

House OKs Water Bond Issue Plan

RALEIGH (AP) — The House passed and sent to the Senate today a measure that would submit to a vote of the people the question of issuing $150 million in state bonds to finance a $700 million clean water program in North Carolina.

The vote today came after the House had given the bill preliminary approval Monday on an 80-0 vote.

Meanwhile, the Senate already has approved a similar measure and had it on its calendar for further action today.

Rep. Richard Lane Brown, D-Stanly, sponsor of the measure, told the House the state money raised by the bond issue would be matched with federal and local funds that would finance a five-year program of construction of water and sewage treatment facilities.

Brown said that the federal government would match $75 million of the bond funds on a basis of 55 per cent federal money to make a total of $300 million for construction of sewage treatment facilities. The state would put up 25 per cent and local governments 20 per cent of the cost of these facilities.

The program, Brown said, "would bring North Carolina and its localities current with their needs for adequate water supply and clean streams."

The water bond election would be held not later than May 6, 1972 on a date to be set by the governor.

The House also passed and enacted a measure to strengthen regulation of pesticides under a new state board whose policies would be carried out by the state commissioner of agriculture.

The board would be charged with regulation of pesticide dealers and applicators. It would be empowered to restrict the use of pesticides and to regulate disposal of unused pesticides and contaminated containers.

In other action, the House voted 64-16 to enact into law a measure to provide relief to the state's ailing city transit systems by reducing their state-franchise taxes $90,000 during the next two fiscal years.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate a measure that would make the state's tort claims act apply to North Carolina's local governments. The measure would enable persons injured by acts of local government employees to collect damages.

End Supports?

WASHINGTON (AP) — An end to tobacco price supports was proposed Monday by Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah.

In an amendment to the agricultural appropriations bill Moss said farmers should be given help if they are harmed by the halt to the supports.

The senator said $60 to $70 million dollars is in the bill for tobacco supports, including advertising and export considerations. He said tobacco should not get the help because it is "a product which just 18 months ago the Senate determined (it) was so hazardous that it should not be advertised over the broadcast media."

Protests to the Moss proposal came immediately from Southern congressmen in both parties.

Consumers Trim Buying Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumer buying plans, which rose sharply during the early months of the year, fell back during the last two months, according to a survey conducted by National Family Opinion, Inc.

Results of a May-June survey of 10,000 families across the country compared to the March-April sampling showed as much as a 4-percentage-point decrease in the number of consumers planning major purchases in various categories.

Once A Lovely Stream

MANATAWNEY MONSTER — The Manatawney creek, which flows through Pottstown, Pa., once was a sparkling clean stream in which kids swam and fished and boats had fun. But today it's an ecologist's nightmare as this scuba diver emerges from the muck-filled stream. Polluted with chemicals and filled with all kinds of algae and stagnant growth, the creek is dotted with "No Swimming" signs. (AP Wirephoto)

Air Control Board Had To Act Against Fumes From Plant In Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Houston ship channel, the narrow strip frequently branded as having the most polluted water in the nation, now also has problems with fumes that choke and burn victims' throats.

On Sunday, for the fourth time since April 22, individuals on Port Houston docks inhaled what were believed to be sulphur fumes and required medical attention.

Late Monday, the Texas Air Control Board took action against the suspected source of the fumes, a Stauffer Chemical Co. plant, when its executive secretary issued the first emergency antipollution order since the board was authorized in 1967.

Charles R. Barden, the executive secretary, charged the plant with causing "imminent danger to human health or safety" and directed it to "discontinue immediately all emissions of air contaminants." The full board will meet Thursday in Houston to affirm, modify or set aside his order.

Earlier Monday, the City of Houston filed a pollution suit

Being Tried For Telling 'Secrets'

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — A Sumatran journalist has gone on trial in Medan for publishing secret documents about a government plantation.

The writer for the weekly Panorama Indonesia, identified only as S.H., faces a six-month jail term if convicted.

His story also reported that in 1969 tobacco production on the plantation declined.

against Stauffer and sought a restraining order against the plant. A court hearing was set for Aug. 3.

Since April 22, about 175 persons have been struck on Port Houston docks by fumes that witnesses say they believe have come from whitish, yellow smoke emitted by Stauffer smoke attacks.

Stauffer's plant is one of the many oil and chemical installations lining the channel, which links Houston with the Gulf of Mexico 55 miles away.

Thirty longshoremen complained Sunday that fumes burned their throats and eyes.

They were administered oxygen at the scene, then quit work for the day.

Last Wednesday, Kathleen West, 66, a grandmother from Brooklyn, and four young companions became sick from fumes during a brief Houston stopover on a cruise to Africa. They spent the night in a hospital and resumed their cruise the next day.

In the two earlier cases, 59 longshoremen complained about fumes June 29, and more than 80 longshoremen were treated at the scene April 22 for choking and burning sensations of the throat and lungs.

Again 'Control' Plain Of Jars

SAIGON (AP) — The army of Meo tribesmen trained and equipped by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency has seized virtually complete control of the Plain of Jars in eastern Laos and encountered no significant resistance from Communist forces, American sources in Vientiane reported today.

Except for five months in 1969, the Plain of Jars has been held by North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces since 1964.

American sources who arrived in Vientiane from the plain 100 miles north of the Laotian capital said Meo commando teams have covered most of the area in search of enemy supplies and uncovered large underground food stores, including canned pork, condensed milk, coffee and candy.

Very little munitions were found, however.

The Meo army is led by Gen. Vang Pao. For years he has launched offensives in the monsoon season to strengthen his positions against the attacks which the North Vietnamese make during the dry season beginning in November. Usually the Meo forces advance in the wet season and are pushed back during the dry months.

The drive this year began last week.

Officials in Vientiane said they expect Vang Pao's men to attempt to hold the Plain of Jars although they have not yet prepared permanent defensive positions. They have established artillery bases on hilltops in the plain, sources said, and some of them are reportedly manned by Thai troops financed by the U.S. government.

The sources said American helicopters and C123 transport planes are ferrying troops and supplies into Xiangkhoang airfield in the center of the plain. U.S. B52 heavy bombers and fighter-bombers are reported attacking enemy supply routes including Route 7 leading from North Vietnam to the Plain of Jars.

Swimming Pools Dominated Talk At Rec Meeting

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The subject was a swimming pool for Greenville, and it dominated the thoughts and comments of members of the Greenville Recreation Commission, guests and observers in a protracted discussion at Elm Street Recreation Center last night.

The occasion was the monthly meeting of the Recreation Commission to take up a brief three-item agenda, one of which was a presentation of the program of the Greenville Swim Club by Dr. Thomas A. Johnson of East Carolina University.

"I feel personally we are evading the real issue," Dr. Ralph Steele, a commission member stated following talk about a number of alternatives. "I feel we should bring the issue to a head, or put it on the table."

"If the people of Greenville really want a pool they are going to have to push for it. They are going to have to let us know."

City Manager Harry Hagerty commented it was "a matter of dollar and cents. It is not only the cost of construction that is involved, but one of maintenance and operation. Swimming pools are a costly proposition, and all municipalities are broke."

Hagerty added he felt strongly about a pool to be used all year round. "Why should we have something that cost $250,000 to $300,000 to construct to use for a 90 day period. If we do get a pool, we should put a roof on it and get full utilization from it."

The possibility of a bond issue to hasten the eventual date of acquiring a swimming pool for the city was mentioned by several persons.

Hagerty explained the procedures involved in placing the matter of a bond issue before the public. "You first have to make a decision on a location. Then follows a picture of the pool, where it is to go, how much it will cost. After that it's a matter of putting it to the people to say yes or no to whether or not we'll have it." The city manager said: "If we're going to have it, we're going to have the best in this part of the country."

The appearances of Dr. Johnson, swimming coach Ray Scharf, Mr. and Mrs. Don McGlohan and other interested parties were in connection with their request that the Recreation Commission consider the possibility of utilizing the Greenville Swim Club summer program as part of the city's recreation program.

This competitive program, conducted each week day in Minges Coliseum from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m., now has a total of 39 members. The program has a requirement that a participant be able to swim before joining the club.

Spokesmen for the Greenville Swim Club, which is a member of the East Carolina Swim Association that includes Wilmington, Wilson, Goldsboro, Kinston and Greenville, stressed that the club is open to the public, and that participation was invited in order to expand the current program. Dr. Johnson noted that fees had been pared to a minimum to encourage more public participation, but that response had not been what had been hoped for.

Commission members pointed out that efforts had been made in the past three years to use the university swimming facilities, but that the only program they had been able to put into effect was one that did not entail swimming instruction.

Recreation Department Director Boyd Lee explained that the current Memorial Gym swimming program was limited to 40 children a day. With the number of children involved, this means that each child has an opportunity to use the pool about once in every three weeks.

Lee also said the swimming instruction program being conducted at South Greenville Recreation Center, using the Port-A-Pool, was a disappointment. "We are paying a full time lifeguard 30 hours a week and furnishing qualified instructors, but only 20 children are taking advantage of this program."

Would Close Iceland Base

By ROBERT LINDSAY
Associated Press Writer

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — All parties in Iceland's incoming leftist government are reported agreed that the NATO base at Keflavik must be closed and that its 3,000 American servicemen go, probably within four years.

The new coalition to govern this island republic in the North Atlantic appears convinced that Iceland should remain a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but that foreign servicemen should not be stationed here during peacetime.

The base 30 miles southwest of Reykjavik, and the stationing of American naval personnel there are authorized by a U.S.-Icelandic defense pact under NATO auspices.

The base has been operating since 1951. Located nearly halfway between New York and Moscow, it tracks Soviet plane and ship movements in the North Atlantic. The Russians have been pressuring the Icelandic Government for some time to pull out of NATO, or at least to close the base.

The new coalition under Premier-Elect Olafur Johannesson controls 32 of the parliament's 60 seats, including 17 Progressives, 10 members of the Communist People's Alliance and five of the Liberal Left party. Johannesson leads the Progressive party.

It is likely that the Cabinet will be made up of three Progressives, two Communists and two Liberal Left.

The last governing coalition of Independents and Social Democrats pursued a liberal, middle-of-the-road policy. It was defeated in the June 13 elections after nearly 12 years in power.

The big question in the minds of many Icelanders is whether Johannesson's Communist ministers will lead him into policies that will alter Iceland's foreign relations radically.

The Premier-Elect, a 58-year-old law professor at the University of Iceland, is considered a responsible, balanced politician, but he is often accused of a lack of firmness in dealing with other politicians.

Ponder Criminal Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury in Boston is probing possible criminal charges against three East Coast newspapers in connection with publication of secret Pentagon documents, says The Washington Post.

The Post, The New York Times and The Boston Globe are subjects of the investigation, the Post said, in today's editions, quoting unnamed sources.

The Post said details of the investigation are shrouded in secrecy.

Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has said the Supreme Court decision allowing publication of the documents and related stories does not stand in the way of criminal prosecution.

Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, who has admitted leaking the papers to the press, has been charged with unauthorized possession of classified documents. The Pentagon papers are an outline of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The Post sources said Ellsberg was not involved in the initial Boston investigation.

New Hampshire Steps Up Date

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New Hampshire has moved back to the No. 1 spot in the presidential primary business.

Gov. Walter Peterson signed into law Monday a bill shifting the state's presidential primary from the second Tuesday in March to the first Tuesday in March of 1972.

