to part with at least one heart. He could then safely be thrown in the lead in hearts and eventually would be obliged to lead away from his guarded king—thereby giving South his ninth trick.

Declarer proceeded to cash five clubs and East was called on to make two discards. The latter, in the meantime, had been doing some thinking of his own. If he threw away diamonds and spades, it might influence declarer into falling back on the diamond finesse, after all. In order to create the impression that he had something to protect in the side suits, East decided that it might be a good investment to give up a heart. So reasoning, he discarded first the four of hearts, followed by the four of diamonds.

The stage was now set for the endplay. South cashed North's ace of diamonds and led the ten of hearts from dummy. East put up the jack and proceeded to cash four heart tricks to complete the defensive book. He then exited with the eight of spades. South confidently played the ten from his hand in the expectation that dummy's queen would win the trick. West produced the king, however, for the setting trick.

Abraham Lincoln Issued License

CHARLESTON, Ill. (AP) — The Abraham Lincoln museum in the Coles county court house basement is maintained by the Chamber of Commerce as a tourist attraction. Lincoln was a young lawyer here.

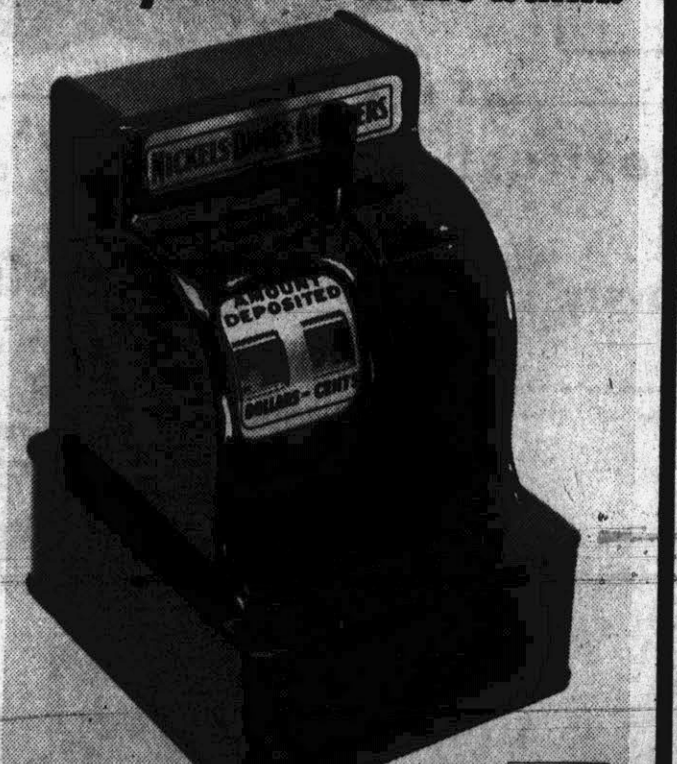

Among the museum treasures is the liquor license issued to Lincoln in 1833 for a tavern in New Salem. The license cost $6 and an additional $1 charge permitted him to sell drinks at posted prices.

Most Lens Are Nearsighted

NEW YORK (AP) — Approximately 66 per cent of all corrective lenses produced by American optical manufacturers are for myopics, or nearsighted people, says the Society for Visual Care.

Early indications of nearsightedness in children can often be detected by alert parents. If a child has excessively large eyeballs, squints frequently, has tearing eyes or complains of difficulty in seeing the school blackboard, he may have myopia. An eye examination, by an ophthalmologist or an optometrist, is recommended.

Women Dislike Wives Unveiled

Melba's "liberation" attitude makes doctors smile in tolerant amusement. For women resent being dissected in their emotions. But they avidly seek advance on how to win and hold a husband. Men have a greater capacity for understanding women than women possess for diagnosing men!

GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D. Case Q-563: Melba G., aged 19, is a "liberation" type of coed whose father edits a large newspaper.

"Dr. Crane," she challenged, "I don't understand why women readers rate you first place on newspaper polls.

"Yet my father says you have the most readers and pull far more mail than any other feature.

"But why should women be such rabid fans when you affront them repeatedly?

"For you call fat wives 'waddling walruses' and you say the supposedly innocent wife is usually 50 per cent to blame for every divorce!

"Besides, you claim men have far more sex urge than women. "Well, I am for women's rights and I disagree with you 100 percent, so there!"

