Newtown Drawing Ready Sen. Mansfield To Drive Anew For Europe Pullback

By TOM BAINES

The architect for the Greenville Housing Authority presented schematic drawings of proposed developments in the Newtown Project Monday night and received authorization from the commissioners to resubmit the proposals to the Atlanta office of HUD.

Cameron Dudley of Dudley & Shoe reported that he visited the HUD office recently and discussed with officials there plans for the project.

Dudley noted that one of the main recommendations offered by HUD was a cut-down of the number of units per acre proposed. The Authority earlier had planned on 95 units or about ten units per acre for the project but HUD recommended cutting the figure to eight per acre.

The architect offered drawings Monday night that would include a total of 78 units built in a pattern providing for adequate recreation areas and meeting parking requirements. The remaining 17 units of the original 95 would go in another area.

Dudley added that with commission approval he would submit the plans to Atlanta for review. It was emphasized that all funds for housing have been frozen but assurance was received from HUD recently that housing money, which had already been earmarked for the local project, would be released early this month.

The hold-up of funds is also affecting plans for the Southside Project south of the Norfolk Southern Railroad, Dudley continued, but he is proceeding with drawings of possible site developments, he said.

Some 200 units had been allotted earlier for the scattered site project but planning and surveying funds were stopped. The project has been aimed at home ownership for residents occupying the scattered units. Assistant director J. C. Lamm told the commissioners that he and Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, the Authority's director of tenant affairs, recently attended a NAHRO Southeastern Regional Conference in Miami. While there Lamm reported, the staff members participated in several workshops including sessions dealing with administration, financing and accounting as related to housing.

It was pointed out that HUD is opening an area office in Greensboro soon and matters that currently go through Atlanta concerning North Carolina will be channeled into the Greensboro office.

According to the tenant occupancy report, submitted by Mrs. Streeter, 64 of the 65 units in N. C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook) were occupied as of the first of the month and residents of the area paid an average of $36.45 in rent.

In N. C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), all 160 units were occupied on the first and average monthly rent amounted to $42.39, Mrs. Streeter reported.

Residents in N. C. 22-3 (Moyewood) paid $43.21 in average monthly rent, the report continued, and all 188 available units in the area were occupied. All 40 units in N. C. 22-4 were filled July 1, the director reported, and residents paid average rent of $43.30.

On one other item, commissioners agreed that a joint meeting with members of the Redevelopment Commission should be held soon to discuss the selection of a new executive director to replace Co. A E Dubber, who has submitted advance notice of his intentions to resign on Nov. 1.

7th Army Value Questionable

Sen. Mansfield To Drive Anew For Europe Pullback

SEN. MIKE MANSFIELD says he will launch a new campaign for phased cutbacks that would reduce the 300,000-

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says the resistance capacity of the American 7th Army in Europe has become questionable with its soldiers beset by problems of "drugs, race and field comforts."

The Montana Democrat served notice he will launch a new campaign, probably this year, for phased cutbacks that would reduce the U.S. force in Europe to one division.

Last May the Senate defeated a Mansfield proposal for halving American forces in Europe by the end of 1971, but the senator claimed a majority of the Senate now wants substantial cuts in U.S. forces.

Speaking of the state of the 7th Army, Mansfield complained the force is over-officered with too many dependents—225,000 of them—around. He continued:

"In the beginning the 7th Army was a very good army. Now it is not because of such factors as drugs, race problems, field comforts and too many dependents. The 7th Army is caught in the middle. Ahead of it are the Russians. Behind it are their dependents. They're worried about both.

In the days of Caesar the Roman legions were easily able to hold a line along the River Rhine—until they brought their families along. Then they became less alert and more domesticated. This is what the 7th Army has become. Their capacity to resist must be questionable the moment their families are on the scene." Other points made by Mansfield in a question-and-answer interview:

Q: Precisely when and how do you expect to revive your move in the Senate for cutting the number of U.S. troops in Europe?

A: Probably this year. In May we used a sledgehammer to make a dent in the thinking not only of the administration but also of the Europeans who should realize things cannot go on much longer like this.

Q: What do you intend asking for next time?

A: The aim will be to press for a graduated reduction, over a period of time, in the size of U.S. forces in Europe. Perhaps down to two divisions within a given period, then working down to President Eisenhower's old idea of keeping a single division in Europe.

Q: In what timescale?

A: By around the middle of the decade—1976 or thereabouts. Times are changing. It's up to Americans, and Europeans, to face up to the realities of this decade.

Q: What in your view are these realities?

A: The U.S. is maintaining too many troops there and is shouldering a lopsided burden it cannot afford. The Europeans have restored their economies. The Deutschmark is strong. The guilder is strong. The pound sterling seems to be strengthening. But the dollar is less strong.

We simply cannot afford the commitment any longer. We are spending more abroad than we should in view of our own economic situation.

Q: But isn't it true Europeans are doing more for themselves—for instance pitching in with an extra billion dollars worth of defense effort over the next five years.

A: An extra $200 million a year is far too little. The Europeans know it. We know it. The direct dollar cost to the U.S. of supporting our forces in Europe in 1970 was $1.731 billion.

Q: What do you say to the argument that cutting back now would weaken the position of the North Atlantic Alliance, NATO, just when the Soviets are showing an interest in negotiating balanced force reductions?

A: Russia already is in a position of advantage with troops in East European countries like Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia.

Q: But how can you reconcile cutting U.S. forces when NATO member-states promised to make no unilateral withdrawals.

A: Unilateral withdrawals already have taken place by the French, Portuguese, Canadians. The late President de Gaulle did so after warning us of his intentions for three years. Yet we went on building NATO pipelines and other installations in France and were caught short. The Portuguese for obvious reasons—meaning their troubles in Africa—make no contribution to NATO. Canada has cut as Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said he would in his election campaign.

With the aid of an amendment, the supporters got the tax repeal measure out of the House Finance Committee and sent it to the House floor. The amendment called for the tax on the soft drinks to be removed July 1, 1972. This was an appealing feature to several legislators who had been undecided how to vote on the measure.

The House proceeded to approve the bill despite attempts to amend it and send it back to the committee.

Perhaps no bill in recent years has been lobbied so intensely. The soft drink industry has campaigned vigorously for months to get the tax repealed.

For many weeks the measure languished in the House Finance Committee. Supporters realized they faced a tough battle because of the scarcity of state funds to meet budget needs for the next biennium. The tax measure brings in $38 million each biennium.

ius," said Crosby, who appeared with Armstrong in the movie "High Society."

"Anyone who traveled in Europe or other parts of the world was able to realize immediately just how widespread was his reputation and how beloved he was."

President Nixon, in a statement, called Armstrong "one of the architects of an American art form, a free and independent spirit and an artist of world wide fame."

"He could play a trumpet like nobody else," said guitarist Eddie Condon, "then put it down and sing a song like no one else could."

To people around the world, Louis is jazz and jazz is New Orleans," said Moon Landrieu, mayor of that city. "New Orleans has lost one of its own. We thank God for placing him within our midst."

OK Interim Pitt Budget

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon adopted an interim budget resolution that will allow the county to operate until the 1971-1972 fiscal year budget is approved.

The resolution allows the various departments to spend at the same rate as in the past fiscal year.

The commissioners' finance committee has been reviewing requests from various county agencies and will present a tentative budget to the full board sometime in the near future.

Commissioners also accepted the resignation of Dr. Walter Savage, director of the Mental Health Center who is to enter private practice in Kentucky.

In addition to hearing reports from various county departments and agencies, commissioners yesterday also approved a resolution asking the State Highway Commission to consider naming U.S. 13 the "Robert B. Nelson Highway." Nelson, from Robersonville, worked to have U.S. 13 created, and continues to push for major highways through this area of the state.

Frustrated

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The problem of high grass at a Charlotte intersection bothered nearby residents, who complained to the city.

But the city replied the matter was up to the state to correct.

Recently a passerby saw a man scything down some of the grass.

It was City Councilman Jim McDuffie, who said he had had so many calls about it he felt something had to be done. He said he "felt a little bit frustrated" trying to get official action.

Pitt School Board To Designate Properties For Lease Or For Sale

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Under the provisions of legislation recently enacted by the North Carolina State Legislature, members of the Pitt County Board of Education have been authorized to lease school property for longer leases.

The bill specifies that surplus property belonging to the County

School system can be leased for a period exceeding one year, which was the old time standard permitted for leases. The legislation directs that leases, at the discretion of the school board, can be made to any person, firm or corporation for a period and for terms considered as necessary by the board.

At the time, there are five county school campuses that fall into this authorized category — North Fountain, Falkland Primary, South Ayden, Grimesland Elementary and Bethel Union.

A motion was approved by the Pitt Board of Education Tuesday for the Buildings and Grounds Committee to form a complete listing and description of the school properties, with an indication to show whether the particular property would be for lease or possibly for sale. This information is to be made available to various organizations which would have an interest in locating property.

Board Members declined giving approval to a request from an interested party for use of one building on the South Ayden campus as a day care center. It was felt that the leasing of one building on a campus could deter the possibility of leasing the entire facility at a later date.

Superintendent of Pitt County Schools Arthur S. Alford explained to board members that current expense and capital outlay funds for the county schools were under consideration by the County Commissioners, who were in session yesterday.

Alford noted that the Commissioners were studying budget proposals, and would make a decision on whether to go with the county-wide budget system, which the school board has opted for, or to continue with budgeting based on special district levies.

Dr. Tom Patterson, Richard K. Worsley and Associate Superintendent Thomas Craft were assigned as a committee to study student insurance proposals. Under consideration are proposals submitted by three companies, Pilot, Nationwide and Walker. The schools are seeking a program of insurance that would adequately

Retail Sales Up In First Quarter

Retail sales in Greenville from January through March of this year reflected an increase of nearly 14 per cent over figures recorded during the same period in 1970.

According to gross retail sales statistics compiled for eight Eastern North Carolina cities, Greenville climbed from $23,146,541 in 1970 to $26,332,884 during this year's three-month period, an increase of 13.8 per cent.

Goldsboro, with an increase in Sales from $28,978,131 a year ago to $34,021,559 this year, topped the eight-city totals with a percentage increase of 17.4.

Ranking behind Goldsboro and Greenville in size of increases were Washington, which saw sales grow from $12,132,761 in 1970 to $13,559,818 for 11.8 per cent; New Bern, from $19,954,644 to $21,914,674 for 9.8 per cent; Kinston, from $23,962,462 to $26,169,055 this year for a gain of 9.2 per cent; Wilson, from $22,803,376 to $24,010,184 for 5.3 per cent; Rocky Mount, from $33,080,718 to $34,652,964 for 4.8 per cent; and Jacksonville, from $24,170,334 to $24,187,019 this year for a gain of 0.1 per cent.

The sales figures were released by the North Carolina Department of Revenue.

Laos Govm't Units Launch Offensive In 'Plain Of Jars'

SAIGON (AP) — Laotian government forces pressed a two-prong offensive against the Plain of Jars today as the war in Vietnam faded to a virtual standstill.

Informed sources in Vientiane said six battalions of Gen. Vang Pao's Meo tribesmen—who are trained, paid and equipped by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency—seized the southern rim of the plain, while Air America helicopters carried commando teams to the airfield in the center of the plain 103 miles northeast of Vientiane.

Air America is a charter company under contract to the U.S. government, and its fleet of planes and helicopters provides the backbone of the military logistic system in Laos.

The Plain of Jars has changed hands numerous times taking it during rainy seasons and the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao driving them out when the weather improves. The main east-west highway across central Laos passes through the plain.

Military sources said the Communists' supplies are low because of the monsoon mud, and they have put up little resistance to the new offensive. But they reported some North Vietnamese units have been observed moving south toward the plain.

The Pathet Lao radio claimed Tuesday that Thai troops supported by intensive American bombing were participating in the operation. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said there has been no increase in American air strikes in northern Laos.

One Love

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Edward M. Butts sat down at a table in his house trailer last March 27 to write a will.

"God-bless America," he wrote, and called the United States "the country I love very much."

On June 3 he died in the trailer where he had lived since retiring as a barber. At 73 he was a bachelor.

The county public administrator filed the will for probate Tuesday, listing as Butts' assets the trailer, a 1966 car, a diamond ring, a $2,000 bank account and $32,000 in a safe deposit box. The $36,738.56 total goes to the one beneficiary Butts named: the government of the United States.

RALEIGH (AP) — A bill giving North Carolina its first regulations on retail credit sales was enacted into law today.

