Supreme Court Extends Its Term

No Ruling Today On The Pentagon Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court did not rule on the Pentagon papers case today but extended its term in order to decide it.

The Court was to have adjourned today until the fall term. But Chief Justice Warren Burger announced from the bench that it would continue sitting to hand down further orders.

In a highly unusual Saturday session over the weekend, the high court heard arguments on government suits seeking to stop the New York Times and the Washington Post from publishing parts of the secret Pentagon history of the Vietnam war.

The fact that the case was heard on Saturday was seen as an indication that the court considers the case of urgent importance. However, Burger made no comment whatsoever about the case today.

Until the court reaches a decision the newspapers will continue to be banned printing material from the history which the government says is too sensitive.

At issue, say the Times and Post, is the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press. The Justice Department contends publication of excerpts from the war study will endanger national security, damage U.S. relations with other countries and prolong the Vietnam war.

The dispute began June 13 when the Times published a story saying the Pentagon study indicated the Johnson administration secretly planned escalation of the war while President Lyndon B. Johnson was campaigning for re-election in 1964.

On June 15 the Justice Department was granted a District Court injunction barring the Times temporarily from continuing the series.

Three days later the Post began its own series based, it said, on the same 47-volume study dating back to the end of World War II. Again, the government moved to halt publication, but Dist. Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell refused the request for a restraining order.

The Justice Department appealed within the hour. And early on June 19, two judges of the Court of Appeals blocked continuation of the Post series.

Last Wednesday night an appellate court gave the Times the right to publish new stories about the study-provided the court selected the documents from which the articles were prepared.

The Times appealed to the Supreme Court which extended the conditional ban and also applied it to the Post.

The Supreme Court heard the case in an unusual Saturday session.

Four of the nine justices— William O. Douglas, Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall—opposed even holding the hearing.

The four were joined by Justices Potter Stewart and Byron R. White in rejecting the Justice Department request that the hearing be held in private. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices John M. Harlan and Harry A. Blackmun voted for a closed hearing.

Other newspapers, meanwhile, had begun their own series they said were based on the Pentagon report. And the Boston Globe and St. Louis Post Dispatch stories were interrupted by government order.

Publicly Admits Disclosure Role

Ellsberg Surrenders To Govm't

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Daniel Ellsberg surrendered to federal authorities today and told about 150 persons that he provided the New York Times with secret Pentagon papers and said "I am prepared for all consequences."

Ellsberg is charged in federal warrants with unauthorized possession of top secret documents and failure to return them.

Ellsberg told a group of cheering well-wishers outside of Boston's federal court building that in the fall of 1969 he presented the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "information contained in the so-called Pentagon papers."

Arm-in-arm with his wife and carrying a briefacse, Ellsberg said "after 9,000 more Americans had died, I could only regret that I had not at that same time released that information to the American public.

"I have done so now.

"I took the action on my own initiative. I felt as an American citizen—as a responsible citizen—I could not longer cooperate with concealing this information from the American people. I am prepared for all consequences."

Ellsberg, 40, a former Pentagon researcher and currently a research associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, had been sought unsuccessfully by the FBI during the weekend.

His attorney promised Saturday that Ellsberg would surrender today.

He and his wife had been missing from their Cambridge home since a former New York Times newsman said on a radio talk show June 16 that Ellsberg was the Times source of the papers.

Ellsberg talked by telephone to friends since then and appeared on the Walter Cronkite CBS television news show. It was not revealed where the show was filmed and Ellsberg did not say whether he had supplied the documents to the Times.

The warrant for Ellsberg was issued late Friday night in Los Angeles where a grand jury investigated the leak of the documents.

Ellsberg was not charged with giving the papers to The Times, and the newspaper has not disclosed the source.

COOL COMFORT — When the mercury zoomed to 101 degrees in Chicago Sunday—a record for the date—one resident solved the heat problem by bringing his sun chair into Lake Michigan at the North Avenue Beach. Supreme Court For Ali

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today reversed the conviction of former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, who was sentenced to five years imprisonment for draft evasion.

In an 8-0 decision, the court said the record shows that Ali's "beliefs are founded on tenets of the Muslim religion as he understands them."

The 29-year-old black boxer, also known as Cassius Clay, was reigning heavyweight champion when he refused to take the traditional step forward at draft induction ceremonies April 28, 1967, in Houston.

The following month he was convicted by an all-white jury of six men and six women.

Ali had contended throughout his long legal battle that he should be draft-exempt on grounds that he was a Black Muslim minister.

In the unsigned decision, the court said the government has now fully conceded that Ali's beliefs are based upon "religious training and belief" as set out in previous conscientious objector cases.

The court said the record shows that the boxer's beliefs "are surely no less religiously based" than those in previous cases.

To Rule On Death Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to rule on the constitutionality of the death penalty.

A brief announcement said the court would hear cases next term from California, Georgia, Illinois and Texas that challenge capital punishment in the light of the Eighth Amendment's ban on "cruel and unusual punishments."

The next term begins in October.

The court also will hear further arguments on the exclusion of opponents of the death penalty from juries.

One of the cases is from Chicago where Lyman A. Moore was convicted of killing a bartender in 1962. Another is from Chatham County, Ga., where a black man, Lucious Jackson Jr., was sentenced to death for the rape of a white woman.

There are currently 648 men and women under death sentence in the United States. Earlier this term the court ruled 5 to 3 against two challenges to death penalty procedures.

U.S. Grants To Church Related Colleges Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court upheld today the multimillion-dollar federal program of construction grants to church-affiliated colleges. The vote was 5 to 4.

At the same time, the court struck down Pennsylvania and Rhode Island assistance systems "because as we see it they involve excessive entanglement between church and state," said Chief Justice Warren E. Burger.

Under the federal program, set up by a 1963 law, an estimated $240 million in construction grants have gone to church-affiliated colleges and universities. The funds are used principally for the building of laboratories and gymnasiums.

Burger said the only provision that violated the Constitution was allowing the colleges to use the buildings for religious purposes after 20 years. He said this would "in part have the effect of advancing religion" and hence violates the First Amendment.

The ruling was supported by Justice Harry A. Blackmun, the second Nixon administration appointees, and Justices John M. Harlan, Potter Stewart and Byron R. White. The court's four liberals dissented. They are Justices William O. Douglas, Hugo L. Black, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall.

Burger said of the federal program: "There is no evidence that religion seeps into the use of any of these facilities." He noted that in the past the court had allowed federal construction grants for hospitals operated by religious orders and had approved bus transportation, textbooks and tax exemptions for church schools or their students.

"The crucial question is not whether some benefit accrues to a religious institution as a consequence of the legislative program, but whether its principal or primary effect advances religion."

Will Investigate 'Oil Deposit'

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — A reported oil deposit on farmland in Polkville, 18 miles northeast of Shelby, is to be investigated by representatives of a Bakersfield, Calif., company.

Dale Pendleton said a deposit about a mile and one half long and a half mile wide was reported by Dr. M. D. Hardin, San Jose, Calif. The geologist reported his equipment indicated oil deposits in a recent flight over the property.

About 1,200 acres on farms owned by Pendleton, his brother, Joe, and their father, Paul Pendleton, are involved.

The reported deposits are under a vegetable garden.

General Assembly Only 2 Weeks Away From Adjournment Target

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina General Assembly returns to work today with only two weeks left before its target date for adjournment and more than 1,000 pieces of legislation still awaiting action.

More than 200 bills were on the agenda for today's House session, which was to start at 2 p.m., six hours earlier than usual. The Senate calendar included more than 100 bills.

One of the first items on the House calendar was to be the record $4.3 billion state budget for the coming biennium, which passed the Senate Friday.

More than 600 bills are still waiting in various stages of the legislative process, and the bulk of them will probably go this week to the "calendar" committees.

These groups are the "hatchet" committees which take over the work of the regular committees in the final days of a legislative session with the hope of clearing out or killing off as many bills as possible.

Many of the remaining bills are local in nature and will take little discussion, and hundreds of others are what lawmakers call "lawyers bills" because they make only technical changes in the state's legal machinery.

But several hundred other bills which must be cleared up in the next 10 working days if the legislature is to adjourn on target are major program or policy bills.

The Senate still has before it the House-passed bill to carry out a comprehensive reorganization of state government. Bills to overhaul the state's auto liability insurance system, drawn up by a study commission, are still in committees in both Houses.

Several proposed bond issue bills—including ones for school construction, water and sewer construction and capital improvements —await action in various committees. A statewide liquor-by-the-drink bill is awaiting House action.

And the Senate redistricting committee plans to meet Tuesday to consider a proposed new layout for the state's Senate districts to reflect the shift in population indicated by the 1970 census. Both the Congressional and House redistricting plans have already been enacted.

The legislature must also take some action on Gov. Bob Scott's proposed restructuring of higher education—probably either adjourn with plans to return in fall to consider the matter or enact a bill by Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, that would put the matter off until 1972.

On Wednesday, C. Victor Thornton of Fort Worth, Tex., will be sworn in as Imperial Potentate. He succeeds Aubrey G. Graham of Norfolk, Va.

Recovery Seen By Publication

WASHINGTON (AP) — A gradual economic recovery is predicted for late this year, the Nation's Business says.

In a business outlook survey conducted by the publication, an organ of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, 431 company officials and economists voiced belief the economy will improve. Twenty looked for a downturn, 39 said the economy will hold steady or level off and 8 said inflation will continue.

Poisonous Chemical Cleanup Is Pushed Saturday And Sunday

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — Saturday and Sunday were workdays Monday and a Tuesday at just like Monday and a Tuesday at the Royster Farm Chemical Company here as workmen directed by technical advisors from federal and state agencies continued to clean up the danger-ridden remains of a fire involving poisonous chemicals.

Beating the clock, or the calendar as it may be, has been a prime consideration throughout the operation. There has been the fear of a gully washing rain that might overflow the pools where the pesticide-containing water was stored or break the dikes that held it away from effluents that would carry it into creeks in the area. An EPA engineer, Mrs. Patricia Diercks, said she felt sure it would have taken more than five inches "all at once" to have overcome the containment system devised, however.

During the weekend it was decided to go ahead and pump all water, that in the pools as well as any that collected in drainage ditches, into railroad tank cars that had been placed on the site as a contingency measure. "We feel much better now that those pools are being drained. Until it's fully decided what to do with it, we won't have to worry about it," Royster local warehouse manager, Richard Darden said.

Darden said the moving of rubble—concrete, barrels, chemicals left in bags and other containers, remains of vehicles, etc.—is moving ahead of schedule. The debris is being carried to the Voice of America Site C where, along with detoxifying agents, it is being dumped into a large hole in an enclosed area. All of the pesticide and herbicide warehouse area, including six inches of topsoil below and around it, has been moved, and clearing the fertilizer warehouse area has begun, he said.

Work was to begin today on two deep wells within the fenced area of the Farmville municipal Fields Street well across the road from the Royster complex. "These will be dug in order to monitor the aquifers immediately above that from which the town well water is drawn as close laterally to that well as we can make it," said Bill Jeter of the Ground Water Division of the Sate Division of Air and Water Pollution.

"Five shallow wells dug in the area late last week have filled and the water has been tested. So far no trace of chemical poisoning has been found. From the results of these tests, I am optimistic about the chances of the Fields Street well's never being affected. The soil composition—lots of clay—in the area is very much in our favor," he said.

"If all the tests on water from the sample wells continue to be negative, the Fields Street well will begin to be used again, but the water will be tested constantly with equipment already being installed for this purpose," said J. A. Wooten, Farmville Water and Light Department director.

Darden said several of the Environmental Protection Agency advisors have not come back this week, although some continue to be in the area. "We have appreciated all the help we have had from these capable persons," Darden said. "But we're glad the operation is moving along so well that their services can be used elsewhere. The State Board of Health and Air and Water Pollution Division people will stay with us for a while and we hope to have the situation under control by the end of this week."

The Royster firm, which lost an estimated $1½ million in the fire which destroyed two warehouses used to store fertilizers, pesticides, and Herbicides to sell throughout Eastern North Carolina, has footed the bill for the cleanup. Although government agencies have provided technical assistance to insure that no more damage than was absolutely unavoidable was done to the environment, Royster is paying the cost of manual labor, and contractors for transporting debris, well-digging, and the like.

This Stamp Widow Is Out Of Luck

By Abigail Van Buren

(©.1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "STAMP WIDOW" she's lucky. Unlike sports widows who wonder if their husbands really went to the game, or TV widows whose husbands ignore them for hours on end, stamp widows always know where their husbands are. And there isn't a stamp collector alive who doesn't like to talk about his hobby. Even to his wife. Ticket stubs and programs from sports events only add to the nation's pollution, but a stamp collection is like money in the bank. Think of the legacy the stamp collector's wife will have, if she outlives him.

ISRAEL I. BICK: BEVERLY HILLS

DEAR MR. BICK: And what if she doesn't outlive him? She's given the best years of her life to a man whose biggest thrill is finding a 1923 airmail stamp with the airplane upside down. And his second wife winds up with a valuable stamp collection.

DEAR ABBY: I could have written that letter from "STAMP WIDOW." My husband is an avid stamp collector and we had the biggest laugh over it. My Montie doesn't drink, smoke or chase women. His home is the most important thing in his life—after his stamps, of course.

LORRAINE RUMSOWER: LOWDEN, IA.

DEAR ABBY: You told "STAMP WIDOW" she was lucky because her husband had the one hobby she could "lick." Shame on you, Abby. Anyone who collects stamps knows that to lick a stamp is blasphemy. Stamp collectors use stamp hinges or protective mounts.

ED SUSMAN: HARTFORD TIMES

DEAR ED: Okay, I'll take a good "licking" with a Scott catalog.

DEAR ABBY: Stamp Widow doesn't know how lucky she is. My husband is a stamp collector and I have to go to all the stamp shows and auctions with him. And I'm the "soaker off" from envelopes and cards that friends give him. Yes, my house is a mess with stamps drying off all over. But I'm lucky. He could be in a tavern, gambling, instead of in his stamp corner.

I've gone to work with stamp hinges clinging to my clothes, inside my shoes, and you don't ask where else. For Christmas, birthdays, Father's Day, what does my man want? Stamps, or supplies for his albums. LILLIAN

DEAR ABBY: Words cannot adequately express my appreciation for the wholesome hobby of stamp collecting. My husband was forced to retire before 60 so he turned to his stamp collection, added to it, bought and sold stamps and found a fascinating hobby that required no physical effort.

We exposed our children to stamps early. As they brought in the mail they would announce, "Betsy Ross Flag!" Or "Another Mr. Lincoln!" They learned history thru observing stamps. To this day I never throw away a canceled stamp. I cut, soak and dry. And they're saved for my grandchildren. STAMP WIDOW: MPLS.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

MRS. DOUGLAS RONNIE FOSTER

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blount Harvey Galloway of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Foster of Ayden and the late Mr. Fred Foster.

The Rev. R. M. Stewart, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. R. M. Stewart, pianist, who also sang, "Because," "Whither Thou Goest" and the "Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with two seven branched brass candelabra holding lighted tapers backed with wedding palms. A floor basket of gladioli and yellow and white daisies centered the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of chantilly lace and silk organza which featured a scalloped neckline, fitted bodice and long fitted sleeves ending in calla points. The bouffant skirt was enhanced with a detachable chapel train covered with sequins and simulated pearls. Her fingertip veil of tulle was attached to a star of lace and pearls.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white marguerite daisies and white roses tied with white bridal satin streamers.

