

Alternative Proposals In Preparation

RALEIGH (AP) — Two more proposals concerning restructuring state-supported higher education are in the works with members of the General Assembly, one of them calling for a constitutional amendment and the other calling for a two-year study.

Sen. Tom Strickland, D-Wayne, said he will propose a constitutional amendment which would tie down the administrative structure of higher education so that it could not be tampered with by the state's executive or legislature.

His plan would get the General Assembly out of the business of approving detailed budgets for the 16 state-supported higher education institutions.

Rep. Norwood Bryan, D-Cumberland, said he was preparing a bill calling for a two-year study of the issue.

The General Assembly has before it Gov. Bob Scott's proposal that a statewide board of regents be established, to govern all 16 institutions with regard to budgets and programs.

Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chatam and House majority leader, has promised to come up with an alternative to Scott's proposals by the end of this week. His alternative would leave the Consolidated University of North Carolina much like it now is and would strengthen the State Board of Higher Education.

With proposals by Scott, Andrews, Strickland and Bryant before it, the General Assembly would have a wider base upon which to struggle over the issue, which has already become the hottest issue of the 1971 General Assembly although it is only a couple of weeks old.

The controversy was raised by a 13-8 vote of the Governor's Committee on Structure and Organization of Higher Education in favor of the regents plan.

FT. MEADE, Md. (AP) — The Army announced today that charges have been preferred against Brig. Gen. John W. Donaldson, accusing him of murder and assault involving eight Vietnamese civilians.

Donaldson, until recently a top planner for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, is the highest ranking officer to be accused of killing civilians in the Vietnam war.

The 47-year-old West Point graduate also is the first general to be charged with an alleged war crime since the Philippine insurrection 70 years ago.

The Army also announced murder charges have been preferred against Lt. Col. William J. McCloskey, who served under Donaldson in Vietnam. No details in McCloskey's case were disclosed. An Army spokesman said the two cases involved separate incidents.

took place between November 1968 and January 1969 in Quang Ngai Province, where the My Lai massacre occurred the previous March.

Donaldson, then a colonel, commanded the 11th Infantry Brigade, which included 1st Lt. William L. Calley's platoon at the time of the My Lai massacre. However, Donaldson did not take over the brigade until October 1968, more than six months after My Lai. Calley has been sentenced to a life term for murdering civilians at My Lai.

Sponsored Bill In Both Houses

Pitt legislators, Sen. Vernon White and Rep. Horton Rountree, are co-sponsors of legislation introduced in both houses yesterday that would appropriate $1.26 million to implement a statewide system of comprehensive vocational rehabilitation centers.

Greenville has been designated by the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation as the most desirable site in the East for such a center.

Sen. Hector McGeachy of Cumberland County is co-sponsoring the Senate bill with Sen. White and six other representatives are co-sponsors with Rep. Rountree.

Purge Vowed

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein charged today that Arab guerrilla leaders are plotting to set up a breakaway Palestinian state in Jordan and vowed to launch a "final crackdown" against them.

Hussein ordered Prime Minister Wasfi Tell to take "bold, decisive and tough action against the handful of professional criminals and conspirators who use the commando movement to disguise their treasonable plots."

"I want no hesitation, tolerance or compromise in handling them," said the king in a letter to Tell, broadcast by Amman radio.

Tell, whom the guerrillas consider their most implacable foe, promised a "quick and sweeping purge" of the guerrilla movement.

"We shall chop off the hands which are reaching out to dismantle Jordan's national unity and integrity," Tell pledged.

Nixon Stands Behind Washington Police

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says any new efforts by antiwar demonstrators to disrupt the government should be met by the same police tactics used here last month.

He told a news conference Tuesday night the thousands of protesters who took part in the May 3-5 "Mayday" protests were "vandals and hoodlums and lawbreakers" whose rights nonetheless were protected.

Topics during the news conference covered a wide range

but the questioning about police tactics during the protests was perhaps the most persistent Nixon has faced.

He told the reporters and nationwide television and radio audience the tactics used by Washington police should be a model in any future episodes.

In other areas during the 30-minute session, the President said:

—The administration soon will announce a four-front "national offensive" against drug abuse and narcotics addiction.

—Politics is something he won't talk about at news con-

Eighteen-Year-Old Girl Dies Of Injuries Early Today In Highway Wreck

Two persons were injured, one fatally, when a car overturned four times on N.C. 43 about eight miles south of Greenville about 12:40 a.m. today.

Sharlene Burroughs, 18 of 310 South Jarvis St. died about 4:30 a.m. in Pitt Memorial Hospital of head injuries, according to officers.

Highway Patrolman George Russ said Miss Burroughs was a passenger in a car driven by Douglas Wayne Laughinghouse, 19 of 1407 Ragsdale Rd.

According to Ptl. Russ, both Miss Burroughs and Laughinghouse were thrown from the Laughinghouse car as it traveled out of control for about 567 feet. The officer said the car, traveling toward Greenville at a high rate of speed ran off the left hand side of the highway and broke apart as it overturned.

The dashboard, windshield, battery and hood were all some distance from the mass of wreckage that had been the car, while the motor was in the roadside ditch 12 feet from the body of the car.

The chassis, with the wheels still intact and still partially attached to the vehicle, was torn from under the car and twisted upside down, while the remainder of the body of the car lay in a field, right-side up.

The 1970 model car was valued at $2,500.

Laughinghouse was admitted to the hospital for treatment of a fractured arm and ankle and possible internal injuries.

Investigation of the crash, Trooper Russ said, is continuing.

Farmville Police Chief's Resignation Is Accepted

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners accepted with regret last night the resignation of Police Chief Brooks Oakley effective July 1.

Chief Oakley reportedly will return to the Pitt County Sheriff Department.

Conrad Mozingo, Mrs. Chester Little, and Mrs. Bert Little of the Wesley Church community near Farmville appeared asking about Farmville's plans to provide water to their area.

Mozingo said members of their community would like either a promise of water lines from Farmville or assurance that Farmville has no plans in this direction. He said the Bell Arthur Water Corporation has agreed to furnish them water if Farmville will not. The Board agreed to investigate the possibility of borrowing money to install a much-needed well in the Joyner's Crossroads area and also waterlines in the area.

Mozingo and the others were promised an answer soon.

Carl Beaman, town clerk, told the Board that Farmville's centennial committee has requested that the town's 100th year be noted on next year's license plates, but that no design has yet been presented. The Board said it will go along with the idea if it is not too expensive. The maximum that can be charged for a town tag is $1, they said.

Water and Light Director J.A. "Bud" Wooten reported that the Stackhouse company is now installing additional equipment at the station here. He said water and electric lines to the new public housing project have been completed.

Carolina Power and Lights' 14 percent rate increase will be shown on next month's electric bills, the Commissioners indicated. The across the board increase will be in effect until a new use scale can be completed.

The Board decided to start proceedings to close a portion of Hines Street adjacent to H. B. Sugg School. First a petition of property owners will be circulated. Then all who do not sign it will be notified by registered mail of their right to contest the action.

Sugg Askew of Wilson, owner of Farmville's landfill site, has agreed to let the town use it for another year. He suggested the planting of grass on the portion already filled and perhaps the planting of some trees to beautify the area.

Work on the remodeling of a building on North Main Street for additional town office space should begin in the next few days, the Commissioners were told. Walter Burns says he will begin work as soon as his performance bond is completed. The project was due to begin yesterday, but the Board agreed to give him until Friday to begin.

The Board discussed buying land adjacent to the town cemetery for additional grave sites. No action was taken.

Ernst and Ernst were given a contract to audit the town's books at $12 per hour plus actual expenses.

Hearing August 3 On Closing Down Of Pitt Schools

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday afternoon set Aug. 3 as the date for a public hearing on the closing of the high schools in the Grifton, Ayden and Farmville areas.

Schools involved in the hearing include: H. B. Sugg High School, South Ayden High School, Ayden High School, Farmville High School and Grifton High School.

The hearing, scheduled for 4 p.m., will be held in conjunction with the board of education's regular monthly meeting.

A hearing is required by law before the discontinuance or consolidation of high schools.

A county board of education must hold a public hearing, conduct a thorough study with the state board of education on the discontinuance or consolidation plan before approving same, and must have the plan formally approved by the state board of education.

The new Farmville Central High School and the Ayden-Grifton facility should be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the fall term.

Superintendent Arthur Alford discussed the placement of the county's 50 mobile units for the next school term. The schedule includes: North Pitt, 15; Conley, nine; Farmville Central, 10; Ayden Elementary, two; Ayden High, two; Grifton Elementary, one; Bethel Middle, two; Sam D. Bundy, two; Pactolus Elementary, one; G. R. Whitfield, one; five mobile units will be held in reserve.

Board members approved the annexation of a 15-17 acre parcel of land located between the West Haven Subdivision and the Greenville city school district to the city school unit. The land separates the subdivision from the Greenville Administrative Unit. In order that the subdivision may be taken into the Greenville school district, the property between must also be annexed to comply with the county board's annexation policies. (The county policy reads that the property to be annexed must be in the corporate limits of the city and must be contiguous to the Greenville City unit).

The West Haven Subdivision was approved for annexation into the Greenville unit by the county board last fall. Board members felt, since they had already approved annexing the subdivision, it was only fair to annex the parcel of land in between so that the subdivision could also be annexed.

Tom Craft, associate superintendent, reported that the lunchroom managers and school principals did not want centralized buying of food items for the county lunchrooms.

In the past, lunchrooms that desired so have done their own buying while others have participated in centralized purchasing.

The board agreed to send out notices to the lunchrooms (Continued On Page 14)

Migration Out Of Rural South Said Stemmed

TIFTON, Ga. (AP) — Mass migration from rural areas of the South has been stemmed, and a reversal of the trend of population shift toward the cities seems possible, a Department of Agriculture population expert said today.

"I don't think that there is any question that the people in the rural communities," said Calvin L. Beale, who has conducted population research for the USDA since 1963.

"But we don't know yet, how many are returning, or how many are leaving. But there is much less migration, especially among the white population, from the rural areas."

Beale was here to address a seminar on population trends at the Rural Development Center, an agency specializing in rural problems.

Beale said that the last census report shows that there was almost no white immigration from the rural areas in the south on a net basis, taking into account that some left, but others moved in.

He noted that in the 1950s, people left the rural areas in great numbers.

Beale said that the experts in the future to see migrations from the South's tobacco growing regions in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, as the tobacco growers become more mechanized.

He said this would be a similar movement to that which occurred in the Mississippi Delta region when cotton growers became highly mechanized.

However, the over-all trend of migration from rural to metropolitan areas would seem to have stopped, Beale said.

One reason for the change is the increase in manufacturing jobs in rural areas, he said.

Former Draft Resister Honored; Still Objects

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A former draft resister who received the nation's second-highest award for bravery says if he had it to do over again he'd go to jail rather than serve in the Army.

Nicholas W. Schoch, his brown hair flowing over his neck, stood at attention at the Army's San Francisco Presidio as Maj. Gen. O. A. Leahy pinned the Distinguished Service Cross on his civilian coat pocket at a parade Tuesday.

Schoch, a 23-year-old native of Oakville in the nearby Napa Valley wine region, had accepted induction as a conscientious objector and served as a medic with a rifle company of the 101st Airborne Division in Vietnam. He distinguished himself at the battle for Hamburger Hill in May 1969.

"If I originally had the knowledge of what war, what the Army is like, I would not have gone in," he said in an interview.

He said he would have gone to jail if he had decided to continue resisting the draft.

"I still have some pretty intense objections to the Army. But the award is meaningful because it was originated by the people there on Hamburger Hill who thought that I was doing something meaningful."

The 10-day battle for the hill was criticized as senseless by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

More than 50 American paratroopers died and 400 others were wounded and an estimated 600 North Vietnamese killed.

Schoch was cited for saving nine wounded Americans under intense fire, one of them an unconscious crewman he pulled from a flaming helicopter.

This Portraitist Says Psychology Helps In Taking Children's Photos

By JOY STILLEY

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Getting good pictures of youngsters involves the science of psychology as much as the art of photography, declares famed children's portraitist Josef Schneider, who qualifies in both fields.

"A kid is as individual as a thumbprint and you have to be able to understand what makes him tick," explains the soft-spoken man who has a degree in psychology and an international reputation in photography. "You must interpret the things he does and use them to your own end."

Schneider, who in the past 30 years has photographed royalty, numerous celebrities' offspring and children involved in big advertising accounts, at one time was a psychologist in the New York City public school system.

There he became interested in photography in connection with his use of visual aids. Known for his rapport with children, he was often pressed into service to help established photographers deal with small fry.

"When I saw the apprehension the big boys had when they had to work with kids I decided to go into photography myself. It was more interesting and there was more money than in what I was doing," recalls the mustached, rumple-haired Schneider, who has found his psychological background invaluable in his work with the under-5 set.

"When a kid walks into this studio I watch him like a hawk, give him time to play, decide whether I must work fast or slow," he says. Not only is the child given time to play, but also fascinating things to play with. In Schneider's Manhattan studio the walls are lined with shelves holding toys for every age level,

WARM-UP SESSION — Josef Schneider, psychologist turned children's photographer, takes time to get to know his subject before making her portrait.

mobiles hang from the ceiling and on the floor are rocking horses and wheel toys enough to make the shyest child forget he's on camera.