The House gave the bill action today by concurring with nine amendments tacked on to the legislation by the Senate, which gave its approval without debate Tuesday.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Richard Clark, D-Union, but changed greatly by a House subcommittee, would provide the first state limits on finance charges on installment sales of automobiles, furniture, mobile homes, appliances and other consumer goods.

It would also lay down ground rules for unsolicited door-to-door installment sales and extend some responsibilities to banks and finance companies when they buy in-stallment sales contracts from merchants.

On sales contracts backed by mortgages on homes or other real property, any third party or "holder in due course" which bought the contract would retain for the life of the contract all of the responsibilities assumed by the original seller—that is any guarantees of quality of the product.

On sales of other consumer goods, which could not be backed by a mortgage, the customer would have 30 days after the contract was sold to notify the holder of the installment paper that he was making a claim because of a defect in the product.

Presently, banks and other financial institutions which finance merchants by purchasing their installment contracts are exempt from all responsibility for upholding the warranties made by the seller.

NEW YORK (AP) — "In New Orleans, I played at as many funerals as I could get," Louis Armstrong said recently, wryly recalling his youth, "and cats died like flies, so I got a lot of nice gigs out of that."

"It's business," continued the celebrated jazz trumpeter and singer. "They going to enjoy blowing over me, ain't they? Cats will be coming from California and

Drugs During Working Hours

NEW YORK (AP) — About 101,000 employed persons how live in New York State admit using marijuana, LSD, methedrine or heroin on a regular basis during work hours, the state Narcotic Addiction Control Commission says.

The report, released Tuesday, said at least 362,000 working people in the state used illegal drugs regularly—at least six times a month—on or off the job.

problem of availability of crime insurance at an affordable rate."

The scheme calls for federally subsidized burglary and robbery insurance to be sold through private agents up to a maximum of $15,000 for businesses and $5,000 for residences.

Home owners and renters would pay premiums of $80 to $100 per year, depending on the locality. Premiums for businesses would be based on crime rate, gross receipts and type of firm.

The 11 states in which the insurance will be available are California, Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Rhode Island.

To be eligible, residences and businesses would have to use certain federally prescribed crime protection devices. In the case of homes, that would mean jimmy-proof door and window locks.

Honorary pallbearers will include Duke Ellington, Bing Crosby, Ella Fitzgerald, Guy Lombardo, Dizzy Gillespie, Pearl Bailey, Count Basie, Harry James, Frank Sinatra, Ed Sullivan, Earl Wilson,

Advice Offered For Travelers

By JEANNE O'MALLEY
Written for Associated Press
The minute you announce you're going to Europe this summer, people will come from miles around to give you advice. Some of it, like "Take twice as much money and half as many clothes," is as true as it was the day Baedeker left home.

But you'll find most of the free advice you get is for finding wonderful little places to eat. What's needed is advice on how to feel like eating when you get there.

The biggest blight on a three-week vacation is jet lag. The only sure way not to have jet lag is to take a boat. But if you fly, try to get a flight that leaves during the day, and, failing that, try to get some sleep on the plane. This means taking a sleep mask and ear plugs, because there are always those who talk until two in the morning, and the minute they subside, others who'll put up the shade to watch the sunrise.

Whether you sleep or not, by the time you get where you're going, you'll be fully prepared to believe it's five in the afternoon instead of 10 in the morning.

ing, and by the time the local bedtime arrives, you'll be ready.

Making it through the first night is the hardest part of jet lag because you can depend on being awakened. First it will be your stomach. It may be three o'clock in the morning in London but your stomach knows it's really eight o'clock in Chicago and it wants its dinner. So take along something to keep it quiet until morning. Save the milk and sugar packets from the plane. Give it a doughnut. Doughnuts don't mind being squashed in a plastic bag and will keep fresh long enough for your stomach to get on the local time schedule.

The next to wake you up will be your roommate. All European bathrooms have the light switch outside the door on the theory that you won't be so apt to electrocute yourself if they keep the switch out of arm's reach of the running water. So every time your roommate gets up in the night, he's going to wake you up turning on the light. Take one of those little nightlights and plug it into the shaver outlet.

Be on the lookout for UFOs.

It's a rare European hotel that has window screens, and flying objects up to and including pigeons can come in your window. There's nothing more persistent than a French mosquito unless it's a heavy-footed Italian fly, so take a bottle of insect repellent.

The next thing that can blight your vacation is having your clothes come out looking like they'd been tied if not dyed. The answer to this is the plastic bag.

Pack your dresses and suits in the plastic bags from the cleaners. They retain just enough air to keep things from wrinkling. If it's something really fragile like pleated crepe or organdy, put it in a bag, blow it up like a balloon, and fasten it with cellophane tape. And pack that tape.

This method works for all kinds of things: packed mink, which normally comes out looking like licked cat; wigs, if you don't want the bother of a wig carrier; it even works for fresh flowers. So if you get going—away flowers or are met with them on your arrival, don't leave them behind for the maid. Put them in a plastic bag and pack them. They'll come out surprisingly well, and brighten up the dreariest hotel room.

If you combine bath towels and blouses in a load for the dryer, the appliance won't dry all the items in the same time. The blouses will be over-dried in the time it takes the towels to dry.

Miss Cathy Fleming Weds In Ceremony

In a private ceremony, Miss Cathy Elizabeth Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Louis Fleming, and Gary Harold Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Greene, were united in marriage Thursday at four o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride.

The Rev. Graham Nahouse, pastor of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony.

The altar was improvised in the den in front of the fireplace. Two asymmetrical arrangements of white gladioli in tall candelabra flanked the prie-dieu. Tommy Fleming, brother of the bride, lighted the candles.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore yellow double knit dress with multi-colored trim, short sleeves, scooped neckline with matching accessories. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses and baby's breath tied with yellow satin.

Miss Mary Howell was maid of honor. She wore a yellow short dress and carried a nosegay of yellow daisies tied with yellow satin.

Stanley Greene, brother of the bridegroom was best man.

Mrs. Fleming chose for her daughter's wedding, a navy and white dress with matching accessories. Mrs. Greene wore a bonded lace dress with blue accessories. Both mothers wore white pom pon corsages.

Mrs. Cassie Sawyer, the bride's grandmother, wore an aqua two-piece knit suit and a white pom pon corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming entertained at a reception following the ceremony for the bride and bridegroom.

The refreshment table was centered with a yellow and white centerpiece of snapdragons and pom poms. A decorated wedding cake graced one end of the table and was served by Mrs. Greene, the bridegroom's mother. Punch was poured by Joy Greene, sister of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Greene graduated from J.H. Rose High School. Mr. Greene graduated from J.H. Rose High School and attended East Carolina University.

After a wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Raleigh.

Lawyer Can Solve Half Your Problem

Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a widow I'll call Emma, whom I always thought to be a very sensible lady. I was a widower with a 14-year-old son. Emma had no children.

Before our marriage, Emma agreed to move into my house with my son and me. I work nights. Right after the wedding, Emma moved in, but two days later she moved out, saying the boy had made improper advances toward her. Now she refuses to come back until I get a daytime job, so I can stay home nights to "protect" her from my son.

I find it hard to believe that the boy ever made any improper advances to my bride. I asked him, and he denied it, saying Emma was crazy. Emma says the boy is not only a sex maniac, but a liar. I don't know what to believe.

In the meantime, I am legally married but I have no wife. In fact, we have never actually lived together as man and wife yet. What kind of marriage do you call this?

NEVADA

DEAR NEVADA: Unconsummated! See a lawyer. Under the circumstances an annulment shouldn't be hard to obtain. And you had better find out for certain who is lying. If Emma is telling the truth, your son needs help. If your son has been unjustly accused, then Emma needs help.

DEAR ABBY: I am so burned up, I'll bet sparks are coming out of my ears!

Three years ago I gave my sister in law a baby bed and a high chair. My children had outgrown them, but both items were as good as new.

Yesterday I found out that she sold them! Now, I ask you, did she have the right to sell them after I gave them to her for nothing? When I told her I wish she had told me she didn't want them because I would have taken them back, she said, "I would have if you had told me you were only lending them to me, but you told me you were giving them to me." Who is right?

BURNED UP

DEAR BURNED: She is. When you give something away, it's no longer yours.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Jim) has a strange attachment to a girl he knew during high school. Jim corresponded with her all thru college, where he met me, and we married shortly after graduation.

Now Jim calls her daily and keeps her picture in our bedroom and one on his desk at his office. Otherwise he is a perfect husband. He told me he proposed to her before he asked me and she turned him down.

Don't advise me to talk it over with Jim. I've done that and he tells me I should be pleased that she approves of me. Any suggestions?

NO. 2

DEAR NO. 2: I suggest that if you put up with a man who makes you feel like No. 2 either you must have no alternative or you like the punishment.

CONFIDENTIAL TO BIG JOHN: Relax. A "sex-agenarian" means she is from 60 to 69 years old!

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

2 or 3 tablespoons chili powder

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

1 teaspoon ground cumin

1 can (1 pound, 4 ounces) red kidney beans

1 can (1 pound) stewed tomatoes

In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat melt butter; add beef; cook, mashing with a fork, until beef loses its red color. Stir in chili powder, salt, garlic powder and cumin. Add beans and tomatoes including liquid in both cans. Reduce heat and simmer, stirring occasionally and breaking up tomatoes, until thickened and very hot—20 to 30 minutes. If you like, skim off excess fat. Makes 4 servings.

Barrels Of Fun For Newlyweds

RUEDESHEIM, West Germany (WNS) — Honeymoon couples can now follow the example of Diogenes by living in a barrel here. The proprietor of the Hotel Lindenwirt has converted six wine casks — each with a capacity of 1,600 gallons — into honeymoon huts with private baths and "all the bride-and-groom comforts I could think of." He reports that women are more excited about the converted casks than men, "perhaps because they know more about Greek philosophy."

Hat Designer Inspired By The Past

By ALISON LERRICK
PARIS (AP) — Only one thing can change your personality and keep your ears warm at the same time—a hat.

It used to be what women put on first in the morning, took off last at night, and to go without one was the height of indecency. But the only people who care about hats these days are girls in their 20's, says Jean-Charles Brosseau, the man who can't stand to see a naked head.

Though the clientele is young at Brosseau, the hats are old in spirit. Inspired by "all the past," Brosseau feels a Carmen Miranda turban, a musketeer's hat dripping with ostrich plumes or a velvet toque a la Marlene Dietrich are as contemporary as ever.

But when Dietrich dropped in recently, she switched her allegiance to a street-urchin leather cap; the one Brigitte Bardot made famous. Another actress, Marlene Jobert, liked a big felt cloche studded with cut-out flowers so much she insisted Brosseau scatter on a few more of the felt flora.

"Women stopped wearing hats about five years ago," mourns Brosseau, who has been retailing hats for about 10 years. Hair has replaced hats for the majority, he says, and adds that women also think hats are aging. "But that's false," Brosseau exclaims. "After you have reached a certain age ... well, you can't blame it on the hat."

Brosseau's forte is the cloche, born of the original long skirt, revived with their brief swan song last year and likely to perish soon. Until then, however, he will make cloches in any size, and in anything from leather suede and felt to fake python, crocheted, fur and jersey.

Sometimes he circles the brim with a series of snaps that turn up for a scalloped picrust edge.

ALL THE PAST is the inspiration of Jean-Charles Brosseau for his hat designs. His clients are young, though, and shown here are some of his latest designs.

And for the femmes fatales of the multi-media generation, he tucks on a veil, which can also go with a knitted beret, but on the nape instead of the nose. Wearing a hat, though, means more than putting it on your head. "You must know how," Brosseau says. "This demands confidence and a little taste. That's enough, I think. You don't need make-up, you don't need a certain face. The color is not important and only the form counts. You can always find the right hat."

Special activities and events are typical of each month of the year and July is no exception. This month brings to mind thoughts of family vacations, camp, trips to the beach and gardens full of fresh vegetables. This is the time of year for preserving your family's winter food supply. It has been said that an adventure in freezing foods can be a highly rewarding experience — economically, creatively and personally.

Freezing is one of the best and simplest ways of preserving foods. If properly handled and prepared, frozen foods keep much of their natural color, attractiveness, flavor, texture and nutritive value. How good a frozen food is depends largely on the quality of the fresh produce and how it is handled from the time it is harvested until it is prepared for a meal.