Mrs. Sandra Hamilton of Greenville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a street length dress of yellow crochet knit which featured a scalloped neckline with long sleeves and an empire waist. She carried a colonial nosegay of yellow marguerite daisies tied with apple green satin streamers.

Richard Earl Mosley of Greenville served as best man. Ushers were Bruce Adams of Ayden, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Connie McGowan of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Galloway selected an aqua polyester knit and used matching accessories. She wore a yellow mum corsage. Mrs. Foster, mother of the bridegroom, chose a navy blue knit with matching accessories. She also wore a yellow mum corsage.

Mrs. Frankie Hardee of Greenville directed the wedding.

Miss Sandra Martin of Greenville presided at the bridal registry.

Following the ceremony, the couple received in the vestibule of the church.

For traveling, Mrs. Foster changed into a yellow and white polyester knit sheath with matching accessories and the corsage of roses lifted from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Chicod High School and is employed as a bookkeeper at Home Builders Supply. The bridegroom is also a graduate of Chicod High School and is employed at Vermont-America.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Rt. 2, Ayden.

After-Rehearsal Party

Mr. and Mrs. Blount H. Galloway entertained the bridal party and guests at an after-rehearsal party Saturday night in the church fellowship hall.

The bride's table was covered with an Irish linen cloth and featured an arrangement of gladioli, yellow and white pom pons interspersed with snapdragons flanked on either side with white candles.

The appointed table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake. After the couple cut the first slice from the wedding cake, Mrs. Galloway served the cake and Mrs. Freddie Williams, sister of the bridegroom, poured punch.

The honoree wore a navy and white ensemble and was remembered with a corsage of white carnations.

The guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Adams and directed to the refreshment table. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Gentry Mills of Greenville.

Miss Barbara Williamson Weds Ronnie Johnston

Miss Barbara Jean Williamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Franklin Williamson of Greenville, and Ronnie Steven Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Steven Johnston of Greenville, were untied in marriage Sunday, at six o'clock in the evening.

The candlelight, double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Troy J. Barrett in the Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Paul Toll, organist.

The altar vases were filled with white gladioli, snapdragons and baby's breath. Candlelight glowed throughout the church from seven and fifteen branched candelabra. At the altar was a profile prie-dieu where the marriage ceremony took place. Pews were marked with bridal satin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown styled with a high scalloped neckline and empire waistline. The bodice and demi-bell skirt featured double panels of re-embroidered alencon lace. The long Dresden sleeves were also trimmed in the re-embroidered lace.

A cathedral length mantilla edged in the matching alencon lace was attached to a tiara headpiece of organza loop bows. She carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, summer daisies, miniature white carnations, and tips of greenery tied with white and a touch of yellow satin.

Maid of honor was Miss Linda Gail Williamson of Greenville, sister of the bride. She wore a formal length gown of maize organza flocked in white pin stripe. The gown was styled with a scooped neckline and gathered bodice. The empire waistline and cuffs of the short puff sleeves were trimmed in maize and green embroidered floral trim. A large double bow accented the back of the gown. She wore a matching maize bouffant veil attached to an organza loop bow. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow and white daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath, tied with a yellow satin bow.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. William A. Williamson, Mrs. Donnie W. Brewer, Miss Catherine Sharon McCombs, all of Greenville, and Mrs. Phillip T. Mosley of Wilson. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Kristy Hope Johnston, sister of the bridegroom, of Greenville.

The bridesmaids wore dresses identical to the maid of honor and carried nosegays of yellow and white daisies and baby's breath tied with moss green satin.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Ted Clayton Johnston, brother of the bridegroom; William Arnold Williamson, brother of the bride; Ollie Dennis Harrington, all of Greenville, and Capt. Joseph S. Johnston, uncle of the bridegroom, of Fort Eustis, Va.

The mother of the bride chose for her daughter's wedding, a blue Thailand silk dress with matching accessories.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a carnation pink dress of polyester doubleknit with matching accessories. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

Mrs. Joseph S. Johnston of Fort Eustis, Va. presided at the register at the church.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of Junius H. Rose High School, Greenville. The bridegroom is a senior at East Carolina University. The bride is employed as an Inhalation Therapy technician at Pitt Memorial Hosptial, where she received her training.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

After-Rehearsal Party

On Saturday night, the bridal couple was honored with an after-rehearsal party and cake cutting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde J. Warren.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Warren and the parents of the bridegroom.

The champagne was served by Thomas G. Basnight of Greenville. The bridal couple surprised Mr. and Mrs. Johnston with a cake to celebrate their 24th wedding anniversary.

Punch was poured by Mrs. Glenn Freeman of Hartsville, S. C., and Mrs. William N. Bethea Jr. of McColl, S. C., aunts of the bride. Cake was served by Mrs. James Buck of Greenville and Mrs. Fred Switzer of Pactolus, aunts of the bridegroom.

The bridal couple cut the traditional first slice of their wedding cake with a hand carved, silver Royal Thailand Ceremonial sword sent from Thialand by the bride's brother, Leon F. Williamson III.

The bridesmaid' breakfast was held at the Holiday Inn on Saturday morning.

Hostesses were Linda Williamson, sister of the bride, Sallie Williamson, sister-in-law of the bride of Greenville, and Lina Christopher Williamson, sister-in-law of the bride of Pakse, Laos.

HAMBURGER GO-ALONG — A three-bean salad that calls for pickles and other good things.

Serve Three-Bean Salad With Burgers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Something new to serve with hamburgers—a Pickle Bean Salad using chick peas, red kidney beans and pinto or white kidney beans.

As much a relish as a salad, this combination seems to please everyone. Do garnish it as suggested in the recipe because the sliced egg and pickle slices add their own attractive colors, contrasting well with the colors of the beans.

This is a make-ahead salad because it should chill from three to six hours to let the flavors marry. The only work in preparing the salad comes from dicing the pickles and fresh vegetables that are added. How fast you can dice determines the time it will take to make.

PICKLE BEAN SALAD

1 can (16 ounces) chick peas
1 can (15¼ ounces) dark red kidney beans
1 can (16 ounces) pinto beans or 1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) white kidney beans
½ cup salad (not olive) oil
¼ cup sweet pickle liquid
¼ cup cider vinegar
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 large clove garlic, peeled and minced
2-3rd to ¾ cup thinly sliced scallions (3 medium with part of green top included), not packed down
1 1-3rd cups diced celery
1 cup diced sweet fresh cucumber pickle slices
1-3rd cup thinly sliced radishes
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
2 or 3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
Pickle slices

Into a colander turn all the beans and rinse thoroughly under cold running water; drain well.

Into a large mixed bowl turn the oil, pickle liquid, vinegar, Worcestershire and garlic. Mix well with a whisk or a fork. Add drained beans, scallions, celery, diced pickles, radishes, salt and pepper; toss until mixed. Cover and chill for 3 to 6 hours.

At serving time drain salad and turn into a serving bowl; garnish with egg and pickle slices, alternating and overlapping them around the edge of the salad. (If you like you may line the serving bowl with crisp greens before adding the beans.)

Makes 8 to 12 servings.

No Answer In Procrastination

Certainly residents of the Greenville School district would not like to see the City School Board rush headlong into constructing a new junior high withiut careful and adequate pre-planning.

They would like even less, however, to see the Board of Education procrastinate and delay unnecessarily the beginning of this new facility which is so urgently needed by the local school system.

Action at the Board of Education meeting Monday night delaying a final decision on site selection does not mean the board plans to procrastinate indefinitely on this project which has been before the Board of Education and in the public eye for about two years now. It does seem to us, however, a little uncalled for to suggest that the school administration begin anew a complete study of the situation.

The facilities at Aycock Junior High were never planned to handle the number of students enrolled there during the past school year. The very fact that Aycock had the largest enrollment of any junior high in the state last year reinforces the need for another junior high for the city school system. This is further reinforced by the planning which has been going on in connection with this subject for the past several years as well as the long-range plans developed over a period of years by the Greenville School Board.

Certainly construction of a new junior high is a major decision to be made by the Borad of Education. It should make that decision based on the best information available to it.

But if should not delay indefinitely the decision on a facility which is so urgently needed. Once a decision is made, the facilities probably will not be available for use for at least 18 months to two years, perhaps longer. And additional junior high facilities were needed by the Greenville school system last year. They will be needed even more urgently next year and the next until the additional facilities are provided.

It is one thing for the Board of Education to make positive decisions to meet the needs of the schools and their students as soon as possible. It is quite another, as one member of the board suggested, "to hold it (the decision) abeyance as long as possible."

N.C. Advocate Of Creativity

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Structure is not a virtue, and duplication is no vice, in the task of striving for excellence in higher education.

So spoke Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University, summing up his reaction to the current turmoil over the legal housing for the state's system of 16 higher education institutions.

He's lukewarm for proposals to set a strong state board over all tax-supported campuses. He's fervent for an atmosphere of creative freedom for academic administrators.

BRYAN HAISLIP

"I think right now, as we are, North Carolina is getting a great bargain in higher education," he said. "If we can do better through changes in structure, certainly we should study and consider it very carefully."

Keeping in mind, he cautioned, that structure itself doesn't make great schools. What does, he said, is the desire to excel, capable and dedicated faculties, creativity and imagination in leadership.

"You don't legislate these things. They flow from freedom. They always have," he concluded.

Looking For Building Funds

Dr. Jenkins was under the palms of the State Legislative Building last week on behalf of an ECU School of Art building, a $3.7 million project which didn't get in the capital improvements budget reported to the Joint Appropriations Committee. "We need it badly," he said, between buttonholing legislators for their support.

The budget did include a signal victory for President Jenkins and ECU: $1,452,816 for planning and initiating a first-year medical program on the Greenville campus.

Some people call Dr. Jenkins and the ECU medical school drive a primary cause for the higher education controversy which has caused Governor Scott to speak sharply on more than one occasion, tied the 1971 General Assembly in knots, and led to plans for a fall special session for final disposition.

These observers claim Jenkins' aggressive nature and his proclivity for politics as a means of securing ECU goals was Exhibit A in the evidence of need for coordination in higher education planning and programs.

Nonsense, said Dr. Jenkins. The trend of the times, not personalities, brought on the crisis.

Problems Elsewhere, Too

"We are not unique in North Carolina," he continued. "Historically, this has come about in many states—California, Texas, Arizona, among others." Factors involved, he said, include population growth, greater demands on higher education, the transition of single-purpose institutions to multi-purpose and to university status.

The issue of higher education structure came to the legislature with the report of a study committee named by the Governor and headed by Lindsay C. Warren, Jr., of Goldsboro.

Dr. Jenkins said he has confidence in the commission members, but he took exception to the finding of wasteful duplication in higher education.

"I've yet to see that documented," he remarked. "When society can absorb the products of an institution, there is not duplication but service. Freshman English is taught on every campus and that is not duplication. If we graduate 50 CPA's a year and another school turns out 50, and the state needs 100, where is duplication?"

In that sense, Dr. Jenkins insisted, duplication is virtue rather than sin, a result of competition that does not stifle but stimulates.

Politics Is His Medium

Educators who wring their hands over political involvement get a cold smile from Dr. Jenkins. He's an active Democrat, on the scene for party affairs, a prospective gubernatorial candidate next year, an unabashed persuader for ECU projects before the legislature.

"The difference," he noted wryly, "is that university presidents who send a paid lobbyist are educational statesmen, while I come myself and I'm called a politician."

No matter, the name doesn't hurt. Politics is the stuff of life, he said, whether in education, business, church, or civic and social activity.

Decisions affecting higher education are bound to be political decisions, regardless of structure, Dr. Jenkins said. The people have to be involved, he added, because they pay the bill and political action determines what the cost will be.

Nor should the General Assembly be shielded from the heat when higher education problems are cooking. No structure could or should bar access to the legislature, Dr. Jenkins argued. "Every citizen has the inherent right to come here," he said. "Why, I would be derelict in my duty if I knew of needs at ECU and I failed to so advise the legislature."

In the last analysis, whatever structure is provided will work with mutual respect, trust and integrity, President Jenkins said. Just as surely, he added, without them no system will function well.

Point Of Peril In Peace Role

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Deepening dependence by Richard M. Nixon on his role as Peace President to give him a second term in the White House is now causing well-concealed anxiety among some of his own top-level foreign policy experts that he may unwittingly make himself a hostage in Moscow's hands.

Their apprehension stems from the fact that success or failure of President Nixon's ambitious peace plans hinges upon the mood of the Soviet government. If the Kremlin decides to up the ante, Mr. Nixon would have the bitter choice of either dropping a policy increasingly vital to his reelection or agreeing to Soviet demands not in the best interests of the United States.

What really worries these officials is the possibility that Mr. Nixon, whose career was built on a hard base of iron anti-Communism, might become so entranced with the Peace President role that he would agree to Communist demands which just a year ago would not have been seriously entertained.

That peril point certainly has not been reached in any of the current negotiations with Moscow. Nor do the highest level U.S. policymakers — such as Dr. Henry Kissinger, the President's national security adviser — give the slightest credence to hostage talk.

Nevertheless, Mr. Nixon has substantially softened his position toward Moscow the last year — a change dramatically brought home to Chancellor Willy Brandt and other West German officials on their working visit here last week. The Germans found that the gap between the Chancellor and the President, dangerously wide in 1970, no longer exists in 1971. "Your President is going full speed for detente just the way we have been going since 1969," one top German official told us.

Indeed, political aides in the White House privately talk about the Nixon scenario (painstakingly orchestrated by Kissinger) resulting in peace breaking out all over — on strategic arms limitation talks (SALT), on mutual troop reductions in Europe, on Berlin — just in time for the election.

One group of Administration officials, headed by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and director Frank Shakespeare of the U.S. Information Agency, but also including responsible foreign policy officials, feels the Administration has gone too far right now. Such officials have come to believe that Mr. Nixon and, to an even greater extent, Secretary of State William P. Rogers, are bending over backwards to show that Republicans can be flexible in dealing with Communists.

This dissenting school, for example, is skeptical about the price Mr. Nixon paid in buying the Soviet SALT demand to start arms limitations with defensive, not offensive, weapons. Unquestionably, the U.S. gave a great deal more than the Soviet Union to get this morsel of agreement.

But the real worry concerns the future possibility that the United States may become committed to reaching agreement on certain questions no matter what it costs — a dangerous condition which may not be far from reality in the case of the Berlin question. Jubilant though they were about the new Nixon-Brandt amity last week, West German officials in a low voice aired these very apprehensions.

Moreover, the ap-

Strength For Today

DEDICATED PEOPLE

A few evenings ago I sat with two young people who have consecrated their lives to Christian work. The whole world of opportunity is open before them. The young man might have entered any profession he cared to, and his wife might have settled down and led an easy existence if she had so desired. But that evening she had just returned from teaching a class in a girl's reformatory. Her husband is a specialist in work among young people.

