Sen. Jackson Tests N. C. Sentiment

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington state was in North Carolina during the weekend to test sentiment about his suggested bid for the Democratic nomination for president. But he took time out from the hand-shaking to take some jabs at the Nixon administration and answer some questions about school busing for integration.

Jackson attended a reception in Raleigh Friday night, then moved on to Charlotte for a luncheon and news conference Saturday before attending a Young Democrats banquet in Wrightsville Beach Saturday night.

Jackson said in Charlotte that he favored busing when it helps a child, but added: "I oppose busing for busing's sake."

He said that since the U. S. Supreme Court's ruling in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg County school case upholding a school plan requiring massive busing of pupils, the government seems to have "gone off on a bent" in ordering busing whether or not it improved the education of individual pupils.

Jackson said he opposed the establishment of classroom racial quotas to be attained by busing. "That in itself shows that the question is arbitrary," he said.

The ultimate solution, he said, lies in the desegregation of housing patterns with non-whites being moved to areas outside the center cities.

The senator said he opposed legislation to establish import quotas to textiles and other goods. He said the number of items added to the quota list would grow so long through amendments that it could "bring international trade to a complete standstill."

Instead, he said, he favors a conference of major industrial powers to work out voluntary, bilateral agreements on trade items.

Jackson reiterated his position favoring temporary restrictions on wages and prices. He said the Republicans "have given us inflation and unemployment at the same time, and that's the work of an economic genius of their kind, I must say."

In an address to Young Democrats at Wrightsville Beach, Jackson listed steps he thought were needed to "the economy around."

They included immediate imposition of a wage-price freeze; application now of personal tax reductions scheduled for 1972 and 1973 to stimulate consumer spending; re-enactment of the investment credit program to restore business and encourage industry investment; proceed with the frozen accelerated public works projects and enactment of the Economic Disaster Relief Act to pump $2 billion into the nation's areas of regional depression.

Israeli Troops In Battle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Israeli troops battled Palestinian guerrillas for six hours today in the hills of southern Lebanon, commando sources reported in Beirut, the Lebanese capital.

The fighting centered around the village of Hebbariye, on the western slopes of Mt. Hermon. The guerrillas commandos asserted Israeli units moved four miles into Lebanon and opened the attack with armored cars and halftracks.

A spokesman for Al Fatah, the largest guerrillas group said the Palestinians fought back with antitank guns, rockets and machine guns.

Witnesses said the fighting later spread 15 miles north of Hebbariye to the hills overlooking the Lebanese town of Gachaya.

Commando sources in Beirut said there were casualties on both sides but declined to give figures.

The Israeli command declined to comment on the fighting report.

An increasing number of guerrillas have moved into south Lebanon after their defeat by the Jordanian army.

In Egypt, President Anwar Sadat laid down new conditions before he would sign an agreement to reopen the Suez Canal.

He said Israel must agree to withdraw completely from the Sinai peninsula within six months after it begins its withdrawal from the east bank of the Suez Canal.

Otherwise, Sadat told the Arab Socialist Union in Cairo Sunday, Egypt will go to war to liberate all territories occupied by Israel in the 1967 war.

He emphasized his willingness to reopen the Suez to international navigation but only as a first step toward an overall Middle East settlement.

India And Soviet Union Sign A 20-Year Treaty

By MYRON L. BELKIND
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI (AP) — India and the Soviet Union signed a 20-year treaty of "peace, friendship and cooperation" today which in effect put the Russians firmly on the side of the Indians in their potentially explosive dispute with Pakistan.

Foreign Minister Swaran Singh said the treaty should provide a "stabilizing factor in favor of peace" in Asia. "It is also a treaty of nonaggression," he told cheering members of parliament when he informed them of the pact signed two hours earlier by him and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

The 12-article treaty does not commit either country to give military aid automatically to the other in the event of an attack by a third nation. Instead, the key ninth article says: "Each high contracting party undertakes to abstain from providing any assistance to any third party that engages in armed conflict with the other party."

"In the event of either party being subjected to an attack or a threat thereof, the high contracting parties shall immediately enter into mutual consultations in order to remove such threat and to take appropriate effective measures to ensure peace and the security of their countries."

Singh told Parliament: "This should act as a deterrent to any powers that may have aggressive designs on our territorial integrity and sovereignty. It is, therefore, in essence, a treaty of peace against war."

But with tensions between India and Pakistan mounting steadily over the Pakistani army's repression of the independence movement in East Pakistan and the flight of 7 million East Pakistani refugees to India, the treaty could set the stage for a new confrontation in which Russia would side with India and Communist with Pakistan.

India officials, in briefings with newsmen, have made clear that they expect the United States also to back Pakistan, an ally with America in the Central Treaty Organization and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Pakistan and Peking have maintained close relations ever since China's 1962 border clashes with India, while the Soviet Union has been close to India and its main supplier of arms.

Relations between India and the United States are rapidly deteriorating also because of continued U.S. arms shipments to Pakistan. During a meeting with newsmen last week, a government spokesman said the "highest levels of the State Department and White House" were using their prestige "to shore up and back up the Pakistan regime."

The new Soviet-Indian treaty apparently was worked out in highly secret negotiations concluded before Gromyko's arrival Sunday on what had appeared to be a hastily arranged visit occasioned by the threat of war between India and Pakistan.

In the eighth article of the 1,500-word pact, both nations undertake not to "enter into or participate in any military alliance directed against the other party." They also agree "to abstain from any aggression against the other party and to prevent the use of its territory for the commission of any act which might inflict military damage on the other."

Similarly, the 10th article bars both nations from entering "into any obligation, secret or public, with one or more states which is incompatible with this treaty."

The treaty also stresses the "great importance" the two countries attach to economic, scientific and technological cooperation between them. One article pledges them to "promote further development of this and contacts between them in the fields of science, art, literature, education, public health, press, radio, television, cinema, tourism and sports."

In another article, the two countries pledge "to continue their efforts to preserve and to strengthen peace in Asia and throughout the world, to halt the arms race and to achieve general and complete disarmament, including both nuclear and conventional, under effective international control."

The treaty is to be extended automatically for successive five-year periods after the initial 20 years unless either country wants to terminate it by giving 12 months notice before it is due to expire.

The treaty will come into force within one month, "subject to ratification," presumably by the parliamentary organizations of each country.

Hobby Claims Kickoff For Exploited Workers

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — "We're here to kick off a campaign for all the exploited black and white workers in North Carolina," Wilbur Hobby, state AFL-CIO president, said Sunday at a tobacco workers rally.

Hobby and officials of the Tobacco Workers International Union (TWIU) led more than 1,000 persons on a 12-block march through this northeastern North Carolina tobacco town in support of striking workers.

The peaceful demonstration ended at a church in a predominantly black neighborhood where Hobby pledged the support of 125,000 Tar Heel members of the FL-CIO "in your fight for economic justice."

Referring to a strike by some 100 workers against the Export Leaf Tobacco Co., the union leader said "we aren't going back until we get a more substantial pay increase."

Export has offered to raise workers pay from $1.82 to $1.92 an hour. "If they come with their lousy dime, they might as well stay home and watch television," Hobby said.

The union struck Export's Wilson plant June 28 and has threatened to strike three others if contract negotiations fail.

A fifth plant also is involved in litigation over union recognition.

The TWIU is seeking a 25-cent an hour increase, a retirement program for seasonal and fulltime workers and other fringe benefits from Wilson area plants.

Tobacco marketing specialist John Cyrus of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture has warned that a prolonged labor dispute could delay the opening of the Eastern Belt tobacco market.

Wallace Mergler, first vice president, TWIU, of Washington and Richmond, said at the rally. "We have displayed a willingness to bargain at the table and we want to achieve what is best for those we represent. We will not allow the companies to exploit and intimidate our workers."

The TWIU represents some 2,600 seasonal workers vital to the flue-cured tobacco industry in North Carolina.

Attack Is Made By Bombers

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers made their 48th attack of the year inside North Vietnam Sunday, and B52 bombers attacked enemy positions one mile south of the demilitarized zone, the U.S. Command announced today.

The command said the "protective reaction" strike six miles north of the DMZ was against anti-aircraft guns that fired on an unarmed reconnaissance plane and two fighter-bombers escorting it.

The U.S. planes were not hit. The F4 pilots said they were unable to assess the damage their bombs caused because of the smoke.

The reconnaissance plane presumably was gathering photo and electronic intelligence on North Vietnamese gun sites, supply points and troop movements.

Meanwhile, three B52 bombers dropped 90 tons of bombs on suspected troop concentrations nine miles northwest of Cam Lo and a mile south of the DMZ. The raids were about four miles north of the much fought over Fire Base Fuller, which was hit with two heavy mortar barrages last week.

Six other B52s pounded suspected troop concentrations and weapons positions near the Laotian border before dawn today.

British Claim Buzzing

LONDON (AP) — British airline pilots charge that West German and French fighter planes have been buzzing them in apparent practice attacks, threatening a repeat of the recent Japanese collision disaster.

"We are extremely concerned at the number of near-misses involving military aircraft over Europe," the British Airline Pilots Association said in a statement to the Sunday Express.

"We are more disturbed that when we try to chase up these near-misses we meet a stone wall of denials every time."

The West German and French governments had no immediate comment on the accusations.

The pilots claimed that the military fliers buzzed them repeatedly and apparently locked them in their gunights before veering off. A spokesman said there were eight near-misses over West Germany last year.

"It is well known that civil aircraft flying at 30,000 feet or more make an ideal target for young fighter pilots under training," said a spokesman for the British pilots' association. He maintained it was "commonplace" for the military planes to approach "close enough for them to register a 'kill' and at the same time present the sort of hazard that may have caused the Japanese disaster."

He referred to the death of 162 persons in the collision of a Japanese airliner and a Japanese fighter on July 30. It was the worst disaster in aviation history.

One Guardsman Killed As Lightning Hits Tent

FT. STEWART, Ga. (AP) — One North Carolina National Guardsman was killed and seven others were injured slightly Sunday night when lightning struck their tent, the Guard said today.

The accident occurred shortly after members of the 30th Infantry Division arrived at Ft. Stewart for two weeks' annual summer training.

The dead man was identified as Sgt. I.C. Reuben S. Crumpler of Clinton, N.C. He was a member of Headquarters Company, 1st Brigade, 30th Infantry Division. His survivor was listed as his widow, Mrs. Joyce P. Crumpler, of Clinton.

Names of the dead soldier and those who were injured were withheld pending notification of relative. A Guard spokesman said their families would be contacted today.

Governor Will Speak To Group

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Gov. Bob Scott will head a list of notables who will speak to the 600 delegates of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners during their 64th annual convention which begins in Asheville Wednesday.