To preserve foods by freezing, you must SLOW down the changes that affect food quality and STOP the causes of food spoilage. Changes occur in plant tissues as a vegetable or fruit grows, reaches its peak of quality, and then decays. These changes in ripening are due in part to the action of naturally occurring substances called "enzymes" which are present in the cells and tissues. The action of enzymes is desirable until it brings foods to the peak of quality. Unfortunately, enzyme action does not stop automatically. If it is not controlled, aging continues, and enzyme action causes undesirable changes in texture, color and flavor. Fortunately there are two ways to control enzyme action — (1) Freezing slows enzyme activity so that many frozen foods will keep satisfactorily with little or no further control of their enzymes. Meats and certain fruits are examples of these foods. (2) Heat slows down the action of enzymes and is widely used to prevent quality loss in frozen vegetables during storage. This heating process is called "blanching" or "scalding". Blanching or scalding is a critical step and must be done carefully. Underblanching stimulates the activity of enzymes and is worse than no blanching. Overblanching causes loss of vitamins, minerals, flavor and color.

Here are brief directions for three ways to freeze that delicious sweet corn that's available right now.

Whole Kernel Corn:

Scald cleaned ears 6-8 minutes. Cool quickly in icy water. Cut kernels from the cob. Pack corn into containers. Close, label and freeze.

Corn On The Cob:

Scald cleaned ears 6-8 minutes. Cool quickly in cold water. Package, label and freeze.

Southern Style Cream Corn:

Cut off tips of cleaned ears. (Make another thin slice, if you like.) Scrape cob. Add enough water to keep corn from sticking. Bring to a boil and let boil 4 minutes. Chill quickly. Package and freeze.

Phone Crisis Postpones Wedding

COVENTRY, England (WNS) — Patricia Mason, 33, had invited 42 guests to her wedding to John Taylor, 29, but called off both wedding and honeymoon because she couldn't get a telephone installed in her bridal cottage. "John works for a newspaper and is likely to be called at night," she explained. "Unless we have a phone, he must sleep at his mother's house without me, and that's not my idea of how to start a marriage." The new phone has been promised for October and the wedding will wait until it is installed. Pull together last year's shirtdress with this year's ribbon-tied ballet slippers by color-matching the pantyhose to the outfit.

Some of the most important funds included in the recently approved state budget are those which will fund the first year of medical education at East Carolina University.

As the governor had agreed, $767,629 was included in the first year of the biennium and $692,187 in the second for beginning the program which will see medical students obtain their first year of medical school here.

There is also $350,000 in the budget to build a medical library at ECU to provide the materials needed for medical training.

Coming this far with the ECU medical training has not been easy. Twice the General Assembly has approved bills which authorized the university to proceed with planning for a two year medical school. While a favorable report was received from an accrediting team concerning ECU's planning, staffing, interim facilities and proposed budget for such a school, the Board of Higher Education recommended a one year program instead.

Gov. Scott agreed with this, stipulating that the one year program would be the beginning of a full four year school of Medicine at ECU. The ECU board of trustees accepted this concept and the one year program has emerged.

ECU officials and representatives of the UNC School of Medicine, following a joint study, announced that the one year plan was feasible. Under it, the medical students admitted to the one year program at ECU will have places available to them for the second year of medical school at Chapel Hill if the satisfactorily complete the first year. For their clinical training in the final year many of them will return to eastern hospitals, and the Board of Higher Education stipulated that this program should start in Greenville.

We expect that most of the 20 students who will enter the program each year here will have eastern origins and the hope is that they will be oriented toward returning to this area of the state to practice once they have completed their training.

There are those who feel that the state's various universities should narrow their aims to certain fields of excellence, rather than covering all of the fields of study to be found in some universities.

If this is to be, certainly one of East Carolina University's fields should be physician training as well as education of nurses and others in the allied health field. This is the east's greatest need and ECU has made great strides in this direction. Now that the General Assembly has made funds available for the medical program, ECU should be well on its way to fulfilling its role of alleviating the east's critical physician shortage.

Do Not Wait To Be Asked

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — I've been talking to my friends. Not a one urged me to run for Governor, U.S. Senator, or even Lieutenant-Governor.

A neighbor mentioned dog-catcher. "You don't like dogs, anyway," he said.

Out there beyond the suburbs of Raleigh, you may not realize how deflating that is to the ego. Here in the capital city, where politics is in the air thicker than July humidity, the ultimate rejection is to realize that nobody wants you to run for nothing.

Or so it seems in conversations among various political types. These early summer days, as the General Assembly thrashes towards adjournment (or recess, whichever it turns out to be), the talk is of candidates and would-be candidates in next year's primaries and general election.

The plethora of names makes it appear that half the population and all the legislature has political aims of some sort; and that anybody worth his salt has friends importing him to run for something.

Time-Honored Formula

The formula for a hopeful to test the water is the modest admission, in a news release or dropped casually in conversation, that: "My friends are urging me to run for — (whatever office), and I am giving it serious consideration."

I asked Senator Herman Moore of Mecklenburg why candidates can't just run, but claim friends are urging them to do it.

"It's a subterfuge," he said, disdainfully. "I guess it's used by those who don't want the public to think they have any ambition."

He didn't use it. He simply said he'd like to be U. S. Senator, and he might run for the job. Refreshing.

As to credence for the claim, Moore said, "I never saw a truly drafted candidate. Nobody runs unless he wants to, no matter what his friends say."

I talked to my friend Tom Bradshaw, mayor of Raleigh at 32. A ball-of-fire Jaycee record preceded his entry into politics. Did friends prevail upon him to make the plunge?

He Didn't Hear Call

"No, they didn't," said Bradshaw. "And it nearly ruined me. I wanted to serve on the City Council but I waited for friends to urge me to run. I thought that was how it was done. Finally, my wife said I'd better make up my mind. I did, and filed the last day."

Campaigning time lost by the delay meant a skinny, six-vote margin when he won his first term. Next time, he was second high in the field.

His advice: "Don't wait to be asked."

I went to Secretary of State Thad Eure to find out how it's done. After all, 50 years as a voting Democrat, only a little less than that as an elected official at some level (nearly 35 as Secretary) qualified him as an expert on political techniques.

Easiest thing in the world, said Eure. The would-be candidate talks it around, and when he gets enough favorable reaction, announces that he has decided to run in response to the urging of friends.

Two Makes Majority

"It takes two," the Secretary said.

Only two? That sounded like very unscientific polling.

"Listen," said Eure, "when a man who really wants to run hears two people tell him to, it sounds like a majority of the voters of the state."

Do those friends doing the urging have to swing political weight or influence?

"Oh, no," said Eure. "They can be anybody at all. Members of your own household."

That was an idea. I hurried home.

Teresa greeted me. "Daddy," she said, "I think it would be wonderful if you ran."

"For Governor?" I said, delighted.

"Silly old Daddy! No, to the shopping center to pick up my skirt at the cleaners."

Zesely was reading the afternoon paper, "Hey, Dad," he began, why don't you run."

"For U.S. Senator?" I asked, hopefully.

"Are you outta your mind? No, upstairs and bring me my swim goggles off my bed."

Mary Allen stopped me on my way through the kitchen. "Bryan, I really think you ought to run..."

"For Lieutenant-Governor?" I said, dubiously.

"There, you've got a heat stroke. Let me feel your forehead. I was going to say, you ought to run the sprinkler on the back lawn 30 minutes."

That's how a candidacy washed out before it ever got off the ground.

Poland Seeing Quiet Change

By ROLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WARSAW — Most of the VIP cars now sitting in the parking square at Poland's Communist party headquarters are Polish-made Fiats, not long black Mercedes limousines as in the old Gomulka days.

That quiet change by new Communist party boss Edward Gierek may seem more cosmetic than surgical, but even traditionally hostile intellectuals now think that the 57-year-old Gierek is preparing to cut deeply and remorselessly to cure the sick body of Poland.

Gierek came to power in a convulsive economic upheaval last December which threatened civil war over high food prices and scarce consumer goods. But the sickness extended far deeper than the economy. Under Wladyslaw Gomulka, the remote, peasant-like, orthodox party leader whom Gierek displaced, the ruling Communist party had all but atrophied. It was withering under the dead hand of stale dogma — what one intellectual in the university city of Cracow described to us as "the gross and heavy machinery of inertia that prevented innovation or movement of any kind."

Gierek's first act was to give himself the appearance of a human being, something the Polish people had not seen in a leader, party or not, for three decades. Thus, extraordinary changes abruptly began to disturb the stiff and secret formalities of the Gomulka regime. At the annual May Day parade in Warsaw last spring, Gierek marched with the people several blocks before mounting the speaker's stand at the Palace of Culture, a concession to Western-style politics which was carefully censored in other Eastern European Communist states.

So I Made A Mistake

MADRID — It is perhaps 15 years since I have seen my Spanish friend Enrique Hombria. He embraces me like this, kisses me on both cheeks like this, and then he says with pride in his voice, "My friend, you will not recognize Madrid since you were here before."

Enrique takes me out to the car in the large airport parking lot. "We have parking lots now just like you have in the United States," he says proudly.

"That's nice," I tell him. We start driving into the city. "You see," he says, "we have superhighways just like in America."

The traffic gets thicker and the cars are bumper to bumper. The buses are spewing out smoke, and as we drive slowly into the city, a smog can be seen over the city.

"It's different, huh, my friend?" Enrique says, almost hitting two young people on a motorcycle.

"Very different, Enrique." "Wait until you see the buildings. We are building everywhere." Enrique is not lying. There is office building after office building, apartment house after apartment house, some beautiful, most ugly cement boxes making a harsh new skyline.

"How do you like?" Enrique asks.

"I'm floored," I say honestly.

"I remember 15 years ago," Enrique says, "you said to me 'Enrique, in order to be a great country and a happy one, you must become an industrial power.'"

"I said that?"

"Si, and you said Spain must have automobiles, and new roads and large buildings and factories, because that is how you become a proud and contented people. Look, over there is a Revlon factory, there is a Coca Cola plant, there is a Dodge factory, there is 3M's, now we pass Squibb and RCA. What do you think of my Spain now?"

"My friend," I say gently. "I don't know how to break this to you. But I was wrong."

"Wrong about what?"

"I was wrong 15 years ago when I told you in order to be happy you had to be a great industrial power. We have finally discovered in America that the simple life is the best life."

"You mean we shouldn't have built the roads, the buildings, the factories, the automobiles, the hotels, the credit card-systems?" Enrique asks, puzzled.

"I'm afraid not," I reply. "You will discover, as we have, that automobiles and office buildings and superhighways and credit cards will bring you nothing but trouble."

"But," Enrique says, his arm sweeping out across the Madrid skyline, "you told us to build all this. You said all this would bring us happiness."

"Anyone can make a mistake," I reply defensively.

Enrique is crestfallen as we creep along in the traffic breathing the fumes of the other cars. "What do we do now?"

"Go back to the simple life, Enrique, get yourself a jug of wine and a loaf of bread and a

Other Editors Say Why Wait 2 Years?

(Henderson Dispatch)

If the Legislature is of a mind to repeal of the soft drink tax at all, why wait two years? Why not immediately? Why couldn't the budget makers have proposed that and made allowance for the difference in revenue by curtailments for this new biennium? The answer is, of course, the $38 million the State receives in revenue.

But if the Senate follows the House lead and votes to abolish the drink tax two years hence, the loss in revenue involved with most likely be recovered in a higher excise levy on cigarettes. Indeed, this latter is possible regardless of soft drink receipts.

Agitation already is being heard in Washington for increasing the present Federal cigarette excise of eight cents by twelve cents for a total of twenty cents per pack. Some of the income thus received would, under this plan, be returned to the States, based in part on their existing levies.

North Carolina's cigarette tax of two cents, voted in 1969, is the lowest in the nation. Even so, it contributes to the unfair and inequitable levies imposed on cigarettes at various levels in all the States, ranging upward to eighteen cents in a few instances. This is the most glaring example imaginable of taxing a legitimate product out of existence. Smokers are still buying cigarettes regardless. It has been said that taxes are having a greater adverse effect upon the cigarette industry than the smoking-health propaganda that is being carried on. Heavy increases could conceivably become the straw that breaks the camel's back, thus wrecking a legitimate industry and at the same time backfiring on the Federal government, the States and some municipalities who are taxing this tobacco product as an avenue, they think, to a fast buck.

To enact repeal of the soft drink tax now, to be effective two years hence, would be something new under the sun. But it wouldn't be the only foolish legislation approved in Raleigh.

