

Air Armada Strikes At Red Targets

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — Up to 250 U.S. combat planes swept into North Vietnam today through light to moderate antiaircraft fire and launched some of the heaviest strikes since the halt in the bombing of the North nearly three years ago.

The U.S. Command said fighter-bombers launched 200 combat strikes against military targets inside North Vietnam, and other sources said up to 50 support aircraft took part.

The attacks against antiaircraft guns, surface-to-air missile (SAM) batteries, supply depots and truck parks lasted about six hours, beginning shortly after dawn and ending just after noon. They were confined to within 35 miles of the demilitarized zone dividing the Vietnams, the command reported.

Briefing of pilots indicated they came under no more than moderate antiaircraft fire and all returned safely to their bases, Lt. Col. Gerald D. Hill, U.S. Command spokesman said. They encountered no SAM fire.

The planes struck from a half-dozen bases in Thailand and South Vietnam, and an assessment of damage to enemy targets was not immediately available.

Hill declared the raids were launched because of increased North Vietnamese antiaircraft and SAM attacks on unarmed reconnaissance planes and on bombers attacking the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in neighboring Laos. The targets constituted a threat to the safety of U.S. forces, a command statement said.

The last heavy raid on North Vietnam was launched March 21-28. About 200 combat strikes were flown over the North in a 24-hour period by Air Force jets from bases in Thailand and Navy planes from two carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin.

There have been 60 so-called U.S. "protective reaction" strikes inside North Vietnam this year, but most involved only a few planes.

The magnitude of today's raids indicated that they were first cleared by President Nixon or Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

There have been four major strikes, involving hundreds of planes, conducted over North Vietnam since May 1970. Full-scale bombing was halted on Nov. 1, 1968.

When the United States halted the bombing of the North, it announced that reconnaissance flights would continue with fighter-bomber escorts.

Last year, the Nixon administration expanded its policy of so-called "protective reaction" to include attacks against supply buildups and troop concentrations inside North Vietnam that would threaten allied forces below the DMZ, plus SAM sites and antiaircraft guns that either threaten or fire on U.S. planes attacking the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Laird announced last Nov. 30 that pilots flying over North Vietnam and Laos had the authority to attack missile and gun sites if they determine by electronic equipment aboard their planes that enemy radar is tracking them in preparation for firing.

Secrets In Storage?

Predict Internee Uprising

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Wives of suspected subversives held in a Northern Ireland prison camp today predicted an uprising unless conditions in the camp improve.

They charged that their husbands who were interned without being charged were living in intolerable conditions with no facilities for recreation.

"Our men looked like trapped animals, peering through barbed wire," one wife said after her first visit to the camp.

More than 200 men held without trial under Northern Ireland's Special Powers Act were moved last week to an internment camp southwest of Belfast. Previously they had been held in Belfast's Crumlin Jail and aboard a prison ship in Belfast Harbor. Most were arrested Aug. 9 as suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The IRA's campaign of sniping and terror bombing continued, apparently under new guidelines established by IRA leader Joe Cahill during a secret two-day visit to Northern Ireland—his first since being refused permission to enter the United States 10 days ago. The most serious incident overnight was the bombing of crowded pub in Belfast's Sandy Row, a Protestant stronghold, injuring 25 people. The British army has charged that the IRA is trying to provoke a massive outburst by Belfast's Protestant majority against Roman Catholic civilians.

JESUP, Ga. (AP) — Superior Court Judge James O'Connor of McRae has been named trial judge in the trial of William J. Pierce, charged with murdering nine persons in three states.

Intervened

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — West Germany's Central Bank intervened in the foreign exchange market here today and staved off a record decline of the dollar.

The dollar made a strong recovery after the intervention. It had dropped to 3.3300 marks before the bank stepped in, then rebounded to 3.3597 marks.

Dealers said the Central Bank made spot purchases of $5 million.

The early drop in the dollar's value against the mark was the lowest point since the creation of the West German mark in 1948. This was the equivalent of 10 per cent upward revaluation of the mark.

Politico Stabbed

TOKYO (AP) — A disgruntled laborer stabbed and wounded the leader of Japan's second major opposition party today, police report.

Yoshikatsu Takeiri, chairman of the Komeito—Clean Government party—was taken to a Tokyo hospital, where he underwent surgery for two knife wounds. Doctors said later he was resting quietly but did not list his condition.

The chairman had just stepped from an automobile at party headquarters after attending a political convention when a man rushed from behind some shrubbery and stabbed him.

Police said they immediately seized the assailant, whom they identified as Takaaki Yajima, 29, a day laborer from Osaka. He claimed he was a follower of the Nichiren sect of Buddhism.

Study Proposes Giant Jetport

NEW YORK (AP) — A new federal study proposes replacing New York City's three existing metropolitan area jetports with a mammoth new offshore facility accessible from any of 10 satellite terminals.

"New York really has no alternative but to build this kind of a facility if it is to remain a viable city," Lawrence Lerner, who headed the study. "If not, the world is going to overfly it."

Raleigh and Friday in Raleigh, and Martin said he feels the sentiment is definitely moving toward the single board plan favored by Scott.

UNC forces relented a little in their strong anti-restructuring stand this weekend when some 30 members of the trustees executive committee and the university's development committee endorsed a plan drawn up by Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, and Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chatham.

The plan would leave the current UNC system intact but would create a strong Commission on Higher Education with

Cloture Vote Is Slated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leaders are confident of stopping talk and forcing action on the long-delayed draft extension bill, even if they fail in a vote scheduled today.

GOP strategists said advance head counts indicated a margin of one or two votes would settle today's roll call on an administration-backed petition to limit debate on the draft.

A two-thirds vote blocks a threatened filibuster, limiting every senator to one more hour of talk.

"Some cloture vote is going to pass, in my opinion," said Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott. "But whether it will be the first one or not, I don't know."

Scott, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., and other advocates of action to extend the draft—which lapsed June 30—said they would file immediately a new petition to curb debate, if the first vote failed, meaning another vote Thursday.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he would vote against cloture, but also indicated he planned no effort to persuade other Democrats to do the same.

Mansfield proposed Senate rejection of the compromise draft extension bill. He hoped to revive in a new version his amendment declaring it national policy to withdraw all U.S. forces from Indochina within nine months, if prisoners of war are released.

The Mansfield motion was rejected, 47 to 36, last Friday.

Stennis, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said Monday the rejection showed that a Senate majority believes draft authority must be renewed without the Mansfield end-the-war amendment.

The Senate adopted the withdrawal deadline provision during its original 32-day debate on the draft bill. It was dropped by the House, and in the compromise version worked out by negotiators for the two branches.

The compromise urges President Nixon to negotiate a final date for U.S. troop withdrawal.

The draft bill would extend selective service for two years, and raise the military pay by $2.4 billion, a move designed to attract volunteers.

School Bd. Okays Continuing Night Football Games

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The mood of the school board members last night on the matter of continuing night games was one of optimism as the board voted unanimously to schedule football games for night play.

As part of the discussion preceding the vote, Superintendent Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood read a letter from Mayor S. Eugene West. "It is my opinion that the game should be played as scheduled," the mayor wrote. "I do not feel that we can let a minority, whether they be juveniles or adults, create incidents of damage and possible injury to the majority of our people, and through their efforts of violence and destruction cause this game or our Athletic Program to be cancelled."

In conclusion, the mayor noted "I have instructed...that our police be prepared and they take any action necessary to see that the health, safety and welfare of all our citizens be protected from the small minority that might try to disrupt."

City Manager Harry Hagerty, present at the school board meeting, mentioned that problems in the past had been basically ones following games. "The aftermath concerns us," he commented. "There have been a number of incidents of bottle and brick throwing at automobiles. We're concerned about possible violent reaction to this type of thing."

The city manager said such incidents are not mere misdemeanors, but felonies. "We've got to stop this foolishness," he stressed, "and make no mistake, we will treat all incidents as felonies."

Rose High principal Robert Alligood outlined the advantages both as a morale factor to players, students and the community, and the definite financial advantages of night games over those played in the afternoon.

Dr. Badger Clark, commenting on the trend of thinking expressed by the mayor, the city manager, the high school principal and other members of the board, said "It's really good to hear this matter discussed on a positive basis. I feel this is the right approach, what the majority of citizens want. I think we should call on the community to support this stand to the nth degree."

One of the solutions to roaming students after the games is a plan being shaped up by several churches to provide buses to pick up children; take them to the game and return them after the game. A number of local ministers and others feel this will be a big help in eliminating some of the circumstances that have fostered part of the problems in the past.

In other actions considered by the school board, approval was given for the dissemination of materials in secondary schools relating to the Nicky Cruz Crusade. The manner of giving out the material will be left to the discretion of principals Alligood at Rose and Paul Rasberry at Aycock Junior High. Cruz is a reformed drug addict now engaged in an extensive nationwide crusade to warn young people of the dangers of drug involvement.

School Board chairman Dr. E. B. Aycock appointed Mrs. Robert Kittrell, Dr. Badger Clark and Henry Dunn as an ad hoc committee to study a proposal for the formation of a school-community relations program. Several suggestions for the physical make-up and duties of some form of citizens committee were discussed as possible points of consideration by the ad hoc committee.

The student holiday originally scheduled for November 2 was changed to November 9, due to a conflict in meetings of different professional groups.

Brief reports on the status of school facilities revealed that six roof mounting air conditioning units are now in place at Aycock Junior High (Continued on page 8)

U.S. Indicates Confidence On Chinese Issue

By SHIRLEY CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Expressing growing confidence that its proposals for keeping Taiwan in the United Nations are heading for passage, the United States plans to submit today its two-Chinas resolution at the opening of the 26th General Assembly.

The resolution calls for giving Peking assembly membership and China's permanent seat on the Security Council while retaining Nationalist China in the assembly.

A second U.S. resolution on China would make expulsion of a U.N. member an "important question," requiring a two-thirds vote for passage. Under the American plan, the question of a seat for Peking would be settled by a simple majority.

The State Department in Washington expressed increasing confidence Monday that its China resolutions are heading for success. "We made important progress over the weekend not only as to co-sponsors but in respect to voting," department spokesman Charles W. Bray said. But he declined to discuss the number of co-sponsors or who they are.

The prestige of co-sponsors is considered an important element in whether the United States wins passage of its proposal over an Albanian-sponsored plan to seat Peking and oust Taiwan.

Australia and New Zealand announced Monday they would co-sponsor the U.S. resolution. Several other smaller nations, including Haiti, also were mentioned as possible co-sponsors.

Although debate on China is not expected before late October, the subject will come up in the 25-member U.N. steering committee, which meets Wednesday and Thursday to organize the 109 items on this year's three-month agenda.

Adam Malik, the Indonesian foreign minister who will be president of the 127-nation General Assembly, is one of the few people here who believe Peking will accept a U.N. invitation even if Taiwan stays in.

"If we give the assembly seat and the Security Council seat to Peking what else can they want?" he observed recently. He added that he thought it possible Peking would change its announced position of refusing membership if the Nationalists remain.

