

Leak Caused Deaths Of 3 Morocco Coup Leaders Shot

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The ringleaders in the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II were executed by a firing squad early today, official sources reported.

They said the names of the officers executed after a summary court-martial would be announced later.

The executions are continuing, they added, and it was not immediately clear whether all the six leading conspirators reported under arrest had been shot.

King Hassan told a news conference Sunday that the officers who led the attempted coup Saturday would all be dead by sundown tonight. He named eight principal plotters including four generals and three colonels.

Hassan said Gen. Mohamed Medbouh, the head of his personal military staff, and three other generals named Mustapha, Bougrine and Hambou used 1,400 ignorant, drug-crazed cadets in an abortive attempt to liquidate him and the entire leadership of his regime.

Medbouh was accidentally killed by his own men during the attack at the king's summer palace on the Atlantic Ocean 15 miles south of Rabat. At least 30 of the guests at the king's 42nd birthday party were killed, including the country's only field marshal, three generals, the minister of tourism, the president of the supreme court, Belgian Ambassador Marcel Duprat and other officers and officials.

About 150 rebels died in a seven-hour battle for the Rabat radio station. The insurgents seized the radio, announced the king's death and proclaimed a revolutionary republic. But forces loyal to the king finally overcame the rebellion.

The four rebel generals named by the king were not known to have any leftist affiliations. Medbouh became Hassan's closest military adviser in 1963 when he betrayed a plot in which he said he pretended to take part.

The king said the "Libyan style coup" was inspired by the revolution in that North African country in September 1969, when young officers overthrew the monarchy while King Idris was out of the country. Col. Muammar Kadafi, the head of the Libyan military regime, threatened Saturday to send troops to Morocco to support the rebels. In reprisal, Hassan had his troops occupy the Libyan Embassy and put the embassy staff under house arrest pending their expulsion from the country.

The king also intimated Egypt might have been involved, saying:

"We know there was a foreign hand in it because our Cairo embassy was inundated with demands for passports from 600 Moroccans living there in exile who had been summoned by the rebels."

But Algeria, Morocco's next-door neighbor, and Tunisia sided with Hassan. Algerian Minister of State Belkacem Cherif and Tunisian Foreign Minister Habib Bourguiba Jr. appeared at the news conference with the king, who expressed his gratitude for the support of their governments.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government announced today that a pressure leak killed the three Soyuz-11 cosmonauts half an hour before their landing June 30 and indicated human error rather than a fault in their spaceship was responsible.

"An inspection of the descent vehicle, which made a soft landing, showed that there are no failures in its structure," said the report by the investigating commission. It said it was making a further analysis "to establish a number of probable causes of the seal failure."

One Soviet journalist reported two days after the disaster that the men died because they did not seal the landing craft's hatch properly. He said it jarred open slightly during the turbulence of the re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The cosmonauts—Georgy Dobrovolsky, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Pat-sayev—spent 23 days aboard the Salute space laboratory before returning to earth. On July 2, their ashes were entombed in the Kremlin wall, the traditional burial place of Soviet heroes.

The commission's announcement, reported by the official news agency Tass, said:

"On the ship's descent trajectory, 30 minutes before landing, there occurred a rapid drop of pressure within the descent vehicle, which led to the sudden deaths of the cosmonauts.

"This is confirmed by the medical and pathological-anatomic examination.

"The drop of pressure resulted from a loss of the ship's sealing."

By ruling out structural failure, the commission's report implied that the cosmonauts had erred in some way. In an article published while the spacemen were aboard the orbiting Salute lab, veteran cosmonaut Vladimir Shatalov warned that prolonged exposure to weightlessness sometimes caused "a false feeling of complacency."

"The psycho-physiological capabilities of the cosmonauts' organism drop as the flight nears completion," he said. "Thus it is very important for them to automatically perform the operations necessary for piloting the ship, for descent and landing."

Informer Regrets Her Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —

Branded a "snitch" slugged and beaten up more than once amid insults and threats, an informant says her life has been hell since helping police crack the Sharon Tate murder case.

"It's just bad news staying around here," Ronnie Howard, 32, told newsmen after the latest attempt on her life. She said she will probably move.

Police dug a .30 caliber bullet out of a hallway wall Saturday after a sniper apparently fired a shot into her apartment that she said missed her head by inches.

Officers said her story checks out and they have stepped up patrols around her apartment.

"I should have kept my mouth shut in the first place, and not said a word," the dark-haired woman said.

Miss Howard and another woman were key prosecution witnesses in the 15-month Tate-LaBianca trial, testifying that Susan Atkins bragged to them about the seven August 1969 murders when the trio shared a jail cell.

Miss Atkins, Charles Manson and two other female followers were convicted and sentenced to death.

Miss Howard was released from police protective custody about a year ago.

She said she helped police because Miss Atkins had said more people would be killed.

In A Hurry, But Paused To Save Patient's Life

DETROIT (AP) — A woman doctor who entered Sinai Hospital on the verge of giving birth to a baby stopped long enough to save a life.

Dr. Sharon Wolf had no sooner walked into the hospital Saturday when orderlies wheel in a young man who suffered from a drug overdose and had stopped breathing.

Dr. Wolf, in the first stages of labor, helped nurses administer resuscitation and had the young man breathing normally within minutes.

The 27-year-old doctor then had to wait about 9½ hours before giving birth to a 6½-pound boy.

"I just thought I should help," said Dr. Wolf. "But I wasn't in a big hurry then anyhow."

Viet Cong Conditions For Settlement Were Anticipated Long Ago

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Viet Cong conditions for a Vietnam war settlement now being explored by U.S. negotiators in Paris were anticipated almost 3½ years ago in a confidential U.S. Central Intelligence Agency report.

"In talks, Communist terms would involve the establishment of a new 'coalition' government which would in fact, if not in appearance, be under the domination of the Communists," said a CIA assessment intended for President Lyndon B. Johnson that never reached him.

"Secondly, they would insist on a guaranteed withdrawal of U.S. forces within some precisely defined period," the assessment said.

Both conditions are part of a Vietnamese Communist proposal announced in Paris July 1.

The assessment added that cessation of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and the start of peace negotiations without significant Communist concessions would create "a real risk that the Thieu-Ky regime would collapse, and this would in fact be part of Hanoi's calculation."

The assessment was disclosed in Pentagon papers released by

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska.

Differing from State and Defense department recommendations, the CIA estimates were at times ignored.

In this case, the CIA estimate never reached Johnson who had ordered a comprehensive reassessment of U.S. policy after the surprise Communist Tet offensive of February 1968.

More Gunships For The Next 'Hunting Season'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While reducing forces in Vietnam, the United States is preparing to add more gunships in Thailand for the next hunting season against Communist supply routes in Laos.

The plans, involving a $56-million modification program, indicate U.S. airpower may be operating against the Ho Chi Minh trail well after the bulk of American troops are out of the war in Vietnam.

Pentagon officials say the Air Force gunships, converted from transport planes and armed with three types of heavy-fire guns and cannon, have accounted for about two-thirds of the more than 25,000 North Vietnamese supply trucks reported destroyed or damaged in Laos since last Nov. 1.

The North Vietnamese supply effort is hampered by current heavy rains along the trail, but Hanoi is expected to crank up a big new supply push when dry weather returns in the fall.

U.S. authorities are especially concerned about stemming any heavy flow of arms or ammunition from North Vietnam to Communist troops in the South during the coming dry season.

American combat strength in Vietnam will be reduced so far by then that remaining U.S. troops, principally in base areas, will be vulnerable if the enemy should attack in force.

The Air Force had about a dozen AC130A gunships in action earlier this year, but the number is slightly smaller now because some are being refitted to improve their ability to detect and hit enemy trucks at night and in all kinds of weather.

The plan is to convert six later-model C130E transports, bringing the total of this type of gunship to about 18 flying out of Thailand by fall.

The gunships throw a huge volume of fire. Aimed out of side pots, their miniguns spew from 3,000 to 6,000 rounds a minute, another pair of 20-millimeter Gatling guns discharge about 2,500 rounds a minute, and a 40-millimeter cannon shoots 120 shells a minute at targets on the ground.

The gunships are equipped with night sensors, armor protection, low-light-level TV, improved tracking radar and updated infra-red equipment for sensing heat emanating from truck engines.

Meany Says For Controls

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says if he were in President Nixon's shoes he would impose wage and price controls in the fight against inflation.

"I don't see any other way that this situation is going to get under control," Meany said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Meany said his own 13.5-million-member labor organization is "not advocating controls," but would not oppose them if they were imposed evenly.

"If he makes a decision that the international situation is such, or the domestic situation is such that he needs to impose controls, we have said time and time again ... we are saying it now. That we will go along," Meany said. "We will accept wage and price controls provided they are shared equally to cover all forms of income and ... provided the sacrifice is equal to everybody concerned."

Meany said the country has an "inflationary psychology."

"We have people raising prices when there is just no reason," he said.

According to the book, when you cause more unemployment, when you tighten up on the money supply and you keep business from expanding and thereby cause more and more people to become unemployed, prices should come down according to the rules."

But, Meany said, prices have gone up, by 4.2 per cent in 1968, 5.4 per cent in 1969 and 5.9 per cent in 1970.

In this situation it would seem that the answer, the answer from the President's point of view would be controls. "I don't see any other answer," he said.

Meany, in a speech today opening the AFL-CIO Conference on Jobs, said Treasury Secretary John B. Connally lacks confidence in America and doesn't understand problems of American workers.

