Moroccan Army Officers Try To Assassinate King Hassan

By BOUDJEMA BOUTI

RABAT, Morocco (UPI)— Rebel army officers attempted to assassinate King Hassan II and to overthrow his 10-year-old Moroccan regime while he was celebrating his 42nd birthday Saturday. Uninjured Hassan later told the nation loyalist forces crushed the attempted coup.

Belgian Ambassador Marcel Dupret, three Moroccan army officers and several other persons were killed when the rebels burst into a reception at Hassan's Skirat summer palace 10 miles south of Rabat, the capital city, Moroccan officials said.

Saudi Arabian Ambassador Badreddine Snoussi and the king's brother, Prince Moulay Abdallah, were injured, the officials said. U.S. Ambassador Stuart W. Rockwell also was at the palace during the coup attempt but was unhurt.

Hassan told the North African nation of 15 million over state-run Rabat Radio the attempted assassination and coup involved 1,400 men and was led by the director of the army training college, Gen. Mesbouh. "The rest of the army remains loyal," he said.

There was no immediate word on the fate of the rebels. Hassan said the coup was crushed by forces loyal to him.

Hassan said he invested all civil and military powers with Interior Minister Gen. Mohamed Outkir, who announced shortly before midnight, "the situation all over the provinces of the kingdom is calm.

"King Hassan II, supreme chief of state and of the royal armed forces, holds the reins of power with the clairvoyance and wisdom that have always characterized his attitude towards his people," Oufkir said.

The king earlier told a French radio station he suspected the rebels had foreign support.

"I know the Libyan government had not stopped appealing to the Moroccan people to join the mutineers —I call them mutineers and not rebels —so there are political ramifications behind this," Hassan said.

The official Moroccan news agency said several officers at the academy persuaded their troops to go to the Skirat palace 10 miles south of Rabat, because the king's life was in danger.

The officers—who were trying to overthrow the king—burst into the reception and began firing at Hassan when some 30 truckloads of soldiers arrived at the palace, the agency said.

In the confusion that followed, the soldiers realized what was happening and "pledged their loyalty to the king," the news agency said. Witnesses said the officers fled in army jeeps.

Loyalist troops recaptured Rabat Radio from the rebels who had held it for six hours and had announced, "The king is dead; long live the republic." The radio abruptly went off the air after two hours of martial music and similar pronouncements.

Army troops in full battle dress and units of the royal Moroccan police in armored cars patrolled Rabat and guarded key installations. There were no reports of fighting in the streets of the capital or in any other cities.

Rabat was calm and, as night came, colored lights strung to celebrate the annual youth festival, flicked on to give the city a curiously festive air. Only a token army force was in the streets by early Sunday.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, currently in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, on his 32-day round-the-world mission, was scheduled to visit Morocco for three days beginning July 25. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said there had been no decision on whether to cancel his Moroccan stop.

Pres. Thieu Orders Investigation Of Dzu

SAIGON (UPI) —Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzu, snubbed by President Nguyen Van Thieu who he had hoped would defend him against narcotics charges, flew back to his Central Highlands headquarters Saturday to await the outcome of an investigation.

Dzu, commander of Vietnam's Military Region II and considered South Vietnam's top field general, flew to Saigon Friday in an effort to meet personally with Thieu and seek his support against charges by Rep. Robert E. Steele, R-Conn., that Dzu headed a narcotics ring.

Steele repeated his accusation in a news conference Friday in New Haven, Conn., saying he had received "hard intelligence" about the matter while on a fact-finding trip in Southeast Asia and had turned the information over to U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and the South Vietnamese government.

Thieu refused to see Dzu but instead ordered the defense ministry to "make a deep investigation" of the charges to "collect concrete proof and to punish soldiers of any rank who are at fault."

The ministry issued a communique that said it did "not recognize the right of anyone to vilify "the Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN) by making accusation without proof in order to satisfy dark and immediate political needs."

Dzu then flew back to his headquarters at Pleiku, 230 miles northeast of Saigon.

Steele's charge was the latest in a series of allegations that Dzu was immersed in corruption since taking over command of troops in the Central Highlands 10 months ago.

Two letters signed by 27 field grade officers were sent to Thieu, Bunker and other top South Vietnamese and American officials two months ago charging that Dzu and his subordinates were responsible for stripping two former U.S. military installations in the Central Highlands of buildings and equipment worth an estimated $31.5 million.

Dzu has denied all charges and said they were part of a campaign to remove him as regional commander.

Murder Suspect Pleads Not Guilty To Charges

By GARY MIHOCES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Aubran W. "Buddy" Martin, a 22-year-old ex-laborer the state says was one of the hired gunmen in the killings of United Mine Workers leader Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter, has pleaded innocent to the murder charges.

Wearing sun glasses and a bright yellow shirt, Martin stood in the courtroom of Washington County Common Pleas Judge Charles G. Sweet Friday and replied "not guilty" after the indictment was read to himm

It was the same courtroom 2½ weeks ago that Claude E. Vealey, a co-defendant in the triple slaying, said that he, Martin and Paul E. Gilly, 37, killed the Yablonskis, carrying out a six-month plot that was financed by a man he identified only as "Tony."

The UMW has denied there is any connection between the plot and W. A. "Tony" Boyle who defeated Yablonski in the union's presidential election.

About two dozen heavily armed police and sheriff's deputies lined the halls of the small courtroom and deputy with a sawed off shotgun stood guard over the courtroom door.

Court officials said Martin's trial would begin sometime after Labor Day, but his attorneys said they plan to seek a change of venue.

When the trial begins, Vealey, the first of five defendants to be extradited here, is expected to be the prosecution's key witness.

House Okays Citation Of CBS

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The minority report from the House Commerce Committee, which is recommending citation of CBS for contempt of Congress, says the congressional probe of a controversial network documentary "smacks of inquisition, not inquiry."

The thirteen committee members who voted against a contempt citation spelled out their objections in a 38-page report. Twenty-five members voted to cite both CBS and its president, Frank Stanton, but the majority's formal report has not been issued.

A vote by the full House is expected Tuesday.

"The point is, the subpoena is not narrowed to the specific allegations respecting 'manipulative techniques,' 'rearrangement of the words of an individual,' or making one appear to 'deliver a statement which he did not in fact deliver'," the minority report said Friday.

They are directed at the whole process of editing and of selecting and rejecting," the 13 objectors said.

The network has refused to provide edited-out portions of its controversial, award-winning documentary, "The Selling of the Pentagon."

The minority report gave no judgement on the charges against CBS, but said if Congress really wanted to draw conclusions, it already has enough material to do so.

The real purpose of the congressional investigation, the report said, is to set government standards for a standard of truth.

"There is not only explicit constitutional prohibition but also a long history of court precedent that forbids restraints on how a newsman's judgement is exercised in the formation of a news report," the minority report said.

"Prying into his notebook after the fact or setting up formal guidelines prior to publication goes against the spirit of these guarantees."

The group said it feels the electronic media must be equally protected with newspapers and magazines by the First Amendment "if they are to provide the same essential, and sometimes painful, function of keeping the public involved in and aware of the workings of its society."

The broadcasting industry is a powerful and in many ways more concentrated industry than the print media, the report said, and decentralization may be appropriate for the broadcast industry.

Democrats Have Seven Possible Contenders

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) —With the 1972 Democratic National Convention opening just a year from Saturday, the Democrats find themselves with more potential candidates than they can afford and the Republican hierarchy sees mounting evidence of a challenge to President Nixon's nomination for re-election.

Seven possible Democratic candidates—including Sen. Fred R. Harris, Okla., as a last-minute addition to the guest list —have accepted invitations to a dinner conference Wednesday with Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien to talk about limits on their pre-convention spending.

O'Brien and other party leaders are worried that pre-nomination spending by a host of candidates will soak up funds from big contributors before the party mounts its national campaign in the fall of next year to wrest the White House from the GOP.

On the Republican side, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey announced Friday that he hoped to have a slate of delegates pledged to him in California's crucial presidential primary. It would oppose a slate headed by Gov. Ronald Reagan and pledged to Nixon.

McCloskey also said he would enter New Hampshire's March 7 primary, the nation's first, and as many others as he could finance. Twenty-two states now have laws permitting presidential primaries of various types and importance.

Administration officials and Republican party leaders have sought to dismiss the McCloskey candidacy on the ground that he is an antiwar candidate whose single issue will evaporate as U.S. troops are withdrawn from Indochina. McCloskey denied he would run a one-issue campaign.

Besides Harris, those who accepted invitations to O'Brien's dinner Wednesday are Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., the 1968 nominee against Nixon; Edmund S. Muskie, Maine, 1968 vice presidential nominee; George S. McGovern, S.D., now the only announced candidate; Birch Bayh, Ind.; Harold E. Hughes, Iowa, and Henry M. Jackson, Wash.

Speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield also will attend, although they are not prospective candidates.

The Democratic convention opens July 10 at Miami Beach, Fla. Republicans expect an unofficial decision on their convention city within a few days before the formal choice is made at a GOP National Committee meeting at Denver July 23-24.

Despite some problems involving hotel problems and work space, knowledgable Republicans regard San Diego, Calif., as the probable choice because it is favored by Nixon.

Congress Misled Says Ellsberg

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg, who says he gave newspapers secret Pentagon documents on the Vietnam war, has charged that then—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara misled Congress on the 1964 Gulf of Tonkin incident.

"He testified with far more certainty than the case justified," Ellsberg told newsmen Friday. "His testimony was highly misleading. He did give a very misleading impression of his conviction and the degree of evidence."

Ellsberg, an MIT researcher under federal indictment for unauthorized possession of classified documents, said a command and control study compiled after McNamara's testimony indicates far less certainty about what happened.

He said tape-recorded conversations between McNamara and senior military officers "revealed in some detail their state of uncertainty" of details.

After reported 1964 North Vietnamese torpedo attacks Aug. 2 and Aug. 4 on U.S. vessels, Congress passed the Gulf of Tonkin resolution authorizing President Lyndon B. Johnson to take steps to protect American lives in Southeast Asia.

In accounts published in The Washington Post and Evening Star, Ellsberg said Pentagon chiefs withheld some war information from McNamara until he was questioned about it by lawmakers.

Ellsberg said one study on the Gulf of Tonkin incident was deliberately withheld because "the Joint Chiefs of Staff didn't want the secretary to see it ... it had tapes of all the secretary's conversations overseas."

Ellsberg said he passed out copies of the secret Pentagon documents under the assumption he would go to prison, but is not so certain now he will be jailed.

Communist Missiles Fail To Hit Reconnaissance Jets

By KENNETH J. BRADDICK

SAIGON (UPI) —Communist gunners fired three missiles at an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet over North Vietnam Saturday, but escorting jet fighter-bombers did not strike back at the rocket sites. To the south, B52 bombers struck in five waves against Communist forces near Fire Base Fuller.

In Cambodia, a U.S. flying gunship machine-gunned positions of Communist troops who battled Cambodian soldiers in fresh fighting 15 miles north of the capital city of Phnom Penh.

U.S. military spokesmen said the reconnaissance aircraft was not hit by any of the missiles fired while it was over the coastal city of Dong Hoi, 45 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone that separates North and South Vietnam. They were the first missiles fired at a U.S. air force plane in almost two months.

Military sources said the reconnaissance aircraft was photographing North Vietnamese troop movements and supply dumps in the Dong Hoi area.

U.S. Command spokesmen said they did not know why there was no immediate "protective reaction" strike by American jets riding shotgun for the recon plane.

The escort jets are authorized to react if their electronic gear shows an anti-aircraft battery is zeroing in with its radar even before a missile is launched.

The last time missiles were fired at an American plane from North Vietnam was May 16. U.S. jets retaliated by attacking the missile sites the following day, bringing to well over 100 the number of such strikes since bombing of the north was halted in November 1968.

On the south side of the demilitarized buffer zone, six formations of B52 Stratofortresses dropped about 500 tons of bombs on Communist troop concentrations, bunker complexes and infiltration routes, spokesmen said.

Ground action in Vietnam was reported light. The biggest fight was in the U Minh forest at the southern tip of the country where South Vietnamese infantrymen killed 27 guerrillas and took one prisoner, they said. South Vietnamese casualties were put at eight killed and 19 wounded.

Revenues Below Prediction

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite a jump in revenue collections during June, North Carolina closed out the 1970-71 fiscal year with a general fund collection increase of only 9.44 per cent instead of the 11.19 per cent increase predicted two years ago.

Revenue Commissioner I. L. Clayton reported today that net general fund revenues for fiscal 1970-71, which ended June 30, were $922.8 million compared with $843.1 million for 1969-70, an increase of $79.7 million or 9.44 per cent.

The state's budget for the biennium was based on a prediction that revenues would increase by 11.19 per cent during the second year of the biennium.

In May the revenue growth for the first 11 months of the year looked even gloomier—8.25 per cent—because collections that month increased only 4.82 over May of the year before.

But Clayton predicted then that the collections would pick up in June because fewer income tax refunds would be paid out that month.

His report shows that general fund collections in June amounted to $55.1 million, compared with $41.6 million in June of 1970, an increase of 32.45 per cent.

Highway fund collections for the fiscal year were $309.5 million as compared with $290.6 million in fiscal 1969-70, an increase of 6.5 per cent. June net highway fund collections amounted to $27.3 million, compared with $25.2 million in the same month in 1970, an increase of 8.32 per cent.

Catch Bank Bandits; Hostage Tot Safe

BABY BEING RELEASED — Handcuffed robbery suspect hands 18-month-old Ann Marie Looney to police after a second suspect released the child but held her grandmother at gunpoint inside her St. Paul, Minn., home in background, Friday. (AP Wirephoto)

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A man fleeing police after a bank robbery held a woman and her young grandchild hostage in a St. Paul home and demanded air transportation to Algeria.

After five hours of waiting and negotiating Friday, the gunman surrendered and the two hostages were released unharmed.

The man had taken refuge in the house after a getaway vehicle wrecked.

Four gunmen held up the Western State bank and took an estimated $40,000. As they fled in an auto, they exchanged shots with police in front of the bank.

The car later was abandoned, the men commandeered a city panel truck from a work crew and they continued the high-speed flight which ended when the truck collided with a station wagon.

Another gun battle broke out and one gunman was wounded and taken into custody as the four men attempted to flee on foot.

A second bandit was captured at the rear of the house while the other two held Mrs. Arthur Schwartz and her 18-month-old granddaughter, Anne Marie Looney, at gunpoint inside.

Mrs. Schwartz was baby-sitting with the child, daughter Mr. and Mrs. Carl Looney of suburban Maplewood.

Police, sheriff's deputies, state highway patrolmen and FBI agents swarmed through the quiet, residential area of Minnesota's capital city and two helicopters hovered overhead with more officers.

Police said nearly all the loot was recovered, some of it picked up from the 1200 block of West Minnehaha Avenue, where the hostages were held.

One gunman, later identified by police as Warren Owens, 19, Kansas City, Mo., heeded calls to surrender after about 30 minutes.

Radio Station WLOL telephoned the home and the gunman said he wanted air transportation to Algeria.

"No deals," was the reply from Mayor Charles McCarty, who directed operations from the scene.

Owens returned to the house twice, with his hands handcuffed behind him, in a vain effort to persuade his companion to give up. The little girl was released on the second trip, in exchange for allowing a girlfriend of the remaining gunman to enter the house and talk.

Tobacco Production In N.C. Will See Decrease

RALEIGH (AP) — Production of tobacco is expected to be down 96 million pounds in North Carolina, a decrease of $75 million based on last year's prices, for the 1971 season as compared to last year.

However, farmers may make up for the loss by producing much more grain, including corn, than was produced last year.

This was the picture produced Friday by the season's first major forecasts released by the State Crop Reporting Service.

Flue-cured tobacco, the state's chief money crop, is forecast at 701 million pounds. A drop in both acreage and production had been expected inasmuch as marketings far exceeded effective quotas last season.

This year, the state's flue-cured plantings, at 347,000 acres, are down nearly 10 per cent. An indicated average yield of 2,019 pounds an acre is well below last year's 2,076 pounds but the third highest since adoption of acreage-poundage controls in 1965.

The U.S. flue-cured crop is forecast at 1,077 million pounds compared with 1,193 million produced in 1970.

Reports from North Carolina farmers indicate slightly less than 1.5 million acres of corn will be harvested for grain—11 per cent more than last season and the largest acreage since 1960.

Only 3 per cent of the state's corn crop this year has been planted with T-cytoplasm seed considered susceptible to Southern leaf blight. About 56 per cent was planted with N-cytoplasm seed believed resistant to blight, a fungus disease which caused widespread corn losses last season.

Concern about the corn blight problem caused Tar Heel farmers to plant large crops of small grains from which good yields are now expected.

Wheat production is forecast at 10,499,000 bushels, second only to the 1961 output. Oats are forecast at 6.8 million bushels, barley at 4.3 million bushels, and rye at 336,000 bushels.

Grain sorghum plantings for all purpose are estimated at 145,000 acres—the highest ever and more than double last year's crop. Most of the increase is in sorghum for grain but the acreage also includes silage and forage.

An 8 per cent increase appears likely for soybeans, compared to the 15 per cent increase in acreage predicted earlier. Peanut plantings will be about the same level as last year while cotton plantings are up by 12,000 acres from last year, to 185,000.

Two Wrecks Here Friday

Damages estimated at over $1,200 resulted here Friday from two traffic accidents investigated by city police.

Heaviest damage resulted, police reported, when a parked car, started by 10-year old Jesse Manett, 109 Raleigh Avenue, crashed into a house owned by Norwood Whithurst, 300B Tenth St., causing an estimated $150 damage to the house.

Police, who made no charges, placed damage for the Manett car at $900 in connection with the 4:50 p. m. mishap.

Vickie Goodson Lanning, 23, 43 University Townhouse, was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation by police of a 8:17 a. m. accident at the intersection of Tenth and Oak Streets.

Police identified driver of the second car involved as Mary Rose Dupont Griffin, 26, Rt. 3, Washington and set damage for her car at $65, while estimating that for the Lanning car as $145.

Funeral Home Burns

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — A funeral home owned by a city councilman-elect who disappeared this spring was gutted by fire early today.

Firemen say lightining may have started the blaze at White Funeral Home. The fire occurred during an electrical storm.

Jerry White, 30, the owner of the establishment, disappeared May 24 after indicating he was going on a business trip into Virginia. His station wagon was found submerged in Kerr Lake on the Virginia side June 10.

Police are still following leads in the case but have turned up no indication of White's whereabouts. He had been elected to the council only a few days previously.

The interior of the former residence occupied by the funeral home was gutted and its roof fell in during the fire. A passerby spotted the flames and notified firemen.

Workers saved an organ from the chapel of the frame structure, some records and furnishings, plus a few caskets.

Manager Hamlin N. Lloyd said he could not estimate the loss immediately.

Decision Appealed

GREENSBORO (AP) — The Orange County Board of Elections has filed notice of appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court from a decision which held that North Carolina's one-year residence requirement for voting in local elections is unconstitutional.

A federal three-judge panel returned the decision June 16 in the case of Thomas J. Andrews and his wife, Sally, of Chapel Hill. Andrews is an assistant professor at the University of North Carolina.

Notice of appeal from the decision was filed Friday in U.S. District Court in Greensboro.

Andrews and his wife filed their suit in U.S. District Court in April, saying they wanted to vote in Chapel Hill's May 4 municipal election. They said they had lived in Chapel Hill since last July 30, and contended the one-year residence requirement was in conflict with the U.S. Constitution.

The district court ordered that they be permitted to vote, but directed that their ballots be kept in sealed envelopes, separate from other ballots, and not counted until ,disposition of the case.

The decision in their favor by the three-judge panel permits the elections board to carry its appeal direct to the U.S. Supreme Court, by-passing the Circuit Court of Appeals.

'Quick Take' Right

RALEIGH (AP) — The House has approved and held for further action next week a bill providing a "one stop" method for public utilities to win state approval of sites for new power plants and transmission facilities.

The House voted 72-8 to pass the bill on second reading Friday after a lengthy discussion during which 14 amendments were adopted.

The bill would give the utility firms "quick take" authority to condemn land for their new facilities after they have obtained approval of the state Utilities Commission.

The commission would be required to take environmental effects into consideration in approving utility sites.

The House quickly adopted 13 amendments to the bill proposed by the House Judiciary 1 Committee, including the provisions for condemning land. The chairman of the committee, Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, said the changes favored landowners.

The House also approved an amendment by Rep. George Miller, D-Durham. It would permit judges to require power companies to pay reasonable fees to the attorneys of a landowner who contested in court the price put on his land by a power company in a condemnation proceeding. The bill also requires power companies to pay court costs in such proceedings.

Drunken Driving

CHARLOTTE (AP) — North Carolina Highway Commissioner Charles K. Maxwell, acquitted in March of drunken driving, was convicted on another drunken driving count Friday. His attorney gave notice of appeal.

Maxwell was fined $200 and courts costs and was ordered to give up his driver's license.

The Mecklenburg County resident, appointed by Gov. Bob Scott to the highway post, was tried in District Court before Judge Robert T. Gash of Brevard. Mecklenburg District Court chief Judge William H. Abernathy had asked for an out-of-town judge because "I wanted the public to know that we were trying to give the defendant and everyone else concerned a fair trial."

Maxwell would not comment on the trial or the verdict or his plans about his highway position. An aide to Scott said the governor's office had no comment.

Prosecution witnesses said Maxwell's car was weaving across the road on the night of June 1. The commissioner refused to take a Breath-alyzer test at the county jail, because, he said, he wanted an attorney present.

Maxwell testified he had 3½ drinks during the evening and that he had been taking medication for gout.

Wife Drowns

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — The wife of a member of President Nixon's staff drowned in the swimming pool of a Gastonia motel Friday. She was Mrs. John Merch, 44.

Merch works in the executive office at the White House.

Police said the Alexandria, Va., family stopped in Gastonia for the night while traveling to Athens, Ga., to visit Mrs. Merch's parents. After the accident the family, including a 16-year-old son and a younger daughter, went on to Georgia.

Merch said they were swimming before dinner and that he had to leave the pool for a moment. He said when he returned his son John, an Eagle Scout, was giving his mother artificial respiration.

Hospital officials said she drowned.

Drug Center Funded

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The National Institute of Mental Health announced Friday that it will provide a $96,000 grant to the Fayetteville Health Center to help deal with the growing drug problem among the civilian population of this Army-base city.

While the amount is below the $240,000 requested, local health officials said they believe it is enough to begin a program to combat drug abuse.

The federal money will be used to start a drug rehabilitation clinic, hire staff psychologists and place ex-users to work with addicts as counselors. The fund will also be used to provide in-patient beds, out-patient facilities for users and job placement services for rehabilitated users.

Until now, the only comprehensive drug rehabilitation program in the state has been for soldiers at nearby Fort Bragg. Mental health officials estimate that nearly 8,000 civilians in this general area are narcotics users.

Stormy Senate Session On Redistricting

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — The stage has been set for a stormy Senate battle next week on the issue of realigning Senate districts to conform with population shifts.

This was indicated Friday when a redistricting measure was adopted by the Senate Legislative Districts Committee in a series of close votes.

Despite strong protests from Sens. I. C. Crawford, D-Buncombe, and Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, the committee voted 8-6 to redraw the senate district map of Western North Carolina. The proposal differed sharply from a plan the committee approved two weeks ago.

That plan went to the Senate floor but was sent back to committee when some senators voiced objections that it was probably unconstitutional because of the population deviations between districts.

Before tackling the western area Friday, the committee voted 7-4 to approve a shift of Beaufort and Martin counties between districts in the far northeast corner of the state. Beaufort was placed in the new first district and Martin in the third.

The shift was proposed by Sen. Vernon White, D-Pitt, and strongly opposed by Sen. J. J. (Monk) Harrington, D-Bertie.

Sen. Bobby Lee Combs, D-Catawba, submitted the new proposal for the western part of the state and it was adopted at the urging of Sen. O'Neil Jones, D-Anson, chairman of a subcommittee which had recommended it earlier.

Jones said that adopting the new plan for the west is "the best guarantee we have to come out with a constitutional redistricting plan."

Population deviations would be reduced under the new plan from those in the bill which the committee approved earlier.

Rauch and Crawford told the committee that out of 10 senators in western North Carolina, only Combs wants the new plan.

"I don't think it is quite right for him (Combs) to tell us what we are going to have," said Crawford.

The new plan gives this lineup for senatorial districts in the western area.

—Cherokee, Graham, Clay, Macon, Swain, Jackson, Transylvania, Henderson, Polk, Haywood and Madison counties, two senators.

—Buncombe, Yancey and Rutherford counties two senators.

—Mitchell, Avery, Watauga, Caldwell, Wilkes, Yadkin and Alexander counties, two senators.

—McDowell, Burke, Cleveland and Gaston counties, three senators.

Catawba, Lincoln and Iredell counties, two senators.

—Rowan, Davidson and Davie counties, two senators.

The committee also rejected proposals by Sen. John Church, D-Vance, that (1) would have made a number of changes all the way from Vance County to the coast in the northeastern section and (2) a statewide plan that would have resulted in lower population deviations than the one approved.

Undermining Peace Chances

By MARTIN ZUCKER
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Saturday that Egyptian pressure on the United States is impending American military aid to Israel and undermining the chances for a negotiated Middle East settlement.

In a radio interview, Dayan also warned Western defense leaders to be more alert about the "clear breach of the balance of power" created by Soviet penetration into the Mediterranean area.

He said talk coming from Egypt indicates the possibility of renewed fighting in the second half of this year.

On relations among Egypt, America and Israel, Dayan contended that Cairo is receiving all the arms it requires from the Soviet Union whereas his country "does not have a regular flow of arms because of pressure exerted by Egypt on the U.S. not to supply warplanes to Israel."

The patch-eyed minister said the Egyptians want the United States to conduct negotiations with Israel and "they regard Washington as the lever for putting pressure on us."

However, he argued that in view of continuing Russian military aid to Cairo "such a situation prevents...the formation of any negotiation framework or even a partial agreement with Egypt."

Dayan said he hoped Washington would not give support to the Egyptian-Soviet diplomatic campaign because "without the participation of America an offensive of this sort will have no value."

Focusing on enlarged Soviet activity in the region, Dayan seemed to be chiding Atlantic Alliance—NATO—leaders for not allocating enough concern to this matter.

Soviet "expansionism" in the Mediterranean has become a problem of common interest to Israel and the Western world, he said.

"I find it unimaginable that those dealing with military issues in NATO do not perceive the new significance of Soviet consolidation here," he said.

Speaking about the possibility of renewed fighting, Dayan said Egypt "won't gain glory" by any military offensive but would be confronted by Israeli forces that have been significantly strengthened during the cease-fire.

Once Over Lightly

UNUSUAL FORMATION — The U.S. Navy Flight Demonstration Team, The Blue Angels, were featured at an air show at the Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station Saturday at part of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing's 30th birthday celebration. Here two of the Blue Angels made a pass down the Cherry Point flight line — one right-side up and the other up-side down — before several thousand persons who attended the celebration. The aerial display also included demonstrations of every type of aircraft used by the Second Marine Aircraft Wing, which has about 500 planes and 15,000 men in it's inventory. Clean-Rooms For Home Use

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI)— Dr. J. M. Schreyer, a Union Carbide scientist, has been invited to discuss the possible application of the ultra-clean room system for protection against radioactive fallout, bacterial and germ warfare and poisonous gases with the Office of Civil Defense in Washington, July 26.

Schreyer heads the chemistry development department of the Oak Ridge Y-12 plant. He will suggest the use of clean-room systems in homes, public buildings and fallout shelters as a means of protecting civilians outside a nuclear blast area.

The clean-room system is an area protected by absolute filters and an airflow system that provides numerous air changes per hour.

It was originally developed about ten years ago at an Atomic Energy Commission installation in New Mexico and has been modified in recent years at the Y-12 plant in Oak Ridge.

Such systems are being studied by medical authorities for use in hospital operating rooms, contagious disease wards and waiting and treatment rooms.

A number of firms are experimenting with methods of building prefabricated clean room modules.

Schreyer says that for civil defense purposes, the clean room could be operated on normal house current during normal times, and on a system of gasoline or diesel power in an emergency.

Its application ranges from reducing contagious diseases and respiratory problems in the home to cutting laundry bills and relieving the housewife of many cleaning chores.

Indochina War Sets Military Munitions Record Says Study

By JOHN HALL

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States has expended twice the amount of air munitions on the Indochina War as in World War II but aircraft losses have been only a sixth as great.

The war also has cost each man, woman and child in the United States an average of about $425.

The figures were published Saturday in a study prepared by the Library of Congress for the study Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the human and material costs of the war.

The library said 5,556,100 tons of bombs, rockets and shells have been dropped and fired from U.S. planes on Indochina. In World War II, it said, 2,160,110 tons of bombs were dropped by the United States. There are no data on World War II air munitions other than bombs, but the library said it was clear that the total for the Indochina War was twice as great.

American aircraft losses in Indochina through March 16 totaled 7,602, compared to 45,806 in World War II and 3,314 in Korea, the study said.

Ground munitions —mines, mortars, artillery, and small arms ammunition —totaled 5,759,933 tons in Indochina, twice the 2,111,116 tons used in Korea and more than the 3,942,756 tons of World War II.

Naval munitions for Indochina were estimated at 128,500 tons but no comparable figures were available for the earlier wars.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., the committee chairman, said the library's figures demonstrate the stark consequences of the war, but "there is no way of measuring the true cost of a shattered social structure, lost opportunities for development, persistent inflation, black marketeering, corruption and prostitution."

The study said the war has created more U.S. casualties than World War I and a third the U.S. dead and wounded or World War II; destroyed enough food for 600,000 people for one year by the use of six pounds of chemical herbicides for each person in Vietnam; inflated retail prices in Saigon by more than 700 per cent since 1965; created 285,000 South Vietnamese orphans and 131,000 war widows, and made refugees of 25 to 30 per cent of the South Vietnam's population.

'Save Face' With Offer

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF

WASHINGTON (UPI) — North Vietnam has been telling the United States through diplomatic channels that the latest Communist peace offer is a chance to "save face" rather than suffer humiliating defeat on the battlefield, administration sources said Saturday.

That word has been relayed to U.S. authorities by French and East European diplomats, apparently on the basis of their conversations with members of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks, these sources said.

This obvious attempt at goading the United States is counterbalanced, however, by an interview which North Vietnamese politburo member Le Duc Tho gave recently to the New York Times in Paris. The Le Duc Tho interview is regarded here as showing signs of flexibility and omitting many of the Communists' usual anti-American references.

Administration officials have found various ambiguities in the seven-point peace plan put forward July 1 by the chief Viet Cong delegate in Paris, Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh. Nonetheless, the proposals are definitely thought to be worth serious study and an eventual response.

As President Nixon reviewed the peace plan with his highest diplomatic advisers in San Clemente, Calif., the State Department held open the possibility that Henrz A. Kissinger, the President's chief assistant for national security affairs, might meet with Le Duc Tho in Paris on his way home from Saigon.

Kissinger was to have arrived in Paris Saturday, but his departure from Pakistan was delayed because of "a slight indisposition" described by one source as an intestinal upset.

State Department officials said they had no firm word whether a Kissinger meeting in Paris might be arranged. But if it is, it doubtless will be highly secret with a minimum of publicity to give Kissinger the best chance of assessing whether the Communists are willing to begin serious negotiations at last.

Officials here are mildly encouraged by some aspects of the Communist plan, notably a new formula that would separate the question of South Vietnam's political future from the military and humanitarian problems of a U.S. troop withdrawal and release of American prisoners of war.

McCloskey Says Nixon Can't Win

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rep. Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey Jr. says he is challenging President Nixon in the California and New Hampshire presidential primaries because Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew cannot win in 1972.

"I don't think they can be re-elected in 1972, regardless of the war," the California Republican and war critic told a news conference Friday.

"One reason I have no compunction about running is that they have no chance of being re-elected," he said.

McCloskey, 43-year-old Korean war hero in his second House term, said he will head a slate of 1972 Republican national convention delegates in California pledged to ending the Vietnam war "conditioned only upon return of the prisoners of war."

The GOP is dying under President Nixon's leadership, he told the Los Angeles news conference where he first announced he is running in the New Hampshire and California primaries and elsewhere if money and support develops.

In San Francisco, McCloskey declared: "The question of truth in government is more critical than the war."

"How can the people have any faith and trust in their government when it withholds half the information and charges the press with distorting the other half?" McCloskey asked.

A Western White House spokesman said the President had no comment.

Washington observers have assumed that the President would not enter primaries and would file formal disavowals if others entered his name.

Before McCloskey's news conference, however, a Nixon aide said the President very likely "will not abdicate if faced with a challenge."

McCoskey said his organization will work on a campaign to register young voters as Republicans.

"We can tell them that the Republican primary will give them their first chance to end this war," he said.

McCloskey finished his busy day with a two-hour appearance before the San Francisco Republican Alliance in a debate with James Halley, former state GOP chairman.

Halley called for support for bnixon's policies to "get us out of the war and to check inflation."

"I nominate you for media man of the year," Halley told McCloskey.

Replying, McCloskey said he didn't think the party should talk about personalities.

Louis Armstrong Service Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — Louis Armstrong has been eulogized and buried in services that shunned the high notes of the jazz funerals of New Orleans, where his celebrated trumpet was first heard.

Some 500 invited entertainers, dignitaries and friends packed the little Corona Congregational Church in Queens Friday to bid farewell to the greatest of jazz entertainers, who died Tuesday at the age of 71.

About 2,000 spectators—at windows, on rooftops and in the street—heard the service over loudspeakers.

"We know what must be taking place in Your Kingdom," said the Rev. William J. McManus, delivering the invocation, "for wherever he went in this world, there was jubilation."

Lucille Armstrong, who lived with her husband for the last 29 years in a simple home four blocks from the church, kept her composure throughout the 40-minute service.

Many musicians had offered to perform but Armstrong's family had insisted he be put to rest in quiet simplicity.

Peggy Lee sang "The Lord's Prayer" in a soft and solemn voice. Hugh Porter, a gospel singer, knelt near the coffin and sang "Just a Closer Walk With Thee." Blind entertainer Al Hibbler sang "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen."

Small crowes gathered along the route as the funeral procession traveled to nearby Flushing Cemetery. There, the rose-covered casket, bearing the gold nameplate inscribed with "Louis Armstrong" and his nickname "Satchmo," was lowered in the shade of a birch tree.

The burial service was disrupted by souvenir hunters who tore pieces of floral wreaths from the casket.

Defector Says Life Unbearable

LONDON (AP) — Soviet defector Anatoly Fedoseyev said today he quit Russia because life had become unbearable and "Sooner or later I would have finished up in prison or a concentration camp."

In an interview with David Floyd, Communist affairs correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, Fedoseyev laughed at reports his name was Nikitrine and that he could be compared in importance to American space expert Wernher von Braun.

"I want to make it clear that I have nothing to do with space projects and I am not a specialist on antiballistic missiles," he said.

A report in the Los Angeles Times two days ago said the Russian, who defected to the West at the Paris Air Show, was a top scientist providing vital intelligence on Soviet space and weapon technology.

It said he really was Ignatiev Nikitrine, 61, deputy director of the Soviet space program.

Floyd said he interviewed Fedoseyev at a hideout near London.

A Very Nice Temporary Park

Recently East Carolina University purchased from the Greenville Redevelopment Commission land along Reade Street from Fifth to First.

People who have been in Greenville for a number of years remember when this area was occupied by houses, most of them crowded together and many far blelow any decent living standards. Reade Street was a narrow dirt road a portion of the way and dwellings were perched along its sides high on the dirt embankment.

Once the Shore Drive redevelopment project was decided upon the Redevelopment Commission moved in and acquired the many tiny parcels of land. The dwellings, and the old high school which stood on Fifth Street, were demolished. Grading equipment changed the terrain. Then wide new streets and sidewalks and an up-to-date street lighting system were installed and grass was planted to stabilize the land.

The parcel of land which was purchased by ECU is now prime property and, of course, the university's plans are to eventually construct buildings there.

In the meantime, though, the land could be put to considerable use for both the university community and the people of Greenville. Using its grounds crews the university could do some strategic planting of shrubbery, flowers and a few trees on the property. The grass could be reseeded to give a beautiful blanket of green to the area. Some gravel walks could be installed and some park type benches scattered about. Temporary area lighting could be provided to make the place safe at night.

What we are suggesting is that a very nice temporary park area could be developed on the property for use by university students and townspeople pending use of the land for construction purposes. Since it could be several years before the land is used for buildings, perhaps it could be developed at relatively low cost for use by people, in the meantime.

