Apollo Countdown Is Going Smoothly

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The launch team overcame a battery problem during the night and the countdown for Apollo 15, man's most ambitious moon mission, progressed smoothly today toward Monday's launch.

Richard Proffitt, spacecraft test coordinator, reported one of two batteries used to trigger explosive devices in the lunar module failed during activation. He said magnesium chips were found in the battery, and it and a companion unit were replaced. He said a check at the manufacturing plant, Electro-Storage Batteries, Raleigh, N.C., showed that the two batteries were part of a lot that were assembled near a magnesium-shearing operation. The replacement batteries came from a different lot.

The explosive devices are used to separate the two sections of the lunar ship on liftoff from the moon, for landing gear deployment and for fuel tank pressurization. The problem did not delay the countdown, and officials reported all other preparations were on schedule. Throughout the night, the launch pad crews worked on the command ship and lunar module and installed a fiberglass cover designed to protect the command vehicle during the upward thrust through the atmosphere on liftoff.

Most of the preparatory work on the Saturn 5 rocket was completed early in the six-day countdown. But the booster will be of prime concern in the final hours when more than 800,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen are pumped aboard.

The launch is set for 9:34 a.m. EDT Monday. The astronauts—David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden—planned several hours in spaceship simulators today, brushing up on many critical maneuvers planned during the flight.

Among the most crucial are the initial linkup with the lunar lander about 3½ hours after launch, firing into lunar orbit, separation of the lander and the descent to the surface by Scott and Irwin, liftoff from the moon and rendezvous and docking with the command vessel, firing out of lunar orbit, and reentry through earth's atmosphere.

Donald K. Slayton, director of flight crew operations, characterized the practice session as "a final refresher for what we expect to be a normal mission."

The astronauts are expected to make proficiency flights in T38 jet planes Saturday.

Wednesday night, after a day in the simulators, Scott and Irwin discussed their planned activities on the moon with six members of their scientific advisory group. Because of a medical isolation in effect, the astronauts talked with the scientists from behind a glass partition.

To reduce the possibility of the spacemen catching a disease or illness, only 102 persons are permitted direct contact with them. All have been immunized against nine common diseases.

Scott and Irwin are to land July 30 at the base of the 15,000-foot Apennine Mountains. During a record 67 hours on the surface, they are to make three driving excursions with the new moon buggy, exploring the mountains, a canyon and craters, some of which may be volcanic.

Raids In Belfast

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Troops and police raided homes in Roman Catholic sections of Belfast and seven other towns in Northern Ireland today, seeking members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Authorities said "a number of people" were rounded up for questioning. The raids began before dawn and continued into the morning.

The army said it was seeking terrorists primarily, rather than arms and explosives, because of the recent intensification in the IRA's campaign of violence.

An army spokesman said that before the raids British patrols in Belfast came under "moderately heavy" fire three times and fired back twice. He said two men had been found with bullet wounds and one of them had been tarred and feathered, a customary IRA punishment for defectors.

M. S. Jones Jr., division superintendent at Rocky Mount, said that Seaboard Coast Line will file formal application with the N. C. Utilities Commission for authority to implement the Goldsboro Mobile Agency concept on a six-month trial basis within the near future.

Tampa Bay Area Again Hit By Huge Fish Kills

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Massive new fish kills cover Tampa Bay again in a probable recurrence of Red Tide, dormant the past week after sending tons of foul-smelling marine carcasses ashore. Marine Patrol officers said extensive analytical tests would be made on water samples to determine if it is Red Tide and how concentrated.

Patrol Lt. Ray Guess, who flew over the west coast inlet Thursday, spotted the armies of floating fish and said the water appeared red again. "I don't know whether the city can take much more of this," said Lloyd Dove, public works administrator.

The new outbreak comes on the heels of a month-old bout with the fish-killing tide in the same waters.

No new kills had been reported in the bay for nearly a week and work crews were confident they were nearing the end of an exhaustive cleanup job. In fact, the Marine Patrol had just removed an oil boom used as a net to trap fish outside Bayous. It was taken out for cleaning, but ordered back into the Bay immediately to block inlets from new kills.

Natural Resources Director Randolph Hodges dispatched cleanup crews to the scene.

"I've sent a report on the fish kill to the Governor and the members of the Cabinet," he said. "That's all we're going to do at this time, plus putting out the booms. There isn't much else we can do."

Cost Of Living Reportedly In Sharpest Rise In 15 Months

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs climbed six-tenths of one per cent in June for the sharpest rise in 15 months, the government said today in a report that spelled bad news for President Nixon's efforts to curb inflation.

Grocery prices showed the sharpest rise, nine-tenths of one per cent, for the month, said the report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Transportation costs were up seven-tenths of one per cent, housing six-tenths, medical care four-tenths and recreation three-tenths, it said.

The over-all increase pushed the Consumer Price Index up to 121.5 of its 1967 base of 100. This meant it took $12.15 last month for every $10.00 worth of typical family purchases four years ago.

The six-tenths of one per cent rise was the biggest since April 1970. On a seasonally adjusted basis, the bureau figured the rise at five-tenths of one per cent, the second sharpest increase on that basis on seven months.

The report said the rise in living costs in the second quarter of the year was 5.3 on an annual rate, a quickening of the pace of inflation from the first quarter of the year.

There were price increases for poultry, fruits, vegetables, beef and dairy products that were larger than usual for June, the bureau said.

Egg prices fell sharply and pork prices showed a smaller than usual increase for the month.

The bureau also reported that average earnings for some 45 million rank-and-file workers rose $1.74 to $127.57 per week in June and that after deduction for federal taxes and the rise in living costs purchasing power was still seven-tenths of one per cent higher.

The report said it was the sixth straight month that workers' purchasing power rose and was 1.8 per cent above a year earlier, but still one per cent below the record high of September 1968.

About 41,500 workers with cost-of-living clauses based on the government index will get pay increases based on the June report ranging from one to nine cents per hour figured over varying period.

Another 4,500 workers with cost-of-living labor clauses will get no further increases because they have already received the maximum set in their contracts.

New Interim Chairman Of Democrats Unsure About Fulltime Role

RALEIGH (AP)—A 54-year-old Raleigh man who is taking over as interim chairman of the North Carolina Democratic party says he doesn't know whether he would want the job on a fulltime basis.

Joe Yates, state party treasurer for the past 18 months, was appointed Thursday by Gov. Bob Scott to temporarily succeed Eugene Simmons, who announced his resignation from the chairmanship. The job pays no salary.

Yates, an executive in the Superior Stone Co. of Raleigh, will serve until the Democratic Executive Committee meets to name a successor. The next meeting is scheduled for January.

Asked if he would be interested in the chairmanship fulltime, Yates replied, "I don't know. I have a job to do with Superior Stone and it takes my time."

A native of Wilmington and a veteran of World War II, Yates has never held public office. He attended the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1939 with Simmons.

"We've been friends for years," Yates said.

He served as financial manager for Raleigh attorney J. Melville Broughton in his campaign against Bob Scott for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1968.

"I threw my support to Scott in the fall campaign," Yates said.

He will have to make plans for two forthcoming Democratic fund-raising events in North Carolina. One is the Downeast Jamboree at Morehead City Sept. 17-18. The other is the Vance-Aycok dinner in Asheville in October.

Yates was appointed party treasurer 18 months ago when Simmons was named party chairman.

Simmons, 54, said he expects to begin working in Georgia next week as a tobacco auctioneer. Asked if he planned to seek an elective or appointive office, he replied:

"I haven't made up my mind. I expect to come back to Rocky Mount in October. By then I'll decide if I'm going to run for any political office."

Simmons, who lives in Tarboro and operates a tobacco auction warehouse in Rocky Mount, has served as reading clerk of the Senate for the last five legislative terms.

Simmons was Edgecombe County manager of Scott's gubernatorial campaign in 1968 and subsequently was nominated by Scott for the party chairmanship.

As chairman he presided over implementation of major party reforms designed to bring more blacks, young persons and women into the party.

In 1940, Simmons was the youngest county manager in the state when he headed the gubernatorial campaign of J. Melville Broughton Sr. in Edgecombe County. Twelve years later he was Edgecombe manager in the successful gubernatorial campaign of the late William B. Umstead.

Simmons was a member of the state Board of Conservation and Development under Govs. Umstead, Luther Hodges and Terry Sanford. He also has served on the Cape Hatteras and state seashore commissions.

Viet Cong Raid A Headquarters

SAIGON (AP)—Moving under cover of a heavy barrage, Viet Cong sappers early today attacked the headquarters in Vietnam for the major new South Vietnamese drive in Cambodia. The American military compound in the base was also hit.

Reports from the base at Tay Ninh, 55 miles northwest of Saigon, said four South Vietnamese perimeter guards were killed and two South Vietnamese soldiers and four American military policemen were wounded.

A 65-round mortar barrage hit the base, and then about 15 of the enemy broke through the barbed wire.

Military police at the base said the sappers' rocket grenades and satchel charges wrapped in banana leaves damaged about four barracks in the U.S. military police compound and two U.S. UH1 helicopters at an adjoining landing pad.

The MPs said two of the attackers were killed. The target was believed to be the tactical operations center of the South Vietnamese 18th Infantry Division, on the other side of the base, but the sappers never made it.

Van Heflin Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Van Heflin, whose craftsmanship brought him an Oscar and a reputation as "an actor's actor," died today, 6½ weeks after suffering a heart attack while swimming.

The 60-year-old actor died at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital where he had been unconscious since suffering the heart attack June 6 in the swimming pool at his apartment.

Death came at 6:43 a.m. and was attributed to heart damage from the June attack. He had been in critical condition the entire time.

$1 Million Suit Is Filed Over Pitt Shooting

A complaint, filed in United States District Court July 6, is seeking $500,000 in general damages and $500,000 in punitive damages from a former Edgecombe County Deputy and the present Edgecombe sheriff.

The complaint is in connection with a shooting incident that occurred in Pitt County July 9, 1970.

The complaint alleges that former Edgecombe County deputy Henry G. Norris shot Fred Jasper Gardner Jr. of Pinetops to death after stopping the Gardner car on N.C. 43 about six miles west of Greenville.

Norris, allegedly had been in pursuit of the Gardner car for several miles prior to the time he stopped it in Pitt County.

The complaint alleges that Norris shot after Gardner reached to his back pocket to produce his drivers license and registration as he was ordered to do by the officer, and charges Norris's acts "were committed unlawfully, willfully, intentionally and with malice..."

The complaint further alleges, "These acts were executed by the defendant acting under color of his authority as a deputy sheriff of the County of Edgecombe ... and as vice-principal of the defendant Sheriff Tom P. Bardin, who is under North Carolina Law responsible for his deputy's acts."

A coronor's jury a month following the shooting death ruled the shooting "unintentional" and recommended that no criminal action be taken against the Edgecombe County officer.

Observers in Cairo believed one result of the coup reversal and the new crackdown on the Communists would be an early decision by Numairi to bring his country into the Arab Federation that Egypt, Syria and Libya are forming. He had stayed out because of Communist operation.

Numairi telephoned President Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Libyan strongman Muammar Kaddafi Thursday night to assure them he was once more firmly in control.

Omdurman Radio said military commanders throughout the country sent messages of allegiance to Numairi, who is a major general, and told him they were hunting the Communists.

It also broadcast the names of 19 officers, including three colonels, who were "machine gunned en masse" by their rebel captors before the collapse of the coup Thursday night.

Five Persons Killed In Louisiana Motel Blaze

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Five persons including a security guard who had gone to the aid of guests were killed today, officials said, when fire broke out in the 17-story Downtown Howard Johnson's Motel.

More than 450 persons were evacuated as smoke and flames billowed from the 12th floor.

Two persons were injured critically, two others reported hurt less seriously.

Charles Simon, a second security guard at the hotel, said he and the guard who was killed went upstairs from the first floor and began the evacuation.

"He brought the people to the elevator," Simon said. "I took them down. I was only able to make two trips, because the smoke got too bad. When I went back up after the second trip I couldn't find him."

The Rev. Peter Rogers, fire department chaplain, said he gave last rites to five people. "It's so sad," he said. "So damned sad."

The fire was apparently confined to the 12th floor and was declared under control within an hour.

Eighty-eight firemen reported to help fight the blaze. One survivor was Paul Hyde, 23, Lafayette, Ind., who swung from the 12th floor balcony trapeze-like to the floor below.

"There was really no choice," he said after coming down the interior fire escape from the 11th floor. "It looks more perilous from down here," he said, looking up.

Anthony Stemke, the assistant night manager of the hotel, said the fire is believed to have started in room 1218. He said he was on the 15th floor helping a sick person at the time the alarm sounded.

Now, The Tab

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two weeks of antiwar demonstrations here in April and May cost the government and business $7.5 million, Congress has been told.

