

Demo Congress Expected To Go Along

Economic Legislation Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon appears likely to get essentially the economic legislation he has asked from the Democratic-controlled Congress, although pressure is forecast for more tax relief for individuals.

The White House declared itself pleased with the tone of a 2½-hour discussion Tuesday that brought together the President, some of his top advisers, and key members of the Senate and House.

While apparently no commitments were made by Democrats to support the legislation in exactly the form Nixon has suggested, they reportedly were predominantly in favor of the thrust of his proposals.

In other economic developments Tuesday: The administration asked labor unions to end current strikes and not start any new ones during the 90-day wage-price freeze, and hinted at mandatory back-to-work orders for workers who refuse.

Big unions withheld immediate comment, and reaction by smaller unions varied, some removing picket lines and others vowing to stay out.

—The Office of Emergency Preparedness, charged with policing Nixon's order, contributed to the confusion. It first said state and local governments are not subject to the pay raise freeze, later said the matter is up in the air.

—The OEP said unprocessed agricultural commodities such as grains, vegetables and fruits are exempt from the price freeze, but others such as beefsteak, bread, pasteurized milk and frozen foods are covered.

—Ford Motor Co., which had considered seeking authority to hike prices on five models of 1972 cars, joined the other big auto manufacturers in rolling prices back to 1971 levels.

—Treasury Undersecretary Paul Volcker, returning from a two-day trip to London and Paris, said no decision has been made on Britain's request for a meeting of the non-Communist world's 10 leading industrial nations to discuss monetary reform.

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon fully acknowledged the Democratic contributions of ideas incorporated into his economic package, urged a bipartisan approach and said there will be credit for all in a successful effort to pull the country out of its economic difficulties.

But in private conversations, Capitol Hill sources speculated that Democrats will feel impelled to try harder to put their own mark on the bill finally enacted.

Before Nixon's dramatic reversal Sunday of his earlier, cautious approach to direct government intervention in the economy, Democrats had been counting heavily on a 1972 campaign issue geared to inflation and unemployment and what they would call Nixon's unwillingness to deal boldly with that issue.

Common Market Warns Of Surcharge Results

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The European Common Market warned today that President Nixon's surcharge on imports could cancel the results of the Kennedy Round of tariff reductions and reduce international trade.

The Common Market's executive commission, called back hurriedly from vacation, met for five hours in Brussels Wednesday night for its first assessment of Nixon's imposition of a 10 per cent surtax on foreign manufactured goods and suspension of the dollar's ties to gold.

The British government, meanwhile, prepared to stave off any diversion of cheap Japanese goods from America, and Europe's foreign exchange markets remained closed for a third day. The Tokyo foreign exchange market calmed down after a two-day selling spurge, and the Japanese government maintained its opposition to the revaluation of the yen which is one of Nixon's chief goals.

The Common Market commission said Nixon's move threw into question the principles on which the postwar international monetary system was founded and which favored the development of trade.

The U.S. measures, it warned in a postmidnight statement, "will have a negative effect on international trade and could in fact cancel the results of the Kennedy Round."

Calling for joint action by market members and prospective members, probably Britain, the commission was meeting again today to prepare for a special session on Thursday of cabinet ministers from the six member governments—France, West Germany, the Netherlands, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg—and Britain.

A spokesman said he could neither confirm nor deny a report that the community is moving toward freeing all its six currencies to let their values in terms of the U.S. dollar be determined by the demand on the open market. But he said the community is seeking a unanimous decision.

The West German mark and the Dutch guilder already float, set free in the monetary crisis last May, and the Belgian-Luxembourg franc is uncontrolled for some transactions. Neither the French nor the Italian government has given any indication of willingness to free the franc or the lira, but some business circles in London expect the six continental governments and the British as well to agree on at least a partial floating in which the present narrow spread between the maximum and minimum allowable exchange rates would be widened.

Announce Vietnam Pullout

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Australia and New Zealand announced today that they will withdraw all of their combat troops from Vietnam, most of them by the end of the year.

Prime Minister William McMahon of Australia said most of his country's fighting men will be home by Christmas, and shipment of stores and equipment will be completed by early 1972.

In Wellington, Prime Minister Sir Keith Holyoake said New Zealand's small combat force, will be withdrawn by "about the end of this year."

Heavier Enemy Attacks Along DMZ Anticipated

SAIGON (AP) — Half the B52 bombers in Southeast Asia today made the heaviest strikes in a year along the demilitarized zone, and South Vietnamese commanders predicted heavier enemy rocket and mortar attacks along the northern frontier.

As fighting continued along the DMZ for the seventh day, Cambodian troops claimed about 100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed in a battle in southeastern Cambodia. The Cambodian command said four government troops were killed and five were wounded.

About 25 B52s from Thailand dropped 750 tons of bombs on suspected North Vietnamese positions inside the southern half of the DMZ and southward for 15 miles.

Most of the strikes were at the western end of the DMZ defense line, around 1,500-foot Mt. Ba Ho and neighboring Fire Base Fuller and Sarge, which came under new attack. A company of South Vietnamese marines was driven from an outpost on Ba Ho last Sunday and suffered heavy losses.

Record Leaf Prices, But Costs Soar

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — A tobacco marketing specialist said today North Carolina growers are receiving record prices for tobacco, "but their margin of profit is probably no more than last year because production costs are up considerably."

"The biggest cost is labor," said John H. Cyrus of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. "The prices of farm supplies and farm equipment are up along with interest rates. It will cost a farmer $800 to $1,000 per acre to produce tobacco, depending on his operation and the amount of labor he is using."

Cyrus said that up through Monday a record average of $75.60 had been paid for tobacco sold on the South Carolina and Border North Carolina belt, and increase of nearly $4 per hundred pounds over the same sales period last season.

"Growers are well pleased with the prices they are receiving," Cyrus said in an interview. "I haven't found a single grower who was dissatisfied."

Although prices are up, many growers will wind up having less tobacco to sell this year "because of smaller quotas due to adjustments in overmarketing last season," Cyrus said.

He added the record prices bear out his earlier statement that this year's tobacco crop compares favorably with the best in history.

"The crop throughout North Carolina is very good in all the belts," Cyrus said. "The growing season has been generally ideal except for a few isolated spots where it was either too dry or too wet." North Carolina's 1971 tobacco production is estimated at about 700 million pounds a drop of 97 million from last year.

"This is really where the rub is going to come from the income," Cyrus said.

He offered a note of encouragement to belts that haven't opened by saying, "We are expecting the high price trend to follow as other belts begin auction sales."

"The ban on cigarette advertising on television and radio," Cyrus said, "apparently has had no effect on cigarette sales. During the first three months of this year cigarette sales were running 3 per cent above the same period last year."

Contaminated Eggs Embargoed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Department of Agriculture said today it has embargoed eggs from several chicken flocks found to be contaminated by PCB, a chemical producing effects similar to those of DDT.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said the contamination was discovered during a statewide examination of chicken farms ordered after PCB leaked into fish meal shipped from Wilmington last month.

"At this point, it isn't a really serious matter," Graham said, "but our food inspectors are checking virtually the entire egg production in the state of North Carolina for contamination by polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB)."

Guidelines On Wages, Prices Being Readied

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The little government agency charged with policing the wage-price freeze says it will be ready Thursday or Friday with some comprehensive guidelines.

Until then, the Office of Emergency Preparedness says, it will give advice only when the answer is obvious.

The lack of guidelines, a spokesman admits, has resulted in many incorrect answers since President Nixon announced the freeze Sunday.

"We are holding off on answering specifics," said E.V.W. Jones, an OEP information officer.

In his new economic program, the President created a Cost of Living Council to issue regulations and orders for the price freeze. The council is meeting daily to develop rules which the OEP will relay to business and the public. Nixon has named Arnold Weber, former associate director of the Office of Management and Budget, as executive director of the council.

"We were getting conflicting answers," Jones said of a decision to cut off specific advice.

"There are a hundred thousand gray areas," said Dave Pattison, a congressional and public affairs officer for OEP. "We are obviously not all lawyers."

A result has been that one governmental department would answer a query one way, while another would say the opposite.

In some cases, the OEP would give two answers to the same question.

It said Tuesday, for example, that cost-of-living pay raises by state and local governments were not subject to Nixon's freeze order. A spokesman said later "there has been no decision of any kind" on the matter, and heightened confusion by saying federal pay raises would be reviewed also although Nixon specifically ruled them out during the 90-day freeze period.

From the minute the President made his announcement, OEP's 20 phone lines have been busy fielding calls from trade associations, the press, congressmen, and labor and business representatives. Telephone men were installing more lines Tuesday.

In his speech, Nixon emphasized that "while the wage-price freeze will be backed by government sanctions if necessary, it will not be accompanied by the establishment of a huge price-control bureaucracy."

Although a gnat among government agencies, with a normal payroll of 402 persons employed in the task of coordinating disaster relief programs and planning for such contingencies as nuclear attack, the OEP is growing daily as it grabs off technical help from some of its bigger brothers.

Plans For New Hospital Being Presented Today To State Commission

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees was told last night that architects Freeman and White would present the tentative plans for the new hospital to the North Carolina Medical Care Commission today.

"There is no way of telling how long this first review will take," Jack Richardson, project director for the new hospital, said. "But we will stand at attention until the Commission finishes."

One reason the approval of this state commission is important is that it is through it, Hill-Burton grants for hospital construction are channeled.

Dr. Ben G. Shappley and Dr. Frank Foster Martin were named to the hospital's active staff. Dr. Shappley, a partner of Dr. Earl Trevathan and Dr. Paul Erkman, was approved for minor privileges in pediatrics and Dr. Martin, a partner of Dr. Eric Fearington and Dr. Cecil Rand, received approval for minor privileges in internal medicine.

Hospital administrator Jack Richardson commented that Pres. Nixon's price freeze would have major effects on hospital business. Several planned salary hikes now will not come about.

The retention of Ed Hackett as a patient representative was announced. Hackett is responsible for helping patients enter the hospital and helping them understand and take advantage of their insurance coverage to pay bills as promptly as possible.

Tom Donnelly, a hospital administration student, now participating in the Duke Endowment tour, was introduced to the Board. He is making an inventory of equipment the hospital now has which can be used in the new hospital. The service he renders the

N.C. Rockhound Finds Vein Of Emeralds On His Wife's Land

HIDDENITE, N. C. (AP) — Tom Adams, 77-year-old rockhound had found only a few, small emeralds in the last 30 years. But he says that in the last three days he and his wife have found more than 200.

The part-time miner says he is finding the green gemstones in a vein in a hole 18 feet deep on land owned by his 73-year-old wife.

He says he would not be surprised if they are worth more than one-half million dollars.

The 280 acres owned by Mrs. Adams near the town of Hiddenite in Alexander County in the North Carolina foothills was the site of the Hiddenite Mining Co., which went out of business half a century ago. Hiddenite, or lithia emerald, is a yellow to green gemstone.

Adams and his wife have been charging tourists $3 a day to dig on their land and keep whatever gems they find. He was asked whether he would continue doing so after he found five emeralds Monday and said he was pulling them out "by the handful" Tuesday.

"Well, they're up here running around today (Tuesday), he replied. "My wife and I are still talking it over."

Tourists also are allowed to dig for emeralds and rubies at Franklin in the western North Carolina mountains.

Adams said he is finding his emeralds in a hole he helped an unidentified man from Massachusetts dig last week. The man, Adams said, "didn't find anything but some smoky quartz and gave up and went home last Friday. I took up where he left off and found five emeralds yesterday (Monday). I went back about 8 o'clock this morning and started prying them with a screwdriver. I don't know why, but I kept digging after that fellow left. I didn't find anything Saturday or Sunday, but I just knew there was something there. I just knew it."

