Pentagon Papers Dispute Has Spurred Secrecy Policy Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Times has picked up some surprising support in Congress in its fight with the Nixon administration over publication of a secret Pentagon study of American involvement in the Vietnam war.

The government's effort to stop the paper from continuing its series about the highly classified documents brought on criticism from liberals—senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, among others.

But an element of surprise was entered by Carl B. Curtis, a Nebraska Republican who has been one of President Nixon's staunch Senate backers, particularly on Vietnam and other national security matters.

"The freedom of the press to publish information about the government of the nation, and the decisions of this government, is one of our most precious freedoms," he said Thursday.

Curtis didn't make a direct attack on the administration effort to obtain a court order against continuation of the Times series, but he said there is a "very serious fault" in the government's approach to classifying documents.

"Judging by what I have read and heard about these Vietnam war documents," Curtis told the Senate, "the government tends to stamp a 'secret' or 'top secret' classification on too many documents and too much information in an attempt to hide it from the public."

The documents in the study were classified either secret or top secret when they were assembled under direction of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara during the Johnson administration.

The Nixon administration sought a permanent injunction against further disclosure by the Times on grounds it would compromise national security.

A federal judge barred the rest of the series.

In the House, 22 members announced they would seek to intervene in the federal court proceedings to obtain resumption of the Times series on grounds Congress is being denied essential material on the war.

Altogether, 62 House members have asked the White House to release all of the Pentagon study. All but four are Democrats.

Also standing by the Times was Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., normally a Nixon war-policy supporter but also a zealous advocate of freedom of the press.

N.Y. Times Lists Secret Papers Upon Which It Based Its Report

RALEIGH (AP) — A 21-year-old Raleigh native was subpoenaed today to appear before a federal grand jury in Detroit at 9 a.m. Tuesday to answer questions about the bombing of the U. S. Capitol in Washington, D. C., in March.

Michael Tola, now a Chapel Hill resident, said he would go to Detroit but would refuse to cooperate with the grand jury. He said he is prepared to go to prison for contempt if necessary.

Tola and three unidentified companions appeared at the Legislative Building at 11 a.m. for what had been called a "press conference."

secret Pentagon documents upon which it based its suspended Vietnam war history series as both sides prepared for a court hearing today on the government's motion for an injunction against further publication of the papers.

The Times acted voluntarily Thursday on the urging of U.S. Dist. Court Judge Murray I. Gurfein who withheld any immediate action on the government's demand to inspect the Times' documents.

Gurfein ruled out a government request to see all classified material in the Times' files, saying, "I'm not tolerating any fishing expedition into the files of any newspaper."

The documents sought by Asst. U.S. Atty. Michael D. Hess were a 47-volume secret Pentagon study entitled "History of U.S. Decision-Making Process on Vietnam Policy" and a summary of "The Command and Control Study of the Tonkin Gulf Incident."

The Times suspended publication of the controversial series after Gurfein issued a temporary restraining order Tuesday and scheduled today's full dress injunction hearing for 10 a.m.

In a brief filed late Thursday for today's hearing, the government said it would argue that while the First Amendment guarantees the freedom of speech and press "it is equally clear that these freedoms are not absolute."

There were also these developments in the case:

—The chairman of the House government information subcommittee, Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., said the case has spurred plans for a major reappraisal of the government's secrecy policy and possible overclassification or misclassification of some documents.

—Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called for full disclosure of secret government data on Vietnam policies during the administration of President John F. Kennedy, saying "The public ought to be the final judge of the whole period of the 1960s, and before, in Vietnam."

—Daniel Ellsberg, an MIT researcher, was named by a former Times newsman, Sidney Zion, as the man who gave the documents to the newspaper. Zion did not disclose the source of his information and Ellsberg was not available for comment.

—Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in Decatur, Ga., that he had "never heard" of the secret study before reading of it in the Times

Startling Turnabout In South Mississippi Schools More Integrated Than Mich., Calif., Ill., Pa., Wis.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mississippi schools, the nation's most segregated two years ago, are now more integrated than those of California, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

The startling turnabout in Mississippi, disclosed Thursday in the government's latest integration statistics, dramatizes the South's emergence as the national leader in school desegregation. The shift concurred with worsening racial isolation in most big-city Northern districts.

The South's jump from 18-per-cent to 39-per-cent desegregation of elementary and secondary schools between 1968 and 1970 was almost solely responsible for the nationwide increase from 23 to 33 per cent.

The South accounted for 690,000 of the 756,000 increase in blacks attending integrated schools across the country over the two years.

Trailing the 11 Deep South states were the six border states at 32 per cent and the 32 Northern and Western states at 28 per cent, unchanged from 1968. The desegregation measure is the percentage of black pupils attending majority white schools—the traditional yardstick used by the Department of Health, education and Welfare.

Among the 30 largest school districts, only Southern and Western units became more integrated between 1968 and 1970. Among those losing ground were New York City, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Columbus, Ohio, Indianapolis and Boston.

The HEW statistics, based on questionnaires completed by all school districts enrolling more than 3,000 pupils, probably will provide new ammunition for members of Congress who favor mandatory racial balancing in the North and West.

Northern school districts in general have escaped government and court integration mandates because their segregation is attributed to housing patterns and not Southern-type laws establishing dual schools for blacks and whites. While it has struck down segregation resulting from official government action, the Supreme Court has not ruled on the constitutionality of residence-caused, or de facto, racial isolation in schools.

Advise Approval Of Gas Lines Bid

Grifton Loan Is Approved

The Utilities Commission yesterday recommended approval of District Construction Co. of Fayetteville's bid for construction of new natural gas lines here.

Director Charles Horne said the firm's low bid was $208,307.17.

The final contract must be approved by the Federal Economic Development Administration which has approved a grant to Greenville for water and gas line construction.

Bids for improvements to the water treatment plant and extension of water mains were received but approval was delayed because of an inadequate number of bids on two parts of the plant project.

Horne said the plant work involved six separate bidding sections. The number of bids was adequate on four sections. New bids will be received on sections one and four on June 29.

Bids were in order for the water main extensions although no action on them was taken pending receipt for the bids on the remainder of the water plant work June 29.

Low bidder for the water mains work was Hendrix Barnhill of Greenville whose bid was $408,605.50.

Other bidders were: Bryant Electric Co., $415,608.70; T. A. Loving Co., $417,334.40; S. M. Cozart, $471,794.40; M. D. Smith, $449,099.30 and Hilco, $471,766.25.

Other bidders on the gas line work were: Natural Gas Piping Co., $242,255.62; M. D. Smith Co., $252,133.48; C and W Pipelines Inc., $269,808.11.

The water plant work calls for improvements which will double the treatment capacity from three to six million gallons daily. Also included are improvements to the control system, renovation of the laboratory and other work.

The water mains work includes projects which will reinforce the water distribution system and extension of mains in the Hopkins industrial site (adjacent to the Dail site) north of Greenville.

The gas extension work includes extending natural gas lines into the Hopkins site and further expansion of the natural gas system in the city to serve customers presently receiving bottled gas service.

Horne said the extension of water and gas lines into the Hopkins site for industrial development was a basis for the application for the EDA grant.

Even though the water works bids were not acted on yesterday, Horne said he felt that the bids on all sections which are not being readvertised are good. "It all looks like it will come within project budget," he stated.

Delaying Move

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Bob Scott's drive to restructure higher education at this session of the General Assembly was dealt a blow today when a bill signed by 28 of the 50 senators was introduced calling for a commission to study the issue.

Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, told the Senate in offering the bill, "I read in the papers this morning that the blitzkrieg is on at this session. This bill might be described as a Molotov cocktail."

Burney was referring to a strategy meeting held Thursday by Gov. Bob Scott and the chairmen of the House and Senate higher education committees.

Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, chairman of the Senate committee, said following the meeting the governor had decided to "go for broke" at this legislative session in his bid to create a board of regents with budget and review powers over the 16 state-supported universities in North Carolina. The plan would deconsolidate the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

Burney said his bill calls for the creation of a 15-member commission to study all phases of higher education and to report back to the 1973 legislature.

"This bill," Burney said, freezes the granting of any additional Ph. D. degrees until July 1, 1973."

The bill would strengthen the state Board of Higher Education by giving it authority to review budgets of the state-supported universities.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Carolina communities of Pollocksville, Grifton and Battleboro will get substantial loans from the Farmers Home Administration for water projects, it was announced Thursday by Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C.

Loan funds allocated for a water system for the Town of Pollocksville total $180,000. The system will serve 255 users. Approved plans also call for a FHA grant of $95,000 which is not available at this time but which will be allocated from a future budget.

Battleboro will get $115,000 for construction of a rural sewer system to serve 688 rural residents in Nash and Edgecombe counties.

Grifton's $667,000 loan will be used to improve its water and sewer system. An FHA grant of $298,000 for the project has been approved but the funds are not available at this time.

Brentwood Water Corporation of Burke County will get a loan of $130,000 to extend its rural community water system. The loan will enable the corporation to extend its water distribution lines to serve 139 additional users in the area just west of Morganton.

Jordan said all the loans are for 40 years and bear interest at the rate of five per cent per year.

TENTATIVE DOUBLING
RALEIGH (AP) — The House has given tentative approval to a bill that would more than double tuition charges for out-of-state students at state-supported universities.

Congress Still Supports Nixon's Phasing-Out Of War Effort

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's program to phase out the Indochina war has won a hands-off from Congress with rapid-fire House rejection of a Dec. 31 pullout or any other deadline.

Attempts to put the House on record for a June 1 U.S. pullout, an April 30 deadline and variations of the Dec. 31 war halt were shouted down and voted out Thursday one after the other.

The Senate had rejected 55 to 42 Wednesday the Hatfield-McGovern amendment to actually cut off funds and troops for the war Dec. 31.

All seven House end-the-war measures were rejected even after backers stressed they would only register Congress' desire for a date of a certain halt to the war—not tie the President's hands by cutting off money, troops or weapons.

But House antiwar forces mustered their biggest vote yet in losing the key Nedzi-Whalen Dec. 31 date by a vote of 254 to 158.

The amendment would have prohibited war use of any of the $21.1 billion in a weapons authorization bill after Dec. 31 unless the President declared this would jeopardize safe withdrawal of U.S. troops or release of American prisoners.

Rep. Jucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., and Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio, said their amendment would only register a stand on the war because none of the long-range money in the bill could reach Indochina before 1973 or 1974.

But opponents, including the House leadership, called the proposal "a cruel hoax" that would not end the war and a meaningless amendment that would disrupt the Paris peace talks by misleading enemy negotiators as well as the American public.

After rejecting the war-halt amendments, the House approved the $21.1-billion weapons authorization 331 to 58 and sent it to the Senate.

In the rapid series of votes after four hours of debate on the war:

—A June 30 deadline provided American prisoners were released at least 60 days before then was defeated 237 to 147.

—An April 31 U.S. pullout if a cease-fire and prisoner release were arranged beforehand was shouted down by voice vote.

—The Dec. 31 pullout provided a cease-fire and prisoner release were arranged first lost by voice vote.

—A flat Dec. 31 pullout was defeated 328 to 82.

—A "signal to Hanoi" that the House would support a Dec. 31 U.S. withdrawal only if American prisoners were released by Aug. 31 was defeated 146 to 37.

—A proposal urging total U.S. withdrawal "at the earliest practicable date" was rejected by voice vote.

His Newspaper Read By All

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My pet gripe is Newspaper Hogs! I buy a newspaper on my way to work every morning and the minute I clock in, someone yells, "Give me the sports section," or "Can I see Dear Abby?"

We have half an hour for lunch, and it's the same at lunch. I have to ask for things I'd like to read in my own newspaper. No one else goes to the trouble or expense to buy one, but they all want to read mine. One party even had the nerve to ask me if she could take my paper home with her. How can I handle this without making enemies?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED UP: No way. If you don't share your newspaper, you'll be the "hog." You can read only one part of it at a time, so you'd be ahead to grin and share it.

DEAR ABBY: I lost my husband in the war three years ago and I have a son whose father never saw him. I met a man I'll call Nick whose wife died recently and left him with two children under five years old. We fell in love and were seeing a lot of each other. We even spoke of marriage. Then I suddenly realized I had some serious competition.

