Dunn Named Member Of School Board

HENRY DUNN, Jr.

Henry Dunn, Jr., Vehicle Operations and Supply Officer with the Main Post Office in Greenville, was last night unanimously appointed to the Greenville City School Board of Education to replace outgoing member Louis Gaylord, Jr.

Dunn, a native of the Ballard Cross Road area of Pitt County, is a graduate of Bell Arthur High School and attended East Carolina University.

His wife is the former Pennie Johnston of the Pactolus area of Pitt County. The Dunns have four children, Gerald, Judy, Sharlene and Jamie.

Dunn has been active for a number of years with the North Carolina Association for Retarded Children. He is currently president of the association, which played an important role in getting bills passed by the General Assembly to provide funding for special Education classes. In his role as president, he serves as an advisor to Governor Bob Scott.

Dunn was also instrumental in fostering plans which led to the establishment of the Sheltered Workshop in Greenville. He is on the Board of Directors of the workshop.

A charter member of Ballards' Presbyterian Church, he is also a member of the Board of Ruling Elders and a teacher in the Adult Bible Class there.

During the Korean Conflict, Dunn served in the Navy for a period of four years, beginning in 1950. He is a member of the American Legion and the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Two other school board members, Harding Sugg and Dr. Badger Clark, were reappointed by the City Council. Sugg has completed one five year term, and Dr. Clark has served a term he was appointed to fill to complete a vacancy.

Mayor S. Eugene West, noting that a large number of names had been recieved by the City Council from interested citizens, said "I want to express my appreciation for the interest shown by the citizens of Greenville in the person to be appointed to fill this term. It indicates a deep interest in the school situation in Greenville."

Gaylord, who Dunn replaces, was not eligible for reappointment. He had served the permitted maxium of two five year terms on the school board.

Other appointments by the City Council last night were:

—Parking Authority — Charles Bissette reappointed for a second term.

—Board of Adjustments — Samuel R. Brooks and Charles Clark each reappointed for a second term.

—Recreation Commission — Mrs. Eleanor Hagans was appointed to fill the unexpired term of John Taylor, who as a City Councilman is no longer eligible to serve as a commission members. Mrs. Clay Burnette and Charles Pope were both reappointed for a second term.

Mayor S. Eugene West last night announced the mayor's list of appointments of Council members to various boards and organizations in Greenville. In this capacity, city councilmen serve as representatives in a liaison role, to the various boards. The mayor's appointments are:

Space Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has approved a $3.5 billion authorization for the U.S. space program, setting up the last two scheduled moon flights next year and development of a space shuttle system.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration measure was sent to the Senate Thursday on a 302 to 64 vote.

Attempts to trim $300 million for the Apollo 16 and 17 flights and $125 million for the space shuttle were defeated by voice votes.

Prices Up

..WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher prices for steel and other metals and a sharp jump for gasoline were major factors in pushing over-all wholesale prices up four-tenths of one per cent last month, the government said today.

"Continued strength in metal and metal products prices and a sharp upturn in the fuels indexes caused about 70 per cent of the total rise for industrials," said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The May increase pushed the government's Wholesale Price Index up to 113.8. This means wholesale goods worth $100 on the average in the 1967 base period cost $113.80 last month.

U.S. IS HELPING

NEW DELHI (AP) — The United States is supplying four Air Force C130 transport planes and crews to carry thousands of East Pakistani refugees from overcrowded camps along the border to camps in the interior of India, informed sources report.

Matches 9-Year High Of 6.2 Per Cent

Unemployment Is Up Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate moved back up in May to match a nine-year high of 6.2 per cent of the U.S. work force, the government said today.

Jobless rates rose especially for construction workers and sales workers and young women, and the number of longterm unemployed—27 weeks or more—climbed substantially, the Labor Department said.

The national jobless rate was up from 6.1 per cent in April, said the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The actual number of jobless Americans dropped 300,000 to a total of 4.4 million, but because it usually declines more than that in May the bureau figured it as a rise of 130,000 on a seasonal basis.

The bureau also reported that average earnings of some 45 million rank and file workers—more than half the nation's work force—rose two cents an hour to $3.40 and increased $1.41 per week to $125.46.

The jobless rate for women 20 to 24 years old continued its sharp climb of recent months, rising from 10.3 per cent in April to 11.5 per cent in May— the highest in more than a decade, the bureau said.

In a racial breakdown, the bureau said the unemployment rate for Negroes rose from 10.0 to 10.5 per cent, highest in nearly eight years and the rate for white workers edged up from 5.6 to 5.7 per cent for the highest in nearly 10 years.

The jobless rate for full time workers rose from 5.5 to 5.8 per cent, the report said.

"The average duration of joblessness lengthened in May, primarily reflecting a sizeable increase in very long-term unemployment. The number of persons unemployed 27 or more weeks rose by 150,000 over the month to 580,000, seasonally adjusted, the highest level since May 1963," the bureau said.

The average length of unemployment for all the jobless increased from 10.8 weeks to 11.5 weeks, it said.

The jobless rate for all men rose 4.4 to 4.5 per cent and totalled 1.9 million.

The rate for women remained unchanged at 6 per cent at a total of 1.5 million. The rate for teen-agers edged up from 17.2 to 17.3 per cent at a total of 981,000, the bureau said.

The number of persons working parttime because they cannot find full time jobs totalled 2.5 million, about the same as in April and matching last December's eight-year high, it said.

The nation's total civilian labor force rose 200.000 to 83 million, highest in history and nearly 300,000 above the previous high reached last January. Nearly half the May increase in the work force were adult men.

$14,000 As Compared With $1,800

Public Housing Revenue Tops Taxes

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A Housing Authority report on the total valuation of taxable property owned by the Housing Authority of Greenville led the scheduled agenda items at the June meeting of the City Council last night.

City Manager Harry Hagerty read a letter from A E Dubber, Executive Director of the Housing Authority which revealed that the property has a real value of $4,187,136. Under current laws the Housing Authority is required to pay the city ad valorem tax rate or a ten percent shelter rate, whichever is less.

Hagerty reported the city had received $14,000 in payments in lieu of taxes for the Housing Authority property using the ten percent shelter rate.

Mayor S. Eugene West commented that the $14,000 in lieu of taxes "is much more than the city was getting before these areas were demolished. It's also much better living conditions for the people concerned." The City manager said that $1,800 was approximately the amount previously received in taxes before public housing.

Following the city manager's report, Councilman Jerry Sutherland asked "to go on record about the style of this letter and the attitude Colonel Dubber took toward the former mayor. He might write letters like that in the Marine Corps, but not to the City Council," Sutherland remarked.

Sutherland and former Mayor Frank M. Wooten, Jr. had requested during the May 6 City Council meeting, that the information on the valuation of Housing Authority property be furnished the council.

Councilmen voted for the City of Greenville to be a participant in the Mid - East Economic Development Commission. A resolution was approved that the City of Greenville provide funds in the amount of $581. for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1971, as Greenville's part of operating expenses. Mayor S. Eugene West is to be the city's representative to the Mid - East Economic Development Commission.

Approval was voted to furnish the Greenville Art Center the second allocation of $1,500 of the $3,000 appropriated to the center for the fiscal year 1970-71. This is one of several appropriations with a stipulation that the appropriation be made contingent on availability of funds.

An amendment to Ordinance Number 358, the one dealing with prohibition of consumption of alcoholic beverages on public property was enacted. The amendment defines legal standards applicable to alcohol in various types of drinks, a point which had not been clarified in the original ordinance.

Councilmen approved a resolution that permits City Manager Harry Hagerty to proceed with negotiations with the firm of Kimley - Horn and Associates. The engineering firm has a contract for preparing an application for federal grant to make a detailed study of the feasibility of a public bus transportation to serve Greenville and East Carolina University. Earlier, the City Council had set a limit of $1,200 as the city's share of cost of such a study. With the passing of the resolution authorizing further negotiations, the city manager can now inform the engineering firm to proceed with the application for federal assistance in the study.

A public hearing on June 24 was set for David A. Evans request to rezone an 18 acre portion of the 60 acre proposed shopping center area at the intersection of U.S. 264 by-pass and U.S. 264 business. Also set for public hearing is an amendment to the Airport Zoning Ordinance relative to height limits.

Worsley, Farley and Prescott, Inc., was retained to audit the city accounts for the period July 1, 1970 to June 30, 1971.

Other actions taken by Councilmen were the granting of a request by Roscoe C. Norfleet to purchase a pool table permit for two pool tables at 503 Dickinson Avenue; the refunding of a privilege license to Cecil A. Heath of Sumrell's Restaurant, a wine permit which the operator does not intend to use; and the approval of the annual list of tax releases. Most of the tax release list consisted of taxes listed in error or errors resulting from computers.

In items not listed on the agenda, councilmen approved for a one year period a request by Mrs. Almeta McCoy for the placement of a mobile home on 1306 S. Pitt Street between 13th and 14th Streets.

On the matter of annexation, City Planner Dillon Watson told the councilmen that the Planning and Zoning Commission was compiling statistics and would hold its own public hearing prior to presenting final recommendations to the City Council.

Watson noted the public hearing would probably be held in July or August.

NATO Sets Special Meeting On Mutual Troop Cuts Policy

LISBON (AP) — All the members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization except France decided today to hold a special meeting this year to discuss how to deal with the Soviet Union on mutual troop cuts in Europe.

The United States and its allies will send the No. 2 men in their foreign ministries to the session. The proposal was pressed by Secretary of State William P. Rogers at the NATO meeting ending later today.

The 14 allies may appoint one or more representatives to explore ideas with the Soviets. This representation would report to the North Atlantic Council—which includes France.

The arrangement emerged from the two-day meeting of Rogers and his fellow foreign ministers, including Maurice Schumann of France.

All the allies, including France, agreed that when a settlement has been reached with Moscow on the future of Berlin, there can be a general exploration of a broader conference on European security.

The Soviet Union has pressed for such a conference, to deal with trade and scientific cooperation as well as military questions.

The ministers noted with satisfaction that negotiations on Berlin have gone into a more active phase and some progress has been reached before they are due to meet again in December in Brussels.

This summary of the two-day meeting in Lisbon's Ajuda Palace was given to reporters by Foreign Minister Walter Scheel of West Germany in advance of the ministers' formal statement.

He said they also recognized that an agreement between the two German states—West Germany and Communist East Germany—on how to get along with one another would be a contribution to improving the international climate in Europe.

ARVN Acknowledges Heavy Cambodia Losses

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — High-ranking South Vietnamese field commanders today acknowledged heavy losses at the Cambodian town of Snuol and said they have switched to mobile tactics in cross-border operations.

One reason cited by a South Vietnamese general is the loss of backup U.S. ground forces. He indicated the South Vietnamese would continue to rely heavily on full U.S. air support for some time to come.

The South Vietnamese officers briefed newsmen on Cambodian operations but specified that their names could not be disclosed.

They said Saigon's Task Force 8, which retreated from Snuol last Monday, suffered 300 killed, wounded or missing, but some of its 74 missing have begun straggling back across the border. The force is no longer effective for combat, and it will take about a month to rebuild it, one general said.

Two other task forces numbering about 3,000 men have been diverted from another operation in Cambodia 60 miles away to protect the border south of Snuol and 80 miles north of Saigon.

One South Vietnamese general said he would not promise to destroy the three enemy divisions in that part of eastern Cambodia or their bases, but he would "reduce their potential and try to do the best to cut off their infiltration into South Vietnam."

Field commanders said the withdrawal in the past year of two U.S. divisions from the 3rd Military region, the 11 provinces around Saigon, had forced the South Vietnamese troops to provide their own highway security on the Vietnamese side of the border for their supply lines into Cambodia.

"This mission of 10 men is now reduced to five," said a South Vietnamese general. "I feel some difficulties."

While conceding serious losses at Snuol, the general claimed South Vietnamese troops and U.S. aircraft wiped out more than 1,000 enemy troops, the equivalent of a regiment. He said four North Vietnamese regiments had moved on Snuol and would have annihilated Task Force 8 if it had not pulled back.

Field commanders reported, meanwhile, that 63 Khmer Rouge, the Communist-led Cambodian troops, surrendered at a South Vietnamese base near the Cambodian town of Krek and handed over 46 weapons.

Unwanted By North Viets

ABOARD U.S. TROOPSHIP UPSHUR OFF VIETNAM (AP) — The American troopship Upshur with 13 disabled North Vietnamese prisoners of war aboard turned back toward South Vietnam today after Hanoi announced its agreement to accept the prisoners was off.

The ship and her escort of 10 gunboats had circled off the South Vietnamese coast all morning awaiting further instructions following North Vietnam's announcement in Paris that the release agreement was annulled.

The Upshur never entered the 36-mile-long cease-fire area off the demilitarized zone where the transfer had been scheduled to take place. She headed south shortly after noon.

