Lester Turnage, Wm. Myers Are Named To Board At Least 63 Die In Chilean Quake

The two vacancies on the Greenville City School Board of Education were filled last night by the City Council with the appointment of Lester E. Turnage, Jr. and William M. Myers to fill the vacancies of former board members Harding Sugg and Leroy James.

Turnage, a native of the Farmville area of Pitt County, is the owner-operator of Turnage Insurance and Real Estate. He was educated at Atlantic Christian College and N.C. State University in Raleigh.

In World War II, Turnage served with the Air Force in the Pacific for three and a half years, returning to Greenville in 1946. He is married to the former Janet Chestnut of Vincennes, Indiana. They have four children — David, Sue, Pam and Ed. The youngest, Ed is a student in high school.

The 1951 winner of both the Greenville and the North Carolina Jaycee Distinguished Service Award, Turnage has been active in the Civitan Club, is a past commander of the local American Legion Post, and is a member of the Moose and Elks Lodges. He has also served as chairman of the American Red Cross.

Turnage is a member and one of the founding organizers of Hooker Memorial Christian Church, and was past chairman of the board. He has worked closely with the Boy Scouts for a number of years.

In 1957-1958 Turnage was a member of the Greenville City Council and for over 12 years was on the Greenville Recreation Commission, serving a term as chairman. He has been a long time crusader for recreation in Greenville, and helped organize the Little League, assisting in building the original ball field and serving as first secretary-treasurer for the league.

Turnage is Area I vice-president of the North Carolina Board of Realtors and is president of the Pitt County Fair Association.

William M. Myers, the second new appointee to the Greenville City School Board, is a native of the eastern town of Oriental, but came to Greenville as a very young boy.

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A severe earthquake rolled across central Chile during the night and the government announced today the toll stood at 63 dead and 461 injured.

Chile's main port of Valparaiso on the Pacific coast appeared to be among the cities hardest hit. Rescue officials there reported 25 dead and about 300 injured.

Information on damage and the number of victims still was sketchy, with many communities isolated by landslides.

The Thursday night quake also, was felt through much of Argentina across the Andes, but no casualties or major damage were reported there.

Communications were still shaky or disrupted with the areas north of Santiago that were hit hardest, and there was no word on property damage. It was feared that the casualty toll would rise as more reports came in.

Seismographs in Santiago and abroad measured the quake at a force of around 7 on the Richter scale, but government officials said it registered 10 in the areas hardest hit. This is an unusually high reading—the Alaska quake of 1964 registered 8.25—and there was speculation that the report might be an exaggeration.

Chile's four central provinces, where four million people live, were declared an emergency zone, and police and armed forces moved in to provide food and medical relief.

President Salvador Allende went on the air and pleaded for calm. He planned a helicopter tour of the disaster area today.

Seismographs abroad located the tremor's epicenter near Valparaiso, Chile's second largest city, on the coast 60 miles northwest of the capital. But the interior minister said the quake was strongest in the towns of Illapel, Barbala and Salamanca, 125 miles north of Santiago.

The earthquake struck at 11:03 p.m. as most of Santiago's 3 million people were eating their usual late-night dinners. Frightened crowds poured into the streets, and the power company cut off the electricity to prevent fires. The lights were out for nearly an hour, and telephone service and international communications were cut for an hour and a half.

Walls cracked and windows broke downtown buildings. Several water mains broke.

The British Army announced it was bringing 500 more soldiers into the province, increasing its strength locally to 11,000.

Friends dragged a wounded rioter into a car and took him to a hospital 20 miles away in the Irish Republic. He died there, and a coroner's court said later he would have lived had he been treated in Londonderry.

Also during the night a land mine blew up an army truck crossing a bridge near Armagh, injuring one soldier.

Fired At Rioters

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops battled rioting mobs of Roman Catholics into the early hours today in a bloody prelude to the 12th of July celebration by militant Protestants on Monday.

In fighting that turned the Catholic Bogside district into a battleground, the troops fired twice into the rioters' ranks, killing two men and wounding a third.

The army said the mob fired first at the soldiers. Hundreds of youths, cheered on by crowds of spectators, also pelted the soldiers with gasoline and nail bombs, bricks and bottles.

Self-Service Gas Attendant Bill Is Buried

RALEIGH (AP) — The House Calendar Committee today postponed indefinitely legislation that would require an attendant on duty at self-service gasoline stations in North Carolina.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, had passed the Senate.

Rep. Richard James, D-Pender, moved that the bill be postponed indefinitely. This in effect killed the measure.

Burney, who introduced the bill at the request of the North Carolina Oil Jobbers Association, said of the committee's action, "I've attended so many funerals lately it doesn't make much difference."

House Changed Mind Overnight

RALEIGH (AP) — The House changed its mind overnight and voted today to kill a bill that would have allowed cities to boost the charge for city auto tags from $1 to $2. The vote was 58-40 against the bill which the House had approved Thursday.

Midtown Renewal Concept Approved By City Councilmen

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
City Councilmen Thursday night passed a resolution approving the concept of the Midcity General Neighborhood Renewal Study Plan after hearing T. I. Wagner, Deputy Director Greenville Redevelopment Commission give a review of the plan in its entirety and details of the areas involved. Wagner recalled that the general resolution starting the project was approved in 1964 and covers a total area of 488 acres broken down into sections or projects. Emphasis at this time is being placed on the area known as the Southside Project or officially NCR-34 for which HUD in Atlanta has indicated funds will be released this month for the development of a project plan. Southside, consisting of about 180 acres in the vicinity of Deck Street, Kearney Park and South Evans Street. Southside has earlier been designated as the top priority renewal area within Greenville.

Wagner said that conceivably the Southside project could be in a state of execution within 15 months. All projects within GNRP must be in a beginning stage within eight years. Wagner said he believes the entire plan can be completed in 13 to 15 years.

In approving the resolution for the concept of the Midcity General Neighborhood Renewal Study Plan the City Council follows similar action by the Redevelopment Commission and acted on a recommendation of approval passed recently by the Planning and Zoning Commission. The council's action last night clears the way for the study plan to be put into effect on receipt of planning funds.

An amendment to the Airport Zoning Ordinance was passed by City Councilmen which changes the height limits applicable to runway approaches. The amendment changes the measuring of the point of approach zone from the end of the runways to a point 200 feet beyond the end of runways.

Councilman Percy Cox noted that for all practical purposes, the adoption of the amendment would have no effect on buildings now in the paths of approach to runways, but would furnish an ordinance to effectively control future construction. He commented it would, however, result in "a few trees that need to be taken down."

A petition to pave, curb and gutter about 180 feet of Douglas Street from Contentnea east to the end of Douglas was approved and added to the chronological list of petitions on file. This is a portion not paved at the time of extensive paving carried out in the area last year. Petitioners are to bear $1,080 of the total cost of $1,620.

Councilmen authorized City Manager Harry Hagerty to negotiate further with the Barrus Construction Company of Kinston in efforts to make a determination of paving contract rates for 1971-1972. Hagerty told the council that the construction company which has been carrying out city contracts based on a cost of 99.5 cents per square yard, agreed to in March 1968, has proposed an increase to $1.20 per square yard. The proposed increase is 20.6 per cent over the contract now in effect.

Public hearings for August were set for several agenda items — the rezoning of the L.S. Ficklen property east of Elizabeth Street between West Fourth and West Fifth Streets; the rezoning of the M.K. Blount property opposite Pitt Plaza Shopping Center; and request for trailer permits by Mrs. Queenie Evans of 1802 South Greene Street and Floyd Nichols at 505 Church Street.

Other matters considered and action taken were: —Approval to purchase an International TD-15B 74 inch gauge Diesel Crawler Tractor at a cost of $29,983. Low bidder for the item of equipment was the (Continued on page 12)

City Budget Balanced By Amendment

An amendment to the 1970-1971 budget ordinance for the City of Greenville was adopted by the City Council Thursday. In effect, the amendment balances the budget for the fiscal year which ended on June 30, by transferring unused funds from certain areas of the budgets to other areas that were overdrawn.

Areas that were overdrawn and the amounts involved are:

Building and Grounds	$1,647.90
Fire Department	41,091.46
Public Works Department	73,714.24
Recreation Department	8,390.06
Special Appropriations	227.94
For a total of	$125,071.62

Areas for which funds appropriated in the 1970-71 budget were not altogether used and which ended up with surplus funds are as follows:

Mayor and City Council	$1,181.03
City Manager	201.84
City Clerk and Tax Collector	6,504.56
Engineering Department	1,566.27
Police Department	48,435.93
Rescue Department	1,606.91
Building and Housing	2,012.56
Contingency	9,597.76
For a total of	$71,106.86

To balance the difference between the $71,106.86 in unused funds and the $125,071.62 in overdrawn areas, an amount of $53,964.76 was transferred. This amount comes from an increase in N.C. franchise tax sources which was $55,470.33 greater than anticipated.

The amendment to the 1970-1971 budget ordinance also stipulates that "the adjustments are made wholly from non-tax revenue sources."

Not taken into account are federal matching funds due the city in the amounts of $6,300 and $12,500 — the latter for the federal share of the purchase of the five acre park site adjacent to Eastern Elementary School.

Artis Is Named To Commission

I. A. Artis Sr., a retired teacher of the Pitt County School System, was last night named by the City Council as a member of the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission. Artis replaces William Nobles, who indicated he did not want to be considered for reappointment.

A native of Wilson County, Artis has been a resident of Pitt County since 1935, and taught in the county schools for a period of 33 years before retiring at H. B. Sugg School in Farmville in 1968.

He was educated in the Wilson City Schools, received the bachelor and masters degree at A and T State University in Greensboro. Artis also did graduate work at Penn State and Central State University in Durham.

He is married to the former Lillian Daniels of Greenville, also a retired school teacher with the county school system. They have three children — Mrs. Lillian Jones, with the school system in Tallahassee, Florida, Miss Janet L. Artis, with the Camden, N. J. school system, and I. A. Artis, Jr., now a student at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tennessee.

Artis is a deacon at Sycamore Hill Missionary Baptist Church,

U.S. Gives Up Last DMZ Base

SAIGON (AP) — The United States turned over its last base along the demilitarized zone to the South Vietnamese today but kept some American artillerymen and advisers there.

About 500 men from the 1st Brigade, 5th Mechanized Infantry Division, left Fire Base Charlie 2 four miles southeast of the DMZ. This was the base where a North Vietnamese rocket ripped through a bunker crowded with GIs on May 21, killed 29 and wounded 33. It was the heaviest toll inflicted by one rocket in the war.

About 50 Americans will remain there to man an 8-inch battery, to advise the South Vietnamese and to monitor radar and sensor devices that track North Vietnamese infiltration.

On Thursday, the South Vietnamese took over Fire Base Alpha 4, also known as Con Thien, three miles northwest of Charlie 2. About 200 U.S. troops left Alpha 4, but about 100 are remaining for artillery, advisory and electronic duty.