Nick's sister in law, Amy [his wife's younger sister], filed for divorce and is trying to get Nick away from me. Her whole family is helping out by constantly inviting him to family parties and throwing Nick and Amy together. They would like to keep Nick in the family, as he is a very good provider. [Amy's husband is a no good bum.]

Now Nick is seeing more of Amy than me. I have turned down other dates so I can be available in case Nick calls. Should I just give up and let her have him? Or should I keep hoping? I can't run after a man the way she does.

CAN'T COMPETE

DEAR CAN'T: Your competition is holding all the aces. Old family ties, plus a small army of rooters working in her behalf. Accept other dates and don't pass up any dates to be available when Nick calls. Amy's aces can be trumped as long as there are "hearts" in the game.

DEAR ABBY: A man wrote, saying he wanted to marry a wonderful, vivacious Italian, but he couldn't bring himself to give her a compliment or show his affection, altho he "loved" her very much. The girl was always after him to be more demonstrative, but he said he just wasn't the lovey-dovey type, and he refused to be phony.

You advised him to try to be more affectionate and demonstrative or to forget the girl who craved affection, because as things stood they were a poor match.

I hope he takes your advice. I was just like that Italian girl 34 years ago—only dumber. I married a man who said he "loved" me, but he never gave me a compliment or demonstrated his love and affection. I kept telling myself that as long as I knew he loved me, it didn't matter. I was wrong. There was more to it than that. He couldn't express other emotions such as anger, joy and sorrow. It wasn't his fault, but he refused to admit he needed professional help, so he never got over it.

If that Italian girl marries that emotional cripple anyway, I hope she has a lover on the side. She'll need one.

It's too late for me because after living with this undemonstrative man for 33 years, I, too, have become...

UNDEMONSTRATIVE

DEAR UN: Perhaps your costly experience will help another. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to unwed mothers ["let a fellow get to know you better before pouring out the story of your life, but tell him the truth as soon as it becomes apparent that he is seriously interested in you."] was right on!

BEEEN THERE

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Will Report On ESP Test

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Edgar D. Mitchell, who conducted experiments in mental telepathy during the Apollo 14 flight, will report the results Monday in Durham, N.C.

Mitchell will make the first public disclosure of the results in a technical paper which he will present at a meeting of the foundation for research into the nature of man. He also plans a news conference.

During the February flight, in which he and Alan B. Shepard Jr. landed on the moon, Mitchell transmitted symbols by mental telepathy to Olof Jonsson, a Chicago man who claims to be a psychic.

Mitchell has declined to discuss the experiments, but Jonsson reported shortly after the mission that the astronaut concentrated on a deck of 25 cards containing five different symbols. Jonsson said he clearly received the signals as sent by Mitchell but did not know at the time whether they were in the right order because he had not had a chance to talk with the astronaut.

They since have met.

"We were trying to find out if ESP works as well in space as it does on earth," Jonsson said.

Returned From PCA Conference

The availability of operating and capital investment credit on an intermediate-term basis has helped to make it possible for American agriculture to meet the challenge of feeding, clothing and housing America's growing population, according to Alton Gardner, president of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association.

Gardner, who has just returned from Bal Harbour, Florida, where he and other officials of the Pitt-Greene PCA attended the Annual Conference of PCA directors and general managers, says that the Association along with PCAs throughout the nation will continue to play a vital part in providing agriculture with a permanent and dependable source of credit.

The PCAs in the Third Farm Credit District continue to gear their operations to meet the future credit needs of farmers, growers and ranchers by adjusting and revising credit procedures as necessary and through annual management training institutes for all PCA personnel, Gardner continued.

The Third Farm Credit District is composed of the states of Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina and the 60 PCAs operating in the District are furnishing 46,069 farmer-members with $724 million in short and intermediate-term credit.

The Pitt-Greene PCA is currently serving 1,500 farmers with loans totaling $10,876,000 in Pitt and Greene counties.

Other officials of the Association attending the conference included W. F. Welfare, Jr. of Snow Hill, vice president; Chester Don Worthington, Jr. of Rt. 1, Greenville, director; David Harold Smith of Rt. 2, Ayden, director; Charles H. Harper of Rt. 2, Snow Hill, director and F. L. Little Jr., general manager.

The association's home office is located in Greenville, and the branch office is located in Snow Hill, managed by Arnold B. Parris respectively.

'Sharing' On Permanent Basis

In the case of federal aid to local governments, as with most other government programs, it is unrealistic to assume that the program, once begun, will subsequently be terminated.

President Nixon's proposal for revenue sharing between state and federal governments has loopholes that many officials at each level of government do not like. A counter proposal being developed by Chairman Wilbur Mills of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, is

In Footsteps Of His Father

By BRYAN HAISLIP
HAW RIVER — What a father teaches his son isn't always in words.

Following his footsteps often isn't a conscious choice for the son but something that happens as though it were destiny.

Robert W. Scott never thought as a boy of being like his daddy when he grew up. He wasn't going to farm or get mixed up in politics. When the time came to choose, he decided to prepare for medicine.

That changed. After two years at Duke University, he transferred to North Carolina

BRYAN HAISLIP

State University at Raleigh where his father, W. Kerr Scott, also received his degree in agriculture.

Later, like his father, he was State Grange Master; squire of the family farm, elder and Sunday School teacher at Hawfields Presbyterian Church; and now, Governor of North Carolina

Gratitude For His Example
Pride in his father, and gratitude for the example of his public and private life, are Father's Day sentiments for the Governor. Still with the son are lessons the father taught: love of the land, plain talk, and a firm hand on the plowshare of duty.

"I was not close to my father as a young boy," Governor Scott said the other day. "He was away from home quite a bit. We missed that relationship of a boy and his Dad going fishing."

Kerr Scott let his children know home was a special place. Home was the rolling, red Alamance County fields of the farm tended by several generations. Politics and public service took him away, but his heart always brought Kerr Scott back.

As State Agriculture Commissioner during the years young Bob was growing up, the elder Scott commuted from Haw River to Raleigh. He was up at 6:30 a.m. to see the mules hitched for the day's work, home again some 12 hours later as they came in from the fields.

Quick Change Dresser
"He could change clothes faster than any man I ever saw," the son chuckled. "He'd come in the front door with his suit and tie on. Five minutes later, the back door would slam and he'd be gone in overalls, slouch hat and boots."

Taking a trip with Dad was a special treat. Sometimes it would be field days events at the agriculture department's experiment stations.

One such time, the Commissioner stopped to see a political ally, left Bob in the car with a nickel for the parking meter and a promise to be back in 15 minutes.

Bob reasoned two cents would be enough for that much time. He got change, and used the difference towards an ice cream cone. He explained when his father returned. Kerr Scott, who appreciated a cagey way with money, roared. "I see I don't have to worry about you," he said approvingly.

Warm memories of that sort are few. Depression years which imposed economic demands, parent-child conventions of the time, burdens of public office all conspired to limit the personal relationship of father and son.

"Looking back, I miss that," Governor Scott said, reflectively. "I want to see that my own children have it."

For that reason, he takes the family on trips when it can be arranged even with some inconvenience. He saves time for the girls — twins Mary and Margaret (W-g), Susan, and Jan — and his son, Kerr, 13.

Comparisons No Handicap
The shadow of a famous father didn't inhibit Bob Scott; he got used to people saying, "You'll never do all right, but there'll never be anyone else like your Daddy." The same opportunity to be himself is what he wants for his own son.

At the moment, Kerr shows not the least inclination to emulate his father and grandfather. Football and basketball are prime interests. Just maybe, his father added cautiously, girls should be third; at any rate, politics isn't even on the list. "I'm not enthused about whether he does or not; the decision will be his to make," Governor Scott said of the possibility that his son get into politics.

No father has, or should try to exercise, control over the lives of his children, he added, philosophically. "I encourage them to do their best and prepare themselves for life in ways they can be useful and happy," he said.

He'd like them to keep an attachment for the land, whether actually in farming or not.

Kerr Scott never advised his son about politics. He died in 1958, eight years before Bob ran for lieutenant governor, his first venture. The father did leave a final counsel much on the son's mind these days.

"Keep the farm," the father said from his hospital bed. "Then, whatever you do, you won't be dependent on anything or anybody. You'll always have a place to come back to."

aiming at closing those loopholes; giving greater assurance that federal dollars will go directly to the cities rather than to states, basing the aid on need, and limiting the program to a specified number of years.

Even if other points are realistic, this latter point does not appear to be realistic.

If American cities compile budgets even for two or three years bolstered by additional federal revenues, it is unreasonable to assume they will be able to do without the federal funds in subsequent years.

One fourth of North Carolina's 100 counties were faced with almost certain financial disaster earlier this year when the courts ruled unconstitutional the state's permissive one per cent local sales tax law. Quick legislative action rewrote the law so the counties could operate in future years with this additional revenue which they had been receiving for only a year. Without the sales tax revenue, the local governments which had written it into their budgets would have faced financial chaos. Think how much more complex the problem would have been if it had arisen five years from now when local government budgets had adjusted to the additional revenue and many more counties had become involved.

If any sort of revenue sharing is to be developed between federal, state and local governments, it must be made on what is presumed to be a permanent arrangement. Otherwise in the long run additional revenues in local government budgets will create many more serious problems for municipalities than they now face with their restricted revenue sources.

Most Are Aware Of A Possible Disaster

It was hardly a great surprise that the Senate rejected the Hatfield-McGovern amendment to cut off funds for U.S. operations in Indochina by Dec. 31.

As much as everyone wants to end this unhappy chapter in U.S. military history, a majority of the Senate recognizes that such a cut off date holds the possibilities for disaster.

It might be otherwise, if U.S. troops were not being withdrawn at a steady and constant rate. This is being done, however, and it would serve only the purposes of the politically ambitious to establish an arbitrary cut off date.

Our disengagement from Vietnam should proceed rapidly, but for the safety of our remaining troops, the rate of withdrawal should be a matter of judgment, rather than meeting a politically imposed deadline.

Jordan Maps Move In UN

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The alarming deterioration in U.S. efforts to win even minor concessions from Israel in the Sinai Peninsula deadlock is now threatening a major Arab counterattack in the United Nations (UN).

Spearheaded by Jordan, the counterattack will seek a resolution condemning Israel not for its intransigence in the Egyptian Sinai (Israel has not even formally replied to the Feb. 8 Sinai settlement proposal made by special UN envoy Gunnar Jarring) but for what Israel is doing in Jerusalem.

Jordan, trenchantly backed by such staunch U.S. Moslem friends as Saudi Arabia and Turkey, has been straining at the leash to stop Israel's continuing expansion of its illegal hold over the Holy City of the destruction of ancient Arab sections, and the deportation of some Jordanian citizens. All of these acts have been condemned before by the UN, without the slightest effect on the policies of Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir.

What makes the newest effort noteworthy, however, is the possibility that this time the UN Security Council, where Jordan is now considering bringing its anti-Israeli action, might be in a mood to invoke sanctions against Israel for what it is doing in Jerusalem.

Although the U.S., as a permanent Security Council member, can always employ its veto against anti-Israel sanctions, the Nixon administration does not want to be placed in the position of vetoing a resolution designed to stop clearly illegal Israeli actions, particularly in Jerusalem.

Thus, President Nixon's Middle Eastern experts have been in secret negotiations with Jordan for months trying to design a resolution that does not use sanctions but that does severely chastise Israel for continuing to expand Arab-occupied East Jerusalem (illegally absorbed into Israel after the 1967 war) deep into the Jordanian West Bank. By arbitrarily enlarging Jerusalem, Israel enlarges its West Bank holdings.

These clandestine negotiations between Jordan and the U.S. have been most interesting. In the first place, Secretary of State William P. Rogers has succeeded up to now in delaying the Jordanian UN move on grounds that any overture to the UN about Jerusalem would endanger the delicate negotiations on the Israeli-Egyptian front, dealing with the Suez Canal and the Sinai Peninsula. Using this argument, Rogers has succeeded in getting Jordan to agree to one postponement after another on the UN.

Strength For Today

SELF-RESPECT A NECESSITY

Our Lord cautioned his followers to beware when all men spoke well of them.

What fanatical advice! Doesn't everyone like to be well spoken of? Is there anything better than going through life having people speak of you in terms of praise and affection?