Many delegates and Secretary-General U Thant say they take Peking at its word on staying out.

Other major items on this year's agenda will be the selection of a successor to Thant, who has announced he will retire Dec. 31, and the first full-scale debate on the Middle East in several years.

Co-Chairmen Named For Special UF Division

Co-chairmen for the "Gaul-buster" division of the Pitt County United Funds have been named. They are Mrs. Della Perry Dayson and Mrs. Ann Morton Edwards.

Mrs. Dayson, wife of Patrick J.

School and a member of the First Christian Church. The Daysons have two children, a daughter, Mrs. T. G. Nisbet of Chapel Hill and a son, Mike. Mrs. Dayson said, "Participating as a canvasser for the United Fund has always been a rewarding experience. In previous years, the business district of Greenville has been most generous toward this campaign. This year commercial establishments will surely meet and hopefully surpass their portion of the United Fund goal."

Mrs. Edwards is the wife of Clifton Hugh Edwards. A former Pitt County school teacher, she is a member of the First Christian Church and is president of the Ladies of the Greenville Golf and Country Club. She is an East Carolina University graduate. She and her husband have two sons, Shep, 17, and Clifton, 19.

"For all concerned, I think the United Fund is a more effective way to give," Mrs. Edwards said.

Dayson, a community planner with the North Carolina Department of Natural and Economic Resources, is an Ayden native. A graduate of University of North Carolina at Greensboro, she is a teacher at Aycock Junior High

Preparing Higher Education Legislation

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislative allies of Gov. Bob Scott will be working on a new bill for restructuring higher education in North Carolina this week while Scott tries to get University of North Carolina forces to back off a little in their opposition to his plan.

Rep. Perry Martin, D-Northampton, chairman of the House Higher Education Committee, said he expects a new bill will emerge from the joint House and Senate committees this week to put all 16 state-supported universities under a strong governing board.

The committees will meet

Thursday and Friday in Raleigh, and Martin said he feels the sentiment is definitely moving toward the single board plan favored by Scott.

UNC forces relented a little in their strong anti-restructuring stand this weekend when some 30 members of the trustees executive committee and the university's development committee endorsed a plan drawn up by Sen. John Burney, D-New Hanover, and Rep. Ike Andrews, D-Chatham.

The plan would leave the current UNC system intact but would create a strong Commission on Higher Education with greater budgetary and program powers than the current Board of Higher Education. It would also allow regional universities to become a part of the UNC system with the approval of the UNC trustees.

Scott could not be reached for comment on the Burney-Andrews plan, but both Martin and Senate committee chairman Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, called it unacceptable.

Scott has said he would not be satisfied with any plan that created a governing board but left the Consolidated University with its special status.

Andrews said he agrees that "sentiment seems to be toward a governing board in the state as a whole," but he expressed hope his plan would prevail.

He said the provision for other universities to enter the UNC system might lead to the system Scott wants, only the Consolidated University would become the governing board.

"Our plan envisions that possibility and even encourages it—it just doesn't guarantee it," Andrews said.

But Kirby rejected the plan because he said it "puts the trustees of the University of North Carolina in charge of the entire restructuring" since they would decide which campuses to take and which to reject.

Andrews said he could not see the UNC trustees giving in any further on restructuring.

UNC President William Friday has in the past expressed a preference for the governing board idea, but he has been publicly silent since his trustees declared their opposition to the idea. He has reportedly been trying to get the trustees to soften their stand, however.

Sioux Wants To Save Her Native Language

Associated Press Newsfeatures
GRAND FORKS, N.D. (AP) — Sophie Many Deeds says a part of America's heritage is dying.

She's battling to preserve it. "We're getting modern too fast," the 67-year-old Sioux Indian woman said. "We're forgetting our old ways. The Sioux language is dying out."

Mrs. Many Deeds wants the Dakota Dialect of the Sioux tongue to live on. So she sits hours after hour, at the University of North Dakota, listening to questions in English and replying into a microphone in her native tongue.

She's an "informant" at the Summer Institute of Linguistics at UND.

And she hopes to see the best of the Indian dialect preserved as it was once spoken and written and the worst of the white influences chopped out.

Her face wrinkled by a combination of nature's harshness and age, Mrs. Many Deeds said today's Indian child is much better off than, say, in the days when she and other Indians were assigned to land on reservations and not allowed to leave without permission.

But she regrets that the children now are forgetting the language of their ancestors.

"You deal with white men in the BIA (Bureau of Indian Affairs) and you do it in their language," she said. "Some Indians have a rough time."

Born at Bull Head, S.D., in 1904, just a few years after her ancestors annihilated Gen. George Custer and the U.S. Seventh Cavalry at the Battle of Little Big Horn in Montana, Mrs. Many Deeds spoke no English for the first eight years of her life.

When she went to boarding school at Fort Yates, N.D., she wasn't allowed to talk Indian.

"We were forced to speak English," she said.

Today, she doesn't delude herself. The native Sioux language once so much a part of life in the Great Plains is dead as a functional, everyday tool.

Mrs. Many Deeds believes the scattered remnants of the Sioux Nation, although they have either forgotten or never learned the ways and language of their forefathers, are readily learning to cope with the white man's world.

"But it's going to take a lot of learning," she said. "We never had things ... we kind of muffed it here and there, but that is the process of learning."

Don't Tell Hubby Girlfriend Thinks He's Good Looking

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago I was in the hospital for several weeks and became very friendly with Gloria, a patient who shared my room. Gloria was a divorcee, my age. We exchanged a lot of confidences and I told her about a fling I had with an old beau to get even with my husband who had a thing going with my best friend.

When my husband would come to visit me, he'd kid around with Gloria, and after he'd leave she'd tell me how cool she thought he was.

I teased my husband about Gloria's digging him and he just laughed.

Well Gloria got out of the hospital before I did, and wouldn't you know, she managed to get together with my husband. I didn't find out about this until after I caught them in my house in my bed, and the kids were even home at the time.

My husband says it was all my fault because I threw Gloria at him. Don't you think they were equally guilty? I am madder at her than I am at him. Have you any advice for me?

CHEATED ON

DEAR CHEATED: Yes. Don't ever tell your husband another woman thinks he's cool. It drives up his thermostat.

DEAR ABBY: I am 39 and have three preschool children. I am married to an absolute nut who has made a fortune in business.

He devotes 100 per cent of his time to his business—or to other people.

He tells me what to do and when to do it. I feel like a robot who is wound up every morning and programmed to do whatever he wants me to do.

If I open my mouth, I get a lecture or a black eye. Sometimes both.

I told him I was leaving him and he said I needed to see a psychiatrist. So I saw one, and the psychiatrist told me to send in my husband. My husband said, "I'm not going. All those head doctors are nuts themselves."

So that's where it stands, Abby. I want out of this jail I'm living in. If it weren't for the kids I'd have left him long ago. How important is it for children to have a father?

GOING NUTS

DEAR GOING: You can't be staying in that jail because you don't want to deprive your children of a father. From what you say, he's not much of a father anyway. Children need at least one sane parent, so stay with the psychiatrist and let him unbrail your brains.

DEAR ABBY: We have some neighbors who borrow eggs, half a dozen at a time, and bread by the loaves. We never get anything back. Last week we got an invitation to an outdoor party given by these neighbors. We accepted and had a very good time. They had good eats and plenty of drinks.

Here's the clincher: Yesterday we got a bill in the mail for $8.60 with a note, "This is for your share of the food and drinks."

Do you think we should pay this bill? If so, should we mail it? Or should we deliver it in person with a few choice words? When we were invited they didn't say anything about paying.

SHOCKED IN ALBUQUERQUE

DEAR SHOCKED: I would ignore the bill. And the neighbors.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to "On the Road in Indiana." Needless to say, my husband and I own a dog and it is necessary on occasion to take Misty on a trip with us. It would be a boon for people who have to travel with pets to have a special area for dogs. I have seen a few of these places in Massachusetts.

We have never had the experience of encountering souvenirs left by dogs, but we have seen half-eaten sandwiches on the ground, beer cans, paper bags, all sorts of garbage left by these immaculate people who can't stand the sight of a dog mess. If adults would carry a litter bag or use the trash cans provided, it would also do much to keep our country beautiful. It always amuses me nonpet owners fail to see the litter they leave behind.

I have also seen children left in locked, hot cars and dragged on a tour of historic sites. Our first consideration is to educate some of these delinquent parents in the name of sanitation, consideration and civilization, then we start educating the dog owners.

Jennifer: Former Model Turns To Show Business

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Jennifer O'Neill is a lovely lady who got an early start on success. As a teen-ager she was one of New York's top models, and by the time she was 17 she had already appeared on the cover of Vogue.

Now she's switched from modeling to acting and has several roles to her credit, in "Rio Lobo," "Glass Houses," and "Summer of '42." Currently she's working on Otto Preminger's film of the best-selling book, "Such Good Friends."

In a crowded apartment near the set of that film, Miss O'Neill talked about what it was like to have a career at such a young age.

"It was a super hassle," she begins, her voice soft against the general growl of conversation in the room. "We were living in Connecticut and I commuted with my father into the city every day. It drew me away from my age group so much that I totally missed out on any kind of high school life. Now I would advise any girl to finish high school before she starts modeling."

Miss O'Neill says she had wanted to act for a long time while she was still modeling, but that it was difficult because she was in love and she didn't want to travel. She ended up getting married instead. Divorced now, Miss O'Neill's thoughts on marriage are similar to the way she feels about an early career.

"I'd say it never hurts to wait," she states. "If you get married when you're too young, it's a miracle if you grow together. You think you know yourself, but the problem is, you're bound to change. I know marriage can work, but I know it's very difficult."

When she did start acting, she encountered a strange situation. "Paramount Pictures put me under contract to do two pictures a year, but they never assigned me a role," she explains. "So I started studying acting instead." She worked with Robert Modica who was associated with Sanford Meisner's Neighborhood Playhouse.

Farers Go Where The Gals Work

TROMELLO, Italy (WNS) — Bachelor farmers unable to find brides here because single girls prefer to go to the big city to work have themselves left town in a trailer drawn by a tractor. "We hope to reap a harvest of beautiful, hard-working women between here and Frosinone 300 miles to the south," explained farmer Bruno Paolini, 32. "If we don't we'll quit farming and go to the big city ourselves."

In New York and she also did more modeling.

"Finally I went to California for some screen tests," she relates. "I did my first film there, and it was a big hassle. I even lost money, since I was paid so little. I thought if it was going to be like that, I couldn't keep on, but I felt I had to get started somehow."

And sure enough, it wasn't "like that" for long, and Miss O'Neill admits hers was hardly a "10-year super sacrifice beginning."

But now, even though she's well established, Miss O'Neill says she still has some traumas—such as getting parts. "Just going through the anxiety of it is terrible," she says. "Either you're too young, too tall—too something. It's very frustrating."

"I've never learned how to detach myself from that, so it's always a terrible let down if I don't get a role."