Of Connally, recently designated by Nixon as the administration's chief economic spokesman, Meany said:

"He is a proven expert at Texas politics, and knows quite a bit about the oil companies and what they want. 'I'm not sure he knows much about the national economy, and I am certain he doesn't understand the problems of American workers."

"Secretary Connally said ... that American workers can expect high unemployment forever, except in war time. He said it is a 'myth' to believe that unemployment can be cut to even 4 per cent in peacetime," Meany said.

"His shocking lack of faith in the ability of the American people and the American system to reach and maintain full employment—certainly less than 4 per cent and surely no higher than 3 per cent—sounds like acceptance of Communist propaganda," Meany said.

Calley Damage Suit Dismissed

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A $400 million damage suit filed against Lt. William L. Calley Jr., and high government officials on behalf of villagers surviving the My Lai assault has been dismissed by a federal judge.

U.S. District Judge J. Robert Elliot dismissed the suit last week at the request of Charles Pekor, assistant U.S. attorney here.

Billie Sol Is With Family; Given Parole

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Smiling and embracing his family, former Texas fertilizer financier Billie Sol Estes sped off a free man today from the La Tuna Federal Correctional Institution.

Estes had served more than six years of a 15-year prison term for fraud in connection with a nonexistent fertilizer storage tank empire which netted millions and created a nationwide scandal.

Estes left the federal prison at 12:03 a.m., seated in the back seat of a private car with his wife, Patsy, and one of their blonde teen-age daughters.

Estes ignored the small cluster of waiting newsmen and photographers huddled at the prison gates.

Later, the Estes car, driven by son Billie Sol Jr., eluded pursuers near the campus of the University of Texas at El Paso, 20 miles from the prison.

Warden W. E. Zachem, who earlier described the one-time promoter-farmer-preacher as a model prisoner, said Estes requested a "private dismissal."

Estes, 46, said previously he would live with his wife and family in Abilene and work on a farm owned by a brother, John Estes.

Under terms of his parole, he "shall not engage in any self-employment or promotional type activity" without approval of the U.S. Parole Board.

Estes was convicted at El Paso in 1963 of seven counts of mail fraud and assessed a 15-year prison sentence. He entered the federal institution at Leavenworth, Kan., in March 1965.

He was transferred in December 1966 to the minimum security facility in Sandstone, Minn., and was brought to La Tuna in April 1970.

Estes amassed a paper fortune worth millions before his arrest by federal agents in March 1962.

He was accused of fashioning a swindle by borrowing millions of dollars on non-existent farm fertilizer tanks.

Chilean Congress Votes To 'Nationalize' Copper

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende is expected to sign the constitutional amendment to complete nationalization of Chile's copper industry despite his complaint that it gives the U.S. companies too many breaks.

Meeting in joint session Sunday night, 158 of the 200 senators and deputies in Congress unanimously approved the amendment without debate. The vote came after a festive "National Dignity Day," ordered by the government to celebrate the nationalization.

The government bought part of the Chilean holdings of the three U.S. companies—Anaconda, Kennecott and Cerro—during the administration of President Eduardo Frei, and completion of the nationalization is a cornerstone of Allende's program to "open the doors to socialism in Chile."

Estimates of the investment by the three companies in Chile's five biggest mines range from $300 million to $800 million. There is no estimate of how much they have profited, but the five mines last year produced 85,000 tons of metal worth more than $1 billion. Copper is Chile's most important resource and produces 80 per cent of the country's foreign exchange.

Allende in a heated 90-minute speech Sunday in Rancagua, 55 miles south of Santiago, accused the U.S. companies of allowing the mines to get in an "alarming state."

He said recent surveys by French and Russian mining experts confirmed this. He also said the studies demonstrated that the companies did not use efficient management techniques in operating the mines.

He singled out Anaconda and Kennecott for making "fabulous sums" in Chile, while allowing their mines to deteriorate.

Referring to compensation to the companies for their holdings, Allende told his cheering audience of miners: "We'll pay if it's fair. We won't pay if it's not fair."

"We're going to stop money from leaving Chile and going to the great international copper empires," he said. "We're going to stop Chile from being a beggar nation."

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A fire reportedly began by lightning gutted a building that covered one-third of a block in the main business district of Fayetteville during the night before it was controlled.

Firemen were called to the 500 block of Hay Street, the city's main street, just before 10 p.m. Sunday after a passerby said he saw lightning hit the roof of the Hedges Building during a thunderstorm. The blaze was not controlled until just before dawn.

A spokesman for the fire department said all 100 men in the department remained at the scene, putting water on the remains throughout the night.

The shallow block contains the Fayetteville Observer newspaper offices as well as several other businesses. But fire walls on each side of the burning building kept the flames from spreading.

Fire Chief Thurman Bishop said he knew of no casualties although he said his men had been unable to enter the two-story brick building. About 18 rooms on the second floor were rented as individual apartments.

No estimate of the damage was immediately available. Observers said the fire began on the second floor and burned into the street level, gutting the building.

In addition to the upstairs rooms, the building had offices of an anti-poverty agency, the Cumberland Community Action program, on the ground floor; along with the Turf Club Tavern, the Brooklyn Spaghetti House and Vemco Music Co. None of the businesses was believed to have been open at the time.

A fire wall separates the building from a service station at one end of the block and the Fayetteville Observer newspaper plant and three small stores on the other.

Adapted from "AMERICAN COOKING" 4 large eggs, separated 1/2 cup cranberry juice cocktail

1 can (16 ounces) whole berry cranberry sauce 1 1/2 teaspoons grenadine 1/4 cup sugar 1/2 cup heavy cream

In a small mixing bowl beat egg yolks until thickened and lemon color; beat in cranberry juice cocktail. Transfer to a small saucepan and cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thick enough to coat a metal spoon heavily; do not boil or mixture will curdle. Stir in the undrained cranberry sauce and the grenadine. Turn into a medium mixing bowl and chill until slightly thickened—about 1/2 hour.

In a small clean mixing bowl, with clean beater, beat egg whites until foamy; gradually beat in sugar; continue to beat until whites hold stiff straight peaks when beater is slowly withdrawn; set aside.

In a small clean mixing bowl, without washing beater, beat cream until it holds soft peaks; fold into the thickened cranberry mixture; fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites until no white streaks show.

Pour into a 4- to 5-cup mold. Cover with foil and freeze until firm.

Associated Press Food Editor When cookbooks were first published in the United States, they were steals from British cuisine. Only gradually were truly American recipes introduced.

For example, when a publisher in Alexandria, Va., in 1805 brought out England's best-seller, Mrs. Glasse's "The Art of Cookery Made Plain and Easy," no more than half a dozen or so recipes "adapted to the mode of American cooking" were included. One of these was for Cranberry Tarts—and cranberry recipes have appeared in collections of American dishes ever since.

But how cranberry recipes

Do You Feel 'Plastic?' You're Right In Style

Say the word "plastic" to some people and they'll think you're talking about synthetics. But say the word to a lot of other people nowadays, and you could be describing everything from an African safari to a beauty contest.

From a simple, two-syllable adjective, generally meaning "moldable," "plastic" has become one of the popular words in our modern lexicon.

Not since "soul" came into national prominence has a word caught on with so many people who use it in so many different ways.

"What we object to is the plastic character of the American life," writes one critic.

"Making movies is so plastic, you have to bring yourself back to earth," says Ali McGraw.

"There is still enough danger to keep the trip (an African safari) from turning plastic," says a writer.

What does it all mean? Are we really living in a "plastic" age?

Not so, says H. Bosley Woolf, editorial director for dictionaries at G. & C. Merriam Co.

"What we have with 'plastic' is merely another example of a familiar word taking on a new meaning while the old meanings also continue to be used," Woolf points out.

"One of the virtues of the English language is its great adaptability," Woolf notes.

"New words come into the language all the time and familiar words are constantly taking on new meanings.

"Actually, the word has been used for some time to suggest a lack of independence, a rigidity," Woolf points out. "It's as though just today a lot of people have found it convenient and descriptive who otherwise would have passed it by. It's in vogue, and that's enough for most of us."

He recently told me that his doctor has informed him that he cannot have marital relations with me anymore as the excitement might further damage his health. Can this be true?

Don't suggest I ask his doctor because his doctor is his golfing buddy and he would never make a liar out of my husband even if he was one. WONDERING IN N. J.

DEAR WONDERING: Yes, it's possible that your husband's doctor told him what he told you. But if you suspect your husband of trying to avoid marital relations with you by giving you a phony medical report, you have more trouble than a sick husband—you have a sick marriage.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from MISERABLE IN MAINE—the girl who was engaged to a disabled veteran—hit close to home with me.

I walked down the aisle to marry a man who was waiting for me in a wheelchair. It was a beautiful wedding, and I felt like the luckiest girl in the world to be marrying such a wonderful man.

We've been married for four years and we couldn't be happier. Our son is three and our daughter is two, and we go on picnics, fishing trips and camping vacations together. My husband is an excellent swimmer, and altho he can't water ski, he drives our boat very well. Our kids don't feel cheated because their father is handicapped. They get more attention than most of their friends whose fathers are able-bodied.

Your answer was perfect. "If you really love him, nobody will be able to talk you out of marrying him!" That's exactly what I would have told her.

HAPPY IN ARKANSAS

DEAR HAPPY: Would you believe you have company in every state of the union, and Canada, Ireland and Italy as well?