"We have been taking over firebases on the DMZ since 1969 and this is the last one," said Maj. Gen. Pham Van Phu, commander of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division.

Phu's deputy, Brig. Gen. Vu Van Giai, commented: "We are going to deploy our troops as best we can. Whether or not we can do the job, we shall see."

He noted that fighting along the DMZ has slowed down but said he expects increased enemy activity as the South Vietnamese presidential election Oct. 3 draws nearer.

Tract-Buying Go-Ahead For Martin School Board

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County's Board of Education has been given the go ahead by the County Board of Commissioners for the purchase of a 33 acre tract of land near Robersonville.

The land, owned by Mrs. Margaret James, is located outside Robersonville on the Robersonville-Gold Point highway, Eugene Rogers, Superintendent of Martin County Schools, said the board has had an option for some time for the purchase of this land, and that purchase action is currently underway for an estimated price of $53,000.

The board, meeting Tuesday, was directed also to continue negotiations for a tract of approximately 17 acres in the town of Jamesville. This land, Rogers noted, is adjacent to the existing school there.

School board members this week are studying records and interviewing candidates for three principalships — at East End, Robersonville and Jamesville Schools.

Other actions taken by the board include several budget amendments, and a cut of $75,000 in the capital reserve of the school budget. Rogers said the cut was at the request of the County Commissioners.

Manson Council of Hassell was appointed a member of the board for Martin Technical Institute.

Pupil insurance with the Walker Insurance Agency was approved, and a state audit of the lunch room program at Church Street School was reported.

Considerable attention was given by board members in a review session for the possible creation of new policy guidelines. The board will take this subject under further consideration, with the possibility of dividing operations into broad divisions based on a committee-type organization, with committees on staff and personnel; one on student; another on transportation; and others covering various fields of interest to the board.

Rogers said he and his staff were also directed to review the discipline policy now in effect, in conjunction with committees of parents. The object of such a review, he noted, is to bring the overall discipline policy up to date.

This Author Handwrites, Illustrates Her Own Book

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Now that Alicia Bay Laurel is a successful author at age 22, she can afford to buy all the shoes she wants. But she doesn't want any shoes. She prefers to walk barefoot, even on New York City's streets.

"People gawk at me here," admitted the Californian as she wiggled her bare toes on the carpet in her publisher's office. "But I just like to feel the ground, and I don't like shoes very well."

She doesn't like consumer goods in general very well and so the royalties from her book are going to others, including Wheeler's Ranch, the commune 60 miles north of San Francisco where she was inspired to produce "Living on The Earth."

"I was just drawing pictures one day of my friend Joanie's pickles made from her garden cucumbers and I wrote the recipe down beside it," she explained. "Then I thought how about a pamphlet for new people on the land who don't know how to do things? I asked others to share their knowledge and the response was incredible."

The result is some 200 pages, handwritten and illustrated with the author's sketchy little drawings, giving detailed instructions for everything from making a chair out of a barrel to organic gardening. The whole range—birth to death—is covered, including a lesson on midwifery and how to cremate on a hot fire "so the smoke goes straight to heaven and the ashes to the four winds."

"People come to Wheeler's Ranch from the most diverse backgrounds and I learned by watching them do things successfully," Alicia said, tucking her feet under her and settling down Buddha-like in an overstuffed chair. "I've woven cloth, made soap and candles and done just about everything in the book except build a kayak and a house. I'm not a very good carpenter."

The petite brunette is a good seamstress, though, and was wearing a long pink dress of her own making, her shoulders covered by a beige shawl embroidered with huge pink flowers. She is also a musician, writing music and playing among other instruments the piano, guitar and a flute she made herself from a piece of bamboo.

"When you make something yourself with love and care you imbue it with energy and it's more special to have," she said. "It's a completely different feeling to be surrounded by things you've made, found and grown yourself than to be surrounded by manufactured things that are functional but don't come out of your soul. There are things happening in our society that are evil and the way to overcome evil is to become really involved with making things that are good."

Alicia long ago dropped her original surname, Kaufman, and when the book came out she "thought it would be nice to adopt Bay Laurel, a tremendously mystic name. People just develop into other human beings and this is who I am," she said. "My parents don't feel bad that I'm not using their name."

After a two-month stay in San Francisco State convinced her that "sitting behind desks in rows, taking tests and being graded is like the theater of the absurd," she lived for a time on a houseboat. "I realized I could learn anything I wanted from the world. I've learned a fantastic amount of things from a lot of people and that was school for me, working and doing."

"Later I was working as a housekeeper in San Francisco when I felt one day I wanted an adventure so I stuck out my thumb and headed north," she recalled. "The people who picked me up were going to Wheeler's Ranch. The first moment I walked onto the land I had a tremendous feeling of 'yes' in every single cell of my body."

"I don't feel anything I do is necessarily right for anyone else," she went on. "I have to listen to myself. What I learned is if I don't have time alone I don't feel good, if I don't work every day I don't feel good, if I'm surrounded by noise I don't feel good, if I eat too much or eat things destructive to my body I don't feel good."

What she does feel good about is that now she has the money to buy open land that anyone can live on and to purchase instruments for the Star Mountain Band, just formed with friends, in which she plays bass. And she is already at work on a new book, "Earth Day Cake."

Will success change her? "Everything changes everybody," she pointed out. "I can't really separate the difference between changes due to what's come down in my life and changes due to becoming older."

This Family Needs A New Treasurer

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am always in debt and can't seem to get out. I don't know what to call myself except "stupid," maybe.

My husband makes a good living, but the only things that get paid on time are the rent and the utilities because he pays them. I write checks for everything else and also do a lot of charging. Right now I am overdrawn at the bank, have several unpaid bills staring me in the face and I am scared to death to tell my husband.

I am not extravagant with myself. It's usually something for the children or the house. This is nothing new, I have always been behind in my bills, but this time I can't see my way clear. I'm ready for a nervous breakdown. Is there a solution? I will try anything.

OVER MY HEAD
DEAR OVER: First I will tell you what NOT to do. Don't borrow any money without your husband's knowledge! Then close your charge accounts, hand your husband your check book and tell him about the mess you're in. If he doesn't immediately remove you from the treasury department, resign! You can learn how to budget if you really want to, but until you do, let Hubby handle the family fortune.

DEAR ABBY: My husband [I'll call him "John"] has had a close friendship with a man I'll call "Mike." They went thru school together. The only difference between them was that John grew up on the wrong side of the tracks. When John and I were married two years ago, Mike was our best man—that's how close they were.

Well, Mike is getting married, and we are not even invited to the wedding!

Mike told John that it wasn't his doing as the bride's family puts on the wedding and they are limiting the number of guests. The bride's parents are well-to-do, so that's hard to believe, isn't it? Also, John already had started making plans for a stag in Mike's honor.

I can't understand it. We are respectable people and know how to dress and conduct ourselves. I don't care about myself, but I know how hurt John is. Do we have to send them a wedding present anyway? What can I say to make John feel better?

JOHN'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: The less said, the better. Even the bride's family puts on the wedding, the groom is allowed a certain number of invitations, "limited" as they might be. And no one has to send a gift unless he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: This is the second year of a second marriage for both of us. We both have children by our former mates.

The problem is my husband's 9-year-old boy who will not sleep in his own bed at night. He is allowed to come in bed with us every night.

At first I didn't say anything, thinking the boy was lonely or frightened, and after a few nights of comforting he would stay in his own bed. He didn't. I then became angry and told my husband I didn't want his son in bed with us. This didn't do any good. My husband said I was jealous of the boy, so I started just leaving the bed and going to the davenport to sleep.

I am getting tired of this and feel like I am being pushed out of my own place.

My husband is a wonderful man in every way, but I am fed up with this. What do you suggest?

ON THE DAVENPORT
DEAR ON: [1] Get professional help for the 9-year-old. He has problems. [2] Tell your "wonderful" husband that your place is beside HIM at night, and if he has other ideas, he had better go along with his son and get a little professional counseling, too.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Blind Woman Shows Humor And Courage

By FRANCES McCOY
Omaha World Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Would you believe blindness can be a laughing matter?

Those who've met Mrs. Stanley Yank, who lost her sight when she was in college, know this can be so.

In her capacity as a teacher for the Nebraska Division of Rehabilitation Services for the Visually Impaired, she helps other blind people orient themselves to a world in which touch, balance and hearing must take over the functions of the eyes. When she talks to a group of sighted people, she invariably leaves them laughing.

Her humor does not mean she lacks sympathy. She remembers all too well her own frustrations when she had to face the fact that the light was going out for her.

"My last semester in college, I had to use the services of a reader, although I could still see enough to get around."

"I had a special aversion to learning Braille," she recalls, "Mainly because it meant a definite label of blindness. I got over this when I realized I could look up address indices if I could do them in Braille."

That was 17 years ago. Today Mrs. Yank teaches Braille, along with other skills the blind need to operate in a seeing society, like phone dialing, orientation, mobility, homemaking skills, table techniques, grooming, and how to distinguish and use money.

"Almost anybody whose other faculties are normal can be rehabilitated, as far as personal independence is concerned, in about a year," she said.

She explained that every blind person has a set of individual problems that depend on where and how he lives and on other members of the family who often, out of sympathy tend to cuddle him.

"He has to learn not to let them," she said. "I think as a teacher I am part bully, part clown and part counselor."

"The old saw about the blind Bethel News leading the blind has some merit. They know I'm not trying to get them to do things I can't do myself. The counseling part is pretty important, especially to a man who has to adjust to temporary dependency after having been the breadwinner and head of the house."

Mrs. Yank met her husband, who also is blind, when she was teaching a class on travel skills in Lincoln. "His blindness had come more gradually than mine," said Mrs. Yank. "He had a pigment problem that was thought to be inherited. I helped him with Braille and with the cane bit. And they still kid me in Lincoln about making off with their star pupil."

The Yanks have a sighted daughter, Shelly, and they have an attractive home. In her kitchen, Mrs. Yank demonstrated her ability to cope in much the same way as anybody else. "We don't need much gadgetry really," she said. "We just have to learn some techniques." Her push-button electric stove offers no problems. "You learn to put a pan on a cold burner in order to get it placed right, then turn on the heat."

She has Braille cookbooks and Braille labels on her spices. One knife is attached to a sort of gauge that enables her to slice bread straight. Her ruler has notches cut at one-inch intervals.

She can operate an electric roaster by touch. She has dots of glue applied to the dial at intervals, with corresponding dots outside the dial. These dots, once dry are covered with clear nail polish, leaving little Braille-like protrusions for her sensitive fingers to find.

"We try not to lean on Shelly too much because she will be living in the sighted world and we don't want to weigh her down with our modifications," Mrs. Yank said. "But she does have one important household job—reading our mail to us."