There is a lot of evil in this world. Sometimes it seems to be of overwhelming proportions. We wonder, sometimes, if the world can survive its evil. And then we run against youngsters like the pair I have just described. Best of all, we remind ourselves that they are only two in many hundreds of thousands, probably millions, of dedicated people.

The penitentiaries are full. But so are the monasteries and convents; so are the dwellings occupied by ministers, priests, and rabbis. There are crooked folk in almost every circle of modern life, but in those very same circles are men and women, boys and girls, who are every day standing for the hard right against the easy wrong. There are moral stalwarts on every college campus, in every office, factory, and on every countryside.

Cheer up and open your eyes. There is plenty in the world to give us hope. There are lots of dedicated people.

Summer Reading Guide

WASHINGTON — The summer is upon us and once again it is our pleasure to list recommended books for people to take on their vacations.

Nonfiction

"My Friends in the Press," by Spiro Agnew, Southern Strategy Press — a heart-warming memoir chock-full of anecdotes concerning all the friends Mr. Agnew has made in the television and printed media since he has become Vice President of the United States. Six pages. Reading time: three minutes and 12 seconds.

"Investing in Lockheed for Fun and Profit," an amusing and valuable book on how to successfully manage a large aircraft company. It was originally printed to sell for $3.95 but because of inflation and unexpected overruns it is now priced at $199.

"One Thousand Reasons for Being in Vietnam." This three-set volume lists every reason ever given by a high government official as to why we were involved in Vietnam. It includes the pledges of four American Presidents, the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, pacification, Vietnamization, incursions and the secret Swiss Bank account numbers of all the leaders we have supported in Indochina. Printed through the courtesty of the New York Times.

"How to Take the Fun Out of Fun City," by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. In this hilarious book, Rockefeller recounts how he has played one practical joke after another on his good friend and fellow Republican, Mayor John Lindsay. Every time Lindsay thought he had something worked out for New York City, Rockefeller thought up something devilish to thwart him.

Lindsay is the perfect fall guy for Rockefeller's kind of humor and the reader is kept on the edge of his chair wondering what Rocky will do to him next.

ART BUCHWALD

"State Income Taxes and Why We Need Them," by Gov. Ronald Reagan. The governor of California writes with fervor on the necessity for state income taxes and why each citizen should be willing to pay them "even if it hurts." Citing case after case of people who would rather be on welfare or Medicare, Reagan makes a strong argument against loopholes in the tax laws that allow some California citizens to get off scot-free. The governor dedicates his book to his tax accountant.

"The Sensuous Telephone," by "M." The wife of a famous attorney general tells you what you can and cannot do with a telephone. She describes various ways of holding the phone, the positions used when talking on it, pre-phone-foreplay or how to work up excitement before making a call, and finally, how to fake it when you don't get a dial tone.

N.C. Offers Much

(Wilson Times)

When planning your vacation, do not forget the many interesting and historical places in this state. You can find as diversified recreation as in any state in the nation.

First take our beaches; the surf bathing is the best, the fishing and sailing unexcelled and the weather generally all any one could desire. There is Kill Devil Hill, where the Wright Brothers flew the first airplane, The Lost Colony, on the spot of the first Colony, the Elizabethan garden, the museum, all in the Nags Head area, and here you have the beaches and ocean thrown in for extra measure.

If you are interested in history there are the restorations which can take you over the state. There is Tryon Place, considered the most perfect restoration in the nation. A nice one day trip from here is to Kenansville where there are many old homes and the restoration of "Liberty Hall", the Kenan home. It is a beautiful place and the home of a family who has had a big place in the history of this state and section.

There is no restoration more popular than the USS Battleship North Carolina. This attraction has added the sound and music effect and now a Kingfisher float plane. And speaking of restorations, these are found all over the state, for at long last the preservation of historical data and places, is coming into its own.

When you get into the mountains of North Carolina the scenery is magnificent as beautiful as any found in this or any country. With the mountain scenery goes the entertainment: as Tweetsie Railrad, Grandfather Mountain, the Cherokee reservation and the pageant, "Unto These Hills" the story of the Cherokee Indian tribe.

Also at Boone is "Horn in the West," a pageant telling the story of Daniel Boone, and a new attraction for that area, the Wizard of Oz.

This is only scanning the surface. For when you ride around this state, from Manteo to Murphy, you find much in which to take pride, and which brings pleasure.

East Berlin Jumps

By JOSEPH FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI)—It was past midnight but good looking girls in minis, midis, maxis and hot pants still were dancing to "Melancholy baby" in the restaurant of the Hotel Stadt Berlin (Hotel City of Berlin), Berlin's newest and biggest hotel.

From the Panorama Bar on the 37th floor you could see the 1,197-foot high television tower, Europe's tallest structure next to Moscow's television tower.

All around Alexander Platz, the pre-war Times Square of Berlin, there were gleaming, bright, light modern buildings of glass, steel and concrete—the 11-story house of the electrical industry, the eight-story Centrum Department Store, the 12-story House of Teachers with a meeting hall seating 1,000, apartment houses, office buildings, shops, restaurants.

This is East Berlin, the capital of the German Democratic Republic.

Visitors from Moscow, Warsaw, Budapest and other Soviet bloc cities stare in awe at the shop windows that reflect the economic miracle that has converted the once lowly Soviet Zone into the world's ninth industrial power with a standard of living higher than any other Warsaw Pact nation.

Visitors from the West are impressed, too. In the 10 years since the wall was built on the East-West Berlin border, East Berlin has been transformed.

Gone are the rubble heaps of war that were everywhere, the look of poverty and despair on the faces of the people, the feeling that the nation and its Communist leaders existed in a precarious state of balance and soon might be swept away.

Now the leaders exude confidence. And the people show pride in the efficiency and application that has made their country the second strongest industrial state in the Soviet bloc.

East Germans might not love their country or its leaders. Werner Obst, 41-year-old East German government management expert who escaped to the West two years ago, estimates East Germans would flee to the West by the hundreds of thousands again if the wall were removed.

But the wall, like the German Democratic Republic, appears here to stay. Behind it 17 million people in an area slightly larger than Ohio are making the best of the bargain.

For all its prosperity East Germany is a Communist dictatorship still run on the tight police state lines established by old Stalinist Walter Ulbricht.

But in many ways it is a model as police states go. Other East European nations could take a page from its book.

The replacement, for example, of the 77-year-old ailing Ulbricht as Communist Party first secretary by Erich Honecker set an example for peaceful change.

Ulbricht stepped down without pressure, ill will or recrimination and made way for the man always considered his protege and crown prince.

Although a Stalinist, Ulbricht allowed his managers and specialists to carry out economic reforms and freed them from the bureaucratic central planning that has stifled the economies of other Communist nations.

Even the collective farms in East Germany are models of efficiency and profitable enterprises by Soviet bloc standards.

Improvements Are Still In Future

By ELMER ROESSNER

As the third quarter of 1971 approaches, it appears that some changes in business will occur but that the dramatic improvement, so freely predicted by some exonomists six months ago, is still in the future.

This can be expected in July and August:

. There will be rises in both employment and unemployment. There will be an increase in jobs through hiring for agriculture, travel and resorts, home building and other summer activities. There will be an increase in unemployment because more graduates and students will be poured on the labor market than summer employers need.

. There will be more layoffs, thinly disguised. Many companies have postponed layoffs, preferring to close down in summer for plant vacations. Many that have made plant vacations an annual practices will stretch them a little longer this year.

That Steel Strike

. The threat of a steel workers strike will continue to delay recovery. It has not been generally realized, but the fear of a strike has had a depressing effect on business. Corporations have been reluctant to go ahead on plant and equipment spending with a steel strike threatening. A strike and the subsequent price rise in steel can upset plans. Worse, a long strike by steel workers can plunge the economy into a deeper hole than the General Motors strike did last year.

ELMER ROESSNER

. Best guesses now are for a short strike. Labor observers say that both sides would welcome it. The United Steelworkers would like to demonstrate their power over the industry. There has been full employment during the inventory build-up by steel users and many workers would like and can afford longer-than-usual vacations. And the companies would like a strike because it would serve to work down heavy inventories, creating a fresh demand for steel; because a strike would provide a rationale for a steel price boost, which will come anyway; and because there will be summer plant closings anyhow.

Other To-Comes

. The cost of living increase will slow down a bit. The normal summer increase in food supplies will tend to prevent large price increases in that sector, and the continued high rate of unemployment will slow sales of many durables and apparel, forcing distress price cuts. Those summer layoffs will also cut consumer spending.

. More airlines will ask the Civil Aeronautics Board for permission to discontinue flights this fall and winter. Airlines are avoiding immediate reductions, hoping that vacation business will reduce current losses.

. Many states will seek to lure insurance companies from Connecticut and Massachusetts, which are levying new and higher taxes on insurance companies. Several are setting up subsidiaries in other states in preparation to shifting assets and income.

Meredith Finds Life Best In The South

By HUGH MORGAN

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — James H. Meredith, returning to live in the southern state where he made civil rights history, says he concluded after residing six years in New York City that the "most prejudiced whites in America are in the North."

The 38-year-old Meredith said that while racial animosity still existed in the South, the racial climate is "significantly better" than in 1962 when he became the first black to enter the University of Mississippi.

Federal troops were summoned and the National Guard was federalized during the encounter that occurred when Meredith enrolled at Ole Miss.

Meredith said he had visited Mississippi six times earlier this year and he never had any "occasion of embarrassment, much less an occasion of humiliation, much less an attempt at it."

He moved to Jackson with his wife and three sons earlier this month.

Meredith said in an interview that on a "person-person, day-to-day basis, the South is a more livable place for blacks than any other place in the nation."

He said the racial atmosphere is "extremely tense" in northern cities and that the gap is large between whites and blacks in the North.

"They may ride on the subway, but they don't relate at all," Meredith said.

"It's going to become a hellhole in the cities in the North. The education system is completely chaotic," he said.

Meredith commented during his "economic development day" Saturday at the Jackson Coliseum, which was intended to attract blacks interested in getting more economic power.

Only a few showed up, but Meredith said he would have another event next year and would continue working toward giving blacks economic assistance.

Meredith advocates an economic idea he calls "Cooperative distribution." He explained it as a system in which people form groups to buy goods, so they can reduce the over-all costs.

Meredith, a distributor of personal care, home and auto care products, said that unlike New York, his three sons will have the opportunity in Mississippi to "roam the pastures and the fields."

Late Talk Show Not For Cullen

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If it involves television or radio and it isn't acting, Bill Cullen is a man for the job.

"I don't know what to call what I do," said Cullen, knocking wood, "but I haven't been unemployed since 1939."

Mostly, Bill plays games. For the past couple of years he has been on the panel of the syndicated "To Tell The Truth." Next Aug. 2, he will be host of a new NBC day-time game, "Three On a Match."

He got into broadcasting in his home town of Pittsburgh, arriving in New York in 1944 as a staff announcer for CBS. Radio is still part of his life—a syndicated radio show for the past 10 years, and six years on NBC's "Emphasis." But his broadcasting identity is rooted in a series of long-playing game shows where his quick ad libs and informal manner have paid off.

"Things overlapped," Bill said. "I was working on 'I've Got a Secret' when both 'The Price Is Right' and 'Eye Guess' started. 'Eye Guess' was still on the air when they decided to bring back 'To Tell The Truth.'"

The life of the average game show is short, but Cullen has been especially lucky. "I've Got a Secret" was well over 10 years old when it disappeared. He was host of "The Price Is Right" for nine.

His next assignment sounds like another variation of the question—answer games that fill NBC's day-time hour. Bill said it worked nicely in the pilot, then shrugged and said, "We'll probably bring in changes as we go along."

"One night on 'Price' the show was running short, and I threw in a bonus to fill up time: I gave away an auto. Another time when we were short of time, I put in a one-bid item—a trip to the Rose Bowl game. Both ideas were added permanently to the game."

He never sees the contestants of any show until they are on the air.

"As host, the important thing is to make instant evaluations of the contestants. You must realize it instantly if, somehow, you're stuck with a smart aleck. They are always a potential embarrassment. I handle them by keeping them just off balance and never give them a chance to start anything," he said.

He likes what he does, and turns down offers to appear in stock and, after one experience, keeps away from the late night talk shows.

"They aren't my idea of a good time—walking out there with the thought, 'Now I've got to be very entertaining for the next five minutes'," he said. "Never again—not even Carson."

prehensions are given substance by the continued sluggishness of the economy and enigmatic economic forecasts. When his political operatives report from around the country that voters applaud Mr. Nixon's foreign policy initiatives but bemoan his record as manager of the economy, the Peace President scenario becomes more frozen into policy than ever.

Shrewd observers of American politics that they are, the men in the Kremlin could counter by trying to ruin Mr. Nixon as Peace President. For example, despite having issued a mutual agreement-to-agree on defensive nuclear systems, the Russians could easily find a reason not to sign the treaty at the last moment and thereby leave the President dangerously exposed at home.

Embarrassing though that would be, the greater danger will come if the Kremlin decides to exploit the Peace President theme by steadily raising the ante on him regarding SALT, Berlin, and European troop reductions. That is why the euphoric talk of peace breaking out all over, so popular at the White House, carried a certain chill for some careful students of foreign policy inside the government.

Overpowered By Two Women

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A deputy sheriff was overpowered Saturday by a female shoplifter and her companion. The two women escaped with merchandise stolen from a chain discount store.

Deputy James C. Cameron Jr. described the shoplifter as being 5-feet-6 and about 115 pounds. Her companion, who had stayed in a car during the theft, was smaller.

Cameron was treated for scrapes and scratches at a hospital.

Teacher Of Wood-Workers Furnishing Own Home

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"Eventually I hope to completely furnish our home with furniture I've made myself," said Bob Tate of 303 Dellwood Dr.

The woodworking master is well on his way toward his goal with numerous well-made and beautifully finished pieces in every room of the house.

The teacher of all woodworking courses in the Industrial and Technical Education Department at East Carolina University, he says the most important step in building any piece of furniture is the sanding."I've never met anyone who really enjoys this job, but it's necessary to do lots and lots of it if you want the beautiful finish that distinguishes a fine piece of furniture. Once you learn how to make the various joints, construction isn't too difficult.

"Of course, your choice of wood, choice of style, and accessories are important, too. I once had a woodworking professor who said, 'There are two kinds of wood — cherry and firewood.' I prefer walnut, though. As for style, I like traditional, but my wife, Lorine, likes provincial, so we have some of both."

Tate made walnut cabinets for a stereo set and two speakers after his wife gave him a kit of components several Christmases ago. Traditionally styled and matching in design, the three pieces have ogee bracket feet.

Also used in the living room is a walnut coffee table with an inlay of imitation leather on the top.

Various accessories in the living room were made by him, also. These include chip mosaics of musical instruments used over the piano and some enameled copper bowls. The most impressive accessories, however, are three sets of candlesticks, all of walnut. Two of the sets are fairly simple in design, one traditional, the other modern. The turning of the third, however, involved much finer work. A spiraled effect was achieved only by using a special jig he made himself for the purpose, Tate said.

One of the prettiest pieces in the house is a reproduction of a colonial tilt-top table Tate made of walnut. This is used in the dining room.