Scott will address the association's annual banquet Friday night. Other speakers during the convention will include U.S. Sen. B. Everett Jordan, Rep. Wilmer Mizell, Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan and House Speaker Phil Godwin.

public information officer for the North Carolina Guard, said the soldiers had taken up a field position on the Ft. Stewart reservation after completing an overnight motor march Sunday.

"All the victims were in the same tent that was struck by lightning," Barbour said.

He said two of the injured were treated on the scene. Another received medical attention at a field station, and four others were returned to the main base at Ft. Stewart. All were released after being treated.

The long motor march was completed with only one high-way mishap.

The tent which was struck by lightning was a large general purpose tent which was being used as an office.

The North Carolina units are in a bivouac area about 20 miles from the main post here.

Apollo 15's Astronauts, Reunited With Families, Start Debriefing

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 15's astronauts, reunited with their families after a month's separation, today start the long series of debriefings that will give scientists, engineers and doctors the minute details of their historic moon journey.

In the Lunar Receiving Laboratory, geologists are preparing to open the first of the moon rock boxes the astronauts returned from Hadley Base.

David R. Scott James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden spend the morning undergoing extensive medical examination. In the afternoon they shift to technical sessions to answer questions about the 12-day voyage that took Scott and Irwin to the surface of the moon for 67 hours of exploration among the highest lunar mountains and along an ancient canyon.

Following splashdown Saturday, doctors aboard the recovery carrier Okinawa pronounced all three adventurers in good condition.

An Air Force C141 transport flew the astronauts from Hawaii to nearby Ellington Air Force Base Sunday night, and the men rushed into the embrace of their families—a first for a moon-landing crew.

The three previous crews had to spend three weeks in quarantine, but experts concluded that moonmen bring back no harmful germs and eliminated the isolation for Apollo 15.

So Scott and Irwin rushed into the arms of their wives and daughters. Worden, who is divorced, clutched his two daughters. It was the first time the astronauts had been with their families since the Fourth of July weekend.

A crowd of about 2,500 who braved a drizzling rain cheered and waved banners and flags while a band in Scottish kilts played "Fly Me to the Moon."

Scott told the assemblage that he saw the full moon from the Okinawa Sunday before dawn.

"As I looked at it, I felt a little homesick," he said. "If you go some place as beautiful and as fascinating as that and you spend three very intense days, you really get attached to it."

Irwin told the crowd, which included several Space Center workers, that he thought often while in space of "the genius that created such beautiful machinery, the people who put it all together and finally the people on the ground who helped us operate it."

Arriving with the astronauts were about 100 pounds of moon rocks, sealed in airtight containers. The first 75 pounds came here on an earlier plane and were transported to the Lunar Receiving Laboratory.

Scientists plan to open the first of the boxes in a day or two to begin the years-long examination which might provide clues to the origin of the moon, earth and solar system.

Included in the collection is a so-called "Genesis rock" which Scott and Irwin picked up at Spur Crater. They described it as crystalline in composition and believe it may date back 4.6 billion years to the birth of the moon.

Congratulations for the astronauts also came from abroad. Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny messaged President Nixon to "convey congratulations and good wishes." Pope Paul VI said in a telegram to the President that he hopes the moon exploration will lead to "progress, peace and understanding among men."

President Georges Pompidou of France followed the event "with much interest and emotion," his office announced. He sent President Nixon a telegram reading: "I wish to express all my congratulations for the immense success of American science and technology and render homage to the valor of the crew of the Apollo 15, whose exploit goes down in history as a benefit to all humanity."

The Ellington ceremony was the astronauts' second welcome of the day. Earlier they flew by helicopter off the recovery carrier USS Okinawa to Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii.

Irwin said their reception in Hawaii was much more friendly than that received by the captain of the first Endeavour exploration ship. Endeavour was the name of the Apollo 15 command ship, named after the vessel that took British Capt. James Cook on a scientific expedition to the Pacific in the 18th Century.

Cook, the first European to visit the Hawaiian Islands, perished at the hands of the natives.

Miss Donna Joyce Dixon Couple Speaks Vows Sunday Afternoon Weds Rev. J.T. Hammond

The marriage of Miss Donna Joyce Dixon and the Rev. James Thurmond Hammond Jr. was solemnized Sunday afternoon at 3:30 at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Vernon Dixon Sr. of Rt. 3, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thurmond Hammond Sr. of Bladenboro.

The Rev. R. M. Stewart, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. R. M. Stewart, pianist, who also sang, "Old Fashioned Home," "Each for the Other," "The Bride," of her own composition for the occasion and the "Wedding Prayer" and "So Send I You" as the benediction.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal Victorian style gown of peau de soie and Alencon lace fashioned with a scalloped lace mandarin collar, full length bishop sleeves, empire waist with an illusion yoke. Alencon lace motifs and appliques trimmed the full length A-line skirt and tubular chapel train which was attached to the back of the waist.

Her veil of silk illusion fell from a tiara headpiece of re-embroidered alencon lace petals encrusted with pearls and satin rosebuds centered with pearls. She carried a white Bible, gift of the bridegroom, with cathedral strands of stephanotis and white bridal satin streamers.

Miss Sylvia Rose Dixon, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of spring green georgette chiffon over taffeta fashioned with a high colonial neckline, bishop sleeves with fitted cuffs and an empire waist. She wore a picture hat with matching ribbon streamers. She carried a colonial nosegay of lavender asters and pom poms interspersed with baby's breath tied with spring green satin streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ronnie Mills of Goldsboro, Miss Sue Ellis of Bladenboro, Miss Lou Tina Forrest, of Greenville and Mrs. Marvin Wiggins of Snow Hill. They wore formal gowns and hats of lavender fashioned identical to that of the honor attendant. They carried colonial nosegays of lavender asters and pom poms interspersed with baby's breath tied with lavender satin streamers.

Miss Jennifer Dixon, sister of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a formal gown of green and lavender fashioned like the honor attendants and carried a basket of lavender and green petals tied with lavender and green satin streamers.

J. T. Hammond Sr. served his son as best man. Ushers were Mack Vernon Dixon Jr., brother of the bride of Chapel Hill, Wayne Ellis, Billy Ellis, Jim Wall, both of Bladenboro, and Ronnie Luck of Lake Waccamaw.

Mrs. Frankie Hardee of Greenville directed the wedding. Mrs. Robert Lassister of Winterville presided at the bridal registry assisted by Glenwood Haddock of Ayden, who distributed the wedding programs.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Dixon chose a pink ensemble with a crepe dress and matching chiffon coat. She wore matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother selected a blue polyester knit sheath fashioned with a braided belt and fabric rosette. Matching accessories completed her outfit. Both mothers wore corsages of Georgianna orchids.

The grandmothers, Mrs. Minnie Ruth Mills, Mrs. Mamie Dixon and Mrs. H. L. Little wore white hybrid orchid corsages. For traveling, the bride changed into a lavender polyester A-line dress with matching accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Chicod High School and East Carolina University, where she was a member of Alpha Phi Gamma and Sigma Tau Delta. She served as editor of the Buccaneer for two years.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Bladenboro High School and Pembroke State University. After a wedding trip to Georgia, the couple will reside in Dunn, where he will be a theology student at Heritage Bible College and coordinator of intramural activities, and she will be head of the Literary Department.

Reception

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall which was decorated with tall stands of wedding plants. Magnolia leaves graced the windows.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Adams of Greenville, aunt and uncle of the bride, greeted guests and invited them to the refreshment table which was covered with a formal floor length cloth of white linen and centered with an arrangement of lavender carnations and white pom poms interspersed with baby's breath flanked on either side by white burning tapers.

After the bridal couple cut the first traditional slice of cake, Mrs. David Gladson served cake and Mrs. Jimmy Mobley poured punch from a silver punch bowl. Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Wilson.

After-Rehearsal Party
Following the rehearsal Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hammond Sr., parents of the bridegroom, entertained at an after-rehearsal party held at the fellowship hall of the church. Guests were greeted by the Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Stewart.

Punch was poured by Mrs. J. T. Hammond and Mrs. Mack Dixon served cake.

Bridesmaids Luncheon
Miss Donna Joyce Dixon and her wedding attendants were honored Wednesday with a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Jimmy Mobley.

Arrangements of mixed summer flowers were used on the tables and throughout the house.

The bride-elect was remembered with a white mum corsage and a silver tray from the hostesses.

The bride-elect remembered her attendants with gifts. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Mobley, Mrs. Frankie

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Lynne Stallings and Gary Franklin Eller was performed in the St. James United Methodist Church Sunday at 4:00 p.m.

The Rev. Norman C. Bennett officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. William Cain, organist, and Mrs. James Lee, soloist.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harrison Stallings of Greenville, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white silk organza designed with an empire bodice and square neckline defined with peau d'ange lace and pearl accents. The full sleeves had lace cuffs with matching lace motifs and pearls. Panels of lace extended from the bodice to the A-line skirt ending with white bows.

She wore a cathedral mantilla of English net with a border of matching lace. The bride carried a colonial nosegay of white bridal roses tied with matching streamers of satin and bridal tulle.

Miss Deborah Chapin of Raleigh was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Claiborne Young of Raleigh, Mrs. M.A. Robertson Jr. of Smithfield and Mrs. M.N. Clark of Reidsville.

The attendants wore orchid chiffon gowns with empire bodices and long full sleeves. White Venise lace latticed with matching satin ribbon accented the empire waist. They wore matching bow headpieces with matching illusion veils. They carried colonial white baskets overflowing with summer flowers of lavender and white with matching streamers of satin and bridal tulle.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Eller of Lenoir.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Gerald Eller of Lenoir, Wallace Kale of Arlington, Va., and Richard Curtis of Raleigh.

After a wedding trip to New England, the couple will reside in Suffolk, Va.

The bride attended Meredith College and graduated from East Carolina University. She will be employed by the Nansemond County School System.

The bridegroom graduated from N.C. State University. He is an accountant with the Frank E. Sheffer Accounting Firm, Suffolk, Va.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Masonic Temple.

Guests were greeted by Clifton Stallings, uncle of the bride, and Miss Dalen Wainwright of Wilson.

Miss Gloria Shelton of Danville, Va. poured punch and Miss Linda Eller, cousin of the bridegroom, served wedding cake.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Eller, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom. Miss Eula Stallings, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest register.

Pre-nuptial events honoring the Eller-Stallings wedding party included a wedding breakfast held at the Holiday Inn Sunday at noon given by the parents of the bridegroom.

A rehearsal dinner was given at the Candlewick Inn by Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Stallings, parents

Miss Nancy Thomas Weds Sunday

FARMVILLE — Miss Nancy Carol Thomas became the bride of Linwood Allen Harris in a double ring ceremony Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in Farmville United Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Edgar Thomas of Farmville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. James Linwood Harris of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire

A-line gown in imported organza designed by Alfred Angelo with high neckline accented with pearls and full bishop sleeves. The neckline, bodice and sleeves were made of peau d'ange lace with wide lace cuffs. The skirt was enhanced with lace panels down each side front and around the hemline of skirt. It had a small bow at the back waistline with seed pearls in center. She used a matching long mantilla of illusion edged with a wide border of peau d'ange lace flowing chapel length. She carried a Dutch colonial bouquet of mixed summer flowers.