Most of the expense was for police overtime and extra guards, the House Internal Security Committee was told Thursday by John M. Stratton, one of its investigators.

The District of Columbia estimated its total cost at $3.1 million and the Board of Trade said lost business and additional security arrangements cost $1.8 million.

The Defense Department said it spent $880,000 to move in troops to assist police.

Among other government agencies, the General Services Administration reported spending $56,000 for extra pay for guards, the Park Service estimated its cost at $685,000 including $180,000 in damage to park facilities and grounds, the Capitol police spent $200,000 for extra guards and overtime pay.

Skilled Pilots Bringing Bibles To Remote Areas

By ROYAL BRIGHTBILL, WAXHAW, N.C. (UPI) — A single-engine aircraft expertly settles on the first few yards of a narrow, 640-foot strip hacked from the rain forest of Ecuador. Somewhere in the Philippines, a helicopter lifts from a primitive pad. In Peru, a roaring World War II amphibian strains to break the liquid grip of the high altitude waters of Lake Cushtilacocho. The letters J-A-A-R-S painted on the tails of all three uniquely-suited aircraft link them to perhaps the most unusual "air force" in the world. They are airships of the Jungle Aviation and Radio Service, a technical support arm of Wycliffe Bible Translators Inc. Their home base is here, about 25 miles south of Charlotte. Wycliffe Bible Translators Inc. has as its mission the teaching of the Word of God, as it is written in the Bible, in the native tongues of the world's estimated 160 million people who have no written language. Pilots Very Skilled JAARS is responsible for getting the translators in and out of many of their assignments, keeping them supplied, maintaining communication with far-flung bases and finding isolated tribes. JAARS pilots are a highly-skilled, highly-motivated breed of missionary-aviators who are asked to fly over forbidding terrain, from the Himalayan Mountains to the Brazilian jungles, land on a postage stamp and not look for a paycheck. The 23-year-old air service, like its parent Wycliffe, is a "Faith Mission." "We operate on gifts," said JAARS personnel director Merrill Piper, a 48-year-old flier with experience in several South American countries. "There is no agency, government or non-government, that gives us anything. There is no denomination, no one church that finances us." JAARS grew in 23 years from a one airplane, one-country operation in Peru to its present fleet of 34 aircraft operating from 11 bases in nine countries from Nepal in the Himalayas to Nigeria in Africa. Never A Fatality The busy air services — it flew the equivalent of 16 times around the world last year — has never had an operational fatality. "We do our technical best, and we leave the rest to the Lord," said Ed Boyer, flier and office director of the Summer Institute of Linguistics (Wycliffe's overseas name) in Washington. To qualify as a JAARS pilot, a man must have a minimum of 300 hours flying time, a commercial license, be in good health and possess an airframe and powerplant (mechanic) license.

He must also be spiritually motivated, have a working knowledge of the Bible and pass a 10-hour intensive linguistic course. JAARS pilots routinely have to land on short strips such as the 640-foot slash in a jungled valley at Theauca Village in Ecuador, where 15 years ago some of the tribesmen killed five missionaries. Piper said two of the killers have become leading evangelists among their people and recently visited the center here. They were accompanied by Rachel Saint, sister of one of the slain missionaries, who went into the village to carry out the Bible translation work. "One of the killers told me, 'if five men gave their lives to give me God's word, I'm willing to give my life to bring God's word to my people,'" Piper said. The Wycliffe organization has translated the New Testament into 500 previously unrecorded languages. It generally takes about 15 years to learn a tribal language and then translate the New Testament into the language.

By KATHRYN JOHNSON, Associated Press Writer FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Capt. Ernest Medina, his dreams of an Army career and a secure future shattered no matter what the outcome of his trial, says, "I'm happy the trial has finally come—it's been a long time." "I had a promising career before this happened," the 36-year-old captain said in an interview Thursday. He has said he will quit the Army even if he is acquitted in his court-martial, which begins Monday. He is charged with murdering 102 civilians at My Lai in March 1968. "It's a profession I still hold in high esteem," said Medina, sitting stiffly upright in the office of his top Army defense attorney, Capt. Mark Kadish. Medina was repeatedly prohibited by his attorney from answering any questions about the trial and My Lai. "I'd be foolish to say that there was anything left for me, even if I were to stay in. I wouldn't want the Army to hide me behind a file cabinet somewhere," the slender quiet spoken officer said. Asked how the charges, the long investigating period and the protracted hearing had affected his wife and children, Medina replied: "I was going to school under an Army program. I'd already completed two years of college training and was going to get a college degree. "I had about 16 years in the Army, I figured we could eventually retire and still have security. "All that's gone now. Our chances of having our own home someday are gone. It's really difficult for a woman planning on this." Asked what he plans to do in civilian life if acquitted, Medina replied, "I'll cross the bridge when I get there." He added, his usually impassive face breaking into a wide grin: "I've still got my two hands and I won't go on unemployment." Medina met his slim, dark-blond wife, Barbara, during a castle lighting ceremony in Heidelberg, Germany, not far from Heilbronn, where he was stationed before he became an officer. Her parents were East German refugees. As for the effect of the trial on his three children, 12-year-old Ingrid, 10-year-old Greg and 8-year-old Cecil, Medina said: "My wife and I have explained to them the best we could—or at least as little as possible—in their teen-age or early adult years." Medina, who has glossy black hair, dark oval eyes and a direct manner, was asked if he hoped for anonymity when his trial ended. "I don't think it's possible," he said softly. Had he found any changes in Vietnam when he was there during combat three years ago and earlier this month when he returned with his lawyers and prosecutor to obtain depositions for the trial? "I'd say I did," Medina replied. "There we were," he said, referring to his troops when they first moved into the Quang Ngai Province, "digging in a hole you had dug yourself, trying to keep dry with a poncho. And when you came back to a base camp, all you'd have was a bunker you constructed yourself."

"Now," he said, "at Long Binh, they have refrigerators, tennis courts, basketball courts, massage parlors, sauna baths, Chinese restaurants, swimming pools—and even ice cream trucks." Medina said there was no time on this trip to observe any differences in the Vietnamese people from three years ago, at the time of the My Lai assault. At the time Medina commanded Charlie Company, he said he found the people unfriendly. "If they knew where snipers were, they never told us. My company had conducted a Med-cap (Medical Civil Action Project) just off Highway 1. We were set up in the field. A company doctor came in. The S5 (civil affairs officer) came. They gave away cigarettes, candy and soap," he continued. "When we walked out of the village, after medical treatment and supplies had been issued, we got hit by sniper fire—probably by the same guy who first walked through the line." Another time, Medina said, just as his troops were leaving a village, they met a woman coming down the trail. "My interpreter asked her if she saw any signs of any VC in the direction she was coming from. She told us no" and we moved down the same trail. Then we spotted a booby trap. It was marked by a bamboo stick that was broken. The woman must have known the mine was there."

Reynolds Ind. Sees No Slump WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — There's been no economic slump for Reynolds Industries, Inc. this year. The parent company of Reynolds Tobacco said Thursday it had record earnings for the first six months and the second quarter of 1971. Reynolds' consolidated net sales and operating revenues for the period rose 8.2 per cent to $674.6 million in the second quarter, compared to the same period the previous year. For the six months the total was $1.28 billion, 8.6 per cent above the 1970 figure. Net earnings for the quarter rose 30 per cent in comparison to the year before and for the first half were 31 per cent higher at $112 million. The per-share figure for the quarter just past was $1.35, up $0.32.

Watts Wants Mohammad Ali LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali has been named for a second time to act as grand marshal of the annual Watts Summer Festival parade. The festival began as a peaceful alternative marking the 1965 rioting in the city's predominantly black southside. "Ali's clean living habits, his impeccable family life, his dedication to his beliefs and his ability to 'tell it like it is', to young people make him a natural hero for the youngsters of Watts," said Tommie Jacqueline, festival executive director. The parade is Aug. 22. Ali, former heavyweight boxing champion, was grand marshal in 1967.

Chimes Ring Out End Of Sermon

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: A reader reported to you that a new neighbor invited her and some other neighbors over for coffee for "an hour." She stated that she was "flabbergasted" when an alarm clock went off in the hostess' kitchen in exactly an hour, at which time the hostess announced that the visit had terminated. She then led the guests to the door.

May I submit my personal experience which I think tops hers? I have twice been a guest speaker at a church in Brook, Ind., where it is the custom to terminate the sermon hour with the ringing of chimes. It is done mechanically, I suspect, without regard to whether the speaker has finished. The speaker is not advised of this beforehand. He just suddenly finds himself interrupted by a loud introduction of music from the belfry chimes. Sign me . . .

"ALSO THROWN OUT"

DEAR ALSO: I think it's a great idea. But the speaker should be told of this custom in advance. Since you were not,

The refreshment table was covered with an imported linen and lace cloth and centered with floral arrangements flanked by candelabra.

Mrs. Thelbert Hart poured tea. Assisting in serving was Mrs. Thad Hart Jr.

Good-byes were said to Mrs. J. D. Langley of Greenville.

Strawberries Star In This Pie

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
If you're interested in a new recipe for strawberry pie, here it is. The berries, in their natural state, are added to an easy-to-prepare creamy filling and the pie is chilled. The crust is a crumb-and-nut shell that complements the filling.

STRAWBERRY CREAM PIE
2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1½ cups heavy cream
2-3rd cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 pint baskets fresh strawberries

Walnut Crumb Shell, see below

In a medium saucepan sprinkle the gelatin over the cold water; allow to stand about 5 minutes to soften; add ½ cup of the cream. Over low heat stir constantly until gelatin has dissolved. Add sugar and stir vigorously until dissolved.

Remove from heat. Stir in remaining 1 cup cream and vanilla. Chill until thickened.

Meanwhile rinse strawberries in cold water; remove caps. Quarter enough of the large berries and halve enough of the smaller berries to make 3 cups. Reserve remaining whole berries for garnish. Refrigerate cut-up and whole berries until ready to use.

Place thickened gelatin mixture over ice cubes and cold water and beat until mixture is very thick and mounds when dropped from a spoon. Fold in cut-up berries. Spoon into Walnut Crumb Shell. Chill until set. Before serving halve whole remaining berries and garnish pie with them.

WALNUT CRUMB SHELL
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
2-3rds cup walnuts, finely chopped

¼ cup butter, melted
1 egg white, unbeaten
Mix crumbs and walnuts; work in butter and egg white and press into bottom and over sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes. Cool thoroughly before filling.

I can understand how you could have been "thrown out" once. But twice? (P. S. I'll wager that church in Brook, Ind., has a full house every Sunday.)

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in reply to the letter signed "HIS OTHER MOTHER": [She had an adopted son, whom she said she was going to raise to "love" his natural mother even tho she had given him up for adoption.]

I am a 14-year-old girl and I am adopted. I don't feel that I have "another" mother. These are the people who brought me up and gave me all the love I have ever known.

I can't picture myself going to another woman and saying, "Mother I love you." And I don't see how that woman can expect her son to think that he has two mothers. A mother is a woman who gives you love, not just the woman who bears you. Thank you, Abby, for hearing me out.

ADOPTED

DEAR ADOPTED: Thank you for your very intelligent letter. Now I can see your side of it.

DEAR ABBY: I am 75 years old. My husband recently passed away and according to his wishes, I had his remains cremated. They were returned to me in a small urn.

My husband never said what he wished done with his ashes. I have a lovely garden behind my house and I wanted to bury the urn in the garden and perhaps plant a lovely plant over it. I do not have an automobile and could not get out to the cemetery often, so I thought this would be an appropriate solution. My husband loved the garden and spent many happy hours in it. My friends think this would be just awful and unchristian and I should not do it. Please tell me what you think of my idea?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: I feel as you do. But ask your attorney to check the laws of your state. Strange as it may seem, what one buries in his own garden is not always one's own personal business.

DEAR ABBY: Please advise that lady who hesitated to marry an alien because she suspected that he only wanted to marry her in order to become an American citizen that a foreigner no longer automatically becomes an American citizen by simply marrying an American. UTICA READER

U.S. 264 Project Affects Many

The Wilson Chamber of Commerce has expressed concern over reports that four-laning of U.S. 64 could take precedence over the dual laning of U.S. 264 from Zebulon to Wilson.

Teaching Jobs Hard To Find

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — These late summer days are steamy for some of the bright June graduates who planned to start teaching in North Carolina schools this fall. It's not the heat or humidity, but scanty job opportunities that has them sweating.

An over-supply of teachers, a national phenomenon, is reflected in an imbalance of applicants to vacancies as school units across the state social studies, and physical education. Demand is greatest for teachers in early childhood education (kindergarten through third grade), and math and science at the secondary level. "The need for a larger supply of teachers to teach at the elementary level, especially at the early childhood education level, continues to transcend all others," Dr. Freeman said. "The chronic shortage of teachers in this area is expected to continue. There is a special focus on the young child. The implementation of certain federal programs is an added dimension in the demand for adequately prepared teachers to meet the educational needs of small children."