Perhaps it was the memory that a 1,500-carat emerald was found on the land about two months ago.

Adams said he found his emeralds in a vein about an inch thick and six inches wide. He added that he has not yet reached the end of the vein and plans to continue digging.

Post-Disaster Therapists Are Learning From Quake Clinic

(Editor's Note: Following is the last of three articles on the fears of youngsters who lived through the California earthquake last February.)

By NAOMI RUBINE
LOS ANGELES (WNS) — The day after the Feb. 9 earthquake struck and devastated much of Los Angeles, a team of social service workers arrived at one of the disaster centers set up by the county to provide food and shelter to victims who had been evacuated from their homes.

The counselors set up their "booth," put up a sign to let people know who they were, and waited.

Nothing happened. Soon they decided to walk around the large auditorium where hundreds of children and adults had come to set up temporary housekeeping. They began talking with the homeless, following closely behind the Red Cross volunteers who were fulfilling more physical needs.

Within the hour, several large groups of people were gathering to talk over what had happened to them, how the quake had affected them, how scared they were. They laughed, they cried, and they calmed down. The social service team considered their mission a success.

Couldn't Sleep
The team was from the San Fernando Valley Child Guidance Clinic, where simultaneously hundreds of children and their parents were being counseled in group therapy sessions, and on the phone, on how to deal with the emotional problems caused by the quake. Children couldn't sleep, they were seeing frightening faces in the window, they reverted to sucking their thumbs. Adults were scared, and their fears were transmitted to their youngsters.

"This team of mental health counselors is one of the things we would like to see implemented on a national scale," says Dr. Stephen Howard, Director of Clinical Services at the Clinic. "If emotional problems are this severe in this situation, it stands to reason that help must be needed in other areas where natural disasters happen."

Reason proves correct. Letters have come into the clinic from several institutions across the country, such as a mental health center where psychologists are interested in learning how to deal with tornado victims.

In Los Angeles just a few days ago, a group of three professionals — two seismologists and a social worker from the clinic — visited a school where children were said to be in a state of panic due to rumors about an "impending" quake. The visitors successfully allayed the children's fears.

Need For Talk
Just after the February 9 disaster, clinic staff called 27 schools in the troubled areas, offering their services. All said help was not needed, the children were quiet. But, as Dr. Howard points out, and as later investigation proved, quiet children are not necessarily happy and well adjusted. In one classroom, a boy reported: "We wanted to talk about the earthquake, but our teacher said, 'Let's sing instead.' You can't sing when you have something like that on your mind."

In another class, children were allowed to talk about the quake, and the youngsters talked "a mile a minute," right through the bell, and into the next period.

"Sure," says Dr. Howard, "it's no surprise. Kids want to talk when they're afraid, and it's the best therapy they can have. But the schools didn't see that. There should be a way to send teams of trained workers to the schools to meet with school personnel and provide consultation to them in how to go about helping the children."

Another proposal, based on the clinic experiment, is that training programs be developed in the area of mental health for policemen and firemen — particularly emphasizing an understanding of fear reactions and how to counteract them. "The point is," Dr. Howard says emphatically, "it's time that other, non-professional groups — at least groups not involved in mental health — become aware of the necessity for this kind of aid. It's the same with evacuation center personnel. After we had such success with that one group we sent to an evacuation center, we called several others. They told us, 'No, we have enough problems just getting these people fed. We can't worry about group therapy.' As if that were actually a distasteful idea!"

"I think, if we proved nothing else in this whole experiment — and it was an experiment — we did show that mental health therapy is worthy of a lot more consideration in situations like these. We can't afford to ignore it."

Young Couple To Return Home

PARIS (WNS) — Angelika, only 15, fell in love with teenager Manfred in Cologne, West Germany, and convinced him that they should flee to romantic Paris where they could live a Romeo and Juliet life in freedom. Unfortunately, Paris police declared Angelika too young for such love life and put her in a home for girls. Manfred was so unhappy that he climbed to the roof of the city hall and threw tiles at the authorities below. Firemen chased him despite his threats to jump to his death and cornered him in a chimney. Manfred agreed to pay for his damages but must spend his two-week vacation in jail. Then he can go home with Angelika. "Cologne smells sweeter than Paris," commented the unhappy Angelika.

She Wonders Who's Kissing Her Now

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(c 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Let's set the record straight. Someone asked you who said, "Nice guys finish last," and you replied, "Leo Durocher said it."

Durocher wittingly, or unwittingly lifted this quote from the late Damon Runyon, and it's high time someone made that correction publicly. It is amazing how many news people attribute this quote to Durocher.—M. C.

DEAR M. C.: I am unable to find proof that either Runyon or Durocher said it, but I would appreciate knowing. (Where are you, George Seldes?) In any case, Damon Runyon may have said, "Nice guys finish last," FIRST, but Durocher said it LAST!

DEAR ABBY: Please don't laugh at me, but I am a grown woman and I am absolutely scared to death of mice!

Yesterday a little mouse ran out from under the stove to the refrigerator and I became hysterical, started to scream for help and jumped up on the kitchen table. My two children, ages 7 and 9 also became hysterical and my poor husband had a terrible time quieting us down.

I felt foolish frightening the children that way, but I couldn't help it. My husband was so mad at me he refused to set the trap. How can I overcome this childish fear of mice?—PETRIFIED

DEAR PET: Go to a pet shop and look at the mice for a while. Then BUY [you heard me] a pair. [The white ones are adorable and they make great pets.] Get instructions on how to care for them properly, and keep them in a cage. Soon you and your children will lose your fears of the furry creatures. [P. S. Be sure you get either two males or two females—unless you want to go into the breeding business.]

DEAR ABBY: A woman signed Eating Alone complained because her husband refused to eat out because he couldn't be sure how clean their kitchens were. This went for the homes of relatives and close friends as well as restaurants.

Well, I have a similar problem, only mine is worse. My husband refuses to make love to me anywhere but at home. A hotel would be fine but when we go on vacations we always stay with friends or relatives, and I'm lucky if I get a quick good night kiss because my idiot husband is so afraid that someone will "hear" us!

I think this is ridiculous, but I can't get him to see it my way. I don't suppose you can help me, but I just wanted "EATING IN" to know she's not the only one with a nutty husband.—LOVELESS VACATIONS

Homely Or Pretty? Count Mirrors

GENEVA, Switzerland (WNS) — Ugly women buy more mirrors than pretty girls. Such is the report of Therese Troller, who has just retired at 65 after a lifetime of designing them. "Look around you, and you will notice that the lady who is uncertain of her good looks is always staring into mirrors and usually pouting," she said. "My own beautiful daughters never carried mirrors in their handbags until they began to feel old at 30." Men are the worst customers. "One for shaving can last a lifetime," reported Mme. Troller. Homemaker's Haven By Evelyn Spangler Pitt Home Agent

Molds that cause mildew grow on anything from which they can get enough food. In homes they develop most often on cotton, linen, rayon, silk, wool, leather, wood, and paper. Thank goodness, many manmade fibers are resistant to mildew.

Molds are simple plants belonging to the group known-as fungi. Though always present in the air, molds that cause mildew need moisture and certain temperatures in order to grow. They commonly develop in muggy summer weather (and we've had our share lately), especially in houses that are closed.

Molds that cause mildew flourish wherever it is damp, warm, poorly aired, poorly lighted—in cellars, in crawl spaces of houses without basement, in clothing closets, on draperies and rugs in basement recreation rooms, on shower curtains, on damp clothes rolled up for ironing. These molds are also likely to grow in a newly built house because of moisture in the building materials.

As the molds grow they cause considerable damage and often leave a musty odor. They discolor fabrics and sometimes eat into them so severely that the fabrics rot and fall to pieces. They decay wood and discolor leather and paper. However, the most common mildew organisms do not cause disease.

To prevent mildew we need to keep things clean, (even manmade fibers which are resistant to mildew may supply enough food to start mildew if not kept clean), get rid of dampness, and provide adequate ventilation.

If you have a washable garment which has mildewed, wash it at once and dry it in the sun. If the stain remains, moisten the area with a mixture of lemon juice and salt. Spread it in the sun to bleach, rinse thoroughly and dry again. (This treatment also works on rust stains.) As with any stain removal treatment, use with care on colored articles. Do you have other mildew problems? Then call (758-1196) or write the Extension Office, Box 1427, Greenville for a copy of the bulletin "How to Prevent and Remove Mildew."

Republican Curtsy: Tradition Or Love?

PARIS (WNS) — Jacques Duhamel, France's Minister of Cultural Affairs, does not approve of Frenchwomen curtsying to titled Frenchmen. "I find the custom even more shocking when the woman is the wife of a government minister," he told local reporters. When Duhamel saw such a woman curtsy at Malmaison before Prince Napoleon, he told her, "Madame, you should not behave like that in a republic." Mrs. Duhamel's reply to her husband's attitude, "But Jacques, women love to curtsy, perhaps as much as Frenchmen like an excuse to kiss a beautiful woman's hand."

IN DOWNTOWN GREENVILLE.

At Last, An All-Out Campaign

Mark down August 15, 1971 as a very important date in your life. It marked the start of an all-out war.

Not a shooting war, but one fully as vital to the well-being of our country and each individual American. It involved such things as employment, prices, wages, raw materials, manufactured materials, big business, small business ...the very lifestream of our social structure.

For years we have been watching our currency lose value, employment figures fail to match employment needs, rising living costs, sagging export trade; in short, it has been a downhill ride.

From time to time there was an anemic remedial action taken which temporarily eased a given critical condition; but at best it was patchwork which did not solve anything.

Make no mistake, these are critical times in the national economy. Some of the medicine may not taste so good to some of the involved segments; but the disease is infinitely worse than the cure.

President Nixon noted Sunday night that he had a variety of steps open to him in his bid to cut unemployment, stem inflation, protect the dollar and to make American goods more competitive with foreign products.

Instead of implementing one, two or four of them, he chose to implement many, and proposed others that only Congress can undertake.

This wide-front assault on causes of our economic blues is indicative of the seriousness which the President has attached to his effort.

Not everybody agrees as to the effectiveness of the Administration's program. Those who disapprove and those who approve base their opinions on the same facts; at best there can only be opinions and hope.

The bright spot in the whole picture is that the White House has settled upon a course of action and is doing something.

Inroads After Redistricting?

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — Each redistricting in recent times has been followed by the election of another Republican Congressman in North Carolina.

Will history repeat itself next year? Erosion of Democratic dominance of the Tar Heel delegation to the U.S. House

Forecasting Has Risks
Naturally, crystal balling Congressional contests so far in advance is risky. Other incumbents than Galifianakis may yield to ambition to run for higher office.

Broyhill, Lenoir furniture manufacturer and one of the brighter lights in the GOP firmament, is talked as a prospect for the U.S. Senate. Mizell, one-time baseball star, has indicated interest in the GOP gubernatorial nomination. Speculation also has touched Ruth, who went from college professor to politician, as a candidate for governor or another office.

There have been rumors that Jonas, 66, might choose retirement rather than running again. Such developments could change the picture drastically in the respective districts. Voters independence and personalities involved mean a Republican would not necessarily be succeeded by another Republican, nor a Democrat by a Democrat.

Here is a run-down on the new districts:
Review of Districts
First — Added Greene and Carteret, for a total of 21 coastal and northeastern counties. Rep. Walter B. Jones, Democrat, should fare well. Livingstone Stallings of New Bern may oppose him in the new districts.

Second — Added Caswell and Orange, lost Greene, a total of 12 counties. Rep. L. H. Fountain had no GOP opposition last time; redistricting shouldn't change the picture.

