Union Bosses Plan Fight Nixon Freeze

By NEIL GILBRIDE

AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor leaders are pressing plans to fight President Nixon's wage-price freeze in the courts, Congress and on the picket line if necessary, despite the government's move to ease mortgage interest rates.

"We don't think the action on interest rates does a thing," an AFL-CIO spokesman said of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board's action freeing $1.8 billion more in private and federal funds for housing mortgages.

"It doesn't meet the test of equity," the spokesman said. AFL-CIO President George Meany and President Leonard Woodcock of the 1.5-million-member United Auto Workers union called a meeting today to map a joint campaign in Congress against the freeze and other aspects of the new economic program, especially the proposed 10-per-cent business investment tax credit.

Defending the administration's economic plan, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew told a Miami news conference Meany and Woodcock "will see the programs were absolutely essential for preservation of the American competitive edge." A week before the President's announcement, Agnew said, Meany was asking for action against inflation.

The AFL-CIO, with 13.5 million members, has demanded that interest rates, profits and all other forms of income be frozen also.

The AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks said it would consider itself free to strike Nov. 13 if its 190,000 railroad members don't get wage hikes negotiated before the freeze and if profits and dividends are not controlled.

In other economic developments:

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally spelled out exemptions from the 10-per-cent import surcharge for products a restricted through quotas or licensing. They include beef, veal and mutton, certain oil products and petrochemicals, cotton textiles, sugar, some milk and dairy products, and chocolate.

The Cost of Living Council, in its fifth series of policy rulings, said welfare payments are not frozen but school lunch prices and profit-sharing programs are.

A high administration official said a simple extension of the freeze until April 30 is not possible because of inequities, but other sources foresaw limited curbs after Nov. 12.

Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans said he agrees with the heads of 11 large U.S. corporations, with whom he met, that Nixon should impose a mandatory wage-price control system after the 90-day period.

The U.S. dollar weakened in Europe's money markets but the chief complaint of Europeans and Japanese at a meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in Geneva was aimed at the import surcharge.

To Describe Berlin Pact

By LEWIS GULICK

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers called in the U.S. ambassador to West Germany today for a first-hand account of the historic East-West agreement on Berlin.

U.S. officials rated the proposed Big Four pact on civilian access to West Berlin a significant step forward in easing tensions around what has been a longstanding flashpoint in the cold war.

The U.S. envoy, Kenneth Rush, flew into Washington Tuesday night.

The agreement reached Monday by Rush and ambassadors from Britain, France and the Soviet Union followed 17 months of Berlin negotiations. It is expected to be approved by the home governments in about two weeks with little or no change in wording, then formally signed by the four.

It will be up to West and East Germans to work out nuts-and-bolts details of carrying out the access agreement. After that, the big powers will pass on the new setup before it takes effect.

Under the draft agreement, the Soviets acknowledge for the first time that they share with the three Western powers ultimate responsibility for access to Berlin.

The accord calls for unimpeded flow of civilian traffic between West Berlin and West Germany. Traffic blockages on East German auto, railroad, and canal arteries have caused friction for years.

West Berliners also would be allowed under the pact to visit East Berlin and East Germany periodically. And the Soviets would gain the right to set up a 20-man consulate in West Berlin.

Not affected by the pact are the air corridors to Berlin or military traffic, which the Western nations have jealously guarded as their prerogative as World War II occupation powers.

Arrested 125 In Ayden For Demonstrating

AYDEN — One-hundred twenty-five Negroes were arrested here last night on charges of picketing without a permit following a demonstration protesting the August 6 shooting of a Negro by a Highway Patrolman.

Last night's demonstration, led by Golden Frinks, state field secretary for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was the third demonstration here this week.

Between 50 and 100 Negroes gathered briefly at the police department Monday night. A group of more than 100 marched several blocks to police headquarters Tuesday afternoon. The 125 arrested last night were among a group estimated at more than 200.

Last night's arrests were made without incident after the demonstration began without a permit being issued by town officials.

Placed under $200 bond each, all demonstrators had been released from jail by this morning. Frinks indicated that a group would march from Ayden to Highway Patrol Troop A Headquarters in Greenville this afternoon to continue their protests.

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon, said no application has been made for a demonstration here.

Frinks indicated Ayden had been picked as the focal point of the protest. He said he hoped merchants would bring pressure on state officials to have Trooper Billy Day dismissed.

William Earl Murphy, 32, was shot August 6 during a struggle with Ptl. Day over the officer's gun. Arrested on a charge of public drunkenness, Murphy was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The incident occurred on a rural road South of Ayden.

Those charged in connection with last night's incident included at least 30 juveniles 11 to 15 years old.

Thieu Will Run, Even If He Is The Only Candidate

By RICHARD PYLE

Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu told provincial officials and campaign aides today that he is going to run for re-election on Oct. 3 even if he is the only candidate.

Vietnam Press, the government news agency, announced that Acting Premier Nguyen Luu Vien had notified officials throughout the country that the voting would be held as scheduled.

Thieu discussed his campaign for four hours with nearly 100 provincial officials and campaign workers after a hastily arranged meeting with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker.

The one-hour meeting with Bunker set off speculation that the ambassador might have advanced a new proposal to ease the crisis resulting from the prospect of Thieu running unopposed. But Vietnamese who attended the campaign conference said the president flatly declared his intention to run and outlined plans for the campaign he will conduct.

Thieu told his supporters he is primarily concerned with getting out the vote in the countryside to demonstrate solid support for him. But Vietnamese sources said proposals were also made for banners and posters promoting the candidate.

cy of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, apparently as a device to make the election appear contested even though Thieu is the only active candidate.

Ky's name appears on the ballot even though he announced Monday he would not campaign because the election was rigged in Thieu's favor. He had been disqualified from the race on grounds that his nominating petitions lacked enough valid endorsements, but U.S. pressure forced Thieu to reinstate him.

The U.S. government is believed to have favored the proposal put forward by Ky that both he and Thieu resign and new elections be held within 90 days. But aides to Thieu reported Tuesday that despite pressure from Bunker, the president rejected Ky's plan and was determined to hold the election on schedule, regardless of the consequences.

U.S. officials have suggested privately that a one-man race in which Thieu was the only candidate could lead to reconsideration of the Nixon administration's Vietnam policy, possibly including a reduction in aid.

The meeting today at the Majestic Hotel was Thieu's first public appearance since the political crisis developed last Friday with the withdrawal from the race of Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh, who also claimed the voting was being rigged.

Arriving at the hotel, Thieu smiled confidently and waved at the large crowd of newsmen but made no statement. Aides said he would have nothing to say to the press. Thieu has not commented publicly on the election since Minh's withdrawal.

The meeting was attended by Sen. Tran Van Huong, Thieu's vice presidential running mate. Premier Tran Thien Khiem, the vice presidential alternate, provincial councilmen loyal to Thieu, campaign workers and other civic and religious leaders from all of the 44 provinces and the major cities.

Conference Shapes Up On Currency Valuation

LONDON (AP) — A high-level international conference to negotiate changes in the values of major currencies appeared to be shaping up as the American dollar sagged further today in European money markets.

British officials said reports from the International Monetary Fund in Washington indicated the meeting probably will be held in London on Sept. 15, the day after finance ministers of the European Common Market meet in Brussels in another attempt to settle their differences over changes in monetary values.

Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, secretary-general of the IMF, indicated in a television interview Tuesday night that both Japan and the United States had withdrawn their objections to an early meeting of the so-called "Group of 10" leading financial powers.

The U.S. government was previously reported to believe the monetary crisis should be thrashed out first in bilateral talks.

The crisis arose from President Nixon's action cutting the ties between gold and the U.S. dollar. That move in effect, set currencies adrift to seek their true values according to market forces.

The Japanese government was reported Tuesday to have decided to press for "international multilateral readjustment" of currency values as the best way of ending the crisis.

Messages reaching the British government from Ottawa indicated that Canadian Finance Minister Edgar Benson, this year's chairman of the "Group of 10," and Rinaldo Ossola, head of the Bank of Italy, have agreed that the group's committee of deputies should discuss the meeting. Ossola is chairman of the deputies committee, which is expected to meet Sept. 4 or 5.

The aim of the London conference will be to draft recommendations for changes in money values to put before the annual assembly of the IMF in Washington.

Reports of a "working paper" drafted by IMF experts suggesting changes in the values of various currencies got a stormy reception in some European countries.

"The rates made known by IMF circles cannot serve as a realistic basis for a worldwide realignment of parities," West German Finance Minister Karl Schiller said in a statement.

British officials said their government had no intention of permitting a seven per cent increase in the value of the pound sterling in relation to the dollar as suggested by the IMF experts.

Lofty UF Goal Said Attainable

"I accept the challenge of directing this year's Pitt County United Fund drive," Ed N. Warren said yesterday after the fund's Board of Directors Monday night appointed him

"Even with the worthiness of the project, however, I would not accept the job so readily if I did not expect to have splendid cooperation from the many other workers. Chairman in the past have found leaders, laymen, and industry alike extremely willing to boost us to our goal. I know this year's effort will be no different."

A Stokes native, Warren is now a Greenville business man. He is an Air Force veteran and a graduate of Atlantic Christian College. His M.A. degree was earned at East Carolina University and he also has attended Duke University Graduate School.

A deacon in the First Christian Church of Greenville, he is a director of the Salvation Army and the North Carolina Mental Health Association and he serves on the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees. He is a Rotarian and a past president of the Pitt County Mental Health Association. Before entering the business world, had a 19-year career as a public school principal, serving at Belvoir-Falkland, Falkland, Ayden, and Greenville.

His wife, the former Joan Braswell of Ayden, is an administrative secretary at East Carolina University.

VC Blow Up Munition Dump

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces stepped up their attacks in South Vietnam today, blowing up a major ammunition dump at the big U.S. base at Cam Ranh Bay, and shelling five other American units.

The South Vietnamese Command reported 26 enemy attacks in the past 24 hours, including eight rocket and mortar bombardments. A communique said nine civilians were killed and 21 wounded in two shelling, an ambush and a bombing.

Informed sources said less than a dozen Americans were wounded and none were killed.

The U.S. Command warned that more intense enemy activity was expected as the Saigon government prepared for legislative elections Sunday.

"The U.S. Command has received indications that the enemy may be planning a high point of activity during the next few days," said a communique. "This high point could begin at different times and could involve increased attacks by fire, ground attacks and increased terrorist activities."

The 220,000 American troops in Vietnam went on an increased readiness alert at dawn Tuesday and were confined to their bases except for official business. U.S. spokesmen said one purpose of the alert is to keep Americans from being targets of hostile political demonstrations.

Viet Cong sappers were believed responsible for the massive explosions that wrecked the ammunition dump at Cam Ranh Bay and halted Air Force flight out of the base for nine hours.

The explosions ended during the afternoon, 12 hours after the first blast. But fires were still burning at dusk, and ordnance experts had been unable to enter the area to assess the damage.

A spokesman for the U.S. Command, Maj. Robert O'Brien, said the dump contained all kinds of ammunition, from bombs to artillery shells, and serviced the Army, Navy and Air Force.

He said the exploding shells caused some minor damage to buildings in the area. But he refused to say how the loss of the ammunition would affect operations in the region.

Wachovia Plans New Building

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)

County School Students Begin Term Tuesday

Classes will begin Tuesday for elementary students in the Pitt County Schools and orientation will be held for high school students.

All professional personnel and aides will report to McGinnis Auditorium, East Carolina University campus, Monday at 8:30 a.m. The meeting is being sponsored jointly by the Pitt County Unit of the NCAE and the Pitt County Board of Education. Personnel will report to their schools at the conclusion of the meeting which should be over by 9:45 a.m.

The remaining part of Monday morning and Monday afternoon will be used by the principal and his staff members in planning for their work for the rest of the week.

All elementary students will report to school Tuesday morning with bus transportation provided. The elementary schools will dismiss at 12:30 p.m.

Tuesday and also on Sept. 1, 2 and 3.

Kindergarten students will not report to the schools until Tuesday, Sept. 7.

"During this week parents and children will be scheduled as to the time and date their child is to attend school during the week of Sept. 7 through Sept. 10," stated Pitt County Schools Superintendent Arthur Alford. "Only 10 kindergarten students will attend school during this week on any given day, as this first week will be given over to testing and screening of kindergarten children."

Kindergarten will officially begin on Monday, Sept. 13.

North Pitt, D. H. Conley, Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central High Schools will use Tuesday, Aug. 31, and Wednesday, Sept. 1, as orientation days for high school students. Bus transportation will not be provided for high school students on these two days, but will be available beginning on Thursday, Sept. 2.

She's Asking For A Kick

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a bright, well-educated girl, just turned 30, and I work as a secretary for a fascinating gentleman who's 57. I've been around a bit, and ever since I've known this man [some seven years] I haven't met anyone my own age who is as attractive. They haven't the sophistication, sense of humor, ability to enjoy life—you name it, he has it. I guess I'm in love.

I've seen this man thru a couple of superficial office affairs—nothing alarming. His wife is his age, charming, knowing, and holding on.

He's been giving me some pretty long looks lately, and I don't know how much longer I can hold out. I know I'll never find another job as good as this one, and I doubt if I'll ever find a man as attractive.

Should I try to win him? Or would that be dirty pool? I've heard that no woman can break up a really good marriage. What do you say?

CONFEDERATE

DEAR CONFEDERATE: It's not only "dirty pool," it's asking for a kick in the pants. You could probably get your name added to his list of "superficial office affairs," but your chances for anything lasting and "real" look mighty slim from this side of the typewriter.