Progressive implementation of the public kindergarten program in North Carolina will be a factor to maintain demand in that area, he added. Growth of private schools tends to reduce teaching positions in public schools, but should have no overall adverse effects, Dr. Freeman said. "There's the same number of children to be taught," he noted. Too, generally, the pupil-teacher ratio is smaller in private schools than in public schools.

More Rural Openings
As would be expected, Dr. Freeman said, urban school systems in the Piedmont fill their teaching positions first with a greater backlog of applications. Thus, beginning teachers looking for positions in these areas are most likely to meet disappointment. Vacancies remain longest in rural units of the east and west, he added.

Nationally, the teacher surplus is most acute in suburban metropolitan areas. California is cited as an example of severe shortage of employment opportunities.

The over-supply was apparent last spring on campuses where future teachers are enrolled. Mrs. Josephine Schaeffer, placement director at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, said the number of teacher recruits who showed up this year dropped about one-third from the previous year.

"Many of the recruits said that they had a reduction of 40 to 60 per cent in the expected openings for the year. Some recruiters who cancelled campus visits reported the same conditions," she said.

Mrs. Schaeffer expressed the view that the over-supply is neither temporary nor a reflection of a short-term economic slump, but here to stay.

That unpromising prospect is confirmed by the Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics. If current entry patterns in the profession continue, it said, between 1968 and 1980 there will be 4.2 million teachers entering the market to fill not more than 2.4 million new openings.

The Wilson Daily Times reported last week that the subject was taken up at the Wilson Chamber of Commerce meeting. Concern was raised after published reports that U.S. 64 work would receive "top-priority".

However, the Wilson newspaper quoted Highway Commissioner Bill Williams as saying that dual laning of U.S. 264 is coming along "way ahead of schedule." It was reported that surveying was complete from Zebulon to Bailey and design work for that section is underway now. He anticipated right-of-way hearings in January, 1972.

Survey is underway from Bailey to Lamm's Cross Roads with a "clear road" expected within a year. It was pointed out, however, that ecological and environmental problems have arisen which must be worked out. Protecting the environment has become an important part of highway planning under new regulations.

Certainly Greenville, Farmville and Washington should do all they can to support efforts for implementing the four laning of U.S. 264 from Zebulon to Wilson since we have a very heavy stake in the project.

Work is underway now on the Zebulon bypass and the Wilson project would give the people on this end of U.S. 264 a dual lane road from Wilson to Raleigh and beyond.

Planning is underway on the dual laning of N.C. 30 and 33 from Greenville to Washington and it is anticipated that this project will get underway in the near future.

That would leave the only link of single lane road between Greenville and Wilson. The last word we heard on this was that a new limited access route was to be planned with right-of-way for dual laning. However initially it would be constructed with only one lane with the additional lane to be added later.

If the Washington-Greenville and the Wilson-Zebulon dual lane roads are constructed, though, we will have a far better argument for hastening the dual laning of the Wilson-Greenville link.

There is no eastern project more needed for development than the dual laning of U.S. 264 all the way from Washington to Zebulon, where it would tie in with dual laned U.S. 64 and then with interstate highways at Raleigh that lead clear across the nation.

The pressure for bringing this project about soon is going to have to come from this end of the route since there are shorter routes to the beach areas, which those in the Piedmont use.

Every community along the U.S. 264 route should join the others in working toward moving along on each of these links. With the heavy population and development along U.S. 264 we should have the political clout necessary to bring about the full development of this highway.

Hanoi Leaders Are Worried

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON —

Unprecedented criticism of Communist China by the North Vietnamese, intense though indirect, reveals not only how worried Hanoi is about possible U.S.-Chinese detente but also how vigorously it will resist any dovish influence from Peking.

The lead editorial in Monday's issue of Nhan Dan, the top North Vietnamese daily, constituted the first North Vietnamese attack of any kind against official Chinese policy. Hanoi was serving notice on the Chinese that it simply will not stand for settlement of the Vietnam war brokered by Washington and Peking.

Only if the Hanoi politburo members were deeply disturbed by the implications of the stunning July 15 announcement by President Nixon (made jointly in Peking) would they have dared chiding their big brothers to the north. But their daring shows that a mere wave of the finger from Peking will not turn the lions of Hanoi into pussycats.

For three days after the announcement of July 15,

Hanoi was silent. The North Vietnamese people were not told the first word about what was happening. Then, on July 19, came the Nhan Dan editorial, broadcast on Radio Hanoi.

The visible target, of course, was Richard M. Nixon. He was excoriated for "dividing the Socialist countries" and "trying to achieve a compromise" in Vietnam by forcing "smaller countries (to) bow to the 'arrangement' of 'the big powers.'" Getting down to specifics, it condemned Mr. Nixon for "running about wildly in search of a way out. But he has gone to the wrong place." In short, said Nhan Dan, the small countries will stand up to the big powers.

The implicit criticism: Peking is letting itself be used as a handmaiden in such nefarious imperialist plots. What makes Hanoi's concern so real is that North Vietnam has played Peking's bellicose Communism off against Moscow's softer brand for years.

Whenever the Soviets seemed to be getting too friendly to the West, Hanoi would indirectly attack Moscow and seemingly open

A MISSTEP COULD BE QUITE A PROBLEM!

Kissinger Stomachache

WASHINGTON — When the history books of this decade are written, they will be referring to Henry Kissinger's trip to China as "The Tummy Ache Heard Round the World."

Using the excuse of an upset stomach, Mr. Kissinger managed to elude everyone and high-tail it off to Peking to have sweet-and-sour pork with Chou En-lai.

While it was a great ploy, Mr. Kissinger's "diplomatic illness" could backfire on him. Suppose he really gets a stomachache at some future time. Who is going to believe him?

Our scene opens in the medical room at the White House. Henry staggers in clutching his stomach and says, "Doctor, I have this pain right here."

The White House doctor laughs. "Good old Henry.

Where are you off to this time — the Suez Canal?" "I'm not joking, Doc. It hurts terribly."

"I know," the doctor says, "the President is sending you to talk to Castro."

Henry is now writhing on the floor. "Believe me, it hurts. Right in the gut. You see, I had dinner with Gloria Steinem and Bella Abzug, and they served me Bon Vivant Vichyssoise. Since I was out of the country at the time, I didn't know you weren't supposed to eat it."

"You really can put on an act, Henry. I wouldn't be surprised if you turned up in Albania next week."

Henry crawls out of the doctor's office on his hands and knees.

Ron Zeigler, the President's press secretary, sees him crawling down the hall.

"Hello, Mr. Kissinger," Ron says. "Can I help you?" "Get me to a hospital." Ron takes out his notebook. "That's a good cover story. I'll announce you were taken to a hospital this morning. I won't tell them which hospital."

"No, Ron, I don't want you to announce I was taken to a hospital. I want you to get me to a hospital."

Ron winks at him. "Is it East Berlin or Yalta?" "Please, Ron. I'm sick. I'm going to die."

"I doubt if the press corps would buy that, Mr. Kissinger. If we announce that you've died, and then you pop up at San Clemente a week later, the newspaper guys will get awfully mad. Let me announce you're having your tonsils out. I have to go to my press briefing now. I'll see you later."

Henry is rolling on the floor as Secretary of State William Rogers comes by.

"Hello, Henry. You going to the Cabinet meeting?"

"My Secretary, my stomach. I have a pain in my stomach. It's killing me."

Secretary Rogers says angrily, "Well no one has informed me about it. What are you up to this time?"

"I'm not up to anything, Mr. Secretary. Could you call an ambulance?"

"Hanoi," Rogers says. "You're cooking up something in Hanoi. I'll probably be the last one to know about it."

"I'm really sick."

"No kidding? Well, I'm sorry to hear that, Henry." And Rogers smiles and walks away.

With his last ounce of strength, Henry staggers into the Oval Room and falls down

"I thought all you private detectives were surrounded by beautiful dames. That hen you've got for a secretary is so homely she'd scare away a near-sighted rooster in a barnyard."

"When you solve a case all by yourself, Mr. Hawkshaw, do you buzz the fuzz and tell them what dumbbells they've been?"

"Hi, Sam. Looked through an interesting keyholes lately?"

"Are you sure you're the private detective? Somehow I thought you'd be younger, handsomer, talk out of the side of your mouth, and have more hair. And why did you come in through the front door instead of the window?"

"I'd thought of hiring you to guard the jewels I'll be wearing at our ball tonight, Mr. Hawkshaw, but now that I've met you I think I'd feel better if I just left them in the safe."

"Calling Sam Hawkshaw! Calling Sam Hawkshaw! Sam, honey, this is your wife. Wake up. Close your office windows—it's raining."

Strength For Today

HOW ABOUT TODAY?

People often speak of conditions in the world today as unusual and unprecedented. Certainly there is something unique, and terrifyingly unique, in many conditions today. There is war and rumors of war. There is injustice and crime. Above everything else, young people today seem to be entering into the life of the world and things that young people in the past did not do—at least not in the same way as they are doing these things at present.

Drug addiction has not in the past assumed such terrifying proportions as it is assuming today. To think of this awful curse coming down upon people, and especially upon young people, brings us almost to the point of despair. Crime is increasing at an alarming rate of speed. There is revolt among young people today over the matter of our country's involvement in Southeast Asia. Some people today are unqualified in their denunciation of youth. Of course, when anybody old or young commits a crime he or she must be dealt with according to the law. But certainly if we have any appreciation of the value of youth we must find ourselves in profound sympathy with them as they denounce American involvement in Vietnam.

If the United States were invaded we can believe that youth would rise up and defend the Fatherland as their forefathers did. They would gladly lay down their lives in defense of liberty and in the destruction of anything that would destroy our Fatherland.

We live in a strange world today, but it is headed in the right direction and sincere in its opposition to much of the present-day evil.

Expansion Is Close To An Edge

By ELMER ROESSNER
Treasury Secretary John Connally, the leading economics spokesman for the Administration, has declared: "You can't come to any conclusion but that we're engaged in an expansion that is broad in its sweep and deep in its tracks."

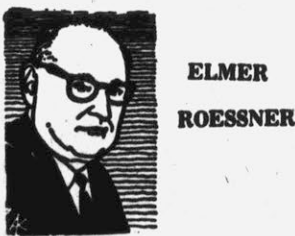

Lovely, if true. However the expansion may not be as broad in its sweep and as deep in its tracks as Mr. Connally believes.

Furthermore, its sweep may be along the edge of another recession.

Mr. Connally's remarks were based on the Gross National Product figures for the second quarter, the government's major business index. It showed that the output of goods and services was the largest for any quarter since 1968, except for the first quarter of this year, when business was recovering from the General Motors strike. The increase over the first quarter of the year was $19.7 billion, a rise of 8 per cent, bringing the total to $1.04 billion at annual rates.

However, if adjusted for inflation since 1958, the increase would be only $6.6 billion, a rise of only 3.6 per cent. And on a 1958 basis, the annual total would be only $736.3 billion.

Unemployment Higher
This came only a few days after the Administration had announced that unemployment had dropped from 6.2 per cent in May to 5.6 per cent in mid-June. As pointed out here, this decline resulted from a "seasonal adjustment," and the total unemployed rose from 4,394,000 in May to 5,490,000 in June.

All of that may not be too bad. Unemployment usually rises in June and a $6.6 billion rise at annual rates in the GNP is surely progress

However, mid-July found the nation in the midst of four great strikes: the railroad strike, the phone strike, the copper strike and the Western Union strike. One count, before the railroad and phone strikes, showed 376 strikes on.

The Federal Reserve has raised the rediscount rate from 4% to 5 per cent, after banks had raised their prime rate from 5 1/2 to 6 per cent. These rises may affect mortgage interest rates and puncture the housing boom.

Other Hazards
Inflation is continuing, but where it hurts the average family, especially the working family, is in rising food prices. A family can postpone buying a new car or a color TV set, but it cannot postpone dinner.

To understand the prevalence of gripes about food prices, stand with open ears around a checkout counter in any supermarket, in a poor neighborhood or a rich one. The continuing complaints, unless you are a regular shopper, may amaze you.