Life's Little Quirks

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The five diseases Americans probably fear most are cancer, heart attacks, strokes, hydrophobia and tetanus, or lock-jaw—although not necessarily in that order.

The industrial disease that bothers personnel executives the most, however, is "one-day pneumonia," the custom many employees have of taking an extra day off preceding or following a holiday.

We might easily make a better world if the time we spend disentangling wire coat hangers in closets were put to a more constructive use.

Among the victims of today's price inflation are cabdrivers and restaurant waiters. They complain that many of their customers, instead of tipping 15 to 20 per cent of the bill, are now doling out 10 to 12 per cent. What are resentful patrons going to do when the nation's hatcheck girls start charging four bits to watch their hats, coats and umbrellas?

Practically every U.S. high school pupil used to be able to name the capital and largest city in each of the American states. But today it is doubtful whether two out of five persons over the age of 25 can do so without making at least two to four mistakes.

An old-timer now is anyone who can remember when a first-class letter took only a two-cent stamp—and it was delivered to the recipient before he had aged visibly.

Men's sideburns are reaching such a length that it has become questionable whether they are really sideburns or beards. It would seem fair that when they get so long they get caught in a fellow's necktie knot they should be classified as whiskers.

The Boston Male Choir will give a concert at East Carolina Teachers College on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the Campus Building. The public is invited to attend.

In addition to demonstrating the live-at-home idea to people throughout the state, the State Live-at-Home farm on the Greenville-Bethel Highway has established something of a record in the production of Irish potatoes during the present season. On two acres of land the farm produced 'spuds' at the rate of 160 barrels to the acre. The normal yield per acre, it was said, is around 60 barrels. The farm also expects a bumper crop of sweet potatoes.

Mrs. W.G. Wood of Vanceboro was a Greenville visitor today.

Strength For Today

NEVER GIVE UP

The reality of drug addiction in our midst is certainly one of the most appalling facts that our country and the world at large has confronted. Authorities on the subject tell us that addicts sometimes get completely away from the bondage of addiction, but many of us would doubt this. Certainly a person once an addict is in constant danger lest some little mishap or carelessness may put him back again into bondage.

Of course, the first way to attack this evil is by the use of government agencies. This is not the final word on the subject, but law detection and enforcement certainly enable our struggle against drug addiction to get under way.

The schools have to speak out. The churches have to raise their voices in solemn warning. There is nothing, that tears personality apart as violently and viciously as does drug addiction. Let us make a vow to find it wherever it raises its ugly head and to have mercy not on the "pusher" but on the victims of his evil activities.

Only one drink stands between an alcoholic and his freedom from the evils of alcoholism. Only one experiment with habit-forming drugs stands between the promise of a young life and the inevitability of ruin.

In the Second World War, Winston Churchill's sign of victory and his plea, made over and over again, "Never give up; never give up; never give up," did much toward keeping the free world truly free.

But moral evils can destroy our liberty faster than any other evil. "Never give up; never give up; never give up."

Australia A Near-Competitor

By ELMER ROESSNER

It's winter in Australia now. That and the dynamic nature of the Australians—they are much like the early settlers of America—are making the land "down under" a growing competitor of the United States in foreign markets, especially in agriculture products.

When it's winter here and we are out of the world agriculture markets, the Australian crops are coming in and being shipped and flown to the hungry world.

In the 1969-70 year, Australia exported $4.6 billion (B) in products. Of these, $2.4 billion (B) were agricultural; the rest were minerals, fish products and manufactured articles.

One of Australia's big markets is Red China where, at present, there is no American competition.

Here are some highlights from a report by Mary E. Long in the Foreign Agriculture Service publication "Foreign Agriculture".

In the 1969-70 marketing year, Australia exported 8.3 million tons of wheat, largely to Red China, Britain.

The current crop is the last one to be subsidized by the government. The subsidy has cut U.S. imports from 22,000 bales in 1967 to 50 bales in 1969-70.

Oilseed production is increasing, but Australia is still buying $1 million a year worth from the United States.

Production of leaf tobacco has tripled in the last 10 years, but Australia continues to buy around $17 million worth in America a year.

Australian meat sales to the United States are limited by law to 560 million pounds a year.

It has tested canned entrees in the Philadelphia area and as a consequence has notified all state agencies that the test was a success and that it recommended canned lunches, with milk, bread and a fruit or vegetables in the School Lunch Program at schools without cafeterias or kitchens.

The food can be heated in inexpensive ovens. Entrees include stews, beans and franks, spaghetti and meat balls, and other dishes. The USDA points out that the foods can be served at desks.

Four People In Skidding Car Were Victims

GREENSBORO (AP) — Four persons died Tuesday when an automobile skidded on U. S. 70 near Greensboro during a heavy rain, slid into the oncoming lane and was hit broadside by another car. Another automobile then plowed into the wreckage.

The Highway Patrol identified the dead as Charles Edward Foust, 73, and Joe Isley, both of Rt. 2, Gibsonville; Winford Summers, 22, of Gibsonville; and William H. Foust of Rt. 1, Whitsett.

All four were in the car which skidded. Another passenger in the same car, Henry Summers of Gibsonville, was in satisfactory condition at Moses Cone Hospital.

Joe Nathan Marshall of Rt. 6, Greensboro, driver of the first car to hit the sliding vehicle, and Susan Blue of Greensboro, driver of the second car, were treated and released at a hospital.

The term "middle class" also has become confusing. Caught between rising prices and increasing taxes, the middle class is beginning to feel squeezed out of existence. No guy today really ought to call himself a member of the middle class unless his take-home pay still amounts to at least $5 more a week than he would get if he went on public welfare.

of poor-quality textiles no one would buy), this middle-level bureaucracy must be ruthlessly purged before production can be properly brought into line with demand.

In short, Gierke's wise tactical or cosmetic changes must be accompanied with a highly subtle managerial revolution. He must break what one leading intellectual labelled "the psychology of monopoly" exercised by third-rate bureaucrats. That means a revolution of sorts within a party that does not particularly like revolution. But Gierke's record as party boss in Silesia makes any prediction of his failure now hazardous. He managed there what other provincial party bosses could not. When one enters his province, the two-lane road to the industrial city of Katowice suddenly becomes a beautiful four-lane divided highway.

If Gierke can perform such surgery nationally, he will rank with Poland's heroes.

Model City Of The Future Is Plagued Today

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, Md. (AP) — Although smokestacks are banned and auto traffic is discouraged, this model city of the future already is plagued with pollution problems of the past.

Designers of Columbia, an attractive, affluent pre-planned community of 12,000-13,000 between Baltimore and Washington, D.C., hoped to write off smog and other urban irritants while the city was still on the drawing board.

But despite ample parks, streams and trees and the absence of heavy industry, a three-year study has found air pollution has moved in anyway.

"The classical pattern of city climate can already be found in Columbia," says Dr. Helmut Landsberg, chairman of the University of Maryland's meteorology department.

The results of Dr. Landsberg's study are particularly disappointing in light of the planning the city did to minimize pollution.

"We control the use of any piece of land," said Columbia's general manager, Dick Anderson, "and our zoning relates only to the cleaner industries. If someone wanted to put up a smokestack, it would be almost impossible."

Planners also realized the dangers of the internal combustion engine.

"All of our neighborhoods have an elementary school in the middle of each neighborhood so the kids can walk to school, eliminating the need for school buses," said Anderson.

There are also middle and high schools in the village, within walking distance.

"And the city's mini-bus transit system enables people to get around the town," Anderson added, "eliminating the need for a second car."

These precautions made Columbia ideal for air tests.

Dr. Landsberg's study, financed by the National Science Foundation, proved for the first time man and his activities cause pollution, even in an industry-free environment.

And the fact that Columbia was built almost from nothing in the mid-1960s gave the scientist a unique chance to see how building a city would alter an already known environment.

The study proved for the first time rural air conditions would change when a city was built. Previously, scientists had been able to show only that rural and urban conditions varied without being able to prove adding the city had caused the change.

The change in air quality apparently occurs because a city had more difficulty than a field or pasture in ridding itself of its pollutants.

Dr. Landsberg's data shows that Columbia can be up to eight degrees warmer at night than its surrounding pastureland, a fact he has verified by photographing warm spots from an airplane at night with infrared film.

One consequence is that clouds form more frequently over a city and it gets more rainfall, thus robbing the pastureland around it of moisture needed for crops.

Warmer air also tends to rise.

"Especially nocturnally, the city acts like a little chimney until the rising city air hits a layer of air it can't go through," said Dr. Landsberg. "Then it turns around and comes back at you from the sides. Really, you're just recirculating the old city air itself."

Basically, the only way a city loses its pollutants is when they are blown away by a strong wind or when the air is cleaned by a rainstorm.

In addition to the problems which any city faces just due to its own physical composition, however, Columbia's location in the middle of the Baltimore-Washington corridor presents special problems.

One of the reasons Columbia's air has been so clean is the forests which have lined that corridor for decades.

Reducing the forests, according to the meteorologist, would mean that Washington's air would have no opportunity of losing its pollutants as it moved northeast along the eastern seacoast toward Baltimore, and would pick up more pollutants as it continued north.

"If Washington and Baltimore grow together, we will have the same atmospheric conditions as London and Tokyo now," Dr. Landsberg stated flatly.

"And they are in many respects the dirtiest places in the world."

Pay Bonus For Not Smoking

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — In a tractor factory in this Irish capital, every habitual smoker who doesn't smoke during work hours gets a $24 bonus for the summer holidays.

"This scheme will mean that our employees will be in better health and their wages will go further," said Manager W.M. Henderson.

"Working conditions will be more pleasant without cigarette smoke and ashes."

BELGIAN EXPORTS

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Belgian exports rose 15.3 per cent in 1970 to $11.6 billion, the Ministry of Trade reports.

Nixon Warns U.S. May Be Approaching Decadence

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon believes the United States is approaching a possible decline into decadence. But he says the news media "and perhaps even presidents and politicians" can help matters by occasionally emphasizing American's good points.

The President's words took attention, at least temporarily, from what appears to be a major purpose of his trip to the Western White House: a review of foreign policy in general and Vietnam policy in particular.

Nixon, who has dwelt increasingly in recent informal speeches on the state of the nation's spiritual and moral health, expanded on the theme Tuesday in talking—apparently without notes—to newspaper executives and broadcasters in Kansas City, Mo. He stopped there en route here for a two week stay.

While expressing confidence that everything will turn out right for the country, the chief executive likened the United States today to ancient Greece and Rome on the eve of their declines from greatness.

"I think of what happened to Greece and to Rome, and you see what is left—only the pillars. What has happened, of course, is that great civilizations of the past, as they have become wealthy, as they have lost their will to live, to improve, they then have become subject to the decadence that eventually destroys the civilization.

"The United States is now reaching that period."

Nixon went on to say he was convinced Americans have the vitality, courage and strength "out through this heartland and across this nation" to infuse America with "moral and spiritual strength" as well as wealth and power.

"But I also know," he said, "that people need to be reassured. The people who can assure them are opinion leaders, editors, television, radio commentators, teachers, even perhaps presidents and politicians. "Don't let the problems of the moment obscure the great and good things that are going on in this country ... I would

Group Sponsored Wilmington Trip

The Governor's Council on Aging sponsored a bus trip to Wilmington on June 30 for Pleasant Plain and Jumping Run Senior Clubs.

The group of about 50 toured St. John's Art Gallery, the Rose Gardens, and the USS North Carolina Battleship. They ate picnic lunches in the New Park. The group was under the supervision of Mrs. J.M. Reeves.

suggest to the editors and other opinion makers here: that from time to time, maybe once a month, that message might come through."

Although the President spoke for 44 minutes, he lifted none of the shadows from current backstage diplomatic maneuvering on the difficult issues of peace in Vietnam and the Middle East.

Nixon was accompanied to California by Richard Helms, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, just back from a secret mission to Israel and undisclosed points.

Some of the least explored sections of the world are in the jungles of Peru.

House Votes To Erase Drunkenness As Crime

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to erase the offense of public drunkenness from North Carolina's criminal law goes to the Senate now after being approved by the House.

Before passing the measure Tuesday, the House amended it to meet objections raised in House debate last week.

At that time, Rep. James Ramsey, D-Person, objected that the bill imposed no duty on an officer who found a person drunk in a gutter on a public street.

