

Plans Unveiled At Hearing

New Business Developments Surfacing

By JERRY RAYNOR

The first firm public indications of three possible new business developments for Greenville—a covered mall shopping center opposite Pitt Plaza; a new trailer park near Pitt Technical Institute; and a combination art galleries-coffee-tea center on Fifth Street west—surfaced at the consecutively held meetings of the joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission followed by the City Planning and Zoning Commission on Wednesday night at City Hall.

Marvin K. Blount, Sr., in a request for rezoning of a tract of land across Greenville Boulevard from Pitt Plaza, presented tentative details of a plan which he remarked "might in the future cover a one hundred acre shopping center."

Blount's request for rezoning to Shopping Center (CS) was recommended for approval by the joint board. Specifically, the property is bounded on the east by East Carolina University land and Stratford Arms apartments; on the north by Green Mill Run; on the northwest by MacMillan, Carroll and others; and on the southwest by land known as the Mayo property; plus a small one-half acre tract on the west side of Evans Street.

One portion of the property, that adjoining U.S. 264 by-pass (Greenville Boulevard) is already zoned Shopping Center.

"Greenville is making many strides," Blount commented in speaking of plans for the area. "The latest, the newest and safest thing is the mall type shopping center, with some outside commercial buildings." Blount named the mall in Burlington as the type of construction he had in mind.

He said that this property, together with that of Carroll and Associates which joins the Blount family property, could eventually become a 100 acre shopping complex. He remarked "There are many things in the making for Greenville. Whether I'm going ahead of our times I don't know." When questioned on the matter of roads, Blount told the Planning and Zoning Commissioners, "we're going to plan roads with your help, your plans and your approval."

Blount envisages this shopping center plan as one that will take some time yet to materialize.

Nearer downtown, recommendation for approval by the City Planning and Zoning Board members was given for Jay Steinberg, a faculty member at East Carolina University and the owner-operator of an eating establishment in Greenville, for the rezoning from R-6 residential to Office and Institutional for the L. S. Ficklen property on West Fifth Street.

The zoning request includes all the area encompassed west of the railroad track, east of Elizabeth Street, and between Fourth and Fifth Street.

Steinberg's plan, revealed by attorney Fred Mattox, is for a combination group of individual shops on the ground floor of the large green house facing West Fifth Street. Included would be areas for the sale of art works and crafts made by university student and faculty members, a tea shop, a coffee shop, and perhaps a gift shop and antique shop.

The joint board also recommended for approval to the establishment of a 112 unit mobile home park on the W. S. Moyer property on N.C. 11 across the highway from Pitt Technical Institute. This mobile home park would be behind the 400 foot frontage on the highway, as the property adjacent to the highway is being reserved for highway commercial usage.

Unchanged By Joint Appropriations Committee

Record State Budget To Floors Of House, Senate

By REESE HART

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly's Joint Appropriations Committee today approved a record state budget of more than $4.3 billion for the next biennium and sent it to the floor of the House and Senate. The action came in a 40-minute meeting at which two unsuccessful efforts were made to amend the big appropriations bill.

The legislation was to be placed on the House and Senate calendar as a special order of business Friday. Conceivably, it could be passed by both houses Friday and enacted into law.

The bill calls for a 10 per cent pay raise for teachers and state employees during the next two fiscal years as recommended by Gov. Bob Scott and the Advisory Budget Commission. In all, the committee approved appropriations totaling $14.3 million above the amount recommended by the budget commission.

The amendment was on a contingency basis, with the money to be paid if state revenues during the second year of the biennium exceeded $36.3 million. However, the committee beat this down.

It also rejected an amendment by Rep. Marvin Johnson, D-Johnston, calling for an unlimited amount of days for Medicaid inpatient hospital costs per spell of illness. The bill proposes a limit of 10 days.

Under the appropriations measure, the state will pay 90 per cent of the Medicaid program and the counties 10 per cent during the next biennium. This calls for total state appropriations of $52.8 million compared to about $22 million for the present biennium. The Medicaid cost to the counties during the two fiscal years would be $5.4 million.

Approval of the money bill culminated months of work by various appropriations subcommittees. The full committee includes 96 of the 170 legislators. The bill includes $1.4 million for a first-year medical school at East Carolina University and $350,000 for a health library.

It appropriates $12.3 million to provide $10 per month hospital insurance for all state employees and teachers the second year of the biennium and another $3.7 million for $3 per month disability insurance in the second year. During its long work, the Joint Appropriations Subcommittee deleted more than $50 million from the proposed budget. It knocked out $6.7 million for a state office building.

One of the big capital improvement projects approved was $4.6 million for an elementary school at the proposed Central School for the Deaf in BYPASS ROUTE . . . The drawing above, prepared by the State Highway Commission, shows the route the eastern bypass around Greenville will follow when complete. The left origin marks the intersection of U. S. 264 Bypass and U. S. 264 Business and the right project terminus is at the intersection of N. C. 11 and U. S. 13.

Eastern Bypass Project Bid Is Approved Today By Highway Commission

Area highway commissioner W. Arthur Tripp of Greenville announced that the low bid for the eastern bypass project here was approved this morning at the Highway Commission meeting in Raleigh.

The bid, submitted by Barnhill Contracting Co. of Tarboro, was received by the commission Tuesday during bid openings and scheduled for review today during the regular business session.

A Highway Commission spokesman noted this morning that the project contract would be signed and sent to Barnhill Construction officials for their signature. He pointed out that the project would be available to the contractor for a possible beginning of construction Aug. 2.

Plans call for the project to begin at the intersection of U. S. 264 Bypass and U. S. 264 Business and proceed northeasterly in a five-lane section to the Tar River where a new bridge will be constructed. After crossing the bridge, the bypass will divide into two 24-foot roads separated by a 44-foot median. The project will terminate at the intersection of N. C. 11 and U. S. 13 in the vicinity of Burroughs Wellcome Co.

Barnhill Contracting submitted a bid of $3,103,323.33 for the project, over $300,000 less than the next bid of $3,410,686.03, offered by Barrus Construction of Kinston.

REVERSAL

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott appeared to be headed for another legislative defeat as a Senate committee legislation Wednesday to prohibit the state from acquiring Bald Head Island by condemnation.

Bulletin

RALEIGH (AP) — A House committee today approved by 96 a statewide, local option liquor-by-the-drink bill after rejecting arguments that it was too late in the session to handle the issue.

The House Alcoholic Beverage Control Committee approved the measure, sponsored by Rep. Clifton (Ted) Hunt, R-Guilford, after defeating a substitute motion that the bill lie upon the table. The vote on this was 10-5.

Rehabilitation Center Money Not Included

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Hope is not lost for the funding of a regional rehabilitation center proposed for Greenville, according to Rep. Horton Rountree.

This and other proposed vocational rehabilitation centers were not included in the joint appropriations subcommittee budget reported Tuesday. A special bill for the purpose is in subcommittee now, and should go to the floor to be acted upon before the expected adjournment a few days from now, he said.

Rep. Rountree's statement was a relief to Pitt County and those who have worked to have Greenville recommended as a site for the Eastern North Carolina Center.

"I am optimistic," Dr. Sheldon Downes, coordinator of site choice committee, said. "We have had encouragement all along from all agencies and persons connected with the effort and I believe the legislature will be sympathetic to our cause if the money is available."

Washington Post over articles based on classified Pentagon Papers.

As a Los Angeles federal grand jury began an investigation into how the top secret Pentagon study of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war was leaked, three other news organizations today printed articles they said were based at least in part on the 47-volume report.

An appeals court in Washington ruled Wednesday the Post could resume publication of its suspended series after 6 p.m. Friday. A similar court in New York said the Times could also resume but could not use any material the government contended was dangerous to national security pending a lower court review of those documents.

The Justice Department, which has sought injunctions against the Times, Post and The Boston Globe on the ground that publication of the papers threatened national security, said it would appeal the Washington ruling to the Supreme Court. The Times said it would appeal the New York ruling.

President Nixon said Wednesday that he would make available to Congress the complete 7,000-page study but that the document would remain top secret pending a review of that classification by the executive branch.

Meanwhile, Knight Newspapers Inc., which publishes 11 newspapers, and the Los Angeles Times today printed articles they said were based on the documents. The Chicago Sun-Times also ran stories it said were drawn from the secret study and from "government documents."

In Los Angeles, a U.S. District Court granted immunity to two persons subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury probing what a Justice Department spokesman called possible violations of national security laws.

One of the two granted immunity was Anthony J. Russo, 34, a former employe of the Rand Corp., a Defense Department "think-tank." His lawyer said he wanted to challenge the federal immunity statute and Russo did not testify Wednesday.

A one-time Rand and Defense Department employe, Daniel Ellsberg, has been named by a former New York Times newspaper as the source that gave the Pentagon study to that newspaper.

Ellsberg, in a CBS television interview with Walter Cronkite

'Immigration'

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — More than three times as many out-of-state students come to North Carolina colleges to study as North Carolina youths who leave to study in other states.

This was reported today by Thomas E. Stearns of the Carolina Population Center at Chapel Hill.

Major Constitutional Issue Secrecy Battle To High Court

Wednesday, did not comment on that charge. But he said the notion that the study was leaked to embarrass former President Lyndon B. Johnson "will be quickly allayed" when the full document is made public.

The full study reveals a "sameness of policy throughout four administrations," he said. "The real lessons really come from seeing the whole sweep of the history. There has never been any year when there would have been a war in Indochina without American money fueling it."

The Chicago Sun-Times said in today's editions that documents in the study revealed that a key plotter in the coup that ousted South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963 formed the U.S. embassy 26 days prior to the coup that assassination of Diem was one of three courses being contemplated.

Spotlight On City Chickens

THE ROOSTER . . . along with other feathered creatures, will be the subject of a Special Call meeting of the Greenville City Council. (Reflector Photo)

Tonight's the night when the noble king of the barnyard and all his feathered tribe and kin will be spotlighted in Greenville by official sanction of the city government.

It was at the regular June meeting on June 3 that a proclamation went forth, that on the night of Thursday, June 24, at 8:00 p.m., in the Council Chambers of the Greenville Municipal Building, a Special Call meeting would be conducted for a public hearing and inquiry into the fowl status within the city limits of Greenville.

In what is perhaps a precedent shattering honor for the species noted for their ability to crow, cackle, cluck and lay eggs, their future will be decided in an amendment to the City Ordinance which the mayor and city councilmen will consider in order to establish a criteria to determine their population, the purposes for which they may be maintained, and the sanitary conditions and appearances to which their respective abodes will be subjected.

"Four — no more" was one phrase coined as a suggested limiting factor applicable to each family wishing to maintain feathered creatures within the city. The amendment presented at the June 3 City Council meeting failed to gain necessary support for passage, resulting in the scheduling of the Special Call public hearing meeting tonight. City officials have declined to state whether the presence of fowl at the meeting will be permitted. It is thought, however, that because of possible distractions, the presence of human advocates or opponents for fowl would be the more desirable approach.

Fear 17 Lost

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At least one worker was killed and 16 others were missing 178 feet underground today when a pre-dawn explosion tore through an underground water tunnel being built northwest of here.

Fire Capt. Roy Walters said "we're not all optimistic" about finding survivors in the 18-foot-wide tunnel, hit Wednesday by a smaller blast that caused minor injuries to four workers.

Walters said the tunnel was filled with debris and thick, rolling smoke and that the tunnel's fresh-air ventilation system to the area where the men had been working was destroyed by the blast.

Walters said it isn't known yet what caused the blast. Other officials said it could have been caused by methane gas ignited by a spark from workmen's equipment.

The first rescue team of city firemen equipped with oxygen breathing equipment said they found the body of one man about 800 feet from the work area, near the end of the five-mile-long tunnel.

No trace of the other 16 workers was found, the rescuers said. The tunnel, which is earthwalled and shored with wooden beams, is being built in suburban Sylmar 30 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles as part of a system for carrying water from Northern California to the Los Angeles area.

Continuing Efforts For New ECU Art Building

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins expressed pleasure today at the appropriations recommended for ECU, but he noted that efforts are continuing to gain approval for a new art building.

"On the whole I am very pleased with the treatment afforded East Carolina University by the recommendations of the joint appropriations subcommittee," he said. "I have had an opportunity to discuss our problems with practically every member and I have found them without exception very sympathetic to what we are trying to do here."

"I regret that the art building was not funded, but even here many members pledged their support to this request and stated they knew its urgency and would do all they could to find sufficient funds for it. The problem was simply one of not having available funds. As you know, however, a special bill for this project has been introduced by Pitt County representatives in both Houses of the legislature. We are going to do all we can to try to get this bill passed. A second alternative in trying to rescue the art building is a proposed bond issue that may be introduced by a legislator very friendly to ECU from the Piedmont area. This proposed bond issue will have the art building spelled out as one of the items.

"We are gratified that money has been allocated to begin our much needed medical program. We, of course, expect to make every effort to expand this as time goes on.

"I am very pleased that the legislature saw fit to take the steps required to equalize the student-faculty ratio in all state supported institutions.

This will begin in the second year of the biennium. It is very gratifying to know that as a result of action taken by this legislature and the 1969 legislature we shall very soon be in the middle of a capital improvements program here of almost $9 million, which is indeed a giant step forward for our university.

"I am satisfied that we can enhance our future growth greatly by showing our appreciation to members of the legislature during any personal contacts we may have with them."

The subcommittee made its report Tuesday afternoon and the budget was approved by the full joint appropriations committee today. It now goes to the floor of the House and Senate.

Recommendations for ECU included a library addition, renovation of the Wahl-Coates building for speech and performing arts, air conditioning of three dormitories and other capital improvement items. Also included was $1.4 million for beginning the one year medical program and $350,000 for building a medical library.

Miss Dana Ann Duke Weds Lady Mayor Will Devote A Lot Of Time To City In Ceremony On Friday

FARMVILLE — Miss Dana Ann Duke and Ralph Danny Langston were united in marriage of Friday at 8:30 p.m. in a ceremony performed at the home of the bride's parents.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Marion D. Lark, minister of the First Baptist Church here.

Gordon E. Lee of Farmville played traditional wedding music. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilton Russell Duke of Farmville, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white and blue strip silk organza gown embellished with white and blue lily-of-the-valley styled with a high neckline and long bishop sleeves. The neckline, waist and deep hemline were enhanced with Venice lace beading, laced with blue velvet ribbon. She used a matching lace headpiece attached to a bouffant elbow length illusion veil. The bride carried a wedding bouquet of summer flowers in shades of blue, pink and white. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Lillian Langston of Farmville and the late Mr. Henry Langston.

Mrs. Mester W. Moye of Farmville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Suzanne Moye of Farmville, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

The attendants were attired in identical full length gowns of imported imperial dotted swiss of a blue background with white. The gowns were princess style with long full cuffed sleeves, fastened with self-covered bottoms. The waist and deep hemline were enhanced with imported insertion of blue lace and ribbon with neckline and cuffs bordered with blue lace. They wore matching blue bows of ribbon as headresses an carried nosegays of mixed summer flowers with blue ribbon and tulle.