"A real bargain" in some mahogany boards resulted in a drop leaf table with Queen Anne legs. The table is complemented by four mohagany chairs. "A friend carved the single rose on the back of each with a multi-spindle carver for me," Tate said. "My wife made all the needlepoint coverings for the seats. A couple of years before I made the chairs, I told her, 'Lorine, you do some needlepoint for the seats and I'll make some chairs.' Six months later the seat coverings were completed and I hadn't even started on the chairs themselves."

In the master bedroom there is a French provincial night table, made by Tate to match the commercially built bedroom suite, which is antique white trimmed in gold. A gift to his wife was an elaborate walnut jewelry box. "The box is nice," he said, "But Lorine's is by no means unique. My advanced woodworking students designed and mass produced them last year."

"I love doing this kind of work," Tate said. "Usually I make a lot of our gifts to relatives and friends. Before this past Christmas I got on a boat-making kick and made several as gifts."

Using a burlap background, he fashions a simple wooden hull and then strings the sails in an elaborate pattern. "My son, Jimmy, has also made some of these. We got the pattern for the stringing from a friend. It's not difficult, just time-consuming.

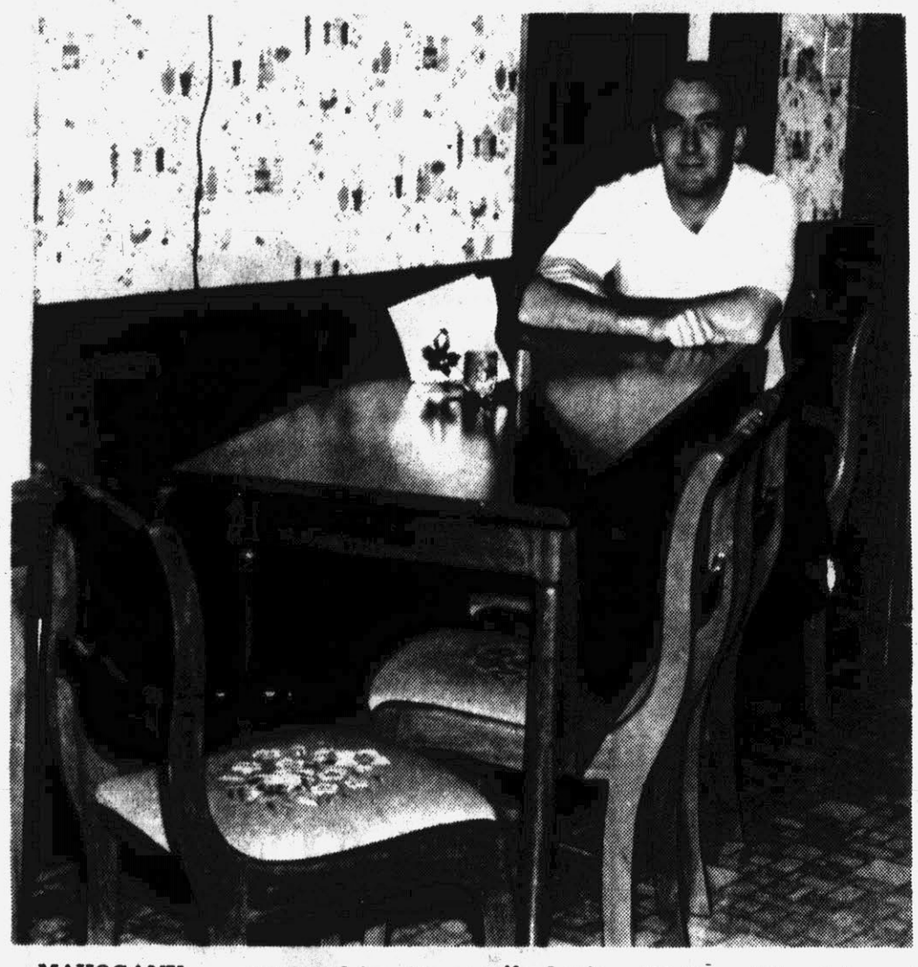

"It seems I haven't done much that's very complicated for our home lately. Teaching, when you love it and put yourself into it as I do, takes most of your time."

Tate also makes some prototypes of furniture for Edinburgh Industries, a furniture manufacturing firm in Chocowinity. "This past year during Christmas vacation, some of my students and I made a chest of drawers, a dresser, and a bed, all with Mediterranean styling, for the company. We spent about 100 hours over a period of eight days. The company takes these sample pieces to furniture shows. If a distributor buys the design, they mass produce it. If not, the idea is junked.

"Yes, I've got a lot more ideas for projects I want to complete for our home. I've got the posts turned for a king-sized bed, but that's all. During my school years, I thought there'd be more time once I got established. I guess that's it — I'm not really established. Although our oldest son, Steve, will enter N.C. State University next year, I'm still a student there." Tate is taking one course a semester working toward his doctorate in Industrial Education.

A Gastonia native, he attended Appalachian State College for two years, served in the Air Force for four years, and then worked three years after he was discharged. Then he started back to Appalachian, graduating in 1964 with a degree in Industrial Education. He earned his M.A. there in the same field the following year.

"I can't imagine why it took me so long to get into this field," he said, "I really love it and I like our department here at ECU—did you know it's the largest in the state? Our industrial ed and industrial technology graduates have a bright future ahead of them no matter what they specialize in. There will always be a demand for skilled labor and a demand for persons to teach other these skills."

MAHOGANY . . . was used for this drop leaf table and chairs. Bob Tate poses with the dining set he made. His wife, Lorine, did the neddlepoint seat coverings.

COLONIAL TABLE . . . has a tilt top. Atop it are modern candlesticks also made by Tate.

STEREO CABINET AND SPEAKERS . . . to match were made by Tate. Displayed on top are spiraled candlesticks also made by him.

Predicts More Teacher Strikes

By WILLIAM J. WAUGH
AP Education Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The president-elect of the National Education Association predicts that teacher strikes will increase in the 1971-72 school year.

And he believes that the NEA's 109th annual convention delegates will stand firm against public aid to private schools.

Donald E. Morrison, San Diego, Calif., social science teacher, made his observations Sunday in an interview, five days before he will assume leadership of the 1.1 million-member teacher organization.

"I look for more strikes and they will come in areas that will surprise a lot of people," he said when asked about the possibility of such action.

He said strikes would not necessarily be over wages but "over reluctance of school boards to negotiate and reluctance to give teachers a voice in decision making."

He said that the NEA modified its position in 1965 to support the elementary-secondary school act which permitted private schools to participate in some federal programs. But in 1970 at San Francisco the delegates, overriding the leadership, voted to oppose all aid to private schools and called for a halt in their participation in existing programs.

"I don't think it will be changed at this convention," he said.

Talking about federal assistance to private colleges, Morrison said, "I personally support complete separation at all levels-private funds supporting private schools."

Insofar as President Nixon's statements supporting assistance that will help private schools survive, Morrison said:

"For the President of the United States to talk about public funds to private schools and the voucher system is the most irresponsible action ever witnesses in this country."

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices drifted lower as investors took to the sidelines. Trading was slow.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 4.09 to 872.59.

Declines led advances on the New York Stock Exchange by a small margin. Analysts noted there was little in the news background to encourage investor participation. They said institutions were reshuffling their portfolios in preparation for second-quarter earnings reports and this was a downward drag on the market.

Al Ferner Leaving ECU Post To Take New Coaching Job

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Al Ferner, assistant basketball coach at East Carolina University for the past year, has been named head basketball coach at the Baptist College at Charleston, Athletic Director Howard Bagwell announced Monday.

Ferner has served as a recruiter, assistant varsity coach and head freshman coach at ECU and this past season his freshman team finished with a 12-4 record, the best ever for East Carolina.

Prior to joining the East Carolina staff he served 11 years in the New Jersey high school ranks as head basketball coach at Pennsauken High. Ewign High in Trenton and Bridgeton High.

Ferner was the 1958-59 captain of the LaSalle College basketball team and was an All-East selection in 1958. He earned 11 letters as a high school basketball, football and baseball player at Collingswood, N.J. where his basketball coach was Jack McCloskey, now head coach at Wake Forest University.

He received his bachelor's degree from LaSalle in 1959 and his Masters in Education from Rutgers in 1965.

"I couldn't be more pleased over Al's decision to join our staff," said Bagwell. "He comes to us highly recommended both as a gentleman and a coach. I look forward to working with him and developing our basketball program."

Ferner succeeds Mel Gibson who resigned after four years as head coach.

Cites Maze For Addicts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's anti-drug campaign is spread among so many agencies that an addict is doomed "to wander through a bureaucratic maze" to find proper treatment, Dr. Jerome H. Jaffe told Congress today.

"There are nine federal agencies now involved in some facet of the drug abuse problem including six offering some form of treatment program and five engaged in education and training," he said.

Jaffe, President Nixon's new special consultant for narcotics and dangerous drugs, urged quick enactment of a bill giving legislative status to the White House's new Special Action Office fo Drug Abuse Prevention. The new agency is designed to oversee all government activity on the problem.

"We must bring them together in a coordinated attack upon the total problem," he said.

During his first three years in the job, Jaffe said he hoped to cut the rising rate of drug addiction, lower the number of drug-related deaths, reduce the level of drug use in schools, increase the number of those treated by effective methods and boost the number of rehabilitated addicts placed in jobs.

Agnew Makes Guam Stop

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

GUAM (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said today any South Korean plans to reduce forces in South Vietnam, a likely subject at talks in Korea this week, won't affect the Nixon administration's troop withdrawal program for Southeast Asia.

Agnew also said the troop question is primarily one between the governments of South Korea and South Vietnam.

South Korea reportedly is considering a withdrawal of about 15,000 of its 48,000 troops in Vietnam.

Talking with reporters on Air Force Two en route to this Western Pacific island, the vice president said "it is logical to expect" that the question of South Korean troops will be raised in his talks in Seoul with President Chung Hee Park and Prime Minister Kimchong Pil.

In response to a question, Agnew said, "I don't feel there is any possibility the action of the Republic of Korean government is determining the levels of their troops in Vietnam will affect in any way the announced withdrawal program of American troops."

Agnew stopped over here Monday night after the long trans-Pacific flight from El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, Calif. He flies Tuesday for Seoul, first stop on a month-long visit to 11 countries in Asia, Africa and Europe.

The vice president said before leaving California the objective of his mission "is to touch base in a diplomatic sense and to take the confidential message from the President to the chiefs of state of those countries—nothing of any tremendous moment but just a continuing effort to maintain the best possible liaison with those chiefs of state."

In Korea, Agnew will represent President Nixon at Thursday's inauguration of President Park for a third four-year term and will also participate in what he described as "quite extensive" talks with Korean leaders.

On other subjects, Agnew told reporters:

—The Mansfield amendment to the draft extension bill, calling for a total U.S. withdrawal from Indochina within nine months if American prisoners are freed, is "unstatisfactory" to the Nixon administration.

—The recent North Vietnamese attacks in the northern part of South Vietnam have not developed to any degree that was not anticipated and are being handled without much difficulty by the allied forces.

—"I certainly would enjoy visiting mainland China. It would be good for both our countries to have our officials interchange visits."

—Any speculation he might not be on the 1972 Republican ticket, either through his choice or President Nixon's, is "premature and I've made no decision."

The trip is Agnew's third overseas mission as vice president and also the longest. The only countries on his schedule which he has visited before are Korea and Singapore, where he will go from Seoul for a two-day rest stop and informal talks with Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew.

From there, the vice president heads west to a refueling stop in Bombay, India, and official visits to Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Ethiopia, Kenya, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Spain, Morocco and Portugal before his return to Washington July 28.

Agnew's mind was evidently on Asia when, in response to a question before his departure from California about possible talks to strengthen the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, he said "My visits to Europe, of course, do not include the countries that are involved in NATO, and I would doubt that that subject would be discussed in any destination."

Portugal is a NATO member and Spain, while not a member, cooperates with the Atlantic alliance house several large U.S. air bases.

7 Survived Plane Crash

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A chartered DC3 airliner carrying 23 Californians, 19 of them real estate salesmen, crashed into rocky coastal waters during takeoff. The Coast Guard said seven persons survived.

Ten bodies were recovered after the Sunday night crash about 50 miles south of here. High winds and rough seas with four-foot waves hampered the search for the six missing persons, the Coast Guard reported.

The twin-engine plane, chartered by the Shelter Cove Co. of Los Angeles, was carrying 19 company salesmen, an unidentified woman and the pilot, copilot and stewardess, who were returning home after a weekend at the Shelter Cove land development-resort. The flight was headed for the Los Angeles area with a stop en route at San Jose, airport spokesmen said.

The survivors included the stewardess and six salesman, the Coast Guard said.

The plane clipped the roof of a sewage treatment building below the bluff at the north end of the runway and hurtled toward the ocean, striking a rock about 50 yards offshore.

The rocks and high seas prevented small boats from getting to the plane wreckage. But Tom Wallace, 21, of Redway, used a surfboard to help two of the survivors to safety, Mrs. Machi said.

Dave Zebo, Humboldt County aviation director, said the aircraft appeared to dip on takeoff before hitting the sewage plant roof about 10 feet below the runway, then shot off a low bluff to the ocean.

Some 30 local fishing boats converged for the rescue work, until Coast Guard aircraft and the 82-foot cutter Point Ledge arrived from Fort Bragg, 75 miles south of here. A large spotlight truck on shore illuminated the area for divers and boat crews.

The injured were brought to hospitals here and in Garberville. The dead were taken to a mortuary at Garberville, about 20 miles inland.

Accident Caused Power Outage

The temporary power outage affecting parts of downtown Greenville and residential areas in the east of town late this morning was occasioned by a truck hitting a telephone pole at Fourth and Jarvis Streets.

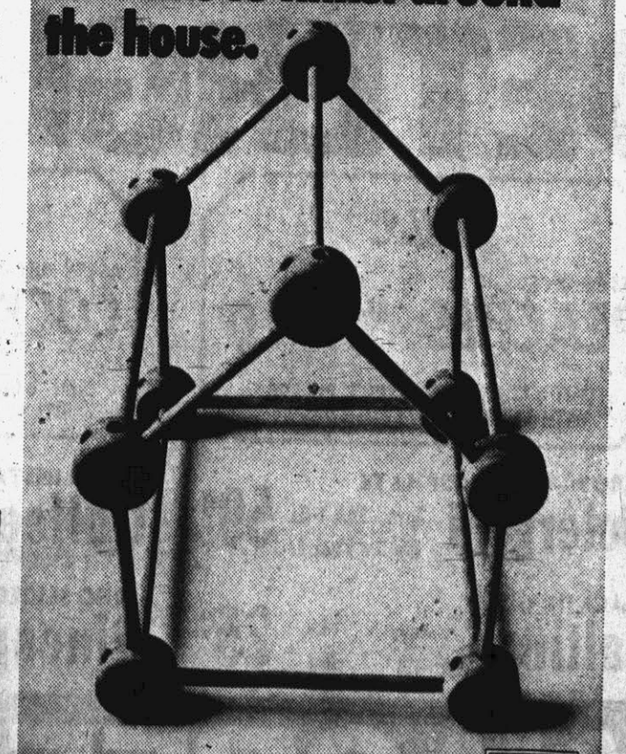

E. T. Buck, line forman for Greenville Utilities, said the accident caused a service line to be thrown into contact with a high voltage line. Workmen were soon on the spot to separate the two and restore power.

