Safeguard System Faces Cost Fight

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The $8-billion Safeguard antiballistic missile system, hit hard by inflation which has forced a year's construction delay at a major Montana site, faces a new cost-cutting fight in the Senate.

Senate critics plan to try limiting spending to two ABM bases at Grand Forks, N.D., and Great Falls, Mont., and eliminating all money for two other sites.

They are buoyed by speculation that the strategic arms limitation talks may produce an agreement permitting two U.S. ABM bases and a Russian ABM shield around Moscow.

Work is already stalled at Great Falls where the government, for a second time, has turned down the construction proposals as too costly. Army engineers say the Montana winter will keep the project halted until next spring.

The Senate is expected to begin its annual ABM battle at the end of September when it takes up the 1972 military authorization bill containing $1.1 billion for Safeguard.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has approved actual construction money only for Great Falls and Grand Forks, with preliminary site funds earmarked for Warrensburg, Mo., and Cheyenne, Wyo.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., lost a bid in committee to delete the money for the Missouri and Wyoming sites, but a Symington aide said Wednesday the fight will be renewed on the Senate floor.

A similar move failed 53 to 45 last year after the entire Safeguard program had barely escaped defeat in a dramatic 51-50 vote in 1969. The half-finished Grand Forks base is scheduled to be operational in the fall of 1974. Its radar system and the Spartan and Sprint missiles have passed a series of tests in the Pacific with flying colors.

But the Great Falls project is caught in an inflation-cost squeeze that has stalled all work since land-clearing was finished last March.

The low $179-million construction bid was rejected by the Army in April because it was too far above engineers' estimates. The Army negotiated a new package that was vetoed in August by the Labor Department which ruled workers' pay hikes would be too high.

The Pentagon is making a third attempt to hammer out a contract.

Catastrophic Flood In North Vietnam Revealed

By GEORGE ESPER

Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnam has mobilized thousands of troops and civilians to fight the country's worst floods since World War II, Hanoi Radio reported today.

The broadcast made no mention of what effect the overflow of the Red and Thai Binh rivers, in the northern part of the country, might have on supplies and replacements for the Communist forces in South Vietnam. But it said food crops had been destroyed, roads washed out, and transportation and communications disrupted.

Premier Pham Van Dong said military and civilian forces have "in the main triumphed over the flood and warded off a big disaster." North Vietnam now "must concentrate all forces to overcome the consequences of the floods in agriculture and communications and transport," he declared. "All capabilities must be mobilized."

Dong called for increased cultivation of the winter crop in areas not hit by the high water and replanting in the stricken regions.

"On the communications and transport front," he continued, "we must restore the main roads to traffic in the shortest period of time, and mobilize all forces to make the fullest use of the paramount role of communications and transport in the present conditions of the national economy and the people's life."

"Another extremely urgent task is to give adequate care to the life of the people in the flood-stricken areas as regards food, housing and disease prevention..."

Dong made no mention of casualties, nor did he give any damage estimates. But he said the flood, which was spawned by monsoon rains, was "even bigger than that of 1945 which was a catastrophe."

"Floodwaters from upstream have caused the water in the entire system of the Red River and Thai Binh River to rise to an unprecedented level, while heavy downpours in the delta caused added difficulties for the defense of the dike system," Dong said. "The water level remains high and the weather may change abruptly."

Dong spoke at a rally in Hanoi celebrating the 26th anniversary today of the founding of North Vietnam.

Southeast Asia's biggest river, the Mekong, has flooded parts of Laos and Thailand, but the crest has not made its way down to Cambodia and South Vietnam yet.

Commission To Re-Set Hearing

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission was scheduled today to set another date for a hearing on Virginia Electric and Power Co.'s request for an interim rate hike.

The hearing had been set for today, but the commission said President Nixon's wage-price freeze "has eliminated the consideration of an interim rate increase during (the) 90-day price freeze."

Meeting Disrupted Good Neighbors Broken

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
A group of protesting blacks last night broke up a meeting of the Pitt County Good Neighbor Council being held to discuss ways to alleviate the unrest in the county, and to open lines of communication.

Blacks for the past 10 days have been marching and in other ways protesting the shooting of a Negro by a Highway Patrolman near Ayden August 6.

More than 250 persons have been jailed in connection with protest marches staged in Ayden during this period. The protestors have been charged with parading without first securing a permit.

According to Sammy Carson of the Good Neighbor Council, the group was meeting in the District court room at the court house when an unidentified black walked in and, speaking to a number of blacks present, said, "There's a crowd of folks out front — if you don't believe it just look out there — and they want to know what you are in here talking to these whites for."

"You blacks ain't got no business in here. The whites ain't done nothing in the past and they ain't now."

Carson said several blacks then left the room. The intruder then counted and said "let's see, there are four left... we mean business..." Carson explained. He said the four then got up and left the room.

Outside there were approximately 30 to 40 persons lining the sidewalk along Washington Street.

By the time officers arrived, the black pickets had returned to their cars and fled the scene.

Investigation of the incident is under way.

Earlier yesterday, spokesmen for the Black

Pastors Conference of Pitt County announced the group's support for the protest movement.

The Rev. B. B. Felder, acting as spokesman for the 30 persons in attendance at a late afternoon meeting told newsmen the conference, representing about 100 churches in the county, "...endorse the entire movement in the area of non-violent protest..." including the protest marches in Ayden and a planned march to Raleigh scheduled to begin Sunday.

Schoolgirl Dies

A six-year-old girl died of injuries received when struck by a car at Bell's Fork yesterday minutes after getting off a school bus, returning from her second day at school.

Pitt County Coroner E. W. Harvey identified the child as Lisa Yvonne Harris the daughter of William Carl Harris of Route 2, Greenville. She died about 2:30 p.m. in Pitt Memorial Hospital of head and internal injuries, the coroner explained.

The child got off a school bus with an older sister and was walking in front of a service station when she pulled away and ran into the highway and into the path of the car, the coroner said.

The driver of the vehicle involved was identified as Earl Gaskins, 22 of Route 5, New Bern.

Love Story's Final Scene

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Day after day he is there, moving silently about the modest room or slumped in uneasy sleep, that he may be near his frail, beloved Harriet.

It is the final scene of perhaps the tenderest, most enduring romance known to Washington, this vigil of John McCormack's.

In a sense, it is over already, for the doctors say his dying wife, while conscious, has slipped beyond the point of knowing him.

For 51 years they have been together, years which brought him unusual tumult and triumph in a profession noted for rending men from their mates. Yet there was seldom an evening in which Speaker and Mrs. John William McCormack dined separately, and never a night in which they slept apart.

Now he is resolute that they shall not be apart at the end, dismissing the offers of nurses or friends to take up the watch and free him for a time from the antiseptic walls of Providence Hospital.

"This is not a sacrifice," he has said, his gaunt frame draped over a leather armchair beneath the fifth-floor window. "And it is not a duty. I want to be with Harriet, and I will be."

Rarely does he venture even into the outside corridor. He had a door cut between his room and Harriet's so that he could hear her and be at her side more quickly. Other than that, the facilities offer no special privilege, no extra space.

Save for an occasional visitor—they have no children—McCormack plays out these twilight moments alone and with consummate simplicity.

Upon returning to his room, he often drops to his knees beneath the portrait of Jesus of Gethsemane, his white mane tumbling forward over his prayerful face. He is a devout Roman Catholic, once decorated by the Pope. Still, the gesture might seem odd to those more familiar with his rough and tumble reputation, his closed-door, close-crony politics, his penchant for poker and cigar smoke.

He is a man, after all, who gloried in the time-worn sobriquet "The Fighting Irishman of South Boston," and, after 42 years in Congress and eight as speaker, this lonely and serene picture of John McCormack seems strikingly amiss.

John McCormack was only 13 when his father died and it fell to him to keep the family together. He dropped out of school but managed to read law at night, paying an attorney $3 a lesson, and passed the Massachusetts bar at 21.

McCormack went into politics almost immediately, drumming up votes from the back of a horse-drawn peddler's wagon. He was a state senator when he met Harriet Joyce, a member of the Metropolitan Opera.

Since then he has served 21 terms in Congress.

Militant Barred

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. Immigration officials called a special inquiry today to decide whether Joe Cahill, head of the militant provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army, will be allowed to enter the United States.

Cahill was denied immediate entrance when he arrived at Kennedy Airport Wednesday night. Immigration authorities said the State Department had ordered his visa canceled.

The fiery 51-year-old leader, who had planned a four-week tour of U.S. cities to raise money for guns and ammunition, spent the night at an immigration detention center in Manhattan.

A hearing was set before a special inquiry officer of the Immigration and Naturalization Service to determine whether Cahill could remain or would have to return to Ireland.

Cahill is wanted for questioning in Northern Ireland but a spokesman for the British Embassy in Washington said it would not seek his extradition since he is not charged with any specific crime under British law.

N.C. Economy Failed Go Up Or Down During July

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina's economy continued to mark time in July, failing to move significantly up or down.

The Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. reported that its North Carolina Business Index stood at 114.8 and was unchanged from the May and June revised readings.

On the bright side, Wachovia noted that the state's rate of unemployment declined for the fourth consecutive month and stood at 3.6 per cent, much better than the unemployment situation for the nation as a whole.

The index took note of President Nixon's wage and price freeze and said it "is difficult to isolate or predict exactly what effects the president's new economic policy will have on North Carolinians," but it said the general belief was that "it will have stimulative effects."

"Much of whether or not and how much the President's new program will restore economic health and vitality will depend to a large degree on how successful it is in bolstering business and consumer confidence," the report said.

Wachovia reported that slight increases were noted during July in service industry and manufacturing employment but that trade and government jobs showed no significant changes.

It said durable goods employment showed some improvement with jobs in furniture manufacturing down slightly but lumber industry employment up. In the non-durable sector, employment in chemicals and paper industries remained stable while textile employment continued to decline. Tobacco industry employment was down slightly and so was employment in food and kindred products.

Figures on bank debits indicated that spending by individuals and businesses remained at a high level but was essentially unchanged from June.

Construction activity continued Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported that building permits issued in 18 North Carolina cities totaled $48.7 million in July, the highest total since February. For the first seven months of the year, building permits were running 44 per cent ahead of the same period last year.

New car and truck sales continued strong in July, the report continued, and for the first seven months of the year were up 10 per cent over last year for cars and one per cent below the 1970 figure for trucks.

UF Chairmen Are Announced

Mrs. Walter F. Taylor and Jack C. Bircher have been named as two division chairmen for the Pitt County United Fund campaign which begins Oct. 4.

Mrs. Taylor will head the Advance Gifts division and Bircher will appeal to the county's industrial citizens for gifts.

Mrs. Taylor was executive secretary of the Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross for 28 years. A native of Raleigh and the mother of two grown children, she is the widow of Dr. W. F. Taylor. She is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church and is a graduate of St. Mary's Junior College and George Peabody University.

She said, "I have accepted for the second straight year, since my retirement, the challenge of heading up the Advance Gifts Division of the Pitt County United Fund. My experience in Red Cross work makes me aware of the advantages of being a participating member of the United Fund, which touches directly or indirectly every person in this county."

Bircher is a wool buyer for Fieldcrest Mills here. A former military and civilian pilot, he is an alumnus of the University of Pennsylvania. In the past he has served both as chairman and as president of the Pitt County United Fund.

He and his wife, Irene, have four children. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bircher, live in Washington, N.C.

In the past he has served both as chairman and as president of the Pitt County United Fund. He commented, "I am a sincere believer in the principle of united all our health, recreational, and welfare agencies into one annual campaign. Many fail to realize that only those agencies in the United Fund have budgets examined and approved or reduced by local interested Pitt County people. This point is so very important to avoid wasting of the contributed dollar that I hope we will one day see all the agencies now soliciting independently come into the United Fund."

Chairman of the professional, special gifts, leadership, East Carolina University, county, and "goal buster" divisions will be announced soon, according to Joe Tripp, executive director of the Pitt County United Fund.

BACK TO SCHOOL TIME—The girls' clothes here are good for playing, and are pretty too. First, at left, is a ruffled dress, starring buttons and bows. The sleeves are long and elasticized and the hemline flounces. Next is a hot pants suit made to be worn with opaque tights and knee socks. It includes a long, pullover shirt and matching shorts in a color combination of beet and orange with lavender top stitching. A T-shirt dress over matching slacks comes next. The tricolor story is important this fall, and the navy dress sports yellow and green sleeves. Last is an ankle-length dress with a pink and white checked bib, pussycat bow and peek-a-boo edge on a green, pink and blue plaid.

Wife Of Oregon's Senior Senator Thrives On Demanding Schedule

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—If Antoinette Hatfield, wife of Oregon's senior senator, ever decides to seek public office herself, she'll be a shoo-in.

She already knows the value of dinner table diplomacy and she apparently has the inexhaustible energy required of politicians' wives.

How else can you thrive on a schedule that includes writing cookbooks while simultaneously running a home, rearing four small children, accompanying your husband on some trips and even substituting for him when he has to cancel non-political appearances?

In an interview here, Mrs. Hatfield talked about her schedule and the hobby that has led to two cookbooks in print and two more in progress.

She had arrived in New York early that morning to attend a lunch given by the National Association for the Specialty Food Trade. The lunch came two days after she and her husband, Mark, had returned from the Soviet Union, and one day after he'd brought eight guests home for dinner on short notice.