The prisoners had been flown from the Bien Hoa POW camp near Saigon and boarded the Upshur at Da Nang Thursday afternoon. They returned to a South Vietnamese POW camp at Da Nang.

"We believe we have complied with the Geneva convention and the conditions of the agreement," said a spokesman for the U.S. military. "We deeply regret the other side did not accept this humanitarian offer."

Mecklenburg Bill Passes

RALEIGH (AP) — After lengthy parliamentary maneuvering by opponents of the bill the Senate voted 27-14 today to approve a measure calling for a referendum on the sale of liquor by the drink in Mecklenburg County.

The bill now goes to the House.

City Chickens Will Get Councilmen's Attention

Feathered fowl in the City of Greenville will be given their day in court on June 24 when a special call meeting of the City Council will determine the legal status of a proposed city ordinance governing Greenville's fowl population.

In the first meeting of the new City Council held last night, newly elected City Councilman Clarence Gray winged in for defense of the feathered creatures, introducing a motion to table "for an in-depth study" the draft ordinance on fowl penned by City Attorney David Reid and introduced by City Manager Harry Hagerty.

"Four - no more" is the quota proposed in the draft ordinance which would limit to a quartet the number of any creature that doth lay eggs, crow, quack or waddle, or a mixed combination thereof.

The proposed ordinance, which would be an amendment to Chapter 5.4 of the City Ordinance, would make it unlawful for any Greenville resident to have poultry yards, pens or coops within the city that would create a menace and constitute a public nuisance.

Councilman Percy Cox observed that "citizens are up in arms. Chicken yards in the city are in foul shape." Later he agreed that "chickens deserve the same consideration for a public hearing as dogs."

Councilman John Taylor, supporting Gray in tabling the issue until a public hearing is held, said, "If we eliminate chicken yards tonight without a chance to modify the ordinance, we would do ourselves and the citizens a disservice. The citizens need a chance to be heard before a vote is taken."

RECORD AUCTION PRICE — Andrew Hill, a junior partner in the London firm of William Hill and son, displays the Lady Blunt Stradivarious his firm bought for a record $201,600 at Southeby's Thursday. The price is four times the previous record of $52,800 set at Southeby's in 1968. The violin is named for one of its many owners, Lady Anne Blunt, a granddaughter of the poet, Lord Byron. Hussein Voices Concern Over A Separate Peace

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan says he fears Egypt may make a separate peace with Israel which will make no provision for the return of occupied Jordanian territory, the newspaper Al Amal reported today.

"Egypt seems tired of the Middle East conflict while the big powers are making too much noise about reopening the Suez Canal," he said in an interview.

"Consequently I am worried that an agreement to reopen the canal might not be linked with an over-all settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute," Hussein said.

The interview appeared on the eve of the fourth anniversary of the Middle East war in which Hussein lost the richest part of his kingdom.

Hussein said he was ready for a "reasonable, but over-all, settlement" with Israel and would accept minor changes in the prewar boundaries. He insisted, however, on the return of all of East Jerusalem.

"We are willing to accept modifications of the prewar borderline provided they involve no territorial gains for Israel," he said. "We accept such modifications only to correct the status of villages with the prewar borderline bisected.

"But these modifications must not include Jerusalem. The Holy City is of tremendous importance to us and we insist on the complete restoration of the Arab sector," Hussein stressed.

The king rejected proposals to internationalize only the Arab sector of Jerusalem, saying: "Internationalization must cover the whole city, both Arab and Israeli sectors alike.

"As far as we are concerned there can be no peace in the Middle East without settling the Jerusalem question. And any settlement that does not guarantee the rights of Christians and Moslems in Jerusalem remains unfair and incomplete," he added.

Disease Causing Muscle Weakness Can Go Unnoticed

By BETTIE FRUITS
Indianapolis News Writer

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — "I'm just tired all the time and the headaches have become so bad, sometimes I see double," blurted the 28-year-old woman as she anticipated the flicker of disgust in the eyes of the physician.

It was there. "You housewives just get bored and imagine things," he said.

But she knew that one eyelid drooped occasionally and sometimes it was difficult not to slur words. And she was aware that her husband's complaint of, "You go to bed tired and you wake up tired," was justified.

"There are millions of women who suffer mild cases of myasthenia gravis and are crossed off as neurotics," said Dr. J. E. Tether, director of the MG Clinic at Indiana University Medical Center, who explained that MG means "serious muscle weakness."

According to Tether, "It's estimated that there are between 50,000 and 500,000 undiagnosed cases of myasthenia gravis in this country and perhaps many more people suffering from a frequently unrecognized, milder form of the disease.

"When the doctor told me I had MG, the words meant nothing to me, so I wasn't particularly worried," said Robert Church. "Then a friend looked it up in an old medical dictionary and I darned near fainted! According to the dictionary, my goose was cooked. Well, that was more than five years ago, and I haven't gone to Valhalla yet."

Just a few years ago, Church's fears would have been valid, however, MG then was 90 per cent fatal. But now the mortality rate is less than 10 per cent if the disease is diagnosed and properly treated. It can strike almost any age or sex, but it is most often found in women between the ages of 20 and 40 and in men after the age of 40.

The disease is difficult to diagnose, however, and its symptoms may resemble those of multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy, Parkinson's disease, brain tumor, drunkeness, malnutrition, epilepsy, vitamin deficiency, low-grade infection or emotional disorders.

One Indianapolis housewife spent a fortune seeking a diagnosis. She received massive doses of Vitamin B-1 to correct continued exhaustion, and eventually was sent to a dentist to have her teeth extracted. She was still tired. She had her tonsils out—still tired. She then went through a complete hospital clinic workup and was stamped a psychosomatic. It was recommended she see a psychiatrist who finally established the MG symptoms.

"After the diagnosis has been made, the next frustration is dealing with well meaning friends and relatives," said Mrs. Richard Ogden, whose mild condition developed during pregnancy.

"Because people can't see any outward physical defects and I look perfectly normal, they say, 'Well, you look just great! Maybe it's only nerves?'"

There is a national Myasthenia Gravis Foundation, but a serious stumbling block to research and to those patients is a lack of donations. "We've accomplished a lot, but the MG foundation has been called a shoestring crusade," Tether said.

He also pointed out that drug purchases are a tremendous financial burden for many families. "We do have a Myasthenia Gravis Drug Bank at the I. U. Medical Center for mail distribution throughout the United States," he said.

Although the bank helps in cutting costs, physicians and patients agree that "more money is needed."

The Romper Room Kindergarten: TV's School For Pre-Schoolers

By MARC RANGEL

NEW YORK (WNS) — The world's largest kindergarten is not located in India or China. It is located in Baltimore, although—geographically speaking—its classrooms are scattered throughout 106 American cities and 56 foreign cities around the world.

This internationally famous children's institution is better known as the "Romper Room" (except in Japan where it's called "Lomper Loom" and in French Canada where it's known as "La Jardiniere").

Romper Room originated in Baltimore 18 years ago, the creation of Bert Claster, an independent television producer, and his wife Nancy. Since then, the Clasters have continuously improved and updated their original program concept and format as new educational techniques have been developed.

Currently, the latest revamped version of Romper Room includes a series of 12 new children's games, geared to the two important areas of perceptual motor development and visual training.

The games were prepared in conjunction with the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, and were introduced on the program on April 14. As a result of this close cooperation, the Clasters have been authorized to end the program each day with the President's Council Seal.

Doing It

"Our guiding principle, " says Nancy Claster, "is based on the old Chinese proverb which teaches us that to hear is to forget, to see is to remember, and to do is to understand."

"In line with this motto," adds Bert, "doing, rather than viewing, is our goal. We want our millions of young viewers to participate, to become involved with the children and the teacher on the program, by playing the featured games in their own living rooms."

Each Romper Room Kindergarten program features six local girls and boys aged four to five, under the supervision of a qualified pre-school teacher. All of the teachers, including those from other countries, must undergo an intensive training course in Baltimore under Nancy Claster's supervision.

Each younster participates in the Romper Room for a period of two weeks, three of the six participants being replaced each week. So far, over 160,000 children around the world have received their two-week diplomas. There are international Romper Rooms in Canada, Mexico, England, Northern Ireland, Brazil, Argentina, Finland, Japan, Hong Kong and Jamaica, in the West Indies, among other countries.

"The program's purpose," says Nancy earnestly, "is to prepare pre-school youngsters for their first classroom experience in 'big school.'"

Hood College

To achieve this, the program's teaching techniques and content are approved by Hood College of Frederick, Md., which participates in the formulation and periodic review of the Romper Room program.

In developing the new visual perception games, the Romper Room staff consulted with members of the Kennedy Institute, a branch of the Johns Hopkins Hospital. Approximately 60 new visual perception activities will be incorporated into the format.

"These activites," explains Bert Claster, "were created to help children develop their spatial and auditory perception. Although not diagnostic, by design, these visual perception games can serve to alert parents that something could be wrong with their child. Hopefully, this would lead them to seek medical or other professional help in time."

One of the commonest conditions disclosed by the games is dyslexia, a reading disorder that causes a child to transpose letters—"natsy" for "nasty," for example. Another is amblyopia, or "lazy eye" in the Romper Room's simplified but effective language, which means just that—an eye that is weaker than its twin and needs to be strengthened through exercise.

Motor Games

The new perceptual motor games are designed to involve movement of all parts of the body, to develop locomotor skills, muscular strength and cardio-vascular endurance. They also develop hand-eye coordination, balance, good posture and an awareness of gravity.

The Clasters are proud of the fact that an estimated 19 per cent of their 5 million viewers in the United States are mothers.

"To help achieve communication between mothers and their children," says Nancy, "we created a 'Think About' segment, during which the teacher suggests questions for our young viewers to ask their mothers."

The program works closely with various government and public service organizations, such as the American Red Cross, American Dental Association, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, National Tuberculosis Association, the U.S. Public Health Service and the National Fire Prevention Association, among others.

As a result of their frequent screening of a film on mouth-to-mouth resuscitation made by the Red Cross, the Romper Room program has been credited by that organization with saving at least 19 lives.

"The most dramatic case," says Bert, "was that of a nine-year-old boy in Tennessee, Ricki Gore, who pulled his two-year-old brother from a well and saved the baby's life by expertly following the Red Cross demonstration he had viewed on Romper Room a few weeks before."

SWISS CHEESE FONDUE — Freshly ground pepper is added to suit a man's taste.

Reliable Recipe For Swiss Cheese Fondue

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Recipes for Swiss Cheese Fondue abound, but if you want a well-tested rule you may enjoy trying one that appears in "Fondue, Chafing Dish and Casserole Cookery" by Margaret Deeds Murphy (Hawthorn).

Maggie—as the author is known to friends—is a home economist whose beat used to be New York but who now runs a test kitchen in her home in West Dennis, Mass. Her book is particularly appealing because it has a wide range—both in the three utensils featured and in the choice of recipes.

Swiss Cheese Fondue is of course made at serving time. Here are Maggie's directions for doing just that:

"To cook the fondue in front of guests, the following behind-the-scenes work is necessary. Have the shredded or finely cut Swiss cheese ready in a bowl. Near it should be the flour measured into an attractive small container and a clove of peeled garlic cut in half. In a cooking performance one does nothing so prosaic as measuring ingredients before guests. Therefore one must practice privately to see how much wine to gurgle from the bottle to make approximately two cups. Decant two cups into a measure in the privacy of your kitchen. By estimating the amount left in the bottle you'll know how much to pour. The juice of half a fresh lemon will equal the amount needed for the recipe that follows, and again, it is part of the drama to squeeze the lemon juice directly from the lemon half. Wrap the lemon in cheesecloth to prevent the pits from dropping in the pot. Kirsch or cognac should be ready to pour, and whichever spices you prefer to add should be on hand. You'll need a wooden spoon or fork for stirring, and don't forget to have the bite-size pieces of bread arranged neatly on a colorful napkin in a basket. All these things can be prearranged on a tray ready for the performance ahead."

MAGGIE MURPHY'S SWISS CHEESE FONDUE

1 clove garlic, cut in half
2 cups dry white wine (Rhine, Cortese, Riesling, Chablis, Neuchatel)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 pound natural Swiss cheese, shredded or finely cut
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons kirsch or cognac
Nutmeg, freshly ground pepper or paprika to taste
2 loaves crusty Italian or French bread cut in cubes, crust on each cube.

Rub fondue pot with cut side of garlic. Discard. Pour in wine. Set over moderate heat. When wine is hot but not boiling, add lemon juice. Then dredge cheese lightly with flour and add by spoonsful to the hot wine, stirring constantly with a wooden fork or spoon. Keep stirring until cheese is melted. Then add kirsch (or cognac) and spices, stirring until blended.

Serve and keep hot over burner. Each person in turn spears a bread cube through soft side into crust, dunks and swirls in fondue.