DEAR ABBY: I have a rather large rump and my husband doesn't like me to wear a girdle. I am far from "firm," and I feel so sloppy without one, but every time I wear a girdle my husband starts in on me.

This has caused a slight rift between us. What should I do?

RUMPELSTILSKENS

DEAR RUMP: Wear pantyhose. They'll sort of bring everything together.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry "MR. WONDERFUL" in three months. Well, yesterday I found out that he has been seeing a girl who works at the union to which he belongs. When I asked him if it was true, he said it was, but she was only his "pipeline" of information about what's going on.

He said he wouldn't stop seeing her and calling her at home and I was silly to be jealous of this girl as she means nothing to him.

Do you think I am being silly to ask him to give up his pipeline?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: If she's only his pipeline, yes.

DEAR ABBY: Here's the situation: Last winter my boy friend and I took out a marriage license, but lots of things have come up since then and we have had to put off getting married for a while yet. In order to save on rent we are living together. Doesn't our marriage license prove that we are serious about our relationship and not just fooling around? I mean, in a way isn't it just as good as being married?

TWO IN LOVE

DEAR TWO: A "license" to marry is just that and nothing more. It may indicate that at one time you were seriously considering marriage, but it's not "as good" as being married.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

They'll Do It Their Own Way

There apparently have been a good many things South Vietnamese leaders have been willing to do American style during the long war, but obviously they prefer their own style of politics to the American brand.

The Nixon administration has put great pressure on President Thieu to have an open election. Similar pressure has been put on prospective candidates by American representatives. But none of the pressures has brought the results the Nixon administration wanted.

President Thieu will have no real opposition in

N.C. Expert In Red Tape Field

Bureaucratic obsolescence often thwarts executive action in the federal government.

A President fresh from political victory can meet defeat in implementing policy changes at the hands of an unresponsive work force of administrators, unwilling or unable to perform as directed, but entrenched in their jobs under an archaic civil service system.

Experience in the red tape jungle along the Potomac led to that conclusion for John A. Lang, Jr. A Tar Heel native and formerly administrative assistant to the Secretary of the Air Force, he is now at East Carolina University as vice president for external affairs.

Lang, who also has lectured in business administration at George Washington University, put his ideas in scholarly form for a paper entitled, "Depreciation and 'Obsolescence' of Federal Administrators as Deterrents to Effective Management," which he delivered recently before the Academy of Management's annual meeting in Atlanta, Ga.

People Depreciation

"Industry and government have long been concerned with the concept of depreciation and obsolescence of equipment and facilities and other capital investments," Lang noted. "The subject of 'depreciation' and 'obsolescence' of people in the federal government, industry and academia, especially those occupying executive suites, is of increasing concern."

The phenomenon is not confined to government nor limited to the present time. The dilemma of renewing leadership is worldwide and to some degree has existed throughout history. The tempo of change in the 20th century has simply intensified and accentuated it.

Today's senior executives began their careers when nuclear power was still a basic formula, television was a novelty, and the computer unknown.

"Failing to keep pace with this rapidly accelerating technology, many managerial concepts and their practitioners may have 'depreciated' and become 'obsolete,'" Lang explained.

Transition Participant

Personal experience with the problem came to Lang through participation in the transition to President Nixon's administration. He was designated senior Air Force civilian official in the 1968-69 transfer of power.

Four major problem areas were highlighted:

1. The orderly transfer of management information, skills and know-how.
2. Guidance in the required qualities of leadership.
3. Development of greater understanding of inter-agency, White House, and Congressional relationships.
4. Blending senior careerists with new administration managers.

"I believe that we did a very creditable job in resolving the first three problem areas, but do not feel that we had found the best formula for the fourth," Lang said.

Dilemmas Encountered

"These are some of the dilemmas we encountered in attempting to blend senior careerists with new administrative managers. We discovered that the long-time Civil Service executive may have outlived his usefulness through lack of development of his potential; or his talents may not be commensurate with the position he occupies. Through deeply ingrained habits developed over a period of many years, he may be unwilling or incapable of accepting new ideas or supporting new policies. He may feel that his long service has given him knowledge and objectivity that his new superior does not possess or that the actions of his new superior are politically motivated.

"On the other hand, the new superior may, and in this case, did, represent an administration fresh from victory at the polls. He may feel that his administration has been given a mandate to institute new policies and strike out in new directions. He may view, and rightly so, the long-time employee as an impediment to the adoption of these new policies. He may feel that the career Civil Servant is incompetent or uncooperative—and possibly both—and therefore must be removed or placed in a less sensitive position.

"Under the present system, in most cases, the 'satisfactory' employee with long tenure cannot be fired and feels an entrenched vested right to the specific position he occupies."

Congress has before it a proposed remedy in President Nixon's Federal Executive Service (FES) plan, Lang said. The assumption, he added, is that this will "if not solve completely, at least alleviate the situation."

the forthcoming election, which obviously suits him and greatly irritates leaders in Washington. Even token opposition at this point would be recognized in this country, in South Vietnam, and elsewhere as a farce.

In the years since the Vietnamese conflict began, the United States has imposed many of its ways of doing things upon leaders of that nation. Many have been accepted and many have been rejected by passivism if not actively.

The situation with the Presidential election clearly shows that the Vietnamese have their own way of doing things that they much prefer to the American way. That has been evident for a long time and perhaps this election crisis will bring the point home vividly to the Nixon administration.

A Retrial Could Only Underline Acceptance

At one time or another in their lives most adult Americans have encountered the story of Dr. Samuel Mudd and the price he paid for treating John Wilkes Booth after the assassination of President Lincoln.

Memories of the story were refreshed last week by the account of Dr. Mudd's descendants hoping for a new trial of the 1865 case.

The chances do seem extremely remote, but for the romanticist it would be a most fitting conclusion to one of the darker pages in American justice.

To be fair, we do not recall any historical reference work that passes a judgment of guilt on Dr. Mudd. It is recognized he was convicted during a period of pervasive hysteria infecting all levels of the nation. On the face of it, no one then believed he could or would have treated Booth unless he too was part of a great conspiracy.

We have only to look back a few years to the assassination of President Kennedy to recall the wave of rumors and dark suspicions that swept the land, and understand the mood of over a century ago.

A public retrial of Dr. Mudd would do that gentleman little good today except to officially clear his name . . . a point of fact that is unofficially accepted almost everywhere.

A Water Bill Boomerangs

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — An inexcusably blunt suggestion that the coal and oil industries can make Rep. John Blatnik of Minnesota, chairman of the House Public Works Committee, dance to their soft-on-pollution tune has vastly improved prospects for an extremely tough anti-pollution water bill now moving through Congress.

The suggestion came in a privately-circulated, unsigned memorandum from an industry lobbyist warning his clients that the bill approved by Sen. Edmund Muskie's Public Works subcommittee is far too tough for industry to swallow. On the assumption that the Muskie bill would move through the full Senate Public Works Committee and the Senate itself without major change, the unsigned memorandum warned:

"We must take immediate action to get a better bill out of Blatnik's committee in the House."

When a copy of the memorandum came into Blatnik's hand, he exploded. Blatnik instructed his staff and the staff of the House Public Works Committee that under no condition would there be any deal with the coal and oil industries.

The reason (as one of Blatnik's colleagues told us): "The industry lobbyist apparently thinks he has John in his hip pocket and John didn't like that."

The memorandum, insultingly patronizing to Muskie's subcommittee, attacked the Muskie bill as "poorly drafted and ill-considered...which will be good chance for litigation by those not willing to comply but little assistance to those willing to comply."

Thus, not only did the lobbyist attack the bill; he also blatantly held out the prospect of industry refusal to comply. Now that his memorandum has found its way into Blatnik's office, any chance for watering-down the clean-water bill is highly unlikely.

U.S. Embassy Warfare The refusal of U.S. Ambassador Walter Annenberg to let his No. 1 lieutenant, a highly-respected career diplomat named Joseph N. (Jerry) Greene, make routine efficiency reports on the huge Embassy staff at Grosvenor Square was the final straw in an unprecedented personality feud that has now led Greene to ask for reassignment.

Annenberg, former publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer and a generous Nixon supporter in the 1968 election, has developed a unique relationship with department heads in the Embassy, effectively removing Greene from the line of command. As deputy chief of mission (a coveted role for career diplomats), Greene's function progressively diminished.

What triggered his departure was Annenberg's refusal to allow Greene to make routine efficiency reports, a major function of deputy chiefs of U.S. missions.

Ideology is not at issue here. Greene served with distinction both as John Foster Dulles's personal aide in the 1950s and, later as a key assistant to liberal Democrat Chester Bowles, former U.S. Ambassador in India.

Is it a good thing for people to take vows?

This is not a discussion of the virtues or evils of fraternal organizations or religious orders, but only of the vows taken by individuals to do some good thing or to abstain from doing some evil.

There are some people who certainly should not take such vows. As soon as they take a vow they immediately begin to want to do the thing they have vowed not to do, or they find it almost impossible to do the thing they vowed they would do. When people find that vows have this adverse effect upon them, they should have nothing to do with vows.

But many people — probably most people — find that vows occasionally taken are a support to good behavior and deterrent against evil. The vow often furnishes just the normal reinforcement one needs to get habits of good behavior established in his life. The taking of a vow may also be a door which shuts behind one and prevents retreat. What some of us need, under certain circumstances, is just to have the possibility of retreat cut off. If we can't go back, we must go forward, and we do.

Each person must decide for himself or herself whether the taking of a vow is beneficial or harmful. This is not an abstract question. If it occurs at all, it is immensely concrete and practical.

Great Old News Stories

There were many great news stories that never made the papers. These were my favorites.

It was a cold winter's night in Secret Falls, when patrolman Sean Morgan was cruising around in his car. Suddenly the radio barked, "Go to 107 Maple Street; a pregnant lady needs help."

Sean turned on his siren and at 80 miles an hour sped to the address. Waiting in front of the house was the nervous husband, who explained his wife was about to have a baby, but he couldn't get his car started and he didn't know what to do.

Sean said he would take the wife in his car, but the husband said it was too late. His wife had started giving birth to the baby in the house. The patrolman rushed inside and shouted to the husband, "I want hot water, lots of hot water. The husband dashed into the kitchen and started heating up kettles while Sean went into the bedroom, took off his jacket and rolled up his sleeves.

In a few minutes the husband dashed in with the boiling water. Sean smiled sickly and didn't say anything. "Here's the water," the husband said. "What are you going to do with it?"

"How the hell do I know?" Sean said, shrugging his shoulders. "I'm not a doctor."

Charles Weatherspoon hated abstract art and the cult that went with it. When he heard there was going to be an abstract art exhibition he submitted a painting done by a chimpanzee and then he waited to see the results.

The day of judging arrived, and a group of distinguished art critics walked down the aisles, studying each painting.

Then they came to Weatherspoon's entry. They (Continued on Page A-5)

Investments Are In Our Favor

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the facts that prompted President Nixon to utter his new economic policy August 15 is that the United States's balance of payment deficit was increasing. There has been a deficit almost every year for the last 20 years and our gold reserves have been reduced by half to pay the deficits.

The worsening of our position was good reason for adding a 10 per cent surcharge on imports and by letting the dollar float to a lesser value. The first action would raise the price of imported goods, cutting their sales in the U. S. The second would make American products cheaper in foreign markets. Combined with the decision to cease selling gold to foreign central banks for dollars, these actions are intended to halt the deficits and increase the flow of dollars, if not gold itself, back to the U. S.

We're Way Ahead

And while there has been great concern over the mounting deficits, the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland points out that the U. S. international investment position has been greatly in our favor. The value of U. S. assets and investments abroad rose from $54 billion in 1950 to $166 billion in 1970. In the same period, foreign ownership of assets and investments in the U. S. increased from $18 billion to $96 billion in 1970.

"As a result of this greater growth in U. S. assets, the net international investment position of the U. S. has grown from $37 billion in 1950 to $70 billion last year," the Cleveland Fed says in its Economic Commentary.

It adds: "Investment income is a major advantage of a strong international investment position. In 1970, U. S. investment income from assets abroad was $9.6 billion, while earnings on foreign-owned assets in the U. S. were $5.1 billion. . . . In the 1950-70 period, U. S. private direct investment abroad increased by over $65 billion, but foreign direct investment in the U. S. increased by less than $10 billion. The net effect was a contribution of almost $56 billion to the net investment position of the U. S."

Family Has No Pity

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE

Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A man is more likely to get a genuine expression of pity from a stranger than from his own family.

I base that heretical statement on something that happened to me recently while I was on vacation. What happened is that I fell off a speeding motorcycle.

My injuries were dramatic looking, but not really serious.

At the emergency room of the hospital, the nurses seemed quite concerned. They looked with wrinkled brow at my wounds and murmured encouragement as the scrapes were cleansed.

My wife and son had shown up by that time and they were looking on with some boredom. I was playing like something out of a Steve McQueen movie—grim and gutty.

My 4-year-old son, Gavin, smiled as the nurse gave me a tetanus shot, for he is usually the one on the receiving end of the needle. He is a terrible coward and screams embarrassingly when he gets shots. So I took it with a straight face.

"I notice you didn't cry when you got that shot," he said later as my wife drove us home. "That's right, son," I replied. "Big men don't cry about little things like that."

"Of course," he said, pausing and looking at me out of the corner of his eye, "that was a pretty little needle."