No extensive damage or injuries were noted as a result of the accident.

Local Legion Team Takes Two In Marathon Session

Greenville's American Legion picked up two victories yesterday in a marathon session that lasted nearly six hours. They downed Wilmington's Post 10 in the first game of a double header, 7-3, then came back to beat Winter Park of Wilmington, 9-6, in the second contest.

The victory in the opener, avenged one of the three losses the Greenville team has sustained this year. Post 10, which finished third in the nation last year, beat Greenville, 1-0 in the opening game of the year.

Greenville pushed into the lead in that game by scoring two runs in the second inning. Joe West walked and Jimmy Bond reached on an error. Glenn Forbes singled to center, scoring West and moving Bond to third. The two runners worked the double steal with Bond scoring for a 2-0 lead.

In the third, Greenville added another run. Bill Lee walked and stole second. Jimmy Paige singled to drive him across.

Wilmington got its first run in the top of the fourth. Henry Paula walked and moved up on Billy Smith's hit. Ronnie Dove then sacrificed him across to make it 3-1.

Greenville came up with four more runs in the bottom of the fourth, however, to up its lead to 7-1. Russ Smith walked and Bond singled. Forbes, attempting to sacrifice, reached on an error, loading the bases. J. C. Daniels singled to right, scoring Smith, and a wild pitch brought in Bond. Lee then singled to drive in both Forbes and Daniels with the final Greenville runs.

Post 10 got another run in the seventh. Robert Billingsley reached on a fielder's choice and moved around to score when Joe Johnson doubled.

The final run came in the ninth. That was a leadoff homer by Dove.

Winter Park proved to be the tougher nut to crack for Greenville. The visitors held the lead until the sixth inning of the contest when Greenville charged back from behind.

Greenville had taken the lead in the first inning with a run. Larry Dixon was hit by a pitch and took second on a passed ball. He went to third on an infield out, and after Jimmy Paige walked, Dixon stole home on a double steal for a 1-0 lead.

Winter Park came up with two runs in the second, however, to gain the lead. Ed Fowler singled and scored on Ron Musselman's double. Musselman went on to third on the relay to home. Dave Davidson walked, and another double steal was attempted, with Davidson being picked off, but Musselman scoring.

In the third, Winter Park added another run. Thurston Watkins singled and took second on a wild pitch. Mike Parker attempted to sacrifice, but was safe on an error that left Watkins score for a 3-1 lead.

In the fifth, two more scored. John Hackman singled and George Swain got a hit. Both advanced to an out, and Steve King singled to right, driving in both runners.

Greenville started its comeback in the sixth, scoring four runs to tie it at 5-5. Steve Worthington walked and Dixon got a hit. Lee doubled to score Worthington, and Phil Blount followed with a hit, driving in both Dixon and Lee. Timmy James walked and Larry Hatton singled, scoring Blount with the tieing run.

But Winter Park went back ahead with another run in the seventh. Swain walked and stole second. He took third on Derrick Ham's single, and again, a double steal brought in the run.

But Greenville came back with three more in their half of the seventh to wrap it up. West doubled and came around on two wilk pitches. Kim Harbin walked and stole second. Daniels singled, and he and Harbin worked the double steal, and an error let Daniels go on to third. Lee walked and Blount grounded out, scoring Daniels with the eighth run.

Greenville added one more in the eighth. Joey Moore singled and Ronald Hooks walked. West reached on an error, scoring Hatton with the final run.

Greenville will be at home again Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field. Their guest will again be Winter Park.

Bucs Roll Over Louisburg In 4-1 Win

BUNN — East Carolina University's Pirates upped their record to 3-2 yesterday with a 4-1 victory over Louisburg.

The Pirates put all of their scoring together in one inning, the first as they got in their first game in nearly a week after three straight games were washed out by rain.

Don Oxidine hurled the victory for the Bucs, going all the way for the win. He scattered six hits along the way, and kept Louisburg off the basepaths most of the day, despite having five walks in his totals.

The Bucs meanwhile, picked up 10 hits, six of them in the first inning when they did all the damage. They offered only one other threat during the afternoon.

East Carolina started it off when Mike Bradshaw led off the game with a single. Matt Walker followed with a hit and Larry Walters singled. Bradshaw, however, was caughter in a run-down off third on the relay back to the plate, and tagged out.

Troy Eason put the Bucs into the lead with a single that scored Walker. Ralph Lamm provided another hit, scoring Walters. John Narron was safe on an error, scoring Eason, and Rich McMahon slapped a double to bring in Lamm with the fourth Pirate run.

The only other threat came in the third when the Bucs put on two runners as Eason and Lamm both singled.

Louisburg was held in check until the fourth when walks got Oxidine into trouble and brought in the only run. Jim Garland led off with a walk and Rick Richardson reached the same way. They were sacrificed up by Allen Barbour, and Wayne Ellington drew the third walk of the inning. Wayne Currin hit a sacrifice fly to score Garland. But that was the end of the Hurricane threat, as the next man went down.

Louisburg offered two more threats. In the seventh, Driver and Layton both picked up singles, but Louisburg couldn't push over a run. In the eighth, a single by Richardson and a walk to Ellington put another man into scoring position with two outs, but the frame came to an end there when Oxidine picked Richardson off second for the final out.

The Pirates travel to Campbell tonight for their next game.

Slow-Race Strategy Pays Off

THUMBS UP — Racing fans at Mont Rembiant (Que.) give their "thumbs up" of approval as Jackie Stewart (front) passes Denis Hulme in the fifty-second lap of the Can-Am race Sunday. Stewart went on to win the race after seventy-five laps of racing. (CP Wirephoto)

MONT TREMBLANT, Que. (AP) — A pre-race strategy of driving slowly to preserve his car paid off Sunday for Jackie Stewart as he swept by an ailing Denis Hulme to win the Canadian-American Challenge Cup race at Le Circuit over the favored McLaren team.

For 51 of the 75 laps it looked like the same old Can-Am story with Hulme's McLaren M-F taking the lead from the start and running easily at the head of the pack.

Then on lap 52, Stewart's Lola T260 outbraked Hulme going into the hairpin turn leading to the start-finish straight and jumped ahead.

The 32-year-old Scot extended his lead throughout the late stages of the race and finished 66.8 seconds ahead of Hulme and a lap ahead of Peter Revson, the other Team McLaren driver.

Stewart said after the race he followed a strategy worked out by his team to keep the car running throughout the 198.5 mile event.

"I've been waiting a long time for this," the former world driving champion said after the race.

His average speed for the race was 100.95 miles an hour, compared with 98.76 miles an hour for the runnerup.

Hulme, leading driver for the McLaren team which has dominated Can-Am racing for the past four years, had trouble maintaining his pace and complained of nausea when the event ended.

He and several other drivers and mechanics apparently became sick as the result of eating tainted food prior to the race.

Lother Motschenbacher of Beverly Hills, Calif., who finished fifth in a McLaren M-D behind fellow Californian Chuck Parsons in a similar car, almost decided not to race because he felt so ill.

However, Motschenbacher moved his car from the fourth starting spot he earned in qualifying to the back of the grid and decided to race for as long as he was able to fight off sickness.

Jim Adams of Hollywood, Calif., was not so lucky. He qualified his Ferrari 512 in eight position but felt so sick he was unable to start the race.

Pitch, Hit And Throw Winners

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Four southern youngsters have won division championships for their respective age groups in the annual major league baseball pitch, hit and throw competition.

The winners Sunday were Jerry Floyd of Sumter, S.C., 9-year-olds; Chester Masterson of Vicksburg, Miss., 10-year-olds; David Hafer of Rosewell, Ga., 11-year-olds, and Wallace McDuffie Jr., Gadsden, Ala., 12-year-olds.

Runners up in the respective groups were Eddie Barker of Chatsworth, Ga.; Barry Clayton of Asheville, N.C.; Randy Ainsworth of Picayune, Miss., and Rolland Gaither of Auburndale, Fla.

The winning scores in the Atlanta Stadium competition will be compared with those of regional winners in 11 other divisions to determine the eight boys who will compete for national championships at the All-Star game in Detroit on July 13.

Mark Donohue And The Unser Brothers Head Field For 500

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Tigerish Mark Donohue and the fabulous Unser brothers, Bobby and Al, head a field of 33 starters for the inaugural Schaefer 500 mile championship auto race that old pro Joe Leonard says will be a "survival of the fittest."

The lineup for the $430,000 "Indianapolis of The East" scheduled for July 3, was completed in final time trials Sunday at the new $6 million Pocono International Raceway.

Donohue, the 32-year-old Brown University alumnus whose baby face and easy-going manners belie his exploits on the track, put his Roger Penske-owned McLaren on the pole at a 10-mile average speed of 172.393 miles per hour.

His fast lap of 172,967 m.p.h. will serve as the track's 2.5 mile standard, though most drivers say it may be years before anybody else equals it.

Bobby Unser, oldest of Mom Unser's driving sons, put together four laps at 171.847 m.p.h. to get the middle spot in the front row in Dan Gurney's Olsenite-Eagle. He also had a lap at 172-plus and admitted "anything beyond that takes real guts."

Al Unser, whose two straight Indianapolis triumphs and 15 championship wins have brought him $750,000 in prize money in less than two years, qualified his Johnny Lightning Special at 170.365 to gain the outside berth.

The second row will be anchored by Leonard, a 36-year-old veteran from San Jose, Calif., who was clocked at 169.533 m.p.h.

Leonard's second row partners will be Mario Andretti, the local favorite from nearby Nazareth, Pa., and plucky little Gordon Johncock, of Mt. Pleasant, Mich.

The course, carved out of a 1,025-acre former spinach field in the scenic Pocono Mountains, has drawn praise from only a few and a mixture of awe and criticism from many.

Pearce Paces Deacon Golfers

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Wake Forest's Eddie Pearce shot a four-round 282 this weekend to pace the Demon Deacons in their fourth-place showing in the NCAA golf championships.

Pearce's score was good enough for a third-place standing in the individual laurels. But the Wake team, with a total of 1155, was bested by Florida, Houston and the winning 1144 of Texas.

Wake Forest's Lanny Wadkins placed sixth individually with 285, while Martin West of North Carolina edged his way into the standings with 290 and 22nd place.

Semi-Pros Split 2 With Rocky Mount

Greenville's semi-pro baseball team split a pair of games with Rocky Mount yesterday. Greenville took the first, 8-0, on a one-hitter by Ronal Vincent, but Rocky Mount won the second, 2-1, in 11 innings.

Vincent was not tagged for a hit until the fifth inning when Wayne Anderson got to him for a double. Only two other men reached base, both on errors.

Greenville pushed over three in the fourth to take the lead. Grant Jarman singled and Kenny Beaman got a hit. Charles Meeks doubled to score Jarman, and Al Gurganus reached on an error that brought in both Beaman and Meeks.

The other five runs came in the sixth. Jarman opened up with a homer and Meeks was hit by a pitch. He stole second and Howard Leggett walked. Vincent singled and Kent Leggett got a hit to score Meeks. Jeff Jenkins doubled to score Howard Leggett, Vincent and Kent Leggett with the final runs.

In the second game, it was a different story. Rocky Mount scored in the third. Sonny Wooten walked and was safe at second on an error when Danny Price reached on a fielder's choice. Ricky Leonard reached on another error, loading the bases. Howard McCollough walked, forcing in Wooten.

Greenville tied it up with a run in the seventh. Meeks singled and stole second. He scored on Al Gurganus' double.

Finally, in the 11th Rocky Mount pushed over the winning run. Wayne Andrews singled and stole second. He took third on a passed ball and scored on Robert Vick's sacrifice fly.

Dixie Baseball

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Dixie Baseball Association will be abandoned at the end of this season, Dr. Bernard M. Kraus, owner and president of the Memphis Blues said Sunday.

Kraus said directors of the Texas League have voted to return to an eight-team format in 1972, cancel a working agreement with the Southern League and discard the Dixie Association.

Kraus said the action by the Texas League directors was unanimous at a weekend meeting in Dallas.

Carner's Prize

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Donna Caponi has the key to the city of Erie, but it was JoAnne Carner who unlocked the Kahkwa Club course and latched onto the $5,000 first prize in the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

Mrs. Carner, a strapping strawberry blonde who can outdrive any woman on the professional tour, polished up her putting and parred the 6,306-yard course over 72 holes for a seven-stroke victory in the most prestigious of women's tournaments Sunday. Her four-round total was 288 with a final round of 73.

"No three-putts, that was the key," said the 32-year-old of Lake Worth, Fla., who said she got her game together in the last two weeks.

But for the girls who fell so far behind her—runner-up Kathy Whitworth, seven strokes back, and defending champion Miss Caponi, knotted with three others at 11 strokes off the pace—it was Mrs. Carner's powerful drives which were the key.

JoAnne's teaching pro husband, Don, said that because of the rolling terrain of Kahkwa, the kind of course JoAnne was weaned on in Seattle, the girls have to birdie to beat her.

It was a flat course in Muskogee, Okla., last year that Miss Caponi played to victory, and the 26-year-old resident of North Hollywood, Calif., didn't change her game a stroke in her unsuccessful bid for an unprecedented third straight U.S. Open title.

"The Open really means I beat the pros," said Mrs. Carner, a five-time U.S. Amateur champion.

The pro to beat at Kahkwa was Miss Whitworth of Richmond, Tex. She is the all-time leading money-winner on the women's tour and has won 59 tournaments, but never the Open.

Miss Whitworth, tied with four-time Open winner Mickey Wright at eight strokes off the pace going into the final round, parred the course Sunday for $2,500 and runner-up honors.

Cokes Zoom To 16-3 Victory

Coca-Cola rolled to a 16-3 victory over R.C. Cola yesterday in a North State Little League game. The contest had been postponed from Saturday.

The Optimists lead the league with a 13-1 record, while the Kiwanis are second with a 10-4 mark. Coke is now third at 6-8, while the Jaycees and R.C. are tied for fourth at 5-9. The Lions are last, 3-11.

Coke started things off with a seven-run outburst in the first inning. David Lowe walked and Gary Chapman singled. Greg Lassiter got a hit, loading the bases. Mike Sutton then doubled to score Lowe, and Chapman. Tony Worthington went out, but Lassiter scored on the play. Will Sanderson singled, scoring Sutton, and Ronnie Chapman got a hit. Marshal Crumpler reached on an error, scoring Sanderson and Chapman, and Crumpler came all the way around on the miscue, too.

R.C. came back with two in the bottom of the first. Billy Ellington walked and took second on a passed ball. Bryant Morton singled. Mike Brown reached on an error, loading the bases and Ricky Bolonde walked to score Ellington. Timmy Peaden was hit by a pitch, scoring Morton.

In the top of the second, Coke got three more runs. Sutton singled and Worthington walked. Sanderson reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Sutton and Worthington and he went to third on an error and interference. Ronnie Chapman singled him across.

The final Coke run came in the second. Ellington singled, took second on a wild pitch, and came around on two passed balls.

From their 10-3 lead, Coke added two more in the fourth, two in the fifth and two in the sixth for the final 16-3 margin.

It never rains inside the Houston Astrodome but it generally pours for the San Francisco Giants anyway.