Third — Added Bladen and Lee, lost Carteret, nine counties. Rep. David N. Henderson strengthened his position with two consecutive wins over Herb Howell of Goldsboro, who probably won't carry the GOP banner a third time.

Fourth — Lost Orange leaving four counties; open race in prospect.
Fifth — Added Wilkes, lost Davie and Yadkin, seven counties; party balance unchanged.

Sixth — Lost Caswell, three counties; suited to Rep. Richardson Preyer, Democratic incumbent.
Seventh — Lost Bladen, six counties. Rep. Alton A. Lennon, Democrat, may have primary opposition from Gus Sperm of Maxton, state Representative.

Eighth — Added Davie and Yadkin, lost Lee, 11 counties; still weighted to Republican strength.
Ninth — Lost Wilkes, retained Mecklenburg, power base for Jonas, among its three counties.

Tenth — Lost Avery, seven counties. Rep. Jack Rhyne of Gaston has affirmed his intention to oppose Broyhill.
Eleventh — Added Avery, for 17 far-western counties. Rep. Roy Raylor, Democrat, won big last time?

BRYAN HAISLIP

of Representatives came about over the past two decades. Today, four of the 11 Congressmen are Republicans.

Rep. Charles R. Jonas won the present Ninth District seat in 1952. Ten years later, he was joined by Rep. James T. Broyhill in the Tenth. The 1968 elections saw victories for Rep. Wilmer D. (Vinegar Bend) Mizell in the Fifth, and Rep. Earl B. Ruth in the Eighth.

Now, the GOP is looking hopefully to 1972 for further inroads.

A review of the redistricting plan enacted by the recent General Assembly indicates the best chance is in the Fourth District. Other districts seem comfortable for incumbents though primary and general election challenges are likely.

The Fourth had a GOP Congressman briefly. James C. Gardner ousted veteran Democrat Harold D. Cooley in 1966, served one term and ran unsuccessfully for governor.

Open Seat Possibility
Rep. Nick Galifianakis of Durham brought the Fourth back to the Democratic fold. He had to run hard to win last year and redistricting cut out his Orange County stronghold. As a consequence, Galifianakis is looking to the Democratic primary for U.S. Senate where he would oppose Sen. B. Everett Jordan.

An open seat would give the GOP a fighting chance. A sluggest Democratic primary, which seems in the making, could enhance those prospects.

More than half a dozen Democrats are interested, including Rep. Ike Andrews of Chatham. Sen. Jyles J. Coggins and Rep. Bob Wynne of Wake, former Rep. Archie McMillan of Wake, SBI Director Charles Dunn, Al Adams of Raleigh, and Rep. Hohn Ingram of Randolph.

Jack Hawke of Raleigh lost to Galifianakis by fewer than 4,500 out of 95,000 votes, and may try again on the GOP ticket. James Cresimore of Raleigh is another Republican possibility.

Israel Has Its 'Second Front'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TEL AVIV — With Prime Minister Golda Meir's government preoccupied with the grave war-or-peace issue, a second front, in some ways more insidious, has been opened by militant, first-generation Israeli youth frustrated by high taxes, lack of housing and job-training and angry over lucrative economic concessions designed to attract new immigrants.

Stroll any evening through the crowded youth hangouts of Dizengoff Circle in the heart of this boisterous, bursting city and the complaints over special tax and housing incentives to attract new immigrants, particularly from the U.S., Canada and Western Europe, pour out angrily.

A young tractor driver in the new port of Ashdod is bitter at not being able to find an apartment in Tel Aviv, despite an exploding housing program. He lives in what he calls a "slum" on the outskirts of Tel Aviv and uses his thumb to commute the 22 miles to work.

What really galls him and his militant buddies is the huge government tax taken out of his $315 monthly wage, amounting to almost 40 per cent — much of it to finance defense spending and a soaring public debt (both at a higher per capita level than anywhere in the world).

While the tractor driver pays his tax, grudgingly like taxpayers everywhere, the new immigrant is granted total tax immunity for at least 18 months under most circumstances.

The tax discrimination felt by the feisty, aggressive new breed of Israeli youth, including some youthful Sabras (native-born citizens), is more than matched by their anger over housing concessions designed to attract new immigrants. A non-immigrant wanting to buy a small apartment is usually able to get a government mortgage loan of no more than $4,300, on which he pays up to 17 per cent interest. But for a new immigrant, the government offers a $14,000 mortgage at 8 per cent interest.

Thus, the cultural and economic clash is intensifying between the new breed of non-immigrant Israeli youth, on one side, and the new immigrants and older, well-established Sabra families on the other. As one angry young unemployed Israeli of Iraqi extraction named Kochavi Shemesh told us: "They ought to solve our problems before they give everything to the new immigrants."

Shemesh is the current chairman of the Black Panthers, a somewhat amorphous, loosely-joined organization of militant youth founded only last March which now claims an activist membership of more than 5,000. At first, the government ignored the Panthers, then tried to suppress it with harsh police actions (at least 250 Panthers have been arrested) and the break up of repeated, often violent demonstrations.

More recently, however, Mrs. Meir named a high-level commission to deal with Panther grievances — mainly lack of job-training programs, lack of jobs, poverty and slum living conditions.

Whether the Prime Minister's commission is a serious move to end what the Panthers call their "second-class" status or is just window dressing is problematical. But this split in the Israeli psyche represents an ominous change in the extraordinary unity that cemented all elements of this remarkably virile country during and after the 1967 war.

Senior government officers profess not to worry about the growing economic and cultural split. A somewhat similar atmosphere of malaise and discontent existed, they told us, before the 1967 war. Moreover, they contend that the split between new immigrants and the offspring of old immigrants struggling to improve themselves has always been troublesome. New immigrants, however, are the

Strength For Today

THE CHURCH'S GREATEST NEED
What is the greatest need in the church today?

Some would say greater tolerance. Others, broader social view. Still others, emphasis on the practical aspects of daily living rather than on the theoretical.

It would appear to some of us that the greatest need in the church today is more and better theology. Many people would disagree with that conclusion. Some might even be horrified by it and consider it backward-looking in every respect. But the fact is ever with us that the source of our religion is a body of revealed truth and that before we can get to work on the practical aspects of Christian living we have to know what that truth is.

Christian revelation is not a theory about life. Rather it is an announcement concerning God's nature and character and the setting forth of certain spiritual principles by which we are commanded by no less authority than that of the King of Heaven to order our lives. This body of knowledge is known as theology, or wisdom about God.

Christianity is a way of life, but we cannot walk in that way unless we know what it is — where it begins, whither its course and its final destination.

So again we affirm that the greatest need in the church today is more and better theology. Get such a theology, a trust in it, follow its injunctions, and the matter of living a Christian life will take care of itself.

By ART BUCHWALD

Don't Bring Your Wife

(When Art Buchwald lived in Europe, he discovered Italian men can make life very miserable for American husbands. That's why he moved back to the United States.)

ROME — The big mistake was taking my wife to Rome in the first place. Any American husband in his right mind should know better than to bring his spouse to Italy, particularly for the first time. But I underestimated the Italians, which is kind of hard to do.

It all started when my wife came back to the Excelsior Hotel from a shopping trip to the Via Condotti. She had a big grin on her face.

"What's so funny?" I wanted to know.

"Three Italians flirted with me on the street today," she said, pleased with herself.

"Well, don't let it go to your head," I warned her. "They flirt with everybody."

"Don't be too sure," she said. "Besides, the Roman men make you feel like you're really a woman."

"I make you feel like you're a woman, too," I said angrily. "Did you ever call me blue eyes?" she wanted to know.

"No, and for a very simple reason. You don't have blue eyes."

"That's not the point. Even if they lie, they do it beautifully. I think Italian men are wonderful."

I decided to drop the subject before I really lost my temper. But the next day, after another shopping tour, there she stood with the same smile on her face.

"Okay," I said. "what happened today?"

"A traffic policeman stopped all the traffic on the Via Veneto so I could cross the street."

"Big deal," I said. "It so happens that traffic policemen are supposed to stop traffic so people can cross the street. That's their job."

Other Editors Say Right Direction

(The Wilson Times)
One of the first tests of the business arrangement under which the U.S. Post Office is to operate is that the Congress is not to pay the bills but the service must operate on its own, rather than in the red depending on congressional appropriations.

The example we refer to is the increase in junk mail rates next month by one penny more a piece, instead of one-fifth of a cent per year to 1976 as planned. As Congress did not come across with funds to make the gradual increase possible, the increase had to be put into effect all at once in order for the post office to meet expenses. This gives this department of government, which has been most favored, a taste of what other businesses have to contend with daily. And the public is not sorry, for all mail should carry its weight.

The users of the first class stamp had an increase from 6 cents to 8 cents, more than enough to pay the expense of mailing the letter. And there have been no loud complaints. The public has become accustomed to paying its share of the expense.

The users of junk mail will see the cost go up 20 per cent from 4 to 5 cents per piece of junk mail on September 15. This is not going to disturb the ones who have their boxes filled with the junk mail. And if the users of the junk mail decide to send it by some other route, this will not disturb the public, if they can get rid of this type of mail. This mail, even at an additional cent per piece, does not carry its own weight, only 80 per cent of the cost to handle the third class mail.

A slowdown in the third class mail would be a favor to the post office. This would lighten the work load. Junk mail users have a most effective lobby in Washington. In fact, it has been so successful it has been hard to explain or justify.

Now the present postal service, with its organization geared toward self-efficiency, and independent from the Congress where the deficits have been handled, must find its own funds. So the increase goes into effect all at once. And if it stops the flow of junk mail into the post office boxes of the nation, there will be only delight. In fact, it will be one of the first real benefits from the new organization.

The 10 Per Cent Economy Cut

By ELMER ROESSNER

Several recessions ago, I had an office adjoining the mailing room of a large national corporation. One day, Willie, the head of the mailing room, got a memo announcing that each department must cut expenditures by 10 per cent.

I was passing by when Willie hit the phone and called the president, who had signed the ukase.

"What am I going to do, Thorndike?" he demanded. "Ninety per cent of my expenditures are for postage. What am I to do, send the packages out without stamps?"

The voice over the phone came back so clearly that I heard every word: "Willie, you have the order. You must find a way to carry it out."

I was fascinated by the situation and watched to see what would happen. Willie fired a typist, one Tessie, who was barely worth the few dollars a week she was paid. Then he called Thorndike and said, "I have cut expenses 10 per cent and am sending you a memo in writing to that effect."

"Very good!" said Thorndike. "And thank you, Willie."

Going On Today
I recalled this as I read the lead article in the American Management Association's magazine. Management Review, by Earl G. Gomersall, director of information systems for Motorola.

I conclude that much of the same thing is now going on. Companies, hit by reduced sales, are sending memos to all managers, demanding certain percentage of reduced spending in each department.

Gomersall checks more than 30 companies about actions taken to reduce expenses at the present time. Eight out of 10 chose the identical figure Thorndike had demanded: 10 per cent. Because, Gomersall concluded, "a request to cut expenses 4 or 5 per cent appears niggling, and because things may get worse before they get better, a deeper cut than is initially indicated is usually decided on as prudent."

Self-Serving Strategies

Among strategies employed at present, he reports, are the "give-up-futures" strategy. This involves the preparation of an ever-increasing expense budget that can rebound to the credit of the department manager who, instead of cutting back current spending, simply does not make the budgeted increases.

Then there's the "sink your buddy" strategy, which involves cutting back outside services and doing them within the department, which may seem to save money.

Teens Become Human

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the greatest joys of parenthood is the feeling you get when you suspect your teen-age child is becoming a human being again.

It almost makes you feel that you are still a human being, too.

I have two basic theories about life. One is that you begin to lose authority over a child the moment it no longer needs you to sling it over your shoulder and burp it. The other theory is that Kindergarten is the apex adventure for both little men and little women, and that all other excitements and adjustments of living thereafter trend downhill.