We hope the idea is worth some study.

Would Assist The 'Outcasts'

By BRYAN HAISLIP

RALEIGH — A stopping place may yet be found for the revolving door drunk.

Not jail, but a place for treatment, said Rep. Hugh Campbell of Mecklenburg.

"These are the derelict drunks, the outcasts of society," said Campbell. "They are not criminals. They need help."

Legislation with that aim passed the House this week, with Campbell a principal floor leader in its behalf. It would wipe out the criminal offense of public drunkenness. Instead of routing such persons to jail and the courts, law enforcement officers would seek to direct them to treatment.

Friendly forces are in the Senate, where final disposition of the bill will be made. Senators Lamar Gudger of Buncombe and Tom Strickland of Wayne are working on their own version of a solution to the public drunk problem.

Outlook Is Hopeful

"I am very hopeful we can hammer out something which will do the job," said Strickland, chairman of the Correctional Institutions and Law Enforcement committee. With House Judiciary I, Strickland's committee held a joint public hearing on the legislation earlier in the session.

Standing in the way of enactment is the Bible Belt attitude that alcoholic overindulgence is a crime and should be punished as such, and the objection from some quarters that policemen shouldn't be made wet-nurses for drunks.

Coddling is no part of the approach, insisted Strickland. It is an attempt to get to the problems behind the problem, and see that proper treatment is available, he explained. Otherwise, he added the stream of chronic offenders will simply to continue through the jails and the courts.

Helping them will help the system. Presently, district court dockets get clogged with public drunkenness cases. The offense accounts for 31 per cent of all nontraffic arrests in the state, Campbell said.

A New Approach Spreads

The enlightened attitude towards the public drunk has spread in recent years, said Rep. Sam Johnson of Wake, one of the House bill's introducers. Many countries recognize no such offense as public drunkenness, he added.

"Whatever we are doing in this field now, we are not doing it very well," Johnson said, urging a new leaf for North Carolina.

The bill he sponsored was recommended by the Governor's Committee on Law and Justice, which said beneficial results would be substantial savings in money and time for law enforcement agencies, not to mention the rehabilitation possibilities for alcoholic offenders.

Public drunkenness as a crime would expire in North Carolina after January 1, 1972, under the bill as passed by the House. Of course, persons intoxicated in public still would be subject to arrest for offenses related to their condition — such as trespassing, disorderly conduct, resisting an officer, or others.

Home Instead of Jail

Police could send or take a drunk home, or to a city or county detoxification facility where one was available, or to jail for a period to sober up (24-hour maximum) without charging him with any crime. The person taken into custody while drunk in public twice in six months could be referred to a detoxification facility for up to five days to "dry out," be examined, and have treatment recommended to correct physical or psychological conditions.

Opponents of the bill, including some law enforcement officers, have complained it would increase rather than lessen their burdens, making officers baby-sitters for drunkards.

In fact, Campbell said, the procedure under the legislation is the one now followed in many instances. Police often take drunks home or to their lodging, rather than to jail, he said. He noted that the choice of destination — home or jail — would lie with police.

As in many matters, implementation of the law's full potential waits upon funding. Some communities have made a start with detoxification facilities, but an ideal situation is a long ways in the future.

A source of funds suggested by Rep. Campbell is ABC store profits. He pointed out that legislation pending would require local governments to allocate 10 per cent of such funds for alcoholic education and rehabilitation. This money could be used to establish and operate detoxification centers, he said.

State Policy Should Be To Preserve Island

Hopefully Gov. Scott's pronouncement that the state still intends to acquire Baldhead Island will end Legislative attempts to prohibit public acquisition of the area.

Gov. Scott said in an interview that his administration "has every intention of acquiring Bald Head Island... for public use."

The Senate has passed a bill which would prohibit the state's acquiring the island at the mouth of the Cape Fear River, but the bill has yet to pass the House.

Scott hinted at an alternate plan for acquiring the island, although he did not reveal details.

State policy should still be to maintain the island in its natural state. It is good to hear the reassurances from the governor.

Power Limits Newly Defined

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WARSAW — Although mixed with some skepticism, both Communist and nonparty leaders here now feel that the December crisis, far from heightening the danger of Soviet military intervention in Poland, served to set limits on Soviet power for the first time since the post-war construction of the Soviet empire.

Moreover, the view that the December crisis defined a new limitation on Soviet military power also has persuasive supporters among long-time Western experts here. In retrospect, then, the important lesson to be drawn from the workers' riots last December is not so much the danger of civil war and the toppling of the Gomulka regime, but rather that the December crisis found Moscow frightened by its own impotence.

When former party boss Wladyslaw Gomulka perceived both his party and his country crumbling around him on Dec. 14, his spontaneous reaction was to ask the Kremlin to intervene. Moscow's immediate response was a hard, flat no, followed by a strong message to the Polish politburo to immediately reverse Gomulka's mailed-fist strategy and adopt a conciliatory tone to the raging workers.

The Soviets, in short, took the private line to their party colleagues in Warsaw that the crisis was strictly a Polish crisis, having noting to do with the Russians.

But secretly, the Kremlin not only was frightened, it was agonizing over what to do. Reliable reports received here strongly hit that the Soviet general staff went into 24-hour-a-day meetings on Dec. 14, disappearing from all normal functions, as they figured the odds on military intervention.

When they learned that the Polish army chief had resigned his post rather than follow Gomulka's order to fire on the workers, the Soviet military leaders drew the correct conclusion: if they intervened, the Polish army might well resist, backed by the workers and most of the population.

Soviet intervention under those bleak conditions would require nothing less than Soviet occupation of the most homogeneous, nationalistic, and largest country within the Soviet bloc, an occupation in hostile territory which might well be resisted every inch of the way.

Poland, in short, is no Czechoslovakia. Moreover, the workers' riots in Poland were anti-government, not anti-party. There was not, as there had been in the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, a problem of doctrinal deviation inside the Communist party. Incredibly bad economic planning, not political revisionism, was the cause of the crisis.

"Hey, you can retire now, Gabriel! Here comes Satchmo!"

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Sunday Morning Notes

Louis Armstrong, the great entertainer who died last week, appeared in Greenville some years ago for a warehouse dance, but his last appearance here was Nov. 19. 1965, in Memorial Gym at East Carolina.

Dean of Student Affairs Rudolph Alexander recalled that over 3,200 students and others came to the concert in Memorial gym, the largest crowd ever to attend a concert there. (This was before the completion of Minges Coliseum.)

Armstrong was at his height at the time. He had just returned from a highly successful tour of Europe and his recording of "Hello, Dolly" was a hit, kindling an interest in the great trumpeteer among the young.

Not only did the students attend but their parents came from miles around to hear the man who had dominated jazz for so many years. The audience went wild.

Alexander said he and others talked to Armstrong after the show. "He had won all the acclaim. Yet, he was so eager to please this audience.

"He was one of the most humble entertainers I ever met," Alexander concluded.

As has been proven so often before, the great ones have no need to be pompous.

In my army days the little white ice cream truck with the dingling bell used to find we trainees wherever we went at Ft. Belvoir, Va. Even on bivouac in December with temperatures at zero the truck would show up and do a thriving business.

At that time I formed the impression that the men who

Athletic Costs Rise

(The Raleigh Times)

It is impossible to avoid wondering whether today's big-time intercollegiate athletics is a business run primarily for the entertainment of alumni and other off - campus interestes or as a part of college life of the student body. The truth of the matter is that it is probably a combination of both, with the alumni and off - campus groups putting up the scholarship money needed to bring in the big - time athletes needed for successful teams today.

The really big part played by the off - campus sports fans has been outlined in a recent series in The News and Observer detailing the fund - raising efforts of N. C. State's Wolfpack Club, Carolina's Education Foundation, and similar outfits at Wake Forest and Duke. The size of the effort can be seen in the fact that the Wolfpack Club raised $173,412 in Wake County alone for athletic scholarships during the coming college year. Even on today's inflated market, that is a large sum of money, and if the legislature should enact the law doubling tuition charged out of state students, the scholarship fund will need every penny of it, since so many of the star athletes are imports from out of state.

Whether the constantly growing importance of off - campus financial support will continue to be a healthy one can't be determined now. The only thing which seems certain is that more and more money will be needed each year for the campuses which want to keep on winning. Competition for the better athletes is keener each year and, competition for the sports dollar is becoming greater each year, and the team which doesn't win consistently will find its support lagging. Lagging support means fewer scholarship dollars, and that will mean more losses, and more losses will mean smaller ticket sales revenue. It is an ever - widening circle, and an increasingly frustrating one.

Many leaders in the sports field are worrying more and more about the constantly increasing costs of intercollegiate athletics. Some of them are even talking about some of the steps which could be taken to cut those costs, such as reducing the number of scholarships allowed. So far, though, the worry has produced chiefly talk.

But, before too much longer, there will have to be more than talk if the costs of big - time athletics isn't to get completely out of hand.

Castle Sales Slow

By HOWARD A. TYNER

WACKERSTEIN, Germany (UPI)—Interested in buying a 500-year-old walled fortress, bristling with turrets and capped by a watch tower, all once the property of Nazi chieftain Hermann Goering?

How about a less ambitious 16th century fortified retreat in the pine forests of Swabia, suitable, its owner says, for conversion into a small country inn?

Or perhaps the rambling warren of high-ceiling rooms that is the castle here in Wackerstein, a muddy riverside community near Munich where Bavarian princes as early as 1300 came to lord over the fast-flowing Danube?

Any of these can be yours. All it takes is the yen to own a castle in Bavaria and, of course, money.

That's not as tall a proposition as it might sound. With taxes and maintenance costs skyrocketing in recent years, the real estate market in Germany's biggest and bestknown state has been flooded with castles.

As one disenchanted owner put it, "for what it costs to keep this place up, I could hire Liz Taylor as a serving maid."

The Bavarian government, eager to help, publishes pariodically the names of dozens of castles up for sale.

Prices on one recent list ranged from 40,000-mark ($11,000) bargains to 1 million mark ($270,000 dollar) extravaganzas. But there does not seem to be any rush on the market.

"There are virtually no buyers at all," lamented Dr. Werner Meyer of the Office for Historical Monuments in Munich. "Renovation of these places can run as high as 50,000 marks ($13,500)."

No help seems forthcoming from the government, either, since Bavaria already is amply supplied with publicly-owned castles. Old fortresses are so common here that the state doesn't even have the usual law forbidding demolition of such relics.

Not every castle owner, however, thinks his investment need be a loss.

One such optimist is Hans Haupt, a short, square-shouldered retired businessman who bought Castle Wackerstein in 1958 as his "retreat."

On a chilly morning recently Haupt sat at a high wooden table in the sitting room of his "house" and scoffed at the economies of castle living.

"Renovation? Foolishness," he spluttered. "Buy a good castle and you need none. To own and keep up a place like this costs no more than for a large villa."

To emphasize his point, he led a whirlwind tour of the castle—down echoing hallways with thick wooden floors, through rooms fitted with what looked like indestructible oak furniture, under stout tiled eaves and finally into a thickwalled cellar.

"Look at that foundation," he said. "Those walls are five feet thick. How do you renovate them?"

Haupt returned to the sitting room where he produced a four-page pedigree for his castle, dating back to the year 903.

"It will be here for another 900 years, too. It's a good castle," he added.

Foreign Imports Swell Jobless

By ELMER ROESSNER

Our foreign trade is in a mess. Inflation and high wages in the United States are enabling foreign nations to flood the country with products made with cheap labor. This is causing the shutdown of many American plants; it is throwing many Americans out of work.

Last week Japan put into effect a voluntary restraint plan to limit exports to the U.S. This was not done in all friendliness. It has two purposes: 1, to head off high tariffs or quotas that would limit Japanese imports and, 2, to gain senatorial approval for the treaty returning Okinawa to Japan. Southern Senators have been threatening a filibuster against the treaty on behalf of textile manufacturers in their home states.

Meanwhile, Taiwan, Korea, Hong Kong, Mexico and Caribbean nations are pouring in textiles at prices under American costs. Much of them are made by American companies with factories abroad.

Others Act Under Pressure

The United States is using diplomatic pressure to force other nations to limit shipments here of textiles. David M. Kennedy, former Secretary of the Treasury under Mr. Nixon, headed a delation that has asked Hong Kong, Taiwan and South Korea to limit its textile exports to U.S. The delegation got no warm reception, but it may gain some later. Italy has agreed to limit textile exports in view of threats by the U.S.

In one of the most amazing job-transfers, Keyboard Training Inc., has entered into a partnership with a Korean firm to establish a data processing service in Seoul for American and other foreign corporations. Raw material will be flown from the United States and fed into computer tapes by trained, English-speaking Koreans, and the tapes flown back for use. Korea Keyboard Ltd. boasts 100 operators who can produce tapes in any code, and 100 keyboards.

The auto situation is familiar to everyone. The importation of foreign cars, nearing a million a year, has cost the United Autoworkers and other unions half a million jobs.

Piano making has died in America. Japan can make fine pianos cheaper, even after paying ocean freight. Shoes pour in from Europe and Asia at half American prices.

Tariff Commission Acts

The Tariff Commission, which has power to limit imports or to increase tariffs, has proposed a ban on Italian auto parts and is studying imports on pig iron, dinnerware, and a number of other products.

The Senate Finance Committee has voted 9 to 3 for a bill that would limit imports of foreign candy to 5 per cent of domestic consumption.

A large part, perhaps 50 per cent, of American electronics equipment, ranging from transistors to television sets are made in Japan and other Asian countries.

Under the law, when the Labor Department certifies that any significant number of Americans lose their jobs because of foreign competition, the Department can provide training in new occupations and provide support during the training period. Labor complains that this system is tough on older workers.

In addition, American industries charge that foreign nations have raised barriers against American goods. The Common Market gives preference to products of other members; Japan has a long list of import restrictions; other nations restrict Japanese goods, forcing the Japanese to dump them on the U.S. market, and even Canada fails to drop restrictions on autos in accordance with its free-trade agreement with the U.S.

Strength For Today

FOREVER

The word "immorality" is a word more often attached to Greek philosophers than to the teachings of the Bible. In fact, this word "immorality" occurs only three times in the Bible — twice in the Apostle Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians and once in the Epistle to Timothy (I Timothy 6:16).

This does not mean that the people who wrote the Bible (both Old Testament and New) were interested in something more significant than immorality. It was the belief of Old Testament historians, Psalmists and Prophets that immortality was intended by God to be the lot of good men and women. It only means that for the Christian at least resurrection of the body and life everlasting in the resurrected state was a matter of supreme importance.

Shall we live forever? That is the contention of Greek scholars (such as Plato and Socrates) and practically of all those whose writings appear in the Bible. Immortality (an existence going on eternally) was the hope of Jews and Gentiles alike. However, when the Christians took over, as it were, they emphasized the resurrection of the body and eternal life in heaven. It was Christ who made all this possible, according to Christian belief.

The Greek philosophers were wonderful persons whose lives shine brightly on the pages of history. But the twelve Apostles, the converts they were making every day, the hope they had of Jesus Christ with his power taking over the affairs of the world — these were of primary importance. We Christians believe that Christ will eventually take over the affairs of this world and reign forever and ever.

Observations From Editorial Columns

AN APPRECIATION OF THE TREE

Forest management, tree growth and harvesting take on new dimension through the remarkable cyclical prosesses which take from the earth while at the same time creating environmental and economic benefits.

Only solar energy is required for the growth of trees—plus carbon dioxide and other pollutants they absorb from the air.

Every acre of trees, the Southern Forest Products Association points out, supplies enough oxygen to meet the needs of 18 people while making four additional tons of wood, each year.

What is, after all, more beautiful and necessary than a forest of trees and the freshness of the air around them? —Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times

THE MELODY LINGERS OFF

The phone rings. You answer, giving your name. The next sound you hear is the singing of "Happy birthday to you."

Such was the tuneful surprise of the singing telegram. We say "was" because anyone who hasn't had the experience will never have it. Western Union is discountinuing the singing telegram.

It was a novel addition to the ways of brightening anniversaries. Evidently, the novelty did not attract enough paying customers. So the singing telegram, like other goods and services enjoying insufficient demand, passes into the shadows of history. —Miami (Fla.) Herald

FOR YOUR INFORMATION

It's an embarrassing thing — most people have experienced it—to encounter someone you should know and not remember his or her name.

Well in advance of the season for such, the Weather authorities have listed the names, alphabetically, of any hurricanes to occur this year. They are, Arlene, Beth, Chloe, Doria, Edith, Fern, Ginger, Heidi, Irene, Janice, Kristy, Laura, Margo...et al., and the hope is that any line of succession will not extend beyond that.

The Banner publishes this list strictly in the hope of sparing you the embarrassment of meeting a hurricane and not knowing her name. —Nashville (Tenn.) Banner

DIRTY POOL

The U.S. government is playing dirty pool. What one department has proposed and sanctioned for supplementary news services another department is attacking as illegal.

When the Federal Communications Commission agreed to the elimination of special press rates for hourly service by AT & T, the Commission suggested a sharing of the transmission lines which then had to be leased for 24-hour periods. The Department of Justice is now attacking the wire-sharing concept and a joint sales arrangement between two supplemental wire services.

The Justice Department tried to destroy the joint publishing arrangements of newspapers in 22 cities. The FCC is currently trying to force newspapers to divest themselves of broadcasting properties. Every time these two government bureaucracies chalk up their cues they try to put the newspaper business behind the eight ball. —Editor & Publisher

POLITICAL CANDOR OF A RARE TYPE

What is so rare as a day in June? For one thing, the politician who doesn't forever see himself as the people's choice. Ask the typical candidate why he's seeking public office, and he'll modestly assure you it's only because he couldn't say "no" to popular demand. "Too many of my friends were urging me to run," he'll tell you with a perfectly straight face.

Theodore L. Sendak, the Republican attorney general of Indiana, is the exception that proves the rule. He was asked at a press conference the other day if he plans to seek reelection next year. He replied with a candor that must have stunned the newsmen: "I am holding my fingers up to the wind. I don't see any droves of people asking me..." He went on to explain that he was "taking surveys to see...if there's any possibility of winning and how good the possibilities are."

Douse you lantern, Diogenes, and take a rest. That honest man you've been searching for so long has been found! — Louisville (Ky.) Times

Public Forum

(Letters submitted for public forum must be limited to 300 words)

To the editor:

How helpful Thomas Paine's Common Sense, published nearly two hundred years ago, seems to us today. His purpose in the pamphlet was "to awaken us from fatal and unmanly slumbers." The basic problem he identified was control by Great Britain. He argued this point using clear concise terms and "common sense." Thus, his method seems as valuable as his purpose. Is this simple expression of thought lacking in our present communication?

The Supreme Court recently ruled that newspapers may print the Pentagon Papers. The First Amendment provides this privilege. Consequently any and all information may be revealed to the public, regardless of its importance to national security. But wait! What is "free" speech? Is it candid, unlimited, or unconcerned speech? Without a clear explanation of the desired meaning, one confuses rather than explains by using abstract words. This confusion is one consequence of the role of abstract words in our communication today.

"Good, bad, beautiful, artistic," and many other indefinite terms may illustrate a valid opinion or fact if the user will select his words carefully. "That is a beautiful dress" is obviously inferior to "the beauty of that dress lies in its effective color coordination and stylish appearance." Moreover, "direct debasing stimulus" represents more meaning that "redeeming social value" in distinguishing pornography from non-pornography, a confused point in several court cases.

In his Literary Ethics Emerson stated, "Nothing is more simple than greatness; indeed to be simple is to be great." We all should agree that simplicity does not characterize the seventies. If we understnad that our own complexities add worth to Emerson's words, we comprehend the purpose of this writer. If being simple is beign great, then being great is being understood — not by one but by all.

Sometimes Better To Buck Conventional Wisdom

By J. J. KILPATRICK

It must occur to most of us in the pundit business, from time to time, that one of the most useful services we might perform lies in occasionally standing against the conventional wisdom. When we are told that "everyone knows" such-and-such, we ought to inquire, "sez who?" And when we ourselves begin to parrot particular statements, in the fashion of sedulous apes, we ought to pause to reflect.

Half a dozen unrelated incidents impel such reflection today. Let me hop, skip and jump from President Buchanan to barbiturates to DDT and, if space permits, to pronography. Each of them offers an example of the pundits' disease known as the Black Panther syndrome.

The affliction is so identified as a result of a contagious impression that spread a couple of years ago. All of a sudden it became a fact, requiring no attribution, that "28 Black Panthers have been slain by police." The statement appeared everywhere. One or two of us complained that it wasn't so, but the malady lingered until the New Yorker exploded the falsehood in a brilliant piece of reporting last winter.

Very well. When political noses were counted on election night, 1968, it appeared that Nixon had won the White House, but that the Democrats would control both houses of Congress. Almost immediately, the word spread that Nixon "would be the first President since Buchanan to enter office against a wholly hostile Congress." As months passed, the statement became entrenched in our political wisdom. I used it, without a second thought, in a column a couple of weeks ago.

The column produced a long, pained, and scholarly letter from a historian in the Midwest. One inferred he has been busy for the past 19 months sending his Xeroxed tabulations to sinners in the school of "the first President since Buchanan." Well, it wasn't Buchanan. Apparently it was Fillmore, the Whig, in 1849, who took office with the Democrats in control of both House and Senate. So much for Buchanan.

Let me leap to something else that "everyone knows." For the past five or six years, whenever a feature writer has put his hand to the topic of depressant and stimulant drugs, we have been sobered by the statement that "half the legal production of these products winds up in illicit channels." It is not just feature writers. In his recent message on drug control, Nixon himself passed on the estimate, giving it presidential benediction, that "some 50 percent of the amphetamines and barbiturates were diverted last year into illegal sales."

It simply isn't so. At hand is a copy of a letter written by John E. Ingersoll on May 26. Ingersoll is director of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. If he doesn't know this score, no one does. He writes that the Bureau "does not support the frequently expressed contention that 50 percent of the legal U. S. production . . . is diverted to illicit channels." The Bureau's own estimate, based on a 1967 survey, is that "approximately 20 percent of the amphetamines and 3 percent of the barbiturates produced that year were not accounted for by legitimate medical usage."

This next is more a matter of opinion than of fact, but it falls within the syndrome. Since Rachel Carson's "Silent Spring," everyone has known that DDT is dreadful. Right? The pesticide has been universally condemned. I have done my part in condemning it.

But the mail brings a copy of an address delivered in March by Dr. Philip Handler, president of the prestigious National Academy of Sciences, in which he sharply challenges this conventional wisdom. DDT, he asserts, as yet has done "no harm to humans, and the tales of damage to fish and bird life appear to have been woefully exaggerated." The mail also brings 335 pages of supporting documentation, compiled by the DDT manufacturers, in the form of statements from a dozen top-ranking scientists. They make a persuasive argument that, in this instance, what "everyone knows" is wrong.

All I had intended to say on pornography was that, contrary to recurring press reports (see Parade Magazine for July 4), the Commission on Obscenity and Pornography was not "Nixon's own commission." It was Lyndon Johnson's. But never mind. Ben Jonson once observed that "next to truth, a confirmed error does well." The point is that truth, if only we seek it out, does even better.

'TRYING TO TAKE OUR LIVELIHOOD AWAY!'

Officials Ponder Shift In Red Peace Offensive; Now Opposes Only Thieu

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say the Nixon administration is pondering the significance of a surprise new shift in the latest peace offensive launched by Vietnamese Communist leaders.

The shift is in the form of a demand for the ouster of only President Nguyen Van Thieu from any future South Vietnamese government ready to negotiate an end of the war.

Previously North Vietnamese and Viet Cong leaders had insisted that not only Thieu, but Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and Prime Minister Tran Thien Khiem, as well, would be unacceptable in a post-war government.

"For years Communist delegates at the Paris peace talks have been calling for removal of the 'Thieu-Ky-Khiem clique,'" one diplomatic informant said. "They practically pronounced 'Thieu-Ky-Khiem' as one word. Now they've begun speaking only of Thieu."

The shift in the Communist position emerged after Madame Nguyen Thi Binh presented the Viet Cong's latest peace package at the Paris conference July 1. The proposal was for release of all prisoners held by the Communists in the North and South by the year's end, concurrent with withdrawal of all U.S. troops. Her precise words:

"The U.S. government must really respect the South Vietnam people's rights to self determination, put an end to its interference in the internal affairs of South Vietnam, cease backing the bellicose group headed by Nguyen Van Thieu at present in office in Saigon, and stop all maneuvers, including tricks on elections, aimed at maintaining the puppet Nguyen Van Teieu."

Five days later Le Duc Tho, senior North Vietnamese representative in Paris, endorsed Madame Binh's proposal and in an interview with the New York Times hammered away at Thieu—and Thieu only. He said in part:

"Although it is not admitted ... the whole world knows that Thieu has been put in power by the U.S. administration. And the United States will have the decisive voice in the forthcoming elections.

"Therefore if Mr. Nixon is really disposed to settle the whole problem of the war ... the question of change of the ruling group now in office in Saigon—headed by Thieu—is in the power of the United States ... The forthcoming election in South Vietnam is an opportunity for Mr. Nixon to change Thieu."

Authoities in the State Department have no doubt this subtle Communist move has significance. But just how much significance will be known only when some frank face-to-face talking begins between negotiators for the two sides.

But meantime, several interpretations have been offered by administration experts as to motives of the Vietnamese Communists in changing their position:

—An effort to isolate inflexible Thieu who, in the 1967 election, won 35 per cent of the votes.

—A bid to deepen the already considerable split between Thieu and Vice-President Ky who, in the past, has boasted of his Northern origins.

—An attempt to advance the prospects of neutralist Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh who led the 1963 coup that ousted President Ngo Dinh Diem. Ky and Minh are opposing Thieu in the October elections.

—A signal to President Nixon that if only he would arrange for Thieu's electoral defeat, there would be a basis for an acceptable negotiated settlement. In this context Le Duc Tho was explicit in asserting his belief Nixon could, if he chooses, do just that.

Diplomats from those countries with troops in South Vietnam, speaking privately, seemed agreed on one thing: that for Hanoi as well as for Washington the Oct. 3 South Vietnamese presidential election already has emerged as a focal point in the long search for a Vietnam peace.

operated those trucks were real super salesmen who would go anywhere to make a sale.

Even that, though, doesn't explain the white panel truck which was in Bethel one day last week. "Ice Cream was neatly lettered across each side. That might not be so unusual except that the truck carried California license plates.

"How are things going?" I asked the proprietor of a local lunch counter, one day last week.

"Terrible," he answered. "Our deep fat fryer is broken down, and in our fried food orientd society, that's a castrophe."

It was to prevent a bloodbath, whose repercussions would gravely damage the party, that led Moscow to counsel a conciliatory approach to the workers. But even with that, the Polish Communist party, disorganized and atrophied at the top after 14 years of Gomulka, barely ratified Gomulka's replacement by pragmatic Edward Gierek in the crucial Dec. 20 politburo vote.

Evidence of just how deep the Soviet interest was to prevent continuation of the Gomulka regime, or its replacement by an even harder-line party boss, is abundant. Thus, had the vote gone against Gierek on Dec. 20, the Gierek faction (with full Soviet backing) would have called a meeting of the 125-member central committee to overturn the politburo. Had that failed, a full-dress party conference would have been summoned to install Gierek.

Moscow, in other words, was reduced to backstairs lobbying to prevent the December crisis from escalating beyond control. The Kremlin was a horrified spectator, not a principal actor in that tragic and heroic December drama. The possibility of military intervention was circumscribed not only by the question of the Polish army's "loyalty" but also by the fact that intervention would have been a dagger in the heart of the Soviet campaign for central European detente, a campaign intimately connected with the dangerous Soviet-Chinese border dispute on the Soviets' Eastern frontier.

Hence the new limitation on Soviet power within the Communist bloc. Preventing any recurrence of a genuine workers' uprising here must now be a major Soviet objective.

Rep. Jas. Ramsey Leads Field In Speaker's Race

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Who will be Speaker of the North Carolina House in the 1973 General Assembly?

That question will remain hazy for some time to come — but without doubt the leading candidate at this time is Rep. James E. Ramsey of Roxboro.

When this session of the legislature started, Ramsey and Rep. Dwight Quinn of Cabarrus were the leading contenders for the '73 Speakership. Quinn started off with the early lead but Ramsey's quiet campaign started winning some votes. Friends of Ramsey's say he has 64 of 96 Democrats in the House firmly committed to support him for Speaker.

But this is not a usual session of the General Assembly. For instance, some of those people who say they will support Ramsey in '73 will lose their seats to redistricting. Some others will be defeated next year. And still some others will retire.

So while it appears a good bet now that Ramsey will be the next Speaker of the House, he won't be able to rest easy about that until after the next general election.

The Tar Heel General Assembly will have many new faces among its members in 1973.

At last count Rep. Ike Andrews of Siler City had the names of 54 House members on a resolution to postpone the restructuring of higher education until the 1973 legislature. Andrews' resolution is similar to one Sen. John Burney pushed through the Upper Chamber with 28 names attached.

However, it is still highly possible that Governor Bob Scott will be able to get the legislature to deal with the situation in a special session around Nov. 1.

The race for lieutenant governor for 1972 has been considered wide open — but now that the legislature has made that position a full-time job with a $30,000 a year salary, you can look for plenty of fireworks in that race.

You can forget the suspense, what little there is left. Nick Galifiankis is running for the U.S. Senate... Isn't it amazing how politicians read public opinion polls? Some candidates thinking of running for this or that next year barely show up in certain polls but they're able to rationalize a ray of sunshine. When a man gets the fever to run, the only cure is to run — even if it means almost certain defeat.

I have no idea that he'd be interested in the job but many people in the legislature would like to see Sen. John Burney run for attorney general should Robert Morgan go elsewhere for his votes.

Hindsight Reminds Supreme Court Did Not Guarantee Free Press

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Without hindsight, man's lot would be poor, indeed. And even with it, finely honed, there is not guarantee against a lot of confusion before an event comes into anything approaching a clear focus.

So it is with the case of the "top secret" Pentagon papers on how the U.S. became involved in the Vietnam war. The way things are going it's a safe bet that more words are going to be used trying to get at the rights and wrongs of the incident that can be found in the papers themselves.

Some 10-days ago when the Supreme Court ruled that The New York Times and The Washington Post could go ahead and print the rest of the Pentagon account, there was a resounding cheer, especially from the press, and also from many who have simply had enough of the war.

The ruling was hailed as a "landmark" — a guide for the future. It had been a press-government confrontation over censorship. The press won, all in keeping with its constitutional guarantees.

Times publisher Arthur Ochs Sulzberger greeted the ruling with "complete joy and delight" and Post publisher Katharine Graham expressed herself as "extremely gratified."

But it was no more than a day or two before hindsight started taking over. The decision was no broad guarantee of a free press. It was narrow — restricted to the issue of one set of papers. And the individual remarks, from all nine Justices, raised a host of questions about the future.

The ruling itself was very simple. The Court found, 6-3, that the government failed to shoulder its "heavy burden" of proving that publication of the papers would endanger national security to an extent which would justify overriding the First Amendment guarantees.

The court limited itself to the question before it. It avoided language which might have given an "interpretation" to the scope of the freedom of the press clause. And in doing this, the Court left the door open to an entirely opposite ruling in some future case. In other words, there was no broad license giving the press freedom to publish whatever "secrets" might come its way, regardless.

Then, as if to season the pot with questions, each of the nine Justices had a few comments to make on their own. It is from the individual comments that Attorney General Mitchell first raised the possibility of criminal action in this case and action by Congress to protect "secrets" from the press.

That such a course is open to the government was actually commented on in five of the opinions — a court majority. In other words, the government is not limited in protecting "real" secrets by reliance on vague "inherent" powers of the Executive.

The law at hand for the protection of "secrets" in the field of national security is the Espionage Act. It was aimed, when enacted, as deterring spies and carries severe penalties. It has been used against spies, but never against the press. And it was this statute which some justices had in mind.

Justice White even went so far as to say that prosecution might serve as a deterrent "on the responsible as well as irresponsible press." Justice Stewart concurred with White in this. Both men had sided with the Times and Post in the case.

Certainly, the case gets down to an issue which is fundamental to law at all levels of government. Stated bluntly, this is the universal prohibition on stealing from others and trafficing in stolen goods.

Daniel Ellsberg has made no bones about the fact that he "leaked" the restricted documents, contrary to law. Thus, if the courts hold that Ellsberg, a former Pentagon employee, "stole" the documents in violation of law, then the question naturally arises as to the guilt or innocence of those who received the documents from him — The Times and Post employees.

It will be a long time before the issue is settled. But maybe the government will adopt a more open policy — maybe.

South Seas Paradise Losing Out To Bright Lights

SWAINS ISLAND — If ever the Biblical paradise of Eden truly existed, this lush atoll could easily have been it. Swains Island supports coconut trees, abundant fruits and year-around ideal weather. But the population is dwindling. (UPI Telephoto)

By ROBERT C. MILLER

SWAINS ISLAND (UPI)—The American dream of an idyllic South Seas paradise is an American reality on Swains Island.

But many islanders would rather live elsewhere.

Swains, also known as Olosenga Island, is the most isolated of America's possessions, lying 230 miles north of Samoa in the South Pacific. If you miss the boat to Swains, you wait another three months for the next one, or hire your own to make the rough trip from either Pago Pago or Apia.

Three miles long and about a mile wide, the lush atoll supports an estimated 80,000 coconut trees, tropical fruits in abundance and a soil rich enough to produce a deep jungle. The surrounding sea teems with fish, there's shellfish population on the reef, and a butchershop full of hams and bacons running around loose in the jungle where the domestic pigs run wild and grow fat.

There's also a chicken in every Swains Island pot, a year-round, 85-degree climate tempered by northeast trades, and only an occasional offcourse hurricane to mar the perfect climate.

But the population is down from 300 to only 62 and several of the present residents are considering leaving. Apparently 85's a case of too much paradise.

The lure of cannery jobs and bright lights in Pago Pago has enticed away most of the population, along with a chance to give their children a better education. Swains has a one-teacher grass hut school and a one-nurse grass hut hospital. But the Swains islanders know from their Los Angeles and Honolulu radio programs that there's a big, wide exciting world across the ocean, and more and more of them have been heading to the glitter and tinsel of "civilization."

The American flag first flew over Swains on May 13, 1925 when the Jennings family, owners of the island, asked that it be included in the Samoan protectorate.

One legend says Eli Hutchinson Jennings paid for the island in gin at the going rate of one bottle per square mile. Payment was supposedly received by a British sea captain named Turnbull who was living on Swains when Jennings arrived by sailboat on Oct. 13, 1856.

Eli told his children that he first saw Swains Island while aboard a whaler out of Sag Harbor, Long Island, and decided that was the place he wanted to live. He jumped ship in Apia, and a few months later returned to Swains with his Samoan princess bride, Malia, in her parents' sailboat.

The first thing Eli Jennings did was to Christianize the Tokelau natives who inhabited the island; then he put them to work planting more coconut trees and rendering the oil in big cast iron vats, some of which are still around the island.

Jennings created a patriarchy on the South Sea island that remains to this day. The present head of the clan is Eli's grandson, Wally, 44, a handsome, former Air Force officer who was educated in California, but prefers to live on the island. He moved out of the big, white frame house built by his father nearly 50 years ago in the center of the island and now lives at Taulanga village in an Airy, thatched roof house complete with refrigerator.

The Swain islanders harvest a few coconuts and the copra is shipped to Pago Pago by barge two or three times a year. The production of copra and manufacture of small handicrafts give the residents enough money to buy the few staples they require for themselves.

There is a tremendous copra potential on the island, but nobody bothers to harvest the nuts because of the difficulty in shipping them. All boats must anchor off the reef, and the only entrance is through a small opening blasted through the coral which Wally skillfully navigates in an aluminum outboard.

The government of American Samoa has noted the tourist possibilities of Swains, but the Jennings family has resisted all attempts to develop or change the island.

"It's difficult to get people to come here and work," Wally explained, "and then there is the problem of getting rid of the copra after it's ready for shipment. I suppose there are lots of improvements that could be made around here, but we wonder if they would make the people happier. We doubt it, and so for the time being, I think we'll just let things go along as they are."

You get the idea that "for the time being" could mean a long, long time.

Too Bountiful In Silk Program

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —In the middle 1800s California set out on a campaign to become a major silk producer —but the effort almost forced the state into bankruptcy. The state legislature authorized payment of $250 bounty for every plantation of mulberry trees, the only food for silkworms.

Three years later it was estimated there were 10 million mulberry trees in central and Southern California but little production of silk. The state revoked the bounty and the trees—along with the few silkworms there were —were allowed to die.