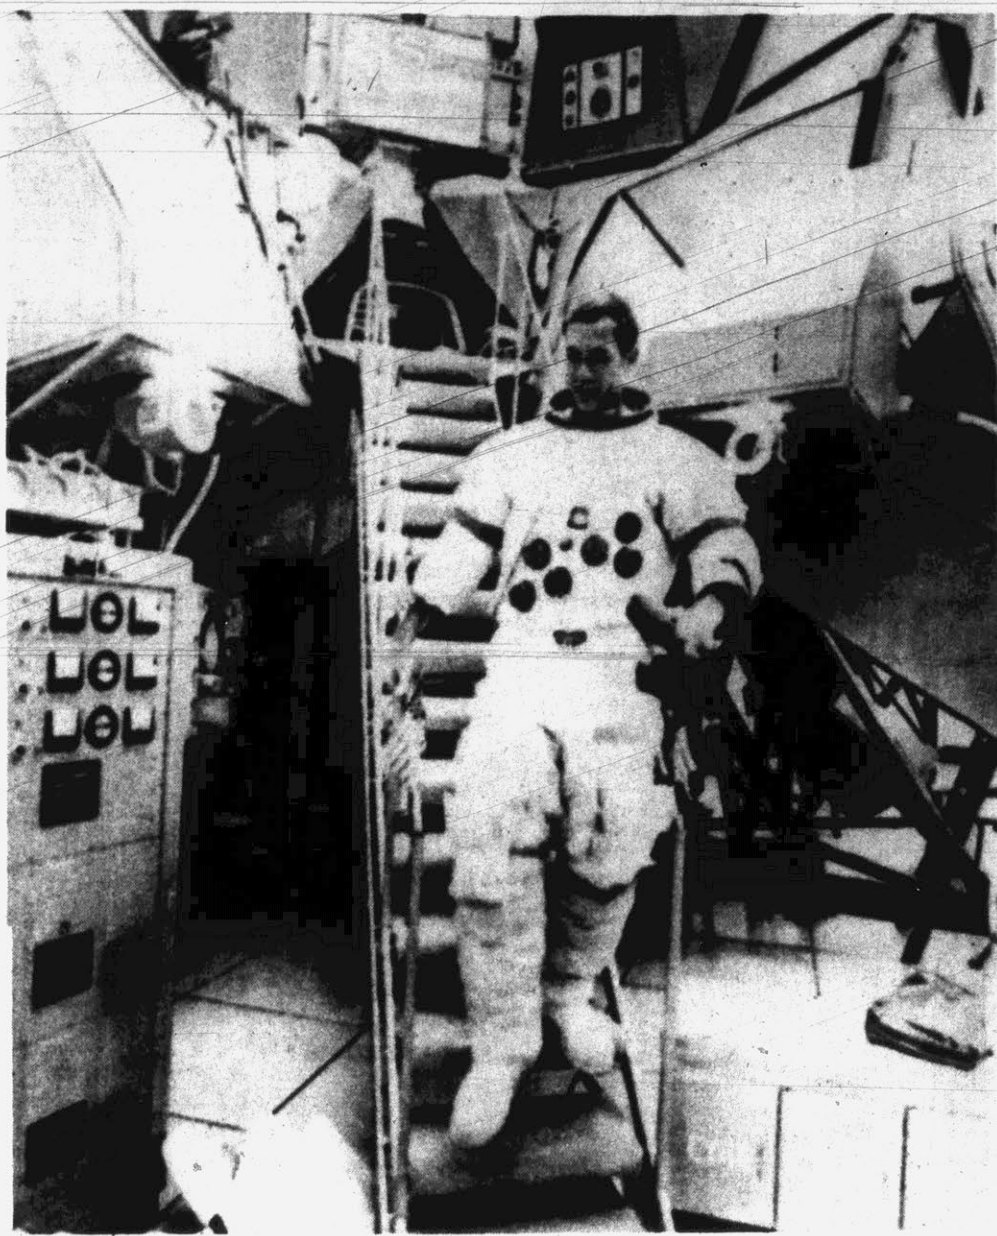

And these complaints are igniting fuses of more strikes to come.

Foreign imports and the consequent unemployment in America will continue to rise, even if trade with China is far in the future.

Truly the broad expansion is close to the edge.

There may be midnights, E.D.T., that Mr. Nixon wakes up and mutters, "Why didn't I take George Meany's advice and freeze wages and prices?"

Coast Guard Is Testing Barrier For Oil Spills

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—When the Greek tanker "Delian Apollon" ran aground in Tampa Bay last year little could be done to avert a 100-square-mile oil slick and the ecological disaster it left in its wake.

Today—16 months and $1 million later—the U.S. Coast Guard is dumping its own oil in the same waters. But officials say it is a test in the name of progress and may help to eliminate the land-bound slimy threat which faced Gulf Coast residents in February 1970.

Sixty miles off the white sand beaches here the Coast Guard has disgorged 600 barrels of soybean oil in a test of a high-seas oil containment barrier. The 1,000-foot barrier floats with a 27-inch, submerged "fin" and a 21-inch "sail." It is designed to work in five-foot seas and a two-knot current with 20 mile per hour winds. Its performance results are expected to be released later this summer.

This is the second step in a federally-funded campaign to combat oil spills. The first involved a recently-completed battery of tests of a system designed to off-load oil from disabled tankers before they have a chance to spill their cargos and already has been pronounced a success by Coast Guard officials.

A primary weapon in combatting an oil spill is speed. The Coast Guard says the experimental barrier would be in operation within four hours after the oil spill. The asbestos and rubber guard inflates itself. Using nontoxic soybean oil as a substitute for the damaging crude oil, marine engineers tested the barrier under varying sea and weather conditions. To date no effective high-seas containment barrier has been built, the Coast Guard said. Calm seas and little current were formerly pre-requisites for the primitive type of barriers which did little to curb the goo awash on Florida shores last year. If the new barrier works, the Coast Guard says it will place the 24,000-pound components in strategically-placed air stations around the country so they can be airdropped when a spill occurs.

The Coast Guard's appropriation for marine pollution has risen from a paltry $904,000 in 1969 to $4 million this year.

Still in the planning stage is a "third link" in the Coast Guard's oil spill program. It involves cleanup.

its arms to Peking. Most recently, Hanoi sharply criticized attempts at detente between the Soviet Union and West Germany. Earlier, there was North Vietnamese sniping at Soviet participation in the Mideast cease-fire. But if Peking also is softening toward the West, Hanoi may become apprehensive about the absolutely essential military aid from the two Communist superpowers.

Actually, Hanoi gets the sinews of war from the Soviet Union: food, petroleum, trucks, rockets, communications equipment. But it still is supplied the basics for waging an infantry war—small arms and their ammunition—from Peking (such aid being confirmed in a new agreement signed July 4).

The politburo members in Hanoi are probably wondering now whether they could, if need be, turn to Moscow for infantry supplies now coming from China. But nobody can begin to predict exactly how far Peking would go to pressure a softer line from North Vietnam.

Certainly, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky of South Vietnam, running for President on a dovish platform is incorrect in judging that Peking's orders are responsible for the sustained lull of Communist military activity in Vietnam. The lull is more involuntary than voluntary, the product of Hanoi's severe logistical problems that are so little understood outside Vietnam. Rather, the immediate impact on Hanoi of the new Nixon China policy is psychological. All information points to the fact that Hanoi was not informed of the secret negotiations with Washington by her Chinese allies and that Nguyen Duy Trinh, the North Vietnamese foreign minister who arrived in Peking the day after Nixon aide Kissinger left, first was told about the invitation to Mr. Nixon shortly before it was made public.

Such uncertainty about Chinese intentions erodes Hanoi's self-assurance, which builds up Saigon's often anemic self-confidence. Experts here believe the new peace proposals by the South Vietnamese government (while merely reiterating past positions) reflect the buoyancy generated by the U.S.-Chinese talks. Thus, whatever else stems from it, Mr. Nixon's new China policy, at least temporarily, has changed the psychological climate of the diplomatic struggle over Vietnam, and that is no small accomplishment.

Electrocuted In Household Chore

BELMONT, N.C. (AP)—Johnny Richard Huffstetler, 26, of Belmont, was electrocuted late Thursday afternoon when a television antenna he and a companion were removing from a roof touched a high-voltage line.

Police said Huffstetler was dead on arrival at a hospital after the antenna—atop his house—hit a 2,400-volt line. The companion was hospitalized with shock injuries.

Associated Press Writer
There's a new arrival on the suburban scene. Someone who doesn't have mortgage problems, PTA meetings, Girl Scout picnics, or the station wagon waiting at the station. The single person has discovered the suburbs.

Fed up with the hectic life of the big city, drawn by the bonuses of the great outdoors, the cheaper rents and safer streets, an increasing number of young singles are moving into areas long held to be the domain of The Family, child-rearing, and affluent domesticity.

Some move because their companies have transferred out of the city, while others are willing refugees, yearning to breathe freely in the countrified atmosphere. Still others just stay where they grew up.

"It's the best of all possible worlds," says Sheila Hill, 32, a theatrical publicist in Westport,

Conn. "You can go into New York anytime for dinner, and yet have the relaxed and casual daily life of the suburbs."

The extent of singles migration from the cities is hard to pin down. Real estate agents in New York's heavily suburban Westchester County and elsewhere have noted a pronounced upswing.

What is clear is that the number of over-18 singles in the suburbs has risen enormously in the decade from 1960 to 1970. In Westchester, it's up nearly 30 per cent against a general population rise of 10 per cent.

In California's San Mateo County, with a population of 556,000, the singles, never married, group more than tripled. In Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, singles rose by 40 per cent while the overall population increased by 20.

Still a silent minority nevertheless, the singles tend to form their own lifestyle, rarely socializing with the marrieds, co-existing peacefully with, yet remote from, the older singles—the separated, divorced and widowed who share the suburban scene and whose problems and aspirations differ.

Though generally happy about their new-found joys of suburban living, singles do admit to certain disadvantages. The social life is still not equal to the party whirl of the city. It's not so easy to be spontaneous about get-togethers when friends live 20 miles away. Some say they miss the easy accessibility to all the cultural offerings of the city. A car is essential, though insurance rates can be about 20 per cent over for singles in the suburbs than for singles in the cities. Those who commute have their share of horror tales about the traffic and the trains.

Rents are about 30 per cent cheaper in the suburbs than in

New York City, and some singles are able to rent old barns and carriage houses for relatively low costs where they live with two or three roommates.

The East Coast suburbs have yet to cater to the singles with the same organization and enthusiasm as the West Coast. The suburban South Bay Club Apartments of California are exclusively single.

While there's a still a shortage of night spots for singles to congregate, more and more suburban bars are finding profit in the singles clientele.

While social life in the suburbs doesn't have the city excitement and variety, singles say it's as much as they want, with considerably less pressure to have dates. They found many group activities, especially in the summer when sailing trips and sports are easily arranged.

But one Haverstraw, N.Y., secretary noted. "You're GUD, that's geographically undesirable, if you live out in the sticks. Only if a guy is terribly impressed with you would he make it all the way to the suburbs for a date."

Singles say they rarely meet with married friends, complaining that their interests are so different.

"Somehow, a single girl just doesn't socialize with married people," says Sheila Hill. "At a party, I can often see the wife giving me daggers if she sees me talking with her husband."

"The lives of most of the young married women I know all seem to be centered around their children," says Martha Sachs, a French teacher at White Plains, N.Y., High School.

Says David Ogilvy, a real estate agent in Greenwich, Conn. "These people grew up watching their father running to get the 7:32 to New York, coming home late or not at all. They just don't want that whole scene and so they work in restaurants or ski shops to make some money and keep busy."

Some say they are still trying to find themselves and that it's a lot less painful away from the problems of city survival.

A number of singles are becoming involved in community affairs. Steve Paneyko works with a drug rehabilitation center in Princeton. Candy Jaus, 21, tutors at a community center one day a week in Yonkers, N.Y., and works on a recycling project. Bob Hutchinson attends city council meetings in Burlingame and is active in local environmental law. And some ambitious singles can see themselves running for local political office one day.

Pleased with their life style in the suburbs, singles insist they're in no great rush to wed.

"But if ever I do get married," said one happy Larchmont single, "I'll have him move right in here with me."

Bundy Cites 10 Most Outstanding Features Of Assembly's Session

By SAM D. BUNDY

The longest session of the North Carolina General Assembly is at an end.

It began on January 13, 1971 at 12:00 o'clock noon and ended on July 21, 1971 at 12:00 o'clock noon. It has been a long and demanding session.

In my way of thinking the ten most outstanding things in the 1971 session are listed below, but not necessarily in the order of their importance.

1. No new taxes were levied or imposed.
2. Reorganization of State Government as a mandate of a constitutional amendment.
3. Environmental legislation which proposes to give new environmental protection.
4. Consumer legislation designed for consumer protection.
5. Redistricting the State for the House and Senate of the General Assembly and the Congressional Districts.

in front of the President.

"Henry," the President says. "You don't have to prostrate yourself in front of me. I know you're loyal."

Henry is in such agony he can't speak.

"What is it, Henry?" the President says. "Would you like to go to Morocco?"

