"With tobacco selling the way it did this morning, I can't help but be pleased," commented an area farmer following an opening sale here early today as Greenville kicked off the 1971 Eastern Belt season.

The sentiments expressed by the elated farmer were typical of comments throughout the warehouses with first sale prices having generous sprinkling of 80-cent quotes.

Sales began promptly at 9 a.m. and company buyers wasted little time as buying progressed smoothly through the first row at one local warehouse. Prices on that first row began with an opening bundle quote of 76 cents per pound and progressed to 78 cents and 80 cents and back down to a low pile of 69 before leveling out.

Another sampling of prices in a neighboring warehouse indicated the same trend with buyers offering 78, 79, and 80 cents for much of the tobacco.

With an opening day average of $75 per hundred pounds predicted for the 17-market belt, tobacco officials expressed confidence that the average would be reached here.

Commissioner of Agriculture James Graham, after visiting several local warehouses, said, "I'm hoping that today's average will be on the plus side of $75 at least. From what I've seen so far, this is one of the finest crops of tobacco that has been produced."

Graham pointed out that the "farmers have done a good job with their crops and they are getting good prices. But they have got to have a high average to make it with prices the way they are."

The commissioner expressed the hope that Stabilization would not continue to get as much tobacco as it did early today at one warehouse he visited. He added that some 20 per cent of the first two rows at that particular warehouse went to Stabilization.

J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade, observed, "Prices seem to be real good. We are looking for prices to rise after opening sales and by the looks of the tobacco, opening prices will go up." Bryan asserted also that, "This is the best quality tobacco that we have had in many years."

Fourth District Congressman Nick Galifianakis was on hand for the opening activities and made a tour of local warehouses. "I think it is important that we recognize tobacco is probably the principal factor that affects the economy of Eastern North Carolina," the congressman noted. "It is definitely the bread and butter crop."

He said that he was confident prices would be above the predicted $75 per hundred and added his "own commendation to the farmers and warehousemen" in utilizing the space scheduling procedures this year.

Noah Raynor, local warehouseman, said that today's activities were "the smoothest opening that I have ever seen. The farmers are happy with the way their tobacco is selling." Raynor said that the system of scheduling was the difference this year in greater efficiency. He added that his warehouse was booked up the entire season with some farmers looking for more space.

Clifton Cannon of Rt. 3, Greenville was all smiles as he exhibited his check for first day sales. "It sold real good, better than last year," he said, noting that his average for 3,400 pounds would be about 79 cents per pound. Darrell Worthington of Ayden said that his 2,600 pounds brought an average of "about 78 cents" this morning. He explained that most of his tobacco today consisted of lugs and second pullings and the outlook for better prices on later tobacco looked good.

No official averages were available on early sales but officials were generally optimistic that the figures would top last year's prices for opening day and hopefully exceed early predictions.

Belt Leaf Sales Opening Appears Better Than 1970

By NOEL YANCEY

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Prices were running at near record levels at opening tobacco sales on the big North Carolina Eastern Belt today.

"It looks to me like it's selling better than last year," said Zack Bisette, a Wilson County tobacco farmer.

He added that prices were comparable with what he received on the Georgia-Florida belt, where he sold part of his leaf a few weeks ago.

Opening sales at one Wilson warehouse saw prices ranging from $76 to $84 per hundred pounds for offerings consisting mainly of lugs and tips.

"It's selling fair considering the quality," said John W. Hill of Greenville after his opening sale at Wilson. "I sold 1,366 pounds. It did fine considering the quality. It averaged about 75 1/2 cents a pound."

C.M. Pippin of Fremont, who said it was the 97th market opening he had attended at Wilson, said, "It looks like it's selling mighty good to me. All of it looks like it's selling in the upper 70s and lower 80s."

"It'll average more today than any time since I've been here, even in 1919," Pippin said. "Then a lot of tobacco sold over a dollar a pound, but a lot sold low so that it didn't average but 53 cents a pound."

Farmers had been expecting a record high price of about $75 per hundred pounds. "Things look so good we expect all price records to be broken," John H. Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, had said before the market opened. Cyrus had said he expected the quality of the offerings to be the best in several years.

Dynamite Bomb Failed Explode

AYDEN — Dynamite, hurled toward a home near Ayden, was found Sunday afternoon after the bomb failed to go off.

Pitt County Sheriff's officers along with agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and U.S. Treasury Department Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division agents are investigating the incident. The officers are also continuing investigations of four other bombings that have occurred in the Ayden area over the past few days.

The bombings are linked by officers to protests by blacks over the shooting of a Negro by a Highway Patrolman August 6.

Officers said the bomb found about 4:45 p.m. yesterday by a Negro woman included two sticks of dynamite.

Sheriff's officers said the dynamite had been tossed from a passing car. When the dynamite hit the ground some distance from the home of James Lee Cannon, the fuse went out, they said.

The Cannon home is in the St. John's community, south of Ayden. Bombs exploded at two bridges in Southern Pitt County Friday night and a tobacco barn was hit with a third blast. One of the bridges hit was on rural road 1753 East of Ayden and the second on N.C. 102 at Scuffleton. The barn was owned by P. B. Garriss.

A bomb tossed at the Ayden Sport Shop Wednesday night damaged the front of that building. The sporting-goods store is owned by Ayden town board member Rex Smith.

A dozen more persons were charged with curfew violations last night. Sunday was the fourth night the 8:30 p.m. to 5:30 a.m. curfew was observed.

Red Blows Fail Disrupt Voting

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces mounted nearly 100 attacks over the weekend in their heaviest activity in four months but failed to disrupt the South Vietnamese lower house elections Sunday.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien of the South Vietnamese Command termed the attacks a "high point" of enemy activity but said he could not predict whether it would continue.

Official but incomplete reports said at least 41 South Vietnamese soldiers and 8 civilians were killed and 186 government troops and 53 civilians were wounded.

The allied commands claimed that 347 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed by South Vietnamese ground forces and allied air and artillery strikes.

The U.S. Command kept in force an alert confining all American troops to their bases except on official business. The command placed U.S. forces on the alert last Tuesday, saying at the time that there were indications the enemy was planning stepped up activity.

Fire At Institute

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An early morning fire gutted the main building at Fruitland Bible Institute near Hendersonville today as National Guardsmen stood duty at Henderson County schools after a series of school fires.

Henderson deputies think the fires may be related.

The Baptist-supported institute at Edneyville, about 10 miles north of Henderson, was reported on fire at 1:15 a.m., deputies said. Every volunteer fire unit in the county was called out.

Firemen had to use water from a motel swimming pool and ponds on the blaze, which destroyed the two-story, brick structure. Deputies said broken windows were found at the corner of the building where the blaze began.

Capt. Allen Bridgeman of the 210th Military Police Company in Hendersonville said all schools were guarded during the night and that a reduced force would be on duty today. He said the duty would last until the emergency was declared ended.

School officials believe three fires at schools in the last two weeks were deliberately set.

$ Falls In Paris

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell today to the lowest level on the Paris market since France set up the two-tier system and also dropped in Frankfurt. But in Zurich the dollar was up slightly.

The turnover was too small in European markets for any real trend. London markets were closed for the August bank holiday.

Dealers on the Tokyo market reported the dollar holding steady in quiet trading.

Trading opened slowly in Paris where banks quoted 5.34-5.35 financial francs to the dollar, down from 5.39-5.40 at the close Friday. Today's rate corresponded to a devaluation of about 3.8 per cent.

Dealers reported initial trade very quiet in Frankfurt.

Promises Broken, Says Ayden Mayor; Warns Tempers Are On Edge

AYDEN — Mayor Ross Persinger charged black protest leaders had failed to live up to a series of agreements after 35 Negroes were arrested for demonstrating without a permit yesterday afternoon.

According to the Ayden mayor, he met with a group of seven Negro ministers Saturday and reached agreement on a three-point move designed to ease tensions in the community.

Persinger said the Rev. B. B. Felder of Greenville, as spokesman for the ministers, agreed "there would be no activity in town as of last night (Saturday night) . . . and . . . no activity in the Town of Ayden today (Sunday)." The mayor said these assurances from Rev. Felder were tied to a promise by Persinger to meet with and allow the Pitt County Human Relations Council to help resolve the tense situation.

"Another concession on our part today, Sunday, was met with broken promises," Persinger continued.

"We allowed the marchers to walk in . . . five seconds apart . . . to St. Paul's Christian Church, on the condition that they would ride from there (the church) to Greenville to continue their march."

Persinger noted first, a number of the protesters regrouped in twos and threes and bunched up on the short walk from the town limits to the church. The protesters then, instead of riding to Greenville, began marching from the church. It was then, he explained, that the protesters were arrested.

"We were acting in good faith," Persinger said, "and had been promised no march. They should have kept this pact."

According to the mayor, "I don't know any black leader that I can trust right now. No black leaders have come to the front to try to solve this thing."

He continued, "Tempers are getting on edge. Something's got to happen."

The blacks are protesting the August 6 shooting of a Negro by a Highway Patrolman.

that the officer acted in self defense in the incident.

Ayden, with a third of its 3,450 residents Negro, has traditionally been a leader in the field of human relations, Persinger noted.

He explained that Ayden was the first town in North Carolina to establish a Good Neighbor Council and one of the first towns in Eastern North Carolina to elect a black to the town board.

Rev. Felder, commenting on Persinger's statement this morning said, "This is altogether wrong." He noted no promise had been made as an outgrowth of the meeting with the ministers.

"We did agree, however, that we could get together to see if we could solve the problem and as a result, the demonstrations would stop if the problem were solved," the minister explained. Felder blamed an incident Saturday night for causing the march in Ayden Sunday afternoon.

According to Felder, a group of children who had attended a meeting in Greenville were turned away by officers at check points and not allowed to return to their homes after the curfew went into effect, while others that attended the meeting were allowed to pass the checkpoints. "Letting part go in and part being turned away . . . This upset them all over," Rev. Felder said.

Thieu Supporters Apparently Retaining Control

By CARL D. ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Supporters of President Nguyen Van Thieu appeared today to be headed for a majority in South Vietnam's new lower house election, but it was unclear how big it would be.

Nearly one third of the members elected in the nationwide voting Sunday have no national reputation, and their political alignment was not known yet.

Official returns for 140 of the 159 seats gave Thieu supporters 58 and the opposition 32. Three independents were winners, but the other 47 were political unknowns. However, most of the 47 were from the Mekong Delta, where pro-Thieu candidates made their strongest showing.

While Thieu's supporters did well in the delta and other provinces around Saigon, opposition deputies had the edge in the major cities, including Saigon, and in the northern provinces.

In Saigon, seven of the 13 winners were opposition leaders, most of them associates of Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh. Candidates backed by the antigovernment An Quang Buddhist faction won well over half the seats in Da Nang, Hue and the surrounding northern provinces.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong made nearly 100 attacks over the weekend, their heaviest activity in four months, but failed to disrupt the elections. The government claimed a near-record turnout of 5,567,446—78.5 per cent—of the eligible voters, and said less than one per cent of the 7,000 polling sites came under direct rocket, mortar or terror attack.

In the worst election attack, a grenade thrown into a polling place in coastal Binh Dinh province killed seven civilians and wounded 23. Many of the other attacks were minor and caused no casualties or damage.

Thieu's continued control of the house and the large turnout of voters were expected to reinforce his determination to go ahead with the Oct. 3 presidential election with himself as the only contestant.

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky withdrew from the presidential race last week, proposing that he and Thieu resign and the list of candidates be reopened to nominees. But Thieu told newsmen Sunday after casting his ballot that he would not resign and that the Oct. 3 election would go ahead as planned.

U.S. officials appeared to be reconciled to the one-man presidential race despite the likelihood that it would increase opposition in the United States to America's role in Vietnam.

There had been reports that the Nixon administration might reduce or withhold aid to Thieu's government, but one diplomat commented: "South Vietnam is dependent on the United States for its survival, just as North Vietnam is dependent on China and the Soviet Union. The only alternative to providing arms, ammunition and aid to South Vietnam is to abandon it to the North. South Vietnam will require at least $500 million a year in aid for some years."

Couple Speaks Vows On Sunday Lloyd-Carrow Vows Solemnized Sunday

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Once upon a time the best way to eat fresh corn was to run into the garden, pick the corn, rush it to the kitchen and cook it immediately.

But modern methods have made the corn bought at the supermarket extremely good. Now quick cooking of the ears and rapid transit has benefited the corn available commercially. The sweetness of a prime ear of corn can be retained when the field heat is removed right after it's harvested and then it is kept cold on its way to market.

Of course corn is delicious served as is. But once in a while it's worth using it in a "made" dish. We've done just that in the following recipe which we call Corn Gumbo. "Gumbo," according to Webster, is another name for okra.

- FRESH CORN GUMBO
- 1 medium onion
 - 2 medium green peppers
 - 5 large or 6 medium ears fresh corn
 - 1 package (10 ounces) frozen whole okra, slightly defrosted
 - 1 small clove garlic
 - 1 beef bouillon cube
 - 1/2 cup boiling water
 - 1/2 of a quarter-pound stick butter (1/4 cup)
 - 3/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- Peel onion; quarter; cut into thin vertical strips.
Wash green peppers; halve;

remove seeds and white membranes; dice coarsely.

Remove husks and silks from corn. With a large sharp knife cut off kernels; with back of knife scrape down creamy pulp. There should be about 3 cups kernels and pulp packed down.

Slice okra crosswise into about 1/2-inch thick rounds. Peel and mince garlic. Dissolve bouillon cube in water.

In a 10-inch skillet over moderately low heat, melt butter. Add onion and green pepper; cook gently, stirring often until partly tender—about 5 minutes. Add corn, okra, garlic, bouillon, salt and pepper. Cover tightly and simmer, stirring several times to prevent sticking, until corn and okra are tender—about 5 minutes.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.
NOTE: If you like you may crush the garlic instead of mincing it.

The plain sweat shirt's going the way of all those things you used to be able to buy for five cents. What's in? The sweat shirt with a message or a decoration. The "peanuts" shirts might have started the trend. However it started, it's here. Sweat shirts with peace symbols, with caricatures of personalities political and entertaining, with huge numerals abound. Maybe the sweat shirt's taking the place of the protest sign?

