ECU Med School Legislation Hopes 'Good': Rountree

RALEIGH — "Chances are pretty good that the bills to finance the East Carolina University Medical School will be approved in both the House and the Senate," Rep. Horton Rountree said this morning.

"This is a priority item with the Governor; that's why we think it stands a good chance of being acted upon swiftly," he said.

Rountree and Rep. Sam Bundy introduced the measure in the House, but there were some 28 signatures on it, including those of two member of the High Board of Education, Rountree said. Senators Vernon White and Julian Allsbrook were the introducers in the Senate.

The bill states the need for approximately $1,400,000 for operating funds for a one-year program; $350,000 for a medical library; and $500,000 for clinical affiliations with community hospitals in non-urban areas.

The bill takes note of the State Board of Higher Education's approval of a plan under which ECU would set up a first-year program in cooperation with the UNC School of Medicine so that students trained for one year at ECU could complete their medical education at UNC.

Saigon Opens Coastal Areas To Oil Search

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government opened 160,000 square miles off its coast today for exploration and exploitation by foreign oil companies.

Economic Minister Pham Kim Ngoc said about 30 American, Japanese and European firms had expressed an interest in looking for oil in the continental shell off the Mekong Delta, an area stretching from the South China Sea around the southern tip of Vietnam into the Gulf of Thailand.

The area will be divided into blocs, and "all exploration and exploitation rights will be granted through open tenders and public bidding," Ngoc said. The bidding had been scheduled to open in February but was delayed for more discussions within the government.

The government has been saying since last winter that rich oil deposits are beneath the continental shelf off the delta, and President Nguyen Van Thieu last December signed a national petroleum law.

The oil companies now have 60 days to file their bids. The National Petroleum Board will evaluate the applications and make recommendations to the government. Ngoc said it probably would be "at least two years" before production began.

U.S. opponents of American involvement in the Vietnam war seized on the prospective oil development during the winter. "Are the potentially rich oil leases off the coast of South Vietnam responsible for the Nixon administration's failure to get our sons out of Vietnam?" asked Another Mother for Peace, a group which launched a letter-writing campaign demanding a Senate investigation.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee asked the State Department about the situation, and Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, ranking Republican on the committee, also expressed concern.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers stated that the possibility of oil deposits had "absolutely no effect" on U.S. policy, and the State Department wrote to Fulbright that the U.S. government "has not provided South Vietnam any technical assistance relating to offshore oil exploration." The department also said two American oil companies, Caltex and Esso, have offices in Vietnam, and only Esso had "expressed an interest in the country's offshore oil potential to the Department of State."

Cambodia already has granted oil exploration rights to a French company.

Endorse Penalties

RALEIGH (AP) — A House committee unanimously approved legislation today to provide stiff penalties for persons who put drugs or other harmful ingredients in food for human consumption.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. William Mills, D-Onslow, passed the Senate Tuesday without a dissenting vote.

Mills told the House Public Health Committee his bill was prompted by the pranks played on youngeters at Halloween when harmful objects are placed in candy distributed to them.

He cited clippings from newspapers outlining cases throughout the country in which children had been given candy containing such things as pins and razor blades.

Mills said that some months ago a 15-year-old girl in his county got an ice cream cone at a drive-in and someone placed a drug in it.

Under his bill, the punishment for placing any poisonous chemical or any foreign substance such as pins or razor blades in food would be not less than five nor more than 40 years in prison.

Senate OKs Draft Limit

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has approved the first congressional limit on draft calls in 30 years—but put it safely above the number likely to be inducted.

The 67-11 vote Wednesday set the ceiling for the year starting July 1 at 130,000 men with the call up for fiscal 1973 limited to 140,000.

The Pentagon has estimated the draft for the next fiscal year at 114,000.

The action Wednesday, along with approval of two amendments dealing with drug addiction in the military cleared the way for today's start of a weeks debate on U.S. Indochina policy.

A vote is scheduled next Wednesday on the McGovern-Hatfield amendment to cut off funds for U.S. operations in Indochina by Dec. 31.

Indications are it will lose by a margin similar to last year's 55-39 vote.

The Senate Armed Services Committee had voted to place a 150,000 annual ceiling on draft calls over the next two years but allowing the President to exceed the number by declaring "urgent national security reasons' required it."

But Armed Services Chairman John C. Stennis, who sponsored the provision in the committee, agreed Wednesday to reduce the numbers and take out the escape clause, saying changed conditions have made it unnecessary.

After the ceilings were set the Senate approved 78 to 4 an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to require congressional authorization for inductions over the ceiling.

The Senate then rejected 54 to 25 a proposal by Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, to lower draft calls to 100,000 next year and 60,000 the following year.

The debate on the McGovern-Hatfield amendment comes at the end of a week of lobbying on its behalf by lawyers, businessmen, labor leaders, church officials and others.

The McGovern-Hatfield forces also have launched a series of radio commercials designed to generate mail from constituents of doubtful senators.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, a McGovern-Hatfield suupporter, said last week he doubts the lobbying and other pressure will be much help since everyone's mind is already made up on the issue.

Belgium Cancels Airline Accord

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Ministry of Communication announced today Belgium has withdrawn from an agreement that permits U.S. airliners to land in Brussels and Belgian planes to land in New York.

The move was made because the United States had refused to grant the Belgian airline Sabena the right to fly between Brussels and Chicago in addition to its New York route.

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (AP) — M. Sgt. William Higdon, 41, of East Point, Ga., a career soldier with 24 years service, was convicted today of accepting kickbacks and stealing funds while running Army clubs in Vietnam.

Charge Murder

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — District Solicitor Ogden Parker said a warrant for murder would be prepared today against a retarded teenage boy for the fatal beating of an 8-year-old mentally retarded girl who was an inmate in a state institution here.

Parker said the boy would then be taken to the state mental hospital in Raleigh to determine if he is mentally competent to stand trial on the charge.

The 15-year-old retarded boy confessed to the brutal beating of Patricia Williams of Raleigh shortly after it occurred, said Dr. Vernon Mangum, superintendent of the institution.

Tobacco To China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today a broad range of America-made products that may be sold to mainland China, including automobiles, some industrial equipment, and most consumer goods.

Ending a 21-year embargo on trade to the Communist country, President Nixon made public the list of exports that U.S. industry may ship to Red China under a general license, meaning the products can be shipped without further approval from the government.

Nixon said the list includes most farm, fish and forestry products, tobacco, fertilizers, coal, selected chemicals, rubber, textiles and some metals.

In addition, he said, agricultural, industrial and office equipment is included, as well as household appliances, electrical apparatus in general industrial or commercial use, some electronic and communications equipment, and some automobile equipment and consumer goods.

Nixon also decided to sweep aside a requirement that American business must obtain government permission to export wheat, flour and other grains to China, Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

The Chinese export list appeared to parallel closely a similar list on exports to the Soviet Union, which has been in existence for some time.

Nixon said products not listed on the general license list may be considered for specific licensing "consistent with the requirement of U.S. national security."

This is the way the United States now handles exports considered to be of a strategic nature to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

Lt. Gov. Advises County Planning

RALEIGH (AP) — One of the most critical needs in North Carolina is county planning for orderly growth in the decades ahead, Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor said today.

"It's too late for the cities to do much planning," Taylor said in an interview. "But in the counties we can take steps now to prepare for an orderly growth. We are a state of small towns. We have not had the problems of some other states in the growth of cities."

Taylor, looking at the two decades ahead, said: "If the present expansion of state government, both in its sphere of operation and number of employes, continues, it will overwhelm us by 1991."

He added, "Somebody, somewhere has got to start talking about making state government more efficient. One of the hardest things to do in a democratic type of government is to get people within it to be economy-minded."

Taylor pointed out that "private industry will use three people for a job that very often will require five persons for the same job in state government."

He said the profit and loss motive in government is not as great as in industry.

Taylor, who is expected to officially announce later this summer that he will seek the Democratic nomination for governor in 1972, said that "too often we treat tax money like it's nobody's money. We cannot continue to do this."

On the legislative front, Taylor said "we're moving toward annual sessions and fulltime legislators. I doubt if we need 170 legislators."

If the General Assembly should move to annual sessions, he noted, legislators would want more money, a fulltime secretary, a staff and possibly a car.

Taylor predicted that fewer committees will be a coming thing in legislaturs of the future, and said streamling is definitely needed.

Sen. Hector McGeachy, D-Cumberland, has suggested that the House speaker, president pro tem of the Senate and chairmen of key committees should be permitted to serve three terms instead of one.

"There is some advantage in continuity of service," Taylor said.

Aerobatic-Type Maneuver Was Crash Prelude

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The lone survivor of an aerial collision between a Marine Phantom jet and a jetliner says the military fighter did an aerobatic-type maneuver—a 360-degree roll one minute before the collision, the National Transportation Safety Board says.

Acrobatic flight within a traffic control airway—where the collision occurred—would be in violation of federal regulations, said spokesmen for the Federal Aviation Administration and the Marine Corps. The FAA has said the airliner was in a control airway, airspace where at least one aircraft is under FAA control.

Fifty persons, 49 aboard the Hughes Air West DC9 and 1st Lt. James R. Phillips, pilot of the supersonic Phantom, were killed in the collision Sunday over the San Gabriel Mountains 25 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Brad Dunbar, a NTSB spokesman, said Wednesday the aerobatic-type maneuver of the F4 was described in a statement to crash investigators by 1st Lt. Christopher Schiess, the radar intercept officer aboard the military plane. Schiess parachuted to safety.

Dunbar said that because of federal regulations, the board could not release the full statement until the government agency holds a formal hearing into the cause of the crash.

Planning For Solution To Medical Shortages

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP) — Director Cameron West of the State Board of Higher Education told the North Carolina Hospital Association today what his board has planned toward possible solution of the state's medical manpower shortage.

In remarks prepared for delivery, West outlined the proposals of the higher education board in the fields of medical education, dental education, nursing education, allied health education, and veterinary medicine.

West pointed out that the cost of educating medical personnel is very high. "The board is well aware of the extreme expense of education for such personnel," he said. "For example, the 1971-72 estimated per student cost for operation in health affairs at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill is over $5,200 compared to an approximate $2,450 per student in academic areas."

He reported that the board had been instrumental in encouraging the establishment of a state health manpower information service.

"I am happy to report that a health manpower information and planning unit has been established in the office of Comprehensive Health Planning of the State Department of Administration," he said.

Draws Fine For Pointing Python

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Maurice Britz was fined $25 for pointing a python at a tailor.

Britz, 22, told the police court that he left his jacket with the tailor to have six Hell's Angels badges sewed on it. When he picked up the jacket, a Blue Max badge was missing.

The tailor said he knew nothing about the Blue Max, so Britz got Freddie, his 9-foot pet python, waved the nonpoisonous snake in the tailor's face, saying, "Freddie will find out the truth."

REDUCED TOLL

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. embassy here has revealed Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker will go to Washington Sunday for consultations on the possibility of speeding up withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam.

Charges Viet Reds 'Playing Politics' With Its Prisoners

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador David K. E. Bruce charged today that the Vietnamese Communists are playing politics with American prisoners of war and called this reprehensible.

The head of the American delegation to the Vietnam peace talks also called on the Communists to confirm and clarify recently published statements concerning the prisoners and other issues holding up settlement of the war. His request was ignored.

Bruce apparently was referring in part to a suggestion by former defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford that if the United States promises to withdraw its troops from Indochina by Dec. 31 the American prisoners would be released in 30 days.

Clifford said he came to this belief on the basis of conversations with a number of unidentified people.

Bruce said the attitude toward the prisoners adds "to the doubt and suffering of these helpless men and their families. Your attempt to trade on this doubt and suffering for political purposes is reprehensible."

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, head of the Viet Cong delegation, repeated the hard Communist stand on U.S. troop withdrawals and freeing prisoners, apparently knocking out the indications of any softening of the Viet Cong-North Vietnamese position.

Support Help To Private Institutions

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A survey by the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB) has shown apparent widespread support among public officials and education leaders in the South for some form of state support of private institutions of higher learning.

A report on the study said 60 per cent of those responding to the survey favor partial state support as a means to aid such private institutions.

Direct aid to students was seen as the most fesible way to provide state support, the report said.

Respondents to the SREB survey were listed as governors, attorneys general, legislators, members and executives of agencies of higher education and presidents of public and private colleges.

The study was conducted by William H. McFarlane, chairman of humanities at George Mason College of the University of Virginia, and Charles L. Wheeler, director of the North Carolina Higher Education Facilities Commission.

According to the SREB, only 5 per cent of respondents to the survey rejected all forms of state aid to private colleges and universities.

"Particularly noteworthy is that only 50 per cent of all respondents agreed with the contention that state support violates constitutional seperation of church and state. It would thus appear that church-state objections are not as pervasive as one might think," the SREB said.

"While substantial, the amount of concern is probably less than intuitive guesses might have forecast and, in any event, appears to be more of a philosophical reservation than a practical barrier to including church-related colleges in appropriate types of state support."

Member states of the interstate compact which supports SREB are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia.

Relegated To Kitchen, Or Dead-End Job

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)— Sex-role training has relegated the American woman either to the kitchen or to a dead-end job, say the first husband-and-wife team ever appointed to the Stanford University faculty.

Such training, say psychologists Daryl and Sandra Bem, orients a boy toward science, mathematics and "how things work," while girls are aimed toward what society considers appropriate feminine roles whether or not the girl is a mathematical whiz or has the makings of a first-rate scientist.

The outcome, they say, is that the majority of women become full-time homemakers, "and of those who work, 78 per cent wind up in dead-end jobs— clerical, service or factory workers or sales clerks. Only 15 per cent are classified by the U.S. Labor Department as professional or technical workers."

"Women are the victims of a nonconscious ideology which is ingrained into them from childhood," the Bems said in a recent talk given together.

It can't be true that women are different entirely because of their biology, they contend, pointing to the Soviet Union, where one-third of the ,engineers and 75 per cent of the physicians are female.

"Female physiology is different and it may account for some of the psychological differences between the sexes, but America's sex-role ideology still seems primarily responsible for the fact that so few women emerge from childhood with the motivation to seek out any role beyond the one that our society dictates."

The Bems have been married six years and have an "egalitarian" marriage. Neither will take a professional position at any college unless the other is given full faculty status also.

Around the house, no particular sex-role is assigned to anyone (they have no children) whether it be dishwashing, grocery shopping or housework.

"Either one of us can do it," Mrs. Bem says, "and some of it just doesn't get done."

What's Good For Lockheed . . .

It wasn't too many years ago that controversy raged over a high federal official's assertion that what is good for General Motors is good for the country."

Now we're hearing high officials declare that what's good for Lockheed is good for the country.

Well, maybe both statements are correct. But maybe both are also wrong.

If Congress approves a proposal to guarantee a quarter billion in loans for giant Lockheed, what kins of assurances are there that this guarantee will not prove just a down payment on an even more costly federal venture into private enterprise. If the nation's largest defense contractor couldn't make ends meet without federal guarantee of its loans, how can it expect to operate with sufficient efficiency to survive once it become further entwined with federal red tape that will go with the federal loan guarantees?

Surely it would be a severe blow to the nation's economy if Lockheed goes broke as it says it will without federal guarantees to enable it to borrow another $250 million. Some 65,000 jobs are at stake, the experts say, including 30,000 workers employed by Lockheed and its subcontractors. And for the Nixon administration, the lopping off of another 65,000 jobs in the face of an already pressing unemployment problem is unthinkable.