Rep. Hugh Campbell, D-Mecklenburg, offered the amendment that would require the officer to either (1) take the drunk person home, (2) take him to a detoxification center to sober up, or (3) take him to jail for not more than 24 hours to sober up. No warrants would be issued and there would be no criminal charges.

The bill provides that a person found publicly drunk a second time in six months would be considered an alcoholic and he could be taken before a magistrate for referral to a short-term treatment center.

Rep. T. J. Baker, D-Duplin, told the House that he was from a rural area where "we don't have centers to take these people to." He told the House that the bill would be "just making nursemaids of our police departments."

Havana Announces Exchange Americans, Cubans

MIAMI (AP) — Cuba's Fidel Castro's regime today announced the exchange of 18 American citizens in Cuba for four Cuban fishermen held prisoner by the United States.

The Cuban announcement carried by Havana Radio followed by several hours the transfer of the four Cubans from an American federal prison to a Cuban fishing boat in the Gulf of Mexico.

The Havana broadcast monitored in Miami said the 18 Americans would receive "all aid in leaving the country once the services and costs that they incurred were paid."

One of the 18 was already in Miami. Fritz Sprandel, 26, a lone canoeist forced ashore in Cuba May 22, was returned to this country Tuesday.

The other Americans—four aboard the yacht White Cloud, five aboard a sloop called the Saturna, and eight crewmen of a Florida tugboat—were expected to begin leaving the Communist island later today.

Havana Radio said that "in this manner the problem is resolved." The broadcast referred to the incident involving the imprisonment of the four Cubans in this country and the subsequent detention of the 18 Americans in Cuba.

Five of the Americans, the four aboard the yacht White Cloud and Sprandel, had been sentenced by "Cuban revolutionary tribunals" to pay fines of $20,000 each.

The Cuban broadcast said these fines were reduced to $2,000 each. A similar reduction was made by American authorities for each of the four Cubans serving six month prison sentences at Eglin Federal Prison in Florida.

Their prison sentences also were suspended.

The Cuban fishermen were taken from Eglin prison Tuesday and transferred from a U.S. Coast Guard cutter to a Cuban fishing vessel near the Dry Tortugas islets in the Gulf, where they were arrested for fishing in U.S. territorial waters.

The first indication that an exchange was underway was the arrival in Miami Tuesday aboard a Cuban refugee flight of Sprandel, of Allentown, Pa.

Sprandel was forced ashore on the Cuban coast May 22 as he attempted to sail a one-man canoe from Key West, Fla., to Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula.

The Cuban fishermen were freed upon payment of reduced fines of $2,000 each and the suspension of the remainder of their jail sentences, the State Department said. They had been fined $10,000 and ordered to jail for six months.

Other Washington sources said four California men aboard the yacht White Cloud also would have fines imposed by the Cubans reduced to $2,000 each and would be allowed to leave the island.

The four—Bernard Bender, his sons Lauren and Michael, and Thomas Joseph McGuire—had been convicted along with Sprandel of entering Cuban waters illegally and fined $20,000 each. The action was seen as retaliation for the sentencing of the four Cubans by a U.S. District Court in Key West on May 9.

Sprandel could not be reached for an explanation of the conditions of his release.

The other Americans to be freed by the Castro government were five persons from Berkeley, Calif., aboard the sloop Saturna, and eight Florida crewmembers of the tug Battler, operated by the Port Everglades Towing Co. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The Cuban government has never said what penalties were assessed them.

First reports that the Cubans were being freed came from ham radio operators in the Miami area, who reported overhearing maritime band radio transmissions from the Cuban mother ship to its Havana headquarters.

While the Coast Guard and officials at the Eglin prison were referring all queries to the State Department, a shouted broadcast monitored in Miami said: "The four fishermen who were in prison in the State of Florida have been freed."

The State Department later confirmed their release.

Board Upholds Decision On Suspending Teacher

An elementary teacher in the Pitt County School system, Mrs. Mary E. Jones, who taught a fifth grade at Pactolus Elementary School, has been suspended from her teaching contract for the coming school year.

This action, taken by members of the Pitt County Board of Education on Tuesday, was based on a recommendation for suspension made by Superintendent of County Schools Arthur S. Alford.

The decision of the board to uphold Alford on the recommendation was taken after a two and one half hour hearing conducted in the board room of the County School offices.

Charles Beeton, attorney with Chambers, Stein, Ferguson and Lanning represented Mrs. Jones. W. W. Speight was attorney for the school board.

Yesterday's hearing followed a hearing on June 24 by the Pactolus Advisory Council. The council at that time considered the case and recommended an additional hearing.

Primary documents on which Alford based his letter of suspension to Mrs. Jones were the final evaluation report on Mrs. Jones made by the late principal John Maye for the school year 1969-70 at Robinson Union School in Winterville; the 1970-71 final evaluation report on Mrs. Jones submitted by

By MARY ELLEN MYRENE Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For 500 children who are usually homeless and nearly always hungry, the man to see in Da Nang, South Vietnam, is a lanky, handsome, 26-year-old American named Jim Trullinger.

He's easy to find, a conspicuous man at 6-foot plus next to the crowds of chattering children who seek him out.

Since shortly after arriving in Da Nang in 1969, Trullinger has run a youth hostel for 50 children, a volunteer project that dovetails with his job as an officer of the Agency for International Development.

In the two years he has run the hostel, Trullinger had cared for infants, bailed youngsters out of jail, reunited lost children with relatives and counseled youths emotionally hurt and hardened by a decade of war.

Although the children are Vietnamese, they are largely ignored by local government officials already burdened down by other problems, said Trullinger.

Trullinger's own involvement with the children began a few months after he arrived in Da

Nang and set out to practice his Vietnamese on two shoe-shine boys. They told him about their residence, and he asked to see it.

"I went there and found about 15 boys living in an old, abandoned house at the end of an alley," he said. "The kids would just go there at night and sleep on the floor. The rest of the time, they'd be out in the streets trying to earn money to eat, or they'd steal food."

Although a newcomer himself, Trullinger appealed to local Vietnamese for help, and he persuaded an older student to move into the house.

Slowly, there were other improvements—sleeping mats on the floor, a regular meal every day, the beginnings of a school. And other children, approaching shyly or defiantly, asked to live there.

"A lot of times, the kids just come up to me in the streets," said Trullinger. "The hardest thing in the world for me to do is to turn them away. But we have room for 50 and it filled up pretty fast."

At about the same time Trullinger was setting up the hostel in late 1969, he met Richard Hughes, 26, another American who had organized two similar youth hostels in Saigon. From their chance meeting at the Da Nang Press Club, the two men agreed to combine their projects and seek private donations in the United States and elsewhere.

Their new umbrella organization, called Shoeshine Boys Foundation, Inc., now operates the one hostel in Da Nang and four in Saigon.

Cash Going Places But Not As All-Star

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Norm Cash is really going places this year—everywhere, in fact, but the All-Star game. At least he doesn't plan on it.

The hot-handed Detroit first baseman, who finished second to Baltimore's Boog Powell in the All-Star voting, believes American League Manager Earl Weaver won't choose him to the squad.

"I don't think he'll change his mind overnight, either," said Cash.

Weaver may have second thoughts, though, after what happened Tuesday night: Cash drove in six runs with two, three-run homers to lead the Tigers to a 12-7 romp over the New York Yankees.

To further spice the All-Star situation, Powell was taken out of action Tuesday night with a sore wrist as the Orioles split a two-night doubleheader with Washington. Baltimore won the first game 6-2 and Washington the second, 3-2.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox nipped the Cleveland Indians 3-2; the Oakland A's topped the Chicago White Sox 9-4; the Kansas City Royals nudged the Milwaukee Brewers 1-0 and the California Angels turned back the Minnesota Twins 7-5.

In the National League, it was Pittsburgh 5, Cincinnati 2; Montreal 5, New York 1; Atlanta 5, Philadelphia 2; Houston 5, San Francisco 2 and Chicago 3, Los Angeles 1.

Cash was runnerup for the Dream Game in Detroit next Tuesday despite an all-around better offensive performance than Powell's. He's hitting .290 to Powell's .220, has a league-leading 19 homers to Powell's 14 and has scored 37 runs to Powell's 36. Boog leads in runs batted in, 54 to 47.

The Tiger first baseman, having his best year so far, says he's read in newspapers that

Weaver won't pick him as an All-Star sub "because he has a lot of guys who can also play first base."

Powell, meanwhile, was lifted from the second game after striking out in the first inning. He swung weakly at three pitches and twice dropped the bat in pain. Team doctors say Powell needs a few days rest and a new wrapping will be used on the sore right wrist next time out.

Cash unloaded a three-run homer in the second inning when the Tigers tagged New York starter Stan Bahnsen for seven runs—their biggest single inning outburst of the year. Cash then crashed a three-run shot off Gary Jones in the fourth. Don Buford, Brooks Robinson and Merv Rettenmund unleashed first inning home runs, pacing Baltimore to its first-game victory that snapped Washington's six-game winning streak.

The Senator's came back to take the nightcap as Orioles reliever Dick Hall let in the winning run with a wild throw on a bouncer in the seventh inning. Lenny Randle scored Washington's winner when Hall fielded the ball hit by Toby Harrah and threw it past catcher Ellie Hendricks, miffing the chance at the plate.

Frank Howard had a home run for Washington in each game.

Reggie Smith struck his 17th homer in the fifth inning and John Kennedy tripled in another tally in a two-run sixth to lead Boston to its 12th triumph in 15 games.

Reggie Jackson lashed three hits, including his 17th homer, to help Oakland rout Chicago. Diego Segui checked the White Sox on one hit until relief pitcher Tom Bradley hit a fifth-inning homer. But by then, the A's had the game nailed down after scoring six runs in the top of the inning.

Dick Drago hurled a six-hit-ter and Cookie Rojas got in the game's only run with a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning as Kansas City downed Milwaukee.

Ken McMullen tied the score with a two-run homer in the eighth inning and pinch-hitter Ken Berry followed with a two-run single as California defeated Minnesota.

North State Loop Names All-Stars

The Optimists and Lions dominated the North State Little League All-Star team for 1971.

Four members of the Optimists, the league champions, were named to the list, along with four members of the Lions, who finished in last place, but put on a strong finish.

Three were named from the Kiwanis, two from the Jaycees, two from Coca-Cola and three from R. C. Cola.

Chosen from the champs were Gary Porter, Jeff Aldridge, Greg Lee, and Bob Peoples. From the Lions came Wright Hooks and Dale Steele, with Phillip Gibbs and Guy Bradbury chosen as alternates.

Picked from the runner-up Kiwanis were Sid Ashby and David Middleton, with Julian White as another alternate. The Jaycees landed William Meyer and Ken Avery on the team.

From Coca-Cola came Greg Lassiter and Tony Worthington, while Bill Ellington and Ricky Bolonde represent R. C. Cola. Mike Brown, also of R. C., was chosen as the other alternate for the league.

The North State team will open play on Thursday, July 22, in Warrenton, facing the winner of the Roanoke Rapids-Warren County contest.

Aaron, Mays, Stargell Pace National Stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Atlanta's Hank Aaron and San Francisco's Willie Mays, two of baseball's all-time greats, and Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell, the major league leader in home runs and runs batted in, were named today as the starting outfield for the 1971 National League All-Star team.

Aaron, starting for the 12th time and appearing in his 20th All-Star game, was the top vote getter in both major leagues with 1,119,306 votes out of 2,396,895 ballots cast.

Mays, also named as a starter for the 12th time and playing in his 22nd All-Star game, was second in the NL with 1,064,887 votes.

Stargell collected 851,161 votes, far ahead of fourth-place finisher Lu Zrock of St. Louis, who had 432,575.

San Francisco will be the only team with two starters for the National League when they oppose the American League in the classic at Detroit in a night game July 13. In addition to Hays, the Giants' Willie McCovey will be at first base.

Completing the starting NL infield will be second baseman Glenn Beckert of Chicago, shortstop Bud Harrelson of New York and third baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis. The catcher will be Johnny Bench of Cincinnati.

Bench was the only other National Leaguer to granger more than a million votes. He received 1,060,651 in the balloting announced by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bench, Aaron, Mays and Beckert are repeaters from the 1970 starting squad.

Third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore led the AL voting with 1,110,468. Picked to join Robinson in the infield were shortstop Luis Aparicio of Boston, second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and first baseman Boog Powell of Baltimore. Ray Fosse of Cleveland was selected as the catcher.