Yes, these things are certainly to be desired, provided they do not cost too much.

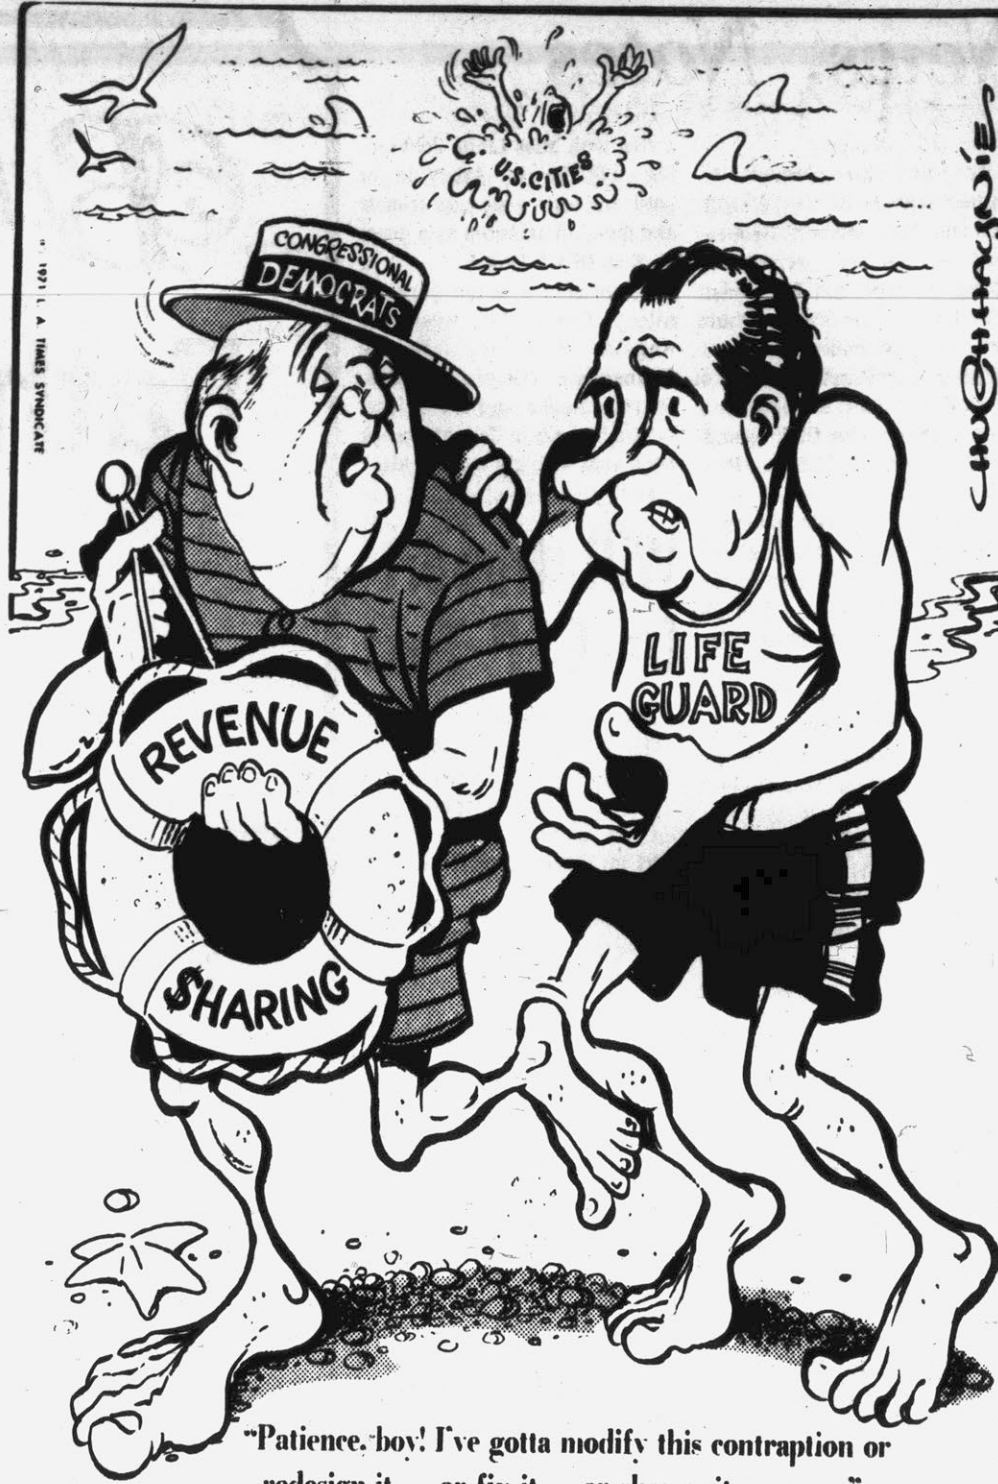

Our Lord's life is an example of how a man's life may start out with almost everybody praising him and come to its tragic but immeasurably triumphant end with almost everybody crying out against him, and even with his friends weeping over his "mistakes." The "mistakes" which our Lord made were the things which raised him to glory. He would not compromise with evil. Furthermore, he would not keep a civil tongue in his head as he confronted evil. He called his monarch a fox (which in modern parlance would mean a cur). He spoke of the Roman overlords as vultures. He hurled every type of bitter epithet at the heads of the Church leaders of his day.

No, we can not go through life having everyone speak well of us. The time comes when we have to speak out on issues, and when we do, the friends begin to fall away and our enemies to increase.

It is fine to have friends — but it is utterly essential to have self-respect.

Heart-To-Heart Talks

WASHINGTON — This is the time of the year when fathers sit down and have heart-to-heart talks with their sons.

"Son, now that you have graduated your mother feels I would not be fulfilling my duties as a father if I did not explain certain facts about life to you."

"Yes, Dad."

"First, I would like to show you a few things that you will have to deal with in the outside world. For example, this item is called a necktie."

"What do you do with it?"

"You tie it around your neck like this and wear it with a shirt."

"What for?"

"Nobody is quite sure. But when you do go out into the cold world, people will expect you to wear one. It's the Establishment's answer to the peace symbol."

"It sure looks funny. What else, Dad?"

"This, my boy, is a suit — what are you laughing at?"

"The jacket matches the pants. Hey, that's really crazy."

"Yes, the jacket does match the pants, and you will be expected to wear them together during the daytime."

"But the pants have a crease in the front. What's that for?"

"I'm not certain of its

purpose, but now that you are an adult, you will be expected to keep a crease in your pants."

"Man, what will they think of next?"

"Son, I wish you wouldn't take our talk lightly. Perhaps I should have explained these things to you before, but I didn't want to ruin your school days. Yet what I am telling you now will have a great effect on everything you do."

"Sorry, Dad, but you have to admit wearing a tie and a jacket that matches the pants — what do you call it, a suit? — is a pretty funny idea."

"Can we proceed? These queer-looking leather things are called shoes. Do you have any idea what they're used for?"

"Beats me."

"You put them on your feet to protect them from sharp objects."

"I don't want to wear anything like that, Dad. I'll take my chances."

"I don't know how to break it to you, son, but most places require grownups to wear shoes."

Other Editors Say A Special Irony

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Somehow it seems ironic that about one week after the House of Representatives in Raleigh killed a bill cracking down on high-speed drivers, six persons would lose their lives this past weekend because of high speed.

If these grim statistics don't plague the politicians who insist on treating highway safety lightly, then nothing will.

The members of the North Carolina General Assembly get all worked up about higher education restructuring, obscenity, liquor bills, soft drink taxes and the like, but somehow they get bored when highway safety legislation is mentioned.

We're not talking about token measures. It's alright to add rear-view mirrors to the list of items that ought to be checked when Tar Heel autos face safety inspection. But that's not getting down to the gut issues of highway safety, and we're talking about drunken drivers and irresponsible speeders endangering innocent people on public roads.

As far as the politicians are concerned, these lawbreakers lead a charmed life — immune or exempt, if you please, from legislation that would take them off the roads.

There are drunks and speeders who have court records a yard long, and they're still driving around. Over and over, law enforcement officers risk their own necks to apprehend these lawbreakers, only to see them turned loose again and again.

To date, more people have lost their lives on North Carolina highways than at a comparable period last year. By the end of 1971, we can expect to see around 1,500 lives snuffed out on our streets and highways, and a large percentage of these will be victims of drunken drivers and speeders — the statistics bear this out.

When it comes election time again, North Carolina citizens ought to examine legislature candidates' voting records on highway safety legislation as carefully as they check records on tax voting, budget bills and the like.

Telephone Services Growing

By ELMER ROESSNER
Don't worry about Western Union strikes. Don't worry about increased postal rates and decreased postal service.

The telephone companies are moving to take over communications in America.

Why do you think A.T.&T. is in the process of raising about $2 billion in fresh cash? And why are other telephone companies borrowing another $1 billion? True, some of it will be spent to bring service up to date. It has deteriorated shamefully because management didn't foresee that America would grow the way it has. But most of it will be spent because management now sees the possible scope of telephone service.

And why do you think telephone workers have stepped up their pay demands? They too see the future and want to share in it.

Progress To Date

Telephone lines carry most of the news. The press services lease their lines from phone companies.

Phone companies carry TV shows. Without phone lines and point-to-point radio relays there would be no network television.

Telephone has long been a vital factor in stock market transactions. More orders today are handled by voice over telephone lines than were ever tapped out over telegraph lines. Many markets and brokers are linked by phone lines.

The telephone companies have moved into the computer business, making central computers available to hundreds of users. And several systems are in operation by which photographs, diagrams, drawings, letters and news are sent over telephone lines.

Jerusalem affair.

Now, however, the deadlock on the Egyptian front of the Arab-Israeli struggle, resulting at least partially from Israel's refusal to reply to Ambassador Jarring's peace proposal of more than four months ago, looks more or less permanent to Jordan and other Arab countries. Thus, the issue of Jerusalem, which is laced with the deepest emotions in the Moslem world—far more so than the purely Egyptian Suez Canal—can no longer be ignored.

That partially explains the strong public attack by the State Department last week on Israeli construction of large apartments in the formerly Jordanian part of East Jerusalem. The department's statement, putting the U.S. once again squarely on the side of Jordan in the matter of Jerusalem, was designed to buy still another delay in the expected Jordanian approach to the UN Security Council.

But the U.S. Can't go on buying time forever, nor are the Moslem states with such a high stake in the future of Jerusalem willing to wait much longer. This is especially true in view of Israel's intensive campaign here to stop all diplomatic activity in the Middle East until after the 1972 Presidential election.

What makes the imminence of an anti-Israeli resolution in the Security Council particularly ominous for the U.S. is that France takes over the Security Council next month in the revolving chairmanship. France is Israel's most hostile antagonist and can be counted on to try for maximum embarrassment both of Israel and the United States.

Thus, even if Jordan and the U.S. do agree on fairly mild language demanding an end to Israel's violations in Jerusalem, France will probably push hard for anti-Israeli sanctions, a step that the U.S. would undoubtedly use its veto to defeat. Accordingly, Washington once again is in danger of finding itself isolated on Israel's side against the Arabs and most of the rest of the world, a condition eminently satisfying to Israel but dangerous for the U.S.

Reproduced

RALEIGH (AP) — Carbine Williams inspected the reproduction of his old gunshop Thursday and pronounced it satisfactory.

The gunshop will become a permanent addition to the exhibitions of the North Carolina Department of Archives and History.

Gov. Bob Scott will accept the shop and Williams' gun collection in behalf of the state in ceremonies Tuesday.

Williams came to Raleigh Thursday for a preview.

The little white frame shop which was on the Williams farm near Godwin was dismantled board by board and put back together in Raleigh.

Williams is the inventor of the carbine used by U.S. forces in World War II. The late Gen. Douglas MacArthur once praised the weapon as "one of the strongest contributing factors to our victory in the Pacific."

In the early 1920s, Williams was imprisoned as the result of the fatal shooting of a law officer during a liquor still raid in Cumberland County. While in prison, with the blessing of a prison camp captain, Williams designed and hand-made the carbine, which the Army accepted upon demonstration.