Any other woman would have wanted to rest, but if Mrs. Hatfield did, she wasn't saying. She returned to Washington the same day, with plans to attend an evening softball game.

"I'll probably end up serving something to eat after it's over," she said.

Maybe she finds this sort of thing easy because she's been cooking since childhood. She grew up in a hospitable family at a time when people entertained at home, not in private clubs.

"My mother probably is one of the most effortless hostesses I know," said Mrs. Hatfield. "She has no help in cooking and cleaning. Like any talent, the more you use it, the better and more daring you become."

A big recipe collection helps. Mrs. Hatfield said she's been accumulating recipes from personal friends, family, political figures and celebrities since her husband was governor of Oregon, 1959-1967.

"We had our own mortgaged house instead of a governor's mansion. It was a different kind of entertaining than we do now. We had a lot of drop-in trade—people would come from all over the state.

"If my husband phoned before noon, I knew there'd be company for lunch. If it was after 12, I knew he'd be late."

She said extensive freezer space and flexibility in stretching or changing courses helped her cope.

She also uses time-saving tricks, such as seasoning a roast before she stores it in a foil wrapping. She keeps quick-cooking meats such as steak on hand, along with fresh fruit and salad makings.

She buys cherry tomatoes instead of large ones.

"Children like them and they go further. One sliced tomato looks skimpy but a few cherry tomatoes don't."

Mrs. Hatfield, who has been a school teacher, student counselor and dean of women at a college, relates her experiences in education to the Washington whirl.

She regards home entertaining as a very important force in the capital "because you can discuss some things more easily over a bowl of soup than from two sides of a desk. You never sit behind a desk when counseling children. You sit on a chair or a couch at the same level. The same personal approach is taken at the table."

Many of the dishes Mrs. Hatfield serves at family and party meals are in "ReMARKable Recipes" (Word Books, Waco, Tex.) and "More ReMARKable Recipes" (Criterion, Inc., Beaverton, Ore.). She's also working on a cookbook geared to quantity meals for church groups. A fourth, "Magic Meals for Moppets," co-authored with Mrs. J. William Stanton, wife of an Ohio congressman, is scheduled for publication in 1972.

Fruit relish, recommended for serving with beef, ham or pork chops, is from "More ReMARKable Recipes" by Antoinette Kuzmanich Hatfield.

Peel 6 peaches, 6 pears, 6 onions and 6 tomatoes. Core and seed 3 green peppers. Cut all fruit and vegetables into 1/2 inch pieces. Place them in pot with 4 cups each of vinegar and sugar, 2 tablespoons of salt and 2 tablespoons of pickling spice tied in cheesecloth. Bring to boil and simmer 1 hour. Remove spice bag. Fill, hot, sterilized jars and seal immediately.

Traffic Stopper Was For Safety

TOULOUSE, France (WNS)—Lady drivers complained at police headquarters about the traffic cop on duty in the western district. They said that he was completely nude. Officers sent to check discovered a naked psychiatric patient who stopped cars despite the green lights so that lady pedestrians and children could cross at will. "People are more important than metal monsters," he explained to police who drove him home to his asylum.

Bunny Mother Likes Work But Not Title

By PEACE STERLING
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Attractive, vivacious, bright Elizabeth Yee has a job which includes hiring, firing, counseling, supervising, costuming and filling constant reports on 90 similarly endowed girls. And there's only one thing she doesn't like about it all—her title.

"I hate being called 'Bunny Mother,'" Miss Yee says, her dark eyes snapping, though still crinkling with humor. But she is, in fact, in charge of the Bunnies at the Playboy club here, and it's no easy job.

"This is a very big business, and it's focused entirely on the girls," Miss Yee says. "So when you're supervising them, it's very important to learn how they feel and at the same time show them how the job works."

Miss Yee spent a week at the Playboy headquarters in Chicago being trained for her job, but she says her own experience as a Bunny also helped.

"I know about their problems, because I've been through them myself," she says. "If a girl comes in and tells me how much her feet hurt, I know. I don't just shrug it off."

Miss Yee says most of the girls like working at the Playboy Club because of the flexible hours and good salary. "It's especially attractive for models and actresses," she says, "since if they get a sudden booking, they just have to call and let us know they won't be in."

And she adds, once hired, the girls know they will be well-protected. "They are not to be verbally abused," their Bunny mother states firmly. "If they are, and it is blatantly the customer's fault, his club key will be pulled."

But it works both ways. Miss Yee admits customers ask Bunnies for dates frequently, and they are not allowed to go. "They are told to say, 'I'm terribly sorry sir, but we aren't allowed to go-out with customers.' If the customer persists, the floor manager will take care of the situation," she says.

And what happens if a Bunny doesn't follow the rules? "She's fired," Miss Yee says.

The image of a Bunny, Miss Yee says, is "a young, fresh, personable young lady," emphasis on lady, and when she's hiring new Bunnies she keeps those factors firmly in mind.

The first thing I look at—naturally—is physical appearance," Miss Yee says. "And then I want to know about recent jobs and marital status."

Although we have about 20 married Bunnies now, I want to make sure a girl doesn't want to work here just to get away from her husband."

When a new Bunny is hired, she has a week's orientation course, Miss Yee explains. At the end of that time, she must pass a written test, and after a month she has a review course. At the end of three months a girl is taught how to serve food.

And it's not simple. Miss Yee's training manual is filled with chart after chart of cocktail recipes, proper glass sizes, a kind of shorthand for writing down orders, proper billing procedures, etc.

And even getting dressed is complicated. "Each girl usually has three costumes," Miss Yee says. These include plain pumps, support hose (both for comfort and appearance), patterned hose, the shell, a rosette with the Bunny's name on it, white collars and cuff, and the famous cotton tail. There are four seamstresses working full-time to maintain the costumes.

Miss Yee says the average stay for Bunnies is only three to six months. But, she adds, one Bunny in New York has been working at the club for seven years. "There's no retirement age," she says—"as long as they look good."

"I'm sure I'd get bored if I had to sing just jazz," she said, her face a sort of happy Byzantine mask with its quizzical smile and sloping lines.

"All the good singers influenced me—Ella Fitzgerald and Sarah Vaughan and Billie Holiday and so on—but I hope I've taken everything that I can from them and discarded it, and found myself.

"I'm occasionally pleased with myself, but very often depressed—like every artist should be if they're not fooling themselves.

"I don't suppose I appeal very much to the mass of younger listeners—but I was fourth in the hit parade once—but I feel I fulfill a need for a lot of people who are neglected by the pop scene."

Switching from jazz to classics works better than opera singers tackling jazz, she thinks, because most of them who try it sound "interesting, but very unrhythmic."

Level With Grandmother About Reasons

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from "WORKING GRANDMOTHER" who wants to keep her grandchildren [both under three years old] in a playpen at her house, I was reminded of my problem, which is exactly the opposite:

My children's grandmother cannot understand why I won't leave my children at her house. My toddlers would be safer playing alone in an abandoned mine field. There are bleaches and other harsh chemicals on the laundry room floor, drain cleaner and aspirin on a low shelf in her bathroom, extension cords plugged into the wall socket, only lying on the floor, and attractive matches and lighters within easy reach.

Outside they have cactus and oleander landscaping and a shallow fish pond. And if a child should happen to stick his hand thru their chain fence, a dog who bites is waiting on the other side.

There are also 20 dozen valuable fragile knickknacks all over the place, which if damaged or broken would give granny cardiac arrest.

So perhaps if she and other grandmothers read this they will realize why their daughters [and daughters in law] don't send the kiddies to Grandma's.

CAREFUL IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR CAREFUL: Perhaps. But wouldn't it be a lot easier to just level with her?

DEAR ABBY: Our middle son, Russell [made-up name] is our problem. He is a very intelligent boy of 19 who went to college for one year just to please us, then he quit. "Why waste your money and my time?" he asked.

His grades were above average and he could have continued. His reason for quitting? He likes to work with his hands. He is now going to a trade school and we are so disappointed in him. Now, I'm not putting down people who work with their hands, but it seems to me a man who works with his hands does so only because he isn't smart enough to work with his mind. Russell's father and grandfather are professional men, and both Russell's brothers plan to enter a profession.

Can you put something in your column stating a college degree is absolutely necessary these days, Abby? After Russell graduates from college he can do anything he chooses, but we want him to finish college first. Thank you.

RUSSELL'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Sorry, but I don't agree with you. College is not for everybody. If Russell likes to work with his hands, that's what he should do. It's not true those who work with their hands aren't smart enough to work with their minds. Some handwork requires as much skill, talent and brains as many professions. Let Russell do his own thing. Happiness is working at that which gives one pleasure.

DEAR ABBY: Do all husbands pick and nag at their wives over every imperfection?

My husband nagged me until I lost 20 pounds. Now he complains because my bust went down 2 inches.

That wouldn't be so bad, but his timing is rotten. He picks our most intimate moments, when he should be telling me something he likes about me, to bring up his complaints. Doesn't a man know that this turns a woman off?

TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED: If he doesn't, he should. And if he knows, and does it anyway, he should be turned down.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Culinary Delights Of Alsace

By TOM HOGE

Associated Press Writer
Seeing little chance of getting to Alsace for the wine harvest this fall, I did the next best thing. I talked with Pierre Dopff, jovial mayor of the medieval village of Riquewihr, whose forebears have cultivated the grapes of Alsace for centuries.

We chatted over lunch in New York's Chez Renee which specializes in such gastronomic delights of Alsace as onion pie, snails and a raisin-studded bread called Kugelhopf.

Our meal was accompanied by four of Alsace's wines—a fruity, light Sylvaner, a delicate Riesling, an elegant Pinot Blanc and a velvety Gewurztraminer.

The dry white wines of Alsace, the northernmost grape-growing region of France, account for about 10 per cent of French wine production. In the past two years, sales of Alsatian wines have soared 70 per cent in the United States.

The Sylvaner, I found, went well with the hors d'oeuvres. The main course, as decreed by Dopff, was introduced with the more full bodied Riesling. Toward the end of that course we sampled the Pinot Blanc which has more body and bite than the Sylvaner.

Dessert was accompanied by the smooth Gewurztraminer whose praises have been sung over the years by the poets of Alsace.

Finally over coffee and Alsatian Kirsch, the mayor spoke of his region and his wines.

"Grapes have grown in this northeastern part of France since pre-Christian times," Dopff recalled. "The Romans began cultivating vineyards. Despite its northern location, the vines are sheltered by the Vosges Mountains from cold winds and actually benefit from a warm, dry, sunny climate."

"One wine in this region first was made in 1519," Dopff continued, "and is now managed by descendants of the 12th generation."

The genial mayor took issue with my suggestion that the wines of Alsace and the German Rhine are similar.

"That is not true," he said. "German wines are sweeter to suit the German taste. Furthermore, the vineyards of Alsace are cultivated under much stricter control."

One of the high spots of the meal, in my opinion, was the Kugelhopf, which has a unique flavor. After some cajoling, I persuaded Chez Renee's hostess to give me the recipe, and here it is:

KUGELHOPF

- 2 packages dry yeast
- 1/4 cup lukewarm water
- 1/4 pound butter
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 2 egg yolks
- 2 whole eggs
- grated rind of one lemon
- 3 cups flour
- 1/2 cup scalded milk
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1 teaspoon butter for greasing pans
- 2 tablespoons confectioners sugar

Sprinkle yeast over water in a one quart pan and set aside until it bubbles. Place butter and sugar in bowl of electric mixer and beat at low speed for 3 minutes. Add 2 egg yolks, 2 whole eggs, lemon rind, flour, salt and milk alternately. Last add raisins.

Leaf Prices Bring Optimism

Greenville and other Eastern Belt Markets have opened their seasons with outstanding prices paid for tobacco and that should mean a bright Fall economically for our area.

Greenville's first day sales were tops for the Belt with 1,574,725 pounds sold for $1,214,680. The average was $77.14 per hundred weight, well above last year's opening day average of $74.03.

In Farmville 608,027 pounds were sold for $470,261 to average $77.34. Williamston sold 314,294 pounds for $246,187 and an average of $78.33 to lead the Belt in average price. Robersonville sold 313,916 pounds for $240,264 to average $76.54.

A 'Beachhead' In Internships

By BRYAN HANSLIP
RALEIGH — A beachhead has been carved out in the no man's land between campus and the Establishment territory of state government.

The shock troops were student summer interns, who participated in the day-to-day functioning of agencies in a learning-teaching capacity. They go back to their classrooms this fall with changed ideas about the theory and practice of government. They leave the state officials and employees who were their co-workers with a better understanding of youthful aims and aspirations.

"I think we have laid the foundation to continue building bridges," said Will Finnin, a Duke University divinity student and coordinator for the environmental intern program.

Thirty college students worked in ten state agencies under the environmental program, one of a number based on the service-learning concept. Various kinds of internships involved a total of 2,800 students.

Insignificant In Numbers
"In numbers alone, it's insignificant when you realize there are 1 1/2 million North Carolinians in the student population group between 15 and 24," Finnin acknowledged.

The significance, he added, is in altered attitudes and in the view of education extended beyond the classroom to include the real world.

From the campus, most students saw state government as a stronghold on the status quo, peopled by bureaucrats adamant against change.

