Cities May Close Pools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 today that cities faced with integration orders may close down swimming pools and other public facilities, denying their use to both blacks and whites.

Turning down a plea by a group of Jackson, Miss., Negroes, the court said there is no illegal discrimination when neither blacks nor whites have the use of public facilities. All the Constitution requires, said Justice Hugo L. Black, is that the states do not promote separation of the races.

The pools ruling marked another turning point. It was a rare defeat for civil rights forces after years of almost uninterrupted victory in the high court.

The decision was forged by an alignment with Black of the two Nixon administration appointments, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, and Justice Harry A. Blackmun, and two conservative holdovers, John M. Harlan and Potter Stewart.

In dissent were Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall.

Black, speaking for the majority, said, "Neither the 14th Amendment nor any act of Congress purports to impose an affirmative duty on a state to begin to operate or to continue to operate swimming pools. Furthermore, this is not a case where whites are permitted to use public facilities while blacks are denied access."

Drug Abuse Pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon called key administration officials to the White House today along with seven U.S. ambassadors as part of a lengthy examination of drug abuse in American society.

Called to the meeting were the envoys to Mexico, Turkey, South Vietnam, Thailand, France, Luxembourg and the United Nations, plus Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, told reporters at Andrews Air Force Base Sunday night the Saigon government is aware of reports that marijuana and hard drugs are increasingly available in South Vietnam, and is working on the problem.

Besides South Vietnam, the United States has urged the other countries to step up efforts to cope with the drug problem and the illicit traffic in narcotics and marijuana.

Had No Advance Word

RALEIGH (AP) — State Democratic Chairman Gene Simmons says he had no advance notice of last week's convention of teen-age Democrats, which wound up with a blast at party elders for ignoring the youngsters.

Simmons said Sunday the teen-age group "must let me know what they are doing if they want our help."

Simmons said this when asked for comment on the charge by the teen-age Democrats outgoing president, Martha Curtis of Graham, that the group had received no cooperation from senior party leaders.

Simmons said he had never failed to work with the teen-agers, but "I didn't know the first thing about the teen-age Democrats convention until the first day it met."

Missing Over Pacific

HONOLULU (AP) — Military aircraft searched the Pacific Ocean 700 miles southeast of here early today for a missing Air Force transport jet carrying 24 persons believed to be military personnel.

The four-engine C135, military version of the Boeing 707, disappeared Sunday on a 2,227-mile flight from Pago Pago, American Samoa, to Hawaii.

An area 200 miles north of Palmyra Island became the center of search operations after rescue plans picked up the signal of a crash position indicator, said Capt. Bill Ballew, an Air Force information officer.

"We can't be positive that the device is from the missing plane," Ballew said. "We'll only know for sure after we have it picked up after daylight."

He said no debris had been spotted.

Ballew said the crash position indicator is ejected from a plane when the crew knows it is going down.

No Trace Of The Newlyweds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tricia and Edward Cox's whereabouts remained a mystery today as President Nixon's daughter and son-in-law continued their honeymoon.

The newlyweds left the White House Saturday evening, just hours after the wedding ceremony.

Workmen began dismantling the Rose Garden wedding setting even before all the 400 wedding guests had departed Saturday evening. By Sunday, the last of the elaborate decorations were removed.

Found Missing Boy And A Still

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — Searchers who had hunted through the night for a missing Orlando, Fla., boy found not only the boy today, but also a 5,000-gallon liquor still.

Six-year-old Billy Kite was in good conditions when found in a wooded mountain area of Surry County but was taken to an Elkin hospital for observation.

He had been missing since Sunday afternoon while visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carlan of nearby Mountain Park.

Sheriff's deputies planned to destroy the still found coincidentally by searchers hunting for the boy.

'Executioners' Killed 7

DETROIT (AP) — Seven persons were shot to death and an eighth was wounded critically today in what homicide officers called execution-type slayings in a suspected dope pad.

Four women who were slain were found with their arms tied behind them. All eight of the victims were found in the first-floor living room of the two-story dwelling.

District Inspector James Barron, who headed the police team at the slaying site, said a quantity of suspected narcotics—believed to be heroin—was found in the house along with a dozen handguns and long guns, none of which appeared to have been fired recently.

None of the victims was identified immediately.

Off-duty homicide detectives were called in to aid in the investigation of the multiple slayings which occurred on Hazelwood

Street, just off predominantly black 12th Street—the focal point of the 1967 Detroit riots.

Homicide officers expressed belief the mass killings were the latest in a string of about 25 narcotics-connected homicides since the first of the year.

They had said previously a power struggle is under way in the Detroit narcotics underworld.

The slayings were discovered when the wife of the wounded man returned home at 4:30 a.m.

"The house looked like a blood bath," she told police. Dan Smith, a next-door neighbor, said he heard what sounded "like small fire-crackers" during the night but that he did not realize anything was wrong until he heard police sirens approaching.

The wounded man was listed in critical condition at Henry Ford Hospital with a gunshot wound in the chest.

Four Of Nonuplets Alive, But Concern Felt For 3

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Four of the nine babies born to 29-year-old Geraldine Brodrick were still alive today, but the condition of three of them was causing concern.

A hospital bulletin this morning said there was no change in the condition of the first baby delivered just before dawn Sunday, a girl. The condition of the other two girls and a boy "gives cause for some concern," it said.

Doctors reported Mrs. Brodrick was well and "catching up on some sleep." She did not require more than routine post-natal care and was unlikely to remain in the hospital any longer than a single-pregnancy mother, they said.

The mother had not seen the babies, who were two months premature and weighed between one and two pounds.

The birth of the nonuplets was the largest multiple birth on record. Amid the proliferation in mass births since the use of fertility drugs became widespread in the past decade, eight babies were born to a Mexican woman on March 10, 1967, but all died within 14 hours.

Mrs. Brodrick has two daughters, 5 and 4 years old, but had taken a fertility drug to correct a hormonal disorder.

The first two of her nonuplets, both boys, were stillborn. Two boys and a girl died Sunday night after experiencing respiratory difficulties.

Mrs. Brodrick's husband, Leonard, is a 32-year-old meat salesman and she is a former nurse. They live in Canberra, Australia's capital.

The woman entered a Sydney hospital three weeks ago after tests showed she was likely to have sextuplets. Doctors advised her five days ago that further tests indicated nine babies would be born.

The five boys and four girls were delivered naturally in 32 minutes by a medical team headed by Harvey M. Carey, 54, head of the School of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of New South Wales. Mrs. Brodrick's two other children were born by Caesarean section.

Brodrick, who had been living at the hospital for several days, said a television broadcast, "Geraldine looks terrific." Asked about names for the babies, he said, "We'll leave that for at least a week. There's too much else to consider at present."

N.C. Beauty Pageant Entries Gather; Miss Greenville Is There

Miss Pamela Jean Kilpatrick, the current Miss Greenville, flew to Charlotte Sunday to compete in the Miss North

PAMELA KILPATRICK

Carolina title rather than Miss Virginia because, "My parents are military, so it doesn't matter. They're very happy for me." Her parents will be unable to attend the pageant because they will be visiting her sister in Oregon during that time.

Each of the 63 candidates for the title of Miss North Carolina will be competing in four categories — swim suit, evening gown, talent, and personality. Every judge on the panel will pick the five contestants he feels are most outstanding in the various competitions. He will rank them according to his opinion of the merit of their performances.

During the personality phase of the competition, each of the contestants will be interviewed by the judges, and will be judged on her poise and character. Even though the girls will not be rated in this category, the judges' impressions of each contestant will have an effect on their final decision.

On Wednesday evening, Miss Kilpatrick will participate in the evening gown competition. She plans to wear a two-tone green chiffon empire gown. The sleeveless, v-necked gown will be adorned by a rhinestone clip.

Each girl is allowed to wear her own bathing suit in the swim suit competition; however, the suits must comply with pageant regulations. All contestants must wear panel-front suits. Miss Kilpatrick will compete in this phase of the contest on Friday.

Each candidate is required to present a talent selection of a maximum length of two minutes and 45 seconds. Miss Kilpatrick, a physical education major at ECU, stated that she has been rehearsing the routine for "a month or two."

Hazel eyed, brown haired Pamela Jean Kilpatrick was not only selected Miss Greenville by the panel of local judges on April 6, but she was also voted "Most Congenial" by the girls competing with her.

The Miss North Carolina Pageant is sponsored annually by the North Carolina Jaycees.

looted and police headquarters was stoned by the crowd of young people.

Under the emergency order, a curfew was in effect from 1 a.m. until 6 a.m., with all persons on the streets subject to arrest or questioning.

The latest violence came between 3 a.m. and 4 a.m., when two persons were hit by shotgun pellets after police drew a restraining line around a lotted liquor store.

A third person had been wounded there earlier by an armed employee of the store.

Fight On 3 Fronts

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodian and South Vietnamese troops battled Communist forces on three fronts in Cambodia Sunday and today.

In South Vietnam, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces intensified their attacks in the central highlands and maintained their three-week-old siege of Fire Base 5, where fighting broke out 500 yards from the barbed wire perimeter.

North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong urged Communist forces in South Vietnam to step up the war. He told North Vietnam's new National Assembly that the U.S. program to train and strengthen the South Vietnamese war machine is failing. He said this has created "a very favorable opportunity for our countrymen and compatriots in the South to step up their military and political struggle."

In the Cambodian fighting, troops from the 9th North Vietnamese-Viet Cong Division launched new assaults in a downpour early today against Cambodian army bunkers around two hamlets in the Vihear Suor marshes 15 miles east of Phnom Penh. Fighting continued for more than eight hours, but there was no word of casualties or other details.

The battle for small patches of high ground which will remain above water during the current monsoon season is now in its third week. The area is part of an important North Vietnamese supply route and is the key to Phnom Penh's eastern defenses.

Disorders Saw 13 People Shot

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Police armed with automatic weapons and shotguns moved into a city park this morning and arrested the last holdouts of an estimated 500 young people who clashed with officers during a night of disorder in which at least 13 persons were wounded by gunfire.

The trouble flared Sunday afternoon after police apparently tried to make arrests for public drinking at the crowded park.

A state of civil emergency was imposed early today after businesses were burned or looted and police headquarters was stoned by the crowd of young people.

Under the emergency order, a curfew was in effect from 1 a.m. until 6 a.m., with all persons on the streets subject to arrest or questioning.

The latest violence came between 3 a.m. and 4 a.m., when two persons were hit by shotgun pellets after police drew a restraining line around a lotted liquor store.

A third person had been wounded there earlier by an armed employee of the store.

West Warned Must Curb 'Leaping Wages' Trend

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — The Bank for International Settlements warned the Western world's governments today that they must fight inflation by curbing "leaping wages" despite the unpopularity of such measures.

In its annual report, the clearing house for the West's central banks said recent events have shown "more strikingly than ever before that wage policy is an instrument which should be more fully exploited."

"It is a challenge to political leadership which cannot be brushed aside," said the 194-page report signed by the bank's new French general manager, Rene Larre. Labor legislation may have to be strengthened, the influence of government may need to be used more effectively, and public opinion must be brought to see the realities of the problem.

"In particular, governments cannot expect success if they keep their hands off distasteful policy actions and leave the whole job to central bank measures.

"Managing the money supply is a vital instrument of policy but it is not a panacea — particularly when the root of inflation is leaping wages."

The report said wage increases last year were bigger and more widespread than ever before, and in a few countries they were "beyond reason."

Italy was the leader with an average wage increase of 21 per cent. Though comparable data were lacking for the United States, there was a 6.3 per cent rise in average earnings, which the bank termed "a very high figure."

The bank said the squeeze on profits, with its related curtailment of investments for plants and equipment, was a "particularly adverse effect" of inflation in the West.

"It is apparent that if this problem persists, as it threatens to do, continuation of the productivity gains and the huge expansion of output of the last 20 years will be put in jeopardy," the report said.

The bank said recent developments also showed the need to improve the adaptability of national money policies.

The Western world will have to "face the fact of the persistently large U.S. balance of payments deficit" influencing the international monetary system and prompting growing demands for controls of international trade and payments, the report said.

LEAD POSONING — Pathologists consider this black leopard, suffering from lead poisoning, a warning for humans about the danger of lead in the air. (AP Wirephoto)

Lead Poisoning Alarm Sounds In N.Y. Zoo

NEW YORK (AP) — A sick black leopard, his dead twin brother, and other zoo animals seem to be sounding an alarm bell that humans are endangered by lead in the air, pathologists cautioned today.

The main source of this lead seems to be gasoline fumes and industrial operations, they said.

The ailing leopard—nicknamed "Mr. Leo Pard"—is being treated at the New York Medical College to rid his body of high concentrations of lead for the second time in his 18 months of life.

He was recently brought in again, suffering from convulsions, from the Staten Island Zoo in New York City, where his twin brother died last November. An autopsy found that animal "loaded with lead." Cats lick their fur, which can attract lead or other heavy elements in the atmosphere.

Sending "Mr. Leo Pard" back to the zoo again could be his death warrant from a third round of lead poisoning, said Dr. Ralph Strebel, one of the pathologists.