My wife thought that was quite funny. She is a strange woman when it comes to injuries resulting from motorcycle rides. Her feeling is that anybody who rides motorcycles is silly enough to deserve anything they get, short of death.

At any rate, we were visiting my parents in Mississippi and I was certain that I could find true sympathy there. They made sympathetic noises, but I got a letter a couple of days ago which revealed their true feelings.

"Dear son," wrote my father. "It was a nice visiting with you and the boy. Also, we want to

It is impossible to say what a car is going to do, especially when cranked in gear. A man, whose name could not be determined, cranked his car on Third Street, near the Proctor Hotel, early this morning and the machine darted off before he could get into it, and ran almost half a block before crashing into the tailorshop and an adjoining house at the corner of Third and Cotanche Streets. A woman, who was sitting in the car attempting to manipulate the gears while the man did the cranking, became frightened and jumped to safety before the crash. Only minor damage was done to the two buildings and car but the incident excited considerable curiosity among pedestrians who happened to be along the street at the time.

Some Declare Dollar 'Devalued'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Has the United States devalued the dollar?

The U.S. government says no. Foreigners are inclined to agree that the dollar hasn't been devalued but says it should be. And the foreign currency exchange markets have not rendered a conclusive answer.

Nevertheless, some observers and involved parties are saying openly that the dollar has been devalued. What's the difference, they say, if other currencies are forced to revalue or the dollar is devalued? The distinctions aren't clear.

In fact, it's largely a matter of formality. The United States hasn't officially devalued and isn't likely to do so despite growing pressures from abroad.

Officially, the only way the dollar can be devalued is to raise the price of gold from $35 an ounce. That was the price the United States guaranteed for the dollar; but that convertibility has been abrogated.

It means that for the time being, the United States declines to convert into gold the dollars held by foreign central banks. Without this link, the dollar becomes what traders are willing to pay for it. It is floating.

In all probability this means that the value of some foreign currencies will rise in relation to the dollar. The feeling is that the rates were out of proportion for years.

Confirmation of this, however, did not come from foreign exchange transactions in the first day of trading since President Nixon's pronouncement on Aug. 15. Very little movement was noted, although the tempo picked up on the second day.

Monetary analysts feel that eventually—nobody seems to know when—the Japanese yen will rise by about 10 per cent, the German mark by a somewhat smaller percentage, the French franc by maybe 3 to 5 per cent and the British pound by 1 or 2 per cent at most.

If other currencies are therefore worth more in relation to the dollar it has the very same effect as a devaluation—but only in relation to certain currencies. It could develop that the dollar may rise in relation to other currencies, although certainly not those of major nations.

In his news conference Aug. 16, Treasury Secretary John Connally gave this explanation: "Now in my own judgment, the dollar is going to rise vis-avis some currencies of the world. It may decline vis-a-vis other currencies in the world. But to say that it is a devaluation, I think, is a premature judgment."

The distinction is this: If the United States had raised the price of gold it would have meant that all currencies that are convertible into dollars would be worth more—because the United States would give more gold for them.

In using the tactic it did, the United States permitted itself to be selective. And it avoided the stigma that goes with outright devaluation, which usually is associated with failure.

The U.S. tactic was to toss the ball to the other nations and let them do something with it. They had been highly critical of the United States and had long been insisting that it take action.

The action they had in mind, however, was for the United States to restore the dollar's value by a harsh domestic program to reduce inflation.

Now that the United States has acted, foreign nations must decide what to do. They must revalue their currencies or recognize that inevitably the marketplace will do it for them. Since any revaluation will hurt their trade balances with the United States, they are reluctant to act, but act they must.

Pressures now seem to be developing to make the United States devalue officially. That, too, would deny foreign nations their advantage in American markets, but it also would embarrass the United States and force it to share the pain.

Lt. Gov. Taylor Talks More Like A Candidate

ATLANTIC BEACH, N.C. (AP) — Sounding more and more like a candidate for governor, Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor said Tuesday night North Carolina must undertake "a major, critical re-evaluation of everything we are doing" in crime prevention.

Taylor, considered the front-runner for the Democratic nomination for governor, is expected to make an official announcement of his candidacy soon.

In a talk to the North Carolina Law Enforcement Officers Association, Taylor pointed out that he campaigned for lieutenant governor three years ago on the "law and order" issue.

"After I was elected, I tried to do something about it," he said. "The fact is, we are doing something about improving law enforcement."

The lieutenant governor pointed out that both the 1969 and 1971 legislatures "made substantial increases in funds for the attorney general's office and for other law enforcement needs."

Noting that he is responsible for appointing Senate committees and for presiding over the Senate, Taylor said, "I gave these appropriations my full support because I am concerned about these problems."

Taylor told the law enforcement officers that crime prevention should begin with the young, especially through educational and socio-economic programs.

Discussing the drug problem, Taylor said, "over-all, our efforts must be judged a failure. For the problem is not diminishing. It is not under control. It is growing larger and more serious."

Of crime and delinquency in general, the lieutenant governor said preventive efforts should be directed at "the man who has nothing to lose (for he) will not be deterred from crime by the threat of detection and punishment."

"We have to help those children and young people who have nothing to lose," he said. "We have to give their parents a better chance to function as parents. Where necessary, we have to feed hungry children. It won't spoil them.

"We need to improve the relationships between these kind of children and the schools . . . to get a state kindergarten program in full operation," Taylor continued.

"We need to provide more and better opportunities for job training for those who are not equipped to go to college. We need economic development which creates opportunities for them to use this training," he said.

clash between Annenberg and Greene stems from an unbridgeable personality conflict, in which key Embassy department heads, working through the direct lines of command to the Ambassador that Annenberg has fostered, sided with Annenberg.

Greene is now awaiting reassignment from the State Department, with an outside chance that he will resign outright.

A footnote: Despite the comedy of errors that he committed when President Nixon first sent him to London in 1969, Annenberg's overall performance is now rated as good, although highly unorthodox.

Meany vs. Nixon

The failure of President Nixon or any top Administration official to soften up AFL-CIO president George Meany last weekend, when the 90-day wage-price freeze was announced, was bitterly resented at AFL-CIO headquarters and may have helped spark Meany's cold fury.

Secretary of Labor James Hodgson was under wraps until the President made his announcement. All he did was call Meany's home and leave word with Meany's son that his father should be sure to watch Mr. Nixon's televised speech that night — the identical treatment given to leading Washington journalists.

Major Roy McMullen, World War II ace, who was shot down in his fighter plane near the end of the war, was stationed in Germany in 1961 as commander of a squadron. One day he was visited by Friedrich von Ralston, a Luftwaffe fighter pilot who had been appointed liaison officer to Major McMullen's outfit.

The two started exchanging war stories and Von Ralston told of the day he shot down a P-38 over Stuttgart.

"I was shot down over Stuttgart," Major McMullen said, "on November 12, 1944, in a P-38."

"That's the day I shot down the plane," Von Ralston said excitedly. "It was number 345."

"Then you shot me down," Major McMullen said.

"Yah," Von Ralston said, "It was me."

"Why you no good S.O.B.," Major McMullen said, and hit Von Ralston right in the teeth.

Chuck Winthrop, who weighed only 140 pounds, was too light to make the Wallaboo University football team, but he tried so hard that the coach took pity on him and let him suit up for every game, though he always kept him on the bench.

In the final game of the year against Wallaboo's archrivals, Gozonga Tech, Wallaboo's first-string quarterback was injured in the second quarter. In the final quarter, Wallaboo's second-string quarterback was also injured. Gozonga was leading 6-0.

The coach looked down the bench and his eyes met Chuck's.

"Please, coach," pleaded Chuck. "My parents came 2,000 miles to see me play. Send me in."

The coach shook his head. "You're too light."

"It's my last year. Just let me play for a few minutes," Chuck cried.

The coach got up from the bench and walked over to Chuck. He put his hand on his shoulder and he said, "No, you're too light. We'll finish up the game without a quarterback."

And Wallaboo did. The final score was still 6-0.

Kentucky Warns Strip Miners

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI)—The nation's largest producer of strip-mined coal has set up a point system to assure that strip mine operators reclaim the land disturbed by surface mining.

The Kentucky Reclamation Commission said points would be assessed operators from one to five for poor regrading and revegetation work.

Suppressed Chicago Indictments Aired

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — "I've done absolutely nothing wrong," State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan says of a special grand jury indictment charging him with conspiracy to prevent prosecution of eight policemen who killed two Black Panther party leaders in a weapons raid.

Hanrahan, hand-picked by Mayor Richard J. Daley to run for the politically powerful state's attorney office in 1968, was named in a long-suppressed indictment made public Tuesday along with 13 other police officials. The indictment was returned by a special Cook County (Chicago) grand jury.

Daley echoed Hanrahan's statements.

"Where's the evidence? Where's the obstruction of justice? No one with any sense would answer a question like that today," the mayor said.

The Dec. 4, 1969, raids in which Fred Hampton and Mark Clark were killed was embroiled in controversy from the outset.

Raiding officers said they drew gunfire when they attempted to serve a search warrant at Hampton's West Side apartment during the predawn hours that day.

They said more than 200 rounds were fired at them from the apartment and that in returning the shots Hampton, 21, and Clark, 22, were killed. They said they found 19 weapons in the apartment.

Black Panthers contended the biracial raiding party opened fire without provocation and that Hampton was killed as he slept.

A federal grand jury which investigated the case in the spring of 1970 said police had fired at least 90 shots into the apartment, but that evidence presented to it indicated only one shot could have been fired from the apartment. No indictments were returned, however.

Hampton was the Black Panther leader for Illinois. Clark was a Panther leader from Peoria, Ill.

The indictment of Hanrahan was made public at the order of the Illinois Supreme Court, ending weeks of speculation that Hanrahan and other city officials linked to Daley, one of the nation's most powerful Democrats were to be named.

Supt. James B. Conlisk Jr. of the Chicago Police Department, another long-time friend of Daley, was named a co-conspirator but was not indicted.

Richard Jalovec, an assistant to Hanrahan, eight policemen who participated in the raid, and four policemen assigned to the investigation of police conduct during the raid were named in the charges, which had been voted in April, reaffirmed and sealed in June.

The indictment also charged the defendants with attempting to obstruct the defense of seven Panthers who survived the raid and were charged by Hanrahan with attempting to murder policemen who conducted the raid. The charges were later dismissed.

The grand jury did not recommend the issuance of arrest warrants or the setting of bond.

The charge of obstructing justice may be prosecuted either as a felony or misdemeanor. Penalty for conviction on the felony charge is a maximum $1,000 fine and three years in prison. Penalty for a misdemeanor conviction is a maximum $1,000 fine and one year in prison.

The indictment listed 21 special acts involving one or more of the defendants. These included:

—Allegations that Hanrahan, Jalovec and the eight policemen who participated in the raid gave "false and misleading information concerning the events ... to the Chicago Tribune, which resulted in an exclusive article printed Dec. 11, 1969 ... which article was false and misleading."

—Allegations that Hanrahan and Jalovec prepared for television a re-enactment of the raid, "which re-enactment was false and misleading ..."

—Hanrahan was cited for presenting Jan. 8, 1970, to the regular grand jury "evidence which he knew or reasonably should have known, to be false and inflammatory in order to produce the indictment" of the seven raid survivors.

—John Sadunas, a mobile evidence technician, was specified as having prepared a report which included "positive identification of two shot shells allegedly fired from a 12-gauge shotgun by an occupant of the apartment ... which he knew, or should have known, was false, inaccurate and not based upon an adequate firearms examination."

—Judge Joseph A. Power, chief of the criminal division of Circuit Court, ordered convening of the special grand jury last summer, after the federal grand jury, a regular county grand jury and a coroner's inquest probed the shooting and issued no charges.

The coroner's inquest ruled the deaths of Hampton and Clark justifiable homicide.

Power named Barnabas F. Sears, a highly respected Chicago lawyer, as special prosecutor and the special grand jury started its investigation in December 1970.

The investigation proceeded without incident until late April when Chicago newspapers reported that the special jury was prepared to indict Hanrahan.

At the same time, Judge Power ordered Sears to call before the special jury all the witnesses who appeared before the federal jury.

Sears refused. Power held him in contempt and ordered the jury not to conclude its investigation. Power also heard petitions from lawyers representing Hanrahan's assistant and the policemen involved in the raid that the jury be discharged and that any indictments be suppressed until it could be determined if publicity or alleged pressure from Sears had tainted the indictments.

The Illinois Supreme Court ruled June 23 that Power, once a member of the same law firm with which Daley started, could not order the jury to hear more witnesses. Two days later, Sears handed up the in-sealed and they remained dictments. Power ordered them sealed until Tuesday.

Horse Vaccination Program Scheduled

RALEIGH (AP) — A vaccination program to protect North Carolina horses from the killer disease Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis (VEE) will get under way soon, Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham announced Tuesday.

Graham said that his department will announce the time and place of vaccinations which are to be administered by veterinarians who will be reimbursed by the federal government to no cost to the horse owners.

"The vaccination program is mandatory for all horses and equine stock if the animals are to be moved from the owner's premises," Graham stated. "They can be moved, of course, to the designated places of vaccination."

"The USDA's approval for a vaccination program for North Carolina is wonderful news to me, our horse owners and all our people," said Graham.

Woman Receives A New Kidney

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Doctors at Baptist Hospital performed their fifth kidney transplant Tuesday.

Mrs. Mildred Irene Eaker, 41, of Cherryville received a kidney in a four-hour operation. The kidney was donated by her brother, Warren Clay Cloer, 38, of Raleigh.