Dry Forces To Fight Mecklenburg Referendum

RALEIGH (AP) — A referendum on liquor by the drink could be held in Mecklenburg County about the first of November unless dry forces tie the matter up in the courts. The House gave final approval to the referendum bill by a 54-48 vote Thursday, and the Senate swiftly concurred in a House amendment and enacted the measure.

But Coy C. Privette, president of the North Carolina Christian Action League, said, "The battle is not over and we have just begun to fight."

He said the executive committee of the league would meet with its legal advisers in Raleigh June 25 to decide on legal counsel for a suit against the bill. Privette said the league is convinced that both the Mecklenburg and Moore County bills "are unconstitutional and should be tested in court." Recent court decisions, such as the one declaring the one-cent local option sales tax unconstitutional, "have cast a serious shadow over so-called local legislation of this nature,"

he said. "In fact, the courts are realizing that this 'local bill' route is being taken to circumvent a legitimate statewide vote which a bill of this importance should have," he said. He added that the league "is determined to see this thing through in the courts."

In Charlotte, attorney Allen Bailey also questioned the bill's constitutionality and said he felt it would be tested in the courts. He declined to comment on whether he would do it. The legislature enacted a bill several weeks ago authorizing Moore County to hold a referendum on liquor by the drink. There was no debate on the Mecklenburg bill Thursday, but the measure was debated at length when it won tentative approval Wednesday.

The House had approved an amendment Wednesday that liquor be sold from miniature bottles if Mecklenburg voters approve mixed beverages. The Senate concurred with this amendment.

Under the bill, the Mecklenburg ABC Board is directed to work out a plan by Sept. 15 for the sale of liquor by the drink. The local board of elections would be required to call an election after that.

Rep. Hugh Campbell, D-Mecklenburg, said he would assume a referendum would be held about the first of November. Despite the fact that the General Assembly is moving toward adjournment, several other legislative delegations were reported preparing mixed drink referendum bills for their areas.

Six Injured In Plant Explosion

GREENSBORO (AP) — Six workers at a textile printing plant of Guilford Mills, Inc., were treated for injuries they received in an explosion and fire at the plant Thursday.

None of the employees was seriously hurt. The blast is believed to have occurred in the boiler of the plant, which is in a residential area. Nearby residents were evacuated from their homes until the blaze was brought under control.

That law, he added, requires every executive department to turn over such information at the request of seven members of the House Government Operations Committee. The information subcommittee is part of that panel, and has several safes in which it stores the classified documents it receives.

Moorhead said experts in constitutional law, legislators and news representatives will be called, along with White House officials and high-ranking witnesses from the Defense, Justice and State departments

Six Miles Of Wire Stolen

BUCODA, Wash. (AP) — Telephone company repairmen had no trouble in locating the source of trouble Thursday when all 135 subscribers in this small Washington town reported their phones out of order.

Six miles of copper wire had been stolen from telephone poles during the night, said E. A. Peterson, manager of the Tenino Telephone Co.

Police and FBI agents are investigating the theft.

Rep. Ogden R. Reid of New York, ranking Republican on the subcommittee and a former executive of the old New York Herald Tribune, said there is a "wide difference between national security and national embarrassment" and much material in the Times case apparently "relates to history, not to what could be called a security question."

Reid added: "I think you'll find a number of documents that should not properly now be classified." He said it is "clear Congress has been denied essential information" and there have been "clear assaults on the press and the right to know."

Announce Grant To Institutions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two federal grants totaling more than $800,000 were announced Thursday for North Carolina institutions.

Rep. Wilmer Mizell, R-N.C., said the U.S. Office of Education has given $415,293 to the 41 colleges and technical institutes in the state for new library materials.

The state Department of Administration was given $346,000 by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to use for planning transportation, land use, environment, housing and regional development.

A Lot More Recreation For GI's In Vietnam Today

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Sweating in full battle regalia, the Americans assaulted Wunder Beach under the nervous gaze of a dozen South Vietnamese peasants. GIs in flak jackets and steel pots grimly clutched their weapons as the small convoy crept toward the golden sands. Infantrymen with minesweepers walked cautiously ahead of the five trucks, one armored personnel carrier and one armored car.

When they hit the sand, one of the trucks bogged down. The personnel carrier drove into the surf and the other vehicles parked while minesweepers fanned out across the beach. The soldiers dismounted expectantly.

Suddenly they threw down their M16s, stripped and ran for the South China Sea. The Vietnamese gaped as combat veterans from Khe Sanh frolicked in the waves, built sand castles, played football with a beer can and sunbathed atop the half-submerged personnel carrier.

Delta Company of the 1st Battalion, 11th Infantry, had taken Wunder Beach without a shot, and GIs in Quang Tri Province gained another recreation area. Such unilitary maneuvers exemplify an accelerated effort by the U.S. Command to make the troops' life in the war zone more pleasant.

A draftee who expected to slog through enemy-infested jungles finds himself spending a year as a lifeguard at Da Nang's China Beach recreation center. A helicopter pilot who flew six months without a day off is suddenly free with a weekend pass.

Line grunts are being encouraged to swap their rifles for guitars and join traveling song and dance bands. Those with theatrical ambitions can become fatigue-clad Othellos and Macbeths.

"If you have talent, call us for an audition," proclaims an advertisement on the Armed Forces Vietnam (AFVN) television network.

Some professional fighting men sneeringly refer to it as the new "Leisure Army." Many draftees, bored by make-work jobs, see the military's efforts to entertain them as just another reason why they should be sent home sooner.

Too many have too much spare time in a war that is winding down.

More than 261,000 U.S. troops have gone home since mid-1968. Battlefield action has declined along with troop strength and the remaining force of some 281,000 men is plagued by low morale, drug abuse and drunkenness.

Marijuana smoking among enlisted men and even junior officers is so prevalent that some commanders have simply given up imposing penalties required by the Uniform Code of Military Justice. Some let their men off with a warning, others extract a $25 fine. A few tacitly condone discreet pot parties and sometimes join them.

Drunkenness is an acknowledged problem, particularly among senior noncommissioned officers. While their men blow grass in the hooches, the NCOs are often propping up bar rails in the clubs.

Although troop strength will fall below 150,000 men by the end of fiscal 1972, the U.S. Army's recreation budget is expected to be double its present $11.2 million. Smaller Air Force and Navy totals were not available but spokesmen said they would rise accordingly.

Today's soldier in Vietnam already has a lot more recreation available than his counterpart in 1968. There are 71 swimming pools, 12 beaches with lifeguards, 160 crafts shops, 90 service clubs, 159 surfaced basketball courts, 30 tennis courts, 55 softball diamonds, 85 volleyball courts, two bowling alleys, 337 regular libraries and 301 field libraries stocked with paperback books.

Wild Finish Gives Pirates 9-8 Victory

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

If Harrington Field was located in Holland, it probably would have been declared a major disaster area last night. There were enough leaks to set the fans to ripping up the seats and start building an ark.

What started as a trickle in the second inning when the first ball squirted away from an East Carolina player, turned into a deluge by the final inning when the dike broke for Louisville.

During the exhibition that tipped off the 1971 North Carolina Collegiate Baseball season for the Bucs, the two teams accounted for 12 errors, six each. And three of Louisville's came in the final inning when the Bucs pushed over two surprise runs for a 9-8 victory.

It was not what could be termed a lesson in how the game is played.

Of the 17 runs scored in the game, 10 were earned. The errors took care of the rest. Louisville scored four in the eighth inning to come back and take the lead at that point without a single hit during the frame.

But it was all merely building up to the final mass hysteria which erupted in the ninth.

East Carolina, now 1-0 in the league, started the action in the first inning, one of the few unmarked by errors. Larry Walters brought on all the action, slamming a two-out pitch over the fence in deep center, 390 feet from the plate. It staked East Carolina to a short-lived 1-0 lead.

For Louisville came back in the second to move ahead, 2-1. With one out, Wayne Pyrtle singled to center and Wayne Currin followed with a hit to left.

Frank Layton grounded to third, and Currin was cut down there. The relay to first for the double play attempt was off target, however, and Pyrtle came across to score on the error while Layton went on to second. He then scored on Sherwood Driver's single to center.

In the fourth, Louisville came up with two more for a 4-1 lead. Pyrtle singled to left and Currin hit a ball into left. Walters raced in for it, but the ball fell just in front of his glove and skidded past him and went all the way to the fence. By the time it was chased up, Pyrtle had scored and Currin was on third. Driver then brought in Currin with a sacrifice fly.

East Carolina came back in the bottom of the fourth to score three runs and tie it up. Matt Walker reached on an error and took second on a wild pitch. Walters then singled to right to score him. A passed ball and a wild pitch moved Walters around to third, and he came in when Mike Aldridge got a hit. Troy Eason followed with another hit, and Rich McMahon sacrificed both Aldridge and Eason up. Ralph Lamm followed with a sacrifice fly to bring in Aldridge with the tying run.

East Carolina charged back into the lead in the seventh, scoring two runs. Ronnie Leggett walked and Bill Godwin sacrificed him to second. Mike Bradshaw singled to center, putting runners on first and third.

Louisburg then changed pitchers, touching off an argument between plate umpire W. D. MacRoy and Louisville coach Russ Frazier. The new hurler, Phil Mullin apparently took too many warmup pitches, and MacRoy called two balls on him. Frazier protested, and before it was over, MacRoy ejected him from the game.

Mullin attempted a pickoff of Bradshaw, but threw the ball away, and Leggett streaked home, while Bradshaw went to third. Walker then singled to hit to score McMahon.

Then, the dam broke for Louisville in the ninth. Walker led off with a single to the infield and with one out, Aldridge walked. Mike Van Landingham attempted to sacrifice, but the ball was dropped and he reached safely, loading the bases. McMahon then hit back to third, setting off a chain of events that ended the game.

brought in Layton with the fourth run.

But the wild and woolly things weren't over yet. East Carolina came back with a run in the eighth to cut the lead to 8-7. McMahon walked and Leggett singled. John Narron then got a hit to score McMahon.

Then, the dam broke for Louisburg in the ninth.

Walker led off with a single to the infield and with one out, Aldridge walked. Mike Van Landingham attempted to sacrifice, but the ball was dropped and he reached safely, loading the bases. McMahon then hit back to third, setting off a chain of events that ended the game.

The third baseman, Barbour, fired to the plate, forcing Walker. Catcher Layton then moved to first to try and complete the double play and end the game. But his throw was off the target and the ball went down the right field line, scoring Aldridge with the tying run.

The relay to third to try and get VanLandingham there was also thrown away, and he raced home to end the game in utter confusion.

The Pirates will play host to Wilmington on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in their second game of the year.

Elks Surprise Pepsi By 5-4

The Elks kept their fading title hopes alive and handed Pepsi-Cola a blow yesterday by taking a 5-4 victory in the Tar Heel Little League.

The outcome gave League leading Graniters, 9-2, a little more breathing room. Pepsi and the Elks are now tied for second with 7-5 marks. The Moose and Exchange are 4-7, while Integon is 3-8.

The Elks pushed over two runs in the first. Reggie Spain singled and took second on a passes ball. Joe Godette singled him to third and both scored on Frank Davis' double.

In the third, the Elks added two more for a 4-0 lead. Ricky Skinner reached on an error and moved up on a passed ball. Alex King doubled Skinner home. King went to third on an out and scored when Davis singled.

Pepsi came up with all four of its runs in the fifth inning. MacDonald Avery singled and took second on a passed ball. An error on the play sent him to third. Michael Shank walked and a passed ball moved him up and scored Avery. Another passed ball put Shank on third, from where he scored on Dana Kendrick's single. Mark Conway walked and stolen bases scored Kendrick and moved Conway to third. John Coffman reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Conway with the tying run.

Then, in the bottom of the sixth, the Elks got the winning run. Hardee Whitehurst singled and moved to third on an error on the play. Jack Ward then singled to score Whitehurst with the winning run.

Optimists Move Closer To Title

The Optimists took another step toward the North State Little League title yesterday with a 9-2 victory over R.C. Cola. The Optimists are now within two games of clinching the title.

They hold the lead in the league with an 11-1 record, while the Kiwanis are at 8-3, and are the only team with a chance to catch them. The rest of the league has the Jaycees at 5-6, R.C. at 5-7, Coca-Cola at 4-7 and the Lions at 1-10.