Other big cats—lions, tigers, jaguars—at the Staten Island Zoo have been found to have elevated levels of lead and zinc in their stools and hair, and so to a lesser degree have big cats at the Bronx Zoo 15 miles away, said Strebel, associate professor of pathology at the medical college. He is project director of a comparative pathology program designed to benefit both humans and animals.

Bobcats, living outdoors at the zoo, have more lead than cats living inside, he said. Some monkeys had significant lead concentrations, so did some snakes that died of starvation because of some illness—whether due to lead poisoning or not. The malady caused them to turn on their backs and they couldn't seek food.

An 'Obsession' Fatal To Youth

SEATTLE (AP) — As a boy, he once sailed a small boat across the Baltic Sea. Now 25-year-old James Brinton has been lost at sea, the victim of what his stepfather calls an obsession to be the first to cross an ocean in a kayak.

"I used to be a seaman, and I know the power of the sea on a little boat, but there was nothing anyone could do to stop him," said James D. Moore.

"Jim always loved the water, but he just got possessed with an idea, and once he got it, that was it."

Brinton's capsized 17-foot craft was discovered intact by a fisherman in the Pacific Ocean about four miles off

Washington's Olympic Peninsula early Sunday. 24 hours after the Seattle youth left LaPush, Wash., for what was to have been a 7,000-mile, three-month journey to Japan.

Two aircraft, a Coast Guard cutter and a local fishing boat searched in winds to 29 miles per hour and six-to 10-foot seas, but late Sunday Coast Guard spokesmen said there was little chance Brinton would be found alive.

Moore said he shared the official view, with some qualification.

"Jimmy was a marvelous swimmer; he always excelled at whatever he did," he said.

Couple Weds In High Noon Rites Former Model Turns Horse Trainer

RALEIGH — In a double ring ceremony on Saturday at 12:00 noon, Miss Peggy Carroll became the bride of James Blackwell Hawkins II in the Hayes Barton United Methodist Church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Carroll, of Raleigh was given in marriage by her father. She wore a couturier gown by Piccione of white silk organza. The empire bodice featured a high collar of imported reembroided alencon lace embellished with crystal beads and pearls. A lace motif extended down the front of the bodice accenting the waist. Tiny organza bows and buttons highlight the bodice. The bishop sleeves had an overlay of English net and alencon lace. The A-line skirt featured an overlay of matching English net and reembroided lace extending to a scalloped border at the hem and continuing around the sweep train. Tiny self-covered buttons extend up the back.

Her veil featured a Camelot headpiece of alencon lace flowers highlighted with seed pearls attached to a cathedral veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade of summer flowers on her mother's prayer book.

The bride is granddaughter of Mrs. J. J. Carroll of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Willis A. Wilson and the late James Blackwell Hawkins of Raleigh.

Officiating ministers were Rev. Clyde McCarver, Hayes Barton Methodist Church, and Dr. T. L. Cashwell, Hayes Barton Baptist Church. James Cliburn of Raleigh was organist and Jacqueline Boyd Mooney of Raleigh was soloist.

Two altar vases of white roses, white snapdragons baby's breath and gypsophila with palm background were flanked by five and seven branch candelabra. A modern prie-dieu was used.

Miss Deborah Loraine Newsome of Raleigh was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Dianne Houston Wyatt, Beverly Hale Johnson, Deborah Mason Johnson all of Raleigh, Mary Ann Hagler of Concord and Beth Justesen of Dunn. Frances Ann Carroll of Winterville, Vicki Taylor of Waco, Tex., all cousins of the bride.

They were attired in formal length organza gowns in copeli blue. The gowns were styled with empire bodice embellished with white embroidered flowers and braid and were sleeveless. The full skirt had braid at the hem. They wore white picture straw hats with blue ribbon, bows and streamers. The bridesmaids carried colonial bouquets of summer blowers.

David Dwight Hawkins II of Raleigh was ring bearer.

The best man was Willis Alexander Wilson Sr. of Raleigh. Ushers were David Dwight Hawkins of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom, Michael Warren Carroll of Raleigh, brother of the bride, Willis Alexander Wilson Jr. of Atlanta, Ga., Wayne Wilson Marshall of Raleigh, Douglas Allen Donald Jr. of Charlotte, Melton Wayne Nixon of Concord, Robert Wade Poole Jr. of Raleigh and Dalma Dwight Hawkins II Raleigh, cousin of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride selected a romance blue accordion pleated chiffon dress trimmed with chantilly lace with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom chose a Nile green chiffon dress, trimmed with Venice lace, with matching accessories. Both wore white orchids.

The couple will reside in Chapel Hill.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's Jr. College and will attend UNC-Chapel Hill in the fall. The bridegroom is attending UNC-Chapel Hill and is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

The wedding trip was to unannounced points.

Reception Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents at MacGregors Downs Country Club.

Arrangements of mixed summer flowers and palms decorated the club.

The bride's table was centered by a large silver epergne of mixed summer flowers.

A four tiered wedding cake surrounded by summer flowers was served to the guests by Miss Jennifer Holmes and Miss Wanda Edwards. The guests were received by the bride and bridegroom at the door.

The bride's book was presided over by Miss Mary Paige Pate.

Rehearsal Dinner

The couple was honored at a rehearsal dinner Friday night at the Northridge Country Club Raleigh. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Willis A. Wilson, parents of the bridegroom.

An arrangement of mixed summer flowers centered the head table and smaller arrangements were used on the other tables. The bride was presented a nosegay of pink rosebuds.

The bride and bridegroom were toasted by the guests.

By HILMI TOROS Associated Press Writer TIVOLI, Italy (AP) — To one of Europe's former top fashion models, one big happy family means 20 horses, seven tortoises, four dogs, a cow, a pig and a cat whose "godfather" is a dog.

"I love animals," says British-born Jill Pratt. "In fact, I get along better with animals than with human beings."

Mrs. Pratt says that's why she gave up a lucrative career as a top fashion model, opting for the world of animals. She now lives on a secluded farm below the hills of Tivoli 15 miles outside of Rome.

Tall, dark-haired and shapely in her 40's, Mrs. Pratt still looks like a model. But now instead of mixing in the high fashion world, she breeds animals, delivers them at birth, trains them, sees them grow up and die.

"I belonged to the hunting, fishing and shooting crowd in Somerset, England, as a child," she said recently. "Even when modeling my love for animals never died."

For all her present seclusion, she is by no means unknown in Italy and Europe.

She is, above all, the English woman who trains horses in Italy for "win-place-or-show" placings in European thoroughbred races. For her skill, Italy granted her the first horse training license issued to a woman in a spot that men dominate and women usually only watch.

She once trotted the globe in search of better breeds and wound up buying seven horses from the Soviet Union. In training, Mrs. Pratt rides the horses herself. She considers her training technique a secret.

She is also a women's lib advocate in Tivoli. The helpers in her animal school are all peasant women from the town.

"I snatch the women from the kitchen and show them how they can train animals, just like me," Mrs. Pratt says. "They are a bit shy at first but get used to it later, although their husbands still don't see why the wives should bother with animals."

Mrs. Pratt also is known, through Italian television and newspapers, as the custodian of the interest of animals. She often speaks out against cruelty to animals. Her pride, besides the champion race horses she breeds and trains—like classic winner Juliet—is a kitten she found injured in a street near Tivoli.

"I took her to the farm and she was tended and milked by my dog," she said. "They understand each other so well that the dog became her 'foster-mother.' Like a 'godfather' the dog even protects her from other cats."

Every time Mrs. Pratt travels to Rome, cats and dogs fight like cats and dogs to come along with her. She often takes them for a stroll through the ruins and boulevards of the capital.

In Rome, however, Jill Pratt also is of a diminishing breed that spurns taxis in favor of the carrozzelle, the horse-drawn carriages. The slow carriages make Rome's hopeless traffic bottleneck worse, but she never minds that.

"Even if I go to a formal dinner party, I must take the carriages," she says. "Just to touch the horse on the forehead if for nothing else."

Rome's vetturini, carriage drivers, remember her as the only woman who will take time to stop by the horses and talk to them—in Italian, French and English—and then, to the sur-

She Wants To Help In Time Of Need

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: One thing I've always wished (and still do) is that when someone dies, a friend or member of the family would go thru that dead person's address book and notify everyone listed there that that person has died.

It is so embarrassing to find out in February that someone to whom you sent a Christmas card died in October.

When there is a death, so many friends ask, "What can I do to help?" Well, I think this would be a good job for them. What do you think?

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA.

DEAR SAINT: I think that in 99 out of 100 instances it would be a lovely idea. But the names and addresses in one's address book are the private business of the owner, living or dead. And I would not presume to "notify" all those listed there of the person's death. [I can think of more serious embarrassments than learning that someone to whom you sent a Christmas card had died before Christmas.]

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from the bachelor who said he wouldn't mind marrying a woman with children, and the more the merrier, I accused my husband of writing it.

When he read your reply, the damned fool went to the phone and called his friend, the Chief of Police, and asked for "police protection."

You were right. A man like that is one in a million. He tells all our friends that our five kids have spoiled him rotten, and they have. They fight over who is going to shine his shoes. My Bud has brought so much love into this house, it overflows. He is firm, but fair and the kids adore him. He is one terrific man! Please don't publish the name of this small Florida town as I am not fixin' to lose this jewel.

BUD'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't worry. Your secret is safe with me!

DEAR ABBY: Recently you published a letter from an eligible bachelor who thought a woman with a ready-made family was most desirable, but his friends told him to steer clear of them.

You gave him a pat on the back, saying he was one in a million, and if the word ever got out about his attitude he'd need police protection. You were right, but I happen to agree with his friends.

As a 35-year-old bachelor I fell in love with a divorcee who had two teen-aged children. I, too, welcomed the thought of a ready-made family. I soon realized that love was not enough. There were more built-in disadvantages than I can list here.

Women with children are looking for a husband who is a great provider, a psychiatrist in residence, a long lost father, a superb lover and a big truck into which to dump all their problems. These women had best pray to God. Only He can fill that bill.

BURNED IN THE MIDWEST

CONFIDENTIAL TO FAITHFUL READER IN PALO ALTO: Psychiatry is not an atheistic concept. I was quoting the greatest textbook on human behavior ever written—The Bible.

"And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." [New Testament: John, 8:45.]

Not until one knows "the truth" about himself, complete with all the grim hostilities, insecurities and unresolved conflicts, is he truly "free."

It is the role of the psychiatrist to remove the camouflage, self-deception and rationalizations, and to bring the unconscious conflicts into the conscious mind where reason can deal with them. Once reason is gained, the cure begins, because truth does make one free.

FOOT NOTES OF INTEREST

Hard on His Feet

What's the harm in outgrown or hand-me-down shoes?

According to medical records nearly every baby is born with perfect feet at birth. However, even before a child is ready to walk, his feet may have been inadvertently harmed by restricting his feet. An infant's foot is a soft mass of cartilage, nearly formless. It is pliable and moldable and even the slightest pressure can change its future shape. At three years the foot is still only partially formed and won't be completely until about the age of 20.

During the early years the type of shoes a child wears will determine the health of the foot. Ill-fitted, outgrown, or hand-me-down shoes can result in a host of pains and disfigurements and sometimes disabling foot problems eight of ten adults endure.

LARRY'S SHOE STORE reminds you to take good care of your feet and they'll take good care of you. Properly fitting shoes will keep your feet in good condition. Our specialty is seeing that each pair of shoes you buy does just that. Visit us soon, LARRY'S SHOE STORE, 431 Evans St. Open daily 9 till 6.

'Planning For Boy's Game Golden Years' Is Program Topic

"Planning for the Golden Years" was the program topic for the meeting of the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club Thursday night. The program was presented by Sue Cox of the World Affairs Committee. Alma Letchworth introduced Dee Taylor from the Social Security Office. Mrs. Taylor spoke on the benefits of Social Security. Ruth Harris spoke about the Senior Citizens group as "being worthwhile and also a lot of fun for anyone over 55 years of age." She spoke about the golden years and enjoyment derived from handwork. She displayed many items which she had made in the past years.

Highlights of the state convention held in Wilmington June 4-6 were given by Ruth Garner, Naomi Edwards, Margaret Register and Doty McLaughlin. Special recognition was given to Doty McLaughlin and Jeannette Cox, who were recently featured in The Daily Reflector.

Eight members were recognized for the past year's perfect attendance.

President Retsy Baker presided at the meeting. The next meeting will be held on July 8.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Randall Whitehurst Sr. of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown styled with a high neckline and A-line skirt. The bodice featured Venice lace flower appliques which also trimmed the long full sheer sleeves. The empire waistline was accentuated by a band of organza with appliques of lace flowers. The lace flowers also dotted the skirt front and detachable chapel train.

Her tiara headpiece featured organza loops with Venice lace petals attached to a shoulder length white organza veil. The bride carried a white lace prayerbook centered with two orchids.

Miss Linda Tripp of Greenville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was dressed in a formal length blue A-line dotted swiss dress with a long blue bow in back. She wore a blue petal hat with blue illusion and carried a nosegay bouquet.

Bridesmaids were Miss Sue Scism, Miss Cathy Furstenberg, Miss Elizabeth Tripp, Miss Geneva Tripp, Miss Deborah Tripp, sisters of the bride, and Miss Hope Tripp, cousin of the bride, all of Greenville.