Pentagon Buys 500 Paperbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has ordered more than 500 paperback copies of a book called "The Pentagon Papers" based on the New York Times articles, a distributor for Bantam Books Inc. says.

The first shipment of the books was due here today, with not only Pentagon but Central Intelligence Agency orders among the first to be filled.

Justice Will Be 'Set Straight'

GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Justice is being set straight in Grand Forks, at a cost of about $500.

Lightning several years ago struck the figure of justice atop the dome of the county courthouse. The bolt jarred loose one of the plans from the lady's scale of justice.

Since then, justice in the county has been, symbolically, not only blind but slightly askew.

Environmentalists Today Aim At The British-French Concorde

By ROBERT BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON (UPI) —With the American supersonic airliner consigned to the scrap pile, environmentalists are taking aim at the British-French Concorde.

Already well into its test flight phase, the 1,400-mile-an-hour Concorde is scheduled to be delivered to airlines by 1975. In 1976 its builders predict that Concordes will be making 122 flights a week between Europe and the United States.

But this prediction is based on two assumptions: First, that the Concorde will prove to be an economical plane for airlines to operate; and second, that it will meet U.S. noise-control standards.

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) is expected shortly to issue a rule banning sonic boom-producing flights by supersonic airliners over U.S. territory. By fall, FAA will announce proposed rules on landing takeoff and sideline noise for airliners.

John Powers, acting director of the Office of Environmental Quality for the FAA, said the rules will be designed "to give citizens maximum protection" from noise.

But there is controversy between environmentalists and the FAA over what is "maximum protection."

Powers says the FAA is bound by congressional order to develop its rule on noise using two guidelines: The noise levels proposed must be technically feasible and economically practical.

"I don't think a noise rule is going to be developed that will ground the Concorde," Powers said. The British and French are even more optimistic about meeting American noise requirements.

Leo Schefer, a spokesman for British Aircraft Corporation, builders of the Concorde, says the 120-passenger plane is as quiet as any current four-engine jetliner. If the claim proves valid any proposed rule designed to bar the Concorde would also bar jumbo jetliners and the Boeing 707 and the DC8 from airports.

But Najeeb Halaby, president of Pan American, who has an option to buy eight Concordes, is not so sure the plane is ready for airline service. Halaby said this month he has "serious reservations" about the Concorde's noise problem and its economic viability. He suggested the airlines be given six months to test the plane before they buy it.

Six other U.S. airlines — United, American, Trans World, Eastern, Continental and Braniff —have options to buy Concordes at a cost of about $24 million each.

Most of the U.S. airline industry —which lost $175 million in 1970 —is showing only lukewarm interest in the Concorde. Trans World, with options to buy six Concordes, and Continental with options on three, have expressed public reservations about the plane's performance.

Other observers said attempts to downgrade the Concorde could be a bargaining ploy by airlines trying to get the best possible deal on the new planes.

Schefer says the British and French believe the Concorde will be able to meet any American airport noise standards. "If the standards are dropped sharply from the present standards, we would have a hard time, but we feel we can compete with any standards which would apply to four-engine subsonic jetliners," Schefer said.

In the background of the fight over the Concorde is the Soviet SST, the Tupelov 144. Like the Concorde, the Tupelov 144 is a 120-passenger, 1,400-mile-an-hour jet.

The Soviet plane was the star of the Paris Air Show last month and the British and the French concede it sounded quieter than the Concorde.

The Soviets, however, have made public no information about the Tupelov's landing, takeoff, or sonic boom noise.

Schefer says a ban on overland U.S. flights would not be a serious blow to the Concorde's economic value for an airline. The sonic boom rule is expected to be worded in a way that will prevent flights of supersonic planes which produce a boom that reaches the ground.

According to Schefer, the Concorde could fly at less than its top supersonic speed, and cross the United States without producing a sonic boom that would send shock waves to earth. Even at reduced speed, the Concorde still would "clip 40 to 50 minutes off the transcontinental flying time," Schefer said. At its top supersonic speed, the Concorde could fly from New York to Los Angeles in about three hours, half the present flying time.

A House commerce subcommittee is holding hearings on a bill sponsored by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., which would go beyond the proposed FAA rule and ban flights over U.S. territory by any airliner "capable" of supersonic speeds. That would preclude domestic use of Concordes at throttled-down speeds.

Oscar Bakke, associate FAA administrator, told the subcommittee it would be much better to handle the problem of sonic booms by FAA regulation than by legislation. He said a legal ban on landing of supersonic jets at U.S. airports might well lead to retaliatory action by SST-owning nations to ban landings by subsonic U.S. planes.

Found They Had Same Doctor

KANSAS CITY (AP) — On July 8, 1950, Dr. John T. Skinner assisted in the births of a boy and a girl 12 hours apart.

Seventeen years later, the boy and the girl, David Tebbe and Linda Yockey, met, introduced by a mutual friend. And four years after that they were married at the Armour Baptist church.

"We were not aware of the coincidence until I was looking at Linda's driver's license one day and saw our birthdays were in the same month," Tebbe said. "We began talking and found out we had the same doctor, hospital and birthday."

Skinner has been the family doctor for the Tebbes and th Yockeys more than 30 years.

Nathan Leopold, 66, Is Making New Public Debut

By MARGARET HYMAN

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)

The Hollywood film team had taken a lunch break and the subject of their documentary, a small, slow-voiced man with thinning hair, moved among the camera crew gathering up chicken bones for a dog named Brownie.

The man was Nathan Leopold. At the age of 66, he was making a new public debut after 13 years of studied obscurity.

"Nothing gives me more pleasure than to be introduced to someone to whom my name means nothing," Leopold said. This, he has discovered includes most of the younger generation.

There is still the other generation, however, which remembers the man who committed what was ballyhooed as "The Crime Of The Century" in the days when the century was still young and superlatives were a way of life.

On May 21, 1924, 19-year-old Nathan Leopold Jr., and 18-year-old Richard Leob, two brilliant upper-middle-class University of Chicago students, kidnaped and murdered 14-year-old Bobby Franks and left his body in a culvert of Chicago's South Side.

Saved From Suicide

The two youths were caught and sentenced to life plus 99 years in prison. They were saved from execution, and in Leopold's case from suicide as well, by the eloquence of their famous counsel, Clarence Darrow, who convinced both the jury and his young clients that death was not the solution. Loeb was murdered in prison in 1936.

The specter of publicity that surrounded the case has haunted Leopold ever since. He describes his departure from Illinois' Stateville Penitentiary in 1958 when he was paroled after serving more than 33 years: the car in which he was riding sped off at 90 miles an hour in an attempt to shake a pursuing caravan of newsmen, and the combination of unaccustomed freedom and speed was too much for Leopold, who had to have the car stopped periodically while he threw up.

Worked With Lepers

Today, a freedom-accustomed Leopold drives his own car at no mean speeds and grumbles mildly when the driver of the camera crew car following his cannot keep up.

When Leopold left Statesville, he sought anonymity at a little hospital operated by the Church of the Brethren in the remote central mountains of Puerto Rico. There he worked in the laboratory, using skills he had learned in prison when he had served as a human guinea pig for a U.S. government project to find a cure for malaria during World War II. He earned $10 a month plus room and board at the Castaner Hospital, until his income was supplemented by royalties from his bestseller, "Life Plus 99 Years," which relates his experiences in prison. The sequel to that book is now in the works.

Leopold's fondest Puerto Rican attachment still is to the Castaner Hospital, where he administers the Social Service Fund, but the Hollywood camera crew found an even more dramatic setting to show their subject on a typical job. They shot scenes at the island's 23-patient leprosy hospital, on the outskirts of metropolitan San Juan, where Leopold was once in charge of making case studies of leprosy sufferers for the University of Puerto Rico medical School.

Almost all of his jobs in Puerto Rico have been research projects for government departments, ranging from tracing the transmission of parasites in slum dwellers to studying the island's penal institutions to taking census of Puerto Rican parrots.

"Helping others has become my chief hobby. It is how I get my kicks," said Leopold, who rejects any suggestion that he has become a post-prison paragon.

More facets of the Leopold personality emerged as he sat in his San Juan apartment, perspiring under the kleig lights, and analyzed a life that, in balance, he judged to have been good.

The immaculate three-bedroom condominium apartment, with one of the bedrooms converted into an office, is a kind of museum of the lives of Leopold and his wife, Trudi, whom he married 10 years ago and who has refused to be cowed either by Leopold's strong personality or his intelligence (his I.Q. was once estimated to be around 200).

"I would say that, on the whole, I have had a good life, a satisfactory life," he said. "Even many parts of the prison years. How many people outside prison have time to pursue such purely non-remunerative subjects as Egyptian hieroglyphics and the theory of relativity? I did.

"And since my release, I have had the oppotunity to do many things which persons with a normal life never get to do. I've traveled extensively; I have worked only at jobs that really interest me."

Evidence of his point is the two-month European vacation he is planning this summer, after which he hopes the Church of the Brethren will find him an overseas assignment.

While he is one year beyond normal retirement age, a diabetic, and was, during the shooting of the film, just two weeks recovered from his second heart attack, Leopold does not talk of retirement.

Always Remembers Crime

He does talk, however, of where he might be today if he had not been caught in 1924.

He speculates that he would have attended Harvard Law School for his last two academic years, graduating in June, 1926.

"I had already been asked to join a prominent Chicago law firm in 1926. After I had spent a few years in the law office, my father's firm would have been large enough to require the full-time services of a corporation counsel. This was to have been my job."

He adds that he probably would have married and raised a family in Chicago "and lived out my days as a thoroughly respectable member of society."

Smokes Too Much

But he adds, "the memory and the enormity of the crime would never have left me."

The memory of the crime is one thing the real Leopold has in common with the hypothetical one.

"The crime is definitely still the central part of my consciousness. Very often it occupies the forefront of my attention and I can think of nothing else. More often, it is not in the center of my attention, but it is always present in the background."

The filming was over. Leopold walked slowly back to his car to drive home —a sick man who smokes too much, frays under the unaccustomed ordeal of a day of inspection by the eye of a camera, and is relieved to be able to return at last to his thoughts of the European trip and to talk about the favorite little restaurants he has found in Puerto Rico.

King Tut Upstaged By An Older Mummy

CHICAGO (UPI) —King Tut, in the 49th year of his reign among the mummies, may be displaced by an older corpse, and if so it will mark the second time in 3,000 years the boy pharoah has been upstaged.

The unearthing this year of a 5,000-year-old mummy in Egypt has been described as "historically and scientifically" more important than that of the Tutankhamen tomb.

That discovery, in 1922, caused a sensation around the world when the splendor of the tomb furnishings became known.

Mummification in various forms, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, has had a wide geographical distribution, but the Egyptians were unrivaled in creating elaborate graves. Among those who knew this were grave robbers. Time after time archaeologists unearthed tombs only to find that vandals had been there centuries before.

But the robbers had missed Tut's tomb.

Tut was but a teen-ager when he died, in 1352 B.C. At his death, his name was expunged from the canon of kings. Then, 200 years later, architects began excavating the tomb of Ramses VI. They chose a site just above that of Tut's tomb.

The workmen were ordered to throw their waste limestone chips down the slope, thus completely covering the earlier Pharoah's tomb. It remained hidden more than 3,000 years.

An expedition on Nov. 4, 1922, uncovered steps leading down to the tomb's entrance galley. For eight seasons diggers salvaged magnificent treasures from the tomb and placed nearly all of them in the National Museum in Cairo.

The body of the youthful Pharoah, inside a gold-wrought coffin, still lies in his beautiful stone sarcophagus in the burial chamber. His relics have been of incalculable value to archaeologists and have given the little king a fame far greater than his political significance could have brought him, even had he lived beyond his teens. —

Area Debutantes For 1971 Are Announced

Seven young ladies from Bethel, Greenville and Williamston will be introduced to North Carolina society on Sept. 10 at the annual Debutante Ball, which will be held in Raleigh.

They were interviewed about their expectations for their debut summer.

BETHEL — A future career in nursing is being planned by debutante Mary Kathryn Andrews.

"I have always loved working with children and have always wanted to do something to help them. I have been interested in nursing since my junior year in high school. One summer, I did volunteer work at the Bethel Clinic, which I will always remember, for I loved every minute," said Miss Andrews.

Miss Andrews, who attends St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh, is attending first session of summer school at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill taking courses in zoology and psychology.

"Both these courses will be attributed toward my major in nursing. Due to the excellent nursing school at Carolina, I plan to transfer there after finishing at St. Mary's. Because of these plans, I decided to attend summer school there. I felt it would be very worthwhile to take some of my courses they require at Carolina, to see how I liked it there and to become more familiar with the campus," she added.

"By attending summer school, I have now had the experience of going to both a large and small school and they are definitely different in their own way.

"I have seen the absence of closeness between students at a large school, which I have felt in a small one. A small school offers one the feeling of a family-type atmosphere, but a larger school also gives one a sense of independency for one is forced to rely more on himself than on others, which I feel is good. There are certainly good and bad traits to both and I am glad I have had the opportunity of experiencing each," added Miss Andrews.

The remainder of Miss Andrews' summer will be occupied with resting and enjoying the various functions of the deb activities. At the end of the month, she plans to visit friends with her family in Atlanta, Ga.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rushman Andrews Jr., N. Main Street, her father will be her chief marshal with Sidney Worth Dunn III of Greenville serving as her assistant.

Betty Blount

BETHEL — Miss Margaret Elizabeth Bount, daughter of Mr.and Mrs. Ferrell Leighton Blount Jr., has named her father as her chief marshal for the North Carolina Debutnate Ball.

Ben Everett will be her assistant marshal for the debutante weekend, which will be staged in Raleigh.

For her formal bow, Miss Blount will be wearing a white worsted silk A-line gown. The gown is designed with a square neckline outlined in seed pearls and iridescent beads, which form a panel down the front of the dress to the hemline.

Although a student at Stratford College, Danville, Va., Miss Blount is attending summer school for the first term at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"I decided to attend there for various reasons, the most prevalent being the desire to experience living and learning at a large university.

"There is difinitely a great difference between a small school and a large one. The thing that has effected me the most is the lack of communication between students at Chapel Hill. Stratford consists of only 560 students, therefore everyone has the opportunity to meet many new people and naturally we have a closely knit student body," she said.

Miss Blount is taking classes in psychology and health at UNC and says she enjoys them very much.

She is an accomplished horseback rider and the Blount family has trained and shown Tennessee walking horses for about 10 years, however, their horses were lost in a farn fire a year ago. Their riding now is limited to several pleasure horses. Miss Blount also enjoys tennis and water sports.

Miss Blount's cousin, Clyde Williams of Raleigh was the leader of the 1970 Debutante Ball.

After summer school, she will stay at Atlantic Beach with her family. "I'm looking forward to making my debut, because this will lead me to many new friendships," she added.

Ann Elliott

WILLIAMSTON — Miss Ann Lawrence Elliott of Williamston will make her debut into society Sept. 10 at the North Carolina Debutante Ball. Miss Elliot is the 19-year-old daughter of Mrs. Richard Dillard Elliot Jr., of 209 Halifax St.

"I'm very excited. I'm looking forward to the weekend of Sept. 10. I think it'll be fun to meet the other debs and I'm sure it will be an experience I'll never forget," said the rising St. Mary's sophomore.

Miss Elliott's chief marshal, Dr. J. Elliott Dixon, will present her at the ball Friday night. Dr. Dixon is the cousin of the debutante. Harry Mizelle Peel Jr. of Williamston will serve as her assistant marshal.

Miss Elliott, a graduate of Williamston High School, says that she is very happy at St. Mary's. She chose to attend St. Mary's because of her Episcopalian background and because her family wanted her to go there.

She is concentrating her attention on elementary education and hopes to teach children from the kindergarten to the third grade levels. She hopes to get a Master's Degree in guidance later. She notes that St. Mary's is in the process of "up-dating (their) curriculum and system for transfer students. It's really needed."

Presently Miss Elliott is attending the first session of summer school at East Carolina University and is taking courses in history and sociology.

Miss Elliott hopes to visit Germany in the future. Her sister, Mrs. Ronald Bruce Cerny will leave for Germany around the end of July. Miss Elliott's other sister, Mrs. Robert F. Epps III resides in Raleigh.

Concerning Governor Bob Scott's decision not to entertain the debutantes this year, Miss Elliott stated that, "I think he should not have let his personal affairs interfere because he's representing the state. I don't think he should have made so much of a to-do about it."

Patty Jenkins

Following in her sister's footsteps on Sept. 10 when she makes her formal bow to North Carolina society at the annual Debutante Ball will be Miss Patricia Ann Jenkins of Greenville.

Her sister, Suzanne, was presented at the 1968 ball.

Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins, 605 E. Fifth St., Miss Jenkins has named her father as chief marshal. A sophomore at Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, Phil Edwards of Washington will be her assistant marshal.

Miss Jenkins' debutante gown is styled of imported French white satin brocade designed by Lisa Meul of New York. The gown is highlighted by a bell skirt, straight neckline and low back.

She is filling part of her summer vacation with continued studying as she is attending the first session of summer school at East Carolina University. She also attends ECU during the regular term and is majoring in primary education.

"I have always liked children and being around them," she said when questioned about her choice of college majors. "I want to be qualified to help children progress."

She said that she wanted to attend the local university because of the very good Education Department. "There are also a lot of advantages in attending your hometown university — you know the history of the school, the operation and what the school will offer.

"On the other hand, some students might need to live away from home in order to become independent," she added.

Miss Jenkins is looking forward to the remainder of the summer for varied reasons — she will be traveling, expecially to New Jersey, where she will visit her grandparents and other relatives and will enjoy making her debut because of the people she will meet from across North Carolina.

During her spare time between studying and traveling, Miss Jenkins enjoys participating in water sports, especially boating. "I don't think I do it very well, but I enjoy cooking and baking cakes. I also try first-time recipes," she concluded.

Kaki King

Attending camp during the summer has been a way of life for Greenville debutante Kaki King for several years.

She began attending camp when in elementary school and has for the past three years, worked at Camp Leach in various capacities.

Miss King has worked as a staff assistant, assistant counselor, which she describes as being a "handyman in assistance" and this year as a counselor.

She is in charge of 10 girls for a period of two weeks and then a new group arrives. The ages of the campers range from the fourth to the ninth grades, with the same age group attending camp the same two weeks. "I am sort of like their mother away from home," said Miss King.

In describing her experiences Miss King said, "I want to afford the campers a fun-filled exciting camp life in a Christian atmosphere. I also want to share with them, what camp meant to me.

"Working as a counselor means a lot to me and helping the children is very rewarding."

Miss King's camp days are filled with such activities as helping to teach sailing, having life guard duty, swimming, basketball, baseball, volleyball and "tucking the girls in at night."

During the remainder of the year, Miss King attends East Carolina University, where she is a member of Alpha Phi sorority and of the girls swimming team. Although she has not chosen a major, Miss King is interested in both math and physical education.

"By attending ECU, it provides a good opportunity to attend school which has good departments in the two fields of my interest," she noted.

Daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. King, of 521 W. Longmeadow Rd., her father will be her chief marshal. Tommy Vicars of Greenville, a sophomore at ECU, will be assistant marshal.

Margaret Skinner

WILLIAMSTON — Debutante Margaret Landis Skinner decided on her college major of elementary education last summer while working as a staff member at Camp Leach, which is located on the Pamlico River.

"This was the most rewarding experience I have ever had. Taking the children sailing was the highlight of the summer job — especially the children who had sailed before.

"Children in grades four through six are fascinating and are so enlightning," she said.

Miss Skinner is spending this summer quite differently as she attends summer school at East Carolina University which she describes as "a pleasant change." She is taking courses in American history, geography and English literature.

A student at St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh, during the regular school year, Miss Skinner is also a member of the Muse staff, which is a literary publication.

"St. Mary's provides an environment which I like and after graduation, I will probably attend ECU or Carolina," she said. She is a graduate of Williamston High School and also attended St. Margaret's School, Tappahannock, Va.

She enjoys creative writing, sailing, tennis, water sports and likes a wide

Small-Edwards Vows Said In Ceremony On Saturday

St. Gabriel's Catholic Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jessica Deen Edwards and Ronald James Small on Saturday at 4:00 p.m.

Father H. Charles Mulholland performed the double ring ceremony. A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Robert Irwin of Greenville.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Preston Edwards of Morehead City, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal long sleeved, empire gown of silk organza with alencon lace and seeded pearl appliques on the A-line skirt and watteau train.

Her elbow length mantilla of white net bordered with alencon lace with a framer was enhanced with seed pearls. The bride carried a cascade of white rosebuds and centered with a white orchid.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas Small Jr. of Bethune, S. C.

Mrs. Sharon Kittrell, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and maid of honor was Miss Deborah Lewis, cousin of the bride, both of Morehead City.

The matron of honor wore a yellow floral silk organza peasant style dress with a scooped neckline and short puffed sleeves with ruffled hem. She wore a matching picture hat and carried a yellow mum. The maid of honor's pink dress was identical to the matron of honor and she carried a pink mum.

Bridesmaid was Miss Susan Small and junior bridesmaid was Miss Sally Small, both of Bethune, S. C., sisters of the bridegroom.

The bridemaid's blue dress was identical to the honor attendant's and she carried a blue sprayed mum. The junior attendant was dressed in lavender polyester organdy styles similar to the other attendants. Her hat was also identical and she carried a nosegay of assorted summer flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Robert Jordan of Albemarle, Richard Burnett of Grifton and John Kittrell of Morehead City, brother-in-law of the bride.

For a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the bride changed into a gold and white dress, matching accessories and wore an orchid lifted from her bouquet.

The bride attended King's Business College, Raleigh, and was employed in the office of Prepshirt Manufacturing Corp. The bridegroom is a graduate of Clemson University, Clemson, S. C., and is employed with Burlington Industries Research Center, Greensboro.

The couple will reside in Greensboro.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the clubhouse of Stratford Arms Apartments.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of assorted spring flowers flanked by candles.

Miss Clarissia McDearmon and Miss Susan Ragan greeted guests. Miss Ann Leary presided at the guest register.

Serving the wedding cake was Mrs. Geraldine Oxley and Mrs. Linda Bateman. Mrs. Vivian Whitaker poured punch.

The bride's parents entertained at a wedding breakfast Saturday morning at the Holiday Inn honoring the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The Small-Edwards wedding party and out-of-town were honored at a rehearsal dinner at the Candlewick Inn on Friday evening, given by the parents of the bridegroom.

The bride's table was decorated with a centerpiece of assorted summer flowers flanked on either side by candles. A champagne toast was made to the bride and bridegroom.

On The Young Side

By MARGARET STEVENS

France, South America, Lebanon, Holland, and Switzerland are among the faraway places drawing the attention of Rose High students and graduates this summer.

Combining study and fun, a Mediterranean cruise may highlight rising senior Melinda Deyton's European stay this summer.

After landing in London on June 24 and viewing such landmarks as St. Paul's Cathedral and Buckingham Palace, Melinda continued by bus to Paris. She also found time for a sidetrip to Hamburg, Germany, to visit relatives.

Melinda then progressed to Vichy, France, where she will study French as a part of the American Institute for Foreign Study. After sidetrips to Geneva, Florence, and Rome, Melinda will continue her French study on board a ship in the Mediterranean. She will return home, Aug. 2.

Also participating in the American Institute for Foreign Study are rising juniors Peg Corbitt, Michele Clark, and Chris Colcord.

The girls spent three days in London and three in Paris before traveling to Vichy, France, for study of French language and civilization. Sidetrips to Rome and Geneva are also included in the six-week itinerary, ending Aug. 3.

Community Ambassadors

Community Ambassadors Annie Young Clark and Mickey Jones have arrived at their summer homes in Switzerland and Holland, respectively.

Two weeks of intensive French study in Putney, Vt., began Annie Young's experience. She then flew to Milan, Italy, and journeyed to Nyan, Switzerland, where she is staying with an entirely French-speaking family.

Before returning to the United States, Aug. 16, Annie Young will leave her family for two-and-a-half weeks at a sailing camp.

After acquiring blisters from carrying her suitcase, Mickey Jones hopes 32 pounds of luggage will be adequate for her seven-week stay in Warmond, Holland.

Mickey is fortunate that her Dutch family speaks excellent English. Her summer sisters are 15 and 17 years-old, and her father is a biological researcher.

Mickey, who will return Aug. 10, reports eating chocolate sandwiches and seeing Mickey Rooney as two of her experiences so far.

Manzer Saad and Mike Pexzko are also living in distant lands this summer.

Mike, a rising senior, will be in Columbia, South America, June 19-July 21. Rose graduate, Manzer is living with relatives in Lebanon, June 16-Aug. 30.

Wives Not Amused At His Antics

CHAZE, France (WNS) — Mayor Pierre Cachot tried to ignore the matter when wives complained that local records reported them married to other women's husbands. Federal officials stepped in to investigate when the records declared that a single lady had married her sister-in-law. The culprit turned out to be Hubert Vignais, 40, the mayor's secretary, who apologized that his sense of humor gets the best of him whenever he drinks too much of the local pink wine of Anjou.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

Several Greenville attorneys and their wives will be flying to London, England, early this week for the American Bar Association Convention.

The N.C. Bar Association has chartered two planes and approximately 500 lawyers, their wives and families will be making the trip, leaving from the Raleigh-Durham Airport.

Attending from Greenville will be Mr. and Mrs. David Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Browning, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mattox, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Cheatham, Frank Wooten, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Blount Sr., Dr. and Mrs. Sellers Crisp and from Bethel, Clifton Everett Sr.

The second week of the trip will be divided into various tours. Members of the local group will be touring such places as Brussels, Amsterdam, Paris, Northern England and Scotland, Rome, and some of the Scandanavian countries.

The La Grange Christian Church on Aug. 29 will be the scene of the wedding of Yancey Gale Foss and James Edward Mooring.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College, where she was a member of Phi Mu sorority and elected business manager of the "Collegiate."

Her fiance attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Authur R. Barnhill of Greenville.

A military wedding in August is being planned by Sue Scism and Lance Cpl. Gary Allen Russell.

The couple met last October when introduced by a mutual friend. After dating several times, Gary, who is serving with the U.S. Marine Corp. at Cherry Point, left for the state of Washington for further training.

Sue, who had been wearing Gary's classring, was startled on June 30 when he asked for his ring — after several minutes, she received her diamond.

Winning Goal Saved The Day

POTTEN END, England (WNS) — When the school soccer team of Gaddesden Row ran out of male players, 11-year-old Jeanne Mannders offered to substitute so that the game with Potten End could continue. Jeanne scored the only goal of the match and was promptly toasted in orangeade by the opposing team. "It must be at least 12 years since we won a soccer game," admitted Colin Thomas, headmaster of Jeanne's school. "We'll be calling on Jeanne again because it's seven years since we won a cricket match."

MRS. MICHAEL LYNN ARNETTE

Couple Weds In Saturday Rites

SANFORD — St. Stephen's Catholic Church here was the scene of the Friday ceremony of Mary Ellen Desjarlais and Michael Lynn Arnette.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert L. Desjarlais of Fort Atkinson, Wis., and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Arnette Jr. of Broadway.

Father Charles Mulholland of Greenville officiated at the double ring ceremony performed at 7:00 p.m.

Miss Donna Thomas of Sanford provided a program of nuptial music.

Miss Jean Desjarlais, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Wilma Wittrock of Wrightsville Beach and Mrs. David Watson of Sanford were bridesmaids.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Lanny McIver of Sanford and Asheboro and Camp Price of Sanford.

Mrs. Arnette is a junior at East Carolina University, majoring in English education. She is employed by Pitt Theater, Greenville.

Mr. Arnette is a junior at ECU, majoring in history and political science. He is employed by Joyner Library.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

Engagement Announced

MISS LAVINEH SUE SCISM . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tremain Scism of Greenivlle, who announce her engagement to Lance Cpl. Gary Allen Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Russell of Moorhead, Minn. The wedding will take place in August.

Area Debutantes . . .

Candy Speir

BETHEL — Miss Carolyn Grace Speir will be presented to society the evening of Sept. 10 at the North Carolina Debutante Ball. Miss Speir will be escorted by her father and chief Marshal, D. O. Speir.

Her assistant marshal will be Ferrell Leighton Blount III of Bethel.

"Candy Speir is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Speir of West Washington Street. She is a graduate of Bethel High School and is a rising sophomore at St. Mary's Junior College.

Miss Speir said she chose to attend St. Mary's because her parents wanted her to go to a girl's school, and she felt that St. Mary's was one of the best in the state. She stated that she likes the girls who go to school there and the relaxed atmosphere.

She is concentrating her attention on the field of psychology — which she feels to be one of the stronger academic departments at St. Mary's.

After another year at St. Mary's, she hopes to transfer to the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill to study psychology or psychiatry. Miss Speir also stated that she is quite prone to changing her mind, and consequently all her plans are tentative ones.

Miss Speir, who is Methodist, is not overly fond of the compulsory chapel attendence at St. Mary's, but she says she can see the advantages of the traditional services. She stated that she is relatively neutral concerning proposed radical changes in the St. Mary chapel services. "St. Mary's is going to have to accept change — which they are," she quickly added.

Miss Speir is "Not doing anything right now. I'm just being lazy." Other than continuing frequent trips to the beach, no summer activities have been planned except improving her tennis game.

Her hobbies include swimming, reading practically anything, traveling, and water and snow skiing. She has a 17-year-old sister, Christie.

Concerning the Governor's decision not to entertain the debutantes this year, Candy said, "Well I can understand his point of view. I think it's unfortunate that this happened. I think they'll make up for it some other way."

variety of music.

Miss Skinner's own style of creative writing includes humorous poetry, satirical and she has written a few short stories.

She will be among approximately 199 other young ladies when she makes her bow at the 45th annual North Carolina Debutante Ball in September.

Her father, Thomas W. Skinner, will be her chief marshal and her assistant marshal will be Tom Shepard of Edenton, a University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill sophomore.

The Skinner family resides at 319 Church St., Williamston.

To Be Continued After Kidnapping

CELJE, Yugoslavia (WNS) — When widower Rado Brankovic, 73, announced that he would marry dressmaker Georgina Jurman, 46, his four sons protested that they did not want a stepmother their own age. The couple refused to call off the wedding, so the sons cut off the dressmaker's hair. She refused to be a bald bride, but her future groom bought her a wig and the wedding was on again. It was off again when the sons kidnapped their father just before the wedding ceremony. The next chapter has yet to be written.

Fraulein Was De-Militarized

WIESBADEN, West Germany (WNS) — Eike is a male name in Germany, but it is also the first name of a pretty, 18-year-old fraulein who makes precision instruments here. She wasn't so surprised to receive notice of army induction as were army officials when she arrived at the Mainz-Hechtsheim camp in hotpants. They marched her right out of the inductees' barracks and sent her home to the precision instruments.

Leather tanning thrived among the ancient Egyptians.

Should Children Beg For Money?

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of parents who allow their children to ask guests for money?

While visiting recently, my host's 3-year-old toddled out with her piggy bank and requested a donation. When I said I had no pennies, she peered into my open purse and said, "OK, then give me a dime or a quarter."

Chicken-hearted, I gave her some change while her parents smiled indulgently, and the mother said, "Isn't that cute? She always does that when we have company."

Abby, I like youngsters, but I disapprove of their begging. Or am I just an old fogey?

IRRITATED IN ANAHEIM

DEAR IRRITATED: I'm with you. Too bad you are so chicken-hearted because you aren't helping the child by complaining to me. Her parents should be straightened out.

DEAR ABBY: There is a young married woman [she is also a mother] who I feel is damaging the reputation of a fine young bachelor minister in our community.

This woman goes to his house daily to do his house cleaning, and she stays most of the afternoon to do the bookkeeping for the parish. I know this minister is above doing anything wrong, but you know how people talk.

This woman's staying around to work on the books makes it difficult for anyone else to come and talk with the minister when they need his help. How can she be told she should do the book work at her own home? It would be much better for the pastor's reputation, and it would at least give some others a chance. A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I doubt that anyone who needs the minister's help would be discouraged from seeking it because the bookkeeper was under the same roof. Are you honestly concerned about the minister's reputation? Or is it "the others" who aren't getting a chance?

DEAR ABBY: I've been having a real battle with myself. I've been married for 10 years, have had two babies and I have completely lost my figure. My bosom is so flat and saggy I just hate to look at myself in the mirror.

My husband hasn't shown any signs of being dissatisfied with me the way I am, but what man wouldn't appreciate a round, firm, fully-packed wife? [I never was very big up there, but now I don't have a thing.]

I know a good plastic surgeon who does silicone implants and I would like to have it done. Should I surprise my husband and have the operation when he is out of town on one of his business trips? [He's gone for five days every six weeks.] I have my own money. FLAT AND TEMPTED

DEAR FLAT: Don't "surprise" your husband. Better yet, take him to the surgeon so he will know exactly what is involved. Many surgeons refuse to perform that type of surgery without the knowledge and consent of the patient's husband.

DEAR ABBY: Don't you think it is extremely rude to ask a 40-year-old bachelor why he has never married?

FRISCO

DEAR FRISCO: Yes. Especially if you think you know.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Engagements Announced

MISS YANCEY GALE FOSS . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Yancey Ziegfield Foss of Rt. 3, Goldsboro, who announce her engagement to James Edward Mooring, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Case Mooring of La Grange. The wedding will take place on Aug. 29.

MISS CYNTHIA LOUISE JONES . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jones of Farmville, who announce her engagement to Robert Martin Corbett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Monroe Corbett of Fountain. The wedding will take place Aug. 22.

Man Was Trapped By Her C-Note

LODI, Italy (WNS) — Operatic soprana Adriana Anelli didn't scream for help when she was attacked on a dark street here. Instead, she sang high C and held the note until it attracted a neighborhood crowd. The 27-year-old attacker tried to flee but couldn't get through the crowd and was handed over to police. "I may forget my audiences at La Scala but never the one at Lodi," commented the 28-year-old singer.

WOTM Named Top Chapter In North Carolina

Senior Regent Elizabeth Moore announced at the Thursday night meeting that Greenville Chapter 1308 of the Women of the Moose is the top charter in the state.

The chapter will be in charge of enrollment at the state convention in Raleigh Aug. 13-15.

Junior Graduate Regent Beaulah Jordan is Queen of Sponsors and Collegian Ada Jones is the first attendant to the queen.

Miss Jones spoke about her trip to Mooseheart to receive her College of Regents Degree. She also told of the dedication of the wading pool in Baby Village, presented by the Women of the Moose.

Mrs. Bonnie Singleton was investing officer who changed the green tassel to red for Collegian Peggy Roberson, denoting the completion of one year as a collegian.

Collegian Ellen Bradford presented Miss Jones with the College of Regents charm.

Installing officer Mrs. Singleton installed Gladys Pierce as Argus replacing Helen Miller.

The meeting was turned over to Collegian Mrs. Bradford sitting in for Collegian Chairman Peggy Roberson. The Collegians holding the chairs were:

Ruby Presser, recorder; Mrs. Bradford, Senior Regent; Louise Carrigan, treasurer; Lillie Briley, Junior Graduate Regent; Mrs. Singleton, Junior Regent;

Joann Proctor, chaplain; Earline Coghill, guide; Molly Harris, assistant guide; Mrs. Roberson, sentinel; and Miss Jones, College of Regents chairman.

Parents Must Heed Craving For Independence

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

Letting Go

MOTHER AND FATHER decided to visit their daughter Sandy, age 15, at camp. They arrived in the evening and headed for the state, where tryouts were being held.

Sandy: What a pleasant surprise. But I can't spend too much time with you. There's an important meeting, this evening.

Mother: I brought you some gifts.

Sandy: I do appreciate it, but don't give me anything now. I don't need a thing — not a thing.

Mother was disappointed. Sandy was so independent, so sure of herself and so busy. She even had a sufficient amount of money in her account and needed no additional funds.

"I really can't be late, Mother," Sandy said. "We are discussing important items tonight. Be careful driving home. The roads are wet and dangerous. Perhaps you should have an extra cup of coffee. Well, 'bye now."

Mother and Father said goodbye and felt sad. Mother reflected. "My daughter is growing away and letting go. But it's not easy for me."

JOE, AGE 19, was moving from New York to Boston. He was taking furniture, utensils and other things needed to make a home. Mother watched him pack. She felt a strong sense of nostalgia. She wanted to help, but refrained. She allowed him to make and execute his own plans.

Joe: Who's driving with me to Boston?

Mother: Dad. His car is hitched up to the hauling cart.

Joe: Aren't you coming? I mean, do you want to come?

Mother: No, Joe, I'll visit when you're settled. If I go up now, I may not be able to keep from hanging curtains, washing sinks and centering carpets.