Student Wants To Be Consultant In Branch Of Industrial Design

By JOY STILLEY

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Eleanor Eick is only 19 years old, but she's already come up with a plan to ease the congestion problems in New York City. It's all in a day's work for this student at the Institute of Design Correlations who has her sights set on becoming a private consultant in her field, one in which women are a distinct minority.

"It's very important for me to get over the idea that I have to get married and settle down and have kids," Miss Eick says. "I don't want to put down marriage—you can have a dynamic marriage and still have a dynamic career—but if I get married it will be because I feel like it, not because I think I should."

Meanwhile she is embarking on a career in a new branch of industrial design—one that concentrates on the behavioral aspects of design rather than on the more easily defined hardware.

"There's only so much styling you can give a toaster," explains the long-haired brunette. "Now we seek to get into what's not obvious, to learn to use our dreams and visions."

She came up with her plan for New York City while she was a special research student at Parsons School of Design here.

Her solutions, suggested as part of an Armco Student Design Program, included restructuring vehicles to serve multiple needs and modifying work patterns to use the city more efficiently 24 hours a day.

"You can't add functions. That just causes more congestion," she points out. "You can't subtract functions; you need deliveries and so on. You can't divide functions; nobody is going to tear down the city and start over. But you can multiply functions."

"The garbage truck comes to your house every morning," she continues, "so why doesn't it deliver mail also, eliminating one piece of machinery? The subway works at peak approximately four hours a day. So why not have cargo terminals at all major subway stops and carry cargo in off-hours on the subway cars? I suggested a new kind of arrangement, with seats that can be folded up quickly to convert the cars from passenger to cargo."

Miss Eick, who thinks almost all facets of industrial design remain male-dominated and male-oriented, doesn't plan to work for a design firm, thereby avoiding the possibility that "I'd end up drafting or going for coffee." Though she has encountered no discrimination yet because of her sex she has known women who have come face-to-face with it.

"People think that when a woman has a job she doesn't have to pay rent—she just goes out and buys frills," she says. While she considers it important for a designer to work with other designers and bounce ideas back and forth, the restrictions of a 9-

Colony Is Home Of The Beautiful People

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

A New York wag once said the Colony was the sort of restaurant where a man worth only $6 million feels as though he had $10 million. Not being in either bracket, I wouldn't know, but the place does have a charm that seems to boost your sense of wellbeing.

Gene Cavallero, Jr., the proprietor, describes the restaurant as a "neighborhood boarding house," despite its rather lavish trappings. His famed father did much to create the homey atmosphere for both the regulars and the celebrities who have flocked there for five decades.

Gene Senior, now 84, has retired to Lake Gardia in his native Italy, but his son looks after the customers' wants in the best Cavallero tradition, as the New York landmark moves into its 50th year.

The Colony has always taken good care of its customers, providing them with such comforts as scarce theater tickets, hard-to-get hotel reservations in distant lands and even baby sitters.

It has also been loyal to its regulars and carried one fallen Wall Street tycoon on the cuff for five years. It might be added that when the money man finally recouped, he gratefully sent a check for double the amount he owed.

For patrons who don't like to leave their pets at home, Gene Jr. feeds the animals free and segregates them by sex in the rest rooms until their owners are ready to leave.

The Colony is known for the gourmet quality of its dishes, such as Pheasant Souvaroff, roast partridge, wild goose ragout and Indian curry soup. During the grouse season in England, Cavallero flies in the delicacy, as well as plover eggs from the cliffs of Dover.

However, one favorite is a dish of peasant origin billed as Bollito, or in plain words, boiled beef. It is a perennial hit and Mrs. Leland Hayward, wife of the late producer, organized a Thursday Night Boiled Beef Club for the Colony faithful.

But things have changed over the years and the towering figures who once ran the top New York eating places are disappearing.

"It's all different from the days when flamboyant figures dominated the restaurant world," said Cavallero. "You simply don't operate these places on personality any more."

Maybe so, but a proprietor like Gene Jr. who transformed humble hominy grits into a gourmet soufflé on a bet, and who once startled patrons by munching a hot dog from a stand parked in front of the Colony entrance is something of a personality.

Here is Cavallero's recipe of curry soup:

MADRAS SOUP COLONY
1 quart beef or chicken consommé

1 teaspoon curry powder
2 egg yolks
1/2 cup light cream
1 apple diced fine
Salt to taste

Stir curry powder into consommé and place pot over low flame. With fork break egg yolks and blend in cream stirring gently. Remove pot from fire and add this mixture to consommé. Return pot to burner and beat liquid thoroughly being careful not to boil. Add diced apple to liquid and correct seasoning. Good chilled.

Swirl About Higher Education

There is a swirl of activity underway in the state efforts to reorganize higher education. Last week, the joint legislative committee held hearings on the matter. Perhaps the highlight of the week was the appearance of former governor Terry Sanford, now president of Duke University. He advocated a system whereby all of the present regional universities would be taken into

They Tell Drug Story As It is

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH The drug scene is a kaleidoscope world of psychedelic highs, black boredom, and a craving that takes $200 a day to satisfy. It's also rejection from normal society, crime and deceit among friends, and death always at the doorstep. Three who've been there told how it is for an audience of social workers last week as the American Public Welfare Association held its southeastern regional conference in Raleigh. The trio of inmates from Polk Youth Center, all ex-addicts serving sentences for drug offenses, told stories which made vivid the human cost of drug misuse and the threatening presence of the problem over virtually every neighborhood. The school yard, the military barracks, the street corner, they said, are places where drugs are easily available.

Those involved in social services for young people — "I prefer to say 'troubled youth' rather than 'youth in trouble' — must grapple with the drug phantom," said William F. Kitchens, court services consultant for the Georgia State Department of Family and Children Services and chairman for the workshop.

Problem Without Boundaries "The drug problem today is one which truly knows no boundaries, social, economic or otherwise. To some extent, all young people are exposed," he added.

In a field clouded by incomplete knowledge and understanding, Kitchens said, North Carolina has attracted regional attention by moving ahead to do something about prevention and treatment instead punishment.

One part of that effort is the "Tell It Like It Is" program at Polk Youth Center. Drug offenders engage in rap sessions, trying to find self understanding in their own experience with drugs. Then, on a voluntary basis, they go out to tell others about the drug scene as they've seen it. Over the past couple of years, inmate panels have visited hundreds of civic clubs, high schools, and other groups through the state.

Telling it is therapy. "I'm helping myself by being here," a panel member told the workshop for social workers. "If I can help others understand what drugs can do to a person's life, I get something from that that helps me."

Once outside, he said, he'd like a full-time job with a community drug action program or some other agency involved in educating the young about drugs.

Rapport With Youth "Kids don't rap too well with adults. What they read in a book doesn't get through to them," he explained. "I could talk to them because I've been there. Maybe they would listen."

A capsule case history presented by one member of the panel:

"In the Army, I met quite a few guys who were doing drugs," said Floyd. "One night in the barracks, I got curious and joined their conversation. One guy asked me if I wanted to try speed. I said, 'Sure, why not?' "After my discharge, my wife and I had a trailer. I was working and everything was going fine. Our daughter was born. She had trouble breathing and after about two weeks she died. It shook me up. A friend from the Army was staying with us and he gave me some acid (LSD). My first trip was a good one. "Things got bad. Our parents were hassling us. We decided to leave. "We were staying with some people in Fayetteville. We were tripping and smoking grass every three or four nights. My mind was getting so wiped out I couldn't tell fantasy from reality.

Crime And Drugs "I didn't have a job. My wife was pregnant. I had to have money. I broke into a few places and stole some radios and TVs and sold them. Then I asked a dealer to front me some drugs. One of my customers was an SBI agent but I didn't know it until the sheriff came with a warrant.

"Now I'm getting my head back together. I see drugs stood in the way of my accomplishing anything. My wife had something to do with that. She told me I wasn't going to do drugs after I get out. The three said their drug experience started with a soaring release from reality. "I felt so joyful and full of spunk I didn't want to do anything but go out and have a good time," Johnny recalled. That euphoria dissipates as addiction sets in. "The highs wear out with heroin. All that's left is the habit," said Joe. "I didn't want to be around people. I even stole from my sister."

Death stays near the drug user. An overdose can end life quickly. So can the shadowy overlords who stop at nothing to protect their profitable traffic.

"I know I'm lucky," said Johnny. "Every time I stuck that spike in my arm — and I can't count how many — I could have died."

"I won't ever take that chance again."

the Consolidated University for administrative purposes.

Also heard from was Dr. William Aycock, former chancellor of Chapel Hill, who would like to see a system with each university having a president and a local board, but with a small overall board to control budgeting and program offerings.

Also during the week the association of public university heads, with Dr. Leo Jenkins its chairman, drew up a list of guidelines for reorganization, to be presented to the governor. The contents were not released.

Later Jenkins, acting on his own, reiterated his belief in local autonomy for universities. "Each institution should be able to enjoy a continued reliance on the will of our people as expressed through their representatives in the legislature," Jenkins stated.

This past weekend there were private meetings of legislators with Sen. John Burney at Wrightsville Beach and with Rep. Ike Andrews in High Point. Burney blocked quick action on the governor's plan during the regular session by signing up a majority of the senators to a bill which would have postponed reorganization. The bill never came to a vote since the special session was set for October to handle the matter.

It is difficult to determine at this point what is happening in the higher education reorganization controversy but there is a feeling that something is developing.

It is possible that one central governing board will emerge, perhaps using the Consolidated University set up, with local boards to handle internal problems. If that occurs it is likely that the central board would approve new programs and overall budget requests.

Thomas Pappas Raises Queries

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A non-confidential memorandum now under avid scrutiny by a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee is certain to lead to a formal summons for testimony by Thomas A. Pappas, the mysterious, rich Greek-American who operates a multi-million-dollar industrial empire in Athens and has intimate ties to both the Greek military dictatorship and the Nixon administration.

Democratic Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal of New York, chairman of the Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Europe, specifically solicited the memorandum during his hearings on military aid to Greece in July. It raises grave questions about Pappas's role as confidant of President Nixon himself and as defender of the dictatorship. It is causing extreme nervousness in the Nixon White House.

Holding both U.S. and Greek citizenship, Republican Pappas and his more obscure brother John, a Boston, Mass., Democrat, are charged in the memorandum as follows: "They used their considerable political and economic clout in the U.S. to promote, simultaneously, their own financial interests as well as the interests of a ruthless military dictatorship — and all this at the expense of long-range U.S. interests in that crucial part of the world."

Author of the memorandum is Elias Demetracopoulos, a Greek exile leader of the anti-junta Greek resistance movement. His central theses is that Thomas Pappas used his "strong connections" with both Republican and Democratic party officials here to obtain rich economic concessions from various Greek governments.

As partner, in a highly unusual relationship, of Standard Oil of New Jersey, Pappas consistently exploited his political connections in Washington to undermine the pre-junta Center Union parliamentary government of George Papandreou and gain more profitable economic arrangements, Demetracopoulos's memorandum states. Then, when parliamentary government was obliterated in the April 1967 coup d'etat by the Greek Colonels, Pappas became its prime champion in Washington.