They wore yellow A-line formal length dotted swiss dresses with empire waistlines. Their matching headpieces were attached to yellow illusion and they carried nosegay bouquets.

Junior bridesmaids were Miss Betty Tripp, sister of the bride, and Miss Tina Tripp, cousin of the bride. They wore blue dotted swiss A-line dresses and carried long-stemmed roses.

Miss Terrie Spencer cousin of the bride, was flower girl and was dressed in a blue dotted swiss A-line dress with a long ribbon in back. She wore a ribbon in her hair and carried a basket of rose petals.

Serving as best man was the father of the bridegroom. Ushers were Thomas Whitehurst, uncle of the bridegroom, Earl Tripp, uncle of the bride, Tony Whitehurst, brother of the bridegroom, Jarvis Tripp, uncle of the bride, James Bland and David Bland, both cousins of the bride, all of Greenville.

Following a wedding trip to western North Carolina, the couple will reside in Greensboro. The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and attended Pitt Tech. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rose High School and East Carolina University. He is employed by Blue Bell, Inc., Greensboro.

Guests were greeted by a receiving line composed of members of the wedding party as they entered the fellowship hall of the church.

A color scheme of green and yellow was used in decorations.

Mrs. Nell Bland, aunt of the bride, poured punch and cake was served by Mrs. Joyce Spender.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Tripp, grandparents of the bride.

After-Rehearsal Party
The Whitehurst-Tripp wedding party and guests were entertained at an after-rehearsal party at the home of the bridegroom's parents Friday night.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Scott, grandparents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leggett and Mr. and Mrs. Chick Hardy, aunts and uncles of the bridegroom.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with a four branch candelabra with white candles and white daisies.

Mrs. James H. Tripp, mother of the bride, poured punch and Mrs. Whitehurst, mother of the bridegroom, served cake.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Hardy.

Shower Given Miss Avery

Miss Linda Avery of Winterville, bride-elect of June 20, was feted at a bridal shower Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Eldridge Avery.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. Hoover Avery, Mrs. Charles McLawhorn, and Mrs. Kelly Nobles.

Miss Avery wore a mint green dress which was accented by a pink carnation, a gift of her hostess, who also presented her a silver serving tray.

The table was decorated with a bouquet of pink and white summer flowers and was accented on either side with candles. Wedding bells accented with pink ribbons decorated the bride's tables while the mantel was enhanced with candles and greenery and a miniature bride and bridegroom.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Laddie Avery of Winterville, the bride's sisters, Miss Patsy Avery and Mrs. Kenneth Moore Jr. of Winterville, and Mrs. Raymond Brock, Sr., grandmother of the bride were among the guests present.

Luncheon Given Bride-Elect

SALISBURY — Miss Linda Avery of Winterville, who will marry Richard Thurston on June 20, was honored on Wednesday at a luncheon at the home of Harmon Sned of Salisbury.

Associate hostesses were Mrs. Richard Reamer and Mrs. Randy Reamer.

Miss Avery wore a blue and white linen dress and with a white glamellia corsage, a gift of the hostesses, who also presented her with a gift.

The table was covered with a cloth of white Madeira linen, embroidered in pastel flowers. Summer flowers centered the table and were arranged throughout the house.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Laddie Avery of Winterville, the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Thomas Thurston, and the bride's sisters, Miss Patsy Avery and Mrs. Kenneth Moore Jr. of Winterville, were among the 25 guests present.

Robert Hardin Armstrong Sr. of Virginia Beach, Va. and the late Col. Robert Hardin Armstrong and Mr. and Mrs. Clifton E. H. Beane of Asheboro, N.C.

Dr. John E. Johnson officiated the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Cdr. Douglas Murray of Virginia Beach, Va., and organist was Mrs. H. H. Sisson Jr.

The bride was given away by her brother, William Bay Armstrong. She wore a formal gown of white eyelet batiste, accented by ruffles at the high neckline, cuffs on the long sleeves and hemline. The empire waist featured yellow velvet ribbon.

She wore picture hat with veiling bow and carried a nosegay of daisies and roses.

Mrs. Ernest Stewart of Birmingham, Ala., cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She was dressed in light blue batiste

Final Credit To The Employees

Eleven Pitt County firms were cited by the N. C. Department of Labor last week for safety achievement, recognizing their work in preventing industrial accidents during 1970.

We feel that congratulations are in order for these firms and organizations which have established safety records that qualify them for this state award.

The credit, goes to the employees who are, after all, the ones who ultimately see that on-the-job accidents do not happen.

Drab Plumage In Legislature

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Fashion decrees this the era of male elegance, but halls of the North Carolina General Assembly look more like the barnyard than peacock alley.

Oh, a few legislators deck themselves in bright plumage with all the brash flash of a bantam cock. The majority sticks to a safe drabness no more daring than a domineer rooster.

"Members of the legislature," commented Senator Charles H. Larkins,

Jr., of Lenoir, "dress as though they had been drug, kicking and screaming, into the 19th century..."

In other words, as a group Tar Heel lawmakers in matters of fashion are sadly behind the times. There are those whose attention to style stopped at the white oxford, button-down shirt. Some even still wear hats and tassel loafers.

Those aware of style and trying to get with it don't always pull it off. They aim for Technicolor and come out like the Sunday funny papers out of register or a color TV set badly in need of fine tuning.

Fashion Is His Business

Larkins has a sensitive eye for what his colleagues are wearing. As president of C.H. Larkins Clothing Stores, Inc., founded by his father, he makes a living by keeping up with styles for men — and trying to get men to keep up with styles.

Senators and Representatives aren't too different from their brothers in response to dictates of fashion, Larkins surmised. "Most men couldn't care less," he said.

"Usually it's Momma and the young son who keep after the old man until they get him out of that dark suit, white shirt and $1.98 clip-on tie."

Larkins himself sets a modish example for the Senate. On this occasion, he wore a suit of medium blue (belted back, flap pockets), a tapestry design tie in blue and gold, and a white shirt — a white shirt?

"Not really," he corrected. "White-on-white. Also, button detail on the sleeve." Sure enough, the fabric had a woven stripe and the cuffs closed with classy loops instead of common buttonholes.

Economics, female dominance and peer group pressure combine to determine how most men dress, Larkins theorized.

Dad Comes Last

"With inflation pinching the family budget, the first whack out of the clothing dollar goes to the kids. Wives get second choice. Whatever's left over is for Papa," he explained. Often that means Dad wears the same old suit one more year.

Women set the trends. If a man's married, he wears what she likes; unmarried, he wears what he thinks the girls will like.

"The same with hair," Larkins said. "Men will wear their hair long until women decide they like it short."

Occupation has a lot to do with what a man wears. Bankers project a safe, solid image. Who'd want to trust their savings to a teller in purple bell-bottoms? "The epitome of dull colors is 'bander's gray,'" Larkins noted.

"Lawyers dress conservative, at least the week court's in session. It's an unwritten law."

The exception to the rule ambled by Rep. Clarence Leatherman of Lincoln, attorney and long-term legislator, wore a seersucker suit of half-inch blue stripes on white, a midnight navy shirt and white tie, and black-and-white shoes. An outfit to do credit to a used car salesman, it make Leatherman a stand-out in legislative surroundings.

Attire Reflects Politics

Republican and Democratic state chairman contrast in style as well as politics.

Rep. James E. Holshouser, Jr., of Watauga, the GOP chief, has the conservative and unchanging image of the Ivy League look that was big when he graduated from law school in 1960 — dark suit, white oxford button-down shirt, maroon tie. Liberal and loud is the sartorial keynote for Senate reading Clerk Eugene Simmons, Democratic chairman, who leans to vibrant blazers of red, green and blue.

Larkins gives the accolade for best dressed to Rep. George W. Marion, Jr., of Surry. He was stumped to make a choice at the other end of the scale, and too wise to try.

Keeping current is important to Marion, a salesman in real estate and housewares. His rule, he said, is to follow styles but keep away from extremes; he's not the first by whom the new is tried nor yet the last to lay the old aside.

Color is fun and a boost for the spirit, said Marion.

God meant for the male to be colorful, Larkins added. "Look at the state bird. The male cardinal is brilliant red. The female is a poor, washed-out brown."

Take it from the birds, men. Bright attire is your fashion birthright.

Safety in business and manufacturing operations makes good sense for all concerned. The employee benefits since he is not laid up and away from the job. The firm benefits because the employees are on the job.

Both employers and employees should do all they can to emphasize safety — on the job, on the road and at home.

It's Not Too Late For The Counties To Plan

Pitt County should take heed of Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor's call for county planning for orderly growth.

"It's too late for the cities to do much planning," Taylor said, "But in the counties we can take steps now to prepare for an orderly growth. We are a state of small towns. We have not had the problems of some other states in the growth of cities."

It is not unreasonable to assume that residential and business developments are going to continue in Pitt County and outside municipal control.

There should be some controls over the way these areas develop. Otherwise the county might in future years find itself with some of the problems which cities now face.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — When Sen. Edmund Muskie went to Austin, Texas, May 22 for the dedication of the Lyndon B Johnson library, he was subjected to an unsolicited, unvarnished lecture on practical politics from two of the Democratic party's shrewdest moderates: Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes of Texas.

The Mandel-Barnes lecture, delivered in the privacy of Barnes's apartment in the state capitol, boiled down to this: Muskie's appearance at antiwar rallies, sponsorship of the April 24 Washington demonstration, and attack on the FBI did more harm than good with rank-and-file voters. Forget this nonsense and concentrate instead on unemployment, inflation, and other failures of President Nixon's economic policy.

Considering the lack of rebuttal from Muskie, Barnes thought he had scored some points. Consequently, he was most unpleasantly surprised one week later when Muskie, speaking at Washington and Jefferson College, Washington, Pa., praised "voices of peaceful dissent" and asserted, "we cannot put Vietnam on some back shelf." The speech went directly contrary to the Mandel-Barnes advisory.

Politically, it won Muskie no credits from either the governor of Maryland or the lieutenant governor of Texas. Thus, Barnes, the rising political power in Texas, came to Washington last week saying publicly that Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey was the Democrat who would run best for President in Texas and saying privately that Muskie was making mistakes now that might make him unelectable in 1972 if nominated.

Nor is Barnes's reaction wholly isolated. Muskie's embrace of antiwar protestors transformed Rep. Clement Zablocki from an enthusiastic supporter to a fence-sitter. His attack on the FBI enraged a key figure in the regular Chicago Democratic organization who previously had been plugging Muskie with Mayor Richard J. Daley.

None of this self-inflicted damage is fatal or near fatal. As we have reported, Muskie remains the front-runner because of his personal allure to the voter and in spite of his strategy. But the fact remains that, while Muskie's attention to the war and civil liberties questions have cost him badly needed strength from the party center, they show no signs of pacifying the left.

Moreover, the polls reflect that this phenomenon may be reaching down to the voters. Muskie's fall-off in the south was partially explained by voters shocked by his sponsoring a peace rally organized by far left elements. His Gallup Poll decline in trial heats with Mr. Nixon was caused when older, richer, and more conservative voters switched (a normal return of strength to the Republicans, according to Muskie's own analysts, but perhaps also an effect of Muskie's leftward drift.)

Besides expressing his convictions, Muskie's statements on the war and the FBI have a definite, concrete political purpose: to convince the left not to abandon him as Democratic nominee in 1972 as it did Humphrey in 1968.

But there is another, less rational reason for Muskie's recurrent leftward swings. His campaign staff is studded with veterans of the 1968 McCarthy and Kennedy campaigns, with few Humphreys on board. His newest speechwriter, Robert Shrum, is fresh from the staff of Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York and could scarcely be expected to treat bread-and-butter subjects in a way pleasing to Marvin Mandel and Ben Barnes.

For instance, Shrum's first speechwriting effort was an anti-Vietnam polemic intended for a May 15 fundraiser in Milwaukee. It was rejected, partly out a desire not to offend Rep. Zablocki. But like Lazarus, it returned as the Washington and Jefferson speech which so irritated Barnes.

That speech dovetails with the courtship by Muskie operatives of 1968 McCarthy leaders — such as Sarah Kovner, a leading Manhattan reformer. Yet, most assuredly, if and when Eugene McCarthy signals an independent candidacy for President, Mrs. Kovner will be out front leading the charge.

The futility of such courtship must be measured against the possible loss of

Strength For Today

DRY HOLES AND STRIKE-OUTS

Before me lies the report of an oil company which is doing very nicely, as reflected in a consistent rise in the value of its stock. I notice that last year they drilled a hundred and one wells, but one-quarter of them turned out to be dry holes.

Are you a salesman? How many dry holes have you encountered recently? Are you a minister? How many sinners have slipped through your fingers and gone down the highway which leads to destruction, laughing at you as an old fogey? Are you a lawyer? a physician? a farmer? You know frustration and failure, do you not? Think of the Lord Jesus. He started out with thousands, and perhaps tens of thousands, hanging on his words. He ended with a multitude crying, "Crucify him; crucify him," with his disciples fleeing and even, after his resurrection, with only about a hundred and twenty people gathered together to continue his work.

If an oil company allowed itself to be frightened by a big percentage of dry holes it would never even get started on a successful career. The best of baseball players strike out, or are put out, much more often than they get a hit.