Henry Langston of Walston, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Wilton Fussell Duke Jr., brother of the bride, and Moses Williams Moye, brother-in-law of the bride, both of Farmville.

Moses Moye Jr. of Farmville nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

After a wedding trip to Western North Carolina, the couple will reside in Farmville.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville High School and Bauder College, Atlanta, Ga. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville High School and served in the U.S. Armed Forces. He is presently engaged in farming.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held honoring the Langston-Duke wedding party.

After the bride and bridegroom had cut the traditional first slice of wedding cake, Mrs. Lillian Langston served guests. Punch was poured by Mrs. Guy Jones Jr. of Walstonburg, sister of the bridegroom.

HUBBARD, Tex. (UPI)—Lady mayors are not that common in small Texas farm communities, much less a mayor in hot pants who commutes to Europe and Mexico.

But Mrs. Berta Leon, 39, says she doesn't plan to give up her short skirts, hot pants or travel for the new position.

"I'm not known for standing back on anything," she said. The folks in Hubbard believe her. Usually just 60 or so of the 1,800 residents turn out for city elections. But this spring, 289 voted for the tiny blonde with the big green eyes.

"Actually it was a quiet campaign," she said, "although there are always a few old gentlemen around who don't like women with power. I think most of the men were pleased, though."

Mrs. Leon said she finally decided to run on the last day for filing applications after two months of encouragement by townspeople.

Own a Victorian Home "My husband and I have been very active in restoring old town buildings and promoting a new hospital and the people recognized our interest," she said.

Her husband, J. S. Leon, is a native of Spain, owns an engineering firm based in New York City and Mexico City. Mrs. Leon usually accompanies him on business trips.

"We love Hubbard and call it home because we could never leave our house—it's a two-story Victorian frame house that dates back to 1896 and has been designated an architectural landmark.

"We've put a lot of work and love into restoring it," she said. The Leons also restored an old hardware building, making a western-style salon restaurant and modernized another building into a beauty shop and barber shop.

Town's New Hospital "Like many small towns, Hubbard has not been going forward or standing still; it's been going backwards," Mrs. Leon said. "We felt so many improvements were needed."

Thanks to the Leons and other civic leaders Hubbard also now has a new hospital "that's small with 32 beds, but it's got the latest equipment."

Mrs. Leon, who has a business administration degree from the University of Houston, position will interfere with her wifely duties.

"We don't have any children so I will have a lot of time to devote to the city," she explained.

Mrs. Leon said she thought there will be a trend toward women mayors because they have more time to devote to civic affairs.

"I think more women should get interested in politics because they have more time than businessmen and they don't have to worry about hurting their business by bringing up new ideas," she said.

Woman Vet Says Her Field Is A Good One

By CINDY POND Journal-Gazette Writer FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — Soothing an ailing animal, setting a painful broken leg and supplying a sick pet with life-giving medicine are what it's all about for Dr. Nancy Noak, one of only two female veterinarians practicing in Fort Wayne.

"I think the main thing is the satisfaction in helping somebody that has a problem, and, too, fixing something that comes back to normal is a deep satisfaction," the petite strawberry blonde noted. "When you can give somebody back a healthy dog ...

"There are times when I feel a great deal of empathy for them, like if a cute little puppy comes in, and he's really sick," Dr. Noak went on. "This kind of gets to you. It kind of pulls at your heart strings."

The young Purdue University graduate remarked about her chosen profession, "It's a lot of hours and sometimes the work is hard, but it's a good field for a girl to go into. It's really not as hard as it used to be. With specializing you can take just one field and work with that."

Why do so few women choose to go into veterinary medicine? "It's because of the hours you have to put in," the doctor explained. "They get kind of long, and six years is a long time to go to school. The studies, the long hours and hard work keep them out of the field."

Discrimination from male doctors, she feels, depends on how well a woman is able to get along with her associates. "You have to show them you can do the work. You just have to pitch in."

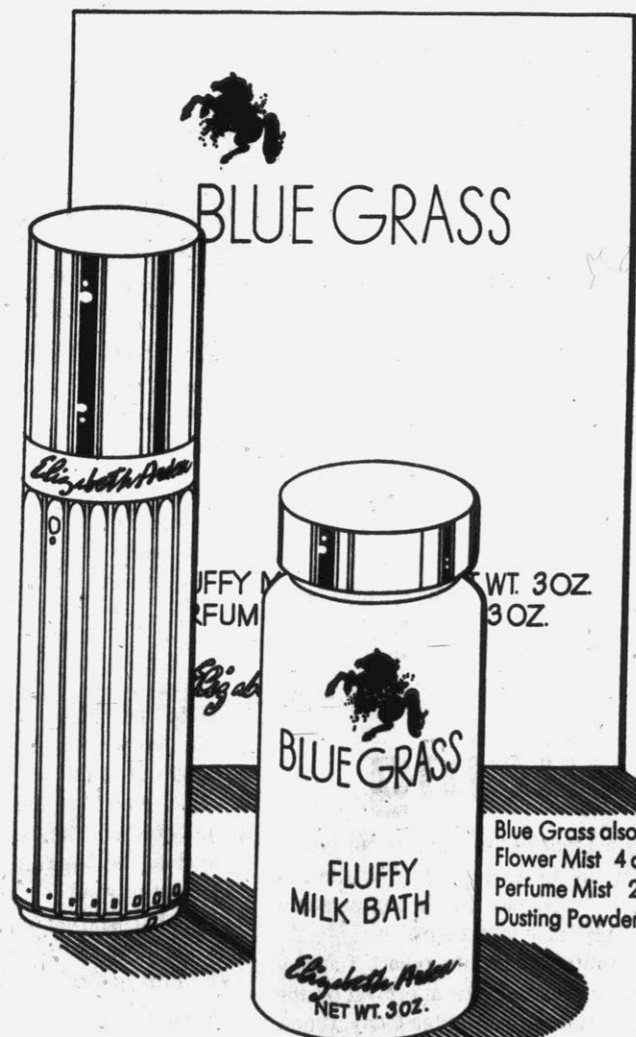

A native of Chicago, Dr. Noak decided at an early age veterinary medicine would be her career. "That's the one thing I had always wanted to do," she remembered. "In grammar school I was one of the fortunate few who knew what they wanted to do."

Hubby Has A Germ Phobia

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: You don't have to tell me I have a crazy husband, I already know that. What I need is some advice on what to do about it. This man absolutely refuses to eat ANYWHERE except at home, and I mean anywhere, including the lovely homes of his relatives and mine. [The only exception was his mother's home, but she is dead now.]

His excuse is that he doesn't know how clean their dishes and silverware are, and he isn't sure of the cleanliness of their pots, pans and kitchens. Now, wouldn't that startle you? I have tried to tell him that I have to assume that most people are as clean about their kitchens and utensils as I am, but he doesn't even hear me. A restaurant? Forget it!

Naturally, we can't go on out-of-town trips and our social engagements are limited, too, but that's the way it has to be.

In case you think my husband is a lame-brain, he owns his own business and last year his income was in six figures. He drives a Cadillac, wears tailor-made suits and carries his lunch. Figure that out! Can you help me? EATING IN

DEAR EATING IN: Your husband has a "phobia" about germs. It won't kill him, but it's unfair to his family. He could possibly get over it with the help of a good psychiatrist, but if he's too selfish to seek help, I see an eternal triangle in your future—your kitchen, your husband and you!

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a schoolteacher, and as such she gets three months' vacation during the summer. I have only one month vacation. She told me that she has decided to take our daughter to France for two and a half months. She says she needs the rest and the separation after eight years of marriage would be "good" for us.

Altho I do love her, I am prepared to offer her a divorce based on this solitary flight.

What is your opinion?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: It seems to me that you would be giving her an "ultimatum" rather than "offering" her a divorce. Loving her as you do, I would advise against such an "offer." [She may take you up on it.] Perhaps the separation would be good for both of you. Let her go with your blessings and find out.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the husband who sees nothing wrong with leaving 4- and 5-year-old children alone in the house "for a few minutes":

In the state of California, children who are left alone in a house or an automobile are considered "neglected," and as such they are taken to Juvenile Hall. Their parents must then go to court to prove that they are fit parents. If they are not "fit" parents, their children are then placed in foster homes, for which the parents must pay.

AN AUTHORITY IN REDLANDS

DEAR AUTHORITY: There are similar laws in other states. A word to the wise. [And to the foolish, as well.]

DEAR ABBY: Referring to your reply to "TOO SENSITIVE" in which you said it is intended as a compliment, not a put down, when asked, "How come a nice girl like you isn't married?" I think any question along this line is rude and nobody's business. The questioner deserves to be squelched, and my stock reply is, "I didn't have to."

Very truly yours,

Grandmom Becomes Best-Selling Author

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

Ruth Freeman Solomon, who became a best-selling author after she became a grandmother, says she spent a good portion of her life "trying very hard not to write."

Four years ago at the age of 59, the tiny, energetic Mrs. Solomon made her literary debut with "The Candlesticks and the Cross." Her second book, titled "The Eagle and the Dove," has just been published and is rapidly climbing the best-seller charts.

With a little chuckle, she explained that she had "a very well motivated rationalization" for not writing during a good portion of her life. "I kept telling myself my sons needed every bit of mothering I could give them."

Underneath it all, though, she said: "I think I was so in awe of writing and writers I was afraid — afraid of failure."

"Like when reviews come. I've been so lucky. But when I open those letters I literally shake ... I guess nobody likes to have daggers stuck in them," she said.

After years of writing little stories for her friends and relatives, Mrs. Solomon said she was forced to become a real author by a friend in publishing who had listened to one of her stories.

"He told me to write it down and he came to the house every day until he had me hooked. I got so involved in the story, I couldn't put it down," she said.

The result was "The Candlesticks and the Cross," a big romantic novel of Jewish and Slavic life in czarist Russia. "The Eagle and the Dove" has many of the same characters and though published later actually takes place during an earlier period.

Mrs. Solomon was born in Kiev and fled to this country with her family when she was four years old. The characters in her books are based in part on her own family.

She was invited to visit Russia in 1969 along with a group of local women leaders by the Soviet Women's Committee. Not long ago, three Russian women visiting San Francisco were her houseguests.

"The Soviet women don't talk women's lib, they live it," she said. "My generation of women rebuilt the country, their men had all been killed. They are pretty powerful people. One generation ago they were peasant class and illiterate," she said.

Nonetheless, Mrs. Solomon said: "It seemed to me there is still a caste system in Soviet Russia. Once it was birth and money. Now it is the doers and power."

As a Jewess, she said she is aware of Soviet oppression of the Jews. But she said she believes the oppression extends to all those "who want independence of thought, independence of religion and an identity."

"The Jews have an Israel and other people don't. I think that's why we hear more about it," she said.

An excellent cook who likes to see people eat, Mrs. Solomon said she really doesn't mind being called a "Jewish mother."

She spoke with pride about her husband, a professor of psychiatry at the University of California Medical School, and her two sons, one an associate professor of psychiatry at Stanford University Medical Center and the other an architect.

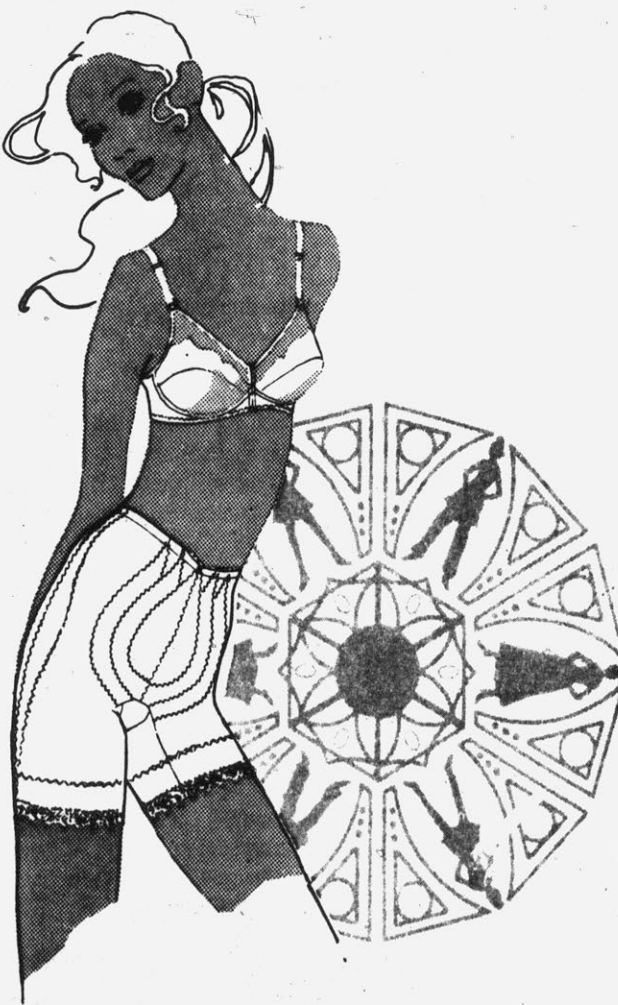

Right now, she said, negotiations are under way for the sale of the movie rights to her books. She said she was still too wrapped up in "The Eagle and the Dove" to continue work on a contemporary novel she started some time ago.

"Once I write," she explained, "I leave the world. I'm not with it. And when I go out I have to tell myself to stop and look at the light before crossing the street. I'm with those pages — those people."

Most Desegregation In South

It comes as no surprise that Mississippi schools are more integrated than those of California, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. It is well known that the schools system of the south have been integrating rapidly in recent years, while segregation has been growing steadily worse in schools outside the south.

Granted southern integration has come either directly or under the threat of court actions, the fact remains that southern schools are where integration is taking place.

Government statistics show that the South's schools jumped from 18 per cent to 39 per cent desegregation of elementary and secondary schools between 1968 and 1970.

Outside the south only western schools became more integrated. Many eastern and midwestern units actually lost ground including: New York City, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Columbus, O., Indianapolis and Boston.

Sooner or later the courts or Congress or both must bring themselves to deal with this hypocrisy. It makes no sense that northern schools should continue to be segregated because of the weak argument that they are based on housing patterns. Nor is the argument valid that integrating northern schools would be an impossible task and too disruptive. Blacks and whites in the south have already shown that it can be done, even in the largest cities.

Northern type segregation is something which cannot be ignored forever. The laws which are bringing about full integration of the schools in the South should be applied throughout the nation—not to make southerners feel better about it, but because the law should always be applied equally and impartially.

Secrets Obviously Are Available To Anyone

As the courts steadily widen the number of newspapers restrained from publishing the Pentagon Vietnam studies it becomes even more obvious how futile these procedures are.

The only reason for stamping any papers as secret should be to keep the information out of the hands of enemies. It is logical to assume now that any foreign power which wants the papers should have been able to obtain a copy, considering how freely they are being passed about.

Thus the papers are only being kept from the American public. The quicker the courts free The New York Times and other newspapers from these restraining orders the better off our democracy will be.