Makes 4 servings.

NOTE: The crust that remains at the bottom of the fondue pot should be removed with a knife and divided among the diners. Many consider this the best part.

Love Will Conquer Husband's Fling

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 17 years. We have a lovely family, but if you use my letter in your column, please do not mention their ages or what sex our children are.

I love my husband with all my heart and the thought of infidelity has never crossed my mind. Three months ago, I accidentally found out that my husband was having an affair with a young woman in her mid-20s. He is 46. I caught him flat-footed, so there was no denying it. He was terribly upset at having been caught, claimed he loves me, and it will never happen again. I am so broken up over this, I cannot tell you the agony I have suffered.

I am considered a very good-looking woman and would have no trouble at all doing to him what he did to me. This is the only way I know of hurting him like he has hurt me, so he will know what I have gone thru. I know two wrongs don't make a right, but at least we will be even.

Is there a better solution? LOVED AND LOST

DEAR LOVED: There must be, because there couldn't be a worse one! Don't kid yourself. Should you have a fling and announce it to your husband, he wouldn't suffer as you did. Men tend to view such things with far less emotion than women. [My mail shows 50 women to one man agonizing over an unfaithful mate.] If you love him, forgive him. And if you really want to hurt him, love him to death. He'll feel like the world's biggest heel.

DEAR ABBY: We have a son and a daughter whom we try to treat equally in all things.

Our daughter, who is a few years older, did not want to go to college. After graduating from high school she worked for a year and then got married.

Our son chose to go to college, and we are paying for his college education. Is our daughter legally or morally entitled to the money we saved on her college education because she didn't go? She thinks she is entitled to cash in the same amount of money we are spending on her brother's education. JUST CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: If you had offered your daughter either the cash or a college education, and she chose the cash, she would be entitled to the cash. Since you offered her only a college education and she turned it down, she is entitled to nothing.

DEAR ABBY: I am not saying this to brag, but I am the favorite relative in a family where there is a lot of backbiting and petty fighting going on. A niece of mine invited me to attend the christening of her baby. She told me that I am the only aunt she is inviting, so if anybody in the family asks how come I went to the christening I should say that I just happened to drop in at my niece's house unexpectedly that morning and she invited me to the christening on the spur of the moment.

I don't like lying, Abby, but I don't want to hurt my niece's feelings as she thinks it's an honor for me to be the only aunt at her baby's christening. What would you do?
FAVORITE AUNT

DEAR AUNT: I'd tell her that I appreciate the honor, but if I had to lie in order to accept it, I would have to decline.

Angry Medic Wrote Best-Selling 'Gerber Report'

By BILL STOCKTON
Associated Press Writer

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP) — One night 18 months ago Dr. Alex Gerber was telling his wife how shocked he was at what he deemed harmful and unethical practices among some California surgeons.

"These things had just overwhelmed me," he recalls. "It was just the needless loss of life which completely could have been prevented if doctors had practiced ethically and within bounds.

"My wife said, 'Why the hell do you keep talking about these things. Why don't you do something about them?' So I sat down that night and wrote down the outline for a book."

The result, the best-selling "The Gerber Report," now a month old.

Gerber, a surgeon with impeccable credentials, severely criticizes general practitioners who legally can perform any surgery but who actually are qualified only for the simplest operations; he objects to excessive tonsilectomies and appendectomies; and criticizes GPs for attempting surgery in specialized areas such as the stomach, thyroid and cancer of the breast—"beyond their competency."

Having medical societies police doctors, he says, is like having a union investigate a union—"The name of the game is whitewash." And he takes militant young doctors and medical students to task for urging radical change in medical education, saying U.S. medical schools are the finest in the world.

The welfare patient in a public hospital often receives better medical care than well-to-do patients in private hospitals, he says. Too many people place too much emphasis on a television set in the room, and other amenities, paying no attention to the qualifications of medical personnel handling the case, he says. He strongly favors birth control, including legal abortions.

"What I'm trying to do is eliminate the bad medical practices, the unnecessary surgery, surgery by the untrained and unqualified," he told an interviewer. "I hope we can arouse the public to the inequities and abuses in medicine so that the decision makers in government will do something about it."

His book has already begun to make waves, at least among doctors, Gerber said.

"Those doctors who are practicing medicine as they should, who are not doing things beyond their competency, are very pleased about the book.

"I think there are some unqualified doctors who perhaps recognize themselves in the book. And I've heard some mutterings from other doctors who are unhappy about what I have to say because their attitude is we shouldn't wash our dirty linen in public—we should do all these things within the system.

"But I've been working within the system for 20 years trying to correct and I haven't been all that successful."

Gerber, son of a steel construction contractor in Chicago, says he decided to become a doctor "simply because my mother wanted me to be a doctor."

He earned his medical degree at the University of Illinois during the depression years, selling shoes in a department store on weekends to help pay his way. Because he didn't like some of the policies governing interns at Chicago's Cook County Hospital, Gerber spent his intern year at the Los Angeles County General Hospital. Then followed his years as a surgical resident at the University of California at San Francisco.

Besides being part of a group practice at a clinic in Alhambra, a Los Angeles suburb, Gerber is senior attending surgeon at the Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center and holds faculty positions at the USC Medical School and California State College at Los Angeles.

A father of four, Gerber said he doubts that professional organizations, such as the American Medical Association or the American College of Surgeons, will officially chastise him for airing his feelings in public.

PTI Veterans Program Is Set

An all-new program for veterans will begin Monday night, June 7, at Pitt Technical Institute. The program offers an opportunity for students to increase their agricultural knowledge and skills and draw a monetary subsistence for doing it.

The three year course has been designed to give instruction in basic agricultural sciences. Twelve hours instruction per week in classroom and shop training is considered full-time and permits the veteran to receive the maximum subsistence allowance.

The veteran receives classroom instruction for ten months of the year, however; he receives a subsistence for twelve months. There will be no classroom or shop instruction during July or August.

The subsistence allowance for a veteran enrolled full-time is: No dependent, $141; one dependent, $165; two dependents, $190. An extra $10 per month is allowed for each additional dependent.

At the end of the course a student may take the required related courses and receive an Associate in Applied Science Degree from Pitt Technical Institute. The program is open to all persons engaged in agricultural production or management.

Interested persons are requested to report to room 103 in the PTI Classroom Building at 6:00 p.m. on Monday.

According to Pierce, lunch will be served at no cost to all who have bus tickets.

The buses will leave the Pitt County Fairgrounds at 7:45 a.m.

Persons wishing more information or desiring to make bus reservations may call the ASCS office at 752-6112, the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association at 758-1512, or the Agricutral Extension Service at 758-1196.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police say they are investigating the theft of some $7,000 in cash and jewelry from the hotel room of Prince Varanand of Thailand.

The prince said he was on a combination business and pleasure trip to Los Angeles.

Friendship Gift Is Given Mamie

NEW YORK (AP) — The American-Korean Foundation has given Mamie Eisenhower a turtle-shaped paper weight symbolizing prosperity and friendship.

FBI Charges 2 EscapeesRobbed Ft. Bragg Bank

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The FBI has charged two escaped convicts with armed robbery in the $115,000 holdup of the Ft. Bragg branch of the First Citizens Bank & Trust Co.

The men, who are being sought, are Ernest Jones Jr., 36, of Hopkinsville, Ky., and Harry Green, 25, of Graysville, Ala.

Shortly after Tuesday's robbery by three men, James Evans Bowles, 19, of Hopkinsville, was arrested on an armed robbery charge.

Jones and Green escaped from a Sampson County road gang April 19. The FBI described them as armed and highly dangerous.

During the getaway of the bank robbers a military policeman was shot but not seriously hurt.

Guardsmen At Fort Bragg

Co. B, 167th Military Police Battalion of Greenville was one of several units of the North Carolina National Guard's Non Division Troop Command which moved into Ft. Bragg Saturday to begin two weeks of annual training.

The Greenville unit, along with others from Washington, Farmville, and New Bern and various other units from across the state, will take Army Training Tests involving field bivouac of from two to four days under combat conditions.

This year's National Guard contingent numbers approximately 1,900 men.

Stripper's Case Is Postponed

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A judge has ruled that stripper Morgana will not have to stand trial on a charge of indecent exposure unless she performs again in Mecklenburg County.

District Court Howard Arbuckle granted a motion of her lawyer Thursday to postpone the case indefinitely on that condition.

The C'est Bon Club, where Morgana performed, burned down last Sunday—police suspect arson—and she has said she doesn't plan to work anywhere else in Charlotte of Mecklenburg County.

It was the second time Morganna had been tried on a charge of indecent exposure. In the first trial, Arbuckle set her free without punishment.

Funding Is The Only Question

A bill was introduced in the legislation this week on a note of hope to appropriate funds for expanding the statewide system of vocational rehabilitation centers.

The bill calls for the appropriation of $1.26 million and among its sponsors were Sen. Vernon White, Rep. Horton Rountree, and Rep. Sam Bundy. Their interest in the appropriation is prompted by the fact that $400,000 in state funds are needed so that the Vocational Rehabilitation wing can be built along with the new Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Greenville has already been approved for the site of the next center. Federal funds are available and the county commissioners have pledged the county's share toward making the project a reality. Now only the state appropriation is needed to make the project a reality.

There is little doubt in anyone's mind that the new center is needed in Greenville to serve this area. There is also the fact that it would be desirable to plan the center along with the planning that is now going on for construction of the new hospital.

The only question is whether or not the General Assembly will feel that there are enough funds available in the tight budget that is now being put together.

Certainly there are many demands for state funds which are not going to be met during the next biennium. However the Legislators should give serious consideration to this one, since the work carried on in the rehabilitation centers can return dividends to the state.

The Greenville center would be a good investment of comparative modest state funds, since the federal grant and Pitt County funds are already available for this project.

Citizens of this entire area should let their legislatiors know that they want this project carried out. Members of the General Assembly should do all that they can to see that the funds are made available this year. It is highly desirable that the Greenville rehabilitation center be funded in the 1971-73 budget.

Commencement Is Right Word

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RICHLANDS — Commencement is the right word for it.

Diplomas awarded Richlands High School senior last evening represented a completion, but looked ahead to other beginnings. Anticipation and nostalgia mingled in the fresh faces: bright against dark caps and gowns, of the graduating class.

Lieutenant-Governor H.P. (Pat) Taylor, Jr., spoke, and the occasion took on the air of a preview for a show soon going on the road. He urged the graduates to get involved in politics, and it was easy to imagine he had something specific in mind.

"When you work for a candidate you believe in — stuffing envelopes, ringing doorbells, handing out leaflets, or whatever — you are voting for better politics and better government," Taylor assured the audience.

People must work together, and the way they work together is called "politics," the lieutenant governor said. "I hope as you go out into the world you will recognize that you must be a politician," he went on. "While only a few of you will ever seek political office, you must be aware of, responsive to, and participate in solving the problems of your time."

It's Graduation Time

Richlands is only one of 407 high schools in North Carolina now engaged in graduation exercise for the estimated 68,000 young men and women composing the Class of '71.

Taylor is only one of the phalanx of politicians, public servants, educators and other leading citizens offering gratuitous advice to the young in the role of commencement speaker.

In the overflow of parental pride and the flush of triumph for those winning release after 12 years confinement, graduation here was typical of those throughout North Carolina.

What made this one different was the foreshadowing of a gubernatorial campaign.

Before and after his time at the podium, Taylor moved easily through the crowd, shaking hands and recalling names. It was a clear picture of the casual, country-flavor style he will use in going after the Democratic nomination for governor next year.

No Whirlwind Race

"If I ever get involved in another race," said Taylor, a Wadesboro lawyer elected six times to represent Anson County before winning his present office. "It won't be an intensive, whirlwind sort of thing."

Instead, it will be a sustained effort to reach on a personal level as many as possible of the state's voters.

The "if" Taylor used is in deference to the unannounced and unofficial status of his candidacy. That's a formality to be taken care of once the 1971 General Assembly is adjourned, and his duties over as Senate presiding officer.

Using the comparison of a theatrical production, the Pat Taylor show hasn't opened on Broadway but it's already playing in New Haven.

What signals his intentions best is the pick-up in his schedule of speaking engagements throughout the state.

Swinging Across the State

The Richlands commencement set off a weekend swing covering the state. Lined up Friday (June 4) were a 12:30 p.m. dinner at Chowan College, the annual meeting of the Historic Murfreesboro Commission, in the east; a 4 p.m. groundbreaking for a recreational development at Lake Tillery, Albemarle, in the southwestern Piedmont; and a 7 p.m. speech to the Order of AHEPA, a Greek organization, in Winston-Salem.

On Sunday, Taylor goes east again to deliver the commencement address for the College of the Albemarle at Elizabeth City.