This was the Granite State's response to a Florida law approved last month which set its primary date also on the second Tuesday in March.

Hassan Cracks Down On Uprising Sympathizers

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — King Hassan II cracked down today on persons suspected of sympathizing with the abortive weekend uprising.

A number of officers were arrested, Moroccan sources said, and a massive search was on for fugitive suspects.

The roundup was launched after "intensive interrogation" of the ringleaders, including three generals who were executed Monday.

The number of arrests was not immediately disclosed, but it was clear that far more officers were involved in the plot than the "approximately 10" reported earlier.

Army units took control of the port of Casablanca, the nation's largest harbor, and screened and searched all passengers. Strict controls remained in force at airports and frontier posts to prevent fugitives from escaping the country.

Heavily armed infantry units scoured the forests east of Rabat.

The entire country was reported calm, however.

Police were searching the densely populated old quarters of Rabat and Casablanca for small groups of young civilians who swarmed into the streets at the height of the uprising to tear down portraits of the king and burn the royal flag.

Mass Starvation Feared For E. Pakistan

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A World Bank mission says President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan must rush food to East Pakistan to head off catastrophe of big-scale starvation and a massive new exodus to India.

In a secret report, the 10-man mission discreetly but unmistakably urges the military ruler of that South Asian land to remove—as a first step—some of his West Pakistani troops who stand accused of terrorizing the population.

The group of foreign experts says these are among minimum remedial measures needed if East Pakistan is to emerge from chaos. Other suggested moves with the same purpose:

—Appointment of a civilian administrator for the eastern province.

—Setting up an emergency food-distribution system.

—Adoption of an effective plan containing clear economic priorities to deal with the crisis that confronts East Pakistan.

—Restoration of a disrupted road, rail, water and air traffic systems to get the farms, factories, firms working again.

The report of the World Bank mission, circulated to top executives only, was made available to The Associated Press by qualified authorities. It was based on an investigation in early June of the aftermath of the insurrection in East Pakistan.

When the head of the mission, Britisher Peter Cargill, conveyed the group's main findings—to President Yahya personally last month, the Pakistani strongman said bluntly in a stormy encounter he simply did not believe them.

Some estimates say more than 200,000 people already have died in the Pakistan civil war—bloodiest conflict since World War II according to World Bank officials. Between 6 million and 7 million have fled into India.

The report grimly portrays East Pakistan as a country of ghost towns where the people who have stayed behind seem haunted—if not by fear of the troops, then by the specter of starvation.

Actress Says Being Able To Choose Roles Means Being Successful At Her Profession

By PEACE STERLING
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Marcia Rodd says that when she was young she always felt she wanted to do something exceptional to give herself some direction. "I just knew I wasn't going to have a normal life," she explains.

And sure enough, the child, Marcia Rodd, was right about the kind of life she would later lead, since the grown-up Miss Rodd is an actress.

She won critical acclaim for her performance in the New York, Los Angeles and London productions of the hit musical, "Your Own Thing," and received good notices again when she played in the Broadway show, "Last of the Red Hot Lovers." Recently she made her film debut as one of the only two stars in "Little Murders."

"I think when I was a kid I had a hard-time figuring out how people got through their days," she says. "I kept thinking I needed to do one thing really well to feel like I'd lived my life."

At first Miss Rodd thought that one thing would be art, since as a child she could sketch her playmates' paper dolls. But she also recalls being in a fourth grade play and thinking she was pretty good. She became seriously involved in acting when she was at Northwestern University, where she studied under Alvina Krause.

After graduating from there, the dark-haired, dark-eyed actress came to New York and landed a small role in an off-

Broadway play, "Oh-Say Can You See," followed by roles in "Cambridge Circus," "Kismet," and "Love and Let Love." Love."

She says the lowest points of her early career were in two different shows—"Madame Mousse" and "Chu Chem." Neither one made it to New York, she notes, adding that, "you have to be grateful for small favors."

She was also depressed by a TV pilot that turned out to be "mediocre." "I'd rather have something really awful than mediocre," she comments. "That's soul destroying." Miss Rodd adds that the experience has put her off as far as acting on TV.

"I have a theory that nothing serious can really touch you on TV," she says. "TV occurs in your home. It's so mundane."

And what she would really like to do, she says, is more film. "From a career standpoint it moves you faster," she notes. "It's not becoming a star I care about, but if you're known, you can pick and choose."

And picking and choosing, Miss Rodd says, is a big part of being a successful actress. "I look at being successful as being in a position to choose the kind of work I do, and to do a lot of different roles. I don't think of myself as a personality actress, and I don't want to be cast in the same role I was in just before," she says. "Of course you use your personality in acting, but you distill parts of it."

She also wants to direct, even though she admits it's a hard field for a woman to get into. "I don't think it's because actors are afraid of women directors," Miss Rodd comments. "But I do think the production side is."

though she admits it's a hard field for a woman to get into. "I don't think it's because actors are afraid of women directors," Miss Rodd comments. "But I do think the production side is."

She would like to direct both on stage and in motion pictures, but she feels she doesn't know enough about film now. "You have to get into the whole technical end," she says. "And I just don't know enough." But that's another reason she would like to do more work in that field.

Quick talking, and quick laughing, Miss Rodd, who is married to a lawyer, slows down a bit when she talks about women's rights.

"I think there are a lot of women who are perfectly attuned to being housewives, and that's fine if the alternatives are there," she notes. "But they haven't been, and I think even those women who do like being housewives don't enjoy being thought of as second rate citizens."

"I enjoy being a woman," Miss Rodd continues. "But on a business level I don't want a lot of men thinking I'm not as good as they are." And even though she agrees that some of the aggressive tactics of Women's Lib can be criticized, she notes that radicals usually are the ones who get things done.

As for her own marriage, Miss Rodd says that any relationship is the result of compromise, but she adds that a relationship is much better if it is between equals. "It's really terrible to put yourself in the position of being totally dependent on someone," she says. "So in marriage, you work at making things agreeable to both of you without either person feeling like the underdog."

She's Been There And Won't Go Again

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: May I use your column to offer some advice:

Girls, never accompany your husband to his class reunion unless you went to the same school and know some of the same people. I just returned from attending my husband's 25th high school reunion and I've never had a lousier time. Ralph was [and still is] a handsome fellow, and he was popular in high school, so when we walked in everyone fell on his neck. He introduced me around and I never saw him again until it was time to go home. I didn't know a soul, so while Ralph was laughing and talking with his old school chums I sat alone in a corner like a bump on a log, bored to tears. Everyone was showing pictures of their children and grandchildren and talking about "old times."

I'm not faulting Ralph. I know he hadn't seen these people for 25 years and they had a lot of catching up to do, so I couldn't expect him to see that I was entertained.

So, girls, stay home and let your husbands go to their class reunions alone, unless you enjoy sitting in a corner, talking to yourselves.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: Your letter makes a lot of sense. But some wives would rather go and sit like bumps on a log than send their husbands to such affairs alone.

DEAR ABBY: I am 82 years young and I live in a rest home for ladies. I was in "show biz" most of my life and I love a good laugh and have gotten many from your column which I read faithfully every day. I would like to share something with you [and your readers] if you want to use this:

Last evening at dinner, a lady who is 86 said to me, "I had a priest visit me today and he told me that the Catholic faith did not require confession anymore."

I replied, "I know why. They're all writing to Dear Abby."

God bless you and keep you well.

LILLIAN IN WILLIMANTIC, CONN.

DEAR LILLIAN: And God bless you, too. Your letter made my day!

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from "Mule's Wife," who said her husband refused to wear a tuxedo to their son's wedding, but if you, Dear Abby, would say the word, he'd rent one and wear it. [You said the word, so I assume he wore one.]

Well, last week my granddaughter was married at a formal wedding. Everyone in the wedding party wore tuxedos—except the groom's father. He wore a dark business suit. Nobody cared, and few even noticed it. All eyes were on the bride and groom.

Isn't it better for the father of the groom to feel comfortable in a business suit than to put on a tux and feel like a monkey?

"Mule's Wife" shouldn't let a little thing like that upset her. She should thank God she still has her "mule." Mine passed away 12 years ago, and the tears I shed at my granddaughter's wedding were because my "mule" couldn't be with me to witness his only granddaughter's wedding.

GRANDMA NOVAK

DEAR GRANDMA: I agree with you, but if I hadn't said "the word," the other "mule" wouldn't have worn a tuxedo to his son's wedding, which probably would have spoiled the occasion for his wife. I try to prevent trouble, when possible.

Shoulder Patch For The Women

PARIS (WNS) — Mick Micheyl, former feminine star of the Casino de Paris, has been awarded the Vermilion Medal of Arts, Sciences and Letters. "I'm very nervous at these ceremonies," she confessed. "One day a mayor who doesn't see too well pinned the medal to my skin and I didn't recover for a month." She believes that some other form of decoration should be created for women.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mizell, of Rt. 6, Greenville, were recent visitors at Florida's Silver Springs.

The "unstructured" suit is due to capture male interest this summer, the Men's Fashion Association of America says. These skeletonized suits eliminate much interior construction, making them lighter, softer, more comfortable to wear. The "unstructured" include both knits and wovens in a host of colors, patterns and styles.

Investment Analyst Says The Long Skirt Has Won

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Call it midi or longuette, the triumph of the longer skirt by any name is inevitable.

And with the ultimate victory of the calf-length hem, American women for perhaps the first time will enjoy a panorama of flexible fashion in which nearly anything goes and apparel decisions are dominated by mood.

So says Joanne Howard, investment analyst for ISI Corp., San Francisco, who makes stock recommendations in the apparel field to the ISI Group of Mutual Funds.

Mrs. Howard acknowledges that longer skirts "didn't make it last year—but I don't think anything in the way of big change would have made it last year."

"The consumer was just too uncertain about a lot of things, including fashion. If 'hot pants' or mini skirts had been introduced last fall, I don't think they would have made it, either. The timing wasn't right."

In a period of uncertainty, economic or otherwise, the consumer—especially the female—turns to compromise, Mrs. Howard says.

"The pants suit was an ideal compromise for her," she notes. "With it, she didn't have to worry about skirt length—and she knew she would be able to wear the pants after the skirt controversy is resolved."

"Things have changed now, though. Pants suits are not being purchased as dressy apparel—they are returning to the category of sports wear, and this will increase as women turn to the longer skirt."

Mrs. Howard feels too much was expected of the consumer in the conversion to the midi; the longer skirt required time for acceptance.

"It was such a drastic, dramatic change—from mini to midi," she notes. "Fashion experts accepted it swiftly, of course, because they like rapid change. But the consumer could not accept it immediately—none of her friends was wearing it. For a time, there was hardly anyone to emulate."

The acceptance of the mini-skirt was a gradual accomplishment too, Mrs. Howard recalls, which "succeeded the same way I believe the long skirt will."

"It started in England and crossed the Atlantic. The fashion-conscious in New York discovered it, then those in California went for it. Finally, the Midwest got the message. And this is what is happening with the longuette or midi."

"You hear a lot of knowledgeable people claiming the controversy has been resolved at the knee. But that's just where it has landed at present, in the country over-all. In terms of what's happening, well-dressed women in New York, and fashionable working women, are wearing the longer skirt. I think it will be an accepted thing in California this fall. It will probably take another year to really make it in the Midwest. But it will make it."

So what will happen to the miniskirt with the victory of the midi?