But would the loan guarantees end the problem, or just pave the way for larger, more expensive problems?

We are inclined to believe the latter would result.

Proponents of the loan guarantees leave the impression that the nation would find it difficult to survive economically or otherwise without Lockheed. But they offer no guarantee that the loans will assure the survival of Lockheed in the long run.

If the nation and its system of free enterprise must get along without Lockheed, better it begin the difficult period of adjustment now than 250 million dollars later.

Basic Training For Leadership

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH. — Local government is a good training ground for public leadership at higher levels.

Henry Milgrom of Battleboro put in 25 years — half his lifetime — as town official and county commissioner before being elected to the North Carolina Senate. The experience served him well, he found, as preparation for duties as state legislator.

An acquaintance followed the same route further: on to

BRYAN HAISLIP

Governor of Maryland, and Vice President of the United States.

Milgrom got to know Spiro T. Agnew back in 1952-53 when both were Democrats and county officials active in the National Association of Counties. Since then Agnew has switched parties, developed a rhetorical style, and travled extensively.

The former colleagues saw each other when the Vice President came to Raleigh recently to address the General Assembly on the merits of revenue sharing as advocated by President Nixon's administration.

"He winked. I don't know whether he recognized me," said Senator Milgrom.

Similar But Changed

Some things are the same, some things are changed when a county commissioner becomes a state senator.

He deals with similar problems of budget (taxes and spending) and services (education, law and order, health and welfare), but on a scale vastly expanded. He's subject to the same pressures from lobbyists and public, but with variations in pitch and intensity.

Instead of one among five commissioners, he is one of 170 General Assembly members, there are 49 other Senators, plus the Lieutenant Governor as presiding officer. First Monday meetings at the county seat each month becomes a six-month stay in Raleigh, more or less, once in two years with the possibility of special sessions.

A newcomer could get confused, Senator Milgrom agreed. "You could very easily get a feeling of helplessness...if you didn't realize its been going on a long time, and apparently has worked well," he added.

Local government service gives a perspective to state legislation. "You realize from the beginning that what the legislature does imposes certain burdens on the local governments. particularly the counties," Milgrom said.

Money Decision Felt

"Every time the legislature fails to appropriate sufficient money for full operation of the nine months school term, it levies a tax in each of the 100 counties of the state.

"Every time the legislature decides — as it did in recent sessions — that jails must meet certain standards, it imposes a financial burden on the budgets of every local government operating a jail.

"Every time the legislature adopts the budget for social services (formerly called welfare), it determines what amount the counties must budget to make up the non-federal share of the costs."

Milgrom plunged into public life early. He was a town commissioner of Battleboro at 25, later served as mayor. He was a Nash County commissioner for 18 years, seven as chairman. During that period, he was active in the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, and its president in 1962.

Ironically, in winning Senate election Milgrom defeated Dallas L. Alford, Jr., of Rocky Mount, another long-time local government leader and also a past president of the county commissioners association.

Local Governments Hurting

Milgrom concurred in the diagnosis that local governments are in trouble today. Strapped for revenue and swamped with demands for services, cities and counties everywhere are in a bind.

"We passed the buck," he said, from habit identifying himself with local officials. Hesitation about handling hot potatoes locally, he suggested, opened the way for state and federal programs to meet needs which could have been met better and cheaper at home.

Whether revenue sharing, as expounded by Vice President Agnew on his recent visit, represents a way out calls for close study, Milgrom said.

"I approach it with mixed emotions. I know you don't get something for nothing," he remarked. "I'm going to dig into it. I have some sincere questions."

County commissioner and state senator both feel the pressure of what their constituents are thinking. Evened off, said Milgrom, pressures of the two jobs probably are about equal.

"The pressure on a commissioner is more personal, in that he gets it on the street corner, at home and in conversations with friends and neighbors," he said. "It's diluted for a legislator, in that people relaize he is one-in-170 rather than one-in-five. Perhaps people expect something, but at least they don't look for it to happen the next day."

Additional Service To Additional Properties

A large increase in property tax for Pitt County this year should be helpful to the county commissioners in preparing their revenue estimates for the next fiscal year.

Commissioners were told this week that approximately $19.72 million has been added to the tax books in assessed property value.

County Manager Reginald Gray said based on the current tax rate this property would bring in about $260,000 in additional revenue.

Of course, the additional property means the county must furnish services to the new properties, but the extra revenue should be helpful.

Eure May Have Race On Hands

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — The word keeps leaking out, almost as if it comes from the good old boys down at the general store, that Thad Eure's going to have to run for his political hide next year.

Eure is North Carolina's Secretary of State and has been for 35 years. He's served with ten Governors and when election time rolls around next year he'll be 72 years old.

You might say Eure is sort of an institution. He sits in his gargantuan office in the Old State Capitol building and somehow a visitor gets the impression that here stays the King of the Mountain.

But the King has been there for 35 years, he's getting old, and a good many people are saying there ought to be a change.

There are persistent reports that Eure will get opposition in the Democratic primary next year from Gene Simmons, an Easterner who is also chairman of the Tar Heel Democratic Party. That ought to be enough to frighten anybody who has to count his votes before he can return to his office.

"I haven't felt better in 10 years," Eure says. "I have no plans to run for Governor, or the U.S. Senate or for Attorney General. I plan to run for Secretary of State."

What is your reaction to the possibility of having to run against a man, say like Gene Simmons?

"I have no reaction to it a'tall," Eure says. "Anybody who wants to run for it, it's an open field. I don't own the office. It belongs to the people."

Eure says Simmons hasn't talked to him about such a race. The Secretary of State says he and Simmons are pretty good friends and maybe this talk is being generated by some other folks.

But deep down in his heart, Eure knows there is some serious talk among politicians to dislodge him from office.

"I might challenge any and all opponents to a 100 yard dash," Eure said. "I figure I'd win. If I have opposition, they will have to talk about my age and my length of service. There could be no charges that I haven't run the office with efficiency, with dispatch, and with all the courtesy that I could command."

When it comes to Tar Heel politics, Eure is a combination Rhodes Scholar and prize fighter. He understands politics, visits regularly with legislators, and you don't get elected to statewide office nine times without having a pretty good organization.

The King also keeps himself in good physical condition. As he puts it:

"I don't ride that bicycle five miles a day for nothing. I feel like a 16-year-old. I'm the youngest man up here."

Chances are that Eure will have opposition — serious

On Commencement Trail

SCRABBLE, Va. — Most of us in middle age have at least a hazy recollection of our own Commencement Days, whether from high school or from college, and we remember this much: Attendance was required. And when Mrs. Marple, or whoever was head of the music department, took off her rings and fetched the opening chords of "Pomp and Circumstance," every graduate was expected to be on hand.

It is a declining tradition, I am told, and it seems a pity to see the old rituals slowly slip away. At many colleges and universities, Commencement Week has been compressed to half a day. The administrations, yielding to the new permissiveness, permit the graduates to show up or stay away as they please; and many of the graduates, perceiving that commencement has been thus downgraded, save the gown rental money and take to their heels.

Baccalaureate sermons, I am further advised, are very nearly a thing of the past. State-supported institutions abandoned such ceremonies long ago, and the custom falters even in private schools within the Bible Belt. A number of colleges have ditched commencement speakers also, on the advice of student leaders threatening boycott or riot if they should be compelled to hear one more adult voice. It is only a matter of time, perhaps, before the whole business is turned over to computers, and the graduate receives not a diploma but a print-out.

I have lately been on the commencement trail, speaking to the moist graduates of nearby high schools, dabbing at their brows, the girls white-gowned, the boys in black. I pause to remark the value—even the necessity—of ritual in a society that is getting a little too shirt-sleeved for its own good. When we deny ceremony, we deny memory; we pull up roots.

The Roman Church lately has been going through this modernization process, yanking Greek and Latin from its Mass; and with deference to the reverend fathers, I wonder if the "comprehension" and "participation" they have gained is half so useful as the mystery they have tossed away. And not mystery only, but hierarchy, authority, solemnity—these lose their old stature.

The British understand these things far better than we do. Viewed rationally, the tie-wigs of their judges and barristers are the merest frippery. The House of Commons could dispence with the costumed procession

Embarrassment

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

One of the great embarrassments Communist regimes around the world must inevitably suffer is the choice frequently made by their citizens when given a chance to get out from under the heavy hand of police — state government.

Such is the case in Vietnam where more than 600 North Vietnamese prisoners were given the opportunity by the allies to leave POW camps and return to their homes in Communist North Vietnam. There were no strings attached; no prisoner-exchange deals or anything else.

Guess what happened? Just what the Hanoi Reds feared would happen: The overwhelming majority of the enemy POWs elected not to go back. Swiss delegates of the International Committee of the Red Cross who interviewed 570 sick and wounded prisoners confirmed that only 13 were willing to return to the North. South Vietnam then located 90 other sick and wounded and they, too, refused to go home.

That episode tells us a great deal about Communism, doesn't it? Down through history there have been stroies of military prisoners languishing in PW camps, their sole disire in life being to return to their country and to their loved ones. What manner of prisoner would refuse such an opportunity?

Well, the kind of prisoner who would refuse such an "opportunity" is a man who feels he's better off in the enemy prison camp than back home as a "free" civilian. And that's what Communism is all about. These prisoners in South Vietnam are living testimony to the brutality that is Communism. They are living evidence that the Communism form of government is not for human beings.

All of this is extremely embarrassing to the Reds who are always trumpeting the superiority of Communism while downgrading free - enterprise, democratic — or other nationality — prisoner refusing to come home after having served in Communist PW camps.

So the Reds have to smokescreen their embarrassment by issuing the usual charges. And indeed they have done so in the Vietnam case. They claim the U.S. and South Vietnam are deliberatley going back on an offer to repatriate these prisoners.

The New Flower Shop of the Greenville Floral Company has been completed and decorators were busy today arranging colorful displays of flowers for the opening tomorrow. The Flower Shop is located in the front of the residence of L.S. Spence owner of the Greenville Floral Company, next door to the greenhouses on East Third Street. The entire front of the residence had to be remodeled to carry out the display room idea.

J. Frank Harrington, clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, left today for Durham to attend commencement exercises at Duke University. His son Milton is among the graduates.

Misses Agnes and Carolyn Fullilove, members of the faculty of the Greenville city schools. will attend the summer session at East Carolina.

Strength For Today

WORDS FROM A FRIEND

A letter from a retired missionary begins: "To Friends of Auld Lang Syne, greetings." The writer has passed his ninetieth birthday. His wife has passed away. Children, grandchildren, direct descendants and in-laws are busily engaged. My friend's letter ends with the statement: "We can tell you but little of our thirty-two loved ones. By inheritance they are world-minded. Eleven are now working with little enough income, we should imagine." "We are grateful," writes the brave soul who composed an interesting and inspiring letter. His final admonition to his friends is: "Stand fast in the Lord . . . Rejoice in the Lord always . . . In every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your request be made known unto God. And the peace of God which passeth all understanding shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there by any praise, think on these things."

Battlefield bravery is usually of a high order, and we honor those who offered to lay down their lives for liberty and goodness. But there is another variety of courage. We see it often in the attitudes of those who go about in wheel chairs. War ? Drug addiction? Troubles aplenty on a budget that even a few years ago would have been considered stringent — they all know these things. Yet there is laughter in their conversation, good will in the observations they make of the world, their neighbors, themselves.

Trans-Atlantic Lines Want You

By ELMER ROESSNER

Lower transatlantic air fares may result from the International Air Transportation Association meeting in Montreal beginning June 28. The international air cartel is expected to return to its policy of trimming air fares. That policy was reversed last year when the lines agreed on a 5 per cent increase.

One proposal being considered by several lines is to allow large discounts on fares paid for three to six months in advance. Proposals vary, with some lines wanting no refunds if passengers canceled; others proposing a 25 per cent penalty in case of cancelations. Meanwhile, Pan American, TWA, Sabena and Air France have introduced $200 round-trip fares to Europe for youths and other transatlantic airlines will follow before you read this.

COMMENT: Transatlantic airlines are under great pressure to attract passengers. Most of them accepted delivery on the giant 747s just when both business and pleasure travel fell off. These are leased or bought with borrowed money and in either case the carrying charges are high, so high that partly - filled 747s operate at a loss.

At the same time, charter flights have cut deeply into the regular airlines' traffic. There have been many cases in which groups have been stranded in Europe, but when youths have not enough money for even a tourist ticket on a scheduled airlines, they have to risk being stranded or staying home.

And Icelandic Airlines, a nonmember, consistently undersells scheduled airlines, although its routes are limited.

Aluminum, Copper, Steel Prices Going Up Again

New wage contracts in aluminum and other nonferrous industries are pushing prices up and steel prices are rising although labor negotiations have barely begun. Settlements continue to run around 10 to 12 per cent a year for three years.

COMMENT: This insures a rise in prices for appliance, electronic devices and automobiles through 1973. Note that auto prices have been inching up. The usual pattern has been to stick to prices announced when new models were introduced then, as sales slowed, to make undercounter price cuts or thrown in extras. This year the process seems to have been reversed.

Justice Accuses Alcoa Of Reciprocal Buying

The Justice Department has filed a civil antitrust suit alleging Aluminum Co. of America entered reciprocal purchasing arrangements with suppliers and customers, and has also filed a consent judgment for court approval.

COMMENT: The law is clear: It is illegal to buy from a customer or supplier unless they offer the lowest competitive price or other competitive terms.

Nevertheless, it is human nature to do business with the people who buy from you. Congress has long been trying to chance human nature with few marked successes.

A Realistic Tax Advised

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to permit taxation of farm land based on its farming value would be good for the state's economy and its ecology, the Senate Finance Committee was told Wednesday.

Robert H. Caldwell, legislative representative for the State Grange, told the committee that the legislation would prevent high tax values from forcing farmers to sell or develop their land in order to pay taxes that farming could not economically pay.

From the standpoint of ecology, preserving the land as farmland helps to conserve pure water, oxygen-producing plants "and psychologically invigorating open spaces," Caldwell said.

Caldwell told the members of the committee that the assembly has the legal and popular tools to enact the legislation, provided by a recent constitutional amendment that was passed by a sizeable vote of the people.

Meanwhile, the same legislation was debated on the floor of the House but was packed off to a subcommittee when several members said they doubted it would accomplish what its proponents said it would.

that brings the Speaker and the mace-bearer to the hall. What value inheres in royal ermine in an age of stainless steel?

It is the value of memory, the affirmation of a past, the recognition of rank and order. There is something in the uneasy, apprehensive soul of man that needs an occasional grand occasion. Eddie and Tricia would be just as validly married, come Saturday afternoon, if they slipped off to City Hall; but ritual would be poorly served. A military post could function without reveille in the morning and taps at night, but we would lose that unbilical sense of bugles past.

The young people who scoff at commencement exercises put too much stock in being rational. They complain of the academic gowns, the tassles and mortar boards, and they object correctly that these have nothing to do with education. Commencement addresses are highly forgettable specimens of forensic art. And why award a diploma "magna cum laude" in a school where Latin no longer is taught?