"The child must be able to lose himself in a world of play and then you get your picture," continues Schneider, who often turns playmate himself to put the subject at ease. "You must have a sensitivity to the kid, determine his strong points and try to capture the expression that's characteristic."

The toys themselves should in general be excluded from the picture since they tend to compete with the features, he advises. Also to be avoided is loose and wrinkled clothing with strong patterns and too vivid colors, which can be distracting.

For the past few years Schneider has used color exclusively, which he considers the proper medium for portraits. "You see in color so you fool your eye with black and white," he points out. "You can take the color negative and make a black and white but you can't do the reverse."

Mothers usually prefer smiling pictures, he notes, but if the eyes don't smile along with the mouth, it won't work. "The eyes are very powerful—they make or break the picture," he says. "You try to get the beginnings of a smile."

The photographer cautions parents to avoid making a picture-taking appointment for periods when the child is tired. He suggests that after a nap or a meal are good times and encourages mothers to feed their toddlers at the studio, where there is even a crib for a nap.

"At about a year a baby becomes 'clingy' and here the mother can be helpful. I let her hold him till he gets it out of his system," he says. "All kids get fed up in 10 minutes and they'll get fed up with clinging to their mother too."

"The 2-year level is a very difficult one," he goes on. "The child is very perverse and his favorite word is no. So don't meet him head-on and never ask 'do you want to do so-and-so?'" "Three is a delightful age because children have outgrown the negative stage, have become more social-minded and love people. At 4 they begin again to assert themselves, to test you to see how much they can get by with. They know they're being photographed and a smart photographer has to try different techniques to rid them of their self-consciousness. When they reach age 5 they're cooperative and no problem."

Husband Is Unfair Leave Sons At Home

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Clifton Tiltman-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister is being married soon in another state. My husband and I plan to attend her wedding, but here is the problem. We have two sons. One is 2 years old and the other is nearly a year old. They are very active, and to say they are a handful is a mild understatement. I want to leave them home so that I can have a little vacation and relax away from home, children and responsibilities!

My mother has offered to stay with the boys for the one weekend we will be gone. My husband thinks we should take the boys to show them off. He says it will be "unfair" to his relatives if I leave them home. What do you think?

NEEDS A REST

DEAR NEEDS: I think it will be unfair to you if he insists on taking them. And he owes you more than he owes his relatives. Besides, his relatives will look at the kids for two minutes, and you'll have to look after them the rest of the time.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I get along fine, but I have a problem I can't talk to anyone about because this is a small town and if this ever gets out it might hurt him in a business way.

I've heard about some people having far-out hang-ups on sex, but listen to this: My husband gets excited if he can pretend that some part of his body is missing. One time he wants me to pretend that one of his legs is missing. Another time he pretends that one of his fingers is missing. Lately he asks me to pretend that one of his eyes is gone! He feels no guilt or shame when he asks me to go along with this pretentious game.

I don't know why he should get turned on by pretending that a part of his body is missing, but he does. I find this weird and sometimes frightening. I never have refused to play his game for fear his mind will snap and he will harm me. Do you think he's dangerous? Ask one of your doctor friends and let me know.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Fetishes [and this is one] are usually harmless if both parties derive a mutual enjoyment from them. But if your husband's "something missing" game is causing you fear and anxiety, discuss it with a doctor and take his advice.

DEAR ABBY: A teen-age girl wrote: "Dear Abby, my are adults so quick to judge a person by his outward appearance? If a boy has long hair he is taken for a hippie, radical, pot smoker or a freak. Why? Adults don't bother to look beyond a person's hair or dress. They don't care what's on the inside."

Well, Abby, I am a 30-year-old high school teacher, and I would like to turn her letter around and write:

"Dear Abby, why are kids so quick to judge a person by his outward appearance? If a man has short hair he is taken for a square or a freak. Why? Kids don't bother to look beyond a person's hair or dress. They don't care what's on the inside."

To prove my point, I finally got tired of the snide remarks about my very short hair, so I let it grow longer. Quite predictably the comments have stopped, and now I am considered "normal." Strange, isn't it?

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER
SAN PEDRO, CAL.

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything. I should think a wife would be tickled pink to be able to go thru her husband's pockets before sending his clothes to the dry cleaners or putting the washables into the machine.

Most women have to wait until their husbands are asleep before they can get into their pockets.

E. C.: STILLWATER, OK.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Write to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Miss Julia Ray Speaks Vows

CHARLOTTE — Miss Julia Marie Ray became the bride of Robert Lee Collins in a double ring ceremony at 2:00 p.m. Sunday, May 23, at the Commonwealth United Methodist Church here.

The Rev. Ray Swink, pastor of the bride and bridegroom, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Allen Ray of Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graham of Aynor, S.C.

Organist for the wedding was Mrs. John Ray of Charlotte. Vocal music prior to the ceremony was presented by the bride's father, who sang "The Greatest of These Is Love" and "The Prayer Perfect."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal traditional gown of nylon organza lined with acetate taffeta. The gown featured a scooped neckline and empire waist sheath with an overskirt of nylon organza, which formed the chapel length train. The gown was styled with scalloped bell sleeves and a bow with sash trailing to the end of the train. Lace appliques and seed pearls highlighted the bodice, sleeves, skirt and train.

Her elbow length mantilla of white silk lace was designed to match her gown. She carried a nylon lace covered Testament decorated with a single white orchid showered with narrow ribbons of white satin, tied with love knots and entwined with white baby's breath.

Mrs. Brenda R. O'Geary served her sister as matron of honor and only attendant.

Robert Hunter of Charlotte served as best man.

The bride graduated from Ayden High School and from Pitt Technical Institute, Greenville. She is associated with Mecklenburg County Mental Health Center, Charlotte.

The bridegroom is associated with the Charlotte City Coach

Co. Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Charlotte.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Walter Mahaffey of Charlotte.

Reception

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimball entertained the wedding party and guests at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was covered with a white hand-embroidered cloth with yellow undercloth.

The centerpiece consisted of a sterling salver containing an arrangement of spring flowers. Mrs. Kimball poured punch and Mrs. Tom Whitted served bridal squares.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Erb III of Charlotte presided at the guest register and heard good-byes.

After-Rehearsal Party
Following the rehearsal on Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter entertained the Collins-Ray wedding party at a cake cutting at their home in Charlotte.

The bride's table was covered with a white cut lace cover over a white satin cloth. A two-tiered bridal cake formed the centerpiece and was flanked on either side by arrangements of red roses and burning tapers. After the bridal couple cut the traditional first slice, Mrs. Joseph A. Ray, mother of the bride, served cake while Mrs. Edward Erb III poured punch. Good-byes were said to the host and hostess.

Try Onion Soup Napoleon Style

By TOM HOGE

Associated Press Writer
Soup seems to be a favorite of people of all nations, perhaps because it can be adapted to any taste and be made to fit any pocketbook.

It also appeals to the beginning cook and veteran chef alike since soups range from the simplest mixtures to some of the most exotic concoctions in existence.

Basically, soup is the liquid in which virtually any solid food is cooked, whether it be red meat, poultry, fish or vegetables. There is no limit to the varieties, but soups have been classified generally into three main types.

—Thin clear soups, like bouillon or consommé.

—Thin, light soups, like tomato bisque or vegetable broth.

—Heavy, thick soups, like minestrone, or clam chowder.

For summer fare there are the chilled and jellied soups, some of them made with fruits and others with raw vegetables.

Gone are the days when a bunch of soup greens cost a nickel and you could get all the soup bones you wanted from the butcher for nothing. But it is still one of the most economical and satisfying dishes there is.

Soups are generally easy to prepare, but there are a few rules that should be followed. They must be well seasoned, since an insipid soup can spoil your appetite for the rest of the meal. And they must be piping hot, or iced-cold depending on which type you are serving.

The French probably are the world's greatest soup cooks.

There is an old legend that in every French farm kitchen a black kettle sits on the back of the stove boiling perpetually while meat bones, vegetables and other leftovers are thrown day after day into the bubbling brew.

If anyone tried this, of course they would be bitterly disappointed and might contract food poisoning in the bargain. Good soup must be fresh. But the French do use chicken carcasses and other leavings from the meals of that particular day to make their soup, and it is usually a delight.

One of France's most famous soups is the soul-satisfying onion with rounds of French bread covered with grated parmesan cheese floating atop the clear brew. Well, here is another kind of French onion soup that you should find just as satisfying.

There is an old anecdote that Napoleon III and his hunting companions used to come home from the chase and sit down to steaming bowls of a fabulous white onion soup created by Naoleon's chef. It was a thick ivory colored brew replete with onions sauteed in butter, and blended with white wine and grated cantal cheese.

Napoleon preferred this soup. The story goes, poured over croutons with balls of butter melting on the surface. Here is a recipe for this dish.

SOUPE A LA NAPOLEON
1/2 cup or one stick butter
2 lbs onions finely chopped
3 cups white wine
1 cup chicken broth
8 oz grated cantal or reblochon cheese
2 cups croutons

Saute onions in butter over low heat until tender but not brown. Whirl in a blender or press through a sieve or food mill. Stir in white wine and chicken broth. Stir until soup is very hot but not boiling. Over low heat add cheese, a handful at a time, stirring until cheese is melted. Place croutons in a tureen. Add the hot soup. Garnish soup with teaspoon of butter and chopped parsley. Serve hot with extra croutons.

Bride-Of-The-Year Tricia Nixon Plans First Outdoor Ceremony

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) —
Bride-of-the-Year Tricia Nixon planned her White House wedding with a keen awareness of historic precedent and a strong determination to make it an essentially private affair.

The blonde 25-year-old daughter of President Nixon will be married to Harvard law student Edward Finch Cox at 4 p.m.
Saturday, June 12. The single ring ceremony will be performed in the White House Rose Garden if weather permits. It will be moved indoors to the Capacious East Room in case of rain.

Tricia is praying for fair skies because, like every bride, she wants her wedding to be distinctive. She is the eighth daughter of an incumbent President to take her marriage vow in the unique setting of the White House. But she would be the first to have an outdoor ceremony there.

By White House standards, it will be a small wedding—which means about 400 guests. Lynda Bird Johnson invited more than 800 to her 1967 White House
Wedding to Chuck Robb.
"Princess Alice" Roosevelt began nearly 1,000 to her 1906 wedding to Rep. Nicholas Longworth.

Tricia is trying, as hard as protocol will permit, to keep her wedding a family affair.
Most of the guests will be relatives or close personal friends.

Ask Official Guests
But she cannot ignore the fact that her father is President of the United States, so there also will be some official guests—members of the cabinet, of congress and the diplomatic corps.

The Nixon and Cox families divided the guest quota evenly, with each nominating 200 invitees. At least 100 of the guests will be young friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The ceremony will be performed by Dr. Edward G.
Lynch, chaplain of the House,
who was the Nixons' pastor at Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church in Northwest
Washington when Nixon was Vice President. Tricia was in the church's Brownie troop at that time. Her sister Julie attended the church's nursery school. The chaplain is beloved by the First Family and especially by the girls.

Tricia is a Quaker and Cox is an Episcopalian. Dr. Latch plans to include elements of both religious traditions in the service. He frankly is excited about the "once in a lifetime" honor of presiding over White House nuptials.

Elegant Simplicity
The Rose Garden where the wedding is scheduled to take place was designed by Mrs.
Paul Mellon of Upperville, Va.
While Jacqueline Kennedy was chataine of the Executive Mansion. It has the elegant simplicity favored by the multimillionaire Mellons.

For the wedding, seasonal flowers will be in bloom, including the tea roses for which the garden was named.
White House Gardener Irwin
Williams and his crew are working overtime to bring the grounds to perfection for the big day.

Petite and pretty Tricia will wear a long white gown designed by Priscilla of Boston, a friend of the family who also created Julie Eisenhower's wedding gown when she married David Eisenhower on Dec.
22, 1968.

Julie will be matron of honor.
But her husband, a naval ensign, will be on sea duty on the USS Albany in the Mediterranean and unable to attend.

The best man will be Army
Capt. Howard Ellix Cox, Jr., brother of the bridegroom, who is stationed at the Pentagon.
Capt. Cox married Cleveland socialite Julia Bolton Dempsey last fall.

Tricia's wedding party will include only three others on the bride's side. Her fiancé's glamorous sister Mary Ann Cox, 26, a student at Yale School of Architecture will be a bridesmaid and her young cousins, Beth and Amy Nixon, ages 9 and 11 respectively, daughters of the President's brother Edward Nixon, who resides on the outskirts of Seattle, Wash., will be junior bridesmaids.

Tricia asked Beth and Amy to be in her wedding when they visited the White House over the Easter holidays. They practiced a bit by trying on Tricia and Julie's long gowns.
Cox was expected to invite a number of groomsmen to be in the wedding party.

Tricia's wedding party was on a small scale compared to her predecessors, the Johnson daughters. Luci Johnson Nugent had 10 bridesmaids. Her sister, Lynda Bird, had seven bridesmaids. Mrs. Longworth had none.

The wedding party will descend to the Rose Garden from the staircase of the South Portico, as a military band plays familiar wedding tunes.

After the religious ceremony, the wedding party will go to the Blue Room for family photographs and congratulations.
The newlywed couple then will stand in a receiving line along with their parents.

Afterwards there will be dancing in the East Room with music by New York society bandleader Bill Harrington, who also played at Julie's wedding.
Tricia has ordered rock tunes for the younger set and sentimental waltzes for their elders.