"It appears that on the basis of the public record alone," Demetracopoulos said, "Thomas Pappas and his brother became 'public relations men' for the junta at the highest levels of the Johnson and later the Nixon administration, as well as in Congress."

Ex-newspaperman Demetracopoulos quotes from an interview he taped with former Democratic Speaker of the House John W. McCormack on Aug. 9, 1966 (and arranged by McCormack's aide, Dr. Martin Sweig, a Pappas intimate now in jail for perjury): "The contribution made by the Esso-Pappas complex under the leadership of my very dear friend Tom Pappas," McCormack said, "I know is of inestimable value to not only the people of Greece, not only of today, but in the years that lie ahead."

But Pappas's power to sway leading Democrats is a mere shadow of his pervasive influence on the Nixon administration. As an executive vice chairman of the Republican Finance Committee and a large contributor to Mr. Nixon's 1968 campaign, says Demetracopoulos, Pappas's "frequent, well-photographed warm public embraces" with Prime Minister George Papadopoulos and Vice President Stylianos Patakos convey only one message — that the dictatorship has the Nixon administration's secret blessing.

Strength For Today

THE FINAL GIFT Heaven! What is it? A place, or a condition of mind and heart?

It is both. Here on earth — and heaven begins right here and now — it is a state of mind and heart, but in the beyond, it is a place. Jesus declared, "I go to prepare a place for you." "Place" in the spiritual world may be considerably different from "place" in the material world, but there must be a correspondence between the earthly and spiritual place, else Jesus would not have used the figure he did use.

The teaching of the Christian gospel is that heaven begins for all men and women as soon as their hearts are submitted in faith to Jesus Christ. The limitations of the flesh and the imperfection of the world in which we live restrain those heavenly joys within certain limits, but in the final judgement, when this world shall have been dissolved and remade and all that is earthly in us shall have received a like transformation, our capacity for heavenly joy shall take on infinite proportions.

Obedience here and now simply indicates who is a fit candidate to live obediently in the heavenly realm through all eternity. God will lift up our poor incompleteness and make it a thing of such infinite beauty that we may well sacrifice all the promised joys of this life in order to attain the final gift.

Scientist On Welfare

A gentleman in White Plains, N.Y., has come up with one of the most refreshing answers yet offered to a leading question of the day. The question is, What should we do about public welfare? His answer is Abolish it.

That is, of course, only a part of the approach suggested by Leonard M. Greene, author of what he calls the Fair Share Plan. Mr. Greene is no crackpot. He is president of the Safe Flight Instrument Corporation in White Plains. He is a computer scientist, a mathematician, and the holder of more than 50 patents. Five years ago he was honored by New York State as "Employer of the Year" for his work with the disadvantaged in his own company.

Greene's revolutionary plan, if understand it correctly, goes a step beyond all the schemes yet proposed for a "negative income tax" or a "guaranteed annual income." He proposes to give everyone, regardless of his earnings, an identical "fair share" to start with — for example, $900 for every married adult, $400 for every child.

Then he would do two things. He would first dismantle the whole groaning, creaking, mountainous machinery of public welfare, leaving just enough apparatus to mail out the monthly checks. He would then revise tax rates so as to benefit the poor and, in effect, to "soak the rich." In the process, he would remedy what he views as the worst single fault in the administration's "family assistance plan" which is that it soaks everybody — especially the poor.

In his recent speech to the Congress, President Nixon dealt at some length with the virtues of work. "Hard work," said the President, "is what made America great." We cannot maintain our standard of living, he said, "without continuing to work hard." The good life, in the President's view, "is the working life." And finally: "Let us recognize once and for all that any work is preferable to welfare."

Tell it to the guy on public welfare! Greene's point is that under the existing system, and especially under the administration's elaborate plan, it simply is not true that "any work is preferable to welfare." Instead of providing incentives toward work, these plans actually penalize work. Why should a person on welfare go out and get a job when 67 percent of his earnings will be taken from him in taxes?

In testifying before the Senate Finance Committee a year ago, Greene offered some specific examples of how the then-pending bill would work. Under certain circumstances, a family of four, earning only $1000 a year, might heed the presidential admonitions and find work producing another $5,000 in annual income. This is good? From the family's point of view, this is terrible — for the family would pay out $4,513 in taxes and lost benefits, leaving a net improvement of $487 for working all year.

Greene's idea may have bugs in it; I don't mean to endorse it out of hand. But his principle is sound. In actual application, starting at zero income, his plan would pay the typical family of four $2,600 a year in cash. If the family earned an additional $1,000, no income taxes would be collected. On the second $1,000 in earnings, the family is now at a gross of

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — What has been happening to your status lately? Is your prestige rising or falling?

This is important to know in a civilization where everything seems to depend on your keeping your best foot forward at all times.

Well, perhaps it's time we made one of our seasonal checkups. There are certain signs which unmistakably indicate whether you are on the boulevard to mogulism or on the downward path to mongrelism. For example, you don't have a thing to worry about if—

The liquor served you at the cocktail parties you attend is of better quality than it was 10 years ago.

You can now go in and buy your suits at stores whose windows you could only stare at before.

The airlines credit card you carry is good for international as well as domestic flights.

When he takes you to lunch, the boss never bothers you about office problems. He just likes to tell you long tales about how hard he used to work as a boy.

You and your wife can now afford to take a two-week cruise during the Christmas season so you won't have to listen to "Jingle Bells" so many times.

If it's too rainy for golf, you and an office pal can quit work early and go to an off-color movie without fear that your reputation will be destroyed.

You have had at least one attack of gout, a disease which, the doctors assure you, usually picks as its victims men of brains and driving ambition.

Now what about the signs that indicate your prestige is on the skids? Well, it is certainly time for you to push your panic button if—

The War Department budget for the next fiscal year calls for no increase in the strength of any component of the army and has decided to postpone requests for increased pay for officers.

Eight-month schools of the Pitt County system threw open their doors to thousands of children in various sections of the county this morning.

The second floor of the house occupied by Lewis Wilson, on Thirteenth Street, was badly damaged by fire early this morning. The family was not home at the time. The fire, which was confined to the second floor and roof, was estimated by firemen at approximately $1500.

German Inflation Experience

By ELMER ROESSNER
Economists who believe a little inflation is good for the country might look back half a century at what happened in Germany right after the first World War.

There, a deliberately initiated inflation went completely berserk and ended in one of the great economic disasters. The causes were many, beginning with a "reasonable" inflation started early in the war to finance Germany's military effort.

At the end of hostilities one impossible situation piled on top of another. German industry was exhausted by the war. Then came un-realistic reparation demands by the Allies. At one time they insisted on $50 billion immediately and an additional, undetermined amount to be decided later.

Germany was deprived of 14.6 per cent of its arable land, 74.5 per cent of its iron ore, 26 per cent of its coal output, and 68 per cent of its zinc production. All private German property abroad was confiscated as well as its colonies, which were probably liabilities anyway. In addition, a weak, vacillating Weimar Republic and internal political turmoil sapped confidence and nurtured economic uncertainty.

Rediscount Tactic Germany resorted to new inflation to meet its obligations and rebuild its economy. It was accomplished largely by the Reichsbank rediscounting all Treasury bills offered, at a very low rate. This amounted to nothing more than the central bank printing money for the Treasury.

Early in the war, 4.2 marks equaled one U.S. dollar. Inflation brought the rate to 8.9 by January, 1919, shortly after hostilities ended. A year later, it was 64.8 and going up. Twelve months passed and a dollar bought 191.8 marks. By January, 1923, it was 18,000 marks; August, 4.6 million; September, 100 million; and October, 25 billion. In the last agonizing days, one dollar was worth 4.2 trillion marks.

The everyday effects were disastrous. Just before the collapse, 30 paper mills worked at top speed to produce currency paper. Some 150 printing firms had 2,000 presses running continuously turning out the notes. Companies and cities began printing their own currencies.

But no one wanted the money. Bartering was common and foreign currency used whenever available. People forced to take marks got rid of them as soon as possible. Everyone held on to "tangible" property.

Price Rises Shops closed at least once a day to replace merchandise. Even so, receipts were not enough to replace stocks. Goods disappeared from shelves because stores sold themselves broke and because industry was reluctant to sell domestically. Accounting was a nightmare.

Purchasing power evaporated. Those on fixed incomes suffered most. Unionized workers fared better, but still lost ground in the wage-price race. Savings, insurance and annuities were wiped out.

Fifteen financial reforms were repeatedly set up only to be steam-rolled flat by the inflation.

'Shoebox Fortune' Case Still Being Investigated

By MICHAEL ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Paul Powell is gone but the investigation into his mysterious $850,000 "shoebox fortune" lingers on.

The political cronies who rode his coattails out of the dusty poverty stricken Southern Illinois mining towns and into political power wait as three grand juries sort the evidence.

So far, a former Powell business partner and two "foot soldiers" in his now crumbling army of 4,000 patronage workers have been indicted.

Yet, despite rumors that haunt the dim halls of the Statehouse, federal and state investigators who have worked on the case for months have yet to explain Powell's fortune.

When he died, Oct. 10, Powell, 68, was Illinois secretary of state and the only Democrat in the state with the nerve and skill to challenge Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and, sometimes, win.

Two months after he was buried, the executor of his estate announced that Powell had kept a secret $800,000 cash hoard, most of it crammed into shoeboxes, valises and old trunks in a closet of his suite in the St. Nicholas Hotel in Springfield. Later $50,000 more was found in a safety deposit box.

All told, it developed, Powell accumulated during 30 years in the Illinois House and six as secretary of state a fortune valued at more than $3 million. A Democrat who was well acquainted with Powell was asked how he got away with it.

"Got away with it," he snorted. "He didn't get away with it. He was just brazen as hell."

In 1965 a grand jury in Springfield investigated charges that Powell, who was secretary of state was supposed to enforce trucking regulation, was allowing some truckers to skirt or ignore the rules.

At the time, it was charged that Powell and others had

Sees Rep. Poff Leading Choice

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — House Republican Leader Gerald Ford says he feels Rep. Richard Poff is the leading choice in Congress to replace Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, whose retirement was announced last week.

The Michigan congressman told a Sacramento Press Club luncheon Monday that Poff, R-Va., "is one of the finest—if not the finest—constitutional lawyers in Congress."

Ford said, "I don't think even the most liberal of the liberals could challenge his objectivity and ... his personal life is beyond reproach, as far as I know."

President Nixon, who will appoint Black's successor, has not indicated when he will announce his choice. The White House says he has several names under consideration.

been operating a company that sold mud guards and French tires to truckers.

"If any state's attorney anywhere can find anything wrong," Powell drawled, "I want to know about it."

The investigation fizzled, but this year a partner in the now defunct firm, Seymour Emalfarb of Highland Park, was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of using means of extortion to force a trucking company to buy tires from Powell.

Bon Vivant Soup Cans Still Held

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said today some stores are holding on to Bon Vivant soups and sauces numbering thousands of cans in hopes they will eventually be cleared for sale.