Fears 5-Year Lapse In U.S. Manned Space Flights

Two Progress Projects Given Blessing Of City Councilmen

Two ideas for making Greenville a more active, progressive city received the blessing of the City Council Thursday night. One is a proposal for a small business entrepreneurship, and the other a campaign to enter Greenville in the annual All-American city contest. Neither idea required action or commitment, other than support of the basic ideas. Tommy Payne gave a brief resume of a draft proposal to establish in Greenville an office for a Greenville Small Business Guidance Committee. The plan, he informed the city councilmen, when organized, would entail two committees — the first a committee of 15 volunteer businessmen, lawyers and other citizens as a guidance committee to furnish information and assistance to an individual; the second a committee of nine people from banks and other lending agencies to give counsel and to assist in providing the best financial arrangements for the inauguration of new small businesses. Payne explained this plan has been highly successful in Durham and Winston-Salem, and that contacts had been made with the U.S. Department of Commerce. Although no firm commitment was received from the Commerce Department, Payne said there was a good possibility that if such an office was established in Greenville, it could receive an outright grant at no cost to the city.

Councilmen agreed to talk further to Payne on his proposal at a later meeting of the City Council. On the idea of a campaign to enter Greenville in the annual All-American City contest, the Council heard Jack Wall, Louis Clark and Harold Creech briefly outline plans and purposes for this project.

Wall pointed out that whether or not Greenville places in the top 22 cities in America selected each year, there could be many advantages, particularly those of determining the assets and liabilities of Greenville. "By coming up with liabilities, we can get to work on them," Wall commented. Clark said that at the time the Pitt County Inter-Racial Council, the Greenville Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce Merchants Association were all giving their full support to the campaign.

Many Area Banks Have Revised Service Hours

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Many area banks are now open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily with an extra hour on Friday in lieu of the two hour mid-day break, although several others are continuing to divide up their banking hours into two shifts. A spokesman at North Carolina National Bank here said that, as of July 1, new banking hours are from 9-5 Monday through Thursday and 9-6 on Friday. The bank formerly observed the 9-1 and 3-5 teller hours, generally in use by banking facilities in the area.

Planters National Bank in Greenville also adopted the new hours recently. A spokesman at the bank said that the new schedule went into effect on Friday and included all PNB branches here for now except the Colonial Heights facility which would close daily from 1-3 p.m.

The Ayden branch of Planters

National said, however, that banking hours there were the same as before and no word had been received concerning a change. The bank will continue to be open from 9-1 and 3-5 Monday through Thursday and 9-1 and 3-6 on Friday, it was pointed out.

Wachovia Bank and Trust here has been operating on the 9-5 Monday through Thursday and 9-6 Friday schedule for several months, the bank reported. Branches in Bethel and Snow Hill are still open the same hours as before, however, and personnel in both branches said they knew of no proposed changes in working hours.

The Bank of Winterville's Greenville branch adopted the new hours last Thursday and are now open for business from 9-5 Monday through Thursday and 9-6 on Friday. The bank's Winterville office has made no changes, it was pointed out, and hours there remain from 9-1 and 3-5 Monday through Friday and 9-12 on Saturday.

First National Bank of Eastern North Carolina in Farmville is open from 9 to 5 Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, from 9 to 1 on Wednesday, and from 9 to 6 on Friday. The bank, a spokesman said, has been on the current schedule since shortly after the first of the year.

New hours were also adopted in January by the Bank of Farmville. The bank now observes a 9-5 Monday through Thursday work schedule, 9-1 on Wednesday and 9-6 on Friday, it was pointed out.

The same hours are also in effect at Edgecombe Bank and Trust in Fountain. According to the manager there, the new hours were put into effect Jan. 25 after years of observing 9-1 hours each day except Friday when the bank remained open from 3-6.

Southern Bank and Trust Co. in Ayden has operated on the 9-5 Monday through Thursday, 9-6 Friday schedule since the bank began operations, the bank reported.

According to First Citizens Bank and Trust personnel in Snow Hill, no changes in working hours are anticipated for their facility. Hours there are from 9-12 and 3-5 Monday through Thursday and 9-12 and 2-6 on Friday.

New Onslaught Of 'Red Tide' Awaited

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The city is bracing for what could be a new onslaught of red tide spotted in the Gulf of Mexico.

Pinellas County work crews already are at peak strength battling a severe outbreak in Tampa Bay which has heaped tons of rotted fish on eastern beach shores.

"There's a new accumulation of dead fish about a mile offshore in the Gulf," said Lloyd Dove, city public works administrator. "And there are patches of streaky red water. A change in the wind could bombard the coastal beaches with dead fish."

Murky slime coats Tampa

Bay and in spots is blood red in color. Scientists thought heavy rains might cause it to break up, but that apparently didn't ease the situation.

"We can't say whether it's being reduced or expanded," said Karen Steidinger, state marine biologist who has been in charge of research during the week-long outbreak.

"It might be that runoff from the rains is sending new nutrients into the water to feed the bloom; or it could be that it's reducing the salinity enough to curb it."

Massive fish kills from the tide have run a 100-mile path along the west coast from Fort Myers to St. Petersburg in the last month. The tiny organism is toxic only to sea animals. It paralyzes them. Tide outbreaks are sporadic when nutrient conditions are favorable, but the current seige is the worst in the last 25 years.

City Manager Raymond Harbaugh said cleanup effort in five days have cost the city $50,000.

Concern Over Moral Issue

RALEIGH (AP) — A resolution expressing legislative concern over morals of students in state-supported universities was approved by the Senate Thursday and now goes to the House.

The resolution's sponsor, Sen. I. C. Crawford, D-Buncombe, told the Senate it was time for the Legislature to express concern over student morality.

But Sen. Claude Currie, D-Durham, a bachelor and dean of the Senate, said the resolution was not the way to handle the issue.

"I think the students have a right to look after their own morals as long as they stay within the law," Currie said. The resolution, he added, implies that the university administrators are not concerned over morals of students and campus morality.

But, the Senate's youngest member, Sen. Phil Kirk, R-Rowan, told the Senate he did not consider the resolution an indictment of students or university trustees.

Sen. Jyles Coggins, D-Wake, said he feels university trustees and administrators have been derelict in their duties.

"I think if they would straighten up and fly right," said Coggins, "the students would do right."

Ecumenism In Wedding

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A staff member of the Presbyterian Church, U.S., Board of Christian Education and a Roman Catholic priest plan to marry later this month.

They are Miss Estelle Rountree and Dr. Charles R. McCarthy, a former professor at Catholic University in Washington.

Miss Rountree, a member of the church board here since 1966, says she will resign her post as secretary for strategies in church education for the Southern Presbyterian education agency on July 15.

Dr. McCarthy, a Paulist priest, declined to comment on his decision to marry. He also has been a professor at St. Paul's College, a seminary in Washington.

A source in the church noted Dr. McCarthy's procedural return to lay status through church channels is underway.

Bank Rates Up July 12

Following the lead of several of the nation's large banks, North Carolina National Bank announced an increase in its prime interest rate from 5½ to 6 per cent, effective July 12.

NCNB board chairman Addison H. Reese pointed out that the change reflects continuing increases in other short-term interest rates and in the price banks must pay for the money they lend, coupled with a sharp rise in loan demand.

Reese said, "Short-term money market rates are now ranging from 5¼ to 6 per cent. At the same time, the demand for loans by our corporate customers is running well ahead of last year. This means that without a change in the prime rate, we would be making some loans at less than the cost of the funds we lend."

"On June 30," Reese added, "borrowing by member banks from the Federal Reserve System was at the highest level since September of 1970, when the prime rate ranged from 7½ to 8 per cent."

The chairman explained that consumer lending rates will not be affected by the prime rate increases.

Virginia Became 40th To Ratify

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia has become the 40th state to ratify the 28th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution permitting 18-year-olds to vote in state and local as well as federal elections.

Ratification by 38 states was necessary for the amendment to become effective.

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)

The new chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration says the United States may not have a manned space flight for at least five years after 1973 and he is trying to do something about it.

James C. Fletcher spoke with newsmen Thursday on his first visit to Cape Kennedy since becoming NASA administrator April 27.

America's Apollo moon landing program ends next year and will be followed in 1973 by three three-man flights to a small space station named Sky-land. Under present planning, the next U.S. manned flight then would be in 1978 or 1979 when the first reusable space shuttle is to be launched.

"I'm concerned that there is this gap after Skylab," Fletcher said. "We have a lot of skilled people in the manned flight area and we don't want to just let them sit idle while waiting for the next manned flight."

"I haven't come up with any solution to this, but we're working on the problem very hard right now to see what can be done, if anything, during the gap period," he said.

Among the possibilities if funds are available, he said, are a second Skylab mission or a series of orbital earth resources survey missions using rockets and spaceships left from three canceled Apollo moon landing trips.

Another possibility, he said, is a flight in which an Apollo spaceship would link up with a Russian space station like the Salute which the three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts visited for 23 days before they died June 23 during re-entry into earth's atmosphere.

"We were with the Soviets two weeks ago on a very successful meeting in which we spent a lot of time discussing the problems of a common docking apparatus. Both sides are studying quite vigorously the technical problems to be solved to allow our Apollo craft to dock with Salute, or a later version of Salute," Fletcher said.

"I think the only thing either side has said we will do is to commit the funds to carry out the program," he stated. "This is a decision that must be made at the highest government levels."

Dr. Batten Will Speak At Church

Dr. J.W. Batten will be guest speaker on Sunday at the morning and evening service of the First Free Will Baptist Church.

The church is located at the corner of 11th and Forbes Street. The public is invited to attend.

Answer Nader On Toothpaste

WASHINGTON (AP) — The maker of the nation's top-selling toothpaste terms as misleading a statement by Ralph Nader that stannous fluoride toothpastes stain teeth.

"The research which Mr. Nader cites does not show that Crest stains teeth," a Procter & Gamble spokesman said Thursday.

The statement came after Nader charged in a letter to the Federal Trade Commission that studies in the United States and England have shown toothpastes with chemical leave a brown stain on teeth four times as often as those without it.

"The studies he quotes, which are more than four years old," a Procter & Gamble spokesman said, "refer to staining of debris and other material on the teeth which should be, and normally are, removed in proper brushing."

Nader's letter to FTC Chairman Miles W. Kitpatrick mentioned Crest specifically, along with Stripe, Pepsodent and Peoples.

"The danger exists in all stannous fluoride toothpastes," Nader said. "A warning should be given on toothpaste tubes to alert the public to this hazard."

Nader asked the government also to halt advertisements for Colgate's toothpaste as a "tooth toughener" because they are not supported by scientific evidence. He said the Food and Drug Administration informed the FTC last month that the Colgate ads were deceptive. An FDA spokesman said, however, the agency was unable to find any such communication but said the administration did disallow last year any claims a toothpaste "helps harden and strengthen the structure of tooth enamel on contact."

A Colgate Palmolive spokesman said: "The effectiveness of Colgate dental creme with MFP is well supported by the many years of clinical testing which led four years ago to its begin granted the only new drug application for a toothpaste under new FDA rules which require proof of efficacy as well as safety."