Smart Women

Women are more openminded than men, so they eagerly seek all possible aids to win (and then emotions and eroticism dissected.

But I also tell them things about the male sex that they have vaguely perceived, if married, but have never fully understood.

Hundreds of divorced wives thus tearfully exclaim:

"Dr. Crane, if I had only had access to your column 10 years ago, I never would have lost my husband!

"For now I realize that I unduly rebuffed him and drove him into the arms of a paramour."

Other women routinely will speak as follows:

"Dr. Crane; I am a woman, so I already understand the female

Feared Worst As Bones Uncovered

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Police feared the worst when a bulldozer unearthed a deteriorated woman's purse and what appeared to be human bones near here.

The "victim" was found alive and well a few minutes later.

The burned handbag contained a driver's license and social security card with the name of Susan Patricia Weeks.

She told police her purse was stolen in a downtown Olympia bank six years ago.

The New Orleans To Angeles Run

Years Of Neglect Makes Misery Of AMTRAK Trip

Editors note: A year ago, the Associated Press sent reporter John S. Lang on a train ride to report on the quality of passenger service. Now he has done it again, to test Amtrak's early performance. Here is his report.

By JOHN S. LANG
Associated Press Writer

The car stank of sweat and unflushed toilets, and a generation of use with neglect. The lights, those that worked, were dim. The air conditioning, with the inside temperature at 101 degrees, didn't work at all.

The aisle was a noisy tangle of four shirtless little boys, two wet-diapered infants held by their parents, an angry man in a powder blue jump suit and two guys with flashlights jostling their way through.

It looked like a refugee train, but it wasn't.

It was a pullman car on the New Orleans to Los Angeles run of Amtrak, the newly begun National Rail Passenger Corp.

These were the best accommodations Amtrak had to offer the 30-plus passengers who paid for reservations on the 2,000-mile two-day-and-two-night journey.

And, grim as it was, this train was far better than last year when the Southern Pacific Railroad operated it with two coaches lacking head rests and reclining seats—the conductors called them "cattlecars"—and with a vending machine car selling hash at 55 cents a can.

The Amtrak train which left New Orleans on a Friday had two pullmans, a diner-lounge car, three coaches and the automar car.

Still, the accommodations gave scant comfort to those who made this trip. Even a passenger in the second pullman had a roomette with panel doors that rattled and kept popping open, a toilet that flushed only partially and a faucet that leaked into the shelf below. Yet he was lucky; his car was air conditioned.

Not so fortunate were Drs. Harley Schear, of San Francisco and Chuck Harlin of Los Angeles.

The air conditioning in their pullman functioned poorly from the start, failed entirely as the train neared El Paso and remained out the rest of the way to Los Angeles, a 40-hour trip.

To escape the stench and the heat, they retreated to the diner to slake their thirst and determine the exact temperature.

Four cars back, Conductor C. W. Maxwell was doing something about it. He was filling out a report.

"What shall I say?" he asked brakeman T. J. Barnes. "That Car 15 is out of air conditioning and we passengers are threatening to kill the conductor?"

"If they don't upgrade this equipment," replied Barnes, "they're going to have real problems this summer."

The car giving them trouble, they said was 30 years old. Most of the other cars were the same age, or older, dating from the days when the train was proudly named the Sunset Limited.

These aged cars are typical of the equipment Amtrak inherited from the railroads, which long ago decided that passenger trains were an economic albatross and that their future was in shipping freight.

With a congressional appropriation of $40 million plus government guaranteed loans of $30 million, Amtrak claimed little money to refurbish equipment, and said it will be funnel its funds into certain high-priority routes still to be selected.

Aboard the old Sunset, the conductor griped that the air conditioning had failed on the trip when he had the most passengers in one pullman since the line resumed running sleeping cars. Pullmans and the diner were dropped five years ago by the Southern Pacific, but restored last October when the Interstate Commerce Commission allowed the line to reduce daily service to three times a week.

The conductor said there are about 200 persons riding this train, about the same number which patronized the Sunset under Southern Pacific management.

But he said nearly half the Southern Pacific's riders were on free passes, and Amtrak has stopped this practice.

"This means ticket sales are up about 40 per cent."

That estimate was later confirmed by the ticket agent in Los Angeles and the Amtrak spokesman in Washington.

By 9 p.m., seven hours after the air conditioning quit, all the passengers had been driven from the hot pullman.