The answer is that rationality ought never to be regarded as the be-all and end-all. The apparently meaningless custom has meaning in fact—in the fact that it is a custom. The man who gets into white tie and tails, or into the regalia of the fraternal Moose, is not the same man one meets on a sidewalk. He has embraced ritual; he is a little more elegant; he rises to meet an occasion.

None of the well-scrubbed graduates of my recent endeavors is likely ever to recall a commencement address. The words blow away on an evening breeze. But years hence, they may recall the walk across a high school stage, the milk-warm night, the flashbulbs like heat lightning on the steps outside. They will have known a little of pomp and circumstance. It is no bad thing to know.

Study Reducing Income Tax On Retired Servicemen

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — State income taxes of retired servicemen would be reduced under a bill up for final House consideration today.

The House voted 78-33 to give tentative approval to the bill that would exempt from state income taxes up to $3,000 of the retirement pay of the former servicemen.

The bill still must go to the Senate, which has passed a similar measure except that the income tax exemption would not apply until age 60.

The House rejected an amendment by Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, to write the same provision in the House bill.

Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, who sponsored the bill, told the House the bill would "correct an inequity" because retirement pay of other groups including retired government workers, teachers and state employes is subject to similar exemptions.

DeBruhl said the State Department of Tax Research had estimated that the measure would cost the state from $800,000 to $1.3 million a year in revenue. He offered, and the House adopted, an amendment to defer the effect of the measure until the 1972 income year to lessen the bill's effect on the state's budget for the next biennium.

DeBruhl predicted passage of the bill would cause retired military men and their families to flock to North Carolina in such numbers that the state would soon earn more in sales taxes from retirees than it would lose in income taxes.

He said the retired military folk were fine citizens and highly trained and would be an economic asset to the state.

Before it passed the bill, the House voted 66-40 to defeat an amendment offered by Rep. Jack Rhyne, D-Gaston. It would have limited the income tax exemption to retirees whose gross income was not over $5,000 a year.

In arguing for his amendment, Rhyne told the House the state's budget is so tight that an appropriations subcommittee recently had to cut funds for the medicaid program. He said the state could not afford the revenue loss the bill would cause.

Rep. Mary H. Odom, D-Scotland, offered and then withdrew an amendment similar to Rhyne's.

DeBruhl told the House "you might as well kill the bill" as pass the Rhyne amendment because the retirees would flock to Florida.

Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, told the House the bill was "a bad approach to equitable income tax provisions" but that he was voting for it because the income tax exemption had been granted retired government workers.

So, High said, "In violation of my conscience and proper tax measures, I vote 'aye.'"

Rep. Lawrence Davis, D-Forsyth, said in a statement that it was "one of the worst bills of the entire session."

"This is money that our state cannot afford to lose," Davis said. "We do not have money now to meet all the needs of our state."

Soviet Space Station Seen Big Step To Dominance

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Soyuz 11-Salute space station flight is a major step toward the Soviet Union's avowed goal to regain world space dominance, and the U.S. government appears ready to forfeit America's lead.

The United States stood high and proud after the Apollo 11 astronauts achieved man's first landing on the moon in July 1969. The historic event climaxed a decade of fantastic technological advancement during which 420,000 persons labored to overtake the Soviet edge in space.

The goal achieved, President Nixon and Congress began cutting into the budget of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, citing Vietnam and other more earthly problems. Three Apollo moon flights were canceled, other flights and programs were delayed.

The number of persons employed in the space program has dropped to 128,000.

All of this in the face of an accelerating Soviet program, much of it dedicated to forging a strong military space capability. The Soviets employ about 600,000 persons in space work and devote 2 per cent of their gross national product to the program, compared with less than one-half of one per cent by the United States.

In 1966, the year the United States took the lead, it recorded 103 successful space launchings and the Soviet Union had 42. In 1967, America still led, 87 to 66. In 1968, the Soviet Union took the lead in number of launchings for the first time, 74 to 66, and has held it since. In 1969 the margin was 70 to 60, and last year it was 88 to 36 as the United States sharply curtailed space activity.

In 1971 the Soviets are off and running toward a record. To date they have launched 41 successful payloads, the United States 16.

Most Soviet shots have had military applications such as reconnaissance, communications and navigation—also conducted by Americans. But there have been several recent Russian tests of a satellite interceptor in which at least four orbiting payloads have been blown to bits. And there have been numerous tests of an orbital bomb system.

The 1971 shots include five-ton Mars 2 and 3 probes toward Mars, presumably to attempt to land on that planet four years before the U.S. plans such a feat.

But the most significant Soviet flights this year have been the two manned missions, Soyuz 10 and 11, both of which linked up with the unmanned Salute station.

Something went wrong with Soyuz 10 after it docked in April and the three cosmonauts disengaged after 5½ hours and returned to earth. A solution obviously was worked out, and the Soyuz 11 crew took off Sunday in pursuit of the laboratory.

Soviet scientists have stressed the experimental nature of the mission, with emphasis on medical research, long a problem for cosmonauts. Every cosmonaut who has been in space more than a few days has encountered medical problems on returning to earth, mainly cardiovascular disorders that hindered his ability to move about for several days. Observers believe U.S. astronauts have fared better because of a better training program.

Salute appears to be a scaled-down version of the Skylab station which the United States plans to launch in 1973. This two-story lab will be hoisted by a Saturn 5 rocket and the next day three astronauts will be fired toward a linkup.

The first crew will remain aboard for 28 days, then return. Two additional three-man teams are to visit the same lab, each for 56 days. Doctors and scientists will be among the crew members.

Skylab will be 118.5 feet long, 22 feet in diameter, weigh 91 tons and have 12,763 cubic feet of living space. The Soyuz-Salute combination is 65.6 feet long, 13 feet in diameter, weighs 25 tons and has 3,500 cubic feet of living space.

By the time Skylab is launched, the Soviets are expected to have a much larger, more permanent station in orbit, perhaps with a large crew of men and women. A key will be development of a new rocket, reportedly more powerful than the Saturn 5.

Both U.S. and Soviet space scientists believe a permanent orbiting station is the best means of obtaining economical, practical benefits from space. Specialists aboard could survey earth resources and locate mineral and oil deposits, arable land, diseased crops and forests, and good fishing grounds. They could be weather observers and air and sea traffic controllers, and they could conduct a variety of medical, engineering and manufacturing tests and processes in a pure vacuum and weightlessness.

Military missions could be conducted from the station.

Skylab was to have flown this year, but was delayed by budget cuts until after the final Apollo moon flight in December 1972.

NASA officials originally envisioned Skylab as forerunner of a large station to be launched in 1975 with 6 to 12 men, gradually being enlarged to accomodate 50 to 100 persons. They planned to develop a reusable space shuttle craft to operate like an airliner, economically ferrying men and cargo between earth and the station.

Lack of money has delayed these projects at least until 1978. And a group in the Senate, led by many of the senators who spearheaded the drive against the supersonic transport, vows to kill the shuttle. Without the shuttle, a large space station would not be practical.

Believes A Quota Exists

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — The national president of a black physician's society says many Negro doctors believe that predominantly white medical schools have used a quota system in admitting minority students.

Dr. W. T. Armstrong of Rocky Mount, N.C., president of the National Medical Association, added in an interview Wednesday that for some who are admitted, things are made so difficult scholastically that they leave, becoming "push outs," and not drop outs.

Dr. Armstrong also said that many black physicians believe they may be receiving fees below those paid white doctors for welfare patients.

Dr. Armstrong, was interviewed in Greensboro where he was attending the annual meeting of the Old North State Medical Society, composed of North Carolina Negro doctors. He is the long-time secretary-treasurer of that group.

He said the national organization is engaged in "Project 75," which he described as an effort "to break down their quota system." He said the goal is to increase black enrollment in predominantly white medical schools from the present national average of 2.6 per cent to 12 per cent. Dr. Armstrong said the project is funded by a federal grant and donations from foundations.

Mysterious Wildlife Plague Has Puzzled Florida's Game Wardens

INSPECT DEAD GATOR — Officers checking on a 10-foot dead alligator at Lake Dora, Fla., say the animal may have died Monday night in the unexplained deaths of wildlife. (AP Wirephoto)

LAKE APOPKA, Fla. (AP) — A mysterious wildlife plague is spreading through some of central Florida's fresh waters, killing thousands of fish and dozens of birds. Sixteen alligators also have died.

For the first time Tuesday, game wardens reported finding the bodies of egrets, crows and seagulls as well as extensive shad and catfish kills.

Officials said the path of wildlife destruction which began a month ago was edging northward from Lake Apopka through about seven miles of algae-choked canals to Lake Dora.

Game and Fresh Water Fish Commissioner Dr. Earle Frye said he is sending a team of biologists to Lake Apopka—which straddles the Lake-Orange County line—for intensive emergency studies.

"We're concerned the die-off has now extended to other species of wildlife," said Frye.

"We've considered closing the lake to fishing and are prepared to do so if your monitoring system reveals any danger to human welfare."

At first biologists thought the die-off was attributable to alligators eating dead and rotting fish. Then a DDT theory was pursued but scientists found more pesticide in live and apparently healthy gators than in the dead ones.

A commission study revealed a DDT count in live gators of 10 times the safety level recommended by the Food and Drug Administration.

A tolerable level of DDT was found in dead fish and gator samples.

Food Packaging Exports Boom

NEW YORK (AP) — The overseas market for food processing and packaging machinery will increase at an annual rate of 11 percent, from $576 million in 1970 to $975 million in 1975, says Robert L. Pritchard of the Department of Commerce's Bureau of International Commerce.

Pritchard, BIC director of export sales, said the foreign market for food packaging machinery alone is expected to reach $480 million by 1975.

Scotch Is First Among Fliers

NEW YORK (UPI) —Scotch whiskey, long the most popular beverage on foreign-based airlines, was found in a survey to be the most popular drink on domestic carriers, too.

Scotch leads in popularity by greater than 2 to 1 over second place bourbon and is far ahead of vodka and gin even though the martini was revealed as the most popular cocktail, the Black & White survey showed.

S. Africa Services Get New Uniforms

BY PAUL DAVEY

JOHANNESBURG, So. Africa (AP) — South Africa's armed forces are changing uniforms. The steel gray of the air force, the navy's summer whites, and the army's traditional khaki are to be phased out.

All branches have been fitted with uniforms colored "kalahari sand."

The new designs were produced by a London firm. They have been generally accepted by military officials, but there are some reservations.

The navy is not pleased about having to wear kalahari sand uniforms in summer, as opposed to its traditional whites. It has, however, managed to cling to traditional navy blue uniforms for winter.

Naval officers also took exception at being asked to wear kalahari sand covers to their blue caps. They finally won a battle to retain their white cap covers, although local fashion writers said these clashed with the kalahari sand uniforms.

Commandant-General of the Defense Force, Gen. Rudolph C. Hiemstra, has a unique uniform. It is kalahari sand with flashy trimmings added. The cap band, tie, shoulder boards and collar gorgets all are in turquoise.

One problem is that some of the new uniforms bear similarities to those worn by Germans in World War II. Officers caps are upswept at the front, reminiscent of the Wehrmacht and Luftwaffe. The shoulder boards, collar tabs and no lower pockets on tunics are other "Germanic" features.

"It happened entirely by accident," said an official of the design firm. "We made no particular reference or research into any other country's uniforms while evolving the new South African uniforms.

"But when a designer is working on a uniform project, he will inevitably have at the back of his mind a recollection of other uniforms he has seen and this could make an impression."

Mark Twain lost more than $100,000 backing an unsuccessful effort to design a machine that could set type.

A Place Where Eagles Roost May Have Been Wiped Out By Poison

IN CONFRONTATION WITH MAN — This is the bald eagle — emblem of the United States — which has suffered primarily from man's science and weapons. (AP Wirephoto)

By J. HUNTER HOLLOWAY
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON CANYON, Wyo. (AP) — On the high plains of central Wyoming, where the west wind sweeps endless over the sage of Emigrant Gap, there is a place where eagles roost.

Here, along the ruts of the Oregon Trail, is where man and the great birds have recently come into deadly confrontation.

Result: 48 eagles known dead since May 1, others probably dead; victims of man's modern science and weapons.

Twenty one eagles have died from eating thallium sulfate, a poison set out to protect sheep flocks against such killers as coyotes.

The poison may have wiped out one of the few remaining winter roosts of the baldeagle—emblem of the United States—and cut deeply into the unique local concentration of golden eagles.

The poison apparently came from the carcasses of three antelope, heavily laced with thallium sulfate, and left along a lonely dirt road 11 miles west of here—well within the range of eagles roosting in Jackson Canyon.

The eagle deaths in this area, including 11 bald eagles, spurred conservationists to plead before Congress for the abolition or limitation of predator poison programs.

The deaths also brought to light other killings of the bald and golden eagle—both protected by federal law—elsewhere in the state, some by accidental electric shock which conservationists say power companies could have prevented, others by deliberate shooting, still others by poison.

Since May 1, when two teenagers found the first seven birds in this red sandstone canyon, 48 dead eagles have been turned into the government and authorities of the National Audubon Society.

Alexander Sprunt IV, director of research for the National Adubon Society, says "not more than 1,000 breeding pairs of bald eagles are to be found in the contiguous 48 states."

Golden eagles are more numerous, although still rare, and can be found from Mongolia west through northern Europe and across North America. One authority says there are about 200 golden eagles in Wyoming.

The bald eagle has suffered primarily from three fronts: destruction of habitat by man; ingestion of pesticides which destroys eggs, and poisons.

The sun-baked cliffs and Ponderosa pines of Jackson Canyon, 12 miles southwest of Casper, are close to the trout-laden North Platte River and provide an ideal place for the bald eagle to spend the winter.

Attempt Popularize Income Tax

By FRANCISCO SILVA

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — "I know I am growing up and that soon I will be a man, and that I am going to pay income tax to make our Brazil the greatest among nations."

The syntax may be a bit awkward, but the meaning was perfectly clear to the government officials who chose the essay written by 10-year-old Cesar Guimaraes Rodrigues as the winner of a competition aimed at popularizing a rather unpopular obligation in any country: payment of income tax.

The campaign to make Brazilians think of income tax as a reason for pride rather than annoyance, in the words of its organizers, has been a success.

Started four years ago, the campaign's most successful feature seems to be the unorthodox possibility offered taxpayers of deducting 12 per cent from their taxes, to make private investments.

The deduction may be invested in any of the recently-created government enterprises in the fields of tourism, fishing, steel manufacturing, among many others.

By opting for the deduction, the taxpayer automatically becomes a shareholder in one or more of the country's private or mixed economy enterprises.

A bank manager, however, says a surprisingly high percentage of taxpayers are ignoring the attractive deduction or have not understood it. Others bluntly say they are not willing to help the expansion of capitalism in Brazil.

Other features of the tax-paying promotion include catchy jingles on radio, television and newspapers, and a few gay conspicious yellow balloons flying over the centers of major Brazilian cities, bearing the inscription: "Pay Your Income Tax." The deadline as in the U.S., is April 15.

The campaign has paid off well, according to official statistics. In 1965, 354,000 Brazilians (present population: 92 million) filed income tax returns. In 1970, over seven million are expected to do so. After a slow start up to 1968, when the number had grown to 584,000, the campaign efforts started being felt in 1969, when the total of taxpayers jumped to 4,276,000.