Chosen to start in the outfield were Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, Tony Oliva of Minnesota and Frank Robinson of Baltimore.

Each of the starters selected by fans throughout the United States and Canada must play three innings.

The remainder of the teams, including pitchers, will be named by the managers—Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson for the National League and Baltimore's Earl Weaver for the Americans.

Tennis Group Usut Over Announcement

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Mike Davies, executive director of World Championship Tennis which is backed by Dallas millionaire Lamar Hunt, says the International Lawn Tennis Federation is "turning tennis over to the Communists."

The ILTF was expected to announce today at Stresa, Italy, that all professionals will be banned from ILTF tournaments.

Dallas Time Herald sports columnist Steve Perkins said Tuesday Davies told him: "The best remaining players are in the Communist block of Eastern Europe, led by Ilie Nastase of Romania and Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia. There are others, but I can't pronounce or spell their names."

"Those fellows are also contract professionals, you might say, since they are subsidized by their governments," Perkins reported Davies told him. "They will take over the ILTF tournaments and reign at Wimbledon, Forest Hills and Paris."

Hunt's WCT has 32 of the world's best tennis players under guaranteed contracts that specify that WCT pays the players' air fares to non-WCT tournaments they may enter. WCT wants to get their money back from sponsors of the big money tournaments. "We offered a break-even figure," Hunt said. "I don't see how we can be fairer than that."

Wimbledon seeded only eight players which forced 14 of WCT's 32 to be knocked out of the tourney by fellow WCT members.

Perkins said Hunt told him he has no desire to force Wimbledon to go back to its policy of seeding the top 16.

"That's their business and they're entitled to run their tournament the way they see hit," Hunt said, adding that he thinks it is a bit short-sighted, however. WCT players won all titles at Wimbledon, including the consolation playoff for losers in the first two rounds.

At the end of the year's tour, WCT will dump its four bottom finishers and offer contracts to the top four amateurs.

Seeds Win In Tennis

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Top ranked Roscoe Tanner and other seeded players advanced in second round play Tuesday in the National Clay Court Tennis Tournament in Chattanooga.

Tanner, playing before his hometown crowd, took the first set 6-0, then won the match by default from Trinidad's Gewan Maharaj.

All but one of the four seeded women advanced in singles action, with fourth ranked Kathy Kraft losing by default to Mary McLean.

First seeded Laura DuPont of Charlotte, N. C., romped over Chappell Guerry of Chattanooga, 6-1, 6-1; second seeded Janice Metcalf won by default from Kathy Deaton and Margie Cooper, No. 3 seed, beat Barbara Mueller, 6-1, 6-1.

In other men's singles play, second seeded Paul Gerken of East Norwalk, Conn., beat Alex Guerry of Chattanooga, 6-0, 6-1; third ranked Dick Stockton of Trinity University beat John Chappell of Santa Barbara, Calif., 6-4, 6-2; fourth seeded Zan Guerry of Chattanooga defeated Joe Bouquin of Danbury, Conn., 6-0, 6-2.

Bob McKinley of San Antonio, Tex. beat Bill Thompson of Albuquerque, N. M., 6-0, 6-1.

Harold Solomon of Rice University defeated Larry Parker of St. Louis, 6-0, 6-1. Eddie Dibbs of Miami defeated Larry Turville of Ga. Tech., 6-3, 6-3.

Fred McNair of North Carolina University defeated Paul Sidone of Stanford, 6-3, 6-1.

Charles Owens of Birmingham, Ala., defeated Forrest Simmons of Chattanooga, 6-1, 6-3.

Danny Birchmore of the University of Georgia defeated Sashi Menon of India, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.

Raz Reid of Miami defeated Sandy Mayer of Stanford, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3.

Brian Gottfried of Trinity University defeated Kiyo Tanabe of Tokyo, 6-2, 6-1.

F. D. Robbins of Salt Lake City beat Rick Fisher of Stanford, 7-6, 6-2.

Gary Groslimond of Daytona Beach defeated Jeff Austin of UCLA, 6-3, 6-3.

Steve Krulvitz of Baltimore defeated Bill Lofgren of Chattanooga, 6-2, 6-0.

Superstars Pricing Selves Out Of Golf

By RONALD THOMSON
SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Norman Von Nida, the ageless Australian wizard who's seen them come and go, says the superstars of world golf may be pricing themselves out of business.

Von Nida, once the stormy petrel of the circuits, said in an interview on the even of the British Open Championship at Royal Birkdale:

"This must be the peak year of these huge rewards in professional golf. From now on the prizes will become less—at least, that's what I believe."

"I am not naming names, but some of the top fellows are taking too much and not putting enough back. They're pricing themselves out of the game."

Von Nida, a fit-looking 57, won the Queensland Amateur title in his native Australia at the age of 15. Then he went on to take the Australian professional championship in 1946, 1948, 1950 and 1951.

He came third in the British Open in 1948—the year that Henry Cotton won it for Britain. He competed in the Masters and U.S. Open many times.

Von Nida is regarded as one of the world's great analysts of golf. He said he's never seen anyone to match the legendary Ben Hogan.

"Ben was simply the best player I've ever seen. He's about 60 years old now, but in my view he could have won any of the big titles even four years ago."

Von Nida said by far the best of the current crop is Jack Nicklaus.

"If Jack stays in the game and develops the finesse to go with his power, he'll go into the history books as one of the greatest ever," said the wiry Australian.

Von Nida said his money in this year's British Open was riding on Nicklaus. Lee Trevino, South Africa's Gary Player and two Australians—Peter Thomson and Bruce Devlin.

Ryun's Tour Is Uncertain

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An unhappy, depressed and ailing Jim Ryun, world record holder in the mile, was uncertain today whether he would continue his European tour following a last-place finish and a 4:17.3 time in a meet here Tuesday night.

"Not even after the defeat in the 1968 Olympics did I feel as disappointed as tonight," said the former Kansas star.

"The first lap I thought I was running well, but after one and a half laps I just could not breathe," explained the hay fever-ridden Ryun.

"We will see Wednesday. If I decide to continue, my next race will be in Oslo July 14."

Ryun, owner of the world record of 3:51.1 and with a best mark of 3:54.98 this year, finished 10th, nearly 23 seconds behind 1968 Olympic 1,500-meter champion Kipchoge Keino of Kenya, who was timed in 3:54.4—fastest in the world this year.

Keino, meeting Ryun for the first time since upsetting him in the Olympic Games four years ago at Mexico City, said he was surprised not to see the lean Kansas runner when he glanced back on the third lap.

Sweden's Ulf Hoeburg finished second in 3:57.6—a Swedish record. He was followed by John Mason of the United States in 3:59.2 and Sweden's Anders Gaerderud in 3:59.8.

Replacements Named For Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rain caused postponement of games throughout the Carolina League Tuesday night, setting up doubleheaders for tonight.

Peninsula will be at Lynchburg, Salem at Rocky Mount, Kinston at Burlington and Winston-Salem plays Raleigh-Durham at Durham.

Meanwhile, Wallace McKenna, league president, announced three replacements for Carolina League all-stars who will not play in the game at Kinston Monday night.

Mike Coble, pitcher for Peninsula, and centerfielder Marvin Lane of Rocky Mount will be on military duty for two weeks. Their places will be taken on the all-star team by Charles Pfeiffer, Winston-Salem pitcher, and Peninsula outfielder Nelson Garcia.

The third replacement is Lynchburg's catcher Ron Davini. He will sub for Rocky Mount's Dave Fore, who was called up by Montgomery of the Dixie Association.

The other all-star members are catcher Jim Essian of Peninsula; pitchers Art DeFillipe of Burlington, Arnie Johannes and Ed Savold of Lynchburg, Cal Cavanaugh and Rick Fusari of Peninsula, Kent Tekulve of Salem and Randy Boyd of Peninsula; infielders Jerry Schlegelmilch and Mark Carlson of Lynchburg, Art Howe of Salem, Jeff Hogan of Rocky Mount and Stirling Coward of Peninsula; outfielders Craig Kusick of Lynchburg, Rick Giallella of Peninsula and Phil Buchman of Raleigh-Durham.

Petty Near $1 Million

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard Petty was second to Bobby Isaac in the Firecracker 400 Sunday at Daytona Beach but he moved to within $19,000 of winning a million dollars in his NASCAR career.

Petty has collected just over $152,000 so far this season, more than any other stock car driver. In addition, he has a commanding lead in the Winston Cup point standings for Grand National drivers.

Trailing Petty in points are James Hylton, Cecil Gordon and Bobby Allison.

Buck Baker is the new leader in the Grand American point race, while defending champ Tiny Lund is No. 2.

DOWN UNDER TOUR
CHICAGO (AP) — A 15-man contingent of Big Ten basketball players and coaches will embark on a month-long tour of New Zealand and Australia this summer.

They will be repaying last winter's visit by an Australian squad which played all 10 league teams during a four-week swing through the Midwest.

Ellis Gains 12th Straight Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

While Pittsburgh's Dock Ellis doubts that he'll start the All-Star Game, New York's disabled Jerry Kossman just wonders when he'll be able to pitch again.

And that pretty much sums up the fortunes of the Pirates and Mets over the past few days. With Ellis, 14-3, notching his 12th straight triumph, the Pirates downed Cincinnati 5-2 Tuesday night and opened a 5½-game spread in the National League East over the Mets, who lost to Montreal 5-1.

Elsewhere, Houston continued San Francisco's slide 5-2, the Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles 3-1 and Atlanta beat Philadelphia 5-2. St. Louis and San Diego were not scheduled.

In the American League, Baltimore whipped Washington 6-2 but dropped the nightcap 3-2, Boston edged Cleveland 3-2, Detroit bombed the New York Yankees 12-7, Oakland trounced the Chicago White Sox 9-4, Kansas City nipped Milwaukee 1-0 and California shaded Minnesota 7-5.

Asked if he anticipated being the NL starter next Tuesday against Oakland's sensational Vida Blue, Ellis replied, "I doubt if they'll start a brother from the American League and a brother from the National. Besides," he continued, "Sparkey Anderson doesn't like me."

Anderson, the Cincinnati manager who will pilot the NL

All-Stars, was puzzled by that.

"I don't know where he got that idea," Anderson said. "I have never spoken to him and he's never spoken to me. As I understand it, he is supposed to pitch again Sunday. That would give him only one day's rest for the All-Star Game. I realize the Pirates are in a division race and I would no more risk hurting Ellis than the man in the moon."

Roberto Clemente of the Bucs tripled in the sixth inning—his 2,800th career hit—and scored on Richie Hebner's sacrifice fly, breaking a 1-1 tie. Al Oliver's two-run triple wrapped it up in the eighth.

Ellis worked seven innings before a bruised shin—he was struck by Tommy Helms' single in the fourth—forced him to the sidelines. He's also had a touch of elbow trouble lately.

But he's continued to pitch and win. Kossman is a different story.

The Mets' once-prized southpaw lasted only one inning against the Expos, who clipped him for two runs on Ron Hunt's single, Ron Woods' triple and Rusty Staub's sacrifice fly. Then he went on the 21-day disabled list.

The Mets knew Kossman was hurting and had Gary Gentry warming up from the start.

"The muscles around the shoulder blade and side are all tight. Sometimes it gets so bad it even affects my breathing," said Kossman, who has had problems for several years and lost his blazing fast ball along the way. "My arm feels good and so does my shoulder. It's just that the muscles are tight and I can't get them loose."

Bill Stoneman's six-hitter—he fanned nine—doomed the puncheonless Mets to their sixth loss in seven games.

The Giants, who only swoon in June but apparently die in July, dropped their third in a row and seventh in 10 games. Houston jumped on Ron Bryant for three runs in the first inning—Bob Watson had a two-run single and scored on Jim Wynn's single—and Jack Billingham and George Culver limited the Giants to six hits, including Bobby Bonds' 19th homer.

For a change, though, the Giants didn't lose ground to Los Angeles—they lead the NL West by 3½ games—when the Cubs ended the Dodgers' five-game winning streak.

Perguson Jenkins effectively scattered 11 hits for his 12th victory and an error by shortstop Maury Wills in the third inning opened the gates for three unearned runs.

Jenkins singled and Don Kessinger was safe on the error. After Jenkins was picked off second, Glenn Beckert singled and Billy Williams hit a sacrifice fly for the first run. The others were driven in by Ron Santo's double and a single by Brock Davis.