At Phoenix, a well-dressed middle-aged couple and a woman and her aged mother were waiting, with reservations, to claim suites in the air conditioned pullman.

"Got no space," mumbled the porter, refusing to let them board.

The conductor explained irritably, that ticket agents in Lordsburg, N.M., gave the rooms to passengers booked in the hot car. "That's a hell of a way to start out with Amtrak," said the man.

"We held our tickets two weeks." The couple walked away.

The woman and her old mother insisted on boarding the train, and the conductor finally gave them two roomettes—by displacing Sheears and Harlin.

A problem with Amtrak, noted by critics in Congress, is that Amtrak holds the license but the trains are actually operated by the railroads. The train crews are still employees of the individual lines. "We're the last to know anything Amtrak does," groused the conductor of the El Paso-to-Tucson stretch of the trip.

Until the train reached El Paso, where the railroad began trying to fix the air conditioning, the train had been early at nearly every stop—by 30 minutes on two occasions.

A brakeman explained, "You can go in early but you gotta leave on schedule. We've got such a slow schedule it's easy to get ahead. They've dropped quite a few stops."

"Logically then," said a passenger, "Amtrak will speed up the schedule."

"That's assuming a great deal," said the brakeman, "that a train will be run logically."

The train reached Los Angeles just after 8 a.m. Sunday, 32 minutes late.

Passengers lined up at the ticket window to demand re-

"It was the worst trip I ever had and I heard it was going to be the best because of Amtrak," said a woman. "I couldn't use the bedroom because the generator was out. Give me my money back."

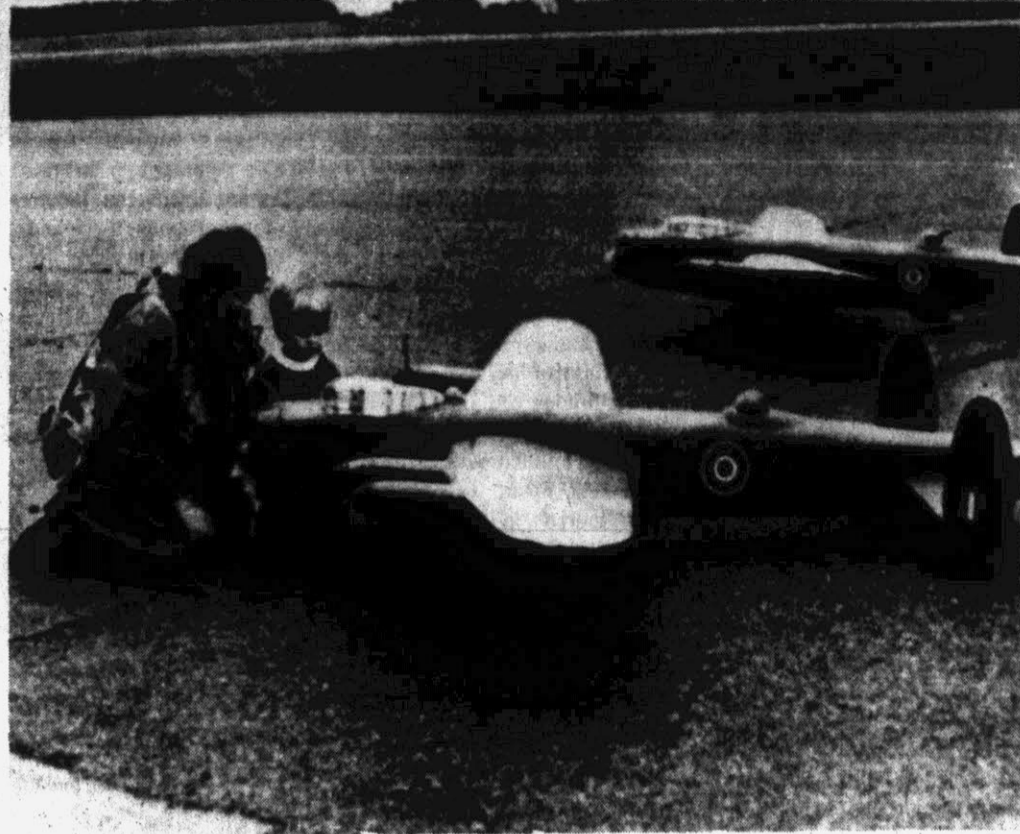

The ticket agent listened sympathetically, and agreed, "Yes, it's inexcusable." He gave the woman a $61.70 rebate, and promised adjustments to the others.