"The mini will live. It will still be available and will still be purchased. For many women it will be sports apparel. But—and this is heartening—it will be worn by women that really look good in it. Most older women could never wear the mini," she declares.

And what about "hot pants?"

"Hot pants—short-shorts—may be around for a while but they are going to be a novelty item," Mrs. Howard observes. "I can't see them being worn as a dress is worn. They are fun for parties and the like—and they certainly are selling. But they have limited application and I can't see many women wearing them to work."

Mrs. Howard says the new freedom and flexibility in fashion are "not only great for the consumer, but can be wonderful for the retailer, too."

"It really makes it hard for the retailer, however, in terms of determining what is going to be fashionable. And it will be even more difficult for the manufacturer. The retailer can get a nice mix, while the manufacturer must decide one way or the other and concentrate."

Where does all this leave men? Do their opinions of what women wear make a difference?

"Women, ultimately, dress for men. Of course, men were in revolt over the midi. But they have been spoiled, really, by it."

"If a man sees the longuette or midi outfit put together as a total fashion, he can't help but like it."

And what does Mrs. Howard's husband think?

"He thinks all this is fun. He likes a variety, too. My wardrobe consists of mini-skirts and minidresses and gaucho pants and midis and more. What I wear depends on the occasion and how I feel. And that's the way it should be," Mrs. Howard concludes.

Wallace-Smith Vows Said In Ceremony

Arlington Street Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Carolyn Annette Smith and Lem Edward Wallace on Thursday, July 1, at 2:00 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dixie Smith of Greenville and Mrs. Fidelia Wallace of Washington and the late Mr. Linyear Mayo Wallace. The Rev. Bill Edwards officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of organ music was presented by Miss Linda Shearin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street length dress of aqua crepe with a lace bodice. The long lace sleeves were trimmed with tiny pearls entwined with silver. Her headpiece was a short veil of silk illusion attached to a velvet bow encrusted with beaded pearls. She wore a corsage of white yellow carnations and carried in her hand, a white lace handkerchief embroidered with wedding bells and double rings. Dixie Lee Smith of Greenville, brother of the bride, was best man.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Virginia Beach, Va.

The bride attended East Carolina University and was assistant administrator at Park View Manor Nursing Home, Washington, prior to her marriage. The bridegroom is serving in the U.S. Coast Guard. Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home.

Has Her Third Book Published

Mrs. Nell Wise Wechter, a retired school teacher who at one time taught in Pitt County schools and is now living in the sleepy village of Stumpy Point in Dare County, had her third children's book published on June 30.

The winner of a Freedom Foundation's National Teachers Medal and the Franklin McNutt Award, Mrs. Wechter has taught in schools at Hatteras, Stumpy Point, Lumberton, and Pitt and Northampton Counties. Her last teaching years were in the public schools of Greensboro, where she won the McNutt Award (named in honor of Dr. Franklin McNutt, a retired UNC-G educator now living in Greenville).

"Swamp Girl," published by John F. Blair, publisher of Winston-Salem on June 30, like Mrs. Wechter's earlier books is

Employment Ayden News Survey Set

Mrs. Jean C. Wilson of Grimesland Route 1 will visit area households during the week of July 19 in a Bureau of the Census survey of employment and unemployment.

The survey, conducted monthly by the Bureau for the U. S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sampling of households throughout the United States. Statistics based on the results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

For example, in May the survey indicated there were 84.1 million men and women in the civilian labor force; 6.2 percent were out of work as compared with 6.1 percent of the 83.8 million persons in the April labor force.

The Bureau's regional director, Joseph Norwood, in Charlotte, says facts supplied by individuals participating in the survey are kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals.

Instructors In Program

Nine physics instructors from eastern North Carolina colleges are currently involved in a summer program at East Carolina University.

They represent several of the member institutions of the Eastern Carolina Cooperative in Physics (ECCOP), a group supported by the National Science Foundation.

The summer program, which opened June 7, is devoted to an "intensive and extensive inquiry into applications of modern physics and computers to physics education," said Dr. Carl G. Adler, associate professor of physics at ECU and program director.

The program will end July 31. Dr. Adler is assisted by Dr. J. William Byrd, ECU physics chairman and ECCOP director, and George Hazelton, associate director of ECCOP and chairman of science at Chowan College.

Jacquelyn P. Briley, of Pitt Technical Institute, is among the delegates.

Plans To Pedal All The Way

Winners in the Wednesday Afternoon Duplicate Bridge game played at the Elks Club were:

North-South: Mrs. L. D. Harris and Mrs. Clifton Toler, first; Mrs. J. S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., second; Mrs. J. S. Willard and Mrs. Jan Zurav, third.

East-West: Mrs. Cora Powell and David Proctor, first; Glenn Creath and M. G. Creath, second; Joseph Smith III and Dr. George Martin, third.

Winners in the Wednesday morning game were: Mrs. Thomas Cole and Miss Agnes Evans, first; Mrs. Jean Cox Jones and Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, second; Mrs. George Fleming and Mrs. Lindsay Savage, third; Mrs. B. V. Payne and Mrs. J. D. Mellon, fourth.

Friday night winners included: Mrs. Irvin Adler and Mrs. Beulah Eagles, first; Dr. Charles Duffy and Paul Stevens, second; Glenn Creath and M. G. Creath, third;

Mrs. George Martin and Mrs. Wiley Corbett, fourth; Mrs. L. D. Harris and Mrs. William Parvin, fifth.

Saturday afternoon winners were: North-South: Mrs. Wiley Corbett and Dr. Charles Duffy, first; Mrs. Lacy Harrell and Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts, second; Ricky Woo and Dwight Pearce, third.

East-West David Proctor and Paul Stevens, first; Joseph Smith III and Dr. George Martin, second; Mr. and Mrs. Jan Zurav, third.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A 32-year-old Fremont, N.C., teacher, intends to come back to North Carolina from Alaska beginning Sunday.

It's 5,200 miles, and David Mayor will bicycle all the way.

"It's a good way to see the country," he said. "It's like the things you wanted to do when you were a kid that you couldn't because of time and money."

Mayor will enter graduate school in January. He expects the trip to take four to six months.

Senior Citizens To Williamsburg

FARMVILLE — The Senior Citizens' Club of Farmville visited Williamsburg, Va. last Wednesday.

Led by the Club president, Mrs. Madeline C. Blount, the group saw the orientation film about the historic town and then toured the 11 major exhibition buildings there. It was the first long trip for the recently formed group, sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Council On Aging.

ORANGE IS FAVORITE
NEW YORK (UPI) — Orange is America's leading juice drink flavor whether it is canned single strength, powdered, chilled or frozen, report beverage industry researchers. The nation spends about $400 million annually for citrus and citrus-like beverages and the bulk of that is orange or orange-flavored.

Got Nowhere

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The person who stole a car from a Charlotte woman Monday afternoon must have had big plans.

Police say someone took Mrs. Carmen Scaff's car from the parking lot of an auto dealer — she had left the keys inside — and drove it to a drugstore. There he took 128 cartons of cigarettes and a television set from a storeroom and broke out through a back door.

He put the goods in the car and drove away.

Police found the car only 100 yards from the drugstore. It was out of gas.

FLOURESCENT FADE AWAY

How does fluorescent lighting affect your complexion? Do you fade away looking washed out and pale? Chances are that if you're not applying your makeup properly, you may be having just such a problem.

Flourescent light destroys the rosy tones in the skin. Consequently, you should start wearing more makeup, especially on your eyes. And start wearing rosier makeup on the rest of your face.

Your basic application should include a pink foundation, rouge, loose powder, and lipstick. For touch-ups during the day, keep a compact of pink powder along with pink lipstick and blusher handy.

Makeup is one area of beautification. Beautiful hair is another. And since this is our business, why not come in this week for a little of our expert hair styling.

Tobacco A Continuing Target

Tobacco growers in this area may as well be prepared for persistent attacks on the price support system which has had so much to do with stabilizing the agricultural economy of our area.

The Christian Science Monitor reports that Sen. Frank Moss (D-Utah) is making a new effort to cut off subsidies to tobacco producers.

Sen. Moss has decided to bring the issue to the floor of the Senate when the agricultural bill comes up for consideration. He has had little success in getting his bill considered in committee.

The Christian Science Monitor says that Moss will try to add two amendments to the agricultural appropriations bill.

One would end government subsidies for tobacco after the current crop is harvested.

The second would establish a commission to recommend in six months what aid should be given tobacco growers if the subsidies are ended.

It is doubtful that the amendments will pass, but the Monitor foresees more votes for them than they got last year when Sen. Moss brought the matter to the Senate floor.

Senators who are sympathetic with the farmer will no doubt be ready for the amendments which Sen. Moss proposes to introduce. With a little luck they should be able to defeat the amendments. If they do, however, future onslaughts will be made on the tobacco price support program and, since it affects only certain regions, there will be a temptation for senators from non-tobacco states to eliminate this bit of government spending.

They should be reminded, however, that many small farmers have been able to stay in business because of the tobacco program. They should also know that the support program has worked well over the years — better in fact than most other farm programs.

Sen. Moss' first amendment would mean disaster for a large segment of agriculture. His second amendment very likely would have no meaning at all. It would be just another committee where the plight of the tobacco farmer could be kicked out of sight.

Doors 'Opened' By Retirement

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Retirement needn't mean resting on the shelf; it can open a new, rewarding career in public service.

Take it from J. Ernest Paschall of Wilson, a 75-year-old who uses the stairs in the State Legislative Building because the elevators are too slow. He retired as a bank president in 1964, and now is serving his fourth term in the General Assembly.

The public doesn't put senior citizens on the shelf," said Paschall with a genteel

"In fact, I've advocated for years that retired persons put to use their abilities and the time on their hands." The cure for boredom and the feeling nobody needs you, said Paschall, is personal involvement in the problems of your community.

The reward is knowing you're doing something for the area — town, county state — that did so much for you. At least, that's how it is for J. Ernest Paschall.

Opportunity Close Home
He found opportunity within four miles of his birthplace. He was the oldest boy of seven children on a tobacco farm. His father's death halted plans to study law at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

He helped run the farm and attended Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. World War I intervened. Back home from the Navy, he married instead of going to law school. He took a job as runner for Branch Bank & Trust Company.

He didn't give up on law. He commuted to Rocky Mount every Wednesday night for classes conducted by a retired Superior Court judge; after three years, he passed the bar exam and got his license. Meanwhile he took correspondence courses in accounting to further his banking career.

Paschall spent 45 years with BB&T, working at every job, including 11 years as president, before mandatory retirement. He also served as president of the North Carolina Bankers Association, and four years on the State Banking Commission, among other extracurricular assignments.

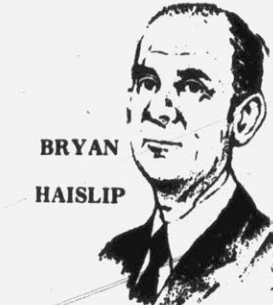

Persistence Pays Off
Patience and persistence are virtues appropriate to the legislative life. He introduced the open meetings bill on January 21; it was ratified into law exactly five months later, on June 21.

In the process, it was merged with a similar measure sponsored by Rep. Carl Stewart of Gaston, and worked over thoroughly in a Senate Committee. Though less than desired, it was the best yet attained, and earned Rep. Paschall the thanks of North Carolina Press Association officials.