Joe: You know how important it is for me to do it alone, don't you? If I can really survive, then I won't have to be afraid of being on my own once I step out of your house.

Mother: I have confidence in your ability to make it on your own.

Later, Mother commented, "I needed all my will power to refrain from... 'helping' my son, — help that he did not need. It was time to let go."

CINDY, AGE 16, a junior counselor in art camp telephoned home:

Cindy: I won't be home on my day off. I'm going to the theater to see "Hamlet."

Mother: We'll miss you but we know your passion for the theater.

Cindy: Thanks for understanding, Mom. Last week I took my group to a local theater. It was so amateurish. But I said nothing. I didn't want to influence the kids.

Mother: You wanted the young people to form their own judgment.

Cindy: Yes. They must learn to think and evaluate for themselves.

Mother: They are fortunate to have a fine influence like you.

Cindy: I do have a good rapport with them. I understand them because I understand myself better.

Mother: That's important above all.

Cindy: Oh, yes. By the way, I have been asked to direct a play. And I am only a junior counselor.

Mother: Quite a responsibility! But it is in good hands.

Cindy: Thanks for the confidence. You know Mom, I am looking forward to my next visit home.

Throughout the conversation, Mother responded with respect and support. She recognized her daughter's need for autonomy, and did not mind her desire for independence. She did not say: "What do you mean you are not coming home on your day off? Can't you spare even one day for your parents? Is the theater more important to you than we are?" Mother allowed Cindy to separate without guilt.

Mother's reward was immediate. Cindy's experiences, fears and hopes had been shared with her. Though physically apart, both mother and daughter felt closer to each other.

How will you react when your children reach out for independence?

'Good Trash' Stirs Pupil Imagination

NEW YORK (UPI) —Thanks to an imaginative use of trash, third and fourth graders in Anthony LoCicero's school have access to all sorts of scientific models.

LoCicero, who teaches in Tampa, Fla., wouldn't say "give up" a couple of years ago when the school budget didn't have money for the extras he needed for the science enrichment program he was running.

The model of a hydro-electric generating station he wanted cost $85. He took tomato cans, wire left over by the telephone repair man, and assorted bits and pieces of what he calls "good trash" and made such a model for $5.

In an interview, LoCicero, of Orange Grove Elementary School, told of how the children in his classes come from poor neighborhoods and how he was eager to help them learn better.

"The better way meant we had to have models of the things the kids were interested in," he said. "The dullest child becomes smarter. Children have fires lighted under them in the learning arena when they can see and manipulate a model of whatever it is we're teaching."

LoCicero had with him a book of nearly 100 examples of space age models he designed and made for the class, using discarded plastic containers, tooth paste tube tops, motorcycle inner tubes, bicycle rims, curtain rods, parts from old radios, spools.

There were models of most of the rockets in the U.S. space program. They were not exact scale models but with third and fourth graders able to supply with imagination what the models lacked, they serve well for teaching purposes.

LoCicero, father of Tony, five, and Lisa, seven, said he would like other school teachers to know of his good use of trash to help the educational process —especially since it's available for the asking, or the picking up.

"Many really good things are thrown away," he said.

The motorcycle inner tube and bicycle rim were picked up from junk heaps. They became the key components in a model of an orbiting space station —a crude model of the one seen in the motion pictures "2001: A Space Odyssey."

"Usually the students at my school are bored," LoCicero said. "But you should see the change in them when we put these homemade things into the program."

While in New York, LoCicero was looking around for someone to publish his diagrams of the nearly 100 things that are made from trash but are educational.

"Why pay dollars for kits for these things when for pennies a boy or girl can make a workable model —if he or she knows how to collect the makings from things that are discarded?," he asked.

LoCicero didn't know when he returned to Tampa if he scored on that goal but something quite unexpected happened.

Roger Jones, of the Hallmark Gallery in New York, took a look at his pictures of things made from trash.

The Gallery, not far from Central Park on Fifth Avenue, sponsors exhibits —celebrity Christmas trees at Santa time, hobbies of the famous, celebrated antiques, and all sorts of exhibits. There's no admission fee.

Jones told LoCicero the next exhibit to open, in September, is in the planning stage. It's about putting trash and discarded materials to a good use.

Naturally, LoCiero was invited to exhibit —and in the best place in the gallery the spotlight position.

Head Start For High Schoolers

NEW YORK (AP) — A head start for high school students is being offered during a six-week summer course in fashion design and illustration, life drawing and water color and fashion sketching by the Traphagen School of Fashion.

Draping for design, pattern-making and dressmaking techniques will be included. Among the instructors are artist Mary Joban, author Arthur Black and Mrs. Dorothy Hellman, assistant director of the school.

Average Citizen A Heavy Eater

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—The average American eats an estimated 1,500 pounds of food a year, says a consumer specialist at the Pennsylvania State University.

The specialist, Harold E. Neigh, said a person eats about 50 different kinds of food each week. This far includes about 10 pounds of fruits and vegetables, four and one-half quarts of milk, one and a half pounds of sugar and seven eggs.

Book Discloses Papal Chapel

ROME (AP) — The private chapel where Pope Paul VI says his daily morning masses and retreats to pray upon receiving news of a cardinal's death or a major disaster, has been revealed to the public in a book for the first time.

The book, "The Papal Apartment," was written by the Rt. Rev. Romeo Panciroli, an official in the Vatican's commission for social communications.

Trevino Overcomes Disaster To Win

U.S. golfer Lee Trevino hits the turf, then turns to smile at the crowd after sinking a long putt from the edge of the green on the eighth hole Saturday in the British Open Golf Championship at the Royal Birkdale. The 31-year-old Trevino won the championship with a 72-hole score of 14-under-par 278, adding the British title to his American and Canadian titles. (AP Wirephoto)

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Swashbuckling Lee Trevino followed a near-disastrous double bogey on the 17th hole with a match-saving birdie on the 18th Saturday and added the British Open Golf Championship to his American and Canadian Open titles.

The 31-year-old Trevino's closing birdie 4 gave him a 70 for a 14-under-par 278 and a one-stroke margin over Liang Huan Lu of Taiwan who also birdied the final hole.

Lu, who captured the fancy of the British fans in this 100th championship, also shot a 70 for a 72-hole total of 279.

Trevino, who watched a third-round lead fade and disappeared in this tournament a year ago, held a big lead most of the cool, slightly cloudy day and at times even threatened to make a rout of this granddaddy of all the world's golf championships.

He led by three going to the 17th, a 510-yard par 5.

But the one-time $35-a-week assistant at a desert driving range put his drive dead into a sandy hill on the left. He obviously had planed his usual fade, but the little English ball refused to behave and went dead straight.

"Oh, come back," he pleaded. Then he saw the ball plug into the hill. "Well, that's right where I aimed, so sayonara (farewell)," he muttered.

And it was almost that, almost goodbye to his dreams of an unprecedented sweep of three national titles in only four weeks.

He moved the ball only about two feet on his first swing in the sand, hacked it across the fairway to knee-high rough on his third, slashed it short of the green in four, chipped on in five, then missed a 12-foot putt and had to take a double bogey.

Lu, a dapper little man little known outside the Orient and the surprise of the tournament, made par 5 on the hole and Trevino's lead was cut to one coming to the final hole, another relatively short par 5.

Trevino, grandson of a Dallas gravedigger, drove the fairway but Lu, his playing partner and a friend from 12 years ago when Trevino was a U.S. Marine statione din Okinawa, put his drive just on the lip of a trap.

The little Chinese had to go into the trap to hit it, lined it into a group of spectators, hit one of them solidly and was stall far, far short of the green.

Trevino was on in two, but the unflappable Lu hit it up stiff in three.

Now Trevino needed only to get down in two from the fringe, some 35 feet from the cup. He ran it up to about a foot, waited while Lu made his birdie putt, then tapped it home and had his 10th victory in a career that didn't really start until five years ago.

The huge crowd gave the stocky, swarthy Trevino a wild ovation, in sharp contrast to Friday's play when — as a partner of English favorite Tony Jacklin—Trevino was cheered for his mistakes.

Jacklin, tied with Lu just one stroke back of Trevino starting play in the fourth round, took a double bogey 6 on the second hole where he drove into the rough, was short in two and three-putted.

The bright young Briton, winner of this title two years ago, rallied, however, taking birdies on the last three holes and finished alone in third with a 71 for 280.

Craig Defoy, a 24-year old American-born Englishman, took a 69 for 281 and fourth place.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus had to make eagle 3 on the final hole for a 69 that tied him at 283 with Masters champion Charles Coody. Coody had a 68, also including an eagle 3.

American veteran Doug Sanders, who lost to Nicklaus in a playoff in this championship a year ago, had a 67 for 285 and a tie with Australian Peter Thomson, a five-time winner.

"This is the most fantastic day of my life," Trevino said after he had nailed down his fifth victory of the year and the $13,200 first-place check that doesn't count on his American leading money winning total of more than $195,000.

"I said before the championship began that I would trade one of my U.S. Open titles for the British Open.

"Now I don't have to do it.

"I have to keep pinching my-

Wilmington Takes Two From East Carolina

WILMINGTON — It's tough to lose.

But sometimes, it seems like it's just a little bit harder.

East Carolina University found that out last night as the Pirates dropped a pair of decisions to the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, 1-0 and 4-3.

In the first game, Don Oxidine tossed a one-hitter at Wilmington, but came out on the short end of the game. Then, in the second, the Bucs lost on a seventh-inning run, which spelled their third straight defeat in two days.

The first game was the tough one, of course. Oxidine, who was tagged for the loss in Friday's night's 10-6 defeat by North Carolina, did a fine job for the Bucs, going the distance. He struck out four and walked one, but gave up an unearned run, and that was all the Seahawks needed.

His opponent on the mound, Dave Sandlin, tossed a two-hitter in getting the shutout. He struck out eight and walked one. Sandlin then came on in relief in the second game, and got the win in that one too.

East Carolina got only three men on base during the game. The two hits came in the first and second innings, as Matt Walker and Ronnie Leggett got them. The only other time a man reached first was on the way.

Except for a walk off Oxidine, Wilmington didn't get a man on base until the fourth, when they scored. They didn't scratch after that either.

In the fourth, Sandlin reached on an error on Mike Bradshaw. He stole second, and then scored when Greg Dalton singled. It was all the Seahawks needed.

In the second game, Wilmington pushed into the lead in the first inning with a run. Howie Edgerton walked and was sacrificed to second. Sandlin then singled to drive in the run.

East Carolina tied it up in the top of the fourth. That came on a homer by Mike Aldridge, which cleared the fence at the 330-foot mark.

But Wilmington came right back with two runs in a confusing bottom of the fourth.

Things went ordinarily enough through the first part of the frame. Eddie Booth and Robert Pittman both singled and were sacrificed up. Eric Higgins singled in Booth and Carroll Bickers walked, loading the bases.

That's when the fun began. Edgerton popped up, and the infield fly rule was invoked, making him automatically out. But Leggett dropped the ball and both Pittman at third and Higgins at second thought they were in a force situation and took off. East Carolina didn't notice Pittman headed in to the plate, and instead caught Higgins in a rundown. By the time things were straightened out, Pittman had scored to make it 3-1.

East Carolina tied it up in the fifth with two more. Sonny Robinson walked and Leggett singled. Larry Walters walked and Aldgidge's popup to short was not caught, with both Robinson and Leggett scoring.

In the seventh, Wilmington came up with the winning run. Sandlin again was the hero. He reached on a fielder's choice and came around on Dalton's double.

East Carolina, now 6-6 on the year, travels to Chapel Hill to meet the Tar Heels today, and will host Louisburg Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Conigliaro Quitting; Eyes Cause Problems

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Conigliaro, one of baseball's most feared sluggers until this season, abruptly announced his retirement at the age of 26 Saturday, claiming failing eyesight and other ailments.

"This is the end of Tony C.," Conigliaro said after leaving the California Angels and flying to Boston and an airport meeting with his family. "I've learned that health is more important than money."

Conigliaro went hitless in eight times at bat and was ejected in the 19th inning for arguing with the umpires in the Angels' 1-0, 20-inning loss at Oakland Friday night.

He then called a 5 a.m. news conference to announce his retirement, saying "I have lost my sight and am on the edge of losing my mind." He boarded a flight for Boston three hours later.

"I just can't see the ball," said Conigliaro, who suffered a serious eye injury when hit by a pitch while with the Boston Red Sox in 1967. "I have no depth perception at all. I have a blind spot."

Conigliaro missed the entire 1968 season and his career appeared ended. However, he made a remarkable recovery and hit 20 homers for the Red Sox in 1969 and 36 last year before being traded to California.

This season he has batted only .229, with just four homers and 15 runs batted in.

"At this time, I'd say there's no chance I'll ever return to baseball as a player," the young outfielder said during an airport interview. "There's no way I'll return this year and it's very doubtful that I'd try to come back next year."

He said that his sight, a bothersome neck ailment and his over-all performance on the field had affected his personality.

"I've been getting headaches and my nerves are ready to crack," Conigliaro said. "I've been getting sick to my stomach, a little nervous, a little shaky.

"The game was affecting me to the point where I was losing, not my sanity, my control. I was saying things and doing things I didn't want to do. I don't know why, I was just doing them."

Conigliaro smiled and shook his head when told that California Manager Lefty Phillips had told writers Tony "is ready for the insane asylum."

"Apparently his lack of success has been bothering him. The easiest way out is to quit," Phillips also said.

Stargell Raps Bucs By Braves

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell, the top power hitter in the majors, set a record with his 10th homer against Atlanta this season, a two-run shot in the eighth inning Saturday that carried Pittsburgh past the Braves, 5-4.

Stargell's 30th homer of the season and 86th and 87th runs batted in came after Vic Davalillo beat out a slow roller to open the inning and Al Oliver sacrificed. Stargell had been tied with Clarence Gaston of San Diego with the record of nine homers against one club in a season in a 12-team league.

The victory was the sixth in a row for the Pirates, who have pulled away to a big lead in the East Division of the National League.

Atlanta had taken a 4-3 lead in the top of the eighth when Ralph Garr doubled home Felix Mallan with two out against winner Jim Grant.

Hank Aaron drove in two of Atlanta's first three runs with a sacrifice fly and his 24th homer.

Stargell doubled and scored on Bob Robertson's single in the second off loser Phil Niekro,, 9-8. Oliver singled in two runs in the third.

Pepitone Homers For Chicago Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Joe Pepitone broke a tie with a two-run homer in the sixth inning Saturday as the Chicago Cubs defeated San Diego 3-1 behind Ferguson Jenkins' four-hitter.

Jenkins, 8-0 lifetime against the Padres, raised his season mark to 13-8, but lost a shutout in the fourth inning when Larry Stahl homered. He struck out 12.

The Cubs broke a 1-1 tie against loser Fred Norman, 0-4, in the sixth when Jim Hickman hit a two-out single and Pepitone followed with his twelfth homer of the year. Doubles by Chris Cannizzaro and Don Kessinger scored a fifth-inning run that tied the score.

The loss snapped a four-game winning streak by the Padres, their longest of the year.

Wild Pitch SparksYanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Horace Clarke scored the tying run from second base on a wild pitch and pinch-hitter Danny Cater drove in two more with a single in the eighth inning, bringing the New York Yankees from behind to a 5-3 victory over Boston Saturday.

The Yankees entered the eighth trailing Sonny Siebert 3-2, but Clarke's opening single brought in Sparky Lyle. After a sacrifice, a walk and a strike out, pinch-hitter Ron Swoboda walked on a 3-2 pitch that rolled to the backstop. Clarke easily scored the tying run.

Then Cater, hitting against Bob Bolin, singled for the winning runs.

The Red Sox took the lead with a run in the third on doubles by John Kennedy and Reggie Smith. Smith also singled home a run in the first and Rico Petrocelli added a sacrifice fly.

Bobby Murcer and Jake Gibbs hit solo homers for the Yankees.

Reichardt's Hit Paces White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Reichardt lined a two out single to left, driving in the winning run in the ninth inning and giving the Chicago White Sox a 4-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Jay Johnstone opened the inning with a walk, was sacrificed to second, and after another out and an intentional walk to Pat Kelly, Reichardt connected off Ted Sanders, 4-4.

Milwaukee had tied the game with two runs in the seventh, the first on Bill Voss' eight homer of the season. Ted Kubiak knocked out starting pitcher Tom Bradley with a triple and Ellie Rodriguez, who bunted in an earlier run, hit a sacrifice fly off winning reliever Bart Johnson, 5-6.

Bill Melton's 20th homer and Walt Williams' fifth put Chicago ahead 2-0 in the first inning, and the White Sox added an unearned run in the fifth.

KC-Twins Are Rained Out

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — The Minnesota-Kansas City game was postponed by rain Saturday after a 45-minute wait beyond starting time. The game will be made up as part of a doubleheader on Sunday, Sept. 19.

Raleigh Has Few Games

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association will be playing only six games in Raleigh this coming season, but all six will be in spacious Reynolds Coliseum.

The Cougars played 12 games in Raleigh last year, but all at Dorton Arena at the Fairgrounds. The Cougars were unhappy with what they called inadequate dressing room facilities and limited seating at Dorton Arena.

Cougar president and general manager Carl Scheer said the Cougar schedule at Reynolds Coliseum was limited to only six games because there can be no conflict with sports and student body schedules at North Carolina State University, which uses the coliseum regularly.

The coliseum has 12,400 seats.

Petty Out To Improve Fortune

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., already is $500 nearer his goal of $1 million in career earnings as a driver on the NASCAR Grand National circuit, and by late Sunday he hopes to be somewhat closer—say by about $5,000 to $10,000.

The smaller amount the Grand National point leader won Friday when he drove his blue 1971 Plymouth at 104.589 miles per hour to win the pole position for the 11th annual Volunteer 500 at Bristol International Speedway.

He can win the large amount by finishing first in Sunday's $30,000, 500-lap race against such challengers as Charlie Glotzbach of Georgetown, Ind., and defending champion Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala.

Glotzbach and Allison finished behind Petty in Friday's qualifying trials which produced 10 of the 30 starters for Sunday's 1:30 p.m. race.

Friday Hassler of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Elmo Langley of Charlotte, N.C., turned in the fastest times Saturday as the last 20 starters qualified for the 30-car field. Just as Friday, eight drivers bettered 100 m.p.h.

Hassler was clocked at 102.654 m.p.h. in a 1970 Chevrolet, and Langley drove his 1970 Ford at 102.344 m.p.h.

Although the Friday qualifying failed to produce a record, eight of the 10 who earned starting berths were clocked at better than 100 m.p.h., indicating a fast pace Sunday around the .533-mile high-banked oval.

Glotzbach reached 104.463 m.p.h. in his Junior Johnson-prepared 1971 Chevrolet, while Allison hit 104.279 m.p.h. in his 1970 Ford.

Their closest challengers were Richard Brown of Claremont, N.C., who had a fast lap of 103.123 m.p.h. in a 1971 Chevrolet, and Ron Keselowski of Drayton Plains, Mich., who hit 102.577 m.p.h. in a 1970 Dodge.

The other century qualifiers were G. C. Spencer of Bluff City, Tenn., 1969 Plymouth; Coo Coo Marlin of Columbia, Tenn., 1969 Chevrolet; and James Hylton of Inman, S.C., 1971 Ford.

The dispute between some drivers and NASCAR over carburetor settings has led three of the big-name drivers to skp the Volunteer 500. Foremost among them is David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C., who won the Southeastern 500 here earlier this spring.

Also sitting out the race are Bobby Isaac of Catawba, N.C., and Donnie Allison of Hueytown, Ala.

McCauley Inks Pact

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts Saturday signed their No. 1 draft choice, Don McCauley of North Carolina, holder of the all-time NCAA season rushing record.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed by the National Football League team.

McCauley ran for 1,720 yards in 1970, breaking O.J. Simpson's record of 1,709 set in 1969. He gained 3,172 yards during his college career to rank ninth on the all-time NCAA list.

The 21-year-old Garden City, N.Y., native, a 6-foot-1 216-pounder, holds 26 Atlantic Coast Conference records.

McCauley was ACC Player of the Year as a junior and senior and averaged more than five yards per carry during his career.

Carolina Rallies To Stop Pirates, 10-6

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The University of North Carolina socked East Carolina University for eight runs in the final two innings to make a comeback and take a 10-6 victory over the Bucs Friday night.

The loss moved Carolina ahead of the Pirates in the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League standings, knocking the Bucs out of first for the first time in two weeks.

East Carolina seemingly had the game wrapped up as the eighth inning opened. They were cruising along with a 6-2 lead in the game, but starting hurler Bill Godwin began to tire and Carolina jumped on him to push in four runs to tie it up. Then, they got the go-ahead run off reliever Don Oxidine, and the Bucs never could catch up.

Godwin had Carolina handcuffed until the fourth inning when they finally got their first hit off him. But he sat down the next two men to get out of the jam. The Heels scored in the fifth and again in the seventh, but things still didn't look bad.

East Carolina opened the scoring in the first inning. With one away, Matt Walker stabbed a double into right field, just hitting inside the line. Larry Walters followed with a doubled. Mike Aldridge then lifted a long fly to center, but it just fell in for a hit, and with the runners waiting to see whether it would be caught, no one got around, and Aldridge was stuck with a single. Then, with two away, Troy Eason lined one through the mound that was played behind second, but too late to get anyone as Walker scored. Ronnie Leggett then got a walk to force in Walters for a 2-0 lead.

In the fourth, the Bucs got three more runs. They had threatend in the two innings between, but nothing came of it. In the fourth, however, Godwin led off with a single to center. Walker walked and Walters blasted a triple into right center, scoring both Godwin and Walker. A wild pitch then let Walters come in for a 5-0 lead.

Carolina then got its first run of the night. Bobby Guthrie singled and came around to score on Mickey Hickerson's double to left center.

The Pirates matched that with a run in the sixth. That came on a home run by Walters over the right filed fence.

Carolian came back with its second run in the seventh. Mike Roberts opened the inning with a triple to right center, scoring when Pete Franklin reached on an error.

Then came the fateful eighth. Dick Witt led off with a single to left, and Tommy Gillis reached when his pop to left was dropped. Jack Gillis singled past second to score Witt. Roberts brought in Tommy Gillis with a sacrifice fly. Jack Leachman followed with a single to left and that spelled the end for Godwin.

Oxidine was promtly hurt when he issued a base-loading walk to Pete Franklin. Guthrie then followed with a single, scoring both Leachman and Jack Gillis to put the two teams into a tie. Hickerson added another hit, scoring Franklin to move the Tar Heels ahead, 7-6, but that wound up the scoring in the frame.

The Tar Heels added three insurance runs in the ninth. Tommy Gillis reached on an error and scored on Roberts' double. Leachman was safe on another error, allowing Roberts to score. Guthrie singled to score Leachman with the final run.

The Pirates, after a scheduled doubleheader last night in Wilmington, travel to Chapel Hill today for another meeting with the Tar Heels. They return home on Monday night against Louisburg.

California In Win Over A's

OAKLAND (AP) — All Star pitcher Andy Messersmith hurled his first shutout of the season to give the California Angels a 3-0 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Messersmith evened his season record at 8-8 with a six hitter. He struck out seven and walked three in the contest that began just 12 hours after Friday night's 20 inning marathon ended.

The Angels bunched six singles against loser Jim Hunter 11-8 to score all their runs in the third inning.

Singles by Sandy Alomar, Mickey Rivers and Tony Gonzalez and an error by Rick Monday got the first run home. Then John Stephenson singled to make it 2-0. Jim Spencer singled to bring in the final run.

Hunter allowed only one other hit before he left the game after seven innings.

Oakland had only three runners as far as second base with two singles in the first inning, a double by Gene Tenace in the sixth and another two-bagger by Mike Hegan in the seventh.

Trevino Gives $$ To Orphans

By RONALD THOMSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Lee Trevino, picking up more money and titles than he ever expected in a single month, donated nearly $5,000 to British orphans tonight soon after capturing the British Open Golf Championship.

Trevino won the U.S. Open in a play-off against Jack Nicklaus, then collared the Canadian Open in a sudden death affair against Art Wall.

"Earlier this week I told George James, who runs the casino here in Southport, that I wanted to do something for the kids like me who had a difficult start in life," Trevino said.

"I was prepared to play exhibition shots for the fans in order to raise funds for the Southport orphanage. But this is not necessary now. I'm giving $4,800 to the orphanage out of the $13,200 I won here at Royal Birkdale."

Trevino was raised by his grandfather, a Dallas gravedigger. He scratched pennies as a child, never finished high school and worked as a $35 a week assistant on a desert driving range before hitting it big on the rich American pro golf tour.

"When I win a championship of this stature, I have the feeling that the man upstairs is looking after me and I want to give something back," said the Mexican-American extrovert.

"To be established as a world class player you have to win one of the big ones staged outside the United States. I think from now on that I must be regarded as world class."

Trevino's donation to the orphanage marked the fourth time he has gone into his pocket to help the less fortunate.

He won the 1968 Hawaiian Open, and set aside $10,000 from his purse for a trust fund for the children of the late Ted Makelena, a Hawaiian professional who was killed in a surfing accident.

The following year he donated his entire purse, $2,000, from his individual victory in the World Cup to a caddy-scholarship fund in Singapore.

Just a month ago he allotted $5,000 from his first place prize in the Memphis Open to St. Jude's Hospital, the charitable beneficiary of that tournament.

Before coming to the British Open he had already won $195,000 and was clearly en route to overtaking Billy Casper's $205,000 earnings in 1969.

"Now I'm going to the Western Open in Chicago," Trevino said. "It starts Thursday. What a great month it would be for me if I took that one and added it to the U.S., Canadian and British opens."

Trevino Wins...

self to make sure I'm awake."

Trevino was asked if he felt any great pressure as he became the first man since Ben Hogan in 1953 to win both the American and British Opens in a single year.

"No, pressure doesn't bother me," he said, "not even in the middle of my horrible experience on the 17th. If a man's under pressure, he doesn't one-putt the first six greens."

It was that near-incredible putting performance that actually was the key to his triumph, which gave him the margin he needed to offset the double bogey 7.

Starting with a one-stroke lead he rolled in a 10-foot birdie putt on the first hole.

He was short of the green in two on the second hole, chipped poorly and then hit the back of the cup with a 25-foot putt that saved his par. He turned his back on it and stalked away, leaving the ball in the hole.

Trevino, grim-faced as an Aztec carving most of the day in contrast to the infectious grin that usually spreads across his swarthy face, birdied the third from 12 feet, saved par from five feet on the next and got one-putt birdies on the next two.

He saved par with a curling, writhing, twisting 30-footer on the eighth, turned in four under-par-31 and had a five-stroke lead going into the final nine holes.

He lost one stroke with a bogey on the 10th, and saw his lead diminish to three when he was unkered off the tee on the short 14th.

Both he and Lu picked off birdie 4s on the 15th, both parred the 16th—Lu tipping his blue hat and bowing politely to acknowledge applause—and set it up for the drama on the two finishing holes.

Trevino, asked if there was any secret to his success, replied with a grin:

"No. There's no secret. It's just the way I play the game."

Phillies In 2-0 Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Deron Johnson slammed his 17th home run and Woody Fryman blanked the Montreal Expos on four hits Saturday to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 2-0 victory in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

Fryman, posting his fifth straight victory to raise his record to 5-3, struck out seven.

John Strohmayer, who also allowed only four hits before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, suffered his second setback in four decisions.

Johnson opened the second inning with his homer and the Phillies added their other run in the third as Mike Ryan doubled and came home on a single by Denny Doyle.

ABOUT THE KNICKS

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks failed to get through its basketball semi-finals against Baltimore's Bullets during the 1970-71 season but in "Willis Reed, The Knicks' Take-Charge Man," sports writer Larry Fox tells all about the great Knick season of 1969-70 when the New Yorkers went all the way.

Legion Set To Open Series With Ahoskie

Greenville's Post 39 American Legion baseball team will open its quest for a state title Wednesday when it meets Ahoskie in the first game of a best-of-three series at Harrington Field.

Back at the start of the season, Coach John Holt felt that pitching would be his team's strong point, and he hasn't been proven wrong there.

But he also thought the team's hitting might let them down. So far, on that point, he HAS been wrong.

Right now, he has seven regulars who are hitting over .300, and that speaks for itself. His top three pitchers also hold down a fine run average, the highest of the three being 1.66.

The leading hitter on the team is not one of the regulars, but, of all things, a pitcher, Steve Arnaud. In five games so far this year, he's picked up four hits in nine trips for a .444 average.

Behind him comes a semi-regular Larry Dixon, who'll be a junior at Rose High School this fall. In eight games so far this year he's hit .357 collecting five hits in 14 trips.

The next man down the line is another pitcher, Byron Dickens, who's gotten seven hits in 20 trips for a .350 average.

The leading regular is catcher Joe West, who has picked up 23 hits in 67 at bats for a fine .343 average. He failed to get a hit in only five of the 17 games he went to the plate.

Outfielder Timmy James is currently batting .257, while shortstop Bill Lee has a .269 average. First baseman Jimmy Bond is the low regular with a .176 average.

J.C. Daniels, who has been a lot of action at second base, has a fine .319 clip, while Kim Harbin, who's been both at second and third is hitting .111. Stanley Cobb, a utility player who's done some pitching is hitting .240.

Outfielder Phil Blount is hitting at a .328 clip, while Jimmy Bond, another outfielder is just a hair behind him with a .327 mark.

Pitcher Russ Smith is hitting .216, while third baseman Roland Hooks is at .302. Joey Moore, who has seen a lot of outfield duty, is hitting .250, while pitcher Glenn Forbes had a .267 mark and utility infielder Tommy Durham is hitting .235.

Overall, as a team, Greenville is hitting at .283 clip good in any league.

Russ Smith is the team's leading pitcher in earned run average, with a 1.07 mark. He has given up six earned runs in 50 and one-third innings.

Right behind him comes Byron Dickens, with a 1.13 mark and Glenn Forbes at 1.66.

objections in a 38-page report

Smith leads the team in strikeouts with 75, while Dickens has 59, and Forbes has 29.

Overall, the team has an excellent 4.14 ERA, allowing 73 earned runs in 158 and a third innings.

And is is at this point of the season that Holt feels that his team will really come through. At the start of the year, he felt that on a game-to-game basis, Greenville might be hurt at having to face the top pitchers on each team. But now, Greenville, according to Holt will have an advantage, with three fine starting pitchers, and plenty of reserve strength.

So if the pitching and hitting continues, Greenville might just be ready to challenge for state honors.

The team gets its first test Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington. Thursday the action switches to Ahoskie, then, if necessary returns here to Harrington Field on Saturday.

British Open Sees New Course

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — The Royal and Ancient Golf Club, staging the most successful and exciting British Open Championship in years, is looking along the fairway to greater glory.

Charles Lawrie, chairman of the R. and A.s Championship Committee, said: "It may not happen for 10 years but what we've got to have in these golfing isles is a course to match the champions.

"You have to think along the lines of creating a course that the R. and A. can run completely with all the best conditions possible."

That's revolutionary thinking even by today's swinging standards of the world's oldest governing body in golf, a club founded in 1754.

"I'm still in favor of the format under which the open is played at different courses throughout Britain," Lawrie said in an interview.

"Royal Birkdale has done a marvelous job providing viewing facilities for all the thousands of fans who are crowding the course every day.

"But wouldn't it be splended if we could construct a special course for many of the great tittle battles—perhaps a links type with not so many bunkers as you find beside the seaside but more water hazards of the kind featured on many fine American courses."

Lawrie said the sentimental idea might be to construct the course in Scotland, the home of the game, but the realistic thought would be to put it near a large center of population.

Colts Not To Be Sold (Now)

BALTIMORE (AP) — Owner Carroll Rosenbloom says he won't sell the Baltimore Colts football team unless son Steve, the new president, "becomes too unhappy."

"He has been brought up all his life as a Colt," Rosenbloom said of his 27-year-old son. "All he wants is to be in football and he wants to stay (in Baltimore)."

The elder Rosenbloom made the comments Friday in answer to a published story from Los Angeles that he would sell the Colts this year and attempt to buy the Rams.

According to the story by Melvin Durslag of the Hearst Headline Service, one of three prospective buyers for the Colts would buy the Rams and then trade them for the Colts.

Durslag said if Rosenbloom sold the Colts outright, he would have to pay a sizable capital gains tax on the National Football League team he has headed since 1953.

Under a trade, the story said, "the law presumably would permit him to forestall the tax payment until such time as he disposed of the Rams."

Rosenbloom stepped out as Colts this year and turned the operation over to Steve, although he retains the stock and is chairman of the board.

Homers Win 'Em

By The Associated Press

Home runs sparked victories for Lynchburg and Kinston in Carolina League action Friday night.

Home runs by Moe Hill and Craig Kusick lifted Lynchburg past Raleigh-Durham 6-3, and Jack Pierce slammed two home runs — his 10th and 11th of the season — to spark Kinston to an 8-7 victory over Rocky Mount.

Hill's fourth-inning solo broke a 3-3 tie and Kusick increased the margin with a two-run blast in the eighth.

Pierce's second homer, a 410-foot shot to right center, came in the eighth inning and provided Kinston with the winning cushion.

Kept alive when Peninsula shortstop Stirling Coward booted a double-play grounder, Salem broke lose for five runs in the sixth inning and handed the Peninsula Pilots a 10-7 loss.

In other league action Winston-Salem beat Burlington 3-0.

Lamm Leading Summer Hitting

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Third baseman Ralph Lamm of the top-place East Carolina Pirates has taken over the batting leadership in the North Carolina Collegiate Summer League with an average of .406.

The latest averages, through games of Tuesday, July 6, show North Carolina lefthander Jim Chamberlain with the best pitching statistics, a 3-1 record and a brilliant earned run average of 0.51.

The batting race shapes up as a lively one with 15 players on the five league teams currently hitting over .300. Trailing Lamm in second place is Louisburg's slugging first baseman Rick Richardson who has an average of .377.

Richardson is the league leader in two departments. He has the most hits, 20, and the most home runs, seven. North Carolina catcher Mike Roberts leads in runs batted in with 14 while UNC at Wilmington star Bill Hutchinson has the most doubles, five.

Rounding out the top five hitters behind Lamm and Richardson are Wilmington's Greg Dalton at .361, North Carolina's Jack Gillis at .350 and Campbell's Bill Ellington at .349.

Chamberlain has a wide lead in the pitching department. Wilmington's David Sandlin has the second best earned run average, 0.90, but has just a 1-1 record. Bob Becher of Louisburg leads in strikeouts with 32. Chamberlain is one behind at 31.

Here are the batting and pitching leaders:

Renko One-Hits Philadelphia

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Steve Renko's control was away for a little while, but there's no place like home to bring out the best in a pitcher.

"I was one pitch away from leaving," said Renko, who struggled with five walks through the first three innings, then found home plate and pitched a one-hit beauty as Montreal beat Philadelphia 3-0 Friday night.

Renko was around at the end, thanks to Manager Gene Mauch and catcher John Bateman. Mauch gave him more time—and Bateman gave him a timely tip.

"I haven't been too smart rushing to my bullpen lately and I decided to give Renko a little more time," said Mauch. "When you are not winning regularly, you tend to get a little too tight. He was overly cautious."

Bateman helped him find his control.

The Cincinnati Reds beat the New York Mets 6-4; the St. Louis Cardinals took a 5-2, 9-5 twi-night doubleheader from the Houston Astros; the Pittsburgh Pirates walloped the Atlanta Braves 11-2; the San Diego Padres swept the Chicago Cubs 1-0 and 7-2 and the San Francisco Giants turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4.

In the American League, it was New York 5, Boston 2; Detroit 1, Washington 0; Baltimore 4, Cleveland 1; Chicago 4, Milwaukee 1; Kansas City 6, Minnesota 3 and Oakland outlasted California 1-0 in a 20-inning battle.

Renko walked Larry Bowa and gave up his only hit of the game in the first inning—a single by rookie Willie Montanez. He walked three batters to load the bases in the third, then turned things around after inducing Deron Johnson to hit into a rally-killing double play.

After a walk to open the fourth inning, Renko set down the last 18 Phillies.

Renko also helped the Expos to their first run when he singled and eventually scored in the fifth inning.

Woody Woodward ripped two run-scoring hits and George Foster homered for another run as Cincinnati broke a seven-game losing streak. Woodward doubled in the first of two runs in the second inning and singled in the second run in a two-run third.

Foster's homer, his sixth, came in the sixth inning off Tug McGraw, who relieved Seaver in the fourth. It was the first run in 55 innings off the slick New York reliever.