Between kindergarten and the teen years there is a lull where the parents enjoy the false sense of security while the child plots its breakout.

I remember asking my daughter Tracy Ann at her age of 12 what her ambition was. This exchange then ensued:

"To be a teen-ager!"

"Why do you want to be a teen-ager?"

"Because nobody can tell a teen-ager what to do!"

I thought this amusing at the time. I felt she was wrong. I felt any parent could always tell a teen-ager what to do. What I found out, however, as most parents of my acquaintance say was their experience, is that you have total freedom to tell a teen-ager what to do. The only difficulty is in getting the teen-ager to do it.

The dialogue between Tracy Ann and me would go like this: "I loved my father and mother and I did everything they told me to. So why don't you do what I tell you to?"

"I love you and Mommy, too. But when did you do what your Mommy and Daddy told you to do?"

"As soon as I could." "Like what?" "Like cleaning up a room. Yours would give a pigsty a bad name."

Vietnam Revisited: Sounds Of Withdrawal Prevail

EDITOR'S NOTE: A year ago, Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett left Vietnam after eight years of covering the war, during which he won a Pulitzer Prize for his reportage. He recently returned for three weeks. Here is his appraisal of how Vietnam looks to him one year later.

By PETER ARNETT
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — America is getting out.

Both militarily and, in a sense, psychologically, most Americans here feel their war is ending.

That is the inescapable impression gathered in a three-week return visit by this correspondent after a one-year absence.

The sights and sounds of withdrawal are everywhere. You see it in Qui Nhon, again a fishing village and no longer the hectic, noisy supply center for the thousands of GIs who fought the bloody battles at Ia Drang and Dak To. The airfield is closed. The few Americans are civilians.

You see it flying over Vietnam. The broad Vietnamese highlands remain studded by the circular patterns of firebases and encampments that were torn in war's haste from the jungles by men and bulldozers. But a close look reveals they are abandoned.

You hear the sounds of withdrawal in the conversations of the middle and upper level Americans.

When I left Vietnam a year ago there were many American officials and military men who still identified Saigon's goals with those of the United States, a "we will prevail together"

Toll-Free Calls Coming

August 26, at 12:01 a.m. will mark another milestone in telephone progress for Greenville and Bethel. Beginning on that date, subscribers in Greenville and Bethel will be able to call from one city to the other without paying long distance charges.

"The need for the new service directly reflects the overall growth of these communities," said Don A. Collier, Carolina Telephone manager here.

He pointed out that inauguration of the new and improved service will allow unlimited calls and that residents of the communities will be able to dial more telephones without paying long distance charges.

Collier also pointed out to dial a Bethel number, one simply dials the desired seven digit number listed in the new telephone directory. The new directory will be delivered to each subscriber prior to August 28th, and the directory should be consulted for the correct number before placing calls.

philosophy. One hears much less of that now, in three weeks of traveling around Vietnam and looking up old acquaintances many now in high positions.

The Americans who have directed the U.S. effort in Vietnam, spending years working in the provinces in dusty, scummy towns, or using their expertise to move mountains in Saigon, seem assured that President Nixon means what he says about pulling out. Even men known as hawks seem to accept the fact that the situation has changed.

"Always there was tomorrow," commented one young American, fluent in Vietnamese and an expert on the country, as we talked during dinner. "There was always the hope that years of advice and coaxing would finally surface adequate leadership in the Vietnamese army, when the Saigon government would cleanse itself of obvious corruption and petty self-interest and begin to respond to the needs of the countryside, when the enemy would pack up and go home," he said.

There is no tomorrow for the Americans now in Vietnam. "Any reforms and programs not realized today will unlikely be implemented when we leave," the young American said.

High on the list of remaining problems is military leadership.

"We know all the secrets of counter-insurgency," one experienced American commented. "We have perfected techniques of pacification and indoctrination that are superb. As I said we have all the answers, except the answer to one question: How the hell do you get leaders?"

In the view of many seasoned Americans here, the leadership problem goes right up to President Nguyen Van Thieu, who has disenchanted them by sponsorship of an election law that had the effect of sharply limiting opposition candidacies in the forthcoming presidential election. One American worker said: "The only reason we stay on now is paternalism. We have got to let go now for better or for worse. We cannot hold on to the Vietnamese forever." They entertained no illusions about the troubled times that possibly lie ahead for the South Vietnamese.

One-quarter of a million American troops are still in Vietnam, but they are in low profile, no longer on the offensive. They have pulled back from the demilitarized zone, from the Cambodian border. They are at the base camps waiting to go home.

The South Vietnamese army is trying to fill in the huge gaps left by the American divisions. They have taken over the war. American casualties have dropped well below a hundred a week. The South Vietnamese casualties have held near a thousand killed and wounded each week.

There are military signs that some call heartening. The Mekong Delta where the war first began is generally subdued, with enemy strength down one-third to 31,000 armed men in the past 15 months. Only half the monthly enemy losses of 2,000 men are being replaced. The III Corps region around Saigon is similarly quiet.

But in the central highlands and the I Corps region that borders North Vietnam, the Communists forces are as strong in those areas as they were in the toughest days of the war. And while obviously war-weary and bloodied they still exhibit strong leadership, spirit and determination. The North Vietnamese have retained the initiative in these regions while the South Vietnamese have gotten progressively weaker with the departure of U.S. Marines and Army infantry divisions. A suggestion that two new Vietnamese infantry divisions be formed for those regions was turned down in Saigon.

"So what can the strategy be for Saigon when the Communists attack, as expected, in spring next year to show America and the Chinese they are a force worth reckoning with?" asked one American of long military experience.

"Does Saigon send troops from the Delta to protect the north? If they do, they will have real trouble in their back yards; already 80 outposts have been overrun this year in an upsurge of guerrillas activity."

Unsettling patterns of behavior are apparent within the Vietnamese army. An American official said there are increasing instances of banditry by soldiers who hold up buses and stores. "This is disquieting like the deterioration of the National Chinese armies in the late 1940s," he said.

The pacification program continues with massive American backing. Nearly 100 per cent of the population is statistically under government control, but American analysts now say that even in a fully pacified area, the Vietcong can still recruit some 10 per cent of the adult population, giving them a theoretic recruiting base of 600,000 adult Vietnamese.

In the boiling cauldron that is Saigon in August, I got the impression that the Vietnamese population had not yet come to terms with the American withdrawal. Enough GI money was still flowing to oil the wheels of commerce. The noises of war had long since retreated into Cambodia.

Americans I talked with agreed that the Vietnamese people in the cities who have committed themselves to the Saigon side, have not seriously considered the full implications of America's departure.

"They just can't believe that after all these years, after all the sacrifice, we would just get up and go, that our prop will be pulled away," one said.

Women Plan Claims Many Executive Personnel Are Obsolete

Publish Area Survey Data

"A trifling place on the Tar River," George Washington called Greenville as he passed through what is now known as "the focal point of progress in Eastern North Carolina."

Such are some of the introductory comments of a report on Pitt County and Greenville compiled and written by members of the Greenville Pitt County League of Women Voters.

The report, completed after a year of study, research, interviews, and verification contains information on the entire structure of the county and city, including services, finances, governmental offices, utilities, housing and education.

Compiled by a committee of over three dozen League members whose initial chairman was Mrs. Terence McNally with Mrs. W. B. Bond as general chairman, the report has been edited by Mrs. John Casey. Through the cooperation of city and county officials each item of information was double-checked for accuracy. Special aid was extended by Greenville city officials.

As a public service the League is planning to print this report in booklet form, charging a nominal fee to make the informative survey available to all citizens. Funds are now being collected for this purpose. As soon as the fund drive is completed the booklet will be put into print to be used by school children, business organizations, and other interested citizens and groups.

ATLANTA — A university official yesterday reported increasing concern about "depreciation" and "obsolescence" of people in the Federal government, industry and academia, especially those jobholders occupying executive suites.

In effect, he said, a great many government officials, industrial executives and university professors fail to keep up with the times. They fall out of step with rapid technological advances and their managerial concepts and practices have become outdated.

John A. Lang Jr., himself a veteran career official of 35 years in Federal service, told the annual meeting of the Academy of Management that

Says Wage-Price Freeze 'Unfair'

GREENSBORO (AP) — Wilbur Hobby, North Carolina AFL-CIO president, has called President Nixon's wage-price freeze "unfair to labor." He has asked the President to establish a wage review board.

Hobby told a news conference Tuesday the administration's latest economic proposals are unfair because they exclude profits, dividends and interest rates from the freeze.

He said, "The state AFL-CIO does not intend to sit idly by while workers are made the scapegoat for the economic mess created by the Nixon administration's ill-conceived game plan."

problems of executive management have become so chaotic that only a new system would be able to handle a massive restructuring that is needed.

Lang, now Vice President for External Affairs, East Carolina University, was until recently administrative assistant to the Secretary of the Air Force, a position he held for seven years.

He proposed a "total systems" approach in the Federal Civil Service designed to permit competent personnel to progress in their careers as rapidly as their talents and energies allow. He also said the ability and experience of older executives should be recognized but not to the extent that it would block effect operations and greater efficiency.

"Industry and government have long been concerned with the concept of depreciation and obsolescence of equipment and facilities and other capital investments," he said. The subject of applying this concept to the "executive suite" is of increasing concern, he said.

In a more detailed paper, Lang reviewed "the dilemma" of depreciation and obsolescence of civil servants in Federal executive suites, including "the necessity for appreciation and replenishment of an 'aging' (and in many cases a non-responsive executive work force..."

Charge Driver In 3-Car Accident

James A. Chantrill, 29, of Kingston, R. I. was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 5:15 p.m. mishap here yesterday on 10th Street, 300 feet West of the College Hill Drive intersection.

Police identified the drivers of the other two vehicles involved in the chain-reaction rear-end mishap as Mark Joseph McGrath, 27, of Route 1, Winterville and Willard Dewey Horton Jr., 26, of Louisburg.

Damage was set by police at $175 to the McGrath car, $450 to the Horton vehicle and $350 to the Chantrill car.

No injuries were reported.

Deny Plea For Vote Recount

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The Davidson County Board of Elections has denied a request for a recount in the election in which establishment of liquor stores in Lexington won by one vote last week.

The board said after a hearing Tuesday that the dyes had not presented sufficient evidence. Attorneys for the dyes said they would appeal to the State Board of Elections.

By such feminine logic she evaded command. Her mother Frances became of less help because after 11 days short of 31 years of marriage, when Tracy was only half past 15, she died of cancer.

There were many months of family chaos when I bought the family groceries, fed the cat, washed the dishes I didn't break, and Tracy evaded her grief by submerging her life in the lives of her schoolmates. I suppose that unconsciously she felt home had betrayed her, and that her mother's death showed an adolescent can't trust adults because they leave you insecure without fair warning.

But now she has shaken herself free from the doldrums of loss. She has come home to home again, a little mother as well as daughter of it. She feeds Lady Dottie, the cat, does the dishes now and then, cooks for her boy friend often and sometimes for me.

She wanted a car to go to college and I told her, "You can have it if you earn it." She immediately wangled a job in a mailroom and is making a bigger dollar than I did at twice her age. Her boss said she is a good and steady worker. She hasn't missed a day.

Tracy Ann is very loving and proud now, full of big plans for her future. Now she takes me into her confidence.

"I may not be a teacher or a nurse," she said. "I may be either an actress or a veterinarian."

Anything you want to be, honey. The world is yours.

As I said at the start, there is no greater rescue from the mionship of parenthood than to see your teen-ager begin to be a human being. Perhaps there'll be no light at the end of the tunnel, and posterity is worthwhile after all, as we hope it was to our own fathers and mothers.