More African Women Become Criminals

By KENNETH L. WHITING
PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—The impact of women's lib is felt in at least one traditionally masculine stronghold in South Africa—crime.

Women, particularly aggressive women, are increasingly taking part in crime, says Prof. Herman Venter. He believes this reflects in part the women's liberation movement sweeping many parts of the world.

"We see this in other walks of life and it also applies to the crime pattern. The current incidence of aggression among women is part of the emancipation drive in South Africa.

"There is a trend to prove that women are equal or superior to men in all walks of life, including crime," said Venter, who heads the criminology department at the University of Pretoria.

"To some extent men themselves are responsible for this. To start with, men throughout the world, I venture to say also in South Africa, are losing their fiber and are becoming more and more effeminate.

"Many responsibilities formerly shouldered by men are gradually and frequently unwittingly transferred to women. Inevitably they are subjected to the same physical and psychological pressures which very often find an outlet in aggression and criminal behavior."

Miss Edna Adams Weds Joseph A. Allen Sunday

York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church was the setting for the wedding ceremony of Miss Edna Yvonne Adams and Joseph A. Allen on Sunday at 4:00 p.m.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Bishop W. L. Jones assisted by the Rev. A. W. Washington.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Johnny Wooten and Hubert Walters, organists. Mrs. Marian Jones and Dudley E. Flood were soloists.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Elsie G. Adams of Greenville, and the late James Andrew Adams, was given in marriage by her brother, James Adams of Sacramento, Calif. She wore a gown of white silk organza. Chantilly lace motifs enhanced the high collar, the long bishop sleeves and circled the high rise waist. Lace appliques were scattered over the gathered skirt and bordered the detachable length train. Pearls highlighted some of the lace motifs.

The veil of silk illusion was attached to a coronet of flower lace designs encrusted with pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids clustered with yellow-sweetheart roses, tied with yellow and white satin.

The church was enhanced with the traditional green and white decorations. In the background of the church was a fifteen semi-circle candelabra flanked with two tall standards of greenery and two coronet candelabra with bouquets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

On the altar posts were bouquets of white gladioli. Preceding to the altar were seven branched candelabra and tall floor standards of greenery. At the altar was a profile prie-dieu where the vows were exchanged and the couple knelt for the closing prayer. Pews were marked with tall pew holders with lighted tapers. The entire church was enclosed with white satin.

The mother of the bridegroom wore an apricot dress, matching accessories, and an orchid corsage.

Miss Addie Gore directed the wedding.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Columbia, S. C., where the bridegroom is stationed. The bride will be employed at the University of South Carolina.

Reception

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Bachelor Benedict Club.

The guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Darden and introduced to the receiving line by Miss Frances Vines.

The refreshment table was covered with a white satin cloth and an arrangement of yellow-snapdragons, white carnations and tuberose in a four branched silver candelabra. The bridal table held a tree tiered wedding cake which was decorated in yellow and white.

After the bride and bridegroom cut the traditional first slice of the three tiered cake, Mrs. Barbara Flood served the cake. Mrs. James Adams and Mrs. Louis Randolph poured punch.

Mrs. June Lovick presided at the register. Good-byes were said by Miss Ruth Staton.

Others assisting at the reception were Miss Irma Casey, Mrs. Bertha Wooten, Mrs. Christine Blount, Mrs. Nanie Willoughby and Lizzie Tillery.

An after-rehearsal dinner was held at the Holiday Inn Saturday evening honoring the wedding party and out-of-town guests. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Darden, Mr. and Mrs. Roser Johnson and Mrs. Christine Barrett.

Point Of Diminishing Returns

Anti-war activities like those who attempted to burglarize draft board offices in New Jersey and New York a few days ago have reached the point of diminishing returns with such lawlessness.

Congress has revamped the nation's draft law to eliminate many of the inequities which existed. When it returns from the summer recess, Congress will further revise the draft law with a view to ending it perhaps within the next year or two. Already it envisions an all-volunteer military establishment in the near future.

What then have the anti-draft forces to gain by attempting to destroy draft records and wreck draft offices? It must be some sort of misguided personal satisfaction.

Certainly such acts do not impress upon Congress the desirability of ending the draft, for Congress already is moving in that direction as rapidly as possible. Congress is not intimidated by such lawlessness and neither is the public.

Certainly such acts do not arouse public sympathy for the cause of the radicals. People of the nation are overly tired of such demonstrations, violence and lawlessness.

Those who participated in the raids on the draft offices should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law, and those who are found guilty of the crimes should be punished accordingly.

Challenges Are Being Talked

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALIEGH — Will musical chairs be the name of the game for Council of State seats in next year's Democratic primary and general election?

Maybe so, but present incumbents aren't likely to sing swan songs willingly.

Rumors are persistent for challenges to some of the chairman and a black, also has shown interest.

Wilbur Hobby, state AFL-CIO chief, has been quoted as saying organized labor would support Lee, and he would try to persuade Simmons to look in another direction.

Responding to an inquiry, Crane had this to say:

"I have seen several statements to the effect that the immediate past chairman of the state Democratic party and a present vice chairman are running for Commissioner of Labor. Neither of the gentlemen has had personal contact with me.

"As to me not running, it has been purely second-hand supposition, gross gossip, sidewalk hearsay, and rampant rumor.

"It would appear that there is an organized, concerted conspiracy at state Democratic headquarters to 'dump Crane' but Crane is still 'digging.' I have no further comment at this time as to the speculation or surmise of any person or the presumptive press."

Scott For Treasurer? Treasurer Gill gave out his statement after publication of a report that he was considering retirement, and that Gov. Bob Scott has told some associates he would be interested in the job.

Gill said he had hoped to wait until after the General Assembly meets in October to announce his candidacy, but decided to act to squelch the rumor.

"I will be a candidate for Treasurer of North Carolina in 1972," he said.

The people of North Carolina have been good to me by trusting me with the responsibilities of this great office of Treasurer, where I have had the privilege of participating, along with others, in the building of a fine credit rating for our State. This recognition is, of course, based upon sound business principles that we have practiced here in North Carolina for many years. With the approval of our people, I would like to continue to serve them as Treasurer."

There is the possibility that some of the speculation on contests for Council seats has originated with the purpose of pressuring incumbents to step aside. The prospect of hard races, with attendant campaign costs, could bring second thoughts particularly when eligibility for retirement offers an easy out.

The Council jobs are relatively modest in power, prestige and pay. Salaries effective for upcoming terms are $25,000 each, with the exception of Attorney General, set at $29,500, and Superintendent of Public Instruction, fixed at $28,500.

More Caution Needed With School Starting

With schools starting throughout Pitt County motorists should exercise a greater degree of caution.

Literally thousands of youngsters will be walking to school daily throughout the county. Other thousands will be riding the familiar school buses. And there will be others who make their daily trips to and from school in automobiles driven by themselves or by parents.

This year, as every year, there will be kids who dash across streets or highways without first having looked carefully enough. There will be those on bikes who could drift into the path of an on-coming vehicle. There will be congestion of traffic at certain hours of the day in the vicinity of schools.

All of these things call for a greater degree of caution by every driver, whether on city streets or on the highways and rural roads of the county.

Professionals Are Smothered

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — At the first staff meeting of high-level State Department officials following Henry Kissinger's secret flight to Peking last month, Secretary of State William P. Rogers announced somewhat defensively he wanted everyone to know that "the State Department has been in on this from the start."

In fact, except for Rogers himself and possibly one or two of his top aides such as political Under Secretary U. Alexis Johnson, State Department Far East experts were as much in the dark as everyone else.

Likewise, when President Nixon made the spectacular turnabout that killed his tattered economic game plan and floated the dollar, not one State Department economic expert had been clued in, including Deputy Under Secretary of State Nathaniel Samuels, the Department's leading international economist.

Instead, the Treasury Department's Paul A. Volcker, Under Secretary for Monetary Affairs, was ordered to carry the ball at the historic Camp David sessions for the President's drastic new foreign economic policy.

Volcker is a highly proficient technician, but Samuels is credited with a far more comprehensive grasp of the political effects abroad of a free dollar and the new 10 per cent import fence.

In countless other matters involving less dramatic policy decisions, President Nixon's White House has circumvented the State Department bureaucracy, leaning not on career Foreign Service officers so often scorned by so many White House staffs in the past, but on non-career advisers, particularly the President's own National Security staff in the White House.

Under Mr. Nixon, however, this effort to smother the professionals has been carried much farther than in the Kennedy or Johnson administrations, which built the foundation of the now-institutionalized foreign policy apparatus in the White House. For example, the skilled technicians on Dr. Henry Kissinger's National Security staff now number about twice as many as the staffs of McGeorge Bundy or Walt Rostow in the 1960s.

But what is undermining morale at the State Department even more gravely than suffocation from the White House are the extraordinary new rules of secrecy recently laid down by Rogers. These are a direct result of Mr. Nixon's passion to keep all the important reins in his own and Kissinger's hands and to smother second-guessing about decisions already announced.

Thus, Rogers has issued instructions to top-level careerists in the department warning against written policies as Mr. Nixon's new approach to Communist China.

That Rogers order is a direct result of White House fury over premature leaks to the press. One case in point was an accurate story published on July 23 in the New York Times on the strategic arms limitation talks, setting forth an American negotiating position. Another was the so-called "phantom memorandum" on a possible Israeli pullback from the Suez Canal, a memorandum written by Donald Bergus, the highly capable U.S. diplomat in Cairo, which was leaked by the Egyptian foreign office.

Roger's word to his top assistants is succinct: if it could embarrass the White House, don't put it in writing. In addition to this subtle (Continued On Page 5)

Somebody To Save You

MARTHA'S VINEYARD — There are many great places where you can't write a book, but as far as I'm concerned none compares to Martha's Vineyard.

This is how I manage not to write a book and I pass it on to fledgling authors as well as old-timers who have vowed to produce a great work of art this summer.

The first thing you need is lots of paper, carbon, a solid typewriter, preferably electric, and a quiet spot in the house overlooking the water.

You get up at 6 o'clock in the morning and go for a dip in the sea, then you come back and make yourself a hearty breakfast.

By 7 a.m. you are ready to begin Page 1, Chapter 1. You insert a piece of paper in the typewriter and start to type "It was the best of times..."

Suddenly you look out the window and you see a sea gull diving for a fish. This is not an ordinary sea gull. It seems to have a broken wing and you get up from the desk to observe it on the off chance that somewhere in the book you may want to insert a scene of a sea gull with a broken wing trying to dive for a fish. (It would make a great shot when the book is sold to the movies and the lovers are in bed.)

It is now 8 a.m. and the sounds of people getting up distract you. There is no sense trying to work with everyone crashing around the house. So you write a letter to your editor telling him how well the book is going and that you're even more optimistic about this one than the last one which the publisher never advertized.

It is now 9 o'clock in the morning and you go into the kitchen and scream at your wife. "How am I going to get any work done around here if the kids are making all that racket? It doesn't mean anything in this family that I have to make a living."

Your wife kicks all the kids out of the house and you go back to your desk. It suddenly occurs to you that your agent may also want to see a copy of the book so you tear out the paper and start over with an original and two carbons "It was the best of times..."

You look out the window again and you see a sailboat in trouble. You take your binoculars and study the situation carefully. If it gets worse you may have to call

Boyle Views Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

This is known as "the laryngitis season" among politicians. No matter how loud they shout their promises, it is almost impossible for them to woo the American male's attention away from the pro football games. What the great game of politics needs now is a more inspiring quarterback.

When a man deliberately insults another man, everybody in the vicinity knows what is going on at once. Two women in a social group, however, can artfully insult each other for an entire evening without any man present being more than dimly aware that something is amiss.

The thing in this world that probably gets the most praise for the least performance is the taste of a slice of the average wedding cake. Wedding cakes apparently are baked to be looked at rather than eaten. America has yet to produce a hero courageous enough to take a bite of wedding cake, push away the plate and say, shaking his head, "It's too crummy for me."

Speaking of weddings, my idea of a bridegroom with savoir faire is one who can borrow money from the minister during the ceremony.

Most people believe that the best way to win over a growling, suspicious dog is to slowly hold out a hand, palm out, toward it at a level below the dog's head. Some experts contend, however, that the hand should be extended palm downward so the dog will recognize that it cannot clutch at him.

What is a good meal? A good meal is one during which at least two kinds of wine are poured and which is eaten by at least two persons in love with one another.

What is a good day? A good day is one which finds you at bedtime faintly puzzled because you haven't thought of a reason in 24 hours for reaching for a stomach pill or aspirin tablet. But a fellow doesn't get days like that very often anymore.

The honeymoon is over when a guy on a business trip opens his suitcase and finds his wife has stuffed an overdue bill in one of his socks instead of a love note.

Other Editors Say Flood Recalled

(Henderson Dispatch)
Even those who do remember find it difficult to realize that it has been 31 years since the great flood in the Roanoke river in mid-August 1940. It was without precedent in the lifetime of those who viewed it. Persistent rains upstream in Virginia on the watershed of the Roanoke and its tributaries accumulated the vast sluice of water that devastated pastures, farmland in Virginia and over a large portion of Eastern North Carolina as far down as Williamston.

Industries along the river were inundated, and millions of dollars of damage resulted in the affected area. Those who saw will never forget it. Those who have only heard of it find it difficult to believe, not having seen.

Countless farm animals were drowned, and in many instances their carcasses were observed being carried along with the raging current.

The flood was the starting point of agitation for the huge Kerr dam at Buggs Island, a hundred feet or more high above the river bed. It was the better part of a decade in construction, including the tug of war to get legislation through. Congress providing the approximately $80 million for the project in the Roanoke and in upstream tributaries in Virginia. Power is being generated to supply southside Virginia and many communities in North Carolina.

Property along the Roanoke has never been threatened by floods since the dam was completed in the early 1950s. There have been floods, to be sure, but never any even remotely to equal that of August, 1940.

Many stories have been and will continue to be told about the flood, and legend will build up on the basis of what the thousands saw and remember. It is not likely that any one now living will ever again see such sights as there were that devastating week. One had to see to believe, and even then could scarcely believe his own eyes.

Strength For Today

JULIAN
There was a Roman emperor, Julian, who lived about the year A.D. 332. Julian embraced Christianity, but Julian's tastes were those of a pagan. The secular world had an irresistible attraction for Julian. He cared more for culture than he did for the teachings of Christ.