Hot-hitting Mike Lum snapped a tie with a two-run double in the fifth, helping the Braves end the Phillies' four-game winning skein. Hal King homered as Atlanta dealt Rick Wise his third straight loss since his no-hitter against Cincinnati.

Putting Troubles Seen For Late Open Starters

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Lee Trevino, the man riding one of the hottest streaks in golf with the U.S. and Canadian Opens already in his pocket, set off in pursuit of the British title today with a putting worry on his mind.

"The players who start early will have a very, very big advantage over the boys starting later," Trevino said.

"The greens here at Royal Birkdale have been well watered. They've been soaked by the weather as well as the green keeper."

"By mid-afternoon the footprints of the earlier players will have crusted up and certainly will make putting more difficult."

Deacons Are Named

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Simons and Lanny Wadkins of Wake Forest have been named to the 1972 All-American Collegiate golf team.

Simons, a junior from Butler, Pa., tied for fifth in the U.S. Open after leading the event at the third-round mark. Wadkins, of Richmond, Va., won the U.S. Amateur championship last year.

The 10 golfers named to the team will be honored July 20 in New York. They include Ben Crenshaw of Texas, the 19-year-old freshman who won the NCAA title this year.

Birkdale Has Wicked History

By RONALD THOMSON
SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Royal Birkdale, where Arnold Palmer put the British Open Golf Championship on the map a decade ago, is a proud old lady with the habit of destroying reputations.

"By every standard this great old lady is as modern as a supersonic jet," says five-times winner Peter Thomson, who captured two of his Open titles on this capricious layout by the Irish Sea.

"But she can change her hat as quickly as your wife can buy a new dress," Thomson calls Birkdale "a man size course but not a monster."

There are plenty of players who would dispute that judgment.

Birkdale is 7,080 yards of bumps and bounces, traps and terror.

It carries a par of 35-38—73 and if a man can beat that figure he's in the running for golf honors.

Thomson made it in 1954 with a four-round total of 283. Palmer took the title in 1961 with 284 and Thomson won it again with 285 in 1965.

The fascination of the British Open, which starts today—Lee Trevino says he's trade one of his two U.S. Open titles for it—stretches back over a century.

Back in 1860 Willie Park of Musselburgh, Scotland, took the title at Prestwick. Tom Morris, senior partner of a father and son duo who dominated the game for a decade in the old days, won the title for the next two years.

But in the late 1950s the British Open was dying from the lack of glamor and big names from the American circuit.

Palmer brought it all back to life. So has Jack Nicklaus, defending his title he won at St. Andrews last year and first colared at Muirfield in 1966.

All the stars, with the exception of Palmer are here at Birkdale this year. Just look at a few of the other names—U.S. Masters champion Charles Coody, U.S. Open champion Trevino, former U.S. Open champion Billy Casper, South Africa's Gary Player—winner of this title in 1959 and 1968—and the homegrown hero Tony Jacklin, who held both the U.S. and British titles two years ago.

That's not the end of it.

There's the tall left-hander from New Zealand Bob Charles, who won in 1963, Bruce Devlin, the Australian who graduated from being a plumber to a golf star, Tom Weiskopf, Frank Beard, Miller Barber, Dave Hill, Bob Murphy—and always dangerous Doug Sanders, who lost the Open last year by missing a putt only as long as your arm.

The face that fans really missed was that of Palmer, who probably is the most popular American golfer ever to hit British shores. The disappointing thing was that Palmer, after scoring poorly in the Canadian Open, backed off, returning to the scene of his Birkdale triumph in 1961.

POW Camp On Viet Island Is End Of The Line

By BARNEY SEIBERT

PHU QUOC ISLAND, Vietnam (UPI)—This South America-shaped protuberance in the Gulf of Thailand is the site of the westernmost U.S. Army outpost of the Indochina War. It is also the temporary home of 27,000 Communist prisoners of war—the largest POW camp in Indochina. It is guarded by four battalions of South Vietnamese Army Military Police, about 2,000 men.

The Americans here serve as advisers to the South Vietnamese, and they are well aware of how far they are from the rest of the war.

"You've heard about the end of the line? Well, this is it," said Maj. Thomas N. Turk, the senior U.S. adviser on the island which lies 50 miles off the South Vietnamese coast and 10 miles from Cambodia.

Turk, 39, of Minneapolis and Green Cove Springs, Fla., is a former Minnesota high school football and hockey coach. With him at what was once a World War II Japanese fighter airstrip outside Duong Dong on Phu Quoc's west coast are:

—1st Lt. William E. Tagupa, 25, Honolulu, an erudite young Hawaiian with a degree in Asian studies who serves as intelligence coordinator;

—Warrant Officer James E. Richcreek, 25, Swayzee, Ind., who learned to fly with the Air Force ROTC at Indiana University and now is a U.S. army pilot. He flies the only aircraft on the island, a single engine 01 "Bird Dog" reconnaissance plane;

—SFC William L. Gates III, 29, Wheatland, Wyo., a tough regular with 12 years in the army who is seven months into his third tour in Vietnam;

—SFC Allen Davis, 26, Apalachicola, Fla., a soft-spoken young man who worked as an upholsterer before he enlisted six years ago, and who plans to study business administration at the University of Colorado;

—Staff Sgt. Henry L. Yancey, 25, Kenbridge, Va., an outgoing young soldier who is the most popular man at the outpost;

—Spec. 5 William D. Klingman, 23, Chappell, Neb., a former Greeley, Colo., Diesel mechanic who is crew chief on Richcreek's Bird Dog; —Hospital corpsman 2nd class James J. Bourke, 25, Sheridan, Wyo., the only Navy man stationed at Duong Dong and virtually the only source of medical treatment for the community of 11,000 persons.

Turk, Gates and Yancey plan to remain in the service. The rest will be getting out soon—Tagupa to do graduate work toward a teaching career; Richcreek, who has a degree in mathematics, to manage a drive-in restaurant at Bloomington, Ind.; Bourke to pursue a career in hospital administration, Klingman to return to Diesel mechanics. "Put it down the way it sounds—to be a decent mechanic," he said.

Except when they accompany the South Vietnamese militiamen they advise into the field, there relatively is little danger for the members of "Military Assistance Command-Vietnam Team 55." The chief foe is boredom.

The officers and men live in two metal roofed prefabricated buildings alongside the militia compound, about 200 yards from the enclosure in which Richcreek's plane is stored.

Life is Spartan but not wholly unpleasant. Phu Quoc's climate is milder than most other areas of Vietnam, but it gets more rain, which causes a serious transportation problem. There are no roads open on the island and during the monsoon season it is often too stormy to bring in boats to Duong Dong's harbor. Then the only links with the outside world are the three-times-a-week Air Vietnam DC3 airliner, Richcreek's bird dog and an occasional unscheduled U.S. Air Force C7 "Caribou" transport.

The U.S. Navy at An Thoi, 20 miles to the south, helps Team 55 as much as it can, but rations remain a problem. They must be flown in from the mainland in Richcreek's plane, a two-seater with limited cargo capacity. There's enough for everyone to eat but little variety.

The nearest post exchange is at An Thoi and difficult for the men to reach. However, they receive regular shipments of cigarettes, toilet articles and books from the Army.

When the projector is working, there are movies each night and there are radios and a volleyball court but no other recreation. Team 55 plays lots of pinochle when it rains, as it does for about eight months of the year.

Despite the isolation, loneliness and ennui, most members of Team 55 seem to like their assignment. Richcreek and Klingman extended their Vietnam tours to remain and Bourke is attempting to extend. "Where else could I command my own Air Force?" Richcreek asked.

For all its quiet, Phu Quoc—39 miles long and its hills mostly jungle covered—is two-thirds controlled by the Viet Cong. It is estimated the Viet Cong number about 340, enough to control the island's two highways. The only communication between Phu Quoc's four villages—An Thoi, Duong Dong, Cua Can and Ham Ninh—is by sea. From Ham Ninh on the East Coast to Duong Dong on the West Coast is less than 10 miles, but the sea journey can take up to a day.

At An Thoi on the south tip of the island, there's a large South Vietnamese naval base responsible for the patrols which seek to intercept Communist shipping off the Cambodian coast. Just over the hill live the 27,000 POWs.

The prisoners are housed in barracks built of corrugated metal and floored with concrete. There is no shade in the compound outside the buildings, but Phu Quoc's climate is milder than most other areas of Vietnam and the prisoners probably are more comfortable on a year-round basis than those held at camps at Da Nang on the North Coast and at Pleiku, in the Central Highlands.

The camp is under the supervision of the International Red Cross, whose Saigon representatives visit it several times each year.

From the tops of the 1,800-foot jungle-covered hills at the north end of the island one can see Cambodia—providing you are a Communist. The hills are Viet Cong territory.

By Saigon's hamlet evaluation survey ratings, Phu Quoc is one of the safest, most secure places in Vietnam. All its 16,020 non-Communist residents are considered as under the two top security ratings—A or B. But outside the village and military bases the Viet Cong roam at will.

About a year ago military authorities began to suspect that Phu Quoc was a way station in the Communist arms smuggling chain from Cambodia to U Minh Forest on the mainland, 50 miles to the east and deep in South Vietnam's Mekong Delta.

Administrative control of the island was transferred from Saigon to Kien Giang province, which includes the U Minh Forest. Responsibility for military operations on the island was given to South Vietnam's 9th Infantry Division. Naval authorities made the waters off the North Coast of the island off limits to all boats, day and night.

Nagged by the fear that the Communists might attempt to raid the prison compound and free the 27,000 prisoners, attempts were made to strengthen Phu Quoc's scanty defenses. From the mainland, several times a month helicopter gunships are sent in to support jungle operations by the island's militiamen. Occasionally a South Vietnamese air force fighter-bomber comes over to drop explosives on the elusive Communists.

The stepped-up military campaign has had mixed success. In all of last year 66 Viet Cong were killed on Phu Quoc. So far this year Phu Quoc's fewer than 1,000 militiamen and their air support have killed 41 Communists. Twenty-three Communists, defected in the first five months of this year compared to 10 in all of last year.

To the unease of the South Vietnamese, Communist strength on the island was increased dramatically in May by two mass escapes from the prisoners of war camp. On May 13 a group of prisoners completed a tunnel under the prison camp's barbed wire and 27 POWs crawled to freedom. Five days later another tunnel was completed and 17 more broke out of the camp.

The escaped prisoners are thought to have joined a Viet Cong platoon which lurks in the hills just north of the prison camp to operate a station for escapees.

Palermo, The Mafia's City

By CHARLES W. BELL
 PALERMO, Sicily (UPI)—The kids at Anania Cinisi elementary school know some different and uglier facts of life.

"Why don't witnesses talk when they see a murder?" their civics teacher asked during a recent lesson.

"Because," a boy replied, "they are afraid of the Mafia."

"And how do you know?"

"Because," another boy replied, "we've seen many unpunished murders."

The boys spoke a truth which never seemed more real than now, when the Mafia appears by far the strongest of Palermo's traditional ruling triumvirate of church, state and underworld.

"Palermo is not 'controlled' by the Mafia," said Virgilio Titone, a modern history professor at the University of Palermo. "Palermo is Magia, completely and totally."

Other Palermo citizens concurred—with sealed lips and averted eyes in the face of unending bombings, beatings, stabbings and shootings by rival mobs carving up the rich rackets of the city.

The civics lesson at Anania Cinisi was inspired by the latest and most audacious murder in Palermo in years, the shooting this spring of Pietro Scaglione, the city's chief public prosecutor.

Scaglione was slain at 11 a.m. on May 5 a dozen blocks from his office as he left a cemetery after placing flowers on his wife's grave. It was immediately branded a Mafia deed. No public official disputed it.

Scaglione's murder, like hundreds of others, remains unsolved and a cynical city considers him another victim of the "invisible popes," the Mafia overlords who rule Palermo.

After the Scaglione murder, authorities exiled a score of reputed mob bosses under a 1956 law permitting banishment of persons considered dangerous to society. But nobody believes distance has diminished their influence.

Palermo has long been a city of kickbacks, bribes, silent and lethal partners and, for the treacherous or disobedient, sudden death.

"The only thing that really works in Palermo is the Mafia," citizens say. The judgment looks more right than wrong in the face of the city's staggering debts, paralyzed government, inefficient or absent public services and seedy appearance.

"Mafia business" is booming. Drug and cigarette smuggling, land speculation, construction rackets, control of municipal markets, favoritism in obtaining licenses to buy, sell or entertain and a dozen other rackets make fortunes for the shadowy chiefs of Palermo.