She was listed in satisfactory condition Tuesday night.

Prison Term For Drug Violations

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Fayetteville youth who pleaded guilty to possession of heroin and conspiracy to violate state drug laws has been sentenced to 12 to 15 years in prison.

The sentence was imposed by Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey Tuesday on Mark S. Warren, 22, of Fayetteville, after the state accepted a plea of guilty to a second offense on the charges.

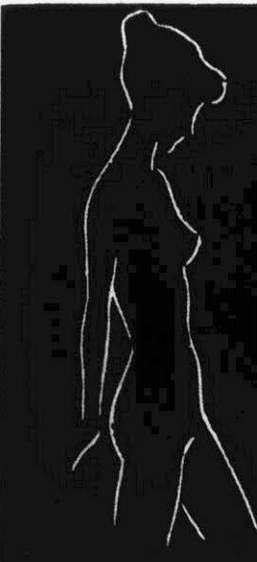

Warren, arrested Aug. 10, was accused of being a three-time offender.

Sign Language Helped A Judge

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A Criminal Court judge used sign language Tuesday to question Phillip Dignon, a deaf mute charged with a traffic violation, before passing sentence.

"I was embarrassed," said Judge Everett Richardson. "I hadn't used sign language in years and years." He said he learned the technique while living with a first cousin who was a deaf mute.

Judge Richardson stopped attorneys who began laboriously communicating with the defendant in handwritten notes and used hand talk to communicate with Dignon. In a few minutes, the charge of reckless driving was explained by the judge, Dignon pleaded guilty and was placed on probation for one year.

ECU Kitchens Fill A Seasonal Slack Fixing Kiddies' Lunches

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

When the masses of East Carolina students go home for the summer, cooks in the ARA food services kitchen are left holding their spatulas.

With no hamburgers to flip and no vegetables to serve, many employees of the company which services the ECU food lines find themselves without jobs until fall. This problem is being somewhat remedied this summer by ARA's taking over preparing bag lunches and snacks for children in recreational programs in several Eastern North Carolina communities, according to ARA manager Harry Pitts.

ARA (The letters do not stand for anything, Pitts said.) is a company which services cafeterias and other facilities which sell food at universities and other institutions throughout the nation. This private enterprise system is in its second year at East Carolina University, servicing the cafeterias and making sandwiches for the snack shops.

Nash-Edgcombe Economic Development Inc. and Martin County Community Action both contracted with ARA for the food service to provide nourishing food for children in recreational programs in their area. Both have had government grants to feed the children, but had found they could not break even preparing the food themselves.

So for 50 cents per child per day, ARA prepares two snacks and a lunch and the sponsoring agency picks up the required number here in Greenville and distributes them.

A typical day's menu would be as follows: morning snack — fig newton and apple juice; lunch — pickle and pimento loaf on an enriched bun, fortified margarine, orange juice, and milk; afternoon snack — raisins and chocolate chip cookies. About one-third of the child's nutritional requirements for the day are met, Pitts said.

"We have been trying to supplement the nourishment of these underprivileged children for some time," said Lonzie McKeithen, executive director of Nash-Edgcombe Economic Development, Inc. "ARA's taking over preparation has really been a help to us. We had not been able to even break even, trying to make sandwiches and assemble the other food ourselves. Now we just have the distribution job. We send a truck to Greenville each morning and then deliver so many lunches to each of 12 locations throughout the two counties we serve."

Pitts says ARA's profit per child per day is one cent. "This isn't a large amount," he said, "but it's enough that we are glad to continue through the summer so we can keep some of our employees at work. We hope that the program now in session will be expanded next year and that similar program may be started in other Eastern North Carolina counties. We think we have here a happy arrangement for everyone involved."

Phasing Out The Styrofoam Cups

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI)—Styrofoam cups, which pose a disposal problem because they do not deteriorate in a land-fill dump, are being phased out on the University of California's Davis campus.

The styrofoam cups will be replaced with biodegradable paper cups which are suitable for both hot and cold beverages. This latest change in campus purchasing policy goes hand-in-hand with other efforts such as the change to biodegradable soaps on campus, the recycling of tab card stock and the collection of silver and mercury wastes from laboratories.

New Recruiter At Local Office

Sgt. George S. Washington, a native of Lenoir County, has joined the Greenville Army Recruiting office and will handle recruiting duties in the northern sector of the county.

Washington, who replaced local recruiter SFC David school and airborne training and soon received orders for his first overseas tour.

Washington has earned the Combat Infantryman Badge, Bronze Star, Good Conduct Medal, National Defense Medal, Vietnamese Service and Vietnamese Campaign Medals and wears both Distinguished Unit and Valorous Unit Citations. In addition, he earned his parachutists badge and qualified with expert rating on both the M-16 rifle and .45 caliber pistol.

The recruiter, who shares local and area duties with SFC Jim Moore, noted that he would be handling, in addition to the northern part of Greenville, the towns of Bethel, Farmville, Stokes, and Fountain and their surrounding areas.

SSgt. G. S. WASHINGTON

Strauss following the latter's relocation to Clinton recently, assumed duties here in July.

The new recruiter, a veteran of three tours in Vietnam, served as a drill sergeant at Ft. Jackson, S.C. before being assigned to duty in Greenville. Washington's third tour in Southeast Asia ended in June of last year, he pointed out.

Currently in his seventh year of active military duty, Washington entered the Army in June of 1964 and received both basic training and infantry training at Ft. Gordon, Ga. Following AIT, he was assigned to Ft. Benning, Ga. for jump

Salvaged Bits Of Glass Usable

NEW YORK (UPI)—The technology of glass recycling may make it possible for old bottles to provide glass for new bottles even after they have passed through the fiery heat of a modern refuse incinerator.

The Glass Container Manufacturers Institute reports ways have been discovered to extract glass fragments —and the metal residue left from cans as well —from the unburned ash that stays behind after the other refuse has been consumed by high-temperature incineration.

After removal, the salvaged bits of glass are scanned by light beams, which automatically sort them according to color. The material is then considered suitable for being melted down with sand and other substances to make glass for new containers.

Spend $2 Million To Combat VD

TORONTO (UPI) — Ontario will spend $2 million this year—$50,000 more than in 1970—to fight venereal disease, says Health Minister Thomas Wells.

Wells said the 9,368 cases reported in 1970 was the highest in the province since 1946 and that the increased budget would be used for establishment of three new clinics, free medication and a publicity campaign aimed at educating the public about venereal disease.

UNREST HITS TEA

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI)—Pakistan will import 10 million pounds of tea this year to meet Pakistan's tea shortage caused by disturbances in East Pakistan, authorities said.

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — At the start, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger pledged himself to judicial reform, to moving the nation's courts into "the super-market age."

"I intend to take an active part," he said at a judicial conference in July 1969, a week after being sworn in. An examination of his record after 26 months on the job shows that some of his favored projects, including prison reform and establishment of a national center for state courts, are moving ahead.

Almost Lost A Houseboat

COINJOCK, N.C. (AP) — Two New Yorkers made plans Tuesday to haul their 36-foot houseboat back to Long Island after their craft almost sank in Alligator River Monday.

Murry and Doris Gilbert, both nonswimmers radioed the Coast Guard Monday afternoon that their boat, the Doray, was sinking in the mouth of the river.

The Gilberts, who are school teachers, were vacationing when they were caught by rough seas.

A C-130 rescue plane and a helicopter were sent to the scene.

The pilot of the helicopter, Lt. Kyle Jane, said the boat was sinking when he arrived. A crew member, C. E. McLaurin, was lowered to the boat. He placed portable pumps into operation.

McLaurin said for 15 minutes the boat's entire bow was under water and "it was touch and go."

PERMANENT HONOR
KARACHI (UPI) — Honor guards from Pakistan's army, navy and air force will become a permanent fixture at the mausoleum of Pakistan's founder, Quaid-I-Azam Mohammad Ali Jinnah, authorities announced.

terest in Burger's idea that he be invited annually for a report on "the state of the federal judiciary" and the chief justice has had to settle for the American Bar Association as a substitute audience.

He's had better luck at the White House, persuading President Nixon through the intercession of Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell to publicly promote the state court center last March as "one of the most exciting projects in the recent history of our American judicial system." It was launched three months later.

At the core of Burger's reform proposals is the conviction that judges, particularly top judges, should not have to spend their time on administrative details.

There has been little public disagreement at a time when most Americans have either experienced delay in the courts or read about it, although some House members grumbled last month about providing Burger with a $40,000 administrative assistant, a $22,897 legal assistant and another secretary.

The bill passed. Senate approval is considered a cinch. More important, last year Congress authorized the hiring of one administrator in each of the 11 federal judicial circuits at a salary of up to $36,000.

Finding candidates for the jobs has been difficult. None of the posts has been filled. The new National Center for State Courts was launched in June with a $25,000 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. A board of directors was named this week. The center is designed to help the states pool ideas about modernizing their courts. The Federal Judicial Center performs this function for the U.S. courts.

Burger has also called for upgrading legal education with practical experience for students. "Some people suffer," he has said, "because lawyers are licensed, with very few exceptions, without the slightest inquiry into their capacity to perform the intensely practical functions of a counselor or an advocate."

The ABA picked up the theme quickly with an announcement of a $900,000 study conducted by W. Willard Wirtz, a former secretary of Labor, but the sponsors failed to obtain the expected funding. Now a special committee has been appointed by the ABA to reconsider the idea.

One method of change Burger favors is to have clinics at the law schools to bring students directly in touch with clients and their problems. In 1968, Congress authorized $7.5 million a year to set up clinics but has never appropriated a cent.

Congress is moving slowly on another Burger suggestion—creation of a judiciary council to report to the President, to Congress and to federal judges "on a wide range of matters affecting the judicial branch." Bills have been introduced but there have been no hearings.

A Senate Judiciary Committee aide said the reason is "we have matters of higher priority." Among them is a proposal that has been dormant for a decade and is very much to Burger's liking. This calls for revising the jurisdiction of federal courts to shift whole categories of cases to state courts or to administrative agencies. The most time-consuming of these are injury suits that grow out of automobile accidents. Senate hearings may begin next month.

Prison reform is one of Burger's principal objectives. He has called existing prisons "noncorrecting correctional systems" and joined a reform campaign advanced by Bernard G. Segal, a Philadelphia lawyer, when he was president of the ABA.

Backed by a $250,000 Ford Foundation grant, the ABA has set up a Commission on Correctional Facilities headed by former Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey.

Among the major projects of the Commission are providing volunteer lawyers to serve as assistant parole officers and encouraging correctional workers to enroll in junior colleges.

Chaotic Week For A Secretary

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Henry G. Bosz, Maryland's secretary of personnel, says he's never been through such a chaotic week examining and explaining details of President Nixon's 90-day wage-price-rent freeze.

Appearing Tuesday with Gov. Marvin Mandel, Bosz said, "The day after the President's speech ... I tried to get someone at the Office of Emergency Planning who could tell me just what effects it would have in Maryland."

"Some sweet old lady assured me that if I would send my questions to the office, she was certain that I would receive an answer within 90 days."

County Schools

(Continued from page A-1) having been opened for eight months, plus the fact that Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central will be operating for the first time this fall, the above schedule for orientation has been planned in order to enable the principal and his staff to work out some of the problems associated with the opening of new and more complex buildings and programs," Alford explained.

All high school students and elementary students will be dismissed at 12:30 p.m. on Sept. 2 and 3.

"Personnel will remain at the school each afternoon during the first week for the purpose of making adjustments in the schedules," Alford noted. "Each principal will devote his time to transportation matters which will have to be resolved."

Labor Day will be observed as a holiday by all the schools with Sept. 7 scheduled to be the first full day of operation. The lunchrooms will be open on that date and all other school-related activities will get underway.

"I encourage motorists to exercise caution since there will be 178 buses on the road, beginning Sept. 2. This includes 22 buses which will be administered by the Greenville City Schools, with the remaining number to be supervised by the County School System," emphasized Alford.

Continuing, the school superintendent said, "Motorists, parents, patrons and others are requested to notify the school principal or transportation supervisor, Lelon Forlines, or my office if they observe buses which are being operated recklessly."

"Buses are not to be moving with the doors open nor are students to be standing if there is sufficient seating space," Alford stated. "All stopping points have to be approved by the school principal and there will be no stops for 'Pepsi and nabs' at filling stations."

Parents should not hesitate to contact the school office or the superintendent's office about matters which concern them and their children.

Post Guards In Wake Of Fires

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Security guards posted after fires destroyed or heavily damaged two Henderson County schools saved a third building early today.

Sheriff Albert Jackson said the guards discovered flames in the office of the Hillendale Elementary School and quickly extinguished them, restricting damage to the curtains and blinds.

Jackson said the fire was started by cloth that had been soaked in a flammable liquid and then thrown into the office. He said arson was also suspected in fires last week at Flat Rock Junior High and Balfour Elementary.

Approve Lumbee Indian Grant

RALEIGH (AP) — The U.S. Department of Labor has approved an $187,250 grant for the Lumbee Indians in Robeson County, State Republican Jim Holshouser announced Tuesday. Holshouser said the grant called for $150,000 for out-of-school Neighborhood Youth Corps projects and $37,250 for 50 in-school Neighborhood Youth Corps projects.

"This new grant will bring employment and opportunity to many young Lumbees otherwise trapped in a bleak cycle of meager education and impoverishment," said the GOP leader.

