Northern Ireland's Violence Is Ebbing

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The tide of violence in Northern Ireland ebbed today after four days of rioting, shooting and firebombing that has left 25 dead and hundreds injured.

Despite the lull, which appeared to be a recess of exhaustion by British troops and the Irish Republican Army, more hundreds of Roman Catholics fled south to the Irish Republic.

Slowly as the day brought no fresh outbursts of violence, the 412,000 residents of Belfast began filling the stores and the offices, to work and to shop in almost normal fashion.

Wholesale trucks once more ventured on their rounds. Slowly they conquered the food shortages of the week. Belfast, except in the burned out trouble areas, began to look almost normal.

In Belfast, Londonderry and Newry, all centers of religious and IRA fury since last weekend, the snipers and the bombers went underground.

One blast marred the peace—an explosion that damaged a Northern Ireland government building near Castleberg.

Police, freed of fires and snipers, moved to stem the flow of refugees, the thousands of Roman Catholics and Protestants who fled their homes this week in fear. Police said they would deal harshly with any cases where militants intimidate residents.

Still the Catholics fled to the Irish Republic and the Protestants to friends in the quietest parts of Belfast, to Liverpool across the Irish Sea and to other English cities.

Brig. Marston Tickell, army chief of staff in Northern Ireland, hailed the fragile armistice as an outright defeat of gunmen of the outlawed IRA at least, in part the result of the provincial internment-without-trial campaign.

It was this government internment order that touched off the latest round of fighting led by the IRA. It wants to united Northern Ireland with the Irish Republic.

British troops, targets of both Catholic and Protestant snipers during the wave of violence, killed another civilian Thursday night during an ambush of a military patrol in Londonderry's Catholic Bogside district. An army spokesman said a pistol was found at the dead man's side.

Troops and roaming gunmen in Belfast exchanged shots but no casualties were reported.

U.S. Dollar Still Falling

LONDON (AP) — The dollar continued its plunge on the European money markets today reaching a record low in West Germany where the American currency came under its greatest pressure.

Dealers reported the dollar was being hit by preweekend nervousness that usually accompanies a monetary crisis.

Another factor causing uncertainty in Europe was the Wall Street Journal's poll of leading American businessmen indicating a possible devaluation of the American currency, financial sources said.

In Frankfurt trading in the dollar opened at 3.3837 marks from Thursday's closing of 3.3850 marks. After a half hour, it had dropped to a record low of 3.3740 marks, and slipped even further in the next half hour to 3.3715 marks.

In London the dollar stood at 2.4197 to the pound sterling compared with $2.4194 at Thursday night's close. The rate was almost touching the pound's ceiling of $2.42 and the Bank of England was reported prepared to make further massive purchases of dollars to shore up the ailing American currency.

Financial sources estimated that the bank bought in about $250 million on Wednesday when large-scale support for the dollar became urgent in London.

Dealers reported many inquiries from speculators on the London market but relatively little business was done because of the mood of uncertainty.

In Zurich, Switzerland, the dollar rate dropped sharply to 4.03-04 Swiss francs, well below the voluntary support level of 4.06 at which the Swiss National Bank offers to buy, transferring the equivalent to blocked accounts.

Swiss banking sources said the national bank has possibly taken in as much as $2 billion since the crisis started last week.

Storm Is Off N.C. Coast

By The Associated Press
A tropical depression with winds of gale force headed for North Carolina's Outer Banks and Cape Hatteras today. Another such tropical storm, from which hurricanes sometimes grow, formed off extreme southwest Florida, near Fort Myers.

The storm off the mid-Atlantic coast moved very little during the night, and early this morning its broad, disorganized center was about 100 miles south of Cape Hatteras.

The National Weather Service said it was expected to resume an erratic drift northward today, passing over or near the Outer Banks and Cape Hatteras.

Reports from a reconnaissance plane indicated that although this depression had not strengthened during the night, there was a possibility of some strengthening today. The weather service said winds of gale force might be expected in a few squalls, mainly east of the center.

Weather-wise residents of the sparsely populated Outer Banks and adjacent coastal areas were advised to avoid open beaches today. Continuation of heavy seas was indicated in those areas, with the threat of dangerous rip tides.

Undermined By President

By MICHAEL J. REILLY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission says school-desegregation efforts may be seriously undermined by President Nixon's policy that busing should be used only as a last resort.

"What the nation needed was a call to duty and responsibility for the immediate elimination of the dual school system, and for support of all those school officials who are forthrightly carrying out their legal obligations," said the commission, headed by the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame.

President Nixon this week directed federal agencies to work toward desegregation wherever possible without resort to busing.

"Unfortunately, the President's statement almost certainly will have ... the effect of undermining the desegregation effort," the commission said.

"The President does not offer an alternative to implement the desegregation of the nation's schools. Had he presented an effective alternative, the statement would have found acceptance among those who have waited 17 years after the Supreme Court decision (on school desegregation) to see the law of the land implemented."

The commission said effects of Nixon's Aug. 3 antibusing statement on the Austin, Tex., school desegregation case will be to erode the position of school administrators who have put themselves on the line to implement the law.

Nixon said at that time that he favors no more busing than required by law. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, meanwhile, announced in Montgomery he was ordering the transfer of a white student who had been assigned to a predominantly black school 22 miles from her home.

He said he was trying to "help the President carry out his wishes." Wallace asked Nixon to join him in ignoring court orders for desegregation "if he is against busing, as he says he is."

The commission said busing has become an emotion-laden word—meaning more than just a mode of transportation.

"What is at issue in this matter," it said, "is not—to use the President's phrases—busing for the sake of busing or even busing solely for racial balance. The major issue is the kind of education available at the end of the trip."

Marketing Committee Again Acts Against Cross-Belt Sales

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) — Members of the industrywide Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee voted Thursday night to retain auction restrictions aimed at curbing cross-belt sales by growers.

The action came as the committee voted 25-7 to adjust auction scheduled to reflect new crop production estimates. By doing so, the committee ignored complaints from warehousemen and growers and court action that had raised doubts over the legality of the sales formula.

Designed to block excessive sales in one market area by growers from another area, the formula restricts tobacco belts to no more than 50 per cent of the out-of-area leaf sold during the last five years. Growers in North Carolina and South Carolina traditionally have sold much of their leaf on the early southern markets.

Federal district judges earlier this month issued orders restraining Florida and Georgia markets from restricting their out-of-belt sales. Both judges ruled the limitations constituted unreasonable restraint of interstate commerce.

Thursday night's decision was protested sharply by growers and warehousemen in the area served by North Carolina's eight markets on the Border Belt.

Low Total

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 66 American battle deaths in Vietnam in July was the lowest monthly total in over six years, the Defense Department says.

The next lowest figure was 32 killed in May, 1965, Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedham said Thursday.

Friedham said casualties would keep dropping as troop withdrawals continue.

The highest number of American losses came in May, 1968.

der Belt, which normally draws a heavy flow of leaf from Eastern North Carolina. A request for more selling time on Border Belt markets was denied by the committee.

"I'm afraid, with what has been done here tonight, we're in deep trouble," said James R. Oliver of Fairmont, N.C. Oliver is a grower and is the state Grange representative on the marketing committee.

Oliver said the Border Belt allocation for 1971 was 21.4 million pounds less than its average sales over the past five years.

Under the adjustments approved by the committee, total sales could exceed 83 million pounds in each of the next two weeks. The committee's initial goal was 75 million pounds weekly.

The revised schedule boosted the Georgia-Florida sales maximum to 175.5 million pounds, an increase of 7.3 million pounds. The South Carolina figure was raised 3.3 million pounds, to 141.9 million.

There were slight decreases in allocations to the North Carolina-Virginia Old Belt and the North Carolina Middle Belt. Allocations were unchanged for the South Carolina Border-North Carolina Belt and the North Carolina Eastern Belt.

Boys Club Members Receive Recognition

By JERRY RAYNOR

More than 100 excited young boys were in attendance for the third annual Boys' Club Awards Banquet Thursday night to receive certificates and trophies for their achievements and to hear Pro Football referee Jack Vest talk to them about his experiences.

Sponsored by the Greenville Civitan Club, the banquet was held in the fellowship hall of St. James United Methodist Church. Members of the Civitan Club, members of the Board of Directors of Greenville Boys' Club and parents were also on hand to see the youngsters receive recognition for outstanding work accomplished in the past year in sports, arts and crafts, travel and study projects.

William (Butch) Foust, a student at Aycock Junior High, was the recipient of the Civitan Award, given to the boy considered the most outstanding member of the Boys' Club in the past year. Butch received his award from Ben Gibbs, president of the Civitan.

In addition to the Civitan Award, Butch received first place trophies in his age group (13 to 15) for eight-ball pool, bumper pool, and putt-putt, as well as second place in marksmanship.

In a brief talk, guest speaker Vest emphasized the importance of being a good loser as well as a good winner. "Each boy who plays in any sport has a chance to win or lose," he told the young boys. "The way you lose is as important as the way you win."

Vest called on the Boys' Club members to "not defile that athlete body" with smoking or other things "the crowd does." He mentioned that pro-football players had to constantly maintain discipline in living in order to be winning players. "There's no dirty play in pro-football," Vest said. "There's rough play, however, as each player is in there to win."

This year trophies for first place achievers and certificates for second place winners were given to boys from both the Skinner Street Club and the summer club at Aycock Junior High.

Top winners in various games room sport, physical fitness, the reading program and arts and crafts are:

Main club, Skinner Street: Six and seven year olds — Kelvin Reeves, Troy Fleming, Gary Smith, and Jasper Sutton. Eight and nine year olds — Van Sutton, Poindexter Perkins, Jeff Allen, Jeff Atkinson and Jerry Daniels. In the 10-12 age group — Reginal Peterson, John Staton, Gerald Braxton and Eric Boyle. The 13-15 year old winners (in addition to Butch Foust) are — Jeff Hagans, Lindberg Morris, Matthew Ward, Jace Hagans, Willie Moye, Richard London and Milton Barrett.

At the Aycock Club, top winners were: Six and seven year olds — Allen Francis, Chris

Jones, and Andy Ucross. Eight and nine year olds — Marion (Continued on page 8)

Electricity Protest Is Planned In Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Citizens plan a candlelight parade Friday night to protest increases in the cost of electricity by the municipally owned system.

Increases have been more than 100 per cent in some cases. One protesting family has decided to use kerosene lamps.

Others have complained to the City Council, which has told them it has no control over the internal operations of the Public Works Commission.

The PWC distributes power it buys from Carolina Power & Light Co.

Housewives have picketed the commission. Mrs. Billie Carr said her July bill was $62.50, compared with $27.33 in July of last year.

CP&L won an interim wholesale rate increase of 33 per cent from the Federal Power Commission on May 28. Three days later, the PWC announced an increase averaging 22 per cent for its 36,000 customers.

Ray Muench, PWC manager, told protestors the increase in their bills was due to the 22 per cent boost and increased use of electricity by households. He said the average consumer had doubled his demand for power in the last 10 years. "It was unfortunate that we had to increase the rates right before a very hot, humid July when air conditioners soaked up so much power," he said.

PWC profits, about $3 million a year, subsidize sewer and water expenses and the city's general fund. Muench said that without the subsidies there would be a tax increase.

Barone-Ashby Vows Said In Saturday Ceremony

CENTRALIA, Ill. — Miss Elizabeth Ann Ashby became the bride of Gary Louis Barone in a nuptial mass in St. Mary's Church here on Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Mary Ashby of Centralia, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Barone of Greenville, N.C.

Given in marriage by her brother, James Ashby Jr. of Chester, Ill., the bride wore a white organza over taffeta gown. The princess style bodice was designed with a round neckline bordered with Venice lace and long full sheer sleeves accented with lace appliques. The hemline of the floor length A-line skirt was enhanced with lace appliques.

For her headpiece, she wore a pillbox with a cathedral length mantilla edged with Venice lace appliques. The bride carried a bouquet of white daisies and white roses.

Father Charles Knoll performed the double ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with a large basket of white mums and daisies at the altar.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Nancy Goff, Miss Mary Louise Meaken and Mrs. Bonnie Petrea were soloists.

Mrs. James P. Christo of Hattisburg, Miss., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. James Ashby of Chester, Ill., sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Robert Rosevear of New York, N.Y., and Miss Patty Ashby of Centralia, Ill., sister of the bride.

Junior bridesmaids were Miss Theresa Ashby and Miss Loretta Ashby, sisters of the bride.

The attendants were dressed in floor length princess style gowns. The skirts were of red dotted swiss with the waists accented by red velvet belts. The bodices were of white miramist with full sheer sleeves. The necklines were accented by a round collar trimmed in white lace. They wore white picture hats trimmed with bands of red velvet and they carried baskets filled with summer flowers.

Miss Tia Ashby, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Peter Christo, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride was dressed in a blue knit dress and wore a corsage of white daisies. The mother of the bridegroom selected a beige lace dress and wore a corsage of white daisies.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Groomsman were Drayton Riley of Kansas City, Mo., Joseph Hanrahan of St. Louis, Mo., Bill Ashby of St. Louis, Mo., Patrick Ashby and Mark Ashby, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Charles, Tom, and John Ashby, brother of the bride.

After a wedding trip to St. Louis, Mo., the couple will reside in Wichita, Kan.

The bride is a graduate of Centralia High School and Sacred Heart College. She is employed by School of the Magadalen, Wichita, Kan. The bridegroom is a graduate of Eastchester High School, Eastchester, N.Y., and is a senior at Sacred Heart College, Wichita, Kan.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the St. Mary's Church hall.

Separating Unruly Kids Improves Their Behavior

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband. We have been married for 10 years and have three children, ages 4 thru 9.

My husband will not discipline the children. It is all left up to me. The only time he will do any correcting is if I am not at home. I work in a factory, eight hours a day, five days a week, and I am tired when I get home. When the kids fight among themselves, I yell at them, then my husband gets mad at me for yelling at the kids, but if they are fighting and I ask him to make them stop he says, "Leave me alone."

Now he tells me he can't stand my yelling at the kids all the time, and if I don't quit it, he is going to move out of the house.

I love him and want him to be happy, but I'm being pulled between knowing the kids need to be yelled at, and trying to keep my husband home. Please help me.

—PULLED BETWEEN

DEAR PULLED: Your method of disciplining the kids isn't working or you wouldn't be yelling all the time. Try another technique. When they fight, separate them until they get good and lonesome for each other. (Don't worry, they will.) And keep them apart until they learn to get along better. Time is in your favor. The older they get, the smarter they get.

DEAR ABBY: How do you feel about asking for a "doggie bag" in a high class restaurant? It is an acceptable practice in many places, but we have quite a debate going on at home about this.

DEAR GLENDALE: If I'm unable to do justice to the meal in a restaurant, I ask for a doggie bag, and I have no qualms. [I also have no dog, and the leftovers are delicious!]

DEAR ABBY: Below is a letter I have just received from my daughter in law, who is old enough to know better.