Sunday was no exception as the Giants lost to the Astros 5-2, making it 20 setbacks for their last 25 ventures inside the Dome.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh edged Philadelphia 10-9 after dropping the opener 8-4, Montreal trounced the New York Mets 12-4, Los Angeles trimmed San Diego 7-2, the Chicago Cubs down St. Louis 5-1 and Cincinnati held off Atlanta 7-5.

In the American League, Boston took Baltimore 3-1, Cleveland shaded Detroit 3-1, Washington swept a pair from the New York Yankees 2-1 and 8-0, Oakland blanked Kansas City 3-0 but lost the nightcap 6-3, Minnesota edged Milwaukee 2-1 and the Brewers won the second game 8-5 and California whipped the Chicago White Sox twice 2-1 and 12-3.

The Giants jumped off to a 2-0 lead Sunday against rookie Ken Forsch, but the Astros took a 3-2 lead off Steve Stone in the fifth on RBI singles by Bob Watson and Roger Metzger around Doug Rader's sacrifice fly. Jim Wynn singled a pair of runs across against Jerry Johnson in the seventh.

The Pirates, meanwhile, blew a five-run lead against the Phillies and then had to overcome a four-run deficit before winning their nightcap on Roberto Clemente's pinch homer in the eighth. Willie Stargell, who hit his 28th home run in the opener and broke Tony Perez' NL record for most homers through June 30, struck out as a pinch hitter just before Clemente connected.

Earlier, Jose Pagan hit two homers and drove in five runs for the Pirates while Deron Johnson homered twice for the Phillies.

Roger Freed's game-tying home run and doubles by Denny Doyle and Willie Montanez keyed a four-run seventh inning that enabled the Phils to win the opener.

The Mets dropped four games behind Pittsburgh in the NL East when Montreal exploded for seven runs in the first inning against Charlie Williams and Jim McAndrew on six hits and two errors. Ron Fairly and Stan Swanson each drove in three runs as the Expos ended New York's four-game winning streak.

John Strohmayer, subbing for the ailing Carl Morton, pitched his first complete game in the majors despite Art Shamsky's three-run homer.

Richie Allen clouted a two-run homer and Bill Buckner and pitcher Don Sutton also had two RBI as the Dodgers whipped the Padres and chopped a game off the Giants' lead in the NL West. They now trail by 6½.

The cubs moved past the Cardinals into third place in the East by handing St. Louis its 20th defeat in 27 games this month. Don Dessinger's two-run single in the sixth broke open a pitching duel between Ferguson Jenkins, who won his 11th, and Steve Carlton. Jim Hickman homered for the Cubs, Joe Torre for the Cards.

Cincinnati's Gary Nolan hurled perfect ball for 6 1-3 innings but needed Lee May's two-run homer in the ninth and relief help from Wayne Granger to beat the Braves.

Felix Millan spoiled Nolan's perfect game with a one-out single in the seventh and Hank Aaron belted the first of a pair of two-run homers. Bernie Carbo delivered three Cincy runs with a homer and double.

Artis Gilmore Leads Colonels

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Artis Gilmore, a 7-foot-2 draft choice from Jacksonville, shot, rebounded and blocked shooting to lead his Kentucky Colonels rookies to a 119-107 win over the Carolina Cougars beginers.

Gilmore impressed the 2,890 fans who turned out for the exhibition game at Charlotte Coliseum Saturday night as a player to watch next season in the American Basketball Association.

The Cougars, set aback by Gilmore's shot-blocking leaps, never caught up to the Colonels after an early 6-6 tie was broken, despite a 33-point performance by Jim McDaniels.

McDaniels, a former Western Kentucky star snatched by the Cougars, led scoring in the game with the total. He had 12 rebounds to boot.

Can you find the Volkswagen hidden in this picture?

If you can, you'll make us very sad.

Because we've troubled ourselves no end to hide it from you.

Our quest for the invisible Volkswagen took us all the way to Turin, Italy.

Where we asked the famous Ghia Studios to design us a sporty Italian body.

They did.

Their drawings clutched tightly in hand, we secretly prowled about Europe for the best coach builder we could find.

Success. To the Karmann Coachworks of Osnabrück we handed over Ghia's sketches with the injunction:

"Make it beautiful." (Or else.)

They did.

They welded. And burnished. And sculpted. And sanded. And painted.

Until they had shaped in steel what Ghia had shaped in pencil.

Smug in the knowledge that nobody could ever mistake this beautiful car for a Volkswagen, we made it a Volkswagen.

By concealing our air-cooled engine in back. (For better traction.)

And making it go about 26 miles on just one gallon.

Then we gave this Volkswagen its final disguise:

We named it the Karmann Ghia.

Mayor Says Sao Paulo Growth Must Be Stopped

By BRUCE HANDLER
Associated Press Writer

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Without warning, a trim, balding man wearing a sports shirt appears at a subway construction site. He converses briefly with engineers, makes a few notes and leaves. Minutes later he's at City Hall, presiding over a conference on flood control. Then he rushes off to the Sanitation Dept. to taste the rice and beans the streetcleaners are getting for lunch.

This is Jose Carlos de Figueiredo Ferraz, university professor, former track star and now mayor of South America's biggest city. Sympathetic friends say Figueiredo Ferraz has inherited South America's biggest problem.

"Sao Paulo must stop growing, or else it will turn into chaos," the 52-year-old mayor told a visitor. "Our population is increasing by more than 200,000 a year. We no longer have the resources to supply the people with basic services: housing, electricity, sanitation, transportation, water," he said. "Today, people don't 'live' in this city. They're punished by it."

Known to the rest of Brazil as "the city that can't stop," Sao Paulo has become an urban planner's nightmare. It has more than 6 million people within the city limits and is No. 2 in population in the Western Hemisphere. All indications are that it will overtake New York by 1980.

Sao Paulo is bigger in area than Los Angeles (576 sq. mi. versus 458), and its metropolitan area, with a population of more than 8 million, has nearly twice as many manufacturing plants (27,500) as greater Chicago.

GROWING CITY — Sao Paulo, Brazil, is South America's largest city and still growing. Its mayor wants the growth to stop "or else it will turn into chaos." Above, a partial view of the city's skyline. Below, a view of its bumper-to-bumper traffic.

The city has grown so fast government agencies have been hopelessly left behind in their efforts to keep pace. Downtown traffic is a massive snarl. The air is polluted. Millions of "Paulistas" lack telephones, paved and lighted streets, sewers and piped-in water. Neighborhood parks, schools and hospitals are luxuries for a privileged minority.

Why would anybody want to be the mayor?

"I was won over after some hard persuasion," explained Figueiredo Ferraz. "I'm not a politician. I think that by applying modern administrative methods, including computerized data processing, we can begin to work out logical solutions to our problems."

Married and the father of four children, Figueiredo Ferraz holds a Ph.D. in physical science and mathematics and another in architecture. He was South American 100-meter champion in the late 1930s. He doesn't smoke, prefers lemonade to whisky and—despite his gruelling schedule as mayor—still has a college class where he lectures twice a month on "Bridges and Large Structures."

The local press has given big play to the way Figueiredo Ferraz pops up unexpectedly at construction projects and municipal offices.

"You've got to get out and be seen," he remarked. "If the mayor stays in his office and never personally inspects what's going on, this job becomes fiction."

Figueiredo Ferraz' current priority project is the subway. "It's the only solution to our traffic problem," he said, "and it's the only major municipal undertaking for which we currently have the needed resources at our disposal."

Sao Paulo's 41.5-mile subway will be the most expensive public works project in the history of Brazil, with an expected price tag of well over $1 billion. Construction began in 1968 but until recently had limped along. The mayor publicly has promised that a 5-mile stretch from downtown to the north side will be operating by October, 1973.

Also high on his list: creating a "green heart" amid Sao Paulo's central core of steel, concrete and traffic exhaust. The mayor realizes this will be long in coming and costly, so for the present he relies on laws such as the one which prohibits anyone from cutting down a tree without permission from the city.

Figueiredo Ferraz is pushing for administrative reforms such as bringing traffic control and water supply under city instead of state jurisdiction. But he recognizes that the over-all solution for making Sao Paulo stop is out of his control.

"We must do something to slow down the movement from the countryside to the cities, not just here but all over Brazil," he said. "We must make it practical for people to remain in rural areas. We need more highways, rural electrification, regional agricultural and technical schools."

Yet while the mayor speaks, poor people continue to stream into Sao Paulo at the rate of 400 a day from the farms of neighboring Minas Gerais state and from the drought-stricken northeast region. Usually illiterate and without technical skills, they sleep in doorways of downtown office buildings or set up cardboard shacks under freeway overpasses.

A $3 million study contracted by the city three years ago predicted Sao Paulo's population in 1990 would be 10 to 13 million and as high as 20 million including the suburbs.

"The city simply must come to a halt—now," Figueiredo Ferraz says.

Hills Echoed To The Old GospelSongs

GRANDFATHER MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — The hills around Grandfather Mountain echoed with old gospel songs from sunup to sundown Sunday.

And, there was preaching, praying and shouting during the 47th annual "Singing on the Mountain." About 10,000 attended what is believed to be the county's biggest and oldest old-time religion get-together.

The main sermon was preached early in the afternoon by Grady Wilson, a Charlotte native who has been a associate evangelist with the Billy Graham evangelistic ministry team since its formation 24 years ago.

"We are going through the most crucial hour in our national and international history." Wilson told the congregation that spread out over a meadow on a shelf of Grandfather Mountain.

And in this hour, he said, more and more young people are seeking Jesus.

"I want to leave with you a verse found in the 12th chapter of John," Wilson said. "It reads: 'Sir, we would seek Jesus.' And that is the cry of America in this hour."

And when he had finished his brief sermon, the singers took over again and filled the afternoon with their songs.

The day was one of blue skies and a breeze that made the high 80s bearable. The crowd started off early in the horning singing an old-fashioned hymn. Down in the shady groves west of the meadoz, the hill preachers preached and prayed, and groups from the valleys and coves gathered here and there to sing their own familiar gospel songs.

Some of the people arrived Saturday night and camped out on the mountain.

The hill folk brought hampers of ham, fried chicken, buttermilk biscuits, cakes and pies, for dinner-on-the-ground at noon.

For the outlanders there were booths on the grounds that sold hot dogs and hamburgers, cider, cotton candy and watermelons.

It was the kind of a day that would have pleased the late Joe L. Hartley, who founded the "singing on the mountain" back in 1925 and guided it until his death five years ago at the age of 95.

Belgium's Royal Family Divided

By JOHN F. SIMS

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Queen Fabiola and Princess Paola of Belgium, according to intimates of the royal court, could live on different planets and not miss each other.

Between two women there could hardly be greater contrasts of personality. Virtually the only thing they have in common is that they both married sons of King Leopold III.

Fabiola, the devout and resolutely retiring wife of King Baudouin, takes her regal role very seriously and sees herself as part of an historic tradition.

Paola, married to the king's brother, Prince Albert, is the fun-loving member of the Belgian royal family. She is seldom called upon to represent the royal family although she has done so with grace.

Italian-born Paola is no great believer in royalty. She has told friends she believes Baudouin will be the last King of the Belgians. That is the major sticking point in the strained relations between Fabiola and Paola.

Fabiola, at 42, has had several miscarriages but not children. Paola, 34, and sometimes called the "Pin-Up of Belgium," has three children.

Baudouin's brother, Albert is next in line to the throne and his and Paola's son, Philippe, the heir apparent.

It is said that Baudouin and Fabiola would dearly love to have a hand in raising Philippe and preparing him for the throne, but that Albert and Paola—who are often reported to be estranted but who still appear together at both official and private functions—oppose the idea.

Philippe, now 11, is a flaxen-haired mischievous boy who shines more as a wolf cub in the Belvedere Palace neighborhood Boy Scout pack than he does as a scholar.

Philippe attends the staid French-language Roman Catholic College St. Michel. Last year he did so badly he was left back in one class to catch up in his studies.

Fabiola, who takes a great interest in the boy, is reported to have pressed Paola to arrange private tutoring for her son to improve his grades. But both Paola and Albert apparently have refused. The reason may be that Albert, as he said in a rare television interview a few years ago, had an unhappy childhood because of his lack of contact with the outside world.

"I was nearly an adult before I discovered there were other people in the world besides my parents and relatives in the royal palace," he said. Thus, he has wanted his own son to mix with other children and enjoy his youth.

Fabiola, who has strong feelings about monarchy and its duty to the people, is said to consider it a reflection on the throne to allow the public to know the prince is less than brilliant. Nevertheless, court intimates laugh at reports in the French and Italian press that Baudouin and Fabiola are considering a "royal decree" to adopt Philippe because they are dissatisfied with his parents' conduct.

It is strongly doubted Fabiola and Baudouin would dare risk splitting the family by such an action.

There is more to the problem than that. It is no secret in Belgium that the king and queen disapprove of the social lives of Albert and Paola. Especially distressing to them are the reports constantly appearing in the foreign press—although never in Belgian newspapers—about alleged romances involving the prince and princess.

Prince Albert has been photographed often in the company of Baroness Sybille de Selys Longchamp.

Ask Levying Of Tax For Busing

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — The Winston-Salem-Forsyth County School Board is asking the county's Board of Commissioners to levy a one-cent sales tax to pay for busing to achieve additional school desegregation.

The school board approved a plan Saturday night that would require the busing of an additional 15,800 pupils to establish a 70-30 white-Negro pupil ratio in most schools.

It will take 314 buses and $2 million to carry out the plan, according to school board chairman John C. Kiger. Details of the plan might be revealed Tuesday

This is not a small capacity fan unit. It is equipped with a ¼ H.P. motor 1725 RPM and a 18" fan blade to deliver 4,0000 cubic feet of air per minute. For all standard size barns up to 20' x 20'.
Forced air will dry tobacco more even and faster than air by conventional method. Will kill out quicker and saves fuel. Use 7" air intake above or below first tier for long life of motor to supply air from outside of barn.
When forced air is used in a barn, it is important that the barn be tight at the lower level with two 8" x 16" house vents to each side of the barn with adjustable shutters located near the ground for positive control of incoming air. Use FM roof ventilators to control outlet.
A large capacity fan means much more efficiency than a fan with a small motor using a small fan blade.
The design of Florence - Mayo's Jet Oil Curer heat exchanger is much better designed to be used with a fan with other curer heat exchangers on the market. 8-4x12 heat exchangers — large outlets — no overheating — better heat distribution.
IMPORTANT—Use Florence-Mayo Ventilators for Higher Efficiency and Economy.

Amendments Made To Loan Regulations

The U. S. Department of Agriculture announced amendments to Commodity Credit Corporation loan regulations on cotton, grains, and similarly handled commodities which will permit producers to enter into contracts to sell these commodities without loss of eligibility for loans.

The amendments provide that a producer shall be eligible for loans if he enters into a contract to sell, or gives an option to sell his commodity, if, under the contract or option, he retains control, risk of loss, and title to the commodity.

Loan regulations previously provided that commodities which producers agreed to sell were ineligible for loans even though the producer still retained title, risk of loss, and control. This restriction has tended to hold down marketings and has limited the producer's freedom to agree to sell his commodity at the best price obtainable, USDA officials explained.