"Once inside, they realized there really are creative and hardworking people in state government honestly trying to do a good job," Finnin explained.

"The flipside is that people in the agencies come to recognize that students have fresh ideas to contribute. There was learning and teaching on both sides."

Gov. Bob Scott created the environmental intern program last year to give service-learning opportunities to students and to provide manpower for the participating agencies. The program is coordinated by the N.C. Internship Office, a joint undertaking of the Department of Administration and the Board of Higher Education.

Variety of Projects
Intern projects included research on the effects of stream channeling on fish and fresh water life, policy development for state parks, study of the environmental impact of highways, recycling of metals, and others.

A summer highlight was the opportunity for the interns to examine at first-hand the issue of state ownership versus private development for Bald Head Island, lying off the southeastern coast. Arthur Cooper, assistant C&D director, met with the group for a discussion and slide presentation on the island and its ecology. Later, they went on a field trip to the island.

Students quickly established rapport with Cooper, who described himself as a faculty intern. He came to state government from N.C. State University.

Interns have been used in government and business over the past several years. North Carolina gradually has broadened its participation from a basis primarily of part-time summer help to a sustained program.

A Flowering Concept
Finnin predicted the service-learning concept at the heart of internship programs will flower in the years ahead. Optimum results will come, he added, as there is close faculty-student-state agency involvement, year-round opportunities, and academic credit for intern work.

His background and goals give Finnin an insight into the moral dimensions of government service and environmental concern. He is a Louisianian and a Methodist who looks to the ministry of teaching.

"The whole question of values in education is under scrutiny," he said. "Too often, educational institutions have contributed to the fragmentation and frustration of individuals, rather than their fulfillment."

Internships, as a means of integrating life learning with textbook instruction, can lead the student to a whole view of himself, Finnin explained.

Man risks loss of his humanity as he exploits the natural world in denial of his fundamental link with nature, he continued. A sense of harmony can be recovered, Finnin suggested, as man develops respect for his environment and deals with it on the basis of the good of the total community.

First Day sales for the entire Belt were 10,362,518 pounds sold at $8,008,742 and an average of $77.29.

It was a happy day for most farmers as they saw their tobacco, which represented months of toil, going for record prices in warehouse-after-warehouse.

The enthusiasm for the high prices has to be tempered somewhat by the knowledge that inflation has taken its bite out of the increase in prices over last year. It would not take an audit of the cost of raising the tobacco crop to determine that overhead this year was also the highest ever. Thus if prices had not set a new record, if they had remained at what they were last year, then producers would have seen their profits on the crop shrink drastically.

Prices were up, however, and up considerable. This will offset some of the increased cost of producing this year's crop and allow the farmer to make a profit.

The Eastern Belt has a fine beginning and there is no reason to doubt that prices will hold throughout the season for the outstanding tobacco which farmers in this area have produced. Now that cash is being realized for the crop we should see a boost in our Eastern economy.

Wilbur Eyeing Tax Changes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Working quietly back home in Kensett, Ark., Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, has just about decided to push hard for a tax break for low-income families that could cost up to $1 billion a year.

The plan being studied by the powerful, often inscrutable Mills would raise what is known as the minimum standard income tax deduction, now $1,050 for a family, by $100 or $200 a year.

Such an increase would affect only the lowest income groups and would have an immediate impact on consumption spending. The reason: families with incomes low enough to take the minimum standard deduction on their tax returns, instead of the percentage deduction (now 13 per cent), have virtually no savings. Accordingly, their tax savings from an increase in the minimum deduction would presumably go into immediate consumption, not into savings banks. Total cost to the Treasury of a $100 increase, $400 million; for a $200 increase, about $1 billion a year.

Mills has made no final decision, but he advised President Nixon to explore a possible increase of the minimum deduction during White House talks Aug. 17 on Mr. Nixon's new tax program. The President promptly ordered Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, masterminding the President's new economic program, to look into it.

Mills is also toying with other changes in the Nixon program. He may support an immediate $50 increase in exemptions. Instead of waiting until Jan. 1, 1972, for the $100 exemption increase in the President's plan. He also leans toward last April 1 as the effective date for the proposed 10 per cent investment tax credit, instead of August as Mr. Nixon asked.

A footnote: Despite a rising demand by Democratic party liberals and organized labor for an excess profits tax, Mills remains adamantly opposed. Such a tax, he tells aides, would siphon off profits at the top that otherwise might go into new plant and equipment.

Hoover's Drawing Power
The continuing popularity of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in the face of rising criticism that the old man (now 76) has abused his power and ought to quit is stunningly revealed in the fund drive by a pro-Hoover lobby called Friends of the FBI (FOF), Inc.

Organized only in late May, FOF has now received well over $100,000 in cash gifts from a direct-mail campaign that has solicited contributions from backers of right-wing causes, and what Lee Edwards, its public relations adviser, calls "middle Americans." The Richard A. Viguerie Company, Inc., which handled fund-raising for the abortive 1970 Senate campaign of former Federal Judge G. Harold Carswell in Florida, has carried a major load of the FOF fund drive.

But it has not been all a bed of roses. Originally claiming that contributions were tax-exempt as a result of a legal link to the Chicago-based Commission for International Due Process of Law (a tax-exempt organization headed by Luis Kutner), FOF now has a petition of its own for tax-exemption before the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). The reason for that is that some of Kutner's liberal friends, including Democratic Rep. Abner Mikva of Chicago, protested bitterly at his connection with FOF.

Thus some contributors to FOF, who sent their checks on the promise of tax-exemption in solicitation letters signed by television actor Elmer Zimbalist, Jr. (star of "The FBI"), may now not be all that certain of getting it.

In short, unless the IRS declares FOF a legitimate tax-exempt outfit, the pro-Hoover organization has lost its tax shelter.

A footnote: The $100,000-plus collected by FOF will finance what is described as a blue-ribbon commission of lawyers and scholars to study the FBI's history and write a report titled: "The FBI: Its Record and Performance."

Strength For Today

DIVINE HEALING

There has been a renewed interest in divine healing in recent decades. And rightly so. Our Lord healed through his ministry, and in the church continued. It ceased after some generations, or perhaps centuries. No one is exactly sure why.

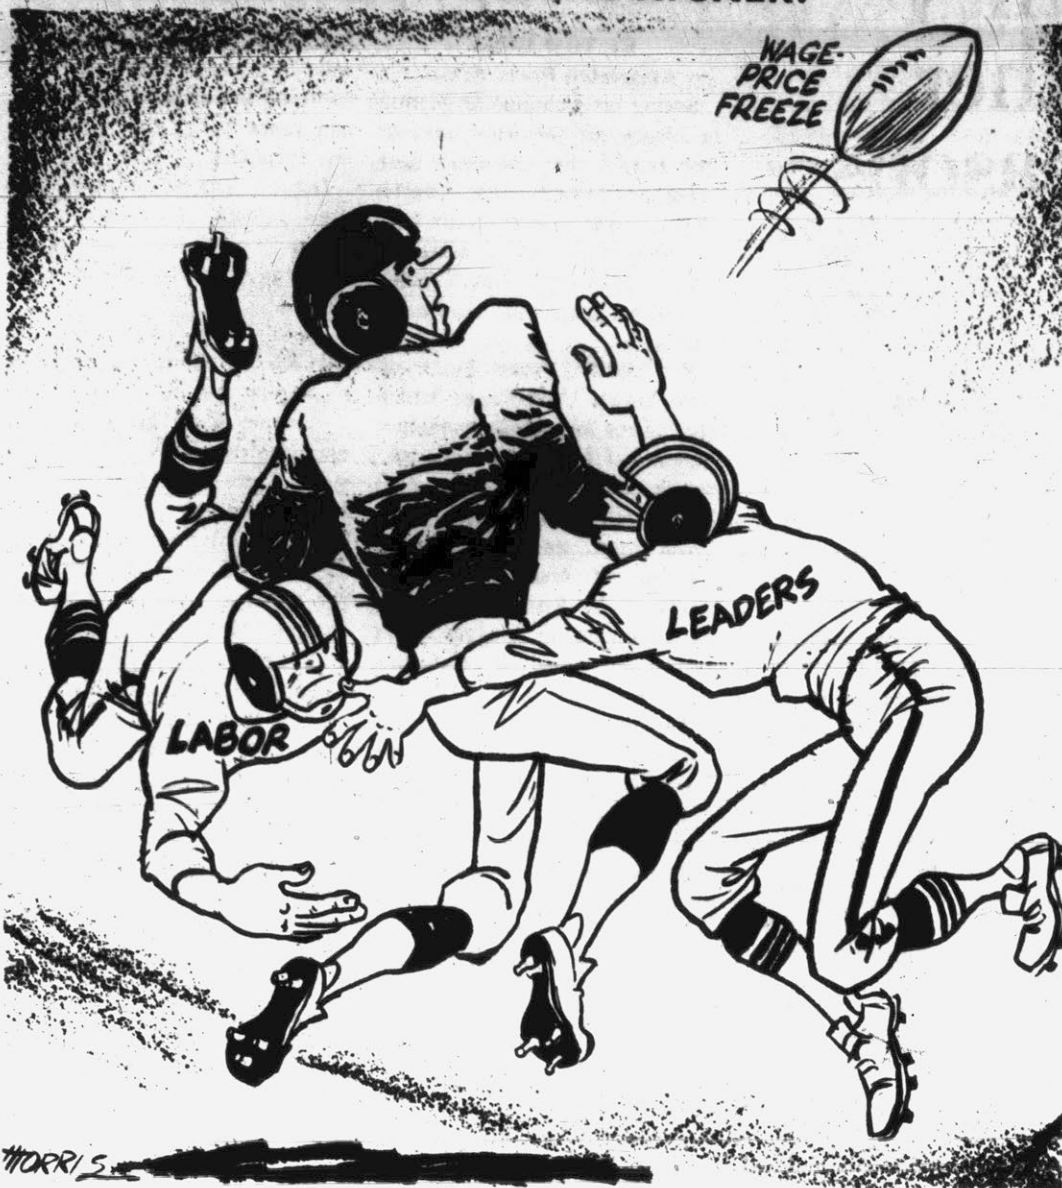

But if healing ever occurred in the church, certainly it is God's will that it should continue. There are many theories as to how healing takes place. One on which all branches of the church can unite (and which seems, on the whole, the best of all explanations) is that when God's perfect spiritual world is brought in contact with the imperfections of this world, especially disease, the perfect prevails over the imperfect, and all imperfection—including disease—is done away with. Jesus was among many other things a channel of God's perfect power to the life of man. He and God were one. When he reached up one hand to heaven, as it were, and stretched out the other to suffering humanity, the full power of God's perfection swept through him, and disease and all other forms of imperfection were vanquished.

There are other explanations of miracles, but all go back to the completeness of God's love and power. It was possible two thousand years ago. It would appear to be possible today.

Kind Word For Doctors

As some early Roman Pollyanna used to say, ex malo, bonum: Look at the good side. The President's economic package has its regrettable aspects, but it contains one excellent feature. For the time being, at least, it will dump a number of ill-advised health and welfare plans into a political freeze.

The chief casualty of Mr. Nixon's sudden war upon inflation is his own Family Assistance Plan of welfare reform. This is to be postponed vaguely from "three months to one year," so as to achieve a paper economy of $1.1 billion in the current budget. This is all make-believe. "Family assistance" is a euphemism for guaranteed annual income. The bill proposed not reform, but rather revolution. And such is the mounting skepticism within the Senate Finance Committee that the plan was more dead than alive anyhow.

Another notable casualty is the whole concept of a broad federal plan of national health insurance. In the new mood of austerity, there is no prospect whatever that Congress will plunge into any scheme that simultaneously could add billions to the federal deficit and skim off other billions in taxes. The movement toward socialization of American medicine is put off for a while.

It is likely to be only for a while. Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts is a tenacious fellow, full of missionary zeal; as chief apostle for national health insurance, he surely will keep pushing his cause. The senator will have the continuing assistance of many others, most of them political hypochondriacs who complain incessantly that our system of medical care is sick, sick, sick.

Now, this simply is not so. By any fair yardstick, Americans have access to the finest medical care in the world. Our system of essentially private practice has its failings, to be sure, but it is infinitely superior to the state-supported schemes of Europe. In this interim period, while time permits, the defenders of American medicine have a special obligation to make their defenses secure.

Unhappily, this is one of the problems: As defenders, they are forever on the defensive, and the posture is unappealing. The medical profession is kept so busy fending off its critics that it has little time or opportunity for telling the story of doctors who work far harder than most of us, who give more of themselves to public service, who often earn less after taxes than plumbers, politicians, and actors.

For the past twenty years, and especially the past ten, American medicine has

Reader's Digest Bows To FTC

The Federal Trade Commission has tentatively accepted an agreement by the Reader's Digest Association not to use sweepstakes games unless all prizes are awarded, the exact nature and value of the prizes is disclosed, and the odds against winning any prize told.

The original complaint alleged that in 11 sweepstakes from 1966 to 1969, 699,293 prizes worth $5.6 million were advertised but that only 274,282 worth $2.5 million were awarded. There were a few other charges: that participants had a reasonable opportunity to win, and that participants were "selected" or "chosen" when in fact entries were sent to millions of persons.