DEAR ABBY: This is for the babe who says "pumping gas" is only a sideline—those nice men in the service stations are really there to give directions to people who get lost:

Is that so? I have helped hundreds of "lost" drivers get back on the right road. About half the folks who pull up here want everything but what we are selling. We call them "I. W. W.'s" [Information, Wind and Water.] You sure have to fight to make a buck in this business!

LOU IN CANNON FALLS

DEAR LOU: You forgot those fellow travelers who want the key to your restroom.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell Elizabeth K. I would like to be her vice president of the "See America Unintentionally" Society, because getting lost is what I do best.

Would you believe that while driving thru Louisville, I somehow meandered around, trying to get out of town, and not once, but three times I drove up to the "Welcome to Louisville" sign?

So, move over, Elizabeth, if I can find you I will be your helper. Actually, I started out to hunt you, stopped for gas on the Interstate, drove out of the station, turned the wrong way, and wound up home. ANOTHER TRAIL BLAZER

Children's Books Are Fulfilling New Role

By PEACE STERLING
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Selma Lanes' favorite occupation—when she's depressed and in need of some spiritual rehabilitation—is browsing among the children's books in New York bookstores. But that's a real busman's holiday for her, since she spends her working hours reviewing children's books and since she just finished writing a book about children's books, "Down the Rabbit Hole."

Miss Lanes, who has two young sons of her own, says children's books are fulfilling a new role now in the lives of children. "I think childhood has come into its own in this century," she says. "By that, I mean childhood as a state of its own, with its own logic."

"Previously parents wanted children to grow up as soon as possible and become useful citizens. Now, adults focus on childhood more, maybe to forget their own lives."

And although there is more focus on childhood, Mrs. Lanes says children spend less time with adults, so they look to books for companionship. "A child is terribly isolated by the nuclear family," she says. "They don't know where food comes from—it's just brought from the supermarket. And machines do a lot of things that took up time before. But books tell them about other kinds of life."

The author's main area of interest is picture books for very young children. Her main criticism of such books is that the illustrations can be so blatant they rob books of their words. For a while in the 50s, she says, illustrators found children's books an open field, and learned that a book with pretty pictures would sell even with the flimsiest of story lines. "But now," she says, "it's becoming too expensive to print such elaborate picture books, and they're becoming simpler."

Mrs. Lanes notes children don't need pictures of only pretty people. "Left to their own devices," she says, "children have very honest reactions, and they know people aren't all pretty." She adds that children love books about awful people who do awful things.

"Very seldom do you see why a child likes a book," she notes, "but you have to respect them for their own logic."

Although the author admits her own sons don't read as much as she would like, ("Nothing infuriates me more than to come home and see them watching television.") She has advice for parents on how to encourage their children to read.

"Don't push things," she says. "Take kids to the library, and let them bring home the books they want. Have books around the home. And never, never discourage them. I think anything a child reads from comic books on is fine. Only by reading what they like do they develop taste." The author says many children are turned off by school books. "They're so dull," she comments. "And children have TV around which seems much more interesting, so they wonder why they should bother to read."

Her own favorite children's books, she says, often are determined by the author's attitude, more than subject matter. "Children have their own sense of reality," she says, "and in many ways are so helpless because they have adults reality pushed on them. So I think the best books for children are written by people who haven't lost their own sense of childhood."

Miss Lynda Moyer Weds Lt. Bergren

AGANA, Guam — Miss Lynda Jane Moyer became the bride of Lt. Stephen Braun Bergren, USNR, in ceremony performed by Chaplain Fred Zobel at Saint Luke's Chapel, United States Naval Hospital, here.

The bride is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. E.H. Moyer and the bridegroom is the son of Col. and Mrs. O.V. Bergren of Barrington, Ill.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Top O the Mar Officers' Club.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was white organdy and French lace over satin in the Victorian style trimmed with inserts of petal pink velvet ribbon and seed pearl embroidery.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a profile of French lace daisies with subtle pearl trim, crystal and pearl beading. She carried and old-fashioned nosegay of pink sweetheart roses and white tube roses.

She was attended by her sisters. Miss Cynthia Moyer was the maid of honor, bridesmaid was Miss Mary Moyer.

The best man was Leigh Brickhouse Peele and the ushers were Geoffrey Griffin and Phil Kivlin.

After September, the bridal couple will reside in the San Francisco area.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given for the bride by Mrs. Leon Eisman, Mrs. Robert Mann, Mrs. David More, and a group of friends from the Nurse Corps and American Red Cross.

Miss Moyer attended East Carolina University, majoring in drama and graduating with Class of 1968 with a BFA Degree. She was employed for four years with the East Carolina Summer Theater.

American Role Review Timely

Neither at first glance nor second glance does Senator Mike Mansfield appear to be proposing a weakening of allied military strength guarding West Europe from the huge military machine facing it in the East.

He does think American presence is too big, and correspondingly too costly.

The subject is well worth talking about so that the people at home can be reminded again of the basis for that long ago decision to man a sensitive frontier and determine anew just how valid those reasons are today.

Of considerable concern to the Senator, and to us, is the questionable fitness of the U.S. 7th Army to perform its mission. It is dismaying to read the Mansfield assessment.

Particularly disturbing is his figure of 225,000 dependents on the scene; it is simply not good for a military force to be so encumbered and it is baffling to us as to how and why this could have been allowed to come about.

Earlier in the year the Senate defeated a Mansfield proposal for halving American forces in Europe by the end of 1971. The Senator says today a majority wants a substantial cut. He may be right. The new thinking may be right, or it may be wrong; but it should be discussed, and discussed fully.

It may well be that the popular mood is one of withdrawal from the global arena to nurse the domestic wounds.

In any event, the whole picture of the American role in today's world is worthy of public review and evaluation. We feel heir to a host of responsibilities during World War II.... a good quarter of a century ago. Things change in that much time.

Many Finding What They Need At PTI

That the services being offered by Pitt Technical Institute are being will used is shown by the fact that summer enrollment has passed the 1,700 mark.

Included are 798 students in the general adult courses. This area includes subjects such as learning to read and write, high school courses for obtaining a diploma, driver education, sewing, auto care and interior decorating.

There are 234 students in the day curriculum and 717 in occupational extension courses.

This booming enrollment is an indication that Pitt Tech is offering a wide range of programs to meet the needs of all the people of Pitt County.

The institute should continue to expand its range of programs and to maintain a flexibility so that our citizens' educational needs can be met.

Phoenix-Like Nixon Program

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON

President Nixon's revenue-sharing program, long ago given up for dead, has survived to confront Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas with a precarious situation which he will need all his fabled legislative wizardry to handle.

The point, scarcely recognized beyond the house Ways and Means Committee, is that the concept of revenue-sharing is alive and well. Chairman Mills is proposing long-term, unappropriated aid for cities and counties that looks, feels, and smells like revenue-sharing even if it does not carry that label. Indeed, he is now on the defensive, fighting off similar aid for states on the same bill.

Thus, Administration strategy, as closed-door Ways and Means sessions on revenue-sharing began Wednesday, was twofold.

First: acquiesce in Mills's plan for aid to cities and counties, even if the revenue-sharing label is removed. "We don't care if he calls it 'Mills's money wheelbarrow bill,'" one Administration official told us.

Second: press hard for including the states in the bill in the face of Mills's opposition. Two Capitol Hill realists managing the fight for Mr. Nixon — Rep. Barber Conable of New York, a Republican member of Ways and Means, and White House lobbyist Dick Cook — are openly optimistic they can push through state aid.

In response, Mills is stringing together past programs, present modest aid, and future promises for the states to present the governors in lieu of revenue-sharing. So, the tables have been turned on revenue-sharing, with the President on the offensive and the chairman on the defensive.

What makes this ironic is that it is mainly the chairman's own doing. Had he wanted, Mills could have killed revenue-sharing outright when the committee convened Wednesday morning.

One reason he did not was his sensitivity to the mood of the whole House. Sentiment for revenue-sharing probably would not have gone so far as bypassing the Ways and Means Committee; but it is strong enough to make Mills uncomfortable.

More important, however, is Mills's emergence as a national Democrat playing a leading role in party affairs and interested in long-shot possibilities for President. As such, he collaborated with Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien in calling a fateful April 22 policy meeting of Democratic Congressional leaders, governors, and mayors.

When Mills reiterated his opposition to revenue-sharing at that session, he experienced the despair felt by Democratic mayors. In particular, Mayor Henry Maier of Milwaukee erupted against Congressional insensitivity for the cities.

When a second Democratic summit meeting was convened June 9, Mills was ready with his proposal of direct Treasury aid to cities and counties. It differs from Mr. Nixon's program in its distribution formula and time limit (probably five years). But no realist doubts that, once passed, this fixed share of Federal revenue for local government will become permanent.

The real fight is over the states. To head off revenue-sharing, Mills has a three-point program: (1) a reminder that the states get some $1.6 billion from the pending welfare reform; (2) several possible new schemes added to the current bill — such as "piggy-back" Federal collection of state income taxes; (3) a promise later this year of massive Federal help in financing state Medical programs.

That satisfies such politically potent Democratic

Strength For Today

BE ON GUARD

Tyranny is the arbitrary or despotic exercise of power—a form of administration carried on by a person or persons unrestrained by law or constitution. In the beginning tyranny was not something always to be opposed, but with the passing of time, tyranny came to imply reproach. A tyrant was a master who exercised unlawful authority. Later the tyrant came to mean one who by cruel punishment or the demand of unreasonable service could impose burdens and hardships on others.

If there is one thing modern man is opposed to it is tyranny. We will have none of it even though the tyrant is a benign (gracious and of gentle disposition) tyrant.