Henry shakes his head.

"The Vatican? You want to see the Pope?"

Henry groans.

The President gets up. "I don't have time to play games, Henry. Write me a memo telling me what you want. By the way, Mrs. Nixon said she would like you for dinner tonight. We're having meat loaf."

Henry screams and passes out, as the curtain falls.

RALEIGH (AP)—A state health official says four of the 47 persons who are known to have developed Rocky Mountain spotted fever in the state this year have died.

Dr. John MacCormack of the state Department of Health said Thursday that the Piedmont area is apparently the most heavily infested with the ticks that carry the disease. He said Guilford County has reported seven cases and Mecklenburg six.

In 1970, North Carolina led the nation in reported cases with 88 of 339. Virginia and South Carolina followed.

Dr. MacCormack said about 5 per cent of the persons who catch the disease—which begins with a rash 3 to 12 days after an infected tick's bite—die even if treated. About 20 per cent of untreated victims die.

John Adams, second U.S. President, was born Oct. 30, 1735, at Quincy, Mass.

Despite his problems, Tutterow says he will rebuild.

The store had been boarded up after a fire Tuesday, but police said the latest thieves broke the glass in the front door Wednesday night and stole about $50 worth of tobacco and deodorants. Two teen-agers and a 29-year-old man have been arrested in the case.

Charlotte (AP)—Thieves have broken into DeWitt Tutterow's grocery for the 12th time in the last six years.

6. The State assuming 85 percent of the non-federal share of Medicaid leaving only 15 percent for the counties.

7. Biggest budget in the history of our State at 4.3 billion dollars.

8. Headway of the liquor forces in getting authority in Moore and Mecklenburg counties to vote on whiskey-by-the-drink.

9. Failure to liberalize our abortion laws to any great extent.

10. The issue of the restructuring of Higher Education about which we will reconvene on October 26, 1971.

For our immediate area we were able to secure the funding of the one year medical school at East Carolina University, the funding of a Rehabilitation Center in connection with our new hospital, and two million dollars for the Art Building at East Carolina University.

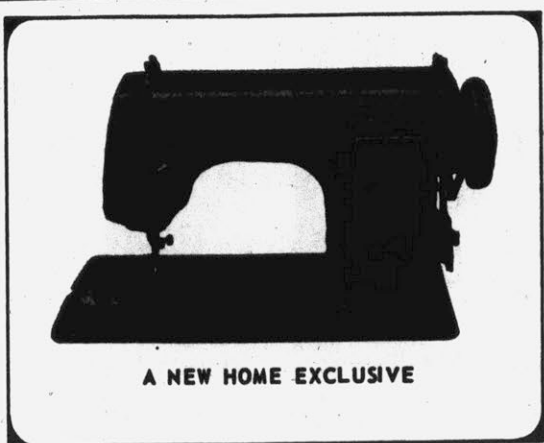

I am grateful for the privilege of serving the people of Pitt County in this capacity and I appreciate the many letters, phone calls, and personal visitations from you giving me the benefit of your views, suggestions, and thoughts.

Arrest Five In Opium Seizure

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Five persons, including a San Francisco County deputy sheriff, have been arrested in the seizure of 20 pounds of opium at San Francisco International Airport.

The arrests were made Thursday when the five attempted to claim two chests shipped from New Delhi, India, said Oscar Polcuch, special agent-in-charge of the San Francisco Customs office.

The opium was found in recessed compartments, Polcuch said.

The deputy, identified as Van H. Furlough, 30, was suspended pending an investigation.

All five gave San Francisco addresses and were ordered held for arraignment.

Firm Abandons Chemical-Dump

STORNOWAY, Scotland (AP) — A Dutch firm has called off plans to dump 600 tons of chemicals in the North Atlantic after protests by Britain, Ireland and Iceland that the chlorine wastes would poison fishing grounds.

Azko Zout Chemie, a plastics manufacturer, said it had acted at the request of the Dutch government "to avoid International political complications." It said the chemical waste would be stored in tanks.

The cancellation was announced as the chartered Dutch ship Stella Maris neared this port to refuel for the journey to a dumping ground in international waters 600 miles off Ireland's west coast an equal distance from the southern tip of Iceland. The company said the ship was ordered to return to Rotterdam.

Faddist Victim Of Starvation

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Arthur Bothmann's mother says her son, a health food buff, was trying to break a Spartan faddist diet when he starved to death.

The 42-year-old Bothmann, a former 200-pound weightlifter, was weak and undernourished when he went to a doctor in early July to try to get his strength back.

"The doctor told him to eat more and he was trying," said Bothmann's mother, Phyllis. "He called me a week ago from the doctor's office to say he was feeling stronger."

Bothmann was found dead in his bathtub Monday where he had collapsed.

The Pinellas County medical examiner ruled Thursday that the death was due to accidental starvation. "He was just skin and bones," Dr. John Shinner said. "I estimated he weighed about 90 pounds," Bothmann was 5 foot 11.

"When I did an autopsy there was absolutely nothing in his stomach or intestines," Shinner said. "He apparently was eating sunflower seeds and the like to a point when he didn't get enough food to survive."

Shinner said Bothmann was living on 16 ounces of food a day.

Bothmann had been hospitalized in 1962 for undernourishment, Shinner said. Medical records indicate he was living on a diet of sunflower seeds then.

His mother said she knew only that he was using health foods and had been eating very little for a long time.

"He was in good spirits and was trying to get his strength back to go to Georgia for a wedding at the end of the month," Mrs. Mrs. Bothmann said.

Bothmann lived alone. His mother telephoned police when she received no answer at his apartment.

Police found his body sprawled in the bathtub with the shower still running. Authorities estimated he had been dead two or three days. Water was going down the drain slowly, but the bathroom was steamed and flooded.

Bothmann had been a social worker, but apparently had not been regularly employed in the last couple years, Shinner said.

Heroism Due To Girl-Watching

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A young Eagle Scout says girl-watching helped him win the Boy Scout National Heroism Award.

Richard Teal, 15, was honored Thursday for pushing 16-year-old Martha Morris out of the path of an oncoming car last October. He injured his ankle in the process.

Teal recalled he had seen Miss Morris walk past his home many times.

"She walks pretty good, I was hoping to meet her," he said.

Then one day he saw a car speeding directly toward the object of his admiring gazes. "I knew it was going to hit her, so I ran over and pushed her out of the way."

Miss Morris said Teal is "someone special."

But she already has a boyfriend.

Proceeds of the performances, a matinee and an evening presentation Aug. 1 at Madison Square Garden, will go for the relief of refugees who have fled from East Pakistan to India.

Other performers donating their services include Indian sitar player Ravi Shankar.

A Hemorrhage In Ella's Eye

PARIS (AP) — Jazz singer Ella Fitzgerald, suffering from a hemorrhage in her right eye, plans to remain in Paris for several more days of rest, impresario Norman Granz said today.

Granz said Miss Fitzgerald is attended by an eye specialist. He has told her there is nothing to be done except rest until the hemorrhage clears up.

Miss Fitzgerald interrupted a concert tour on the Riviera earlier this week.

One Constituent Wins Her Point

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Before voting on a bill requiring that bread wrappers show exact percentages of ingredients, a California state legislator asked the author, "Where did you dig this up?"

"I was asked to introduce it by a very important constituent," replied Republican John Briggs of Fullerton.

"Let's be a little more specific," pursued the other lawmaker. "Who is this important constituent?"

"Well," responded Briggs, "it was my wife. And you better vote for it or you'll be on her list."

The bill passed the Assembly unanimously.

Bridge Raised; It'll Stay There

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The Franklin Street Bridge is up and authorities say it will stay that way until it is examined.

The bridge tender raised the 62-year-old bridge Wednesday for a boat headed down the Illinois River. But he told officials he was reluctant to lower the bridge because he didn't think it could be raised one more time.

So now it's closed to autos.

As one observer put it: "It's easier for cars to find another street than it is for boats to find another river."

'Guarded Endorsement' By Senator Goldwater

DENVER (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said today that if President Nixon's mission to Peking can persuade Communist China to stop exporting aggression and war "then I say more power to him."

"I have never opposed negotiations and discussion with our cold war enemies," Goldwater said in a speech for the Republican National Committee.

It was a politically valuable, if guarded, endorsement from a major figure among Republican conservatives—a wing of the party that had produced some criticism of the Nixon trip.

Goldwater noted that some "Republicans of my own conservative philosophical bent" have been critical on Nixon because of his welfare program, budget deficits and China policy.

The senator from Arizona said he doesn't like the welfare plan, or deficit budgets, either. But he said that before Republicans criticize Nixon, they should consider the Democratic alternatives to re-election of the President.

"Now, on the question of China, I would caution my party members to remember that this nation's policy has not been immediately changed by President Nixon's dramatic announcement," said Goldwater, the 1964 Republican presidential candidate.

Goldwater said he opposes the admission of Communist China to the United Nations, feels "that the passage of time alone has not altered the need for the brutal government of Mao Tse-tung to change many of its attitudes and actions and policies."

"But I do not oppose efforts by the Nixon administration to improve the dialogue and the channels of communication through which some of our ideas can be placed realistically before Peking's rulers," Goldwater said in his prepared speech.

"In other words, if there is any chance that our President can persuade Peking to mend its ways and to stop exporting aggression and violence and war, then I say more power to him," he said.

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

DENVER (AP) — President Nixon's re-election campaign already is being shaped, and one of the men involved in the off-stage planning said today it may include major efforts to roll up the vote in key Republican presidential primaries.

Nixon men are at work opening their lines and assessing the political situation in conferences with Republican state chairmen and national committee members.

"We're showing the flag," an administration source said. The Republican National Committee was expected to choose today between San Diego and Miami Beach as the site for the 1972 convention at which Nixon presumably will be nominated for a second term.

Also on the agenda: action on party reform measures. Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the party chairman, said that was expected to include a recommendation that there be numerical equity for blacks, other minorities and young voters in the presidential nominating delegations. In addition, the party was expected to urge that women make up half the delegations.

But those recommendations would not be binding on the state parties, as are the representation reforms enacted by the Democratic National Committee.

In the Nixon campaign buildup, Harry Flemming, formerly a special assistant to the President, is conferring privately with the state party leaders, asking for advice and political assessments, and assuring them that the regular GOP organizations will not be undercut in 1972.

One key message: The current operation, Citizens for the Re-election of the President, will one day become Nixon's formal campaign organization.

At that point, Nixon's campaign manager will take over as director. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell managed Nixon's last campaign, and Republican sources expect him to fill that role again in 1972.

Mitchell and presidential assistant Robert Haldeman were said to have been closely advised of the current political operation.

Among the options are the presidential primaries, with at least 23 on the 1972 schedule that begins March 7 in New Hampshire.

Nixon's name will automatically go on the ballot in a half-dozen states under state laws which list all prospective nominees who do not disavow candidacy.

The President's political draftsmen see three possible courses: Let the primaries go by with no campaign, enter stand-in candidates, or have the President do some campaigning.

They are wary, on the basis of past political performances, of stand-in campaigns in which a state political leader would go on the ballot as Nixon's representative.

Their current planning, subject to Nixon's decision later, would point toward active campaigning, with or without the overt entry of the President. As yet, their option planning does not indicate what states would be likely targets, but the first primary that will list all candidates will be in Florida March 14. The administration source said primary election planning would be based on political impact looking toward the Nov. 7 election, not on the challenge to Nixon of Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California, who has said he will enter several primaries.

"We do not feel he is a serious threat," the source said. "It would not seem he is making much progress in the Republican party at this time."

The source said Nixon planners would be far more concerned with a challenge from the conservative wing of the party, but do not anticipate any.

Agnew Ending A Spanish Holiday

SOTOGRADE, Spain (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's cold is reported better as he prepares to wind up a brief vacation at this exclusive golfing resort on Spain's sunny Mediterranean coast.

Agnew flies to Rabat, Morocco, Saturday for an abbreviated one-day visit, returning here Sunday before going Monday to Lisbon, Portugal, last stop on his 13-day world tour.

Reporters covering Agnew's trip were told by his press secretary Victor Gold that he swam and sunned himself Thursday morning and played golf in the afternoon.

The Roman Empire built 49,635 miles of first-rate roads.

E. Pakistan Sees Hunger

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — East Pakistan is facing a shortage of at least three million tons of rice and wheat over the next year. The situation is complicated by the fact that food already stockpiled is unlikely to be distributed adequately.

This is plain from statements of government officials and from an American survey.

With about 400,000 tons of wheat and rice stocked in the east, officials have received little response to an appeal for 30 coastal vessels to carry grain upcountry from eastern ports.

Among the hardest hit areas, according to the survey, will be the Bay of Bengal coast struck last November by a cyclone and tidal wave which took 300,000 lives. The area depends almost entirely on water transportation.