COMMENT: The publicity given this case — and the FTC is publicizing it fully — is probably a heavier penalty than is normally imposed in an FTC matter because of the unique position the Reader's Digest occupied in its field. The magazine has largely been regarded as a model of rectitude, a champion of morality. Some readers have regarded it as religious and a few believed the association that published it was a religious organization. Others have thought of it as a champion of old-fashioned American virtues.

The agreement does not constitute an admission that the magazine violated the law. But this system of consent agreements, sometimes called "stop beating your wife" promises, puts an accused company in a quandary. The accused can agree to stop beating his wife, or to stop whatever the FTC complains of, which of course can be regarded by the public as a confession of wife-beating, or it can fight the case, which can result in unpleasant publicity over the years.

ELMER ROESSNER

Nathaniel Samuels has been conferring with Common Market and Japanese officials in an effort to persuade them to keep steel quotas.

COMMENT: Foreign nations would be fully within their rights in ending quotas since quotas were set on the condition that there be no increase in tariffs or other restrictions. However, if quotas are abolished, the U. S. can quickly increase the surcharge, which could hurt harder than the quota system. And steel is one thing that can't be smuggled into

Nixon Not Treating The Causes

By ELMER ROESSNER

The federal deficit in the year ending next June 30, last estimated at $23.2 billion, may be even greater, perhaps in the $25 billion range. The end of the excise tax on auto and the restoration of tax deductions for new plants and equipment will cut Treasury receipts heavily. And even those union raises postponed by the wage freeze will cut tax bites. The surcharge on imports will do little to offset these losses.

COMMENT: The wage-price freeze and other steps President Nixon has taken or proposed will do naught to cure inflation. At best they will treat or muffle some of the effects.

Deficit operation of government will further dilute the value of the dollar. Allowed to float in relation to other currencies, it has declined very little so far, but continuing deficits will surely sink it further.

Cuban Refugees Concerned Over Those Left Behind

By ISAAC M. FLORES
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Tomas, a skinny red-faced farmer from Cuba, arrived here on one of the last refugee flights and was despondent about the family he left behind. He was fearful that he may have to return.

"If Castro will not let my wife and children out, I must go back," Tomas said Wednesday. "I must find a way to go back. We cannot remain separated, maybe forever ... What will happen to them?"

Tomas, who did not want his last name used, typified some of the confusion and despair of Miami's "Little Havana" in the wake of the abrupt suspension of the "freedom flights" by Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

One of the main reasons given by political observers for the stoppage of the twice-a-day shuttle flights is that the island is losing much of its work force.

In the early years of the Cuban exodus, many arrivals were of the upper and middle classes and included professionals—doctors, lawyers and engineers. But the Cuban Refugee Program reports that of the 245,805 refugees who have arrived since Dec. 1, 1965, when the project began, 26 per cent are in skilled worker, managerial, professional and clerical worker categories.

Semiskilled personnel comprised 4.1 per cent of the total, some 3.2 per cent were in the service occupations, 2 per cent were farmers or fishermen and the largest category—64.4 per cent—were children, students and housewives.

To Manuela Carbo, Castro's unilateral action meant that he had finally conceded the country was in trouble and that "he is willing to destroy lives in attempts to resolve his problems."

Mrs. Carbo knows "the horrible repression of the Communist regime" first hand. She spent six years in a Cuban political prison for sabotage and other counter-revolutionary activities. The 49-year-old widow arrived in this country aboard a refugee flight in May 1967.

To Carlos Arbolea, who arrived in Miami a penniless immigrant in 1960 and rose to become president of a bank, it means that "the United States has kept its word and Fidel has broken his."

And to 13-year-old Eloina Fernandez and her 3-year-old brother, Rolando, it means that their father will have to remain on a government farm in Cuba, frustrated in his efforts to join them in Miami.

Most members of the large exile colony viewed Castro's action as part of a devious attempt to achieve some as yet unclear political objective.

Arbolea said it is Castro's "desperate way of gaining dollars."

suffered relentless attack. Its foremost critics, such as Senator Kennedy, are ideologues in this sense — that they tend to abhor the "private sector" and exalt the "public sector," and they fume with frustration that so much of medicine remains free of public control. And because there is livelier news in attack than in defense, they have stirred up a dissatisfaction that is largely unjustified.

The American system does indeed have its failings. For the family not covered by group insurance and not eligible for such programs as Medicare or Medicaid, it can be fearfully expensive. There are not enough doctors in the slums of our central cities. There are too many specialists and too few G.P.s. Drugs go wrong. Malpractice is proved.

But these failings — the extent that they are failings — ought to be kept in perspective. Doctors' fees, for example, have increased in recent years by no more than the general cost of living. Hospital bills, it is true, have soared out of sight, but the increases are a direct consequence of higher wages for hospital personnel and higher costs of complex equipment. The number of doctors increased by 50 percent between 1950 and 1970. This month will see 12,500 freshmen entering medical schools — up 40 percent since 1965. The doctor shortage is being licked.

And who — besides Senator Kennedy — supposes that national health insurance would be better? The monumental tax burden of such a plan would breed a new bureaucracy, but it would get no more sick people well. While the freeze is on, we might better concentrate upon improving and preserving the very good system we have.

Checking Touch-n-Tell Complaints

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators are checking complaints from government employees that they are being pressured into joining race relations group encounters that border on invasion of privacy.

Alice D. walked out on one such session because, she said, "it got her down to sex life and just downright uncalled-for vulgar language."

Her boss in an Agriculture Department agency insists the meetings are an earnest attempt "to carry out President Nixon's directives to end racial discrimination in government."

The official referred to the meetings as "workshops."

Although some people call them "touch and tell" or "conflict and confrontation" sessions, "We say it's sensitivity training," said a Senate constitutional rights subcommittee investigator.

"And whatever it's called, this is clearly over the line into a worker's personal privacy. The government just doesn't have any business getting inside my head and certainly no business trying to change the way I think," he added.

Executive agency defenders of the program deny it involves formal sensitivity training. But they say the sessions are considered sensitive in the sense that they sometimes touch deeply rooted racial views.

Anti-Busers In Picketing Move

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP) — About 250 antibusing protesters picketed the home of Dr. Heywood Bellamy, New Hanover County school superintendent, Wednesday night.

Police said the demonstration was peaceful and no arrests were made.

The pickets were led by H. D. Ward, president of an organization called the Rights of White People. The organization has been protesting a court-ordered plan, involving busing, for achieving racial balance in the county schools.

Bellamy has said he will not tolerate any interference with busing. Schools opened Tuesday.

J. Ervin, D-N.C., says it is "still not known how extensive it is in the government or the range of techniques being used by various agencies."

Complaints began coming in this year, the subcommittee staff reports, such as the case of Alice D.—not her real name.

"What they were trying to impress us with may have been necessary, which I doubt, but the way they said it was filthy," she said.

In describing a lynching, she said, "they discussed the anatomy quite frankly. At this time I asked if this kind of language was really necessary in front of women and unmarried girls. Then I walked out."

Alice's superior replied that he was sorry she did not find such training "to be the worthwhile experience that most of the other 2,000 employees who have attended found it to be."

In another case, say subcommittee sources, the General Services Administration had ordered its employees to submit to touch-and-tell sessions run by sociologists, and described by sponsors as being aimed at learning "self-disclosure, self-awareness and non-possessive caring, risk-taking, trust, acceptance and feedback."

According to a booklet sample turned over to the subcommittee, couples were being asked to look each other in the eye and hold hands while completing such phrases as: "My most frequent daydreams are about . . . I am most ashamed of interacial dating and-or marriage make me feel . . . When the subcommittee challenged this, Chairman Robert E. Hampton of the Civil Service Commission said the doctor using this questionnaire did not discuss the technique with officials and promised to eliminate it.

Morgan For Teacher Pay Hikes

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan declared Wednesday night that he will not be guided by "indirect reports" from Washington and that he will continue to recommend that North Carolina teachers be paid their 5 per cent pay increases until the Office of Emergency Preparedness tells him differently. Morgan's statement came in response to comments by Treasury Undersecretary Charles E. Walker in a briefing for congressmen Wednesday. Walker said most teacher pay increases across the nation would not be permitted "because the contract period did not begin before the freeze" Aug. 15. He contended that the beginning of the contract period is determined not by the date the contract was signed but "the date when services contracted for begin to be delivered." Morgan told the teachers of the state last Thursday that the 5 per cent pay hike granted by the 1971 General Assembly would be distributed on the advice of an oral ruling made by Thomas J. Simmons, executive assistant to the director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness in Washington. "As chief legal officer of this state, I do not intend to be guided by indirect reports received through the media which are not directed to the situation in North Carolina or to be in my official capacity," Morgan said in a written statement Wednesday night. "If the office of Emergency Preparedness again wishes to change its position let it do so specifically," he said. He said the office has not advised him "that the oral ruling issued by Mr. Simmons on Aug. 26 has been modified or is no longer in effect." "I rely on that ruling and will continue to advocate and defend that position," Morgan added. He noted that Walker's statement was similar to the position taken by the Atlanta Office of Emergency Preparedness when his office first requested an opinion Aug. 20.

At that time Gerald M. Parks ruled that the state's teachers could not collect the pay raises unless they began teaching under the new salary schedule prior to Aug. 15, 1971. But Morgan said Parks called back later the same day and told him to call Simmons in Washington to make sure. "After a full explanation of the facts, Mrs. Simmons unequivocally stated that the salary schedules adopted by the state Board of Education on July 15, 1971, are applicable to all North Carolina public school employees included within the salary schedules," Morgan said. He said he is again recommending that the state budget officer distribute to local school administrative units the money provided by the General Assembly for teacher pay hikes. Morgan said that he had conferred with state School Superintendent Craig Phillips, who "concurs completely in this position."

Await Latin 'Backlash' To Surcharge On Imports

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials are viewing with some apprehension evidence of Latin American backlash to President Nixon's 10-per-cent surcharge on imports.

Of particular concern to officials here is a meeting of Latin American finance ministers, scheduled to start Friday in Buenos Aires, at which hemispheric nations will attempt to establish a common front on the surcharge issue.

Official estimates show that only 22 per cent of goods imported to the United States from Latin America are affected by the surcharge. But hemispheric diplomats charge it is unfair to apply the surcharge against an area with which the United States has enjoyed a substantial trade surplus for years.

During the first six months of 1971, the surplus was in excess of $350 million, according to official statistics.

In addition, there is a consensus among Latin American diplomats here that the surcharge constitutes a retreat from Nixon administration promises to lower trade barriers to hemispheric products.

A Nixon proposal for generalized trade preferences for the products of developing nations, announced 22 months ago, still has not been introduced in Congress by the administration.

Diplomatic sources say the State Department quietly sought to discourage the meeting of hemispheric finance min-

Raquel Welch Is Asking Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actress Raquel Welch, 30, has filed a suit for divorce from her press agent—movie producer husband, Patrick A. Curtis, 36.

Curtis, who appeared in "Gone With the Wind" as a child, was a Hollywood press agent when he met Miss Welch. The couple has no children.

isters, which is being carried out under auspices of the Special Commission for Latin American Coordination.

The meeting was proposed by Argentine President Alejandro A. Lanusse, who urged adoption of a common front by Latin American nations in the face of United States policies which "gravely affect" their respective economies.

Other officials in Argentina, 70 per cent of whose exports would be affected by the surcharge, say the Lanusse government is prepared to take retaliatory action against U.S. imports.

The United States had a trade surplus of $269.7 million with Argentina last year.

U.S. officials have been attempting to smooth over ruffled Latin American feelings by saying the surcharge is a temporary measure essential for restoration of a healthy economy.

The Latin Americans also are being told that a healthy U.S. economy is an indispensable prerequisite for expanded U.S. financial and trade cooperation with Latin America.

Naval Academy Seeking Out More Black Recruits

By JOHN WOODFIELD
Associated Press Writer
ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The number of black recruits at the U.S. Naval Academy has doubled in the past year. The reason is Lt. Kenneth H. Johnson, a Negro officer brought in by the academy to actively seek minority candidates.

The 30-year-old son of a Hallandale, Fla., hotel cook, Johnson took over his new duties barely a year ago after six years of sea duty, and he attributes his success primarily to "spreading the word."

He admits that it wasn't easy to change the image with his people of an academy that for many years was considered almost an exclusive institution for those affluent members of society who also had political connections.

The academy didn't graduate its first Negro midshipman until 1949.

"The big thing is that I did an awful lot of traveling in the fall and in the winter to some of the places that I thought would be fertile ground for recruiting. And I let the people know that the opportunities were available," he said.

Candidates to the academy can be nominated by any one of 10 methods, but the final selection is up to the academy itself. The admitting board had to pick this year's 1,326-man freshman class from 7,400 applicants.

But among them were 44 blacks compared with 21 admitted last year.

Johnson said there was no special consideration given black applicants.

Academy admission is based on academic standing, extracurricular activities, athletics and letters of recommendation from counselors and high school principals.

A candidate thus may be weak in one area but if he is strong in others, his over-all ranking—known as the "whole man" concept—will be high.

The admissions committee considers candidates solely in the order they are ranked, and grades, for example, are given no more weight than the other categories.

"We just hadn't gotten the word out to the black community—that was the problem," he said.

Johnson says another major problem he meets as he recruits around the country is peer-group pressure.