Plane Crashed In Parking Lot

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — A father and his 15-year-old son were reported in satisfactory condition after their light plane crashed in the parking lot of an industrial plant on the outskirts of Morganton Tuesday.

Frank Sprinkle, 42, and his son, Benny, were reported flying a plane owned by the Sprinkle Oil Co. of Morganton and used by the elder Sprinkle in stunt flying.

The plane came down in the parking lot and crashed into the plant of the Dixie Container Corp. No other injuries were reported.

Back-To-School Time Warning For Motorists

Greenville motorists were cautioned today to be especially watchful for children walking and riding bicycles to and from school when classes begin here for another year Friday.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon, in commenting on safety practices, urged drivers to drive a bit slower in areas around school and be especially watchful for children crossing streets and possibly darting into streets while playing with other children as they walk.

Drivers should be cautious of bicycles, the police official suggested, saying that many times young bicycle riders are not aware of the nearness of passing cars and may turn into the path of a vehicle or run through a stop sign into the path of a moving car.

Chief Cannon noted that while motorists have a responsibility to watch out for children walking and riding bicycles, the children and their parents have a responsibility also.

He suggested that parents instruct their children in the proper ways to cross streets and in the rules-of-the-road of bicycle riding.

It would be good, According to Chief Cannon, if parents would walk with their children in a "dry run" at least once to help plan the fastest and safest route to the school.

Children walking to school should make use of protected crossings as much as possible, Chief Cannon noted. There are 15 points where school crossing guards are stationed to help children cross busy streets, he said.

Children using these crossings should wait until signaled by the crossing guard before crossing. And as crossing any other street, the children should look both ways then walk across the street...don't run.

And children should not walk between two cars to cross the street. Cross only at intersections or where marked crosswalks are located, Chief Cannon noted.

Bicycle riders, the official said, should obey all traffic laws, including giving signals when turning and riding on the righthand side of the street just as cars do. Stop signs and traffic lights are meant to be obeyed by bicycle riders as well as cars, according to Chief Cannon.

The chief urged bicycle owners to comply with the city ordinance requiring registration of bicycles. He noted such registration helps identify the rightful owner of lost or stolen bicycles.

He too, urged bicycle riders to lock their bicycles in an effort to prevent their theft.

Parents driving their children to school, Chief Cannon said, are encouraged to use courtesy in the heavy traffic, and where possible, follow a course that will allow students to get out of the cars nest to the curb at the school. He said this will prevent children from having to cross the street in heavy traffic and run the risk of being hit by a passing car.

Too Slow, Slain By Store-Robber

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas V. Higgins was unharmed with the combination on the supermarket safe, and missed it the first time around. He never got to try it again.

Higgins moved too slow to please one of four robbers of a bodega supermarket in the Flatbush section of the Brooklyn Tuesday, and the bandit shot and killed the 58-year-old assistant store manager, police said.

Higgins is normally assigned to another store in the chain, but was filling in for the vacationing manager of the store that the four robbers entered.

Three stole $781 from the cash registers while the fourth confronted Higgins and ordered the safe opened.

All four robbers escaped in a waiting car.

Zincone Speaks At Lions Club Meet

The Greenville Lions Club heard Monday night an appraisal of Pres. Nixon's recent economic policies by L. H. Zincone Jr., chairman of the East Carolina University Department of Economics.

It is Zincone's felling that unemployment would have leveled off by the end of this year anyway, but that possibly Pres. Nixon's wage-price freeze will assist it on its way. Two reasons for unemployment that are not part of the business cycle were noted: the larger fraction of our labor force between 18 and 21 years old and the reduction in spending for defense, space, and the SST which placed a few large employers in the doldrums.

The floating of the dollar, he said, will definitely lead to some fall in its value in terms of other currencies. The ultimate result, he predicts, will be devaluation of the dollar.

The reduction of the tax on automobiles is a direct and unabashed effort to lower the unemployment statistic without regard for the underlying implications for resource allocation, pollution problems, congestion, and the whole question of a viable national mass transportation system.

He called the wage-price freeze "a psychological tool," intended to break the feeling that prices will continue to rise forever. Although labor does not seem happy about the freeze now, if the psychology can be broken and contracts renegotiated downward to uninflationary levels, the policy will have worked, he said.

Furman, No Longer Football For Fun Bunch, Prepares In Earnest

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

A few years ago, when it became Coach Bob King's turn to talk at the Southern Conference Rouser, one of his favorite subjects was the school's mascot, a white horse named Mighty White Man.

Then in more recent times, his team got laughs as the "Football for Fun" Bunch.

But after last year, there is no one laughing at Furman's Paladins, and Coach King likes it that way, although he admits that football need not be all serious.

This was pointed out when King won the first prize at a "story-telling" contest among the football coaches during the Rouser.

Last year, Furman, picked to battle it out with VMI for the Southern cinderella, got off to a start that looked like the Paladins might just end up there. VMI beat them in the opener, 13-0, but they snapped back after that and after being 2-2 after their first four, surprised Richmond, 23-9. They beat Davidson the next week before finally losing to East Carolina, 7-0, as their last efforts to score failed in the final seconds of play. They came back to beat The Citadel at the close of the season and finished 8-3, with King earning Coach of the Year honors.

Now, there is another year ready to begin. Furman isn't picked to win the title, but they could take the spoiler role in the league.

"I'm basically an optimist," King said, "but I can't find any reason to be optimistic about our season."

King, who has a good offensive nucleus to build around, provides a paradox, however in his next statement. "Defensively," he says, "we are not as bad as we are offensively."

The Paladins lost their safety and a linebacker, but he feels that he had adequate replacements at the linebacker slot. These are Gary Bryant and Ivey Stewart, and King feels he has some good sophomores behind them. They include Bob Neel, Keith Downey and Terry McIntosh.

"We spend most of the spring on offense," King said. "We're going to spend some more time on defense this fall."

At the safety spot, a sophomore could break into the lineup, and the likely candidates are Jimmy Hagelthorn and Wayne Wilson.

"We lost some offensive starters who will hurt us," King said, "and we are going to need some good fortune."

Graduated from the Paladin offense are both of their top receivers, Byron Trotter and Phil Howle, and another member of the line, a guard, who died in an automobile accident on the campus.

"We like to be deep at the quarterback position, and we are," King said. Returning here is John DeLeo, who rushed for 253 yards and passed for 882 more, along with backup man John Wolfrom, who can play about any position.

Another bright spot in the backfield is returning running back Steve Crislip, the leading rusher last year. He picked up 871 yards and scored 62 points during last season.

Flanker Blake Carlyle, end Mike Martik and end John Monferdini are also top prospects in the Paladin plans for 1971.

Others slated to see a lot of action in the offensive lineup are backs Mike Johnson, Jack Delong and Joe Farry, center Brent Theiling, tackle Peyton Barton, guard Steve Warren and Tom Scherich.

Back on defense are ends David Shi and George Harbin, tackle Paul Wickswat and guard Bruce Crowe. A soph Dan Utley is expected to be a strong candidate for a starting line slot.

The Paladins continue to play a so-called "minor" schedule. This year, they meet Presbyterian, Wofford, VMI, Western Carolina, Davidson, Richmond, East Carolina, Guilford, The Citadel, Carson-Newman and Appalachian.

But King doesn't mind that there are few top caliber teams on the slate. "It's a tragedy when a school is over-scheduled," he pointed to VMI and Clemson as examples of this.

"Vito (Ragazzo-former VMI Coach, now an ECU assistant) was a victim of circumstances. Nobody could have won against that schedule," King said.

King doesn't feel he is getting as much support financially as he would like to have for the Paladins. "But we're in a tough area. Clemson and South Carolina are quite close.

"But I don't feel the football program is in bad shape financially. We may not pay our way, but then neither does the chemistry department, and I haven't heard anyone advocating dropping chemistry."

Browns Ride Shakey Knees

By JOHN R. SKINNER

Associated Press Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — The title hopes of the Cleveland Browns in the American Conference's Central Division this season may very well rest with a pair of knees that even Frankenstein wouldn't want.

The knees, minus cartilage, belong to veteran quarterback Bill Nelsen, who new Coach Nick Skorich would like to keep on the bench in a backup role all season.

Inexperienced Mike Phipps, the club's top draft choice in 1969, is being groomed for the job, but he has not been able to consistently move the offense.

If Phipps doesn't improve satisfactorily before the regular season begins, Nelsen will get the call despite the fact Skorich doesn't think Nelsen can survive the season without another injury that would probably end his career.

"We know we can win with Bill Nelsen," Skorich said. Conditioning, he said, has brought Nelsen's knees "back to where they were before they were hurt in the second game last year," and adds, "He's throwing the ball better." Nelsen threw for 16 touchdowns and 2,156 yards in 1970 despite the injury.

The Browns running game was sub-par last season when the team finished 7-7, second worst in team history. Part of the problem was due to injuries to Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott and part of it due to the line blocking.

"They (the line) had a lot of unfair criticism," Skorich said. He blamed the blocking problems on "different types of defensive spacings we were facing" in the AFC. He said the line has now adjusted and "we have also made offensive changes to meet that type of defense."

"Defensive spacings have eliminated the sweep," Skorich said of the Browns' big gainer play of previous years. He said he would counter with quarterback audibles for the sweep at the line of scrimmage this season because "You have to be prepared to take it (the sweep) when you can get it."

With rookie Bo Cornwell and veterans Steve Engel and Reece Morrison fighting for backup running roles and with strong receivers in tight ends Milt Morin and Chip Glass and wide receivers including Gary Collins, Fair Hooker and rookie Paul Staroba, the rest of the offensive line looks strong.

Skorich feels he has a strong middle offensive line with center Fred Hoaglin and guards Gene Hickerson and John DeMarie, backed by Jim Copeland. Veteran Dick Schafrath holds down one tackle post but an adequate right tackle is being sought among Bob McKay, Al Jenkins and Mitch Johnson. A trade is a possibility.

The defensive line of tackles Jerry Sherk and Walter Johnson and ends Joe Jones and Jack Gregory may be the club's strongest suit, and Skorich feels that the linebacking, led by veterans Jim Houston, Dale Lindsey and Billy Anderson, will be improved and adequate. Rookie Charlie Hall may be a starting linebacker before the season ends, Skorich said.

Rookie cornerback Clarence Scott, the club's 1971 top draft pick, and veteran Ben Davis are expected to give the Browns new speed and strength at the corners and veterans Ernie Kellermann, Walt Sumner and Mike Howell supply depth at safeties.

Rookies Guy Homoly and Stan Brown are expected to provide much-needed improvement in punt and kickoff returns.

Don Cockroft has made only 24 of 45 field goal tries the past two years and Skorich said he expects near perfect accuracy within the 30-yard line this year and 75 per cent conversion success overall or he'll be looking for a new kicker in 1972.

Black Girl Is Newest Jockey

By JOHN R. SKINNER

Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — "They can't really say it's experience," mutters young Cheryl White. "It has to be the fact I'm a girl or the fact I'm black."

Two months ago the 17-year-old country girl from Rome, about 50 miles east of Cleveland, was graduated from high school, then broke a barrier of sorts by becoming the nation's first black female jockey.

Since that June 15 inaugural, a last-place finish aboard Ace Reward at Thistledown in Cleveland, it's been rough riding—or, more precisely, rough getting rides—Cheryl complains. She blames it on racial and sexual prejudice.

"I think with certain people it's a little bit of both—but then I guess it's mostly being a girl, I would say, because two other riders, apprentice jockeys that started after I did, have no trouble getting out."

She might never have gotten a mount had it not been for the fact her father, Robert is a trainer. The 19 rides she has managed since her debut have been on horses he owns.

He's been a trainer since 1927 and has been at Thistledown for 19 years. Cheryl has been his constant companion at the track for several years.

"I figured since I'd been here for years that a lot of trainers would give me a shot because I've been around and I know them," said the poised teenager. "But I found out the hard way."

She has posted two seconds and two thirds in her brief appearances, all but one of the thirds accomplished in four starts at Waterford Park in West Virginia.

Patty West was the leading rider at Waterford before she went to Pocono Downs in Pennsylvania, Cheryl notes.

"She almost rides at least five a night," she said. "It's just the difference in people, I guess. You have to have the chance. You have to have the horses under you. And that's what I haven't had."

Cheryl wants to make riding a career but will enter Bowling Green next year to pursue a degree in education, said she plans to ride at the Meadows which opens in October in Pennsylvania and then go to Florida.

Lou Saban is coach and general manager of the Denver Broncos football team.

Lorenzen Out Of His Plymouth

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "The Plymouth is not competitive and I don't want to race in anything unless I can win," stock car racer Fred Lorenzen said Tuesday after confirming that he has abandoned Andy Granatelli's red Plymouth for the rest of the 1971 season.

Lorenzen, the 36-year-old winner of 26 major NASCAR races, and Granatelli, the wealthy oil additive king, didn't shut out the possibility of a sponsorship next year.

Lorenzen's best finish since coming out of retirement last year at the wheel of the STP-sponsored Plymouth was a second-place at Dover, Del. Lorenzen retired in 1968 with a bad case of ulcers.

Jack Finishing Up Playing Year

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PINEHURST, N.C.—(AP) — Jack Nicklaus is nearing the end of his play for this season and already is looking forward to next year and, possibly, another assault on a sweep of golf's Big Four championships.

"I'm only going to play maybe one more regular tour event this year—and that's only maybe," Nicklaus said today before teeing off in the first round of the unique $200,000 United States Professional Match Play championship.