Dear Mother:
I am writing to thank you for the belated birthday gift you sent our only grandchild, Andrew. It was very nice of you to have sent such a generous gift, but I wish to express my feelings about your tardiness in sending gifts. I can understand a slip-up in the mails occasionally, but even that is no excuse for you, as you have nothing in the world to do but amuse yourself, and you are constantly shopping for yourself, so buying a gift well in advance of a special occasion should be no big chore.

I notice that when you send your son [my husband] a gift, it always arrives on time, but all gifts to ME and Andrew trail in late, which makes a birthday gift rather pointless when it arrives after the birthday. I think it is better to convey my true feelings to you than to feel this way and remain silent.

Love,
Linda
HER MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR MOTHER-IN-LAW: I would ignore it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CONNIE: The biggest problem in the world could have been solved when it was small. What are you waiting for?

Outstanding Young Women Are Announced

The Jay-C-Ettes announced today that Mrs. Etzil Gordon and Mrs. Adell Prescott have been selected as Outstanding Young Women for 1971.

They were nominated by the Jay-C-Ettes earlier this year on the basis of their achievements in civic, social, church, and homelife activities.

The Outstanding Young Women of America program, now in its seventh year, was conceived by the leaders of the nation's major women's organizations. The program recognizes young women between the ages of 21 and 35 for their contributions to the betterment of their communities, professions, and country.

York he was booked solidly for two weeks at the $150 figure. In Philadelphia it was $100. In Las Vegas, three years ago, he charged $5,000 each to five women a day during a convention. He painted some of them from head to toe, he said.

But he must do some good with his talents too, he explains. He puts on beauty shows at prisons and cuts the hair of mongoloid children at state hospitals because he must feel he "is doing something for the good of humanity."

He says he has been invited to be beauty consultant to the United States Army and he is considering donating his services to that cause. To spur lady enlistsments, of course.

These ladies are now in competition for North Carolina's Outstanding Young Woman of the Year Award. This fall, 50 young women, one from each state, will be named Outstanding Young Women of America.

Jay-C-Ettes Begin Work On Candy Sale

Plans for the Jay-C-Ette annual candy sale were discussed at the meeting held Wednesday night.

Candy sale chairmen, Mrs. Dallas McPherson and Mrs. Ralph Martin, have organized committees to sell bags of candy at $1 per bag. The sale will begin in September.

Mrs. Joe Deloach expressed thanks deserved by the girls who worked for the Jaycees Boy's Home All Star game. Working with the cheerleaders, assembling programs, selling tickets and selling programs were included.

Mrs. Rex Vorhees and Mrs. John Taft have replenished the Jay-C-Ette toy box on the Pediatric Ward at Pitt Memorial Hospital. The toy box is another project of the club.

Mrs. Charles Hargett and Mrs. Wallace West are workers for the Crippled Children's Clinic for August.

The group also voted to donate $500 to the Cerebral Palsy campaign. Plans are being made to help Girl's Haven, Burnsville.

President Ann Reese welcomed Mrs. John Jernigen and Mrs. Sherman Stalls as guests. New members were Mrs. David Chadwick and Mrs. Marvin Buck.

The calorie count for citrus is low. A medium orange has 60 calories, a grapefruit half has 55, one whole lemon has 20 and a large tangerine has 40.

"A client can ask me to make anything. I always say yes and worry about how to do it later," says Tholoniati. He even makes three versions of the Eiffel Tower—simplified for $40, stylized for $100 and in full detail for $200. Queen Elizabeth chose the last.

A self-taught artist, he has through trial and breakage over 15 years learned how to create sculptures from sugar. The big pieces he molds cold "like piecrust." But his forte is the hot medium. He cooks the sugar at 300 degrees, pours it onto a marble slab and pulls it with his hands until it takes on a satiny when.

"Then I get to work," says Tholoniati. In his workshop on the rue Chateau d'Eau, he can turn out 40 roses in an hour if he is in a good mood. His Concorde, timed for its launching three years ago, is striped in blue, windowed in green and nestled on a bed of roses.

However, he is only the sugar king after noon. At dawn, he turns back into a baker and starts drudging with the dough. As prevot general of the maitres patisiers of France, he tours through Europe teaching pastry-makers their own business and gives a monthly lesson to the students at the Cordon Bleu.

"I eat tons of pastry, because in this field you have to be a bit gourmand," he says. When I take a trip, the first thing I do is look for a beautiful bakery. Sometimes I even eat too much."

Girls Will Run To Beautician When Their First Wrinkles Show

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Young girls may scorn professional beauty advice as being old-hat. But just wait until the wrinkles show — about age 30 will do it — says George Masters of Hollywood, one of the most high-priced beauticians in the world. On a tour of beauty salons he recently was in New York at a fee of $150 dollars for 45 minutes of his beauty time.

"A girl may feel she is too groovy to care about her looks, but when she looks into the mirror one day, and sees the first signs of aging — under the eyes and at the corners of the mouth — she'll run to a beautician for help."

Masters doesn't want to beautify young girls anyway — "not unless they have laryngitis and can't talk," he says. They are too opinionated, "and they all want to look alike."

Some of the most beautiful women in the world have sat for Masters' ministrations — Marilyn Monroe, Audrey Hepburn, Sophia Loren, Doris Day. He says he beautified Princess Radziwell for the opening night of her first play, and a few years ago he made over Lynda Bird Johnson for her appearance at the Academy Awards with George Hamilton.

He prefers to help women "over 30, the insecure age." They are then willing to follow his advice and it makes his job easier. "But he scorns the 'Mainliner tribe,' who never change their image, and their daughters are the same, he says.

"These fairly rich women, one encounters in certain areas, dress in a uniform, much as the groovy kids do. They are the worst dressed of all women and are obnoxious with their nasty polo coats worn from year to year, plaid walking shorts, red

He doesn't mean to imply these women should wear the latest fashions. Women should wear what looks well on them. But it is as bad to wear a uniform of your set as it is to wear a fashion fad, he says.

"Some women do not dress well because they worry about their neighbors. 'If I wear false eyelashes, my friends will think I'm unnatural' . . . or they will tell me that their husband might have said, 'why bother' . . ."

"When your husband says, 'why bother, watch out,'" Masters tells them. "If you don't bother another woman will."

hair or whatever.

"If someone says your hair looks great, brush it out. It has become too important. You don't want someone staring at your hair all evening. It is sort of like wearing those jangle bracelets that call attention to you.

"Think of yourself as an image. Look well in everything, but nothing should be too outstanding. Hair styles are dumb-dumb anyway. Wear your hair in the most becoming fashion. You live only once. Make the most of it."

Along those lines, Masters would have his face lifted as tight as possible if he needed it, he says. More women should do it.

Women clamor for his outspoken advice and services no matter what the fee. In New

Change In Politics And Govm't

Change of the Lieutenant Governor's post to full-time status in North Carolina is going to bring about other changes in the operations of politics and the operation in government in this state.

In the past the Lieutenant Governor officially has been the state's number two executive officer. In reality he has merely been the presiding officer of the Senate's biennial sessions, with very few other responsibilities. He was paid only during the legislative sessions.

Now, with the office given full-time status by the General Assembly and the pay set at $30,000 annually a larger than usual number of potential candidates are eyeing it.

While the office was made a full-time position, the General Assembly did not specify the duties other than that as presiding officer of the Senate. Assignment of other duties were left to the next governor.

How will such an arrangement influence the state's political situation?

For one thing, it could lead for the first time to a two-man ticket for the state's two top positions. Traditionally there has been no connection between candidates for the two offices. Should the Lieutenant Governor become in fact as well as in title the state's second executive officer, it is likely the man in the Chief Executive's post may like some say in who his first assistant might be. That could lead to candidates pairing up to run for the first and second executive posts in the state.

It could also mean that the Lieutenant Governor, in addition to being the presiding officer in the Senate, could emerge as the chief legislative ram-rod for the governor's legislative program...another change from past political practice in the state. It would give the executive branch a more direct influence over many legislative decisions.

In the broad view, the change in the status of the office of Lieutenant Governor offers many advantages for the state in strengthening the executive department. It will take time, however, to see exactly how this office is developed and what kind of responsibilities ultimately come to rest with the man who holds the state's number two office.

Heroin Center Is Very Elusive

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch, which profiles a heroin-processing center in Laos, is by an Associated Press reporting team which has been studying drug traffic in and around Vietnam.

By PETER ARNETT and BERNARD GAVZER Associated Press Writers BAN HOUET SAI, Laos (AP)—The heroin pipeline to Vietnam begins here—a sleepy Mekong River town with a single dusty street and a deceptive air of innocence.

With the Mekong River swirling on one side, the steep, jungle mountains rising on the other, little Ban Houei Sai sits remote and seemingly lost amid the geographic jigsaw puzzle that has China, Burma, Thailand and Laos all meeting within a few miles.

It was this distant location that made Ban Houei Sai a perfect opium town. Not even the decade-long Laos war intervenes. Bombs fall and bullets crack on the other side of Laos, near Vietnam. Here in western Laos the air is still and peaceful.

Narcotics agents of half a dozen nations point to Ban Houei Sai as a major opium and heroin center. You fly in by chartered plane from the Laotian capital of Vientiane 400 miles to the southwest, expecting to find a small industrial town.

But not one chimney is smoking. There is only the steady splashing of the river as it slaps at the boat landing where ferries speed across to Thailand at the opposite bank only a mile away.

The suggestion that human misery is manufactured here seems ridiculous.

Yet you know that the intelligence appraisals of half a dozen countries cannot all be wrong. The evidence begins to accumulate.

There are the Meo tribespeople, milling around the marketplace, who grow the opium poppies. They scrape off the sap to sell to itinerant Chinese traders, who pass it on to the rebel military bands. The bands annually assemble large caravans of pack mules to carry the opium to Ban Houei Sai.

American officials in Vientiane said big caravans pulled into the hills north of Ban Houei Sai in April and May of this year, unloading tons of raw opium.

A Chinese store in town offered evidence of what the local industry is—rows of neatly molded bronze opium weights measuring up to half a pound and shaped like ducks and guardian lions, used by traders to measure the Meo harvests.

The largest heroin refinery in all of Southeast Asia was in a village at the edge of the town, according to a report by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. It was capable of processing 100 kilos of raw opium a day into heroin, a production great enough to provide the total estimated demand by American GIs in Vietnam. The white powder is smuggled in kilo packs across the river to Thailand on its way to Vietnam. A kilo is 2.2 pounds. But where was the refinery?

Blank stares greet inquiries among the local population. But there is mention of a sawmill along the rutted road outside of town and our American informants had told us a sawmill was used as a cover for the heroin plant.

Great teak logs were being mangled with chain saws at the mill, and smoke curled up from charcoal kilns. The workers were friendly enough but they ignored our inquiries about heroin.

We hitched a sampan ride to the thatched roof village of Ban Houei Tap a few hundred yards further on across a stream. The refinery was reportedly in that village but all we saw was a dog stretched in sleep in the hot noon sun, and a sarong-clad woman who giggled from a doorway and offered to sell us a plastic vial of blue stones which she claimed were sapphires dredged from the river.

We headed back into town. But as our chartered aircraft rose from the airstrip we directed the pilot to give us an aerial look at Ban Houei Tap.

And there was the refinery, or what was left of it, nestled halfway up a small hill above a stream, a discreet path leading to it from the village half a mile away. But the three buildings used to house the apparatus and store the dope seemed burned to ashes, and only the foundations were standing. Foxholes dug around the jungle clearing were unoccupied.

We asked our American informants in Vientiane if it had all been an optical illusion. "No," we were told. "The Chinese who control this stuff deliberately burned that refinery down last week—you might say one result of our pressure. But they moved out all the apparatus and the dope before the fire, and are now in business in the village of Ban Quang a few miles upriver," the Americans said.

Israeli Cement Land Seizures

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

JERUSALEM — Rapid completion of new housing here, some of it esthetically controversial and all of it illegal under international law, will add no fewer than 52,000 new Jewish residents to the once Arab-controlled western portion of this beautiful city.

Ironically, Arabs are providing the manual labor for the new housing, some of it high-rise on French Hill (Jordanian territory), some of it modern two and three family units in the adjoining Ramat Eshkol section. (Also Jordanian territory).

The result of this rush to construct new housing for Jewish immigrants and young Israeli couples will make West Jerusalem, seized by Israel in the 1967 war and the only part of Jordan that Israel formally claims for its own, into a Jewish city. The Jerusalem housing boom violates not only repeated sanctions of the United Nations but also the Hague Convention. Signed by Israel, this international protocol forbids an occupying power from changing the population ratios of the occupied territory.

The Israeli Government response to that is a counter-charge that Jordan never had a clear claim to West Jerusalem in the first place. But West Jerusalem was an Arab city before Jordan seized it in 1948. By contrast, Israel is openly determined to pack West Jerusalem with Israeli citizens, thus gaining a fait accompli when the matter of Jerusalem finally comes before an international tribunal.

The proof of this lies in the fact that Israel has tripled the geographic size of Jerusalem since the 1967 war. Every square inch has been taken from Jordan by land expropriation. Despite limp support from the U.S. and other nations, Jordan is powerless to resist.

This is one face of Jerusalem under Israeli occupation, but there is another more cheerful face, symbolized by an unnoticed incident last year when the Arabs staged a huge parade to mourn the death of Gamal Abdel Nasser. Mayor Teddy Kollek was accidentally trapped in that emotional procession, beyond the help of security guards. Yet not one of the thousands of grieving Arabs lifted a finger against him.

In the long run, that face of Jerusalem may magically be the decisive one, belying unproved charges that Arab Christians are running away from Jerusalem. Consider, for example, the role of the Arabs themselves in building the new homeland for Jews in Jerusalem. From surrounding villages, thousands of Arabs are finding the steady employment in Jerusalem an economic boom to them. We toured both the construction projects and the villages and, although it is far too soon to draw final conclusions, we found a surprising lack of animus against Israel and a less surprising feeling of genuine warmth for Teddy Kollek.

Thus, somewhat like the British war prisoners who built the bridge on the River Kwai for their Japanese captors and against their own long-term interest, the Arabs in and nearby Jerusalem seem quite content. Their leaders are also beginning to think more seriously about Mayor Kollek's plan for eventual joint administration and perhaps some kind of joint sovereignty for a Jerusalem which, Kollek vows, will "never be divided again."

But Israel's illegal population moves in Jerusalem are only the tip of the iceberg of what appear to be Israel's acquisitive designs on its conquered lands. On a magnificent height overlooking the city of Hebron, deep inside the Jordanian west bank, a vast housing project has crash-program status. Starting with a population of 1,000, this new town will undoubtedly expand. It is being built on land expropriated for a defensive outpost.

Down on the tip of the Sinai peninsula at the strategic stronghold of Sharm El-Sheikh, we saw Egyptian territory being prepared for two tourist hotels. In the fantastic mountains of south-central Sinai, regular Israeli airline service will soon start to Santa Katerina, now being developed as another Israeli tourist spa.