Steve Carlton won his 12th game for St. Louis in the opener as Joe Torre's two-out double drove in a tie-breaking run in the third inning. Julian Javier's two triples drove in four runs to carry the Cardinals in the second game.

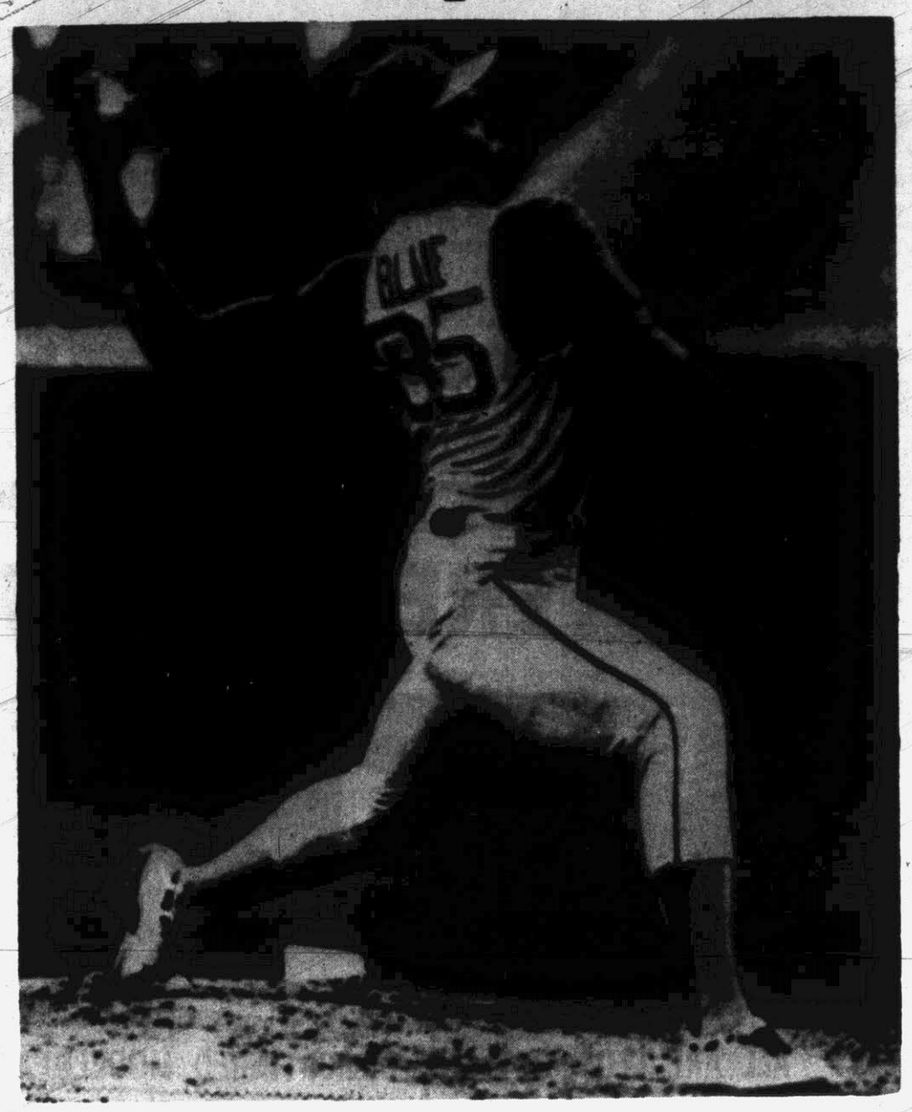
Willie Stargell and Richie Hebner cracked home runs and Manny Sanguillen belted a bases-loaded triple as Pittsburgh blasted Atlanta and pulled off a triple play in the process. Stargell's blast, a three-run shot, gave him 29 homers for the year and 85 runs batted in.

Ed Spiezio drove in the only run of the game with a sairifice fly in the fifth inning and Bob Miller provided though relief work in the ninth in San Diego's first-game triumph. Steve Arlin pitched a five-hitter and Nate Colbert knocked in four runs with three hits in the second game for the Padres.

Dick Dietz' two-run single knocked in the tying and go-ahead runs as San Francisco exploded for six runs in the ninth to beat Los Angeles.

TWO ACES ON 18th

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Seven irons produced two holes-in-one on the 18th hole at the Old White course here in mid-May. They were made by Mrs. Helen Post of Fort Washington, Pa., and R.W. Erskine of Santa Clara, Calif.



Enroute To All-Star Game

Angel Wins Game For A's After 20 Innings

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Oakland Athletics gave the California Angels 20 innings to perform a miracle, and then turned to their own little angel—Angel Mangual, bless him.

Mangual, a rookie at this business, put the Angels out of their misery, and the A's, too, for that matter, early this morning when he ended the longest scoreless game in American League history.

His single with two out and two on in the bottom of the 20th inning—just before the game would have suspended by curfew—must have seemed like a miracle to the A's for Oakland's 1-0 victory over the Angels.

Oakland owner Charles Finley even stayed up for the ending, and was so happy he called the clubhouse with order for Mangual to go out and buy a $200 suit and charge it to Finley.

Mangual's hit, suit and the 20 innings overshadowed an amazing performance by little Freddie Patek, who hit for the cycle in slugging the Kansas City Royals to a 6-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

In other AL games, Baltimore beat Cleveland 4-1, the New York Yankees upended Boston 5-2, the Chicago White Sox tripped Milwaukee 4-1 and Detroit needed only 11 innings to beat Washington 1-0.

In the National League, Pittsburgh blasted Atlanta 11-2, Cincinnati defeated the New York Mets 6-2, San Francisco overcame Los Angeles 7-4, Montreal blanked Philadelphia 3-0, St. Louis swept a twi-night doubleheader from Houston 5-2 and 9-5 and San Diego did the same to the Chicago Cubs 1-0 and 7-2.

Mangual, a .322 hitter entering the game, came to the plate knowing that if the A's didn't score, the game would be suspended by the 1 a.m. (local time) curfew, to be completed before today's regularly scheduled affair.

With Curt Blefary on after being hit by a pitch and taking second on Dick Green's single, Mangual ran the count to 2-2 against reliever Mel Queen, working his third inning. Then he lined a fast ball into right field, the opposite field.

"I wasn't sure if it was a strike, but I couldn't take a chance on letting it go by," he said in the broken English he has learned since coming from Puerto Rico.

Had he instead struck out, it would have been an appropriate way to suspend the game. After all, there were a major league record 43 strike outs in the game, a record 26 by California hitters, including a record-tying six by Billy Cowan. The old major league marks were 22 and 36.

Vida Blue, thwarted in his bid for an 18th victory, got 17 of those strike outs in the 11 innings he pitched, allowing seven of California's 11 hits. But Rudy May matched him with 13 victims and gave only three of Oakland's seven safeties—three by Mangual—in 12 innings of work.

Rollie Fingers went another seven innings for Oakland, fanning seven and giving only two hits, before Bob Locker and winner Darold Knowles finished.

Eddie Fisher pitched five scoreless innings after May.

The game broke the American League mark of 17 scoreless innings by both clubs, but fell short of the major league record of 23 by Houston and the New York Mets in 1968 when Houston won in 24 innings.

Patek made certain there would be no miracles needed in his game when he blessed the Royals with a two-run, tie-breaking homer in the ninth inning, followed by Paul Schaal's homer.

Earlier, the pint-sized Patek, 5-foot-4, 145 pounds, doubled and scored on Schall's single, singled and scored on Amos Otis's two-run single, and tripled.

Every other game in the AL also featured outstanding pitching performances, by Jim Palmer of Baltimore, Mel Stottlemyre of New York, Joel Horlen of Chicago, Joe Coleman of Detroit and rookie Pete Broberg of Washington.

Palmer stopped Cleveland on five hits for his 11th victory against four losses and struck out nine. The Indians gave him all the runs he needed as two passed balls by Chuck Hinton, two walks of loser Steve Dunning, 6-7, and a hit batsman led to three runs in the first inning.

Three more walks and a sacrifice fly scored another run in the sixth as Cleveland lost its eighth game in nine tries.

Stottlemyre, 9-7, tossed a four-hitter and drove the tie-breaking homer into the left field seats in the seventh inning. The Yankees added two more runs in the eighth off loser Gary Peters, 8-6.

Horlen tamed Milwaukee on seven hits, giving only an unearned run as the raised his record to 4-6. Carlos May capped Chicago's. four-run second inning with a two-run single.

Coleman, 8-6, allowed only four hits through 10 innings to get the victory as the Tigers scored in the 11th on Ed Brinkman's squeeze bunt. Jim Northrup had singled and reached third on a wild pitch and a fly.

Young Broberg survived five hits, three wild pitches and three hit batsmen in shutting out the Tigers for the first nine innings.

HAVELOCK — Greenville stayed alive Friday night in the Babe Ruth Area tournament, beating Havelock, 5-1, in the losers bracket. Pitt County, however, fell, 2-1, to New Bern in the winners' bracket.

The results set up another meeting between Greenville and Pitt County Saturday night with the winner meeting New Bern in a second game.

Greenville, playing the first game, pushed into the lead, scoring all the runs it needed in the first inning. David Clifton reached on an error and stole second. Steve Fuchs walked and Donald Cannon singled to left to score Clifton. Donnie Haddock reached on an error, bringing in Fuchs.

Greenville added another run in the second, going into a 3-0 lead. Bobby Kittrell singled to open the second, and Robert Brinkley got a hit. Clifton then singled to drive in Kittrell.

Havelock came up with its only run in the fifth inning. With one out, Freeman drew a walk, then with two away, another walk put Tolar on base. Nelson singled to left, driving in Freeman with the lone run.

Greenville added two more runs in the sixth inning. Clifton walked and stole second, scoring on Fuchs' hit to left. Fuchs then came around to score on a passed ball.

Clifton, in hurling the victory allowed only two hits by Havelock as he struck out nine and walked two.

In the second game, Pitt County pushed ahead in the second inning, scoring its only run. William Carmon reached on an error and stole second. He moved into third on Greg Nelson's sacrifice and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ricky Thorne.

It stayed that way until the seventh inning, when New Bern pushed over two runs to gain the victory. Tyson reached on an error and Wiggins doubled. Gathercoal then singled, driving in both runners for the win.

A lone victory by New Bern last night in the final game would send that team to next week's state tournament. Should New Bern have lost, however a final game would be played today, with the winner getter the state berth.

St. James Is American Champ

Saint James won the American League crown Friday by downing First Presbyterian 5-1. A four way tie for fourth developed in the National League between Piney Grove, Immanuel, Mt. Pleasant, and Black Jack.

In the other games, Marantha slipped by Mt. Pleasant 5-1, Trinity crushed St. Gabriel 13-5, and Black Jack beat Immanuel 10-3.

St. James took the lead on two home runs. Roy Carrawan hit one in the third and Dave Wilcox homered in the fourth.

Maranatha scored two in the first but Mt. Pleasant came back in the second with seven runs to take the lead. Alton Jones singled, Billy Ross doubled, Buddy Teel singled, Howard Bullock got a double. William Nobles singled to drive in Bullock and after Travis Doughtry got a hit, Harold Barnes homered. Mt. Pleasant got five in the third and seven more in the fifth.

Black Jack got all they needed in the first to beat Immanuel. Randy Dixon singled but was caught at second when Talmadge Adams reached on a fielder's choice. J.T. Mills doubled to score Adams, Steve Peele, Billy Elks, and Bill Carson all got hits, and Randy McCarter walked. George Holland, Charlie Padgett, and Dixon reached on singles in the eight-hit inning.

Trinity also took the lead in the first. Jerry Ratcliff, Donald Bowen, Jackie Moye and Smith Worthington all doubled for the first three runs. Doug Norville homered scoring Worthington. Doanld Buck got a hit and scored on a triple by Glen Worthington.

St. James finished the season on top of the American division with a record of 17-2; Meadowbrook was second at 16-3; Presbyterian had a mark of 13-6; while Belvoir has a record of 8-11, Christian was 6-13, and St. Gabriel was 4-15, and Trinity, 3-16.

In the National Division, Grace finished on top with a record of 12-7 and Mt. Pleasant ended up in second at 11-8. The other four teams drew straws to break the tie. Piney Grove came out third, Oakmont fourth, Immanuel fifth, and Black Jack was sixth, all finishing 10-9. Maranatha seventh at 3-16.

The post-season tournament will get underway Monday night. In the first round, Belvoir meets Christian at 7:30 and Presbyterian takes on St. Gabriel at 9 p.m. in the American Division. Tuesday, Trinity will meet Meadowbrook, while St. James takes on the Belvoir-Christian winner.

In the National Division, Oakmont meets Immanuel at 7:30 with Piney Grove and Black Jack meeting at 9 p.m. The first round is completed Wednesday when Mt. Pleasant meets Maranatha and Grace takes on the Oakmont-Immanuel winner. The tournament is a double-elimination affair.

Aussie Girl In New World Mark

By ERIC PREWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Shane Gould started the day with a breakfast of canned spaghetti on toast and ended it with another world record to her credit.

"I was just hoping for some good times here," the 14-year-old Australian girl said Friday after a world record 4:21.2 in the women's 400-meter freestyle and meet record 59.3 in the 100 freestyle gave her two victories in the opening day of the three-day Santa Clara International swimming meet.

Good times are coming to mean world record times for the teen-age star, especially when she swims against Australian Teammate Karen Moras, 17. Miss Moras finished second in the 400 freestyle in 4:26.5, and also lost the world record of 4:22.6 she established less than three months ago in London.

The new record holder, a 5-foot-7 blonde who wears her hair short and has braces on her teeth, now owns three world marks. In a London meet earlier this year, she lowered the women's 200 freestyle record to 2:06.5 and equaled the 100 freestyle record of 58.9.

Australia picked up another first when Graham Windeatt beat a great field, including world record holder Gunnar Larsson of Sweden, in the men's 400 freestyle. Nikolai Pankin and Galina Stepanova, members of the first Russian team to ever enter a U.S. swimming meet, won the men's and women's 200 breastrokes. Pankin won a duel with world record holder Brian Job of the host Santa Clara Swim Club.

Wineatt, timed in 4:05.5, and Pankin, a 2:25.7 winner, set meet records. Miss Stepanova won in 2:44.7.

Mark Spitz, the Californian who had won 11 events in the first four years of this meet, took the 100-meter freestyle Friday in 53.0. It was one of just three times that didn't set a meet record.

Susie Atwood, women's world record holder for the 200 backstroke, was a 1:23.2 winner in her specialty for a met record.

Miss Gould has been a spaghetti and toast girl for some time. Although its not your typical Australian breakfast, it's loaded with carbohydrates, which swimmers and many other athletes stoke up on before competing.

Wildlife Afield: Jack Gets Bum Rap

By JIM DEAN

While I was in Florida recently, I had a free afternoon and began looking for a place to catch a world record bass. (My understanding from Florida's fishing promotion division is that world record bass are caught on every trip).

"There's not a real good bass spot right around here," said a local angler who had offered his services as a guide, "Of course, we could go out on the river and catch a few big old jack, but most everbody considers that a waste of time."

"How big are these big old jacks?" I asked.

"Three, for, maybe five pounds," was the laconic reply.

"Shake hands with an expert at wasting time." I said, offering my right appendage.

We went after the jacks but caught none (and unless I am misled, I may be the only fisherman to ever wet a line in Florida without catching a world record).

What really interested me about this trip was my friend's distaste for one of the most sporting fish in fresh water. You hear the same thing in North Carolina. "Only a jerk would fish for a jack."

The jack is really a chain pickerel. He is not a pike, as so many would have you believe. In fact, there are no pike in North Carolina, or Florida for that matter. And don't tell me a walleye is a pike, because he's a perch.

Now that you are properly confused, allow me to further your state of chaos. There are three species of pickerel in North Carolina — the chain pickerel, the redfish pickerel and the grass pickerel. The latter two species rarely get more than about a foot long, but the chain pickerel occasionally reaches nine or ten pounds. The state record is an eight pound chain caught by John H. Leonard in Gaston Lake in 1968.

Most chain pickerel average one to two pounds, although a three or four pounder is not uncommon in some waters.

In my opinion, the old chainsides has only one disadvantage. He is boney and inferior eating compared to many other freshwater fish. In every other category, he comes on strong. His reputation as a fighter is not high, but my experience with pickerels indicate that they are at least as spectacular on the end of a line as a largemouth bass of equal weight. I, for one, would rather catch a four-pound jack than a five-pound largemouth.

One of the chain pickerel's biggest assets is his appetite. He has the table manners of a weak king, and he'll eat almost anything that moves winter, spring, summer and fall.

The best artificial lures for pickerel are probably spoons and or spinners, particularly if they have a dash of red on them or a strip of pork rind. Most plugs are fair game for pickerel also, and my favorites are the Rebel, Rapala and floating diving Bassmaster. Jack will also sock a surface lure, though probably not as quickly as a bass. Some fishermen use nothing but fly rods and popping bugs for pickerel. The best pickerel bait is a live minnow.

Chain pickerel seem to prefer weedy areas, particularly in fairly shallow water not more than three feet deep. One of the best places to find them is over a shallow, weedy bar in a lake.

I also frequently catch them in deeper water, but I have noticed that strikes rarely occur unless the bottom is weedy or fairly well choked with stumps.

In rivers and small creeks, the pickerel is in his element, and I know of no greater sport than wading and fishing Piedmont and coastal creeks in late fall or early spring using ultra-light spinning tackle and small spinners. A 15-inch jack in a small creek on light tackle will turn you every way — including loose.

One reminder. When you try to land a jack, use a net. Don't "lip" him the way you would a largemouth. A mental lapse on this point will leave your thumb well ventilated.

Drownproofing May Save Someone's Life

By RAY SCHARF
Aquatic Director and Swimming Coach
East Carolina University

A person who does not know how to swim can avert disaster in the water with a little knowledge and some self confidence. By developing the ability to float, that is to be able to stay at or near the surface of the water with a minimum amount of effort for an indefinite period of time, he can insure himself against fatigue in an aquatic accident.

Fear, panic and exhaustion are the biggest causes of drowning. Fear and panic cause you to work harder to stay afloat. When you work harder, you get panicky. Then you become more exhausted. Finally you go down!

In 1941 Fred Lanow, swimming coach at Georgia Tech, developed a tremendous techinque for staying afloat for long periods of time called DROWNPROOFING.

DROWNPROOFING teachers a person to stay afloat in the water for hours. The idea is to use as little energy as possible. It will build up your confidence knowing that you are buoyant in the water. We have two built-in floats in our bodies (our lungs), and all we have to do is learn how to use them properly.

Some of the most important factors in drownproofing are relaxation and the exchange of air. Here is how you do it:

1. Following a deep breath, lay your head forward with chin on chest. Extend your arms forward. You are in a face-down-position.

2. Hold your breath, as this serves to inflate the lungs and keep the body in a good floating position.

3. When you feel a need for air, push the water sidewards and downwards with the hands until the hands come in contact with the sides and at the same time complete the scissors kick. This will cause the head to raise up out of the water.

Raise the head quickly and smoothly and stop while the chin is still in the water. Exhalation is started through the mouth or nose when you are pushing the water downwards. A quick breath is taken through the mouth, inflating the lungs, at the peak of the ascent.

4. After the inspiration has been completed the body returns to the starting position with the arms extended forward.

Unless you are pinned down underwater, dazed or unconscious; injured or very badly cramped DROWNPROOFING guarantees that you will be able to survive almost any water accident regardless of age, sex or condition.

SORA RAIL

Small, secretive and inquisitive marsh bird, the sora has a slim body, slender legs and long toes, enabling it to scamper about among tangled reeds and patter over lily pads. More often heard than seen. Its call is a series of rapid, whistled notes descending in scale. Nests in grass or reeds over water, may contain anywhere from 9 to 18 eggs, sometimes in two layers. Soras are found across Canada east of the Rockies.

Ocean Racing Group Has Unique History

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI)—The recently concluded Fourth Biennial Block Island Week brings to mind the unique history of its sponsors, the Storm Trysail Club.

The birth of this outstanding organization of ocean racing sailors, according to club historians, dates back to a gale that scattered the 1936 Bermuda Race fleet.

They say the exact time was the instant when the yacht Salee's mainsail blew out beyond repair and the storm trysail was set for the juryrigged trip home.

In the following winter of 1936-37, a number of crews from the ill-fated Bermuda Race, including that of the Salee, got together in New York from time to time and from these informal meetings the club was founded.

The name, Storm Trysail Club, was arrived at easily, a burgee was designed and dues were set at one bottle of Jamaica rum.

Race Committee — Formed

No efforts were made to recruit new members but one or two drifted in occasionally. The first annual meeting, with 22 attending, was held in February, 1938, and a constitution ratified. The membership reached 33 in February, 1939, and dues of $3 per year were voted.

A race committee was formed in 1941 and its first scheduled event was a sail from New London, Conn., to Hampton, Va., in cooperation with the Hampton Yacht Club. Twenty yachts participated and the Storm Trysail Club was established as a race-sponsoring club. The membership began to climb.

There were 67 members in the club when war broke out and within six months all but a half dozen were in the services. For the duration of the war, the club was dormant, but the burgee flew on many beaches from Europe to the Pacific.

When the war ended, the membership was slowly reassembled and in 1946 launched a series of Memorial Day races which have been held annually since.

In 1964, past Commodore Jakob Isbrandtsen and Everett B. Morris, yachting editor, urged the club to establish Block Island Week. They felt that American sailors should have something patterned after the famed Cowes Week in England where the original America's cup was won by the schooner America in 1851.

Social Activities

As club officials explain it, the dominant theme of Block Island Week is hard racing in fine competition with time for daily camaraderie in complete informality.

The camaraderie is stimulated by a full week of social activities that include trap shooting, tug-of-war contests, kite-flying, even balloon flying, plus innumerable cocktail parties and receptions.

More than 200 sailing craft participated in this year's Block Island Week.

Membership in the Storm Trysail Club is by invitation only, and to quote from the Club's By-Laws:

"Candidates must have set a storm trysail under storm conditions offshore, or have weathered a storm at sea under greatly reduced canvass. They also must be experienced blue-water amateur sailors, capable of taking command of a sailing vessel offshore under any or all conditions."

Stottlemyre In One-Hit Victory

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Peters broke up Mel Stottlemyre's no-hitter Friday night but Stottlemyre went him one better—he broke up Peters' ball game.

And minutes after the right-handed ace of the New York Yankees had turned back the Boston Red Sox 5-2, snapping a tie with a towering seventh-inning home run, his target became the Yanks' publicity partment.

Stottlemyre telephoned the pressbox to let everyone know that it was his seventh career homer—not the sixth as the Yankees announced. In fact, the teams' press guide lists Stottlemyre with five homers before this season.

"I spotted the error during the spring," Stottlemyre grinned. "But I purposely waited until I hit one to let them know about it. If I didn't hit one this year I would have waited until next year."

Stottlemyre recalls all seven homers. One came off Peters when the lefthander was with the Chicago White Sox. Two were off Chicago's Wilbur Wood. And one each off Baltimore's Mike Cuellar, California's Howe Reed and Boston's Bill Monbouquette. The last one was an inside-the-park grandslam.

"The grandslam and one off Wood on the road also won games," Stottlemyre remembered. "But this was by far the best one I ever hit. It was one of the few I didn't have to look at. I was sure it was gone."

Stottlemyre didn't allow a hit until Peters singled with two out in the fifth.

"I'm not the hitter he is," Stottlemyre said. "He probably doesn't have as much fear for me as I have for him. He threw me only fast balls when I hit the homerun. He probably thought I was getting tired and couldn't get the bat around."

Despite temperatures in the 80s and high humidity, Stottlemyre said he felt strong all night. And despite his tie-breaking home run, he was happier with his pitching.

Walt Tkaczuk led the New York Rangers in scoring last season with 75 points on 26 goals and 49 assists.

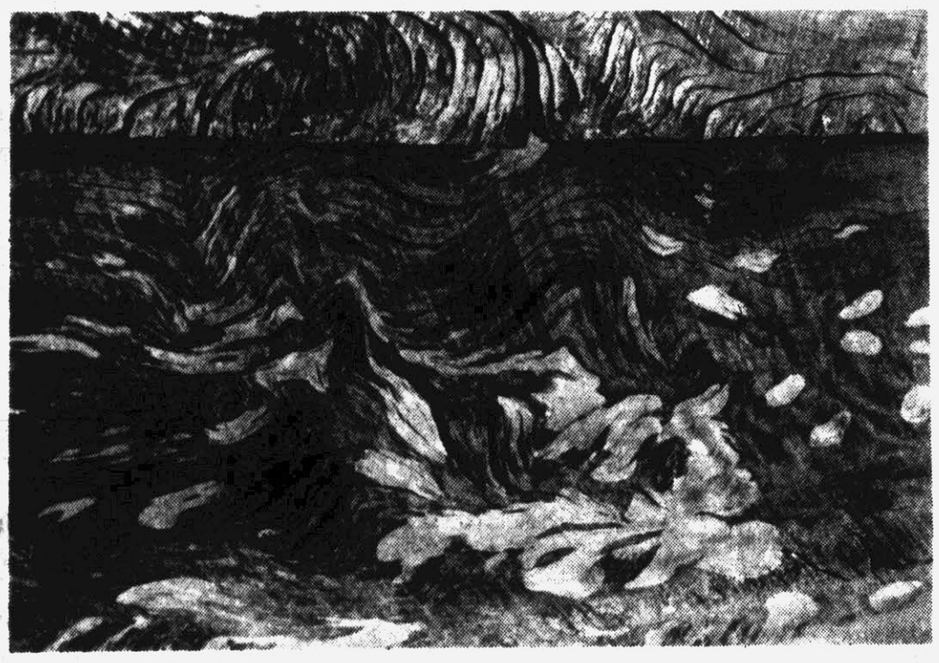
Wood Ages Into A Thing Of Beauty



Unpainted lumber, exposed to sun, wind and rain—the cold of winter and the heat of summer over a long period of time, ages into surfaces that create its own form of beauty.

Under pressure of contraction and expansion, the natural swirls of grain in the wood fissures into accentuated etched lines deepening into the surface.

Sun and rain create changes in color, gradually fading the golden white of newly cut lumber into the patina of aged wood—silvery gray in the sun, greenish gray after moisture saturates the wood.

The wall photographed on this page has acquired an added subtle mark of beauty in the past five years. Flecks and spots of bleached areas, resembling white flames flickering in movement against the gray surface, are mysterious patterns in the aging process.

These photographs were all taken of one wall of a mule stable, built 35 years ago from trees cut on the farm on which the stable was built.

THE 24 HOURS OF LE MANS — Filmed on French location, this adventure is set against the background of the famed 24-hour sports car race of Le Mans. Steve McQueen and Elga Anderson star. Sunday through Tuesday.

BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID — Paul Newman and Robert Redford are an outlaw team growing disenchanted with a growing, changing West. Following a couple of train robberies, they pick up Redford's girlfriend Katherine Ross, and head for Bolivia with a marshal in pursuit. Ross tires of the life they lead and returns to the States; Butch and Sundance are trapped and killed in a climactic ending. (M)

VANISHING POINT — On a California highway at 10:02 a. m. of a Sunday, police cars chase Barry Newman. His car disappears as the story goes back to the previous weekend. He has to deliver a souped-up Challenger to San Fransisco on Monday. On the way, he meets honeymooning homosexulas, police, a desert rat, a "hippie" and his nude girl friend. Newman spends the night with hiker Charlotte Rapling and then heads for his fate, at 10:04 a. m., crashing into a road block. (R) Double feature, Wednesday through Saturday.

Plaza Cinema

PLAZA SUITE — Walter Matthau stars in the screen adaptation of Neil Simon's Broadway hit. In the story, three couples occupy Suite 719 of the Plaza Hotel in New York City at odd times. Matthau plays three distinct roles as he occupies the suite with three different women — played by Maureen Stapleton, Lee Grant, and Barbara Harris. (GP) Sunday through Tuesday.

Myers

THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT — Owlish George Segal and catty Barbra Striesand live in the same apartment building, and continually annoy each other. When Segal informs the landlord of her "gentlemen callers" which have been making enough noise to disturb his typing, the lady, —suitcases, TV and all — moves in on Segal. The resulting confusion is enough to get them both thrown out. After moving in and out of various friends' homes, they decide to divest themselves of all their prejudices and pretensions and start over. (R) Sunday through Wednesday.

ZEPPELIN — Michael York and Elke Sommer star in this British-made World War I adventure story about an effort to thwart Germany's new air weapon. (G) Thursday through Saturday.

Tice

LITTLE BIG MAN — Dustin Hoffman plays a 121 year-old Indian who is recounting his life experiences to a historian. At an early age, Hoffman is captured by Indians and raised as a Red man. He later adopts the white man's way of life, and, after suffering great disillusionment, deliberately leads Custer into an ambush at Little Big Horn. He finally returns to life with the Indians. (GP) Sunday through Tuesday.

LOVE STORY — Alone after the death of his young wife, Ryan O'Neal reminisces over their life together as he sits in wintry Central Park. Despite their differences — she's poor, he's wealthy; she loves her father, he hates his; she wants to be an artist, he wants to be a lawyer — they have an affair which blossoms into marriage. After a few happy months together, a doctor tells O'Neal that his wife, Ali MacGraw, is dying. "Love means never having to say you're sorry . . ." (GP) Starts Wednesday.

WILLY WONKA AND THE CHOCOLATE FACTORY — Based on the children's classic "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory", poor but honest young Charlie Bucket wins a tour of Wolly Wonka's factory, filled with a chocolate river and waterfall, marshmallow-stuffed mushrooms and constant surprises. At the end of the tour, Charlie finds that he has proven worthy to inherit the factory. (G) Wednesday through Saturday.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—That veteran host of game shows, Bill Cullen, will be back at his specialty Aug. 2 when NBC puts a new series, "Three on a Match," in the 1:30-2 p.m. spot, Monday through Fridays. It replaces "Joe Garagiloa's Memory Game."

CBS will broadcast the semifinals and finals of the first annual Tennis Tournament of Champions at Hilton Head Island, S.C., Aug. 28-29. Four contestants will be selected on the basis of World Championship of Tennis pro tour points.

John Hotchkis will be a regular member of the cast of ABC's "The Odd Couple" during the coming season. She made four appearances this season in the role of Dr. Nancy Cunningham, friend of the Oscar Madison character played by Jack Klugman.

NBC has set Sept. 9 as the time for repeating "An Evening with Julie Andrews and Harry Belafonte," the one-hour musical originally telecast Nov. 9, 1969.

ABC and the PGA Tournament Players Diviision have reached an agreement giving the network exclusive video rights to six major golf tourneys in 1972.

Mia Farrow's first television work since she left the "Peyton Place" series several years ago will be done in "Goodbye, Rag Doll," an original 90-minute film-for-video to be broadcast by CBS on a Friday night in the coming season. She plays an actress trying for a Hollywood career.

Free-Wheeling MAME Opens Thursday

Sharing Is . . .

OPERATION HAPPINESS . . . Edgar Loessin, director of East Carolina Summer Theater, had the pleasure of welcomimg 100 children from the Free Will Baptist Orphanage at Middlesex and from Operation Sunshine in Greenville when they attended a matinee performance of "Oliver" last Wednesday afternoon. Loessin is shown talking to a few of the group. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

Last week the East Carolina Summer Theatre opened its season with OLIVER and played to packed houses and impressive reviews.

After this successful opening, the season continues this week with one of New York's longest running hits—MAME. Opening Thursday night at McGinnis Auditorium, MAME will star Miss Denise Lor in the title role. Americans first encountered MAME, her flippancies and her precocious nephew in the novel by Patrick Dennis called "Auntie Mame". This was in 1954, and the lady's escapades in the raucous 1920's, the depression 1930's and thereafter, so delighted readers that they bought a whopping two and a quarter million copies of the book.

Two years later "Auntie Mame" flounced through a triumphant stage play, three years after that she frolicked in a movie version, and she scored the biggest hit of all in the 1966 musical that is now coming to the E. C. Summer Theatre. The musical with a book again written by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, who adapted the first "straight" (non-musical) stage presentation, and with a dozen rollicking songs by Jerry Herman, song-writer for HELLO, DOLLY!

Mame's story remains more or less the same in this latest version — the story of a gay, flamboyant madcap of the roaring 1920's who gets orphaned, ten-year-old nephew thrust into her guardianship in the midst of one of her huge cocktail parties, thronged by New York's celebrities, wits and weirdies, and carries on from there through the stringencies of the 1929 financial crash that wipes her out, marriage to a fabulous scion of the old south, and affluent widowhood.

An enduring enemy of dullness and Philistinism, Mame is jolted to find, when her adored nephew grows up, that he has fallen in love with a stupid girl whose family's taste runs to drinks made of rum and honey, and their prejudices to a similar strickness. But Mame manages to demolish that match and to get a nephew Patrick hitched to a girl worth of the extra-dry martini training she has given him.

Richard Cray will portray the precocious Patrick as a boy of ten, Michael Hardy as the boy when grown to manhood. Others in the large cast will be Camille Hardy as Mame's long-standing actress-friend (the two have a hilarious duet called "Bosom Buddies," in which they cattily tell off each other's faults), Baillie Gerstein as the old maidish bringer of Patrick into Mame's life, who remains forever in her House-hold, Paul Buche as the stodgy banker who tires to foil Mame's plans for educating Patrick and Stuart Aronson as the man who becomes her husband just long enough to leave his fortune to her.

Stan Page, who appeared in the original Broadway version, is directing these free-wheeling capers of Mame's career over 18 years, Robert T. Williams is designing the scenes which range from Mame's sybaritic New York apartment to the portico of a fox-hunting Southern family, a barn-dance in a Connecticut suburb, backstage at a theatre where Mame tries disastrously to become an actress, and a super-elegant barber-shop where, as an inept manicurist in her days of hardship, she meets her Southern beau.

Miss Lor's thirteen slinky robes, gowns, suits, dresses, and her red-jacketed riding habit for the fox-hunting first-act finale, are being designed by Winn Morton, who is also supplying a huge wardrobe for the other members of the cast.

Reigning Miss America Thinking Of Her Future

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Phyllis George, reigning "Miss America" for another couple of months, tired of hearing "There She Is" —played on everything from a kazoo to a military band —at every public appearance?

Silly question. Is Queen Elizabeth sick of "God Save the Queen"? Or Mr. Nixon bored with "Hail to the Chief"?

"Oh, no," said the brown-haired, 22-year-old beauty from Denton, Tex. "I love that. What I'm really sick of is "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head" and "Promises, Promises." They were the two numbers I played on the piano in the talent part of the pageant and they always ask you to play them. I like to do other things."

Phyllis, in town for a few personal appearances and a lot of dress shopping, is begining to consider seriously her future plans, although the final months as "Miss America" will be as busy as earlier ones and may even include a U.S.O. tour to foreign parts. So far, on behalf of the pageant people and assorted sponsors, she has visited 35 states. It will be 45 before she is finished and made a trip to the Bahamas.

"I'll probably go back to finish college and do some more work toward my bachelor's degree," she said. "I'll take a light schedule—about six hours a week because I think I want to do some modeling. I'd like to do commercials because I've had some good experience, and now I've been on network television seven or eight times."

Tall, outgoing and articulate, Phyllis (who has been majoring in speech and education at North Texas State has a pleasant whisper of Texas in accents and a habit of saying you-all often.

"Right after it was over, people recognize me on the street," she said. "I guess I made a big impression when I dropped my crown right in front of the cameras and audience. Now I'm recognized quite a lot when I wear my hair up. But I'm just Phyllis when it's down."

Whether her hair is up or down, Phyllis on Sept. 11 will become a Miss America Emeritus with a nice nest egg. She estimates that among her activities—appearances, TV commercials and such—she will have made around $50,000 during the year.

One of the excitements of her year—and one of her problems —has been clothes. The pageant outfits her lavishly, but with all the traveling around it is hard to know what kind of clothes to pack when the temperature may go, in a day from frigid to tropcial.

"If I'm going to hit two climates, I take two wardrobes," she said. "I have two suitcases and a valpack. Four long gowns go into the valpack, and I also carry along a couple of suits and at least two dresses—the after-5 kind."

And, of course, the crown goes everywhere with her.

Phyllis is glad that she has been Miss America in 1971—some of the pageant rules have been relaxed. She—and her chaperone, too—turned up for the interview in smart pant suits.

"This is the first year we've been allowed to wear them," she said.

FLOWERS AND THEIR HISTORIES. Alice M. Coats. McGraw-Hill Book Company, New York. 1971. 346 pp. $10.00.

