Court Delays Quizzing Attica Rebels

By BEN DEFOREST and BRIAN KING

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Officials set about the task of putting Attica State Prison in order today after bloody clashes in which a battery of peace officers and National Guardsmen was pitted against the baseball bats, knives and gasoline bombs of rebellious inmates. Thirty-seven men died. Nine of the dead were hostages—part of the group of 38 guards and prison employees held for four days by the convicts inside the prison walls.

It was a dark, rainy but quiet day today in this western New York village where the sound of gunshots, helicopters and exploding tear gas grenades were heard Monday.

Officials were trying to identify the dead inmates, piece together an account of what led to the bloodshed, and put the prison system back on its routine. Relieving guards and other personnel who had been on extra duty during the long hours of trouble, securing adequate supplies and preparing meals were priority items. But state officials were faced early in the day with a federal court order forbidding them from interrogating any of the subdued inmates until attorneys could counsel with them.

U.S. District Court Judge John Curtin scheduled a hearing on his order, which also instructed prison officials to admit doctors and nurses to inspect medical care being given injured prisoners. Attorneys for the state withheld comment until the hearing later in the day. State correction officers at Sing Sing Prison in Ossining locked prisoners in their cells until after the funerals of the slain Attica guards. Officials said the move was a safety measure. And in Baltimore, Md., there was a brief uprising this morning in the City Jail, where inmates barricaded themselves in the cafeteria. They were quickly driven out with tear gas and returned to their cells.

State Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald, who ordered the assault Monday, said autopsies had showed that two of the slain hostages had been killed prior to the time state police, guards sheriff's deputies and National Guardsmen moved in to smash the rebellion by some 1,200 prisoners. He would not say how much earlier the two had died. One of them had been emasculated, he said.

Oswald said that the convicts, who had armed themselves with bats, home-made knives and tear gas grenade launchers, had been continuing to make other crude weapons. "To delay the action any longer would not only jeopardize innocent lives but would threaten the security of the entire correctional system of this state," Oswald said.

The attack plan had the approval of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, in whose authority the use of National Guard troops rests.

"The tragedy was brought on by the highly organized, revolutionary tactics of militants who rejected all efforts at a peaceful settlement, forced a confrontation and carried out cold-blooded killings they had threatened from the outset," Rockefeller said after the prison had been secured.

President Nixon telephoned Rockefeller after the rebellion had been put down and told the governor he supported the state's actions.

But the state's assault drew criticism from others.

Attorney William Kunstler, who has often defended radicals, called the assault a "monstrous act."

"Officials never seem to learn that patience is a virtue and in this case would have been a life saver," he said. "There would have been room for negotiations if it took six months, or a year."

Kunstler was a member of a 24-man special mediation team formed at the request of the rebels. More than 100 prisoners were injured or wounded in the fighting Monday. Three state troopers were hurt and treated in area hospitals.

Richard Smith, a Buffalo school teacher who volunteered medical skills acquired as a medic in Vietnam, predicted after seeing the injured that the death toll would rise.

"It resembled the aftermath of war," Smith said.

"If anyone resisted, they were shot," one policeman said. "We had a job to do."

UNC And East Carolina Sign Football Games

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina and East Carolina University will meet on the football field for the next two seasons, it was announced today.

UNC Athletic Director Homer Rice made the announcement during a regular Tuesday noon press conference, when he listed the Tar Heel schedule for the next three years.

The Pirates and Tar Heels are scheduled to meet on November 25 in 1972 and then on October 27 during the 1973 season. Both games will be played in Chapel Hill.

"I certainly think this is going to be an excellent thing for both universities," East Carolina Coach Sonny Randle said of the series. "We have a lot to offer them, and they have a lot to offer us. It's a series that I greatly look forward to. It certainly upgrades our program."

The Tar Heels will be the second member of the so-called Big Four to join the Pirate schedule. N.C. State is already on the list, meeting the Bucs last year for the first time. They play again this year, on October 23.

East Carolina also met Wake Forest several years ago, defeating them. Since then, Wake has not returned to the schedule. Duke University now remains as the only member of the group that the Pirates have not met in the last 10 years.

"We're happy to be in a position to compete against the University of North Carolina in football," Athletic Director Clarence Stasavich said. "We have been playing them in other sports for some time now, but this is our first opportunity to meet in football. The game is sure to have a tremendous amount of interest on the part of the East Carolina people and the North Carolina people. It should draw very well."

Last year's ECU-State contest in Carter Stadium in Raleigh turned out the biggest crowd of the season for the Wolfpack, who also played Duke and South Carolina at home.

"I'm confident that this is the beginning of a splendid new relationship between two excellent institutions who have many friends throughout this region," ECU President Dr. Leo Jenkins said. Jenkins has been pushing for more play between the Big Four schools and the Pirates for several years.

Killing Triggers Anti-American Outburst Among S. Vietnamese

SAIGON (AP) — Angered by the killing of a Vietnamese youth by an American soldier, Vietnamese on motorbikes threw firebombs at U.S. vehicles in Hue in a new wave of anti-American demonstrations, U.S. officers reported today.

In Saigon, a U.S. Navy petty officer was severely burned after two youths on a motorbike hurled a homemade bomb into his pickup truck outside Navy headquarters. It was the third firebombing of American vehicles there in five days. Also in Saigon, a group of disabled South Vietnamese veterans demonstrated in front of the U.S. Embassy for improved benefits, and a group called Catholics for Peace urged the removal of American "occupation troops" from Vietnam. No incidents were reported.

Field reports said five fire bombs were hurled at U.S. military police vehicles and trucks and cars belonging to American civilian contractors during a four-hour demonstration Monday night in Hue. About 90 Hue University students staged another demonstration this morning. U.S. officials said it was peaceful.

No American injuries were reported in the Hue demonstrations. The city was placed off limits to GIs.

U.S. officers said the disturbances were triggered by the fatal shooting of Bao Dung, 17, and the wounding of Pham Nhat, 13, who was in satisfactory condition with an arm wound in a Vietnamese hospital.

The officers said the youths allegedly tried to steal soft drinks or beer from the back of a truck driven by an American soldier whose name was not disclosed.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said the GI was in custody and an investigation was under way.

On the war front, South Vietnamese headquarters reported a series of small patrol clashes in the 13,500-man South Vietnamese drive below the western flank of the demilitarized zone. It said 11 enemy were killed and 42 bunkers were destroyed. South Vietnamese losses were put at three killed and three wounded.

Recreation Facility Usage Priorities Shaped Up

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A priority arrangement to afford Greenville city sports teams a first chance to use facilities within the city was approved by the Recreation Commission last night.

Board members present voted unanimously on Dr. Herbert Hadley's motion that "in sports with a high utilization, Greenville institution sponsored teams be given priority." His motion followed a lengthy discussion on suggestions to alleviate the over-crowded condition prevalent in certain team sports for which both city and county sponsored teams use the city recreation facilities.

As a result of this new policy, sport teams sponsored by firms, agencies, churches and other institutions within the city limits will first be assigned schedules for their games, with county sponsored teams receiving the remaining play time on an assignment basis.

This action follows a long-range series of considerations on possible means of insuring that Greenville residents have first priority on facilities usage. Recreation Commission members concurred in trying at this stage to avoid any type of special fees for out-of-city sponsored teams.

The passage of this policy ruling does not affect the established fees paid by all teams who use the facilities a fee of $80.00 per team to provide for payment of umpires and time-keepers.

At the beginning of the discussion on this matter, Recreation Department Director Boyd Lee read to members a letter from Harold Moses, Recreation Coordinator for the State Recreation Division. Moses indicated the matter of city-county joint plans for providing recreation was a statewide matter of concern, and stated "there must be cooperation between county and city" planners in the field of recreation.

On the matter of a decision concerning the Sunday use of facilities, which first came up on the agenda last May, Lee asked that members Sidney Caraway, Mrs. Eleanor Hagens, and Mrs. Clay Burnette work with him in attempting to come up with a firm policy by the date of the October meeting.

Several groups have approached the Recreation Department with reference to the possibility of using the facilities on Sunday. Board members agreed that any decision would have to take into play details on the cost, the possibility of restricted use and proper supervision.

Charles Cain appeared before the Recreation Commission to inform them of his proposal for replacing large trees in the city that must be removed. In presenting his report, Cain noted he had appeared last week before the members of the City Council on this matter.

Lee made a brief report on the $178,809.00 recreation budget for 1971-1972 approved in July by the city government. He pointed out the budget consisted of $14,000 in salaries increase, which includes the hiring of an additional maintenance man; (Continued on page 8)

Divided On Using Force

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public officials, penologists and private citizens reacting to the bloody end of the inmate insurrection at Attica Prison have divided sharply over whether the use of force was necessary.

President Nixon, in a telephone conversation with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, expressed support for the governor's response to the four day rebellion that ended with nine hostages and 28 inmates killed.

Nixon particularly supported Rockefeller's refusal to grant the prisoner's demand for complete amnesty for any criminal acts committed during the uprising, aides to the two men said.

One authority on prisons, Dr. Vernon Fox, who once spent four days "talking down" a riot at Michigan State Prison, charged that New York officials mishandled the situation.

"What happened at Attica was despicable," said Fox, now a criminologist at Florida State University. He called the move "an appalling massacre."

"The state was legitimizing murder," he said. "There was no reason to kill anybody. Another 24 hours of talking wouldn't have done any harm and it might have saved the lives of 28 inmates and nine guards."

"The primary reason for the use of force is always to create an image for the public," said Fox, author of "Violence Behind Bars," "Introduction to Correction" and the forthcoming "When Prisoners Riot."

Mayor Kenneth A. Gibson of Newark said, "The use of coordinated, organized violence in overcoming the inmates at Attica State Prison stands as one of the most callous and blatantly repressive acts ever carried out by a supposedly civilized society on its own people ..."

Rockefeller's action won the support of many fellow governors who commented at their annual conference in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Gov. Preston Smith of Texas said, "If they had a couple days and could not reach a solution, responsible law enforcement people had no alternative."

Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan said, "There is no way you can parley with people on the basis of their holding hostages. It is important to move in early and with overwhelming force."

"They should have moved the first day to stop it," said Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma.

Promptly Put Down Prisoner Uprising In Baltimore Jail

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — An estimated 200 to 300 prisoners barricaded themselves in a cafeteria at Baltimore City Jail today and police moved in with tear gas to force them out.

The uprising occurred just one day after a rebellion was put down at a state prison in Attica, N.Y., where 37 persons were killed. Inmates there had held 38 persons hostage since Thursday.

According to Baltimore police, inmates took possession of the cafeteria about 7:15 and refused to come out.

Police said they moved in with tear gas about one hour later. Some 50 police said the inmates had no hostages.

The City Jail has a predominantly black population of 1,200 inmates. Police reportedly pulled back within two hours after the uprising began.