Although Christianity had been established for more than three hundred years, Julian at last forsook Christianity and embraced the cause of paganism. He believed that the worship of idols was necessary and thereupon began to restore the power of the old paganism which Christianity had supplanted.

But Julian was the last champion of a dying polytheism. He was in many ways a remarkable man — a great warrior and the patron of literature and philosophy. Julian believed that the new religion that had swept over the world, called Christianity, at the center of which stood a carpenter who undoubtedly had performed many unusual miracles and taught in a way that caused men and women to look up and have more hope, was largely a superstition. The Christians called Julian "the apostate" — the traitor. Julian issued an edict of toleration, saying that people may be Christians if they cared to embrace that religion, but he used his influence at all times to advance the cause of paganism. Julian, with all his faults, was a brave soldier who eventually died from wounds received in battle.

We could all become "apostates" if we are not careful.

Freeze to 'Unfreeze' Products

By ELMER ROESSNER
Expect an increase in the number of new products hitting the market. Expect an even sharper increase in the number of new models of older products.

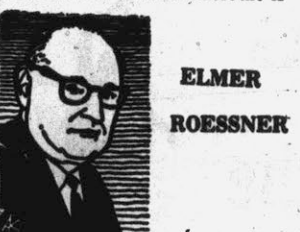

The price freeze will cause manufacturers faster than before to discontinue products that are producing unsatisfactory profits. The fact that they can set their own prices on new products will cause them to speed the introduction of new ones.

In addition, many manufacturers will launch new products that can substitute for foreign products hit by the 10 per cent import surcharge.

New models will be a way to avoid the price freeze. If an improvement increases the cost of producing an item, the producer can increase the price to cover that cost and a reasonable profit. And if there is a bit of fudging, it will be hard to detect.

Fashions Unfreeze
It will be difficult to keep frozen prices of feminine fashions, which are almost always new models. Apparel keeps on changing in design material, workmanship and trim that it will be difficult if not impossible to hold the price line. Even the manufacturer will find it difficult to hold his prices at the same level.

During World War II, various ways of chilling, if not freezing, apparel prices were tried but none was completely satisfactory.

Even freezing markups didn't work. If a garment didn't sell, the manufacturer on the retailer lost, regardless of the markup; if it was popular, profits soared.

And, as pointed out before, during that war, despite a huge bureaucracy to enforce controls, and patriotic fervor running high, both prices and wages rose, though much slower than they might have.

Other Look-Aheads
The President's anti-inflation plan is already having effects beyond the fun and games in the stock market.

The steel industry, once reconciled to dolldrums from now until winter, is stepping up production plans. One authority is predicting that next year's production, aided by the surcharge on imports, will exceed 1969 shipment of 93.9 million tons.

Auto dealers, cheered by the price freeze and prospects of a cut in the federal excise tax, are increasing orders for 1972 models, albeit cautiously. However, as Industry Week points out aluminum and aerospace industries are still struggling through their private recessions.

Coming to market will be orange crystals which, added to cold water, will produce a tasty orange juice. The Department of Agriculture and the Florida Citrus Commission have developed a technique for converting orange concentrate into crystals. Current production is going to the Department of Defense but as production rises, it will be available at retail.

A new business index is coming BankAmericard has begun to make public quarterly reports on credit card delinquencies and other credit card organizations may follow. The first BankAmericard report is encouraging. Credit card sales in the April-June quarter were 25 per cent above a year ago and only 2.34 per cent of accounts were 30 days past due; 1.83 per cent between 30 and 90 days past due, and 1.72 per cent more than 90 days. Chargeoffs for the quarter were 1.77 per cent, compared with 1.95 per cent in the previous quarter.

the Coast Guard. But after a half-hour of struggling they seem to have things under control.

By this time you remember you were supposed to receive a check from the Saturday Review so you walk down to the post office, pause at the drugstore for newspapers, and stop at the hardware store for rubber cement to repair your daughter's raft.

You're back to your desk at 1 p.m. when you remember you haven't had lunch. So you fix yourself a tuna fish sandwich and read the newspapers.

It is now 2:30 p.m. and you are about to hit the keys when Bill Styron calls. He announces they have just received a load of lobsters at Menemsha and he's driving over to get some before they're all gone. Well, you say to yourself, you can always write a book on the Vineyard, but how often can you get fresh lobster?

So you agree to go with Styron for just an hour.

Two hours later with the thought of fresh lobster as inspiration, you sit down at the typewriter. The doorbell rings and Norma Brustein is standing there in her tennis togs looking for a fourth for doubles.

You don't want to hurt Norma's feelings so you get your racket and for the next hour play a fierce game of tennis, which is the only opportunity you have had all day of taking your mind off your book.

It is now 6 o'clock and the kids are back in the house, so there is no sense trying to get work done any more for that day.

So you put the cover on the typewriter with a secure feeling that no matter how ambitious you are about working there will always be somebody on the Vineyard ready and eager to save you.

Doctor Covers Remote District

By KENNETH L. WHITING OSHAKATI, South West Africa (AP) — A doctor called "omukurume" by his patients in Kaokoland carries a spear on his rounds and makes tree calls instead of house calls.

Dr. Johan Gildenhuys is no witchdoctor, but some of the Tjimba and Himba peoples he treats are more familiar with tribal cures than modern medicine. They dubbed Gildenhuys, who is in his 50s, omukurume, which means grandfather or old man.

About 20,000 Tjimbas and Himbas live in the Zebra Mountains west of his hospital at Oshakati in a northern corner of South West Africa, which is under the control of South Africa. They are a primitive offshoot of the more numerous Herero tribe which migrated from the Lake Tanganyika area several hundred years ago.

They lead a sparse existence in the hills which fringe the bleak Namid Desert. Zebras are hunted with poisoned spears and the animal's liver is considered a delicacy. When they can't get zebra, they eat lizards and other small animals and the roots of plants.

The tribesmen presented Gildenhuys with an "assagai," a short stabbing spear, after he made several visits and they learned to trust his antibiotics and other modern drugs. The weapon goes with him on medical safari now.

"There's a big baobab tree near Ohopaho and when we get there I stick the assagai into the tree trunk. The Tjimbas have been watching me although I can't see them. When they see the spear they start to trickle in from the bush for treatment."

Why do they hide until they recognize the spear? "They are a shy people in the sense that they probably distrust Europeans," said the doctor.

As senior medical man in the area, Gildenhuys supervises government efforts to extend health services to blacks who depended on self-treatment or a handful of medical missionaries until about 10 years ago.

When not making tree calls, in neighboring Kaokoland, Gildenhuys presides over a modern 600-bed hospital at Oshakati in Ovamboland. Construction of the $5.6 million complex started five years ago.

About 5,000 out patients are treated each month. There's a registration fee of 70 cents for bed patients and 14 for out patients, but this is waived for blacks who cannot afford it. There are no other charges for Africans, but whites pay fees on a sliding scale based on their salaries.

The Oshakati hospital is hub of a health network stretching across Kaokoland, Ovamboland and Okavangoland—an area of more than 20,000 square miles. Regional clinics and traveling medical teams keep in touch by radio.

All physicians at the main hospital are white and the nursing staff is multiracial. Apartheid color bar laws are disappearing in tribal homelands, such as Ovamboland, which are being readied for limited self-rule.

Gildenhuys said volunteer medical specialists are flown in from Windhoek every two weeks to handle complicated cases.

The most common ailments are lumped over "Ovambo pains," a catchall term for aches in the joints and sore bones. "They get these mostly from walking so much."

DEAR ABBY: In regard to that "Independent Widow" who likes separate checks: I'm a waitress, and can you imagine a party of 12 wanting separate checks? All that writing! And getting the right check to the right person, then taking 12 checks and the money to the cashier and trying to get the correct change back to the right person. Meanwhile the other customers are wondering why their service is so slow.

And while I'm writing, I'd like to mention that people are getting very conservative about tipping. We would be happy with a straight 10 per cent. I get $1.30 an hour, but my take-home is about $1 because I have to tip the bus boys and bartenders myself.

Most people don't realize many waitresses are the heads of their families and have children to support.

Why do we stay in this line of work? No education, and we don't know how to do anything else. Also, we don't need a wardrobe for waitress work. Thanks for listening, Abby.

A WAITRESS IN CYPRESS, CAL.

DEAR WAITRESS: I know your story well. My late beloved father was not a "rich" man, but he was rich in character and compassion. He always left a quarter tip for a 10-cent cup of coffee. I once said, "Daddy, isn't that an awful lot?"

He replied, "Not for a waitress. They're nice, hard-working girls who have one of the toughest jobs in the world."

DEAR ABBY: I bet my brother I could get at least one penny letter into your column. The bet is over now and I lost. What bugs me is that I sent in at least 10 very believable letters and not one of them got printed.

Now will you please tell me how you can tell the real letters from the fake ones? CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: It's easy. The fake letters strive too hard for believability, and the most unbelievable ones are real.

DEAR ABBY: For the last two years I have been going with a widower I'll call "Mac." [I'm a divorcee.] Mac's wife died four years ago after they had been married 30 years. Mac lives alone in a lovely big home. Recently his deceased wife's sister came to town with a lady friend. Both these women are unmarried. These ladies stayed at Mac's home for a whole week!

I told Mac I didn't think it looked right for a single man to have two single women staying with him. He said I had an "evil" mind.

I then asked him how he would like it if I had two bachelors staying at my apartment for a week, and he said, "That's different."

What I want to know is, what is "different" about it?

BURNED IN CLEVELAND

DEAR BURNED: Ask Mac, since he made the statement. If there is no hanky panky going on, it seems to me the one who makes the accusation is the one with the evil mind.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "UTICA": Even the a foreigner [alien] no longer automatically becomes an American citizen by simply marrying an American, the alien does become eligible for permanent resident status in the United States, which is the first step in acquiring American citizenship. After he becomes a permanent resident, he is eligible to apply for American citizenship after three years' residence in the U. S. with his American citizen wife. This is often a strong incentive for aliens to marry American women.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90060. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

intimidation against free discourse between professionals and the press (in the past a valuable source of fresh and often unorthodox ideas), Rogers is under rising pressure from President Nixon to give him "non-careerist" State Department judgments on new policies — that is, judgments of political appointees.

This White House aversion to careerist judgments is certainly not new. The cautious, self-protective bureaucrat often finds twenty reasons for being against a bold shift in policy, while the political appointee is ready to underwrite anything he thinks the President wants.

As a result, Mr. Nixon's isolation of professional careerists carries enormous risks. It threatens to reduce the department to a third-rate appendage of paper-shufflers and close off what should be an open pipeline of expert opinion.

'Draft Education' Is Defended

By PATRICI McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) —Draft education programs are springing up in the nation's high schools —despite the fact that some elements in most communities deplore the development, tagging it draft evasion how-toism.

The criticism isn't fair, according to architects of draft education programs they maintain that high school is the logical place to clear the air about the draft.

Without exposure to draft education most 18-year-olds arrive at their draft boards ill-informed about the rights, obligations, opportunities and problems current draft laws present to them and their families.

A report on draft education, by the editors of Nation's Schools, a McGraw-Hill journal for school administrators, says the schools are reacting to prodding from some highly disparate groups.

These include churchmen, antiwar leaders, parents, students and lately, the Selective Service itself.

Urges Draft Course
In a letter to high school administrators nationwide, the new director of the Selective Service System, Curtis W. Tarr, urged schools to launch draft education.

In the letter he said: "We are greatly concerned that young men nationwide — especially those nearing the end of their high school education — do not have access to adequate and accurate information about the draft."

"Too often this means that a young man is required to make critical decisions about his future without knowing all the pertinent facts. With an eye toward correcting the deficiency, we wish to encourage high schools to include a (curriculum) unit on draft information."

The Selective Service followed up with "Curriculum Guide to the Draft," distributed to 2,300 school high school administrators. The agency subsequently received responses from administrators at almost half that number of schools, indicating they are either using it for classroom instruction or counseling or are considering doing so next fall, "Nation's Schools" reported.

Some schools incorporate the guide into existing courses or use it as the backbone for short-term courses devoted exclusively to study of the draft.

Students, Nation's Schools say, are apt to get a chuckle or two from some of the guide's "Questions to Guide Investigation."

Sample: "What possible points of disagreement may exist between your judgment and that of the Selective Service System?"

The guide must hit some pressure points on target, however. Why else would it be praised by draft resistance groups, military people, and educators alike as being objective, informational and relatively straightforward?

The publication says one of the country's most active groups now training counselors, the Midwest Committee on Draft Counseling, cautions that the text of the guide "is not nearly detailed or accurate enough to be used for draft counseling literature, but points out that the guide should be useful for its intended purpose."

Wide Need For Data
To "promote rational individual choices about military service from the options available under existing laws," the guide also covers the legal basis for classification and for acceptance or rejection of classification and the legal and illegal alternatives to induction.

Nation's Schools reports draft counseling programs are under way in all New York City high schools and several suburban communities, in all Philadelphia high schools, in some Chicago area suburbs, in Des Moines, Iowa, Kalamazoo, Mich., and Dayton, Ohio.

The need for reliable information and advice is so widespread, says New York's coordinator of Selective Service guidance, Henry Brun, that "draft advising as a business is one of the fastest growing in the country."

Some educators can't understand why discussion of the draft in the schools is still a controversial issue in some places —especially since President Nixon's campaign pledges in 1968 to abolish conscription. In many communities the draft is still linked with patriotism or lack of it. And the draft evasion overtones follow. Among educators this is hard to understand. In many schools, for example, there is education and counseling on income taxes, but this does not bring cries of teaching "tax evasion."

Vandals Shatter Two Windows

Two windows, valued at about $150 were reported broken at the New Deal Cleaners, 911 West Fifth St. Sunday.

The vandalism occurred about 9:40 p.m. according to Chief Glenn Cannon, who said two persons were seen running from the scene.

Investigation of the case is under way.

Where to Write
Schoolmen who want free copies of the Selective Service Guide may write to: Office of Public Information, Selective Service System, 1724 F. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., asking for "Curriculum Guide to the Draft."

Other guides recommended by nation's Schools include: Opportunities under Draft Law, price, $1, available from Dr. Peter P. Wallus, Kalamazoo Public Schools, 1220 Howard St., Kalamazoo, Mich.