"In seven weeks of trying," said an official of the Ministry of Economic Affairs, "we got eight ships—five on charter with U.S. help and three by purchase on long-term loans from China."

The embassies of Britain and Holland, both potential coaster suppliers, say donors feared the Pakistanis would use the small vessels to carry military equipment and not food.

"We are ready to assure them the ships will not be used for military purposes," said the economic affairs official.

The government figures it can provide at least two dozen coasters by September by charter or purchase, using a $2-million grant from the United States and $2 million of its own foreign exchange holdings.

"Pepsi-Cola's Value-Pak brings the nickel serving back?"

"How?"

Every serving that you pour costs a nickel... not a penny more.

Pepsi-Cola taste. Pepsi-Cola quality. At a price you thought went out with the big-band sound. The reason for the value is simple. First, you're buying in quantity. Eight 16-ounce returnable bottles—an actual gallon of Pepsi. Enough so that you don't have to worry about running out when the gang runs in. Second, you're not buying the bottles. You merely leave a deposit. A deposit that's refunded when you return the bottles. And returning the bottles helps keep our country clean. So get Pepsi-Cola in the 16-ounce Value-Pak—and get a serving of at least five ounces for only a nickel. At participating stores.

Pepsi's got a lot to give.

Local Legion Team Rides 8-2 Over Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville saved all of the fireworks for the last two innings of play here Thursday night and then rode a seven-run ninth inning to an 8-2 thumping of Rocky Mount's American Legion squad.

The win gives Greenville a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series against Rocky Mount and sets the stage for a possible series finale here tonight at Harrington Field.

Greenville and Rocky Mount battled for six scoreless innings before Post 58 managed a run in the bottom of the seventh. Rocky Mount had runners on base in the third and fourth innings but Greenville hurler Glenn Forbes erased them on pick-offs.

In the seventh, Earl Warren led off for the home team with a single to left center and was sacrificed to second by Pete Thompson. Warren reached third on a balk and came around to score on Mike Ruffin's single to center.

Greenville fought back to tie the score in the eighth as Stanley Cobb reached on an error and moved to second on Bill Lee's single to left. Cobb scored when Phil Blount blasted a double to left center.

After being held in check by Rocky Mount's Lewis Hardy, Greenville came out fighting in their half of the ninth inning, sending 11 men to the plate and scoring seven big runs to break the game open.

Tommy Durham led off with a walk and Joe West also got a free pass. Cobb sacrificed both runners up and Forbes punched a bunt back between the mound and first and went all the way to second as Durham scored. J. C. Daniels then delivered a single to score West and Forbes. With the hit and run on, Bill Lee hit back to the pitcher whose throw to second went into centerfield allowing Daniels to move down to third. Blount then got his second extra base hit of the game, a triple that scored Daniels and Lee. Blount then scored when Jimmy Paige's fielders' choice was thrown wide at the plate. Paige moved to second on a walk to Byron Dickens and on down to third on a sacrifice and then came in to score on a passed ball for the seventh run of the frame.

Trailing 8-1, Rocky Mount tried to fight back in the ninth. Thompson beat out an infield single and moved to second on a ground out. Randy Warrick singled to move Thompson to third and he scored on Greg Bunn's single to left. The next runner went down, however, and Rocky Mount was saddled with their second straight series loss. Forbes went the route to get the win for Greenville, giving up eight hits, striking out five and walking none.

Game time tonight is 7:30. If a fourth game is needed, it will be played Saturday night in Rocky Mount.

Only Tar Heel Stars Still In Running

Only one of Greenville's Little League teams remained in contention after the second round of play in the District tournament yesterday. The Tar Heel All-Stars, who beat the Robersonville Stars 6-4, will next face the Roanoke Rapids All-Stars who shut out Greenville's North State team 3-0.

In the first game Roanoke Rapids got all they needed in the second inning. With one out, Lee McCall doubled and scored when his hit was errored in the out-field. Booten Goodall and Mike Mountford drew walks. Both runners moved up on a ground out and a sacrifice fly scored Goodall.

Greenville put two men on in the fourth on two doubles but could not score.

Roanoke Rapids got their final run in the fifth. Quinton Gregory led off with a double and went to third on an error. He scored as McCall reached on another error.

In the second game, the Tar Heel Stars went to work on Robersonville in the first inning. Dana Kendrick opened the inning with a double and went to third on an error. Jay Chenier hit a sacrifice fly scoring Kendrick.

Robersonville tied it up in the second. David Jenkins walked and scored on a double by Mike Joyner.

Greenville broke the tie in the third with a run and went ahead with four in the fourth. Henry Baker led off with a double and scored when Darrell Roebuck singled. Roebuck stole second and scored on a hit by Kendrick. After moving to second on a passed ball, Kendrick went to third on Chenier's fly out. Steve Manning got a hit driving in Kendrick and a double by Joel Clark scored Manning.

St. James And Piney Grove Racked Up Wins

St. James and Piney Grove took wins Thursday night as play neared the championship round in the Church Softball Tournament.

St. James handed Meadowbrook their first loss of the tourney, 15-14 in eight innings, and Piney Grove eliminated Mt. Pleasant from further play, 6-3.

In the first game, both teams scored one in the opening inning but Piney Grove came back to add another in the second and one in the third. Mt. Pleasant closed the gap with a fourth inning run and tied the score with a run in the fifth. Piney Grove came back with three in the sixth and then held Mt. Pleasant in check to gain the win.

St. James and Meadowbrook locked up in a see-saw affair and went into an extra inning to decide the game. Meadowbrook came up with four runs in the first inning with Dwight Foster's homer the big blow. St. James got two back in the second and after Meadowbrook added two in the third, the winners exploded for six in their half of the third inning to regain the lead. A homer by Ronald Vincent was the key hit.

Meadowbrook punched across two more in the fourth inning to tie the score but St. James regained the lead in the fifth with two runs on a home run by Jimmy Smith. Two more came around for St. James in the sixth but Meadowbrook went ahead with five in the top of the seventh. After St. James tied the game on Ricky Chambers homer in the bottom of the seventh, they scored two in the eighth while holding Meadowbrook to one to get the victory.

Piney Grove and Immanuel meet tonight at 7:30 for the National Division championship and First Christian and Meadowbrook tangle at 7:30 on the old field in a loser's bracket game. The winner of the tilt plays St. James for the American Division title.

Dundee Says The Record Won't Count

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Angelo Dundee has been in the fight game long enough to acquire a few favorite bromides.

"Weight doesn't mean might" he says when someone notices that Jimmy Ellis will be out-weighted almost 30 pounds Monday night when he meets Muhammad Ali in a 12-round bout in the Astrodome.

"Height doesn't mean reach" he says when someone notices that Ali has an advantage in that department.

And besides that, Dundee says Ali's official listed reach of 80 inches is a phoney.

How so?

"Those measurements were taken several years ago," said Dundee, who is in the unusual position of being Ellis' manager and Ali's former trainer. "I know the guy who took the original measurements and they're a phony."

Under closer questioning, Dundee said "Whatever it was, I think I added on three or four inches, I'm not sure what it was. I'd like to get a tape and measure him now."

Ellis isn't concerned with weights and measures.

"Sure, he's probably got a reach advantage on me, but that makes no difference," Ellis said. "I know how to maneuver, to shift, dodge, get inside. So I'll take away that advantage."

All things considered, Dundee figures Ali really has only about a one or two inch advantage over Ellis, who is listed with a 76-inch reach.

Dundee made his revelation about Ali's reach shortly after the former champion had once again dazzled the crowd with his best theatrical form.

Ali sparred two rounds with the Rev. Ray Martin, a former professional fighter who now runs an amateur boxing program here.

After Ali and the minister had pushed and shoved for one round, Ali shouted, "This is the last round coming up. You must fall. Say a prayer, reverend. You better hope the angels are in your corner."

Ali and the minister then went into a furious but mock punching exchange and Ali dropped to the canvas and was helped back to his corner.

Ali waved the minister away, then jumped from the ring and ran to his dressing room.

It was one of Ali's better performances.

Three New Grid Coaches Join Rose High Staff

Although football is still a month-and-a-half away, Rose High School has already begun preparations for the upcoming season by adding three new coaches and realigning other positions.

Filling one new slot will be Dave Holton. Originally from Edenton Holton played every sport offered in his high school. From there, he went on to Wake Forest University where he was active on both the football and baseball teams. After graduating, Holton spent two years at Northampton High School coaching both football and baseball.

His duties at Rose will consist of being assistant football coach working with the defensive secondary and the offensive receivers. He will also take over the reigns of the baseball team that has won two conference championships in the last three years. "It feels good to be taking over a good team," Holton commented. "I know Greenville has a strong baseball program from the Little League on up. We want to keep up the good record and maybe improve on the successes of the past."

Along with his coaching duties, Holton will teach U.S. History and attend graduate school at East Carolina University.

Asked how he likes Greenville, Holton said, "I'm happy to be here. I have been familiar with Greenville in years past and in the short time I've been here, I've been impressed by the cooperation and support of the people. Any athletic program gets its true success from the people who support it. I think we can look forward for strong support from the people of Greenville. Any change we will make will be for the betterment of the program."

Earl Wilson, who will be assistant J. V. coach, attended high school in Wake Forest where he lettered in football, basketball, baseball, and track. He was chosen Most Valuable Player and All-Conference in football. After graduating from ECU, Wilson coached for a year in Clover, S. C. as an assistant on the gridiron, and in basketball. He was also head track coach.

After completing graduate school at Appalachian State Wilson went to Snow Hill where he coached and taught Health and P.E. for two years. His football team was undefeated in eighteen games and were Wayne County Conference champs his second year. His track team lost only one meet in two years: to Aycock Jr. High. The basketball team was runner up last year.

Wilson will teach at E. B. Aycock. "I am very much interested and looking forward to working with Coach Phillips and the rest of the coaches," Wilson noted. "Mr. (Dave) Bumgarner pointed out that we will have one of the youngest staffs in the state. If we can get the boys to come out we will have a good year."

The third new addition is a former football player at Rose High. Billy Byrd was captain of the team and chosen Outstanding Player and Best Back in his senior year (1967). In the fall before leaving for UNC, Byrd would help with the first few weeks of football practice at Rose. Byrd graduated this past year from Carolina and will be working at Aycock with one of the football teams as well as directing wrestling and track. He will also teach at Aycock Jr.

High.

With the retirement of Bo Farley, former head coach Bud Phillips was appointed Athletic Director. Phillips, who has coached football for the last several years, will continue as head of the J.V. and will direct track team.

Dave Bumgarner will relinquish his former duties with the baseball team to devote full time to his new position as head football coach. Bumgarner was previously in charge of the offensive ends. "We have a good group of returning lettermen some of whom have two years of experience, and a group of young, energetic, enthusiastic coaches and with this combination we hope to field a winning team," Bumgarner pointed out.

As well as having Holton, Wilson, and Byrd, assisting him, Bumgarner will have Jim Brewington's services as line coach. Brewington will also direct the wrestling program. Osborne Meteye will continue in his role as varsity basketball and tennis mentor. Former ECU star Jim Modlin will take over the J.V. basketball slot vacated by Bob Jones who takes over as Director of Intramurals, a new department in the Athletic Program.

Bob Moynihan will stay on as Swimming coach.

At Aycock, Wilson McDowell, as well as being Director of Athletics, will assume the duties of head coach for football, basketball, and baseball.

All in all it looks as the Athletic program at Rose High School is beginning to take shape. The Rampants open their season on September 3, against Farmville at 7:30 in Ficklen Stadium.

With expected support of students, and the people of Greenville all the coaches are looking for a good year on the gridiron as well as in the other sports.

WORST FIELD
LOUISVILLE (AP) — Many racing experts called the 1971 Kentucky Derby the worst field in the history of the classic.

Only eight of the 20 horses in the race had won stakes.

Five had failed to win an allowance race, including a maiden who had earned only $2,030 in four races.

By KAROL STONGER

Associated Press Sports Writer
HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Arnold Palmer who at 41 admits his endurance as a golfer is ebbing, cooled it for two weeks and came to Westchester with a hot putter and a burning desire.

"There's not too much doubt about one thing," said the ebullient first round leader of the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic. "I can't play five, six, seven tournaments in a row like I used to. I tried it earlier this year and it took too much out of me."

So he skipped the British and Western Open. It paid off. He fired an eight-under-par 64 on the 6,700-yard, par 72 Westchester Country Club course Thursday to take command of the first day's play.

He had a one stroke advantage on little known Larry Wood and a two stroke lead over Ken Still and defending champion Bruce Crampton. At 67 was Gibby Gilbert.

Lee Trevino, playing his 15th consecutive tournament, turned in a 71 and Jack Nicklaus just made par.