We want no tyranny in the world and we will have no tyranny. One of the worst aspects of communism is that it is a tyranny. The Colonies in the Western Hemisphere rebelled against tyranny. Any person or groups of persons today suffering tyranny have our sympathy—usually our assistance in men, money, food. No matter how benign a tyrant may be, modern man wants none of him. We are even afraid of tyranny arising in our free, independent and democratic forms of government. The tyrant can wear many false faces and assume an attitude of helpfulness for the hungry and downtrodden. But watch out for him. He could arise in our free democracy and stand us all on our heads.

"Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty" (II Corinthians 3:17)

Perhaps we will be able to overwhelm tyranny some day by a means other than war. In the meantime, let us be on our guard.

To Be Or Not To Be

LONDON — "To be or not to be," that is the question bugging every Englishman these days in regard to the Common Market. After finally getting the six members of the Common Market to admit her, Britain does not seem to be very sure that she wants to be a member of the club. In fact, the more Britishers you talk to, the more reasons you hear as to why England should stay out.

There are, of course, the usual fears about joining anything that has to do with the Continent, such as: "If Britain becomes a member of the Common Market, her children will have to put wine on their cornflakes as they do in France" and "Everyone will be forced to wear pointed wooden shoes as they do in Holland" and "We'll have to give up our tea break to compete with the Germans." But there are deeper and more significant reasons why the British, now that they've been admitted, want no part of the market.

There is a definite fear here that if England joins the Big Six, she will be forced to drive her cars on the other side of the street. It isn't just a question of changing the steering wheels to the other side — though this is no small problem — but also that the population could be severely decimated by automobile accidents during the changeover period.

The feeling here is that if Britain becomes part of the market her six partners should be the ones to change the side of the road they drive on rather than England.

"Since we gave in on cheese quotas, they should give in on driving," a hotel doorman told me.

If this wasn't enough to worry about, there are also fears here that if England is forced into full partnership with the Continent she will pick up many of the filthy habits of the French, such as having love in the afternoon with someone who is not your wife.

"What has made us great," a British friend told me, "is that while Frenchmen spent their lunches and afternoons in bed with their mistresses, we work in our factories and on our farms and in our offices, for God and country. We'd be fools to become part of a system that puts sex before the gross national product."

An English lady friend said she wasn't as afraid of the French as she was of the Italians. "If we join the Common Market, we shall have to develop bosoms to compete with Sophia Loren

To The Editor:

In your editorial "One of the Great One Passes" of July 8, 1971 you made mention to an appearance of the great Louis Armstrong at a warehouse dance in Greenville some years ago.

Mr. Armstrong also appeared in Greenville, in Memorial Gymnasium under the sponsorship of the Student Government Association of East Carolina University. The appearance on November 19, 1965 was before more than 3,200 persons, the largest audience ever to attend any type of concert in Memorial Gymnasium. His performance that night, as always, was utterly fantastic.

A great one has surely passed away, and the Student Government Association only wishes to acknowledge his tremendous performance here in the interest of clarifying our goal of bringing to the City of Greenville those performers who not only bring immeasurable pleasure to audiences, but provide merit to our University and city.

Why Banks Hiked Prime Rate

By ELMER ROESSNER

Last week's rise in banks' prime interest rates may slow down the already stumbling business recovery.

The increase had been widely predicted, here as well as elsewhere. On July 1 it was forecast: "Higher interest rates; the slight easing is almost over."

At first glance it may seem strange that the banks should pick this time to boost the prime rate. That's the rate charged to top - rated corporations, and the rise from 5½ to 6 per cent will affect all other types of loans. It will probably affect auto loans, just at the time sales and production are slackening as the industry prepares for model change - overs. It may even affect charge accounts, although the normal 18 per cent a year ought to allow for a half of one per cent squeeze. It will have effects on plant and equipment commitments by corporations, which have already pared spending for the year. And it puts a hurdle in front of the increase in housing, where a boom has been just getting under way.

Money Is Plentiful

It also comes at a time when money is plentiful.

ELMER
ROESSNER

Banks have no shortage of cash; their campaigns to increase savings have tapered off considerably in recent months. Very few are offering color TV sets for new $5,000 accounts.

Furthermore, the Federal Reserve has been increasing the money supply at a prodigious rate, sometimes running as high as 12 per cent at annual rates.

First National City Bank, the country's second largest bank, throws some light on the situation in its July Monthly Economic Letter. After reviewing recovery of business in the first half, such as it was, it said:

"These gains have not quieted concern over the pace of business recovery, however. One worry is that the recovery will be choked off by higher interest rates. In view of the very rapid growth of the money supply since the end of January, this possibility seems remote.

The Old Bogy
"Further increase in long - term interest rates are more likely to be a response to revised expectations of inflation than a symptom of credit stringency." It did add, however, that "it would require a considerable widening in the spread between rates paid on savings accounts and other financial instruments to reverse the flow of funds to mortgage lending institutions."

Inflation is a potent causative factor for higher interest rates. If it runs close to 6 per cent this year, and it may, a bank lending money at 5½ per cent would be losing purchasing power, if not actual dollars.

There is a related factor. The government is faced with huge borrowing operations in July and August as earlier bond issues become due and must be refunded. Furthermore, with a $25 billion federal deficit in the fiscal year just ended and a projected $20 billion deficit in the new fiscal year, the government is going to have to borrow, borrow, borrow.

That, of course, means more inflation.

And coming borrowing is the reason the government has been pumping more money into the economy.

And coming borrowing makes it tempting for all banks to push up interest rates. They will get higher returns on the money they lend to the Treasury.

New Walt Disney World Expected Bring Bonanza

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer
ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Towering over the quiet, flat farmland of central Florida is the mammoth Walt Disney World, newest showpiece of a multi-million-dollar empire built on a scraggly church mouse named Mickey.

Even before the gates are opened, urban areas for 100 miles are gearing up, expecting a spillover tourist bonanza.
Promoters predict 10 million

visitors the first year.
But many retirees and farmers in the area are dreading the opening. They foresee the ruination of their unspoiled rural sectors.

And gold-mine vacation spots,
like Miami, are worried, fearing a drop in business and convention trade.

Sun glints from golden turrets on a medieval castle commanding the Disney theme park. Beneath, on Cinderella's balcony, hangs a huge sign:
"Remember October 1."

The sign is a reminder to work crews that the opening of the 27,500-acre vacation center is only a few months away.

In the park, elephants and rhinos guard a croc-infested jungle river ... a giant oak supports the signal lanterns of Minuteman scouts ... ghosts primp for ghoulish merriment in the Haunted Mansion ... submarines plunge to the depths of sunken galleons ... and the moon is only a three-minute ride away.

"What Walt liked most was the project he was going to build next year ... but this was his baby," said Joe Fowler, a retired Navy rear admiral who heads construction and engineering for Walt Disney Productions. They picked the site together, 15 miles from Orlando in Florida's rich citrus belt.

What will open in October is Disneyland East, but more. On the site will be five hotels, a three-mile monorail to speed guests from parking lots or overnight lodgings, two 18-hole golf courses, a mile-wide man-made lagoon for sailing, skiing, dunking or paddling, campgrounds and a riding stable.

Also a pet hotel and eventually a baby-sitting service to entertain Junior while his parents trip off on an overnight jaunt to the nearby Caribbean islands.
Unlike Disneyland in California, Disney World has underground passage for employees for quick access to any part of the park without bumping into crowds. "That was something we learned from our earlier construction," said Charley Ridgway, a company official.

They found, too, crowds waiting in long lines for an attraction are easily bored. They plan wandering skits to entertain them.

Admission and ride prices are comparable to the Anaheim, Calif. counterpart. A family of four would easily spend $20-25 a day in the park, excluding meals and lodgings.

General admission to the theme park will be $3.50 for an adult, $2.50 for teen-agers or up to 17 years old and $1.00 for youngsters. A seven-ride attraction book that includes admission is $4.75 for an adult, $4.25 for teen-agers and $3.75 for children. An eleven-ticket book is $1 more.

Interstate 4, a superhighway which cuts across central Florida linkings both coasts, leads to the main gate of Disney World.

Critics fear it won't be large enough to handle swelling crowds, even though the park has an on-site, five-mile entrance road leading from the highway. They envision major jams at exist ramps, bot-tlenecking traffic. The state plans to widen I-4, but not immediately.

Kissimmee is the closest city,
only seven miles from the Disney gate. Large cattle spreads around the city give testimony to its distinction once as a flourishing cow capital. In later years retirees have been attracted to the easy pace, serene surrounding and low prices.

The city is growing. Construction workers have moved in. Taxes went up. Land values soared.

Some of the Kissimmee residents are disgruntled at higher prices and more cramped quarters.

Yet more metropolitan areas,
like Tampa, Orlando and Lakeland, are eagerly preparing for a tourist boom. Lakeland plans to construct a coliseum. Tampa has invested $80 million in a new air terminal, hoping to help attract a high-speed transportation link to the Disney site, 80 miles east.

A family of four would pay between $22-$40 for an overnight stay. That's the room fee and a single would cost the same, Disney people say.

The section opening in the fall encompasses about one-tenth the Disney World site and will create 5,500 new jobs with preference to Floridians.

Seek Identity Of Skeleton

VALDESE, N.C. (AP) — The Burke County Sheriff's Department and the State Bureau of Investigation were trying today to establish the identity of a skeleton found in a rural section of the county Sunday.

Sheriff Alvin Wise led a search of the area after Roger Riley, who lives in the county, found a human skull in a small stream.