"We're terribly sorry," the agent told them.

"We've only been operating under Amtrak 16 days. It will take a little time. We're getting better all the time."

The next train for New Orleans left Los Angeles at 10 that night. It got to Tucson where it was halted and sidetracked for two days because of the nationwide rail strike.

Each passenger was provided transportation to his destination—on a bus.

Spain Girds For 1975 More Tourists Than Spaniards

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press Writer

In Spain they expect to have more tourists than Spaniards in 1975.

London, with 920 hotels in the city center, is planning a square mile of new hotels with 220,000 more beds by 1980.

Brussels has 10 new hotels going up and 11 more on planning boards; Paris needs 6,000 more rooms; Yugoslavia is building 49 new hotels and planning underground parking in once sleepy Dubrovnik. Moscow boasts of the ultimate tourist kick, the new Rossiya Hotel with 6,000 beds.

The tourist world seems to be tilting wildly and nobody appears to know where it will stop. Britain had a million visitors from overseas in 1960, more than six million last year. A recent official estimate predicts between 12 million and 15 million in 1980. Spain, with seven million tourists in 1961 and 24 million last year, expects 38 million in 1975. The current population of Spain is about 33 million.

brass daily, keeping the flowers fresh, collecting the shoes lightly for shining, keeping a card index of guests and their foibles and trying to satisfy every whim with an air of enthusiastic gentility.

But this is the day of the jumbo jet, computerized booking, the package tour and fleets of sightseeing buses, automatic ice machines, air conditioning and the breakfast order on the doorknob.

To move the plane loads of eager sightseers smoothly from the Arc de Triomphe to the Roman Forum, from the Berlin Wall to the Acropolis, more and more hotels were needed. No new hotel had opened in Paris since the George V was finished in the 1930s until the Paris Hilton threw open its doors in 1966.

For the past 10 years, though, giant cranes hovering over the capitals of Europe have signalled the birth of scores of new hotels. The great American hotel chains moved into the European field—Hilton, Inter-Continental, Sheraton, Sonesta. Knott, Loew's, Esso Motor Hotels, Holiday Inns and more recently Howard Johnson.

ceptable labor-saving device—automatic shoe-shining machines, automatic elevators, do-it-yourself coffee machines. One gadget adopted by some hotels dispenses a glass, ice and measured shots of liquor.

Milton P. Strand of Hilton International, says "the one absolutely compelling fact is that we simply must learn to do a better job with fewer people."

Strand sees in the future the use of more labor-saving machinery in hotels, more people carrying their own bags, electronic tagging of baggage direct to the traveller's hotel room at his destination, the use of non-iron linen, buffet style breakfasts in 12 minutes, more "convenience" foods, disposable dishes and table linen.

Spain doesn't have much of a labor problem in its hotels and even exports hotel workers. But if the tourist boom continues, the Spanish waiters and porters may stay at home. In 1960, Spain had 2,451 hotels and pensions with about 100,000 rooms. Last year there were 8,244 hotels or pensions with 545,498 rooms.

completely re-done in the past seven years, but Manager Natale Rusconi says: "Our guests will never see any modern gadget in the hotel. Breakfasts, lunches, drinks will always be delivered by personnel because they have to be fresh, prepared on the spot."

The Copenhagen Tourist Association says the city must increase its hotel beds from 15,000 to 25,000 by 1980 or lose its share of the expected growth in tourism. Already some visitors find their accommodations across the Oeresund Strait in Malmoe, Sweden, during the crowded season.

The big international chains have found Copenhagen a tough proposition, the tourist association says, because of high costs and lack of favorable sites downtown. Nevertheless, Sheraton has moved in with a 700-bed structure in the heart of the city. Scandinavian Airlines has opened the Royal across from Tivoli Gardens and plans another for 1973.

The Soviet Union has 52 hotels, motels and camping sites under construction in 45 cities, but an Intourist official said: "We need many, many more."

He said Intourist would like to open Siberia and Central Asia to tourists, but "we do not want to accept people in places where we do not have such good accommodations."

The Russians are working on the problem with the 6,000-bed Rossiya and a new 1,300-bed hotel in Leningrad. Automobile tourism has not taken on very noticeably yet in the Soviet Union, where there are only about 80,000 miles of paved roads and about 150 garages, including the eight in Moscow.