The man mostly responsible for the campaign and for the reformulation of the fiscal machine in Brazil, Amilcar de Oliveira Lima, and his assistants, attribute the success of their work to the government's efforts at economic development, which gave Brazilians confidence in the future of their country.

No pressures, other than publicity, have been put on citizens to pay the income tax, according to Lima's assistants.

"Fiscal action in Brazil is no longer exercised through police schemes as in the past," said Guy de Oliveira Lima, Lima's brother and one of his assistants.

The man-on-the-street in Rio de Janeiro has in general reacted favorably to the campaign, and seems to be well-informed about the mechanism and purposes of the tax.

Still, income tax in Brazil makes up only 27 per cent of the national income, a far cry from the 70 per cent level it represents in the United States. One of the aims of the income tax officials is to raise this contribution to a level at which other indirect taxes can be reduced. "And when everyone pays, everyone pays less," they say.

Coins Go To Health Need

LURAY, Va. (UPI)—Children tossing coins in the Wishing Well here have helped swell the total collected for charitable causes this year to more than $43,000, most of which will be put to work in the battle against muscular dystrophy.

Located in Luray Caverns, near Washington, the Well in the past 17 years has yielded more than $87,000 in small change, all of which has been given to non-profit health organizations. The latest collection, the first since 1966, was greater than in the previous 12 years, indicating Americans have grown more concerned about disabling illnesses—especially those that strike children.

Money from the Well also has been devoted to fighting rheumatoid arthritis, birth defects, heart disease and cancer.

Toddlers emulate older brothers and sisters and adults who toss coins into the Well and make a silent wish. Perhaps that's why pennies were the most numerous of the coins found by workmen draining the Well. Close to 1.4 million pennies were recovered among the nickels, dimes, quarters and half-dollars. Visitors from abroad contributed, too, to the tune of more than 6,110 foreign coins of varying denominations.

As might be expected, some children, having dropped a coin in the Well, decide to make more "practical" offerings, explaining the presence of bottle caps, Crackerjack prizes and toys, as well as coins.

Localized Appearances Of Corn Blight

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corn blight has shown up in 22 more counties in six states, but Agriculture Department experts say the infestations so far are localized mostly in volunteer or test plot corn plants.

Moreover, there has been no evidence to indicate the disease has started spreading from one field to another, the department said Wednesday.

Last year a new type of Southern corn lead blight was spread by windblown fungus spores over vast areas, into the Corn Belt and as far north as Canada.

Thirteen of the new blight counties are in Illinois. The remainder are in Ohio, North Carolina, Georgia, Texas and Alabama.

Earlier this year blight had been verified in Kentucky, Tennessee, Nebraska, Iowa, Florida and Mississippi. Fifty-two counties in a dozen states now have blight reported.

Noting most reports involve blight in volunteer and test plot corn, the department said in its weekly summary:

"In those few instances where the disease has been identified on corn planted this spring, plant pathologists indicate infection was probably caused by spores from local debris or as a result of on-farm shelling operations."

Blight development in the South is far behind a year ago, officials said, probably "because most of the crop was planted to resistant seed and because of the cold, dry spring."

The states and counties where new blight infestations were reported include:

Illinois—Logan, Macon, Piatt, Edgar, Jasper, Monroe, Union, Cumberland, Livingston, Schuyler, Shelby, Pope and Hardin; Texas—Hidalgo and Cameron; Alabama—Barbour, Escambia, Monroe and Autauga; North Carolina—Pamlico; Georgia—Bacon; and Ohio—Pickaway.

At a news conference Tuesday, Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin said: "We are anticipating at least a normal corn crop this year, at least at this date. That may be changed next time we meet."

RUSSIAN SHIP SEIZED— The Russian freighter, Suleyman Stalskiya, out of Vladivostok, was seized by U.S. marshals Wednesday at its berth at Universal Terminals in Alameda, Calif. The vessel was seized as security for a $377,000 damage suit brought in San Francisco federal district court by Massachusetts lobster fishermen. (AP Wirephoto)

Consumer Bill Is Inching Ahead

RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate Banks and Banking committee will hold a brief public hearing and then vote Wednesday on a bill to give North Carolina its first regulations on retail credit sales.

Committee chairman Sen. Jack Baugh, D-Mecklenburg, predicted that the bill would get a favorable report next week.

"I don't think we'll have any problem," he said. "I think it'll get out alright."

Rep. Richard Clark, D-Union, appeared before the committee Wednesday to explain the long, complicated bill, which passed the House recently with surprising ease.

The bill would give the state its first restrictions on the finance charges that merchants could demand in retail credit sales and put some responsibilities on banks and finance companies who buy installment contracts by limiting the "holder in due course" doctrine.

The bill would also limit the amount and type of collateral a seller could take, limit balloon payments, ban referral sales, regulate other practices involved in the extension of retail credit and provide a "three-day cooling off period" during which a homeowner could cancel certain contracts signed with door-to-door salesmen.

Several members of the committee asked why the bill did not contain stronger provisions against abuses of credit life insurance, repossession practices and other consumer frauds.

Clark told them that the bill has been severely compromised in a House subcommittee to meet the objections of banks, merchants mobile home dealers and other strong special interest groups.

He said the bill was written to protect the general public, "but it does no damage to those merchants who deal legitimately."

Baugh said the committee, at the request of the N.C. Merchants Association, would hold a hearing on the bill June 16 at 9 a.m. in the legislative auditorium. Proponents and opponents will each have 20 minutes and one spokesman will speak for each side.

The committee will meet at 10 a.m. to vote on the bill, Baugh said.

Karate Display Drew Interest

GRIFTON — The karate demonstration sponsored last week by the Grifton Recreation Commission attracted a large crowd of interested persons, including several karate students from neighboring towns.

A number of those in attendance expressed interest in having karate classes taught in Grifton. Those desiring further information may call Recreation Commission Chairman Mrs. E. A. Haseley at 524-4356, and arrangements will be made for classes in Grifton if enough people are interested.

No Relief For Barbers' Plaint

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Barbers who have been complaing about women beauty operators cutting the long locks of male customers received no relief from the Arkansas attorney general's office.

The attorney general's office reported finding no law that would prohibit women from cutting the hair of men in beauty shops.

Cancer Award To Philanthropist

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson has presented the American Cancer Society's Alfred P. Sloan Jr. Memorial Award to philanthropist Mary Lasker, a personal friend.

The former president and his wife were surprise guests Wednesday night at the $100-a-plate dinner where Mrs. Lasker received the award.

"I can't think of a higher national priority than the conquest of cancer and I can't think of a person more likely to do it than Mary Lasker," Johnson told the 1,000 persons present. "She has a burning desire to leave this world a better place than she found it."

Sees A Chance

RALEIGH (AP) — State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips says he believes a proposed $200 million statewide bond issue for school construction "has an excellent opportunity of being approved by the people."

Phillips told the N.C. Pupil Transportation Association Wednesday that he was squarely behind the proposed bond issue, adding that the last such statewide bond issue was approved in 1964 and "It is now time to hold another one."

"Individual counties have had a difficult time carrying their own elections," he said, "but many state educational leaders feel that this proposition on a statewide basis has an excellent opportunity of being approved by the people."

Mass Murder

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The bodies of 12 men and a woman, all shot between the eyes, have been found buried in a vacant lot next to a movie house in a small town in northern Mexico, the newspaper El Sol reported today.

The report said the bodies were found in Escandon, near Juarez, on land belonging to Mayor Raimundo Palacios' brother Ricardo.

El Sol in a dispatch from Escandon said the mayor told it: His brother sent several workers to start digging the foundations of a building he planed. The shovel of one of the men hit something with a dull thud, and the laborer found it was a human head.

The laborer ran away in terror, involving the protection of the "Holy Virgin and all the saints."

The other workers gathered around and started digging. They turned up another 12 bodies, all within a radius of about 50 yards.

The clothes on the bodies had not rotted, indicating that they had been buried recently.

The total funds approved by the foundation include $617,000 devoted to the researching of criminal problems that cut across national borders.

More Drunks Are Caught

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Highway Patrol made a significant increase in arrests for drunken driving last month, and a member of the patrol credits the upswing to use of the Breathalyzer.

The patrol said 3,915 persons were arrested by it during May for driving under the influence of intoxicating beverages, this was an increase of 900 persons over May of 1970.

"This doesn't necessarily indicate a great upsurge of drunks on the roads," said Patrol Sgt. A. W. Rector, "but better methods of detecting them — primarily the Breathalyzer test."

Rector said ever since the patrol stated using the breath testing machine in 1966 "we've had a steady increase in the number of persons charged with driving under the influence and the number of drunk drivers removed from our roads."

FAA And CAB Support Lockheed Plan

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration and the Civil Aeronautics Board joined today in support of a government loan guarantee for Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

Secor D. Browne, chairman of the CAB, said that cancellation of Lockheed's L1011 TriStar jumbo jet airbus project would have "severe impact" on airlines that have made more than $200 million in advance payments for planes.

John H. Shaffer, head of the FAA, said the Lockheed plane appears to be "a superb aircraft and will be a vital addition to the commercial aircraft fleet."

The administration has proposed to guarantee up to $250 million in bank loans to finance Lockheed in the continued development of the commercial project and to save the corporation from imminent bankruptcy.

Shaffer told the Senate Banking Committee that air passenger travel is projected to increase by more than three times in the next decade and that new wide-bodied subsonic aircraft of the TriStar type will be needed to meet passenger demand and alleviate airport congestion.

Brown said TWA, Delta and Eastern have firm orders to purchase 94 of the TriStars and options on 24 more.

Brown said the three airlines prefer that the plane be developed with a Rolls-Royce engine despite its higher costs resulting from the bankruptcy of the British firm. He said they want the Lockheed TriStar despite delays in delivery and the increase in cost.

Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard told the Senate Banking Committee Wednesday a government guarantee of up to $250 million in bank loans to Lockheed to finance production of its new TriStar jumbo jet would be "justified under the circumstances."

Without the guarantee, he said, Lockheed faces bankruptcy and the nation will be saddled with substantial additional unemployment in an industry already hard hit by defense procurement cutbacks.

The loan guarantee, he said, involves "little risk to the government," and should be regarded as "a specific single case."

"That simply has to be our attitude and that of the Congress," he said.

Packard said he would oppose the Lockheed loan guarantee if he considered it to be a precedent.

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the Banking Committee, said hearings on the Lockheed loan probably will continue another two or three weeks.

Six Counties Exempted In Statewide Blue Law

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A Senate committee today exempted six North Carolina counties from a proposed statewide Sunday blue law and sent the bill to the floor of the Senate without prejudice.

The action was taken despite a ruling from the attorney general's office that there is a cloud of doubt on the constitutionality of the bill by exempting any counties.

The Senate Judiciary 1 Committee adopted an amendment by Sen. John Burney, D- New Hanover, to exempt New Hanover, Pender and Brunswick counties.

Also approved was an amendment by Sen. Norris Reed, D-Craven, to exempt Craven, Carteret and Pamlico. All six are coastal counties which have beaches that operate on Sunday.

The "without prejudice" action means the committee made no recommendation for or against the bill.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, is backed by the North Carolina Merchants Association.

The committee had voted last week to send the bill to the floor without prejudice, but the measure was held up to get a ruling from the attorney general's office on whether county exemptions would make it unconstitutional.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Burley Mitchell advised the committee by letter, "It is our conclusion that such an exemption would make the bill of questionable constitutionality as it could well be construed as the enactment of a local law..."

Sen. W. W. Staton, D-Lee, told the committee that in his opinion the exemptions would not make the bill unconstitutional. He said he was basing his opinion on a similar blue law in Maryland which was taken to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Before sending the bill to the floor, the committee approved an amendment by Sen. O'Neil Jones, D - Anson, to exempt from the bill all manufacturing industries, the sale of sporting goods, mobile homes, real estate, the operation of outdoor and drive-in theatres, baseball games and other sporting events such as auto and boat races.

Sen. Burney told a newsman later he feels the Senate will kill the bill.

"It certainly won't pass if it depends on my vote," he said.

Settled In For A Long Ride

MOSCOW (AP) — The three Soviet cosmonauts, apparently settled in for a long stay aboard the world's first orbiting space laboratory, awakened today "feeling well and in good spirits" and performed their morning exercises.

Tass said a "considerable part" of their fourth working day aboard Salute would consist of medical-biological experiments.

The flight commander, Georgy Dobrovolsky, reported to ground control that the crew rested well and was feeling fine, the agency said.

It said they began the day with "morning exercises, using special equipment," but did not elaborate.

The Soviets have not said how long the cosmonauts will stay aboard the station, but Wednesday they settled in. Tass said the three men unpacked their personal belongings and could look forward to "a library of their favorite books" on board as well as such equipment as a vacuum cleaner, refrgierator, water boiler and stove.

The cosmonauts also shut down the systems aboard Soyuz 11 and fired rockets to put Salute into a higher orbit of the earth.

The new orbit, 160.9 to 175.2 miles above the earth, will keep the space station aloft for a longer period because it delays its descent into the drag and friction of the earth's upper atmosphere.

Tarboro Slips Past Greenville, 4-2

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Tarboro's Mason Lilly celebrated his second round draft choice last night by threading his way to a shakey 4-2 victory over Greenville's American Legion baseball team.

Lilly allowed the Greenville team only three hits during the even but a lot of it was due to the fine defensive work of his backup men. He struck out 11, but walked six during the evening as his control was not as sharp as he would have liked it to be.

Of the three hits, two were for extra bases, doubles by Joe West and Roland Hooks. The other was a single, also by West.

Jimmy Paige, who went hitless in the game, probably got the best of Lilly, however. Four times, he slammed a ball hard to center field, only to find Sammy Toller waiting for the ball each time in a different place. The last time, the ball went nearly to the fens at deep center, 390 feet from home, but Toler was waiting there too, as if he had a homing device built into the ball.

And for Russ Smith, making his first start of the season, it was a tough loss. He gave up just six hits, and walked only one man (in the ninth inning). He fanned 16 of the Tarboro batters. Only one man in the entire Tarboro lineup, Stan Letchworth, was able to get by Smith the entire night without striking out.

Half of each team's total runs were unearned.

Tarboro got the scoring going in the third inning, pushing over three runs. Robbie Webb led off with a single into right field. Toler attempted to sacrifice, but was safe when the throw to first was off the mark. Letchworth then singled to center, scoring Webb. The relay to third to try and get Toler was booted, and he continued on to score the second run. Bruce Bullock then singled to drive in Letchworth with the third run.

It stayed 3-0 until the sixth inning when Greenville finally got on the board with a run. Phil Blount reached on an error with one away. Then, with two men out, Hooks connected with a blast to deep center field, easily scoring Blount. Hooks, trying for a triple, was thrown out on a controversial play. Greenville manager John Holt argued hotly that Hooks had already reached the base before the ball got there, and that the tag was made high, on the apparently late throw. The ruling, however, was not reversed.

Both teams pushed over runs in the ninth inning. The Tarboro run came from leadoff batter Bullock, who lifted a ball over the left field wall some 350 feet from home, making it 4-1.

Greenville tried to rally once more in the ninth inning, but fell short. Blount walked and Hooks drew a walk. West doubled to score Blount, but the rally died there as the next two batters went down in order to end the Greenville hopes.

The loss evened the Greenville record at 2-2 overall and 1-1 in its Legion division.