Strength For Today

THE NATURE OF POWER What is power? Even today we speak of horsepower although horses will soon be as nearly extinct as buffaloes. Scientists definitely make our heads swim as they plan for this advance of that in the material world. We put men on the moon. How about finding out all there is to know about the planet Mars? With considerable disappointment we discovered that the planet Venus was a bit too warm for our physical setup. They now have submarines from which a missile may be launched that will knock the hat off the cop directing traffic in the main square of Moscow.

But we have not yet created life. God still remains the Creator. This galaxy of ours, containing billions of bodies, is in a definite dither over something. The little solar system of which we are a part has a sun at the center which a prominent astronomer has referred to as "a run-of-the-mill, plain yellow star."

Computers. They're definitely spooky. You feed material into them and they come back with answers that make your hair stand on end. What a blowup there may be some day if somebody presses the wrong button. When the Creator decides to close up shop, what's going to happen to us or to our descendants? Increased discovery of sources of power can be good or bad — depending upon the use we make of them.

An Affair Every Week

(Many years ago Art Buchwald discovered you can have an affair and still keep your marriage intact. This is how it can be done.)

One of the problems of being married and having young children is that much of the romance goes out of people's lives. A friend of mine has solved the problem

Every week he has an "affair" with his wife.

What he does is he kisses his wife good-bye in the morning and goes off to work. About noon he called her up and whispers, "This is George. Is your husband home?"

His wife replies, "No, the oaf has gone off to the office." "I've got to see you this afternoon," the husband says.

"I can't. I've got to be here when the children come home from school."

"Get one of the neighbors to take care of them. Tell them it's an emergency and you have to go into town."

"Do I dare?" "Please, darling, we don't have much time together."

"I'm frightened." "I love you."

"I'll come. Where shall we meet?"

"Somewhere where no one will recognize us. I'll pick you up on the corner of F and 14th Street, at 3 o'clock."

The wife arranges for the neighbors to take care of the children and gets dressed up in her prettiest suit. She then drives into town, parks two blocks away and waits on the corner.

Her husband pulls up. She glances around fast and then hops in. "I think I was seen, darling," she says nervously.

"Relax," the husband says comfortingly.

"Where are we going?" she asks.

"There's a motel just across the bridge. We'll check in there."

"But we have no luggage," she protests.

"I'll check in. You stay in the car and then we'll drive to the room."

After they get into the room she laughs, "I didn't even bring a toothbrush."

"I thought about you all week," he says, kissing her. "So did I," she replies. "I waited for this moment. I thought it would never come."

"I wanted to call you, but I

Paper Pulpit Advice

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — Once a year a columnist gets to tell other people how to live.

By journalistic tradition the columnist annually is entitled to climb into his paper pulpit, act like an all-knowing, all-seeing authority on anything and everything, and lecture everybody on what to do with his life.

Feeling my brain swelling now with a year-long accumulation of wisdom, I would like to dispense the following free advice—to be disregarded by the reader at his peril:

Avoid standing up to women in arguments. It is not only wearing to the mind, it is tiring to the feet.

Always come to work in the morning laughing. It'll make your boss think you're not afraid of your job. And if you laugh hard enough, it'll make you think so, too.

Read at least two newspapers every day, two magazines every week, and a new book every month.

Marry a girl you can stand and who can stand you. If she is smart enough also to cook and finish your uncompleted crossword puzzles, you've got a gold mine. If you violate your marriage vows later, brag about it neither to her nor your friends.

Play at least one sport, but not so well that you give it more time than you do the work you earn your bread by.

Never get the habit of having a drink every day before lunch until after you're 50, or two drinks until you're over 60. After 65, of course, you are free to have three drinks, skip lunch and nap all afternoon until the cocktail hour.

Every Speculator Is Waiting

By ELMER ROESSNER If a nation must devalue its currency, the thing to do is to devalue it — zip! — and not tip off its hand. By sending up signals in advance, every speculator and foreign nation in the world knows in advance and sets its traps to profit from it.

Furthermore, by confessing a weakness of its currency, a country encourages raids.

That's what the Joint Economic Subcommittee on Internal Exchange and Payments did when it publicly stated that the dollar is overvalued and called for "significant" devaluation.

Revaluing the dollar means raising the price at which the United States buys and sells gold, now pegged at $35 an ounce. Holders of dollars abroad, by acting before devaluation, can make a profit. If they exchange $35,000, for example, at a central bank for a sounder currency and the price of gold goes up to $40 an ounce in revaluation, their foreign currency can be changed back for $40,000 in dollars. And central banks will be tempted to change their dollars into gold — something they can do but you can't — in anticipation or devaluation.

ELMER ROESSNER

$50 billion (B) of dollars or dollar credits. The central banks hold about $31 billion (B) in dollars, so much more than the amount of foreign currency that we hold that they could claim more than the $10.5 billion (B) in gold we hold in Fort Knox and elsewhere.

The fact that devaluation has been publicly advocated makes us vulnerable to raids on the dollar, such as the French attempted a year ago. There was a minor sort of raid last week and this week France took $191 million (M) in gold. There will be more demands.

The effect of devaluation, if it comes, will depend much on its size. If it is moderate, such as increasing the price of gold to $38 an ounce, it will have little effect, save for some enrichment of speculators and foreign banks. It could be more, since the dollar is worth only 33 cents of its 1939 purchasing power and 70.8 cents of its 1957-59 purchasing power. A moderate increase, unless the United States ceases its inflationary course, would only lead to further devaluations.

Big Cut Would Draw Blood — But if the devaluation was substantial, say valuing an ounce of gold at $50, these would be the consequences: There would be only minor change domestically. The prices of domestic goods would be little affected.

The price of imports would rise. Foreign autos, for example, which rose 22.9 per cent in imports in July, would cost about 43 per cent more.

That would strangle imports.

Foreign travel would also go up more than 40 per cent, making it once again an experience for the wealthy.

Rising costs of foreign travel, from a hotel room in Paris to a bath in Tokyo, would hit plane, boat, the entire travel business hard.

People with investments in tangibles that have a world market would stand to make huge profits. The painting, "The Death of Actaeon," which was recently purchased for over $5 million (M) would quickly be worth $7 million. Other objects d'art, gems and many collectors items would rise in value overnight.

Collectors of gold coins would find their collections escalate in value.

The cost of keeping our armed forces in Europe, Indo-China and other spots around the world would soar. This would leave the alternatives of asking benefited countries for help, increasing taxes to keep troops abroad, or leaving these areas undefended from communists.

U.S. And Soviet Struggle For Submarine Supremacy

By EDWARD K. DELONG
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Night and day, every day of the year, the sleek black nuclear-powered submarines of the United States and Russia play a deadly game of hide and seek in the oceans of the world.

Their electronic eyes and ears constantly seek two chief targets—the missile firing submarines both nations operate, and surface ships of any type.

U.S. Navy officials say each nation surpasses the other in some aspect of submarine warfare.

The United States wins its high marks for evading detection of its 41 Polaris and Poseidon missile subs, while keeping track of Russia's 'H-class' and 'Y-class' missile submarines at least part of the time.

Navy officials refuse to say how well they can keep up with Russia's missile submarines. But earlier this year a Y-class sub surfaced in the Pacific and was photographed by an American reconnaissance plane. One official said "it was no accident the plane was there."

By contrast, the official said, "we have no indication that any of our Polaris (and new Poseidon) boats have been detected on patrol at any time in the past 10 years. And we would know if they were detected."

"We feel in a comparison of their missile submarines to our missile submarines, qualitatively we're in significantly better shape."

In the area of surface targets, however, Navy officials concede the advantage of the Soviet Union. The difference comes from a sub called the "C-class," unlike any the United States has, which can fire a long-range cruise missile either submerged or on the surface.

"There isn't any question but that this is the most formidable threat we've faced on the high seas," one official said.

The thrust of this threat is aimed toward sea convoys, a vital element of any U.S. military action overseas, officials say. They say this is completely in keeping with the modern Russian Navy's goal of denying the United States the use of sealanes in case of war.

Before the advent of the cruise missile, officials said, forces protecting a convoy had only to worry about a torpedo attack coming from just outside the protective "screen" of Navy defenders around the convoy.

"Now you've got to anticipate that the attack may be coming at you from anywhere in a 100-mile radius of the unit you are covering," one official said.

Modern high-performance passive sonars—such as the C-class subs undoubtedly use—can detect heavy vessels "at extremely long ranges," he said. "Under good conditions, a figure of 100 miles is not unusual."

The official said an especially "formidable" aspect of the cruise missile is that once it is launched toward a convoy it might skim undetected close to the ocean surface through most of its flight.

"The first thing you may know of its presence may be the missile coming at you from 25 miles away," he said. "This makes our problem as much an anti-aircraft warfare problem as an anti-submarine problem."

Officials said the best U.S. submarine attack weapons were designed to handle ships of 15 years ago. They said the United States will lack anything to knock out today's fast ships, capable of going 30-35 miles per hour, until the Mark-8 torpedo goes into service late in this decade.

One official said the Navy is considering modifications of a nuclear-tipped, submarine-launched rocket which would give it a conventional warhead. This would give the Navy a weapon comparable to that of the Russian C-class submarine.

He also said it was unfortunate the United States stopped work on the Regulus air-breathing missile when the Polaris missile was developed more than a decade ago.

"In retrospect, if we had continued those air-breathers a good tactical missile would have come along from them," he said.

Officials said the United States and the Soviet Union each has about 90 nuclear-powered submarines in operation. All, they said, are capable of speeds in the range of 30-35 miles an hour.

The Russians are building some 15 nuclear-powered submarines a year, almost half of the U.S. Polaris. The United States is turning out about five nuclear powered subs a year.

With approximately 90 nuclear subs and more than 260 Diesel powered subs, Russia has the largest submarine force ever operated in time of peace.

"They are certainly putting a great deal of national effort in this area and only a fool would say it isn't going to continue," one official said. "We (the United States) cannot rest. We've got to constantly look to our laurels."

Baby Goat Has Been Kidnaped

ROSEBURG, Ore. (AP)—Someone apparently has kidnaped a baby goat from the herd which forecasts the weather for this southern Oregon city.

Sheriff's deputies have been looking for the kid since a resident reported Wednesday that she saw a young man carrying the animal away from the herd of seven on nearby 1,200-foot Mt. Hebo.

Roseburg residents check the weather by watching the goats through binoculars. If they're near the top of the mountain, it means fair weather. But if they stay at the bottom or go back down after going up, it generally means rain.

Conservative Oklahoma Losing Image Of Campus Contentment

By GUY A. GOODINE
STILLWATER, Okla. (UPI)—Conservative Oklahoma, with its granite image of discipline within its colleges and universities, is finding itself losing that air of contentment on campus.

Oklahoma State University at Stillwater, in north-center Oklahoma, has had its first taste of racial turmoil and, though it lacked violent overtones, it has prompted criticism of the administration for a "dangerous aloofness."

Oklahoma State remained peaceful during the freedom wars and peace demonstrations from 1967 to last year, but on

Nov. 12, 1970, the cry of racism at the school began to be raised.

It was triggered by an alleged attack on three black girls by white students and resulted in a week of protests, student strikes, a march on the Capitol at Oklahoma City and an unusual meeting between school president Robert Kamm and black protesters.

The incident took much of the campus by surprise. "I didn't realize there was a tense racial situation here," a white student said.

Blacks Feel Unwanted
"Where have you been?" a black girl overhearing the conversation asked. "You must have your head in the sand. There is a complete blanket between blacks and whites on this campus."

Student senator Bill Armstrong blames the administration.

"We have a hierarchy that is stupid, opportunistic and basically dishonest," he said. "If black guys had molested white girls there would have been a lynching."

The incident prompted the administration to take another look at the campus situation and, if an awareness of the problem was achieved, black students feel this school year will be better because of it.

"There was a slow understanding of the strong racial overtones this thing had," said Lou Bullock, a student from Tulsa, Okla. "They realized a bunch of people were made but they apparently did not feel they were really grappling with a racial situation."

"Most blacks have a feeling of not being wanted here. They are excluded in a strange culture."

Blacks Make Demands
There were only about 350 black students among OSU's 8,000 students last year and there may be less this year. Many blacks have said they will not return to Oklahoma State this year and are advising black high school seniors to look elsewhere.

The outburst last year prompted the black student community to renew requests they had submitted in 1968—this time as demands. They included a black studies program, black counselors and sensitivity training for white teachers.

"We don't expect to get action on all of them right now," a black student leader said. "We just want to see positive indications that something will be done."

Racism was on campus then and will be there again this year, said Dr. Richard Cummins, an assistant engineering professor and chairman of the Oklahoma Civil Liberties Union.

"We've got it on campus and we haven't made any overt moves to cope with it," he said. "The university slowly became integrated without any transitional steps to deal with it. Lacking an institutional program, the only thing you can do is try to get groups of people together. That hasn't done very well, lately."

Asked to explain, one high Israeli official shrugged his shoulders. "Don't worry so much," he said. "These things are being done on a logic of their own."

Whatever that means, it is a logic Israel may one day have to answer for to Jordan, Egypt and even its best friend, the United States.

New Seoul Subway Growing By Stages

By JAMES KIM
SEOUL, South Korea (UPI)—Seoul is getting a subway—by degrees.

In a little over 20 years the capital city of South Korea has grown in population from less than one million to 5.5 million and one result has been incredible traffic jams. The Seoul subway is designed to put as much travel underground as possible to ease the street congestion, and to move more people out of the city to suburbs.

Work on the subway started this April with a modest first-stage that calls for a 5.91-mile subway serving the city center. It will have seven stations between the Seoul main railroad station and the eastern suburban district of Chongryang-Ri via the City Hall Plaza in the heart of the city. It is scheduled to be completed in 1973 at a cost of about $80 million.

Stage two in the construction will add 10.5 miles of track to the system at an estimated cost of $163 million. It is due to be finished in 1976.

The third and last stage is to extend the system to routes totalling a little over 66 miles taking in all the major suburban areas. Details are not yet completed, including financing. Foreign loans will be sought and prospects are that Japan may be a major source of capital.

Authorities began working out the subway plan in June last

Try Avoid Fight Black Americans

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A cofounder of the Black Economic Development Conference, just back from a visit to North Vietnam, says the North has adopted a policy of trying not to fight black American soldiers.

Muhammad Kenyatta was part of a three-member delegation that spent last month in Southeast Asia. He attributed the statement of policy to North Vietnamese officials.

Soviets Take Dim View Of Own Hippies

By ROGER LEDDINGTON
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP)—In official Soviet eyes, the American hippie is a promoter of peace and international friendship.

But the Soviet hippie is a bum. Soviet television screens have shown American policemen brandishing nightsticks in breaking up antiwar demonstrations by long-haired demonstrators.