Singing Concert Saturday Night

The Harper Family and the Wise Family Trio will both appear in an inspirational singing concert on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at the United Church of God in Floral Park on Redman Avenue extended.

On Sunday, at 2:30 p.m. dedication of the church will be held.

The public is invited to attend to hear the two singing groups and for the church dedication.

In Royal Race

SPIVEYS CORNER, N.C. (AP) — This little eastern North Carolina community, which has won a measure of fame for its annual international hollerin' contest, has decided to go for the British caterpillar title.

Ermon Godwin Jr., chairman of the hollerin' event, says the town will enter a contestant in the Royal Caterpillar Race at Hove, England, in August.

John Lawrence of Oxford, England, was the runnerup in this year's hollerin' contest and Godwin noted that it would only be polite to return the favor.

So Spiveys Corner will send a caterpillar named "Bob" to England for the royal race. The caterpillars will compete across an eight-inch string.

Saturday Session Sham Ended

After years of going through the motion of Saturday sessions simply to satisfy tradition and constitutional requirements, North Carolina's General Assembly has finally put an end to the sham.

It was one of those government functions (if indeed it can be called that) which far outlived its usefulness. Saturday sessions could have been halted years ago if the General Assembly had taken the leadership to end them. But one thing and another kept them going although they were virtually meaningless.

Years ago legislators remained in Raleigh during the week-ends because lack of transportation made it impractical for many of them to go home. Saturday sessions in those days were normal work sessions. As transportation improved there were fewer legislators remaining in Raleigh after Fridays. Saturday sessions became a time when purely local bills were handled with only those legislators immediately interested in particular bills remaining for the Saturday sessions.

In more recent years Saturday sessions became only tokens, usually with one Wake County member of each house holding a session which often lasted only a few seconds.

But the Saturday sessions were not abandoned until a couple of weeks ago. They might still be in existence were it not for the change effective this year which puts legislators on an annual salary basis rather than paying them per day for each legislative work day.

With legislators on an annual salary now, Saturday sessions — real or token — will not affect legislative pay. Prior to this year, however, abandonment of the Saturday sessions would have meant a one-sixth reduction in legislators' compensation.

Having outlived its last vestige of usefulness, Saturday sessions of the General Assembly have at last been abandoned.

It is something which should have been done years ago.

Unavoidably In 1972 Campaign

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — Higher education structure will be an issue in the 1972 political campaigns.

That can't be avoided, whatever the current legislature does or fails to do, and whether it tackles the problem in the fall after a recess or puts it off until the 1973 regular session.

"Keep it out of politics" is the plea of some sincere and concerned individuals, both in government and education, who warn against commitments made in the emotionally charged atmosphere of a campaign.

will be agreeable to a majority of the legislature," said Martin. "We have given assurances that the committees will operate during the summer and that every bill before us will get thorough and deliberate consideration."

Introduction of the joint resolution for adjournment to a date certain (October 25, presumably) is due this week. Strategy will be to vote first on the joint resolution, moving it through the House and then to the Senate.

Thus, Senator Burney's bill for delay until '73 will remain in the Senate Higher Education Committee until the fate of the autumn session proposal is decided.

Burney said he didn't know what the next step is likely to be. "They're calling the shots," he commented laconically.

He's not kicking up a fuss for a vote on his bill. Testing the issue initially from the other side might weaken their case, and build strength for his.

Political Fall-Out Likely

Debating an issue as volatile as higher education on the eve of a political campaign year could have repercussions, said Burney. "We'd be going to a lot of funerals," he remarked, in reference to the possible consequences at the polls.

By late fall, plans will be jelling for candidacies in party primaries the following spring. Lawmakers looking to run again, or considering higher office, will be hypersensitive to the political impact of what they say and how they vote.

"The only way to avoid it would be through the Burney bill," said Senator Hargrove Bowles, Jr., of Guilford, regarded as a certain candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

The question is not taking the heat off candidates; they will have to face the issue in their own campaigns. The goal is an atmosphere for legislative action in which recommendations can be weighed on their merits, Bowles explained.

To that end, he'd like to see an outside management consultant firm of solid reputation look at higher education in North Carolina and recommend an adequate structure. "They could be unemotional about it," he said. "I can't be completely certain my judgment isn't colored by emotion, and I don't think any other legislator can."

Higher education structure is complex, demanding deliberation as well as study, Bowles said. "I know several persons, including trustees, who have absolutely switched position. That tells me we ought not to rush to a decision which can't be easily changed."

BRYAN HAISLIP

Still, a matter so close to the people as their tax-supported colleges and universities hardly can be ignored in their choice of a governor and legislators.

The real decision is the form in which the question will be put to the candidates: as a debate over action taken, with promises to confirm or undo; or as a discussion of alternatives to be implemented by the next legislature after study.

Recess Recommended

Governor Bob Scott and Senate and House presiding officers, Lt. Gov. H. P. (Pat) Taylor, Jr., and Speaker Phil Godwin, have reached consensus on a recess until October 25. Committees would continue study and hold public hearings in the interim. Higher education structure would be the only matter handled at the autumn session.

Senator John J. Burney, Jr., of New Hanover is chief among those promoting postponement of the issue until the 1973 legislature. His bill to achieve that end, signed by a majority of the Senators, gave a rallying point for those of similar views.

How legislators divide on the proposition at this moment is something few observers are willing to predict. Day by day, indications seem to point first in one direction, then the other.

The show-down likely will come early next week. It probably will hinge upon a vote in the Senate on the proposal to adjourn until a fall session restricted to higher education structure.

In the end, sentiment will prevail for that procedure, said Rep. Perry Martin of Northampton, chairman of the House Higher Education Committee.

Committees Will Operate "Yes, I believe that course

Figures Indicative Of Our Growing Economy

Greenville has shown good increases in retail sales for the past few months and for the first quarter of the year our city showed one of the highest increases in the east.

The sales figures showed that for the first quarter Greenville sales were $23,146,541 in 1970 and $26,332,884 in 1971, an increase of 13.8 percent. Only Goldsboro, with a 17.4 percent increase, did better among eastern cities.

The figures are indicative of a growing economy for Greenville and this should ultimately benefit all our citizens.

A Memo From Dan'l Ellsberg

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The flawed vision of Daniel Ellsberg in viewing the Vietnam war, a failing that was to have profound implications for his country, was laid bare in a private memorandum he wrote for the Pentagon on Feb. 28, 1968, spectacularly misinterpreting the just completed Communist Tet offensive.

Ellsberg, then a Vietnam expert for the Rand Corp. think tank, had been asked to interpret the bloody Tet offensive for the Defense Department's Office of International Security Affairs (ISA). His memorandum was apocalyptic: "I think that the war is over" — Communists taking over the countryside, the South Vietnamese government and army deteriorating, a rapid renewal of the Communist offensive. Two months from now... things are going to get much worse," he said, precluding any possibility for improvement.

No prophecy could have been more false. In truth, the Tet offensive was the Communist high-water mark, triggering a three-year decline in their Vietnamese strength (which may now be ending). But Ellsberg, exasperated with Saigon's corrupt government and shoddy army, could see in Tet only the vindication of his own warnings. It was a view widely shared in ISA whose staffers wrote the Pentagon Papers.

Thus, the spectacular mistakes of Ellsberg's 1968 memo transcend the personal. His flawed vision is the flawed history of the Pentagon Papers. It is the all-islost syndrome that deeply influenced U. S. policy in the months after the Tet offensive and finally led to Ellsberg's disclosure of the Pentagon Papers.

For these reasons, Ellsberg's errors about Tet are worthy of examination. Herewith are some prophecies he sent the Pentagon along with the actual outcome of events:

Ellsberg Prophecy No. 1: The Communist Tet offensive of Jan. 29-Feb. 29 was a prelude to "the takeover of the countryside" by the Vietcong, "inexorably sucking" South Vietnamese and U. S. forces "toward the environs of the towns and cities, away from the hamlets and outlying regions."

The actual outcome: By their desperate Tet attacks, the Communists depleted their forces in the countryside and have not adequately rebuilt them since.

Ellsberg Prophecy No. 2: The Vietcong will be drafting ever more recruits, whereas South Vietnamese armed forces "will probably be (Continued On Page 5)

IS THIS ANY WAY TO RUN A COUNTRY?

THE FIRST GUY WHO CAN GET HIS HANDS ON THEM

By ART BUCHWALD

No Way To Treat Ally

LONDON — There is far more interest in the secret Pentagon Papers in England than one might think.

Melton Bulberry, a British foreign service-type, told me at his club the other day:

"This sort of thing could never happen in England. We have the Official Secrets Act. Anyone who leaks a secret in this country goes straight to the nick." (Jail)

"That's wonderful," I said. "It is," he agreed. "The only trouble is we have no secrets."

"That's a pity." He confided in me sadly.

"Don't tell anyone, but we haven't had a worthwhile secret since 1956 when we decided to go into Suez."

"That's over 15 years ago," I said.

"Oh, we know it. As a matter of fact, all our secrets since then have been American ones. That's why the Pentagon Paper leaks have been so disturbing."

"How's that?"

"Well if Americans can't keep their secrets, they aren't much use to us, are they? I mean to say, if everyone in the world knows the secrets and we're the only ones who have laws forbidding their printing, we look bloody silly, don't we?"

"You don't look good," I admitted.

"There's a big move on in this country now to refuse any future American secrets. Many people believe that England should develop its own secrets or it will become a second class power."

"But isn't that rather expensive?" I said.

ART BUCHWALD

Other Editors Say Decision-Making

(The Shelby Star)

MORE THAN sum or substance, the newspaper stories so far published on the infamous "Pentagon Papers" go more toward revealing the complexities of governmental policy decisions than anything else. While the Papers specifically refer to a difficult decision on the war in Vietnam, the content of the Papers seems to be more historically pertinent for the inner workings of government than they reveal. The war process is eye-opening, and the controversy over the Papers' publication was illuminating, but the process of decision-making is even more important.

All The New York Times' stories, as well as the proliferation of summaries and analysis from other news sources, is convincing that the Pentagon, at least, was ill-prepared to conduct a war of any scope. True the Papers give only the Pentagon side of the story, but they show at this point that many mistakes, miscalculations and misinterpretations were given during the early part of the war. All the way from the presidency of Dwight Eisenhower, when the American involvement began, through the presidency of Lyndon Johnson, the Pentagon never could quite make up its minds for any length of time.

This is disturbing, but it goes hand-in-hand with recent events such as the failure of the Pueblo to reach authorities in time to prevent capture and such other communications snafus as have been heretofore revealed. The bureaucracy seems too large and burdensome to be effective, and the day-to-day head-butting of civilian and military officials in the Pentagon produces more confusion than decision. Neither civilian nor military quarters can gain much satisfaction in the continual battle over military vs. civilian authority. The Papers show that both are equally responsible, in the decision-making process, for the morass in Vietnam.