"But we are satisfied that none is currently on sale," said an FDA spokesman, John T. Walden. "We have the bulk under our control and are satisfied most of the threat has passed."

The agency ordered all products manufactured by Bon Vivant Soup Co., Newark, N.J., off the market in July after a can of the firm's vichyssoise was blamed for the death from botulism of a New York man.

Powell, a sponsor of numerous bills dear to the racing lobby also came under fire for his purchase of stock at the discount price of 10 cents per share in Chicago Downs race track. He acknowledged reaping huge dividends on the deal but added, "My only mistake was that I didn't buy more."

Through all the controversy, Powell's flamboyant style and flair for cornball humor kept him going.

Papas was the unofficial host of Mr. Nixon's brother, F. Donald Nixon, when he went to Athens in 1970 to arrange motel and restaurant concessions for the Marriott Corp. Pappas gave a dinner for Nixon attended by Patakos at precisely the time the U.S. government was withholding aid with the stated aim of forcing the dictatorship to lift martial law, release political prisoners and hold elections. When Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans visited Greece early in 1971, it was Pappas whom he permitted to wine and dine him on a luxury yacht along with Greek trade minister, Spyridou Zappas. U.S. Ambassador Henry Tasca and bigwigs in the junta. During that visit to Athens, Stans obliquely praised the dictatorship when he said President Nixon wanted to convey his "warm love" to it.

Says Demetrapoulos: "The true Pappas influence in the various agencies responsible for U.S. policy in Greece may never be fully known, since by its nature the exercising of influence of this type is a clandestine matter."

That's what Rosenthal and his investigators of Administration policy toward the dictatorship want to know more about. They want to put Pappas on the stand under oath.

$4,000 — only $134 in taxes would be paid. If the family earned $5,000 in outside income, taxes would take $703 of the $7,600 total, leaving $6,897 in net cash. On up the line, of course, the tax bite would get ferocious, and the government would recoup its "fair share" quicker than you could say Nelson Rockefeller.

For the time being, at least, despite Mr. Nixon's plea to keep the pot boiling, welfare reform plainly is on the back of the Senate's stove. The Finance Committee will be absorbed for the next six weeks in coping with the President's New Economic Policy. It seems unlikely that Chairman Russell Long (D-La.) will then direct his energies toward the Family Assistance Plan. Long's enthusiasm for FAP is rather less than unrestrained. But the welfare mess will continue to cry out for correction, and the Greene Fair Share Plan — drastic as it seems — might offer a useful starting point for trying anew.

AMERICAN MOTORS INTRODUCES THE GUARANTEED CAR.

If anything goes wrong with one of our '72's and it's our fault, we'll fix it free. Anything.

AMERICAN MOTORS 1972 BUYER PROTECTION PLAN.

For years, car buyers in this country have been saying that instead of shiny new chrome every year, what they really want is a good car they can count on.

That's why American Motors and its dealers put together their 1972 Buyer Protection Plan. Here's how it works:

A STRONG GUARANTEE IN PLAIN ENGLISH.

When you buy a new 1972 car from an American Motors dealer, American Motors Corporation guarantees to you that, except for tires, it will pay for the repair or replacement of any part it supplies that is defective in material or workmanship. This guarantee is good for 12 months from the date the car is first used or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first. All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service in the fifty United States or Canada and that guaranteed repairs or replacements be made by an American Motors dealer.

This guarantee gives you 12-month or 12,000-mile coverage on a lot of things most car warranties don't. It covers air conditioning, battery, radio, wiper blades, front end alignment, light bulbs—literally everything we put on the car except tires.

In other words, if something we did goes wrong with one of our '72's, we won't have to pay for the parts or the labor. We will.

A MORE THOROUGHLY-CHECKED CAR. FROM THE FACTORY AND THE DEALER.

Naturally, we wouldn't be backing our cars like this if we weren't more sure of them than we've ever been before. For 1972, we've put in more quality control steps, more tests and more people to see that every car leaving our factory is as perfect as man and machine can make it.

At the dealer's, it's checked over again.

Every car (not one of 50, one of 5, every one) is road-tested for starting, handling, braking and overall performance. When the serviceman completes the test, he signs his report and slides it over the sun visor, where you can see it.

And, when a man signs his name to something, you can be sure he's done his job. And done it right.

A LOANER CAR WHEN YOU NEED IT. FREE.

Not only do we offer you a strong guarantee, we've set up a system to back it up without inconveniencing you.

If you have to leave your '72 overnight for guarantee repairs, over 2,000 dealers will loan you one of their cars. A nice, clean, well-equipped car in good condition. Free.

A DIRECT LINE TO DETROIT. TOLL-FREE.

We're making some big promises, and we fully intend to keep them. But, just in case you have a problem, we have a way of handling it. When you buy a '72, you get the name and toll-free number of a person in Detroit.

If you call, we promise you you'll get results. And fast.

These aren't just fancy words. We mean it.

Nobody in the business does as much for you after you buy a car, and it takes a lot of time, men and money to do all these things.

But we think it's worth it. Since we're giving American car-buyers exactly what they say they want, we should sell more cars than we've ever sold before.

We serve over 500,000 North Carolinians.
One at a time.

Wachovia.

STARTING TODAY, THESE AMERICAN MOTORS DEALERS WILL DO MORE FOR YOU AFTER YOU BUY A CAR THAN ANY OTHER DEALER IN TOWN.

In the sunlit peace of a Serengeti afternoon there's nothing to do but yawn...

A file of wildebeest passes on a never-ending migration across Serengeti.

... or exchange an occasional lick in drowsy companionship.

Serengeti

Serengeti National Park in Tanzania may have been disturbed by man less than any other area on earth, except for polar ice regions. The tourist brochure says that Serengeti plains contain "the greatest and most spectacular concentration of plains animals left anywhere in Africa, and indeed, in the world." No one seriously challenges the claim: scientists have counted 1.5 million large animals there, including gazelles, wildebeest, zebras, buffaloes, topis, giraffes and lions.

The park—at 5,700 square miles it's larger than the state of Connecticut—has no factories, jetports or other man made interruptions to its natural way of life. There are only the tourists, in Land Rovers or minibuses, who come to gaze through the shimmering dust and heat at nature as they've only ever seen it before in books or nature magazines.

Ineligible For Disaster Funds

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of New Jersey residents who live in a federally-declared disaster area have found themselves ineligible for federal aid to restore their flood-ravaged houses.

President Nixon declared the state a disaster area after floods caused by Hurricane Doria Aug. 27-28 ravaged a wide area. Though the White House made $20 million available for disaster relief, many residents have since discovered they don't qualify for it.

The reason is a provision of the Flood Insurance Act which says if the federally subsidized insurance has been available in a community for one year, residents who haven't bought policies are not eligible for the bulk of federal disaster assistance. Low income families are exempt from the provision.

One of the hardest hit cities was Elizabeth with a population of 112,600. Only 20 flood insurance policies were issued since the city joined the program in May 1970.

John Waters, the city's coordinator of federal and state aid, said that about 200 square blocks were flooded Aug. 27, and again when heavy rains came Sept. 12.

He said the flooded area included about 10,000 dwelling units including many single homes in the $25,000 to $35,000 price range.

Asked how many people in Elizabeth were aware they could lose out on low interest federal disaster loans if they failed to buy flood insurance, Waters said, "No one. No one had this knowledge."

He said many insurance agents were reluctant to handle the federally subsidized insurance because the commissions were so low they lost money.

"I've had people tell me, 'I asked my agent and he said there is no such thing,'" said Waters.

Waters had no figure on the total flood damage in Elizabeth but estimated it would run several million dollars.

Richard Philbin, disaster coordinator for the Small Business Administration, agreed with Waters and said 21 New Jersey communities were hit hard by flooding. He estimated the number of ineligible homeowners at "thousands throughout the state."

"We just can't do anything for them," he said.

Marijuana Hearing For 2 NCSU Basketballers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A hearing has been set for Oct. 18 in Wake District Court for two North Carolina State University basketball players charged with possession of marijuana.

Team captain Paul Coder and Robert P. Heuts, a parttime starter on last year's Wolfpack basketball team, were arrested Monday in a park adjacent to the university campus.

The two were released on $1,500 bonds pending the hearing. Lt. E. L. Randolph said the two were arrested after taking something from a car in the parking lot of the park.

Randolph said a search disclosed marijuana in the car. He said police had kept the vehicle under surveillance for 24 hours before the two students approached and entered the vehicle.

Randolph said about five ounces of marijuana was found in the car and on the students.

Coder is a senior from Rockville, Md., and Heuts is a junior from Chicago Heights, Ill. Both are 20.

NCSU basketball coach Norman Sloan could not be reached for comment Monday, but Athletic Director Willis Casey said action would be taken by his department if the two are convicted.

Royster Will Be Speaker At Leaf Convention

Fred S. Royster of Henderson, chairman of the board of the national Tobacco Tax Council, will be one of the key speakers during the 22nd annual convention of the Burley and Dark Leaf Tobacco Export Association Sept. 28 in Louisville, Ky.

Royster, who has served as chief executive of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association for 26 years, has had several terms in each house of the North Carolina General Assembly, and was appointed chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee during the Dan Moore administration.

Included in the annual program next Tuesday will be outlook reports on burley, dark-fired, and sun-cured leaf and remarks from three U. S. Department of Agriculture experts.

"As to what action, that's governed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association's rules, which leave it up to the school scholarship committee," Casey said.

University officials said cases of students convicted of law violations are reviewed and, depending on the court's decisions, may be referred to the Student Judicial Board.

In the past some students convicted of drug charges have withdrawn from the school voluntarily and others have been placed on probation and allowed to remain in school.

Athletes must be students in good standing, an official said.

The incident marks the second blow in recent months for the Wolfpack basketball team.

Ed Leftwich, who was dropped from the squad late last season after he stopped attending classes, did not return to the university this fall. He signed Monday with the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association during the ABA's hardship draft.

The President posed for pictures Monday with the 1972 Miss America, Laura Lea Schaefer of Bexley, Ohio, and the 1971 titleholder, Phyllis George of Denton, Tex.

Speaker Describes Blood Bank Work

Select Pou Bomb Home Of Labor Leader

J. W. Pou has been named Pitt County Farm-City Week chairman for the 1971 observance of Farm-City Week. The appointment was made by Jerry L. Bumgardner of Raleigh, state Farm-City Week chairman.

Serving with Pou as co-chairman for the county committee is E. L. Yancey, Pitt County Agricultural extension chairman.

Farm-City Week will be observed across the nation on Nov. 19-25, ending on Thanksgiving Day. The purpose of the event is to help create a better understanding between rural and urban people.

This will be the 17th annual observance of Farm-City Week. Last year's observance, according to final reports received at national headquarters, involved the active participation of more than 15,000 communities in the U.S. and Canada.

Farm-City Week is under the direction of a National Farm-City Council, Inc., headed by Irwin B. Johnson, director of information, Farmers Home Administration, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Kiwanis International will serve as coordinating agency for Farm-City Week and act as headquarters for the National Farm-City Council for the 17th consecutive year.