"I'm not talking about black peer groups being anti-military. It's not that. But many of them look upon the military as all white, so it's an anti-white sentiment rather than an anti-military sentiment."

But like any other salesman, Johnson is a firm believer in what he has to sell, even though he himself entered the Navy through officer candidate school at Newport, R.I., rather than through the academy.

"I honestly believe that we do have the best product to offer and I think once a kid sees that, it's hard for him to turn it down," he said.

For those who can't meet the rigid Naval Academy admissions standards, Johnson says he tries to persuade them to join either the Naval Academy Prep School at Bainbridge, Md., or "Operation Boost" at San Diego, Calif.

The prep school course is a year in length with admission to the academy guaranteed for those who successfully complete it.

Operation Boost was established specifically for minority groups and offers disadvantaged youngsters a course they can take at their own speed, running from six months to two years. They, also, can enter the academy once they have successfully completed it.

Experience Of Silent Movies Said Helpful

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Florida Swanson says she is benefitting from acting techniques employed during her years in silent movies as she rehearses for her part as the mother in the Broadway show "Butterflies Are Free."

Miss Swanson is scheduled to assume the role of Mrs. Parker in "Butterflies" next Tuesday. Rosemary Murphy, who now has the role, is leaving to do a film.

"This play is a comedy," Miss Swanson said Tuesday. "The first time you get only the light side. But if you see it again you realize that everyone is saying one thing and feeling another; they're covering up."

"This is where the old silent motion picture technique comes into being. We had to learn to act with our backs and our little fingers, all our muscles. We had to feel very strongly. We couldn't rely on the voice and intonations."

Order Halt To Paid Canvassing

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A permanent injunction was issued Tuesday against paid canvassing for signatures to force a vote on a five-cent increase in Oregon's four-cent cigarette tax.

State law requires 26,600 signatures to refer a measure passed by the legislature to the voters. Paid collection of signatures is forbidden.

State Atty. Gen. Lee Johnson asked for the injunction against two Portland tobacco wholesalers, Sylvan Campf and Ed Collins, and Ronald Campbell, a Portland high school teacher.

Vine crops such as cucumbers, squash, pumpkins and muskmelons need a rich soil containing plenty of organic matter.

EPA Appointment Draws Protests From Democrats

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The controversial appointment of a Republican to head the Environmental Protection Agency in the Southeast has triggered a flurry of disgruntled outcries from the region's predominantly Democratic officials.

Republicans praised the appointment of Jack Ravan, who was named to the post Wednesday by EPA national administrator William Ruckelshaus. The Southeastern EPA region, headquartered in Atlanta, includes Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee.

"As far as I am concerned, a very sad thing has happened," said the outspoken executive secretary of Georgia's Water Quality Control Board, R. S. "Rock" Howard.

Howard, like most critics of the Ravan appointment, charged it smacks of political patronage and that this, coupled with inexperience, will be detrimental to efforts to control the environment. Ravan is a former aide of U. S. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S. C.

"The real danger is that it will set a precedent," said William Partington, director of the Environmental Research Center of the Florida Conservation Foundation. "We're afraid anybody, whether Republican or Democrat, will look to pay off political support by giving this sort of plum. An awful lot of money goes through EPA's hands."

"Another Florida antipollution official said he hates to see EPA Regional Director John R. Thomas be replaced.

"I hate to see political appointments this low in the line," said Jim Redford, an appointee of Democratic Gov. Reubin Ake to the Florida Air and Water Pollution Control Board.

"At the regional level there is a need for expertise. I was always able to get information from Thomas and he knew what he was talking about. I hate to see him go."

South Carolina Gov. John West and Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter expressed similar feelings.

"I am always skeptical when a career professional is replaced by a political appointee," West said.

Carter, who earlier attempted to head off Ravan's appointment, said he was disappointed but "we will try to work with him the best we can."

Carter contended Ravan does not have the "knowledge about long-standing problems with polluters nor arrangements or understandings with them to correct pollution discharges which Mr. Thomas has built up over a period of years."

Republicans just as stoutly defended the appointment on grounds the Democrats have been making political appointments all along and that they are just smarting because they've been beaten at their own game.

As for the criticism regarding Ravan's lack of experience, one top Georgia Republican said: "If these experienced professionals the Democrats are whining about losing are doing such a fine job, why are we so polluted?"

Georgia Republican party Chairman Robert Shaw and 5th Dist. Rep. Fletcher Thompson, R-Ga., fired verbal blasts at Gov. Carter's complaints about Ravan's experience.

"If Carter practiced what he preached about political appointees," declared Thompson, "then he would have never appointed the son of a multimillionaire who had absolutely no experience in the legislative field, to a United States Senate seat."

He was referring to Sen. David Gambrell, D-Ga., who Carter appointed to serve out the unexpired term of the late U. S. Sen. Richard Russell.

Shaw asked: "Does a man have to be a mechanic to be president of General Motors?"

He said that both Ravan and Georgia State Rep. Jim Westlake, the leading contender for deputy EPA regional director, have displayed outstanding administrative talents and that this would provide a leadership supplement to the technical knowledge already present in the EPA's Southeastern operation. Westlake is in the real estate business.

In Alabama, the chairman of the state Air Pollution Control Commission said he did not think Ravan's Republican affiliation would alter federal-state relationships in pollution control programs.

Dr. Ira Myers said Alabama's relations with the EPA's Southeastern office have been "very cordial" and that there has been "good cooperation" from both political parties.

Prior to the appointment, Ravan served as a special assistant to the federal co-chairman of the Coastal Plains Regional Commission. A graduate of West Point and an Army veteran, he served as a technical manager for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and as director of the Division of Program Services for the South Carolina Commission for Technical Education.

Ravan, 34, is a native of Fairfax, Va.

General Store Bowing To Ravages Of Time

By DAVID GLADDEN
Shelby Star Writer
Written for The AP
EARL, N.C. — In 1922 Columbus C. Sepaugh and his brother bought a general store and went into business.

The store was well stocked. Business was good. The proprietors were young and energetic. And Earl was a booming farm town. The train stopped four times a day in Earl and carried passengers and freight from Selby to Rock Hill, S.C., and back.

Forty-nine years later, Columbus Sepaugh and his brother, Odel, are still running the store, but things have changed. Earl has changed.

The train doesn't stop anymore. Farming has dwindled considerably. And Earl just isn't booming much these days. The men have changed too. C. C. is 78 and Odel is 75, and bad health has caused them to discontinue growth in the business. They say they may sell the store.

The building sits on the roadside, shaded by two large trees and a big awning over the front. A bench sits near the front door and is weathered from years as a place where men propped themselves to tell tales and discuss politics and crops.

Inside, the shelves are still filled with odds and ends from years past. Boys' union suits, size eight and one-half, men's half hose (socks), shirt collars, suspenders, a pair of ladies' dress boots, price $4.77.

"We used to sell a good bit of farm equipment and feed; now we just sell a little gas and some feed," says Columbus.

The building is old, and a hole has weathered in the roof. Tin tubs have been set on a shelf to catch the rain and Odel says he just can't get anybody to fix it.

"I'd hire a carpenter if they'd charge a reasonable price, but everybody I've talked to wants the deed to the land the building when we're done with it, to fix the roof," he says.

The store fixtures reflect the old days. An old bubble gum box stands on the counter.

"We kept gum on the top of that thing and stored thread in the bottom," said C. C.

A wooden bolt box is crammed in a corner with some old boxes. Bolts were also a big item in the store years ago, according to Sepaugh.

Near the back of the store a tobacco cutter is mounted on the counter, evidence that the store once sold plugs of chewing tobacco cut from long sticks.

An old pot bellied stove sits in the middle of the floor.

"Everybody used to come in during the wintertime, set around that old stove and tell their tales. They'd tell their jokes, chew their tobacco and cuss the government just like they do today. I guess the war (World War II) was the thing that stove had to listen to the most. People talked an awful lot about it," said C. C.

The two brothers had been in business only nine years when the Depression hit in 1931 but, "We made it through that okay, I guess," said Odel.

Columbus said when the train would come through, customers would bring eggs and butter to trade for overalls, cloth and feed. "There just wasn't much money then but we managed to stay in business."

C. C. Sepaugh and Brother general store has been through the Depression, a war and 49 years, but there may not be much time left for the store. Odel says he wants to get out of the business someday. "I've got sinus headaches and me and the wife are going to pack up and go to Arizona if I live."

C. C. says he has diabetes and depends on his brother to

Told 'Reconsider' Hawkins' Case

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A judge has ruled that the State Board of Dental Examiners will have to reconsider its 12-month suspension of the license of Dr. Reginald Hawkins of Charlotte, former Democratic candidate for governor.

The case grows out of a finding of malpractice in a dental program for impoverished children. Hawkins' lawyer complained to Judge John R. Friday that the board imposed the sentence without giving Hawkins a chance to offer evidence in his defense.

The judge ruled Wednesday that the board must allow Hawkins to present evidence at a new hearing.

entitled "Position Paper of Unbalanced Application of Justice in Pitt County..." and released by Felder said "as responsible people with longstanding concern for the rights, welfare, and well-being of the citizens of Pitt County, but especially black people, we feel ... through peaceful protest and demonstrations to prick the conscience of all responsible citizens... with regards to continued sanctioned practices of physical brutality perpetrated on the poor and the black people of this state."

The statement continued, "No man, regardless of his race, creed or color, or his station in life deserves to be slaughtered or bear the experience of physical abuse until those who have the responsibility and authority assure the very best for every man regardless of who he is, we are prepared to ask of ourselves and of those who agree with us to make unusual sacrifices as a means in saying that there must be a change."

When asked by reporters if the Pastors Conference would support a boycott of schools as a means of protest (such a boycott has been hinted at by some protest leaders), Felder responded, "We are not prepared to answer this question at this time. We haven't arrived at any decision in this particular area."

Among those in attendance at the meeting, in addition to Felder, were Greenville city councilmen John Taylor and Clarence Gray, and Pitt NAACP president D. D. Garrett.

Garrett, when asked to comment on the unrest, said

"Tensions have polarized this county to an extent that if something is not done, I feel we won't get through this year as peacefully and quietly as we've done this far."

In the proclamation the mayor noted that Greenville and this area have had their shares of persons affected by this crippling disease and that 750,000 children and adults in the United States suffer from the cruel multiplecrippler. Persons having cerebral palsy need medical care, therapy treatment, and special education and vocational training, he said, all of which the United Cerebral Palsy Association seeks to provide.

The proclamation also said that, since 10,000 new babies are struck by the disease each year, research into its causes and possible prevention is important and is tackled with funds provided through contributions to the Association.

Rose Entertains Farmville In Opener

Running Back Al Hunter

Friday at 7:30 p.m., Rose High School football fans will get their first look at the new Rampants. Rose will take the field at that time to battle with the Farmville Central High School Jaguars in Ficklen Stadium.

The Rampants are "new" this year in that they have a new head coach, Dave Bumgarner, who moved up from the assistant ranks last spring when former coach Bud Phillips took over as athletic director for the high school.

Bumgarner has changed the offensive style of the Rampants from the wing-T to the pro-set. But aside from the backfield, the Rampants are still a young team, relying on a number of sophomores. They have been picked to finish anywhere from first to last in the conference, seen either as a dark horse in the title race or the doormat.

And even Bumgarner admits that he is puzzled over some phases of the game at this time. "I'd like to have another week to get ready," he said. "The week of conditioning that we spend is real good, but you can't really get a lot of football into it."

"We did manage to get a lot of work done on Monday and Tuesday, and scrimmaged a good deal," he added.

The Rampants held a scrimmage last Saturday morning against Ayden-Grifton, and there were good points and bad ones, but overall Bumgarner was not entirely pleased. "We're still doing a lot of standing around. We haven't gotten hungry enough yet."

Physically, he feels the Rampants are as ready as they'll ever be. There have been some minor aches and pains, but this is normal, and he expects everyone to be ready by game time. "Our enthusiasm is high, too," he said. "I hope we have good weather for the game. This could mean a lot to us."

As far as Farmville Central is concerned, Bumgarner admits that he is fairly well in the dark. "They are entirely new to us. We've never played them before, so I know little about them. We know they have some good personnel, but I just don't know."

Bumgarner admitted that the Rose rushing game looks good when the Rampants go to the outside. "(Al) Hunter and (Calvin) Moore have both looked real good. Our middle game is only fair. Our fullbacks haven't shown the hungry desire yet. The hardest running fullback right now is Kim Hodges, but he weighs only 145 pounds."

The passing game, according to the coach, is improving as time goes by.

"Our defense is probably the strongest part of our game," Bumgarner said. "I wasn't pleased with it in the scrimmage, however; we just didn't go after the ball like I thought we should have. We weren't aggressive enough. But I hope we have our problems solved in this phase of the game now."

Bumgarner noted that the Rampant line is young and inexperienced and that it will take a few games to get them truly ready. "Lee Cherry could be a fine lineman, he just needs experience and confidence. (Victor) Diaz has also improved a lot over the past week."

The coach looks for a wide-open game against the Jaguars, and expects to see a lot of scoring.

In the kicking department, the coach feels that the Rampants will not have an outstanding game, but only adequate. "Our kickers are capable of doing very well, but they need consistency." Phil Ragazzo will handle the placements, with Jim McDermott punting. Steve Worthington will do the kickoffs.