IF THERE is any one thing that the Pentagon Papers show, it is that the decision-making process must be streamlined in Washington. Mistakes are one thing, but continued miscalculations are quite another. And it is the latter that the Pentagon Papers seem to portray. The American public has gotten an insight into the inner workings of government, and it should not like what it sees. If the rest of government is as jumbled as the Pentagon seems to be, then criticism of government is amply justified. Some changes have to be made.

Make World Better

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every one yearns for a perfect world, but this is a hopeless hope.

There is no perfect world this side of the pearly gates, and there never will be.

Then how about a better world? Ah, there is an achievable dream. There are millions of ways the world can be made better, and each man has his own formula for it.

Here are a few suggested steps that might help the human race and the planet earth to hum in harmony instead of screech in long discord:

Each husband could have two wives if he willed it—one to act as his housekeeper and second mother, the other to act as his girl friend.

Each wife could have two husbands if she willed it—one to pay her bills, the other to give her thrills.

All teen-agers would be taken from parents at 13, kept and educated in vast government pens, and returned home at 21 with a college diploma and a job.

Cocktail parties would be banned except between the hours of 5 and 7:30 p.m. on Saturday nights.

Any member of a government body which imposed a new tax on the people would have to pay five times that amount himself.

No tax would be imposed which required payment in pennies, and the penny itself, now a nuisance coin, would be abolished.

Every business office would have enough couches for any employe to take an hour's nap after lunch if he chose to.

BUSINESS MATTERS

What is our belief about angels? The word "angel" comes from a Greek word meaning "messenger." There are grades among angels, such as the angel Gabriel and the archangel, Michael. These are God's holy messengers used (among many things) to convey God's message to us.

One of the most striking stories of the Bible is the dream of Jacob about the ladder "set up on earth, and the top of it reaching to heaven; and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it" (Genesis 28:10-15).

Are angels in the world today? Undoubtedly they are, for God has not left his creation to get along as best it can. While today very few individuals would claim that they have actually seen angels, the fact remains that messages from God are sent to us frequently. Guardian angels? Yes. Jesus declared that in heaven the angels of "these little ones... do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 18:10).

So let us go on believing in angels, or if we have not believed formerly, let us begin to have that belief now. The universe is full of exciting activity. And watch out for the devil's angels (Matthew 25:41). The evangelist Billy Sunday used to declare that he knew there was a personal devil because he had done business with him.

Think back over your life and you will see that like the evangelist we at times (to our great injury) have done business with the devil also.

By Earl L. Douglass

and Pedro Gonzalez, is a victim of inflation. It is now running about 6 per cent a year. So Getty's original $4 million and his $96,000 in interest after a year would be more severe in England, where he maintains a palatial home.

But even if he were living in Enid, Okla., it is obvious that he couldn't afford not to buy Death of Actaeon. Failing to do so would mean a loss of a quarter of a million dollars a year.

More Than That And while we are not privy to Getty's tax accounts, there may be more to the deal than that. He indicated that the Titian would be loaned to the Paul Getty Museum at Malibu, Calif. A loan of a $4 million painting ought to be worth 6 per cent, or $240,000 a year, which might be counted as an educational deduction against 15 per cent of Getty's annual income. And in the 70 per cent bracket, that could wipe out $168,000 of his income taxes each year.

There's more. The costs of bidding, the fees and commissions, etc., are deductible. So are fees for art and tax advice.

And, if the bidding and ownership is by a private Getty corporation, more deductions are available. In fact, the entire deal could be handled as a corporate investment, involving more deductions and, later on, on a profitable resale only capital gains taxes.

And, above all, with inflation sweeping the world, the $4 million Titian is certain to be worth much more in dollars or pounds in the future — it could be worth $6 million by 1981 — and the profit, only upon sale, would be taxable in the U.S. at only 25 per cent.

So that's why J. Paul Getty bought the Titian. He would have been a dope if he hadn't.

By ELMER ROESSNER
J. Paul Getty, the oil multimillionaire, bid $4 million to win Titian's "The Death of Actaeon" at auction in London. That was the highest price ever paid for a painting.

"Why did Getty buy it at that price?" people around the world are asking.

The answer is easy: He couldn't afford not to buy it! We don't know the finances of the deal, and Getty isn't telling. But we can speculate.

Suppose Getty just had $4 million laying around in an old vault or in a bank account. If he had invested it in AAA bonds paying 8 per cent. And assuming that Getty is in the 70 per cent income tax bracket, he would net only $96,000 after U.S. taxes.

Take It From There But Getty, like you, me,

and Pedro Gonzalez, is a victim of inflation. It is now running about 6 per cent a year. So Getty's original $4 million and his $96,000 in interest after a year would be

ELMER ROESSNER

$4,096,000 on paper. But the purchasing power would be reduced by around 6 per cent because of inflation, and it would be only $3,850,000.

Thus, if Getty had not purchased Actaeon, he would have had a loss of $246,000 and he would suffer about the same every year.

These estimates are based on American tax rates, interest rates and inflation. Actually, some of them may

Primary Teachers Study Techniques Of DISTAR

DISTAR teachers practice new instructional skills on children with learning problems.

DISTAR, a special instructional system for young children with learning difficulties, was the subject of a recent week-long in-service program for primary teachers at East Carolina University.

Twenty-one teachers from eastern North Carolina school systems participated in the program, which was co-sponsored by the ECU Division of Continuing Education and the Edgecombe County School System.

DISTAR specialist Linda Meyers, an instructor at the University of Illinois, was program director. Participants studied DISTAR techniques in lectures and discussions, and practiced them on a group of children from the Greenville area.

The DISTAR system, developed by Siegfried Englemann of the University of Illinois, is based on the premise that every student, no matter how disadvantaged, can be taught.

It employs intensive motivation of the slow learners, emphasizes the learning problems of individual students, and attempts to overcome the educational handicaps of young children who enter school lacking the basic language skills and concepts necessary for success in school work.

Annie W. Fulton of Farmville and Susan Barbee Thomas were among participants in the DISTAR in-service program.

Amend Regulations On Commodity Loan

An amendment to Commodity Credit Corp. loan regulations on cotton, grains and similarly handled commodities allowing growers to enter into contracts to sell these commodities without loss of loan eligibility has been announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

According to the Pitt County

ASCS office, the amendments provide that a producer shall be eligible for loans if he enters into a contract to sell, or gives an option to sell his commodity, or, under the contract or option, retains control, risk of loss, and title to the commodity.

Loan regulations, the ASCS office explained, previously provided that commodities which producers agreed to sell were ineligible for loans even though the producer still retained title, risk of loss, and control.

Department of Agriculture officials have indicated that this restriction has tended to hold down marketings and has limited the producer's freedom to agree to sell his commodity at the best price obtainable.

The manner in which loan collateral is released to the buyer remains unchanged under the new regulations, the announcement said.

In the case of grains and similarly handled commodities, loan collateral will be released only upon the written request of the producer and written authorization by the county office of the ASCS at the time of the release.

In the case of cotton, according to the office, a producer who gives written release of his warehouse receipts to a buyer or other person to whom he transfers his stocks must present the release to the county ASCS office within 30 days. The county office has been authorized not to release security interest in the loan collateral unit the loan has repaid.

Pitt NAACP To Meet Sunday Earned UNC-G Dean's Listing

The United Pitt County Branch of the NAACP will hold its regular monthly meeting at 7:45 p.m. Sunday at St. Monica Baptist Church of Grimesland, President D. D. Garrett announced.

Region 6 will be in charge of the meeting. The public is cordially invited to attend, Garrett said.

GREENSBORO — Five Pitt County students attained the dean's list at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro during the spring semester which ended in June.

The students are: Miss Rebecca J. Bosley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Emerson Bosley of Dupont St. in Grifton; Miss Pamela A. Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Carter, 1612 Beaumont St.; Miss Katherine A. Inman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Clifford Inman, 103-S. Sylvan Dr.; Miss Jenny S. Manning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Manning of Route 2, Box 58-A; and Miss Valencia Willoughby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Willoughby of Route 1, Box 140, all of Greenville.

considerable smaller." By April 1, Saigon's force "will be, at most, 75-80 percent of its actual strength in December 1967, and quite possible closer to 60 percent" because of heavy desertions.

The actual outcome: Saigon's forces increased by 122,000 the next six months, finally surpassing one million. In contrast, Vietcong recruiting in the countryside was never the same, and the Communist war effort was increasingly carried by regulars from the North.

Ellsberg Prophecy No. 3: "It is the death of pacification" — Communist control of South Vietnam will steadily increase, never receding. By April 1, "U.S. sub-sector teams will be withdrawn from a number of districts, and a number of province towns will be under siege. Some will have fallen." Some 400,000 U.S. troops would be needed to prevent this.

The actual outcome: Far from U.S. teams being withdrawn or province towns falling, Communist control of the countryside steadily receded, without any increase in U.S. troops.

Ellsberg Prophecy No. 4: "The best guess is that the VC (Vietcong) cadres are busy learning lessons from the initial attacks on how to do better next month." By early April, there will be another round of heavy attacks, including renewed pressure of the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh.

The actual outcome: The Vietcong were hopelessly decimated by the Tet offensive. Not since then have they even contemplated an offensive comparable to Tet. By April 1, the relief of Khe Sanh had begun.

Moreover, Ellsberg completely missed this point: by their brutal assault on villages, the Communists irrevocably diminished their own political base in South Vietnam. While Ellsberg's memo predicted post-Tet tensions would result in U.S. air and artillery attacks on South Vietnamese villages, U.S. sensitivity about such politically self-defeating tactics has greatly increased since then.

Flawed though Ellsberg's judgment was, however, this mentality — in high places in and out of government — helped erode U.S. support of the war and undermine a political consensus at home. Now, in the confusion wrought by publication of the Pentagon Papers, the mistaken Dr. Ellsberg is apotheosized while those who correctly interpreted Tet as a calamitous Communist setback are in disgrace.

"There's always that risk," my friend said. "But at the same time, if we are dependent for our secrets on the United States, we should at least get equal treatment with the New York Times and Washington Post."

"You mean to say you knew nothing about the Pentagon Papers until you saw them in the newspapers?"

"Precisely. Here we are, the only ally that's stood by the United States since World War II, and we knew as much about the Vietnam war plans as the United States Congress. That, sir, is no way to treat a friend."

Bethel Board Okays Budget

BETHEL — At the monthly meeting Tuesday of the Bethel Town Board, a budget of approximately $130,000 was tentatively adopted.

The new fiscal year budget earmarks about $92,000 for the general budget and about $37,000 for water and sewage. A tax rate of $1.30 per $100 property valuation is the same as last year's rate. No funds are earmarked for salary increases of town employees.

Board members passed a resolution to send letters to all errant merchants relative to purchase of privilege licenses. The deadline for purchase of these licenses, required by town ordinance, is July 1. It was asked that merchants be warned of the penalty clause in event of non-purchase of required privilege licenses.