Don't be afraid of strike-outs — or dry holes. Go at your drilling with the expectation that there will be a considerable percentage of these and plenty of strike-outs.

Sex And The Handguns

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — The bleeding hearts in this country are starting to scream again for the registration of handguns or the licensing of their owners. Fortunately for those of us who love guns, the Nixon Administration has rejected any legislation that would

Other Editors Say Bonds Make Sense

(Charlotte Observer)

State Sen. Hector McGeachy Jr. of Fayetteville has proposed that North Carolina offer its cities and counties a revenue - sharing bonanza of its own — in behalf of good health and clean water.

McGeachy has introduced legislation calling for a $150 - million bond issue to provide state matching money to finance local water systems and sewage treatment plants.

It sounds like a staggering sum, but it will be multiplied many times over by the federal government and by local governments themselves. It amounts to a bargain all the way around.

It is money that must come from somewhere. City and county waste treatment systems are among the heaviest polluters of the state's rivers and streams. Some of them still empty raw sewage into public waters.

Yet the costs of improving or expanding their sewage systems in many cases is all but out of local government's reach under the present tax structure.

The $150 million that McGeachy seeks would be used to cut local government's share of such costs to manageable proportions. It would turn current matching - money formulas upside down.

Under present formulas, local government has to put up 70 per cent of the costs of building or improving a sewage plant. The federal government puts up the remaining 30 per cent.

Under McGeachy's proposal the state would get in on the act and take advantage of new federal formulas which require 25 per cent from the state, offer 55 per cent from the federal government and drop the local share to 20 per cent.

For instance, Charlotte must spend $5 million soon to upgrade sewage treatment at its McAlpine Creek plant to comply with new federal and state water - quality standards and to stop complaints from South Carolina that our wastes are polluting their waters.

Under current formulas, Charlotte would put up $3.5 million of that $5 million. But under McGeachy's proposal, Charlotte would be required to put up only $1 million, with the state and federal government putting up the rest.

But Charlotte would be only a small benefactor from McGeachy's proposal, Concord would realize $10 million, Hamlet $2.25 million, Albemarle $3.95 million, Gastonia $3 million, Mooresville $2 million, Hickory $3.2 million, and so on across the map of the state.

The McGeachy proposal for a bond issue would help to get an urgent job done in line with each government's ability to pay. The proposal already has wide support in the legislature and among government agencies and associations.

We hope it will be approved and put before the people, who, as McGeachy says, won't let "water become a dirty word in North Carolina."

offend the gun lobbies in this country.

The suggestion by the National Commission on the Reform of Criminal Laws to ban the possession of handguns by all except the police has been rejected by the President and the attorney general as politically unsound.

But despite this, the anti-gun people persist in wanting to disarm the nation.

Wallaby Hornblower, chief lobbyist for the National Cheap Handgun Assn., is not concerned about the recent bad publicity that handguns are getting.

"We go through this nonsense every few years," Wallaby told me. "But America will never give up its handguns."

"Thank God for that," I said.

"The trouble with the media is that they're always writing about the bad things a handgun does. When a cop gets shot with a handgun, they put it on the front page — or when some bank gets held up they play it up big if a gun is used. But you never see the good stories about handguns or read about the pleasure they give people."

"I'll say you don't," I agreed.

"The newspapers never write about the fun people have at target practice or shooting rabbits or practicing how to fast-draw in front of a mirror."

"Why don't they?" I demanded.

"Because it's not news," Wallaby said. "Do you know for every person who uses a handgun in a robbery there

Many Night Toilers

By D. M. KREISHER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Pity the person who has spent his sole working life as a nine-to-five. He's missed knowing another world that flourishes on the opposite side of the clock.

For in the darkened heart of most large cities, deserted by the daylighters, an army of night toilers works a mirror-image life.

Long after the daytime desk set has abandoned the office towers a battalion of workers clean and polish office spaces for people they never see.

You may have noticed them on the bus or subway some time when you were returning from a late night out. They were the sturdy men in gray clothes and heavy shoes and the solid-looking women with strong hands who rush into the cars to grab a seat and gossip in half a dozen languages.

Sharing the almost deserted streets with the buses, the nocturnal cabbie prowls for a fare or haunts the late closing bars, hotels and airports. He doesn't have the heavy traffic to worry about, but worries instead about the passenger with a gun or knife who is after more than a ride home.

Prowling those same streets in squad cars, the graveyard-shift patrolmen fight off the debilitating boredom as they search the checkerboard of lights and darkness for some sign of trouble.

In firehouses around the sleeping city, the 6 p.m. to 9 a.m. crew plays cards or tries to sleep until the alarm bells send them howling through the darkness to the fire that has ended someone else's sleep, and maybe their life.

Tired-eyed doctors and nurses wait in hospital to receive the casualties of these fires, or the human wreckage from the high-speed auto accidents the empty highways and the late hours seem to produce, or the losers of some vicious family argument.

Sharing the night are the telephone operators connecting lonely hearts separated by too many miles, disc jockeys holding one-way conversations with insomniacs and fellow soldiers of the nights, all-night restaurant operators, newsmen.

Dwelling on the fringe of even this life are the tattered citizens of a third world, shuffling along the gutters from waste bin to waste bin, filling their filthy shopping bags with the castings off of the normal world that has rejected or been rejected by them.

They disappear to somewhere before the dawn and are replaced on the awakening streets by men with buckets and ladders who get the storefronts off to a bright start.

Money Supply Is Also A Threat

By ELMER ROESSNER
"Rapid monetary growth this year may lead to quite possibly another recession," according to the monthly economic letter of the First National City Bank.

The bank said it, not I. But I am afraid the bank is right.

The letter said, "The U.S. money supply has been growing rapidly this year. Through April, accelerated monetary growth could be viewed as a step to compensate for its slow growth in the final quarter of 1970."

"But the further steep acceleration of the aggregates since then has no such comforting explanation."

The monetary policy has taken on all the characteristics it displayed in the recovery from the 1967 mini-recession. At that point the die was cast for four years of inflation.

"Rapid monetary growth this year will inevitably open the door to soaring interest rates and accelerating inflation later on and quite possibly another recession."

usually larger, when the figures are "seasonally adjusted" they show a decline. In other words, employment rising by 300,000 in May was less than it should have.

Current labor settlements ranging from 10 to 12 per cent a year for the next three years guarantee inflation for that period, since they will influence wage rates generally. The coming increase in the minimum wage will be similarly inflationary.

Pay raises point to the probability of continued high unemployment. Every increase in pay makes labor-saving machinery cheaper. Higher wages tempt employers to eliminate jobs, even in the executive suite.

There are few summer jobs for June graduates and undergrads. President Nixon has announced that the government will spend $303 million to create 674,000 summer jobs and that the National Alliance of Businessmen would make 150,000 more. How much this will reduce unemployment remains to be seen.

More Look-Aheads

New computer generation: RCA has developed a computer memory system that uses laser beams. This may replace magnetic computer memories and create a new generation computers.

Glass-plastic bottle: Owens-Illinois has developed a new soft-drink container, a glass sphere with a shrunk-on plastic jacket. Jackets will be of bright color and carry plenty of sell, protect and insulate the glass and serve as coasters. Coke, Pepsi and Seven Up are testing.

Steel protectionism: With higher wage rates certain in steel, strike or no strike, and Industry Week's revelation that Japan has overtaken the U.S. in steel production, congressional action for almost prohibitive tariff in steel imports becomes highly probable. Too many nations make steel to make a system of quotas practical.

However, Congress can do nothing to prevent the loss of American steel experts to foreign nations.

Big Campaign Donors Guests At Tricia's Wedding

OVERHAUL FOR MISSION — Three-masted schooner, Star of Peace, is being overhauled in Tampa for a trip to North Vietnam's Haiphong Harbor. Captain Dan Smith says goal of the mission is to bring back American prisoners of war. Quits GOP Because Of No Improvement

RALEIGH (AP) — The young woman credited with writing the "most liberal" set of political goals ever set by a Republican organization in North Carolina announced over the weekend she was leaving the GOP because "there has been no genuine progress in eight years."

Sharon Lentz, credited with writing the platform recently adopted by the state young Republican organization, said she would become a political independent.

She said her move was prompted in part by a survey she conducted of 250 GOP local and state party figures which convinced her "there are no signs of improvement ahead" in party attempts to win the North Carolina governorship.

Classing herself as a "progressive Republican", Mrs. Lentz said she thinks the GOP should put major emphasis on winning the governorship.

Babies Dying Of Starvation

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—An average of one baby a month each year dies of starvation in Houston hospitals and uncounted others die of malnutrition at home, a Baylor College of Medicine physician estimates.

Dr. Buford Nichols, also chief of gastroenterology at the Junior League Clinic of Texas Children's Hospital, said by the time most starving infants reach the hospital they are literally skin and bones because their mothers do not understand what is happening to them.

A record 17.8 million visitors toured Washington, D.C., in 1970.

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The guest list for the White House wedding—so limited that no one from Congress was invited—included a number of rich campaign donors for President Nixon.

Among them: An oilman seeking a duty-free port, another oilman with a monopoly in Greece, a Los Angeles millionaire involved in past political controversy, and a donor so elusive his identity couldn't be traced.

They and six others put more than half-million dollars into Nixon's presidential race and key Republican campaigns last fall.

The donors who got one of the cherished 400 invitations to the Saturday wedding of Tricia Nixon to Edward F. Cox included such names as Elmer H. Bobst, New York drug executive; Thomas A. Pappas, Boston industrialist, and Patrick J. Frawley, conservative Los Angeles tycoon.

Left off the list were Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, and the man who swore in Nixon as President, former Chief Justice Earl Warren.

The guest list's guide to who ranks as a personal friend of Richard Nixon:

—Bobst is honorary chairman of Warner-Lambert Co., and Nixon has referred to him as his own "honorary father." Bobst was one of the 10 largest donors to the 1968 Nixon campaign at $63,000. Recently, the Justice Department declined to block a Warner-Lambert merger that would form the nation's third biggest drug company. Nixon and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell were once the firm's lawyers. The Federal Trade Commission has since started an antitrust case.

—Pappas, 71, is a Greek-born millionaire with friends in government on two sides of the Atlantic. His oil refinery has a monopoly in Northern Greece and he holds the Greek concession for another precious liquid, Coca-Cola. Last fall Pappas pumped at least $20,000 to GOP congressional candidates in eight states. He is now serving on Nixon's re-election committee.

—J. Willard Marriott, 70, is a longtime Republican backer who made his money in motels, restaurants and airline meals. He served as chairman for Nixon's inauguration. His firm later hired Nixon's brother Donald as vice president. When the

are a thousand gun owners who have never shot anybody?"

"Yet you never hear about them," I said in disgust.

"But," said Wallaby, chuckling, "the United States will never ban the handgun."

"How can you be that sure?"

"Because," he said, "the gun is a sex symbol."

"It is?"

"Most American men who own handguns have virility problems. The gun is an extension of their manhood. If you take the gun away from a man in this country, you're emasculating him."

"I never thought of that," I said. "But it's true."

"The beautiful thing about it is that they don't know it. Most gun owners will fight any legislation because they think it's unconstitutional or an invasion of their property rights."

"But subconsciously what they really fear is impotence. When you ask someone to register his gun, you're really asking him to register his manhood."

"It's like trying to get people to buy a license for sex," I said.

"Exactly. Those of us in the business have known this for years. You don't think gun registration would be such an emotional issue if sex weren't involved, do you?"

"No wonder you're so relaxed about Congress not passing any strong gun legislation."

"Every American child, from the day he can watch westerns on television, knows that guns and virility go together, and you can't have one without the other. So when you talk about disarming the people in this country, you're dealing with a Freudian problem, which no gun owner will face up to."

"Then what you're saying is if we have to choose between crime and protecting the American male's manhood, we'd rather put up with the crime."

Wallaby smiled. "You said it, I didn't."

the center to the increasingly viable Humphrey candidacy (boosted enormously by Gallup Polls showing him nearly as strong against Mr. Nixon as Muskie). Moreover, wooing the left may be unnecessary as well as damaging. A Harris Poll of May 24 showed Muskie winning a four-way contest just as Harry Truman did when he totally wrote off the left. Perhaps Muskie ought to study the lessons of 1948 as well as 1968.

brother signed the food contract with Greece's airline for Marriott's firm, Pappas threw a glittering dinner in Athens.

—John M. Shaheen of New York City heads an oil firm with plans to build a large refinery at tiny Machiasport, Maine, site of a proposed duty-free zone to permit cheaper imports of foreign oil. The duty-free plan is caught in a government snarl, but Shaheen says the refinery will be built anyway. His $3,000 check was one of the campaign donations that House GOP Leader Ford failed to report in a controversy earlier this year.

—Frawley, 48, made his first $10 million with Paper Mate Pen, now heads Eversharp-Shick, and ran Technicolor, Inc., until ousted a year ago. Technicolor was found last year to be paying then-Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., $20,000 a year as a consultant, plus paying half the rent on his Washington apartment. Frawley, born in Nicaragua, is a self-described conservative who has donated heavily to GOP causes.