The probable starting lineup on offense has Lonnie Payton at split end and Derek Dunn at tight end; Sidney Shearin and Lee Cherry at tackles, John Calhoun and Maurice Sheppard at guards, Ragazzo at center, Bob Barrett at quarterback, John Conway at fullback, Al Hunter at running back, and Robbie Cox at flanker.

The defensive alignment will have Todd Pair and Matthew Clark at ends, Cherry and Calhoun at tackles, Mike Harris, Ragazzo, Conway and George Price at linebackers, and Cox, Calvin Moore and Hunter in the secondary.

Game Set At 7:30

Rose High School's game with Farmville Central will begin at 7:30 p.m. Friday night. All home Rampant games will begin at this time.

Tickets are now on sale for the season and are available from the high school, and other places. A Booster Club ticket, which includes admission to all home sports activities at Rose throughout the coming year, costs $25.

A season football ticket, good for the five home football games, sells for $8.

Student tickets are available throughout the Greenville school system during the week prior to a home game will sell for $1. All tickets at the gate will be $2.

Allison's Car Running Smooth

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
DARLINGTON, S. C. (AP) — Bobby Allison's Mercury was expected to outrun the stock car millionaire, the country crooner and everybody in between.

"My car's running like a gem," said Allison. "The main trouble is to slow down enough to stay away from that old Darlington wall."

Twelve cars were to be qualified today at Darlington Raceway for Monday's Southern 500 race, a Dixie motor sports tradition for 22 years.

Allison's Holman-Moody entry was clocked at more than 147 miles per hour Wednesday on the tricky 1.38-mile track, but the Hueytown, Ala., driver wound up his practice run by scraping a retaining wall.

"No matter how often you compete at Darlington," said Allison, "that wall never seems to get any softer." Bobby was uninjured and his car was to be back in shape by this morning.

Among 64 cars on hand for the 500 are a Plymouth wheeled by Richard Petty, the North Carolinian who recently shot past $1 million in career earnings, and a Dodge Charger owned and operated by million-record seller Marty Robbins.

Allison owned the Robbins car but decided to peddle it due to the Dodge's weak financial showing. Marty, the man who recorded the country and western smash "El Paso," bought the car, and has loads of money to race as long as he wants. Buddy Baker will be shooting for his third consecutive victory at Darlington. The husky Charlotte driver won last year's 500 and also captured the Rebel 400 earlier this year.

Baker drives a Plymouth from the two-car Petty stable. Allison's brother, Donnie, is passing up the Labor Day run for a Sunday shot at the California 500 race for Indianapolis cars at Ontario, Calif.

Also in the California field is local hero Cale Yarborough, who lives only five minutes from the Darlington track at Timmonsville. Cale set the Southern 500 qualifying record in 1969 with a lap at 151.983 m. p. h.

After the fastest 12 cars are qualified today, another 12 will be added to the field Friday, and the final 16 on Saturday for a total lineup of 40.

Buc Work Pleasing

East Carolina University football coach Sonny Randle put the Pirates through their second scrimmage in three days yesterday afternoon, and noted improvement in the team.

"I was pleased," he said. "We looked a lot sharper than we did on Monday. We're coming along."

There were no injuries following the 15-minute hard-hitting workout that featured the first offense against the second defense, and the second offense against the first defense.

Randle plans to spend today and Friday in polishing up certain phases of the game. Then, on Saturday, the Pirates will hold a closed scrimmage in Ficklen Stadium. No one will be admitted to the workout on that day.

That workout also will close out the final week of two-a-day drills. The Bucs will switch to one-a-day workouts next week as school begins. They entertain the University of Toledo, the nation's winnest team at present, on Saturday, September 11.

McMillen Wants To Leave Terps

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Greensboro Daily News says that star basketball player Tom McMillen, a sophomore at the University of Maryland, has become displeased with coach Lefty Driesell's program and wants to be allowed to play pro basketball under hardship case provisions.

The paper said that the National Basketball Association (NBA) turned down the McMillen plea, and that he also had presented data to the American Basketball Association (ABA), whose deadline for hardship case consideration was Sept. 1.

The NBA office said it was its policy not to release information on players not approved for hardship. The league did announce six hardship cases Wednesday.

University of Maryland officials were not immediately available for comment.

McMillen, one of the nation's top prep players at Mansfield, Pa., became involved in an on-again, off-again signing with the University of North Carolina before going to Maryland, where he was an outstanding freshman player.

The Greensboro paper said it was learned Wednesday that when the NBA turned down the McMillen case, "the Buffalo Braves of the NBA obtained one of the leading antitrust law firms in the East, indicating that Buffalo and McMillen may bring litigation to force the player's eligibility into pro basketball."

The NCAA notified the pro leagues July 23 that college players could have an interchange of information to determine whether they might be hardship cases. But if the college player asks the pros to be placed on such a list, he was naming the league as an agent and he would be ineligible for NCAA play.

Conley Builds For Future On Gridiron

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

HOLLYWOOD — October 22 may be the highlight of the year for D. H. Conley High School's football team — or then again it may be for the North Pitt Panthers.

That's the day the two schools are scheduled to meet on the gridiron, and it might turn out to be the battle for the cellar in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

Conley and North Pitt are both fielding their first varsity football teams this year, after a junior varsity schedule last year, their first ever.

George Wheeler, who takes over as the football coach for Conley this year, admits that things are not going to be a bed of roses for the Vikings this season.

"We have 10 seniors on the club, but they won't form the basis of our team," Wheeler said. Instead that will go to the nine juniors and 15 sophomores. "We are a young club in every sense of the word."

Naturally, the team lacks experience. Most have never played football, and none have done so on the varsity level.

"We also lack size," Wheeler said. "There is only one boy on the team who is over 200. That's Kevin Little, 6-3, 245."

So the Vikings are in a building program. "We have to be realistic about it this year. We have no real strong points, but we are not going to roll over and play dead for anyone," Wheeler said. "We're going out there and try to win every one of them."

However, the won-loss record is not going to mean much to Wheeler. "We're going to play them game-by-game, and not worry about it," he said.

The speed of the team is only adequate, Wheeler said. Quickness, too, falls in the same category. "We really have no outstanding players now," the coach said.

The passing game at this point hasn't looked too good, and Wheeler blames this on a combination of things, mainly experience. The running game is ahead of the passing attack.

"We're going to have to stick with the basics," Wheeler said. "We can't get fancy until we learn the fundamentals."

Wheeler expects to start Charlie Speight at the quarterback slot with Willie Hawkins at fullback, Winstead Patrick at tailback and Jasper Stephenson at flanker.

In the line, he'll have Stacy Evans at center, Keith Gould and Roger Cates at the guards, Kevin Little and Ted Carmon at the tackles, and Bennie Thompson and John Smith at the ends.

When it comes to defense, Wheeler will send Stencil Hines to the middle guard slot, with Carmon and Little at tackles, Cates and Thompson at ends, Evans and Bobby Bryan at linebackers, Vic Corey and Wayne Maness at cornerbacks, and Speight and Norman Marable at safeties.

"Our defense is probably a little further along than the offense," Wheeler said.

In the conference race, Wheeler likes Eastern Wayne, Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton. "I think those three will be battling for the top all the way," he said.

But as for Conley, it'll be a slow process of building experience and ability. "We are approaching this season on a day-by-day, game-by-game attitude."

"But before you can progress, you have got to lay a foundation," Wheeler said. "Right now, we're laying the foundation. Hopefully, it won't take long, and then we can progress and build."

Conley opens its season Friday against Southern Wayne in a road game. After that, they'll meet C. B. Aycock, Ayden-Grifton, West Craven, Greene Central, North Lenoir, Eastern Wayne, North Pitt, Farmville Central and Southern Wayne, in that order.

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I had them mixed up real well tonight," Mike Cuellar was saying. Everyone assumed he was talking about Boston's hitters—but the Baltimore left-hander was referring to his own pitches.

"I had a good fast ball, a good curve and a good change-up. The curve was really good," Cuellar said after he baffled the Red Sox batters with a six-hitter and coasted to an 8-2 victory Wednesday night.

It was his first ever in Boston's cozy Fenway Park, making him a winner in every American League stadium. Cuellar says he's pretty sure he's won in every National League park, too—if you don't count San Diego and Montreal, which didn't come into the majors until 1969, the year Cuellar came to Baltimore after four seasons in Houston.

In Wednesday night's other American League action, the Chicago White Sox beat Minnesota 2-0 in 11 innings, Milwaukee edged Kansas City 3-2, Detroit nipped Cleveland 4-3, Oakland topped California 7-0 and, in an afternoon game, Washington zipped the New York Yankees 2-0.

In the National League, Montreal completed an 11-2 victory in a game suspended by darkness Tuesday before the Chicago Cubs won the regularly scheduled game against the Expos 5-2, San Diego defeated Cincinnati 3-1, Pittsburgh outlasted Philadelphia 10-7, the New York Mets belted St. Louis 7-1, Los Angeles bombed Houston 9-2 and San Francisco blanked Atlanta 4-0.

Left-handers, intimidated by the "Green Monster," the short left field wall, generally fare poorly at Fenway. And Cuellar was no exception. But, he recalled, "When I came out here tonight, I said to myself: 'Well, I've got to win one here sometime.'"

He did it to tie teammate Pat Dobson with 17 victories. And he did it with a baffling assortment of pitches that had the Sox limited three hits—including Carl Yastrzemski's run-scoring single—through eight innings before they nicked him for three more and their other run in the ninth.

Merv Rettenmund had Ray Culp thinking about the wall. The Baltimore outfielder knocked the Boston starter out of the game with a three-run homer over it in the second inning, his 11th of the year.

The Orioles had already scored twice in the first and two other times in the second before Rettenmund's blast tucked the win away.

Wilbur Wood, the White Sox' knuckleballing reliever-turned-starter, and Bert Blyleven dueling through nine scoreless innings but neither was around when the game ended. Carlos May's pop-fly single and Walt Williams' sacrifice fly off Bob Gebhardt of the Twins won it for Bart Johnson. It was a reversal of Tuesday's outcome when Gebhardt beat Johnson.

Ellie Rodriguez slammed a double off Royals reliever Tom Burgmeier in the bottom of the ninth and scampered home on Bob Heise's single to center field with two away for the Brewers' victory.

Ike Brown, playing in place of Detroit's slugging Willie Horton, picked up his 26th hit of the season—but it was his seventh homer, a three-run shot that barely cleared the right field fence to help Les Cain defeat the Indians.

Chuck Dobson of the A's scattered seven Angels hits for his 15th victory and his first shut-out of the season.

Seaver Beats Gibson For Third Time

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Thursday, September 2, 1971—15

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tom Seaver, the New York Mets' pitching ace, had taken Bob Gibson and the Law into his own hands.

The smooth-working right-hander became the first pitcher to beat Gibson, the great St. Louis veteran, three times in one season since Vernon Law of Pittsburgh did it in 1959 by taming the Cardinals 7-1 on four hits Wednesday night.

"He wasn't the real Bob Gibson tonight," conceded Seaver. "But, he's still one of the best pitchers in baseball. I don't think I've ever seen anybody work any harder."

Despite Seaver's praise, Gibson has been erratic this season, winning only 13 and losing 12, although pitching the first no-hitter of his illustrious career. And, instead, it has been Seaver who has developed into one of the game's outstanding pitchers.

The victory was his fifth in a row and gave him a 16-8 record for the year. He also lowered his earned run average to 1.92, best in the National League, and struck out seven, increasing his league-leading total to 233.

Meanwhile, San Diego's Dave Roberts, National League runner-up in ERA, fired a five-hitter as the Padres defeated Cincinnati 3-1; Pittsburgh outslugged Philadelphia 10-7; Los Angeles walloped Houston 9-2; San Francisco blanked Atlanta 4-0; and Chicago topped Montreal 5-2 after losing the completion of a suspended game 11-2.

In the American League, it was Baltimore 8, Boston 2; Detroit 4, Cleveland 3; Milwaukee 3, Kansas City 2; Chicago 2, Minnesota 0 in 11 innings; Washington 2, New York 0, and Oakland 7, California 0.

Seaver, the winner of the 1969 Cy Young Award as the National League's outstanding pitcher and a strong candidate again this year, has allowed only four runs in his last 54 innings of work and compiled a glittering 1.14 ERA since the All-Star break.

It was Seaver's 16th complete game and his third against Gibson and the Cardinals. "But I always manage to lose the shutout somewhere along the way," he quipped. "I give up a home run or I do something."

Wednesday, he lost it in the ninth when Ted Sizemore doubled and scored on Joe Torre's single.

But by that time, the Mets were comfortably ahead. They had belted Gibson for 11 hits and six runs in 6 2-3 innings, and added a run off Stan Williams, making his first appearance for St. Louis, in the eighth. Duffy Dyer and Ken Boswell each drove in two Met runs.

San Diego's hard-working left-hander, won his 12th game with his second five-hitter in two starts against Cincinnati this season. The only run off him was unearned and came with two out in the ninth.

After Hal McRae opened the Reds' ninth with a double, Roberts retired the next two batters, but Johnny Bench was safe on an error by third baseman Gary Jastadt and George Foster blooped a run-scoring single.

The hard-luck Roberts, who has lost 14, now has a 1.99 ERA.

Nate Colbert's RBI single in the first inning and Ollie Brown's two-run double in the top of the ninth produced the Padres' runs.