Alice M. Coats of Birmingham, England gives us in this new edition of her book, first published in 1956, another chance to enjoy her scholarly but charmingly written accounts of the life stories of some 400 garden flowers, plants and herbs. The addition of seven genera and twenty-four species to the original number brings even more facts together about "the most familiar of our flowers and their historical and human relationships". Though the whole work is definitely British and many of the flowers and plants are mainly and better known to British gardeners for use in their borders — narrow flower beds — and herb gardens, a goodly number are well known and native to America. This makes the book with its folklore and quotations from the old herbals, early botanical and horticultural sources and literary works most interesting as well as delightful and informative reading.

The history of these flowers and plants is given in separate accounts, alphabetically arranged by Latin generic name from ACANTHUS to ZINNIA. However there is, for the non-scientist and horticultural novice, a comprehensive index of English (British) popular names when they differ from the Latin names. Each popular name is followed by the Latin name so it is easily possible to find the main entry and account of the desired flower, plant or herb.

Many of the common or popular names are distinctly British, as, for example 'Codlins and Cream' for a NARCISSUS variety which is known in North Carolina as 'Butter and Eggs'. Some of the quaint popular names given in the index are 'Bridget in Her Bravery', 'Fox and Cubs', 'Cull Me To You' and 'Grim the Collier'.

In writing the history of GLADIOLUS Miss Coats states: "The progress of the gladiolus in this country mounts in a satisfying curve which would make an admirable graph to hang on the wall of an office". She then proceeds to trace the history of the flower from the origin of the name from the Latin for sword (GLADIOLUS) which comes from the shape of the leaves, through the earliest records of the plant in 1578 in Lyte's Nievve Herball in the garden list of William Mount, and then on to the hybrids, the first of importance being the Ghent Gladiolus produced about 1837 by M. Bedinghaus, gardener to the Duke of Arenberg.

In the third part of the book are short biographies of some botanists and gardening people from Theophrastus of classical antiquity through Strabo of the 'dark ages', William Turner, Henry Lyte, John Gerard of the Renaissance, Linnaeus and finally to Reginald Farrer who collected rock garden plants in Japan, the Alps and the Himalayas.

This book is good leisure reading for the layman and for the gardener, but should be read a bit at a time for it is really a reference book and a valuable one and as such should not be read continuously 'from cover to cover'. The student of the history of science should also find it of definite value and interest.

COME BACK TO THE FARM: by Jesse Stuart; New York McGraw-Hill Book Company; 1971; 246 pp.; $6.95.

This collection of 16 tales about the people of the Appalachians is a blend of folktale; poetry and realistic observation. Jesse Stuart is the well-known Kentucky author of some 25 previous books of fiction; poetry, and autobiography about these rugged people and their colorful ways. Some readers will remember the story of his youthful school-teaching days; "The Thread that Runs So True."

Many of the stories in Come Back to the Farm have the timeless quality of folktales. "Maybelle's First-born," for instance; recounts the superstition that if "you pull your tooth now; your first-born will have a cleavage in the roof of the mouth!" Before rescue comes; the young mother-to-be must sit in a rocker placed in a lard can "with my feet and legs up nearly to my knees in the hot wood ashes to draw the pizen from my tooth and the swelling from my jaw." In "Give Charlie a Little Time" an unpredictable bull does his proper business uninvited with all the neighbors' cows but has a most unusual relationship with his own. And "A Pilgrim Out in Space" introduces the incomparable Reverand Ezekiel Wrenhouse, who interprets the Blue Eagle in the store window as the Mark of the Beast and battles with fists and Bible to vote the fiend out at the next election.

These stories are also filled with poetry. The poetry of land and work is in "Victory and the Dream": "Gray ash lay on the ground where brush heaps and log piles had burned, and the earth was like a dark skin with gray spots. Furrow by furrow, go to one end of the field, there turn and back to the other with my mules walking steadily along, while the small roots snapped in front of my cutter like white threads." The poetry of character is seen in the description of Fonse Timberlake when "the wind pushed his beard, as reddish-brown and soft as summer love vines, against his lean slabby cheeks," or in the description of Little Fonse who when his live rattlesnake was taken away began "snifflin" like a rabbit smellin' green clover in the early spring."

Finally, the tales in Come Back to the farm present a realistic picture of a passing rural way of life. Eighty-six year old Uncle Thorny Kirk pronounces a theme of many of the stories when he says in "The Best Years of Our Lives": "Now, my farm will only pay my taxes. It can't pay for its own improvements. The world has changed. Don't people eat anymore? What's happened the government pays us not to produce? We've got more people, haven't we? I've never seen anything like it." And the author passes the following judgement: "The flesh, blood, brain, and heart of his people were made of a richer pioneer dust that was durable, good, and lasting in its day and time. None has since equalled it." But there is also the sad recognition of inevitable change in the bittersweet final story, "Eighty-one Summers," where the author pictures his own impatience with an old farmer who stopped the author's car to return a small loan and talk: "I didn't know where the birds' nests were and where the patches of snow-white percoon grew and bloomed in late March and early April. I never had time to find it now...And I wondered how I ever got around without my car and a good road . My world had changed; too, but I didn't tell Cass. I didn't want to talk any longer. I'd lost all this time because he wanted to return a feed sack."

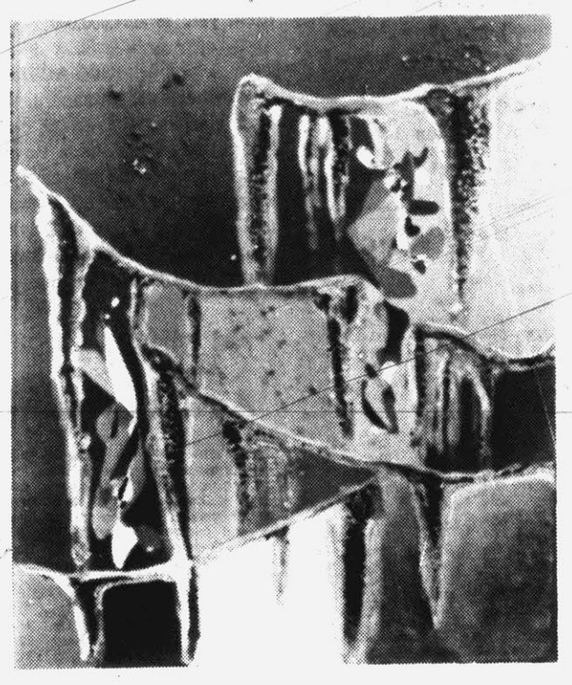
Gretta Saunders

Small Show At ECU Student Union



The School of Art at East Carolina University is providing a two-fold service by keeping at least limited exhibits of art on view this summer. It's a chance to see something new during the slack summer period, when the Art Center is closed and the bigger School of Art exhibits are in recess until the fall quarter.

Currently, in the showcase and on display panels in the Student Union Lobby, senior art student Mrs. Gretta Therrel Saunders is showing a relatively small, but varied show that includes oil and acrylic paintings, charcoal drawings, watercolors, weaving and a sculpture of flecked composition material.

The watercolors come off best, works that make use of many small areas of bright, singing colors with touches of wet wash adding interest.

Three or four charcoal drawings have a good feeling for line. A couple of studies of a young boy capture the arrested movements of the physical restlessness of the sitter. The composition sculpture seems to be unresolved.

It's good to have a chance to see Mrs. Saunders' work at this time. She leaves soon to do student teaching in Wilmington and to be with her husband in the town of Shallote. — JERRY RAYNOR

Peggy Kirby Named NCMA Art Registrar

Mrs. Peggy Jo Kirby has been named registrar of art at the North Carolina Museum of Art, Charles W. Stanford, director, announced yesterday.

She succeeds Miss Nina Kasanof, who has resigned to becoming assistant professor of art history at Sangamon State University, Springfield, Ill.

Mrs. Kirby was registrar from 1959-62, having joined the museum staff in 1956 as secretary to the director, Dr. W. R. Valentiner. She resigned as registrar to accompany her husband, J. Rudolph Kirby, to Europe where he was employed by International Business Machines Corp.

Mrs. Kirby is a graduate of Meredith College and studied at Vassar, Harpur College of the State University of New York, Eberhard University in Tuebingen and Johann Wolfgang Goethe University in Frankfurt, Germany, and the University of Paris.

She has been employed at the museum as acting assistant curator of art since Jan. 1.

Miss Kasanof joined the museum staff in 1964, coming from the Museum of Modern Art in New York where she was a curatorial assistant in the museum collection department. She holds a master's degree in art history from the University of Chicago and a bachelor's degree from Shimer College, and has studied at the University of North Carolina and Florida State University.

Mrs. Charlotte Brown has also rejoined the staff as assistant curator of art after a leave of absence to complete work on her doctor's degree in art history at the University of North Carolina.

Big Week Ahead For Eastern Music Festival

GREENSBORO — Anyone in the Greensboro area this week will find lots of music in the air, as the Eastern Music Festival, North Carolina's biggest festival of sound continues to bring summer music to North Carolinians.

Robert Hause, of Greenville, conductor of the East Carolina University Orchestra, and one of the regulars at the annual Greensboro based festival, begins the week's offerings tonight at 6:00 p. m. Hause will conduct "Pops Concert in the Park" on the grass at Battleground Park, in front of the statue of General Greene on his horse. The Eastern Philharmonic Orchestra will be featured.

Tonight's musical offering is a "mixed bag", ranging from selections from "Camelot" to the Triumphal March from Verdi's "Aida." Music lovers are encouraged to bring blankets, folding chairs, babies and grandmamas. (In the event of rain, the same program will be conducted at 6:00 p. m. on Sunday, July 18).

Other programs scheduled for the coming week are:

Monday, July 12 — Robert Hause again conducts, this time the Eastern Symphony Orchestra. Guest soloist on this program will be Ralph Lockwood, hornist. Lockwood will perform Richard Strauss' "Horn Concerto No. 1." Other selections will be Glinka's "Overture to Russlan and Ludmilla," the Bach-Luck "Air On The G String," and Tchaikovsky's "Capriccio Italian." Soloist Lockwood teaches at UNC-G and is conductor of the Guilford Chamber Players.

Tuesday, July 13 — Robert Helmacy conducts the Guilford Symphony Orchestra in an all-orchestral program that will include Holst's "A Fugal Overture," William Boyce's "Symphony No. 5" and Howard Hanson's "Symphony No. 2 — Romantic." Helmacy is a teacher of music in the Caldwell, New Jersey schools.

Wednesday, July 14 — This mid week music event will be one of chamber music played by the Guilford Chamber Players, directed by Ralph Lockwood. Selections to be presented include "Dolly Suite" by Faure, "Octet" by Stravinsky, "Dances for Brass Quintet" by B. Heiden, and "Piano Quartet in G Minor," by Brahms.

Thursday, July 15 — Guest artist for Thursday night will be pianist Veronica Jochum von Moltke, appearing with the Eastern Philharmonic under the baton of Sheldon Morgenstern, artistic director for the festival. Miss von Moltke, a German artist, will perform the "Concert Fantasy, Op. 56" by Tchaikovsky. The orchestra will play two major compositions, the Mozart "Symphony No. 21" and Copland's "Symphony No. 3." Miss von Moltke has been on extensive concert tours since 1961, with appearances in North and South America, Europe and Africa.

All the performances, with the exception of the Sunday performance, are at 8:15 p. m., and are being held in Dana Auditorium on campus at Guilford College.

Tickets are available in advance or at the door.

Female Tattoo Is Old Story

CHICAGO (UPI) —Women seeking the new and the now at the tattoo parlor may be interested to know the idea of females thus adorning themselves isn't all that's new.

In the 19th century women in high society were having themselves tattooed. One of them was the late Sir Winston Churchill's mother, Lady Randolph Churchill. She had a snake tattooed around her arm.

In the modern sense, it all started 200 years ago when James Cook, the English circumnavigator, came home from the South Seas and told about the people there who "paint their bodies."

Cook, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, introduced the word tattoo into the English language. The word spread fast.

For Europeans, tattoing was a rediscovery. The art, or craft, actually dates from about 2000 B.C., and was practiced among the ancient Germans, Britons and Romans. But with the advent of Chrisitianity tattooing was forbidden.

By the 1880s, however, tattooing was popular among European nobility, perhaps after the Dukes of Clarence and York were tattooed while midshipmen. The tattooed royalty was said to have included King Edward VII, Kaiser Wilhelm II and Czar Nicolas II. And that's when European society ladies started taking it up.

America has a tattoo heritage of its own. In many Indian tribes tattoing of the body or the face, or both, was customary. Also an American made a technological contribution—the first electric tattooing implement, patented in 1891.

In addition, U. S. tattoo artists developed the use of pattern sheets, which spread the familiar anchors, flowers, daggers, ships, flags and hearts on mountains of muscles throughout the world.

By the start of World War I, tattoing in the society set was out of style but it continued among less fashionable folk, including females.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By BRENDA LEWIS

New books at the library this month will appeal to people with a wide variety of interests.

THE TAILGATE COOKBOOK by April Herbert is a practical handbook of delightful meals for campers, travelers and sports enthusiasts. This unusual book provides do-it-yourself meals with simplified cooking techniques for preparation on a campstove, for charcoaling or barbecuing, or for packing up at home to feed the family on a long car journey. Thoroughly practical and tested at the campsite, the recipes range from inexpensive meal-in-a-pot suppers to classic dishes made easy. Special aids for the travelers and camper include tips on how to pack food, lists of equipment needed and low-calorie suggestions for the dieter.

Walter Cronkite, the anchor man and reporter on the CBS EVENING NEWS has been seen by more people, reported on more different subjects and covered more major stories than any other broadcast newsman. These experiences have helped Walter Cronkite to write EYE ON THE WORLD in which he offers an overview of the decade of the seventies in terms of the men and events likely to shake our lives and shape our futures. This is a highly selective choice of events whose effects are most likely to remain important a decade from now. In EYE ON THE WORLD Walter Cronkite has combined two media, on-the-scene reporting and the opportunity for reflection offered by the permance of print, which make this an unusually fascinating book to read.

Anyone who is interested in the Kennedy Family will enjoy reading ETHEL by Lester David. ETHEL is the story of Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy as she was, is, and is becoming. The book tells of her childhood in a household filled with children and love, her education in the Catholic academies, her wealth and faith, her marriage and her children. Lester David has presented a portrait of Ethel Kennedy, lively and true to life, revealing a woman whose unique strength has enabled her to survive several tragedies, and who now makes her husband's goals her continuing concern.

Burton Hobson and Robert Obojski have collaborated to produce one of the most useful and comprehensive books about the world's coins ever published, ILLUSTRATED ENCYCLOPEDIA OF WORLD COINS. Each of its hundreds of articles begins with a survey of the topic, then analyzes unusual features, pictures important coins, and gives some indication of the coins rarity. Beginning collectors and experienced numismatists alike will find it an invaluable reference book and a pleasure to read.

The first edition of AMERICAN GLASS PAPERWEIGHTS AND THEIR MAKERS by Jean Melvin appeared in 1967 and contained much new information in the field. In a newly revised edition, the author has expanded the scope of the text considerably. Over 200 weights are now shown in color and over 150 black and white photographs, drawings and patent papers augment the text. With the addition of thirteen entirely new chapters on noted twentieth century weight makers, the revised edition of AMERICAN GLASS PAPERWEIGHTS AND THEIR MAKERS now qualifies as a complete guide for the artists themselves, experienced collectors, and novices in the unique art of weight production.

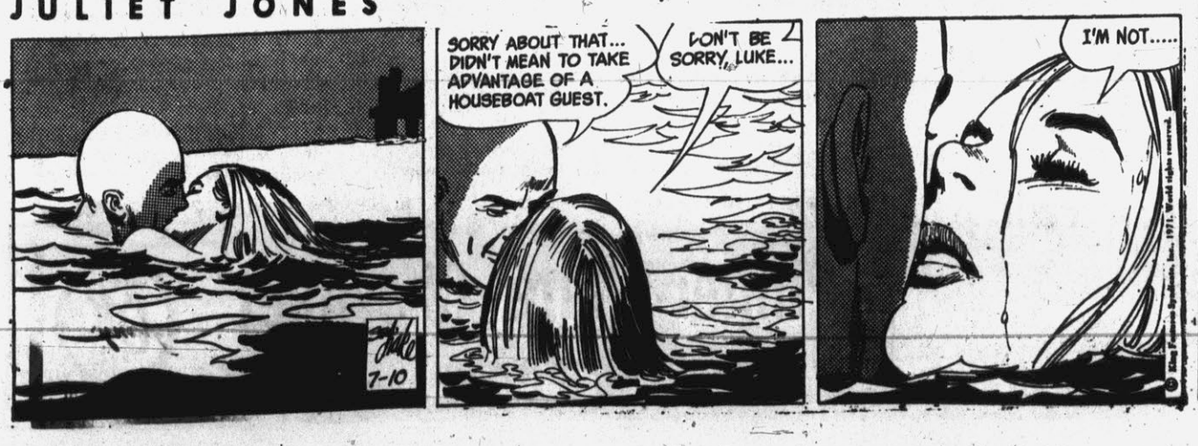
BEETLE BAILEY

THE PHANTOM

JULIET JONES



By GARY W. GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A shrinking demand has forced layoffs and production cutbacks in the domestic steel industry and producers say the situation is getting worse.

All but two major producers report either layoffs, "personnel adjustments" or declining production.

Hardest hit are the country's two largest steelmakers, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem.

U.S. Steel, the nation's top producer, has idled more than 5,000 workers in recent weeks, including 2,700 at its Youngstown, Ohio, works. Bethlehem laid off about 2,500.

The cutbacks and layoffs—without pay—began last month when an anticipated production boom fizzled.

Steelmakers had expected buyers to stock up in anticipation of a possible strike when contracts with the United Steelworkers union expire Aug. 1.

But foreign producers flooded the American market with record-level imports, much of it lower-priced products. Import totaled about 1.8 million tons in May and 5.15 million tons the first quarter of the year.

Both company and spokesmen scoff at a report that the layoffs are an attempt by the companies to scare the United Steelworkers into reducing their contract demands during the negotiations under way in Washington.

In addition to its Youngstown plant, U.S. Steel has announced layoffs of 2,000 at Braddock near Pittsburgh; 500 in Gary, Ind.; 400 at its National-Duquesne works in Duquesne, Pa.; and 250 at its South works in Chicago.

Bethlehem has laid off 1,000 at its Lackawanna, N.Y., plant; 725 at Sparrows Point, Md.; 400 at Johnstown, Pa.; and 300 at Bethlehem, Pa.

Also, according to a Bethlehem spokesman, hundreds of men at various other plants have not been scheduled to work. He said they technically are not laid off, but just weren't working this week.

These include 900 men at Lackawanna and another 200 at Burns Harbor, Ind. the spokesman said.

Republic Steel gave between 3,000 and 4,000 workers at plants at Canton, Ohio; and Buffalo, N.Y., what it called "an extended July 4th holiday" because of a lack of orders. But a spokesman said Friday those men may be recalled early next week.

Tenth-ranked Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. announced cutbacks last month at its plants at Monessen and Allenport in Southwestern Pennsylvania, a move that affected about 250 workers.

Two major producers who say they have not had to lay off workers are Armco and National Steel.

Avers Votes Are Factor At Lockheed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., suggests President Nixon is more interested in saving California's electoral votes in 1972 than in rescuing Lockheed Aircraft Corp. from the threat of collapse.

The idea was quickly denied by an administration witness and Republican Sen. John Tower of Texas.

"We don't talk about it publicly, but we do talk about it privately," Proxmire said Friday at the last of 15 days of hearings on various proposals to grant Lockheed, based in Burbank, Calif., $250 million in federal loan guarantees.

Promire, leading foe of aid for Lockheed, said the legislation could be a "significant factor in how California goes.

"It's a fact of life California is a very important state," he said, noting it has the largest number of electoral votes.

"To say we have purely political motives here is untrue and I regret it," countered Sen. Tower.

Undersecretary of the Treasury, Charles E. Walker, who was testifying at the time, also denied any political motives on the part of the administration.

Lockheed says failure to obtain federal backing for private bank loans would force it to abandon production of its L1011 TriStar airbus and put more than 30,000 people out of work immediately.

Many of this number, including more than 8,000 L1011 workers already jobless, would be laid off by Lockheed and its suppliers and subconstractors in Southern California.

Some 106,000 aerospace workers have been idled in the state which Nixon carried in 1968 by 223,346 votes out of 7.1 million cast.

Banking Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., said the committee would begin drafting a final bill in closed session Monday.

He expressed the hope a measure could be reported to the floor by the middle of the week and predicted it most likely would establish a loan guarantee board to help other big businesses in trouble rather than the specific legislation originally proposed by the administration to rescue just Lockheed.

Walker said the administration didn't care which approach the committee took as long as it acted quickly on some kind of bill that would benefit Lockheed.

The company says it might run out of cash by September.

Busy Season For Swim, Tennis Club

The Candelwick Swim and Tennis Club has been the scene of much activity since the first of the month. For the July 4th holiday, members of the club staged a second annual picnic at the pool last Sunday afternoon, with members and guests treated to swimming and eating.

Recently, new officers were elected for the club. Dr. Tullio J. Pignani, native of Blairsville, Pa., who has been in Greenville as a faculty member in the Mathematics Department at East Carolina University for the past seven years, was named president.

"If he can offer another social outlet, it will be a good thing for Greenville," the new president commented. Dr. Pignani noted the Candlewick Swim and Tennis Club appealed to certain groups in the community, especially non-golfers. Our feeling is why shouldn't we enjoy some social outlet without the cost of supporting golf greens," he commented. Dr. Pignani also noted that persons interested in membership can contact him by writing him at 1102 Drexel Lane, Greenville.

Other officers elected for the current year are Mrs. Diane Rees, vice-president; Dr. William Durham, treasurer; and Miss Velma Lowe, secretary. Committee chairmen are — George (Bud) Phillips, membership; Mrs. Betty Grossnickle, publicity; Mrs Paula Kirkland, planning; Mrs. Ted Gartman social activities; and Mrs. Millie McGrath, finance.

Dr. Pignani said that two tennis courts at the club site were officially opened on July 7 for members and guests.

Other activities mentioned by the president as currently underway or planned as added features for the near future include poolside dances for teenages; more picnics during the year with plans for a special garden party picnics; and social events to mark special holidays during the year.

One of the standard regular entertainment feature which Dr. Pignani said is popular with members is the dance each Saturday night with live music.

Participated In Ind. Workshop

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Four members of the staff at East Carolina University were participants at a Residence Halls Workshop at Indiana University, Bloomington, June 27-July 2.

Drawing from all parts of the country, the workshop put emphasis on the theme, "Relationships of Community and Individual Student Needs."

The four staff members at East Carolina University are: Ida Edwards, Umstead Hall; Mary Parrott, Counselor in Residence Hall Program; Lois Smith, Resident Hall Counselor, and Nancy Smith, Assistant Dean of Students for Women.

Three Boys At Camp Sequoyah

Three Greenville boys are presently attending Camp Sequoyah for Boys near Weaversville. They are James C. Lanier (Jay), the son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Lanier, Jr. of Country Club Drive; Lee Hamilton Moore, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Phil Moore, Jr., of 1305 N. Overlook Dr.; and Thomas H. Proctor, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor of 1726 Forest Hill Dr.

Each boy will be attending camp for either five, eight, or ten weeks. While at camp, he has the opportunity to participate in various wilderness camping activities. Among them are horseback riding, canoeing, swimming, field sports, tennis, crafts, Indian lore, and rock climbing.

Board Approved Final Budget

FARMVILLE — The Farmville town board Wednesday night approved a final budget for the new fiscal year totaling $1,766,218.96, according to town clerk Carl Beaman.

Beaman said that no increase in the tax rate was expected. The rate is currently set at $1.20 per $100 valuation.

Held Reunion Of Lowe Family

The Lowe's annual family reunion was held Sunday, July 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Dixon, Jr., of 106 Ashton Dr.

About 102 relatives from all over the eastern part of the country attended the eighth reunion. The District of Columbia, New York, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Connecticutt, Louisiana, Alabama, Maryland, Ohio, and North Carolina were represented.

Dinner was served buffet style. Mrs. Thelma Barnhill of Corona, N.Y. gave a welcoming address. Randsome McKay of Savannah, Ga., who was the oldest relative attending the reunion, also gave a short address.

Next year's reunion of the Lowe family will be held in Newport News, Va.

Okra-Eater Is 'One Of Us'

TIFTON, Ga. (AP) — Gov. Jimmy Carter says Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's appreciation of fried okra marks him as a friend of the South.

"I could tell by the amount of fried okra you consumed at lunch that you were one of us," Carter told Humphrey Friday as the Minnesota legislator presided at a Senate subcommittee hearing on rural problems.

Carter sat next to the senator at a lunch before the hearing in South Georgia.

"I also like grits," Humphrey told Carter, a witness at the hearing.

DUTCH WAGES UP

THE HAGUE (UPI) —Wages in Holland went up by an average of 12.5 per cent in 1970 while labor productivity rose only 5 per cent, according to government figures.

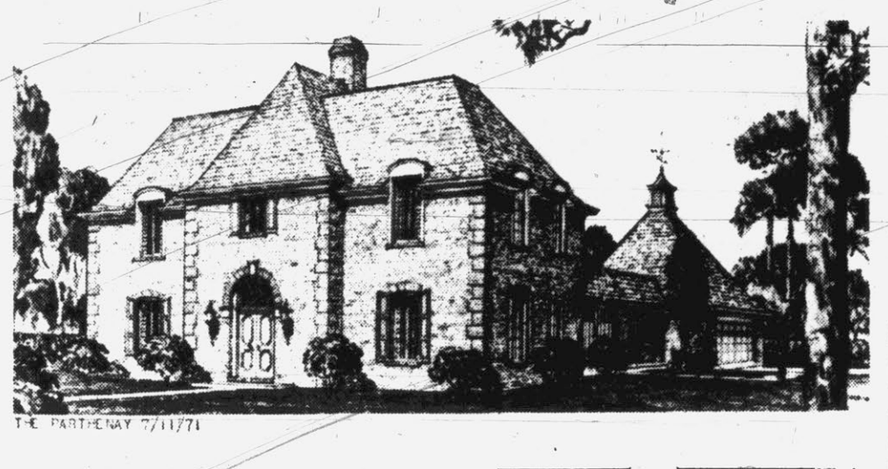
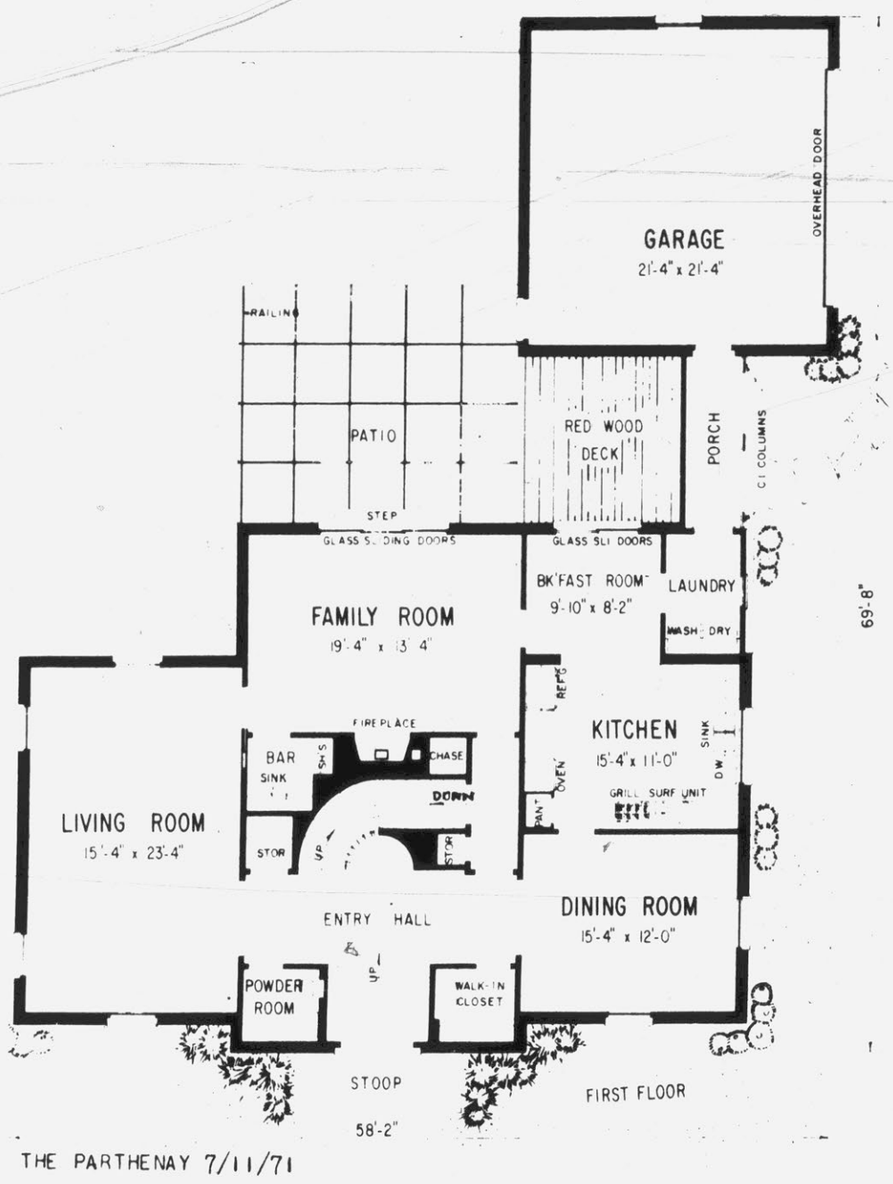
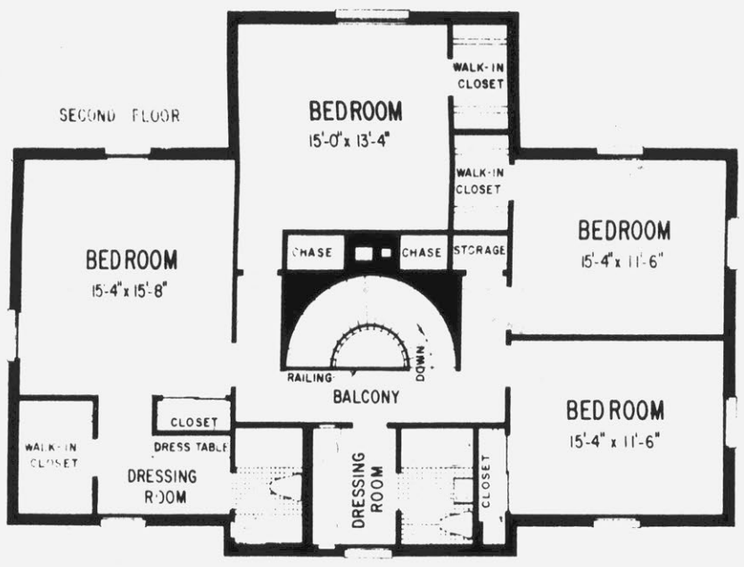
Combining Dignity And Comfort



THE PARTHENAY 7/11/71



THE PARTHENAY 7/11/71



LEISURELY LIVING — The Parthenay is a dignified French-styled home that also provides accomodations for leisurely living. On the first floor there is a large entry hall with a circular staircase, a powder room, an isolated living room, family room with bar and fireplace, a modern kitchen with a breakfast room, a laundry and large dining room. Upstairs there are four bedrooms and two baths. A patio, red wood deck and a double garage connected to the house by a porch complete the plans.

By GERRY BISHOP

Don't be misled by the formal appearance of this French-styled home. Behind that dignified facade, there's ample provision for informal living.

Designed by the Associated Architects, the Parthenay cleverly combines features that lend themselves to formality and leisure.

There's a large living room that's isolated from the main traffic flow. It's well suited for the demands of formal entertaining. Four windows assure ample lighting and the dimentions — approximately 15 feet by 23 feet — can accommodate extensive furnishings.

For lighter moments, there's a large family room equipped with a wet bar and log-burning fireplace. It would be ideal for partying and everyday family activites.

This is a large home. The vital statistics are impressive. In addition to the living room and family room on the ground level, there's a large entry hall, a powder room, a dining room, modern kitchen with adjoining breakfast room, laundry room and double garage.

Four bedrooms and two baths occupy the second floor, making the Parthenay particularly adaptable to a large family.

Future Expansion

The basement accommodates the furnace and water heater and provides a wealth of storage space. It also presents the possibility of future expansion, being ideal for a gameroom, workshop or fifth bedroom.

The plans call for a brick or stone outer wall with a steep roof, preferably of slate or tile. Double doors flanked by carriage lamps enhance the main entrance which is topped by a Roman arch. The cupola atop the garage is a charming touch.

A covered porch with a steeply pitched roof matching the one on the main building connects the house with the detached garage. It produces an effect not unlike that of the rambling buildings in New England.

An exciting entry hall sets the mood for the interior motif. The spiral staircase immediately takes this home out of the ordinary two-story pattern. It is an asset that is both practical and aesthetic.

Not only does the stairway grace the entry hall, but it serves as the key link in the traffic pattern.

The family room, approximately 19 feet by 13 feet, adjoins a patio in the rear. Sliding-glass doors make it possible to open this section into a sweeping entertainment area during good weather.

The kitchen is a paragon of efficiency. A window above the sink acts as a brightener. And the appliances and cabinets are arranged in a U shape to save the homemaker steps. Besides plenty of closet space, there's a pantry.

The breakfast room — approximately 10 feet by 8 feet — adjoins the kitchen and connects with a red wood deck adjacent to the patio.

The Laundry room opens off the breakfast area. There's space for a washer and dryer and a door opening onto the porch that connects to the garage.

The master bedroom is 15 feet square and has a large walk-in closet, a dressing room and private bath. A built-in dressing table and second closet are extras.

Each of the other three bedrooms is large and well equipped with closet space. The main bath also has a dressing room.

The exterior dimensions are approximately 58 feet by 70 feet and the living area totals 3,176 square feet plus 521 square feet in the garage.

Here's How To Do It

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—I want to apply wooden moulding in geometic designs to the walls of our living room, the way they used to be in old-time houses. The walls are made of regular plaster and have been painted an antique white. I have been told to use wall panel adhesive to hold the moulding against the wall, eliminating nailing entirely. Will the adhesive hold to the painted wall?

A.—The adhesive will hold as long as the paint holds. This could be indefinitely, since the paint won't chip or blister unless a moisture condition is present. But why take a chance? Why not mark the places on the wall where the moulding will be, then scrape off the paint in those places only? The adhesive most certainly will hold against the plaster. If this seems like too much trouble, scrape off the paint in a few selected spots rather than along the line of the entire moulding. Example: if you are attaching a 4-foot piece of moulding, scrape at three points on the wall. Apply adhesive all along the back of the moulding. Those three areas will insure a secure bond even if at some later time there is a tendency of the moulding to come loose at the unscraped parts.

Q. We have asbestos-cement shingles on our house. While they do not really need a painting, although soiled in a few places, we have decided to go in for a different exterior color scheme. Can latex paint be used on this type of shingles? And how many coats are needed?

A.—Latex paint not only can be used but is considered by many paint authorities to be superior for asbestos-cement shingles. While you might get by with a single coat, two coats are recommended for a really good job.

Q—The cold water pipes in our cellar sweat and drip water on to the floor. How can this be corrected?

A.—More circulation of the air in the basement, with openings to permit the moist air to escape, may prevent the condition. Another solution is to wrap the cold water pipes in an insulating material, preferably one of the wrap-around types that are easy to apply.

Uses Waste For Bricks, Planks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you have some cow manure and empty glass bottles you wanna get rid of, J.D. Mackenzie of the UCLA school of engineering may be interested.

He's developed a process combining the two waste materials into ceramic bricks and planks which he says don't smell, can be glued or nailed together, have good insulation properties, will not soak up water, doesn't burn, can be painted, glazed, drilled and sawed.

And they're cheap.

Years ago, your only acquaintance with the portable circular saw was when you watched a workman using it to cut framing lumber on the site of a building project.

Today, it is used by the do-it-yourselfer for cutting wood and other materials which cannot be brought to a table or radial arm saw. It is not as precise as the stationary saws. And it will not cut curves like a saber of jig saw, an easy-to-handle tool. But it is a rugged machine that is gaining increasing acceptance by the home owner who wants a cutting instrument that will save him time and effort.

The portable circular saw is loosely designated by the diameter of the blade that can be used in it. A 7-inch saw, for instance, calls for a blade with a diameter of 7 inches. That size, by the way, is the most popular among home owners, but you can get a smaller or larger model depending on the type of work you are likely to be doing most of the time.