Hotel beds in Greece, Austria and Germany have just about doubled in the past 10 years and new hotels are planned in almost every large German city. At present there are 10,000 beds in Frankfurt and 6,000 more are planned.

Greece, expecting to attract $240 million from tourists this year, hopes to increase the intake of visitors from 1.6 million to eight million by 1980.

The Greater London Council, after a study of hotels and tourism in London, pointed out that "if current forecasts are fulfilled, there may be, by the end of the decade, on any one day, a million visitors in London. The load their coaches and hired cars would impose on London's streets can just about be imagined."

a busy life—fun, games, hobbies, recreation. Some people may enjoy the retirement villages with people in their own age bracket, but others shy away from that idea. They would rather live in a mixed community.

From the North Sea to the Black Sea, a similar surge of tourists is assaulting the available hotel space.

One thing is certain: The well-heeled traveler, who swished through Europe in de luxe trains 50 years ago, dined to real live music under glittering hotel chandeliers, lolled in comfortable and uneconomic lounges in Berlin, Paris and Vienna and turned all his troubles over to the hotel porter, would find Europe 1971 a vastly different place.

He could still find some of the proud old hotels, polishing the Retirement is frightening for many couples. They fear the unknown after a lifetime of routine. The husband wonders how they are going to make ends meet, the wife wonders how she is going to adjust to a new life.

A man shouldn't wait until the last pay check to tell his wife he will be unable to meet the taxes, insurance, house maintenance on his reduced income of pension, social security, savings. He should spare his wife the pressures, but if he waits to tell her, she may be too shocked to help in the planning.

Here are some ideas that may help smooth the way:

Retirement should be discussed at least five years before "R" day. The couple should determine the income they will have from all sources—pension, Vacations may be used to visit prospective retirement areas. Gregarious couples, who fear losing old friends, may find a place they like, and build friendships before retirement day. One couple could hardly wait for the day of retirement so they could make the move to a community they had chosen. They had spent three happy vacations there.

In discussing retirement areas, a couple might analyze what they will miss most in their present set-up. The house? Furnishings? Neighbors? Recreation? They might discover there are no real ties. They may have bought their home for its proximity to schools and parks, but now their children are married.

It is particularly good to find a retirement area that provides clock turning back the time

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Symphony Orchestra finds no truth to the old saw that you can't turn time back.

At the State Fair Music Hall, as the orchestra was tuning up for a children's concert, the official auditorium clock was operating in reverse.

"It was getting earlier by the minute," noted Ziman Brounoff, associate concert master.

Marriage Grows More Popular

LONDON (AP) — Marriage is becoming more popular in Britain despite a permissive society. Over the past 30 years the proportion of the population who are married has risen from 42.7 per cent to 50.7 per cent in 1969, a survey showed.

This change has been due mainly to an increase in marriage rates among men and women in their late teens and early twenties.

Job Equality For Lady Cops

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Lady cops are being recruited by the South African police on the basis of equal pay for equal work.

"The women will be an integral part in the police and have the same powers as any policeman. They will receive the same salary," a spokesman said. Definite qualifications are not being older than 50 and being bilingual in English and Afrikaans.

Highest Award To First Woman

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Stephen (Ricki) Goodyear is the first woman in the 20-year history of the Association for Children with Retarded Mental Development to receive its highest annual award for humanitarianism.

"It's a small step for me, but a big expensive evening gown," said Mrs. Goodyear.

Warmed-Over Summer TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Hot-weather television, rarely stimulating, promises to look even more warmed-over than usual on the network channels this summer. Broadcasters, like most of us, are on an economy kick.

The nights will be lighted by nine new items, including a CBS potpourri of suspense and comedy pilot films which were rejected as series ideas and an ABC item called "NFL Action"—interviews and taped highlights of past games for viewers who can't wait for the football season to get rolling.

Three summer soldiers will be British imports—one per network. As always, the bulk of the entertainment will consist of reruns which started in March, but this year they will be augmented by some re-reruns out of television's misty past.

ABC started first, on May 10, with "It was a Very Good Year," replacing "The Reel Game" on Monday nights. This one, with singer Mel Torme in the driver's seat, exploits the current nostalgia vogue with music, film clips and reminiscences by celebrities. Val Doonican, a British entertainer, takes over Pearl Bailey's Saturday night spot on June 5. His London-made hour will be variety-comedy and music.