"I've got a pretty heavy European travel schedule this fall," he said.

"And 1972 could be a big year for me, with the Big Four championships being played where they are, and I sure want to be sharp for them."

The Masters, of course, is at Augusta, Ga., the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach, Calif., the British Open at Muirfield in Scotland—and the PGA national championship at Oakland Hills, near Detroit.

"They're all courses I like and that I play reasonably well," said Nicklaus, who, admittedly, was seeking a never-accomplished sweep of those four titles this season.

He got off to a good start with a victory in the PGA, but finished second to Charles Coody in the Masters, lost the U.S. Open in a playoff to Lee Trevino and finished sixth behind Trevino in the British.

But it's been one of the best seasons ever for the Golden Bear.

He's the No. 1 seed in this five-day tournament, has won four times, has finished ninth or better 13 of his 15 starts and, with a leading $205,568 in money winnings, is closing in on his own single season record of $211,556.

Single rounds, with half the 64-man field being eliminated each time, are scheduled today, Thursday and Friday. The quarter-finals and semi-finals are set for Saturday with the two survivors meeting for the $35,000 first prize Sunday on the 6,973 yard, par 72 Country Club of North Carolina course.

Nicklaus went against former PGA champion Ray Floyd in his first round match. Arnold Palmer, No. 2, played Australian Bruce Devlin. Gary Player of South Africa, the No. 3 player making his first start in this country in two months, faced Homero Blancas.

New York Gets More Bad News

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
New York Giants Coach Alex Webster, who's had his share of troubles lately, got some more bad news Tuesday.

Ron Johnson, who rushed for 1,027 yards from his halfback position last season, will be sidelined for the remaining three weeks of training camp because of a thigh injury, which will require surgery.

The injury, a deep bruise on his right thigh, was suffered two months ago when Johnson was playing a pickup basketball game in Ann Arbor, Mich. Some blood which collected within the tissue has not cleared up, so doctors will have to operate to drain it off.

Dr. Anthony Pisani, Giants' team physician, said Johnson might be ready to play in the team's final preseason game, or in the first game of the regular season against Green Bay one week later.

So Webster, whose team dropped its first three exhibition games and who has watched players—including quarterback Fran Tarkenton, the key man in the team's offense—come and go in training camp, now has to worry about his running game, too. Bobby

Heels Put On Pads

The North Carolina Tar Heels worked out in pads for the first time Tuesday after three days of football practice in shorts.

Four players took turns punting as coach Bill Dooley continued his search for a replacement for all-America Don McCauley, who graduated last year. Vying Tuesday were veteran Chris Lee and newcomers Charlie Sink, Nick Vidnovic and Ted Leverenz.

Clemson coach Hootie Ingram watched his team scrimmage and then pronounced the practice "good, despite the usual early mistakes."

He said the contact was "a little spotty" because of players sidelined with bruises and colds.

At Virginia and North Carolina State, the emphasis was on passing.

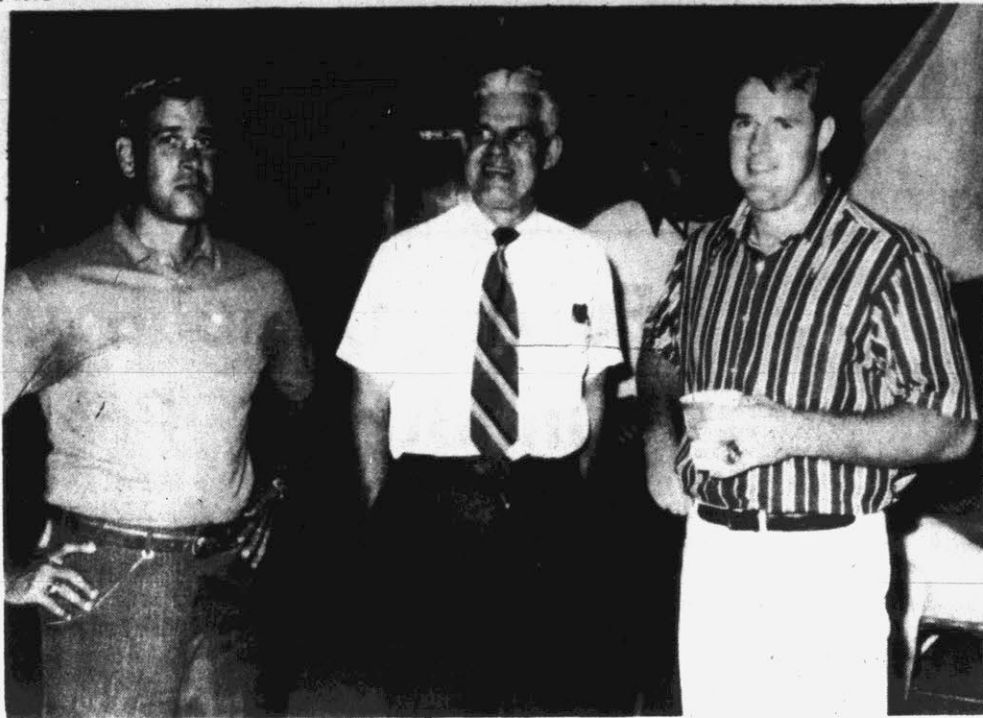

Virginia offensive coordinator Sil Cormachione ran the passing offense in morning drills and said, "The passing offense is way ahead of what we expected at this time in terms of individual improvement over last year, understanding of our approach to the offense and the mechanics of the offense."

N. C. State played host to the touring Atlantic Coast Sportswriters Tuesday as the Wolfpack continued its two-day workouts.

Bill Yoest, regarded as the Wolfpack's top offensive lineman, may be lost to the squad because of a back ailment. Yoest, who won his letter last year as a sophomore, is in the hospital.

Wake Forest was to go through the last day of conditioning drills in light equipment today and then go to full gear Thursday.

The first full scale scrimmage for the Deacons will be Saturday.

Entertain Dignitaries

The D. H. Conley High School coaching staff entertained principals from the feeder schools and the Pitt County superintendent at a party held at Rayne pool Friday. Also there as invited guests were Clarence Stasavich, athletic director East

Yankees Hand Blue Second Straight Loss

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
To beat Vida Blue, it seems you've got to be just about perfect—and for six innings, Mel Stottlemyre was.

The New York Yankees' big right-hander was absolutely perfect for 3 2-3 innings Tuesday night in Oakland and was still thinking no-hitter going into the seventh.

He had to settle for a three-hitter, though, while Blue, his dreams of a 30-victory season shattered, was saddled with his second successive four-hit, 1-0 loss. Gary Peters and the Boston Red Sox did it to him only last Friday night.

"Where is everybody?" Stottlemyre mused as he stood virtually alone in front of his locker after the victory, his 13th in 24 decisions.

Most of the writers, it turned out, were clustered around Blue in the A's clubhouse. "Oh, well," Mel sighed. "I guess it's more rare for me to win a game than it is for him to lose one." The defeat was only the sixth for Oakland's 22-game winner.

In other American League games, Baltimore's Mike Cuellar and Minnesota's Jim Perry twirled four-hitters as the Orioles squeezed by the Chicago White Sox 1-0 and the Twins beat Detroit 3-1. California stunned Washington 2-1, Milwaukee overhauled Cleveland 6-5 and Kansas City toppled Boston 5-4 in 13 innings.

In the National League, Cincinnati defeated the Chicago Cubs 6-5, Atlanta bombed Pittsburgh 15-5, San Diego silenced Philadelphia 2-0, San Francisco beat the New York Mets 3-2, Los Angeles whipped Montreal 6-4 and St. Louis topped Houston 2-1.

The Yanks got their lone run in the first inning on Thurman Munson's one-out single, Roy White's double and Felipe Alou's infield out.

Stottlemyre, meanwhile, cut down the A's in order until Reggie Jackson drew a two-out walk in the fourth.

But it wasn't until the seventh that Rick Monday broke the spell with a leadoff bunt single—and when Dave Duncan also beat out a bunt, Mel's victory was in jeopardy.

But a forceout and Larry Brown's doubleplay grounder killed Oakland's only serious threat.

"I'm not crying," Blue said. "It would have been nice to win 30—but I would have had to win all of my remaining eight starts including this one."

"I'm satisfied with the game I pitched," he said. "I just didn't win."

Cuellar boosted his record to 16-6 with only his fourth victory in nine decisions since last month's All-Star break. He got the only run he needed in the first inning as Don Buford walked, sped to third on Brooks Robinson's single and cruised home on a double by Merv Rettenmund.

The ace left-hander, out-dueling Tom Bradley, allowed only two White Sox runners to reach second base and limited them to singles by Bradley in the third, Carlos May in the fourth, Jay Johnstone in the sixth and Steve Huntz in the ninth.

Perry, last year's Cy Young Award winner, notched his 14th victory—but that only equalled his defeats this season. He permitted only two Tigers' baserunners after being tagged by Al Kaline's first-inning home run.

The Twins took the lead in the fourth on Rich Reese's single, Leo Cardenas' double and sacrifice flies by Jim Nettles and George Mitterwald. Cesar Tovar's two-bagger drove in the final run in the seventh.

Clyde Wright of the Angels won a brilliant duel against Pete Broberg, beating the Senators with a two-hitter. Broberg, Washington's flamethrowing rookie, appeared to have a 1-0 two-hit victory of his own before he issued a one-out ninth-inning walk to Jim Fregosi, then served up a home run pitch to Jim Spencer.

Wright struck out nine batters and gave up four walks, three of them to massive Frank Howard. "Sure, he can beat you with one swing," Wright said of the Senators' slugger. "But I wasn't afraid of a homer," he grinned. "I was afraid he might kill me with a hit back to the mound."

The Brewers scored three times in the sixth when Roy Foster dropped Ellie Rodriguez's bases-loaded two-out liner to right field, then added three more in the seventh. Foster and Ray Fosse homered for the Indians.

The Royals, who have taken all 10 games from the Red Sox this season, loaded the bases with nobody out in the bottom of the 13th and Gail Hopkins wrapped it up with a single to right.

Aaron Stars As Braves Race Past Pirates, 15-5

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Just about every time Hank Aaron plays, it seems that he breaks a record.

It seems that way because he does.

Aaron, who passed Ty Cobb on the all-time list of total bases Monday, barged by Tris Speaker Tuesday night in career runs scored as he helped the Atlanta Braves beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 15-5.

"Records just mean that I've been playing a long time," said Aaron, whose 37th homer of the year produced his 1,882nd lifetime run and placed him in sixth place.

And he has his sharp hitting eye on more production.

"I said before the season I'd like to hit 40 homers," said Aaron, "but I probably should pass that now."

Does he think he can hit the 50-homer level, something he's never accomplished in his fabled career?

"No, I have no ideas of 50," said Aaron, modestly.

Elsewhere in the National League Monday night, the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Houston Astros 2-1; the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Chicago Cubs 5-4; the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the Montreal Expos 6-4; the San Diego Padres downed the Philadelphia Phillies 2-0 and the San Francisco Giants trimmed the New York Mets 3-2.

American League scores: Milwaukee 6, Cleveland 5; Minnesota 3, Detroit 1; Baltimore 1, Chicago 0; Kansas City 5, Boston 4 in 13 innings; New York 1, Oakland 0 and California 2, Washington 1.

Among his varied accomplishments since he joined the major league with the old Milwaukee Braves in 1954, the 37-year-old Aaron has hit 629 home runs.

That puts him in third place behind San Francisco's Willie Mays, who has 644, and Babe Ruth, who had 714.

How does Hammerin' Hank feel every time they flash his record-breaking deeds on the scoreboard at Atlanta Stadium? "I don't mind—as long as they don't flash my age," quipped Aaron.

Actually, Aaron has been tired of late although you'd never know it by his long-ball pace of five homers in six days that's boosted his RBI to 96 and his batting average to .322.

Mike Lum and Marty Perez joined Aaron in their hitting party but produced 21 safeties against the Pirates' shell-shocked pitching staff. Lum drilled a three-run homer in the second inning and Perez belted a three-run blow in the third before Aaron unloaded in the fourth.

The Cardinals took advantage of Pittsburgh's loss to move up to a tie with Chicago for second place in the National League East, five games behind the front-running Pirates.

Reliever Al Santorini came in with the potential tying run on third base in the ninth inning and threw a double-play pitch to Doug Rader to end the game. The clutch relief job saved the game for rookie Regis Cleveland.

Pete Rose ripped three doubles and scored three runs and Woody Woodward slammed three hits to lead Cincinnati over Chicago.

Willie Davis slugged five hits, including a three-run triple, as Los Angeles stopped Montreal's eight-game winning streak.

Ed Acosta, a 27-year-old right-hander making his first major league start, hurled an eight-hit shutout for San Diego. Acosta, who was traded to the Padres Aug. 16, hurled three innings while with Pittsburgh last season for his only previous major league experience.

Juan Marichal pitched a five-hitter and Bobby Bonds crashed his 25th homer to power San Francisco over New York. Bonds' two-run shot gave Marichal the lead in the fourth inning and the Giants' star right-hander was in command thereafter.

All Is Not Serene On North Vietnam Home Front

By BARNEY SEIBERT
SAIGON (UPI)—The smooth Communist wrapping with which North Vietnam cloaks its closed society does not completely hide a bulging bag of familiar capitalist problems as well as some peculiar to Marxism.

"You must wade through the usual mass of verbose dialectic to find them, but as compared with other Communist states, the North Vietnamese are remarkably candid about their problems," one expert Hanoi watcher observed recently. And this is so.