Pittsburgh's Luke Walker also turned in an outstanding pitching effort. He entered the Pirates game against Philadelphia in the fourth inning and checked the Phils on one run and two hits the rest of the way.

"I prefer to start," said Walker, who has been in Manager Danny Murtaugh's doghouse. "But my name has been popping up in the bullpen lately and I don't mind the work." He has won two games in the last three days.

Manny Sanguillen belted a two-run homer for the Pirates, who shelled four Philadelphia pitchers for 13 hits. Ron Stone and Deron Johnson each homered with one on for the Phils.

Los Angeles backed Don Sutton's four-hit, 12-strikeout pitching against Houston with an eight-run uprising in the second inning. Richie Allen's two-run single keyed the big inning in which the Dodgers sent 13 batters to the plate.

John Cumberland, a former American Leaguer, pitched his second shutout for San Francisco, stopping Atlanta on four hits.

The Giants scored twice in the first inning on Tito Fuentes' single, a fielding error by left fielder Ralph Garr, Bobby Bonds' run-producing single, a throwing error by Garr and Willie McCovey's sacrifice fly.

They added two runs in the third on a double by McCovey, Alan Gallagher's RBI single, an error by catcher Earl Williams and Chris Speier's single.

Ferguson Jenkins, the National League's biggest winner, gained his 21st victory for the Cubs with a six-hitter in the regularly scheduled game against Montreal. Jenkins also drove in three runs with two homers, his third and fourth of the season.

In the completion of the suspended game, the Expos' Mike Marshall posted his 18th save of the season with three innings of two-hit relief. The game was suspended Tuesday with Montreal leading 8-1 after six innings.

Redskins Seek A Winner 'Now'

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Allen says he doesn't have anything against youth, he just has more confidence in experienced players.

The Washington Redskins coach also doesn't think there's anything wrong with draft choices. He uses them in bartering with other clubs for veteran players.

This has been the modus operandi of Allen—who replaced the fired Bill Austin last January after Allen had been let go by Los Angeles—in his quest to make the Redskins a winner in 1971 and to carry out his pledge that "the future is now."

Allen talks of the club winning 10 and losing 4, a record he believes will take first place in the National Football Conference East. Last year, the Redskins were 6-8.

If Allen, who coached the Rams in five years to 48 victories, 17 losses and 4 ties, wins in Washington, he'll do it with a team that scarcely resembles the 1970 edition that managed a fourth-place finish in a five-team division.

Since he arrived in Washington, Allen has led the league in trades with 17 deals involving 28 players.

He has traded away a flock of high draft choices, including the team's first pick for 1971, 1972 and 1973, not to mention untold numbers of other draft picks.

He acquired 20 players—with an average age of 30 and an average NFL experience of nine seasons—in exchange for eight players and 25 future draft choices.

He said his first priority was to improve the defense which finished last of 13 NFL teams against the rush in 1970 and 12th overall.

In one of his first deals, coming on the day of the college draft, he acquired from his old team, the Rams, defensive tackle Diron Talbert and linebackers Myron Pottios, Jack Pardee and Maxie Baughan along with guard John Wilbur and running back Jeff Jordan for reserve linebacker Marlin McKeever and the Redskins' No. 1 draft pick for the 1971 season and Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 for 1972.

He later picked up defensive ends Verlon Biggs from the New York Jets for Washington's No. 1 pick for 1972, plus other picks; Ron McDole from the Buffalo Bills for "high" draft choices, and Jimmie Jones from the New York Jets for a draft pick. Linebacker Bob Grant was obtained from Baltimore for "high draft choices."

Allen also acquired strong safety Richie Petitbon from the Rams for a "high" draft choice. The Redskins also got two draft choices for the 1972 season and one for 1973.

The 49-year-old Allen hasn't forgotten the offense, however.