CBS seems set with "The Newcomers," with Dave Garro-

Clean Air Move In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In an effort to reduce air pollution, the Los Angeles County Fire Department and fire departments of 25 cities within the county have banned the clearing of fields by weed burning.

The regulation does permit weed burning where fire is the only practical means of clearing an area or in certain agricultural operations.

way, which will take over for Carol Burnett and company on July 12. This hour will feature professional entertainers turned up in a nationwide talent hunt sponsored by the network and its affiliated stations. The format, of course, is comedy-variety.

NBC has Des O'Connor back for a second season to replace Wednesday night's "Music Hall." The British comedian-singer did well last season in the same spot. Then there is "Make Your Own Kind of Music," with the singing Carpenters—brother and sister—the Doodletown Pipers and Al Hirt. They fill "The Don Knotts Show" time on Tuesday from July 6.

There will be a lot of revivals around. NBC has pulled out Bob Hope's old anthology series, chopped it into three parts for three summer series: "Comedy Theater" for "Laugh-In" from May 7; "Action Playhouse" for Flip Wilson on June 24, and "Adventure Theatre" for Andy Williams on July 17. Vic Damone's 1967 summer replacement series will be hauled back into service as Dean Martin's relief on July 8.

ABC expects to get some more mileage out of "Love on a Rooftop," which starred Judy Carne and Peter Duel briefly a few years back—it replaces Johnny Cash, and is followed by reruns of "The Immortal," a midseason casualty this year.

Each year the networks work through the long rerun season, with its handful of summer shows usually replacements for variety hours. Each year viewers complainingly ask why the period can't be used to experiment with new forms. And each year, the answer is the same: the economics of the business.

An overly simple illustration would be a half-hour filmed situation comedy, each episode of which cost, in round figures, $100,000 to produce. If the episode can be shown twice, the production cost is sliced in half.

Hard To Keep Poisons Away From Children

CHICAGO (UPI) —Don't meddle, don't touch, little girl, little boy ...

But little girls and little boys disobey the admonition and so the toll from poisons available right around the house reaches 400 deaths per year for the under-five set, a case load of 40,000 hospitalized annually.

Reporting on the dangers of poisons within childish reach, the National Safety Council says that if you live in an average American household, chances are that you have at least 40 (of the more than 250,000 available) toxic substances in the home.

The council says that as a result a child swallows a potential poison every 60 seconds, 1,400 times a day, 500,000 times a year.

The National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers reports that 90 percent of the cases that come to its attention involve children under five. The cases are evenly divided between those children who have consumed medicine and those who ingest household products.

Besides eating or drinking household products, children can spray or inhale some products that will not kill but will cause other problems—loss of sight or speech, hideous disfigurements, damage to the brain, lungs or other vital organs.

Many of the products carry warnings, but the wee ones hardly can read them. So, it's up to parents to keep the potential killers out of children's reach, and to teach them that some items are not playthings.