The rest of the skeleton was discovered about 25 feet away.
Officers said the skeleton was at least two years old.

The skeleton was to be sent to the SBI laboratory in Raleigh for identification.

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) —
Pembroke State University
President English E. Jones has

Dr. Carl M. Fisher, a native of Tampa, Fla., as the new dean of the university.

Fisher, 44, has been Pem-since Nov. 1, 1968. He came to Pembroke in 1967 as a professor of education.

He replaces Dr. Kenneth G.

hall and PX counters, so that their male counterparts are freed for real soldiering.

Few ever find their way to the front lines, but they would if the nation's survival were at stake.

This Women's Corps serves on an equal basis with the male half of the army, eating in the same mess halls and enjoying much the same privileges. Only the barracks and showers are separate.

A girl sergeant calls her commander by his first name.
And of course, the question arises: How is it that all the prettiest soldier girls are generals' secretaries?

The equality ends on the highway. The pay scale means most soldiers hitchhike to work. And there, on the corner with her thumb out, the girl has a distinct advantage — unless her disgruntled male counterpart decides to race her for the one seat available in a willing motorist's car. It happens, too.

The consensus here is that becoming a member of the Common Market can only mean trouble for Britain. The beer will be served cold and the Pope is sure to come over

As long as the Big Six rejected Britain's ap-

clamoring to get in and furious at being blackballed.
But now that England can

everyone they never wanted anything to do with the

And with reason: As an

DAV Elected New Officers Of

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) —
Charles M. Harris of Charlotte is the new president of the North Carolina Department of Disabled American Veterans.

He succeeded Robert Miller of Morganton during the closing session of the department's annual state convention Saturday.

John T. Puckett, chief registrar of the Veterans Hospital in Durham, was chosen Veteran of the Year.

The department voted its disapproval of state legislation that would require any fundraising organizers to get a state license. The DAV's resolutions committee had pointed out to the convention that the bill would effect the DAV, civic clubs and church and school groups that raise funds for various projects.

The veterans also voted their support of legislation that would let veterans with 20 or more years in the military deduct $3,000 in filing state income tax.

governors as John Gilligan of Ohio and Marvin Mandel of Maryland. But Republican governors and some Democrats (notably Gov.
Calvin Rampton of Utah) still want for the states what Mills backs for the cities.
Moreover, the Mills package might be successfully challenged as overly urban on the House floor by Republicans and Southern Democrats.

That challenge could come inside Ways and Means. If the White House can hold the committee's 10 Republicans against any bill not providing equal treatment for the states, they may be joined by three or four Southern Democrats — a majority on the 25-number committee.
Long before that, however,
Chairman Mills surely would have synthesized a new majority for a new package.

Under Wilbur Mills, victories and defeats are seldom clear inside Ways and Means,
where a rolling consensus prevails.

Understandably, then,
there is little realization that revenue-sharing phoenix-like, seems sure to emerge in some form and quite possibly a more extensive form that Mills and the Democratic leadership would prefer.

Networks Favor Fla. Convention

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon favors San Diego, but television network officials would just as soon have the 1972 Republican National Convention in Miami Beach, says communications director Herbert Kelin.

Kelin says network executives are pressuring the GOP site selection committee to hold the convention at Miami Beach because that's where the Democrats will have their convention. Equipment would not have to be shifted.

Locomotive 1776 For Patriots

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — "The Spirit of '76," Seaboard Coast Line's red, white and blue locomotive, will be dedicated here Aug. 3 in what the railroad calls an attempt to create keener awareness of patriotism.

The locomotive, numbered 1776, will carry an American flag on both sides and the Great Seal of the United States on the front and the sides.

A railway spokesman said the locomotive will be used in transcontinental freight runs.

Offers Sum For Athletics Drive

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. has offered $5,000 to start a fund to reinstate the varsity athletics program which the Philadelphia school system eliminated from next year's budget as a means of cutting expenses.

The National Broadcasting Company reported Davis phoned the offer to NBC studios in New York after the network aired a program detailing the school board's money problems, with concentration on the decision to drop athletics, among other activities.

Tobacco Barns Are Feeling Annual Toll

July brings to eastern North Carolina the time of tobacco harvest and with the harvest comes the annual toll of barns lost to fire in the curing process.

Bobby Joyner, Pitt County Fire Marshall, reports the first known loss of a barn in Pitt County on Tuesday, July 6, with several others lost since that date.

The losses reported to date are:

July 6 — A barn on the Luke Mills farm near Winterville. The Winterville Fire Department responded to the 8:55 p.m. alarm. The barn and contents were a total loss, estimated at $2,000.

July 8 — The Ayden Fire Department helped at a fire in Ormandville in Greene County. This multiple barn fire also resulted in the loss of a shelter, a new tractor and other farm equipment. Total estimate of the loss has been placed at $15,000.

'Operation Sunshine' Program Underway

The Operation Sunshine summer program is well underway.

The club, which has a center at the corner of West Third and Pitt Streets, is open to all girls in the Greenville community between the ages of eight and 12. It meets Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and affords the girls such activities as swimming twice a week, sewing, having watermelon feasts, music, cooking, picnicking, arts and crafts, learning household techniques, game playings, and making out-of-town trips. The membership fee is 25 cents.

So far the girls have visited the Dr. Irons cottage on the Pamlico River, Cliffs of the Neuse, and the ECU Summer Theatre to see "Oliver." This Thursday, they will visit Dr. and Mrs. Earl Trevathan's cottage on the Pamlico.

Each week a "Sunshine Girl of the Week" is chosen by a committee which judges all the participants on participation, manners, courtesy, friendliness, and the ability to get along well with others. The winners so far have been Miss Janie Reddick, Miss Darlene Payton, and Miss Mary Carman.

For further information about joining or assisting the leaders in giving the girls more opportunities, one should call the center at 758-5838. Mrs. Arlene Hoot is director of the program and she is assisted by Miss Anna White, Miss Carla Metcalf, and Miss Jo Ann Dixon.

THE RIGHT BRUSH

NEW YORK (UPI) —You may not have given it much thought, but selecting the right kind of paint brush for the type of paint you're using will add to the success of the project, according to PPG Industries. The company recommends natural bristle brushes for oil-base paints and nylon brushes for latex-base paints. PPG says polyester filament brushes are fine for all types of paint.

Advertising For Parents

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Newspaper ads asking: "Are you crazy enough to be a foster parent for a delinquent child?" are the Kentucky Department of Child Welfare's latest tool for finding homes for hard-to-place delinquent children.

The advertisement appeared in a Frankfort newspaper during the past week, and a similar ad will be placed in Lexington and Louisville papers next week.

Part of an experimental project financed by $250,000 from the federal government and $83,333 from the state, the ad campaign eventually will shift to smaller communities, officials say.

The project is aimed at helping 100 children, 11 to 19 years old.

William R. Ryan, director of community services in the Child Welfare Department, said they "run the gamut" from mildly delinquent to hostile.

Another official, Miss Janice Graves, said about five persons have called about the ads, but "nothing has come of it yet." Foster parents will receive a maximum payment of $5.50 per day per child.

Ryan said group homes for the children might be developed as part of the ex-

Two Drivers Shared Win At Bristol

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — It took two drivers to accomplish the feat, but a Chevrolet has won a NASCAR-sanctioned Grand National stock car race for the first time since 1967.

Charlie Glotzbach of Georgetown, Ind., and Friday Hassler of Chattanooga, Tenn., combined Sunday to drive the Junior Johnson-prepared 1971 Chevy to a record-smashing victory in the 11th annual Volunter 500.

With not an accident or caution flag to slow down the pace, the two averaged 99.926 miles per hour around the .533-mile high-banked Bristol International Speedway, obliterating the previous track record of 91.704 m.p.h. set here in March by David Pearson in the South-eastern 500.

Hassler, whose 1970 Chevrolet developed wheel trouble after going 104 laps, took over the relief for Glotzbach after the Indiana driver went into the lead for good on the 357th lap.

Between them, the two led for 411 of the 500 laps as Hassler finished three laps ahead of Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., and six laps in front of the Grand National point leader, Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C.

Allison, the defending champion driving a 1970 Ford, had started in the No. 3 position behind the pole-winning Petty in a 1971 Plymouth and Glotzbach, who was on the outside pole.

Petty, bidding to hit the $1 million mark in career earnings, was in front the first 43 laps but never led again. Allison was the only other leader, alternating the front spot for 46 laps with Glotzbach occasionally until the eventual winner went in front for good.

Fourth and fifth places went to Cecil Gordon of Arden, N.C., in a 1969 Mercury and James Hylton of Inman, S.C., in a 1971 Ford.

The last time a Chevrolet had been the winner in a NASCAR Grand National race was in 1967 at Islip, N.Y., when Allison won in a Chevelle.

Glotzbach, who is bothered with a bad shoulder, said he became tired in the heat—the temperature was estimated at 120 degrees on the track—and turned his car over to Hassler when he went ahead for the last time.

Johnny Unitas Joins Workout

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The pro football season wouldn't be the same without Johnny Unitas in action for the Baltimore Colts, the Super Bowl Champions. And the veteran 38-year-old quarterback doesn't intend to be on the sidelines if he can help it.

There was speculation that Unitas would miss the 1971 campaign because of an accident last spring when he ripped his right achilles tendon playing paddleball and underwent an operation.

But Unitas was one of the first on hand Sunday at the

Crash Kills Rodriguez

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP) — "A sad loss for racing and a sad loss for Mexico."