Among the shortcomings listed or discussed in North Vietnamese newspaper and magazine articles and radio broadcasts this year were:

- Correction, theft, smuggling, bootlegging, juvenile delinquency;
- Idleness, low labor productivity, absenteeism;
- Management inefficiency, poor planning, waste, bureaucratic arrogance, poor maintenance of equipment;
- Failure of the manufacturing plants, construction enterprises and transportation facilities to meet goals set for them;

admission that production still lags behind the 1964 levels;

- Urban sprawl, agricultural inefficiency, low farm productivity, conversion of farm land to other public or private purposes;
- Mistreatment of disabled veterans and the families of war dead;
- Shortages of food, clothing, spare parts, unbalanced budgets, inflated prices, individuals spending beyond their means.

In the January issue of the monthly magazine Hoc Tap (Study and Practice), North Vietnam's Vice Premier Do Muoi repeatedly referred to corruption, smuggling, theft, waste, bureaucratic bungling and inefficiency.

"There are still persons who desire 'life in peace' or to sit and enjoy the harvest without toil, to lead a lavish life and to satisfy their individual needs with money made by illegal means," Muoi wrote. "There are still persons ... who have engaged in the speculation and smuggling of goods, who have upset prices and the market. These men have no ethics. Our regime cannot tolerate them."

Muoi decried "increasingly serious budget deficits" in various phases of the controlled economy, and said that policies governing wages, prices and trade have been haphazardly applied "resulting in much misuse, corruption and waste."

"The state," he wrote, "must resolutely struggle against the speculation, smuggling and stealing of goods ... in the recent past, because state management in general and economic and financial management in particular have left much to be desired ... corruption, waste and bureaucracy have not been severely condemned. Thieves and smugglers have continued to operate."

The weekly newspaper Hanoi Moi (New Hanoi) discussed the bootlegging problem in its Jan. 5 issue in an article titled "drastic measures should be taken to stop the illegal distillation of rice brandy at Yon Nguu."

Yon Nguu, according to Hanoi Moi, is a village of moon-shiners. Before 1964 about 60 per cent of the villagers made their living by distilling potent, illegal rice brandy. The traffic in bootleg brandy was almost stamped out in 1965, but soon resumed and by last winter "more than 100 of the village's 200 households" owed their living to the bootleg brandy, the newspaper said.

Hanoi Moi complained that the head of the agricultural cooperative, who was member of the local Communist Party committee, encouraged the bootleggers and told them where to sell their bottled goods at better prices. So many people were busy bootlegging the village couldn't raise enough rice to feed itself and the government had to send in rice shipments, and rice was being diverted from legitimate food channels to make brandy, the weekly said.

The newspaper Nhan Dan (People's Daily), in a July 19 article titled "Reply on the People to Maintain Order and Security," dealt with juvenile delinquency. "Many mothers in the Hai Ba Trung Ward (of Hanoi) and the Hong Bang Ward (of Haiphong) have helped backward or bad teenagers to become good students," it said.

Earlier this year, Nhan Dan had announced the prosecution of an orchestra leader accused of leading Hanoi youth astray with clandestine concerts of the mournful "golden music" of South Vietnam.

On the subject of labor, Nhan Dan in a Jan. 12 editorial said, "generally speaking the labor force at (construction) work sites is insufficient. However, this labor force has not been fully used. The number of useful work days and work hours remains low. The efficiency of work hours is not high. General labor output is low and increases slowly."

On Jan. 11 Nhan Dan complained, "although our means of transport are numerous, their number of work hours is still low, mostly because much of the equipment has broken down and is not repaired in time ... it is necessary to pay appropriate attention to producing accessories and replacement parts."

In a Feb. 2 editorial, Nhan Dan said, "production has been unable to satisfy requirements. Manpower, materials and capital have been wasted. Labor output is still low, as in economic efficiency ... our economy is still poorly managed."

More recently the Hanoi newspaper has complained of "urban sprawl," stating in a July 12 editorial that in six years 60,000 acres of valuable rice land around Hanoi had vanished. At the port of Haiphong the total was 30,000 acres in three years. Both cities are in the Red River Delta, North Vietnam's most productive rice growing area.

Urban sprawl in North Vietnam is a more serious problem than in many countries, Nhan Dan said, because only about 12 per cent (2.5 million acres of the country's nearly 40 million acres of land) is suitable for farming.

"The use of rice fields for construction purposes has revealed the lack of a spirit of valuing and saving land and of considering an inch of land as being worth an ounce of gold," the newspaper said. It also called attention to other agricultural shortcomings:

"Water conservancy has failed ... water logging is created in one area while a drought is occurring in another area. In Hai Hung province, 9,000 acres of rice fields have been affected by water logging because of irrigation deficiencies."

"In the past few years, a part of the rice fields have remained uncultivated because the control over production was loose, the seasonal cultivation period was over, seeds and seedlings were insufficient or weather conditions were unfavorable."

The problem of caring for the disabled veterans and for families of war dead has been a dominant theme in North Vietnam through much of the first half of this year.

The weekly, Hanoi Moi, on April 2 said "the task of caring for the families of fallen heroes and of wounded soldiers is important to all party and administrative echelons and people's groups."

On July 21 Hanoi Radio said that "almost all" villages had responded to the plea for a better life for the wounded and for survivors of the dead, but the broadcast admitted that only "one-third of dependent families now have a fairly high living standard."

Five days later the North Vietnamese Army newspaper, Quan Doi Nhan Dan, urged the populace to "satisfactorily carry out the tasks related to the treatment and recuperation of the wounded and sick combatants." And on July 27, Gen. Von Nguyen Giap, hero of Dien Bien Phu, deputy prime minister and minister of defense, while visiting the sick and wounded in hospitals in Hoi Hung Province, urged local Communist Party cadres to "step up the entire people's movement to take care of wounded and sick combatants and the families of the fallen heroes."

New Telephone Directory Here

Delivery of Carolina Telephone's new telephone directory for the Greenville, Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Fountain, and Snow Hill exchange is scheduled for this week, according to Don A. Collier, local manager for the company.

Collier pointed out effective with the directory, August 26, subscribers in Greenville and Bethel will be able to call from one city to the other without long distance charges.

The cover of the new directory features full color photographs of these eastern North Carolina recreational and tourist areas: The Benvenue Country Club in Rocky Mount, Lake Waccamaw, Ocracoke Lighthouse, a Pamlico River hunting scene; a sports fishing boat at Morehead City, and a scene on Kerr Lake.

"Upon receipt of the new directories, subscribers should discard their old directories to eliminate the possibility of using numbers that have been changed," Collier said.

The new directory has more alphabetical listings than last year's directory, and the classified section contains more listings for business and professional people and for products and services. Instructions concerning Direct Distance Dialing, and information relating to services available from Carolina Telephone, are also included. On the inside of the back cover, space is provided for subscribers to list new numbers and numbers that are called frequently.

Customers who do not receive their new directory should call the telephone company business office.

Contamination Free Service

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new outlet for railroad cars that assures contamination-free shipments in plastics service has been developed by ACF Industries, Inc. The adjustable pneumatic outlet is designed to provide easier, faster cleaning without disassembly or removal of the control tube, according to John S. Carlson, ACF vice president and general manager of the company's Shippers Car Line division.

ACF cars for plastics service, which carry more than 80 per cent of the nation's plastics powders and pellets that travel in bulk, now number approximately 7,000.

New Practical Nurses Are Graduated At PTI

A total of 17 practical nursing students were pinned during graduation exercises last night at Pitt Technical Institute.

Robert L. Martin, president of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners and a member of the Pitt Board of County Commissioners, was the keynote speaker.

The graduation was held for the first class in practical nursing education to be conducted at Pitt Technical Institute in conjunction with Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Graduates and their hometowns are as follows:

Greenville — Carolyn Haddock, Cherry Ann Haddock, Maxine Hawley, Kay Jefferson, Alice Little, Mollie Peterson, Nina Pitt, Lullah Pringle, Peggy Roberson, Faye Smith and Juanita Wainwright;

FARMVILLE — Dorothy Blair;

ROBERSONVILLE — Lynette Croom;

HAVELOCK — Louise Bell;

SIMPSON — Dorothy Gorham;

BELVOIR — Nancy Lewis;

GRIMESLAND — Faye Manning.

Class officers are Peggy Roberson, president; Dorothy Gorham, vice president; Mollie Peterson, secretary; Maxine Hawley, corresponding secretary; Nancy Lewis, treasurer; Cherry Ann Haddock, student government representative.

The course is a one-year vocational course which is in session four quarters. Throughout the program the student is expected to acquire knowledge and understanding related to nursing and the biological and social sciences and to develop skills related to safe nursing practice, communications, inter-personal relations and use of good judgment.

The program is conducted under the direction of the North Carolina Board of Education, the Department of Community Colleges and the North Carolina Board of Nursing.

The entire first quarter was spent in the classroom and laboratory.

During the last half of the quarter, the students went into the hospital for one day each week to become acquainted with various departments, patient units and equipment. Classroom study included the fundamentals of practical nursing, anatomy and physiology, vocational adjustment and basic nutrition.

Beginning the winter quarter, the students began their clinical experience taking care of the adult patient on medical and surgical units. The students were introduced to drugs and drug administration, the concept of understanding illness and disease, nursing care of the patient with diseases of specific body systems and a study of basic principles of human behavior.

The spring study included the study of medical-surgical nursing dealing with special diagnostic tests and drug therapy correlated with each disorder. In the clinical area, the students rotated one week each in the operating room, the recovery room and in the emergency room.

During the summer quarter the students took a look at the legal aspects of practical nursing, nursing ethics, and professional organizations in nursing under the heading of Personal and Vocational Relations.

The program received full accreditation in June from the North Carolina Board of Nursing. The graduates are eligible to write the licensing examination given by the North Carolina Board of Nursing. The graduates will travel to Raleigh to write the examination on Sept. 23.

The local chapter of the National Federation of Licensed Practical Nurses honored the graduates with a tea at Pitt Memorial Hospital recently with Mrs. Glenn Keeter and Mrs. Helen Abbott presiding.

Worry Clinic Tips On Better College Grades

Going to college? Then heed my advice to Marvin! Mental competition is much keener on the campus than in high school, for the poorer students have dropped out. And don't delay for a week buying your textbooks! Smart students "jump the gun." Take along the booklet below. It's insurance for higher grades!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Case R-544: Marvin G., aged 18, is worried.
"Dr. Crane," he began, "I was only a 'B' student in high school. 'So how can I make good grades in college?'
"For isn't the competition greater when you get on a campus?"

"Since you have taught at the university for many years, what advice can you give to help freshmen avoid flunking out?"

Hints For Students

First, get yourself a typewriter.
You can probably buy a secondhand machine for $50 to $75 which will be quite adequate.

But typewritten papers subconsciously prejudice the professor in your favor.
Thus, you may rate at least 5 points higher grade for the very same ideas advanced in your English themes and other written reports.

Next, be sure you try to find out in advance the name of the classroom textbook that will be employed.

Then obtain a copy and give it a quick once-over even before the very first meeting of that class.

And orient your thinking by observing the "frame around the picture." By that, I mean you should notice the year your textbook was printed, plus the name of its author and the latter's reason for being an authority.

This includes his present college position, plus his degrees.

Then skim through the preface and introduction.
Next, thumb through the entire textbook to get a bird's-eye view of its total scope.

Note the illustrations, charts and tables and sectional headings for the individual chapters.

Obviously, you will not absorb too much of the contents on this quick once-over, but you will gain perspective.

Alas, most students ignore this advice, but the "A" scholars certainly follow it.

For they realize that if you "jump the gun" in this manner, you will probably remain ahead of your classmates the entire term.

Remember, the competition is keener the farther along you progress in your schooling.

For those of low I.Q. and poor study habits begin to drop out even early in high school.

And even 50 per cent of high school graduates usually never go onward to college.

But those who do so are of higher I.Q., so you will be in mentally faster company on the campus than back in Senior High School.

So never miss a class lecture! And take notes, for the professor usually talks about the things he considers most important. They will likely appear in his exams!

His lectures can often enable you to rate a "C" mark even if you never read the textbook!

But for an "A" grade, you'll need to absorb both.

As you study the advance chapter assignments, make yourself a running "True-False" quiz or a 4-answer (Multiple Choice) exam, as: T F (a) Columbus made his first voyage to America in 1542 (P. 285)

List the page in your text where the answer is found.

It also helps, if you own your textbook, to underline such specific data with a red pencil, for ease in spotting the exact reference.

Send for my booklet "How to Study More Efficiently," enclosing a long, stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opening lead: Jack of ♦
An imaginative and enterprising double by West of South's four heart bid led to a considerably augmented profit on the deal for the defense.

West paid close heed to the calls as the auction progressed. North's rebid of one no trump announced a minimum opening bid. South's rebid of two hearts is also limited, since he must jump in hearts over one no trump, if he wants to unconditionally force his partner to bid again. Since hearts had been bid secondarily by South, and West held a singleton himself, there was a good chance that the opponents were four-four and that East had four trumps. It was clear that North and South had little to spare for their game attempt, so West decided to double for penalties. His cards—particularly in spades—appeared to be well placed.

The jack of diamonds was opened and the king was put up from the North hand to lead a spade. South played the jack, losing to West's queen. The latter returned the ten of diamonds to dislodge declarer's ace. A club was led to the ace to play another spade. When East followed with the four, South put in the nine—losing to West's ten.