The pace is wearing, physically and mentally. Travel and long hours is only part of the strain; every engagement calls for preparation, from speech writing to freshening up on names and local interests. If you don't leave a good impression, the lieutenant governor reasons, it would be better not to go at all.

The primary is one year away the general election six months beyond. That makes the campaign ahead look like an endurance contest.

Even so, Taylor doesn't worry a lot about overexposure, peaking-too-soon and other things modern campaign professionals warn about. In fact, he views with some misgiving the impact of the electronic media on the electoral process.

"It would be a sad day for North Carolina if we ever got to the place that voters picked their public officials on the basis of 30-second television spot announcements," he observed.

"I don't beleve a candidate ought to win just because he's the best looking, or has the most high-powered public relations agency."

Taylor's concept of the ideal campaign would be the opportunity for every voter to talk personally with every candidate. Recognizing that impossibility, his campaign will be a compromise effort to reach as many as possible before the time for voting.

Wallace Aides Are Skeptical

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Although money in the tens of thousands is pouring into an unmarked office here to lubricate the political future of Gov. George Wallace, the prospect of another Wallace run for the Presidency next year is hedged with dangers for him.

Wallace himself chooses to ignore these dangers, but some of his closest political aides do not. For example, they disagree over how grave will be his problem of getting on the Alabama ballot as the Presidential nominee of the Democratic party, running symbol of the rooster.

The Democratic party's new executive committee, headed by loyalist national Democrat Robert Vance, voted overwhelmingly last year to end the traditional election of Democratic Presidential electors in the spring primary. Instead, the executive committee will appoint the Democratic electors, who will then be placed on the Presidential ballot under the rooster, denying Wallace the advantage of being the nominee of the Alabama Democratic party as he was in 1968.

Wallace will push for a new law forcing a return to the old system of choosing Democratic electors in a primary election — an election he undoubtedly would win. But the new legislature elected with Wallace last November is overwhelmingly anti - Wallace and might reject Wallace's proposal.

Wallace has an answer for that, too. He would run as Presidential nominee of the American Independent Party (as he did in every state except Alabama in 1968) and give the entire slate of Congressional Democratic candidates a place on the ballot under his own party as well as the Democratic party. Voters could vote both for the Wallace electors and the regular Democratic Congressional nominees, headed by the veteran Sen. John Sparkman, in one column.

Wallace operatives here are skeptical of this, partly because the courthouse politicians might rebel against it, partly because the national Democratic party might threaten the Congressional candidates with loss of seniority if they ran under the Wallace label. The latter worry could turn out to be wholly misplaced; if there is an ounce of pragmatism in the national party, getting Wallace into the Presidential race to take conservative Southern votes away from President Nixon should have high priority.

But however Wallace works out his serious ballot problem, it will not be clean-cut and probably will not result in his running as a Democrat, thus posing a threat in his own state.

And if there is marginal doubt about Wallace in Alabama, it is compounded in other Deep South states he carried in 1968. In Mississippi, Gov. John Bell Williams is passing the word that a repeat of his 1968 landslide there is impossible considering Mr. Nixon's increased strength. In Arkansas, the aggressive new Democratic governor, Dale Bumpers, will fight Wallace for the national Democratic party with a chance to defeat him. Georgia, too, has a new distinctly anti - Wallace Democratic leadership with pro - Wallace Gov. Lester Maddox replaced by anti - Wallace Gov. Jimmy Carter.

Thus, the dramatically changed complexion of the old Wallace Deep South matches his domestic problems in Alabama.

Those domestic problems, quite apart from his ballot predicament, were evident the moment the legislature met this year. Wallace tossed

Only Selves To Blame

WASHINGTON — More than 3,500 people were rounded up in mass arrests Thursday evening and thrown into the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The demonstrators, wearing black ties, evening dresses, diamond necklaces and tiaras, had vowed to tie up Washington traffic around the Watergate Apartment Complex with their Cadillac and Lincoln Continental chauffeur-driven limousines.

Police chief Jerry Wilson said that he had orders that anyone who participated in the demonstration, which had been organized to get our symphony orchestra out of Constituiton Hall, would be arrested.

At about 10 o'clock, the first demonstrators started chanting 'WE WANT CULTURE' to which their leaders yelled 'WHEN DO YOU WANT IT?' and they shouted back 'NOW.'

A police captain with a bullhorn said, "Unless you keep your limousines moving you will all be arrested." But the demonstrators refused to heed the warning and traffic was blocked up as far as the State Department. At the signal from the captain, the police immediately moved in and started making mass arrests.

Because of the large number of demonstrators the police decided to detain all the people at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The demonstrators had been prepared for this and most of them went peacefully, but once inside the detention center they couldn't believe the conditions that they had to put up with. People were jammed in tight in the halls and anterooms.

As each new group of demonstrators was brought in, it became obvious that the Kennedy Center did not have the facilities to handle them.

At 11 o'clock there was no gin left, and by 11:30 all the scotch had been drunk and some of the people started to cry.

The only food was a cold buffet and strawberries, and champagne, which had been hastily brought in by the Red Cross for the emergency.

The American Civil Liberties Union protested vigorously that the demonstrators were being detained under cruel and unlivable conditions and demanded that the people being held in the center either be charged or let go. But police said the demonstrators knew what they were getting into when they came out that night, and they felt no obligation to process them with any speed.

"Most of the people in there," said a police sergeant, "are troublemakers. They came from all over the country and if they want to tie up the traffic in Washington, they're getting what they deserve."

But reports discovered inside the center that many innocent people had been rounded up in the mass arrests. One couple said, "We were on our way to see 'Love Story' and suddenly we were thrown in a bus and dumped here."

A photographer said he was just taking pictures of the fireworks when two patrolmen grabbed him and threw him into the brass section of Meyer Davis' orchestra.

A woman, who said she was just walking her dog, found herself sleeping under Peter Duchin's piano. "The only reason I was picked up," she said tearfully, "is because my dog had long hair."

Public Forum

(Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words)

To The Editor:

The influence of communications media, especially newspapers, radio and television, is a decisive one in any election. The side with the greater financial resources has a decided edge. As Americans we do not like to give advantage to wealth or class in operation of the democratic process. Thus it is important that the communications media in reporting the news give equal attention to both sides of any issue.

In the recent referendum of the Sales Tax the Daily Reflector published three front page articles which clearly favored the sales tax; one front page article opposing the sales tax was published. This is unfair and the fault is more serious in the light of the large amount of advertising space purchased by those favoring the sales tax.

In two recent county referendums the group with the most money won the election. In the sales tax referendum those favoring the tax spent more than $4,000.00, those opposing it spent $400.00. In the hospital Bond Referendum those favoring the new hospital spent more than $12,000.00; those opposing less than $1,000.00. Americans have fought long to see that people are not denied the right to vote because of race; we will have to be vigilant to see that the poor are not accidentally denied the right of influence at the ballot box.

French As It's Spoken

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Anyone who's ever studied a foreign language in school is in for a rude awakening when he tries to use his newfound knowledge abroad.

Try traveling to France, for example. Unless you happen to be in Paris on Bastille Day, there really aren't very many occasions when it comes in handy to know the entire first verse and chorus of the Marseillaise, the French national anthem.

Nobody really uses those complicated past tenses you memorized so carefully when reading 18th century French literature.

And have you ever tried to start a conversation with a stranger by talking about "la plume de ma tante?"

What they don't teach you in school are those little things that pop up in conversation and yet never seem to be included in lengthy lessons on conjugation, vocabulary or idiomatic expressions.

Equipped with six years of high school and college French, I set out in Paris to try to buy some nail polish remover. In the course of my travels I learned the word for fingernail—"ongle"; purchased several items I really didn't want, but felt I should buy because I'd caused so much trouble; and became an expert at the charade of rubbing at my nail and looking hopeful.

Finally, the light dawned and one druggist came up with the required product and the required word—"dissolvant."

Simple yes? Only if you happen to think of it.

Then there was the time I needed my butane lighter refilled. Butane is expense in Europe and rather than buy a

J. S. Ficklen, president of the Ficklen Tobacco Company of Greenville, returned homeTuesday after spending six weeks in Holland, Germany and England. It is his opinion that the depression existing in this country is just as severe throughout Europe.

Spinning helplessly for nearly three hours in a treacherous whirlpool, William "Red" Hill, veteran riverman, was rescued today by his son after an unsuccessful attempt to shoot the rapids below Niagara Falls in a barrel.

Now playing at the State Theatre is Gary Cooper and Sylvia Sidney in "City Streets."

Mrs. D. M. Clark, district president of the Federation of Woman's Clubs, and Mrs. J. L. Fleming left this afternoon for Swanquarter where Mrs. Clark will speak before the Woman's Club. They will attend a luncheon in Washington tomorrow.

Mrs. W. M. Willis and Mrs. Lloyd Horton, of Farmville, were Greenville visitors today.

Strength For Today

PRINCE OF PEACE

In the Book of Isaiah the coming Messiah is referrred to as The Prince of Peace. The statement is also made that "of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end...."(Isaiah 9:6,7). Yet think of what is going on in the world today and what has gone on through the centuries. There has hardly been a year since The Prince of Peace was born that there was not war of some kind somewhere on the earth.

Humanity being as it is, war in some form or other will probably be waged for generations to come. But necessary or unecessary, as the frantic scroll of history is unrolled, we are amazed and horrified that groups and nations still lunge at one another's throats.

To deplore such a state of affairs does not mean that pacifism and complete disarmament should be the present order of the day. There are millions of men throughout the world that have been willling to lay down their lives in defense of their country. Armies have often stood between ourselves and national ruin. But this does not alter the fact that warfare in some form or other is likely to exist for many years to come.

And how tragic and illogical it is that his state of belligerancy is going along full blast right now. Then there will be a conference, and if the past teaches us any lesson it is that the nation which lost the war on the field of battle will probably win the war at the council table.

Hopeless? Nothing in God's created world is hopeless. The Prince of Peace is indeed a prince, and of his government there will be no end.

Little Progress With Ecology

By ELMER ROESSNER

American does seem to be making some progress in improving the ecology. The progress is far from satisfying the most active campaigners for improvement, and accomplishments have been clouded by multitude of claims in excess of accomplishments.

Many, perhaps thousands, of corporations have gotten into the act, announcing plans and projects to clean up their own crap, but many of them have remained just that: plans and projects.

There has also been some diversion of effort, such as the great excitement over nonreturnable pop and beer bottles. Now it would be nice if they no longer strain the backs of sanitation men or litter the shoulders of our highways, but except when used to bash someone over the head, empty bottles are not dangerous. But things that poison our air, contaminate our water or ruin our soil are still killing people everyday.

Attack On Oil Spills

Considerable work has been done to reduce the effects of oil spills. Avco Corp. has developed a magnetic fluid that can be used to separate oil slicks from the surface of water. Added to oil slicks, it makes the oil magnetic so it can be picked up by a magnetic collector.

Johns - Mansville has developed an oil - absorbent material that is said to make it cheaper and easy to clean up slicks. Several other companies are working on methods to remove slicks. The big problem is, of course, to prevent them in the first place.

Other Small Steps

Dow has been granted a federal license for a new insecticide said to be as effective as DDT but which decomposes in the soil.

Ford has signed a contract with Union Camp Corp. to buy 100,000 tons of used cardboard boxes and containers a year. Camp will convert them into kraft paper and corrugated board.

William Lear is developing a low-pollution steam auto engine in which General Motors is interested.

University of Wisconsin, using alum, has cleaned the algae and purified the water in Horseshoe Lake.

National Recycling Industries has developed machines to take solid waste from an entire community and recycle it, returning it to the community as metal, fertilizer, etc.

Several low - and no-phosphate and enzyme detergents have been put on the market.

A government contract has been let for the development of a process to crush glass and use it in cement blocks.

Edison Electrical Institute has announced that 129 electrical companies are involved in 400 environmental studies to reduce thermal pollution of water to preserve fish and other aquatic life. And the EEI is conducting a $1.3 million water cooling program with Johns Hopkins University.

And the Federal Trade Commission has announced it will check claims made for products promoted as useful in combatting pollution.

Naderism Spreads to Europe, Business Magazine Reports

Consumers in Europe, like those in America, are demanding better quality goods and services and honest dealings, reports Vision, European business magazine.

Consumer associations there report that one consumer in two is dissatisfied with the goods and services he buys and with the way he is treated as a customer. There have been consumer demonstrations in Britain and France and protests in Sweden and Italy.

Vision reports that many companies have appointed a top executive in charge of consumer relations.

A Difference In Dining Habits

NEW YORK (UPI)—Champions of women's lib may dispute it, but there are definite differences in dining habits between men and women when they eat out in restaurants.

A survey by a manufacturer of restaurant furniture shows men order different foods, drink more liquor, order fewer desserts, leave bigger tips, and spend less time at meals —with the exception of dinner.