In selecting a circular saw, try to determine the "feel" of it, much as you might do, for example, when choosing a golf club. Does it feel comfortable in your hand? Move it around a bit. Is it too heavy? Does it seem to be well balanced? Generally, the price is a good indication of quality, especially if the saw is made by a known manufacturer of power tools.

Some of the newer models come with double insulation, protecting against shock if there should be a short circuit. Most now have antikickback features, so that the saws won't jump back if they meet obstructions in the material. There are crosscut, rip and combination blades, as well as various specialty blades that cut metals, plastic laminates and such things as asbestos boards and concrete blocks.

As with all power tools, it is important that safety be your first concern. Every portable circular saw comes with literature that lists the rules of safety that should be observed. If you have never owned such a saw in the past, you are likely to follow the precationary instructions to the letter. It is when you become familiar with the machine that you are likely to get a little careless and skip a safety move because it will save time. That's when accidents happen.

If you are buying a portable circular saw as a gift for someone else, don't let it be a surprise. Tell him about it ahead of time and let him do his own selecting. But if this is impractical for some reason, be sure you have a clear understanding with the dealer that the saw can be exchanged if it isn't exactly what the recipient wants.

(Caulking, plaster and concrete patching, noisy plumbing and screen repairing are among the 35 household projects discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1 to this newspaper in care of Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Vinyl Floor May Require Waxing

LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI)— It's sometimes said that vinyl flooring never needs to be waxed. The claim generally is untrue, say floor care specialists at Armstrong Information Services.

There are a few vinyl products on the market where waxing is considered optional. However, the great majority of vinyl floors do need waxing to stay looking their best.

Having Veteran In The Family Might Help If Financing Is A Problem

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) —If you're wondering how you could swing a home purchase at this time, and if there's a veteran in the family, it might pay you to check into benefits under the 1970 Veterans Housing Act.

"Every veteran —whether or not he ever has purchased a home using VA loan guarantee benefits —owes it to himself and his family to look closely at the expanded benefits passed by Congress last year," advises Emanuel M. Brotman, chairman of the board of J. I. Kislak Morgage Corp.

Kislak, a mortgage banking firm with offices in Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, New Jersey, South Carolina and Tennessee, specializes in FHA and VA loans which are insured and guaranteed by the federal government.

According to Brotman, major changes in the 1970 Veterans Housing Act have made more families eligible for loans and increased the types of loans that can be made. In addition, because of increased availability of mortgage funds, larger VA loans are expected, he said.

"Basically," Brotman said, "the Veterans Administration encourages private lenders to make 30-year home loans, with little or no down payment at moderate interest rates which are 7 per cent today.

"Veterans who served in World War II, the Korean War and during the cold war are eligible for benefits and over 7 million of them actually have purchased homes under the VA home loan guarantee program," he said. "The VA guarantees loans for 60 per cent of their face amount, with a maximum guarantee of $12,500."

Brotman listed four major changes in the VA law which became effective this year and which, he said, still are not widely known among veterans and even some real estate brokers:

The 1970 Veterans Housing Act, he said, abolished expiration dates for all VA housing benefits. Nearly 9 million World War II and Korean War veterans have had their entitlements restored. In the future, all VA benefits will remain available to all veterans until they are used. In the past, veterans were required to use their benefits within a certain time or they expired.

The end of expiration dates also means that the 7 million veterans who purchased homes with VA guaranteed loans before 1968 are automatically eligible for new VA loans.

Brotman explained this is because maximum loan guarantees have been raised to $12,500 over the years and any unused portion of the current maximum entitlement is available to veterans who want to make use of it.

"For example," he said, "if a World War II veteran used all of his then existing $4,000 entitlement to buy a house in 1947, he today has an additional $8,500 available."

Another change in the law permits veterans to use their VA entitlements to refinance existing property loans, provided the new loan is for a dwelling owned and occupied by the veteran.

Says Brotman: "this new provision should be of particular interest to veterans who were forced to use conventional financing because their VA loan benefits had expired before the new law became effective this year."

In addition, the law now permits VA benefits to be used for loans to purchase property in condominium projects.

"The only limitation," says Brotman, "is that the project must be approved for loan insurance under Section 234 of the National Housing Act, as administered by the Federal Housing Administration."

The new law also makes VA guaranteed loans available for the purchase of mobile homes. The interest rate is higher (10.75 per cent) than the rate for conventional home loans and the terms are shorter (12 years and 32 days), but the purpose of the mobile home loan guarantee, Brotman said, is only to provide interim housing for the veteran and his family.

"Because of this objective," he said, "the VA will restore the veteran's full $12,500 entitlement to buy a conventional home after he pays off his mobile home loan in full."

The Garden Clinic

N. C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. What can you spray house plants with to get rid of mealybugs? (Miss V. G., Dover)

A. Malathion. Use two teaspoonfuls of the malathion 57 percent emulsifiable concentrate in one gallon of water. Either spray the plants thoroughly, or dip the plants in the solution while holding the soil in the pot. (H.E. Scott, extension entomologist)

Q. Birds keep eating my blueberries and grapes. They got just about all my strawberries too. Do you have any suggestions other than a shotgun? (B.P., Lansing)

A. If your planting isn't too large, you could enclose it with netting, tobacco cloth or similar material. For larger plantings, there are several scaring devices (noise makers) on the market that help. You might also try to eliminate the birds' food supply, namely insects, early in the season. Hopefully, the birds will take up residence elsewhere before your fruit ripens. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. We planted our first flower garden this spring and were delighted with the results, except for larkspur. Is there any secret to growing larkspur? (Mrs. E. M., Jr., Charlotte)

A. Larkspur should be planted in the fall of the year. The seed benefit from overwintering in the soil. In the spring, side-dress with a complete fertilizer when the plants are two inches high. (Henry J. Smith, extension horticulturist)

Q. Someone was talking about a cling peach. What did they mean? (A. D., Durham)

A. When you cut or break a peach the flesh either sticks to the peach seed (stone) or it comes out free or clean. If it sticks, we say it is a "cling." If it comes free, we say it is a "freestone." (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Ask Them Yourself

singer and poet

You sometimes refer to religion or God in your writings. Would you call yourself a religious man?—Randy Martin, Gary, Ind.

● I'm very much against organized religion. I don't like the bureaucracy and the formality of the church, or the dogma. I think the world is in serious trouble unless we come up with some drastic new religions that apply to the modern world. On the other hand, you have to believe there is a God somewhere who regulates our lives, who sometimes lets us get into trouble and occasionally pulls us out.

FOR GERMAINE GREER,

feminist and author of "The Female Eunuch"

Why do Women's Liberationists do crazy things like bra-burning, picketing beauty contests and sitting in and disrupting publications and government offices? Don't these tactics only irritate people?—G. A., Charleston, S. C.

● The Movement is now in the consciousness-awakening period, so everything we do to make people aware of it is useful. I don't know how much good these tactics do as such, but getting people to think about women's rights and to have some understanding—especially people who didn't know they had a stake in it—are important. Take you, for example: the bra-burning was three years ago, but you are still talking about it.

FOR W. DONHAM CRAWFORD,

President of Edison Electric Institute

Why do power companies advertise? It seems to me that a regulated monopoly doesn't have to.—Mrs. Horace Campbell, Las Vegas, Nev.

● Electric utility companies must install sufficient facilities to meet the maximum needs of their customers, since the utilities are required under their franchises to provide all the services demanded. When the demands of the customers are less than maximum, the facilities are not fully used, but many of the costs associated with the equipment continue to accrue. Therefore the utilitity advertises and promotes so-called "off-peak" uses for its service so that the costly equipment will be more fully utilitized. The "off-peak" sales which the utility is able to attract result in more efficient use of the facilities and economies for all the users of the service.

FOR DR. CHRISTIAAN BARNARD,

heart-transplant surgeon

I hear you have arthritis. How can you do such delicate surgery with arthritis?—Grace Vachey, Sacramento, Calif.

● I suffered from crippling arthritis in school, but it doesn't bother me much now. I've been told that I have a natural immunity to arthritis. I think it's possible, within the next 10 or 15 years, that a cure for arthritis could develop from heart-transplant research. Let me explain. Arthritis is an allergy like hay fever. In hay fever, the body rejects pollen. In heart transplants the body may reject the new heart. In arthritis, the body is rejecting itself. To put it crudely, if you have arthritis, it means you hate yourself! Incidentally, I have received over 5,000 suggestions from all over the world to cure my own arthritis. (There is no cure yet; but I have faith in the possibility above.)

FOR LOUIS R. BRUCE,

Commissioner of American Indian Affairs

What percentage of American Indians are still on reservations?—Conrad Fiorello, Brooklyn, N. Y.

● In all, slightly more than 300,000 Indians, Aleuts and Eskimos live on trust lands for which the Secretary of the Interior is trustee. This is more than half of the 552,000 total.

FOR MARY TYLER MOORE,

actress

You often praise Valerie Harper of your TV show, but her role doesn't seem that tough. Please explain. —J. M., Lancaster, Pa.

● She's doing a very difficult thing, creating a character totally alien to her background. She plays a tough, ethnic girl from the Bronx, and she actually is an all-American type from Oregon. She went on an interview for a job recently, and a producer heard her speak and was surprised to find she doesn't have an accent.

FOR CHARLES SEDGWICK,

resident veterinarian, San Diego Zoo

What animal in your zoo is served the most expensive menu?—Mrs. George Hill, Langdon, N. D.

● Kiwis eat one of the most expensive foods, earthworms which have been nurtured in vitamin-mineral enriched brooder flats. Hummingbirds eat incubated fruit flies for their necessary protein. Another animal with expensive tastes is the koala, which eats only certain varieties of eucalypus leaves and is very picky. The leaves must be of just the right age and picked just so—all very expensive in terms of the man hours required to do it successfully.

FOR SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN,

South Dakota

During the Johnson Administration, a statement signed by Senator Church and other U. S. Senators was sent to Hanoi warning them against refusing negotiations in the hope that America would withdraw from the war. You were said to be one of the signers of the statement. Is this true? If so, what was Hanoi's reaction?—Frances Amundson, Casper, Wyo.

● In 1966 I joined with Senator Church and a number of others in sending what we termed a "plea for sanity" to Hanoi. It came at a time when the North Vietnamese were indicating an intent to try captured American pilots as war criminals, and the essence of our letter was a plea to refrain from any acts of vengeance against prisoners of war. There is, of course, no way of knowing whether our letter influenced Hanoi's position on this matter. However, shortly after it was sent, the talk about prosecuting prisoners ended. Since that time, North Vietnamese negotiators have indicated a willingness to begin discussing release of all U. S. prisoners once the United States has committed itself to withdrawal from Vietnam by a certain date.

FOR ED McMAHON,

TV's "Johnny Carson Show"

In working with so many different dogs in the dog-food commercials, have you ever been bitten? (Veterinarians usually recommend that dogs be left alone while eating, you know.)—Mrs. R. W. Kohli, Oceanside, Calif.

● Surprisingly, we've never had any problems with any of the dogs. I've found them to be very well trained. In fact, Patrick, our English sheep dog, lounges in the audience area of the theater, and when I walk in and say, "Good afternoon, gentlemen," Patrick automatically gets up and takes his place in the filming area.

FOR MATT SNELL,

of the New York Jets

Do you expect to be able to play football again since you've broken your achilles tendon?—Derek Burke, Ramsey, N. J.

● Yes, I expect to play the 1971 season. But I asked for and got a one-year contract because I don't expect to play much longer and, therefore, don't want any more long contracts.

PIN-WORMS
A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults.

How to Remain Friends Though Married

By Dr. Colter Rule, psychiatrist, and Jeanne Toomey

In the bespangled heyday of vaudeville, a standard repartee involved the straight man telling the comic that he planned to marry soon. Then the funny man would shoot back the line: "Marriage? That's not a word. That's a sentence!" (Loud laughter from the audience, mostly married.)

Why does marriage turn so many friends into enemies? Perhaps they stop cultivating the friendship aspect of marriage. Or perhaps, as one young married woman put it, it is because marriage is "so daily." You may only see a friend occasionally, but a spouse is there, day after day. This means that even more tact and common sense are required in keeping your mate a friend.

But it is possible to stay friends in marriage. Here are a few rules that will help:

1. Continue to share interests. Married people should continue to keep mentally alive by reading, following the news, going to the theatre or concerts, so they don't stagnate. Try to keep learning and growing.

2. Work at understanding differences. Each partner brings to marriage a pattern of habits and culture. To reach a happy adjustment, each must learn to accept the other person's individuality. After all, a friend is one who forgives and likes you despite your shortcomings. Learn to "live and let live."

3. You often find married people who love their partners sexually but can't stand them as companions. These sex marriages don't usually last—the partners simply don't have enough in common. Sex is important, but it's tact, mutual respect and kindness that keep married people friends.

4. Don't be a critic, be a booster. Couples should praise each other more often and sympathize, too. It's pretty hard to like someone who keeps tearing you down. Criticism hurts. Sometimes a person rips a partner apart in order to build up his own ego. But this doesn't really make the "winner" right; it only makes the losing partner uncomfortable.

5. Talk things over with each other and listen. It is just as important to understand the other person's point of view as to push your own ideas. Too often, women forget that men want to talk over things that happen at work. And husbands forget that running a home has problems, too. Husbands and wives should budget their time so they can show their mate some attention in the evenings.

6. A good healthy squabble never wrecked a marriage. The settlement and resolution of an understandable difference of opinion should leave the marriage stronger and happier, not the reverse. But this means honest discussion, laying one's cards on the table without rancor or bitterness. Giving one's mate the silent treatment while inwardly smoldering with rage is unfair and unwise. If you treated a friend this way, you might wind up friendless. The same goes in marriage.

If the squabbling is growing too frequent, take time out to ask: "What's the matter with me? Why do I get so upset about this?" Does it really mask another complaint? Try to get at the root of the difficulty and solve it sensibly and with good will. Sometimes a man will complain about his wife's housekeeping because she rejected him sexually the night before. Don't take out hostilities on each other. Try to work things out—as friends would—to preserve the harmony of the home. Also, look at your fights. Do you say things which you soon regret? This sort of attack breeds answers in the same vein.

7. In-laws can be: (A) a menace; (B) great friends; (C) great enemies.

Perhaps a man has guilt feelings about leaving his mother. The mother may panic over losing her son. So she brings trouble into her son's new home—often without realizing it.

She tells the bride how to cook, clean, shop. Usually, the daughter-in-law resents this. The bride doesn't realize her husband's mother is trying to be helpful. In these cases, the man should tell her: "Honey, I love you, but I love my mother, too. Please don't hold me responsible for what she said. She is a product of another time."

In fact, parents often are the products of their environment. They feel deserted. They feel forgotten, left out. They want affection from their children. Parents should be invited to the homes of their married children for special occasions. Calling on the phone is a good way of keeping in touch.

Parents, too, must learn to cultivate good relations with their children so that when the youngsters are grown, they can release them and let them step out freely into the world.

Don't attack your in-laws. Remember, you would treat a friend's family with respect, no matter how tiresome you might privately think them. Do the same for your mate and you'll get much gratitude in return.

8. Learn to live on a sensible budget. Sound financial planning is needed. Allow enough for such essentials as clothing and food. Budget modestly for entertainment. But don't undertake more than you can afford. Don't incur debts you can't pay. Don't try to keep up with the Joneses. Otherwise, emotional stress will try and tax your relationship.

9. Children can play an important part in a marriage. But this important matter should be carefully decided upon and planned when a couple can afford children not only financially but emotionally.

I have often felt that the marriage license should be a ticket with perforations that divide it into three parts. The first part would run for the early marriage—the first year or two, the shake-down cruise. During this period, the couple would have to remain childless. Then, if the couple felt deeply compatible and wanted to continue, they would move onto the second portion, indicating that they wanted to have and raise children. After the last child was raised, educated and of legal age, they could again tear off a portion of the ticket, and continue or be divorced. If they decided to continue, they would then go through the later years married; only after this final stage would they be held to the vow "till death do us part." ◆

"Sometimes a person rips a partner apart in order to build up his own ego. This doesn't make the 'winner' right; it only makes the 'loser' feel uncomfortable."

QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Do You Need More Color In Your Life?

True or False: It's easier to wake up in the morning if your bedroom is done in red. (See answer number 4.)

Color affects your life to a far greater extent than you may have ever suspected, and this true-false quiz clues you in on some of science's most "colorful" findings.

1. The color of our surroundings has a direct effect on our mood, morale, and general feeling of well-being.

2. If you're doing something that requires a steady hand and good physical coordination, you shouldn't work in a red room or where the color red predominates.

3. Even the smallest child associates certain colors with happiness or sadness.

4. It's easier to wake up in the morning if your bedroom is done in red.

5. How a person responds to a color depends on whether he's hot or cold.

6. A man's eyes get bigger when he sees a girl wearing a red dress.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies have shown that the difference between a living room with drab, lack-lustre décor and one which is attractively decorated with pleasant colors can mean the difference between a happy or unhappy home life. To be surrounded by colors which are depressing, irritating —or which a person feels 'allergic' to—can have a profound psychological effect, triggering moods which are critical, hostile and argumentative and engendering a general atmosphere of discontent.

2. True. Investigations have shown that though red surroundings have a stimulating effect on physical activity, quicken the reflexes, and cause workers to work faster, efficiency is definitely impaired if the job requires careful judgment, precision and good physical coordination. Veterans Administration studies have demonstrated, for example, that your hand isn't as steady in a red room, and your ability to perform tasks requiring patience and exactness definitely suffers.

3. True. In studies at the University of California, nursery-school children were separated into two groups. The first group was told a happy, heart-warming story to induce a happy mood. The second group listened to a sad story, which produced a depressed and unhappy mood. The children in both groups were then asked to color the heroine's dress in the story—and given their choice of using either a brown crayon or a yellow one. The majority of the first group chose yellow to color the girl's dress, while most children in the "sad" group chose the brown crayon.

4. True. Experiments conducted at the University of Canterbury have shown red to be a most "arousing" color, its effects on our emotional responses being described as extremely stimulating, exciting, awakening, attention-drawing and lively. This may be one reason why a rosy dawn can make us want to be up and doing, while the dull gray of an overcast sky tends to make us want to burrow further under the covers.

5. True. Tests show that a person's preferred colors change completely, depending on whether he's hot, cold or the temperature is just comfortable. Psychological studies at a leading university have shown that the thermometer is a good barometer of the colors a person prefers. More than 100 people selected at random were divided into three groups. The first group was tested when the weather was hot and was asked to select a preferred color when the temperature hovered around 100 degrees. The overwhelming favorite was blue. The second group was tested for a color preference under cold conditions, with the thermometer registering a few degrees below freezing. Red was the over-all favorite by heavy odds. Blue—the hot-weather favorite—got the fewest votes of any color. The third group of subjects was similarly tested when it was neither too hot nor too cold —with the temperature range in the equable sixties. Under these conditions, red scored again with the most preference votes, with green as a runner-up.

6. True. Studies at Michigan State University show that red, an emotionally exciting color, caused the pupils of male students to grow appreciably larger when exposed to it. Exposure to gray—classified as a nonstimulating color—produced no such effect in the gentlemen's eyes. The investigation also served to demonstrate that the reaction of the eye pupils can be used as a measure of emotional response. Other bright colors found to have a similar effect on the subjects: green and blue. ◆

Johnny Bench: "I Do What I Believe Is Right for Me!"

The subject of this article is:

- The youngest player ever to win the National League's Most Valuable Player Award (1968).
- The 1970 leader of both leagues in home runs (45) and runs-batted-in (148).
- Designated by Ted Williams to become "a Hall of Famer for sure."
- Described by the Reds' manager Sparky Anderson as "possibly the best catcher ever."

"If more people would take time to know each other and to stop and think about the other person, there would be a great many longer and stronger marriages."

Would you believe it? A handsome young man, with superior intelligence, outstanding athletic skills, patriotism, generosity, a deep sense of morality and honesty—a superhero in an age of nonheroes. Yes, he really exists, and his name is Johnny Lee Bench, the 23-year-old catcher for the National League champion Cincinnati Reds.

All that is a lot of reputation to live up to, along with the especially heavy burden of being called a definite Hall of Fame candidate after just three years in the major leagues. And so, as we sat down to talk, I asked him how he felt about the early prediction of his baseball immortality.

"It's great!" he answered with an easy grin. "What has been said has been very flattering. I just hope they're saying the same thing 10 years from now. That's when it'll really mean something. Right now, though, I don't feel any pressure to make it. I mean, it's not my whole life. Of course, all the publicity has created a kind of image for me, and I do honestly feel I should try to live up to it. I think it's important, the way you present yourself to kids and to the general public."

Since Johnny acknowledges that people are influenced by what he says and does away from the ball field, how does he feel about being associated in the minds of many with the politically hawkish Bob Hope, whose Vietnam tour Bench joined last winter?

"I didn't go with Bob Hope because of his ideas on the war. I don't think anybody wants war; surely, everybody wants peace, or what are we living for? I went over there to help because Bob Hope asked me to. America is free, and he can think any way he wants to, and that's the same way I feel about how I think. He's done a lot of great things, and I don't think the magazines have been fair to him when they put him down for his opinions. He's being true to himself. I went to give a bit of my time to the boys to make Christmas a little easier for them. That's what he was doing, too."

Does that mean that Johnny would make a political speech or take a public stand on a national issue? "Probably not," he says, "unless it was for someone in office. It doesn't matter if he's a Democrat or Republican, I just feel you have to back the man who has been elected. Like the President is the President, and he gets my respect."

Is he worried, then, about what people will say about him? "No, I do what I believe is right for me. People are going to think whatever they want to anyway. Like the image they have of me as a swinger, with a girl knocking on my door every night. I like girls, but it's nothing like that!"

Well, then, what is it like for the $85,000-a-year catcher who is considered the most eligible bachelor in baseball? What does this priceless catcher do when he's not catching or making public appearances? "A lot of things interest me away from the game. I like to golf and bowl. In fact, I do a lot of bowling in the alleys [teammate] Pete Rose and I own in Cincinnati. And, when the team's traveling, I play cards on the plane: bridge, hearts, pinochle. I also enjoy watching football and basketball games and playing basketball in the off-season. I was a pretty good basketball player in high school, but I never gave it any consideration as a career—baseball's always been my game. And I like dining out, with or without girls, eating all kinds of good food. I also like to listen to different kinds of music, especially popular and Country and Western—songs with lyrics I can relate to. Whenever there's time to catch a movie, I look for a good Western, one with a lot of excitement. But I don't go for movies with a hidden plot or that go against the Establishment. I just like those that are funny, exciting or portray life the way it really is.

"Movies and music help me to relax; they're kind of an escape when I'm not playing. Television's good that way, too. I like getting up on Saturday morning and watching cartoons like Road Runner, Dick Dastardly and Cool McCool. I like to laugh. The trouble today is that so many people are drab and serious, not taking time to get any fun out of life."

Johnny Bench's views reflect his family and the way he grew up. Born in Oklahoma City, Okla., the youngest of Katie and Ted Bench's three sons, but older than his sister Marilyn, Johnny is the product of a Southern Baptist upbringing. His father, who played some baseball in his time, has always been proud of his son's accomplishment. "John was valedictorian of his class in both his junior and senior years in high school," Mr. Bench recalls. "He was always a straight-A student, and I can't ever remember him bringing a book

What Johnny Bench looks for in a girl

"I have girl friends, and I date, but I'm not engaged, and I'm not serious about any one right now. When I do get married, the girl's going to have to be broad-shouldered—ready to share responsibilities with me—and have a lot of happiness in her and a lot of understanding. She also will have to have class in the way she dresses, presents herself, carries herself, and how she acts. And she'll have to know how to handle me, control me. I'm a moody, somber person at times. I also demand a lot of myself. I don't like making mistakes, on or off the ball field, and sometimes I lack patience with people. And I'm not esthetic, so she'd have to help me to appreciate some things, including things with humor. I often miss the humor in things. In other words, she'll have to help bring out the good points in me.

"I guess sharing is the word. I don't expect we'd have children for a couple of years, but I enjoy children, and I look forward to having a family, more than anything else. Most of all, my wife will have to understand me and the ways of baseball." As far as the so-called liberated woman is concerned, I've got no place for construction workers with gland problems. I think there's a line that goes between Lib women and women who like liberation. All women want to be treated like women, and if they're treated like women, they can't be like those way-out Lib types."

"I like to laugh. The trouble today is that so many people are drab and serious, not taking time to get any fun out of life."

home until he took physics in high school."

Although Johnny doesn't get to see his family as much as he'd like to now, he has an almost fatherlike figure to respect in the person of Sparky Anderson, the Cincinnati manager. "I appreciate Sparky for having faith in me," says Bench, "for the responsibilities he has given me and for what he has instilled in me. I also respect the way he does his job. He's one of those people I really admire. I also admire my mom and dad, of course, for what they are. I'd describe them as salt-of-the-earth people, who appreciate the small things in life, know right from wrong and have passed on their values to me. They're always there when you need them and will do things for you in any way that's called for."

John is a refreshingly modest celebrity, but he has a strong professional pride in his achievements. Although he could have gone on to college, he chose baseball as his way of life and doesn't regret missing out on higher education. "I'm 23 years old, and I've come this far [as baseball's best young player], so I think I've done pretty well. I'm happy with my life, and I wouldn't want to change it."

If he hadn't succeeded in baseball, Johnny maintains he "would have worked hard to become Number One at whatever I did. Business, maybe, or coaching in high school or college." But he had decided at the age of five, when becoming a professional athlete is for most boys a dream that fades within a few years, that a career in baseball was what he wanted. Now, having realized that dream to become Number One among major-league catchers, he feels that fans have certain rights to his life. "They pay to see the ballplayer, and they want to know about him. They live through him, vicariously, and they think about him not just as a ballplayer but as a person. So, they deserve to know as much as possible about him—so long as they don't invade his privacy. Any time a fan presses beyond the point I consider right, I act congenial but let him know how I feel."

On the other hand, Johnny's opinion is that Jim Bouton presented a false view of baseball players in his best-selling book, "Ball Four." Singling out Bouton's references to girl-watching in the book, Johnny says, "I talked to some of the guys he wrote about, and they told me a lot of it's not true. Besides, I don't know any man who doesn't look at a short skirt when it walks by. I think Bouton just threw those references in there to make the book interesting. It happened that way in his mind, but nobody else seemed to see it that way."

Seeing things the right way, living life the right way, being honest and moral and true to yourself—all these things are important to Johnny Bench, ballplayer and human being. "As you go through life," he says, "you've got to make yourself happy, and if you do that by doing the things you believe are good for you and those around you, everyone will enjoy life. If more people would take time to know each other and to stop and think about the other person and show consideration, there would be a great many longer and stronger marriages. It's such a good life, with many good things, that it's a waste if you spend it trying to find the wrong in it. The singer, Ray Stevens, said it in a song called "Mr. Businessman." Some of the lyrics are:

'Did you see your children growing up today, and
Did you hear the music of their laughter as they set about to play?
Did you catch the fragrance of those roses in your garden?
Did the morning sunlight warm your soul and brighten up your day?
Do you qualify to be alive, or is the limit of your senses so as only to survive?'

"It would be such a good life," Johnny says in conclusion, "if we'd just live it the good way."

Johnny Bench is hardly your everyday ballplayer . . . in more ways than one. ◆

Denture Invention

For People With "Uppers" and "Lowers"

For the first time, science now offers a unique plastic cream that holds dentures—both "uppers" and "lowers"—as they've never been held before. It forms an elastic membrane that helps hold your dentures to the natural tissues of your mouth.

It's FIXODENT®—a revolutionary discovery for daily home use. So different it's protected by U. S. Patent #3,003,988.

FIXODENT not only holds dentures firmer, but it holds them more comfortably, too. It's so elastic you may bite harder, chew better, eat more naturally.

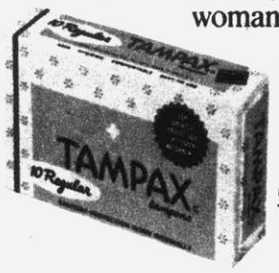
The special pencil-point dispenser lets you put FIXODENT exactly where it's needed. Resists oozing over and gagging.

Just one application may last for hours. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get easy-to-use FIXODENT Denture Adhesive Cream at all drug counters.

This little girl is a woman.

She may look like a little girl.
She may act and think like a little girl.
But she's started menstruating and that technically makes her a woman.
There are times when she doesn't like the idea very much.
No girl likes to give up bike riding or swimming or just plain old comfort because of bulky sanitary pads.
And she shouldn't have to.
This girl-woman can use internally worn Tampax tampons.
Right from the start.
A doctor developed them, so you know they're safe.
And to make the first time even easier, we make Juniors in addition to Regular and Super Tampax tampons.

No one else does.
Tampax tampons have a silken-smooth container-applicator that makes insertion comfortable and hygienic.
Hands don't ever have to touch the tampon.
The softly compressed Tampax tampons give her protection she can depend on.
And disposal's no problem. Both applicator and tampon are completely flushable.
Best of all, Tampax tampons won't remind her or her friends that she's having her period.
Nothing can show and they can't cause odor.
They'll make becoming a woman a bit easier.



Right from the start...

Uncommon Facts About Common Colds

Every man, woman and child in the United States averages two-and-a-half colds a year. Volunteers placed soaking wet in front of fans have proven that cold or chilling or damp do not cause colds. A cold's a virus infection, although chilling or soaking may lower resistance.

Colds are never fatal, nor are they disabling to adults; but complications can do damage, and children may run fevers. There's no prevention or cure, and any hope for a vaccine is still far off. And no animal gets the thing as we do.

PEOPLE AND YOU By Shirley Sloan Fader

How Your Child's Age Affects Your Marriage

If your oldest child is between six and 12, hold on! SOON you'll be happier. Scientists studying family happiness under a Public Health Service grant have made the surprising discovery that the elementary school-age period is the most difficult in a couple's life. The couple's satisfaction with each other's companionship, with social activities, sex life, daily tasks and the way the family finances are handled all hit their lowest point of the couple's entire marriage during this period. Though satisfaction with the children is erratic during the adolescent years, every other aspect of the couple's life grows more satisfactory as the children move into adolescence.

THE DIET-WATCH By Harriet La Barre

Calorie Hoarders, Beware!

Did you hear the one about the two dieters? It seems two overweight ladies went on 1,200-calorie diets the same day. After eight weeks, both women had lost 22 pounds. But one looked fatigued, sallow and slept badly. She had no energy, and she snapped at everybody. The other woman began to look healthier, bright-eyed, alert. What happened? Simply that the first woman had hoarded her daily allotted 1,200 calories until nighttime. Breakfast was unsweetened black coffee, lunch was a scoop of cottage cheese. Dinner was splurging time: a big dinner that distended her shrunken stomach and kept her awake at night. She had dragged through the day without nourishment, drawing on her body tissue for energy instead of nourishing her body and building tissue. Moral: the smart and successful dieter spends his calories on a good, high-energy breakfast, a reasonable lunch and a small dinner. Hoarding is horrible.

PET CORNER By Felicia Ames

Tips for Tick Season

Now is the time to examine your dog for ticks. This tenacious little parasite seeks out the dark crevices on a dog's body to burrow in for his summertime feast. He makes his canine host miserable with persistent itching, and a sever infestation of ticks can cause anemia.

Periodically, run your hand over your dog's body to feel for small, seedlike bumps which swell to the size of a coffee bean. First, dab the embedded tick with alcohol or some other irritant to make him relax his hold. Then slowly and steadily pull with tweezers or a piece of flexible plastic, taking care not to leave any part of the head under the skin to start an infection. Get rid of the rascal once and for all; he might find a cozy nesting area in your house to start a new life cycle.

Mild tick invasions can be handled by regular inspection of your dog. If armies of the pest are in occupation, turn the problem over to a veterinarian.

Outdoor Cookery:

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

By Melanie De Proft

Call it a cookout, a picnic, or whatever you like, but most people agree that food cooked over an open fire—and preferably eaten outdoors—has a pleasantly different flavor. And outdoor cooking is more enjoyable and easier than ever, thanks to new fire-building, cooking, toting equipment, serving items, convenience foods and other cooking aids. Here are recipes to bring new interest to your cookout menus.

Frankfurter Kabobs with Molasses Barbecue Sauce

BASIC MOLASSES BARBECUE SAUCE

This all-purpose sauce will give a lilt to many foods grilled over an open fire. The recipe is a generous one and for a good reason—the sauce stores well, so you'll have it on hand in the refrigerator to use all summer.

Piquant and zesty with the flavor of lemon juice and molasses, it will enhance poultry, canned luncheon meat and cooked or canned ham, franks, fish and seafood along with interesting and colorful vegetable combinations arranged on skewers.

The kabob recipes all use this basic sauce for marinating with several ingredients added to each recipe for variety in flavor.

4 cups lemon juice
2 cups cooking oil
1 jar (12 oz.) light or dark molasses
¼ cup salt
1 tablespoon black pepper
6 bay leaves, broken in pieces
3 cloves garlic, minced

1. Combine cornstarch and lemon juice in a saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until mixture bubbles and thickens. Cool.
2. Using rotary or electric beater, beat in remaining ingredients until thoroughly blended and thickened.
3. Store in refrigerator until needed.

About 2 qts. sauce

If cooking any of the following kabobs on an unadjustable grill, it is advisable to place them on a sheet of heavy-duty aluminum foil to avoid browning the food too rapidly.

FRANKFURTER KABOBS

12 frankfurters, each cut in 3 or 4 pieces
12 whole mushrooms, cleaned
3 medium tomatoes, cut in quarters or eighths
1 cup Basic Molasses Barbecue Sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 to 2 tablespoons pineapple syrup, if desired

1. Thread franks, mushrooms, and tomato pieces onto 8- to 10-in. skewers.
2. Combine sauce, mustard, and pineapple syrup, if used. Mix well and brush generously over kabobs.
3. Cook 5 to 6 in. above the hot coals, 3 to 4 min. on each side; brush with the sauce several times during cooking.

Nothing beats the nostalgic goodness of homemade ice cream clinging to the paddle. So, go ahead... scoop up a fingerful while nobody's watching. That's when you're glad you made it with PET, the easy, no-cooking way. Laced with fresh fruit ...or creamy smooth. Make it with PET...PET makes it better.

EASY HOMEMADE ICE CREAM

5 eggs; 2 13-oz. cans PET® Evaporated Milk; 2 cups sugar; 3 cups whole milk; 1 Tbsp. vanilla; 4 cups fresh fruit.

Beat eggs in large bowl. (Use only whole, fresh, refrigerated eggs in these recipes.) Mix PET Evaporated Milk, sugar, milk and vanilla until sugar dissolves. Combine with beaten eggs. Add fruit. Pour into ice cream maker, then follow general operating instructions. Yields about 4 quarts.

For low-cal ice cream, substitute 2, 13-oz. cans PET Evaporated Skimmed Milk and 4 Tbsp. liquid artificial sweetener. Add 1 extra Tbsp. vanilla. Only 62 calories per 4-oz. serving (without fruit). PET

VEGETABLE KABOBS

Follow recipe for Frankfurter Kabobs except:

½-in. thick slices yellow squash or 1-in. thick slices zucchini
12 cherry tomatos
1-in. strips green pepper (using 2 peppers)
1-in. cubes unpared eggplant (using 1 small eggplant)
Small cooked white onions (16-oz. can, drained)
12 whole mushrooms, cleaned

Omit prepared mustard and add ½ cup chili sauce. Increase grilling time to 5 min. on each side.

SHRIMP KABOBS

Follow recipe for Frankfurter Kabobs except:

Insert on 6 skewers the following

Raw shrimp (about 2 lbs.), shelled (leaving on tails) and deveined
1-in. strips green pepper (using 2 peppers)
Small cooked white onions (16-oz. can drained)
12 whole mushrooms, cleaned
12 large pimiento-stuffed olives
12 large pitted ripe olives

Omit prepared mustard. Add 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish. Grill kabobs 5 min. on each side.

THREE BEAN SALAD

1 can (about 16 oz.) kidney beans
1 can (16 oz.) green beans
1 can (16 or 17 oz.) lima beans
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup sliced scallions or green onions with tops
1 cup chopped celery
¼ cup diced pimiento
1 medium dill pickle, chopped
3 tablespoons molasses
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup chili sauce
Accent
Lemon pepper marinade
Salad greens

1. Thoroughly drain the liquid from the cans of beans, reserving 2 tablespoons of liquid from kidney beans.
2. Combine the beans, green pepper, scallions, celery, pimiento, and pickle in a mixing bowl. Toss to mix well.
3. Blend thoroughly the reserved bean liquid, molasses, mayonnaise, and chili sauce. Pour over salad ingredients and toss lightly. Season to taste with Accent and lemon pepper marinade. Continue mixing until ingredients are coated evenly. Chill thoroughly before serving.
4. To serve, line a salad bowl with the salad greens and spoon the salad into bowl. 6 to 8 servings

Note: If desired, garnish salad bowl with julienne strips of cooked ham or chicken.