'Free University' Plan Cools Park's Atmosphere

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Dressed in sports shirt, slacks and loafers, Mayor Wes Wise squatted yogi-fashion in Lee Park to "rap" with the hippies.

It was the final "Rap with the Establishment" session of the year for the informal Lee Park Free University, which has provided noncredit courses in a variety of subjects during the past two summers. The open-air project has been credited with "cooling" the park's atmosphere.

While a rock band blared in the distance Sunday night, the longhairs fired questions and criticism at Wise.

Their main complaint: Some restaurants and ice cream parlors won't serve them and the Dallas police act tough.

Wise asked for a list of eating places that discriminate against hippies and said he would see what the city attorney could do. Complaints about the police, he said, could always be brought to the city council. His audience looked skeptical on both counts.

"Would Mayor Daley do this in Chicago?" the 41-year-old Wise asked. "Would Mayor Alioto in San Francisco?"

And a hippie-type responded to a newsman: "No, I don't believe Daley would've come out here. He'd be scared, but I kinda think Alioto might."

Promotions, Additions

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Police Department has had two promotions and two additions, bringing the force to a total of 12 officers.

Lt. Grover Bailey has been promoted from sergeant and Cpl. Alvin King was promoted from patrolman by the Board of Commissioners upon the recommendation of Chief Carl Tanner.

Lt. Bailey, a Farmville native has been with the Department for 23 years. Cpl. King had been on the Force for some time previous to resigning year before last and returning this year.

The two new officers are Robert Lee Collins, 29, and Wilbur Gray Barber, 34.

Collins, a native of Bennettsville, S. C. has had previous experience as a policeman, but went to Farmville from Charlotte where he did another type of work. His wife is the former Julia Ray of Ayden.

Barber is a Route 1, Greenville native. He and his wife, Linda, have one child.

Light Damage In Store Fire

Greenville firemen were called to 317 West 12th St. about 12:50 a.m. today when a fire erupted in Wilson's Grocery.

Officers said the blaze, which was out when fire units arrived, apparently started from an electrical short circuit of wiring behind a freezer in the store. Light damage was reported.

SIN IN MILAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Principal photography on "The Sin," starring Sophia Loren and Adriano Celentano, will be filmed in Milan this fall. The story centers on a nun working as a nurse in a hospital and a headstrong young patient.

Lee Park is located in what was once an elite housing area. Now the area is a little run down. The park people have taken over some of the older buildings for community homes. Other buildings house drug treatment facilities and crash pads for runaway teenagers.

The park itself earned a bad reputation as the scene of muggings, shootings, stabbings, drug trafficking and rape.

"It's a trouble spot and a good place to get hurt," said one officer on the Lee Park beat.

Last summer seven Dallas citizens solicited donations and obtained permission from the Parks Board to start Lee Park Free University.

"A lot of beautiful things have happened here," said bearded Chapman Kelley, owner of a local art gallery who is one of the seven. "Some of the kids found they liked learning and have gone back to school. Other kids started bringing their parents along. The generations are learning to communicate again."

The Free University had about 1,000 students the first year, but the number dropped to around 800 this summer.

"We don't know why," explained Dr. Henry Lanz, another of the founding fathers. "There just aren't so many of the kids hanging around this year. They seem to be leaving Dallas."

The courses are taught by volunteers, many of them professors at Dallas based universities. They believed they might give hippies a new outlet.

The subjects picked are those that appeal to the park people, such as yoga, law, African culture, Far eastern philosophy, ethics and civil disobedience, sculpture and painting, the psychology of marriage and ecology.

Student Environmental Project 'Showing The Way'

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Architectural students with their energy, enthusiasm and time to devote to special projects might solve some of our housing and environmental needs.

One group set the stage for an environmental project in Hyden, Ky., in the heart of Appalachia. The recent graduates of the University of Kentucky hope fall semester students will pick up where they left off.

The four students failed to accomplish all their objectives, but have you ever grappled with the U.S. Corps of Engineers and state highway departments? It takes time.

The boys—Jim Ellis, Glen Hubbach, Marvin Crider and Bill Sammons with Dean Charles Graves—became entranced with the problems of the people of Hyden, who were cut off from nursing facilities and from each other when the reservoir reached maximum pool level and overflowed.

If they could just fill in the flood area, they would have developable land, the boys reasoned. A spur road and the new Daniel Boone Parkway, financed by a bond issue, is to provide 1.3 million cubic yards of waste earth which the highway department planned to deposit in a hollow. Why not deposit the waste earth in the center of Hyden for the purpose of raising the area? Such developable land would solve many needs—public housing, parking and an expansion of commercial buildings, educational and medical facilities, they decided.

"The Corps of Engineers agreed we could work out design details, but we got a negative response from the highway construction department on transporting the fill. Land must be in public ownership to get landfill," explained Jim Ellis.

That didn't stop the students. They tried to form a development corporation of landowners, but it soon became apparent that this wouldn't work either, so they urged the city to purchase five acres from title holders. This made them eligible for a state program that enabled the town to deal directly with the contractor who would haul the dirt.

Ellis worked pretty much as a liaison between the design studio at the university in Lexington, and Hyden. He did much of the road work and met with various people to help get the community organized. He and Sammons spent much time at the Hyden county seat talking with local officials, and they spent a lot of time on sidewalks and in drug stores talking up the project to the people.

"The town's people were leary of outsiders, and that was the first thing we had to overcome," Ellis explained.

Hubbach worked with town development and his proposal of "something resembling a shopping center would provide for immediate needs," he said, but in the future the plan would evolve into a service center with a recreational facility nearby. The only recreation available is a basement billiards hall, and most social discourse takes place in the drug store or on courthouse steps, he explained. The only industry is coal mining.

"Sports areas are sometimes included in government welfare programs," explained Crider, who worked on several other government sponsored recreation projects. "Greasy Creek is good and it is a very scenic area without residents or man-made pollution of any kind. Hiking and fishing wouldn't conflict with ecology and would leave the area clean. In terms of an elementary low-key recreation area, it could be developed."

Sammons whose particular beat was "old age" came up with the fact that there is one doctor for 5,000 people in Leslie County and 27 beds for 11,000 people. In addition to land use proposals, he has made a proposal for an extended care unit. There is no such facility in southeast Kentucky, he says, and they really need extended care units in all 60 counties. People really aren't sick enough to be in hospitals, but they need help.

"Each month three or more people must leave the area because of senility and each gives up the $70-or-so monthly income that could support him in his home because there is no one to give him the occasional care he might need."

The boys have gotten away a bit from their original project of filling in the town flood area, but they are on to a great many other needs. All worked in the area last summer and this year they are giving it another whirl.

When they formulated their plan, they took it to the educational foundation of the National Society of Interior Designers which had posted notices at universities that award money was available for environmental purposes. They received some funds to help research the project, and they came up with a spectacular presentation, including graphs, charts and statistics.

During portions of the year we concentrated our efforts," Ellis explained of the student project, "but soon we had branched off in different directions to develop various aspects of it."

The group believes it has successfully pointed out the way for future development of the area and that the townspeople now can go ahead even if outside help is unavailable.

City Of Suez Near-Deserted

By C. C. MINICLIER
Associated Press Writer

SUEZ, Egypt (AP) — A city of a quarter of a million people is a welcome sight after driving more than 75 miles through bleak, blinding sunbaked desert.

But, as one enters Suez for the first time, it becomes apparent something is wrong.

The buildings are there but one sees no women, no children, no street vendors, no camels.

There are no panes in the countless window frames and most of the buildings have been torn by shell holes that seem to have hit every room.

This is Suez today, two miles from the Egyptian-Israeli front lines.

Once a bustling seaport town at the southern entrance of the Suez Canal, it was subject to intensive air and artillery attacks for many months in its own little, barely noticed war of 1969-70.

Where once 264,000 persons lived, worked and played, only some 3,000 civilian men and 42-women live today. The unlisted number of soldiers present fails to revise the image of a ghost city.

A government official explains that two of the women are wives, one of a newsstand dealer, and the other 40 are nurses at the local hospital. Wives and children of the civilians are allowed to visit, he adds.

From the ruins of the shell-torn French Consulate, one can see the blue green waters of the canal and an Israeli watch tower some 220 yards away. The enemy is clearly visible in the open-sided tower.

"This," a guide says needlessly, "is the front."

Barbed wire, mines and un-seen fortifications of much greater danger go back many miles from each side of the frontline trenches. It is weaklying hot.

"What is going to happen?" one is repeatedly asked, and asks in return.

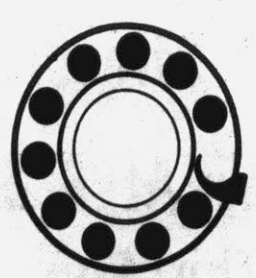

Across the desert, between the canal and Cairo, Egypt's military forces, trained and equipped by the Russians, are on the alert. At the canal, an Egyptian soldier may be seen standing on an open balcony, hatless, studying the watching enemy through binoculars.

"Only Allah knows the answer," replies an army officer to the ever present questions of war.

Open Campus Plans Are New

NEW YORK (UPI) — Open campus plans are the newest in education. Under an open campus plan, students are not required to be in the school building unless they actually are scheduled for a class.

Assigned study halls and passes are eliminated, and students are free to go to the library, study quietly, meet with friends, do projects, snack or leave the school when they do not have a class. Space is thus made available for classroom use. And teachers are relieved of the chore of supervising study hall.

Promises . . .

"I'm not the leader, just a citizen. . . concerned with what I think is a worsening situation," the Greenville minister said. "Pastors have agreed we are willing to talk and feel like we can come up with some solution. But stretching points and making untruthful statements don't help.

"I think the demonstrations can end if we can get together on what we consider a brutal murder." The solution to the problem, Felder noted, is the dismissal of Trooper Billy Day.

Greenville attorney Jerry Paul, who has been assisting the protestors as legal advisor also said Persinger was mistaken in thinking a pact had been made with the black protest leaders. "We did not make any deals with the mayor," he noted. "He was talking to the wrong people."

The Civil Liberties Union attorney noted that Negro leaders were "upset" over the way magistrates were handling the protestors and the amount of the bonds — from $200 to $500 — being set for their release.

He said Sunday, "We are through with negotiations. Greenville could erupt tonight." According to Persinger, attempts early last week to have the Ayden Human Relations Council to meet and help cool the building unrest were met with inaction on the part of the group's chairman, Mrs. Annie Brown.

Persinger said he called Mrs. Brown "Tuesday night and asked, 'what's going on.'"

He continued, "I asked her if she thought it would be wise to call a meeting of the Good Neighbor Council. She said, 'No, not at this time.'"

The mayor added, "I left it open for her to get in touch with me. She has yet to call a meeting."

Countering claims by some blacks that a number of whites have been deputized to help with enforcement of the 8:30 p. m. to 5:30 a. m. curfew, Persinger said, "The only people that we've deputized have been members of the Ayden Rescue Squad and two other men who have had experience on auxiliary police forces in other towns."

He said Ayden officials have not gone out and indiscriminately deputized whites while excluding Negroes.

Yesterday's march in Ayden was preceded by an 8 a. m. prayer service at the Court House in Greenville. Between 40 and 50 persons attended.

Protestors then gathered at the site of the August 6 shooting on a rural road South of Ayden. From there, protestors walked to Ayden.

Of the 35 persons arrested yesterday afternoon, five were juveniles and 15 were female — including Mrs. Peggy Taylor, wife of Greenville city councilman John Taylor.

Hot Air Balloon Ride Enjoyable

INDIANOLA, Iowa (AP) — Gov. Robert D. Ray took a ride in a hot-air-filled balloon Sunday.

"The countryside was just beautiful," said Ray afterwards. "It's really the most restful and peaceful way to travel across the state."

Ray and his pilot, Norton Grimm, described Iowa as "one big rolling golf course." The governor said the balloon did not fly very high—"it was less than 1,000 feet"—which was low enough for him to take a bird's-eye view of the countryside below.

Curb On Rights Blamed By Pope

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI has blamed the suspension of some civil liberties by the government of riot-torn Northern Ireland for a worsening of the situation in fighting between Roman Catholics, Protestants and British army troops.

"We invoke divine help, so that those who want to work for peaceful solution of the various problems—social, historical—are illuminated and sustained," the pontiff said during a Sunday noon blessing at the summer papal palace here.

He said the situation in Northern Ireland had worsened "following the adoption of exceptional security measures, which were not well received by part of the population."

Another fisherman stopped the boat and reported no one aboard, the spokesman said. Hubbard's wife was quoted by the Coast Guard as saying she had not seen her husband since he left Sunday evening to lay fishing nets.

Suicide Ruled In Youth Arrested Farmville Death After Break-In

FARMVILLE — Suicide has been ruled in the death of an elderly Route 1, Farmville man, according to Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey.

Joe Moye, Sr., 83, had been missing since Thursday at 9:30 a.m. and his body was found Sunday morning in Chinkapin Creek near his home. The retired farmer had been depressed lately, his family said, and they said he left a suicide note. Coroner Harvey theorized that the man had entered the swollen creek during Thursday's heavy rains.

Chief Cannon said entrance to the building had been made by breaking the front door. The two

Test Water After Spill

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — City health officials conducted tests today to determine if beaches in the northwest portion of the city bordering Chesapeake Bay were safe after a massive sewage spill in the area.

The beaches in the Ocean View section were closed Saturday and Sunday after a storm-damaged treatment plant poured an estimated 13 million gallons of raw sewage into the bay.

Dr. Harry Wise, city health director, said Sunday tests showed water around the beaches to be "highly contaminated" but expressed hope tides would wash the effluent out to sea by today.

The Chesapeake-Elizabeth treatment plant was damaged by tropical storm Doria Friday and repairs were not completed until late Saturday.

Ayden-Grifton Combination Looks Good

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

LITTLEFIELD—For a newly consolidated school, Ayden-Grifton's Chargers may be the team to beat in the newly formed Eastern Carolina Conference.

Coach Nelson Gravatt has 25 men on the roster who lettered at either Ayden or Grifton last year, and of these, 20 were starters. This gives him a tremendous amount of experience to draw from.

"We have real good experience, and fairly good depth," Gravatt said, "but we have no speed."

In the past, the Ayden football fortunes have rested on a good breakaway game, but there is no speed for the A-G team this year in that form. "We'll be good for five-ten-or-twelve yards," Gravatt said, "but after that, we'll probably run out of gas."