Youth and age pull together in political harness, said Paschall. "Young people do not hesitate to vote for older candidates," he said. "In fact, I've had Jaycees call and volunteer help in my campaigns."

Therefore, the lower voting age should do nothing to cut down the trend of retired men and women to elective service. As for himself, Paschall said he expects to run for a fifth term.

That is, he added, if health permits. "As long as my doctor says I'm able to carry the load, I see no reason to give it up," he said. Then he headed briskly up the stairs, on the round of the day's duties.

BRYAN HAISLIP

snort. "If they're on the shelf, they put themselves there."

He's not, a fact evident by the schedule he keeps. He carries the same legislative load as any other of the 120 House members. He's chairman of the important University Trustees Committee, a vice chairman of the Higher Education Committee which is handling one of the sessions key issues.

The accomplishment he takes pride in this session is a bill which sets forth the policy of the state of North Carolina that public bodies conduct open meetings.

Wryly, Paschall admitted it does little more than declare policy. "I was disappointed by some of the amendments adopted in the Senate. It's not as broad as it was when I introduced it," he said.

Still, as a matter of public policy it can't help but have a healthy influence for open government, he suggested.

Dozens or so Retirees

Paschall is one of a dozen or so retirees who are members of the 1971 General Assembly. Some were first elected to the legislature before retirement; others, like Paschall, never ran for public office until the close of business or professional careers. Their number represents the fields of business, industry, agriculture, education.

They contribute a balancing factor to the legislative process, Paschall said. "We need the point of view of all age groups in the consideration of broad public issues," he explained. "A cross section of ages — youth, middle years, senior citizens — in the legislature gives North Carolina better laws than we otherwise would have."

Besides, he added, insights gained from long experience can be valuable in assessing new ideas for programs and service.

Not only is retired manpower good for the state; it's good for them to serve, said Paschall.

"I recommend it," he said.

AN OLD STORY UPDATED!

By J.J. KILPATRICK

Matter Of Corruption

Attorney General Mitchell went up the Hill one day last week to offer testimony in general support of the Administration's drug control program, and suddenly found himself in the middle of a briar patch. He was asked point blank, in public, with the TV cameras peering down, what about corruption in Southeast Asia as a factor in this affair?

Mitchell is an honest man. He responded candidly that, yes, such corruption exists; and yes, our government is trying to deal with it. Then he clammed up, for understandable reasons of diplomacy, and offered to talk with the Senators further in private.

His questioners probed at a quick nerve. For the past two years at least, and probably for much longer, efforts to control the heroin traffic in Southeast Asia have been utterly frustrated by the indifference, the venality, and the corruption of our wards and allies.

The tragic magnitude of the problem is just now beginning to sink in. From the days of the Roman legions, military commanders have struggled with the task of maintaining the elan of essentially idle soldiers. Caesar touched upon the difficulties in his Commentaries. When trained and disciplined troops have a fight on their hands, they fight; if they are highly motivated, they exhibit the finest traits of heroism, self-sacrifice, and stamina.

The situation is altogether different when a war, as they say, is being "wound down." The phrase is too much used, perhaps because it is too precisely descriptive. Most of our ground troops and support troops over these past 24 months have seen the pendulum slowed and felt the clockwork tediously grinding. For thousands of resentful and unmotivated draftees, this has been largely a time of goofing off, of boredom, and of something else of heroin.

Official estimates indicate that at least 10 to 15 per cent of all U.S. troops in South Vietnam have thus fallen victims to heroin addiction. In some units, the figure is placed at 25 per cent — one out of four. Between August and December of last year, 90 men died under circumstances suggesting drug abuse. Autopsies indicated that 59 had died of overdoses of heroin.

Here in the United States, low-grade heroin is ex-

New Traffic Signs To Require Familiarity

In the next few months motorists will be seeing many new traffic control signs on the highways.

The signs will be changed over as North Carolina conforms with a plan for uniform highway signs which is being instituted throughout the nation.

For the most part the signs will utilize symbols instead of wording, to give traffic directions. Once motorists understand them, the signs will tell at a glance what is required on the road ahead.

Every driver should familiarize himself with the new signs so there will be as little confusion as possible during the change-over. Knowing what the signs mean could mean the avoidance of injury or death on the highways.

Amateurs Run Harris' Team

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

strangest aspect of the curious, long-odds campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination about to be waged by Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma is that it will be run strictly by political amateurs — a decision that has led to the painful dismissal of one of his closest advisers.

Last weekend, with Harris having all but decided not to enter a hot fight for renomination to the Senate but to leap instead into the Presidential sweepstakes, he came to an abrupt parting of the ways with aide Vic French.

The reason: French felt Harris' chances for the White House, remote in any case, would be doomed by a madcap policy of excluding professionals from his campaign. With his biggest money man opposed to French, Harris decided to jettison his aide.

The story actually goes back some seven weeks ago when Jack Hood Vaughn, director of the National Urban Coalition and a friend of Harris' for several years, began urging him to forget about Oklahoma and go national. Having spent the last 21 years in government service (Peace Corps director, Assistant Secretary of State, Ambassador to Colombia and Panama), Vaughn had no political experience whatever. Nevertheless, he offered to quit his job at the Urban Coalition to run Harris' campaign.

What made up Harris' mind was a promise of heavy financial support from one of the rising young money men in the Democratic party: Herbert A. (Herby) Allen, Jr., 31, heir to a Manhattan investment banking house who poured at least $156,000 personally into the Democratic party in 1968. A keen admirer of Harris, Allen kept the doors of the bankrupt Democratic National Committee open with money transfusions during Harris' disastrous tenure as National Chairman in 1969-70.

But Vaughn immediately clashed with French, 33, Harris' right hand for nearly four years. In keeping with Harris' notion of a "new populism" and "people's politics," Vaughn planned a campaign run entirely by those unscarred by past political campaigns and,

Strength For Today

PRAYER
Does it do any good to pray? Of course it does. Believers in all religions are steadfast in their contention that prayer makes a difference. Jesus declared that "every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." (Luke 11:10).

Fear has its place in religion only if we are behaving in an evil fashion. We cannot without sin ask God to bring about the death of someone we do not like or someone who has willed us a pile of money. There are people in the world that we do not particularly like, and others that we regard as evil persons. But let us be careful about our judgments. It was the Lord himself who said,

"Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." (Matthew 7:1-2).

God may say Yes to our prayers or No. Sometimes the word "No" is God's most merciful provision. A man many years ago who missed the Lusitania, and who undoubtedly had prayed that he would get there on time, missed being drowned.

In addition to Yes and No, God has other answers. One is "Wait." Another is "I have something better for you." Jesus prayed that God would let the cup of suffering pass from him. "Nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt" (Matthew 26:39). God said No, and as a result humanity was given a Saviour. He did not need to go to the cross but he did need to do his Father's will.

Jesus needed to pray constantly, and we need to do the same.

Uncle Sam Is Now Uncle Patsy

By ELMER ROESSNER
Now that the United States has lost the war to North Vietnam, American business can expect a sharp rise in the enactment of repressive laws by foreign governments and a great increase in the take-over of American businesses abroad.

North Vietnam, with the help of Russia, China and dissident groups at home, has proved the United States is a paper tiger and international relations being no better than the law of the jungle, other nations, even friendly ones, will move to pick up what scraps of flesh they can.

Ever since our involvement in Vietnam, especially since the decision to cease bombing North Vietnam, other nations have been stalking us.

the oil as well, so they have been content to raise prices, but when they feel they are able, they will take over.

Many Grabs
There have been many seizures of American property elsewhere. In most cases payment has been tendered, usually in the form of long-term bonds of questionable value. A rundown:

Chile is taking over American investments in copper, steel, banks and other projects worth an estimated $1 billion. Takeovers so far have been estimated at more than $170 million, which could break the Treasury's Overseas Private Investment Corp., which has insured American investments in Chile for $310 million and has less than $100 million in the kitty. Venezuela has embarked on a policy of taking over American oil interests, meanwhile enacting legislation requiring American companies to increase their investments there. It has also levied higher charges on exports.

Five Andean nations, Chile, Colombia, Peru, Ecuador and Bolivia, have agreed on a pact that would require foreign companies to sell a majority interest to their citizens or governments over the next 15 to 20 years.

Other Bites
Common Market nations have enacted a series of quotas and tariffs that are heavily restricting American agricultural imports.

Italy has enacted a series of laws burdening subsidiaries of U.S. companies there, prohibiting discharges of employees and imposing other regulations on operations. Raytheon, Union Carbide, Rheem Manufacturing and Celanese have all met disaster after establishing plants there.

Paving Rough Roads

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — There is a saying that flattery will get you nowhere.

That may be true in hell, where promotion is slow, but it is certainly untrue on earth. This is a place where bread may keep you alive but it is the butter on it that makes the taste memorable.

Flattery is as necessary to the common run of men as medals are to generals. Generals like to pin medals on each other whether they really deserve them or not. The rest of us like to pin kind words on each other whether they are true or not.

Flattery may strain your sense of fantasy, but it isn't much of a strain on your vocabulary. Here, for example, are a few admiring phrases which, if learned well and used often enough, should take you from the warrens of the poor to the precincts of the powerful:

"I don't know how you do it."

"If anyone else told that story, it wouldn't be half as funny."

"I simply won't believe it until you show me the scar."

"Anyone but you would have given up long ago."

"You must be kidding. I'd guess you to be half that old. Where do you get your drinking water—from the fountain of youth?"

"What do you mean bald? You're a long, long way from being bald."

"Your biggest trouble is that you're too kind for your own good."

"Well, I'll say this: you've certainly set them a good example, and if they don't follow it, they'll have only themselves to blame in the end."

"What I like about you is that you never let petty trifles get you down. If I had to think up another name for you, I'd call you Mr. Big."

"Oooh, you're so strong!"

"Is it really you? How nice it

A sudden storm swept the $60,000 Goodyear dirigible Mayflower to destruction against high tension wires near the Kansas City municipal airport last night, seriously burning the pilot, Capt. Charles E. Brannigan, who attempted to weather alone the high wind that jerked the 140 foot craft from its mooring.

Greenville voters will go to the polls tomorrow to vote on the proposed $100,000 bond issue for the purchase of the local gas plant. Greenville sold the gas franchise to the Carolina Gas and Electric Company several years ago with the provision that should the company ever desire to sell, the city should be given an opportunity to bid.

Miss Frances Spindler of Blackstone, Virginia is the guest of Mrs. T.H. Boykin. Mr. and Mrs. E.E. Rawl and son have returned from South Carolina.

Many countries, the Department of Commerce reports, have enacted laws giving agents of foreign countries rights far beyond their agreed contracts. Some laws place agents on the same footing as employees, prohibiting their dismissal; other laws require a foreign company to keep paying anticipated commissions after an agent is dismissed, or the payment of damages when a contract is cancelled.