A committee will contact officials of VEPCO to get information on the cost of changing city street lights from the present type to mercury-vapor type lights.

Further discussion was held on a program to improve the method of garbage collection and disposal. It was pointed out that a decision must be reached within 90 days on this matter.

In this first meeting of the new fiscal year, board members were named to various city posts. These are — Town Treasurer, Frank Hemingway; Assistant Treasurer, W. T. Whitehurst; Town Clerk, J. H. Dupree; and mayor pro-tem, J. P. Cullifer.

Alert defense by East deprived South, the declarer at four hearts, of the opportunity of endplaying West on the deal. With a bit of mental exercise, however, declarer found a way of turning the tables on East—and the latter was eventually obliged to present South with the game fulfilling trick.

West opened the eight of diamonds, dummy covered with the ten and East played the jack to win the trick. He cashed the king of diamonds as everyone followed suit, but then he shifted to the deuce of spades.

This presented declarer with a problem. If East had led a third round of diamonds, South could have ruffed high, drawn trump and then played the ace, king of clubs and ruffed out the remaining card in that suit. Now the dummy is reentered in trumps and a spade is led. South puts in the ten to place West on lead with the queen of spades. If he returns a club, it presents declarer with a ruff and discard. A spade return is equally fatal and South restricts his losses on the deal to two diamonds and one spade.

East's spade shift at trick three deprived South of the opportunity of endplaying his left hand opponent. He couldn't afford to play the ten because—in the light of West's one spade overcall—East's spot card had all the earmarks of a singleton. If East had only one spade, however, an alternative line of play was available to South.

Declarer put up the ace of spades, drew trump with the ace and jack and then played the ace, king and another club, ruffing in his hand. A small heart was led to the ten and now the queen of diamonds was played from the dummy. East covered with the ace, but instead of ruffing, South merely discarded the ten of spades.

East was endplayed. Whether he returned a diamond or a club, declarer could discard his remaining spade, while he trumped in dummy. In all, South lost three diamond tricks.

Just like a roller coaster, all of us realize that our very life is a series of hills and valleys. We are enjoying a smooth and peaceful existence, when suddenly we find ourselves far from the peaceful valley on what seems like a mountain of confusion and distress.

At such crucial times we need to remember there is a nearby fortress of stability. It is that place of power that stands ever ready to provide the necessary faith and courage to face tomorrow with enthusiasm. Discover the inner peace that comes from divine love. Worship in church this Sunday.

Graniteers In Sweep Of Series

The Graniteers made it a clean sweep of the City Little League title yesterday, rolling to a 3-0 victory over the Optimists.

It was the second straight shutout win for the Tar Heel League champions, and the second year in a row they had won the title.

The Graniteers got another three-hit pitching performance in the game, this time from Howard Vainright. Joel Clark had tossed a three-hitter in the 7-0 shutout that opened the best-of-three series.

The scoring got started in the first inning, when the Graniteers pushed over two runs. Vainright reached on a fielder's choice and Jay Chenier reached on an error. A passed ball scored Vainright and Steve Manning doubled to drive in Chenier.

It stayed that way until the sixth inning when the final Graniteer run came across. Tim Allen singled and moved the rest of the way around when Sam Hardy's hit was also mishandled.

Vainright, in hurling his three-hitter, struck out nine and walked three.

The Optimists did threaten to score in the game, putting men in scoring position in the first, third and fourth innings.

The Graniteers also offered threats in the second, third and fifth innings.

Foodland, P-W Advance In Play

Foodland and Piggly-Wiggly advanced into the winners' bracket of the Ladies Softball League Tournament with wins last night. Foodland downed Wachovia, 9-1, while Piggly-Wiggly won by forfeit over Coca-Cola.

Piggly-Wiggly will meet the regular season champion, Little Mint Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., with the winner meeting Foodland on Thursday. In the losers' bracket, Coke and Wachovia will meet at 8:40 p.m. on Tuesday. The loser of that game will be eliminated from the tournament.

Foodland pushed into the lead in its game in the first inning with a run, but Wachovia tied it up with a run in the fourth.

Foodland then scored one in the bottom of the fourth to take the lead for good. Nancy Tripp reached on an error and singles by Elsie Hannah and Georgia Potter brought her around.

Four more crossed in the fifth. Diane Hurley singled and Cathy Anthony reached on an error. Sandy Hardee singled and Tula Satterfield got a hit. A hit by Nancy Tripp brought in Satterfield with the final run. Foodland then added three more in the sixth for the nine-run total.

Trevino Looking For More Money

By JOHN FARROW
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — "I've already spent last week's money," joked Lee Trevino, "and I'm looking for more this week."

Trevino, with the United States and Canadian Open Golf Titles under his belt, shared the lead on 139 with Britain's Tony Jacklin after the first two rounds of the British Open at Royal Birkdale.

"The pressure is on and I can stand it," said the 31-year-old Mexican-American.

The law of averages is against me winning three great titles in four weeks, but my wife and I both think that I can carry off this old crown."

After winning the Canadian Open at Montreal, Trevino flew to Britain and said: "I'd trade one of my U.S. Open titles for the British crown any time."

The field was reduced to 82 after 36 holes—and the only American regular to miss the cut was Frank Beard of Louisville, Ky., who wound up with a second-round 81 for 154.

The cut came at 151, and Royal Birkdale's 7,080-yard, par 35-37—73 links could get angry with the hen left in the field. So far the conditions have been almost perfect at Birkdale. But that could change overnight.

Birkdale is a course that suddenly can turn nasty when the wind blows in from the Irish Sea and the sun gives way to rain.

Breathing down the necks of Trevino and Jacklin, winner of both the U.S. and British Opens in 1969, was a new name for British fans—Liang Huan Lu.

The man from Taiwan, a star of the Far East circuit, was one shot back on 140. Argentina's Roberto Vicenzo and perennial star Gary Player of South Africa were at 141 and presenting a big threat to the leaders.

Anderson Picks Rest Of Squad

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates' star Roberto Clemente drew his 11th All-Star Game assignment today as Cincinnati Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson completed the National League squad.

Clemente, four-time league batting champion, will take a .310 All-Star batting average into next Tuesday night's game at Detroit. He finished fifth among National League outfielders in voting by baseball fans that determined the starting line-ups.

Anderson named 12 players to complete the 28-man squad. Catcher Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh, first baseman Nate Colbert of San Diego and outfielders Bobby Bonds of San Francisco and Willie Davis of Los Angeles were put on the All-Star team for the first time.

The others named were infielders Don Kessinger and Ron Santo of Chicago, Lee May of Cincinnati and Felix Millan of Atlanta, and outfielders Lou Brock of St. Louis, Pete Rose of Cincinnati and Rusty Staub of Montreal.

Rose, who scored the winning run in the 12th inning of last year's All-Star Game, was named to the National League squad for the sixth time. Santo has been selected seven times.

Anderson also announced that managers Walter Alston of Los Angeles, Danny Murtaugh of Pittsburgh and Preston Gomez of San Diego will serve as All-Star coaches. The team trainers will be Leo Hughes of the San Francisco Giants.

Grace Captures Title; St. James Ices A Tie

Grace Free Will Baptist captured the National Division title in the Church League last night without lifting a bat. Piney Grove downed Immanuel, 4-2, to eliminate the last team with a chance to catch Grace.

In the American Division, St. James with a 31-5 victory over Trinity, insured itself of no worse than a tie for the American Division title.

In the American Division, St. James leads with a 16-2 mark, while Meadowbrook is 16-3. They are followed by Presbyterian, 13-5; Belvoir, 8-11; Christian, 6-13; St. Gabriel, 4-14; and Trinity, 2-16.

The division winds up tonight with St. James meeting Presbyterian and Trinity taking on St. Gabriel.

Grace has the national division crown with a 12-7 mark, while Immanuel and Mt. Pleasant are tied for second with 10-8 records. They are followed by Oakmont and Piney Grove, both 10-9, and Black Jack, 9-9, and Maranatha, 3-15.

The league also finishes up play tonight with Immanuel meeting Balck Jack and Maranatha facing Mt. Pleasant.

In the opener, Immanuel and Piney Grove both pushed over runs in the first inning. Piney Grove pushed ahead with two in the third. Jimmy Evans singled and Dickie Allen got a double. Curtis Worthington and William Nicklas both singled, driving in the first two for a 3-1 lead.

Immanuel picked up one in the fifth, while Piney Grove matched that in their half of the frame for the 4-2 win.

St. James charged ahead for good in the first inning of their game with five runs. Roy Carawan singled as did Ron Vincent. Dave Wilcox got a hit and Ricky Chambers doubled. Joe Brown tripled and scored on Bill Shaw's hit to wind up the scoring.

St. James then added 10 in the second, with Charles Vincent homering, and then picked up five in the third, seven in the fourth when Vincent and Brown both homered, and three in the seventh on another Vincent homer.

Trinity scored two in the second, two in the sixth on Jackie Moye's homer, and one in the seventh.

Drag Racing Set Tonight

Two big fast rails move into New Bern tonight for the races at Continental Raceway. Alan Starr and Jim Hildreth are coming in from Greensboro with their Chrysler powered AA fuel dragsters for match races which will hit speeds in the 220 mph range and E.T.s in the high 6's. Track officials indicated that this will be the first time for this type of race in the area and they're expecting a good tight contest.

Continental Raceway management recently announced that a sanctioning agreement has been reached with the fast growing International Hot Road Association. Expectations are high that this will further move the area into big time drag racing here on the East Coast. Continental Raceway also announced that it will provide outstanding feature races every Friday nite in addition to the regular racing schedule which is drawing the top drag racing cars from all over the area.

For some time now the track has been open on Sunday for motorcycle motocross racing and grudge racing. Changes in this schedule are to be announced shortly coincident with changes in the track facilities. Upcoming events include wheel standers, 'A' gassers, fuel altered and a number of other different racing programs.

HAVELOCK — Pitt County downed Greenville, 6-1, last night in the Babe Ruth League district tournament, to advance in the winners' bracket. In the other game, Havelock eliminated Cartaret County, 4-3, in 10 innings.

Pitt County pitcher Eddie McCullen limited Greenville to only three hits in the game, and the lone run came in the seventh inning.

Tonight at 6 p.m., Greenville will meet Havelock in the losers' bracket, with the loser of the game being eliminated from the tournament. Pitt County will play New Bern at 8:30 p.m. in the winners' bracket. Play will also continue on Saturday.

Pitt County pushed over one run in the second inning to take the lead. Tom Craft doubled, and then with two outs, Ricky Thorne singled. Craft moved to third on the hit and scored from there on a passed ball.

In the third, Pitt County pushed over another run for a 2-0 lead, all they really needed. Eugene Forrest was hit by a

Pirates Find Another Jewel

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The talent-rich Pittsburgh Pirates found another jewel for their collection after crowning Cincinnati.

Rookie Bruce Kison, a 21-year-old diamond in the rough with a singing fastball, pitched the Pirates to a 7-1 knockout of the Reds with late relief help Thursday night.