The Optimists pushed over a run in the first inning to take the lead. Eric McCormick walked and moved up on an out. He gained third on a passed ball and scored after Gary Allen, Jeff Aldridge and Gary Porter each drew walks.

In the second, four more Optimists runs crossed the plate. Ricky Robinson walked and moved up second on a passed ball. A wild pitch put him on third and McCormick walked. Another passed ball scored Robinson. Greg Lee was hit by a pitch and both runners moved up on another passed ball. Bob Peoples doubled to score McCormick and an error let Lee come in. Aldridge singled and he and Peoples worked the double steal with Peoples scoring the fourth run of the inning.

R.C. scored both of its runs in the third. Billy Ellington singled and moved up on an error. Dough Burbage also reached on an error and both moved up on a passed ball. Ellington scored on Bryant Morton's sacrifice fly. A passed ball then scored Burbage.

The Optimists added three more runs in the fourth. McCormick walked and Lee reached on an error, scoring McCormick. Peoples reached on a fielder's choice and stole second. Aldridge grounded out, but brought in Lee. Peoples then scored on Porter's hit.

The final run came in the fifth. Bubber Rowlette walked and stole second, scoring on McCormick's single.

St. James, Grace Claim Victories

St. James and Grace picked up victories in the Church Softball League last night. St. James popped First Christian, 31-4, while Grace downed Mt. Pleasant, 16-3.

In the National Division of the league, Immanuel leads with a 9-5 record, followed by Oakmont, 9-6. They are trailed by Black Jack and Grace, both 8-7; Mt. Pleasant and Piney Grove, both 7-7; and Maranatha, 2-12.

Meadowbrook leads the American Division with a 13-2 record, followed by St. James at 11-2 and Presbyterian at 11-3. They are trailed by Belvoir, 7-8, Christian, 4-11, St. Gabriel, 3-12, and Trinity, 2-12.

St. James wrapped it up by scoring 12 runs in the first inning of play. Roy Carawan walked and Ron Vincent singled. Jimmy Smith got a hit, followed by Dave Wilcox, Ricky Chambers and Bill Potter. Rusty Jacobs doubled and Ed Smith, Bill Shaw and Carawan each singled. Ron Vincent and Charles Vincent each doubled and Wilcox's single brought in Charles with the 12th run.

St. James went on to add three in the third on Charles Vincent's homer, then pick up 11 in the sixth, with Vincent, and Smith each getting homers, and Smith getting a pair. Smith also homered in the five run seventh. Christian got one in the first, one in the third, one in the fourth on Marvin Hunt's homer, and one in the sixth.

Grace pushed over five runs in the first to score all they needed. Robin Coggins singled and Billy Peed doubled. Kenneth Smith got a hit and Lindsay Hardee also doubled. Louis Hardee singled and scored the fifth run on Reedin Jones' triple.

Grace added three in the sixth and eight in the seventh, with Lindsay Hardee hitting a pair of homers. Mt. Pleasant got two in the fourth and one in the fifth.

A Good Way To Open The Year

Larry Walters, right, trots home to the plaudits of his teammates following his first time at bat in the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League last night. Walters cracked a homer to deep center to stake the Bucs to a brief 1-0 lead. They finally took the victory, 9-8, in a wild ninth inning rally. (Reflector Photo)

Odds Are High, But Harris Accepts Them

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The odds against the opening round leader winning the U.S. Open Golf championship are staggering, but quiet, easy going Labron Harris is happy he's in a position to take the gamble.

The 29-year-old Harris, who has never won a professional golf tour championship, shot a three under par 35-32-67 Thursday to lead the field by one stroke in the 71st annual National Open.

In the previous 70 years of the Open, the world's most prized championship, only 13 first round leaders, or 18 percent, have been on top at the finish, including last year's winner, Tony Jacklin of England.

Breathing down Harris' neck after the first 18 holes around the 6,544-yard Merion course were Lanny Wadkins, the 1970 U.S. Amateur champion, and oldsters Doug Sanders and Bob Goalby, each with two under par 68s. Bracketed another stroke back at 69 were Jim Colbert, PGA champion Jack Nicklaus and Bobby Nichols.

There were 10 at par 70, including former Open champion Lee Trevino, Masters king Charles Coody, Tom Weiskopf, Dale Douglass, and Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Arnold Palmer shot three over par 73, and two time Open Champion Billy Casper 74. Gary Player carded a 76 and the South African was heckled by two black spectators over his nation's apartheid policy.

Harris, a former National Amateur champion, had eight one putt greens—five in succession—and took only 29 shots on the slick fast greens of historic Merion, home of two previous U.S. Open championships. He missed four times from six feet or less.

Harris was an early starter, posted his lead and then sat back and watched the field try to catch him.

Larry Hinson was five under par through 13 holes and then fell apart. Merion's yawning traps, ankle high rough and tricky greens enveloped the North Carolinian. He took four bogeys and a double bogey on the final five holes, losing six strokes and winding up even par for the day.

Foodland Stuns The Little Mint

Foodland got back into the thick of things in the Ladies Softball League last night with a 7-5 victory over previously unbeaten Little Mint. In the other game, Piggly-Wiggly downed Wachovia Bank, 18-8.

Little Mint still leads the league with an 8-1 record, while Foodland is 7-1. They are the only teams left in the title race. Piggly-Wiggly is third at 4-5, followed by Coca-Cola, 3-6, and Wachovia, 0-9.

Foodland pushed ahead with three runs in the first inning, but Little Mint came back with three in the bottom of the frame to tie it.

Two more by Foodland in the second game gave them a 5-3 lead, and that held until the fourth when Little Mint came up with two more to tie it again.

Then, in the sixth, Foodland got two more to take the lead for good. Dawn Fitz reached on an error, as did Kathy Flanagan. Both advanced on a passed ball and Joyce Sawyer singled to score Fitz. Flanagan scored on another passed ball for the final run.

In the second game, Piggly-Wiggly fell behind Wachovia, 4-3, in the first inning. It stayed that way until the fourth, when Piggly-Wiggly came up with four more runs to take the lead.

Margie Harris doubled and Mary Strauss singled. Hilda Avery got a hit as did Sherry Mills. Hits by Betty Owen and Velma Cannon brought in Mills with the final run.

Piggly-Wiggly added eight in the fifth and three in the sixth for their final total. Wachovia got four more in the seventh.

Bobby Allison Going Electronic For Race

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — In 1930s auto racing movies there would always be a scene where the pit crew holds up a blackboard with the words chalk-written: "Your left rear wheel is loose."

But the driver is going too fast. He doesn't read the sign and crashes.

Bobby Allison says a black board is hard to read at 100 miles an hour. And a warning flag is often overlooked, too. So he's going electronic.

When qualifying begins today for the Winston Golden State 400 NASCAR race, Allison will be in constant touch with his pit crew via a two-way short-wave set. The receiver is built into his crash helmet and the send box, voice-actuated, sits in a tiny box alongside the driver's seat.

The Hueytown, Ala., veteran, who has won three recent super speedway races and finished second in another, will be driving a 1970 Dodge in this 400-mile test. Brother Eddie will be at the microphone in the pits, directing traffic or whatever.

The electronic gadget, tried out in a similar form in this year's Indianapolis 500 by Al Unser, will aid Allison in two ways.

First, crew people seeing things wrong with Allison's car that he is unaware of can relay the problems to him instantly.

But Allison says the second reason is more important to him.

"Last January in the Motor Trend 500, I decided to make a pit stop on the yellow flag after Ray Elder had a flat tire," he says. "I had just taken the lead. By then the green flag came out and I didn't see it. I never would have stopped if I had seen it. If I had this receiver, my crew could have told me the green flag was out and I would have stayed on the track."

Asked if he would be startled by sounds in his helmet, Allison laughed and said no.

"My crew people are smart," he said. "These guys know not to startle me when I'm in the turns. They know to relay messages when I'm on the back straight or near the pits. And if there's a crash on the track, I need to be startled."

Allison made a practice run Thursday for the Sunday race and pushed his oxygen-restricted machine to 106,938 miles an hour over the 2.6-mile course at Riverside International Raceway.

About 55 cars will try to earn one of the 20 starting berths in the major test, a Grand National race.

Allison is the heavy favorite. He and his Dodge have earned about $90,000 in the last month of driving. The race he finished second in was won by his brother Donny.

No NFL Strike To Halt Camps

By PAT THOMPSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — There won't be a rerun of the 1970 National Football League training camp strike when the players start reporting for the first practices next month.

Owners and players finally patched up their differences that started with last year's training camp boycott-lockout, led to a contract settlement misunderstanding and finally reached a peak when a charge of unfair labor practices was hurled into the dispute.

"We're going to play ball," said Leonard Lindquist, NFL Players Association (NFLPA) attorney. "There were clarifications of position accepted by both sides."

Representatives of club owners and the NFLPA met in a marathon session in Minneapolis that started Wednesday night and did not break up until Thursday afternoon.

When it was over, it was announced jointly that a final agreement had been reached on a four-year "collective bargaining agreement."

"It wasn't a cloak and dagger session," said a spokesman for the club owners. "It was a straight work session."

Clarification was necessary on a wordage dispute that arose after a Feb. 28 meeting, when the players stamped agreement on the contract that ended the strike in August 1970 but had not yet been signed.

The pension issue was the biggest concern of the players when they refused to report for training.

But the NFLPA filed a charge of unfair labor practices with the National Labor Relations Board April 2, saying the owners had changed some wordage after the February meeting.

Villanova Waiting

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Villanova university awaits a ruling by the National Collegiate Athletic Association on the Howard Porter case that may erase last year's fine basketball season from the record books.

The president of the school said Thursday it will forfeit the basketball record—including a second place finish in the NCAA tournament—if the NCAA rules that the star center had signed a professional contract and made himself ineligible during the season.

It has been alleged that Porter signed a professional contract with the Pittsburgh Condors of the American Basketball Association on Dec. 16, 1970, while still a collegian.

According to NCAA bylaws, a team's record and performance are stricken from the books if it is determined that a man played college ball while under a professional obligation. Also, any awards the team might have won with an ineligible player are to be returned to the NCAA.

In a letter to NCAA executive director Walter Byers, the Rev. Robert J. Walsh, president of Villanova, suggested the athletic group give Porter a chance to clear himself.

Mitterwald Shines In Leading Twin Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Minnesota Twins won a baseball game, by George.

It wasn't easy. They spotted Chicago two leads and George Mitterwald doubled their pleasure with two saving hits.

"I've just been swinging good," said Mitterwald after an early game-tying home run and a late winning single as the Twins toppled the Chicago White Sox 7-6 in 11 wild innings Thursday night.

land Indians 4-3; the Baltimore Orioles trimmed the New York Yankees 3-1 and the Kansas City Royals thumped the California Angels 5-0.

Only two games were played in the National League. The Chicago Cubs bounced the St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 in 10 innings and the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Atlanta Braves 5-1.

Mitterwald had missed four games with a pulled muscle in his left leg, but the pain didn't curb his desire to play, according to Twins Manager Bill Rigney.

Tony Oliva's two-run single with the bases loaded scored Minnesota's first two runs and Rich Reese chased home another with a sacrifice fly to tie the contest. Then Mitterwald, who homered in the sixth to create a 3-3 tie, ripped "the longest single of my career" to send in Oliva.

Pinch-hitter Mike Andrews had delivered a two-out tie-breaking double in the top of the 11th to spark the three-run up-rising and give the White Sox a short-lived 6-3 lead.

Bill Freehan hit two doubles and winning pitcher Les Cain drove in a run for Detroit as the Tigers snapped a six-game winning streak for Cleveland ace Sam McDowell.

Cain's fifth-inning single gave the Tigers their first of two runs in that inning and a triple by Norm Cask and Freehan's double knocked in the fourth and decisive run in the eighth. McDowell, who lost his sixth in 13 decisions, was tagged for nine hits in six innings.

Ellie Hendricks hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning to pull Baltimore's East Division Leaders over New York. The blow cleared the center field fence after bouncing off leaping Bobby Murcer's glove. Pat Dobson pitched a five-hitter for the Orioles.

The Kansas City Royals scored three runs in the first inning on four hits to back Dick Drago's six-hitter. Drago, who shut out Boston in his last assignment, became the first Royal to ever pitch consecutive shutouts.