Politics Adds A Fresh Look

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH — Suddenly, with the same quickness that a summer storm appears over Grandfather Mountain, the 1972 Democratic gubernatorial primary has a new look and a dash of excitement.

Things had been pretty well set. Everyone knew Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor and State Sen. Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles were running. The guessing game continues about Attorney General Robert Morgan, but the feeling here is that Morgan is going to shoot for the U. S. Senate. And there are a couple of other candidates who might make the big race — namely, East Carolina University President Leo Jenkins and State Rep. Perry Martin of Northampton.

But veteran politicians, people like Secretary of State Thad Eure, kept warning that the cast wasn't complete. They said someone else would emerge.

Now here comes Hugh Morton... the man who owns Grandfather Mountain, the man who is a native of Wilmington, the man who is a close personal friend of former Governors Luther Hodges and Terry Sanford, the man who has plenty of money in his own right.

Maybe Morton isn't the "someone else" that politicians have been expecting into the race. Maybe he'll even decide after his whirlwind tour of the State that he won't be a candidate. But if he does run, it's going to shake up the china cabinet and Tar Heel voters will be in for an exciting campaign next May.

Consider a few things. Lt. Gov. Taylor, at this stage, has strong strength in Western North Carolina. He's worked hard lining up that support and he has friends in the mountain country who have indicated they'll go along with his candidacy.

Morton owns Grandfather Mountain and he's cultivated friendships in the West for many years. He will now set out to see if he can shake loose some of the Taylor support and win it for himself. Whether he can do it or not will be one of the vital areas that will determine if he runs.

Bowles is reportedly pleased with the supporters he is picking up in Eastern North Carolina. And of course, there likely will be an Easterner in the race, either Morgan, Jenkins or Martin. But Morton hopes he has a foothold in the East, too. His hometown is Wilmington and that will help him.

Bowles and Taylor appear to be strong in the Piedmont. Bowles lives in Greensboro and he has always led the ticket in Guilford County. Taylor ran exceptionally well in the Piedmont in 1968.

Morton has been taking an eagle-eye look at that situation. Last week he spent his time talking to political experts in Greensboro, Winston-Salem, and Durham. This week the journey continues, with a scheduled stop in Charlotte.

It's too early to tell whether Morton will be successful in shaking loose some of the support that has been pledged to Taylor and Bowles. This is what his trip is all about.

But it is known that Morton — to this point, at last — is encouraged by what he has heard. It's probably safe to say that Morton also has the political bug and the only way to cure it is to run for public office.

Strength For Today

LET IT HAVE SWAY
Many people have the idea that religion is purely a matter of humane service. Their gospel is summed up on the commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" (Matthew 19:19). This idea of the nature of religion is not wrong but is inadequate. We are to love God with all our heart, soul, strength and mind — and our neighbor as ourself. Religion requires us to have some definite conviction about a Spiritual Being Who made all things and rules over all — Who did these things and continues to do them.

There are many fine people outside the Church. But it must be said of those within the Church that they are laying their minds and lives open to truths of such tremendous importance that we can only partly understand them. What is God like? We can only partly understand the teachings of the Bible and of human philosophy about the nature of Him Who created the world and keeps it going every minute of its existence.

If we lay our lives open to God, strive to do the best we can by ourselves and others, then we are on a fair road toward understanding what religion is all about.

Religion is a matter of joy, of hope and trust, of service to a needy world and the uncounted millions who live therein.

Religion does something of indescribable grandeur to our lives if we allow it to do so. By Earl L. Douglass

FILLING THE DEEP FREEZE!

By J.J. KILPATRICK

A Conflict Of Ethics

In its unauthorized publication of the Pentagon Papers, the New York Times has asked that its conduct be judged in three areas — in law, in ethics, and in morals. It is no easy matter.

The law is unaccountably fuzzy. The documents in question were stamped "top secret-sensitive," pursuant to Executive Order 10501. Such a classification is explicitly reserved for those documents whose publication "could result in exceptionally grave damage to the nation." The test to be applied, according to a California case, is whether the classifying authority acted arbitrarily or capriciously. An obvious line of defense emerges.

Assuming for the moment that the documents were validly classified, with all the rubber stamps in proper order, the Times may have violated Title 18, Section 793(e) of the U.S. Code. This is a felony statute, punishable by up to ten years in prison. It makes it a crime for any person "willfully to communicate or transmit" any document relating to the national defense, but only if the person having unauthorized possession of the information "has reason to believe it could be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of any foreign nation." Another line of defense takes shape.

The questions of law — putative motions, pleadings, briefs, the infinite legalisms — are in a large sense irrelevant. From the moment these purloined copies first were put in the hands of the New York Times, the newspaper was dealing in material that presumptively it had no lawful right to possess. The government shared this presumption. The Times, in the short and ugly phrase, was trafficking in stolen goods.

From an ethical standpoint, it is immaterial whether the goods were stolen as a matter of law. The Times is much more than a great newspaper. It is an institution of power, trust, and integrity. In the immediate case, it symbolized the press as a whole. Ethical institutions, we may suppose, will not profit from the proceeds of theft.

But the questions of ethics are far more complex. The press has an abiding, inescapable duty to inform the people of the acts of their government. The Pentagon Papers provided a record of some of the most important and controversial acts of government in this century. In this situation, finding itself in possession of the documents, the Times looked to the higher ethic: It is perhaps the only newspaper in America capable of giving blanket, verbatim coverage of such a story. The paper's decision to publish, as an ethical decision, was entirely proper.

Morality is something else, and here one encounters nuances with nice overtones of irony. The Times believed it was breaking a Federal law, or that it might be breaking a Federal law, and the Times went ahead anyhow. It felt other things were more important.

Very well, but many of us who have lived in the South in recent years have a vivid recollection of the moralistic lectures so often delivered by the New York Times on the matter of obedience to law. The South may not like the Civil Rights Act of 1964, we were told, but this was an act

Other Editors Say Killing The Goose

(Henderson Dispatch)

States which are competing with each other, actually even if unwillingly, in seeing how high they can raise cigarette excise taxes, may be killing the goose that lays the golden egg. Certainly they are aiming a hard blow at North Carolina, which produces more flue-cured tobacco for cigarettes and manufactures more of the smokes than any State.

Across the country as a whole, the record of current excise levies is ridiculous and disheartening. A smoker has got to be quite an addict to face the levy in New York City, for example. If present plans for the State and the metropolitan area are enacted, as seems certain, the tax in the big city alone will be 29 cents per pack. The actual price of the pack is in addition to that and not far from an aggregate of fifty cents.

Texas on July 1 will raise its levy three cents to 18½ cents for the highest in the nation. But that "distinction" will be short-lived. Florida is expected to raise its tax to nineteen cents, and in California and Connecticut they are planning to hike the excise to twenty cents. And so the story goes.

If cigarette taxes are to some extent taxes off the market in those States, a decline in revenue is most likely. Should it happen, it will serve the States right. Tax-eaters are grasping at every straw in search for more ways to dig into the pockets of citizens. They are not concerned as to how hard the blow is on the public so long as they can exact the toll.

If the cigarette trend continues to increase, it will eventually reflect in the income for producers and manufacturers in North Carolina.

It has been said the taxes are a far greater impediment to the tobacco industry than the health-smoking campaign, and it may well be so.

In whatever direction one may turn the trend of government is toward higher taxes and increased spending for things it is claimed the public is demanding. At least some of that demand is trumped up by politicians in offering something for nothing to the public, when as a matter of fact there is no such thing. The people in the end foot the bill, and will continue to do so until they rise up and shout that enough is enough. That time may not be too far off.

The Finger Points At Congress

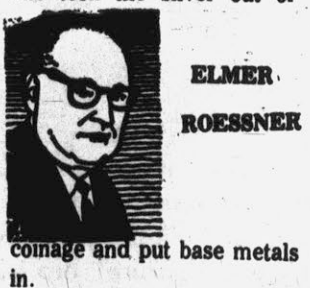

By ELMER ROESSNER

A bill expected to be passed by Congress will escalate Social Security benefits in years to come. Example, a man now 50 with a high salary could, with his wife, get $650 a month on retirement. Example: A man now 35 earning more than $10,000 could on retirement draw, with his wife, $10,000 a year. Even a man who retires at 65 today, if fully covered, could with his wife draw $320 a month.

COMMENT: This points up the fact that it is Congress — not the Presidents nor the labor unions — who are responsible for inflation in America.

It was Congress who went along with President Roosevelt II and took the nation off the gold standard. It was Congress who gave the Federal Reserve Board the power to inflate the currency. It is Congress who has consistently spent more than revenues, and authorized the Treasury to borrow and borrow, thereby inflating the currency. It was Congress who took the silver out of

ELMER ROESSNER

It was Congress who has generously increased government salaries (and Congressmen's). It was Congress who increased the costs of all government services. It was Congress who authorized the reorganization of the post office making way for higher postage rates. It is Congress who is about to increase the minimum wage, thereby nudging all wages up.

It is Congress who has spent and spent public monies for federal buildings, roads to nowhere and federal establishments in prevailing congressional districts.

It is Congress who has done nothing to half inflation.

New Seat Belt Rules Go In Effect July 1
A week from today, all new interstate, buses, trucks and truck tractors must have seat belts for drivers and co-drivers. Furthermore, they must wear them, the Department of Transportation has ruled. A year later, all older buses, trucks and tractors must be equipped with belts.

COMMENT: This is fine for drivers, but bus-passengers are expendable.

There is doubt that the DOT could force local buses to have seat belts for passengers because its

Life's Little Quirks

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:
There is no real reason why we should always try to rid ourselves of unreasonable prejudices. Being ornery and contrary now and then is part of human nature and helps keep us human. For example, I have spent all my life on the lam from lamb. I know it is unreasonable to flee lamb when so many people agree it is tender, tasty and nutritious, but any occasion on which I can evade eating lamb is a moral victory. To me lamb is still a mouthful of wool, fit only for women and children too small to defend themselves.

I feel the same way about eggplant. Whenever I hear the word, I get a mental image of a green hen turning into a half-ripe tomato.

Some of the best customers of door-to-door salesmen are recently retired men. They are so grateful to have somebody to talk to beside their wives that they usually buy something after listening to the sales spiel.

Never lend money to a guy who half the time wears one of his socks inside out. You can't trust anyone who is that badly organized.

Unhappiness is what a wife feels when her husband feels happy, and she can't for the life of her figure out the reason why.

Speak kindly to your wife for the next couple of months, fellows, and bring her home a rosebud now and then. After that she won't mind so much reassuming the seasonal anonymity of being just one more of television's pro football widows.

It is time to go on a vacation if you find you are making more than one trip a day to the pencil sharpener simply because you can't think of any other way to act busy.

Dean I. O. Schaub, director of State College, spoke to approximately one hundred North Carolina farmers last night at the regular meeting of the Pitt County Board of Agriculture. At the end of his address he presented nine Pitt County growers with "A" certificates designating them as live-at-home farmers.

James T. Patterson and C. C. Hilton, delegates to the North Carolina Division of Traveling Men's Protective Association, have returned to Greenville after attending the national convention at San Francisco.

The hostess, assisted by her daughter, served a tempting two course luncheon.

TV Code To Consider Hemorrhoid Ads Today

The TV Code Board of the National Association of Broadcasters is scheduled to meet in Washington to consider hemorrhoid advertising on television.

COMMENT: The advertising may be approved. The board has been growing lax. Last year it approved female douches and sanitary napkins, and hemorrhoid advertising is accepted on many radio stations. However, the Code Board is not likely to approve hemorrhoid remedy demonstrations.

Questioning Army General Today In Medina Case

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — An Army general is among the final witnesses expected to testify today as the pretrial hearing of a motion to dismiss My Lai murder charges against Capt. Ernest Medina nears its end.

Maj. Gen. Bernard Rogers, a top liaison officer for the Secretary of the Army, will be questioned along with several other witnesses, about a sergeant's claim that he was threatened by superior officers unless he testified against Medina.

It is a curious moral code, one is bound to remark, that holds it wrong to leak classified data to Joe McCarthy, but a great public service to leak classified data to the New York Times. As in so many areas, it makes a difference whose Ochs is gored.

The government has blundered, it seems to me, in seeking an injunction to prevent further publication of the papers. The rule as to a free press is not to prevent its exercise, but to punish its abuse. Prior restraint on publication is intolerable; it cannot be condoned. The government's proper move, if it believed Section 793(e) had been violated, was to arrest the publishers and editors and to seek criminal indictments against them. Such an effort doubtless would fail — who would convict the Times of anything but dullness? — but if the government hopes to preserve its hold on classified documents, the gesture ought to be made.

fluence by high-ranking officers, after all the evidence is in.

If the motion is not granted, the defense has 17 other motions for dismissal, and arguments will begin on them.

The 34-year-old Medina, of Montrose, Colo., is charged with assaulting one villager and murdering 102 others during an assault on My Lai in March, 1968.

Medina's two Army attorneys testified Wednesday that 3rd Army staff judge advocate, Col. Wilson Freeman, warned them that seeking a dismissal by the military judge would be wasted effort.

Both Capt. Mark Kadish and Capt. John Truman said Freeman predicted that Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, the man who ordered Medina to trial, would simply overrule the judge, and order the court-martial to continue.

"Are you sure he said 'would' or 'could,'" Maj. William G. Eckhardt, the prosecutor, asked Kadish.

"It was a prediction to me," Kadish replied, during cross-examination.

Truman, a grandnephew of former President Harry S. Truman, corroborated Kadish's testimony. Both defense attorneys testified Freeman told them:

"If the judge ruled in favor of us on command influence, it would be overruled by the convening authority."

Connor, commanding general of the 3rd Army here, is the convening authority. Under the Army's Manual for Courts-Martial, the convening authority has the power to overrule the judge. Kadish said he and Truman met with Freeman last March 17 to question him about the defense motion of command influence. He said Freeman asked them what they thought "the defense could gain by raising training of this case."

He said they were told that if Medina was not brought to trial, "it might leave a cloud over his head," and added, "it might be best to go to trial so his name might be cleared."

Kadish also said Freeman told them, "we were wasting our time" by trying to get the charges dismissed.

The defense attorney also said Freeman said Brig. Gen. Harold E. Parker, assistant judge advocate general for military justice, had stated that "although the legal issues were ambiguous, it was his opinion that public opinion would preclude the prosecution of Medina if he testified at the Lt. William Calley trial."

In earlier testimony, it was brought out that Aubrey Daniel, who successfully prosecuted Calley for the massacre at My Lai, went to see Parker at the Pentagon for permission to call Medina.

Kadish said Freeman was "irritated" with Daniel. "He seemed to feel that Capt. Daniel had a complete disregard of people higher in line." Kadish added that Freeman "indicated that if Daniel were working for him, this situation would never have arisen."

Truman testified that Col. Wiley Oliver, deputy staff judge advocate of the 4th Army, came to question him "about my loyalty."

"I thought my first loyalty should be Medina," Truman said. "Freeman thought my first loyalty should be to the Army and to the staff judge advocate." There are about 350 species of woodpeckers.