"Everything is secure here," reported a prison official at 9 a.m.

Prison officials and city police never deemed the situation important enough to notify state officials.

Howard B. Parks, deputy warden at City Jail, said the uprising was "a follow up" to the Attica uprising. "To my knowledge the only cause was the thing in Attica," Parks said. "It's a wonder it's not more widespread throughout the country."

U.S. Apparently Has Changed Plans On Viet Residual Force

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP)—The Nixon administration apparently has shifted its thinking on maintaining a residual force of 20,000 to 50,000 men in Vietnam after the bulk of American combat troops withdraw.

Sources said statements attributed to Gen. Creighton W. Abrams that he does not envisage a residual force of U.S. troops in Vietnam indicated that the Nixon administration is thinking in terms of an advisory mission, rather than support for the Vietnamese troops, and over a period of one to three years, for the U.S. forces that remain behind.

The general conception of a residual force has been 20,000 to 50,000 artillery, air logistics and some combat support troops for the security of the U.S. forces themselves, remaining for an indefinite period.

Sen. George S. McGovern, after a 45-minute meeting with Abrams today, quoted the American commander as saying: "Our goal is a total termination of U.S. military operations and the development of a balanced South Vietnamese force capable of functioning without U.S. forces, either aerial or ground."

Abrams' comment, as reported by the South Dakota Democrat, was the nearest thing to a public statement by Abrams on the subject to date.

McGovern said Abrams told him a nonresidual force was his—Abrams—"interpretation of Nixon's Vietnamization policy."

McGovern also reported that Abrams told him of serious problems among the 215,000 GIs in Vietnam, including drugs, racism, antiwar sentiment, morale, and tension between the American servicemen and the Vietnamese.

"These are the five things he worries about," McGovern observed.

Job-Hunter

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—If Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan doesn't want his office back in 1972, veteran state Sen. Hector McGeachy, D-Cumberland, would like to have it.

McGeachy said Monday he has "unofficially decided" to seek the attorney general's post if Morgan runs for another office. Morgan is expected to run for the Democratic nomination for governor.

McGeachy has served five terms in the Senate. He said he plans a statewide tour "before making an official announcement of my candidacy."

Britishers Like Minstrel Show

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer
LONDON (AP)—Good old tunes. Peppy but proper young lasses. Blend briskly, add escorts in burnt cork makeup. Result: the show business sensation known as London's black and white minstrels.

"The name's the same but we're not in the least like old-fashioned Mr. Bones entertainment," Robert Luff quickly dismisses any possible misunderstanding of intent in a racially sensitive era.

Nothing bores the ramrod-erect producer of the 10-year entertainment marvel as much as reference to the yuk-yuk blackface diversions of the past, except possibly talk about money. "I never discuss that."

What he does like to talk of with genial eloquence is the sustained audience appeal of a format spawned on British television which since 1962 has impelled 1,564 spectators twice nightly into the rucoco period elegance of the Victoria Palace Theater.

The current incarnation of the V.P. called "The Magic of the Minstrels," involves 42 sleekly garbed choristers, four soloists and a dozen jugglers or comedians in a headlong rush along Tin Pan Alley's memory lane.

"That's what we all live on—memories," declares the veteran of 37 years in multiple entertainment activities that range from press agentry to control of the amusement complex of Scarborough Fair.

"Fortunately, good memories last longest, so when you include a hundred songs you're bound to touch every one. That's the wonderful thing about life."

"Then, of course, we carefully choose performers, singers actually who have been taught to dance a little." The Luff recital of ingredients halts briefly, resumes with valedictory.

"Beautiful girls," he muses, "in the fullness of time, will always have a message. Don't you agree?"

The original "Black and White Minstrels" edition closed two summers ago after 4,354 performances, and was soon replaced by the current array. Altogether, about 7½-million spectators have attended performances which resemble family get-togethers in informal

Found Dynamite On Roof Agriculture Of G and W Boat Plant Leader Dies

Two sticks of dynamite with a partially burned fuse were found on top of the G and W Boat plant here yesterday afternoon.

Workmen repairing the roof of the firm's building on the West side of Albemarle Avenue found the explosives and notified officers, according to Police Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said agents of the U.S. Treasury Department's Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division and the State Bureau of Investigation are cooperating in the investigation.

ATF Division bomb experts said the dynamite apparently had been on the roof for several days.

Officers said they believe the attempted bombing of the boat factory is connected with the unrest that has prevailed in the county over the past several weeks and with a series of bombings and attempted bombings in the Ayden area.

The Ayden-Grifton High School was bombed while classes were in session last week, and seven blacks have been arrested for their alleged participation in that case. Warrants have been issued for two other blacks who are alleged to have participated.

In addition to the school bombing, seven other explosions have been reported in and around Ayden and unexploded dynamite has been found at two locations near Ayden.

Investigation of these other bombings and attempted bombings is continuing.

RALEIGH (AP)—Ira O. Schaub, a pioneer in agricultural extension work and retired dean at North Carolina State University, died at Rex Hospital on Monday night.

Schaub, 91, had been in failing health for some time and was hospitalized two weeks ago.

A native of Stokes County, Schaub had been associated with the university for nearly 70 years as student, administrator or consultant.

He had held the top three posts in the university's agricultural program—dean of agriculture, director of experiment stations and director of the agricultural extension service.

In 1909, as a faculty member, Schaub founded the Boys Corn Clubs, a forerunner of the 4-H Club program in North Carolina. He is survived by a son, I. O. Schaub Jr. of Raleigh, and a daughter, Maud Kennedy Schaub of Seattle, Wash. Family graveside services are planned at King, N.C.

ECU's Chemistry Chapter Is Praised

The American Chemical Society has cited its chapter at East Carolina University as among the "elite" group of its more than 535 chapters in the nation for the second consecutive year.

Only 42 of the ACS chapters were selected for citation as outstanding chapters. Dr. J. Trygve Jensen, of Wagner College, Staten Island, N.Y., ACS chairman, notified ECU officials that the ACS chapter here was selected "to be honored by the society for excellence in the 1970-1971 academic year."

In a letter to Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU president, Dr. Jensen said, "this is especially noteworthy in that the chapter was also selected in 1970. I am certain that you are as proud as we are of the chemistry students in the East Carolina University chapter and of their advisor, Edgar Heckel."

On behalf of ACS, Jensen also expressed appreciation to Dr. Jenkins "for your efforts in promoting the environment in which this student activity can flourish."

Jensen said the ACS program of recognition is aimed at developing attitudes of professionalism among students interested in chemistry as a career.

The Department of Chemistry at East Carolina University is headed by Dr. Robert C. Lamb.

Storms Are Dissipated

MIAMI (EP)—Tropical storm threats to the Atlantic and Gulf coasts dissipated today as Heidi was absorbed into a wet low-pressure system off Nantucket and Edith floundered weakly across the shores of Mexico.

Whirling over cold waters of the North Atlantic, Heidi weakened rapidly during the night as she passed east of the Nantucket lightship.

The only dangerous storm remaining in the big parade off tropical seas was Hurricane Ginger but she was a threat only to shipping lanes 1,500 miles east of Washington, D.C., in the Atlantic. Her top winds were 100 mph.

A storm which had brought torrential rains and floods to the northeastern states piled off the Atlantic Coast during the night.

Water still lapped at curbs and doorsteps in rural towns as south Texas mopped up after Hurricane Fern. Early damage estimates placed her toll in the millions across the Texas coastal plains.

Appointments By City Council

At their recent monthly meeting, the City Council reappointed three and appointed one new member to the local councils and boards.

Mrs. Annie L. Streeter was reappointed to a fourth three year term on the Good Neighbor Council, with Roderick Phillips named for a first full term. Phillips now fills an unexpired term.

On the permanent Code of Review Board, J. B. Keel was appointed to a first full four year term. He is now serving an unexpired term. Also appointed to this board was Harry Wilson, to fill the unexpired term of Earl Spain, who is locating outside the city limits and can no longer serve on the board. Wilson's appointment will expire in September 1972.

Mushrooms are often called "vegetable meat."

Retired Teacher Is Honored In Program

Mrs. Hattie Gatlin Thompson of Simpson was honored Sunday afternoon at Mt. Hermon Lodge for her retirement from the Pitt County School System after 38 years of service.

The theme for the program was "This Is Your Day". Hostesses were Mrs. Queenie G. Taft of Greenville and Mrs. Lillian G. Stokes of Indiana, nieces of the honoree.

Miss Pansy Taft read a letter written by a number of former students and Mrs. Brenda Hawkins presented Mrs. Thompson and her husband, the Rev. H.C. Thompson, with flowers.

Nathaniel Moore, taught by Mrs. Thompson in the first grade, sang "Thank You For a Garden," and "Bridge Over Troubled Waters". He was accompanied by Oscar A. Moore, principal of Carver Elementary School, Richmond, Va.

Remarks were heard from Mrs. Fleeta K. Tetterton, M.W. Rountree, Rev. O.J. Rooks, Leroy James, and Miss Zilphia Gatlin.

A number of Mrs. Thompson's former students were present for the occasion.

A green, white and orange color scheme was used in decorating.

Mrs. E.B. Thompson, sister-in-law of the honoree, served cake and Mrs. Madeline Grimes poured punch. Mrs. Gwendolyn Gray presided at the register and Miss Cynthia Tetterton was in charge of gifts.

Mrs. Thompson has taught at Bynum, Grimesland Elementary, Simpson and G. R. Whitfield.

Set Classes On Diabetic Care

Any diabetic or friend or relative of a diabetic interested in attending a series of classes at Moyewood Social Services Center on caring for the diabetic should contact Mrs. Laurel Holloman at 756-1324.

Mrs. Holloman is teaching the classes beginning Tuesday, Oct. 5 at 8 p. m. The sessions will include films, instruction, and discussion groups, she said. There is no charge for the classes.

Engineers Plan Tour Of Plant

Members of the Eastern North Carolina Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers will tour the Westinghouse Meter Division in Raleigh Wednesday evening.

A social hour at 6 p. m. and dinner at 7 p. m. at the Holiday Inn North Restaurant on Highway U.S. 1 North will precede the tour which begins at 8:15 p. m.

Iral B. Moore, manager of manufacturing, will lead the tour of the plant which makes electric meters, electronic products and range timers. Having started production in 1954, the plant employs approximately 1,400 people and the facilities enable over 90 per cent of the plant's output to be converted from raw materials.

Holding Man In Stabbing Death

A 34-year-old Greenville man is being held in Pitt County jail on murder charges connected with the stabbing death of another 34-year-old on 15th Street here yesterday afternoon.

James Henry Atkinson, 34, of Glendale Court fell dead on 15th Street, according to Coroner E. W. Harvey, after being stabbed one time in the chest between 4 p. m. and 4:30. Harvey said Atkinson was stabbed in the heart.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said, Marcellus Harrington, 34, of 1309 Short St. was charged with murder in connection with the case.