A buffet of hot and cold canapes will be set up in the state dining room and White House butlers will pass trays of champagne. Cutting of the wedding cake will take place in the red carpeted grand hallway.

There will be two rehearsals
—one in the Rose Garden and one in the East Room. Both will be held the day before the wedding.

That evening, Col. and Mrs.
Cox will give a rehearsal dinner for the wedding party.

The wedding invitations read:
"The President and Mrs.
Nixon request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Patricia to Mr.
Edward Finch Cox on Saturday,
the Twelfth of June One Thousand Nine Hundred and Seventy-one at four o'clock in the afternoon."

The ecru colored invitations, embossed with the Presidential coat of arms, enclose a response card:

"Please send response to the social secretary, the White-House, at your convenience."

Dress for the occasion will be afternoon dresses for women, dark business suits for men.

The President and the groomsmen will be attired in cutaways, a traditional formal ensemble for daytime weddings in the swallow tail coat, striped pants, pearl gray vest and gray striped tie.

The weather is a major concern. Weeks before the wedding Tricia was consulting climate charts and almanacs.
She found that over the past 25 years the mean temperature in Washington on June 12 has been 84 degrees. On the basis of the same statistics there is a 28 per cent chance of rain.

The Farmers Almanac says it will be "fair" on Tricia's wedding day. The Hagerstown Almanac forecasts showers that day.

Tricia has a mind of her own.
With the help of her mother,
she planned the wedding herself. She also consulted her fiance often.

She chose for her silver,
"Eloquence" by Lunt of Greenfield Mass. A four-piece place setting costs $61.50 and is marked by its ornate baroque design.

The food will be prepared by White House chef Henry Haller.
The cake will be baked by pastry chef Heinz Bender and the floral arrangements will be done by "Rusty" Young. Social Secretary Lucy Winchester will have a big hand in the planning.

Sandford Fox, the Presidential calligrapher prepared the invitations as he has for the past two White House weddings.
But it's Papa, of course, who pays. President Nixon will pick up the tab for all wedding expenses, with no charge to the taxpayers.

MULTI-FACETED THINGS
NEW YORK (UPI)—Larger silver holloware pieces have multi-faceted charms as wedding gifts, says the Jewelry Industry Council.

A water pitcher doubles as a cocktail shaker or flower vase.
Wine cooler converts to punch bowl and attractively displays a large, decorative arrangement of flowers, fruit. Hurricane lamps can be expressions of the season if filled with flowers, fruit, Christmas greenery.

Engagement Announced

MISS VICKI JO TOLSTON...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Joseph Tolston of Red Oak, who announce her engagement to Marshal Edward Boykin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Buckner Johnston Jr. of Wilson. The wedding will take place June 26.

Greenville Cotillion Holds Dance

The Greenville Cotillion held its first dance of the 1971-72 year Friday night at the Moose Lodge with approximately 50 couples attending.

Officers for the year are: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Laughinghouse, president; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Briley, vice president; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hartsell, secretary; Mr. and Mrs. John Jones, treasurer; Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Harris and Mr. and Mrs. Winton Hill, entertainment; Mr. and Mrs. Billy Weston, membership; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Murray, by-laws and publicity.

The Greenville Cotillion is a dance club organized in 1960 for the purpose of dancing and socializing. The original membership was limited to 25 couples and now has been increased to 100 couples.

Music for the Friday night dance was furnished by Brink Lilley.

The next dance will be held Sept. 17.

New Ideas In Home Furnishings

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Keeping up with new ideas in home furnishings is a bit difficult even for decorators.
Through such organizations as the Resources Council, a trade division of the American Society of Interior Designers, member designers are able to see what is available. If the decorators like what they see, the ideas soon find their way into homes.
Here are some offerings from the recent annual show of the council:

... Boating blues—bright, lively blues worn in casual dress fashions for boating—where shown in cotton and linen, plain and patterned fabrics, for home fashions use.

... Two popular color schemes are evident. One is a combination of pink, white, green—lovely azelia or watermelon pinks and spring

greens—in florals, stripes, abstracts or in combinations of all three for wallpapers and fabrics. Less dramatic interpretation is given to red, white and blue, which will make this color scheme more popular in the average home. In a wallpaper it is effectively used in squares of blue with large white dots and horizontal red stripes. In a printed carpet the design was a small all-over geometric.

... A new fabric is a printed celanese. The paper heat transfer method is similar to decal transfer.

... Handsome patterns on vinyl upholstery fabrics include white on a cool green background and a large houndstooth print in black and white.

... Pale apricot painted finishes on furniture is a new trend. Furniture designer John Mascheroni's hand carved wood table was finished in apricot lacier.

... Foil wall coverings have become an elegant addition to rooms. Newer ones have muted the shine so that the design captures the light with color and texture blending harmoniously as an integral part of the shimmering background.

... The animal trend continues with beige-y monkeys cav-orting on a reddish-tone wall covering with correlated fabric designed by Ellen McCluskey.

... And for outdoors, Zelina Brunschwig suggests strawberry-patterned fabrics for the picnic table.

Future Holds New Challenges

Graduation has been rather spread out in our area this year because of the varying starting times for some schools.

Rose High, ECU and Pitt Tech have already had their graduations as well as some of the county high schools. Others are coming up shortly.

For these young people who are now finishing high school and college there are challenges ahead. It would be easy to say that things are in terrible shape and the only thing for a young man or woman to do is drop out. Our young should never accept this, however. An exciting world awaits. It is not perfect, just as it has never been, but it were, there would be no challenges for the young people who in just a few short years will be the ones who control the destinies of our community, state and nation.

Many of our high school graduates will leave school to take jobs; others will go on to colleges or further training. The graduates of ECU and Pitt Tech will follow various routes to careers or further training. Whatever these thousands of young people choose as their own life paths, they should keep in mind that there is a bright future for them, to be filled with exciting times and real challenges.

There are complaints that jobs are not plentiful, and this is certainly true compared with some previous years when it was merely a matter of choosing from several job offers. This, however, is part of the challenge of life. The early years out of school are times for looking around and finding careers which are best suited to us as individuals. For the graduates going out into the world today, these are not trouble free times, but history tells us that there have seldom been times when there were not problems for the young seeking to make their way into the workday world.

Our graduates of today have grown up in unsettled times, but these young people have already met challenges that other generations have not had to face. We offer our congratulations to all our area graduates. We expect great things in the future from them.

Fidel Who? The Name Is Vaguely Familiar

Whatever happened to Fidel Castro? His name and picture, together with thousands upon thousands of words concerning him, used to dominate front pages of the U.S. newspapers. Castro opinions, threats, actions, were all taken seriously; and pundits were downright nervous about what he might do or could do.

No more. For the last several years he has apparently been distracted by cutting sugar cane and coping with problems and failures. Not many cane-cutters can hold American attention for very long. It's like water seeking its own level.

A New Style Of Leadership

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "What do we want?" "Freedom!" "When do we want it?" "Now!" The chant rose out of the boiling dust cloud raised by hundreds of marching feet on a back road in the South.

The time was 1965, and blacks were fighting segregation in Bogalusa, La., in one of the few ways that they had—mass marches behind big name civil rights leaders. But now many of the famous names are gone, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Whitney M. Young Jr., to name just two. Those still around from the earlier days, like James Farmer, who led so many of those marches in the South as head of the Congress of Racial Equality, no longer operate as they once did.

The marches have faded from the black scene. The years since Bogalusa, and Selma, and Birmingham, and Albany, Ga., and Jackson, Miss., and a hundred other marching campaigns, have brought new tactics, a new style of black leadership and a new kind of black leader using different kinds of weapons.

Some of the best-known faces now are in fields that were closed to blacks six years ago. Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes is symbolic of one of the most important reasons for the changing leadership style. The rise of the black politician.

"Blacks who are willing to do the homework and learn the techniques will be able through politics to make just incredible changes in the whole lifestyle of black people in this country," says Willie Brown Jr., a man very much a part of the new black political style. In a poll of national black leaders, Brown's name probably would not even be recognized by most blacks. Yet earlier this year he was voted one of the 10 most powerful movers and shakers of San Francisco. As chairman of California's Assembly Ways and Means Committee, Brown has a good deal of control over what goes into—and comes out of—Gov. Ronald Reagan's budget, and he opposes some of the governor's key programs.

"What SNCC (Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee) did in rural Alabama, Mississippi and Georgia was really leadership development," said Georgia Legislator Julian Bond. "Local leadership was no longer willing to accept dictates from national groups."

Now there are attempts to do on a national scale what Willie Brown, Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., Stokes, Bond, Alabama dentist Dr. John Cashin, who ran for governor against George C. Wallace, and hundreds of other black politicians have done on a local scale. "We are going to set the tone for the black liberation struggle in this country," said Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., the morning after he and 12 other black congressmen handed a list of 60 demands to President Nixon. (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

A GREAT AND GOOD AGE
There is probably no aspect of present world affairs which baffles us more than the fact that these affairs appear to be different from anything we ever knew before. How many people have personally come in contact with drug abuse? Did we or any of our forebears come in contact with student rebellion such as exists today? Think of armed conflict going on in the world today (with our country definitely involved), and yet there has been no declaration of war as our federal Constitution provides must take place if we are to get out the guns, raise armies and start lunging at one another's throats. Did you say there is a war going on? Oh, dear, no. We're just sending men and military material to the ends of the earth and thinking we

IF THEY'D JUST START WORKING TOGETHER!

By ART BUCHWALD

The Land Of Paranoia

WASHINGTON — In the city of Manicdepressia, on the banks of the Schizophrenic River, live the rulers of the great country of Paranoia.

The rulers of Paranoia are constantly announcing a plot against the government by the citizens. The citizens are always announcing a plot by the government against the people.

Since these plots are passed on by the news media, the rulers suspect there is a plot by the media to destroy the government. This has made the news media suspect that there is a plot against them by the rulers.

The leaders of Paranoia believe that if the news media would stop pointing out what is wrong in the country, the problems would go away. The news media think unless they point out the faults of the government, things will get worse.

Skin tone means a lot to the people of Paranoia, and the light-skinned people inhabit the best houses, have the most money and live in deathly fear that the dark-skinned people will marry their daughters. The dark-skinned people live in deathly fear that the light-skinned people will kill them. Both the light-skinned people and the dark-skinned people are stocking up on guns, as each is suspicious that the other is plotting against them.

The young people suspect that the older people and the leaders are going to get them killed in some senseless war.

So the young people have taken to the streets to protect. This has made the older people suspect that the young people are plotting against them, and they have demanded that the rulers use force to see that the young people do nothing to change the system.

Many of the people in Paranoia believe that the large companies in the country are trying to destroy them by poisoning the air and the water. The large companies believe that there is a plot to prevent them from making the things the people want. The rulers are caught in between, because Paranoia's economy depends on the companies that are destroying the environment.

The rulers have promised the people to clean up the air and water. At the same time they have promised to raise the gross national product and give people full employment. Since the people know it's impossible to do both, they are very depressed.

There are not enough jobs in Paranoia, and therefore the people who are working suspect people on welfare of cleverly dodging work, and the people on welfare suspect the people who are working of keeping them off a payroll.

To make matters worse, the leaders of Paranoia believe that other countries are plotting against them, so they spend more than 50 percent of their budget for defense.

A great deal of this money goes for digging large holes in the ground for great big missiles, which everyone assures everyone else will never be used.

Every night before they go to sleep, the rulers of Paranoia look under their beds to see who is plotting against them. In the morning they check again. Even if they don't see anybody, they suspect the worst.

Because of this the citizens of Paranoia are always looking over their shoulders and wondering if their phones are tapped.

Other Editors Say Damage Prevented

(Henderson Dispatch)

When first there was talk nearly two decades ago of construction of a dam on Roanoke river at Buggs Island, one of the objectives persistently emphasized was that of flood control in the big river. Public power was in the background but less was said of that. Moreover, flood control had a strong talking point in devastation that accompanied the great flood of 1940, which did millions of dollars damage downstream in the river, and mostly in Eastern North Carolina.

Not since that catastrophe has there been anything like it. But existence of the dam and its capacity to hold back a deluge from torrential rains has on several occasions demonstrated its value.

Spokesmen for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers have said that heavy rains in up-State Virginia some ten days ago would have caused an estimated damage of half a million dollars in the downstream basin for the river but for the capacity of Kerr dam in holding the water back. Now there is the prospect of still more high water following more recent rains. The level is said to be likely to go higher than in other recent days. But Eastern Carolina areas are assured that there is nothing to fear, and because of the great barrier across the river at Buggs Island. The dam and the lake have accumulated all the water needed and have provided the means of containing excess flow. The recent high water level was not quite as threatening as that of a decade or so ago. In neither instance was there more than minimum damage, and certainly nothing remotely to equal what there would have been but for the dam.

Whatever may have been the opinion fifteen to twenty years ago about public power, the fact is that as of now there is both flood control and plenty of power. So far as facilities at the dam are concerned, there is nothing to worry about.

Cities See Special Functions

By ELMER ROESSNER
The cities are taking a beating. Industries and wealthier families are fleeing to the suburbs and taking with them rich sources of tax money. The poor flock in for better welfare payments than they can get, say in Forked Springs, Ark. But cities have facilities that cannot be duplicated in the suburbs, in small towns or in the rolling fields. It is only in the cities that a business can find quick access to finances, to highly specialized legal advice, to a wide choice of hotels and entertainment for customers, to highly skilled medical services, to highly specialized printing services and thousands of other facilities.