Doctor Availability In N.C. Is Still Illusive Goal

By ROGER D. JOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

If you live in western North Carolina you stand a better chance of seeing a doctor when you need one than if you live in eastern North Carolina.

But regardless of where you live in North Carolina, you'd probably stand a better chance of getting a doctor than in at least 40 other states.

While the figures on doctor availability in North Carolina vary widely, depending on how the doctors are counted and on who is doing the counting, the ratio is around one doctor for every 1,000 persons.

That figure is arrived at by using the Board of Medical Examiners statistic of 5,111 licensed physicians in the state on Jan. 1, 1970, and the 1970 census figure of just over 5 million persons.

The ratio of doctors to residents of the nation is about one to 750.

Using 1968 figures for practicing physicians in the state, the doctor-population ratio in western North Carolina was about one to 1,100 and in the east it was about one to 1,700. The area with the best ratio was the central Piedmont with about one to 500.

Most health planners feel the ratios have improved since 1968.

The bare figures do no always reflect the true situation. According to the Regional Medical Program of North Carolina, in 1968 there were only two doctors in western Clay County and only one each in Perquimans, Hyde and Pamlico counties in the east.

Orange County, in the central Piedmont, had 214 doctors, about one for every 200 persons. But, according to the state Board of Medical Examiners, only 9 per cent were in private practice.

The others were associated with the University of North Carolina Medical School at Chapel Hill or were otherwise involved with hospitals and teaching.

The concern over the shortage of doctors in the Tar Heel state has led to some far reaching experiments and projects, many funded by the federal government. It also has led to a heated fight over whether and where a new medical school might be established.

The Governor's Advisory Council on Health Care hasn't taken a stand on the medical school question. But the governor and some other top state officials have — they want a new four-year medical school at East Carolina University, eventually.

One argument for the school at Greenville has been that it would entice more doctors into rural eastern North Carolina and improve the doctor-patient ratio.

Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees, told the state Board of Higher Education that just having a medical school in the planning stage has already attracted some doctors to the area.

He also said the Carnegie Commission report on Medical Education indicated the presence of the medical school would decrease the rate at which physicians leave the area.

Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, director of health affairs at ECU, says doctors now look for areas with convenient learning and refresher centers where they can stay abreast of the latest developments in medicine. He sees a new medical school, together with the present nursing and allied health schools at ECU, as the kind of bait needed to attract the necessary doctors to the east.

Medical professionals in the west are just as convinced that their area is where any new medical school should be located.

While the ECU officials consider Winston-Salem's Bowman Gray Medical School to be in the "west," the doctors in North Carolina's mountains consider it an "eastern" or at best a "Piedmont" school.

Dr. Kenneth E. Cosgrove, a practicing physician in Hendersonville and first vice president of the Medical Society of North Carolina, is adamant in his objection to an ECU medical school. He believes any new school should be at Asheville or Charlotte.

"It's a three-hour drive for us to reach the nearest medical school," he said. "I'd hate to see us start working out of Greenville, S.C., but that may happen."

They all agree there is a better doctor-patient ratio in the west, despite Asheville being 160 miles from the nearest medical school, while Greenville is only about 100 miles.

Monroe acknowledged that more doctors probably settle in the west because living conditions "are somewhat better there." However, he also says the presence of Bowman Gray at Winston-Salem and several large hospitals at Charlotte have helped make the area attractive.

As for Asheville, where the ratio is about one doctor for every 800 persons, Monroe says that city has long been recognized "as a good place to live and work."

Cosgrove also believes living conditions are better in the west, but he discounts the effects Bowman Gray and Charlotte have had on the area, since they are in the Piedmont.

Dr. Elmer Johnson, assistant state planning officer in charge of medical planning, said the west is economically better off than the east. He also noted that many areas of the west, such as Tryon, are considered resort and retirement areas and the presence of retired and semiretired doctors probably boosts the ratio.

The aim of most people involved in health planning in North Carolina is to reach the national ratio of one doctor for every 750 persons. And the fight to reach that ratio is taking more directions than the fight over a new medical school.

The state is supporting the effect through scholarships given by the Medical Care Commission. Johnson said several Negroes receive scholarships each year to study at Meharry Medical School in Nashville, Tenn. The scholarship students agree to return to North Carolina to work in rural areas after they receive their licenses.

The state's efforts to improve medical care also extends to the training of physicians' assistants to take some of the load off doctors.

The Regional Medical Program of North Carolina, a federally funded planning agency at Durham, is concentrating its programs heavily on manpower. Largest are the physicians' assistants programs at Duke and Bowman Gray. They are just getting off the ground, but already 41 have graduated from Duke and nine from Bowman Gray. Another 80 students now are enrolled.

Other projects under way are a medical library service at UNC, where doctors can telephone from anywhere in the state for information; a program underway at several locations to train nurses to handle diabetic cases; and a program at 21 hospitals in which hospital personnel throughout the state are trained to care for stroke victims.

Trucking Tax Cut Pushed

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation designed to reduce state taxes on trucking lines sailed through the House Wednesday and appeared headed for enactment by the Senate.

The measure would reduce taxes on trucks, now as much as $1,237, to a maximum of $750.

The sponsor, Rep. Marcus Short, D-Guilford, said the change could result in a loss of up to $3 million in state revenue but said any such loss would be made up by the number of trucks that would be returned from other states to North Carolina for licensing.

The Department of Motor Vehicles knows of at least 300 trucks that have been moved to neighboring states to escape the higher tax here, Short said.

The bill would establish a uniform tax rate per hundred pounds gross weight for the registration and licensing of all property-hauling vehicles, except farm vehicles.

The state now has four truck tax classes, based on ownership and use, rather than on weight: private haulers, contract carriers, common carriers (the so-called "trucks") and for-hire carriers. The private haulers pay the lower tax, the for-hire carriers the highest.

"The theory is that there should be no differential based on class," said Rep. David Bumgardner, D-Gaston. "A truck of a certain weight wears out the highways just as much as another, no matter who owns it."

The house adopted an amendment offered by Short to make it clear that farm vehicles would still be exempt.

Despite a new constitution and a parliament elected by popular vote in 1970, some Moroccans are seeking more voice in government.

Yablonski Murder Case Probe Far From 'Closed'

By LEE LINDER and GARY MIHOCES
Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Despite a guilty plea to murder charges and a detailed statement from a key defendant, authorities say their investigation into the 1969 slayings of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and his wife and daughter is far from closed.

"The FBI has been looking, is looking and will continue to look for where the money came from to finance these slayings," said Thomas Henderson, a U.S. Justice Department lawyer, after Claude E. Vealey entered his guilty plea Wednesday in Washington County Common Pleas Court.

In a 15-page, 3,500-word statement that was read after the plea, Vealey said he and two accomplices were paid a total of $5,200 by a man he knew only as "Tony" to execute the killings. Vealey indicated that he never saw "Tony," that the killings and payment were arranged by a go-between.

The two key questions remained after the statement: Tony's full identity and his motive for wanting Yablonski killed.

In Washington, a spokesman for the United Mine Workers said there was no connection between the Tony in Vealey's statement and UMW President W. A. "Tony" Boyle, who defeated Yablonski for the union presidency after a bitter campaign that ended three weeks before the Yablonski murders.

Neither Henderson, who was assigned to the case in early 1970, nor special state prosecutor Richard Sprague would comment when asked whether they knew Tony's full identity.

Sprague, however, said it was conceivable there would be more arrests. He called Vealey's plea and statement, delivered Wednesday but given to the FBI almost immediately after Vealey's arrest in January 1970 "just the first step up the ladder." "We have four others to prosecute," Sprague said, "and it could be more." Four persons besides Vealey are charged in the Yablonski slayings.

Some sources said authorities already had investigated three and perhaps more "Tonys," and that there was nothing in any of their backgrounds tying them to the case.

News of Vealey's plea and statement spread slowly through the rich soft coal fields of Appalachia.

In Charleston, W. Va., Dr. I. E. Buff, a physician who has campaigned for UMW reform and better mine safety and improved black lung benefits, said: "There is someone with a great deal of intelligence that masterminded the job. There is someone with a great deal of money that is also implicated. That's who we should get."

Yablonski's sons Kenneth and Joseph, both sat only a few feet from Vealey as his statement was read into the record by an FBI agent in the hushed Washington County courtroom.

Anguish gathered in the eyes of both as Vealey's words told of how he and his accomplices stalked Yablonski for months before the slayings, and of how they finally broke into his stately, flagstone home in nearby

Clarksville and pumped bullet after bullet into their victims from bedroom doorways. The bodies were found Dec. 31, 1969.

In other developments: —Security, though extremely tight during Vealey's courtroom appearance, decreased Wednesday night at the Washington County Jail, where Vealey was being held earlier in a specially constructed, closely guarded maximum security area.

That led to speculation that he might have been transferred to another penal institution, but local authorities declined to answer inquiries.

—Vealey's co-attorney, William C. Hart, said his client's guilty plea was designed to help him escape the electric chair.

—Elmer Brown, Yablonski's running mate in the latter's unsuccessful 1969 bid to unseat Boyle, said he believed there were more persons and more money involved in the slayings than Vealey indicated.

Vealey pleaded guilty to three counts of murder, one for each of the victims.

In return for the plea and his statement, federal and state officials agreed to drop several secondary charges against Vealey—among them counts of conspiracy, burglary, larceny, robbery and breaking and entering.

Under Pennsylvania law, another hearing will be held later to determine the degree of Vealey's guilt and his sentence. No date was set for that proceeding, and Sprague indicated it would be delayed until Vealey testified in the trials of the four others charged in the case.

If convicted of first-degree murder, Vealey could be sent to the electric chair or sentenced to life imprisonment. But if convicted of a lesser crime, the punishment would be left to the court—in this instance a special three-judge panel.

Vealey's co-defendants are Aubran W. "Buddy" Martin, 22, a laborer; Paul Gilly, 37, a former house painter; Gilly's wife, Annette, 20; and her father, Silous Huddleston, a 67-year-old retired coal miner. Huddleston is from LaFollette, Tenn., the others from Cleveland, Ohio.

City Counted Three Traffic Accidents

Three traffic collisions in Greenville yesterday resulted in an estimated $2,375 property damage to the vehicles involved.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:30 p.m. mishap at the intersection of First and Eastern Streets and involved cars driven by Patricia A. Cunningham, 20, of Brockville, N.Y. and Roy Anderson Davis Jr., 21, of Wilson.

Damage was set by officers at $400 to the Cunningham car and $800 to the Davis vehicle.

Davis was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

A 9:10 a.m. collision on Fifth Street, 50 feet west of the White Street intersection involved cars driven by James Milton Barrett, 50, of 520 Vance St. and Mack Gilbert Smith, 70, of 1801 East Fifth St.

Officers, who made no charges, estimated damage to the Barrett vehicle at $350 and set damage to the Smith car at $275.

No charges were made in a 10:44 a.m. collision on Washington Street, 80 feet North of the Fifth Street intersection.

That mishap involved vehicles driven by Wilson Deberry Alford, 43, of Rocky Mount and Elmer Ross Browning, 67, of Huntington, W. Va.

Damage was set at $150 to the Alford car and $400 to the Browning vehicle.

No injuries were reported in the series of mishaps.

Considering End Support For Hospital

MURFREESBORO, N.C. (AP) — The possibility that the Baptist State Convention might withdraw its financial support from Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem loomed today as the result of action taken by the General Board of the convention here Wednesday.

The board voted to recommend to the annual session of the state convention in November that a special 15-member committee be named to "study thoroughly the feasibility of a new plan of relationship between the Baptist Hospital and the Baptist State Convention."

At issue is the hospital's plans to phase out its school of nursing, putting dependence upon a proposed two-year nursing program to be offered by Forsyth Technical Institute and a possible four-year degree program at Wake Forest University.

The General Board contends that the phasing out of the nursing school "appears to be in violation of the hospital charter and the constitution of the Baptist State Convention."

In a hour-long discussion preceding the vote, it was pointed out that the hospital charter refers specifically to "training schools of nursing" and that the hospital will "confer degrees" to nurses. And the convention constitution says each agency and institution must have convention approval for change in policy.

Hospital vice-president Robert Walker of Winston-Salem told the 110-member board, which met at Chowan College here, that $1 million a year would be saved by phasing out the nursing and other paramedical schools. He said it costs $6.92 per day per patient to maintain the schools.

Saving the $1 million may be a factor in the hospital's being able to borrow $10 million to compete an expansion program, he said.

He also said that insurance companies were looking with disfavor on the cost of medical education being added to patients' bills, and that was another reason for closing the nursing school by 1974.

As to the replacement possibilities, Walker said the hospital would make its facilities available to Forsyth Technical Institute for a cooperative training program, if the county commissioners approve the program. A letter from Dr. James Ralph Scales, president of Wake Forest, said the four-year program would cost the university at least $250,000 and such funds were not available.

Dismay Among Ranks Of ARVN

FIGHTING ENEMY AND WEATHER — South Vietnamese infantrymen at Firebase Holcomb, overlooking the enemy's infiltration routes in the A Shau Valley, rebuilt inter-bunker trenches caved-in by heavy rains. (AP Wirephoto)

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Pvt. Nguyen Huu Dinh predicts defeat for the South Vietnamese army as he scavenges discarded ammunition at a U.S. Marine garbage dump near Marble Mountain.

"When the Americans leave, the Communists will take over," he mutters. "We cannot stop them. Why are the Americans leaving?"

Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai also has qualms as he surveys enemy infiltration routes in the mist-shrouded A Shau Valley from a hilltop called Firebase Holcomb.

"I need more B52 strikes, more helicopter support, more artillery, more people," he complains. "Yet you Americans want to take your GIs home."

Privates and generals alike feel uneasy in the 1st Military Region, the five northern provinces colloquially known as Eye—for the Roman I—Corps. No one likes sitting on a powder keg the size of Maryland.

Accelerated U.S. troop withdrawals, upcoming government elections, the end of the monsoon and 207 miles of common border with North Vietnam and enemy-controlled southern Laos made Eye Corps the likeliest target of a dry season offensive.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, the corps commander, feels the crunch will come in July and August. His generals and their U.S. advisers all agree on what to expect:

—Major battles involving thousands of troops in the mountainous border regions near Laos, with heavy enemy pressure on the first line of defense, a string of South Vietnamese artillery bases guarding traditional infiltration routes.

—Stepped-up shelling of cities and towns in the coastal lowlands, with sporadic forays by enemy units no larger than company size.

—Continuation of rocket attacks on Da Nang, which has been hit eight times since April 26.

—Shellings and harassing attacks against firebases along the demilitarized zone, but no large incursions across the buffer strip dividing North and South Vietnam.

—Increased terrorism and Viet Cong political activity in the villages to prevent people from voting in the lower house election Aug. 29 and the presidential election Oct. 3.

Lam is convinced the Laotian invasion which he commanded earlier this year, known as Lam Son 719, so disrupted North Vietnamese supply lines that the enemy will be able to conduct only big-unit actions in the unpopulated border regions.