"I did what I needed to do, what I should have done earlier," said Palmer of his time off. "It was the first time I had nothing planned to do in a long, long time."

He said he spent most of his time swimming, playing with his kids, doing a little flying and practicing his putting.

What happened was five birdies for a front nine 31 and three birdies for three under on the back side.

He sank three deuces, dropped birdie putts of 15, 18 and 22 feet, reached one par five in two and took the lead when he wedged from six feet for a birdie on the final hole.

What happened was his best 18-hole score since a first round 64 in the Citrus Open two years ago.

Wood, a 32-year-old pro who joined the tour 10 years ago but didn't play full time until last season, carded seven birdies to go three under on the front nine and four under coming home.

Trevino, however, had his problems. He took three bogeys on the front nine with only one par for a 38. On the backstretch he carded only one bogey and salvaged his game with two birdies and an eagle on the par five-No. 12.

So he, as Palmer already did, has opted for a rest—after next week's national team championship.

"I'm bushed, I'm just getting punch tired," said the Mexican American who has won four major tournaments this year, three of them—the U.S., Canadian and British Opens in the last four weeks.

Piggly Wiggly Gains Finals In Softball Play

Piggly Wiggly last night advanced to the finals of the Ladies Softball Tournament with a 4-2 extra-inning win over Foodland.

The game was a rematch of a Tuesday night contest, won by Foodland but protested by Piggly Wiggly on ineligible player grounds. Piggly Wiggly now takes on Little Mint on Tuesday night for the league title.

Piggly Wiggly never trailed Thursday night and held Foodland to two sixth-inning runs. The winners scored one run in the first on singles by Joyce Martin, Jan Moore and Margie Harris, then added another tally in the third. After Foodland came back to tie the score in the sixth with their only runs of the night, Piggly Wiggly then pushed across two runs in the eighth inning for the win.

Charlotte Man Wins Sky View

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — James Black of Charlotte, N.C., dipped below par Thursday for the third day with a one-under 71, then warded off a charge by second-place Chuck Thorpe of Winston-Salem, N.C., to win the Sky View Open Golf Tournament.

Black's three-day total of 205 was two shots better than Thorpe, who finished with a 70 and a total of 207. Black collected $1,000 for first place in the tournament which had a $5,000 purse.

The Washington Senators opened the American League season with a pitching staff that showed a poor 48-68 won-lost record for their 1970 major league efforts.

Lost By 5-0

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina University dropped a 5-0 game to the University of North Carolina here Thursday night and saw their summer collegiate record slip to 8-10.

UNC pitcher Jim Chamberlain, the league top winner, picked up his seventh victory against one defeat with a five hitter over the Pirates. The Tar Heel hurler now has pitched 34 and two-third consecutive scoreless innings. Don Oxidine absorbed the loss for the Pirates.

East Carolina travels to Louisville for games tonight and Saturday night.

O.J. Simpson Suits Up And Says He's Now Fit

By EARL GERHAIM

Associated Press Sports Writer
O.J. Simpson suited up in a Buffalo Bills' uniform for the first time since his injury last November, scampered around the practice field for the benefit of photographers and pronounced himself fit for National Football League action.

The former All-American from Southern California and 1968 Heisman Trophy winner said Thursday the knee he racked up against the Cincinnati Bengals "doesn't bother me a bit."

Simpson, who was the Bills' leading rusher last season with 488 yards despite missing six contests, said he has been working out for months.

Meanwhile, onetime Oakland Raiders starting linebacker Ralph "Chip" Oliver, 40 pounds under his 1969 playing weight after a year in a commune, packed his bags and quietly left the Raiders' camp. He complained the missing poundage weakened him, and "My nerves are too close under my skin."

New York Giants defensive end Wesley Grant was placed on waivers Thursday following a hassle with coach Alex Webster. No reason for the squabble was revealed.

While Grant was leaving the Giants' camp, holdout runner Ron Johnson notified team officials he was en route to begin workouts.

Johnson, who registered a team record by scrambling for over 1,000 yards last season, became the first holdout in the club's 46-year history when he refused to report for the opening of camp.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle ordered the Los Angeles Rams to compensate the New England Patriots for the loss of defensive lineman Phil Olsen, but Patriots General Manager Upton Bell voiced little enthusiasm over the announcement.

Two Philadelphia Eagles mainstays, tight end Fred Hill and defensive back Leroy Keyes, were hospitalized after sustaining injuries during drills. Keyes suffered a dislocated shoulder and is expected to remain on the disabled list for about six weeks.

Hill was hospitalized with a suspected cracked rib.

The Chicago Bears traded running back Ross Montgomery to the Green Bay Packers in exchange for an undisclosed draft choice and corner back Bob Jeter.

Old Crow's good taste begins with men who love to work with their hands.

Anthony Clark has a big responsibility. One false move of his hands and he's mixed the wrong measure of grain for the Old Crow formula. Does he ever miss? The proof is in the good taste of our Bourbon.

Making Bourbon which tastes good, bottle after bottle, made Old Crow famous. Back in 1835, our people figured out the formula that took Bourbon-making out of the hit-or-miss category. Later, they handmade the first sour mash Bourbon. We still use our hands in making Old Crow.

After work, most of our men keep on using their hands. Anthony Clark calls on the same craftsmanship mixing grain as he does tying fishing flies.

Over the years, craftsmanship like this has made Old Crow America's best-tasting Bourbon.

South's opening bid of one diamond in today's hand was passed around to East who re-opened proceedings with a takeout double. South rebid two diamonds and West freely bid two spades. This was followed by two passes and South, who was reluctant to sell out despite partner's repeated failure to take any offensive action, now showed his second suit by bidding three clubs. Inasmuch as he had bid diamonds twice, he was attempting to inform partner that he held six diamonds and four clubs.

When West bid three hearts, North raised his partner to four clubs. His failure to keep the bidding open originally has limited his hand to less than six points. East bid four hearts and South persisted to five clubs, inasmuch as he was not certain that he could defeat the opponents' game and a cheap sacrifice appeared in the offing. East and West can, in fact score ten tricks on the deal.

West opened the queen of hearts, dummy played the five and East followed suit with the four—his lowest heart. It was his desire to obtain a spade shift in order to establish a trick in that suit while West still retained the lead.

West chose to ignore his partner's discouraging signal—the four was the lowest outstanding heart—and he persisted with the jack of that suit. South ruffed and proceeded to play the ace and another club. He was gratified to observe the king and queen appear together on the second trick. West was in and he shifted, belatedly, to a spade. East covered dummy's ten with the jack and South produced the ace. He proceeded to play out his high diamonds, discarding the queen of spades on the fourth diamond. A spade was ruffed in dummy and declarer's hand was high. He lost only one heart and one club.

If West shifts to a spade at trick two, East is assured of scoring the setting trick subsequently when West gets in with the king of clubs, because declarer cannot run the diamonds until he draws trump.

The spade shift was clearly indicated from the bidding as well as East's discouraging signal at trick one. The latter was not apt to raise West to four hearts without four trumps inasmuch as West did not promise more than a four card suit when he bid three hearts. Since a second round of hearts did not figure to live, West ought to switch to the only other suit—spades—in which the defense has an opportunity to develop additional tricks.

Sunday and take Jimmy to the zoo.

"Jimmy was all agog till Sunday arrived.

"Then he got dressed and ready, even to the extent of having bought a bag of peanuts to feed to the elephant.

"When mid-afternoon arrived, Jimmy kept his nose pressed against the front window, eagerly looking for his grandfather.

"But nobody came!

"Jimmy was crestfallen the rest of the day.

"But his grandfather had simply forgotten.

"Last week the same thing happened again, though his grandfather had vowed to take Jimmy swimming.

"But grandpa showed up!

"So please warn grandparents never to make promises to kiddies unless they really plan to fulfill them.

"I've tried to excuse his grandfather but these disappointments will probably leave emotional scars on Jimmy all his life."

Sometimes parents, as well as other relatives or friends, will likewise make exciting future engagements with kiddies and then fail to fulfill them.

Don't be so cruel to children! Nor to your elderly folks in Nursing Homes, either, for the latter build up their hopes as excitedly as youngsters.

Unless an auto wreck or some other legitimate excuse prevents your date, be sure you make good on such a promise.

And if some totally unexpected event does prevent your fulfilling your pledge, at least telephone and move your gala outing ahead to another time.

Our splendid Anti-Cruelty Societies try to stop physical brutality to animals, as well as to human youngsters.

But mental cruelty can hurt a child even worse than physical pain!

It is quite desirable to promise an exciting adventure to youngsters at a future date.

For that lets them anticipate this dramatic outing many days prior to the fulfillment of the gala event.

This delightful anticipation buoys up their morale during the intervening time.

And it is this daily excitement in considering a promised future picnic or party that adds zest to everybody.

That is doubly important to children and older folks, like those in Nursing Homes, hospitals or the lonely grandparents who still may totter around in their little cottage.

Such future expectancy of fun keeps everybody young!

"Youth," said Emerson, "depends on where you live in your thoughts!"

"If you are eagerly looking forward into the tomorrows, you are young, regardless of your calendar age!"

Local Jaycees To Attend Summer Board Meeting

Dave Gordon, president of the Greenville Jaycees, announced that he and ten other Jaycees will be leaving Saturday for Greensboro where they will attend the North Carolina Jaycees annual summer board meeting.

The meeting, hosted by the High Point Jaycees at the Holiday Inn Four Seasons, will be a planning session for the 11,600 Jaycees across North Carolina, Gordon said.

The president noted that while attending the meeting the local representatives will be voting on and planning programs that will continue to provide community leadership.

U.S. Senator B. Everett Jordan of North Carolina will be the key speaker at a Saturday evening banquet.

Both Right Legs Broken, In Casts

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Getting off on the right foot is the goal of most young marrieds, but for Charles and Maria Dillow, that's going to have to wait until they get their right legs out of casts.

Victims of leg fractures July 11 when their motorcycle collided with a car as they were en route to the home of Mrs. Dillow's grandmother, the Dillows face convalescence at least six months before he can return to his job as a truck driver and she as a waitress.

Dillow, 23, a veteran of two tours of duty in Vietnam, and Maria, 18, were married almost two years ago while Dillow was on leave between tours in Vietnam. Upon his discharge, they settled into an apartment, and as Maria put it: "Things were just starting to go well when this happened."

Minister Says Unrest Ominous

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Leaving a scene of human struggle and hope, he has moved into a studious atmosphere, from turbulence, he has stepped into comparative quiet. Yet it's an area, he says of deepening affliction in America.

Counselor Slated To Receive Degree

Howard G. James, of 601 South Elm Street, will receive the master of Arts Degree from Duke University at the end of Summer School.

James did a thesis at Duke on the subject, "The Contribution of Music to Christianity as Professed by Milestones of Musical Art." He completed in psychology, philosophy, administration, Old and New Testament, Speech, and Counseling. His work at ECU Graduate School of Education was in Guidance Counseling. At ECU, he is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Honorary Society in Education. He received the Community Service Award in 1969.

A Medical Social Counselor

Conn., the new associate dean of Yale Divinity School.

"More and more, it has become clear that a fundamental, emerging problem in our country is the despair and alienation of white, middle-class youth. And that means in the universities."

Dean Allen for 10 years was an Episcopal minister on Manhattan's shabby lower East Side where he mixed robust worship, drama, art, jaitime, marches and battling for social and racial justice. Of his shift to the academic world, he says:

"It's where the hurt and need has intensified. Students have fallen into a terrible despair. It just wells up in them. They're crying out for something, for gentleness and compassion. But they see only horrors."

"So they're giving up, cutting out. That's why the campuses have been so quiet this year. It's a frightening thing for the future of the kids and the future of the country."

A spokesman for the Information and Tourism Ministry reported seven deaths in the province from a diarrhea ailment that he said was not cholera.

Sources close to the Zaragoza Health Board said 22 persons had died and that hospitals in the area were treating 250 proven cases of cholera. The sources would not disclose the cause of the deaths.

Until Thursday, Spanish authorities had not used the word "cholera" but referred to an outbreak of "summer diarrhea" in the Jalon valley.

Numerous diarrhea outbreaks in past summers have been blamed on water from the Jalon River.

Spain has called in a World Health Organization expert to investigate the latest outbreak. Meanwhile, 2.5 million Spaniards have been vaccinated against cholera since the disease broke out last month in Morocco.

At Biarritz, France, border officials were reported allowing tourists to enter Spain without proof of cholera vaccination.

"Hall of Fame, New York University" is the way our photographer labeled this shot. Then our editor strained his eyes to see if he could make out any of the names of these great men on the tablets below the busts. He couldn't! Seven great men, but their names are lost in the shadows.