Greenville will next play host to the Pamlico County All Stars here Friday night. Game time is 7:30 p.m. in Harrington Field.

Moose Rally To Stop Elks, 7-5

The Moose rallied for five runs in the fifth inning to take a 7-5 victory over the Elks yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League.

The Graniteers continue to lead the league with an 8-1 record, while Pepsi-Cola is second with a 5-4 mark. The Moose, by winning, pulled into a tie for third with the Elks, both 4-5. They are followed by the Exchange and Integon, both 3-6.

The Elks gained the lead in the first inning, scoring three runs. Ricky Skinner reached on an error and Frank Davis singled. Joe Godette slapped a home run, scoring all three runs.

In the third, the Elks came up with another run to up the score to 4-0. Davis singled and advanced on a passed ball. David Randle singled and Davis scored on an error.

In the fourth, the Moose came up with two runs. Henry Baker reached on an error and William Brewington slammed the game's second homer, making it 4-2.

The Elks came right back with a run in the top of the fifth to go ahead, 5-2. Alex King doubled and Godette singled. Jack Ward then got a hit to score King.

But the Moose came charging back in the bottom of the inning to push ahead and take the win. John Lawler singled and Mickey Finn got a hit. Baker sinled to lead the bases and Brewington singled in both Lawler and Finn. Larry Boyette got a hit, scoring Baker with the tieing run, and a passed ball scored Brewington. Danny Wood singled, but Boyette was cut down trying to score. Lee Torrence doubled to score Wood with the final run.

Fun In '71 Has Turned Into June Swoon For San Francisco

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Fun in '71" is manager Charlie Fox' slogan for the San Francisco Giants but he's having trouble dispelling the "June swoon" label.

The Giants managed only one hit—Dick Dietz' second-inning bouncing single up the middle—off Montreal's Steve Renko Wednesday night and went down to a 4-0 defeat, their seventh in eight games this month.

In little more than a week, their lead over Los Angeles in the National League West has been trimmed from 10½ to seven games.

Asked if the Giants were psyched by the "June swoon" tag, Fox snapped:

"I'm no (censored) psychologist. Did you guys ever consider that your man just threw a one-hitter out there? Don't you guys want to give him any credit? That's all I'm going to tell you."

Elsewhere, Philadelphia trounced Los Angeles 9-4, the New York Mets rallied to beat San Diego 4-2, Atlanta whipped St. Louis 8-3, the Chicago Cubs shaded Pittsburgh 3-1 and Cincinnati edged Houston 2-1.

American League scores: Baltimore 2, Minnesota 1 in 10 innings; Oakland 6, Boston 1; Detroit 3, Milwaukee 0; Kansas City 5, Washington 4; Cleveland 3, Chicago White Sox 1 and California 4, New York 3.

The Expos didn't get a hit off Gaylord Perry until Bob Bailey beat out a bunt to open the fifth. With two out, Renko doubled him home. Ron Hunt's double, Rusty Staub's single and an infield out made it 2-0 in the sixth and the Expos kayoed Perry in the seventh, scoring their final two runs on Staub's double.

The Dodgers, however, failed to gain on the Giants when home runs by Deron Johnson, Byron Browne and Don Money helped Philadelphia's Ken Reynolds to his first major league victory, altohough he needed eighth-inning help from Woodie Fryman.

Johnson's three-run blast capped a four-run outburst against Claude Osteen in the first inning and Browne hit a two-run shot in the third. Money belted a solo homer in the seventh. Steve Garvey homered for the Dodgers.

The Mets, frustrated by Tom Phoebus for seven innings despite numerous scoring chances, finally erupted against San Diego reliever Al Severinsen in the eighth, wiping out a 2-0 deficit, including Nate Colbert's 12th homer off Tom Seaver.

Jerry Grote's single and triples by Don Hahn and Bud Harrelson tied the score and Ken Singleton's pinch single put the Mets in front. The final run scored on a bases-loaded walk.

The victory enabled the Mets to move back into first place in the NL East, 12 percentage points ahead of St. Louis. The Cards fell before a six-run Atlanta uprising in the fifth inning, featuring a two-run single by Zoilo Versalles and Hank Aaron's game-tying double.

St. Louis reliever Frank Linzy and first baseman Bob Burda collided at full speed going after a ground ball in the sixth and both were taken to a hospital, where they were treated and released.

Ferguson Jenkins posted his 10th victory as the Cubs downed the Pirates, with Brock Davis driving in a pair of runs with a triple and single. Willie Stargell's 20th home run accounted for the only run off Jenkins.

Johnny Bench's 15th home run, but his first sinc May 25, broke a tie in the eighth inning and lifted the Reds over the Astros.

Palmer Hopes To Put Together Four More Rounds Like He Had

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Arnie's ready.

"If I can do that just four more times, I'll be real, real happy," Arnold Palmer said today before teeing off in the first round of the $150,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Palmer, back in action after a three-week layoff, was talking about his pro-am round, a three-under-par 69 on the long, 7,278-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course.

"I hit 18 straight greens, one-putted three of them and two-putted the rest," said Palmer, winner of two events this year and more than $106,000.

"I didn't have any three-putts," he continued, "and that's a very, very good accomplishment for me."

But the 41-year-old superstar, the game's all-time leading money winner and it's greatest gate attraction, really wanted to talk about a practice round he had played the day before.

"I was down at Hilton Head," he said. "Had some business and took the family down.

"I played Harbour Town," (one of the toughest courses on the tour and the site of the annual Heritage Classic). "I parred the first hole, then one-putted for a bogey six on the second.

"Then I had five threes in a row," he said, with a coy little grin.

"That put me out in 34. And I came home in, oh, let me see," he grinned, pretending he couldn't recall, "came home in 31. A little 64.

"Actually, I'm playing pretty well," Palmer said. "I just hope I can keep it up for a week. Or two weeks. That would make me very happy indeed."

Palmer, one of the favorites for the $30,000 first prize here, is having his best year in three seasons. But the muscular guy from Latrobe, Pa. had his troubles his last time out, almost a month ago when he finished 48th in the Houston Champions Invitational.

Palmer, playing a much heavier schedule than usual despite his long rest, ranked as a co-favorite with South African Gary Player and Lee Trevino, each a two-time champion and winner of more than $100,000 this season, tied just one stroke back of Jack Nicklaus and playoff winner Gardner Dickinson in last week's Atlanta Classic.

Nicklaus and Dickinson, along with Billy Casper and Frank Beard, are not competing this week.

Some top contenders include Masters champ Charles Coody, U.S. Open king Tony Jacklin of England, defending title-holder Dick Lotz and veteran Miller Barber, another $100,000 winner this season.

Harrison Makes Quick Trip From Minors To Punch KC By Senators

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chuck Harrison is your average-size sandblaster, 5-foot-10 and 212 pounds of living, breathing dynamite.

His biceps have bulges, his bat has bounce...and his opponents have bruises.

Harrison, who destroyed two minor league teams single-handedly Sunday and Monday before his recall to the majors, came through with another knockout punch as Kansas City's red-hot Royals beat faltering Washington 5-4 Wednesday night.

"I was just looking for the ball," said Harrison, who found it and slugged it for a bases-loaded single to score two runs with two out in the ninth inning.

The brutish first baseman tuned up for the haymaker with a two-game demolition job with Omaha in the American Association. He tore into minor league pitching for five home runs and 15 runs batted in to pace a 17-15 triumph over Denver Sunday and an 8-4 success over Wichita Monday night.

The victory was the Royals' eighth in nine games while the Senators dropped their sixth straight and 27th in 34.

Cleveland topped Chicago 3-1; Baltimore nipped Minnesota 2-1 in 10 innings; Detroit trimmed Milwaukee 3-0; Oakland smacked Boston 6-1 and California spilled New York 4-3 in the other American League games Wednesday night.

In the National League, it was Chicago 3, Pittsburgh 1; Philadelphia 9, Los Angeles 4; Montreal 4, San Francisco 0; Atlanta 8, St. Louis 3; New York 4, San Diego 2 and Cincinnati 2, Houston 1.

The 30-year-old Harrison, a baseball vagabond who played several years with the Houston Astros' organization before moving to Kansas City, played first base in the Royals' first year of existence in 1969. But he didn't figure in their plans this year and, in fact, wasn't even invited to spring training. The Royals, however, couldn't resist another look after his performance in the Double-A league this year—14 homers, 46 RBI, a .369 batting average and 125 total bases, all first in the American Association.

Despite his fence-wrecking activities in the minors, Harrison claims "I don't try to go anywhere with the ball."

Harrison wasn't sure what kind of a pitch he hit off Washington reliever Paul Lindblad for the game-winner Wednesday night "because when I'm really concentrating on the ball, I never know what the pitcher throws."

Lindblad, who took over in the seventh, struck out Freddie Patek to open the ninth. But the Royals then loaded the bases on a walk to Paul Schaal, Amos Otis' double and an intentional pass to Lou Piniella. Lindblad struck out Cookie Rojas before Harrison uncorked a drive over the head of left fielder Dick Billings.

Graig Nettles touched off Cleveland's two scoring thrusts with a double and a single as the Indians whipped the White Sox.

Nettles doubled and scored on Eddie Leon's single in the first inning to give Cleveland a 1-0 lead, then started a two-run rally in the sixth with his third hit of the game. Alan Foster blanked Chicago until the ninth, when the White Sox scored their run, before needing last-out relief help from debuting Ed Farmer.

Norm Cash lashed a three-run homer in the first inning and Les Cain scattered four hits as Detroit handed Milwaukee its sixth straight loss.

Cash's homer, his 12th, came off Lew Krausse after Al Kaline singled and Willie Horton was hit by a pitch. All four Brewer hits were singles, with two coming in the fifth, as Cain hurled his first complete game in five starts.

Meadowbrook, St. Gabriel Win

Meadowbrook pushed into the lead in the American Division of the Church Softball League last night, while Immanuel got ambushed by St. Gabriel. Meadowbrook beat Piney Grove, 25-5, to take a half-game lead in its division. National Division leader Immanuel was upset by St. Gabriel, 11-10.

In the American Division, Meadowbrook now sports an 11-2 record, while St. James is 10-2, and Presbyterian, 9-3. They are followed by Belvoir, with a 7-6 mark. Out of the title race are Christian, 4-9; St. Gabriel, 3-10, and Trinity, 1-12.

In the National Division, Immanuel leads with an 8-5 record, closely followed by Mt. Pleasant, 7-5; Black Jack, Oakmont and Piney Grove, all 7-6, Grace, 6-7, and Maranatha, 2-10.

In the operner, Immanuel pushed into the lead in the first with three runs, and then added five more in the third. St. Gabriel came up with two in the third, but Immanuel got two more in the fifth, for a 10-2 lead.

St. Gabriel then scored four in the bottom of the fifth, and three more in the sixth to cut the lead to one run. Then, in the seventh, St. Gabriel scored the two that won it. John Dilday singled and Milt Jenkins got a hit. Don Lawler singled in Dilday, but Jenkins was cut down. Jim Joyce then singled in Lawler with the game winning run.

In the second game, Meadowbrook got all it needed in the first inning, scoring seven runs. John Huber singled and Linwood Owens doubled. Bob Harris and Wayne Nelson both singled and a hit by Carl Powell, coupled with an error, cleaned the bases. Carson Heath and Dwight Foster both singled and scored on Hubie Bunting's double.

Meadowbrook added four in the second, three in the fourth, and 11 in the fifth for its total. Piney Grove got three in the first and two in the fifth.

Planters, Dairy Post Victories

Planters Bank and Carolina Dairy picked up victories in last night's Babe Ruth League action. Planters downed Home Builders, 9-6, while Carolina Dairy beat College View, 6-5.

North Carolina National Bank leads the league with a 5-2 mark, followed by Carolina Dairy, 5-3. They are trailed by Home Builders, 4-3; Pepsi-Cola, 3-4; College View, 3-5, and Planters,, 2-5.

In the opener, Home Builders took the lead in the first inning. Leon Gurthrie reached on a walk and advanced when Jon West was safe on an error. Kennon Powell walked to load the bases and Skip Fowler singled in Guthrie.

Planters tied it up with a run in the second. William Carraway singled and stole second. Dennis Cristiano sinled and an error on the play let Carraway score.

In the third, Home Builders scored five more runs to take a 6-1 lead. Guthrie walked and stole second. West sinlged and Powell slapped a three-run homer. Jeff Daniels singled and Jeff Beamon got a hit to score him. Beamon stole second and scored on Jim Wilkerson's hit.

Planters came back with three in the third to cut the lead to 6-4. Greg Coward singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Phil Ragazzo got a hit and Robert Brinkley walked, loading the bases. Greg Jester also walk-to bring in Coward and both Ragazzo and Brinkley scored on Jim Wilson's hit.

In the fourth, three more Planters runs scored to push them ahead 7-6. Coward walked and Griffin got a hit. Ragazzo then slapped a three-run homer to give Planters the win.

They added two more in the sixth. Coward walked and Griffin doubled. Ragazzo walked and Brinkley hit into a fielder's choice, scoring both Coward and Griffin.

Daniels had two hits to lead the Builders, while Griffin, Ragazzo and Wilson each had two for Planters.

College View pushed ahead in the first inning of the second game scoring two runs. Donald Cannon doubled and Robert Boles finished the scoring with a home run.

But Carolina Dairy put it all together in the third, scoring all six of its runs. Danny Bowman singled and took second on a passed ball. Edwin Clark walked and so did David Clifton. Jon Causey reached on an error, scoring Bowman. Griff Garner walked to bring in Clark, and both Clifton and Causey scored on Bobby Jones' hit. Dickie Johnson reached on an error, scoring Garner and Jones for the 6-2 lead.

College View came up with two runs in the fifth to cut it to 6-4. Boles reached on an error and stole second. Lee Moore also reached on an error and also stole second. A passed ball scored Boles and Conner Merritt singled to bring in Moore.

The final run came in the seventh. Boles singled and was sacrificed up. Merritt singled and Lee Shearin got a hit to score Boles. But the rally died there, one run short.

Boles had three hits while Merritt had two for College View. No one had more than one for Carolina Dairy.

Broberg To Nats?

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The countdown has started for Washington owner Bob Short, who will be trying to make money talk to Dartmouth pitcher Pete Broberg in an attempt to get him into a Senators' uniform in time for tonight's game against Kansas City.

Short's Senators made Broberg the No. 1 choice on the second day of the baseball draft Wednesday, then made two quick phone calls in his bid to try to live up to the statement he made earlier in the week—that the club's top choice might be available against the Royals.

Short's first call went to Broberg himself.

"I told him I hoped he was the next Walter Johnson," said Short. "And he just might be."

Then Short reported to Washington Manager Ted Williams, telling him:

"I can sign Broberg."

Short, who reportedly was scheduled to meet with Broberg and his father, remained that optimistic despite the fact that the fire-balling right-hander is a junior and previously had turned down a reported $150,000 offer from the Oakland A's to continue school.

At Hanover, N.H., meanwhile, Dartmouth Athletic Director Seaver Peters said he appreciated the dilemma Broberg was in, having to choose between a lucrative contract and further schooling.

Carl Watkins, pro for 16 years at Whiteface, N.Y., has become head pro at the San Marcos CC in Chandler, Ariz.

Military Told To Treat Drug Addicts In Uniform

By JAMES PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has told the military to identify and treat drug addicts in uniform, not punish them.