Although Chief Wilson denied it, the strategy behind the arrests was to keep the demonstrators there until 3 o'clock in the morning so that traffic would be running smoothly again.

The police chief set $100 bond for every person over 35 and $40 bond for those under. The organizers of the demonstration vowed they wouldn't be intimidated and promised to come back in September to tie up traffic again when the Kennedy Center was officially opened. A spot poll the next day revealed that most of the people who lived in Washington believed that the demonstrators who wound up in the Kennedy Center Thursday night had only themselves to blame.

whole tube of the gas, people simply stop at a tobbacconist for a refill. That much I'd learned in England. But how do you say "Would you refill my lighter?" in French?

Another expedition into the world of charades. Another several hours of frustration. And finally, another deceptively simple work—"recharge"—with the first "e" pronounced like an "a."

A more pleasurable learning experience came at the end of a fine French meal when my confidence had grown with each sip of wine.

As a souvenir, I decided it would be nice to keep the label from the wine bottle. I got as far as "Can we have" and then was stumped. I pointed at the desired object and repeated the word in English—"Label, label."

The proprietor offered me the whole empty bottle. "No, no," I said, pointing again. "Label."

This time I was offered another full bottle of wine.

Determined, I tried still again, trying to tug at the corner of the label.

Suddenly, there was understanding.

Teenager Award Is Presented Grandson

William Murray Vincent of Mebane, grandson of Mrs. Gladys Allegood Bowles and the late Claud J. Allegood of Greenville, has been named the Outstanding Teenager of North Carolina for 1971.

Vincent, a senior at Eastern High School in Mebane, was chosen for the honor over several hundred other North Carolina students who participated in the Outstanding Teenagers of American program.

The youth, whose mother is the former Geraldine Allegood of Greenville, will compete with other teenagers from across the nation in national competition for a $1,000 scholarship to be awarded to two winners.

Lt. Gov. H. Patrick Taylor presented the awards trophy to Vincent at his office in the state capitol in Raleigh.

The Mebane senior, who was named valedictorian of his graduating class, was a member of the National Honor Society while at Eastern. He attended the Governor's School in 1970 and had a research paper selected for review by Dr. Kenneth Chepenik of the anatomy department at Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

Want Black Appointee

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina United Methodist Conference has asked Bishop William R. Cannon to appoint a black district superintendent no later than next year.

In reply, he urged the 1,100 delegates at the annual meeting Thursday to create the attitude "which would make the decision acceptable" in any area of the conference. It embraces 56 of North Carolina's 100 counties in the east and the Piedmont.

Black United Methodists became part of the formerly all-white conference in 1967. Since then, a black, the Rev. James McCallum, has served as administrative assistant to the bishop and his cabinet.

Delegates approved a resolution that a new district be created in 1972. The conference, which extends from Alamance County and the Pee Dee River to the coast, now has II districts.

Durham was chosen for the 1972 meeting.

The meeting closed at noon today with the reading of pastoral appointments.

it an impressive stew of populist legislation: higher taxes on truckers, new rate controls on the utilities, a manufacturers' franchise tax. The legislature rebeled, swallowing only a spoonful. Having barely eked out a victory in the primary election for governor last spring, Wallace has at least temporarily lost political omnipotence in his own state.

Even so, only a fool would write off the segregationist founder of the American Independent Party. The money is rolling in, helped along by out-of-state fund - raisers — one in Dallas, two others scheduled in Nashville and Toledo.

At heart, Wallace is the perpetual stump campaigner for whom the cries of the crowd are narcotic. He will count the money pouring in, bide his time, and calculate the odds. In the words of one long - time aide, Wallace is a politician "who is not averse to rolling the dice no matter what the odds." But, warily eyeing the nagging difficulties in his Deep South homeland, Wallace's advisers hope he will not cast the dice this time.

Confirm Bunche Is In Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Hospital has confirmed that U.N. Undersecretary-General Ralph J. Bunche is a patient, apparently the victim of a fall in which he suffered a broken arm. The hospital would give no details of the accident, but U.N. sources said Bunche, 66, fell against a bed in his Forest Hills home last Friday.

They said he was first admitted as a precautionary measure, but that some complications have developed.

French Academy Elects American

PARIS (AP) — Julian Green, the Paris-born American novelist, was elected Thursday to the French Academy. He is the first person with foreign citizenship to receive the honor.

Green, 71, takes the chair of Francois Mauriac, a Nobel Prize winner who died last year. There were 27 votes for Green and one abstention.

Green became a member of the academy through the intercession of President Georges Pompidou. As academy overseer, Pompidou said that Green, who declined to renounce his American citizenship, could be considered a Frenchman by virtue of his birth and long residence here.

His best know works in French are "Moira," "Mont-Cinere," and "Chaque Homme dans sa Nuit." His major work in English is "Memories of Happy Days."

Sympathy, But No Endorsement

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Education says it is sympathetic to the school construction needs in the state, but is refraining from endorsing a bill calling for a $200 million school bond issue.

Board Chairman Dallas Herring told a representative of the N.C. School Boards Association Thursday, "We're highly sympathetic with you, but we're also aware of the priorities on our own operating budget."

The association has asked the General Assembly to authorize a referendum in November, 1972, on a $200 million bond issue to meet school construction needs across the state.

"How can we support a statewide bond issue when we can't even get enough money for kindergartens or our other programs?" said board member John M. Reynolds.

The board tentatively approved public kindergartens for 82 counties still without them. However, the approval hinges on whether the General Assembly will add at least $2.2 million to the $3 million now in the budget for kindergartens.

The $5.2 million is enough to operate one kindergarten in each county and would reach only 4,000 5-year-olds. The board had originally requested $21 million to create kindergartens for a fourth of the state's 5-year-olds—20,000 children—during the next biennium.

State Supt. of Schools Craig Phillips said his office has endorsed the proposed bond issue but "won't push for an endorsement from the state board because we have the firm belief leadership in this should come from the state level."

Lampoon's Nod To Ali MacGraw

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The Harvard Lampoon, the undergraduate publication of satire, says "Love Story" is the worst movie of the year and its star, Ali MacGraw, is the worst actress.

Worst actor honors went to Elliott Gould for "his limp performance in 'Getting Straight' and for dumping Barbra Streisand."

Police List 2 Collisions

An estimated $1,950 property damage resulted in two traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 6:10 p.m. mishap on N.C. 11 about 1,000 feet south of the U.S. 264 intersection. That collision involved cars driven by Clifton West Bright, 36, of Route 7, Snow Hill and Hettie Bogges Maddox of Ayden.

Officers charged Bright with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety and charged Mrs. Maddox with exceeding safe speed.

Damage was set at $400 to the Bright vehicle and $600 to the Maddox car.

Dormeus Flowers of Route 5, Kinston was charged with failing to see intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 6:46 p.m. collision on North Green Street three-tenths of a mile south of the Martin Street intersection.

Officers reported the Flowers vehicle collided with a car driven by Mrs. I. K. Fields of Greenville, causing an estimated $250 damage to the Flowers vehicle and about $700 damage to the Fields car.

Authentic Rail Complaint

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Back at the turn of the century when there were no trucks and superhighways and aircraft, and the barge system was not so highly developed as it is today, the railroads had a practical transportation monopoly.

The world has an ominous connotation, and as most schoolboys know, the railroads did much to give it that quality.

The hoarse, hollow whistle of the train in the night mourns its way gently through American folklore. But to those in the way, it was a raucous blast that meant defiance, arrogance.

By admission of a prominent spokesman now pleading the industry's case before Congress, "They were greedy and tough and they ran all over everyone." They got their own way through power.

Today they are broke. The banks, which respect power and never its absence, are reluctant to lend the money at prime rates. And they claim they are being suffocated under a tonnage of government regulations that favor competitors.

Still, though beaten and brought pleading to their knees—four lines are bankrupt, the largest included, and 11 to 14 are on the verge—the industry is likely to win its way again, this time through its very weakness.

This is how power-through-weakness works:

The country cannot survive without railroads. They move 41 per cent of its freight, or some 780 billion ton miles. Close them down, as in a strike, and quickly a major segment of other industries begins to close also.

The railroads are impoverished. They are dispirited. Their equipment and roadbeds are in disrepair. Though essential to the nation's survival, their own survival is not assured.

This presents two solutions: One, relaxation of restrictive regulations, combined with subsidies and government-guaranteed loans from the reluctant banks; two, government takeovers.

Takeover! As terrible a word as monopoly. Governments in other democratic nations operate their railroads, although in the red. But big government had been feared by Americans almost as much as big business.

But that really is not the problem. It's something else altogether; it involves money, as neatly laid on the line by the distinguished railroad spokesman.

"Nationalization would be the worst solution by far. To start with, the cost would be immense, because in this country the government can't just take something away from its owners.

"It must pay for it—usually at full market value. Takeover of the entire railroad investment would mean a cost to taxpayers of anywhere from $27 billion up to $60 billion or even more."

The words, including the reference to the earlier greed of the railroads, are those of George Smathers, former U.S. senator from Florida and now general counsel for ASTRO, an acronym for "America's Sound Transportation Review Organization."

What do the railroads want? In summary: less regulation, equal treatment with other modes of transportation, and money.

To many people this sounds like an old, old story. An industry on top tries to dictate, even to government. Defeated, it then argues that free enterprise means government aid to help mismanaged or old fashioned or unneeded industries.

The railroads are now presenting a version of that argument. Some lines have been terribly mismanaged, and the concepts of others are myopic. But there is no doubt that they are essential. And there is growing evidence that they have an authentic complaint.

At any rate, their case, elaborately and skillfully prepared, can no more be ignored today than the whistle in the night.

Urge Return Of Hanging Penalty

WEST VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Western Canada's police chiefs have called for a return to hanging for all murderers.

Delegates to the 16th annual conference of the Western Canada Chiefs of Police Association passed a resolution Thursday favoring capital punishment for all cases of premeditated murder.

A five-year trial period under which only the killers of policemen or prison guards are liable to capital punishment expires at the end of 1972.

$297 Refund On Parking Ticket

VIRGINIA, Mich. (AP) — Officials of the city traffic bureau refunded $297 to a man who sent $300 in money orders to pay a $3 parking ticket.

The officials said William L. Lehto of Duluth apparently failed to see the decimal point in a reminder they sent him advising that he owed $3.00 on a Feb. 6 traffic ticket.

Search Goes On

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies waited for irrigation water to recede today so they could resume their search of peach and plum orchards that have yielded a 24th body. All were of men who had been stabbed and hacked to death.

Sutter County Sheriff Roy D. Whiteaker, driving away from the scene of the latest discovery Thursday told waiting newsmen: "It seems probable there are more bodies out there."

Thursday's find was the first since Saturday. Irrigation water had flooded sections of the orchards along the Feather River north of Yuba City, forcing searchers to wait until the ground dried to resume digging.

Farm labor contractor Juan V. Corona, 37, charged with 10 of the murders, remains in isolation at the Yuba County jail in Marysville, across the river from Yuba City.

Dedication Honors Greenville Resident

The Center for Instructional Media at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro will be dedicated in honor of Dr. Franklin H. McNutt, now a resident of Greenivlle, in ceremonies tomorrow.

Dr. McNutt retired in 1958 as professor of education and dean of the Graduate School at Woman's College (now UNC-G). In 1954 he was presented the O. Max Gardner Award, given annually to one faculty member of the University of North Carolina.

At the Woman's College, Dr. McNutt was known as a "teacher of teachers," a spokesman for UNC-G said. In 1954, one of his students wrote of him: "Dr. McNutt's distinguished gift for teaching embodies the tenet that every student is unique and of inherent value. He is uncompromising in his belief that within each student is the potential ability to make a worthwhile contribution to society. And he shares with his students his faith in their abilities. With his insight into the dynamics of human behavior, he graciously demands excellence in his students. And in so doing, he awakens those impulses and powers which enable each to reach the fullest stature."

Dr. McNutt is the father of Mrs. Charles P. Adams, also of Greenville.

American Legion Baseball Team Opening Home Season Sunday

There is an old saying that "Things are seldom what they seem," and Coach Johnny Holt feels that this might be the case of the 1971 version of the Greenville American Legion baseball team.

"We may not come out with a good record at the end of the regular season," Holt says, "but we're going to be all right in the playoffs."

And why might this be the case?

Well, the legion team currently has a bumper crop of pitchers, although two of them are suffering from arm problems. Most of the other teams, Holt feels, don't have such a wealth of pitchers so Greenville might be able to win over the long run.

"When we play them (the other teams in the league), we'll be facing their best pitchers, and they may be able to get by us. But in the playoffs, they have to go against us for several days in a row, and that's when the pitching will really pay off," Holt said.

"I think our chances are pretty good," he added. "We have the team that could win it all."

The Legion opened its season last Sunday against Wilmington's Post 10, a team that finished third in the country last season. Wilmington eeked out a 1-0 victory in 10 innings in the game.