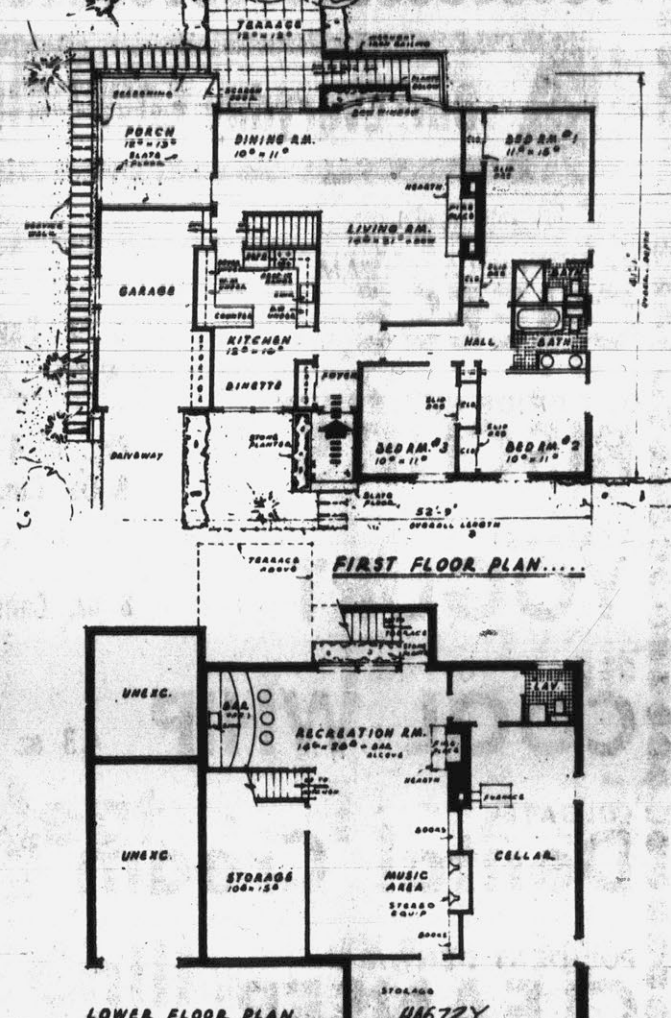

Phil Dykstra, head of the safety council's home department, warns that all medicines should be kept out of reach. In addition, he suggested these household items should be stored where children can't get to them:

- Ammonia, drain cleaner, metal polish, washing soda, lighter fluids, rat poison, leather polishes and dyes, shoe cleaners, inks, room deodorizers, drycleaning fluids, paints and thinners, turpentine, varnish, typewriter cleaner, cements and glues, bleach, furniture polish, detergents;
- Fabric softeners, insecticides, floor waxes, laundry bluing, shoe polishes, rug cleaners, camphor, moth repellants, kerosene, gasoline, antifreeze, putty and rust remover.

SCHOOL PROJECT
 WASHINGTON (UPI) —Joint planning between public and Catholic school systems to improve educational quality and achieve operational efficiency has been launched in three cities, the National Catholic Educational Association reports.

The Ford Foundation-sponsored project is under way in Philadelphia, New Orleans and San Francisco. Public and Catholic school officials in the three cities will form joint planning councils to explore methods of cooperation which will best serve to solve local problems and improve local educational programs.

Detroit News Bets $100,000 On 'Secret Witnesses'

By CHARLES C. CAIN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Someone knows and the Detroit News is betting $100,000 they will tell.
That is the basis of the News' unique "Secret Witness Plan" under which it offers substantial rewards for information leading to solution of certain major crimes of violence in Michigan. Fifteen murders, two bank robberies and a number of other crimes have been solved on the basis of information supplied by citizens through the secret witness idea.
The News has paid out $36,000 of its own money in rewards in the four years the plan has been in operation, and it distributed an additional $26,000 put up by various organizations for solution of crimes. These included bar owners' associations, labor unions and banks which posted rewards for apprehension of those who committed crimes against their members.

The key component of the secret witness plan is the extreme care taken to protect the identity of informants. Not even Boyd S. Simmons, assistant managing editor of the News and guardian of the secret witness plan, knows the identity of some of the people to whom he has paid thousands of dollars in cash.
Close cooperation between the News and police agencies are involved in the plan which has won warm indorsement from law officers. Detroit Police

Insp. Delore Ricard put it simply. "Many of our homicides—marked solved today—would be unsolved if it were not for the secret witnesses found by the News."
The Detroit FBI bureau, traditionally reserved in its treatment of the press, wrote to the News after a case had been solved. "It is felt that without the information obtained from this program, chances of this case being solved have been slim."
Police sources were a bit wary of the program when it was first announced but after seeing it in operation, they now often take the initiative in asking the News to add a particular case of theirs to the list of the crime rewards.

The News made it easy for those with knowledge of crimes to funnel their information through the newspaper to police agencies. They could either telephone the information on a special hot line or send it along to a specially designated postoffice box.
For those who wrote, the News asked them to include a capsule summary of the crime on which they were offering information. The letter was not to be signed, but rather the writer would make his own combination of the numbers 123456 on the letter and tear off a corner of the paper.
If and when the information paid off in a conviction of the person named in the letter, the writer—or his priest, minister, rabbi or lawyer—could contact the News, submit his missing corner of the letter and claim his reward.

"You get very few screwball tips in these cases," said Simmons.
Simmons, explaining the theory behind the secret witness idea said, "The crime we are out to solve is the crime of violence committed by a stranger in your home, at work or on the street ... crimes that could happen to you."
He said the News generally does not offer a reward in a case until the police appear to have come to a dead end in their investigation.