Cookie Rojas, Kansas City's veteran second baseman, collected the 1,000th hit of his major league career with a seventh-inning single off reliever Mel Queen.

Don Kessinger, who doubled in the eighth inning and scored the tying run, opened the 10th with his sixth hit and came in with the winning run on Ron Santo's single for the Cubs.

Jim McGlothlin scattered seven hits to complete his first game of the season and Lee May knocked in three runs for Cincinnati. McGlothlin, after giving up a run in the first, retired 15 Braves in a row before Ralph Garr's two-out single in the sixth.

Wadkins Asks 'Why Not Win?'

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — If brasserie and confidence help, Jerry Lanston "Lanny" Wadkins, Jr., could be the first amateur since Johnny Goodman in 1933 to win the U.S. Open Golf championship. "Why not?" the sandy-haired Wake Forest University junior from Richmond, Va., responded when asked whether he thought such a feat was now possible. "On a given day, I think I can play with any of them."

Lanny doesn't just say it—he does it. He shot a 68 Thursday. Going into today's second round of the 71st open at the Merion Club he is one of seven players under Merion's 70 par, one stroke off the pace set by Labron Harris with a 67.

In the post-round inquisition that follows after each outstanding score Wadkins was asked if he was surprised at his excellent score.

"No, sir," Lanny answered, not batting a green-gray eye. "I wasn't surprised. I've been playing well. I had two 65s in practice."

Another questioner reminded the 21-year-old collegian that he had an unorthodox grip with his right hand pulled more over the club than most players.

"Ben Hogan grips the club that way, and he's done all right," Wadkins responded.

Somebody else, pressing the issue, wanted to know if he felt that pros had a big advantage over the amateurs in the Open.

"Sure, they are guaranteed $500," he said. "That would pay my expenses."

The 1973 U.S. Women's amateur golf championship will be played at Montclair, N.J.

Southern Cal Is The Winner

By DAN EVEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Time-hitting has given Southern California its seventh College World Series baseball title.

"They got hits with men on base, we didn't, it's that simple," said Southern Illinois Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones after his team was beaten 7-2 by the top-ranked Trojans Thursday night.

For the Rod Dedeaux-coached Trojans it was their third College World Series championship in the last four years, and, marked only the second time in the 25 years of the tournament that a team has won consecutive titles. Texas did it in 1949-50.

"It was tougher than the score indicated," said Dedeaux, whose team for the second straight year came back through the losers bracket to the title.

Junior All-America Steve Busby muffled the hard-hitting Southern Illinois attack by allowing just eight scattered singles.

The game was on of redemption for the right-hander, too. He was knocked out by Southern Illinois Sunday in the second round as Southern Cal lost 3-3.

Southern Illinois, which lost to USC in the title game 4-3 in 1968, clipped Busby for a 1-0 lead in the second inning, but then was held scoreless until the ninth as USC won on top 7-1.

Old Crow's good taste begins with men who love to work with their hands.

Anthony Clark has a big responsibility. One false move of his hands and he's mixed the wrong measure of grain for the Old Crow formula. Does he ever miss? The proof is in the good taste of our Bourbon.

Making Bourbon which tastes good, bottle after bottle, made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that took Bourbon-making out of the hit-or-miss category. Later, they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon. We still use our hands in making Old Crow.

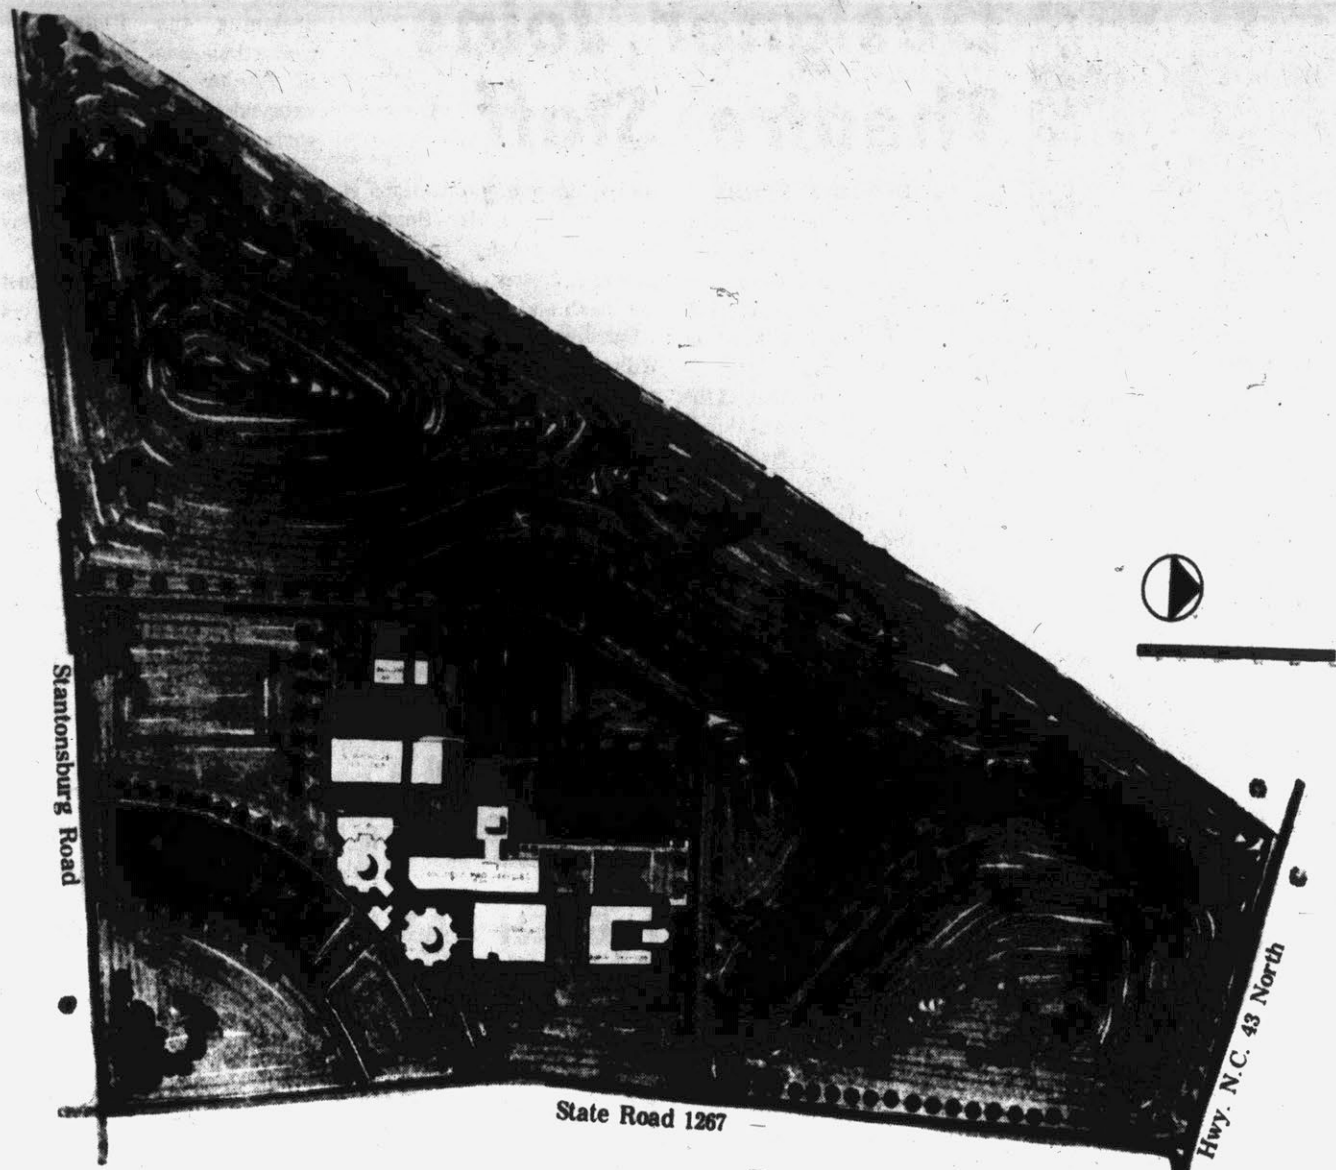

After work, most of our men keep on using their hands. Anthony Clark calls on the same craftsmanship mixing grain as he does tying fishing flies.

Over the years, craftsmanship like this has made Old Crow America's best-tasting Bourbon.

SITE PLAN . . . This drawing shows where the hospital will be placed on the 100-acre site already chosen. There appears to be almost unlimited room for expansion and also for leaving trees intact.

Connected Building Plan By Hospital Architects

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Function, expandability, and suitability to the site and to the needs of Pitt Countians seem to be being built into plans for the new Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Preliminary plans were shown to Hospital Board members, County Commissioners, and some staff members Tuesday night by architects of Freeman White Associates of Charlotte.

The idea of making the hospital several connected buildings has not been tried in Eastern North Carolina before. "We just want to give you the most we can for your taxpayers' money," Beverly White told the group. "If we build the traditional high-rise hospital with nursing floors on an ancillary base, we will have to sink thousands of dollars into the ground in the form of pilings to make the building structurally safe. Also, we will have to use much more expensive material above ground to make it safe from wind damage since you are in the hurricane belt."

The initial buildings (See ground floor plan.) will be seven in number. There will be two nursing towers to house all patients except those receiving intensive nursing care, who will be in the same building with the surgical suites. Physical therapy, radiology, and the laboratory will be in another building located between the surgical building and the emergency and outpatient care areas. There will be a separate administrative and conference building, and also a separate supportive service (storage, pharmacy, etc.) building and a boiler and maintenance building.

A long enclosed corridor will connect all the buildings, and underneath the hall will be pipes and other mechanical systems easily accessible for repair, new installation, etc.

Architect Tom Bennett showed how each of the buildings can be added onto in one or more directions. He also showed how other buildings can be added onto the spine (connecting corridor) for such auxiliary services as mental health, extended care, rehabilitation, and the like.

The first phase of the hospital would be set in the southeastern corner of the 100-acre site located directly across from the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Home. (See site plan.) Visitor parking would be in front of the hospital and visitors would be controlled in a lobby at the front. There would be entrances to the lot from both the Stantonsburg Road and the State Road that runs between the Stantonsburg Road the Highway 43 North. A perimeter road around the back of the hospital would have outlets on both these roads also. From this perimeter road, one could enter any of five designated parking lots — employee, service, emergency, outpatients, doctors, and administration. Each is near the associated building. Only emergency vehicles would be allowed in the emergency lot to enter the emergency area. Outpatients would use another lot and another entrance.

The nursing buildings are cog-shaped. Each floor would have a nurses' station in the center with halls radiating like eight spokes. On each hall would be six rooms each with a window and a toilet of its own. The two end rooms on each hall would be somewhat larger and would have private showers. These would probably demand a higher rate, and in emergency situations two beds could be put into them.

Small rooms near the station could be used for support facilities like showers, tub rooms, linen storage, treatment rooms, etc. Adjacent to the first floor of one of the towers would be a one-story labor and delivery area. The nursery would be housed in the part of the cog connected to this area and Ob-Gyn patients would use the rest of the floor.

The patients on the outer rim of the cog—the end rooms—would not be over 40 feet from the nursing station.

"This is the greatest improvement over conventional hospital layout," Freeman said, "something our firm has been trying to work out for about four years."

He explained that federal regulations require that no patient be over 125 feet from a nursing station, so even most new hospitals have some patients' room this far away.

Miss Owens, director of nursing at Pitt Memorial, called the nursing area plan, "the prettiest thing I've ever seen."