According to the coroner, "the stabbing allegedly followed "an argument and fight" between the two men.

Can Appliances Be Found In Living Room? Kitchen Designer Thinks Yes

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) —Would you want a refrigerator in your living room or beside your bed? Or a wine cooler under the living room sofa?

Kitchen designer Klaus Paradies thinks the answer is affirmative. In the midst of a kitchen remodeling boom, Paradies has spotted a trend to place convenience appliances or features at the point of end use. In an interview, he said this could lead to mini-refrigerators concealed in night tables or behind pictures like an old-fashioned wall safe. He said American-made prototypes already exist for a low-slung wine cooler and a central cooling system that can put refrigeration where it's needed—just as central airconditioning does now. Paradies said the same principle can be applied to cooking units, which can be used in rooms other than the kitchen because new self-vented cooking top units and grills create no problems with heat, steam and cooking odors. Paradies, a German-born chemical engineer, is executive vice president of the American Institute of Kitchen Dealers, a trade organization representing almost 600 retail firms. Some of the prototypes he described sound too good to be true—such as a dishwasher-garbage disposer-storage unit.

The device scrapes the plates, grinds the garbage, washed and dries the dishes and stores them until needed. That one's simple, compared with an Austrian-designed kitchen that looks like a modern sculpture. It's an all-in-one sequential unit shaped like a flattened barbell on two pedestals. A complex design and pushbutton system converts part of the dishwasher into an oven. A storage cabinet can be raised and lowered like a telescoping lamp to free counter space for interim use. A refrigerator is concealed in one pedestal, the dishwasher in the other.

A chair is provided for the cook—possibly to prevent her collapsing in astonishment at the spectacle.

Paradies estimated that the Austrian unit would cost about $5,000 to build and install.

"It has a limited market, but there always are people who are willing to try anything," he said.

He said remodeled kitchens are increasing at an annual rate of 2.7 to 3 million. Homeowners now spend an average of $3,500 to $5,000 on the one room that a trade magazine says takes top priority among 60 to 85 per cent of the people who plan to remodel their dwellings. Paradies said some kitchen jobs cost as much as $10,000 to $15,000 but that a complete kitchen including major appliances can be done for a minimum of $1,500.

For obvious reasons, remodeling is undertaken by affluent, educated suburbanites, but Pa-radies recalled one moderate income group of homeowners who spent more money on kitchen remodeling than they'd paid for their houses originally.

These families had reared and educated children, paid off their home mortgages and were free for the first time to spend money on remodeling.

Regardless of income, few go for the avant garde. Paradies described tastes as "very conservative — they're still using 88 per cent wood cabinets in Early American or Mediterranean designs."

New styling is the main reason for kitchen remodeling jobs, according to a study done for a news magazine. A yen for up-to-date equipment ran a close second.

Paradies said kitchen sizes remain relatively unchanged but they're being integrated more into living areas of the house, by having walls fully or partly removed.

Automatic dishwashers and garbage disposers, once optional luxury items, are fast becoming standard equipment. Seventy per cent of those who remodel their kitchens include self-cleaning ovens because surveys have shown that housewives regard oven-cleaning as the most odious of household jobs.

But the trash compactor is what Paradies calls the biggest bit of the decade so far. When the first one was introduced about two years ago, there was one manufacturer. Now there are six.

Husband Refuses To Have Pictures Hung

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We are in our sixties and have been married only three months. [This is my second marriage, and his, too.] We have a lovely apartment, however, mirrors and pictures are still on the floor, resting against the walls because my husband refuses to have them hung. He is afraid if the large mirror is hung on the wall it will come down on his head. He refuses to let me put up the usual decorative things around, removing them to a corner of the dining room on the floor! I have made several attempts to put these things out, only to find that he has removed them, so I have just given up. A beautiful rubber plant was thrown out because it was an "eyesore."

What sort of problem do you think I have on my hands, Abby? And how would you cope with it? He wants me to invite people over, but I am reluctant because the place looks as tho we moved in only last week.

DESPERATELY UNHAPPY

DEAR UNHAPPY: If your husband is hung up on hanging things for fear they will come down on his head, assure him that there are professionals who can hang them safely.

If he still refuses, add this to his refusal to keep decorative objects in sight where they belong, and consider the possibility that his mind isn't functioning properly. All big problems were once small. Get your husband to his doctor for a checkup.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was recently married at a beautiful church wedding, and this is what happened:

We planned on 210 guests for a sit-down wedding dinner. We engaged a fine catering service and had placecards for everyone. Well, 44 extra guests showed up!

Thirty had received invitations but failed to reply to our R. S. V. P. to let us know they were coming. And we had 14 children who were not invited but were brought by their parents.

Of course there were no places for 44 extra, but some stayed anyway and ate in the kitchen, and some got mad and left in a huff.

Abby, when an invitation is addressed to Mr. and Mrs., don't they know their children are not included? And shouldn't people know enough to respond to an R. S. V. P. invitation? Please print this. A lot of folks need educating.

LOVELY WEDDING—DISASTROUS DINNER

DEAR LOVELY: R. S. V. P. invitations are ignored out of laziness—not ignorance. And those who take their uninvited children along are beyond educating.

DEAR ABBY: "UNDER 25" in Loma Linda stated in his letter that he could not have gotten his master of science degree without free clinics, government loans and food stamps.

Since I am a part of the government body which helps subsidize these various handouts, may I point out that many of us who are over 25 did not expect the taxpayers to be so full of "brotherly love" to keep us publicly endowed with food, medical care or schooling. Many of us worked very hard to get an education and a business.

"Under 25" also suggests that some of us are not very tolerant of their sloppy attire, long hair and love beads. We who wear "beads" of perspiration from working for a living, care not that others choose to dress differently.

If "Under 25" wished to place a raisin in his navel and disguise himself as a cookie, we couldn't care less. However, we DO object to having to pay for the raisins. Sign me . . .

PUREED CARROTS—Easy to make for Baby when you put the freshly cooked vegetable through a food mill.

Cook Vegetables For Baby

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Nowadays many young mothers are going back to the old-fashioned way of cooking vegetables from scratch for baby. One of the benefits of this regime is that no seasonings are added and baby gets used to the natural taste of fresh food.

To get you started, here are three fresh vegetable recipes designed especially for baby. All are strained through a food mill to make the pureeing easy.

You can use one of these vegetables for baby's meal. With it might go strained meat, mashed banana, zwieback and milk.

These recipes, by the way, were tested on a baby and he gobbled them all up!

PUREED CARROT (For Baby)

Scrub, but do not peel, 1 medium carrot; cut off stem end. Slice thin or chop medium fine—there should be about 1 cup. (Thinly sliced or chopped carrot cooks quickly thus preserving nutrients.) In a small heavy saucepan bring 2-3 cup water to a boil; add carrot. Cover and cook over medium heat until water is absorbed and carrots are soft—about 10 minutes. Strain through a food mill. Serve warm without seasoning. Makes about 1-3 cup.

PUREED GREEN BEANS (For Baby)

Wash 1/4 pound snap beans; cut off stem ends only. Cut into 1/4-inch pieces—there should be about 1 cup. (Small pieces cook quickly thus preserving nutrients.) In a small heavy saucepan bring 2-3 cup water to a boil; add beans. Cover and cook over medium heat until soft—10 to 15 minutes. Strain through a food mill. Serve warm without seasoning. Makes about 1-3 cup.

MASHED POTATO WITH SPINACH (For Baby)

Scrub, but do not peel, 1 medium potato. Chop coarsely—there should be about 2-3 cup. Rinse and remove tough center stems from enough spinach to make 1 cup without packing down. In a small heavy saucepan bring 1/2 cup water to a boil; add potato; cover and cook over medium heat 5 to 6 minutes. Add spinach and, if needed, an additional 2 table-spoons water. Cover and cook until potato is tender—3 to 4 minutes longer. Strain through a food mill. Serve warm without seasoning. Makes about 1/2 cup. If necessary, the potato-spinach mixture may be thinned with a little milk.

Mother Had A Squeaking Trip

COLCHESTER, England (WNS) — Jean Howlett, 26, left her three children with neighbors so that she could drive to London to shop. A squeak in the car bothered her so much en route that she stopped in Romford to have it corrected. "Is this Candid Camera?" asked mechanic Christopher Woodliffe, confused because the squeak continued even when the motor was not running. The trouble turned out to be Mrs. Howlett's four-year-old son Michael, who had climbed into the trunk with his squeaking Teddy Bear. The English lady and her little passengers headed straight for home where neighbors were in near-panic because they could not find Michael.

DIAMOND CARE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Although diamond is the hardest substance in nature, the bride ought to be careful not to drop or bang hers against a hard surface. It can crack and chip. Other tips on the care of diamonds:

Don't jumble diamond pieces together in a jewel box since diamonds have the power to scratch one another, even though no other jewel can scratch them. And don't subject them to the risk of extreme heat and cold. Internal flaws you have never seen may be enlarged and come to light

British Housewives Don't Like Streets

HINDLEY, England (WNS) — Building supervisor Brian Rollinson warned the city council here to avoid the word "street" when naming thoroughfares in its new housing development. "British housewives no longer want to live on streets," he reported. "Cul-de-sacs, drives and groves are now at the top of the popularity list." After that come avenues, lanes, roads and closes. Rollinson, who has built almost 1,100 new houses in Hindley during the last decade, added, "They've sold well because there hasn't been a street in the lot of them."

Gayle Kirkpatrick believes clothes should stretch and move for today's busy bodies. For Bymini, he does the "Orphan Annie" look. White linen collar and cuffs finish the sweater-fit body dresses in energy brights: red, purple, and black stretch ribbed velour. Price? Under $60.

Hospital Needs Is Topic For Jay-C-Ettes

Dr. Paul Erkman was guest speaker for the Greenville Jay-C-Ettes at their Wednesday meeting.

He presented a program on the needs of the present hospital in the Pediatrics and Nursery areas. These needs included an apneamonitor that records a preemie's breathing and warns the nurse if this breathing becomes irregular or stops.

The krysresuscitator is a cart that contains suction, oxygen, and heat for a newborn baby at the place of birth.

The Jay-C-Ettes are now working on these needs, planning to provide at least one or provide money towards their purchase. Dr. Erkman also touched on the new hospital and the group are making plans to help equip the new playroom in it.

Melvin Hoot, a Jaycee, thanked the Jay-C-Ettes for their part in selling lot tickets to the Boys' Home Game and awarded prizes to the top three sellers: Sarah Deloach; Melba Hargett; and Beverly Browder.

The Jay-C-Ette Candy Sale starts this week and Patsy McPherson and Janis Martin, co-chairmen, put their final plans into action by announcing assigned selling areas and plans for distributing candy and turning in the money.