The manner in which loan collateral is released to the buyer remains unchanged under the new regulations. In the case of grains and similarly handled commodities, loan collateral will be released only upon the written request of the producer and written authorization by the county office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service at the time of the release. In the case of cotton, a producer who gives written release of his warehouse receipts to a buyer or other person to whom he transfers his stocks must present the release to the County ASCS Office within 30 days. The county office, as in the past, will not relaease CCC's security interest in the loan collateral until the loan has been repaid.

Time On Farm For Fire Safety Checks

With the tobacco harvest season just around the corner, Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner has furnished a number of pointers for farmers to keep in mind.

Joyner said it is important that farmers take time now before the harvest rush begins to check into the conditions of barns and areas surrounding barns. Two main items to be looked into are — checking out of burners to be sure they are in good condition and clean; to clean out around barns, and around any bridges and paths leading to the barns.

Joyner mentioned that cleaning out the area lessens the possibility of fire and also, in the event of fire, provides ready access by fire fighting equipment.

Joyner outlines action to be taken by farmers in the event a barn does catch fire.

"Many farmers have lost valuable time in not knowing the proper number to call or what information to give," Joyner said. "Remembering this information is important in order to make the best use of time."

752-5136 is the number of the Pitt County Fire Marshal. Joyner reminds farmers if calling this number means a long distance call, the caller should dial operator and ask for ZENITH 191. Information needed by the fire department includes — where the fire is, whose farm it is on, what fire department is nearest to the farm, and precise information on how to get to the location of the fire.

Another suggestion made by Joyner is that in the event the fire is back off the road, someone should meet the fire truck at the main road and show the fire fighters how to get to the barn.

Between 1811 and 1849 a total of 520 steamboats were destroyed on the Mississippi river following collisions, fires, groundings and boiler explosions.

Teens Shift To Legalizing Pot

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—Support for legalization of marijuana has doubled among America's teen-agers in the last two years, according to a nationwide poll of high school pupils by Purdue University Opinion Panel. The rise in support for legalized pot was from 18 to 35 per cent. The shift is considered significant by social scientists who conducted the poll.

Tobacco TIPS

By S. J. WEEKS

At this time of the tobacco growing season we usually are on the lookout for hornworms. Some control programs are improperly applied and improperly timed.

A control program is not justified unless the hornworm is causing more damage than the cost in an insecticide application. To justify control, hornworms must eat about one whole leaf per seven plants. The number of eggs and small worms give very little indication of the number of big worms that will be produced because wasps and other predators destroy them. Ninety percent of the damage is done by the large worms.

The proper time to apply insecticides is when the hornworms are about two inches long. It would be a good idea to check the hornworm infestation before applying a recommended insecticide. As a guide, examine 50 widely scattered plants throughout each field and count the number of worms that are from one to two inches in length. If five or more worms of this size are present the cost of insecticides, machinery, and labor would be justified. Fields should be examined weekly as discussed above in order to know just what the hornworm situation is at all times. The hornworms are much easier and more economical to kill when they are small than when they get large. If treatment is delayed until several large worms are present, they should be killed quickly with a more complete coverage using a full dosage of the recommended fungicide.

Occasionally, when emulsifiable concentrates are used, bud and foliage injury occurs. There appears to be more risk of plant injury when the more concentrated low gallonage sprayers are used. Recommended rates should not be exceeded, spray materials should be mixed thoroughly, and all equipment should be in good working order and adjusted to produce a uniform spray pattern.

Since the hornworm population varies from year to year and from field to field, it is essential for growers to examine their fields frequently and treat when necessary; but treat only when necessary to avoid excessive insecticidal residue and to save money.

Narrow Win By Liberals

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato's Liberal Democratic party retained control of the upper house of the Japanese Parliament Sunday, but the Socialist opposition showed unexpected strength.

Unofficial tabulations for 105 of the 126 seats at stake gave 57 to the Liberal Democrats. The other 126 members in the House of Councillors are holdovers, and 72 of them are Liberal Democrats, so the government was assured a majority of at least six.

The Socialists won 32 seats, the Buddhist-allied Komeito 10, the Democratic Socialists 3, the Communist party 2 and one independent was elected.

The upper house is mostly a watchdog body, legislative power being held by the 491-seat lower house. But the election was watched for indications of the government's popularity.

Only about 60 per cent of the 71.6 million eligible voters went to the polls, and observers felt the poor turnout worked against the government party.

Sato, confident of victory, went to the mountain resort of Karuizawa to work on a new Cabinet lineup. The present Cabinet has been in office since January 1970.

Consultants Aid Class Control

STORRS, Conn. (UPI)—Inexperienced teachers who have trouble keeping control in the classroom could greatly improve their efficiency with the help of consultant-observers, it was shown by a demonstration project guided by Dr. Norman L. Breyer of the University of Connecticut.

Reporting on the project, Dr. Breyer, an assistant professor of educational psychology, said two graduate students served as consultants in a fifth grade classroom in which a first-year teacher was having trouble controlling her class of 18. Both teacher performance and pupil behavior improved when suggestions from the consultant-observers were followed.

Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES

The outlook for soybeans has seldom appeared brighter than it does for the 1971 crop. Production experts are calling this fact to the attention of North Carolina farmers and suggesting that it isn't too late to plant more beans.

The way things look right now, soybeans offer our farmers a real opportunity to increase this income in 1971.

The price of soybeans in eastern North Carolina during the first half of June has been in the range of $3.30 and $3.40 per bushel. More significant, perhaps, is the $3.00 plus price being projected in the future market for the crop now being planted.

All this is music to the Tar Heel farmer's ear. And he could stand a shot of optimism about now, following the 1970 corn production problems and the pork, poultry and egg marketing woes of recent months.

About a million acres of soybeans were expected to be planted in North Carolina this spring. Most of the crop is already in the ground and looking very good.

Late beans are now being planted following the harvest of wheat, barley and oats.

These late beans will not have the yield potential of the May planted beans, but they should do very well if we have a good growing season.

Colorado's state motto is "Nil Sine Numine", Latin for "Nothing Without Providence."

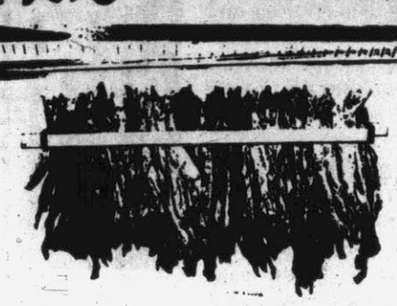

Seeking School Superintendents

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Program of Education Leadership (NPEL) is searching for successful professionals and executives who would like to become urban school superintendents after a two-year management development program.

"One source of institutional change in education has come from the outside," said Robert Couglan, program coordinator at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. "For example, the new math several years ago was developed by mathematicians at MIT, not by professional educators."

5 Sticks Are Equal to One Bulk Rack

To control tobacco suckers you've got 3 choices.

1. Our biggest competitor makes a nice tire.

2. Our second biggest competitor puts out a good bar of soap.

3.

Ansul makes agricultural chemicals ... and we modestly suggest that our Two Step Sucker Control program is the best one available to the tobacco grower.

SUCKER-PLUCKER is a contact agent. Spray it on within two days after topping and removal of suckers which have grown to over one inch.

SUPER SUCKER-STUFF H.C. is our brand new high concentrate systemic agent. Two weeks after applying SUCKER-PLUCKER come back with SUPER SUCKER-STUFF H.C. In both cases follow easy label instructions.

When you're competing with the world's biggest soap company and a one and a half billion dollar rubber company, you just have to make better products.

We do.

Make more soybeans... make more money... the No-Til* way.

No-Til economies are big news!

No-Til eliminates trips over your fields—cuts the cost and work of getting a soybean crop in. No-Til can be a one-trip practice which gives you a far better chance to plant more areas on time . . . for a fast start, a full season of growth.

No-Til starts with an Allis-Chalmers 600 Series planter so flexible you can plant 40- or 38-inch rows today . . . change to 30- or 20-inch rows anytime just by adding planter units onto the same frame.

And you can take full advantage of double cropping opportunities with direct sod or stubble planting . . . or plant easily eroded hills or slopes that otherwise don't return a profit.

Then, to get the most out of your No-Til soybean program, you need fast, weed-free early growth. That's where Du Pont LOROX comes in. LOROX controls a wide range of weeds and grasses that plague soybean growers. With Surfactant WK, LOROX gives both contact and residual action.

See how much more you can make by doing less. See your Allis-Chalmers dealer for the equipment you need. See your agricultural chemicals dealer for LOROX. It's a winning combination to make more beans and make more money.

With any chemical, follow labeling instructions and warnings carefully.

Worry Clinic

Motivation Is The Big Secret

Andy's case shows that the proper motivation is often what makes tremendous success. Even bored classes come alive when the teacher can strike their fundamental interests with his lectures, as well as homework assignments. In this way my classes soon got so large, I had to use the N. U. Law School auditorium.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph D., M. D.

Case Q-587: Andy J., aged 46, is an advertising executive.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I am now an advertising copy writer at a remarkable salary.

"But I never dreamed of entering the advertising field till I took your course in Applied Psychology at Northwestern University.

"Maybe you recall giving us various homework assignments, such as writing collection letters, sales letters, advertising copy and even love letters to a real or even an imaginary sweetheart.

"Well, you gave me an 'A' on my advertising copy for a vacuum sweeper.

"And that must have been the thing that turned my attention to a career in this field. Thanks a lot!"

Writing Psychology

Motivation is the magic key to learning.

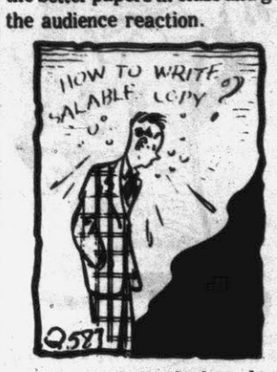

So I tried to motivate those students by assignments that were useful and thus interesting.

For example, in those days many newspapers and magazines ran contests, with a few large cash awards, plus many lesser merchandise prizes.

So I would use such current contests as classroom assignments when we reached the chapters in my college textbook on "Advertising," or "Selling" or "Writing and Art."

The students would submit their contest letters or advertising copy and I'd grade them.

Sometimes we'd even discuss the better papers in class and get the audience reaction.

After the individual students had thus heard the various criticisms and suggestions about their contest entry, and I had given them their grade thereon, they often submitted them to the Contest Dept. of the various firms that were offering the prizes.

A number of my students thus won cash awards ranging from $5 to $50.

Others proudly announced in class that they had rated merchandise prizes, such as a case of oranges or tuna fish, or an electric iron or a toaster, etc.

Obviously, this added tremendous zest to the class and also zoomed the enrolments the next semester.

For when students relish a course, their word-of-mouth praise thereof soon gets around the campus.

But just as fascinating to the students were our dissections of love letters.

Some of the pupils would submit actual letters they had received from boys and girls back home.

We never divulged the real names, but would read the letters aloud and let the students rate them on the basis of their general human interest value.

We'd do the same for snapshots when we dealt with the "Psychology of Art."

For a superb picture must have wide interest value to other people besides the few individuals shown on that photo.

The amateur camera enthusiast snaps his sweetheart or friends in all sorts of situations, most of which have little interest to outsiders.

Same goes for many of the home travelogue movies that often bore your friends.

So send for my booklet on "How to Write Salable Copy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q963 ♡A8 ◇107 ♣98752
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 NT	Dble.	Pass	?

What do you bid?

A.—My recommendation is a pass. A simple arithmetical calculation will lead to the conclusion that the opener's dummy will be a blank. Assuming the opening no trump bidder to hold 16 points, the doubler of the no trump bid should have at least that much, which accounts for 32, you have six so that East at best can have no more than 2 points. Since you have at least 22 to their 18, you should outscore them on the play.

Q. 2—You are South, both sides vulnerable, and you hold:
♠9754 ♡9 ◇AK765 ♣KQ5
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♡	Dble.	?

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. Assuming partner to be a reasonable citizen, either East or West has committed a faux pas. With your high card holding, partner should surely score eight tricks even tho trumps are banked against him.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♡AKJ1074 ◇K63 ♣A953
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 ◇	1 ♠	?

What do you bid?

A.—Three hearts. An immediate slam suggestion is in order with this mammoth holding. The alternate call of two spades would not be the best strategy at this point inasmuch as the cue bid may be conveniently postponed till later. If it should be made at this time you would find it extremely difficult if not impossible to get across to partner the picture of this powerful heart suit.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠753 ♡KQ5 ◇743 ♣AJ92
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	1 ♡

What do you bid now?

A.—The suggested call is one no trump. When made as a free bid this denotes a fairly good hand, one ranging in high card value from 10 to 12 points. If partner does not choose to go on, this should be the final contract

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ4 ♡2 ◇J653 ♣AQJ74
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three clubs. You have already shown the full strength of your hand and theoretically should pass two no trump, but since you prefer not to play no trump with a singleton heart, your best bet is to bid three clubs. Failure to return to three spades will suggest to partner that you have only three trumps.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ10984 ♡Q72 ◇KJ2 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—The singleton club is a deterrent to the no trump contract, because partner bid it under pressure and since he has shown two red suits it is likely that his club protection may be sketchy. It is further likely that partner is short in spades, so the best bet is to bid four hearts.

Q. 7—You are South, vulnerable and have 60 part score, and you hold:
♠AQJ ♡QJ1086 ♣K10873
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	2 ◇

What do you bid now?

A.—On the surface it would appear that a single raise to two spades, which completes the game, is the proper procedure. Actually, my preference is for a bid of three clubs, and the reason is to be found in the principle of anticipation. In view of the score you may expect a further competitive bid of three diamonds. If partner is unable to go further and the bid reverts to you, you will be in considerable doubt as to the best procedure. If, however, you bid three clubs over the two diamond bid, then when the opponents bid three diamonds you will be in a strategic position to bid three spades. In this way you will have exhausted the possibilities of all three suits, instead of restricting your chances to hearts and spades.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠1092 ♡Q975 ◇Q6 ♣KJ92
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dble.	Pass	2 ♡
2 ♠	Pass	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—This should be regarded as a good hand when partner makes an immediate double, and you should not permit the opponents to buy the hand this cheaply. The proper call is three clubs.

Says 'Myth' To Be Aired

NAGS HEAD, N.C. (AP) — A leader of the "Man Will Never Fly Society" has predicted a secret report will be published soon exposing the "myth of air mail."

The tongue-in-cheek prediction came Saturday from James Morton of Washington, D.C., just after leaders of the diehard antiflight society staged a walkout during a special showing of a television film depicting the lives of Wilbur and Orville Wright.

The Wright brothers made their famous flight—the first by a heavier-than-air machine—on Kitty Hawk near Nags Head. Members of the "Man Will Never Fly Society" claim the story of their success and all other stories of all other flight by man are hoaxes.

After reading a statement making the prediction on secret reports, Morton and the other protesters chanted the society's Motto: "Birds Fly, Men Drink."

Morton said the reports would be published in the New York Times, Washington Post and the Boston Globe. All three have published stories based on documents said to be part of a secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

CampusCar-Jam Crisis Growing

NEW YORK (UPI)—The shortage of parking spaces on college campuses is heading for the crisis stage. It is a continuous and exploding headache for campus planners.