And all these seizures, restrictions and impositions will multiply now that America has lost face in the world. It may be argued that many of these foreign actions are justified; that U.S. corporations have exploited foreign nations and their resources (President Allende has charged that $1 million a day is drained from Chile) and that we have forced inequitable deals on poorer nations. However, America's contribution to foreign nations has far exceeded that of any other nation in food, technical assistance and even fighting men.

therefore, unspoiled by political expertise. Understandably, French thought this nonsense and said so. To French's misfortune, however, money man Allen sided with Vaughn.
The showdown came July 2 when Harris dispatched J. D. Williams, an Oklahoma politician now practicing law in Washington, to fire long-time aide French rather than do it himself. French replied he had decided to quit anyway but wanted to talk to Harris himself first. They met the next day though not alone; press secretary Jim Monroe was summoned into the room as the ties were severed.
A footnote: Oklahoma Democratic politicians are delighted by the prospect of Harris's announcement, expected this week, taking himself out of the Senate race. That puts Rep. Ed Edmondson in an excellent spot to win the Democratic primary with hardly any bloodshed and go on to victory in November.
Democratic Poverty

Belying the fabled alliance of the Presidential campaign by Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, several of his workers turned up July 2 at the campaign headquarters of rival Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota to do a bit of panhandling. They were asking friends there to help tide them over the Fourth of July weekend with a little pocket money.
The reason: the Bayh campaign, famed for its chartered jets and mass champagne breakfasts, had run out of money and was totally incapable of meeting its big payroll. Some of the workers in Bayh's plush headquarters were given $100 each as an emergency stipend, but others were left flat broke and had to hit the pavements.
The Bayh money crisis was only slightly worse than the money squeeze experienced simultaneously by front-running Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine. After two purges of personnel to cut costs, Muskie managers recently reduced wages of most of the campaign workers, 5 percent to 10 percent across the board. Experienced politicians cannot remember the case when a serious Presidential campaign that will spend millions before it is done tried to reduce its budget by trimming the paychecks of office girls a few dollars a week.

pensive. In Vietnam, top-quality heroin is cheap. One quarter gram sells in Saigon's infamous "Soul Alley" for as little as $2.50. To the young man far from home, with time on his hands, the temptation to experiment — just to "try the stuff" — often proves irresistible. An addict is born, and a life is ruined.

This vicious traffic maintains itself for a variety of reasons. Much of the basic poppy production occurs in remote mountain areas where civil government, as we conceive it, simply does not operate. So far as the indigenous population is concerned, opium addiction is historic; it is a way of life; it arouses no particular horror.

These obstacles to drug control may be understood. What cannot be condoned is the failure of our friends and allies to crack down in those areas where they might crack down. A special study mission from the House reported on May 27 on the questions John Mitchell felt he had to duck. Sample findings:

In Burma, "prominent local businessmen" are known to be key suppliers of heroin. In Laos, "government armed forces are major wholesalers, directly involved in large-scale smuggling." Military authorities assume "that this activity reaches high levels of command." Members of the House mission were told "that there is information available that high-ranking Vietnamese officials, including military, are mixed up in drug operations." Reliable sources report that high Laotian officials, "including the chief of the Laotian general staff," are deeply involved in the heroin business.

wartime diplomacy, the United States cannot throw its weight around recklessly in this situation. We cannot dispatch a legion of Federal agents to overwhelm a crooked sheriff; their writ does not run. But a deeply concerned Administration is not without leverage in Southeast Asia. Perhaps that was what Mitchell wanted to talk about in private. But the leverage, if it can be made to work against corruption has to be made to work now.

Area Fishermen Spent Night Adrift In Sound

SWAN QUARTER—Four Greenville fishermen were returned safely to shore Monday morning after being adrift in a small boat in Pamlico Sound Sunday night.

Punk Jarvis, R. G. Joyner, Harvey Cox and Rommie Brock, had been fishing in Pamlico Sound. They left Oyster Creek Marina Sunday morning and when they failed to return Sunday night, the Coast Guard and a number of private boats began searching for them.

A private boat found the men and their small craft Monday morning and pulled them to shore.

The Hyde County Sheriff's Department said the boat went adrift in the sound after the motor failed. The men were wet from being tossed about in a rain storm.

Delinquent Tax Laws Revised

The new Machinery Act passed recently by the North Carolina General Assembly will have a direct effect on Pitt County tax payers — especially if they are delinquent in paying their taxes — according to Pitt Tax Collector W. R. Smith.

Although most of the new regulations in the Machinery Act deal with administrative matters and the taxation of public service company property, several sections of the law will have an immediate impact on the general public.

Smith explained that under the new law, interest on delinquent taxes, when collected in the future, will be ¾ per cent per month instead of ½ per cent as previously charged.

The second major change, Smith noted, is that interest for failure to pay 1971 taxes (due September 1, 1971) will begin on January 1, 1972. Two per cent interest will be added in January and ¾ per cent will be added each month thereafter.

This is a great change from the old law, Smith noted. Under the old system, interest for failure to pay would have begun on February 2 at one per cent. An additional one per cent interest would have been added March 1, and ½ per cent would have been added each month thereafter.

Discounts for paying 1971 taxes between July 1 and November 1 are not required, Smith said. But under the new law as under the old, each county and municipality is permitted to grant discounts under the schedule it used last year if it desires to do so.

The new regulations, according to the tax collector, became effective July 1. Commissioners, he said, have yet to decide whether to follow the same discount schedule as was in effect last year for early payment of taxes.

Sees Danger From Education Critics

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Sidney P. Marland, U.S. Commissioner of Education and the top man in American Education, told the annual gathering of American educators here that criticism which "was begun as a sincere attempt to goad American education into badly needed reform may result not in the reform that was sought but in a destructive, divisive spirit of repression."

Dr. Clet C. Cleetwood, superintendent of the Greenville City School system, is one of 240 educators attending the week-long 18th National Seminar of the National School Public Relations Association (NSPRA).

The focus for this year's seminar centers on finding ways to restore public confidence in the nation's schools.

In opening the seminar, Commissioner Marland warned the participants of the dangers as well as the advantages of criticism. "We have reached the point in time and events when further non-constructive criticism of our education system is no longer in any sense or for any purpose useful." He added that "an unhealthy obsession with negativism such as we are approaching in American today can only lead ultimately to unhealthy consequences."

Marland also charged school administrators to be completely honest. He urged people in school communications to "commit yourselves to expose the problem and deal with it honestly and openly so we can come to a solution... there's no alternative."

Woman Will Head Patent Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brereton Sturtevant, the first woman to be nominated examiner-in-chief of the U.S. Patent Office, says she hopes to disprove any idea that women think differently than men in professional situations.

Miss Sturtevant, 49, of Washington, is a partner in a Wilmington, Del., law firm and a long-time Republican.

If her nomination by President Nixon is confirmed by the Senate, she will serve on a quasi-judicial board that considers appeals of rejected applications for patents.

members of the Recreation Commission, gave their "moral endorsement" to the program being carried out by the Greenville Swim Club, and directed the Area and Facilities Committee to assist them in any way possible. Such assistance, it was emphasized, cannot include financial support.

Other matters discussed at the monthly meeting included a report by Lee that indications are there will be no county funds in the forthcoming fiscal year earmarked to subsidize the Recreation Department program.

Commissioners on the Policy and Procedures Committee were asked to work on plans to outline a program of fees to be charged non-residents of Greenville and to have the program ready for consideration at the August meeting.

Lee also reported that negotiations were continuing with the Greenville City School board on the possibility of purchasing Eppes Gymnasium for the Recreation Department.

The monthly report showed that in most fields of activity, attendance reports are reflecting a seasonal increase due to summer activities. One exception which Lee called a "real disappointment" is that of the Day Camp program for Retarded children. "We have an average of 13 a day and could take care of many more," he commented. "It's an excellent program, and we hope that more parents will take advantage of this program."

A Syndicate Killer Said Behaving

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer

He is in his mid 40s, has owned several Cadillacs, has a college education and can get so emotional over the plight of poor or fatherless children that he will break down and weep openly.

And he kills people. He is a member of the national crime syndicate. Police records confirm that he is or has been a "whack man," a "torpedo," a man who murders for money.

Although he consented to an interview, details of his life and what brought him to North Carolina must be kept obscure for his own protection. But state law enforcement officials don't dispute that he has rented himself out in a murder-for-hire business for many years. They can't confirm exactly how many persons he has killed, how he did them and when.

If they knew that, he probably would be up on a murder charge, or several of them. He came to North Carolina to commit a crime that was to net him several times his fee for a murder. But he was caught and convicted.

He is still in North Carolina, but apparently is behaving himself now.

This particular syndicate man says there is no way of his telling how active the Mafia is in North Carolina because he has been "out of action" for a while.

But he doubts that organized crime has reached the level it has in other states. He knows from experience that syndicate men had no wishes or plans to move outside the big metropolitan areas such as Chicago, New York, St. Louis and Miami.

"Why would the syndicate want to go down the block to make money when they've got their hands full right where they are?" he asked.

"Nyahah," he added, "why would the syndicate want to come here? Sure it infiltrates unions, trucking organizations and other legitimate businesses. Hell, we all know that."

"But unions aren't big enough here (in North Carolina). Trucking companies are pretty small compared to up North."

As far as "gangland" slayings go in North Carolina, the syndicate informant says he believes there are just a few and that they are the result of grudges and personal vendettas among small-time criminals.

Israeli courts in the occupied Gaza Strip sentenced 27 Arabs to life for guerrilla activities during 1970-71.

Prosecution Was Not Worth The City's Time

DETROIT (AP) — A judge told William Stewart Rawls it wasn't worth the city's time and money to prosecute him then pulled $10 from his wallet to pay Rawls' bus fare back to Cleveland.

Rawls, 35, in Detroit since June 30, had tried to get money from Traveler's Aid Society and county welfare, said Recorder's Court Judge Thomas L. Poindexter.

Five days ago Rawls was charged with possession of dangerous drugs, some sleeping pills.

In court Monday, Poindexter told Rawls, "To proceed against you would be necessary for the court to provide you a lawyer, which would cost $200. It is in the best interest of the city to see that your case is dismissed and you're sent back to Cleveland."

Heroin Overdose Believed Fatal

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Mecklenburg County medical examiner Dr. Hobart R. Wood is due to perform an autopsy on Private David L. McClure, 20, of Charlotte who police suspect died of a heroin overdose.

McClure, who was stationed at Fort Bragg, was found by friends on the floor of a bathroom Sunday night. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital in Charlotte.

Terrorists Hold Manufacturer

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Uruguay's Tupamaro guerrillas are holding Jorge Berenbaum, a 23-year-old textile manufacturer who is the fifth hostage kidnapped by the urban guerrilla group this year.

Among the other hostages held by the guerrillas is British Ambassador Geoffrey Jackson, who was abducted Jan. 8.

Webber

FARMVILLE — Mrs. Carrie Martin Webber, 61, died Monday. Funeral services will be held at the Farmville Funeral Home Wednesday at 2 p. m. Rev. L.B. Manning will officiate. Burial will follow in Greenwood Cemetery of Greenville.

Mrs. Webber is survived by four daughters: Mrs. Rudolph Phelps of Columbia, S. C. Mrs. Ray Sowers of Kinston, Mrs. Freddie C. West and Mrs. George H. Whitley of Tarboro; four sons: Phillip J. Webber and Cooper J. Webber of Tarboro, Kenneth R. Webber of Farmville, and Bobbie G. Webber of the U.S. Air Force, Lackland AFB, Tex.; her father, John W. Martin of Tarboro; 20 grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Machen

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Former Greenville resident, Mrs. Nell Sparrow Machen, 42, died Monday afternoon in a Norfolk hospital after a lengthy illness.