Nor does that fact obscure their greatness. The contribution each made to his fellow men remains. Yes, their greatness lies in the kind of men they were. The goals they strove for. The fruits of their perseverance and dedication.

They are not great men because they are in bronze. The bronze came later!

The largeness or smallness of our lives is measured in what we are, what we strive to be, what we aim to contribute. Yet these human elements are insufficient without the divine element—faith in God.

Today the Church is helping to mold greatness in many men. Someday a grateful posterity will cast a few of them in bronze.

Integration Move Rejected By Elks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For the third consecutive year, the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks convention has voted down a move to let blacks join the fraternal organization.

E. Gene Fournace of Canton, Ohio, the new president—grand exalted ruler—of the Elks, said it is a question of constitutional rights.

The organization, he said, has the right under the First Amendment to admit whom it wants and to meet where it wishes in peaceful, private assembly.

The question came at the Thursday session when the 3,000 delegates were asked to delete the word "white" from the order's membership rules.

"This is part of our Elk constitution and had been in the statutes since 1880 or perhaps before," Fournace said. The Elks were founded in 1888 by a group of New York actors seeking mutual aid.

In separate resolutions, the convention voted to permit Fournace to suspend the racial requirement during his term and when any lodge is on federal property.

The first authority is apparently contingent on a Supreme Court ruling that private clubs may not exclude blacks. The second is designed to protect the group if the federal government moves to close private

Plan Party For Rose Kennedy

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)

—The family of Rose Kennedy plans a delayed party to mark her 81st birthday.

The mother of the late President John F. Kennedy turned 81 Thursday. A widow since the death of former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy in 1969, she remains active, swimming daily in the family pool, taking long walks after lunch and golfing.

The family said a party would be held after Sen. Edward M. Kennedy joins the family at its Cape Cod compound for the weekend.

meetings of segregated clubs on federal property.

Fournace said that some non-white Hawaiians are members.

Fournace said the resolution to erase the racial qualification was offered by the Madison, Wis., lodge. There and in other cities and states, lodges have been threatened with revocation of their licenses to sell liquor on grounds of racial discrimination.

A two-thirds majority was needed for passage of the resolution to admit blacks and an estimated 40 per cent of the delegates voted for it. Voting was by a show of hands and no official count was taken, he said.

The resolution concerning lodges on federal property was directed at those in the Panama Canal Zone.

ABANDONED — This three-year-old girl was found in a Portland supermarket Wednesday. In her hand was a scrawled note with the child's first name, Denise, and a telephone number in Gary, Ind. Police called the number and talked with the child's grandmother, a Mrs. Brigham, who is due in Portland (Maine) soon to get Denise. Police said they have been unable to find Denise's parents. Sen. Jordan Is 'Buckling Down'

AFTER UNIQUE OPERATION — Two doctors at Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York discuss with Mrs. Herbert Coope the complete blood transfusion of a fetus they performed on her unborn child Wednesday. They described the operation as the earliest complete exchange transfusion ever performed on a fetus suffering from severe Rh blood disease. It was accomplished by exposing the head, neck and left arm of the fetus then replacing the 22-week-old fetus after the transfusion. Herbert Coope, husband, is at left. (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan of North Carolina is gearing up for a 1972 fight against other Democrats in what could be his toughest political challenge in 13 years in Congress.

One Democrat, Dr. Eugene Grace of Durham, has already announced his intention of challenging Jordan in the party primary next May and two others say they are seriously considering the race.

North Carolina politicians and political observers here say it is a virtual certainty that Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., and State Sen. Herman A. Moore of Mecklenburg will try to unseat Jordan.

Moore describes himself as similar to Jordan in ideology but said in an interview, "I think it's time North Carolina had a member of the Senate who expressed their desires, thoughts and wishes on the floor of the U.S. Senate." He would not go into detail.

Jordan expresses pride that he rarely makes Senate speeches, saying he can do more for his state as third-ranking Democrat on the Senate Public Works Committee.

"I don't think you change a lot of votes by making a long talk on the Senate floor," Jordan said in an interview.

One North Carolinian here who declined to be identified said Moore would "campaign as more conservative than Galifianakis and more liberal than Jordan."

Under that scenario, the source said, Galifianakis would be eliminated in the primary and Moore would hope to "out-run" the older Jordan in a runoff election campaign.

Moore is 41 and Galifianakis will be 43 Thursday. Both men indicated they would hope to use age to their benefit if they should make the race against the 74-year-old Jordan.

"I would also try to show," Galifianakis said, "that although our difference in age is 33 years, the difference in government service is only three years."

Jordan was a textile industrialist when named to fill a Senate vacancy in 1958. Galifianakis started his political career three years later in the state legislature. Grace, an ardent critic of Medicaid, is considered at this time a long shot.

The outlook for would-be Jordan opponents skyrocketed temporarily last February when the senator underwent surgery for removal of a cancerous portion of his intestine.

But the hospital declared the operation a success and Jordan enthusiastically tells visitors how healthy he is.

"I'm well and strong and vigorous and I put in a good long day's work," the soft-spoken senator said. "I can be worth a lot to the state of North Carolina as opposed to a new, inexperienced man. You have to know where to go and who to see to get things done."

"I'd like to stay another term," he said. "I wouldn't stay beyond that."

One state office holder who will be without a job after next year but considered certain not to oppose Jordan is Democratic Gov. Robert W. Scott. He is related to Jordan and it was his deceased father's Senate seat that Jordan was appointed to in 1958.

On the Republican side of the state's political fence, the potential candidates are not as sure of themselves.

Rep. James T. Broyhill of Lehigh has been considered the GOP's best hope and made fairly frequent trips around the state earlier this year testing the political climate. However, in an interview last week, Broyhill appeared subdued about his desires and his chances in a race against the incumbent.

"Personally, I think Sen. Jordan will be a strong candidate," he said.

Broyhill noted the recent sudden death of his top assistant, Vincent Monzell, and said he is "not really studying hard" the possibility of a Senate race. He said he has only one or two speaking engagements planned during the next several weeks outside of his own congressional district.

"If I had to sign a paper today for one or the other, it would be the House of Representatives," Broyhill said.

Broyhill's biggest booster is probably fellow GOP Rep. Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell of Winston-Salem. Mizell himself has been mentioned as a possible GOP candidate but says he wants nothing more than to serve his congressional district.

When asked if a Broyhill final decision to avoid the race would throw him into the contest, Mizell said he doesn't foresee that happening. But, he added, "When I was a county commissioner I had no intention of running for the House either."

Tainted Salami Recalled By Meat Company

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armour & Co. has recalled from stores its "Genoa Salami" possibly tainted with bacterial toxin blamed for the illnesses of at least nine persons.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday the illnesses occurred in May and June but the cause was not pinpointed until late last week.

The department said some of the salami prepared at Armour's plant in St. Paul, Minn., contained a toxin produced by staphylococcus bacteria. Consumption produces nausea, vomiting and either digestive upset.

"There is no cause for alarm but we don't want to take any chances with people's health," said Dr. Clifton B. Cox, president of Armour Good Co.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's $1.5-billion school desegregation bill has been delayed again by efforts in a House Education subcommittee to expand it into a general aid program. Democrats supporting a $6.8-billion combination general aid and desegregation measure prevented any votes in the subcommittee Thursday in a fight for time to build support for their proposal.

Chairman Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., scheduled another meeting for Monday and said every effort will be made to settle the issue at the time. However, it appears unlikely the legislation will clear Congress before the start of the month-long summer recess Aug. 6.

Final action had been set Thursday but the entire subcommittee session was taken up with reading of the 40-page substitute package offered by Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore.

Although no votes were taken it appeared the Green substitute would have been defeated, 10 to 8, had it come to a vote. Three of the 11 Democrats, Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins of California and Shirley Chisholm and Herman Badillo of New York, were prepared to vote with the seven subcommittee Republicans against it.

Hawkins has opposed all efforts to tie general aid to the desegregation bill for fear it would jeopardize final passage of the desegregation bill. Badillo and Mrs. Chisholm, who at one time indicated support for the Green substitute, expressed reservations about some provisions Thursday.

Mrs. Green's bill, which includes provision from another substitute package offered by Rep. William D. Ford, D-Mich., is designed to increase federal support for elementary and secondary schools from the present 7 per cent of total costs to 10 per cent this year, 15 per cent next year and up to 25 per cent by 1975.

It would provide $4 billion in general aid to all districts based on their school-age population, $1.5 billion in desegregation aid based on the number of minority-group children and $1.3 billion distributed on the basis of the number of children from low-income families.

Children in parochial schools would share in the funds if arrangements could be worked out between those schools and public school officials.

Ford said if the package loses in the subcommittee it will be reoffered in the full Education and Labor Committee and, if necessary, on the House floor.

Moon Camera To See Eclipse

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A television camera will be left on the lunar surface by Apollo 15 may give man his first view of an eclipse of the sun as seen from the moon.

Astronauts Advird R. Scott and James B. Irwin will use the color camera during their excursions on the moon, then will leave it behind when they start back to earth.

The camera, which can be controlled remotely by Mission Control, should have about eight hours of battery power remaining for televising the eclipse.

The 12-day Apollo 15 mission is scheduled for launch from Cape Kennedy on Monday. Eleven days later, on Aug. 6, the spacemen will be on their way home as the earth begins moving between the moon and the sun.

This casts a shadow on the moon which will be viewed in the eastern hemisphere of earth as a lunar eclipse.

However, viewed from the moon, it will be the sun which is eclipsed.

Dr. Thornton Page, a NASA scientist, said the colors of the eclipse viewed by the television camera should be spectacular. The camera will be turned on at about 2:25 p.m. EDT, just as the final crescent of the sun is blocked by the earth.

"The sunlight shining through the earth's atmosphere should create a vivid red ring with a big green diamond," he said.

The solar corona, the flames of the sun which leap millions of miles into space, will next come into view as the earth blocks the sun's main body.

Dr. Page said that with sunlight blocked, scientists will be able to focus on planets and stars never before seen from the moon.

"Because of the protective visors he must wear, no astronaut has ever seen a star while on the moon," said Page.

The TV camera also will focus on planets.

"Venus should be clearly visible," said Page. "Saturn and Mercury may also be seen. We'll also look for a reported new planet near Saturn and will try to find a comet near the sun. None of this could be observed effectively without an eclipse."

Policeman Is Injured

PINETOPS — A Greenville police officer was injured when the motorcycle he was riding went out of control and crashed into a roadside ditch 6½ miles west of here yesterday on N.C. 43. Investigators reported officer Randy Nichols, 23, was taken to the Edgecombe County hospital then transferred to Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville where he was admitted for treatment of injuries received in the crash.

Nichols, officers said, was returning to Greenville with a 1968 model motorcycle belonging to the Greenville Police Department at the time of the accident. The motorcycle had been taken to Rocky Mount for servicing.

Nichols was in the process of passing a farm truck when mechanical trouble developed, according to investigators.

The motorcycle started skidding out of control, overturned and landed in a roadside ditch.

The vehicle, valued at $600 was listed as a total loss. Investigating Highway Patrolman C. R. Wilkins of Pinetops made no charges.

sisters, Mrs. Rena Rodgers of Greenville, Mrs. Mary Perkins of Washington, D.C., and Mrs. Faisella Jackson of Alliquippa, Pa.; one brother, James Boyd of Greenville; and 16 grandchildren.

The body will be at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home. The family will meet friends there Saturday from 9 to 10 p.m.

100-Knot Vessel Begins Testing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two years of testing began Thursday for the world's first propeller-driven surface effect ship (SES), an 80-foot vessel costing $15 million.

The SES, expected to be the forerunner of a future 100-knot navy, is lifted above the water by powerful fans so that only the thin edges of the hull are below the surface.

The stern propulsion system remains in the water, providing stability.

The SES was built by Bell Aerospace Corp.

have blocked much of the flow to local-level projects.

They told Congress Thursday that as of March 31, 39 states still had not distributed 13 per cent of their fiscal 1969 funds to state and local programs; 40 states had 63 per cent of fiscal 1970 money as yet undelivered to project handlers, and 24 states had not handed out 95.3 per cent of the fiscal 1971 money.

Furthermore, reported Deputy Director Gregory J. Ahart of the General Accounting Office's Civil Division, federal investigations in New York, California and Illinois disclosed cases in which money from the Justice Department program was being used in social-condition-improvement projects.

For example, Ahart cited a New York case in which a pair of $108,000 grants went to a youth employment service project, a California case in which $75,602 went to a county board of education to aid kindergarten pupils with potential chronic learning problems, and a New York case of $100,000 going to a city methadone project to test its use in treating heroin addicts.

At a House Government Operations subcommittee hearing on the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration's controls on anticrime grants, Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., told Ahart this disclosure was "fantastic—if we go down this road ... we're getting away from the whole purpose of upgrading law enforcement."