—John A. Mulcahy, the mystery guest, is thought to be the donor who pumped $100,000 in a single week into Murphy's losing race last fall. The money was listed simply as from "J.A. Mulcahy." The White House gave his address in New York's rich Westchester County. But his name couldn't be found in reference files, and his phone is unlisted.

—Henry Salvatori Sr., 70, of Los Angeles, was Nixon's third largest campaign donor at $95,000. He piped nearly $50,000 more to GOP and Conservative candidates in Senate races in seven states last fall. An oil explorer, Salvatori was the finance chairman for another Republican presidential candidate, Barry M. Goldwater, in 1964.

—Robert H. Abplanalp is the man who invented the valve that produced the aerosol spray can. Another major GOP donor, Abplanalp owns a small island in the Bahamas where Nixon has been a personal guest occasionally.

—Another wedding guest, Richard M. Scaife, 38, of Pittsburgh, also made Nixon's top 10 list of donors in 1968 by giving more than $55,000. And he aided GOP candidates in at least five states last fall. The "M" in his name is for Mellon.

A banker, he helps fun much of the vast Mellon business empire.

—DeWitt Wallace, 80, Mount Kosco, N.Y., is co-chairman with his wife of Reader's Digest. They gave almost $50,000 for Nixon's race and have long been considered friends of the Nixon family. Another donor, Reader's Digest president Hobart D. Lewis, also was a wedding guest.

Contributions from these 10 Nixon friends added up to more than $550,000 for the presidential campaign and key Republican races last fall.

Also on the wedding guest list were Nixon pal Charles "Bebe" Rebozo; rubber tycoon Leonard K. Firestone of Los Angeles; former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell of New York, an old political mentor; and a number of friends from Nixon's home state of California.

The guest list included IBM chairman Thomas J. Watson Jr., a big Democratic donor who has made at least one large contribution to presidential hopeful Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

His brother, Arthur K. Watson, is a major GOP donor who was named by Nixon as ambassador to France. But he was not one of the two ambassadors to get an invitation to the wedding.

Whether Thomas Watson was a guest of the bride's family or the groom was not noted.

Dominant Combat Role For S. Viet Air Force

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The South Vietnamese air force apparently has assumed the main air-combat role inside its own borders.

New Pentagon figures show VNAF pilots have been flying about twice as many sorties in South Vietnam in recent weeks as have U.S. pilots.

At the same time, the figures point up that U.S. planes are flying nearly all the combat missions in Laos and nearly 60 per cent of the strikes in Cambodia.

With U.S. ground troops ending their combat roles this summer, American Air Force officers have been preparing South Vietnamese air crews to take over their part of the battle.

Senior U.S. officers have forecast a self-sufficient South Vietnamese Air Force by next spring for operations inside South Vietnam.

They expect U.S. bombers and gunships, operating mostly from carriers on bases in Thailand, to concentrate on the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos and in support of all troops in Cambodia.

Fellowship For Winterville Man

DURHAM (AP) — Martin Luther King Jr. fellowships have been awarded to two North Carolina Central University graduates.

The fellowships were awarded to black military veterans.

topped all U.S. pilots in attack sorties for the first time in February, the reports show, but the difference was relatively small until May.

For the first five months this year, the South Vietnamese air force flew about 11,300 attack sorties in Vietnam while U.S. warplanes accounted for about 9,200, or some 45 per cent.

By contrast, American planes flew about 76,000 attack sorties in Vietnam in 1970, or about 73 per cent. The VNAF flew about 28,000.

In Laos, American strike planes carried out about 53,500 sorties during the first five months of 1971. The VNAF was credited with some 250, mainly during February and March when Vietnamese ground troops were trying to disrupt the enemy supply network in the Southern Laotian panhandle.

Despite the monsoon rains, U.S. Air Force and Navy jets struck in Laos with about 2,150 sorties in the first week of June. No VNAF planes took part.

Last year, U.S. warplanes carried out more than 100,000 sorties in Laos. Not a single South Vietnamese attack sortie was registered in Laos in 1970.

In Cambodia, American Air Force jets flew more than 8,500 strike sorties in the January-May period this year, or better than 58 per cent, the VNAF 6,100 sorties.

In the first week of June, there were some 660 allied attack sorties in Cambodia with U.S. Air Force pilots making about 415 of them.

Hearing Set In Bogus Bill Raid

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A preliminary hearing has been scheduled Tuesday in Mecklenburg County for two men charged following a raid in Gastonia in which police say they seized counterfeit $10 bills.

John H. Grimes Jr., special agent in charge of the Charlotte office of the U.S. Secret Service, said William Patterson of Kings Mountain was charged with manufacturing counterfeit bills and that Herbert Jackson of Gastonia was charged with possession of the bogus money.

Both are under $25,000 bond.

Secret Service agents said they seized an undetermined number of bogus $10 bills and a printing press in the raid on Patterson's auto parts store.

Report Reagan A Client Of Tax Shelter Experts

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, who paid no 1970 state income taxes, is a client of a firm which helps the wealthy gain a tax shelter based on tax laws preferential to cattle breeders, the Sacramento Bee and New York Times report.

The governor has steadfastly refused to discuss publicly his private business affairs, and the Sunday reports of the two newspapers were the first detailed accounts of any segment of Reagan's private investments.

Last month, the Republican governor acknowledged he didn't owe any state taxes for 1970 because of "business reverses" he wouldn't explain.

In the Bee's copyright story, reporter James Wrightson said Reagan invested an unknown amount of money in Oppenheimer Industries, Inc., of Kansas City, Mo., which manages 120,000 head of cattle in 18 states including stock of the Reagan Cattle Co.

The Bee said reporters were unable to determine how many of Reagan cattle were managed by Oppenheimer. But it quoted Gary Murphy, an Oppenheimer ranch manager in Montana, as saying he took care of 13 Reagan bulls.

Murphy said he bought 20 bulls for Reagan at $450 each three years ago and put the Reagan "Gunsight-R" brand on them. He said he later sold seven of the bulls because they were injured.

The Bee story said Oppenheimer registered the Reagan Cattle Co. "Trident-R" brand in Wyoming and its "Rocking-R" brand in Nevada, although the Nevada registration was not renewed for 1971.

In a statement released after the story was published, Reagan said: "I have been interested in cattle, horses, in ranching all my life. It is an ordinary part of my business and I intend to continue with it even though it is a relatively small investment."

Oppenheimer Industries' application to operate in California says its clients must have a net worth of at least $500,000—not counting household effects—or at least $100,000 while being in a federal-state tax bracket of more than 50 per cent.

The Bee story quoted an Oppenheimer booklet that outlined the legal tax shelter advantages to investing in cattle:

"Federal tax law favor cattle if you pick the right kind and stick to the rules. Herds of beef cows top the list.

"When you buy them, you become a farmer and can keep your books on a cash basis.

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for J.E. Mainer, a fiddler whose name is in the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Mainer, 72, died Saturday of an apparent heart attack while preparing to a trip to Culpeper, Va., for a country music show.

He was named to the Country Music Hall of Fame at Nashville, Tenn., in 1969 after a string of recorded hits, including "Maple on the Hill," "Hard Times in the Cotton Mill" and "Mother's Not Dead: She's Only Sleeping."

Three Injured In Collision Here Last Night

Three persons were reported injured in a 10:57 p.m. collision at the intersection of Third and Summit Streets yesterday.

Officers reported cars driven by Robert Michael Kupecki, 19, of High Point, and Bobby Lee Thomas, 17, of 407 Meade St. collided. The Kupecki car then struck a parked car owned by Roland Earl Taylor of Kinston.

Damage was set at $1,200 to the Kupecki vehicle, $1,600 to the Thomas car and $125 to the Taylor auto.

Kupecki and Thomas as well as a passenger in the Kupecki vehicle were reported injured.

Thomas was charged by police with failing to yield the right of way.

Many home gardens will fail to produce high quality vegetables in the cucurbit family (cucumbers, watermelons, cantaloupes, pumpkins, squash and gourds) because of inadequate pollination. The reason for this is the few number of bees in urban areas. Because this crop has separate male and female flowers it is almost completely dependant on bees to transfer pollen from the male flower to the female flower. Only the female flower produces any fruit.

Gardeners should exercise caution with insecticides during the period cucurbits are blooming to guard against killing bees. Insecticides should only be applied in late afternoon after the bees have returned to the hive. Water from irrigation will cause bees to leave the garden, and mid-afternoon or later is the best time to irrigate. There has been a lot of interest in the past few years on mechanical harvesting of pickling cucumbers. On June 15 at 10 a.m. at Paul Cullifer's cucumber buying shed, Bethel, N.C. there will be a demonstration on an cucumber combine. This machine which we will see demonstrated is a once-over combine type.

George Hughes, Agricultural Extension Specialist, who will discuss the practical application of this machine in North Carolina. Also E.O. Beasley, Agricultural Extension Engineering Specialist, will discuss the operation of the machine.

This demonstration is in cooperation with Mr. Paul Cullifer. Mr. Cullifer's operation is located on Flat Swamp Road. All interested persons are invited to attend this meeting.

Sees Survival In Politics

RALEIGH (AP) — Delegates to the annual Freedom Day conference of the North Carolina branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People were told Sunday that "black man's survival depends upon his involvement in the political arena."

The theme was sounded by Rep. J. J. Johnson, D-Robeson, who along with Rep. Henry Frye, D-Guilford, was the main speaker at the conference.

Johnson added that blacks must be willing to take part in the political process if established political parties fail to offer a substantial choice.

He said that a primary goal of blacks now in office should be "a job training program to offer incentive for blacks in the big city ghetto."

Frye urged participation in local school systems. "Black members cannot work miracles," he said, "but they can make a difference. Black students need someone with whom they can identify."

At the close of the meeting, a delegate announced that Frye and other black businessmen in Greensboro plan to organize a bank to further black involvement in the financial community.

Alaskan Waters Being Charted

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — A photo plane and four government ships are charting Alaska waters this year, including some areas that have not been surveyed in more than 50 years. The data, gathered by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, will be used for 23 charts for fishing and deep-draft cargo vessels.

Tobacco TIPS

By SAM J. WEEKS

The abnormal weather conditions that we have experienced this spring may cause some premature flowering in the tobacco fields. If this occurs in your field, it can be partially remedied by topping the early flowering plants before the flowers are in full bloom. Once the plant is topped, the sucker in the second leaf axil should be allowed to grow. By doing this, the plant will produce some additional leaves.

In order to get the best possible yields and quality, all plants should be topped not later than when the first flower begins to turn pink. At this stage of growth, you can top to the desired height without injuring the top leaves.

Experiments have shown that the number of leaves produced per acre plan an important role in producing good quality tobacco. Best quality is produced when from 120,000 to 140,000 leaves are grown on one acre. Research data also shows that better quality leaf can be produced on plants with medium leaf count than on plants with high leaf count.

When plants are spaced 22 inches in the row and the rows are 42 inches wide, plants topped 18 leaves per plant, 122,184 leaves can be grown on an acre.

Chain Of Command In Postal Service Changed

Headquarters cities for Metropolitan Centers, Metropolitan Areas and Districts reporting to the new Southern Postal Region Headquarters in Memphis have been announced by Carl Ulsaker, who becomes Regional Postmaster General July 1.

Perfect attendance certificates were presented and outstanding students in each subject area were given special awards by their respective teachers. Retiring teachers, Miss Sarah Brown and Mrs. Mazella T. Burney were recognized and presented gifts.

Hills spaced 20 inches apart in 42 inch rows can produce 134,400 leaves per acre where topped to 18 inches per plant.

cities has been designated as a Major Metropolitan Center. This center will be headed by a Metropolitan Center Manager who will report directly to the Regional Postmaster General. This office, in addition to serving the needs of customers in their respective areas, will also direct the operation of area sectional centers. The sectional centers — which serve as primary units for processing mail — will link all associate post offices in their designated areas together in the new functional chain of command.

Five additional cities will serve as Metropolitan Areas where the responsibilities of postal management in each headquarters city will no longer be limited to one single city but will be expanded to cover the entire metro area.

These metropolitan postmasters will be the operating managers of the central city post office and will report directly to the Regional Postmaster General. In turn, all postmasters in the surrounding area will report to the operating managers.

Outside of these 6 metropolitan areas, the region has been divided into 12 postal districts. In each district, a headquarters city has been selected.

These offices — headed by District Managers who report directly to the Regional Postmaster General — will operate similarly to metropolitan areas. However, their operations will be designed to serve the needs of

To control tobacco suckers you've got 3 choices.

1. Our biggest competitor makes a nice tire.

2. Our second biggest competitor puts out a good bar of soap.

Ansul makes agricultural chemicals... and we modestly suggest that our Two Step Sucker Control program is the best one available to the tobacco grower.

SUCKER-PLUCKER is a contact agent. Spray it on within two days after topping and removal of suckers which have grown to over one inch.

SUPER SUCKER-STUFF H.C. is our brand new high concentrate systemic agent. Two weeks after applying SUCKER-PLUCKER come back with SUPER SUCKER-STUFF H.C. In both cases follow easy label instructions.

When you're competing with the world's biggest soap company and a one and a half billion dollar rubber company, you just have to make better products. We do.

Make more soybeans... make more money...

the No-Til* way.

No-Til economies are big news!