The KGB, or secret police, don't like Russian hippies even when they want to protest "the imperialist (American) aggression in Vietnam."

The story is told of a Moscow hippie leader named Solnyshko, or Little Sun.

"He thought up the idea of joining with our hippie friends in the West," an informant said.

"Solnyshko told his friends that the local trade union council had given the okay for the demonstration, maybe to persuade those of his friends who were less inclined to invoke the anger of the police.

"Anyway on June 1, about 150 Moscow hippies gathered near Red Square. Their plan was to march up Gertzen Street to the American Embassy.

"They got started with Solnyshko leading them and carrying a placard that read 'Make love not war' in English.

"But when they turned into Gertzen a detachment of militia and KGB were waiting for them.

"Most of them got 10 to 15 days in jail. Some were put into psychiatric prisons and all those with long hair got a haircut and a KGB lecture."

N.Y. Lottery Now A 'Success'

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—New York State's lottery, which nearly went broke in its first two years of operation, is now a healthy $30 million-plus a year money maker.

Due largely to a number of special drawings—including one that made an "instant millionaire" out of one winner and gave $25,000 a year for life to another, the lottery is considered a "modest success" by the New York State Tax Department.

"It's producing more money than two or three of our smaller taxes," Commissioner Norman F. Gallman said. "And it's doing it without costing the taxpayers anything. If the money wasn't coming from the lottery, it would have to come from state taxes—or from higher local income taxes."

The latest gimmick being used to promote the lottery, which began in June, 1967, is a vending machine to sell the $1 tickets for the regular monthly drawings. The Tax Department has installed 50 of the $800 machines and plans to buy a total of 500 to place in "heavily trafficked" areas of the state.

"So far, the result has been a tremendous boost for sales," a spokesman said. "We have three in the Albany areas in stores that sold tickets manually before. One store is doing twice the volume, another three times and the third, which normally sold 300 tickets a month, sold 1,500 the first month with the machine."

Neighboring New Jersey started a lottery in January this year, but the competition has not cut sales in New York.

"We get a little more than 35 per cent of our sales from out of state and more than half of that from commuters from New Jersey and Connecticut," the spokesman said. "We found no falloff in New Jersey sales after they started their lottery."

Shortly, however, New York will start a weekly lottery with 50 cent tickets sold by number, similar to the New Jersey lottery. It may eventually replace the regular $1 ticket monthly lottery (for $100,000 top prize), but for the present, New York will run both.

"They've (New Jersey officials) proven the 50 cent numbers lottery is popular so there's no reason we shouldn't go into it, too," Gallman said. "The only problem has been getting the banks, which are our collection agents, to gear up for a little faster action."

Some High Spots On Great Divide

BUENA VISTA, Colo. (AP)—Nestled in a valley close to where the Continental Divide reaches its highest point in North America, this town took its name from Spanish explorers who called it "Beautiful View" when they traversed the area seeking passes through the Rockies.

Within a few miles there are 16 peaks topping 14,000 feet, several of them dominating the town as they rise on its outskirts a mile and a quarter above the valley floor.

Argues Hobo Image Hurt

GLEN BURNIE, Md. (AP)—Hoboes, according to their leaders are getting a bum rap.

Gordon "Bud" Filer of Altoona, Pa., the elected King of the Hoboes, contends the image of the hobo has been damaged by misunderstanding or misinterpretation.

"It's simply the traditional name for a migrant worker," Filer said recently at the annual Hobo Convention here. "A hobo is different from a tramp or bum."

"A hobo is a worker. A tramp knows how to work but prefers not to. And a bum, well, you know what a bum is."

Filer said he became interested in Hoboes of America Inc., about 45 years ago when he heard an address by the late Jeff Davis, founder and first king of the group.

"He gave me a handout, a round silver dollar to buy a square meal," Filer said. "Later, I joined the organization. It now has 1,043,000 members and is international in scope."

Davis became king emeritus in 1965 and Filer was elected by a vote of the tanks, or chapters, to the first of his two five-year terms. The tanks were named for the old water tanks along railroad tracks, where hoboes would gather.

From 1923 to 1928, Filer roved the nation doing odd jobs before settling down at the Altoona Works of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He still is at the shop, working as a car repairman.

The convention wound up with the traditional hobo feast of Mulligan stew, which the King said is "just about the best meal a body can eat—containing every kind of meat and vegetable."

Fourth Boom is In Skiing Trails

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo. (AP)—Gold created three booms—in 1860, 1878 and 1898—in this little town in the Blue River Valley 9,600 feet high in the Rocky Mountains, and now a fourth is under way, nurtured by the gold in skiers' wallets.

Over the last decade a dozen miles of ski trails have been developed on the north face of Peak 8, overlooking the town from almost 12,000 feet altitude.

Oregon's Bicyclists To Get Own Paths, Trails

By ROBERT SHEPARD
SALEM, Ore. (UPI)—Oregon's state Highway Division, an accomplished builder of eight-laned freeways, is now being challenged to produce equally impressive bicycle paths.

The new responsibility comes as a result of the legislature's approval of a bill directing that at least 1 per cent of all state highway funds be used for the construction of bicycle trails and footpaths.

State highway officials did not seek the new task and, in fact, let it be known that they did not think much of the idea. But the sponsor of the bill, Rep. Don Stathos, a southern Oregon Republican, was confident that once they got involved in the program they would "get caught up and get excited" about it.

He may be right. The division has already tentatively selected an abandoned railroad right-of-way near Portland for the first bicycle trail.

There is no question about the public support for bicycle trails. During legislative hearings on the bill dozens of witnesses arrived in Salem—on bicycles, of course—to testify in support of the plan.

The enthusiasm for bicycles as a mode of travel has soared in Oregon as elsewhere as more and more Americans turn to two-wheelers in rebellion against four-wheel traffic problems.

Bike shops throughout the state report they are unable to keep up with orders. The major bike dealer in Salem reports he sold 800 bicycles, mostly children's models, in 1965. Last year he sold 1,500, mostly lightweight, multiple-speed adult bikes. So far this year he has sold more than 2,000.

Stathos takes no credit for the new interest in bicycles. He figures his bill just converged with a new public attitude toward transportation, health and the environment.

During hearings on the "bike bill" a lot of good arguments were put forth in support of bike trails, but the idea came to Stathos simply because he was tired of getting flat tires on his bike and being run off the road by cars.

There ought to be a place for bicycles, he thought.

Most interesting is that Stathos did not feel his bicycle paths should be set aside just in parks or out-of-the-way recreational areas. The new law recognized bicycling as a regular way of life. The idea is, says Stathos, that "you go out on a Sunday and go somewhere else and bicycle. Instead you walk out your front door and start in."

Stathos is no physical fitness nut, but the health aspect of bicycling was a major factor in his proposal. People have to go to work, school or stores, he says, and if they can work in exercise—bicycling—in the process of getting there, so much the better.

While Stathos was fighting his bill through the legislature his own bicycle was stolen. Police found and restored it to him the same day the governor signed the bill into law. A happy coincidence, bike champion Stathos agreed.

A Four-Day School Week Has Support

NEW YORK (UPI)—If the four-day work week is ahead, can the four-day school week be far behind?

One prominent businessman says it is none too soon for both the educators and the business community to give the shortened school week a thorough study. He urges establishment of a business-industry council, led by members of the financial services industry, to explore the issue and work with education leaders.

"There are countless possibilities and variations for changing the traditional nine-month school year," says William D. Callaghan, Jr., president of Pioneer Western Corp., a national financial services organization.

Callaghan who has 14 children himself (seven natural and seven adopted and foster) was active in this year's White House Conferences on Children and Youth.

No Evidence Span Longer

CHICAGO (UPI)—We're living longer, but only in a manner of speaking.

At the end of the 18th Century the life expectancy at birth for North Americans was about 35 years. Now it's more than 70 years.

But according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, there is no evidence that the span of human life has increased since the beginning of recorded history.

The remarkable increase in the average length of life during the past 2,000 years—about triple—has merely increased the likelihood that a person may live closer to life's outer limits. Presumably there is a maximum life span for the human race, but it remains unknown.

The continuation of the worldwide decline in the death rate will naturally result in an increased number of centenarians. Since the number of persons who may live to be, say, 110 or 115 is directly related to the number who live to be 100, the odds are greater there will be an increase in the 100-plus age group.

Still this is apart from the human life span, which for now could be unlimited.

A person standing four feet above sea level can see about two and a half miles.

MRS. JAMES DONOGHUE tops off her shopping in an Albany supermarket by purchasing a $1.00 N.Y. State lottery ticket from an automatic vending machine. (UPI Telephoto)

The weekly lottery winners will collect their prizes by matching their stub numbers to the numbers on the ticket drawn. The monthly $1 ticket lottery uses names written on the tickets and the prizes are mailed to the winners.

"We've found the special drawings to be one of our biggest boosters—they also help sales of the regular drawing tickets," the spokesman said. During the coming year, the lottery will include more drawings similar to the one in the past that gave $1 million as a first prize.

All the proceeds from the New York State Lottery are required by law to go for education. Since the lottery began in 1967, the state has sold $233,457,606 in lottery tickets. A little more than $120 million has gone for education. Another $77.7 million has gone in prize money, with 191,885 persons sharing in prizes of from $50 to $1 million.

The vendors receive about five per cent commission, which has cost $14 million. The rest has been spent in operation.

Although New York, New Jersey and New Hampshire, the veteran in the sweepstakes business, are the only states running lotteries, interest has been expressed from other areas of the country.

"We've had inquiries, and sometimes visits from officials in 12 states and provinces in Canada," Gallman said. "California, Manitoba, even the city of Detroit, have expressed interest."

The lottery was not always so popular. About a year after it got off to a dramatic start, ticket sales slumped considerably, hitting a low of under $2 million a month. At that figure it was difficult to operate the lottery and still have the 50 per cent left the law requires be given to education.

The special "millionaire" lotteries—with tickets at $2 and rested the tide, and last year profits rose to $32 million. This year they may hit as high as $40 million.

"The lottery is here to stay," Gallman said.

The SR-T178DK Stereo Tape Deck. $169.95

$169.95 isn't peanuts. So when we say our SR-T178DK stereo tape deck sounds more expensive, we know we have to prove it.

First, it gives you a wow and flutter of less than 0.2% rms.

Second, you get two "on" positions instead of one. In the normal "on" position the cassette simply shuts off at the end of recording or playback. But if you use the "automatic off" position, all AC current is shut off at the end of the cassette.

Then there's the S/N ratio of 45 dB. The frequency response of 30 to 15 KHz.

The tape speed accuracy of ±1% with fast forward and rewind time within 90 seconds (C-60).

Even that isn't all. You get a hysteresis synchronous motor. Magnetic braking so the tape can't bunch or break. And microphone jacks up front with auxiliary jacks in the rear.

Of course these things are only part of the proof. The clincher comes when you drop into your Standard dealer and audition the SR-T178DK for yourself.

Believe us it'll sound more expensive than $169.95. And that'll be music to your ears.

Wallace Looks For Nixon Support In School Fight

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace, following up his challenge to President Nixon on school busing, is expected to issue an order today to reopen one or more all-black schools closed by federal courts. He has said in the past he would do so on a freedom-of-choice basis.

Wallace Thursday ordered a white pupil transferred from a predominantly black school assigned to her by a federal court desegregation plan.

He called upon the administration to join him in fighting the federal court desegregation plan and told newsmen he was trying to assist President Nixon in his announced opposition to busing.

"You might say Governor Wallace is working closely with the President to help carry out his desire not to have massive busing," Wallace said.

"If President Nixon is against massive busing, I would expect his attorney general and the secretary of HEW to join with me."

President Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, pointed out Thursday that the President also has stressed that "the federal government has an obligation to uphold the law of the land."

Asked the President's reaction to Wallace's statement, the press secretary said:

"What he said was 'let's look into the matter'."

Wallace was scheduled to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from Troy State University, near Montgomery, and his office said late Thursday further order would be issued there.

Wallace hinted strongly that one of the orders will be for the reopening of "one or two" schools closed by federal court decree.

One was expected to be New Hope grammar school in Limestone County, in northwest Alabama.

New Hope is one of more than 140 all-black schools shut down in Alabama by federal courts.

Wallace also said he may intervene to prevent the predominantly Negro school at Hobson City, near Anniston, from being paired with a predominantly white school at nearby Oxford. Pairing would mean that the first three grades from Oxford would attend Hobson City and the 4th through the 12th grades at Hobson City would go to Oxford.

Asked whether he expected court reprisals, Wallace replied: "Do you think that the Justice Department is going to ask a contempt citation when Nixon is against busing?"

He said his action "is a good way to test the sincerity of the Nixon administration. I'm going to give President Nixon a chance to carry out his wishes. He needs some help."

Wallace's first step was announced Thursday at a hurriedly called news conference. He said he had written the Jefferson County-Birmingham School Board and Supt. J. Revis Hall ordering the reassignment of Pamela Davis to a school nearer her home.

He said the Davis girl, who lives near the mining community of Mulga, was assigned to Westfield School under an attendance zone. Minor High School, predominantly white and four miles from her home, is in another zone. Westfield is 22 miles away.

In his letter, Wallace said the busing of students long distances is "wrong, unjust and exposes students to increased risks of traffic hazards which would result in death or permanent injuries."

Wallace said his action was prompted by a letter from the Davis girl's mother who wrote that the long bus ride would be an undue hardship and that the girl "has threatened to drop out of school."

"I do not feel I can force my child to endure unnecessary hardships in order to acquire her education," Mrs. Price said.

She also wrote however, that "I am completely in favor of integration" and "realize that a racial balance in our school system is advantageous."

Wallace announced several weeks ago he would reopen some of the closed schools under a freedom-of-choice plan, using his police power. Shortly afterward, Atty. Gen. John Mitchell said Wallace has authority to reopen the schools but they will have to operate under the Supreme Court decision last April which allowed busing.

Mitchell's statement came before President Nixon's strong announcement that federal officials would seek only the minimum amount of busing allowable under the Supreme Court decision.

Jordan For Early Pullout

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan has called again for the setting of an early date for withdrawal of all American troops from Southeast Asia.

He said Thursday that this should be done "for the sake of those not yet affected (by drugs) and of the country to which they will be returning. I think it is imperative that we find a way out of this morass."

The North Carolina Democrat spoke to the annual convention of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners.

He also criticized President Nixon's revenue sharing proposal as involving borrowed money added to an already mountainous national debt.

The senator covered much the same ground in a speech later in the day to a civic club in Shelby. He said that in revenue sharing he saw "more strings than money."

Congressman Wilmer Mizell, a Republican from Winston-Salem, was to address the county commissioners today. Gov. Bob Scott will speak at the banquet tonight.

TOWN-OVER RAILS

NEW YORK (AP) — With land as scarce as breathing space in New York City, Edward J. Logue, president of the Urban Development Corporation, has proposed a new town to be built over the Long Island City Railroad yards.