Sue Turcotte and Patsy McPherson are workers in the Crippled Children's Clinic this month. Mrs. J. B. Surles was welcomed as a new member.

Mrs. McGrath Gives Program At Friday Meet

Mrs. Harold McGrath was guest speaker at the meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club Friday afternoon.

Mrs. McGrath, a graduate of ECU, a school teacher and a candidate in the spring election for the City Council, spoke on the status of women and their attitude.

She stated, women can only make progress by changing their attitude. We must have confidence in our ability to reach our goals. Mrs. McGrath was introduced by Mrs. George Snyder.

Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, vice president, presided during the meeting and welcomed members and guests. Mrs. Dink James gave the devotional.

Mrs. Vance Perkins announced that a collection of kitchen utensils had been donated to the club by Miss Elizabeth Quinerly. Mrs. Clara Shackell called for volunteers to help with the food booth at the Pitt County Fair Oct. 3-9.

Members were reminded to make reservations for the trip to the N. C. Museum of Art on Oct. 12.

The Home Life Department will have a covered-dish luncheon at the club building on Sept. 21.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. W. J. Bundy, Mrs. Walter Carson, Mrs. Marie Clark, Mrs. Thomas Cole, Mrs. J. A. Piver, Mrs. T. W. Rouse, Mrs. C. A. Robertson, Mrs. K. R. Rowe, Mrs. H. H. Settle and Miss Helen Snyder.

No Question As To Withdrawal

There can be no doubt now that the United States is getting out of Vietnam, and it is being done in as orderly fashion as the dismal situation there allows.

The U.S. Command in Saigon announced that American troop strength has been reduced by more than 60 percent from a peak of 543,400 approximately two years ago.

Another 2,300 troops were cut last week dropping the total strength to 216,700. Included are 170,400 Army; 35,700 Air Force; 10,000 Navy; 500 Marines and 100 Coast Guard.

President Nixon had announced that the authorized ceiling would be lowered to 184,000 by Dec. 1. However, withdrawals are ahead of schedule and observers believe that strength will drop to as low as 175,000 by the end of November.

Further cuts are expected to be announced by the president in mid-November.

Setting a "getting out date" is really a moot point at this stage since it is obvious that American troop strength in Vietnam is already too low to sustain our further participation in the war.

After years of participation in the fighting for Vietnam, the United States owed that country an orderly withdrawal which would give South Vietnam a chance to take over the fight in its own way. Admittedly the poor political situation in Saigon at the present is enough to make us doubt that a true democracy will be established there, and, indeed, whether the country will be dedicated enough to maintain its own defense.

Political situations have a way of changing rapidly, though, and it is possible that after years of fighting South Vietnam will find the strength to maintain itself.

For the United States, however, it is certain that orderly troop withdrawals can and should continue. Within a year we suspect that there will be very few American military men in South Vietnam. Then will come the real test of South Vietnam's will to survive.

Growing Crisis In Confidence

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH — A crisis in confidence crucial to its tomorrow grips North Carolina's public schools system.

Evolution of the little red school house from a setting for instruction to the stage for volatile social issues has stirred emotions, confusion and doubts in the minds of parents, students and teachers alike.

And it has turned up the heat under the hot seat for unrest over busing to achieve racial balance.

Phillips himself is among Democratic office-holders who will be running. He won the superintendent's post in '68, now nears the end of his initial four-year term. Rumbblings are heard of primary opposition, though no candidate has openly announced.

Schools have become more visible in the arena of political action. Phillips said.

"Political leaders and leaders of various organizations, sensitive to the growing importance of the vote of minority groups and other narrow interest groups, have adroitly related housing conditions, poverty, hunger, unemployment, delinquency, segregation, and other discriminatory practices to school policy and school management. As a result, school administrators and their school boards are being held responsible for the resolution of social and economic problems that have had little relevance to instruction, the avowed fundamental purpose of the schools."

Catalog Of Issues
The Superintendent catalogued critical issues engulfing the schools:

Racial turmoil flowing from the national commitment to end segregation, teacher organizations insistent on a policy voice, federal participation with its blessing of revenue and bane of uncertain guidelines, urbanization requiring school district reorganization, problems of financing, the rising chorus of students and parents demanding classroom relevancy.

"The schools have truly become a stage upon which real or imaginary ills of groups of people can be called dramatically to public attention... because the school is the most visible institution of community life," Phillips asserted.

For his part Phillips pledged school leaders to "a massive self-improvement program to make planning, accountability, good management a way of life in your public schools."

The outline for tomorrow, he said, calls for a dramatic change of emphasis for secondary education from college to career preparation, significant expansion of programs for very young children to provide early preventive education rather than late remedial training, and fostering acceptable relationships among students, teachers and patrons.

"We are in the days ahead going to make what goes on inside the school more meaningful," he promised. "We are listening to those voices of students and parents calling for real education for the real world."

school administrators at both the local and state level.

"For some time now," said Dr. A. Craig Phillips, superintendent of public instruction, "I have felt that many of our citizens and leaders do not fully understand the complexities that have and are facing public education..."

"Our state is filled with anxiety and much of this anxiety centers around our schools. We firmly believe the best solution to the anxiety is understanding."

Talking About Schools
Understanding which renews confidence comes through communication, and Phillips is launched on an intensive effort to make conversation about schools.

A thrust in that direction is a pair of conferences with news media leaders of the state and front-line department officials, set for Sept. 16 and Sept. 23 at Quail Roost Conference Center near Durham. The purpose is to talk and listen in a give-and-take discussion on elementary-secondary education.

Other groups will be approached in a variety of ways. The aim is to open up the exchange of information and opinion, and from the response shape a new commitment to the public schools.

Last month, Phillips made a plea to the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, meeting in Asheville, for a deeper level of local government involvement.

"Work with us from a basic confidence," he urged. "Criticize us, advise us, needle us, disagree with us, but keep your basic confidence in us — in public education — in the future."

Schools And Politics
The campaign for confidence comes as an election year approaches. North Carolina will choose a governor in '72, and school issues can be expected to burn brightly, fueled by

Anti-Inflation Effort Defied

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A battle with no holds barred has now started between the Nixon administration and a potentially powerful bipartisan bloc in the House over the first, crucial test that could break the spirit of the President's anti-inflationary wage-price freeze.

That test is a Congressional attack of Mr. Nixon's courageous decision to postpone an estimated $1.3 billion in salary increases for white collar government employees from Jan. 1 to July 1 next year. Either branch of Congress can override him.

Backed by the entire political apparatus of the AFL-CIO, Rep. Jerome Waldie, a California Democrat, is certain to get a vote in the House by Oct. 7 on his resolution to override the Nixon-ordered postponement in government salary hikes. To defeat him, the President is now mobilizing his entire Administration and every political asset he has in Congress.

At issue is not merely an inflationary $1.3 billion loss to the Treasury. Rather, the test is seen in the White House as the first and transcendent answer to whether the President will in fact be able to hold Congress and public opinion behind his radical switch on the economy. At stake, in short, is that ineffable quality of national leadership.

In the brief 29 days since Mr. Nixon ordered the wage-price-freeze, his efforts to win and hold public opinion have been less than wholly successful. Political reaction across the board was highly favorable on his Aug. 15 televised speech announcing the freeze, but his subsequent efforts got far lower marks.

For example, even in the bosom of the President's official family there was consternation over his surprise announcement to Congress last Thursday that the freeze would end Nov. 12. The purpose of Mr. Nixon's address to the joint session was inspirational: to build a Congressional consensus for the new Nixonomics period. Even Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, the man-in-charge-of-everything these days, was taken aback when Mr. Nixon at the last minute decided to throw in his headline statement that there would be no extension of the freeze.

Likewise, on Capitol Hill Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, the canny chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, had been briefed in utmost confidence by Herbert Stein, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors who heads the study panel on the post-freeze, Phase II policy. Stein secretly informed Mills that the freeze would not be extended — but left the strong impression that that bargaining card would not be played until Phase II had been precisely worked out. Mills was flabbergasted.

Even Dr. Arthur Bruns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board whose great influence was instrumental in turning the Nixon economic program around last month, had no idea Mr. Nixon would toss away that bargaining card prematurely.

Thus, for want of an eye-catching headline and to satisfy his yearning for surprise, the President made his premature pledge that the freeze would not be continued. And that played right into the hands of those in the House who are now trying to overturn Mr. Nixon's six-month postponement of higher salaries for government white collar workers.

So long as the possibility existed that the freeze would continue, Waldie's major argument for overriding Mr. Nixon's decree on government pay — that government workers were being discriminated against — would have fallen flat.

Now, however, Waldie can make that argument with possibly devastating effect.

The Only Game In Town

PHILADELPHIA — In Philadelphia, nearly everyone knows the name of Frank Rizzo, but outside Philadelphia, not too many persons know the name of Thatcher Longstreth. This is a pity, for Longstreth is a remarkably vigorous specimen of a breed that is almost extinct. He is a true blue Republican liberal, and there aren't many of them left.

Rizzo, of course, is the city's former police commissioner, a no-nonsense cop with a tongue as blunt as a blackjack. He emerged from a bitter three-way Democratic primary back in May with his party's nomination for mayor. He meets Longstreth in the November general election.

At the moment, with the campaign yet to get seriously under way, Rizzo is the odds-on favorite. His handlers, it is said, are keeping him under wraps, with strict instructions to keep his cotton-pickin' mouth shut. If he can be restrained from referring publicly to some of the city's black citizens as "baboons," an appellation he has been known to mutter in the past, perhaps the rancors of May will subside. The Democratic machine should roll him safely home.

This is the conventional wisdom, and if you play percentage baseball you have to put your money on Rizzo. All the same, the makings are here for an interesting upset. In this off year, only a handful of major elections are scheduled for November. For political poker players, the Philadelphia mayoralty race is just about the only game in town. Can a ribbon clerk take an old pro?

The metaphor is unfair to Longstreth, but to know this amiable fellow, and to ponder the sweaty clinches of politics fought in Philadelphia style, is to ask a puzzled question: What's a nice boy like you doing in a place like this? The answer is that Longstreth, who is 50 and four times a grandfather, though he doesn't look it, genuinely loves his old and aching city; he earnestly believes that he might put things back together again.

It seems unlikely, but it might be so. Longstreth is white, Republican, and Quaker, in a city whose politics are dominated largely by blacks, Democrats and Catholics. He starts from (Continued On Page 5)

Other Editors Say Have Hands Full

(Washington Daily News)

Perhaps being a Probation officer in North Carolina might fall into the category of an unglamorous job.

At the same time they have a great job to do and a heavy responsibility to fulfill. Perhaps if the truth could be set out clearly, these fellows who administer the probationary responsibilities are among the most understanding people we know.

People are sent to prison to serve their terms. Prison, we are told, is a place for punishment and for rehabilitation. The punishment can readily be understood, but the matter of becoming rehabilitated in prison is open to question on the party of society.