No-Til eliminates trips over your fields—cuts the cost and work of getting a soybean crop in. No-Til can be a one-trip practice which gives you a far better chance to plant more areas on time... for a fast start, a full season of growth.

No-Til starts with an Allis-Chalmers 600 Series planter so flexible you can plant 40- or 38-inch rows today... change to 30- or 20-inch rows anytime just by adding planter units onto the same frame.

And you can take full advantage of double cropping opportunities with direct sod or stubble planting... or plant easily eroded hills or slopes that otherwise don't return a profit.

Then, to get the most out of your No-Til soybean program, you need fast, weed-free early growth. That's where Du Pont LOROX comes in. LOROX controls a wide range of weeds and grasses that plague soybean growers. With Surfactant WK, LOROX gives both contact and residual action.

See how much more you can make by doing less. See your Allis-Chalmers dealer for the equipment you need. See your agricultural chemicals dealer for LOROX. It's a winning combination to make more beans and make more money.

With any chemical, follow labeling instructions and warnings carefully.

Mechanics Course Set

Persons who wish to learn to work on their own cars are invited to enroll in a "Special Projects Course in Automotive Mechanics" to begin at Pitt Technical Institute Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Students may explore the various automotive systems or they may choose a specific area for in-depth involvement. In an informal atmosphere, each student will be able to discuss the automobile with classmates and his instructor on individual or group bases, the instructor said.

The course is scheduled to end August 24, but if this long a time causes conflict with a student's other summer activities, he may stay longer each class day and complete the course earlier. Interested persons should report to the PTI Automotive Department at the class time, or should call 756-3130 until 10 p.m. tonight and after 8 a.m. tomorrow.

'Pressure Week' Rites Tuesday For Martin Swartz, 84

By SAM 'D. BUNDY

Things have really been zipping around here last week. The first public hearing on the restructure of higher education was held on Wednesday June 9, at which time Lindsay Warren as Chairman of the Warren Commission gave a background and explanation of the work of the Commission.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, June 15, and 16, public hearings are scheduled with two hours for the proponents and two hours for the opponents of the majority report. Further debate and discussion will then be held by the House and Senate Committees on Higher Education and, if favorable reports are obtained, the restructure bills will hit the floor of the House and Senate where more fur will fly.

Another item of interest last week was in the House Finance Committee on the repeal of the soft drink tax. Perry Martin of Northampton moved to postpone action on the soft drink tax to June 24 and Sneed High of Cumberland opposed it. The vote to postpone was 24-23. The House Finance Committee met again on Thursday and a motion to reconsider lost by a four vote margin.

The select 38 man subcommittee on appropriation is now meeting behind closed doors and has announced its intention to report the appropriations bill to the Senate and House by June 23. I am told that this will be it, as seldom is it changed once it reaches the House and Senate floor with the stamp of approval of this select subcommittee.

During the week-end of June 11-13 Mrs. Bundy and I spent two days on the Duke University Campus where we attended a breakfast meeting and two banquet meetings in connection with the 44th reunion of my graduating class of 1927.

Mr. Martin Swartz, 84, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Saturday night.

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by his pastor, the Rev. Troy Barrett, and the Rev. A. E. Brown. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

A resident of 114 North Jarvis Street, Mr. Swartz was born in Stephenson County, Ill. and was reared in Cleveland, Tenn. A registered engineer, he came to Greenville in 1920 to be associated with Greenville Utilities and retired as superintendent in 1954. He has since worked with utilities companies in Tarboro, Rocky Mount, and Shelby. He was a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, the North Carolina Society of Engineers, the N. C. Society of Professional Engineers, and the American Water Works Association. He also belonged to the Woodmen of the World. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Flonnie Swartz; two sons, Edwin C. Swartz of Raleigh and Martin Swartz Jr. of Burlington; a stepson, Dr. James Edward Williams Jr. of Porterville, Calif.; five grandchildren; two great grandchildren; three step grandchildren; and one step great grandchild.

TOM WEISKOPF wipes his brow after sinking a birdie putt on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff to win the Kemper Open. (AP Wirephoto)

Weiskopf Ends Drought In Kemper Open Victory

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "It's like shooting craps," Tom Weiskopf said of his playoff victory over Dale Douglass, Lee Trevino and South African Gary Player in the $150,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Weiskopf, who broke a three-year victory drought with his dramatic, come-from-behind triumph Sunday, was talking about the use of sudden-death to settle ties after 72 holes.

"If you've got more than one player, then sudden-death isn't really a major test. A lot of luck enters into it."

"If you're playing head to head with just one man, it may be a little more fair. I don't really like it. I'd only played in two before, and lost in both of those."

"It's a joke," said Player, one of the world's foremost players, who now has a poor, 3-10 record in playoffs. Trevino and Douglass fled the Quail Hollow Country Club course without comment.

All four had finished the regulation 72 holes at 277, 11 under par. Weiskopf was six strokes off the pace, being set by Douglass, when he started the drive that brought him the victory.

He reeled off birdies on the final four holes, sinking putts of 10, 10, 8 and 18 feet.

The lean and lanky Douglass, a winner in this tournament two years ago, was 13 under at that point and still had several holes to play.

But the 35-year-old veteran missed the green and missed a putt of about four feet on each of the last two holes, taking a body on each and dropping back into a tie.

Weiskopf, Trevino and Player—who had a fantastic four-putt on one green—all had final round 69s on the 7,278-yard, par 72 layout and Douglass had a 70.

They went to the 599-yard, par-five 15th hole to begin the playoff. All were on in three, with Weiskopf about eight feet away. The other three missed birdie attempts in the 12-20 foot range before Weiskopf lined it up, stepped away once, then stroked it home for his fifth birdie in a row.

The $30,000 first prize pushed his earnings for the year to $60,367.

Trevino, Player and Douglass each picked up $11,600.

Two strokes back of them were Bob Lunn, the second and third-round leader who slipped to a final 73, George Johnson and Rod Funseth, tied at 279.

Arnold Palmer never really got it going, had a final 72 and finished in a tie for 12th at 281.

Baltimore Oriole third baseman Brooks Robinson never played a full season in the minors though he saw service with York, Pa., San Antonio twice and Vancouver, B.C.

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Greenville's Post 39 Legion baseball team spotted Weldon-Roanoke Rapids a 1-0 lead, then came roaring back to take an 11-2 victory Saturday night.

It was the fourth overall victory for the Greenville team in six games, and left them with a 2-1 Area One record.

Glenn Forbes tossed the victory for the locals, scattering six hits, walking two and striking out seven. One of the two runs against him was earned.

Meanwhile, his teammates were collecting 15 his off four Weldon-Roanoke Rapids pitchers, with Jimmy Paige and Forbes leading the way with three each. Bill Lee, Phil Blount and Timmy James each collected a pair.

Neither team offered a threat until the third inning when Roanoke Rapids moved a runner as far as second. But nothing came of that. Greenville got off a threat in the fourth, with Blount reaching third as the bases were loaded. But again, nothing came of it.

Then, in the bottom of the fourth, Roanoke Rapids pushed over the first run of the game. Gene McAbee grounded to short, but the ball was overthrown at first, and he moved on to second on the play. With two outs, Billy Hedgepeth singled to left, but it appeared the McAbee was dead at the plate on a fine throw by Russ Smith. McAbee, however, bowled over catcher Joe West, jarring the ball loose to make it safely.

Greenville apparently got mad after that and charged into the lead in the top of the fifth, scoring three runs. Jimmy Bond walked and Forbes also got a pass. J.C. Daniels hit a high fly into right that was lost by the fielders and fell in for a double, scoring Bond. Blount then followed with a brag bunt down third. Forbes was unable to come in, and Daniels was caught off second and kayoed. Paige then cracked a double to left center, scoring both Gorves and Blount for the 3-1 lead.

Teams Split Tennis Meet

Greenville and Roxobel split a Roanoke League tennis match here yesterday, each winning three matches.

The two teams split the four singles matches and also the two doubles matches for the 3-3 score.

Summary:

Johnny Reynolds (R) defeated Joe Davis, 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

Tom Norfleet (R) defeated Connally Branch, 6-3, 6-1.

Tom Sayetta (G) defeated John Tyler, 6-3, 6-3.

Lin Sykes (G) defeated Tom Corey, 6-2, 6-4.

Reynolds-Tyler (R) defeated Ron Beall-Sayetta, 6-4, 7-5.

Branch-Sykes (G) defeated Corey-Norfleet, 6-2, 5-7, 8-6.

The match was the opening Roanoke League event for Greenville of the year and left them with an 0-0-1 record. They face Bethel-Williamston next Sunday.

Canonero II Not Yet Sold

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Pedro Baptista, owner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, Canonero II, said Sunday the horse "has not yet been sold" but that there is an agreement between himself and Robert Glover of the King Ranch for the sale of the 3-year-old colt.

"I have not received any money for the horse yet," Baptista said, "but the offer is a million and a half dollars."

Shortly after his return from New York where he saw Canonero finish fourth to Pass Catcher in the Belmont Stakes, thus failing to sweep the Triple Crown, Baptista told newsmen the horse was sold.

In clarifying this statement Baptista explained Sunday that "it has only been a gentlemen's arrangement between Glover and myself."

Earl Williams Finally Getting Chance At 3rd Base

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Earl Williams finally is getting his chance at third base. Well, better late than early. Williams, who couldn't crack the lineup when Clete Boyer was with the Atlanta Braves, is making the best of his opportunity now that the veteran's gone.

Atlanta's swinging rookie infielder knocked in six runs with two homers Sunday, leading the Braves to a 9-0 shelling of the Houston Astros.

"You have days like that," said Williams, who always seems to play his best as a fill-in for Boyer, the slick third baseman released recently after a squabble with management.

When Boyer was sick earlier this year, Williams played third during a three-game series with Philadelphia and had a party at the plate with three homers among his seven units.

The high-tailing Pittsburgh Pirates ripped the slumping St. Louis Cardinals 8-4; the hot Los Angeles Dodgers clouted the Montreal Expos 7-1; the San Diego Padres nipped the Philadelphia Phillies 9-3; the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 11 innings and the New York Mets edged the San Francisco Giants 5-4 in 10.

In the American League, it was Cleveland Indians 11, Milwaukee Brewers 0; Baltimore Orioles 2, Chicago White Sox 1; Kansas City Royals 4, Boston Red Sox 3; Detroit Tigers 9, Minnesota Twins 5; New York Yankees 5, Oakland A's 1 and Washington Senators 5, California Angels 2.

It wasn't the first time Williams hit two homers in one game. He hit a pair in that Philadelphia series on April 17.

"The thing that stands out most in my mind is that the two homes came against big league pitching," said Williams of his two, three-run shots Sunday. "A guy like Don Wilson is a great pitcher. I never faced the other pitcher (Buddy Harris)."

Does Williams feel the pressure trying to fill Clete's cleats? "I don't try to emulate Boyer or to be his successor," he said.

Williams crashed his first circuit blast in the second inning off Wilson, a wallop into the left center field seats at the Astrodome following singles by Hal King and Mike Lum. He capped Atlanta's scoring with a three-run drive off Harris in the seventh.

In between the Williams' power display, Hank Aaron lashed homer No. 19 and the 611th of his career. Pat Jarvis fired a five-hitter for his second victory in a row after seven losses.

Richie Hebner's three-run homer capped a five-run uprising in the ninth to help Pittsburgh hammer St. Louis and maintain first place in the National League East by 2½ games over New York. The Pirates have won four in a row and 12 of 16 and St. Louis, which dropped 3½ games behind in third, has lost six straight and 10 of 13.

The Cardinals had taken a 4-3 lead with two runs in the sixth on Jim Beauchamp's double, Ted Sizemore's single, an error by second baseman Dave Cash and a single by Luis Melendez.

Bobby Valentine hit his first major league home run, a three-run job in the second inning, and added three more singles as Los Angeles took its 12th victory in 16 games and climbed within six games of front-running San Francisco in the West.

Valentine singled to start another three-run uprising in the fifth and drove in a run in the eighth with his final hit.

"It is the biggest day of my life and means a lot to me," said the Los Angeles youngster. "It's a day to smile. It also means winning and gaining some ground. I hope it means, too, that I'll be able to play more."

Wins $11,950 In Springnationals

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Ronnie Sox of Burlington, N. C., won $11,950 Sunday in the annual Springnationals Drag Races at Dallas International Motor Speedway.

Sox defeated Don Nicholson of Atlanta in the pro stock finals. It was his fourth straight Springnationals title. Sox's prize money was the biggest share of the purse in Sunday's annual competition.

Conf. Schedule

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C. (AP) — Athletic directors of the Southern Conference approved schedules Sunday night for fall and spring championship tournaments.

The directors are holding their annual conference at Myrtle Beach. They took other conference business under advisement today.

The directors decided Sunday to delay a decision on whether to have a fall golf tournament. They also reaffirmed a policy of limiting freshmen football programs to five games.

Here is the schedule for next year's tournaments:

Soccer—Nov. 13 at site of the northern division winner (either East Carolina University at Greenville, N. C., or William & Mary at Williamsburg, Va.).

Cross Country—Nov. 15 at The Citadel at Charleston.

Wrestling—Feb. 18-19 at ECU.

Indoor Track—Feb. 19 at Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Va.