The town would include homes for 60,000 people and office and industrial space for 35,000 employees. The $1.386 billion project would bring about $18 million a year in new real estate taxes.

California Seeing Many Butterflies

MT. SHASTA, Calif. (AP) — By the millions, butterflies are fluttering around this Northern California mountain, clogging auto radiators and slicking highways in the three towns of Mt. Shasta, Dunsmuir and McCloud.

"Jillions of them. You can't see out the front of a car," says Dunsmuir Police Chief Jack Gillespie.

Vacationers along U.S. 89 near McCloud report the butterflies settle across the highway in clouds.

The butterflies began appearing in hordes about five weeks ago.

They are identified by local naturalists as monarchs, regal fritillaries, queets, buckeyes, red admirals, American coppers and common wood nymphs. They hatch in the forests on 10,437-foot Mt. Shasta.

A U.S. Forest Service ranger, John Wilczynski, at Mt. Shasta says:

"There's usually an abundance of them every three years. They run in a cycle. But this is an unusual amount this year."

Wilczynski said conditions are unusually favorable for them this year and that this is the second hatch. His theory is that they've come down out of the forests probably for the water supply.

FIBER BOX BOOM

NEW YORK (UPI)—More than 18.25 million tons of liner and 7.5 million tons of containerboard will be required to meet domestic and export demands by 1980, says the Fibre Box Association. This is an increase of 80 per cent above present fibre box consumption.

Scientist Selected For Mission Of Apollo 17

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The space agency ends a months-long controversy today and names Dr. Harrison H. Schmitt as the first scientist-astronaut selected for an American space crew.

Schmitt, a Harvard-trained geologist, will fly on Apollo 17, last of the moon-landing missions in the Apollo program. Commanding the flight will be Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, veteran of two space trips, and rounding out the crew will be Ronald E. Evans, a Navy lieutenant commander who has not flown in space.

Sources gave the names to The Associated Press Thursday, and a space agency spokesman confirmed them several hours later. He said the formal announcement would be made today.

Cernan and Schmitt will land on the moon, while Evans mans the command ship in lunar orbit.

The landing site will be selected after experts have studied photographs and data returned from the recent Apollo 15 journey.

The Apollo 16 crew, named previously, consists of Navy Cmdr. John W. Young, Air Force Maj. Charles M. Duke Jr. and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Thomas K. Mattingly. Young and Duke are to explore near the crater Descartes in the moon's central highlands.

Apollo 16 is scheduled next March and Apollo 17 in December 1972.

Scientists have pressed the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for some time to send Schmitt to the moon. They contend that while pilot-astronauts have done well for science on the surface, a trained geologist would be able to make more meaningful on-the-spot observations and evaluations.

Plainclothesmen Wear A Badge

DALLAS (AP) — Plainclothesmen in the Dallas police department must wear badges on their coat breast pocket and be accompanied by uniformed police when executing arrest or search warrants in the city's Mexican-American communities.

The department has distributed clip-on badges.

They have said the last Apollo flight would be a natural for Schmitt, after experts have analyzed the data from all the earlier landings.

Schmitt is the only one of NASA's 13 scientist-astronauts who has worked actively toward a landing mission, having served as backup lunar module pilot for Apollo 15. Most other scientists in the corps are involved in Skylab, a space station program which will follow Apollo.

Schmitt was one of a group of astronauts selected for scientific ability and not flying skill. NASA taught him to fly and he is now a qualified jet pilot with about 1,000 hours experience.

Sources report that as an Apollo 15 backup he mastered the intricacies of flying the lunar module.

Until recently, the space agency leaned toward an Apollo 17 crew of Cernan, Evans and Air Force Col. Joseph Engle. They were the backups for Apollo 14.

However, under pressure from the scientific community both within NASA and outside, sources said some thought had been given to flying the Apollo 15 backup team of Schmitt, Navy Capt. Richard F. Gordon and civilian Vance Brand.

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A young man whose picture was taken by a hidden camera has been charged with North Carolina's 21st bank robbery this year, the $9,805 holdup of a branch of the First-Union-National Bank.

The FBI filed the charge Thursday against Marion Albert Pruett, 22, of Charlotte, but had not taken him into custody.

A man armed with a sawed off shotgun escaped with the money Thursday from the Queensgate branch of the bank on Ashley Road.

It was the fifth bank robbery in Charlotte in the last month and a half.

All Tickets To 'Gypsy' Are Sold

"We are delighted, especially since we didn't expect this surge of interest at the end of the season," Michael Hardy commented on the sell-out of all tickets for "Gypsy", the current Summer Theater production.

As of Wednesday, all tickets for the last four performances were sold out. "So far as I know," Hardy, general manager for the Summer Theater said, "this is unprecedented."

Hardy remarked that this development "is very encouraging to us in our planning for next year, especially in light of the withdrawal of state funds to support the theater."

The manager also expressed regret that it was impossible at the last minute to extend the run of "Gypsy". "If there had been any way possible, we would have carried it on for several more performances, but contractual arrangements cannot possibly be made at the last minute.

"The cast," Hardy said, "has been touched by the wonderful response to their play. It's a play actors and actresses particularly enjoy doing as it's about theater people."

In addition to regular theatergoers from the immediate area, "Gypsy" was attended by special groups from eastern North Carolina including 30 members of the Harnett County Chapter of the East Carolina University Alumni Association.

This group, led by their chapter president, Thomas O. Davis, attended the Tuesday evening performance. They were greeted by ECU president Dr. Leo Jenkins and ECU Alumni Director Donald Y. Leggett.

"We are extremely pleased that the group decided to avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy an evening of entertainment and relaxation on the campus of their alma mater," the president commented.

Rain Failed To Dampen Scout Jamboree Spirits

(Roger Billica is attending the World Boy Scout Jamboree in Japan and he submitted the following report)

By ROGER BILLICA
Greetings from the 13th World Boy Scout Jamboree at Asagiri Heights in Japan where over 20,000 scouts from 99 nations different nations are gathered to live the Jamboree theme "For Understanding."

Many interesting events are taking place and at this very moment we are preparing for an event which might prove to be the most interesting yet. A typhoon is heading our way and already the heavy rains have started falling. In Japan a typhoon is equal to a hurricane in the United States.

In spite of the weather, everyone is still in high spirits and everything has gone beautifully. Our troop including 12 East Carolina Council (5 Pitt County) Scouts arrived in Tokyo after a fourteen hour plane trip. From there we took a bus to the Jamboree site riding for six hours through some fascinating Japanese countryside. Arriving at the Jamboree site on the western slope of Mt. Fuji Sunday afternoon, our camp was soon set up. That evening everyone went to bed exhausted from a tiring trip and about 25 hours of continuous daylight. Our time here is 13 hours ahead of N.C. time.

Plans for the first morning included getting acquainted with our neighbors. Around us were troops from Japan, Nationalist China, Australia, and the United States. They all proved to be very, very friendly.

Monday afternoon the official opening ceremony of the 13th World Jamboree took place in the huge arena. Each participating country was represented in the opening parade when its flag passed before one of the largest groups of scouts ever assembled. That evening when we slept in Japan for the second time everyone knew that he was participating in an event that takes place only once in a person's lifetime.

Tuesday morning brought a new day and new activities. A campwide game was scheduled for the morning in which scouts from different camps received a special colored card with a Japanese letter on it. The scouts then searched the Jamboree site for other scouts with different cards. To win, seven scouts from different countries had to link up to spell the Japanese form of the scout motto "Be Prepared."

There were many winners! Tuesday afternoon was devoted to free time during which scouts participated in many free time activities, such as running an obstacle course, viewing exhibits, or just walking around meeting new people and making new friends. The first thing most scouts did was get some money changed to yen and visit the nearest trading post which is full of souvenir items. Tuesday evening we had intertroop campfires. Eight boys and a leader from our troop were invited to a special Japanese campfire attended by the Governor of Skiuzooka Prefect where we are located. Tommy Manning from Greenville was one of the participants. The rest of us invited a Japanese troop to our campfire and had a great time. We gave skits, held games, taught each other songs, and had other activities. It was very surprising to note that we had many of the same songs and games. At the closing of the campfire, each scout from the two troops exchanged a gift of friendship, knowing that we were really participating in the Jamboree theme "For Understanding."

Wednesday was devoted to free time activities and scouting displays and demonstrations. Scouts Jody Joyner of Farmville and Greg Michaels of Bethel, among other things, went to the Archery event and witnessed an exhibit of Japanese fencing, called kendo. Four scouts and a leader (your correspondent included) left at 3:00 a.m. to climb Mt. Fuji which towers over the Jamboree site. This mountain is a sacred symbol to the Japanese and rises to over 12,000 ft. It was a rough climb which took nearly 16 hours to complete. The temperature at the top of Mt. Fuji was below freezing with strong winds and almost constant rain.

It is now Thursday morning and all that we can do is to tie down everything and wait out the typhoon, so that we can get back to the business of developing international understanding and having a great time. Sayonara

Youth Under $1,300 Bond

WINTERVILLE — Alvin Ray Daniels, 16, of Route 6, Greenville, was charged with larceny of a truck, no operators license, failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, hit and run driving, no liability insurance and no registration, following investigation of a mishap here last night.

Chief of Police Earl Curry said Daniels was charged in connection with a 7:40 p.m. wreck on East Railroad Street involving an alleged stolen truck and a parked vehicle owned by Jarvis H. Allen of Winterville.

Daniels, according to Chief Curry, allegedly stole an abandoned truck owned by Eastern Lumber and Supply Co. and collided with the Allen car. Daniels was taken into custody minutes after the wreck.

Damage to the Allen car was set at $300 while damage to the Eastern Lumber vehicle was set at $50.

Daniels was placed under $1,300 bond for appearance in District Court in Ayden August 26.

Daniels, according to Chief Curry, was released from prison on parole Tuesday for a conviction of auto larceny.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

Wednesday, at the Southern Conference Football "Rouser", rumors had been flying around that there was a possibility that the Tangerine Bowl berth the Southern had might be lost.

And finally, Wednesday night, it was learned in an interview of the commissioner of the conference, Lloyd Jordan, that indeed, the Southern's share of the contract with the bowl game had been dropped, following this year's December 28th game.

But apparently, the commissioner forgot to inform one group of people that was very interested—the coaches.

Thursday morning, the Rouser was ended with a coaches' forum, in which all the coaches of the conference assembled for a short press conference.

And the very first question put to them was "What's your reaction to the loss of the Tangerine Bowl contract?"

Eight coaches reacted with shock — it was the first they'd heard about it. But when they did find their voices, they were unhappy about it to a man.

First, they did some questioning of their own, calling on Dallas Shirley, assistant to the commissioner, to learn the facts on it. Shirley replied that he had been instructed to issue a release saying that the contract would not be renewed because of "mutual consent." Apparently the Southern felt that the game was not financially a good one. But there was the unsaid feeling that maybe the Southern was in a mismatch with the Mid-American champ, and that the bowl wanted someone else.

East Carolina's Sonny Randle was quick to comment on a supposed mismatch. "They may feel this way now, but it's not always going to be so. We'll win our share." So far in the three years of play, the MAC holds a 2-1 advantage.

Red Parker of The Citadel said that he felt the conference needs a bowl tieup. "There are a lot of problems connected with a bowl game, but basically it is a good idea to be connected with one." He later added that he felt that Charleston (Citadel's home base) would probably be more than happy to support a new bowl game there, if one were proposed and approved by the NCAA.

Dave Fagg of Davidson also was unhappy with the loss of the contract. "We should go on record saying that we want a bowl tieup. It really helps our conference in publicity and in recruiting."

Fagg also noted that he felt the Tangerine was not going to be financially bad for anyone in a year or two. "It is going to be one of the best in the country." The reason is simple. Orlando, Fla., site of the game, is just a stone's throw from the new Disney World, and this alone is going to mean a great deal of increase in the bowl's popularity with a great deal of tourism in the area at game time.

Both Lou Holtz of William & Mary, and Randle noted that the game had been a great help in recruiting and in working during the season. "It really has been a boon in recruiting. When you tell a boy all he has to do is win the conference title to get in a bowl game, it helps," Holtz said.

And Randle added, "It gives you something to look forward to all year, and is a great incentive for your team."

But now, after this year, there is no tieup. The Southern wants one. Hopefully, it can be found.

Baylor Is Set For One Year

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elgin Baylor, the soul of the Los Angeles Lakers, says he's healthy again for one last season in the National Basketball Association.

"There's no doubt this will be my last year," Baylor said Thursday. He will observe his 37th birthday the day before the Lakers start practice Sept. 17. "This is definitely the last."

The Lakers' captain played in only two games last season because of injuries. He underwent surgery for a torn Achilles' tendon on Dec. 2.

"I'd have retired after last season if I'd played a full season. Then maybe I would not play this year. I want to retire healthy, on my own. I don't want injury to force my retirement."

Baylor's career as a professional, which began in 1958 when the Lakers were in Minneapolis, also has been plagued with knee problems.

Both knees have seen extensive surgery. One is minus a quarter of a knee cap. Yet the former Seattle University All-American from Washington, D.C., has scored 23,043 points in 837 games for a 12-season average of 28. He's among only a handful of NBA players to score more than 20, 000 points in a career. He's 6 feet 5, 220 pounds, shorter than most NBA forwards. But he's pulled down more than 11,400 rebounds.

Baylor doesn't feel his age will do more than make him pace himself during the long regular season.

"I don't say anything. I just go out and do it. If I'd listened to people, some of the people, I'd have retired years ago."

"There's no substitute for ability. Whether you're 15 or 50, it doesn't matter. I'm not speaking in my behalf, but I'd take ability over youth anytime. Of course, youth and ability together are great."

"I don't intend to play every minute of every game. I don't see that much need for it this year. We have enough talent."

"I just want to stay healthy; that's all I'm concerned about."

Giants Finally Gain By Just Not Playing

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The San Francisco Giants, who have had a hard time beating anyone recently, took a day off and let the Los Angeles Dodgers beat themselves for a change.

It was a lift for their spirits, to say nothing of their lead in the National League West.

While the Giants didn't play, they improved their lead to four games over Los Angeles when the Dodgers fumbled over a 3-1, 13-inning loss to the Philadelphia Phillies Thursday night.

The Los Angeles' loss was good news to San Francisco, which had lost eight of 10 games and wasted most of a 10-game lead to the hot Dodgers.

Only three other games were played in the National League Thursday night as the Atlanta Braves crushed the Houston Astros 10-5, the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and the San Diego Padres turned back the New York Mets 3-0.

In the American League, Baltimore smashed Minnesota 8-2; Cleveland clouted Chicago 6-2; Detroit trimmed Milwaukee 4-3; New York took a two-night doubleheader from California, 3-0 and 2-1, Oakland stopped Boston 9-2 and Kansas City beat Washington 2-0 in the first game of a twin bill before dropping the nightcap, 2-1.

Despite Thursday night's loss, Los Angeles shortstop Maury Wills feels the Dodgers will eventually catch the skidding Giants.