That was the reaction of British driver Graham Hill, two-time world champion, upon hearing of the death of Pedro Rodriguez Sunday in a crash during a European Inter-series race at the Norisring.

Rodriguez, 30, died in Nuernberg Municipal Hospital two hours after the Ferrari he was driving blew a front tire, crashed into a wall and burst into a sheet of flames.

Ironically, the car Rodriguez was driving was not even his own. Rodriguez had taken over a 5-liter Ferrari 513M owned by Herbert Mueller because the 8.1-liter BRM167 Canam officially entered for him was not ready. It was the racing debut of the 750-horsepower Ferrari, which crashed on the 12th lap of the 200-mile race won by Chris Craft of England.

Rodriguez almost quit racing nine years ago when his brother, Ricardo, also a prominent Formula 1 driver, was killed at the age of 20 in a crash during practice for the Mexican Grand Prix. But the lure of the track proved too great.

His first Grand Prix victory came in 1968, in South Africa. He has been the No. 1 BRM Formula 1 team driver since 1968, and was third in world driving championship standings this year.

Take 4 Straight In Babe Ruth Play Greenville Wins District Crown

HAVELOCK — Greenville rebounded from a Thursday night loss to Pitt County in the Babe Ruth District Tournament to take their next four games, including a 5-0 victory over New Bern Sunday and capture the area title.

The local squad, faced with a win-or-die situation following their first loss in the double elimination tournament, beat Pitt County 5-2 Saturday night, then downed New Bern 5-1 in the second game to set up a Sunday afternoon meeting between the two teams.

Greenville picked up two runs in the fourth inning and never lost the lead against Pitt County in the Saturday night opener.

Dropped Two Annual Games Drew Throngs

Greenville dropped a pair of games to Spring Hope Sunday in Eastern County Semi-Pro Baseball League action.

Spring Hope scored in the fourth and fifth innings in the opener and allowed Greenville only a fifth-inning tally in taking a 2-1 win. They then followed that up in the second tilt by scoring single runs in the first, fifth and sixth innings to earn a 3-0 victory over the locals.

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty-four complete sports from archery to wrestling are included in "The Sportsman's Encyclopedia," a new Grosset & Dunlap publication edited by Bill Burton, outdoor editor for the Baltimore Sun.

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Highway patrolmen turned back cars Sunday as a final-day crowd of 30,000 filled MacRae Meadows on the slopes of Grandfather Mountain for the 18th annual Highland Games and Gathering of the Scottish Clans.

Roberto Lenarduzzi of Knoxville, Tenn., was named most outstanding athlete of the games after he set new meet records in the one-mile and two-mile runs. He had marks of 4:38.3 in the one-mile and 9:58.5 in the two-mile event.

A spokesman said 130 clans and septs were represented this year.

In the traditional Scottish field events, Bill Bangert of Champ, Mo., was the standout. Bangert set a new meet record of 69 feet, three inches in the hammer toss and then heaved a 56-pound lead ball 16 feet, two inches to set another meet record and tie his own world record.

In the cabar toss, in which a heavy, wood pole is thrown from the waist and then judged on the straightness of its flight, Bangert again took top honors.

Ron Short of Winston-Salem won the sheaf toss by throwing a bag of hay over a 10-foot, six-inch high bar with a pitchfork.

Other events during the weekend included run and sprints of various distances, broad jump, triple jump, shot put, wrestling, pole vault and archery.

The highlight of Saturday's games was the Mountain Marathon, a 26.2-mile run from Boone to MacRae Meadows. Phil Sparling of Columbus, Ohio, won the event with a time of two hours, 52 minutes and 11 seconds.

He'll get an automatic entry into the four tour events played in the two states in the coming year—the Greater Greensboro Open, the Kemper Open, the Azalea Open and the Heritage Classic.

A record total of 224 pros and amateurs tees off Tuesday in the 54-hole event. A total of $15,000 prize money will go to the professionals, while the amateurs will win $2,500 in merchandise.

A pro-am today has $4,000 in prizes to be awarded.

Norman Flynn of Lexington, S.C., is the defending champion. Another former champ is Joe Inman of Greensboro, who won in 1968.

The field also includes professionals Brad Anderson of Charlotte, Randy Glover of Summerville, Sonny Ridenhour of Kernersville and Buck Adams of Pinehurst.

Cannon got the win and allowed Pitt County only five hits during his seven-inning stint. He struck out six and issued only one walk.

In the second game against New Bern, Greenville got all they needed in the opening inning. A walk to Kittrell and a passed ball put the runner in scoring position and following an out by Brinkley, Clifton drew a walk. Fuchs reached on an error and Kittrell raced home. Cannon got a free pass and when Haddock's grounder was misplayed, Clifton and Fuchs came in to score.

Two more runs were added in the third inning. Haddock and Causey walked. Jerry Griffin struck out but the ball got by the catcher and the runner was safe. A hit by Kittrell brought in Haddock and a walk to Brinkley allowed Causey to score.

New Bern got their run in the fourth when West reached on an error and came around when Catacall's grounder was misplayed.

Greenville added one more run in the fifth and two in the seventh frame to ice the win for Fuchs, who allowed only four hits.

error and Fuchs came in to score on the play.

The locals added their final three runs in the fifth inning to wrap up the game. Bobby Kittrell singled but was out on Brinkley's fielder's choice. Clifton was hit by a pitch and Brinkley scored on a hit by Fuchs. Greenville got their fourth run when Clifton came around on a passed ball and a hit by Cannon brought Fuchs home.

Pitt County got their two runs in the sixth inning but were unable to rally again. A walk to Jerome Streeter and a hit by Sutton put runners on first and second and a single by Willis brought in the first run. Sutton came around to score on a hit by Brock.

Cannon got the win and allowed Pitt County only five hits during his seven-inning stint. He struck out six and issued only one walk.

In the second game against New Bern, Greenville got all they needed in the opening inning. A walk to Kittrell and a passed ball put the runner in scoring position and following an out by Brinkley, Clifton drew a walk. Fuchs reached on an error and Kittrell raced home. Cannon got a free pass and when Haddock's grounder was misplayed, Clifton and Fuchs came in to score.

Two more runs were added in the third inning. Haddock and Causey walked. Jerry Griffin struck out but the ball got by the catcher and the runner was safe. A hit by Kittrell brought in Haddock and a walk to Brinkley allowed Causey to score.

New Bern got their run in the fourth when West reached on an error and came around when Catacall's grounder was misplayed.

Greenville added one more run in the fifth and two in the seventh frame to ice the win for Fuchs, who allowed only four hits.

In the showdown game against New Bern Sunday afternoon, Greenville again struck for three runs in the opening inning and coasted the rest of the way for the shutout win. Kittrell reached on an error and after Brinkley got on via the same route, Clifton singled to score Kittrell. Another hit by Fuchs brought in Brinkley and a sacrifice and ground out brought in Clifton. Two more runs came across in the seventh but the win was already assured. Cullop reached on an error and Causey's grounder was also misplayed. Griffin's hit brought in Cullop and Causey scored when the ball was thrown away on the play. New Bern threatened in the fifth inning.

Clifton got the win with relief help from Kittrell.

By winning Sunday, Greenville earned the right to travel to Statesville for the state tournament beginning July 21. District play in other areas of the state will determine their opponent.

Injury Alibis Continue To Force All-Star Changes

By LARRY PALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — On the stage the adage is "the show must go on."
For the baseball All-Star game the adage might be adjusted to read: "The show must go on but who said anything about the original cast?"

With the classic American League-National League confrontation in Detroit a day away injury alibis continue to force AL Manager Earl Weaver of Baltimore and NL Manager Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati to make adjustment to the 28-man rosters.
One thing is certain, or at least relatively certain, Oakland's 21-year-old pitching sensation Vida Blue will start for the host American Leaguers.

Weaver has already made the announcement, adding that Tiger Mickey Lolich, and his own Oriole hurlers Jim Palmer and Mike Cuellar also would likely see mound duty.

It wasn't certain whom Anderson would start, although Tom Seaver of the New York Mets and San Francisco's Juan Marichal were the likely choices.
Already four players from the original AL squad have been replaced due to injuries. There were no replacements in the NL

until Sunday when it was reported that pitcher Larry Dierker of Houston was dropped because of an injury and replaced by teammate Don Wilson.
Also, Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench, who fans elected as a National's starter, said Sunday he might not be able to play because of a bruised left wrist suffered as a result of a foul tip in a game last week.

Elected players out of the AL lineup already are first baseman Boog Powell of Baltimore, outfielder Tony Oliva of Minnesota, and catcher Ray Fosse of Cleveland. Pitcher Sam McDowell of Cleveland, one of nine hurlers selected by Weaver, is also out and was replaced by knuckleballer Wilbur Wood of Chicago.

Despite the changes the lineup remains star-studded. Among the AL players are Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, Baltimore's Brooks and Frank Robinson, Detroit's Al Kaline, Minnesota's Frank Howard, Washington's Harmon Killebrew and New York's Bobb Murcer.

National League headliners include San Francisco's Willie Mays, who'll be appearing in his 22nd All-Star game; Hank Aaron of Atlanta (his 20th); Willie Stargell and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh; Pete Rose of Cincinnati; Joe Torre of St. Louis; Willie Davis of Los Angeles and Ron Santo of Chicago.
It is the third time the annual exhibition has been held in Detroit and first in two decades. In 1951 the National League went away an 8-3 victor while in 1941 young Ted Williams of Boston clouted a three-run homer in the ninth for a 7-5 AL triumph.