A former Greenville High School student, she is survived by her husband, C.P. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Dr. Watrous To Discuss Africa

"Africa and Africans Today" is the subject of an informal talk on that continent to be given by Dr. Blanche Watrous of ECU as part of a Young Adults Program at Moyewood Neighborhood Service Center.

On Wednesday, from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., Dr. Watrous, who has spent time in Africa, will talk about African education, family life and religion.

As part of the program, examples of African arts and crafts will be on display. Background music before and after the program will feature recorded music by Santana.

The Moyewood program, being conducted on four Wednesday nights during July in the service center, is programmed by Sheppard Memorial Library, under the supervision of Mrs. Brenda Lewis, extension librarian.

All young adults are invited to attend the program.

25 Counts

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — A grand jury has indicted Juan V. Corona on 25 counts of murder in the peach orchard slayings of transient field workers.

The Sutter County grand jury returned the indictments Monday night, cutting out a lower court preliminary hearing that had been set for today.

The 37-year-old farm labor contractor, who gathered work crews for area ranchers, remained in Sutter County Hospital, suffering from an apparent heart condition.

The 19-member jury led by foreman Robert Hunt began hearing evidence July 1. The indictment was handed to Superior Court Judge John Hauck.

No date has been set for arraignment on the new charges.

Corona was arrested May 26. He had previously entered an innocent plea to murder charges stemming from the discovery of the first 10 bodies of field workers in crude graves. Now he must enter a plea to the new charges.

Commissioners Gather Tonight

Pitt County Commissioners may give tentative approval to a budget for the 1971-1972 fiscal year at a special meeting at the Court House tonight.

Commissioners are scheduled to hold a special meeting to review the proposed budget at 7:30 p. m. The board's finance committee has been working on a budget proposal, based on various department and agency requests and estimated revenue for the past several weeks. Tonight's session will be the first time the full board reviewed the proposed budget.

Attends Chowan Orientation

Miss Donna Kay Manning of Greenville is presently attending student-orientation at Chowan College, a two year church-related institution.

Vida Blue Hopes To Break Losing Habit For AL

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — It's the Vida Blue smoke against the Dock Ellis spark tonight in baseball's 42nd All-Star Game.

The hard-throwing Blue, talk of the majors with 17 victories halfway through the season, hopes to help pitch the crestfallen American League out of an embarrassing eight-game losing streak against the Nationals, who will be dealing the controversial, hot-tempered Ellis.

Blue and Ellis match up at 8:15 p.m., EDT, before a raft-er-jammed house of 53,634 at ancient Tiger Stadium while 50 million more watch on national television.

"I'm really glad to be here, I only hope I can help the American League break this streak," said Blue, Oakland's baby-faced, 21-year-old southpaw who never saw an All-Star Game in person.

While Blue was an obvious choice to start because of his unparalleled 17-3 record, Ellis wasn't so sure he'd draw the prestigious starting assignment despite his 14-3 mark. In fact, he criticized National League Manager Sparky Anderson last week, saying he wouldn't start because "Anderson doesn't like me."

The Pittsburgh right-hander also said Anderson would never allow two black men to start the game—and since Blue is a Negro—"they wouldn't pitch two brothers against each other."

"Ellis is just a young boy, having some fun," Anderson volleyed back at a news conference Monday. "He doesn't mean to hurt anybody. And I certainly wouldn't stop anyone pitching for me just because of what he says about me."

Ellis, the Pirates' power pitcher who helped them establish a 10-game spread in the National League East prior to the All-Star break, will be backed by a lineup of fence-busters as the favored senior circuit tries to boost its 23-17-1 edge in the mid-summer showdown.

Chicago Cubs' second baseman Glenn Beckert, New York Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson and Ellis round out the starting lineup.

"I know we've got some pretty good personnel, and none of our reserves will hurt us, either," said Anderson, who pointed out he was here "for a victory—this isn't a vacation, you know."

With the headline-making Blue on the mound, and some hard-throwing pitchers in reserve—like Jim Palmer and Mike Cuellar of Baltimore and Mickey Lolich of Detroit—

American League Manager Earl Weaver has a host of strong arms to try to stoke the power-stacked Nationals.

"I think they can match anyone coming out of a bullpen," said Weaver. "In a one-game affair like this—just give me the strongest arms."

"If things go as planned, I'll use Palmer, Cuellar and Lolich two innings apiece after Blue goes the first three."

Norm Cash, the starting American League first baseman since top vote-getter Boog Powell is hurt, is one of three replacements for the injury drained junior circuit.

Cash provided some controversy last week when he announced that Weaver wouldn't choose him for the squad because the Baltimore skipper "had other guys who could play first base as well as their regular positions." He also said he didn't like to play in an All-Star game unless he was the top choice, but relented to play in Detroit since it is his home town.

Weaver said he hadn't spoken to cash since his comment but would "have a long, serious talk just before the game to straighten things out."

Centerfielder Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees will be in injured Tony Oliva's spot and Detroit's Bill Freehan will be catching for Cleveland's Ray Foose, who claimed he couldn't lift a bat.

"Foose came to me with tears in his eyes and said he wanted to play in this game more than anything in the world," said Weaver. "He wanted to — but he couldn't.

He's a hell of a competitor."

Weaver's lineup includes Minnesota second baseman Rod Carew in the lead off spot, followed by Murcer; Boston left fielder Carl Yastrzemski; Baltimore right fielder Frank Robinson; Cash; third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore; Freehan, shortstop Luis Aparicio of Boston and Blue.

Despite the latter-day shift in the balance of power as the National League wiped out an early 12-4 edge taken by the Americans, Anderson isn't so sure that this is the stronger league.

"I'll wait to tell you after tomorrow night if we're the better league," said Anderson. "And I sure hate to see Brooks Robinson again," he added referring to Robinson's great third base play that helped the Orioles wipe out his Reds in the 1970 World Series.

Shaping Up

CENTER OF ATTENTION — Coach Blanton Collier, formerly of the Cleveland Browns, looks over a portion of his College All-Star squad during practice session in North Chicago suburban Evanston. Steve Lawson (68) of Kansas, and the rest of the All-Stars, will face the Baltimore Colts in Chicago's Soldier Field July 30. (AP Wirephoto)

Louisburg Posts 12-5 Win Over East Carolina

Louisburg erupted for five runs in the sixth inning to break open a close game here last night and went on to post a 12-5 win over East Carolina University's slumping Pirates.

The loss dropped East Carolina's ledger to 6-8 in summer play and saw them fall further behind league leading University of North Carolina, who beat them in a Sunday game in Chapel Hill.

In a game reminiscent of an early meeting between the two schools at Harrington Field when the Pirates gained a wild 9-8 decision, last night contest provided a little of everything.

Louisburg jumped on ECU starter Mike Van Landingham for a first inning run when first baseman Rick Richardson slammed a homer over the left field wall.

The lead was short-lived for Louisburg, however, as ECU came up with two runs in their half of the inning. Mike Bradshaw lead off with a single to left and after the next two men were out, Mike Aldridge and Ralph Lamm drew walks. Troy Eason then got a single over second to drive in two Pirate runs.

East Carolina put runners on base in the third inning but a strike out ended the threat. Larry Walters beat an infield hit and Lamm doubled but Easton fanned for the third out.

In the fifth, the Pirates added their third run to take a 3-1 lead as Bradshaw lead off with a homer over the wall in left field.

The fireworks began in the sixth when Sasser reached on an error to open the inning. A single to left and Richardson's walk loaded the bases. After Walters robbed Al Barbour of a hit with a running catch, Van Landingham issued a free pass forcing in one run. Currin then doubled in two more runs and a bloop single by Sherwood Driver pushed across another tally. Catcher Frank Layton then lined a hard single to left to drive in the fifth run of the inning. A wild pitch moved the runners to second and third and ECU made a pitching change, bringing in Don Oxidine. Louisburg pitcher Clapp drove a liner toward third that Lamm grabbed and tossed to second base to double up Layton for the third out.

The Pirates got one of the runs back in their half of the inning when Lamm slammed a homer to left to close the gap to 6-4.

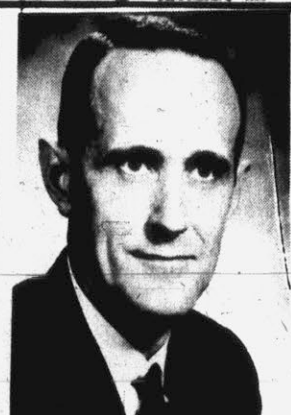

In the seventh inning, Louisburg came up with two more runs and they were never headed. Following a walk and a passed ball, Aldridge dropped Ellington's fly in right-center and one run came home. Wayne Currin followed with a single to drive in Ellington with the eighth run.

Louisburg added insult to injury in the ninth inning when they scored four more runs for their 12-run total. Etheridge and Richardson both drew walks and Barbour lined a hard single to center to bring in Etheridge. Benny Knox came in to relieve Oxidine and Ellington greeted him with a triple to deep center to bring in Richardson and Barbour. Currin walked and Layton doubled over the centerfielder's head to push across the 12th run.

The Pirates appeared to have a rally going in their half of the inning but were unable to keep it going. Leggett walked and John Narron, pinch hitting for Knox, punched a bloop single to center. A passed ball moved the runners up and Leggett scored on Bradshaw's ground out. Two strike outs killed the threat and ECU had suffered their fifth straight loss.

The Pirates try to get back into the win column on Thursday night when they entertain Wilmington at Harrington Field.

Church Loop Tourney Launched

Action began last night in the Church League Tournament with Immanuel, Piney Grove, Presbyterian and First Christian all getting opening round wins.

In National League play, Immanuel tripped Oakmont 9-7 and Piney Grove slipped by Black Jack 7-6 in nine innings. First Christian nipped Belvoir 10-9 while Presbyterian ripped St. Gabriel 20-6 in American League games. The tournament is double elimination play.

Oakmont scored two runs in the first inning to take an early lead against Immanuel. Archie Mosely singled and Danny Singleton followed with a homer for the two runs.

Immanuel came right back with three runs in their half of the inning to take the lead. After Roebuck reached on an error, Evans got a single and McIver slammed a homer to drive in the three runs. They added three more in the third and were never behind again. Hahn reached on a fielder's choice and Grimsley and Carraway got singles to drive in one run. An error on Roebuck's grounder brought in another run and a hit by Jim Smith scored Carraway.

Both teams got a run in the fourth inning and both added two more in the fifth. Immanuel got their two runs in the fifth on a single by Grimsley and a homer by Roebuck while Oakmont put together an error and two singles for their two runs. Oakmont was able to close the gap to within one run in the last frame but Immanuel managed to survive the rally for the one-run win.

Black Jack got two runs in the third inning to grab an early lead against Piney Grove. A single by Dixon, a fielder's choice on Harold's grounder and a hit by J. T. Mills scored one run and a single by Steve Peele brought in the second run. Piney Grove tied the game up with two in their half of the inning. Avery singled and Mills followed with a hit. Successive hits by Nichols and Meeks pushed across the runs.

In the fifth, Adams led off for Black Jack and reached on an error. Harold singled and Mills sacrificed Adams up. Peele singled in two runs and a walk and fielder's choice brought in another.

Piney Grove regained the lead in the sixth with three runs. A single by Mills, an error on Darden's hit and a homer by Meeks brought in the runs. Black Jack had scored once in the sixth to tie the lead.