At the same time, it is only in the cities that the sources of these services can find adequate numbers of customers. Where but in a city can big advertising agency, for instance, find million-dollar clients or a giant corporate law firm find clients? Or an airline find travelers? Changes Are Active However, cities are undergoing changes that approach life cycles in scope, states David L. Birch, professor of the Harvard School of Business Administration, writing in the MGIC Newsletter, a publication of the MGIC Investment Co. and other Morgan bank institutions. These economic and demographic life cycles start with a homogeneous mix of people and jobs. They grow with annexation and immigration. "Sooner or later, though, as their densities and problems rise, suburbs no longer wish to be annexed and migrants no longer prefer to settle in the center," Prof. Birch wrote.

Then the center begins to serve more specialized functions. "It houses the poor who are still stuck there and increasingly it houses the rich who cannot bear the pain of commuting."

In the future, the professor added, "We can expect significant changes from past trends. The growth of the great northern cities during the first half of the twentieth century will be replaced by growth in the smaller, younger, largely western and southern cities during the next 50 years."

Northern Service Centers The younger cities will eventually face the problems of the older cities, he wrote, and, "The large northern

Dear Dept. Store

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Dear Department Store:

You do not owe me $18.55. I know you think you do, but it's all a computer error. The trouble started six months ago with an order for five pair of stockings—to be charged and sent, please.

Three weeks after the order date the stockings hadn't arrived and I spoke to your kind representatives in the hosiery department, the shipping department and the adjustments department.

They didn't know what had happened to the stockings either, but they rejected a suggestion that they simply pack up five more pair and ship them out again.

It seems there's a 10-day period during which the adjustments department adjusts to the idea that it's lost and order and tries to track it down.

Right on schedule, 10 days later, you called me and reported that, yes indeed, the stockings had vanished. You'd send another order.

In the interim, however, a bill had arrived. You said: "Pay the bill and we'll credit you later."

I said: "Send me the stockings and I'll pay you later."

Your representative and I agreed to maintain the status quo and a week later the new order of five pair of stockings arrived. So did the old order which, it seemed from the mailing labels, had been mis-addressed and traveled all over the five boroughs of New York before arriving at my home—less than 30 blocks from your main store.

Unwilling to try to unravel the confusion I decided to keep all 10 pair. They way they're making stockings these days it wouldn't take long before the first ones wore out.

Senator Alley Presses Point

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — How old is old enough?

Old enough to vote? Old enough to fight? Old enough to execute a binding contract? Old enough to sue and be sued in court?

One answer should fit all questions on the age of legal majority, said Senator Zebulon D. Alley of Haywood. "If we are going to extend the privilege of voting at 18, it should be accompanied by the full responsibility of citizenship," he insisted.

It's taken time and

argument, but it looks like he may get the 1971 General Assembly to agree with him. The freshman Senator from the mountains introduced his bill to achieve the purpose of the day the session convened back on January 13. Last week it finally came to the Senate floor and passed after prolonged debate and a last-minute stall.

Now it waits action in the House. Alley is optimistic it will move faster there to the same favorable conclusion.

Lowering Legal Age

What it would do is lower from 21 to 18 the age at which a person ceases to be legally a minor. It would be effective upon amendment of either federal or state constitution setting the voting age at 18.

Once the bill is enacted, Senator Alley said, he will introduce legislation making the appropriate corrections in the lawbooks. Research by the Attorney General's office, he said indicates some 260 separate references in the law which will be affected.

While the age for voting is a matter of principle and politics, legal majority has many practical ramifications.

For example, Alley noted, he has a client who at 19 owns and operates successfully a sawmill. "He has to have a guardian in order to conduct his business affairs," the Senator explained.

"I know there is no magic number of years which assures maturity, but I do feel the 18-21 age group has a pretty high level of good judgment."

Senior Senators Aided

Support from senior members of the Senate helped Alley get his bill through. Senator S. Bunn Frink of Brunswick, a six-term veteran, co-signed the bill.

Frink, 72, used his turn on the Senate floor, speaking for the bill to announce legislative retirement. "I do not intend to run again. I've been here long enough," he said. "I sincerely believe young people are entitled to the right of first-class citizenship."

Senator Claude Currie of Durham, dean of the upper chamber, said ballot enfranchisement of the 18-21 age group is here — "whether we like it or not, and I like it" — and lowering the legal age should follow.

But Currie stirred up some of the middle age set with the comment that young people today "are much smarter than we were at that age."

Senator J. J. (Monk) Harrington of Bertie thought otherwise. "Smarter academically, maybe, but that's just about where it stops," snorted Harrington, 52. "There's such a thing as common hoss sense, as well as book learning. Something tells me this is a bad bill."

Not Smarter: More Exposure "They're not necessarily smarter; they've just been exposed to more," observed Senator Jyles J. Coggins of Wake.

The real importance of the legislation, cautioned, Coggins, 50, would be to relieve parents of responsibility for acts of their children in the 18-21 bracket.

Politics, salesmanship and marriage got mixed into the debate.

Senator F. O'Neil of Anson, noting he is the next-to-youngest member of the upper chamber, urged that the vote on the bill be based on its merits and not "cheap and tawdry political motives" of appealing to the new, young voting constituency.

As a lawyer, Jones added, "I make a living on the mistakes many of these young people make. I see an awful lot of bad judgment in this area."

Coggins feared opening a door for high pressure salesmen to get young people tangled in debt. "Young people can be sold anything," he argued.

Senator William D. Mills of Onslow pointed out an exception to the bar against 18-year-olds entering into a binding contract.

"We allow 18-year-olds to marry, which is a contract," he said. "I signed that contract 18 years ago. I thought it was binding then, and it still is today."

In sum, Mills said, the question is whether enfranchisement for those between 18 and 21 should be restrictive; he favored making it full and complete.

So did a firm majority of the Senate, passing the bill and routing it to the House for final consideration.

Several months went by. I made several more purchases—this time in person. I paid several more bills.

Then your monthly statement for May arrived. There, in that impersonal sort of message reserved for bills was a notice that I had a credit of $18.55—the price of five pair of stockings.

I shouldn't have that credit, dear department store. We're even. I don't owe you anything and you don't owe me anything. But if you don't straighten it all out, I'm going to spend the $18.55. Try explaining that loss to your stockholders next year.

Warships' Visit Said Provocative

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Defense Ministry's newspaper said today that a visit by American warships to the Baltic Sea last month was a "provocative military demonstration." The paper, Krasnaya Zvezda, Red Star, also condemned earlier visits of U.S. ships to the Black Sea and the Sea of Japan.

Scott Col. . . .

(Continued from page 4) "The House Black Caucus plans to evaluate what is done for blacks at all political levels, the Nixon administration included," Clay said. "Black people in this country have no permanent friends, no permanent enemies, only permanent interests."

That remark illustrates the belief of Clay and other members of the Black Caucus that blacks no longer need emphasize cultivating the goodwill of white allies, that they can now make serious bids for power.

A study completed recently by the Joint Center for Political Studies in Washington showed 1,860 black officials holding public offices, including key law enforcement positions. Sixty-eight cities have black mayors, and California's superintendent of public instruction is a black.

These officials represent a local power that did not exist five years ago, and several attempts to consolidate this power have begun.

As some observers see it, the rise of the black politician was preceded by another important change, the shift of emphasis from the rural South to the urban North as first Harlem, then Watts, then a hundred other black urban ghettos erupted in riots.

The shift of emphasis, they argue, helped catapult such people as Malcolm X and Stokely Carmichael into positions of strong influence. But equally important, it shifted attention toward a variety of black community activist groups and gave them their first chance at gaining enough influence and federal funding to put their programs into effect.

In the North, such individuals as SCLC's Rev. Jesse Jackson began to be heard; black united fronts under a variety of leaders were formed in Washington, Boston, Cairo, Ill., and a dozen other cities. The Black Panthers developed a small but dedicated following, supported by a much larger group of sympathizers, and hundreds of community self-help organizations such as Pride, Inc., in Washington, were formed in every urban area.

The local black leader came into his own. A 1969 San Francisco meeting called to ask influential community members for a unified position on the minority student strike at San Francisco State College included more than 200 blacks whose reputations did not extend beyond the neighborhoods in which they lived and worked.

A year ago in Chicago it wasn't any nationally known figure who won an agreement from the building trades unions to try to hire more minority workers, but a coalition of the city's black activists including some notorious gang leaders.

Anson's School Board Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Anson County, N.C., school board was charged Tuesday with discriminating against black teachers while desegregating the system.

A Justice Department suit was filed in federal court in Charlotte, N.C., against the board and one in Norfolk, Va., against Nansemond County, Va. The suit says the boards dismissed, reassigned and demoted some Negro teachers.

The department ask the courts to order nonracial standards in employment and pupil assignments for next year.

ANOTHER UNION
LONDON (AP) — The National Association of Schoolmasters has come out for appointing union shop stewards to represent their interests in big schools—the same system employed in factories.

Weakened Pills

People who suffer from angina pectoris, the painful heart condition, are cautioned not to carry their nitroglycerin pills in pillboxes.

The pills lose potency upon such exposure rather than being kept in their original package, says a study in the Journal of the American Pharmaceutical Association. And the packaging makes a difference, too, it says, with some methods much better than others. It suggests nitroglycerin tablets be put up only in glass vials that have a plastic screw cap or snap cap—kept that way, the pills maintain adequate strength up to two months, but not so long in other kinds of containers.

Hunger for Poison

Children who repeatedly eat poisonous substances may do so because they lack certain vitamins or minerals, and are hungry for them, some University of Rochester scientists think.

The youngsters may not be able to absorb the vitamins and minerals contained in their regular food. Bodily need for them may lead them to eat poisons as a possible source of the nutrients. A study is under way to check the theory.

Second Drowning

Saved from drowning in fresh water, some people nonetheless die within a few days from "secondary drowning." Their lungs fill with a fluid that cuts down oxygen supply and too much acid accumulates in their bodies.

The usual treatment is to give them oxygen, plus a shot of alkali, but this doesn't always work. Among 10 near-drowning victims, three given the standard treatment died within 72 hours, but seven who also received an anti-inflammation drug all survived, researchers report.

The drug is methylprednisone, which acts to reduce the fluid in the lung, to improve absorption of oxygen, and to ease breathing, Arnold Sladen and Dr. Howard L. Zauder of the University of Texas Medical School, San Antonio, report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Aid from Pacifiers

An infant is less likely to start sucking his thumb if he's allowed to have a pacifier for a while after weaning, a 19-year-old study finds.

Malocclusion, or faulty bite, is associated more with children who suck on fingers or thumbs than those who don't, says Dr. Frank Popovich, University of Toronto dental scientist.

Safer Fungicide

Japanese scientists have developed a fungicide which they claim cannot contaminate the soil or poison humans.

It's composed of glycine and valine, two of the elements in proteins, and growth hormone. Microbes break it down completely in the soil, so none can reach humans, reports Medical Tribune. Tests showed it more than 90 per cent effective in preventing rice blight.

Furnishings . . .

An exhibit of vinyl floor coverings illustrated the trend toward combinations of vinyl tiles with borders of realistic looking wood strip vinyls to give a custom-design look to floors. Particularly attractive were the four-to-a-square wood-bordered vinyls.

Another exhibit was a reminder of some of the 80 real marbles that are available for floors, walls and other home decoration.

A new look collection of handmade chandeliers of tin included a big fish with lots of little fish dangling from it and an ascension balloon with a little basket below, designed by youthful John Leone. He fell into the tin man bit by chance, he explained. A party decorator, he was walking through the service entrance of the Plaza Hotel in New York one day when he saw a number of little and big cans lined up for the rubbish collector. He experimented with them, making lamps for his own use. Soon he was fashioning the cans into flower petals with ordinary scissors at first, making little and big flowers, and putting them into shiny tin containers or baskets. He next began the chandelier kick, he says, and it was a display of these that aroused much interest at the show. He likes gold touches with silver so some of the tin is applied with brass.

ABOUT READY TO QUIT—Joe Eisenberg, 65, a Denver drug store operator, is about ready to give up. Eisenberg has been held up 37 times in the past 35 years. "I've reached the point of no return, and I don't think I can take any more," Eisenberg said after the latest robbery last week. He hasn't kept track of the cash and drugs he has lost. Soviet Atheists Failing To Teach

By PETER J. SHAW
MOSCOW (UPI)—Soldiers of the Red army have come under fire from their own official newspaper for not fighting the battle against belief in God as resolutely as they should. "In some detachments," the army newspaper Red Star said in a lengthy commentary, "commanders and political workers have weakened anti-religious propaganda. They do not conduct the resolute fight for the uprooting of leftovers of religion in peoples' consciousness."

kept repeating. "Everybody knows there is no God" Such a state of affairs, Red Star said, proved that "anti-religious propaganda should be conducted uninterruptedly, not just from time to time." Anti-religious propaganda is official Soviet policy. Freedom of worship is guaranteed by the Soviet constitution but the state considers religion a "serious ideological adversary." Children are told "religion is a harmful superstition. Everything is explained by science." Jesus Christ is usually referred to as "the mythical Christ."