"When the light is green?" she asked. "Then, as I crossed, he tipped his hat and all the cars were blowing their horns. It's never happened to me in any other city."

"Of course, it hasn't. In most cities traffic cops are trying to save people's lives," I said. "So he tipped his hat. He was just looking for an opportunity to take it off. Those helmets can get very hot, you know."

"Don't be so smart," she said. "If you want further proof that Italian men really care, this morning I ordered a coffee at Doney's and the waiter couldn't have been nicer."

"So what? Some waiters are nice. What does that prove?"

"Nothing, except he picked up the check."

She was getting impossible, and the next afternoon I was afraid to come back to the room.

The smile was waiting for me.

"I know," I said. "You went to Bulgari's and the salesman gave you a diamond necklace as a free souvenir from Rome."

"Nothing that dramatic," she said. "But a taxi driver asked me to go dancing with him tonight."

"Wait a minute! You don't speak Italian. How do you know he asked you to go dancing tonight?"

"He held up his hands as if he was holding somebody in them, and he mumbled a waltz."

"What's so great about that?"

"The cab was moving while he did it."

There was nothing I could say to that, so I tried to walk out of the room.

"I think you're absolutely terrible," she said. "Everyone has been so nice, and all you want to do is to throw cold water on me. You American men just don't know how to appreciate a woman."

"Is that so?" I said. "Well, it so happens I have a cousin who went up to a girl on Fifth Avenue in New York and told her she had the most beautiful figure he had ever seen, and he's now doing 20 years in Sing Sing. Ever since then I've kept my thoughts to myself."

lifeblood for the future, and there will be no real change in budgeting major resources in the hope of attracting them.

Adding to the strain is the stark uncertainty of the war-peace issue. The war was a catalyst of monolithic unity. Real peace, still so ephemeral, would make the start of a new era, permitting full attention to domestic growth and the internal convulsions symbolized by the Panthers.

But in the present no-war, no-peace twilight, domestic turmoil may get worse before it gets better.

Failure by West to get off to the killing spade lead against South's heart slam obliged East to part with the bulk of his jewels in order to avoid a fatal end play on the deal.

North was a shade shy of the requirements for a demand bid [he had 23 points counting high cards and distribution and if his long suit were a major, we would favor the more aggressive course] and he opened modestly with one club. East made a takeout double and South chose the somewhat unorthodox response of one heart. A response directly over a takeout double usually shows a five card suit, but South wanted to get in a lead director in the event that West became the declarer.

North reasoned that if his partner held five reasonably good hearts—say, K-J-x-x or better—there should be a reasonable play for a slam. His club suit might be expected to provide the bulk of the tricks and the loss on the deal confined to one spade trick. He accordingly leaped directly to six hearts.

West chose to open a trump which gave South a chance. The first trick was won with the jack of hearts and declarer cashed the king next. When West showed out it ended prospects for discarding his diamonds on North's long suit. He realized from East's takeout double that the latter was marked with the king of diamonds. The only chance left then, was to try for an end play against East.

A club was led to the queen and a small club returned and trumped with the queen of hearts. A small heart put dummy in to draw the last two trumps. The ace and king of clubs drew West's remaining cards in that suit and North's long cards were cashed next. East was obliged to make four discards.

East's first play was the ten of diamonds, followed by the queen and king of spades. As the last club came forth from dummy, East realized that he could not afford to give up the six of spades, for if he blanked down to the ace, declarer could get out with the five of spades and East would be obliged to present North with the last two tricks in diamonds.

East discarded the ace of spades and when the five was led from dummy, he was able to follow with the six. Declarer's nine was covered by West's jack and the latter exited with a diamond. South finessed the queen and East scored the setting trick with the king.

Find Marine Training Jet

HOBOKEN, N.C. (AP) — Wreckage of a Marine jet training plane that had been missing eight days was discovered in Pamlico Sound Tuesday by the fishing boat Bonnie B.

Marine authorities said that bodies of the two crew members of the plane, Major William Wilson of Staten Island, N.Y., and Major James Morgan of Baltimore, Md., had not been located.

An intensive search was launched after the plane failed to return Aug. 10 from a routine training mission.

Early Tuesday, the Bonnie B found portions of the plane's tail assembly and flight control units.

A Marine accident investigation team that flew to the scene in helicopters identified the wreckage as that of the missing plane.

Marine authorities said Coast Guard and Marine units are seeking to salvage additional portions of the wreckage so that the accident investigation team can determine the cause of the crash.

Winterville Adding New Water Wagon

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Fire Department hopes to put a new water wagon into use the last part of this week. The truck, a 1965 Ford with a two ton chassis, was formerly owned and used by the state. It was paid for by the Rural Association.

This addition to the Winterville Fire Department's equipment allows it the use of three pumpers and three water wagons. One of each will be sold at the town's convenience. A 1950 Chevrolet pumper and a 1956 Chevrolet water wagon will no longer be needed.

The water wagon that will be sold holds 500 gallons of water, and the one that will be kept holds 900 gallons. Fire Chief Paul Hunsucker noted that both tanks are often needed to combat a fire. The new tank holds 1400 gallons — the amount of combined capacities of the other two. Hunsucker noted, "We're just updating our equipment. It will be more convenient for us; we can do the job better."

The tank will go into use when the wheels and grill are painted, identifying marks are placed on the body of the truck, and other minor mechanical adjustments are made. The Winterville Fire Department has deserted the traditional red fire trucks. The majority of the vehicles in use, including the new tank, is white with blue grill and wheels.

The Fire Department, which serves the Winterville township, has answered 46 calls since January.

Must Pay Reports Morgan In Good Shape

RALEIGH (AP) — Despite the price freeze, nonresident students at state-supported universities in North Carolina will have to pay sharply increased tuition rates decreed by the General Assembly.

This became apparent Tuesday when the Treasury Department announced that the 90-day freeze on wages and prices would not affect tuition increases scheduled to become effective with terms beginning in September.

Earlier state budget officials said the status of the tuition hike was not clear.

The General Assembly ordered an increase of $450 this fall and again next year for out-of-state students at units of the Consolidated University of North Carolina. That would make the tuition for these students $1,350 this year and $1,800 next year. Similar increases were decreed for other state-supported universities.

RALEIGH (AP) — A physician says a checkup he gave Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan showed that the attorney general is in good shape physically.

Morgan, considered a likely candidate for governor, checked out of the Good Hope Hospital in Erwin Tuesday after a two-day annual physical checkup.

Dr. Henderson D. Mabe said Morgan is in excellent condition.

When asked if the checkup was preparatory to a gubernatorial campaign, Carroll Leggett, a special assistant to Morgan, said, "Well, that's open to speculation."

First UNC Student To Enroll

By H.G. JONES, Director N.C. Department of Archives and History
 For The Associated Press RALEIGH (AP) — Hinton James, who was born Sept. 10, 1776, and died 124 years ago this Sunday, was the first student to enroll at the University of North Carolina.

He was the son of John and Alice James of New Hanover County, who lived on a tract of land that had been set aside by the Lords Proprietors for Welsh settlers. The land has since become a part of Pender County.

The opening of the university was quite unlike today, when thousands of highly mobile young people suddenly appear each September from their homes all over the world.

As a matter of fact, not even Hinton James was there for the official opening or for several weeks after.

R. D. W. Connor, in his history of the University of North Carolina, says the winter of 1795, when the university opened, was "severe and the roads were impassable."

Gov. Richard Dobbs Spaight, several legislators and other state officials braved the discomfort of twenty-eight miles of red mud and jagged rocks between Chapel Hill and Raleigh, however, for the event Jan. 15.

It is recorded that the morning of the opening day dawned with a cold, drizzling rain. Connor's description of the scene continues, "As the sighing of the watery wind whistled through the leafless branches of tall oaks and hickories and the Davie Poplar then in vigorous youth, all that met the eyes of the distinguished visitors were a two-storied brick building, the unpainted wooden house of the Presiding Professor, the avenue between them filled with stumps of recently felled trees, a pile of red clay dug out for the foundation of the chapel ... and not one student."

It was not until nearly a month later, Feb. 12, that "the precursor of a long line of seekers after knowledge," as Hinton James has been called, arrived.

According to one account, he walked most of the way from Wilmington. Another says he rode a horse but sold it when he neared Chapel Hill and walked the last few miles.

In any event, such a trip in 1795 was not a casual undertaking.

James was not only the first student to enroll at the university, he also constituted the entire student body for two weeks.

By the end of the second term it is said that about 100 students had enrolled, and although the young institution was accused of being "aristocratic," tuition fees were low and living conditions almost primitive.

Very few newspapers or letters made their way to Chapel Hill, and travel remained very difficult.

The boys rented feather beds for $24 per year or else slept on boards. Meals were available for a year for $40. Fortunately for those historians who prefer stories with happy endings, James was an outstanding student and was one of seven young men in the university's first graduating class July 4, 1798.

He being a Civil Engineer "of usefulness in his section of the state" and was instrumental in making several of the state's rivers more navigable.

His work, particularly on the Cape Fear below Wilmington, was still evident long after his death.

He was a colleague of William Watts Jones, "a lawyer of great reputation in the old days," and beginning in 1807 he served three consecutive terms in the General Assembly.

James, having earned "a high rank in the esteem of his fellowmen," died on Aug. 22, 1847, and is buried in the old churchyard of Hopewell Presbyterian Church about five miles north of Burgaw.

A highway historical marker in his honor was erected near that spot in Pender County on Nov. 7, 1939.

SERBIA AND CROATIA are two of the six republics which make up the federation of Yugoslavia. Neither

Croatians nor Serbs trust each other. (UPI Telephoto Map)

Croatian Unrest Could Ruin Yugoslavia Unity

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The spirit of Stepan Radic is alive and well in Croatia these days. And this is not necessarily a good omen for the future of Yugoslavia.

For in the complex mix of Nationalist passions that burn in Yugoslavia, Radic's ideal—Croatia for the Croats—could be twisted yet again to unhinge the unity of this singular state. Yugoslavia is a federation of six republics of which Serbia (Belgrade) and Croatia (Zagreb) are dominant. The two have different histories and religions and, over the centuries and through the 53 years of Yugoslavia's history as a nation, their relations have ranged between mistrustful alliance and outright hatred.

Only this spring, hatred was in the saddle. Croatian leaders hinted that Serbia was "plotting" against Croatia. The Serbs whispered that the Croatian Communists were in league with the Ustachi, a band of exiled Croat separatists who fought for the Nazis in World War II. It was Yugoslavia's worst political crisis in years.

President Tito calmed the two sides down and, for the moment, mistrustful alliance reigns. A series of 21 constitutional amendments have completed a process of gradual decentralization of Yugoslavia, to the point where Croatia—and the other republics—have virtual freedom to run their own affairs.

"For the first time," a Zagreb professor said, "we have what Radic wanted."

Stepan Radic was a Croat politician of the 1920's who, while theoretically in favor of a unified Yugoslavia, was first and foremost a Croat Nationalist and insisted on Croatia's right to run itself. He opposed the Belgrade-dominated government of his day and many historians feel that his political maneuvering destroyed Yugoslavia's pre-war experiment with parliamentary democracy.

When a Serbian Nationalist assassinated him in Parliament in 1928, Radic became a martyr to Croatia, which still reveres him.

For 20 years after the founding of Communist Yugoslavia in 1945, the secret police were under control of Aleksander Rankovic, a Serb. Croatians here say the police ran Croatia ruthlessly and forbade almost all mention of Radic.

When Rankovic fell in 1966, Yugoslavia ceased to be a police state. Homage to Radic came into the open and, today, this lovely city on the southern rim of the Alps teems with reminders of him.