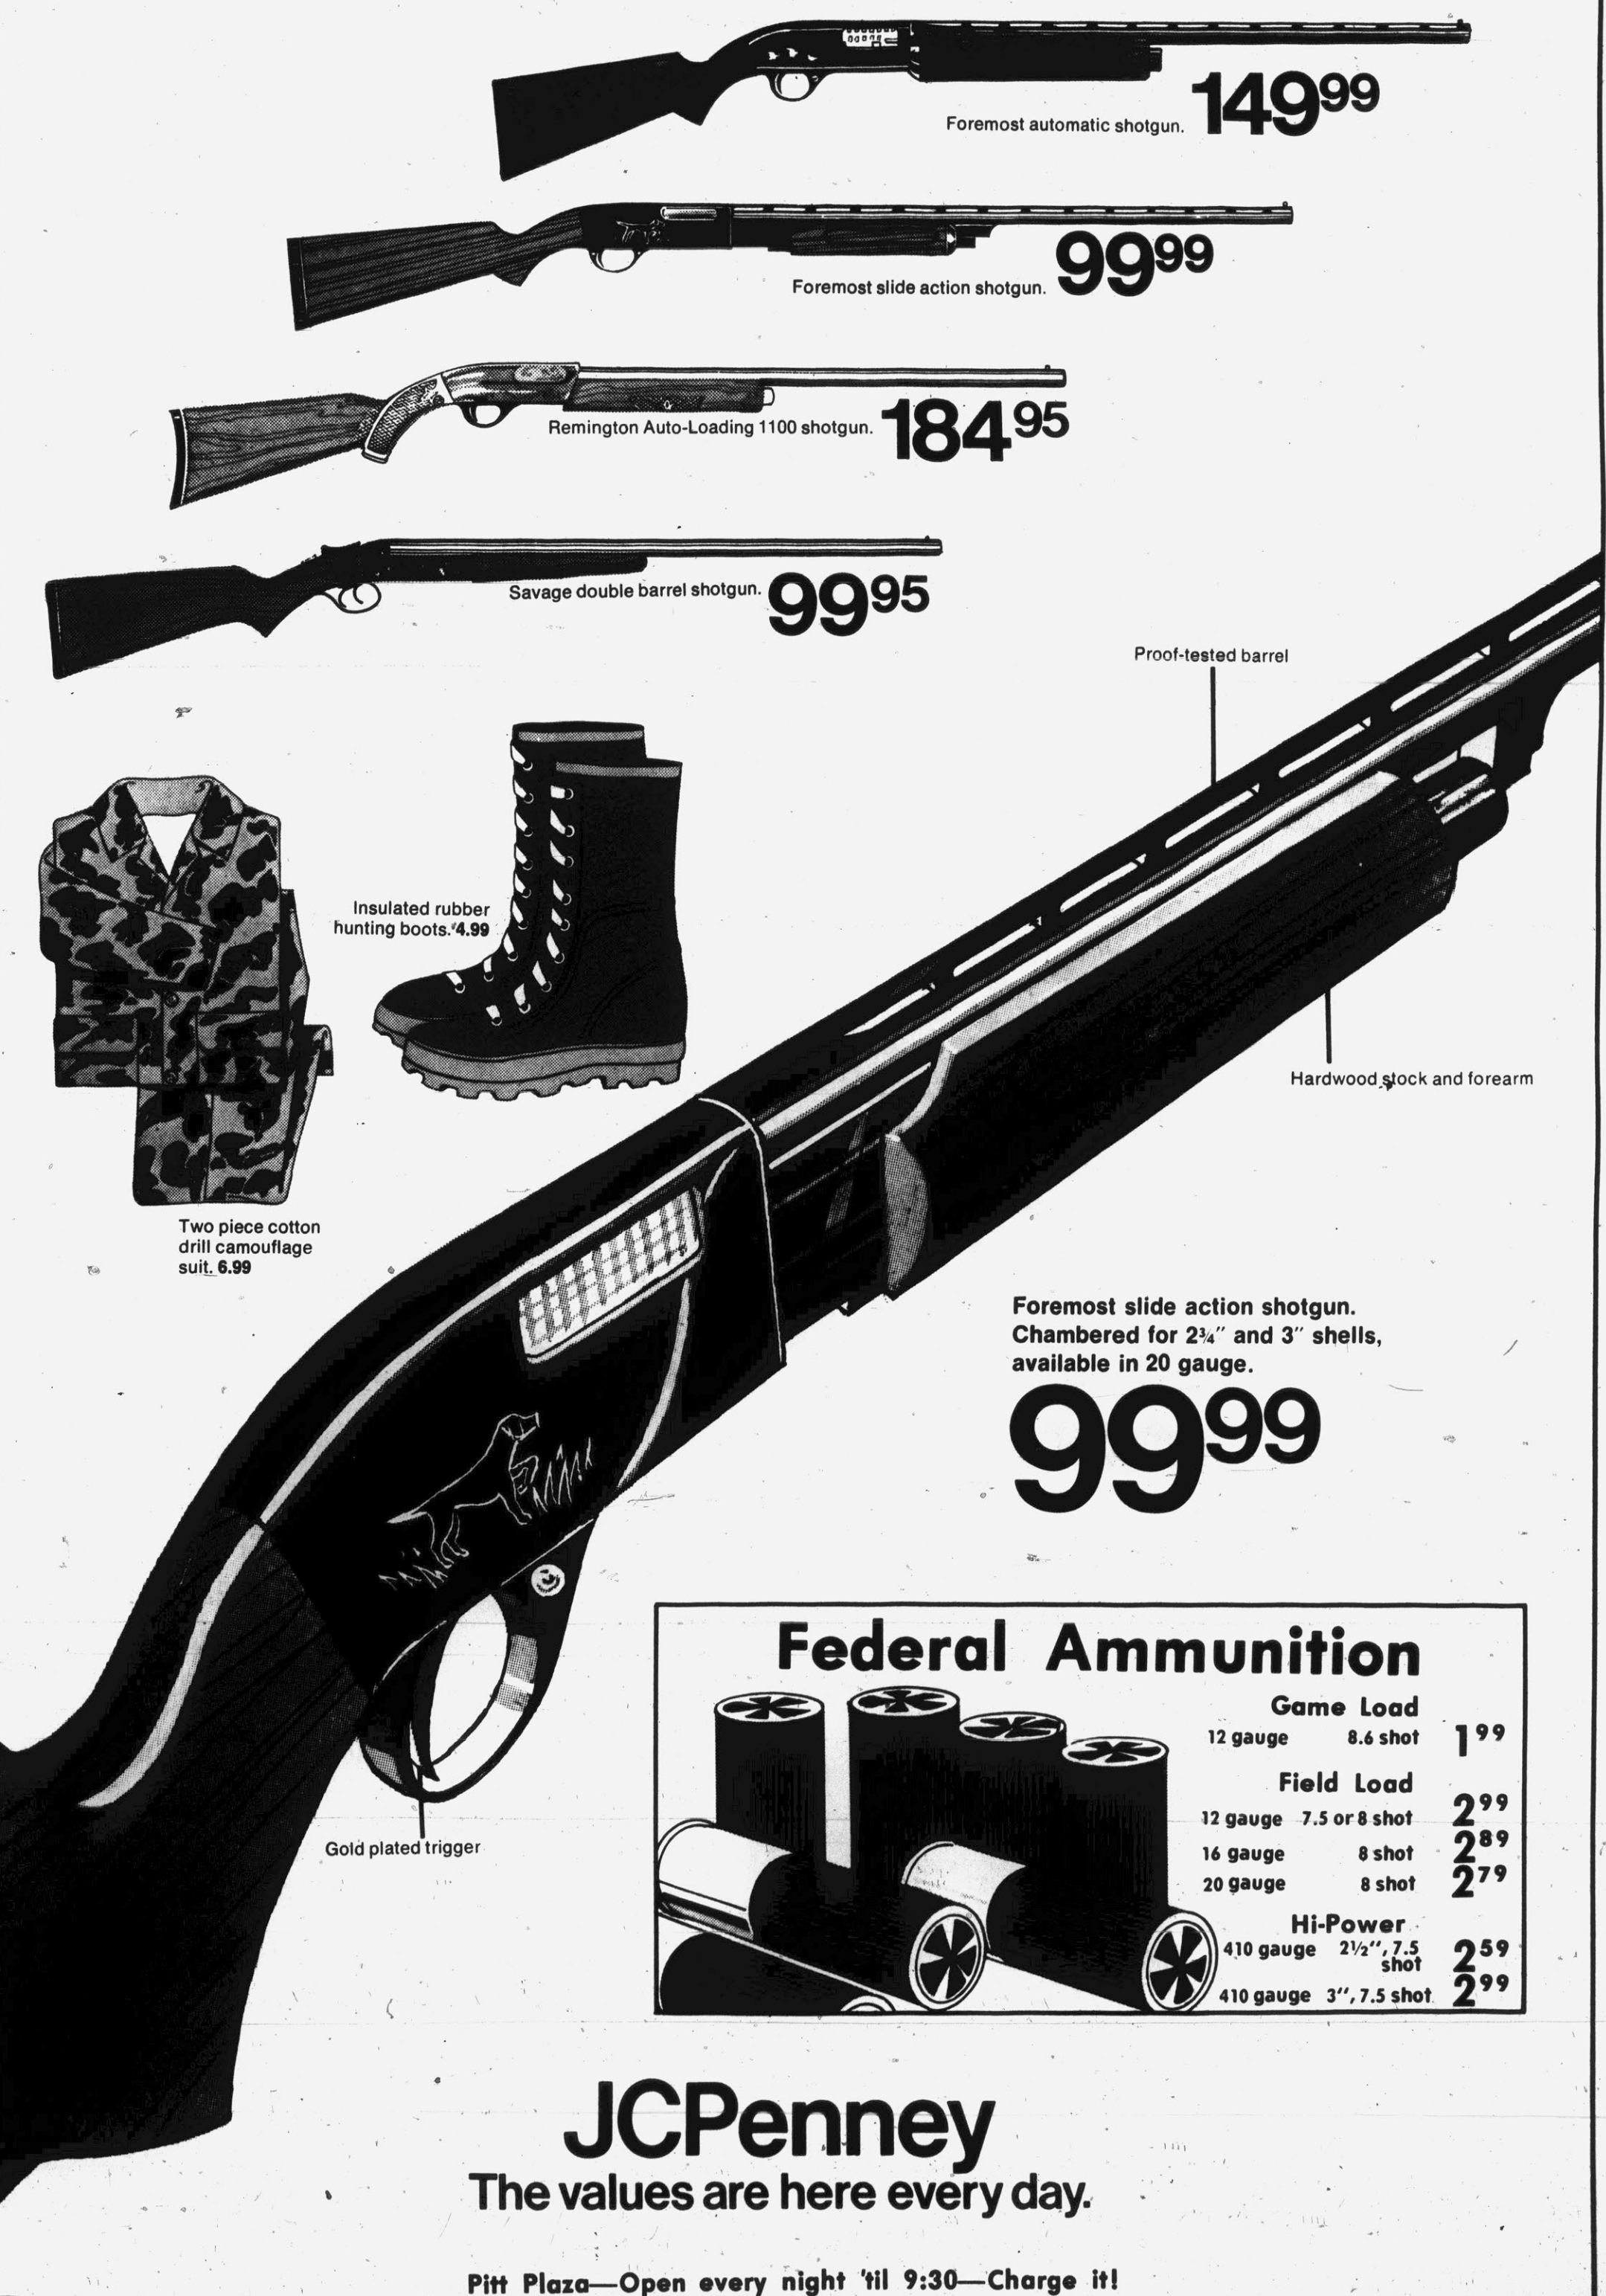

He traded for quarterbacks Bill Kilmer of New Orleans, giving up linebacker Tom Rousel and a draft pick, and Sam Wyche, from Cincinnati for running back Henry Dyer. They'll back up veteran Sonny Jurgensen, one of the top passers in pro football.

He also reinforced his receiving department, already strong with wide receiver Charley Taylor and tight end Jerry Smith, by getting Roy Jefferson in a trade with Baltimore for top draft choice Cotton Speyrer, a flanker and his No. 1 draft choice for 1973.

He also "traded" for wide receiver Boyd Dowler, who he acquired from Green Bay for a draft choice. Dowler had retired and coached the receivers for Allen at Los Angeles last season. He now is a player-coach.

Even though he had running back Larry Brown, the all-pro who was the top ground gainer in pro football last season with 1,125 yards, and Charley Harraway, Allen picked up veteran Tommy Mason from the Rams for another draft pick.

Chemical Used To Retard Fires

NEW YORK (UPI)—A chemical compound that has whitened man's castiron bathtubs for more than 70 years now helps protect him from fire.

Production zoomed to more than 20 million pounds in 1970.

Basic Secret Of All People

Mrs. Allee wanted me to show teenagers how to be more effective church workers. So heed my advice, for people will not buy your merchandise or ideas or religion unless they like you personally. But there is a specific formula for winning friends. Cultivate it and teach it to your children!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.
Case R-551: Mrs. Allen Allee invited me to address a Youth Rally of 21 Quaker Churches. My address was at 3 P.M. Then Don Lash, former famous 2-mile runner, was to follow me.

So I told the large congregation that the first requisite of all effective church people is to be star salesmen! But people will not "buy" your merchandise or your religion unless they like you. Thus, the art of winning friends is of paramount importance. Then I mentioned that an essential secret thereof is to realize everybody wears this tattoo across his chest: "I WANT TO FEEL IMPORTANT."

And one of the easiest ways to fulfill your companion's wish in that regard, is to give him honest compliments.

These may consist of blunt praise for his new tie or broad shoulders, or her dimples and pretty white teeth.

But another very vital compliment for your escort is to make him feel assured on a date. Most boys aren't very glib at carrying on conversation.

They usually have only 2 lead-off topics, namely, the weather and the last ball game of their school.

"It's certainly been a warm day today, hasn't it?" they may begin.

"Uh huh," replies their girl friends and the conversational machinery then bogs down again to a complete standstill.

In desperation, the boy may comment about the last ball game.

"We were lucky to win, weren't we?"

"Uh huh" is the girl's answer, leaving him without any more conversational ammunition." So they walk along in embarrassment as the pause lengthens.

And such social humiliation does NOT make the boy feel more important. Thus, he is not likely to ask you for another date.

Such a girl has lost her chance to win his friendship and then increase the appeal of her remarks about religion.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said that as a teen-ager, she often was humiliated by the pauses in conversation that intruded when she was on a date.

In desperation, she added, she resorted to the alphabet, starting with "A" and inquiring: "Do you like apples?"

Most people can't think of a thing to break the awful pause. So they feel like screaming H-E-L-P.

So use that very word "H-E-L-P" as a formula, and start with "H" which stands for "Hobbies."

"Did you ever collect coins or stamps? Match pads, bottle caps, bird's eggs?" you can casually inquire.

If you don't get your companion talking on that subject, shift to "E" which stands for "Entertainment."

Then fall back on "L" meaning "Literature," or even "P" for "Politics," including the voting by 18-year-olds, the drafting of teen-agers, etc.

After my address, an old Quaker farmer told me he also never knew what to say when on a date.

"So I always hitched a mare to my buggy who had a colt."

"And that colt was my lifesaver," he grinned, "for when we couldn't think of anything else, we could always talk about

Mountain Man Turned Showman

By JOHN M. KENNEDY
CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—People stopped and stared at the man in buckskins with his bushy gray beard, skunk hat, beaded Indian moccasins and headband as he rode up to a young lady and pointed his finger at her.

"Say, aren't you the one who said you wanted to go up to the mountains with me?" The girl blushed and smiled and Timber Jack Joe let out a war whoop. "I'm just a dirty old man!" he roared as he rode off down the street. He asked three other young things the same question and received the same response before he made it to the Stockman's Bar.

Timber Jack Joe is a trapper and woodsman in the mountain country of northwest Wyoming during the winter. In the summer he loads his horse, his dogs and his skunk into a truck and heads for the western celebrations, riding in parades and rodeos.

In the midst of thinly clad majorities and an assortment of drug store cowboys, people just have to notice the 60-year-old mountain man whose regalia includes two beaver teeth, a grizzly bear claw, an eagle claw, a black rabbit's foot, an ivory tooth from an elk and a lynx claw.

His parading began years ago when he rode into Cheyenne just in time for Frontier Days. He joined in the procession, with a whoop and a shot from his pistol, his dog on the back of his saddle and a skunk named Sweetness in his arms. Afterward, several parade marshals and policemen approached him.

"They asked me who I was and I told them," he recalled in an interview. "And then they asked me when I was leaving and I said just as soon as I could get back to my truck. And then one of them said, 'If he tried to leave lock him up. Lock him and his horse and his dog up. We want him here the whole time.'"

So the trapper turned part-time showman, and he has been doing it ever since, "from Chicago to Hollywood, from Texas to Montana."

"I do it because I love it," he said. "If I go out and put a show on I don't have to lie about it."

There certainly is no lie-about a man who makes his own buckskin clothes, his hunting knife blade from the spring of a buckboard and its handle from elk horn. "I don't like to admit it, but I took a bath this morning, and my dog didn't recognize me for two hours," he said with a chuckle. Timber Jack's last name is Lynde.

1 ♠ 1 ♦ Pass Pass
1 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
4 ♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♦
Failure to map out his campaign in advance caused South, the declarer at four hearts, to end up with nine tricks on a deal where he could have taken 11.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the queen which South ruffed. Two rounds of trump were pulled and when West showed out on the second lead, discarding a diamond, the queen of hearts was permitted to remain outstanding.

The ace and king of clubs were played next and a spade was discarded from dummy. A third club was ruffed with the four of hearts as all hands followed suit. The closed hand was reentered by trumping a diamond and South now had seven tricks in the ace, king of hearts, two diamond ruffs in his hand, the ace, king of clubs and one club ruff in dummy.

If declarer leads a spade at this point and finesesses the queen, he will score two more tricks in that suit and then he must make one trick in trumps inasmuch as North retains the nine-seven of hearts. South chose, however, to ruff a fourth club in dummy and now he exited with a small spade. East alertly put up the ten of spades which held the trick. He drew the last trump with the queen of hearts and led the jack of diamonds for the setting trick.

Even after South fails to play spades from his hand, he can still recover by getting out of dummy with a heart instead of a spade. Since West discarded one diamond early in the deal, the defense can cash only one diamond and then must play spades themselves, allowing declarer to take a belated finesse in that suit for his 10th trick. He loses two diamonds and one heart.

Proper technique would have permitted South to score an overtrick on the deal. He may, if he wishes, try the spade finesse first. When this succeeds, he comes back to the ace of clubs and trumps a club. The closed hand is reentered with the king of hearts to ruff a third club. The ace of hearts puts South in again and now he cashes the king of clubs, dropping the queen and establishing his long card in that suit. The five of spades is discarded from dummy. The seven of clubs is played on which North sheds the seven of spades and East may ruff or not as he chooses. The opposition is restricted to one diamond and one heart.

Manson Follower Describes Butchery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles "Tex" Watson says he stabbed and shot four victims in the Sharon Tate murders because "I was doing what Charlie told me to do."

Watson, 25, was the first follower of Charles Manson to say that the hippie-style clan leader gave direct orders to kill. He quoted Manson as saying: "Make sure everybody is dead and done as gruesome as you can."

Watson testified at his murder trial Wednesday that the only victim he didn't attack was the blonde pregnant actress herself. Susan Atkins confessed to fatally stabbing Miss Tate.

Manson, 36, Miss Atkins and two other women clan members—Leslie Van Houten, 21, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 23—were convicted and sentenced to death for the slayings of Miss Tate and six others.

Two of the slayings, those of market owners Leno and Rosemary LaBianca, occurred the following night and Watson was not testified about them yet.

Linda Kasabian, 21, originally charged in the case, turned state's evidence and eventually was set free. Miss Van Houten was charged only with conspiracy in the Tate case and with the murders of the La-Biancas.

Carraway Is Seeking Post

A Greenville resident is a candidate for office in the North Carolina State Employees Association, which will hold its statewide elections in Wilmington Sept. 18.

E. R. (Pete) Carraway of 1605 Beaumont Drive is seeking election to the position of vice president of the association.

The election will be held during the NCSEA silver anniversary convention at the Timme Plaza Inn.

Carraway is competing with Miss Fae Williams of Butner for the vice presidency.

He is a native of Greene County and a collector for the Department of Revenue. A former chairman of Area 5 (26 coastal plain counties) of the association, Carraway currently is a member of the NCSEA Legislative Committee.

Carraway and his wife, the former Grace Humbles of Greene County, have three children and are members of the Oakmont Baptist Church. He is a member of the Optimist Club.

The NCSEA is a voluntary association of state employees with a membership of approximately 17,200.

Watson, charged with seven counts of murder, is being tried alone and has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity.

His attorneys conceded in opening statements that Watson killed but contended he wasn't responsible for his actions because he was controlled by Manson and hallucinogenic drugs.

"I could see and hear Charlie—hear his voice to kill everybody. I felt like I was in a dream, half awake and half not awake," Watson said.

He said he and the others in the killing party also had taken LSD.

Watson said he and Miss Atkins, Miss Kasabian and Miss Krenwinkel went to the Tate home the night of Aug. 9, 1969. Watson said he immediately shot Steven Parent, 37, who had just pulled up in a car.

Watson said he then headed for the house and found Miss Atkins herding its occupants into the living room. Suddenly, Jay Sebring, 26, a Hollywood hair stylist and onetime fiancé of Miss Tate "started toward me." He said Miss Atkins cried, "Watch out," and "I turned and emptied the gun at him. I went around the couch and started stabbing him."

Miss Krenwinkel also stabbed, he said.

By then, Miss Atkins was "fighting and stabbing" another victim, Polish playboy Wojciech Frykowski, 37, who had run out the door. "I hit him for awhile and then Sadie (Miss Atkins) was still stabbing him. I stabbed him some more."

Later, he said, Miss Krenwinkel led him out to the lawn where coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26, lay in a pool of blood. "Katie (Miss Krenwinkel) grabbed my arm and said, 'There's one over here,' I went over and a woman was laying on the ground and I stabbed her."

Did he feel grief for the victims? "No. None at all. I was doing what Charlie told me to do," Watson said.

"The female wasp lays her eggs in the gypsy moth egg mass," Elder said. "The wasp eggs hatch and the young feed upon the gypsy moth eggs. If there are no egg masses in the area, the wasps die."

The wasps, supplied by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, were released at five sites within 100 feet of the spot where the moth was captured. Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham stated, "We don't believe there is a true infestation of the gypsy moth as yet but we are taking no chances. We cannot use DDT to fight the creature. It is effective but is now banned."