The Dodgers didn't look like winners against the Phillies, though. They had a 1-0 lead in the eighth when second baseman Steve Garvey's error opened the door for the tying run.

Then they wasted scoring opportunities in the extra innings before Philadelphia's Don Monney put it away with a two-run double in the 13th.

Rookie Earl Williams unleashed two homers in a four-hit night and knocked in four runs as Atlanta buried Houston under a 16-hit offense.

Williams had singled his first two times at bat before blasting a two-run homer in the fourth and a solo shot in the fifth, his 20th and 21st circuit clouts of the year. Williams also had a run-scoring single in the second inning to help Ron Reed coast to his 12th victory in 20 decisions.

St. Louis took advantage of shortstop Gene Alley's error to score three unearned runs in the third inning and made them stand up behind Steve Carlton's pitching.

Alley booted Dal Maxvill's leadoff bouncer and Carlton singled up the middle. Ted Kubiak forced Carlton at second, but Ted Sizemore doubled for one run, another scored on Matty Alou's bouncer and Joe Torre knocked in the winning run with a bloop single.

Pittsburgh scored two runs in the first inning but Carlton slammed the door the rest of the way to notch his 16th victory in 22 decisions.

Roberto Clemente delivered a two-run double before there were any outs, but then Carlton got out of hot water when he struck out Manny Sanguillen, Clemente was out trying to steal third and Richie Hebner also went down on strikes.

Steve Arlin pitched a six-hitter and Ollie Brown ripped a two-run single as San Diego shut out New York for the second night in a row.

The Padres capitalized on four walks, an error and Brown's key hit to send New York starter Nolan Ryan to the showers with a three-run first. Arlin assumed control of the game after that.

Schlee Holds Slim Mass. Lead

By DAVE O'HARA
SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — John Schlee, winless in five years on the pro golf tour, nursed a slim lead in a bunched back while Ken "Hawk" Harrelson was the "peoples choice" today entering the second round of the $165,000 Massachusetts Classic.

Schlee, a 32-year-old one-time Memphis State star, fashioned a brilliant six-under-par 34-32-66 without fanfare while Harrelson drew the cheers while carding a 73 Thursday in the first round of the 72-hole tournament at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

A resident of Dallas and tutored by Ben Hogan, Schlee had seven birdies and a lone bogey in launching a bid for his first tour victory. The PGA Rookie of the Year in 1966, his best showing was a second place finish in the St. Paul Open that season.

Although he needed just 30 putts in touring the 7,212-yard, sun-baked, wind-swept course,

East Carolina University's Pirates closed out their first North Carolina Summer Collegiate League season on a happy note. They down Campbell College, 8-5, last night.

The game closed out the initial summer league season for both teams, who finished fourth and fifth in the five-team standings. The Bucs closed out with a 16-20 record for the year, while the Camels were 7-29.

East Carolina jumped on the Camels for six runs in the first three innings, then cruised to the victory, although Campbell never gave up trying for a comeback, once putting the tying run on base.

East Carolina jumped into the lead in the first inning. Mike Bradshaw led off with a single as he bunted down the third base line and the ball could not be fielded in time. He then stole second, and scored when Ralph Lamm's two-out hit bounced over the fence in left center for a double.

The Pirates then added three more in the second inning. Rich McMahon led off reaching on a single to deep short. A passed ball moved him up, and John Narron reached on an error. Skip Horton singled into left center, scoring McMahon, and both runners moved up on an out.

Bradshaw walked, loading the bases and Matt Walker brought in Narron with a sacrifice fly. Larry Walters reached on the second error on the inning, scoring Horton to make it 4-0.

Campbell got off its first threat in the third, as Brooks Matthews walked and Jim Honey out singled. But the next three men went down in order to halt that attempt.

The Bucs came right back with two more in the bottom of the third. Troy Eason led off with a single, and McMahon drew a walk. Narron singled to right, scoring Eason, and moving McMahon to third. Horton drove in his second run of the night with a sacrifice fly to right, and the Bucs held a 6-0 lead.

Campbell then cut that in half with three runs in the top of the fourth. Ron Hawley led off with a hit into left that just fell in front of the charging Eason, and by the time it was recovered, Hawley was on second. Allen McRae then singled to right. Conrad Kelly followed with a double up the alley in left center, bringing in both Hawley and McRae. A pair of wild pitches let Kelly come the rest of the way,

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Bills cut second-year cornerback Rick Stevenson Thursday, negating a trade with the Cleveland Browns.

The Browns would have received an undisclosed choice in an upcoming National Football League draft had Stevenson made the Bills opening-day roster.

OAKFIELD, N.S. (AP) — Soft-spoken Burt Ticehurst holds a two-stroke lead with two rounds remaining in the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship. He shot a one-over-par 74 Thursday to give him a hole total of 145 and the lead over four golfers tied at 147.

Ticehurst and Doug Silverberg of Calgary shared the first round lead at 71.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Eight table tennis champions from Taiwan easily won exhibition matches over amateurs from the Kansas City area Thursday.

making it 6-3.

The Bucs added another run in the fourth. Lamm walked, moved up on an error on Eason's grounder, and then scored on a very freak play. Lamm, who had been moving when Eason's grounder was hit had gone all the way to third on the play. With two outs, McMahon hit back to third. Jack Senter pulled it in and trotted easily to third and stepped on the bag, while Lamm raced across the plate, Eason pulled into second and McMahon reached first.

It was then that the sheepish Senter realized that there had been no one on second, and therefore no force play.

Campbell came up with its fourth run in the sixth, as Senter helped to make up for his mistake. Joey Davis and Hoencycut both drew walks, and with two outs, Senter singled to center, scoring Davis, cutting the lead to 7-4.

The Pirates finished off their scoring with one in the sixth. Walters singled to right and moved to second on a long fly to left. Eason walked and McMahon finished off his perfect night with a run-scoring single to center, bringing in Walters.

The final Campbell run came in the eighth. Kelly walked, as did Matthews. With two outs, Senter singled to right, scoring Kelly to make it 8-5. Denver McCullough also walked, putting the tying run on first, but Burcher Don Oxidine struck out the next batter, retiring the side and getting out of the jam.

Baltimore May Be Tempted To Look Back For The Real Fight

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

There is a famous philosophy credited to Satchel Paige that advises you never to look behind because someone might be gaining.

But the Baltimore Orioles, leading the American League's East Division by a comfortable eight games, might be tempted to take a peek over their shoulders anyway. There are interesting things going on back there.

For example, there is Detroit's Mickey Lolich, hidden by the Vida Blue excitement all season, but suddenly on the threshold of 20 victories for Detroit.

And then, there are the New York Yankees, enjoying the best record in the division since the All Star break with a 19-11 log that has them two games over .500 for the first time all year.

The Orioles, unconcerned by the shenanigans behind them, whipped Minnesota 8-2 Thursday night to maintain their AL East lead. Detroit took over second place with a 4-3 decision over Milwaukee—Lolich's 19th victory of the season. The Yankees made it eight victories in the last 10 games by sweeping a doubleheader from California 3-0 and 2-1 with the second game going 11 innings.

In other AL action, Oakland beat Boston 9-2, Cleveland downed Chicago 6-2 and Kansas City split a doubleheader at Washington, winning the first game 2-0 but dropping the nightcap 2-1.

In the National League, Atlanta ripped Houston 10-5, St. Louis edged Pittsburgh 3-2, Philadelphia stopped Los Angeles 3-1 in 13 innings and San Diego thumped New York 3-0.

The Orioles jumped on Minnesota's Jim Kaat for three runs before a man was retired in the first inning and coasted over the Twins for a sweep of their three-game series.

Don Buford slammed the first pitch for a home run and Merv Rettenmund added a two-run shot later in the inning. Andy Etchebarren also homered for the Orioles and Jim Palmer fired a four-hitter for his 14th victory.

Lolich pitched a six-hitter and the Tigers broke a tie in the eighth inning with Bill Freehan's triple the big blow to beat Milwaukee.

The victory was the Tigers' 13th in the last 17 games and left Lolich with a 19-8 record. The Tiger left-hander has never won 20 games.

Jim Northrup singled and rode home on Freehan's triple to break the 2-2 tie in the eighth.

Mike Kekich limited California to four hits in 11 innings and Bobby Murcer's two-out, two-strike single drove in New York's winning run in the second game of the doubleheader.

Gene Michael, batting for Kekich, had doubled and came around to score on an infield out and Murcer's hit for the deciding run.

In the opener, Roy White ripped two singles and a double and Fritz Peterson won his 12th game. Peterson allowed nine hits and had the leadoff man on base in seven of the nine innings but kept the Angels off the scoreboard.

Bert Campaneris ripped three singles, driving in two runs and scoring two as Oakland whacked Boston, completing a sweep of their series and tumbling the Red Sox to third place in the interesting East.

Tommy Davis drove in three runs and Dave Duncan homered for the A's, who lead the West division by a fat 14 games.

Ted Uhlaender cracked three straight hits and rookie Kurt Bevacqua tagged his first major league homer, leading Cleveland past Chicago.

Mike Paul and Alan Foster combined for the six-hitter as the Indians beat Wilbur Wood, 14-9.

Kansas City used the six-hit pitching of Ken Wright to trim Washington in the first game of their doubleheader with Tom Burgmeier coming out of the bullpen for the final out. Cookie Rojas drove in the Royals first run with a single and then tripled and scored the second one.

It was the second straight shutout against Washington and the Senators' scoreless string stretched to 24 innings before rookie pitcher Pete Broberg walked leading off the third inning of the nightcap and came around to score.

Washington got two runs in the inning with Lenny Randle, Jeff Burroughs and Dick Billings bunting singles behind Broberg's walk. Broberg and two relievers combined for the six-hitters.

Devaney Top Coach

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Nebraska's Bob Devaney, coming off a national championship football season for his cornhuskers, retains his grip on first place among the nation's coaches at major colleges.

Below Devaney's top position, however, there was the biggest change in the 14 years the list has been compiled by Elmore "Scoop" Hudgins, information director of the Southeastern Conference.

Charley McLendon of Louisiana State, John Ralston of Stanford, Bill Hess of Ohio University, Jim Owens of Washington and Ben Martin of Air Force joined the list.

The five openings on the list were held last year by Johnny Vaught of Mississippi, Dan Devine of Missouri, Lloyd Eaton of Wyoming, John Yovicsin of Harvard and Tommy Prothro of UCLA, all now departed from college coaching.

Nebraska's 11-0-1 mark makes Devaney's 14-season mark 114-28-6 for a 79.1 percentage. He had been atop the list for five straight years.

Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama has the largest victory total, 199, of all active coaches, along with 66 losses and 16 ties. His winning percentage is 73.7.

The list is compiled from active coaches who have won the most games at four-year schools, with at least five years of major competition. Seventy or more victories are needed to qualify for the list.

The current top coaches:

Bob Devaney, Nebraska, 114-28-6, .791

Frank Kush, Arizona State, 100-30-1, .767

Darrell Royal, Texas, 135-42-4, .757

Woody Hayes, Ohio State, 167-54-7, .748

Paul Bryant, Alabama, 199-66-16, .737

Charley McLendon, Louisiana State, 70-24-4, .735

John McKay, Southern California, 82-29-5, .728

Bob Blackman, Illinois, 116-43-5, .723

Ara Parseghian, Notre Dame, 133-51-6, .716

Billy Murphy, Memphis State, 86-38-1, .692

Ben Schartzwalder, Syracuse, 166-76-2, .684

Ralph Jordan, Auburn, 137-66-5, .671

John Ralston, Stanford, 77-44-4, .623

Duffy Daugherty, Michigan State, 98-59-4, .621

Bill Hess, Ohio University, 75-50-3, .581

Jim Owens, Washington, 76-61-6, .573

Paul Dietzel, South Carolina, 88-72-5, .548

Johnny Pont, Indiana, 78-64-4, .548

Murray Warmath, Minnesota, 93-77-10, .544

Ben Martin, Air Force, 74-72-8, .506

"Pepsi-Cola's Value-Pak brings the nickel serving back"

"How?"

Every serving that you pour costs a nickel... not a penny more.

Pepsi-Cola taste. Pepsi-Cola quality. At a price you thought went out with the big-band sound. The reason for the value is simple. First, you're buying in quantity. Eight 16-ounce returnable bottles—an actual gallon of Pepsi. Enough so that you don't have to worry about running out when the gang runs in. Second, you're not buying the bottles. You merely leave a deposit. A deposit that's refunded when you return the bottles. And returning the bottles helps keep our country clean. So get Pepsi-Cola in the 16-ounce Value-Pak—and get a serving of at least five ounces for only a nickel. At participating stores.

Pepsi's got a lot to give.

Worry Clinic Pets Will Help A Starved Ego

may do more good for shy, unhappy kiddies and withdrawn oldsters in Nursing Homes, than all our medical drugs! Even in mental sanitariums, we find that a pet dog's wagging tail restores the starved ego of many oldsters who are hungry for love and affection!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
Case R-527: Alma G., aged 27, is a nurse.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am on duty at a mental sanitarium.
"Many of these patients are elderly and withdrawn from reality to a serious degree.
"But I truly believe love and personal attention to their ego hunger would often do more good for them than drugs.

"For example, a stray little beagle puppy got into the hospital one day. Since the head doctor liked animals, he let it stay.
"This dog would go around to the patients and wag its tail in delight if they gave it something to eat.
"And it would lick their hands or snuggle down beside their feet.
"Soon I noticed that many of the inmates would hold back bread or other items at meal time in order to have something to share with the puppy.
"Gradually, their lack of interest in their surroundings changed, for now they looked forward to petting this dog or giving it food.
"So I feel sure that more dogs and cats in our Nursing Homes, as well as our mental sanitariums, would be very beneficial.
"Dr. Crane, what do you think of this idea?"

Dogs As Doctors
Alma's observation is corroborated by many other doctors and nurses.
For there is a basic axiom of psychology which states:

People do not run away nor withdraw from pleasure!
Conversely, all animals try to flee from pain.
But our human agony is not limited to needle stabs or burns as is true of inhuman creatures.
For we can suffer severe psychological pain, such as humiliation, rejection by loved ones, and severe ego starvation.
Insanity is usually an extreme type of flight, due to forbidding, cruel or fearsome psychological environment!
Animal pets in the form of cats and dogs (or even canaries and parakeets) help focus our attention on external reality.
And the purring of the cat, as well as the dog's tail-wagging, are a form of compliment.
They inflate the ego of the human being who is petting the cat or feeding tidbits to the dog. Alas, thousands of formerly active, beloved oldsters are now shunted away from their once familiar surroundings.

Maybe most of their immediate families are dead, so they tend to withdraw into a dream world.
A dog or cat thus helps pull their attention back to external reality.
And it does so in a happy manner, for when a dog barks gleefully or wags its tail, that builds up the ego of its human companion by indicating:
"Your presence is very pleasing to me. I like you and hope we can be good friends.
Even shy, lonely children also expand when they have a puppy.
For the teacher and their parents often look for juvenile faults and chronically bawl out the youngsters for their mistakes.