Quickness, however, appears to be fairly good. "We have two fairly good pulling guards," the coach said, "and two of our backs, Bobby Delong and Willie Stewart, who are very quick. They can pick up good yardage."

Gravatt, however, rates quarterback Ken Cleaton, as probably the quickest man on the team.

"We'll run from three different sets, but basically, it'll be a slot formation. We'll do some from the Kansas City I. We have three good ballcarriers, and we're going to try and not overwork any of them."

The running game will probably be the strong point in the Charger attack. "We have good experience in the backfield, and good blocking in the line," the coach said.

"Where we are missing experience is at end, so we have no real good receivers. Cleaton throws well, but he just doesn't have anyone to throw to who can catch it."

The offensive line will be a senior one, except for the center, Horace Tripp. "All of them are veterans," Gravatt said. There is good size in the line too. "Our tackles are 210, but our guards are small."

In the defensive line, there is even more size. "We'll be 225-230 at the tackles, and 205 at middle guard. And we should have plenty of talent and experience here too. We moved Derander Holton over to linebacker because of his quickness. He'll replace Debro Blount."

In the secondary, there are some problems, and Gravatt admits that this is where the weakest link in the Charger chain may lie.

"We had a returning safety who decided not to play any more, and this hurt us right away," Gravatt said. "Anthony Dail is our only experienced player in the backfield, along with Mike Griffin."

Gravatt feels that the biggest thing the Ayden-Grifton team must do in the remaining days prior to the opening game is to work on their timing and get together as a unit. "Rain and the tobacco work have hurt us, along with the problems of last week," he said.

Looking at the Eastern Carolina Conference, Gravatt feels that it's just about a toss-up, with only three teams of the 10 being out of the picture, North Pitt and Conley, only infants in the sport, and Southern Nash.

"Farmville Central, Greene Central, Southern Wayne, North Lenoir and we are all contenders, and Eastern Wayne and C. B. Aycock could be dark horses," Gravatt said. "Any of these schools are capable of winning it."

"I think we are going to have a good conference, especially when the new schools get their programs on their feet, but I feel the conference is over its head when it goes outside."

"We've got no business being 3-A. This conference is rural oriented, and we'll be going up against an urban-oriented conference (Northeastern) in the first game of the playoff. I don't see how we can hope to have a chance."

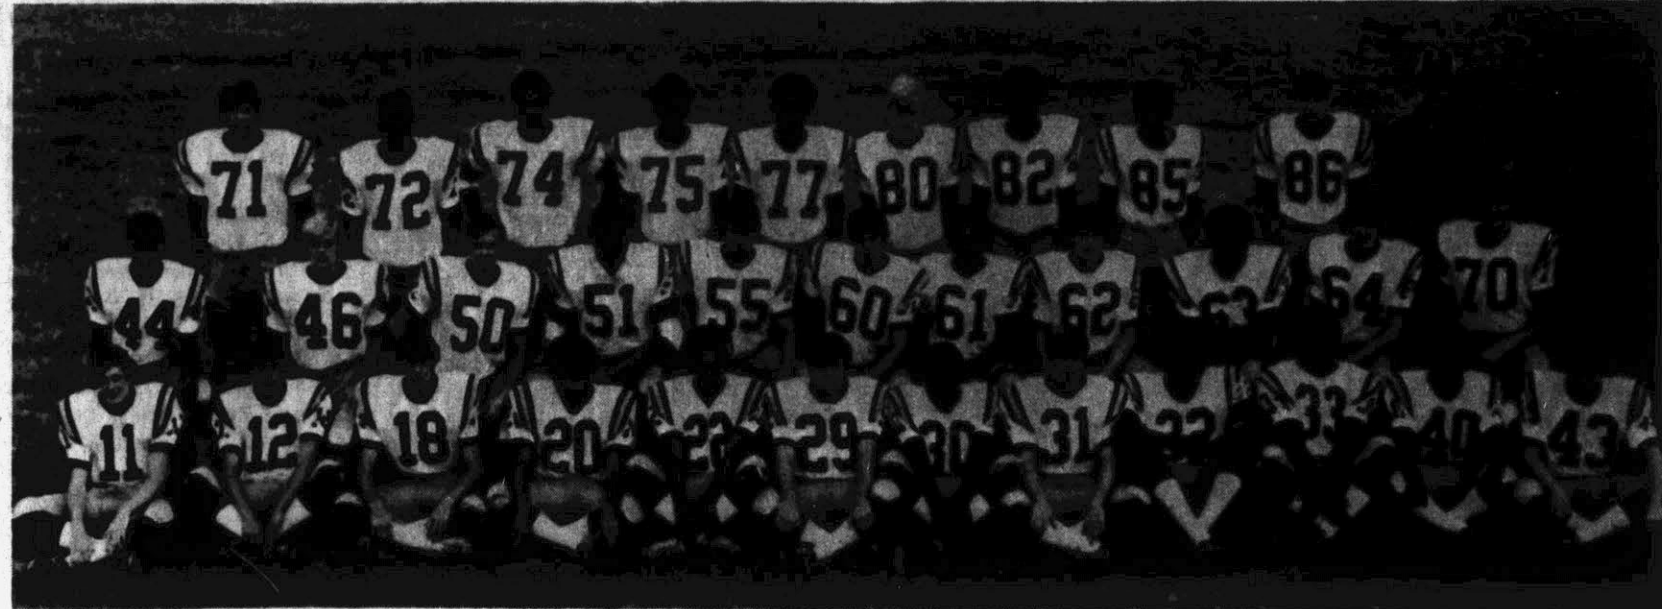

Ayden-Grifton opens its season Friday night, playing host to an old rival, Weldon. There is a possibility that the game might have to be moved, however, if the field is unable to be completed in time.

Blue Wins A Shaky 23rd Victory

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Vida Blue found he couldn't win with a couple of near-flawless four-hitters. So he offered a shaky six-hit performance and finally found elusive No. 23.

The Oakland left-hander, with 22 triumphs already under his belt, was shooting for a 30-victory season before being ambushed by Boston and New York.

Gary Peters and the Red Sox nipped him 1-0 on Aug. 20 and Mel Stottlemyre and the Yankees duplicated the feat four days later, saddling him with his sixth and seventh setbacks.

Blue found the winning groove again Sunday, but it wasn't easy. Washington clipped him for six hits including home runs by Del Unser and Tim Cullen, the latter a two-run shot in the ninth.

But Blue held on for the A's 4-3 triumph in the opening game of their doubleheader and they made it a pair with a 9-0 romp as Jim "Catfish" Hunter tossed a seven-hitter for his 17th victory and Denny McLain absorbed his 17th loss.

The sweep padded Oakland's West Division lead over Kansas City to 16 games.

ACC Teams Have Early Scrimmages

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Atlantic Coast Conference football coaches put their players through scrimmages Saturday, two weeks before the season begins for the seven league schools.

Defending champion Wake Forest had what Coach Cal Stoll termed a "ragged" scrimmage. Stoll explained, "We were experimenting with both people and plans, taking a thorough look at everything."

North Carolina's scrimmage generally pleased Coach Bill Dooley, but he said the play of the No. 2 offensive and defensive teams was disappointing.

The Tar Heels take on Richmond of the Southern Conference at Richmond in a night game Sept. 11.

"A good over-all workout" was the way Clemson Coach Hootie Ingram described his team's scrimmage. He said, "passing was spotty but our running was consistent."

The Tigers tackle Kentucky of the Southeastern Conference Sept. 11 at Clemson.

Salem Outlasts Lynchburg, 15-13

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The scorekeeper got a workout as Salem outscored Lynchburg 15-13 in a Carolina League slugfest Sunday.

In all, 30 hits were collected, 16 by Salem and 14 by Lynchburg in the three-hour marathon at Salem.

Rogers Wins Crown

Jim Rogers, top seed in the Roanoke Tennis Tournament, got strong wins of 6-0 and 6-1 to claim the singles championship here yesterday.

He first defeated John Rogers of Roxobel then beat Ron Hignite in the finals.

Hignite and Wes Hankins, the No. 1 seed, won the doubles crown by defeating Rogers and Herb Ward of Williamston 6-8, 6-1, and 9-7.

In the veterans Bracket, Roxobel's Tom Norfleet breezed by Kelly Abeyounis 6-1, 6-1 for the title. Norfleet was seeded No. 1.

Salem jumped off to a five-run lead in the first and then beat back numerous Lynchburg rallies. The twins, trailing as much as 10 runs at one point in the game, closed the gap to the final margin in the ninth.

Righthander George Medich hurled a two-hitter as Kinston scored a 2-0 victory over Raleigh-Durham at Kinston. He faced only 29 batters, striking out 11.

Burlington downed Rocky Mount 4-1 at Rocky Mount behind the six-hit pitching of Hanl Bunnell.

In the other league game, Peninsula jumped off to a three-run lead in the first and went on to defeat Winston-Salem 9-2 at Hampton, Va.

ACC Teams Have Early Scrimmages

Duke takes on the Gators at Tampa, also the night of Sept. 11.

At Raleigh, the N.C. State squad had a game-type scrimmage, which new Coach Al Michaels described as a "stand-off." He said, "Neither the defensive coaches nor the offensive coaches were really displeased with our players' performances, but neither were they satisfied."

The Wolfpack opens with Kent State at Raleigh in another night game Sept. 11.

Maryland Coach Roy Lester, whose team plays Villanova at

Match Play Winner Wants To See Just How Good He Is

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — "Now I feel like I can find out just how good I am," DeWitt Weaver said.

"Now I can see just how good my golf game is. Winning this one, well, it puts me on a level with all the other players who have won tournaments and gives me a chance to find out just how good I can play."

Weaver, graying, 31-year-old probably better known as a one-time back-up quarterback to Don Meredith at Southern Methodist, scored his first professional by a six-stroke margin over struggling Phil Rodgers Sunday in their head-to-head confrontation for the $35,000 first prize in the United States Professional Match Play Championship.

Weaver had a final round 71, one under par, in the unique event that features head-to-head play with scoring based on total strokes over 18 holes. Rodgers had a 77, five over par on the 6,973 yard Country Club of North Carolina course.

The victory pushed Weaver's earnings to $74,914 for the year, compared with a little over $13,000 last season, his best previous year. He lost his sponsor after that one.

"If it weren't for a couple of friends I wouldn't be on my own, maybe wouldn't even be out here. But I'm on my own," he said, looking at the big check and whistling, "weeee."

"It's been a long, hard struggle," said his pretty wife, Sherri. "Nobody knows how long or how hard, or how hard he's worked, but him."

"I first tried the tour for about six months in 1964 and '65," he recalled "and didn't make a check. I couldn't beat anybody. I've really been on the tour steady only about four, a little more than four years."

"It's been tough."

The husky, rugged guy, once one of the longest hitters on the tour who gave up some length for accuracy, made a hesitant confession, almost embarrassed about it.

"That 71 was the most inspired round of my life," Weaver said. "I only missed one green and I wasn't more than 15 feet from the pin on that one.

"I felt like Sam Snead out there, like I was 10 feet tall. It felt like it was easy to do. After I hit that shot on the fifth hole, something happened. Everything was just perfect. Every shot was just like I'd planned it all my life."

Weaver had a one stroke lead going to the par five fifth. He hit his second shot, a four wood out of the rough, on the green and two putted for a birdie. Rodgers was in the woods, chipped back to the fairway, was short in three and took a bogey.

That made it a two stroke swing, gave Weaver a three stroke margin and he coasted in as Rodgers had his troubles, hitting only three greens on the front nine.

Rodgers picked up $17,500 for second and said he was headed for rest and possibly some minor eye surgery.

Ken Still beat Australian Bruce Crampton 74-76 in the match for third place.

Arnold Palmer lost in the quarter-finals Saturday morning, while Jack Nicklaus and South African Gary Player were first round upset victims.

Blanda Warns Other Teams To Watch Out

By ERIC PREWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
OAKLAND (AP) — George Blanda, the Oakland Raiders' inspirational leader, has a warning for the rest of the National Football League.

"I feel great. I'm ready to go," the gray-haired quarterback and place kicker said as he warmed up for his 22nd pro season.

Several of the rookies running wind spirits with Blanda were born in 1949, the year he began his NFL career with the Chicago Bears.

Blanda will turn 44 on Sept. 17. Two days later, he hopes to add to his NFL career record of 1,561 points when the Raiders open the regular season against the New England Patriots.

Last year, he was the big story as the Raiders posted the most spectacular 8-4-2 record in NFL history and won their fourth straight division title, the American Conference West crown. He's indicated he won't even consider retirement until the team wins the Super Bowl.

But Blanda accepts his role as No. 2 quarterback, behind Daryle Lamonica, and knows that Oakland Coach John Madden would like to give young Ken Stabler more passing opportunities.

Lamonica, who has 111 touchdown passes in four seasons with Oakland, also has a history of frequent minor injuries. The latest, a pulled leg muscle, knocked him out of action in a warmup drill before this year's exhibition opener.

In 1970, Lamonica limped to the bench several times and Blanda came on to throw six important touchdown passes. The old pro also kicked last-second field goals to save three games and was named The Associated Press Athlete of the Year.

Strengthening the defense, which allowed 20 points per game in 1970, is a must for Oakland. Rookies Jack Tatum, Phil Villapiano and Horace Jones might help.

Tatum, the All-American from Ohio State, is getting a shot at the starting job left vacant by safety Dave Grayson, now with San Diego. Villapiano is a linebacker and Jones a defensive end.

Former University of Southern California running back Clarence Davis was a sensation in the exhibition season, but Lamonica will probably be directing the all-veteran unit on offense.

All-Pro tackle Bob Brown, acquired in a trade with the Los Angeles Rams, should improve the pass protection that was good last year, allowing Raiders' quarterbacks to be tackled only 19 times.

Davis probably will see most of his action on kick returns. Hewitt Dixon, Charlie Smith and Marv Hubbard led a running attack that gained 1,964 yards last season.

Starting receivers Warren Wells, Fred Biletnikoff and Ray Chester are back, although Wells faces the possibility of being sent to jail soon.

Wells, who has caught 36 touchdown passes over the last three seasons, was stabbed in a Texas bar last spring.