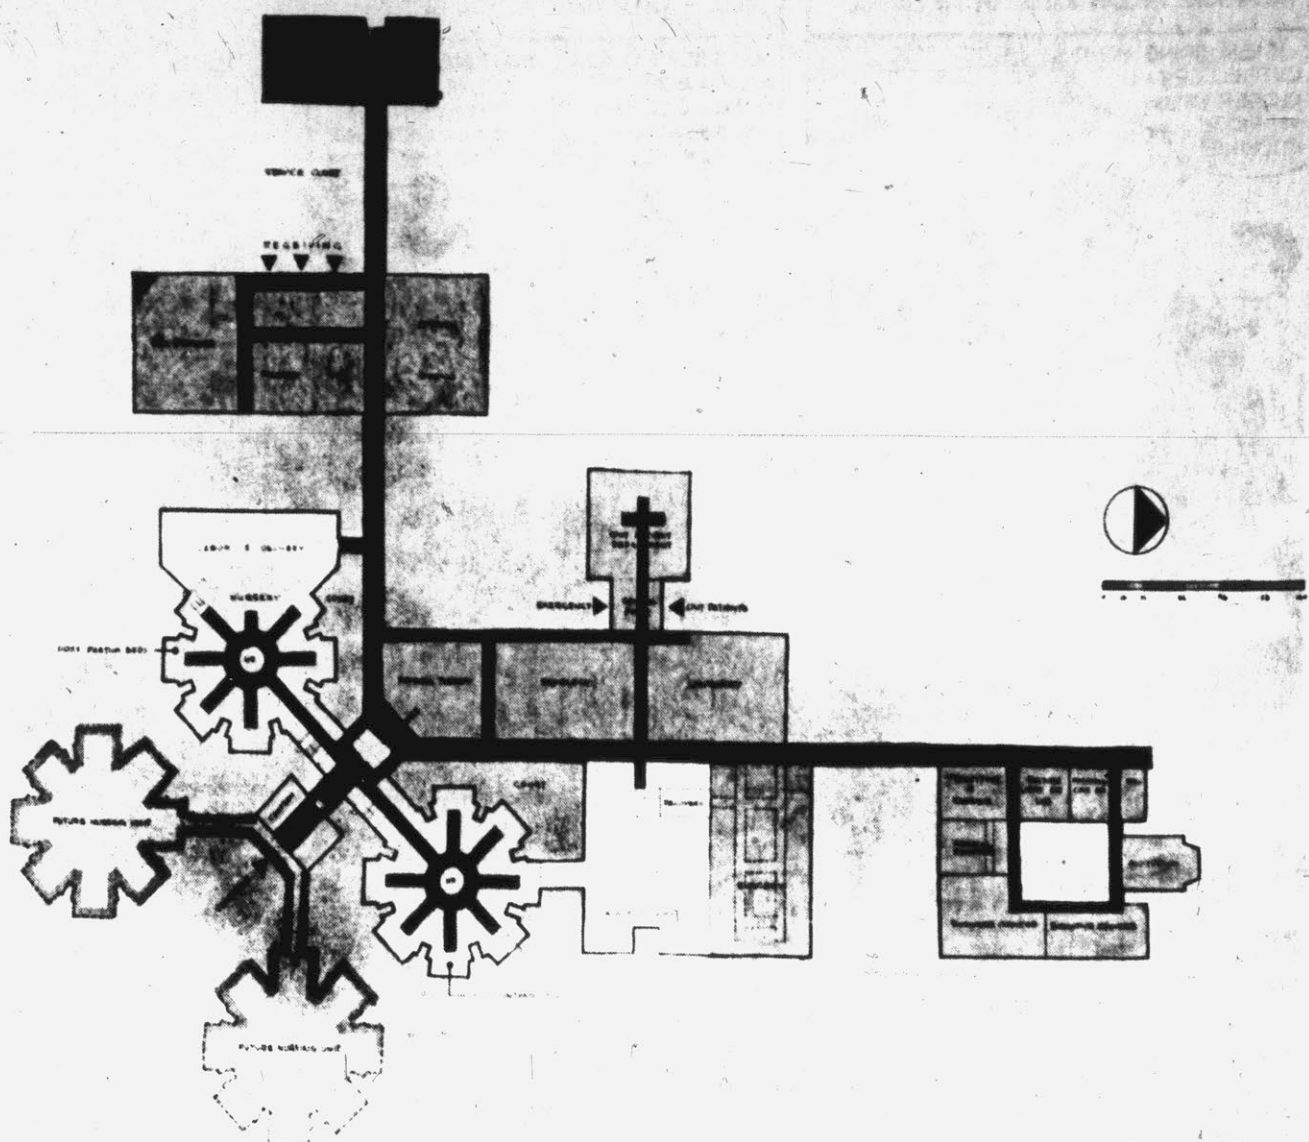

"Having a nursing station so centrally located and near all rooms is a nurse's dream come true," she said.

A single elevator shaft at the back of the lobby area will house passenger elevators in front and service elevators behind. Whenever more bed space is needed, identical nursing towers can be built out in front of the others.

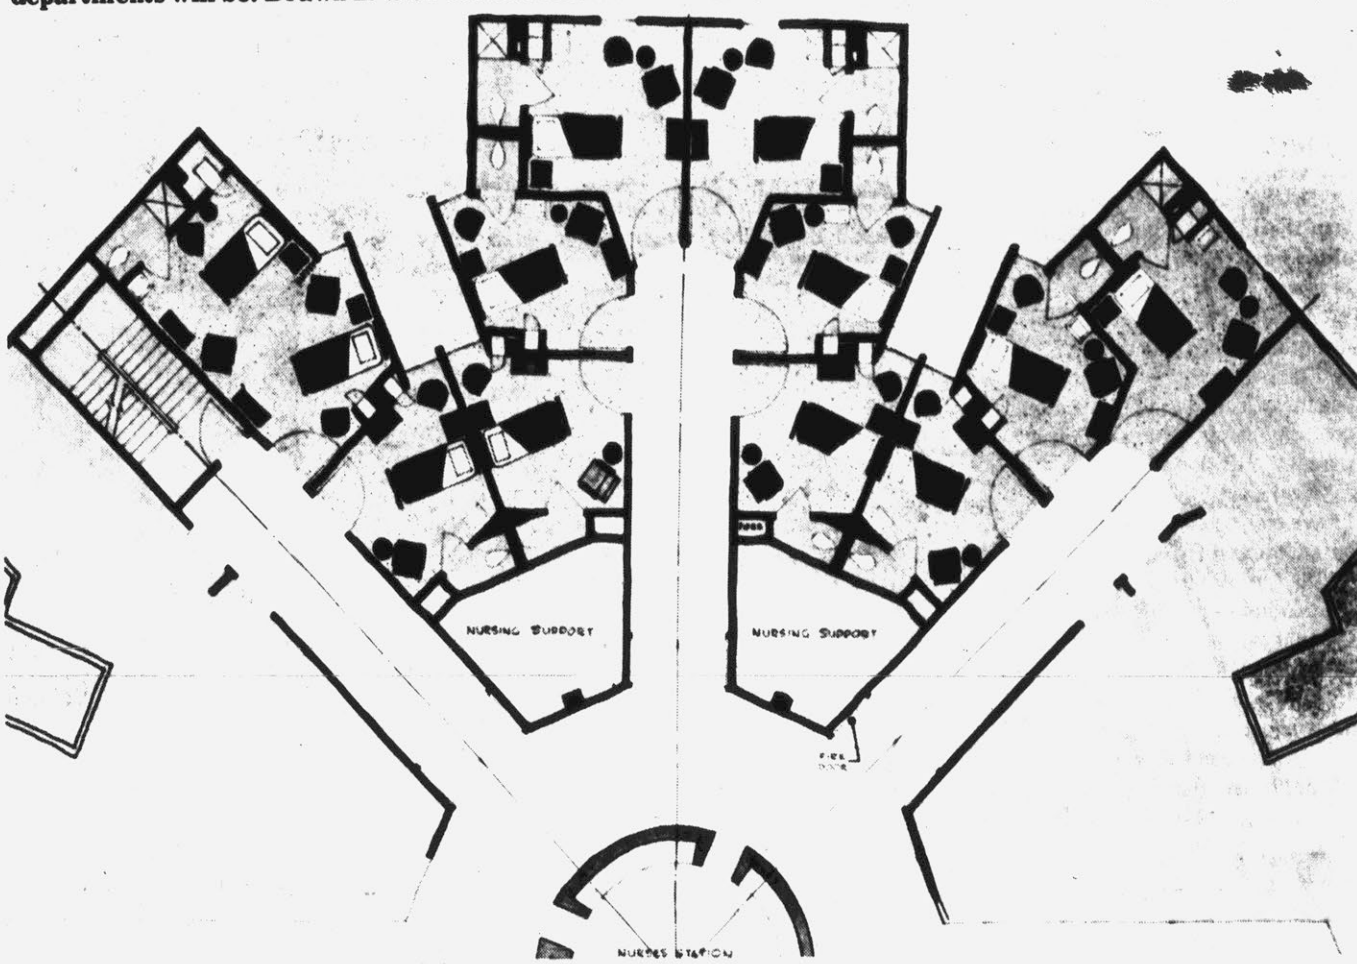

Adding on along the spine, rather than going upward, is bound to lessen the comparative cost of expansion, Freeman said, and would also cause less upsetting of the hospital routine while the construction is being done.

He also said he believes that the schedule for building the new hospital can be speeded up somewhat once the construction starts. Several crews could be working at time rather than having to build one floor at a time one on top of another. It could mean actually moving into the hospital several months earlier than has been anticipated, he intimated.

Freeman said that the plans for the hospital, especially the brand new cog-shaped nursing tower idea, have been studied both by the N.C. Medical Care Commission and the Department of Insurance and that comments have been quite favorable.

He added, "We've had some of the best input from staff, administration, and trustees here that we have ever received while planning a medical complex. With your help we believe we're planning a great hospital that will serve the needs of Pitt County for many years. We don't mind saying we're really excited about all the revolutionary ideas we're incorporating in the new Pitt Memorial Hospital. Even though we have built much more expensive ones, we think this is going to be one of our best ever."

Foster-Child Delusion Is Old

Judy indicates a widespread but secret weapon which children employ to strike back at what they consider to be parent-child maladjustment. This is a variation of the "generation gap." So bring it out into the open by dinner table discussion. Or make it a classroom project in high school.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

Case Q-581: Judy V., aged 20, is a college senior.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I was the middle child, with an older and also a younger brother.

"And I am a brunette, while my brothers are blond.

"During my childhood, I began to feel that they always got an unfair share of my parents' attention.

"Ever since I was 12 years old I have also believed that I must be an adopted child.

"Oh, I never mentioned this to my parents, but to this day I still feel that I am not their flesh-and-blood daughter.

"Do you think I should quiz them about this?"

Adoption Fantasy
This belief that one is an is an indirect anti-establishment mechanism.

It is a means of striking back at one's parents and secretly putting them in their place.

Whether a girl like Judy believes her brothers get more than their proper share of parental attention, or even as an "only" child without any siblings she thinks she is unloved and mistreated, such a girl can easily fabricate an imaginary story to flatter her own vanity and also secretly punish her parents.

So she will conjure up the belief that she has been adopted and that her real parents may be members of European nobility. "Why, my parents could be a adopted child, is very common.

In fact, we psychologists call it the "foster child fantasy."

Many cultured women, now grown and mothers of youngsters of their own, still confess that they retain the secret belief that they were adopted.

Yet they, like Judy, have merely been a victim of their own imagination.

For this "foster child fantasy"

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ♠. Shortightedness on the part of East, induced by a failure to take an inventory of his opponent's tricks, led to a profit for South, the declarer, at four hearts.

West opened the six of clubs, the eight was played from dummy and East covered with the nine, dislodging declarer's king. A small diamond was led at trick two by South. West followed with the five and East went in with the queen. With the vague notion of cutting down North's ruffing powers, East shifted to the ace and a small heart.

Dummy won the second trump with the jack and a diamond was led to the ace. A third diamond was ruffed with the queen of hearts. The ace of spades was cashed, followed by a spade ruff. South drew West's remaining trump, cashed two club tricks and eventually conceded a diamond to the opposition.

In all, South took one spade, four hearts, the ace of diamonds and a diamond ruff and three clubs to score up 10 tricks on the deal.

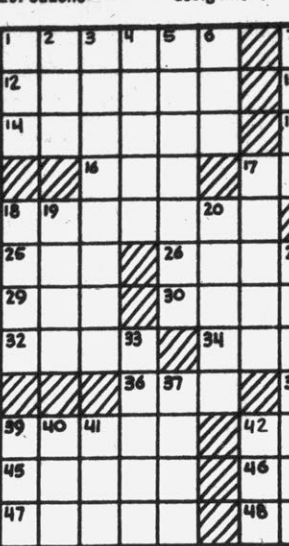

East was in position to defeat the contract when he was in with the queen of diamonds, by returning a club to give his partner a ruff. He later regains the lead with the ace of hearts and a third round of clubs enables West to score the setting trick with the eight of hearts.