When an offender has served a minimum of one-fourth of his prison term, he becomes eligible for parole. And parole officers, like probation officers, have their hands full.

They both are dealing with human beings at their most unfortunate. In probation, those officers are dealing with people who have not been sent to prison but who are placed in probationary status in order to give them a second chance without prison.

So often they violate their terms of probation, and they then must be sent to prison to begin serving active terms.

With so much crime today and with courts being worked to capacity and with more and more people being placed on probation or coming from prison on parole, we begin to understand better the role of the officers in charge.

In probation today so very many of the offenders in that category are teen agers who have been caught on drug charges. So often probation officers are subject to harassments which the public does not know about. It happens all the time that some of those on probation violate the terms and then the officer in charge is faced with a momentous decision. He might bring the probationer into court and ask the judge to send him to prison. He might talk with the fellow and give him another chance. But all the time there is that human element involved as the officer deals with human beings — so many of them mere youngsters.

In today's society, let us know that probation officers right now have their hands full. And we feel they are doing a much better job than they have been given credit for doing.

Strength For Today

ASTRANGE AGE
The greatest reality to be found in human history is that a Being appeared on the earth about two thousand years ago, lived a quality of life which he has passed on to others, and is in the world today making a profound influence on uncounted millions of lives. A Life appeared at one time and through the centuries has been changing human life for the better. The Creator has not finished his work. Whether the world is in turmoil or in peace, in darkness or in light, the creation of which we are a part is not at a standstill. People are being changed. Light is breaking out in many parts of God's creation. Yet we must admit that there are areas of darkness today that fill us with terror. Why should the horrors of war keep on century after century? The Prince of Peace came two thousand years ago to establish peace on the earth, yet we are still engaged in warfare. We are still lunging at one another's throats. Nothing could be more senseless than this continuation of strife in an age that ought to be peaceful. To say this is not to advocate pacifism. So long as we are the kind of people we are, armament will have to be maintained. Nations could be swept away, the face of the earth could be changed in a few years if evil were allowed to go unrebutted or unresisted. Statesmen and soldiers all know this. They hate war. They set up high ideals and strive to attain to the very highest, yet wars, rumors of wars, international conspiracy and hatred—these are realities at present which fill us with dismay. Certainly God has not brought about the international chaos that prevails in so many areas today. Light, darkness, Peace, warfare. But the end must be, and will be, the triumph of peace.

The Oil And Gas Lease Gamble

By ELMER ROESSNER
The government's monthly oil and gas lease drawings are, to paraphrase a famous Broadway show tune, the oldest established permanent legal lottery in the U.S. — with some doubt as to just how legal it is.

Legal or not, a lot of people across the nation gamble and large amount of cash in the drawings. A few even make some money now and then. The lottery was established in 1960. It was a wild scene in the old days when oil and gas leases on government land were awarded on a first-come basis. Oil company representatives, speculators, wild-catters and the like elbowed and jostled to be first in line for choice properties. The prizes went to the brash, strongest and quickest. Now, in the quiet confines of 12 Bureau of Land Management offices a government official draws a slip out of a hopper to determine who are the lease winners for the month. Leases on an average of 1,000 parcels of government land are put up for grabs each month. The parcels range from a few acres to a top of 2,560 acres. Untested Areas

The leases offered are on wildcat land, that is, not in good, proven oil and gas areas. Government holdings in proven areas are put up for competitive bidding, and the prices are very high. Some of the lotteried wildcat land, however, is near known producing areas and desirable. Most of the parcels have little if any value.

The applicant can make only one entry per parcel, but can try for as many parcels as he wishes. There is a $10 fee for each entry, which the government keeps. In addition, entrants must send a cashier's check for the first year's rental of 50 cents an acre. On the biggest parcel this amounts to $1,280. The rental checks are returned to entrants who do not win the drawings.

If the bettor is lucky enough to get a lease, and if he has picked a promising property, and if a producing company is interested enough to buy him out, a tidy profit may result. Then, should the property be developed and actually produce oil or gas, the winner can receive handsome profits from royalties.

Poor Odds
But the chances are very, very small. The real, steady money is probably in the

Baby Talks & Talks

By D. M. KREISHER
NEW YORK (AP) — For those parents whose infant is just starting to mumble those first precious words, a warning: Don't encourage him too much.

For every time you say to each other, "Oh, how cute it will be when Julius can talk" you'll probably wish later for a return to those days of goo and da-da.

Reason enough is the fact that one of the first things a child learns to say is: "What's that?" This, or some reasonable facsimile usually is accompanied by a vague wave of the hand or insistent point of a finger toward some animate or inanimate object just within sight.

From first awakening to final "night-night," it comes like a scratched record: "Whas at? Whas at?" taking in everything in the house, at least twice, and most of the things visible out the window. It also covers most major and many minor sounds that resound into his tiny world.

His curiosity is boundless, but his memory is short.

It's a bit unnerving to have this chip off the old block on whom you lavished so much attention only last night greet you on awakening with a pointing finger jabbing and a surprised "Whas at?"

And your long, patient explanation of what you're doing covering your face with cream and slashing yourself with a razor will be rewarded the next morning with a wide-eyed stare and a breathless "Whas at?" when you lather up again.

If you are one of those souls who can't quite get going until after the second cup of coffee you may not enjoy these post-reveille games of "20 questions." And how many different ways can you explain those dribbles of blood on your chin.

If the questions aren't enough, the second part of the little one's vocabulary usually is a demand. His first full sentence may well be: "I want that!" again with a gesturing hand that may indicate any number of things, or nothing at

40 Years Ago Today

By GWYN COGHILL
Sept. 14, 1931

Hundreds of children turned their thoughts from play to learning today as Greenville City Schools swung open their doors for the 1931-32 session. Superintendent J. H. Rose reported total enrollment as 2,330 - 1,508 pupils being enrolled in white schools and 822 in the colored schools.

The first shipment of hogs from the stockyards, erected by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad in conjunction with the Pitt County Farm Department, was made last Friday. This statement was announced today by E. F. Arnold, director of the Farm Department.

organizations most lottery players use to make their entries. These outfits generally provide technical information, recommend which look like the most promising parcels, file for the bettor, supply the first year's lease check on the entrant's behalf, as well as provide other services. They charge from $7.50 to $15 for each entry they handle. With some 30,000 entries in a good month, most probably handled by service organizations, their gross must be in the neighborhood of $300,000. The amusing side of the lottery is that the government is using mails in conducting the "simultaneous filing system," as the Bureau of Land Management calls it. And that system, no matter what you call it, is a lottery. And Congress thought it barred the use of the mails for lotteries over 80 years ago.

CP&L Planning To Issue Bonds

RALEIGH (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. plans to issue $70 million in first mortgage bonds to pay off short-term loans used for construction of new facilities.

The firm asked the North Carolina Utilities Commission Monday for permission to issue the bonds, due Oct. 1, 2001. CP&L said it had $63.7 million in short-term loans as of July 31.

The company said it probably will cost $91,000 to carry out the bond sale. It plans to ask for written proposals on purchase about Oct. 13.

CP&L's most recent permanent financing was the issuance and sale last June of 1.5 million shares of common stock for $32.5 million.

The "Whas at?" and the "I wants" may alternate so fast you can't remember whether you're explaining something or lending off his latest demand.

Father may think it is tough enough to stand the brunt of these elementary conversations during his limited time at home, but mother gets it full time.

And those wondrous moments of relief, nap time or bedtime, don't come as easily anymore because now this talking, reasoning little creature must be given the opportunity to express his desires on such matters. It's a lucky mother who can get a yes to a question like, "Do you want to go to bed?"

Positive answers are slow in developing in the newly talking tyke, but "no" comes early and increases in frequency. It is usually about this time that parents find themselves using the same word more frequently in their dealings with their offspring.

Which makes you wonder, who is teaching the language to whom?

New Voters See Registration

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Some wore sport coats but many lined up in dungarees and sweatshirts Monday as voter registration began at the University of Colorado.

A total of 409 students, enfranchised by the constitutional amendment reducing the voting age to 18, stood in line to fill out the registration form. Moe were expected today.

A festive atmosphere surrounded the registration table and brightly colored balloons filled with helium clung to the ceiling of the student union.

Japanese Aid Flood Victims

TOKYO (AP) — The Japan Red Cross Society decided Monday to send about $10,000 worth of medical and other relief supplies to North Vietnam to help flood victims.

North Vietnam was hit by its worst floods in 26 years in late July.

Scott's latest proposal — a governing board to control all 16 state universities — was "second best" to the board of regents plan proposed by the Warren Committee.

But Dr. James Miller, head of the higher education study center at the University of Michigan, told the lawmakers that either plan was better than the present system of a Board of Higher Education, a Consolidated University of North Carolina and 10 independent (Continued From Page 4) behind. But he has some things going for him too. Granted that in Philadelphia, nearly everyone knows Rizzo, it's equally true that nearly everyone also knows Longstreth — and knows him in a favorable light.

The Longstreth family came to Philadelphia in the 1600's with William Penn. His great-grandmother, an active abolitionist, was helping slaves through the underground railway more than a century ago. Longstreth himself, following in her footsteps, has been a dedicated friend of the city's black population; he has every reason — especially against Rizzo — to expect overwhelming support from black voters who will cast about one-fourth of an expected 800,000 turnout.

Longstreth also expects to benefit from the deep division in Democratic ranks. While Rizzo won his match in May, he claimed less than 50 percent of the vote and he left some bleeding wounds behind. The administration of outgoing Mayor James H. J. Tate offers some fat targets for Republican attack. Longstreth hopes to pick up at least 100,000 defecting Democrats.

If the city's Republican organization can produce another 150,000 votes, the arithmetic would suggest a Longstreth victory. To be sure, every candidate doodles these scratch-pad sums. The melancholy truth is that the race is so clouded by racial, religious and ethnic animosities that old patterns offer small guidance. Contemplating the enigmatic slogan, "Rizzo Means Business," both blacks and Italian-Americans get the point.

Longstreth's biggest handicap, oddly, may be that he presents too nice an image. He is a big guy — 6 feet, 6 inches; 235 pounds; wavy hair, blue eyes, an all-American end at Princeton in 1939, a decorated lieutenant commander in World War II, a former Chamber of Commerce director. He looks as if he wouldn't swat a fly. If he can learn to growl a little, and practice a few mean faces in the mirror, he might yet persuade a majority of the voters to entrust him with the demanding office he seeks.

Miller was a consultant to the Warren Committee, which in its majority report proposed a central coordinating board to handle budgetary matters and curricula for all 16 universities.

Scott first endorsed this plan, but later, as opposition from UNC mounted, he called for a governing board that would also handle most of the internal affairs now taken care of by separate boards of trustees at each university.

Miller said doing away with individual boards of trustees could lead to unnecessary uniformity and destroy the "unique differences" of some campuses.