Maid of honor was Miss Jane Brett of Como, cousin of the bride. She wore a formal pink chiffon dress with long sleeves and high ring collar with white lace vest effect over the bodice. She wore a headpiece of pink bows with petaled streamer and carried a traditional bouquet of mixed summer flowers.

The bridesmaids were Miss Jane Patterson, Miss Blannie Bridgers, both of Richmond,

Inflationary Spiral Will Go On

There can be no question that recent settlements in rail and steel industries are inflationary and will be reflected in a continuing inflationary spiral in the nation's economy.

Settlement in the steel industry included wage increases of about 30 per cent over a three year period, in addition to improvements in fringe benefits. Industry spokesmen said the new contract would raise costs 15 per cent during the first year. In less than 24 hours after the settlement was reached, steel producers announced price increases of about eight per cent which will be reflected in price hikes throughout the economy.

The rail strike settlement called for wage hikes of 42 per cent over the 42 months covered by the new contract. Although the industry won work rule changes which should enable them to effect important economies in operations, it is highly questionable whether these will off-set the cost of the higher wage agreements.

While a threatened strike in one basic industry was averted by a last-minute settlement, and an 18-day-old strike was settled in another, both situations contributed to increasing unemployment. Steel firms announced layoffs because of having to re-fire their furnaces and projected lower production schedules because of considerable stockpiles of steel accumulated by customers in anticipation of a strike. The impact of price hikes announced by the steel firms is yet to be measured in terms for future production. There could be adverse effects both in domestic and foreign sales on an industry which even before the new settlement was operating at below optimum productivity rates.

What long-term employment changes may result from work-rule changes accepted by railroad workers also remains to be seen. But here again indications seem to point to ultimate reduction of work forces.

While prevention of a strike in the steel industry and the settlement of the strike in the rail industry both were important plus factors in the nation's economy, the conditions of the settlements hold potential long-term perils for the economy.

They contain built-in factors which could contribute to increasing the inflation spiral and at the same time further aggravate the unemployment situation which already plagues the nation.

Attorney Gen. Race Important

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — From the standpoint of impact on their daily lives, the most important election for North Carolinians next year may not be for Governor or U.S. Senator.

It could be the race for Attorney General.

The possibility exists that their choice will determine whether vigilant consumer protection is continued as the watchword for the state's chief legal officer.

Robert Morgan gave that cast to the role of attorney may come forward later. Listing of Prospects William W. Staton, Sanford — A State Senator, he has good statewide party contacts through service as Democratic National Committeeman in the administration of former Gov. Terry Sanford. He may carry the asset, as well as liability of identification with the so-called Sanford wing of the party. Staton has said clearly he will run for attorney general if Morgan goes after another office.

Philip P. Godwin, Gatesville — Currently House Speaker, Godwin has expressed interest in both the race for lieutenant governor and attorney general. In view of the crowded field for the former, Godwin is from the far East, where votes are scanty, and lacks a strong image in the populous Piedmont. He is unlikely to make any announcement until after the fall meeting of the legislature when he again presides over the lower chamber.

Elton Edwards, Greensboro — Edwards, a moderate, served three legislative terms and lost a bid for re-election to the '71 Senate. He has told friends the office of attorney general looks attractive. It could be a disadvantage that he is from the hometown of Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles, Jr., an aspirant for the gubernatorial nomination.

Edgar J. (Red) Gurganus, Williamston — After two Senate terms, Gurganus failed to come back in '71 but kept in legislative touch through a new liaison post with the department of administration. An Easterner and a state Jaycee leader in his time, Gurganus has a limited statewide recognition factor.

Western Possibility Lamar Gudger, Asheville — Gudger is a State Senator, and a lawyer of sound reputation in his western area. It would be a challenge to mount a statewide campaign.

Rep. Richard S. Clark of Monroe, identified as a consumer champion, has been mentioned but some friends say he has indicated he would not run. Another name heard is that of Rep. Gerald Arhold of Lillington; the fact that he and Morgan hail from the same town might be his handicap.

In years past, the office of attorney general was clearly Establishment. Its chief function was to serve as lawyer to state government.

Morgan changed that. He beat the incumbent, Wade Bruton, to become attorney general and chart a course of involvement.

What would happen to that role, should serve only one term, is the question for the future and his successor.

BRYAN HAISLIP

general, recruited an energetic young staff, and took up the public's cause in matters ranging from utility company rates to deceptive advertising practices.

Now Morgan, a 45-year-old Lillington attorney and former state legislator, is thinking of higher things. Some close friends say he has decided to run for governor; his entry into the Senate race is not foreclosed.

Either case prompts the question of his successor in the second floor offices of the Justice Building just off Capitol Square.

Candidates Are Plentiful Hopeful politicians have not overlooked the implications of the Attorney General's ambitions. Already half-a-dozen or so names are mentioned as prospective candidates in next spring's Democratic primary. Definite announcements wait on the final word from Morgan; hardly anyone would like to contemplate taking him on in a scrap for his present job.

Whoever succeeds Morgan must face comparison with his performance, and may feel compelled to continue at least lip service to consumer affairs. At the same time, economic interests which have felt cramped by a zealous attorney general can be expected to be looking for candidates favorable to their views.

Since they are a prime source for campaign funds, they will not go unheeded. Consumers, on the other hand, lack the influence of significant financial resources but have the clout at the ballot box.

Here's a run-down on names in currency for the attorney general contest. All are, or have been, members of the General Assembly. All will not file for the race; almost certainly, some will do so. Naturally, others than this listing are interested and

SUCH ENTHUSIASM!

More Such Victories

King Pyrrhus of Epirus late in life, took on the Romans at Asculum. He won the battle, or so it is said, but he lost all his men. "One more such victory," said the King, coining the immortal phrase, "and I am lost." Pyrrhus was an old pro among the Greek warriors of his day. By the time he got to Asculum, he had won a few and lost a few, and he had a feel for these things. In the statue most frequently depicted, he looks pretty tired. So, too, with Richard Nixon. Over the past few weeks, he has recorded a string of putative victories. But a few more like these, and the old pro is done for.

These have been, on paper, a few weeks of triumph. Up on the Hill, the President won his battle for the Lockheed loan guarantee. He won another battle to revive the fainting Subversive Activities Control Board. He saw his China policy gloriously acclaimed by the Washington Post and the New York Times. He was able to rejoice in settlement of the rail and steel disputes. When final figures came down on his deficit for fiscal '71, he trotted out Secretary Connally to proclaim, quite literally, a "victory." In theory, these have been days of wine and roses.

But as he leans on his shield, resting an aching knee, Mr. Nixon may be having second thoughts of Asculum. He has won his string of victories, all right, but he has paid a heavy price. He won on Lockheed by three votes in the House, by one vote in the Senate. In the process, he helped to set a precedent that will come back to haunt both the Congress and the White House. The bill, as it finally emerged, is not an act of general application; it is an act of special and singular application, for the public relief of a private corporation. And it is only a matter of time before some other such corporation, equally the victim of bad luck and bad management, demands the same political poulitice.

The Lockheed battle slashed across the lines that usually divide liberal and conservative camps. What the President won on the left, he lost on the right. This was true in other fields of combat

Israel Says No To Concessions

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
JERUSALEM — Israel is digging its heels deep against concessions desperately sought by the U.S. For a partial settlement with Egypt to open the Suez Canal and buy another year of talk instead of shoot — an attitude with foreboding consequences for President Nixon, Israel and the Mideast.

This hardening mood is conceivably designed to strengthen Israel's bargaining position. It could persuade Mr. Nixon to relent on the matter of F-4 Phantoms or try to twist the screws harder on Egypt. But our talks with high officials lead to another conclusion: the fears of taking any risks at all in a partial settlement with Egypt — fears that border on paranoia — are genuine. So long as they persist, a solution that could open the canal can be dismissed as beyond anyone's reach — including the hard-driving Assistant Secretary of State, Joseph Sisco.

What Israel is demanding is that the U.S. extract from Egypt a settlement formula that carries no perceptible risk to Israel. Washington, in short, is expected to view the Arab-Israeli conflict not from the perspective of U.S. interests, vastly different from Israel's, but through Israel's own eyes.

Consider the intractable "cross-or-not-cross" issue. Israel insists that even a small contingent of Egyptian soldiers allowed on the east bank of the canal would open the way for a systematic Egyptian crossing in force.

Further, the presence of a single Egyptian soldier on the east bank would set a precedent directly contrary to Israel's long-held demand: total demilitarization of the east bank after Israeli withdrawal. Yet Egypt's President Anwar Sadat could never make so humiliating a deal and still survive at home.

Moreover, one high official, asked to define security guarantees needed for a partial pullback from the canal, gave as his personal (not government) opinion: between 10,000 and 20,000 U.S. troops in Sinai! Finally, it must be reported that in the highest government quarters, bitter memories of the past are being refreshed here. The U.S. is quietly reminded that it "betrayed" Israeli interests three times: in 1947, when it withheld ammunition at a critical point in the in-

Other Editors Say Farms Will Continue

(Washington Daily News)

Within the past 50 years in America we have witnessed a changing scene in America which has seen the decline both in the number and influence of the farmer.

Just recently James Graham, North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture, spoke at a meeting billed as a Rural-Urban affair.

Mr. Graham took note of the fact that the farm story today is not what it was 50 years ago. Mechanization has enabled fewer farmers to till more land. And mechanization along with scientific improvements have enabled production to double.

Today we seldom see a man out plowing with an old mule. That belongs to the days of street cars, we are told.

And the statistics tell us that next year we shall probably have fewer farmers than we have this year. But Mr. Graham gave emphasis to one most important point which cannot be overstressed. Regardless of the changing scene, we shall always have farms and farmers.

The full truth is that America would cease to exist without farms and farmers. Regardless of how big the farms get or how few farmers we have, we still must have them, he reiterated.

And he is exactly right. What we eat depends directly on the farm and the farmer. If for one year we had neither, this nation would be a lost one. In fact if any one of us wants to speak the whole truth, we might say that the big percentage of non-farmers need the farmers far more than the farmers need the outside big majority.

Since our very existence must depend upon farms and farmers, the very thought that farmers have lost political power is rather distressing. Since most of us need farmers more than farmers need us, the truth seems ever so clear that when we help farmers, we also inevitably help ourselves and each other.

Those who damn the farmers are damning their own source of food supply. We can talk all we want about parity and about price supports, but if the farmers ever once decided as a group that "we have had enough", America would awaken to the tragedy before us. And those politicians who today cry out so loudly about the so called favoritism shown on the one hand or the neglect shown on the other would rise up as one and say "let us stand together."