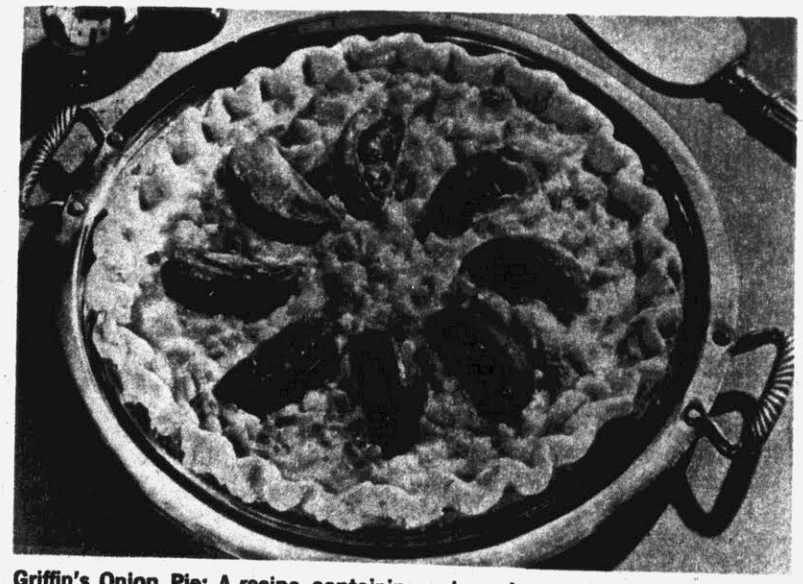
Merv Griffin: "My

Merv with wife Julann, their son Tony (11), and dog Quiche: They carry on the old-world tradition of families who love to eat.

My wife thinks people look like food. She's very strange that way. Ask Julann about Doris Day, and she'll say Doris looks like a bread stick. She thinks I look like a muffin.

I don't relate people to food, but I do know if food is good. I come from a family who loves to pack it away at the dinner table. Many of my relatives still live in Santa Clara, Calif. When we're going home, we give the family one day's notice. We used to tell them two weeks in advance, but they'd spend every minute of that time cooking, and store it all up in the freezer. It was too much. I've never seen so much food.

My wife cooks the same way because that's the way her family was, too. We can afford a cook, but Julann won't have one. We have live-in help, but they're not allowed to cook. She cooks for them. She reads cookbooks the way people read literature, and she always seems to get everything done easily. When guests arrive and she serves a huge dinner, people say, "But I haven't seen you cooking today." You never catch her cooking. But, man, those pots are going all the time. It's one big stir. She's a pioneer lady!



Griffin's Onion Pie: A recipe containing onions, bacon, sour cream and tomatoes—this is one reason why the Griffins have never bothered to hire a cook.

Wife Cooks Like a Pioneer Lady"

As told by Merv Griffin to Helen Dorsey

GRIFFIN'S ONION PIE

One 9-inch pie pastry (uncooked)
1 tsp. caraway seeds
1½ cups onion, chopped
2 tbsps. butter (or margarine)
12 strips bacon, cooked and crumbled
2 large eggs, beaten
2½ tbsps. flour
½ cup milk
1½ cups commercial sour cream
Salt, freshly ground pepper to taste
One large ripe tomato, optional

1. Prepare pie crust according to package instructions, adding caraway seeds during mixing. Roll out pastry on lightly floured board. Line a 9-inch pie plate with crust; prick crust. Partially bake in preheated 425°F oven about 7 min.; cool.

2. Sauté onion in butter until golden. Put in bottom of cooked crust with bacon bits.

3. Prepare custard: beat eggs until light. Slowly add flour, mixing well. Add sour cream, salt and pepper to taste. Mix well. Garnish with tomatoes cut in eighths.

4. Bake in preheated 425°F oven 20 mins.; reduce oven temperature to 325°F., bake 20 mins. longer (or until a silver knife inserted in the center comes out clean). Serves 4-6

JULANN'S GREEN PEPPER JELLY

2 cups prepared juice (from 8-10 large green peppers)
7 cups sugar
1¼ cups cider vinegar
1 red hot cherry pepper, crushed (tied in cheesecloth bag)
1 6-oz. bottle liquid fruit pectin
Few drops green fruit coloring

1. To prepare juice: cut open peppers, discard seeds. Put through food chopper twice, using finest blade (or put through electric blender, pulverizing peppers).

2. Drain and measure 2 cups prepared juice into large saucepan (retain pulp for salads or making relish). Thoroughly mix in sugar and vinegar. Place over high heat. Add crushed pepper (in cheesecloth bag). While mixture is coming to high boil, add green fruit coloring to give desired shade. Remove cheesecloth bag.

3. As soon as mixture boils, stir in liquid fruit pectin. Bring to rolling boil and boil hard for one minute, stirring constantly.

4. Remove from heat. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Pour quickly into sterilized jars. Cover at once with one-eighth-inch hot paraffin. Makes 10 medium-sized glasses of jelly.

(Note: It's important to follow directions using exact ingredients and timing. Liquid fruit pectin and powdered pectin cannot be used interchangeably, Julann's emerald delight makes a great accompaniment to roast beef or lamb or a delightful spread to serve on hot buttered toast.)

MEAT BALLS AND SAUCE

For the meat balls:
3 tbsps. butter
1 large stalk celery, chopped
1 small green pepper, minced
1 medium-sized onion, minced
¾ cup parsley, finely chopped
1½ lbs. lean ground beef (sirloin or chuck)
½ tps. dill seed
½ tsp. garlic salt
½ tsp. seasoned salt
Salt, pepper to taste
1 egg, beaten
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
¾ cup condensed milk
⅓ cup unflavored bread crumbs
Canned spaghetti sauce

1. Put butter into frying pan, add celery, pepper, onion and parsley. Cook until vegetables begin to soften. Pour butter-vegetable mixture into bowl containing ground beef.

2. Add remaining ingredients except spaghetti sauce; mix well. Form into small balls. Heat in any good commercial spaghetti sauce about 20 mins. Be sure not to heat too long; otherwise the meat balls become hard and crusty. Serves 4

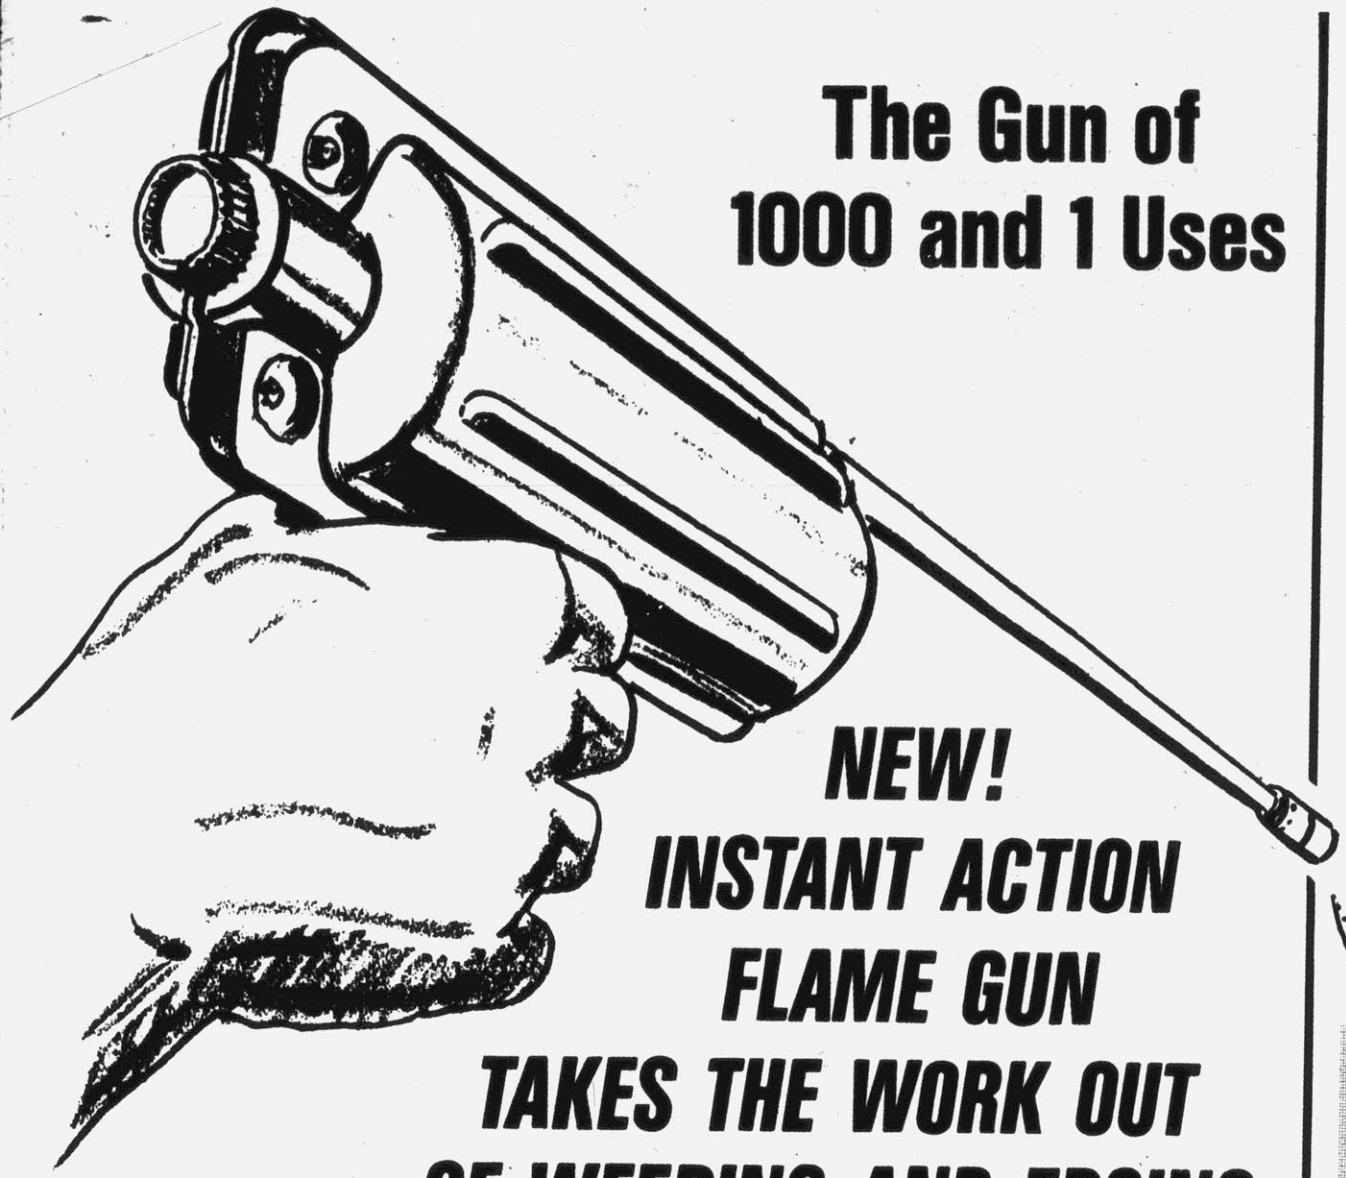
The Gun of 1000 and 1 Uses



NEW! INSTANT ACTION FLAME GUN TAKES THE WORK OUT OF WEEDING AND EDGING

With Incredible Dial-A-Flame Action
Long Reaching, Lightweight, Versatile...
So Easy Even Your Wife Can Use It

Some years ago hundreds of thousands of home owners discovered the incredible utility of the flame gun...it's efficiency in summer, it's absolute necessity in winter. Now, we've engineered a brand new flame gun that is a space age wonder. So light, so efficient it almost makes weeding and edging fun! What it does do is save you hour after hour of bending, stooping and squatting. It's so light to use even a woman can operate it with one hand without tiring. It literally zaps weeds right out of the ground, helps you give your lawns clean sharp edges, and best of all now at its incredibly low price of just $9.98 is $30 less than heavy duty units and we believe does their job far better!

Even Fully Fueled It Weighs Less Than 3 lbs.

Here's a tool so versatile you'll wonder how you ever did without it. Think of the steps you'll save attacking old paint. With its long feeder tube you can reach out-of-the-way places...destroy insects...anthills... old wasp nests, all, at a safe distance. You'll burn out weeds, dead leaves, edge your lawn, trim around flower beds with pinpoint control...everything you touch curls and crisps away under its clean, hot flame. And you dial the size of the flame...exactly right for every job.

OFFER WILL NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON

Completely without cumbersome cords or batteries, the entire unit weighs only 2 lbs. 13 oz. fully fueled with a safe, easy to use cylinder of propane gas. Over 3 feet long, you can reach the ground without stooping or reach up to at least 12 feet off the ground without using a ladder. Can operate up to 14 hours on a single cylinder of propane gas which is available in stores everywhere! The complete unit carrying our unconditional guarantee including replacement parts is yours for just $9.98. Full money back if you are not satisfied for any reason. Hurry, order now, this offer will not be repeated this season in this magazine.

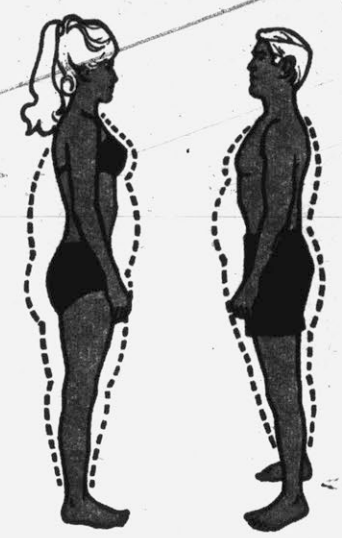
NEW EUROPEAN REDUCING DISCOVERY SPREADS LIKE WILDFIRE OVER ENTIRE CONTINENT!
From England Comes News of the Greatest Breakthrough to End Overweight Forever!
YES NOW YOU CAN EAT ALL YOU WANT AND LOSE WEIGHT

'I lost 71 pounds of dangerous fat in only 60 days!'



My Story of How I Was Able to LOSE 71 Pounds in ONLY 2 SHORT MONTHS Even Amazes Me . . .
DON'T COUNT CALORIES . . . Eat 3 FULL MEALS A DAY . . . NO LOW CALORIE DIETS . . .
NEVER BE HUNGRY AGAIN . . . COMPLETELY SAFE FOR ANY MAN OR WOMEN IN NORMAL HEALTH.

In September of 1970 I was fortunate enough to come across a two page article in one of the leading women's publications in the United States. This article told about a NEW, QUICK, SURE and SATISFYING METHOD that started in England and is presently sweeping through France, Holland and ALL OF EUROPE. People who were overweight, who have tried just about everything to LOSE POUNDS and INCHES and were always unsuccessful . . . finally found the missing link as to why, no matter how or what they tried . . . would not work to any degree. These fortunate people Stopped Starving Themselves, Stopped Counting Calories and STILL witnessed an unbelievable weight loss almost immediately. As I read more and more of this Startling Article, I realize the MANY MISTAKES I HAD MADE IN TRYING TO REDUCE MY WEIGHT and the more I read the MORE CONVINCED I WAS THAT I WAS GOING TO TRY THE PLAN THIS ARTICLE RECOMMENDED.

I began to follow this simple method and was startled to see the weight disappear before my very eyes. IN ONLY 1 WEEK 15 POUNDS MELTED AWAY. My clothing started to hang. I actually looked like I was wearing someone else's clothing. This didn't bother me at all, for this Easy, Quick and Safe Way to lose weight was what I had been looking for my entire adult life. And amazingly enough I wasn't hungry even once. As the weight seemingly dripped off I became more and more confident and as people praised my new appearance, I was even more thrilled and inspired to keep going. Finally after a short while I couldn't wear any of my clothes any longer . . . but this certainly didn't bother me. I ATE and ATE as the FAT LITERALLY FELL OFF.

I then decided to give this amazing new concept to everyone willing to try something COMPLETELY NEW IN WEIGHT REDUCTION.

THE MORE FOOD CONSUMED AND THE FULLER YOU FEEL THE BETTER IT WORKS!

Yes! You actually can eat all the food you desire until you're full and the pounds and inches will melt away forever! You'll see a tremendous difference in ONLY 5 DAYS!

YOU MUST EAT 3 FULL MEALS A DAY EACH AND EVERY DAY

Believe it or not. Is this possible? Not only is it possible to eat all you want and still grow slim but you must not skip any meals, even breakfast. No More Hunger Pangs, Headaches from being hungry . . . No Short Tempers or that let-Down weak feeling in general. Yes, thanks to this miraculous method you lose the weight you desire without depriving yourself of the food and nourishment your body needs. And best of all you don't have to count those calories each time you sit down to a good filling meal. Could anything be easier or more simple than that? Of course not!

THIS AMAZING NEW METHOD IS SWEEPING THROUGH EUROPE AND SLIMMING DOWN THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF WITH 100% SATISFACTION AND WITH COMPLETE SAFETY!

Yes, by following this simple method you can Lose those Pounds and Inches . . . Quickly, Easily and Safely . . . Without Every Being Hungry Again!

I call this method "SYNTRON". Yes, the SYNTRON Method really did the job for me and has been the answer to the overweight problems for thousands upon thousands of people like myself . . . male and female alike. What in the World!

HILDEGARD NEFF, AUTHOR & ACTRESS
A horror-story childhood with a happy ending

Her grandfather's suicide presents a moving moment as actress Hildegard Knef (Neff in America) tells the story of her childhood in Nazi Germany in her new book, "The Gift Horse." During the Russian occupation, her grandfather moved into one room of a burned-out house, waiting for word of whether Hildegard was alive. Three months he waited, until at last they had their reunion; she'd been in a Russian prison camp. "Two weeks later," she writes, "I had my opening night (on stage). Before the performance, a woman brought me a letter. It had no address. 'My beloved child,' it began, 'I am too old to be able to forget the horrors, or to be of use to you any longer,' and ended, 'perhaps you will one day understand and forgive me.' The handwriting was quite clear and not at all shaky. He had then taken sleeping pills, bound up his chin with a handkerchief, and drawn the sheet over his head." But the show, as tradition demands, went on.

Do you know what the Statue of Liberty really looks like? Here are some vital statistics of a very big lady (225 tons): Index finger, eight feet long; circumference, three feet, six inches; fingernail 13 by 10 inches. Length of nose, four feet, six inches. Width of mouth, three feet.

What is a ghost town really like? Typical is Goodsprings, Nev. (within driving distance of Las Vegas), population now about 62, which was the biggest town in the state back in 1913, according to "TWA's Getaway Guide to Las Vegas." In 1942 Clark Gable stayed at the hotel (gone now, as is almost everything but the cemetery and derelict mines) while he was awaiting the body of his wife Carole Lombard killed in a plane crash. Pieces of the wreckage of that crash adorn the pot-bellied stove of the lone building, the old tin-walled, bullet-ridden Pioneer Saloon. The bearded owner, Dan Hedrick, 44 years old and 285 pounds, left the supermarket business in Illinois to come here. He opines: "Out here, you don't have to put up with a packaged world."

WOODY WOODPECKER IS 30
Will that mean kids can't trust him?

Woody Woodpecker is 30 years old this month. (Does that announcement make you feel very old, or very young?) He started out as a minor movie cartoon character; but soon, by popular demand, he became a leading man. His creator Walter Lantz, 71, tells us that Woody's first voice was that of Mel Blanc (who also does Bugs Bunny's voice). But—surprise! —for the last decade or so, his voice has been that of Mrs. Lantz. These days Woody stars on NBC's "Woody Woodpecker Show," on autumn Saturday mornings.

DATES: Thursday is St. Swithin's Day. (If it rains that day, legend says it will rain for 40 days.) The Miss Universe Pageant begins Thursday at Miami Beach.

ANNIVERSARIES: Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science, was born 150 years ago next Friday.

BIRTHDAYS: Monday, Andrew Wyeth is 54, Van Cliburn is 37 and Oscar Hammerstein II is 76. Wednesday, Irving Stone is 68, Ingmar Bergman is 53 and Terry-Thomas is 60. Ginger Rogers is 60, and Barbara Stanwyck is 64 on Friday. On Saturday, James Cagney is 67.

Van Cliburn, Barbara Stanwyck

Quips & Quotes

I DON'T NEED GLASSES, HONEST!
I held the book far from my nose,
So reading wasn't rough,
But now I've got some added woes:
My arms aren't long enough.
—Lucy Lolli Bankin

A farmer was finishing his haying one Sunday morning as the pastor of the local church drove by.

"Brother," the minister lectured him, "don't you know that the Creator made the world in six days and rested on the seventh?"

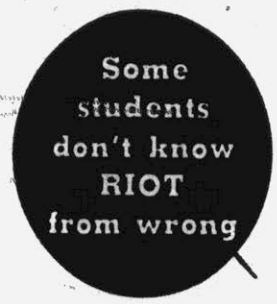
"Yes," said the farmer looking uneasily at the rain clouds closing in. "But He got done, and I didn't."

—Lucille J. Goodyear

Minor operation: An operation performed on somebody else.
L. G. Scottsdale

The only thing most people remember about algebra is that they've forgotten it when their children need help with their homework —Dan Bennett

TALBERT'S IMP-BUTTONS



It takes a heap of payments to make your house your home.
—Walter R. Erbaugh

A politician who had changed his views rather radically was congratulated by a colleague:

"I'm glad you've seen the light."

"I didn't see the light," replied the politician. "I felt the heat."

—Eudora Thomas Sabo

FATHER'S CONCERN
One thing my wife's been quick to see
Is all our children's faults in me.
I cringe in apprehension when I think how bad they might have been,
If they had not been blessed by her
With some good traits of character.
—Rex Mobley

An old employee had been kept on by his firm long after his usefulness had ended. When he became a nuisance to everybody around him, he was persuaded to "retire" on his 80th birthday.

At his farewell dinner, his associates pulled out all the stops to extol him. The Chairman of the Board actually shed a couple of tears as he ticked off the old fellow's many virtues and fine accomplishments.

The old man was bowled over.

"I had no idea I was so essential," he quavered when it was his turn to speak. "I withdraw my resignation. I'll stay on with you."

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

TERRY AND MRS. GAR FOLLOW THE THEATER CRITIC TO HIS OFFICE.

I'M NOT ACCUSTOMED TO BEING INFLUENCED IN MY REVIEWS, MRS. GAR, BUT THE CENTRAL CHARACTER'S WIDOW AND THE PLAYWRIGHT'S MOTHER SHOULD HAVE A MOST INTERESTING OPINION. JUST REMEMBER, I HAVE A DEADLINE TO MEET.

GAIL GAR TELLS CLIFTON SHEDZ THE FULL STORY OF HER LATE HUSBAND'S CRIME AND PUNISHMENT.

...HONOR, FREEDOM, EVEN HIS LIFE!

GALEE COULD HAVE WRITTEN AN HONEST TRAGEDY. SHE CHOSE TO CHEAT HER AUDIENCE WITH A DISTORTED CARICATURE OF THE KIND OF MAN HER FATHER WAS.

SHE COULD HAVE TOLD WHAT WAR CAN DO TO A MAN. SHE WROTE A CLICHE TO CASH ON THE CURRENT FAD OF HATING THE MILITARY.

YOU ARE A POWERFUL MAN IN THE THEATER, MR. SHEDZ. THAT CARRIES WITH IT AN OBLIGATION: YOU CANNOT SEND YOUR READERS TO A BOX OFFICE TO BUY A FRAUD.

"THE LAST SCENE IN GALEE'S PLAY SHOWED A MONSTER GLOATING OVER HIS CRIME. THE TRUTH WAS A BROKEN MAN DYING IN PRISON OF REMORSE."

LATER, AT THE THEATRICAL RESTAURANT WHERE GALEE'S COMPANY AWAITS THE CRITICS' VERDICT...

HERE YOU ARE, MISS GAR. SHEDZ IS ON PAGE FORTY.

"REGARDING MYSELF AS A CERTIFIED INTELLECTUAL, I RESENT BEING TREATED LIKE A YOKEL IN A CARNY TENT, EXPECTED TO GAPE AT A FAKE MONSTER."

"I CANNOT RECOMMEND TO LIKE-MINDED READERS THAT THEY WASTE THEIR TIME ON SUCH IMMATURE, SPITEFUL MERCHANDISE."

AND THAT, KIDDIES, IS WHAT IS KNOWN AS "THE PATENTED SHEDZ KISS OF DEATH"!

HE MUST BE MAD!

HEY! WHAT ABOUT THE MOVIE — MY ROLE?

CHAY, YOU'RE A BIG BOY. YOU KNOW RIGHT NOW I COULDN'T GIVE AWAY THE FILM RIGHTS.

STANLEY! IF WE HANG ON... WORD OF MOUTH... I DO HAVE A FOLLOWING...

FORGET IT, GALEE. EVEN OPENING THE BOX OFFICE WOULD BE AN EXERCISE IN FUTILITY. G'NIGHT, ALL.

7/11

THAT TURNCOAT! SHEDZ CALLED ME "TALENTED," "BRILLIANT"!... AND NOW HE DOES THIS TO ME!

AND WHEN WILL I EVER HAVE ANOTHER SHOT AT SOMETHING BIG?

CHAY, THE QUESTION IS, ARE WE THEATER PEOPLE GOING TO LET THAT HATCHET MAN GET AWAY WITH BUTCHERING US TO SATISFY HIS OWN EGO?

PEANUTS

BRUSH THIS GUY BACK!

HEY, BATTER!

HEY, BATTER!

HEY, BATTER!

COME ON, CHARLIE BROWN, STRIKE HIM OUT!

I KNOW YOU LIKE LOTS OF CHATTER OUT THERE, MANAGER, BUT I CAN'T THINK OF ANYTHING TO CHATTER...

WELL, HOW ABOUT SAYING, "THROW IT BY 'IM, PITCHER," OR HOW ABOUT, "HE CAN'T HIT WHAT HE CAN'T SEE!"

ANOTHER GOOD ONE IS, "SHOW 'IM THE HIGH, HARD ONE!"

COULD YOU WRITE SOME OF THOSE DOWN? I'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO REMEMBER THEM OTHERWISE

7-11

THANK YOU... THIS WILL BE A BIG HELP..

"OKAY, PITCHER, THROW IT PAST HIM! HE CAN'T HIT WHAT HE CAN'T SEE!"

"PITCH HARD, CHARLIE BROWN!"

"STAY WITH 'IM, KID! YOU CAN DO IT, CHARLIE BROWN! BE GOOD, BOY! GOOD SHOT! SHOW 'IM THE HIGH, HARD ONE.."

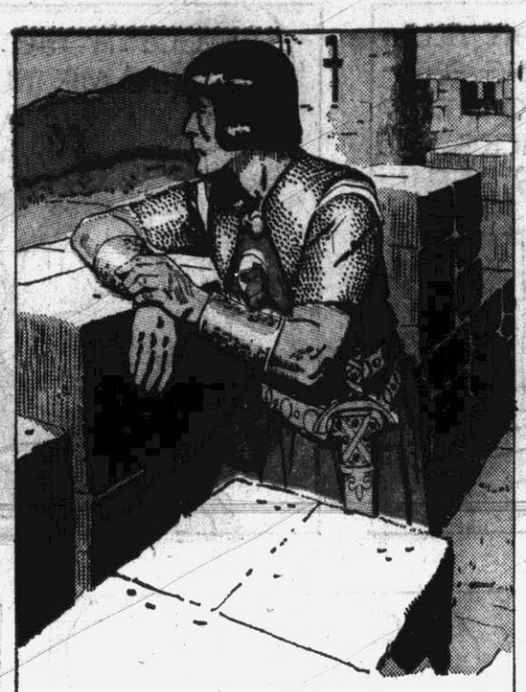
Prince Valiant®

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

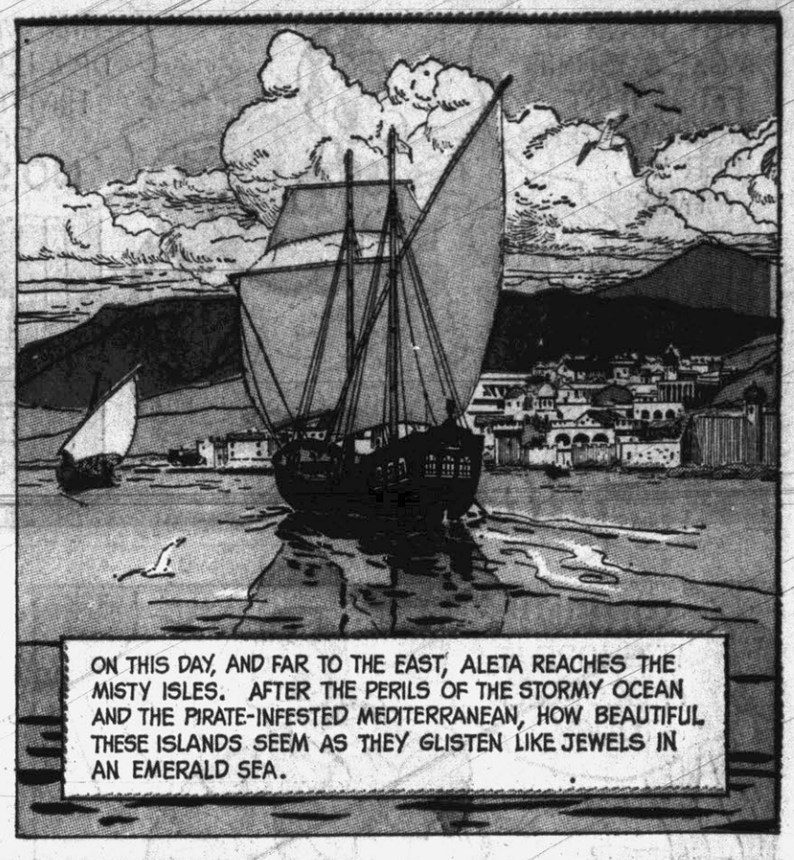
BY HAL FOSTER.

Our Story: SIEUR DELAUNCY IS LAID TO REST AND THE DAYS THAT FOLLOW ARE DOLEFUL. ZIRARA SPENDS ALL HIS TIME DOCTORING HIS LAME HORSE AND REFUSES TO LEAVE UNTIL HIS BELOVED MOUNT IS FIT FOR THE ROUGH ROAD AHEAD.

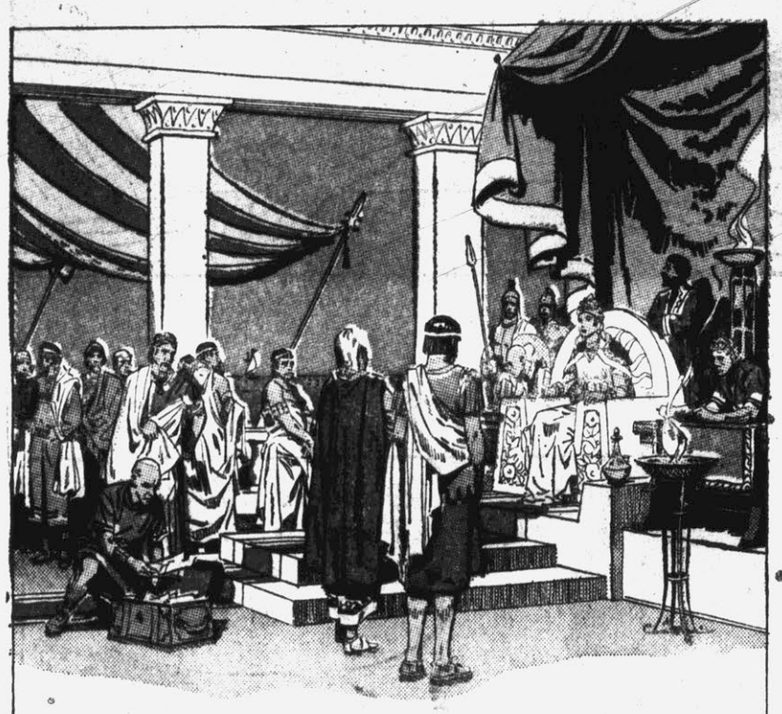
ARN MAKES FRIENDS WITH AN ADVENTUROUS YOUTH AND THE TWO SPEND THEIR DAYS SEARCHING OUT THE SAFEST ROUTE TO THE SEA.



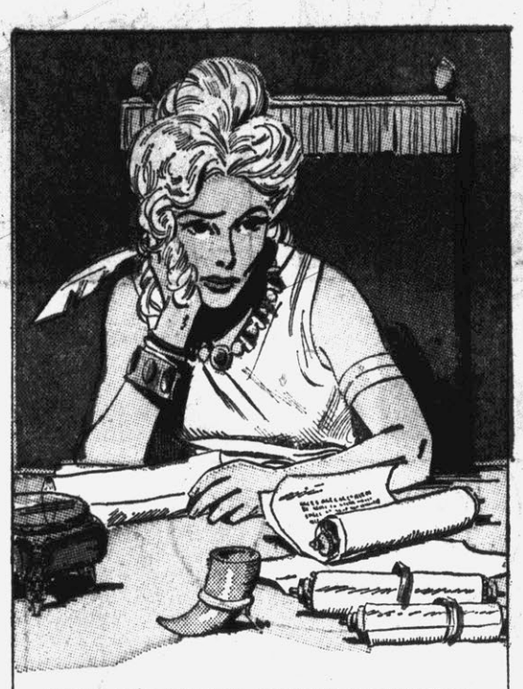
TO PRINCE VALIANT THE LONG DELAY IS TORTURE. HIS SEARCH FOR ALETA HAS BECOME HIS GREATEST QUEST AND EACH PASSING HOUR ADDS TO HIS IMPATIENCE.



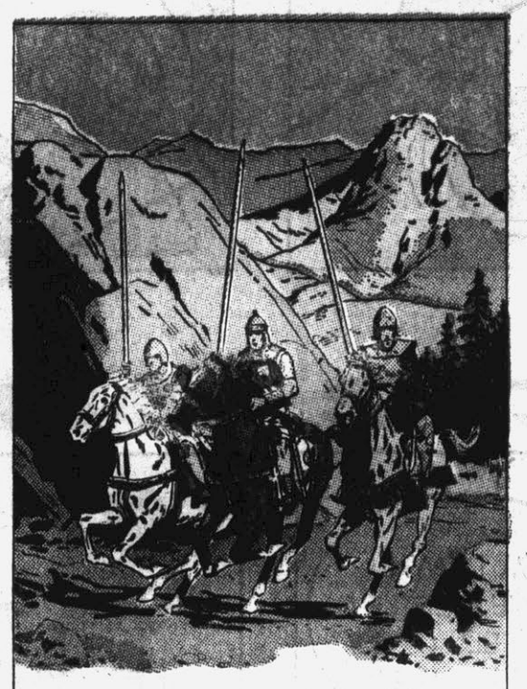
ON THIS DAY, AND FAR TO THE EAST, ALETA REACHES THE MISTY ISLES. AFTER THE PERILS OF THE STORMY OCEAN AND THE PIRATE-INFESTED MEDITERRANEAN, HOW BEAUTIFUL THESE ISLANDS SEEM AS THEY GLISTEN LIKE JEWELS IN AN EMERALD SEA.



SHE TAKES HER THRONE, BUT SO WELL HAD SHE ORGANIZED THE GOVERNMENT ON HER LAST SOJOURN THAT THERE IS LITTLE TO CHALLENGE HER STATESMANSHIP.



BUT IN HER PRIVATE CHAMBERS LONELINESS SETS IN. FOR POOR ALETA HAS NO WAY OF KNOWING THAT VAL IS BRAVING THE DANGERS OF A WAR-TORN LAND TO REACH HER SIDE.



THE LONG DELAY IS ENDED AND ONCE MORE THE THREE ADVENTURERS ARE ON THEIR WAY, SWIFTLY NOW ALONG THE ROUTE ARN HAS EXPLORED.

ALL YOU READ IS WESTERNS! WELL, I PREFER POETRY!

HAH! ROSES ARE RED. VIOLETS ARE BLUE…

OKAY, SO I LIKE WESTERNS! IF YOU'RE SO CULTURED LET'S HEAR YOU QUOTE SOME POETRY.

VERY WELL…

HAIL TO THEE, BLITHE SPIRIT! BIRD THOU NEVER WERT! … SHELLEY.

"WERT"… WHAT LANGUAGE IS THAT?