Take construction. A government anti-Mafia report says that 3,400 of the 4,000 buildings permits issued from 1959 to 1963 were granted to four persons. They were identified as a street peddler, a blacksmith, a doorkeeper and a bricklayer.

The report said the four were fronts for Mafia chiefs cashing in on a building boom. It also said politicians knew this and, in many cases, shared huge profits with gangsters.

Palermo is more than 250 billion lire ($400 million) in debt and sinks another 206 million lire ($330,000) into the red every 24 hours. Public services are so broke the bus company refused to guarantee service.

Challenged by hotel owners to clean up Palermo for the sake of a lagging tourist industry, Mayor Giacomo Marchello recently exploded:

"I can't help. Look at me. I go every month, with my hat in my hands, to beg enough money from Rome to pay our bills."

Italy has 360,000 unemployed persons. Almost one of every three lives on Sicily and officials say the figures would look worse if Rome counted all Palermo's street peddlers, ragpickers, junk collectors and casual laborers who work one or two days a week.

Even the casual visitor's eye can see the public rot. Monuments and museums usually open only one or two days a week and are surrounded by heaps of garbage all the time. Historic villas crumble in ruin. Parks are often closed, their flowers and plants dying for lack of water.

The average income is 488,373 lire ($781) a year, one-third less than mainland Italians earn. Typhoid, tuberculosis and malnutrition are common.

The city's mood is bitter.

A man selling persimmons at the gates outside Palermo's fish market, chatting with a reporter, pointed to Mt. Pellegrino at the northern end of the city. He drew attention to the statue of St. Rosalia, the city's patron saint, at the top of the 2,000 foot tall mountain.

"One of these days," he said, "our Rosalia is going to get fed up and turn her back on Palermo."

Got His Degree 31 Years Later

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Capt. Alfred F. Blair, who left college 31 years ago to join the Navy, finally got his bachelor of arts degree at Penn State.

The Pittsburgh native, now commanding officer and director of the Antisubmarine Warfare Tactical School in Norfolk, Va., took a nine-month furlough from the Navy to enroll at the Ongontz campus of the university near Philadelphia. While at sea he worked on correspondence courses and he studied languages with private tutors.

Capt. Blair, 54, said "I wanted to wrap up that college degree before all five of my children beat me to it."

SOME DOUBLE UP
 FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state estimates that about 350 of its 25,000 employees hold two jobs with the government.

hydrochloric acid.
But if a tiny raw spot ever starts in the wall of the stomach, then that hydrochloric acid immediately starts making it worse.
This peptic ulcer then burns and gnaws.
You can help heal your peptic ulcer by these methods:
(1) Drink milk frequently or eat some protein foods like lean meat and cottage cheese, for protein neutralizes the acid.
Dr. Walter Alvarez, former Mayo Clinic internist, says all people who have a crucial decision to face on the morrow, should set their alarm clock for 2 A.M.
Then waken and drink a glass of milk, just on general principles.
For your stomach secretes a glassful of dilute hydrochloric acid during the night! If there is any tiny raw spot, uncoated with mucin, on your stomach wall, the acid may bore a hole there.

In fact, Dr. Alvarez cited figures to show that most peptic ulcers perforate between 2 and 5 A.M.
"Perforation" usually means the acid of your gastric juice erodes a hole in an artery, which then starts pumping blood into your stomach.
(2) If you are inclined to have dyspepsia (pyrosis or heartburn) keep antacid tablets on hand.
I often swallow half a tablet; then chew the other half and push it between my gums and cheek, so all through the night I shall then swallow alkaline saiva to keep my stomach acid neutralized.

(3) Avoid things that burn in your mouth, such as pepper, alcohol, chili, etc., for they will also irritate your stomach ulcer.
(4) If you need an aspirin, pulverize it before swallowing, for a whole aspirin tablet that lodges on the ulcer, may also dissolve the underlying flesh and cause perforation!
But be grateful to ulcer patients!
Would that we had 10 million more in America to zoom invention, salesmanship and other "free enterprise" leadership!

So send for my booklet "The New Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope plus 20 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

In the first of a series of challenge matches shown recently on CBS National Television, the Dallas Aces noed out a team of Goren Stars. Today we are presenting an early hand from the match where the Goren team picked up a sizable swing that gave them an early lead.
At the table where Harold Gogut was seated North and Peter Leventritt was South for the Goren unit, the bidding proceeded as depicted in the diagram. The two club bids by South is artificial and is unconditionally forcing—in fact, it is the only forcing bid used. The partnership employs other opening two bids in a suit to designate a holding consisting of a good six card suit but less than opening bid strength.
Gogut's response of two diamonds is also artificial and is the negative reply. Leventritt now showed his suit by bidding two spades. North's jump to four spades is standard in the Goren methods and indicates good trump support—but no ace, king or singleton. South's leap to six spades is distinctly speculative.

West opened the king of diamonds and South won the trick with the ace. Prospects were distinctly sub-par. If the jack of hearts dropped doubleton or the suit divided three-three, then a discard could be developed to dispose of the losing diamond. There would still remain a guess in the club suit, however, to avoid losing two tricks.
Leventritt drew trump with two pulls and proceeded to lead his high hearts. When the suit responded favorably, he was able to cash the five of hearts and dispose of North's remaining diamond. A diamond was ruffed in dummy and the jack of clubs was led to which East followed with the six. South now had to consider his next play—his problem being to determine which opponent held the queen and which one the ace.
A review of the play revealed that West had started with a singleton spade, three hearts headed by the jack and a diamond holding that included at least the king and queen. Inasmuch as West was known to be a very light opening bidder, Leventritt finally concluded that the former might have opened in first position if he held the ace of clubs in addition. South accordingly chose to put up the king of clubs, and when it held the trick, he was home. He conceded one club at the end.
At the other table, the Aces stopped at four spades with the North-South cards and the Goren Team picked up 750 points [the bonus for bidding a vulnerable slam] on the deal. This was almost enough of a margin to carry them successfully thru the match.
Tomorrow we will show the concluding deal which tipped the balance in favor of the Dallas Aces.

Geology Study 'Ruins' Guides

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Geology students have been ruled out as guides at Meramec Caverns on US 66 here.
"They are too technical when they conduct tours," says cave director Lester B. Dill. "Tourists would prefer to hear about how Jesse James used the cave to elude the law. I'll hire geology students for other duties here but not as guides."

No Wee Drop Of Revenue, Either

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irishmen drank 48 pints of beer per capita in the year ending March 31, the Eire Revenue Commission reports.
That amounted to 143 million pints of beer, compared to only 1.5 million gallons of whisky and 1 million gallons of wine.
The tax take from that beverage was $150 million.

Mayor Walter A. Dail Launched On Sixth Term

WINTERVILLE — Walter A. Dail has officially begun his sixth consecutive term as mayor of Winterville. He was sworn in Monday night at the regular meeting of the town board.

Calvin Henderson was sworn in as an Alderman; he will serve a three year term. Henderson is the first Negro to serve the town in this capacity.

Mayor Dail announced that Alderman Henderson will be in charge of the street and drainage departments;

Alderman E. C. Hines will serve as Mayor Pro-ten will be in charge of the Police department, and will help supervise the electricity department; and Alderman Bobby Crawford will be in charge of the water and sewage department and the fire department. Alderman Hines and Crawford were already in office.

The new town officials were elected in the May 3 election.

The town board adopted a new budget for 1971-'72. The $243,100 budget was tentatively approved at the June meeting of the board.

The board announced that property owners on Forbes Avenue, Marshall Avenue, and Lee Street are to be billed for paving at the rate of one dollar per foot. Work is to begin after the assessed price has been paid.

The purchase of an above-ground sewer pump station was approved by the board. The pump will cost the town $7,507. The board also allotted $450 to have the 1970-'71 records audited. It was decided that Worsley Farley & Prescott, CPA would handle the auditing.

At 8:45 the lights went out all over the town. Several board members went out to check for possible causes. It was found that a cat had tried to walk across live wires on a substation at Mill Street. The lights were out for around 30 minutes.

The meeting was adjourned.

Seek Sum For Child-Feeding

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty senators, declaring millions of children may go hungry this summer, have urged the Nixon administration to release immediately millions of dollars they say were promised for a nationwide child-feeding program.

In a joint letter to George Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget, the senators complained the Department of Agriculture encouraged localities to expand their programs, then said it couldn't support requests for new funds.

The Agriculture Department announced earlier this week $18.1 million will be available for the program this summer, an amount the senators said is $15 million less than required, though they acknowledged it's three times as much as was allocated last year.

"We are concerned that millions of children in New York and Newark, in San Antonio and Los Angeles, in Minneapolis and Indianapolis, and in many other cities throughout the nation will not be fed this summer as promised," the senators said.

ators said.

They said expansion of the summer feeding program this year "is a direct result of Department of Agriculture promotion ...

"Our cities were urged to expand their efforts and were assured the necessary money would be forthcoming," they said.

The 40 senators reminded the administration Congress specifically authorized the secretary of agriculture to spend up to $100 million on this year's summer programs, in addition to whatever funds might be included in the department's regular authorization bill.

The department acknowledged getting requests for $26.6 million as of June 18, the senators said, but "a more recent survey conducted by the League of Cities-U.S. Conference of Mayors revealed that summer requests actually total $33 million."

Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., said in a statement his state alone needs $1.5 million to feed 100,000 children this summer.

"Under the department's allocation we will receive only $320,000," Case said.

Scout Earns Eagle Badge

BETHEL — Lewis Ayres, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton R. Ayres of Bethel, was recently the recipient of the rank of Eagle Scout. The Scout award was presented to Lewis in a ceremony at the Bethel United Methodist Church, with presentation of Lewis to the Court of Honor by Scoutmaster

LEWIS AYRES

Carey E. Hammond, Dr. Connel G. Garrenton, Bethel's first Eagle Scout, gave Lewis the charge and duties of an Eagle Scout. The oath of an Eagle Scout was given by Joseph Hunnicutt, assistant Scoutmaster and president of the Bethel Rotary Club.

Lewis received the God and Country Award under Dr. Robert F. McKee in May, 1970. In November 1970 he received brotherhood in the Order of the Arrow.

He is an honor student at Bethel Middle High School, and is a member of Troop Number 15, sponsored by the Bethel Rotary Club.

Captain Medina In Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Capt. Ernest Medina is in Vietnam to take depositions for use in his defense against Army charges of assault and murder in connection with the My Lai massacre of 1968.

Arriving in Saigon on the same flight with Medina Tuesday were his Army attorney, Capt. Mark Kadish, and the Army prosecutor in Medina's case, Maj. William Eckhardt.

The three men said they expected to be in Vietnam for several days. Medina is scheduled to face the opening session of an Army court-martial at Ft. McPherson, Ga., July 26.

Reorganization Of State Dept. Talked

By KENNETH J. FREED

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has announced a reorganization it says will lead the nation out of the country-store era of diplomacy and reform a foreign-service corps criticized for making conformity a virtue.

The main design of the program, according to Deputy Undersecretary of State William B. Macomber, is to centralize responsibility at the higher levels and turn policymaking into a systematic operation.

"This effort is needed at this time," Macomber said Tuesday. "Since World War II there has been enormous change in the scope ... of diplomacy and it is tough for foreign-service officers to adjust."

A result of this adjustment difficulty, according to State Department officials, has been a gradual yielding of power over foreign policymaking to the White House and other agencies.

The reorganization amounts at the higher level to several changes in titles—including elevating Undersecretary of State John Irwin to deputy secretary—and a rearrangement of responsibilities among the assistant secretaries.

Changing the title of the department's No. 2 man, Macomber said, emphasizes that Irwin "is now a real chief of staff," the secretary's "alter ego" in day-to-day charge of American foreign policy in and out of the department.

Macomber said reform in the foreign-service-officer personnel policy may be the most important long-run result of the reorganization. The idea, he said, is to "get better people—more specialists under a better promotion system."

Under the old foreign-service-officer program—likened by some department officials to a guillotine approach—career diplomats were selected on the basis of a tough competitive examination stressing general knowledge.

This has led, officials say, to a situation in which other government experts no longer trust foreign-service officers to make a knowledgeable decision in specialized areas.

Once in, a foreign-service officer faced intense pressure to maintain a steady promotion rate or face being "selected out."

This "highly competitive promotion system," a department statement said, "tends to make caution a virtue, inhibits such qualities as initiative, persistence and creativity ..."