This Sunday at 3:30 p.m., the locals will open their home season in Guy Smith Stadium. Their games will be played both there and on Harrington Field on the East Carolina University campus.

Holt noted that two of the better hitters on the team, Phil Bount of Robersonville and Roland Hooks of Vanceboro, were unable to join the group on the Wilmington trip and that might have made a difference. "A key hit would have won it for us," he said.

Two of the pitchers, Russ Smith and Jimmy Paige, are experiencing arm troubles at the present. Paige's could clear up shortly, but Holt is not expecting Smith to be ready until playoff time. In addition, Tommy Durham, who is working a new position, shortstop, was injured in practice earlier this week, and it is not sure whether he'll miss some games or not.

"We've got excellent defense," Holt said. "We've got a lot of experience, and some real good glove men out there. Everyone gave us a good effort at Wilmington, and we've just got to keep this up and try to improve, too."

Running down the positions, Holt listed his key players.

At catching, Joe West returns as a regular. Backing him up will be Chuck Finklea of Farmville.

At first base, Jimmy Bond is another experienced player. Blount is the backup man here.

J. C. Daniels or Bill Lee, both up from Babe Ruth League, are battling it out for the second base position. Durham's availability may be a factor here, too.

He's currently slated to be the shortstop for the team, but it he's unable to play, Lee will take over here.

At third, Kim Harbin, another veteran will be back. He'll be making a switch from second to third, however. Paige and Daniels are also working here.

In left field, as in center and right, Holt admits that he's uncertain. Timmy James of Robersonville, Joey Moore of North Pitt and Hooks are toe top candidates for the position.

Stanley Cobb and Paige are battleing for the centerfield duties, while Blount, Larry Hatton and Steve Worthington are right field candidates. Another prospect is Larry Dixon, who has experience at all three slots.

"A lot will depend on the hitting," Holt said. "All of them are good defensive, but how they do in batting practice will determine who starts."

On the mound, Holt can pick and choose from eight or nine. Besides Smith and Paige, now unready, Holt can pull in several hurlers. He lists Byron Dickens are his number one starter now, with Glenn Forbes of Robersonville, Hooks, Cobb, Daniels and Steve Arnaud behind him. Another possibility is another newcomer, Roland Potter of Aurora.

Holt said he would probably go with three different pitchers in Sunday's home opener, just to find out what he has.

Overall, Greenville has a 20-game schedule to be played before July 4. The playoffs will get underway during the week of the Fourth.

Following Sunday's home opener, Greenville begins conference play with three games this week. They play Kinston Monday, Tarboro Wednesday and Roanoke Rapids on Saturday. The first two are home contests at 7:30 at Harrington Field. They also play the Pamlico County All-Stars on Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Harrington Field.

Ken Holtzman Tosses No-Hitter As Chicago Nips Reds By 1-0

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ken Holtzman's strong left arm and some cooperative Cincinnati Astroturf have combined to produce the 1971 baseball season's first no-hitter.

Holtzman, the lanky Chicago left-hander, spun a 1-0 classic at the Reds to highlight the abbreviated Thursday night baseball action. In the only other games played, St. Louis trimmed Pittsburgh 7-1 and Atlanta downed Houston 5-2 in the National League and Boston edged New York 3-2 in American.

But the night belonged to Holtzman, who pitched the second no-hitter of his career, overcoming some early wildness and retiring the last 11 Reds in order. He struck out six, including Tommy Helms and Lee May for the final two outs in the ninth inning. The only Cincinnati runners came on four walks.

The Reds tried everything to get a hit off Holtzman and even went to the extreme of having slugger Johnny Bench lay down a leadoff bunt in the seventh inning. It was, according to Holtzman, his closest call.

"At first, I thought Bench had a hit," the 25-year-old pitcher said. "There was no way I could have thrown Bench out if the ball remained fair."

Holtzman rushed off the mound, across the Astroturf-covered infield and towards the ball.

"When I got over there, I saw the ball was spinning and I knew it would roll foul," the pitcher said. The ball spun off the artificial turn into foul territory and then Bench flied out.

That was the Reds' best chance for a hit. It seemed like such a good idea that Buddy Bradford, who drew two of the four walks off Holtzman, tried bunting in the eighth. But he ran into the ball and was declared out.

Holtzman had control problems in the early innings and got into his toughest jam in the third when Bradford walked and moved up on a wild pitch. He advanced to third on an infield out and then was stranded as Gary Nolan tapped in front of the plate and Hal McRae flied out.

In the top of the third, Holtzman scored the game's only run. He reached on Tony Perez' throwing error, moved up on an infield out and scored on Glenn Beckert's single.

Holtzman also pitched a no-hitter on Aug. 19, 1969 against Atlanta and said after Thursday's classic he felt much the same way he had after his first one—"A little in shock and awfully tired. I let if all out in the last inning."

Holtzman threw a total of 108 pitches and became the first Cub pitcher in history to hurl more than one no-hitter.

Elsewhere, Hank Aaron ripped a two-run pinch double to break a tie in the fourth inning and Atlanta topped Houston as Pat Jarvis halted a personal two-season 11-game losing streak.

Jarvis worked six scoreless innings in relief and Aaron, out because of an ailing knee, delivered his clutch pinch hit in the fourth inning as the Braves battled from behind.

Steve Carlton became the National League's first 10-game winner, pitching St. Louis past Pittsburgh. He also contributed a two-run double to the Cardinals' attack and ex-Pirate Matty Alou ripped his first homer and a pair of singles to drive in three runs for the Cards.

Boston ended its five-game losing streak and moved back into first place in the American League East by edging New York.

Pitcher Ray Culp's ninth inning single drove in the deciding run for the Red Sox, and reliever Bob Bolin stamped out a ninth inning Yankee rally. Reggie Smith homered for Boston and Thurman Munson connected for New York.

Pepsi Clobbers Exchange, 23-1

John Coffman tossed a two-hitter at the Exchange as Pepsi-Cola rolled to a 23-1 victory yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League.

The Graniteers are on top of the league with 7-0 record, followed by the Elks, 4-3 and Pepsi, 4-4. They are trailed by the Exchange, 3-5, and the Moose and Integon, both 2-5.

Coffman struck out nine and walked three in getting the victory.

Pepsi went to work in the first inning and pushed over two runs. MacDonald Avery and Michael Shank each reached on errors and advanced on a passed ball. Avery scored on an error and Mark Conway doubled to drive in Shank.

In the second, Pepsi came back to score five runs and take a 7-0 lead. Steve McClanahan singled and Perry Worthington walked. Avery reached on a fielder's choice and Shank walked to bring in McClanahan. Dana Kendrick reached on an error, scoring Worthington, and a double by Conway brought in Avery and Shank. Kendrick scored the final run on a passed ball.

In the third, Pepsi came back with eight more. Coffman reached on an error and McClanahan on a fielder's choice. Worthington walked to load the bases. Avery reached on an error, scoring McClanahan after Coffman had come across on a stolen base. Shank was hit by a pitch and Kendrick doubled in all three runners. Conway doubled in Kendrick and scored on Joey Cherry's single, making it 15-0.

Pepsi added six in the fourth, one in the fifth and one in the sixth for the 23-run total. The lone Exchange run came in the third, as Jay Cox singled, moved up on an out, stole third and scored on an error.

Idle Little Mint still leads the league with a 5-0 record, while Foodland is right behind with a 4-1 mark. They are followed by Piggly-Wiggly, 3-3; Coke, 2-4; and Wachovia, 0-6.

In the opener, Foodland pushed over all it needed in the first inning, scoring six runs. Georgia Potter singled and Joyce Sawyer got a hit. Diane Hurley then homered to make it 3-0. From there, Foodland went on to add one in the second, two in the third, two in the fourth, with a homer by Carolyn Hardee, eight in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Wachovia picked up four in the fourth and two in the third.

In the second game, Coke pushed into the lead in the first inning with three runs, including a homer by Linda Summerlin. Piggly-Wiggley came back with five runs in its half of the frame, but seven by Coke in the second pushed them ahead 10-5. Piggly Wiggly closed the gap with two in the bottom of the second, making it 10-7.

Then, in the fourth, Piggly-Wiggly pushed over five to take the lead at 12-10 and never trailed again. Hilda Avery singled and Joyce Martin, Shirley Davis and Jan Moore each followed with hits. Kay Jones doubled, and scored on a double by Maggie Harris, ending the scoring.

Piggly-Wiggly added the final two in the sixth, while Coke's final run came in the Sixth, also.

Optimists Gain Win Over Lions

The Optimists broke open a close game in the fourth inning and rolled to a 16-7 victory over the Lions yesterday in the North State League.

The win boosted the Optimist record to 7-1, a game and a half ahead of the second place Kiwanis, 5-2. They are followed by the Jaycees, R.C. Cola, and Coca-Cola, all 3-4, and the Lions, 1-7.

The Optimists took the lead in the top of the first, scoring three runs, Greg Lee walked and took second on a passed ball. Gary Allen reached on an error, but was cut down at second when Bob Peoples reached on a fielder's choice. Lee scored on the play. Jeff Aldridge doubled, and Gary Porter followed with another two-bagger, scoring both runners.

But the Lions came right back to score three in their half of the first. Mike Adams singled and advanced on an error. He scored when Dale Steele doubled. Another double, by Guy Bardbury brought in Steel. Bradbury moved to third on an out, and scored on Philip Gibbs' sacrifice fly.

The Optimists regained the lead with two in the second. Ricky Robinson singled and moved to second on a passed ball. Eric McCormick reached on an error, as did Greg Lee. The latter scored Shoe. Allen walked to lad the bases and Peoples singled in McCormick.

Then, in the fourth, The Optimists came up with five runs to move out into a 10-3 lead. Lee singled and Allen doubled. Peoples reached on a two-base error, scoring both Lee and Allen. Aldridge singled in Peoples, and he scored on a hit by Porter. Mac Stokes singled and Robinson reached on an error, scoring Porter.

Trinity First To Be Ousted

Trinity became the first team in the Church Softball League to be mathematically eliminated from the title chase last night, as it bowed to Piney Grove, 9-8. Black Jack took a forfiet win over St. Gabriel in the other game.

St. James leads the American Division of the League with a 9-1 record, followed by Meadowbrook, 8-2, and Presbyterian, 8-3. They are trailed by Belvoir, 6-6; Christian, 3-9; St. Gabriel, 2-10; and Trinity, 1-11.

In the National Division, Mt. Pleasant has a percentage point lead over Immanuel, with 7-3 and 8-4 records respectively. They are closely followed by Piney Grove, 7-4, and Black Jack, 7-5. Next come Grace, 6-6, Oakmont, 5-6, and Maranatha, 2-9.

Trinity pushed out into the lead in its game, scoring seven runs in the first inning as it tried to stay alive. But they didn't get another run until the seventh inning, and by then it was too late.

Piney Grove worked slowly, picking up a few along the way to get back into the game. They scored one in the first, then came up with four in the third. Two more crossed in the fifth, tieing it at 7-7.

Then, in the sixth, they scored two more to push ahead and get the win. The runs came on a double by Jimmy Evans and a homer by Wayne Avery.

Kenneth Manning had a homer for Trinity during its big inning, while Graham Crawford had another homer for Piney Grove, during their third inning.

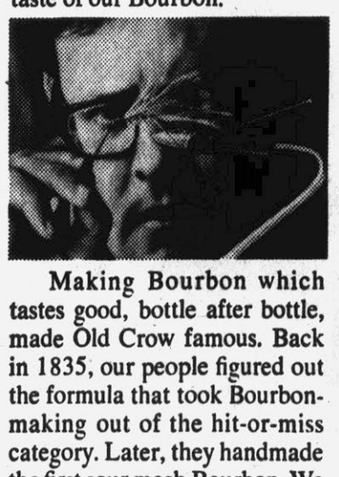
Old Crow's good taste begins with men who love to work with their hands.

Anthony Clark has a big responsibility. One false move of his hands and he's mixed the wrong measure of grain for the Old Crow formula. Does he ever miss? The proof is in the good taste of our Bourbon.



Making Bourbon which tastes good, bottle after bottle, made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that took Bourbon-making out of the hit-or-miss category. Later, they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon. We still use our hands in making Old Crow.

After work, most of our men keep on using their hands. Anthony Clark calls on the same craftsmanship mixing grain as he does tying fishing flies.

Over the years, craftsmanship like this has made Old Crow America's best-tasting Bourbon.

Belmont Awaits Crown Attempt

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Canonero II knows where the Belmont winner's circle is. Now all he has to do is get there Saturday and racing will have its ninth Triple Crown champion.