After Piney Grove scored in the seventh to tie the game up, both teams failed to get a run in the eighth. In Piney Grove's half of the ninth, Allen got a two-out homer to win.

the sixth-inning runs following a single by Smith. In the seventh, Wilson got a hit, Hunt followed with a safety and Davis tripled in two runs. A single by Williams brought in the tenth run and Belvoir was unable to score in their half of the inning.

First Presbyterian got all they needed in the first inning of their game with St. Gabriel. Wilson's single and a homer by Moore accounted for two runs and singles by Glidewell, Owen, Jackson and Beddingfield brought in three more runs. They added four in the second on doubles by Wilson, Moore and Glidewell and a triple by Owen.

Five more runs came across in the fourth and four in the fifth for Presbyterian. They then added two in the sixth for their total of 20. St. Gabriel got two in the fourth and four in the fifth for their total of six.

Ali No Longer Enjoys Fighting

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Muhammad Ali, who as Cassius Clay used to shout "I am the greatest" to all who would listen, lay on his training table and stared at the Astrohall ceiling.

The gregarious, youthful exuberance of another time was gone. Ali is older now, quieter, more reflective.

"Life is a series of states, like the seasons," Ali said almost dreamily. "In the summer the trees are green and full of leaves. I'm going through another stage."

"When I first came along and got some money, a new Cadillac was the first thing I wanted. That was the most important thing to me."

"In every state of development different things are the most important. At one time, a certain toy is the most valuable thing in a child's life. In another stage, the child will throw the toy away."

"After the Cadillac, I wanted a mansion and I have that too. Now all my desires have been satisfied. So what used to give me pleasure doesn't give pleasure anymore."

What Ali was saying was he's getting tired of fighting. It's not a game anymore and it's no longer fun. He's marching to a different drummer.

"I'm looking to defeat poverty, slavery and injustice," he said. "These are greater things than winning a fight."

"I'm looking for security. I don't want a Cadillac now, I want a housing project."

Fighting is just a job now, Ali says. "I got a bill from my lawyers for $27,000," he said, "That ain't no fun."

Ali, who opened training here Monday for his 12-round fight July 26 against former sparring partner Jimmy Ellis, also said he was past his prime and didn't enjoy training anymore.

CONTINUES TONIGHT
The Ladies Softball League Tournament, a double elimination affair, continues tonight at 7:30 with Little Mint, the regular season champs, taking on Piggly Wiggly. In the second game, set to begin at 8:40, Coke will meet Wachovia.

Slow-Pitch Tourney Set

The District Three Slow Pitch Softball Tournament will get underway Friday, 7 p.m. at Meadowbrook Park in Rocky Mount.

Eight women's teams and 27 men's teams will be competing for a chance to travel to the area tournament in Roanoke Rapids on Aug. 9. Teams from Greenville, Williamston, Jacksonville, Tarboro, Goldsboro, Scotland Neck and Nashville will participate in the district competition.

Games are to be played at 7, 8, 9, and 10 p.m. each weekday. On Friday, July 16, games will begin every hour from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m. Semifinal action will begin Thursday, July 29 and progress up to the finals on July 31.

The tournament is sponsored jointly by the Rocky Mount Jaycees, Jay-C-Ettes, and the City Recreation Department. All proceeds will go to Jaycee and Jay-C-Ette community projects.

No 'Rose Garden' Intended For Training A Marine

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer
PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — "This is no rose garden." That's how Maj. Gen. Carl W. Hoffman describes the Marine Corps Recruit Training Depot on this palmetto-fringed island on the South Carolina coast.

Few of the more than 4,000 recruits in boot training here would quarrel with the assessment offered by Hoffman, who took over in May as commanding general.

Thirty-nine young Leather-necks were hospitalized July 3 with kidney problems blamed on excessive exercise ordered by a drill instructor.

The recruits told a Marine investigating officer the drill instructor exercised them up to 15 minutes at a time on several occasions over a 36-hour period. The exercise broke down muscle tissues and affected the kidneys.

Regulations prohibit the exercising of a recruit during the first two weeks of training for longer than five minutes at a time, with a 30-second rest required halfway through. The recruits had been training two days when they were hospitalized.

The drill instructor has been assigned other duties, away from recruit training, and Co. Theodore Metzger, head of the recruit training regiment here, says the DI probably will face punitive action.

Metzger expects most of the recruits to return to duty but some may be discharged.

The incident stirred unhappy memories of a 1966 tragedy in which six recruits drowned in one of the island's tidal creeks. A drill instructor, deciding his platoon needed extra discipline, had taken the recruits on an unauthorized night march.

Largely because of the drownings, the Marine Corps today is highly sensitive to charges that drill instructors are allowed to mistreat recruits under the guise of training.

The Marine Corps says the death march resulted in more controls and restrictions being placed on DIs. Those controls and restriction are in effect today, Hoffman said, but boot training remains otherwise almost the same.

Recruits at Parris Island, one of two such depots run by the Marines, put in 16-hour days filled with the sound of shouting drill instructors wearing Smokey-the-bear felt hats and with constant marching on asphalt parade grounds.

A recruit at Parris Island goes almost nowhere by himself. During his nine weeks on the island, he is allowed no weekend passes, goes to no movies on-base, may visit the base exchange only with the platoon, and talks with fellow recruits only during an hour of free time before taps each night.

Every moment of a recruit's day is planned, from the time he brushes his teeth in the morning until three DIs assigned to the platoon put the recruits to bed.

If the training on the island remains essentially the same as that offered for the past 30 years, the facilities have improved. The quonset huts and tents that housed tens of thousands of recruits during and after World War II are gone. In their place are modern new barracks, some air conditioned.

"We basically have the same policy and philosophy that we have always had," said Metzger, who passed through Parris Island as a recruit in 1944. "Our basic philosophy is that service in the Marines is tough and that the training has to be tough."

Other branches of the Armed Forces may make training more comfortable for servicemen—beer in the barracks, go-go dancing with dinner—but the Marine Corps has no inclinations in that direction.

Hoffman and Metzger say the Marine Corps is determined to "preserve the image of being tough but reasonable."

Metzger and Hoffman say recruits are encouraged to report any mistreatment. But because many recruits fear their remarks may backfire, most say nothing.

"Whenever you are dealing with humans," said Capt. Mark Arnold, a public affairs officer, "you have the possibility of one of them making a mistake and doing something he shouldn't. Drill instructors are human and some of them occasionally react improperly to the situation. Only a robot wouldn't make such mistakes."

In 1969—figures for 1970 were not available—three drill instructors here received general courts-martial and all were convicted of various offenses.

An additional 31 drill instructors were tried by lesser courts-martial and 14 were convicted, the Marine Corps said.

Offenses might range from punching a recruit to forcing him to run up and down the stairs to the point of exhaustion, Arnold said.

Worry Clinic Many Persons Still 'Myopic'

Faith was a Quaker wife who would have been restless and unhappy throughout her marriage if it hadn't been for her daily newspaper! But her husband changed her outlook by cutting out one of these "Worry Clinic" cases and pinning it to her pillow. Indeed, editors tell me this is a common occurrence!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph. D., M. D.
Case R-505: Faith W., aged 28, is a Quaker.
Recently I occupied the pulpit of her church, and afterwards I was entertained at a pitch-in dinner.
"Dr. Crane," she confided to me, "my husband and I follow your column faithfully."
"And we often discuss it after we go to bed at night."

"For he started me reading it by cutting out your 'Worry Clinic' and pinning it to my pillow."
"We were not very well adjusted in our first couple of years of marriage."
"For nobody had given us the medical advice that we found in some of your sex booklets."
"Now we are happier than during our honeymoon!"

Sex Myopia
Mankind has been fetered by sexual myopia, ever since the time of Adam and Eve.
That means sexual near-sightedness.
For couples have not realized the basic sex differences in the anatomy, as well as the psychology, of husband versus wife.

Until recent generations, we doctors didn't even have access to dead human bodies for dissection purposes!

And our lack of other scientific tools (microscopes, test tubes, etc.) prevented earlier generations from access to the modern facts.

Thus, married couples of antiquity blundered their way to happiness or stayed married for the sake of the children, though there was often little erotic harmony between husband and wife.

Rachel of the Bible was thus a nagging wife and so was Hannah, the mother of the prophet Samuel.

Maggie does Jiggs, in the cartoon strips.
Until this "Worry Clinic" started, millions of wives were also unduly neurotic at the age of 40, for they dreaded the menopause till they often drove themselves into mental sanitariums.

Now that terror is largely gone!
Husbands also held a totally wrong notion about the sexual passion of women, for prostitutes since the time of Abraham had hoodwinked men. For prostitutes quickly learned to put on an act, which involved both visual and auditory signs of wild eroticism.

That flattered the sex-ego of their male patrons, leading to bigger tips and future monkey business.

Now we know that women are primarily maternal creatures and only secondarily "sweetheart" or passionate mates.

When the first baby arrives, they divert at least 75 percent of their affection and time to the new infant (often 95 percent say many irate husbands).

But a modern wife can still function as a one-wife harem and thus hold her mate's undying devotion through the Golden Wedding Day.

So send for the booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Students On Dean's List

The following list of students from this area were on the spring semester dean's list at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

To be on the dean's list, a student must be taking a full academic load of at least 15 hours, and make no grade below a C. The grades in all courses must average a 3.0 (or B) quality point average.

Schools and Colleges in which students can qualify for the dean's list are the College of Arts and Sciences, the General College, the School of Business Administration, the School of Education, the School of Journalism, and, in Health Affairs, Dental Hygiene, Physical Therapy, Nursing and Pharmacy.

School of Business: John Lloyd Watson of Bethel; School of Dental Hygiene: Emily Freida Holt of Greenville; School of Arts and Sciences: Robert Phillip Michaels of Bethel, Robert R. Musselwhite II, and Wayland Robert Garris of Winterville, Ernest Cordell Avery, Barry Michael Billica, Michael Sharpe Mills, Margaret Blow Scales, and Lala Carr Steelman of Greenville; General College: Ernest R. Carraway Jr., William Shaw Corbett Jr., Clifton Hugh Edwards III, Frank Trent Hill, Jr., Katrina Anne Jolly, and Joshua Hines Weeks of Greenville.

Wuanah, Tex., was named for Quannah Parker, the last chief of the Comanche Indian tribe.

Abraham's wife was almost insanely jealous.

Cleopatra was a good psychologist who learned to entrap men like Caesar and Marc Antony, to promote her royal ambitions.

But it wasn't till about the year 1933 A.D. that we doctors discovered the precise day in the month when a wife would most likely get pregnant.

Even yet, most wives seldom learn the medical techniques for complete erotic satisfaction.
Which is why we find so many jittery modern women who swill down hard liquor; suck on cigarettes or nag their mates as

Opening lead: Jack of ♠
Mrs. Margaret Wales, famous Dallas lecturer and bridge instructor who has been associated with my organization for many years, recently returned from a round the world bridge cruise on the SS Rotterdam. Sponsored by Travel with Goren, Mrs. Wales conducted a full program of bridge activities spanning the 90 day trip.
Today, we present a hand where Mrs. Wales as South, brought home a six diamond contract, despite an adverse division in both of her suits.
West opened the jack of spades and dummy's queen won the trick. At first glance it appeared that declarer was a strong favorite on the deal. If either minor suit split evenly, or if the queen of diamonds dropped on the first lead—then 12 tricks were there for the taking.