The initial All-Star contest was at Chicago in 1933, won 4-2 by the Americans.
But the junior circuit lost the last eight in a row, which dropped its 41-game mark to 17-23-1. The one tie came in the second game in 1961 in Boston when rain halted the proceedings in the ninth with a 1-1 score. Two All-Star games were played in 1959 through 1962.

Homers Power Phillies Over Montreal

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Deron Johnson was ready to start climbing walls, then he started hitting baseballs over them.
The slugging Philadelphia

first baseman, who will be 32 Saturday, clouted home runs to right, center and left fields in his first three appearances Sunday and drove in five runs, powering the Phillies to an 11-5 victory over Montreal.

Coupled with the homer he hit in his last at-bat Saturday night, it gave Johnson four homers in a row, tying a major league record held by 16 other players. The last player to belt four consecutive homers was Oakland's Mike Epstein, who did it June 15-16.

The last National Leaguer to do it was the New York Mets' Art Shamsky, who did it with Cincinnati from Aug. 12-14, 1966. The three homers in one game were the first by a right-handed hitting Philadelphia player at home since Del Ennis did it on July 23, 1955.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, Cincinnati swept a doubleheader from the floundering New York Mets, 7-2 and 5-3; Chicago and San Diego split, the Cubs winning the opener 2-0 and the Padres taking the nightcap 7-5; Los Angeles trounced San Francisco 11-3; St. Louis trimmed Houston 7-3, and Atlanta at Pittsburgh was rained out.

In the American League, Minnesota beat Kansas City twice, 6-5 in 10 innings and 7-1; Milwaukee and Chicago divided a pair of 1-0 games; the Brewers winning the opener and the White Sox taking the nightcap; Oakland and California also split, the A's winning the opener 3-2 and the Angels grabbing the second game 6-3; Baltimore whipped Cleveland 7-1; Washington edged Detroit 4-3 in 10 innings, and New York nipped Boston 3-2.

Johnson, a notoriously slow starter, went to extremes early in the season. "I was one for forty-five at one stage," he said. "If I was a rookie or a guy who got all excited about things like that I'd be up a wall."

"I know I can hit," he added. "It's just a case of putting things together. I've always been a streak hitter. When I'm going bad, it's always because I'm trying to pull everything. If I hit where it's pitched, I can take it out of the park in all directions."

He did just that against the Expos. His first homer followed a single by Tim McCarver in the opening inning and hit off the left-center field scoreboard. The second came in the third after another single by McCarver and cleared the fence in right. And the third triggered a seven-run uprising in the sixth and left the park in dead center field.

It was the first time Johnson ever had hit three homers in a game. They increased his total for the season to 21 and his career total to 171.

In his next two at-bats, Johnson struck out, ending the sixth-inning rally, and he hit into a force play in the eighth.

Cincinnati's two victories extended the Mets losing streak to six games and gave them 11 setbacks in their last 12 games. They also dropped New York 10 games behind first-place Pittsburgh in the East.

The Reds took the opener as Gary Nolan pitched a six-hitter and capped a six-run fifth inning with a two-run single. In the second game, Tony Perez drove in all five Cincinnati runs, the last three with his second homer of the contest and 14th of the season, a three-run blast off Tom Seaver in the eighth. Perez also had a solo homer in the second and a run-scoring single in the sixth.

The Cubs' Milt Pappas hand-cuffed San Diego on four hits in the opener after hurling hitless ball for six innings, while Johnny Callison drove in both Chicago runs with a sacrifice fly in the fourth and a homer in the seventh.
In the nightcap, Ivan Murrell and Ed Spiezio each collected three hits and two RBI as the Padres pounded four Chicago pitchers for 13 hits. The Cubs also trail Pittsburgh by 10 games and are one percentage point behind the Mets.

The Dodgers' victory over San Francisco ended their six-game losing streak and moved them within six games of the first-place Giants in the West.

The Dodgers' Al Downing became the first left-hander to go the distance and beat San Francisco this season. He scattered eight hits. Joe Ferguson, Willie Davis and Manny Mota paced the Dodgers' 16-hit barrage with three hits apiece, while Downing contributed a two-run single.

Bob Gibson checked Houston on six hits, while his batterymate, Ted Simmons, knocked in four St. Louis runs with a sacrifice fly, a ground rule double and a two-run single.

Solomon Wins Amateur Clay Court Crown

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Harold Solomon of Rice University has captured the national amateur clay court tennis title by ousting an unseeded court hustler who plays in frayed shorts and torn shoes.

The soft-serving, diminutive Solomon, Sunday defeated crowd-pleasing court comic Charles Owens of Tuscaloosa, Ala., 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4. Solomon was seeded sixth in the tournament.

Owens, from Samford University in Birmingham, handed Solomon his only set loss of the competition.
The Rice product appeared to have the crown wrapped up in the fourth set when he built a 4-1 margin. Owens rallied to tie it at 4-4 before Solomon put the match away.

In women's play, Janice Metcalf of Claremont, Calif., came from behind to defeat top-seeded Laura Dupont of Charlotte, N.C., 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Funeral Today For Race Driver

Gatlin's car struck a wall in the last lap of a race at the speedway. He died later at a West Memphis hospital of massive head injuries.

Cougars Reduce Games In Raleigh

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association have reduced their Raleigh game schedule from 12 to six games this season, but all six will be in Reynolds Coliseum.
Cougars president and general manager Carl Scheer said the Cougars were unhappy with what they called inadequate dressing room facilities and limited seating at Dorton Arena at the state Fairgrounds, where 12 games were played last year.
Scheer said the schedule for the coming season was limited to six games because of use of the coliseum by North Carolina State University students.

Everything Worked For Jane Blalock

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
HORSHAM, Pa. (AP) — Everything worked for Jane Blalock Sunday—even the weather.
The 25-year-old Miss Blalock won the $25,000 George Washington Ladies Golf Classic by two strokes over JoAnne Carner with a 54-hole total of 11 under par 208. She posted rounds of 68-72-68.

Before she retired Saturday night, Miss Blalock hoped for an overcast day with not too much humidity. She had suffered sun stroke after Friday's first round, and a doctor told her to stay out of the sun for three days.

Not only did it turn out overcast and cool, but it rained throughout the final 18 holes at the Hidden Springs Country Club. "I was relieved that it was an overcast day," said Miss Blalock after her final round five under par 68 made her a winner for the first time this year and the second since she turned pro two years ago.

Miss Blalock walked around Saturday with an ice bag on her neck. Sunday she had the ice in her veins as she overcame a two-stroke lead by the usually tough Kathy Whitworth with a round that included six birdies and only one bogey.

Miss Whitworth, the all-time money winner and this year's leader at the pay window among women golfers, came apart in the drizzle. The usually pressure-proof Miss Whitworth took five bogeys and a double-bogey and wound up with a three over par 76, a total of 214 and third place.

Hot Rod Finals Are Rescheduled

MARION, Ohio (AP) — The finals of the American Hot Rod Association Grand National Championships at Marion County International Raceway, postponed Sunday because of a wet track, have been rescheduled for Aug. 27-29.

Competition was postponed early Sunday morning after officials inspected the track. Water was still standing in pools on the track following a heavy rain the night before.

Satysbur Proves Good Golfer Too

DURHAM (AP) — Duke University's starting football quarterback, Dennis Satysbur, proved Sunday he is a good golfer, too.

Satysbur won the 25th annual Heald-Sun Golf Tournament at Durham, 3 and 2 over defending champion Sam Hill III.

Odell Massey of Burlington won the $550 first prize for professionals with a 2 and 1 win over Ralph Lang of Raleigh.

ONE FOR THE RECORD BOOK — Deron Johnson, Philadelphia Phillies first baseman, holds three balls in the dressing room after hitting three home runs against the Montreal

Expos at Veterans Stadium. It was his fourth consecutive round tripper, having hit one on Saturday night. He tied a major league record held by 16 others. (AP Wirephoto)

Worry Clinic Now You Know Houdini Secret

Marvin is puzzled by Houdini's secret. For Houdini practiced in his bath tub till he could hold his breath over 4 minutes! Most of you readers can hardly pass 40 seconds. But by the simple strategy below, you can probably attain 120 seconds after just one or two trials. This may save your life!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case R-504: Marvin G., aged 20, is a college swimmer. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I read that the former magician and escape artist, Houdini, could hold his breath for more than 4 minutes.

"How is that possible?" "For I am lucky to be able to hold mine for just one minute!"

Houdini's Secret There are 3 methods by which you can increase the length of time you can hold your breath. The first involves overloading your blood with excess oxygen by rapid deep breathing. You will soon feel the effect of this because you may grow faint or dizzy.

For rapid, deep breathing quickly changes the acidalkaline balance of your blood. Maybe you have tried to blow on a fire that you were starting at a picnic and when you stood up, you were so dizzy you almost fell over.

That is due to the carbonic acid you just exhaled, thus leaving your blood temporarily more alkaline. Second, with practice you can cultivate a meditative, sluggish outlook. That reduces your metabolic rate and thus makes you require less oxygen so you can hold your breath longer.

Houdini practiced for many months submerging in his bath tub to set that 4-minute record. Houdini practiced for many months submerging in his bath tub to set that 4-minute record. And he said he learned to "vegetate" by control of his thinking, thereby permitting him to last longer on one lung full of air.

Third, there is an aircap in the stomach that may equal one good breath.

So Houdini drew on that "spare tire," as it were, for additional oxygen. Go through the following experiment and you will be able to hold your breath probably 2 minutes or better within a few trials:

Take one deep breath and hold it as long as possible, timing yourself by the second hand of your watch.