Ram's Prothro Has Only Winning Record Of Ten Rookie Mentors

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer
Ten men are starting their first full seasons as head coaches of professional football teams. Of the 10, only one—Tommy Prothro of the Los Angeles Rams—has a winning record after the first five weeks of National Football League exhibition games.

Prothro moved into the winning column Sunday, when the Rams beat the New England Patriots 31-21 to raise their pre-season record to 3-2. In Sunday's only other game, Atlanta topped Buffalo 35-24.

In Saturday games, Cincinnati edged St. Louis 22-21, Minnesota defeated Pittsburgh 26-21, Baltimore topped Washington 20-14, Oakland beat Green Bay 17-13, Philadelphia tripped the New York Giants 26-14, San Diego upended New Orleans 22-7, San Francisco rallied to defeat Denver 33-17, Chicago edged Cleveland 20-19 and Miami topped Detroit 28-24.

Thursday night, Dallas defeated Houston 28-20.

The New York Jets will oppose the Kansas City Chiefs in a nationally-televised game tonight, winding up the week-end's action.

Of the 10 new head coaches, only two—including inherited winning teams. The other is Bob Holloway, whose St. Louis Cardinals—1-2 in exhibition play—were 8-5-1 last season.

Prothro, who compiled a 104-55-3 record in the college ranks at Oregon State and UCLA, inherited a veteran team from George Allen, who moved from the head coaching spot at Los Angeles to become Washington's head coach and general manager.

In five years under Allen, the Rams had compiled a 49-17-4 record and had won two division championships. But Prothro had no plans to stand pat.

Prothro quickly shook things up by dealing away 10 veterans—including seven regulars—during the off-season. Leaving Los Angeles were such familiar names as offensive tackle Bob Brown, linebackers Myron Ottobis, Jack Pardee and Maxie Baughan, defensive tackle Diron Talbert, receivers Wendell Tucker and Billy Truax and running back Tommy Mason.

But Prothro was not trading just for the sake of shaking things up. A number of key players, including wide receiver Lance Rentzel, linebacker Marlin McKeever, tackle Harry Schuch and running back Travis Williams, were obtained via deals.

Just as important was the fact that Prothro was obtaining draft choices, both present and future, to replace the aging veterans. Among the first-year men who could help the Rams this season are linebacker

Isaiah Robinson and defensive end Jack Youngblood, both first-round choices, and safety Dave Elmendorf.

Williams, obtained from the Packers, took the opening kickoff against New England and raced 93 yards for a touchdown, setting the pace for the Rams' 31-21 victory.

The other new coaches did not fare as well as Prothro this weekend. Only one came up as a winner, while seven were on the losing end. The Cleveland Browns, 0-4 under Nick Skorich, were not scheduled.

In a battle involving two first-year coaches, San Diego and Sid Gillman defeated New Orleans and J.D. Roberts 22-7. Gillman coached the Chargers from 1960 through the middle of the 1969 season, when he moved to the front office and Charlie Waller took over as coach. Now Gillman is back as coach, and the Chargers are 2-2 in pre-season games. The Saints are 0-4 under Roberts, who replaced Tom Fears midway through the 1970 season.

Here's how the other first-year coaches are doing so far: Washington, bolstered by a number of veterans brought over from Los Angeles by Allen, is 2-2 after losing to the Colts Saturday.

Buffalo, beaten by Atlanta Sunday, is 2-2 under Harvey Johnson, who replaced John Rauch just after the start of training camp. Johnson, formerly the team's Director of Player Personnel, coached the Bills for most of 1968 and compiled a 1-10-1 record.

Green Bay is 1-3 under Dan Devine, who was 93-37-7 in 13 seasons at the University of Missouri.

St. Louis has won once in three outings under Hollway, a Minnesota Viking aide the past four years.

Cleveland is winless in five outings under Skorich, an assistant to Blanton Collier since 1964 and head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles from 1961-3.

Houston is 2-3 under Ed Hughes, who served for 11 years as an assistant coach.

New England is 1-3 with John Mazur at the helm. Mazur replaced Clive Rush late last season and compiled a 1-4 record.

Hank Aaron Is Not Through Breaking Records...Yet

By TOM SALADINO
Records were meant to be broken and it appears that Hank Aaron is intent on breaking quite a few before he's through.

And Aaron, after leading the Atlanta Braves to a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Sunday, is far from through.

The rugged right fielder, now 37, drilled his 39th home run of the season and .631 for his 18-year major league career.

The homer, off Juan Pizarro, a two-run shot, also gave him 100 runs batted in for the year.

It was the 11th season he has gone over the century mark for RBI, snapping a tie with Stan Musial and Willie Mays for the National League record. He is two shy of the major league mark of 13 held jointly by Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx and Lou Gehrig.

Aaron also slashed a double, keying a two-run sixth inning. The hit gave the Atlanta slugger 3,243, putting him into sixth place on the all-time hit list, replacing Nap Lajoie.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh topped Houston 5-2, St. Louis nudged Cincinnati 4-3 in 11 innings, San Francisco ripped Philadelphia 8-3, the New York Mets trimmed Los Angeles 4-3 and Montreal and San Diego split, the Expos winning 6-1, before dropping the nightcap, 13-3.

In the American League, Minnesota edged Cleveland 6-5, the New York Yankees bombed Kansas City 10-3, Chicago whipped Detroit 6-2, Baltimore and Milwaukee split, the Orioles winning 3-2 before losing 4-1, Oakland took two from Washington, 4-3 and 9-0, and California edged Boston 2-1.

Earl Williams also homered for Atlanta. His 28th of the season, following Aaron's shot in the first inning, gave the Braves a 3-0 margin. Two more runs in the sixth made it 3-1 before the slumping Cubs scored twice in the eighth and got to within a run on Jim Hickman's homer in the ninth.

Chicago, which has lost four of its last five, is now seven games behind Pittsburgh.

Aaron, whose home run output leaves him only three behind league leader Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh and only 14 behind Mays in career totals, thinks that the San Francisco star and himself are the only ones with a shot at Babe Ruth's record 714.

"I'd sure like to get it," said Aaron in the Brave dressing room.

"It's the most prestigious of all records. It has stood for a long time and I think that only Willie and myself have a shot at it. No one else in the immediate future appears to have a chance."

Aaron added that he'd like to catch Stargell this season too, "but I'm not thinking about it."

Aaron's statistics this year are enviable for anyone and especially for a 37-year-old. He's hitting .321 and has 133 hits, has scored 80 runs, besides belting 18 doubles and two triples, in addition to his home runs and runs batted in totals.

"Physically, I'm in great shape. Right now I'm bothered by a slight cold. Other than that I'm fine," the 6-foot, 180-pounder said.

The Pirates maintained their five game edge over St. Louis as Dave Giusti gained his 27th save of the year, saving the victory for Bob Johnson.

Johnson was reached for a two-run double in the eighth before Giusti came on to stop the Astros. Jackie Hernandez had two RBI for the East leaders.

The red-hot Cards, sticking on the Pirates heels with their sixth win in seven starts, eked out their triumph when reliever Clay Carroll walked Ted Sizemore with the bases full and two out in the 11th inning.

Lou Brock gave the Cards a lift by homering with two out in the ninth to tie the Reds 3-3.

Bobby Bonds drove a three-run homer and Juan Marichal scattered eight hits as San Francisco ripped the Phillies, increasing its West lead to 8½ games over the staggering Dodgers. Joe Lis homered for the Phillies. Tommie Agee's run-scoring single in the ninth inning gave the Mets a sweep of the Dodgers three-game series. It was also New York's fourth consecutive triumph, the first time they have won that many in a row since June 26.

Richie Allen slugged a two-run homer for the Dodgers while Ken Singleton had a solo blast for the Mets.

Leron Lee, Ollie Brown and Ivan Murrell each slammed homers as the Padres took the nightcap after dropping the opener to Ernie McAnally. It was McAnally's fourth straight victory as the right-hander upped his record to 7-9. Rusty Staub had solo homers in each game for the Expos.

Nixon Program May Lead To Big Tax Cut

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It didn't start out that way, but President Nixon's new economic program may lead to one of the biggest tax cuts in a decade.

The administration's proposals are more heavily weighted toward business tax relief, but it is taken for granted now that Congress, if it goes along with the plan, will enlarge the relief for individuals, and quite likely broaden the business cuts too. How much remains to be seen. The Nixon proposals alone add up to a $7.5 billion tax reduction over a full year.

If the various modifications already being discussed by various congressmen come to pass, the figure could balloon to $16.5 billion.

By way of comparison, the 1964 tax reduction pushed by Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson to speed an economy then, as now, suffering stagnation amounted to $11.5 billion the first year.

The 1969 Tax Reform Act, some provisions of which are still coming into effect in stages, is expected to yield about $7.3 billion in tax relief next year for individuals, offset by business tax increases that would reduce the net revenue loss to less than $2 billion.

Here are some elements of the present tax situation, and some of the possibilities:

Nixon has proposed restoration of the investment credit, worth $3 billion to businesses investing in equipment; speedups of the 1969 law provisions increasing the personal income tax exemption and the standard deduction, estimated to save individual taxpayers $2.2 billion in 1972, and elimination of the automobile excise tax, for a $2.3 billion saving to car buyers. The investment credit and excise figures are for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The investment credit figure is based on an effective date of Aug. 15, 1971, the day Nixon announced his sweeping program. But principal handlers of the legislation in the House have said they consider themselves committed to set the effective date back to April 1, when the possibility first was publicly discussed. So far, the Treasury has made no loud objection.

Such an advance would substantially increase the tax relief—perhaps by $1 billion.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., says he expects the House

Ways and Means Committee to write more tax relief for individuals into the legislation. His own preference is for enlarging the minimum standard deduction, or low-income allowance, that benefits the smallest taxpayers.

Mills says he has not decided on a figure, so no estimates are possible, but any enlargement would have an important revenue effect. The official estimate is that the allowance, as it now stands, would save taxpayers more than $2 billion in 1972.

The biggest potential tax break suggested for addition to Nixon's package is postponement of scheduled increases in the Social Security payroll tax.

Under a benefit increase bill passed by the House, and virtually certain to win Senate approval, the payroll tax would increase sharply next year. A worker earning $10,200 or more would have $145.20 additional withheld from his pay, and his employer would pay a matching amount. Even if the bill doesn't pass, existing law provides a maximum stepup of $62.40.

Arguing that these Social Security taxes would more than cancel out the income tax relief most workers would get — and any accompanying stimulation for the economy — a number of Congress members and economists have called for postponing the increases, but not the stepped-up benefits.

Acknowledging that its figures may be somewhat high because they are based on optimistic earnings forecasts, the Social Security Administration calculates that freezing the payroll tax at the 1971 level would mean a tax saving of $7.8 billion, shared equally by employers and employees, compared with the amount that would be collected under the House-passed bill.

Even a freeze at the presently-established 1972 level would mean a tax saving of $4.5 billion.

Mills has spoken out against postponement, which would break with a long tradition of balancing Social Security benefit increases with tax raises. His opposition alone is enough to dim the chances, since any such legislation would have to go through his committee. But the effort seems certain to be made, at least in the Senate, with considerable support.

The Balkan Powderkeg Again Sees A Struggle

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
The Balkans in this century have always been a potential powderkeg, and today in that European underbelly there seems to be in progress a tense diplomatic struggle which is setting nerves on edge.

Some time this month, say Yugoslav sources, Leonid I. Brezhnev, the chief of the Soviet Communist party, will pay an official visit to Belgrade to discuss Yugoslav-Soviet relations, which are not good. Much is troubling those relations, including an irrepressible Soviet urge to meddle in Yugoslavia's affairs.

A Chinese military mission has just visited Romania, which also has been subject to Soviet pressure, and then went on to Albania.

A high-powered Chinese government delegation, perhaps headed by Premier Chou En-lai himself is reported due to visit Romania, Yugoslavia and Albania some time this fall.

On top of all that, President Tito is planning a trip to the United States in October.

All this, along with a possibility of bettered American-Chinese relations in the wake of a trip by President Nixon to Peking, seems to have the Kremlin upset. What is it that Brezhnev fears?