Yes, Mr. Graham is right. There will always be farms and farmers.

Higher Prices Sure To Follow

By ELMER ROESSNER
Here they come: new waves of price increases.

The 42 per cent wage increase won by the United Transportation Union is certain to result in higher rail freight rates, which will result in higher prices for everything moved by train. The wage rise will be somewhat offset by the union agreement to changes in work rules to eliminate some featherbedding.

The 31 per cent rise in steel wages will mean higher prices for everything made of steel or with steel. The steel companies have already announced an 8 per cent rise in prices. The auto makers have also announced increases in prices of 1972 models.

The Postal Service has promised no further increases in rates if mailers agree to the full $1.45 billion (B) rate rise now pending, but it may not be able to keep its promise. Telephone and telegraph rates will follow wage increases up.

The rise in steel prices will have sibling effects on the prices of nonferrous metals. Copper prices have gone up as a result of new agreements with the United Steelworkers. Zinc prices have gone up and probably will rise again when a wage increase becomes effective September 1. The aluminum industry, which is burdened with overcapacity, is trying to ballast ship with higher prices. More To Come

ELMER ROESSNER

It should be noted that recent wage increases which, as pointed out, average around one per cent a month over the next two or three years, will have only partial effect on prices this year. When the second and third rounds of increases come next year, there will be more compensatory price rises.

In addition, many contracts have provisions for cost-of-living interim increases. Thus, as higher wages produce higher prices they will bring about still higher wages.

The steel settlement will have other consequences.

First, in fear of a strike, big users had stockpiled steel for an estimated two or three months requirements. This will mean lower steel demand ahead, with more layoffs in steel making and less revenue for truckers and railroads.

Second, all manufacturers will look for designs that require less steel and for substitutes. Most other metals are more expensive, but plastics are not. So there may be a boom in plastics and resulting higher prices.

Other Effects

The rise in steel prices will give foreign producers of steel and things made of steel, such as autos, a tremendous advantage in the American market. There will be a rush of foreign imports so great that Congress will soon legislate quota systems and higher tariffs to protect American industry and American workers from competition they cannot otherwise meet.

Higher American steel prices may just about wipe out what remains of our export market for steel and steel products. Europe and Japan (which must buy most of its ore, scrap and fuel) will undersell us everywhere.

There will be a revolution in steel making. Old, inefficient mills will be closed down and steel makers will intensify interest in new automated methods. And there may be many mergers of steel companies.

And the higher wages in steel, railroading, construction and other settlements this year will cause other workers, especially those well organized, to demand pay increases, not only to keep up with the big unions but to keep up with the waves of higher prices ahead.

Three Things Impress Visitor To N. Korea; Construction Goes On

Editor's Note—The writer, a Filipino reporter, has just returned home from a visit to North Korea, which bars American correspondents. He wrote this article for The Associated Press.

By BENEDICTO S. DAVID MANILA (AP) — Three things impress a visitor to North Korea: the well-cared-for children, the adoration of Premier Kim Il-sung and massive construction.

These things overshadowed everything else during my 20-day stay. It covered Pyongyang, Wonsan and nearby areas and industrial sites.

Everywhere we met children in multicolored traditional dresses or blue and white Young Pioneer uniforms with red kerchiefs.

They live in ubiquitous apartment buildings, and throughout our travels we saw others under construction.

Everywhere, too, we ran into pictures, books posters, banners, pamphlets, museums and other signs of the man who has shaped the Democratic People's Republic, Premier Kim.

The secrets of his overwhelming presence obviously are the educational system and treatment of the children. At nurseries the youngsters are taught about the revolutionary exploits of Comrade Kim and those of his father and mother.

his brother, his grandfather, and his great-grandfather.

The children are cared for with a zeal that could be an example for professional educators from other countries. Every child is given a free education and free summer camp under professional supervision, and we were told he gets a free set of clothes every season. From the time a child is 3 months old, the state gives him professional care in nurseries at factory, office or farm. He is taken in the morning by his mother or father—both usually work—and picked up at the end dependence war; in 1956, when it compelled Israel to evacuate the Sinai after the first Sinai seizure; and in 1967, when it failed on its pledge to keep the Strait of Tiran open.

Add to this the thinly-veiled threats that if more Phantoms are not forthcoming the U.S. will get no diplomatic movement at all from Israel, and the stage is set for a dangerous crisis in relations between Israel and the U.S. Running for reelection as a "peace" President, Mr. Nixon would assuredly be damaged by such a crisis. In the long run, however, Israel would be damaged far more.

jam." Ahhhh-choo! Hay fever is no longer an ailment merely to be sneezed away. Its 16 million victims in the United States alone spend an estimated $150 million a year for treatment of it. It can easily be avoided, however, by simply moving to a deep cave or one of the polar caps.

Worth remembering: "After several thousand years, civilization has advanced to the point where we bolt all our doors and windows at night while the jungle natives sleep in an open hut."

It was Martin Luther who observed, "To prop up a sad and discouraged mind is better than to conquer a kingdom."

Kilpatrick . . .

also. By seeking to expand the advisory powers of the SABC, Mr. Nixon outraged all the liberals and pleased some conservatives. By his overtures to China, he pleased all the liberals and outraged most conservatives.

Of the rail strike, it could be said at least that the dispute was not transferred to the Congress for political decision. This was both the least and the most that could be said. The strike produced economic losses that came perilously near the disaster point. Railroad spokesmen accepted the surrender terms like good Greeks, their faces frozen in marble frieze, but alas, they were bleeding inside.

The rail settlement is inflationary. So is the steel settlement. As economic victories, these are squarely in the Pyrrhic tradition. What becomes of domestic steel now? The higher wages instantly have produced higher prices, but domestic steels are overpriced on the world market now. Mr. Nixon's pained reaction to the 8 percent price hikes may cause a rollback here and there, but the President sits on the throne of King Canute. Of course steel prices will rise, and of course these higher prices will be passed along to consumers at the end of the line. Ultimately, proportionally less steel will be sold.

So it goes. By flashing a little statistical razzle-dazzle, Secretary Connally turned a reported $23.2 billion deficit into a hypothetical $2.5 billion surplus. The hypothesis had to do with "full employment revenues." Virginia's Senator Byrd was not impressed. By old-fashioned yardsticks, eliminating trust fund accounts, the deficit actually was $30.2 billion, the greatest in 26 years.

These are not happy times for General Richard M. Pyrrhus. His new China policy, according to the polls, gained him but one point on the popularity index. His economic moves gain him nothing. But this old pro is a fighter. As Peter Lisagor has remarked, Mr. Nixon has reserves of flexibility he hasn't even touched. If he can rack up some real victories this fall, it may prove he hasn't reached Asculum yet.

with his peer group—those within three months of his age. It is in the nursery peer group that the rudiments of education and of reverence toward Kim Il-sung begin.

Primary school, almost without cost to the parents, teaches basic skills. Then comes middle school, followed by polytechnic college, and technical high school or a university, depending on the student's aptitudes and on the recommendations of his political unit.

Articles printed about anything include healthy doses of praise for the premier.

It appeared from what we saw that he has earned at least some of the worship. We saw no youngsters shing shoes or begging in Pyongyang or Wonsan—nor any adult beggars, for that matter.

Apartment houses are built with modern prefabrication techniques. Pictures of Pyongyang taken around 1953 show nothing but rubble. Today it is a city of wide boulevards and shady parks, austere but not poverty-stricken. Factories and steel plants flattened by American bombs 17 years ago are turned out more products than ever.

Stores have few imported goods or luxury items.

Adequate provisions appear to have been made, however, for the necessities of rice, vegetables, coal and housing.

Rice is sold in predetermined quantities at .08 won per kilogram, a little more than one cent per pound. Coal is cheap. Housing rental amounts to about 2 per cent of a family's income. A husband and wife earn about 200 won a month if both work.

Clothing is quite expensive. A wool-suit costs about 180 won. Medical expenses are practically nil because factory or office foots the bills. The worker gets annual vacations at government resorts and does not worry about price fluctuations because there are none.

There are no private cars, and cities lack adequate public transportation: Most people live near work or schools.

Concerts, motion pictures and stage presentations feature anti-Japanese or anti-American themes.

North Korea's future will be decided either by the war it expects with the South or by negotiations that would reunite North and South peacefully. The latter appears virtually impossible now. Children are taught to pity the "miserable plight of our Southern brothers."

Business Notes

NAMED CHAIRMAN
T. B. Rose Jr., chairman of Rose's Stores Inc. of Henderson, has been named associate chairman for the 31st annual National Bible Week, Nov. 21-28, it was announced by Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, national chairman.

Bible Week is sponsored by the Laymen's National Bible Committee in cooperation with the American Bible Society, the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese Department of the Laity, the Jewish Committee for National Bible Week and the U.S. Center for the Catholic Biblical Apostolate.

EARNINGS UP
Lee B. Thomas Jr., president of Vermont American Corp., announced that second quarter figures at the company reflected an increase in earnings of 58 per cent, while sales decreased three per cent.

For the six months ended June 30, earnings before taxes were $1,781,000, compared with $1,284,000 for the same period in 1970. Net earnings were $855,000, compared with 1970 earnings of $617,000.

Thomas said that the board of directors declared a dividend of 15 cents per share on Class A and B stock, payable Aug. 31 to shareholders of record Aug. 16.

MERGER ANNOUNCED
J. T. Manning Jr., president of Garner-Wynne-Manning Inc. of Greenville, announced the merger of the firm with Variety Specialties, with the surviving company being Garner-Wynne-Manning Inc.

The Greenville dealer is a service merchandiser in health and beauty aids and non-food products, supplying supermarkets and convenience stores in Central and Eastern North Carolina.

SEMINAR PLANNED
Some 100 Grady White boat dealers will meet in Greenville for a three-day seminar and show at National Boat Works on Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 2.

The events will include plant tours and in-the-water demonstrations of the 1972 Grady White models with seminars on sales, financing and advertising.

The firm announced that two new models will be introduced this year, bringing the number of Grady White models in the fleet to ten.

NEW HIGHS SET
John T. Sullivan, president of Eckerd Drugs Inc., announced that sales and earnings of Eckerd's set new highs for the fiscal quarter ended July 3.

Sullivan said that previously reported quarterly sales were $28,399,209, up 18.6 per cent over the same period of last year. Unaudited net earnings, after provisions for income taxes, increased 34.2 per cent from $612,844 to $822,694.

SALES SHOW INCREASE
Du Pont's chairman and president, C. B. McCoy reported that sales in the second quarter of 1971 reached a record total of $908 million, $68 million higher than in the first quarter and $54 million above the second quarter of 1970.

McCoy said that second quarter earnings of $1.90 per share were 25 per cent above the first quarter but two per cent lower than in the second quarter of 1970.