A club put East in with the king and the latter cashed the queen of diamonds for the setting trick, on which West discarded a spade. A fourth round of diamonds was returned and ruffed by South as West and North discarded clubs. Declarer had mentally consigned West with four trumps as part of the values for his penalty double. He led the eight of hearts to dummy's queen in order to ruff out the remaining club. When East showed up with the ten of hearts, he cashed the king next, but when West showed out, it revealed that East's jack of hearts was securely placed behind dummy's ace and the defense scored another trick in trumps to register a 500 point profit on the deal.

Pentecostal Session In Korea

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—The Tenth Pentecostal World Conference will be held in Seoul, Korea, Sept. 18-23, 1973, reports the Assemblies of God international headquarters here.
The Rev. Thomas F. Zimmerman, general superintendent of the Assemblies of God, will be chairman. Pentecostal ministers from every continent have been invited to speak at the conference, whose theme will be "Anointed to Preach." Night meetings will be held in the Seoul Arena, where attendance of 100,000 is expected nightly.

Space Age Hermit Found Refuge In Everglades

By STRATTON L. DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer
EVERGLADES, CITY, Fla. (AP) — Had he been born 200 years ago, Arthur Darwin might have become a mountain man and explored the Rockies. As it was, he was born nearly 100 years later and became a space age hermit.

Since 1945, when he was a mere 70, Darwin has lived alone on Posseum Key, a tiny island in the heart of a watery wilderness inside Everglades National Park. His one-room concrete block home is reachable only by boat.

A man about 5-feet-5, Darwin is bent by the weight of 94 years of living. He walks with a hesitant, stumbling gait and his cheeks are weathered and liver spotted. But his sky blue eyes are as clear as a boy's.

"Come on up to the house," he said as the boat pulled up in front of his island landing. "The mosquitoes aren't so bad in there."

The 14-by-16-foot shack is dominated by a double bed, squarely in the center of the room. The exposed beams are blackened by years of cookfire smoke, and fishing gear litters the bare concrete floor. The only furniture, aside from the bed, are a propane gas stove, an open grill and a small trunk, covered with ancient magazines and newspapers. Two rusty rifles were stacked in the corner.

Except for a once-a-month boat trip to Everglades City for supplies, a trip that takes about two hours each way in his skiff with its five-horsepower engine, he never leaves the island. He has weathered four or five hurricanes—"they don't do nothing"—and rarely has visitors.

On his monthly trip to civilization, Darwin picks up a $72 Social Security check and buys supplies for another month. In recent years his food has come mainly from cans and his only concessions to technology are radio batteries and propane gas.

Posseum Key is located at the southern tip of the Ten Thousand Islands on Florida's lower Gulf Coast. It's about 100 miles west of Miami and 40 miles south of Naples. After Everglades City, the only way one can reach the island is via a boat trip through desolate bayous that wind and weave through a myriad of small keys, all covered with dense mangroves.

Man has failed to leave his mark here. Abandoned fishing camps soon rot and are overgrown. There aren't even any beer cans—just wild ducks, herons, raccoons and an occasional alligator. Tarpon, snook and playful manatee ripple the streams. The sky is unclouded and the water is clean, albeit stained dark by the tannic acid released by the mangrove leaves.

Darwin lives here without electricity or running water—"just the rain." He goes to bed when it gets dark and rises with the sun. There's no ringing telephone and no stack of bills.

Darwin says "it's not in my nature" when asked if he gets lonely. Yet he lived in society for 70 years and raised 10 children at Evadale, Tex., before coming to Florida.

"I left Texas in '34 because of the Panic," he said. "There wasn't any work and I came here because I heard there was fur to be trapped here."

Darwin was 60 when he left Texas, and he never returned. He alighted in Everglades City and spent the next 10 years trapping and doing carpenter work before heading into the 'glades.'

Darwin's wife died years ago and he never sees any of his children except Luke, a son who visited his father and settled in Everglades City. On occasion, he may stay overnight with Luke.

When he first settled on Posseum Key, Darwin felt he was homesteading the island. But the federal government acquired the land in 1957 and gave him lifetime tenure.

"They just up and took it away from me," he said.

While he's not happy about what happened, he says he's more saddened by the changes in his world.

"When I first came here this place was a paradise. There was all the birds and fish and animals anybody could want. But they changed all that when they lowered Lake Okechobee."

After the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers lowered the lake in the 1950s, he said, the lack of available fresh water allowed the salt water to push in, contaminating what for eons had been a fresh water environment.

"After that, the mangroves came in and pushed out the willows, and their tannic acid killed all the bass. Then the rabbits, deer and bobcats left because their food was gone. When I first came here I trapped otter and coons. The otter are about all gone now, but one season I caught 47 and the Seminoles came by and accused me of catching them all.

"No, it's not like it used to be, that's for sure. If I wasn't so old, since everything else has left, I'd leave too. But I guess I'll stay here 'til I die."

The prairie falcon is seldom seen east of the Mississippi.

Brazil Tries To Save Its Indians From Extinction

By DIANA PAGE
RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—The Brazilian Indian, a silent minority, casts a pitiful shadow over the government's ambitious plans to open up and develop the Amazon wilderness.

The smaller this minority group becomes, the greater the concern in Brazil and abroad. Once three million Indians found Portuguese adventurers invading their land. Today, only 120,000 are left according to government estimates.

In July, Brazil's military government decreed three new Indian reserves, totalling an area of 12,000 square miles, equal to one per cent of Brazil's two largest states, Amazonas and Peru.

To protect the Indian and allow gradual contact with the modern world, these reserves are located well outside the paths of the transamazon highways that are rapidly reaching across the jungles.

The Indian, like a rare flower in the path of a bulldozer, may not survive being transplanted.

"The reserves are the very least that can be done for the Indian and are worthy of support," Dr. Robert Da Matta, director of post-graduate studies in anthropology at Rio's federal university, told UPI. "But moving tribes from one area to another could have tragic results for the Indian whose unwritten culture depends on his relationship with the plants, animals and rivers of his traditional environment."

Doubt about the safety of the new reserves was raised by a simultaneous decree which extended the limits of the model reserve, the Xingu National Park, already 10 years old. The 600 square mile addition was merely a compensation for a corner of the Xingu reserve cut through by one of the new transamazon roads.

"It's a costly patch-up measure," Dr. Matta said, agreeing with anthropologists who thought the Indian sanctuary should have been respected.

Before the announcement of the new reserves and the Xingu annex, 84 intellectuals published a protest June 15, outlining the Indian problem.

"Taken from their regions by the pressure of progress from development projects and roads, transferred to another area, the Indians are then

Studded Tires Ban Requested

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The State Highway Commission has called for a ban on use of studded tires in Michigan, claiming they are causing extensive damage to roads and pose safety hazards to motorists. A 1967 state law permits the use of studded tires in Michigan from Nov. 1 through April 30 each year.

submitted to the same pressures again," the protest said.

The Brazilian government is hypersensitive to criticism about its Indian policy. In 1969 foreign press reports charged that the government tolerated genocide of the Indians so that their land, protected by law, could be used more economically.

Last year a Red Cross mission sent to investigate found no evidence to support the genocide charges, but it was appalled by the conditions in which Indians on the margins of civilization lived. It recommended special aid to insure the Indians ownership of their land and complete health care.

The government, in turn, decided to create a new set of Indian laws. The new statutes promise the Indians ownership of the land they live on, respect for their culture, and the right to "a voluntary choice of habitat (or way of life) with the assurance of the resources to maintain it."

There is, however, a loophole, which says that for reasons of "national security, public health, or national development," the government may move the Indian off the land. This law was announced four months after the transamazon road project was launched in June, 1970 and only a few months before the road crews moved into the Xingu Reserve.

If there's one real hope for the salvation of the Indian, it appears to be the Xingu Reserve, where 2,500 Indians of 16 different tribes, speaking eight different languages, live in peace.

The guardian angels of the park are the Villas-Boas brothers, Claudio and Orlando, who have been nominated for the 1971 Nobel Peace Prize for their 25 years of work with the Indians. Their work culminated in the official designation in 1961 of the 13,600 square mile reserve, which is larger than Belgium.

"No one wants to keep the Indians isolated indefinitely," Claudio Villas-Boas said in a magazine interview last December. "But there's no hurry, either. We don't have to force integration. We can hope that integration will come about gradually, voluntarily, and in the meantime we teach the Indians some agricultural techniques and how to care for their health."

Gospel Music's Hall Of Fame To Be Launched

By NANCY SHIPLEY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Naming of the first members of the Gospel Music Association's soon-to-be launched Hall of Fame will highlight the third annual Dove Awards banquet Oct. 9.

The event will be part of the National Quartet Convention to be held in Nashville for the first time. The gospel music gathering has previously been in Memphis.

Ten gospel music pioneers — five living and five dead — have been nominated for the first positions in the Hall of Fame.

The five nominees living are Lee Roy Abernathy, James Blackwood Sr., Albert Brumley, Brock Speer and Jim Waites.

Finalists who are dead are G. T. "Dad" Speer, Mrs. G. T. "Mon" Speer, Frank Stamps, Virgil O. Stamps and James D. Vaughn.

Every major gospel group, except the Happy Goodman Family, will be featured during the five-day meet which begins Oct. 6.

J. D. Sumner, president of the National Quartet Convention, said a larger crowd is expected than before in the convention's 15-year history. Attendance in the past has exceeded 25,000 persons, Sumner said.

The gospel music sessions will coincide with the Pro-Celebrity Golf Tournament and precedes the WSM Birthday and Disc Jockey Convention.

Sumner said a special guest during the convention will be Andrea Crouch, a recording artist and noted songwriter.

The convention president said several major groups will be spotlighted each evening of the gathering and the climax Saturday night will be devoted to the annual parade of Stars that brings all the quartets together.

The National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences Institute of Creative Development and Training is offering a number of in-depth courses at universities in Nashville for persons interested in entering the music business.

The institute, based in Nashville, works in cooperation with Fisk University, Peabody College and Vanderbilt University, in offering the courses.

The institute has just completed week-long seminars in Atlanta, Chicago, Nashville, New York and Los Angeles.

Courses planned at the universities include Commercial Music, Copyright and Unfair Competition, legal problems of the music industry, vocal techniques for record production, production and studio techniques, and music law for laymen.

The Country Music Association has announced that Tennessee Ernie Ford will again host the annual CMA awards show in Nashville Oct. 10.

The event will be aired live by NBC-TV.

Lutheran Count Is Down Again

NEW YORK (UPI)—Membership in Lutheran churches in North America dropped in 1970 for the second successive year, reports the Lutheran Council in the U.S.A.

The total of 9,176,846 was a loss of 46,370 members, on top of a loss of 16,058 members in 1969. The all-time membership high was 9,239,274, recorded in 1968.

The Rev. Edward A. Rauff, director of the Lutheran Council's Office of Research, attributed membership losses to increased mobility of people, breaking of family and community ties associated with congregational life, and an increased preoccupation with leisure time activities.

SEEKS A VISIT
OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian sources say Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's government is making approaches to arrange a visit by President Nixon to Ottawa this fall.

By WARREN L. NELSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jim Lassiter and Peter Flemming see more secrets than anyone else in Washington including President Nixon himself.

They work in a deep Pentagon basement where they watch two tons of old classified documents every hour pass up a conveyer belt to meet whirling blades that will chew them into unrecognizable pulp.

"I wouldn't be afraid to haul it over to the Russian embassy and dump it on their front lawn," said Robert Beier, the assistant chief of the Security Division in the Pentagon, "except I'd be arrested for littering."

The great gnawing machine is too busy to be kept waiting so each agency in the Pentagon has an assigned time for hauling in its classified paper trash.

Not everything in the distinguishing red candy striped bags is classified, however. "I find coffee cups and newspapers and everything in there," Beier said. And forgetful secretaries sometimes make a run for Beier's office when they discover they have accidentally dumped their grocery lists in the bags destined for destruction.

Lassiter and Flemming cut the bags open and feed them into the machine where the Pentagon papers disappear amid swirling water and slashing blades.

After being chewed to a pulp, the water is squeezed out and the residue passed down a long conveyer belt from which it falls like so much grayish snow into a dump truck parked at the end of the Pentagon.

A private contractor is paid to haul the remains

DEAD DEER COUNT
LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The State Natural Resources Commission will conduct a dead deer survey in the Upper Peninsula in an attempt to determine hunting regulations for next season.

The department said its study will be used in part to determine whether a moratorium on antlerless deer hunting in the peninsula should be ended for the next hunting season.

away because the Pentagon hasn't been able to find any recycling plant that can handle huge truckloads of fluffy old secrets. Recycling converts the pulp into other usable paper products like cardboard and newsprint for newspapers.

Officials recently sent whole boxes of the fluff to a Kansas City lab to try to find a way to pack the material so that it can be recycled. When that happens the Pentagon papers could appear in newspapers across the country every day—but no one will know about it except the local recycling firm.

Non-paper classified trash like microfilm can't go through the churning blades. It is carted in closed trucks to an incinerator at nearby Andrews Air Force Base. Beier said the Pentagon formerly used the District of Columbia incinerator but found it wasn't burning everything up.

BRITISH DESERTERS
LONDON (AP) — More soldiers than other branches of the military service desert in Britain. At the beginning of 1971 those missing for more than five years were: Army 6,000; Royal Air Force 4,700; Navy 100.

JIM LASSITER, a security helper, watches as hundreds of classified documents are taken away. (UPI Telephoto)