Even old women, Red Star noted sarcastically, can best soldiers in religious argument and it told the story of one old woman named Anna who sat in a train compartment with several young soldiers, one of whom asked her:

"Are you a believer, old woman?"

"Why do you ask, sonny?"

"Because it (religion) makes me laugh."

"What is there to laugh about?" said the old woman. "God helps us in everything. He is everywhere—in this bread, sonny, in your thoughts."

Red Star said "an argument began in which the old woman took the upper hand. The private could not counter her arguments with any of his own. One could see he was not prepared for an argument of this sort. He just

Moscow in 1917 had more than 600 churches for a population of one million. There are today no more than 40 or 50 active churches for a population of seven million, and some are the size of small chapels.

Many former Russian churches have been converted to museums, sobering-up stations for drunks, trade exhibition halls and warehouses. Scores have been ripped down. Rarely is a new one built. Famous St. Basil's Cathedral in Red Square has been renovated—as an admission-charging museum.

There is no official estimate of active Russian orthodox believers in the Soviet Union. Unofficial estimates run to more than 20 million. Those attending services are few, mostly elderly and mostly female.

Several other branches of Christianity still exist in the Soviet Union although services are scant. Unofficial estimates suggest there are several million persons born as Roman Catholics, Lutherans and believers in a Quaker-styled Baptist sect called the United Baptist Evangelist Church.

The state continues to teach there is no God. Religion is eroded by quiet antireligious indoctrination which begins when children start school and follows them throughout their lives.

The Soviet constitution gives the state the right to propagandize for atheism. It forbids religious instruction for anyone under age 18.

Missing Bobby Had Measles

PERU, Ind. (AP)—Two policemen found little Bobby Brown wandering around the city's west side. They discovered he had a high fever and took him to a hospital.

About three hours later the one and one-half-year old's father reported his son missing.

He wasn't too surprised to hear Bobby was in the hospital. He said the three other Brown children at home had measles, too.

Colorado contains six times as much mountainous area as Switzerland.

Grand Ole Opry Stars Joining Finger Festival

By NANCY SHIPLEY Associated Press Writer FINGER, Tenn. (AP) — Back in 1895, the story goes, a group looking for a name for their town in McNairy County, Tenn., noticed a man jabbing with a finger to emphasize a point. The group decided "Finger" was as good a name as anything else.

So the little town of Finger, Tenn., was born. Now some 75 years later, the 266 residents of the town are trying to put it on the map. And they've hit with an idea — a festival.

Saturday will be the First Friendly Finger Festival.

It will be a three-day deal actually, with a few activities scheduled Friday and Sunday. But the big day will be Saturday when a number of Grand Ole Opry stars will be on hand to entertain.

There will also be an old-fashioned day-long barbecue, plus square dancing, wrestling and other events.

Among the Grand Ole Opry stars will be Carl and Pearl

Butler, long-time singers who began their careers in Knoxville and are known for such songs as "Don't Let Me Cross Over."

Performers for the country square dance will include Jim Climer and the Merry Macs, Bobby Mack, Jimmy Hardy and the Country Rockers.

A parade also is scheduled, along with carnival rides, amateur contests and other things. Finger residents are expecting their population to double or even triple for the weekend festivities.

Finger isn't the only place in Tennessee where a festival is scheduled for the weekend. About 350 miles to the northeast, in Knoxville, Chet Atkins, known as "Mr. Guitar," will be holding his annual guitar festival.

Atkins is moving his festival to Knoxville from Nashville, where it premiered a year ago.

The famed guitarist said he chose to move the event to East Tennessee because, "I'm sentimental about this area." He is a Union County native and launched his career in Knoxville radio.

Special Truck For Lost-Found

VIENNA (AP) — Each day a two-and-a-half ton truck makes the rounds to yards of the city-owned public transportation system to gather things which passengers leave on buses and streetcars.

Besides such run-of-the-mill items as umbrellas, the lost and found department also listed dozens of dental plates and glasses. One person even forgot a wrapped-up washing machine.

Ancient Greeks paid taxes in olive oil.

WSIX has announced that singer Jerry Lee Lewis will be featured performer in a television special filmed this week at the station.

Guests included Carl Perkins, Jackie Wilson, the Sound Generation, the Anita Kerr Singers, and Jerry Lee's sister, Linda Gail Lewis.

Girl Scouts Taking Trip

The members of Girl Scout Troop 511 will leave Sunday afternoon for a trip to Miami, Fla., Nassau and Freeport.

The girls will go to Miami, Fla., by chartered bus and then on a four day cruise to Nassau and Freeport. On the return trip, the group will stop in Savannah, Ga., to participate in activities at the home of Juliette Lewis, the founder of Girl Scouting. They also plan to tour "Old Savannah."

The girls participating in the trip are: Ann Fleming, Linda Fleming, Sarah Hagan, Stephanie Sawyer, Mickey Jones, Laura Ebbs, Janice Clay, Lynne Tetterton, Sally Boyette, Kathy Kirk, Marsha Schuler, Carolyn Mills, Jean Ramsey, Sandra Downing, Peggy Weimer, Carole Cameron and Debbie Hartell.

Advisors for the group are Mrs. Gail Jones and Mrs. John Ebbs. The girls in this troop have been active in scouting since they became Brownies at the age of seven. They have participated in both local and Council events over the years. Five of the girls are graduating seniors and the others are rising seniors.

Probing Theft At Auditorium

East Carolina University police are investigating a burglary at McGinnis Auditorium that resulted in the theft of approximately $300 in cash and a blank pistol.

Campus security officer Joe Calder said that Summer Theatre personnel discovered the theft around 12:15 Tuesday when they opened the safe. Calder added that the safe had been closed sometime Friday and the incident evidently occurred during the interim.

The security officer noted that the safe had not been forced open or otherwise damaged but apparently opened with the combination.

A spokesman at the Summer Theatre offices said this morning that funds taken from the safe were from ticket sales and belonged to the theatre.

City Counted Three Traffic Accidents

Over $3,800 in damages resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated in the city Tuesday by the Greenville Police Department.

Heaviest damages occurred in a wreck in the intersection of Evans and 14th Streets involving cars driven by Barney Hayes Barrett of 1109 W. Wright Road and Daniel Russell Early Sr. of 1003 Taylor Street.

Police, who reported no injuries in the 11:30 a.m. mishap, estimated damages at $2,500 to the Barrett auto and $1,000 to the car driven by Early.

Investigating officers charged Early with failing to stop for a traffic light.

A car driven by Reginal Speight of 1506 E. Fourth St. and a parked vehicle owned by James Harris of 711 McDowell St. sustained damages of $100 each in a collision on Evans St. near its intersection with Third Street.

Officers charged Speight with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the 8:55 a.m. accident. No injuries were reported.

A collision at the Brownlea Drive — Greenville Boulevard intersection Tuesday resulted in $150 damages to a car driven by Evelyn Elaine Gardner of 1702 Knollwood Dr. and only light damage to a car operated by Frances Quick Langley of Rt. 6, Greenville.

Police preferred no charges following investigation of the accident and no injuries were reported.

Nixon . . .

quiring reporters. After fielding one question on the subject earlier, Nixon was asked if he felt the demonstrators posed sufficient threat that "some methods such as suspending constitutional rights was justified."

Nixon said this was an exaggeration and added police showed more concern for rights of the demonstrators than the protesters did for rights of metropolitan residents.

"If they were lawfully and properly arrested," interjected another newsman, "why are the courts letting them out?"

Nixon replied this proved the point that constitutional rights were preserved because, in the absence of evidence to convict an accused, he is released.

The next questioner: "Mr. President, they are not being released on the grounds that guilt isn't proved. They are being released on the grounds that they weren't properly arrested."

Nixon responded that local police "were confronted with what could have been a very difficult crisis" and acted with "very great restraint and with necessary firmness."

It was then he added that if other cities face similar situations, their police should copy a page from the tactics manual adopted here.

Two Injured In Woman's Death Is Ruled Suicide

Two persons were reported injured in a 5:11 p.m. mishap here yesterday.

Police reported cars driven by Ronnie Allen, 18 of 1106 Colonial Ave. and James Green, 43 of 200 Hudson St. collided at the intersection of Third and Hudson Streets. Allen and a passenger in his car were reported injured. Damage was estimated at $675 to the Allen car and about $2,100 to the Green vehicle.

Green was charged with driving under the influence, no operators license and failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Pound for pound, the sun actually produces less heat than the human body.

The death of a 76-year-old Greenville woman whose car went into the Tar River near Stancill Drive early Tuesday evening has been ruled a suicide by the coroner.

The body of Mrs. Luella L. Stancill of 1306 E. Third Street was recovered by the Greenville Rescue Squad shortly after 8 p.m. and Coroner E. W. Harvey Jr. attributed death to drowning. He noted that there were "apparently no other injuries" that would have been fatal.

Harvey said that it had not been determined whether Mrs. Stancill's car backed into the river or drove in forward, as two witnesses gave conflicting accounts of the accident. The accident occurred between Stancill Drive and Library St. There is a steep bank in that area of the river.

Optimists Get Win Over R.C.

The Optimists rolled to a 9-3 victory over R.C. Cola yesterday in the North State Little League and moved back into sole possession of first place in the loop.

The Optimists are now 6-1, while the second place Kiwanis are close behind with a 5-1 record. They are followed by R.C. and Coca-Cola, both 3-4, the Jaycees, 2-4, and the Lions, 1-6.

The Optimists pushed ahead with two runs in the first inning. Eric McCormick walked and Greg Lee reached on an error. Gary Porter singled and an error allowed McCormick to score. Gary Allen walked, loading the bases and a walk to Mack Stokes forced in Lee.

R.C. came back with a run in the second. Charley Hayak walked and stole second. He gained third on an error and scored on a passed ball.

In the third, R.C. scored again, tying it up at 2-2. Mike Brown doubled and stole third. He then came across on a wild pitch.

The Optimists came back to score four runs in the bottom of the third, however, and put it out of reach. Jeff Aldridge walked and Allen singled, with both advancing on an error. Stokes singled to score Aldridge, and Bob Peoples doubled in both Allen and Stokes. Tim Casper walked, and a double by Ricky Robinson scored Stokes and Peoples for a 6-2 lead.

The R.C.'s got another run in the top of the fourth, that coming on a homer by Bryant Morton.

The Optimists pushed over another run in the fourth, as Gary Porter singled, moved up on an out, and scored when Casper reached on an error. The other two runs came in the fifth for the final 9-3 margin.

Petty Nearing $1 Million Mark

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard Petty has earned $962,648 in his 13-year career as a stock car driver. He may become the first NASCAR Grand National millionaire by the Fourth of July.

The 33-year-old Petty from Randleman N.C., has earned an extra $10,000 for winning the first leg of the Winston Cup point standings.

Petty has earned $133,740 this season, his fourth $100,000-plus season in the last five years. And he plans to challenge for big purses in NASCAR events this month in Dover, Del.; Irish Hills, Mich., and Riverside, California.

If he doesn't make the million-dollar circle this month, he will have a shot at one of the tour's largest payoffs in the Firecracker 400 on July 4 at Daytona International Speedway.

Petty scored 1,730 points in the Winston Cup standings. Second at 1,624 points, good for $5,000 was James Hylton of Inman, S.C. Hylton has earned $27,630 this year.

Cecil Gordon of Arden, N.C., was third in points at 1,532.

Corrada, Aldridge, Sneed All-Southern

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's Spiders and East Carolina's Pirates earned three spots each on an All-Southern Conference baseball team announced today which features three repeaters from last year.

Co-champions Furman and The Citadel placed two players each and Davidson one on the 11-man team selected by conference coaches for the Southern Conference Sports Writers Association.

The only holdovers are first baseman Tom Bondurant of Richmond, third baseman Jerry Wise of The Citadel and East Carolina's Stan Sneed, who tied with Davidson's Hal Wilkerson for the catching berth.

Four other players were promoted from last year's second team—shortstop Reggis Dunnivant of Richmond, outfielders

Neil Eichelberger of Furman and Bruce Wright of Richmond and pitcher John Katona of Furman.

Rounding out the squad are Dick Corrada of East Carolina at second base, Mike Aldridge of East Carolina in the other outfield spot and Doug Pounder of The Citadel as the other pitcher.

Six of the 11 are juniors—Dunnivant, Eichelberger, Aldridge, Wilkerson, Sneed and Katona. The other five are seniors.

Eichelberger led the conference in hitting with a .389 average, and he and Aldridge each drove in 32 runs. Eichelberger also hit eight homers to lead in that department.

Katona and Pounder each won 10 games and Katona was the strikeout leader with 109. Richie Richardson of William and Mary, a second-team selection, had the lowest earned run average, 0.87.

There were two tied on the second team—between Jack Willits of Davidson and Glenn Fry of Furman at shortstop and between Larry Walters of East Carolina and Lou Dowdy of Virginia Military for the third outfield spot. Rick Pipan of Davidson was named with Richardson as the other pitcher.

Other members are John Campbell of Furman, first base; Mike Filipic of Furman, second base; David Cripe of William and Mary, third base; Joe Davis and Bill Barnhill of Davidson, outfield; and Don Leage of Furman, catcher.

Pepsi-Cola Runs By College View By 7-1

Pepsi-Cola gained a 7-1 victory over College View last night in the Babe Ruth League and vaulted back into a share of first place.

Pepsi is now tied with Home Builders for the top spot in the league, both with 3-1 records.