Without a dissenting vote, the Senate Wednesday amended the draft-extension bill to require treatment and rehabilitation centers and to encourage servicemen to use them without fear of punishment.

Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, sponsor of the proposal, charged the military has attempted to sweep the problem under the rug by dishonorably discharging 11,000 of 16,000 identified addicts.

He said the widespread use of hard drugs in Vietnam—particularly heroin—requires rehabilitation.

Heroin usage is so commonplace in Vietnam, he added, that "an inductee sent to Vietnam runs more risk of becoming a casualty of heroin than of the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese."

"It is no longer a private concern of the individual services but a problem of the entire nation that, if not controlled, will cause decades of irrepairable damage to our civilian society," he said.

Another draft bill amendment approved Wednesday calls for the President to seek new methods of controling international traffic in heroin and other hard drugs.

The Senate acted shortly after Roger T. Kelley, assistant secretary of defense, testified "we don't know how many military members in Vietnam use heroin and other hard drugs."

Three Congressmen who went recently to Vietnam said, however, their investigation disclosed that about 60,000 U.S. troops there use hard drugs.

Hughes cited a recent provost marshal's report estimating 30,000 to 40,000 men in Vietnam use hard drugs.

Some military commands recently offered amnesty to drug addicts who turned themselves in for treatment.

Hughes said "crippling qualifications" largely neutralized the amnesty program, however.

Accusing military leaders of ignoring drug use warnig signs, Hughes pointed to a Defense Department document issued last summer which he said "confidently" proclaimed a low incidence of drug abuse.

"Yet only two months before ... a young major was conducting a survey at Cam Rahn Bay which showed that 17.4 per cent of the troops then leaving Vietnam admitted having used opium," the senator said. "Furthermore, most of these said they had picked up the habit while in Vietnam."

House Votes Child Abuse Legislation

RALEIGH (AP) — The House has passed and sent the Senate legislation designed to protect children from abuse.

As the House considered the legislation Wednesday, its sponsor, Rep. James Speed, D-Franklin, told the members that child abuse and neglect cases are widespread in the state and nation.

Rep. Ernest Hicks, D-Mecklenburg, told the House 450 child abuse cases had been reported in his county and he told of a case in Raleigh where police had charged a couple with beating and maiming a four-year-old by hitting it with a board, burning it with cigarettes and sticking it in hot water.

The bill would make child abuse a general misdemeanor punishable by up to two years in prison and would make it the duty of persons having knowledge of child abuse cases to report them to a county social service director whose duty it would be to investigate.

In cases of abuse or neglect the director could decide "whether immediate removal of the child or other children in the home is necessary for the protection of such child or children."

In other action, the House decided that a bill designed to lower property taxes on farm land adjacent to cities needed a going over by lawyers. So, Speaker Phil Godwin referred it to the Judiciary 2 committee.

Rep. Richard Lane Brown, D-Stanley, introduced a bill to authorize the issuance of $150 million in state bonds to finance grants to local governments for sewage treatment and collection facilities.

The bill was identical to one introduced in the Senate Tuesday by Sen. Hector McGeachy, D-Cumberland.

Brown told the House his bill bore the signature of 85 or 90 of the 120 House members.

Rep. Norwood Bryan, D-Cumberland, sent up a measure that would allow private citizens to sue environmental agencies to require them to enforce their environmental standards.

The House accepted a Senate amendment and enacted into law a measure that would forbid loitering within 50 feet of the entrances to buildings where polling places are located.

Find More Are Smoking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are smoking less but there's more of them doing it, the Federal Trade Commission says.

The FTC said Wednesday total sales of cigarettes increased in 1970 but the per capita consumption dropped from 199.3 packs per person to 173.5 packs.

Cigarette consumption is calculated for United States residents and overseas military personnel 18 years or over.

The record average consumption was 214.3 packs in 1963, but has decreased steadily since the 1964 surgeon general report linking cigarette smoking and cancer.

Cigarette manufacturers spent $314.7 million on promotion in 1970 compared with $305.9 million in 1969. Of the 1970 expenditure, $217.4 million went for television and radio commercials.

The 1970 Public health Cigarette Smoking Act, effective Jan. 1, 1971, prohibited further television and radio advertising of cigarettes.

Cigarette sales in 1970 totaled 26.7 billion packs, compared with 26.4 billion in 1969 and the all-time high of 27 billion packs in 1968.

U Thant Plans Summer Travels

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant is planning a trip in late June and early July that will take him to Moscow, Africa and Europe.

A U.N. spokesman said Wednesday that Thant will go to Addis Ababa for a summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity, Mongolia and Poland by invitation of the governments, and to Geneva for U.N. meetings.

He has been invited to Moscow June 23-24 for talks that may include a discussion of his announced intention to retire at the end of his present term Dec. 31.

Prof Says Mankind Is Hurtling Into Hunger Crisis; Resources Fade

By LARRY KURTZ
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Man is hurtling into a hunger crisis that science alone cannot stop, warns a food expert who sees salvation only in international cooperation.

"We are living in a dream world," said Dr. Georg Borgstrom, professor of food science, nutrition and geography at Michigan State University.

"The average person stands in awe of technology," he said in an interview, "People forget about reality. They don't listen to what they don't want to hear."

The reality is, he said, that earth's resources are dwindling rapidly and no scientific trickery can meet the food demands of an ever-spiraling population.

Borgstrom, a 59-year-old native of Sweden who became a U.S. citizen in 1960, has written widely on world food problems.

Unless nations get together and plan the use of remaining resources, Borgstrom foresees a future of famine.

Earth's present population is some 3.7 billion. This is expected to leap to 7 billion by the year 2,000.

He says it will take 30 million to 40 million acres of new farm land each year "just to keep the world's people at their current malnourished level."

To improve nutrition, he says, we will need a doubling of food production by 1980 and a quadrupling by 2000.

By his calculations, two-thirds of the population eats inadequately. He lists the fortunate few as most inhabitants of North America; Europe including Scandinavia; Russia; Australia; New Zealand; and parts of Argentina.

Borgstrom, who speaks with the accents of his native land, proposes concentration on international food planning, population control and reuse of wastes.

A worldwide nutritional council, he claims, would do more for peace than disarmament talks.

Borgstrom suggests the nations of the world start by declaring the oceans "the common property of man" and coordinating development of the ocean's resources.

Withing fire years, Borgstrom says, such a test would give the nations an idea of what they might be able to do in a broader approach to the food crisis.

"The globe is finite," he adds. "Already one-third of the land area is tilled or in pasture. Geographers and soil experts agree that most good soil already is in use."

"We've been very resourceful," he says, "but we haven't paid much attention to what's happening to our resources."

Somali Need Own Script

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — A Somali special commission has been urged to hurry its work in devising a script to put the Somali language into writing.

Major Gen. Mohamed Siad Barre, supreme revolutionary council president, told the commission:

"Suitable script for writing the Somali language will be chosen soon. And this will not be based on political considerations.

"Any of those foreign languages used in our country now will not influence which script should be chosen."

English, Italian and Arabic are official languages in this East African land, along with the as-yet-unwritten Somali.

Siad Barre also warned the commission against being unduly influenced by regional dialects.

The Somali government program is to have vocabulary and elementary school grammar books prepared by August.

The special language commission includes one woman.

Ostrich Truly A Versatile Bird

By KENNETH L. WHITING

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The ostrich is making the scene again after more than half a century of obscurity.

Fashion is helping revive interest in the big flightless birds with the trend to ostrich feather hats, boas, stoles and handbags to complement maxi skirts and long evening gowns.

Growers near the ostrich farming center of Oudtshoorn, 200 miles east of Cape Town, say the birds are becoming a tourist attraction.

At least three farms cater to guests who want a close-up look at the oddball animal. A new motel recently opened largely to accomodate ostrich fans.

As a curiosity, the ostrich may be in a class by itself.

One of the first things visitors learn is that the bird does not stick its head into a hole in the ground when danger threatens.

The next thing may be to treat even the domesticated variety with respect. It can run almost 50 miles an hour and kick forward with enough force to break a man's skull. The male is equipped with a hard callous under its chest feathers which it uses as a battering ram.

Not very bright, the bird's brain is about the size of a golf ball. Ostriches are quite unpredictable.

When the male is angry its long neck flattens and it emits a series of owl-like hoots as it advances on its foe with slightly raised wings. Apparently proud of its ability to scare away most humans, the ostrich indulges in a victory dance, a sort of wing-flapping jig.

Experts say the African ostrich, the emu and cassowary of Australia, and the kiwi and extinct moa of New Zealand had some common ancestor which could fly. The common element to these birds—collectively known as ratites, or running birds—is the protein in their eggs which has a similar characteristic different from all other types of birds.

Nobody has ventured a guess as to what the ostrich's missing link ancestor looks like or even when it came down to earth for good. It may have been more than 40 million years ago.

All ratites are flightless although several have rudimentary wings for balancing when running. All lack the deeply keeled breastbone found in flying birds.

Their habits are in many ways closer to those of mammals than birds. They are grazers, they can run from danger and fight if cornered. The ostrich has neither teeth nor crop and supplements its alfalfa diet with stones—preferably white ones—which grind up the food in the stomach and are in turn ground up. An adult male carries around 50 pounds of stones.

South Africa has about 60,000 ostriches today, all but a fraction of which are domesticated. In 1913, peak year of the great ostrich boom, there were 776,313 of the birds on farms and thousands more running wild. Ostrich feathers ranked behind gold, diamonds and wool in export value.

"Ostrich millionaires" prospered in that period. Then fickle fashion changed and open touring cars helped end a boom which saw a pound of feathers fetch as much as $280.

Prices are attractive today and demand is much higher than a decade ago. Male wing feathers fetch the best prices—about $23 a pound—and each male gives about 35 feathers from each wing at a plucking. Some 70 feathers weigh a pound.

The feather business has been going on for 4,000 years in Africa. They symbolized justice in ancient Egypt because the shaft of the feather runs precisely down the center of the plume dividing it exactly into two sections.

The average domesticated bird is killed at 15 when its feathers begin to deteriorate. Wild ostriches may live as long as 40 years.

The male normally sticks to a single mate for life. They breed at least once a year and the eggs hatch in 42 days. Females sit on the eggs in the daytime while males, with darker coloration for night camouflage, take over at dusk.

The eggs are equal in volume to 24 hen eggs and are strong enough to stand on. The bird reaches maturity in three years. A fully grown ostrich may be more than nine feet tall and weigh more than 300 pounds.

Adult birds with riders sometimes are raced bareback on the farms. A circus impresario recently added such races to his bill. Two ostriches named Spoton and Loxon have been trained to weed the playing greens at a lawn bowling club in Port Elizabeth.

Uses are found for almost all of the bird after slaughter. The leg skin is tanned for curios, non-fashion body feathers are used in dusters and as curios. Meat is cured as a local snack-delicacy called "biltong."

Legal Limit To Freedom

CHICAGO (UPI)—He may be old enough to vote and to fight, but laws in 42 states require parental consent when an American male under 21 years old wants to get married.

The same is true in 12 states for girls under 21.

The legal capacity of a person to marry is the same throughout the Western world, according to Encyclopedia Britannica, but in the United States the marriage law is the exclusive province of each state.

The statutory age for marriage declines when parental consent is obtained. Under this condition, all states permit an 18-year-old male to get married.

For girls the age hurdle is much lower, both with and without parental consent. Such consent is required in all states if a prospective bride is not yet 18. But with approval from home she can be legally married in 37 states if she is only 16.

She could be even younger than 16 in New Hampshire, Alabama, New York, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Mississippi, North Dakota, Missouri, Oklahoma and Oregon if she has parental consent to wed.

A 16-year-old male with parental consent can be married in 12 states—New Hampshire, Missouri, Colorado, Connecticut, Maine, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Utah. But that's as young as the bridegroom can be, legally.

'Welcome' Week Slated In July

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The fourth annual Welcome a Visitor Week, aimed at making a "good will ambassador" of every American and Canadian, will be observed in the United States and Canada June 14-20, the American Society of Travel Writers (SATW) announced.

Sponsored by the SATW as a public service, the week is dedicated to promotion of friendship among peoples. Americans and Canadians are urged to make special efforts to help travelers, foreign and domestic.

Busy Smithy In 90-Mile Area

CHESTNUT, Ill. (AP) — Longfellow's village blacksmith worked under the spreading chestnut tree, but smithy Tom McKinney works throughout the countryside shoeing with a scientific touch.

McKinney measures hoof angle, hoof length, shoe weight and other data, somewhat difficult for a layman to understand.

He serves 31 stables in a 90-mile radius area to care for an estimated 1,500 horses and ponies.

Discrimination In Higher Education Said Growing

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)—A special task force on higher education has concluded that discrimination against women in higher education is still overt, acceptable and increasing.

"Women should be admitted to all levels of academic study in all fields on an equal basis with men," said a report by the task force, which was headed by Frank Newman, associate director of university relations at Stanford University.

"Given past discrimination, there must be an affirmative effort —not merely neutrality —to recruit women for graduate schools, higher faculty and administrative positions and boards of trustees," the report added.

The report charged that women face overt discrimination by faculties, deans and other university officials. This is compounded by institutional barriers, such as rigid admissions and residence requirements and lack of child care facilities.

Furthermore, it said, "ingrained assumptions on the part of both men and women ... deny the talent and aspirations of the latter."

Comparisons of the participation and attainments of men and women in higher education reveal "a clearly unequal pattern," the report said.

—Although, in high school, women earn better grades and higher test scores than men, fewer enter college, and they attain only 41.5 per cent of the bachelors and first professional degrees.

—Although women in college earn better undergraduate records than men, fewer enter graduate school.

—Most of the degrees earned by women are in a few fields of study, such as education, the humanities and the health professions. Thus, aggregate figures on attainment of women exaggerate their opportunities in higher education.

—Even within those fields considered acceptable, women are confined to subordinate functions. While virtually all the nursing graduates are women, they represent only 8 per cent of graduating physicians.

Between 1950 and 1966, the report said, the proportion of 18 and 19-year-old men enrolled in higher education rose twice as much (20 per cent) as did the same age group of women (11 per cent).

"The facts tend to contradict the view that women are poorer risks than men in their disposition to complete training," the report said. "The available data suggest, if anything, that women do about the same as men."

Women who complete their training do, in fact, tend to use it, and the more training they have, the more likely they are to use it.

Of women who have bachelors degrees, 54 per cent are in the work force and 71 per cent of those who have five years or more of higher education are working. More than 90 per cent of women with doctorates are employed.

In one sense, the report said, women's education is a poorer investment than men's because women are discriminated against in terms of salary paid. The difference in median salaries for men and women is more than $3,000 in chemistry, physics, mathematics, economics and the biological sciences.

Among changes recommended by the report:

—Universities should consider courses in female studies to combat myths and stereotypes about women. The overall curriculum should be reviewed in terms of relevance to women.

—Requirements for residency, full-time enrollment, and credit transfers should be overhauled to accommodate the needs of many women for flexible scheduling.

ECU Launching Archaeological Research Center

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
ECU News Bureau

WILLIAMSTON — East Carolina University launched a new endeavor this week, establishing a unique archaeological research center along the lower Roanoke River as a base for investigating ancient Indian culture.