Trainer Juan Arias schooled Canonero II in the paddock Thursday and then led him to the winner's circle in front of the stands before the fifth race. He followed the same procedure before the colt won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

To win the Belmont Stakes and become the first to win the Derby, Preakness and Belmont since Citation in 1948, Canonero II will have to beat at least 10 other 3-year-olds. The most any of the eight Triple Crown champions faced in winning the Belmont was seven, by Citation.

Among those expected to oppose Canonero II, owned by Venezuelan Pedro Baptista, were four colts he already has beaten—Frank J. Caldwell's Jim French, second in the Derby and third in the Preakness; William A. Levin's Bold Reason, third in the Derby and fifth in the Preakness; Pastoral Stable's Twist The Axe, 10th in the Derby, and J.M. Davis' Royal JD, seventh in the Preakness.

Other probables were Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Epic Journey, Tartan Stable's Highbinder, Anthony Imbesi's Purse Finder, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lunger's Salem, Neil Hellman's Good Behaving and Peter Kissel's Pass Catcher.

Royal JD was entered Thursday. The others were expected to be entered today.

Good Behaving, the triple stakes winner who missed the Derby and Preakness, and Jim French will run as a John Campo-trained entry. Good Behaving was a supplemental nominee for $5,000.

Eleven starters would give the 103rd running of the 1½-mile Belmont a gross purse of $160,350, with $96,210 to the winner.

Post time for the race is about 5:35 p.m., EDT. Television coverage will be from 5-6 p.m. and radio coverage from 5:25-5:45 p.m., both by CBS.

Arias was in high spirits after Canonero II galloped 1½ miles Thursday morning under 135-pound exercise boy Earl Whye, who had all he could do to keep the Kentucky-bred colt in check.

Arias said Canonero II, who races in the name of Edgar Caibett, Baptista's son-in-law, is coming up to the race in good shape. "There is no question about the fact that he is in fine health," Arias said.

Kareem Abdul Jabbar Hopes He'll Be Known

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lew Alcindor says he wants to be known from now on by his Islamic name Kareem Abdul Jabbar.

Jabbar, most valuable player in the National Basketball Association last season with the Milwaukee Bucks admits he doesn't know if the public will accept his new name. But he says he will remind anyone who calls him by his given name.

Jabbar made his wishes known during a news conference Thursday at the State Department where it was confirmed that he, teammate Oscar Robertson and Coach Larry Costello will make a 25-day tour of Africa.

He said he took the name in the summer of 1968, after converting from Roman Catholicism to the Islamic faith, and first made it public in a two-part series in Sports Illustrated in 1969.

"This was the first public information about it," he told a news conference Thursday.

"And I have been kind of quiet about it until now.

"But now since I am representing my country, As Kareen Abdul Jabbar, I would like to get that respect from you, from my countrymen, if I can," he said.

Will he ask the Milwaukee Bucks to change his name in their basketball programs?

"Oh I don't know because I have become a public figure as Lew Alcindor and it is going to be difficult but you know, speaking to people and being addressed by people, I intend to remind them."

Jabbar, Robertson and Costello left Washington Thursday night for a tour of Algeria, Senegal, Mali, Nigeria, Tanzania and Somalia where they will conduct coaching clinics, give shooting exhibitions and meet with the players from each of the six countries.

Jabbar took with him his bride of a week, the former Miss Janice Brown of Los Angeles, now known as Habiba, who he married in Washington.

When he was asked where he was married, since no license was issued to him in the District of Columbia or its suburbs, he replied: "If I had been married a Christian or a Jew I would need one, but I was married in a private home under Islamic law."

The 7-foot-3 Jabbar said his Islamic name translated into English means: Kareem, "noble or generous," Abdul, "servant or Allah," and Jabbar, "Powerful."

Baylor Rumored As Laker Coach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There was widespread speculation today that veteran forward Elgin Baylor of the Los Angeles Lakers would be named coach of the National Basketball Association team after Joe Mullaney was fired.

The Lakers, with a lengthy history as a bridesmaid in NBA championship playoffs but never a bride, announced Thursday Mullaney was being "removed" and offered him an executive position.

Mullaney, in a statement released through the club, said he " reluctantly declined" the offer to become an executive vice president as head of scouting. He said he had "tendered my formal resignation to the club."

General manager Fred Schaus said he hoped to name a new coach shortly and the name of Baylor, the often injured 6-foot-5 star, began popping up. The club refused comment.

Baylor has had a series of knee and groin injuries which have stalked him in recent years. Then, last Dec. 2, the 36-year-old former Seattle University All-American underwent surgery for a torn Achilles tendon. He said the University of Washington has contacted him concerning the head coaching post, now vacant there, but Baylor has refused comment on his future plans.

The Lakers were successful under Mullaney, though injuries prevented them this past season of making much headway in the NBA playoffs. The previous year, Mullaney's first in the NBA, Los Angeles extended New York to seven games before losing the title.

"Nothing short of a championship will please Jack Kent Cooke," said one Laker source of the volatile owner of the team. And that's one of the reasons Baylor's name has been mentioned.

If Baylor was chosen, he'd be the first non-college coach named to head the team since it came west from Minneapolis. Schaus, of West Virginia, was the first Los Angeles coach and when he became general manager, Bill van Breda-Kolff of Princeton was chosen to succeed him. Mullaney was the third college draftee of Cooke, coming from Providence.

Miller Grabs Atlanta Lead

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — A two-month slump almost convinced young Californian John Miller to bypass the $125,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I've been scoring so badly lately I just wanted to go home," he said. "The only reason I came here is because I like this course."

The 24-year-old blond enhanced his liking of the hilly, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course Thursday when he fired a sizzling seven-under-par 32-33—65 with a round that included an eagle, seven birdies and a pair of bogeys.

It gave him a two-shot lead over a quartet deadlocked at 67—Jack Nicklaus, Orville Moody, Ray Floyd and Dave Eichelberger.

It was Miller's best round on the tour since his closing 68 that forged him into a two-way tie for second with Nicklaus in the prestigious Masters at Augusta two months ago.

Miller, who started on the back nine, scored his eagle three on the 509-yard No. 18—his ninth hole—when he pitched in from 40 yards. He birdied the first and second holes with putts of 30 and three feet and was on his way to equalling the first round record for the Atlanta event.

He also sank birdie putts ranging from 12-15 feet on four holes, two-putted for another on a par five hole and sank a five-footer on his other one. Miller's bogeys came on No. 16 where he put his tee shot in a bunker and on No. 4 where he three-putted.

Defending champion Tommy Aaron, whose only PGA tour victory in 10 years came in this tournament last year, shot a 71 and was well back in the field.

Nicklaus, ending his three-week layoff, had only one bogey when he drove an iron shot into the front bunker on the par three third and missed a 12-foot putt. Among his six birdies was a 35-foot putt on No. 4.

Seven others were deadlocked at 68—Lee Trevino, Bob Lunn, Gardner Dickinson, Jim Colbert, Jim Dent, Rod Curl and Bob Barbarossa. South African Gary Player and Masters champion Charles Coody were among eight players grouped at 69.

Almost one-third of the field—43 players—were under par after the opening round.

Peeples Says He May Retire

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — George Peeples says he would rather retire than report to the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.

Peeples, 27, said he had been assured by Carl Scheer, general manager of the Carolina Cougars of the ABA, that he was among three players who would be insulated from being chosen by the Stars as part of a deal by which the Cougars obtained the rights to Jim McDaniels, seven-foot rookie from Western Kentucky.

But Larry Keech, sports writer for the Greensboro Daily News, quoted Peeples as saying in an interview Wednesday, three days after being informed of his selection by Utah, that he would rather retire.

The story by Keech quoted Peeples, 6 feet 7, as saying he was in Los Angeles on business when the telephone call from Scheer on Sunday "woke me up at 5 a.m. Scheer told me about the deal. He told me his hands were tied in the matter. We talked for about four minutes. After two years of playing for the Cougars and getting pats on the back, he could give me only four minutes."

Peeples played two years with the Indiana Pacers of the ABA before going to Carolina.

Keech wrote:

"Peeples is in the process of establishing himself as the sales manager of Cougar teammate Joe Caldwell's carpet business. If he is relocated in Utah, he would lose that business opportunity. He also would have to establish a new home and establish himself with a new team.

"Peeples earned $19,000 last season with the Cougars. He stands to gain several thousand dollars in salary if he signs with the Stars.

"As of now, Peeples does not feel the move is worth the salary. Even if his business opportunity fails to pan out, he has a bachelor's degree in physical therapy from the University of Iowa to fall back on."

Bugs ate this lake clean.

In every lake or river or stream are tiny little microorganisms that eat pollution.

That's all they do. Eat and get fat and sink to the bottom. Where they won't bug you.

Long ago, scientists began using these bugs in waste treatment plants for cleaning up pollution.

The scientists knew that giving the bugs oxygen made them eat better. And reproduce more rapidly. So they found ways of adding air to waste water.

But there had to be a better way.

And Union Carbide found it. A system that gives the little bugs a straight shot of pure oxygen. To help them multiply faster and eat much more. So that pollution gets taken care of better. And faster. And in much less space.

It's something we call the Unox system. And it's getting plenty of interest all over the country.

Of course, hungry bugs isn't the only idea we've had to clean up water pollution. We've had a lot of good people working on detergents that chemically break down and don't spoil the water. And new instruments to constantly watch the water.

But back to bugs...

You should see the way they stuff themselves once you whet their appetites.

Scouts Visit Wilderness

Scouts and leaders from Greenville Scout Troop 205 are spending four days hiking and camping in the federal wilderness area in Linville Gorge in western North Carolina this week. Linville Gorge is one of the few completely natural rugged wilderness areas left in the eastern United States and offers an opportunity to study and live in a truly natural setting.

Scouts of Troop 205, sponsored by the Memorial Baptist Church, have been training for this rugged experience of Scouting for the past six months. All materials for shelter, living, and eating must be packed in. While in the Gorge, the Scouts will collect and cary out all trash left in the area by earlier hikers and campers.

Those going include Scouts, Jim Clement, Tommy Manning, Linus Martinez, Don Tucker, Alan Jones, Frankford and Melvin Johnson, Mike Indorf, Jule White, Alex King, Joe Thurber, John Miller, and Roger and Billy Billica.

Leaders are Scoutmaster Dr. J. E. Clement, J. T. Manning, Dr. Don Tucker, Dr. Milam Johnson, Dr. John Miller, and Dr. Harry Billica.

COSTLY KICKS

LONDON (AP) — The number of people who start fires "just for kicks" is rising in Britain. In 1969, the last year for which figures are available, 2,276 cases were known to police, a rise of 412 over 1968.

Middle-Of-The-Road Course At SBC Meet

By JAMES PUCKETT
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Middle-of-the-road philosophy along with concern for ministering in new and creative ways prevailed during this week's 114th session of the Southern Baptist Convention, a top SBC official said Thursday.

Porter W. Routh, executive secretary of the convention's executive committee in Nashville, Tenn., made the comment as the 11.6 million member organization would up a three-day meeting.

"The closing emphasis was on recognizing the problems and challenges of American cities, inner city plight, concentrations of old people and the relationship of the suburbs to the city," Routh said.

He referred to a resolution calling on Southern Baptists to "combat in every honorable way deeds, statements and innuendoes which tend to engender suspicion and hatred between men for whom Christ died."

Also important, Routh said, was a resolution affirming the Baptist stand for religious liberty of all people and "the rights of parents to send their children to nonpublic schools at their own expense."

Routh said he was "surprised" with delegate approval of a motion asking for rewriting of the Broadman Bible Commentary with "due consideration to the conservative viewpoint."

However, he said basically the action was a reaffirmation of a similar resolution adopted last year at the convention in Denver.

Delegates this year favored by 382 votes having the first Broadman volume, dealing with the books of Genesis and Exodus, withheld pending a rewrite along traditional Southern Baptist Bible interpretation.

More than 10,000 persons attended the three-day convention. About half of those took part in the Broadman voting.

Evidence of the middle-of-the-road thinking, Routh said, was shown in resolutions supporting President Nixon's conduct of the war in Southeast Asia, disavowing antisemitism "which some think erroneously is inherent in Christianity," calling for radical reform in the American prison system and favoring abortion "under such conditions as rape, incest, clear evidence of sever fetal deformity."

Day Care Bill Wins House Vote, 82-29

RALEIGH (AP) — Long-sought legislation to license and regulate child day care facilities in North Carolina was approved by the House Thursday by a 82-29 vote.

The bill, product of years of study and squabbling over the issue, was held for a final House vote Tuesday before moving on to the Senate.

The House approved the measure after a brief debate in which opponents asserted it would drive operators of some day care centers out of business and that it was the prelude to the state taking over the raising of children.

"This bill is not going to put anybody out of business except those who are in effect operating criminally," said Rep. Herschel Harkins, D-Buncombe.

Rep. Lane Brown, D-Stanly, told the House that children now are being "crowded into potential fire traps with substandard sanigary conditions."