Scholars at Zagreb University—its own Croat center for the past century—study Radic's life and speeches. Zagreb newspapers sing his praise. Books devoted to his life and carrying his round, mustached face are in every bookshop window. A leading plaza carries his name.

"Croat nationalism is terribly romantic, and that's the danger," a diplomat observed. A Croat scholar put it more bluntly:

"Since the war we have been robbed by Belgrade. We are Yugoslavia's richest republic. We're the only republic that has a favorable trade balance. And for years, we've been able to keep only 7 per cent of the dollars we earn. The rest goes to Belgrade.

"Why should we support the rest of Yugoslavia? Our place is in Central Europe, not Eastern Europe, and we've been held back. Zagreb's population has tripled since the war, to 600,000, and we haven't had the money to build one new hospital. You can wait 10 years for a new apartment.

"It's a lie that we want to be separate. But now we have a chance to run our own affairs and we've never been so full of hope.

"I'm a Croat first, a Yugoslav after. I hope Yugoslavia survives, but my loyalties are to Croatia."

The theme of "Robbery By Belgrade" rings oddly here, because Zagreb is one of Eastern Europe's most prosperous cities, with new buildings, bustling industry, broad avenues and thousands of Western cars.

But Croats say this misses the point.

"We don't want to be more prosperous than the rest of Eastern Europe," an economist said. "We're not in Eastern Europe. We want to be as prosperous as Western Europe."

In Belgrade, Serbs scoff at this and say that Croatia, as a rich republic, has a duty to help support Yugoslavia's poorer areas.

Obviously, the hard feelings still exist. But Serbs, Croats and Western diplomats say the odds are that Yugoslavia will stick together. The reasons they give are a common fear of Russia, skillful national and local leadership and a real national unity forged in World War II.

"It's clear to all of us that we can be independent only if we stay together," a Croat politician said. "I hope—I think—we can do it."

Farm Gadget Show Slated

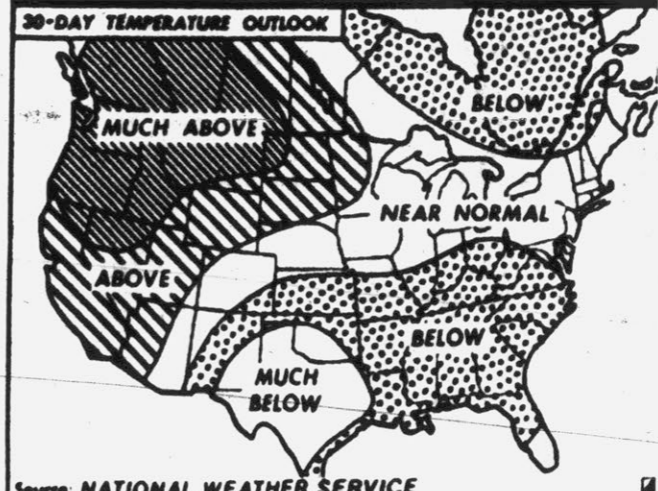

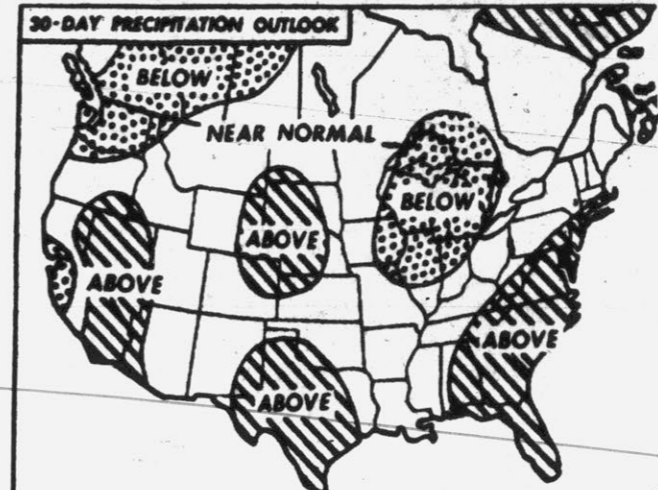

The first annual Farm Gadget Show will be held at North Carolina State Fair during the October 15-23 event.

Sponsored by WPTF-Radio of Raleigh, the Farm Gadget Show is a contest for amateur farm inventors. Persons actually operating a farm, or a homemaker, an employee on a farm, or a member of a farm-oriented youth organization, may enter as many gadgets as they like. No entry fee will be charged.

A gadget, according to the show's promoters, is any home-made device designed to perform or increase the efficiency of performing some task directly related to farming or farm life.

It should show originality and should help "fill a need" in the area in which it is designed to be used. It may be patented, or may have patent applied for, but should not be in commercial production in order to be eligible for entry.

Persons interested in entering the Farm Gadget Show may get further details by contacting the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service.

Bachelors In Russia Get A Scolding

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Soviet study group has found the bachelor to be a social villain who ought to be reprimanded, reformed, spanked, saved and, above all, married.

The Literary Gazette, an official pulpit for such doctrine, assigned a battery of journalists and scientists to examine bachelorhood in connection with the ceaseless Soviet campaigns to whip up public concern over the declining national birthrate.

Their three-part series portrayed the unmarried adult male as a chauvinist slicker who takes up floorspace that ought to be shared with a wife and children and who eats up salary enough for a family.

The unmarried female wasn't spared, either, but was treated more gently and depicted as a proud though lonely victim of modern Soviet circumstances—emancipated, employed, economically independent and hence finicky.

"She remains alone, rejecting one suitor after another and saying, 'either Romeo or nobody,'" said the Gazette. The writer of that section, a woman, added: "I really admire such women."

Article Amuses

The series, which appeared to stir up amused interest among Muscovites, showed no charity for the men.

"One hundred years ago it was a great shame to be a bachelor," said writer Zory Shokhin, who was sorry times had changed.

"Now, any married man would be envious of the bachelor's carefully pressed trousers and synthetic jacket. Even his look has become confident, smug, scornful," Shokhin said.

"Married people probably have had many occasions to feel his mocking glance, which says to them: 'You have only yourselves to blame, folks.'"

Figures presented by demographer Viktor Perevedentsev in the series indicated that in 1967, the last year for which statistics were available, the average Soviet man avoided the altar until age 29 and the average woman lacked the gold band until 26.5.

Bachelors Scolded

Why? Shokhin rejected "economic reasons, which play a role only in bourgeois societies" and concluded:

"The bachelor just thinks marriage is a bore, although necessary for continuing the species. 'Let me enjoy myself as long as I can,' he says, and he is doing it up to the age of 35 or 40."

As for what to do about the bachelor problem, the Gazette could offer only samples of the motherly scolding and henpeckery bachelors have been shrugging off for years.

"Among the majority of bachelors, health standards become violated because they do not eat regularly and do not observe regular schedules and are inclined to all sorts of excesses," Shokhin said.

He also asserted that the contemporary birth rate of 106 boys to 100 girls will mean that "10 years from now, men who reach 20 without being married will be out of luck."

Actor Dies In Hospital

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Horace McMahon, an actor known for his portrayal of gangsters and policemen on stage, screen, television and radio, died Tuesday night in Norwalk Hospital. He was 64.

A native of South Norwalk, McMahon interrupted his law studies at Fordham University just before graduation to take a role as a gangster in the play "Broadway."

He went on to appear in more than 40 Broadway productions, including "Sailor Beware," "Detective Story," and "Say, Darling."

Among the more than 125 motion pictures in which he appeared were "The Detective Story," "Exclusive," and "The Detective."

On television, McMahon appeared in the "Naked City" series, and during his earlier career on radio he was heard in one of radio's most popular serials, "Big town."

He is survived by his widow, the former actress Louise Campbell, and their three children.

Storm Moves To East

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Flash flood watches were canceled today for North Carolina as a tropical depression headed toward the coastal border of North Carolina and Virginia.

At 6 a.m. the center was near Fayetteville in southeastern North Carolina after marching through southeastern Georgia and central South Carolina.

The storm was moving east-northeast about 13 miles per hour and the National Weather Service said it might intensify during the day.

Small craft warnings were in effect from south of Ocean City, Md., to Virginia Beach, Va., and over southern Chesapeake Bay.

Owners of small craft were advised to remain in port in North Carolina as the depression approaches the coast this evening. A storm usually picks up intensity over water.

New Bern, N.C., had a little more than two inches of rain in a thunderstorm Tuesday night.

A tornado was sighted late Tuesday afternoon three miles northwest of Wilmington, N.C. But it was seen in a wooded area and caused no damage.

The weather service said 2.42 inches of rain fell at Wilmington in the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m.

Sullivan's Island near Charleston, S.C., had 10 inches of rain in the 24 hours ended at 8 a.m. Tuesday, and boys rowed boats in the streets. Other sections of South Carolina had three to five inches of rain.

None Survived
PEGNITZ, Germany (AP) — A U.S. Army transport helicopter with 38 men aboard exploded in the air today near the Grafenwoehr training area and there were no known survivors, the Army reported.

Witnesses said the helicopter broke into two after the explosion and the fiery wreckage fell to earth at the edge of a woods between this Bavarian city and the Nuernberg-Berlin autobahn.

A spokesman at Grafenwoehr, 12 miles east of the crash site, said the CH47 Chinook helicopter was on a training flight from Regensburg to Grafenwoehr.

A spokesman for the U.S. Army's European Command in Heidelberg said 25 bodies had been recovered from the charred wreckage.

The helicopter carried a crew of five and 33 members of the 56th Artillery Brigade, the spokesman said.

School Opening Dates Set Back

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The opening of Charlotte and Mecklenburg County schools has been moved back from Aug. 30 to Sept. 7.

This is to give school officials a chance to prepare the paper work for high school seniors, who are being assigned to the school they attended last year instead of going to other schools under a new desegregation plan.

The school board agreed Tuesday night on the seniors modification of the desegregation plan. Board attorney William J. Waggoner said he felt sure federal Dist. Judge James B. McMillan would accept the modification because all the high schools would retain their racial balances.

The opening of schools was put back a week because state law forbids the opening of elementary and junior high schools without the high schools.

Gunman Dies In Shootout

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops killed a terrorist gunman in a dawn shootout across Londonderry barricades today as Roman Catholic charges of army brutality mounted.

Snipers believed to be members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army fired at the soldiers as they began tearing down barricades closing off the city's Catholic Bogside district.

The unidentified man was the 27th person to die since violence erupted in the British province 10 days ago.

The IRA is fighting to unite the six Protestant-dominated counties of the north with the Catholic Irish Republic to the south.

An Irish organization in London accused the British army of "turning Belfast into another My Lai." Dermont Kelly, chairman of the London branch of the Northern Ireland Civil Rights Association, said a march will be held next month from Glasgow to London to protest army brutality.

Senators Snap Oakland's Long Road Victory Streak In 8-1 Win

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The patriotic Oakland A's met with President Richard M. Nixon Tuesday afternoon and a few hours later adopted a freeze on run-making that gave the cold shoulder to their shot at a 59-year-old American League record.

The A's, who had won 12 straight road games, four short of the AL mark set by Washington in 1912, managed just one run against rookie Bill Gogolewski, who pitched the Senators to an 8-1 victory over the West Division's runaway leaders Tuesday night.

So Oakland had to be content with a mere half-game pickup on second place Kansas City which dropped a doubleheader at New York, 2-0 and 8-5.

Elsewhere in the AL Tuesday, California trimmed Boston 4-3, Chicago swept a doubleheader with Detroit, winning the opener 6-5 and taking the nightcap 4-1, Cleveland nipped Minnesota 3-2, and Baltimore edged Milwaukee 3-2.