The other speaker Monday was Dr. James Delaney, acting vice chancellor of the State University of New York, who discussed educational structure in his state.

Before hearing from the witnesses, the committees voted unanimously to ask UNC President William Friday to appear as a witness.

Apparently Friday will be one of the few, if not the only, opponent of Scott's proposal to appear at the hearings. The schedule includes several regional university presidents, student body presidents from Pembroke State and Western Carolina, representatives of the N. C. Association of Independent Colleges and legislators who introduced bills on restructuring during the 1971 session.

The hearings are a prelude to the legislative session which will convene Oct. 26 to deal with the higher education issue.

Foes of the Scott plan are saving their big guns for two meetings to be held next week-end. Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, says 38 senators have accepted his invitation to meet at Wrightsville Beach, and at least 20 of the 120 House members will attend a meeting in High Point called by Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chatham.

Burney and Andrews both say they plan to present an alternative plan of some kind during the closed sessions, but neither has given any details.

UNC supporters have said they would oppose any plan that would split up the present six-campus structure of the Consolidated UNC. Scott has said he would not be satisfied with any type of coordinating or governing board setup unless the special status now held by UNC is abolished and its six campuses made equal in administrative standing to the other 10 independent universities.

UNC backers, if they support any change at all in the present system, have favored the minority report of the Warren Committee, which recommended leaving the Consolidated university intact but expanding the powers of the Board of Higher Education.

A third alternative was offered by Burney and Andrews who introduced bills during the 1971 session to study the matter for two years and take it up in 1973. Both claimed majority support for their measures in their respective houses.

Several other bills on higher education were introduced during the session, but all were variations on one of the three main proposals—Scott's plan, the minority report or the study commission.

HERE COMES PAYDAY.

All the work and time, all the mental and physical sweat is about to pay off.

You'll bring in your crop. The crop will bring in the money. And that once-a-year payday means taking off your farmer's hat, and putting on your businessman's hat.

You have to decide how to spend your money. Which bills to pay, when. How much you'll need through Winter. What needs fixing or replacing.

And how to make your money make some money.

You can get help. After almost a hundred years of working with Carolina farmers, we understand the special and unusual problems you have to deal with.

And since that century has been in banking, we understand money and how best to manage it.

So when you harvest, stop in at your Wachovia Bank. And talk over those decisions you're facing.

And drop back before Spring. We'll be there and ready to help you arrange your credit and financing needs for another year's work, sweat, and harvest.

Transferrals Are Refused

WILLIAMSTON — Members of the Martin County Board of Education, at their September meeting, denied a request for student transfer to several students. The board reaffirmed the policy that students must attend the school in the district in which they are residents.
Superintendent of Martin County Schools Eugene Rogers made a report on maintenance and minor construction schedules for several of the schools, pointing out that delay in receipt of steel items was delaying some of the scheduled work.
The board approved a request by the Bear Grass district for an additional teacher, and also approved an application to be submitted seeking emergency school assistance funds.
In a final action, the board reconfirmed the membership of the 12 member Emergency School System Advisory Committee.

Bid openings for the demolition or removal of three houses in two of the Redevelopment Commission project areas were held Sept. 3 with an offering on one of the structures rejected, the commission real estate officer reported Monday night.
Kirby Boyd told commissioners that one bid was received for the demolition of the Ives house on Cotanche Street and that bid was approved. Work has already begun on the structure, located some four houses north from the corner of Cotanche and Seventh Streets, and should be completed this week, Boyd reported.

The real estate officer said that four bids were received and opened for the removal of the McRoy house on Seventh Street behind Wilkerson Funeral Home. The high bid was approved, he said, and the removal of the house by the purchaser is expected soon.

Wagner said that efforts are being made to complete the acquisitions in the project as soon as possible. It was pointed out that it is necessary that the land be purchased in Newtown by the first of November.
Commissioners Monday night gave their approval of a property Management Plan that offers principles and guidelines for the management of property acquired in the CBD area.

The plan, required on every project, establishes among other items, administration procedures, occupancy and rents, rent rates, collection policies, and maintenance guidelines for acquired CBD property.
The plan specifies that tenants or owner-occupants in the property will remain in their houses until they are relocated or find another place to live or are assisted in moving by the commission.
A motion to prepare an application to HUD for survey and planning money for the Westside Project was also approved by commissioners. The motion initiates the start of planning for the Westside conservation, rehabilitation and reconditioning effort. The City Council earlier passed a motion indicating their approval of the project.
Shore Drive project manager Bryan McClure reported that a preliminary hearing on the Catholic Church property in Shore Drive was held Monday and the presiding judge ruled in the commission's favor on the constitutionality to take land. McClure said that the case will come up again in District Court in February for a price hearing on the church property building.

Rescue Senator

SAIGON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., escaped shaken but unhurt tonight from a barrage of rocks and fire bombs hurled against a church where he was meeting with a group of students and political dissenters.
McGovern and several associates were trapped inside the Roman Catholic church office for about 30 minutes. They were rescued by U.S. military police and embassy Marine guards summoned to the scene.
The identity of the rock and fire-bomb throwers was not established, but one witness described them as "Cowboys," youthful riders who roam Saigon on motorbikes.
Vietnamese combat police and soldiers sealed off several city blocks around the church.

A bid received for the removal of a dwelling at 215 Ridgewood Street was rejected on Sept. 3, Boyd told commissioners. The house will be re-advertised for bids. The structure is located in the Newtown area while both the Ives and McRoy houses are in the Central Business District project areas.
CBD project manager Lawrence Holt reported that the commission has acquired four more parcels in the project area, bringing the total number of acquisitions to date to 13. Holt added that an option for another parcel has also been received.
T. I. Wagner, deputy director and Newtown project manager, reported that there are eight unacquired parcels in the project area now. In the eight parcels, he stated, there are 18 houses that have not been acquired and five tenants remaining.

The plan specifies that tenants or owner-occupants in the property will remain in their houses until they are relocated or find another place to live or are assisted in moving by the commission.
A motion to prepare an application to HUD for survey and planning money for the Westside Project was also approved by commissioners. The motion initiates the start of planning for the Westside conservation, rehabilitation and reconditioning effort. The City Council earlier passed a motion indicating their approval of the project.

School Adopts Lunch Policy

St. Gabriel School today announced that a free and reduced price lunch policy is being established for school children attending that school who are unable to pay full price of lunches.
The Greenville private school, in accordance with new State regulations governing programs in the State for such schools, is furnishing basic information to parents of students concerning eligibility to be a participant in the free lunch program.

and increases in items such as telephones and telegraph; utilities and heat, janitor supplies; and fuel for motors and mowers.
The new budget also provides a contingency fund of $15,500, which is funds earmarked for the city's share of the completion of the new park on Hooker Road.
This year no funds are earmarked for purchase of additional land. In the capital outlay budget, some of the items for which funds are allocated include the purchase of a dump-truck, the installation of toilet facilities at Greenfield Terrace; the purchase of picnic tables; and funds to asphalt basketball courts in some of the city's playgrounds.
In his report to commissioners, Lee praised the work of Mrs. Beth Cayton who headed the Children's Theater this past summer for the second consecutive year. Two performances were given by children, with some adult participation, in the second season of Children's Theater in Greenville.
Greenville was also host to the championship tournament for the Roanoke Tennis League, a three day affair with teams from Greenville, Roxabell, Bethel, Williamston and Washington.

Sadie Saulter PTA Holds Meet

Approximately 100 parents and teachers were in attendance for the first PTA meeting of the school year at Sadie Saulter Elementary School last Thursday night.
Mrs. Fannie Jackson, a fifth grade teacher at Sadie Saulter, was elected secretary of the school's PTA. Principal J. E. Spruill spoke briefly to the parents and teachers attending. The attendance banner was won by Mrs. Jan Johnson's first level class.

Nonstudent At Rose Arrested

A warrant for arrest was signed this morning following a scuffle in the hallway of Rose High School at the beginning of the school day.
Principal Robert Alligood disclosed that Elmer Ray Perkins, who is not a student at the school but who was involved in the disturbance, had been arrested. A police spokesman confirmed that Perkins, an 18 year old Negro youth, has been charged on two counts, engaging in an affray and disorderly conduct. Perkins was the only non-student involved in the incident in which several students were involved.
The Rose principal also placed into effect for the second time this year the school's policy of telephoning parents of the community who have volunteered to report to the school any time problems arise. These volunteer parents carry on a system of being present in the school which began two years ago as the result of the Citizens Awareness Committee's efforts to control disturbances at this time.

"We are concerned about the present situation," Alligood remarked, "but there is no cause to be alarmed at this time." Alligood said several students received scratches and abrasions in the scuffle, but that none of the students involved needed medical attention.

Alligood reiterated the school's policy of serving warrants for arrest of anyone not a student involved in any school disturbance. "This is our only way to control such people," the principal noted.

Society Met In Washington

WASHINGTON, N. C. — The Tri-County Coastal Dental Assistants' Society met here last night to plan the year's activities.
The group, composed of dental assistants from Pitt, Beaufort, and Lenoir Counties, is seeking to increase its membership. All dental assistants in the area are urged to attend the next meeting in Greenville Oct. 4.

FHA Chapter Is Being Organized

The D. H. Conley Chapter of Future Homemakers of America is in the process of organizing for another school year.
Officers for the 1971-72 school year are: Jane Hall, president; Dorothy McCotter, vice president; Annie King, secretary; Marilyn Phillips, historian; Rose Boyd, reporter; Daphne Simpson, parliamentarian; and Lynn Boyd, photographer.

Bluefield, W. Va., is called the air-conditioned city because of its height.

Record $80.09 Average Set On Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE — All previous sales averages were broken on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday when the market averaged $80.09 per hundred pounds.
According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade, quality lugs, cutters and tips accounted for most of the increase. Primings and non-descript grades were steady.
"The volume of sales yesterday was heavy and each firm sold its allotted pounds," Williams said.
Stabilization receipts yesterday accounted for 1.24 percent of gross sales.
A total of 626,235 pounds of leaf was sold on the Farmville market yesterday for $501,527.68.
To date, a total of 5,332,540 pounds of leaf has been sold for $4,180,776, for a season's average of $78.40 per hundred pounds.

701 Enrolled

GRIFTON — A total of 701 students are enrolled in classes at Grifton Elementary School for the 1971-72 school year.

Dodgers Nip Giants; Just 2 Games Out

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

when the Giants called the Polo Grounds in New York their home, the Dodgers caroused barely 10 miles away at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn and fans called their pennant race one of history's greatest.

And it's still that way although the Giants have moved to the windswept Candlestick Park in San Francisco and the Dodgers bask in the Los Angeles sun 350 miles away.

every-dirty-name-in-the-book, stomp-on-'em-when-they're down, get-away-with-all-the-murder-you-can, don't-turn-your-back-on-'em way—and that's the way they played it Monday night—although played is hardly the right word. Anyway, the Dodgers won 5-4. And fans are calling this pennant race one of the great ones.