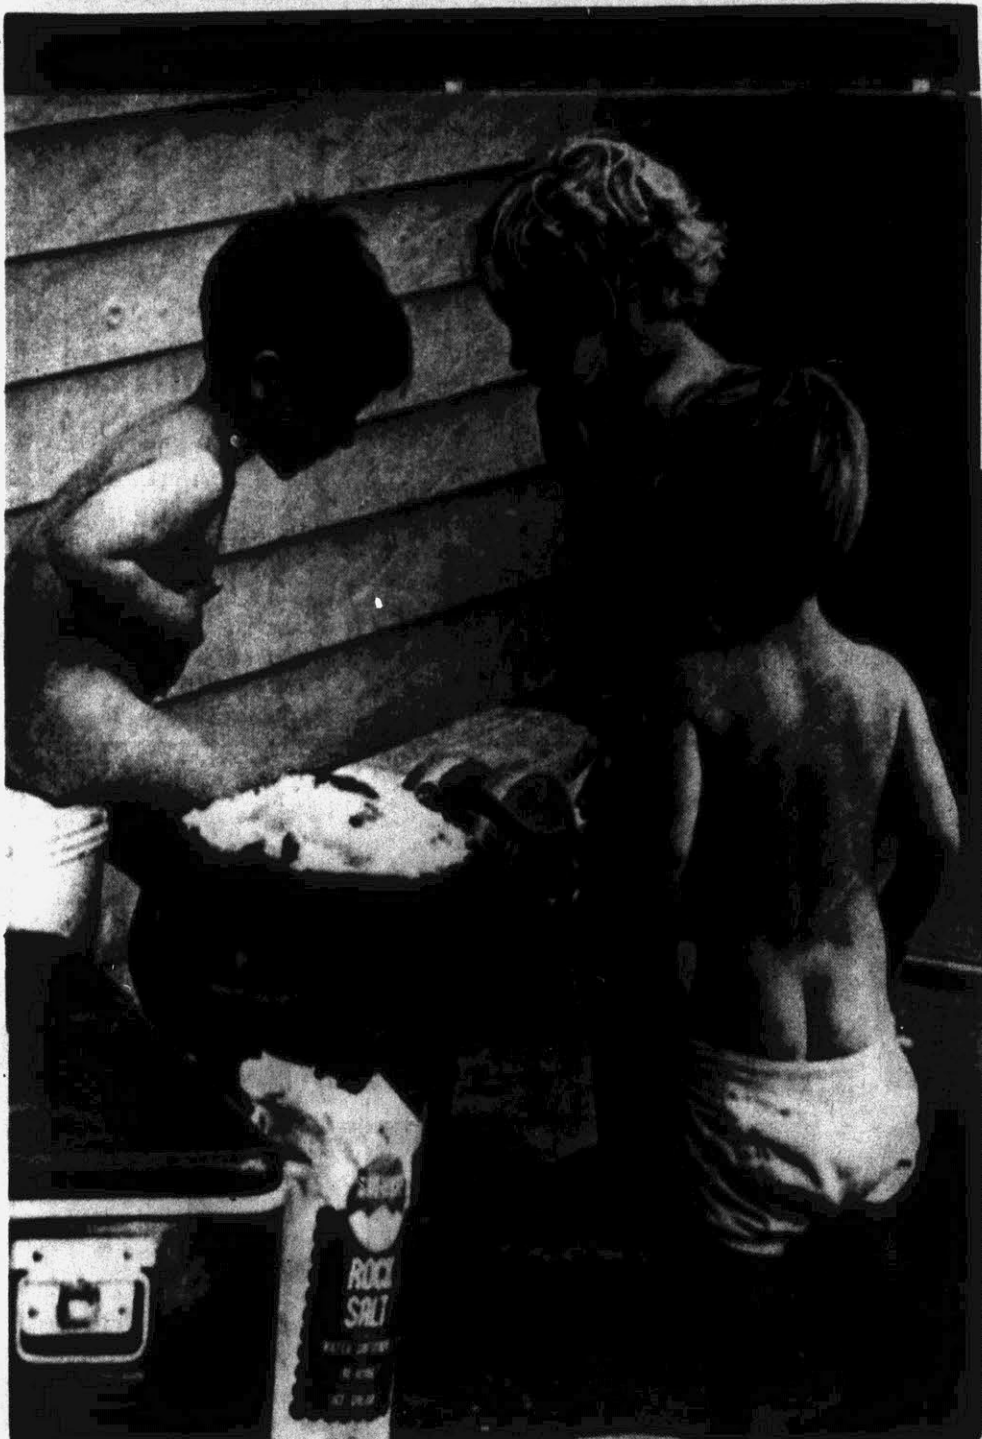

The Kremlin let a Hungarian Communist newspaper speak for it recently, and it made clear that what Brezhnev fears most is a Balkans axis "with anti-Soviet overtones" sinking Yugoslavia, Romania and Albania to China. The Russians seem to regard any Chinese intrusion in the European Communist sphere as intolerable.

The official Yugoslav Communist newspaper Borba was outraged by the Hungarian ar-

"This country has long since gained the political maturity allowing it to promote, without anybody's approval or guardianship, its friendly relations with other countries—a case in point, the Chinese People's Republic—without this cooperation ever being aimed at third countries," Borba snapped.

Borba used some hard language, suggesting that the Moscow-Belgrade feud still rankles 23 years after Joseph Stalin threw the Yugoslav party out of the family for resisting domination. In 1955, and at various times thereafter, Moscow tried to smooth things over, but things keep happening to sour relations with Belgrade.

Moscow disliked Yugoslavia's attitude at the time of the 1956 Hungarian revolution, resented Yugoslavia's failure to subscribe to Kremlin-inspired international Communist programs.

Guidelines Offered On Corn Blight Harvest

By EDWIN L. YANCEY
The North Carolina corn blight committee recently issued guidelines on harvesting and handling corn affected with Southern Corn Leaf Blight. They advise that —

Where corn has been affected with blight and yields are expected to be low, determination should be made between making silage, harvesting for grain, hogging off or abandoning. If grain yield is sufficient to cover cash harvesting and storing costs, it should be harvested. Since growing costs are already expended, any money made over harvest costs can be applied against growing costs to reduce overall loss per acre.

Corn affected with Southern Leaf Blight intended for grain should be harvested as soon as possible to prevent lodging or losses and possible development of secondary molds on the dead tissue which may develop in the grain. Generally it is recommended that harvest not begin until the moisture content of grain is 25 percent or below.

However, if lodging is beginning to occur, harvest should be expedited.

Harvesting and Storing
Corn
Corn affected with blight will contain more damaged kernels and should be thoroughly dried to prevent mold (all types) developments in storage. We recommend that affected corn be dried down to 14 percent moisture content and kept under aeration to prevent spoilage.

Blight affected corn may be dried in the same manner as normal corn, except special attention must be given to foreign material to prevent air blockage which would prevent drying in the blocked areas. If corn is above 25-30 percent moisture it should be dried in a batch drier, continuous flow drier, or drying facilities (such as peanut trailers). Corn above 25-30 percent moisture will tend to stick together and block the air in layer drying. It also contains large quantities of excessive moisture which makes the layer drying extremely slow and impractical. Storage: As soon as corn is dried it should be thoroughly cooled. Then operate the fan as the weather cools until all corn is cooled to 50 degrees or below. This chilling time will require 15-20 hours of fan operation for a drying fan or 150 hours of operation for an aeration fan. After corn is chilled operate fan at least every two weeks to keep grain chilled to prevent sweating and insect activity.

Shredding Stalks
After corn is harvested it is recommended that stalks be shredded and plowed into the soil to prevent spread of disease.

Concern For Leaf Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tobacco industry is concerned about the European Community's Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) for tobacco which recently completed its first year of operation, the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agriculture Service reports.

U.S. producers are especially concerned about what the tobacco policy has caused in Italy—the biggest EC tobacco producer with 57 percent of the total crop in 1970.

"As a result of the CAP, the U.S. tobacco industry faces not only increased competition within the EC, largely from Italy, but also increased export competition with U.S. tobacco in other countries," the report states.

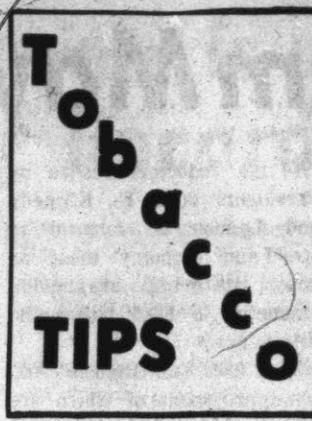

Major provisions of the CAP are guaranteed high prices without automatic production controls; a "buyer's premium" for purchases of EC leaf; and provisions for export subsidies and import limitations.

As a result of the CAP, it says, flue-cured prices to Italian producers were raised from an average of 44 U.S. cents per pound to 59 cents per pound—a 34 percent increase.

Burley prices were raised from 36 cents to 51 cents—a 42 percent increase.

The report said Italy's burley yields are about 3,000 pounds per acre compared to 2,500 pounds in the United States.

It said "production could easily expand to meet the European Community's present burley consumption requirement of perhaps 120 million pounds."

By S. J. WEEKS

Mosaic, a virus disease, caused considerable damage in many tobacco fields throughout Pitt County during the 1971 growing season. The highly contagious virus which caused mosaic spreads by mere contact. It is believed that this virus over-winters in the soil on undecayed roots and stems.

Farmers can reduce the virus by making sure that all of their tobacco stalks rot as quickly as possible. To make sure the stalks will rot, they need to be destroyed as soon after harvest as possible.

Once cold weather sets in the decaying process slows down or stops. Stalks which have not fully decayed will help the mosaic virus survive the winter. The pest will then be ready to hit the new crop early in the spring. Research has shown that about one-fourth of the tobacco crop can be destroyed by mosaic when it strikes just after transplanting.

Mosaic is only one of the pests that can be reduced by cutting the stalks immediately after harvest and plowing out the roots. Other pests that can be reduced by cutting the stalks immediately after harvest and plowing out the roots. Other pests that can be reduced are brownspot, nematodes, flea beetles, hornworms, and budworms.

The Pitt County goal in 1971 is to get 100 percent participation in the R-6-P (REDUCE 6 PESTS) Campaign.

Since the insect moths and fungi spores spread from one farm to another, it is important for every grower to clean up his fields. In that way, he will not be harboring insects and diseases for his neighbors and himself.

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY

Water management will be the focus of field days scheduled for September 1 and 2, at the Horticultural Research Station at Clinton, N.C. They will open each day at 9 a.m. and remain open until 5:30 p.m. Sprinklers, different types of drain tile, pumps, land levelers, fertilizer injectors, different types of irrigation systems will be displayed. Equipment will be demonstrated for two hours each day—morning and again in the afternoon. As a bonus, tours of the research plots will be conducted twice each day.

According to Dr. J. E. Legates, Dean of Agriculture and Life Sciences at N.C. State University, continuing scientific achievements along with new technology is advancing water management in farming operations. Education and industry efforts in these water management field days will provide producers an opportunity to visit many irrigation and drainage equipment suppliers and contractors and to learn more about bringing increased water management techniques into their operations by seeing and discussing the very latest developments in equipment.

James A. Graham, North Carolina's Commissioner of Agriculture, encourages farmers and agribusiness attendance at the field days. He stated that our agricultural economy is dependent upon good water management for continued growth. The new and revolutionary innovations which will be shown at these field days will be accepted practices of tomorrow.

N.C. Traffic Claimed 10

The State Highway Patrol says North Carolina's traffic death toll for the year climbed to 1,120 with the deaths of at least 10 persons during the weekend.

The toll for the same period of last year was 1,074. Three of the weekend victims were pedestrians.

Fracas Follows As Police Seize Drugs

GREENSBORO (AP) — Police used tear-gas Sunday to break up a fracas at a rock music festival at Lake Daniel Park in which four policemen were injured and six persons arrested.

A group of young people and police clashed when police vice squad members confiscated a motorcycle and tried to arrest its driver for possession of narcotics.

Police said they took three bags of marijuana, hashish and amphetamines from the motorcycle's saddlebags. A young man in handcuffs was taken from a police cruiser by some of his friends during the fistuffs and rockthrowing, and was being sought Sunday night.

The injured policemen, who were hit by thrown rocks and other objects were treated and released at a hospital.

Those arrested were charged with resisting arrest, assault on an officer or disturbing the peace.

Police said they found an angry crowd blocking their way when they began moving the motorcycle. Windows in two cars were smashed during the fracas that followed and roads were temporarily blocked by youths who parked their cars sideways in the roads.

A spokesman said the crowd, estimated at about 400, became angry earlier when some of the bands packed up and left after police were called to the scene by neighbors who complained of the noise.

Gunman Just Walked In, And Began Firing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man walked into a police station here Sunday night and began firing a shotgun, killing a desk sergeant and wounding a woman clerk, police reported.

"He just came through the door and started shooting," said officer James Nanz, one of two other officers in the Inglewood District Police Station. "The sergeant is dead."

Officers said the gunman was believed to have fled in a car in which a companion waited. Police sealed off the area and barred newsmen as a search for the gunman started in the southwest corner of the city where the station is located.

The wounded woman was taken to Mission Emergency Hospital. There was no immediate report on her condition.

Plucked From Carnival Ride

The first use of Greenville's 85-foot tall snorkle, designed for use as a fire-fighting and rescue tool for local firemen — was made Saturday when firemen plucked seven persons from a ride at a carnival.

Rescuers were called at 10:15 p.m. to a carnival at Pitt Plaza. A malfunction had disabled the Octopus ride and two 13-year-old girls had been injured.

Officers said Cynthia Waller received an arm injury in the mishap and Sarah Lane received a head and leg injury when she fell from the ride.

'Sniffing' Kills Charlotte Youth

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A 16-year-old Charlotte youth died Sunday after inhaling the spray from what police said was a chemical used to spray pans to keep food from sticking to them.

Michael Grogan was dead when he was taken to a hospital late Sunday afternoon. Police said he and several other teen-agers had begun sniffing the chemical about noon.

Only Grogan was affected by the chemical.

Officers said the chemical, which is trade-named "Pam," contains a warning on the can: "Avoid direct inhalation of concentrated vapors." They said a doctor told them the chemical had completed coated the lungs of the victim, asphyxiating him.

The companions were quoted by police as saying they began experimenting with the chemical, stuffing a cardboard toilet paper tube with tissue and squirting Pam into one end while they breathed at the other. They said Grogan fell to the floor twice after taking deep breaths.

About two hours later, the youngsters said, they bought another can of the chemical and began the sniffing once more. They told police Grogan took most of the toilet paper from the tube before breathing the substance.

At that point, they were quoted by police, Grogan fell to the floor, said he couldn't breathe, and stopped breathing.

Portable Aid For Reading, Writing

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—A portable reading and writing aid that promises to help many partially sighted people has been devised by two optometry students at the University of California.

The aid is essentially a closed circuit television system that photographs written words and puts their magnified image on a television screen.

The students, Michael Lavieri, 24, Lodi, Calif., and Gene B. Wilson, 24, Stockton, Calif., were among 32 optometry students receiving doctoral degrees in June at Berkeley.

The students said the concept of using closed circuit television as an aid for people with very poor vision is not new, but they said their system is the first that is portable.

Parts for their prototype, which incorporates a five-inch television receiver and a camera, cost about $680.

Even with the additional cost of labor, the students think a portable unit could be manufactured for significantly less than the commercially made fixed-in-place units now available, which cost several thousand dollars.

The prototype is about the size of a stereo receiver and is set on legs about eight inches high. In the middle of the front panel is the television screen.

To operate the system, a special table or board with a "floating" top surface is placed beside the set. The camera lens and a reflecting mirror are attached to the camera.

Reading material is placed on the special table, where it can be moved easily in different directions. The mirror is adjusted to the right distance in front of the lens so that the words on the page are in focus, and the words or letters on the page appear on the television screen, now magnified about nine times.

On the screen, letters appear about an inch high.

The unit has a reversal mechanism so that the words on the screen may appear black on white or white on black, an important alternative to some partially sighted people.

With a little practice, the page on the table can be moved at a steady scanning speed, bringing one word after another to the screen.

Malaysia's population is 10,434,034, according to a December, 1970 census.

Worry Clinic Old Testament Lessons Live

Rev. Olson wants to know the most striking psychological events in the Old Testament. Mull over the 3 that are cited below. For they insured man an inventive brain: the ethical system called Christianity, and the unique concept of God as being a loving Father instead of a sadistic deity!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.
Case R-548: Rev. Olson makes psychology his hobby. "Dr. Crane," he said, as we had dinner following my address from his Sunday pulpit, "you have said you derived most of your Applied Psychology from the Bible. "What would you rate as some of the major psychological events in the Old Testament?"