Mrs. Norene Dann Martin, executive vice president of the National Parking Association, says if parking needs get voracious enough it could become the tail that wags the dog. "We could have drive-in lecture rooms," she said at a parking workshop sponsored by the University of California.

Murphy Wanted Ordinary Burial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — War hero Audie Murphy, buried this month in a formal military funeral at Arlington National Cemetery, had requested a "simple, plain and ordinary burial."

Murphy, an actor and Medal of Honor winner during World War II, requested specifically in his will that the funeral "exclude any and all public officials and military personnel."

Godwin Sees No Big Harm

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina House Speaker Phil Godwin says he doesn't think a move to delay the reorganization of higher education until 1973 will succeed before this session of the General Assembly adjourns.

University of North Carolina supporters in the House have been lining up support for a bill identical to one introduced by Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, calling for a study commission to look at the problem until the 1973 session.

Twenty-eight of the 50 senators signed the Burney bill, and Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chatham, is seeking a similar majority for a House bill.

But Godwin said Sunday, "If he introduced it, I would refer the bill to the Higher Education Committee." Gov. Bob Scott's forces reportedly have a majority in the committee and could stall the bill until adjournment, targeted for July 9.

Scott has called for creation of a board of regents to govern all 16 public universities in the state. UNC is strongly opposing the plan, which would deconsolidate its six campuses.

Scott is pushing for a compromise that would have the legislature adjourn until early fall and then return to consider higher education.

Godwin said he and Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor had not yet made up their minds on a date for the proposed special session, but added, "I imagine we'll have a meeting of the minds early this week."

American Business Rushes To Go 'Multinational'

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — American business is going multinational with a rush that matches the stampede to "go conglomerate" in the 1960s.

As the corporations go global, they carry American capital technology and managerial skill to the earth's far corners.

And leave alarm bells ringing back home.

Complaints are piling up that American jobs and possibly some vital portions of the nation's industrial base for defense and economic stability, are going overseas.

Organized labor which formerly carried the banner of free trade has taken alarm at vanishing jobs and shrinking memberships, and has joined some major industries in the drive on Congress for import quotas.

The unions, led by AFL-CIO, also are bracketing the multinationals in their barrage of criticism, as "runaway employers" who move plants to Europe, the Orient, or the Caribbean where labor is cheaper.

Ironically, competition from imported goods is the main reason many corporations have gone global. They are simply trying to stay competitive with foreign products by becoming importers themselves—of components, of semi-finished goods, or of entire products which come back to the U.S. consumer with only one American part, the brand name.

There are, however, many other reasons why U.S. industry is deploying subsidiaries overseas—to gain growth by reaching new customers, to get behind trade barriers that American exports cannot pierce, to cut costs and improve profits, to compete on even terms with foreign firms in world markets.

For the American consumer these are among the signs of the changing times:

—The Dodge Colt, one of the new American "answers" to the small-car imports, is 100 per cent made-in-Japan, by Mitsubishi.

—If you buy Ford's Pinto, another of the U.S. industry's answers, you may get a car with an English-made engine and German-made transmission assembled either in Canada or the United States.

—Ninety per cent of all radio sets, tape recorders and cassettes sold in this country are made abroad. So are more than half the black-and-white color television sets, nearly one-fourth of all color TV sets, two-thirds of the sewing machines and most of the typewriters.

A major industrialist, Board Chairman Fred J. Borch of General Electric, told the Associated Press: "I don't know any American manufacturer who would not prefer to make his product in this country for this market."

But in cases where the choice became either going out of business on a product line or "moving offshore," GE and others have gone offshore. That way, Borch estimates, at least half the American employes are kept on the job—designers, engineers, sales force research and development people and others.

The AFL-CIO industrial unions which once took pride in their liberal free-trade stance have almost apologetically lined up with such long-time protectionists as the textile and shoe industries.

Their combined push for import quotas in the 91st Congress blocked President Nixon's trade expansion bill by plastering it with import quota amendments, and came within inches of reversing this country's 35-year policy of liberalizing tariff and trade.

Only a major defensive stand organized on a crash basis by the foreign trade community, including the heads of many multinational corporations, stopped them.

There will be no trade legislation at all this year.

Meantime, the administration is moving in three areas to blunt the quota drive.

—It is pressing for negotiated restrictions by Japan and other countries—"voluntary" quotas which doctrinaire free traders abhor just as much as they deplore quotas imposed by law.

—It has launched a jawboning offensive calling on Europe and Japan to drop their protectionist laws and pick up a fair share of defense costs.

—It is enforcing, promptly and vigorously, for the first time ever as a deliberate policy, long-standing curbs on unfair trade.

The three major unions in the consumer electronic and electrical goods industries have told Congress that more than 50,000 of their members' jobs have disappeared in three years.

"The types of jobs exported are precisely the unskilled and semiskilled jobs needed here if we are to win the war against poverty and provide dignified and gainful employment for our disadvantaged poor," said the unions' joint statement.

To deal with these and other problems, Nixon in January created in the White House a new, cabinet-level Council on International Economic Policy. A year ago he named a 27-member presidential Commission on International Trade and Investment Policy.

How aggressively Nixon's new council will attack its problems remains to be seen.

Peter G. Peterson, executive director of the council, speaks of a coming new American initiative to invite every major industrial nation into the negotiation of a free-world trade and investment policy for the next 20 years.

For its pattern, Peterson looks backward 20 years—to the Marshal Plan, which set war-shattered Europe and Japan on the course of their phenomenal growth. It will take comparable initiatives in grandness of scale, Peterson believes, to insure worldwide economic growth instead of economic warfare between national blocs.

Annual Pedestrian Toll Rises; Emphasis Urged

By VERN HAUGLAND
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the nation's annual pedestrian death toll nearing 10,000, the National Transportation Safety Board today called on the federal government to put more emphasis on walkers' safety.

The board said results of a study conducted within the Department of Transportation showed little being done to improve pedestrian safety.

"Efforts directed specifically to pedestrian safety vary between one-eighteenth and one-nineteenth of the effort that would be in proportion to pedestrian fatalities," the board said.

Although several agencies within DOT are involved in pedestrian safety, no office or individual is responsible for their coordination, the study said.

"The absence of any organized national pedestrian interest groups and the absence of authorized programs which seek to expand facilities for pedestrian traffic or to improve the efficiency of pedestrian movement are serious drawbacks to pedestrian safety," it stated.

The report cited the "almost total lack of facilities for pedestrian traffic on and across the interstate highway system ..."

During the 1967-1969 period there were 29,000 pedestrian deaths, 72 per cent more than the combined total of all aviation, marine, railroad and grade-crossing fatalities, the board said.

Of all the persons killed in highway accidents during the period, 18 per cent were pedestrians.

The board said more than 53 per cent of pedestrian deaths are in age groups deserving additional protection because of immaturity or advanced age—children below 15 and the elederly above 64.

"Although pedestrian safety is specifically named in the Highway Safety Act of 1966 ... there has never been a public clamor for pedestrian safety comparable to that in other modes of transportation," the report said.

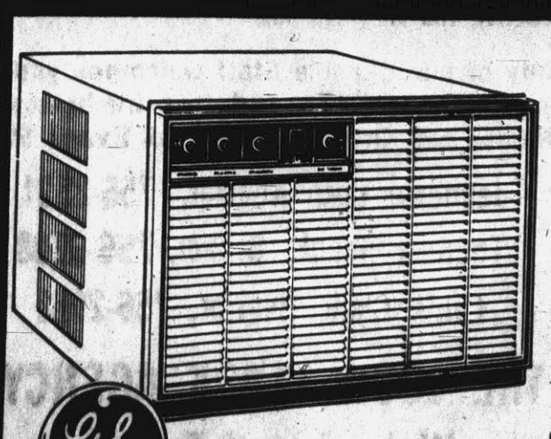

The safety board urged Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe to insure pedestrian safety technology and regulatory actions are coordinated by the two agencies primarily concerned, the Federal Highway Administration and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

STEPS ARE GONE

LEASBURG, Mo. (AP) — Tourists who complained about the 204 steps at Onondaga Cave on U.S. 66 now have ramps to make their walking and gaping easier. Eliminating the steps took 10 years of blasting and reconstruction.

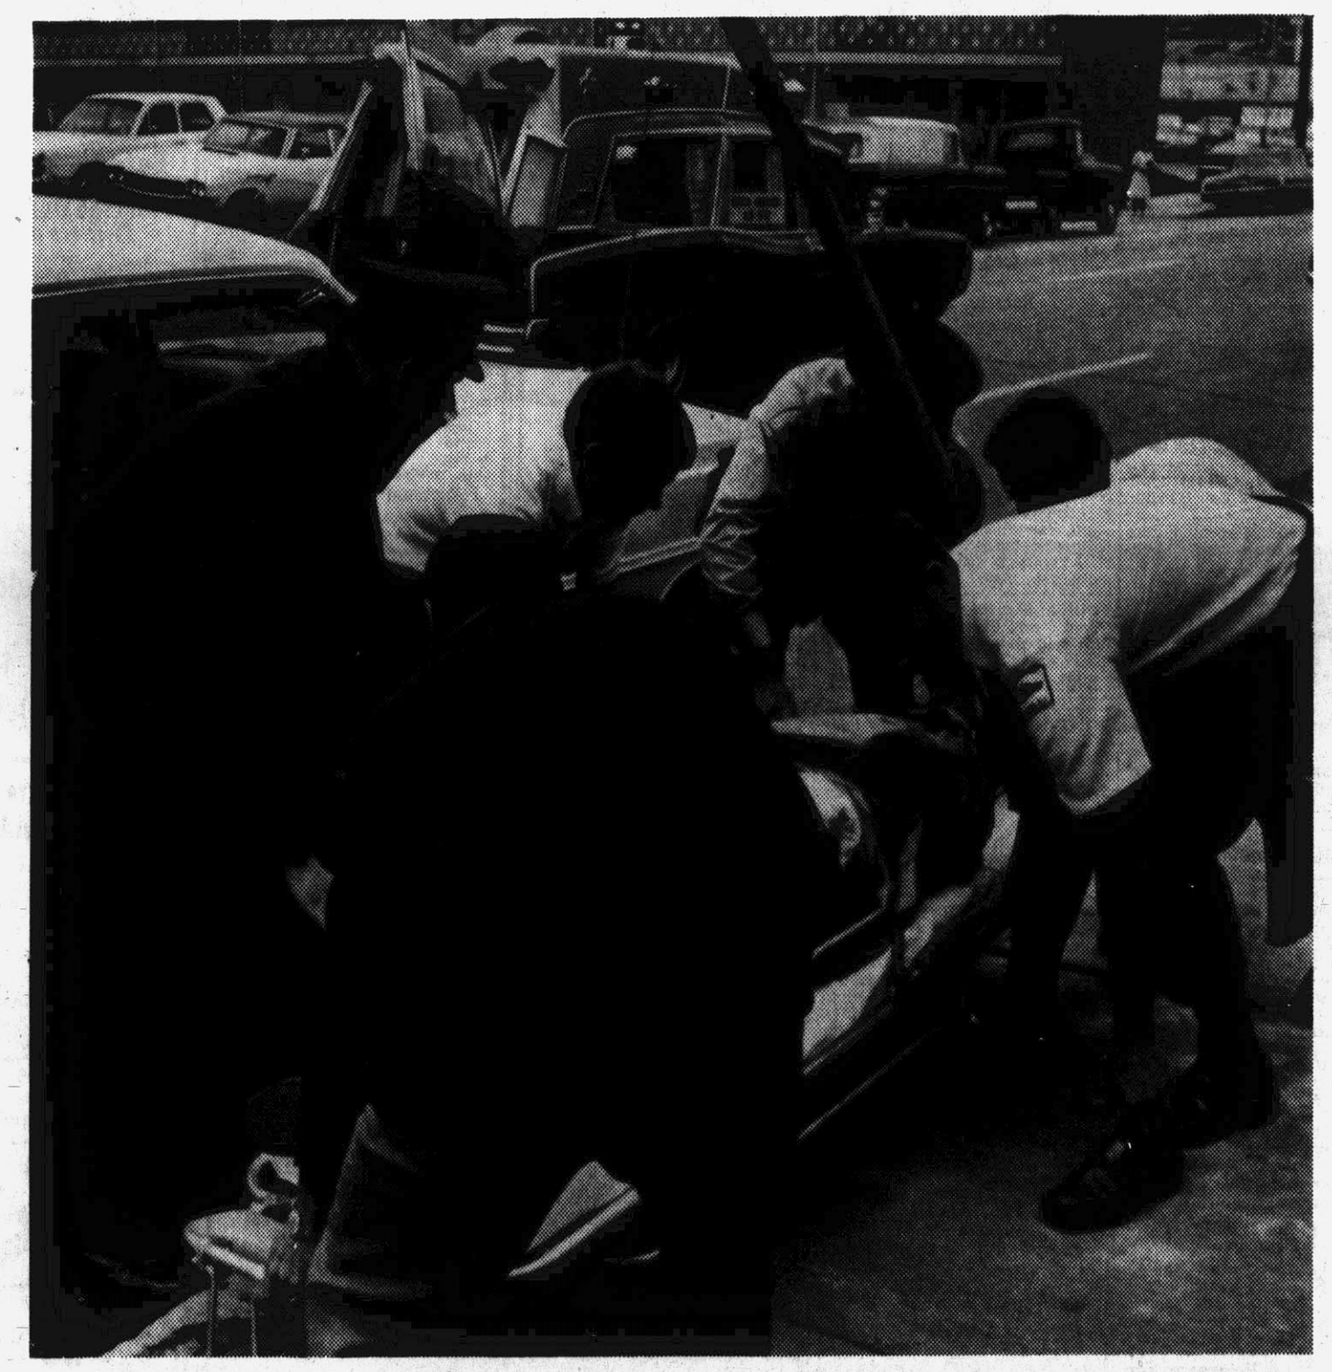

SAFEGUARD THE CAPITAL — South Vietamese Regional Forces wade through a section of the Rung Sat mangrove swamp southeast of Saigon. The troops, searching Saigon's outskirts in an attempt to clear out enemy positions threatening the capital, found Viet Cong bunkers and some arms caches. (AP Wirephoto)

PART OF THE PROBLEM: PART 4

If hospital and medical care didn't cost so much, maybe automobile liability insurance wouldn't cost as much.

Since 1968, the average rates charged by seven of the state's major hospitals for semi-private rooms have increased an average of 45 percent.

Throughout North Carolina, the average room rates for hospitals have increased 14 percent during the past five years.

Some hospitals foresee rates for most rooms reaching $80 per day within the next few years. And the end isn't in sight.

Automobile liability insurance rates certainly haven't increased at the same pace as the cost of hospital and medical care. In fact, since 1968, bodily injury auto liability insurance rates have not been increased at all.

This rising cost of hospital and medical care must be reflected in the premiums you pay for automobile liability insurance.

Because automobile liability rates already are so inadequate, many insurance companies simply don't want to write the coverage. The reluctance of companies to write automobile liability insurance policies, causes problems for many motorists.

But a solution to our automobile liability insurance problems must start with a solution to the runaway costs of hospital and medical care.

After all, that's a big part of the problem.