Twenty four students and the project director, Dr. David S. Phelps, left the Greenville campus Monday and set up headquarters at Moratock Park on the banks of the Roanoke in Williamston. In cooperative project, the Martin County Economic Development Commission made available living quarters for staff and students, laboratory and storage space, a historical museum for training in exhibit preparation and interpretation and other equipment and facilities.

Phelps, associate professor in the ECU Department of Sociology and Anthropology, said the lower Roanoke River valley is "immensely interesting" from the standpoint of archaeological study. He reported several "finds" in the area recently including a cluster of five Indian skeletons.

"This center will place our program ahead of national competition in such field schools, and is a first in North Carolina for cooperation of this type," Phelps said.

Phelps said the field school will offer courses for undergraduate and graduate students in anthropology and allied disciplines. He said "establishment of a balanced and comprehensive specialization in archaelogy was accomplished by revision of some existing courses, addition of new courses and the development of an archaelogical research laboroatory, including an annual field training program."

"All such training must be accomplished in actual research situations," Phelps said. He said he felt the facilities made available at Moratock Park for research in the lower Roanoke River valley are ideal.

Phelps said maintenance of cultural materials for study both by students and professionals is to be stressed. "The archaelogical collections are a 'prehistoric library' and require care comparable to modern libraries, since they are the only record of man's past; and special excavating and processing equipment for field and laboratory research and training are required."

Included in the project will be research on the nearby Conoki Indian village and the establishment of an historical museum.

Another program, he said, will be "a continuing, comprehensive survey of the coast and coastal plain of North Carolina, a project which is not only a necessary public service by this University by virtue of its status and location, but serves to stimulate archaelogical research and preservation of prehistoric resources."

He said that excavations of sites will be on public view as the work progresses along the Roanoke.

Phelps said the field school was not advertised outside East Carolina University this year as is the usual custom with field schools listed with the Society for American Archaeology. However, several non-ECU students were registered and one application from a large Midwestern university had to be turned down because there were no funds available for assistantships.

Percy A. Price, executive director of the Martin County Economic Development Commission, said the Moratock Park facilities will include living quarters, including lights and water, use of a 5,000 square foot building, meals at a nominal cost, and vehicles. Price said his group had pledged "wholehearted support to this project."

Saved From Sinking Car

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — A young woman from Berlin, Germany, was rescued by a passing motorist Wednesday after her automobile went down a 60-foot bank and was slowly sinking into 30-feet of water in a gravel pit.

"The water was just beginning to get into the windows," said Samuel Bird, 25, who pulled Mrs. Evelyn Schulz Fortmann, 20, from the vehicle. "The car slid under the water just as I was getting her out."

Mrs. Fortmann, who is in the United States on a six-month visa, was on her way to her first day on the job for a drug firm in Charlotte. Bird, who works for a trucking company in Charlotte, had ended his third-shift job and was on his way home to nearby Mount Pleasant when he saw an approaching car veer off North Carolina 49 and then heard a woman scream. The car, owned by Mrs. Fortman's brother-in-law, Highway Parolman R. B. Britt, had gone out of control on a stretch of road that is being resurfaced.

Airline Luggage Gets Protection

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) —Airline passengers complain more about lost and damaged baggage than anything else, and something is being done about it.

Twenty-one of the world's leading airlines flying the Boeing 747 now load passengers' baggage into protective containers that carry the luggage until it is unloaded at destination, says Goodyear Aerospace Corp., maker of such containers. As well as reducing complaints, the system also speeds up passenger baggage service, the company says.

Driver Often Overdoes It

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Ten per cent of California drivers who make lengthy trips on business or on family outings "over-extend" themselves by being at the wheel too long without stops, according to researchers at the University of California in Los Angeles (UCLA).

The lengthy research was conducted by a UCLA team headed by Profs. Harry W. Case and Robert L. Mellinger. Subject of the study was "long trip driving habits of California drivers."

The study was started because of the high rate of one-car fatal accidents. Traffic experts were especially interested in the large number of California drivers who ran off the road while traveling the straight and clear U.S. 66.

The UCLA team covered the state and interviewed 40,000 Californians who had driven long trips.

Mellinger divided his subjects between "regular drivers" and "over extended drivers"—those who had been awake 19 or more hours and at the wheel at least six hours. He said 10 per cent fell into the "extended driver" class.

He said research showed that not only were the "extended drivers" more accident-prone but they also had a higher record of traffic violations.

Mellinger described as a typical Southern California "over-extended driver" the man in Los Angeles who gets off work Friday afternoon, jumps into his car and drives to Las Vegas, Nev., a distance of some 300 miles. He lives it up for two days and Sunday night barrels back home.

MiamiBeach Said Choice

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The St. Paul Pioneer Press said in its Thursday editions that the 1972 Democratic National Convention will be held in Miami Beach, Fla.

The decision to choose a Democratic presidential candidate in the same hall where Richard Nixon won the Republican nomination in 1968 will be announced next month, the newspaper's Washington correspondent said, quoting "party sources."

At the same time, it was reported that the Republican national chairman, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, has denied reports that Nixon favors San Diego, Calif., as the site of the 1972 GOP convention.

A member of the GOP convention site selection committee quoted Dole as saying the President had expressed no preference for any location to him.

0172-71 (SPEC)

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am so hurt I could die. My husband hasn't bothered with me for the last six months. I haven't nagged him about it. I thought that he was just tired out or not feeling well and he'd gradually resume our old relationship which has always been quite satisfactory.

The other night I asked him if there was something wrong and he just blurted out that he thought my body was "repulsive."

Abby, I am only 33, but I've had five children and my stomach is covered with stretch marks and I know my bust sags and my body isn't as pretty as it used to be, but I got into this shape from having his children, so what am I do?

I am so confused. I still don't know what to think about what he said. Can stretch marks be removed? And would it pay to have surgery to lift my bustline? I know it's expensive but I would make a lot of sacrifices to get my husband back.

HURT

DEAR HURT: If you honestly feel that a lift here and a tuck there is all you need to get your husband back, talk to a competent plastic surgeon. But what about your husband's cruelty? Perhaps he needs a doctor who uses words to reduce the meanness in him. His defects are far uglier than yours.

DEAR ABBY: I am an Italian who reads your articles in the Rome Daily American. I am very much interested in meeting the Memphis, Tenn., lady who is looking for a husband.

I am 32 years old and am 5 feet 11. I am very well built and have olive skin and green eyes and plenty of black hair. I speak five languages and come from Italian nobility on my mother's side. I play the mandolin very well and sing romantic songs.

The Memphis lady says she is self supporting, is in good health and she owns a late model American-made automobile. If she would like to correspond with me, please ask her to send me a recent photograph of the automobile.

VITO IN NAPOLI

DEAR ABBY: I am a Christian and I also play the clarinet. A year ago I promised the Lord that I would use my talent for Him by playing only hymns in churches. My problem is that I am only 13 and it is difficult to get into churches to play. Have you any suggestions?

UNADVISED IN ALABAMA

DEAR UNADVISED: I'm sure God would understand if you first developed your talents by playing whatever your teacher recommended, and not restrict your playing to hymns in churches. After you have become an accomplished clarinetist you'll be able to play wherever and whatever you wish.

CONFIDENTIAL TO T. H. L.: Yes, I would say that experience is the best teacher. And considering how much it costs, it ought to be.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Census To Be Used In Computing Tax

The 1970 census will be used in determining State Schedule "B" Privilege License tax liability for the tax year beginning July 1, according to E. R. Carraway, local revenue collector for the North Carolina Department of Revenue.

Carraway said that many privilege licenses are based on population and he suggested that taxpayers refer to the Schedule "B"' Partial List, which is being mailed together with application blanks to taxpayers throughout the state within the next few days.

Privilege licenses not based on population, the collector noted, will not be affected by these population changes.

Carraway said that population figures for several places in Pitt County include; Greenville, 29,063; Farmville, 4,424; Ayden, 3,450; Grifton, 1,860; Bethel, 1,514; and Winterville, 1,437.

He added that taxpayers in Pitt County who are doubt as to their correct tax liability or who need assistance in filing their applications are urged to contact him at his office in the Courthouse, Room 303 or call him at 758-2432.

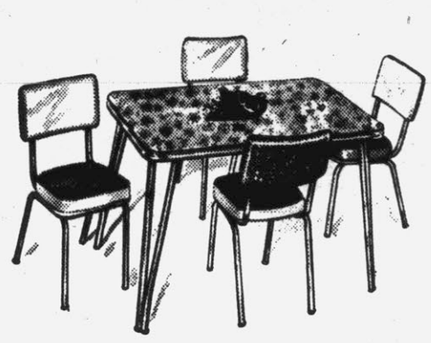

Office hours are from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Mondays and the 15th of the month and from 8 a.m. until 10 a.m. all other days.

Opening lead: King of ♣

North's holding is worth 11 points in support of spades, after his partner opens the bidding in that suit. He is warranted in making two forward going bids—first a free bid of two diamonds after West's two club overcall, followed by support of the spades which comes in the form of a preference when South rebids three hearts. Inasmuch as North has announced a good hand by showing his own suit before supporting partner, South routinely carried on to game.

West opened the king of clubs and when a singleton appeared in dummy, he decided to switch his attack. A diamond shift did not appear inviting inasmuch as West had two natural trump tricks and therefore could not benefit from obtaining a ruff. He finally chose to lead the nine of hearts into declarer's secondary bid.

South won the trick in his hand with the ten of hearts and immediately led a small club, ruffing with the deuce of spades. A spade was returned to the ace and the remaining club was trumped with the six of spades. Declarer cashed the ace of diamonds and fearing that West might have a singleton heart, he attempted to return to his hand by ruffing a diamond with the eight of spades.

West overruffed with the queen of trumps and returned a fourth round of clubs. East alertly trumped in with the jack of spades as South helplessly discarded a heart. The defensive book was now completed and West subsequently scored the king of spades for the setting trick.

South could have prevented his opponents' astute manipulation of their trump holding by merely retaining possession of the ace of spades until such time as he was ready to draw trump.

It is suggested that after he ruffs a club at trick three, he should attempt to reenter his hand by playing the ace of diamonds and trumping a diamond. If this goes thru, then he can ruff his remaining club and now lead back to the ace of spades and continue with a small trump. If spades divide three-two, his losses will be confined to two spades and one club.

As matters develop, when South attempts to trump a diamond, West will, of course, overruff, However, there is no damaging return he can make and when South regains the lead, he can ruff out his remaining club and now play the ace and another spade to fell the remaining trumps. He loses three tricks —one club, a diamond overruff and one spade.

Will Appeal Rate Hikes

RALEIGH (AP) — The attorney for the City of Durham filed notice Wednesday that he intends to appeal recent rate hikes granted to Public Service Co. of North Carolina, a major gas utility, and to General Telephone Co.

Claude V. Jones asked the State Utilities Commission to grant him an extension of time in which to perfect appeals of both rate cases to the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

The Utilities Commission gave Public Service Company a sizeable rate increase on May 27 and gave General Telephone Co. a rate increase for its Durham and Creedmoor service area on May 11.

Meanwhile, four brick companies and a glass company also said they intended to appeal the Public Service rate increase. The companies are Fletcher Brick Co., Hendersonville; Statesville Brick Co., Kings Mountain Brick, Inc., Taylor Clay Products, Salisbury; and Uniglass Industries, Inc., Statesville.

ALASKAN EXPORTS JUMP

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI)— Exports from Alaska exceeded $130 million in value during 1970, compared with $98.8 million in 1969.

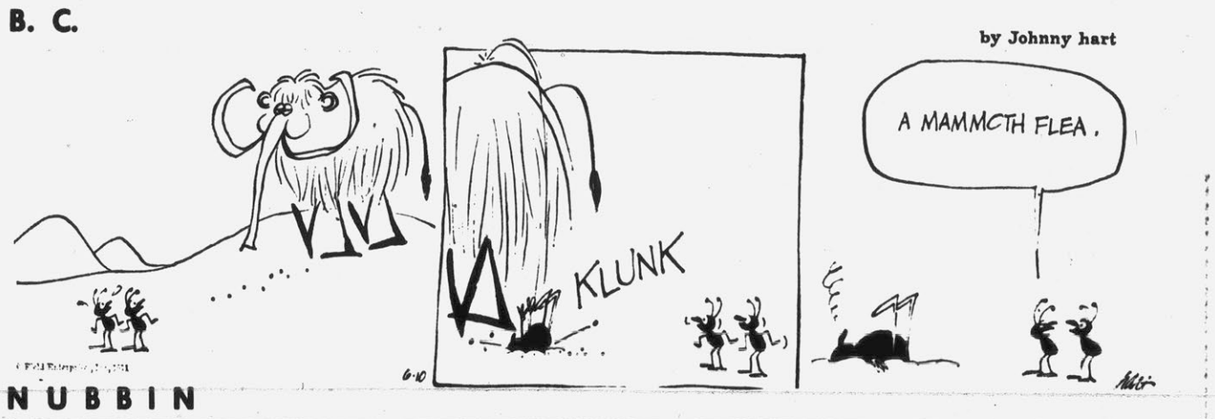

Japan was the 49th states best customer, purchasing 77 per cent of the exports. In return, Alaska imported more than $40 million in materials from Japan, mostly 48-inch pipe for the Trans-Alaska pipeline.

True Love Is Many-Faceted

Prof. Zeke's question is very sound. Visualize the "paper bag" test of 200 girls and then you can see why divorces are zooming. For TV and movies have placed the stress on "anatomy" versus "personality." True love is a many faceted miracle and not to be equated merely with sexual charisma!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case Q-560: Prof. Zeke, aged 38, is a shrewed psychology professor.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "you are aware of the usual argument that women's greater freedom nowadays leads to our higher divorce rate.

"For when a girl can earn as high a salary as a boy of her own age, she doesn't feel dependent upon him for a living.

"But don't you think other factors than a good pay check for women may be causing our divorce rate to rise alarmingly?"

Divorce Virus

Yes; I agree with Prof. Zeke, for a dangerous virus has zoomed our divorce rate.

Remember, over 25 per cent of marriages now end in divorce.

An additional 25 per cent are also failures but because the couples are Catholic or have young children, they may stick together till their kiddies are out of high school.

Alas, we thus have a 50 per cent failure in our modern marriages!

And one of the main reasons is the exaggerated stress on "anatomy" instead of "personality."

Girls now stress their physical "measurements" and show off

before males with a minimum of clothing, to entice the sexual interest of men.

Yet happy marriage depends more on what is above a girl's neck!

In earlier generations, women were so heavily clothed that even the toe of their slipper hardly was visible!

So they won their mates by conversational charm, a cordial smile and their talents at the parlor piano, plus the kitchen cook stove.

Suppose we contact 100 girls whose entire bodies below the neck are encased in large brown paper bags.

The second group of 100 girls have their heads obscured in paper bags but their bodies, clad only in bikinis, are fully exposed.

Now let 200 unmarried young fellows inspect the 100 whose heads alone are showing, versus the other 100 whose bodies are almost nude but whose heads are entirely hidden.

Suppose each of those 200 men then picks a girl and marries her.

In which group do you think we'd have the higher divorce rate?

Will the 100 boys who married "bodies" be more likely to stay permanently wed, or will the 100 who picked their sweethearts on the basis of their faces, smiles and conversation?

That, in a graphic way, illustrates the trend in modern times to exploit female anatomy as a prelude to promiscuity and possible weddings.