"Early in the program the various police agencies suggested that we not investigate the tips but simply turn them over to the police to process and we have done that," he said.
"The police generally are pretty good about keeping us posted on how they are faring with the tips we supplied them," he continued.
Simmons said, "Most of the tips we get from people come as a result of their indignation about a particular crime and their desire to have it solved ... we do get some tips from people who primarily are interested in the reward money."
He said the reward money, running up past $5,000 in some cases, had been used for different purposes by the recipients.

For one man, it meant a chance at a college education.
For another, a chance to start his own business.
For another, it meant flight before some of his associates might be able to run down his part as fingerman for the police.
One recipient of a reward was so fearful he agreed to accept it only in the privacy of the Detroit FBI bureau. The informant came in with his identifying slip of paper, got his cash and walked out with no one the wiser to his identity.
The secret witness idea got its start in Chicago in the early 1950's when a manufacturer named William L. Finstad sold the Chicago Sun-Times on the idea. The Sun-Times dropped the idea after several years but some other newspapers took it up after the News and its editor Martin S. Hayden gave the plan a big push in early 1967.

They included the Baltimore News American which discontinued the idea in late 1969 after six months operation; the Saginaw, Mich., News which started it in late 1970; the San Rafael, Cal. Independent Journal which used the plan on an occasional, not regular, basis. In another variation, the Pontiac, Mich., Press cooperates with the Pontiac city government which offers rewards for solution of certain crimes.

Not all those who contact the Detroit News plan are looking for reward; in one case, an informant's information solved a case but he refused the money; in another, he gave the money to charity.

The tips vary according to the importance of the case. In the recent John Norman Collins case in which the former Eastern Michigan University student was convicted in the slaying of a coed, the News received over 1,000 tips which were turned over to police. No reward has been paid to any witness by the three man jury which makes the awards—Richard S. Emrich, Episcopal Bishop of Michigan and Detroit attorneys Thomas L. Munson and Louis F. Simmons. Their word is final in all cases.

Simmons, after four years of guiding operation of the secret witness idea, had one suggestion for others who might follow it. "Never publish a sketch of a wanted man for you just touch off a flood of crank calls," he said, adding with a grin. "The last time we ran a sketch, I became so involved in the thing that I began to imagine each night as I was going home that I saw the suspect on a bus or a street corner."

LITTERBUGS
NEW YORK (UPI)—Do most litterbugs live in large cities? You might think so, but a survey for Keep America Beautiful, Inc., shows otherwise. Residents of small towns tend to litter more than big-city people, says the national antilitter organization.

Future Woman General Will Command The WACs

By MARTHA JANE ELLINGTON

The Anniston Star
Written for Associated Press
ANNISTON, Ala. (AP)—Col. Mildred C. Bailey, who will head the Women's Army Corps later this year when promoted to brigadier general, says the public must be convinced the Army is doing the right thing. "People have criticized the armed forces. I feel we must do a double job of selling people that we are trying to do the right thing."
Now deputy commander of the Women's Army Corps Center at Ft. McClellan near here, Col. Bailey will replace retiring Brig. Gen. Elizabeth P. Holington.
One of her tasks in the new post will be to fit the WAC into a modernized volunteer Army concept. "Of course," she said, "any changes the Army makes will apply to us. But you know we've been volunteer all along, so I don't expect us to have a lot of the problems we might have if we weren't volunteer."

Col. Bailey says she does her best job when she is working with people. She especially enjoys homemaking and having guests. She was a homemaker for 24 years before her husband was killed.

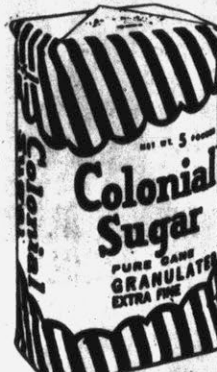

Other favorites are travel, which the Army has provided her with, and reading. "I read a little bit of everything," the colonel said. "The last couple of years, though,

I've read quite a bit about politics."
Since she was a Congressional liaison from 1968-1970, her interest is understandable. "My years at the Senate influenced me. I've read all the books written by senators."
A graduate of Women's College, the University of North Carolina, Col. Bailey returned to do graduate work in languages. She joined the WAC in 1942. From 1946-1957 she served in intelligence in the U.S. in Europe.
The silver-haired colonel said she hasn't had much time to think about what she'll do in her new job, but is apprehensive about being able to carry out her duties as well as the present director.