R.B. Nelson Was A Happy Man Upon Leaving City Council Meet

By JERRY RAYNOR
 Reflector Staff Writer
 A silver-haired crusader to have a major North Carolina highway named in his honor, Robert B. Nelson of Robersonville, came one endorsement closer last Thursday night to the possibility he may eventually achieve his goal.

Waiting patiently until a full agenda of regular items, added items, and special groups had been taken care of, Nelson heard Mayor S. Eugene West read a proposed resolution just before the midnight hour.

The resolution approved by the Greenville City Council would name the portion of U.S. Highway 13 in North Carolina the Robert Burton Nelson Highway. This major highway traverses North Carolina from the North Carolina-Virginia border to its point of intersection with Interstate 95 just north of Fayetteville.

In its generally southwesterly North Carolina path, Highway 13 passes through Winton, Ahoskie, Windsor, through Williamston, Nelson's home town of Robersonville, and Everetts, and goes to Bethel where it turns south to Greenville. Further south, U.S. 13 passes through Snow Hill, Goldsboro, Newton Grove and Spivey's Corner before intersecting with Interstate 95.

For 23 years Nelson has shown an abiding interest, one that has taken him time and again before city councils, boards and county commissioners — in efforts to have U.S. 13 become a major north-south artery.

In the process, Nelson has worn out several automobiles, made literally hundreds of long distance telephone calls, and visited with highway officials in six states and more than 50 communities.

He is tireless in his efforts and will often appear before the same council or group several times to seek support in his dream that U.S. 13 will eventually become a through route from Canada to New Orleans.

It is in the past year that Nelson has begun a campaign requesting support through resolutions from county and city governing bodies to have the North Carolina portion of U.S. 13 named in his honor.

Recently he has added resolutions of approval from Ahoskie, Winton, the Hertford County commissioners, and the Pitt County Commissioners to the growing portfolio of endorsement, of which Greenville's is the latest.

The son of the late Dr. R. J. Nelson of Robersonville, Nelson first became intrigued with highway construction when as a youngster he worked summers on the building of a highway through Robersonville that later became U.S. 64.

In 1929 he received an electrical engineering degree from N.C. State College but never followed a career in this field. Instead, he enrolled in Richmond Business College in 1930, then returned home to help his father in farming operations.

With Greenville's endorsement of the resolution to name U.S. 13 in his honor, Nelson is a little nearer to completing his goal of getting endorsements from all towns and counties in North Carolina through which his beloved highway runs.

It remains to be seen what eventually will be the result of his patient, ever-traveling personal crusade. Whatever may happen, there's no doubt that Nelson will long be remembered as "the daddy of U.S. 13." And there's no doubt but that he was a happy, smiling man when he left the Greenville City Council chambers at midnight Thursday, after expressing, in a soft voice, his thanks for the councilmen's approval.

New Trial To Be Decided

By BERNARD HURWITZ
 Associated Press Writer
 OAKLAND, Calif., (AP) — Black Panther cofounder Huey P. Newton, whose retrial on charges stemming from the killing of an Oakland policeman has ended with an 11-1 hung jury, goes before a new judge Tuesday to learn if he must stand trial a third time.

After six days of deliberation, a jury of 10 women and two men told Superior Court Judge Harold Hove Sunday that it was deadlocked.

First jurors had sent out a note asking they be taken for dinner, but another note followed saying: "One of the jurors no longer wishes to deliberate."

Some were near tears as the judge dismissed them and directed Newton to appear before the criminal calendar court for setting of a new trial date. He remains free on $50,000 bail.

There was no immediate indication from prosecutor Donald Whyte whether the state will again seek to try the 29-year-old Newton on a charge of voluntary manslaughter in the shooting of officer John Frey on Oct. 28, 1967.

Newton was charged with first-degree murder in his first trial and was found guilty of the lesser charge of voluntary manslaughter. The jury's verdict in that trial later was overturned, however.

"A black woman kept me out of jail," said a smiling Newton, indicating he believed the only black juror, Ruthie A. Ellis, was the one of the 11-1 vote.

The jury did not indicate whether the vote was for acquittal or conviction but both Newton and defense attorney Charles Garry expressed belief it was 11-1 for conviction.

"This shows that with at least one black person on the jury, this means I can get a fair trial," said Newton. Garry said he thought his client should have been acquitted.

Survivor Stunned At Homer's Death

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — A stunned Kenneth Burns, mandolin-playing Jethro of the comedy duo Homer and Jethro, says he will "take some time to think things over" before performing again following the death of his partner, Henry D. Haynes.

"I am just shocked," Burns said Sunday. "It's like 40 years of my life are gone. I don't have any idea what I am going to do now."

Haynes, 51, who was Homer, the guitar player, died Saturday of a heart attack hours before a scheduled appearance at the Great Midwest Fair in Crete, Ill. He and Burns began their 40-year term career in 1932 as youngsters playing background music for a radio station in Knoxville, Tenn.

Minister, Wife Attend Meeting

Rev. and Mrs. Horace G. Thompson of Winterville attended the annual summer meeting of the Ministers for Campbell College on the college campus in Bues Creek August 5-6. Rev. Thompson is the pastor of the Winterville Baptist Church.

Rev. and Mrs. Thompson were among some 80 Baptist ministers and visitors attending lectures and workshop sessions intended to strengthen understanding and working relationships between the ministers and the seven Baptist colleges of North Carolina.

As featured speaker for the two-day event, Dr. Wayne Oates, professor of the psychology of religion at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, lectured twice on pastoral counseling.

Juveniles Are Charged

Three juveniles, two aged 11 and one 12, were charged with breaking and entering and damage to personal property Sunday.

Police said the three allegedly entered Growers Warehouse on 14th Street and caused damage inside the building by driving a towmotor around and knocking over various items inside the building.

Judge Stevens Funeral Is Held

WARSAW, N. C. (AP) — State judicial and American Legion officials were included in a large throng which attended funeral services Sunday for Superior Court Judge Henry L. Stevens Jr., former national commander of the American Legion.

The crowd overflowed the Warsaw Presbyterian Church where the services were conducted by the Rev. J. Don Skinner.

Military honors were accorded Stevens at the burial rites which followed in Devotional Gardens.

Stevens, 75, died in a Clinton hospital Thursday.

Beer Action Will Continue

DUNN, N. C. (AP) — Mayor Abe Elmore says the City Council's action prohibiting beer sales on Sunday will stand "until we can study this thing some more."

The mayor said no city official had a copy of the state's new law on beer-drinking hours Thursday night when the council voted the Sunday prohibition.

The action is in conflict with legislation enacted by the 1971 General Assembly permitting establishments holding brown-bagging licenses to sell beer and mixers on Sundays. Cities and counties cannot interfere with state laws.

"We're not trying to override the state," Elmore said. "It's just that I don't think any of our people have seen a copy of the law and there has been some confusion over what it says."

The next regularly scheduled council meeting is Sept. 7, "but if we need to handle it before then I guess we could call an emergency session," the mayor said.

DRUG PROGRAM

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina plans to have its first statewide drug rehabilitation program in operation within two months.

Greenville Blasts Wilmington 16-2 On Sunday

WILMINGTON — Greenville reached back into the bat bag and came up with some extra hits lying around, and by the time they had finished using them, they had blasted Wilmington, 16-2 Sunday.

The victory tied the best-of-seven series between the two American Legion teams at three games each, and set up tonight's final contest in Wilmington for the title.

The winner of the series will move on into the state championship against the Rowan County-Newell winner later this week.

Greenville started the action in the second inning, pushing over a run. Jimmy Paige singled to right and was sacrificed to second. Tommy Durham then ripped double into right center, pushing Paige across for a 1-0 lead.

In the third, Greenville came up with three more runs to send the margin out to 4-0. J. C. Daniels grounded a single past first base, and Bill Lee added another hit. Paige reached on an error that loaded the bases. Jimmy James kept things going with a single to left, scoring Daniels, and an error on the relay allowed both Lee and Paige to score.

But it was the fourth inning that really set Wilmington back on its heels as Greenville came up with six big runs to power into a 10-0 lead.

Durham led off with a towering homer over the left field fence to start things off. Jimmy Bons walked and Byron Dickens singled to left-center. The ball got through the fielder and both runners moved up on that. Daniels followed with his second hit, scoring Bond. Dickens then came over on a wild pitch.

Daniels, who had moved to second on the wild pitch, scored when Lee singled to right. Phil Blount then singled, and a balk moved both runners up. James singled, scoring Lee, and a double steal brought in Blount with the sixth run of the inning.

Wilmington threatened in the fourth getting their first runner since the first when one reached on a walk. Henry Paula got the first Wilmington hit, and moved up on a fielder's choice. But a line-drive to Lee caught Paula off second for an unassisted double play.

In the fifth, Greenville added another run. Bond led off with a double to left and Dickens walked. Daniels kept up his hitting, loading the bases. Lee then hit a sacrifice fly to score Bond to make it 11-0.

The Greenville series was closed out with another big inning in the sixth as five runs came over. Paige singled and James cracked out a two-run homer to left.

Durham doubled and Dickens hit a pop fly that just fell in for another double, scoring Durham. Daniels then doubled to left to score Daniels. Lee singled to drive in Daniels. Lee singled to drive in Daniels with the final Greenville run of the game.

Wilmington threatened several times during the late innings, but it wasn't until the ninth that they finally scored. Ronnie Dove led off with a single, but went out when Randy Ourt reached on a fielder's choice. Gary Willett singled and Robert Billingsly also got a hit, loading them up. Joe Johnson then doubled to left, scoring Ourt and Willett, but Greenville halted them after that.

The series closes out tonight at 8 p.m. in Wilmington.

Lolich Also Pitching Well

By KEN RAPPOPORT Associated Press Sports Writer

Vida's been getting all the attention this year, but look who's also pitching a Blue streak—Mickey Lolich.

The Detroit left-hander is the hardest worker in the American League with 270 innings hurled and has compiled 228 strikeouts, a 2.93 earned run average and an 18-8 won-lost record, including Sunday's 8-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

But Lolich has had little chance to shine since Oakland's super southpaw, who nailed down No. 20 Saturday with a 1-0 conquest of the Chicago White Sox.

Never mind. Lolich just keeps rolling along.

Lolich's credentials might even shine more if it weren't for games that exploded in the ninth inning. Five times this year, he's lost leads in the last frame and also lost the victories.

Lolich's victory over Boston kept the Red Sox from gaining ground on pace setting Baltimore in the AL East. The Orioles were beaten 2-1 by the New York Yankees Sunday.

In the other American League games, the Kansas City Royals clouted the Milwaukee Brewers 7-2; the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Washington Senators 6-2; the Minnesota Twins nipped the California Angels 2-1; Chicago spilled Oakland 9-7 in the first game of a doubleheader and beat the A's in the nightcap 3-1.