North Carolina National Bank is third with a 2-1 mark. They are followed by Carolina Dairy, 2-2; College View, 2-3; and Planters Bank, 0-4.

Pepsi pushed into the lead in the first inning of play, scoring a pair of runs. Bill Ellington singled and stole second. Donald Cannon followed with a walk, as did Bobby Dough, loading the bases. A walk to Al Salisbury brought in Ellington, and a hit by Chuck Brown scored Cannon for a 2-0 lead.

In the third, College View pushed over its lone run of the night. Jimmy Averett walked and moved to second on a passed ball. Bobby Kittrell singled and Jimmy Buck's grounder was played to home, but Averett was safe there on an error.

In the fourth, Pepsi added another run. Doug Causey walked and moved up on a single by Ellington and a walk to Doug. A wild pitch brought him across to make it 3-1.

The final four runs came in the sixth. Curtis Keys walked and Ellington also drew a free trip. An error allowed Keys to score from second, and moved Ellington to third. Cannon walked, and Dough reached on a fielder's choice. A wild pitch brought in Ellington, and Salisbury sacrificed in Cannon. Another wild pitch scored Dough.

Ellington led the Pepsi hitting with two.

Moose Snap Losing String

The Moose snapped a five game losing streak yesterday with a 5-1 victory over the Exchange.

The Graniteers continued to lead the league with a 6-0 record, while the Elks are second with a 4-2 mark. They are followed by the Exchange, 3-4, Pepsi-Cola and Integon, both 2-4, and the Moose, 2-5.

Henry Baker, in hurling the victory, allowed only four hits by the Exchange. He struck out 11 and walked five during the game.

The Moose broke a scoreless tie in the third inning, pushing over two runs. Baker led off with a single to center. William Brewington followed with a hit to left. Both runners advanced on an out, and Danny Wood reached on an error, scoring Baker. Wood stole second, and John Lawler singled to score Brewington with the second run.

Then, in the fourth, the Moose added two more to take a 4-0 advantage. Baker reached on an error and Ross Hawkins doubled to left. Brewington singled to center, scoring both Baker and Hawkins with the two runs.

The Exchange came up with its only run in the fifth inning. Thil Hurley led off with a walk and stole second. He took third on a passed ball and scored when Tom Bunch doubled.

The final Moose run came across in the sixth inning. Steve Lawler opened with a triple to right field. He then scored when Baker slapped a double to right, setting up the 5-1 victory for the Moose.

Little Mint Increases Lead

The Little Mint increased its lead in the Ladies Softball League last night with a 4-2 victory over Foodland. The loss was the first for Foodland. In the other game, Piggly-Wiggly, beat Wachovia, 9-5.

The Little Mint now boasts a 5-0 record, while Foodland is 3-1. They are followed by Coca-Cola and Piggly-Wiggly, both 2-3, and Wachovia, 0-5.

In the opener, Wachovia pushed ahead with two runs in the first, and then added one in the second for a 3-0 lead.

Piggly-Wiggly, however, finally came to life in the fifth inning pushing over four runs to move ahead for good. Shirley

Davis reached on an error and Jan Moore singled. Joyce Martin reached on an error and Maggie Harris got a hit. Kaye Jones walked and Marie Mayo singled to score Harris with the fourth run.

Then, in the second game, the Little Mint pushed over three runs in the second to take the lead, which they never lost. Linda Tripp tripled and Carol Manuel singled. Sandra Kelly singled and scored on a hit by Pat Kilpatrick for the 3-0 lead.

The Little Mint picked up its final run in the sixth, while both Foodland runs came in the seventh, but the rally fell short.

May Joins Nicklaus

ATLANTA — Three Greenville golfers are playing today in the pro-am division of the Atlanta Classic, along with Milton Harrington, president of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

The three, Reynolds May, W. L. Allen Sr., and Erzell Webb, also played in the tournament last year, when Allen was teamed with Arnold Palmer.

The group's luck continued again this year, too.

May was drawn for a foursome that included Jack Nicklaus, and comedian Bob Hope.

Allen and Webb both were to play with Don Bies, while Harrington was teamed with Memphis Open winner Lee Trevino.

Boyer Waiting For Freedom

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Clete Boyer said Tuesday he didn't think Atlanta Braves General Manager Paul Richards would "blackball" him in major league job hunting for a third base to call his own.

Boyer, who quit after criticizing Richards and Braves manager Luman Harris, said, "I'm not earning any money now, but I'm happier than I've been in a long time since I left the Braves."

The 33-year-old baseball player was to tee off today in a pro-am golf tournament at a plush links in Palm Beach. But Boyer also got in few more swings at the Braves Tuesday.

"This whole thing started with an interview in New York in which I spoke my mind about the organization," said Boyer, a veteran of some 15 years in professional baseball.

"That led to my personal feelings about Paul Richards and Luman Harris," said Boyer.

He said Harris imposed a curfew that turned into "a joke" because, Boyer said, "Harris waits until he gets one guy he's after and chews him out."

He charged there was a lack of training in fundamentals at Atlanta where the Braves occupy fourth place in the Western Division of the National League.

Unless a team picks up Boyer on a $20,000 waiver by Wednesday midnight he becomes a free agent which he says he wants to be.

"I'm waiting for that freedom ticket," Boyer said.

Maddox Waits In The Dark, Then Is Spark For Washington Rally

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The lights started going out in Washington's RFK Stadium at just about the time Elliot Maddox started coming on. Maddox, on the bench at the start of the game when all the electricity was going full blast, came in as a pinch hitter in the sixth inning, delivered a single and remained in the lineup. Then, after the game had been delayed 32 minutes by a power failure, Maddox produced some of his own with a three-run homer in the bottom of the seventh that provided Washington's 6-5 victory over California. Elsewhere in the American League Tuesday, Oakland's Vida Blue won his 11th game, beating New York 5-2, Kansas City downed Boston 4-2, Minnesota trimmed Detroit 3-1 and Milwaukee defeated Cleveland 5-3. Baltimore and Chicago had the day off. In the National League, Pittsburgh shut out St. Louis 9-0, Houston nipped Atlanta 7-6, the New York Mets shaded San Francisco 5-4 and Montreal topped Los Angeles 5-2. No other games were scheduled. Maddox, one of the bodies involved in the Denny McLain trade last winter, was on the bench strictly on merit. He had just a dozen hits all year before Tuesday night. The homer was his first of the year, increased his RBI total to eight and lifted his batting average to .177. The Senators were leading 3-2 when half of the stadium lights went out while California was batting in the top of the seventh. The game was delayed 32 minutes because of the failure in the Stadium's high voltage circuit breaker. Maddox' homer increased Washington's lead to 6-2, giving the Senators enough of a cushion to withstand California's three-run rally in the eighth. Blue retired 17 consecutive New York batters and mowed down the Yankees to run his season's record to 11-2. After the Yanks nicked him for a run in the first, he didn't allow another base runner until the seventh.

In between, Reggie Jackson ripped a two-run homer and the A's took control of the game. Blue struck out six, increasing his total to 108 for 112 1-3 innings. All of his victories have been complete games. Kansas City tagged Boston with its third straight defeat and cut the Red Sox' first place edge in the American League East to one game over idle Baltimore. Amos Otis ripped his third homer in two days and Mike Hedlund limited the Sox to seven hits including George Scott's two-run homer in the ninth. Otis' two-run homer gave him six runs batted in in the Royals' three-game sweep of the Sox. Bases-loaded walks to Harmon Killebrew and Leo Cardenas in the eighth inning forced home the tie-breaking runs as Minnesota topped Detroit. Winner Jim Perry started the decisive rally with a single, only the fourth hit of Les Cain. An error and a walk to Rod Carew, loaded the bases and set the stage for the game-breaking walks to Killebrew and Cardenas. Johnny Briggs drove in three runs—two of them on a sixth inning homer that tied the score—to lead Milwaukee past Cleveland. Marty Pattin won his sixth, game, surviving a rocky start when the Indians reached him for three hits and a pair of runs in the first inning.

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Pittsburgh's swashbuckling pitchers have been leaving their mark on National League hitters... the Mark of Zero. "It's quite a feat," boasted Pittsburgh interim Manager Bill Virdon, referring to three straight shutouts and 30 consecutive scoreless innings by the Pirates' new-found strong-arm staff. It is quite a feat—for Pittsburgh. Before Dock Ellis silenced St. Louis 9-0 on three hits Tuesday night, the last time the Pirates put three shutouts together was in 1958 with Ron Kline, Vernon Law and Bob Friend. Before Ellis pitched his beauty, Bob Moose and Steve Blass spun consecutive shutouts over Chicago. The victory was the fifth straight for Ellis, who is "on the verge" of becoming one of the best pitchers in the majors, according to Virdon. The Houston Astros nipped the Atlanta Braves 7-6, the Montreal Expos downed the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2 and the New York Mets beat the San Francisco Giants 5-4 in the National League's other games Tuesday. American League: Milwaukee 5, Cleveland 3; Minnesota 3, Detroit 1; Washington 6, California 5; Kansas City 4, Boston 2 and Oakland 5, New York 2. Ellis didn't overpower the hot Cardinals as he halted their seven-game winning streak, but nevertheless had them under control. "You don't have to strike out anybody to win in this game," said Ellis, who struck out four as he won his seven game in 10 decisions. "I used to think I was a fast ball pitcher. No more. My ball is a moving ball. I'm relying more on the slider and starting to use a sinker even more." The sinker and the curve were right where they were supposed to be Tuesday night—low. And that's why the Birds kept battering the ball into the ground and why the Pirates came up with two double plays to make it easy for Ellis. Actually, it was all over in the first inning when Pittsburgh shelled the Cardinals' Chris Zachary from the hill with a five-run binge capped by Ellis' two-run single. Cesar Cedeno and Jesus Alou each got four hits and knocked in three runs apiece to pace Houston over struggling Atlanta, which lost its 11th in 13 games. Cedeno blasted his third homer of the year over the center field fence in the third with Wade Blasingame aboard. Cedeno, hitting .196, doubled home Joe Morgan from first in the seventh and boosted his average 20 points to .216 with the three-hit night. Alou sent the Astros in front 3-2 in the third with a single and knocked in two more with a double in the fifth. Cedeno's performance was his second hot game in a row. He was 3-for-4 against Cincinnati Monday, after struggling at .180 for most of the year. A throwing error by third baseman Bobby Valentine permitted Montreal to score two unearned runs in a three-run second inning and the Expos made them stand up for their victory over Los Angeles that snapped a six-game spin. The Dodgers' Willie Davis continued his hot streak, batting safely in his 24th straight game with a fifth-inning single. Ed Kranepool highlighted a three-run second inning with a run-scoring double and Cleon Jones capped a two-run fifth with an RBI double in the New York success.

Nicklaus Rates As Top Atlanta Choice

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
ATLANTA (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, easily the dominant figure in the game, ranked as a strong favorite today for the first prize in the $125,000 Atlanta Golf Classic. Nicklaus, who has made only nine previous starts this year, has been out of action the last three weeks and is making his last competitive appearance before the United States Open in Ardmore, Pa., June 17-20. Even with his restricted schedule, Nicklaus easily ranks as the premier performer for the season. He's the only three-time winner, is the leading money winner with more than $131,000 and has taken down the first prize in his last two starts—the rich Tournament of Champions and the Byron Nelson Classic.

The powerful, 31-year-old superstar, who has spent most of the last three weeks coaching his son's Little League baseball team in Florida, wasn't scheduled to arrive until today. Lee Trevino, another top contender in the 72-hole chase that begins Thursday on the hill, 6,883-yard, par-72 Atlanta Country Club course, also was scheduled for a late arrival. Trevino, who scored his second victory of the season last week with an easy triumph in the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic, is the No. 2 money winner of the season with more than $115,000 and appears to be at the top of his game. He's finished fourth or better seven times this season and, more importantly, has played steadily for several weeks. "Mine is pretty much a mechanical game," the colorful Mexican-American said. "I can't play well if I don't play all the time. I've got to stay at it to do any good."

Some other top challengers include South African Gary Player, England's Tony Jacklin, the U.S. Open title-holder who is making his first start in five weeks, Masters king Charles Coody, defending champion Tommy Aaron and such two-time winners this season as J.C. Snead and Tom Shaw. Also on hand are always-dangerous Frank Beard and Dave Hill, the controversial player who last week filed a $1 million damage suit against the PGA and the Tournament Players Division. Hill, who filed the suit after paying a $500 fine for "conduct unbecoming a professional golfer" did not appear before the TPD Policy Board at that group's regularly-scheduled meeting Tuesday. Among the missing in the 150-man field are Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and $100,000 winner Miller Barber.

Summer Baseball

Tickets for the East Carolina University summer baseball league are still on sale, with additional locations available for purchasing them. The tickets, $10 for individuals and $15 for a family, afford 18 games during the summer at Harrington Field. The tickets may be purchased at the Minges Coliseum Box office, at Hodges Hardware, Coffman's, Shoney's, and Sheller's 76 Station. Tickets may also be purchased at Harrington Field between 5 p.m. and dark each evening.