Basketball—March 2-4, Furman University, Greenville, S. C.

Rifle—Feb. 18. No site. Targets to be mailed in.

Golf—May 2-3, Quail Ridge Golf Course, Sanford, N. C.

Tennis—May 4-6, William & Mary.

Outdoor Track—May 4-6, Furman.

Baseball—Dates Open.

Transmission Failed Him As Stewart Was 'Running Away'

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Though his first attempt was a failure, Scotland's Jackie Stewart still feels he will be able to carry out his role of Jack, the giant killer in the rich Can Am road racing series.

For a time Sunday, he gave the dominating Team McLaren driving duo of Denis Hulme and Peter Revson a taste of his magic in the series opener at Mosport Park near Bowmanville, Ont.

He placed his new Lola-Chevrolet in front of the 26 starters five laps into the race and was running away from the field when transmission problems sidelined him 12 laps later.

In the end, it was a replay of many recent Can Ams—New Zealander Hulme the winner and the No. 2 McLaren, this one handled by the handsome Revson of New York, coming in second.

Hulme, who now has won 18 Can Am races and more than $500,000 since joining the circuit in 1967, was never challenged after Stewart left. He crossed the finish line only a second ahead of Revson, but the margin could have been greater. It was a comfortable 10 seconds at one point late in the race.

The two McLaren drivers took home $30,000 of the $75,000 purse — $17,600 for Hulme and $12,400 for Revson—and 35 valuable points toward the British-based team's fifth straight Can Am title.

Hulme's elapsed time for the 192.72 miles was one hour, 48 minutes, 15.2 seconds. The average speed of 109.033 miles per hour was about one mile off Dan Gurney's race record of 110.214 MPH last year.

Third place went to Lothar Motschenbacher of Newport Beach, Calif.; fourth to Bob Bondurant of Tustin, Calif., and fifth to Canadian John Cordts.

All drove McLaren cars of 1970 or older vintage.

At Cambridge Junction, Mich. Bobby Allison, of Hueytown, Ala. took the Motor State 400 at Michigan International Speedway for his third consecutive NASCAR victory.

The 33-year-old Allison, driving a Mercury, covered the 400 miles in two hours, 41 minutes at a track record speed of 149.56 miles per hour. He beat Bobby Isaac by a fraction of a second in an exciting race before 37,600.

Isaac of Catawba, N.C., in a Dodge, was just a bumper behind at the finish.

Progressives Retain The Helm

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

MASSANETTA SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Progressives still are at the helm of the conflict-racked Presbyterian Church U.S., (Southern) after election of a new top officer.

But opponents say more decisive tests lie ahead.

In the opening round of the denomination's 111th General Assembly, The Rev. Dr. Ben Lacy Rose, a Richmond, Va., seminary professor who favors North-South Presbyterian reunion and other advances, won the moderator's post Sunday.

He beat out a conservative-backed candidate, the Rev. Dr. James Kennedy, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., pastor, by a vote of 217-170 on a second ballot.

"Unquestionably it was a victory for the liberal establishment," commented the Rev. Cecil Brearley of Columbia, S.C. an avowed conservative. "But it doesn't indicate what the outcome will be on the big issues."

He told newsmen the conservatives are not "up in arms" about Dr. Rose's election and respect him even though disagreeing with him on specific issues.

Dr. Rose, 56, a tall, sandy-haired respectable man, told the applauding gathering of about 1,000 Presbyterians that he would work for "continued progress" and for Presbyterian unification.

"I ask your patience and your prayers," he said.

The plans for uniting the million-member Southern Church with the 3.2 million-member United Presbyterian Church is among numerous sharp conflicts smoldering at the assembly here.

If and other friction between those favoring innovative worship and social action and groups defending traditional ways and wanting the church to concentrate on soul saving could split it asunder, some said.

"We are enduring a time of division, polarization and unhappy tensions," said the Rev. Dr. E. Lee Stoffel of Charlotte, N.C. "We see our church floundering, a house divided."

But he said Dr. Rose was a "man of balance" who would initiate reconciliation.

"He is not going to stand by and see the church destroyed," Dr. Stoffel said in nominating Rose. "He will take us forward."

Known as the "Answer Man" for his church question-and-answer column, Dr. Rose is a professor at Richmond's Union Theological Seminary.

He previously served as pastor of numerous congregations in North Carolina, of which he is a native, and in Virginia. He was a much-decorated Army chaplain in World War II.

Altogether there initially were four candidates in the election, including the Rev. Harry A. Fifield of Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. David L. Stitt, the wife of an Austin, Tex., seminary president and the first woman ever nominated for the post.

On the first ballot, she got only 16 votes to 75 for Dr. Fifield, 132 for Dr. Kennedy and 219 for Dr. Rose. In the ensuing contest between the two frontrunners, Dr. Rose gained a solid majority, 271-170.

However, the Rev. Mr. Brearley said conservatives had not achieved previously such a heavy vote as they received by Dr. Kennedy and it indicated the "hard core conservative group is stronger than usual."

Dr. Kennedy is a member of Presbyterian Churchmen United one of several independently organized conservative groups fighting Presbyterian reunion and other trends toward change they see in the Southern church.

A sudden rainstorm accompanied the opening of the week-long assembly, which is meeting in this rural church conference center situated in a green, wooded bend of the Shenandoah Valley about four miles east of Harrisonburg came out as the election results were announced.

The outgoing moderator, the Rev. Dr. William A. Benfield Jr. of Charleston, W. Va., also cited a cleavage in the church and deplored factions which have withheld financial support and acted to form separate "fenced-in" groups apart from the denomination.

But he expressed the belief the dissidents represented only a small minority.

At Least 18 Killed By N.C. Weekend Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least 18 persons were killed in weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina. The Highway Patrol said excessive speed was the cause of at least half of the wrecks.

The deaths brought the state's 1971 toll to 733 compared to 701 at this time last year.

Six of those killed over the weekend died in two three-death accidents.

A head-on collision near Hamlet in Richmond County killed Patricia Ann Wollard, 22, Lucy L. Wollard, 39, both of Rockingham; and William Jessie White, 22, of Wallace, S.C.

The second triple-death wreck was on North Carolina 8 in south Stokes County. The victims were James Vester Simmons, 23, George Alfred Hill, 23, and Larry Lee Southerland, 22, all of Rt. 1, Walnut Cove.

Two young brothers were killed early Sunday when they were hit by a car which the Highway Patrol said was traveling too fast in a heavy fog. The two men, who were walking along a rural paved road in Franklin County, were identified as Robert T. Southerland, 23, and Garland Southerland, 16, both of Rt. 1, Henderson.

Other victims of weekend wrecks were:

Annie Crudup, 20, of Rt. 1, Henderson, killed when her vehicle ran off a rural paved road near Henderson, dropped down a 30-foot embankment and went into a creek.

Joseph I. Bland, Jr., 23, of Rt. 1, Arapahoe, killed in a two-vehicle wreck on North Carolina 306 about three miles south of Arapahoe in Pamlico County.

Vernon McCall, 41, hit by a car on North Carolina 215 in Transylvania County two miles north of his hometown of Balsam Grove.

Danny Ray Howard, 23, of Lyman, S.C., killed on U.S. 19-23, two miles west of Asheville. The Highway Patrol said the car he was driving spun around and collided with an oncoming vehicle.

David Alexander Hall, 21, of Rt. 1, Robbins, killed when his car ran off a road two miles east of Whispering Pines.

Henry W. Hege, 51, of Lexington, killed in his hometown when his car struck a utility pole.

John Long, 16, of Rt. 7, Goldsboro, killed when the car he was riding in struck a traffic island three miles north of Goldsboro.

Meriam Johnson Prevatte, 25, of Lumberton, killed seven miles east of her hometown when the car she was driving overturned several times.

Pamela Jean Duncan, 18, of Chapel Hill, killed when the car she was riding in swerved into the left lane to avoid a tractor and collided with another vehicle.

Dolores Carrington, 25, of Durham, killed when the car in which she was a passenger struck a culvert two miles west of Morrisville in Wake County.

Brothers Die In Shootout

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Cornered in a garage with other ultraleftists, two brothers wanted for the slaying of a former conservative vice president died Sunday in a gun battle with police.

A brief government announcement said the police killed Ronald Rivera Calderon, 25, and that his brother, Arturo, 20, shot himself in the head rather than surrender.

Three other men and three women were captured.

The Riveras were wanted for the assassination last week of Edmundo Perez Zujovic. Informed sources said the police got an anonymous tip that the brothers and their accomplices were hiding in the garage. Police and troops surrounded it during the night.

The terrorists opened fire and fought for four hours, using submachine guns and explosives. Two policemen were wounded seriously.

The government announcement said another person was arrested in a different part of the city in connection with the assassination.

There are about 50 species of porpoises, says National Geographic.

Seattle Police Combat Divorce Within The Ranks

By ROBERT E. SWEET
SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—Divorce isn't a crime, but police wives here are combatting it as if it was just that.

When a recent survey of Seattle police indicated that almost two-thirds of the officers were divorced during the first three years of service, the Police Department stepped in to try to cure the marital malaise.

The department sponsored an experimental program to teach wives what their police husbands do on the job and what they can do to become better police wives.

Sixteen women participated in the initial 10-week course this spring. None of them is divorced, or on the brink of divorce, and each raves about the classes.

The wives received instruction one day each week at such places as the Police Training Academy, Police Headquarters, in courtrooms and even on the firing range.

After each training session, the women would discuss common problems and how they could combat them.

"I think a lot of the problems come from the wife not knowing what to expect when she marries a cop," said Melodie Moffet, one of the wives.

"She thinks it's going to be a five-day-a-week bed of roses and finds out the hours are crazy and he lives his job 24 hours a day.

"The danger is hard for a wife to take, too," she said. "You have to be able to put it out of your mind, not dwell on what might happen to him. If you did you'd go nuts."

Karen Duval was about one-third of the way through the course when her husband, who had been on the force for six months, was involved in a shooting incident.

Richard Duval and his partner shot to death a black man who had fired a sawed-off shotgun at Duval, but missing. The incident has become part of a controversy between inner-city blacks and the Police Department over police shootings. An inquest on the case is pending.

Mrs. Duval said the wives' training course was invaluable in helping to keep their marriage together.

"One of the early lessons especially helped. A sergeant told us that if we were going to sit around biting our nails, it would drive us out of our minds."

"He said we have to be casual about things other wives aren't. If I had not been prepared emotionally for the shooting, I think finding out my husband almost had his head shot off would have driven me up the walls."

"Every day he leaves the house I know he has a chance of never returning. I have to understand this and then take a fatalist's view and go about my daily life normally."

One of the more valuable portions of the course, she said, was learning how to use a gun.

The police instructor told the women he usually only teaches wives "either how to load the gun but not how to shoot it, or how to shoot the gun but not load it." He consented to show them how to do both—but only with blanks.

Several of the wives, including Mrs. Duval, have gone with their husbands to the firing range since, however, to improve their familiarity with a pistol.

"I still can't shoot worth beans," said Mrs. Duval. "I only hit about three out of 50 rounds. But at least now I can appreciate what my husband has to go through."

As well as introducing the wives to the criminal-justice system and delving into problems peculiar to police wives, the classes give helpful hints for happy marriages.

"The classes stressed not sending him off to work while you're still having a fight," said Eloise Steimel, another of the wives. "When you're in a bad mood that can be hard to avoid."

"He's under a lot of pressure on duty and really has to unwind when he gets off. It's tough, because sometimes I can be grouchy and he expects me to be in a warm, loving mood, ready to listen."

Mrs. Moffet said the police wife "often resents her husband's job and how much he cares about it. She has to play second fiddle and she doesn't like it. "Everyone should work at their marriage and maybe a policeman's wife just has to work a little harder."

Added Mrs. Steimel, "I think the classes helped all of us cope with our adjustments. There will be a few divorces anyway but maybe fewer now."

The course has been considered so successful by the Seattle Police Department the city is hoping to extend it to wives of men in all sections of the criminal-justice system.

Aspirin Is First Real Wonder Drug

CHICAGO (UPI) — In these days of deadlines and taxes and other headaches, offer a cheer for Felix Hoffmann, one of the world's great painkillers.

Hoffmann solved a problem and narrowed the odds in mankind's fight with misery. He developed our most popular drug—acetylsalicylic acid, better known as aspirin.

By whatever name, its annual worldwide production is in the millions of pounds, according to Encyclopedia Britannica. And despite recent price increases, it's still the world's cheapest drug.

Aspirin is not regarded as a cure for anything, but throughout the world, and especially in America, the little pills are downed at an ever increasing rate to combat a vast assortment of pain, with headache and arthritis at the top of the list.

It was relieving the pain of the latter that brought Hoffmann the distinction not only of developing the drug but also of being the first person to give someone an aspirin tablet.

This happened when Hoffmann was 29 years old, a German chemist preparing acetylated derivatives of a number of compounds. His father was a victim of articular rheumatism. Salicylates a few years earlier had been introduced for treatment of rheumatic ailments. The old man tried this new product, but the salicylic acid made him nauseated.

Hoffmann, carrying out experiments with drugs then being prescribed, recorded that on Aug. 10, 1897, he synthesized acetylsalicylic acid from the interaction of salicylic acid and acetic anhydride—the first pure aspirin. He had a painkiller for his father and the world.