Kison, called up last week from the minors to fill in while Bob Moose is on a two-week army reserve hitch, is getting a closer look from manager Danny Murtaugh after his first major league victory.

While Pittsburgh boosted its National League East lead to seven games over idle New York, San Francisco turned back Houston 4-2, Philadelphia stopped Montreal 7-5 and Chicago tripped Los Angeles 4-2 in other action.

In the American League, it was Detroit 3, New York 1; California 7, Minnesota 4; Oakland 4, Chicago 2; Boston 5, Cleveland 3; Baltimore 7, Washington 3 and Milwaukee 2, Kansas City 1.

Kison earned a shot at the big time with a 10-1 record at Charleston of the International League. The first time out last week, he gave up three runs in a five inning job against Chicago.

The 6-foot-4, 180-pounder was better Tuesday night, holding the heavy-hitting Reds to three

Bucs Host Tar Heels

East Carolina University's Pirates will play host to the University of North Carolina tonight at 7:30 at Harrington Field.

The game will be the first meeting between the two on the East Carolina field. The Bucs have had two home contests with the Tar Heels postponed by rain.

The Pirates come into the game leading the league with a 6-3 mark.

Tim McCarver delivered a three-run homer with two out in the eighth inning to power Philadelphia.

Prior to McCarver's blast into the right field stands, Expos had a 5-4 lead on Bob Bailey's three-run homer in the third.

Billy Williams drove in three runs, including the tie-breaking tally with a fifth-inning double, as Chicago completed a sweep of its four-game set with Los Angeles. Williams delivered Don Kessinger in the fifth to snap a 2-2 tie, then drove in Kessinger again in the ninth with a single for an insurance run.

Old Crow's good taste begins with men who love to work with their hands.

Anthony Clark has a big responsibility. One false move of his hands and he's mixed the wrong measure of grain for the Old Crow formula. Does he ever miss? The proof is in the good taste of our Bourbon.

Making Bourbon which tastes good, bottle after bottle, made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that took Bourbon-making out of the hit-or-miss category. Later, they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon. We still use our hands in making Old Crow.

After work, most of our men keep on using their hands. Anthony Clark calls on the same craftsmanship mixing grain as he does tying fishing flies.

Over the years, craftsmanship like this has made Old Crow America's best-tasting Bourbon.

Frank Robinson Cracks 2,500th Hit

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
Chalk up a major milestone for Frank Robinson on the same night that Marcelino Lopez just missed a more modest

one. Robinson poled a three-run homer, the 2,500th hit of his career, helping the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-3 victory over the Washington Senators Thursday night. Meanwhile, Lopez, a reclamation project from the pitching scrap heap, came within three outs of his first complete game in five years. But the veteran left-hander needed ninth-inning relief help from Ken Sanders to nail down Milwaukee's 2-1 victory over Kansas City.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday Detroit trimmed New York 3-1, Boston downed Cleveland 5-3, California took Minnesota 7-4 and Oakland defeated Chicago 4-2.

In the National Pittsburgh shelled Cincinnati 7-1, Philadelphia nipped Montreal 7-5, San Francisco tripped Houston 4-2 and Chicago topped Los Angeles 5-2.

Robinson, who is the only man in major league history to be named Most Valuable Player in each league, made his milestone hit a memorable one. It was a three-run homer—the 488th homer of his illustrious career which began with Cincinnati 16 seasons ago.

Merv Rettenmund also smacked a three-run homer for Baltimore and left-hander Mike Cuellar dode the heavy hitting to his 11th consecutive and 13th triumph this season. Cuellar allowed just six hits and showed no ill effects of the strained neck he suffered when he was involved in an automobile accident Monday night.

Lopez, who has not had a complete game since 1966 when he was pitching for California, nursed a 2-1 Milwaukee lead into the ninth inning against Kansas City. But he was lifted when he walked Fred Patek opening the ninth. Sanders came on to preserve the victory.

Tommy Harper drove in both Brewer runs with a third inning single. Lopez, who hadn't worked beyond six innings in 23 previous appearances this year, struck out seven and walked none.

Two rookies, Detroit pitcher Bill Glibreth and Boston catcher Bob Montgomery, played key roles in victories for their teams.

Glibreth earned his second major league victory, limiting New York to three hits and pitching the Tigers to their victory over the Yankees. Bill Freehan drove in two Detroit runs, one with a homer.

Montgomery jolted a two-run homer with two-out in the ninth inning, snapping a tie and moving Boston past Cleveland. The Indians had built a 3-0 lead on Eddie Leon's two-run single and a solo homer by Chuck Hinton. But Boston bounced back with Rico Petrocelli's 14th homer providing one run Duane Josephson and Phil Gagliano knocking in the others.

Unbeaten Chuck Dobson ran his record to 8-0, pitching Oakland past Chicago. Dobson hurled a five-hitter and the A's packed all their scoring into the second inning. Mike Andrews and Bill Melton homered for the White Sox.

Tony Gonzalez cracked a two-run homer and Sandy Alomar drove in two runs with a single as California downed Minnesota. Gonzalez homered snapping a 1-1 tie in the second inning and Alomar's hit came one inning later.

Nixon Phones Congratulations

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer
WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — The telephone rings a lot in the Wellington Mara household, what with Mara being the owner of the New York football Giants and the father of 10 children.

But only once has President Nixon been on the other end of the line.

That was last Saturday morning when he telephoned the Mara's to congratulate them on the June 28 arrivals of their 10th offspring and sixth daughter, Meghan.

Fifteen-year-old Susan was the only one at home. Eight other kids were at day camp and Mara was at the hospital to bring home his wife, Ann, and the baby.

"I thought it was just someone who wanted my father," said Mara's oldest daughter. "I told 'em he wasn't in and wouldn't be back for about an hour. When I heard it was the secretary to the President calling and that the president would talk to me I couldn't believe it. It thought it was a friend playing a joke."

"I had to believe it. It was his voice. I heard it. I was amazed."

President Nixon, knowledgeable about all sports, is the nation's No. 1 fan. He frequently attends football and baseball games, invites sports figures to the White House, and likes to telephone personal congratulations to winners. Among those who have picked up a dressing room telephone to find the President on the line are Coach John Wooden of UCLA, pro football coach Hank Stram of the Kansas City Chiefs, and golfers Orville Moody and Arnold Palmer.

Susan, who just finished her second year at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Greenwich, Conn., said she talked with President Nixon for about 10 minutes but she didn't ask him a single question.

"I was too excited," she said. "That wasn't on my mind. He asked me all of the questions."

"We talked about the Giants and about the family and he told me that my mother should have one more baby so we could field our own football team."

"When I hung up all I wanted to do was call somebody, tell somebody. I'm a big joker and a lot of my friends thought I was kidding but then they figured that I couldn't make that up."

About the only people who believed her right off the bat were her parents. "My mother was so excited. She made me sit down and tell her exactly what was said, word for word."

Carner Putting Game On Display

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
HORSHAM, Pa. (AP) — Mrs. Joanne Carner put her "new" game on display today and a field of 74 women started play in the $25,000 George Washington Gold Classic at the Hidden Springs Country Club.

Actually, Mrs. Carner's "new" game is really her old game reborn after a year, and a-half of trying to be something she isn't.

The 32-year-old Mrs. Carner said she made the change in practice rounds two weeks ago before winning the U.S. Women's Open Championship at Erie, Pa.

"I stopped being a cute defensive golfer and went back to my natural style of belting the ball," said Mrs. Carner, long recognized as the longest hitter among the current distaff golfers.

The change worked at Erie, and she's anxious to see if it continues in the George Washington, a 54-hole test over a 6-150 yard par 73 course. Eight of the ladies Professional Golf Association's 1971 top ten money winners were in the field of 66 pro and eight amateurs.

Among those challenging the new Open Queen were the tournament's defending champion, Mrs. Judy Rankin; the tour's leading money winner this year, Kathy Whitworth; and Sandra Palmer, Sandra Haynie, Jane Blalock, Jo Ann Prentice, Mary Mills, and Carol Mann.

Mrs. Carner built her reputation as a five-time national amateur champion. Her 270-280-yard tee shots made a lot of male golfers envious. When she turned pro, however, she changed her image, sought to finesse the courses.

"I would swing hard one time and easy the next," explained the 5 foot, 7 strawberry blond. "I was bouncing the ball onto the greens instead of flying to the pin. You can't keep changing your swing. Hit it as hard as you can, that's my real style."

Jim French To Highlight Races

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Jim French, probably the most durable 3-year-old race horse of 1971, highlights the national thoroughbred program this weekend.

Back from California where he finished second in the Hollywood Derby, the Frank Caldwell-owned colt looms the likely choice in the $75,000-added Dwyer Handicap at Aqueduct Saturday.

Nothing seems to bother the colt who won the Santa Anita Derby, then finished second in the Kentucky Derby, third in the Preakness and second in the Belmont Stakes.

Jim French took over the favorite role for the Dwyer after Bold Reasoning, the topweight at 128 pounds for the 1 1/4 mile race was declared out Thursday because of a cough.

Jim French will carry 125 pounds against an expected small field.

Manta, a sturdy 5-year-old mare who runs in the silks of Elmendorf Farm, is the top weight at 127 pounds for the $60,000-added Beverly Hills Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Her chief challengers in a field of 13 for the 1 1/4-mile race are expected to be Hi Q. and Typecast.

Other Saturday features include the $40,000 Molly Pitcher Handicap at Monmouth, the $40,000 Milette Handicap at Detroit, the $30,000 Pucker Up at Arlington, the $25,000 Dragon Stakes at Liberty Bell and the $15,000 Mayflower Stakes at Suffolk.

Office Queen, Golden Or and Plumb Grey top the probabilities for the Molly Pitcher. Main Pan and Sonny Says Quick head the Pucker Up with Delta Oil the likely choice in the Mayflower.

Second Bar, Irish Sweeper and Bold Music are among the leading probabilities for the Dragon, a 5 1/2-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds.

AL All-Stars Complete Roster

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The American League's 28-player All-Star roster was filled today, but Manager Earl Weaver might be advised to keep in close touch with the medics before the 42nd mid-season classic with the National League next Tuesday in Detroit.

Already forced to make one substitution, Weaver may have to find other replacements unless a few of his ailing All-Stars respond to treatment in the next couple of days.

Boog Powell of Weaver's Baltimore Orioles became the first casualty. After leading the fans' balloting, Powell was sidelined with a hairline fracture in the wrist.

Weaver didn't have to look far for a replacement for his big first baseman. He named Norm Cash of the host Tigers. Cash only leads the league in homers.

Then things became a little sticky as Weaver and American League headquarters in Boston learned of other injuries. Southpaw Sam McDowell, one of nine pitchers chosen, came down with a throwing arm ailment.

From Minnesota, the Twins reported three All-Stars ailing. Outfielder Tony Oliva and second baseman Rod Carew, both starters, were sidelined with a knee injury and a bad cold Thursday. And third baseman Harmon Killebrew was hobbled by a foot injury.