But a puppy never frowns when its master gets home from school! Nor does it irrationally demand to see the child's report card!
Instead, the dog always greets its master with a compliment, which is what its wagging tail denotes!
The United States has about 2.5 acres of commercial forest per capita, says the American Forest Institute.

Two South Vietnamese Bases Shelled

By GEORGE ESPER
SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese shelled two more South Vietnamese bases just below the demilitarized zone today in the second successive day of intensified action along the northern frontier.

U.S. B52 bombers countered with their heaviest strikes in more than two weeks in the region in an effort to keep the enemy from massing for a major offensive.

North Vietnamese gunners slammed 150 mortar and rocket shells into Alpha 1 and Alpha 2, bases at the eastern end of the DMZ.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, said some government soldiers were wounded but none was killed in the predawn shelling. He said he did not know what damage was done. South Vietnamese tanks are based at Alpha 2, a half mile south of the DMZ. Alpha 1 is 1 1/2 miles south of the DMZ.

Hien also said he didn't know the locations of the enemy launching sites. The 82mm mortar and 107mm rockets used in the attacks could reach the two bases from positions inside the six-mile-wide buffer zone.

The attacks along the DMZ began Thursday, breaking a lull in the war.

Hien said he believes the North Vietnamese will select one base as an objective, then concentrate on it in an all-out assault aimed at overrunning it. He pointed out that the North Vietnamese used this tactic last June when they overran Fire Base Fuller, the westernmost South Vietnamese base along the DMZ. Fuller was later reoccupied by Saigon forces.

"I think all of the shelling of the past two days are aimed at finding a weak point they can choose as their objective," said Hien.

The B52 Stratofortresses dropped 450 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese positions in the northern sector of South Vietnam.

Other B52s struck on the Laotian side of the border against North Vietnamese reinforcements and supplies. The targets included suspected base camps, troop concentrations and storage depots.

Most of the strikes were west and south of Fire Base Fuller and Cam Lo, the district's military headquarters. Both Fuller and Cam Lo were attacked Thursday.

The South Vietnamese command reported more than a dozen rocket, mortar, artillery and ground attacks against a half dozen bases and outlying positions Thursday.

Hien said ten 122mm rockets hit Charlie 1, a base 5 1/2 miles south of the DMZ. There were no casualties, he said.

A spokesman for the U.S. Command, Maj. Richard Gardner, said there were no reports of return fire by American long-range guns at Charlie 1.

The U.S. 175mm guns along the DMZ have a range of 20 miles and the 8-inch howitzers a range of 11 miles. Both could reach into North Vietnam.

Although the last major American ground unit officially pulled out of the region last Saturday, the U.S. 24th Corps still has artillery at four bases south of the DMZ. Gardner said one of the 8-inch howitzers was slightly damaged in the shelling attacks, but he said no American casualties were reported.

MISS ANGELA TRIPP

Miss N.C. Teenager Has Greenville Ties

RALEIGH — The granddaughter of some Greenville residents has been named Miss North Carolina Teenager in a pageant here Saturday night.

Miss Angela Tripp 16, will represent the state in the September National Miss American Teenager Pageant in Palisades Park, N. J.

She and 61 other contestants in the state contest were judged on beauty of face and figure, charm, poise, community leadership and scholarship. Each girl was required to write and recite a 100-word essay entitled "What's Right About America." Miss Tripp's won first place.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Jarvis Tripp and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Garris of Greenville. She lives in Raleigh with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Jr.

Arrested 12 In Narcotics Raid

SOUTHPORT, N. C. (AP) — Twelve young men ranging in age from 16 to 23 were arrested on drug charges after authorities raided several houses in the Long Beach area Thursday. Sheriff Harold Willetts of Brunswick County said most were charged with possession, or possession and sale, of marijuana. He said some were charged with sale of LSD.

All the defendants are from Brunswick County, most of them from the Long Beach area.

COMPETES WITH U.S. MAIL — Wyatt Angelo, 23, who operates the Hinsdale (Ill.) Common Carriers Mail Service, is undercutting the U.S. Post Office and making a profit. Angelo operates the service in partnership with Sara

Foltz, 23, and since June 13 they have employed eight letter carriers to deliver 33,000 pieces of mail among the 15,918 residents in Hinsdale. (AP Wirephoto)

Six Fires In Past 4 Days

Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner reported that there were six fires in this area in the past four days.

Friday 13 — 8:10 a. m. — A tobacco barn on the W. B. Shoe farm was a total loss. The Winterville Fire Department answered the call.

Thursday 12 — 6:40 a. m. — The Eastern Pines Fire Department answered a call to the Wayland Porter farm. Minor damage was done to a tobacco barn and the contents.

1:04 a. m. — Lester Harris lost a barn. The Ayden Fire Department attended the fire.

Wednesday 11 — 4:05 p. m. — Winterville Fire Department answered a call to the Claud McGlawhorn farm. $1,200 damage was done.

4:23 a. m. — Pactolus answered a call to the Charles Davenport farm. $200 damage done.

Tuesday 10 — 11:30 a. m. — The Ayden Fire Department went to a fire at Harris's Crossroads. A barn was a total loss.

College Is Free For Hundred

GREENSBORO (AP) — One hundred impoverished and physically handicapped youths from High Point are going to start on a free college education at A&T University in Greensboro.

It's a joint project of the university and the High Point Model City Commission.

The students will come from the Model City area. The commission is providing $165,000 and the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare $75,000. That will pay for tuition and other fees for a year, plus guidance counselors.

Young Siberian Tiger Is Missing

ZIONSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Four-month-old Ivan, a 40-pound Siberian tiger, is missing. He wandered into the woods Thursday and was scared off by three barking bird dogs sent to track him down.

Ivan's owner, Dr. Edward V. Schaffer, a veterinarian, said the dogs "scared Ivan to pieces." The tiger is a "wonderful little animal ... just as a friend."

Sheriff's deputies have offered the use of tracking dogs which do not bark in the attempts to find Ivan.

More Injured Off-Campus Work By Lightning Is Being Planned

FT. STEWART, Ga. (AP) — For the second time in less than a week, lightning has struck a group of North Carolina Guardsmen attending summer camp at Ft. Stewart. Four men were slightly injured in the latest mishap.

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — University of Maine administrators are working this fall on a method of carrying much of a college education beyond the ivy walls.

The overall cost of education would also be reduced. "We could double our student body in the next 10 years (to nearly 40,000), and with a lower cost than we could under the present system," he said. —An experimental program is planned for the second semester.

The Army identified those hurt Thursday as Spec. 4 Jimmy Dollyhigh of Asheboro, N.C., a member of the 130th Signal Battalion; M. Sgt. Elbert M. Dixon and 1st Sgt. Lynward Ayscue, both of Raleigh, N.C., and members of the division band, and reservist James Gainey, whose rank and hometown were not immediately available.

"We're trying to form a system-wide approach whereby ultimately we'll use television, computers, radio, even tape cassettes with individual instruction every three to six weeks," said Chancellor Donald R. McNeil in an interview.

Scouts Blazing A Forest Trail

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Boy Scouts are blazing a 21-mile forest trail linking the birthplaces of Andrew Jackson, the seventh president, and James K. Polk, the 11th.

The four men were in the same general area when lightning apparently struck a large communications line on the ground and ran into their campsite. The Army said the men were evacuated to the main post for treatment and were not seriously hurt.

"The idea of the first two years is to get across a certain body of material, the majority of which could be taught via computer or television. We're trying to decide now which material is best suited to which medium."

Although both sites are controversial, Polk is believed by North Carolinians to have been born near Pineville, 12 miles south of Charlotte. South Carolina claims Jackson was born in what is now Andrew Jackson State Park eight miles north of Lancaster, S.C.

Earlier this week, one National Guardsman was killed and seven others injured when lightning struck a field operations tent.

The professors would be "circuit-riders" who visited the nine university campuses at intervals for face-to-face instruction, "the personal approach," McNeil said.

PARK OVERLOOKS CITY

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A state park will be established on Fort Hill, a 123-acre site on a hill overlooking this capital city. The area was the scene of Indian fighting and a Civil War battle.

Gainey, the Army said, is one of some 700 reservist fillers assigned to the division for summer training.

"In the long run education will have to decide whether to reach people where they are or go the elitist approach," said McNeil, "because I don't think society is going to stand for more of the same—more

Medical Notes

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

Reducing Waist
If you weight is fairly normal but your waist is bulgy, there are two ways to conquer the bulge.

Do sit-ups with knees bent. This helps strengthen abdominal muscles, increases muscle tone, and reduces the waist measurement, says Dr. Allan J. Ryan of the University of Wisconsin. The second program is to eat fewer calories and get regular vigorous exercise to remove excess abdominal fat, he writes in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Sensitivity to Aspirin
More and more people seem to be becoming sensitive to aspirin, two allergists report.

The sensitivity has been noted particularly in patients with asthma associated with nasal polyps. Drs. Bernard T. Fein of San Antonio, Tex., and Stephen D. Lockett, Lancaster, Pa., told the American College of Allergists. There is no diagnostic test to detect the sensitive persons. The allergists suggest doctors and patients be aware of the possibility of adverse reactions.

Tooth Overcoat
Tooth decay in children has been reduced drastically with a plastic paint that hardens and seals off pits and fissures in molars, says the National Institute of Dental Research.

The plastic overcoat prevents food particles and bacteria from becoming lodged in fissures.

Two years after application 99 per cent of the treated areas on permanent teeth and 87 per cent on "baby" teeth were free of decay, while areas not treated on the other side of the same children's mouths showed decay in 60 per cent of the permanent and 38 per cent of the first teeth.

Combating Phobias
To overcome phobias, British psychiatrists advise intentional exposure to the feared object or situation.

They encouraged patients to approach cats, spiders, feathers or whatever frightened them, as closely and as quickly as they could, and to stay in contact until anxiety declined, says modern medicine.

Drug Susceptibility
From experience with drug users age 10 to 19, Dr. Paul Laybourne finds they fall into two groups—those who are angry and want their own way, and those who feel very alienated and who can't talk to or love anyone.

Laybourne, professor of psychiatry and pediatrics at the University of Kansas Medical Center, says the angry youths usually confront angry parents. The alienated ones are so unhappy they will try anything, but aren't likely to confront anyone.

He thinks one overriding problem is that young people are reaching sexual maturity earlier nowadays, but aren't required to face adult responsibilities until years later, says the Medical News section of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

More Agents To Fight Drug Flow
WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — John E. Ingersoll, director of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, says more agents will be sent abroad to stifle the flow of drugs into the United States.

They will work directly with U.S. embassies. He also said the executive position of director of overseas operations has been created within the bureau.

Berliners Are Marking Wall's 10th Anniversary

By GENE KRAMER

BERLIN (AP) — East Berlin marked today the 10th anniversary of the Berlin Wall, and rightists in West Berlin scheduled an anti-wall demonstration tonight.

Sees Jail In His Future

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, charged with unauthorized possession of secret government documents, says he expects to be jailed. He has admitted releasing the Pentagon papers to the press.

He made the prediction Thursday night in an address at a rally of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"If it weren't for the example set by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., I wouldn't be where I am now, which is on my way to jail under indictment for having found a way to actively resist an evil war," Ellsberg said.

Ellsberg, 40, a researcher at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is to be arraigned on the federal charge in Los Angeles Monday.

He had access to the secret Pentagon papers, a study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, as an employee of the Rand Corp., a Santa Monica, Calif., firm which does research work for the federal government.

Agree To Move Emperor's Body

LISBON (AP) — Portugal agreed Thursday to transfer the remains of Dom Pedro I, the first emperor of Brazil, from its tomb in Lisbon to Ipiranga in Brazil to mark the 150th anniversary of Brazilian independence in 1972.

Ipiranga was the first Brazilian city to declare its independence from Portugal. Dom Pedro was overthrown by the military nine years later and died in Portugal.

Scientist Is Planting Kelp

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — An environmental scientist is trying to replenish one of the ocean's basic foods—giant sea kelp beds.

Wheeler North, professor of environmental sciences at the California Institute of Technology, says he raised more than one million kelp embryos in the laboratory and planted them in five locations.

Fifty-eight plants survived in three areas. The scientist predicts a survival rate of no more than one young plant for every 100,000 embryos.

Man's food supply from the sea could be increased considerably by learning how to establish kelp feeding grounds for fish, North says.

Giant kelp beds, which have been diminishing in Southern California, are a chief source of food and protection for small sea creatures. The small fish attract larger fish valuable as food to man.

Colorado's Trail Ridge Road, 12,183 feet up, is the nation's highest continuous highway.

Altho South ran into extremely adverse distribution in his four heart contract, he managed to emerge unscathed on the deal.

Altho nine tricks can be scored at no trump as the cards lie, it is natural to glide into the major suit game. When North made a jump rebid of two no trump showing 19 high card points, South knew that game was in the offing (he had 8 points himself) and, holding a singleton diamond, he rebid three clubs. After North gave a heart preference, South carried on to four hearts.

West opened the queen of clubs, the three was played from dummy and East ruffed with the ten of hearts. He shifted to a spade putting the declarer in dummy. The play to the first two tricks had provided South with considerable information. West was known to have six clubs and, presumably, at least the three and seven of hearts. If he held any higher with Communists party and East German flags. Posters hailing "10 years of the anti-fascist protective wall" were in the shop windows on the Unter den Linden.

Construction of the Wall was started by thousands of troops during the night of Aug. 12-13, 1961.

The border was bathed with floodlights Thursday night but deserted except for armed guards at close intervals.

Neues Deutschland, the East German Communist party newspaper, said today that East Germany's economic growth in the past decade was directly connected with the Wall, which halted the tide of refugees to the West.

"A barrier was erected against the economic plundering of our state," the official paper said.

period of two (2) years, 1971-1972 and 1972-1973.

The new high schools, North Pitt, D. H. Conley, Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton, Greenville and Stokes Elementary Schools are excepted from this proposal. All other schools are included.

Containers (tanks, bottles, etc.) are to be furnished and installed by supplier at no cost (lease, rent, etc.) to Pitt County Board of Education.

Itemized invoices for deliveries during previous month shall be sent to us about the first of the month. Tanks and/or containers furnished by supplier may be moved for other use while schools are closed.

Inspection of each item of gas burning equipment will be made by gas supplier and a written report, noting deficiencies requiring correction, sent to this department. Inspections and reports should be made twice each year about September and March.

LP gas used by Pitt County Schools approximately 7000-8000 gallons per month.

This contract may be terminated by Pitt County Board of Education at any time service is unsatisfactory. Inspections and reports should be rejected by Pitt County Board of Education.

I-we propose to furnish LP gas to Pitt County Schools as outlined herein for years 1971-72 and 1972-73. (2 years) at _____ per gallon.