An analysis of the situation should make it clear to East that South is in position to take 10 tricks once he regains the initiative and that the only legitimate hope for scoring an upset is to find West with a singleton club.

If, as appears likely from the bidding, South has a five card heart suit, then East can count four heart tricks, one spade and three clubs for his opponent. The play of a small diamond away from the closed hand has all the earmarks of a lead away from the ace, and since South obviously cannot be deprived of obtaining one diamond ruff—then 10 tricks are clearly there for the taking and the club continuation by East becomes a clear-cut choice.

In this manner, children who feel deflated in their ego, will then try to bolster their own pride and meanwhile get even with their parents for being punished or deprived of luxury items which such children desire.

Many of my coed students at Northwestern University have confessed to having been victims of this "foster child fantasy."

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

Designer Joins Theatre Staff

By MICHAEL C. HARDY
Robert T. Williams recently completed his contract with New Jersey's Papermill Playhouse in time to join the production staff of the East Carolina Summer Theatre.

Williams, a full-member of the United Scenic Designers' Union, has worked in the New York area for nearly 20 years prior to his arrival in Greenville.

His numerous productions have included The Glass Menagerie with Maureen Stapleton and George Grizzard, Camelot, The Price, and Charley's Aunt with Louis Nye.

He has designed productions at many of the major Broadway theatres, among them the Brooks-Atkinson, the Belasco, the Booth and the Cort.

For the last eight years, Williams has been designer-in-residence at the Papermill Playhouse, one of the most successful regional professional theatres in the country.

Last semester he joined the staff of the drama department at East Carolina University where he designed Exit The King, Tango, and Little Murders.

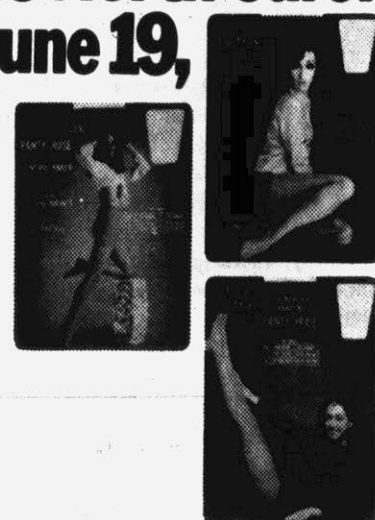

ROBERT WILLIAMS

During this time he was still designing the Papermill's productions, and frequently had to fly to New Jersey on weekends. At the close of the spring quarter Williams returned, for the last time, to the Papermill Playhouse where he completed his contract by designing Hello, Dolly!

Now at work on the East Carolina Summer Theatre's productions, Williams has completed designs for Oliver and Mame which, he says, are two extremely complex shows. He is currently turning out dozens of sketches for the other summer shows (Girl Crazy, The Red Mill, and Gypsy) and working in close conference with director Edgar R. Loessin and choreographer Mavis Ray.

Space For More Picnic Areas Is Now Available

Park planning in Greenville is receiving a good deal of attention these days. Boyd Lee, director of the Greenville Recreation Department, in speaking about current plans, said "picnic shelters are one of our foremost concerns at this time."

Lee explained that with the acquisition of additional land at the Hardee site in eastern Greenville and the larger Evans tract off Hooker Road in the western part of town, the city now had ample space to create adequate picnic areas.

"We're hopeful," he said, "that civic clubs and organizations will take a hand in helping to provide some of the shelters we need."

He pointed to a shelter recently completed at Elm Street Park. "This we call the Optimist Shelter," he explained, "Members of the Optimist Club furnished the materials and did all the work in constructing it."

The shelter, a sturdy affair with heavy wooden columns, has a wide overhang roof and a concrete floor. Underneath are five picnic tables, which will easily seat eight persons—and more if children are included. "This means this shelter will take care of about 40 people," Lee observed.

He mentioned that one thing in favor of the two new sites is that "any construction, or improvement will be matched Church.

The march began at the Grifton Free Will Baptist Church, continued through Grifton, Ayden and was climaxed with a youth rally at the Liberty Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden.

The purpose of the march, a spokesman said, was to demonstrate the young people's faith in Jesus Christ. The group collected 8-10 bags of litter along the highway during the morning.

Mother of the bride

In a few minutes she will be walking down the aisle. Bruce will be at the altar to meet her, and when they walk out of the church, they will be man and wife.

Even though we have been planning the wedding for weeks, it is hard to believe the time is really here. It seems like only yesterday — though actually it was twenty years ago—that our little girl was christened right in this same church.

What an all-important part of our lives this church has been! I have turned to it both in times of joy and times of sorrow. So has our daughter.

Now, as I slip into my place in the first pew on the left side of the aisle, it is with the wonderful feeling that this church is a part of her, too, and that its teachings will stay with her forever. I could not ask for more.

Thurmond Is Running For Fourth Term

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — No body is saying Strom Thurmond's 30 years of public life is in danger of ending next year, but the Southern Republican leader is off and running early in his bid for a fourth Senate term, with lots of moral support from the White House.

And the 68-year-old South Carolinian, who said last summer President Nixon was then a political liability in his state, clearly buried any remaining "hatches under praise for the chief executive."

Thurmond Thursday kicked off his formal fund-raising effort for next year's campaign against a still-unknown opponent with a $100-a-person cocktail party which brought between $10,000 and $20,000 into his coffers.

"We'll be ready for whoever runs," Thurmond said. "We don't know who it will be yet, but we will be ready for him."

Former Gov. Robert E. McNair and 10-term Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn are the leading Democratic possibilities in what most South Carolina political observers say could be Thurmond's toughest Senate race yet.

Thurmond, one-time Democrat who has served as educator, attorney, judge, legislator, governor and senator, has never had a close Senate race including his 1954 write-in victory over Edgar A. Brown.

But some Thurmond detractors, encouraged by what they see as voter moderation on race and social issues and a large black population, say the relatively liberal McNair could give Thurmond his toughest race yet. Others feel, however, that McNair lacks Thurmond's charisma and voter identification.

McNair, 27, says he will make up his mind sometime this year.

Dorn, 55, says he thinks he can beat Thurmond, but added "I have a lot in the House to give up and funding would be a problem. I would be very handicapped on the money business."

Thurmond doesn't intend to get in the same bind.

The cocktail party fund-raiser for the nondrinking Thurmond will be followed in the near future by a similar function in South Carolina, an aide said.

Held Up Again, One Week Later

NEW YORK (AP) — A Queens bank held up exactly one week earlier and robbed of $30,000 was hit again Thursday by three gunmen.

This time an estimated $15,000 was taken, according to officials of the Reliance Federal Savings and Loan Association in Flushing.

Seven employees and six customers were in the bank when the three gunmen entered and emptied tellers' cash drawers, police reported. No injuries occurred.

A week earlier, two men, one with a shotgun, lined up five customers and seven employees, then fled in a car driven by a third man.

SMU Loosens Ban On Alcohol

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Southern Methodist University loosened a 56-year ban on alcohol and adopted a policy to allow students over 21 to drink on campus. The ruling does not affect the 82 per cent of SMU's students who are under 21.

"I wish it were possible to isolate youth from the harmful effects of alcohol, but realism forces me to acknowledge this cannot be done any more than we can replace the parents in countless homes where alcoholic beverage is consumed," said SMU's president Dr. Willis Tate.

Would Subsidize Ghetto Medics

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — A bill aimed at training ghetto residents to become physicians and dentists who will return to their neighborhoods to practice is under consideration in the Michigan Legislature.

Sponsors of the measure said tuition grants of $75 monthly would be paid to anyone who agrees to work in ghetto areas for five years after graduation. The proposal stipulates the student could not have support of more than $1,000 annually from sources other than the state to qualify for the state money.

Beauty Pageant Nearing Finale

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Being one of the 63 girls in the Miss North Carolina Pageant is like suddenly having 62 sisters.

Miss Eden, Pam Powell, an 18-year-old Appalachian State University student, had not received any flowers during the first days of the week-long competition. Then she found a bouquet for her at the contestants' "host room" at their motel.

It was from Miss Brunswick County, Teresa Ann McLamb. Pam said, "That's the way this pageant is. It's not so much putting on a display or being a beauty queen, as much as a chance to meet other girls and make friends."

Marilyn Gail Flack, Miss Fayetteville, observed: "The competition is so large that there's no time for pettiness or jealousy."

Miss Havelock, Regina Ann Jackson, added: "I'd hate to have to pick Miss Congeniality — everyone's so sweet." Regina Ann said that during talent rehearsals the girls would tell each other if their routine seemed to be going wrong.

"We all want everybody to win," she said.

The new Miss North Carolina will be crowned Saturday night, after one more round of preliminary judging.

Thursday's winners in swimsuit and talent judging were Miss Watauga and Miss Rocky Mount. They join four other girls as likely finalists.

Miss Watauga, Debbie Payne, is a Gastonia resident who is a student at Appalachian State University. The 20-year-old measures 34-22-34, stands 5-foot-

3 and weighs 105 pounds.

Miss Rocky Mount, Sherry Frances Brabham, 19, did a dramatic reading from the Bible and accompanied it with the sign language used by the deaf. The UNC-Greensboro student interprets for the deaf at her Rocky Mount church.

There have been no double winners so far. Earlier winners in talent were Miss Stanly County, Carolyn Lowder; and Miss Winston-Salem, Carol Lee Hegecock. Swimsuit winners have been Miss Ahoskie, Lula Doris Smith; and Miss Garner, Patsy Gail Wood.

School Bonds?

RALEIGH (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee has for consideration in the near future a bill calling for a statewide vote on the issuance of $200 million in bonds to help local governments build needed school buildings.

The measure, which has the backing of State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips, was debated on the floor of the House briefly Wednesday before being sent to the committee.

Rep. Jim Beatty, D-Mecklenburg, sponsor of the measure, told the House that the construction needs of the schools are critical.

Big Power Plant Idled

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP) — Eight days after Carolina Power and Light Company dedicated its new $80 million nuclear generating plant near Hartsville, S. C., the 700-megawatt unit fizzled out.

The company confirmed at its Raleigh headquarters that it had had to shut the plant down on May 28 when vibrations developed in one of the 90-ton low-pressure turbines.

An investigation showed that one of the 920 16-inch steel turbine blades had broken, throwing the finely-tuned turbine rotor out of balance. Later, hairline cracks were found in several more blades, requiring replacement and a complete check of all other blades.

Company spokesmen said the new plant is expected to be back in service by mid-July. No power shortages are expected because the company had a reserve capacity in its fossil-fired plants, the spokesman said.

Local Student Is Harvard Grad

Approximately 4,000 students received academic degrees at the commencement of Harvard University held Thursday, June 17.

Hugh Morton Possible Entry

DURHAM (AP) — Hugh Morton, a political novice but a man known throughout North Carolina says he is traveling through the state to see how much support he would have in the 1972 race for governor.

Morton, a 50-year-old resident of Wilmington and Linville, near Grandfather Mountain, said Thursday he expects to decide in two months whether to enter the Democratic primary.

He was at Durham to undergo an annual physical examination at Duke University.

Morton said, "I hope it would be a more interesting race than it would be without me, but I'm not going to get into it unless I have a good chance to win."

If Morton decided to make the race, he could be in a five-way battle. Lt. Gov. H. Pat Taylor of Wadesboro and state Sen. Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles of Greensboro are believed to have committed themselves but have not made public statements.

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan and East Carolina University president Dr. Leo Jenkins are also sounding out their chances.

Morton is best known for his tourist attraction of Grandfather Mountain and its mile-high swinging bridge. He has promoted liquor by the drink and led the successful campaign to get the battleship North Carolina berthed at Wilmington.

He is also a professional photographer whose pictures have appeared throughout the state and in national publications.

Morton said he would campaign to keep the state from being split along geographic lines on the issues of education, politics and economics. He added that he feels he could bridge the divisions between east and west because he has homes in both areas and his wife is a native of Greensboro.

El Paso, Tex., was named for the Spanish for The Pass because of the pass through the mountains at the border site.