In the National League, it was Atlanta 5, New York 0; Philadelphia 3, Pittsburgh 2 in the first game of a doubleheader and Pittsburgh 4, Philadelphia 0 in the nightcap; Cincinnati 6, Montreal 3; San Diego 3, Houston 2, Los Angeles 4, St. Louis 2 and San Francisco and Chicago split a twin bill—the Giants winning the first game 4-2 in 11 innings and the Cubs the second, 8-0.

Lolich, who was nicked for a first-inning run on Carl Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly, ran into familiar ninth-inning trouble when he gave up three hits, including Phil Gagliano's run scoring double.

But Lolich had more than enough working margin to wriggle out this time. He struck out the last batter and moved closer to the prized 20-victory plateau, something consistently denied him in eight previous major league seasons.

"I've got a good shot at 20," Lolich predicts.

Felipe Alou knocked in the winning run with a pinch-hit single in the ninth inning as

New York rocked Baltimore for the third time in their four-game series.

Alou's line shot to center chase home Roy White, who had opened with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt, and made a winner of young Steve Kline. The game winning hit snapped a 1-1 tie that existed from the first inning.

Dick Drago spaced nine hits and contributed a key, two-run double to pace Kansas City over Milwaukee. Drago broke the game open with his hit after Paul Schaal's double and a walk to Ed Kirkpatrick in the fourth inning.

Drago's hit padded the Royal's lead to 4-1 and provided the eventual winning runs as the Brewers came back in their ninth on Dave May's homer.

Rookie Chris Chambliss knocked in two runs with a single and double and scored once, pacing Cleveland over Washington and Denny McLain, who lost for the 16th time in 22 decisions.

McLain had a two-hit shutout through five innings before the Indians reached the former Cy Young winner for two runs in the sixth on run scoring singles by Chambliss and John Lowenstein. Chambliss then capped a two-run seventh with his double that bounced into the left field seats at RFK Stadium.

Two Teams Split Pair Of Games

WILLIAMSTON — Greenville and Williamston split a pair of games in the Eastern County Semi-Pro League Sunday afternoon.

Williamston took the first game, 3-2, while Greenville won the second, 5-2.

In the opener, Greenville pushed ahead with two runs in the second inning. Charles Meeks walked and moved up on a single and a fielder's choice by Lester Wells. Wells stole second, and Meeks came home on an error. Charles Vincent singled to score Wells.

But Williamston came back with a run in the fourth and another in the sixth to tie it up. Then, in the seventh, they pushed over the winning run. C. James reached on a fielder's choice and B. Swift doubled, driving him across.

In the second game, Williamston took the lead with a run in the fourth. Rayner singled and scored on Coletrain's triple. Greenville came back with two in the fifth to push ahead. Kelly Witherington singled and scored on Grant Jarman's hit. An error moved Jarman up, and Meeks singled him across. In the sixth, Williamston tied it up. Swift singled, moved up on an error and scored on an out for a 2-2 deadlock.

Greenville pushed over three in the eighth, however, to win it. Dickie Allen doubled and Ron Vincent walked. Frank Ferree also walked, loading them up. Ken Beamon walked forcing in Allen, but Vincent went down on Al Gurganus' fielder's choice. Witherington then singled to score Ferree, and a hit by Jarman brought in Beamon.

Joe Namath Has Cartilage Removed From Left Knee

By EARL GERHEIM Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath the New York Jets' star quarterback, had the cartilage removed from his left knee Sunday morning and with it went his chance "to show everybody I'm the No. 1 quarterback in football" ... at least for awhile.

"This isn't a career ending injury," said Dr. James Nicholas, the Jets' team physician and the man who has operated three other times on the delicate Namath knees.

He'll probably be back in uniform to play by the middle of November, but then there is the question of his timing. He'll let us know if he can set up and drop back," said Nicholas after he performed the 51-minute operation at Lennox Hill Hospital.

Namath, who missed 10 games last season with a broken wrist, sustained severe ligament damage Saturday night when he attempted to make a tackle during the Jets' exhibition opener against the Detroit Lions in Tampa, Fla.

He made a handoff to Lee White, who bobbled the ball. Lion linebacker Mike Lucci picked it up and scampered 29 yards for a touchdown that started Detroit on the road to a 28-24 victory after Namath had guided New York to a 14-0 lead. Namath tried to bring Lucci down, but missed and Detroit linebacker Paul Naumoff fell on top of him.

"No way I could let him go," Namath said later in the Jet dressing room, referring to his futile effort to stop Lucci. "I guess crazier things have happened. I guess it shows I'm not a defensive back."

The injury temporarily handcuffed the flamboyant quarterback's desire to demonstrate a new outlook he says he has developed about himself and the game. He reported to the Jets' training camp on time for the first time in three years and was eager to play football. He spent the summer at the University of Alabama, his alma mater, strengthening the wrist he broke against Baltimore last Oct. 18.

Things are seldom what they seem.

Big cars often pose as big cars, when they're really small cars.

For instance: Notice how much bigger the big car seems than the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

Then count the number of suitcases it can take on: only 12.

Now, notice how small the Squareback seems to be.

Then count the number of suitcases it can take on: 16.

That's because the Squareback has 32.8 cubic feet of carrying space.

Which is one and a half times as much as that of the largest sedan trunk.

Of course, if you really have a lot to carry you can always fold down the Squareback's rear seat. Then you'll have more than twice as much carrying space as the largest sedan trunk.

So which would you rather have? A sedan that looks like a big bully but really is a 12-suitcase weakling? Or a little fella who's really a 16-suitcase giant?

Louisburg Beats Pirates Second Time

LOUISBURG — The Louisburg Hurricanes picked up right when they left off Friday night when they beat the East Carolina University Pirates, 19-8.

The two teams met for the last time this year on Sunday, and Louisburg apparently thought it was a continuation of the same game, so they kept right on doing their thing.

And by the time the last out was made in the ninth inning, the Hurricanes had rushed to a 16-5 victory over the Pirates, highlighted by six home runs, one a grand slam.

East Carolina got the jump on Louisburg, pushing over two runs in the top of the first inning. Mike Bradshaw singled and Matt Walker got a hit. Larry Walters also singled, loading the bases. Ralph Lamm then got a hit, driving in both Bradshaw and Walker for a 2-0 lead.

But the lead didn't stand up long at all as Louisburg came back to collect five runs in the bottom of the inning.

Sherwood Driver singled and Rick Richardson walked. Lindsay Ethridge singled, scoring Driver, and Wayne Ellington got a hit, loading the bases. Jerry Suggs then started the home run derby with a grand slam, quickly putting Louisburg ahead.

The Hurricanes came back with another run in the second. That one also came on a homer as Allan Sasser cracked out the round-tripper. That made it 6-2.

The third saw two more Louisburg runs come across the plate. Richardson walked and Suggs reached on an error. Pitcher Eddie Clapp then singled to drive in both of the base runners, upping the score to 8-2.

It kept up in the fourth, this time adding three more. Bob Becker singled and Sasser got a hit. Richardson then powered the third homer of the game, rushing the score out to 11-2.

East Carolina got back in the scoring column with two in the fifth. Bradshaw singled and Walker reached on an error. Lamm got a hit, loading the bases, and Rich McMahon reached on another error, scoring Bradshaw and Walker. That cut the lead to 11-4.

Louisburg came back with another run in the bottom of the fifth.

East Carolina then scored its final run in the seventh. Walker walked and scored when Troy Eason doubled.

Louisburg kept up its homer barrage in the seventh and eighth innings. In the seventh, Clapp reached when he was hit by a pitch, and he scored when Becker homered.

Then, in the eighth, Richardson

The loss left the Buc's with a 14-19 record, with three games left to play. They travel to Campbell Harrison Field on Thursday night.

Phil Niekro Has 'Goo-Goo' Pitch

By BERT ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Sports Writer

Rip Sewell, formerly of the Pittsburgh Pirates, popularized the "eephus" pitch. Steve Hamilton of the San Francisco Giants became famous for the "fally floater." And now there's Phil Niekro of the Atlanta Braves and the "goo-goo" delivery.

Niekro, whose elusive knuckleball has been baffling National League batters for the past few years, added the tantalizing "goo-goo" pitch to his repertoire this season.

Sunday, he used both to their full effectiveness, hurling the Braves to a 5-0 victory over the New York Mets, the team that had bombarded Atlanta pitching for 20 runs and 21 hits Saturday night.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco and Chicago split a doubleheader, the Giants winning the opener 4-2 in 11 innings and the Cubs taking the nightcap 8-0; Philadelphia and Pittsburgh also divided a twinbill, the Phils capturing the first game 3-2 and losing the second 4-0; Cincinnati downed Montreal 6-3; Los Angeles defeated St. Louis 4-2, and San Diego edged Houston 3-2.

In the American League, New York shaded Baltimore 2-1; Detroit ripped Boston 8-2; Cleveland trimmed Washington 6-2; Minnesota nipped California 2-1; Kansas City walloped Milwaukee 7-2, and Chicago beat Oakland 9-7 and 3-1.

Sewell, a right-hander, worked for the Pirates from 1938 through 1949 and compiled a 143-97 record, including 21-victory seasons in 1943 and 1944. His pitch was a high, slow delivery that dropped sharply as it reached the plate.

Hamilton, a major leaguer since 1961, spent most of his career with the New York Yankees, before joining the Giants this year. The left-handed relief specialist's floater, which was outlawed this spring by National League President Chub Feeney because of a slight hesitation in Hamilton's delivery, was thrown just as slowly but not quite as high as Sewell's pitch.

Niekro's delivery was given its name by his teammate, pitcher Bob Priddy. It floats toward the plate about 10 or 12 feet off the ground, then breaks away from right-handed batters and in to the left-handed swingers.

Against the Mets, however, Niekro got the last laugh. The veteran right-hander allowed only four hits—all singles—struck out seven, including Tommie Agee four times, and walked three in raising his record to 12-8.

The only Met to solve his mystifying "goo-goo" pitch was Duffy Dyer, who tapped a single into left center field in the third inning.

For the game's final out, Niekro again used his bloop delivery, getting Ken Boswell on a fly ball to center.

The Braves nicked Charlie Williams for a run in the first inning on Felix Millan's triple and Ralph Garr's sacrifice fly, and added four runs in the second, with Millan and Hank Aaron each rapping two-run singles. Aaron now has hit safely in 16 consecutive games.

Chicago's Billy Williams smashed three two-run homers, including two in the nightcap, and Glenn Beckert had seven hits in nine at-bats raising his batting average to a league leading .357 in the Cubs' split with the Giants.

The Giants ended a six-game losing streak, winning the opener on Chris Speier's two-run single in the 11th and Gaylord Perry's five-hit pitching.