Title of Gas Co. _____

All proposals are to be returned to Mr. William O. Price, Pitt County School Maintenance Department, no later than 2:00 P.M., August 16, 1971. Aug. 5, 6, 13

NOTICE OF SALE
North Carolina
Pitt County

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain deed of trust executed by Arnie Carl Foskey and wife, Betty Louise Foskey, to Archie C. Walker, Trustee, dated the 15th day of June, 1971, and recorded in Book 39, Page 250, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County; and under and by virtue of the authority vested in the undersigned by said deed of trust, by an instrument of writing dated the 16th day of July, 1971, and recorded in Book E-40, page 513, in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured having demanded a foreclosure thereof for the purpose of satisfying said debt, the undersigned substituted trustee will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash:

AT THE COURTHOUSE DOOR IN GRIFFON SCHOOL, GRIFFON, N.C. AT 12:00 NOON, ON THE 1ST DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1971, the land conveyed in said deed of trust, the same lying and being in Griffon Township, Pitt County, North Carolina; and more particularly described as follows:

Being numbered and designated as B. Block A, as shown on map of Section 11 of substituted trustee by Heims and Associates, C. E., dated April 10, 1970, and of record in Map Book 20, pages 29 and 29A, Pitt County Registry, to which map reference is hereby made for greater certainty of description, subject, however, to drainage easement shown on map above referred to.

The above property is to be sold subject to unpaid taxes and assessments, if any.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
STORM DRAINAGE FACILITIES
EAST CAROLINA UNIVERSITY
GREENVILLE, N.C.

Sealed proposals will be received by Mr. C. G. Moore, Vice President of East Carolina University, Greenville, North Carolina, in Room 201 of the Administration Building, East Carolina University until 3:00 P.M. EDT on August 31, 1971, and immediately thereafter publicly opened and read for furnishing of labor, materials, and equipment entering into construction of storm drainage facilities at East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. in accordance with Rivers and Associates' Drawing No. 2407.

Complete plans, specifications and contract documents will be open for inspection in the office of Associated General Contractors, Raleigh, N.C.; the office of the Engineer, Rivers and Associates, Inc., Greenville, N.C.; or the office of F. W. Dodge Corporation, Raleigh, N.C. or may be obtained from the office of the Engineer by those qualified and who will make a bid, upon deposit of TWENTY FIVE DOLLARS in cash or certified check. The deposit will be returned only to those submitting a bona fide proposal. Plans, specifications and specifications are returned to the Engineer in good condition within five days after the date set for receiving bids.

The work will consist of the following approximate major items of work:

Base Bid — 760 CY Drainage Excavation, 0.3 ac. Clearing, 3 ac. Catch Basins, 48" CM Pipe, 0.3 ac. Seeding & Fertilizing;

And Alternate Bid — 1,540 cy Drainage Excavation, 0.9 ac. Clearing, 20 ac. CM Pipe, 0.3 ac. Seeding & Fertilizing.

All contractors are hereby notified that they must have proper license under the state law governing their profession. General Contractors and tractors are notified that Chapter 87, Article 1, General Statutes of North Carolina, will be observed in receiving and awarding contracts.

Each proposal shall be accompanied by a cash deposit or a certified check drawn on some bank or trust company insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation of an amount equal to not less than 5 per cent of the proposal or in lieu thereof a bidder may offer a bid bond of 5 per cent of the bid executed by a Surety Company licensed under the laws of North Carolina to execute such bonds conditioned that the surety will upon demand forthwith make payment to the obligee on or before the date of the bid fails to execute the contract in accordance with the bid bond and upon failure to forthwith make payment the surety shall pay to the obligee an amount equal to the amount of said bond. Said deposit shall be retained by the Owner as liquidated damages in the event of failure of the successful bidder to execute the contract within 10 days after the award or to give satisfactory surety as required by law.

Performance Bond will be required for one hundred percent of the contract price.

Payment will be made on the basis of ninety percent of the monthly estimates and final payment made upon completion and acceptance of the work.

No bids may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids for a period of thirty days.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive informalities.

Presbyterian Rift Said 'Nothing New'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Rev. Ben Lacey Rose of Richmond, Va., moderator of the Southern Presbyterian Church, says the plan of four conservative groups to split from the denomination "is nothing new."

terian Church in the United States, the Rev. James A. Millard of Atlanta, stated clerk or chief administrative officer, also indicated he was not surprised or particularly disturbed. "Schisms have characterized Presbyterianism all through its history," he said.

"This division has been developing for 30 years, and it might even be healthy." They were asked to comment after the conservatives announced at a meeting in Weaverville, N.C., on Wednesday that they had named a steering committee to lead conservative presbyteries or districts out of the church if and when it achieves a planned merger with the Northern denomination, the United Presbyterian Church. The two major branches of American Presbyterianism split during the Civil War. The United Presbyterian Church has about four million members. The Southern Presbyterian Church has about one million. And five other minor groups have about 100,000 members each.

Dr. Rose estimated that the four dissident conservative groups have "at most 10 per cent of church membership." But a member of one of the groups, the Rev. G. Aiken Taylor of Asheville (near Weaverville), editor of the Presbyterian Journal, said his guess was 20 per cent. Also among the 500 persons at the meeting in Weaverville were representatives of the Presbyterian Evangelistic Fellowship, Presbyterian Churchmen United, and Concerned Presbyterians. The conservatives feel at home in evangelical Protestantism and say the church must emphasize personal faith and obedience to God. The liberals favor a vigorous program of social action.

The conservatives made their plans contingent upon the merger because of an escape clause in the proposed agreement. The clause says groups not accepting the union can leave without threat of litigation by the united church to retain property or to make other reprisals. Dr. Rose, who characterized himself as a moderate, said the merger will be difficult under any circumstances and the odds are against it occurring in the next five years.

He said Northern liberal groups are fighting proposed Southern compromises in the plan of union, which would retain commitment to Presbyterian doctrine as set forth in the Westminster Standards. The standards, framed by a meeting of the churchmen in Westminster, England, in the 1640s, are concerned with the Confession of Faith, including directions for worship and church policy and discipline. Dr. Rose said Southern members have been dismayed by some of the social actions of the Northern church, especially the donation of $10,000 to the legal defense fund for Angela Davis, an avowed Communist charged with supplying arms in the murder of a judge in California.

Dr. Rose said the move by the Southern conservatives could be an attempt to make the merger less attractive to others in the Southern denomination.

Dr. Rose, reached at Blowing Rock, N.C., where he was visiting relatives, added that he would prefer that all Presbyterians belong to one denomination, but he doubted this was possible.

Of the dissidents he said, "If they go, they go with our tears, but the Kingdom will go on."

A Place For The Lonely

ATLANTA (UPI)—At Emory University, they call it Talking Point.

The whole idea is for the undergraduate student who's lonely and discouraged to have a place to come in and talk things over with a sympathetic listener who might have had similar problems.

Charles Gershon, a medical student, said the graduate students, many of them first year medical students, do not intend to substitute Talking Point for psychological services when they are needed. Instead, he emphasized, the staff has a list of services available for referral in case of serious problems.

The problems they've helped students with thus far have been "basically loneliness and trouble adjusting to campus life," said Gershon. "If we help just a few people we think it's worth while."

In the last quarter, the center, manned by two grad students, operated from 7 p.m. to midnight in one of the campus dormitories. The service is patterned after a more formal program staffed by interns and residents of the University of Pennsylvania.

Jordan Blames Failure To Constrain Guerrillas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Jordan charged today that the border clash that led Syria to break relations was caused by Syria's failure to keep a tight rein on the Palestinian guerrillas.

A government spokesman, broadcasting over Amman Radio, said the fighting between Jordanian and Syrian forces Thursday was "regrettable but resulted from mounting and increased guerrilla raids across the border this week."

Syria closed its border with Jordan last month to protest King Hussein's successful crackdown on the guerrillas. On Thursday it became the third Arab country to sever relations with Jordan. Libya and Algeria did so earlier this year, and on July 19 Iraq closed its border with Jordan and barred all flights to and from Jordan over Iraqi air space. The Jordanian spokesman said his government proposed that a joint committee be formed to investigate the border incidents by Syria vetoed the plan.

Syria's official Radio Damascus claimed that the Jordanian tanks and armored cars opened fire Thursday on the Syrian border town of Dar's, but the broadcast said the attack was beaten back with the loss of four Jordanian tanks. The report said a Jordanian armored car ran over a wounded Syrian soldier and killed him.

The Jordanian spokesman said the fighting began when "a force whose identity could not be determined advanced toward Jordanian positions and opened fire. Our forces returned fire in self-defense and damaged five attacking tanks and two artillery positions. There were no casualties."

The last time Syrian and Jordanian forces came face to face because of the guerrillas was during the Jordanian civil war last fall when Syria sent in tanks and planes to aid the embattled guerrillas in the same area as Thursday's clash. That time the Jordanians clobbered the Syrians.

The Jordanian reference to an unidentified force appeared to be a suggestion that units of the 8,000 man Palestinian Liberation Army, which has bases in southern Syria, were to blame for the fighting.

On the Arab-Israeli diplomatic front, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt expressed pessimism again over chances of Middle East peace and threatened Israel with "maximum punishment" in any new war.

In another development, Arab guerrillas lobbed a grenade into a crowded market in Gaza City today, killing one Arab and wounding six other persons. Among the injured were two 16-year-old Arab boys and two Israeli civilians.

Homecoming services will be held Sunday at York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church. Holy Communion will be observed during the morning worship hour, which will be followed by dinner to be served in the fellowship hall.

A roll call of saints will be held during the afternoon service beginning at 2:30. Music will be presented by the Crusaders. The public is invited to attend.

New Defense Minister

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—Prime Minister William McMahon named David Eric Fairbairn today to succeed John Grey Gorton as Australia's defense minister.

Fairbairn, 54, has been education and science minister and will continue in that post for the time being, McMahon said. McMahon fired Gorton, his predecessor as prime minister, from his Cabinet on Thursday after criticism of Gorton's memoirs, which are being serialized in an Australian newspaper. McMahon said Gorton breached the principle of cabinet solidarity by writing that some of his ministers could not be trusted to keep secrets.

The opposition Labor party leader, Gough Whitlam, announced he would try to bring down the government when Parliament resumes Tuesday. But observers said there seems to be no chance that members of McMahon's Liberal party will break ranks even though the party is seething with factionalism.

Sowers Eyes 1972 Issues

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A top North Carolina official says that economy, environment and education will be major issues in the elections next year.

Roy Sowers Jr., director of the Department of Conservation and Development, said Thursday "our people, white and black, are fed up with the manner" in which the question of busing has been handled to achieve racial integration in schools.

"Those supporting any candidate for election or re-election will feel hot pressure for some honest, straightforward answers and solutions to that complex and tearing issue," Sowers said in a prepared talk to the Cumberland County Young Democrats Club.

The economy issue, he said, will be devoted "to how we can better extend economic opportunities to those who do not now enjoy the benefits of a good income."

Sowers, a possible candidate for lieutenant governor, told the group "the great environmental protection movement, which flowered in the late 1960's and continues with great impact today, will still remain as a vital issue in 1972."

Sentencing Will Follow Harvest

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP)—Superior Court Judge Hamilton Hobgood understood when a tobacco farmer said he was behind in his harvesting and curing, and asked a delay in his sentence for wounding his wife.

The judge noted Thursday that he was raised on a tobacco farm himself. He granted the request of John Wesley Graves, who had been convicted of shooting his wife four times in a domestic dispute but testified that she had recovered and they were back together again.

The judge told Graves to "put in that barn of tobacco" and be back in court for sentencing today.

Town Provides Example On How To Get Doctor

LIVINGSTON, Calif. (UPI)—When a rural town suddenly finds itself without a doctor—and no new doctor seems willing to take his place—what can the town do?

Most communities find they can do very little, but Livingston (pop. 3,000) has converted itself from a town in grave need into a model that may show the way toward solving rural health problems. Livingston now operates a community-owned, self-supporting and locally-directed health center, with consulting specialists and backed up by the Stanford University Medical Center.

Dr. Everett Johnson, the center's medical director, says health services are now available in Livingston that are usually enjoyed by communities of 50,000.

"The organization and style of operation are the innovations," says Dr. Count Gibson, Stanford professor of community health and preventive medicine.

"The whole set-up is a far cry from a bureaucracy or distant imposed restrictions. Tackles Rising Costs "The local board sets up the program, identifies its priorities and pinpoints the available resources—whether through a university or elsewhere—to help bring its own plans about."

Among critical problems Livingston has tackled, in addition to the short supply of rural physicians, are the spiraling cost of health care, the scarcity of government funds, and the frequent inability or unwillingness of medical schools to exercise new leadership and direction.

Livingston's health care enterprise began when the town's only doctor announced he would leave by fall, 1970. For Stanford, the tie to Livingston was made when a group of medical students went there in the summer of 1969 to conduct a clinic for migrant workers.

This effort has now evolved into a full-fledged partnership with Livingston offering health services for everybody. The community-run aspect of the health center and the community-set goals are a major reason for its success, Gibson says.

Four basic principles guide the health center: —It is community controlled through a local governing board, and residents decide what program they want and what they can afford.

Center Supports Self Reflecting this is the involvement of the Mennonite community. Their religion prevents them from serving on any governing body, but they have supported the center through work on committees.

—It is self-supporting. Livingston residents felt that dependence on sources beyond their community might lead to a loss of local responsibility. They believed also that uncertainty of funding or policy might develop if the community looked for outside help. So no federal funds were sought.

—It serves a geographically defined population. "Livingston is an ideal size for such a center," says Gibson. "But to insure that the people who control the center will continue to be served by it, it should not expand much more."

Serves Whole Community —It is operated to serve the entire community. "This reflects the community's desire to avoid the traditional pattern of one quality care for the rich, another for the poor," a center statement says. What lessons can be learned from Livingston? "The Livingston approach is community enterprise at its best," Gibson says.

"It offers a competitive challenge for doctors and hospitals to do better in their own delivery of health care, or they will be equalled by the strength of the community-oriented centers which are coming on strong."

BULGING

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine national mental hospital, built to accommodate 3,500 patients, now has a total of 8,000 patients, according to an opposition party congressman.

SURPRISE... OF A LIFETIME

As old as childhood itself is the game of surprise.

"Close your eyes, Mommy!" And Jimmy places his precious gift on the table.

"Now, open your eyes, Mommy!" And Jimmy watches rapturously for the flash of surprise on Mother's face.

But surprise isn't always a game. Parents whose eyes were closed to their own and their children's deepest needs have often beheld the shambles which religious indifference can make of promising youth.

The essential duty of parents is to provide thorough religious instruction for their children... and its natural ally, parental example.

The Church is enriching the spiritual life of millions of families. But your Jimmy's opportunity for religious training and a Christian home depends on how much you SEE of his soul's need—and yours.