His American military advisers generally agree.

Intelligence officers say enemy strength in Eye Corps is at a peak of about 45,000 combat troops, consisting of 30,000 North Vietnamese regulars and about 15,000 in Viet Cong units.

Local guerrillas and Viet Cong political cadres add another 20,000 to 35,000 to this total.

In addition, says Lam, Hanoi has two to three reserve divisions just across the DMZ, a fourth combat division in Laos, and about 30,000 "transportation troops" along the Ho Chi Minh trail.

To counter this, Eye Corps has about 290,000 allied troops—50,000 South Vietnamese regulars, 5,000 South Korean marines, 85,000 U.S. support troops and a home guard of 150,000 regional force, popular force and people's self-defense force irregulars. The brunt of any fighting will be borne by the South Vietnamese regulars, with U.S. air and artillery support.

The enemy already has begun maneuvering and muscle flexing.

Firebase Fuller, four miles south of the DMZ, has been the hardest-pressed, enduring as many as 500 incoming mortar rounds a day, coupled with periodic ground attacks.

Camp Carroll, a regimental headquarters six miles south of Fuller, also has been hit by shelling and attacks, and sharp ground fighting has swirled around Firebase Sarge, a few miles southwest of Carroll.

South Vietnamese troops are conducting two major operations in Eye Corps to relieve some of the pressure on their firebases. The 1st Division claims killing more than 1,000 enemy in a followup to the Laotian incursion, on this side of the border, while the 2nd Division claims to have captured 91 tons of rice and other foodstuffs.

More than 32,000 American troops have departed I Corps since the beginning of this year, including 24,000 U.S. Marines. Another 10,000 will leave within 60 days, when the 11th Infantry Brigade of the American Division pulls out and the 1st Brigade of the 5th Mechanized Infantry Division turns over the last American-manned firebases on the DMZ to the South Vietnamese.

Bicycle Safety Rodeo Is Planned

Everyone in grades three through seven are invited to a bicycle rodeo program Tuesday, at Guy Smith Stadium from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Participants will be judged on turns, speed, operations, and stunt riding. Prizes will be awarded in the various phases.

All participants will receive reflector strips. Those who score 80 or better will be awarded embroidered sweater emblems. Other awards will be made for the handling of bicycles.

Ed Stallings will be in charge of the marking of the score sheets. The judges will be Bill Penny, Larry Stox, and Doug Jackson.

According to Larry Stox who organized the Modern Woodmen of America event, the legal Reserve Life Insurance Society promotes bicycle safety on a national basis as one of its fraternal activities. The Bicycle Safety Day program has been endorsed by the Bicycle Institute of America, Inc.

"Bicycles present a challenge to every community," Stox stated. "Each year thousands of children are injured in bicycle accidents that they themselves could have avoided if they had kept their bikes in good running order, obeyed traffic laws and handled their bicycles in a skillful manner."

Further information may be obtained by calling Larry Stox at 758-1492.

Preparing A Sports Medicine Revised Plan Conference Set At ECU August 6-7

RALEIGH (AP) — A Senate redistricting subcommittee has promised to have a revised redistricting plan ready for study this weekend.

The subcommittee held a final hearing Wednesday on its proposal to divide the state into 28 districts. The full committee is expected to vote on the redistricting plan Tuesday.

The General Assembly has already enacted legislation redistricting the House of Representatives and North Carolina Congressional Districts.

Incumbent senators affected adversely by the subcommittee's proposal continued to parade their suggested changes.

Among those strongly opposed to the subcommittee's plan are Sens. John Church, D-Vance; Russell Kirby, D-Willson; and Bobby Combs, D-Catawba.

Church, Kirby and freshman Sen. Henry Milgrom, D-Nash, would be forced into a primary election for two seats under the subcommittee's plan.

Combs would have to give up predominantly Democratic Lincoln County in his present district to take on predominantly Republican Yadkin County.

Church, Combs and Kirby have submitted alternatives aimed at eliminating these problems.

Athletic coaches, recreation leaders and student trainers at the junior high, senior high and junior college levels will gather at East Carolina University August 6-7 for the second annual ECU conference on sports medicine.

Sponsored by the ECU Division of Continuing Education and endorsed by the National Athletic Trainers Association and the American College of Sports Medicine, the conference will focus on injuries of the knee and ankle.

Special sessions will deal with treatment, prevention and rehabilitation of knee and ankle injuries. All meetings are scheduled for Minges Coliseum on the ECU campus.

Instructional staff for the conference includes Dr. Michael Schweisthal, chairman of anatomy in the ECU Division of Medical Sciences; Dr. James Bowman, orthopedic surgeon and ECU team physician; Dr. Lionel Kendrick of the ECU Department of Health and Physical Education;

Robert Livengood, head athletic trainer and physical therapist at Bowling Green University, Ohio; and Rod Compton, head trainer in the Sports Medicine Division of the ECU Athletic Department.

Featured at the conclusion of the two-day conference is the Boys' Home Bowl Game in Ficklen Stadium at ECU.

Further information and registration forms are available from the office of the ECU Division of Continuing Education, Box 2727, Greenville.

Children 'Test' Their New Toys

LONDON (AP) — A London toymaking firm has engaged six children as a junior consumers' council to test its toys.

"We get new toys every fortnight and report on faults and suggest changes," said 11-year-old Julian Boon, chief tester. "We are allowed to keep the toys we test. For us it's just like Christmas all the time."

Opines Strikes Are Out-Dated

DALLAS (AP) — Walter C. White, who retired after more than 29 years as federal mediation commissioner here, believes the strike is "an antique method" whose day is past.

"It just won't get it today," he says. "I hope industry and labor representatives continue to learn to use the mediation service more successfully."

White once sat for as long as 36 hours at a stretch in bids to negotiate contracts. One dispute kept him tied up for 18 months.

Firebase Taken By Reds

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops overran a South Vietnamese artillery base just below the demilitarized zone and turned its guns on the fleeing defenders, reliable informant reported today. Less than 10 American advisers and GIs maintaining electronic equipment on the base were said to be unaccounted for. South Vietnamese headquarters refused to confirm the retreat from Fire Base Fuller, on a hilltop four miles south of the DMZ. But a spokesman, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, said there were unconfirmed reports that the 500 South Vietnamese at the base had "moved off the hill and are fighting enemy troops around it."

Hien said the enemy pounded the base with 800 mortar shells in less than two hours Wednesday, the heaviest shelling of any fixed installation this year. But he said casualties were "light."

Sources in the field reported that a large enemy force made a ground assault after the shelling.

These informants said the South Vietnamese garrison requested permission to abandon the base, but this was refused. Fighting continued, and the South Vietnamese were driven out of the base Wednesday night, despite support from neighboring artillery, American B52 bombers and helicopter gunships.

Fuller has been under mounting North Vietnamese pressure since last Saturday, receiving daily bombardments of up to 500 rounds. It is one of a string of South Vietnamese artillery bases in the northwest corner of Quang Tri province. They are the first line of defense below the DMZ and in the rugged mountains along the Laotian border.

Gov't Reorganization Bill Awaits Final Okay

RALEIGH (AP) — The House was expected to give final approval today to a bill to reorganize North Carolina's state government.

The measure won overwhelming House approval Wednesday but ran into a roadblock in the Senate.

Veteran Sen. Julian Allbrook, D-Halifax, got the Senate to delay consideration of the bill until next Tuesday and announced he would introduce legislation to repeal the amendment to the state Constitution under which the organization is being carried out.

He was joined in his stand by Sens. Jack Baugh, D-Mecklenburg, and Hamilton Horton, R-Forstyth.

Before the House approved the measure Wednesday it rejected two amendments and adopted one other.

Rep. Allen Barbee, D-Nash, chairman of the House committee on state government, sponsored an unsuccessful attempt to remove the $500,000 limitation on the amount that could be spent in implementing the reorganization.

Rep. Howard Twiggs, D-Wake, said removing the limitation would be giving the governor "a blank check."

The House also rejected an amendment by Rep. Marvin Johnson, D-Johnston, that would have given department heads appointed under the bill four-year terms so that the governor could not fire them.

But Barbee argued that the governor should be able to fire officials "if they didn't pan out, if they didn't do the job they were appointed to do."

The House approved 65-49 an amendment by Twiggs to put members of the governor's staff under the provisions of a bill pending in the Senate which requires that any pay boosts for top state officials must be submitted to the legislature for approval.

The reorganization would regroup the state's 295 independent agencies, departments, board and commissions into 17 cabinet level departments. The governor would activate the new departments by executive order July 1, 1972.

Barbee told the House the reorganization will cost more money at the start but said the state will save later on when the "fat" is eliminated.

No Jinxes In Phillie Dugout

CINCINNATI (AP) — Everybody in the Philadelphia Phillies dugout freely talked about it as Rick Wise pitched a no hitter against the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday night 4-0, except manager Frank Lucchesi.

"It's a lot of nonsense about not talking about it," said catcher Tim McCarver. "We discussed it openly in the dugout. I talked about it every inning with Bob Doyle. I even said a few things about it to Lucchesi but he didn't answer."

"I didn't move for about five innings and I'll admit it," said Lucchesi. "I'm superstitious!" "All I could say, and I must have said it 50 or 100 times, 'come on Rick.' I figured the man upstairs was helping him but he's a real nonchalant guy. He's a real good thrower. I've seen him throw harder but he's really maturing. He's my most consistent pitcher."

"This has to be the biggest thrill of my life," said Wise (8-4). He also blasted two home runs bringing in three of the four runs.

"I feel this is my second no-hitter," said the 195, 6-foot-2 native of Jackson, Mich.

He said his one-hitter against the Dodgers in Los Angeles, Aug. 8, 1968, should have been the first. He complained that an official scorer gave Jeff Torberg a hit when Orlando Penna bobbled a grounder in the third inning.

"I still consider that a no-hitter in my book," Wise said.

The Big Arm And Big Bat

Philadelphia's Rick Wise not only threw the Cincinnati Reds to death, he also batted them to death in Cincinnati Wednesday night when he tossed a no-hitter and hit two home runs and had three runs batted in. Here he is congratulated at the plate by Roger Freed, who scored ahead of him in the fifth inning. It was just 20 days ago that Chicago's Ken Holtzman no-hit the Reds, also in Riverfront Stadium. (AP Wirephoto)

Richey, Taylor Tied In Delayed Net Match

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The center court here was set today for the final scene of an unfinished tennis drama.

The participants were Cliff Richey, the U.S. Davis Cup star from Sarasota, Fla., and Roger Taylor of England, Britain's brightest tennis star. They were tied at two sets all, and 7-7 in the deciding set, when darkness halted play Wednesday.

Richey won the first set 6-2, lost 3-6 and 2-6, but came back to win the fourth set 6-4 to tie the match. After two protests from Taylor, tournament referee Mike Gibson called the match.

Richey knows perfectly well that the Wimbledon fans will be rooting for Taylor, a rugged left-hander who last year toppled Rod Laver of Australia. But if that bothers him, Richey is not showing it.

The tie-breaking scoring system, being used at Wimbledon for the first time this year, doesn't apply in a fifth set, so Richey and Taylor will just have to slug it out the old-fashioned way. The first man to break service will probably advance to the third round.

Richey is the No. 6 seed. Two other Americans, Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., and Arthur Ashe of Gum Spring, Va., have already made the third round. Smith cruised past John Paish of Britain yesterday, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4. Ashe mastered Patrick Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, No. 4 seed in the women's singles, was beaten 7-5, 6-4 by Kerry Melville, the Australian with the powerful forehand.

Wise Hurls No-Hitter; Only One Walk Mars It

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Seven years ago Rick Wise watched Jim Bunning pitch a perfect game, then went out and recorded his first major league victory. On Wednesday night, Wise came within one batter of duplicating Bunning's incredible feat.

"I was well aware of the situation all the way," Wise said after he fired a no-hitter against the Cincinnati Reds—the second in three weeks suffered by the beleaguered National League Champions—and led the 4-0 triumph with a pair of home runs.

Wise faced just one batter more than the minimum 27, retiring the first 16 he faced, surrendering a one-out walk to Dave Concepcion in the sixth, then setting down the remaining 11 Red.

"The crowd really encouraged me," Wise said of the 13,329 Cincinnati fans who began rotting loudly for him in the seventh inning and, by the ninth, were booing every ball and cheering every strike.

Wednesday night's victory was his 66th triumph for the Phils and his eighth in 12 decisions this year.

In other National League night action, Pittsburgh whipped the Mets 6-2, Montreal clipped Atlanta 6-3, St. Louis topped Los Angeles 3-1 in 10 innings, San Francisco flipped the Cubs 5-2 in an afternoon game and, in a two-night doubleheader, San Diego edged Houston 3-2 in a 12-inning opener, then made it a sweep with a 4-3 nightcap triumph.

In the American League Boston squeezed by Cleveland 2-1 and the Chicago White Sox bombed Kansas City 12-3 in day games, Milwaukee split a twin-night bill with California, winning 6-0 then losing 9-5 and, in night action, Oakland shelled Minnesota 8-3, Baltimore topped Washington 7-5 and the New York Yankees beat Detroit 6-5 in 13 innings. Roger Freed's second-inning grounder gave Wise the only run he needed, driving in Joe Lis who had been hit by a pitch and moved to third on Willie Montanez' double.

Then, in the fifth, Wise followed Freed's double off loser Ross Grimsley with a homer over the left field fence. And he led off the eighth with his fourth of the year and ninth of his career.

"I've always prided myself as a hitter," Wise understated. Then, getting back to his pitching, he admitted: "I wasn't feeling good when I warmed up." But after changing sweatshirts three times in the hot, humid night, then discarding them completely after the sixth inning, "I started feeling stronger."

"I went to just three pitches," he said, "My fast ball, my slider and my curve."

The Pirates, regaining their 4½-game lead over New York in the National League East, were paced by Willie Stargell's three-run homer in the first inning and RBI double in the second. His 26 homers and 72 RBI lead the majors. Cleon Jones had a homer for the Mets.

Rusty Staub led the Expos' triumph with two singles that knocked in three runs and Bob Bailey chipped in with his eighth homer while Darrell Evans drilled a two-run shot for the Braves.

The Cardinals, limited to one hit through seven innings by Dodgers' starter Don Sutton, tied the game 1-1 in the eighth, then won it in the 10th on run-scoring singles by Lou Brock and Joe Torre off reliever Jim Brewer. Ken Henderson of the Giants snapped a 2-2 tie with a leadoff homer in the eighth and Juan Marichal, en route to his 10th victory, added a two-run blast later in the innings to wip Chicago.

The Padres won their 12-inning opener that snapped a seven-game losing string as Enzo Hernandez slapped a one-out single to center field, moved to second on winning pitcher Bob Miller's sacrifice bunt and scored on Tommy Dean's single to left.

In the second game, Angel Bravo, who had sent the first contest into extra innings with a pinch double, delivered another one that scored Dave Campbell with the winning run. Reliever Bob Miller, 5-2, got the victory in each game.