In the National League, Houston nipped Pittsburgh 6-5, Atlanta took Chicago 5-4, Cincinnati topped St. Louis 5-3, Montreal battered San Diego 11-0, Los Angeles blanked New York 4-0 and San Francisco beat Philadelphia 5-1.

The A's spent a friendly afternoon talking baseball with the president and a not so pleasant evening playing it against the Senators. Don Mincher drove in four Washington runs with a homer and a single and Frank Howard cracked his 21st homer of the season, leading the romp over Oakland.

Gogolewski scattered eight hits and contributed three hits for Washington as the Senators shelled Blue Moon Odom. It was Oakland's first loss to Washington since Opening Day, April 5, when the Senators beat the Vida Blue. That was, of course, the Presidential Opener.

Despite their problems with the Senators, the A's gained ground as the Yankees whipped Kansas City twice.

Left-hander Fritz Peterson fired a five-hitter in the first game, winning his 13th in 20 decisions with singles by Danny Cater and Thurman Munson driving in New York's runs.

In the second game, the Yankees exploded for five runs in the seventh inning on homers by Felipe Alou and Bobby Murcer to erase a 4-1 Royals' lead. Alou tagged a two-run homer pinch hitting for winning pitcher Mike Kekich and then after Gene Michael singled and Munson walked, Murcer unloaded his three-run shot to give New York the lead.

Alou's hit was his seventh in 13 pinch hitting appearances this season. He has driven in seven runs as a pinch batter.

Vada Pinson drilled two long drives—one staying in the ballpark and the other going out. Both provided Cleveland with runs as the Indians shaded Minnesota.

Pinson sent Tony Oliva to the fence for his sacrifice fly in the third inning and then tagged one over the wall to snap a tie in the eighth.

Mike Paul earned the victory, outduelling Bert Blyleven with both hurlers going the route.

Jim Spencer drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double as California scored four times in the first inning against Boston. Then Andy Messersmith survived homers by Rico Petrocelli and Duane Josephson to pitch the Angels past the Red Sox.

His big double gave Spencer seven RBIs in two games against Boston.

Ellie Hendricks cracked a leadoff homer in the ninth inning, giving the Orioles their victory over Milwaukee.

The Brewers led 2-0 into the eighth but Paul Blair beat out a two-out bunt for a single and then Boog Powell tied the game with a 425-foot homer—his 17th of the year.

Steve Huntz ripped two homers including a three-run shot in the bottom of the eighth that gave Chicago its first game victory over Detroit. The homers were the first this season for Huntz.

Then Huntz doubled and scored what turned out to be the Sox winning run in the nightcap. Walt Williams and Mike Andrews homered for the Sox in the second game.

Last Year's Injuries May Help This Year's Injured Jet Team

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Strange as it may seem, the New York Jets may be a better team this year without quarterback Joe Namath than they were last year with him.

The reasons are many and varied, including:

- The injury to Namath last year that enabled third-year passer Al Woodall to develop as the back-up quarterback.
- The injury to receiver Don Maynard last year that enabled Rich Caster to develop.
- The apparent successful comeback of running back Matt Snell from an achilles injury.
- Injuries last year that led to the development of two potential defensive starters—and Mark Lomas and tackle John Little.
- A year of playing together for last season's all new defensive backfield of cornerbacks Steve Tannen and Earlie Thomas and safeties Gus Hollomon and W. K. Hicks.
- The trade acquisition of placekicker Bobby Howfield, and the presence of three draft choices, running back John Riggins, return specialist Chris Farasopoulos and tackle John Mooring.

No one is saying the Jets wouldn't be better with Namath in the line-up but there's little doubt they will be improved over last year when injuries leveled the team's title chances and led to a 4-10 record.

With Namath at quarterback, the Jets were 1-4 at the start of the 1970 season and before they started winning again under Woodall it was all but over. But now the Jets and Coach Weeb Ewbank are confident Woodall can get the job done.

"He's a different quarterback than he was last year at this time," Ewbank says. "The players feel he has the experience now. And he did gain a lot of experience."

That experience gained while Namath stood on the sidelines with a broken wrist will be only one of Woodall's assets in the battle for the American Conference East title expected to turn into a three-way race with Super Bowl champion Baltimore and Miami.

Caster, groomed as a re- and placement for Maynard, now will step in for the retired George Sauer. Snell is expected to provide punch for the running game along with Riggins, the Jets' No. 1 draft pick from Kansas.

Lomas will move into the end spot vacated by Verlon Biggs' departure for Washington while Little battles Steve Thompson for a tackle spot on a strong front four led by end Gerry Philbin and tackle John Elliott. The defensive backfield also figures to improve with Tannen and Thomas now sophomores.

And Howfield is expected to provide the booming kickoffs Ewbank feels the club needs while Farasopoulos adds a flare for returning kicks the Jets have long been without.

Add to that a solid offensive line in which draft choice John Mooring from Tampa may fill a tackle spot and a sharp line-backing trio in Al Atkinson, Larry Grantham and Ralph Baker—and it all totals up to title potential.

The one caution flag is raised by Ewbank, who points out Woodall still is a young quarterback in the learning process.

"No one becomes a quarterback overnight," Ewbank emphasizes. "It didn't happen with Starr. It didn't happen with Unites or Waterfield or Joe. You can't expect touchdown passes every time he throws."

"But," he adds significantly, "there's no question we're improved."

He had replaced Bones McKinney as coach about the middle of last season. The Cougars finished last in the Eastern Division of the AEA, and are counting heavily on rookies this season. The rookies are already working out and the veterans report Sept. 12.

Steele Quits Job

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jerry Steele, citing health reasons, stepped down as coach of the Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association Tuesday after less than one season, and returned to his old post as the team's director of player personnel.

There was newspaper speculation that the new coach might be Larry Brown, 5-foot-9 guard with Denver and a former star at the University of North Carolina. Carl Scheer, general manager of the Cougars, said, "He'd have to be considered. But I want it clear I don't consider him above anyone else. I would consider a player-coach. I would not consider Larry Brown as a player-coach."

The 32-year-old Steele was in a hospital last week with stomach trouble, and underwent extensive tests.

Hunt Hits Back; Bench Tired Of Booning; Perry Takes 13th Win

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Ron Hunt was tired of being hit—and he started swinging back.

Johnny Bench was tired of being booed—and he also started swinging back.
Hunt, the pugnacious Montreal second baseman, was hit twice by pitches—the second triggering a free-for-all—as the Expos pounded out an 11-0 decision over the San Diego Padres Tuesday night.

Bench, the National League's most valuable player, home run leader and runs batted in champion in 1970, quieted the boo-birds at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium, slugging a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving the Reds a 5-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Elsewhere in the National League Tuesday, Houston defeated Pittsburgh 6-5; Atlanta edged Chicago 5-4; San Francisco downed Philadelphia 5-1, and Los Angeles blanked New York 4-0.

In the American League, Chicago swept a doubleheader from Detroit 6-5 and 4-1; New York beat Kansas City twice 2-0 and 8-5; Washington trounced Oakland 8-1; California nipped Boston 4-3; Cleveland clipped Minnesota 3-2, and Baltimore topped Milwaukee 3-2.
Hunt recently broke the modern major league record for getting hit by the pitch the most times in one season, eclipsing the mark of 31 set by Louis Evans of St. Louis in 1910.

Against the Padres, he was hit for the 33rd time this season by a pitch from loser Steve Arlin in the third inning. Hunt was nicked by another Arlin delivery in the fifth inning—and that's when he began retaliating.

He ripped off the mask of San Diego catcher Bob Barton and landed a hard blow to the face. Then he took a smash to the head, before bashing Barton again as players from both benches poured out the field.

In a separate melee, Arlin was dragged to the ground by Montreal pitcher Carl Morton, who is scheduled to work tonight. There also was a lot of pushing and shoving before order was restored.

When matters seemingly quieted down, Hunt was ejected by plate umpire Mel Steiner. That set off Montreal Manager Gene Mauch, who argued vehemently with Steiner. It was to no avail.

Barton and Arlin, apparently none the worse for the fight, remained in the game. Arlin, however, wished he hadn't. He was tagged for a run-scoring single by Rusty Staub and a bases-loaded triple by Bob Bailley.

Meanwhile, rookie Ernie McAnally shackled the Padres on four hits.

Bench, known more for his slugging exploits with a bat than with his fists, has been mired in a slump for most of the season—and the Cincinnati fans have been showering him with boos. He turned the boos to cheers with his game-winning shot against the Cards. The Reds' catcher drilled a pitch from reliever Chuck Taylor over the left center field wall, scoring Lee May, who had singled earlier in the ninth. It was Bench's 23rd homer of the season and gave him 51 runs batted in.

Hal McRae also homered for the Reds, while St. Louis' Joe Torre, the National League's leading hitter, smashed his 200th career homer.

Cesar Cedeno's two-run single highlighted a five-run seventh inning rally that enabled Houston to overcome Pittsburgh. Denis Menke and Jesus Alou also singled in runs during the uprising and Doug Rader knocked in the other run with a sacrifice fly.

Roberto Clemente had four RBI for the Pirates with a single, a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly.

Despite the loss, the Pirates' 15th in their last 19 games, Pittsburgh remained five games ahead of St. Louis and 5½ in front of Chicago in the NL East.

Chicago missed an opportunity to take over second place and gain ground on Pittsburgh by losing to Atlanta. Pinch hitter Zoilo Versalles greeted reliever Ray Newman with a homer, his fifth of the season, leading off the ninth inning, breaking a 4-4 tie.

Rookie Earl Williams blasted his 24th homer for the Braves over the center field fence in the fifth inning, while Ron Santo cracked a three-run homer for the Cubs.

Gaylord Perry became the top winner on the San Francisco staff, gaining his 13th victory with a seven-hitter as the Giants maintained their 6½-game advantage over Los Angeles in the National League West.

Want Manning To Make Good

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer
The New Orleans Saints will play their first home exhibition game of the season Saturday night against the Kansas City Chiefs, and Archie Manning, the high-priced rookie from Mississippi will get the starting assignment before the home-town fans.

Manning is battling holdover Edd Hargett for the starting quarterback berth, but since he represents such a sizeable investment—and since his college exploits made Manning a familiar name to sports fans throughout the deep south—it's only understandable that the New Orleans brass would like to see Manning make good right away.

During the off-season the Saints dealt away Billy Kilmer, the team's No. 1 quarterback, opening the door for Manning, an exhibition game Sunday night, but left the team prior to games last year and completed the game.

78 of 175 pass attempts, admittedly has one foot in the door because of his experience, but it remains open for Manning.

In last week's 36-21 loss to Dallas, Hargett was the starter, but failed to move the team, leaving at halftime with the Saints behind 27-0. Manning took over for the second half, completed 9 of 22 passes and engineered the team's three touchdown drives, throwing for one score and tallying once on the ground.

Two other quarterbacks, Dick Shiner of the New York Giants and Jerry Rhome of Houston, are hoping to find new places to play.

Shiner, who walked out of the Giants' camp last weekend, has one message for Coach Alex Webster: "Trade me. I just want out."

Shiner was scheduled to start opening the door for Manning, an exhibition game Sunday night, but left the team prior to games last year and completed the game.

Chamberlain Is Most Valuable

CHAPEL HILL — North Carolina's star lefthander Jim Chamberlain has been named the Most Valuable Player in the North Carolina Collegiate Summer League.

Chamberlain, who pitched the Tar Heels to the league's regular season and playoff titles, won the honor in a close race with Louisburg first baseman Rick Richardson.

In a poll of league voters, Chamberlain received 26 votes and Richardson 22. UNC-Wilmington's all-around performer Dave Sandlin was a distant third in the balloting with six. No one was allowed to vote for a player on his own team.