Cotton Increase

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — Cotton researchers in Tulare County are planning more cotton closer together to reverse a severe production decline caused by Verticillium wilt.

Narrow row plantings have increased cotton production up to one half bale per acre, growers touring experimental plots were told last week.

Tulare County farm advisor Alan George said the increase is significant because verticillium wilt has been a major factor in reducing the county's average cotton yield from three bales per acre in the 1950s to 1½ bales now.

The narrow row system does not stop the wilt, a fungus in the soil that thrives at lower temperatures, but George said tests indicate yields can be increased by more intensive planting.

He said cotton, planted on 10-inch rows at one ranch instead of the traditional 38-inch rows boosted production one half bale per acre last year.

Researchers were able to compensate for the wilt problem by placing 100,000 plants per acre instead of the normal 40,000, George added.

Another rancher experimented with 10 acres of narrow row plantings last year and boosted his narrow row acreage to 220 this year after experiencing a half bale per acre gain, George said.

Named District Club Chairman

Bomb Home Of Labor Leader

By RICHARD PYLE Associated Press Writer SAIGON (AP) — A terrorist bomb wrecked the living room of the president of South Vietnam's Confederation of Labor in central Saigon tonight.

The labor leader, Tran Quoc Buu, escaped shaken but unhurt. He blamed the Viet Cong for what may have been an assassination attempt.

Buu had left the living room a few minutes earlier and was lying in bed in an adjoining bedroom when the bomb went off.

Police said two persons outside the house were slightly wounded but there were no other casualties.

The bomb, five pounds of plastic had been placed against an outside wall or on a motorbike parked nearby.

In addition to blowing a 4x6-foot hole in the wall and wrecking the living room, it shattered windows in the three-story confederation headquarters that stands in front of his home. The building is opposite the headquarters of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Buu said he believed the Viet Cong were responsible because he is principal organizer of the Farm-Labor party, founded by the million-member confederation 18 months ago. The party is progovernment.

Buu was once mentioned as a possible running mate for President Nguyen Van Thieu in the Oct. 3 presidential election. It was the third terrorist bombing in Saigon since last Wednesday, when an explosive charge wrecked the Tu Do-Freedom night club, killing 15 persons and wounding 57. Saturday night, a bomb damaged a hotel in the Chinese section of the capital, wounding five persons.

The city has been on edge for the past 10 days because of the terrorist bombings, student and veteran demonstrations against the Thieu government and firebomb attacks by militant students against U.S. vehicles.

and will be ready for operation as soon as electrical connections are made. Final work on installation of cabinets in the new Home Economics complex at Rose High is scheduled to begin Wednesday, and a drainage plan for a low section of ground-around the new units at the rear of Rose High is being carried out.

Authority was granted by board members for an auction of surplus school items no longer needed or in such a bad state that repair would be impractical. The items, representing an accumulation of over two years, includes four pianos, mobile cabinets with sinks, 100 chairs and desks and three buses. Each item will be advertised and an auction date, probably late in October, scheduled.

Dr. Cleetwood informed the board that a request for Emergency School Assistance Program funds in the amount of $92,800 had been made. He added it was doubtful if that amount would be forthcoming as Greenville this year had no major administrative changes or problems that would give Greenville a high priority in approval action of such funds.

Six teachers were confirmed by the board. These are last minute replacement of teachers previously scheduled for the school year. The six are: Mrs. Wanda L. Allen, Miss Louise Cobb, Mrs. Harriet James, Mrs. Ella M. Powers and Mrs. Anne T. Williams.

Campaign By Galifianakis

GREENSBORO (AP) — Student presidents and others from the 54 community colleges in North Carolina were urged Monday by Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., to lead voter registration drives on their campuses.

Galifianakis said a potential force of 50,000 18 to 22-year-old voters exists in the schools.

The Durham resident said there is no legal deterrent to the registration of community college students since they live at home and commute to class.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, speaking for the Pitt Chapter of the American Red Cross, addressed the Greenville Moose last night on the work and value of the blood bank to Pitt Countians.

She told the gathering that since January, patients at Pitt Memorial Hospital had required 1326 pints of blood and the quote for the county during the current year was 2160 pints.

Mrs. Taylor said that 18-year-olds can now give blood, and parental approval is no longer required. Former malaria victims cannot give blood, she said, if they had the disease in the past two years.

"A normally healthy person can be a blood donor," she reminded, "every eight weeks," explaining that the human system provides rapid replacement.

The Norfolk center for the regional blood bank, Mrs. Taylor said, notified her yesterday that there was a special call for blood types O-negative and B-positive, for two cases of open-heart surgery that have been scheduled.

The speaker touched on the common excuses solicitors encountered in seeking blood donors, and reminded that all prospective donors underwent a preliminary examination to determine their fitness.

Nurses traveling with the bloodmobile, she said, were particularly pleased with the facilities and cooperation of the Greenville Moose Lodge, terminating the auditorium the most spacious and suitable site in eastern North Carolina.

To the membership, she said, "Thank you for what you have done in the past and what you are doing now."

Lodge chairman Lacy Harrel reported to the Moose on work that had been done to swell the number of donors for the bloodmobile's visit today and Wednesday.

Transportation for would-be donors who could not otherwise attend, would be provided by the lodge, said Governor Mayo Allen, by calling the office.

Allen praised the many workers who had been preparing for the bloodmobile visit and said all signs pointed to a large turnout of donors.

The Moose are sponsoring the current bloodmobile visit.

Mann Could Kick Self, But He'd Probably Miss—Vikings Get Win

By LARRY PALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Errol Mann could kick himself to day—but he might be off target.

Meanwhile, Fred Cox and his Minnesota Vikings teammates, plus their fans, are probably kicking up their heels.

Mann was one of several goats for the Detroit Lions Monday night in their 16-13 National Football League season opening loss to the Vikings before a national television audience and a capacity crowd of 54,418 at Tiger Stadium.

Cox booted a nine-yard field goal with 5:18 remaining to climax a recovery from a 13-0 deficit. He also kicked field goals of 13 and 42 yards while Gary Cuozzo hit Bob Grim with a 45-yard touchdown pass for the Vikings' other score.

Mann muffed a 33-yard field try with seven seconds left in the game which would have tied the game 16-16. Mann also missed field goals of 53 (twice) and 39 yards.

It was the seventh consecutive time Detroit has lost to Central Division rival Minnesota and it marked the Lions' first home opening loss ever.

"It was my fault all the way," Mann moaned in the quiet Lions' dressing room. "I hope to God it never happens again."

"I didn't get a good hit," he said. "I didn't get a good hit all day. It was my fault."

Vikings' Coach Bud Grant called Detroit "the toughest defensive team we'll play all year," but such comments undoubtedly won't soothe the pride of disappointed Lions' fans.

Detroit Coach Joe Schmidt, emotionless, observed: "We beat them physically but couldn't put the points on the board."

Lion quarterback Greg Landry, who lost his fourth game in four starts against the Purple Gang, completed only seven of 25 passes for a meager 56 yards, while Detroit runners Mel Farr, Altie Taylor and Steve Owens got 160 yards rushing.

Cornerback Lem Barney was the victim of Grim's touchdown and also fumbled a kickoff on his own 20 with 9½ minutes remaining to hand the winning opportunity to the Vikes.

Cuozzo completed 19 of 32 passes for 232 yards. Grim and Dave Osborn were his prime targets, the first hauling in seven aerials for 126 yards and the latter five for 40.

Cox's winning kick came several plays after safety Karl Kassulke recovered Barney's fumble at the Lion 20. Five minutes earlier he connected on the 42-yarder, climaxing a 12-play drive from the Minnesota 12.

Detroit jumped to a 10-0 lead with a little luck and the game only six minutes old.

The Lions drove 71 yards with the opening kickoff, with Mann kicking a 20-yard field goal moments after a Landry pass slipped through split end Larry Walton's hands in the end zone.

Clint Jones fumbled the ensuing kickoff and Craig Cotton recovered for Detroit at the Viking 21.

Four plays and a holding penalty late Landry flipped a three-yard scoring pass to Farr.

Detroit couldn't capitalize on other Minnesota mistakes. Mann missed his 39-yarder moments after Farr's TD and Lion defensive end Larry Hand pounced on Osborn's fumble at the Viking 35.

Following Mann's 36-yard field goal at 10:15 of the second quarter, Minnesota drove from its 34 to the Lions six. Then Cox kicked his 13-yarder with six seconds left in the half.

The Vikings received the kickoff to open the second half and it took six plays to score a touchdown. Grim caught a 42-yard pass from Cuozzo in front of Barney at the Detroit three, fell, and when Barney didn't make the tackle, got up and walked into the end zone.

Toledo, Duke Move Into Poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Nebraska held onto first place today in The Associated Press college football poll but Notre Dame cut deeply into the Cornhusker's huge lead of one week ago.

Behind the four holdover leaders—Nebraska, Notre Dame, Texas and Michigan—there was a slight reshuffling among the Top Ten, with Auburn climbing from seventh to fifth in the wake of a 60-7 thrashing of UT-Chattanooga.

Nebraska's defending national champions received 32 first-place votes and 1,044 points from a panel of 55 sports writers and broadcasters. Eighteen electors gave the top spot to Notre Dame and the Irish polled 1,002 points.

A week ago Nebraska's lead was 102 points, but the voters apparently were influenced by Notre Dame's 50-7 rout of highly regarded Northwestern while Nebraska defeated Minnesota 35-7.

Texas, which opened with a 28-10 triumph over UCLA, received three first-place ballots and 799 points, 49 more than Michigan, which crushed Virginia 56-0. The other two first-place votes went to Auburn, which accumulated 498 points.

That was enough to push the Tigers past idle Ohio State, which fell to sixth with 483 points, only three more than Arkansas, which trimmed Oklahoma State 31-10 but fell one position to seventh, a victim of Auburn's jump.

Alabama trounced Southern Mississippi 42-6 and inched from ninth to eighth with 406 points, changing spots with Tennessee, a 48-6 winner over UC-Santa Barbara, six points back.

Colorado walloped Wyoming 56-13 and went from 12th to 10th, supplanting Oklahoma in the Top Ten although the Sooners drubbed Southern Methodist 30-0.

Oklahoma headed the Second Ten, followed by Penn State, up from 14th to 12th, and Stanford, which remained 13th. Then came Georgia, down three places to 14th, trailed by Arizona State and Southern California, each up one.

winning one on Bobby Grich's two run bases-loaded single that gave Pat Dobson his 19th victory.

Skip Lockwood, recording his 10th victory, tamed the Twins on four hits and drove in the only run he needed with a second-inning grounder.

Gridder Is Dead

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Bill Arnold, sophomore offensive guard on the University of North Carolina football team who was in critical condition for two weeks after collapsing during practice, died today at North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

The 6-foot-2, 224-pounder from Staten Island, N.Y., suffered heat prostration during a pre-season workout on Labor Day. He collapsed while running wind sprints at the end of the drill.