Rockets Moving To Houston Base

By LARRY ELDRIDGE
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Pro basketball is returning to Houston for another try—and this time it will have hometown hero Elvin Hayes going for it.

The Big E. and the rest of the San Diego Rockets are now the Houston Rockets via sale of the franchise Wednesday night to a group which will operate it in the Texas city beginning right away.

Announcement of the shift was made by NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy at a hastily called news conference during the league's annual board of governors' meetings. He said the sale price was $5.6 million.

Houston's first experience with a pro basketball team was a failure, with the American Basketball Association's Mavericks operating there two seasons from 1967-69 before moving out and becoming the Carolina Cougars.

This time, however, there will be the added attraction of Hayes, who led the University of Houston to basketball prominence, including a nationally televised upset of the Lew Alcindor-led UCLA juggernaut, and has continued his stardom through three pro seasons with the Rockets.

Kennedy said the NBA had been eyeing Houston as a potential franchise site in any event, and was thus in a position to act quickly when the San Diego sale proposal was put before the board.

Kennedy said the Houston group is headed by Wayne Duddiesten, a real estate broker, and Billy Goldberg, a banker. He said Bob Britebart, the principal owner of the San Diego franchise, would be part of the new ownership.

The commissioner said General Manager Pete Newell and the team's new coach, Tex Winter, would go with the club to Houston. He said the club would retain its nickname of the Rockets and would remain in the league's Pacific Division.

Kennedy said the Rockets will play most of their games in the Hofheinz Pavilion, a new arena on the University of Houston campus which was opened last year with a seating capacity of 11,500 and room to expand. He said a few games would be played in the astrodome.

Kenny came up with the ball in the left field seats, and presented it to his father after the game. "If you want it, Dad, I'll give it to you," he offered.

Blue Moon Shining Again For Oakland

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer
Boog Powell and Blue Moon Odum are back on the ball ... and the Chicago White Sox are all over it.

Powell cracked two home runs and a single Wednesday night, pacing the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-5 victory and finally bringing his batting average over the .200 mark.

the season following elbow surgery, shut out Minnesota for 7 2-3 innings and beat the Twins 8-3 with relief help in the ninth to square his pitching record at 3-3.

And, in an afternoon game, the White Sox continued to apply their newfound sock, walloping Kansas City 12-3 for their fourth straight triumph and a 46-run total during the winning streak.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees nipped Detroit 6-5 on Gene Michael's 13th inning homer; Boston edged Cleveland 2-1 on a homer by Joe Lahoud and Milwaukee split a doubleheader with California, winning 6-0 and then bowing 9-5.

In National League play, Philadelphia downed Cincinnati 4-0 on Rick Wise's no-hitter; Pittsburgh bounced the New York Mets 6-2; San Francisco beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2; Montreal topped Atlanta 6-3; St. Louis took Los Angeles 3-1 in 10 innings and San Diego swept a pair from Houston 2-3 in 12 innings and 4-3.

Powell, the American League's most valuable player last season, took a .178 average into Washington Monday night but has boosted it 31 points to .209 after drilling nine hits, for eight RBI, in the three games in which he has batted.

His 10th and 11th homers accounted for three Baltimore runs Wednesday night, helping Jim Palmer gain his 10th victory with ninth inning relief help.

Frank Howard hit his 10th homer for the Senators during a four-run rally in the ninth.

Odum, who had failed to last seven innings in six previous starts since coming off the disabled list, blanked the Twins on three hits until Harmon Killebrew singled and Rich Reese homered with two out in the eighth. Ron Ferranowski replaced Odum after Leo Cardenas' leadoff homer in the ninth.

Rich Monday drove in three runs with a double and single and Curt Blefary homered to trigger the Oakland attack.

The White Sox, who had lost six one-run games on a frustrating road trip, turned the corner last Sunday at Minnesota by passing the Twins 18-8. Then they returned to Chicago and beat Kansas City 5-1 and 11-6 in the first two games of their three-game set.

In the series finale, Bill Melton belted his 14th homer of the season; Tom Egan delivered three runs with a pair of doubles and Luis Alvarado had three hits and two RBI to back the six-hit pitching of knuckleballer Wilbur Wood.

The Yankees blew a 5-0 ninth inning lead before taming the Tigers on Michael's first homer of the season—a drive that tipped off the left foul pole with one out in the 13th.

Gates Brown capped Detroit's tying rally in the ninth with a three-run homer—the 80th pinch-hit of his career.

Lahoud's seventh inning homer at Boston decided a pitching duel between winner Ray Culp, who flipped a five-hitter, and Cleveland's Sam McDowell, who also yielded five hits and struck out 14.

McDowell stroked a run-scoring single in the second inning, but the Red Sox tied it in the sixth on Billy Conigliaro's run-scoring triple.

Rookie Bill Parsons hurled Milwaukee past California in their opener with a five-hitter, ending his personal five-game losing string.

But the Angels struck back in the second game with an 18-hit assault to give first-time starter Eddie Fisher his sixth victory in 10 decisions. Syd O'Brien, Sandy Alomar, Alex Johnson and Ken McMullen each had three hits for California.

Donohue Happy After Running Fastest Speed

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Moon-faced Mark Donohue is smiling again.

He went out in the cool of the afternoon Wednesday and whizzed around the new Pocono International Raceway at a shade above 172 miles per hour.

The speed was the fastest recorded during five days of practice for the July 3 Schaefer 500 mile race. But for Donohue it ended days of frustration that began several weeks ago at Indianapolis.

It had taken the 32-year-old Brown University alumnus two days to get his Roger Penske-McLaren racer up to speed. And, as one trackside observer put it, it was one of the few times in the illustrious Penske-Donohue association that the team wasn't ready to race when it arrived at the track.

The reasons were numerous. For one thing, the Sunoco-Blue McLaren-Offy was demolished in a wreck during the May 29 Indianapolis 500—after Donohue had led that $1 million classic for 62 laps and appeared en route to an easy victory.

The car had to be rebuilt for the $400,000 Pocono race at a cost of more than $50,000.

In between Donohue lost two straight Trans-Am races in his Penske Javelin, and was forced out of the Lemans 24-hour race after three hours when the engine failed in his Penske Ferrari. He was running second at the time.

New Yorker Pete Revson, who beat Donohue for the pole at Indy, was the first driver to break the 170 m.p.h. barrier at Pocono. The team McLaren driver was clocked at 170.3 during a late afternoon run Wednesday.

Several top speedsters flirted with the 170 barrier Wednesday, among them Joe Leonard, his teammate, two-mile Indy winner Al Unser, and the veteran A.J. Foyt.

Al Unser had recorded a lap at 169.2 while Leonard and Foyt both were in the 168-plus range. Two days of practice remain before time trials begin at 10 a.m. Saturday to fill a 33-car field for the Schaefer 500.

Allison Takes Fifth Victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., drove an almost flawless race at Meyer Speedway Wednesday night to capture an unprecedented fifth straight NASCAR victory in the Space City 300.

He took only two pit stops during the 150-mile grind for a combined 39.4 seconds.

Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., auto racing's first millionaire driver, was making a strong bid to halt Allison's amazing win streak at four until he went into the pits after 43 laps.

This was all the opportunity Allison needed. He sped past Petty and relinquished the lead for only nine of the remaining 157 laps.

James Hylton of Inman, S.C., took over the lead on the 147th lap when Allison went into the pits. But Allison's crew had his 1971 Dodge back on the track in 24.9 seconds, and he regained the lead for keeps on the 157th circuit. Hylton finished second.

Allison picked up the $1,700 winner's check, but possibly even more important were the 100 points he was awarded in the race for the Winston Cup. This moved Allison's total for the year to 1,908.

Hylton collected $1,200 for his second place finish and Walter Ballard of Houston, behind the wheel of a 1971 Ford, pocketed $900.

H. B. Bailey, another Houstonian, was fourth, while Elmo Langley of Charlotte, N.C., was fifth, Cecil Gordon of Arden, N.C., was sixth and Petty scrambled back for seventh.

Allison finished the race, which was run without a caution light, in two hours, two minutes and 28 seconds. His average speed was 73.5 miles per hour.

Allison registered the fastest qualifying time, a 23.01, to grab the pole position, and he was joined in the front row by Petty, the current Winston Cup point leader.

Chevy To Try Again

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Chevrolet had a taste of sweet victory last month before a slow moving stocker forced the Junior Johnson prepared No. 3 screamer into a wall and out of contention in the World 600.

But now Johnson has rebuilt the white Monte Carlo and with Charlie Grotzbach behind the wheel, he figures the July 4 Firecracker 400 at Daytona International Speedway is in the bag.

The Chevy took the pole position in the Charlotte race. "We're gonna be on the pole at Daytona, too," Johnson predicted Wednesday when filing his entry form.

"The car's gonna run just as good as it did at Charlotte. Maybe better," he said. Chevy hasn't won such a major race since Johnson's 1963 victory in the National 400 at Charlotte.

But trying to prevent Chevy from regaining racing glory on the 2.5 mile Daytona course will be Plymouth giant Richard Petty, Mercury veteran Bobby Allison and A. J. Foyt, also driving a Merc.

Qualifying for the Firecracker opens July 1.

Houston Takes Golfing Lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Perennial college golf power Houston took a four-stroke lead to day into the second round of the NCAA Golf Championship being played at the Tucson National Golf Club.

The Cougars were led by junior John Mills, who fired a seven-under-par 65 for the individual lead.

Wake Forest and Michigan State were second in the team standings after the first day's competition, and Arizona and Southern California were tied for third at 284.

The Houston score of 279 was nine-under-par.

"Every year they say Wake Forest has the best team," Mills said Wednesday after his sparkling round, "and every year we beat them."

At least that's been true for the last two seasons, with Houston finishing number one and Wake Forest right behind in second place.

Wake Forest, led by Jim Simons and Lanny Wadkins, was tagged the pretournament favorite. Simons faded to a four-over-par 76 Wednesday in the first round, while Wadkins, last year's runner-up to a Houston golfer, shot a two-under 70.

Other teams with sub par scores were Texas at 287, and Georgia at 287.

Tied for second in the individual competition were Ben Crenshaw of Texas, Rick Tenbroeck of Arizona and Jack Spradlin of San Diego State, who all shot five-under 67.5

The temperature soared above the 100-degree mark for the first round Wednesday, but a hot, dry wind that had blown during the first part of the week died down. Many of the 217 competitors who played the 7,300-yard course complained about the heat.

After today's round, the field will be cut to the top 60 individuals and ties and the top 15 teams and ties, for the final two rounds to be played Friday and Saturday.

Trevino's Goal Is To Reach $1 Million

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — "I want to win a million dollars in prize money."

Lee Trevino, admittedly still leg-weary after his playoff victory over Jack Nicklaus in the United States Open Golf championship, was talking about his long-range goals today before teeing off in the first round of the $150,000 Cleveland Open.

"That's something I'd really like to do," the two-time Open champion said.

"I know it sounds like a high ambition, but I think I can do it. Of course, the way prize money is going now, what with the big purses, it is a record that might not stand long—lots of players might do it, some before me."

"But I think that would be a real accomplishment."

Trevino, the favorite for the $30,000 first prize here, is rapidly closing in on that goal.

He's the leading money winner this season at $165,110, and has moved into tenth place on the all-time money list with career earnings of $577,997.

And he has reached that figure in only five years on the pro tour. All the players ahead of him—and all are still active—have been playing at least twice that long.

Arnold Palmer, Nicklaus and Billy Casper top the list, all at more than $1 million. The others, in order, are Julius Boros, Gary Player, Gene Littler, Frank Beard, Doug Sanders and Bruce Crampton.

Trevino very easily could get another record this season. If he continues to play anywhere nearly as well as he has so far, he is almost certain to break Casper's record of $205,168 in a single year.

But he has other ambitions, too.

"I'd like to win the British Open. After ours, I think the British Open is the most important tournament in the world," Trevino said.

"And I'd like to win the Tournament of Champions. Beating all those other guys who have won tournaments would really be something."

Area Representatives Attend Session Of Governor's School

The ninth session of the Governor's School of North Carolina began Sunday, June 20, with the arrival of 374 rising juniors and seniors from North Carolina High Schools. The School is again being held on the campus of Salem College. The Greenville area's representatives are Sally Crisp Boyett, Jan Elizabeth Durham, Anne Margaret Petrie, Gregory P. Clark, Jimmy Lee Hayes, David Noble Howell, William Derek Shields, and Joe Oliver Swain Jr. from Greenville. June Celest Hall of Winterville and Raleigh Clay Mathewson of Windsor.

At the 1971 Governor's School will be 147 students studying the performing arts: art, drama, dance, instrumental music, chorus, and piano; 227 will concentrate on the academic disciplines: English, French, mathematics, natural science, and social science. The special goal of the Governor's School is to enable the students to see the relationship between the artistic and the academic disciplines. Theory, especially 20th century theory is stressed as the solutions to today's problems. The Department of Public Instruction sponsors the experimental school for academically and artistically talented high school juniors and seniors. Simultaneously, the state sponsored Teacher-Training Institute is being held, with 27 teachers throughout the state in attendance. These teachers are working with the Governor's School faculty and student body as an in-service training program in the teaching of the gifted.

The first concert by the North Carolina Governor's School

Symphony Orchestra and Chorus will be presented Saturday, June 26 at 8 p.m. The Orchestra will be featured on two selections; "König Stephen Overture" Beethoven and "The Pines of Rome" by Respighi. The orchestra will be conducted by Hugh Preble.

The chorus will present works by a range of composer; "Deo Dicomus Gratiarum" by G. A. Homilius, "Die Mit Tranen Saen" by Schutz, French Choruses from "The Lark" by Bernstein, and "The Lamb" by Leslie Bassett. Mrs. Marilee Skidmore is the conductor.

Children's Theater Begins On Saturday

The Greenville Children's Theater opens their second summer season on Saturday, at 8:15 p.m. with the production of Space Harp, a space adventure comedy in one act, by Martha Bennett King. The production will be at the Methodist Student Center, located at Fifth and Holly Streets.

The play, directed by Mrs. Beth Cayton, opens as Johnny, played by Tommy Chenier, believes he is receiving signals from outer space on his ham radio set. His mother, played by Jane Welborn, frantic over Johnny's strange behavior, contacts the school psychologist, played by Lauren Brehm, for help. A real space boy, played by Lindy Pollard, appears and touches off the beginning of adventures in confusion and laughter.

Tickets for the play may be purchased from any member of the Children's Theater or from The Greenville Children's Theater, Box 202, c-o The Recreation Department, Greenville, N.C. Adult tickets are $1.50 and Children's tickets are $.75. The Children's Theater operates solely on the proceeds from tickets and donations.

Season tickets are still available at pre-season rates. The season ticket covers all four plays: Space Harp, June 26; Puss-in-Boots, July 17; Young Alec and the Talking Machine, July 31; and Tanuki, August 21. Adult season tickets are $5.00 and Children season tickets are $2.00.