Harris followed with another hit, scoring Marand with the final run of the inning and a 5-1 lead. Maranatha went on to add four in the third, four in the fourth and three in the fifth. Trinity picked up one each in the fifth and sixth innings. Meadowbrook broke open a scoreless game in the third inning with three runs. Dwight Foster doubled and Gordon Bunting reached on an error. John Hubert doubled, and scored on Linwood Owens doubled to make it 3-0. Meadowbrook then added one in the fourth, five in the sixth and one in the seventh.

run in the first, then scored four more in the second to move ahead for good. In the second, Mills reached on an error and Wood singled. Taylor also got a hit and Marand got a hit. Harris followed with another hit, scoring Marand with the final run of the inning and a 5-1 lead. Maranatha went on to add four in the third, four in the fourth and three in the fifth. Trinity picked up one each in the fifth and sixth innings. Meadowbrook broke open a scoreless game in the third inning with three runs. Dwight Foster doubled and Gordon Bunting reached on an error. John Hubert doubled, and scored on Linwood Owens doubled to make it 3-0. Meadowbrook then added one in the fourth, five in the sixth and one in the seventh.

He's Off At The Clonk Of The Bat

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Modern technology is taking a swing at the old trademark of the baseball game—the crack of the bat. A new aluminum bat is making a metallic clang when it connects with a baseball in some Little League parks and—at least in practice—on some college diamonds. Proponents of the aluminum bats turn a deaf ear to the clang and point out that aluminum bats will not break. But officials at Hillerich and Bradsby—bat manufacturers here since 1884—are convinced that wooden bats are not about to go out of style, at least not in the major leagues. "We can make bats exactly the way a major leaguer wants them," says Jack McGrath, vice president for advertising.

"But the cost of producing aluminum bats, setting up dies for all of those infinite number of models, would be prohibitive. "I can't fathom how a baseball player—sensitive to the feel and shape of wood—could be regimented into one or just a few metal models." Most aluminum bats are 34 inches and 39 to 42 ounces. Backers of the aluminum bat say it is far more economical. UCLA coach Art Reichle estimates his team breaks more than 40 dozen bats a season. The aluminum bat—though it costs $15, compared to $3 for a wooden bat—is reputedly unbreakable, thus making it cheaper over the long run. Hillerich and Bradsby is making some of the brightly-colored aluminum bats but McGrath says, "You can't mention our aluminum bat production in the same breath with our wood." McGrath says the firm is "trying to keep an open mind about the new aluminum bats." But the firm's focus has always been on wood since the time it was making wooden lawn bowling equipment more than a century ago.

Some other top challengers include South African Gary Player, England's Tony Jacklin, the U.S. Open title-holder who is making his first start in five weeks, Masters king Charles Coody, defending champion Tommy Aaron and such two-time winners this season as J.C. Snead and Tom Shaw. Also on hand are always-dangerous Frank Beard and Dave Hill, the controversial player who last week filed a $1 million damage suit against the PGA and the Tournament Players Division. Hill, who filed the suit after paying a $500 fine for "conduct unbecoming a professional golfer" did not appear before the TPD Policy Board at that group's regularly-scheduled meeting Tuesday. Among the missing in the 150-man field are Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper and $100,000 winner Miller Barber.

Ali, Ellis Set Fight

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Four years ago Muhammad Ali was heavyweight champion of the world and Jimmy Ellis was his sparring partner. When the title was taken away from Ali for his refusal to accept military service, Ellis battled his way to the World Boxing Association's version of the crown—before losing it to current champ Joe Frazier. Today the two former champs from Louisville, Ky., both aiming for another shot at Frazier, will announce that they'll go against each other first, reportedly in a closed-circuit bout July 26 at the Houston Astrodome. A spokesman for Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., said today's noon news conference, with Ali and Ellis present, would finalize "a major fight," but declined to give details. Last Thursday, however, Ali jumped the gun by saying he would meet Ellis in seven weeks. Arum has been involved in the closed-circuit televising of several heavyweight championship bouts and Top Rank handled the Ali-Oscar Bonavena fight last Dec. 7 at Madison Square Garden.

Famed Theologian Rev. Reinhold Niebuhr, 78, Dies

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The Rev. Reinhold Niebuhr, famed Protestant theologian and crusader for social change who was considered one of the greatest Christian thinkers the United States has produced, is dead at 78.

He died Tuesday night at his summer home after a long illness. Dr. Niebuhr taught that religious faith is "basically a trust that life, however difficult and strange, has ultimate meaning."

He intertwined his theology with a hard realism and a belief that Christian morality should be manifest in social and political action.

Dr. Niebuhr participated in the conference that led to founding of the World Council of Churches, was among the founders of Americans for Democratic Action, and influenced a whole succession of church leaders by his labors for social betterment.

He was an adviser to numerous national and international political figures, and was active in politics first as a member of the Socialist party and later as vice chairman of the Liberal party in New York.

"The whole art of politics consists in directing rationally the irrationalities of men," he said.

A Lutheran in background, Dr. Niebuhr retired from Union Theological Seminary in 1960 after 32 years on the faculty, but continued his writings that included more than 20 books.

In discussing subjects that ranged from race relations to trade unionism to foreign affairs, he did not attempt to offer neat solutions but stressed "Christian realism."

He defined the concept as a recognition that in the complexities of modern life, clear-cut "right" decision become ever more difficult and sometimes impossible, requiring instead that approximate, rather than absolute, answers be obtained by public questions.

Here, he argued, public morality differed from private morality. "Individuals are never as immoral as the social situations in which they are involved and which they symbolize, since collective groups don't have the individual's capacity for self transcendence or sensitivity to needs of others."

Men cannot build a perfect order, he emphasized, but neither can they escape responsibility for striving at its approximations, recognizing them always as only that.

It was said that he brought "original sin" back into fashion. He saw it, however, in terms not just of individual self-adoration, but in the whole web of collective forces that tend to become objects of idolatry, whether nationalism, scientism, pleasure cults, wealth or utopian social schemes.

"The most subtle evil," he said, is "always a good that pretends to be better than it is."

He disputed the teachings of evangelist Billy Graham and the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale's emphasis on the power of positive thinking. Their "wholly individualist conceptions of sin," he said, were "almost completely irrelevant" to the problems of the nuclear age.

He believed that the remedy for social ills was not religious conversion but the Christian realism by which man sought to change his environment as best he could.

The son of a German immigrant pastor, Dr. Niebuhr was born June 21, 1892, at Wright

City, Mo. He was educated at Elmhurst Ill. College, Eden Theological Seminary near St. Louis, and Yale Divinity School, which awarded him a bachelor's degree in 1914 and a master's degree a year later.

He was ordained in 1915 in the Evangelical Synod of North America, originally a German Lutheran Church and now part of the United Church of Christ, and became pastor of Bethel Evangelical church in Detroit.

He was there until he went to Union Theological Seminary in 1928, and later credited his experiences as a pastor to workers at the Ford Motor Co. with influencing his attitudes.

"Mr. Ford typified for my rather immature social imagination all that was wrong with American capitalism," he wrote. "I became a Socialist in this reaction. I became a Socialist in theory long before I enrolled in the Socialist party and before I had read anything by Karl Marx."

He was never an advocate of class struggle, however, and turned from socialism in the 1930s, breaking with it on religious, ethical and realistic grounds. He said it would be idolatry to suggest that human beings could create the Kingdom of God on earth.

He was a pacifist briefly in his early years, but helped mobilize American church support for the war against Hitlerism and was a major spokes-

In addition to his wife of 40 years, the former Ursula Koppel-Crompton, he leaves a son, Christopher Robert of Albany, N.Y., and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Sifton of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Hundreds Of Colleges Adapt To Cries For Change

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
AP Education Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of the nation's colleges are turning in their raccoon-coat curriculums for the independent study and accelerated degree programs demanded by today's students.

A nationwide survey showed the rigid time requirements and required courses of yesterday's generation are disappearing—and students are responsible for much of the transformation.

"We are not buying everything the student says but are making a serious attempt to make education more meaningful, particularly the bright student," said The Rev. Robert Mahon, dean of Catholic University's summer school.

The "faculty often was insensitive to trends of the time and didn't anticipate need," he said. "The push had to come from the bottom up."

Still, some faculty members are questioning old curriculum patterns. Maurice A. Crane, humanities professor at Michigan State, said in a recent speech a highly specialized undergraduate education is a disservice to students in the marketplace.

"Some of those tens of thousands of unemployed Ph.D.s in aerospace technology—specialized, like the dodo bird, into exinction—were trained by us," Crane said. "We now know how it feels to resemble the buggywhip factory in the comic strips, an efficient organization turning out fine products that nobody seems to want."

Rigid requirements for a bachelor's degree are disappearing. New College in Sarasota, Fla., gives students a major voice in shaping their education and graduates are finding they're welcome at the nation's most prestigious graduate and professional schools.

Calling for "important changes across the spectrum of undergraduate education," a 21-member commission of New York University faculty, administrators and students recently recommended:

—A bachelor's program allowing students to routinely earn degrees in three years and a decelerated program permitting others to take time out for work and travel and pick up a degree at the end of six years.

—Programs to allow students to do up to a quarter of their work through independent study.

—Establishment of a so-called open college for alternative approaches to undergraduate education that do not fit in with the university's existing schools.

At Harvard, Dean Ernest R.

May said he plans a year-long study to assess the academic, social and psychological effects resulting from changing the bachelor's program from four to three years.

"There is sentiment, from students, faculty members and a recent Carnegie Commission report, in favor of a three-year norm," he said.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology's special commission of faculty and students this year recommended MIT "redirect some of its education and research objectives."

The report called for revamping freshman and sophomore years "to provide a more coherent intellectual foundation for professional education" and "to offer students opportunities more appropriate to their individual needs and talents."

Dr. B. Lamar Johnson, professor of higher education at UCLA, is a member of a committee of faculty, students, laymen and administrators appointed to seek innovative solutions of pressing campus problems.

"If a student feels that he already knows what a required course aims to do, he should be allowed to take a test. If he passes it, he will get credit for the course," he suggested at a recent meeting.

In California, Glenn S. Dumke, chancellor of California's state colleges, has ordered a study that will seek "ways of permitting higher education requirements to be met outside of typical campus settings."

Kittrell, a small predominantly black two-year college in North Carolina, began reorganizing its academic curriculum in 1968 in a "systems approach" to instruction.

"Under the systems approach," said school president Larnie G. Horton, "responsibility for causing learning is placed squarely on the shoulders of the teacher."

A total of 135 four-year schools have inaugurated occupational programs that require less than four years, according to Allan W. Ostar, executive director of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

The reason, he said, is that "half of all jobs opening up in the 1970s will require training beyond high school but less than a four-year degree."

Industry Brings A New Life To Mexican Indians

By JAMES R. CAMPBELL
PASTEJE, Mexico (UPI)—
Donaciano Diaz seemed bound for life to the grudging soil of Pasteje, a valley 8,400 feet high in the Sierra Madres that yielded only $40 a year for the average family of six.

With only a third grade education, he could look toward the mountains with scant hope of a better life beyond. Few passed that way except Pasteje's famous brave bulls, bound for the bull ring in Mexico City.

Eight years ago change came across the mountains to Diaz and thousands of others like him. Today the valley floor hums with the work of 1,650 Indians native to Pasteje, making everything from sophisticated electrical equipment to toilet seats in six manufacturing plants. Another plant, to produce airplanes, is nearing completion.

What has changed Pasteje and the lives of its people is a triumph of private enterprise with industrialist Alejo Peralta as its architect. Peralta, whose 27-year-old son Ernesto runs the operation, claims it to be "the only undertaking of its kind in Mexico, perhaps in Latin America."

For Donaciano Diaz, the change has been great. He now is in charge of 600 miles of intricate wiring in one of the plants and earns more in a week than he once could make in a year.

"There is an Indian who understands every bit of wiring in that console," Peralta said of Diaz. "Six years ago he was raising crops."

For the airplane production venture Peralta's Aeronautica Agricola Mexicana, a part of his parent Industrias Unidas, S.A., bought the type design, tooling and all production materials for the Quail and Sparrow Commander aircraft from North American Rockwell in April. The American company, owns 30 per cent of Aeronautica Agricola Mexicana.

The first of the planes to be built here, for use in farming, is due to come off the assembly line in January, 1972. Of the 76 men who will work on the planes, 71 are natives of Pasteje. Key manufacturing positions are being filled by U.S. personnel experienced with the aircraft, to assure U.S. Federal Aviation Agency manufacturing standards are met. Jack Jansen, a former Wichita State football player who has been making the aircraft in Albany, Ga., will be in charge. Alejo Peralta, 54, who began with a 600-peso loan 37 years ago, bought the 6,000-acre bull ranch at Pasteje in 1963. His operations in Mexico City, less than 90 miles to the southeast, had little room for growth. Skilled labor was short.

At Pasteje, he found 52,000 persons living within a six-mile radius of the factory site. An aerial map was made, the houses numbered and a file started on the manpower of each family.

"The most gratifying thing about it has been seeing the way it has changed the lives," the elder Peralta said in an interview. "Many of these people spoke Mazuhua, an Indian dialect, instead of Spanish. They were barefoot. They worked about one month out of the year, two weeks planting corn or wheat and two weeks harvesting it."

"Seven years ago there was nothing for the people," his son, Ernesto said. "A whole family made only $40 a year. Now with two or three working they make $50 to $80 a week."

"But we are trying to give them a second income, raising cattle, and we are making it possible for them to spend the money for things they can use."