Heat prostration with complications was given as the cause of death by the hospital. Arnold, who was 20, captained football, lacrosse and wrestling teams at Woodberry Forest School before coming to North Carolina.

Reversal In Net Doubles

The team of Ron Hignite and Wes Hankins captured the Greenville Tennis Club's men's doubles championships yesterday, defeating last year's winning team.

Hignite and Hankins won their way into the finals with a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Andy Warren and Smokey Lancaster. They then met Wilkins Winn and Norm Rosenfeld, who had defeated Jack Stoughton and Joe Hallow, 6-3, 9-7.

The finals match set up a

Elks Is Winner

Clyde Elks of P.O. Box 192, Grimesland, is the winner of the first week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Elks correctly picked the winner in 24 of the 31 games listed in the contest. One game, the Kansas State-Tulsa affair was not graded right or wrong because it was incorrectly listed in the contest ads. Two other games, which ended in ties were counted wrong, since a tie could have been picked.

Elks won the contest on the basis of his point guess of 70, which was closest to the actual total of 73 in The Citadel's 38-35 victory over Bucknell. Second place went to Bobby Jones of 106 Heritage Street, Greenville, who also had 24 right, but was further off the point totals with a guess of 65.

One other person also picked 24 correctly, but was further off the total.

The second week's contest appears on the following pages.

replay of last year's title match between the four, with only the outcome different. Hignite and Hankins won the match, 6-4, 6-1.

In the first flight, Chuck Bissett and Howard Hussey downed John Flanagan and Charles Vincent, 6-4, 6-1, while Earl Castello and Bick Woodard beat Jack Weedon and George Hamilton, 6-0, 6-2, in the semi-finals.

In the finals, Castello and Woodard took the title, 6-2, 6-4.

In the first flight of the singles, Andy Warren downed Al Winn, 6-3, 6-2.

In second flight competition, Bick Woodard beat George Hamilton for the title. In the third flight, Knot Proctor beat Dan Morgan, 7-5, 6-2, and then met Joe Edgar, who downed John Hill, 6-1, 6-1. Edgar swept through the finals, 6-0, 6-0.

The championship flight in the singles was postponed until Wednesday.

Alabama vs. Florida

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

RATS FIND STARDOM — Rats appearing in the surprise hit of the summer movie season crawl over the man who trained them, Moe DiSesso, for their roles in "Willard". (AP Wirephoto)

'Ben' And Trained Rats To Be In Movie Sequel

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who would have guessed that the big hit of the summer movie season would turn out to be a film about a boy and his collection of rats?

Possibly nobody except the two men responsible for bringing "Willard" to the screen: Charles Pratt, president of Bing Crosby Productions, and Mort Briskin, who produced the picture.

"We thought from the beginning that it was going to do well," says Briskin.

"What we made was a damned good, entertaining, exciting picture—without a message," adds Pratt.

The results confirm their faith. "Willard," which was filmed for $1 million, has already drawn $15 million through the nation's box offices.

Aside from giving a boost to an otherwise dismal summer for the movies business, "Willard" offered a good example of how daring showmanship can succeed.

Bing Crosby Productions—the singer is no longer with it, having sold out to Cox Broadcasting three years ago—herebefore specialized in television series like "Ben Casey" and "Hogan's Heroes." Pratt and Briskin decided the company should venture into the perilous field of features.

They came across a slim novel "Ratmanos Notebooks" by Stephen Gilbert, which had been passed up by all the major studios.

"I read it in an hour and a half one morning, and gave it to Chuck," Briskin recalled.

Tar Heels Held In Drug Arrests

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Two North Carolina men were being held in connection with what police called "the largest single confiscation of marijuana in Howard County's history" last weekend.

Dean K. Sparks, 23, of Sumnerfield, N.C., and Donald R. Hatches, 20, of Greensboro, N.C. were being held at the county jail here in lieu of $10,000 bond apiece, county police said Monday.

The pair were arrested about five hours after two men fled a campsite raided by police, who said 36 pounds of marijuana banded in one-pound bags and valued at $4,000 was seized. Both have been charged with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute, a felony.

FORESTLAND FOR FUN
NEW YORK (UPI) —About 16 million acres of U.S. forestland have been set aside for parks and wilderness areas since about 1900, says the American Forest Institute. This is the combined area of Rhode Island, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Delaware.

"He read it before lunch and our reaction was the same: we both loved it. We immediately began negotiations to buy it."

"We did so in the face of a basic industry no-no. Traditionally, rats were never shown on the screen, for fear that women in the audience would be frightened."

The producers assigned trainer Moe DiSesso to produce a breed of rat actors.

"Our rats had to be trained from birth," explained Pratt.

"By being played with as babies, they had no fear of humans and would respond to a few commands."

The human actors took well to the rats. Bruce Davidson, who played Willard, walked around the set with two on his shoulder. Ernest Borgnine uncomplainingly allowed 200 to crawl over his body.

Briskin and Pratt figure one good rat picture deserves another, and they'll start shooting a sequel, "Ben," in November.

Awards Go To Underwriters

The presentation of awards and certificates highlighted the first fall meeting of the Pitt County Association of Life Underwriters Friday at Parkers Barbecue.

Some 24 PCALU members and six guests were on hand for the organization session. New association president, Stuart L. Buchanan presided.

Past president Bill Smith presented Ken Barnes an award for his public service work with the "medic alert" program for the 1970-71 year.

Leon Smith, moderator for part two of the Life Underwriter Training Course, presented certificates for the completion of the 26-week study course to Buchanan, Fred Daniels, Billy Goodson, Richard Hunsucker, Leonard Hignite, Seth Jones, James Manning, Larry Mazingo, and Bill Smith.

Certificates for national achievement were presented to agents who sold a minimum of $10,000 in annual premiums in the 1970 year. They were: Harold C. Bullard, William McDonald, and William R. Stroud, first year; Johnny W. Spencer, and Fred Daniels, second year; Bob Lawhead, James O. Perry Jr., and Billy Ellis, third year; Ray W. Nichols, fourth year; and Max R. Joyner and W. M. Scales, sixth year.

Buchanan announced the winners in the women's division of the Women Leaders Round Table—over $500,000 paid business volume in the 1970 calendar year. Winners were Jeanette Baur, Gayle C. Linton, and Minnie Mae Smith.

The president reminded members that the October meeting will be held on the 15th at Parker's. Dr. James Knipe from East Carolina University will be the guest speaker.

Faces Trial For Reptile Thefts

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A North Carolinian charged with burglary in the theft of two gila monsters and five rattlesnakes from Ft. Huachuca was held on $2,500 bond after arraignment before a U.S. magistrate Monday.

David E. Burge, of Cullowhee, N.C., asked Magistrate Richard Cormley to appoint an attorney for him.

Burge was arrested last week by local law enforcement officials after he was caught allegedly attempting to smuggle the reptiles, including several rare rattlesnake species, to North Carolina.

FBI agents said the Gila monsters and several of the snakes had been taken from the game management building at the fort on Sept. 12.

The Gila monsters and all but five of 17 rattlesnakes he caught died in the shipping crates from heat, officials said.

Old Friends Return To Monday Night's Screen

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — After all the hectic dial flipping last week as the three networks unreel their new series, there was the pleasant prospect of getting back to some old Monday night friends.

Starting with "Gunsmoke," there were signs of change. Marshal Dillon and friends seemed to be taking an extra week off—Matt and Festus had bit parts. Glenn Corbett played an ex-convict committed to kill a former lawman who had wounded and arrested his prison cellmate. The plot concentrated on the would-be hired killer, his elderly quarry and the latter's young wife.

It is unusual for series regulars to remove themselves so completely from the action, but it was not a bad idea. "Gunsmoke" after all these seasons remains good meat-and-potatoes television fare.

"Here's Lucy" followed on CBS, opening the network's two-hour block of half hour situation comedies. Nothing has changed in the perennially suc-

No Reducing Leaf Stocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Per capita cigarette smoking by Americans is expected to rise slightly this year for the first time since 1966 but the rise will not diminish the nation's stockpile of tobacco, the Agriculture Department says.

The department says Americans 18 years and older are expected to average 3,989 cigarettes about 200 packs each this year, an increase of four cigarettes from 1970.

According to USDA records, that will mean the first upturn in five years. In 1966, per capita cigarette use was 4,287 or more than 214 packs, a rise of 29 cigarettes from 1965.

Since 1966, the records show, the per capita rate declined annually until this year.

Even so, manufacturers in recent years have put less tobacco in cigarettes, thus meaning a smaller market for tobacco farmers.

Total use for domestic and export purposes during the year ended June 30 was 1.93 billion pounds. The department said in an outlook report issued Monday that 1971-72 use may be "slightly below" last fiscal year, despite the small upturn in per capita cigarette smoking.

Exports are expected to be down from 635 million pounds in 1970-71, the report said. No exact estimate was made.

Despite a smaller 1971 crop, largely as the result of tighter controls, the supply of tobacco available during the 1971-72 marketing year is expected to be large in relation to demand. The report put the supply, including carryover from previous crops, at more than 5.4 billion pounds.

cessful Lucille Ball comedy format although her second show of the new season was hardly the comedienne's proudest 30 minutes. It was a bit of nonsense that had Tony Randall posturing around as a health food and exercise freak who persuaded Lucy to climb a mountain.

Some new people are around the office in this season's revised "Doris Day Show"—mostly a grumpy boss—and Doris who used to be called "Mrs. Martin" is now "Miss Martin." But the situation still appears light and girlishly funny. The story had her and Billy de Wolfe, who still plays her testy neighbor, arrested for a jewelry store burglary. She was not around the office much so Doris' switch to bachelor-girl after three seasons as the mother of two was not particularly noticeable.

"My Three Sons" which now follows the Day show is a newcomer in the Monday night lineup. It and "Arnie" which winds up the evening are designed to appeal to young and older audiences and previously appeared in time periods when these groups dominated the audiences.

The Fred MacMurray comedy series was in the middle of a three-part story involving a look-alike cousin of father Stephen Douglas, a Scotsman also played by MacMurray. It is a pleasant show that might be easy to wander away from except that the opposition on one side is half way through a theatrical movie and, on the other, half way through a football game.

"Arnie," seems to be moving toward broad comedy after a season of poking gentle fun at the business community. Charles Nelson Reilly roared into the picture Monday as "the Giddyap Gourmet," a television chef given to dropping the salami and banging his head on pans: Herschel Bernardi in the title role, had little to do except play straight man to Reilly.

Like "My Three Sns," it is a pretty good program but seems to be in the wrong time period.

The Worry Clinic Vulnerable In A Second Try

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Alas, Karl's case is duplicated thousands of times every year. For diplomatic friends often delay too long! Recently bereaved widows are even more vulnerable to Karl's type of error. So send for the S-M-F questionnaire and pass it along. Help produce happier marriages!

Case R-568: Karl J., aged 39, recently became a widower.

"Dr. Crane," his boss began, "Karl and his wife were an ideal couple."

"So her death was a severe blow."

"Because he was so dependent on her and had been so happy in his marriage, we felt he would ultimately remarry."