Williams' two homers, increasing his season's total to 21, and Beckert's four hits backed Milt Pappas' six-hit hurling in the second game. It was Pappas' second straight shutout.

Beckert's productive day put him a fraction of a percentage point ahead of St. Louis' Joe Torre in the batting race. Torre had 1-for-4 against Los Angeles and dropped to .356.

Torre's hit was only one of three the Cards collected against Don Sutton and Jim Brewer, who got the final out. The Dodgers' Jim Lefebvre broke a 1-1 tie with a three-run homer in the eighth off Jerry Reuss.

Willie Montanez' two-run homer, his 24th, helped Philadelphia edge Pittsburgh in their first game. Woodie Fryman blanked the Pirates on four hits until four consecutive singles with two out in the ninth accounted for two runs. Joe Hoerner struck out pinch hitter Vic Davalillo for the final out.

In the second game, Bob Johnson scattered eight hits for his first National League shutout and Gene Alley belted a solo homer for the Pirates.

Patriots Loss Mars His Debut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

About the only thing that marred Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett's pro football debut with the New England Patriots was that his team lost. "I wish we could have won," the rookie quarterback said after the Patriots were defeated 17-10 by the Minnesota Vikings in one of two exhibition games Sunday. Plunkett entered the game with only 11 minutes left to play, completed two of three passes but couldn't spark the New England offense that was throttled by the marauding Viking front four.

The Patriots managed to break into Minnesota territory only once in the first half and scored their lone touchdown on Clarence Scott's 23-yard interception return of a Bob Lee pass. Short carries by Jim Lindsey and Dave Osborn and a field goal by Fred Cox accounted for Minnesota's scoring.

Quarterback John Brodie and receiver Gene Washington combined for two long scoring plays as the San Francisco 49ers inaugurated play in their new Candlestick Park home with a 38-24 thrashing of the Cleveland Browns. Mike Phipps, the Browns' starting signal caller, also rifled two touchdown passes.

In Saturday's contests, the Chicago Bears forced Green Bay quarterback Frank Patrick into his own end zone for a safety and then held on to edge the Packers 2-0. Super Bowl champion Baltimore failed to avenge a loss to Kansas City early last season and wound up on the short end of a 10-7 score. Colts Coach Don McCafferty blamed his team's defeat on "a case of guys being opened and not getting hit."

Quarterback Ken Anderson tossed two fourth-quarter touchdown passes to power Cincinnati to a 27-10 triumph over Miami and the Detroit Lions wiped out an early New York Jets lead and went on for a 28-24 victory in a game that sidelined Jets quarterback Joe Namath for most of the season with a knee injury.

Exhibition games continue tonight with Houston hosting the New York Giants and Philadelphia at Oakland.

'Satchel' Paige Enters Baseball Hall Of Fame

By MIKE RATHET, Associated Press Sports Writer

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Leroy "Satchel" Paige was inducted today into Baseball's Hall of Fame—through the front door.

The end of a long campaign for Paige's inclusion among the immortals of the sport—black or white—came when the hesitation-pitch marvel of the Negro Baseball Leagues was formally inducted with seven others on the porch of the National Baseball Library.

Also inducted were: —Dave Bancroft, a star shortstop with the Philadelphia Phillies and New York Giants some 50 years ago.

—Jake Beckley, a pre-1900 starter who played a record 2,368 games as a first baseman for Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

—Charles "Chick" Hefey, St. Louis and Cincinnati outfielder and a power-hitting outfielder from the mid-1920s to mid-1930s.

—Harry Hooper, a slick-fielding outfielder who starred with the Boston Red Sox from 1909 to 1920.

—Joe Kelley, a pre-1900 outfielder with the Baltimore Orioles who hit as high as .301.

—Richard "Rube" Marguard, who posted 201 victories during his career, including 19 in succession, while pitching for the Giants in 1912.

—George Weiss, longtime executive with the New York Yankees, whose career spanned 19 pennant-winners.

But the day belonged to Old Satchel, whose legendary exploits performed in barnstorming tours from village to hamlet, have made him a part of America's baseball folklore.

Barred from the majors until he was in his 40s by the color line that wasn't broken until 1947, Paige was as big a star in the Negro leagues as Babe Ruth was in the major leagues. But he did not play the 10 years in the majors required for election to the Hall of Fame by the usual means.

He was, however, selected by a special committee on the Negro Leagues for entry into the Hall of Fame, but only in a separate section designed to honor black stars of the pre-1947 era. That brought an outcry from his ardent supporters.

But, finally, just last month, the problem was resolved when it was ruled stars of the Negro Leagues would be inducted directly into the Hall of Fame—the same Hall of Fame for all.

PGA Section Opens Tues.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) — The Carolinas PGA Section championship opens Tuesday at the Tanglewood Park Golf Club at nearby Clemmons with Brad Anderson defending his title.

Anderson is a pro at the Charlotte Country Club.

The stroke play competition will have a field of 106 players and a record purse of $10,000. First place money is $3,000.

The winner will receive an automatic exemption for the next 12 events in North Carolina and South Carolina. These include the Greater Greensboro Open, the Kemper Open, the Azalea Open at Wilmington, the Heritage Classic at Hilton Head Island, S. C., the PGA Club Pro championship at Pinehurst in October, and the $200,000 National PGA championship next summer.

Petty Wins West Va. 500

ONA, W. Va. (AP) — Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C. won the NASCAR West Virginia 500 Sunday after exchanging the lead with Bobby Allison 13 times.

Petty, driving a 1970 Plymouth Road Runner, averaged 73.805 miles per hour over International Raceway Park's 7-16 mile oval.

Petty overtook Allison, driving a 1970 Mustang, at the end of the 29th lap in the 218.75 mile NASCAR Grand National event.

Worry Clinic God Is Still Best Insurance

Rev. Nathan wants the specific medical facts to prove that church people are healthier than nonchurch folks. Discuss this at Sunday School or you dynamic clergymen may expand it for a profitable sermon. God is still the best medical insurance for a happy, longer lifespan!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

Case R-530: Rev. Nathan, aged 24, has a thriving church. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I recently read a medical report that said non-church members have far more heart attacks than do active church folks. "So how can you explain that fact in scientific fashion?" "For you, too, have often stated that church is the safest medical spot on this earth!"

God's Prescription

Religion is actually the greatest form of medical insurance you can find. And I'm not exaggerating, for here are the scientific facts:

(1) Happily married people live longer than do the unmarried or divorced, as per

Statistical studies. And one essential reason is that they can talk out their inner tensions to each other, so their blood pressure goes down!

Besides, they can relax more by realizing they have a helping hand to come to their rescue if they are sick, so they suffer less anxiety.

But partnership with God offers these same medical advantages to a much larger degree!

For the active churchman talks to God via prayer and drifts off into sounder slumber by asking the Almighty to take over the night shift for him.

Thus, God is far better than tranquilizers or sleeping pills for the tense, jittery person and the insomniac.

(2) Religion is extrovertive so it turns our attention off our own "innards" and upon other people, via stress on love of our neighbors and constructive altruistic organizations.

The typical hypochondriac always worries about his "innards" and thus is unduly afraid he will die.

So he shops from one physician to another for new drugs to banish his inner terror.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, your partner has opened with one heart and you hold:

♠A108 ♥7642 ♦5 ♣8432

What is your response?

A.—Two hearts, which just about describes the strength of the hand. There would be no justification for a raise to four hearts with this hand merely because it contains five trumps. The hand does not have sufficient playing strength for a pre-emptive raise.

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Since partner originally passed, there is little to be gained by bidding. With six losers in the suits adversely bid, it is inconceivable that you could fulfill an eight trick contract. In fact, it is difficult to see how you could come close.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, and as South you hold:

1 ♣ 2 ♣ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—This hand possesses considerable merit, being the equal of an opening bid. However, if a convenient contract cannot be found there may be no game in the hand. The partial might in spades suggests that the hand has better defensive possibilities, and our recommendation is a penalty double. Your hand should produce at least four tricks in defense. Unless partner's hand is highly unbalanced, a sure profit is in store if you play for the penalty.

Damage Heavy To Apartment

Greenville firemen reported heavy damage resulted to apartment number 26 Village Greene Apartments Sunday following a fire there.

Officers, who reported neighbors extinguished the blaze with a garden hose before firefighters arrived, explained that the fire apparently started on or around a couch and resulted in heavy damage to the apartment and its contents.

Cause of the fire was listed as "undetermined."

The blaze was reported at 4 p.m.

One Injured In Accident

One person was reported injured and an estimated $150 property damage reported in a 12:10 a.m. mishap Sunday on Memorial Drive, 30 feet South of the Village Drive intersection.

Police reported a motorcycle driven by James Richard Jones II, 18, of Route 2, Farmville collided with a car driven by Evangeline Worthington, 21 of Winterville.

Damage to the Worthington car was set at $50 while damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $100.

Officers, who charged Miss Worthington with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety reported a passenger on the Jones motorcycle was injured.

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West

1 ♣ Pass 1 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—The opportunity to show the four-card major at this low range should be seized in preference to rebidding the six-card suit. The impression that a six-card suit must be rebid wily-nilly before showing a four-card suit is a hangover from the gay '60s. Bid one heart.

1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♣ Pass 3 ♦ Dble. ?

What do you bid now?

A.—It might be tempting at this point to show the mild fit in spades, the suit in which partner has jumped, but such action is not recommended. You already have kept the bidding open and shown a preference for partner's first suit. This is all the action you are entitled to take with this minimum holding. A bid by you at this point would indicate additional values. Let partner have the next say.

Q. 7—Neither vulnerable, partner opens with one club and you hold:

♠AJ85 ♥K1075 ♣843 ♣74

What do you bid?

A.—One heart rather than one spade. This permits partner to show a four card spade suit at the level of one if he happens to have it. Whereas if you respond with one spade, partner may have a four card heart suit and fear to show it at the level of two.

Q. 8—Neither vulnerable, partner opens with one club and you hold:

Astronauts Are Spared Quarantine

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

spared the three-week quarantine that faced the past moon explorers.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Because no moon bugs have ever been found, the Apollo 15 astronauts are being thorough analysis to make certain there is no health hazard. And they will be probed to learn more about the unknown factors in moon rocks that seem to kill earthly microorganisms and spur or retard some plant growth.

The factors, which still aren't understood, were discovered in moon rocks returned by Apollo 11 in 1969. Samples returned by Apollo 12 and 14 also have shown biological activity.

A variety of plant species that have shown a reaction to previous lunar material will be studied.

These include celery, cabbage, brussels sprouts, pepper, carrot, lettuce, radish, spinach, club moss, fern, liverwort and algae. Tissue cultures of other plants and seedlings of lime, cotton and corn also will be studied. When the space agency decided to eliminate the elaborate astronaut quarantine with Apollo 15 because scientists decided it was unnecessary, a "preliminary biomedical evaluation" program was outlined for Apollo 15 samples.