In 1951 it was the Giants who came on like gangbusters to catch the Dodgers, then beat them in the playoffs on Bobby Thomson's incredible home run, the "shot heard 'round the world."

Cubs 5-1 while Philadelphia was beating the Cardinals 6-5 in 10 innings. Houston edged San Diego 3-2. Cincinnati slipped by Atlanta 2-1 in 13 innings and the New York Mets beat Montreal 4-2 in a rain-shortened five-inning contest.

Two-run homers by Richie Allen and Willie Davis and a solo shot by Willie Crawford gave the Dodgers all their runs while Jim Ray Hart had a round-tripper for the Giants—but that's only technical stuff.

Frank Robinson Cracks 500th Homer As Baltimore Splits Two

By KEN RAPPOPORT

League Monday night, the Chicago White Sox trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 6-3; the New York Yankees topped the Boston Red Sox 4-0 and California beat Minnesota 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing a 1-0 decision to the Twins in the nightcap. Rain washed out Washington at Cleveland.

triumph. Stan Bahnsen fired a three-hitter and blanked Boston for the third time this season as New York beat the Red Sox.

They've won seven in a row and 12 games in 14 while the Giants have lost eight of nine. An 8½-game San Francisco lead in the National League West has dwindled to two—and the collision at Candlestick is only half over.

Players from both teams poured onto the field, and although no punches were thrown, it took the umpires quite a while to remind them that the idea was to play ball, not brawl.

When the game resumed Buckner, Marichal and Giants pitcher Jerry Johnson, who charged home plate Umpire Shag Crawford, were out of it.

The Cardinals couldn't stop Phillies rookie Willie Montanez, who belted two home runs including the game-winner in the 10th inning. His two-run shot in the seventh tied the game after Joe Torre, the major league leader in runs-batted in, drove in three to help St. Louis to a 5-3 lead.

"I thought about standing there and watching it, or doing cart wheels or shaking hands," said the Baltimore Orioles' star after belting No. 500 Monday night off Detroit's Fred Scherman and joining an exclusive club with only 10 other members.

The crowd of 13,000 at Memorial Stadium had considerably thinned by the time Robinson stepped to the plate in the last inning of the second game. "I didn't blame them for leaving," said Robinson, referring to the lopsided score and the six hours of baseball.

Rick Monday knocked in the winning run with an 11th-inning single to break up a duel between Hunter and Kansas City's Al Fitzmorris.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh opened a 6½-game lead over St. Louis in the East, beating the Chicago

Robinson didn't do any of those things, but he did clap hands as he circled the bases with his two-run clout in the ninth before a few faithful fans who remained to see the Orioles drop a 10-5 decision to Detroit in the second game of a two-night doubleheader.

Robinson had belted No. 499 in the first game as Baltimore won 9-1 and moved closer to clinching the American League's Eastern Division pennant.

The Oakland A's stopped the Kansas City Royals 2-1 in 11 innings and neared a clinching in the West. The A's, who haven't won a title since capturing the American League pennant as the Philadelphia Athletics in 1931, cut the magic number to two games and can win it tonight with a victory over the Royals.

FB Contest Starting

The annual Daily Reflector Football Contest starts today on the two following pages. The contest consists of 32 games, each listed in the separate ads on the two pages. Contestants should pick the winner of each game, listing that team beside the name of the advertiser in the entry blank, also on those pages.

To provide aid in choosing the winning teams, the Dunkel Index is also reproduced in the contest pages.

First prize will be awarded to the person who gets the most games right, with all ties counted as incorrect, since it is possible to pick a tie. Second prize goes to the person with the next highest total.

In case of ties, entrants should put down in the space provided what they think the highest single team score for the week will be, from among the teams listed. The person closest to this number will win first or second in case of ties.

The contest continues for the next 10 weeks.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

The Worry Clinic
True Religion
Calls For Logic

Linda is proof that when you "package" Bible facts attractively, you can win the interest of modern teen-agers. And even enlist their active leadership in church as well as Sunday School. But don't think religion is based merely on miracles. It is as dependent on high intelligence, as is mathematics!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case R-560: Linda J., aged 19, is a college coed. "Dr. Crane," she began, "I became interested in the Bible after I sent for your booklet with its wide variety of 4-answer Bible questions. "And I have recently agreed to teach a Sunday School class of freshmen high school girls. "One of them thinks it is impossible that Jesus could have Peter pay their taxes with a coin which would be in the mouth of the first fish Peter caught on a hook. "Dr. Crane, was this just a miracle? "And how can we explain miracles?"

miracles mentioned in the Bible. But none of them can even yet produce a grain of wheat that will germinate and grow! Nor a blade of grass or any other living thing! Oddly enough, the Chicago TRIBUNE on March 1, 1971, carried this news item from Bacton, England:

"Things are becoming luckier for George Dean. Three weeks ago he thought he struck it rich when he caught a codfish in the English Channel, cut it open and found a slot machine token. "Last week he caught another cod, opened it, and found a bronze 4th Century Roman coin that museum officials believe is worth about $240. "Occasionally fishermen have reported catching fish that had swallowed a gold ring or a bracelet or a wristwatch. Although I am not an expert fisherman, I once landed a bass that I had hooked a few weeks earlier on an artificial minnow. But I broke my line and thus got away. Later, I landed the same bass for that artificial minnow I had lost was still fastened to its lip. Many literalists waste a lot of time trying to deny the various matter of which menu items are approved or disapproved, nor of whether we wear hats or omit hats in church. For true religion is a matter of logic instead of miracles. The latter often attracted crowds and thus served as excellent devices for gaining large audiences quickly. But the essential merit in Christianity is its unique reversal of all previous customs regarding sacrifices. Therefore, all peoples tried to bribe the favor of their cruel, sadistic gods via sacrifices of food, wine and even live human infants, as well as adults. But God reversed this inexorable custom of one-way sacrifice from puny mortals to deity, by sacrificing his son Jesus. Why? To prove his vast concern and affection for us human children, since we were created in God's image, as his own offspring. But nobody had believed God to be comparable to a modern devoted father, raised to the nth degree. Calvary is thus unique in all religious history! Send for my booklet "The Logical Proof of God," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opening lead: King of ♠ West bid his time during the auction in today's hand until he decided that the opponents were in trouble. When they got to three no trump he doubled and North, whose r a t h e r questionable raise to three diamonds was primarily distributional, retreated to four diamonds. This pleased West even more and he doubled again. Unfortunately, he failed to uncover the killing defense and ended up—surprisingly—with a deficit on the deal.

West opened the king of clubs and South won the trick with the ace. The queen of spades was led and overtaken by dummy's king to run four rounds of the suit. East showed out on the fourth spade, discarding a heart while South shed his three losing clubs—and West helplessly followed suit. The king of hearts was played next, losing to West's ace. The latter returned the queen of clubs which South ruffed with the three of diamonds. A heart was trumped in dummy with the deuce. South now had seven tricks in, the opponents had one and this was the position with the lead in dummy:

The five of spades was led and South trumped with the queen of diamonds. West overtrumped with the ace and returned the ten. South won the trick in his hand with the king and led a heart. West was obliged to ruff with the eight of diamonds to prevent the dummy from scoring a cheap overruff. The eight of clubs was discarded by North and West was on lead at trick 12 with the nine-six of trump while the dummy retained the jack-seven. There was no way for West to prevent dummy from winning the last two tricks, by merely covering whichever diamond was returned. In all, South lost one heart and two diamonds. West could have defeated the contract by an original lead of the ace and ten of trumps. When he gets in subsequently—as he must—with the ace of hearts, another round of diamonds applies the finishing touch. South must fall one trick short of his goal.

Immersion May Be Baptist Issue

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A showdown is possible at the North Carolina Baptist State Convention this fall on whether baptism by immersion is to be mandatory for new Baptists. In a liberal-conservative split, the question is being discussed prior to the convention at Charlotte Nov. 22-24. Liberals say if new Baptists previously have been baptized by means other than immersion, they should not be required to be immersed. Conservatives maintain immersion is necessary. Some local Baptist groups have already lost a few churches over the question, including three large Charlotte churches.

Ringo Starr In Business Again

LONDON (AP) — Beatle Ringo Starr has gone into the furniture business. In collaboration with designer Robin Cruikshank and the British Steel Corp., the musician displayed his wares Monday before a buying public confined to those with money. The prices at the exhibition at London's fashionable Liberty's department store ranged from $36 dollars for chromium plated weights to $2,976 for a coffee table supported by two Rolls Royce auto radiators. The show is described as "lunar futuristic" and Ringo has promised electronic music to match.

Had To Make Agonizing Decision

By CHARLES HANLEY
Associated Press Writer
ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — "It just had to be an agonizing decision that I will have to live with."

The threat of massive violence that had hung over Attica State prison for four days had just ended in the rattle of gunfire and clouds of tear gas.

Thirty-seven men lay dead. And state Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald reflected on his decision.

"As regrettable and unfortunate as everything was, if I had to make the decision over again, I would undoubtedly have to do the same thing," Oswald said Monday.

The bloody assault on rebellious inmates by law enforcement officers and National Guard troops can be traced to the convict uprising of last Thursday, when prisoners gained control of portions of the gray stone fortress and took 38 hostages.

But the ultimate decision to use an all-out attack, at whatever the cost, to smash the rebels was that of one man alone, Russell G. Oswald.

He had the approval of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

In the hours following Thursday's rebellion, the convicts requested formation of a special mediation panel to hear their grievances. And a heavily armed force of 500 state policemen and sheriff's deputies was assembled outside the prison's walls.

In a dramatic face-to-face meeting with the convicts in a prison yard controlled by the rebels, Oswald agreed on the day of the uprising that there would be no administrative reprisals.

Friday, the civilian mediation team worked through a constantly changing list of demands submitted by the prisoners, and Oswald took the first preliminary planning steps toward an all-out assault should it become necessary.

The uprising took its first life

Saturday when William Quinn, a guard who had suffered brain damage during the outbreak of violence Thursday, died.

And newsmen were tipped that National Guard troops in Niagara Falls, Buffalo and Batavia had been placed on alert, an action that only Rockefeller could authorize.

Negotiations between Oswald and the convicts reached an impasse Sunday over rebel demands for complete amnesty and the removal of Attica's superintendent, Vincent R. Mancusi.

Oswald did agree to 28 other demands, but his answer on amnesty and Mancusi was a flat no.

The special mediation team continued to work, but it warned that only patience would prevent a massacre of prisoners and hostages.

Secretly, National Guard troops were moving into the town of Attica.

At 8:15 a.m. Monday, Oswald issued an ultimatum: The hostages were to be released and order was to be restored within the prison. He asked for an answer within an hour.