Mrs. Wales decided that tho the outlook was indeed favorable, she would try a simple preliminary maneuver before broaching the trump suit. It appeared safe to cash the high spades since there were nine cards outstanding in the suit. She proceeded to play the king, on which she discarded a club, as both opponents followed suit.

The ace of spades came next and East found himself in an unpleasant predicament. South's failure to discard a heart suggested that declarer was void in that suit. This tended to be confirmed by the fact that declarer had shown a strong two suiter in bidding. If East ruffed in he was subject to an overruff and the likely loss of his potential trump trick. Inasmuch as two club sluffs were not apt to benefit South markedly since the latter was marked with great length in that suit, East chose to discard a heart.

East's play proved to be very revealing to the declarer. His reluctance to ruff suggested that he had something to protect in trumps. So reasoning, Mrs. Wales led a diamond to the ace as both opponents followed. She reentered dummy with the king of clubs and played another diamond. When East followed with the ten, South covered with the jack. West showed out and the king of diamonds dropped the queen next.

The ace of clubs was cashed and West showed out again. A club trick was conceded to East but declarer claimed the balance and her slam.

Mafia Known Buying Into N.C. Businesses

By TOM WELLS
Associated Press Writer
Law enforcement officials have learned that the Mafia is secretly buying into legitimate business in North Carolina.

Max Bryan, intelligence chief for the State Bureau of Investigation, said his agency "was lucky" and stumbled onto the fact that the Mafia, or Cosa Nostra, was involved in the purchase of one multimillion-dollar company in North Carolina.

But it took the SBI at least six months, he said, to trace ownership to a front man for the Marcellus family of the Mafia in New Orleans. Bryan declined to give further information about the company.

SBI Director Charles Dunn said the company is part of a pyramid of corporations, all of which can be traced to the same Marcellus family "associate."

The Cosa Nostra also was involved in the purchase of two of the state's major hotels, both in the same town, according to information from other law enforcement agencies both in and out of the state.

They said the hotels were purchased by a realty company as part of a deal that involved the sale of a bank.

The transaction includes several property transfers apparently made to obscure a $9 million profit the mob made on the deal illegally, the officials said. They added the purchase of the hotels involved a Mafia front man who is thought to operate out of Las Vegas.

Dunn says another North Carolina business is owned by an individual allegedly involved in loan sharking for the Scalish family in Cleveland, Ohio.

New York authorities recently paid an unpublicized visit to North Carolina to warn the SBI that the Mafia plans to step up its efforts to become entrenched in the cigarette business by buying into legitimate firms.

The SBI director says the New York-based Colombo family of the Cosa Nostra, whose boss was recently gunned down and wounded in New York, is trying to cut the middle man out of its cigarette bootlegging operation by purchasing tobacco distributorships.

Cigarettes, purchased cheaply in North Carolina because of the low sales tax, are sold illegally in New York where there is a high state tax.

Another mob connection uncovered by police in North Carolina is the sale of sports betting odds to the state's organized system of bookies. The odds information comes to North Carolina from the Mafia networks in Las Vegas, New York and Miami.

While no oath-taking Cosa Nostra members are known for certain to reside in the state, several are known to come here each year, according to the SBI intelligence division.

"There are about a couple of dozen such visits a year," Bryan said, "but for what reason we don't know." Most of the Cosa Nostra visits have been one-man journeys, but on one occasion two of the mobsters appeared in the state traveling together, Bryan said.

Information on those visits came from informants, Bryan said, and news stories pinpointing a specific visit would reveal the identity of the informants.

Bryan said the SBI usually doesn't find out about the visit until the Mafia members already have left the state.

Police do not believe the Cosa Nostra wants to organize North Carolina's non-Mafia criminals who operate their own gangs.

The North Carolina gangsters form a loose association with locally powerful criminals in other southern states to make up what has become known in some law enforcement circles as the "Dixie Mafia."

GREENSBORO (AP) — About 3,000 persons are expected in Greensboro Wednesday for the four-day state convention of the Church of God of Prophecy.

Bishop M. T. Linkous of High Point will preside. Other bishops attending will come from Canada and Virginia.

Bishop Linkous will appoint 139 pastors at the close of the meeting Saturday.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cases of ringworm, skin infections and warts can result from exposure of children's feet to excessive heat and moisture when they go barefoot in the summer. Dr. Seymour C. This precaution prevents minor infections from becoming major ones.

RALEIGH (AP) — The House shouted quick approval Monday night of Senate changes to a bill that would sharply boost tuition charges for non-resident students at state-supported universities.

In its vote, the House disregarded the plea by Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, that it not accept a portion of the measure that would permit the schools to charge in-state tuition to athletes on scholarships.

The bill was brought to the House for approval after it had passed the Senate earlier in the evening.

High told the House that accepting the Senate amendment for athletes "would mean we are giving more consideration to an all-American football player than we are to a genius in nuclear physics."

"It would stigmatize the state," High added.

Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford, agreed with High after Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville, sponsor of the bill moved that the Senate changes be accepted.

The Senate amendments would reduce the amount of the tuition increases this year, below the levels the House approved several weeks ago.

The measure is estimated to boost state revenues for the next biennium by more than $15 million.

Under the Senate changes, the tuition fees for non-resident undergraduate students at units of the University of North Carolina would be increased from $950 to $1,300 this year and to $1,800 next year.

Non-residents at other state-supported universities would pay similar increases.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A "Turn in a Pusher" program has attracted 2,930 calls from tipsters since it began operating less than six months ago.

Informers remain anonymous and are paid for tips that lead to conviction of drug pushers.

The Greater Tampa Chamber of Commerce and businesses which contributed funds began the TIP bounty system for this city of 318,000 in February.

James Cusack, a former FBI agent who developed the idea and is director of the program, says 37 persons have been arrested and three convicted as a result of TIP information.

In addition, police says they are watching 262 suspects named by informants.

Informants call their tips into a secret office manned by civilians and get from $100 to $500 in cash for information that leads to a conviction.

Strict anonymity is enforced. The callers are warned not to give their names and are assigned a code name instead.

A total of $1,000 has been paid to four persons. The amounts are set by a TIP committee, which considers the extent of a pusher's activities and the age group he was dealing with.

Once a pusher is convicted, the reward money awaits another call from the code-named informant.

Cash is placed in an envelope, Cusack said in an interview, and "we make arrangements for the delivery. We don't want to know who the informant is. We'll make a drop or leave it at a general delivery or something like that. People are interested in that type of thing—code names, secret drops. There's a little 'I Spy' in all of us."

Sponsoring businesses have contributed $7,900 for rewards.

Information received from a tipster goes directly to Tampa police or the Hillsborough County sheriff's department.

"People are great," Cusack said. "It's amazing what people will do for a small count of money. Some cops even believe mothers will turn in their kids for the right price."

Army Reservists Now In Training

The 398th Supply Co. (heavy materials-general support), an Army Reserve unit from Greenville, is currently undergoing annual training at Ft. Stewart, Ga.

Commanded by Capt. Ivey C. Gentry, the 398th spends two weeks each year training under simulated battlefield conditions while performing its primary mission of supplying and maintaining heavy equipment.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N. C.

Variable cloudiness Thursday through Saturday with scattered afternoon and evening showers. High temperatures in the east will run in the upper 80s.

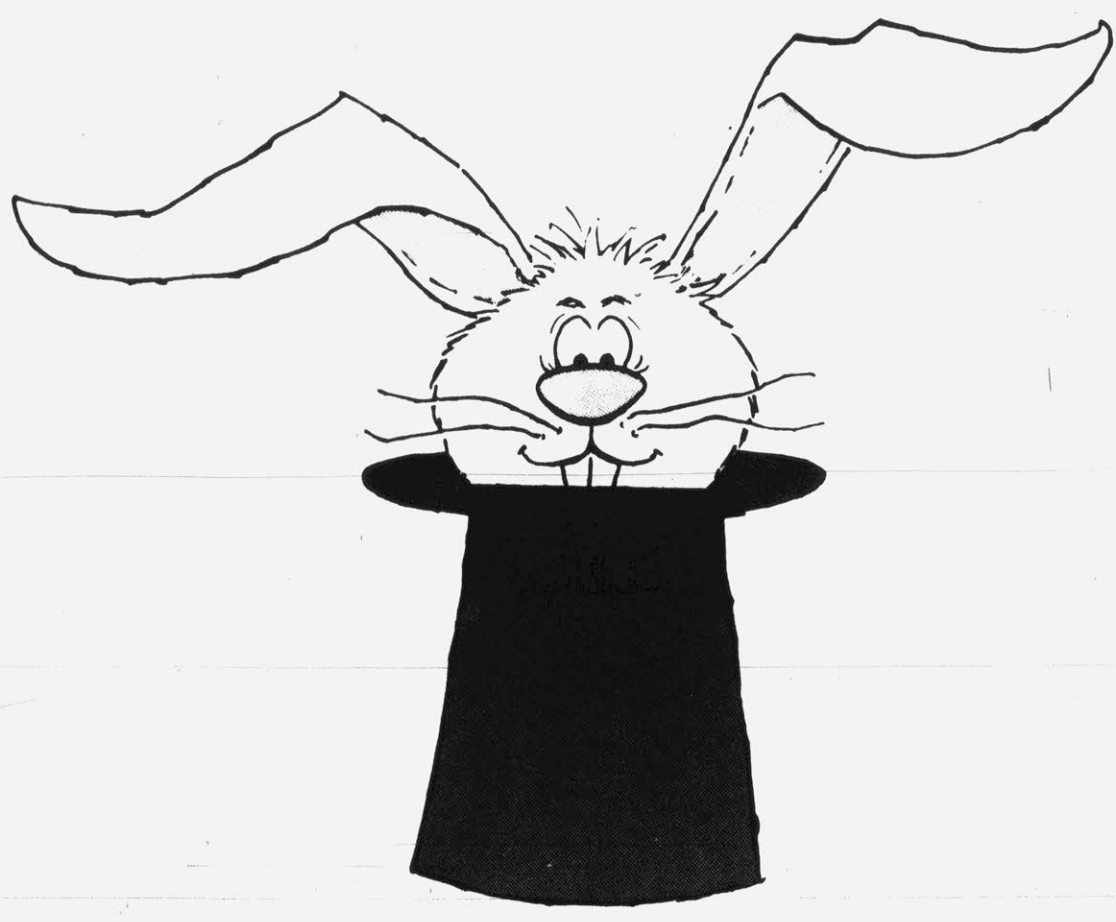

Dental Woe For Typical Youths

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dental statistics show that nearly fifty per cent of all children under the age of 15 have never visited a dentist. The result is that the typical 15-year-old already has half his teeth ruined by decay.

The statistics, collected by the school of dentistry at the University of California, San Francisco, also shows there are only 47 dentists per 100,000 persons in the United States.

Radarange
MICROWAVE OVEN
MADE BY Amana®

It's a miracle worker!

Cooks cool. The oven never heats up! Only the food in the Radarange heats up. You can even put your hand on the side after you take out delicious roast. No pots and pans to clean up! You never cook in them. You use only glassware, plastic or paper products.

EASIER TO OPERATE
than the oven you now have!

All you do is put the food in; close the door; set the timer and push the start switch!

The RADARANGE cooks a 5 lb. roast in 35 minutes; bacon in 4 minutes; a hamburger in 60 seconds; a hot dog in 20 seconds!
Reduces actual cooking time by 75%