"Botanical investigations have definitely shown that lunar materials are capable of enhancing plant growth responses," the document outlining the biomedical evaluation program states.

"In addition, the exposure of terrestrial microorganisms to lunar materials in the presence of normal growth media has resulted in the death of these microorganisms."

The unknown factor that can kill earthly microorganisms, such as bacteria and virus was discovered in Apollo 11 rocks from beneath the moon's surface, said Dr. Gerald Taylor, a Manned Spacecraft Center scientist.

Could the toxic agent be some miracle substance that would become a powerful new medicine?

"No. Not at all," Taylor said. "It will end up to be some common thing we know that is toxic to microorganisms. Some metal or something. It's just a matter of tracking it down."

Gov. Scott In Nevada For Meeting

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Bob Scott is in Lake Tahoe, Nev., today to preside at a meeting of the National Governors Conference subcommittee on revenue sharing.

Scott is chairman of the subcommittee. Tuesday he will attend a meeting of the National Governors Conference executive committee, of which he is a member.

Wednesday Scott will go to Denver, Colo., to meet with the staff of the Education Commission of the States. He is chairman of the commission.

Scott will return to North Carolina Thursday and will speak at noon that day at the 91st annual Masonic picnic at Mocksville.

Friday he will go to Asheville for a speech at 7:30 p.m. to the 64th annual convention of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners.

Liquor Stores To Be Decided

LEXINGTON, N. C. (AP) — Voters in Lexington go to the polls Tuesday to decide again on whether the town should get liquor stores.

A similar proposal was defeated in 1965 by about 500 votes.

Last month, voters in neighboring Thomasville narrowly defeated an ABC proposal.

Nixon Goes Back To Work After New England Trip

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon went back to work today refreshed from a New England weekend of sunning, boating, politicking and lobster.

He had no announced appointments on his White House schedule for the day.

Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker was on his way to Washington from Saigon for conferences with Nixon later this week on Vietnam. The President is expected also to meet this week with Ambassador William J. Porter, his new chief negotiator at the Paris Peace talks.

And the President dispatched Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Assistant Secretary

Joseph Sisco to confer in New York today with United Nations officials on humanitarian and peacekeeping problems in Pakistan.

The chief executive had escaped a bit from pressures of his office over the weekend on a secluded 22-acre private island in Penobscot Bay, Maine. After two days there and two afternoon cruises on the bay, the President remarked, "I see why people come here."

And he made much over Maine lobsters which he said he ate at every meal.

Nixon was not only warmed by the sun but by a turnout of thousands at Manchester and Nashua, N.H., and Bangor, Maine. He made those stops Friday on his way to Minot Island, owned by his friend Jack J. Dreyfus Jr., a New York investment broker and chairman of the board of the Dreyfus Fund.

Nixon preceded three Democratic presidential hopefuls—Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana and Henry M. Jackson of Washington—into New Hampshire, site of the first 1972 presidential primary.

He drew laughter a few times by remarking that his trip was nonpolitical.

His wife, Pat, and their daughter and son-in-law, David and Julie Eisenhower, went along on the trip that could have been an unofficial launching of Nixon's 1972 campaign.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Some neighbors of ours have a swimming pool behind their house. They also have a pair of 11-year-old twin boys and two daughters, 9 and 13. These neighbors allow their boys to swim in the raw at the same time their daughters use the pool, but the girls wear swim suits. That's their business, but it presents a problem to us because the twin boys have invited our son to swim in their pool.

Our son says swimming in the raw doesn't bother him, girls or no girls. [Can this be?] He also says that the neighbor boys were raised to believe that it is proper for girls to see what boys look like, but it is not proper for boys to see what girls look like. How do you feel about this, Abby? And should we let our boy swim at the neighbors?

COLORADO READERS
DEAR READERS: Since your son already knows what boys look like, why not? And I don't know why it's any more "proper" for girls to know what boys look like than for boys to know what girls look like.

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law is a "good" person. That's the trouble. She's TOO good. She offers to baby-sit, and while we are gone she cleans my house, does the laundry and rearranges cupboards and closets.

My husband and I have asked her to please just leave things as they are, but she doesn't listen. It is not only impossible for us to find things after she has "rearranged" everything, but she gripes to our children about how "disorganized" the place is.

One time she washed red with white and we all had pink underwear and socks. Last night she WASHED my best wool knit slacks and today my 8-year-old daughter can wear them.

She has a key to our house. [Big mistake.] Whenever we are gone and she has nothing else to do, she comes over and gets busy.

I don't want to hurt her feelings, but I have had it. Any suggestions?
—NO HELP NEEDED

DEAR NO HELP: First, manage to get the key back. Then have your husband tell her that you can't allow her to "help" you by baby-sitting unless she promises to stop helping you to keep house. Tell him to be firm, but gentle—But let her know he means business.

RE

North Carolina Crops Are In Good Condition

A combination of what one agricultural expert describes as "very favorable weather and good farming" has North Carolina's major farm crops in outstanding condition going into the final third of the growing season.

Tobacco, corn, soybeans, peanuts and cotton are all described as good to excellent by North Carolina State University extension specialists.

It is apparent that, if current conditions carry through the harvest season, overall crop production could be the best in years.

About the only sour note at this time is the same one that resounded across the state last year — corn blight. Despite the presence of the disease in at least 67 counties, the major portion of the crop remains in good condition.

Tobacco is described by Specialist S. N. Hawks as "excellent in the Coastal Plain and good in the Piedmont." He added, "The crop in the Coastal Plain may be one of the best in a long, long time. The Piedmont crop could improve with continued rain."

The burley crop in the mountains is described as a little on the late side and in fair to good condition.

Soybeans and peanuts are in superb condition. "Early soybeans are tremendous at this time," commented Dr. John Clapp. "Plant growth has been excellent. I have never seen the crop look this good at this stage of the season," he added.

He cautioned that "the critical time for beans is still ahead," explaining that much of the crop is just now entering the fruiting period when soil moisture is essential.

Astor Perry made the same observation about peanuts. "The crop is in excellent condition at this time," he said, "but it's what happens from here out that will largely determine what kind of crop we end up with." He said, "It would take almost perfect conditions to equal last year's figures." North Carolina peanut growers set a yield record in 1971 with an average of 2,700 pounds per acre.

Cotton, making a strong comeback bid this year, continues to look good. Specialist Glenn Toomey describes it as "the best looking crop we've had in the southeastern area since 1964." That's the year the state average yield was 480 pounds of lint per acre, the highest on record. Over the state as a whole, Toomey said the crop is as good if not better than last year when the yield was 472 pounds per acre, the second highest ever.

Two factors made the farm crop situation even brighter: 1.

1. Farmers have already harvested a bumper crop of wheat. 2. Markets for all crops appear promising at this time. The cotton market outlook is the best in years; grain markets are strong at this time with a good chance they will hold up reasonably well into harvest; tobacco price averages should range well above $70 per hundredweight; and soybean demand has been unprecedented with continued good demand anticipated.

Mechanization Creeps Into Tobacco Farming

Mechanization is creeping slowly but surely into North Carolina tobacco farming, and it's helping relieve labor headaches for more and more growers.

Allan Parker, Pitt County grower, added a Reynolds-Harrington mechanical harvester and bulk curing barns to his list of mechanical aids this year. He found earlier that machines were available that could help him with the labor problem. He started with a stitching machine to replace hand stringing and a harvesting aid to transport field workers. These have been used for several years.

This not only reduced the amount of labor needed but also changed the type of labor required, explained Sam Weeks, extension agent.

This year, Parker is using the stitching machines and conventional barns on leased farms, and using the bulk systems to cure 25 acres of tobacco on his own farm.

New Housing Springs Up In N.C. Rural Sections

RALEIGH — Take a Sunday drive through many rural parts of the state and you'll notice new housing developments springing up.

Some of the houses in these developments may look modest, compared to their suburbia cousins, but to the families who are building them, they are a stepping stone to a new way of life.

"Families who are trading in their tenant farming jobs for jobs with industry are also trading their tenant houses and low-quality rental houses for the joys, trials and tribulations of home ownership," observes W. C. Warrick, extension housing specialist, North Carolina State University.

Warrick and other NCSU architects are designing many of the plans being used by these families. In 1970 more than 26,000 blueprints for houses were distributed free to N.C. families.

Most of the houses, which are being built for $12,000 to $20,000, have three or four bedrooms and many other features found in higher priced dwellings.

In addition to higher paying jobs and available house plans, there are other factors contributing to the rural housing boom, Warrick believes.

One is land. In some counties, land owners have released part of their farm land for residential use, helping to encourage housing developments.

Another is financing. Many rural families are becoming eligible for housing loans under various federal government agencies or from local banks and credit unions.

The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) probably makes the lion's share of these rural loans, says Warrick. However, since FHA is not competitive with banks or credit unions, their loans may be thought of as complementary, not rival financing.

Another factor is private capital. In some counties, such as Duplin, a group of private citizens are pooling their resources and are building a rural housing development as an "investment."

"The educational efforts of the Extension Service and other agencies has had its impact on improved rural housing, too," Warrick believes. "And this impact should increase."

Two Extension agents, in each of the state's 100 counties, have been given extensive training in housing information, including available funding, house plans, landscaping and house furnishings.

New Use For Cotton Scale

SMITHFIELD — W. L. Strickland, Rt. 2, Smithfield, has found a good use for an old cotton scale that's no longer needed for weighing cotton. He uses it to weigh pigs.

"Knowing the weight of pigs can be very surprising and interesting," the farmer said. "It is rewarding to know that some pigs perform very well compared to slower growing ones."

Strickland sells feeder pigs, and it is important for him to know animal weights before carrying them to market.

L. Leon Allen, Johnston County extension agent, explained that the cotton scale also provides the farmer with growth information on the pigs. Strickland can make management decisions on the basis of this performance data, such as culling sows whose pigs are slow growers.

NOW AVAILABLE FOR PEANUTS! BENLATE

A New and Unique Fungicide for Peanut Leaf Spot Control

Here's the difference BENLATE can make in your disease control program.

Systemic . . . BENLATE penetrates plant tissue where rain won't wash it off.

Longer Protection . . . BENLATE applied every 14 to 21 days gives effective leaf spot control even in bad weather.

Proven . . . During four years of field testing, BENLATE has proven effective by growers and State Agricultural Experiment Stations.

Extends Harvest . . . BENLATE keeps plants healthier longer, more pods mature—healthy plants allow extended harvests. Even when optimum harvest time is delayed due to adverse weather conditions, yields are maintained in comparison to standard programs.

BENLATE makes the difference with as little as 3/4 to 1 1/2 pound (6 to 8 oz.) per acre.

For more information, ask your dealer for an Agricultural Bulletin on BENLATE.

With any chemical follow labeling instructions and warnings carefully.