The prisoners never replied. One hour and 46 minutes later, helicopters whirred in over the prison and dropped cannister after canister of tear gas. State policemen, guards and sheriff's deputies stormed the prison.

Gunfire echoed from within the prison. And National Guardsmen made their appearance as 70 trucks rumbled up to the main prison gate and carried fully equipped troops inside the walls of Attica Prison.

In 10 minutes the assault was virtually over. But 37 more lives were gone.

"It became apparent to me," Oswald said, "that further delay would jeopardize the lives of the hostages and would threaten the prison system of the state."

He said the rebels had armed themselves with tear gas launchers and knives and had continued to fashion other weapons. He said they had prepared traps in the building they held and had erected electrically charged barricades.

"It became apparent to me shortly before the attack that we were dealing here with men who were fanatical, men who were revolutionaries," Oswald said.

"It was a decision that had to be made at the moment."

Attica's Toll Is Worst In Many Years

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
In violence and bloodshed, Monday's clash at New York's Attica State Prison was far the worst in recent American penal history.

The death toll of 37—nine hostages and 28 inmates—topped the breakout attempt at San Quentin in California Aug. 21 when three guards and three prisoners died.

Five inmates were killed during a riot of 400 prisoners at a prison in Raleigh, N.C., April 17, 1968, the high figure for inmates in modern compilations.

Three convicts were killed at Hawaii State Prison Dec. 29, 1965. On May 24 that year, three convicts were killed during a disturbance at a prison in Parchman, Miss.

Four convicts were killed in a riot at the prison in Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 22, 1954, and another on Oct. 23.

One prisoner was killed and 46 injured in rioting at Pendleton, Ind., Sept. 26, 1969; an official was killed at Montana State Prison on March 16, 1959; a convict killed at Trenton, N.J., State Prison Oct. 10, 1958; a convict shot at Florida State Prison on May 17, 1956, and a convict killed at Washington State Prison Aug. 20, 1953.

Several prison riots occurred during these years, but few deaths resulted. Probably the most serious was at Raiford State Prison in Florida on Feb. 16, 1971 when guards opened fire on 600 rioting inmates. Twenty-six were injured.

In 1930, three inmates irritated at work assignments set a fire in a new construction area of the Ohio Penitentiary. The blaze spread, killing 320 inmates and injuring more than 100.

Experts Mulling Births Decline

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of births in the United States dropped in the first six months of 1971, puzzling and surprising population experts at the Census Bureau.

Census officials had expected the number of births this year would easily exceed those of 1970. Now they're not so sure. And, although it's too early to say, they're wondering whether an important new trend is developing in population statistics.

Figures published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare show births from January through June totaled 1,755,000, a drop of 17,000 from the same period of 1970.

The Census Bureau had expected births to rise because the number of women of prime childbearing age, 20 to 29, is going up at the rate of 4 per cent a year.

Last year, the statistics bore out that expectation, with the birth rate showing the strongest rise in nearly 20 years—to 18.3 per 1,000 population. But the fertility rate, which measures the size of families, remained stable, about 2.4 children per woman of childbearing age. "The stability of the total fertility rate shows that the (1970) increase in births of the past two years is not due to an increase in basic fertility rates, but rather to the rapid increase in the number of women in the prime childbearing ages," the bureau said of last year's report.

But the six-month figures for 1971 will change that view if it continues, for both the birth rate and the average size of families will show a statistical decline.

Census officials are wondering whether basic attitudes toward a family are changing, whether abortion has changed the picture, or whether the economic climate had something to do with the drop.

The figures parallel a recent report by the Washington Center for Metropolitan Studies, saying the 1970 Census showed the number of children under 5 years of age declined by 15.5 per cent from 1960 to 1970—largest drop during the 120 years for which statistics have been kept.

The study said the decline could reduce births to a level where they would be exceeded by deaths within a few decades.

Truckers Report Year Of Red Ink

RALEIGH (AP) — Figures released by North Carolina motor carriers Monday showed that 38 per cent of the firms operated in the red in 1970 despite some financial improvement during the year.

The president of the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association, M.C. Benton Jr. of Winston-Salem, said the percentage could show a change because of the general economic trend when 1971 first-quarter figures become available this month.

Benton, president of Hennis Freight Lines, said increases in driver wages and fringe benefits, a slowdown in the economy and higher taxes were the major causes of the industry's financial problems.

PASS THE MUSTARD

NEW YORK (UPI) — As hot dog eaters, Americans pass muster beautifully. Each American downs an average of 70 hot dogs a year. Altogether, that adds up to more than 12 billion hot dogs annually.

East-West Troop Cut Is Undecided

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's deadline for disclosing a negotiating position on an East-West troop cut in Central Europe is just three weeks away but President Nixon still has not decided to seek any reductions, government officials say.

peating earlier statements that an American position on "mutual balanced force reduction," as it is known, will be ready when the North Atlantic Treaty Organization deputy foreign ministers meet in Brussels Oct. 5-6.

But "we don't yet have a firm negotiating stand," a State Department official said, adding "the subject is still being studied."

This does not mean there is any serious dispute in the administration, officials in both departments said. They indicated reduction is a very complicated matter and needs careful consideration.

"This is particularly true," one government official explained, "because there are 14 NATO allies to consider as well as Moscow and the Warsaw Pact."

Another source said consultations with Russia and its East European allies indicate some progress on that side "but at this time we are further along on a talking position than the Soviets."

Ribbon-Cutting Set Wednesday

Ribbon cutting ceremonies Wednesday morning will mark the grand opening of Greenville's new Family Dollar Store, located adjacent to Harris Super Market on Memorial Drive.

According to store manager Andy Willette, who moved here from Fayetteville to assume the new duties, the doors will open for business following the 9 a.m.

activities.

The managers, who pointed out that the store will have a staff of approximately 15 local employees, said that business hours of 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday of each week will be utilized.

Willette pointed-out that the new store will carry all types of clothes for men, women, boys and girls, as well as a selection of infants wear. In addition, the firm will offer health care and beauty aids.

Ask Commission For Higher Rate

RALEIGH (AP) — Public Service Co. of North Carolina is seeking a rate increase to provide $656,452 in additional revenue to cover higher costs of natural gas passed on by its supplier, Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Co.

Willette and his wife, a registered nurse, have one child, a daughter. He served with Family Dollar Stores in another capacity before coming to Greenville.

The Gastonia firm, which serves part of Piedmont and western North Carolina, asked the Utilities Commission for the increase Monday.

The company, with home offices in Charlotte, had 84 stores in operation on May 1 of this year, it was announced. The figures compared to 62 stores in operation on the same date in 1970. Stores are located, in addition to North Carolina, in South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Tennessee.

The hike would cost most residential customers a few cents more each month.

The company wants the higher rates to go into effect on Oct. 13 or as soon as its supplier is permitted to make its new rates effective under the wage-price freeze.

SEMINARIES GAIN
DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Enrollment in 179 U.S. seminaries edged up slightly in the 1970-71 year to a total of 30,966 students, compared to 30,434 the year before, the American Association of Theological Schools Reports.

Former Rifleman Heard In Medina Case Says Testimony 'Should Assure Acquittal'

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey says the testimony of a former rifleman at My Lai should assure Capt. Ernest L. Medina of acquittal of one of the murder charges against the captain.

mand assaulted the South Vietnamese village. The Army says Medina is responsible for their deaths because he failed to stop his troops from shooting.

In addition, he is charged with shooting a Vietnamese woman in a rice paddy and with assault against a suspected Viet Cong during an interrogation.

Capt. Franklin Wurtzel, about the shooting, before he took the witness stand.

"I think this whole proceeding is unfair. They (the Army) knows it's unfair, as well as I do," said Oliver, staring hard at Wurtzel sitting at the prosecution table.

by another witness, Michael Terry, of Oran, Utah, also a rifleman at My Lai.

"Gene Oliver had shot and I yelled, 'It's only a kid' to him," said Terry. He said he then heard Medina order a halt to any more shooting.

of combat stress on soldiers in Vietnam, was summoned as an expert witness on the psychological factors affecting combat troops.

U. S. troops in Vietnam, he said, feel "an enormous frustration because of mine and booby traps and from being unable to distinguish "good Vietnamese" from the Viet Cong.

In dramatic testimony Monday, Gene Ralph Oliver Jr., of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., said he shot and killed a small boy near My Lai on March 16, 1968, and that his commander, Medina, did not order the shooting.

Bailey said at a news conference afterward that Oliver's testimony should assure Medina of acquittal on the charge of ordering the boy shot.

"I hope we took the little boy off Medina's back," Bailey said.

Oliver was identified as the soldier who shot at the child

Dr. Peter A. Bourne, 32, an Atlanta psychiatrist who has published a book on the effect

"It's very easy to overreact in such a situation," said the handsome, dark-haired Bourne, who was born in England.

Given the circumstances surrounding the My Lai operation, said Bourne, "GIs going into that village built up a tremendous expectation of psychological gratification to avenge themselves ..."

"I saw a movement — a human form — and raised by weapon and fired," said the blond, side-burned Oliver, now a carpet layer. He said the child fell near a pile of bodies.

Oliver testified at Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s trial but made no mention of shooting the boy. Calley, 28, was convicted of murdering 22 My Lai civilians and is serving a 20-year sentence.

He was recalling the moment Monday morning when leaders of the rebelling prisoners ordered the slaying of hostages before state troopers, prison guards and sheriff's deputies closed in.

Acts Of Mercy

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Acts of mercy spared at least three hostages during the violence Monday at Attica Prison.

The government objected on the grounds that Bourne's testimony was irrelevant, because the state of mind of Medina's troops was not an issue in the case.

He realized "immediately thereafter," he said, that his victim was a child, when another soldier yelled, "It's only a kid."

In reply to a question from Bailey as to why he did not volunteer the information earlier, Oliver said, "It was something I tried to bury."

It was the prisoner's last act.

When it was over," said Fargo, "he was dead."

Then Oliver said he heard Medina yell, "Goddamit, cease fire."

The former GI said he decided to speak out when he read newspaper accounts that Medina was charged with the murder of a young boy. He said he then telephoned Capt. Mark Kadish, Medina's chief Army defense counsel.

The executioner assigned to guard Elmer Huehn told him: "I don't have the heart to do it. I'm only going to prick you."

Bourne also related, "an incident similar to My Lai" which occurred while he was with the Special Forces in Vietnam. He said he went into a village with a captain "after a fire fight" and they discovered the bodies of old men, women and children — "clearly non-combatants."

The dark-haired infantry captain also is charged with the premeditated murder of 100 other Vietnamese civilians when troops under his com-

Bailey asked Oliver to explain why he declined to talk to the assistant Army prosecutor,

Philip Watkins, another guard who was a hostage had a similar experience. "The guy had time to kill me, but he didn't."

He said the captain he was with was "completely unaware of the killings."