Chamberlain topped the league in almost every pitching department. He had a 9-1 regular season record and added another victory when he defeated Wilmington in the league playoffs.

That playoff win lowered his earned run average to 0.57, best in the league. He also topped the pitchers in complete games and shutouts.

While Chamberlain was dominating the pitching statistics throughout the season, Richardson was doing the same to the batting marks. He finished the season with a league-leading 358 average.

He topped the league in runs, hits, doubles and home runs.

Sandlin was a key figure in Wilmington's second-place finish in the league. He performed as a pitcher, at first base and in the outfield.

Other players receiving votes were Wilmington pitcher Eddie Booth, Carolina catcher Mike Roberts and Wilmington third baseman Greg Dalton.

MICHELA FLORES AMAYA is one of the few professional dancers of true flamenco who scorn "gimmickry" generally associated with the dance. (UPI Telephoto)

Professional Flamenco Dancer Raps Gimmicks

By JACK BRANNAN
MADRID (UPI)—Her name is Michela Flores Amaya, but she is more popularly known as "La Chunga"—the gypsy who dances flamenco in bare feet and snaps its rhythms with her fingers.

She is one of the few professional dancers of true flamenco, scorning as gimmickry the castanets, the excessive capped heel and toe tapping and the overly exaggerated posturing generally associated with the dance.

Among her contemporaries and devotees of the art, she is considered the finest dancer of flamenco since the legendary Carmen Amaya.

"Carmen Amaya was my cousin," La Chunga says, "but as a dancer I am not even up to the level of her shoes."

Nevertheless, not since Carmen Amaya's death in 1963 has there been a flamenco dancer seriously compared with her until La Chunga.

"Pure flamenco is pure gypsy," La Chunga said, discussing the art in her dressing room at a year-old Madrid flamenco club (Cafe de Chinitas) in which she owns part interest and where she performs. She wears jeans and a blouse, and the thick black hair that falls to her shoulders and swirls about her head when she dances was tied back with a rubber band.

"I do not use castanets because they are not gypsy," she said, putting the emphasis on the last four words. Instead, she snaps her thumbs against both the ring and middle fingers of the hands. This natural method of snapping produces rhythms as intricate and clear as those from castanets. Most professional flamenco dancers are trained in ballet, and the women particularly learn only a few of its more easily mastered techniques, the castanets and heel tapping among them.

Like finger snapping, barefoot dancing also is an original style for at least some of the more primitive rhythms that have evolved from the generations of gypsies who have wandered Spain for 500 years. These La Chunga dances without shoes. But when the particular rhythm requires it, she does wear shoes.

"But for the women, footwork is not that important," she said. "Flamenco dancing for the woman is in her hands, her face, her head and the rest of her body down to the hips. It is given to her when she was born."

"For the man, it is the opposite — from the waist down," she said. "The man must keep his hands together at the waist, the upper part of his body rigid, and emphasize the feet—the footwork."

"Then the most important thing for both the man and the woman is to put all their feelings, all their emotions into the dance. I dance what I feel."

Her nickname of "La Chunga" has nothing to do with flamenco or the dance. It was given to her when she was born 28 years ago in the gypsy quarter of Barcelona, Spain's big seaport on the northeastern coast.

"When I was born, I was very small, very ugly and very black—a very little bundle," said La Chunga, who has grown into a petite 5-foot-3. "So my father gave me the nickname, and I've been known by it ever since." Like many gypsy nicknames, it does not lend itself to translation. But "very little bundle" is close.

Before she was 20, La Chunga was a featured solo dancer in one of the top Madrid flamenco clubs and also had appeared in a motion picture. And then she met Ava Gardner, the American actress who has made Spain her home.

"Ava Gardner gave me an entree," La Chunga said, explaining that the actress arranged a performance in Paris for her and put her in contact with a number of international impresarios. That entree took her away from Spain for two years, first to the United States and then to Mexico.

She now is settled in Madrid with her husband, Spanish film director Jose Luis Gonzalbo, and their two daughters, aged 8 and 9.

And with her reputation as a flamenco dancer established, La Chunga said she has taken up a new form of the art. "I'm learning to play the guitar," she said.

American Oil Well Count Cut

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—There were 35 fewer oil and gas wells drilled in the United States during the first half of 1971 than in the corresponding period of 1970.

American wells totaled 996 on July 1, 1970, and 961 at the same time this year. Canadian well numbers were down from 108 last year to 89 in the same period of 1971.

Organized Labor Braces For Showdown With Nixon

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Organized labor, suspicious and confused about President Nixon's wage-price-rent freeze and a call for no strikes during the freeze, is bracing for a face-to-face showdown meeting with administration leaders.

Labor leaders already had a long list of issues to be clarified at Thursday's meeting before J. Curtis Counts, chief federal mediator, announced late Tuesday the administration was asking for an end to current strikes and a moratorium on any new ones until the 90-day freeze ends.

Nixon tapped a top economic adviser, George Schultz, and Secretary of Labor J.D. Hodgson to respond to questions and criticism of AFL-CIO President George Meany, who called the freeze a bonanza for businessmen that would make workers suffer most.

"Mr. Meany appears to be sadly out of step with the needs and desires of America's working men and women," said Hodgson.

Shultz, director of the White House Office of Management and Budget, and Hodgson are to meet with the AFL-CIO's 35-man executive council to answer questions about the freeze and strike moratorium.

The federation, Teamsters and United Auto Workers unions had no immediate comment on Counts' request, which was underlined by the hint of legal action to enforce a no-strike period.

"A strike or lockout may be considered as anti-stabilizing and a violation of the Economic Stabilization Act," Counts said. But he said voluntary compliance would be sought in all cases.

Leaders of the 13.6-million-member labor federation voiced a host of questions and criticisms in advance of the meeting.

"We want to know what happens to all these labor contracts in existence including the obligations of employers to pay more money under wage step-ups," said a spokesman for Meany. Government sources said such wage hikes, along with others, were included under Nixon's 90-day freeze.

"What about companies that have already raised prices based on what future costs will be, and now the costs will be held down because they won't have to pay wage increases, and at the same time there is no attempt to freeze profits and interest rates?" added the labor spokesman.

Labor leaders at the meeting also are expected to ask Shultz and Hodgson about the effect of freezing wages, but letting some food prices escape the price freeze.

"The President's suggested freeze on prices does not extend to unprocessed food even though the average working family spends 28 per cent of its total take-home pay for food," said President Floyd Smith of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists, one of the federation's executive council members.

"Obviously, it will be far easier for employers to enforce an effective wage freeze than for scattered multitudes of consumers to enforce an effective price freeze," Smith added.

Government officials confirmed Nixon's exemption of "raw agricultural commodities" probably will apply at the supermarket to such unprocessed items as eggs and fresh fruits and vegetables. They added that processed foods—such as meats, butter, bread, pasteurized milk and frozen foods—will be covered by the price freeze.

Smith, whose union had started negotiating new contracts for many of the nation's 225,000 aerospace and airline workers, said the freeze is unfair to many workers.

"Especially glaring will be the inequities that will be left hanging between industries, such as steel and automobile in which long-term contracts have already been ratified and those, such as aerospace, in which negotiations are just getting started," Smith said.

"In effect, the nation's chief executive has become the nation's chief strikebreaker," he said.

In New York, Communications Workers of America said it will not stop its strike against the telephone company.

"We are not going back to work," said Don Keenana, president of Local 1103 of the CWA, which has 38,500 persons on strike across New York State. Local leaders were to meet today to discuss the overall freeze effects.

In San Francisco, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, whose members have tied up West Coast ports for weeks had no comment.

The 400 printers on strike with Local 7 of the International Typographical Union in Pittsburgh are staying off the job until their attorneys looked at the administration request, said local president John Feigel.

Labor Department officials said unions and industries with contracts falling due during the 90-day freeze are being encouraged to continue negotiating and settling contracts in the expectation the freeze eventually will be lifted. They added, however, that such settlements won't be retroactive over the 90-day freeze period.

Most other AFL-CIO leaders were as critical of the wage-price freeze as Meany and Smith.

Large Salmon Harvest In 1970

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—
Commercial fishermen working from British Columbia ports caught $45 million worth of salmon in 1970, equalling a record set in 1968, the Canadian Fisheries Department reports.

The department said that while fewer fish were caught, they were heavier than in other years, and prices were higher.

Bureaus in the state's largest cities — Charlotte, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Raleigh, and Durham — belong to Associated Credit Bureaus, Inc. They say that since 1966, their organization has followed voluntary guidelines similar to those incorporated into the new law.

"We have had an increase in the number of people asking to see their files," said C. George Henderson, president of the Charlotte Credit Bureau. "It's gone from about 150 per month to 300. But we've always been sumer is entitled to know the source of an unfavorable credit report on him and to obtain information on his record from that source. In addition, such information cannot be reported after seven years, except under extraordinary circumstances.

In most larger North Carolina cities, the increase in consumers asking for information about their credit records has caused the credit bureaus to assign someone to consumer interviews on a fulltime basis.
But they say they have not had

Cottage Industry Far From Dead

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Cottage industries still are very much a going concern in eco-

Figures released show that 220,000 West Germans still work at home, of which 203,000 are women. These mostly do subcontract electrical assembly, weaving or dress making.

All of these reports are placed in a files which may be augmented by reports from a consumer's previous residences.

extend credit. Quite often, four merchants will get the same credit report and apply four different standards to it in making their decisions," Henderson said.

A consumer may supply his credit bureau with certifiable evidence that the records of the credit bureau were incomplete, and have the credit bureau

Worry Clinic Trace Chemical Aid Underlined

Note Dr. Shacklette's data showing how heart deaths were double for men who lacked 13 of the trace chemicals that are in ocean water! Many other ailments are called "deficiency diseases," since we find no germ or virus to explain them. These include gray hair, arthritis, epilepsy, diabetes and even cancer!

pontificated the FDA, "of any medical value."
And it taunted this newspaper column for even suggesting that the ocean's trace chemicals might be helpful in the deficiency ailments, for which we find no germ or virus as the cause.

My brother John met me recently when we celebrated our mother's 93rd birthday. Incidentally, I have given her a spoonful of concentrated sea water each day ever since 1955. "Look at this," John said as he handed me a science clipping, "for Dr. H. T. Shacklette corroborates your earlier views about trace chemicals."

Dr. Shacklette is a research botanist for our U. S. Geological Survey. And Dr. Shacklette made his report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science at its recent Chicago meeting.

His survey showed that 9 counties in north Georgia had more than double the death rate from heart disease and strokes than was true of 9 other counties in east and south Georgia.

The only significant difference was a much greater amount of race chemicals in the 9 counties with lower death rate.

That lower death rate in those 9 counties was thus attributed to 13 trace chemicals that were still in the Georgia soil and not yet washed away to the ocean.

But back in 1955 when I explained this new medical view of race chemicals, the FDA ignorantly stated, "There is nothing in the sea of any medical value."

Yet every water-soluble trace chemical on this planet Earth is in the sea!

And our blood being essentially water needs chemicals that will dissolve in water!
If those 13 trace chemicals in Georgia cut the death rate in half, what might the other 31 trace chemicals have done for additional deficiency ailments?

But the FDA says those trace chemicals are worthless!
Yet 8 of them have been included in the 50-pound red salt blocks for use by cattle.
And Purdue, as well as Iowa State, have proved those 8 trace chemicals combat anemia, disease, sterility and cause cattle to put on weight faster!
But the FDA says such trace chemicals, as in ocean water, are worthless!
We medics also prescribe vitamin-mineral ampules with at least 12 of these trace chemicals that are in the oceans.
But the FDA says the ocean water had nothing of ANY medical value!
So send for my booklet "The Ocean's 44 Trace Chemicals," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and learn the newest medical data!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)