Hoffmann's boss, Heivrich Dreser, coined the name aspirin, from the plant spiraea, and launched a huge marketing program.

For Hoffmann there came a career switch. Someone decided he could do a better job for the company in another capacity, away from the laboratory where he had developed one of the hottest selling items in the history of commerce. Within 18 months after he first synthesized aspirin he was put in charge of the pharmaceutical sales department.

Hoffmann climbed still higher on the executive hill and retired in June, 1928. By then aspirin had become a household word, but not many knew of Hoffmann's contributions. Nearly a half-century after perfecting the world's first true wonder drug, Hoffmann died in Lausanne, in February, 1946, still largely unknown in a world of headaches.

Litter Cleanup Or A $150 Fine

NANAIMO, British Columbia (UPI)—A judge who wanted to "impress the public" about the punishment facing litterbugs has sentenced a convicted litterer to pick up refuse along a mile of highway.

Judge Stan Wardill offered 21-year-old Roger Gagnon the choice of the cleanup duty or a $150 fine. Gagnon chose the cleanup and was assigned to the same area where he dumped a pickup truck load of garbage and old car parts.

Worry Clinic Children Need To Use Energy

Should kiddies be given drugs to make them calm? Mark's mother deserves a compliment for her shrewd diagnosis of her son. But millions of adults are addicts of drugs! And these are not the hippies who smoke pot or take LSD. They are jittery grownups on a barbiturate "binge."

Drug Dangers
If Mark's daddy is a jittery adult, he's the one who apparently needs tranquilizers! Actually, tranquilizing drugs should be used very rarely on children and even on adults. Yet elderly people in Nursing Homes, as well as hospital patients, are routinely given such drugs at night.

For then they will be more docile and not disturb the nurses or doctors till morning. Alas, any drug that "tranquilizes" your brain, also reduces your appetite for food and even erotic calories!

So elderly people often start downhill in their health when they begin using sedatives, sleeping pills and all such tranquilizers.

For then their stomach doesn't register normal hunger! So they have a squeamish appetite and thus don't eat enough.

As a result, they grow weaker and more enemic.

But anemia and weakness then produce LESS appetite, which means they are even not as hungry as the day before.

A vicious circle then ensues, often ending in premature death!

America has become a nation of jitterbugs.

For people stimulate them selves with caffeine drinks and cigarettes, sex movies and late TV shows.

Their children are no longer able to run and romp outdoors, as was so true 50 years ago and certainly in pioneer days.

Yet children, like all healthy young creatures (puppies, kittens, lambs, et al) almost explode with excessive inner energy.

Instead of trying to allay such nervous vitality by a chemical "club" that knocks them out, as it were, it is far better to channel such nerve into athletic outlets. Obviously, you can quiet a jittery person by striking him over the head with a baseball bat. Then he will lie still, as in a coma.

Well, why "club" children, as well as adults, with a chemical baseball bat?

Yet Dr. Leo E. Hollister, medical investigator for the Veterans Administration, testified before a Senate Com-

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ J 5 3 ♠ Q 7 6 5 ♠ J 6 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You should return partner's first suit by bidding three spades. If your partner has a good one, you would be obligated at this point to bid for a game. A pass cannot be considered, for your partner's three club bid is a one round force.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ 10 ♠ A 10 8 3 ♠ Q 5 4 2 ♠ K J 9 2
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dble. 2 ♠ ?
What do you bid?
A.—Three spades. You should be willing to commit this hand to game inasmuch as your holding is worth 13 points in support of any suit partner bids. He has announced the equivalent of an opening bid himself. Your false cue bid forces him to pick the suit, which will be just to your liking.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable. Partner has opened with one heart and you hold:
♠ A 9 2 ♠ K 6 4 3 ♠ Q 4 2 ♠ A K 6
What is your response?
A.—This hand is somewhat too strong for a single raise and is not up to the standard for a jump raise which requires 13 points. A temporizing bid is therefore suggested. Our preference is two clubs, but some players prefer a call of one spade in situations of this type.

Q. 4—As dealer, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ A Q 9 2 ♠ A K Q 4 ♠ 6 2 ♠ A K 8
What is your opening bid?
A.—One club. It is dangerous to open with one spade on hands counting 22 points. Partner may find it difficult to respond. Partner will stretch a point to respond to a club bid and then a jump shift by you will be in order.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ 10 ♠ A 10 8 3 ♠ Q 5 4 2 ♠ K J 9 2
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South

♠ 7 2 ♠ A J 10 9 5 ♠ 6 ♠ A K 8 3
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♠
Pass Pass 3 ♠ 3 ♠
4 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Four spades. This may seem a little drastic in view of the minimum nature of your opening. But since you are under compulsion to proceed to game there can be little harm in stopping by the way side to show the ace of spades. After your pass on the second round, partner should not be led to expect too much.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ A 2 ♠ J 3 ♠ K Q J 9 5 4 ♠ Q 10 9
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ 1 ♠

Q. 8—Neither vulnerable, as dealer you hold:
♠ A 2 ♠ J 3 ♠ K Q J 9 5 4 ♠ Q 10 9
What is your opening bid?
A.—One heart. It would be poor tactics to open with one spade. In cases where the four card suit is preferred to the five card suit, there is the important proviso that the spades should be a strong four card suit. This is not.

mitte last winter, and estimated that as high as 30 percent of kiddies in some elementary schools are now receiving drugs to quiet them down!

Dr. Hollister said that estimate had been given him by pediatricians at California's Kaiser Institute, concerning children in some of the schools in the San Francisco area.

You parents often get tense and irritable, too, but please realize it is your duty to fatigue your kiddies with chores and athletics; not drugs!

Reported Duke U. Topped Its Goal
DURHAM (AP) — Duke University President Terry Sanford says the university has topped a $102.8 million fund campaign by about $2.5 million.

Sanford says that $105,235,263 has been raised in about five years as the first phase of a 10-year fund drive which calls for a total of $187 million.

The former North Carolina governor told of the gifts and pledges as he addressed an audience of alumni Saturday night at Durham. The get together was the final event of a three-day alumni weekend program.

Broke In 1952, Now King Of Striptease

By GREGORY JENSEN mind reader named Geoffrey broke. LONDON (UPI)—One dismal Quinn arrived in London, hitchhiking because he was flat ally as Paul Raymond, the day in 1952 an unsuccessful same man owns one theater that cost him just under $1 million and a magazine he bought this year for a six-figure sum. He has a 21-year lease on another theater, and closed the show in it—his own—to make room for London's version of "Oh! Calcutta!" which has become a kind of private mint. Quinn, or Raymond, is its biggest stockholder. His main business—these are all sidelines, including his new men's magazine—is something else. For a living he runs London's plushiest strip club. Now 46, with brown hair to his shoulders (one interviewer said he looks "not unlike an autumnal Tiny Tim"), Raymond for 15 years has been Europe's strip-tease king, his revue bar in London's Soho rivalled only by the Crazy Horse Saloon in Paris. His success formula has been a simple one. He sells people the opportunity to look at naked women. Today, when the nude female form seems to be on public display everywhere, that may seem like no big deal. It was not always thus. Raymond, not yet 21, was pretty daring in the 1940s when he paid a couple of dancers 10 shillings (then $1.40) a night just to stand there naked during his mind-reading act. His bookings soared, even though, in those days stage censors would allow a woman to appear unclothed only on condition she moved not a muscle. Raymond once put a nude man on a revolving platform. Nothing doing, said the authorities. Undaunted, he put a naked, but motionless girl on a platform which slid from backstage to practically over the front rows. It was a wow, and Geoffrey Quinn had found his calling. Nobody raved about his mind-reading act, but the customers liked the girls. Then Raymond decided that stock-still nudes were old hat, and striptease was the thing. He discovered that stage censorship didn't apply to private clubs—so he started a club. He's been staging "private performances" to members only ever since. His revuebar has 400,000 members now. You can become a member for life just by subscribing to the magazine "Men Only," whose uninhibited first issue under Raymond's ownership came out last month. The moment stage censorship was abolished in Britain, Raymond bought a 21-year lease on the Royalty Theater and staged a play. Its main ingredient was the same as the shows at his club—naked girls. It practically printed money. So he put on another, "Pyjama Tops." The show, Raymond says proudly, "got the worst reviews ever for any theater in 20 years." He expects it to run at least another year in the Whitehall, the theater he now owns outright. Raymond speaks softly, still with a faint Liverpool accent, and with wry amusement at his phenomenal success. Educated by Jesuits and still a practicing Catholic, he shakes his long hair in annoyance at the suggestion there might be something faintly immoral about it all. "Sex is here to stay," he says. "People want to see nudes. We provide them." Raymond has a son and daughter at upper-crust public schools. His wife was a dancer—"no, not a stripper, although I wouldn't have minded"—they live plushly in the suburbs and he drives a Rolls. The only mind he reads these days is that of the public. Obviously, he's pretty good at it now.

GEOFFREY QUINN, professionally known as Paul Raymond, looks over his book "Men Only" with one of the girls who work in his plush strip club. (UPI Telephoto)

Tools Of Space Age Unlocking Earth Secrets

By WILLIAM G. WERTZ Associated Press Writer BROOKINGS, S.D. (AP) — Scientists at South Dakota State University's Remote Sensing Institute are using the tools of the space age to unlock the secrets of the earth for man's use. Within five years, these scientists, collecting data from instrument-packed airplanes and satellites flying high above the earth, expect to be able to: —Warn an Indiana farmer precisely where his corn has been struck by disease. —Spot illegal fields of marijuana for Mexican authorities. —Tell a Montana rancher where the range conditions are best for his cattle. —Advise a farmer in drought-parched Oklahoma where to drill for water. —Pinpoint for federal officials the sources of pollution in the nation's lakes and streams. The technology to do all these things exists today, says the institute's director, Dr. Victor I. Myers. The tools—sensitive heat detection devices, high-resolution television cameras and motion picture cameras with regular and infrared film and special filters—already have been developed, Myers says. His job is to discover ways to use the information these instruments can provide. "I don't want to give the impression that we now are able to accomplish all of these things or that they can be immediately applied to agriculture and other activities associated with remote sensing," Myers said. "But the preliminary research we are doing is providing us with a vast amount of remote sensing data along with the necessary experience in developing techniques for extracting information that can be used and applied to pressing problems in the very near future—certainly within the next five years." The techniques Myers and his colleagues are developing are the key to the Earth Resources Technical Satellite (ERTS) program, being developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). The first ERTS spacecraft will be launched in March of 1972. A second flight will follow a year later. The raw data collected by these satellites will be transmitted to a processing center run by the U.S. Department of Interior. At this center, now tentatively to be located at Sioux Falls, S.D., scientists aided by huge banks of computers will sift, analyze and interpret the jumble of data pouring in and turn it into meaningful information. Myers said infrared and other special types of film can detect signs of disease in crops and recognize the difference between corn and soybeans—or marijuana. Crops receiving adequate moisture can be distinguished from those needing water on these films, Myers said, and this information can be translated into range condition reports or irrigation recommendations. In addition, many forms of water pollution are clearly visible on some films and can be traced easily to their source. "Projections indicate remote sensing can be a tremendously valuable tool in the effort to improve our environment," Myers said. "The taxpayer concerned by pollution of his drinking water supply and pollution of his environment has a rightful concern that detection of pollution should be speedy, of reasonable accuracy and as economical as possible."

List Honor Pupils For Final 6 Weeks

WINTERVILLE — The Honor Roll and Principal's List for A. G. Cox School here has been announced for the final six weeks' marking period. There's no hokus pokus about Reflector Classified Ads!

Sure . . . it seems like "magic" when you can turn an extra bedroom suite into living room drapes . . . your old refrigerator into a new spring suit . . . sporting equipment into power tools . . . outgrown bicycles and toys into a musical instrument. But, Classified Ads have been doing just that every day for hundreds of people. They find cash buyers for good things you no longer want, too, so you have extra money for things you now desire.

Try working some Classified "magic" yourself. Take a tour through your home and write down everything you see that would be worth cash to someone else, but that you no longer use . . . then dial 752-6166 and give your list to the friendly Ad Writer who answers. She'll help you word your ad for quickest results. And, here's good news. A three line ad is just 68c per day on the special _____ day rate.

Don't delay! Put the "magic" power of Reflector Classified Ads to work bringing you extra money for better living today.

INTEGON SALUTES W.M. SCALES, JR.

Integon Corporation salutes W.M. Scales, Jr. for another outstanding year.

Again this year he is a qualifying and life member of the Million Dollar Round Table and is among Integon's top three producers. That makes 17 consecutive years as one of our company's top 3 producers and 17 consecutive years as a member of the Million Dollar Round Table! For 11 of those 17 years he was Integon's number one producer. This year also makes the 8th consecutive year in which Mr. Scales' production has been in excess of $2,000,000.

Our company year, from June 1, 1970 to May 31, 1971, was truly a great year for Mr. Scales. He led the field force with sales of $3,600,000 of paid for life insurance according to Million Dollar Round Table Qualifications. That's $15,000 for every working day!

Integon congratulates Mr. Scales for his best year yet and thanks his many policyowners and friends for their continuing trust in his knowledge and experience.