Suppose this is 40 seconds. Now take 12 deep breaths in rapid succession, but hold the 13th and then time yourself to see how long it takes before you must get fresh air.

It will now run maybe 75 seconds.

But Houdini's real secret was to tap that air cap in the stomach. After resting till your pulse rate drops back to normal, again take 12 deep breaths and then hold the 13th.

But when you begin to feel the first craving for fresh air, now pinch your nostrils shut and also keep your mouth tightly closed.

Then belch and swallow; belch and swallow; belch and swallow!

For when you belch in this closed air system, some of the fresh air from the stomach will come up into your air passages and exchange with the used air from the lungs.

You may find that you can reach 120 seconds (2 full minutes) with your first attempt, which is 3 times your earlier 40-second record.

Keep Houdini's strategy in mind, for you might get caught by a root under water and thus need that extra minute to free yourself and avoid drowning! (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Pushing Button Will Trim Grass

NEW YORK (UPI)—You can trim the grass this year by pushing a button.

Cordless electric grass shears reduce the time of snipping around trees and posts and along walls and fences by more than 50 per cent, according to Disston. A homeowner can trim about 900 to 1,300 feet of grass on a charge. The units, which have a 3-inch-wide cut, run longer than needed for the average lawn before the batteries require recharging.

Hand and stand-up model grass shears housed in tough Cycloc plastic can be recharged more than 500 times, the firm said.

Will Investigate 3 Deaths Due To Fire

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Investigators from the state fire marshal's office were to join local officials today to investigate the deaths of three young brothers who died in a fire at a utility room at their home.

New Hanover County Sheriff Marion Mullis said the investigation is centering on a lock on the door to the room to determine if the door was locked.

When firemen were summoned to the house Saturday afternoon by a neighbor, they found the door to the room kicked in, according to Chief Frank Piner of the Myrtle Grove Volunteer Fire Department.

Piner said the door had apparently been smashed by a bystander.

The bodies of Anthony Wade Godwin, 11, Travis Vincent Godwin, 8, and Kelly Brian

Godwin, 7, were found when firemen opened the room to begin cleaning up debris. They were the children of Mrs. Phyllis Strickland Godwin. Mullis said she was shopping at the time.

Mullis said a friend of the mother told police he placed a gallon of gasoline inside the room, which is in the carport of the house, the day before and locked the door. The sheriff said an electric water heater was also located in the room.

Bidding For Youth Vote

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—The North Carolina Republican Party is going all-out to woo the 18-to-21-year-old vote, says State Republican Chairman James Holshouser.

A statewide effort at getting "newly enfranchised young people" registered to vote and vote Republican was announced by Holshouser Saturday night at a statewide Young Republican rally here.

Holshouser issued an invitation to the new voters "to join with us in building a better North Carolina—one free from

Candidate Hugh Morton On Tour
LINVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Possible gubernatorial candidate Hugh Morton was to visit Manteo, Morehead City and Jacksonville this morning on the first leg of a 15-county, three-day tour of the state to sample public opinion about his bid for the Democratic nomination.

Morton, who left his Grandfather Mountain headquarters by helicopter Sunday, said he planned to visit Burgaw and Southport this afternoon and then go on to Hendersonville, Franklin, Murphy, Sylva and Bryson City Tuesday. He planned to wind up the trip Wednesday with stops in Tryon, Rutherfordton, Shelby, Gastonia and Lenoir.

Four Drown On Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
At least four persons were reported drowned in North Carolina during the weekend.

Three were reported to authorities Sunday.

Teen-agers Joe Lindsey and James Adams, both of Anson County, drowned in a farm pond near Wadesboro when a boat occupied by four youths capsized. The exact ages of the victims was not immediately known.

Police in Hendersonville said Donnie W. Hollifield, 19, of Rt. 5, Hendersonville, drowned in Lake Summit Sunday while swimming with friends.

Moore County Coroner A.B. Parker Jr. said Lee Daniel Frye, 28, of Rt. 1, West End, drowned Saturday in a lake at a picnic area near West End.

Parker said Frye was swimming across the lake with another man when he called for help, saying he had a cramp.

Has To Share Treasure If Found

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Hanekamp can dig for gold in the city's Elysian Park as long as he shares any strike with the Recreation and Park Commission.

Tanekamp, 30, a drapery installer, says his metal detector needle gave some encouraging wiggles in the park near the Los Angeles Dodgers Stadium.

The commission said Hanekamp can dig two 6-by-4 foot holes that must be filled up later. After a session of bargaining, commissioners said the amateur treasure hunter can keep 75 per cent of the first $500 worth of gold he finds and thereafter it's 50-50.

An AP News Special
By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
Organized crime is digging into North Carolina, draining off hundreds of thousands of dollars each year through a statewide bookie operation and through bosses who organize crimes ranging from bank burglaries to shoplifting.

The dreaded secret association of mobsters commonly called Mafia is known by state law officials to be involved.

The State Bureau of Investigation says the Mafia, also known as the Cosa Nostra, has bought at least two multimillion dollar legitimate businesses in the state.

Mafia members also are believed to own two major hotels in North Carolina. Policemen says the hotels provided their owners with a $9 million illegal profit when they were sold by one Mafia-connected corporation of out of state to

Burglaries Keep A Business Shaky

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
When Talton Sanders sees a news story on the rising crime rate, it hits him right at home.

The furniture store of the 36-year-old Charlotte businessman has been burglarized nine times since he went into business about seven years ago. He was almost put out of business by the thefts and he still can't get theft insurance.

One time the burglars cleaned out the entire store, except for a single television set they left setting in the middle of the floor.

Sanders and many other North Carolinians are the victims in the statistics the Federal Bureau of Investigation collects on crime. The statistics for the latest reporting period, 1970, show that crime in the state is growing at a much faster rate than the population.

The State Bureau of Investigation and other law enforcement agencies say many of the burglaries in North Carolina are pulled off by gangs who are given orders and inside information on whom to rob.

Sanders started his business in 1963 and eventually went broke because of the burglaries. A Small Business Administration loan got him back on his feet, but he still hasn't recovered his losses. He owes $4,000 on the loan, which should have been paid off several years ago.

The first time the thieves just broke the glass window on his store's front door, reached in an unlocked door. Two months later burglars couldn't get in that way because the door's new lock had to be unlocked with a key even from the inside.

So the thieves just smashed the whole door.

Another time burglars were blocked by bars across the windows of his store. So the intruders simply knocked out an eight-foot section of the rear wall of his store and carted off furniture and appliances.

"I was just trying to survive," Sanders said. "But every time I'd get caught up, here came the burglars again."

FBI figures show that last year there was a 38 per cent increase in burglaries in Raleigh compared to 1969; a 35 per cent increase in Winston-Salem; a 26 per cent increase in Greensboro, and a 23 per cent increase in Charlotte.

Here are the FBI figures for burglaries, with the first figure for 1969 and the second for 1970:

Raleigh, 816 and 1,135; Winston-Salem, 1,489 and 2,012; Greensboro, 1,498 and 1,906; Charlotte, 4,392 and 5,430.

Conditions warrant it, if we suspected some abuses, I wouldn't hesitate to reinstate prior approval, or even implement the more stringent peer review."

Prior approval will still be needed for psychiatric therapy, cosmetic surgery, surgical transplant of internal organs, all eyeglasses and visual aids and repair and replacement of frames and lenses.

Water Re-Use Project Begun

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI) — The state of Kentucky has begun a project to determine if acid-bearing water from coal mines can be treated and used for irrigation on reclaimed strip mine land.

The project will use limestone to neutralize the waters from coal mines and return it for use on land revegetated after coal has been stripped away.

The Pawnee Indians went on a big buffalo hunt each June.

another.

Officials of various law enforcement agencies are compiling information on these and other facets of organized crime as they try to collect sufficient evidence to prove their suspicions in court.

About two dozen Cosa Nostra members show up in North Carolina at different times and in different places each year, according to the head of the State Bureau of Investigation's Intelligence Division, Max Bryan. He said reasons for the visits have not been determined.

The national crime syndicate also maintains a lifeline of betting odds to a statewide bookie operation, other law enforcement sources say. The operation is considered the biggest moneymaker for organized crime in North Carolina.

The bookie setup is described as a hierarchy with one wealthy man at the top and dozens of bookies below him. The bookies are entrenched in every major city in North Carolina, police say, and in a few smaller towns where no one would expect them to be.

Other organized gangs in the state are headed by men with no visible means of support, men who through their strong-arm tactics and cleverness have woven a loose-knit association of criminals in several states. These gangs operate independently of the Cosa Nostra.

One of these crime bosses in North Carolina appears to officers to be more organized with a wider area of operation than other gangsters in the state. But others are spreading out. Bryan said his intelligence division has learned that one crime leader recently moved into the narcotics traffic in the eastern part of the state, a section where he had not been known to operate previously.

Bryan said these criminals have compiled their own network of two-bit crooks and safecracking artists, out-of-state "fences" and other out-of-state contacts for buying narcotics and selling bootleg cigarettes.

The public never learns how serious a problem they are to the state because they let others do their dirty work for them and threaten to kill anyone who informs on them to police, Bryan said.

All of this means little to the average North Carolinian, whose biggest worries are paying for the house and car and keeping the lawn green.

And law enforcement officials are concerned over this apathy. One plainclothes officer says, for example, that the gambling and betting hierarchy is tough to crack when businessmen, lawyers and even judges are known to do business with bookies.