Bible Psychology
(1) Eve's being persuaded by the serpent's sales psychology to eat the forbidden fruit.
Adam then invented mankind's most widely used psychological gadget, namely, buck-passing.
For when God demanded to know if Adam had tasted the forbidden apple, Adam passed the buck and said his wife gave it to him.

Moreover, this event in the Garden of Eden took man out of his mentally sterile "zoo" and forced him to think for himself. Prior to that fruit-eating episode, man was merely a "kept" animal in a unique menagerie.
Thereafter, he had to become a scientist, as well as an inventor, a physician as well as psychologist, and evolve such splendid altruistic organizations as the Boy Scouts, Red Cross, Salvation Army and our many hospitals.
(2) Abraham's generous act in letting his nephew, Lot, take first choice of the land.
Greedy Lot grabbed the lush valleys with the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, thus pushing Abraham into the hills.
But religion thrives in the hills where men are not puffed up by their own skyscraper buildings and populous streets.

It is still the villages, small town and countryside that form the Bible Belt in America and serve as the backbone of churches.
Alas, 73 percent of our population now reside in urban areas!
If Abraham had lived in cities, Christianity would probably never have arisen on this planet.
For Abraham nursed the unique Hebrew ethical idealism that flowered 18 centuries later in the Bethlehem scene.
(3) Abraham's willingness to sacrifice his son Isaac as proof of his affection for Jehovah may have been the act that caused God to reciprocate at Calvary.
For all primitive peoples imagined their deities to be cruel, sadistic monarchs, so vengeful that they delighted in slaying human beings with thunderbolts.

Thus, all such primitives tried to bribe their blood thirsty gods with rice or wine, sad sacrifices of sheep or bullocks and even children.
At Calvary, God reversed the process to prove his extensive affection for us human children! Send for my booklet "How to Stimulate Bible Reading," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.
(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

BALTIMORE (UPI)—What? A college without standard attendance, course requirements, formal measures of progress? Yep. Such a school—called a university without walls—is being planned by Morgan State College for Baltimore area adult education.
Morgan State is seeking foundation funds to put such a model program onto the drawing board. The Morgan program, as it's called, would allow students to complete studies in from a year to seven years, depending on progress and aptitude of the students.

Plan Promotion Of Oct. Youth Crusade

Local laymen and clergy met at lunch Friday to plan ways to publicize the Nicky Cruz campaign for Christ to be held at Fickien Stadium here October 12-14.
It was stressed that all participants should talk up in their own churches and other circles a television special about the former New York City gang leader's life and ministry. Entitled "No Need to Hide" and hosted by Art Linkletter, the film will be shown on Channel 7, Washington, Friday, Sept. 10 at 10 p.m. and on Channel 12, New Bern, Monday, Oct. 4 at 7 p.m. Whether it will be shown on Channel 9, Greenville has not yet been determined.
Some 6,000 copies of Cruz's autobiography, "Run, Baby, Run," will be distributed with the request that each reader write his name of the flyer and pass it on to another potential reader. The book tells of Cruz's life in Puerto Rico as one of 19 children of two self-styled sorcerers, of his life of crime as leader of the feared Mau Mau gang in the Bronx, of his conversion as a result of being witnessed to by David Wilkerson, and of his preaching and work with youth for Christ.

"Every means of advertising available in this area will be used to promote this crusade," said John Montgomery, publicity chairman. "Churches, Chambers of Commerce, organizations, the media, businesses, and individuals all have shown a willingness to participate. We're expecting extraordinary results because of the number we hope to reach and of the importance of our message."

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
(© 1971, By The Chicago Tribune)
BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, partner opens with one spade. As South you hold:
♠976 ♥KQ64 ♦KJ63 ♣42
What is your response?
A.—This type of holding is awkward to manage, for there is no completely satisfactory response and the lesser of evils must be chosen. The hand is not strong enough to justify the naming of a new suit at the level of two. It is within the limits of a no trump response, but the worthless doubleton tends to steer me away from that bid. I think it may be stated as a rule that where the responding hand contains a worthless doubleton, a raise of partner's suit should be made with a little less than normal trump support in preference to making a no trump response. We therefore vote for two spades.
Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q9 ♥K109 ♦AJ10964 ♣J9
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Four no trump, provided partner will not construe it as a Blackwood bid. This is intended as a raise of the no trump, and an invitation to bid a slam if the two no trump was made on a maximum. Your hand is not far removed from the equal of an opening bid in high cards and your partner has opened the bidding and jumped which should make you aware of slam possibilities. If partner has no excess values he should pass.
Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQ6543 ♥107 ♦K9 ♣A103
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Five clubs. It is somewhat unusual to make a slam try when one has previously made a minimum rebid. Yet it is perfectly logical in this case. At the time North made his first response of two diamonds, South's hand was still in the minimum range, worth 15 points, but now that North has vigorously supported spades, the hand on revaluation is worth 18 points.
Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q54 ♥Q1097632 ♣A83
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♥ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Five clubs. It is somewhat unusual to make a slam try when one has previously made a minimum rebid. Yet it is perfectly logical in this case. At the time North made his first response of two diamonds, South's hand was still in the minimum range, worth 15 points, but now that North has vigorously supported spades, the hand on revaluation is worth 18 points.

Janitor Is Leaving With Four Academic Degrees

DETROIT (AP)—Thirty-one years ago Elmer Fischer started work at Wayne State University as a janitor. Next July, when he is 65, he will be leaving with four academic degrees, his mops and pails far behind him.

"I might go teach sculpture in some small Negro college in the South," he said, "or I could open my own studio ..."

"... Or I might just find some nice small town that needs a funeral director," Fischer said with a grin. "I might do just that."

In December, he will receive a master's degree in fine arts. Fischer, married and the father of an adult son, has already earned bachelors degrees in history, mortuary science and sculpting.

All started in 1940 when he left his job as an ironworker for Ford Motor Co.

"I was living in a flat," he recalled Sunday, "and I would say it was very ordinary. I didn't have too much of anything. You had to watch your money in those days."

Because of frequent layoffs, Fischer only worked about five months a year. So when a friend went to apply for a job as a school janitor, he went along.

His partner on the janitorial job was Lloyd Richards, a graduate student earning his tuition.

"Well, Richards, he talked me into starting classes," Fischer said. "So when he and I were done cleaning the halls, we'd take a free shower in the men's locker room, change, and go to class."

"First class I took was English composition. I never will forget it. I was 33 years old and started right at the bottom."

By 1953, Fischer had his bachelors degree in history, but he was still a janitor. He was plagued by his memory of the Great Depression he said, and did not want to give up a secure job.

Subsequently, Fischer was transferred to a janitorial job with the school's mortuary science department, began taking courses in science, embalming and restoration.

By the time he earned his mortuary degree, Fisher had become the department's laboratory supervisor and was helping to teach chemistry and bacteriology.

He could have gone out on his own as a funeral director then but he was still haunted by the depression.

Bridge over troubled waters.

The Payroll Savings Plan is one of the easiest ways to make sure you've something saved for when you need money fast. When you participate in the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, an amount you designate will be set aside from each paycheck and invested in U.S. Savings Bonds. It's an effortless way to build up a reserve.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Let's hope there are no troubled waters in your future. But remember, emergencies don't always happen to the other guys.

Report Nathan Leopold Dead Due Heart Attack

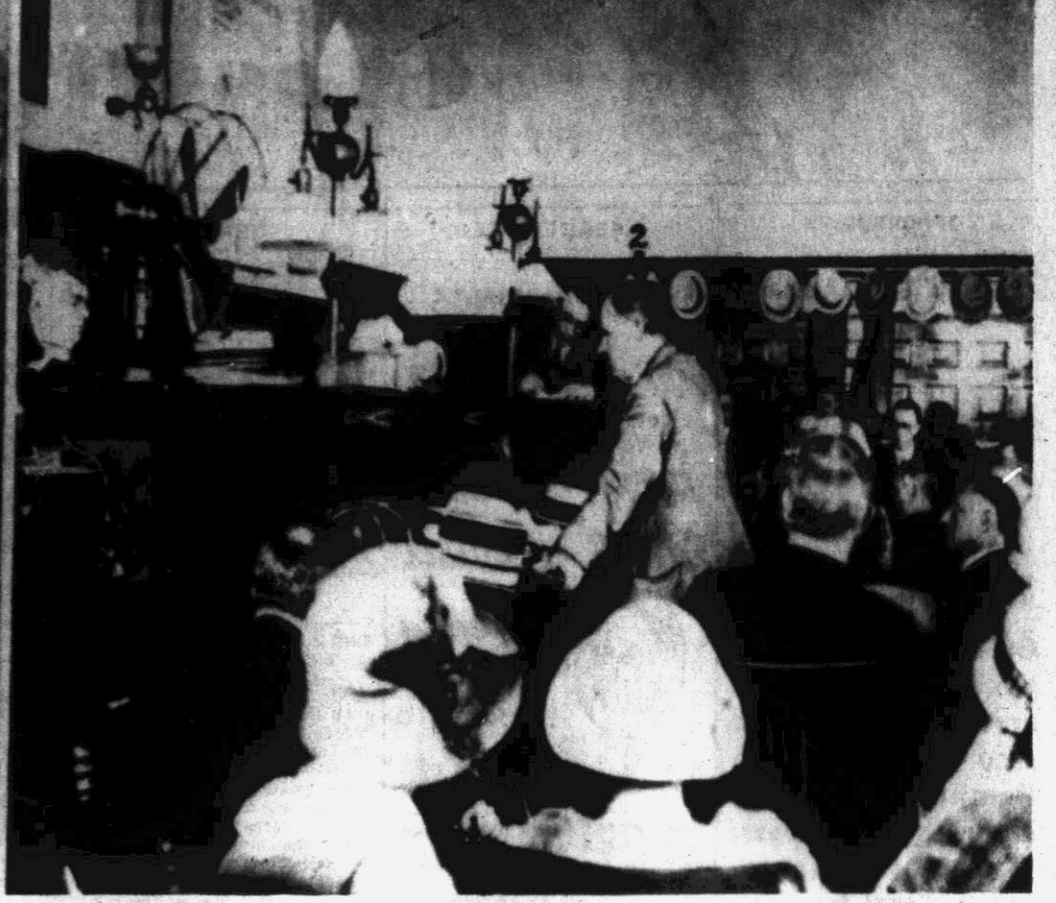

NATHAN LEOPOLD, who shocked the nation when he and Richard Loeb murdered a boy for thrills, is shown at right in his Puerto Rican home in 1963 where

pleaded for the lives of Leopold and Loeb, convicted of the murder of 14-year-old Bobby Franks, left. (AP Wirephoto)

CHICAGO (AP) — Nathan F Leopold, the brilliant son of a wealthy family who shocked the nation in 1924 when he and a friend murdered a young boy just for a thrill, has died in Puerto Rico, his attorney reported today. Attorney Elmer Gertz said Leopold, 66, had died Sunday night at Mimya Hospital in the Santurce section of San Juan. He said death was caused by a heart attack.

Silver Pieces Stolen From Broughton Home

RALEIGH (AP) — Police are continuing an investigation into the theft of about $15,000 worth of sterling silver serving pieces from the home of Mrs. J. Merville Broughton.

Mrs. Broughton's late husband was governor of North Carolina from 1941 to 1945.

Police said the back door of Mrs. Broughton's home was forced open while she was away on vacation. A neighbor discovered the open door Saturday.

The stolen items included an engraved silver service given to Mrs. Broughton and her husband as a going away present when he left the governor's office.

Leopold was paroled from an Illinois penitentiary on March 13, 1958, after serving 33 years, six months and two days for the thrill slaying with Richard Loeb of 14-year-old Bobby Franks. Loeb was killed in a fight with another convict in 1936.

Orientation

HOLLYWOOD — The orientation for D. H. Conley students has been announced by Principal J. R. Carraway.

The schedule for students includes: —Tuesday, Seniors, 8:30 a.m.; juniors, 10:30 a.m.

—Wednesday, Sophomores, 8:30 a.m.; and freshmen, 10:30 a.m. It was erroneously stated in Sunday's edition of The Reflector that orientation would be held Monday and Tuesday.

When he was released, Leopold went to Puerto Rico as a $10 a month laboratory technician in a missionary hospital. In 1959 he entered the University of Puerto Rico, took a masters degree in social medicine and went to work for the Puerto Rican health department.

In February 1961 Leopold married Trudy Feld Garcia de Quevedo, the middleaged widow of a San Juan physician. Two years later he was dis-

'Home' Again

STATESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Policeman Frank Hall arrested Walter Parker, 52, of Statesville, Saturday night and charged him with public drunkenness.

Hall went through the formality of asking Parker's address. "Iredell County jail," replied Parker.

City records showed it was his 179th arrest, most for public drunkenness. The record also shows that Parker is a parttime painter.

charged from parole and became a free man.

The Leopold-Loeb case was one of the most sensational of the 1920s and horrified the nation.

The nude body of the Frank boy, a distant relative of Loeb's, was found in a culvert on Chicago's South Side on May 22, 1924. He had been bludgeoned to death.

A pair of eyeglasses nearby led the police to Leopold, then 19 and the son of a vice president of Sears Roebuck. He implicated Loeb, who was 18.

Clarence Darrow, considered the greatest defense lawyer of the time, defended them in a trial that lasted more than a month.

Darrow had the pair plead guilty so they would be tried before Judge John R. Gaverly without a jury. Then the lawyer fought to save them from execution, bringing forward a string of psychiatrists to testify that the youths were mentally ill but not legally insane. The lawyer closed with a three-day summation denouncing capital punishment.

Two weeks later Judge Ga-verly sentenced the pair to life imprisonment for murder and 99 years for kidnaping. He recommended that they never be paroled.

Leopold and Loeb organized the prison correspondence school, and Leopold reorganized the prison library. Early in World War II he was a guinea pig in tests of new drugs

Gov. Adlai Stevenson in 1949 commuted his 99-year kidnap sentence to 85 years for his work in the malaria tests. This made him eligible for parole in 1953, but it was denied him then and again in 1955 and 1956. Two years later the board