"They can buy a television set, or materials to build a home for one day's pay a week," he said. "About 55 per cent now have television. We give them all the technical know-how to build a house and they can build a three-bedroom home for about 9,800 pesos, or $800 or so U.S. We buy things like mattresses in bulk, so they can get them very cheap."

There are two doctors and a nurse, and medical care is free.

"We do not have any help from the government," young Peralta said. "In fact, they give us the best help—they leave us alone."

Concert Set Saturday 3

A commencement concert, open to the public, is scheduled as part of the sixth annual commencement exercises for graduates of the North Carolina School of the Arts (NCSA) in Winston-Salem on Saturday, at 6:30 p.m.

This year, 91 high school and 34 college seniors are receiving diplomas from NCSA, North Carolina's unique school that is designed to give special training to talented young people from junior high through college level.

For the Saturday concert, graduating senior John Williams, baritone, will present a group of songs. He will be accompanied by another senior, Margot Garrett, piano. Other attractions will include students from the School of Dance presenting "Screenplay" choreographed by Job Sanders. Scenes from two drama productions, "John Brown's Body" and "The Sign in Sidney Brustein's Window" will be featured, and the NCSA String Ensemble will play "Divertimento K136" by Mozart.

Joseph Papp, founder and producer of the New York Shakespeare Festival Public Theater, will be the major commencement speaker.

Dog's Life Is One Long Pull

By CHARLIE BAROUH

rather than barrel-chested. The truck carrying the dogs and mushers lined a closed-off street in downtown Anchorage. The city was in the midst of the 1971 Fur Rendezvous and the race was the highlight. People filled the street, trying to get closer looks at the Huskies.

The people seemed almost as afraid of the dogs as the dogs of them. But the Huskies held a fascination for the people, the people none for the dogs.

Handlers say racing Huskies, contrary to common belief, are not savage. One handler said they usually were gentle, tending to be almost timid. But they have led strange lives.

They rarely are free from restraints once they are being trained. They are in harness, or enclosed in confinement. Handlers work with them every day to see which is a born lead dog, which runs best side, which on the left.

Freedom is alien to them, and frightening. And the racing Husky has lived in a closed community most of his life. He rarely meets a dog from outside that community.

Jim Henderer, the race starter, recalled what happened to one dog, a free stranger, who got in a racing team's way. "It was about four years ago," he recalled. "This poodle leapt out of a woman's arms in front of a team. The lead dog caught it up and tossed it back. Each dog did the same until all the woman had left was a ball of fur.

"But these dogs are always in chains," he added. "They're never loose. They're just unused to anything loose."

They will run their hearts out in the frenzy of a race. It is not uncommon for a spent dog to come back out of the wilderness riding exhausted in the sled basket.

That same dog probably will race again the next day.

Worry Clinic Maladjusted In Germ Phobia

Anita's phobia was almost driving her devoted husband berserk. If you have read this column for years, you can probably make a shrewd diagnosis of how her microphobia evolved. Check your own guess against my explanation below. And be sure all newlyweds have a copy of that sex booklet!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.
Case Q-569: Anita F., aged 24, has a germ phobia. "Dr. Crane," her worried husband began, "we have been married only a year. "But during the last few months, Anita has become terrified about germs. "She doesn't even want me to bring guests home, lest they pollute the arms of our chairs with bacteria.

"In fact, she has almost ruined our upholstery by constantly wiping everything with Lysol or rubbing alcohol! "When I get home at night, she even makes me hang my coat in the garage and also take off my shoes. "Her life is miserable, as she admits, and mine is worse, so what is wrong with Anita?"

MICROPHOBIA
Abnormal dread of disease germs is called microphobia. If often results from a sense of sexual guilt.

In brief, I'll digest a long interview with Anita in the next few paragraphs. As a child, Anita had indulged in auto eroticism (masturbation). Her mother discovered this and threatened Anita with possible insanity as well as infection with venereal disease.

So Anita was scared into stopping this rather common sex practice of children. Thereafter, she sublimated her sexual energy by tennis playing and became the Country Club woman's champion thereat.

Then she married and devoted her time to being a housewife. But after a few months, she began to feel frustrated in the erotic realm. For her husband had never seen the booklet below, nor had he been instructed by a physician in how to completely satisfy his wife's boudoir hunger.

So Anita had her eroticism whetted but was left tense and jittery. Unbeknown to her husband, she finally resorted to auto eroticism to gain relief. But this immediately resurrected her mother's earlier taboo of such self sexual stimulation.

Which subconsciously aroused the dread of infection by venereal germs (microphobia). That's when Anita began to douse the upholstery with lysol and alcohol, to disinfect it. And the greater became her unsatisfied erotic hunger the more she resorted to auto eroticism.

Then she'd grow almost fanatical in her zeal to wipe off any possible germs with Lysol and alcohol. The solution was easy, namely, to show her when and why her microphobia developed. Then instruct her young husband in the proper marital technique for preventing her jitters and tension that had been following marital relations. So send for the booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped return envelope, plus 20 cents.

Divorce starts in the bedroom. But so do hosts of neurotic actions, phobias, obsessions and even insanity.

For sexual maladjustments are the chief support of psychiatrists! (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

This is a bit unorthodox with only four trumps, but there is compensation in the form of a strong, establishable side suit.

West opened the king of spades, and seeing no reason to shift the attack, he continued with the queen and ace, South ruffing the third round with dummy's deuce of hearts. The fate of the contract at

Favorable

RALEIGH (AP) — A Senate state policies committee has given a favorable report to a bill that would broaden absentee voting privileges by extending them to primaries and another bill aimed at keeping precinct workers 75 feet away from the polls.

The bill to allow absentee voting in primaries, sponsored by Sen. Hargrove Skipper Bowles, D-Gulfport, is opposed by the state Board of Elections because of the administrative problems it would create.

The second bill would prohibit loitering and electioneering within 75 feet of the entrance of any building housing a polling place. It was sponsored by Rep. Worth Gentry, D-Stokes.

Open House By Connally, Mills Collide Naval Reserve Over Revenue-Sharing

The Naval Reserve Training Facility in Washington, N.C. commanded by LCDR James T. Cheatham III of Greenville, will hold open house activities for the public on June 12 from 11-2 p.m. According to Reserve Unit personnel, the purpose of the event is to familiarize local communities with the Naval Reserve program. They noted that visitors will have an opportunity to observe the training progress and duties of the drilling Reservists.

The program scheduled for the open house includes a concert by the Second Marine Air Wing Band of Cherry Point, a movie entitled, "Civilian Sailor—The Story of the Naval Reserve," displays, tours of the facility, and demonstrations. Displays, the Reservists pointed out, will include first aid using a mannequin to point out pressure points, setting splints, detecting wounds and stopping bleeding. The facility's Combat Information Center will be manned during the activities and explanations will be given about the purpose of Navy radar and how it is used to detect and track surface and air contacts. In addition, the Navy's electrostatic kit and rotating electrical demonstration kit will be operating and an explanation given of their use.

Visitors will also have an opportunity to hear a briefing on the purpose and history of the Navy's Operational Breathing Apparatus and the gas mask. The equipment is used aboard ships during fires and nuclear biological and chemical warfare exercises.

Currently, there are 85 enlisted men and seven officers drilling at the facility, located west of Washington on the Pactolus Highway.

By EDMUND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, two of Washington's strongest personalities, collided today as Congress took up in earnest President Nixon's general revenue-sharing plan.

Connally went before the House Ways and Means Committee headed by Mills and asked Congress to put politics aside and approve Nixon's proposal to distribute without strings $5 billion in federal tax collections to states and localities.

Mills said with uncharacteristic bluntness he doesn't expect the panel to let the administration's prime fiscal measure through.

"Why should we be afraid of change?" Connally said in his prepared testimony. "The present system of federal aid to states and localities clearly is not meeting our needs. It is not likely to do so in its present form."

"I urge you to take that positive nonpartisan action that can make revenue sharing a reality," said Connally, former Texas governor and the only Democrat in the Nixon cabinet.

The secretary, the administration's only witness on the revenue-sharing bill, said suggested alternatives, ranging from tax credits to federal assumption of welfare costs, are all inferior to Nixon's plans.

And he launched directly into one of Mills' main objections, that the plan would separate the government's power to spend and power to tax.

Connally said if Congress approves revenue sharing, it will in effect be making the spending decision with accountability for the funds extended to state and local governments.

Connally said revenue to share will come from deficit spending, for now, because the economy needs an expansionary budget.

Will revenue sharing expand federal control over state and local governments? "I don't think so," Connally said. "The present system already involves extensive federal influence."

Connally said formulas for distributing funds were worked out carefully, but added: "Our proposal doesn't pretend to have all the answers ..."

Are state and local officials apt to misuse federal money since there are no controls over it? "The closer officials are to the people the more responsible they are to the people," he said.

Ervin Urges Postponing

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina Sen. Sam Ervin warned Tuesday that a proposal by Gov. Bob Scott to place regents over the state's universities is "drastic" and may have "unhappy consequences for the future of higher education" in North Carolina.

Ervin urged the General Assembly to postpone action on the matter until "its members and the people of our state have adequate time to study them and their implications in a calm and deliberate atmosphere."

The veteran Democrat said Scott's proposal would result in "destruction" of the consolidated University of North Carolina.

He said he usually didn't comment on state issues, but he felt compelled to break that rule because of the importance of the university question. Ervin asked if the recommendations would do what they are supposed to do: stop individual schools from going directly to the legislature.

Holshouser Is Studying Race

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) - North Carolina Republican Chairman Jim Holshouser said today he expects to announce early in the fall whether he will seek the Republican nomination for governor in 1972.

Holshouser, 36, state representative from Watauga County, said it would take a minimum of at least $1 million to wage a vigorous campaign for the governorship. "You never know that the money is all there," he said. "It has to be generated by a fund-raising campaign."

"Let me say," he added, "that I wouldn't enter the race unless I was convinced I could win."

At least three other Republican leaders have been mentioned in speculation as possible candidates for the party nomination. They are former Republican Congressman Jim Gardner of Rocky Mount, U.S. Rep. James Broyhill of Lenoir and U.S. Rep. Wilmer Mizell of Winston-Salem, a former major league baseball pitcher.

Some Republicans say Gardner is so involved in business interests that he will not seek the governorship. Broyhill said some weeks ago that if he runs for any office other than Congress it will be for the U.S. Senate.

Holshouser, state Republican chairman since 1966, said he has discussed with his wife "the family commitment" necessary if he should seek the governorship.

"She's a veteran campaigner and realizes the hard work that will be involved for more than a year. It would mean virtually giving up my law practice and staying on the campaign trail."

Holshouser, a graduate of Davidson, said "there is considerable prestige to being governor, but I don't think this should be the primary desire for any candidate to seek the nomination."

"The governor's office," he added, "is where much of the future of the state lies."

Holshouser, serving his fourth legislative term, received his law degree from the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. He has been practicing law at Boone since 1960.

N.C. Residency Law Is Argued

GREENSBORO (AP) - Three federal judges heard opposing arguments Tuesday on the North Carolina law that requires a year's residency in the state before a person can vote in local elections.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Andrews of Chapel Hill challenged the law in U.S. District Court in Greensboro two months ago. Judge Edwin M. Stanley let them cast sealed ballots in two elections last month in the community.

Stanley, District Judge Eugene A. Gordon and 4th Circuit Court of Appeals Judge J. Braxton Craven considered the case Tuesday.

Police Curb On Loiterers Is Limited

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court has severely limited the power of police to clear the streets of "annoying" or "suspicious" persons.

In two key decisions, one Tuesday the other a week ago, the court said laws used to make arrests are invalid unless rewritten to contain "ascertainable standards."

Since vagrancy and disorderly-conduct laws usually speak in general terms, the rulings have nationwide implications. Philosophically, they also represent a hesitation in the court's drift toward conservatism under Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

A Cincinnati ordinance struck down by a 5-3 vote Tuesday had made it a crime for three or more people to assemble on the sidewalks "and there conduct themselves in a manner annoying to persons passing by."

Justice Potter Stewart, heading the five-man majority, said the right to assemble in public for social or political purposes cannot be suspended simply because a policeman or someone else considers the gathering annoying.

"Such a prohibition, in addition," said Stewart, "contains an obvious invitation to discriminatory enforcement against those whose association together is 'annoying' because of their ideas, their lifestyle or their physical appearance is resented by the majority of their fellow citizens."

Last week, the justices unanimously reversed the conviction of a Negro in Euclid, Ohio, who had been arrested when he dropped off a black woman at an all-white apartment complex early one morning and then parked on the street where he was observed by an off-duty policeman talking on a car telephone.

Though the decision did not strike down the Euclid "suspicious-persons" ordinance, the court cautioned the states that such laws must contain "ascertainable standards of guilt" to be constitutional.

Similarly, in the Cincinnati ruling, where the court reversed the convictions of an anti-war protester and four union pickets, Stewart said the ordinance was unconstitutional because it subjects the exercise of the right of assembly to an unascertainable standard.

By the same token, the justice pointed out in a footnote, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry and others could have been arrested on the streets of Williamsburg, Va., in 1774 for posing an annoyance to the colonial governor of Virginia and his constables.

Man Of Voices Likes Anonymity

NEW YORK (AP) - When Allen Swift, called the man of a thousand voices, auditions for a radio or TV commercial he usually gets the job.

Swift is in such demand that he picks his roles. He can be heard on commercials for many competing products and refuses to sign with any one sponsor. He also shies away from autographs.