NO CAMERA BUFFS

MILAN, Italy (UPI)—More than 12 million Italians took some photographs during 1970 but most of them used less than three rolls of film, says a trade magazine. This is half the number of rolls used by the average Frenchman or Briton and one-third of the average German picture taking.

Londoners Leave Their Pets In Parks To Prosper

By CHRISTOPHER B. OGDEN
LONDON (UPI)—The bird keepers in London's royal parks have a problem their colleagues in other capitals might well envy.

No one comes in the noon day sun or the dark of night to kill their ducks or swans as they do in some cities. Things work differently in England. Here people bring their own pet geese and ducks to the parks and leave them to prosper.

"It's a bigger problem than if they took them away and ate them," said Jack Nerley, secretary of the Bird Sanctuaries Committee of the Department of the Environment. "They bring pets they don't want anymore or if they have too many. Sometimes they don't get along with the waterfowl we are breeding, but I guess it's still better than having someone attack them."

Norley said he was aware some cities were plagued with vandals plaguing park wildlife, "but in Britain, we've never suffered from that."

How do they prevent it?
No Prevention

"It's not a question of prevention. We don't do anything at all about it. We take no protective measures. That type of thing is just so very, very

There are five royal parks in central London. Regent's Park, home of the city's zoo and bordered by the splendid terraces designed by the Regency architect Nash, is the largest with 670 acres.

Ducks and swans glide across the Serpentine in Hyde Park and Kensington Gardens, a refuge of greenery and water bounded by Knightsbridge boutiques, the millionaires' row of Kensington and the luxury hotels of Park Lane.

A double row of plane trees border the Mall, the boulevard which runs from Trafalgar Square to Buckingham Palace splitting Green Park from St. James' Park. In the latter on Duck Island, Royal Birdkeeper Arthur May has run the main hatchery for the royal parks since 1958.

Charles II introduced ducks to what is now the park 300 years ago. Amid fountains and azalea bushes on Duck Island, May hatches 100 of the web-footed creatures a year, while caring for another 700 birds of 32 species.

Best Fed Ducks
"I think these must be the best fed ducks in the whole world," said the 60-year-old May, scattering some corn.

Oh yes, he said, park visitors pretty much leave the birds alone. But he remembered one dastardly exception.

That was when police picked up two men for getting a fully grown goose drunk on whiskey with a late supper in mind.

For the most part, troubles are few. "It's a lovely life," he said pointing to a mother duck and three fuzzy ducklings headed down a slippery bank to the water. "They have no worries like us."

With the strict enforcement of anti pollution legislation introduced in the early 1960s, the ducks, geese, pelicans and cormorants in the more than 1,400 acres of central London parks are flourishing.

Animal-Loving Folk
Jim Hall, an officer in the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds, attributes the relative safety of the park waterfowl to the psychological makeup of the Briton.

"The philosophy here is more to keeping things alive than killing them," Hall said. He noticed the reverse on a private visit a year ago to California.

Out there, an Audubon Society member was complaining about the frontiersman outlook in the United States. But he said since people can't shoot their neighbor, they take it out on the birds," Hall said.

"If you tried to shoot a duck in a park here, you'd get a bunch of dear old ladies and half the park police force chasing you," he said.

"Most of those stories about Britons being sillier about animals than most people are true. But also there just isn't much of a tradition of carrying guns and shooting things."

Final Honor Council Set

The closing Honor Council for the Christian Youth Crusaders, of the First Wesleyan Church, will be conducted Sunday evening at 7:30.

This marks the ending of the CYC year. The weekly meetings will begin again in September.

Those children receiving awards are: Andrea Shackelford; Reita Smith; Timmy Seymour; Carol Ann Kittrell; Mike Miller; Barry Lewis; Mike Shackelford; Charles Smith; Cheryl Sprinkle; and Kathy Wall.

The Cadet and Herald of the year will be announced and gifts presented. These honors are based on a point system kept throughout the year.

Another highlight of the evening will be the presentation of the Fanny Crosby Award to Barry Lewis. This culminates three years of CYC work in which he has earned all badges. It is the highest possible award ever presented a Herald.

The children will render music and a skit: "What Is Crusading?"

The chapter director, Mrs. Lewis, invites the public and interested friends to this special service. The church is located on the New Bern highway.

Police Writing Own Whodunit

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI)—Police in Kentucky are working on a paperback whodunit, which is scheduled for release in July. It's Kentucky's 1.70 Uniform Crime Report, which statistically dissects crimes ranging from murder and robbery to vagrancy and vice.

In the past, the only statewide crime figures available on Kentucky were compiled by the FBI and reported annually in that organization's national crime reports.

Ice Buildup Cut Into Sea Otters

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI)—An ice buildup off the northern coast of Alaska has killed at least 200 sea otters, reports the Alaska Department of Fish and Game. The sea otter population in the area is estimated at 4,000—less than 10 per cent of the total Alaska sea otter population.

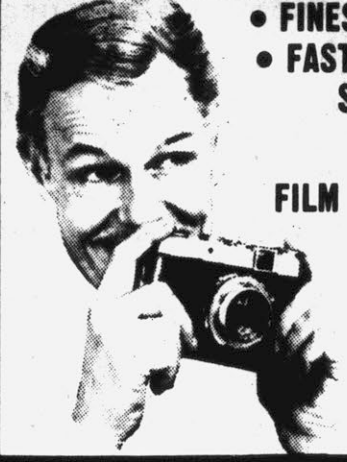

One Port Will Receive Jute

DUNDEE, Scotland (AP)—Dundee, for many years headquarters of the jute industry in Britain, is likely to become the only port for the unloading of jute goods from India and Pakistan.

Hitherto, London, Liverpool and Avonmouth (near Bristol) have imported much jute, but sources said that irregularities of sailings from India and Pakistan made it advisable to concentrate on one receiving port, and Dundee would be the logical choice.

ONE OF SEVERAL SPECIES . . . of Fetter-Bush native to this area, this plant is often confused with the fruit producing blueberry, which it resembles. The satiny white flowers hang in short clusters.

In late May and early June, wild flowers and flowering shrubs native to eastern North Carolina put on a spectacular show of white.

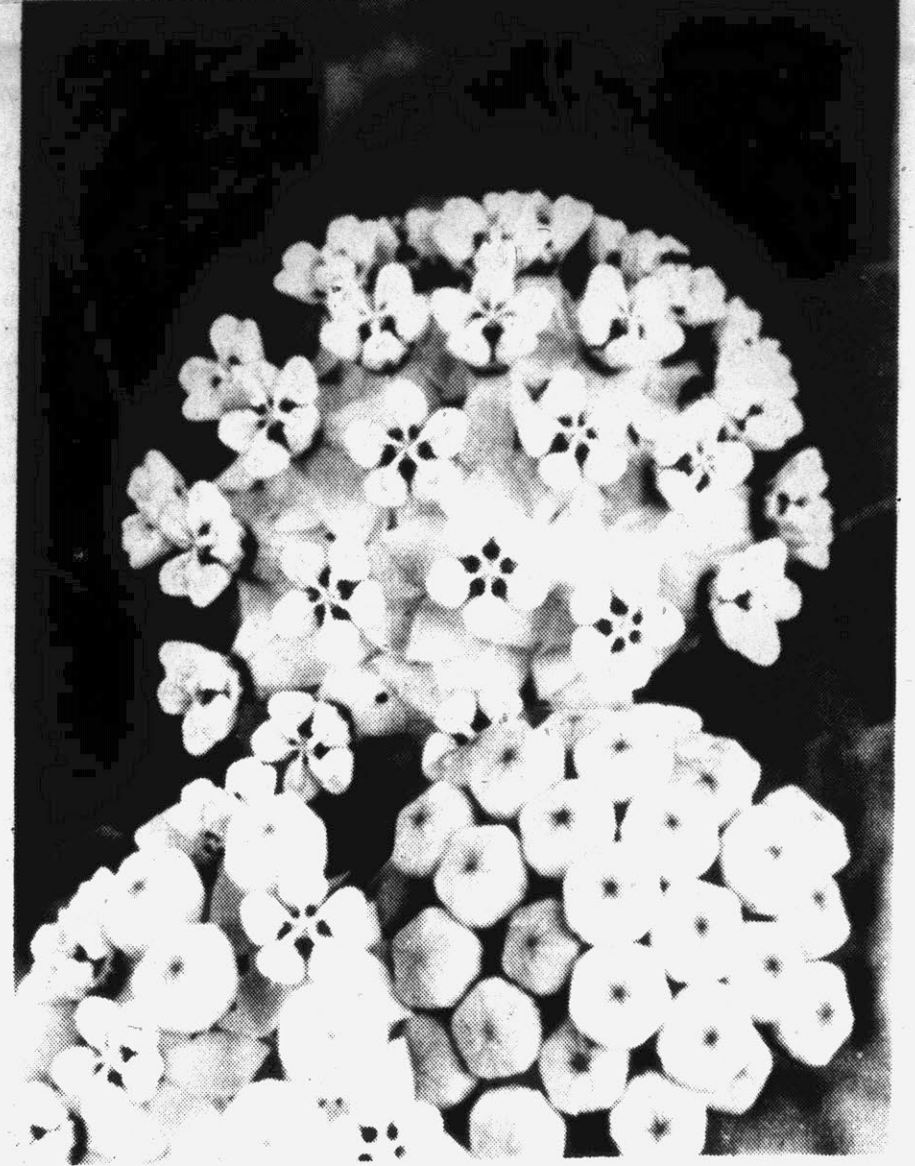

The most conspicuous along roadsides, ditches and edges of forest is the elderberry, with its many flower clusters on branching stems. The shrub often reaches ten or twelve feet in height.

Other magnificent flowering shrubs with white flower clusters can be found only in wet margins of swamps and streams. They are not normally visible from roads or fields. The Bush Dogwood, Virginia Willow and the Witherod are typical of this group that favors damp localities.

Fetter Bushes of several species, ranging in height from six inches to three or four feet with varying hues and sizes of white urn-shaped flowers, grow along forest edges and in sunlit wooded areas.

Queen Ann's Lace, Daisies, Yarrow, and milkweeds are among the roster of flowering plants that add their bright touches of white to meadow and roadside.

Wild flowers in June, like June brides, are mostly bedecked in sparkling white. And against the green background of trees, ferns and shrubs, the contrast is beautiful.

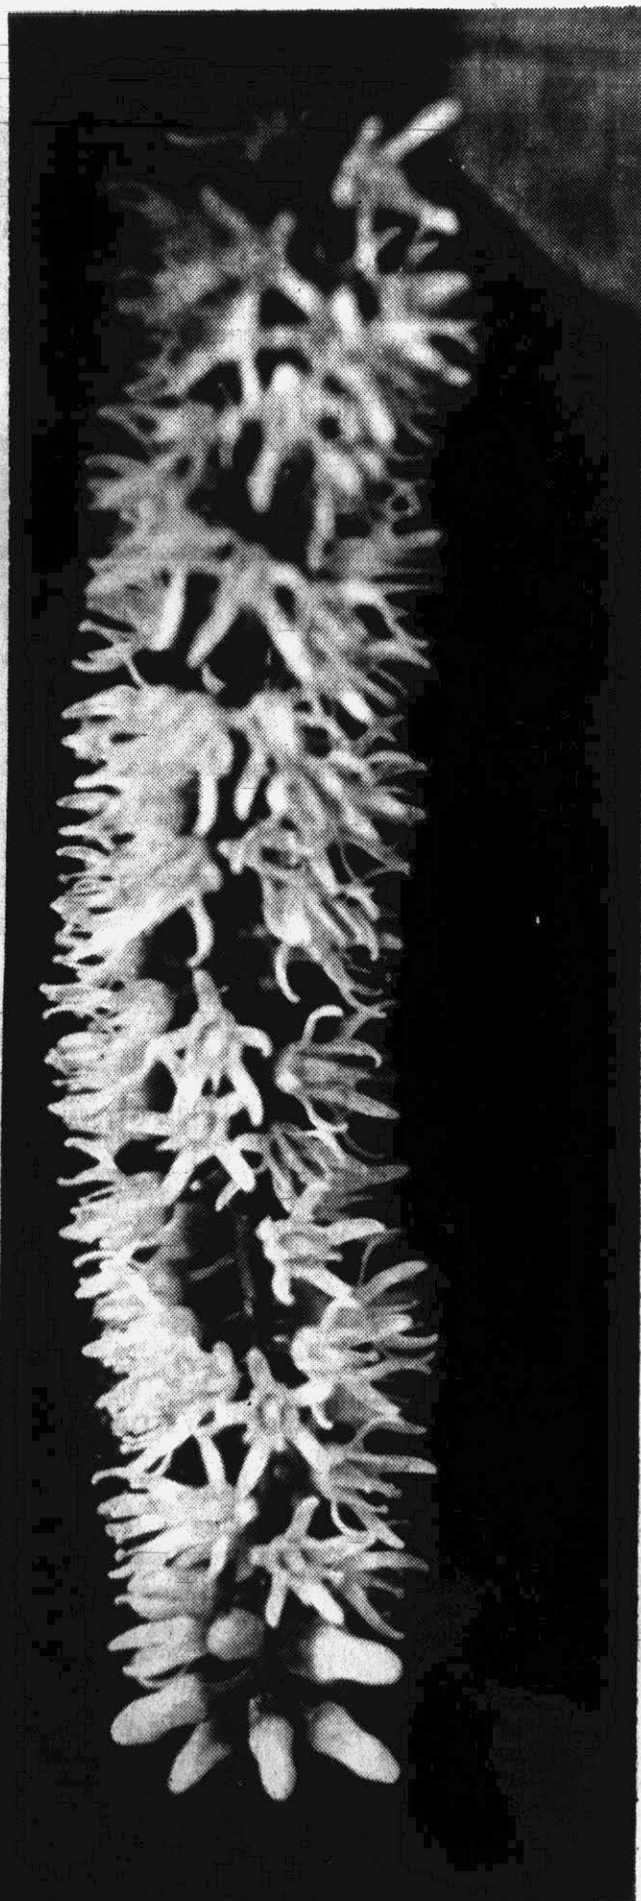

VARIEGATED MILKWEED . . . has unusual umbellate flower clusters. Just prior to opening, the individual florets have the appearance of puffed bottoms. A creamy white flower, it is tinted with touches of burgandy and apple green.

SWEET-SPIRE . . . or Virginia Willow, puts forth lovely finger shaped flowers. A shrub with attractive leaves, it is found in this area on the margins of streams and swamps.

LOVELY TO LOOK AT . . . but unpleasant to smell, the Witherod, a member of the Haw species, is not very common in eastern North Carolina. This photograph shows the flat inflorescence in the bud stage.

STAR-LIKE . . . clusters of the Bush Dogwood, a large swamp loving shrub that often grows to small tree proportions, make it one of the showiest of late May and June flowering shrubs.

THE SWEET BAY . . . is a little sister of the magnolia. Although not as showy as the bigger, more publicized queen tree of the South, it has a delightful fragrance that compensates for its smaller size.