Weaver completed the squad Thursday by naming 11 reserves, including Al Kaline of Detroit for the 17th time and Harmon Killebrew for the 13th.

Others named included catchers Bill Freehan of the Tigers and Thurmon Munson of the New York Yankees, infielders Leo Cardenas of the Twins, Cookie Rojas of the Kansas City Royals and Bill Melton of the Chicago White Sox, and outfielders Bobby Murcer of the Yankees, Amos Otis of Kansas City and Don Buford of the Orioles.

That gave the Orioles and the Twins five representatives each, one more than the Tigers. Boston has three, and New York, Cleveland and Kansas City two each. Oakland, a runaway leader in the American League West, California, Washington, Chicago and Milwaukee had one each.

Pele Still Brazilian

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Officials of the Brazilian Santos club announced Thursday night they had turned down an offer of $3 million from a French club for famed soccer star Pele.

Vasco Faet, president of Santos, said the president of the Paris Saint Germain Club, Guy Crescent, made the offer, stressing that $2 million would go to Santos and $1 million to Pele.

Faet said the offer was refused "because we have other plans to make more money with Pele on our team." He added that "everyone can be sure that Pele will never be transferred and will end his career playing with us."

The 30-year-old Pele, who led Brazil to the World Soccer Cup in 1970, earlier had threatened to quit professional soccer for good because of a controversy over his decision to retire from the Brazilian national team.

Pele is scheduled to play his last game for the national team on July 18 after which he plans to play with his team, Santos, for three more years.

Pele said that when he first announced his plan to retire from the national team "everyone agreed with me but now, all of a sudden, there has been a change of opinion."

Pele continued: "the people must understand that I'm not doing this to harm anybody. I will continue playing with Santos, but if to play with Santos I must also play with the national selection, then my next step will be to quit professional soccer."

"I wouldn't like that to happen, but if there is a day when a player has to announce his retirement, then I have chosen mine. I know I'll suffer a lot of pressures, but my answer is definite."

Worry Clinic Energy Outlet Eases Tension

When a boss grows angry, he may get up from his desk and pace the floor. Or deliver a tirade of bitter words. Under similar tension, notice how baseball players and other athletes try to vent their inner tension via action of the muscles that are fastened to bones. This is God's insurance for our hearts!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case R-503: Alan K., aged 16, has a scientific outlook. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I want to be a professional baseball player when I leave school. "So I have studied such athletes very closely. "And I notice that the pitchers go through a strange ritual of motions before they throw the ball. "For example, they touch the bill of their cap and even cross themselves. "Meanwhile, they often chew gum or tobacco. "And after a put out at first base, they toss the ball all around the infield. Why?"

Energy Outlets
The pitcher and the entire infield, are up tight before each ball is hurled toward the plate. The pitcher then relieves some of his pent-up tension by various little "tics" or muscular habits that help him release inner mental and physical pressure. The fielders do much the same thing by repeatedly pounding their free hand into their mitt. For muscular action drains off inner nervous tension! As soon as the batter drives the ball toward the shortstop, if the later fields it fast enough to get him out at first base, then the first baseman starts the ball around the infield. For that lets all of them relax momentarily and obtain a brief respite from their intense concentration. It's a psychological safety valve! Members of a college track team will likewise keep jogging long before their event is called. Part of this action is to limber up their muscles and even prevent a Charley horse. For this "warming up" period is desirable in all athletic contests. But a second reason for such preliminary activity is to drain off the inner tension or "Stage fright" by skeletal muscles. The latter are those which are hooked to bones, for they alone are under control of your will. You can thus move any finger or arm or leg, as you see fit. But you can't control the muscles of your heart wall or intestines! If, during intense stage fright, you fold your arms to keep your hands from shaking and even cross your knees so their tremor is not apparent, you can shut off this outlet of tension by those skeletal muscles. But then notice what happens! That energy shunts across into your autonomic nervous system, which controls your automatic acts, like breathing, blood pressure, pulse rate, digestion, sweating, etc. So your heart will race till you

Moeller Is At Institute

Herman G. Moeller, coordinator of Correctional Services in the East Carolina University Department of Social Work, is serving as Visiting Expert at the United Nations' Asia and Far East Institute on crime and delinquency prevention in Fuchu, Japan. The institute began May 24 and will close July 16. Originally activated in 1962 by the United Nations and the Japanese government, the institute conducts international training programs on crime prevention and control. Participants in the programs include policy-making officials and professional personnel from the 24 Asian countries in the region. Moeller is working with representatives from Ceylon, the Republic of China, India, Indonesia, Korea, Laos, Malaysia, Nepal, Thailand, East and West Pakistan, Vietnam, Singapore and Japan. Prior to his appointment to the ECU faculty earlier this year, Moeller was Deputy Director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons. About 1.7 million persons, some 40 per cent of Hong Kong's population, live in government-aided, low-cost housing.

almost faint. Your throat also gets dry and you may break out in the cold sweat of fear. So be grateful henceforth when your hands shake as you face an audience or the crowd in a sports arena. For God Almighty designed our bodies so we'd dissipate tension via our skeletal muscles and thus protect our heart and digestive system! An angry person (or boss) may thus get up from his desk and pace the floor! Or he may use his vocal muscles in rapid, irate speech!

Cutbacks In Welfare Are Now Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a clear signal of financial distress, 22 states are implementing or considering welfare cutbacks, according to a federal survey.

Findings of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare study indicate a dramatic reversal of the steady, 30-year climb in public assistance levels for the poor.

"This means one thing," commented an HEW welfare specialist. "States are running out of money and are looking for ways to cut back."

Welfare is a major budget item for most states. State and local governments are spending more than $7 billion a year on the 14 million persons receiving social and medical assistance.

According to the HEW survey, benefit reductions of up to 20 per cent have taken or are scheduled to take effect this year in 10 states. Reductions were listed as possible in an additional 12 states.

Among the 22 states were New York and Minnesota, considered by federal officials as traditional leaders in expanding welfare benefits.

The survey found cutbacks in a number of forms: Alabama has dropped 6,000 families from welfare rolls. Maine eliminated its unemployed-parent program. Rhode Island is dropping two benefit items. Kansas plans to slash payment levels 20 per cent Sept. 1.

The other states listed for definite reduction were Georgia, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Nebraska and South Dakota.

By contrast, the report listed benefit increases this year in only four states and the District of Columbia. They are Hawaii, Mississippi, Nevada and Oklahoma. Increases were considered possible in Maryland, Ohio and Wisconsin.

The 12 states listed as considering assistance reduction are Arizona, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

Newsprint Cutback Hit

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Newspaper Publishers Association leaders expressed concern Thursday over what was described as "a planted cutback" of normal newsprint production in Canada.

Spokesmen said such a step is viewed as a maneuver to empty manufacturers' warehouses and limit the supply so that a resulting shortage would pave the way for another attempt to increase prices.

Members of the association's newsprint committee recommended that member publishers seek language in newsprint contracts permitting cancellation when prices are raised. They took the view that no contract should run longer than five years.

The committee, headed by Robert H. Spann of the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman, issued a statement deploring price concessions which various newsprint producers are offering some Southern publishers.

Publishers were urged by the committee to encourage expansion of the South's capacity for producing newsprint, and thus take advantage of shorter freight hauls to minimize the effect of rising prices.

SNPA president Joe D. Smith of the Alexandria, La., Town Talk joined in the committee's discussions, which also dealt at length with the possibility of recycling used newsprint.

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's soft drink industry apparently will have to wait two years to make another bid to repeal the state's one-cent tax on their product.

Legislation to repeal the tax July 1, 1973, was killed Thursday when the Senate Finance Committee voted to postpone it indefinitely.

The House had passed the measure 70-42 Monday night.

The Senate committee vote came swiftly after its chairman, Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, said, "Blast off time is here."

High said the one-cent tax is not equitable since it applies to varying size of bottled drinks. "It is not a proper tax," he argued.

Rep. William R. Robertson Jr., D-Beaufort, a soft drink bottler, said the tax is paid by the consumer—"those least able to pay it."

"This is a tax on a tax," he said, noting that soft drinks are ment to make the tax repeal effective Jan. 1, 1972. But this died for lack of a motion to second it.

The one-cent tax, enacted by the 1969 General Assembly, will bring in an estimated $37 million during the current biennium.

Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, who sponsored the tax repeal bill, explained its provisions to the committee. He said the amendment tacked on in the House Finance Committee to delay the tax repeal until July 1, 1973, was not his idea.

"I was reluctant to accept it," he added.

Many representatives of the soft drink industry were in the crowded room as Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, moved that the bill be given a favorable report. A substitute motion was offered by Sen. J. J. Harrington, D-Bertie, to postpone the measure indefinitely.

The voice vote appeared close. Burney ruled the "ayes" were in the majority.

This spelled death for the issue—at least at this legislative session.

Before Harris offered his motion, Sen. Bobby Lee Combs, D-Catawba, offered an amend-

Budget . . .

City Manager Harry Hagerty informed the councilmen of reasons for overdrawn accounts.

For the Fire Department, the $41,091.46 basically represents a portion of the cost of the new fire truck not included in the 1970-1971 budget. For the $73,714.24 overdrawn by the Public Works Department, $14,000 plus was for additional storm drainage pipes not placed in the original budget; for additional street maintenance; and some $38,000 more spent by the Sanitation Department than was budgeted.

The ice storms added a certain amount of increased costs to the Public Works budget. The $8,390.08 overdrawn item for the Recreation Department resulted from the city's not receiving the $12,500 federal matching funds prior to the end of the fiscal year.

The major item in the area of funds not expended, that of $48,435.93 for the Police Department, was a result, Hagerty explained, mostly of funds received from the state thru federal law enforcement funds.

Hagerty presented a complete review of credits and debits, both in revenues and expenditures, including one eight cents credit for rents — $10,645.08 received versus $10,645.00 budgeted as the amount expected to be received.

For the $73,714.24 overdrawn by the Public Works Department, $14,000 plus was for additional storm drainage pipes not placed in the original budget; for additional street maintenance; and some $38,000 more spent by the Sanitation Department than was budgeted.

The ice storms added a certain amount of increased costs to the Public Works budget. The $8,390.08 overdrawn item for the Recreation Department resulted from the city's not receiving the $12,500 federal matching funds prior to the end of the fiscal year.

The major item in the area of funds not expended, that of $48,435.93 for the Police Department, was a result, Hagerty explained, mostly of funds received from the state thru federal law enforcement funds.

Hagerty presented a complete review of credits and debits, both in revenues and expenditures, including one eight cents credit for rents — $10,645.08 received versus $10,645.00 budgeted as the amount expected to be received.

City Manager Harry Hagerty informed the councilmen of reasons for overdrawn accounts.

For the Fire Department, the $41,091.46 basically represents a portion of the cost of the new fire truck not included in the 1970-1971 budget.