"My wife suggested that we urge him to send to your Scientific Marriage Foundation and get him an application."

"But we felt it would be tactful to wait for a few months."

"Yet we just learned yesterday that Karl has met another woman, who apparently caught him on the rebound."

"For she is definitely not suited to Karl, either in religion or temperament."

"But in his emotional upset state, she offered him sympathy and cleverly manipulated him till he proposed."

"Dr. Crane, who don't you warn recently bereaved husbands and widows about this danger."

"For aren't they in too disturbed an emotional condition to make such a vital decision as a second marriage?"

ASK FOR S-M-F

Yes, the ideal way to meet a possible second marriage partner is not to rely on chance.

Nor to be unduly influenced by sympathy while you are still figuratively "punch drunk" with grief and loneliness.

Instead, seek the help of our S-M-F (Scientific Marriage Foundation), for it would have introduced Karl to several certified women of his own religion, temperament and social as well as educational outlook.

The S-M-F is an ecumenical, charitable foundation, with 2,500 volunteer Priests, Rabbis and Protestant Ministers who willingly grant applicants a 30-minute private interview.

Dr. Peale, Monsignor Ward, Rabbi Samuel Silver and other leading clergymen donate their time to serve on the S-M-F Board.

Like the YMCO and Salvation Army, the S-M-F serves as a scientific counseling service to make sure you are introduced to people who match you on 10 basic items.

We use a computer to pick out congenial members of the opposite sex who match you on all 10 characteristics.

Then we urge you to correspond for a few exchanges of letters, chiefly to help you build up an acquaintance by mail so you will be able to carry on easier conversation when you do meet in person.

Of some 10,000 happily married folks thus far, only 11 have notified the S-M-F of a divorce, which means our divorce rate is only one-tenth of one per cent in contrast to the nation's 25 percent, even when you try to pick your own mate.

Widows are especially vulnerable to unwise second marriages, but thousands of good men like Karl let themselves become embroiled in unwise romances, chiefly because of their recent grief, plus their overwhelming sense of loneliness.

So don't wait too long to help your bereaved friends make new romantic contacts!

Alas, they often enter into entangling alliances while their tactful friends are hesitating about broaching the S-M-F idea to them.

So send for the "Marriage Questionnaire" of the S-M-F enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Use it or pass it along to an eligible man or woman.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Opening lead: Ten of ♣. A spectacular series of blocking plays were required to upset an unbalanced contract of five hearts which South unsoundly thrust upon his partnership. Had either East or West made the slightest slip on the deal, East would have been caught in a fatal endplay.

When North opened the bidding with one no trump South had thoughts of slam. He held 15 points in high cards, plus a solid five card suit. He might conceivably have jumped to four no trump immediately, which is, of course, a raise and invites partner to go on if he is close to the maximum for his opening bid.

South's decision to make a forcing jump to three hearts is quite acceptable, since a suit contract may prove to be superior. However, when partner rebids three no trump, South should at this point content himself with a simple raise to four no trump. His four club call was rather misleading since his holding is not unbalanced and the raise beyond game to five hearts was pointless. North, holding, a bare minimum passed as soon as he had the opportunity.

West opened the ten of clubs which South won in the closed hand with the queen. He drew trumps with three pulls, West discarding one club and one spade. A club was led to the king and another round back to the ace to strip out that suit, as East let go the seven of diamonds.

The seven of spades was led and West was now called on to make the first and most unusual of the required sequence of defensive maneuvers to avoid the endplay against his partner. He put up the ten of spades (observe that if he does not cover the seven, South can duck this card around to East and the latter is obliged to lead away from one of his kings on the return into dummy's ace-queen holdings).

The ten of spades was covered by the queen and king. East returned the jack to dislodge North's ace and a third spade was led from dummy. Now it was East's turn. If he puts up the nine, South can discard a diamond which will force East to surrender the fulfilling trick on the return. East, however, followed with the three of spades and declarer ruffed in his hand.

The three of diamonds was led next and West made the final good play — although this was routine compared to the others. He put up the nine of diamonds, forcing declarer to put in the queen. This lost to East's king and on the return, West's ten of diamonds dislodged the ace. East could not then be prevented from scoring the setting trick in the suit.

Placed First In Speaking

Roger Billica, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Billica of Greenville, won first place Sunday night in the council level competition of the Boy Scout National Public Speaking Contest, sponsored by Readers Digest.

Billica won the Pitt District contest in July and earned the right to participate in the council competition, held in the Social Science Building at East Carolina University.

Second place was awarded Sunday night to Ricky Mann of Havelock, who represented the Cherry Point-Havelock District, Troop 551. Mann chose "Youths Responsible Involvement" as the topic for his speech.

Billica, who holds Eagle Scout honors, is a member of the First Christian Church here. He will represent the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America at the sectional contest to be held later this year in Raleigh.

Sectional winners will go on to regional competition and then to the national contest in Washington, D.C. early in 1972. Judges for the council contest were Dr. K. J. Davis, Dr. Irvin Hester, Dr. Lindsey Yarborough, Capt. Gary Schaal, and Dr. Herbert Carlton, all from ECU.

Dr. Frank Saunders served as the council chairman for the contest.

Disaster Relief Is Urged By Republican

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Republican Chairman Jim Holshouser wants Oak Island declared a disaster area, but Gov. Bob Scott's office says the area doesn't qualify for federal disaster relief.

Holshouser issued a statement Monday urging Scott to declare the island a disaster area so the Corps of Engineers can be called in to help build a temporary pontoon bridge to the island.

The bridge to Oak Island was knocked out in a barge accident Labor Day. Islanders are being served by two ferry boats.

Scott has already declared the island an emergency area and instructed the Highway Commission to restore a highway link as soon as possible.

Holshouser called the "long delay" by Scott "inexcusable" and said it leaves the impression he is "playing politics."

He said he and George Marshall, regional director of the Small Business Administration, would be in Brunswick county Friday to meet with the "many businessmen who are being crippled by this unfortunate accident."

Scott's press secretary, C. T. West, said the situation "does not meet the qualifications for a disaster area under any criteria." He said it is just a "monstrous inconvenience."

Among the unfulfilled criteria, he said, are a minimum damage of $1 million and danger to human life.

NEIGHBORHOOD SCHOOLS — This is the classroom of one of the four "neighborhood schools for quality education" opened yesterday in the Chinese section of San Francisco. (AP Wirephoto)

San Francisco Chinese American Families Open Their Own Schools

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — About 1,000 Chinese-American children are attending four new private "neighborhood schools" formed because of their parents' opposition to court-ordered busing to desegregate San Francisco's public elementary schools.

"We were forced to open these schools because of the strong desire of parents for a free choice of where to send their children," said James Wong, a spokesman for the sponsoring group, called Chinese Parents for Quality Education.

A boycott of the public schools, which opened Sept. 13 with 58.6 per cent of expected enrollment, has been most noticeable in Chinatown, the largest Chinese community outside Asia. The new schools opened Monday in four private Chinese cultural school buildings where many Chinatown children have for years attended bilingual classes after regular school hours.

Wong said at a news conference Monday that another 1,500 children are on a waiting list for admission when more classrooms can be obtained. Total elementary school population in Chinatown is about 5,500.

"There's a very strong feeling in Chinatown that the culture of our Chinese background is worth saving," Wong said. Wong said of the boycott: "We didn't picket or tell anyone not to get on a bus."

A Prize-Winning Reporter Dies

GREENSBORO (AP) — Prize-winner, Greensboro Record reporter Dorothy Ann Benjamin died Monday after a long illness.

Miss Benjamin had been with the afternoon newspaper for 23 years and was its arts and entertainment writers. She had won Associated Press feature writing awards and the Wilbur E. Bade Newspaper Guild award in 1960.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Public school officials reported some picketing of schools Monday as attendance rose to 71.7 per cent, still well below the normal 90 per cent. The heaviest absenteeism remained in Chinatown.

The school district's plan to bus 26,000 of the city's 47,000 elementary school pupils stemmed from a finding by U.S. District Court Judge Stanley Weigel earlier this year that the 97 elementary schools were "racially imbalanced."

"We're for integration," said Adam Gee, co-chairman of the antibusing parents' group. "Our concept is neighborhood schools, and we welcome anyone who lives in the area." He said "a few" white students were attending.

Bertha Chan, the other co-chairman, said her group is seeking state accreditation for the schools, which charge $5 per child per semester. Teachers are mostly volunteer housewives, she said, who get a "token fee."

Wong said the group hopes eventually to raise sufficient money from parents and local merchants to pay the staff regular salaries.

Some 30 classes covering grades one through six are operating on double sessions, using surplus textbooks donated by the state.

Mrs. Chan explained that because each child is in the schools only 2½ hours and the state requires a minimum of three, all pupils are being requested to watch a half-hour of educational television daily.

Many Fatalities Alcohol-Related

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fifty per cent of highway fatalities are alcohol-related incidents, reports the Consumers Insurance Information Bureau.

The medical profession considers a blood alcohol level of 0.10 sufficient to be labeled drunk. In many states a driver cannot be arrested as drunk until tests indicate an alcohol level of 0.15.

Treasury Department's Action On No-Interest Loan Questioned

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Banking

Committee has called for an investigation of the transaction in which the Treasury Department gave the nation's second largest bank free use of nearly $39 million to make up earnings on money the bank lost through its own bookkeeping error.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., said Monday the transaction indicated a "close buddy-buddy relationship between the Treasury Department and the First National City Bank of New York."

"It is the kind of relationship," Patman added, "the average citizen—the taxpayer—does not enjoy."

Patman, commenting after the transaction was disclosed by The Associated Press, said he would ask for a full investigation by the General Accounting Office, Congress' fiscal watchdog.

He said he also would insist the bank "return to the federal government any proceeds gained from the use of this money," and would ask the Treasury Department to specify under what legal authority it made the deal which turned National City's mistake into a potential windfall.

The error occurred when National City paid twice on March 3 for an Export-Import Bank, series BB promissory worth $38.8 million. The error went undetected until May 19 when it was discovered by the bank, not the Treasury.

National City immediately notified the Treasury by telegram and the money was returned. The bank also asked for, and got, an additional $38.8 million to use—free of charge—for 2½ months so it could make up for what it could have earned on private loans during the period the money was missing.

Subsequently, however, the prime interest rate that banks charge their most favored customers rose from 5.5 per cent to 6 per cent, thus giving National City the chance to make more from the government's money than it would have from its own.

The exact amount the bank made from the money would be difficult to estimate since the bank is not due to repay the Federal Reserve System until Sept. 27. At the prime rate, the bank would have earned a minimum of $582,000. But Treasury officials said it could earn far more on quick turnover loans to smaller customers at a much higher rate.

District Court

Judge Herbert O. Phillips, III, disposed of the following cases at the September 7-9 term of Pitt County District Court:

Ray Jones, public drunk (2 counts) 20 days jail.
Howard Cain, worthless check, 30 days jail suspended on payment of cost and check.
James Franklin Yates, shoplifting, no pros.