Although sexual compatibility is a vital aspect of happy marriage, for most divorces start in the bedroom, the proper onset for romance should be based on compatible personalities.

Unless a boy and girl can enjoy each other's company and sit for hours, just conversing about mutual interests, their mere sexual charisma may be effervescent.

For sexual magnetism often wanes overnight!

Read the story in the Bible of Amnon's great love for the Princess Tarmar and you will see that his so-called deep love disappeared in a few minutes after he ravished her. (II Samuel, Chapter 13)

For when a man satisfies his erotic hunger, as well as his gastric appetite, he may have little affection either for the paramour or the cook!

True love is a many-faceted romantic miracle, not to be equated with eroticism alone!

So send for my 200-point "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Wall St. 'Crime Free-For-All'

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed convoys of postal guards have all but eliminated massive security thefts at U.S. airports but organized crime still profits enormously from steal-to-order thieves on Wall Street, the Senate rackets committee has been told.

J. W. Cotter, chief U.S. postal inspector, testified Wednesday claims for stolen securities, jewels, travelers checks and other valuables had reached $76 million before hundreds of arrests and tightened security nearly ended the theft of registered mail pouches.

Murray J. Gross, an assistant district attorney for Manhattan said earlier only the abolishment of stock certificates themselves could end a free-for-all of crime on Wall Street.

"Everybody is stealing," Gross said. "The brokerage house messengers, the clerks, even the supervisory personnel.

"This thing mushroomed very quickly, Gross said. It's a new kind of crime. Everybody was slow to respond."

Now, Gross said, it may be too late.

He said some banks and minor stock houses are believed infiltrated by organized criminal elements may be pipelines for stolen stocks and bonds.

And, he added, some stock brokerage firms may have been created by a crime syndicate solely to carry out corrupt schemes.

There are strong indications as well, he went on, that counterfeiters are moving in on the action.

Organized crime, Gross said, came to the New York financial district with its traditional "bag of tricks: extortion, robbery, intimidation, counterfeiting, embezzlement, simple theft and even arson."

"They were more than able to breach the flimsy fortress of Wall Street security."

Now, he said, organized crime is faced with stiff competition from amateurs in the actual thefts.

But organized crime has a virtual monopoly on the disposition of the stolen securities, Gross said.

Tightened security alone will not stop security thefts, Gross asserted.

The necessary alternative, he said, "is to abandon the pieces of paper—the stock certificates and bonds—and to replace the system with a computerized scheme of debits and credits.

Kosygin Seems Aware Military 'Watching' Him

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's latest remarks about Soviet relations with the United States leave the impression that he is acutely conscious of a Soviet military presence breathing over his shoulder.

Kosygin spoke Wednesday in connection with his candidacy for the Russian Supreme Soviet.

His discussion of foreign affairs seemed, if anything, to set back hopes for significant Soviet-American agreement in such fields as troop reduction and strategic arms limitation.

A short time ago there was a puzzling aspect to the announcement that the Americans and Russians had reached some sort of accord at Vienna on how to proceed at the SALT talks. President Nixon hailed it as a breakthrough. The Russian treatment was strikingly more cautious.

One explanation now seems to be coming through in the sharply belligerent tone of the Soviet military press, as if warning the civilian politicians not to commit the Soviet Union to anything radical in the way of arms limitation. The armed forces newspaper Red Star has been carrying articles by high-ranking officers on the theme of preparedness.

Is this a time to agree to limit strategic arms? Red Star says that at present "the world Socialist system is relentlessly approaching a condition of having a decisive supremacy of forces." In short, it has not reached that condition yet; why call a halt at this point?

Another general pictures the United States as a continuing threat to the Communist world because, in his view, Washington constantly pursues a "position of strength" policy. "Is the U.S. strategy really changing," he asks, "or is only the phraseology changing?" His suggestion is that the United States is far from sincere about seeking a detente.

Such themes are being repeated frequently these days in the military press. This makes the observer wonder whether Premier Kosygin is being nervously cautious about keeping the military men happy. The civilian side goes out of its way to assure the military that there will be no cutback in military-oriented heavy industry while the government tries to step up consumer production in line with pomises made at the 24th Communist party congress.

Kosygin's speech questioned whether the United States is interested in anything beyond "preservation and intensification of international tensions, with all the ensuing consequences." He accused the United States of deliberately increasing tension in the Middle East and resisting relaxation in Europe. He added that Soviet-American relations "are far from the state that could be termed satisfactory."

Possibly that will keep the military men satisfied, but it wouldn't seem calculated to help a great deal toward meaningful accord on the overriding world problem of the day: how to reduce the awesome threat of superpower conflict.

Recreation Program In Grifton Runs 10 Weeks

GRIFTON — The Grifton Summer Recreation Program begins Monday, and will run for ten weeks through August 20.

Activities will include softball, volleyball, badminton, games, and crafts and will be open to all ages. A flexible schedule will allow for various activities according to the ages and interests of children who come each day to the town park. The crafts program is geared to three age groups: preschool, 7 through nine years, and ages 10 and over. Mornings will be devoted to active sports and games and afternoons are reserved for crafts.

A parent's consent form and a $1.00 registration fee will be required from each child who wishes to participate.

Director for the program is Miss Ivy Snow, a graduate of East Carolina University. She has a background which includes experience in softball, crafts, and managing children of various ages. She will be assisted by Miss Marion McLawhorn, a rising sophomore at East Carolina University, who has worked with the Grifton Summer Recreation Program for two summers through the PACE program. Also, three high school boys will be employed through the Neighborhood Youth Corp program.

Girls' softball teams which have been practicing after school hours under the coaching of Mrs. Pat Kilpatrick and Mrs. Gerri Eibanks, will practice from 10-12 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings. These are for grades 5 and 6, and grades 7 and 8. These girls will meet at the school ballfield Monday. Plans are being made for these teams to play teams from out of town.

John Cotton Manning, tennis instructor for the series of tennis classes held during May, reports several people have inquired about playing in tournaments. Those who wish to participate in these call him at 524-4203.

West Pointer Asks To Stay In Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A young West Point graduate missing from his unit after being ordered to Vietnam is in Sweden and has asked to stay, aliens police said today.

A police official said 1st Lt. John R. Vequist, 24, Pittsburg, Kan., arrived "three days before the end of last month" and contacted police.

He had been assigned to a U.S. Army artillery unit at Kaiserslautern in West Germany. He disappeared on May 20.

"I am not allowed to say if Vequist has sought asylum here," the police official said. "However, he has asked permission for a prolonged stay in Sweden. I'm sending his case to the immigration authorities later today."

Vequist was graduated from West Point in 1969, finished 232nd out of a class of 800. He then attended the Army Air Defense School at Ft. Bliss, Tex., and went to Germany in December 1969.

Army officials in Washington said they had no information to indicate Vequist was an opponent of the Indochina war.

The Army said it believed his wife was with him in Sweden where about 245 GIs have sought refuge since 1966.

Vequist's commander in Germany said: "Up until the time of Lt. Vequist's unauthorized departure, his performance and conduct had been fully satisfactory."

ChargeDriver In Traffic Mishap

Police charged Thomas Stewart Ferrell Jr. of Rt. 5, Greenville with failing to reduce his speed sufficient to avoid an accident following investigation of a collision here Wednesday morning.

Officers reported the 9:50 a.m. wreck occurred on Fifth Street west of it's intersection with Evans and involved cars driven by Ferrell and John Bryant Venters of 1016 Myrtle Avenue.

Damage was estimated at $125 to the Venters vehicle and $35 to the car driven by Ferrell. No injuries were reported.

Asserts Parents Caused Tension

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Jack Ledbetter resigned Wednesday as principal of Albemarle Road Junior High School, blaming a small group of parents for causing tension at the school.

He said the parents created tensions leading to a disturbance at the school early this month.

Ledbetter said he has accepted a sales position with an insurance firm.

Signs Of Nostalgia As Wedding Plans Advance

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With his daughter Tricia's wedding just two days away, President Nixon is showing signs of nostalgia amidst the hectic festivities that include tonight's White House bridal party and bachelor dinner.

The President took his family out for dinner for the second night in a row Wednesday. This time it was a Potomac River cruise on the presidential yacht Sequioa. Tuesday the Nixon family dined at an exclusive private club, also the site of the bachelor party tonight for Tricia's fiance, Edward Cox.

Besides marking Tricia's last day in the White House, Saturday will see the departure of the other Nixon daughter, Julie Eisenhower. She is leaving to be near her Navy Ensign husband, David, who is on duty in the Mediterranean.

The White House is filled with workmen putting in television and telephone lines, press tents, serving facilities, potted trees and flower boxes to decorate the bride's path to the altar.

In addition to wedding party members, designer Priscilla Kidder of Boston arrived Wednesday with the wedding gowns and a seamstress to do last-minute fittings.

The groomsman who came furthest for the occasion was 24-year-old Charles R. Horsburgh Jr. He took a leave from his Peace Corp post in Iran to be with Cox, a Princeton friend.

Eddie's godfather and godmother, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKean of Winter Park, Fla., invited relatives and young friends of the bridal couple, plus out of town guests to a luncheon for 100 at the private Sulgrave Club Friday before the wedding rehearsal.

While they were celebrating, Tricia entertains women relatives, her matron of honor, sister Julie and maid of honor, Eddie's sister Mary Ann Cox.

But Tricia's two young cousins, who are junior bridesmaids, Amy and Beth Nixon, will miss the party. They arrive late tonight from the West Coast, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nixon of Seattle, Wash.

Slight Increase In Building Permits Reported For May

Total building permits issued by the City of Greenville during May showed a slight overall increase over any other previous month of 1971. The biggest increase of five over the month of March, when 12 permits were issued for construction of residences within the city.

May also showed the second highest total new construction value—$698,996, exceeded only by the total for March, which was $811,920. The reason for the exceedingly high figure in March was a permit issued for 64 housing units for an addition to Oakmont Square Apartments. This permit alone had a construction value of $360,000.

Issue Costs Him A Vote

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. Dwight Quinn's handling of the soft drink tax repeal issue has apparently cost him at least one vote in his bid to become House Speaker in 1973.

The Cabarrus County Democrat, who is chairman of the House Finance committee, abruptly cancelled a committee meeting Wednesday in an effort to head off a move by repeal supporters to reconsider the vote by which action on repeal was delayed until June 24. The delay would almost certainly kill the bill since revenues are not likely to be cut after the budget bill is put in final form about June 23.

Supporters of repeal of the one-cent crown tax had been gathering votes for an attempt to reconsider Tuesday's delaying action.

When Quinn announced the meeting was cancelled because the committee had no business to conduct, Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, a strong backer of the tax repeal, turned to Rep. James Gamsey, D-Person, Quinn's leading opponent for the speaker's race, and said:

"Congratulations. You are sure to be the next speaker."

Columbia River No Longer A Rich Salmon Producer

By STEVE LOWELL
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Fisheries experts say dams and a rash of pollution sources have changed the Columbia River in a few decades from a pure and prime salmon producer into a series of comparatively stagnant, fish-killing pools.

The situation was so acute that late in April the fisheries agencies of Oregon and Washington temporarily closed, then reopened, both the commercial and sport salmon fishing seasons on the river.

The reason: The spring chinook run was about half the average count for that time of year at Bonneville Dam, the first one the fish have to surmount on their spawning runs upriver.

Agency experts said they figured the drop in numbers was because of unusually high, muddy water from the spring runoff and because of nitrogen supersaturation of the water.

Fisheries experts say the nitrogen problem is increasing. A salmon has trouble, they say, finding its way into a narrow fish ladder in a dam across the tremendous river, but on top of that he suffers something like the "bends" that afflict divers when too much nitrogen is forced into their blood.

From what these experts indicate, trouble for the river began in the 1930s with what one state official calls "the general activities of mankind that make a river into an artificial thing." It was then that Bonneville Dam was built about 35 miles east of Portland.

That was the start of a string of 11 on the main stem of the gigantic River of the West. A few years later, during World War II, Grand Coulee Dam was built in north-central Washington 596 miles upstream, blocking salmon migration runs at that point because the Reclamation Bureau failed to install a fish passageway.

Now there are 50 dams on the Columbia and its myriad tributaries, and more are planned. There's good reason, in the minds of power interests. Stanford Research Institute says that "in terms of power potential, the Columbia stands alone, surpassing even the Amazon, the largest river in the world."

But dams are only part of the problem as far as Al Lasater, deputy director of the Washington Fisheries Department, is concerned.

"Loss of natural environment is the basic problem," he says, "Things that man does that change our country.

"Dams, pollution of various sorts, the withdrawal of irrigation water, the taking of gravel from the river to build roads and make concrete, channelization. Pesticides are a special pollution problem, of course. Deforestation, changes of flow pattern of the water and the texture of it."

In mid-May, the governors of Washington and Oregon announced appointment of a consulting firm to do preliminary work on an environmental protection plan for the river from the mouth upstream to the Hanford Atomic Works area.

The nitrogen problem, judging from the attention fisheries men are giving it recently, seems to be a matter of growing concern.

Hank Wendler, a senior fisheries biologist for the Washington State Fisheries Department, says release of water at dams the way it must be done at present forces nitrogen into solution in depth.

"Unless the fish have sounded below the level where this can be critical to them," he says, "they're going to end up with this nitrogen bubble disease and die."

Another problem they face is heated water.

Wendler says there are times when "you're practically cooking them."

"It's a result," he says, "of these forebays behind the dams and solar radiation on the surface waters."

Temperatures of 88 degrees have been recorded at the mouth of the Columbia's main tributary, the Snake, 50 miles below the site of the nuclear reactors at Hanford Atomic Works in southeastern Washington, Wendler says.

He and Lasater say cooling nuclear reactors and returning heated water back into the river adds to the problem. Their department considers 68 degrees the maximum acceptable heat level, and Lasater says adding reactor-cooling heat is "darned near the last straw."

The Washington State Thermal Power Plant Site Evaluation Council recently approved the proposed location for another nuclear power plant at Hanford, and chairman B. A. McPhillips of the Oregon Environmental Quality Commission said recently at least 20 nuclear plants along the Columbia are proposed.

Long-established pulp mills have been adding chemicals to the river, and insecticides and other chemicals drain from the farms and forests of the basin's 259,000 square miles in British Columbia, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

Can See Fish 'Eye-To-Eye'

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — Nassau and Paradise Island tourists can come face to fin with the multi-colored fish of the Bahamas and still keep dry. The Seafloor Aquarium features 17 viewing windows along a descending walkway for, leisurely looks at underwater life. In addition, glass-bottom boat trips to Nassau's popular Sea Gardens are available at Prince George Whar.

Blame Juveniles For Many Fires

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Fire Department investigators blame juvenile firebugs for keeping them busy.

"Incendiary fires cost residents and insurance companies more than $1.3 million in 1970," said Division Chief Ernest Emerson. "Our statistics indicate juveniles were responsible for 60 to 70 per cent of these fires."

AN UNMEATY HAUL

PATENSIE, South Africa (AP) — Thieves stole traffic cop W.J. Deyzel's official station wagon, and used it to haul off a butcher shop's safe. The vehicle was recovered undamaged and the safe emptied of $36.

A study by Dr. Keith E. Jolles of Britain shows that a driver's bad temper can constitute a grave traffic risk.