Sees 'Revolutionary Period' In Tobacco Economy

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — The next 18 months will be "the most revolutionary period in the history of the U.S. tobacco economy," Joseph R. Williams, associate director of the tobacco division of the foreign agricultural service of the U.S.

Department of Agriculture said today. In comments prepared for delivery at the final session of the annual meeting of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association, Williams said the revolutionary period would involve these factors: increased availability, at cheaper prices, of foreign-grown tobacco; stiff protectionist policies of Common Market nations; and increased concern over the smoking and health controversy. "The health issue," Williams said, "now is being waged on an international basis, especially in the United Kingdom and West Germany, and is largely responsible for emphasis on low tar and nicotine cigarettes."

Williams predicted overseas a continuation this year of radio and television promotion, increased Common Market exports would be determined by consumer acceptance of South American sun-cured leaf and neutral tobacco.

Record exports of U.S. tobacco products worth $191 million showed an increase of almost 23 per cent over 1969, Williams said. U.S. cigarette sales, he added, rose from 25 to 29 billion units, a record, and exports of smoking tobacco showed a gain from 20.2 million pounds to 23.9 million.

These gains, he said, amount to over 25,000 acres in U.S. domestic production. He said sales in the first 10 months of the 1971 fiscal year of U.S. manufactured tobacco products increased to $163.7 million, or an increase of about 16 per cent over the year before.

Big Audience For Opening

MANTEO, N. C. (AP) — "The Lost Colony," an outdoor drama based on the first English settlement in America, began its 31st season Wednesday night at Waterside Theater before an audience of 2,000.

A spokesman described it as one of the largest opening night crowds in the long history of the play, which is staged on Roanoke Island where the first settlement was established in 1583. The colonists disappeared some years later without a trace.

In the opening night audience were Paul Green of Chapel Hill, author of the play, and Samuel Selden, a drama professor at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and the play's first director.

Broadway director Joe Layton is directing this year's production.

Performances will be held nightly except Sunday through Aug. 28.

Hearing . . .

The motion for recommendation of approval revealed a sidelight on the growth of Greenville. It was pointed out that utilities services from both the Greenville Utilities Commission and utilities services from Winterville were very near a meeting point. For this reason, the motion carried a stipulation that recommendation for approval be contingent on the two utilities groups working out a mutually agreeable arrangement for a decision to formulate a boundary line of responsibility.

Greenville Utilities Commission Chairman Charles O'Horne noted he has written Winterville Mayor Walter Dail asking for information on such an arrangement, and was awaiting his reply.

Another first public indication of a new business development — a major addition to an existing business, came about as the result of a request by personnel at Rose's at Pitt Plaza that the board consider and discuss plans for an addition behind the present store. This planned enlarging would about double the floor space of the present facility.

City commission members took note of the proposal, but indicated no action was required on their part, as the area was already zoned and that the addition would fall within that authorization.

City Engineer C. A. Holliday noted, however, that some problems might arise over the run-off into Fornes Run, and said he felt the city officials needed to be aware of that possibility. Horne added the new structure would require the relocation of utility facilities.

A resolution incorporating minor boundary changes in the south side portion of the General Neighborhood Redevelopment Plan for Greenville was adopted. The change, to amend the boundary set forth in the resolution adopted in October 1970 for this area, eliminates 15 feet of Fieldcrest Mills property shown by error on the original plan and changes the boundary along the Norfolk-Southern Railroad from the north side to the center of the right of way of that railroad.

Discussions on adoption of proposed amendments to Zoning Ordinance Number 322 was tabled until the next regular meeting since all members of the City Planning and Zoning Commission were not present at last night's meeting.

In a final action, the City Planning and Zoning Commission members set for Wednesday, August 4, the date for public hearing on the matter of proposed annexation of six areas to the city. It was noted this date preceded the date of the meeting of the City Council for the month of August, and would thus provide City Council members with an indication of public attitudes on the proposed extensive annexation plans which have been under review for some months.

Improving The 'Agenda Plan'

Diane's husband grumbles because he says she is such a sloppy housekeeper. So employ the "Agenda Plan." And learn how to use the same dramatic technique that I employed with my gang of tree surgeons. Balance the obvious, impressive tasks with those that are time consuming but not as visually apparent!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case Q-585: Diane D., aged 29, is a housewife.
"But, Dr. Crane," she began, "my husband thinks I am the sloppiest housekeeper in America!"
"For he is one of those meticulous introverts whose office is always immaculate.

"But he also has an efficient secretary to help him keep up with his duties.
"Alas, I have 3 small children, plus cooking, laundry, beds to make and the shopping.
"And I confess I am slow to get going in the morning, for I like to read the newspaper and even listen to a couple of TV shows.

"So what can I do to stop these constant quarrels with my husband?"

Use An Agenda
Use the "Agenda Plan."
This means, write down your tomorrow's duties the night before you go to bed.
And set yourself certain deadlines that you must accomplish before you permit yourself the luxuries of the newspaper or TV.

This written outline (Agenda) will thus help you race the clock, which injects desirable competition for everybody.
If you housewives have an oven timer or an alarm clock, set it for 15-minute intervals, so when it buzzes or rings loudly, it will jog your memory about your Agenda.

And learn the art of being dramatic!
That means, perform the chores that make a big visual impression.
Make your beds quickly and keep the sink cleared of dirty dishes!

For those are the two major irritations that catch the eyes of your meticulous mates!
Husbands are not so readily irritated by a little dust or the unironed clothes or dirty windows.

But they also grow irate when they hurriedly try to dress for the office or factory and find buttons off their shirts!
So be sure you become a good household detective and thus learn to outguess your husband's likelihood of spotting your defects.
When I was a college student at Northwestern University, I worked during the summers as a tree surgeon.

A light third seat opening bid by East paid off a handsome reward in today's hand, when an indiscreet opponent stuck his neck out once too often.

After two passes, East chose to open the bidding with one heart, despite the fact that he had only 10 high card points. Altho his values were somewhat anemic—including two unsupported jacks—the presence of a reasonable suit plus eight cards in the majors are mitigating factors. If he held a doubleton spade, for example, or if his suit were a minor then there would be no justification for initiating the auction, in view of partner's original pass.

South's one spade overall is open to question. His suit is broken and the presence of so much strength in the opponent's suit is another objection. West, having passed 12

Summer Music Camp Is Scheduled July 18-30

Approximately 200 junior and senior high school musicians are expected at East Carolina University July 18-30 for the 18th annual Summer Music Camp, sponsored by the ECU School of Music.

They will attend special sessions in band, chamber ensemble, jazz ensemble, conducting, composition-theory and other music studies during the two-week camp.

Classes will be held in the new A. J. Fletcher Music Center on the ECU campus.

Recreational activities available to music campers will include swimming and other athletics, under the supervision of University personnel.

According to Herbert Carter, Director of Bands at ECU and music camp director, music campers must be 12 years of age or older and must have studied a band instrument for at least one year.

This year's program will emphasize ensemble performance, said Carter, ranging in size and style from duets to woodwind, brass, percussion and jazz ensemble.

"The ensemble participation of each student will be directed toward increasing his ability to perform on his instrument," he noted.

Offered in connection with the camp is a Jazz Ensemble Workshop for band directors, conducted by Prof. Joseph Hambrick which can be applied toward certificate renewal.

Housing, meals and health services for music campers will be provided in supervised campus facilities.

In addition to Carter and Hambrick, music camp faculty includes George Knight, John Savage and Joseph Distefano, all of the ECU School of Music.

Camp officials are accepting applications from interested music students, Carter said.

Inquiries about entrance qualifications and tuition should be sent to him at the ECU School of Music, Box 2517, Greenville.

Italy's Art Wide Open To Thievery

By CHARLES W. BELL
ROME (UPI) — Compared with modern Italian art thieves, barbarian and Nazi looters were pikers.

Thieves got away with millions of dollars in art treasures in 1970 alone and it looks as though 1971 will be an even bigger year for them.

Authorities announced recently that thefts of paintings, sculpture and other precious objects were running at nearly one a day with private collectors hardest hit of all.

Most of the missing pieces, although valuable, were executed by artists not known to the general public. But other works were signed by Rembrandt, Rubens, Utrillo, Manet, Renoir, Picasso, Holbein and Modigliani.

Most of the art left Italy, following the traditional northward routes of stolen treasures from the times barbarians sacked villas museums and public buildings during the decline and fall of the Roman empire.

The Nazis took art away by the truck and train load from 1937 to 1945 and the barbarians smashed or stole thousands of art works. But experts say the current hauls are unprecedented.

Italy is an easy target for thieves for one simple reason. The country is a vast art gallery with unlocked doors and sleeping watchmen.

Museums and galleries are dangerously understaffed. Churches and convents are negligent or naive in guarding their treasures. Security measures are antiquated or completely lacking in even the most famous museums and galleries. Private collectors are woefully careless. The government is stingy with money and advice.

The government finally is seeking international help, but experts describe it as too little too late.

One major step is an Italian move, in cooperation with the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), to bring about a comprehensive census of all European art and to seek laws requiring art buyers to prove where and how they obtain paintings, sculpture and other precious objects.

But Italy is lagging behind on its own plans to catalog all of its art.

And at the same time, art sleuth Rodolfo Siviero, who as minister for the recovery of works of art has returned 2,500 paintings and other objects from Germany alone since World War II, has been handcuffed by red tape and a budget cut to 20 million lire ($32,000) a year.

The bureaucratic snarls of Rome and the lack of an overall international art law, plus what amounts to slap-on-the-wrist penalties in Italy for stealing, possessing or smuggling art, makes the country a natural and inviting target for thieves.

Art owners do not help much by the way they watch over a treasure so valuable that Venetians estimate their collection alone brings in tourist earnings of $82 million a year.

A restaurant owner showing his father's collection lost 22 paintings, among them works by Renoir, Manet and Brueghel, when he took no more than usual precautions when closing for the night.

A private museum in an unguarded greenhouse was looted of dozens of objects, including a bust of Michelangelo. Villas and churches are raided frequently because thieves know they are often unguarded even by maids or sextons.

Paintings by Rembrandt and Rubens, valued by some experts at $1.6 million, were taken from a nobleman's home.

These are only the most publicized and recent cases. Dozens more thefts go unreported and unnoticed.

Nobody really knows how much art Italy owns, or where it all is, or how much it is worth. Some experts at the National Office of Fine Arts and Antiquities say if all Italian art was sold, it would take the gold and dollar reserves of West Germany, the United States and Italy to purchase it — an overall price of $36.1 billion.

Once Prohibitionist-Dominated Dixie Is Relaxing

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Southern legislatures, once dominated by powerful prohibitionist factions which kept the region legally dry but bootleg wet, are slowly enacting liberalized liquor laws.

Liquor by the drink remains an issue in the legislatures by no longer stirs the emotion it once did.

Tennessee's legislature this year repealed the state's "bone dry" law and approved the sale of liquor to 18-year-olds.

Forty-six of the 246 counties in Texas held mixed drink referendums in May under a constitutional amendment approved last year, and all of them voted in liquor by the drink by substantial margins.

Under a mixed-drink law approved by the legislature in 1968, Virginia's urban areas and resort communities have approved the sale of liquor by the drink in restaurants.

And liquor may now be bought by the drink in parts of most other southern states. At the same time, it is illegal in hundred of counties in the South to sell so much as a bottle of beer.

The death knell for prohibition in the South was sounded in 1966 when Mississippi went wet.

Mississippi's law allows package sales and mixed drinks in restaurants and private clubs. Liquor by the drink may also be obtained in resort area cocktail lounges. Thirty-six counties are wet at the moment and 42 have chosen to remain dry. Four others, because of technicalities, are partially wet.

Two counties experimented with wetness for a while, but reverted to prohibition.

In neighboring Tennessee, the legislature this year lowered the legal age for liquor consumption from 21 to 18. New Orleans also allows liquor sales to 18-year-olds but Tennessee is the first Southern state to allow it on a statewide basis.

The Tennessee legislature also repealed the state's "bone dry" law, which made it illegal to possess liquor in a dry area — even if it was bought legally elsewhere.

New Burglar Alarm Is Taken

CLOVIS, N.M. (AP) — On successive weekends recently, the same store was burglarized. Each time the same items were taken, with one exception. During the second burglary, Clovis detectives said the burglars took a new burglar alarm which hadn't been connected.

Mixed drinks may now be bought in Nashville and Memphis and package liquor sold in 15 cities and eight counties, which include an estimated 80 per cent of the population. Eighty-seven thinly populated counties remain dry.

Surprisingly, the 18-year-old law was enacted with little opposition.

One observer, asked why the dry forces didn't put up more of a fight, confessed: "Damned if I know. I think they've just dried up."

Under a local option law, 31 Alabama counties legalized liquor and beer sales but 36 still prohibit it. Liquor is sold by the drink in licensed restaurants and clubs in the wet counties.

With an economy heavily dependent upon the dollars of thirsty tourists, Florida has 56 wet counties and 11 dry counties. All but three of the wet counties allow liquor by the drink. Florida is among the wettest of the Southern states.

Liquor by the drink is not legal in any North Carolina county and 16 of the state's 100 counties are completely dry. Since liquor elections may be held by both towns and counties, there are, incongruously enough, dry counties with wet

City Increasing Colorful Birds

DUNDEE, Scotland (AP) — To increase the variety of birds in Dundee, the parks department is breeding gold and silver pheasants, partridges and other birds, and releasing them in the parks.

The birds roam all over the city, where the rule is "Don't interfere with them or try to catch them."

cities.

In two North Carolina towns — Kenansville and Faison — a drinker is allowed to buy liquor ... but not beer.

The North Carolina General Assembly consented this year by narrow margins to allow a liquor-by-the-drink vote in Moore County, a resort area with many retired persons from other states, and in Mecklenburg County, the state's most heavily populated urban area.

"The Methodists, the Baptists and the bootleggers in the northern part of the county will never let us have it," groused one doubtful Moore countian. "They'll vote it down."

Louisiana, wetter than Florida, has long allowed liquor by the drink in all but 12 of its 64 parishes (counties).

But, while South Carolina has liquor stores and a brown bag law, liquor by the drink is still an issue that arouses passions. The port city of Charleston, and a few other tourist areas, serenely rise above the liquor laws and drinks may be purchased at a number of establishments there.

The liquor laws, however, are enforced in the rest of South Carolina, which has no dry counties. A brown bag law, similar to North Carolina's, allows patrons to pack their own liquor and buy setups at licensed establishments. A liquor-by-the-drink measure is pending in the legislature.

Georgia's local option liquor law allows the sale of mixed drinks in eight counties and package sales in 35 of the 159 counties. In Atlanta, mixed drinks are legal, but even beer sales are illegal in five suburban counties. Four other suburban counties sell beer and wine — but no liquor.

And in one Georgia county, a curious law provides that a drinker can buy no less than a quart of beer at a time.

NARCOTICS DRIVE

MANILA (AP) — The mayor of the Philippines' most affluent town has established a Drug Abuse Control Board to spearhead a drive against narcotics addicts and peddlers preying on children of wealthy families.