The bill would create a 15-member board that would supervise the licensing after next Jan. 1 of day care centers caring for more than five children for more than four hours per day.

Those arguing against the bill included Rep. George Rountree, R-New Hanover, who told the House that the bill would "tend to drive out of business" people who have violated no criminal law.

Rep. Austin Mitchell, R-Rowan, said he would vote against the bill because he had received petitions signed by 2,500 persons and had gotten letters from 1,300 others who were all "dissatisfied with this bill."

Catholics Will See Changes In Ranks Of Clergy

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A new corps of married clergymen, the deacons, soon will be serving extensively in the Roman Catholic Church in this country.

After two years of training, about 50 of them are to be ordained in various dioceses by this fall, 30 of them in June. About 400 others are preparing for it. Most are married men.

Their entry into the Church's official ministry marks a dramatic break with its practice of more than a millenia, and sharpens questions about other possible changes ahead for the Catholic clergy.

"It is a very significant and historic step," says the Rev. William Philbin, of Washington, D.C., director of the Secretariat of the U.S. Bishops' Committee on the Permanent Diaconate.

It also has stirred new discussion of ordaining women and allowing priests to marry.

The new deacons to be ordained this summer, among 430 men now in training for the role at 13 centers across the country, will be able to carry out many of the functions of the priesthood.

By official ecclesiastical definition, they become clergymen, in major holy orders, authorized to baptize, preach, distribute Communion, officiate at weddings and funerals, conduct religious devotions and education programs and perform other pastoral duties.

Along with bishops and priests, they will share "in the official leadership of the Christian community," writes the Rev. Thomas E. Clarke, of Jesuit Woodstock College in New York.

However, unlike full priests, the new deacons won't be able to consecrate the bread and wine of the Eucharist the Lord's Supper-or hear confessions.

"While they can perform various liturgical functions, much of their work is expected to be supplemental, such as in hospitals, chaplaincies and other service programs," Father Philbin said.

In most cases, it also will be part time, since most deacons will remain self-supporting in their regular secular jobs, although some full-time assignments are contemplated now and more in the future.

They can be put in charge of small parishes, lacking a priest.

Heretofore, and for about 1,305 years, the diaconate in Catholicism has been a stage of ordination prior to entry into the full priesthood. But the new deacons are being ordained to it permanently, a practice in New Testament times and during Christianity's early centuries.

Mariner Nudged In Closer Orbit

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory planned to nudge the speeding Mariner 9 spacecraft toward a closer orbit of Mars with a small midcourse guidance correction today.

A 5.3-second burn of the spacecraft's 300-pound thrust engine at 5:22 p.m. EDT when the vehicle is 838,000 miles from earth will aim the probe so it will come within 750 miles of the red planet Nov. 13, officials said.

The course correction will be commanded via a radio signal from mission control early in the spacecraft's 247-million-mile journay to analyze and map the Mars' atmosphere and terrain.

Double Reward For His Thesis

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Union College senior Phil A. Robinson got a double reward for this political science thesis—an A and the distinction of having General Electric Co. accept the work for broadcast on three of its television stations.

Robinson, 21, said he spent 2,000 hours producing the thesis, a film documentary titled "The Democrats." It is a study of the "New Deal Coalition," which he says has been the source of Democratic party election strength since the 1930s.

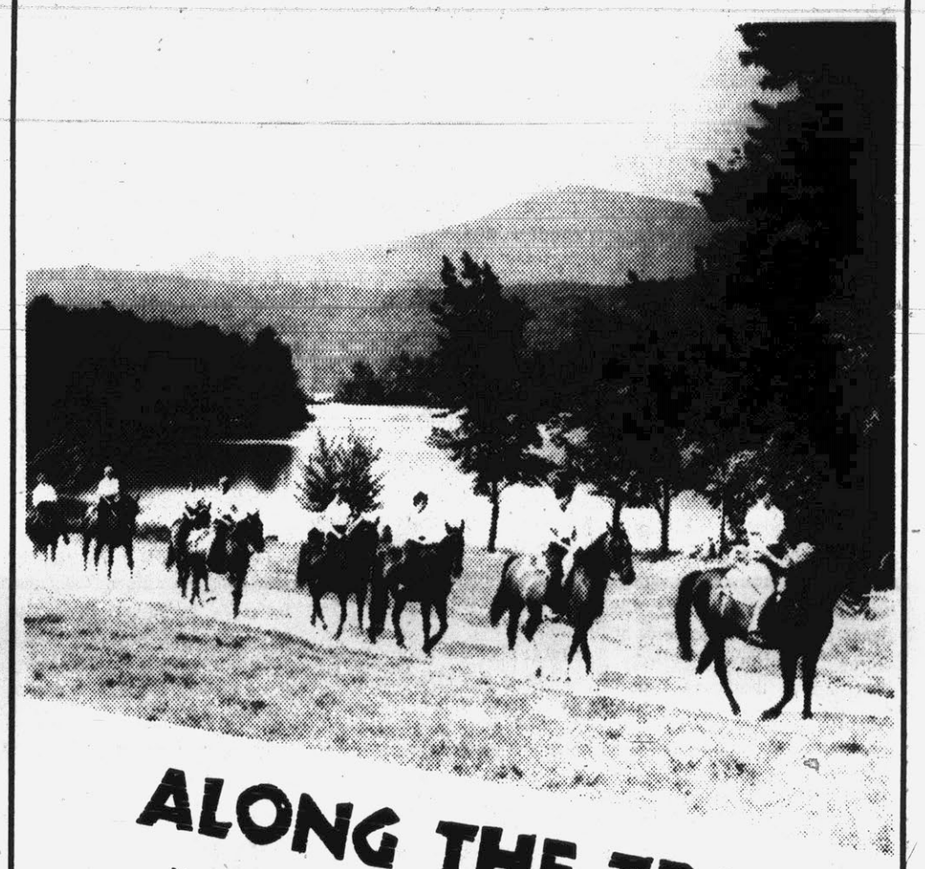
Students who want to take part in this program, whether registered or not registered, should report to the school at 8:00 a.m. Monday, June 7 for the registration - orientation program and the first day of classes.

Tuition is $25.00 for the six week course, which will be held for two hours each day.

More Protein In Today's Pork

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) —Today's pork has 22 per cent more protein, 57 per cent less fat and 36 per cent fewer calories than in the past, farm experts at Texas A&M University report.

Selection programs started during the middle 1950s by pork producers are responsible for the improvements. Choice of superior breeding stock, boars and gilts with a minimum of fat and maximum lean, has improved the quality of the pork.



ALONG THE TRAIL

Novices tend to follow the path, especially when it is straight and narrow. But even with experienced riders there can be unexpected turns, and it's possible to get lost.

In life there are very few straight paths. It is extremely easy to come upon an unexpected turn, and to encounter doubt, confusion, even despair.

Horseback riding is not compulsory. But you do have a life—and you have to live it. The way is up to you. If we get lost, we can give up, but with the help of the Church, you will find a trustworthy guide which will renew your faith and clear the way to the path of eternal fulfillment.

Worry Clinic

Surgery Needs 'Horse Sense'

Harley is worrying about the pro and con of the surgery his doctor urged upon him. Be grateful for the miracles that modern surgeons perform. But some doctors are "scalpel-happy" so employ your layman's "horse sense." And scrapbook this case today!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case Q-571: Harley S., aged 47, has hemorrhoids.

"Dr. Crane," he asked, "I have occasionally noticed a little bleeding at the stool.

"So I consulted a surgeon recently, who wanted me to come into the hospital immediately for a hemorrhoidectomy.

"He said I might develop cancer if I didn't have those hemorrhoids removed.

"But my father tells me he has had hemorrhoids for 25 years, yet he is still going strong, at the age of 79.

"So what should I do?"

Surgical Pro and Con

When I was an intern at Wesley Memorial Hospital in Chicago, the professor of internal medicine was making rounds one morning.

He was probably 55 years old and a famous medical scientist.

So several of us interns were always glad to accompany him.

"Gentlemen," he told us that day, "you must excuse me for a couple of minutes.

"For I must go to the rest room and push my hemorrhoid back into place!"

Remember, a hemorrhoid is merely an engorged and prolapsed vein.

Maybe constipation originally caused it to be pushed downward till it extrudes from the rectum and then is painful.

But this famous Chicago doctor had never submitted to surgery despite the fact he had been troubled by that hemorrhoid for 15 years!

Meanwhile, too, he probably had referred at least 1,000 hemorrhoid patients to his surgical colleagues to have their hemorrhoids cut out by surgery.

So why didn't he practice what he preached?

Well, he may have figured it was quicker merely to push the prolapsed swollen vein back up into place, instead of spending a few days in a hospital bed.

"Dr. Crane," an old carpenter told me recently, "I am now 82 years of age.

"But I have never had a bowel movement for the past 30 years except by my routine evening enema.

"For I was diagnosed as a victim of hemorrhoids 30 years ago and the surgeon wanted to operate on me.

"But I find I get along quite well with merely an evening enema.

"Besides, several of my friends who had their hemorrhoids removed years ago, have had them return anyway, so I figure I am ahead of the game."

It is not my intention to discourage legitimate surgery but a lot of doctors are "scalpel-happy" and immediately want to operate on the slightest provocation.

Ask any nurse, however, how seldom she sees an M.D. being operated on!

Unless there is complete obstruction of bowel or kidney output, as by cancer, the usual physician doesn't submit to such surgery.

And it is smart to consult at least two physicians, separately, and without telling the 2nd that you have already been checked by another doctor!

Surgery is a miraculous boon to mankind, when vitally necessary, but always use your laymen's "horse sense."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

The bidding:

South	West	North	East

Opening lead: Ace of ♡ Employment of the unusual no trump overcall backfired against West in today's hand when it guided South into a somewhat unusual line of play to land his six spade contract.

South opened the bidding with one spade and West overcalled with two no trump, which, in the methods used by his partnership showed a two suited hand in the minors and requested partner to bid the longer of those two suits.

North had ample values to freely raise his partner to three spades. When the trump fit was announced, South's holding assumed powerful proportions and slam appeared to be a reasonable gamble. He accordingly proceeded directly to six spades.

West opened the ace of hearts, and then shifted to the queen of diamonds which was taken in the closed hand with the ace. On the bidding, South decided to play West for at least 10 cards in the minors which would leave him with a maximum of three cards in spades and hearts. So reasoning, he led a small diamond and ruffed in dummy. The queen of spades was put thru for a successful finesse when East failed to cover. A small heart was led and ruffed in the closed hand. When West followed with the king, the remainder of North's holding became established.

South cashed the ace of spades, dropping East's king. He ruffed out the ten of diamonds with the jack of spades and discarded the five of clubs on the queen of hearts, to fulfill his contract.

If there had been nothing to guide him from the bidding and West had defended in the same manner by leading the ace of hearts and then shifting to the queen of diamonds, South might have chosen to take a ruffing finesse thru East for the king of hearts. Such a play would, of course, have enabled West to score the setting trick with the king of hearts.

Beatles, Apart Or Together, On Capitol

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Salvatore J. Iannucci, president of the Capitol Records, made the following comment in response to the story that the Beatles might never record together again as a group:

"Capitol's recording contract with the Beatles, through EMI, has 6½ years to run, and it covers all recorded performances, not only by the group as a whole but by any of its individual members."

John Lennon and Yoko Ono have three albums on Apple, distributed in the United States by Capitol; George Harrison has two; a new LP by Ringo Starr is being rushed into U.S. release and Paul McCartney has an April release.

The latter album, titled "McCartney," sold $2 million in prerelease orders in the United States.

A Success Story In Lawmen's Training

A Pitt Technical Institute program that started in 1967 with only nine students has proved to be a continuous success. The training program, one for law enforcement personnel, now has 60 students, including three women and ten in-service police officers.

Under the auspices of Pitt Tech's Police Science Department, the program is designed and dedicated to the improvement of the profession by offering Police Science Education to both pre-service high school graduates and in-service police officers.

Students spend approximately four hours per day in classes and labs studying subjects such as: Introduction to Law Enforcement, Police-Community Relations, Motor Vehicle Laws, Evidence and Procedure, Criminology, Jevenile Delinquency, Traffice Planning and Management, Criminal Law, Firearms and Defensive Tactics, Criminalistics, Fingerprinting, and Photography.

Students in these courses can obtain their Associate in Applied Science degree in Police Science in six quarters at a cost of about $75 per quarter for books, tuition and related expenses. Part or all of this cost may be obtained by qualified students through a loan or grant from the Law Enforcement Education Assistance Administration.

Graduates can expect to be placed with various law enforcement agencies. They are also being considered for positions with the Border Patrol. Others are transferring to four year schools to continue their education toward a B.S. degree.

Young people interested in this course are urged to contact Pitt Technical Institute officials for additional information.
